Insurance Agent Mrs. Florence Wood Succumbs

Mrs. Florence L. Wood, owner of an insurance business in Plymouth and widely known through organizations in both Livonia and Plymouth, died at 6:30 p.m. Sunday, July 10 in St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor after a lengthy illness. She was 56.

Following the death of her husband, William Wood, in 1948, Mrs. Wood continued to operate the William A. Wood Insurance Agency on Main St. in Plymouth.

She was a member of the Michigan and Wayne County Associations of Insurance Agents and was secretary-treasurer of the Plymouth Association of Insurance agents from 1953 to 1956. She also belonged to First United

AN HONORARY member of the Little League was the honor conferred last week upon Jimmy Trombley, a cerebral palsy victim. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Trombley, 6505 Beck Rd. Members of the Indians team of the Plymouth Little League presented a baseball autographed by each player to Jimmy. Coach Don Schroeder is shown making the presentation. Jimmy, who is unable to walk, loves baseball and often visits the Little League games.

Sewer Plan Off Boards

Word from Detroit that the State Health Department's ban on new subdivisions in Wayne County may be lifted in the Fall has come as good news to builders, elected officials and many other people in the Plymouth area.

A definite plan has now been advanced by the Board of Public Works of Wayne County to construct new sewers. One section of the County will cost an estimated $17 million.

But while hopes are high that the ban will be lifted by Fall, there are some communities unhappy with the original proposed method of determining its cost and a protest could hold up the entire project.

One of the original division of costs had Plymouth Township paying $425,754 and the City of Plymouth charged $137,445. But further meetings are now being called to work out what is hoped will be a pro-rated shares that will be agreeable to all.

There are 16 cities, villages and townships, plus the Detroit-Wayne County institutions involved in the proposed Rouge Valley Sanitary Sewerage Interceptor. It is planned to charge each by estimating what their population will be by 1980.

Costs do not include bringing the mains and laterals in to the communities, but to just provide the interceptor.

The County Public Works Department, formed just this year to handle the sanitary sewer problem, has asserted that the State Health Department will not permit any new subdivisions or new sewers connected until the bonds for a new system are sold and the contracts let for construction work.

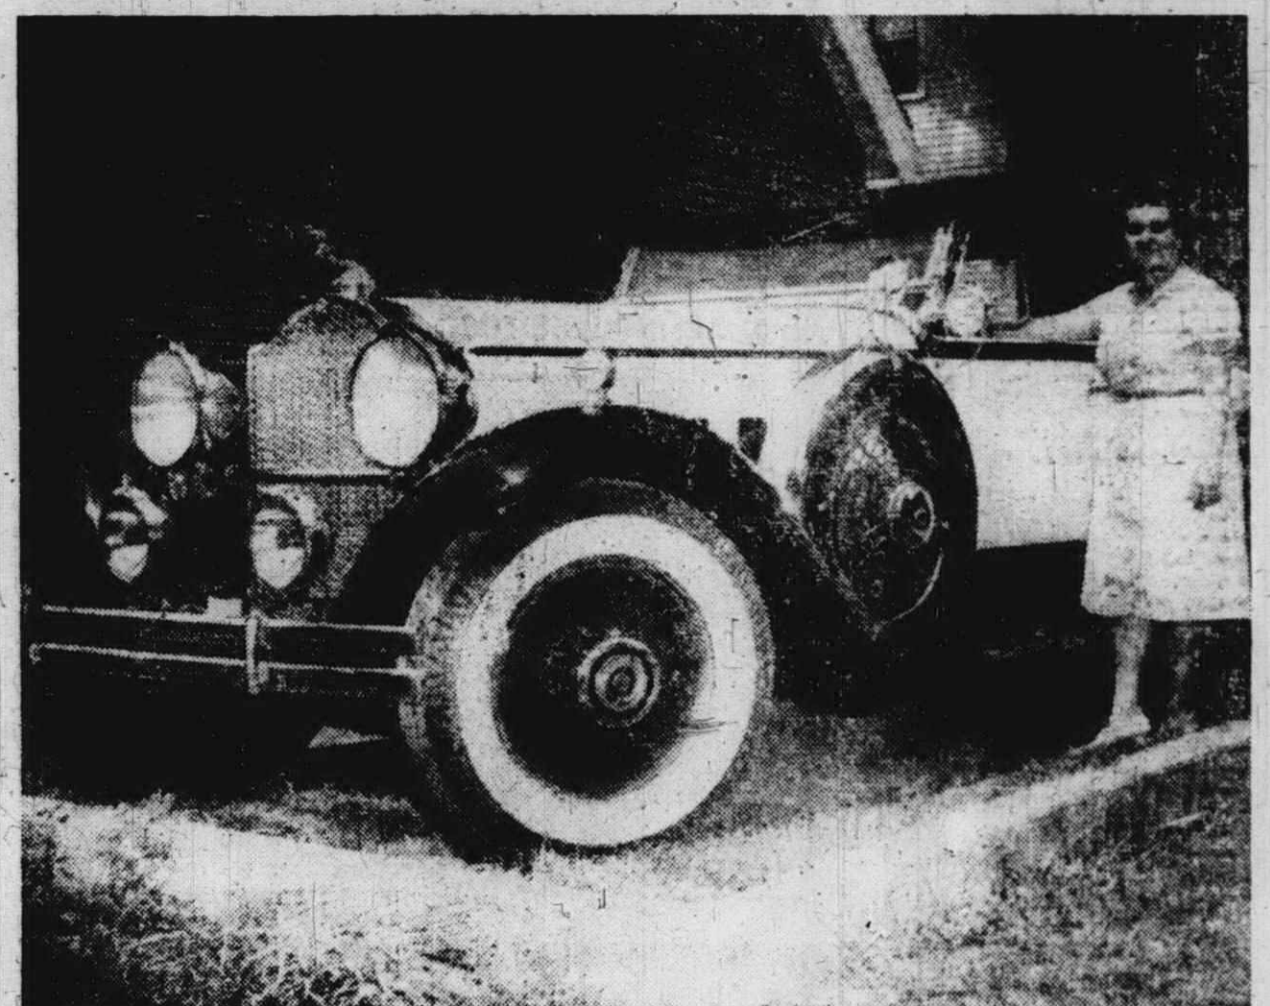

The Board of Public Works is now attempting to draw up contracts for the job between itself and each community. It hopes to have this job completed by Oct. 1.

It has been reported that Wayne and Inkster are not in accord with the plan, feeling that they are being charged far too much for what little population they will gain in the future. Some communities have nearly reached their ultimate population now while some of the more "open" townships probably won't reach their ultimate even by 1980. The costs were based on the 1980 population estimated by the Detroit Regional Metropolitan Planning Commission.

Around Plymouth, there have been several proposed subdivisions being held up because of the ban. Gould Homes, Inc. has a subdivision planned in the City at Ann Arbor Rd. and Shelburne another at Ann Arbor Rd. and Haggerty.

The City of Plymouth has 38 acres of property across from the Burroughs plant on Plymouth Rd. which it wants

STILL A STYLISH car and a winner in the Classic Car competition at Greenfield Village last Saturday is this 1930 Packard roadster owned by Miss Margaret Dunning. It is kept spotless inside and out for shows and is never driven for pleasure. Miss Dunning, only woman to enter a car in the show, has three other classic and antique cars.

Local Woman Classic Car Hobbyist Shows 'em How

By JIM SPONSELLER

It was the thrill of a lifetime last Saturday night for Miss Margaret Dunning of Plymouth when a projector flashed the picture of her 1930 Packard roadster on the screen of the banquet hall at Greenfield Village and announced that her car had won first place in its class in the Mid-west Grand Classic of the Classic Car Club of America.

Some 5,000 people had jammed the grounds at Greenfield Village Saturday to get a look at 78 cars from nine states that competed for trophies. But it wasn't until that night that the owners learned if all of their efforts were going to pay off—and the word "efforts" is an understatement. Probably only those who own classic cars can appreciate the work involved, that is, if they expect to win prizes.

Miss Dunning, whose normal every-day job is owning and operating a women's apparel store in Plymouth, spends hours and days inside, outside and under her car to get it ready for the Mid-west Classic, one of three such events held across the nation on the same day.

Classic cars are defined as "cars of distinction" made between the years of 1925 and 1942, and the Lincoln Continental up through 1943. And there's no use trying to win a prize unless the cars are in better than perfect condition. Miss Dunning was the only woman to enter a car in the Mid-west Grand Classic. Thirty-two judges, in groups of four, scrutinize each car with absolute thoroughness. A speck of dirt hanging up on the car could lose points. Or if a part is found that was made after the car was manufactured, points are taken away.

The 1930 Packard was purchased by the Plymouth last Spring. It had won various honors and so competed in a class with other previous winners. It was also in a class with production cars opposed to custom job. There were 14 autos competing in the category.

Another Plymouthite, Se Dibble, Jr., of Elm St., entered a Lincoln in the event but joined the majority who returned home without prize. Dibble was active chairman for the day and also was hostmaster at an evening dinner where prizes were announced.

The care and feeding of classic cars is something to behold. Miss Dunning's 1930 Packard was the only car in its class to win a prize.

Contracts Completed to Secure Detroit Water for Township

With contracts now signed and engineering plans being made, Plymouth Township officials are expecting to start work next winter on an expanded water system that will carry Detroit water.

Supervisor Roy Lindsay reported this week that the contracts have now been signed by the Detroit Water Commission and Township officials that agree to sell Detroit water to the Township.

He added that engineering plans are now being drafted to hook the Township's water system to a water main at Schoolcraft and Eckles Rds. He foresees breaking of ground for the project sometime this coming winter.

The proposed system will tie into the present Township system now located in Lake Pointe Village. Wells are now used to supply present users. These wells will be a stand-by in case the Detroit supply falls off, the supervisor added.

The supervisor said he has no knowledge of any threatened opposition by the Livonia City Council to the tap-in. He had originally appealed to the Livonia Council for a tap-in but the request was rejected several times. The Council feared that the supply was not large enough for themselves.

But since Livonia buys its water from the Detroit Water Commission (through transmission lines owned by the County), it is legally the Detroit officials who have the final word. So Plymouth Township negotiated directly with the Detroit Water Commission, by-passing Livonia.

Extension of the water system to other parts of the Township will be a major step forward in the history of the Township. A sewer system was completed this past Spring in the more-populated eastern section. Coupled with a water system, many of the "wide-open spaces" of the Township can be expected to be developed.

NEWS BEAT

The cannon in the Kellogg Park, which is believed to have never fired a shot in any war, claimed another victim last week when young Wally Bradford, 369 West Ann Arbor Trail, fell off the field piece and hit his head. The wound required three stitches. Several years ago a man tried walking under the muzzle and struck his head, causing a bad injury. This all goes to prove the old point that guns are dangerous — whether they're loaded or not.

FINAL REPORT: Plymouth contributed $2,456 to the Easter Seal drive last Spring. A final report this week indicated, Plymouth was fourth among 23 out-county communities, following Livonia, Wayne and Lincoln Park. The Rotary Club spearheaded the drive.

ENCOURAGEMENT: Plymouth merchants who may wonder about the effects of shopping centers on their business may take heart in a recent survey. Shopping center managers were surprised to find that most of their customers don't travel far.

At Eastland, 80 percent of the business was with people living within 2 1/2 miles. At Northland, 71 percent of the business came from a five mile radius.

GETS AROUND: Some people may have noticed a picture of Mayor Pro-tem Robert Sincok in a Standard Oil ad in the Plymouth Mail this week. The same ad has appeared nationally in many newspapers and was first seen three weeks ago in the Wall Street Journal. The series of ads shows Standard Oil dealers who participate in municipal affairs.

NEW ROAD: The many area residents who use Novi Rd. will find the road closed most of this summer. Work has started on a widening project. There will be two 12-foot concrete lanes. The road will be completely torn up from the Eight Mile Rd. cutoff in Northville to Grand River.

Some Observations About America

Students Say Goodbye to Plymouth

By Gloria Bowles

Three exchange students tomorrow will say "Auf Wiedersehen," "Tot Ziens" and "Au Revoir" to Plymouth and to America as they begin the trip home to Europe.

Leaving from Montreal will be German Ursula Kell, who stayed with the William Clarks of Burroughs for a year; Anneke Thasing of Amsterdam and Ursula Kell of near Hamburg. Fellow students of the young people attended the farewell party, which was held at the George Bowles home on Turkey Run.

American parents were week from Sunday will Mr. and Mrs. Joseph West that, up to now, not one of them could believe that the months had passed so quickly. But as time nears for departure, and students become adjusted to the idea of going home, "we are anxious to get there."

That was Kiek and Ursula's idea. Herve was a less definite: he saw advantages to staying here and some to returning to France.

The value of the Youth-for-Understanding Exchange program, sponsored by the Michigan and Ann Arbor Council of Churches, could be seen in the students' remarks as to their "before and after" impressions of America.

