

Flaw in Petition Stalls Annexation Move

Error Pointed Out Before Supervisors

Because the technical description of the land involved doesn't "finish" at the point it starts, the hearing on the city of Plymouth petition to annex a portion of the township has been adjourned for 30 days.

The delay was decided at a meeting of the Wayne County Supervisors Ways and Means committee in Detroit Wednesday afternoon, and was based on information obtained only within the previous 24 hours.

This is the second technical obstacle met by the city since the petition first was filed in May, and it is different from the first one. The other objection involved an unrecorded parcel of property and it was corrected when the city filed a second petition on June 7.

This newest objection contained in a letter from the township and supported by the County Bureau of Taxation and the Prosecutors office, involved surveying.

If the legal property description in the petition is followed, they state, then "the territory does not, in a technical sense, close." The error is computed as 100 feet north and south and 66 feet east and west. "Because of this error," it is added, "the maximum possible areas are respectively 268 and 282 acres."

City officials came to Wednesday's hearing with no advance knowledge of the problem. After it was read, city of Plymouth attorney, Harry Devo, requested and was given 30 days to investigate and return.

An earlier motion by Supervisor Chester F. Carpenter of Grosse Ile to "deny the petition" then was withdrawn.

The township made its objection in a letter dated September 18, Tuesday. Township Attorney Earl Demel cited a report from Warner and Warner, a surveying firm, their findings being reported to the township in a letter dated September 14. The County Bureau of Taxation and the Prosecutor's office supported the objection in letters dated September 19 which was yesterday, the same day as the hearing.

Attorney Demel contested the city's petition on other grounds. He said Herbert G. Anderson and Joan M. Anderson became "qualified electors and residents within the affected area as of June 5, 1956," and added, "You will note the residence and qualifications of these electors within the area preceded the filing of the petition on June 7." Demel said they registered as voters and filed a change of address with the post office on June 5. (The Andersons' new address is 41100 Plymouth road, the same as Burroughs. They state their previous address was 14251 Eckles road, Plymouth.)

The township also called the new petition "not an orderly proposed annexation of adjacent and contiguous lands but a grab of an inconspicuous area which will only lead to further problems as to the areas which will remain lying within the township between the present city limits and the limits which they propose to extend."

Demel continued, "The township board has been reliably informed that the largest single property owner—Burroughs corporation—is opposed and it is apparent that this is clearly a tax grab planned and engineered by a few officials of the city of Plymouth and not in accordance with the wishes of the electorate."

Actually, the flaws in the description of the technical and the bureau of taxation said: "As we have pointed out, a reasonable interpretation is possible from information in the petition, but under the circumstances, we believe that the determination of the adequacy of the description for the purpose of the annexation is a mixed question of law and fact and depends upon the degree of technical accuracy required by the provisions of the law."

The Prosecutor's office added, "In the absence of the exact determination of the number of acres involved, it would presently appear that this petition cannot be approved in its present form."

The board has called the election to determine if the public wants to divert funds for other purposes to be used for constructing additions to present buildings.

Since only property-owning residents voted the issue in the first place, the attorney ruled, these same electors are the only ones entitled to change the use of the funds.

Although the issue may sound routine to some people, the proposal is shaping up into a battle between those who want additional Individual members of the commission said the change was necessary and desirable as part of downtown Plymouth's "growing outward from its central core of business." They warned that "if this core doesn't expand, business will go outside the city and the city as we know it will die on the vine."

Edward A. Lees, Michigan Bell supervisor of leases, argued at the hearing for the change and promised that the office building would be a quiet one, open only from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. during five days a week, in good architectural taste, and actually an improvement to the neighborhood.

Another imminent change in this same general neighborhood is the sale of property at S. Harvey and Maple by St. John's Episcopal Church. It is known that the church has received offers for the site, and the church plans to move in the future to a new site of its own on Sheldon Road.

Community Mourns Loss of Charles H. Bennett

Time has taken the life of Charles Henry Bennett, industrialist and philanthropist, whose 93 years of life and service in the community had earned him unofficial recognition as "Mr. Plymouth."

He passed away quietly early Monday morning at his home along North Main street—only a block away from where he was born nearly a century earlier during the height of the Civil War.

His presidency of the Daisy Manufacturing company and affiliation with scores of community projects, organizations and businesses throughout the years had made his name widely known.

Across the park from his home is First Presbyterian church where funeral services were conducted Wednesday at 2 p.m. Officiating were the Reverend Henry J. Walch, D.D., pastor of First Presbyterian church, and the Reverend Melbourne I. Johnson, D.D., pastor of First Methodist church. His pallbearers were Edward C. Hough, Chauncey H. Rauch, Cass Hough, David Taylor, Allen Bernash and Andrew Dunn. Entombment was in Riverside Mausoleum.

While the name of Charles Bennett was known by many, few of the newer residents of Plymouth had the opportunity of meeting him. Frail health during the past three years had confined him to his home at 134 North Main street. He made infrequent trips to his office at Daisy during that time. Infirmities associated with old age became increasingly worse during the past three weeks. He died at 1:45 a.m. Monday.

Charles Bennett was given two to three weeks to live when he was born June 27, 1863. "And even if he does live," the doctor told his mother, "he never will amount to much." His mother switched doctors and her son grew up to far surpass the normal span of life.

Publicity in recent years has spotlighted Mr. Bennett as the man who lost an immense fortune because he split with Henry Ford when the auto company was in its infancy. Although the story was true, Mr. Bennett had never thought of his decision as regrettable or the transaction particularly noteworthy. In the eyes of the public, his early association with Ford had over-shadowed his other accomplishments. Many individuals, organizations, churches and charities have benefited from his generous gifts. Most of his philanthropic activities have remained anonymous.

Unlike many other youngsters of the last century who got by with little schooling, young Charles Bennett attended Plymouth schools from 1869 to 1880, went to the Normal school at Ypsilanti from 1880 to 1885 and attended Bryant & Stratton Business college in Detroit from 1885 to 1887.

It was during these late years that he started as a fanning mill peddler for his father. Fanning mills, used to fan dirt and chaff from wheat, were made in his father's factory located at North Main and Union streets. Driving a team of horses from farm to farm, young Charles Bennett demonstrated his mills wherever someone would spend time to watch.

Air rifles were already being made in Plymouth in those days, first by the Markham Air Rifle company and later by the Plymouth Iron Windmill company. C. J. Hamilton came up with a new idea for an air rifle that the faltering windmill plant started to produce. In 1888, Bennett stuck a dozen air rifles under the seat of his buckboard and as a sideline resold them to farm boys for $1.50. His sideline business became interestingly brisk, and after successfully obtaining a contract for air rifles with a Chicago wholesaler, young Bennett changed jobs.

On November 1, 1888, he started out with a traveling bag in one hand and a canvass case containing Daisy air guns in the other. His first trip, he recalled, was to contact retail dealers in the "big cities" of Saginaw, Grand Rapids, Jackson and "all whistle stops between."

It was in 1892 that he married the former Carrie Peck. She preceded him in death in 1939.

Plymouth Iron Windmill company changed its name to Daisy in 1895 and the business continued to thrive. Mr. Bennett was named president of the company in 1912 and has retained the title during these 44 years.

The often-told story of his investment in the Ford Motor company began in January 1903. The Plymouthite turned down a 49 per cent interest in return for money to produce 250 cars the first year. Instead, he bought 50 shares for $5,000, becoming one of the dozen original investors.

He is credited with actually organizing the Ford Motor company with Ford and Alex Y. Malcomson, and served on its board of directors for the first two years. A disagreement with Malcomson about company policy resulted in Bennett's sale of his shares for about $35,000.

Among his many other activities were these:

Lack of Signatures on Petitions To Keep Liquor Question off Ballot

Because of the failure to secure enough qualified signatures on petitions, nothing stronger than beer or wine will continue to pass over the counters of the city's taverns this year. Petitions were submitted September 6 asking that the question of serving "liquor by the glass" be submitted to city voters on November 6.

City Clerk-Assessor Kenneth Way declared this week that even with 17 petitions unchecked, it was found that they had fallen far short of containing the 376 qualified signatures needed to put the proposal on the ballot November 6.

Law requires that only registered city voters were qualified to sign the petitions.

Way said that without completing the check, it was found that there were 134 signatures short of requirements. There were 988 signatures on all the petitions, only 112 more than required.

An indication that the petitions might fall short was given last week when Way spot-checked one petition. Of the 18 names on the sheet, nine were found to be unregistered as city voters and another had signed twice.

As a result of the clerk's finding, liquor will not be sold by the glass in the city of Plymouth at least during 1956. While law forbids the issue to be placed on the ballot for four years once it is defeated in an election, a new set of petitions can be filed anytime.

But the deadline is passed to get the question on the November 6 ballot. It is expected that

Mrs. Palmer to Return Home from Hospital

Mrs. Richard Palmer, driver of a car involved in a collision last week that injured her and her daughter and took the life of her mother-in-law, is reported improved enough to return home today.

Her two-year-old daughter, Wendy, will remain a patient in Old Grace hospital in Detroit. Mrs. Palmer received fractured ribs and severe cuts and bruises in the collision September 10 in Livonia. Wendy has severe facial cuts and bruises that will require additional treatment.

Mrs. Warren Palmer of 48145 Warren road died of injuries in the collision with a gravel truck at Seven Mile and Farmington roads.

Hough Home Demonstration group, sponsored by Michigan State University Cooperative Extension service, met Monday night at the home of Mrs. Robert South to plan their meeting dates and hostesses for the coming year.

Next meeting will be held October 21 at 8 p.m. in the home of Mrs. James Allor, 7085 Haggerty road.

Churches Plan Canvass Oct. 7

Pastors and two members from the congregations of every Plymouth area church will meet at the First Methodist church at 7:30 p.m. Thursday to make preliminary plans for a community-wide canvass of new members.

The drive itself will occur on Sunday afternoon, Oct. 7. At that time personal calls will be made on homes of residents who have no known present church affiliation.

Headed the drive is The Reverend Melbourne I. Johnson. It was launched after a survey showed that 3,000 homes in the Plymouth area appeared to have no church affiliation.

All denominations are participating in the canvass.

Construction will begin soon of a two story Michigan Bell Telephone Company office building on the west side of South Harvey Street between Ann Arbor Trail and Maple avenue.

It will cost about $175,000 and will have a hard-surfaced parking lot to the rear.

Obstacles to the project were cleared at a meeting of the city planning commission last Friday night and the city commission gave first reading to an ordinance to change the zoning map Monday night. Second and third readings are expected to be approved at the October 1 meeting.

Telephone officials said they "wanted to get started on the construction as quickly as possible. The need is urgent."

Alas, No More Post Office Pen Jokes

It looks like those old jokes about scratchy post office pens are on their way out. Modernization has hit the pen department of the Plymouth post office.

Ball point pens have replaced the old-fashioned dip-point variety. The ball points are a part of the post office department's "streamlining" which has brought numerous improvements in recent years.

While few people ever made the mistake of sticking the old-fashioned pens into their pockets, the post office is taking no chances with the newer brand. They'll be chained to the desks.

Community Fund Board Appoints New Member

A replacement has been made on the board of directors of the Plymouth Community Fund on the eve of the 1956 campaign "kick-off."

Thomas Rossette, 551 Evergreen, has been appointed to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation last week of Robert Maurer, 216 South Holbrook. The resignation was accepted and the appointment made at a meeting of the board last week.

Mayor Appoints United Nations Committee of 12

A 12-member committee has been appointed by Mayor Russell M. Daane to plan the local celebration for United Nations Day on Wednesday, October 24.

Mrs. Henry Jensen has been appointed chairman. Other members of the committee are:

Miss Helen Beavers, last year's chairman; Reverend David Davies, representing the Plymouth Ministerial association; Russell Isbister and Herbert Woolweaver, representing the public schools; Mrs. Kenneth Bisbee of the United Church Women; Reverend Father Francis Byrne of Our Lady of Good Counsel church and Mrs. James Hughes of the Catholic Women.

Mrs. Robert Webber, American Association of University Women; Mrs. Edward T. Miller, Women's club; David Galin, service clubs; and Mrs. Agnes Pauline, Wayne county library.

Last year, for the UN 10th anniversary, a public program was held at the high school.

Representatives from 50 organizations have been invited to attend a meeting tonight at 7:30 in the high school library to discuss UN day observance plans. They will be told how to utilize UN information and films for programs. Organizations not contacted are also invited to send representatives.

Unlike last year when a banquet was held to celebrate the 10th anniversary of the United Nations, this year's observance is expected to be confined to programs within the community's many organizations.

Michigan Bell to Build New Offices

Construction will begin soon of a two story Michigan Bell Telephone Company office building on the west side of South Harvey Street between Ann Arbor Trail and Maple avenue.

It will cost about $175,000 and will have a hard-surfaced parking lot to the rear.

Obstacles to the project were cleared at a meeting of the city planning commission last Friday night and the city commission gave first reading to an ordinance to change the zoning map Monday night. Second and third readings are expected to be approved at the October 1 meeting.

feet, which will take the phone company parking lot back from the street westward almost to Jener Place. The parking lot will be bordered with a strip of green shrubbery planting.

A vacant lot at South Harvey and Maple is not involved in the phone company project. A frame house on the new site will be removed. Frontage on Harvey for the distance of the entire block has been re-zoned to C-2, commercial, however.

The phone company will not actually build the new offices itself, but will assign that to other interests, and lease the quarters from them for a long period of time. This is a maneuver for tax benefit that has been adopted by super-markets and many other businesses recently.

The sale of the property has been negotiated through Stark Realty and the land price (including the old frame house) is believed to be close to $20,000. Working space for 37 employes, and parking space for 37 cars, will be contained in the project. The phone company's present office quarters will be vacated when the new 47 by 116 foot building is ready.

This office building is separate from another project announced earlier, for construction of a dial-equipment building at Ann Arbor and Sheldon roads. Work is scheduled on that unit early in 1958.

Traffic has increased immensely in the phone company offices—it has twice as many customers as two years ago—forcing the switch to better quarters. It takes care of Plymouth, Northville, South Lyon, Livonia and Garden City customers.

