

New Furniture Store Opens in Plymouth

OWNER OF PLYMOUTH'S newest furniture store, Snyder Furniture Co., 584 W. Ann Arbor Tr., Jerry Snyder examines swatches of material to order other pieces of furniture. Open for business now, the store's Grand Opening will be Nov. 12-14. The store will sell many different furniture styles in all price ranges.

Finding Plymouth an aggressive town that is progressing with enthusiastic residents, Jerry Snyder said he decided to open Snyder Furniture Co. at 584 W. Ann Arbor Tr.

"I'm sold on the town itself," Snyder said. He added he had never found more cooperative people than those he has worked with in opening his Plymouth store.

Snyder has had 20 years experience as a distributor of furniture and home appliances in Grand Rapids. He explained that in 1960 he turned over Kent Wholesale Distributors to his son who then also opened two retail furniture stores, Kent Furniture Co., in Grand Rapids.

"Medium-priced quality furniture" is Snyder's aim for his store, he said. The store will feature Grand Rapids made furniture but also will carry other brands in all price ranges.

Grand opening of the store complete with door prizes and refreshments has been slated for Nov. 12-14.

The store which will be operated by Mr. and Mrs. Snyder and Mrs. Robert Olson, the Snyder's daughter, will be open Monday and Friday from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. and other days from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m.

The Snyder's plan to move to Plymouth in the near future.

Students are Concerned About Crowding in Schools

By Mike Ross

A recent "conversation piece" that is being thrown around by many classes at P.H.S. is the problem that has arisen in Plymouth's elementary schools.

Crowding.
Due to the booming Lake Pointe development, Farrand School added a wing not too long ago and is making a further addition this year.

Even with these enlargements, classes are still conducting in the gym. This creates the problem of having no indoor recreation area for the students.

Allen school has become another victim of this "disease" infiltrating our system. Since the vast, new Salem Square housing development started, Allen's enrollment of new pupils has skyrocketed. There, too, an addition is being made.

But, as at Farrand, classes must be held in other than classrooms. Allen must turn to the library and conference rooms, far too small to adequately conduct a class. Not only this, but library time is taken from many pupils or entire classes wishing to use the library a certain hour of the day.

To solve this, the library class moves into the room vacated by the class using the library and then must switch again when the class returns from the library to their own room. All this changing of rooms not only disrupts study, it's no help to teachers' nerves.

At Starkweather overcrowding is not so prominent, except in the huge kindergarten class. 80+ little youngsters, even in two shifts, is quite a large task to take on.

Plymouth now has a new junior high. Right now, to relieve some of the pressure on elementary schools, part of the sixth grade classes is attending there. Here crops up one of the most frequent and prominent of questions asked by students:

How much faster is this going to fill or overflow the school, making the building obsolete?

Planning ahead is a key factor in the success of any system; and a school system is certainly no exception. The students' big question is, how many more times can these schools be added on too?

Would it be cheaper to build two smaller schools in the same district or just keep adding until the elementary schools end up looking like a patch-work quilt? The students believe the future and well being of this community depends on whether we have good or just satisfactory schools. And a sure sign of inadequate schools is crowding.

City DPW Activities

By Supt. Joseph Bida

The past week found the department seeding around Kellogg Park, making a flower box, and planting tulip bulbs.

The department handled one funeral at Riverside Cemetery. One 1" water tap was installed at 1470 Woodland Place.

The Heath Tree Service, who does city work, removed several stumps from trees that were cut down previously, at the departments request.

This week, Public Works personnel completed Coolidge Street with salt and gravel and it is now open to traffic. Workers also continued picking up leaves the past week, working from 7:00 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. each day. Also, because there were many leaves over last week, they worked Saturday.

It was my feeling because of the nice weather that we should take advantage of it. If we did get any rain Public Works would have many problems with catch basins.

We hope next week should wind up the leaf problem. This week's cost was $1,107.93 and, so far this season, the cost has been about $2,963.87. One of the Public Works Department men, Herbert Canaday, while picking up leaves on Wednesday evening, was overcome by dust because of his Asthmatic Condition and had to be rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital. The Fire Department was called with their rescuer.

We in the Public Works Department would like to thank Dr. Steiner for his help as a passer-by in rendering service to Canaday. The latest report on Canaday is that he has been released from the hospital and is expected to be back to work on Monday.

As we all know the Christmas Season will soon be here and in the near future the department will start putting up decorations.

