$4.00 Per Year with Plymouth Address, $5.00 Elsewhere in U.S.A.

MEMBERS OF the Plymouth Community Fund's board of directors met Friday evening to begin their review of a recent report on Plymouth's "un-met needs" as described by Mrs. Ruth Eckstein, a special consultant from the University of Michigan. Here, Fund treasurer Helyn Caplin (left) and board member Edward Sawusch discuss the report with its author, Mrs. Eckstein. Among other matters considered at the Friday night session was one pertaining to the establishment of a proposed family service counselling center. The Fund plans to set up a family service agency here and is exploring the possibility of hiring a caseworker through the Ann Arbor family service center. Supervision of the Plymouth family service counsellor would be handled by the Ann Arbor agency, it is proposed.

'63 Easter Seal Drive Underway This Week

More than 5,000 letters — carrying the Easter Seal appeal to all residents in Plymouth — are being mailed this week as the major impetus of the 1963 local Easter Seal campaign that runs from March 7 to April 14.

Local chairman of the drive is Dr. William Covington, Plymouth dentist, while another Plymouthite, engineer Herald Hamill, is general chairman for the Easter Seal Society of Western Wayne County.

The Rotary Club's crippled children's committee spearheads the drive here.

Hamill and Dr. Covington have expressed "confidence that the residents of Plymouth will cooperate fully to assure the success of the appeal."

A goal of $50,000 has been set for the Western Wayne County appeal, according to Hamill. No specific local goal has been established, however.

Funds to support the activities of the Easter Seal Society are derived from the distribution of Easter Seals, the local Lily Parade and a number of related events, all of which are a part of the forth-coming campaign.

The general appeal letters will be mailed so as to arrive in Plymouth homes to coincide with the campaign kick-off. Last week, a number of special letters were sent to persons who in past years have done a total of $5 or more to the drive.

Dr. Covington said "Easter Seal contributions in any amount will help purchase much needed equipment and services for crippled children and adults, through our own Easter Seal Center, near Michigan and Middlebelt. This Center is free and clear, built especially to serve the physically handicapped."

He cited the buying power of the Easter Seal dollar for a few of the essentials necessary to rehabilitate a crippled child.

They include: $5 for a pair of crutches; $10 to $15 for a complete medical examination; as much as $15 for special corrective shoes; $25 for a speech and hearing evaluation test; $60 for two weeks stay at a resident

Tells Rotary Area's Future In Hands of Local Citizens

"The future of Plymouth lies in the hands of the people of its business community", stated builder-developer Virgil Cornwell to Rotarians last Friday noon.

Cornwell is the developer of Farmington Shopping Center and has had wide experience in injecting new blood into the downtown Farmington business district.

"The job of rebuilding a city should be the responsibility of a small group of interested local citizens working hand-in-hand with a trained specialist. It is a job that the presently over-burdened businessman cannot do on his own and a paid consultant is needed to do the job," he said.

The speaker pointed out that shopping centers have a restricted area of service and that, no matter how large they be, the shopper must eventually return to the central business section of any community to find all of the necessary services.

He cited the advantages of a strong merchants' association, but qualified this by saying the effectiveness of a group such as this depends entirely on the enthusiasm of its leadership.

It has been his experience, he said, that numerous municipalities spend thousands of dollars in plans and planning and yet there never is any actual accomplishment. According to Cornwell there are some $20,000 worth of previous plans in the City Hall in Farmington which are "collecting dust" and it was only through the determined efforts of a trained developer that the final accomplishment was made possible.

VERY HAPPY

Those were the words used by Mrs. Ernest B. Williams, of 11919 Amherst Ct., another satisfied Plymouth Mail customer, to describe her feelings concerning the results she received from her classified ad, which appeared in The Plymouth Mail.

The second person who called to inquire about the classified ad, advertising a Ward's freezer, bought it, she said. Her ad, which sold the merchandise on the second call, read like this:

Wood Product Manufacturer Eyes Long-Vacant Plant Here

A rapidly-expanding wood products firm is eyeing Plymouth as the location of its new manufacturing and distribution headquarters, it was learned this week.

The site under consideration by the company is the former Continental Can Co. plant on Junction St. It is now vacant.

Although "serious negotiations" got underway only within the past 10 days, Superior Sliding Door Frame Co., of Wayne, is expected to move here sometime in April.

The firm manufactures a variety of wood products for the nation's building industry and presently employs about 50 workers.

Once again, it was Plymouth's non-profit Industrial Development Corp. which has spearheaded the move. President Frank Arlen said that talks on the matter have been going on for about 18 months.

The "serious negotiations" center around the purchase by IDC of the long-vacant Continental Can Co. plant on Junction St. and the eventual lease of the plant to the wood products manufacturer.

The Continental Can Co. building has been vacant for more than three years.

Arlen said that Continental Can Co. officials have already agreed to sell the vacant plant to the development group. Terms of the sale were not disclosed, but Arlen added that the entire project will require "about $150,000 in special financing."

Contacted at Superior's offices in Wayne, Edward Morris, secretary and treasurer of the company, described his firm's operation and said:

"We're definitely interested in the Continental Can Co. plant in Plymouth and have started full legal negotiations, but the matter has not been entirely worked out yet." He indicated the project would be completed within about 10 days.

Morris explained that "business has been good" for Superior Door Frame Co. and the firm has need for additional space in order to handle increasing work volume.

The company's employee force "could be doubled" once the firm moves into the plant on Junction here, Morris added. The Continental Can Co. building comprises approximately 70,000 square feet of floor space, considerably more than that of the Wayne firm's present headquarters.

Here in Plymouth, Arlen told The Mail that the development group — after completing the purchase of the vacant building — will renovate it. Arlen said that a 10-year lease of the building has been proposed to the wood products firm.

A rail siding, immediately adjacent to the plant, was a strong selling point, Arlen indicated. Superior does considerable shipping to all parts of the nation.

The Continental Can Co. building is the last remaining industrial plant unoccupied in the immediate Plymouth area, Arlen explained.

The Industrial Development Corp. has been instrumental in filling numerous other vacant plants here, including the former Daisy building by Distribution Services, Inc.

Arlen explained the general requirements for financing the package involving the Continental Can Co. plant and the wood manufacturing firm.

Commissioners Pave Way For Financing of City Hall

In its first official meeting since receiving notification that the City Hall grant had been approved, City Commission wrapped up a series of administrative details Monday night, all of which are aimed at speeding the day when actual construction on the project may get underway.

Among their accomplishments, City Commissioners:

1. Approved an amendment in the lease with the building authority which designates May 15 as deadline date for the start of construction.

2. Agreed to a ceiling of $615,000 for the project under the maximum issue of revenue-producing bonds, but indicated they would prefer the building authority to stay closer to a figure in the neighborhood of $550,000.

3. Transferred $12,328 from the City Hall building fund account to the hands of the building authority, as a temporary loan (The balance of the $20,000 original account has already been sent, primarily for architect's fees.)

4. Authorized the transfer of another sum of money (exact amount not yet determined) from general funds to the hands of the building authority, thus to enable the authority to act on site acquisition. This, too, is a temporary loan.

5. Approved preliminary plans of the new City Hall and empowered the building authority to act upon all future changes, with the provision that a line of communication be maintained between the Commission and the authority at all times on all changes.

6. Waived the building permit fee which otherwise the authority would have to pay to the City in order to gain permission to proceed with construction of the new municipal edifice.

Municipal Building Authority chairman Harold Guenther and member Lou Borgard were in attendance, and Guenther outlined some of the important matters that now confront the authority.

Commissioners became enmeshed in a discussion over the possibility of incorporating a fall-out shelter in the basement of the new City Hall. It was not an item that had been included in the preliminary plans.

They will wait for a cost study by architect Byron Becker before taking action on the matter.

Commissioner Dick Wernette reacted strongly to the information that the proposed issuance of $360,000 in revenue bonds would hike the cost ceiling on the project to $615,000, when coupled with the $255,500 federal grant.

"It goes up twenty or thirty thousand every time we meet," he admonished. In the voting that followed to approve or disapprove the $360,000 in revenue bonds, Wernette cast a "no" ballot, but the measure was passed when the other Commissioners voted "yes."

Carl Shear, another Commissioner, strongly urged setting aside thoughts on incorporating a fall-out shelter in the new City Hall, but his fellow Commissioners ordered a cost-study first in order to determine ultimate price of such an addition to the total project.

The new structure itself is estimated to cost $414,000 and various expenses related to site clearance and development will boost total construction to about $518,000.

Another $65,000 or $70,000 has been tagged for site acquisition.

Under Industry Leadership

Eye Water Issue 'Steering Group'

The possibility of an industry-led coordinating group, which would guide a handful of western Wayne County communities to a mutual solution of their water problems, looms large on the horizon today in Plymouth.

It is, admittedly, only in the "thinking" stage at this moment.

Whether it materializes or not depends to a large degree on the impetus put behind it by the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce's industrial division.

As tentatively envisioned by a select few and for lack of a better defining title, the group — if formed — would quite likely be designated as a "Municipal Water Authority," should it ever reach legal status.

It conceivably would be charged with the responsibility of creating mutual thinking among elected officials of City of Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton Township, Northville Township and even the City of Northville.

First indication that such a body might organize under local industrial direction stemmed from a pair of meetings within the past week.

Both were called by officers of the Chamber's industrial division.

Approximately 25 industrial representatives met last Thursday noon in the Hotel Mayflower to hear City of Plymouth Mayor Robert Sincock outline the City's hopes, plans — and problems — encompassing future water needs.

A similar number of executives from industry gathered in the same spot Tuesday noon to hear Plymouth Township's version of the same issue, as presented by Supervisor Roy Lindsay.

In both instances, thoughts were turned toward the possibility of an industrial coordinating committee — hesitantly labeled an "authority" — which could guide future efforts of water development in the western Wayne County area.

James Thomas, of Consumers Power, the chairman of the second meeting, pin-pointed the situation to date:

"We're not sure what should follow these two meetings, but a memo on the situation will be sent to all of the industrial representatives as to our next step," he said in essence.

It left the door open to the formation of at least a steering committee aimed at assisting with a situation which Lindsay described as "the biggest thing to touch the western Wayne County area in its history."

He referred specifically to the tremendous growth that the Plymouth-Northville-Canton area can expect in the immediate years ahead. Water, as he explained, is the key to the ultimate expansion of the five-community sphere.

As was expected before the meetings took place both Lindsay and Sincock defended their respective water systems.

Beyer Elected New President Of Rotary Club

Robert Beyer, Plymouth druggist, was named president of the Plymouth Rotary Club last week, and Robert Maurer was elected vice president.

Beyer, immediate past vice president, succeeds outgoing president Harold Guenther, A. D. Johanson is the new secretary and Carl Caplin has been named treasurer.

At the same time, Fred Beiner was re-elected to the board of directors and Clifford Tait was named as a new member.

The personal property tax determined initially by local assessment and then equalized at the county and state levels, deals specifically with taxes on "machinery equipment and inventory used in the operation of a business enterprise."

It differs from real property tax which is applied against buildings and land.

A similar situation has cropped up each year for the past "several years," according to The Mail's investigation, and each time an increase in real property tax has off-set the threat of a personal property tax loss by the School District.

Careless, Key-less Bandit Stranded

A bandit's own carelessness and the quick-thinking of a 33-year-old mother of two boys last week combined to foil an attempted robbery of a corner grocery store on the outskirts of Plymouth.

The heroine was Gwen Dasher, who admitted she was "plenty frightened."

She and her husband, Lloyd, run Dasher's Market at 38401 Joy Rd., near Hix Rd.

The careless bandit, who today languishes in Wayne County jail, is Richard Rudzinski, 23, of Ypsilanti.

He left the keys in his car with the motor running last Wednesday afternoon when he went into the market to stage a hold-up.

When he came out a few moments later, he found that the keys were gone from his car and he was stranded with $150 in loot.

Mrs. Dasher was gone, too, but she first had had the presence of mind to hail three passing motorists, "an act that led to Rudzinski's downfall."