The planning commission unanimously approved the change in zoning on the block of Harvey after hearing from several residents of the area at a hearing in the city hall Friday. A petition was received containing 10 names and protesting the change to commercial.

Merchants Plan Free Parking Lot

A free parking lot that will accommodate 120 cars is being planned by a group of downtown Plymouth merchants.

Located west of the A & P and Kennitt Candy stores, it will be adjacent to the city's Central Parking lot that has meters.

A house now located on the property is to be razed, according to a spokesman for the merchant group. Not affected will be the large building at Harvey and Ann Arbor trail occupied by Doctors Charles Westover and Ensign Clyde.

Use of the properties is being provided by their owners, Robert Willoughby, Atlas Finance company and Carl Peterson. Merchants in the area are now raising funds to hard-surface the lot. Leading the fund-raising drive are Richard Papes and Ralph Rostow.

Ground is expected to be broken this fall.

Girl, 11, Leads Ponies From Burning Barn

An 11-year-old girl proved to be the hero of her family last Friday afternoon when she entered a burning barn and led two ponies and her dog to safety.

Vicki Riblett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Riblett, 7601 Sheldon road, was returning home on the school bus when she and other children noticed smoke coming from the barn.

Running from the bus, she entered a back door of the barn and first released her dog that was shut inside. Although bailed straw and hay was burning wildly and the entire barn was full of smoke, Vicki located her ponies and led them to safety.

A neighbor had called the Canton township fire department. Mrs. Riblett was unaware of the fire until Vicki ran to the house to tell her. Plymouth township firemen also sent a truck to the scene.

Firemen said that the old barn was a total loss. The loss was estimated at $1,000. There were about 100 bales of hay and straw destroyed. The heat was so intense that it blistered the side of a home next door. Firemen, who have not determined the cause of the blaze, stood by until 9:30 p.m. because of wind which blew ashes throughout the area. They received the alarm at 4:06 p.m.

Vicki has four brothers and sisters.

John McIntyre, Local Optometrist, Dies Suddenly

Dr. John McIntyre

Coronary thrombosis caused the sudden death Tuesday morning of Dr. John C. McIntyre, 63, a Plymouth optometrist for the past 19 years.

Dr. McIntyre was stricken at his home at 383 North Main street and died at 12:01 a.m. Born October 3, 1892 in St. Thomas, Ontario, he was the son of William and Cerinda Joffiffe McIntyre. On December 29, 1928, he was united in marriage. His wife, Josephine, survives with a daughter, Joan, at home; a sister, Mrs. Evva Newkirk of St. Thomas; and a brother, Alvin McIntyre of Toronto.

Dr. McIntyre attended St. Thomas Collegiate Institute and Northern Illinois College of Optometry. He moved to Plymouth in 1937 from Detroit.

The deceased was a member of First Methodist church, the Plymouth Kiwanis club and the Michigan Optometric association.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. today at the Reverend Melbourn I. Johnson, pastor of First Methodist church, officiating. Entombment will be in Riverside Mausoleum.

Pallbearers are: Ward M. Jones, Rockwell Smith, Edwin A. Rice, Donald McLeod, Lloyd Fillmore and Gerald H. Fitch.

Commission Zips Through Agenda

City commissioners breezed through a regular meeting Monday night in 35 minutes as a record for any public body—but still managed to polish off a dozen items on the agenda.

Purchase of a used tractor and back-hoe for the department of public works represented the only money-spending effort of the evening. The bid of $2,700 from the Stromback Excavating company of Detroit was recommended by the DPW after an inspection of equipment was made.

Three changes in zoning were also considered by the commission. Second and third reading was given to changes from R-2 to C-1 at Amelia and Mill street and from PR-1 to C-2 behind the Beglinger Oldsmobile Cadillac garage. First reading was also given to change zoning for property along Harvey street for proposed Michigan Bell Telephone office.

A resolution was approved honoring Chester E. Barnabee, laborer for the city, who retired August 31 after 16 years of service.

Only Property Owners to Vote On School Issue

Only residents who pay property taxes within the Plymouth Community School district will be able to vote at the special election October 8, the school board's attorney, Vandino Perlongo, has advised.

The board has called the election to determine if the public wants to divert funds for other purposes to be used for constructing additions to present buildings.

Since only property-owning residents voted the issue in the first place, the attorney ruled, these same electors are the only ones entitled to change the use of the funds.

Although the issue may sound routine to some people, the proposal is shaping up into a battle between those who want additional

St. Valentine's Church, Redford Scene of Britcher-Klawe Rites

At a 9 o'clock nuptial high mass read at St. Valentine's Catholic church, Redford township, on Saturday morning, September 8, Ruth Marie Klawe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Klawe of Harrison avenue, Livonia, became the bride of John Edward Britcher, Jr., whose parents are residents of East Ann Arbor trail, Plymouth.

The bridegroom had a bodice of chantilly lace, styled with off-shoulder neckline and skirt of nylon tulle over satin. The bride wore a pillbox of seedpearls and sequins holding a fingertip veil of nylon tulle, and carried a cascade bouquet of baby mums and stephanotis centered with a white orchid. She was given in marriage by her father.

The bridegroom's cousin, Darlene Levandowski, maid of honor, wore a ballerina-length gown of blue nylon chiffon over taffeta with matching picture hat studded with iridescent beading. The shirred bodice of the gown was styled with soft drape over the shoulders, forming a long sash at the back. The bouffant skirt was also shirred. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

The bridesmaids, whose gowns were identical in styling but of cotton blue, were Barbara Dunn, friend of the bride, and Carol Piesczak, cousin of the bridegroom. They carried yellow and cream-colored baby mums. Flower girl was Denise Ramm, the bride's niece, who wore a pink organdy frock with matching headpiece and carried a basket of pink and white rose petals.

The bride's mother selected a dress of dusty rose lace over pink satin with navy blue accessories. Mrs. Britcher chose a Dior blue lace dress with taffeta underskirt and matching accessories. Both wore white carnation corsages.

The Reverend Father Bodde performed the rites before an altar decorated with vases of white mums and gladioli. "Ave Maria" was played at the organ by Mrs. Hartman of Redford township.

Robert Wencel of Wayne assisted his cousin as best man. Guests were seated by Richard Ramm of Detroit, William and James Burger of Plymouth.

Approximately 250 guests attended the reception held at the American Legion hall on Newburgh road. The out-of-town guest list included residents of northern Michigan and Ohio.

A light brown suit with dark brown accessories and the orchid from her bridal bouquet was selected by the new Mrs. Britcher for the northern Michigan honeymoon trip.

The bride attended Bentley high school while the bridegroom attended high school in Plymouth. The couple are making their home at 2245 North Newburgh road in Wayne.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Stafford

Carolyn B. Hill Now Mrs. Robert Stafford

Wearing a waltz-length gown of Victorian styling, Carolyn Brenodene Hill approached the altar of the First Methodist church Friday evening, September 14, to repeat the marriage vows with Robert William Stafford in rites officiated by the Reverend Melbourne I. Johnson.

The bridal gown was designed with high neckline, tightly-fitted bodice and long, wrist-point sleeves, the skirt fashioned of nylon tulle over tiered ruffled net and slipper satin. Her fingertip veil of illusion was caught by a crown of seed pearls and sequins. The bridal bouquet was a colonial arrangement of white rosebuds centered with a white orchid.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur A. Hill of 324 Ann street, Carolyn was given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom is the son of Norman Stafford of LaVerne, California.

Bouquets of white gladioli and mums, palms and candelabra decked the church altar for the 8 o'clock wedding ceremony. Mrs. Ted Linabury sang "Through the Years" and "Because", accompanied by Mrs. Grant Beglarian, organist.

A pale yellow, ballerina-length gown of crystalline and satin was worn by Elizabeth Hunter of Plymouth, matron of honor. A silver headband with yellow veiling, white mitts and shoes complemented her costume. She carried as floral accent a bronze colonial bouquet of hibbard rosebuds and mums.

Bridesmaids were Susan Simmons and Janet Ruffner of Plymouth and Owosso, respectively, fellow students of the bride at the University of Michigan School of Nursing. They were gowned in pale aqua crystalline and satin dresses, silver headbands with green veiling, white mitts and shoes. Their bouquets were yellow rosebuds and mums in colonial arrangement.

Kingbearer was Michael Rorabacher, godchild of the bride, whose father was ringbearer at her parents' wedding. The bride's mother selected a navy blue lace dress with hat and gloves in old rose shade, navy purple and shoes and purple orchid corsage. Serving as best man at the ceremony was Vern Rorabacher of Wayne. Paul Hill, Bruce and Bernard Curtis of Ferndale and Plymouth, respectively, were the ushers.

The reception which followed in the fellowship hall of the church was attended by 200 guests from Defiance, Toledo, Clyde and Fremont, Ohio; as well as from Wayne, Saline, Ferndale, Detroit, Ypsilanti and Plymouth. For going-away, the new Mrs. Stafford changed to a dark brown suit-dress with tan hat and dark brown accessories. The couple took the Milwaukee Clipper over Lake Michigan to Wisconsin for their honeymoon.

The bride, a 1954 graduate of Plymouth high school, is in her junior year at the U of M School of Nursing. The bridegroom received his B.S. degree from Tampa university, Tampa, Florida; his M.A. from Galilean university and Th. B. from Baptist Bible institute, both located in Tampa. The couple are at home at 320 East Liberty, Ann Arbor.

Mr. and Mrs. Derward Jewell and family and his mother, Mrs. LeRoy Jewell, spent the weekend with the latter's brother, Ford Becker, and family in Pittsford.

Anita Moshier Becomes Bride Of Edward R. Fisher, Detroit

Anita Beverly Moshier of Plymouth and Edward Robert Fisher, Detroit resident, were wed in a 10 o'clock ceremony performed at Our Lady of Good Counsel church Saturday morning, September 15. The Reverend Father Francis Byrne officiated.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Emily Kurgin Moshier of 963 West Ann Arbor trail and the late Andrew C. Moshier, was dressed in a floor-length gown of imported rosepoint lace, styled with tightly-fitted bodice and high neckline. The bouffant skirt fell gracefully in Spanish tiers of alternating lace and pleated nylon tulle. Her veil of imported French illusion was caught by a lovely beaded coronet, and she carried white fugi mums in crescent bouquet.

Miss Moshier was given in marriage by her godfather, Joseph Szewczak. Altar baskets of white gladioli and mums formed the ceremony setting. Selections of "Ave Maria," "Panis Angelicus" and "On This Day Oh Beautiful Mother" were sung by Mrs. Mary Ann Robertson accompanied by Mrs. Felix Cyk at the organ.

The bride chose Dorothy Thomas, a former schoolmate at Plymouth high, to be her maid of honor, and Yvonne LaRoch, another schoolmate, the bridesmaid. They were dressed identically in ballerina-length gowns of ice green celanese acetate, princess-styled, with trim of olive green. Their headbands matched the darker green shade and they carried crescent bouquets of yellow baby mums. Joan Feldkamp, flower girl, wore a white, floral-embroidered organza dress with yellow underskirt and headband of yellow. She carried a bouquet of green baby mums.

Richard Gordon was his cousin's best man. Garry Kopen, former schoolmate of the bride's, ushered at the ceremony.

Mrs. Moshier wore a beige lace dress with sandalwood accessories and corsage of yellow carnations. A princess-styled, sandalwood antique silk dress with embroidered flowers was the selection of the bridegroom's mother. Her accessories were turquoise blue with a yellow carnation corsage.

Over 150 guests congratulated the couple at the reception which followed in the VFW hall. From out-of-town were friends and relatives from California, Canada, Detroit, Livonia and Wayne.

For a two weeks trip to Niagara Falls and Boston, Massachusetts, the bride changed to a beige linen suit-covered with a mink cape, beige and brown accessories. Upon their return, the couple will reside at 32304 Wisconsin, Livonia.

The bride is a 1954 graduate of Plymouth high school. The bridegroom, a member of the American Society of Tool Engineers, is employed in the personnel office at Evans Products.

The Right Package

By C. C. Wiltse
Registered, Pharmacist

Except from the standpoint of its ability to help sell a product, virtually no retailer (with one exception) concerns himself with the package . . . the container. Such a matter, the general merchant reasons, is rightfully the manufacturer's responsibility.

Not so the pharmacist. To him, the selection of a container for a particular prescription is often as important as the compounding of the prescription itself. One drug would quickly lose its potency if it were packed in anything other than an amber-colored bottle. Another drug would deteriorate to uselessness unless the cap were sealed.

To the hardware man or the grocer, the selection of a package is of little consequence as far as health is concerned. But to the druggist, the right package can make a big difference in safeguarding health—and life itself.

I just heard about a fellow who suggested that all restaurants ought to be rated for cleanliness. If you saw a big "A" in your favorite chop house it would mean the place was purer than the heroine in a western movie. If the cook forgot to shave, the chow factory might rate "B" and so on down the line till you got to "F", at which point you're trifling with ptomaine. One glance at the alphabetical brand would answer more questions than an obliging traffic cop.

Seems like some eateries serve food that makes you suspect they've taken out a special life insurance policy on their clients. With the rating system it might spur all eating places on to top Ivory Soap for purity. Maybe nothing will come of the idea ... but it's food for thought.

Schultz-Stage Nuptials Read In Warwick, N.Y. Church

The Warwick Reformed church in Warwick, New York was the scene of nuptials uniting Margaret Ann Stage and Melvin Eugene Schultz at 2:30 Saturday afternoon, September 8.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Stage of 4 Second street, Warwick and Mr. and Mrs. August J. Schultz of 49780 Hanford road, Ypsilanti. The bride was given in marriage by her father at the double-ring ceremony performed by the Reverend Orville J. Hine. A white floor-length gown of imported Swiss lace over satin with scooped neckline and long, pointed sleeves, was her choice for the wedding rites. White roses and streamers of stephanotis on a white Bible composed the bridal bouquet.

Margaret E. Elston of Warwick, maid of honor, wore a ballerina-length gown of blue lace over taffeta with rose tiara matching her colonial bouquet of pink roses.