MEDICINE CHEST "LEFTOVERS"

There's but one good place in the home for "leftovers." That's the refrigerator—and the "leftovers" should be foods, not medicines.

Medicine chest "leftovers" are risky at best, and often downright dangerous. The medicine your physician prescribed a year or so ago was intended to be used then, not now. Avoid serious danger—dump old medicine at once.

Each illness requires scientific diagnosis—and, usually, specialized medicine is indicated.

See your physician. Let him decide what's best. Call on us to provide your medication.

American Legion Auxiliary

November is membership month in the American Legion Auxiliary. More members are wanted and needed to help make a success of Auxiliary programs.

November is also the month of Veterans Day and of Thanksgiving Day. Veterans' Day is the American Legion's Day. Much is remembered and thought about, especially of those who lost their lives.

November is when the Auxiliary makes preparations for the Christmas project—the gift shops in the hospitals. A vast Christmas shopping project is being completed this month by the women of the American Legion Auxiliary at work throughout the country in behalf of disabled war veterans, according to Mrs. Fern Burleson, rehabilitation chairman of Passage-Gayde Unit of the Auxiliary.

"This year the Auxiliary is buying gifts for the families of some 140,000 hospitalized veterans," explained Mrs. Burleson. "The cost will be in the neighborhood of $400,000. The gifts will be distributed through approximately 200 Christmas gift shops operated in hospitals of the Veterans Administration and other hospitals where veterans are under care."

Plans for the gift shops are now being finalized by state organizations of the Auxiliary throughout the country. Our Unit has completed their shopping list which consists of clothes, dolls, and a few other items. There are no cash registers in the Auxiliary shops. Everything is free for the sick and disabled veterans, including gift wrapping and mailing to their homes.

Post Entertainment Chairman Bob Richter and Auxiliary Chairman Marge Hoeft would like to thank everyone for their help with the Halloween Party. Both the children's afternoon party and the adult evening party were successes.

About 30 children attended the afternoon party. Winners of prizes were: Terry Hewer first prize, Shannon Cannady second prize, Doris Hoelscher third.

Everyone had a terrific time at the adult evening party and the music by the "Suburbanites" was wonderful. The prize winners in the Couples Event are first prize Dorothy and Ernie Koi, second prize Paul and Barbara Denki, and in the Singles Event are first prize Ray Gardner, second prize Betty Richter, third prize Virginia Overmyer, fourth prize Lillian Kinghorn. The door prize was won by Harry and Fern Burleson and the Auxiliary raffle won by Norma Marks.

In observance of Veterans Week beginning Nov. 8 through 14, the Post has planned a potluck supper on Sunday, Nov. 8 at 2 p.m. with the Ex-Servicemens Club. Post and Auxiliary members and their families are asked to bring their table service and a good-sized dish to pass. The meat will be furnished by our Post Commander and his wife.

Don't forget on Wednesday, Nov. 11 at 8 p.m. at the Post Home, the Auxiliary is sponsoring a card party. The donation is $1.00. There will be table and door prizes and a dessert.

Saturday, Nov. 14 is our annual Feather Party. Come out, have a good time and win your Thanksgiving bird. Always a winner, and lots of them plus loads of fun and excitement. See you then.

(Continued from page 1) hearing on traffic problems there, commissioners decided to wait until the next regular meeting, Nov. 16 to make a final decision.

The public hearing was held following several week's discussions by Commissioners on ways to prevent accidents at the corner caused by obstructed vision of cars coming onto or across Starkweather at Liberty.

A letter signed by the principal and 12 teachers at Starkweather School, urged installation of a traffic light at the corner to protect school children.

SEVERAL residents expressed the opinion that speeding was the major problem on Starkweather St. They also said that cars should not be allowed to park all day in the area.

Lon Dickerson, of Dickerson's Market, expressed approval of a traffic light installation because it would eliminate the need for taking away parking in the immediate area. He said people want to park as close to the stores as possible and suggested eliminating all day parking in the area.

Fisher said he didn't think a traffic signal would clear the vision and added one wouldn't necessarily prevent accidents.

Unanimous approval by Commissioners was given to a motion authorizing City Manager to take bids on radar unit for the Plymouth Police department to aid in enforcing speed limits.

Commissioners also authorized bid-taking on two heavy-duty trucks and a water truck for the Department of Public Works.

