The aircraft hit the tree, and the wires, lower left, landed belly-down in a corn field, above, with a crumpled wing tilted awkwardly upward, lower right. The $16,000 plane was a total loss.

Cape in court on ordinance violation

Thomas Cape, builder of the Byron Ave. Bryn Mawr apartment development, will face charges of violating City ordinances Wednesday night in Municipal Court.

He has been charged by building inspector Charles Thompson with allowing one of his units to be occupied without a proper occupancy permit. The permit is issued only after final inspection.

Thompson gave Cape a notice of violation ticket.

Thompson said the fine ranges from $25 to $500 with a possibility of 90 days in jail.

The apartment in question is Apt. F of building E, 1098 Byron where, until recently, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hall lived. They have moved out.

Thompson said Cape asked for a final inspection Monday, but it was not ready for a final ok.

"He won't take advice," Thompson noted. "He goes ahead and does what he wants to do, and then gets in trouble."

THOMPSON further noted the case may take more than one night if Cape pleads not guilty and the Halls have to be subpoenaed.

This is one of several run-ins with City law that Cape has had. He may also face legal action on his unlawful paving of Byron Ave., which came to light at the City Commission meeting two weeks ago.

Township begins study of public safety director post

Proper leadership in Plymouth Township's fire department and the possibility of a safety director were discussed at a special meeting of the Township Board of Trustees last Tuesday, August 3.

The matter of a public safety director for Plymouth Township was first brought up during the July meeting of the Board by Trustee Ralph Garber.

Garber had commented at some length about the new position and said: "We need a man who can spend time as an executive rather than fighting fires."

The Board agreed to have the Township Fire Administrative Board draw up a list of qualifications for the safety director.

The Board minutes note they are seeking a "person with proper background and experience in administrative procedure to correlate the proper functioning of the fire department and a potential police department."

Plymouth Township supervisor John McEwen had commented on the matter in an interview after the July meeting.

"We are working on that matter now . . . getting figures together. It is desirable if there is sufficient activity. I question our being able to hire a competent public safety director for less than $8,500 to $9,000. There may well be not enough activity in the Township to warrant such a position."

Township treasurer Elizabeth Holmes commented this week that it was "time for that type of action. We've talked about it and put it off. Now it's time to do it. Still, by the time we draw up specifications and work on it, it will be a couple, three months."

In other fire department matters, the Board authorized civil service examinations for an eligibility list for fire fighter, class 1. This matter was also brought up at the July meeting when it was reported only one man was on the potential list, and he had moved away.

A REPORT on the improvement of Sheldon Road north of the C&O tracks was presented by Township supervisor John McEwen. McEwen, who was appointed to the Wayne County Board of Supervisor's committee on roads and bridges almost immediately after he took office, said right away acquisition would be in the 1966 budget.

The project would widen Sheldon Road from C&O tracks to Five Mile Road.

The plans would enhance the proposed industrial park on the farm land directly north of Western Electric immediately west of Sheldon. McEwen reported to the Mail last week that he personally had had three inquiries about the land. Planning consultants and engineers have drawn up

Board studies 1965 tax rate, reading improvement program

The possibility of expanded reading improvement programs, and passage of a 3.2 mill hike in the 1965 tax rate came up at the Monday meeting of the school board.

It was the regular second Monday of the month meeting of the Plymouth Community School District Board of Education.

Mrs. Esther Hulsing, chairman of the curriculum committee raised the question of the reading improvement programs, and language programs in the junior high schools.

"When are we going to think about language in the junior high schools?", Mrs. Hulsing asked.

Board member Robert Soth facetiously replied. "Oh, 1967."

Russell Isbister, superintendent of schools, said he didn't want the impression left that there was no reading going on.

"We have a tremendous flow of books. There is a great volume of reading going on."

MRS. HULSING agreed but asked: "What about the kid whose parents couldn't care less?" Isbister replied: "I wouldn't sit here and say we're doing everything we could do."

Isbister noted the school system had added reading specialists, and noted that many teachers had taken special courses in reading.

The matter was handed to Mrs. Hulsing for a report, and possible study.

On the setting of the 1965 tax rate at a total of 26.95 mills, considerable discussion was held upon the objections of Robert Jenkins to the motion.

Jenkins voted 'no' on setting the rate until the figures had been re-examined.

