Proposed Plymouth Heights Analyzed by Research Council

In terms of tax cost, the most expensive of three alternatives would be for Plymouth Township to incorporate as a new city, a report by the Citizens Research Council of Michigan has indicated.

It would be cheaper to remain as a Township, or to merge into a single unit with the existing City of Plymouth, the report's figures claimed.

(Copies of the report are available from Citizens Research Council, 810 Farwell Building, Detroit 26.)

While the report professed to stay away from "conclusions" as such, its statistics clearly indicated that:

(a) For the present, the most economical course is for Plymouth Township to remain as a Township, and spurn the process of incorporating 8.3 square miles into "Plymouth Heights." Township voters will be given the latter proposal on Jan. 17, 1961.

(b) In future years—5 or 10 years from now after Township residential growth has become important—the most economical choice might be to merge in a common government with the City of Plymouth.

The report presented a series of tables based on the cost of maintaining the "existing level of Township service," the "level of service currently in the City of Plymouth," and the "average level of service" for communities of similar size. It gave figures both for 1961 and for 1965.

The Council said that in 1961 it would cost $220,270 to maintain the present level of services, if Plymouth Heights incorporates. If it remains part of the Township, the figure is $172,070. If it were to merge with the City of Plymouth (but maintain only the standard of service now existing in the Township), the Township portion would cost $104,815.

By 1965 (after growth occurs), the cost as "Plymouth Heights" would be $297,769; as the existing Township it would be $204,150; and as part of a merged community, $263,000.

The report noted, however, that in event of incorporation, the present standard of Township services undoubtedly would not be sufficient to satisfy the residents—they would want certain things identified with "city." This also would be true if there were a merger with the City of Plymouth, it added.

In terms of tax rate, the report said it would take 3.45 mills to maintain the present level of services if the 8.3 square miles remains township. If it incorporates, the figure would be 4.42 mills—for the same amount of service—and 6.67, if it attempted to come up to the level of services now being offered in the City of Plymouth.

The report showed that today in the City of Plymouth there is $4,017 per capita of state equalized property valuation, compared to $6,091 in Plymouth Township.

In the City of Plymouth, 72 percent of total property taxes are paid by the homeowner, compared to 22 percent in Plymouth Township. Industry bears a much higher percentage in the Township.

It was forecast that population will increase in Plymouth Township (8,294 in 1960) to some 12,400 by 1965, while the population of the City of Plymouth (8,715 in 1960) will rise to 9,600 in the same period.

Two items of cost of major significance if Plymouth Heights should incorporate were said to be police protection and street and highway maintenance. The bulk of both items today is paid for by Wayne County, but the County would withdraw after incorporation.

The report said it would cost an additional $41,800 a year to provide the police protection which now is obtained from the County Sheriff at no cost to the Township general budget.

As to streets and highways, it was estimated that an incorporated Plymouth Heights would receive $43,400 in new revenue from Lansing via the motor vehicle tax. However, today Plymouth Township receives a net of $58,000 in service from Wayne County (which it would then lose) and the report also cautioned:

"The recent experience of other cities establishing a public works department indicates that the new city would have an immediate need for equipment, including a road grader (cost new, $20,000) and a dump truck ($4,500).

"Thus, the estimated cost of providing street maintenance at current levels provided by Wayne County would be $58,000 a year, plus initial equipment purchase costs. To maintain the current level

ber, and George Lawton, new president. Eppert spoke in frank terms concerning the approaching city of Plymouth Heights charter election while developing a general theme about what industry looks for in locating a new plant.

Burroughs Fearful of Heights Results, Eppert Tells Chamber

'Neighborhood Feuds Forbidding To Industry'

"Nothing is so forbidding to industry as the prospect of moving into a neighborhood feud," Burroughs Corp. President Ray Eppert warned members of the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce Monday night in an address that plainly pointed out that his company is opposed to the idea of a new City of Plymouth Heights.

Speaking to 275 Chamber members and their guests at the Annual Meeting of the Chamber, held at the Thunderbird

Inn, Eppert detailed why a closer relationship is needed between business and civic leaders and what industry is looking for when it considers moving into a community.

Earlier in the evening, retiring Chamber President Charles Stofko, general manager of Barnes-Gibson-Raymond, called the 39th Annual Meeting to order and passed the gavel over to the newly-elected president, George Lawton, manager of the Plymouth Community Federal Credit Union.

Retiring Board of Directors members were also honored and the present board recognized. Frank Henderson was toastmaster. Among the guests present were Township Supervisor Roy Lindsay, Mayor Harold Guenther, Supt. of Schools Russell Isbister and several members of the Township Board, City Commission and Board of Education.

"Speaking on the subject, 'The Future Is Here,' Eppert first noted that the future is right here in Plymouth because with foresighted preparations the Plymouth community has a brilliant economic potential.

The corporation president cited three great forces of the post war scene in the United States which have been responsible for bringing about significant change in economic and civic structure—population mobility, productivity through technological advances, and the narrowing gap between profit and loss.

"The upshot is that the choice of an area for expansion weighs heavily in the corporate balance sheet," Eppert said. "If business moves to a community and fails, both the business and the community suffer. To accommodate a new plant, the community must expand, but when the plant closes, the community finds itself over-expanded."

He added that when an industry moves into a community, its corporate self as well as its resident personnel must become a part of the community, lending its every effort to the local welfare. The business cannot succeed unless the community succeeds.

Eppert, who heads the firm which is Plymouth's largest taxpayer and employer, emphasized that the "status of Plymouth as an industrial site can best be expressed by such weather, he continued, is much more dangerous.

It stated its decision to locate a major plant here and has, in fact, repeatedly expanded its investment."

In pointing up the things which bear heavily upon where a plant is located, Eppert asserted that industry looks with askance upon a crazy-quit of development no matter how attractive the individual designs may be.

"Above all, I want to emphasize that nothing is so forbidding to industry as the prospect of moving into a neighborhood feud."

Then, during the next five minutes, Eppert spoke

Nominating Petitions Available

Voters who breathed a sigh of relief after the Nov. 8 presidential election was over will have only a short rest before they will be asked to return to decide races among the "grass roots" candidates.

Every other spring the Biennial Election takes place in the City of Plymouth, Plymouth Township and other political subdivisions throughout Michigan. The Biennial Primary is Monday, Feb. 20 while the Biennial General election is Monday, April 3.

Part of Plymouth Township will also have an election on Tuesday, Jan. 17 when the charter for the proposed City of Plymouth Heights will be on the ballot.

Nominating petitions are now available for those seeking any of the City or Township jobs at the Biennial elections.

Township Clerk Fred L. Miller said this week that the petitions are not yet available for those seeking election to jobs in the proposed Plymouth Heights. The form of these petitions must be approved by the Charter Commission.

City Election

Four City Commission posts and the supervisor's job will be available next spring. One of the present Commissioners, Mayor Harold Guenther, cannot seek another term. The charter limits the holding of more than two consecutive terms. Mayor Guenther will leave the Commission following the April election. He has been on the Commission since 1954.

Outstanding Pianist Joins In Sunday's Symphony Concert

Nelita Ann True, 1960 winner of the $1,000 Grinnell Foundation Scholarship, will join the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra on Sunday, Nov. 20 at 4 p.m. in the presentation of Chopin's "Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 2 in F Minor.

A former student of the University of Michigan, Miss True is spending this year in New York continuing her study of piano. The scholarship winner, a resident of Ann Arbor, has appeared with the Pontiac Symphony, the Cranbrook Music Guild, the Michigan Music Festival and the Michigan Federation of Music Clubs convention in Jackson.

For this second concert of the season, Conductor Wayne Dunlap has planned an "all-concerto" program to illustrate the three kinds of concertos and their development since their first appearance in the 17th century. In addition to the Chopin Concerto, The Brandenburg Concerto, Number 1 by Bach and Bartok's Concerto for Orchestra will be played. By definition a concerto is a large work usually for one, but sometimes for two or more solo instruments, and orchestra; both the individuality of the solo instrument (or instruments) and the virtuosity of the performers are highlighted. The most usual concerto form consists of three movements; the first a sonata form, the second movement slow and lyrical, and the third a lively, vigorous rondo.

Brandenburg Concerto No. 1 by Bach is classified as a "concerto grosso" or a concerto featuring groups of instruments. This concerto is probably the finest of a group of six composed by Bach at the request of Christian Ludwig, Margrave of Brandenburg around 1720. Albert Schweitzer considers these concertos "the purest products of Bach's polyphonic style" because the orchestra, unlike organ or piano, "permits him absolute freedom in the leading and grouping of the obligato voices."

Chopin's Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 2 in F Minor illustrates the second type of concerto—the single instrument contrasted against and balanced with the accompanying orchestra. Miss True will have a showcase to display her talent in the second movement, "Larghetto" a wistful, nostalgic song. This tender music

Denomination Started Here Organizes Sunday

Wesleyan Methodist Church, a denomination born in Plymouth 120 years ago, will start a new congregation here starting this Sunday morning, holding services in the Masonic Temple until property can be purchased and an edifice erected.

The coming of the congregation to Plymouth is historically significant because the Michigan Conference of the Wesleyan Methodist Church of America had its beginning here. Sometime in 1840 a meeting was called in the cabinet shop of Samuel Bebbens in Plymouth, where the first organization occurred. The following year, 1841, the first annual conference convened in a school house at Thayer's Corners.

Bebbens, with other laymen and ministers, separated from the parent Methodist body over the slavery issue which was both a religious and national question at that time. These men were known as abolitionists because they expressed the conviction that it was morally wrong to sell and own slaves.

From this beginning in Plymouth, the church has grown in number with congregations throughout the United States and in Africa, Australia, Formosa, Haiti, India, Jamaica, Japan, and Puerto Rico, Nepal, Mexico, South and Central America. It also operates four colleges in the United States and one in Australia.

The Wesleyan Methodist Church is evangelical in doctrine and congregational in its form of government. It emphasizes the cardinal doctrines of the Bible concerning

Thespians Present "Angel Street"

"Angel Street," Plymouth High's All-School play, will be presented Nov. 17 and 18. The five member cast, along with Directors Robert Southgate and Robert Stenger and crew, are all at work to make this performance a memorable one.

The drama, set in the gas-light era, concerns the attempt of a man to promote insanity in his wife. The mysterious circumstances promises to make an enjoyable evening in the theater.

The cast includes: Grace Kuhns as Mrs. Manningham, the rich wife; Paul Rawley, as her husband; John Augustine, the police inspector; and Cathy Walker and Lee Stone as the maids Elizabeth and Nancy.

