Chamber To Visit Schools

A chance to see how tax dollars are spent in the classroom will be given members of the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce Thursday, May 11 when they will be guests at the Senior and Junior High Schools.

Called "Education Business Day," the event has been set up through the cooperation of the Education Committee of the Chamber and the School District. Last year senior students were invited to visit local business and industry.

Chamber members will start their visitations at 9:15 a.m. at either the Junior or Senior High Schools. They may visit any classroom that is in progress that interests them. They will be invited to ask questions or participate in any class discussion.

Junior High Band Scores Top Honors

For the fifth time since 1954, the 95-piece Rocket Band representing Plymouth Junior High School, brought home top honors to the red and white by receiving a First Division Superior rating in the State Band and Orchestra Festival held at Grand Rapids on Saturday.

The band stayed overnight at the Pantlind Hotel and played at the Riverside Junior High School in competition with 12 other bands in Class A Junior High (junior high schools with an enrollment of 50-1,100).

Judges for the concert part of the program were Leonard Falcone, director of bands at Michigan State University; William Fitch from Eastern Michigan University and Wayne Reger from Massillon, Ohio. All three concert judges awarded the band a First Division Rating for their performance.

The sight reading judge was Glenn Smith from the University of Michigan. He gave the group a Second Division, Excellent, Rating in sight reading. Combining these ratings by a formula used in the State Band and Orchestra Association Festivals resulted in the top rating.

The High School visit will end at 11:30 and the Junior High at 11:45. At 11:45, the group will have luncheon at the Junior High cafeteria. At 12:30, they will go to another room for entertainment by the Triple Trios and then a panel discussion on the subject, "Your Education Tax Dollars in Action."

Master of ceremonies will be Dr. A. E. Van Ornum, chairman of the Education Committee. Panel moderator will be Supt. Russell Isbister while panel members will be Harold Niemi, School Board president; Carvel Bentley, High School principal; William Harding, Junior High principal; Urey Arnold, High School coordinator of occupational training; and Ray Borzi, teacher.

Plymouth Heights Election Clarified

Those voting in the Plymouth Heights election on July 25 will vote only upon the charter commissioners, and not on whether they want the City of Plymouth Heights, it was noted this week.

Clarification of the point was made by Township Clerk Fred L. Miles. In previous stories, it was mentioned that there would be a vote on Plymouth Heights and on charter commissioners.

But the Clerk pointed out that since a petition was filed within 10 days after the last election, there need not be another vote on the question of whether Plymouth Heights is to be formed. The July 25 vote will consider only the election of nine charter commissioners who will have two years to offer a charter.

WITH high hats and canes, this quintet will be one of the numbers presented Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the annual water show, "Sketches in Water Colors." Presented by the Water Waves and Dolphin Club.

Asks Public to Air Views On School Hour Changes

School Superintendent Russell Isbister will present his final recommendations for changes in opening and closing time for the public schools at a public hearing of the Board of Education to be held in the Junior High School library next Monday (May 8) at 7:30 p.m.

At present, all school children start school at about the same time and are dismissed at various hours depending mainly upon the bus schedule. The proposed schedule would start Junior and Senior High students earlier and would dismiss them earlier than the elementary pupils.

The superintendent's recommendations are as follows:

- Kindergarten: morning session, 8:45 to 11:30 p.m.; afternoon session, 12:35 to 3:30 p.m. Elementary schools: first and second grades, start at 8:45 a.m. and dismiss at 3:20 p.m. Elementary schools: third through sixth grades, start at 8:45 a.m. and dismiss at 3:30 p.m. Junior High School: start at 8 a.m. and dismiss at 2:50 p.m. Senior High School: start at 8 a.m. and dismiss at 2:38 p.m. (Those taking an optional seventh hour will be dismissed at 3:38 p.m.)

children due to the bus schedule, are deprived of a full day in school. "Some children are forced to leave school on an early bus while others must wait as long as 40 minutes after school for their bus to arrive," the superintendent. (Continued on Page 10)

OK Parking Lot Program

$118,900 Plan Passes Hearing

With surprisingly little resistance at the public hearing, City Commissioners moved ahead Monday night on a $118,900 special assessment program that will enlarge and improve the Central Parking Lot. Next Monday they will hold a hearing on another parking project for the north side of Penniman Ave.

Only a handful of the 31 property owners affected by the proposed special assessment attended the hearing and only one expressed any type of objection.

As a result of the hearing, the Commission voted to direct the city manager to prepare the assessment roll and present the roll May 15. The hearing will be in June.

The Central Parking Lot program came about through the effort of a Parking Committee appointed last year by former Mayor Harold G. Gifford. The committee held many meetings and as a result came up with the $118,900 project that includes the following:

Pay off the balance of $21,600 on the Bronson Building, pay balance of $5,000 on Richwine Building; pay for the Newell residence, 335 Harvey at $16,000, the Moon house, 343 S. Harvey for $16,000 and acquire the Manning residence, 355 S. Harvey, for $22,000. The Newell and Moon home purchases have already been completed.

For making physical improvements, the program calls for razing the Bronson Building for $4,000, razing and backfilling four basements at $3,200, blacktopping for $13,440, install storm sewers at $3,000, catch basins at $2,000, concrete islands at $4,000, painting at $125, remove and replace curb at $1,320, remove and replace approaches at $720, and contingencies at $2,495.

The 144-car parking lot will gain around 80 more parking spaces, it is estimated.

Half of the total cost will be paid by the City-at-large while the remaining half of $59,450 will be paid through special assessments of building owners surrounding all four sides of the parking lot and the west side of Harvey opposite the lot. The latter group, however, will pay a reduced amount since they

A number of Plymouth area elected officials and company executives will meet next Wednesday (May 10) as members of a newly-formed advisory committee for the proposed Northwest Wayne County Community College.

The Executive Committee has appointed the advisory group to assist them in bringing the Community College proposal to the public. The first meeting will be held at noon at Danny's Suburban Chop House in Livonia.

Dr. William Sturton, vice-president of the University of Michigan, who is in charge of the University's Dearborn Center, will address the group and assist them in organizing.

It is expected that the Advisory Committee will be able to strengthen the efforts of the Executive Committee in disseminating information concerning a community college in the area.

Those from Plymouth on the 33-member committee are:

Frank Arlen, representing Mayor Robert Sincock for the City of Plymouth; Township Supervisor Roy Lindsay; Milton J. Bradley, plant manager of Whitman & Barnes;

Also, Perry Richwine, vice-president of First Federal Savings & Loan Co.; Louis Stein, supervisor of Canton Township; Charles Stofko, general manager of Barnes-Gibson - Raymond Division; James Thomas, district manager of Consumers Power; Floyd Kehrl, vice-president of National Bank of Detroit.

Voters will decide June 12 if they want to support a community college.

Mail Offers Chance To 'Sound Off' About City

What do you think about the service offered by the City of Plymouth? Is it good? Bad? Or poor?

This is the question that residents of the City are being urged to ask themselves in a questionnaire below. It lists a number of services that the City offers and asks residents of the City (not the Township) to check rate each.

The first question asks you to check rate the City Commission itself on the type of job you feel it is doing. An "adequate" rating would mean that you feel that it is doing the type of job that it should in a community this size. A "fair" rating may mean that it is doing all right, but could improve. And, of course, a poor rating would mean that it is not doing at all the job it should.

The form also provides several lines to elaborate upon any of the check marks, or comment on any other complaint or compliment that the resident may wish.

At the bottom, the resident does not need to sign his name, but should give his street and what intersection it is near. Some of the services may be good in some neighborhoods and poor in others, so this will pinpoint the area that may need attention.

City Commissioners often complain that too many citizens fail to express their wishes or complaints to the City - but often direct them to neighbors or friends. This will give residents a chance to easily express yourself. And if you have no complaint, Commissioners would even like to hear about that too.

THIS IS an artist's conception of Plymouth Bowl, a new bowling establishment that will be constructed soon on Plymouth

Rd. in Plymouth Township. The manager will be Jack Young, formerly of Plymouth.

Plymouth and the Civil War

Lonesome Plymouth Soldier Writes Home

By Jean Campau (This is the fourth in a series of articles about Plymouth and the role its citizens played in the Civil War 100 years ago.)

While history depicts the factual and tactical side of an epochal era and satisfies the readers' intellect, it often leaves a void in the emotions and lacks identification with the people of the age. The intimate period glimpses can only be seen in the mind's eye by reviving the words of the participants. With this thought in mind we offer a series of letters written by several Plymouth soldiers.

The linking and underlying thread in all of the letters seems to be the heartfelt and passionate need for news from the folks at home.

Lt. Lucius L. Shattuck was 26 and a bachelor at the time of enlistment in August 1862. He had been a student at the University of Michigan. When the call for more troops came from President Lincoln, Lucius, as he was called by his loved ones, was living at home with his widowed mother, Sarah, and his sister, Ellen. The family farm home was located at the intersection of Haggerty and Plymouth Roads, the site now occupied by the Burroughs Corp.

Lucius entered service as a sergeant in Co. C and was promoted to second lieutenant on March 1, 1863. He was killed in action in the battle of Gettysburg, July 1, 1863.

Camp Shearer, Sept. 22d 1862

Dear Ellen:

It is washing day and when I had finished up and got my clothes all hung out, I went down to the P.O. (which is the Camp Chest in the Captain's tent), I found not a letter there from home as I expected, but something towards it, that is, a paper, directed by you. My day's work had not made me so tired but that I could read it quite through and commence this letter to you beside. The paper looks very much like home, and quite acceptable. You need not feel concerned about my strength being overtaxed today (or rather tonight) in writing this after a large washing. Our arrangements for doing the housework and the laundry work are so very convenient that one can accomplish an incredible amount in a short time. For instance our laundry is furnished with a fine stream of water running through the room, which is so well finished and furnished that Uncle Sam uses it for Parlor, Bedroom, Chamber, and Kitchen. In the laundry nothing is required but to rub a little soap on the clothes, rinse them in cold water, hang them on a bush for an

ON RECORD: The City's supervisor, A. E. Vallier, reported that a formal protest has been made to the county over the personal property equalization given the City this year. Today a similar protest is being given the State Tax Commission. The State claims personal property should not be assessed over 50 percent of true value but Wayne County will assess it at 61.22 per cent this year. Plymouth has protested for the past three years.

There will be a "Wonderland of Food" awaiting shoppers at the new Kroger store at 240-250 N. Main St., according to H. A. Gifford, vice-president of the retail food firm's Detroit Division.

The modern and complete food store opens its doors at 9 a.m. Tuesday, May 9.

Every detail of the new store has been planned to make shopping easier and more convenient for the customer. Gifford explained. The ideas were contributed by homemakers throughout Kroger's 21 state area and carried out through the combined efforts of the Kroger organization. The new store will be completely self-service from the rows of canned goods to the self-service meat department. Other features designed to appeal to homemakers will include (Continued on Page 10)

DR. MARION Weberlein, Plymouth's only woman veterinarian, steadying one of her furry patients prior to examination in her newly opened Plymouth Veterinary Hospital at 367 S. Harvey.

No More Lions for City's Only Lady Veterinarian

It's a happy blend when one's life work corresponds with one's chief interest. This is the case with Plymouth's only lady veterinarian, Dr. Marion Weberlein.

From the time she was a little girl there have been a succession of dogs, cats and horses making their home with the Herman Weberlein family. And with these visitors came the growing conviction within Marion that the life of an animal doctor was for her.

For six years she studied at Michigan State, the only college in Michigan where one may become a veterinarian. Upon graduation, she worked at the Parkway Clinic and did intermittent relief veterinarian work in the Detroit area and southeastern Michigan.

It was during this period that she was on hand when a lion, who was the pet of Fernald residents, was de-clawed. This took some doing, according to Dr. Weberlein, for before the lion could receive sedation by injection it was necessary for him to be docile enough to offer no resistance to the needle. This was accomplished by giving him phenol barbital. The entire operation required several hours of patience on the part of both the doctors and the patient.

Her own practice is limited to small animals, which she specialized in. Cats and dogs of all sizes, ages and breeds are brought to her Plymouth Veterinary Hospital. Most of the furry patients, though, are young and come in for check-ups and shots and to be de-wormed if necessary. When we asked the doctor if the animals miss being away from home, she replied, "No, most animals with a little extra attention, soon have confidence in the doctor and become very friendly and cooperative."

Her new hospital has become sort of a family affair. Her father is helping remodel the building located at 367 S. Harvey, her mother is in the process of making cafe drapes for the windows and Susan, a Plymouth High School senior, assists her doctor sister with some of the patients. Another sister, Betty, works for a veterinarian in Redford Township.

Marion, herself a graduate of Plymouth High, was born and raised in Plymouth and thinks there is no place like it. At the family home on Herald St., the family enjoys the companionship of Marion's pets, which include Hildie, a Doberman pinscher, four dachshunds, a mother and her three children, Liesel, Gus, Gretel and Hans and a most unusual pet ocelot, who sometimes answers to the name of Willie.

Public Lecture to Discuss Puzzling Question -- 'What Is Modern Art?'

Members of the Three Cities Art Club will try to answer the puzzling question, "What Is Modern Art?" at a public lecture held Tuesday, May 9 at 8 p.m. in the Dunning-Hough Library.

A film on modern art will be shown, followed by a discussion led by John E. Van Haven, instructor in art at Eastern Michigan University.

Specializing in the medium of water color, Van Haven's paintings have been accepted for several years for the Michigan Artists Show. He currently is included in the Michigan Water Color Society's Traveling Show, and has again been accepted to exhibit in this year's show to be seen at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

The public is being invited to attend this third annual lecture in art offered by the Three Cities Art Club. Questions on all phases of art will be welcomed and answered by Van Haven.

Paintings by members of the club will be on exhibit in the library. The lecture will be free of charge.

Civil War Guns Will Boom At Symphony Pops Concert

Some real Civil War guns will echo through the High School gymnasium Saturday, May 20 when the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra's fifth annual Pops Concert devotes a portion of its program to music from the Civil War era.

One of the featured numbers on the program will be "Civil War Fantasy," a medley of songs from the North and South arranged by Jerry Bilik, arranger for the University of Michigan band and a member of the Plymouth Symphony.

A battle sequence has been arranged within the "Fantasy" where Civil War rifles and sidearms will be used. Cass Piotrowski, collector of guns living in Hamtramck, will be in charge of this sequence.

Also featured will be Ed Bandhart, who will sing several folk songs accompanied by his own guitar. He is director of vocal music at Belleville.

Concluding the program will be a "sing along" section in which the audience will be invited to sing some of the old favorites of the Civil War, such as "John Brown's Body," and "When Johnny Comes Marching Home."

Conductor Wayne Dunlap has announced that "American Patrol" will open the program. There will also be a section of Broadway musical hits, "Sound of Music" and "March of the Siamese Children" from The King and I.

Another portion will be entitled, "What's the Name of That Tune?" in which the audience will be asked to write on their programs the names of several selections that they win's famous "Rhapsody in Blue" with Lacey Stark of the University of Michigan as piano soloist.

Like former Pops Concerts, the audience sits around tables and can purchase refreshments. Reservations for tables, costing $1.50 each, can be obtained at Melody House 5, Bleacher seats are also available for $1.