"I think an 'a priori' conclusion on my part would be premature. I would prefer to have a meeting where we could go through the arithmetic."

FOUR-DAY WINGDING

Antique Mart to bring Gay Nineties memories to Festival

By JOHN HERB
Fall Festival
Publicity Chairman

It's official—the gold and orange oak leaves flutter from the lamp posts in downtown Plymouth and their banners announce that the 1965 Fall Festival will be held Sept. 9, 10, 11 and 12.

Soon, before the frost is on the pumpkin, the Plymouth Community will turn back the clock for its festival days.

Opening at noon Friday, Sept. 10, and running throughout the balance of the Festival, will be the famous Antique Mart operated by the Plymouth Symphony League.

It is the consensus of opinion among antique dealers that the Antique Mart, sponsored by the Plymouth Symphony League, is one of the finest in the state. This year, twenty dealers will be displaying and selling their choice treasures at the Community Building and the Grange Hall.

From Farmington will come dealers noted for their fine primitives and furniture. Ann Arbor dealers will feature glass and old books. Indeed, dealers will be on hand from all the major antique centers of Michigan and adjoining states.

Members of the Plymouth Symphony League have worked hard to make this one of their best antique markets. Over 8,000 calico squares have been made to be used in decorations. As an added touch, Symphony League members and their children will be dressed in costumes from the turn of the century.

The Antique Mart will open at noon Friday, Sept. 10 and will be open from noon to 10 p.m. Sept. 10, 11, and 12. Refreshments will be served by members of the Plymouth Grange.

In addition to the Antique Mart, a number of other interesting and varied activities will be featured each day of the Festival. Thursday evening, Sept. 9, the Business and Professional Women's Club will hold an old fashioned German Night in Kellogg Park.

Featured will be Knockwurst and Sauerkraut, German Chocolate Cake, with a German band for entertainment.

FRIDAY evening, Sept. 10, the Lions Club will have their Melon and Ice Cream Social in the park.

Saturday, Sept. 11, the Kiwanis Club will again serve their delicious pancakes and sausage all day long.

Climaxing Saturday will be a square dance, with the Jay-Cees operating a chuckwagon to provide food for the evening.