Ballerina-length gowns of maize lace over taffeta were worn by the bridesmaids, Barbara K. Sheppard of Syracuse and Anne Logan of Potsdam, New York. Their tiaras and bouquets were identical to Miss Elston's. The junior bridesmaids, Carol Ruth and Susan Ernestine Kelly of Pine Bush, New York, nieces of the bride, were dressed in waltz-length gowns of pink net over taffeta. They carried tinted, blue roses with matching roses tiaras in their hair.

Mrs. Stage wore a street-length dress of delft blue taffeta with lace inserts for her daughter's wedding. Navy accessories and

Rocks Open League Play Tomorrow at Allen Park

Plymouth's varsity football team initiates its 1956 Suburban Six league battling tomorrow evening when the Rocks journey to Allen Park to be hosted there by the Jaguars. Game time is 8 p.m.

The locals will be out for revenge over Allen Park for last year's 13-7 loss suffered under the lights at Plymouth high school.

The defeat, which came suddenly in the last quarter after the two teams had remained tied for two periods, dropped the Rocks to third place in the final league standings.

Only one mar on the 1955 record was an 18-7 setback from Trenton.

said last week that his team's strength lies in a veteran backfield which has good size. He added it is not too fast, however. Weaknesses in the Jaguar's formations will be a small and inexperienced line, Dyas reported.

Dyas is in his seventh year at the helm of Allen Park's football fortunes.

Captain of the Jaguars this campaign is All-League center Gerald Morrow, a senior, who is one of four returning lettermen from 1955 who were regular starters then. Eight other players are holdovers as award-winners from the squad which finished second to Trenton in 1955.

Engineering the plays on the field for the Parkers will be Bill Matakas, a junior, in his first roll as quarterback. At the halfback positions will be Gerald Thome, a senior, and Dennis Vereb, a junior. Fullback will be Tom Tresh, a senior.

Allen Park won seven contests in 1955, lost two and tied one.

Plymouth Beats Northville 13-12 in Non-League Opener

Plymouth's Calhoun crashed and Northville's Bell clanged Friday night in a ground and air football duel that saw the Rocks eke out a narrow 13-12 victory over the visiting Mustangs in a fine season opener.

Northville's passing threat Bud Bell connected with a touchdown toss to Cap Pethers midway in the first quarter for a 65 yard scoring play. The attempt for the extra point failed and the quarter ended with the visitors ahead 6-0.

Merchants Win,

The Plymouth Merchants bettered their chances in the international post-season baseball playoffs last Sunday by beating Club Supino 3-2 and drawing a bye next week.

Plymouth's runs came in the second inning last week on two singles by Bender, a single by Tomlinson, and doubles by Mahley and Hock. Supino scored their two points on four singles, a walk and a double.

Northville travels to Romulus next Sunday to play the only unbeaten team in the playoffs while River Rouge takes on Supino on Sunday.

Two losses eliminate any team from the playoffs so that one team, and possibly two, will be put out of the running next Sunday, while Plymouth rests.

Saline won the lower division championship last Sunday with a 2-1 win over Pressler.

The Rock's ground attack canceled out the Mustang air barrage during a hard fought second quarter in which neither team scored and the half ended with the score still 6-0.

The Plymouth Rocks got back in the game in the third quarter when Jerry Hearl plunged the ball across the goal line after a sustained drive. Northville came team in scoring position. Plymouth also muffed their try for the extra point and the period ended in a 6-6 tie.

Both teams scored in the last quarter. Wagenschutz crossing the goal line for Northville and Calhoun plunging the ball over for the blue jerseys. Rocks Northville again muffed their try for the extra point, however, while Plymouth's Calhoun crashed through for the game winning tally.

The toughest part of the game for Northville came in the third quarter when their star end and pass receiver, Cap Pethers, had his leg broken in two places to end his athletic activities for the rest of the year. Northville coach Ron Schipper said that the 16-year-old junior is also out of the basketball picture for this season.

Statistics for the game show Northville's superiority in the air and Plymouth's control on the ground. Quarterback Bud Bell threw 13 passes for the Mustangs, with seven completions and four interceptions for a total of 217 yards. They gained only 82 yards rushing.

Plymouth quarterback Jerry King threw 10 passes and completed five for a total of 70 yards, while fullback Ken Calhoun gained 147 yards in 15 tries on the ground.

Coach Mike Hoben takes his team to Allen Park for another night game tomorrow against a highly regarded team coached by George Dyas. This is the first league game of the season for the Rocks and they will be looking to avenge a 13-7 defeat at the hands of the Parkers last year.

Harry Gilmer of the Detroit Lions attempted 122 passes during the 1955 season and had only FOUR intercepted.

McAllister Low in Second Plymouth-Northville Round

Elton McAllister came in with an 18 hole 76 at Brae Burn golf course last Sunday to lead the second round of Jerry Walsh's Plymouth-Northville golf tournament.

Following McAllister in the championship flight were Harper Stevens (who has twice won the Plymouth Mail's traveling trophy and could retire it with a third win) Bill Benjamin and Jim Bacon, all with 78, Tom Lock (four time city winner) 79, and Al Cockin and Jerry Walsh, both with 80.

Second flight leaders were Russ Eglolf, 83, Bob Morse, 84, Dick Nelson, 90, and Skip Rambo, 90. Leading the third flight were Chris Collins, Al Jones and C. Rockwell, all with 85, followed by Dick Farwell and S. Rockwell, both with 89.

Jim McAllister, brother of the second round leader and defending champion, was not among the leaders last week.

"Well, it looks like I'm out of it," he remarked to Elton, "but let's keep it in the family."

Top contender Ty Caplin was tentatively disqualified when he allegedly played an out of bounds ball, but it is believed that he will appeal the ruling. He shot a neat 75.

Ralph Lorenz came closest to winning the hole-in-one contest when he dropped his ball eight and one-half inches from the cup. This competition, sponsored and conducted by the Plymouth Jaycees in conjunction with the tourney, is held beside the club house on each day of play. First prize is a golf bag, second prize a putter and third prize a set of three golf balls.

Winners of more than $600 in prizes and new holders of the Plymouth Mail's traveling trophy will be decided next Sunday when contestants tee-off for the second and final round. Play starts at 9:30 with the 14 member championship flight scheduled to begin at 1:30.

Winners will be announced at a buffet lunch to be held in the evening after the final round has been completed.

Politz Leads Second Round In Partridge Golf Tourney

Dave Politz of Northville fired a one-under-par 71 at Plymouth Country Club last Sunday to lead the second round of Casey Partridge's Plymouth Amateur Golf tourney. Plymouth High School senior Tom Carmichael, who led the first round with a sizzling 69, dropped to fifth place in last week's round with a 74.

Championship flight leaders were Dave Politz, 71, Richard Hartner, 72, Bob Johnston and Harper Stephens with 73, Tom Carmichael and Ty Caplin with 74, Ralph Lorenz, 75, and defending champ Jim McAllister, 78.

Second flight leaders were Vaughn Smith, 75, Skip Rambo, 77, Don Huebler, 78, and Morris Drowbeck, 79. Leading the third flight were Marv Terry, 84, Frank Armstrong, 84, Steve Pestlaski, 85, and Roland Bonamico, 86.

Approximately 80 golfers will enter the final round next Sunday at Plymouth Country Club, Partridge says, to compete for the large engraved trophy and a new golf bag, which will be given to the winner of each flight. Prizes will also be given to all who complete the 36 holes.

Tee-off time for the first contestants is 9:30 a.m. at Plymouth Country Club and winners of the tourney are expected to be decided by 7:00 p.m. Partridge lists 20 players in the championship flights, 30 in the second flight and 33 in the third.

Church of God to Hold Rally, Revival on Weekend

University Women Slate 1st Meeting Of Year Tonight

A youth rally and revival campaign are weekend activities planned by Riverside Park Church of God, Newburg and Plymouth roads.

Reverend E. B. Jones, local pastor, announced that the denomination's Southern District Youth rally would be held this Saturday at the Church of the Nazarene, Ann Arbor trail near Haggerty. Starting with the 10 o'clock service Sunday morning and continuing nightly at 7:30 through Friday, September 28, a "get-acquainted" revival campaign will be held at the local Church of God.

Guest speaker for both events will be the Reverend Flavy Brown, pastor of the First Church of God, Grove City, Pennsylvania. The rally service will be held at 7:30 Saturday evening. Highlight of the district event will be presentation of a "trophy" to the youth group with largest representation among ages 12-30. The Plymouth church placed second and third in the last two youth-meetings. President of the local young people's organization is Ginger Freyman.

Reverend Brown has been a popular convention speaker for youth organizations. At present he is youth counselor, serves on the Youth Camp council and has directed the denomination's camp in Pennsylvania. Reverend Brown has traveled extensively in connection with his evangelistic work.

The Plymouth Branch, American Association of University Women, will hold its first meeting of the year this evening, September 20, at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. K. L. Hulsing, 1010 Church street.

Interested women from the Northville-Plymouth area holding degrees from approved colleges are urged to attend. Co-hostesses for the evening will be Mrs. W. V. Clarke, chairman; Mrs. J. R. Barnes and Miss Edna Allen.

In addition to introduction of new members, delegates who attended State Workshops this past summer in Albion and Midland will report on their respective workshop activities in art, legislative, international relations and program. Current chairmen of the various Study Groups meeting throughout the month will acquaint members with their plans for the coming year.

Anyone who would like to arrange for transportation may call Mrs. W. V. Clarke in Plymouth or Mrs. B. William Secord, Northville.

Highway signs reading "slow" are put there for your protection, whether you obey them or not.

Course in Great Books Offered Adults This Fall

For the first time this fall, residents of the community will be offered a Great Books course under the sponsorship of the Plymouth branch, Wayne County library, in cooperation with the city's Adult Education and Recreation department.

Over 40 persons have been enrolled to date for this discussion-type program covering the foremost in literature of Western civilization. Further enrollments for the course to start Tuesday, October 2, under leadership of Mr. and Mrs. John Moon, are being taken this and next week at the library and Adult Recreation office in the high school.

The course will be taught in discussion groups of 20-25 persons once every two weeks from 8 to 10 p.m. at the library. It is hoped that two units may be formed, their hours of meeting to be determined by the individual participants.

Reviewed in the two-hour meetings will be the works of such authors as Plato, Sophocles, Aristotle, St. Matthew, Epictetus, Machiavelli, Shakespeare, Adam Smith, Marx, Engels, Thoreau and Tolstoy. Group participants, reading in advance of the meetings, will discuss basic ideas of each work and their application in the world of today. Leaders serve only to maintain active discussion.

There are no formal educational requirements for the Great Books course. No fees are required other than the voluntary purchase of reading materials.

The program, now in nationwide operation, was established in 1947 by the Great Books foundation of Chicago, Illinois, a non-profit educational corporation. Some 1500 groups have been organized to date in communities from coast to coast as a means of continuing adult education.

Ruling Changes Minimum Age for Driving Permit

Although a new state law requiring all new drivers under 18 to learn under a driver training course will not be effective until February 2, a new order has already clamped down on applicants for special permits under 15½ years old.

Previously, a youngster 14 to 16 years old could obtain a special license if he could show that driving was a necessity. Under the new order, Police Chief Kenneth Fisher states, application cannot be made until the youngster is 15½.

tions and those who believe that the money should be used to construct a new school in the northeast corner of Plymouth township.

The school board itself is divided on the question with three members favoring additions, Warren Smith, James Mitchell and Austin Stecker, and two members opposed, President Harold Fischer and Mrs. Esther Hulsing. They agreed, unanimously, however, to let the public decide at the polls. Law provides that public consent must be obtained to divert funds previously voted in a bond issue.

Supporters for additions believe that it is cheaper to build onto present schools than to build a new one. Opponents are expected to argue that enlarging the present schools will decrease their educational efficiency, and will necessitate more long-range bus service. Some residents of the Starkweather school district have already indicated that they are opposed because a new proposed large subdivision in their district will result in serious overcrowding of their school. A new northeast school would be in the center of the development.

So far, no public statements have been made by either faction but with the election looming only 18 days away, more of the pros and cons are expected to be aired.

Plymouth Symphony Opens 11th Season October 21st

Youth Symphony Opens Rehearsals Saturday

Young musicians interested in playing in the Plymouth Youth Symphony are being invited to attend the group's first rehearsal Saturday morning.

Stringed instrument players are especially being sought by Director Donald Morris. This is the Youth Symphony's second season.

The rehearsal will take place in the high school band room from 10 to 11 a.m. The Plymouth Symphony sponsors the junior group. Members of the Youth Symphony are of junior and senior high school age.

Mr. and Mrs. John Maxwell were dinner guests, Sunday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith in Ypsilanti.

The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra will open its eleventh season with an October 21, concert in the Plymouth High School auditorium at 4 p.m. Pianist William Doppmann is the featured artist on the opening program.

A pot-luck "Kick-off Dinner" at the high school tonight will preview some of the soloists to be featured during the 1956-57 season. Conductor Wayne Dunlap has extended an invitation to anyone interested in the symphony to attend the 6:30 dinner.

The Plymouth Youth Symphony, which is being sponsored for the third year by the adult group, will also be heard tonight under the direction of Donald Morris.

The present 85 piece symphony orchestra evolved from a modest beginning in 1945 when 10 Plymouth musicians met in a private home to organize a string orchestra. Since that time the group has overcome many difficulties and continued to grow, gathering a devoted following of Plymouth music lovers along the way. Mr. and Mrs. Carl Groschke of 1051 North Mill were hosts for the first meeting of the string orchestra, Mrs. Groschke, who goes by the professional name of Evelyn Woods, conducting from the piano. Paul Wagner conducted the group from 1946 to 1951, when the present conductor, Wayne Dunlap, took over.

This year's schedule includes the opening concert, October 21, featuring pianist William Doppmann, an All-orchestra concert on November 25 and Humperdink's "Hansel and Gretel" which played to a capacity crowd last year, December 16.

The family concert "Circus Day" will be presented January 27, the Plymouth Civic Chorus is featured in the March 3 concert and pianist Evelyn Woods, violinist Josef Lazaroff and cellist Douglas Marsh are to be soloists at the final performance on April 7.

Tonight's dinner guests will see the first editions of a cookbook being published and sold by the Symphony for the benefit of orchestra operation. A free will offering will also be accepted by the symphonic group at all concerts.