NEARLY 2,000 people visited the Junior High Library last week for the Book Fair sponsored by the Parent-Teacher-Student Assn. and the Young Club. Over $600 worth of young people's books were sold. Mrs. Bertha Green, librarian, is shown at center ter while children from the elementary schools browsed. The fair served not only as a fund-raising event but also stimulated interest in reading good books. There were many requests to repeat it next year.

Yule Decorations Going Up During Weather Break

Christmas decorations have made their appearance in downtown Plymouth—but the season won't start until after Thanksgiving.

Department of Public Works Director Joseph Bida said yesterday that he has received some adverse comment about the apparent "rushing" of the Christmas season. Two DPW crewmen have been at work for a week putting up decorations.

But Bida states that there will be no decorations turned on until after Thanksgiving. He noted that it is a matter of getting the decorations up in a fairly decent weather rather than wait until there is ice, snow and freezing weather. Climbing ladders in such weather, he continued, is much more dangerous.

Stolen Safe with Narcotics Found Battered in Field

The safe containing narcotics stolen Nov. 3 from a Plymouth drug store was found Monday in a Plymouth Township field, smashed open and its contents charred.

Hauled out the rear door of the Beyer Rexall Drug Store on Ann Arbor Rd., the safe contained $100 in petty cash and between 20 and 30 types of narcotics. The first hint that the safe might be in the area came Sunday afternoon when two boys brought several bottles of narcotics into the store. They had found the bottles while playing along nearby Sheldon Rd.

Then late Monday afternoon, Mrs. Walter Allen, 14100 Beck Rd., phoned authorities with a her daughter found a safe in a field near their home. It had been hauled down a remote lane and apparently smashed open there. After taking some things out, the remaining contents were set on fire.

While fleeing, the thieves supposedly tossed out several bottles of narcotics. Because of the charred interior of the safe, it is impossible to determine how much may have been taken. Sheriff's detectives are searching for other bottles which may have been thrown away.

NEWS BEAT

B-B guns, which last week caused hundreds of dollars in damage to windows of six downtown stores, are giving police more trouble. Andrew Fisher, 522 N. Holbrook, reported a hole through a car window and a shot through a picture window while sitting inside the house. Olds Grocery reported a hole was shot through the front window Friday noon and Agnes Wilson, 165 Ross, found three holes in the bay window of her home Saturday.

SALE ON: It appears that the best way to reach your pocketbook is through your stomach. Last week the Chamber of Commerce began its candy sale to raise money for Christmas lighting. Now the High School band is selling peanut brittle to send members to music camp and Jaycees are selling fruitcake to send underprivileged children on a Christmas shopping tour. All offer good products for your dollars and for worthwhile causes.

LAST LEAF: City DPW workers will make a final pick-up of leaves this week. Householders are urged to rake the leaves to the streets. All sections of the City will be covered.

POLICE BEAT: There was no explanation of what they wanted them for, but two Livonia juveniles stole 27 gas caps from both new and used cars at Beglinger Oldsmobile-Cadillac last week. The boys were picked up in Livonia on another charge that night, carrying the sackful of caps. Thieves broke into day.

COMING UP: Plymouth Goodfellows are busy preparing for their annual task of selling newspapers and bringing happiness to the homes of several dozen local underprivileged families.

GOING UP: A new office building is being constructed on S. Main St. by William Sempliner, attorney, who will move from another location on S. Main. Work is being rushed on the new K Rogers Store on N. Main St. at Union. Walls are already going up. Blacktopping was completed at the Township Hall. It was scheduled for completion before election day.

HATS OFF DEPARTMENT: Here's a new News Beat department to cast bouquets to deserving people and groups. We will start off by paying tribute to General Chairman Russ Isbister and all the volunteers who made the Community Fund gain success. Hats off to Nelson Schrader for the job of modernizing his new store on Pennington and brightening the street. Hats off to Clifford Tait for investing in a new building and Plymouth's future.

Returned Missionaries at Convention

A missionary convention will be held in the Plymouth Church of the Nazarene, 41550 E. Ann Arbor Trail, Nov. 16 to 20. Rev. Donald K. and Mrs. Ault, returned missionaries, will be in charge.

The Aults spent a four year term in Northern Rhodesia, Africa, and Rev. Ault was district superintendent of the Nazarene missionary work in British Guiana for over four years. Both Rev. and Mrs. Ault are fluent and forceful speakers. They will relate some of their interesting and unusual experiences as missionaries.

Slides will also be shown portraying the work of a missionary and customs of the people in other lands. Services will begin each week night at 7:30 and on Sunday at 10:45 a.m. and 7 p.m.

The public is invited to attend these services. The Rev. R. Newman Raycroft is pastor of the church.

Madam President

Mrs. George Bartel

This week Madam President features Mrs. George Bartel, president of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Plymouth. Now in the final year of a two year term, Mrs. Bartel has been a resident of this area for 35 years. She lives on Plymouth Rd., Livonia, and works with her husband in their florist shop. Organized in 1928 by the late Alice M. Safford for the purpose of promoting women in business and profession, the Plymouth Club is now in its 33rd year. From that date, the organization grew in size and interest for a number of years until today it boasts a membership of 54. The women of this working club are all professional or business women working within the Plymouth area.

The organization meets on the third Monday of each month for a combination dinner-business meeting. A scholarship, good in any college for any profession, is granted each year to a deserving girl, sponsoring a delegate to Girls State, donations to the Symphony Society and the Cancer Fund, and a few of the interests of the club.

The Business and Professional Clubwomen worked with the Soroptimists Club in the Senior Citizens project and also join with other women's groups in various endeavors.

Members of Mrs. Bartel's board are Mae Beitner, vice-president; Ruth McDonald, treasurer; Mary Ellen Hosier, recording secretary; and Wilma Kelm, corresponding secretary.

Township Goodfellows Announce Annual Sale

By ESTHER SPRENGEL
GL 3-0194

Just a word—your Township Goodfellows are busy putting together their paper for their sale to be held this month.

They have tried to make the paper informative and interesting to our residents, so please make sure you get your copy.

The sale of this paper helps to make many of our Canton residents, less fortunate than the average, happy during the holiday season. Their great concern is especially the children.

On hand, as usual, to cast his vote for the man of his choice was Allen Bordine, 90 some years young. Bordine never passes up his chance of being a good American and voting both in local and Presidential matters.

With him, of course, was his wife Ava.

The deer hunting season is at hand, except for those deer we are harboring in Canton Township. Sure would be nice if we could get some ideas as to just how many of our residents get their trophies.

We want to wish a speedy recovery to Mrs. George Naasko, who is recovering from surgery at the St. Joseph Hospital in Ann Arbor. The Naasko family resides on Lotz Rd.

Happy birthday wishes go to Virginia Benoit, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Benoit of Canton Center Rd. Ginny celebrated her 10th birthday with a party for seven girlfriends from school.

On hand also was Patty Richards and her mother, Mrs. Richards of Livonia. Following their dinner, the girls enjoyed games and prizes.

Later in the evening Ginny's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Homer T. Benoit, stopped by to give her a gift.

On Sunday, Nov. 13, Ginny will again be the guest of honor, at a small dinner party given in honor of her birthday. The guests will be her grandfather, William Southall, and her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Benoit.

The W.G. Cather's traveled to California, where they visited with other former Plymouth residents, and Mr. Cather met, for the first time, an

PEO News

Chapter AI of PEO Sisterhood started its fall meeting with a picnic supper at the summer cottage of Mrs. Edwin Rice. Following the meeting the members responded with highlights of their summer vacation.

Mrs. Donald Taylor was the hostess for the Oct. 21 meeting with Mrs. D. P. Hammial and Mrs. William Ehrlich as co-hostesses. A very delightful and interesting program was given by Mrs. John Bovee who with her husband chaperoned a group of teen-age boys and girls to Europe during the summer.

On Nov. 4 Mrs. Robert Nulty was hostess for a dinner at her home with Mrs. Edwin Rice as chairman. The business meeting followed. The guest speaker of the evening was Mrs. Anna W. Goodman who is PEO state organizer.

One place had seven floors of slot machines, employed 1,000 persons and stayed open 24 hours a day.

With pheasant hunting over we can once again stick our heads out without ducking. The last report of the contest being held by the Canton Hunt Club goes as follows (to date): John Harlow is reported to have shot the pheasant with the longest tail, measuring 23 inches and Raymond Gazdecki shot the heaviest bird, weighing in at three pounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Bordine attended the wedding of Mr. Bordine's great niece, Eva-Jane Bordine to Marvin Anson. The wedding was held at the Congregational Church in Flat Rock, Mich.

Following the lovely ceremony, the Bordines, along with Mr. Bordine's son and wife, Alice and John Bordine, traveled to Monroe for the reception.

PLYMOUTH telephone lines

From BILL DUNN, Manager

It has been most gratifying to see the fine response to our Plymouth Community Fund Drive. The contributions have been most impressive; however, equally impressive has been the outstanding spirit shown by all the volunteer workers, in getting out to obtain the contributions and pledges. Most certainly those of us who attended the report meetings recognized that when the people of Plymouth take on a project, it is carried out in the very best tradition. I think, too, a little extra credit should be given to Mrs. North and her energetic group who completed their residence door to door drive in the worst possible weather and still provided a fine total result.

The best of luck to Russell Isbister and all his workers in their present effort.

COME NOVEMBER, the ladies start thinking about fixing up the house for the holidays ahead. That's where your Yellow Pages come in handy! If you've been putting off repairing that lamp or repainting the walls, just reach for your Yellow Pages! You easily can find a professional who will be happy to do the job. Use your Yellow Pages often for any product or service you need — 9½ out of 10 people do.

ONE OF CUPID'S BIGGEST HELPERS this 20th century seems to be the telephone. We recently heard via the grapevine (or should we say the telephone wire?) that when Crown Prince Akihito of Japan met his present wife, Michiko Shodo, on the tennis courts, they were denied a courtship in the American sense because of Japanese tradition. How did love find the way? By telephone. Akihito called Michiko several times a day, and she accepted his proposal of marriage during one of the conversations.

Optimists Salute Youth Week

Plymouth was represented last Thursday at the kick-off luncheon of the Fifth Annual Youth Appreciation Week sponsored by the Optimist Clubs of America.

The 17th District Optimist International festivities were held at the Sheraton-Cadillac Hotel last Thursday noon. Represented at the festivities were five counties and 28 cities in which 30 Optimist clubs are located.

From Plymouth were City Manager Albert Glassford, Senior Student Council representative Karen Rank and Jerry Fischer; and President Bill Baumgartner of the Plymouth Optimist Club. Also from Plymouth was the outstanding student, Larry Heidt, whom the Plymouth club had sponsored at Boys State in Lansing last season.

