Program on Red Cross Slated For B & PW

On March 21, the Plymouth Business and Professional Women's Club will have Mrs. Lillian Tarr of the American Red Cross as their guest speaker.

Mrs. Tarr has been affiliated with the Red Cross for approximately 17 years; from 1943 to October 1957 with the American National Red Cross, and from October 1957 to the present at the Detroit Chapter as Field Service Representative. She is well-known among the Plymouth residents as she has spoken at various functions in this area.

A film of the 1957 Dallas tornado will be shown, and Mrs. Tarr will discuss the ways and means that the Red Cross operates at the time of a disaster such as a tornado, etc.

The chairman of the National Security Committee, Mary Ellen Hosier, and her committee members, Jean Lee, Kathryn Bock, Isabelle St. Louis, and Lavona Hoffman are doubly pleased to have Mrs. Tarr as their speaker as she is a former member of the BPW.

This topic and film should be of interest to all, and the BPW is looking forward to having a full attendance.

New Junior Rifle Class Starts Soon

Once again a six-week course in basic rifle marksmanship has been completed at the Bronson Bldg. under the Plymouth Junior Police Rifle Club and it's time for a new session to begin.

Seven youngsters, John Krohn and Bob Winslow of Garden City, Bonnie Bowsman, Bob Hill, Ervin Woodard, Linda Ross, and William Cadaret of Plymouth have received their certificates and brassards signifying their competence in handling a rifle. Most of these boys and girls have acquired several brassards and are well on their way to higher qualifications under the National Rifle Assn.

Instructor John Olendorf will start a new class on Monday, March 21 at 6:30 p.m. and welcomes any boy or girl and their parents to join. A fee of $1.75 is the charge for the class material, a one-year junior membership in the NRA and supplies the ammunition used during the class.

Instructors working with the Junior Police Rifle Club had the pleasure of seeing two of their group, Noraleen Renauer and Doug Sabo, complete their Expert Qualifications, next to the highest honor offered by the NRA, and Bill Iman has earned the highest award, that of Distinguished Rifleman. All of these youngsters are now shooting in NRA Registered Competition, along with a group of about 15 others.

Wittenberg's program offers instruction in each of four levels to supervisory personnel from industry. Areas emphasized in the one-week courses are human relations, economics, communications and business operations.

Expect Capacity Crowd For "Galaxy in Rhythm"

A capacity crowd is expected to be on hand both nights at the Plymouth Junior High Auditorium when the Junior High band and chorus present "Galaxy in Rhythm" March 25 and 26.

Already 500 tickets have been sold to Plymouth citizens and the big push has only begun.

Members of both the Junior High band and chorus will complete their sales campaign next week by knocking on doors while, at the same time, publicity circulars will be distributed to all homes.

Laurence Livingston, director of the 88-piece Junior High band, said Monday that he expects the total attendance for the two-night show to surpass 1,000.

Tickets are available from members of the Junior High band and chorus and also at the Plymouth Music Studios. Adult tickets are $1.00, student tickets are 50 cents and pre-school-age children will be admitted free.

Among the featured attractions will be a one-man band and an eight-year old jazz cornetist. Vic Hyde, the one-man band, will appear Saturday evening, March 26, while Sandra McCorkle, eight-year-old jazz musician from Southfield, will perform Friday night, March 25.

In addition, the 15-piece Junior High dance band, the "Rockers," will play popular selections both evenings and Faith Faycroft, a ninth grader will sing soprano solo selections, including a number from the operetta "H. M.S. PINAFORE."

EBB WARREN, a nationally-known adventure photographer and big-game hunter, will personally narrate his film "Pacific Paradise" Saturday evening, March 19, at the Plymouth Junior High Auditorium. The film, featuring hunting in the mountains of New Zealand, will be shown at 7:30 and 9 p.m. Tickets are $1 for adults and 50 cents for children. The event will kick-off plans to form a Baseball Little League for Boys in Plymouth.

Falls Are High In Home Deaths

NEW YORK (UPI) — Statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. report that falls account for nearly half of all deaths resulting from accidents in and about the home.

Fires and burns by other means rank second to falls as a cause of death, with gas poisoning and injury by firearms accounting for much smaller percentages, they said.

They said that a major characteristic of the mortality from falls is its heavy concentration among older people.

State Farm Claims 11.9 Percent Of Auto Insurance

State Farm Mutual ended 1959 with an 11.9 percent share of the nation's private passenger car insurance market and with earned premiums for the year in excess of $400 million, the first time a single casualty insurance company has passed that dollar level.

Local agents for State Farm are John E. Tripp and Thomas J. Hinsel.

Of the company's $432,061,041 of earned premiums, auto business accounted for $419,740,013. Other year-end figures announced today by Adlai H. Rust, chairman of the boards of the three State Farm companies, show assets of $567,899,140, a 17 percent gain for the period. Policyholders' surplus increased 17.8 percent to $156,119,624.

SPORTSEEN

By BILL NELSON

Aching arms and puffy palms will dominate today as Plymouth High School baseball practice gets underway at 8:30 p.m. in the local gym.

The annual defiance of weather conditions and certain indication of warm breezes soon will find 35-40 Rocks meeting with Coach Mike Hoben.

Missing from the group will be shortstop Paul Woodward who is expected to be in Tiger Town, Fla., some time next week. Also gone is Larry Wells.

Back from the varsity, which posted a 13-2 record last season and split the Suburban Six League title with Bentley, are three pitchers: Randy Egloff, Dick Wells and Jim Thompson, who also doubles at first base.

John Salan, center fielder; Jim Kaiser, right fielder; Wayne Sparkman, second baseman and catcher; Dave Fehlig, utility infielder; Dave Mynatt, catcher and outfielder and Jim Herter, third baseman, are also returning for another season of varsity competition.

Up from the junior varsity are shortstop Jim Ralston, catcher Bob Monteith and second baseman Gary Black.

Randy Egloff has been named to three Suburban Six All-League teams in basketball. The Times, News and League Coaches all named the Rock star to the first team.

Cage Coach Jim Doyle pointed out that Egloff this season set an all-time Plymouth scoring record per game. Randy totaled 250 points in 15 games for a 16.5 average to better the old record of 14.9 held by Kenny Kisebeth.

Egloff fell four short of Kisebeth's total point high of 254 points scored in 17 games.

Forward Jim Thompson was named to the second team all league by the coaches and Jim Ralston received honorable mention.

Recreation assistant Jack Carter, who is a student at Eastern Michigan University, was absent from his usual station in the gym last week. Reason: Wife, Joan Kay, had presented him with a six pound eleven ounce boy, promptly named Brian Jack.

Heides, Optimists To Play For Title

Optimists and Heides tied for first place at the end of regular season play in the 18 year old and under recreation league.

The Optimists overwhelmed Plymouth VFW 74-22 last week for its ninth win against one loss. Heides, meanwhile, slipped past the Redbirds 45-42 for their ninth win, also against one loss.

The Optimists entered tournament play last night, because league leaders were picked some weeks ago when the Optimists were unbeaten and Heides had lost one.

The Plymouth team met a team from Berkley at Lasky Recreation Center in Detroit. League director, Jack Carter will schedule a playoff between Heides and the Optimists as soon as it is certain what nights the Optimists will have free from tournament play.

In other tournament action the Yellow Jackets, winners of the 15 year old and under title in Plymouth, met Ypsilanti at Plymouth. We'll have the results of that one next week.

In the only other league contest last week, the Speed Demons beat the Raiders 44-33.

FINAL STANDINGS

Heides	9-1
Optimists	9-1
Redbirds	4-8
VFW	2-8

Winter Intermural Program Ends at Junior High School

The Winter intermural program at the Plymouth Community Junior High School has come to an end and plans are now being made for the Spring events that will include baseball and tennis.

Seventh and eighth grade leagues in basketball ended with an All-School tournament from March 1 to 4. The one-game elimination tournament was won by the Rims of the Eighth Grade League.

The Rims also won their own league championship with a 15-4 record.

The Seventh Grade League was won by the Magicians with a 14-4 record.

Members of the Rims were: Denny Hunt, captain; Harry McMullen, Caleb Lulbrand, Dennis Potoczny, Bob McGee, Chuck Ruge, Jerry McKillip and Tom Drews.

On the Magicians team were Garry Grady, captain; Jim Haarbauer, Bill Flippin, John Adams, Ken Groom, Dave Parker, Ron White and Don Stamper.

Frank Sullivan coached the Eighth Grade League and Mike Danovich coached the Seventh Grade League.

A boys' swimming program coached by John McFall has also ended. The Whites won three intermural meets while the Reds won two.

On the White team were Steve Dayton, Rusty Speirn, Mike Brennan, Chuck Olson, John Bowsman, Bob Knapp, Tony Snowden, Peter Ackerman, Terry Ackerman, Kirk Rowland, Bill McEwen, Tom York, and Daryl Morgan.

The season climaxed with an exhibition swim at the Allen Park-Plymouth varsity meet on Feb. 18. Five swimmers, John Herter, Kirk Rowland, Russell Crosby, Mike Bentley and Dennis Newton were in special diving competition.

Some ninth graders of the Junior High also participated in the intermural sports.

Following Easter vacation, the baseball season will start for the Junior High, coached by Bill Grimmmer and Heinz Dittmar. There will also be a tennis program for seventh and eighth grade boys and girls coached by Jim Stevens.

The following are the final standings of the two basketball leagues:

To Honor Three Ford Salesmen From Plymouth

Three salesmen of Paul J. Wiedman, Inc., Plymouth Ford dealership, will be presented Ford Motor Company's 300-500 Club award at a banquet in Detroit, March 21, honoring high-ranking Ford dealership car and truck salesmen of 1959 in Ford Division's Detroit sales district.

The local Ford salesmen are Thomas D. Burton, Henry M. Bock and Robert Minock.

J. O. Wardwell, Detroit district sales manager, said 300-500 Club membership awards are presented for excellent retail sales performance and added that efforts of winning salesmen are of particular significance because they resulted in Ford leading all other makes in sales last year.

Wardwell added that the average 300-500 Club member sold the equivalent of 100 new cars and 70 used cars in qualifying for the national honors, and that club members in the aggregate sold more than 3 billion dollars worth of automotive merchandise.

TITLE HOLDERS—are left to right Mel Blunk, who made the presentation to co-captain Jim Carney, Coach John McFall and co-captain Allen Davies. The ceremony took place at Plymouth's pool after the Rocks had captured the Suburban Six Title for the fourth consecutive year, piling up 103 points to the nearest opponent's 27.

Softball Meeting Slated

When the Plymouth recreation department starts organizing for softball play, can spring be far behind?

A sure sign that warm weather is not far away is that Recreation Director Herb Woolweaver reminds anyone interested that there will be a softball organizational meeting at 7:30 p.m., Monday, March 21 in Room 22 of Plymouth High School.

Coach John Hoben will conduct the meeting of all managers of Class A, B and C softball teams. The "A" league is a fast pitch league, while "B" is modified fast pitch and "C" is Blobber.

In addition the recreation department reminds a full men of a Monday nite gym class, currently being conducted which takes place from 7-10 p.m.

