

Student Smokers Eyed by Fellow Students at PHS

As the dismissal bell sounds at Plymouth High School twice a day and over 1,000 young people swarm out of the building, a passerby will notice a large number of the students pulling out a pack of cigarettes and "lighting up."

Or, one can pass the school before school starts in the morning or over the noon hour and find small groups of boys huddling across the street puffing away.

Smoking by high school students is nothing new either here or in any other school in the nation, but it has become the target of a campaign now being carried on by another group of students who believe that such an open display of smoking gives the school a bad reputation.

A committee has been formed by the Student Council that will study the problem. And the high school newspaper, the "Pilgrim Prints," has been publishing articles regularly this year in an attempt to make students aware of the situation.

"Some students light up in the hallway even before they get out the door," one student leader of the movement declared. "And it is common to see some pupils smoking on the school grounds."

The Student Council committee expects to take a poll to find out from the students themselves if they want the state law concerning smoking by minors enforced.

Actually, state law forbids the use of tobacco or alcoholic beverages anywhere, whether it be on the school premises or not.

But school administrators only have control of minors when they are on school property. After that, it is the responsibility of law enforcement authorities.

Like other laws which try to dictate morals, the one controlling smoking by minors is seldom enforced. One small Michigan town tried to rigidly enforce it last year. The smoking youths went to another nearby town, bought their cigarettes and stood around smoking them on the streets of that town. Soon, their hometown had to give in because of complaints from the neighboring community.

High School Principal Carvel Bentley declared that he and other high school administrators and teachers try to enforce the no-smoking rule as best they can.

"We catch them smoking on the grounds and soon they're standing across the street," the principal noted. "We can't do a thing with them there. As soon as they leave the grounds they're out of our jurisdiction."

Smoking, of course, involves only a minor portion of the students. But there are enough of them that it is felt that they create a bad impression of the school.

Most merchants selling cigarettes refuse to sell them to minors. "But as soon as they have been devised.

Board Puts In Order For 3 School Additions

Sr. High Work to Fill Fire Marshal's Demand

An addition to Bird Elementary School as well as to Smith and Starkweather Schools and improvements at the Senior High were all approved by the Board of Education at a special meeting Monday night.

Two architects were interviewed and hired at the meeting — one to build the additions and the other to make the improvements at the Senior High.

Total cost of the many projects has been "roughly estimated" between $325,000 and $350,000. All are expected to be completed by next September.

Hired to build additions at Bird, Starkweather and Smith Schools was the architectural firm of Gould, Moss & Joseph of Plymouth. Planning the Senior High improvements is Wheeler, Becker Sande, with offices in Detroit. Byron Becker, and his firm has designed Gallimore and Farrand Schools, the Dunning-Hough Library and other buildings here.

The two architectural firms were authorized to proceed with plans so that bids can be taken as soon as possible.

A week ago the School Board gave priority to additions at Smith and Starkweather schools. But Bird School was definitely added to the list this Monday night in order to make sure that classroom space will be available during the next few years.

It was decided to build a five-room addition at Smith School and three rooms at Bird.

The Smith addition will be in the form of a new wing on the north side of the building. One of the rooms will be used for a kindergarten. It has not been fully decided if the kindergarten room should be built next to the present kindergarten room on the south side, or added to the wing on the north side. Badly-needed storage space will be included in the wing.

Because of plot limitations, the three rooms at Bird

School will be built onto the ends of each of the three present wings. One of these rooms will also be for kindergarten.

The long-awaited multipurpose room will become a reality at Starkweather School this summer. The present room used for activities, which is much smaller than those in other schools, will be converted for kindergarten use.

It is planned to build the addition either on the back or south side of the building. One of the present rooms will be used for a new office and storage. The present small office will be used for a hallway leading to a new outside exit to the north.

Four separate Senior High School projects costing an estimated $51,000 were approved by the Board Monday.

The projects are all designed to conform with requirements of the State Fire Marshal who last year made an inspection of the 42-year-old building and compiled a long list of needed improvements.

Most noticeable of the proposed projects will be the erection of a stair tower on the outside front of the building. This structure will link all three floors with new stairways that will replace the central stairwell just inside the front door.

The open stairways, according to the Fire Marshal, are a fire hazard because of the chimney-like effect in case of fire.

The outside stairwell is expected to cost around $29,500.

Another project will be the removal of the existing central stairway. This space will be used for additional storage and classrooms. The estimated cost is $9,550.

Project 3 is enclosure of the central stairway in the Annex. Doors will be placed on each floor. Estimated cost: $2,600.

Finally, the southeast stairway in the main building will also be "enclosed" with fire resistant doors and a fire escape door placed at the second floor level to the roof of the hallway leading to the gymnasium. A fire escape will then be available from the roof. This job is to cost an estimated $10,000.

The Board would also like to make other improvements at the Senior High if they have the time this summer and the money. New lighting is needed in the classrooms and windows and frames need replacing.

Completion of the Fire Marshal's recommendations is expected to "unfreeze" the capacity of 1,226 students (Continued on Page 8)

Lazy Snow Shovelers Warned

More rigid enforcement of the city ordinance regulating the removal of snow from sidewalks was given the nod by City Commissioners Monday night.

The ordinance, which has been on the books for many years, has never really been enforced by the city. But City Manager Albert Glassford reported Monday that the Commission should either instruct him to enforce it or else take it off the books.

According to the ordinance, property owners are to remove snow, ice or debris from their sidewalks within 24 hours after it has fallen or accumulated.

If they fail to do so and there is a complaint received, the Department of Public Works should remove the snow or debris and the property owner charged for the service. The ordinance does not say how much should be charged.

Commissioners decided that $3 is an adequate charge. It would cover actual labor and the cost of billing the property owner.

City Manager Glassford said that his office has received numerous complaints this winter about uncleaned sidewalks.

The manager said that he would first send out a form letter to those who are the subject of a complaint. If the householder does not conform the next time, the DPW would then be asked to do the job and a bill would be sent to the homeowner.

Alarm Scares Off Burglar

Burglary of Plymouth Men's Wear on Ann Arbor Trail was interrupted last Saturday night when a burglar alarm sounded.

Plymouth police received a call at 10:58 p.m. that a burglar alarm was sounding in the area. In a rear display window measuring six by seven feet that faces the Central Parking Lot they found a hole two feet square.

The hole had apparently been cut with a glass cutter, police said. The intruder at some time set off the burglar alarm which is rigged throughout the store. Nothing was found stolen.

NEWS BEAT

The 16-year-old Plymouth boy who last December set fire to four cars has been admitted to Hawthorne Center. He had been released pending outcome of psychiatric tests. A private psychiatrist and another at Hawthorne Center agreed that he needed immediate attention. The youth set the fires by throwing lighter fluid on the seats. The interior of one 1960 car was heavily damaged while the other three were of lesser nature.

VOTER APATHY: Plymouth Township Clerk Fred L. Miller sent notices to a long list of electors who hadn't voted in the past four years. If they returned the card, their registration continued. Many failed to return the card, although they are good Township citizens, the Clerk reported. With this being a presidential election year, many may find they will have to re-register if they want to vote.

PHONE HAUL: If anyone starts up a small scale telephone system in competition with Michigan Bell, Plymouth Police would be interested. Someone broke into a boxcar at the C & O Freight Depot at Starkweather Ave. Friday night and stole 16 telephones. A caboose at the end of Arthur St. was also entered and a carton of red fuses and two red lanterns taken. A radio was also stolen from a car parked nearby.

SAVE UP: Plymouth people are being urged to save up their usable old clothing for the "Bundle Day" clothing collection again being staged among school children. The clothing, used to clothe people in the depressed areas of the nation and world, will be gathered during the week of Feb. 15-19.

WARM RECEPTION: Three "knights of the road" who started a fire in a boxcar to keep warm will have a nice warm place to stay for the next three months, thanks to Municipal Judge Nandino Perlongo. Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad police arrested the trio as a freight pulled into the Plymouth yards Monday morning. They intended to get off at Grand Rapids, but the train didn't slow down enough. Smoke pouring from a boxcar alerted railroad police in the Plymouth yards. Arrested for vagrancy, they were sentenced to 90 days in the Detroit House of Correction — which will give them a warm home until May 1.

Need Detroit Water, Township Advised

If Plymouth Township expects to build a water system with the financial backing of Wayne County, it will first have to enter into a water contract with the City of Detroit-Wayne County Water Department, according to advice given the Township by bonding consultants.

The letter written by Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone, bonding consultants, came to light recently when the Livonia City Council was deciding whether to grant Plymouth Township a tap onto the Livonia water main at Eckles Rd. The Council denied the request.

Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone is of the opinion that the only feasible method of the Township financing the water system was by issuing bonds that carried the "faith and credit" of Wayne County.

Last August the Wayne County Board of Supervisors gave this "faith and credit" to the Township "in principle."

In order for the Township to enter into contract with the County to build the system, it would "be necessary for the Township to obtain by contract a supply of water sufficient for Township purposes from the mains of the County system." The City of Detroit now operates the County water system. (Continued on Page 6)

Finalists Picked For Band's First Talent Show

Next Tuesday night is the Plymouth High School Band's first annual Talent Show at which the school's top performers will be presented in an hour and a half program.

High school teacher James Marshall will be the master of ceremonies. Appearing besides those in the talent competition will be the High School Band and a dance band both directed by James Griffith.

Held in the High School gym, the show will begin at 8 p.m. Proceeds from ticket sales will be used to send the band to the National Music Camp at Interlochen this summer.

Obscene Literature Discussion Continued

Plymouth City Commissioners, who two weeks ago were ready and willing to approve an ordinance to control the distribution of obscene literature, may now change their minds due to a legal opinion offered by their attorney.

The Commission at its Jan. 11 meeting voted to have the City Manager and City Attorney prepare an ordinance covering indecent literature control.

But City Attorney Harry Deyo submitted a written opinion Monday night stating that it would be more desirable for the county prosecutor to press action in such cases under state statutes than to have local police do it under local ordinances.

There is state law covering obscene literature, but it was felt at the previous meeting that control would be more effective if it could be exercised by local police and in local courts.

The Rev. John Walaskay, president of the Plymouth Ministerial Assn., and the Rev. Father William Child were present at the Jan. 18 meeting to ask that the Commission consider a local ordinance. They asserted that most local magazine vendors had publications of obscene (Continued on Page 8)

Lawrence Money, DeHoCo Official, Succumbs at 62

Lawrence P. Money, supervisor of the cannery at the Detroit House of Correction and prominent in many local groups, died Sunday night at his home at 42410 Parkhurst. He was 62.

Mr. Money had been chairman of the Plymouth Democratic Club from 1952 to 1954 and had run for Plymouth Township trustee in 1955 and for Board of Review last year.

He was president of the Plymouth Historical Society, 1956-58; was a state president of the United Commercial Travelers in 1946 and belonged to the Plymouth Lions Club, First United Presbyterian Church and Plymouth Rock Lodge, F & AM.

He had been in the cannery business since 1922 except in 1949 when he was chief clerk of the Highway Department in Indiana. Because of his life time in the cannery business, he was named to the Old Guard Society of the National Cannery Association.

Mr. Money had been ill for the past five months. He was born May 23, 1897 in Evans (Continued on Page 8)

Cracker Barrel Meeting Slated February 11

An old-fashioned Cracker Barrel farm meeting will be held at the Plymouth Township Hall, 42350 Ann Arbor Trail, on Thursday, Feb. 11. It was announced recently.

The meetings, from 2 to 4 p.m., will be one of seven "Cracker Barrel Seminars" conducted in Wayne County during February by county Agriculture Extension Agent Edgar Kidd.

Purpose of the meetings is to give local farmers — and others — an opportunity to discuss and ask questions pertaining to farm problems. There will be no admission. Crackers, cheese and coffee will be served. Kidd will discuss Wayne County agriculture among other things. A question and answer session will be featured.

License Tab Sales Lag In Plymouth

For those who may have forgotten, those little yellow tabs for auto license plates must be on the cars by the end of this month.

Mrs. Doris Root, manager of the Plymouth Branch of the Secretary of State's office, said this week that the sale of tabs and plates for 1960 has been "very slow."

Only passenger vehicles require the tabs. Other vehicles get new plates.

Livonia, which is without a license bureau, will have a sub-branch of the Plymouth office at Ward's in Wonderland, Mrs. Root announced. The sub-branch will be located in the credit office on the second floor. Only tabs will be sold there, Mrs. Root emphasized.

For those families where duplicate certificates of registration are needed, a new type of non-transferable registration card is available at the license bureau. Law requires drivers to have a registration with them when driving. This is difficult unless the registration is placed in the car.

So that each member of the family can have a copy to carry on their person, the new duplicate registrations have been devised.

Achievers Show Their Stuff

Capitalists at Work!

Junior Achievement Week jumped off to a fast start — here and across the nation — last Monday when the miniature JA companies and their employees held a combination Open House and Sales Jubilee.

Plymouth's eight miniature JA companies, and the 150 local teen-agers active in the program, hosted stockholders, parents, friends and John Q. Public in a two-hour session Monday night.

The JA companies here are housed in a new Junior Achievement business center at 680 Dodge Street.

Already this JA year (which began last October) has found hundreds of dollars of Junior Achievement products sold to stores. Door-to-door sales are on the upswing as the teen-age business people go down the homestretch toward company liquidation in May.

Although the JA companies are comprised of elected officers and stockholders, all members share equally in the work-load.

Current presidents (see photos) of the eight JA companies in the Plymouth program are:

Sandy Palmer, of Jacconco, sponsored by Evans Products. Sandy, 16, is a junior at Bentley High in Livonia and has been president since January. She joined the local JA program last fall. Her company's product is a bottle cap catcher, which sells for $1.25. Sandy lives at 10000 Fairfield, Livonia.

Dick Wirth, of JA Unlimited, sponsored by Chrysler Engineering Division. Dick, a 17-year-old senior at Bentley High, has been in the local JA program since last fall and has been president of his company for the same length of time. His company's product is a leather coin purse, which sells for 50 cents. He lives at 9085 Melrose, Livonia.

Dee Wernette, of Burrlapco, sponsored by Burroughs Corporation. Dee is 16 and a junior at Plymouth High. He has been president of Burrlapco since last fall and is in his first year of JA. The product that his company produces is a lap-board, selling for $2. Dee lives at 387 Adams, Plymouth.

VFW NEWS

With the 1960 Membership contest ending on Jan. 20, Chairman Bud Luttmoser has compiled the results. Team No. 1 under Capt. Duane Johnson earned 43 points. The losing team total was 39 points. This means that the losers, under Capt. Harry Krumm, must now plan the party. Mayflower Post was the winner, however, inasmuch as there are now 149 members and this exceeds the 100 per cent of the 1959 total membership. All members who worked in this contest are to be commended. The Post now stands an excellent chance to win the State contest, in its company. This contest ends Feb. 29. At the Jan. 20 meeting, the following new members were formally voted into the post: Joseph Wallace, a World War II veteran; and Isham Long, a Korean veteran. Howard Dunlap and Laverne Wilson were reinstated from the Bryan, O. and Wayne posts respectively. All are most welcome and we hope they find our comradeship valuable.