Former Circuit Judge Victor Targonski was master of ceremonies. Principal speakers were Detroit's Mayor Louis Miriani and Governor Fred Logan of the Optimist 17th District. A main feature of the program was the signing of a 40 by 60 inch proclamation by all mayors of the participating communities declaring Nov. 14-20 as Youth Appreciation Week.

During this week, tribute will be paid to the 85 percent plus of our young people who conduct themselves as good citizens. Churches of all denominations, schools, civic groups, business leaders and city fathers are joining Optimists in the international Salute to Youth.

Nearly 84 percent of Utah's school teachers have at least one university degree.

Glad Election's Over? More Ahead

Most Township offices expire at the end of two years. The trustees, justices of the peace and board of review members, however, have four year terms.

Ending their third full terms in office are Supervisor Roy Lindsay and Treasurer Mrs. Elizabeth Holmes. Both were first appointed to the offices in 1953 following deaths of the officeholders. They were subsequently elected in 1955, 1957 and 1959.

The Township clerk, Fred L. Miller, is completing his first term. The term of Trustee Louis Norman expires next spring while the term of the other trustee, C. V. Sparks, has two more years.

Also expiring are the terms of Justice of the Peace Martin Schomberg and Board of Review member Lloyd Sharland, who was recently appointed to fill a vacancy due to the resignation of the late Mrs. Flora Rathburn.

All of the present Township officeholders are Republicans.

Outstanding

(Continued from Page 1) sic yields as the piano lends an atmosphere of mystery, foreboding against the tremolo strings. The return to the first theme is greatly embellished. The concluding movement is fiery... the lusty pace of a mazurka. This concerto was first performed in Warsaw, Poland when Chopin made his debut both as a composer and a pianist.

A contemporary masterpiece, Concerto for Orchestra by Bela Bartok will be the third concerto presented at the afternoon concert. Written in 1943, just two years before the composer's death, this most popular of Bartok's works was premiered by the Boston Symphony Orchestra with Koussevitzky conducting. This concerto has five movements alternating between a sad and optimistic mood.

Bela Bartok belongs with those composers of the past and present who drew their inspiration from the folk music of their native lands. This is evidenced in the conclusion of the concerto by a spirited Hungarian rondo... a victory over defeat and pessimism.

This program will be presented at the Plymouth High School and the public is invited without charge.

Burroughs Fearful of Heights

"It would be unrealistic to ignore the fact that on Jan. 17, 1961, voters in a major portion of Plymouth Township will decide whether to retain township status or bring about incorporation of a new city of Plymouth Heights," Eppert began.

"This, of course, is the last round of a prolonged struggle between the City of Plymouth and Plymouth Township, a struggle into which Burroughs has inevitably been drawn as a result of being the largest single property owner and taxpayer involved."

"Throughout, Burroughs has steered the middle course between City and Township endeavoring to be fair and helpful to both. We opposed annexation of our plant to the City, which would have totally disrupted the finances of the Township. May I assure the Township, incidentally, that we are still of that opinion. Later we opposed the 'Plymouth Heights' petition because we believed such incorporation would block off the City of Plymouth from further development and react to the ultimate detriment of both cities. Encircling the present City," he noted, "would create another West Berlin."

Eppert continued by saying that in the upcoming charter vote, Burroughs sees no reason to change its position. "We... are extremely fearful that the incorporation of Plymouth Heights would inevitably limit the entire Plymouth community to a strictly second-rate economic development."

Eppert continued with these remarks: "We feel that the long-range interest of the entire Plymouth community lies in the eventual merger of the City and Township into a single governmental unit capable of planning for the entire Plymouth area, and that the formation of separate and rival cities will prove to be a serious stumbling block in the path of the cooperation which both City and Townships will find desirable in the not-too-distant future."

"We realize that a merger may not be practical at the present time. We suggest, however, that if Township voters slam the door shut on Jan. 17, they will find that they have acted in haste and must repent at leisure. If they vote to incorporate, there will be no future alternatives. If they vote to retain Township status, the way is still open for incorporation, for status quo, or for merger at a later date when the future becomes, perhaps, easier to read."

"I am mindful that the

Proposed Plymouth Heights

(Continued from Page 1) of service in terms of the present per capita expenditure for the service will cost $87,420 in 1965.

"The Wayne County Road Commission indicates that Wilcox, Main and Bradner Roads within the Township are in need of immediate improvement to bring them up to accepted standards for drainage, dust control, traffic, and safety. These roads are now under county jurisdiction for construction and maintenance but would become the responsibility of the incorporated city following incorporation or the combined City of Plymouth following a merger.

"Main and Wilcox Roads should be widened to 48 feet and re-surfaced, involving a cost exceeding $200,000. Bradner Road should be paved with concrete 24 feet wide. Including right-of-way acquisition and drainage requirement costs, the improvement represents a total cost of $61,000.

"Ann Arbor Trail will need bituminous re-surfacing in 12 years which, at 1958 costs, will represent a potential expenditure of $50,000. These major capital improvements are not included in the cost estimates, but would be the same whether the Township is annexed or incorporated.

"There is a difference, however, should Township status be maintained. The roads, now under county jurisdiction, are now included in a county program of major improvement to be accomplished within the next five to ten years as funds become available. Should the Township incorporate, it will become the responsibility of the new city to finance improvements to roads within the new city as they are removed from county jurisdiction.

"To provide a Plymouth City level of street maintenance in the newly incorporated city would require an expenditure of $61,790 in 1961 and $92,580 in 1965."

He noted these six ingredients for attracting industry:

1. Adequacy of transportation and abundance of qualified labor.
2. A quality of labor involving the temperament and philosophy of employees.
3. Proximity to markets and raw materials.
4. Ample power sources, water, electricity, gas, telephone, etc.
5. The cost of doing business in the community — involving a sound tax structure and a look at the prevailing wage rates.
6. The "environmental credit-rating of a community — how it measures up in terms of progressiveness, health and welfare services and in terms of social and cultural institutions.

Two retiring Board of Directors members were awarded certificates for their efforts. They were William Dunn of Michigan Bell and Earl West of West Bros. A certificate was also presented to the retiring president, Charles Stofko.

City Manager Albert Glassford led the group singing. Invocation and benediction were pronounced by Capt. John Cunard. Miss Jackie Booth was organist. General chairman of the dinner was Sylvester Cooper.

Who's Who in the Plymouth Community Schools

Miss Bertha Elizabeth Anderson

Daughter of a mining captain, Swan Anderson, Miss Anderson was born in Iron River, Mich. Of the six children in her family, there are two nurses, two engineers, and two teachers. Miss Anderson teaches first grade at Smith School.

She was graduated from Iron River High School and began her college career at Northern Michigan College, but completed her bachelor of science degree at Eastern Michigan University.

Her first teaching position was at Painsdale, Michigan, where she taught kindergarten for nine years. Then she moved on to Sebewaing, Mich. for two and one-half years, switching to first grade. For the past 20 years, Miss Anderson has taught in the Plymouth Community Schools, with the exception of one year, 1958-1959, when she accepted an exchange teaching position in Baumholder, Germany. While overseas, she managed to get in a great deal of travel throughout the Continent, Egypt and the Holy Land. All in all it was an enriching experience.

This past summer found Miss Anderson in Hawaii following the N.E.A. in Los Angeles. She was fortunate in being able to witness the presentation of the 50-star flag to Hawaii on the Fourth of July. After visiting members of her family in Los Angeles, she spent the remainder of her vacation with her sister in L'Anse, Mich. in the Upper Peninsula.

Miss Anderson belongs to all three professional organizations, the National Education, the Michigan Education and our local Plymouth Education Assn. She is currently a representative for the Department of Classroom Teachers.

Although her professional activities take most of her time, Miss Anderson still enjoys working with ceramics, enameling on copper, and creative millinery at her residence at 8821 Morrison, Plymouth.

Mikiko Ichiara Tells Of Japanese Home

Editor's note: Mikiko Ichiara is an 18-year-old guest from Tokyo, Japan, spending this school year with the John Haas family on Rocker. Mikiko has one brother who is 21 and attending school in Los Angeles. Her father is an architect in Tokyo.

By Mikoko Ichiara
It was one sunny Sunday in May, when I came home from church, I saw a batch of letters in our mail box as usual and there was a letter which I have been waiting for a long time, a letter from the director of Youth for Understanding, Teen-Age Exchange Program of Michigan Council of Churches.

When I read the letter and told what was written to my father, he was happy about it like I was, but I saw a lonely shade in his face which I had to pretend I did not see, because I might not be able to realize what I have been waiting for years.

I knew there will be many hard things which I have to overcome but I could not feel it until I faced it by myself.

I was expecting something, a big thing which will happen if I will be accepted, when I sent the application paper that I got from my friend who came over to this country a year before by same program. And it really happened because I was half giving up about going abroad in my high school year.

I did not receive the answer before the new year of school started, as in Japan new year of school starts at April and about all seniors who wish to enter college start studying for entrance examination which is the only way to enter college and is very hard. It might be too late to start preparing from senior year as some students start from their first year in high school. So did my classmates were studying for it and I did not know which to do, study subjects for examination or prepare for my year in other country.

My house is located at a very convenient place in Tokyo near center of the city. I think you can imagine how Tokyo is crowded if I tell this, that there are half population of this country in whole Japan and one-tenth of it is in Tokyo. The area of Japan is about the same as the area of state of California.

I can say that we were lucky to have our house there for many reasons. As the main transportation in Tokyo are bus, street car, subway and "koku-den" (upper ground subway) and roads are not so wide and crowded with taxis, sometimes it is faster to take public transportation than drive a car.

There are many embassies near my house and one of them is in front of my house. We could see the most beautiful and highest mountain in Japan, Mt. Fuji from our house. There is a high TV tower called Tokyo Tower, which is higher than the tower in France, one TV studio, and many restaurants where they serve foreign food.

It was hard for me to leave my house and my friends when at last the day I should leave Japan came. One of my friends said that it is a very brave thing to travel to a place you don't know all alone at the age of 18 and specially a girl.

I can say that it is an adventure but I have heard many things about this country from many people who traveled, including my parents, and I had many friends in this country so I was not afraid at all.

The first day I saw this country, it was just like what I was expecting but as I have lived here for few months I found some difference than what I was expecting, which I consider that it is from the impression I get from the people.

I felt many things which I did not in Japan about my own country. But I still think that my own country is the best to me even I find some country, like I do, but I thought you can not really say that until you really feel it by yourself.