Madonna Opens Reading Clinic

Instructions at the Madonna College Reading clinic will be resumed for the fall term beginning Monday, Sept. 24. According to arrangements with parents, instruction will be given on Mondays and Wednesdays from 4 to 6 p.m., and on Saturdays from 9 to 12 noon. All instruction is given individually for one hour a week.

Registered for this year's term are 32 clients in need of remedial reading. They represent the following localities: Livonia, Plymouth, Northville, Farmington, Redford, Romulus, Garden City, Birmingham, Wayne, Dearborn, Orchard Lake, New Boston, Novi and Detroit.

Taking part in the six-week daily summer session were 46 youngsters and adults. No age limits are set for enrollment in the clinic. Since its opening in June 1952, the clinic has aided children of elementary school age, teen-agers from high school, college students and adults.

Referrals of clients to the clinic are made mainly by teachers, principals, or parents. Some cases have also been referred by the Psychological Department of the Wayne County Training School and by the Neuro-Psychiatric Clinic of the University of Michigan. The clinic does not offer services to the mentally retarded. Its purpose is to aid persons of average or above average intelligence who may have difficulties in reading.

The clinic also offers special services to Madonna college freshmen. Each year a Reading Improvement program is offered the first semester to improve reading habits and to increase reading comprehension and rate. Director of the clinic is Sister M. Martina, CSSF, head of the education division at Madonna college.

IN OUR CHURCHES

Meet Your Church Organist . . .

TWO MEN SHARE the organ-playing at the St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran church, 1343 Penniman. They are Robert Bartel (above) of 38915 Plymouth road, Livonia, and Richard Scharf, 1414 Sheridan. Bartel has furnished music at the church for about 10 years while Scharf has played for three. Bartel took music lessons when he was younger. Scharf studied at Martin Luther college in Minnesota. Scharf is also principal of Lutheran Day school and directs the church choir. The two men alternate playing at Sunday services at 10 a.m. Reverend Edgar Hoenecke is pastor of the church.

Constitution Week Proclaimed

"WE the People of the United States, in order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common Defence, promote the general welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this CONSTITUTION for the United States of America."

On September 17, 1787, the delegates to the Federal Convention in Philadelphia met for the last time and approved these familiar words now enshrined not only in our Nation's basic Instrument of Government but also in the hearts of our citizenry. Led by the President of the Convention, George Washington, the great majority of the delegates signed the newly drafted Constitution, and on the following day their Secretary set off for New York by stage coach to deliver the engrossed document to the United States in Congress there assembled. Within a week the proposed Constitution had been printed and circulated in both Pennsylvania and New York, and the great principles by which our country still is governed had been dispatched or carried home by delegates from other States as well. On September 28, 1787, the Congress resolved to transmit the draft text officially to the States of the Confederation for action.

It is fitting that we, whose entire lives have been protected by the fruits of the Convention's deliberations, should pause in our several occupations to study the course of events by which our Constitution came into being, the great debate which ensued before our Federal Government became established, and the internal strifes and the assaults from without which we as a Nation have met successfully, with God's help, within the framework established by our forefathers one hundred and sixty-nine years ago.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, RUSSELL M. DAANE, Mayor of the City of Plymouth, do hereby designate as Constitution Week the period beginning on September 17, 1956, and ending September 23; and I invite the people of Plymouth to observe that week with appropriate ceremonies in our schools and churches, and in other suitable places. Let us give thanks for the wisdom of those statesmen of 1787 who labored "to decide the fate of republican government" and of their successors throughout our country's history who contributed to making our Constitution a living thing, a great taproot to feed and support the growth of our republic.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this 24th day of August, 1956.

Russell M. Daane, Mayor

A NIGHT-BLOOMING CERUEUS, which opens its petals only one time each year, bloomed recently in Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Denham's flower garden back of their house at 190 Plymouth road. The night-blooming cereus is a rare flower which must grow at least seven years before it first blooms. Mr. and Mrs. Denham have three such plants in their garden, the oldest of which is about 15 years old. The couple are pictured here with the flower in bloom last Wednesday evening.

Woman Helps To Shape GOP Platform

By John F. Sembower

The governmental housekeeping plank of the platform the Republicans will take before the nation in coming months was largely the handiwork of a woman. This plank will play a large role in the campaign.

In drafting the platform the GOP paid a compliment to Rep. Frances P. Bolton of Ohio, who probably played the biggest platform role of any woman in the history of either major political party.

It fell the lot of Mrs. Bolton's sub-committee of the Resolutions committee to declare the GOP positions on the Post Office, Indian affairs, the judiciary, civil liberties, Civil Service, government loyalty and security, free speech, press, radio and TV, equal rights for women, territorial government, miscellaneous construction, traffic, highways, and government organization and administration.

Every Senator and Representative regards himself as an expert in one or another of these fields and was vitally interested in the subcommittee's work.

Not until 1952 did the Republicans ever entrust a platform subcommittee post to a woman.

Mrs. Bolton's activities prior to her membership in Congress were in a branch of education. She was a leader in public health nursing and nurses' education.

She is a strong advocate of the women's equal rights amendment to the U. S. Constitution, which failed to reach the Senate floor before the recent adjournment.

Mrs. Bolton has represented 300,000 constituents in Cleveland's suburban Lyndhurst since she was elected to fill the term of her husband Chester C. Bolton after his death during the 76th Congressional session. She has won re-election as Representative of the 22nd Ohio district eight consecutive times since his death.

Mother of three sons, she also found time to serve as a U. S. delegate to the United Nations in 1953.

She may hold something of a record for honorary college degrees conferred upon a woman, with degrees from Colgate, Ohio Wesleyan, Baldwin-Wallace, Kenyon, Wooster, Fenn, Heidelberg and Oberlin.

Mail Gets Real Facts About Plymouth Rock

Repercussions sounded last week at The Plymouth Mail offices with regard to the Kellogg Park feature story which appeared in the last two issues of the paper.

The Mail made considerable research in order to compile the scant facts presented in the two-part series on Kellogg Park, a long-time landmark in Plymouth.

But much of the information dealing with the park remained hidden. As reported Kellogg Park is "oft noticed yet seldom noted." The Mail told the tale as best as possible.

Tops among the mysteries that remained after the series was completed was a more accurate story behind awesome-sized Plymouth Rock, which forms the center of Kellogg Park. Plymouth Rock was named in honor of the landing site of the Pilgrim fathers in 1620.

Mrs. John Jacobs came to The Mail's rescue. She passed along the complete story dealing with the arrival of the huge rock.

Mrs. Jacobs is the widow of John Jacobs, who died earlier this summer. It was Jacobs who made the arrangements to have the rock brought to Plymouth.

During the winter of 1932, Jacobs was a Wayne county road commission foreman working with his crew on a grade separation project along Northville road by Phoenix lake. The rock was uncovered in the digging of the railroad overpass there.

Jacobs recalled that prior to that time there had been a monument located on Plymouth high school grounds which had commemorated local men who had died in World War I. But that monument was torn down when the road which ran in front of the high school was taken out.

The road was an extension of Church street and ran directly past the high school entrance down to Main street at a point further north than Church does today.

Jacobs was a member of the Plymouth Ex-Servicemen's club and a one-time commander of the local organization.

He thought that the huge rock his workmen had uncovered would somehow make a fitting tribute to Plymouth's war dead, thus replacing the monument which had been torn down. Jacobs wondered about locating the rock in Plymouth's Kellogg Park. Plymouth was agreeable.

Wayne county officials allowed Jacobs to use road commission trucks to drag the monstrous rock into town. Mrs. Jacobs said it took seven trucks to skid the rock on rollers over the ice into Plymouth that winter of 1932.

Other Ex-Servicemen club members helped in the job.

The plaques paying tribute to dead comrades in the Civil War the Spanish-American war and the World War were raised shortly after the rock had been placed in the park here.

This same story was related to The Mail by another long-time Plymouth resident only shortly after Mrs. Jacobs explained it. Ernie Roe, who is in his 80's, supported the facts as they happened. Roe lives at the Mayflower hotel.

Roe had further explanation about the cannon that is also located in Kellogg Park. He remembered a man named Oliver Showers who had some connection with the arrival of the ancient artillery piece in Plymouth. Roe said that Showers was one of Plymouth's last surviving Civil War veterans.

The Mail's feature on the park also caught the eye of former Plymouthite Freeman B. Hover, who is news director of radio station KCSR in Chadron, Nebraska. Hover is a Plymouth high school graduate and a former editor of the high school's paper The Pilgrim Prints.

His letter dealt with the cannon. It started: "The recent articles on Kellogg Park have been very enjoyable reading." And continued:

"Here's another sidelight on the cannon. Did you know the City of Plymouth bought the cannon once and put it back in the park without ever moving it?"

"During World War II one of several bond-sale rallies was held in Kellogg Park. During the rally a number of items were auctioned off to the highest person pledging purchases of War Bonds.

"It seems to me there were war souvenirs such as Japanese swords and the white of a dead Japanese soldier's eye! But, I definitely recall that the cannon in the park was up for auction. The City of Plymouth bid the highest purchase of bonds and was awarded the cannon. There was some talk that it would be carted off and used in one of the 'scrap drives,' but it never was melted down.

"How much the City paid for the cannon, in bonds, I don't recall, but I do know there are a lot of people who are glad it was left in the park."

Netherlands Given Credit for Coffee Break Invention

Ever wonder how that all-prevaling custom of the Coffee Break got started?

"If you're one of millions who appreciate that steaming cup and a few minutes relaxing conversation at 10 a.m. and 3 p.m., you can probably thank the Dutch-Americans who settled in Michigan in 1847. They brought the delightful custom with them to the new country."

So says F. Clever Bald, assistant director of The University of Michigan Historical Collections, and he's backed up by the Netherlands Information Service, Holland, Michigan.

According to the latter organization, nearly everybody in Holland and the surrounding area takes a break for coffee around 9:30 to 10 a.m. Business people usually go to a nearby restaurant where they discuss politics or civic matters. Factory workers usually carry a "lunch" while on the farms, and lunch is often brought to the fields.

It's further reported that the housewives also take a coffee break, often going to the neighbors for a few minutes relaxation and talk. This is usually sweetened by a cookie, doughnut or roll and the friendly interval is limited to about fifteen minutes.

The Netherlands Information Service further volunteers this information. "The coffee break at Holland probably stems back to the old Dutch custom of serving coffee at about 11 o'clock each morning, a custom that prevails in the Netherlands today. In the Netherlands coffee is often served in the afternoon, too, and around here many people also take coffee breaks at about three o'clock."

Our idea of a pleasant life is to have more income than expenses, and little or no work to do.

Barber Ends First 50 Years of Business Here

By Ben Nottingham

Charlie McConnell has been cutting hair near the corner of Penniman and Main streets in downtown Plymouth for half a century now.

Glancing up between snips on a trim job (shorten it in back but leave the sideburns) or laying aside his comb and scissors to lounge in his empty chair during the slow mid-afternoon hours, he has seen much of Plymouth's life pass his shop and many changes take place over the years.

Charlie had already been a barber for two years in Northville when he came to Plymouth in 1906. He and his wife, Minnie, moved into the house on the corner of Harvey Street and West Ann Arbor Trail, now occupied as an office by Doctors Clyde and Westover.

In 1911 they moved out of town to their present address at 170 North Harvey. At the time, Charlie says, several people asked me why I wanted to move into that mud hole so far out of town.

For the first 25 years he worked in a shop on Main street where Fisher's Shoe Store now stands. From there he moved to his present shop beside the taxi stand on the north side of Penniman just east of Main.

Talking to Charlie in the quiet of his tiny, one man shop overlooking Kellogg park, you get the impression that this is a man who has enjoyed life rather than fought with it.

He is a man with many memories of Plymouth. Most of them concern the changes he has seen, all of them pleasant.

He recalls when he used to work from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. week days, 6 a.m. to 11 p.m. Fridays and 6 a.m. until midnight on Saturdays.

"Sometimes I wouldn't close up shop until 2 o'clock Sunday morning," he said "and all for nine dollars a week."

Those were the days of the mustache trim and the "crown cut." The "crown cut" was similar to the more recent "fish bowl" haircut, where a bowl is placed over the head and everything it doesn't cover is cut off in a straight line.

"You didn't need a barber for six months after you got a 'crown cut,'" Charlie chuckled.

His memories of the past include the town's volunteer fire department, when its only piece of equipment was a two-wheeled hose reel stored under the band stand in the park.

"When they got a fire alarm they used to wait for the first horse and buggy to come along, hitch up the horse and take off for the fire. The guy that owned the horse got a dollar. If no horse came along, the men would take off on the run, pulling the hose reel themselves."

The police department at that time consisted of a constable during the day and a night watchman with a police dog at night.

"Those were the days when Daisy Manufacturing company made fanning machines, used by the farmers to clean their grain before planting . . . when livery stables stood where the P & A Theatre and the Ford sales rooms are now . . . when the only hotel was the Plymouth House that stood where the D. and C. Store now stands. . ."

He took the cloth of a finished customer, and snapped the hair wisps from it.

"There, That'll look alright if you keep your hat on" he smiled.

Pointing his scissors at the Kresge store across Main street, he shook his head slightly.

"You know, Plymouth just

CHARLIE MCCONNELL started barbering in Plymouth in 1906. A half century later he is still on the job cutting hair (above) in his little shop beside the taxi stand on Penniman Avenue, just around the corner from Main Street.

isn't the same to me since that new Kresge store went in over there. It's a nice, new, modern store and all that, but it's a one story building. There used to be all two story buildings along there . . . of course they were old and ready to fall down . . . but still, it just doesn't seem the same."

At 72, Charlie is still essentially a young man. He attributes this to having always been his own boss and enjoying his work. He has no plans to retire and claims that 50 years of standing beside a barber's chair have never tired his feet.

Health and Beauty

If you listen to the radio, you know that a day never passes but that headache cures are ballyhooed several times.

"If your head aches just take a pill and presto it is cured." While there are headaches that are caused from constipation, fatigue, colds, overeating, etc., that are not dangerous unless they become chronic, there are many others that are very serious indeed, and unless they are properly treated may lead to death.