Rev. Clifford Sent on Tour Of Mexican Mission Fields

Members of Calvary Baptist Church have sent their pastor, the Rev. Patrick J. Clifford, on a missionary tour of Mexico. Leaving Monday morning by plane, Rev. Clifford arrived in Mexico City Monday night. From there he joined a group of other pastors on a tour planned by the Wycliffe Bible Translators. Pastor Clifford was selected by the Wycliffe Bible Translators because of his interest in missions and because of his congregation's outstanding missionary program which reaches into many foreign countries. The 10-day tour left Mexico City Tuesday. It will include a visit to the Chiapas Indians on the Guatemalan border and the Wycliffe Bible Translators' Jungle Camp where the party will observe Bible translation in progress both on paper and in the lives of converted pagans. The pastor will have an opportunity to take part in services among the Nationals and also Indians of Mexico. Calvary Baptist Church at present helps to support Dr. and Mrs. Dean Sexton of Plymouth who are working under the auspices of the Wycliffe Bible Translators. The Saxtons have recently completed translating the book of Mark into the Papago Indian language. Anyone desiring to learn more of the work of the Wycliffe Bible Translators will have an opportunity to hear one of the directors of this organization, Dr. Kenneth

Church Dinner to Send Newburg Youths to Camp

By Mrs. Emil LaPointe
 On Sunday, Jan. 24, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Brown of Wyandotte, former residents of the Newburg area, were guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mende on Newburg Rd.
 I heard, via the grapevine, that Oscar Gisher of Newburg Rd. is home recuperating after spending quite a time confined at the Wayne County General Hospital. We are glad to hear that Mr. Gisher is doing so well.
 On Sunday, Feb. 14 from 4-6 p.m., at the Newburg Methodist Church, Ann Arbor Trail and Newburg Rds., the camp committee of the church with the combined efforts of the Junior High and Senior High Methodist Youth Fellowship, is presenting a Valentine dessert social. Donations to this event will provide the financial means for the children of the Sunday School to attend one of the several Methodist camps located throughout the state of Michigan. Tickets will be 50 cents and 25 cents and set by determining portions rather than adult and child tickets. If you wish to help this worthwhile cause, remember not to have dessert at your Sunday dinner, Feb. 14, but rather come to the Newburg Methodist Church, and help send a child to camp.
 I hear tell that Roy Hartwick, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Dale Hartwick of Joy Rd. has had his tonsils out. Get well quick, Roy, is the wish of all your friends and neighbors in the Newburg area.

PLYMOUTH'S METHODIST MEN will sponsor a Pancake Festival Feb. 6 at the Methodist Church, 680 Church Street. The event, from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., will feature Aunt Jemima pancakes and all you can eat. These two club officials are practicing their pancake baking. At left is Samuel L. Dibble, Jr., president, while flipping a flapjack is Joseph Witwer, ticket sales chairman. Tickets are available at Davis and Lent or at the door. Adults may eat their fill for $1.25 and for youngsters 12 and under tickets are 75 cents. Proceeds will go toward landscaping the church here. Menu will include pancakes, maple syrup and sausages.

Class of 1950 to Meet; 40 Alumni Being Sought

With big plans afoot for a 10-year reunion, local members of the Plymouth High Class of 1950 are pressing their search for nearly 40 of their former classmates who apparently have lost touch with their old Alma Mater.
 The class reunion, first since graduation ceremonies a decade ago, will be held Saturday, June 25, at the Thunderbird Inn here. Included on the evening's festivities are a cocktail hour, a full-course dinner, dancing to popular songs of 1950, and numerous prizes and surprises.
 Co-chairmen of the planning committee are Jerry Walsh and Jane (Price) Julian. Other committee members include Rita Datcher and Cliff McClumpha and Mrs. John (Marg Saxton) Wieck.
 The cocktail hour will begin at 6 p.m. with dinner served at 8 p.m., Walsh said. Members of the Class of 1950 who have already indicated they will attend will be traveling from near and far. Prizes will go to the alumnus traveling the farthest distance... in addition to prizes for the most children and other similar accomplishments.
 Already the reunion's planning committee has met twice since November to set up plans for the event. Saxie (Holstein) Heft was appointed program chairman and will be assisted by Doug Green, Barb (Garrard) Branch and Bill Farwell, who will also be master of ceremonies at the party. He will be assisted by Paul Harding.
 Letters of invitation have been sent to all known 1950 graduates. They are asked to return $1 per person as a deposit on the $4 ticket. The balance will be due at the door.
 The missing alumni are: Ken Bondie, Doris Caron, Joyce Chaney, Jewell Crouch, Carl Deace, Fred Dethloff, Gloria Dickson, Al Duston, Pat Helrich, Dolores Hulack, Veral Johnston, Dolores Kaluzny, Don Mueller, Joan Meyer, Wes Potts, Eileen Preble, Charles Snyder, Norma Stjehl, Nancy (Walton) Butts, Edgar Bingeron, Carl Elliot, Glenn Ford, Jim Benschaw, Elizabeth Ann Rowe, Pat Rucinski, and Everett Smith.
 William Renner, Alden Sawyer, Ed Batton, Mrs. Marion Sanders, Flora Fletcher, Al Larson, Mollie Groth, Ken Thompson, Ken Erdelyi, and John Hancock.
 If anyone knows of these 1950 alumni, it is requested that the information be sent to Mrs. John C. (Marg Saxton) Wieck, 712 W. Webster Rd., Royal Oak.
 In addition, anyone wishing to work on the reunion plans is asked to inform Mrs. Wieck.

Rocks Snared By Bentley

A touse-headed Bentley guard who never figured in Plymouth defensive plans fired six long field goals last Friday that busted Plymouth hopes for a victory over the unbeaten Bulldogs.

Dennis Snarey added five free throws to total 17 points in leading his more famous teammates to a 62-36 rout of Plymouth High. The second win of the season for Bentley over Plymouth. Plymouth Coach Jim Doyle had built his defense to contend with Jim Carmichael and Ron Bogoyevac, a couple of six-foot giants who had been noted for their scoring ability.

It worked well for the first half, before Snarey found the range. Plymouth stayed with the Bulldogs during the first quarter. The period ended with Bentley leading 7-6.

In the second period the Bulldogs pushed to a 25-19 halftime advantage, but Plymouth suffered a number of shots which rolled out of the basket and it appeared that an increase in marksmanship might close the gap in the second half.

The increase came soon, but in the person of Bentley's Snarey who only missed one long field shot all evening. In the third quarter he dunked three fast long shots as the Bulldogs quickly pushed to a 33-20 lead.

Plymouth cut this margin to 35-27 at the beginning of the fourth quarter, but was forced to come out to defend against Snarey. When this happened, the Bulldogs unleashed their two big men—Carmichael and Bogoyevac—and the route ensued.

Snarey led both schools with his 17 points, but Plymouth's Randy Egloff was next with 16 points. Snarey was well supported by Ron Bogoyevac (14), Jim Carmichael (13) and Bill Gray (11).

Bentley finished the game with a 24 point fourth quarter.

Land Number Nine 69-21

Plymouth swimmers took every first in the varsity meet and every first but one in the junior varsity meet with Bentley last week. For the varsity it was their ninth win against no losses and for the JV's it was the seventh without defeat.

In the process of winning 69-21, the Rocks set five Bentley High School pool records. One was set by Dick Gredzinger in the 100 yard butterfly while swimming exhibition. He was clocked in at 60.0, while Beau Toll was swimming the event for Plymouth and placed first with a 1:02.0.

This is a neat little happenstance that occurs when your team is so loaded that you can afford to put your best swimmer in the pool on an exhibition basis and let someone else have the joy of winning the event; which counts in total points.

Other pool records were set by: Al Davies; 100 yard backstroke (1:03.0); Ron Daley, 200 yard free style (2:02.2); Bob Daley, 200 yard individual medley (2:28.7); and the 200 yard freestyle relay team of Jim Carney, Art Helm, Dick Gredzinger and Ron Daley (1:40.8).

Other Plymouth firsts were earned by: Jim Izett, 50 yard freestyle; Don Williams, 100 yard breaststroke; Jim Carney, 100 yard freestyle; Nick Herrick, diving; and the 200 yard medley relay team of Scott Soth, Jack Robinson, Earl Wright and Bill Rossow.

Water Safety Class to Start

A 10-week water safety instructor course, under the sponsorship of the American Red Cross, will begin Tuesday, Feb. 9, at the Plymouth High School swimming pool, it was announced Monday.

The course will be held each Tuesday evening from 7 to 10 p.m. and will be taught by Arnold Pykaskas of Garden City.

Open to persons 18 years and up, the only requisite for the course is a current Red Cross senior life saving certificate.

The class will be of particular interest to local swimmers who hope to hold jobs this summer as life guards at beaches and pools in the metropolitan area.

To register for the course, a Red Cross spokesman explained, interested persons may telephone Pykaskas at GARfield 2-8835 or the Plymouth High School or the Detroit chapter of the American Red Cross.

Bentley Dumped By JVs, 51-38

Plymouth's Junior Varsity basketball team took a little of the joy out of Bentley's visit to Plymouth Friday by trouncing the Bulldogs 51-38. It was the first defeat in two years for the young Bulldogs.

For Plymouth it marked the fourth win in a row for Coach Mike Hoben's charges and the fifth in eight games. The Rocks had started the season with poor shooting percentages, hitting averages like 14 percent and 16 percent.

Since then, they have settled down and added effective shooting to their other basketball talents. The result has been victory. "The JVs have begun to shine," Hoben says. "The victory over Bentley makes it a good season."

He reminisced a little about the early season shooting averages, saying, "With better shooting we could have had an 8-0 record now."

Optimists Beat Heides 44-42, Yellow Jackets Win

Plymouth Optimists stand alone in first place in the 18 and Under Recreation League after a rugged 44-42 win over Heides last week.

Forty fouls were called — 20 on each team — in the wild scramble for first place. Previously each team had been unbeaten in three games. The Optimists trailed at halftime 23-17, but moved into a six point lead with a minute left in the game. At this point they played the remaining game with four players — the rest had departed because of fouls.

Heides applied a pressure defense and nearly won with a last minute effort that fell short by two points 44-42. Bill Ruch of Heides led both teams in scoring with 13 points. He was supported by Alan Deporter who had 12.

Ron Sawyer led the Optimists with 12 points and teammates Dave Green and Mike Knapp had 10 points each.

In other action the Redbirds defeated the Plymouth Raiders 33-27, although Ray Litmakka of the Raiders led both teams with 12 points.

The win moved the Redbirds into a tie for second place with Heides. Plymouth VFW, meanwhile, gathered its second victory, a 33-27 win over the Speed Demons. Link Bundon was high with 11 points for the winners, while Steve Ribar paced the Speed Demons with 10 points.

In the 15 and under league, Denny Hunt tossed in 13

Mothers' March Tops Last Year

Donations of $2470.70 were made last Thursday when 160 women trod the wet streets and sidewalks of Plymouth City and Township for the annual Mothers' March.

The amount is about $150 more than was donated during last year's house-to-house canvass. The increased contributions were reflected throughout all of Wayne County where about $6,000 more was collected this year.

Mrs. Harry Bartel, the local chairman, expressed the gratitude of the local committee for all the volunteers who walked for those who cannot walk. "And, of course, those who have given support to this community effort, to deserve the highest praise for their generosity."

The local treasurer, Charles "Eddie" Olson, will turn in all funds to the Wayne County chapter of the New March of Dimes. A portion of the money will be used as payment on a $300,000 debt.

Supporters of JA Open Fund Drive for $4,500

Fifteen teams of workers started out Monday to contact Plymouth and Livonia business and professional establishments and industry in an attempt to raise $4,500 for Junior Achievement.

JA, which is financed entirely through contributions from businessmen and industrialists interested in the program, has been in Plymouth seven years. A "Kick-off Luncheon" was held at the Hotel Mayflower Monday noon with 23 people there to represent the 15 teams. Robert Barbour, assistant vice-president of the National Bank of Detroit's Plymouth office, is chairman of the finance drive.

In the Southeastern Michigan Junior Achievement area, the goal is $240,000. Nearly all of the leading industry in the area supports JA.

The Plymouth JA Center on S. Main St. next to the City Hall has eight of the young companies operating this year. Nearly 150 boys and girls from Plymouth and Livonia are in the program.

The consultants recommended that the Township not try to issue its own bonds because there are not sufficient existing customers to provide the coverage necessary to market revenue bonds, and also because the Township could sell revenue bonds under existing bond market conditions.

Local People Participate In Area School Conference

Plymouth citizens interested in the current problems of their schools are being invited to a conference at Cody High School in Detroit this Saturday when citizens from Wayne County will discuss "Issues in Public Education in Michigan."

The conference is one of several across the state to acquaint citizens with the current school problems. It is open to all school-interested people.

Chairman of the conference will be Dr. Carroll Munshaw, 640 Byron St., Plymouth. Dr. Munshaw is director of educational placement and survey studies at Wayne State University. He was formerly with the Wayne County Board of Education six years and a superintendent and principal of the River Rouge school system.

The conference will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the Cody auditorium. Following a morning general session, the afternoon sessions will be divided into small groups enabling everyone present to participate in discussions of school issues.

Findings from this conference will be delivered at an April 2 meeting in Lansing when other regions will present their findings in education.

The purposes of these conferences, said Dr. Munshaw, are to find out what the grass roots thinking about schools is, and to help give direction for formulating future educational policy in the state.

A number of Plymouth citizens are planning to attend. On the program will be Dr. Clarence Hilberry, president of Wayne State; Dr. Lynn Barrett, state superintendent of public instruction; Dr. Samuel Brownell, superintendent of Detroit schools; Dr. James Bushong, superintendent of Grosse Pointe Schools; and other school board members, superintendents and PTA officials.

Student Smokers Eyed

the cigarette machine was introduced, the situation got out of hand," Principal Bentley asserted.

For instance, there is a cigarette machine in City Hall across the street from the high school, where the "non-smokers" say that the "smokers" often buy the cigarettes. Most service stations and some restaurants also have machines.

It's just as illegal for a minor to buy their smokes from a machine as it is over the counter, but the machine doesn't ask questions.

There are some parents who condone smoking by their teenage youngster.

"If we catch a student smoking, we call their parents and tell them," the principal related. "Some tell us that their youngster smokes at home, but they agree that they should not be allowed to smoke around school."

A few of the more "progressive-thinking" schools have supposedly solved the problem by turning a room into a smoking room just for students. Ann Arbor's new high school has such a room. Several other schools across the nation have reported use of such rooms and they have called the idea successful. Permission from students' parents is needed for the student to use the room.

But Principal Bentley said that he would not favor such a plan because it puts the school system in the position of providing for something which is against state law.

Exactly what percentage of the students smoke has never been determined. The problem is confined mainly to boys because girls, if they do smoke, apparently do it someplace else besides on the sidewalks.

Smoking was common when parents were in school too, but it has perhaps become more noticeable now because the number of students have multiplied many times.

nature that could easily be purchased by young people.

Under present state law, prosecution of offenders is possible only by county prosecutors. Whether the magazines in question would actually be classified as "obscene" would be a matter for the courts to decide.

In his legal opinion to the Commission, Deyo pointed out that the state law provides for imprisonment for one year or $1,000 in fine, or both. If prosecution under a city ordinance is undertaken, punishment could be no more than 90 days confinement or $100 fine or both.

Prosecution requires skilled investigations, able witnesses and careful trial preparation, Deyo noted. "Extended trial would follow and cost of prosecution would outstrip the penalty (under a local ordinance)."

There is nothing to prevent local authorities from investigating and collecting evidence against offenders, for use by the county prosecutor, Deyo continued.

Because Deyo or the clergy were not at the meeting Monday night, the commission voted to table the issue until the next meeting.

DARK COTTONS.

Dear "Miss Louisa:" Why is it that dark cottons — dresses and shirts never look the same after they are laundered? I paid a lot for a dress and after it was washed and ironed it looked slick and had lint on it. It did not fade. — Miss K.L.P., Livonia, Mich.

Dear Miss K.L.P.: Special care should be given to dark cottons. Even if the label says "Drip Dry" or "Washable," I would send an expensive dark cotton dress to the cleaners for a while. Wash dark cottons by hand, for if they go in the machine with other clothes they are bound to pick up lint. Also, rinse well and do not wring out before hanging on the line. Iron or press all dark cottons, except polished cottons, on the wrong side since the iron will cause the material to become slick and shiny.

