

See Slim Turnout Monday - Here are Local Hopefuls

A slight turnout is expected next Monday, Feb. 15, when Plymouth area voters will go to the polls to choose candidates for the 14th State Senatorial District for a special election to be held on April 5. The special votes are being held to fill the vacancy created by the sudden December death of State Senator-Elect Paul M. Chandler of Livonia.

In addition, City of Plymouth voters will narrow a three-man field for the office of municipal judge down to two candidates. A primary is not being held for City Commission hopefuls because only seven candidates are competing for the four vacancies, making a primary election unnecessary.

A meager turnout ranging from 12 to 15 per cent of local voters was forecast by Plymouth Township Clerk John D. McEwen and the office of City Clerk Richard Shafer. No local candidates or issues will appear on the ballot in the Township.

The three candidates for Plymouth Municipal Judge are J. Rusling Cutler, Edward F. Draugelis and Clifford H. Manwaring, all attorneys. Their backgrounds follow:

J. Rusling Cutler
Cutler, 55, has lived in Plymouth since 1924, coming here from Detroit. He opened a law office here in January, 1933.

He is a graduate of Ply-

A member of the Suburban Bar Association of Wayne County and the Michigan Bar Association, Cutler also belongs to the Plymouth Elks Lodge, the Plymouth Lions Club and is a member of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce.

Draugelis is a member of the American Society of International Law, the National Association of Municipal Law Officers and the Michigan, City of Detroit and Suburban Bar Associations.

He is a former member of Plymouth Kiwanis and a past director of the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce. Draugelis has served as city attorney for the City of Plymouth since 1961.

Other activities include membership on the Fall Festival Steering Committee, United Nations Day Chairman and Michigan Week Chairman. He also serves as legal counsel for Schoolcraft Community College and Northville Township.

In law practice in Plymouth since December, 1960, Draugelis formed a partnership with John Ashton in January of this year.

Clifford H. Manwaring
Manwaring, 59, came to Plymouth in 1939. He has been in law practice here since 1950.

9 Hopefuls In Race for State Senate

A full field of candidates, three Democrats and six Republicans, will produce the candidates for State Senator from the 14th District next Monday when Plymouth Community voters cast their ballots in a special primary election.

Republican candidates include George T. Ames of Novi; Allen C. Ingle of Farmington; Paul A. Kern, Jr. of Orchard Lake; Thomas J. McHugh of Sylvan Lake, Pontiac; Fitzhugh Prescott of Farmington; and former State Senator Farrell E. Roberts of W. Bloomfield Township.

Democratic hopefuls are John H. Burke of Farmington; Mrs. Elsie Gilmore of Livonia and Livonia City Councilman Edward H. McNamara. These are the candidates and their backgrounds:

County Democratic Committee.
When former Governor G. Mennen Williams appointed Theodore Bohn to the circuit court bench, Mrs. Gilmore became acting County Democratic Chairman in 1955. In 1961, she resigned the post. She is rated "well qualified" by The Civic Searchlight.

Edward H. McNamara
McNamara, 38, currently serves as a Livonia City Councilman and Wayne County Supervisor. A manager for Michigan Bell Telephone Company, he holds a Ph.D. degree in political science from the University of Detroit.

As a former member of the Dearborn Township School Board, McNamara served for five years, two of them as president. He is a past vice president of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce.

FARRAND PARENTS spokesman Alex Howell, left, confronts School Board President Gerald Fischer with a series of questions concerning overcrowded conditions at the Farrand Elementary School in Lake Pointe. The Monday night meeting was moved into the library of Junior High-East after about 50 parents arrived to hear the proceedings. Howell asked questions from a prepared sheet and indicated after the meeting that he had 500 signatures on a petition seeking a re-evaluation of the school's financing system.

School Board and 50 Parents Meet

More than 50 Farrand Elementary School area parents went before the Plymouth Board of Education Monday night and posed a series of questions about the board's school plans for the Lake Pointe Area.

The parents group was organized recently to protest undesirable conditions in the Farrand Elementary School. (See story, Page one, Section C)

Alex C. Howell of 41001 Greenbrook Lane acted as spokesman for the group. He opened his remarks to board president Gerald Fischer, saying:

"We didn't come as an antagonistic or belligerent group. But there are 649 children in the Farrand school not getting an adequate education. It's overcrowded now and it was three years ago."

Reading from a printed sheet Howell asked:

"We would like to know just what the board's plans are for the Farrand area."

School Board president Fischer replied that they were aware of the problems but that nothing could be done to expedite completion of the addition to Farrand.

The addition was slated for completion in mid-February but now will not be done until April 15.

WHEN ASKED by Howell if churches or mobile units were being considered Fischer said, no, because the board had planned to have the addition done. He noted:

"We're moving elementary construction as fast as possible. Growth there was faster than any of us had anticipated."

Spokesman Howell, again reading from a printed sheet, asked about additional sites and schools in the Lake Pointe area. Fischer replied:

"We always knew we would need another school there and we're actually negotiating on that. It will be completed in the fall of 1966."

Howell challenged that and said:

"But is there a plan — a five year plan. It looks like we're going to have two overcrowded schools out there."

"I'm not so sure of that," replied Fischer.

Sites were discussed and the parents group was told that the board was negotiating on several sites they would remain confidential until finalized. Howell continued to press for details and said:

"From the figures I've seen there will be an additional 300 homes in the area occupied before 1966. These four and five bedroom homes will have at least two elementary children in school — that's over 600 children. The seven new classrooms at Farrand will not take care of this."

"IS OUR children-per-home ratio that high?" Fischer asked. Superintendent of Schools Russell Isbister noted that the first homes in the area produced only 83 children per home. Fischer then said:

"Your questions about projections in the Farrand area, I'm not too sure about. I cannot guarantee anything. I would be surprised if we didn't have space in the addition." Howell said:

"The way I see it, then, we'll see no change until 1966 in the plans."

"No," Fischer replied; "All disadvantages will be corrected when the addition is completed."

Strike Ends at Evans

A wildcat strike at Evans Products on Eckles Road east of Plymouth ended Sunday at midnight when about 900 workers of the United Steel Workers of America Local 2340 returned to work.

The strike had not been called by the union and was ended following a meeting of the workers on Friday morning at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Livonia. The meeting was called by Local President Walter Nagel.

The strike began Thursday, Jan. 28, when a handful of men walked off the evening shift in protest of disciplinary action taken against one of the employees. The action was a two-week suspension.

The rest of the shop employees, nearly 900, walked off the next day. Pickets were erected and an arbitration offer was declined by the employees.

ACCORDING to a company spokesman, the employees who walked off failed to follow grievance procedure outlined in the union contract.

This week, discussions between union officials and management are underway concerning the wildcat strike.

Married and the father of four children, Burke is a 1945 graduate of the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy with a B.S. degree. He attended Wayne State University and, in 1952, received his L.L.B. degree from the Detroit College of Law.

Burke is a member of the Michigan Bar Association, the Detroit Bar Association, the Farmington Democratic Club, the Parent-Teacher Guild and the Detroit College of Law Alumni Association.

He served with the U. S. Merchant Marines from 1943 to 1945 and the U. S. Navy from 1940 to 1943.

A resident of Farmington for the past eight and a half years, Burke moved there from Redford Township. He was an unsuccessful candidate in the Democratic primary for the 19th Congressional District last year, losing to Rep. Billie Farnum.

He is rated "well qualified" by The Civic Searchlight, a non-partisan organization.

Draugelis's Eligibility for Judgeship is Questioned

EDITOR'S NOTE: At the request of The Plymouth Mail Tuesday afternoon, Plymouth's State Representative, James Tierney (D) of Garden City, said he would ask for an opinion from the Attorney General of the State of Michigan on the candidacy of City Attorney Edward F. Draugelis for Municipal Judge.

Tierney said he would try to secure the opinion as quickly as possible. For the question that has been raised about Draugelis's eligibility, see the story below.

When the charter was written, Draugelis explained, state law specified a five-year residency requirement for candidates for municipal judge. The law, at that time said (M.S.A. 5.2107, Sec. 28):

"... That any city having a justice court and a police court or a justice court may, in, or by amendment to its charter provide for the abolishment of said courts and the consolidation of the powers, jurisdictions and duties of said courts into one (1) court to be presided over by one (1) judge or justice, who shall have been a resident of said city for five (5) years."

THURSDAY NIGHT: Assembly to Hear Lawmen on Rights

The Plymouth Assembly for Equal Opportunity will hear Plymouth Director of Public Safety Ken Fisher and Wayne County Sheriff Daniel Martin Thursday at the high school annex.

Their remarks are entitled "Law Enforcement — the Human Element."

The Thursday meeting is part of a series sponsored by the Assembly, which will conclude Feb. 25 with an address by Superintendent of Schools Russell Isbister.

Fisher said Monday that he intended to tell the assembly about his department. He said:

"I think I'll stay on the basic function of our department — to enforce all laws. That's our primary job." When asked what would happen when Negroes moved to Plymouth, Fisher said:

Set March School Election Following Citizens' Report

A formal resolution was approved by Plymouth School Board members Monday evening, setting March 29 as the date for a school district election, in the wake of a Citizens' Committee on School Finance report which recommended a $336,000 increase in 1965-66 operating expenses.

Presumably, the school district will seek voter approval of a millage issue at the March election. The committee, appointed in October 1964, held meetings regularly during November, December and January. They operated independently of the school board and, according to the report "based its recommendations on all available relevant facts. The committee has no axe to grind."

500 Names on School Petition

Spokesman for the disgruntled parents of children in the Farrant Elementary School, Alex Howell, indicated following the board meeting, Monday, that over 500 signatures had been collected on a petition questioning the school board's financing policies. The petition reads: "We, the undersigned residents of the Farrant Elementary School area, being concerned with the inadequate conditions provided for the education of our children, request your immediate attention and action regarding the present system of financing our rapidly expanding community." Howell indicated Monday night that nothing as yet had been done with the petition. He said: "We said we would come up here and ask these questions, and if they were answered we stop for now. Well, they were answered." Howell further indicated that the group would get together soon and decide what to do with the petition.

Wendell Smith of 14302 Shadywood, was chairman of the group and made the report before the school board and an estimated 50 parents, mostly from the Farrant school district.

The $336,000 is an estimate of requirements over and above what the schools are operating on this year. Breaking it down, the report earmarked $247,000 for increased enrollments, $32,500 for desirable program improvements and $56,000 for normal salary increases.

The committee further recommended that, in addition to the $336,000 requirements for operating expenses, provision be made for salary adjustments for all personnel of the school district.

Finally, the committee recommended that sufficient millage be proposed to the voters for their approval to pay for the proposed increases.

Following formal presentation of the report, a discussion of what the increase would cost in mills per tax dollar took place. School Board President Gerald Fischer and other board members were unwilling to estimate the millage and said they would have to wait until later to do it.

Speculation placed the millage at 3 mills, plus, for a two-year program. That's about $3 per thousand of assessed valuation.

Draugelis

(Continued from Page 1) state law has been amended, eliminating the five year requirement and specifying a 70-year age limit for candidates. The law now says of municipal courts: "to be presided over by one judge or justice, who shall be a qualified resident elector of the city in which election is sought..." (M.S.A. 5.2107, Sec. 28 as amended by Public Acts 1954, No. 75, eff. Aug. 13).

The city attorney bases his stand on two other provisions in state law pertaining to city charters. They follow: "No provision of any city charter shall conflict with or contravene the provisions of any general law of the state..." (M.S.A. 5.2116, charter provisions, conflict, Sec. 36).

"All charters heretofore formulated and all proceedings of charter commissions heretofore had under this act are hereby validated and made effectual so far as the same shall conform to and be within the provisions of this act as amended..." (M.S.A. 5.2117, Saving Clause, Sec. 37).

However, it appears that other Plymouth attorneys dispute Draugelis' interpretation of the law. The city's residency requirement, they argue, is not in conflict with and is merely supplemental to state law.

The Plymouth Mail contacted the office of Attorney General Frank Kelley in Lansing Monday to learn if an opinion had been handed down on a similar situation. Staff members of the Attorney General's office said, as far as they could determine, no opinion had ever been issued on the matter. Normally, they said, questions are referred to the City Attorney of the municipality involved.

Candidates for Judge Express Views

How should a municipal court be run? This was the general question that The Plymouth Mail put to the three candidates running for Municipal Judge in Plymouth. This is what they said.

J. Rusling Cutler Cutler said he had formed some very strong opinions during the eight years he served as judge from 1941 to 1949.

"Courts in which traffic cases and other petty offenses are heard," he said, "provide a forum for more people than all other courts combined; and, from the experience and impressions gained there, citizens form their opinions of all courts and of law enforcement generally."

"In fact," Cutler continued, "such courts are the only ones with which the average citizen ever has any actual contact..."

"No court," he pointed out, "has a more direct influence for good or evil on the creation of a respect or disregard for law..."

"The quality of justice administered at this level is a most important conditioner of public attitudes toward law and its enforcement."

Cutler said he felt it was highly essential that the people form a favorable impression of courts and the administration of justice.

"The conclusion is plain," he said, "that the first responsibility of the court should be to secure and maintain public respect for its integrity and honesty of purpose."

judge, Draugelis predicted, will become increasingly important with the elimination of the Justice of the Peace system in 1968, in accordance with the new Constitution.

With the increase in population in this area, and a corresponding increase in caseload, the city attorney said, will come additional problems

"I can and do propose to establish and publish a set of local court rules to govern the Plymouth Municipal Court," he said, "and to establish a method of pre-sentence investigation which will greatly assist me, if I am elected judge, in meeting out sentences which will be just and fair."