City Manager and City Attorney were authorized to meet with J & H Trucking

Cub Leaders Set Pow-Wow

What's worth more than money these days? Among other things, says Scout leaders of the Detroit Area Council, are the ideas that hundreds of Cub Scout leaders from Detroit area communities will receive when they take part in one of three special Pow-Wow training courses to be held this Saturday, November 7, from 1:00 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Expected to attend from Plymouth is John Rudloff of 41008 Greenbriar Ln.

The three sessions for Cub Scout leaders - one at Southfield High School, 24675 Lasher Road, Southfield; one at Parcels Junior High School, 20600 Mack, Grosse Pointe Woods; and the third one at Cherry Hill High School, Avondale at Harrington, Inkster - will be staffed by scores of volunteer and professional Scouters who will lead the themecraft, pack administration, Webelos den, ceremonies and games sessions that will be covered in detail at each of the three Pow-Wows.

Cub leaders are asked to register between 11:30 a.m. and 12:50 p.m., so they will have ample time to see the Midway exhibits area at each of the Pow-Wows. Included in each midway will be such "how-to-make-it-yourself" items as ceremony boards, handicraft ideas, decorations, and favorite games.

The Pow-Wow itself will begin at 1 p.m. with a general meeting for all taking part. Following the general meeting the Cub leaders - men and women - will meet in one of the special interest meetings mentioned above. Cub Packs in our community are asked to have a minimum of two adult leaders in each of the five sessions, so that they may return home and share the ideas and knowledge they have gained with others in the Pack.

J. A. Seeks Teens For its Program

Interested in learning how the American free enterprise system works? Want to set up your own company and sell a product?

High school juniors and seniors interested in learning about business and how companies operate may still join this year's Junior Achievement (J.A.) program.

Plymouth's office is located at 585 W. Ann Arbor Tr., or you may phone the coordinator Jack MacDonald, GL 3-2880, for further information.

Companies are formed each fall with teens being divided into groups of 20, assigned a team of volunteer advisers from business and industry and incorporated under regulations similar to the laws of Michigan.

Each group elects officers, sells stock and produces a product. They meet one evening a week from 7-9 p.m. and keep business records, conduct board of directors, meetings, prepare advertising and selling campaign and operate like big businesses.

They are also invited to attend businessmen's functions. In May, companies are liquidated and stockholders are sent a published report of the company's standing.

There are 401 miniature J. A. companies established this year.

Use Leaves and Garden Materials To Make Compost

This fall save the leaves and garden materials when you cut back perennials and pull the dead annuals. Make a compost pile. Loamy soil with clay, silt, and sand mixture is ideal for most plants.

Heavy clay soil can be improved by addition of peat moss, well rotted decaying leaves or other organic matter. Sandy soil can be improved the same way.

Composting is a process of rotting the leaves so that they make good organic materials to add to the garden soil. The sides of the pile may be either concrete blocks or just wire stretched between posts to make a frame. You may even dig a pit in the earth. If you dig a pit, save the soil, you can use it later in the compost pile.

Start with six to eight inches of leaves or other vegetation and put on a thin layer of soil. Then spread a few handfuls of balanced lawn fertilizer. If manure is available, spread a layer of several inches over this and wet it down. A handful of lime should be used after each set of layers. Repeat this process again making layer after layer.

Make the top of the pile dish shape to hold water and try to locate it behind screening shrubbery since it is not the most attractive thing to decorate ones garden. Locate it well away from the house because of this and odors which may occur.

Grass clippings and other garden refuse may be used in the pile. But don't use diseased plant material as this will favor the spread of disease when using the compost in the garden. Tomato and bean plants are particularly bad in this respect. They are particularly susceptible to wilt and virus diseases. The best place for tomato and bean plants is the bonfire or trash barrel.

Compost will make an excellent material for potting house plants and a round choice perennials for top-dressing.

The final section to be opened is 1 1/2 miles of the Lodge Freeway from Greenfield south of Eight Mile north to Nine Mile. This section cost nearly $9 million to construct, including $2,508,484 for the tri-level Eight Mile Lodge Interchange. The opening also signals completion of the $3.5 million Southfield-Nine Mile Road-John C. Lodge Interchange, the final section of the 14-mile-long Southfield Freeway. ## Water-Winter Wonderland?

Brightly colored, blue and gold 1965 Michigan license plates went on sale early this week and, frankly, they are a little too much.

It would seem that some clunkers at the state level have nothing better to do than daydream and come up with hackneyed slogans for Michiganians to carry across the nation on their automobiles.