A ROUSING GAME of croquet brings together Plymouth's three exchange students, who were honored by their American classmates at a recent party. WHEN THE movie "Wild River" opens in Plymouth today, the proudest people in the audience will be Mr. and Mrs. Lee McConnell, 446 Starkweather, grandparents of 4-year-old Jimmy Menard who appears in the movie. The movie about the TVA was shot in Cleveland, Tenn., where Jimmy and his parents moved two years ago. The youngster was chosen from around 300 youngsters for the part. He appears a half dozen times and sings in a bathing scene. He is shown here with Lee Remick, feminine lead in the movie. The McConnells have seen the movie twice in Detroit but they will see it again here.

Attend EMU Workshop

Among the high school students participating in the music workshop sponsored by Eastern Michigan University were six Plymouth students. The session ran for three weeks, concluding with a concert on July 8.
 Christine Cutler, Judi Hamilton, Kevin Huntington, Rebecca Lyons and Mike Ross were Plymouth Junior High students attending. Shirley Puckett was a Plymouth High School student who attended the workshop.
 The workshop was the eighth to be held at Eastern. Choir, band and orchestra were the main components of the workshop. Over 140 young people participated. They were required to study musical theory and take part in two of the three major activities. The opportunity was given for them to elect a class in voice production or conducting.
 While at the workshop, the young people lived in residence halls on the campus.
Club Meeting
 During the last meeting which was held on June 29 at the home of Mrs. Richard Scruggs of Plymouth, with Mrs. Robert Widmaier serving as co-hostess, the Robinson group of the Wayne County Home Economics Cooperative Extension planned their summer picnic for July 20. The lesson was on New Fabrics and Finishes. The women went as a group to the Wayne County Health Center at Eloise for chest X-rays and to apply for their food handler's card.
 Mrs. Robert H. Renwick, Mrs. Elma Renwick and granddaughter, Linda Johnson, returned from a week's vacation in Iliou, N.J. They visited Robert H. Renwick who is associated with Remington Rand, Univac Division. They also toured through Canada and Niagara Falls during their trip.

It's News To Me!

The Dunning-Hough Public Library takes great pride in announcing the birth of a set of twins to a member of the library's rapidly growing staff. The proud mother is none other than Mrs. Nighthawk. The twins were delivered by Mother Nature at Mrs. Nighthawk's home, the graveled roof of the library. Mother, twins and the entire staff are reportedly doing fine.

Everyone with a camera or an interview for an excuse has been out to see James 'Maverick' Garner at the Northland Playhouse. The play, an oldie called "John Loves Mary", is made much more bearable by his presence (and by the really fine acting of Ralph Purdum). Audiences seem to be made up of teen-age girls or starry-eyed women, dragging reluctant husbands. Garner, looking handsome but tired, autographed and posed for pictures for an hour after the last Saturday performance. When we explained that nothing brightened up a woman's page like a man, he replied "Yes, and nothing brightens up a men's page like a woman." — Hmmm.

Another bit of traveler's news comes from Mrs. Marie Trobridge, formerly Marie Hickey of Plymouth. Mrs. Trobridge and her husband Gerry, a South - African - born Englishman, have been sailing the long way around to his home. The couple and their daughter, Tracy, spent a year in Australia (where they encountered such place names as Coonowrin, Tiberowickum and Micketeebunulgrai), then sailed for Johannesburg. Tracy took her first sea voyage at eight weeks and the Trobridges insist she is "one page ahead of us in Dr. Spock."

Two Plymouth women, Mrs. John Swainson of Gov. Bradford Drive and Mrs. Anthony Frank of Parkview Drive, are attending the Democratic National Convention. We're looking forward to an interesting report on the women's side of politics when they return.

Here's a quick lesson in the new method of parallel parking (for those of us who drive blocks out of our way rather than trying to parallel park). First, stop your car next to the car in the space ahead so that the two frontseat backs are in line. Then back slowly, steering right, until your backrest is two feet ahead of the tip of the other car's left rear fender. Continue to back until the backrest is in line with the fender. Then back up, straightening the wheels. When the lower right corner of your windshield is in line with the tip of the fender, steer car into the space. If that's too confusing, there's always a bicycle.

New Art Display Goes Up at Dunning-Hough Library

Grange Gleanings

A large group enjoyed the potluck supper and about 65 attended the regular business meeting last Thursday evening. In the absence of Worthy Master Jesse Tritten, Brother John Oldenburg conducted the meeting. All other officers and members of the executive committee were present. This is very unusual during vacation time.

Obligation in the third and fourth degrees were given Mrs. Rebecca Erdelyi, followed by the regular recess and a welcome into the order by everyone.

The charter was draped for Sisters Mabel Mott, Annie Penton and Gertrude Storm, by Worthy Chaplain Tracy and Ceres Loretta Wiseley.

It was voted to buy four new tables and a committee was appointed. Brother Sam Spicer and Charles Melow volunteered to purchase two of the tables. Their generosity is appreciated by all. It is hoped by winter to have all new tables so as to accommodate larger crowds for suppers.

Dates have been set for activities for the year. Run-a-ga sale will be Sept. 10 and the bazaar and turkey dinner is Oct. 1. Save your rummage and make something for the bazaar.

For the program of the evening, Worthy Lecturer Bessie Salow assisted by Louise Tritten, gave the highlights on the Washington trip. Several others added remarks which proved it was a very educational and humorous occasion.

Everyone had a very enjoyable time regardless of the heat and being tired.

Unfortunately Brother and Sister Norman and son, David, flew home on Tuesday, as their father, James, suffered a heart attack on Monday and was in St. Joseph Hospital. His condition is improving slowly.

Sister Salow then presented the trophy we received from the Chamber of Commerce for the float we entered in the July 4th parade. The efforts of everyone who worked on it were greatly appreciated.

Sister Anna Nash and Brother George Lykem have returned home. Calls and cards are appreciated.

Our sympathy is extended to Sister Grace England in the loss of her mother, Lillian White.

If any member or your friends are planning on entering the needlework contest, contact Sisters Lucille Keeler or Louise Tritten so they will have a record of the contestant.

All rules and information will be found on page 10 of the June issue of Michigan Patron. Also note the rules.

Two members of the Three Cities Art Club have a new display of art work in the Dunning-Hough Library. Featured is the work of Barbara McKenzie and Walter Maurus.

Mrs. McKenzie of Northville was previously a designer of greeting cards for Hallmark of Kansas City, Mo. During the time when she made her home in California, she was a member of the Civic Art Center in Richmond.

Mrs. McKenzie has several hobbies besides her serious interest in painting. She uses her pleasant back porch not only as a painting center but also as a place for braiding rugs, refinishing antique picture frames and arranging flowers. She is a member of the Northville Garden Club.

In her current exhibit Mrs. McKenzie is showing two casein paintings "Chinatown Duck" and "Blue Bottles." They both demonstrate her understanding and sensitive use of color and design. Her informal painting of "Red Geranium" is colorful and gay. Her oil painting of "In-

Bound Over To Circuit Court Here

A charge of larceny and embezzlement has been filed against a Wayne woman for allegedly taking $1,500 from a Plymouth businessman who had sent her to a bank to deposit the money.

Marilyn Jean Morris, 23, of 35864 Thomas, Wayne, was bound over to Circuit Court Monday by Municipal Judge Nandino Perlongo. She had pleaded not guilty.

The incident allegedly took place last month when Arthur Smith, owner of Smith Music Co., 504 S. Main, sent Miss Morris to the Michigan Bank in Detroit with an envelope which he said contained a $300 check and $1,500 in cash. Miss Morris was employed by the music firm.

Only the $300 check got deposited. Miss Morris maintained that there was no cash in the envelope. But Smith, insisting that there was $1,500 inside, filed charges.

WATCH YOUR VISION

CHICAGO (UPI) — If you're the only one in the family who thinks the TV picture is bad, it could be the first indication of failing vision.

Dr. James Molenaar, executive secretary of the Illinois Optometric Assn., said a TV screen is not the finest diagnostic tool, but the blurring TV picture has become an excellent first warning signal.

Dedication Set For Osteopathic Hospital

The Garden City Osteopathic Hospital extends to all residents of the surrounding communities, a most cordial invitation to attend the Open House and Dedication Program of their new, ultra-modern hospital, located at 6245 North Inkster Rd., Garden City, four blocks north of Ford Rd.

Guided tours will be available on July 16 and 17 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. The Dedication Program will be held Sunday, July 17 at 3 p.m.

Construction of this two-million dollar project was started in March of 1959. The present building will afford accommodations for 104 patients and has been so designed to expand to a total of 278 beds.

Mr. Breakie, Hospital Administrator, states that the entire hospital will not be completely furnished at the time of the Open House Program, but representative areas will be set up to afford a full view of facilities available.

Garden City Osteopathic Hospital also operates the Ridgewood Osteopathic Hospital, which is located at 10-000 Geddes Rd., Ypsilanti, on the site of the former Leland Sanatorium, and has a capacity of 110 beds. On July 19, Ridgewood Osteopathic Hospital will celebrate its 5th anniversary.

Since its opening five years ago, 19,115 patients have been admitted for a total of 134,543 patient days. 2,444 babies have first seen the light of day here. The Hospital employees are approximately 200 and the gross payroll since it opened is $2,132,757.

First Half of Little League Season Termed Successful

The first half of eighteen weeks of Little League baseball has been completed in all the pomp and glory that it deserves. The number of games won or lost is not important at this time, but it is important to note that each team in both leagues has had a full complement of players for each game. This proves that the players are having fun, learning baseball, and most of all, are learning to win or lose gracefully. This is the ultimate aim of the program.

What is responsible for this success? As in most community projects, it is not possible to list only one factor leading to success. Credit must be given to the desire of the boys for competitive play; to the men who have given their time and abilities to coach and manage; to the men in the "black and white" shirts; to the untiring efforts of the officers of the league for their time in planning and program arrangements behind the scenes; the mothers' auxiliary for their patient understanding and cooperation; the nightly enthusiasm shown by the spectators who have also given the players a boost; the many, many people who have contributed financially.

We also see the results of community cooperation. The school board made available to us the property needed for the two diamonds, the bleachers and the backstops. The city supplied many hours of manpower and equipment for putting the diamonds in shape for play.

This program shows a never ending growth. This year there are 120 boys taking part, next year another 60 boys will be added to bring the two league program to its maximum. Indications are that in 1962 Plymouth will be sponsoring a third league.

To better prepare the organization for the needs that will be forthcoming, Aug. 1-6 has been designated as Little League Week. A community wide candy sale will be held sponsored by the boys and all participating personnel of the league. Sander's candy in one-pound boxes will be sold for $1.

The National Little League Assn. allows only one money raising project a year for the leagues. It is hoped that everyone will join in and make this a success.

It has been a heart-warming feeling to all who have given to this program to know that Little League has been so well accepted. The league knows that the second half of the season will be as well accepted.

If you haven't yet watched these youngsters play ball, please come and experience a real thrill.

Playground Activities: Art, Parties, Crafts

The Plymouth playgrounds start play-offs for the Kiwanis Field Day this week to determine the winners to represent their playgrounds for July 26.

Some of the events will be Chinese checkers, checkers, loupel, bean bag toss, tetherball, zel-ball, jacks, croquet and horseshoes.

The Olympic events will be push-ups, chinning, 50 yard dash, running broad jump, softball throw and shuttle relay. Winners of these events on July 26 will represent Plymouth in the Detroit - Metropolitan Youth Fitness Program held in Trenton on July 29, Friday.

At Truesdell - Hough, leaders, Miss Elizabeth Carles and Georgina Daubresse held a watermelon party July 8. Kickball and baseball have been popular activities. Plaster of Paris has been the main project in Arts and Crafts. A baking contest and pet show are planned for this week at Truesdell. The baking contest at Hough was enjoyed by all. Edith Donahue entered a cake, Joyce Sath brought pop corn, Vicky Allans experimented with peanut butter brownies which were delicious. Amy Schwartz furnished fudge. Friday, there was a coloring contest followed by a peanut hunt.

At Hamilton Playground, leaders Miss Catherine Catlett and Miss Dianne Van Doo, a cake and Kool-Aid was held to celebrate the birthday of our supervisor, Miss Catherine Catlett. On Friday, we had a watermelon party, using the prize money from the 4th of July parade to buy our watermelon. We had formed two baseball teams, one for boys 10 years old and over and a midget team for under ten. We are looking for other teams to play. If you have a team interested in playing, please phone GL 3-4724 or GL 3-2590 after 5:30.

Gallimore Playground leaders, Mr. Robert Anderson, Miss Nancy Alford and Miss Georgina Daubresse. Activities for the past week have been baseball, croquet, zel-ball and tetherball. Arts and crafts have been popular with the younger set.

At Allen Playground, leader Mrs. Jack Birk, ball games have been a highlight with the older boys and girls this past week. A bike race for the playground people was greatly enjoyed by all ages on Friday afternoon.