I can love this country as the second country. I think this is same with every one even they say that they love other country, because the most convenient place in this world is the place where you are used to every thing.

I came to this country to learn and to have new experiences. Although I will miss some fun in my own country, I have chosen my high school year to come here because it is the time I will gain the most knowledge and the experience will last throughout the rest of my life.

Area Bendix Plant Gets Missile Job

The Navy has awarded a $26-million follow-on contract to The Bendix Corp. for continued development and evaluation of the EAGLE Missile System, it was announced today. A $21-million follow-on contract for Bendix was announced by the Navy last April.

The contract for the EAGLE is under the management of the Bendix Systems Division, Plymouth Rd., near Ann Arbor, as prime contractor, according to the Navy's announcement. The EAGLE, a long-range air-to-air interceptor guided missile, will be used to destroy enemy aircraft or aerodynamic missiles, the Navy said.

It will be designed to attack enemy targets at all operating altitudes at greatly increased ranges under all tactical conditions, the Navy added.

All About BABIES
By Winona Morgan, Ph.D.
Chairman, Family Relations and Child Development Section

What are a baby's basic needs?
Some people, in answering this question, will be quick to express a baby's needs in terms of the immediate aspects of baby care. They will stress any number of things and services that can be bought and arranged for to keep baby happy, comfortable and safe.
Some people will simplify their answer to just three basic needs: food to eat, a place to sleep and a dependable diaper service. Beyond these, there's not much else they feel, that any baby can possibly need.
Wise parents will realize that a baby's basic needs go beyond the material things of the moment. They will realize that in addition to food to eat, a place to sleep and a constantly fresh supply of sterilized diapers, there are the long-range aspects of baby care that parents must consider. These are:
Love and understanding, education, health, security, opportunity to play and grow, guidance from responsible adults and spiritual and moral values.
These ten basic needs of baby are well worth reviewing from time to time. They are well worth using as a guide to our actions and attitudes in behalf of the babies and the children we have brought into this world. How many of the things and activities that we, as parents, engage in day in and day out, contribute to these basic needs.
The United Nations, involved as it is in trying to maintain the peace of the world, has found time to recognize many of these basic needs of the baby. The U.N. believes that a baby is entitled to grow and to develop in good health, is entitled to special care and protection and has the right to adequate nutrition, housing, recreation and medical services.
The U.N. also says that a baby should be brought up "in a spirit of understanding, tolerance, friendship among peoples, peace and universal brotherhood and in full consciousness that his energy and talents should be devoted to the service of his fellow men."
Thus, you see, everyone shares with parents the obligation as well as the pleasure of creating a baby's world—a place of happy development for all babies.

TIPS FOR TEENS

By ELINOR WILLIAMS
O.—"Dear Elinor: I am 13 and I have a sister who is nine. When I have friends come to my house to listen to records or for lunch, my sister always hangs around us and bothers us. When I tell my mother, she just says, 'Oh, don't bother me about it. She's your sister.' Please tell me what I should do."
A.—There isn't very much you can do without your mother's help. But you should be able to have your friends come to your home without a younger sister always hanging around.
Even if she is your sister, the interests of a nine-year-old and 13-year-olds are far apart and it's better for all of you to have separate activities. Besides, you and your friends have a right to a reasonable amount of privacy without your little sister watching, listening, repeating what you say, teasing and talking about it afterward.
Try to entertain friends in your own room—with the door shut. Invite them when you know your sister will be out, if possible. If you can, arrange something to keep her busy with a friend of her own when your friends are with you.
See if your mother will cooperate by seeing that she plays in her own room while your friends are there . . . or goes to a friend's house or to a movie, takes a music or dancing lesson or does an errand.
BIRTH RATE AVERAGE.
NEW YORK (UPI)—About two years after her marriage the average wife presents her husband with a more-than-average son or daughter, the Institute of Life Insurance reports.
"If they have a second child, he or she makes an appearance, on the average, about 2.5 years after the first," institute figures show. "And if there is a third child, it arrives three years later."

The next business meeting of the Auxiliary will be Thursday, Dec. 8 at the Veterans' Community Center. There will be an election of a new secretary and treasurer due to the resignation of the treasurer.

The 17th district meeting was held at the Brighton Community Center, hosted by the Redford-Detroit Post and Unit. Maxine Kunz, Emily Mosher and Melva Gardner attended the meeting.

The original forested area of Canada has been estimated as covering nearly two million square miles.

As a result of last week's election, this newspaper and this editor today announce a major shift in editorial policy.

Hereafter and henceforth we are going to be "Independent Republican" in our outlook. In the past, we have just been "Independent."

There's more to it than a play on words. We hope the meaning comes through clearly to our voters.

In last week's election, on the national level, the state level, and the local level, there was a vivid message to any who looked.

The voters showed plainly they are yearning for a change in leadership and in political philosophy. There is an aching desire within millions to have our country escape from government by pressure group and to return to independent, resourceful leadership.

The climate was such that Republicans had a chance to win last week, and they just didn't offer the kind of men to whom a majority of voters are attracted.

Thousands of voters wanted to vote Republican, but couldn't swallow that party's candidates.

The Democratic party, as usual, offered the personality troop, youthful, vigorous, daring, flashing-eyed, different. Not entirely stable, perhaps, or mature, necessarily, but radiant.

And our star-struck populace gave the edge to the charmers, as usual.

The Republican party, in other words, has a susceptible audience. Michigan and the United States need a strong second party. But the Republican Party has to have help from within.

It needs fresh, eager candidates. And it needs public support for such men where they appear. Our newspapers today are signing up for the game.

We retain the prefix "Independent" because we're reserving the right to make exceptions to the general GOP pattern. This may occur often in local community campaigns, where partisan politics have virtually nothing to do with solutions to specific problems.

We'll also depart from role when the Republicans stray too far from our own political ideals. For instance, we'll never embrace the selfish, dog-in-the-manger, 1890-vintage Republican politics of Michigan's most conservative rural legislators.

GOP's Paul Bagwell's varnished-smile, hollow-voice, toothpaste-teeth approach to campaigning was too thin for any serious citizen—yet, he came within a shadow of winning anyway.

Richard Nixon had everything except personality. The country was wary of the Democrat nominee but couldn't accept the Republican alternative.

We're tired of seeing organized Labor, organized Business, organized Southerners, organized Racial groups, organized Old Folks win just because they're organized. We believe elections should be decided on issues, on policies, on things to be done, not just on who manipulates the most disciplined bloc of votes.

We believe that candidates, once in office, should be guided by their own good judgment, the depths of their own mind, and not be jerked around by blocs who pull strings when the whim stirs them.

We don't have that this week in either Washington or Lansing.

In our own niche, then, we're going to steer a steadier course. This newspaper, as of today, is Independent Republican.

We saw something in the election returns. We're responding.

Here's how The Detroit News reported the defeat of Plymouth's local proposal in the election last week:

"Old-fashioned Plymouth, an incorporated community since the 1860's, will continue to be the only city in Wayne County to elect its representative on the Board of Supervisors.

"By a 1,518-480 vote, residents turned down a charter amendment which would have empowered the city commission to appoint its representative ... etc."

Plymouth High School
By Lester Barton

"The play's the thing!" That's the cry this week for all those involved in the production of the all-school play "Angel Street," which goes on the boards tomorrow and Friday. Don't miss this Victorian mystery thriller—it promises to keep the audience on the edges of the seats. Curtain goes up at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium and the tickets are only 50 cents for students, 75 cents for adults.

This year, as in the past, the Rotary Club of Plymouth has invited 18 senior boys to be guests at its weekly luncheon meetings in the Mayflower Hotel. They compose two groups of nine—those on a college preparatory course, and those on non-college courses. They are: non college — George Schwim, Fred Henning, David Melton, Arthur McBride, Albert Wietcha, Norman Fullerton, Howard McKillip, Robert Failing and Richard Groth; College Prep — Bill Rossow, Art Nelson, Ralph Spigarelli, Paul Rawley, John Tichy, Dave Westover, Gary Mirto, Gerald Fischer and Les Barton.

The selection of these students is made by their various teachers, and is based on leadership, loyalty, scholastic ability, dependability and initiative. At the weekly meetings the boys not only have the opportunity to meet the Rotary members, but hear interesting speakers. One representative of each group attends the events each month.

Journeying to the Suburban Six League Press Conference tomorrow will be PILGRIM PRINTS editors and staff members as well as adviser Miss Elizabeth McDonald. Held at Allen Park this year, the meeting is alternately hosted by one of the League schools each year. Through a day of discussions and informal talks on various journalistic topics, the student newspaper workers of the neighboring schools hope to benefit from an exchange of ideas and experiences.

The latest on the J Hop: Seems the decorating committee is going to have a greater challenge in its efforts to make the event the magnificent artistic achievement it has become in recent years. New fire prevention regulations set up by the fire marshal limit materials used in decoration to concrete, asbestos, metal, and aluminum foil. Wood may be employed for construction as may canvas and cardboard, if they are properly treated for fire prevention.

Shoplifting Crackdown Instituted

Shoplifters will be having a more difficult time plying their "trade" from now on, say spokesmen for several retail groups and law enforcement agencies in Michigan.

Retailers, working with civic and law enforcement agencies, have instituted an effective program on how to detect shoplifters and deliver them to the proper authorities. Cooperating in the new program are the Detroit Retail Merchants Assn., Food Industry Committee of Detroit, Michigan Retail Food Dealers Assn., Michigan Retail Hardware Assn., Michigan Retailers Assn., Michigan Sheriffs Assn., and Michigan State Pharmaceutical Assn. Pertinent sections of the program material have also been read and reviewed by the Attorney General of the State of Michigan in order to assure correctness and effectiveness.

"Shoplifting concerns every customer of every store," state retailers planning the program. "Every loss must be counted in the cost of doing business, and thus, becomes a part of the total sales price. The overwhelming majority of people who are honest must help pay this cost. So in a sense, shoplifters are actually stealing from their fellow honest customers."

The State of Michigan in 1958 recognized the growing menace of shoplifting by enacting the "Michigan Shoplifting Law."

Shoplifting is often a sort of "breaking-in" of crime for juveniles, according to law enforcement officials, citing a recent case in a midwestern city where an actual "crime school" for teenagers and younger children trained them to steal and deliver merchandise to an adult leader. Other juveniles steal for "kicks" or as a way of showing off.

An important fact pointed out by law enforcement officials is that few shoplifters steal from actual need. In addition to juveniles, typical shoplifters are housewives, middle-income citizens, or professionals. And without exception, most steal luxury items, usually items they do not need. A woman picked up in an eastern supermarket for shoplifting cheese had more than $300 in currency in her handbag.