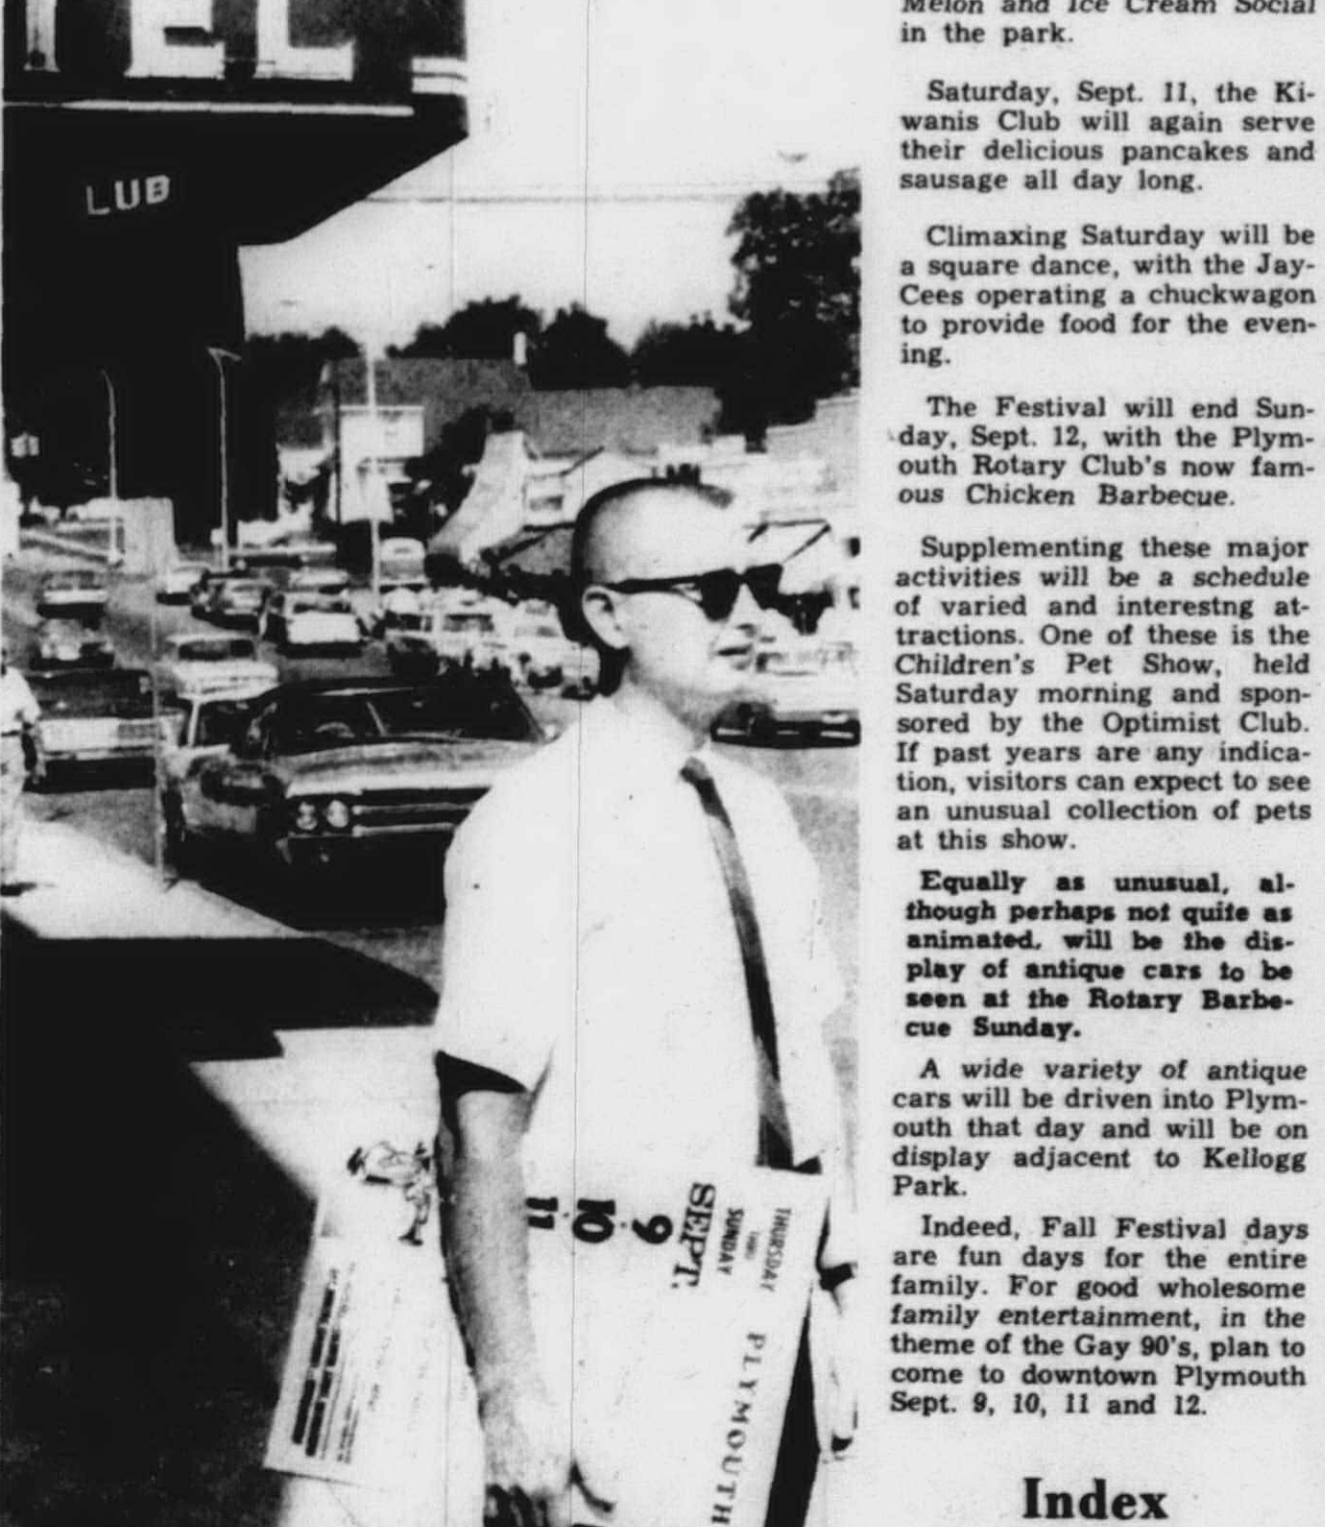

The Festival will end Sunday, Sept. 12, with the Plymouth Rotary Club's now famous Chicken Barbecue.