At Farrand - Lake Pointe, leaders, Mrs. Jim Grinenko and Mr. Jim Brown, arts and crafts is a popular pastime for the boys and girls. Plaster of Paris is being consumed by the pail fulls. Many interesting projects are being made and taken home by both young and old. A contest is being held this Friday.

Auburn Playground: leader, Miss Fran Smith, Kool-aid parties daily have helped the boys and girls keep cool during our hot spell. Arts and crafts are being enjoyed by all, particularly the abstract designs made of wooden sticks. A bus trip is being planned to Kent Lake with the Hamilton and Central playgrounds. A nature hike and picnic are being planned.

Central Playground: leaders, Miss Mavis Williams, Miss Julie Bradely. Ball games, zel-ball, croquet and small group games have been the activities of great interest this week. Coloring and painting have been enjoyed in arts and crafts.

At Cherry Hill playground, leaders, Miss Whma Wright and Jim Brown, hikes and ballgames kept us busy most of last week. The boys and girls have fun with both of these activities. Arts and crafts with coppermith projects and leather making have been the most popular.

Wheat Growers Vote on Quotas July 21 in Wayne

Polling places for the July 21 referendum on marketing quotas for the 1961 crop of wheat were announced today by Eldon L. Johnson of the Wayne County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Office.

Growers eligible to vote in the referendum will be those who will have more than 15 acres of wheat for harvest as grain in 1961 (except growers taking part in the feed wheat program).

The wheat quota ballots may be cast on Thursday, July 21, from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Wayne County ASC Committee Office, 3901 Newberry St., Wayne.

Johnson points out that at least two-thirds of the growers voting in the referendum must approve the quotas if they are to become effective. Under quotas, marketing penalties will apply on "excess" wheat resulting from non-compliance with the farm's wheat acreage allotment, and price supports will be available on the crop at not less than 75 percent of parity. The support for this year's crop is at the minimum national average rate of 1.77, which is also 75 percent of parity.

Let the bugs bite those tomato plants; give the lawn another day of respite from the maddening steel blades, and head for that hammock with a good book. Summer-time is an excellent time to catch up on all that reading you've been planning to do. TV is plagued with re-run and other insipid fare.

"Yes, Mr. DeMille," a humorous and candid appraisal of an extraordinary showman, by Phil Koury, dissects Movieland's most fascinating producer-director in such an entertaining fashion that you feel cheated when the book comes to an abrupt end. No anecdote is left unturned as you live and laugh with Mr. DeMille through his hectic film-making years. Who hasn't seen a C. B. DeMille production?

From the eternally popular silent religious classic "The King of Kings" to the Biblical spectacle "The Ten Commandments," C. B. has cast his influence via celluloid 'round the world. If you have enjoyed his corny spectacles (in the book he admits that he searches for the corny approach — the "majority love corn" is his contention and who can deny this when you look at the financial record of his films), you'd be sure to enjoy this bountiful book about the old master.

Few weeks back I mentioned the book "Jim Fisk" by W. A. Swanberg. Almost 100 years ago in 1869, Jim Fisk, a railroad financier and stock market manipulator, was a name that stood for governmental corruption. He lived a violent life—coming to fame and fortune before he was 35 and dying at 37 (result of being caught in the crossfire between his mistress and her lover). Fisk's colorful life could be the basis for a lively stage production. Jackie Gleason plans to do a TV presentation in the role of Jim Fisk. Fisk was Jackie's physical size so there won't be any padding necessary.

The last act was written to the Jim Fisk story on July 1 of this year. Jim's proud purchase (1870) in New York City was the Grand Opera House on 23rd St. The legend goes that Jim bought into this theater because of his infatuation and later in the mature hanky-panky with the actress Josie Mansfield. Mr. Fisk kept Miss Mansfield from trotting the boards since he soon discovered that it wasn't her acting ability that held his interest. In later years after the death of Jim Fisk, the Grand Opera House became a movie house. And finally, slightly prior to its removal for a housing project, the movie theater still stands as a reminder of the gay 90's fell victim to the flames. If you like your history flavored with some salty prose, get this interesting account of one of our American rascals at the local library. "Yes, Mr. DeMille" can also be checked out at the "local bookie joint."

So much for the reading corner this week. Let's take a quick look at the movie calendar for the week. "Wild River" the dramatic story of TVA development, plays at the Penn Theater this weekend. Elia Kazan has directed this picture and it deserves your attention.

If you recall, this is the movie that has Jimmy Menard playing a bit role with Lee Remick. No doubt his proud grandparents, the Lee McConnells of 448 Starbuckweather, will be watching visits them via the silver screen. "Wild River" was done on location in the Cleveland, Tenn. area and young Jim Menard had moved to this part of the country after living in Plymouth. That's one way to get in the movies—let the mountain come to Mohammed instead of vice versa.

John Garner of "Maverick" and TV fame has checked out of the Northland Playhouse, but the laughter still remains in many of the nooks of the Northland's geodesic dome. "John Loves Mary" proved to be a happy farce and well worth the evening's attention. Mr. Garner warmed the audience up for the appearance of Miss Gypsy Rose Lee who is currently "knocking them dead" with her zany approach to a lively comedy called "Auntie Mame."

Miss Lee puts far more fire and dash into the Auntie Mame role than Joan Bennett or Constance Bennett did when they appeared in Detroit with the show a couple of years ago. Old George recommends Gypsy's rough and tumble approach. Gypsy Rose Lee is stripped down for action and plays this role with all the zest and enthusiasm that she once put into her disrobing act. Northland will have "Auntie Mame" on view for only one week. The run ends this Sunday.

Speaking of runs, the one day stand of the Fourth of July parade is now a matter for the musty records. Thinking back to other parades on the Fourth, I felt the Junior Chamber of Commerce topped all their other earlier extravaganzas. The voting theme was appropriate and carried out in spectacular fashion. People lining the street to watch a parade rarely realize the hours of planning and work that go into a one hour, mobile theatrical presentation of this nature. The J. L. Hudson parade takes a full year to prepare. Couldn't help but think about the wonderful opportunity for direct advertising as I saw the thousands that lined the streets to watch the parade. One of the organizers of the Plymouth Theater Guild should let the folks know about the plays coming in the season ahead. All the members know about "The Crucible," "Inherit the Wind," and "The Philadelphia Story" via a written newsletter. Why not let everyone know? The parade would be ideal. Well, next year is a possibility.

Time to go and check out some scripts for next week's production. By the way, our pictorial feature "Backstage at Northland" begins this week. For the next few weeks we'd like to present a supporting actor or actress from the cast of a play out at Northland. We're not going to get the stars... they get enough publicity. Our aim is to stress the over-all competency of the cast members out at Northland Playhouse.

Members also voted to send a check to the Michigan Ladies' Auxiliary to the VFW Cancer Fund. We all realize what wonderful work this organization does and also that they need financial help the year around. We, the general public, do not realize the terrible suffering as well as the expense of this dreadful disease until it strikes someone near and dear to us.

Sister Lucinda Archer reported on the Housing Committee meeting which was held recently. Many projects for improving our Post Home are planned for this coming year.

This underground shelter is for protection against tornadoes or fallout. It will accommodate 1,200 people for 14 days and standing room for 6,000 people.

Let's all plan to attend the National Convention in Detroit this year. Many activities are being planned for every day.

Local Woman's Classic Car

Packard roadster has had four owners in its lifetime. The first two used it for regular transportation. The third one, a classic car hobbyist, spent three and a half years restoring the car. Since he rebuilt the motor, the car has been driven only 400 miles.

"You just don't drive an expensive car like this around," Miss Dunning explained. It sits in a garage except during its infrequent excursions to shows.

Before getting in, Miss Dunning places a small cloth on the runningboard to step on and another on the floorboard inside. Since it was restored, the previous owner reported that only one person has sat in the rumble seat "and he had to take his shoes off," Miss Dunning asserted.

It is carefully covered with four cotton blankets in the garage when it's not in use. Under the hood is a super straight-8 engine. The engine is a mass of chrome and green porcelain. The car is loaded with the "extras" of its day, including a spare wheel on each running board.

Probably cost around $3,400 when new, the owner estimates.

The car holds only two people inside and can carry another two in the rumble seat. Inside it is lined with red leather upholstery.

When such cars are on display, signs bluntly tell spectators not to lean against or touch the vehicles. Buttons or a belt buckle of a spectator who leaned over the car could cause a scratch that could cost a potential winner many points.

Miss Dunning has been an antique and classic car hobbyist for seven years. She owns three other cars—a 1930 Cadillac, which would be in the classic category, and a 1923 Model-T Ford and a 1904 Model-N Ford, both antique cars. She recently sold a 1928 Packard Club Coupe.

Besides winning a trophy, Miss Dunning also got a thrill Saturday when the designer of her car, Ray Dittrich, attended the show and rode in the Packard with her. Dittrich body designs were famous among car owners.

First of Trip Winners Packs Up for New York

The first of the winners of the Chamber of Commerce "Going Places with Plymouth" promotion will be leaving next Monday for New York City.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pilkinton of Garden City will leave from Willow Run at 10:45 a.m. and will return Friday night. Mrs. Pilkinton works at Continental Can Co. in Plymouth while Mr. Pilkinton works at the Burroughs plant here.

The first place winner, Mrs. Melvin Passmore of Livonia, will leave for Hawaii with her husband in mid-October. The other New York trip winner, Mrs. Richard Hively, 570 Byron, has set her trip for early October.

Arrangements are being made with other winners. Several have decided to take cash instead of making the trip.

Sewer

to sell to industries. Despite interest shown by several industries, none have bought because the state ban will not allow a tap into the sewer. A water main was recently extended to the site.

The community's largest home development project at Lake Pointe Village will also come to a standstill if the ban isn't lifted. Only a few lots remain in the latest subdivision.

Plymouth Township Supervisor Roy Lindsay said that the only objection he had to the new plan was the projected population growth.

The Detroit Regional Metropolitan Planning Commission estimates the Plymouth Township population at 24,000 in 1980, which the supervisor believes to be high.

But there is no other agency that estimates population, so it is assumed that the Township must stick with this figure.

Communities will be given the chance to issue their own bonds to finance the project.

Locally-issued bonds will probably bear a lower interest rate than if the County finances the project for the communities.

This will be the first trip to New York for the Pilkintons. Their prize called for a weekend theater trip, but since this will be their first trip, they want to stay longer. So arrangements have been made to have them stay from Monday through Friday with the winners paying the difference beyond the allowance for the prize.

Mrs. Pilkinton, who held the winning ticket, expressed her sincere thanks to the Chamber for the opportunity.

Winners of the promotion were selected July 4th.

The three agreed that, like most Europeans, they had thought all Americans very, very rich, mannerless, rather loud; the picture of youth was a bawling, rock-and-roll loving, clothes-idolizing, boy (or girl) crazy, hot-rod generation. American student interest in world affairs, for example was nil.

The students are still impressed with American richness but, as Ursula put it, "Americans have to work for it." The students still think American manners are not up to European standards.

They attribute this, in part, to American informality, a trait which intrigued them. The three, too, think Americans generally "louder" than Europeans.

But the picture of American youth, as seen through a U. S. high school, was definitely changed.

Although some American teenagers are as Europeans imagine them, pointed out Kiek, many of them have serious sides, too. Ursula, whose first letter home told her mother "how boy-crazy American girls are" later found that student interest lay in other fields, too.

As to the American school system, the exchanges seemed to think the American system less difficult than its European counterpart.

Differences included, in Europe, more respect shown for teachers, and a relationship on an elder-to-student basis rather than a friend-to-friend one; less emphasis and hobbies. First place winner was Ronnie Wilkie, with a rabbit, and Tommy Freedle, with a dog. Winner of top prize in the hobby division was Debby Giel, whose hobby is dolls.

Students Say Goodbye

on popularity and social activities — "you can be square in Germany" said Ursula; and, generally speaking, more intellectual interest among students.

Capsule opinions of their experience were: American Citizenship? Kiek was the only one of the three who said she would like to spend the rest of her life here — rather than in Holland. One qualification: Her family and friends would have to come with her!

Democracy: This is truly the "right" democracy — not quite as practiced in Germany, noted Ursula. "Every-me," said Kiek, "is so proud of the heritage of democracy and anxious to work for it." Students were surprised at the day's interest in politics and government.

Outstanding experience: Number one on the list... the relationship with American families. Also a favorite: attendance at the Model United Nations Assembly in Hillsdale, which left a great impression.

American traits: Generosity, hospitality, friendliness, sense of humor.

Opportunity: A American students have much more opportunity for self-advancement than Europeans.

Plymouth: A good town for exchange students... not too big, not too small.

Although sometimes the exchanges disagreed as to interpretation of their experience, all of them declared that it was the most valuable of their lifetime.

They will miss America and its people... and it's very safe to say that America will miss them!

The James M. Randall family of 728 Burroughs, will host a foreign student during the next school year. Letters across the ocean have already begun to introduce Petra Schneider, of Germany, to her American family.