Janet Mackie Wins National Merit Award

Janet Sandra Mackie of 113 W. Maple Ave., a student at Plymouth High School, has won a National Merit Scholarship in nationwide competition. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Howard R. Mackie.

The sponsor of the scholarship is the National Merit Scholarship Corp. (NMSC), which awards National Merit Scholarships through funds provided in its founding grants.

In addition, corporations, foundations, professional associations, and other organizations annually offer Merit Scholarships, each bearing the name of its sponsor. Most of these are also being announced today.

All Merit Scholars are selected from the finalists in an annual academic competition conducted in cooperation with secondary schools. The scholarships are four-year undergraduate awards. Stipends are based on need and may be adjusted if the student's need changes. The minimum award is $400 ($100 a year) and the maximum is $6,000 ($1,500 a year). The average stipend is now about $825 a year. Most Merit Scholarships include a grant to the college the student attends.

The National Merit Scholars are chosen by the NMSC Selection Committee, a panel of educators skilled in academic selection. Selections, which are made separately for each state, are based on a full evaluation of a variety of information about each finalist.

NMSC is an independent, nonprofit corporation. Its chief purpose is to discover and recognize exceptionally talented young people and to encourage and assist them to obtain a college education. NMSC also provides services to corporate and other sponsors who wish to underwrite their own Merit Scholarships.

Janet will major in chemical engineering at the University of Michigan. She plans a career in chemical engineering.

She is a member of the Girls' Athletic Ass'n. and is a charter member of the Plymouth Symphony for the purpose of helping to support the Junior Symphony and to send promising young musicians to the National Music Camp at Interlochen.

Doyle Resigns As Cage Coach

Plymouth Athletic Director John Sandmann today announced the resignation of Plymouth basketball coach Jim Doyle.

Doyle resigned for "personal reasons."

He'll retain his other teaching duties at the High School and continue to coach the Rock tennis team. Sandmann said a successor will be named in the next few weeks and that "it will probably be someone presently on the staff."

Sandmann added, "We are satisfied with Jim's work and there was absolutely no pressure. The resignation is at the request of Coach Doyle."

Doyle has coached Plymouth for four years.

Senior Prom Is a Hit!

Not much homework got done by seniors last weekend, which was the time of the gala senior prom. The dance didn't begin until 8:30 Saturday night, but preparation of the magnificent formal attire that was so much in evidence, as well as arrangements for the many private parties that preceded and followed it, took up the whole day.

The prom was a grand success. The decorations, the product of weeks of work, carried out the dance's title, "Song of the South," and the gym was effectively transformed into an old plantation garden. The ceiling was completely covered with rolls of blue, starred crepe paper, which swayed gently in the rays of multi-colored spotlights to give the effect of a night sky.

At one end of the room was a pond, complete with goldfish. Magnolia and other flowering trees, made of actual branches with hundreds of paper flowers, were everywhere. A three-level fountain tinkled in one corner, while a wishing well, constructed of real brick, collected pennies in another. The curving white footbridge over another pond was the scene for much picture taking.

Out in the hall, the garden effect was continued by more flowering trees, flowerpots on the rows of tables, and a solid floor-to-ceiling bank of flowers behind the refreshment table. The brick wallpaper on the walls was broken by a mural that conveyed the impression of a gate opening to the Southern countryside.

One of the most atmospheric aspects was the "southern" flavor that characterized the dresses worn by the girls, many of which were floor length.

The prom ended at midnight, whereupon began further social activity as seniors went from party to party, perhaps including dinner at one of the local restaurants, until they watched the sun come up over the horizon.

Sunday dawned with weather perfect for picnicking in Edward Hines Parkway. And so it went with the smell of sizzling bacon and hot coffee, until most had departed for late church services and other afternoon activities — like sleeping!

Another big event begins tonight — the annual water show presented by the Water Waves and Dolphin Clubs. Entitled "Sketches in Water Color," it will feature a number of acts — synchronized swimming, comedy, diving — each of which will be connected in some way with a certain color. The show begins at 8 tonight, and at the same time tomorrow and Saturday.

Two more scholarships have been awarded to Plymouth High seniors. Janet Mackie has received the National Merit Scholarship, which was awarded on the basis of her performance on a series of rigorous tests.

Also recent news was that Celeste Arjay has won the Regents Alumni Scholarship to the University of Michigan.

All sorts of campaign posters of remarkable cleverness have covered just about every available bit of wall space in the halls since Monday, as PHS voters get ready to go to the polls Friday to elect class and all-school officers, including student council representatives.

Golfers Split Two; Place Second

Plymouth split a couple of golf matches last week and placed second in the Dearborn Invitational. The golfers' season record now is 3-2.

The Rocks placed second in the Dearborn Invitational last Monday, as Del McAllister shot an 80, which missed winning the individual crown by one stroke. Dearborn's Ralph Ellstrom had a 79.

Dearborn's team shot 342 and Plymouth was next with 353. Ypsilanti was third at 370 and Dearborn Sacred Heart was fourth with 382. Trenton had 401 and Riverside trailed at 410.

Steve Hayskar was second for Plymouth with 88 and Carl Zornow had 90. Phil Bender with 94 completed Plymouth scoring.

In prior matches Bentley beat the Rocks, 164-174, at Idyl Wyld before Plymouth beat Ypsilanti, 172-193, at Braeburn. Hayskar led Plymouth against the champion Suburban Six Bulldogs with a 41. Zornow and McAllister had 42 each, while Ron Peck with 49 rounded out the scoring.

In the Ypsilanti match McAllister was first with a 39 and Hayskar had a 42. Zornow with 44 and Tom Fletcher with 47 were the other Plymouth efforts.

The golf team meets Redford Union at Western Golf Course today and Northville at Braeburn tomorrow. There is a triangular clash at Brighton Saturday between Brighton, Dearborn and Plymouth.

By Bill Nelson

It wasn't too long ago that Plymouth fans were enjoying the baseball performances of pitcher Randy Egloff and reminiscing about his basketball and football abilities.

It appears that Plymouth coaches have found a candidate for Randy's shoes.

Dick Schryer nearly tossed a perfect game last Monday and earned his right to wear the baseball uniform any time he might like. He got a no-hitter in the process and, of course, a shutout.

The amazing thing is that Schryer is only a sophomore, and a young one at that. He was barely 15 last fall, when he was tossing the football around as if he were only waiting for Egloff to leave so that he might play. He was an amazing quarterback as a sophomore and as poised as a husky senior.

In basketball he was sixth man and made some mistakes, but he doesn't make many with a football or baseball. It may be a little premature, but it appears that in another year or two you'll be able to get a good argument going in Plymouth about the relative merits of Schryer and Egloff. And Egloff was the number one All-State quarterback in 1959.

Coach John McFall, now helping out with the track team, will be one of those who will get a big kick out of the banquet scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Saturday, May 13. It will be the eighth annual swimming banquet in Plymouth — the eighth for McFall too — but the first time that Plymouth will be honored as State Champions.

They've been there before often enough as Suburban Six League Champions, which is no mean accomplishment of itself. This year, however, they talk about that one as an afterthought.

Main speaker for the event is Hobie Billingsley, diving coach at the University of Indiana. Sixty-six swimmers (which gives you some idea of the participation), their parents and friends will attend.

Jim Doyle's resignation as basketball coach this week came as a surprise to Plymouth fans who knew the quiet, dedicated coach.

Jim has been coaching for 11 years, the last four at Plymouth. He has had his way ups and his way downs. The decision to resign was a tough one, but entirely his.

We think he made a wise move and wish him well.

PLYMOUTH GL 3-4747
308 NORTH MAIN AT C AND O RAILROAD

Sophomore pitcher Dick Schryer came awfully close to pitching a perfect ball game Monday as he set down Allen Park 2-0 with a splendid no-hit performance.

The young Rock pitched to the minimum of 21 batters in a seven-inning high school ball game. He walked only one batter and two reached base on errors, but all were disposed of while on base.

In the second inning Allen Park's Firek went to first with an error but was thrown out at second, trying to steal. Later in the same inning AP's Benning got on when Pete Lomonaco errored. Catcher Bob Monteith also threw him out at second.

Schryer's walk came in the sixth inning and Allen Park's Gage went to second on a wild pitch. A second later he was tagged out on a fielder's choice and the man who got on first was promptly erased in a double play.

Plymouth got the game's only runs in the second inning. Centerfielder Jim Lockwood led off with a single and Pete Lomonaco, playing third base, followed with another single. Left fielder John Stevens moved both runners up with a sacrifice.

Second baseman Art Nelson walked to fill the bases. Lockwood scored the first run when Darrell Miller, Rock first baseman, forced Nelson at second.

Bryan Gilles, the Rock rightfielder, came through with a single to score Lomonaco for the other run. Gilles and Jared Stevens both had perfect days at the plate, each getting two singles in two official times at bat.

Against Trenton last Thursday, the Rocks posted their first win of the season, 6-1, in the Suburban Six opener with Trenton.

Trenton scored first when the leadoff batter, Bears, walked. He stole second and went to third on Pete Lomonaco's wild pitch. He came home later when teammate Scheffle tripled.

Plymouth got that one back and five more in the bottom half of the fourth inning. Shortstop Jim Ralston singled and Monteith followed with another single. Dick Schryer, playing third base, struck out. Lockwood walked to fill the bases. Both Ralston and Monteith scored on Lomonaco's long fly out to left, when a Trenton throw to the plate went wild.

Stevens walked and Nelson singled to score Lockwood.

Miller singled and Stevens scored.

Ralston, batting for the second time in the inning, was safe on a wild throw by the Trenton third baseman and two runs (Nelson and Miller) scored. Finally it ended when Monteith struck out.

The two wins left Plymouth with a 2-1 season's record (a 3-2 non-league opening loss to Dearborn), but the Rocks were needed at the Suburban Six league race, and Dick Schryer was looking more like Randy Egloff's successor every day.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

A "Tidy" Problem

Red Dolan dropped by the Widow Parker's last week to drive her to the depot. She was leaving on her annual month-long visit with her sister.

"Land sakes the folks in this town are nice," she said. "You're the fourth person that's offered me a ride today and I've already arranged to go with Mrs. Phillips. But, Red, there is one thing you can do for me."

"You name it," says Red. "Well," she replied, "in some diplomatic way would you let my nice friends know they won't do me a favor if they come in and house-clean for me. They did last year and it took me three days to get things back to rights."

From where I sit, some folks start out with good intentions and end up interfering. We may not agree with the way our friends fix up their homes and they may not agree with our preference for beer with meals, but these are choices we each have a right to make. Respect for them is the biggest "favor" of all.

Who's Who in the Plymouth Community Schools

Ruth Helene Lindsey

Following in her mother's chosen profession, Ruth Lindsey came to Allen School from Otsego, Mich., where Mrs. Helene Lindsey is still actively engaged in teaching the fifth grade. Her father, Elbert Lindsey, now deceased, was the owner of a trucking firm in Otsego, and there Ruth grew up and was graduated from the public high school.

Being blessed with a lovely voice and a talent for music, Miss Lindsey went to Oberlin College in Ohio, and later received a state board scholarship which helped to finance the completion of her degree at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo. During the summers she worked as a waitress in Fiedelman's Resort at South Haven, and at Gull Harbor Inn in Kalamazoo.

But it was not all work in college, for she found time to take an active part in the social sorority, Alpha Sigma Alpha, and became recording secretary, vice-president, and then president. She is also a member of the honorary society, Sigma Alpha Iota.

It was only natural, when she started teaching three years ago in the fourth grade at Allen School, that she should continue her activities in the professional organizations. As a member of the Plymouth Education Assn., she was first, on the social committee, then a building representative, and this year, has been on the legislative committee. NEA and MEA also claim her.

She has entered into the spirit of the community in Plymouth, joining the Plymouth Community Chorus, and singing in the Presbyterian Chancel Choir. In addition to this, she is a former member of the Plymouth Community Planning Committee.

In the summer of 1959 Miss Lindsey accompanied Miss Betty Stevens, the speech teacher in the High School, on a comprehensive tour of Europe. They spent eight weeks carefully covering England, the Netherlands, Germany, Switzerland, Austria, Italy, France, and the Scandinavian countries, Denmark, Norway, and Sweden.

It goes without saying that travel tops her list of hobbies, but she is equally happy with her music, and occasionally does some water skiing up in the lake country which she calls home. Her Plymouth residence is at 1180 Carol St.

Community College Speakers Available to Canton Groups

To persons interested in circulating a petition to place the Charter Township proposal on the ballot in July the petitions may be secured at the Township Hall on Canton Center Rd. The petitions must be circulated by Township residents eager to see that the proposal will be back on the ballot in July. This is the only way voters will have an opportunity to reconsider this act.

To persons and organizations located in the Township and who are part of the Plymouth Community School System, who wish to become better informed on the June 6 school election, speakers are available for your group to give detailed information on a Community College. If your organization cannot find time for a speaker, literature is available to be read by your members by simply requesting same. This service is available by contacting Mrs. Clara Scharmen at GL 3-7352.

Program Outlined for Next Year's Symphony Season

A tentative program for the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra's 1961-62 season has been announced by Conductor Wayne Dunlap. The current regular season came to a close two weeks ago and only the annual Pops Concert on May 20 remains.

The Symphony Society is now starting its annual membership campaign.

The new season will open Oct. 15 with Paul Olefsky as soloist. He was formerly principal cellist with the Detroit Symphony and is now at Iowa State University. The Symphony will play "Rococo Variations" by Tchaikovsky.

Featured in the second concert on Nov. 19 will be William Boot, a University of Michigan student who is the 1961 Grand National Foundation piano contest winner.

The annual Christmas program will be appropriate with the season with the Civic Chorus participating. This concert is Dec. 10.

A program designed for the young and old will be again offered for the Family Concert on Jan. 28. Members of the flute family will be found in the first part of the program, with one piece featuring nine flutes, including a base flute. Chorus of the fifth and sixth grades will also participate in a special number with the orchestra.

On March 4, Louis Stout will be the French horn soloist. He was formerly with the Chicago Symphony and is now on the University of Michigan music faculty.

Closing the season will be the Servero Ballet group from Detroit on April 8. The Pops Concert will be May 19 next year.

Conductor Dunlap said that the theme of next season will revolve around "Freedom and Justice." The numbers (such as William Tell Overture) will concern individuals and events involved in crusades of freedom or justice.

Mrs. Florabel Sullivan showed slides of the members taken at the school on their jobs. After the program, the group enjoyed visiting and dancing to the music furnished by the Arbor-Lill dance band.

Attending the celebration were four from Brooklyn, and several from nearby Mich. and four from Lapeer communities.

Officers for the year responsible for the party were: President, Mabel Bowers; vice-president, Catherine Fornwald; secretary-treasurer, Willard Lickfeldt; chairman of decorating and favors, Don Estep.

Pinewood Derby Offers Thrills to Youngsters

While Akron has its Soapbox Derby, Plymouth boys and others throughout the nation are having exciting moments racing model cars in what is called a "Pinewood Derby."

Such a race was held last Friday night by Cub Pack 781 of Our Lady of Good Counsel Church. Cars were whittled out of a block of wood by the youngsters and wheels placed on with nails. Regulations limit the cars to a weight of five ounces and a length of seven and three-eighths inches.