At a loss when he found his keys missing, the bandit raced back inside the store and nervously stuffed the money back into the cash register.

He promptly put on his most innocent-appearing expression as Wayne County Sheriff's deputies pulled up in a patrol car.

It did not help him as much as he had hoped, however, for Friday, Rudzinski was sentenced to 30 days in jail to reflect on the turn of events that put him there.

It began about 3 p.m. Wednesday afternoon as Mrs. Dasher was stocking shelves in the store. This is the way she explained it to The Mail:

"I saw a young man come in and I said 'Hi' to him.

"He turned behind a counter, and then in a mirror I saw him put a nylon stocking over his head. I was plenty frightened."

"I thought the best thing to do was run... I ran out the front door and hailed three motorists, and they were all regular customers of ours, fortunately."

"One, Ron Gentry, ran to the bandit's car, which had the motor on. Ron took the keys and hid them. Then he drove home to get a gun."

"The second motorist — I can't even think how to spell his name — went to call the police. Claude Desmond was the third motorist and he and I hid in two other cars that were parked by the store."

"We didn't know if the bandit had a gun."

"Pretty soon the bandit came out and when he found his keys missing he went over to ask Claude if anyone had seen fooling with his car. Claude said 'no'."

"Then Mr. Gentry came back and he had a rifle on the front seat beside him. The bandit asked him if he'd seen anybody take his keys. Ron said 'no' too."

Joe's "Girls" Give Sigh of Relief As City Hall Grant Receives Okay

By Jerome O'Neil

Needless to say, a considerable amount of hard work, long hours and devoted effort went into the application that last week culminated in federal approval of a $255,500 grant for Plymouth's new City Hall.

Among those who breathed a deep sigh of delight when notification arrived that the grant had been approved were City Clerk Joe Near's six "girls."

They're the women workers in Near's office in the present City Hall, which incidentally was built as an opera house more than 80 years ago.

The six are Karen West, Margo Robson, Nellie Cash, Grace McCallum, Marion Warner and Marie Welscher.

WHILE others dealt with the application on decidedly higher levels of administration, the six women were left with the awesome task of assembling the actual application, which — when completed — measured more than two inches thick from cover to cover and contained a multitude of reports, statistics, plans, photos and related minutia.

The day before Mayor Robert Sincok and other City officials took the application personally to Chicago to file it with the Housing and Home Finance Agency, the six girls worked late into the evening making sure the report was in proper form.

Evidence that it was "up-to-snuff" under the studious investigation of federal authorities is the fact that the grant was approved last Tuesday and work on the new City Hall will begin by May 15.

IN REALITY, when they were preparing the application on the City Hall, the six girls were also assembling similar applications for a proposed new water reservoir and an extensive improvement project on the City's internal water transmission system as well.

Joe's "girls" prepared a total of four copies of each application — or 12 in all. Each was the size of "Gone With The Wind" under hard cover.

City Clerk Near and legal counsel Edward Draugelis had a major hand in preparing the reports, too. Near had to dig out the wide variety of fiscal figures necessary to complete the application, in addition to supervising the final preparation of the form.

Draugelis worked closely with all agencies involved in order to iron out the numerous legal requirements.

Architect Byron Becker was busy, too. His responsibility started the minute he was appointed as the primary architect on the project. Immediately, he set to work on the preliminary plans for the new City Hall and today he is working against a 60-day deadline which must find the final plans completed in that span.

Stan Besse, the City's long-time engineer, had a significant part in the application, too. He suddenly found himself confronted with the task of making a detailed topographical survey of the proposed City Hall site, a job that ordinarily would take nearly three days.

BESSE COMPLETED it in less than two, thereby assuring that much more time for the actual application preparation, the moment for which was fast drawing near.

Mayor Sincok, the man who possibly will draw the most respect for the project's smooth and orderly progress, was quick to bring the rest of the City Commission members into the picture.

"What it required was constant follow-up by the Commission," he said in reference to the intricate details that had to be met a most daily last fall before the project got completely underway.

"Every single commissioner deserves a pat on the back along with the dozens of other persons who banded this project along over the months," he added.

Sincok explained some of the background that suddenly led to the application last October.

He, himself, as a member of the City Commission in 1956, first made the suggestion to explore the possibility of building a new City Hall.

The first money that could be set aside did not come until 1961 when the Commission allocated $10,000.

Then in 1962 a similar amount was budgeted.

"It was always something that was far off in the future, though," Sincok explained.

"The accelerated public works act hadn't even been whispered about yet."

BUT WHEN the accelerated act was passed late last summer, and $400 million was appropriated by congress, "our City Hall project was 'go' in all ways," he said.

Sincok told how the 12 heavy applications were carried to Chicago in a large briefcase last October. Who lugged them on and off the airplane and up to the offices of the Housing and Home Finance Agency? None other than Joe Near, diminutive City Clerk for Plymouth.

"THEY WERE so heavy that Joe was practically listing to port as he heaved a cab," Sincok said with a smile. "He was that proud of the work his girls had done on those applications."

"It was a lot of work, by a lot of people," he added, "but we're going to get our new City Hall and it was certainly worth all the effort."

He had the look of the man who'd just bought the Empire State Building. It was perfectly understandable. Justifiably, a lot of other people wear the same expression around City Hall these days.

Proposed Tax Cut

Sometimes in April, the county's equalization department is expected to recommend to the Board of Supervisors a personal property tax reduction ranging from either two to five per cent of market value.

Ten years ago, the tax rate on a person's property in Wayne County was approximately 90 per cent of market value, according to Mrs. Elizabeth Holmes, treasurer of Plymouth Township.

The pending reduction this spring will drop the rate to approximately 62 per cent of market value, The Mail learned.

It is the current aspect of a long-term trend to bring personal property tax rates more in line with today's values.

Mrs. Holmes said that a similar situation occurred a year ago and then, too, the School District was threatened with a loss in total revenue. Instead, the "loss" was more than off-set by increased revenue resulting from greater real property tax base.

She cited these figures:

In 1961, the Township's School District collections were set at $1,220,000. A property tax rate drop was decreed by the board of supervisors.

Still, the Township's School District tax collections for the following year (1962) jumped to $1,338,000 as a result of an increase in the real property tax base throughout the Township.

A similar situation took place in the City, The Mail learned.

The time-table on the property tax reduction was described by City Treasurer Kenneth Way. He said that, sometime in the spring, the county equalization department will recommend the tax reduction to the equalization committee of the board of supervisors.

"This is normally accepted by the equalization committee," Way said, "and when the entire board of supervisors adopts the move, it will create a lower county equalized value."

The actual decision to reduce the rates is made by the board of supervisors.

It is "likely" that the property tax reduction will amount to "two per cent," according to a spokesman in the county's equalization department.

The Plymouth Community School District presently is levying 23.70 mills as its means of financing the school program.

The local assessed valuation of the district, according to Superintendent Russell Isbister, is $77,060,500. After county equalization is figured in, the valuation increases to $88,080,637, he explained.

The state then applies an equalization factor, too, and the valuation jumps to $101,036,572. Thus, when the state equalization total is reduced $1 million, the Plymouth School District could lose approximately $23,000 if the reduction is not off-set by a normal growth in local tax base by means of new home starts, new industry and new retail business firms.

The City and Township are similarly affected, but since they have the ability to raise the millage rate to a pre-set maximum, they can off-set the loss internally.

The School District's millage levy is fixed by voters at 23.70. Of the 23.70 total, 15.90 mills go toward normal operation of the district, 5 mills create the five-year building and site sinking fund and 2.8 mills are applied toward debt retirement.

quision, a matter that may involve legal proceedings leading to condemnation of two parcels of property at the site.

Attorney Edward Draugelis has been empowered to start necessary steps to acquire the two parcels by condemnation, if necessary.

A "buffer" of more than $40,000 has been included in the $615,000 figure, so as to enable the building authority to meet any and all unforeseen expenses.

With regard to the $360,000 in revenue-producing bonds, the City hopes to issue a call for bids on the issue late in April and actually transact the sale of the bonds early in May, according to City Clerk Joseph Near.

Construction of the project must begin by May 15, under the terms of the Federal grant. Becker, the project's primary architect, has stated that a demolition contract — in order to level the buildings on the site — will probably be let first to assure meeting the May 15 starting deadline.

The new City Hall will be completed within 15 months, according to Becker.

The Municipal Building Authority is preparing a "fact sheet" on matters pertaining to the project, including discussion on "razing old City Hall," and "will this mean a tax increase." The authority met Tuesday night to pass upon the items initiated an evening earlier by the City Commission.

Michigan's proposed new constitution abolishes spring elections. The proposal will save Michigan taxpayers about one million dollars annually.

WHEREAS, it is necessary to amend said Ordinance No. 1;

NOW, THEREFORE, THE CITY OF PLYMOUTH MUNICIPAL BUILDING AUTHORITY ORDAINS:

Section 1. Section 3 of Ordinance No. 1 of the City of Plymouth Municipal Building Authority is hereby amended to provide as follows:

Section 3. The total cost of acquiring and constructing said project, including the payment of the incidental expenses specified in Section 4 hereof, which estimated cost is Six Hundred Fifteen Thousand Five Hundred ($615,500.00) Dollars, hereby approved and confirmed; and the estimated period of usefulness of the project is determined to be not less than forty (40) years.

Section 2. Section 13 of Ordinance No. 1 of the City of Plymouth Municipal Building Authority is hereby amended to provide as follows:

Section 13. The operation and maintenance rentals and the fixed annual rentals paid to the Authority by the City shall be deposited, as received, into a separate depository account to be kept with the National Bank of Detroit, Michigan (Plymouth Branch), to be designated RECEIVING FUND. The moneys from time to time in the Receiving Fund shall be transferred periodically in the manner hereinafter provided. The operation and maintenance rentals deposited into said Receiving Fund shall be used specifically for the operation and maintenance expense of the Authority in connection with the project and applied by the Authority solely for such purposes. All operation and maintenance rentals, as soon as they are deposited into a separate depository account with the National Bank of Detroit, Michigan (Plymouth Branch), to be designated OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE FUND, and such moneys from time to time on deposit in such fund shall be applied and used solely and only for such operation and maintenance expenses of the Authority in connection with the project as have not been assumed by the City.

Section 3. Section 14 of Ordinance No. 1 of the City of Plymouth Municipal Building Authority is hereby amended to provide as follows:

Section 14. The moneys representing fixed annual rentals shall be transferred immediately, upon the receipt thereof from the Receiving Fund, and be deposited into a separate depository account with the paying agent for said bonds, to be designated BOND AND INTEREST REDEMPTION FUND, and used for the payment of the principal and interest on the bonds when due. Said fixed annual rentals are specifically pledged for the payment of the bonds and the interest thereon and for no other purpose and shall be applied until used by the Authority solely and only for such purpose.

Any moneys remaining in said fund at the end of any fiscal year which are in excess of the amount necessary to meet current principal and interest requirements on the bonds shall be allocated and set aside on the books and records of the Authority as a DEBT SERVICE RESERVE, until such debt service reserve totals Twenty-Eight Thousand ($28,000.00) Dollars, which debt service reserve shall be maintained at such amount. Such moneys so set aside as a debt service reserve shall be used solely and only for the payment of the principal and interest on the bonds as to which there would otherwise be default.

Moneys on hand in the Bond and Interest Redemption Fund and above the amount necessary to meet current principal and interest requirements and the debt service reserve requirements shall be used for the purpose of calling bonds for redemption, at the times and at the prices herein specified. It shall be the duty of the Authority to call bonds for redemption, in accordance with the requirements herein set forth, whenever the funds on hand available therefor total Five Thousand ($5,000.00) Dollars or more.

Moneys on hand in the debt service reserve shall not be considered as appropriated or pledged for the purpose of determining the availability of funds for calling bonds for redemption.

No further payments need be made into the Bond and Interest Redemption Fund after enough of the bonds have been retired so that the amount held in said fund, including the debt service reserve, is equal to the entire amount of principal and interest which will be payable at the time of maturity of all the bonds then remaining outstanding.