Supplementing these major activities will be a schedule of varied and interesting attractions. One of these is the Children's Pet Show, held Saturday morning and sponsored by the Optimist Club. If past years are any indication, visitors can expect to see an unusual collection of pets at this show.

Equally as unusual, although perhaps not quite as animated, will be the display of antique cars to be seen at the Rotary Barbecue Sunday.

A wide variety of antique cars will be driven into Plymouth that day and will be on display adjacent to Kellogg Park.

Indeed, Fall Festival days are fun days for the entire family. For good wholesome family entertainment, in the theme of the Gay 90's, plan to come to downtown Plymouth Sept. 9, 10, 11 and 12.

EARL HARRINGTON, Fall Festival manager, and a teacher in the Plymouth schools, spends much of his time in the summer handling the ever-increasing amount of administrative details and leg work. He passed out the orange and black Fall Festival posters all last week.

The Sporting Life
Jousting mailboxes
a fun sport

Doug Johnson

One of the natural bents of teenagers is the desire for thrills of almost any nature. Mixing youthful exuberance and devastating freedom of movement, today's teen can find almost anything to satisfy his desire to raise hell.

It came to my attention that an old pastime was taking on more vicious and modern tactics in the Plymouth Community . . . the great old sport — destruction of mail boxes. Imagine this.

You are whizzing down the country road late at night, armed with an old car, a large piece of wood mounted in some way on the car for jousting at unsuspecting mailboxes. Zap! You hit one at 50 miles an hour. You see metal box, red flag, post, wood and letters all go flying about the car for a split second.

The phantom mailbox killer strikes again! And again!

And so on into the night, the great fun goes on. A firecracker dropped in a mailbox explodes and destroys the thing; next morning a rural mail carrier is faced with a bent up mass of metal that looks like a marshmallow.

People you don't like you get on a regular basis — two or three times a month.

Wait until pumpkin season. To the pumpkin patch, load up on pumpkins, and off you go.

Ever see what a 40 pound pumpkin does to a four pound mailbox when hooked from a sixty-mile-an-hour car? Oh, it's beautiful.

And watermelon is available in the summer.

A call to the local postal authorities revealed that it has always gone on sporadically. The Post Office has no way of prosecuting if and when anyone gets caught, unless mail has been damaged or the mail stolen; then it becomes a Federal offense.

The Sheriff department's hands are tied unless a victim knows exactly who did it. It is a crime, and a complaint can be filed if a license number is available.

Aside from that, mailboxes are fair and easy game.

We, in the adult world, have always told ourselves with that particular brand of severity, that always ends with us forgetting our youth, and paying ourselves a compliment, that we, somehow, weren't as bad as today's teens. We were better because we knew when to quit. We were the camp followers of too much work makes Jack a dull boy, but we knew where to draw the line.

Our heads would have to be filled with sawdust if we really believed that.

Ever try to tell a seventeen year old boy that gets decent grades, is going to your old college, and that has a couple of nice girl friends, that he ought to spend more time at home instead of ramming around the countryside?

"Maybe you should read a good book," you'll say.

"Like what," he'll say. Already, he's got you.

"Oh, gee, like 'Ivanhoe,' or 'Black Beauty,' or something like that," you'll say.

That funny look is because he struggled through a Classic Comic book version of 'Ivanhoe' in the tenth grade, and never will read 'Black Beauty,' thank goodness.

According to a recent survey in Look Magazine: "Youthfulness brings us liabilities — lack of taste at times, lack of judgement, at others." 'Ivanhoe' is taste?

Like our own confusing war in Viet Nam, there is no answer to a teen's battle against the adult world. Perhaps only that it never seems to end, and that the solution is somehow us being parents that aren't bonehead enough to suggest staying home and reading 'Ivanhoe.'

Teams in Class 'E' didn't play two complete rounds due to a lack of time, Woolweaver added.

Brickbat for builder...