Racing down an elevated runway about 25 feet long, the cars run three abreast. At Friday night's meet, the champion of each Den was selected, and then the champion of the Pack determined by racing each car until it was eliminated.

Jerry Yezbick, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Yezbick, 1090 William, was the winner. His car competed with about half of the 53 cars involved before he received his trophy. Judges also selected the best car on the basis of appearance and this trophy was won by Dennis Michaels.

Cubmaster Leroy Cripe was in charge of the event that brought out dozens of cheering parents. He was assisted by Joe Caloia. Judges, who determined the winner as they tripped a lighting system at the finish line, were Public Safety Director Kenneth Fisher, Wally Wozniak of Beglinger Oldsmobile-Cadillac, and James Spenseller, managing editor of The Mail.

World War I Veterans Host Area Gathering

Benton Parkway Barracks 267 and Ladies Auxiliary of Veterans of World War I were hosts to an area meeting held Sunday, April 30 at the VFW Hall in Northville.

Some of the barracks represented were from Jackson, Bay City, Lansing, Muskegon, Hesperia, Traverse City, Ludington, Cadillac, Kalamazoo, Battle Creek, Flint, North Branch, Greenville, Owosso, Oxford and Blissfield.

Plans were completed for the State Convention in Jackson, July 14, 15, and 16.

Floyd Dolmage of Livonia is commander of the local barracks and Evelyn Brocklehurst president of the Ladies Auxiliary.

25th Club Year Observed by Farm and Garden

Evans Seeking Stockholder Approval to Acquire Another Plant

Stockholders of Evans Products Co., of Plymouth, will be asked to approve, at a meeting to be held May 17, an amendment to the company's Certificate of Incorporation to authorize a new class of stock.

"It is contemplated that this stock, if authorized, will be used for the acquisition of the stock of Aberdeen Plywood and Veneers, Inc. of Aberdeen, Wash.," said Edward S. Evans, Jr., president of Evans.

Proxy material describing the proposed transaction in detail has been mailed to all Evans stockholders. Announcement that the firms were negotiating was made last November by Evans.

Evans Products' sales in 1960 were $79,411,679. A diversified company, Evans is a major producer of plywood, hardboard, and related wood products, such as building panels and office partitions. It is the country's largest producer of damage-free railroad loading equipment. The company also produces bicycles and other wheel goods, truck and bus heaters, and battery separators.

Evans operates 11 plants in four states, plus a plant in Vancouver, British Columbia. In addition, the company operates 15 plywood and related building products warehouses at Franklin Park and Peoria, Ill.; South Bend and Fort Wayne, Ind.; Pittsburgh, Pa.; Dayton and Columbus, Ohio; Huntington, W. Va.; North Fazio, N. D.; Richville, Mich.; Fort Worth, Tex.; Jasper, Fla.; Milwaukee, Wis.; and two at Minneapolis, Minn. Aberdeen is a plywood manufacturing and distribution company with two large mills in Aberdeen, Wash. In addition, Aberdeen operates 19 distribution warehouses similar to Evans' at Aberdeen, Seattle and Yakima, Wash.; San Francisco, Oakland, Fresno and Los Angeles, Cal.; Phoenix, Ariz.; Dallas and Houston, Tex.; Cincinnati, Ohio; Chicago, Ill.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Memphis, Tenn.; Atlanta, Ga.; Decatur, Ala.; Tampa and Jacksonville, Fla. and Panama City, Fla.

Aberdeen's net sales for the year ending March 1, 1961, were in excess of $29,000,000. Aberdeen's plants are principally plywood specialty with duplication of facilities in only one city.

"We believe that the acquisition of distribution outlets is important and that the acquisition of Aberdeen will be another forward step in Evans' program of growth and development in the plywood and wood products field."

Acquisition in 1957 of the Fiddes-Moore distribution facilities represented a major step toward a stronger, more fully integrated plywood operation taking timber from the forest to the dealer, he said.

He pointed to a series of growth moves begun in 1948 when Evans installed modern high production fir plywood equipment at its Coos Bay, Ore. plant to supplement its other activities on the West Coast. In 1952, Evans acquired a plywood manufacturing plant at Roseburg, Ore.

A new green veneer plant was built in 1955 at Gold Beach, Ore. That same year, to meet the demands of the Canadian market, Evans' Canadian subsidiary constructed a plywood mill at Vancouver, British Columbia.

Evans acquired in 1956 the business and assets of a hardboard plant at Corvallis, Ore. In 1957 the company built another green veneer mill at Euchre Creek, Ore. The acquisition of Fiddes-Moore provided two additional plants, one at Corona, Cal., and another at Fort Wayne, Ind. Both manufacture prefinished wall paneling sold under the trade name

"Plywall."

Evans now owns or controls cutting rights on approximately 3.5 billion board feet of timber.

Evans Products Co. was founded in 1915. The company's first major product, damage prevention equipment for railroad freight cars, was installed in freight cars to prevent damage to automobiles in transit. Today, Evans makes a variety of products for industrial and consumer use.

Medicine often helps the patient, regardless of its flavor, but you can't pour principles down the throats of human beings and get character.

Evans will not only acquire successful management and personnel in the plywood field as a result of this acquisition, but also will obtain high quality, specialty plywood products to complement our standard plywood products; and 19 plywood and building products distribution warehouses. These, with our existing 15 warehouses will give Evans a total of 34 warehouses from coast to coast.

Upon approval by stockholders of the proposed amendment it is contemplated that Evans will offer to exchange for the 387,051 shares of Aberdeen common stock outstanding 232,236 shares of Evans stock, of which 38,706 shares will be common shares, and 193,530 shares will be a newly created preferred stock which will convert automatically into Evans common, on a share for share basis at the rate of 38,706 shares each year from 1962 through 1966, and for the 17,091 shares of Aberdeen preferred, 2,563.6

shares of the newly created preferred stock which also will be converted into Evans common stock on a share for share basis in 1966.

"It is believed by the managements of both companies that the acquisition will be beneficial to each operation and to all stockholders," said Mr. Evans.

Evans will not only acquire successful management and personnel in the plywood field as a result of this acquisition, but also will obtain high quality, specialty plywood products to complement our standard plywood products; and 19 plywood and building products distribution warehouses. These, with our existing 15 warehouses will give Evans a total of 34 warehouses from coast to coast.

Asks Public to Air

(Continued from Page 1) pointed out. Some children arrive at school too early in the morning while others arrive late, he added. "The present bus schedule provides for shuttle service at four schools where students are discharged from one bus to await another to take them to the school which they attend."

Supt. Isbister says that these problems will be eliminated with the proposed changes. Even those children who do not ride buses will benefit, he notes, because their classrooms will not be interrupted by the late arrivals.

Canton Seeks City Water For Distress Area

A request from Canton Township for the extension of City of Plymouth water service to Canton Center Rd. was made Monday night to the City Commission.

Edwin M. Orr, engineer for Canton Township, and Supervisor Louis Stein made the request. They asked that the number of taps be limited to 100.

The City now has an eight-inch line going to Gallimore School along Hagertry Rd. Orr said that Canton Township would lay a 16-inch water line along Canton because the Detroit water system intends to lay a main that size in 1963.

The Commission said that a water survey is now being completed by engineers and that they will be consulted about the granting of water.

Orr and Stein said that they had approached Plymouth Township Board about water (Plymouth Township is now expanding its system) but that they found the rates higher than desired. No mention of rates was made Monday night, but users outside Plymouth now pay twice as much as those inside the City.

OK Parking

(Continued from Page 1) do not touch the parking lot. It was a Harvey St. property owner, Mrs. Jerome Hoelscher, who raised the objection. She noted that her husband's business of accordion instruction already has furnished off-street parking, so she felt that they should not be assessed for more if they do not need it for their own customers.

Frank Lodge was chairman of the 12-member committee. Others were Edwin Schradler, Wendell Lent, Jay Ruckey, James Taylor, Robert Willoughby, Robert Reid, Ralph Lorenz, John Westman, Perry Richwine and Roland Widmayer.

Next Monday night there will be another off-street parking project called the "Penniman project."

Cost of this proposed project is $49,350, which would be divided between the City and nearby property owners.

In other business before the City Commission Monday night, James Warren, 520 Pacific, was appointed to the City Planning Commission by Mayor Robert Sincok. He will replace Robert Mauer, whose resignation was accepted with regret.

The local branch of the Women's National Farm and Garden Assn., will observe their silver anniversary Monday, May 8 at the home of Mrs. Earl Demel.

hour, and they come out starched, ironed and done up in the latest style. In plain talk I was Sergeant of the guard yesterday and last night, consequently I was relieved from duty today. And I improved the leisure in going to the river and taking a good wash all round. The river looks from camp to be not more than a hundred rods distant—just below the hill—but it takes two miles of travel to reach it. At low tide the river is a shallow, unpleasant looking stream with the sea weeds growing up out of the water. But at high tide when the water is 3 or 4 feet deep covering the weeds all up it is quite a pretty stream being I should think about a half mile in width. This is not the Potomac proper but a branch putting in just below the city. The Potomac at Washington where the Long Bridge crosses it is a beautiful stream. We passed over the bridge on going to a camp near the Washington Monument is near the Bridge. The land on which it stands is much lower than the Capitol grounds. But standing so much above the surrounding buildings it is clearly visible for a great distance round. It is yet unfinished but there seems to be no workmen employed on it. The yard about its base was full of cattle, Uncle Sam's, I presume. There is the second bridge and taps — lights must be out— Tuesday 23d, before breakfast—

We are blown up in the morning with the Bugle at 5 o'clock. At 7 it sounds for breakfast, at 8 for guard, at 9 for dinner, at 12 for dinner. And so on through the day. We are blown up in the morning and blown down at night. By request of the Captain I have charge of the feeding and cooking for the Co. In fact the charge has been in my hands since we left Detroit. This morning we got 90 loaves of nice fresh bread, and 70 lbs. fresh beef. We have plenty of coffee. We shall probably have a good breakfast to have good books.—Towers and Tom Ballin.

For breakfast we usually have meat, beans, bread, and coffee; for dinner we have soup, meat, potatoes, for supper—rice with sugar or molasses, coffee, etc. We get a sort of dried vegetables (cabbage, carrots, potatoes) and all sorts of good things pressed and dried in cakes) that makes first rate soup. We have now plenty of potatoes also. All our provisions are still of the very best quality, and more than we can use.

We had a Regimental review on Sunday by Gen. Woodbury. He expressed himself highly pleased with the Regiment. We will not be likely to see an engagement very soon as his Brigade never goes into battle but are employed in building forts, bridges, etc.

The boys are generally well. Charlie Dobbins is getting fat. He makes a good soldier. We are all as well as we would probably be at home. Our Camp has come to seem really like home. The streets are straight, well graded and cleanly swept. We have brought evergreen trees and planted them in front of the tents which adds very much to its appearance and comfort.

Yours as ever

By George Spelvin

With the advent of May and the gay, festive banks of tulips comes the annual Ann Arbor Drama Season at the Lydia Mendelssohn Theater. For the past 25 years it has been possible for five weeks in the spring to see professional actors in a variety of current Broadway plays.

The 1961 season promises three comedies and two dramas. Maxwell Anderson and Eugene O'Neill, titans of American drama, will have two of their works on display. Anderson's "The Bad Seed" with Nancy Kelly, creator of the original role when it first played on Broadway, will be with the production when it opens on May 23. "Bad Seed" is a horror play that is sure to give you nightmares unless you're impervious to the machinations of sadistic youngsters.

The Drama Season gets underway with a light touch, "The Marriage - Go - Round." Faye Emerson, fresh from TV-land takes over Claudette Colbert's Broadway role in this gay, witty comedy. May 16 (Tuesday) through May 20 with matinees on Thursday and Saturdays will be the performance dates for the opening week.

"Bad Seed" follows the comic "Marriage Go-Round." The third week features O'Neill's "Touch of the Poet." Recently, the University of Detroit did an excellent job with this lively comedy-drama about colonial America. Albert Dekker, Broadway and Hollywood star, plans to portray the choice role of Con Melody. If ever I could be tempted out of retirement to trod the boards, the role of Con Melody would be the part that might do the job. It's a wonderful character. Old Con with his blustery Irish ways and highly emotional scenes is the sort of role that a 11 "hams" yearn for in the still of the evening as they sit in their lonely hotel rooms perusing the current copy of Variety.

During the fourth week the Drama Season comes back to comedy with "Send Me No Flowers." Larry Parks and his lovely wife, Batty Galt, will bounce about in this farce for seven mad performances. To close out the five-week festival of stage productions, Donald Cook is coming in "The Pleasure of His Company." Earlier this season Cyril Ritchard played "Pleasure" at the Shubert. If you'll recall my comments from that earlier column, you'll be doing a great feat of memorization. Let's not rack our brains for those prior pronouncements of calamity. Succinctly and swiftly, may I remind you that I enjoyed the show and announced quite publicly that the script was a comic gem. In short, try not to miss "Pleasure" when it comes to Ann Arbor Drama Season.

One note of warning: your best bet is to order your Drama Season tickets by mail this week before the box office opens. And season ticket holders receive preference over purchasers of single shows. For $15 you can see all five plays. A bargain at twice the price. Get your check off today to Mrs. Lucille Upham, Lydia Mendelssohn Theater, Ann Arbor, Mich., if you enjoy good theater.

And music lovers should take note that the May Festival in Ann Arbor is with us this week at the Hill Auditorium. Eugene Ormandy is conducting the Philadelphia Orchestra in an all-Wagner program on Thursday of this week. Friday — the University Choral Union is presenting "Joan of Arc at the Stake," a dramatic oratorio with Vera Zorina in the key role.

(Must stop for a minute to quote the final words of Joan as they lit the faggots. She is reported to have mumbled, "I'm smoking more, but I'm certainly enjoying it less." Pardon the intrusion but that Madison Ave. gag has been rattling around in my empty noggin for too long and the time seemed to be particularly inappropriate.)

Saturday — Ormandy again with the hair-shirted men from Philly will beat out an All-American program. Aaron Copland will be a guest conductor for the afternoon session. Closing on Sunday, the Philadelphia Orchestra will do an all-Bachmannoff program with Eugene Istomin, pianist, as featured performer.

The Penn Theater is showing the "World of Susie Wong." I can't honestly say that I enjoyed Susie's antics when they were shown on stage. Hollywood has not changed the formula. Susie is still an Asiatic gone "wrong" that discovers she is in love with one of her non-paying customers. The Hong-Kong scenery outside the honky-tonk home of Wong is beautiful. Of course, a house of ill fame regardless of where you photograph it makes for exciting film fare.

My quarrel with "Susie Wong" still remains a story-wise. I can't see the prolixity with the "heart of gold" theme. "Never on Sunday," the recent Greek import doing so well at the studio Theater in Detroit, tells the story of our sisters-of-the-streets much more honestly and realistically. Old Greece claims the Hollywood version will draw great attendance, make loads of money and give a number of folks a quick peek into a never-never land; but two "Wongs" (stage or movie versions) will never make a right in my press book.