Shoplifting is also a favorite method of obtaining money for narcotics addicts. Kleptomania or the psychiatric compulsion to steal is so rare as to be practically nonexistent.

Most shoplifters, even amateurs, unconsciously follow a definite pattern, according to reports from law enforcement officers throughout the country.

Occasionally, a shoplifter will hope to get away with his theft through sheer audacity. Witness, for example, the gentleman who filled his basket to overflowing and then tried to wheel it directly past a stunned store employee. A pair of shoplifters in Michigan carried a boat off a showroom floor, loaded it on their car, and then were captured when they came back for the paddles.

Local attorneys, prosecutors and judges have joined with police officers and sheriffs in expressing interest in the new program, promising cooperation by rigid enforcement of the law and prosecution of shoplifters. They agree that shoplifting is a matter of concern to every citizen.

Michigan retailers estimate that shoplifting losses are over 12 million dollars each year in the state. State and local governments too, lose considerable tax revenue on this stolen property, as, for example, Michigan's 3 percent sales tax.

The shoplifting total has been growing during the past 20 years, paradoxically during the period of the greatest prosperity ever enjoyed by the country. Of course, it has also been during this period that the number of self-service stores has grown, offering greater opportunities for shoplifting.

How do shoplifters shoplift? Methods range from the amateurs who merely stuff a scarf or a can of imported caviar in their pockets or handbags to the practiced individuals who utilize such intriguing gimmicks as full coats with myriad pockets fore and aft for quick transfer of pilfered property; empty boxes which open to admit stolen merchandise; or oversized wearing apparel such as skirts, bloomers, or coats—also to be used for transporting stolen property.

From here on in, when shoplifters see signs saying "shoplifters will be prosecuted," they had better pay attention. Store employees and law enforcement officials join in promising that each sign means exactly what it says.

Corn is a sacred substance to Pueblo and Navajo Indians. Ground into meal, it is used in their religious ceremonies.

COOL AND CALM? CHICAGO (UPI) — Cool, calm, collected people don't necessarily make the best problem-solvers, a psychologist at Michael Reese Medical Research Institute reports.

During research, Dr. Sidney J. Blatt found that the most efficient problem-solvers show marked physical reactions when given a challenging test to work out. Pulse pounds, breathing rate quickens and they may even perspire.

NEW WRINKLE LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — To remove a wrinkle from resin-treated fabrics, first steam iron the area to flatten and to heat the material. Then, apply vinegar with a medicine dropper to the wrinkle while the cloth is still hot. The fabric should be left to absorb the acid for a minute or two. Then run the iron over the area until the material is dry. The advice is from Gerda Petersen, extension-clothing specialist at the University of Nebraska.

You'll Find Diamonds on Oil Rig Bit, As Phonograph Needle and in Crown Jewels

On the needle of a phonograph, it reproduces sound with the highest possible fidelity throughout the whole recorded range of notes. On the bit of an oil well rig it rips through layer after layer of rock till the subterranean "black gold" is reached. It's diamond—the same substance that sparkles on a lady's finger and in the crown jewels of queens. And what a many-faceted history it's had!

Because some little boys played with shiny pebbles in South Africa 93 years ago, the British Empire grew greatly in size and power. An alert neighbor's realization that the playthings were diamonds touched off a wild search for gems. The rush of prospectors, mainly British, irritated the Boers (farmers of Dutch descent who had settled South Africa). By 1899, hostility between Britisher and Boer had exploded into war; in 1910, a victorious England gathered the Union of South Africa into the British Empire. Bechuanaland and Rhodesia, surrounding chunks of land, were annexed through the efforts of Cecil Rhodes, who drew his great wealth and influence from control of South Africa's Kimberley diamond mines.

But if diamonds made the British crown sparkle more brightly, they had just the opposite effect on the French throne. A fabulously expensive diamond necklace (it would cost well over two million dollars in American money today) bought by a courtier in the name of Queen Marie Antoinette caused an enormous uproar when the matter became public. The incident occurring shortly before the French Revolution, seemed to sum up all the corrupt extravagance of the royal court; and undoubtedly hastened the downfall of the already shaky monarchy.

But another diamond—a Napoleon create a vast Empire. Pledged as security to Holland, it enabled the little corporal to raise money for his costly campaigns. The gem that can alter the $500,000 sparkler—helped fate of nations is one of nature's most remarkable creations. Pure carbon in crystallized form, the diamond, chemically speaking, is first cousin to coal, lampblack and graphite. It's not only the hardest of all gems, but the hardest substance known. The second hardest substance, corundum—red corundum forms the ruby and blue corundum the sapphire—has only one-ninetieth the hardness of diamond!

Hence the wide use of industrial diamonds to cut diamonds of the gem variety. Hence, too, the great popularity of diamond-tipped oil well drills and phonograph arms. Curiously, though diamonds are so valued as abrasives, diamond phonograph needles made today are prized far above sapphire needles by hi-fi buffs who treat their record collections with kid gloves. The explanation lies in the much longer life of the diamond needle and in the incredible gentleness with which it can be made to treat records. A pressure of only five grams is considered the maximum a phonograph needle should exert. The lowest-pressure diamond stylus pick-up yet produced exerts only three grams of pressure on a record. Developed by the Magnavox Co., this diamond-tipped record changer is said to be capable of playing records for a lifetime of normal use without noticeable wear or tonal deterioration.

This would probably be considered black magic by the ancients, who were willing to attribute all sorts of occult powers to the diamond. Many believed that the diamond had a soul which was offended if the gem were sold; it had to be given in friendship! Other superstitious folk allowed only at night, and that, if planted in the soil, they grew a few inches every two or three years.

In India, for centuries the diamond capital of the world, diamonds were thought to bring luck, success and eternal youth to their owners—if the sparklers were good. Inferior diamonds, however, were supposed to cause jaundice, lameness, and assorted other ills!

The Persians regarded the diamond as a source of sin and sorrow. But in medieval Europe, diamonds were prized for their ability to protect the wearer against poisons, plagues and pestilence. They also cured, insanity, insomnia and nightmares—but left the wearer subject to sleep-walking.

Some thought a diamond could make its wearer invincible; all agreed that it produced strength, courage, victory and spiritual ecstasy (a statement that would probably be endorsed by most owners of diamond engagement rings.)

Whether because of its "magical" powers or its dazzling personal appearance, the diamond is surrounded by more legends than any other precious stone. Almost all of the world's most famous diamonds have their own special folklore and superstitions. Take the case of the 108.9 carat Koh-i-noor diamond, supposed to be unlucky for kings to wear, but fine for queens. This superstition probably arose because Queen Victoria wore the huge Indian diamond as a personal ornament, in keeping with the wishes of her Indian subjects. Come to think of it, however, there was a male ruler who found the wearing of the Koh-i-noor unlucky. When the Persians invaded India many centuries ago, their systematic pillaging failed to uncover the gem. The conquered Mogul ruler—who has since given his name to bigwigs everywhere—had hidden it in his turban, which he never removed! Learning this secret from a treacherous harem lady, the Persian took advantage of an old Oriental custom to suggest an exchange of turbans as proof of friendship. The vanquished ruler dared not refuse—but it's a safe bet he didn't like his new headgear, no matter how flashy its style!

Perhaps the most famously "unlucky" diamond was the Hope. Once worn by a music hall actress who had married into the Hope clan, it was mistaken for a piece of stage jewelry by creditors who seized her trunks for debt in a rooming house. Later the gem was returned to the Hope family. In 1908, the Sultan of Turkey bought it for $400,000, but got little chance to enjoy its fascinating blue luster. Faced with a revolution at home, he sent it to Paris to be sold. It was acquired by Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean, who despite the legends never considered it unlucky. Many of her guests, including wives of G.I.'s stationed in Washington, wore the 44.5 carat gem during her parties. Today the Hope diamond belongs to the people of the United States; it was purchased after Mrs. McLean's death by jewel merchant Harry Winston, who in 1958 gave it to the Smithsonian Institute.

What's the biggest diamond of all time? According to researchers at the Magnavox

Soroptimists, Kiwanis Host Handicapped

With the approach of the Holiday season, various groups, sponsored by the Easter Seal Society of Western Wayne County, for physically handicapped children and adults, are looking forward to several festive events already being planned for them by their friends in the area.

The week after their Halloween party, given by the West Detroit Group of the Alpha Delta Pi Sorority, the Happy Friendship Club, made up of young adults, joined the Plymouth Kiwanis at a dinner meeting at the Mayflower Hotel in Plymouth. Both of these activities are annual affairs.

Now the group is looking ahead to a Thanksgiving Party, to be sponsored for them at the Easter Seal Center on Saturday, Nov. 19, by the Garden City Health Guild. Their Christmas party, will be held at the Easter Seal Center on Dec. 9, with the Venture Club of Wayne as hostess-sponsors.

The Telegraph Tabletop Assn. will entertain the crippled children who attended last summer's Day Camp at a Thanksgiving Dinner at the Easter Seal Center on Tuesday, Nov. 22. These same children will be given a Christmas Party by a troop of Dearborn Girl Scouts, many of whom assisted them as helpers during Day Camp.

The Friendly Circle, an Easter Seal Center group of physically handicapped men and women, will have two sponsors for their Christmas Party, scheduled at the Center for Dec. 14. A Holiday luncheon will be served by the Wayne Rotary Annex, and individually selected gifts will be provided by the Plymouth Soroptimist Club.

Services such as these supplement the resources of the Easter Seal Society of Western Wayne County which operates a social adjustment service program throughout the year, with funds secured during the annual distribution of Easter Seals at Easter time.

Anti-Defamation League Raps Plymouth's Pursell

Some voters were interested—maybe bemused is a better word—with the presence of R. Roy Pursell of Plymouth on the recent ballot as a candidate for Governor on the "Independent American Party" ticket.

Pursell had a few supporters in the area, most of them from Redford Township.

It wasn't particularly important but this newspaper never regarded the episode as funny, either. We've devoted many words to Pursell and his program in the past. He is a surviving ultra-right, "America First," super-patriot, cross-and-flag kind of American who almost vanished during the last war.

These kind of citizens sometimes can do a lot of mischief under the guise of "patriotism" and "religion," and specifically, they have created consternation with several school boards in the country. They even had a sort of "rebellion" going in South Redford's Board about two years ago, but it was snuffed out.

Anyway, in the wash of the election, the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith took the trouble to issue a special report to clearly describe their position toward Pursell and his fellow travelers. It says:

"Two parties appearing on the Nov. 8 ballot for the first time—the 'For Tax Cut for God and America' party, and 'The Independent American Party of Michigan.'"