There is a tendency on the part of all of us as human beings to grow a trifle weary with the workings of governmental apparatus.

We complain about taxes.
We mutter about red tape.

We decry the slowness of bureaucratic processes, both local and national.

But most of us realize that the keystone of civilized society is government and we take little conscious action against the system that, in the final analysis, is the reason human progress has attained its current level.

From time to time, however, there are individuals who lose sight of the fact that systematic rules and regulations are established—not only for the good of the individual—but for the greater good of society as a whole.

And when the individual flaunts these rules and is contemptuous of them, civilized society as a whole is the loser.

A local case in point.

Local apartment builder Thomas Cape seems to have made it his pre-occupation to skirt the edge of rules and regulations established by the City of Plymouth. In development of his Bryn Mawr apartment projects, located in the southern end of the City, Cape has repeatedly violated municipal rules.

Earlier this year, at the May 3 meeting of the city commission, Cape was taken to task for his policies (or lack thereof) in development.

At that time, it was pointed out that he took out a single family residence building permit with no intention to build such a structure. Then he went ahead and roughed in walls and fixtures for apartments.

Technically, Cape can legally do this as long as he has only one kitchen in the building. This is what he did, earmarking other kitchens as "lounge areas." At that time, City Attorney Edward F. Draugelis told the builder:

"You can't do this. Time and time again you've gone ahead without first getting approval."

It was at the same May meeting that commissioners turned down Cape's request for the city to dedicate to him part of Byron Ave., behind the A & P building, so he could bring his land space up to building requirements for 32 apartment units.

Recently, Cape took it upon himself to pave the property which the city had refused to give him. He had asked for permission to pave the area but was told to wait for a report from city engineers.

Draugelis told the commission last week that the paving operation was in violation of city law.

Whether Cape is aware of it or not, laws are made for a reason. They are formulated for the protection of all. And his contempt for the law is a black eye for all of us.

We get no pleasure out of hurling editorial brickbats at individuals; but it seems that Thomas Cape, just like Joe Doaks, should be made to obey city regulations.

City officials should not permit him to act as though jurisprudence is applicable to everyone except himself.

...bouquet on bikes

A two-wheeled problem which could use a little fixing was brought before Plymouth's city commission last week when a local resident made an appearance before the legislative group.

Kenneth R. Bisbee of 440 N. Harvey St. expressed his concern about the bicycle safety situation in Plymouth.

He is right.

There is little or no control over cyclists in Plymouth and, as he pointed out, someone is bound to get hurt.

Any day of the week, it's not hard to stumble over bicycles which kids have strewn outside downtown stores on the sidewalks. More than a few citizens have come within an ace of cracking their craniums on the concrete after tripping over a bike.

Neither is it a difficult task to get oneself mowed down by a rider on the sidewalk nor to mow one down when he darts into the street in front of your car.

The Plymouth Optimists club has taken an interest and promoted a bicycle safety program, for which they deserve credit and praise.

But it seems to us that more is needed.

We wouldn't want to see a situation in which local kids couldn't have fun on their bikes; but we do feel that Bisbee merits a bouquet and city officials should take seriously his suggestions that a licensing program be adopted and present ordinances be re-evaluated.

A RESIDENT OF PLYMOUTH, Mary Vallier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arch Vallier, portrayed the English Cockney girl in the Caseville Summer Enrichment Program's musical comedy, My Fair Lady, which recently played before more than 2,500 people in four nights. Miss Vallier, extreme right, received encore after encore for renditions of such numbers as "I Could Have Danced All Night," "Show Me," "Wouldn't It Be Lovely," "The Rain in Spain" and others. Playing opposite Miss Vallier was Mark Rummel of Sebawang, at left, who was Prof. Henry Higgins, the language professor who turned Miss Vallier (Eliza Doolittle) from a flower girl to the hit of the Ambassador's Ball. This is the fifth year that the Caseville Program was staged, and all of them have been under the direction of Pat Ankney, music instructor at Essexville High School. Average age level of the show's participants is slightly over 13 years of age.

By DAVE WILEY

My wife and I are failures. For going on 10 years now, we have done everything in our power to be good parents. Because of my Marine Corps training, I tend to be overstrict and old cohort has been a restraining influence.

"Quit beating the child and reason with her," she will say.