Section 4. Section 15 of Ordinance No. 1 of the City of Plymouth Municipal Building Authority is hereby amended to provide as follows:

Section 15. It is the intent and purpose of the Authority, pursuant to the provisions of Act 31, Public Acts of Michigan, 1948 (First Extra Session), as amended; to authorize and issue the bonds subject to the provisions of Act 94, Public Acts of Michigan, 1933, as amended; of such of the provisions of that Act as are applicable to the type of issue here involved. The Authority therefore determines that the plan and procedure herein followed will give maximum security for the bonds and at the same time, comply with all applicable substantive requirements of Act 94, Public Acts of Michigan, 1933, as amended, in providing both for the operation and maintenance of the project and payment of the bonds.

Section 5. If any section, paragraph, clause or provision of this ordinance shall be held invalid, the invalidity of such paragraph, section, clause or provision shall not affect any of the other provisions of this ordinance.

Section 6. All ordinances, resolutions or orders or parts thereof in conflict with the provisions of this ordinance are, to the extent of such conflict, hereby repealed.

Section 7. This ordinance shall be published in full in The Plymouth Mail, Plymouth, Michigan, a newspaper of general circulation in the City of Plymouth, within ten (10) days after its adoption, and the same shall be recorded in the Ordinance Book of the Authority and such recording authenticated by the signatures of the Chairman of the Commission and the Secretary.

Section 8. This ordinance shall become effective immediately upon its passage.

Dr. Covington pointed out that expenses of medical treatment, therapy, equipment, operation of Easter Seal centers and facilities for the disabled have greatly increased.

"However, rehabilitation pays," he added. "A handicapped worker can be rehabilitated and returned to a profitable job in business or industry for about 90 per cent of what it would cost to keep him for one year at public expense."

"For the rest of his life, he will be paying from $7 to $10 in federal income taxes for every dollar spent on his rehabilitation. With help, crippled children may not have to grow up into handicapped adults," he said.

During the week of March 11, posters promoting the drive will be placed at strategic points throughout the community, according to Dr. Covington, and canisters will be distributed at the same time.

All though still nearly a month away, the street sale of paper lilies is fully planned and coordinated, the local chairman reported.

He said that the Lily Parade will take place April 5 and 6. It consists of a sale of paper lilies, made by homebound handicapped people, at numerous points throughout downtown Plymouth.

Volunteer workers - many of them housewives - will handle the responsibility of the street sale of lilies, Dr. Covington explained.

The Rotary Club's crippled children committee consists of Dr. Covington, Hamill, Dr. Charles Westover, Robert J. Willoughby, Kenneth Harrison and Lauren W. Schleh.

Executive director of the Easter Seal Society of Western Wayne County, Mrs. Jane Devereaux, was in Plymouth last week assisting in final plans for the Easter Seal campaign.

The drive this year has been re-scheduled in comparison to campaign dates of previous years. It previously was held during the month of February and part of March, instead of March and the first part of April, as is the case for the 1963 appeal.

Bandit (Continued from page 1) "Of course, the bandit saw Ron's rifle on the seat."

"So the bandit - he was just a young fellow - went back inside and we went off to call the sheriff's office because several minutes had gone by and the police hadn't come yet and I was getting pretty nervous.

"Ron didn't want to start shooting at anyone and we didn't still know if the bandit had a gun.

"So we went down the road and into a neighbor's house and I phoned the Wayne County Sheriff's office.

"When we got back to the store it was surrounded by police - even some from Livonia.

"The Bandit had been knocking on the back door of our store - and I suppose he was going to ask to use the phone or about his keys or something. The police arrested him.

"It was quite an experience," Mrs. Dasher said. "At first, Rudzinski denied having anything to do with a robbery. Mrs. Dasher explained. But when detectives found a nylon stocking stuffed behind a counter and confronted the bandit with it, he admitted the attempt.

Judge Foote, a justice of the peace in Canton Twp., heard the case Friday and handed down a 30-day jail sentence.

Mrs. Dasher had run out of her store wearing just a light dress and slippers. She didn't catch a cold, but instead caught a bandit.

"I don't take any credit for it," she told The Mail Friday. "I'm just awfully thankful that three motorists were passing by when I really needed help."

While the attempted robbery was taking place, Mrs. Dasher's husband was shopping in Plymouth. "He was frightened out of his skin when he came back and saw all those police cars," his wife said.

Two years ago the market was also robbed, but restitution was made and the Dashers did not press charges. Two months ago, the Dashers were routed out of their home by fire early one morning when the temperature stood unofficially at 18 degrees below zero.

The fire was a minor one. Lloyd Dasher personally put it out, dousing the last remaining flames just as the fire truck raced up in front of the store.

"We've had our share of excitement, I guess," Mrs. Dasher said. "But, believe you me, it hasn't been because we wanted the publicity."

Meanwhile, Rudzinski - a carefree bandit - still hasn't found his car keys. They're with the Wayne County Sheriff's officers.

The performance Sunday is the fifth of the current season by the Plymouth Symphony, which is in its 17th year. Final concert will be April 21.

Jelinek, the guest soloist Sunday, received both his Bachelors and Masters degrees in music from the University of Michigan and at one time was a cellist for the U.S. Naval Academy's string quartet.

He is a 1956-57 Fulbright scholar and studied at the Royal Academy of Music in London and has performed in Europe.

Since 1961 he has been on the faculty at the University of Michigan's school of music. He performed in the Detroit Symphony Orchestra during the time that the famed Paul Paray was conductor.

Tells Rotary (Continued from page 1) "Most municipalities make plan after plan, but none seem to actually get off the ground and become an actuality," he said.

From the number of questions later asked by Rotarians, it appeared that a similarity of effort may have been in evidence here, and from the questions it was evident the interest locally in seeing some action along this line becoming a reality in Plymouth.

The program was under the auspices of Rotary's Community Affairs committee which is headed by Sam Hudson. Introduction of the speaker was made by James Taylor.

Cornwell is completing plans for the construction of three apartment houses in the City of Plymouth sometime later this year.

If Michigan's revised constitution receives more "yes" votes than "no" votes on April 1, 1963, it will become effective on Jan. 1, 1964.

Steering Group for Water

front both local units of government as far as their water systems are concerned.
But, going beyond the immediate fiscal difficulties that face both governing units, the two elective officials gave indications that an "umbrella-like steering committee," which could weld together the thinking of five communities, would — in so doing — move the water situation beyond the "problem" stage and thus ensure orderly, controlled and necessary growth.

Suggesting the "authority" with undisguised belief in it, Sincok said: "We feel that the City and the entire area would benefit — would be financially ahead — by purchasing water in bulk quantities."
By "bulk quantities," he meant the large volume purchase that could be achieved by a joint municipal body — if formed — which then would re-sell water to a sweeping slice of western Wayne County.
Said Lindsay, in the same vein:
"We'd be glad to meet with anybody or any group, but you've got to have a group willing to listen with an open mind."
Industry's significance in the overall picture is undeniably great. It represents the greatest bulk consumer of water and, consequently, furnishes the base of revenue.

that any — and all — individual water systems require in order to operate economically.

And the future industrial growth of the area not only is tied to the availability of water, but also "keys" the prosperity of individual water systems or a joint water supply effort.

Both Lindsay and Sincok outlined the various historical events that surround their respective water systems. At present, City of Plymouth is virtually an island within the Township, from both a standpoint of water and from the aspect of geography.

City of Plymouth is saddled with a $335,000 debt on its present system; the Township's indebtedness is slightly more than $1 million.

City draws water from its own wells, whereas the Township receives water from Detroit via flowage rights through Livonia.

The industrial men were interested in the present situation since most of their companies currently are customers of City of Plymouth, yet many would prefer to have Detroit water.

These additional comparative statistics came out of the two meetings:

1. City of Plymouth has been offered Detroit water at a delivery price of 19.3 cents per 1,000 gallons. Plymouth Township — under contract with Detroit — buys Detroit water for 15.7 cents per 1,000 gallons.

2. Residential users in City of Plymouth pay 34 cents per 1,000 gallons with a certain volume of consumption. Township consumers pay the same. Industrial users, by virtue of their larger consumption, pay as low as 13 cents per 1,000 gallons in the City and 28 cents in the Township.

3. The City pumps approximately 750,000,000 gallons of water per year and the Township is presently pumping water at a rate of slightly more than 500,000,000 gallons annually.

Thomas, the chairman of the two meetings and unofficial spokesman for the Chamber's industrial division, was unsure as to what will next evolve.

"Within the next week," he said, "I intend to propose to the industrial division's executive committee that we consider holding a third meeting, this time with Gerald Remus, head of the Detroit Water Board, as the guest speaker."

Robert Auburn

Travel Series

The film is the culmination of six months of wide travel and photographic work by Auburn in North Africa. It depicts one of the oldest historically-known areas on the African continent.

A world traveler and fluent linguist, Auburn is the son of a YMCA general secretary who worked and raised his family in North Africa. As a result of being raised there Auburn has become intimately acquainted with North Africa's peoples and its culture.

Exposed during his formative years to the vivid colors and the exciting surrounding panorama, it is not surprising that his interest in photography was stimulated at an early age.

During World War II, he saw military service as a photographer with the Marine Corps in the South Pacific theater.

At the close of the war, he attended Occidental College and then took his degree in Petroleum Engineering at Stanford University.

The following two years were spent in the Near East as an engineer with the Arabian-American Oil Company. Prior to his return to the U.S. to enroll in the School of Cinematography at the University of Southern California, he toured the Far and Near East, Africa, Europe, the Balkans and the Scandinavian countries.

Completing his work in advanced photography, Auburn worked in Venezuela as an engineer and had the opportunity to photograph many a reas of interest in that country.

His present film, "Jeweled Cities of North Africa," is a unique example of his meticulous workmanship and sound experience as a traveler.

The opportunity to see the North African people at work and being guided by a qualified observer such as Auburn may well stimulate a little more understanding and tolerance toward this segment of humanity which, at present, is struggling to overcome centuries of ignorance and grinding poverty in an effort to find their place in the sun, a Lions Club spokesman said.

In changing hair color, it is well to remember there are three basic methods for doing it.

1. A permanent change is achieved with such products as plain tints, creme tints, oil tints, cream color shampoos and color baths. Permanent coloring will NOT shampoo out. Remember tints intensify; add color. Color shampoos lighten hair. To make a drastic change, a bleach MUST be used.
2. Bleaches. These lighten and brighten. Bleaches do NOT shampoo out. The effect of a bleach is determined by how strong it is and how long the bleach is left on the hair.
3. Temporary coloring comes out after one or a few shampoos. Products used include rinses, color shampoos (NQT - creme color shampoos), sprays and crayons.

The best way to make sure your hair is colored safely is to have it done by those with professional "know how". We have that know how. Come in or phone in, see for yourself.

The Antique Corner

By Mrs. John Gibbons

The craftsman of yesterday spent a great deal of his life in preparation to become master of his trade. He was required by law to join a guild of his trade and there serve his apprenticeship. A young boy of ten or twelve selected his field and his parents would make a contract with a "master" of that craft to become his apprentice for seven years to learn the mysteries of his trade. He was not paid wages but offered only his room and board. Often times he performed menial tasks for his master and his master's family during his apprenticeship years. His dreams lay in learning his craft well enough to become a "master" himself one day.

After he performed his apprenticeship successfully he was examined by the guild and allowed to become a journeyman. He now was permitted to journey from town to town and learn new ways and ideas of others in his type of work.

When he felt that he had enough money and experience to establish a business of his own he would present himself to the guild and apply for his mastership. The Guild required of him to create his masterpiece in front of a qualified group of men to judge his capability as a master of his chosen profession.

Even today there are a few places in Europe who still use these rules as a guide to becoming a master craftsman but our standards of living have so advanced as to make it economically impractical to spend so much of one's productive years in learning a trade. Thus the master craftsman has relinquished his crafts to machines.