The Cass Theater in Detroit lights up for a three-day run of Hal Holbrook's "Mark Twain Tonight." Here's a pungently wise and uproariously funny evening in the theater. Mr. Holbrook takes four hours via make-up to become Mark Twain. And the two hours that you spend with Mark Twain will convince you that this Early American humorist is a true spellbinder. Mr. Holbrook opens with his one-man show on Thursday, May 11. Get your tickets now.

Wayne State University Theater players are opening this week on Friday with Shakespeare's immortal "Much Ado About Nothing." This is the Shakespearean rousing comedy of wits between Beatrice and Benedick. No other comedy of Bill's sparkles with such a coruscating fire of wit. If you can't get to "Much Ado" this weekend, you'll have a chance to catch the production in the following week for three performances. Take this show as an appetizer for the coming summer Shakespeare season at Stratford.

Locally, on the battered but brave boards of the Plymouth

Letters TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor: I have often heard from many parents and older citizens say "I would like to trade in Plymouth, BUT..." On Friday night the rest rooms are closed and with the kiddies you don't like to run a block to a gas station.

Any why can't a couple of larger stores have rest rooms too, and not depend on the City to furnish them?

Plymouth merchants, we want to trade with you but with a few kiddies and grandchildren, you don't provide a restroom and until you do, I and hundreds of others will continue to shop outside of Plymouth.

An Older Citizen

The accident toll in this country is big enough to warrant serious attention and so, if you want to have your own life, be careful.

What About the Public?

The nation's transportation bill—which is a considerable factor in the price of almost everything we buy—could be reduced. It could be reduced by the unfailing and traditionally American principle of fair competition between the various carriers—rail, water, highway and air—which does not presently exist. It has long been strangled by a jungle-growth of discriminatory rate-making legislation, trapped in a quicksand of tax inequities and bludgeoned by subsidies—with the railroads singled out as the whipping boy.

Freedom from subsidized rivals Freedom to diversify With equal status and minimum regulation, there is fair and equal competition—and rate reductions consistent with reasonable profits must follow when every carrier is free to exploit efficient operation to his own and the public advantage.

Dear Dan: I notice that sometimes boys will write and ask if girls like them to wear long or short haircuts and you always say short is preferred. Well, what about how boys like girls to wear their hair? Do the boys like girls to wear their hair in a short style or long? — Boy Pleaser.

Dear Young Husband: You asked me the one question that I don't feel qualified to answer. You have a good argument and so has your wife and I'm afraid the answer is going to have to come from you two discussing the situation.

How's Business?

Step-Up in Buying Ahead

By ROGER W. BABSON

The letdown in consumer spending from the spring of 1960 through January 1961 was a source of deep concern. From a record $18.9-billion rate, retail trade fell to $17.7 billion. These figures are adjusted for seasonal and trading-day differences from month to month. Although the average rate of spending was still high compared with the past, the shift in consumer sentiment, which resulted in a build-up of savings at the expense of purchases of durable goods, occurred well in advance of the downturn in earnings. This brought an additional drag upon the economy when business was already losing ground.

The fact that employment held at a high rate. The pronounced emphasis on savings which had aggravated the downturn in business can now exert a strong persuasive influence, encouraging consumers to spend a larger proportion of current incomes, particularly since the general feeling now is that economic conditions should improve before too long. Another plus factor is the restraint on borrowing which occurred in 1960. Consumer installment credit expanded only $3.4 billion in 1960 compared with $6 billion the year before.

Dear Dan: My wife and I want you to settle an argument for us. We're both 20 and I work for an insurance firm that has promised me a good future. My wife and I have only been married for six months and I can understand her argument but I still think I shouldn't pass up this chance I've been offered.

Feature Flute Soloist At Spring Concert

Sharon Sprague, 17-year-old senior, will be the featured soloist at the Plymouth High School Band's forthcoming spring concert "Sound of Spring," on Friday, May 19. She has selected the difficult and demanding flute solo "Concertino" written by the French composer, Chamade. Sharon, who is tentatively scheduled for the School of Music at Eastern Michigan University next fall, has an enviable record, not only as a flutist, but also as a student. For the past three years Sharon has won consecutive first division ratings as Solo and Ensemble Contest. years, she has been the band secretary and first chair flutist in the band. Further, her personal achievements have not been limited to music. Sharon ranked ninth academically out of a graduating class of 296. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ort Sprague, 877 Canton Center Rd., Sharon terms the Girl Scout organization as her other main "hobby." In this endeavor, Sharon has but one more step before reaching Girl Scouting's highwater mark. Marcie Woolweaver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herb Woolweaver, will accompany Sharon on the piano. The band's concert will begin at 8 p.m. Admission prices (with all proceeds to finance the band's trip to Interlochen next August) will be 75 cents for adults, 50 cents for students.

A half-hour well spent

Don't let crabgrass bully your lawn

Why wait till crabgrass has come up and ruined your lawn to do something about it? One application of HALTS® before crabgrass sprouts will spare your lawn a repetition of last summer's disaster. Tiny HALTS granules blanket the lawn, lie in wait, then pick off crabgrass sprout by sprout. HALTS is death to crabgrass—yet it lets good grass grow unharmed. In fact, HALTS is so compatible with grass, you can actually seed the same day. With the accurate Scotts Spreader, you protect 5000 sq ft against crabgrass in half an hour!

Ask us about the Scotts guarantee... a better lawn or your money back!

FRIDAY EVENING, APRIL 21, students of the Margie Pond Dance Studio, 26066 Five Mile Rd., entertained the residents of Presbyterian Village. The dancers whose ages range from four years to 14 years, presented a half-hour show consisting of tap, acrobatic, ballet, novelty and jazz routines. The young performers were delightful in their dazzling costumes, and it was hard to determine which group had the most fun—the dancers or the audience.

Redford area youngsters taking part in the show were: Mary Bruno, Raylene Burris, Judy Jill Cuthbert, Nancy Denner, Lisa Jackson, Sandy Kasper, Marcia Leonard, Suzette Loar, Marianne Mason, Bonnie Mills, Carolyn Mitchell, Dorothy and Gail Niemeyer, Sherry Onofrey, Nancy Payor, Marsha Phillips, Cecilia Pond, Gayle and Linda Samhat, Patti Schell and Cheryl Schliniski.

Mrs. Wendell Mills, Free-land Ave., acted as mistress of ceremonies.

On Friday evening, April 28, the group will repeat the show for the youngsters at the Children's Village, 26645 Six Mile Rd. Mr. Dave Forey, recreational director of the Village, made arrangements for the program and will act as master of ceremonies.

Look It Up Yourself, Dear, Mama's Going Bowling

Looking for an encyclopedia your children can use themselves? Your best bet is one of the "school encyclopedias." School encyclopedias differ from adult sets in several ways:

—Content and scope are determined by a study of school curriculums and outside interests of young people of school age.

—Vocabulary is simpler, sentences are shorter and concepts are clarified with great care and skill.

—Many articles are written on two levels, making them usable by younger and older children. An article may begin rather simply for elementary school readers but become progressively difficult as it develops; thus a youngster may drop out when he reaches his intellectual limit.

—Illustrations abound: scarcely a page is without photos, charts, graphs or other visual devices.

—Layouts are attractive, color is used heavily, articles are made as inviting as possible.

Those are the main differences between the school encyclopedias and the uncompromisingly adult sets. In other ways they are similar. In authority, accuracy and up-to-dateness they are second to none. And they are, of course, extremely useful for the adults in the family.

The two leading encyclopedias in this field are "Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia and Fact-Index" (15 volumes, $104.50-$179.50) and "World Book Encyclopedia" (20 volumes, $135-$170). Both of these excellent sets are specifically designed for students from the fifth grade through senior high school.

Another set in this general area is "Britannica Junior" (15 volumes, $149 and up.) This is similar in content to "Compton's" and "World Book" but does not attempt to meet the needs of high school students. It is written for children in grades four through nine.

All In One

The family which feels it cannot spend $100 or more on an encyclopedia but would still like a sound general reference book around the house would be wise to look into the one-volume encyclopedias.

A one-volume encyclopedia cannot, obviously, offer you the completeness of coverage, wealth of detail or richness of illustration that multi-volume sets do. On the other hand a one-volume encyclopedia, if it is one of the good ones, can give a surprising amount of information in handy form. And the price is extremely reasonable.

Best known one-volume encyclopedias are: "Columbia Encyclopedia" (1950 edition, $35; 1959 supplement, $2.)

"The Lincoln Library of Essential Information" ($28.50-$34.50.)

An investment in any of the encyclopedias mentioned here this week or last will be a happy and profitable one for you and your family. There are other sets, some good, some hopelessly inferior.

If you have any doubts about the quality of the set you plan to buy call on your local librarian. She will be pleased to help you.

The Permanent

WHY CHOOSE an A-frame retreat? First, because it is economical, roomy, easy to maintain, and pleasing to the eye. It can be as simple as a permanent tent, or you can extend it to the limits of your budget and energy.

It serves equally well as a beach house, a woodland cabin, a hunting or fishing camp, or a ski lodge (don't forget the fireplace and proper insulation).

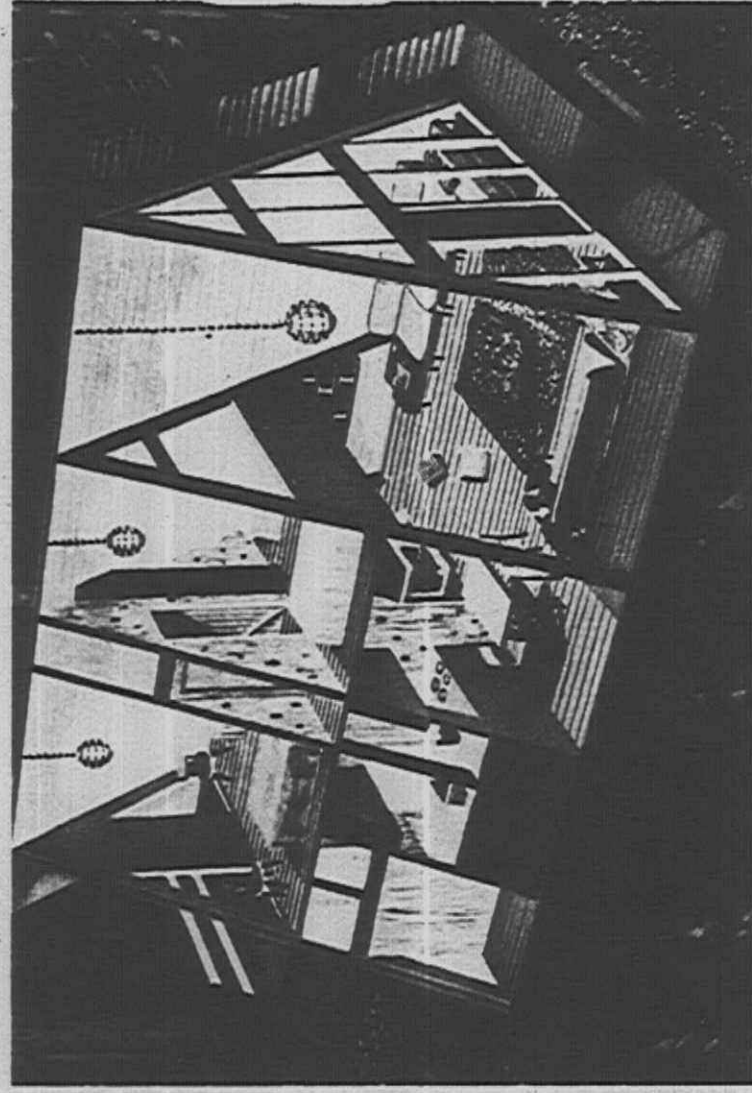

Whatever the size, it's not hard to build. Basically, the A-frame house consists of a series of timbers put up in the shape of the letter A, one pair behind the other until the desired length is reached. The poles can be as tall as a two-story building and still be secure, since the buttressing is inherent in the design.

This frame is then covered in any number of materials, such as plain wood siding, tempered hardboard, exterior plywood, or thin aluminum sheets. If the house is to be at the beach or on top of a mountain, glass or plastic might be better for some of the panels, to get the most out of a beautiful view.

THESE HOUSES can be added to or modified at will and can be built in a series of separate stages. Walls are eliminated, and you get plenty of extra storage space just below the ridge line.

Perhaps best of all, the A-frame design makes it possible for the owner to do a lot of the construction work himself. A simple model can be put up by two adroit and industrious adults in less than a week.

Improvements can come gradually, spreading the cost over a number of years.

Dwarf Trees

the seed in South America. It was spotted in a back yard in Muscatine, Iowa, by an amateur tree enthusiast, H. Walton Clark, for whom the Clark System of dwarfing apples has been named. Clark turned his find over to Prof. Tom Mancy of Iowa State University, who perfected the grafting technique. Some ten million apple trees are now growing, held down to man-size by dwarfing four- to five-inch stem pieces stripped from the progeny of that one original plant.

With dwarfed apple trees a commercial success, creating miniatures of peach, nectarine, apricot, plum, and cherry trees became even more of a challenge. Nobody could find a magic "dwarfing sandwich," and Nature seemed reluctant to contribute dwarfing rootstocks in these fruits. So the tree architects had to resort to horticultural trickery. They tried grafting pear scions onto dwarfing rootstocks of such a distant cousin as quince. Nearly all of these strange marriages were astonishingly successful. The pear scions thrived particularly well on quince rootstock, and instead of shooting skyward, as pears do normally, the limbs remained stunted but bore normal-size fruit. Soon tree propagators were growing dwarf pears on quince roots by the thousands.

Unfortunately, one old favorite, the Bartlett, refused to make a union with the quince rootstock. But nurserymen now get around this barrier by grafting in a bridge of Hardy or Old Home pear, which is compatible with quince, and then grafting the Bartlett scion on top of that.

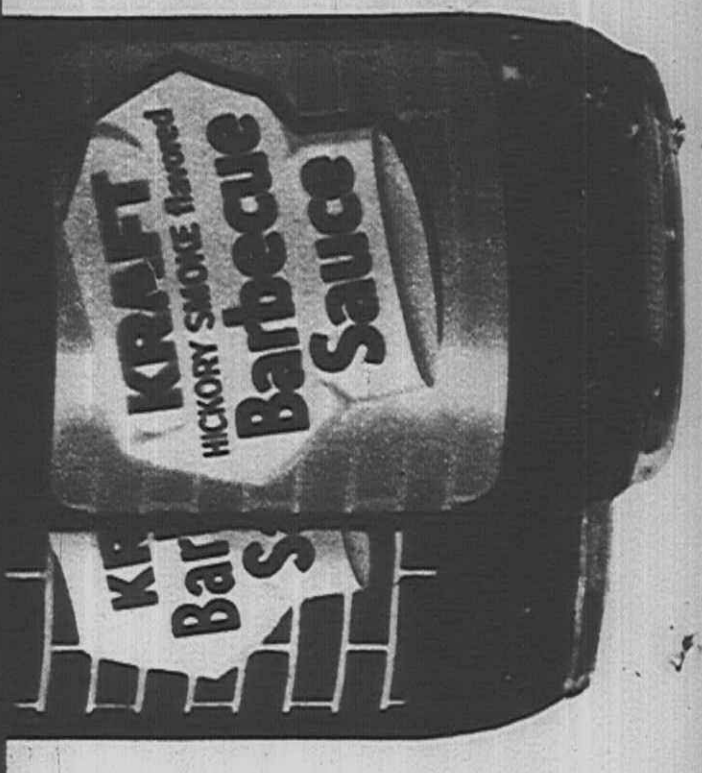

The fruits with pits were still more difficult to dwarf. It was Professor Karl D. Brase at the Cornell Agricultural Station, Geneva, N. Y., who built the first successful dwarf peaches. Some years back, Professor Brase hit on the idea of grafting both peach and plum scions on the rootstocks of the western sand cherry, a misnamed hardy native plum from the midwestern states. These grew into sturdy dwarfs that bore excellent peaches and plums. But the rampant sand-cherry roots kept sending up suckers all around the tree trunks in an apparent struggle to get back into Enjoy it your own way is the advice of the great-great-grandson of "the Commodore," who talks about his money as freely as he spends it.