Draugelis said the sound use of probationary regulations can also be helpful in correcting the anti-social behavior of youthful offenders.

"In the final analysis, however," he noted, "each lawyer in this race will be judged, as he should be, on his qualifications for the position, rather than any statement of purpose or intent which he might make."

Clifford H. Manwaring One of the prime qualities required for a judge, Manwaring said, is the ability to leave his emotions at home.

The municipal court, he pointed out, is a part of law enforcement and it is the duty of the judge to stand between the police and the people.

"Theoretically," Manwaring said, "much of our punishment is a carryover from the middle ages." He said there are three elements in criminal law: (1) Punishment. (2) Making an individual an example to others. (3) Rehabilitation.

For some people, he said, just to be stopped and warned or to pay a traffic ticket is punishment enough. In other cases, a fine must be levied in court. In extreme cases, persons must be sent to jail.

Referring to juvenile problems and, specifically, traffic enforcement, Manwaring said he felt it was important that young people be told that an automobile is not a toy.

"We have one problem out here," he commented, "cooperation with the juvenile court."

"Offenses which we considered nothing in Detroit," Manwaring said the court should endeavor to emphasize that people have duties, in addition to their rights.

Senate Candidates Express Views

Following are views expressed by candidates for State Senator from the 14th District:

DEMOCRATS Elsie Gilmore - "I would believe that the Democratic party program of broadening the base for education, mental health and traffic safety will become part of the legislative program."

Candidate Gilmore also believes bills will be coming up for bettering county government and that in the large metropolitan counties officials should be elected on a partisan basis. On education she thinks equalization is the most important factor in solving current needs. Finally, on annexation, she feels we need a conference of citizens from both Plymouth and Livonia to get people's views.

EDWARD H. McNAMARA "It's time we take Michigan's financial system out of the horse and buggy days... we need to find other income producing sources." McNamara calls for a complete tax overhaul, "from top to bottom." Further, candidate McNamara has said: "I plan to go to Lansing as the voice and conscience of suburbanites all over the district. That will be the philosophy of my campaign."

McNamara also pledged support for increased state aid to education and feels his experience as a Livonia City-Councilman has qualified him and given him a practical knowledge no other candidate has.

John H. Burke - No comments were available from Burke as The Mail went to press.

REPUBLICANS George T. Ames - Ames has said he advocates fiscal reform and has been a proponent of a New Hampshire type sweepstakes for Michigan as a source of revenue for aid to education.

Fitzhugh Prescott - When Prescott ran in August, he expressed a belief in freedom within the law, saying: "I believe in freedom for all within the law. I believe in free rights, within the law. I believe in free thought within the law."

Allen C. Ingle - Ingle feels that a senator should go to Lansing. Analyze each bill and study it as to how it affects his district. Ingle has also, some out against county home rule and any new state income tax. With the new constitution, we have to wait until governmental agencies are consolidated and costs are seen before a discussion of fiscal reform can take place. Further, he said:

"I think we are doing a lot of talking about senior citizens and getting no action." At the last session the laws on tax exemptions for veterans were changed and their taxes went up. Ingle feels these people need some relief on their taxes.

Farrell Roberts - Has said he will support a positive legislative program and has been a consistent supporter of Governor Romney. He sponsored the Community Mental Health Bill. As The Mail went to press, Roberts had not completed his position paper.

Paul A. Kern - "The great issue of our times is the preservation of our God-given and individual rights; and to retain and defend our local and state powers against the creeping paralysis of national socialism." Kern has attacked "big brother" government and government intervention in private and business affairs. Kern opposes state income tax and would work to lower federal income tax. He seeks a balanced budget and a reduction in property taxes.

Thomas J. McHugh - McHugh opposes change in county government just for the sake of change and would change only if shown a better way of running affairs. He wants Republicans to take an active part in drafting tax relief program for senior citizens, and admits the state needs tax reform. He also has said:

"If income tax becomes necessary, then I would work to see that we have proper safeguards. This includes placing a ceiling on tax percentage."

THE SCHOOL board pay-as-you-go plan - it's hard for me to see how this can work. Isn't there the possibility we might have to go to bonding? Luterbach was told that the board was putting itself in a good financial position by this type of financing, because it was saving substantially on interest. The group was also told that the five year plan approved in November 1963 had been accelerated to meet mushrooming growth.

"I think you are exaggerating it extensively," Fischer anyway, we had a good contractor, a good architect... what more can a school board do? What can we do about bad weather?"

Howell noted that these things should have been taken into account and pointed out that builder Fred Greenspan had put up a sign saying he would build 1,200 homes in the Lake Pointe area.

The final question of the evening, and the question raised by a petition circulated in the Lake Pointe area, concerned the school financing system.

Township Trustee Richard Luterbach, a Lake Pointe resident, took the floor and said:

"The Old Timer" "Prosperity is something you feel, fold and mail to Washington."

Board of Ed. OK's $6,600 Budget Overrun

An "authorized overrun" of $6,600 in the budget to pay for new teachers just hired, was approved by the Plymouth Community Board of Education Monday evening, and the go ahead was given on the short-term $750,000 bonding issue - the next borrowing on the building and site sinking fund.

Following a report by the Advisory Committee on School Finance Monday night at the school board's regular meeting, March 29 was set as a date for a special election - an election where school officials will presumably seek millage to finance the estimated $336,000 recommended by the Committee.

March 1 was set as the deadline to register. In other action, the board approved the appointment of four new teachers.

In final action the board approved conference attendance for Marion Breed, of the Starkweather School, to go to a reading workshop at N. Illinois University in early March, and for Superintendent Russell Isbister to attend the American Association of School Administrators in Atlantic City next week.

Ergonomics - New Science Of Automobile Safety

There's a new science that Americans will be reading more and more about over the next few years - ergonomics.

It's a word that will appear whenever the subject of automobile safety and comfort comes under discussion. For new car buyers the ergonomic rating of the model they want will be just as important a factor as the car's speed, good looks and performance.

Well, what is ergonomics? It means two things - and both are essential to the car driver and his passengers on today's traffic-choked highways.

It's the study of your reaction to the controls inside your car and to the posture, shape and style of its seating. In blunter language, ergonomics is your weapon against death on the road.

ERGONOMIC studies are the logical step after seatbelts, padded dashes, and similar safety refinements. Until now, the auto safety field has been relatively unexplored.

But it's not enough to equip today's cars with safety harnesses, padding and big brakes. The mounting highway deaths in this country - 1,410 in a recent month, or more than the U.S. Marine Corps lost in the entire Korean War testify to that.

It was obvious by the end of the 1950's that the problem of safety in a car was one that had to be tackled scientifically. And that's how ergonomics came into being.

Safety is the task of the ergonomists. They try to design the dashboard instruments so they will not distract the driver, and the seats so they give not just support but safety and a firm grip in cornering at high speeds.

An instrument panel needs only three dials - a temperature gauge, a fuel gauge, and a speedometer; ergonomists' research has proved other items such as ammeters are distracting. Instead, they recommend warning lights that will flash only when either system is not functioning.

The Newcomer's Club knitting group met Feb. 2, in the home of Mrs. J. Gorman, 41355 Ivywood Lane. Joining the group for the first time was Mrs. E. Lenks, 41650 Riveroaks. Also attending the meeting was Mrs. G. Stevens, 40562 Pinetree Rd.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bevier, 40718 Pinetree Rd., were entertained at a bridge party on Jan. 30. The host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Pietila, of Garden City.

Mrs. Norbert Rickelmann returned from a two month stay in Nova Scotia in time to celebrate her birthday, Feb. 2, with her twin sister, Mrs. Daniel Doherty, 40480 Orangelawn Rd. The Dohertys and their three children, Patty, 3 1/2-years-old, Danny, two, and Tommy, seven months, were hosts to Mrs. Rickelmann, her sons, Andy, five, and Freddy, four, and her daughter, Ginny, two, for the day. The celebration was climaxed by a family birthday dinner.

At Newcomer's Club buffet luncheon Feb. 4 there was a fashion

Party, with gloves, jewelry, an approximately 200 spring hats available to try on and buy, as the club's money making event for the year.

Attending from Salem Square were Mrs. Richard B. Braun, 40546 Pinetree Rd., Mrs. William Bevier, 40718 Pinetree Rd., Mrs. John Bulmer, 40483 Orangelawn Rd., and Mrs. Gerald Stevens, 40562 Pinetree Rd. The next luncheon will be held March 4, at Dunrovin Country Club.

Mrs. Marvin Powell, 9631 Terry St., attended a gathering of her monthly Pinochle club on Feb. 3 in the home of Mrs. Bernard Stankiewicz, Glendale Ave. Prizes were given to the winners, and the hostess, who is of Italian extraction, treated her guests to homemade pizzas.

On Feb. 3, Mrs. Edward Dobias, 40544 Orangelawn Rd., underwent surgery at Ridgewood Hospital in Ypsilanti. According to Mr. Dobias, his wife is doing fine and should be home by the end of the week.

"Buttons," a French poodle belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Greenleaf, 40418 Pinetree Rd., gave birth to a litter of four puppies on Jan. 29.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hutton, 9671 Russell St., entertained Mrs. Hutton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rubin Higgins, and her brothers, John and R. J., from Jan. 24-27. Formerly from Pontiac, the Higginses stopped off to visit their daughter and her family enroute to their new home in Temple Terrace, Fla., where Mr. Higgins will open the new Temple Terrace Bowling Lanes.

There are about 100,000 Europeans living in Mozambique, the Portuguese province on the east coast of Africa.

OPEN TUESDAY AND FRIDAY EVENINGS 'TIL 9 P.M.

Assembly to Hear

(Continued from Page 1) there is, is a kind of unknown. My theme will be law enforcement's position." Fisher noted that he might discuss the human element from the angles of public apathy and juvenile problems.

MARTIN SAID Monday he would discuss his department, the training of his men and the function of his office, and then throw it open to questions. He said.

"We're going to protect whoever or whatever is involved. We sent men down to Dearborn, and if it happens in Plymouth we're going to send spotters there and assist if possible." The meetings begin at 8:30 and are open to the public.

Franklin was responsible for the first American foundation, but other noted men followed his example in spectacular fashion. Andrew Carnegie believed it was a rich man's solemn duty to distribute his wealth — and did his duty to the tune of a third of a billion dollars! Among his bequests was the Carnegie Corporation, the Carnegie Institute of Technology, the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, even a Carnegie Hero Fund to reward those who risk their lives attempting to save the lives of others.

HENRY FORD's enormous legacies included social reform. He pioneered the eight-hour day and five-day week for employees. He also gave his name to the world's largest foundation, which last year distributed $233,405,000. Second largest is the Rockefeller Foundation, which spent $29,437,000. At last count there were more than 7300 U.S. foundations; the number has grown more than 87% since 1940.

Many humanitarians gave in a different manner — by establishing historic service organizations. In 1862, a Swiss named Henri Dunant suggested an international organization to care for war victims; his appeal bore fruit a year later in the International Committee of the Red Cross. Clara Barton, who spent those years nursing in Civil War hospitals, founded the American Red Cross in 1877. A modern "father to the poor" and the "hungry of many war-torn nations" was the late Herbert Hoover. In his role as coordinator of the food and clothing supplies sent to Europe in both world wars, it has been said that he saved the lives of more people than any other man in history.

HIGH on the list of great humanitarians would have to be the American people. Not only does large-scale volunteer community work flourish in the U.S., but our annual contributions to charity has been estimated in the neighborhood of $10 billion — an average of over $30 for every man, woman and child! Average citizen or man of wealth and prominence, the true humanitarian understands this classic description of charity:

"For I was an hungered, and ye gave me meat; I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger, and ye took me in; naked, and ye clothed me; I was sick, and ye visited me; I was in prison, and ye came unto me. . . . Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." (Matt. 25:35-40).

The History of the Humanitarians — From Bible's Job to Detroit's Henry Ford

"I was eyes to the blind, and feet was I to the lame. I was a father to the poor: and he cause which I knew not I searched out."

The speaker was one of the earliest recorded humanitarians — Job (Job 29:15-16.) Another Biblical man of good will was "a certain Samaritan" (Luke 10:33). Seeing a wounded man whom other passersby had ignored, he had compassion on him. And he went to him, and bound up his wounds — thereby making himself a symbol of charity through the ages.

The hero of a famous ancient legend — a young Roman soldier who divided his cloak with a shivering beggar, and later saw a vision of Christ clad in the same garment — is even in pagan times, sharing was considered a duty by leading citizens.

One of the first school endowment programs on record was established by Pliny the Younger, a first century Roman statesman and author who supported a school in his home town. Julius Caesar went into debt paying for public festivals out of his own pocket; returning from a successful military campaign in Africa, he distributed largess to the people.

ELIZABETH I. "Good Queen Bess," had more ambitious plans for sharing the wealth. A law of charitable trust, passed under her rule, safeguarded trust funds left to good causes — more than 300 years before the Ford Foundation! Elizabeth also encouraged the passage of a Poor Law, which levied compulsory taxes to be used to help the needy.

From its beginnings, the United States produced many

PHS Viewpoint:

Plymouth: Repulsive or Magnificent Community?

By Mike Ross

What exactly, if you've ever stopped to think about it, is your precise evaluation of Plymouth? This is the question I confronted a number of adults and students with that brought a myriad of answers.

From heaven on earth, to repulsive little backward town were the pictures given of our community. But, astoundingly, these comments ran drastically different depending on where the person came from, how long he or she has lived in Plymouth, and basic personality differences.

Some reactions took in the entire area and its population, like the junior girl who struck back with "As a 'hole' Plymouth stinks," and the young mother with, "the city is as decrepit as the original rock the Pilgrims were unfortunate enough to land on." But most people complained about the social make-up of the town.