A young Japanese girl, Makiko Ichura of Tokyo, will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Haas at 8870 Rocker.

Police Order New Radios

A new radio system for the Plymouth Police Department has been ordered at a cost of $2,340.

The new system was ordered for two reasons. The present one is 13 years old and will require replacing soon. City Manager Albert Glassford said. But the federal government is also requiring conversion of police radios to a new narrow band system.

Two bids were received on the base transmitter-receiver and for two mobile units for the police cars. General Electric was low bidder with $2,340 with trade-in. Motorola, supplier of the present equipment, offered a net bid of $2,780. The G-E bid was accepted.

COFFEE REFRESHMENTS MADE INSTANTLY

Afternoon or evening callers will be most appreciative when welcomed with tiny, mocha-flavored cream puffs and refreshing Viennese-Style Iced Coffee. Both the puffs and the beverage obtain their rich, fresh-brewed coffee flavor from wonderful new instant coffee with pure coffee nectar. The Viennese coffee is simply iced coffee topped with whipped cream that's been flavored with a dash of cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves.

MOCHA CREAM PUFFS
 1 package cream puff mix
 ½ pint (1 cup) heavy cream
 1 cup cold milk
 2 teaspoons instant coffee
 1 package instant vanilla pudding

Prepare and bake cream puff mix according to on package directions. Drop mixture by teaspoonfuls to make 3 dozen small puffs. Make a slit in side of each puff. Cool. Combine cream and milk in a mixing bowl. Add instant coffee and pudding. Beat with a rotary beater until well mixed, about one minute. Let stand until slightly thickened, then beat until smooth. Fill cream puffs with mixture, using a pastry bag fitted with a large plain tube. Chill. Before serving, if desired, frost with a thin icing made by blending confectioners' sugar and instant coffee with enough milk or water to make a spreadable consistency. Makes 3 dozen tiny puffs.

Car Won't Run?

The battery is the central electric supply plant for the automobile. It supplies current to all parts of the car and its failure means that the car just won't run. With modern cars, batteries are called upon to supply current for starting the engine, for lighting headlights (sometimes four of them), tail lights, stop lights, and directional signals. Batteries also have to operate radio, heater, horn, cigarette lighter, and perhaps other accessories such as trouble lights, baby bottle warmers, automatic window openers. To perform this big job, the battery needs care. In winter, of course, a weak battery might not start up a cold engine, so extra care is needed to keep the battery charged up properly. In summer, because of excessive heat, the battery should be checked for fluid level every time the gas tank is filled. Many service station attendants check oil, water, tires and battery level each time the car is taken in for gas. On the other hand, in some places the driver must ask specifically to have the battery checked. The woman who does a good deal of driving every day, should acquaint herself with the essential workings of the battery and its needs and make sure that the gas station attendant checks it often. Short circuits in the wiring also can cause a battery to discharge. This runs down the current and, if not corrected, can completely drain the battery of juice. Periodic checks of the electrical system are important.

Build Yourself Pool For Backyard Fun

By GEORGE ADAMS
 Backyard swimming pools are being built at such a rate—45,000 last year and 37,000 the year before—that it's no wonder more equipment for enjoying them appears every year. Much of the standard equipment that a family needs to operate a pool that is clean and safe has been improved. Then there is other equipment that is a luxury but fun to own. Water can be kept clear, clean and sparkling all summer by one of three methods. These are a filter system which must be installed in the pool and requires a certain amount of attention to keep it operating properly, either of two types of chemical compounds, or ionizing with ultra-violet lamps. This year filters are more efficient and easier to operate than those which were installed five to ten years ago. There are fewer installation problems, too, partly because the filter is less bulky than it used to be. It may not be necessary to replace your old filter system but if any of the parts need replacing, ask for a more modern one than the original. Chlorine long has been the accepted chemical for purifying water. This year, however, both the chlorine compounds for this purpose and the algicides, which keep green scum from forming on the water's surface, are more potent than formerly without being toxic to swimmers. A new substitute for chlorine is iodine compounds in either liquid or powdered form. A water rake or leaf skimmer to remove debris from the surface is indispensable. There's even an automatic skimmer that can be attached in minutes to the vacuum fitting in the pool wall. The old swimmer's hole never mirrored a vacuum cleaner. This is an accessory that is considered essential for most modern pools in order to remove sediment from the bottom. There are attachments, too. A water tester is said to pay for itself, whether you get along with the small pocket size one or one of the larger professional ones. A tester is used to check the quantity of chemical that is needed. It will prevent over-dosing the water and hence needless expense. Automatic timers and devices also are savers in that they will regulate filters, pumps, heaters and even lighting systems. Underwater lighting may be desired for cement or steel pools. An underwater heater in any pool will lengthen the outdoor swimming season by at least two months on either end of summer. Then there's a special thermometer to test the water whether it has a heater or not. A pool slide may be fun for youngsters. But if the size

Buttons, Boxes For Antiquers

By DOROTHY H. JENKINS
 Two lines of antique collecting sometimes can be combined successfully. Far more people pursue buttons, to judge by the hobby clubs and national meetings, but boxes can be as fascinating. Buttons and boxes are as compatible — and inexpensive — as coke and a bottle. Boxes held the belongings of early settlers in this country and ranged from little snuff and tobacco boxes for personal use to salt boxes in the kitchen and Bible boxes in the parlor. Boxes may be in surprisingly good condition and need only slight refurbishing for display or use today.

The box in the accompanying picture has been converted to hold buttons. Most of the buttons are for everyday repairs but stored in the bottom are some old ones that the owner keeps for family sentiment.

In front of the box are spread carved jet buttons (left front) that fastened a dress sixty to seventy-five years ago. Behind these are brass buttons (left rear) from the uniform worn by an officer in the War Between the States. The china buttons (right) were decorated by a young lady who took china painting lessons during the first decade of this century. The box originally displayed packets of flower seed on the counter of a general store in a small town in northeastern Pennsylvania circa 1880. Several of them were found, dusty but sound, in the cellar of the storekeeper's home a few years ago. Removing dust and coats of varnish revealed a box of light colored oak, the top of the lid showing distinctive grain. The surface now is protected with several coats of paste wax. The sides of the box, which is 1½ by 7 by 4 inches, are mortised; nails were used only in the bottom and to attach hinges and lock. Small hinges on the back, another hinge inside to support the cover when the box is open and the lock are good brass that polishes nicely.

The clue to the age and original purpose of the box lies in the picture which lines the lid. In colors almost as fresh as the first day the contents were displayed is a paper picture of double garden carnations, also called pinks, in white and shades of pink. The background shades from blue into amber. Lettering identifies box and contents as coming from a midwestern seed firm which opened for business April 1, 1856 (in 1930 it merged with another firm). In this seed firm's catalogue for 1882, which is not necessarily the year this display box went out to merchants, the listing of the picture flower begins as by far the most useful of all the biennials and perennials and for beauty and variety cannot be surpassed.

New Things for Tourists Rising In N. Michigan

There's much new under the sun in northern Michigan for the traveler to enjoy. One of the most fabulous of summer resorts, for example, just opened its door near Sault Ste. Marie. Not far from the Soo is the rapidly expanding Kincheloe Air Base.

At the Straits of Mackinac where looms the "Mighty Mac" bridge, still new to many Michigan tourists, is the newly opened Fort Michilimackinac. Along every road and highway appears new motels and tourist attractions. A new air of friendliness is soon sensed in upper Michigan residents by the visitor.

The famous established attractions of the north country are still there and thriving. They pleased millions of tourists in past years and serve as a foundation for the expanding resorting industry in that part of the state.

Chief among these is the Soo Locks. A ferry ride through 22 feet of elevation in the St. Mary's River is worth the trip from anywhere in the state. There is Grand Hotel at Mackinac Island and the island's colorful museums and quaint horse and buggies. There's the wilderness of Copper Harbor, the beauty of Porcupine Mountains near Ontonagon and the Pictured Rocks of Munising.

The only bridge in the world which is lower than the river it "crosses" is located on Route 2 in Manistique. Near this little city is Big Spring with a raft to float on water so clear a visitor can easily see it bubble through white sands at the bottom or watch big fish swim lazily.

Tongue-twisting Tahquamenon Falls near Newberry offers a grand sight of ice tea colored water spilling rapidly in its 41 foot drop as it rushes to Lake Superior.

These and many other attractions beckon the tourist who has never visited the upper peninsula. But the newer features give cause for another trip north for those who have been there before.

Local businessmen at Sault Ste. Marie financed a new resort some 24 miles into the wilderness, along the Lake Superior shore. It is designed to operate as a ski lodge in winter and a summer resort in warmer months. Mission Hill Lodge leaves nothing in luxury, but is moderately priced.

Complete with latest French imported chair lift, swimming pool, stables, nature walks, spacious dining rooms, fireplaces, and even specially woven carpets which depict summer and winter sports against a map of Michigan, the lodge is new and modern in every respect.

Mission Hill backers are more interested in using their investment to attract more people to the Soo area than in direct financial return.

At the tip of the lower peninsula in the shadow of Michigan's proud bridge stands recently reconstructed Fort Michilimackinac very much as it looked some 200 years ago.

Inside one sees human-like figures posed to resemble activities carried on by inhabitants in days when the fort played a lively part in Indian warfare. Murals, reproductions and displays tell the fort's story, including the famous massacre when Indians entertained the soldiers with a la crosse game until the ball was tossed into the fort. Then warriors grabbed weapons hidden by squaws and killed or captured all British inhabitants.

Fort Michilimackinac was abandoned by the British in 1781 when they moved to Fort Mackinac on the island which offered better natural defense.

Restoration of the old fort site began in 1959 under direction of the Mackinac Island State Park Commission and will continue for some years. A great deal is now complete and the fort was opened to the public late in June.

The most modern of military defense stations is only a few miles from the early forts at the Straits. Kincheloe Air Force Base, a short way east of Kinross and some 18 miles south of the Soo, is a rapidly expanding, permanent defense point.

Seven support squadrons are assigned as components of the 507th Fighter group stationed there. They fly F106 Delta Darts in their defense missions.

Known as Kinross Air Base from 1941 until 1959 when it was redesignated in honor of a Cassopolis war hero, Iven C. Kincheloe Jr., the field will soon be base for B52 jet bombers and KC135 jet tankers of Strategic Air Command.

By 1961 the Air Force expects to have 8,800 military personnel and dependents on the base.

The "little city" which is being hacked out of the forest has its own schools, hospitals and recreational facilities. It will have a monthly payroll of $93,000 next year, an asset welcome to nearly any community.

More than $40 million have been appropriated by Congress for expansion of this base. Already completed are runways up to 12,000 feet in length, many dormitory-type barracks and hangars.

The Dishonor Roll by Jerry Marcus

Almost 250,000 pedestrians were killed or injured in motor vehicle accidents in 1959.

Handwriting Is Clue About You

Dear Miss Williams: Just noticed your column, what about me? What does my written note tell you? I'd like to know myself. Thank you, Mrs. E. L. W.

Dear Mrs. E. L. W.: You're very strong, willed and you don't just drift aimlessly—there's a definite purpose and aim in your thinking and actions. You are even capable of some enthusiasm, it builds up as you go along. Good determination and persistence follow well with your keen comprehension. Good sharp thinking and understanding, an ability to grasp are your good points.

You have constructive ability in a creative way but dislike being interrupted when you're working on a project.

You can handle responsibility but don't care for the details. You are broad minded and philosophical.

Dear Miss Williams: Will you please publish the above handwriting analysis in the near future. Thank you, "Woodie"

Dear Woodie: I'm sorry your letter couldn't get in sooner but they are taken according to date received and there were many ahead. Thank you for writing.

The writing you submitted shows a very practical minded person with no day dreamer tendencies. He or she likes variation, is not too content with routine and they have a little secret desire all their own.

They are very emphatic in their thinking and make a decision and stick by it. There is loyalty to their own ideals, they think their way and do not care to change.

This person is not too sensitive, has a good imagination and is persistent.

Their memory is very good and they will watch details. There is a minor tendency to put off till tomorrow and, also a minor trait, a lack of faith in one's ability. This is not consistent and a minor trait only.

Dear Miss Williams: I have been interested in your column and would appreciate a free analysis of my writing. Thank you, Alice R.

Dear Alice: Your handwriting is very interesting and pleasant to the eye. It is "loaded" with ability.

You are a calm, cool minded, good judgment, independent thinking type of person. There is deep feeling and deep penetration of thought. You work on your own, think for yourself and are very creative.

You have good literary ability and a definite purpose and goal ahead and all the determination to see it through. You are diplomatic in handling others and like children. There is a desire to stand out and have your work noticed, to do well and command attention. You are efficient and going forward.

(Send your letters to Lucille Williams for free handwriting analysis in care of this newspaper.)

How's Business?

Steel To Turn Upward?