The Industrial Revolution marked the end of the period of the hand craftsman. For where long years of study and training were required to produce a knowledge of workmanship, the machine could produce ten fold the quantity of the hand makers goods at a cheaper price.

Although the hand craftsman is no longer as predominant in today's mechanized civilization, we still respect his products with great admiration. There are still trades that have not become mechanized and require the handcraftsman to produce them. For example we find a great deal in the glass industry. Fine cut glass pieces still require the care and know how of years of experience. The age old making of stained glass and leaded glass windows is an art in itself. Pottery turning, fine china painting, glass blowing are but a few examples. Another interesting turn of events has taken place with the shorter work hours of laborers today, they have turned to hand crafts as hobbies and have revived many of the arts which have tended to be put aside.

I am impressed by the fact that much of the success of a craftsman's success lies in the pride of his work. He took it upon himself to make a common utensil or a masterpiece of art, to represent his skill as a master in his trade. He loved his work and took pride in his art. This was the birth of the craftsman.

AAUW Make Final Plans For Upcoming Book Fair

AAUW has found that selling used books is a popular way to raise funds for its graduate fellowship program. There are 49 AAUW Fellowships amounting to $32,000. These Fellowships are available to women of the United States for graduate study beyond a Masters Degree who have fulfilled their requirements for a Ph.D. except the dissertation or to women who have achieved professional recognition. Fellowships may be used here or abroad and in any field of study or research.

Books to interest everyone, from preschoolers to the senior citizens group, will be found at the sale, priced from five cents up.

According to the general chairman, Mrs. Dale Carmine, tables will display books, sorted as to content, on fiction, mysteries, school subjects, languages, religions, cooking, humor, the classics and hobbies.

Last year's sale netted the group $175, a figure it hopes to top this year.

Engineers Hear Yeager Speak

At their February meeting, 31 registered professional engineers from the Farmington, Livonia, Northville, Plymouth and Wayne areas met and formally adopted the name Rouge Valley Chapter, as the official title of their Michigan Society of Professional Engineers chapter.

Guest speaker for the evening was Weldon O. Yeager, con-con delegate from the 18th senatorial district. Mr. Yeager gave an excellent talk on the new constitution proposed for our state. He concluded his talk with an interesting period of questions and answers.

Art Around Us

by Mrs. Jessie Hudson

There is a current interest in acquiring "original" prints by well-known international or by lesser known local artists. By "original prints" is meant woodcuts, lithographs, etchings or silk-screened serigraphs designed and printed by the artist in a limited and numbered edition. This numbering is important as it guarantees that only this many prints were produced before the plate of block was destroyed. But the fact that some standing in the original design means that he can sell it for a thirty-fifth of the cost of an original painting of which only one is possible.

Lucas Van Leyden were also instrumental in raising the art of graphic prints to new heights.

Woodcuts were used less frequently as copper plate engraving was developed and found to be more durable. Engraving, in turn, lost favor to etching, a process in which areas are eaten away by acid rather than by the more laborious line-cutting technique of the burr in engraving. Etching was brought to fullest artistic expression by more than three hundred etched plates during his lifetime.

Lithography was not discovered until the beginning of the nineteenth century when it was used by Alois Senefelder to reproduce his own writings. Artists of the time enthusiastically adopted the limestone method of printing and it was used successfully by Gericault, Delacroix and James McNeill Whistler. But it was Honore Daumier, the satirical cartoonist, who made the most powerful use of the new medium. Toulouse-Lautrec, towards the end of the century, adapted the lithograph to color printing. His posters for the cafes and cabaret of Montmartre have been reproduced ad infinitum.

A recent issue of Time discussed the rise of interest in printmakers and described eight identical art exhibitions on view simultaneously in eight different parts of the country. The article pointed out that each copy is in essence an original since each one comes from the hand of the artist, each one is produced individually by him. The names of the artists exhibiting may not be familiar but they are artists with some standing in the national field: Josef Albers, Jasper Johns, Fritz Glarner, Al Blaustein and Ben Shahn are among the most noted for the forty-two printmakers in these identical exhibitions. Leonard Baskin's woodcuts of tortured humanity, Adol Dehn's imaginative colored lithographs and Mauricio Lasansky's mixed-media prints are also outstanding. Mr. Lasansky born in Argentina, has created a United States printmaking capital at the department of graphic arts of the State University of Iowa. Mr. Lasansky is quoted as saying, "I use practically every technique of the last four hundred years, plus a couple we are developing here in Iowa." All agree that there is a versatility to printmaking not always possible in painting.

When Mr. Lasansky goes back four hundred years to study graphics he would find that at the beginning of the fifteenth century the aim of the printmakers was not so much creative expression as a means of cheap reproduction in linear images to satisfy the demands of a rising middle class for inexpensive religious paintings, and cheap playing cards. Printing, newly invented, and paper recently devised, made these cheaper reproductions possible. Engraving, at this point in its history, was used simply as a printing method and the possibilities of varied artistic expression was ignored, until it was discovered and used creatively by such masters as Albrecht Durer of Nurnberg, Martin Schongauer, Albrecht Altdorfer and

by Shirley Scout

Hi! We're very busy in Girl Scouts these days and we'd like to tell you all about it. March is a month of activity for us.

On March 1 the Plymouth Girl Scouts participated in the World Day of Prayer for children at the Salvation Army Citadel. Their offering was given for the purchase of Christian literature for children in India and Korea.

The annual Girl Scout cookie sale began on March 1 and will continue through March 17. During this time Brownies and their sister girl scouts, in green, will be calling on friends and neighbors for orders of the four flavors offered this year. Proceeds of this sale are shared by the individual troops, the International Fund and the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council Camping Fund. The cookies will be delivered April 22 to May 4.

Girl Scout Week is March 10-17 and will begin with the girls attending church in uniform. On Tuesday the 12th the girls will celebrate the birthday of their organization. During this week the girls will give special attention to their lessons on home-making, citizenship, health and safety, International Friendship, arts and crafts and out-of-doors.

This week of celebration will be climaxed by the Annual Plymouth Scoutingarama. It will be held March 17 at the Plymouth Jr. High East from 1 to 5 p.m. The general public is cordially invited. Mrs. Cecil Ronk is chairman for the event.

Any adult scout worker who has a five, ten or fifteen year pin coming is asked to contact Mrs. Rubey so that she may receive this award in the program at the Scoutingarama.

The troops of the Plymouth neighborhood will have working displays to show parents, sponsors and friends what the scouts do.

The girls' Juliet Low birthday contributions will be wrapped in appropriate paper and placed on a special table at the Scoutingarama. Each scout gives one cent for each year of her life to this fund for national scouting.

There are currently 100 girls taking part in the Girl Scout swim program at the Plymouth High School pool. Mrs. Bea Way chairmanned the planning of this 8 week course.

Mrs. Sam Tramontin (the former Chris Baker) who is a former Plymouth Girl Scout now residing in Ann Arbor is the water front director for the program.

Another scout swim course is planned for the fall. Plymouth has one of the largest neighborhoods consisting of 32 troops with 586 girls. The troops, and their leaders are aided and directed by a service team chairmanned by Mrs. Wayne Rubey.

Assisting Mrs. Rubey on the service team are Mrs. Frank Allison, Mrs. Rahn Fluckey, Mrs. Don Whitesell, Mrs. F. Stiner, Mrs. William Ronk, Mrs. Robert Maurer and Mrs. Robert Gotshall.

Also aiding the troops are Mrs. Lester Robinson, Mrs. Irving Milligan, Mrs. Earl Gibson, Mrs. John Schwartz III, Mrs. Lincoln Hale, Mrs. John Walasky and Mrs. Roger McGonagle.

Volunteers are needed to fill the posts of consultants, registrar and Gallimore School troop organizer when these members retire in the spring. The newly appointed Adviser for Plymouth Girl Scout Neighborhood is Mrs. David R. Jacox. She is a staff member of the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council and is assigned to the neighborhoods in Western Wayne County.

NEW STORE manager at the D & C Store on Main St. here is Steve Hermans, 23, who succeeds Richard Wheelley. Hermans, who was an assistant in the local D & C Store, more recently served as an assistant in a D & C outlet in East Lansing. The D & C chain includes 34 stores. Hermans is married and intends to move to Plymouth shortly.

SALVATION ARMY'S annual advisory board dinner meeting Monday night at Lofy's was attended by nearly 150 persons, including these four prominent participants in the program. From left: Lieut. Colonel T. R. Gabrielsen, commander of the Eastern Michigan Salvation Army Division; Commissioner Robert Hoggard (ret.), the guest speaker and an international figure in Salvation Army circles; Frank Henderson, chairman of the Plymouth Salvation Army advisory board; and Major Ernest V. Hammer, commanding officer of the Plymouth corps.

Dr. J. C. Macaulay

London College President Guest At Church Here

Dr. J. C. Macaulay, president of London College of Bible and Missions and a well-known Bible teacher, pastor and author, will speak at the Spiritual Life Conference at Calvary Baptist Church March 10-13.
 Born in Belfast, Ireland, and raised in the Scottish town of Alloa, Dr. Macaulay was converted as a youth and felt the call to the ministry early in life.
 While attending Glasgow University he was a student pastor. After emigrating to Canada he held pastorates in Toronto, Sault Ste. Marie, Quebec City, Cleveland and Wheaton, Illinois.
 During his pastorate at Wheaton he also studied at Wheaton College, majoring in Greek and received high honors. He lectured on personal evangelism during these days at Wheaton College.
 In 1949 the college honored him with a Doctor of Divinity degree. Following his work at Wheaton he was a member of the faculty of Moody Bible Institute, of Chicago, where he taught systematic and pastoral theology.
 As author, he has written six books which have had a wide circulation.
 In addition to his work as president of the college, Dr. Macaulay is in demand as a Bible conference speaker. He also presently writes expositions for the Moody Monthly on the Sunday School lesson.

150 Attend Salvation Army's Annual Advisory Board Dinner

Because of his various speaking engagements in the Detroit area at this time, Plymouth's Salvation Army Advisory Board was able to have as its guest speaker, at the annual report dinner Monday night, the Army's outstanding commissioner, Robert Hoggard and his wife.
 One hundred and fifty members and guests of the Plymouth Army gathered at Lofy's Monday evening. Mayor Sincoc welcomed the guests.
 Commissioner Hoggard, now retired, has served in almost every country of the world, and with the use of a large world map explained the accomplishments of the Army around the world.
 His profound devotion to his chosen work and his unusual wit and humor was greatly enjoyed by his listeners.
 Commissioner Hoggard and his wife have a combined total service with the Army of 104 years. He is the only living Commissioner to have served under all seven Salvation Army generals including its founder, William Booth.
 Although retired, his popularity as a speaker has taken him 10,000 miles since January 1 of this year.
 Music was furnished by a group of players with the Army's bank from the Citadel in Detroit.
 Mrs. Nell Curry was presented with a plaque from the advisory board in appreciation of her many years as a member of Plymouth's board.
 Also on the board are Frank Henderson, toastmaster for the evening, Robert Willoughby, life member, Mrs. David Mather, Mrs. Harold Todd, Mr. Donald Sutherland, Sylvester Cooper, Mrs. Nell Curry, Mrs. Russell Roe, Mrs. Helen Arnold, Mrs. Claud Gebhardt, of Plymouth, Mrs. Leslie Daniel of Livonia, Russell American of Northville, and Ted Kuckelman, Wayne. The dinner was held at Lofy's.

Sale of $69,000 Urban Renewal Bonds Approved

The sale of $69,000 worth of Urban Renewal bonds was agreed to Monday night by the City Commission, with the low-bidding firm of Manley, Bennett, McDonald & Co., of Detroit, as the purchaser.
 Interest rate on the bonds, as bid by the Detroit firm, will be 2.2468 per cent.
 With the money derived from actual sale of bonds, which will follow shortly, City of Plymouth will acquire the funds necessary to complete the development of the Urban Renewal project along Mill St.
 A target of April 1 has been set as the date for first work on installation of utilities within the area, and Urban Renewal director Joseph Near has indicated it is feasible that new light industrial tenants will occupy the area by the end of this year.
 Americans ate 100 pounds less per person last year than they did 50 years ago, according to "Life" magazine.