A recent graduate of Plymouth that had lived in the north before moving here had this to say:

"I don't know about yours, but our neighbors are the nosiest in town. It's impossible to count how many times they have stood directly in the front window and at times even with binoculars watching our every move.

"I don't know if this is a sign of all people in Plymouth, but where I come from originally, people mind their own business and also are friendly along with it. But that leads into another topic... friendliness, which people here just don't have."

But, mixed with the derogatory remarks there were glowing reports also. A senior that moved here from the east fairly bubbled when she had the opportunity to tell what she thought.

"Plymouth is the most magnificent place on earth. Compared to the school I went to before, the students here are angels. The people almost spit in your eye out there, but here when an acquaintance sees you on the street, they almost invariably say 'Hello'."

Like the example above, most students related it down to other students or the school in general. It is the general acceptance of most PHS'ers that Plymouth High has always reflected the town and its moods, and for the last few years that reflection has been remarkably acute.

Students have been dividing and subdividing into groups according to money, social station, looks, and every other category imaginable until each student knows who he can dance with, say hello to, and who he must avoid to not be dropped to the next lowest caste, which, incidentally, is the type of marvelously repulsive system this has become.

I could think of no better explanation than this to tell a Farmington girl when she asked, "what's the matter here? Is everyone numbered from one to ten and only the one's can say hello to other one's, and two's to two's, and three's to three's."

But, this is simply mirroring the city, or to pin-point it, the parents. Plymouth has always been a "tight" city, socially, but lately it seems everyone has to belong to some large functioning group or on some city committee or they're no one.

It doesn't stop here though, it goes into wealth, background, etc., setting a perfect example for teens of what the prim and proper little city's social scale should be based on.

Plymouth has loosened up somewhat in present years but comparing it to surrounding communities, socially, we're still living in the dark ages. There still exist many long noses, used for looking-down-at, that should be tweaked.

If you were someone who had recently moved here (within the past year) how many of your neighbors do you think you could call friend and truthfully mean it.

It takes sometimes five years for a family to become oriented to Plymouth's starch-collaredness. I realize this can't be changed in ten minutes, but how about ten years.

Last Day for Plates Feb. 27

The last day for license plates in Michigan falls on a Sunday, Feb. 28. In line with policy established by Secretary of State James M. Hare, Branch offices will NOT be open on Sunday.

Since the deadline for obtaining new license plates has not been extended, Plymouth Branch Manager, Robert Dwyer has advised local citizens of extended hours for the Plymouth Branch, which is located at 181 W. Liberty, (near the C & O Depot) in Plymouth. In addition to its regular hours of 9-5 daily, the Plymouth Branch Office will remain open every Saturday including February 27, 1965, as long as the demand for current plates continues.

Citizens are reminded that since Michigan is now a title holding state, either/or the title or registration will suffice in obtaining new 1965 License Plates.

SLATE DINNER

A roast beef dinner sponsored by the Reorganized Church of the Latter Day Saints will be held at the Masonic Temple, Feb. 11 from 5:30-7 p.m., Thursday, Feb. 11. Tickets will be sold at the door.

HOW SWEET IT IS! Wine tasting courses, sponsored by the Livonia Adult Education Program, began this week at the Mayflower Hotel. This was the first of five sessions. Here Staton Lorenz, catering manager of the the Mayflower, makes a point about French wines to Jean Ford, Connie Biermann and Marilyn Kaselemis, all of Livonia. The course grew out of the desire of a gourmet group to learn more about wines.

Meet a Confirmed, Zen Buddhist Segregationist

By Jacquie Town

INTEGRATION: The process of making whole; formation of a whole from its parts; combination of elements into a single complex.

I once met a man. A very lonely, unhappy person, but a man of high principles, and firm convictions. His name is unimportant. He said:

"Just call me a confirmed segregationist."
"Oh," I replied, "you mean you're escaping from the integration movement? I suppose that's why you're wandering all over the world with your suitcase, sort of a do-it-yourself van."

"You'd better believe it sister. You know what the real meaning of that word is, don't you? Anyone who is different than me isn't acceptable, and it's getting harder to find a decent place to live all the time. The first couple that moved next to me, the man was minus an arm; he wasn't whole."

"Well with my firm convictions about segregation, I couldn't live in that neighborhood."
"The next thing you know, all sorts of cripples would be moving in."

"The next place I moved, it wasn't long before all sorts of religious people came. I don't know how they tolerated living next door to one another. Catholics, Jews, Protestants; they should stick to their own kind. The first thing you know they'd be talking about intermarriage."

"I'm a Zen Buddhist myself, so I left there."
"You don't believe in people of different religions living on the same block, sir?" I asked.

"I told you lady, I'm a confirmed segregationist. Why, in one area of Small Town, USA, there were Germans, Japanese, Chinese, Canadians, and every type of undesirable imaginable."
"I'm pure American, so I left."

Property devaluates so fast when those foreigners move in. In the next place, there were Texans, and Southerners, and they eat such crazy food, barbecue this and that, and hominy grits."

"Have you ever tasted them?" I offered.
"No. I'm a meat and potato kind of a guy and I just know I wouldn't like 'em. Besides, you don't have to try anything, not if you're a segregationist."

"You just know in your heart that you're right."
"Well, the next place I moved, it was really something. College graduates living next to factory workers. Now that was it. The way I see it, if you're alike, you get along fine, but it's these differences that make it bad. I got a Ph.D in Oceanography and I couldn't see living next to some joker who ran a Punch Press."

"Where do you plan to go from here?" I ventured. "I mean there aren't too many neighborhoods where pure American, Zen Buddhists with no physical defects and a Ph.D in Oceanography reside."

"Well, I've been considering buying an island and making it a haven for us American, Zen Buddhists with no physical defects and Ph.D's in Oceanography. There's the problem of money, of course, because I'd have to work for someone, and I can't find one that meets my specifications. I refuse to compromise my principles, so I'll have to study the problem a little longer."

"By the way, lady, if you run into someone who thinks like me, let me know. Sometimes it gets a little lonesome being a confirmed segregationist."

"I'm sure it does, mister. Only, the other confirmed segregationists might not want you to integrate their little islands. Most of them don't hold Ph.D's in Oceanography."

Plymouth Art Theatre to Show "An American in Paris" Feb. 10-16

Anyone who missed Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's Academy Award-winning musical, "An American in Paris," starring Gene Kelly and Leslie Caron will have an opportunity to see it at the Plymouth Art Theatre starting Wednesday, Feb. 10.

Story and screen play were written by Alan Jay Lerner, of "My Fair Lady," "Gigi," and "Camelot" fame and the music was written by George Gershwin.

Also starring in the film are Oscar Levant, Georges Guetary and Nina Foch.

"An American in Paris" tells the story of an ex-G.I. Jerry Mulligan who remains in Paris after the war to eke out an existence on the Left Bank in hope of becoming a world famous painter. Several girls complicate matters but all dilemmas are resolved by the end of the movie.

"Americanization Representative to Of Emily" Playing Japan to Speak At Penn Theatre To First Baptists

Running for only five minutes on the screen, the sequence in which James Garner leads a wave of assault troops on Omaha Beach during World War II in "The Americanization of Emily" required four months of preparation and a week of photography.

Filed on a strip of California beach, the M-G-M picture also required 500 extras, 5,000 pounds of explosive, 400 aerial charges, 100 smoke machines, 600 pounds of flash powder, 80 coils of barbed wire and 200 pounds of underwater dynamite charges.

Paul Byrd, who created action effects for the train robbery in "How the West Was Won" and the burning of the H.M.S. Bounty in "Mutiny on the Bounty" was in charge of special effects.

In Fact & Futhermore Spending Over $10.95 Is Frightening to Her

By Lenore Bechtel

My husband, who believes in buy-it-yourself gifts, has instructed me to buy a new black sheath for my Valentine present. Moreover, he has insisted that I buy an expensive one. For some women, such a request would be welcome, but for the millions of women like myself who are addicted to the $10.95 dress, the prospect of spending more than that sum is frightening. I know, though, that I must. Jack has become extremely aggravated with $10.95 dresses.

The problem actually began a few minutes before we were ready to leave for the last New Year's Eve party when Jack informed me that my white slip was peeking through the skirt of my black sheath.

"You have to put on another dress," he told me. "Wear that red thing you've never had on."

The red thing, of course, is much too frilly for me. I wouldn't even own it if it hadn't been a $30 dress reduced to 1/2 price. I couldn't tell him that though. Nor could I complain that I didn't have another thing decent enough to wear to a New Year's Eve party. In my closet were two other so-called party dresses bought on a special $10.95 sale that were just as wrong for me as the frilly, red thing.

"I can't wear that," I said, "because I have no idea if any of the other women will be that dressy tonight. The only safe thing to wear is a black sheath."

He shrugged, obviously resigned to letting me attend a New Year's Eve party with a speckled behind, which shows how he continually underestimates my ability to come up with sensible solutions to such trivial problems.

"We'll stop by a store and I'll buy a black slip," I said.

He agreed, though he was not as elated with my solution as I had expected him to be. Since we barely had time to reach a store before closing time, I had to be satisfied without my usual bargain hunting. I was chagrined that the only black slip in my size cost $15.95, but I switched quickly in the dressing room and then had to explain to the clerk why I had gone into the dressing room with a black slip and come out with a white one for her to put in a paper bag.

After the party Jack informed me that the red thing would have been more appropriate and that although the black slip hid the fact that my skirt was too loosely knit, it did not hide the fact that the rear sagged all night.

"I suggest you throw the dress away," he said, showing once again how totally unaware he is of my feminine ingenuity.

I most certainly would not throw away a dress which had been a steal for $10.95 and which I had owned for less than six months. Besides, it was my favorite dress. Its sagging bottom was evidence of that.

Instead, I bought some black rayon fabric, took the skirt apart at the seams, inserted the carefully pinked lining, and sewed both lining and skirt back together, trying to pull the sag out of the skirt. I couldn't seem to get the zipper in correctly, so I hired a seamstress to finish the job.

The next time I wore the dress, Jack, reminding me that I had invested $7 in a dress that was already worn out, admitted that the skirt no longer sagged. "But," he said, "it still looks awful. Throw it away."

Observing myself in the mirror, I had to admit that the dress was beginning to look drab.

"No problem," I told him. "I shall concentrate on selecting chic accessories to complement the dress. The right accessories will perk it up."

My first purchase, a gold pin with multi-colored stones set in an intricate design, didn't help. Neither did my second, a brocade bag, but I felt sure that the Japanese silk scarf would do the trick.

"That scarf," Jack said, after reminding me that I had invested $17 in accessories for a worn-out dress, "does not only not perk up that dress, it gives it the appearance of being unperkable."

In dismay, I began persuing fashion magazines for an accessory which would enrich my bargain basement dress until finally I found the ideal thing.

"This will do it!" I cried, overjoyed at my discovery. So beautiful was this accessory that even while looking at it in the magazine, I didn't notice the dress being worn with it. "All I need is a mink stole!"

Jack turned pale, staggered to my closet, staggered out of the house, and set fire to my much-loved black sheath.

"There's no reason for you to worry about a worn-out dress," he said, his voice quivering. "Buy yourself a new black sheath — a very expensive one. No saggy skirt. No loose knit. With a nice lining. It'll be a Valentine present from me to you."

In a way, I think it's very sweet of him to insist I be so extravagant, but I just wish his voice hadn't sounded so threatening. Some men just can't appreciate frugality.

Calls of the sharp-tailed grouse include chickenlike cacklings and a gobbling note. In courtship, males utter short, deep "coos" not unlike the mourning dove's call.

TREASURES FROM Plymouth Pantries

COMPLETING her "Graham Cracker Dessert" by adding the drained crushed pineapple is Mrs. Edgar Cummins, of Hanford Rd. The recipe is a nice one to serve to guests, according to Mrs. Cummins, because you prepare it 24 hours ahead of time and then let it set until company comes.

An easy-to-make "graham cracker dessert" was suggested this week by Mrs. Edgar Cummins, of 50100 Hanford Rd.

An avid knitter, Mrs. Cummins said she also loves to make hats. One of her past projects was making a hat out of pheasant feathers.

Members of the First Baptist Church of Wayne, her husband is superintendent of the Sunday school; she teaches Sunday school, and her son Bill is president of the young people's group, she said.

The Cummins also have a daughter, Peggy, 10, and a married son.

They moved to Plymouth five years ago from Dearborn.

Her recipe came from one of her friends a number of years ago. She explained she likes it because you prepare it 24 hours before you plan to serve it until your guests arrive.

GRAHAM CRACKER DESSERT

1 1/2 C. butter
1 1/2 C. confectioners sugar
2 eggs, beaten
1/2 tsp. vanilla
1 can crushed pineapple
1 can graham crackers
1/2 pint whipping cream
1 can crushed pineapple drained (number two can) chopped pecans
Cream together butter and sugar, add eggs and vanilla
Line bottom of 9 x 9 cake pan with whole graham crackers and spread the above mixture over them.
Add another layer of graham crackers, then whipping cream, whipped. On top of the whipped cream place crushed pineapple and finish with chopped pecans, if desired.
Set for 24 hours.

Community Band Elects Officers

Draugelis — best qualified

Next Monday, City of Plymouth voters will go to the polls to cast ballots in a primary election for municipal judge. Because there is only one vacancy, they will be permitted a single vote.

Voters will choose between three Plymouth attorneys, J. Rusling Cutler, Edward F. Draugelis and Clifford H. Manwaring.

Two of these men, Manwaring and Cutler, have been long-time residents of The Plymouth Community.