By ROGER W. BABSON Because steel is an important raw material in such a wide range of activities, the steel industry is considered one of the pivotal factors in our economy. Economists and businessmen closely watch the trend of steel production as a harbinger of what lies ahead for business. It is little wonder, then, that the sharp winter-into-spring slump in steel output was a source of major concern to many people. Early 1960 hopes for a new annual steel production record, somewhat above the 1955 peak of 117 million tons and more than 25 percent greater than the strike-impeded 1959 output, seemed logical. A sizable backlog of demand had accrued during the prolonged strike; prospects were good for the automobile industry; and business capital spending was rising.

However, the swift post-strike outpouring of steel quickly dispelled fears of serious shortages. Moreover, the expectation that neither labor nor management would raise wages or prices until late 1960, along with high borrowing costs, lessened the urgency to stockpile. The sudden and unexpected slowdown in steel demand led to a series of production curtailments which carried the industry's operating rate under 50 percent of capacity by early summer.

If Your Name Is 'Oscar'

By ANN REYNOLDS "Oscars" annually are awarded by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences for the best achievements in various branches of motion picture making. Did you ever wonder why these gold statuettes about 10 inches high are called "Oscars"? They were not named so right away. It was three years after the "Awards of Merit" were created that a secretary working in the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences happened to say that the statuettes looked like her uncle Oscar. Ever since these figures as well as the awards are referred to as "Oscars", and not only by the members of the motion picture industry but by the general public, too.

What do these Oscars look like? They show the figure of a young hero clasping a broad two-edged sword, his feet firmly planted on a reel of film. They symbolize the Awards of Merit, created in 1928 as an incentive for raising the standard of motion pictures, and emphasizing that motion pictures are products of art, and not mere business ventures.

At this juncture, clouds overhanging the industry parted a bit with the first significant upturn in steel buying in many months. After the normal summer

There should also be some forward buying in anticipation of possible steel price increases. However, there is no sign of an increase in demand sufficient to restore capacity operations, since inventory replenishment is not likely to be augmented by any significant buying beyond near-term requirements.

(UPI)—A letter mailed Jan. 24, 1935 from Antarctica by Charles Gill Morgan of Dallas, who was on the second Byrd Expedition to Little America, has finally been delivered to Dr. Bennett L.G. why there's no water heater like an

ELECTRIC WATER HEATER

INSTALL ONE WHERE YOU LIKE—EVEN IN AN AIR-TIGHT CLOSET. When it's an electric water heater, there's no flame, so no air is needed to support combustion. And, of course, there are no fumes to be vented. An electric water heater is completely safe.

BUILT-IN QUALITY MAKES A BIG DIFFERENCE. Every electric water heater installed on Detroit Edison lines must meet Edison's exacting specifications. Result: long life, high performance.

HAVE YOU SEEN THE TABLE TOP MODELS? They're compact, go beneath counters or alongside laundry equipment. Other possibilities—in the kitchen next to sink or dishwasher or in that hard-to-use corner. Upright or table top model, put an electric water heater where you want it.

HOTTER WATER—PLENTY OF IT! An electric water heater is capable of going on and on, delivering really hot water—160° hot—without burning out. And heavy insulation all around keeps the outside shell of the water heater cool to the touch from top to bottom—no hot metal anywhere.

8 OUT OF 10 FAMILIES USE THE 50-GALLON SIZE. For less than 15¢ a day (estimated operating cost for this size) you can have hot water for all the family's needs. There are also 80- and 110-gallon sizes for the few families who use more water and may require heaters with greater capacity.

Bargains May Be Deceptive

NEW YORK (UPI)—The National Better Business Bureau (NBBB) has warned buyers to beware of "Buy One—Get One Free" deals.

In a bulletin to its members, the NBBB said it had found after a nationwide investigation of current advertising of "two gallons of paint for the price of one," that such deals are deceptive if two units are always offered at a single stated price.

"A question arises as to whether this method of selling paint, or any other commodity, involves the sale of one unit and the gift of another, or whether, in reality, two units at a time are regularly and customarily sold for a single stated price," said Kenneth B. Willson, NBBB president.

Willson said the bureau believes that public understanding of "Two-for-One-Sales" is that, for a limited time, two articles are being offered for the usual price at which one has been sold as a single unit in the recent regular course of business.

"When two articles are always offered together for a stated price, and cannot be secured individually in the normal course of business," he said, "the customary unit of sale is two, and to imply that the stated price is the regular price for one and the other is 'free' is fallacious."

Aged Pensioners Form New Corps of Skid Row Dwellers

CHICAGO (UPI)—Along Chicago's Skid Row, along the stretch of the 25-cent-a-night cubicle hotels with their chicken wire partitions, along the cheap wine stores and the cluttered gutters, there is a new breed of inhabitant today—the elderly pensioner.

Their entire lives revolve around the stark reality of getting from place to place without being jackrolled for pocket change.

"It is a tragedy of modern times," said Frank Stillwell, chief of special services for the Salvation Army's Skid Row-based Harbor Light Mission.

"Some of these men looked forward all their lives to old age and retirement," Stillwell said. "Now, forced to live on pensions in an inflated economy, this is all they can afford."

A soon-to-be-released extensive study by a University of Chicago sociological team counts 1,100 elderly pensioners among Skid Row's 12,000 inhabitants.

Salvation Army Maj. Roland Quinn, head of Harbor Light, said the pensioners total closer to 2,500.

What is more, both Quinn and the sociologists insist, no more than a handful of the elderly are alcoholics.

"Their only weakness is age," Quinn said. "Their problem is almost purely economic and their only real live is that they want to live."

At precisely 1:30 each Thursday afternoon, 100-plus of the elderly file into the Harbor Light Auditorium—a freshly painted pink room with a large piano—and sing their theme: "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Quinn calls the group his "Golden Agers," and it guarantees the elderly at least an hour's shelter each week.

Last week there also was a movie. It was in Japanese.

"We got it as a donation," Quinn apologized.

After the meeting there was the usual meal of beans and bread, sweet rolls and coffee.

"We always put out a lot of bread," Quinn said. "We encourage the men to put a few extra slices in their pockets for 'later on.'"

The four-drawer green filing cabinet in Stillwell's office holds the running account of Harbor Light's attempts to secure missing pensions and social security for Skid Row's elderly.

There is, for instance, the retired inventor they call Charlie, who was 71 and living off the bread for "later on" before he summoned enough nerve to request help in seeking social security.

"I used to be a carpenter," he smiled, toothlessly. "A good one, too, you bet. Now I get $30-a-month pension. I pay $22 for rent and the rest goes in for food."

"I get the pension check on the third of each month. You've got to watch your step, though. I don't go out much because it's pretty tough out."

The sociologists discovered that the pensioners were "very independent" about their meal arrangements and most paid cash on a meal-for-meal basis rather than monthly board.

"It's better that way," Higgins said. "Sometimes you ain't feeling so well for a day or so why eat? If you pay by the month, though, you don't save nothing by not eating."

Near the stand-up height dining tables in the Harbor Light basement, after the meal of the beans and bread and sweet rolls and coffee, a stooped man who said he was 71 came up to Stillwell.

"I've been having spots in front of my eyes," he said, meekly. "Is there anything to eliminate this?"

Stillwell recommended a nearby charity eye clinic.

"Thank you," the man said. "That may help. You see, I've been taking up learning how to read Spanish and the spots are a bit of trouble."

Then, too, there's the neat little man known as Mr. Brown. Bored to the point of a mental breakdown by the blankness of Skid Row existence and having no means to live anywhere else, he eventually drifted into Harbor Light. Now he has taken up chess with 12-hour-a-day intensity.

"But we don't have facilities to handle more than one like that," Quinn said. "This is a center for rehabilitating alcoholics. We have no provisions for the elderly."

Across the street there is the Harbor Light Clubhouse, with the sandwich bar and the pool tables and the television set. It is warm and pleasant and the jackrollers are kept out.

So, however, are the elderly.

Only men taking Harbor Light's "program" of alcoholic rehabilitation are allowed in the clubhouse.

"There just isn't enough room for everyone," Stillwell said. "What the elderly need so much is a club room. But who is to put it up?"

Sam Higgins, 72, managed to get a room around the corner.

"I used to be a carpenter," he smiled, toothlessly. "A good one, too, you bet. Now I get $30-a-month pension. I pay $22 for rent and the rest goes in for food."

"I get the pension check on the third of each month. You've got to watch your step, though. I don't go out much because it's pretty tough out."

Business Uses Of Lie Detector Surpass Police

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—The average American is more likely to be taking a lie detector test these days than Public Enemy No. 1.

The reason? American business is adopting the scientific interrogation technique to reduce embezzlement and pilferage losses which last year reached an all-time high of $1.5 billion.

Lincoln M. Zonn, a commercial examiner who has run many more tests on housewives than murderers, reports that non-criminal cases account today for 95 per cent of all lie detector interrogations.

"Screening is most in demand by supermarkets, warehouses, department stores and banks, all with staffs handling large amounts of merchandise or cash," Zonn said.

"It's a safe bet that around 20,000 firms have screened one or more employees. Within the next two years this number will probably double."

Zonn noted that business uses the lie detector primarily when specific wrongdoing is uncovered, as is the case in the criminal investigation field. But where a signed confession usually leads to prosecution in criminal cases, business prefers to handle its wrongdoers outside of the courts, he said.

"Bending companies make restitution based on the confession plus other proof of loss," he explained.

"In more than half of the cases uncovered, pilferers are either re-employed or the bending company finds other employment for them in order to get back money paid on the bond. Money can't be recouped when a man sits in prison."

"Of course, the man is screened carefully to determine the likelihood of further wrongdoing, and in almost every case he is required to sign an agreement to sit for periodic lie detector examination."

"This serves as a moral vaccination. I have never had a case where temptation again proved too great."

Pre-employment interrogation has gained favor with many companies, Zonn said. He noted that a truthful answer to the question of intention to remain on the job in Florida after the winter season can determine the success of an entire training program.

A former intelligence officer, Zonn reported a management trend to screen new executives who might be potential undercover operatives for competitor firms.

Weddings, Holiday News For Canton Residents

By ESTHER SPRENGEL
GL 3-0194

Mrs. Forest Truesdell and her mother Mrs. Mery Haverkate, recently returned from Washington where they attended the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Truesdell's son in Baldwin, Wash. Robert took Miss Diane Baldwin as his bride on June 18.

Mr. and Mrs. William Keeler of Saltz Rd. and family just completed a three week vacation. Following the graduation celebrations of their daughter Ivaline, Mr. and Mrs. Keeler and a girlfriend of Ivaline's, Marjorie Hines, took a trip to the Upper Peninsula to view the beauty of the Mackinac bridge. Also accompanying the family was Mr. Keeler's brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Keeler. The group stayed at the Ray Keeler cottage at St. Helen, Mich. Although the trip was most beautiful and interesting, Mrs. Keeler said they saw no deer until they returned home, where in front of their home on Saltz Rd. appeared four of the very graceful animals.

July 11 was a very special date on the John Robertson family's calendar. Mr. and Mrs. John Robertson of Beck Rd. celebrated the marriage of their daughter, Leona, to Melvin Bulmon of South Lyon. The couple were married at the Cherry Hill Methodist Church with the Rev. Louie Cain officiating. For her wedding Leona wore a beautiful white lace over tulle gown with a small lattice pearl decorated headdress from which gracefully fell a short length veil. Her maid of honor was her sister, Betty Katherine. The groom's best man was Terrance Morgan of Northville. The impressive ceremony was attended by the parents and a family of the bride and groom; Mr. and Mrs. John Robertson, parents of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bulmon, the groom's parents.

Following the church ceremony, 200 guests were summoned to the home of the bride by an invitation which read "A barbecue is being held in honor of the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Bulmon. A waffles pig was barbecued over an open pit, accompanied by many more delicious dishes. The grounds surrounding the Robertson home were gaily decorated with lanterns. The guests were then invited into the house for cake and punch. Following the couple's cutting of their wedding cake, they opened their many beautiful gifts. The new Mr. and Mrs. Bulmon took a honeymoon trip to the Tahquamenon Falls in the Upper Peninsula. Mr. Bulmon is due to leave for the armed forces July 31. We want to add our wishes to the couple for many years of happiness.

Mary Margaret and brother, Ronald, children of Mr. and Mrs. Carl McNulty of Cherry Hill Rd., spent the holiday weekend with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Shinn of Ypsilanti. Last Friday the youngsters enjoyed a trip to the Howdy Doodly house to visit their mother. The holiday weekend was enjoyed by the McNultys and their younger children here in Plymouth at the local festivities.

The Fourth of July holiday found the Sprengel family celebrating at home with an outdoor picnic. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Zabel, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Zabel, Jr. and son, Kurt, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hilyshaw and children, Karen and Kenney, and Mrs. Ella Cross. I know someone is doing something out there, but we haven't heard about it. In fact we haven't even had a report of a stork visit for quite sometime. If you have a new neighbor or are new to Canton Township please give me a buzz. We would like to introduce you to the folks. Until we have some news—

THIEF'S OUT OF STEP
SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI)—When the Empire State Footwear Assn. held its annual meeting here, the delegates brought only the left shoes of their lines in an effort to discourage thieves. The plan worked.