New Budgets Taking Shape

Plymouth City and Township budgets for the forthcoming fiscal year are fast reaching final stages.
 The Township budget, while not fully drawn up, will be finished in time for a March 19 approval of the Board of Trustees, according to Clerk John McEwen.
 The budget will cover the fiscal year beginning April 1. Present budget is $154,000 and the new one is expected to be about the same.
 Meanwhile, City Clerk Joe Near is busy shaping up initial drafts of the 1963-64 budget which covers the fiscal year beginning July 1.
 The new budget, while not yet complete, is expected to be similar to the $618,000 total of the present budget.
 It will be shown to the current City Commission on April 2, but will not gain approval until the new Commissioners take office. Final approval will be accomplished in May, Near indicated.
 A year ago, the City had an unused balance amounting to about $25,000. Near was not sure whether there will be an excess this year or not.

GUEST soloist on Sunday, March 10, at the Calvary Baptist Church Spiritual Life Conference will be Mrs. Marion Newby, a contralto soloist, who is also instructor of music at the London College of Bible and Missions in London, Ontario.

Have You Dined at the NEW Thunderbird Inn?

City Commissioners Monday night passed a resolution supporting Detroit's bid for the 1968 Olympics games. A copy will be sent to the Detroit Olympics Committee.
 Another resolution passed Monday night supports the proposed new Michigan constitution which voters will decide upon at the polls April 1.
 The Commission also learned that a third quarter audit of the City's book by the CPA firm of Sutherland & Robson showed the City's financial picture to be in "tip-top shape."

The Professor Says...

By Ed Brown

A few days ago I asked my Consumer Economics classes what they understood by the term "education." Needless to say I received many varied answers, and many confused thoughts as to just what education is, and who is educated and who is not.

Most expressed the opinion that only those who had graduated from high school, and college, were really educated. All experienced, intelligent-thinking persons know that education is a life-long process which begins at birth and ends at death — as far as we know.

Schooling is only one of the many contributing factors in helping one become educated. Life experiences play such a prominent part. The two, together, determine who is educated and who is not, particularly if one is willing to learn as much as he can from each.

Individual interpretation of what one considers an education is the main reason for these many answers. Personally, I have known a number of college graduates I thought quite uneducated, while, on the other hand, I have known many laborers, plumbers, mechanics, etc., I thought were very well-educated.

I know that all the college degrees in the world does not make one educated, if he does not put his knowledge to some useful purpose for the benefit of humanity.

If one is to obtain any degree of greatness — no matter what kind of an education he has — he has to possess a quality of common sense plus a certain amount of humility.

We know of the "educated snobs" — those who went to college, and use that fact as an air of superiority over those who did not have higher education.

Then, we know the "educational bluffs" — those who try to convey to all that they know everything about any topic. These people are really quite limited in knowledge, and usually their thinking is very shallow. This type will be found in all professions — including teaching — but it doesn't take long for an "educated" person to detect these phonies even though some of them fool you for a while.

WHAT EVER HAPPENED TO???

The ever-friendly young man who left the portals of PHS with the Class of 1956 after a brilliant career covering three sports. In football, he played end and quarterback, and really had himself "a night" against Bentley High in his senior year when he tossed four touchdown passes. This gentleman also played basketball and starred in baseball as a second-sacker.

He was captain of the latter two sports in his senior year, and was voted the most valuable baseball player that year. He also received the Senior Honor Key for athletics.

In high school he belonged to the Varsity Club, was a Junior Rotarian, and went to Boys' State.

After graduation he enrolled at nearby Eastern Michigan University and earned his degree in 1960.

Since 1960 our honored guest has been employed in the Garden City Recreation Department. Just this month he was promoted to Superintendent of Parks and Recreation. His duties include having charge of the beautiful artificial ice rink, picking sites for future recreational areas, and is in charge of maintenance crews, etc.

Jerry Davie, a former Detroit Tiger pitcher, whose arm went bad from calcium deposits, is his assistant. Jerry is a Garden City lad.

Our ever-smiling young man was on a state recreational constitution and by-laws committee last year, and is now president of GERMS (Southwestern Metro Recreational Executive Group)

He is also a member of the Kiwanis club of Garden City.

In 1958, Mr. X married a cute, former cheerleader, who graduated from PHS a year later than her husband. They have been blessed with two future athletes — Brian, who is 3; and Craig, a one-year old youngster.

The family live at 28521 Alvin in Garden City.

Who is this fine young couple? Jack Carter and the former Joan Bassett.

SALEM NEWS

By VERA CLAIR — GL 3-2610

The South Salem Farmers' Club met at the home of Frank Geiger on Five Mile Road Wednesday, March 6. The pot luck dinner at noon was followed by a program and speaker.

Notice: The Board of Review will meet at the Salem Town Hall on Monday and Tuesday, March 11 and 12, from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Mrs. Edith Renwick left for Cadillac on Monday, Feb. 25, where she joined her sister, Mrs. Underwood, in a trip to Sault Ste. Marie to visit their brother, Harry Lundvall, who is ill in the hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lynn of Grand Rapids spent several days last week with the Herbert Famulners of Salem. Also visiting the Famulners were their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James Vandenburg, from Clarksville, Tenn.

Many of you will be sorry to hear that the Laphan School on Brookville Road has divided its classes into half day sessions due to the large number of children attending. There are 35 children from beginners through sixth grade for one teacher. The beginners through third grade attend classes in the morning from nine until 12; fourth through sixth from 1 to 4 p.m.

Ricky Whittaker, son of the Richard Whittakers, of Brookville Road, is home convalescing from scarlet fever.

The Christian Fellowship class will meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Lanning on Seven Mile Road on Saturday, March 9, at 7 p.m. Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Hicks will assist. A scavenger hunt will be followed by the regular business meeting and refreshments.

Eighteen members and friends met at the Salem Federated Church Thursday, March 31, for a tour later of Christian Enterprise at Romulus.

The Christian Enterprise was organized as a village to offer religious and industrial help to the poor and neglected, and alcoholics.

Much of its support comes from donated furniture and other items which the people at the mission rebuild and put on sale in their stores.

God's reading material is also needed for their own reading tables at the mission.

Those who made the tour tell me that it was a most interesting trip and time well spent.

In recognition of the completion of their second year's service at Salem Federated Church, Rev. and Mrs. Chipchase were honored at a pot luck dinner Sunday, March 3, at the church following the morning service.

Mr. Howard Whipple of Seven Mile Road is in St. Joseph Hospital, Ann Arbor.

Mrs. Lucy Bennett of Six Mile Road underwent surgery this past week following injuries received in an auto accident on Feb. 19. Mrs. Bennett is in St. Joseph Hospital in Ann Arbor.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cline Smith of Five Mile Road and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley West of Cherry Hill left Saturday, March 2, for a trip to Florida.

Let's not forget the missionary conferences starting on Sunday, March 10 through March 17, at the Salem Federated Church. There will be a special speaker each evening with pictures and music centered around the missionary theme.

The Sunshine Club will meet Wednesday, March 13, at the home of Clara Baumgartner on North Territorial Road. Luncheon will be served at 1 p.m.

New Safeguard To Halt Misdialing

A new dialing procedure to safeguard telephone users from accidentally misdialing long distance calls will go into effect for Michigan Bell Telephone Co. customers in Plymouth on April 7.

Subscribers in Livonia, Northville, Garden City, Novi and Farmington will benefit from the same safeguard at the same time, the company announced.

The new dialing procedure will prevent misdialled long distance telephone calls and thus preclude unwanted toll rate charges for calls not originally intended to be placed by the subscribers.

Pair of Meetings Feature Candidates, New Constitution

The Citizens Research Council will host a meeting here Friday, March 15, at which time discussion will center around the proposed new state constitution. The public is invited to both affairs.

in Michigan will decide upon the new constitution at the April 1 biennial spring general election.

Another meeting locally will be a "town hall" session Thursday, March 28, sponsored by the Plymouth Jay-Cees. Invited guests include the eight candidates for City Commission along with nominees for township offices.

That meeting, too, will be held at Junior High East. The public is invited to both affairs.

Cautions Drivers, Pedestrians Alike On Proper Traffic Safety

"The majority of pedestrian victims in traffic accidents fall into two age groups — the very young and the elderly," reported City of Plymouth's director of public safety, Kenneth Fisher, this week.

He was discussing the never-ending need for traffic safety.

"People in both of those age groups, no matter what they think, are not always well equipped to face the dangers inherent in vehicular traffic," he said.

"The aged are not as spry as in their former years, not are their senses as sharp. And, although the youngsters of Plymouth and elsewhere are certainly agile enough, they are inexperienced in coping with traffic dangers and are also often forgetful of the lessons that have been taught them."

Drivers have a particular responsibility to persons in these two age groups, Fisher explained. "And we expect drivers to observe pedestrian cross-walks at all times, along with being on the lookout for the sudden appearances of pedestrians at all other points along traffic routes."

Pedestrians have a definite responsibility for their own safety as well, Fisher pointed out. He listed five rules for pedestrians to keep in mind at all times:

1) Heads up — remember it's always more difficult for a driver to see you than it is for you to see his approaching car. This is especially true at night, or in rain, sleet or falling snow.

2) If it's slippery underfoot, it's equally slippery under the wheels of approaching cars. Don't expect them to stop quickly for you. Some may not have on chains. Let them pass, then carefully cross the street.

3) While a pedestrian is well-advised to cross streets at corners rather than in mid-block, he should consider that the pavement may be very slippery. Cars stopping and starting on the snow-covered approaches to intersections tend to polish them to a smooth, slippery hardness. Step carefully, and don't insist on your right of way.

4) Did you know that demolition experts walk, but never run, away from explosives after the fuse is lit? This is to prevent their stumbling and falling in the danger zone. For the same reason, pedestrians should walk, never run, across the street.

5) Always obey traffic signals — not only for your own protection, but for the good example you give others who are watching you.

Fisher also appealed to home owners to keep their sidewalks clear of snow.

"This is a responsibility to those who pass by our homes," he said. "Most of them are people you know, and you wouldn't want anyone to fall and be seriously hurt on your sidewalk, through your own neglect."

Warns Parents To "Read, Heed" Those Labels

Plymouth Chamber of Commerce president John Herb this week issued a warning to parents against the potential dangers to children that surround numerous common articles stored in and used throughout the home.

Referring to the results of a report by the National Better Business Bureau — with which the Plymouth Chamber is affiliated — Herb said that doctors in 1962 encountered over 90,000 fatal and non-fatal poisonings arising from circumstances where children got into substances stored carelessly around the home.

He warned parents to "read and heed" the label on all bottles that are stored in cupboards, medicine chests and elsewhere in the home.

A new federal law requires that all products which are toxic, corrosive, eye or skin irritants, strong sensitizers, flammable or containing pressure must bear warning labels suitably describing the contents and the danger inherent in the contents.

"The law can do its job," Herb said, "only if consumers read and heed the labels on hazardous household substances."

JayVee Swim Team Wins Number Nine

A handy 59-46 decision over the Trenton JayVees last week earned the Plymouth JayVee swimmers an impressive 9-1 overall mark this winter. The Trenton victory was the concluding dual meet for the junior Rocks.

Against league opponents, the JayVees scored a smashing 8-0 record. Many of the current crop of JayVee swimmers will advance to the varsity next season.

Plymouth picked up six first place ribbons in the win over Trenton and added seven second place finishes. "We had excellent improvement in a number of personal times in the Trenton meet," said coach Tom Workman later.

He singled out Mike Alford and Paul Hart in the backstroke, Jim Eder and Jim Norman in the breast-stroke, Mike Bentley in the individual medley; Dave Cook in diving competition; and Mike Bassett, Gary Bohl, Russ Crosby and Dean Johnson in the freestyle events.