It starts each Monday evening with calisthenics and then breaks up into games of choice such as volleyball, basketball, table tennis, trampolining and weight lifting.

At 9:15 p.m. there is a surge to the pool for a half hour's free swim and water games. The fee is only $5 and the class will last until warm weather arrives.

Participants can also take part in free basketball on Wednesday evening.

Grosse Pte. Wins "A" Title

Rock Tankers Place 15th in Michigan

Four Plymouth swimmers placed in six events in the Class A State Swimming Meet at Ann Arbor last week. Between them they contributed enough points for Plymouth to place 15th among 27 participating schools.

Other team totals: Battle Creek Central, 27; Kimball, 23 1/2; Lansing Sexton, 20; Bay City Handy, 13; Monroe, 12; Dearborn, 8 1/2; Saginaw Arthur Hill, 7 1/2; Southfield, 7; Pontiac Central, 7; Flint Central, 7; Edsel Ford, 6 1/2; Plymouth, 5 1/2; Highland Park, 5; Warren, 3 1/2; Trenton, 3; Bay City Central, 2; Kalamazoo Central, 2; Belleville, 1; Jackson, 1; Fordson, 1.

The meet was won by Grosse Pointe with 47 points. Second was Birmingham with 43 points, while Ann Arbor (beaten by Plymouth earlier this year in a dual meet) was third with a total of 30 points.

Plymouth's point total was 5 1/2. The meet, held in the University of Michigan pool, actually doesn't reflect overall team strength, but pits outstanding individuals against the timer's clock.

A poor team with an outstanding swimmer or two could place higher in the state meet, while being unable to win dual meets.

The best Plymouth had done in past state meets was to place ninth.

Advertising Dept. Considered

CHICAGO (UPI) — Northwestern University is thinking of setting up a new department of advertising which would combine the facilities of the School of Business and the Medill School of Journalism.

The deans of the journalism and business schools proposed the new department as the first step in the development of a "new approach" to advertising education at Northwestern.

Consumers To Resume Strike Talk

Negotiations in the Consumers Power strike are scheduled to soon resume after talks were broken off last week in Jackson.

The strike, now in its third week, affects 150 local operating employees.

U.S. reconciliators called a meeting of the negotiating committees of the Utility Workers Union and Consumers Power in Jackson March 10.

According to Union spokesmen, the company said it would modify its proposal on job security but that "it would not change its last proposal of a wage increase of two and one-half percent for 1960 and two and one-half percent for 1961, and that under no circumstances would it agree to consideration of a job security for long-term employees disabled on the job or employees disabled because of illness."

The company, in the meantime, has reported several cases of suspected tampering with electrical service in other areas and has posted a reward for anyone knowing anything about such matters.

An incident that happened in Plymouth two weeks ago is still pending before the prosecuting attorney. A company supervisory employee allegedly drove his car across a picket line at the company's service yard on Junction and struck two employees. The prosecutor took statements last week and is to take more later.

Gas service to Plymouth has remained normal.

Board Names Supt. of Buildings, Grounds

Hiring of a "supervisor of buildings and grounds," a newly-created administrative position, was completed by the Board of Education at its meeting Monday night.

Thomas J. Kelly, 1103 Penniman Ave., was selected for the position from a field of 34 applicants. He will start his new job immediately.

With the school district now containing 12 schools and six other types of buildings, the Board of Education created the new position to have a man who would coordinate the maintenance and construction programs. An engineering degree was required in the job description.

Kelly received his electrical engineering degree from Syracuse University. He has worked for a number of construction firms, including Victor Gruen Associates of Detroit and O.W. Burke, Co., Detroit. He was field superintendent for both.

He was also a resident engineer for Ford Motor Co.

The new supervisor will be in charge of the 34 full and part-time maintenance employees. He will also assist in the planning and construction of new buildings and additions, set up the maintenance budget, be in charge of purchasing supplies and the many other duties connected with maintenance supervision and planning.

In other business before the Board, teachers in the system's music department were present to evaluate their program and make recommendations about future needs. This was one of many meetings between the Board and teachers of the various departments.

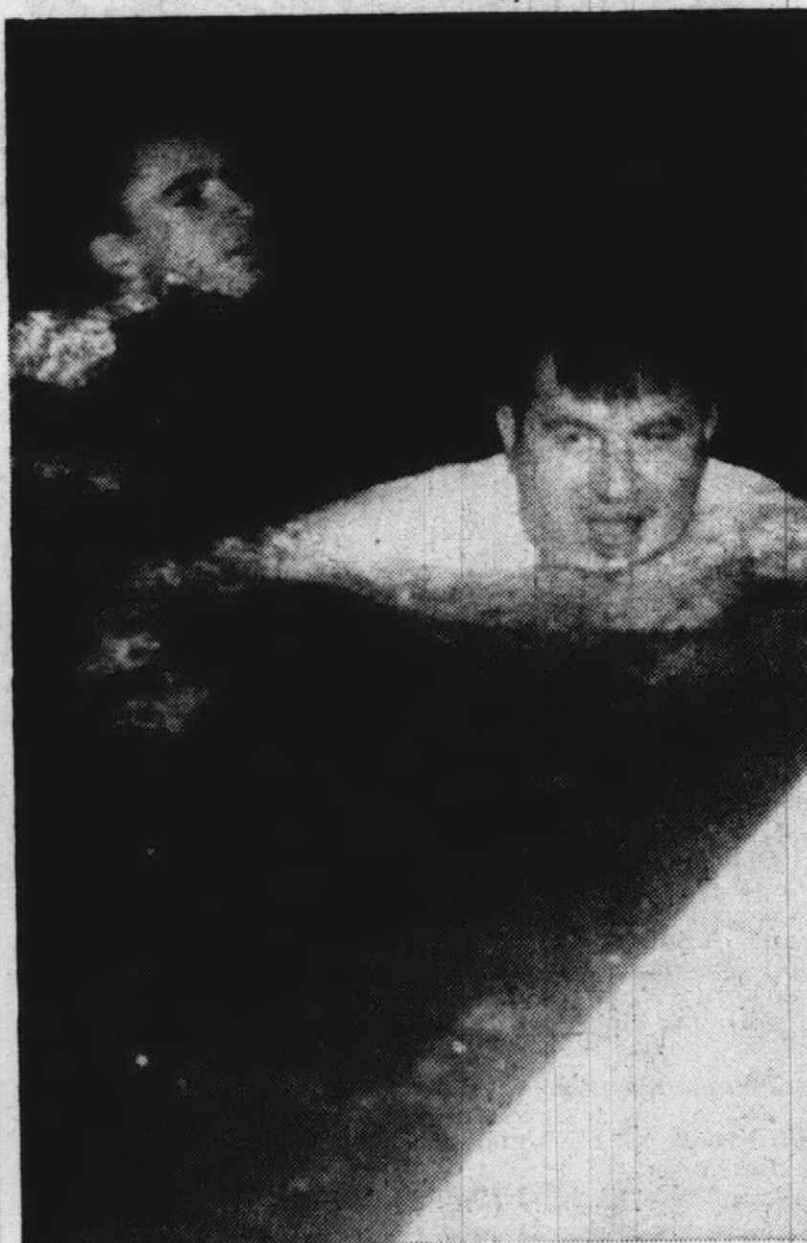

The music instructors recommended that a string instrument instruction program be arranged in the lower grades that will eventually lead to formation of orchestras in the Junior and Senior High schools.

Several citizens appeared to ask Supt. Russell Isbister to reconsider his decision to disallow the Junior and Senior High Bands from traveling to the State Band Festivals. The Junior High Festival is in Saginaw while the Senior High Festival is in Midland.

The trips would be overnight.

After lengthy discussion the superintendent stated that he would reconsider if Junior High Director Laurence Livingston would furnish him with details of where the students would be staying and who the adult supervisors would be on the trip.

Magazine Listing

These are the so-called men's picture magazines. The more popular of these magazines can still be purchased by adults by asking a clerk.

The chief reason for the ban of open display was to prevent young people from looking through them. Many, it was learned, were stolen from the racks.

Because there are new magazines making their appearance every week which may fall into the questionable category, most dealers have been voluntarily withdrawing them before a new list from the Citizens' Committee appears.

Flashers, No Signal

It was further recommended in the report that parking should be prohibited 150 feet north of the crossing on the west side of Main and 150 feet south on the east side.

Fisher's own suggestion on this item was that parking be halted only from 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays in that area. He recommended that "no parking" signs be erected as soon as possible.

The commissioners agreed unanimously. The permanent school crossing flasher signs will cost $225 apiece, excluding the price of installation. The signs will be 24 by 36 inches and clearly visible to passing motorists.

A recommendation on how to meet the cost of the flash-ers will be made at the regular meeting Monday night before official action is taken by the commissioners.

An innovation!
The Sophomore Executive Board has broken tradition. The sophs are going to have a mixer!
This social event—which is a class project combining swimming, dancing and games and has, until now, been exclusively a senior affair—will be presented by the sophs this Friday night, March 18.
Classes for some time have gone to the administration with requests for mixers but have been turned down with a "that's a senior event." Sophs worked around the administration veto by offering to give up their Friday night dance in exchange for a mixer.

Executive Board members, the "brains" behind the program, are class president Jim Kropp, vice-president Tony Hunt, secretary Mary Lou Argo, treasurer Susie Neal, and Student Council members Mary Hulsing (the main instigator), Janet Graham, Ken Fischer and Carolyn Scott.
Barbara Steencken of the Chess Club reports that Plymouth's chessmen recently outplayed Southfield. The March 8 game found Bob Wall taking first and Norm Lehnhardt finishing second.
Other team members are Don Luvisch, who lost his Southfield match two minutes before the end of the time limit, Terry Haws, Larry McMullen, Dee Wernette, Jim McCabe, Mark Tillotson, Jeff Huntington and Bob Fischer.

Today's the day... second semester, first marking period report cards out.
The Student Council met yesterday morning.
Model United Nations Assembly... that meeting at Hillsdale College you've been hearing so much about recently... it's this weekend, March 18 and 19.
A caravan of 22 Russians from the Senior International Relations Class will leave for Hillsdale early Friday morning, arriving in time for a meeting of the Warsaw Pact Nations, which the Russians called.

After lunch, the group will attend the First Plenary session of the General Assembly, and will then wind up the day's business with committee sessions.
The 10 official Russian delegates are Gary Ross, Janet Frieswyk and Sharon Neal, discussing Tibet, Algeria and Hungary; Dick Hubert, Lon Dickerson and Judy Bullington on the Social, Humanitarian and Cultural Committee, working on disarmament are Jeff Huntington, Jim McCabe, Bob Wall and Gloria Bowles.

A banquet, a speaker and recreation—swimming, dancing and games—are scheduled for Friday evening.
Saturday morning will find delegates at a continuation of Friday's committee meetings, followed by a final session of the General Assembly.
Lucky, lucky, lucky Marty Bernash... she's in Europe right now.
Marty left for Europe last Saturday with her father, headed for Paris and Frankfurt and Hanover in northern Germany. She will return about April 1. Shortly after Marty returns, four PHS'ers will travel to Europe as exchange students... they are Susan Hulsing, Jerry Fischer, April Corey and Margo Van Antwerp.