The "For Tax Cut for God and America" party was best described in an article appearing in the Detroit News, Thursday, Nov. 3, as a party which "appears to have taken up where former Detroit Mayor Gerald L. K. Smith's America First Party left off." Among its candidates are Claude Buchanan Smith, 748 Van Dyke, Detroit, and Parzadia Parrish, 1527 25th, Detroit, running for Representative in Congress, and State Representative, respectively. Smith has long been known to the Michigan Anti-Defamation League as a prolific publisher and distributor of anti-Semitic pamphlets, including the vicious "Communism is Jewish" flyer which he published and distributed in huge quantities. Mrs. Parzadia Parrish is the wife of L. B. Parrish, organizer of the White Citizens' Council and States Rights Council of Michigan, and distributor of anti-Semitic tracts.

The nature of the "Independent American Party" can best be described by its leadership. The "Independent American Party" gubernatorial candidate is R. Roy Pursell.

A partial list of literature distributed by Pursell, through the facilities of the Pursell Publishing Co., 637 S. Main St., Plymouth, Mich., includes:

- (1) American Mercury Magazine, cited by ADL in an article which appeared in Newsweek Magazine, March 14, 1960, as "the single most important anti-Semitic publication in the United States."

(2) National Economic Council Newsletter, published by Merwin K. Hart, a notorious professional anti-Semite whose activities were closely examined by the House Select Committee on Lobbying Activities, of the 81st Congress. This committee stated, "One of the N.E.C.'s techniques is to disparage those who opposed its objectives by appeals to religious prejudice, often an ill-concealed anti-Semitism." The American Legion, Department of Illinois, in annual reports for 1949, 50 and 51, warned against Hart, and others of the same cloth.

(3) Books by Royal O. Rood. Royal O. Rood has distributed materials written by (A) the late William Guy Carr, Canadian anti-Semite, and (B) Kenneth Goff, Colorado bigot, former Communist, a former associate of the notorious Gerald L. K. Smith.

Along with activities in the Independent American Party, Pursell has been personally involved with Royal Rood's organization, "Responsible Enterprise Assn." At a recent Congress of Freedom meeting held in Ohio, copies of the "Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion," the vicious anti-Semitic forgery which serves as a "manual" for many bigots, were marked with Pursell's advertisements.

On Aug. 1, 1960, a Detroit insurance salesman was traveling in Plymouth, Michigan, and noticed a large multicolored sign in the window of Pursell's place of business, which read, "Just received—American Mercury—Patriots Love It." The salesman, out of curiosity, went into Pursell's store to inquire about this. Pursell asked him, "Do you like Jews?" to which the salesman replied, "I like everybody," to which Pursell replied, "Then you won't like the American Mercury."

On July 11, 1960, a meeting of the Independent American Party, of which Pursell was 1960 standard-bearer in Michigan, was held at the Helin Tackle Co., 4099 Beaufait, Detroit at 12 noon. Notices for the meeting were sent out by Mr. Charles Helin, president of the Helin Tackle Co., a Detroit businessman. The main speaker was Royal O. Rood, philosophical leader of the Independent American Party movement. Also in attendance was H. P. (Pete) Underwood, who was listed as one of the officers of the States Rights Council of Michigan. In 1958, the States Rights Council was denied a corporation charter by the Michigan Corporation & Securities Commission, which adjudged its purposes as segregationist and therefore unconstitutional.

Underwood ran for Michigan Secretary of State, and was a colleague of L. B. Parrish in the States Rights Council attempt. Independent American Party candidate for the Michigan legislature is Nina B. Hubbard, 800 Pallister, Detroit, a distributor of the late Gerald Winrod's ("The Jayhawk Nazi") "The Defender," published in Wichita.

Sidney J. Karbel, Michigan state chairman of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, stated, "The minuscule vote received by these parties indicate that Michigan voters are not readily confused by political groups whose chief adherents are recruited from the ranks of those who seek to create tensions between racial and religious groups."

"For Tax Cut" and "Independent American" parties in Michigan merely provided new cloaks for the same people."

By DAN HALLIGAN

Dear Dan: Our junior high school recently passed a code which, among other things, says there can be no organization sponsored dances for seventh and eighth graders. Most of us don't think this is very fair and would like your opinion.—Dancer.

Dear Dancer: The code is probably worthy enough but perhaps it's gone to extremes. Seventh and eighth graders should be allowed to dance in their own age groups but I think once-a-month school or church-sponsored dances are sufficient.

Children in the two age brackets shouldn't expect to have weekly dances like their older brothers and sisters may have.

Dear Dan: We've got a group of girls here who are forever pestering us to take them bowling and dancing or just riding around. Then when we go for a snack, they order a meal and you'd think they hadn't eaten for a week. They're nothing but clothes racks, changing into something new every day. Whose place is it to teach them the score, their parents or us?—Disgusted Don.

Dear Don: You sound like a boy who's about ready to swear off girls for life or else you just had a bad day. You know, no one's forcing you boys to date these girls and if you don't want to, don't.

Most girls realize the financial limitations of a teenage boy's wallet. From what you wrote, these girls think you're independently wealthy and unless you tell them your exact financial status, they may continue with the wrong impression.

Dear Dan: I'm the mother of two teen-agers, a girl of nearly 17 and a boy of 15, and have a problem concerning them. My children are probably no different than any others with the possible exception they think the world owes them a good time seven nights a week.

My husband doesn't think much of it and says I worry too much but I believe he's wrong. Both my teen-agers are active in school organizations and if they're not attending one meeting or another, they're on a date.

The four of us used to be very close and spend most of our evenings together but lately all I feel like is a cook and maid.

I don't want to be too strict with my two because I know their friends are allowed to do exactly as they're doing and sometimes even more.

Will they ever get over this selfish streak they have and is there anything I can do to help them? Thank you—Mrs. R. G.

Dear Mrs. R. G.: As you said, your teen-agers aren't much different than any others so in that respect, you don't have too serious a problem.

Before you go blaming teen-agers too much for being selfish and independent, keep in mind that for the most part they're only following the actions of their elders. I remember the days when families stayed home most of the time and when they did go out, they enjoyed simple pleasures such as going to the movies or visiting friends.

Nowadays when a man and woman visit friends, they keep their mouths shut and listening but they'll usually wind up with a deck of cards in their hands. Also, adults feel they have to join just about every organization under the sun.

So you see, teen-agers being involved in one organization or another aren't by themselves. However, in your particular case, I think perhaps your two children should be told you are still their mother and the authority in your home.

Handwriting Is Clue About You

Dear Miss Williams: Have wanted to write in for an analysis for a long time but just keep putting it off. I think your column is interesting and I would like to see what you have to say about my writing. James M.

Dear James: I can see why you kept putting off writing, because you are a born procrastinator, always putting off till tomorrow. Details irritate you and you do have a temper. Your tastes are rich—food, color, etc. You prefer deep, heavy tones in color and heavy foods different in any way. You like music, excitement, lots of variety and action.

You are quick thinking, very alert but not very diplomatic in handling others.

Dear Lucille Williams: My family wants me to write in and see what you'll find in my writing. I'm not sure why the sudden interest but we would like to see your analysis. M. B.

Dear M. B.: You are a very creative person and have good constructive ability with your hands. You are interested in music and like it. There is alertness, emphatic decision and a definite aim and purpose in life.

You are very determined, know what you want and go after it. Your talents are good and they will carry you far. You are ambitious, proud and level headed. You think carefully and logically. You will watch and think before you act.

I wrote early in October and have been watching your column ever since but didn't see my letter. Did I miss it or was it overlooked? S. L. T.

Your letter was not overlooked, none of them are. That's why there is a longer wait at times. With only one issue a week, it is hard to go through very many. At the time your letter came in (Oct. 5) there was an extra amount of mail and it's taken longer to get to it. P.S. It was next up.

You are very philosophical and have a very penetrating mind, sifting facts, probing and analyzing.

You are generous but with caution. You are somewhat emotional and have an expressive nature.

There is enthusiasm in your writing, you believe in your ideals and are loyal to what you feel is right. You have the ability to sweep others along with you.

You retain what you learn and can draw on your previous knowledge and experience whenever you wish.

You appreciate variety in affairs but not to the extent of confusion. Everything is orderly and well organized. Thank you for waiting.

Send your letters to Lucille Williams in care of this newspaper for free handwriting analysis.

How's Business?

Prosperity But No Profit

By ROGER W. BABSON

Latest government figures show that in the second quarter of 1960, Corporate Net Earnings were at an annual rate of $23.4 billion. This represented a decline of more than 6 percent from the $25.0-billion rate for the first three months of this year and of nearly 11 percent from the $26.2-billion rate of a year ago.

Taking the broad industry groupings, the government's statistics show that companies in the financial, communications, utilities, and services fields were able to hold their own or show continued advances. Producers of nondurable goods also increased their earnings.

Except for isolated instances, therefore, the decrease in profits occurred primarily in the durable-goods manufacturing sector. Hardest hit were companies in primary metals manufacturing, paced by producers of iron and steel. Lower earnings were also reported by manufacturers of nonelectrical machinery and transportation equipment.

Using the Gross National Product as a barometer of economic health for the country, the annual rate of over $500 billion for 1960 indicates that we are still prosperous. Hence, the sizable contraction of aggregate business profits—with industrial activity holding within 4 percent of its all-time high—suggests that the squeeze on profits is serious.

If Your Name Should Be Elma

By ANN REYNOLDS

This name can be traced to a bewildering number of different beginnings. I'll take them one by one. In the noble British family of Elgin, way back in 1842, an oldest daughter was given the name Elma. In her case this was a new creation, made to order for her from the beginning syllables of her mother's two names, which were Elizabeth and Mary.

The name took hold in the Elgin family, and it could easily be that other parents liked it and adopted it for their own baby girls. Incidentally, one member of the Elgin family was Thomas Bruce, 7th Earl of Elgin, a British officer and diplomat; he brought the so-called Elgin Marbles to England. These are ancient sculptures from Athens; some of them are now in the British Museum in London, while copies can be seen in the Metropolitan Museum, N. Y.

If "Elma" is the name of a girl of Italian background, it usually is short for "Guglielma." This is the Italian form of the name "William" and adapted for girls; "William," in turn, is from the Old Germanic, and the ancient Germans made it up from two words, the first of them "wilja," meaning "will," the second "helma," which is "helmet."