This is how Plymouth turned back Trenton: Rich Irvine, Bob Williams, Tim Wernette and Bob Knapp were second in the 200-yard medley relay and Doug Jaskierny and Val Fulton finished one-two in the 200-yard free. Mike Drennan and Rick Ott did the same in the 50-yard free.

John Bowlsman was second in the 200-yard individual medley and John Herter won the diving. Tim Wernette and Mike Drennan were two-three in the butterfly, Jim Norman won the 100-yard free with Chuck Olson finishing third.

Rich Irvine was second in the 100-yard backstroke and John Bowlsman was third. Doug Breed and Bob Knapp were one-two in the 400-yard free and John Todd was third in the 100-yard breaststroke. Val Fulton, Chuck Olson, Rick Otto and Jim Norman won the 200-yard freestyle relay, to conclude the meet and the 1962-63 season for the Plymouth JayVees.

JayVee Cagers Bow to Trenton In Final Test

Trenton's junior varsity trimmed the Friday Rocks by a 47-44 score Friday night as both teams concluded the 1962-63 basketball season.

The Plymouth JayVees wound up with a 5-10 overall record, same mark attained by the Rocks' varsity cagers. Plymouth, which trailed by 13 points mid-way in the third quarter, rallied in the final period and almost pulled out a victory.

Trailing 45-44 with 20 seconds to go, Plymouth's Bill Nelson missed a free throw that would have tied the game. Then the Rocks scooped up three consecutive rebounds under the Trenton basket but missed all three ensuing attempts at field goals.

A foul at the final buzzer led Trenton to two free throws after the contest had ended and thus produced the final three-point margin between the two teams.

Trenton led 9-8 at the end of the first quarter and 21-13 at the half. The eventual winners were ahead 34-26 as the fourth period got underway.

Nelson paced Plymouth with 15 points, but surrendered game honors to Trenton's Hal Yoder, who had 19, all in the last half. Plymouth JayVee basketball coach Dick Bearup will serve as JayVee track coach this spring.

HELPS SPARTANS SET SWIM MARK

A Plymouth youth, Dick Gretzinger, was a swimmer on MSU's 400-yard freestyle relay team recently when it set a new NCAA record time of 3:14.4 in the event. Gretzinger is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Gretzinger, of 679 N. Harvey.

Others on the team are Jeff Mattson, of Olympia, Wash.; Bill Wood of East Lansing; and Mike Wood of Jackson, Mich. The quartet will be out to improve on their record-setting performance during the forth-coming Big 10 meet at Purdue this week.

NEW CHILDREN'S librarian at the Dunning-Hough library here is Mrs. W. R. Michener (center), who held a similar post at the Inkster Public Library previously. Mrs. Michener, a graduate of Wayne State University and the mother of three children, is shown assisting 10-year-old Linda Hepler in making her selections from the library's children's section. Linda's mother (at left) is Mrs. Gerald Hepler. Mrs. Michener, who started Feb. 25, succeeds Mrs. Joseph Walker who has returned to the University of Michigan for further schooling. The Children's story hour each Saturday morning at 11 a.m. will be continued by Mrs. Michener. The story hour is designed for children in grades 1-3.

Plymouth vs. Trenton League Swim Championship 2-Team Duel

Plymouth's varsity swimmers, almost on the eve of the 1963 Suburban Six conference championship meet, were caught unawares by Trenton and dropped a 55-50 loss in the final dual-meet of the year last week.

It set the stage once again for a personal dual between Plymouth and Trenton for ultimate league honors at the championship meet this weekend in Allen Park.

The same circumstances arose last year when the two schools went down to the wire in the championship battle, with Trenton nosing out the Rocks by five points for top league laurels.

The dual-meet defeat at the hands of Trenton last Thursday left the Rocks with a 12-4 overall record for the 1962-63 season, same mark Plymouth wound up with a year ago.

With any threat of complacency presumably wiped out by the loss to Trenton last week, Plymouth will march into the league championship test with the "favorite's tag" resting on its shoulders.

Only Trenton is expected to pose a serious bit of opposition to the Rocks' hopes of winning their fifth league crown in six years. Plymouth beat Trenton by more than 20 points in an earlier clash this winter.

The league games, in Allen Park, will take place this Friday and Saturday. The preliminary is expected to be held Friday and on Saturday the remaining preliminary events will be staged with the finals to conclude the action in the evening.

The Class A state meet, which Plymouth won two years ago, will cap the 1962-63 season on March 15 and 16 in East Lansing.

Trenton, last week, started slowly but caught fire toward the end of the contest. The eventual winners claimed 22 points out of a possible 27 in the eighth, ninth and 10th races, thus turning back Plymouth's hopes of notching victory No. 13 this winter.

The loss also found Plymouth still with 98 dual-meet victories to its credit since swimming was introduced at the local school in 1953. The team had entertained mathematical chances of capturing win No. 100 this season.

But successive losses to Royal Oak and Trenton in the last two meets of the regular season smashed these hopes.

This is how Plymouth fared last week in its concluding dual-meet engagement of the season: The Rocks opened proceedings with a win in the 200-yard medley relay as Dan Olson, Dave Beglinger, Dave Agnew and Dick Berry were clocked in 1:48.7 for first place honors.

Team co-captain Gary Gould picked up one of his two individual first place ribbons next with a victory in the 200-yard free and George Collins finished third. Gould's time was 1:57.5.

Mike Britcher was third in the 50-yard free and then Jim Beglinger won the 200-yard individual medley in 2:21.4. Mark Schultheiss, Plymouth's other team co-captain, won the diving with 78.25 points and Bert Quinn gained a second.

Dave Beglinger was second in the 100-yard butterfly, and Gould came back with another first place finish this time in the 100-yard free in the time of 4:26. Tom Blunk finished third in the same event.

But then Plymouth fell apart, and Trenton scored its upset decision by dominating the next three events.

The Rocks got only a third place ribbon in the 100-yard back-stroke (Dan Olson), and a second place finish in the 400-yard free (Jim Beglinger). Agnew was third in the 100-yard breast-stroke, and it was too late to change the course of the battle.

SPORTSEEN

By Jerome O'Neil

While Plymouth High's varsity swimmers wound up big winners again this year just as they have been doing for many seasons, the Rocks' varsity basketball team pretty much "took it on the chin" this winter.

And if life itself is filled with disappointments — as many would have you believe — then the major participants in Plymouth's basketball fortunes over the past few years have stored up a backlog.

ALL OF which leads to the not-so-original observation that "It is far easier to be a winner than it is to be a loser."

It is a tribute of sorts that Plymouth coaches and players have persevered with heads held rather high during recent basketball wars. That they have concealed their disappointment warrants a degree of acclaim and a consoling pat on the back for efforts put forth.

Head coach and players alike have wanted to win, and a goodly number of Plymouth loyalists have turned out with relative regularity to cheer the Rocks in the same direction. BUT WIN with regularity, the Rocks have not. And it's a tough morsel to swallow — defeat.

At the risk of recounting too many past sorrows for Coach Charlie Ketterer and his hopefuls, these facts took place on the basketball floor this winter: At one point, Plymouth's cagers had lost five in a row, including a merciless 73-47 pounding at the hands of Redford Union.

In a game against Trenton, the Rocks accumulated the rather impressive total of 57 points, an amount that generally stands a high school team in pretty good stead. However, Plymouth lost the contest by two points, 59-57.

In a more recent clash, the Rocks were outstripped 57-26 by Bentley High on a night that Plymouth's arch-rival from Livonia wrapped up its fifth Suburban Six crown in about six years. Twenty-six points in one game is terribly insignificant in light of the 32 minutes of playing time allotted each team. But morale was understandably low.

THERE HAVE been, however, a few moments for glee, and Plymouth has wrung all it could from those brief and fleeting seconds. The Rocks — with surprising ease and deliberate purpose — dismantled Redford Union one night by a 55-47 margin.

It was just at a time when RU had visions of a league crown. On another occasion, Plymouth delighted itself with a 59-33 verdict over Allen Park, albeit a low-ranked member in the current conference standings. Once, the Rocks even assembled two victories in a row this winter.

But — even with a victory last Friday over Trenton — Plymouth was destined to no better than a 5-10 overall record in 1962-63. This compares, depending on the point of view, with a 6-9 mark the year previous.

IT MAY sound naive to point out that Plymouth at least has learned to lose — and gracefully. But it should be quickly added — if only in defense of the Rocks — that disappointment is a part of our very existence.

Not to the point that "losing" is better than "winning." But, instead, the ability to lose — and struggle on — is a trait well worth having.

We would not leave any reader with the thought that we encourage Plymouth to further its losing efforts on the basketball floor. Rather, we would be among the first to cry: "Let's win 'em all."

But this far too seldom is the case, even with the biggest of schools where the calibre of players unquestionably will surpass that of Plymouth's potential.

IN A COLD, hard, searching look at Plymouth's basketball fortunes — tinged with no thought toward sarcasm — we say: "Congratulations, Rocks, you tried as hard as your inherent abilities would permit, and — somehow — we feel you brought Plymouth home another winner."

IN A WARM-UP to a nation-wide contest, a number of Plymouth boys — ranging in age from seven to 19 — are racing tiny model cars these days on a special track at Jerry's Shoe Service & Hobby Shop, 585 S. Main St. The sport itself is described as "model motoring races." For each race (above), three boys pit their tiny cars (circled) against each other for 15 laps around the track. The cars, electrically driven, are controlled from individual steering wheels mounted along the edge of the track. From left: Jerry Van Tassel, owner of the Hobby Shop; Greg Houghtaling, 16; Guy Bear, 14; and Stewart Delaney, 9. Van Tassel, who is judging the race depicted here, is conducting an eight-week warm-up contest in preparation for a nation-wide event of the same nature in April. While Van Tassel is personally sponsoring the warm-up contest, the national affair is conducted under the auspices of the Ford Motor Co. and Aurora Manufacturing Co. The local contest, which concludes March 31, features as top prize a model motoring set. Additional entries are still being accepted in Van Tassel's warm-up races. There is no age limit nor entry fee. The races are held each Monday evening starting at 7:30. At present, there are 26 boys entered. Through a process of elimination, a grand champion will be determined.

Cagers Blast Trenton; Regular Season Ends

Victory was Plymouth's companion Friday night as the Rocks closed out their regular basketball schedule with a resounding 47-33 decision over Trenton in a battle for fourth place in the final conference standings. As a result, the Rocks fashioned a 4-6 won-lost mark in the Suburban Six league and moved into fourth place in the standings, a notch higher than a year ago when they engineered the same number of wins and losses in conference action.

Defense told the story as the Rocks wrapped up the 1962-63 season and looked ahead to the Class "A" district 'tourney this week in Ypsilanti. Plymouth's cagers constantly collared the Trenton attackers and dominated with a measurable degree of success both boards all night long. And, for a change, Plymouth scored reasonably well, too. Cal Luibrand, who will be back next year, paced the Rocks with 14 points. Team captain Dick Schryer, a senior, contributed eight, while Doug Sutherland and Gary Grady, both whom will return next winter, too, added seven points apiece.

Jim Lake had five, Dick Egloff four and Tom McGill two. All three of those players will also return to Coach Charlie Ketterer's fold for the 1963-64 season.

The Rocks marched to a 15-6 first quarter advantage and continued the onslaught during the second period. At the intermission, Plymouth led 24-12. A 15-point spread showed on the scoreboard as the Rocks opened the final quarter.

Dick Helmling had nine points for the losers and his team-mate, Jim Frabutt, added eight more. An indication of Plymouth's strength on defense was found in Helmling's inability to score more frequently.

Earlier in the season when the Rocks dropped a two-point loss to Trenton, Helmling fired in 23 points. This time, however, Lake, Luibrand and Egloff alternated in the task of shadowing the Trenton ace and contained him effectively all evening.

Lake did most of the defensive chores on Helmling, but Luibrand and Egloff contributed substantially. The victory also brought Plymouth's overall record to 5-10 this season. A year ago, when the Rocks wound up fifth in the conference, they posted a 6-9 mark.