SOME YEARS AGO I overheard two little shoeshine boys exchanging ideas, and one asked, "What would you do if someone gave you a million dollars?" The other tyke replied, "Count it." The point is that money—especially in lump sums—is America's favorite conversation game.

I wasn't aware that everybody didn't have a house on Fifth Avenue, a villa in Newport, or a steam-driven, ocean-going yacht, until my second year at St. Paul's preparatory school in New Hampshire. A small incident gave me a hint of my hidden powers. Several of my classmates asked me to treat them to some candy.

"How could I?" I asked. "I have only twelve cents left of my weekly allowance."

"That's all right," they answered. "Just walk in the store and tell them who you are. They'll let you charge anything you want."

"Will they?"

"Sure thing. You are a Vanderbilt."

A Vanderbilt? I felt puzzled. My name was Vanderbilt, all right, but I saw no reason why the store proprietor should be impressed by it.

The boys sneered.

"Oh, go on, stop pretending. Don't you know that your family has one hundred million bucks?"

"I see," I said. I did not. "One hundred million bucks" meant nothing to me. The only thing I really saw was a mean look in my classmates' eyes. I sighed and entered the store where I explained to the proprietor that I would buy one pound of marshmallows, provided he would agree to take twelve cents now and wait for the balance until Saturday. The man behind the counter hesitated. He looked for a moment at the shining dime and two sticky pennies in my trembling hand, then asked:

"What's the name?"

"Vanderbilt."

"What's the first name?"

"Cornelius. Cornelius Vanderbilt."

"Any relation to the old lady who has that big house on Fifth Avenue?"

"That's my grandmother."

"Take two pounds of marshmallows," said the proprietor, "and keep your twelve cents. You'll pay me the whole thing in a heap at your pleasure."

I walked out in a daze.

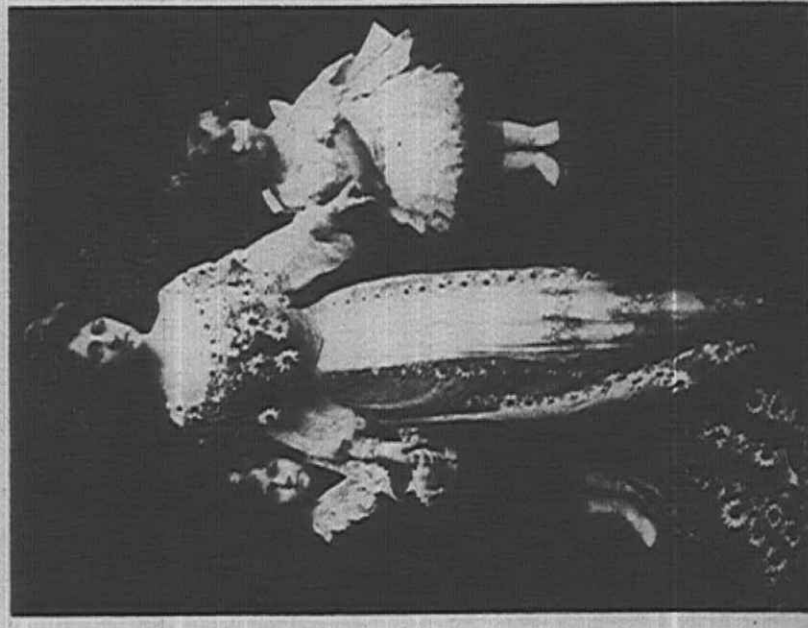

"You see," said my public, "you can buy the whole town if you want to. Just give your name and tell them to charge. How about getting some bicycles for us?"

From that moment on my horizons broadened.

Money has done a lot for me, even if it has failed me on occasion.

Thinking it over, I realize that for one thing it has allowed me to be eccentric. I can say and do what I please . . . without good sense. I can choose the people I want to be with. I'm not beholden to anyone. It's quite a plus.

And there are other rewards, of course. After forty years of adulthood and some pretty wild experiences, I'll go along with the theory that the material and physical pleasures are fleeting and the flesh is weak. But you have to spend, enjoy, and grow up in order to find this out.

One healthy way of getting your kicks from money is travel. I've made 75 crossings to Europe. I've been to Barbados in the Caribbean with its inexpensive pensions and liquor at one-third the U. S. price; to Kandy in Ceylon, high in the mountains, 50 miles from the equator, where you have elephants to ride on; to Zanzibar and the Sultan's palace; to Beersheba in Israel with the camel market and the wonders of the Dead Sea. I've been to Interlaken in Switzerland, and up the Jungfrau ice castle in midsummer; to Oaxaca in Mexico, and the ruined cities; to Rhodes and the excavations; to Capetown with its native compounds and processions. All colorful and worthwhile, and on the way I've met many of the world's great, including De Gaulle, Churchill, Gandhi, and Mao.

Travel and a chance to meet the world-famous are rich rewards. Yet, I must admit, I have invested just as much in giving parties as I have in travel. (What did I tell you about the chance to be eccentric?)

To me, party-giving is more than fun, it is a science. Chief and assistants are picked with care. Food is ordered with an eye to the time of year, the occasion, the guests, and the place. Bartenders are put through a full-scale rehearsal. Decorations and music get equal attention.

Lastly, the guest list is chosen not so much with a study of the individual but of the whole chemistry. One kind of person brings out another, and I like to make stimulating combinations—politicians and comedians and corporation heads, and everywhere, lots of lovely women. Two of my now sold each year in America to commercial orchardists and home gardeners.

These dwarfs, many no taller than a man, make home orchard husbandry a lazybones gardener's dream. Two dozen of them will thrive for years without crowding each other on a 60 by 100 foot plot. By espaliering them along fences and walls, the amateur orchardist can plant two or three dozen of these amazing horticultural midgets, of all different varieties, in a plot that would support only a dozen mature standard-size trees. Although young dwarfs cost about $1.50 more per tree, they bear sooner, are easier to spray and prune, and can be picked without the aid of a ladder. And they bear luscious and often oversized fruit. In a test made by the Oregon State experimental station, golden delicious dwarf apples, planted 363 trees to the acre, produced twice the average acre yield of standard trees planted 34 to the acre.

Unlike the Bisbee Red Delicious, most dwarfs are not natural mutations. Instead, they are literally "built" by hand on an assembly-line basis. There are several techniques. One nurseryman, for example, grows thousands of rootstocks from cuttings of an apple rootstock known as East Malling IX. This is a standardized strain, one of 25 selected and trueed up through four decades of work at the noted horticultural experiment station at East Malling, England. It always makes small growth. When each rootstock reaches sapling size, the nurseryman inserts a varietal bud during mid-summer. The bud unites with the stock but does not produce new stock until the following spring. At that time the rootstock portion over the bud is cut off. This bud matures eventually into a dwarf tree bearing full-size fruit. Its growth is dwarfed because the root that supports it is really that of a dwarf plant.

ANOTHER nurseryman uses a technique called the "Clark System." In Washington State each summer he grows hundreds of thousands of apple seedlings from domestic or French seed sources that have a branched root system. At the end of one year these seedling plants are dug and grafted indoors to a scion of a hardy variety which will serve as the trunk. The grafted seedlings are lined out in the nursery row and grow for one year. The following year a scion of the Clark dwarfing section, a four to five inch section, and a scion of the desired variety such as Golden Delicious is first bench grafted indoors and then taken into the field and this combination graft is then grafted into the hardy trunk growing in the field. (It is the Clark dwarfing section which carries dwarfing genes in its sap that is called the dwarfing sand-wich, or stempiece.) They stay in the field for one more season and then they are ready for planting.

Thus, each dwarf is an assembly of parts from four trees, all different types. And sometimes more, if the tree wizards decide to bud two or three varieties onto one tree for customers who like to pick Golden Delicious, Starkings, Winesaps or other kinds of apples all from the same midget! This whole process was made possible by the discovery of one bonanza crabapple whose potent genes have turned millions of otherwise normal apple trees into dwarfs. The original tree was a seedling, planted by a sailor who had picked up frequent guests, I am happy to say, are Jack Favite, junior U. S. Senator from New York, one of the finest men I've ever met, and his lovely brunette Marion. Paul Getty, with his latest, is another kind of value on the guest list. They say he is the richest man in America. We have been friends for quarter of a century, and I think we always will be, as we each respect the other's feelings and way of life.

The Carleton Alsops are among the many and welcome representatives of the entertainment world. He is a longtime motion-picture producer and beau, a former husband of some of the prettiest stars in Hollywood and now married to an heiress from Houston. I could go on and on. My guests come from all over the country and all over the world, and, with the red carpet rolled out, they have made my parties famous.

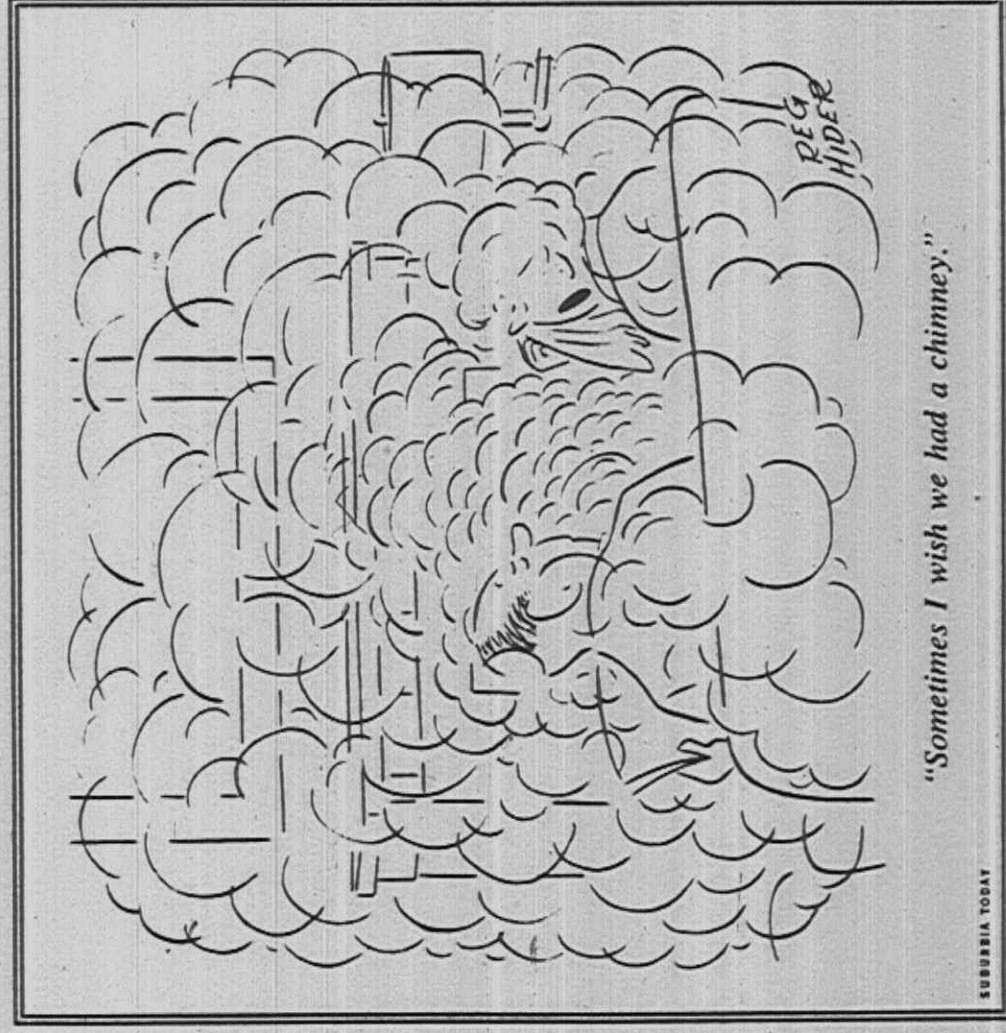

WHAT PRICE a good evening—gold champagne, for instance, and the music of the Three Violins, and sixty intimate friends at the Star-on-the-Roof room of the Beverly Hilton Hotel? I'm thinking of a party I had recently for my friend Kenneth McKnight when he joined Vanderbilt Enterprises. We danced till dawn and went on to ham and eggs at the Beverly Wilshire drugstore, and in the end I picked up a check for $6,063, including tips and the drugstore breakfast. A good evening comes high, I admit—but it keeps the money in circulation, doesn't it? On the serious side, it's an obligation for anyone with money to be generous and, handled wisely, generosity can be a source of much satisfaction. But it's easy to goof in this complicated giving.

ONCE my father told me that Gwynne Vanderbilt of Cincinnati, Ohio, had written out a check for $200,000 to the Tibetan monks. He said his father was so furious he didn't speak to my grandmother in over a month. "Except," added Father, "to say good morning and good night." I always liked that.

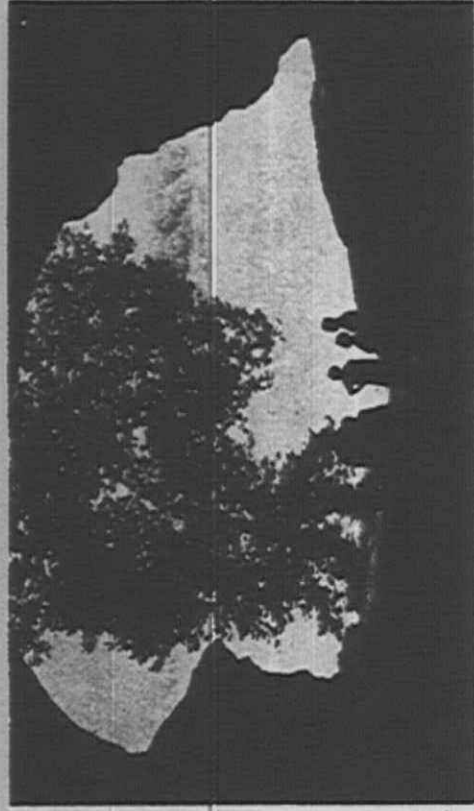

My own giving has been less grandiose than my parents' for I believe that charity begins at home. For years on end I have taken care of scores of my friends, and their ex-wives, often unbeknownst to them, and have tried to help equal scores of people I really felt were in desperate circumstances.

In summing up, I'd say that if a rich man can keep his health, fight an even battle with his temptations, and keep busy, he has a good chance of enjoying his money. Oh, and one more thing—it's a good idea to hold on to the principal and let the interest buy your pleasures.