The brain is the very hub and center of the entire nervous system. It is a mass of nerve tissue. The skull is a bony covering which is filled with brain and the cerebrospinal fluid. It is covered by a tough membrane, the dura mater. It is interlaced with many blood vessels, large, small and medium.

You know that the late President F. D. Roosevelt died with a hemorrhage of the brain which the doctors said was massive. That means that a hardened blood vessel burst and the blood poured out into the brain. If he had lived he probably would never have become normal.

The morning headaches which are relieved by a cup of coffee or tea are usually due to secondary anemia or to a vitaminosis, or a run-down condition. Iron, a nutritious diet, sufficient sleep, and vitamins will cure this condition.

Some headaches are due to inflammations of the lining membranes of the bony cavities and passageways in the front of the skull known as sinuses. They communicate with the structures of the nose. The reduction of the congestion and draining of sinuses usually relieve these aches and pains.

Eye strain, astigmatism, and other eye troubles cause pains in the head, especially among school children. Glaring light, errors in refractions, and weak eyes are contributing causes of headaches.

To understand the anatomy of headache, some knowledge of the cranium is necessary. The skull is filled so completely with brain and cerebrospinal fluid that even a slight rise or fall in pressure of the fluid can produce pain. This is because the outer covering of the brain, known as the dura mater, is a tough white membrane interlaced with branches of sensitive cranial nerves. For this reason congestion, slight swelling, or concussion will cause severe pain in the head.

Poisons, such as alcohol, tobacco, drugs, or poisons manufactured in the kidneys or the intestines and absorbed into the body cause headaches.

The most agonizing pains in the head are due to brain tumors, cerebrospinal meningitis, and other causes of intra-cranial pressure.

When your head aches, instead of resorting to self-medication, endeavor to find out the cause. Most remedies contain acetanilid which is a heart depressant, and is dangerous if taken in large doses.

A tranquil mind is a great headache preventive.

Flattery is one way to pave the walkway of life, but it often costs more than it is worth.

Junior-Size Lipstick, Nail Polish, Shampoo

By Florence DeSantis
Toiletries for sub-teens are created on a sound psychological basis, according to Helen Pessi, "beauty" consultant for little ladies from 7 to 14 years of age. "Child psychologists have demonstrated how important it is for a youngster to have confidence in her appearance," she said. "Just as we now have clothes specially designed for each age group, so we have developed grooming aids to teach little girls good habits—and make them fun!"
Miss Pessi suggested that this back-to-school season would be a good time to present sub-teen girls with their very own toiletries and grooming aids. The sub-teen youngster often goes through a tomboy stage, but no little girl can resist imitating mommy with play versions of beauty products.
For instance, manure sets for little girls are wonderful to discourage nail biting. A manicure tray with mirror holds the very lightest shade of pink polish, remover, hand lotion, cuticle cream, emery boards and orange stick. The delights of cleaning, filing, whitening and, above all, of using real nail polish, are enough to make any young nail nibbler want to keep her nails pretty.
Enid Edson, designer of children's toiletries, said that face cleaning and baths should become a pleasure instead of a chore to little girls when they have their own special beauty aids.

Her newest creation is a complete miniature dressing table, striped and tasseled, with its own mirror and fitted out with bubble bath, toilet water, play cleansing cream, hand lotion, nail enamel and remover, play face powder and lipstick. She makes this dresser set look as grown-up as possible because she knows sub-teens have a strong desire to imitate adults.
Psychologists point out that it is not enough to give toiletries to youngsters and then expect self-improvement. Instead of merely nagging them to keep neat and clean, mothers should show them how to use the toiletries and share the experience with them.
Bath time should also become beauty time for little girls. Perhaps mother and daughter can do their manicures together, or do their face cleansing, or shampoo their hair. Perhaps supper time can be glamor time, with the big and little ladies of the family prettifying their hair and putting on a fresh dress for the family meal.
Today's bath items are particularly fun for little girls. New on the market is a plastic milk bottle full of bubble bath powder prepared with milk, accompanied by soap cakes in the form of cookies. The whole kit is called "Cookies N' Milk."

Younger girls like toy-type items such as a miniature merry-go-round carrying toilet water, bubble bath, shampoo, talc and hand lotion.
The desire to use mommy's lipstick can be diverted by giving daughter a lip pomade, good for chapped lips. This smells and tastes like strawberry and looks like a red lipstick but transfers no color to the lips.
In the same way, little girls' love for fragrance, usually satisfied by dousing themselves with mommy's perfume, now can be pleased with such items as a "Fairy Trio" of Apple Blossom, Lilac and Rose toilet waters in a boxed set as pretty as any mommy could have.
All these modern children's toiletries are inexpensive and can be found in department stores everywhere.

TIPS for TEENS

Auxiliary Active In Volunteer Hospital Work

More than one million hours of volunteer service in veterans hospitals will be given during the next year by the American Legion Auxiliary's volunteer hospital workers, according to Mrs. Mildred Hewer, rehabilitation chairman of Passage-Gayde Auxiliary unit. The Auxiliary now has a corps of 12,939 trained workers on duty in veterans hospitals throughout the country.
The Auxiliary volunteers perform a wide variety of duties in the hospitals, supplementing the work of the professional staffs and bringing comfort, cheer and encouragement to the patients, Mrs. Hewer explained. They are members of Auxiliary Units located near the hospitals and have regularly scheduled hours for their hospital service. When on duty they wear a special uniform in the Auxiliary colors of blue and gold.
Completion of a training course is required of these hospital volunteers. During the past year 1,971 new volunteers were trained and placed on duty in the hospitals. Service bars worn on the uniform reward those who give their time regularly over long periods. Bars for 1,000 hours of hospital service have been awarded to 1,138 volunteers, and bars for 2,000 hours are worn by 440.
Members of Auxiliary Units living too far away from a veterans hospital for hospital service make hospital supplies, provide materials for occupational therapy, keep cookie jars filled, send funds for special treats and parties for the hospitalized veterans. Contacts are made with families of the veterans and help extended during the veterans' illness.

Now's a fine time to get your friends — or boys and girls you'd like to know better — together for a party.
Keep it simple yet gay, and everybody will have a ball, including you.
For an all-girls' shindig that doesn't call for decorations or special plans, make it a Come-as-You-Are-Party with a difference. Telephone 10 or 12 girls at five or six a.m. on a Saturday morning and invite them to put a coat over their robe and sleep outfit and come exactly as they are, no matter how gruesome.
The results will be weird and hilarious when the sleepy girls, usually prettily combed, dressed and lipstick-ed, come scuffing in, wearing curlers or pin curls, minus lipstick... with mussed pajamas, childish "shorties" or long night-shirts. Just looking at each other provides the laughs at this party!

The girl who looks the worst gets a prize and a booby-prize goes to the one who looks as if she combed her hair or prettied up the least bit before coming.
Refreshments? Easy! Fruit juice; a huge platter of scrambled eggs and sausages; a stack of buttered toast and muffins (made easily with a mixer); marmalade and jam; milk.
After breakfast, everybody goes back to "bed" on blankets and pillows on the floor for more giggles until it's time to go home and get dressed for the day.
(For free printed tips on games for party fun, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Elinor Williams at this paper.)

Too Many "No's" Hinder Child's Adjustment, Specialist Warns

By John F. Sembower
You should shed a tear for the youngster who is not quite old enough to start school and has to endure 100 per cent exposure to his parents' nagging, said Dr. Robbins Kimball, pediatrics instructor at Northwestern University medical school in Chicago.
At least, little Johnny who is beginning his school days gets a respite from the constant surveillance of parents.
For preschool children, Dr. Kimball recommended they be separated from "adult gadgets and trouble" for at least half their play time.

This will help the child in his adjustment by allowing him to escape the adult "no" for a part of his time, he said. By slowing down the expansion of his world you will help him handle it better.
"A child really does not understand what belongs to him and what belongs to his parents until he is four years old," said Dr. Kimball.
Until then he should be relieved of the responsibility of not touching the possessions of adults by being given an area of his own where he can exercise full domain as he sees it.
Dr. Kimball suggested that the child be separated by a playpen, gated room, fenced yard or similar devices.
This not only guards against psychological damage to the child through sparring him from glowing adults and continual repression, but it also decreases the number of household accidents and, incidentally, saves the jangled nerves of mother.
In a study of 363 children, Dr. Kimball found that a child adapted to new situations four times more readily when he escaped the adult "no" for half his play time.
Dr. Kimball has not made a study yet of the effect of the teacher's "no."
He has observed, however, that it is pretty much of a "No, no" world for any youngster. Many problems of later life, including some juvenile delinquency, may be traced right there, according to his theory.

Ford Trucks cost less

And low first cost is only your first saving

● Before you buy your next truck, look at both sides of Ford's story of value. Check what you get and what it costs. You'll like what you see.

Look at the costs. Ford's first cost is low. Resale value is high. Modern Short Stroke engines—V-8 or Six—are designed for less friction, less wear, lower running costs. Maintenance costs are lower, too, because Ford trucks are built stronger for rugged long life. And a 10-million truck study proves Ford trucks last longer.

Look at what you get and you'll see you get more in a Ford. For example, more horsepower per dollar—proved by a comparison of factory-suggested list prices and net horsepower of all truck lines. You get more comfort and safety in Ford's Driverized Cab with exclusive Lifeguard features.

Arab Hats Styles Hit America

By Estina Ballard
A new word was added to the fashion vocabulary this season—chechia. It's an Arabic expression meaning a "cylindrical tufted skull cap."
Both the Arabs and fashionable women will wear this chechia next Fall along with other high styles inspired by the Russian Cossack hats and the Russian Pope hats.
Every collection is full of these hats in different heights, fabrics and angles. Dior's hats are very high. Patou's slant like the Tower of Pisa. Fath's black kid chechias are draped.
Miss Jessica, high priestess of the hat world who buys for a large American store, scanned the chechia collections this week with her customers' taste in mind.
When the Vendusee at Dior's showed her the chechias muffled far down over the ears and forehead of a mannequin, Miss Jessica pushed them back and to the side, then stepped away to see if the angle was right.
"I always bring back what is new from Paris," she said. "But I present those hats to my customers in a way that flatters them."
"I've never yet had a customer who was willing to look smart but ugly," she declared.
Miss Jessica could well boast of her attractive customer since a list of her clients reads like a Who's Who of the world's best-dressed women. They include Princess Grace of Monaco, Mrs. Winston Churchill, Mrs. Edward F. Hutton, Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, Anita Loos and Clare Booth Luce.

TWO-IN-ONE SPACE SAVER

Completely automatic home laundry service can be provided in about 36 inches of wall space. The new two-in-one gas laundry unit requires only one yard along the wall, recovers the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association, and does all the work of a separate washer and dryer. The double-duty units are hailed as great savers of time and energy.

HOW MUCH STORAGE?

At least one exclusive closet and an equal share of the collective storage space should be allowed for each member of the family. Whatever ratio is adopted, storage space must be clean and dry. This can be problematical in a basement unless a water-proof material like ceramic tile is used to surface floors and walls. Storage space is worthless if it is vulnerable to damage by moisture or pests.

THE TALK OF THE TOWN: Walter Winchell (Mr. Manhattan himself) and his life-long pal Sherman Billingsley seem to have reached the end. They're this town's biggest feud for thought. No one knows what's really involved but they're no longer speaking. Many remember the days right after prohibition when Billingsley opened the Stork and night after night used to look around the room and wonder if he should get loaded "cause no one else was there doing it. Then along came Winchell who started plugging him in his column. The place snapped to life, overflowed with celebs and made Billingsley a rich man—with a short memory! . . . J. She sat outside the producer's office for three days hoping for an interview. He was too busy. Finally she scribbled out a message and had it taken to him. Within ten seconds she was sitting in his private office. She got the job. Her note to him read merely, "37-23-34."

OUTDOOR NOTES
From The MICHIGAN DEPARTMENT OF CONSERVATION

State forests returned a record high of $672,000 to the people of Michigan through the sale of wood products during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1956.

State forest revenue was $81,000 more than the previous record, set in the 1954-55 fiscal year. Money from the sale of wood products from state forests is used for reforestation.

The latest increase is a step in Michigan's move to regain the important timber position it occupied in the latter part of the 19th century.

Sales from state forests totaled only $7,000 in 1941, but a general upward trend has been experienced since that time.

Credit for this "re-birth" of state forests goes primarily to a shift in demand for various species. Aspen and other so-called "inferior" species have been extremely important in pulp manufacture. Changes in market conditions also have boosted Michigan's timber position.

Sales of sawlog posts and ties and chemical wood also contribute revenue to the state each year.

The Conservation Commission, meeting September 6-7 at Higgins Lake, approved sales of wood products from state forests totaling $83,000 for this month. The sales were authorized from eight state forests, seven in the upper peninsula.

Deer hunting information folders for 1956 are being distributed this week and will be available at most Conservation Department offices in the state.

Each year, some 75,000 of the folders are printed as an aid to deer hunters. The booklet includes statistics and other material on last year's season and a summary of regulations for the 1956 season.

The folders also are distributed by outdoor editors of newspapers and several sportsmens clubs.

Despite unfavorable weather throughout much of the spring and summer seasons, the popularity of fishing has been almost as high as in 1955.

A summary of license sales reported through August 31, lists some 897,000 resident fishing licenses sold—about two percent below sales for the same period last year.

Sales of annual nonresident licenses reported through August 31 totaled 108,000—a drop of 2½ percent from last year's sales for the same period.

Trout stamp sales increased this year, however, in comparison with 1955. Stamp sales for the first eight months of the year reached 165,000—an increase of about two percent over 1955.

The state Conservation Commission, meeting at Higgins Lake September 6-7, approved purchase of 498 acres of hunting land for public use.

The acquisitions authorized include 160 acres at Hardwood state forest, 124 acres at Pigeon River state forest, 80 acres at Life Lake state forest and 27 acres at Allegan state forest. These purchases will be financed by the game and fish protection fund.

Another 107 acres of hunting lands were authorized for purchase under the Pittman-Robertson program, the cooperative state-federal program financed by taxes on firearms and ammunition.

The P-R purchases include 44 acres at Maple River state game area, 30 acres at Deford state game area, 19 acres at Barry state game area and 14 acres at Murphy Lake state game area.