In the statistics department, Plymouth did only so-so. The Rocks cashed 18 of 49 field goal attempts for 37 per cent and made 11 of 24 free throws for 46 per cent. Trenton did no better. The losers scored 10 of 49 field goal shots for 22 per cent and made 13 of 28 free throws for 47 per cent.

"Our defense did a good job and it certainly paid off," said Ketterer later.

The Rocks Thursday night see their first action in the District 'tourney, which will be held in Bowen Field House on the Eastern Michigan campus in Ypsilanti. (See story elsewhere this page.)

Cloverdale Unbeaten Champ In Men's Cage Conference

True to form, Cloverdale romped to victory in final action of the men's recreation basketball league last week and handily wrapped up a conference championship. Tait's Cleaners was the victim as Cloverdale ran up a 73-44 decision, its eighth without a loss in the men's loop. Ken Kisabeth and Chuck Thomas paced the winners. Kisabeth had 16 points, Thomas 15. Lee Clair had 11 for Tait's and team-mate Dick Bearup dumped in eight. At half-time, Tait's trailed by 11 points. In other final action in the men's conference last week, Auto-Crat clinched second place with a 60-51 verdict over D.S.I. At half-time, Auto-Crat led 34-21. Dave Mills had 12 points for the winners and Tom Garchow added nine. Dave Gothard scored 15 for D.S.I. and Tom Ferguson contributed 11.

Rocks Face Ann Arbor In District

With high hopes — but not the best of odds — Plymouth's varsity basketball team moves into post-season tournament play tomorrow night in the first round of district games. The Rocks will take on Ann Arbor High at 8:30 p.m. Thursday night at Bowen Field House on the Eastern Michigan campus in Ypsilanti. That same night, at 7 p.m., Walled Lake and Belleville square off against each other in the first half of the same district 'tourney. Should Plymouth emerge a victor from its contest, it will face the winner of the Walled Lake vs. Belleville game on Saturday night to decide the district crown.

A victory for the Rocks in the Saturday night game, which will begin at either 7 p.m. or 8:30 p.m., would send them into the first round of the regional play-offs, next step on the road to East Lansing and the far-away state finals.

Plymouth, a member of the Suburban Six conference, competes in Class "A" in all post-season 'tourney games. The three other divisions — all determined by school size — are classes "B" and "C" and "D."

One other district crown will be up for grabs at Bowen Field House during virtually the same span of time that Plymouth will be engaged. Teams in that district include Adrian, Wayne, Romulus and Ypsilanti.

At the same time, across the state, other district games are being staged in order to determine the regional matchings.

Chips from the ROCK

It isn't often I have an opportunity to print a picture of a beautiful woman in my column so, as a change of pace, I thought I would enclose one this week.

A short note from the desk of Congresswoman Martha Griffiths came to me from Washington Friday with the following notation: "A recent picture which I thought you might like to have." I didn't know any reason that a good Republican would be interested in a picture of a good Democrat but after looking at the photo several minutes I decided I was glad to have received it.

In the first place I have never seen Martha Griffiths nor met her, but in all fairness to this capable public servant I had to admit to myself that she is a "stunning doll" and that to have brains along with this beauty deserved recognition herein.

So it is with real pleasure that for the benefit of her many friends throughout this area, and she does have many, I share my photo for their enjoyment and suggest to Martha that some dearly autographed sentiment on the same might have gained her smiling face a place on the wall along with other illustrious personalities in my collection.

Sooner or later the past catches up with all of us. Although we have always considered Plymouth a town of champions it was only last weekend that I learned of two more state champions who live among us and have never been recognized for their youthful accomplishments.

Back in his high school days Cecil Sharrard walked off with state championship ribbons as Michigan's best bass violinist, and William Sempiner was among the best in the plunge in Michigan in aquatic accomplishments having attained the record at that time, of 71 feet. Perhaps our symphony has overlooked a bet as well as our swimming enthusiasts who might also enjoy an exhibition.

Our sales minded sales promotion manager, E. Randy Eaton, who also is making his debut as a full fledged cub reporter made a typical cub reporters error last week. In writing the story covering the banquet for Dr. M. I. Johnson he forgot to include in his story the speaker who provided him the biggest thrill on the whole program. So to bail him out, and for the record, let me say that he was most impressed by the part of the program handled by Dave Galin whose inspiring tribute to Johnson highlighted the whole evening. . . or at least so he says even though he forgot to write it.

This isn't written to provoke the kind of argument that the folks down in the big city of Detroit got into over razing the old city hall, but, sincerely, this editor hates to see the old opera house torn down.

For the benefit of our newcomers I might say that sixty or seventy years ago Polley's Blacksmith shop did a flourishing business at the present site of the opera house. Progress took its toll and down came the blacksmith's stand and up went a new combined opera house and village hall.

Soon, after the advent of movies and the arrival of a few more residents, the opera section of the hall was closed and village offices expanded. Today, in the not too distant future, those eager wrecking crews will be along with battering rams and bulldozers to clear away the remains of this building which has outlived its usefulness, so they say.

Now, just in passing, the thought came to me that I can see the advantage of running Church street across Main street and around the new city hall and our library and perhaps a new civic auditorium, (now being dreamed of in the area between our building and the library) but. . . Might it not be feasible, with a little street alteration, to route traffic through the city owned property now occupied by the present historical museum.

This is only thinking out loud but perhaps for a stop-gap measure the upstairs rooms in old city hall could be used for many community purposes. Community Chest, Scouts, etc., etc. if they are needed. . . and what about the main floor? Well let's just tear out all the petitions and turn this area into a beautiful museum. Basically the frame is there and it's in good shape and it would cost very little to do this kind of a job which could provide a facility already built and big enough to accommodate our overflowing museum, and give some meeting room area immediately while plans for a larger project gets underway.

For some reason I think I would like the idea of seeing this old landmark preserved for our future generations to view along with our expanded new buildings, and I cannot help but feel that there is food here for thought though it may not be practical or physically possible to do.

At any rate our Territorial road project has run out of steam and in addition I hate to see those city hall pigeons displaced, especially right now. Should any of our readers have suggestions along these lines we would welcome their comments and would be most pleased to present their views to our many readers in this area and let me be the first to suggest, just so some of you don't, that the old jail in the basement be reserved for warped editors who dream up ideas such as this.

PLYMOUTH HIGH SCHOOL buzzed with "journalistic" last Thursday when the school and the Pilgrim Prints hosted the Suburban Six Press Conference. Letter to the Editor:

Defends 'Schoolcraft' College

Mr. Sterling Eaton THE PLYMOUTH MAIL Dear Mr. Eaton:

The trustees and faculty of the Northwestern Wayne County Community College should be publicly commended for their decision to change the name to Schoolcraft College. This will give long overdue recognition to one of Michigan's and this nation's outstanding citizens. Henry Rowe Schoolcraft was one of the most versatile men of the 19th century. His contributions as an explorer, writer, scientist and ethnologist have rarely, if ever, been matched. For over 20 years he served as Indian agent for the Upper Lakes with headquarters at Sault Ste. Marie and Mackinac Island. During this critical period in United States history, Schoolcraft led exploring expeditions into the wilds of Wisconsin and Minnesota, discovered the source of the great Mississippi River, and uncovered the great mineral wealth of northern Michigan.

His studies of Indian life and customs were internationally known and won him acclaim as the outstanding authority on the Indian of the Upper Great Lakes. He wrote over 20 books and hundreds of articles on the Indians; indeed it was the Indian legends presented in Alcic Researches, published in 1839, that were used by Henry W.

Longfellow as the basis of the epic poem, "Hiawatha".

Schoolcraft also served the State of Michigan in a number of important public positions. He was a member of the Territorial Legislature, a regent of the University of Michigan during its formative years, and in 1828 helped found the Historical Society of Michigan. Many of the beautiful Indian names given to townships, counties and topographical features of Michigan were a product of his work. For over 20 years he carried on a personal campaign to replace crude names like Mud Creek, Shingle Hollow, etc., with names of historical significance and those having some association with the Indian tribes who inhabited the Upper Great Lakes. The names Isosco, Tuscola, Leelanau, Oscoda and Alpena are but a few of the names attributed to Schoolcraft.

He made an equally important contribution as a collector and preserver of the history of Michigan and the Upper Great Lakes. He interviewed hundreds of Indians, fur traders, soldiers and explorers and wrote down detailed records of their accounts. He preserved correspondence with presidents, statesmen, writers, poets, scientists and explorers, and made provision that they always be available for scholarly research. His voluminous collection of letters, diaries and reports is now in the Library of Congress and is being used continually for historical research.

Most of Schoolcraft's books are now collector's items and are found only in the major research libraries of the United States. In order to make these rich sources available to the general public, Michigan State University Press began a program in 1953 to republish the more important books written by Schoolcraft. The most recent in the series is "The Literary Voyager," edited by Philip F. Mason of Wayne State University (1962). This volume contains articles, poems, folk tales and all aspects of Indian life and customs. Dr. Mason, who is probably the leading scholar in the country on Schoolcraft, is now working on a new book covering another phase of Schoolcraft's life.

Sincerely yours, HAZEN E. KUNZ President, Historical Society of Michigan Chairman, Livonia Historical Commission

Efforts to expand Michigan's library system in the rural areas are under way throughout the state.

The State Board for Libraries earlier this year started a move to bolster the creation of multi-community library systems to take the world's books to more people in Michigan.

A further effort recently announced is the offer by the board of four $2,000 scholarships for graduate study in library science.

State Librarian Genevieve M. Casey said the scholarship fund recipients will be expected to work for two years following graduation in a public library serving a rural area.

Miss Casey said the agreement did not impose any actual restrictions on the type of library involved, however, since it could be either a large or small system. The scholarship program was designed to provide trained personnel for the development and improvement of rural library service, she said.

Any person with provisional acceptance from an American Library Association-accredited library school may seek one of the scholarships available through funds provided by the Federal Library Services Act.

On-the-job injuries rose in Michigan last year in unequal proportion to the hike in the labor force and the rise in work accidents throughout the nation, according to the State Labor Department.

There were 31,000 compensable injuries reported in Michigan last year, a 6 per cent hike over the previous year in the manufacturing industries.

This compares unfavorably with the national total of 1,990,000 injuries, a 3 per cent increase over the 1961 rate. Labor officials said the hike in the employed labor force last year was only 2 per cent throughout the country.

Permanent disability injuries showed a startling increase of 8 per cent during the period but the number of fatalities was not significantly changed, department officials noted. Manufacturing deaths showed an increase last year, but fatalities in the non-manufacturing industries dropped from the previous annual report.

Water resources of Michigan are of primary concern to many. One unit of government devotes much time to them, mostly unnoticed.

One phase of the Water Resources Commission's work is devoted to on-the-shop investigations of sites proposed for the disposal of waste and sewage.

Under the law of municipalities, industry or business of any kind which wishes to increase or add new use of waters in the state is required to gain permission from the Commission. During 1962 alone the Commission investigated 95 such requests for usage.

Requests must include the nature of the development, the amount of water to be used, its source, the proposed point of discharge of waste into the water, the characteristics and estimated amount of waste.

Commission spokesman Loring F. Oeming said staff members check each of the applications with an eye to determine if there is a necessity to impose restrictions on the wastes to be discharged.

Waters covered under Commission jurisdiction include all surface and underground waters of the great Lakes bordering on Michigan.

An attempt to shift some responsibility for treating mental illness from the state to local level has made some progress, reports State Mental Health Director Charles F. Wagg.

Presently some 18 child guidance clinics, with 12 branches; seven adult clinics, and two all-purpose clinics serving both children and adults are in operation throughout the state, Wagg said.

The caseload served by the community clinics seems to bear out the distribution of facilities for children and adults. Of some 14,437 patients served in the clinics during a one year period, about 83 per cent of the total caseload was children.

Expansion of the community clinic program is anticipated, particularly for children. A part of the therapy for many children is based on serving them close to home so the return to the family and community circle is a relatively easy adjustment.