The Madison Avenue mentality, not content with ruining the leisure hours we spend squatting in front of the idiot box, has extended its kindergarten sloganeering efforts to the Secretary of State's domain.

Apparently under the impression that simplicity would never do, some unknown clown with tourist dollars in his eyes took a reasonably presentable line and clogged it up with the addition of another word.

Not only did he mess up the cadence of "Water Wonderland," the addition of the word "winter" fouled up the balanced appearance of the plate itself.

Actually, though, if the trend continues — we can think up some dandy additions. Consider, in the event that George Romney is re-elected by the time you read this, "Womney's Water Winter Wonderland."

Or tongue twisters like, "Wilbur wooed Wilma in a Water Winter Wonderland."

Dorothy Parker, in book reviews, used to refer to herself as "Constant Reader." Once, after perusing a particularly childish volume for tots, she came up with a comment that sums up our feeling about the new license plate slogan.

"'Tonstant weader,'" she noted, "almost frowed up." She's wight. Things have gone a wittle too far.

According to local police, Halloween was a notable event here in The Plymouth Community. Law enforcement officials, beefed up for an evening of complaints about youthful pranksters, found themselves pretty much twiddling their thumbs.

In fact, it was one of the duller evenings of the year.

A survey of the downtown business district on the morning-after-the-night-before revealed that few, if any, windows had been soaped and the malicious destruction that — in some quarters — has come to be associated with the witching eve, was virtually nil.

One officer, referring to a nearby community, said thoughtless goblins had gone hog wild.

"There's soap on top of wax and wax on top of soap," he noted. "It'll take somebody a week to clean those windows."

On the other hand, maybe it's just that local kids decided there were better ways to spend an evening.

We prefer the latter theory.

Adolescents, for all the knocking they take from their seniors, are probably more thoughtful and perceptive than the generation that preceded them.

While it shouldn't be necessary to commend people for avoiding what they shouldn't do in the first place, we think Plymouth kids deserve some sort of note for minding their own business on Oct. 31.

It was a different story in many communities.

Farewell to refuse container

The Plymouth business district apparently bid a final farewell last week to the portable refuse container installed in the city's central parking lot on a trial basis.

After charging that local merchants were not co-operating in its use, the city's refuse contractor hauled the unit away together with a sizeable heap of refuse scattered around it.

To back up their contention that businessmen were not breaking cardboard boxes down before placing them in the container, the contractors collapsed the load of trash it contained, added the boxes which had surrounded it and came up with a half loaded unit.

This week, it was announced that the large, metal box had been leased to a local industry.

Prior to its removal, city officials were contemplating use on a lease basis. Outright purchase would cost $2,000. In addition, a new contract seems to be in the offing which would allow for 300 gallons of refuse per week for each business in Plymouth.

The individual businessman would be obligated, as in other cities, to pay for trash removal in excess of the 300 gallon figure.

Since installation of the portable unit on a trial basis, this newspaper has urged retention of it in the central parking lot. Properly utilized, it would have done much to improve the appearance of the area and, at the same time, cut collection costs. We hate to see a return of trash barrels. They are unsightly and messy.

Once again, we would urge that an effort be made to improve collection procedures in the parking lot. The portable container still seems to be the most efficient way of achieving both proper disposal and better appearance of the area.

We'd like to see it back.

Should be torn down

Slightly more than a month ago, The Plymouth Mail carried a story on "glue sniffing" — a practice in which some of this community's youngsters are engaging.

One of the most popular sites for kids who would fly high on plastic cement fumes is a deserted building behind a supermarket on Plymouth's Main Street.

The structure is windowless, doorless and inherently dangerous. Not only does it present a secluded location for glue sniffing, it is a potential firetrap.

City officials have already discussed condemnation of the building.

We would support any move in this direction.

While a distinct minority of Plymouth's youth is using the site, it should be razed before someone gets in serious trouble or becomes injured.

Its removal would eliminate both an eyesore and a community hazard.

In the course of going over some of the venom conjured up during the now concluded political campaign, one could easily be led to ask what happened to America's perspective and sense of humor.

Too late for publication last week, however, an item floated in with the morning mail that restored my faith in our native ability to distill fun from unlikely situations.

Sent to The Plymouth Mail by a Plymouth drug-gist, the piece was inherited from another local resident who prefers to remain nameless. Copied, with a few changes, from the pages of an agricultural publication, "The Prairie Farmer," the essay follows:

"I reckon the next few days will be a good time to close down the radio an' TV, put a lock on the mailbox, an' go set in the nice warm autumn sun an' meditate on the many times the country has went to the dogs without gettin' there.