Man the Lawnmowers, Spring Arrives Sunday

"The flowers that bloom in the spring, tra la" are almost here, says Hazel M. Losh (Ph.D.), University of Michigan associate professor of astronomy.

Spring officially will arrive at 9:43 a.m. Sunday (March 20) Professor Losh explains. "At that time the sun will arrive at the vernal equinox, or in other words will cross the equator on its way north."

The beginning of spring this year will be 18 hours earlier than last year because the earth's swing around the sun requires an uneven number of days—365.2422—and this year's leap year calendar has 366, she explains.

"The sun started its long trek northward on Dec. 22, and has been steadily climbing at the rate of about one degree per day since then," the astronomer says. "For about six months its rising and setting have been south of the east and west points of the horizon, but on the day of the equinox it will rise and set almost exactly at the east and west points with equal lengths of day and night."

"As the sun goes higher and higher above the equator, its rising and setting points will lie farther and farther to the north with the consequent lengthening of the daylight hours at the expense of the nighttime."

"Not only will we have longer days as the sun heads north," she points out, "but we also will have warmer days as the sun shines more over the northern hemisphere."

"On the day of the equinox the sun will shine vertically over the earth's equator—thus equally over both poles." After the equinox date, the sun will shine more directly over the northern hemisphere with resulting higher temperatures over that part of the earth and cooler weather, or fall, beginning in the southern hemisphere," she concludes.

The tour begins at 7:45 p.m. Hostesses are Mrs. J.C. Robertson, Mrs. Ray Collins, Mrs. J.M. Hopkins and Mrs. W.H. Medlyn.

A tea for Plymouth High School senior girls will be held this Sunday, March 20 from 2 to 4 p.m. Held in the Senior High Auditorium, the tea is being sponsored by the Higher Education Committee. The new venture is being planned to encourage college enrollment of girls. All AAUW members are being asked to serve as hostesses. Plans are underway for the annual book sale that will take place April 6-9 at Kroger's. Proceeds are used for the AAUW Fellowships.

Plans to form a Plymouth Baseball Little League for Boys will reach closer to the reality point Saturday, March 19, when the adventure film "Pacific Paradise" is shown at the Junior High Auditorium here.

The film, photographed and narrated by adventure sportsman Ebb Warren, will kick-off plans to form the Little League in Plymouth.

The movie, with two showings, one at 7:30 p.m. and another at 9 is expected to produce sufficient funds to start the organizing of the Little League program.

In all, more than 500 youngsters will participate in the Little League, including teams from all Plymouth grade schools.

Included in the colorful adventure movie are rarely photographed scenes of tahr and chamois hunting in the mountains of New Zealand, some of the most beautiful and scenic mountains in the world.

Warren and his film appear under the joint sponsorship of the Passage Gateway American Legion Post and the Western Wayne County Conservation Assn.

Tickets at the door will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

Trapped in Car For 45 Minutes

A seriously-injured South Lyon woman was pinned in her wrecked car for 45 minutes last week before deputies freed her.

Mrs. Ethel G. Huger, 57, was taken to University Hospital in Ann Arbor after sustaining multiple injuries in the accident. She suffered a chipped pelvis bone, a dislocated right hip and cuts on the face and arm.

She is the wife of George Huger, a plumbing contractor who does work in the Plymouth area.

Deputies had to rip the front door off Mrs. Huger's car and then pry the electrically-powered front seat off her before she could be freed.

Mrs. Huger was driving in Salem Township on Seven Mile near Angle Rd. She told deputies she lost control of her car when she attempted to pick up a neon light bulb rolling free on the front seat. The car went off the road on a curve and slammed into a tree. The auto was demolished.

Ann Arbor Man Is Partner In Restaurant Here

New business partner in The Penn Restaurant (formerly Jack's Burgers) here is Gregg DesCamp of Ann Arbor, who recently joined Robert Young in the ownership of the dining spot.

DesCamp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter DesCamp, 3624 Prospect, Ann Arbor, is a 1959 graduate of Staunton Military Academy, Staunton, Va.

Young purchased the restaurant at 794 Penniman from his older brother, Jack, on March 1. The new owner revealed the restaurant's new name at that time.

Robert Young is presently remodeling the store's interior and exterior. Special cook at The Penn Restaurant is Mrs. Bessie Evans, who specializes in home-made pies, chili and other fine foods.

Hours of the restaurant are from 6 a.m. to midnight on weekdays and from 7 a.m. until 4 p.m. on Saturday. It will be closed Sundays.

Col. Edward Miller Writes Genealogy of Brown Family

A genealogy of his mother's family called "Richard Brown—One Line of Descendants," has been published by an 89-year-old Plymouth man, Col. Edward T. Miller.

Col. Miller, a Spanish American War veteran, has had the work published in an 80-page book. He is currently working on the genealogy of his father's family, the Millers.

The genealogy of Browns begins with Richard Brown, who in 1635 came to Newburg, Mass. from England. Richard had four sons, but Col. Miller's genealogy follows just the line of descent from one son, Joshua. Col. Miller himself is of the ninth generation.

Compiling the genealogy of his parents has been a project that Col. Miller has been attempting to complete for many years. As a former newspaperman, editor, military man, printing trades official and public relations man, Col. Miller didn't retire until he was 85.

He lives on Simpson St. and is probably Plymouth's only veteran of the Spanish American War. As chief quartermaster of the Ohio National Guard during the early part of the century, he designed, contracted and directed construction of Camp Perry on the south shore of Lake Erie.

University Women to Tour Northville High School

A tour of the new Northville High School will be given members of the American Association of University Women for their March meeting this Thursday night.

One Cure for JD---Teen-Age Music Clubs

BY EDNA MILES

Because so many of the proposed solutions for dealing with the teen-age problem stress what not to do, a unique club is active which places the emphasis on what teen-agers want to do.

To find out what it is that teen-agers are missing, one large company which specializes in the youth market went straight to the kids themselves and asked them point blank what it was they wanted. The answer was straight: music.

They made it clear that they like to let off steam to rock and roll no matter how it may assault adult ears. So the Hi-Fi Club, with more than two million card holding members, was born. There are 235 such clubs in this country, each run by local disk jockeys.

Dances are held on weekends with the disk jockey playing records or with a local band furnishing the music. There are contests, with prizes.

The dances are chaperoned and the refreshments served come in the form of soft drinks. The clubs offer, in addition, many special safety, grooming and betterment projects.

Houston has 70,000 members; Los Angeles has 50,000 and Boston has 40,000. Club members enjoy many special privileges in their areas such as discounts at sports shops and music shops.

The whole accent is on juvenile decency. And, the company finds, the teen-agers are anxious to prove that they can live up to what's expected of them.

Singer Andy Williams, Hi-Fi Club favorite, talks "through his hat" to Joanne Storm, member from Easton, Pa. Tilt of his topper means: "May I have the next dance?" Here says: "Sing to me first."

QUALITATIVE ANALYSIS

ITHACA, N.Y. (UPI) — Cornell University researchers recently conducted a survey in which people chosen at random were asked to taste two kinds of applesauce. Most of those interviewed favored the medium-quality applesauce over the high-quality stuff.

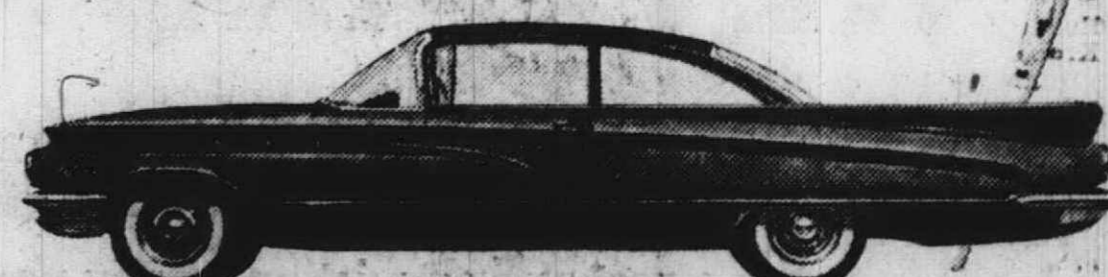

PIG IN WINNER'S CIRCLE

EPSOM, England (UPI) — One of the strangest events ever seen on a race track took place at Epsom Downs in 1828 when a gelding named The Arrow raced against a pig for 180 yards. The wagering was heavy. The pig won.

Plays Hockey, Not Hokey

TORONTO, Ont. (UPI) — Bob Pulford, the Toronto Maple Leafs' crack center, attends evening classes at the University of Toronto during the hockey season. He studied at the University of British Columbia last summer.

LETTER HOME MIDDLETOWN, CONN.
 (UPI) — A Wesleyan University student received from his mother a self-addressed return envelope with a "quiz". She asked him to check "yes" or "no" to such statements as:
 I am keeping up to par with my studies; I am keeping in good health; I received the package; I have had my hair cut since I left home; I will try to take 30-45 minutes each week to write home.

Newburg Scouts, Church Women Plan Activities

By Mrs. Emil LaPointe
 GL 3-3797
 Sorry we couldn't get together last week but you fine folks in the Newburg area have been letting me down by not calling with your news. We sure would like to be hearing from all of you. Ed Reid of Richland Ave., Park Villa Subdivision, is home after a two-week vacation starting first in Florida where he visited at the home of his mother and then on to New York City for a photographers' convention. The sun must have been shining full force while he was in the sunny clime for he came home several shades darker than we here in the cold north.

On a recent Saturday, Scoutmaster Post C. Rea of Troop 271 of St. Michael's Catholic Church took several boys of that troop to an assembly of all Scouts from the Detroit Area Council at the Rackham Building in downtown Detroit where the boys were informed of the various functionings of the many Detroit industries and were given the opportunity to choose the industry they wished to tour. As a result of this meeting, several tours have been assigned to the boys being assigned to the tour of their choice. The Scouts from Troop 271 who attended were Bruce and David LaPointe, Dennis Swain, Clifford Symmons, William Davis, Richard Powell and Michael Rea.

Today, Wednesday, March 16, is the day on which the Lydia Circle of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Newburg Methodist Church is having their "Luncheon is Served" at 12:30 p.m. at the church hall, Ann Arbor Trail and Newburg Rd. The ladies are providing a baby sitting service for all mothers with youngsters not yet in school and who wish to attend this luncheon. The circle is also having a bake counter where you may purchase your supper dessert and thereby further the group's financial effort. The main meat of the luncheon will be ham and tickets are $1. We'll see you there!

TIPS for TEENS
 ELINOR WILLIAMS

Q: — "Dear Miss Williams: I am going with a boy I like very much. Our girls' dance is coming soon and I would like to invite another boy just for a change. I don't know if it is without my regular boyfriends getting angry? Or would it be better not to ask another boy?"

Ans. — If you two have a definite "going steady" arrangement, your boy-friend expects to be invited to the dance and will be angry if you ask somebody else. Why not invite your "steady" date, and arrange before the dance to exchange dances with other girls so you'll have a variety of dance partners? Lots of girls say that they would like to dance with other boys besides their date, and they're waiting for somebody else to do it, too, so you'll find some who like the idea. It's good manners to dance with more than one boy. In fact, it's what dances are intended for — mixing and mingling.