A salesman reported that a dozen shoes—stolen from the left foot—were found in his car. A short while later police found the abandoned samples and returned them to their owner.

SOMETHING'S A-MISS
AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—When Jimmy Blaylock, the University of Texas athletic equipment manager, recently tossed the team's laundry of socks, towels and T-shirts into various bins, he came across one item that defied his usual classifications—a pair of pink panties, about size 5 or 6.

Elephants' feet have five toes, of which the middle one is the largest.

Today's Education May Produce Fewer Geniuses

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Modern methods of education may result in the development of fewer and fewer geniuses.

That is the conclusion of Dr. Harold D. McCurdy, University of North Carolina psychologist, after studying the childhoods of 20 men from history who had extraordinary ability in various lines, from military to literary.

Although the men came from widely varying backgrounds, they had at least three childhood patterns in common.

Natural superior intelligence was another common attribute, McCurdy's report showed, but this in itself does not guarantee the flowering of genius. It must be complemented by other factors.

McCurdy stated in his report, published by the Smithsonian Institution, that the following characteristics were found to be common to the childhood of those studied.

—A high degree of attention focused on the child by parents and other adults, expressed in intensive educational measures and, usually, abundant love.

—Isolation from other children, especially outside the family.

—A rich efflorescence of fantasy, as a reaction to the other two conditions.

"It might be remarked," he said, "that the mass education of our public school system is, in its way, a vast experiment on the effect of reducing all three of these factors to minimal values, and should accordingly tend to suppress the occurrence of genius."

As far as the individual is concerned, this trend may be a boon, since genius is generally a costly gift.

"Superficially an enviable piece of luck," he said, "it is actually a fatality which exacts tribute from the possessor. Extreme absorption in very hard work, with sometimes broken health, is one of the penalties. Isolation from contemporaries, often increasing with the years, is another."

The genius seldom has a normal family life. "Fifty per cent of this sample did not marry at all," he said.

According to census reports, by the age of 60, about the median for this group, approximately 90 per cent of the men of normal intellect are married.

For the study, McCurdy chose individuals who did extraordinary work in science, law, literature or politics. Their lives cover the period from 1497 to 1873.

Included in the list were John Stuart Mill, English economist; Thomas Babington Macaulay, English author and statesman; Blaise

Pascal, French philosopher and mathematician; William Pitt, English prime minister and statesman; Alexander Pope, English poet; Johann Wolfgang Goethe, German author; Hugo Grotius, Dutch jurist; Samuel Taylor Coleridge, English poet; John Quincy Adams, United States president; and Francois Voltaire, French philosopher and author.

First Federal Savings Hits New High

Those who have their savings accounts at the nearby Penniman Ave. office of First Federal Savings of Detroit, shared in First Federal's June 30 earnings payment, which exceeded $4,700,000. This is the largest amount ever paid to First Federal savings customers for a six-month period and is at the annual rate of 3 1/2 percent.

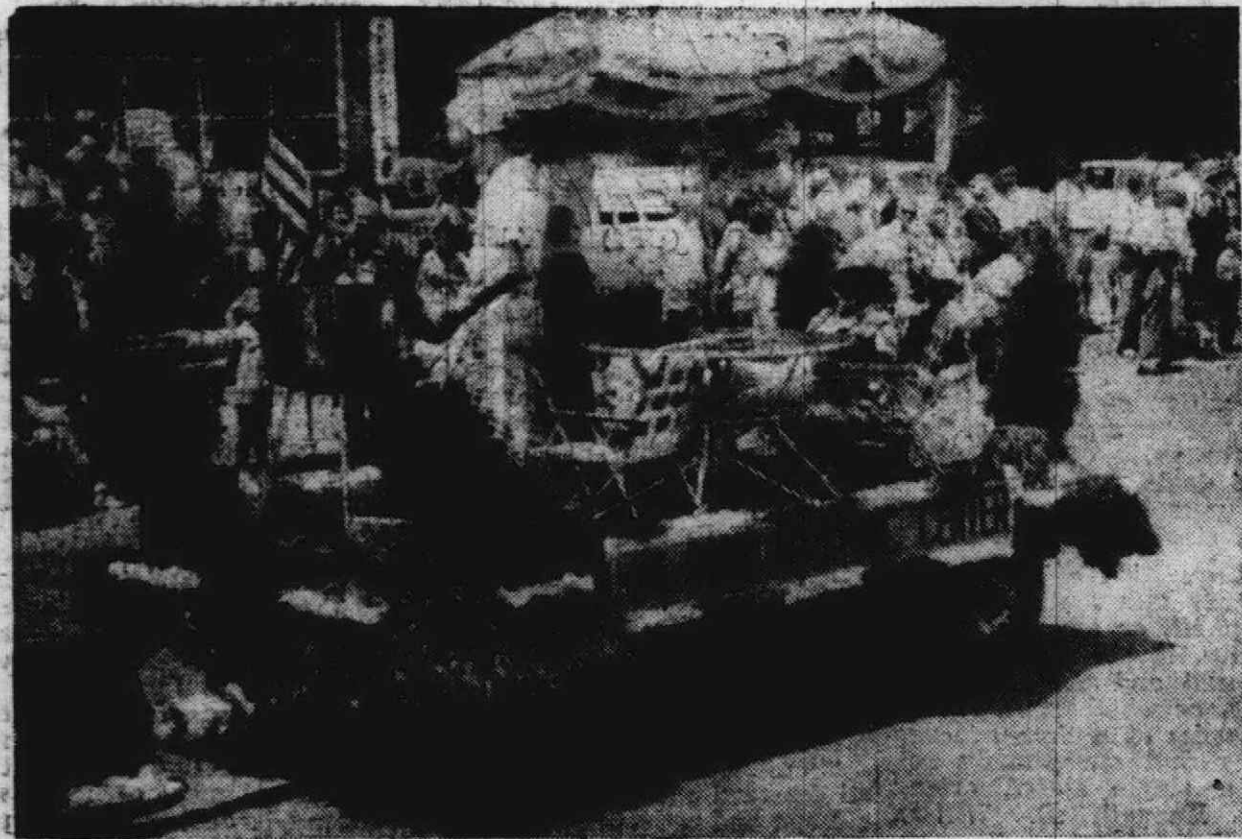

Perry W. Richwine, vice-president and branch manager of First Federal's office at 843 Penniman Ave., said: "Popularity of First Federal's unique savings service is shown by the fact that more than 14,500 people opened new savings accounts at First Federal during the first half of 1960," says Richwine. This is far ahead of the same period of 1959. And during this time, savings totals increased by over $13,933,000, after deducting all withdrawals.

"We are continuing to expand our services to customers in many ways. Just recently we announced a Vacation Savings Club that can be started anytime during the year and that, like First Federal's successful Christmas Club, pays 3 1/2 percent current earnings on money saved and left to the end of semi-annual earnings periods.

"This Vacation Club, unique in the Detroit area, was planned to adapt itself to America's changing way of living and to the increased interest in travel and vacations by American families. Today people can travel greater distances on their vacations, and many are taking longer vacations and going at different times of the year. As a result, vacations are more expensive than formerly, and the average family needs to save a pretty good sum of money for vacation purposes.

The number of persons working on farms larger than five acres in Sweden declined by 21 per cent between 1952 and 1957.

A LEISURELY afternoon on the patio was depicted in the float that won first prize in the commercial competition in the July 4th parade. Won by the Photographic Center, the float showed a backyard chef broiling steak while another member of the family took photos. There were two divisions of floats. One division was on the theme of "Preserve Your Independence—Vote," while the other was for commercial themes.

Jerry Seibert Says...

HUES IN HAIR-DOS

Statistics show the number of women who color their hair runs into the millions, and their reasons are as varied. Some change their haircolor for the fun of it, some to add new life to dull, faded hair, and others to cover unbecoming gray hair.

Some women think no more of changing their haircolor than of changing lipsticks. Others keep it to themselves, as it is quite possible to do with today's haircoloring. Even in the past five years, hair-coloring formulae based on new principles, have completely outmoded old methods.

According to the Clair Institute of Haircolor, there are only three basic types of haircoloring.

1. Permanent Haircoloring: These are generally called "tints." Their color is actually placed inside the hair shaft. It cannot wash out. New color need be applied only as new hair grows in. Some, less penetrating, are called "shampoo tints" and will last through several shampoos.

2. Bleaches: These do not color hair. They lighten hair by removing color. They are permanent in that the results cannot be washed out. A bleach is a simple and effective way to change the color of hair by itself. It is also a necessary first step to reaching any of the delicate silver blonde shades.

3. Temporary Haircoloring (Rinses): Rinses merely color the outside of the hair shaft until the next shampoo. They are used to deepen or accent natural color, add highlights, or blend in a slight sprinkling of gray. A rinse will not give satisfactory results on hair that is largely gray, or wide gray streaks. However, there are rinses designed to make gray hair more attractive by removing yellow discolorations and adding highlights.

Some types of temporary haircoloring, such as color sprays, hair restorers, progressive colors, etc., contain metallic salts which clog the cuticle of the hair, and may remain after shampooing. These may interfere with the success of permanent coloring and permanent waves.

It is always well to consult a professional beautician for your first experiments in haircoloring. However, it is quite possible to achieve perfect results yourself if you follow directions carefully. That is a MUST!

If your hair is faded, or graying, always choose a lighter, softer shade than the one "it used to be." Skin also fades. A too dark or bright color will magnify lines and shadows and add years.

Test Indicates Executive Traits

CHICAGO (UPI) — The proficiency of a large employment service says executive proficiency (E.P.) ratings as obtained from some personality tests show the traits necessary for filling a top administrative position.

Lon D. Barton, president of Cadillac Associates, Inc., said that while he is opposed to formalized testing as practiced by most corporations, he approves of the "E.P. rating."

"Do you as a graduating senior have E.P.?" Barton asks of the college student. To find out, he said, answer the six questions he has devised to reveal E.P. traits:

- 1.—Would subordinates be a source of danger to you in your job?
- 2.—If you were fired tomorrow, do you think you could locate a comparable job in less than 90 days?
- 3.—If you lost your job, would you be concerned about having to take one with less prestige and money?
- 4.—Is the geographic location of a new position a major consideration in your career thinking?
- 5.—Have you arrived at a theoretical goal in earnings and job responsibility?
- 6.—Have you arrived, in your own mind, at the position you can best fill?

"The elite corps of the nation's top executive would answer no to all six questions," Barton said.

Extension Club Discusses Fabrics

The Allen Home Economics Extension Club met at the home of Mrs. Edwin Goltz on June 22. The lesson was on "New Fabrics and Finishes" and was given by Mrs. John A. Rhein.

Bulletins from Michigan State University giving the new generic or family names and associating them with the trademark were given to the club. In place of the usual picnic held in July the club will meet at the home of Mrs. Harvey Vetal, 7098 Sheldon Rd. on July 21 at 10 a.m. with a potluck luncheon at noon. The day will be spent learning Swedish weaving.

HOW GOOD A DETECTIVE ARE YOU?

Using the clues on this page, can you guess the occupation of these men?

Have you ever felt that you might have made a good detective—perhaps even better than the "private eyes" on television? Here is your chance to prove it. See whether you can discover the true occupation of the men in the pictures. These men are all in the same line of work.

Clue number one: Signatures. Are you a judge of handwriting? Do the signatures reveal executive traits? Manual skills? Independent minds?

Clue number two: Civic activities. All the men play prominent roles in community affairs. They are interested in people, like to deal with them. And, because they are civic leaders, you can assume they have a very good stake in their communities. A financial stake, perhaps?

Clue number three: General appearance. They have the independent air of men who can stand on their own feet, manage their own affairs. They also spend time outdoors, yet seem to feel at home doing office work.

Put these clues together and you find men who are: independent, practical, probably own their own business, like to deal with people, work indoors as well as outdoors.

By now you've probably solved the case. They are all Standard Oil dealers. Typical of the some 15,000 dealers, they own their businesses. They have based their futures on association with a company that stresses product quality.

When they are not on the job, they give much time and talent to civic and human welfare activities. As participants in local government, chambers of commerce, school boards, scouting and other youth work, they lead full, active lives devoted to the service of others.

WHAT MAKES A COMPANY A GOOD CITIZEN? A good citizen is one who works for the good of all. By working in harmony with small businesses and making it possible for them to grow and prosper, Standard hopes to contribute to the well-being and general welfare of many communities. We are proud that so many of our dealers and employees are successful both in business and civic life.

Appoint 3 Division Chairmen For Community Fund Campaign

Appointment of three division chairmen for the 1960 Plymouth Community Fund campaign was made by School Supt. Russell Isbister, general chairman of the campaign, at a meeting this week. Floyd Kehrl, advanced gifts chairman; Judge Nandino Perlongo, professional division chairman; and Donald R. Ward, industrial division chairman.