"The candidates for office hev said about all they kin say that's worth while. All you kin learn about a candidate from now on is how long it takes even a good man to make a fool of hisself if he keeps right on spoutin' after he has run out of things to say.

"There'll be an awful lot of foolish promises an' dead cats to bury after this election.

"An' speakin' of dead cats, there ain't nothin' deader than a defeated candidate lookin' at you from a big billboard or an election poster.

"There oughter be a law to set aside enuf money to pervide a decent burial for all campaign literature an' the like.

"I take comfort from knowin' we hev beat each other bloody every four years for as long as I kin remember an' come out of it in fair shape. During that time three generations of young folks, includin' my own, hev flirted with juvenile delinquency an' then turned into fair to middlin' citizens.

"Washington has allus been full of crooked politicians, but somehow they git the important work done whenever we are really in a pinch. Every so often we trade 'em in for a new batch, an' once in a while we put one behind bars, but in spite of it our country seems to be in purty good shape.

"Taxes is killin' us an' we are sore as boiled ows, but I don't see much property sold fer taxes. Education is gittin' so costly nobody kin afford to send his kids to school, but somehow the colleges and universities manage to be full to overflowin'."

"The international situation is terrible, but I notice we ain't buildin' bomb shelters as fast as we did some years ago.

"Our national debt is big enuf to choke an elephant, to say nothin' of a mule, an' our gold is growin' fins an' swimmin' across the seas; but smart businessmen are pourin' billions into new skyscrapers an' factories so they kin take better advantage of America's glorious future.

"This may not be the best of all possible worlds, but it has done right well by most of us an' I see no reason not to make full use of all the good things around me.

"Natcherly I will hev to do my duty on election day. I'll jest go to the polls, look over the list of scoundrels on the ballot an' pick the best ones. Then I will take my fishin' pole in hand, stroll down to my pond an' see if I kin ketch me a blue-gill or two.

"If the fish don't bite, that's all right too on account of the number of fish I ketch ain't too important in my life."

The highest of distinctions is service to others.

'THE SILENCE' PORNOGRAPHY OR MASTERPIECE?

There is no doubt that this film contains more overt sexuality than we have seen on screen. The fascinating question is, however, how much of it is communicated to the viewer and how much of it offends. Certainly the prudish and even the modest may be repelled by the several scenes of sexual gratification in which the two sisters indulge, but even they would be hard put to argue that these exemplify gratuitous eroticism on Bergman's part or are irrelevant to the probing character studies he has set for himself.

African Library Similar to Plymouth's Dunning-Hough

By Lon Dickerson

Most Peace Corps Volunteers are teachers, rural development workers, or medical technicians. Scattered throughout the world there are an additional handful of volunteers whose work is in different areas. In Sierra Leone there are five of us who fall in the latter category.

Three of us are librarians, one is a museum curator, and one is a director for the country's television station.

Several of the teaching volunteers are asked to be the school librarian in their free time. But for me this is my full time job. Since arriving in Freetown, I have worked in the National Library and at a secondary school library.

I also spent a few days at Njala University which is located about 125 miles southeast of Freetown.

The National Library only recently began to develop as a national institution. Today it houses a collection of approximately 50,000 volumes.

It is staffed by three trained librarians, four partially trained librarians, and numerous clerks. Five additional people are presently training in England and Ghana. This summer a Sierra Leonean assumed the position of head librarian.

This post was previously filled by a British expatriate. The building, only completed in January, is a two-story structure designed by a Sierra Leonean architect.

It is here that my first responsibilities were centered.

Mrs. Ethel Hill, one of the librarians in our group, and myself were given the task of organizing and filing United Nations documents.

During the time we spent at the national library I began to realize that it was in many aspects similar to the Dunning-Hough Library in Plymouth. The staff is competent, it is well equipped and the collection is rapidly growing.

It is well on its way to becoming a modern library of which the country can be proud.

It is in the school libraries that the greatest challenge is to be found. There is a shortage of trained librarians in the country, and the school libraries are hardest hit by this deficiency.

Thus, after completing our work on the U.N. documents, we asked to be sent to one of these libraries for a few days.

By American standards the library we chose was poorly organized. It lacked an adequate card catalog and there was a huge backlog of uncataloged books. Seven working days later we had partially solved some of these problems and made improvements in additional areas.