"Sometimes I wish we had a chimney."

steamers were floating palaces with crystal chandeliers, elegant staterooms, and plush lounges; excellent food; lovely music and entertainment; and wonderfully exciting sights to enjoy all along the way.

The Delta Queen is the last link with this part of the past. A few days—or a full two-week vacation—spent aboard her have all the adventure of a mid-nineteenth-century excursion, plus a few modern surprises, such as coming suddenly upon the Pittsburgh skyline or passing Baton Rouge at night. It's a gentle vacation; you get plenty of rest, and if you can't afford to take a cruise around the world, it satisfies your hunger for being afloat.

AMONG THE POINTS of interest viewed from that comfortable deck chair:

... the giant Hopewell Indian burial mounds, relics of a vanished and complex society that flourished here thousands of years ago.

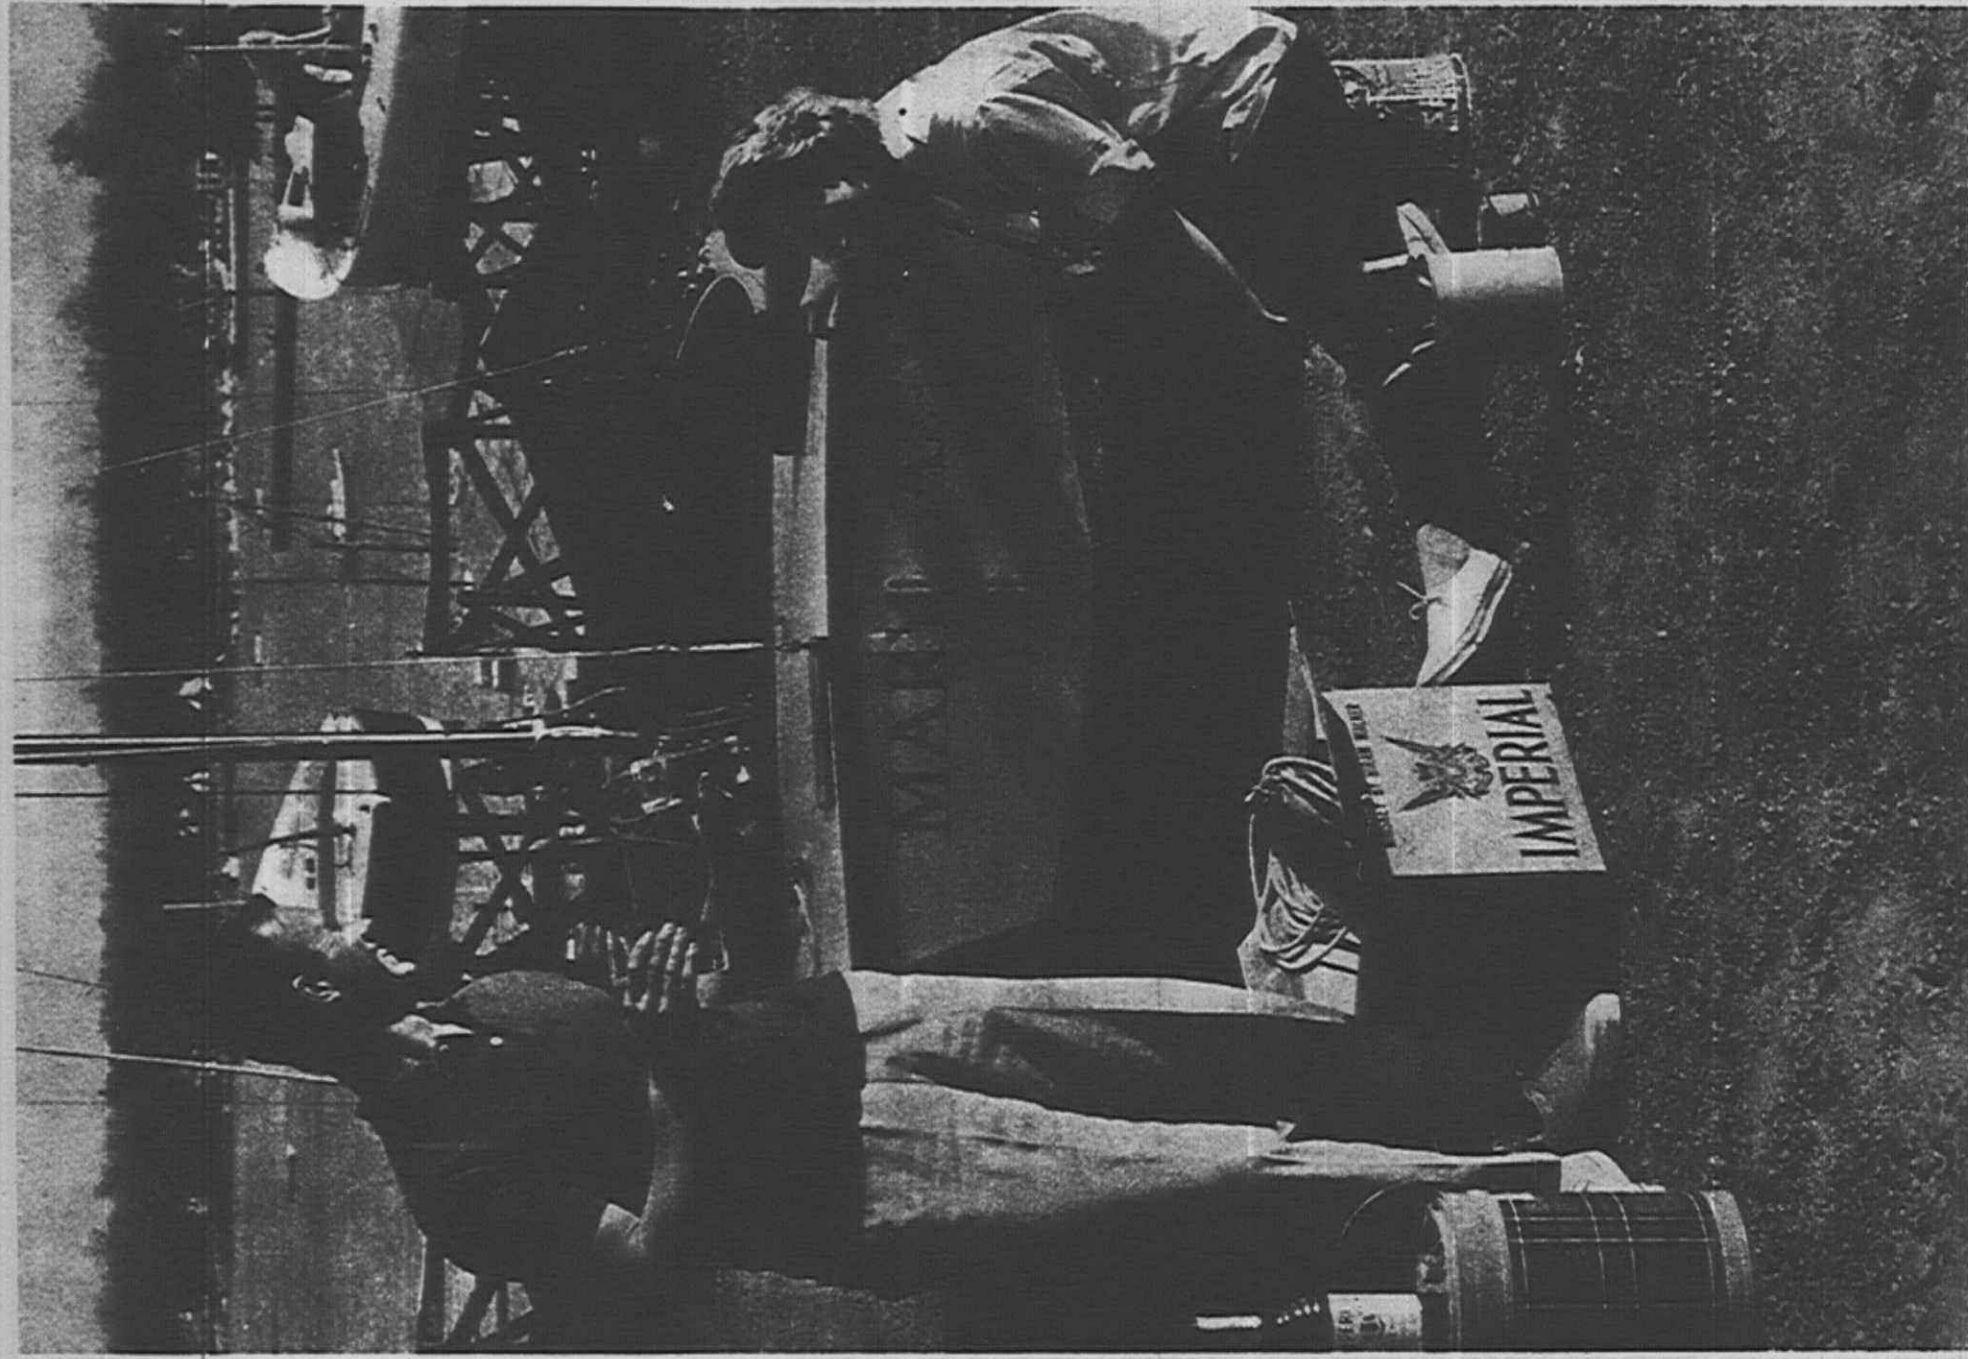

... the mammoth cave, called Cave-In-Rock, where river bandits lured unsuspecting travelers who were then robbed, killed, and thrown in the river, never to be found.

... the ghost of a lost steamboat that, they say, can still be seen and heard on rainy nights.

... Natchez-Under-The-Hill, once a center of crime and vice, home of the famous gamblers who went up and down the river fleecing innocent and native citizens.

Have you ever noticed how much more of the Old South is visible from the water than from the highways? On one of her cruises the Queen stops at the beautiful Oak Allée plantation, named for the 90-foot-wide avenue of 28 oaks that sweeps from the magnificent house right down to the river. These trees were planted more than 200 years ago by an early settler, who called his plantation Bon Sejour.

Finally, the Queen pulls into New Orleans, which is like no other city in the world. All this—and much more—is there for anyone who chooses to take a vacation on the river, aboard the last great lady of the Mississippi—the Delta Queen.

KENTILE VINYL FLOORS

GARBAGE IS A NASTY

EVERY DAY, in every American town from Maine to California, household refuse is accumulating at a rate of about 2½ pounds per inhabitant for each 24-hour period. The housewife gets rid of garbage and rubbish by putting it outside to be picked up. After that, it's a community problem. For a community of say 30,000 population, something like 34 tons of refuse per day (aside from sewage) must be collected and disposed of one way or another. It does not just disappear. You—your community—must take it away and put it somewhere. Where? That's the problem, and it's one that isn't easily answered.

In terms of modern refuse-disposal methods, there are just two things to do with it. It can be buried, or it can be partially burned and the ashes can be buried afterward with the non-combustible rubbish.

Each of these methods has advantages and disadvantages. Burying everything is cheaper in current operating cost, if enough land is available. This method—known to today's sanitary engineers as sanitary landfill—requires about one acre of land per year for each 10,000 population. Operating costs are in the neighborhood of $1 per ton, though higher if the haul to the disposal point averages much over 6 to 8 miles.

Landfills fall into two general classifications—area landfills, using more or less flat land, and depression landfills which use natural or man-made depression or irregularities in the terrain. In area landfills, the usual method is to cut a deep trench in which the refuse is deposited and progressively covered with earth (the proportion of 6 feet of refuse covered by 2 feet of earth, as used at Hopkins, Minn., is a normal one). Parallel trenches are opened as the work proceeds. The refuse, when dumped, is compacted by heavy crawler-type tractors which reduce the bulk to as little as 25% of the original volume.

With proper control, landfills produce none of the nuisance problems associated with the old-fashioned open dumps. They do not breed rats, for example (no rat has ever been known to burrow through earth for more than 12 inches to get at food), and the compacted and treated refuse does not catch fire from spontaneous combustion and make the whole neighborhood reek, as dumps have a habit of doing. Nevertheless, zoning laws, rising land values, and opposition from residents tend to limit the availability of land in-or close to the thickly built-up areas, which are the main sources of refuse. People are just beginning to learn the difference between landfills and dumps, and their initial reaction is likely to be, "Put that smelly thing somewhere else." Unhappily, "somewhere else" isn't always available.

One landfill operation on the outskirts of Birmingham, Alabama, threatened by an injunction suit launched by outraged property owners, was rescued by the ingenuity of the Public Works Commissioner, who gave an outdoor tea party for the complainants on top of the landfill—with the result that the injunction was dissolved by hilarious acclamation.

OTHERWISE USELESS or unsightly land (swamps, sloughs, ravines, heavily eroded areas, old quarries, or gravel pits) can be used for landfill purposes with good results and eventually transformed into usable sites for parks, parking lots, airports, sports fields, as well as for light industrial or commercial construction. Waste land became a municipal asset instead of a liability, for instance, in Highland Park, Illinois, which converted a 70-acre slough area into a sanitary landfill project serving local disposal needs and those of nearby Lake Forest, Deerfield, Glencoe, and Highwood as well, bringing a substantial annual income at the rate of 45¢ per cubic yard of refuse deposited.

Unfortunately, there is less and less space available for landfill, and this brings us to the other alternative, incineration. About three-quarters of the total volume of a refuse collection (including garbage) can be burned in a modern, well-designed incinerating plant with only 5% to 15% of the original weight remaining in the form of ashes. The rest is transferred to the atmosphere as gases or particulate matter. The ashes, plus the 25% of the original refuse (cans, bottles, metal scrap, crockery, ceramics, etc.) which can't be burned, must still be compacted and buried; but the useful life of the municipal landfill area is extended three to four times by burning off as much as possible of the initial volume. Principal disadvantages of incineration are the need for a substantial capital investment, high operating costs ($4 to $5 per ton), and air pollution.

Some authorities still believe incineration provides the only feasible long-term solution. The Metropolitan Study Commission of Milwaukee County, Wisconsin, sees local landfill sites being filled up and communities facing the costs of longer and longer hauls to areas where land can be made available. Even dumping grounds for incinerator ashes are in increasingly short supply. A number of communities in the county (Wauwatosa, Whitefish Bay, Shorewood, West Allis, South Milwaukee) have built or rebuilt incinerators. To some criticism that these plants are of small capacity and hence inherently inefficient, the Commission points out that several communities could join together to build one large, fully efficient plant to be run cooperatively.

There is some indication, however, that the annexation policies pursued by the City of Milwaukee have made neighboring smaller communities a little shy of cooperative projects as too suggestive of a loss of the identity they have fought so hard to retain. So what, says the Commission, do you do when you run out of landfill sites and have to start paying prohibitive long-distance hauling costs? Long-distance transfer hauling in big trucks or railroad cars to a cooperatively owned landfill site (perhaps outside the county) might be one answer. Another that has been suggested is to start fill-site enclosures of tongue-and-groove sheet-steel piling in shallow areas of Lake Michigan; this might help add to county park areas and to the Milwaukee Harbor Wharf.