Cutler came here in 1924 and, since that time, has served in private law practice, as municipal judge from 1941 to 1949, as assistant city attorney from 1950 to 1953 and as a city commissioner from 1955 to 1957 and from 1959 to 1961.

Manwaring has lived in Plymouth since 1939. In private practice here since 1950, he has served on the City of Plymouth's planning commission.

The third candidate, Draugelis, has been a resident of Plymouth since 1961. He has acted as city attorney for the City of Plymouth until the present.

He also serves as legal counsel for Schoolcraft College and Northville Township.

In the past week, a question has been raised about whether or not Draugelis legally qualifies as a candidate.

Under the terms of Plymouth's city charter, candidates for the office of municipal judge must have been residents of the City of Plymouth for five years prior to election date.

Draugelis argues that amended state law requires only that the candidate be a resident elector, and he cites Michigan statutes which dictate that the terms of charters shall not contravene state law.

In any event, an impartial ruling on the matter should be sought; and the most likely source is the Attorney General of the State of Michigan. This cannot be accomplished prior to next Monday's election.

Meanwhile, we feel that Draugelis is the best qualified of three good candidates. The office of municipal judge should, in fact, reflect the highest attributes of our system of law.

We think Draugelis has the courage and the capabilities and the creativity to make Plymouth's Municipal Court outstanding in action and reputation.

He has offered specific and constructive recommendations regarding operation of the court. Among them are establishment of local court rules and a method of pre-sentence investigation.

Further, we think the tempest in Plymouth's teapot about whether Draugelis is legally qualified as a candidate is a little out of proportion.

At stake, here, is not a flagrant question of political carpetbagging such as those that were raised in the Senatorial campaigns of New York and California last Fall.

Draugelis has been a resident of Plymouth for nearly four years.

It seems odd to us that those who question his qualifications have waited until the week before election to do so.

In the absence of a legal opinion ruling Draugelis out of the race, we endorse his candidacy and urge Plymouth voters to cast their ballots for him.

It's Roberts and McNamara

In the race for the vacancy created by the December death of State Senator-Elect Paul M. Chandler of Livonia, two candidates stand out in the primary contests.

They are Farrell E. Roberts of W. Bloomfield Twp., a former Republican State Senator and Edward H. McNamara of Livonia, a Democrat.

DEMOCRATS
McNamara, a Livonia city councilman and Wayne County Supervisor, holds a Ph.D. from the University of Detroit in political science.

In the past, he has served as a Dearborn Township School Board member and, among other things, worked to make the dream of Schoolcraft Community College become a reality.

If elected, he has pledged himself to seek increased State support for education. He is rated as "well qualified" by the non-partisan Civic Searchlight.

Compared with the other Democratic candidates, the 38-year-old McNamara seems most qualified. John H. Burke, a Farmington attorney, has shown little disposition to actively campaign for the nomination; and Mrs. Elsie Gilmore of Livonia is distinguished primarily by her years of service to the Democratic Party.

We urge Democrats to cast their ballots for Edward H. McNamara.

REPUBLICANS
Farrell Roberts is the single, bright star on the Republican horizon for the State Senate nomination.

His background is impressive and his outlook is progressive.

A graduate of the University of Michigan Law School, the 42-year-old Roberts has served as assistant Oakland County Prosecuting Attorney, a Justice of the Peace, a State Representative for two terms and as Oakland County State Senator from 1960 to 1964.

During his time in the Michigan Legislature he gained a reputation as a serious, thoughtful, energetic lawmaker who became one of Governor George Romney's legislative mainstays.

Roberts is known to have one of the most perceptive and keenest minds in the State of Michigan in the field of judicial matters. His terms in the legislature have been busy ones, as he served on a host of committees.

Other GOP candidates pale in comparison to him.

George T. Ames of Farmington seems to have a few qualifications for the nomination. His chief claim to primary fame is advocacy of a New Hampshire-type sweepstakes for the State of Michigan.

Oakland County residents Paul A. Kern, Jr. and Fitzhugh Prescott have both courted the right wing of the party during the primary. In varying degree, each of them espouse a "conservatism" not in keeping with the times. Both were defeated in last year's primary by Chander. If for no other reason, we think Prescott should be ruled out based on the tenor of the bitter personal attacks he conducted against the late Senator-Elect.

Thomas J. McHugh of Sylvan Lake, another Republican hopeful, lacks — at this time — the background necessary for a Senatorial candidate. We view his candidacy essentially as a means of getting his political feet wet.

Allen C. Ingle of Farmington, an attorney and Justice of the Peace, has voiced his opposition to both the concept of county home rule and fiscal reform at this time. While Ingle's background is good, we feel he does not merit consideration in this race.

In summation, Farrell E. Roberts seems outstandingly qualified of all Republican candidates. He has been given a "preferred and well-qualified" rating by The Civic Searchlight.

The Plymouth Mail strongly suggests that Plymouth Community Republicans support his candidacy in the primary election on Monday, Feb. 15.

Says Hats Off to Our Local School Officials

February 2, 1965
Dear Editor: After reading your recent brief article entitled "Discontented Farrant Parents Set Meeting," it seemed rather obvious to me that in our society today we so often condemn first before we stop and think. I wonder how many children read that title and now are concerned about so-called "poor school conditions."

Since we have a kindergarten, a first grader and a second grader at Farrant School, we were in receipt of the recent letter from the school in reference to the temporary problems existing. I'd say hats off to our school officials for recognizing they have problems and not having enough intestinal fortitude to put them in writing to the parents of some 700 children.

If we have "poor school conditions" in Plymouth, I'd suggest we look at some other areas around the country and see their conditions. Let's be thankful for what we have — and have enough faith in our school administrators to do their job. They don't like inconvenience any better than we do.

Decries All-Time Low

February 4, 1965
Dear Editor: After reading the comments made by Mrs. Courtney R. Berry in this week's Plymouth Mail I had the urge to do something I haven't done in years . . . to get down on my hands and knees and beg God to forgive us.

When we have sunk so low that we are calling a person "immortal" because of the color of the skin God gave him, I think we have arrived at an all time low. It makes me ashamed that I am white, and ashamed of my fellow man.

Perhaps I have been one of the fortunate . . . I had the advantage of accepting integration as a child . . . the same as I just naturally accepted the fact that the grass was green, the sky was blue and I had to wear boots in the wintertime. That's how important it was to me as a child — and to my parents.

From the time I was in the first grade I was surrounded by marvelous brothers and sisters who were black, yellow and white — who were Scandinavian, Italian, Jewish, German, Protestant, Catholic and some with no religion at all. My first introduction to racial prejudice was when I was 12 years old. A Chinese boy in my class was having a birthday party — and as children will do he had his list of those he wanted to invite. I was invited and so was my one girl friend with whom I was especially close.

Mother helped me pick out the present and I was all set for the following Saturday afternoon. On Friday afternoon coming home from school, my friend said her mother wouldn't let her attend. When I asked why, I was told it was because the boy was Chinese.

This perplexed me, and upon arriving home I told my mother the boy was Chinese and did that mean I couldn't go to the party either. She then explained to me that the color of the boy's skin made him no different from me — nor because a person was of a different faith made him no different from me — and that I should be guided by a person's actions and NOT by whether he wears glasses, is fat or thin or tall or short.

Eligible Twelve People Can't Fill an Auditorium

February 8, 1965
Dear Editor: As Editor of The Plymouth Mail, you recently brought to my attention the fact that a question has arisen as to whether the City Charter provision requiring residency for five years in the City before filing for the office of Municipal Judge would not disqualify me as a candidate for that office. I wish to thank you for your kindness in calling my attention to the question.

Please be advised that Michigan Statutes Annotated 5.2107 was the original law requiring candidates for Municipal Judge to be a resident of the City for a period of five years. Our existing City Charter merely adopted the language of this statute.

The statute was amended, however, in 1954. At that time the State Legislature eliminated the five year requirement. The present qualifications are "resident elector of the City . . . under seventy years of age . . . and admitted to the practice of law in the State of Michigan . . ."

Michigan Statutes Annotated 5.2116 recite that no provision of any City Charter may conflict with the State law in this area.

Prior to filing, I contacted the Attorney General's Office in Lansing and discussed the matter with two other Municipal Judges; and there is no doubt whatsoever that I satisfy all the legal requirements for this office. I have advised both Mr. Cutler and Mr. Manwaring, my opponents, of this and to their credit as lawyers, they are not the ones who have raised this issue.

In addition, the affidavit of qualification was filed with the City Clerk which affidavit also eliminated the five-year requirement. Subsequent to filing, I was certified as a valid candidate for the office of Municipal Judge.

It certainly is edifying that once the matter was raised, this paper brought the matter immediately to my attention so that it could be clarified. A conscientious press, seeking out the facts, always prevails against town gossip. Again, I thank you.

Very truly yours,
Edward Draugelis

Dear Editor: At our recent production of "Harvey" more than fifty complimentary tickets were sent to the city fathers, school officials, and township officials. Only one pair of tickets were used. Only cost to the recipients was the time of two hours chosen from one of three nights.

Twelve people can act a show, and twelve people can double to produce a show. But these same twelve people cannot fill an auditorium. These valiant few can and will become weary with time and will eventually be overcome and fade away into the melting pots of "What is the use."

Dear Editor: I have been following in your paper the articles on Mayor Wernette and his Plymouth Assembly for Equal Opportunity.

I do not want them living next door to me. I moved to Plymouth from Detroit just for this reason. We were the last one in our neighborhood to sell out. I was willing to live with them if they were decent but I can't tell you by experience what I went thru. A 17 yr. old colored youth tried to cut his way thru the screens with a knife when I was alone in the house and helpless due to recent surgery. Fortunately a phone was by my bed and he was apprehended. When asked what he was doing out at 12 p.m., the reply was his father was drunk and mother out with another man and why should he stay home alone when no one cared what he was doing.

Next a family moved next door to me with 6 children. Mother worked and left children alone and they did what they pleased including trespassing on my property. I tried to settle this peacefully but woman came at me with a knife. The minute she got home from work it was drink

Is Plymouth to lose its community theater altogether because no one cares to give moral support? Is the advocacy of live theater to disappear from Plymouth because the "Hollow crown" of "too busy" shines forth and blinds all who dare to wear it? If no one in the community cares, who will keep living reflections of this part of life alive?

Let these bells of warning ring out, and some take heed and give a hand for if not, these bells will toll, and the passing of an era will struggle to an end.

Jacob W. Rumpf

until she went to bed. Needless to say there were many family quarrels and unprintable language. Because we were the last to stay and sell we lost about $4000 on our property deal. How would you feel if you were in our shoes? Would you want them living next to you? I think the Mayor is in for a big surprise and a lot of repercussions on his statements. He does not speak for the Plymouthites. If he is ever put up for vote again I shall campaign against him. I do not want to have to sell out and move again. There are those in his immediate neighborhood, whose names I cannot mention for business reasons, who do not go along with him either. Why can't he leave well enough alone?

Mrs. John Florence

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mayor Wernette holds no office within the Plymouth Assembly for Equal Opportunity. He did lead the way in the formation of The Plymouth Community Human Relations Commission, an official group including representatives from the City of Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton Town-

The Grim Pilgrim

By DAVE WILEY

Last year, when middle-aged child bride began moping around the house with women's magazines whose primary theme seemed to be that the present-day housewife's existence was nothing more than a dishwater desperation, my husbandly intuition told me that I'd best girl myself for some sort of sparkling solution.

It only takes a reading or two of these chronicles of mundane meaninglessness and, in your heart (sorry, Barry) you, know they're right.

What the heck, pushing a vacuum cleaner and drying drippy noses isn't exercise designed to make mental giants out of anyone. And neither is staring at the latest T.V. message for mucous membrane solvent.

So it came as no surprise, when I drooped home from the salt mine one day, to get the good news.

Mom became one of a number of Plymouth gals who signed up for the junior great books course.

In doing so, she made me part of a bunch of husbands whose homes have been rendered into little lyciums.

While Lyndon draws about minor concerns such as The Great Society, we discuss great books. Dinnertime is the hour of the great conversation.

Last week, it was "Antigone."

"Do you think," she asked, "that Antigone had a death wish?"

"I dunno," I said brightly. "Why?"

"Never mind why, do you?"

"Well, first of all," I pointed out, "nobody wants to die."

"Antigone wanted to die," she said. "Why else would she have tried so hard to antagonize the king?"

"Maybe that's why they called her 'Antigone,'" I commented.

"Look," she commanded, "if you can't be serious, go write your dumb column for next week."

Saturday night, brought more of the same. Some friends dropped in and, as it turned out, the two gals were going to be group leaders this week and the other husband and I were to be their class. Guinea pigs, I think, was the expression they used.

Oh, we had a jolly good time.

"How well," they asked, "would you say Lycurgus succeeded in his goal of making the Spartans freeminded?"

"Pretty well," I concluded, "they had some interesting marriage customs."

"One thing's certain," the girl friend noted, "you're not only free minded, you're single, track-minded. Anyway," she added, speaking to the other group leader, "I think the questions we've got for next week's session are good enough."

"These jerks, obviously, aren't going to be much help."

"By the way," the second husband said, "what makes a great book?"

"Well, gee," the girls chorused, "they've lasted all this time. They're hundreds and thousands of years old."

"Oh, then — if a book lasts for at least a couple of centuries and still has readership appeal — it's a great book."

"Yes," they agreed. Over in the corner, I snickered.

"Watch it," the spouse warned, "I can tell by that nasty laugh that his mind's still in the same place."

"Go ahead," she urged. "Tell us what's going around in the recesses of your twisted mind."

"Nothing, really," I said. "I just thought of a great book."

"What's that?" "Fanny Hill."

The Sporting Thing

By Bill Nelson

Is it worth it?