ENGLISH WOOLENS

Dear "Miss Louisa:" Are all woolen materials from England called Tweed?—Mrs. J.H.D., Granby, Mass.

Dear Mrs. J.H.D.: No, certain rough surfaced material hand woven along the river Tweed which flows between Scotland and England gave the name to the material to which you refer. Harris Tweed is made on the island of Harris in the Hebrides Islands off Scotland.

TOO BIG FOR THE ROOM

Dear "Miss Louisa:" We were recently given a set of dining room furniture that is very substantial but is not very good mahogany and needs doing over. It looks too big in the room. Would it be all right to paint it? I'm not sure how it would look.—Mrs. L.H., Madison, N. J.

Dear Mrs. L.H.: I know just the type of dining room furniture you refer to. Far stronger and better built than a lot that is sold today. Do paint it a lovely warm gray or ivory if this suits your color scheme. Make it match the woodwork in the room or the walls and the furniture will look smaller. I think it would pay you in the end to have a good painter spray the furniture with at least two coats of paint. After paint is thoroughly dry, a coat of clear wax will protect the finish. I have seen old upright pianos painted to match the walls or woodwork in a room and they do look much smaller.

CHILDREN'S ENTERTAINMENT

Dear "Miss Louisa:" Have you any suggestions for entertaining children who come with their parents to spend the day or pay a visit? I have no children of my own and am rather terrified at the prospect.—Mrs. H.K.F., Fort Love, Texas.

Dear Mrs. H.K.F.: Every house should have something set aside to amuse children. I do not mean expensive toys, for they are not half as entertaining as two old decks of cards, a box of buttons, an old pocketbook filled with discarded "jewelry." If it is to be a longer visit than a call, an old suitcase with a pair of high heeled shoes, a hat and some grown-up clothes opens a wonderful world of make-believe to a little girl. Children can be kept occupied for hours making scrapbooks with a jar of paste, some old magazines, blunt edged scissors and a cheap composition book.

Don't give them everything at once; they are much happier with a few things to entertain them. Coloring books, paper dolls to cut out and a box of crayons would also go into the box set aside for visiting children. Wise parents will bring new toys for their children who are visiting.

MORAVIA

Dear "Miss Louisa:" Will you please tell me something about the Moravians? Is Moravia a country or is it a religious sect? If they are a religious sect, are they Protestants or a branch of the Orthodox Catholics? I'm interested on account of a cookbook (I collect them) and was recently given a Moravian cookbook.—Mrs. S.O.T., Virginia Beach, Va.

Dear Mrs. S.O.T.: Moravia was an ancient country in Europe and is now a part of Czechoslovakia but was once united with Bohemia. The Moravian Brothers who founded the church, which is Protestant, joined together after the death of John Huss in 1415. They were persecuted and some of them came to America in the Eighteenth century and settled in Pennsylvania and the Carolinas. At Winston-Salem, N. C., and Bethlehem, Pa., there are preserved to this day some of the oldest buildings and churches built by the Moravians in this country. They stress education and have outstanding schools and colleges. The church has over 50,000 communicants in the United States.

A RESOLUTION

Dear "Miss Louisa:" Now that Christmas is over, I have resolved to get rid of lots of old clothes that I have hung on to for years. They are in good condition and I would like to know the best charitable organization to give them to.—Mrs. K.T.B., Houston, Texas.

Dear Mrs. K.T.B.: Look in the yellow pages of the phone book where you will see listed Good Will Industries, or the Salvation Army. Both of these organizations will be glad to have the things you are giving away. I wouldn't be surprised if they would come to your house and collect them. Or get in touch with the church near you, for the World Council of Churches sends tons of clothing overseas each year.

JUNIOR READER

Dear "Miss Louisa:" Whenever I want to do things or go places, my mother and other grown people say "We will do that later." When is later?—Candy, age 6 years.

Dear Candy: Later sometimes never comes. In Mexico when people put things off they don't say "Later," they say manana which means "tomorrow," the time that never comes. I remember being put off when I was a little girl. I guess it is just one of the things we have to learn as we grow up.

Young Dancers Graduate, Celebrate in High Style

Nearly 90 local teenagers, Plymouth seventh through tenth graders, "graduated" last Thursday night and celebrated in sparkling social style with a dinner-dance at the Mayflower Hotel.

The event hailed the completion by the youngsters of a 10-week dancing class, conducted by Mrs. Ralph Lorenz and taught by Arthur Murray dancing instructors from Ann Arbor.

Annually, Mrs. Lorenz conducts select dance classes for local youngsters. And at the end of each 10-week course, the teenagers testing it in the atmosphere of a real social outing.

The teenagers, some beginners and some advanced students, enjoyed dinner in the hotel's Miles Standish room and an evening of dancing to popular music.

"The classes are designed to illustrate proper social behavior at a dance and also to teach the teenagers dancing fundamentals," Mrs. Lorenz explained. "The dinner-dance is an opportunity for them to test their table manners, too," she added.

This most recent dinner-dance was the fifth annual event. Many former students of the dancing instruction have returned to thank Mrs. Lorenz for the opportunity to earn the various social graces and the methods of social dancing, she said.

The dance class included an advanced division and three beginner classes. There was a fee.

Another "semester" begins Feb. 20, Mrs. Lorenz said.

In addition to dining and dancing, the teenagers last week also were judged on their newly-learned dancing abilities. Named champions were Dave Beglinger and Martha Wall, Adelaide McCabe and John Haug were cited for their success in the advanced class and Tom Sibley and Jeannie Holsinger were named champions in the beginner class.

The Library of Congress is now selling copies of what is probably the most comprehensive study ever made on how to make records and tape last longer.

It is called "Preservation and Storage of Sound Recordings," and can be obtained by sending 45 cents to the Superintendent of Documents at Washington, D.C.

A.G. Pickett and M.M. Lemcoe wrote the study. They made their investigations at the Southwest Research Institute, San Antonio, Tex., under a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation.

Much of the study is technical and a good deal of it will interest institutions such as the Library of Congress that are interested in preserving records and tape for future generations more than the average music lover, whose interest spans a decade or so.

Nevertheless, the average record owner will find material in it that will enable him to make his records last a lot longer and sound a lot better than they would with casual treatment.

Conditions are available in most homes for the kind of treatment Pickett and Lemcoe recommend for records.

They found that normally a 60-to-70-degree temperature is best in which to store records although "for precious and seldom-used records it is feasible (and practiced) by at least one sound record manufacturer in master tape storage) to store recordings at 15 to 20 degrees Fahrenheit below such a temperature."

They recommend a relative humidity of 45 to 65 percent.

Like most authorities, Pickett and Lemcoe deliver a sermon on the evils of dust particles, which they call "the sources of both physical and chemical degradation of sound recording materials."

They found that fungi in dust, under certain conditions, multiply and ruin a record.

They found that the best way to stack phonograph records is vertically, in compartments that hold a half dozen or so, separated by a partition, or in cabinets where the records fit into slots that keep them upright without touching each other.

Pickett and Lemcoe concluded that vinyl discs, which nearly all phonograph records are nowadays, have a potential life of 100 years if they are properly stored.

They do not think that any commercial packaging now available for storing records is completely satisfactory.

Nor do they think that a print-through has to be a problem with tape if it is stored properly. They recommend storing tape only on metal reels with an unslotted hub, 1 inches in diameter with flanges in perfect plan.

They urge that full reels be packaged in sealed metal cans or in sealed boxes of a material such as cardboard foil. Tape thus packaged should be stored in a temperature of about 70 degrees at a relative humidity of approximately 50 percent.

Static or external magnetic fields, they warn, should be kept out of any place where tape is stored. Ordinary electric circuits, if properly installed and balanced, will cause no troubles because the fields will "cancel out."

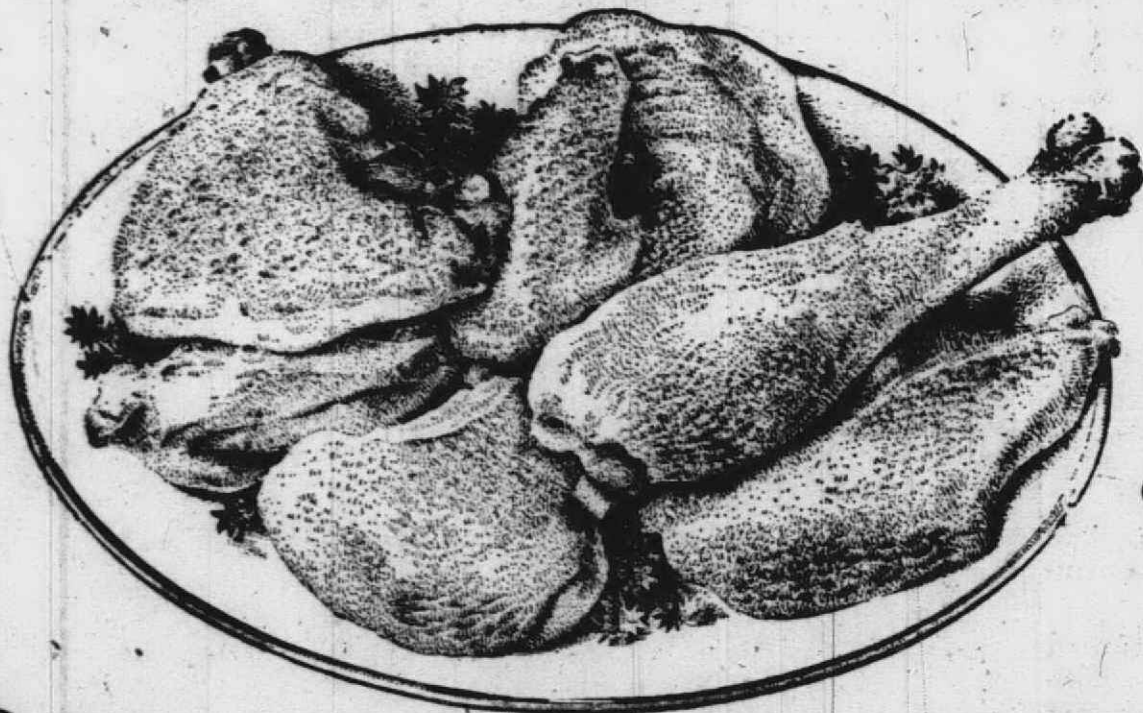

They recommend an inspection and rewinding of tape in storage at least every two years. The rewinding should be done so that the curvature of the base is opposite to the direction of the previous curvature.

Rewind reduces creep-induced curvature and print-through.

Good photography of the earth's surface from a satellite may be possible with a new cathode ray tube that has a resolution of 6,000 lines. It may also be used for television transmission of blueprints or complex documents.

The night of the Mothers' March, we had a few calls from Beck Rd. residents wondering if we had a young boy helping his mother solicit. The residents gave to the boy, but we were red if we could find the young man's name. We would like to assure these residents that their money is in good hands, so if you know of this young man or his mother, please let us now. We're sure all is well.

Mrs. Donald Walbridge, officer of the new township diet club, reports the girls have lost a total of 20 1/2 pounds during the first week of their club efforts. The comment was made that nothing could help some of us lose weight, but were informed by the members that if we paid 25 cents for each pound we gained, we would soon start to lose, maybe they have something. Anyway the girls would like any of you out there that might be interested to join them.

The township has lost some very nice neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Kops and their family. The Kops have moved to Plymouth on Ann Arbor Trail. Mrs. Kops informs us that they have some nice new neighbors who now own the Kops' former home, Mr. and Mrs. Boone Cranford and their son Boone. The families traded homes and we hope they will both find much happiness in the switch.

The other evening many parents sighed a long sigh of relief, to find that their children are just normal. As frustrated as we parents are sometimes over the habits of our children, as a group we had to chuckle when we saw the antics of children the same age on the movie screen at our last P.T.A. meeting at the Gallimore School. The first film was entitled "Frustrating Four's and Fascinating Five's." The other film was entitled "From 10 to 12." From the reports of many of the 75 persons present, they greatly enjoyed the films as well as being greatly enlightened and relieved over the behavior of their children. The group was served pie and coffee following the film.

The City Manager's Corner

By Al Glassford

In nearly every organization, there exists a pyramid of work responsibility and authority. This pyramid extends from the top man, regardless of his title, down through the organizational hierarchy to the men and women who perform the actual daily activities. This is best seen in the military, where the organizational structure runs from the general down to the private.

Businesses and government organizations are organized in substantially the same way, from president to office workers and so on. Again, these organizations are divided into line and staff functions. The line function is that of the operating departments as opposed to the staff or advisory department.

Looking solely at the line function, it is divided on ce again into operating and supervisory personnel. The operating personnel are the actual workers, the men and women who do the book work, collect the money, mow lawns and so on. The supervisory personnel are the foremen, supervisors, superintendents, managers and the officers of the organization.

In all this array of organizational personnel, perhaps the most difficult job of any person or group of persons is that of the first line supervisor. He is generally the foreman, the man who directly supervises the work of others. His job is made more difficult because his position in this organizational hierarchy is often misunderstood. Is he one of the workers, or is he part of the super-

The Boy Scouts of Troop 298 are very engrossed with camping plans. Each scout must complete so many camping trips for scout credit. On Feb. 7 the boys will have a special "Big Day." From Feb. 7 through the 13th, is Boy Scout Week celebrating the founding of the scouts. The "Big Day" will begin with the boys attending church, followed by a dinner, then to Utica, Mich. to review a Scout exposition in the afternoon. The Ladies Reserve group once again want you to keep in mind their plans for a forthcoming pancake supper, date to be announced later.

Last Monday evening the Canton Community Club held a business meeting at the Geddes Rd. Hall. The meeting was called to discuss and plan their program for the year. Although this group was formed as a community group, their most important function is the sponsoring of the three phases of scouting.

The growth of the group has been slight, but the members are active and their sponsorship of the scouts has been most gratifying. The group heartily welcomes new members, so if you were unaware of the Canton Community Club, we will be glad to direct you to more information of the group.

Troop 6 Wins Many Events In Outdoor Contests

Boy Scout Troop 6, sponsored by the Plymouth Lions Club, participated in the recent "Alaskan Trails" competition of District 7 with all six patrols. This is an outdoor event designed to test the ability to tie knots, read a compass, judge distances and perform similar scout skills under adverse weather conditions. Seventy-five patrols from the District participated.

The patrols from Troop 6 hung up a record in these events which may not soon be equaled. The Badger Patrol, Mark Schultheiss, patrol leader, was tied with patrols from four other troops for first place with 34 points. The Fox Patrol, Scott Dodge, patrol leader, and the Hawk Patrol, Tom Eidson, patrol leader, were tied with patrols from three other troops for second place with 33 points.

The Otter Patrol, John Bowlsman, patrol leader, was in third place with 32 points. The Wolf Patrol, led by the assistant patrol leader Randy Munshaw, was in fourth place with 31 points. The Wolverine Patrol, Jerry Coutts, patrol leader, was in fifth place with 30 points.

The six patrols of Troop 6 were all within the first five places. Twenty-nine members of the troop participated, with only six members absent. Considering the recent flu epidemic, this attendance also is a splendid record. Troop 6 meets at the Smith Elementary School.

Mr. Korze also stated that in making out his annual State Fire loss report to Lansing, that the township had 86 fire calls the past year, compared to 108 calls in 1958. Although the department had less calls in 1959, the property damage was a great deal greater.

Navigators Needed By U.S. Air Force

Navigator applicants are critically needed by the United States Air Force, according to Sgt. Kaiserman, local Air Force Recruiter.

Sgt. Kaiserman indicated that pilot-hopefuls are in for long waits to enter the Aviation Cadet training program. A temporary suspension of pilot applicants with no more than high school education is about out. This leaves the door to navigator training wide open to those desiring a commission in the Air Force. All other officer procurement programs require a college degree.