On the other hand, she, like all mothers, is unduly lenient and I do my best to provide counsel.

"Stop talking and clobber the kid," I suggest.

We have alternately counseled and reasoned and occasionally punished; and now we learn that we are all washed up.

We aren't understanding parents.

All this we learned the other evening when I was absent mindedly riffling through the monthly offering that McCall's Magazine sends us.

Naturally, I read "Betsy McCall Writes a Letter from Camp" first, cut old Betsy out and dressed her in her camp clothes, and then I turned to other portions of the publication.

An advertisement caught my eye and I read it. "Hey, old thing," I said, "are you an understanding mother?"

"Of course I am," she answered.

"Uh oh," I said, "more money to spend."

"What in the world are you talking about?"

"This ad. Listen: 'The understanding mother knows that the formative years are the most important years in her daughter's life—the years for which "Littlest Angel" expanding bra was especially designed.

"And, because your child's emotional needs often outweigh her physical requirements, this bra . . . will give her confidence in herself—and in you.

"It tells her that you are truly An Understanding Mother."

"You're kidding," she said.

"Wanna bet? Here, read it."

And so the Wiley parents found out that, not only aren't we understanding parents, we have no desire to be.

I have long been in a state of semi-repressed rage about our Mickey Mouse society's penchant for accelerating the wants of youngsters; and the "Littlest Angel" ad really ticked me off.

It's bad enough that the big girls have to fight emotional problems because they aren't well developed without some nitwit designing brassieres" in sizes 28, 30, 32, 34, 36. One size cup," which is to say flat.

McCall's pretty well negated the effort, however, by publication of an extended interview with Katherine Anne Porter, celebrated author of "Ship of Fools." The interview carries over on the facing page and Miss Porter makes these comments:

"Today's youngsters know far too much about sex far too early, and it has destroyed something that was rather nice . . . When I was a girl, a girl and a boy together at a party didn't take their minds off each other for one split second, yet all we could do was look at each other. But oh, what a lot we got from those looks. . . .

"But they have destroyed something that ought to exist in sex. God knows it's an animal instinct; but we are not four-footed creatures, and when it's debased, we're destroying something profound in human nature. Today's children know so much about sex they can dance without touching each other—narcissistically, by themselves, a ritual that has nothing to do with real dancing. Dancing should provide great pleasure, based on sexual attraction to one another, not preoccupation with self."

For those, however, who should latch on to Miss Porter as the epitome of domestic wisdom, it's worth a look at her next comment to the interviewer.

"But," she says, "let's get back to my marriages."

This is not normally a corner that devotes itself to activities of a social nature because, if I set myself to write a wedding story, it would come out sounding like a cross between Max Schulman and Doug Johnson—which, let's face it, is a horrible thing to contemplate.

For a few short paragraphs, though, I must deviate.

Mayflower Hotel Manager Ralph Lorenz and his family outdid themselves at Saturday evening's wedding of their daughter, Sheila.

The Lorenz family's transformation of the old I.O.O.F. Hall into the Mayflower Meeting House is nothing short of a local masterpiece and it underscores the Lorenz's legendary faith in downtown Plymouth. Actually, by Friday evening, the project had escalated into a community affair with former mayor Harold Guenther washing basins in the gal's john and bearded Doctor A. C. "Ace" Williams offering sage advice and help.

At any rate, Saturday is now a delightful fait accompli.

The crowd was happy, the music was good, the food was out of this world and Sheila and her mother, Mabel, were beautiful, beautiful, beautiful as bride and bride's mother.

Oh, yeah, Ralph. I don't think he'd like it if I said he was beautiful. He just looked like a proud papa.

Sheila Lorenz weds Frederick Osann

Sheila Beth Lorenz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph G. Lorenz of Ann Arbor Tr., and Lieut. Frederick Reiner Osann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Osann, Jr. of Birmingham, spoke their marriage vows in an Aug. 7 ceremony.

The Rev. Jay P. Coulton performed the double ring evening rites in St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, Livonia.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a Bianchi gown of white silk organza. Finely tucked pleats comprised the bodice and re-embroidered alencon lace was applied in the belle skirt and flare sleeves.

A chapel train of peau de soie fell from her shoulders and a crown of valley lilies held her bouffant veil of imported illusion.