With Plymouth teams generally having a bad year, the time is most propitious to ask if sports are, indeed, worth any of the effort that goes into them.

It is academic to ask such a question when your team has just won a championship and walked off with all the honors. The thunderous roar of the community nodding yes under such circumstances is not unlike a stacked deck.

The fun comes in asking it now.

Some would have us believe that the best that can be gained from sports is that one in a great number might make a living at it, and that most will end up for the rest of their lives trying to compensate intellectually for the years spent attending sports practices while others were off studying diligently in the local library.

There's the rub, of course. Not everybody else in school (not partaking in sports) is off engaged in some worthwhile activity or over at the library trying to emulate the best in world civilization.

The Great Society is still a goal and not a fact, and so, it is supposed, everything is not ideal in fact.

Sports does toss a few Rhodes Scholars and others of similar achievement into the argument (Whizzer White is on the Supreme Court bench), but this doesn't fit the complaints of those who see nothing but overemphasis in sports.

Whether it's sports or anything else, when you are dealing with people you have some good ones and bad ones, so back to the question of whether or not sports are worth the effort.

First, I think we can all agree, sports beat some of the places where we spent our youth and some of the places where youth (often thinking they are discovering some obscure universal truth for the first time) are spending their days today.

There is more than this, however.

It is good for the body to be in sound condition and certainly sports help this. And it probably will stand without support to say that a sound body with a sound mind is good.

At least the Greeks thought so in classic times. And there is a considerable body of respectable opinion that today thinks a sound body is a major contributor to a sound mind.

Accepting this we can agree, then, that intellectual and physical achievement don't exclude each other. Indeed, they can be complimentary.

And then there is this matter of team play. This is for the most part overplayed. It may be that some student first gets his idea of others when he is forced to pass a ball to another, but this is overstressed unless the child in question happens to be an only child.

A youngster, with brothers or sisters, learns very early what it means to be a human in a world of millions. Sports adds, but not greatly, to that idea.

What sports does add, and it is vastly more important, are the ideas of courage and independence. A youngster learns that he must pay a price to win. He must react quickly under the pressure of changing circumstances. He is on his own, judged individually.

It's a pretty good idea. It goes well with the Western Idea of man, with the United States and with people like Winston Churchill, who learned someplace, that at some point you stand up and fight, even alone.

Sports, I think, get that idea across. It's true that sometimes a game gets thrown, that there is a scandal now and then or someone takes a convenient, though distasteful, route to victory. But, name me an area of life, where there haven't been such scandals.

In Plymouth, we are particularly blessed by the people involved in sports. If you have been following at all, you know them well. They are credits and look good in defeat (though none of them enjoys it).

Their efforts are as important as any. Athletics are worth it.

Plymouth's basketball team split in two games last week-end, losing to Trenton 71-56 Friday before rebounding to sail past Franklin of Livonia 75-41 on Saturday.

Against Franklin, the Rocks sped to an early 13-10 first quarter lead and were never headed thereafter. They pushed that margin to 29-21 at halftime and increased the lead to 47-26 at the beginning of the final period.

With second and third team members in the game during the fourth quarter, Plymouth tallied a remarkable 28 points, while holding Franklin to 15.

Don Stamper led Plymouth scoring with 17 points and Rick Jones contributed 15, while Don Cranford added twelve for Plymouth as nearly everybody scored.

AGAINST Trenton on Friday, the Rocks jumped to a 13-3 first quarter lead over the powerful Suburban Six League leaders. At the half on Trenton's court, Plymouth trailed by only one point 32-31, but Trenton heated up in the third period to go ahead 55-39. Plymouth with 10 points, as for Trenton, while Dan Stanley had 16. Dave Tidwell led the Rock team with 23 points.

Plymouth's Junior Varsity basketball team suffered a double loss last week-end, losing to Trenton 58-51 and to Franklin 61-53.

The Rocks were close in both games, but never able to get the lead after the early stages. They trailed at the halftime 32-28 against Trenton and 29-26 against Franklin.

John Davis led the Rocks against Trenton with 16 points, while Mike Manley contributed 12. Against Franklin, Bill Way was high with 17 points and Bob McCall had 15.

Three varsity events take place this week in Plymouth sports. The Plymouth basketball team will entertain Redford Union at 8 p.m. Friday. The two junior varsity teams will play at 6:30 p.m.

The swimming team, meanwhile, will be at Redford Union at 7 p.m. Friday, and at 7:30 p.m. Saturday will host Royal Oak Kimball in the Plymouth pool.

HANK FONDE, assistant football coach at the U of M, will speak and show films of this year's Rose Bowl game at a father and son banquet Feb. 12 at St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran Church. FONDE played football at the U of M from 1945 to 1947. Today he is offensive back field coach and offensive coach. The captain of last year's football team, Jim Conley, and Bill Yearby, will also be there. Yearby is a 223-pound senior tackle and Conley is an end. The banquet begins at 6:30.

Trading Post Wins Two

The VFW PeeWees took a 2-3 loss from Livonia last week in Plymouth Hockey Association activity, but everybody else won at least once.

In the PeeWee game, Doug McDuff and Mark Hindman scored for the Plymouth team, but it was not enough. The Trading Post, meanwhile, posted a 2-1 win over Livonia on goals by John Price and Gary Wyman.

In an exhibition game at Lansing, the Plymouth Trading Post powered to a 7-3 win. Dale Talkovich and Jim Elias each scored a pair of goals, while Bob Crowther, Gary Wyman and John Price added one each.

Jim Elias scored two goals, also, in the Midget Royals 2-1 win over Livonia. The Banham T-Birds earned a 4-0 shutout of Livonia on two goals by Butch Schelley and one each by Pat Cosgrove and Billy Thomas.

Dr. Parshall will be working with 59 area alumni in behalf of projects included in the College's 10-year, $20 million development program known as the "Action Program for Excellence." All undersigned gifts from Plymouth alumni will be earmarked for support of a $1,250,000 fund-raising effort for a new student center. The Albion Alumni Association endorsed the student center project last June and announced it would conduct the campaign during the next two years to take advantage of matching funds offered by a Ford Foundation challenge grant. Terms of the grant require Albion to match a $2 million award with $4 million in new funds by June 30, 1966. A 1948 graduate of Albion College, Dr. Parshall is an osteopathic physician and surgeon and operates a private practice. He graduated from the Kirsville College of Osteopathy in 1950. Dr. Parshall is married to the former Joanne Sluyter, also an Albion graduate. They have three sons and one daughter.

Trenton Records Swim Victory

Trenton, which more and more looks like the swimming team to beat in the Suburban Six League, swamped Plymouth 62-43 last Friday in the Plymouth pool.

Plymouth gathered in four first places, but Trenton first teams set two pool records. The records were set in the 200 yard medley relay and the 200 yard freestyle.

Mike Stajich, Ron Marcic, Phil Watson and Henry Ahlf combined for a 1:45.6 pool record in the medley relay, while Ahlf, Watson, Richard Ford and Rick Asmus turned in another tank mark, 1:33.4 in the freestyle relay.

For Plymouth, Dick Berry notched two firsts, in the 200 yard freestyle and the 100 yard freestyle, to keep Plymouth in the meet until past the midway point.

OTHER ROCK firsts were won by Jeff Hoffman in the 200 yard individual medley and by Jeff Haarbauer in the 100 yard butterfly.

In the opening event, the 200 yard medley relay, John Skinner, Don Norman, Jeff Haarbauer and Geoff Burke combined to place second. Dan Cook placed third in the 50 yard freestyle.

Jeff Gustafson was third in the 200 yard individual medley and Dick Lorenz was second in diving. Al Saxton placed third in the 100 yard freestyle and Ron Witthoff was third in the 100 yard backstroke.

Hoffman was third in the 400 yard freestyle and Norman and Gustafson were second and third respectively in the 100 yard backstroke. Burke, Pat Brady, Russ Crosby and Chuck Olson rounded out Plymouth scoring by placing second in the 200 yard freestyle relay.

At 7 p.m. Friday, Plymouth will swim at Redford Union. The Rocks will be home for a 7:30 p.m. meet Saturday with Royal Oak Kimball.

School District Adds Three New Teachers

Three new teachers, added to the Plymouth school system, were approved by the school board Monday night at its regular monthly meeting.

Alice Schaefer, from Ann Arbor, will teach the second grade at Allen School. She has an A.B. from the University of Michigan. This is her first year of teaching. Cheryl Stevenson, also a first year teacher, is a graduate of Eastern Michigan University and will teach the fifth grade at Allen School.

Donald Valley is a new vocal music teacher at Junior High West for the sixth grade. He attended Bob Jones University and the University of Michigan. Valley taught in Towson, Maryland and at Emmanuel College, Ga.

JEFF HAARBAUER STARTS dive into the water here as teammate Don Norman (in water) touches the pool edge, finishing his leg of the 200 yard medley relay. Plymouth was second as Trenton set a pool record of 1:45.6 during this meet.

Bookmobile Suffers a Complete Breakdown

By Lon Dickerson

EDITOR'S NOTE: Lon Dickerson is a Plymouth High School graduate serving with the Peace Corps in Sierra Leone, West Africa. This is one of a continuing series of columns he writes exclusively for The Plymouth Mail.

For seven long weeks the primary school service's bookmobile was confined to a Freetown garage. In mid-November it had suffered a complete physical breakdown while transporting books and supplies to a new regional in Kenema. As it hovered between life and death an S.O.S. was sent to England for spare parts.

Fortunately the medication arrived in time. And thanks to the surgical abilities of a team of mechanics it was removed from the critical list by early January.

By this time the first school term had ended and the bookmobile had not visited the primary schools in two districts as had been originally planned. But by Jan. 18 it was back on the road again. This time we visited Moyamba District which is immediately southeast of Freetown. There are 96 primary schools in this district, but we were only able to visit 23 of the largest ones.

During the trip, the bookmobile suffered minor relapses. One day a low hanging branch failed to yield the right of way. The result was that two of the vehicle's top air vents suffered compound fractures.

Another day, we blocked a single-lane dirt road for two hours while the mobile unit recovered from a respiratory ailment, namely a blocked fuel line. In that span of time, however, traffic was not seriously disrupted — only two passenger transport trucks attempted to use the road.

Still another day the stitches came loose and we almost lost our transmission and gear box. Vitamins in the form of gasoline were consumed at the rate of one gallon every nine miles at a cost of 53c a gallon. Dust was also a problem. Despite that fact that the bookmobile is enclosed there was half an inch of red clay dust on the floor by the end of the 500 mile trip.

In spite of these setbacks all of the schools were reached on schedule. At the conclusion of the seven days on the road there were nearly 3,000 books on loan to the schools and over 500 additional books on loan to teachers.

When we got close to a back village one day, the road appeared to abruptly end at a shallow river. There was absolutely no bridge we could use and the people told us that no vehicles ever crossed. But the school was still a couple of miles away so we had to forge the river.

As we drove through the village, women frantically snatched up their laundry which was drying in the pathway. Sierra Leoneans usually lay their clothes on the ground or across bushes to dry.

The scene reminded me of Plymouth housewives grabbing their laundry from the clothesline when a raincloud suddenly bursts overhead.

Our room and board was kindly provided by three principals whose schools we visited. Other people presented us with a total of 50 oranges, 4 grapefruit, 4 fresh eggs, and a box of cocoa yams which are like potatoes.

In one village we were received by a woman paramount chief who is also a minister in the national government. Almost every village has a tribal chief. They are in turn subordinate to a paramount chief who presides over a chieftom which may encompass several villages.

Later in the trip we were received by another paramount chief who is the prime minister's uncle. Still later I shook hands with the prime minister himself as he passed through a village in which I was staying, Moyamba District is his home district.

This trip enabled me to meet heads of government and humble servants alike. But no matter what their rank in life happens to be, they are all people contributing to the development of Sierra Leone.

To share with them in this process by helping to provide books for children to read gives me a great sense of accomplishment.

The Good Old Days

TAKEN FROM THE FILES OF THE PLYMOUTH MAIL

10 YEARS AGO

A $3,000,000 plan to construct a junior high school and two elementary buildings, remodel the present junior high for high school use, buy an additional elementary school site and pay off bonds issued in 1949 was lauded by the School Community Planning Group and their guests at a meeting last week.

A fire inside the office of the Twin Pines Dairy building at Ann Arbor Trail and Mill street early Monday morning caused damage estimated at $3,800, according to a preliminary report today by Fire Chief Robert McAllister.

The traffic light in front of city hall which has been in operation the past year only while students were going to and from school is now working a 12-hour day. A traffic survey in 1953 by the AAA revealed that the traffic light hindered traffic on Main street more than it helped. It is now working between 6 a.m. and 6 p.m.

About two-thirds of all newly enlisted marines get their first taste of service life on Parris Island, S.C. A major Marine Corps post since 1915, the island lies on the Atlantic coast between Charleston, S.C., and Savannah, Ga.

Three bandits were routed by a 130-pound porter Les Bieber at Arbor Lill early Monday morning after they knocked down and dragged Bill Bruckner, the night cook, into a refrigerator. Bieber, who lives in the building, asked the men what they were doing as he picked up a 14-inch slicing knife. The three men took a look at the knife and fled from the building, driving away in a car. Sheriff's detectives are investigating the incident.

25 YEARS AGO

Nearly 800 at Lincoln Dinner; Mayflower wins praise for fine service. Plain fare is popular with immense crowd, miracles do happen! One happened in Plymouth Monday night. 762 people attended the annual Lincoln day dinner held at the Hotel Mayflower. These 762 people not only attended the banquet but Manager Ralph Lorenz and his efficient staff served the dinner to this vast crowd with a degree of efficiency and promptness that amazed the visitors. The buffalo stew menu, made possible by the donation of "Old John" by Fred D. Schrader, provided a most delicious dinner.