Sgt. Kaiserman stated that Aviation Cadet Navigator applicants will be selected for the first class opening after full qualification. This means there is little or no wait for navigator applicants in the Aviation Cadet Program.

Those interested in the Navigator program should contact Sgt. Kaiserman at his office at 2240 Middlebelt Rd. in Garden City or phone GA 4-2580 for an appointment. The recruiting office will be open Wednesday evening until 9 p.m. for those who cannot make it during the day.

Evergreen Shrubs Aren't Truly Green Year 'Round

By Dorothy H. Jenkins

Although evergreen shrubs are covered with leaves all the year, not all of them are truly green all the time. Week after week of cold weather takes its toll in the north, and in the south an unexpected drop in temperature can be devastating.

Broadleaved evergreen shrubs probably look greenest and best and, of this group, none adds more color to the winter months than the andromeda (Pieris). This is one of the most attractive shrubs to plant near a house over a wide area of the country including the Northeast, Mid-South and Mid-West.

Andromeda holds a promise of spring all winter long, for over its glossy green leaves hang dainty clusters of flower buds which started to form late last summer. Usually these clusters of tiny buds have a distinctly bronze tone.

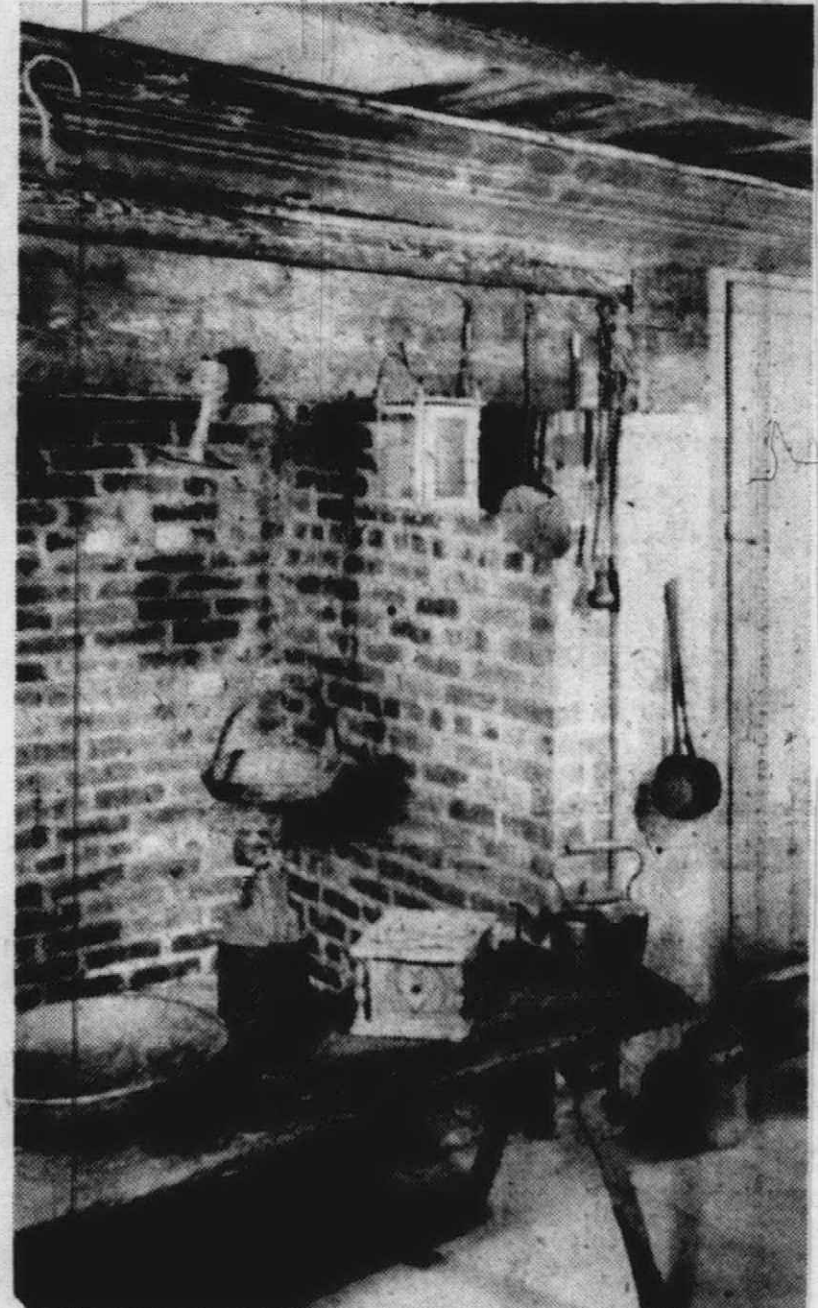

Some people call andromeda or Pieris the lily-of-the-valley shrub because the blossoms in early spring do call to mind the later spring flowering lily-of-the-valley. Two kinds of andromeda are planted and grown in this country. One way to tell them apart is by the position of the bud clusters in winter and flowers in spring.

Pieris floribunda is a native plant found in the Alleghany Mountains from Virginia to Georgia. Obtainable from nursery men, it forms a moundlike evergreen three feet or so tall and about as broad. Its buds and flower clusters stand erect and well above the foliage. Pieris japonica, a native to Japan, has graceful drooping pendants that are very bronze colored during winter.

Leaves are identical on both kinds of andromeda. They are about the size, shape and glossiness of the mountain laurel. However, Pieris japonica is said to be more resistant to the insect, red spider, and so less care for the gardener.

If the leaves of andromeda look silvery instead of rich green, winter or summer, then they are badly infested with red spider. The best means of eradicating red spider and preventing its recurrence is by spraying with

IN THE EARLY 19th Century, all utensils for cooking, heating and lighting were kept close to the fireplace. In this scene, a lantern hangs from the mantelpiece, and a tin lantern and footstove are on the bench. Nowadays, closets and cupboards, plus the garage and basement, serve as storage space for utensils and most everything else.

Snow Tires Big Help In Snow, Mud

By David Allen

With a good set of snow tires on the rear wheels of the car, every driver in the family will worry less about getting stuck on the road this winter. Suburban living has created an increased demand for these tires in the past ten years.

They've become essential because the family car is driven so much more than it used to be. Towns are spread out and each week brings its quota of chauffeuring to school, station, scout meetings, dental and other appointments, and shopping. The car must be ready to go — and return — without too much worry every time it snows.

Tire chains are indispensable at certain times, but in very deep snow, but today's snow tires, or winter cleats, are engineered to go through snow hucap deep.

Snow tires, incidentally, are equally successful in mud.

Many times, the center of the road will be clear but at the curb where the car must be parked, snow will be quite deep. The car that is equipped with snow tires can pull away from the curb with no trouble, whereas regular tires would spin and be unable to get traction.

The driveway from the garage to the street never seems long until after a snowfall. Many tedious, backbreaking hours of shoveling snow can be saved by having winter tires that will pull the car right out to the highway. Small inclines, even hills, are surmounted easily with these tires. They perform the same service for the new homeowner whose driveway is bound to be muddy because it hasn't yet been surfaced.

Many of today's snow or mud tires have more than 250 tread cleats with over 3,000 biting edges. The cleats extend over the sides of the treads also, giving extra grip there.

One of the chief annoyances formerly associated with mud and snow tires was the whine and vibration when driving on dry pavement. This has been practically eliminated with the new tread designs.

The family that expects to do a great deal of winter driving on turnpikes and super-highways would be wise to purchase brand-new snow tires. For short drives around town, good recaps are more economical. Recaps, however, are only as good as the old casing, which should be inspected thoroughly. If the side walls are weak, cut or cracked, the tire is not worth recapping.

For best results in snow or mud, one or two burlap bags of sand in the trunk of the car help the tires get more traction. This sand may come in handy sometime when the roads are glare ice and no kind of tire will give much traction.

Even with snow tires, cars should be driven at slower than normal speeds on snow and ice. Brakes work entirely differently than they do on dry pavement.

UNIQUE COLONIAL style home being built in New York State — and rapidly becoming popular in the Midwest — is this "Colonial split level," which combines the advantages of both the split level and colonial. Another home design being received in both areas equally well is the "Ranch Colonial." Both have traditional wood windows and asphalt shingle roofs.

PHOTOGRAPHY FOR THE AMATEUR

By William H. Schleisner

A problem that professional photographers meet in their work or play is identifying negatives after they have been exposed and are ready for labeling. This must be solved by anyone whose camera requires film holders (each one has places for two pieces of film).

The most effective way in my studio starts with the numbering of each new film holder. Old or new, no film holder duplicates the number on another one. Numbers and marks on each holder can be matched to a chart to aid identification.

Some holders have a white patch where the number can be written. On second-hand holders, the number can be scratched with a sharp knife on the black paint where the slide goes into the film holder. This is the largest area of black paint and so the numbers can be large enough to read in almost any light.

The next step is to make holes with a small drill on the rebate of the holder. These holes are coded against a chart which has tree marks on it in the upper lefthand side. The three marks represent 1, 2 and 300.

The chart from the center to the right hand side on the upper right shows markings from 0 to 9, which are for the purpose of indicating the second numeral. On the lower side the numbers also run from 0 to 9 and these are for the third digit.

The holder for 121 and 122, for example, is identified by placing the coded chart on top of the open holder and marking with a nail or sharp instrument the spots that correspond to the lines on the chart. The holder for 121 is scratched for the first 1 in the upper right hand corner and next to correspond with the 2 in about center of the upper line of numerals.

So far, this establishes that the film will be one hundred twenty and something. To complete identification, use the bottom line of the chart and line up with the 1 to denote that the holder is 121.

After these marks have been scratched plainly, drill the hole with a small bit and turn the bit with the palms of both hands as though you are trying to dry them. The danger of power equipment is that it may cut right through the back of the holder. After all holes have been drilled, clean out the holders thoroughly and be certain that all waste material has disappeared.

The next time you load film, you will see when it is exposed and developed, three dots on the rebate of the film. Compare these dots with the chart and thus identify the film.

When the chart is made, be sure that it is the size of the film. Unless it is, it will be impossible to use the code accurately.

Cheese is made in about 50 varieties.

The Woman Driver Will Always Take A Ribbing

By Olive Allen

The woman driver always has been — and probably always will be — the butt of many jokes told with relish by men drivers, even though statistics show that more men are involved in accidents than women. A lot of these jokes concern the casual way some women signal their intentions when driving through traffic.

Certainly most women are alert and businesslike about their driving. Admittedly some do take it for granted that everyone else on the road should know what they are going to do. An arm comes out of the driver's window and waves aimlessly. The driver of the car behind has no idea from this signal whether the driver ahead intends to turn right or left.

In order to pass a driving test for an operator's license, a person must learn his (or her) driver's manual. This describes in detail how to signal turns, stops and starts. So the driver once must have known what to do, even if at times he (or she) becomes careless.

When starting up from a parked position, the driver should not only look in the rear and side mirrors for oncoming traffic, but also should put out the left hand or put on the left directional light.

When stopping, either put arm out with hand in a flat vertical position or else blink both stop lights by tapping lightly on the brake several times.

A right turn is indicated either by switching on the right directional light or by placing the left arm in a right angle, hand up.

It is not always easy on a heavily traveled road to make a left turn. The car should be kept as near to the center line as possible when approaching the intersection, with the left directional signal blinking or arm out with finger pointing left. Sometimes traffic coming from the opposite direction will slow up long enough for the first driver to make the turn quickly. At other times, patience is required to wait for a break in the line.

The red light, of course, always means stop and wait for green, which means go. A yellow one is a caution light and means just that — slow up and get ready to stop if driving on green, get ready to go if the light has been red. A blinking red light at a street crossing means stop and look before continuing.

Blinking red lights and a bell at a railroad crossing mean that a train is approaching and the automobile must be stopped. Even after a train has passed, if the red blinkers are still on, the autos must wait since these usually mean another train is coming in the opposite direction.

Good drivers know all the traffic signals, but there are times when anyone can become careless. There are the times when we are annoying to other drivers because they have no idea what we are going to do.

Don't Borrow His Razor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Husbands say a wife best can raise her I.Q. — irritation quotient — by borrowing the master's razor or electric shaver.

That habit heads a list of "seven deadly sins of married women" based on a poll of 100 husbands — blue-collar and white collar, ranging from city editors to street sweepers.

Other "sins": — discussing money at meals, backseat driving, trying to keep a head of the Joneses, nagging and begging, tears and tardiness.

Tears, howled the husbands, make men feel helpless. They said they don't like to feel helpless.

Minor gripes concerned: — wives who get ready for bed as though they are going into battle, armed with thick layers of cold cream, metal curlers and chin straps; — wives who make hubby by the villain, promising the kids, "Daddy will punish you when he gets home."

— wives who prod their husbands at parties, suggesting "dear, tell the one about..." — and wives who interrupt a story with "honey, you're not telling that right."

WHAT'S NEW

NEW YORK (UPI) — If your New Year's resolutions included a promise to "do something about the house," there's a flock of new products ready willing to help you — everything from a mitten rack to a new type of oil heating system.

The new central heating equipment, product of the Iron Fireman Manufacturing Co., Cleveland, is said to offer 25 to 33 per cent lower fuel costs than conventional units and to operate without giving off smoke or soot at any time.

The oil heating units, the Custom Mark II line, include boilers for hot water or steam heating and furnaces for forced warm air heating. Featuring a built-in burner mechanism which provides its own air for complete combustion of fuel, the units are said not to need a conventional chimney — only a small exhaust pipe to the outdoors.

A trend in home design that started in the New York suburbs and is rapidly spreading throughout the rest of the country is a return to the Colonial-style home.

Modified somewhat to meet the needs of modern living with family rooms, sun decks, and up-to-date kitchens, the new Colonials are outselling all other styles in every area where they are being built.

One of the more popular of these modifications is a combination of a two-story Colonial and a split level, with the advantages of both styles.

Why has the Colonial, essentially an "old style" house, become so popular? A survey among architects, builders, and other authorities in the home building field reveals these principal reasons:

1. The home-buying public is tired of ranch styles, and super-modern flat-top homes. This is particularly true of young families, to whom an "old" style is something new.
2. A two-story house, especially one with the simple, center hall design of a Colonial, provides more space between a smaller roof and foundation, resulting in a bigger house for less money that can be built on a smaller lot.
3. Living and sleeping quarters on separate floors provide a natural zoning of activities without complicated floor plans.
4. Traditional design has the added advantage that traditional materials can be used. Asphalt shingles, for example, have been used as the roofing material in Colonial-style homes for years, providing the rich, textured appearance without glare that is appropriate to the dignity of Colonial design.

Other traditional materials that are necessary to good Colonial design are panel doors and double-hung windows. Today these are manufactured of ponderosa pine, and are available in stock, as units, with window frame and sash or door and frame pre-fitted at the factory for low-cost installation.

Among the disadvantages of the old two-story Colonial houses was that they were more difficult to heat than many low-slung ranch homes or compact Cape Cods. This has been completely overcome today by modern heating equipment and mineral wool insulation.

Research has shown that 4 to 6 inches of mineral wool in the ceiling, 3 inches in walls, and 2 or 3 inches in floors over unheated areas results not only in uniform temperature throughout the house, but saves on heating fuel as well.

Colonial styling is not exclusive to two-story homes, however. In many parts of the country, particularly in the West and the Southwest, one-

Firm to Offer 'Package' Remodeling

Officers of Moorman Lumber & Supply Co. today announced that their 58-year-old firm has completed plans to concentrate future sales emphasis in the rapidly-expanding field of quality home improvement and modernization.

Through the facilities developed by the Moorman-Made Kitchen Division, the Moorman Co. will merchandise a large selection of remodeling and modernization "packages" backed up by personal guarantee of quality materials and service.

According to George Moorman, Jr., president, "we would like to help eliminate the unethical activities of the fly-by-night contractors who move into areas, exploit their particular services and move on with no regard for service after the sale."