Q. — "Dear Elinor: I am a freshman in high school, but I'm not allowed to have dates yet. Recently a boy asked me to go with him. What shall I tell him? Shall I mention it to my mother? How should I go about it?"

Ans. — Your parents are more likely to allow you to have dates if you begin to date gradually, as many girls and boys do, instead of asking your mother if you can go steady with a boy, that's probably just what she doesn't want you to do! Tell your mother about this boy as a friend, not as a steady date, and ask her if you can invite him to your home so she and your father can meet him. Then perhaps she will let you go to school activities or parties with him, with one of your parents driving the car, if necessary. Knowing the boy and knowing the car

Kiwanis Wins Coveted Award

Kiwanis International has won a top award (The George Washington Medal in the Americana competition) again this year from the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge. The award was given for Kiwanis' "eleven point program on individual citizenship responsibility" headed by the organization's 1959 theme "Build Individual Responsibility." It came to Kiwanis on Washington's birthday at special ceremonies conducted at the Freedoms Foundation headquarters in Valley Forge, Pa., according to Miller Ross, president of the Kiwanis Club of Plymouth.

In addition, he said, Kiwanis received the Distinguished Service Award for having received at least nine awards in the eleven annual competitions sponsored by the Freedoms Foundation. The award was accepted for Kiwanis by Albert J. Tully of Mobile, Ala., president of Kiwanis International.

Key Club International, which is a high school boys' service organization sponsored by Kiwanis International, was also honored by the Freedoms Foundation. Key Club received a George Washington Honor Medal Award for "a seven-point youth program to cultivate creative citizenship."

According to President

Ross, "The Freedoms Foundation Award has long enjoyed the same stature in the community service field as the 'Oscar' enjoys in the motion picture field and the 'Emmy' in the television field."

The Kiwanis International award came to the organization because of its over-all program of community service work carried on by nearly 258,000 members in 4700 clubs. The work covered the fields of Agriculture and Conservation, Boys and Girls Work, Public and Business Affairs, Support of Churches in Their Spiritual Aims and Vocational Guidance.

RAILROAD 'BLUE' LAWS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Technically, it's against the law to sneeze on a train in West Virginia, to run a freight on Sunday in New Jersey or to stomp spike shoes in railroad stations or on rolling stock in Maine.

A list of these and other such "blue" laws was compiled recently by the Jersey Central Railroad, which also found that one cuspidor is required for every three parlor car seats in Texas and that it was once illegal to board a streetcar in Gary, Ind., within four hours after eating garlic.

Hawaii's Bustin' Out All Over Since Statehood

HONOLULU (UPI) — Hawaii — one year after statehood — is booming, bewildering and busting out all over. Even the volcano on the island of Hawaii has been erupting longer than in any recent period.

A year ago March 12, Congress voted statehood for Hawaii. What is it like in the islands on this first anniversary?

Records are falling in every field, planners are plucking blueprints to bits, kamainas (island born residents) are shaking their heads, tourists are peeking into every nook and cranny, politicians are at once suffering and reveling in such problems as the need to make 400 or more job appointments.

Smiling businessmen rush off to expanding offices while task forces from mainland organizations hasten to make proper "contacts."

Where else would you find a seven-story apartment, with penthouse, planned on 20 by 40-foot property? Or earth movers, tractors and bulldozers painted shocking pink? Or a top-floor restaurant on a small skyscraper that will rotate on the hour, every hour?

Waikiki Beach hotels are crowded — despite building projects that have pile drivers working alongside many of them, or drills clatteringly biting into the hard coral foundation underlying the light soil cover.

The Hawaii Hotel Association reported occupancy at 80 per cent of capacity in the Waikiki area in January, with 30 per cent more visitors than in January, 1959.

New construction in the hotel field this year will add approximately 2,200 rooms in the Waikiki area, and projects are underway on the other islands to accommodate hundreds of added travelers. All kinds and classes of construction are underway. Among them is a church-financed and operated hotel where no liquor will be served.

There are innumerable housing and suburban development projects underway. Lots even are advertised in New York newspapers—and one such sale brought in a reported $500,000 for property not far removed from the scene of the volcanic eruption on the "big island" of Hawaii.

The Henry Kaiser organization is gouging out a vast new community near Koko Head, beyond Diamond Head on Oahu, for some 50,000 persons. The cost is estimated at $350,000,000.

In the Kailua area of windward Oahu, across the mountains from Honolulu, hundreds of new homes have been built in a project named "Enchanted Lake," with hundreds more planned or being erected in surrounding communities.

Government costs are rocketing upward, along with everything else. The city and county of Honolulu will spend eight times as much this year as it did in 1940. The area must spend $10,000,000 for new schools or additions, out of a $40,000,000 budget.

Rural development presents a great challenge to each of the major islands in the 50th state. And recreational facilities must be developed in anticipation of a population increase from 522,000 persons to 705,000 by 1970, with 1,000,000 distinctly in the offing.

Employment in the state reached a new high in January, with 217,330 holding jobs. There were only 6,690 persons unemployed.

Among plans under study are those for a new $6,500,000 harbor passenger terminal; a $2,500,000 small boat harbor improvement; a general transportation development master plan; a $200,000,000 capital improvements program for the city of Honolulu in the next six years; a $10,000,000 sewage treatment plant, and a multimillion dollar project to replace overcrowded International Airport.

Construction now is the second ranking industry in the islands, although a certain leveling off is anticipated as a result of the decline in demand for luxury type apartments and housing, and a drop in military work. Just to keep everything normal there are plenty of problems confronting the state. Sugar and pineapple, long major revenue producers and sources of employment, are facing almost certain declines. There is an urgent need for diversification.

Tax problems are multiplying as budgets increase and demands rise. Long entrenched interests are being nudged and pushed by new and outside capital.

Honolulu's central business district is plagued by narrow streets, buildings whose median age is 42 years, and buildings desperately inadequate for modern merchandising or office operation.

There even has been a "touch of 'smog'" or "smaze," or "volcano fog" to worry the islanders, coincident with the prolonged eruption in the Puna area of the island of Hawaii.

Nevertheless, Hawaii is doing just fine as the newest state, and the air of excitement, enthusiasm and assurance pervading its residents is unmistakable. Culturally they look forward to an immensely important role as the United States' meeting point in the Pacific with Asia.

Plans already are underway for an East-West Cultural Center in the University of Hawaii.

Economically the outlook couldn't be better. Hawaii's future in its own eyes is arched skyward on a magnificent rainbow.

HI-FI
 By FRESTON McGRAW
 United Press International

AM, or amplitude modulated, radio has never been in very good repute among high fidelity enthusiasts because it is not a real high fidelity medium.

The fault is not entirely that of the AM transmitting method. Demands for space in the AM band are so great that one broadcaster simply can't get enough to carry a full-range signal.

If a broadcaster wants to spend the money on equipment, however, and maintain an engineering staff that will keep his equipment in peak condition, he can provide his listeners sound that is far above the average for AM.

There is an increasing realization among AM broadcasters that it is to their advantage to have the best signal possible. Some go to great lengths to get a wide range, undistorted signal.

A new Texas AM station, KVIL in Dallas, was built from the floor up with the idea of getting a high quality signal.

"The signal we are putting on the air checks out flat, 30-10,000 cycles per second plus or minus two decibels," transmitter engineer Gordon Vaughan said. "We intend to keep it that way."

Vaughan's boss is Robert L. Farris, whom station manager John A. Hicks hired from RCA's record division in New York. Farris is quality control engineer and his job is to keep KVIL's signal up to snuff.

Collins Radio built the transmitting equipment. For other equipment, it uses names familiar to high fidelity rig owners.

For instance, KVIL uses an Ampex 351-2 transport and amplifier for tapes and two Fairchild turntables with bystris motors for records. The turntables are equipped with Rek-O-Kut arms, fitted with Shure monophonic cartridges.

Farris checks the quality of his station through a 12-inch bass driver, mounted in a Klipsch-designed corner enclosure. Altec's 802-D with horn covers frequencies about 500 cps.

He also uses an H. H. Scott 330-D stereo tuner and an H. H. Scott Stereo Master amplifier.

KVIL's studios are about 10 miles from its 500-watt transmitter. Studios and transmitter are connected by a "balanced" telephone line.

Vaughan said the line checks out from 30-15,000 cps, plus or minus 1.8 decibels. A balanced line is one carefully matched as to impedances, levels and the frequencies it is designed to carry.

The rooms in which the station's records are stored and played have separate heating-air conditioning systems with electro-static filters. When records need it, they are cleaned with dry nitrogen.

Because AM is the most likely part of a radio broadcasting operation to make money, the owners of KVIL completed that part of the project first.

But they already have bought the equipment to construct a frequency modulated (FM) station, which will be capable of the full-range signal which high fidelity equipment owners like.

The FM station will have an effective radiated power of 29 kilowatts.

Hicks said that to keep the FM station's quality as high as possible, he may make it an entirely separate operation from the AM station.

The other day I heard so many of our residents are in Florida and I am starting to think they are all there with the little news we get these days.

Brownie Troop 273 along with other Brownie and Scout Troops 265, 270, 279, 338, met at the Gallimore School along with their parents to hear a discussion by Mrs. Fight on summer camping. The group was shown movies from the senior round-up which was held in Colorado. Following the discussion and movie the group engaged in a question and answer period, followed by refreshments.

The "Snip & Snap" 4-H group went to the Ice Capades. There were nine girls and three visitors. Their leader Mrs. Godwin was unable to attend, but the group was chaperoned by Mrs. Condash, Mr. Godwin and Mrs. Schultz. The visitors were Amy Schultz, Byron and Fred Godwin. According to the group's reporter, Miss Scheppeley, they had a grand time.

We want to extend our sympathies to the Robert Owen family. The Owens resided in Canton Township on Gorman Rd., until just shortly, when Mr. and Mrs. Owens and their four children moved to Tennessee. Mr. Owen died of a heart attack at their new home.

The boys of Scout Troop 298 are off to their Spring Camp - out the weekend of March 11, 12 and 13. The boys will camp at the Rotary Camp in Utica. On March 7 the boys along with their leader Mr. Ralph Leffler and Mr. Voss, Mr. Thorpe, and Mr. Lea, spent a cold but very happy evening tobogganing at Riverside Park.

All the phases of scouts are now in the process of completing their charters, and this brings us to mind of a little error we made a week or so ago. The Cub Scouts of Troop 298 meet every Thursday at the home of their respective Den mothers. For further information please contact Mr. John Wiles, GL 3-3087.

We have it from the "Slim Gens" the township diet club, that everyone is shedding pounds, with only one falling astray by gaining a half pound. The total weight loss last week 13½ pounds. The past meeting of the group was held at the home of Mrs. Neomi Newport. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Donald Walbridge. Anyone interested in joining may contact Mrs. Walbridge — GL 3-1497.

Most of our P. T. A. groups are in the process of electing new officers, as is the case with our Gallimore School. Committees have been formed to contact nominees. If you are called, consider it an honor, for these groups have put a lot of thought behind their choice.