Kehrl, who is vice-president of the National Bank of Detroit, will head a division that is new to the Plymouth Community Fund. His committee will contact certain persons individually, people who may want to make a sizable donation. The chairman has been banking in Plymouth since April 1921 and was president of the Plymouth United Savings Bank, predecessor of the National Bank of Detroit in Plymouth. He has been active in lodge work and at one time was a city commissioner.

The industrial division chairman, Donald Ward, is assistant to the president of Evans Products Co. He was formerly with Burroughs Corp. in Cincinnati and during World War II was with the Lockheed Overseas Corp. in the British Isles.

Judge Perlongo, head of the professional solicitors, is an attorney. He has been Plymouth's municipal judge since 1949.

The Plymouth Community Fund will open its 1960 campaign in the Fall. The Board of Directors plans to have a residential solicitation this year, departing from past policy.

Supt. Isbister said this week that there will be several more division chairmen appointed within the next few weeks.

Prevent Cookout Catastrophes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Don't let the picnic spirit overwhelm your safety knowledge when rallying 'round the charcoal grill.

The National Safety Council now includes the cookout catastrophe on its summertime hazard list.

"If you know what you're doing, you can have burgers without hazards in your backyard," Phil Dykstra, head of the NSC Home Department, said in an interview.

"But cookout accidents are increasing and it's a safe assumption that more than a few cookout chefs don't know what they're doing."

The accidents are the burning kind — causing injury to persons and property.

For the cook-out, Dykstra suggested the following safety rules:

- do your cooking in the open away from anything that might catch fire.
- situate the grill on solid footing, preferably near a hedge or foliage that will help to break the wind. Don't put it in a place where it will block traffic.
- to get the fire started the safest way, use the time-honored wood shavings.
- never use gasoline, kerosene or lighter fluid to start a fire.
- keep a bucket of sand near the grill. Use it to douse any fire caused by the flaring up of grease.
- keep only one pint of liquid fire starter on the premises at one time. Only adults should use such liquids.
- dress for the job, wearing a large, fairly heavy apron, pot holder type gloves and nothing frilly. A denim apron is best.

Dykstra said most barbecue burns are caused by the flare-up of fire touched off by the tipping and splattering of grease.

Other accidents are caused by strong blasts of wind whipping the hot coals into flames and directing them toward the cook.

Where the children are concerned, Dykstra suggested the firmest parental discipline. Toddlers most often burn themselves by touching or tipping the grill.

"The children should be taught that the grill is off-limits until they are old enough to realize the danger," he said.

Francis B. Elder, associate director of the American Public Health Assn., made additional suggestions.

Sharp-pronged cook-out tools shouldn't be left in a place where a person can trip over them. Don't let guests — adult or juvenile — use the tools for horseplay.

"It's all meant in fun," he said, "but a playful jab with a long-pronged fork can go wild and injure an eye."

Elder urged caution when using an electric grill that's hooked up with extension cords from inside the house.

"When the grass is wet or the hands are wet grabbing a make-shift connection may cause electrocution."

Newburgites Attend Reunion

By Mrs. Emil LaPointe
GL 3-3797

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gennis and daughter Mary Ellen of Joy Rd., along with Mrs. Gennis' brother, Claude Nichols, attended an annual family reunion at Vandercook Lake, near Jackson.

James Hocking, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hocking of Narise Dr., is home visiting with his parents after being away for a considerable time, serving in the United States Navy, stationed in California.

Miss Joanne Reid, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Reid of Richland Ave., spent the past week at the Judson Collins Memorial Methodist camp in Onsted, Mich. Barbara Fittery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Fittery, of Hix Rd., also shared a similar experience with the Reid girl. Both reported a grand time with the added note that they hated to come home!

Mrs. Melvin C. Gutherie of Newburg Rd., along with Mrs. Paul Bowman and Mrs. Ford Henwood, attended the annual "Day In The Country" at the Jack Frost farm in Washington, Mich., as part of the summer program of the Women's City Club of Detroit. The trio then stopped off at the home of Mrs. Melvin Lamphor in Romeo for dinner and spent the balance of the day.

Graham Bennett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Bennett of Stark Rd., spent his summer Reservist duty at Camp McCoy, Wis. for two weeks. Bennett now boasts a rank advancement to Specialist 5, equivalent to that of Sergeant. Congratulations on this achievement.

After two successful weeks of Vacation Church School at the Newburg Methodist Church, the school marked its closing with the traditional sharing program at the church on Friday, July 8. Besides the usual songs of the various age groups, the fourth, fifth and sixth grades presented a skit concerned with the life of John Wesley, the founder of Methodism, and then presented a mosaic symbol of the M.Y.F. which their class had made, to the M.Y.F. president, Dan Merrill. The boys in the third grade made a very fine bookcase which was presented to the pastor, Rev. Roger Merrell by James Roshirt.

At the close of the program all assembled parents were invited to view the various displays of handicraft work accomplished by the boys and girls throughout the two week period. Attendance at the school was 122, the highest mark at any time in the church. Congratulations to all the workers who gave so freely of their time.

Say, if you like chicken from an open-pit barbecue, then mark July 23 on your calendar and prepare for cuisine of the very finest when the men of the Newburg Methodist Men have their annual chicken barbecue on the grounds of the church, Newburg Rd. at Ann Arbor Trail. Serving time will be from 5 to 7 p.m. and half and quarter chicken are available along with salad, beverage and roast corn if it is ripe. All proceeds from this event are to go to the church Expansion Fund for their new church.

The Fidelis Class of the Newburg Methodist Church met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Bennett on Stark Rd. Monday, July 4 for a swim and the traditional polk supper. Attending this event were Mr. and Mrs. Bert Halloran, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ayres, Miss Alice Dunson, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Turner and children, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Smith and granddaughter, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Clemens, Rev. and Mrs. Roger Merrell and children, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Mahl and the Bennetts' son and daughter, Graham and Donna.

Sympathies of neighbors and friends are extended to Ralph Gray of Newburg Rd. on the passing, this past week, of his father who resided in Garden City.

Hope everyone in your household had as enjoyable time over the Fourth as did our family. Why don't you call and tell us all about it for the next edition of the paper? See you next week?

Lustrous Pearls
The more pearls are worn, the more beautiful they become is the old saying. But, continuous wearing of pearls brings them into contact with cosmetics, perspiration and perfume. Acids in the last two may damage pearls and even affect their color, and heat and dust also aren't good for pearls. To clean pearls wipe them off with soft cloth that has been dipped in water or in water with a few drops of alcohol. Pat them with another clean cloth until they are dry and be sure that the strings are dry too before the pearls are put away. Always store pearls by themselves so there will be no chance of their being scratched by other pieces of jewelry.

Is Rolling Necessary?
Rolling the lawn is as much a part of spring as liming it and yet neither attention may be necessary. If you feel you must roll your lawn, then do it only once each year. Choose a sunny day when the soil is dry enough so that you don't pick up moisture on the soles of your shoes when you walk across the lawn. If the lawn is any wetter, then the roller will compact the soil and compact soil will hinder the growth of the grass all year. Don't start to roll until any thin places have been seeded. The purpose of rolling is to embed the seed in the soil and to press the roots of any grass plants that have been heaved out of the soil by frost back into the soil. Rolling won't make the lawn level. Any low spots will have to be filled in with good quality topsoil.

Adults Often Misjudge Gifted Child

The gifted child is often misjudged by both parents and teachers, says James R. Bower, lecturer in education at The University of Michigan.

His boredom may be viewed as laziness, his critical thinking as being "sassy" and disrespectful, and his curiosity as being "smartalecky" or presumptuous, Bower says.

"Pressures from parents and teachers opposing the school testing program and the data-collecting procedures necessary for identifying the gifted child also hinder the efforts of schools which are trying to learn more about the pupils' abilities and behavior.

"Only when the problems of discovering gifted talent are faced and dealt with can schools move ahead effectively toward assisting all such children to obtain an improved education and toward encouraging them through counseling, guidance and financial assistance to go on to college and a more productive life."

Before a school can attempt to challenge talented pupils, of course, it must know which children they are, Bower says. "More work needs to be done in recognizing superior talents in children. Contrary to many critics of education, the waste and neglect of gifted talent in the schools has not been primarily a result of poor teaching and a weak curriculum."

Bower feels it is important for schools to decide which types of giftedness they will nurture, since a child may be gifted in one or several areas such as creativity, mathematics, science, physical activities, mechanical tasks or in social leadership.

"We are now able to identify the academically gifted child quite adequately," he says. "However, such talents are not always sufficient," he points out. "Motivation, degree of maturity, and the quality of previous nurture are often important for predicting ultimate school success even for the gifted child."

"We may also need teachers' observations and judgments, carefully-kept records of learning progress, and the developmental history of the child."

"In general, it has been found that superior talents show close correspondence, and that the child who is gifted academically tends to be also superior creatively, socially, and physically," Bower concludes.

NaCl H₂O Wrong Formula

Those who spend their vacation at a beach or go on a good deal during the summer are bound to take their cameras along. It's important at all times to protect the camera from salt water.

If the camera is deluged with salt water this seemingly does no harm to it at the time. Before too long, however, the parts of the camera that have been covered by salt water will show signs of deterioration. If you know that salt water has touched any part of your camera, it's a good idea to wash these parts with fresh water as soon as possible.

If the camera has been submerged in salt water, take it to a repair man as soon as possible. If there's no camera repair man within reach, then talk to a watchmaker who usually also knows how to repair shutters. A good repair man will tell you how much can be done to save your camera, but complete submersion in salt water causes damage that it may not be possible to repair completely.

If you are staying for any length of time at the seashore, keep your camera in its case until you are ready to use it. This assures a certain amount of protection. When it is not in use, store the camera in the driest location you can find. The mantelpiece is one good spot, for a fire in the fireplace in the evening dries out the moisture.

It's also a good idea to unload your camera as soon as you have exposed the roll of film. Then wrap the camera in foil and wax paper and store in a dry spot. Send off the roll of film promptly for processing.

Fresh water also may damage the unprotected camera. Although complete submersion in fresh water is not likely to be as damaging as salt water, it's best to have the camera checked as soon as possible.

Dairy Foods Are Not Alike

Marjorie Gibbs, the Detroit Consumer Marketing Information Agent says that dairy foods are not alike. Do you know the differences among them? According to Michigan law, vanilla ice cream must contain at least 12 percent milk fat and vanilla flavoring. Nut ice cream must contain at least 10 percent milk fat and not less than 1.1 percent egg yolk solids. Sherbets may contain not more than 2.5 milk fat. Ices are frozen products containing water, sweeteners and flavoring. They contain no milk solids and may or may not contain fruit juice. You can see that the differences in milk fat means a difference in the number of calories among frozen dairy foods.

Marjorie Gibbs, the Detroit Consumer Marketing Information Agent says that homegrown berries and cherries of high quality at the height of their seasons display optimum color, flavor and food value, and the least waste. Select with economy in mind and avoid wet or leaky berries — sometimes indicated by stained containers. Such berries often result from decay, bruising or over-ripeness and they're wasteful. Also avoid berries with mold — another indication of decay. Mature blackberries and raspberries should be free of their caps, whereas strawberries should always have the caps attached. Color is another indication of ripeness — avoid immature berries with green areas.

Lots of us are trading stamp collectors — might as well be if they're offered at our favorite market. Marjorie Gibbs, the Detroit Consumer Marketing Information Agent, suggests one trading stamp for every dime we spend, and each stamp is worth about 1-10 to 1-4 of a cent, so — if an item costs 10 cents more than it does at another time or at another store (with stamps) we're losing a least 9 cents. So, if you're budgeting at all — it's the price, not the stamps that count in selecting the best value for your food dollar.

If you'd like to try something different these days, Marjorie Gibbs, our Detroit Consumer Marketing Agent, suggests an outdoor barbecue of fish. One of the 'tricks of the trade' is to have both fish and grill well oiled to prevent sticking. Or you can cook your fish in a foil tray made with aluminum foil. Cooking fish doesn't take too long. As a guide, allow about 12 minutes to cook a fish steak 1 1/2 inches thick. It will take about 6 to 18 minutes to barbecue a fish fillet depending upon the thickness. 'Cooking fish in foil' will take a little longer, about 18 to 25 minutes for a small whole fish. But barbecued fish is real good.

Marjorie Gibbs, the Detroit Consumer Marketing Information Agent says that the less tender cuts of meat may be barbecued outdoors if they are first marinated. This is done for 12 to 48 hours, depending upon the thickness and the size of the piece. An oil and acid mixture is used. It is usually one part lemon juice, vinegar or tomato juice — or the barbecue sauce — it self — to four parts oil. The acid and the salt tenderize the meat by breaking down the fibers. Minute steaks and cubed steaks will benefit from a short period in the barbecue sauce. Round, flank and chuck steaks in one piece or small cubes will be as tender as can be if marinated overnight or a couple days and turned often. The small cubes can also be threaded on long skewers with onions, green peppers etc. and then grilled.