"Elma" can also be the feminine form for "Elmo." This is the Italian variation of the men's name "Erasmus," which is Greek, and means "lovable." The most famous Erasmus was Desiderius Erasmus of Rittendam, the Dutch scholar, one of the greatest humanists of the Renaissance. There was also a martyr called St. Erasmus or St. Elmo. He suffered death on the wheel in 304 A.D. at Formie, a town in ancient Italy, during a persecution of Christians under the Roman emperor Diocletian. This St. Elmi is revered by Italian sailors as their patron saint, and an interesting electric phenomenon is called, for him, St. Elmo's fire.

This is a light, or sometimes two, appearing in the form of a globe or a brush at the top of ship-masts, spires and other pointed objects during storms. Superstitious Mediterranean mariners believed these lights to be the souls of the departed, and whenever they appeared during a storm, they evoked St. Elmo's help. This electric phenomenon was known also to the ancient Greeks; they called it, if there was one such light, Helena, if two, Castor and Pollux.

"Elmo" and "Elma" are also the shortened forms for "Anselmo" and "Anselma," in Italy. "Anselmo" is from the old Germanic "Anselm," in German today "Anselm." It is made up of two Old Germanic words. The first is "ansi" a pagan god, and the second "helma," the word contained also in "William," meaning "helmet," as mentioned already. One St. Anselm, born in Northern Italy, became Archbishop of Canterbury in the 11th century.

While producers of hard goods have been able to direct payroll costs in line with the downturn in output by holding off non-essential hirings and shortening work weeks, steady pressure from indirect labor costs, taxes, and overhead expenses makes profits vulnerable to the slowdown in sales. In addition, costly investments for modernization must be depreciated.

Reports flowing in from companies which regularly publish earnings figures reveal that profits declined further during the third quarter of 1960. In view of the continued lethargic business climate, this downturn in profits may even persist through year's end.

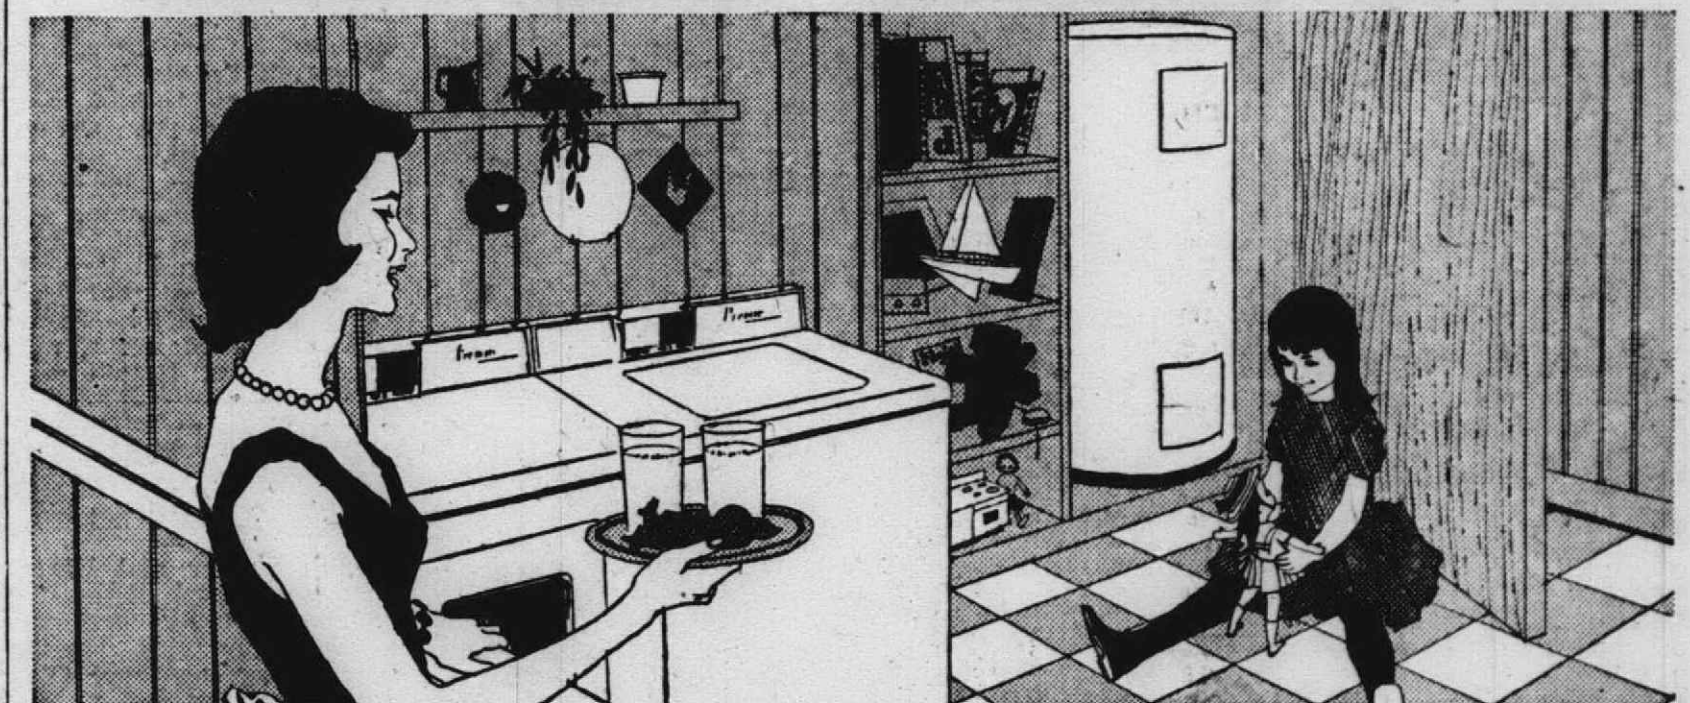

Pierre Renoir, the French impressionist, who died in 1919, created more than 6,000 paintings.

why there's no water heater like an ELECTRIC WATER HEATER

YOU CAN PUT IT ANYWHERE—even in an air-tight closet. Because there's no flame, an electric water heater doesn't need air flow to support combustion, or a vent to carry off fumes. There's even a table-top model you can put under the counter in the kitchen or utility room. Here's the only heater you can always place close to point of greatest hot water use.

HOTTER HOT WATER WHENEVER YOU NEED IT. Some laundering requires very hot water to get clothes really clean. Dishwashers, too, need water that's very hot. Remember, an electric water heater can keep on and on, delivering the extra-hot water needed without burning out.

OPERATING COSTS ARE AMAZINGLY LOW. The popular 50-gallon heater will meet the needs of 8 out of 10 families. Using estimated operating costs for this size unit, a plentiful supply of hot water for all family needs should cost you less than 15c a day!

PLENTY OF HOT WATER ROUND THE CLOCK. For dishes, laundry, baths, there's always plenty of hot water available. Electric water heaters have two heating units: one for normal use, the other for those occasions when there's an extra demand for hot water.

Hoax of the Century - Who Planted Mr. Piltdown?

"Missing Link Discovered!" hit the headlines in 1917. Darwin said a common ancestor for man and the great apes existed ... and here it was!

Charles Dawson, an ardent collector of fossils, was notified when workmen excavating near Piltdown Common in England found fragments of an ancient skull. Dawson and a few of the great scientists of the day pieced together the skull, composed of a skull cap apparently belonging to early man and a jaw very like that of a modern chimpanzee. What could be more conclusive proof of Darwin's theory?

The Piltdown find got enormous publicity in the press and its discoverer shared the limelight. Men of science the world over were drawn to Piltdown Common to examine the site and the mysterious skull itself.

From the very beginning, there were those who believed Mr. Piltdown was a fraud ... but almost 40 years elapsed without evidence of a hoax.

In 1953, a few doubting anatomists obtained permission to test the precious jaw and while drilling the bone, one of the lab assistants noticed an odor similar to the one we smell when a dentist is drilling our teeth.

The smell of fresh teeth or bone burning ... not fossils! The hoax was exposed. The jaw was that of a modern chimpanzee. The skull and teeth had been specially treated to give the appearance of age.

The entertainment world has also had its share of fakes, frauds, hoaxers and just plain practical jokers. The best remembered is Phineas T. Barnum.

With all the ups and downs of his colorful life (he ended his career as a newspaper publisher with a libel suit and in 1913, Charles Dawson, an ardent collector of fossils, found what appeared to be the jaw and skull of an ancient man — the missing link. For some 40 years, the find was treasured as proof of Darwin's evolution theory. In 1953, Piltdown man was exposed as a hoax. The jaw was a jaw of a modern chimpanzee specially treated to give the appearance of age.

Piltdown Man

In 1913, Charles Dawson, an ardent collector of fossils, found what appeared to be the jaw and skull of an ancient man — the missing link. one of his extravagant publicity releases. The people flocked to get a peek at the ancient woman who, incidentally, died at the tender age of 80.

Barnum's Greatest Show on Earth featured a mermaid and a whale. The mermaid, as the public laughingly learned, was a monkey in a fish's tail, the whale was made of cloth.

Phineas' biggest problem when he opened his museum in Bridgeport, Conn., was moving enthralled visitors quickly through the building. Barnum's profits wouldn't skyrocket if he couldn't accommodate large numbers.

One day, signs were posted throughout the museum reading "This Way To The Egress—See The Egress!" Expecting another fabulous sight, throngs of visitors pushed their way in the direction of the "Egress" and found themselves ... out on the street. Egress, after all, is only a fancy word for exit!

Yet the great Barnum's tricks were child's play compared with the master hoaxes of Ferdinand Demara. Demara, whose life is the subject of a new Universal-International movie called "The Great Impostor," made a career of assumed identities. In real life, he appeared in so many guises he soon lost count.

As a young soldier — portrayed in the motion picture by Tony Curtis — Demara learned that his education didn't qualify him for officer's training. Disappointed, he went AWOL, borrowed the credentials of a noted doctor and assumed this man's identity.

When life as Dr. Gilbert became impractical, he joined a Trappist monastery. Unsuccessful here, he secured a position as warden at a penitentiary and succeeded in reforming one of the toughest cell blocks in the state.

The "warden" next became a professor of psychology at a university, winning particular popularity with the school's football team. Yet the most astonishing of all Demara's impersonations was that of a surgeon with the Royal Canadian Navy. The great impostor—who had gone only as far as second year in high school—operated on 19 patients, saving the life of each one!

When his medical career became jeopardized, the great impostor disappeared for a while. He later turned up in the guise of Sergeant Wilkerson, a Main State policeman, who was called upon to help locate one Ferdinand Demara, notorious impersonator!

Throughout life, Demara always kept one step ahead of the authorities. Few films boast a true-life background as fantastic as "The Great Impostor's."