Last evening, commemorating the 30th anniversary of the founding of the Boy Scouts in the United States, scouts from the Detroit Area Council, with which Plymouth is affiliated, were invited to attend a banquet. Sidney D. Strong, district Boy Scout commissioner, was presented the Scoutmaster's key. Mr. Strong is the second individual to ever be given a decoration in this district. It is a training award rather than honorary.

With only 14 traffic violations on record for January, the first month of the new year will be remembered by police department officials as being one with the smallest number of tickets issued during any one month for more than two years.

Tickets for the father and son banquet are all sold, according to a report made by the committee Thursday.

The annual Eastern Star dance will be March 29, Lon Brocklehurst, chairman. Next Monday evening's meeting of the Townsend club will be another social affair. The members will play cards most of the evening.

50 YEARS AGO

Born to Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Blickenstaff, a daughter, on Wednesday Feb. 10. Rev. Bell's Sunday-school class will give a poverty social at the Baptist church Friday evening, Feb. 19. There will be prizes given and special attractions. Everybody come.

Ira Wilson, agent for the Reo automobiles, has a large ad in this issue, which sets forth the many good qualities of the Reo. The beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wolff was the scene of an elaborate wedding, last Saturday afternoon, when their daughter Miss Gusta, was united in marriage to Herman Esch. The bride and groom were attended by William Wolff and Earnest G. Gilner and Bertha Wolff and Emma Gow.

John Henderson of this village was chosen at a Progressive county convention in Detroit Wednesday as a delegate to the Progressive Day convention to be held in Jackson next week.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Rauch and Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hough have been in Saginaw this week. Mr. Rauch represented the Daisy Mfg. Co. at the convention held there.

Rev. B. F. Farber's Sunday school class was pleasantly entertained at the home of Mrs. Charles Draper Wednesday evening.

Hear ye! hear ye! Your shadow is expected to attend a ghostly gathering to hold high carnival at the home of Harmon Kingsley, Friday evening, Feb. 19. Remember, that over at my house you will find good cheer. I shall certainly expect you at half past eight. Later than that ghosts shall have fastened the gate. Welcome. Each lady is expected to bring a box lunch for two, but for those who do not get a box, supper will be served for 15 cents.

Teachers Comment on Problems in Schools

Another group has entered the discussion of problems in Plymouth schools — the Plymouth Education Association, which represents most of the teachers in the district. James Doyle, president of the group and a guidance counselor at the high school, indicated last week that the Association wanted to step up its public information campaign. Doyle said: "In effect we want the public to be aware that we are aware of the problems that exist in the schools."

"We are interested in better salaries, yes. People feel this is all we're interested in. We also want a better quality education in the school."

"The question is, do we want to teach quality or quantity? We want quality," Doyle added. The PEA also recently gave a vote of confidence to the Farrand school parents group.

"I think they should be heard," Doyle said. The Farrand group is circulating petitions in the Lake Pointe area protesting conditions at Farrand school. This action followed distribution of a signed information sheet listing several "undesirable conditions" in the school. Doyle is also chairman of the Professional Problems committee of the PEA. In this position Doyle handles complaints of teachers concerning their job and work conditions. Doyle reports he has received complaints from teachers about overcrowded classrooms in the elementary school. He outlined the PEA position this way:

At Allen, there are 9 classrooms that have 40 or more in them; one fifth grade has 44 another 43. The addition of three teachers has brought the average down to about 30 students for every teacher, but in some cases there are two teachers in a room.

Farrand's overcrowded conditions have been solved to some extent by holding classes in the multi-purpose room.

These facts were brought out by Doyle Wednesday. In an effort to answer the questions raised by PEA, Superintendent of Schools Russell Isbister said he tried to keep the teacher-pupil rate at 30 students for every teacher and no more. He said Thursday:

"If a principal says I'm one teacher short of the 30 average, I'll say, 'O.K. let's get another teacher.'"

BREAKING the classroom size down in another way shows that 54 or more classes have more than 30 students in them and only 38 have less. Added to this problem is the unusual gain throughout the year.

"We've gained 140 since school started. Only about 40 have dropped out. This is an unusual situation," Isbister said.

Both Allen and Farrand Schools have additions under construction, and both are slated for completion April 15, an estimated two months late. Isbister noted: "It's true we've experienced something we haven't experienced since I've been here. But I think we're prepared for the next two years to match facilities with needs. Beyond that, we can't know for sure."

Isbister outlined plans for the next two years, saying that he hoped bids would be out for the new Lake Pointe school by August of this year, with a completion date of September, 1966.

The Department of Public Works have been continuing the salting and plowing of streets, cleaning city owned sidewalks, cleaning and flooding skating ponds. There were two funerals at Riverside Cemetery and both of those were held in the mausoleum because of the bad weather and the icy condition at the cemetery. One water service was repaired and two curb boxes; also, one broken water main on William, E. of Evergreen. Streets both major and local were cold patched. Street signs were repaired and replaced. Sand is available at the Public Works Yard at 975 Arthur Street for residents of the city. At this writing Joseph Bida, Supt., is still confined at St. Joseph's Hospital at Ann Arbor.

has to contend with the following figures:

• In Canton Township a 310-lot subdivision has been tentatively approved for near Joy and Haggerty roads. Another 223 are slated for approval later. When the weather breaks in spring the developer, Joseph Bloch, expects to begin building model homes. Conservative estimates list at least 2200 acres of Canton Township land in the Plymouth School district; in the hands of developers.

Isbister also indicated that school officials are considering a site for a school near the general area of Joy and Haggerty Road to handle the children expected in new subdivisions there. The Plymouth school board builder-developer Loren Gould's subdivision has 130 new lots.

• In Plymouth Township, nearly 900 single family lots are in preliminary planning stages, a 195-space trailer park is also in the planning stage. In addition, 600 apartment units are in various stages of construction. Finally, another 10 acres of land is before the Township Planning Commission for possible rezoning by a Detroit builder.

Off the cuff guesses by Township officials place almost all the rest of the land in the Township either owned or optioned by builders and developers. Superintendent Isbister said that the school administration was aware of these figures.

THREE CLASSES in one room at the Farrand Elementary School were among the serious problems Lake Pointe residents complained about recently in a circulated document. About 800 copies of the sheet were passed out in the Lake Pointe area and contained a list of "undesirable conditions." A group of disgruntled parents met Jan. 25 and discussed the situation. They also appeared before the school board at their regular meeting last night. This picture was taken in the multi-purpose room near the end of day when the students were engaged in clean-up activities. Three teachers teach three fifth grades in this room.

Edison Executive Succumbs at 61

Paul Harner, 61, assistant general superintendent of Detroit Edison's overhead lines department, died, suddenly, Feb. 1, in his home at 41131 Bruce, Plymouth.

A native of Montezuma, Iowa, Mr. Harner lived for many years in Blue Earth, Minn., where he was graduated from Blue Earth High School in 1921. Several years later, he studied mathematics and engineering at Eastern Michigan University and in correspondence school courses.

Mr. Harner was employed by the Southern Minnesota Gas and Electric Company before joining Detroit Edison as an overhead lineman in 1923. In 1955 he was promoted to superintendent of the East Overhead Lines Division where he was responsible for overhead lines operations in St. Clair and Macomb counties. Three years later he was assigned as assistant general superintendent of overhead lines, with headquarters in Detroit. Harner was a member of the Engineering Society of Detroit, and was active in the Masonic Lodge in Ann Arbor and the Ann Arbor Golf and Outing Club.

He is survived by his wife, Helen; two daughters, Mrs. Herbert C. (Jacqueline) Wenk of Ann Arbor, and Mrs. John C. (Eleanor) Burns of Rochester, Mich.; six grandchildren; two brothers, Theron and Grand Rapids, Minn., and Shields, of Winnabaze, Minn., and two sisters, Mrs. Hazel Morris of Black Duck, Minn.; and Miss Avis Harner, Grand Rapids, Minn.

Services were held last Thursday, at the Staffan Funeral Home, Ann Arbor, with burial in Ann Arbor.

New Apartments are Convenient, Attractive

Convenience, attractiveness and economy are being combined for Plymouth residents in an additional 32 living units soon to be completed at Bryn Mawr Apartments at 1357 McKinley St., across from Smith Elementary School.

Rental cost on the one-bedroom units is reasonable, according to J. L. Hudson of the J. L. Hudson Real Estate Co. of Plymouth, leasing agent for Bryn Mawr.

Hudson said one monthly payment includes heat and water, soft water, air conditioning, an inter-com system and color-keyed Frigidaire appliances.

The living units all feature a spacious, bright living room, a sparkling modern kitchen, a roomy bedroom with a wide, wall-length closet and a bath with formica counter topping surrounding the oval-shaped lavatory.

IN ADDITION, coin-operated washers and dryers are available to residents in the basement and ample storage space is provided.

No pets or children will be permitted at Bryn Mawr. Black-topped, paved parking areas are provided.

A tastefully decorated model apartment, done in Early American motif, is available for inspection.

Each apartment features glass sliding doors that open onto a private patio or balcony from the living room. Other features include traverse rods, T.V. antennas, thermo pane windows, baseboard hot water heat and double stainless steel sinks in the kitchen.

BRIGHTLY LIGHTED, the apartment bathroom feature tub and shower combinations and wide, formica-topped counter areas surrounding the lavatory. A full width mirror sweeps across the wall.

TASTEFULLY decorated, Bryn Mawr Apartment bedrooms reflects the elegance which can be obtained in the units. The spacious bedrooms feature wall length closets, adequate for the most expansive wardrobes.

American Legion Auxiliary

Americanism is the dominating activity of February in the American Legion Auxiliary.

During the month, emphasis is placed on activities to increase understanding of and devotion to American ideals and principles, especially among young people.

At this time when anti-American riots and demonstrations have been taking place in various parts of the world, and when our young people are hearing so much about what is wrong with America, we feel it very important to present the true American picture—to fly the American flag with pride and to stimulate the patriotic spirit of our people.

The American Legion Auxiliary of Michigan will be represented by a delegation at the annual Women's Forum of National Security, to be held in Washington, D.C. Feb. 15-17.

More than 1,000 delegates representing 2,000,000 women of 18 national women's patriotic organizations including Auxiliary delegations from every Department are expected to take part in the Forum. Authoritative speakers will discuss various phases of the national security problem. Presiding will be Mrs. Walter Wild Andrews, National President of the American Legion Auxiliary, which is sponsoring the Forum this year.

Saturday, Feb. 13 the Entertainment Chairman Mrs. Betty Richter has planned a box social for all members and friends. The auction will start at 8 p.m. in the Post Home. The wives are to pack the box and husbands are to wrap it (not letting the wife see how) then the wives will do the bidding.

Remember Tuesday, February 16 is the Americanism program at Myron H. Beals Post in Livonia. Potluck supper begins at 6:30 p.m. The Foreign exchange students will present the program.

The next business meeting will be Wednesday Feb. 17 in post Home at 8 p.m.

Forum Told Medicare Gives Poor Coverage

Medicare as a "political football" was discussed by Dr. Rueben Shapiro before the Chamber of Commerce Businessmen's Forum last Thursday.

"Medicare means the gradual erosion of both the rights of the patient and the doctor," he commented. Shapiro feels the wrong people are controlling the bill.

Dr. Shapiro stated a position of general disagreement with the Medicare bill now before Congress. Shapiro noted that the proposed program considers only a small percentage of actual problems. He said:

"Any doctor, unless he is in a highly specialized area, sees and treats about 90% of his patients in his office. Yet that 90% is never discussed in this bill.

"THE MEDICARE program has been centered around the cost in the hospital. What about the cost of the care of the patient at home, what about drugs? — this is ignored."

Dr. Shapiro noted that the British health bill for socialized medicine equals one half what it spends on defense. Applying this ratio to the United States, Dr. Shapiro said, would place our government's share at least $25 billion.

The present Medicare bill, known as the King-Anderson Bill, allows assistance to those over 65 who can qualify, but they must go to a hospital which has a contract for the Medicare program. Dr. Shapiro concluded:

Shapiro's speech was titled "Medicare — Health Boom or Health Bust."

Minutes of Plymouth Township

Minutes of Plymouth Township Board Regular Meeting January 12, 1965 and Special Meeting January 21, 1965

Supervisor Lindsay called the meeting to order at 8:05 P.M. with all Board members being present and requested to know if there were any corrections, changes and/or omissions in the minutes of December 8, 1964, previously distributed to the Board. There being none it was moved by Elizabeth Holmes, supported by Louis Norman, that the minutes be approved as distributed. Carried unanimously.

The Supervisor read the added list of bills, then in addition to the list previously submitted with the agenda, and requested to know if there were any questions relative to the bills submitted.

Dick Lauterbach stated that upon examination of the statement submitted by Township Attorney, Earl Demel, charges were made from the opinion requested by this Board as to whether or not easements were required on Dunn Court inasmuch as this street has not been dedicated. He further inquired if any charges relative to the 1964-65 water and sewer program should be paid from the General Fund in accordance with previous action by this Board. Clerk McEwen stated that the amount of $289.50 was charged for this opinion and questioned why this should not be paid out of the Sewer and Water Project instead of the General Fund. After considerable discussion was held on this matter it was moved by Dick Lauterbach, supported by Ralph Garber, that these monies be paid from the 1965 Sewer and Water Project funds when the Bonds are sold. Carried unanimously.

Discussion was held on other items with no changes being made. It was then moved by Ralph Garber, supported by Dick Lauterbach, that the bills, as corrected be paid. Carried unanimously. The bills, as corrected, amounted to $18,969.50.