Moorman said that the firm's activities would emphasize five areas of home improvements: interiors, exteriors, bathrooms, room additions and kitchens.

Their plan of service will include initial consultation, planning and sketching, advising when alternates are available, financing, job coordination with tradesmen, and inspection. Full responsibility within the warranties of all materials used and for all labor will be assumed by the company, Moorman explained.

The Moorman-Made Kitchen Division was put into operation two years ago as a market test for developing a home improvement "package" program.

Working with George Moorman in the home improvement program are Gerald R. and Robert O. Moorman and Richard Feight. The firm will continue to operate from their offices at 7 West Michigan Ave. until a contemplated expansion plan can be carried out.

Western Electric Participates In Telephone Link to Arctic

Details of the major scientific and technological effort achieved by Western Electric began their preliminary operations as early as July, 1959. This marked the date when NASA selected this industrial team from seven different groups who had offered proposals of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for this vital phase of Project Mercury.

In a joint announcement following the signing of a contract for more than $30 million by Western Electric, as prime contractor of the project, and NASA, several of the nations leading industrial concerns described the roles they will play in the Mercury Project communications network. Identified as major participants with Western Electric were - Bell Telephone Laboratories, Incorporated, Whippany, N. Construction on the network has already begun. Eighteen sites make up the world-wide chain of ground stations. When completed in 1961, they will scan the heavens with an electronic eye and ear as America's first astronaut orbits the earth in space at 18,000 miles per hour.

Enlisted Men's Mess No Longer Is One

BANGOR, Maine (UPI) — Any veteran of World War II whose ice cream ever skidded into the soup on his shallow mess tray might well be awed at the plush dining conditions that U.S. Air Force enlisted men enjoy today.

"Strictly for officers" is the reaction of most ex-GI visitors to installations such as the enlisted men's mess at Dow Air Force Base, home of jet interceptors and tankers operated by the Strategic Air Command just outside Bangor.

A peek into the enlisted mess hall gives no sign of the drab, long table and benches of wartime training camps in the United States. Instead, the eye is met by restaurant-style combinations of tables and chairs for four. Each table is covered by a colorful linen cloth and individual places are set with stainless steel knives, forks and spoons, which for all the world resemble silver plate. The interior walls of the mess hall are painted in pastel shades and adorned by photographic murals of Maine's scenic wonders. The entire ceiling is fitted with panels of soundproofing material, giving a hush to the crashing sounds normally associated with a huge mess hall.

Directly in front of the steam table is a rock wall four feet high and 30 feet long, topped by several inches of earth and a picturesque display of living flowers.

The first surprise to the visitor moving through the steam table line is the fact that enlisted men eat, not from trays, but from plates, bowls, dishes and cups and saucers. And the cups even have handles. Soup is served in a turquoise or yellow bowl bearing the USAF insignia. The guest then gets his meat and vegetables served carefully and cheerfully on a matching plate.

At the end of the line, he turns to a large table which appears to have been set for a cocktail party in a downtown hotel. The visitor is confronted with a wide assortment of cheeses, biscuits, rolls, crackers, olives, pickles, celery, salads, tasty seasoning and desserts.

Once seated on his padded chair, the guest gets another shock. There is coffee in a closed, insulated container with little bottles of cream. The feeling of being in "officers' country" crops up again when it's time to leave the mess hall. Instead of collecting his dirty dishes and utensils to hurl into the jaws of an automatic dishwasher, the visitor and his hosts simply stand up and walk out. A backward glance shows a busboy clearing the table. It makes one feel like leaving a tip . . . or joining the Air Force.

Plymouth High School

By GLORIA BOWLES

A feeling of disbelief that only one semester remains before four-year stints in High School are ended is creeping over Plymouth High School seniors. The Second Semester began Monday, giving students a fresh chance to "start all over again." PHS'ers also got those all-important report cards Monday.

The three and a half days between semesters is the only real vacation PHS students have all year, for there is actually nothing to study or anything that has to be done. There are, however, assignments during Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter.

Mayor Dick Hubert called a special meeting of the Student Council Wednesday to discuss the proposed administration closing of the noon study hall, which has been serving as a gathering place for students at noon — a kind of social hall.

Rowdiness, the administration felt, warranted the closing of the room, but Council action blocked the move. The Council, assuring the administration that behavior would take a turn for the better, warned students that the hall would be kept open only as long as students didn't abuse the privilege. Vice-mayor Mike Porter acted as Council spokesman and liaison between that group and the students.

The Plymouth Chapter of Quill and Scroll, the national honorary journalism society, is readying itself for an initiation with the announcement of qualifications for membership. Quill and Scrollers must be juniors or seniors in the upper third of their class scholastically, and have done outstanding work in the field of publications.

Interested are eligible "Pilgrim Prints" staff members Susan Hulsing, Lester Barton, and Kathy White and annual staffers Sharon Roberts and Roxanne Smith.

Saw '59 graduate Jim Urquhart last week, home between semesters after his Albion College exams. His finals, just over, counted a large percentage of the semester mark as much as 50 or 60 per cent in some classes. "Is college really as hard as everyone makes off it is?" this reporter asked. "Harder," said Jim, but added that the work isn't as hard as it is time consuming. Asked about his German class, Jim reported that he had about 5 new vocabulary words in each day's lesson.

Scouts for the PHS exchange talent assembly, slated for early February with Redford Union, were out looking for performers at the Band Talent Assembly last Saturday night, held in conjunction with the Band's carnival.

The Girls' Athletic Association, winding up its volleyball season last week, started basketball Monday, reported club secretary Sandy Bailey.

This reporter was digging around for news. (It was a pretty tough digging, last Thursday, exam day). I asked John Salan: "What's the Varsity Club doing?"

It didn't take him long to answer. "Ahh, you know the Varsity Club never does anything."

That's what EVERYBODY said last week.

A COVERED WAGON IS NOT A HOME

PIERRE, S. D. (UPI) — The Secretary of State's Office found an 1899 South Dakota law prohibiting prostitution "in prairie schooners or covered wagons."

The law was in manuscript form and signed by Gov. Andrew E. Lee. It provided a six-month jail sentence for "inmates found guilty."

Canada in 1957 had more than 2,500 bakeries, large and small.

Wayne Man Wants to Form New Church

A Wayne (Mich.) man is interested in contacting Plymouth area residents who wish to form a new church or Sunday School which would be affiliated with the Christian and Missionary Alliance.

He is Ralph K. Mowery, 1376 Harvey Street, Wayne. Mowery graduated in 1951 from the Detroit Bible Institute where he studied Christian Education. He is now affiliated with the Christian and Missionary Alliance in Wayne and teaches a Sunday School class there.

He holds the office of treasurer on the Christian and Missionary Alliance church board there.

Mowery said that the meetings of the proposed new church group would be held at 2:30 Sunday afternoons at a place which would be designated after sufficient interest is shown. He said his proposed new church group would simply "teach and preach the word of God."

Mowery helped to form the First Missionary Church in Wayne in 1954. He said it is a thriving church today with a new building and a Sunday School, with a congregation of 200. He asked that interested persons contact him at his home by letter or by phone. His telephone number is PArkway 2-0617.

The Carpathian Mountain range of Central Europe is nearly 900 miles long.

FINANCIAL SUPPORT, TOO

MOBILE, ALA. (UPI) — Sheriff Ray Bridges agreed to accompany Mobile businessman Paul Toomey to General Sessions Court to lend moral support while Toomey faced a traffic charge. Bridges wound up paying Toomey's $5 fine.

STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS

Behold, I stand at the door, and knock; if any man hear my voice and open the door, I will come in. — (Revelation 3:20)

As closely as He stood beside His disciples, Jesus, Son of God, stands beside us today. His hand outstretched to raise us, help us—if we will but renounce our sins and open the door of our penitent hearts.

Mowery helped to form the First Missionary Church in Wayne in 1954. He said it is a thriving church today with a new building and a Sunday School, with a congregation of 200. He asked that interested persons contact him at his home by letter or by phone. His telephone number is PArkway 2-0617.

thoughtful of your pleasure:

- Supple Full Coil suspension—Dynamic coil springs at all four wheels melt bumps as no other suspension system can. Taking the punch out of the roughest of roads is their only function—they don't have to anchor the rear axle.
- Butyl rubber body mounts—Thicker, newly designed body mounts of resilient butyl rubber further insulate you from road shock and noise.
- Body by Fisher—Only Chevy in its field offers the polish and craftsmanship of Body by Fisher.
- Foam cushioned seats—Chevy offers foam cushioned seats in both front and rear in all model series but one. Its nearest competitors do not.
- Safety-Girder frame—X-built and not merely X-braced, the Safety-Girder frame affords greater rigidity to prevent twisting and minimize squeaks.
- Hydraulic valve lifters—Oil hushed hydraulic valve lifters reduce engine noise to a whisper.
- Cushioned steering shaft—A universal joint and cushioned coupling keep those annoying road tremors from the steering wheel.
- Two-piece drive shaft—A new way to a smoother, quieter flow of power. Chevy has it.
- Precision balanced wheels and tires—Here again Chevy has shown concern for your comfort by eliminating vibration in this vital area—tire life is longer, too.
- Easy steering ratio—Chevy's high ratio Ball Race steering takes the work out of steering for you.
- Superior weight distribution—Chevy rides better, handles better and stops better because the car's weight is more equally divided between the front and rear wheels. The new Chevy also resists "diving" when you brake and resists squatting when you accelerate.
- Wide choice of power teams—You can expect a better ride in Chevy because you can choose the engine and transmission best suited to your driving needs. In all, Chevy offers 24 different power combinations to satisfy the itchiest driving foot—more than any other car.

There's No Second Prize

"We can send a rocket to the moon, now," declared Scientist Harold Ritchey in a published statement four years ago — and urged that we do so. But others doubted we could do it. So we didn't. And so was lost America's chance to be the first in physical contact with our nearest heavenly body.

As the top brains in our accelerating drive to conquer space ponder the problem of catching up with the Russians, Dr. Ritchey's proposal of last fall, that we undertake a long leap ahead of Soviet technology — instead of merely trying to keep up with it — provides earnest discussion and review.

Scientist Ritchey, who, as vice president of the Thiokol Chemical Corporation and director of its rocket divisions, is charged with production of the solid-fuel first-stage engine of the 6,300 mile Minuteman, would set out boldly to build a basically similar engine of ten million pounds thrust that would far outdistance all present concepts of rocket power.

Design details and a cost estimate for his huge, 60-second duration solid fuel booster motor were given to a group of 600 scientists at a meeting in Boston last October. Portions of his paper that have been declassified reveal that his motor would be 107 feet long, 20 feet in diameter and weigh a little less than three million pounds — so large that it would have to be built at the launching site. Dr. Ritchey estimates that after development costs, the price-tag would be about $3,769,000 apiece — or one third the cost of equivalent propulsion by any other known method.

Equipped with additional stages, we are assured, this booster could put a 60 ton satellite in orbit or send a man to the moon and back or even "send a man in a space vehicle into orbit around another planet."

No one, of course, could fail to be impressed by such an undertaking. But most of us groundlings will ask why all this uproar over the ancient idea of a trip to the moon, and the amongst the other planets? And finally, the scientists — who should have done so long ago — have taken time out to explain its startling significance.

Space exploration gives man access to the secrets of the universe. If the Russians get to the moon long before us, they will have solved so many mysteries in every area of science — physics, chemistry, biology — that they will not need armies or military missiles to beat us in every category of human progress. We shall then have lost our world leadership, perhaps our freedom and national identity as well.

So we hope ten million pounds will be enough thrust to get us away out front in where we need to go.

State 'Train' Still Chugging

By ELMER E. WHITE

ONCE THERE WAS a Train-of-Cars, and she was a sly, merry, and cunning country with a load of Christmas toys for the children who lived way over the other side of the mountain.

But all of a sudden, right at the foot of the mountain, the engine broke down. Things looked pretty grim until The Little Engine That Could came along. Chugging "I think I can" with every turn of the wheels, the Little Engine pulled the toys over the mountain.

ANOTHER LITTLE ENGINE is toiling to get another train underway. "I think we can do it," said Sen. John H. Stahlin (R-Belding). "I think we can tell the true Michigan story and counter the unfavorable publicity that the state has been receiving."

Stahlin's proposal for a "truth train" has picked up momentum since he put it on the tracks at a meeting of the Michigan Products Subcommittee of the Michigan Week Committee late in January.

Michigan Week planners generally agree there is not time to launch Stahlin's streamliner in time for the 1960 observance May 15-21. But there is a feeling it could be a major feature of the 1961 celebration.

Time is needed to raise the money and manpower to put the show on the road. Manufacturers and others who would supply the exhibits need more time to prepare their displays.

Stahlin, a Belding manufacturer who has stirred more interest than most freshmen senators in recent history, will devote much of his time these next few weeks to drumming up support from business and industry.

"The train is rigidly non-political and would be devoted entirely to selling Michigan," said Stahlin, a politician who feels there has been too much politics connected with Michigan business climate controversy. MICHIGAN'S SUCCESS — and failure — in industrial development have been compiled by the Michigan Economic Development Department.

Most states report only favorable movements. But Dr. Paul Herbert, the department's research chief, doesn't believe in sweeping dirt under the rug.

Herbert's analysis of reported industry movement in Michigan last year revealed 96 unfavorable movements, including 39 expansions outside the state, 28 closings, 23 move-outs, and 8 contractions of operations.

There were 313 "favorable" reports, including 199 local expansions, 50 new starts, 36 in-state expansions, 17 moves, and 11 reopenings of operations.

In general, there were more favorable industry movements reported in 1959 than in 1958 — an increase of 49 or 19 per cent.

Political ammunition for both sides is available in Herbert's report. "Someone wanting to 'prove' Michigan has an unfavorable business climate need only cite that 23 industries moved out of Michigan, while only 17 moved in.

Everything would appear rosy if it were reported that 199 firms expanded operations in 1959, while only eight reduced operations.

The best bet is that Michigan's economic climate will be an issue in the 1960 election campaign—but not to the extent it was in 1958.

For one thing, there are other issues; viz, taxes, constitutional convention, legislative reapportionment, and the 1959 cash crisis.

A state nursing its 1959 black eye is beginning to realize it's better to build an out-of-state reputation by bragging from the rooftops instead of dragging through the mud.

Handwriting Is Clue About You

Dear Miss Williams: The first time I read your column was a few weeks ago when my wife showed me her letter you had answered. You hit her perfect and so true it amazed me. I've been curious ever since to see what you'd say about me. — Let 'er rip! Mr. J.R.B.

Dear Mr. J.R.B.: Thank you for the compliment and I hope I do as well with your writing. You have so much engineering ability you must be in that job category. Your thinking is deep, well-organized and diplomatic.

You like to keep moving, doing something and in general — just always busy. There is a deep liking for rich foods and music. You have no irritation or temper and have no sensitivities as far as criticism goes. Your memory is not very good, however.

Dear Miss Williams: Please use this sample of my handwriting to give me your analysis. I am very interested in your column. Yours very truly, Mrs. B.E.T.

Dear Mrs. B.E.T.: You have great, strong, determination but, oh, so flexible. You'll only apply it when you want to. You like to put things off — procrastinate, we call it. Also you get pretty irritated and emotional.

There is some effort at self-control, you are trying but not hard enough. You are very capable of many good things if you will but apply yourself. The imagination you have starts well but rarely finishes a complete cycle. There is sometimes a lack of faith in what you can do and you have a tendency towards some suppressed thinking. However, you are diplomatic, have a sense of humor and are very philosophical.

Dear Miss Williams: I have enjoyed reading your analysis of other individuals' handwriting. It would be appreciated if you would attempt some with this short note. Thank you, Mr. B.E.T.

Dear Mr. B.E.T.: You are a person who likes variety, music and have a sense of rhythm all your own. You can express yourself on paper very well and enjoy it. Your determination is strong and your enthusiasm is great. You can carry people along with you on an idea once you get started.