In other action, the Commission approved purchase of land for creation of a public fishing site at Reynolds Lake, Van Buren County.

Closed High Island, Charlevoix county, to ruffled grouse hunting for five years so that a series of grouse experiments may be conducted.

The upper peninsula's first large scale goose trapping project resulted in the banding and release of 45 birds recently at Seney national wildlife refuge in Schoolcraft county.

Conservation Department employees and members of the Seney staff captured the geese while the adult birds were molting and incapable of flight. Of the 45 birds trapped, only 11 were goslings. The others were adults and yearlings.

The geese were banded and released in order to obtain information on their migration routes, wintering grounds, life span and other aspects of behavior.

About 1000 yards of net were set up and the researchers waded through one of the refuge pools, herding the geese ahead of them. At the end of the pool, the birds entered a wire trap where they could be removed, banded and released.

Game biologists working on the project said some difficulties were discovered and their solutions should improve the trapping and banding success in future years.

Fire control measures and frequent rainfall this year have combined to cut Michigan's forest fire losses by more than 65 percent below 1955 figures.

Only two fires were reported on state-protected land during the last week, with damage to slightly more than one acre, while a small fire in the Lapeer district damaged one-tenth of an acre.

The latest fires brought the year's total to 439 and boosted the damage figure to 2309 acres. Last year at this time, 6875 acres had been burned.

These totals include state and private forests and grasslands, but not federally-administered lands.

State forests returned a record high of $672,000 to the people of Michigan through the sale of wood products during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1956.

Dieticians, Doctors, Even Ordinary Man Waging "Battle of Breakfasts" This Month

By Cordelia Adams

Breakfast has become the most controversial meal of the day. It's the National Better Breakfast Month and doctors as well as dieticians are waging the battle of the breakfast. There are different schools of thought backing the two types of breakfasts—the protein meal and the starch-sugar meal.

The controversy arose because so many persons became weight conscious and started skipping breakfasts entirely.

To help dieters, one group of nutrition experts developed an all-protein breakfast and another group came out in favor of a starch meal in the morning.

The pro-tein group points out that proteins raise the blood sugar level, making the person feel healthy and full of pep in the morning - without eating great quantities of sugar and starch. Their breakfast menus emphasize protein-giving foods, eliminating almost everything else.

The other group says that proteins increase a person's appetite, encouraging him to eat more and consequently gain weight. A breakfast of starchy foods, they say, will fill a man's stomach.

Perhaps the best solution is to use your common sense and eat a well-balanced breakfast including all these foods in adequate amounts.

Juice or fruit, an egg with a couple of bacon strips, bread, butter and coffee is one of the

HOW OLD IS YOUR HOUSE? Surveys have brought out that a surprisingly large proportion of home owners do not know the age of their dwellings, or have mistaken ideas on the subject if they think they know. Accurate information on this score, declares the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association, is valuable in home improvement planning. Building age is a clue to prospective repair needs, and a reminder of the years that may have passed since labor-saving appliances were added to meet changing needs.

Here's Quick, Easy Recipe For Nut Bread

A quick bread for afternoon tea or evening snack-time is the featured recipe this week, the recommendation coming from Mrs. R. Roy Pursell of 639 South Main street.

Her suggestion is "Banana Nut Loaf," a bread that can be whipped up in a jiffy for unexpected company or will keep well if prepared ahead for a family treat. The recipe came from Mrs. Pursell's sister who resides in the family hometown of Niagara Falls, New York.

Following is the procedure:

Banana Nut Loaf
 1/4 cup butter
 1 cup white sugar
 Cream above together.
 Beat 1 egg and mash in two ripe bananas. Add:
 2 cups flour
 1/2 teaspoon soda
 1/2 cup nut meats, preferably walnuts.
 Mix all together and bake in loaf tin for 1 hour in 375 degree oven. Recipe makes about 23 slices.

Plymouth Family Enjoys Tour Of Iowa German Colonies

An interesting tour of the German colonies at Amana, Iowa highlighted a recent 10-day vacation trip through the midwestern states for Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ash of Dewey street, their daughter Donna and Mrs. Ash's mother, Mrs. Milo Corwin of Cherry Hill.

Other highpoints of the itinerary were visits to Lincoln's home in Springfield, Illinois; Hannibal, Missouri, home of Mark Twain, and a boat ride on the Mississippi over the scenic route from Hannibal to Iowa City, Iowa.

While in Iowa, the Plymouthites visited Herbert Hoover's birthplace at West Branch, then traveled on to Cedar Rapids and the German colonies at Amana. Seven in all, the Amana colonies were founded by Lutheran immigrants who had first settled in New York state before moving on to the farmlands of Iowa. The name of their settlement, taken from the Bible, means "Remain Faithful." Although modernized somewhat in 1932, the Amana colonies have retained much of their "old country" atmosphere, the architecture of homes, stores and restaurants closely resembling that of a German village.

The Ash family toured the Amana Refrigeration plant, bakery and meat market, closing their day with dinner in a restaurant owned and operated by Bill Zuber, Major League baseball pitcher for the New York Yankees who was born and raised in the Amana colonies.

The local family are members of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church, Livonia.

Expect Record U-M Enrollment Of 22,300 Pupils

An all-time enrollment record will be set at The University of Michigan this fall.

President Harlan Hatcher has reported that at least 22,300 resident credit students will be enrolled on the Ann Arbor campus and that another 300 students will be attending the new Flint College, 54 miles north of Ann Arbor at Flint.

The previous enrollment record was set in the fall of 1948 during the "veterans' bulge" when 21,363 resident credit students were enrolled.

There will be these new items for the students:

1. A new automobile driving regulation which will permit students who are 21 or older to drive.

2. A new calendar under which classes start on Thursday, September 20. Traditionally classes have always started on a Monday.

3. Freshmen and transfer students are now required to take their physical examinations at home rather than during the registration process on campus.

4. This will be the first year for the College of Literature, Science and the Arts' new foreign language requirement which substitutes actual proficiency in a language for a fixed requirement of credit hours.

5. The expanded and remodeled Michigan Union, men's social center, will be in full operation. A $3,000,000 project was rushed to completion in time for last June's commencement. All food service areas have been air conditioned, a new kitchen was constructed and a 400-seat Snack Bar was provided.

6. There will be 300 more married student apartments on the new 700-acre North Campus, bringing the number of apartments in this area to 400. Three hundred more will be ready by the fall of 1957.

Another new structure to be ready this fall is a $400,000 "Communications Center" at Michigan Stadium. The new unit, replacing the old Press Box, will provide expanded and modernized facilities for the sports writers, photographers and the radio and television personnel which will be covering Michigan's seven home football games. The new construction also has increased the number of seats in the stadium to at least 100,000.

Much interest will center this fall on the unique experiment being launched with the opening of the Flint College of The University of Michigan. The establishment of the college gives Flint a four-year college with Flint Junior College giving the freshmen and sophomore years while the new Flint College of the U-M takes care of the junior and senior years.

Flint College brings to 16 the number of schools and colleges which are a part of The University of Michigan. It also is the first to be located off the campus at Ann Arbor.

Couple Successful In Horse Exhibiting

Success smiled on Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hull, 4441 Warren road, when the couple recently showed a string of five horses at the Michigan state fair in the quarter-horse division. The Hulls won several honors.

Their results with the horses: a two-year old stallion named "Brandy Hull" was first in his class and also junior reserve champ. He was second in the reigning performance class and consequently is undefeated in three years at state fair showings.

The Hulls' brood mare "Clarise Stamper" was second in the brood mare class and second in the mare and foal class.

Other awards for the Hulls' horses included a second in produce of dam; a third in weanling filly; and sixth and eighth in a field of 30 entries in the quarter horse futurity competition.

PEDDLERS OR PHARMACISTS??

All sorts of folks may come by your doors these days, selling anything from vitamins to hormones, "cures" for anything from pernicious anemia to hypertension. Now these are all fine folks, making an honest living, but in this case they are all way over their heads. They are not qualified to diagnose nor even discuss your ills. Only your physician can do this. They know little or nothing about the vitamins or drugs they sell. There is no one more qualified regarding them than your pharmacist. Be wise, when you need drugs or vitamins buy them from the man who has been intensely trained to know the difference between the reputable products and the fly-by-nights; the man who has been licensed by your state to protect your health and welfare, YOUR PHARMACIST!

Agent Talks "Turkey" To Autumn Picnickers

It's turkey time! Fresh turkeys are already on the market as one of the best meat buys. From now through the end of the year, they will be plentiful.

Nina Lou Baird, Wayne County Home Demonstration agent, suggests fried turkey, fixed just like fried chicken, as part of your fall picnics. Light-weight turkeys around five pounds are the right size for frying.

FRY, BROIL, OR ROAST

For frying, cut turkey, shaking pieces in a paper bag with seasoned flour. Brown in a skillet, then cover tightly to allow for slow cooking. Or add a little water, if the lid isn't tight.

Young tender turkeys averaging two to eight pounds ready-to-cook give new variety for boiling, frying or roasting. You may want to roast the turkey in the cool of the evening. Cold roast turkey is delicious for cold plates, salad or for sandwich filling. When the price is low and you own a freezer, freezing is an excellent idea. You can freeze turkeys either cut or whole. Wrap just like meat or chicken, but remember to freeze them WITH-OUT THE STUFFING.

TURKEY KABOBS

Another outdoor taste treat is turkey kabobs. Choose the breast and boned thighs of the turkey, removing skin. Cut the turkey meat into approximately one-inch pieces, so they will be large enough to place on the skewer, yet not so thick that the outside gets done before the centers of the cubes are cooked.

MARINADE

Before the meat is threaded on skewers, there is the very important step of marinating the turkey meat cubes for three hours in a sauce. This helps to enhance the flavor.

Here is a recipe for the marinade. Mix together:

- 1/2 cup of oil (salad or olive)
- 1/3 cup of lemon juice
- 1 teas. salt
- 1/4 teas. pepper
- 1/4 teas. thyme

Soak cubes in this mixture three hours. This is enough for the meat from one family-size turkey.

FRUIT OR VEGETABLE KABOBS

After turkey cubes are marinated, you are ready to thread them on metal skewers. There are two kinds of kabobs, one using fruit, the other vegetables. For the fruit, place a turkey piece on skewer then an orange slice, next another turkey piece, and finally a pitted ripe olive.

For the vegetable kabob, thread the metal skewer first with a turkey piece, then a slice of onion, next a turkey piece and a section of green pepper. It takes about 20 minutes to prepare a good bed of coals from burning charcoal. Place turkey kabobs about 8-10 inches from heat, letting cook about 35 minutes. Be sure to turn kabobs frequently, during the cooking time. Baste kabobs with marinade during cooking time for flavor and to keep the meat moist.

Two chocolate cake layers are wonderful when put together with sweetened whipped cream which has been mixed with instant coffee powder for flavoring and some finely chopped walnuts.

THAT MODERN FEELING

Simplicity of design and gay treatment of color adapt the crocheted rug to modern living. Made of heavy cotton yarn, this waffle stitch scatter rug is suitable for any floor in the house that needs a decorative covering. Dark green was used as the main color for this model with dashes of orange, yellow and white crocheted within each waffle pattern. The crocheting directions for making a WAFFLE STITCH RUG may be obtained by writing to the Needlework Department of this paper. Please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for Leaflet No. 1064.

New Pattern Measurements Aid Sewing Set

Here's news for you women who sew! It's about the new body measurement standard for patterns which became effective this summer.

A specialist notes the revised measurement charts for all pattern companies have been approved by the measurement standard committee of the pattern industry.

She adds that all the major pattern companies are adopting the new standard of measurements. You'll find these new measurements in the fall catalogs. The reason for the change is to give you women who sew a better fit.

NEW MEASUREMENTS

The new measurements include the back-waist length taken from the base of the socket bone at the neck to the waist. In general, the old patterns had 6 inches difference between bust and waist and nine inches difference between waist and hip measurements. For example, size 16, has meant—34 bust, 28 waist and 37 hips.

The new measurements will have 8 inches between bust and waist, and 10 inches difference between waist and hip. The new size 16 is as follows—36 bust, 28 waist and 38 hips.

These are body measurements, the measurements you take on your body so you can select your proper pattern size.

The measurement standard committee of the pattern industry gives this statement—"If you select your proper size from the new chart you may buy with confidence all patterns in the catalog in the new size."

YOUR GARMENT CAN LOOK PROFESSIONAL

So you're making a jacket with a collarless neckline, which fastens down the front!

Before you start the final stitching, check your sewing machine. Use very short machine stitches when putting your facing and jacket together. Use about 20 stitches to the inch. The specialist assures that the shorter stitch will give the edge more firmness. The seam allowance needs this support, too, since it will be later cut close to the stitching. After stitching, press the seams open, by moistening the seamline slightly and using the point of the iron to spread the seam open.

DON'T STRETCH—CLIP

Do we need to caution you not to stretch the edge of the seam? After pressing the seam open the expert suggests trimming the allowances to approximately 1/8 of an inch. If the shaped edges create inner curve, clip the seam allowance at frequent intervals. On outward curves, cut out small wedges in the seam allowances.

The final steps in completing your jacket are to turn the facing to the wrong side and edge baste, rolling the stitching line 1/16 of an inch to the underside. Use silk or fine cotton thread so that pressing over the basting will not leave thread marks. Press well to give a sharp clean edge. Now clip and remove edge basting before finally pressing to steam out any trace of thread marks.

A GENEROUS piece of New Orleans Coffee Pie and a generous cup of your own delicious coffee—there's a pair that will top off any dinner in memorable fashion. The delicate coffee filling is combined with a cinnamon-flavored crumb crust. Result: a pie recipe to treasure and to use frequently.

New Orleans Lends Its Name To Delectable Coffee Dessert

When the dinner plates have been cleared away and the time for the last course arrives, everyone thinks of coffee. Coffee-in-the-cup is the accompaniment to the dessert of the evening, no matter what that dessert may be. But when you happen to serve New Orleans Coffee Pie with after-dinner coffee, you've found a combination that is truly delectable.

New Orleans is a city with many claims to fame and one of them is its devotion to its own black-as-your-hat coffee. Orleansians are also famous for their superb food. Here is a recipe for a coffee pie that is typical of the luscious confections so frequently served in the Crescent City.