Stereophonic Sound and Music... Like Solid, Man.

Stereo is a word that comes to us from the Greeks. It means "solid". Look through a stereoscope... which units two pictures, similar but flat in surface... and a third dimension—depth—has been added. A photograph shows no more than what one eye sees. But two photos, strategically placed and seen through a stereoscope, give a composite of what each eye sees separately.

Listen to stereophonic music... which unites two almost identical vistas of sound... then sound, like sight, has added a third dimension, that of depth.

A recording made by two microphones, properly placed and then played back through stereophonic equipment, presents a composite of what each ear hears separately.

In the stereoscope you see the distance between the cow in the foreground and the mountain in the background. In stereophonic sound, you are able to gauge the perspective between the violins downstage, and the trumpets upstage.

"Solid" means depth added to length and width. That is what you mean when you say stereo and the bread of America's entertainment diet. Will stereo follow the same pattern?

Firms like the Heath Company in Benton Harbor, are doing all they can to bring stereo within range of the average pocketbook. A booklet recently published by the mid-west company offers helpful advice to the combination music lover and do-it-yourselfer.

You've read a lot about stereo and maybe you've thought of trying it. The question in your mind is where to start.

You know that stereophonic sound brings the concert hall into your living room, every nuance in the massive thrust of a 100-piece symphony orchestra, the finest shading in the C above high C of a coloratura in her last act aria.

You may wonder how stereo does this. In simplest terms the recording or broadcast technicians substitute two microphones for your two ears at the live performance with one at the left of the stage and one at the right. To reproduce the sound of stereo in your home you must have two properly placed speakers (a subject for more detailed discussion). When you do there you are, front and center at "My Fair Lady," "Traviata," or what you will, with the music beamed, not at your nose as with one speaker (or monophonic) systems, but at both of your ears.

Result is a rich full-dimensional sound that fills your living room. Close your eyes and you would swear Bernstein is not 10 feet away, conducting the New York Philharmonic. Hearing is believing. The least expensive sources of stereo are the local radio stations which occasionally combine their AM and FM facilities for stereo broadcasts.

But the most readily available sources are stereo recordings. And you can name your own time and tune instead of taking radio potluck. The record shops are chock-full of your favorite recordings, all in stereo.

To play your stereo records you need the two speakers mentioned earlier, two amplifiers (a sort of electronic pep pill to help the sound on its trip to the speakers for your changer or turntable). Now we're talking components, as they're called by those in the stereo trade.

Components are the individual pieces of equipment through which the music must travel to come out both here and there. These components are available ready-made or in less expensive assemble-it-yourself kits.

This is where the fun really starts, especially for the born tinkerer.

For one thing, there are dozens of models, finishes, and types of components from which to choose. Expert recommendations are numerous and sometimes conflicting. They do agree, however, that both amplifiers and both speakers should be matched.

So before you get your feet wet be sure to see stereo, hear stereo and talk stereo. Get the advice of fans and experts. Consider the space available for placing or building-in equipment and of course check with your budget.

Once you're bitten by the stereo bug, you'll find yourself babbling about baffles, woofers, tweeters and third channels.

Before long you may have the wife and kids doing it, too. It's pleasantly contagious. Pass the stereo, please.

PHOTOGRAPHY FOR THE AMATEUR

By William H. Schleisner

Recently, a friend showed me a new camera he had purchased to replace the simpler one he had been taking pictures with for several years. This new camera with a better lens and faster exposure than his old one was taking a bit of getting used to.

To stop down a camera quickly and to bring it into focus will take practice. It may be a new camera or switching from one to the other of two or three cameras that a photographer owns. The focusing lever, for example, may be in a different position on different cameras. The more complex a camera is, the longer it will take to become familiar with it.

The instruction booklet that comes with every camera should be read and studied. Never throw this booklet away, for it is a handy reference that may prove useful in the months or years ahead. If the booklet is lost, it is advisable to write the manufacturer and ask for a new one.

After the booklet has been read, it's time to experiment with and test the new camera. Practice until the various adjustments can be done automatically.

It is essential to become familiar with a new camera if you expect to take fast action shots. Unless you can operate it with a minimum of fumbling, many a good picture will be lost.

Familiarity with the camera will enable amateur photographers to take many fine pictures of events and people. There's a right moment to take such pictures and only the alert photographer, who is thoroughly familiar with his camera, will be ready at that moment.

Worn Tires Contribute To Traffic Accidents

By David Allen

It never pays to drive a car with poor tires. Under today's driving conditions of high-powered automobiles and superhighways, a family is only as safe as the tires on their car.

Before buying new tires, car owners must decide what they want, what to look for and what to expect from new tires. The tire dealer will want to know whether safety at high speeds is wanted; long mileage at normal speeds; a soft, quiet ride; protection from a blowout caused by a dangerous bruise, or puncture sealing tires.

No single tire can offer all these features, so the driver must decide which tire will best fit his needs. The age of the car also must be taken into consideration. So also should be the type of road usually driven on, how many different people are likely to drive the car and, if tires are for a station wagon, how much of a load is normally carried.

All tire manufacturers make more than one grade of tire. However, price is not the basis on which to buy. Often, the bargain tire will prove to be the most expensive.

When replacing tires on a car that is two or three years old, the new ones should be at least equivalent in quality to the original tires. This means purchasing what is known as a first line tire.

Premium tires are more expensive than first line tires and offer the "plus protection" of extra strength nylon cords, puncture sealing or special treads.

For the second car that is used only to run to the station or for shopping around town, a cheaper grade of tire may be used. These tires should not be on cars driven on highways where excessive speed is necessary. They just won't stand up to this.

A new tire, announced recently by one firm, is only 10 per cent higher in price than the first line tire but considerably less than the premium grade. It has a new, wider and deeper tread design, nylon cords, wider tread buttresses and a newly developed rubber compound that results in a soft tread without sacrificing wear.

These characteristics practically eliminate tire squeal and road hum. Hundreds of gripping sections in the zigzag design of the tread, spaced alternately, provide high skid resistance.

Play Area Means Lots of Fun For Neighborhood Youngsters

By ANN JERMYN

A play area on the property may mean a fenced-in spot with room for a sandbox and digging in the dirt, or a jungle gym and a slide, or a badminton court and a basketball hoop. The size and the equipment for the play yard depend on the ages of the children and the preference of the adults for games.

The area that is first enclosed with chicken wire or snow fencing for little children to play safely may be enlarged and the equipment changed every five years or so. This first play yard may be only a corner of the property about 10 by 20 feet.

It should, of course, be within sight from some window, probably one in the kitchen, so that someone can keep an eye on the youngsters.

After the sandbox stage comes the jungle gym and the slide and, above all, some place to climb. If the temporary fencing then is replaced by a baffle or two, two things are accomplished. The baffles are an improvement over the fencing and also will provide a place for youngsters to climb.

Probably at this stage, the play space should be increased, for little boys will go through a stage of wanting to pitch a tent and both boys and girls may enjoy a playhouse for several years.

Then comes the game age and space for croquet, badminton, shuffleboard or other games that may also attract adults. This is the time when the play yard really needs enlargement. It's time now, too, for benches which might serve two purposes.

First, they're a place to rest between rounds and, second, if the seat is the cover of a chest, it can be used for storing equipment for games.

A swing is enjoyed by all ages. The rope swing can be hung from a branch of a sturdy tree or from a support of iron pipes. Similar swings suspended from metal link chains can be purchased as well as the support from which to hang them. A hammock or a two-seater swing will be enjoyed by oldersters, too.

Some shade is appreciated by all who use the play space. If there's no tree nearby, then consider planting a fast-growing sort at the edge of the play yard. A red-bud, a honey or a moraine locust will grow practically everywhere and are sound selections.

The first small play yard probably will be covered with grass. To maintain it and to thicken it, sow a sports turf mixture of lawn seed in spring and fall wherever there are thin spots. Grass is a fine surface for many games and for the running done by youngsters as well as for their climbing and swinging equipment.

A paved surface is preferable for wheel toys and, later on, for some games. Grading for proper drainage is important for both grass and other surfacing. It's important that puddles don't stand for a couple of days after every rain and that the surface dries quickly.

The CITY MANAGER'S CORNER

By Al Glassford

One of the techniques many City Managers use to help coordinate municipal services and maintain them at a high level is a periodic meeting of department heads. There is nothing unique about this technique, nor is it a new idea.

In the case of our city, the manager calls the meeting, and the people who attend are department heads and other administrative personnel. Generally, these "cabinet" meetings include the director of public safety, Kenneth Fisher; the superintendent of public works, Joseph Bida; the treasurer - assessor, Kenneth Way; the city clerk - accountant, Joseph Near; the supervisor of planning and engineering, Stanford Besse; the building inspector, Charles Thompson; my administrative assistant, John Deppen, and, of course, the city manager.

In the past, we have been meeting about once a month, but not on a regular schedule. In the future, however, we plan to meet regularly the Friday before each commission meeting. We assemble in the Commission chambers or longer, depending upon the amount of business that must be discussed. After the formal business is out of the way, the meetings are thrown open for a general discussion of anything the department heads may think is important.

This may include anything from personnel problems to procedural difficulties. One of the items we talked about recently was a change in our hospitalization insurance program. Another topic was the course in supervisory methods the city is now enrolled in.

These conferences are valuable because they provide a rare opportunity for all department heads to meet face to face with one another at the same time. This face to face contact is perhaps the most beneficial aspect of these meetings. In this way, we develop the interdepartmental cooperation that is so necessary for a smoothly operating municipality.

Each department learns what the others are doing, the department heads learn one another's problems and help to solve them with suggestions and encouragement. Often the problems in one department exist in others, or in some cases, they had arisen in some other department earlier. This interchange of ideas and experiences may prevent some of the problem situations from ever arising.

Another benefit from these conferences is that they enable the manager to get a clear picture of how his organization is running. These meetings, in effect, provide additional eyes and ears which help evaluate the municipal operations and often the department heads advise the manager by suggesting changes within each department.

Sometimes a department head is too close to his own work to see some of the areas where an improvement could be made. Consequently, these conferences enable him to see the woods as well as the trees. In other words, the department head is able to appreciate the operations of the city as a whole, as well as his own individual area of work.

Inasmuch as it is our goal to provide better service for the entire community, we feel these bi-weekly department head conferences are useful, and thus should be an integral part of our municipal operations.

Parking Errors Show Lack of 'Horse' Sense

Old Dobbin had to wear blinders because he was scared on the highway. But an automobile doesn't have the horse sense even to be cautious.

That's why the driver has to substitute his own brains. It isn't always a good substitute — judging from the accident records.

One item of horse sense is to leave a parking place at the curb cautiously. Yet "improper start from a parked position" is one of the more common traffic violations.

charged to the "Two-Lane Trap," the Unwanted Driver whose misbehavior is the target of current poster campaign sponsored by the Michigan Association of Chiefs of Police.

How should a driver leave a parking place? Essentially, the procedure is a matter of common sense and vigilance. The parked driver should look backward and ahead and keep looking. He has no right of way over moving traffic.

Driving authorities suggest that the motorist should always move his car out slowly, cautiously — "signaling by position" so that oncoming drivers know what he is planning. It's a good idea also to give a left turn signal.