Wagg said waiting lists for community clinics indicates a need for more facilities for children than adults. In the same period in which the existing clinics served 14,437 patients, there were another children awaiting care and 182 adults on waiting lists.

Financing and administration of the community facilities is done on a joint state-local basis. During the last full fiscal year, a total of $2,139,567 was spent for community clinics. Of this $1,211,445 was contributed by the state and $928,122 was obtained from local sources.

Letter To The Editor

THE PLYMOUTH MAIL Plymouth, Mich. Dear Editor:

For sometime now, the leaders of Boy Scouts in the Sunset District and elsewhere in the suburbs have been striving to retain the "community strip" on the scout uniform of all scouts.

Much time and sincere effort has been put forth towards this end by scouting leaders in about 35 communities comprising nearly 60,000 scouts. The end result by decree of the Detroit Area Boy Scout Council that the strip must be replaced by a "D.A.C." patch — is that these 60,000 voices have been called a minority.

It is interesting to point out that these approximately 60,000 scouts — along with their scoutmasters and troop leaders — represent nearly two-thirds of the total number of 92,000 scouts active in the Detroit Area Council. And, of course, the majority of these 92,000 boys are suburban youngsters — not Detroiters.

These boys, and the men who guide them (meaning the ones striving to retain the individual "community strip") would like to keep our individualism-of-community, but we've had no success.

I could write thesis on the subject, but it looks like, the D.A.C. has pulled a fast one, regardless of what words I put down on paper. "It's a fast one" on all scouts and their leaders in the Detroit suburban scouting movement.

Is this going to be the start of regimentation without representation?

KIWANIS NOTES

By Ken Way

Program Chairman Joe Graves introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Steve Filipiak, who is vice president in charge of public relations for FM Radio Station WOLA located in Ann Arbor.

His topic was the "American Sense of Humor". Our greatest American asset is a good sense of humor, he said, and asked: "What is a sense of humor?" Being able to laugh at yourself, he explained. Laughter is good medicine.

As you arise in the morning, step back, take a good look at yourself, and accept what the day has to offer with a smile. Let us never be too busy to speak a friendly word or a smile to those people we meet each day.

Be a good listener for other people's humor. We Americans have become very serious minded. If Will Rogers were alive today, and poked fun at the Federal Government the way he did, I am afraid he would be investigated by a Congressional Committee for Un-American Activities.

Kiwanian Bill Rossow introduced four guests from neighboring clubs in South Lyon, River Rouge and Northville. The 72 members and guest enjoyed the program very much.

On March 12th program will be presented by Jim Winterhalter and will honor Girl Scout Week.

Schedule "Bye Bye Birdie" School Play March 28-30

Assembled around a theme dealing with the day-to-day lives of teen-agers, Plymouth High's all-school play "Bye Bye Birdie" will be presented March 28, 29 and 30 in the Senior High auditorium. It is a musical comedy.

The plot centers on teen-agers and their reactions to going steady, rock-and-roll and other aspects of the teen years. Around all of this is woven a love story between two post-teens.

Otto Dobos, Marlynn Moss and Joe Geitgey head the 16-member cast. Miss Mary Carey is director, assisted by Robert Southgate. Producer is Robert Stenger. "Bye Bye Birdie" stems from a book by Michael Stewart, which was later converted into a stage show with the music by Charles Strouse and the lyrics by Lee Adams.

TAKE A BREAK... I HAVE TO GO "FISHING"!

This well driller is going fishing, but not for fun! To the men who drill gas wells, fishing is not a pleasant pastime — it's a painstaking, tedious job. It means that the well driller has to take his large, heavy, cumbersome tackle (hooks and line) and fish out drilling tools that have become stuck or broken off deep in the earth. Consumers Power Company, too, has an important and expensive task — that of providing its customers with a dependable supply of natural gas during the cold winter months. To assure a sufficient reserve supply, it has underground storage fields near Marion, Michigan and elsewhere. Natural gas is put back in the earth under a pressure of hundreds of pounds per square inch and withdrawn as needed when gas consumption is highest.

BETWEEN his studies at Eastern Michigan University and his duties as stage designer for the Plymouth Theater Guild's forth-coming production of "The Mousetrap," Plymouthite Bill Moore is a busy individual these days. "Mousetrap" is slated for May 2-4 in the Senior High auditorium.

BY GEORGE SPELVIN

Dairy Queens, those true harbingers of Spring, have been skeptically announcing their March openings. Ordering a creamy, ice cream cone while standing with your tootsies in the slush does seem a bit too much.

Come what may though those dispensers of calorie-loaded cones will be greeting their customers with mittens and ear muffs as standard employee equipment.

No such mix-up in the weather awaits the thespians from Plymouth High School as they swing into the final rehearsal stages of a springy, bouncy musical comedy named "Bye, Bye Birdie."

Producer Robert Stenger reports all is progressing nicely. Director Mary Carey has had only the highest praise for the entire cast. Marilyn Moss becomes more Spanish every day. Senor Crespo has been coaching her to roll her "r's" properly, since she has a hilarious Spanish number in the last act.

Art Gulch's interpretation of a frustrated papa in a household of Presley admirers is a study in confusion.

Art's song in praise of Ed Sullivan will be worth the price of a ticket. Four performances of this Broadway success will be given at the end of March. Watch for the opening of the ticket sale.

The Plymouth Theater Guild's ticket sale for "The Mousetrap" is still in the formative stage. Friends and interested citizens are meeting on Thursdays on the second floor of the Dunning-Hough library. Plans are being formulated for a ticket campaign, publicity gimmicks and a host of ways in which everyone can discover all the good things about "The Mousetrap."

At last week's meeting, Winnie Dorsett brought some china mugs, a few traps, and a piece of glass cheese to show Guild members and friends how she and her son created a publicity photo that you'll be seeing one of these days.

Drop up and visit with them on Thursday night at the library from 8 to 10 p.m.

At the final Shakespearean presentation of the APA Winter Festival there was no shortage of ideas. If anything, at times a few too many ideas were flying through the mournful, maudlin air of Trueblood. Theater Paul Sparer, Jon Farwell, and Sidney Walker did what they could to keep the tragic history of "Richard II" moving majestically and maliciously to its pernicious conclusion.

Director-Actor Ellis Rabb, excellent in many of the other APA offerings, suffered a tragic downfall. His interpretation of "Richard II" stressed Richard's egocentric nature so vividly and so slowly that the play bogged down temporarily as we waited patiently for Mr. Rabb's solo display of histrionics.

Each of Richard's speeches were unnecessary tour de forces and caused actors in the mainable stage waits. Surely Richard II did dominate the historical picture, but never to the extent imagined by the mind of Mr. Rabb.

"The Merchant of Venice" and "Midsummer Night's Dream" were both better Shakespearean productions. My advice: unless the role is a light, gay part, keep Mr. Rabb in the artistic direction department.

He has proven that he can do this most competently. I still inwardly chuckle at his staging of the Pyramus-Thisbe scene (it was a gem in the last act of "The Dream." You'll have a chance to see this APA production at the Detroit Institute of Arts this Saturday at either the matinee or evening performance... if you missed seeing them in Ann Arbor.

Incidentally, the Campus Theater is continuing the run of "Divorce - Italian Style," a picture nominated for an Academy Award. Old George feels that this is too funny a picture to win. Go over to Ann Arbor and see what hilarious fun can be yours if you ever try to obtain a "Divorce - Italian Style."

"David and Lisa," another Academy award nominee picture, will open for a limited engagement. This picture has a better chance in the Academy sweepstakes since it is of serious bent.

Edward Albee, currently the brilliant Broadway playwright of "Who's Afraid of Virginia Wolfe?," will be represented at the Wayne State University Theater with the Detroit premiere of "The American Dream."

By blending naturalism and the grotesque in his writing, Albee manages to present this satirical commentary on the false values in life with comic brilliance. Not often do you have an opportunity to laugh while learning about the emptiness of life. "The Zoo Story" will be seen on the same bill starting Friday, March 9 and playing a second set of performances on March 14, 15, 16, with a special Sunday matinee on March 17. My old friend Joe E. Barrett plays the part of "Daddy" in "The American Dream."

If you enjoyed Joe in the "Rivals" as Bob Acres, I'm sure he'll come through with another top comic portrayal.

THE BILLBOARD
Fisher Theater "SOPHIE" New musical comedy with tunes by Steve Allen. Breaks in for three weeks starting Monday, March 4. Art Lund and Libi Staiger featured in the top roles.

Shubert Theater "PAJAMA TOPS" One more week for June Wilkinson to romp in this French living room farce. Ends run on March 9.

"MUSIC AT MIDNIGHT" London religious hit featuring Nora Swinburne and Walter Fitzgerald. Opens March 11 for a week's run. A curious follow-up to Miss Wilkinson and company.

Vanguard Theater "HIM" Dave Atkinson and company confuse the audience with an avant-garde comedy that can cause you many a complex moment as you attempt to figure it all out. Opened Feb. 28 for a three-week run.

Stables Coffee House Theater "TOYS IN THE ATTIC" Most ambitious effort thus far for Detroit's most unique theater group. Drew Elliott from New York is featured in the Jason Robard role... Opens March 7 for a month's run.

Lydia Mendelsohn Theater "THE HUNTERS" Annual Opera done in conjunction with the Dept. of Music. Tuesday through Saturday, March 5-9, 8 p.m. Curtain.

"HAROLD CLURMAN" Third in distinguished lecture series featuring top Broadway directors. March 17 at 3 p.m.

Hopeful Actor Enjoys Europe

(Editor's Note — Last week The Mail's drama writer, George Spelvin, reported on Cam Hudson's association with the theater business and his deep-seated interest in it. This week, in the second of a two-part series, Cam's visit to Europe is detailed.)

By George Spelvin

After two years of watching pennies, saved gradually, grow into dollars, Cameron Hudson, of Amelia St., had money enough for his journey to Europe.

It almost seems next to impossible, from some viewpoints, that a struggling New York actor could put away enough cash for a European jaunt. But Cam managed it.

Naturally, the reason for his heading toward the continent had something to do with "theater." Elaborate plans had been made with some friends to start a theater in the Majorca Islands. Cam was to act, direct, design, and handle all other tasks.

Since the Majorca Islands are off the coast of Spain, Cam booked passage on a ship that went to Tangier. From there it's but a short ferry boat ride over to the Majorcas.

Incidentally, Cam indicated that the fare — $130 — by a Yugoslavian freighter can't be duplicated. Service was excellent. In fact, he preferred it to his homeward cruise aboard a large liner for $280. Food and companionship (40 other passengers on the freighter) drew high praise from Cam.

Arriving in Majorca, well-known for their spice trade and Spanish dancers, Cam found that his "friends" had not properly analyzed the situation. Most of the folks were more interested in "living it up."

Cam bid a fond farewell, crossed over to the mainland of Spain, spent sometime visiting friends in various cities there. Riding the public modes of transportation was quite revealing since he always went third class to preserve his funds.

Sharing quarters on the trains with goats, chickens and even in some cases with pigs had its olfactory drawbacks.

From Spain it was on to Paris. While sipping coffee at an outdoor bistro, his big break came. A director of the Anglo-American theater liked his physical appearance, asked him to appear at an audition at 3 p.m.

A few hours later he had the part and for the next four months he was a member of this avant-garde Paris theater group.

Still searching for additional dramatic experience, Cam left Paris and slipped into London for a three month's stay. Even though the fog was heavy while he was there, he managed to find several acting jobs.

He appeared on BBC television, had two stories published in one of the slick English magazines, and visited many of the London theaters. Cam has some professional friends in the Old Vic company.

While in London he went to the long-running (10 years) favorite "The Mousetrap".

Although Spain, Paris, and London were venturesome places, the magnetism of home and New York city soon had their effect on Cameron. New York city was only a temporary welcome sight since Cam almost immediately became quite ill.

Being alone in the big city unable to receive medication is sheer madness. When Cam's illness was diagnosed as hepatitis, he packed his bags and came back to 344