As the master hoaxer, Demara reigns supreme, and his boldness and wit will win him a place in history. Yet where is the line that separates a practical joke from a hoax and a hoax from a fraud?

New Pain Killer for Childbirth

By Amelia Lobson, Society of Magazine Writers

Down through the centuries, labor and childbirth have been a mixed blessing and a painful event for the mother, but sometimes hazardous for both mother and infant. Today, women, as a rule, are concerned not only about their own health during the many months of pregnancy, but even more with the well-being of the babies they will bring into the world.

Doctors have always shared these concerns of mothers-to-be, and in recent years physicians have greatly improved anesthetic techniques, added new anesthetic agents, and introduced antibiotics, as well as new pain killing drugs for use in labor. Medical research into all aspects of sterility, miscarriages and labor continue unabatedly.

Earlier this year a clinical investigation was conducted in Phoenix, Ariz. to determine the effectiveness in labor of a new pain killing drug called Numorphan. The study showed that this new drug was very effective in relieving the pain of labor.

According to the study, labor appeared to be shortened, and a high percentage of patients experienced relief from labor pain, while the effects of the drug on the babies was almost negligible. It was reported that 97 percent of mothers receiving Numorphan had satisfactory relief of labor pain and discomfort.

The report was presented by the investigators, Drs. Donald L. Snow and Edward Sattenspiel to the doctors attending the Pan American Medical Association in Mexico City in May. Other medical reports have confirmed the findings in this study and hospital reports throughout the country are now using this new drug for allaying the pain of childbirth.

To mothers reading this, the development of Numorphan is just another step forward in the march of medical progress. Actually, the story of Numorphan is far from the ordinary and commonplace, since the initial phases of the work leading to the development of this new drug was begun nearly 20 years ago.

A chemist who fled from his homeland when Hitler overran Europe, worked continuously and arduously on the drug for 17 years before it was ready to be introduced to the medical profession. Even after it was introduced, it was subjected to further tests. Only when a quarter of a million doses of the drug had been administered to check its effectiveness and safety was it made available to the medical profession for general use.

Two From Here In Madonna Investiture Rites

Investiture ceremonies will highlight the Thanksgiving week activities for two local area girls attending Madonna College.

Mary Reed, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Mainville, 1321 Ross, and Judith Walsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Walsh, 42066 E. Ann Arbor Trail, will be among 76 Madonna freshmen to receive the collegiate cap and gown, Sunday, Nov. 20, in the College chapel at 3 p.m.

Fr. Francis Kolb, resident chaplain, will bless the academic attire and present it to the freshmen. An address by Monsignor Vincent Horkan, archdiocesan superintendent of parochial schools, will keynote the significance of the event.

After the ceremony and formal pledge of loyalty to the ideals and interests of their Alma Mater, the invested freshmen will entertain their parents and friends at a reception in the Social lounge.

In the same week, on Tuesday, Nov. 22, 13 seniors will receive the symbol of loyalty to their Alma Mater—the college ring. The ceremony will be part of the traditional Thanksgiving dinner. Officiating at the ceremony will be Fr. James T. Shannon, administrator of Holy Cross parish, Marine City.

Prison Branch of Alcoholics Anonymous Helps Men To Make It Outside

CUMMINS PRISON FARM, Ark. (UPI) — Arkansas Prison Supt. Lee Henslee had a long distance telephone call late one night from Chicago. The man at the other end had violated his parole from the Arkansas penitentiary by getting drunk, and was ready to return and "face the music."

Henslee sent him a bus ticket, and the man returned and served out his sentence. Henslee heard from the man again recently. He had taken a job, received promotions, and was in the $15,000-a-year income bracket—strictly legitimate.

The superintendent attributes the man's comeback to membership in an organization set up at the prison farm eight years ago — the Arkansas Fellowship of Alcoholic Prisoners. It is a branch of Alcoholics Anonymous. It was Henslee himself who had the idea for the organization.

"Most of the men are in the penitentiary because of fast living, drinking, gambling and women, and it usually started from drinking," Henslee said. A recent anniversary meeting drew former inmates from all parts of the nation, and more than 200 are expected for the 1960 event. Henslee said 17 men were in the original group. The organization now has 177 active members. A chapter for women prisoners was organized in 1952. Many of the alumni keep in touch through the secretary, who usually is one of the convict-aides to the superintendent, or through the superintendent himself. The units meet one night each week. Each Sunday afternoon all seven units meet in the prison dining room. An open meeting is held the fourth Sunday in each month, and outside members of AA may attend. The units receive two mimeographed publications each month, published by the inmates. Henslee said alcohol can continue to be a problem after the men are committed to prison. One of the trusty truck drivers recently took in a bottle of vodka. He gave another trusty part of it to bury the bottle in a stall in the horse barn. Prison officials heard of the contraband through the grapevine, and confiscated more than half the contents of the bottle. Several years ago, Henslee sponsored legislation which made it a felony for anyone to take alcoholic drinks onto prison property. The trusty faces from one to three additional years for violation, will lose his privileges and be returned to the banks to work in the fields.

First-Rate Family Dinner

Need something new flavor-wise to boost appetites? Something to stretch the food dollars until pay day? About this time of year most people need such a menu booster, and Viennas With Sauerkraut is the lucky find. Beef flavored tomato sauce and Vienna sausage go well with the tanginess of sauerkraut to make a first-rate main dish. To round out the menu, add baked potatoes and apple, crushed pineapple and nut salad, letting it do double duty as a dessert.

- | Viennas With Sauerkraut            |                                     |
|------------------------------------|-------------------------------------|
| 2 cans (4 oz. each) Vienna sausage | 1 teaspoon sugar                    |
| 1/2 cup butter, or margarine       | 1/2 cup canned condensed beef broth |
| 1 large onion                      | 1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce          |
| 2 cloves garlic                    | 1 can (1 lb. 11 oz.) sauerkraut     |
| 2 tablespoons flour                |                                     |

Brown drained Vienna sausage in butter; remove sausages. Cook chopped onion and minced garlic in butter until tender. Stir in flour and sugar. Add beef broth and tomato sauce; cook until thickened; stirring. Mix drained sauerkraut into the sauce and arrange sausages on top; cover and heat slowly a few minutes. Four to six servings.

Alice Swainson Sees Job As First Lady 'Challenging'

"The idea of being first lady is certainly challenging," Mrs. John Swainson declared before the election, and a little frightening. Now, the challenge is no longer in the idea stage. With the win of her husband at the polls Tuesday, Alice Swainson will take over the governor's mansion in Lansing come the first of next year.

Alice Swainson

The Swainsons moved to Plymouth four years ago from Redford Township. While Lt. Governor Swainson tries to spend as much time as possible at his home on Gov. Bradford Rd., Mrs. Swainson is seen much more in Plymouth than her famous husband. Once a student of music, Alice Swainson sings with the Plymouth Civic Chorus. She is also a member of the Bird School P.T.A., the St. Mary's Hospital Guild, Plymouth Democratic Club, Michigan Assn. for Emotionally Disturbed Children, Lawyers Wives of Michigan and the alumni association of Sigma Beta Sorority.

Born Alice Nielsen, March 31, 1927 in Detroit, she graduated from Jackenzie High School. She met John while they were attending Olivet College where they were married July 21, 1946. They lived out of the state while John was earning his A.B. and L.B. degrees from the University of North Carolina, but returned to Detroit in 1951. Although she has had the river and John grew up in Port Huron. While in France during World War II, Swainson lost both legs following a land mine explosion. He first entered politics in 1954, winning nomination and election to the State Senate from the 18th District. He was re-elected to a second term in 1956 and two years later was elected lieutenant governor by a plurality of 161,000 votes.

GUILT'S COMMON DENVER (UPI) — Do you feel guilty when you use convenience foods? If you do, you have plenty of company. Mrs. Jeannette Lynch, food marketing specialist with the Colorado Extension Service, said a survey on motivations and values among homemakers showed that young homemakers have guilt feelings when buying food in forms more convenient than those used by their mothers.

A kitchen range with all burners and ovens operating releases enough heat into the kitchen and surrounding rooms to keep a three ton air conditioner operating for several hours to remove it without doing any additional cooling of the house.

The Swainsons have three children, Stephen, 12, Peter, 10, and Kristina, 2. The governor-elect was born in Windsor on July 31, 1925. At the age of two his family moved across

Sparkling Lunch-Box Meals

By Rosella Bannister
Wayne County Extension Agent

Good lunch-box meals have these qualities — they are nutritious, appetizing, economical, colorful, and they sometimes have a "surprise."

Lunch-box meals should supply "protective" foods as well as "energy" foods. Protective foods include meats, eggs, or cheese, fresh fruits and vegetables. High energy foods are bread, cookies, cakes and other desserts. In every lunch-box, try to include something crisp, something juicy, one hot, one sweet, one tart or salty, and one or more colorful foods. Sandwiches are usually the basis of lunch-box menus. Be sure to spread butter all the way to the edges of the bread. Some sandwiches freeze satisfactorily. Avoid using raw vegetables, hard-cooked egg whites, fruit jellies and mayonnaise in frozen sandwiches.

Sandwich fillings that freeze satisfactorily are cheddar or cream cheese, sliced or ground meat or poultry, and cooked egg yolk. You may freeze a two week's supply of sandwiches at one time, wrapped separately. Allow about three hours for frozen sandwiches to thaw.

- Sandwich Fillings
1. Grated cheese with chopped pickle and dressing.
  2. Cottage cheese with jam and nuts.
  3. Chopped hard-cooked egg with ground ham and dressing.
  4. Ground cooked liver with crumbled bacon and dressing.
  5. Salami with shredded cabbage and dressing.
  6. Peanut butter with honey, orange juice and raisins.

- Lunch-Box Salads:
1. Celery, stuffed with grated cheese and dressing.
  2. Carrot, celery or green pepper sticks.
  3. Cucumber or radish slices.
  4. Cabbage or lettuce wedges.
  5. Small whole tomatoes.
  6. Fresh fruits and fruit salads.

- Thermos Bottle Ideas
1. Milk, buttermilk, or cold chocolate milk.
  2. Hot chocolate, or hot coffee with milk.
  3. Hot or cold cider.
  4. Hot or cold seasoned tomato juice.
  5. Beef broth, vegetable soup.
  6. Cream of mushroom, bean or tomato soup.
- And For Dessert
1. A different fruit each day — grapes, pears, peaches, apples.
  2. Cookies, candy and moist cupcakes.

For A Surprise

1. A special "love note" from Mother.
2. An extra nickel for mad money.
3. A new pencil for Johnnie.
4. A dress pin for Jenny's dress.