Angle parking is still found in some cities where streets are wide or where the traffic engineer's advice is not accepted. Angle parking increases the number of parking spaces available but also increases the parking accident frequency because of the sight limitations to both the parker and the oncoming driver. Even when it is accomplished without accident, angle parking often causes additional congestion when traffic is already heavy.

Many people have solved their curb space parking problems by avoiding such parking facilities whenever possible. They do their shopping at the shopping centers which provide the easier and more adequate parking facilities.

Off-street parking lots also provide better parking solutions in the city business sections.

Because such parking lots are often of considerable size, and are usually not policed, a kind of no-man's-land has come into being. Traffic in such parking lots is generally heavy in volume but slow in speed which results in minor collisions and property damage accidents but not often in personal injuries. But there is still no reason why they should occur — except that drivers ignore common sense.

Parking lots at shopping centers are usually private property. Neither the state legislatures nor the courts have entirely clarified the role of traffic enforcement agencies on them.

Police are specifically authorized by the state laws to make arrests for such serious offenses as drunken, reckless, and hit-run driving on shopping lots. These however, are of minor occurrence. Increasingly, cities are passing ordinances to make other portions of the vehicle laws apply to parking areas open to the public.

Insurance companies settle claims on the basis that normal driving patterns should be followed on parking lots. Both the law and common sense require that a driver move well out of the traffic lane if he must stop along the highway. On Michigan's limited access roads, stopping is permitted only for emergencies and then the car must be moved off the roadway. This is a safety precaution because oncoming drivers cannot readily detect the stalled car until too late.

Pennsylvania Turnpike authorities report numerous crashes at night even when vehicles are parked well off the roadway. Oncoming drivers who may be slightly drowsy or simply not alert enough, sometimes unthinkingly steer for the red tail lights they see ahead, without realizing until too late that the vehicle they are aiming at is off the road and not moving.

Such crashes are so common that authorities advise motorists never to let anyone sit in a car parked at night near such high-speed roads. If the car must be stopped for repairs, the passengers should be directed to remain some distance away — both from the car and from the edge of the roadway. Flares or other warning lights should also be placed some distance to the rear and at the side of the stalled vehicle to warn oncoming drivers.

When getting out of a parked car, passengers and driver should use the right-hand door. The driver who pushes his door open on the traffic side is not only endangering himself unnecessarily but is setting up a potential accident for oncoming drivers who may have to stop suddenly or swerve out of their lane of travel to avoid the hazard.

Double parking creates a similar hazard. Errors and violations in parking contribute to the accident records and to the income of garages, hospitals and funeral homes. Horsepower, once again, is no substitute for horse sense.

Compact Comet Makes Debut Thursday at West Brothers

West Brothers, Inc., 534 Forest Ave., will open its doors this Thursday to a new sized car, the Comet.

Wilbert West predicts the highly-styled economy car will have a great public appeal. He reported that his dealership operations are being re-aligned to prepare for the anticipated high volume of Comet sales.

"We believe that the Comet is an excellent addition to our product line and will find many proud owners in our area," West added.

The new car, with a longer wheelbase and smoother ride than other smaller cars, still is two to three feet shorter than standard size cars.

It has the clean styling of more expensive cars and features a horizontal anodized aluminum grille flanked by dual headlights.

The Comet series is one of the widest in the new economy field. It includes a two-door sedan, a four-door sedan, a two-door station wagon and a four-door station wagon. Each body type can be purchased as a standard model or with optional trim which includes window moldings, contour seats, more luxurious upholstery, carpeting (in passenger cars) and bright trim door moldings.

The suggested retail price of the Comet two-door sedan is $1,998, exclusive of state and local taxes or delivery charges. This is less than 10 models of the other American-made six-passenger compact cars in this field. The station wagon prices begin at $2,310.

The new car features a welded unitized body. The only bolt-on members are the front fenders which were designed this way for quick, cheaper replacement.

Because of weight savings of more than 1250 pounds, compared to a typical standard-sized car, the Comet gives excellent performance as well as fuel economy. A Comet driver can expect to get up to 28 miles to the gallon.

Comet passenger cars can seat a family of six and have 26.8 cu. ft. vacation-size luggage compartments. Cargo space in the station wagon is 76.2 cu. ft., equivalent to a closet eight by five by nearly two feet deep.

Although powered by an economical 90 hp engine, the Comet achieves excellent performance because of weight reduction and design simplification. Buyers of the new car have the choice of either a specially-designed three-speed synchromesh transmission or a two-speed automatic transmission.

Livonia Branch of First Federal Cozy in Modern New Home

BANK VAULT at First Federal's new Livonia Branch Office passes inspection conducted by Branch Manager Donald Klein. The vault is centrally located behind the row of teller booths.

Trio of Tellers 'Pleased' With 1st Federal's Move

The three tellers at the new Livonia Branch of First Federal Savings and Loan Assn. are solid veterans of the local office in 1957. One is also well-known as Livonia's Director of Public Safety. Loree "Dolly" Maiwurm, the Livonia public official is also the teller who has been the longest with the local branch. She went to work for First Federal here in 1956.

Married, Mrs. Maiwurm gained national prominence last fall when she was appointed Livonia's Public Safety Director. She, her husband, and their 11-year-old son, Robert, live at 9840 Westmore. They have resided in Livonia since 1954. Her Motor Co. here.

Dolly was "pleased about the move."

The other two tellers, Mrs. Yvonne Miller and Mrs. Pat Hess, have both been at the local branch about the same length of time. They joined First Federal in 1957.

Mrs. Miller, who is originally from Colorado, has lived in Detroit for 14 years. Her present residence is at 7419 Memorial. She and her husband have three children, Gordon, Jack and Joyce.

Mrs. Hess lives at 12315 Newburgh Rd. in Livonia. Originally from Detroit, Pat, as she prefers to be called, was "excited about the move." She has been with First Federal since early 1957.

She attended the Detroit Business Institute where she studied the operation of comptometer machines and learned typing. She previously had worked in the Bell Telephone Office in Plymouth.

SAILORS BICYCLE HOME
DEWEY, Okla. (UPI) — Upon their discharge from the Navy, Merrett E. Ashcraft and George E. Frenchman, both 22, stepped aboard a couple of bicycles that were waiting for them in Los Angeles and pedaled home to Dewey.

Ashcraft and Frenchman had decided to make the trip, which took them 22 days, while aboard a destroyer in the Pacific. So they bought two racers in Hong Kong and had them shipped to a friend in Los Angeles for keeping until their arrival.

A tough job is a collection of all those easy ones you kept meaning to do.

The only clouds around a pair of newlyweds are the ones underneath their feet.

Many things are not what they seem—like that little guy at the end of the bar who teaches judo.

Wisconsin was the first state to have a mandatory primary election system.

First Federal Savings and Loan Assn., of Detroit, moved its Livonia Branch—lock, stock and money—into modern new quarters here last weekend.

A six-year-occupant of Shelden Shopping Center prior to the move, the Livonia Branch Office of First Federal is now located at the corner of Merriman and Plymouth Rds.

The re-location was brought about solely to provide First Federal's Livonia patrons with swifter and more convenient service. The new branch office is less than one mile east on Plymouth Rd. from the old headquarters here.

Branch Manager Donald R. Klein, 32, supervised the move of office equipment, furniture and miscellaneous supplies last weekend. Klein called upon the Livonia police to safeguard the transfer of the branch office's actual cash funds.

By Monday morning at its regular opening time of 9:30, the local First Federal Branch was in full operation at its new home, having encountered no delays in making the switch. Tellers greeted customers as usual, despite the excitement and enthusiasm caused by the move.

An Open House, to mark the occasion, is planned for the new office, the street address of which is 31441 Plymouth Rd. The Open House, which starts Friday, will last until the following Friday.

The modern, new office will please the eye of any critic. Decorated throughout in bright matching pastel colors, it features a glass-encased main lobby complete with acoustic-tile ceiling and soft background music.

Lightweight spun-glass draperies hang handsomely from the windows. A smaller glassed entrance-way leads directly into the roomy main lobby.

Illuminating the spacious business area are concealed ceiling lights.

The four teller windows, finished in oak wood, divide the main lobby from the business area. The teller counter tops boast of shiny black glass deal plates, as they are termed in the trade.

A massive cash vault is centered behind the four teller windows.

Klein's managerial office is a carpeted portion of the business area, adjacent to the row of teller booths and separated from the main lobby by aluminum railing.

A small, compact kitchen, complete with refrigerator, cooking range and sink, is nestled in the rear of the building as an added convenience for employees at lunch time or coffee break.

A big feature of the New Branch Office is its pair of drive-in service windows, one at the east side of the building and another in the rear. A cement drive encircles the building and a spacious parking area is adjacent to it.

A convenience from the old office is the series of automatic National cash registers, which provide instantaneous branch office balancing on each transaction.

The automatic registers, used by the tellers on all business, not only keep a current branch balance but also punch out a coded tape containing a record of the various daily money transactions.

Periodically throughout the day the information on the tapes is transmitted to First Federal's main Detroit office where an electronic Univac computer receives the data.

The computer in turn maintains a balance on all of First Federal's 13 branch offices in the Detroit and suburban area. As a result, each morning as the various branches open for business at 9:30, the overall balance of the entire First Federal Assn. is up-to-date.

Klein was enthused about the move. He told how he and other First Federal officers had conducted informal surveys to assure themselves that the move and the new location would enhance both the Livonia Branch and the Association as a whole.

Previously at Shelden Center, the Livonia Branch had leased its office. Now it occupies a building owned by the First Federal Assn. itself.

Although the new facilities, with the exception of the addition of the drive-in window service, are essentially the same as in the previous headquarters, it is believed by officers of the association that greater efficiency will result, both for patrons and employees.

A larger bank vault is among several innovations which will ease the chores of the employees. The drive-in service and the immediately adjacent parking area are additional considerations for customers of the Livonia First Federal Branch.

Builder of the modern one-story building now housing First Federal here is Jacob Strobl, of Detroit. It is brick facade with a large expanse of glass further boosts its eye-appeal.

So that passers-by won't mistake it for the dairy store which once stood there, a tall First Federal Savings and Loan Assn. sign stands guard at the entrance to the front door.

The surfaced parking lot, the drive-in windows, the soft music and the efficient service of local First Federal Assn. tellers and employees should encourage much activity at the new Branch Office here at Plymouth and Merriman Rds.

AUTOMATIC CASH registers ease the workload of the three tellers, and at the same time maintain automatic branch balances on each business transaction. Here, Mrs. Pat Hess, a teller, and Tom McKeown, assistant manager, check the operation of one of the registers.

Open House Features $1 Million in Cash

Highlighting the start of the big Open House celebration, marking the opening of the new Livonia Branch of First Federal, will be the display of $1 million in cash.

The heap of money—in bills of all denominations—will be placed on view for the public from 9:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. on Friday, March 18, only.

That same day, from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m., a number of well-known radio and television personalities will be on hand to greet guests and visitors. Included will be Bud Guest, WJR's "man from the sunny side of the street."