Some incinerator enthusiasts insist that prejudice against incinerators arises from misuse in the past, notably by overloading when daily loads have overtaken designed capacity due to rising populations. An overloaded incinerator can, it appears, become an almost hopeless mess. Still, as William S. Foster, editor of the magazine American City, points out in his March, 1960, issue, there are veteran incinerators operating to everyone's satisfaction in built-up areas of such places as Brookline, Mass., and Darien, Conn. Hollywood, Florida, is proud of a "custom-built" incinerator, specially designed for Hollywood's low, flat terrain and occasional hurricane-force winds, and now producing a $37,000 annual saving by centralizing the operations of sanitation-department equipment and personnel. And in Boston, the incinerator provides all heat for the City Hospital—annual savings, $115,000.

Each community or group of communities has this refuse problem to think about—now and for the future. Landfill sites will be more expensive and more costly to reach under exploding population pressures. It may not always be easy to induce town fathers to find money for incinerators or to agree to locate one conveniently—even though good ones don't smell, the daily parade of refuse trucks is no joy to the neighbors. You can, of course, fall back on old-fashioned methods. You can feed garbage to hogs, but you have to cook it or you can't sell the pork. You can just use the good old-fashioned dump, if you can stand the smell, the eyesore, and the rats. One community in Delaware County, Pennsylvania, estimates 100,000 rats, fat ones, on its town dump and is frantically trying to get rid of them because, in this case, the rat population is outgrowing the daily food supply provided by the dump and is spreading all over town. The simple solution applied by the folks of Ketchikan, Alaska—they just dump the refuse on the beach and push it into the sea—isn't universally acceptable; New York and Oakland, California, used to haul garbage out to sea and dump it 20 to 50 miles offshore, but the results along the beaches caused the practice to be condemned finally as a health hazard.

FOR THE SMALL COMMUNITY and even for many big ones, there's little doubt that sanitary landfill is the most attractive and inexpensive means of garbage disposal provided that enough fill area can be assured for the years to come.

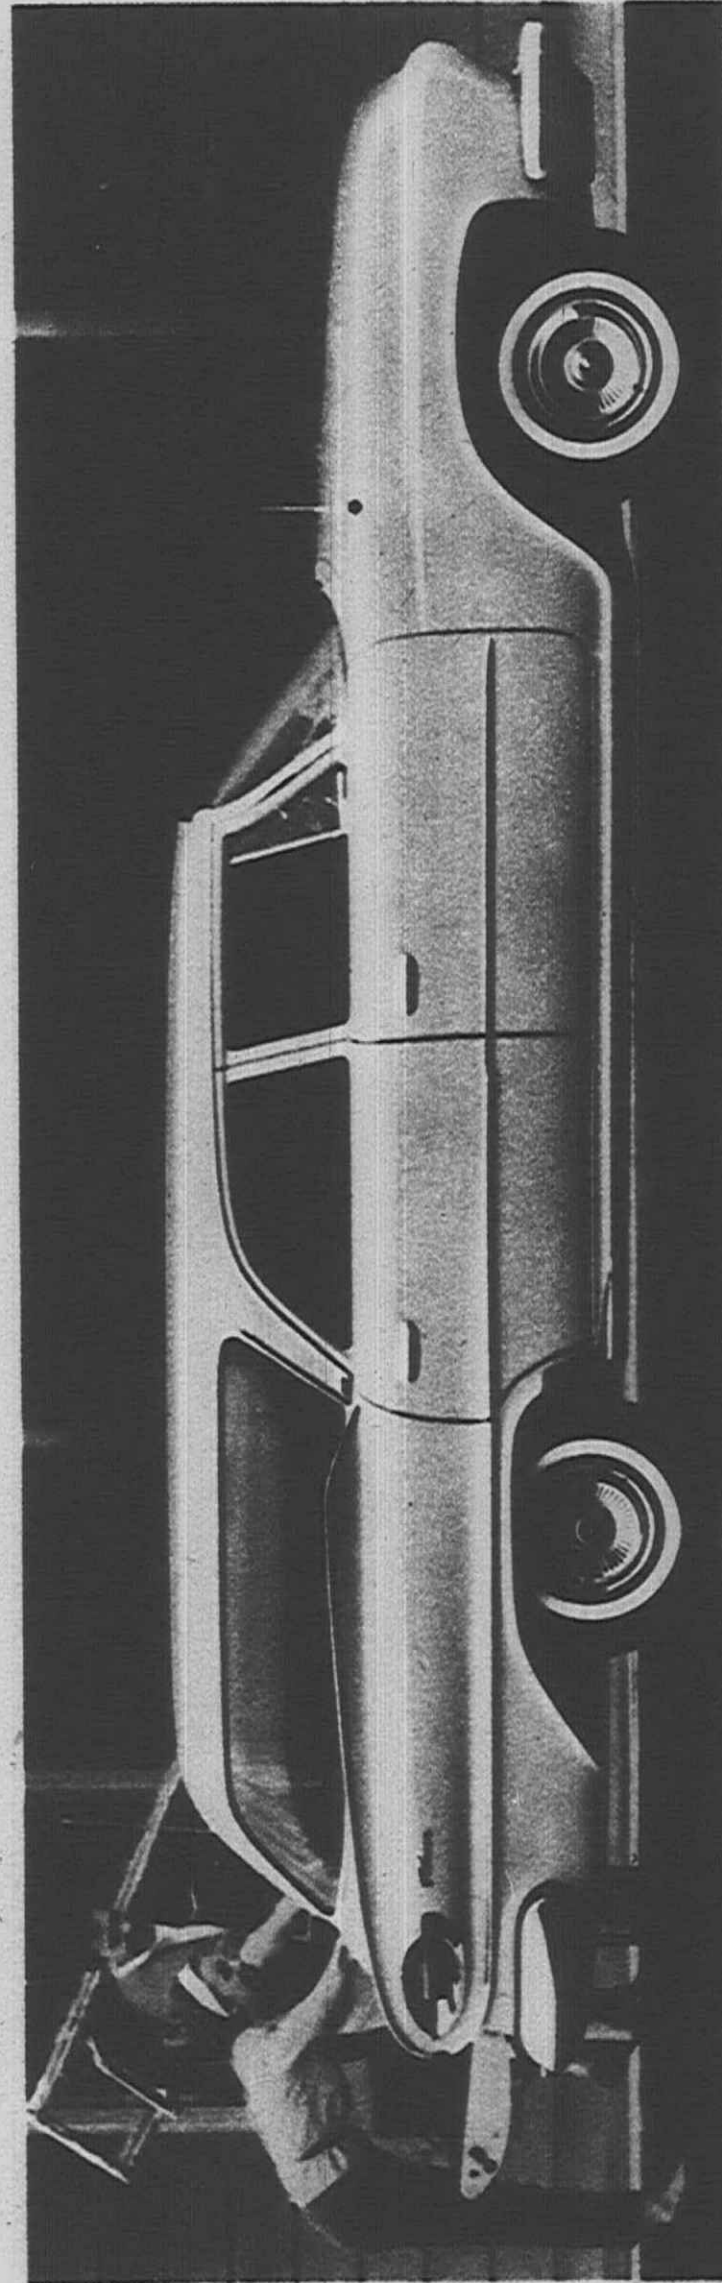

But of one thing you can be sure: whether you burn or bury or just try to forget the whole problem and hold your nose when you pass the town dump, those 2½ pounds per person per day are going to go on piling up—now and in all the years to come. The towns are going to have to put it somewhere—and keep on putting it somewhere.

families—and where are the towns going to put it?

Because these two are Dodge Darts. And Dart is a full-size Dodge priced model for Ford and Chevrolet. In addition, Dart has a number of special economy features its major competitors can't match. DODGE DART!!!

Kerr addicts may remember a passage in her "Please Don't Eat The Daisies":

"We are being very careful with our children. They'll never have to pay a psychiatrist twenty-five dollars an hour to find out why we rejected them. We'll tell them why we rejected them. Because they're impossible, that's why."

This drew a challenge from another mother: "We love our children. Don't you love yours?"

But Jean Kerr's ability to see her children with humor and occasional exasperation in no way reduces her warmth and involvement as a mother.

"Kids," she says, "need to think their mothers are crazy about them and interested in them. And I guess a mother ought to show it in her own way."

FUNNY as she may be on the printed page, Mrs. Kerr is dead-serious about bringing up her boys. No exponent of the Permissive School of child raising, she believes in discipline for her brood.

"My parents were Irish, and I was brought up really strictly," she asserts. "It was good for me. I say children don't mind discipline. What they mind is being ignored."

"I think mothers today are much too self-conscious about their kids," she adds. "That's one of the things wrong with children today. I'm a Dr. Spock fan and I was delighted to see that he has a whole new edition stressing the fact that mothers should trust their instincts."

Strongly as she feels, Mrs. Kerr never preaches in writing.

"I want only to be amusing," she insists. "I'm in no position to tell other mothers what to do. We're just trying to do what's right with our own kids."

One firm measure in that direction was a recent ban on photographing the boys for publication. Jean Kerr is no celebrity to her neighbors because, as she points out, "the place is crawling with writers." But after family pictures appeared in a number of national magazines, the boys were beginning to be celebrities at school.

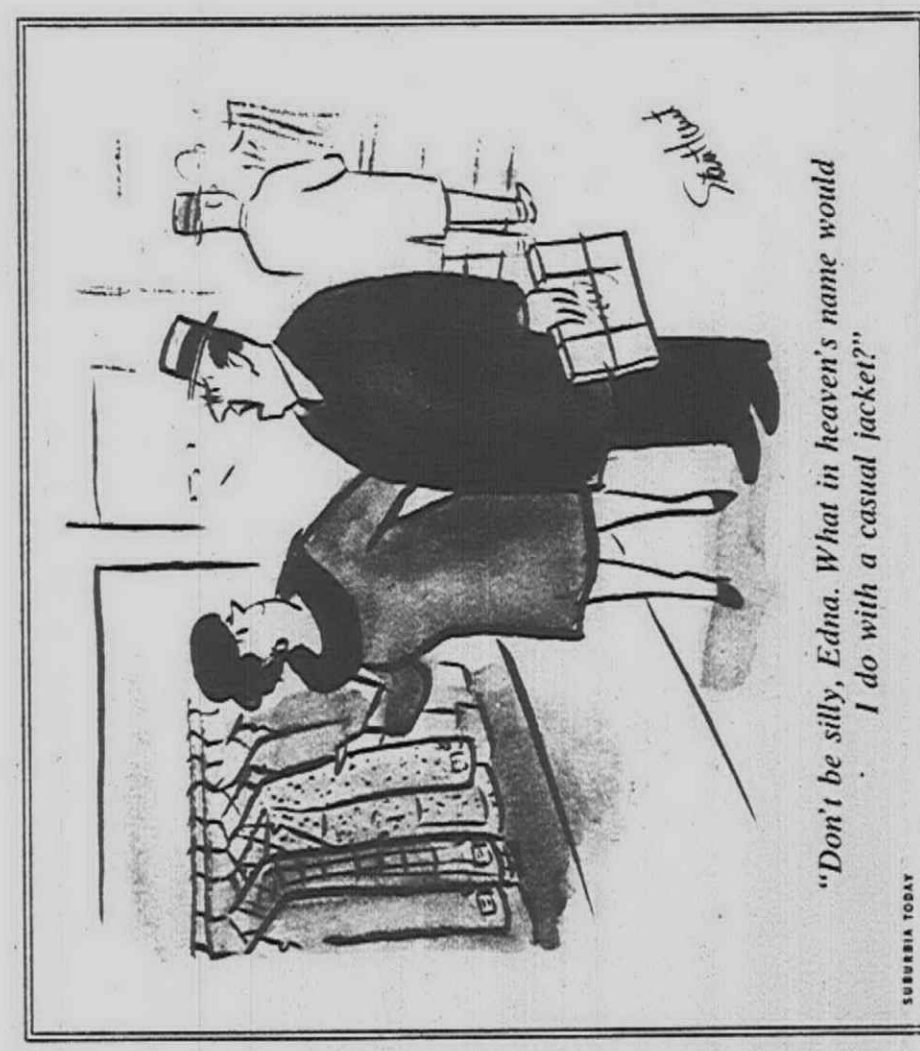

"It made them self-conscious," Mrs. Kerr says. "They started getting hammy. So we thought it would be better to keep them away from photographers. They are ordinary children, and we don't want them to get the idea that they are at all out of the ordinary."

If the boys all grow up into solid, respectable, well-adjusted citizens, their mother just might write a book about raising children.

"So far, they've developed no serious problems," she says, "but I can't open my mouth yet—one of them might rob a bank tomorrow."

Even if she never gets to that book, Jean Kerr already has the satisfaction of hundreds of letters from hundreds of parents who write to her:

"We're so relieved to find that other children are just like ours."

"Don't be silly, Edna. What in heaven's name would I do with a casual jacket?"

Dance, move, walk in freedom

We've said it so often that there probably isn't a girl in America who doesn't know: "You can swim wearing Tampax." But we have been taken to task for not saying more often, more forcefully: "Dancing can be fun again when you wear Tampax."

Tampax gives you complete freedom of motion; in fact, you're apt to all but forget about differences in days of the month. There can be no chafing or irritation from Tampax® because it absorbs internally. Since you're not wearing added bulk, there can be no reason for excess perspiration. And odor is prevented because there's no exposure to the air.

Carrying Tampax, changing and disposing of Tampax—is never a problem. Actually, there's just no way for anyone to tell that you have any monthly difficulties.

So enjoy yourself all summer long the Tampax way. It's easier to use than you think—and far nicer than you dreamed!

Occupation—Mother!

odd hours -- very odd hours, she readily admits. Her outside career leans heavily upon a combination housekeeper-nursemaid named Mabel.

"This treasure," says Mabel's employer, "has been saving my sanity for nine years. I'd give her last name, but I'm afraid somebody will steal her." Mabel arrives at 7:30 in the morning and takes command through early dinner. Her efforts are supplemented by a once-a-week cleaning man. It all helps, but Mrs. Kerr has yet to take up rug weaving for lack of something to do around the house.

A constant problem is rounding up baby sitters during theater season. Mabel sleeps in two nights a week, but for a solid stretch of openings the Kerrs have to fill in with sitters.

"I've got to cultivate some new sitters," she says. "My last year's supply have gone off to college."

With Mabel manning the barricades and the four older boys in school much of the day, Mrs. Kerr ought to have plenty of writing time—"if it weren't for the thirty-eight phone calls I get every afternoon." The Kerr family would do almost anything rather than answer the phone.

"Walter can pull out the plug," his wife says with admiration, "but I can't. I'm too nosy."

Typical of the call that drives her wild was a recent one from a gelatin manufacturer.

"They wanted me to endorse a crash diet," she recalls. "I'm dieting, all right. But not in public."

With it all, Mother Kerr manages to record her wit and wisdom with notable success. Known to the world as a successful author, she is nevertheless unimpressed with her fame.

"Most of the time," she admits, "I feel that I'm a plain, ordinary housewife. I'm home all day. What's more, I wouldn't take a job away from home for all the money in the world."