Supervisor Lindsay recommended the following five Township residents to be appointed to the newly created Plymouth Township Fire Department Administrative Board. They are as follows:

Clayton W. Koch, 11826 Brownell; Hilding G. Olsen, 14215 Bruce; Richard A. Wasaf, 12102 Hines Court; Lynn E. Bartlett, 44425 Governor Bradford Road; Melville R. Troyer, 41240 Ann Arbor Trail.

It was moved by Dick Lauterbach, supported by C. V. Sparks, that the recommendations of the Supervisor be approved. Carried unanimously.

The Board authorized the final payment of $1,001.70 to S. Weissman Excavation Company for work completed on the Lilley Road Sanitary Sewer installation north of Ann Arbor Road.

The Board passed a resolution requesting the Wayne County Road Commission to pay the Capocia Brother Excavating Company the sum of $1,652.00 for final payment for laying a water line along the east side of Lilley Road north of Ann Arbor Road.

Upon the recommendation of Township Engineer Hamill, the Board approved the easement back plats for Lake Pointe Subdivision No. 8, upon motion by Dick Lauterbach, supported by Ralph Garber.

The request of James W. Lawrie, 895 Ann Arbor Road, for a new SDD License in conjunction with his SDD License was approved and forwarded to the Michigan State Liquor Control Commission upon a motion by Dick Lauterbach, supported by Louis Norman, and carried unanimously.

The Board assured cooperation to the Chairman of the Wayne County Board of Supervisors, Mr. Edward Connor and the United Community Services of Metropolitan Detroit offering assistance in planning programs under the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964 (War on Poverty). Supervisor Lindsay stated that he and Superintendent of Schools, Mr. Ishister, have already met to determine what type of health, welfare and/or personal and family counseling services could be most helpful in our immediate area.

Upon motion by Louis Norman, supported by C. V. Sparks, the Board unanimously approved of endorsing the Community Junior Basketball League as requested by Messrs. Joe Bida and John Van Wagner.

A request from Mr. J. O'Neil of Robinwood, relative to procedures of the Township rubbish collection was discussed in detail. It was the consensus of the Board that much study and exploring must be made as to Mr. O'Neil's recommendations prior to any commitment at this time. The letter was received and filed with instruction that it should be brought up at a later date when more data is available.

At the request of Township Attorney, Mr. E. Demel, and upon motion by Dick Lauterbach, supported by John D. McEwen, it was approved that Mr. Demel represent the Township at the Michigan Township Association Convention in Lansing for the purpose of participating in the Township Attorney's forum, relative to the recent amendments to the Township Law, and that he be paid the same per diem rate established for other Township Officials. Carried unanimously.

The resignation of Mr. Bruce Kolak, 9323 Rucker Avenue, from the Planning Commission was reluctantly accepted. The Board passed a Resolution of acknowledgment of appreciation for his years of service on this Commission upon motion of John D. McEwen, supported by Elizabeth Holmes.

Supervisor Lindsay stated in accordance with the new State Constitution he can no longer be a member of the Township Board of Review, accordingly a vacancy exists and he recommended that Mr. Walter M. Abate, 42599 Clemens Drive be appointed to fill this place. Upon motion by John D. McEwen, supported by Elizabeth Holmes, the Supervisor's recommendation was approved unanimously.

A resolution was passed calling for a Special Primary Election on Monday, February 15, 1965, for the purpose of nominating candidates for the State Office of State Senator in the 14th District, upon motion by Elizabeth Holmes, supported by Ralph Garber.

At its Special Meeting held January 6, 1965, with the City of Plymouth Council, Members of the Plymouth Community School Board, and the Plymouth Township Board, it was agreed that each unit of government would appoint two members to study and further the project of a Community Swimming Pool Project. Accordingly, Supervisor Lindsay recommended the appointment of Louis Norman, and Dick Lauterbach as the Plymouth Township representatives. It was moved by C. V. Sparks, supported by Ralph Garber, that the Supervisor's recommendations be concurred in. Carried unanimously.

A resolution from the City of Dearborn Heights requesting to ban the use of trailers in tandem to haul volatile liquids was received and filed. This concluded the agenda for this meeting and the Supervisor requested if there was any other matters to come before this Board. He further noted Mr. and Mrs. Davids in the audience and read a recent meeting of the City of Dearborn Heights. He further noted Mr. and Mrs. Davids in the audience and read a recent meeting of the City of Dearborn Heights. He further noted Mr. and Mrs. Davids in the audience and read a recent meeting of the City of Dearborn Heights.

It was further reported that the Chevrolet Spring and Bumper Plant is now modernizing and will have a new air pollution equipment installed. Also, the Century Spray Company is converting from oil to gas furnaces.

Mr. Mathew McLeilan, Township Building Inspector, called the attention of the Board to Ordinance 14-S, an amendment to Ordinance 14. He stated that he cannot legally issue a building permit on plans submitted by the Plymouth Heritage Apartments as approved by the Planning Commission, December 16, 1964. It was moved by Elizabeth Holmes, supported by C. V. Sparks, that this matter be referred back to the Planning Commission for clarification of this request. Carried unanimously.

Discussion was held on the salaries of the Township Officials. It was moved by Ralph Garber, supported by Louis Norman, that with the commencement of the new term, April 1, 1965, the three Township Officials, Supervisor, Clerk, and Treasurer, be increased $500.00 each over the approved salaries established at its meeting of January 8, 1965. Carried unanimously.

Supervisor Lindsay then recognized Mr. Demel who reopened the Boards previous action relative to the withholding of monies due him for obtaining easements pending the sale of the water and sewer bonds. He stated that the opinion submitted regarding Dunn Court was at the Boards direction and felt that it should come from the General Fund, and further felt that he was not being treated fairly by this Board.

The controversy widened into other charges on other items and into the current easements being obtained from certain Township citizens. At this point Supervisor Lindsay called a recess (10:30 P.M.) and requested the Board to meet in closed session in his office.

The meeting was reconvened at 11:05 P.M. Supervisor Lindsay requested if there was anything else to discuss. There being nothing brought before the Board it was moved by Louis Norman, supported by C. V. Sparks, that the meeting be adjourned. Carried unanimously. Supervisor Lindsay adjourned the meeting at 11:07 P.M.

Approved,
Roy R. Lindsay, Supervisor
Respectfully submitted,
John D. McEwen,
Township Clerk

Special Meeting January 21, 1965

Supervisor Lindsay called the Special Meeting to order at 3:50 P.M., with all members being present.

Supervisor Lindsay stated that this meeting was called for the purpose of discussing the resignation of Township Attorney, Mr. E. Demel in accordance with his communication dated January 13, 1965. Considerable discussion was held relative to the reasons for this resignation, insinuations, and innuendoes, alleged to have been said.

It was determined that inasmuch as the Township Attorney has submitted his resignation by letter dated January 13, 1965, it was moved by C. Veach Sparks, supported by Elizabeth Holmes, that the resignation be acted upon. No further discussion was had and the Supervisor called for a vote.

YES ACCEPTANCE: None.
NO ACCEPTANCE: Louis Norman, C. Veach Sparks, Elizabeth Holmes, Roy Lindsay.

ABSTAINING: John D. McEwen, Ralph Garber, Dick Lauterbach.

Discussion then turned to the validity and legality of this motion. After considerable discussion it was moved by Ralph Garber, supported by Dick Lauterbach, that this meeting be recessed at 6:12 P.M. until Saturday, January 23, 1965, at 9:30 A.M. Carried unanimously.

The meeting was called to order by Supervisor Lindsay on Saturday, January 23, 1965, at 9:30 A.M. with all members being present.

It was moved by Dick Lauterbach, supported by Ralph Garber, that the Board reconsider its previous action taken January 21, 1965, relative to Mr. Demel's resignation. Supervisor Lindsay then called for a vote on the motion to reconsider and it was carried unanimously.

Discussion was then held relative to the action taken by the Board Thursday and the matters previously discussed and the proper procedures to follow to that there can be no misinterpretation of the Board's action.

It was then moved by Dick Lauterbach, supported by C. Veach Sparks, that the letter of resignation from Mr. Demel, Township Attorney, be accepted. The following votes were submitted in accordance with the Supervisor's roll call: AYES: Ralph Garber, John D. McEwen, Dick Lauterbach. NAYS: Louis Norman, C. Veach Sparks, Elizabeth Holmes.

It being a tie vote it was necessary for the Supervisor to cast his vote and he voted nay. Thereby not accepting the letter of resignation.

It was then moved by Louis Norman, supported by Elizabeth Holmes, that the meeting be adjourned. The Supervisor adjourned the meeting at 10:01 A.M.

Approved by,
Roy R. Lindsay, Supervisor
Respectfully submitted,
John D. McEwen,
Township Clerk

PYC Presents Archery Awards

Medals were presented to winners of the archery group of the Plymouth Police Youth Club on Wednesday evening, January 13. The awards were earned for shooting in eight weeks of competition beginning November 4, 1964.

Members competed in three classifications according to their ability to shoot.

Winners were: Class A, first place, Bob Ray; second place, Don Robertson; third place, Mike Krause. Class B, first place, Mike Eckles; second place, Pat Eckles; third place, Carol Magee. Class C, first place, Jim Jabara; second place, Bruce Gillham; third place, John Gabbert.

Shoulder patches, similar to those worn on the uniforms of the members of the police department, were presented to members that had not previously earned them.

Archery supervisor Clifford "Tip" Smith stated that there is now room for more youngsters in the program. Those interested, between the ages of 12 and 17, may apply on Wednesday evening at the Community Building at the corner of Union and Dodge Streets.

Schoolcraft Offers Nursing Degree Program

The Michigan Board of Nursing has notified Mrs. Harriett Sator, Director of Nursing Education, that Schoolcraft College has been granted approval to initiate an Associate Degree Nursing Program to open in the fall of 1965. This program will require two college years, plus one eight-week semester.

At the end of this time, students will receive an Associate Degree from Schoolcraft College, and to meet requirements which will permit them to write the State Board of Nursing Licensing Examination for Registered Nursing.

Application is made through the Admissions Office of Schoolcraft College.

An affiliation for the first year of this Associate Degree Registered Nursing Program has been completed with Sinai Hospital. During the second year, arrangements as called for by the program will be completed.

we're ready to open your youngster's file

Personal attention is absolutely vital in the children's shoe business. That's why we maintain a personal fit folder on each young customer who comes into our store. With it we can accurately record their foot growth. We know exactly when they purchased their last pair and are able to inform you when they are most likely to need new ones. Why not let us open a file on your youngster? It makes things quite a bit easier for you.

Big, Bright Windows, How They were Born

Our windows have come a long way since they were openings cut in the walls of log cabins.

There was no glass, of course, in those far off days. Our pioneers were happy to have greased paper or deer-skin to fill the openings.

When glass became common during the 19th century, the big, bright windows we know today were born — creating a basic need to protect rooms from glare and heat.

From simple methods of protection against this glare and heat have evolved highly decorative window shades and draperies. Nowadays, the window treatment in a room often dominates the entire decorating scheme. Shades have become so important that they're even used alone as a window treatment.

Furnishing fabrics are better than ever, too. And with a few yards of your favorite fabric, you can now make draperies with matching or co-ordinated shades.

You can make window shades in almost any fabric, texture, and pattern. . . and use them with or without draperies.

Shades can live up or tone down every room of your home, bath included.

In expressing your taste, you may want something daring — such as a circus-tent motif of orange-and-white stripe appearing both on your roller shade and on the matching fabric canopy, with a white tassel fringe along the bottom edge. How striking it looks in a playroom!

Or if you lean more towards the conservative, try a tiny geometric or floral motif on your shade to match one bedroom wall covered with the same fabric.

Whatever pattern you

New Machines 'Read' Zip Code

Acting Postmaster James Grater said word from Postmaster General John A. Gronouski in Washington, D.C. indicates a "break-through" has now been made on electronic machines to "read" ZIP-coded addresses.

"The Postmaster General said he expects to begin installing these sophisticated new machines in major post offices starting in about a year," the postmaster explained.

Each machine will be able to sort, as well as read, at the rate of 35,000 letters an hour.

The offices to get the address readers have not been announced, but the local postmaster said they will have significant effects on the mail in and out of each community regardless of whether it gets the new machines.

This is because they will speed incoming mail to smaller offices from major cities and step up the dispatch of mail deposited in smaller communities but which must be processed enroute at major massing points.

The postmaster emphasized, however, introduction of the "seeing eye" device next year does not mean ZIP Code isn't useful already. The machines are a step to help keep pace with the growing volumes of mail.

From Toe to Computer

It all began with fingers and toes. Counting, that is. Then, something a little more scientific was needed — so the abacus was born. Greeks and Romans used pebbles or metal disks as counters, moving them on marked boards to work out problems. Later the counters were strung on wires mounted in a frame. Until our convenient Arabic numbers came into use, people all over the world counted, added and subtracted with an abacus.

The next huge step forward in computing came with the first rumblings of the calculating machine revolution about 80 years ago. It was in 1885 that the first commercially successful comptometer was invented, and the first commercially successful rotary calculator came 26 years later. Bookkeeping methods were revolutionized in 1891 with the first adding-printing machine.

Today, vast calculating machines, or computers, are opening up new vistas in scientific frontiers, and already many of our biggest businesses would be lost without their help.

A whole new industry has appeared in scarcely more than a decade for the design, development, manufacture, maintenance and use of electronic computers. Over 17,000 general purpose computers are now installed in the United States alone and it is believed that within the next decade computers will affect our lives more than any other technological development. They affect us all, because of their influence on economic planning, their ability to compress computation and decision-making into fractions of a second, their facility in directing and controlling other machines, their speed in solving problems too lengthy for manual solution.