Others are Charlie Park and Dave Olson, also from WJR, William Fyffe and Britton Temby of the WWJ radio news staff, and CKLW radio disc jockeys Toby David, Bud Davies and Joe Van.

In addition to free refreshments, the First Federal Open House here will feature souvenir gifts for all visitors. The Open House, which begins Friday morning, lasts until the following Friday evening.

1st Federal Branch Manager Rises Fast

Vice-president and manager of the Livonia Branch of First Federal Savings and Loan Assn., 31441 Plymouth Road, is Donald R. Klein, a Navy veteran and a native Detroit.

Klein, 32, lives at 23754 Richland with his wife and three children, Peter, 6, Lisa, 5, and Julie, 3. He has lived in Livonia since 1954.

Since joining First Federal in 1953 as an employee in the savings department in Detroit, Klein has worked up to acting manager and then, since January, 1956, manager of the local branch.

He supervised the complicated planning of the move and the actual transfer of funds, furniture and equipment from the old offices in Shelden Shopping Center to the new site at Plymouth and Merriman Roads.

Klein received a Bachelors degree in accounting from the University of Detroit in 1951. Since then he has continued

Over 6,000 Save At Local Branch

The local First Federal office currently services more than 6,000 savings accounts. Branch Manager Donald Klein explained Monday.

He added that the entire First Federal Savings and Loan Assn., of Detroit, comprises 13 branch offices in the metropolitan and suburban area.

Starting with First Federal in January, 1959, McKeown lives at 1599 Livernois in Detroit. He has been at the Livonia Branch office since last October.

McKeown served from March, 1956, until February, 1958, in the U. S. Army. Unmarried, he attends night school at both Dearborn Community College and the University of Detroit, working for a degree in Business Administration.

He is a 1955 graduate of Salesian High, Detroit.

Featherbed Is Lumpy

Internal economic conditions continue to deal death to American newspapers in a time of great prosperity.

In Portland, Ore., stereotypers struck, and the other crafts honored the picket lines.

The Oregon Journal and the Portland Oregonian both were involved, and temporarily published one combined edition in a single plant.

The union's charge of unfair labor practice before the N.L.R.B. didn't stick.

So, one Sunday night ten trucks belonging to the newspapers on two lots exploded.

The union asserted its innocence, the publishers had no reason to blow up their own trucks—which leaves us puzzled for an explanation.

Did those trucks commit suicide?

Or is this really one more instance of contempt for law and human decency so typical in labor disputes in our time?

'If Your Name Is Edgar'

By ANN REYNOLDS

To the ancient Anglo-Saxons a name such as "Edgar" must have seemed a good omen.

when names were formed, a spear was a familiar and useful object. The name sounded "Edgar" in Old English.

There was one Edgar, King of the English, in the 10th century, and about him the poet Michael Drayton, in his "Polyblion," a description of England, wrote "At Chester, while he lived at more than kingly charge Eight tributary kings they rowed him in his barge," this was a homage paid to Edgar by eight vassal kings, among them Kenneth, King of the Scots, and Malcolm, King of Cumberland.

Edgar's reign was peaceful, and the historians recorded little about him. He was reproached with having too great a love for foreigners and foreign customs.

Parents belonging to the royal house of which Edgar was a scion loved to pick names beginning with the initial name word "ead", just as today some mothers and fathers pick names beginning with the same letter of the alphabet for all their offspring.

The name "Edgar" had not been used much until it was revived, in the last century, by Sir Walter Scott and other writers. In his novel "The Bride of Lammermoor" Scott created a Scottish nobleman called Edgar of Ravenswood.

One of the strangest and most interesting American poets and writers in the first half of the past century was named "Edgar"; Edgar Allan Poe. Brilliant and hapless, his tales mirror a fondness for the terrifying, the occult, and the weird.

Want to know about some other name? Write to Dr. Reynolds, care of this paper. For a personal reply enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Always print the name requested.

How's Business?

Why Stocks Are Sliding

By ROGER W. BABSON not a week old when stock prices embarked on a six week decline. The subsequent rally was of little comfort, as the market rebounded by an expansion of buying sufficient to indicate outright optimism.

Moreover, the Dow Jones Rail Average remained poised for a downside penetration which would confirm the existence of a bear market for stocks. Why this sudden waning of confidence in the face of good - to - fair business for 1960 as a whole and an anticipated decade of economic and social progress?

In the first place, investors are shifting their investment emphasis toward bonds rather than equities. This is diverting investment funds away from the stock market.

Secondly, the post-steel-strike upsurge in business and profits has passed its zenith. Hence, excess productive capacities in many basic industries, both domestic and world-wide, may again bring pressure to bear upon price and

This Inflation Is Not So Old

It was hardly noticed, but even in the days of the earliest Americans prices were rising. Prices have been going up for nearly two and a half centuries, according to a study by President Eisenhower's Cabinet Committee on Price Stability for Economic Growth.

Over so long a period, such a rate of price increase doesn't seem so bad. But there's a catch. While it took 200 years for prices to double - up to a quarter century ago - they have doubled again in the past 25 years.

In other words, inflation - if you could call it that - crept at a snail's pace for two centuries - then flashed ahead at a speed eight times faster, like going from ten to 80

Your Handwriting Is Clue About You

BY LUCILLE WILLIAMS

Dear Miss Williams:

I find your column of handwriting analysis very interesting, and I am most concerned about what type of a person I am.

Thanks so much, Marjorie S.

Dear Marjorie: You certainly can take on responsibility. You like it, handle it well and show good organization ability as well.

You are an emotional person with sensitive feelings. There is a tendency to squeeze your thoughts and not be as open-minded as you should be.

There is a desire to stand out and do things well. You dislike interruptions, can be aggravated easily and will often "put off 'til tomorrow."

You are practical-minded with some resentment. You are quite determined in what you do.

Dear Miss Williams: Please give me an analysis of my handwriting. I am very interested in this particular type of character analysis.

Dear G.H.S.: You have a deep-thinking mind, penetrating and analytical.

You appreciate the arts, are cultural-minded. There is future mindedness here too with a definite purpose in mind and a very determined attitude to carry through.

Dear Miss Williams: I read your column each week and find it interesting. I would like to know what my writing shows. Sincerely, M. A. G.

Dear M. A. G.: You're more inclined to be calm and open-minded with a sense of good judgment rather than emotional and sensitive. You can take criticism.

You are an opportunist, you make use of chances to better yourself and will grasp at personal advancement. There is good imagination starting but not always a good finish.

You are constructive with your hands and possess a certain amount of creative ability.

A little resentment creeps in on occasion, you do not like imposition.

Your birthdays have come and you're not here. All we can see is your vacant chair.
It seems so long since you went away.
We've missed you so much every day.
While we still have our sorrow to bear:
But some glad day, we know not when,
We will all be together again.
Our dear Lord will be there too.
And we will praise him for ever with you.

Editorial

Featherbed Is Lumpy

Internal economic conditions continue to deal death to American newspapers in a time of great prosperity. Publishers who try to overcome inefficiency and seek survival through modernization are finding the road a rocky one.

In Portland, Ore., stereotypers struck, and the other crafts honored the picket lines. The issue was a new machine which allowed one stereotyper to do the work which had required four. The stereotypers didn't mind the labor-saving machine, but wanted to keep the unneeded three men on the job.

The Oregon Journal and the Portland Oregonian both were involved, and temporarily published one combined edition in a single plant.

The union's charge of unfair labor practice before the N.L.R.B. didn't stick.

So, one Sunday night ten trucks belonging to the newspapers on two lots exploded. Police found dynamite and a fizzled fuse in an eleventh truck, and cannily "suspected sabotage," according to the United Press International report.

The union asserted its innocence, the publishers had no reason to blow up their own trucks—which leaves us puzzled for an explanation.

Did those trucks commit suicide?

Or is this really one more instance of contempt for law and human decency so typical in labor disputes in our time?

'If Your Name Is Edgar'

By ANN REYNOLDS

To the ancient Anglo-Saxons a name such as "Edgar" must have seemed a good omen. It is made up from words meaning "rich, happy" and "spear", and in the long passed down of humanity when names were formed, a spear was a familiar and useful object. The name sounded "Eadgar" in Old English. Other appellations, too, had "ead" as their first syllable; Edward, Edmund and Edwin are some of them. For all these we use now, among friends and within the family the short versions "Ed" and "Eddie".

There was one Edgar, King of the English, in the 10th century, and about him the poet Michael Drayton, in his "Polyolbion", a description of England, wrote "At Chester, while he lived at more than kingly charge Eight tributary kings they rowed him in his barge", this was a homage paid to Edgar by eight vassal kings, among them Kenneth, King of the Scots, and Malcolm, King of Cumberland.

Edgar's reign was peaceful, and the historians recorded little about him. He was reproached with having too great a love for foreigners and foreign customs.

Parents belonging to the royal house of which Edgar was a scion loved to pick names beginning with the initial name word "ead", just as today some mothers and fathers pick names beginning with the same letter of the alphabet for all their offspring. You'll find families where all members have the identical initial, and such names, for instance, as John and Janice, Joe and Julie.

The name "Edgar" had not been used much until it was revived, in the last century, by Sir Walter Scott and other writers. In his novel "The Bride of Lammermoor" Scott created a Scottish nobleman called Edgar of Ravenswood. Edgar falls in love with beautiful Lucy Ashton having saved her from a wild bull by shooting the animal. But their love comes to a tragic end. In slightly altered form the story appears in Gaetano Donizetti's opera "Lucia di Lammermoor", and this way the name "Edgar" came to the attention of opera audiences in many lands.

One of the strangest and most interesting American poets and writers in the first half of the past century was named "Edgar"; Edgar Allan Poe. Brilliant and hapless, his tales mirror a fondness for the terrifying, the occult, and the weird. They are captivating, and full of dramatic power. Poe died at forty, a victim of alcoholism. He said about himself that, after the death of his wife Virginia, a child in her early teens, he became insane with interludes of horrible sanity.

Want to know about some other name? Write to Dr. Reynolds, care of this paper. For a personal reply enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Always print the name requested.

Your Handwriting Is Clue About You

BY LUCILLE WILLIAMS

Dear Miss Williams: I find your column of handwriting analysis very interesting, and I am most concerned about what type of person I am.

Thanks so much, Marjorie S.

Dear Marjorie: You certainly can take on responsibility. You like it, handle it well and show good organization ability as well. Your decisions are emphatic and not likely to be changed.

You are an emotional person with sensitive feelings. There is a tendency to squeeze your thoughts and not be as open-minded as you should be.

There is a desire to stand out and do things well. You dislike interruptions, can be aggravated easily and will often "put off 'til tomorrow."

You are practical-minded with some resentment. You are quite determined in what you do.

There is a desire for physical activity.

Dear Miss Williams: Please give me an analysis of my handwriting. I am very interested in this particular type of character analysis. Thank you, G. H. S.

Dear G.H.S.: You have a deep-thinking mind, penetrating and analytical.

You appreciate the arts, are cultural-minded. There is future mindedness here too with a definite purpose in mind and a very determined attitude to carry through.

You are active, like variation and find them often conflicting.

There is persistence here and a flair for humor. You are a generous person but also thrifty. There is sensitivity to criticism.