There is deep feeling in your writing with very little sensitivity. Although your memory is excellent, you watch details with interest, you like to put things off occasionally. You're an independent thinker with a fulfilled imagination.

Dear Miss Williams: Where can I get information on the Study of Handwriting? I think I might like to take the course. Josephine N.R.

Dear Josephine: If you'll send your full name and address to me I'll be happy to send you all particulars and a form to fill out for registration. Thank you. (Send your letters to Lucille Williams in care of this newspaper for free handwriting analysis.)

Six Counties Combine Into New Council To Plan Area Drainage

Overall sewerage and drainage needs of Southeastern Michigan will be the subject of an extensive survey to be conducted with public and private support.

Mayor Miriani announced formation of The Sanitation Council of Southeastern Michigan, headed by John R. Wilt, senior vice president of the Manufacturers National Bank. Representatives of six counties, the City of Detroit and several quasi-public agencies will comprise the council.

Commenting on the survey, Wilt said: "Development of Southeastern Michigan has already posed difficult problems of sewerage and drainage and the forecast growth of the area will complicate them still further. Piecemeal consideration will result only in one community dumping its sewage and run-off in their neighbors' yards.

"The handling of sewerage and drainage is tied to geography — not to the artificial boundaries of governmental units. The drainage basins cut across cities, townships and counties, making an area consideration of the problems the only satisfactory means of attack."

Mayor Miriani said the sewerage and drainage study is a resumption of an effort launched several years ago at the instigation of the Supervisors Inter-County Committee, representative of St. Clair, Macomb, Oakland, Wayne, Washtenaw and Monroe counties. This effort, under the leadership of the National Sanitation Foundation, resulted in an exhaustive study of water needs of the area and provided the pattern now being followed in the development of water supply, the Mayor said.

Six organizations play leading roles in the sewerage and drainage program: The Supervisors Inter-County Committee; The Detroit Metropolitan Area Regional Plan Commission; The National Sanitation Foundation; The Southeastern Michigan Metropolitan Community Research Corporation; the City of Detroit; and the Greater Detroit Board of Commerce.

Wilt said a technical committee to oversee the actual survey is now being formed and will include representatives of county, city, township and other agencies concerned with sewerage and drainage. He added: "We are studying the possibility of obtaining a federal grant to finance part of the estimated $200,000 cost of the study. Contributions from governmental agencies and private industry would complete the financing. We estimate it will take two years to complete the work."

"The survey does not contemplate engineering studies outlining how a specific community should handle its sewerage and drainage problems. It will take information gathered in past and present community studies; compile the necessary information on areas not covered in earlier studies; and present an area pattern into which existing and contemplated facilities can be fitted for the general benefit of all. The survey will not duplicate work already accomplished."

Dr. Henry S. Vaughan, former Detroit health commissioner and now president of The National Sanitation Foundation, took the leadership in organizing the sewerage and drainage survey after the Supervisors Inter-County Committee requested the action. Dr. Vaughan and other members of the foundation staff are expected to take important parts in conducting and evaluating the survey.

When the necessary material has been collected and compiled, it is expected several outstanding authorities in the field will be engaged to evaluate the findings and outline the pattern for area development.

Making up the executive committee of the Sanitation Council are: Wilt, chairman; Delos Hamlin, chairman, Supervisors Inter-County Committee; Gerald Remus, general manager, Detroit Department of Water Supply; Paul Reid, executive director, Detroit Metropolitan Area Regional Plan Commission; Walter Blucher, executive director, Southeastern Michigan Metropolitan Community Research Corporation; K.T. Keller, National Sanitation Foundation; and Arthur Hinkley, Greater Detroit Board of Commerce.

How's Business

1955's Installment Debt Paid Consumers Will Buy Cars in '60

By Roger W. Babson

The American automobile industry this year has solid prospects of achieving its best sales performance since 1955.

Aggressive output and sales in 1955 created a period of indigestion. This was prolonged by the 1957-58 business recession and by the invasion of the small low-priced foreign cars. Rosy prospects for 1959's sales total were short-circuited by the steel strike, thus enhancing the outlook for this year's sales.

The marked success of American Motors' Rambler quelled all doubts as to whether the concept of economy had taken root in consumer spending policy. 1960 will see the first concerted industry wide effort to meet the mass demand for more realistically priced cars with less superfluous luxury.

Although price tags on 1960 U.S. cars will still be above those on imported models, domestic producers hope to offset this by incorporating luxury-appeal styling and automatic features.

If optimistic 1960 business forecasts are borne out, the industry may have made a very astute market timing for their compact cars. The business upsurge is likely to carry through Spring. And if business capital outlays and consumer spending exceed expectations, the added momentum could sustain activity at a high level into the second half of the year. The attendant favorable employment climate and the uptrend in personal income to new record highs constitute strong forces influencing consumer spending policy on major durables.

The rise in personal incomes and wage rates will also make consumers more receptive to the persuasion of directed advertising campaigns and encourage new installment commitments to finance car purchases.

Most of the installment debt incurred during the 1955 buying spree has been paid off; hence this group of buyers could again enter the market. Chances are therefore good for new car sales in 1960 to attain the industry goal of 6½ million domestic units and a half-million foreign cars.

If Your Name Is Florence

By ANN REYNOLDS

"Florence" is looked upon mainly as a women's name; nevertheless there are men called so, too. Many of our popular first names are used for both sexes. It seems that whenever parents make up their minds about a certain name, they don't budge, even if the new baby proves to be a boy when a girl was expected or vice versa.

Many of us remember Florence Nightingale at the mention of the name "Florence"; her admirable achievements mark the beginning of modern nursing. "The first thought I can remember was nursing work," she said about herself.

This was a daring idea in her time; she was born in 1820. Her family did their utmost to discourage her; it did not like with their notion of what a young woman of her social standing was supposed to do. Florence's indomitable spirit won out over every opposition.

With the Crimean War her opportunity was at hand: appalled by the reports of the grim conditions in war hospitals, she set out for Scutari, a suburb of Istanbul. Once there, she proved her genius for organizing, nursing, and vanquishing red tape. Often she used her own money to buy indispensable equipment for her hospital. The soldiers adored her, and on her return she was acclaimed a hero. Longfellow glorified her in his poem "Santa Filomena," and called her "A Lady with a Lamp," a description that clung to her ever since.

"Florence" is from the Latin word "florens," and signifies "blooming." Several personal names evolved from it, besides Florence, among them Florantius, Florestan, Florus, and the name of the Italian city called Florence in English (in Italian it is Firenze). Florence Nightingale's name came in direct line from the city's appellation; her parents chose it for her because she was born there. For the same reason the poet Percy Bysshe Shelley picked it for his son Percy Florence. Incidentally, one famous male Florence was the great American showman Florence Ziegfeld.

Among the names ultimately traceable to the Latin word "florens" is also "Floridian." In some European countries, mainly in Austria and Bavaria, a saint so named used to be evoked against the danger from fire and water, because, in 304 A.D., he was martyred by being drowned in the River Enns in Upper

In this Issue...

James Grover Thurber

Memoirs, James Thurber reminds us, are supposed to "paint a picture of our time." If so, then he's been writing his for 40 years. They run to 22 volumes, and include Men, Women, and Dogs, Fables For Our Time, and Alarms and Diversions. He is our most remarkable image-maker, because his is always a humorous picture as well as a sharply focused chronicle of a world of deigned sanity and "noisy desperation." He makes us laugh at what we see in his mirror, at times with a self-conscious giggle, at times with a muffled roar, at times, even, with a whimper.

Still hard at his life's work of "memoir" writing, he took time off from his current projects (a play, a book, a musical review) to produce a brand-new story for us. We are proud to be able to bring you "A Moment with Mandy."

The Super City Is On Its Way

By the time we bid farewell to the 20th century, the face of 1960 America will exist only in our memories. There are massive combines of suburbs and cities on the way that will one day be home for 85 percent of our people. We present one story that glimpses a new world most of us will live to see, and another that tells how fast urban ways are even now overtaking our countryside. May we urge you to read "Super City" and "Don't Let Them Bulldoze You."

Now, Here's A Blooming Salad

You take the leavings, and bury them. That's right — turnip greens, citrus seeds, carrot tops, pineapple leaves, all go into pots of dirt, sand, or pebbles in some corner of the house that needs a bit of brightening. Then water lightly, and simply wait for the pretty garden to grow. It's fun, and costs next to nothing.

GETTING AROUND

...to Our Pleasant Places and People

HUNTING around for evidence of academic zeal, we came across a report that when pupils of a grade school near Mannasas, Virginia, were told that classes were discontinued for the day, their eyes filled with tears. Digging for more facts, we learned that one of the pupils had found a canister of tear gas and had taken it into the classroom, where it exploded.

Out around Altadena, California, some Crown City thespians featured a barbershop quartet in their production of "Rally Round The Girls, Boys." The group: Helen Carrier, lead; Louise Pewsey, tenor; Marjorie Fuller, baritone; and Barbara Huston, bass.

When Cub Scout den mother Bernardine Andis of New Palestine, Indiana, got ready to troop her pack home from a visit to a nearby automobile plant, she carefully checked to see that each boy had his coat, hat, and gloves. They had. She left her coat behind.

Mrs. Edward J. Burns from around Garden City, Long Island, way is our champion boodler this month. She never spends fifty-cent pieces, but throws them in a drawer. At the end of the year they go to the bank. Last year's cache any Leap Year, except (and joined a growing fund that will one day send her daughter Barbara to college. Runner-up: an Ohio commuter who buys himself a new sports coat every year with the dimes he has left in his pockets at the end of each day.

The pick of candidates for the vacant office of Livonia, Michigan's, Public Service Commissioner finally dwindled down to twenty-five men and one woman. The winner, and new boss of Livonia's (pop. 60,000) police and fire departments: blonde, blue-eyed, five-foot-ten Loree ("Dolly") Mariwurm.

Little Sylvia McDonald, four-foot-six, of Raytown, Missouri, took home the imposing National Junior Freestyle Roller Skating Championship Trophy (three-foot-two).

A Hollywood, Florida fellow, who signs himself "Fishing Fool" reports: "Last weekend I caught a lot of fish. Since I couldn't use them all myself, I decided to offer some to neighbors. The first guy I called greeted my query with 'Are they cleaned?' I got so mad I buried them under a coconut tree. From now on I bury all my extra fish."

The school kids of Baltimore County, Maryland, drink up 10,000,000 bottles of milk per annum. To give all milk suppliers a fair shake, officials of the Department of Education asked for bids. In every zone, low bid was 6½¢ per half pint.

Struck by this curious coincidence, authorities asked questions, found that some adjoining counties paid 6¢ and others 5½¢. Making use of an escape clause in the milk contracts, authorities have asked for new bids. Net potential saving: $50,000 to $100,000.

Turnips In The Parlor

is covered with water. In about six weeks, shoots will be a foot long and ready for something to climb on. Sprouting alligator pear seeds can be treated the same way, suspended over water, flat side down, but they want barely to touch the surface of the water. In about two months the roots will have grown four or five inches, and the plant should go into a pot of sandy loam with coarse gravel on the bottom. In time it will be over your head.

Watermelon, cantaloupe, and squash seeds sprout quickly and produce an abundance of leaves. Dry the seeds for a week and plant directly in a pot of good soil. Water only sparingly both before and after sprouting—in this family they don't like wet feet. Grapefruit, orange, and lemon seeds may be planted immediately after washing in a half inch or so of light garden soil. Very shortly, glossy green sprouts will appear, ready for transplanting in individual pots. This is the best time to start an indoor vegetable garden—the sun is beginning to climb higher now, and that is what this crop needs to do its best by you. One caution: some vegetables, nowadays, are chemically treated to prevent sprouting, so be sure, if you are buying one to grow, that it shows signs of life.

A perfectly formed pineapple top, with its spray of pointed gray-green leaves is as decorative and exotic and tough a plant as you could ask for, to flourish far from its native soil in the dry, undesirable conditions of a steam-heated room. Cut about an inch of fruit below the top and set it in damp sand or peat moss until the roots show, then put it in a container of half soil, half peat moss, with gravel in the bottom. Or if it is more convenient, you can grow it in water, pressing it on a large needle flower holder to keep it upright. Being a symbol of hospitality, the pineapple makes a good plant for a hall table, and like all the others, it is easy and rewarding.

"You're lucky, Ma.—The box says 75 feet and we measured 76 feet."

GETTING AROUND

The Keystone Automobile Club has set up a Bicycle Safety Lane (a device for testing brakes and frame alignment) at the Valley Forge Elementary School in Wayne, Pennsylvania. Keystone's Safety Director Edward P. Curran tells us that over 20,000,000 kids are zipping around on bikes.

"The toll is appalling," says Curran, "largely because the kids don't really understand the rules of safe bicycling." The toll: each year 500 dead, 20,000 injured. Mechanical defects and lack of skill help make up the total.

The safety program, which includes comprehensive bicycle instruction by qualified experts, is offered as a public service and is available to interested schools and organizations.

Classes in Esperanto, the international language, are available every second Saturday at 10 a.m. at the Peters Township High School, Mt. Lebanon, Pennsylvania.

Philip Lombardo, 65, who lives within shouting distance of Kirkland, Washington, was hauled before a judge, charged by his neighbors with being a public nuisance. Mr. Lombardo, they complained, sang operatic arias too loudly and too long. "I sing because I am full of happiness," explained Phil, happily.

"Let's hear some," ordered the judge. The defendant sucked in about ten cubic feet of air and rendered a lusty bit from Don Giovanni.

"Four months," broke in the judge, "suspended sentence."