The school library was without bookends, and high costs prohibited their purchase. So we cut bricks lengthwise, and use them as bookends. No white ink was available so we used white paint for marking books.

We initiated the use of date due slips. By installing bulletin boards, we attempted to add more of a library atmosphere to the room. We tried to use African art to its fullest advantage. Later we hope to be able to train a staff member to manage the library. And eventually we anticipate visiting all the school libraries in the Freetown area.

The purpose of the trip to Njala University was to inspect the library there. The university only commenced instruction this fall. And presently a team of educators from the University of Illinois is serving the institution as advisors. As with all schools when they start, much work remains to be done; but there is great potential. The results of the inspection indicated that a full time, trained librarian is needed.

Mrs. Hill has volunteered to serve in that capacity until such a person can fill the post permanently.

As soon as the rainy season ends and the roads become passable (near the end of October) I will begin touring the country in a bookmobile. It will visit primary schools three times a year, supplying each with a rotating collection of books. When time permits, I will also be inspecting secondary school libraries.

My work, thus far, has been rewarding.

It is the same work which is carried on in libraries everywhere. But, here in Sierra Leone, I'm involved in the early stages of library development and there are many opportunities for individual expression.

I know that the work-I help execute will set a pattern for many years to come.

Teens: Criticized, Defined Denounced and Adored

By Anna Jung

A prime topic of conversation these days is the adolescent and his world. He is criticized, defined, denounced and adored. His behavior is deplored and applauded. His appearance evokes frowns and scowls in some, envy and emulation in others.

What is an adolescent?
According to my dictionary an adolescent is a girl between the ages of 12 and 21, or a boy between the ages of 14 and 25.

But mine is an old dictionary and it does not define the word in terms of its psychological components.

Adolescence is that period of life during which the boy or girl achieves sexual maturity and the capacity for self-propagation; it is the age of final establishment of a dominant positive ego identity.

It is also the time of life when impulses outreach the capacity for self-control; when judgement is impaired by the psychological pressure to be one of the gang.

The adolescent is more confident and more fearful than he has ever been or ever will be again. He is caught in the conflict of his need to be dependent and his wish for independence.

He basks in the light of self-discovery and cringes in the shadows of self-doubt.

Among the clients in family counseling agencies are many parents of adolescents, parents who are troubled by their children's rebellion and defiance; their atrocious dress and mannerisms; their slang, their driving habits, their hair-styles.

In fact, some parents cannot find one positive trait in their adolescent children.

On the other side — and it is way on the other side — we have the teenagers who are having as much trouble with their parents as the parents are having with their children. The adolescents' complaints are that parents are inconsistent, dictatorial, unreasonable in their expectations, and dishonest.

At times the caseworker feels as if she were caught in the middle between two warring enemies who are using as weapons all the hurtful, poisonous words they have at their command.

How does it happen that a parent seems to hate the child who was the product of the parent's love for his mate?

A well-known friend of adolescent boys has for many years used as his motto the phrase: "There's no such thing as a bad boy".

I can say with equal conviction: "There's no such thing as a bad parent".

There are troubled parents, unhappy parents, emotionally sick parents; but I have never met a parent who consciously and deliberately wanted to be cruel to his child. The most hostile parent may be completely convinced that the punishment he is inflicting on the child is for the good of the child.

Sometimes a parent punishes a child for the parent's own adolescent transgressions about which he still feels guilty.

This is more likely to happen to an adolescent child, who is at an age when he could repeat the parent's transgression.

Mrs. M. was such a mother, and Sally, who was 15 at the time, couldn't understand what she had done that her mother should hate her so.

Call Northville State Hospital to Remember Patients

Each year at this season Northville State Hospital receives requests from individuals and groups interested in remembering the patients at the hospital — patients who otherwise are "forgotten" by relatives and friends.

Through a call to the hospital's Community Relations Department, FI 9-1800, a donor can obtain general directions and a specific patient's request for Christmas — usually three choices by the patient in the $1.50 - $2 range, of which one can be chosen. Some individuals ask to contribute to our hospital's Christmas Fund with which general gifts can be purchased in advance by volunteers. Such general gifts as cigarettes, stretch socks, handkerchiefs, and candy are utilized on Christmas Day, when, in spite of every best effort, we learn of patients who have received no gifts. For some of these patients, the anticipation by patient and staff members for a Christmas leave with his family may have ended in disappointment. The availability, then, of general gifts can be most important.