Dear Miss Williams: I read your column each week and find it interesting. I would like to know what my writing shows.

Sincerely, M. A. G.

Dear M. A. G.: You're more inclined to be calm and open-minded with a sense of good judgment rather than emotional and sensitive. You can take criticism.

You are an opportunist, you make use of chances to better yourself and will grasp at personal advancement. There is good imagination starting but not always a good finish. There is wasted imagination, not completing a good thought that could materialize.

You have a good sense of organizing your routine tasks and work to your best advantage.

You are constructive with your hands and possess a certain amount of creative ability.

A little resentment creeps in on occasion, you do not like imposition.

How's Business?

Why Stocks Are Sliding

By ROGER W. BABSON not a week old when stock prices embarked on a six week decline. The subse-

This Inflation Is Not So Old

It was hardly noticed, but even in the days of the earliest Americans prices were rising. Prices have been going up for nearly two and a half centuries, according to a study by President Eisenhower's Cabinet Committee on Price Stability for Economic Growth. The historic rise averages out to only one-half of one percent a year, for the last 240 years.

Over so long a period, such a rate of price increase doesn't seem so bad. But there's a catch. While it took 200 years for prices to double — up to a quarter century ago — they have doubled again in the past 25 years.

In other words, inflation — if you could call it that — crept at a snail's pace for two centuries — then flashed ahead at a speed eight times faster, like going from ten to 80 miles an hour.

What's more, said the report, the price declines of the past — usually following wars — are not taking place any more and "rises in the price level are now permanent and cumulative in a way they were not in the preceding two centuries. . . . It is clear that public policies for combating inflation must be more energetic in the future than they have been in the past quarter of a century."

quent rally was of little comfort, as the market rebound was not accompanied by an expansion of buying sufficient to indicate outright optimism.

Moreover, the Dow Jones Rail Average remained poised for a downside penetration which would confirm the existence of a bear market for stocks. Why this sudden waning of confidence in the face of good - to - fair business for 1960 as a whole and an anticipated decade of economic and social progress?

In the first place, investors are shifting their investment emphasis toward bonds rather than equities. This is diverting investment funds away from the stock market. Since fundamental credit conditions are still on the tight side, there is fear that a further rise in interest rates may accentuate this shift.

Secondly, the post-steel-strike upsurge in business and profits has passed its zenith. Hence, excess productive capacities in many basic industries, both domestic and world-wide, may again bring pressure to bear upon price and profit structures. This suggests a period of consolidation until demand can grow up to the plethora of supplies.

It does not, however, imply a stock market panic. Economic stabilizers introduced into our economy during the past three decades are designed to promote a favorable economic environment. It could mean that unless another "hot" or "cold" war creates supply shortages and rekindles inflation pressures, periods of stock market declines may overshadow advances for a while.

Hence, in the early stages of the Surging Sixties, investment policies should emphasize the building up of investment funds during market rallies to prepare for bargain opportunities in growth industries later on. Investors can thus reap the maximum profit potentials of this era and wait patiently for the natural growth forces to reach fruition.

South Africa's gold mines employed 337,284 native workers in April, 1958, compared with 343,240 in the same month of 1957.

From BILL DUNN, Manager

Even with snow on the ground, many of us are starting to think about and plan our coming vacations.

Be sure you complete your plans by selecting those locations along the way where you will be stopping over night . . . Now.

You can be assured of these accommodations by calling for reservations before the rush starts.

SMOKE SIGNALS were a fast and easy way for Indians to talk across the hills and lakes of Michigan, but they had their limitations. For one thing, the man sending the signal couldn't say anything beyond a pre-arranged message. Suppose, for example, a hunter told his wife that one puff of smoke would mean that he'd be coming home for dinner and two puffs meant that he wouldn't be home. If he was late, or if he wanted to bring a friend along, there was no way he could warn his wife! These smoke signals might have been our first long distance communication, but for speed and convenience, nothing can beat today's telephone call.

Editorial

Featherbed Is Lumpy

Internal economic conditions continue to deal death to American newspapers in a time of great prosperity.

The union's charge of unfair labor practice before the N.L.R.B. didn't stick.

So, one Sunday night ten trucks belonging to the newspapers on two lots exploded.

The union asserted its innocence, the publishers had no reason to blow up their own trucks.

Did those trucks commit suicide?

Or is this really one more instance of contempt for law and human decency so typical in labor disputes in our time?

In Portland, Ore., stereotypers struck, and the other crafts honored the picket lines.

The Oregon Journal and the Portland Oregonian both were involved, and temporarily published one combined edition in a single plant.

'If Your Name Is Edgar'

By ANN REYNOLDS

When names were formed, a spear was a familiar and useful object. The name sounded "Edgar" in Old English.

These we use now, among friends and within the family the short versions "Ed" and "Eddie".

There was one Edgar, King of the English, in the 10th century, and about him the poet Michael Drayton, in his "Polyolbion", a description of England, wrote "At Chester, while he lived at more than kingly charge Eight tributary kings they rowed him in his barge".

Edgar's reign was peaceful, and the historians recorded little about him.

Parents belonging to the royal house of which Edgar was a scion loved to pick names beginning with the initial name word "ead", just as today some mothers and fathers pick names beginning with the same letter of the alphabet for all their offspring.

The name "Edgar" had not been used much until it was revived, in the last century, by Sir Walter Scott and other writers. In his novel "The Bride of Lammermoor" Scott created a Scottish nobleman called Edgar of Ravenswood.

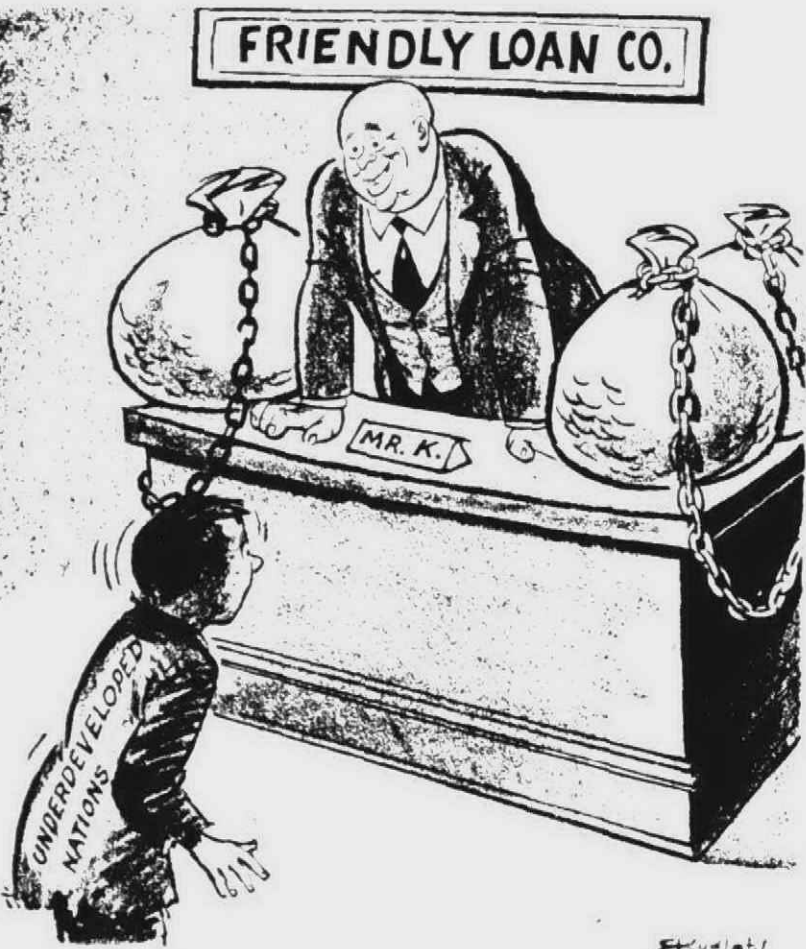

One of the strangest and most interesting American poets and writers in the first half of the past century was named "Edgar"; Edgar Allan Poe.

Want to know about some other name? Write to Dr. Reynolds, care of this paper.

Your Handwriting Is Clue About You

BY LUCILLE WILLIAMS

Dear Miss Williams: I find your column of handwriting analysis very interesting, and I am most concerned about what type of a person I am.

Thanks so much, Marjorie S.

Dear Marjorie: You certainly can take on responsibility. You like it, handle it well and show good organization ability as well.

You are an emotional person with sensitive feelings. There is a tendency to squeeze your thoughts and not be as open-minded as you should be.

There is a desire to stand out and do things well. You dislike interruptions, can be aggravated easily and will often "put off 'til tomorrow".

You are practical-minded with some resentment. You are quite determined in what you do.

There is a desire for physical activity.

Dear Miss Williams: Please give me an analysis of my handwriting. I am very interested in this particular type of character analysis.

Thank you, G. H. S.

Dear G.H.S.: You have a deep-thinking mind, penetrating and analytical.

You appreciate the arts, are cultural-minded. There is future mindedness here, too, with a definite purpose in mind and a very determined attitude to carry through.

You are active, like variation and find them often conflicting.

There is persistence here and a flair for humor. You are a generous person but also thrifty. There is sensitivity to criticism.

Dear Miss Williams: I read your column each week and find it interesting. I would like to know what

How's Business?

Why Stocks Are Sliding

By ROGER W. BABSON

The long-awaited Gold-Sixties decade was not a week old when stock prices embarked on a six-week decline. The subsequent rally was of little comfort, as the market rebound was not accompanied by an expansion of buying sufficient to indicate outright optimism.

profit structures. This suggests a period of consolidation until demand can grow up to the plethora of supplies.

It does not, however, imply a stock market panic. Economic stabilizers introduced into our economy during the past three decades are designed to promote a favorable economic environment. It could mean that unless another "hot" or "cold" war creates supply shortages and rekindles its inflation pressures, periods of stock market declines may overshadow advances for a while.

Hence, in the early stages of the Surging Sixties, investment policies should emphasize the building up of investment funds during market rallies to prepare for bargain opportunities in growth industries later on. Investors can thus reap the maximum profit potentials of this era and wait patiently for the natural growth forces to reach fruition.

South Africa's gold mines employed 337,204 native workers in April, 1958, compared with 343,240 in the same month of 1957.

This Inflation Is Not So Old

It was hardly noticed, but even in the days of the earliest Americans prices were rising.

Prices have been going up for nearly two and a half centuries, according to a study by President Eisenhower's Cabinet Committee on Price Stability for Economic Growth.

The historic rise averages out to only one-half of one percent a year, for the last 240 years.

Over so long a period, such a rate of price increase doesn't seem so bad. But there's a catch. While it took 200 years for prices to double — up to a quarter century ago — they have doubled again in the past 25 years.

In other words, inflation — if you could call it that — crept at a snail's pace for two centuries — then flashed ahead at a speed eight times faster, like going from ten to 80 miles an hour. What's more, said the report, the price declines of the past — usually following wars — are not taking place any more and "rises in the price level are now permanent and cumulative in a way they were not in the preceding two centuries."

It is clear that public policies for combating inflation must be more energetic in the future than they have been in the past quarter of a century."