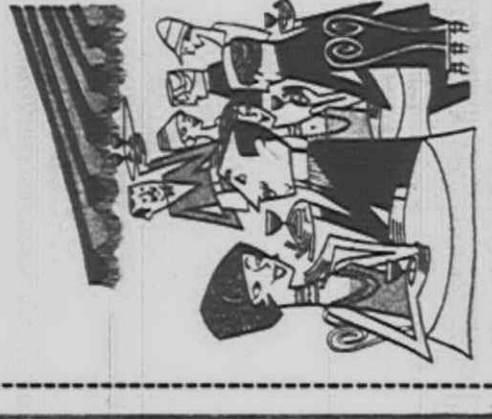

WHILE SHE doesn't think that her presence is vital to the children's well-being, she does feel that their presence is vital to hers. "The older they get," she says, "the harder they are to leave because they get more and more interesting."

Mrs. Kerr is not immune to occasional doubts. She reproaches herself for going to the theater as often as she does. ("I ought to be around to check the children's homework.") And she sometimes wonders if she ought to be doing more church and community work. (She is a member of the Mothers' Club of her boys' parochial school, and she hasn't missed a Parents' Day yet.) But she is sensible enough to admit that with five boys and a play and a book all spinning at the same time, something's got to give. What "gives" is organization work and a complicated social life. Her reading ("mostly trashy modern novels") is jet-propelled. Her social circle is limited to a few close friends.

One routine that never "gives" is a regular Sunday night family session when the boys recite poems and listen to poetry on records.

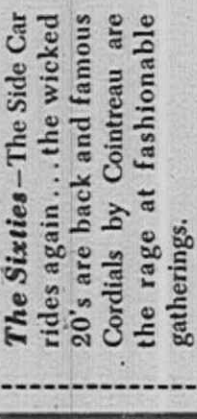

"Walter insisted that our children should know and understand poetry. The older kids thought it was silly at first, but you should hear them now. They choose their own selections to memorize and they love it."

good tricks with tricky toddlers

bringing up baby's hints
Collected by Mrs. Dan Gerber, Mother of 5

It's the rare and unusual toddler who doesn't have a temper tantrum from time to time. (And if he finds it's effective, he'll be tricky enough to use it when he wants his way.) A few ways to sidetrack tantrums:

- Plenty of rest. Do not let baby get over-tired or over-stimulated before bedtime.
- A sense of freedom. Outdoors or indoors, a toddler should have a chance to play under watchful but not nagging supervision.
- Try to avoid situations that are likely to produce tantrums. Use distraction when storm signals do appear.
- When the temper is over, let your child know you love him.

Toddlers, creepers or babes-in-arms all benefit from fruits and vegetables for the vitamins and minerals they supply. Gerber Strained and Junior Fruits and Vegetables are specially made to make your tykes like to eat these important foods. What's more, they're cooked in the absence of air to preserve the utmost in nutritive goodness.

The number—every car gets one which must be taped onto it before departure.

You'll see them any weekend now, gathering happily for a rough, tough, all-day race through the spring countryside

WHEN YOU'RE OUT for a drive on a spring Sunday and you pass seven or eight sports cars, most of them top-down two-seaters, each carrying two people, the passenger usually a girl bent over a clipboard on which she's frantically scribbling something—these are rallyists, and they're engaged in something called a rally, or, to give it the positively correct spelling, a "rallye."

A rally is a sporting event in which the object is to drive an automobile from Point A to Point B at a certain fixed average speed, say 38.7 miles per hour. That's the simplest form, and even it isn't very simple. For one thing, an average of 38.7 miles per hour is pretty fast, particularly over the kind of roads rally organizers lean playwright, holds down at least them boys

Walter Kerr, father of the five, faces it all with equanimity. "Walter is the most patient man," says his wife. "He never raises his voice. I don't know how he has endured it. We eat dinner with the children—heaven knows why—and when they start dueling with asparagus spears, Walter doesn't notice. He must be in some intellectual cloud because there are the stalks flying in front of his eyes and ... well, I have to be the Heavy. I try to save my vocal cords by muttering, 'Walter, won't you do something about this?' And he says, 'About what?'"

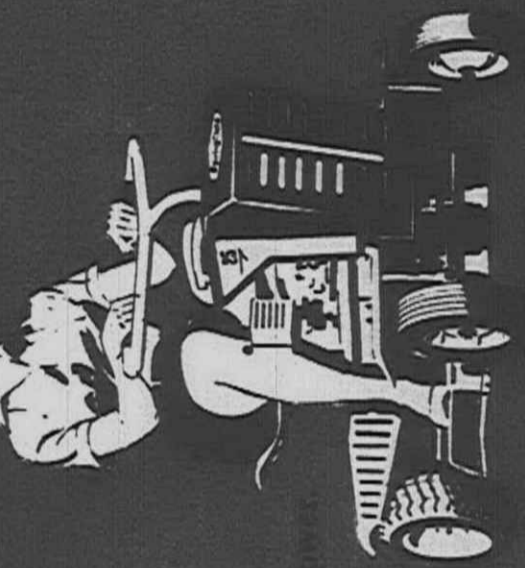

The mystery is when Mrs. Kerr manages to write. The first thing to do, she says, is to avoid deadlines. She will work up a frenzy to get an article to an editor on the promised date. But since her time is an unknown quantity, she tries not to get pinned down. Her new play was written in

Diet of Champions

Prize winner or pal, Ken-L-Biskit brings out the best in your dog

Concentrated Ken-L-Biskit provides twice the power of lean beefsteak!

Ken-L-Biskit is a concentrated kib-ble. Ounce for ounce, it provides twice the calories (energy-power) of the most flavorful lean beefsteak you can feed your family. And unlike so many other dry dog foods, Ken-L-Biskit is not "blown up." This means, cup for cup, there's more protein, more vitamins, more minerals, more of every nutrient your dog is known to need. Because Ken-L-Biskit does so much more, you can feed less of it. Hence a most happy economy. And slow oven baking enriches the great flavor of Ken-L-Biskit. Makes for best digestibility, too.

Since every bit of every bite works to create the peak condition and wonderful spirit of a champion, it's no wonder Ken-L-Biskit is the world's largest-selling kibbled dog food! Now available at your favorite food store.

Occupation

Jean Kerr, best-selling author and half a dozen full-time jobs, five of

BY ROLLIE HOCHSTEIN

WHEN Jean Kerr is faced with a form to fill out, one heading always stops her: OCCUPATION. She's an author, of course. Her "Please Don't Eat The Daisies" spiced best-seller lists for fifty weeks after its publication two years ago. Her second book, "The Snake Has All The Lines," is just out and well on its way.

Mrs. Kerr is also a playwright. She co-authored "The King Of Hearts," which, after a hit run on Broadway, is still popular in the summer-theater circuit. And her new comedy, "Mary, Mary," is being hailed as "theater magic."

As the wife of Walter Kerr, a well-known drama critic, she accompanies her husband to dozens of theater openings, often weaving other obligations into her city excursions—like consulting with her publisher, looking in on a rehearsal of her latest play, or autographing a few hundred copies of her latest book.

Further, a seventeen-year-old, strictly nonprofessional collaboration of Jean and Walter Kerr has produced a family of boys—five of them—in an old, overgrown "gingerbread" house in Larchmont, New York.

To juggle all her jobs would tax the talents of a crisply efficient, highly charged regimentarian, which Jean Kerr is not. She is rather shy, soft-spoken, self-effacing, and completely unpretentious. She says she is slow-moving, noisy, and irascible at home. Either way, she is too spontaneous to be comfortable on a tight schedule. So she doesn't juggle. She simply takes first things first.

Her first things come in fives. She enjoys describing herself as harassed and overwhelmed by her sons, but there is no doubt that she has the situation firmly in hand. She certainly knows who's who around the house—and so do her children.

"CHRISTOPHER," she marvels, "is just fifteen, and he looks like a man. He weighs 180 pounds, and it somehow makes me feel younger to have a son bigger than I am. Chris is unsettling because he never defies me. I ask him to pick the newspapers off the floor, and he makes all the motions of doing it. Only he doesn't do it. I turn around and he's gone, papers still there. I wish he'd say 'No!' out-right and then I could handle him."

Colin and John are a pair of usually reasonable, usually well-behaved twins.

"At eleven," Mrs. Kerr says, "they are sensible, middle-aged types. I wish I were as mature as they are right now." Gilbert, eight, is what his mother describes as a "lunatic type. He's so busy catching up with everybody else that he runs in circles." Gregory is two.

"I don't know if I'm getting experienced at all this or if he really is the easiest baby we've ever had. My mother wonders why Gregory's so contented playing by himself. I tell her we don't care what he does with his spare time. We're no dictators."

Car Rally

BY KEN PURDY

ILLUSTRATIONS BY BOB HUGO

toward: dirt, back country, up and down. Suppose you're embarking on a mildly difficult rally. The cars will gather at some convenient place—a park, a restaurant. Competitors will be given sealed envelopes. As the cars move off, their time of departure registered to the second, the passengers, or navigators, rip open the envelopes and find such instructions as:

"Turn right on Route 34. Maintain 31.7 average."

At third red barn (faded red, not bright) take Lawson's Lane (no sign) to second intersection, average 18.9 for first 2.3 miles, 26.1 to intersection. Look for marked map on porch of General Store. . . ." And so on.

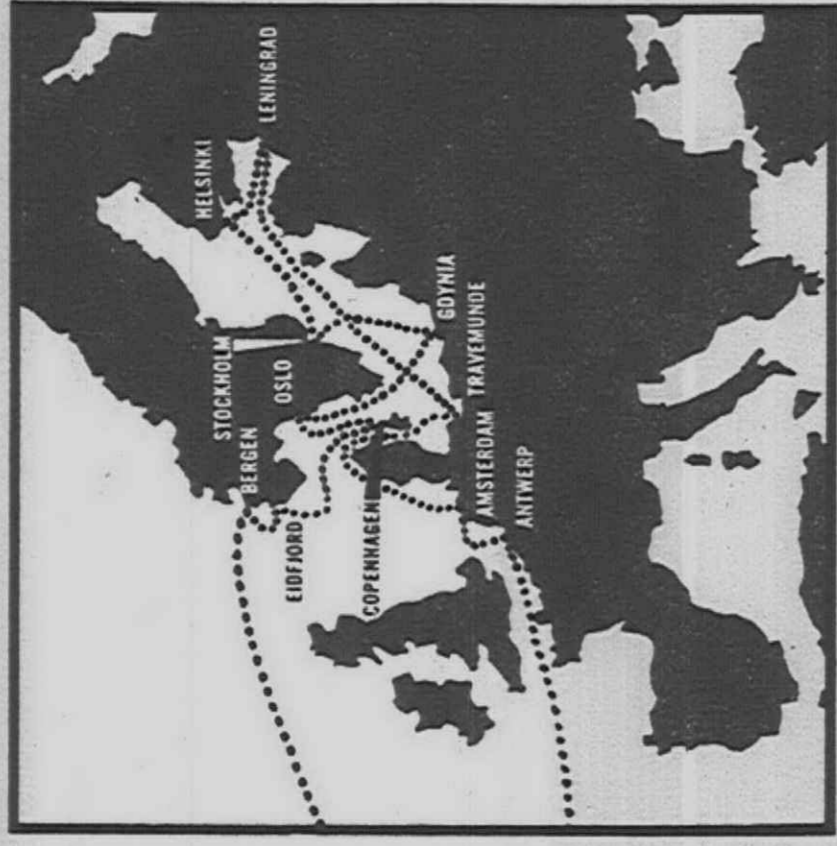

ALL YOU NEED to win a rally like that, a little six-hour run in the country, is a good car, a driver with a miler's sense of pace, a navigator who can produce solutions like an IBM machine—plus patience, understanding, and tolerance. For a really tough rally, you need a lot more.

Rally scoring is done in seconds, the usual system being so many points off a theoretically perfect score for each second the car is late—or early—in arrival at a check point. Check points are maintained by the sharp, stop-watch-wielding types who are running the rally. Location of some of the check points is known to the competitors; others are secret, hidden along some lonely stretch of road to make sure that you're penalized if you're doing 19.5 miles an hour instead of 20.1. Most rallies are run by one of the scores of motor-sports clubs that have sprung up since the end of World War II, with the check points manned by members with a taste for mathematics and the ability to fend off boredom while sitting in a folding chair behind an alder bush out in the countryside, stop watch in hand, pencil always at the ready.

When rallying began to be taken seriously in the United States a few years ago (it's a venerable sport in Europe) contestants could use fairly simple means of calculation. Ordinary wrist watches and the tenth-of-a-mile recorder on the car's speedometer were used. But as time went on and competition became tougher and tougher, such crude devices were abandoned. After all, the odometer, the mileage-recording part of the speedometer, is probably producing a 3-percent error, plus or minus; if you spin the rear wheels a few times in ice or sand, the factor of error will rise, and how do you know you have the right-size rear tires? When you're up against driver-navigator teams who can show seven seconds of error in a 48-hour run, such details become important.

WHEN YOU SEE a rally car with a dashboard that looks like a section of the chief engineer's panel on the "Queen Mary" you will know that the owner is counting on modern science to help him win. He may have four tenth-of-a-second stop watches mounted in a row with a bar-lever arrangement to start and stop them instantaneously in pairs. He'll have an average-speed instrument, an Italian Tachimedion, a Swedish Haida or perhaps one of his own rigging which, when hooked into the speedometer, will deliver a steady average-speed reading. The passenger's side of the car will carry a little gooseneck lamp, a clip board rigidly mounted to the dashboard to form a desk, and something like a Blackwell Mark II circular slide rule will be in evidence, a gimmick that will deliver miles, minutes, or average speed when the other two factors are set on it (to get average girls waving to him from a snowbank high in the Alps. Marrittimes one midnight last year.

Despite the difficulty of the course and the high average speeds—a number of cars do come into Monaco with perfect scores every year. To shake them down further, these cars are sent out on an overnight dash through the mountains over as difficult a route as possible and timed to the split second. And the Monte Carlo organizers, with a quarter of a century of experience behind them, can be very difficult indeed. For the final winner there's a prize of a few thousand dollars, of small significance beside the satisfaction of having won one of motoring's toughest contests.

THERE ARE many prizes, of course, the main division being according to engine size. (Most of the competing cars are European, since small size, agility, and speed are important.) One of the most interesting of the competitions is the "prix de confort," which goes to the most luxuriously equipped car in the rally. A typical winner may have circular windshield wipers to clear the snow from his head-lamp lenses; seats that make down into full beds; hot and cold running water; fitted washbasins; electric shavers; electric coffee- and tea-makers; hot plates, and so on through a list of 50 carefully planned accessories.

No one car has ever won prizes for both performance and comfort, however. In the Monte Carlo you can have a comfortable ride or a fast ride, but you can't have both.

Many racing drivers won't compete in such events as the Monte Carlo or the Alpine Rally, another 8-day special, considering them much too dangerous. Stirling Moss, probably the best driver in the world today, likes rallying, and so, for that matter, does his sister Pat, who has won many ladies' prizes. To ride as navigator with a really purposeful driver like Moss requires strong nerves, particularly over typically unfenced Alpine passes. A journalist who rode with him in a Monte Carlo rally told of shivering in the back seat of a small sedan as Moss belted the car along at 90 miles an hour on black glare ice. At one point Moss remarked, "It wouldn't make much difference here if we went off at 30 miles an hour or 90, so we may as well press on."

Rally, anyone?