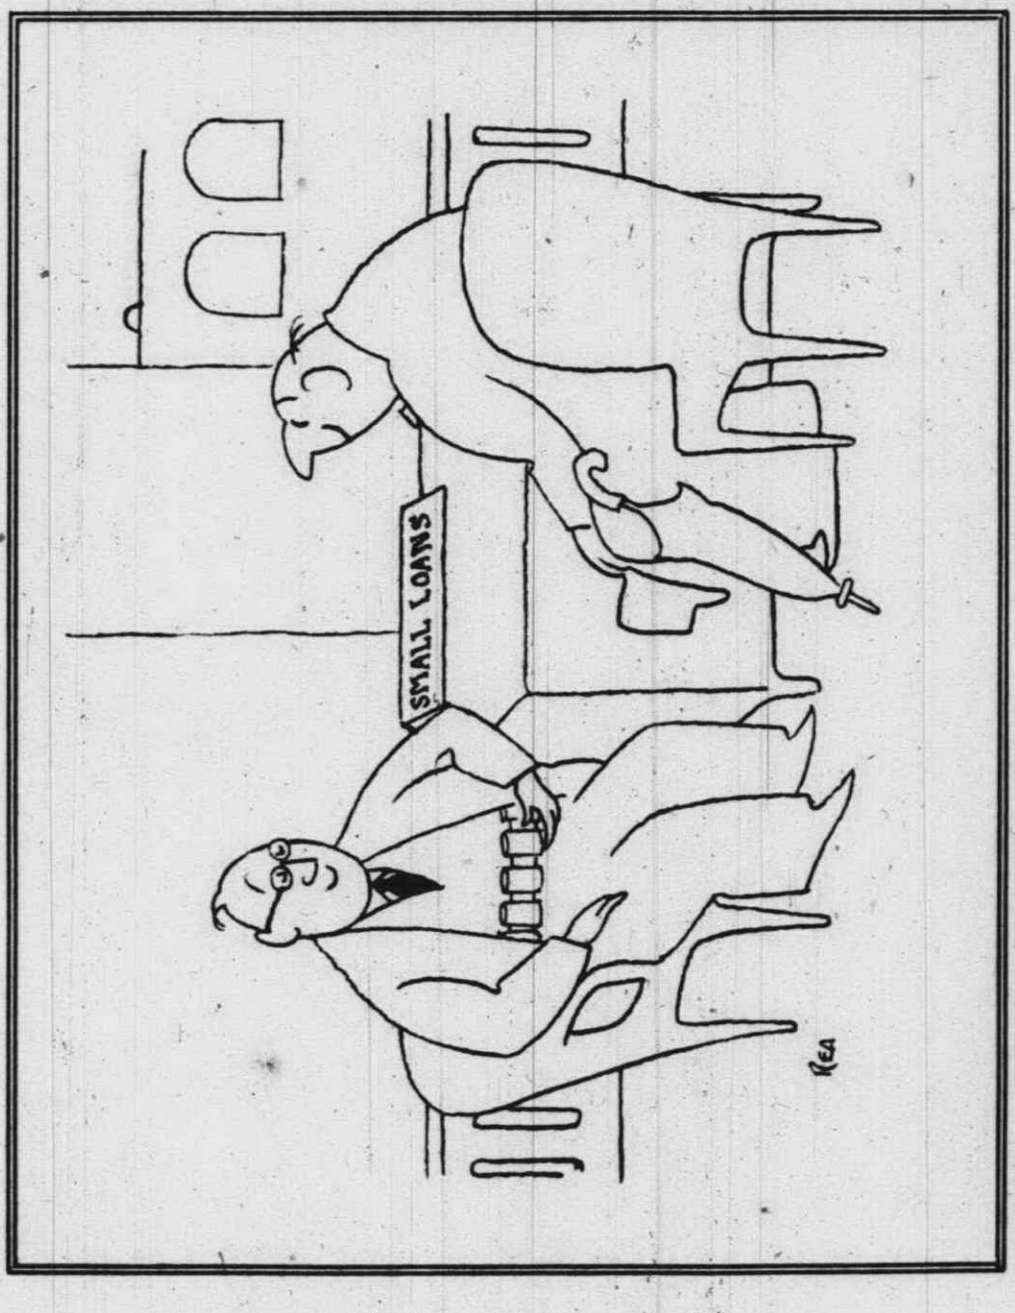

At the Norwalk, Connecticut, Guppy Society's first show, Judges Konig, Sweeney, and Rexford, tropical-fish authorities, met in solemn conclave. Object: selection of Norwalk's Best of Breed, Champion Guppy.

The law of averages finally caught up with the Broward County, Florida, marriage-license bureau. One whole day passed, a mild, sunny, lovely day that was not a Friday and not the 13th, without one person coming in either to apply for or to pick up a marriage license.

Folks out in Arlington Heights, Illinois, and environs who are approaching a stop sign with their eyes slightly glazed and their brains revolving at half speed, have been given a special assist in being properly alert, by the highway department.

Three hundred feet of "Rumbler" pavement—a pebbly aggregate—has been applied to the approaches of almost 200 stop signs. The rough surface causes a car to vibrate and "rumble," thus warning the driver to sit up, take notice, and STOP.

THE SUPER CITY

reminiscent of the early Fuller dome which made such a stir at the United States Exhibition in Moscow, in 1959. Beyond your own court and pool there is a big common garden which you share with the other houses like your own, having joined all your lots for the purpose when the site was developed. This again recalls the planners of the mid-twentieth century, men like Edward Stone, the architect of the $60,000,000 National Cultural Center in Washington.

"The time has come," he used to say, "to realize we are no longer living in the era of the country squire. Can't we finally abandon the illusion of the isolated dwelling, and not let our heritage of beautiful land be dissipated by miles and miles of little parks with no parks, no open countryside, no beauty?"

Your close-set houses with the shady garden sweeping behind them are the logical outcome of the architect's foresight. So are the handsome massive apartments you see way out in the country, housing many families and saving land for pools, bird sanctuaries, picnic groves, tennis courts, and golf courses.

This countryside that you value so much in your Cuyahoga Valley City has been developed finally by popular demand. Now that people are only working a twenty-hour week, they have more time to play and they have been determined to have their Ohio country restored so they can enjoy it at their leisure.

It takes about fifteen minutes to get from your house and swimming pool to your office downtown. If you don't want to drive, you can take the "sizzrail," a super-city express, which travels on a single rail track at one hundred and ninety miles an hour.

In the early days of the "suburban explosion" many central cities like Cleveland and Akron started making plans for renewal to fit them for their new position in an expanded metropolis. The Cleveland you see now is the outcome—a city of tall towers reached by moving ramps and framed in landscaped open space. The big buildings stand well above ground and through their open foundations the sizzrails and suburbites and carriers zoom about, and the pedestrians pass by on their ramps. The city is like a beehive, a gallery of many levels, yet, as you go down Euclid Avenue, there is little noise from the fast, easy movement of the traffic.

These things have not happened yet. The super cities so far are only projections of our existing data and today's central cities are in turmoil—a far cry from the stately, inviting visions on the drawing boards. But the forces to produce them are already at work. There are great changes ahead and—if we can think big and think fast—great opportunities for our cities and suburbs as we know them today.

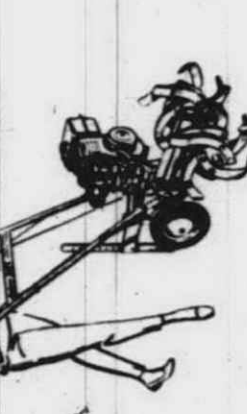

The projections quoted here are based on the author's monograph, "Metropolitanization of the United States," (Urban Land Institute, 1959).

Forerunner of the "Suburbite," today's 51-pound "Joy Ride" does 100 miles to the gallon, folds into its case in 15 seconds, goes anywhere.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO, we bought the ten wooded acres upon which we live. Despite the fact that we were on a navigable river and less than an hour from Portland, Oregon, our land was almost untouched as when it became a Donation Land Claim over a hundred years ago, and for a long time there was nothing to indicate that it would not remain so, which made us very comfortable and happy.

Then, in that unpredictable and mysterious way in which populations move, the exodus from the city turned south in our direction. Slowly and inexorably it came, like lava down a mountainside, and about as welcome. In three brief years, the old River Road, the orchards, and the fir forests have become a solid community of attractive country houses. We no longer make a Grand Tour by jeep, between ivy-twined trees, or heave debris from the woods over the fence. And I must admit we've grown to enjoy the lights through the trees on dark winter nights; life is pleasant in our suburbia.

But where do we go from here?
The first step we took was to get ourselves zoned as a residential area. Oh, happy day! We could relax. We had built our moat and our drawbridge and could go back to the old rocking chair.

Everybody makes mistakes. We learned from ours. We learned new terms like "interim zoning," which was what we had, and which serves as a delaying tactic only.

Shortly, a landowner — an outsider — appealed to the County Court for a zoning change to permit him to build a service station next to our general store. This institution already furnished us with gas and minor car repairs, as well as stocking emergency rations and, true to tradition, acting as our neighborhood news and information centre. Before our zoning went into effect, a second service station had been started and was now making a precarious living.

A third one we would have none of, so a few of us made our first appearance in court to state our objections. We did not want our still uncluttered highway to be turned into that scourge of the countryside — a strip development. That ugly and endless chain of gas stations, hot-dog stands, drive-ins, motels, trailer courts and infirmarium — you can be bulldozed into it before you know it.

Our arguments were sound and our voices were loud.

which you know must be the Ohio River; shortly, massive groups of houses come into focus. There is green land around them and here and there the blue expanse of big swimming pools. Now the buildings stretch below you as far as you can see, a city reaching to the horizon.

Groups of magnificent, tall, light-colored buildings tower above the general level and everywhere the settlements make way for parks and bodies of water. Innumerable narrow white ribbons crisscross the place like spider webs and you can see tiny bright objects moving along the white trails. Nine minutes and three hundred and fifty miles from Bristol your rocket swoops to a landing at Cuyahoga blastropt.

Your family meets you in the "suburbile"—the car especially designed for super-city life, a bubble on wheels with a tiny jet motor in the rear. You get in and start slowly down the road till you reach your suburbtrail, a narrow one-way highway with a raised concrete strip down the center. You drive on when the signal indicates and then your motor accelerates full speed, and at a hundred and fifty miles an hour trees, houses, bridges and buildings whiz past you. Collisions are impossible, since the trail is one-way and the vapor jet of the suburbile ahead exerts enough pressure to prevent a rear-end accident. At the end of forty miles you turn off and drive slowly along a tree-shaded road to your house in the hills of Medina County. When you get out of the car, you pull a lever and the suburbile deflates like a bubble shrinking. The parts fold up automatically until there is only a small jet engine attached to a package the size of an ordinary suitcase. The whole apparatus is stored till you need it again in a locker beside the front door.

THE SUPER CITY

A population expert forecasts vast city-suburbs and new ways of living in ten key areas of the U.S.

BY JEROME P. PICKARD
Director of Research, Hammer and Company Associates

FROM what we know now about our development as a nation and the forces at work on us, it is possible to make some startling projections of a world many of us are going to see, the world in which our children will be living and working and raising their families.

Barring a war catastrophe, we can expect to be a population of three hundred and twenty million by the next generation and almost all of us—eighty-five per cent—will be living in urban areas, hopefully living better than we do now and certainly living differently. In ten key areas today's populous suburbs will be combined with their cities in vast super cities which, if we plan carefully, will offer the pleasant living of the original suburbs plus the stimulation and scope of the city. These are the shapes of some of the super cities to come and, typically, to describe them, we give them country names and great-city populations:

"Chesapeake and Potomac City" will sweep over Baltimore and Washington and surrounding areas like Annapolis and Arlington, Silver Spring and Aberdeen. Nine and a half million people will live here.

"Delaware Valley City" will center on Philadelphia, with Trenton and Wilmington included in a super city of eight and a half million.

"Southeast Florida City" with Miami as its hub will have six and a half million, and will reach beyond Palm Beach.

"New England City" will include Boston, Worcester, Providence, the Merrimack Valley cities and surrounding areas. Six and a half million will live here.

"Cuyahoga Valley City" will extend from Cleveland to Akron and Lorain, and will have five million inhabitants.

NEW YORK with its environs, already a super city, will have twenty-three million inhabitants and will still be the nation's greatest population center. Suburbs and cities together will build other vast super cities around Los Angeles and Chicago and Detroit.

Thousands of square miles of land—an area about equal to the state of Illinois—are going to be taken up in the expansion. If the thought makes your heart sink, it is comforting to reflect that this only means urbanizing another two per cent of the country. We have no land to squander—we never had—but if we conserve and plan wisely there will still be open space for farming, forests, and recreation.

Altogether, a hundred and seven million of us are going to be living in the ten gigantic combines of city and suburbs and if we are to flourish we shall have to have means of living and moving around quite different from the ones we have today. To bring projections down to earth and see what life is going to be like, imagine yourself in the year 2000, which is no longer a remote, imposing date in history, but four fast-moving decades from now.

You are, let us say, at the blastport in Bristol, Virginia, where the Zoomer rocket is waiting on the runway pad to take you back to Cleveland in Cuyahoga Valley City. You get aboard and settle into your suspended seat for the ten-minute trip. The Zoomer tilts up and you flash through space, out of earth's atmosphere into a starry night. In three minutes, shining, bluish gray, the curve of the earth reappears and in another minute you make out a winding black thread below,

"Downtown," a generation from now—no more smog, plenty of air and space.

Bulldoze You!

The outsider's appeal and several subsequent ones were turned down by both the County Court and the Planning Board.

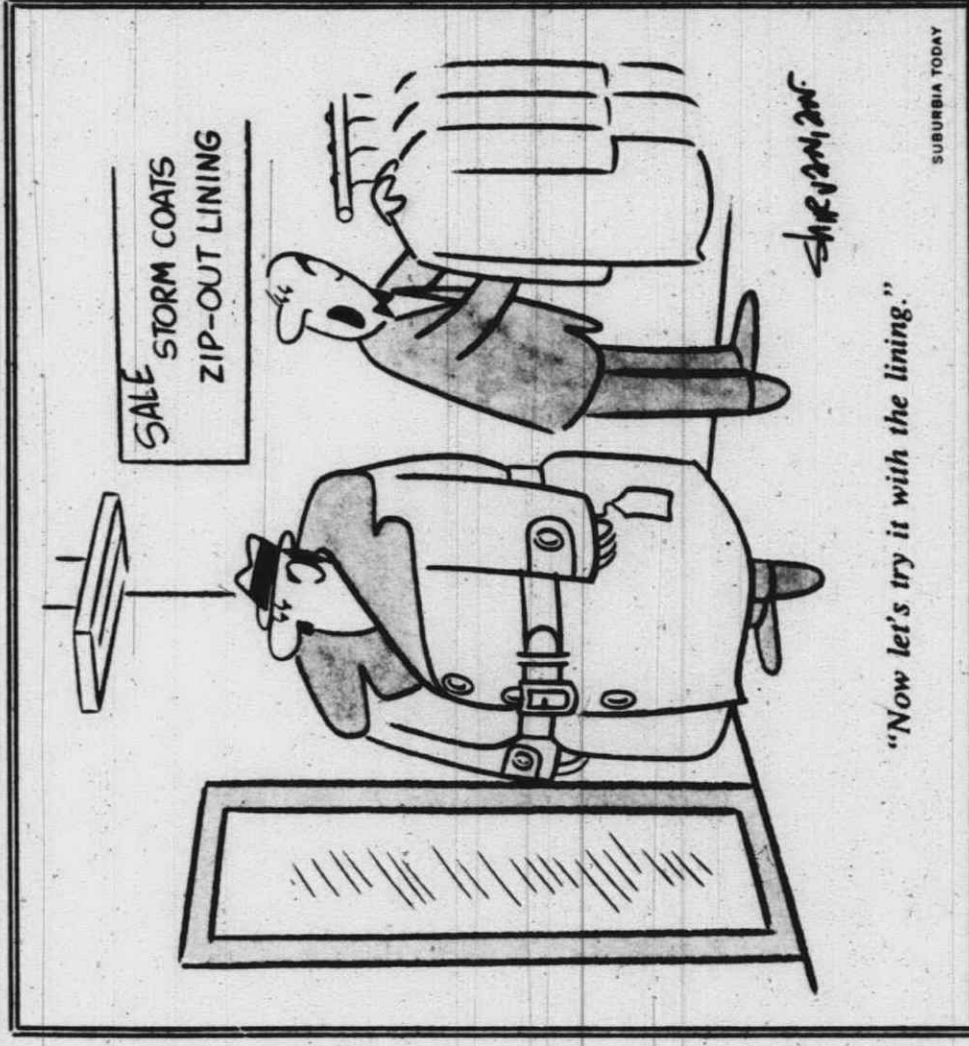

So far so good. But we had had a narrow escape, and we realized that there were going to be more problems ahead and that we were going to need an organization which could get public attention, promote discussion, and come to a decision when necessary. We seized the first opportunity and sent out notices with the water bill calling for a "town meeting" at the schoolhouse, which resulted in the forming of our Community Club and the election of officers. Since then, the Club has sponsored speakers and some very lively question-and-answer periods on such subjects as county planning, maintenance of roads, fire protection, water pollution, and, of course, local taxes.

Further Advantages

The Club, I am sure, is creating a feeling of unity among us, and we are being recognized as an entity. Those who attend meetings regularly are few in number, but determined. We have become acquainted with our County Commissioners and the members of our Planning Board at public meetings and over a cup of coffee in our homes. We are in agreement as to what we do and do not want. We would like to keep our neighborhood the completely residential area it is ideally suited for. But if we must accept some commercial development, we want it planned and orderly, attractive, suited to our needs, and within definite boundaries. We have learned that "zoning" is a vague and variable condition at best.