New Orleans Coffee Pie is easy to make—it requires no cooking at all except for the brief baking of the spicy crumb crust. We suggest making the crust early in the day and preparing the fluffy filling later when you have a spare moment or two. Chill the pie in the refrigerator and just before serving, bedeck it with a crown of snowy whipped cream. Then fill up the coffee cups and let nature take its course!

NEW ORLEANS COFFEE PIE

- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- 1/4 cup cold double-strength coffee

Timely Tips

An old tooth brush makes a wonderfully handy tool for cleaning jewelry, combs or other hard-to-get-at places. Put a little household ammonia in soap suds, and you can whisk them clean in no time.

When things are too wet to iron, hang them up and let an electric fan blow on them. They'll be ready for ironing a lot sooner, and have a pleasant freshness about them.

Garden tools will winter well if they are scrubbed clean and all metal surfaces coated with oil before they are put away.

Try office desk blotters on your shelves under glassware and china. They're colorful, and will absorb any moisture that may collect.

That nasty onion odor can be completely obliterated from your hands. Just wash them in vinegar.

To keep floors from being marred when moving furniture, slip old, heavy woolen socks over the legs.

A folded damp cloth placed under a mixing bowl will keep it from slipping while you are mixing.

When starch sticks and burns on the bottom of your iron, don't use an abrasive to clean it. Sprinkle a little baking soda on a damp cloth and rub the iron until clean. The soda won't scratch the ironing surface.

Mousseline de Soie . . .

A French term meaning silk muslin. Today it may be made of rayon. When you purchase a dress made of either silk or rayon "Mousseline de Soie", you should know that it presents several problems in wear and cleaning. In cleaning, you may find:

- Loss of body and hand . . . the crispness is lost.
- Breaking up of the sizing . . . that may result in streaks or a general over-all whitish surface.
- In some fabrics, partial or complete loss of the decorative design. In wear, you may find:
- Spilling a glass of water or a beverage on this fabric will affect the sizing, leaving a flimsy area.
- Perspiration, which is mostly water, will also affect the sizing.
- It is difficult, and sometimes impossible, to remove spots and stains caused from substances that contain moisture.
- Any moisture from the above sources may result in lighter colored spots, sizing rings, flimsiness or shrinkage of the yarns in the damp area.

Mousseline de soie is a luxury fabric—purchase it as such! The serviceability life is short since it presents problems in wear, stain and spot removal, and in cleaning.

Slim 'n Sleek

The importance of the narrow one-piece dress is reflected in the slim lines of the new season's slips. Fabrics and trimmings, too—are carefully chosen to insure the smooth look.

The Empire influence carries over to slips in a higher, rounded bust line.

To lend walking ease to the narrowed skirts, fullness has been ingeniously added through godets of pleating, slits and kick pleats—sometimes in a double skirt of pleating that drops from a low hip line.

Sheath petticoats are styled in softer novelty fabrics. Bouffants come in crisp nylon taffetas, sheer tulle and nets, and reflect new metallic tones of gold, copper, silver, bronze and gun-metal.

Panties take on feminine bits of lace and pleating to match the new slips and bras in trim and color.

Silk returns to the fashion scene in wonderful soft crepes and chiffons. Dacron and cotton sheers lend their laundering ease, but the all-out favoring for lingerie is nylon, in tricot and lace combinations.

The real Empire is appearing in Fall's most elegant gown and peignoir ensembles—in contrast with the daytime silhouette, which places a seam under the bustline and lets it go at that.

An extra good dressing for green salads starts with 2/3 cup soured cream, 1 tablespoon vinegar, 2 teaspoons lemon juice and a teaspoon each of salt and sugar.

Pretty Moods, Soft Shades Spark Latest in Blousewear

Softness, the buyword for fall blouses, is reflected in fabrics, styling and colors.

The shirt is still important, but it almost always has a detailed collar, or similar touch that makes it look more like a blouse.

A touch of blousing at the back is sometimes seen. Gathered yokes and fuller sleeves give a softened look.

Ruffled sissy shirt fronts are one expression of the softer look in fall shirts. Dressier shirts are important in silk. Details such as rounded tab fronts and cuffs, and novel pocket slit detailing add interest, yet preserve the basic theme of the tailored shirt.

The popularity of silk chiffon and mat jersey as blouse fabrics is an indication of the feeling for soft, fluid draping.

Moss green, periwinkle, beige, toast, pale gold and rosy coral are among the important soft colors this fall.

Make certain your barbecue sauce has brown sugar, dry mustard and worcestershire sauce to give it a good "smoky" flavor.

ASBESTOS SIDING IN MODERN DESIGN

Long, Low Lines Impart Allure

Low, sweeping lines whose horizontal flow is terminated by a full-windowed living room of greater elevation give a distinctive appearance to this modern one-story home. The work of Mario Bianculli of Chattanooga, Tenn., it is one of six designs prepared by outstanding architects to demonstrate how today's smartly styled asbestos-cement siding shingles can add beauty and charm to better class homes. Roofing shingles also are of asbestos and the carport is sided with asbestos board.

A HOME that boasts a king-size living room and generous studio window, yet has the low, sweeping lines preferred in today's one-story residence has been created by Mario Bianculli, noted Chattanooga, Tenn., architect.

The design is one of six developed by outstanding American architects at the invitation of the Asbestos-Cement Products Association to show how smartly-styled asbestos siding shingles can be used advantageously in the construction of better class homes.

The long, low lines of the Bianculli house are accentuated by the deep horizontal shadow lines produced by each course of asbestos siding shingles. A spacious living room is set at one end of the house and its higher elevation acts as a termination for the long ridge and cave lines.

The modern, functional approach evident in the design makes it suitable for any part of the United States. It provides for three bedrooms, two utility areas, a playroom and a patio for outside dining.

"Horizontality in the case of the small residence tends not only to relate the building to the domestic scale of a residential district and its landscape but suggests coziness and articulation of the home, very desirable goals of modern living," the architect asserts.

In Mr. Bianculli's design, asbestos-cement products demonstrate their versatility. Long known for permanence and fire-safety, they are employed as well for their decorative advantages. In addition to specifying the colorful new siding, the architect has used asbestos roofing shingles to give cohesiveness to the overall plan. Flat sheets of asbestos board, painted to add color emphasis, cover the carport exterior. Strips of asbestos board, left in a natural gray, form a decorative woven fence.

Other architects who participated in the industry-sponsored design program practice in Minnesota, Connecticut, Texas, California and Delaware. The six designs are being featured in full color reproductions in leading architectural magazines.

A Schizophrenic House Diagnosed

When the fevers of summer subside, it's time to start watching your house—and yourself—for symptoms of faulty heating. Here are a few typical ailments, plus some suggestions for curing them, prescribed by heating specialists of Minneapolis-Honeywell.

Watch for signs of "toe tucking." They indicate the presence of cold floors air stratification or faulty heat distribution. So does the action of a cat that catnaps on the sofa or piano instead of on the floor.

Curing this ailment may require major changes in the furnace or heat distribution system; they should be supervised by a heating serviceman.

If you suffer from morning chills it may be a sign that your thermostat isn't bringing the house up to the desired temperature as quickly as it should. The cause may be a slow-acting furnace, an old-fashioned thermostat, or none at all. One solution, say the heating experts, is to install an electric clock model which automatically sets the heat back after you go to bed, turns it up before you arise in the morning.

Although your house may have a warm heart, it is not as healthy as it should be, heatingwise, if it suffers from excessively cold walls or windows. Perimeter heating, better insulation and storm windows may be the answer. Effective, too in many cases, is an Electronic Moduflow control system which uses an electronic "brain" and an outdoor thermostat to keep things cozy inside.

A schizophrenic house that's hot on one side and cold on the other may be related to more thermostats and ducts, dampers, pipes or valves. They divide the split-personality house into two or more heating zones and let you control each independently of the other.

A noisy heating system may indicate a lack of attention or simply be the groanings of old age. Sometimes an ailing furnace will show symptoms as dust, soot or an oily film on furniture. A new furnace filter may solve the problem. If it doesn't you'd better consult a heating specialist.

Neglected furniture arrangements—such as a chair or sofa that block a heating outlet—can also upset home comfort. So can a lamp, television set or other heat-producing device that is too close to the thermostat.

Occasionally the orientation of the house itself is a cause of trouble. Moving the house falls in the category of major surgery but awnings, drapes or plantings will often give adequate protection from excessive sunlight or wind. Zoning is an even more effective cure for these exposure ailments, the engineers say.

Blistered paint and steaming storm windows are common signs of faulty humidity control and should be solved by a heating expert who may recommend changes in the insulation, ventilation, or in the furnace's humidification-dehumidification equipment.

Finally, while green grass is a healthy harbinger of spring, it is a sign of trouble if it shows up around the base of the house in the middle of winter.

50 Percent of Homes Lack Central Heating

An estimated one-half of all single-family detached dwellings in the United States do not have central heating, according to the Coleman Company, Wichita, Kans., a manufacturer of both space-heating equipment and central heating systems.

Many space-heated houses are basementless. When central heat is being added to a dwelling of this sort, Coleman engineers often recommend either an upright furnace small enough to be installed in a closet or the boxed-off corner of a room, or a horizontal furnace that can be installed in a crawl space or the attic.

Wood Makes Home Elegant, Says Architect

There's nothing like wood to give an "elegant sense to life," according to one of the nation's leading architects, Ralph Walker, New York architect and past president of the American Institute of Architects, called for a greater use of wood in schools, homes, and auditoriums. He said that the "inherent beauty of wood is apparent from seeing it, feeling it, and sometimes even from smelling it."

Walker urged that the lumber industry work closely with architects "to help us get fine finishes in homes."

"No one," the architect observed, "cares about the past of a piece of steel or a lamp bulb. Only wood becomes a beloved antique. Only wood can be so beautiful in its natural quality that you want to touch it."

Citing the long life of medieval Japanese wooden houses and temples, and of wood windows in houses dating from pre-Shakespearean England, Walker squelched the idea that wood is "less permanent" than other materials.

Wood Proves 'Durable'

"Wood," he said, "is one of the most durable building materials. Four and five hundred years ago, the Japanese did nothing to the wood. They permitted it to weather, and many buildings are still in excellent condition."

Today, the architect pointed out, wood's durability and good service are increased by man-made treatments, such as better paints and other finishes. He singled out wood windows and exterior panel doors. These are generally made of ponderosa pine, a strong, light wood which is treated with a water-repellent, preservative chemical solution. This treatment helps windows open easily without sticking, and close tightly, without rattling loosely in the frame or letting in air and dust.

White Kitchen Out

Walker predicted an end "very shortly" to the design concept that "everything smooth is delightful." Even now, he said, the "cold white laboratory kind of kitchen is being rapidly replaced by warm friendly kitchens in which wood is used generously."

The wood grain in such common household articles as pine kitchen cabinets "appeals to our instinctive feeling for pattern. . . . We get bored pretty quickly with anything that presents an unbroken area of plain white or any other color. Wood has the warmth and surface interest that make us love it all the more as it gets older," the architect said.

Antique Show at Masonic Temple In Detroit Opens September 30

Antiques of every description will go on exhibit in the Fountain Room of Detroit's Masonic Temple, when the half million dollar Great Lakes Antique Show opens September 30. The exhibits of furniture, glass, china, firearms, jewelry, dolls and dresses will run through October 3, open 12 Noon to 10:30 p.m. daily. Admission is 75 cents, tax included.

Exhibitors from Washington, D. C., New York, Georgia, Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan will participate in the semiannual event which draws thousands of antique lovers and collectors to Masonic Temple.

Furniture exhibited will range from Early American country styles to Victorian. Special displays of popular Art Glass of the 19 Century will be shown, in addition to Early American blown and pattern glass. There will be shown cut glass vases, lamps and chandeliers, and rare pieces of Opaline, Bristol, Bohemian and Venetian Glass.

China fanciers will see hand painted and French Haviland china from top dealers in the field. In porcelain and pottery there will be exhibited samples of Chinese, Meissen, Dresden, Old Paris, English Staffordshire and historical blue wares.

Almost every type of American firearms, including pistols, revolvers, rifles, carbines and shotguns will be on view. There will also be a variety of Early American, English, French and Belgian firearms.

"The gun that made the West," the famous 45 caliber Colts Frontier model will be shown, along with a double barrel percussion pistol with bayonet. The gun collections will also include: a set of English dueling pistols of the 19th century, inlaid with mother of pearl, and a dueling set of Dutch flintlock pistols, dated prior to 1840.

Beautiful and unusual jewelry will be displayed by leading collectors of Chicago and Louisville. Jeweled lockets, earrings, bracelets, rings, pins and necklaces of almost every type and style will be on view.

Other unique items are old mechanical banks of the 19th century of which there are hundreds of different types, and old toys and dolls.

Many of the banks feature an "action." For example, the little man on a mule, who—when the coin is placed in his mouth, is "thrown" by the mule and deposits the coin in the bank. Other banks of this "action" type are the monkey and the lion, the monkey and the organ grinder, and the mother eagle feeding her baby eagles.

Gas air conditioning of complete dwellings is on the rise. Manufacturers say that owners of room-size air conditioners often want to go on to whole-house summer comfort. Others have air conditioning in the office or shops where they work, and are thus spurred to have it at home.

Grange Cleanings

"Booster Night" sure lived up to the title—we had a splendid turnout and such a tremendous supper! We are sure everyone enjoyed the evening.

First on the program was a recitation by Ricky Fillmore which he gave in a very business like manner. Then came a quartette of men singers whose voices were splendid and blended so harmoniously. They were followed by our Hawaiian dancers, Milly Rianas and Loretta Wilson, who danced two lovely numbers for us. The grace and beauty of these dancers are a real pleasure to watch as well as the dancers themselves with their gay dresses and hibiscus flowers.

Our Grange was saddened on Tuesday of last week to learn of the passing of one of our oldest and most faithful members, John Hauk. He was always present at Grange as long as his health permitted. Our sympathy goes to his wife and family. Many of the Grange members were at his home in South Lyon on Wednesday evening for an expression of farewell. He was a fine man, much respected by all who knew him, and will be greatly missed by his friends and neighbors.