Marjorie Gibbs, the Detroit Consumer Marketing Information Agent says there's no fixed rules for the kinds and amounts of foods to include in each meal. This is a matter of individual preference. A daily food guide, a plan for choosing a nutritionally good diet, suggests at least four servings of vegetables or fruits each day.

18th Century Furniture Is Popular

Furniture designs produced in England during the 18th century are among the most popular traditional pieces reproduced today. Mabel Cooper, instructor in related arts at Michigan State University, says cabinet work at that time was a highly skilled craft and the work was done almost exclusively in mahogany. Carving, paneling, and moldings were used to display the color and texture of the wood. Many homes in colonial America were filled with these furniture styles imported from England, and the restoration of Williamsburg has focused attention on 18th century furniture.

Prominent designers of the period were Chippendale, Hepplewhite, Sheraton and Adam. Their furniture harmonizes nicely with some of today's homes and furniture, but they do require a formal setting. Fabrics and walls should reflect the character of this 18th century era through color, texture and design motif.

Chippendale designs are substantial in proportions, though not heavy. The room where it is used should be impressive in size, but not grandiose. Fabrics can be tapestries, velvets, brocades and needlepoint and can feature fairly large patterns in colors of medium value. Chippendale blends with floor coverings of an oriental character and accessories such as brass candlesticks and Chinese or Wedgwood china.

Hepplewhite, Sheraton and Adam designs are lighter in scale. These require a more classic setting with fabrics of smaller designs and colors that are lighter and softer.

Beach Outings Provide Ideal Time To Collect Interesting Sea Shells

Whether you go to a beach to swim, to fish or to acquire a tan, you're bound to see shells. And pick some up, too. A shell that is particularly colorful or interesting in shape might even be dropped in the beach bag to take home.

Shells are plentiful along the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf Coasts. They're found in fresh water, too. If you really want to collect shells, look not only at the seashore but also in woods and meadows under logs and stones. A snail shell might be found on a blade of grass or the branch of a tree. There are shells even in the desert.

Inland, the best places to hunt shells are fresh-water streams and ponds. Mollusks, for example, are plentiful in fresh water, salt water and stagnant swamps or ditches. Mollusks are an enormous group that includes snails, oysters, clams, mussels, whelks and limpets among others.

Sharp eyes are the best equipment for hunting shells. Certainly that's what's needed to spot a sand dollar, shaped like its name and just about the color of the sand on East and West Coast beaches. A shovel will be handy to dig for some shells. Clams, for example, burrow.

Scallop shells can be picked up on any beach, for scallops are common to all seas. These shells may be orange, red, purple, rose and mottled brown. More kinds of shells and more colorful ones can be found where waters are warm. But even on the New England coast such curiosities as sea urchin and mandarin hat can be discovered.

Shells come in with the tide, so the best hunting time is when the tide begins to ebb. Some kinds of shells will be found high and dry on the sandy beach. Tide pools left by the receding water, are often thick with treasures. Stones and driftwood should be uncovered, rock crevices and jetties searched.

Many shells are empty when they are found. If there is an animal within, it can be removed by dropping the shell in hot water for a few minutes. If this doesn't work, a hook or bent hair pin will force the animal out. If a piece breaks off, place the shell in alcohol for a few days, then dry it in the shade. The alcohol bath is good for tiny shells and will banish all odors.

According to biologists, a shell is the skeleton which is carried on the outside of an animal without a backbone. Whether you collect shells because they're pretty, to trade with other collectors or make decorative things out of, you'll want to know a little about those that you find.

Like trees and birds, insects and flowers shells are classified into families, each family into species and varieties. Each kind of shell has its own Latin name as well as the common one by which it is generally called.

Seeds of the white birch tree number close to 1,500,000 for each pound of weight.

Young People Enjoy Fixing Own Autos

Most young people like to repair their own cars whenever possible. One reason for owning a car is to have one to tinker with. There will be repairs and frequently since most teenagers own cars that are ten years old, if they're a day.

Trouble in the fuel system, which may at first seem a mystery to the young driver, is not too hard to locate and correct. There's always the possibility of being out of gas, but this is easily remedied by stopping at a service station and "filling up."

A dirty carburetor causes the engine to sputter. To correct this condition remove the air cleaner, place the flat of the hand over the throat of the carburetor and ask a buddy to start the engine. Since this operation draws on the gasoline in the carburetor, the pressure may blow out any dirt in the fuel line or remove water from the float chamber.

If the engine persists in stalling or becomes flooded, perhaps the butterfly valve in the carburetor has become stuck. Working this valve loose so that it moves easily will stop the flooding.

Perhaps no fuel is reaching the carburetor from the fuel pump. To check, disconnect the line from the fuel pump. Have someone else step on the starter briefly. At each revolution of the starter, a small amount of fuel should flow from the fuel line. When it doesn't, it's time to test the fuel pump.

A new fuel pump should ordinarily be put in by a qualified mechanic. Most drivers would prefer leaving this job to the expert.

Sometimes the fuel filter becomes clogged. The driver can unscrew the clamp beneath the glass bowl and discard any sediment or water that has collected. Cleaning the bowl with kerosene removes any particles or dirt or scum. When replacing the strainer, it is important to replace gasket and strainer screen in proper position.

If all else fails and the car still is not feeding gasoline properly, it's time to stop tinkering. This is when the advice—and possible service—of a skilled garage man is needed.

The Order of Odd Fellows originated in England in the 18th century.

A museum with its labeled collection of shells is a good place to visit when you're trying to learn one shell from another. Regional guide books also are helpful. A. Morris has written a book for the East Coast, and Easterners can learn a great deal from his "Field Guide to the Shells of Our Atlantic and Gulf Coasts." Shell clubs, which have been organized particularly in New England, Florida and California, are good for swapping information.

Binoculars Are Big Help to Bird-Watcher

A new world has been opened to the person who has recently received binoculars. The bird watcher or naturalist, boatman, hiker, hunter or sports fan will find that a pair of binoculars or field glasses is an excellent way to invest money.

There is a difference between field glasses and the prism binocular. The field glass is really two telescopes which are joined into one unit for direct vision. Most people use field glasses for nature study and sporting events. A good pair provides adequate magnification of small objects, is easy to focus and lightweight.

The prism binocular utilizes two right angle reflecting surfaces which reflect the image right and left. Two similar reflectors are provided for up and down reorientation of the image. Because the prism system permits objective lenses to be set wider apart, the field of vision is wider and the supplement to human vision greater than with a field glass. A binocular of equal power to a field glass is heavier to carry and more expensive.

Field glasses are available only in low magnification, usually not more than 5x or 6x. They are sufficient for short-range observation. The field of view is considerably less than with a 6x binocular. Binoculars come from 3x to 20x magnification.

With a 6x binocular, a bird 600 feet away looks as it would if you were 100 feet away without glasses. (If your hand shakes, the bird or other object will seem blurred.) For distant viewing, a 10x is recommended. A 6x30 is considered fine for bird watching, sporting events and over-water use.

The 6 refers to magnification. The 30 refers to the diameter of the front objective lens in millimeters. This lens governs the light-gathering capacity of the binocular and it is generally recommended that the measurement be at least five times the power of the glass. This number does not determine the field of view.

Magnification and light-gathering capacity determine the brilliancy of the image. The quality of the lenses and the coating provided bright, detailed images. Uncoated binocular optics lose up to 50 percent of light because of internal reflections.

A binocular must be focused by each person who uses it. It will have either center or individual focusing. Directions for focusing each type should be available with the binocular.

The center focusing binocular has a wheel on the hinge piece and a calibrated right eyepiece. The left eyepiece is not adjustable. When the right eyepiece is finally set, the binocular can be quickly adjusted thereafter if you note and remember the setting.

Individual focus means that each graduated eyepiece must be rotated separately until a sharp image is obtained. Central focusing is faster but a binocular with individual focusing has fewer moving parts and is more resistant to moisture and dust. Individual focusing is fine for distance but not objects closer than 50 to 30 feet. This style is preferred by the hunter.

No binocular is ideal for all purposes or all persons. That's why it's better to select your own.

Bees and wasps aren't insects to be afraid of. They are insects to respect because of that stinger with which they unhesitatingly prick the finger, ankle, head or any part of the body of the person who gets in their way. Let bees and wasps alone to go about their business and study them from a safe distance.

Bees are indispensable to man for two reasons. One is the honey which they make and which everyone enjoys eating. The other is the fact that they cross-pollinate flowers by flying from one to another in their quest for nectar from which to make their honey.

Cross-pollination is important to the seedsman who grows plants for seed and to the man who owns an orchard. Often when fruit trees are in flower, the orchardist rents hives of bees to place under the trees so that blossoms will be cross-pollinated and apples or other fruits will be set.

Of the many kinds of bees, the two most familiar ones are the bumblebee and the much smaller honeybee. These two kinds of bees live in colonies, several thousand to as many as 50,000 in one colony. A colony is led by a queen bee and consists of many worker bees and drones.

Size is not the way to distinguish between a bee and a wasp. For some wasps are less than 1-16 inch long and others are more than two inches. Bees have stiff hairs, known as pollen baskets on their legs; their bodies also are hairy.

The yellow jackets and the bald-faced or white-faced hornets are probably the most feared wasps for their stings. Both are a little shorter than the bumblebee but look to be slimmer flying insects.

Both of these wasps belong to the group known as paper wasps because they build a paper nest out of wood they chew up. The oval nest usually hangs under the eaves of a building or from a shutter. Sometimes these nests can be spied in the process of construction showing a somewhat round mass of small circular cells. When the nest is finished, there will be one hole at the base for entrance and exit. Don't disturb!

Wasps are an even more curious insect family than the bees. Some wasps are solitary, others live in colonies. Mud wasps build their nests in the ground. Some other kinds of wasps make tunnels in the pith of woody stems.

Perhaps the best way to learn about bees is to ask permission to visit someone who has an apiary, that is a collection of hives of bees kept for honey. Thus it is possible to learn how bees live and work, how a beekeeper takes care of and handles bees. Or, the museum or zoo in your town may include a colony of bees.

Everything an experienced beekeeper or entomologist tells you about studying and approaching bees applies to wasps too. Then you will be ready to read more about these two fascinating and related insect families in a book such as "A Guide to Familiar American Insects."

Anyone who has been stung more than once this summer by a bee, a hornet or any kind of wasp would be wise to mention this to the family doctor. In recent years there have been many cases of people building up an allergy to the stings of these insects which can be dangerous and requires prompt treatment should another sting be received this year.

The eyes of an infant at birth are about two-thirds as large as they will be when the child reaches 8 or 9.

Do Not Fear Bees and Wasps

LET'S KEEP AMERICA FIRST!

YOU CAN HELP THE U. S. WIN THE 1960 OLYMPIC GAMES

During the 1956 Olympic Games, Russia won more medals than any other country. The U. S. team was second.

This year we must send a team to Rome that has the talent and training needed to assure championship status and to prevent a recurrence of that second-best showing.

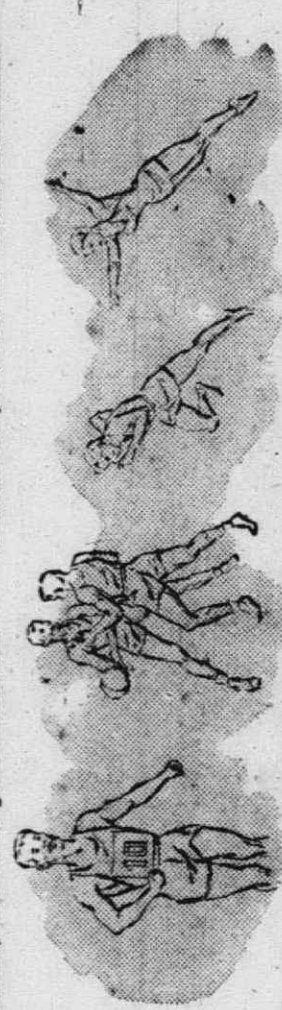

To do this, money is needed! Funds must be made available to help seek out the top U. S. athletes. To train them. To transport them to Rome, Italy. And to feed, clothe and house them while they are participating in the Olympic Games.

Many other countries, like Russia, finance their Olympic teams with government funds. But here in the United States, there is no government subsidy for the Olympic team. You and others like you are the sole support of the U. S. team. Your dollar is needed. It is needed to help the U. S. win the 1960 Olympic Games.

Every dollar received will be used solely for Olympic team expenses. All the coaches, officials and other persons connected with the team serve without pay!

In appreciation for your contribution, arrangements have been made to send the special Olympic postcard to you or to anyone you may specify. Send your dollar today. Just attach it to the coupon below. Clip it now! Mail to Olympic National Headquarters, today! Donations can be deducted on your Federal income tax return.