To the proud possessors of other newly green suburban lawns, may I make a few suggestions? Even though you don't care too much that Betty Beanblossom had Uncle Fred and the kids over for Sunday dinner, take your local paper. The established county paper will carry notices of local elections, zoning changes, appeals, and other activities of vital importance to you and your neighbors, your children and your grandchildren. Turn your allegiance away from your old home in the city and become genuinely interested in your community. Go to your local meetings. There'll be another Western tomorrow night. In most places, these are the only means we have at present to combat suburban blight.

Living in the country is surely one of the best things in life, but it is not free. The price is the same as for safety at sea and the prevention of Black Spot on roses—eternal vigilance.

"Now let's try it with the lining."

Want A Community Skating Rink?

Towns and clubs and investors are building them—there'll be

A NEW Ice Age is upon us. Ten years ago we only had 96 artificial rinks in the whole country, and most of them were indoors and in the big cities. Now they are spreading out everywhere, in practically every state in the Union, and in the most likely and unlikely places. There is a skating rink today in a Miami Beach hotel and another one on the main floor of a New York City bank. The first industrial rink for employees is under construction in a large plant in Kingsport, Tennessee, and there will be another big one in the $30-million Lloyd Shopping Center outside Portland, Oregon. Schools and colleges are finding that figure skating and hockey and ice dancing are more and more popular with their students — witness Yale's vast Ingalls rink, designed by the celebrated architect Eliel Saarinen and just opened last year.

The engineer-consultants who design rinks are astonished by the calls they are getting now from small towns and suburbs.

"This is real proof that we are going all out for the sport," says the founder of Peter Carver Associates, who specialize in artificial rinks. "An unprecedented number of suburban communities have already built rinks, indoors and outdoors, or are planning to build them. And they're not necessarily private or commercial ventures now. The towns and neighborhoods themselves are doing it, non-profit, in the name of pleasure."

"And when you realize that it usually takes a community an average of two and a half years of work and planning — plus an initial financial outlay of maybe $200,000 per rink — well, the picture of what's happening with ice rinks seems fantastic."

The initial outlay is serious — it has to be, to pay for land, building and ice-making machinery — but skating is a sport for all ages and, once the rinks are established, they earn their way.

In some neighborhoods, where there are no community rinks, people have started their own ice skating rinks, similar to the summer "swim clubs." A hundred or so families will group together and each put up a $1,000 bond to raise money to start building a clubhouse and rink. Additional funds, if needed, come out of annual dues, as is the custom with all clubs.

Why are we building a hundred mechanical rinks a year now, and "riding our states" in all directions? There seems to be a great many reasons, all of them splendid:

Rinks Are Community Centers

"Increased leisure time is my explanation," says the manager of a rink outside San Francisco. "How can you and your kids do better for fifty cents on a Saturday afternoon?" California rinks second only to New York state, with 32 rinks in operation and seven more being built.

An instructor at one of Buffalo's seven town-owned rinks claims there is a skating boom because the public's interest has been greatly stimulated by the many travelling ice shows it has seen in recent years.

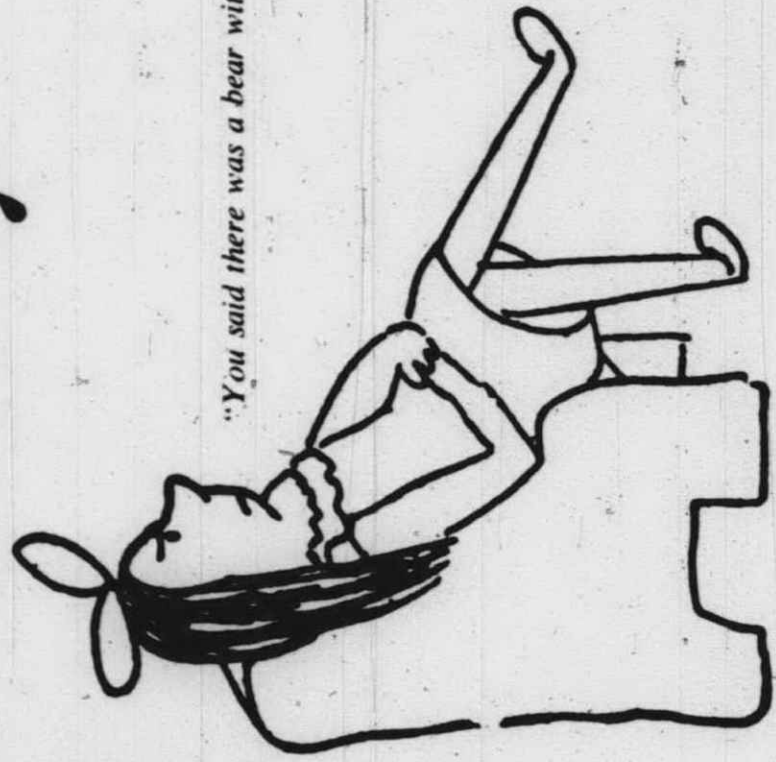

Around Boston, where the city fathers expect to be maintaining fourteen rinks within a few years, they say they always did go in for ice skating.

"But," said one fan, "the weather seems to be getting warmer each winter and our natural frozen ponds are getting too undependable. That's where artificial rinks have won out. It's always 'Skating Today,' and you're not held up by soft spots and rippled ice."

The manager of a Michigan rink says: "People are beginning to find that municipal ice arenas are great as community centers, places to get the whole family together for local events, or just plain fun and exercise and music. Our rink has become popular as a teen-age get-together spot in the winter months, which is a mighty healthy sign. But it's amazing how the thing has caught on with parents, too, who are discovering the sport is fun at any age. It's a good way of exercising off middle-age spread — skating is the only sport besides swimming that uses all the muscles."

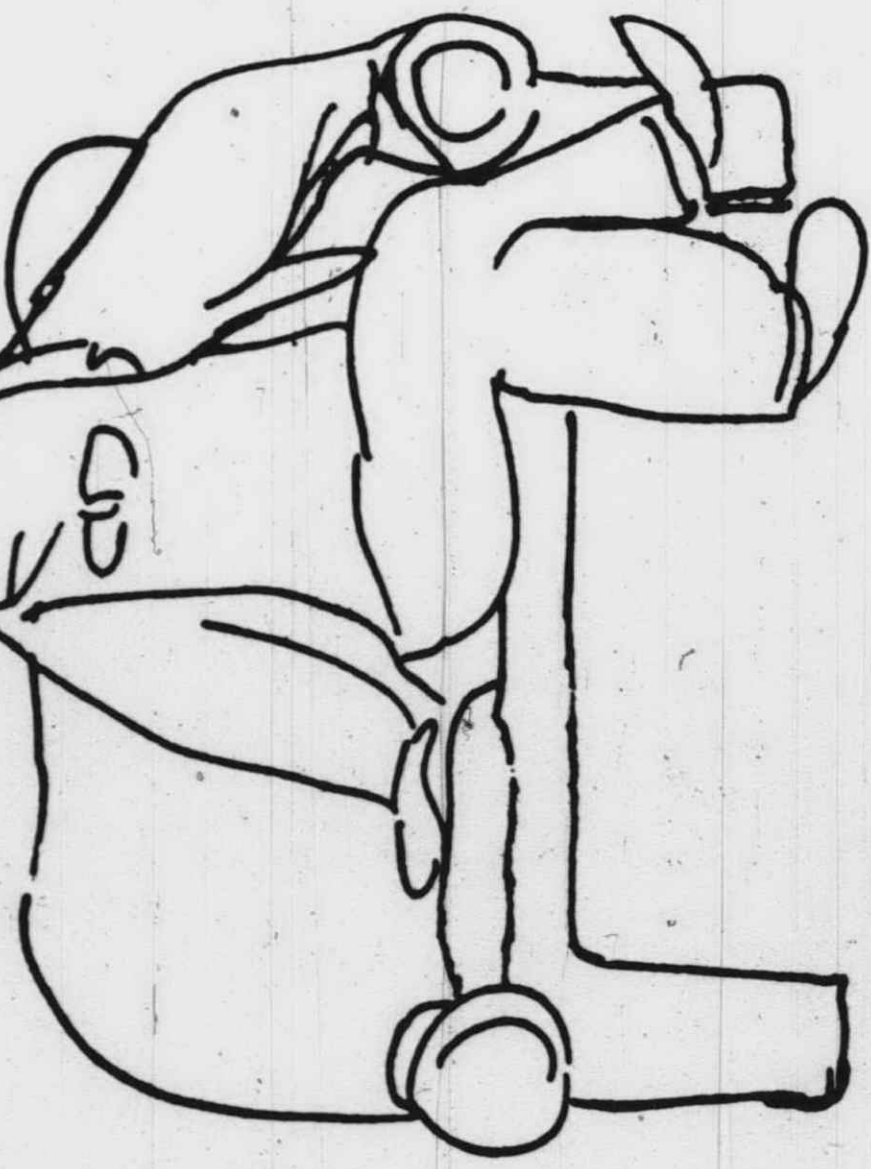

By the end of this year there are going to be over 500 mechanically frozen rinks in operation, and another hundred or so will be built during 1961. One big community rink, completed in 1958, now has a Saturday schedule filled from 6:30 a.m. till midnight. The first skaters to arrive are a batch of ten-to-fourteen-year-old boys who play on the local "Little League" hockey teams. They are replaced at 8:30 by the teen-age members of the Figure Skating Club. Then, in the public skating period, from 9:30 until noon, the ice is taken over

Mandy

"You said there was a bear with you."

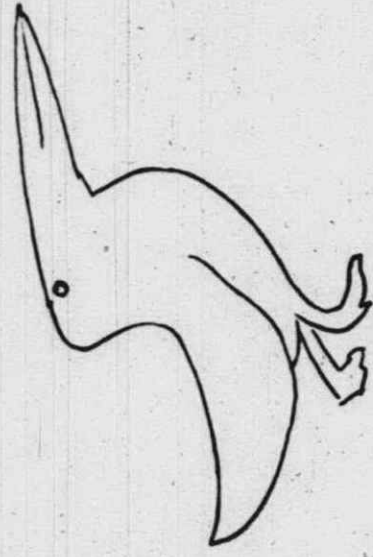

"I didn't say anything about a bear."

"I didn't say anything about a bear," I said. "You said there was a bear with you," she said, "but there isn't any."

I went back over what I had said and found the bear, but ignored it. "We are getting nowhere faster than usual," I told her.

"What animal would you rather be?" was her next question. I must have been unconsciously preparing for this one.

"I have been a lot of animals," I told her, "but there are also a lot I haven't been. I was never a road hog or a snake in the grass, but I was once a news hound."

"Once my daddy brought an Elk home to our house for dinner," she said, "but he was just a man." She sighed, with the dark light of an old disenchantment in her eyes.

"Men hate to be called animals, but then they form lodges and luncheon clubs and call themselves animals—Elks, Moose, Eagles, Lions, and so on. Don't ask me why they come home dog-tired from stag parties and try to outfox Mama with a cock-and-bull story." I was all set to go further with this line of attack or defense, but her interest, after her fashion, had wandered back. "Why don't you want to be a road hog?" she demanded.

"Because they turn turtle, and then the bulls ride up on motorcycles and arrest them."

"Make up a nursery rhyme," Mandy commanded me.

I pretended to be having a hard time making up a nursery rhyme, but my anguish was rigged for I had made one up long ago for just such an emergency, and I recited it:

"Half a mile from Haverstraw there lived a halfwit fellow.

"Half his house was brick and red, and half was wood and yellow;

"Half the town knew half his name but only half could spell it.

"If you will sit for half an hour, I've half a mind to tell it."

MY DADDY makes up nursery rhymes, too," Mandy said. I felt sure her daddy's doggerel would top mine, and it did. "Tell me one of them," I said, and she did.

"Hi diddle diddle, the cat and the fiddle,

"Moscow jumped over the moon."

"That isn't a nursery rhyme," I told her. "That is political science."

"No it isn't," Mandy said.

"Yes it is," I said.

"No it isn't," she said.

"Yes it is," I said.

"No it isn't," she said.

It was at this point, or, to be exact, sword's point, that Mandy's mother and my wife (they are not the same person) entered the room and broke into the debate. "You mustn't say it is if Mr. Thurber says it isn't," her mother told her. "Are you two arguing again?" my wife wanted to know.

"No," I told her. "I was just explaining to Mandy that she shouldn't get her hopes up if she asks a bull on a motorcycle the way to the next town, and he says, 'Bear left at the church.' There won't be any bear there."

"Yes, there will," Mandy said.

"No, there won't," I said.

"Stop it," my wife said. "It's time to go." We broke it up, but, at the door, I said to Mandy, "Next time I'll explain why the wolf is at the door. It's on account of the stork."

"There isn't any stork, if you mean babies," Mandy said. I am sure she would have explained what she meant, in simple, childish dialectic, but my wife doesn't want me to know the facts of life. "For heaven's sake come on!" she said, and roughly but mercifully dragged me out of there.

Should a Girl Propose... Even in Leap Year?

The popular novelist is inspired by Suburbia Today's February cover

BY FAITH BALDWIN

WHEN I was first asked this hearty searching question, my immediate reaction was, why, she always proposes, in any year!

This isn't strictly true, of course. But I am of the opinion that the majority of men are gently led into matrimony by implication. I know a woman who has been happily married for twenty years; she'd been courted for five, and she grew a little tired of not getting a chance to say "Yes!" so she took to leading him past furniture stores and stopping to admire the lighted windows; she also steered him away from the small expensive dinner-and-dance outings (which she greatly enjoyed) and into dinners at home, or in a cafeteria, plus a movie and a soda. It worked. First thing you know, no one had proposed, but the date was set.

Another, a business girl, began cooking dinners in her flat and requesting her roommate to take the evening off somewhere. When her beau remarked that it was wonderful, almost as though they were married, she replied brightly, "as we might possibly be some day."

In my own case I do not recall a proposal... on either side. I do recall my father's walking into the living room and saying to my young man (who was very hard to acquire), "Suppose we have a little talk... upstairs?" In those days the male intentions were often inquired into, if not as openly as in another generation. Drifting and dreaming were all very well, but what about reality?

How to get your man really isn't important except to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police—the pressing question is, where do you find him? There's said to be a shortage of eligible men today; I'm also told that the wide-open spaces grow more of them, Alaska particularly, so now that it's a State maybe more and more females will crowd highways and seaways in search of husbands. I must, however, remind you that it isn't necessary or wise to use a whip, and it's never smart to linger in front of shops displaying ten-carat diamonds and mutation minks.

And at home or abroad, let us remember that while February brings Leap Year every four years, it offers Valentine's Day every year. This is an important day. I know a woman who "found herself engaged" by the simple expedient of investing in a five-cent valentine and an air mail stamp. If that wasn't proposing, I'd like to know what it was!

Happy Leap Year... and may the best girl win!

... make one tonight with this GOOD SEASONS MIX

Good Seasons Cheese-Garlic Dressing. A fresh and creamy dressing, full of fine blue cheese and with an undertone of garlic! Takes seconds to mix. Easy directions on the Good Seasons envelope. You add your favorite oil, vinegar and a little water to the Mix. The water, or a substitute liquid, makes the blend smoother. (A continental chef's secret!) You can use many substitutes, vary the dressing to your own taste. See recipes below for delicious suggestions.

Cheese-Garlic and Olive Dressing. To make this, substitute sour cream or mayonnaise for the water when making your Good Seasons Dressing. Just before final abaking, add 1 tablespoon of chopped ripe or stuffed olives. Wonderful on a green salad. Add French fried onions (canned or prepared frozen), toss with this dressing—a triumph!

Cheese-Garlic Dressing with Wine and Chives. Men cheer for this one. Use wine—white, vermouth or sherry—instead of water. Final touch: add 1 or 2 teaspoons of minced chives or onions. Try it with a new salad of greens, sliced raw mushrooms (marinated briefly in dressing) and slivers of sweet red peppers. Delicious, also, with salads of tomatoes, avocados, sea food, or chilled, cooked vegetables.