A special meeting was called for Monday evening, September 10, at which time the charter was draped and a short memorial service was held in memory of our two departed brothers, John Hauk and John Jacobs.

Next meeting on September 20 is a very important meeting. The Pittsfield degree team will be here to confer the third and fourth degrees upon all new members who have joined the Grange since March, and it is absolutely imperative that they be there. The work is very fine and interesting and all the new candidates will be glad they have the chance to participate. We will have quite a large class, so be there. Light lunch will be served by the Grange committee following the meeting.

Next on our calendar of important events comes the bazaar on Friday, October 12, beginning at 1 p.m. Chairmen of the various booths are as follows: General chairman, Mrs. Lloyd Fillmore; co-chairman, Mrs. Albert Groth; aprons, Mrs. Harmon Gates; fancy work, Mrs. Mollie Tracy; candy, Mrs. Charles Rianas; baked goods, Mrs. Paul Nash; novelties, Mrs. George Loomis; country store, Mrs. Isabelle Taylor; greeting cards, Mrs. Jesse Tritter; grab bag, Mrs. William Fehlig (articles are to be marked for man, woman or child); dinner chairman, Mrs. Arthur Blunk.

The dinner is for Grange families and their invited friends. Two seatings, at 5 - and 6 p.m. Tickets should be bought in advance and reservations should be in by October 8. Ticket chairman will be announced at a later date—watch for it.

Most people bow down and worship the individual who, they think, can do them the most good.

Flower Theme for Plymouth

The Mail recently received a letter from Harry K. Newell of 335 S. Harvey street which contains a suggestion for the city which we believe is a solid one.

The idea is for all the property owners to get together on one kind of flower or flowering shrub and conduct a hard-going campaign to have everyone in the area plant it extensively. Then, at a given time of year the whole community would burst into bloom. It could be a sort of "festival" that would quicken our civic pride and which inevitably would bring motorists for miles to look over a pleasant scene.

Many other communities have indulged in such a plan with success. "Last Spring my wife and I visited Van Wert, O., at the time of its 'peony show,'" writes Mr. Newell. "It was an amazing and such a beautiful sight. All highways leading into the city and all homes had peonies planted along the roadway between the curbs and sidewalks, in hedges leading to their homes, and in beds in the front yards. We have visited many cities where they have elaborate plantings of perennials, flowering shrubbery and trees. Livonia planted hundreds of flowering crabs in the past couple of years. Why can't Plymouth take on such a program?"

The choice of which species of flower might be best is a matter for the Plymouth Garden Club, or to some other experts. It could be something as simple as golden forsythia, which produces a sunburst effect in early spring. Possibly the peony theme could be borrowed intact, or iris, or some bright flowering shrub.

Whatever the selection, however, it would give our community a common, worthwhile objective where all could move together toward a satisfying objective. It would make this a more pleasant place to live. It could bring Plymouth wide publicity of the finest sort. It would increase property values.

The Garden Club would be a logical place from which such a program could spring. Mass buying would reduce the prices of the flowers. The community might be organized, block by block, and individual home owners contacted. Prizes could be awarded by sections for the best displays.

One trend that disturbs many Plymouth people today is that this community might be swallowed into the greater metropolitan suburban mass and lose many of the intimate community aspects that heretofore have distinguished it. The way to resist that, of course, is to make and keep a community identity that is so distinctively individual it can't be swallowed. A "community flower" theme could be part of that identity.

What's Your Question on World Affairs?

BY EDGAR ANSEL MOWRER

"What is your candid opinion of the way John Foster Dulles has handled our foreign policy in the light of the 'dynamic program' he promised in the 1952 campaign? Do you not think it is quite running around all the time he might formulate something? If he has failed, is not Eisenhower responsible too, as he appointed Dulles and keeps him in office?" (George L. Thomson, Toledo, O.)

A candid question demands a candid answer. If Dulles has failed, Eisenhower is responsible — as you say. Not, however, because he keeps Dulles in office but because he has overridden him so often when Dulles' views were wiser than his own. I refer particularly to the Summit Meeting where Ike promised the Russians we would never attack them. Dulles was steadily opposed to this meeting. His weakness has been in deferring to the President instead of getting out with a public explanation why.

Another mistake has been in deferring to the Republicans party's wish to appoint the new ambassadors on a strictly patronage basis. The quality of many of these people has justified Dulles in "running around." But he did not have to accept them.

Another mistake was putting a McCarthy boy in charge of security within the State Department. Still another has been bad public relations—statements like "the brink of war" thing, etc. Still another error, in my eyes, is his lawyer's belief that he can avoid taking sides, as between European allies and neutral Arabs and Israel.

Nonetheless, Dulles in my judgment is a better Secretary of State than the Acheson who did nothing about China except "wait for the dust to settle." He has a number of fine things to his credit and would have more if he did not work for a President wedded to pacifism.

"Will you please tell me of what religious denomination is Governor Harriman?" (Francis Wagner, Sumpter, Ore.) Governor Harriman is an Episcopalian.

"In 1937-38 when Mexico expropriated American-owned oil wells, our Secretary of State, Mr. Hull, informed the Mexicans that they had a right to do so provided compensation was given. Has the Mexican government ever paid compensation?" (Esther Weeter, Lewistown, Pa.)

In 1942, U. S. and Mexico arbiters agreed that a fair price would be $23,995,991 plus interest at 3 per cent. Mexico had paid that debt in full by 1947 for a total of $29,477,730.84.

"Why do you think the United States forced Nasser into seizing Suez by suddenly refusing to build the promised Aswan Dam?" (W. K. Gary, Ind.)

Nobody forced Nasser into seizing the canal. He used the American refusal to build his dam until he gave adequate economic guarantees of intention and ability to complete it, as a pretext for a seizure which, he has publicly admitted, he had planned for years. Do not be taken in by anything. The Egyptian Hitler says in defense of his inordinate ambitions.

"How much entertaining is a President in the White House supposed to do?" (Mrs. Beatrice C. Philadelphia)

A very small amount is set by almost unbreakable custom. Beyond this, each President entertains as much as he likes. FDR entertained a great deal, Truman much less (he saved a good part of his salary), Eisenhower mostly stag, etc. Personally, I would prefer to see every President given a rich pension at the close of his career and while in office be expected to spend all of his salary and allowance.

MRS. HARVEY ROTARIUS, 242 Blunk: "I know how I'm going to vote. I'm a straight democrat. I followed both conventions very closely. But I feel as if the Ike-Nixon ticket will win. I'll listen and watch coming speeches but that won't change my vote."

MRS. RICHARD DRAKE, South Lyon: "I am. I have already made up my mind, because I like the man who I'm going to vote for more than the other. I mean the things he stands for. I listened to both conventions and will probably listen to the speeches coming up."

ROBERT BENT TAFT, of the State's Rights Grass Roots Convention: "This new party should be known as a second rather than a third... the Democrats and Republicans have virtually merged."

MARGARET MCEATHRON, remedial counselor at the Reading House, Los Angeles: "Failure in reading corrodes the very nature and behavior of many children inside, and actually produces behavior problems."

RANDOLPH MCCALL PATE, General Marine Corps commandant: "American boys can whip the pants off anything the Kremlin can put on the field of battle."

CASEY STENGEL, describing Mickey Mantel-in-motion: "That feller can run so fast over grass he don't even bend it."

SIR ANTHONY EDEN, British Prime Minister: "We must make sure that the life of the great trading nations of the world cannot in the future be strangled at any moment..."

HARRY S. TRUMAN, former President: "Governor Stevenson is a real fighter, and I ought to know."

Investors' Forum

Interest Rate on the Rise

By Harry C. France

The Federal Reserve Board's recent action in increasing the discount rate turns the spotlight on the commercial banks in America. Interest rates have gone up all along the line. The markups run from a round one quarter of 1 per cent to 1 per cent a year.

Ten of the country's big banks—from coast to coast—are in Boston, the First National Bank; in New York City, Chase-Manhattan, Chemical-Corn-Exchange, First National City and Guaranty Trust; in Philadelphia, the Philadelphia National Bank; in Detroit, the National Bank of Detroit; in Chicago, the Continental-Illinois and the First National; and in Los Angeles, the Security First National Bank.

The demand deposits of these ten great institutions total around $27,000,000,000. They get the use of this money free. Banking legislation passed 20 years ago freed commercial banks from paying interest on checking accounts.

What do the banks do with these gigantic deposits? They put them to work, of course. And with most of these banks, two items constitute the bulk of the working funds—loans and discounts, and governmental securities.

In the latest available reports, the total loan and discount figures of these banks show advances of $15,084,000,000. Government securities amounted to $6,866,000,000. Thus, of the approximately 27 billions of demand deposits carried by the institutions, nearly 22 billions were invested in these two places.

Now when interest rates advance, bank earnings increase. Of course, if banks sell securities at a loss to get money to lend out at higher rates to their customers, these increased earnings must absorb the losses.

For some reason bank stocks are not too popular. They have had to live down the bad reputation they got in the depression thirties when many banks failed and stockholders were assessed to make up the losses.

If bank shares were more popular, there would have been a buying wave in them when the recent Federal Reserve Board action was taken.

Bank shares deserve a wide popularity. The banking business is one of the most stable in America. Personnel turnover is very small. Strikes are virtually unknown. Men and women make banking a career.

But, above all, the most novel thing about commercial banks is that they get the use of their principal commodity — demand deposits — for nothing.

Two New York City banks each have demanded deposits of around $5,000,000,000. When interest rates advance one quarter of 1 per cent or one half of 1 per cent a year, earnings increase very rapidly.

Bank shares have always constituted my own stable, high-grade investment. They are admirable for all those conservative investors who, while inclined to hold high-grade, low-yielding bonds, nevertheless want to buy a sound security paying a higher return and carrying growth.

People waste much of their time upon non-essential activities but then, after all, it's a free country.

★ THINKING OUT LOUD ★

One question, sometimes controversial, sometimes personal is asked each week by The Mail of four pedestrians along Plymouth's downtown streets. This week's guests are "thinking out loud" on the question:

"It's been said that most people already have made up their minds as to how they're going to vote in the presidential election in November. Are you among these? Why?"

MRS. HARVEY ROTARIUS, 242 Blunk: "I know how I'm going to vote. I'm a straight democrat. I followed both conventions very closely. But I feel as if the Ike-Nixon ticket will win. I'll listen and watch coming speeches but that won't change my vote."

MRS. RICHARD DRAKE, South Lyon: "I am. I have already made up my mind, because I like the man who I'm going to vote for more than the other. I mean the things he stands for. I listened to both conventions and will probably listen to the speeches coming up."

Mrs. Rotarius Mrs. Drake Melow Martin

CHARLES MELOW, 14353 Haggerty: "I've never voted anything but a Republican ticket, and the same for my father before me. I'm pretty well satisfied. I pretty much vote a straight ticket."

WILLIAM MARTIN, Ann Arbor: "I vote on the job—the strength of the Eisenhower performance. I split my ticket up. I vote for the man rather than the party."

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Walter T. McLaren, Buena Park, California: I can well remember my first time to meet Billie Dixon about 61 years ago, in an unorganized county northeast of Amarillo, Texas. It was easy for me to make my acquaintance with him and his wife, as they were old-time friends of Colonel Goodnight, the pioneer Texas cowboy. I had heard of Mr. Dixon shooting an Indian from his horse that was almost a mile away.

The Indian had ridden up on a pinnacle to make a survey of the country, as the Indians were to make a raid on the buffalo hunters. Mr. Dixon got his field glasses and a long range gun and pulled the Indian off his horse—it liked 222 yards of being a mile.

This put the Indians on the prod and they made a charge on the buffalo hunters who were shooting buffalo by the hundreds for their hides. Some of the men failed to make it to their sod house shelters, but after a severe battle the Indians were put on the run.

I went to the Panhandle country before any railroads. Colonel Goodnight was my uncle. I wasn't quite 17 when I went to the ranch, which had under control 900 sections (as you perhaps know, a section is 640 acres). I had a sister at the ranch and her husband, Henry Taylor, was the assistant manager. In the 60's, he had walked from Missouri to Texas to join the Texas Rangers.

HERBERT HOOVER, former President, at 82: "I have no patience with laws that prevent retired oldsters, with meager pensions, from earning all they can. Their productivity is a contribution to national wealth and comfort."

When You Retire Wear Your Years with Honor

"Golly, but I wish I were twenty again!" a businessman confided to me last week on his 58th birthday. As he gazed toward his balding hairline and bulging waistline he seemed genuinely to resent the fact that he was growing old. His attitude reflects our current veneration for youth.

Such an attitude spells defeat in retirement. Anyone who yearns to turn back the clock and be young again is destined to encounter a hatful of self-pity and discouragement when he retires and has more time for pondering life's ills and irritations. Men and women who harbor a resentment toward the normal processes of growing old should take steps to develop a healthy outlook toward age before they retire.

Why do so many folks cling vainly to their youth? Probably one offender is the modern advertisement. We are bombarded daily by ads featuring radiant, pink-cheeked youngsters who gaily assure us that driving such-and-such a car will make us feel "young" again, and that eating such-and-such a bread will give us "youthful energy." Even movie actress Gloria Swanson, who is pushing 60 and is old enough to know better, offers a line of fashions for mature women under the fawning label "Forever Young."

What, we may ask, is wrong with being middle-aged or old? As victims of this daily campaign for youthfulness it's small wonder that many people feel resentful and insecure when their hair begins to gray and their chins begin to double.

THE ORIENT, of course, has a traditional esteem for age. Sociologists record that in ancient cultures such as China, men and women customarily prefer to look older than they actually are. But in North America the reverse is true and we place a premium on youth out of all proportion to its actual merit.

I suspect our craving to remain young has something to do with the fact that our country itself is relatively young. It took a lot of muscle power to transform several million square miles of terrain into an agricultural and industrial giant. As a consequence youth, which has something of a monopoly on muscularity and physical endurance, has come to be regarded in the public mind as a much more important and desirable status than old age.

Now that the machine age has made muscles less important, we are gradually awakening to the fact that the second forty years of life are just as important as the first forty. It is quite likely that as time passes and our nation grows more seasoned and experienced, old age will be accorded increasing prestige.