Information-processing systems are controlling inventories, simulating business enterprises, designing industrial plants, reducing and analyzing laboratory data and assisting in general research problems. They are controlling complex chemical and manufacturing processes calculating insurance premiums, and scheduling manufacturing and construction activities.

What benefits has the computer brought about? By helping business make the most efficient, fullest use of available resources, computers and information processing systems are in effect enabling businessmen eliminate waste, increase productivity, lower expenses and thereby offer customers a wider variety of products and services at the lowest possible price.

One significant example of improved services are the computers which enable airlines reservation clerks in many different cities to request a reservation on any given flight as much as a year in advance. In just seconds after a clerk presses a few buttons on his desk a central computer flashes back a reply, accepts and records a reservation. Just as quickly, the computer will make a seat available if a reservation is cancelled. Such real-time systems are operating widely in business and industry.

As a public servant, the computer's potential value is limited only by man's imagination. Applications in medicine, education, law enforcement, traffic control and even as a tool to control the rampages of nature represent only a fraction of the benefits to be derived from information processing.

A research institute in Kansas City seeks new uses of old and new drugs by using a computer to rapidly compare all of the chemical characteristics of any drug with those of thousands of other drugs. In this way, the computer can suggest similarities and possible new uses, saving a great deal of experimental time, effort, money, and most importantly, lives.

At the New York Blood Center an electronic computer maintains a record of each pint of blood stored in the blood bank. In approximately two minutes the computer can supply the answer to an emergency telephone request for a particular type of rare blood. It provides either lists of places where such blood is stored or the names, addresses and telephone numbers of appropriate donors. The New York center, which could become a model for similar centers around the country, will help guarantee a supply of blood to the city 24 hours-a-day.

Not very long ago, a noted pediatrician had demonstrated a technique designed to reduce infant death rates and disease. He used a computer to make possible comparison of data on 150,000 deliveries in hospitals all over the country, including such information as the age of the mother, maternal complications, types of delivery and anaesthetics used. With this and related information, it may be possible to reduce newborn deaths by at least 12 to 14 thousand annually.

In New York State, a new department of State Identification and Intelligence is being created, which will use a large-scale electronic computer to provide almost instantaneous information on criminals. The new system will contain the files and archives of 3,600 police forces, law enforcement offices, criminal courts, probation, correction and parole departments in the state. Information to be stored within this new computer system will provide not only records of arrest and court decisions, but also vital information about known criminals. With the speed of electronics, New York law enforcement officials will obtain information, which once required more than two years to gather.

One of the more unusual educational applications was employed recently when a Missouri junior college turned to a computer to assist in planning class room facilities. The administrators wanted a campus where classrooms would be used 80 percent of the time instead of the usual 50 percent at most colleges. The computer digested information on class programs for 4,500 students in 191 different time patterns in a 48-hour week. It then produced an initial report. After adjustments were made for various special requirements, the information was fed back into the computer several times. The computer produced a master plan which school officials will present to architects who will design the school. The school administrators were able to save nearly four million dollars even before the start of construction.

The same type of real-time computers which directed the flight and monitored the condition of America's astronauts are being put to use in more earthly duties. In Toronto, a computer is helping to eliminate and ease traffic jams, the type which confront nearly every major city in the Western World. Some 2,000 remote electronic under the city streets to detect and measure the density and direction of traffic on major arteries. These sensors relay information to a central computer, which analyzes this continuous flow of traffic information many times each second. It then sends out signals to change the pattern of traffic lights throughout the city. When the system is completed, Toronto should experience a 20 percent improvement in traffic flow.

The examples cited here barely scratch the surface of the staggering rumble possible uses for computers. In less than two decades the computing industry has created a new technology and has fostered development of new businesses and services. Its wide application has stimulated new thinking in sensors are being installed many professions and has given new insight into solving old problems.

Computers have created a technology which is contributing billions to the nation's economic growth. In just two short decades, computing systems have become indispensable to our modern society. In so many ways computers are working for the ultimate benefit of the average citizen for a better world.

Save the Children Federation will launch its 23rd Annual Bundle Day Drive on February 15 to collect wearable used clothing. Plymouth Community Schools will serve as the local sponsor for the Bundle Day collection, from Feb. 15, to Feb. 19.

Superintendent of Schools Russell L. Isbister issued an appeal to Plymouth Community, to contribute their wearable used clothing to the collection. Summer and winter coats, dresses, suits, and underwears are needed. The clothing need not be in perfect condition, but it must be sturdy and usable. The schools will serve as collection centers.

Save the Children Federation, international child welfare organization, with headquarters in Norwalk, Connecticut, was founded in 1932. It is registered with the U.S. State Department Advisory Committee on Voluntary Foreign Aid. SCF aids American Indian and Southern Appalachian Mountain children in the United States, and children in sixteen countries abroad, through a program of child, family, and community sponsorships, an international scholarship fund, community self-help projects, and an annual clothing collection. Its work is supported entirely by voluntary funds.

At this meeting, representatives from five Mid-western States discussed guidelines for junior college trustees. Approximately 70 representatives from 36 independent public community colleges located in Illinois, Kansas, Michigan, Missouri, and Ohio participated in the conference sponsored by the Midwest Community College Leadership Program (MWCCLP).

Four presentations were made and discussions held. The first presentation was a discussion of institutions and roles with Dr. Raymond Young, University of Michigan, describing "The University"; Dr. Sigurd Rislov, Wayne State University, discussing "Liberal Arts Colleges"; and Dr. Max Smith, Michigan State University, presenting "The Junior College". The second presentation was "Federal Programs and the Junior College" by Joseph Perkins, Jr., Director, Undergraduate Loans Branch, Bureau of Higher Education, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Office of Education in Washington, D.C.

Dr. Joseph Cosand, President, and Mr. G. V. Williamson, former Chairman of the Board, Junior College District of St. Louis, St. Louis County, discussed "The Long-Range Study of Faculty Relations with Administration and Staff" was the topic considered by Dr. York Willbern, Director, Institute of Public Administration, Indiana University.

Professor George Hall, Director of the MWCCLP discussed "Proposed Guidelines for Junior College Trustees". The conference was coordinated by Dr. Hall and co-sponsored by Michigan State University, Wayne State University, and the University of Michigan and is supported by funds from a grant of the W. K. Kellogg Foundation, Battle Creek, Michigan.

Nature's Most Sensitive Creation: Human Eye

Seeing, the very thing you are doing at this moment, is possible because you possess nature's most sensitive and remarkable creation — the human eye.

Your eyes bring you 83 percent of all your knowledge and guide 90 percent of your actions. Their value is beyond price and they deserve the best and most intelligent care you can give them.

You may see your way clear for a longer period of time, if you take this advice:

(1) Avoid glare: Too much light in a room or work area can be as eye-taxing as too little. Steady reflection from bright shiny surfaces or too white paper can be as tiring as too much sunlight on a field of snow. Make sure you shade all light fixtures and arrange your lamps so that a glare isn't reflected from the book you may be reading.

(2) Rest your eyes: Every eye uses your eyes every minute you're awake, they deserve a little time off now and then. When doing close work over a long period of time, rest your eyes by glancing into the distance for a moment at least once every half hour.

(3) Never rub your eyes: When you get something in your eye, take care. You can do permanent damage if you scratch the cornea. Lift the upper lid and gently pull it down over the lower lid and let tears wash your eye clean.

(4) Be careful watching TV: Don't watch television without some additional light source in the room; the light from the TV screen is not enough and you may strain your eyes.

(5) Check your eyes: Be alert for the eye symptoms that mean trouble. Among the vision changes that should prompt immediate medical attention are seeing double, seeing blurred outlines, seeing halos or rainbows around lights, and seeing poorly in semi-darkness. Other signs of eye trouble are pain, itching, fear of light, tearing to excess, drooping eyelids, red-rimmed eyes and constant headaches.

(6) Eye examinations: Have your eyes examined at least every two years. Adults who are over 40 and children 6-16 should have their eyes checked every year. Although eyes don't "wear out" with use (this is a popular myth) the cornea does change throughout life. Let an eye doctor determine whether you need glasses or not.

(7) Choose your sunglasses with care: The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness urges you to wear properly fitted sunglasses to protect your eyes from excessive light and glare. To provide adequate protection, sunglasses should be large enough to prevent bright light from entering around the edges. Even with the best sunglasses, you should never look directly at the sun.

(8) Safety glasses: Wear them if your job calls for it. Every day 1,000 workers suffer eye injuries in the United States; 90 percent of these accidents are preventable.

Remember, there's no such thing as too much protection for your eyes. Take care of them, and they'll serve you well.

Dog Obedience Classes Offered

Dog obedience classes will be offered through the Plymouth School District adult education program beginning March 8.

They will be held every Monday for eight weeks after that.

A $7 fee for the course may be paid at the adult education office at Plymouth High School. The classes start at 7 for beginners and run until 8:30. From 8:30 to 9:30 the advance dogs will be trained.

Barb Wheaton, a registered AKC judge, will teach the classes. The instructions will be held at Berry Pontiac on Ann Arbor Road.

JACK CASSINI

Baseball Coach Packs Bags For South

Jack Cassini, 1330 Carol class "A" ballclub in the Carolina League. The Grays are affiliated with the Reds and are home-based in Newport News, Va.

Cassini is currently area supervisor for the baseball scouts of the Cincinnati Reds, a post which is generally known as "trouble shooter."

He spends his winters corresponding with other scouts and prospects.

But come spring (spring is the first of March for baseball players) Cassini is off for the deep south, where he either coaches or plays, or both, for one of the minor league teams.

This year like last he will coach the Peninsula Grays, a class "A" ballclub in the Carolina League. The Grays are affiliated with the Reds and are home-based in Newport News, Va.

ANYBODY WHO thinks its nice to leave the icy north to work in the sunny south ought to think twice. Cassini's team plays a grueling schedule, like most major and minor league ball clubs.

It's a long season — April 15 until Sept. 15 — with 148 games jammed in. That almost always works out to one game 6 days a week. Cassini obviously relishes his job and is quick to say:

"It's been an interesting life. I wouldn't trade it for anything." Cassini has played baseball most of his life. He turned to the minor league pros in 1939 right out of high school. He played a year with Tiffin, Ohio, an independent team, then went to Ogden, Utah.

A World War came up and he spent four years in the service as an athletic director at Tinker Air Force Base, Oklahoma City. Here he played service ball — both basketball and baseball.

After the war he had a stint with Syracuse, then Oklahoma City, then Tulsa, a Chicago Cub team.

After two years at Indianapolis, he had a taste of the Big Leagues when he played for Pittsburgh. This was in 1949.

Professional ball players jump around a lot and Cassini was no exception. In 1950 he went to St. Paul, where he played four years. Then a quick stand at Montreal, followed by two years as player-coach of the Memphis team in the Southern Association.

THE NEXT year he came to the Cincinnati group, which is where he stands now. Sandwiched in between all this were several winters of playing in Cuba and Puerto Rico.

How did Jack Cassini do? He was a second baseman and has a lifetime batting average of .306. That's better than average in any league, from Tiffin, Ohio to Pittsburgh.

Cassini has managed and scouted these last few years for the Reds — since 1957 to be exact.

He came to Plymouth in 1958 with his wife Rosemary and their two children Lora, 9, and Cathleen, 13. Whenever Dad picks up and leaves, they go along.

Cassini's face is strong and friendly and you can tell he has a lot of friends in the baseball world.

Cassini calls it a "good business" to be in. But its obviously been more than a business. Its been a job, a hobby, a travel ticket all rolled into one.

What does he like the most? Well, playing and "The wonderful thing about it is, in traveling you constantly are running into old acquaintances.

Coach Cassini's travels have taken him to all but three states of the 50, and his friends expect he'll get to those soon.

Name Plymouthite Fisher Executive

F. Harger Green, 595 Simpson, was appointed production manager at the Fisher Body plant in Livonia, last week.

Green replaces Paul D. Pender who has been promoted to plant manager. He is married and has two children.

A 1940 business administration graduate of Albion College, Green started with Fisher Body at the Pontiac plant. After nearly five years of service as a Captain in U.S. Army Ordnance during World War II, he returned to Fisher Body as a payroll auditor at the Flint No. 1 plant.

In 1948, he transferred to the plant's labor standards department where he became supervisor of labor standards in 1953. Green came to the Livonia plant in the same capacity in 1954. He was appointed superintendent of labor standards in 1961, and to shift superintendent in the trim fabrication department in 1963.

A tractor for towing semi-trailers is particularly maneuverable. It has an offset cab from which the driver can see behind as well as ahead. It has two sets of controls (forward and reverse) and steers on all wheels.

BASEBALL COACH Jack Cassini leaves Plymouth for Virginia where he'll coach a minor league team affiliated with the Cincinnati Reds. Cassini, who expects to leave the 1st of March, is married and has two children.

Starkweather School Slates Carnival, Feb. 13

Starkweather School's annual carnival is slated for Saturday, Feb. 13 from 5-8 p.m.

It will feature a cake walk, teddy bear walk, lollipop tree, game room and spook house.

District P.T.A. representative Mrs. William Porter, of Troy, will discuss the work of state and national P.T.A. programs at Starkweather's Feb. 9 meeting.

Weasels are of considerable economic importance in the farmlands where they occur. Authorities estimate they kill millions of mice and rats each year.

Of the world's total supply of sugar, about two thirds comes from sugar cane. The other third is delivered from beets which can be grown successfully in cooler climates.

A new technique in soil conservation is called "vertical mulching." A subsoiler opens a trench 18 inches deep and a forage harvester packs it with crop residues.