She carried a cascade of Amazon lilies, philoneopsis and lilies of the valley.

Linda Aho of Detroit, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Sharon Noetzel of Bloomfield Hills, and the bridegroom's sister Carol Osann of Birmingham. Another sister of the bridegroom, Sally Osann, was flower girl, and the bride's brother, Randy Lorenz, was ring bearer.

The bride's three attendants and flower girl wore floor-length gowns of white Swiss lace over azure taffeta. Their empire waists were accented with narrow satin ribbon and the girls carried antique white lanterns with cascades of graduations of blue delphiniums.

Serving the bridegroom as best man was John Russ of Dowagiac. Guests were seated by Frank Russ of Dowagiac, Randolph White of Ann Arbor and the bride's brothers, Kirk and Staton Lorenz.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Lorenz selected a floor-length gown of printed silk chiffon with velvet accents. The bridegroom's mother wore a floor-length yellow chiffon over white silk gown.

Following a reception in the Mayflower Meeting House, the couple left on their wedding trip to Tides Inn, Irvington, Va. Mrs. Osann selected a three-piece wine silk outfit for her going-away costume.

Both the bride and bridegroom graduated from Michigan State University in June. Mrs. Osann was affiliated with Gamma Phi Beta sorority and her husband was a member of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity.

HICKORY CURED . . . ?

Folks used to think rheumatism could be cured by carrying a hickory nut. Today, we laugh at these old wives' remedies. We have so many reliable, quick-acting medications now. Medical discoveries in recent years have eliminated or greatly eased untold pain and suffering. But, remember—most medicines should be used only upon the advice of your physician. When you or a member of your family become ill, see your doctor first. Then come to us for the medicine he prescribes.

Africa and me A vacation tour of modern Ghana

by Lon Dickerson

Note: Lon Dickerson, a Plymouth resident who is with the Peace Corps in Africa, is a regular correspondent for The Plymouth Mail. He has been especially busy with his duties, but found time to submit a column this week.

The schools in Sienna Leone are closed now for the long break, and it is vacation time. I'm taking the opportunity to travel through other countries in West Africa. Making the month long trip with me are two other Peace Corps Volunteers.

We left Freetown by Plane on July 24. A pleasant five and a half hour flight brought us to Accra, Ghana, a distance of 970 miles.

We spent four and a half days in Ghana. In that time we were able to travel to various parts of the country.

One day was spent walking around the capital city, Accra. It is a charming city of 350,000 people. Everywhere there are new, modern buildings and roads. We visited such places as the libraries, museums, and parliament in our tour. The real city, however, was seen as we walked through it.

ANOTHER day we traveled to Kumasi, the second largest city in the country and headquarters of the Ashanti Tribe. It too is a modern city. Of special interest here was the beautiful Kwame Nkwemeh University where we spent the night.

Transportation to and from Kumasi was troublesome. We left Accra in a small bus which crowded together 22 people. The total distance of the trip was 168 miles, but less than a third of the way to Kumasi the fanbelt on the bus broke and we had to flag down a lorry to complete the journey.

We planned to return to Accra by bus the next day in four hours, but three flat tires along the way extended the trip to nine hours.

On still another excursion into the interior of Ghana we hitchhiked 68 miles to Akasumbu, site of the Volta River Dam. When completed the project will provide electricity to industries and homes throughout most of the country. The American government is providing a large portion of the money to build the dam.

The dam, the modern buildings and the good roads linking the country together are signs of Ghana's rapid modernization.

The land too is very beautiful. Around Accra there are grasslands and toward Kumasi the tropical rain forests. Both offer a visitor many interesting sights. All towns and villages are much cleaner than in many other West African countries.

The Ghanaians are an extremely friendly and charming people. Everywhere we went we were met with smiles and a helping hand or advice. Their most common national costume, a toga draped over one shoulder, is very colorful.

Throughout our stay we were served many delicious varieties of African food. Fried plantains (similar to bananas), charcoal-broiled liver, and broiled corn on the cob along the roads were enjoyable extras.

The sheer beauty of the country, the advantages of modernization and the charm of the people made our tour of Ghana very interesting and memorable.

Come to Church

What a disappointment! You had a tremendous drive, the perfect chip shot, and a brilliant putt; then your ball stopped a hairsbreadth from the edge of the cup. The birdie you thought was yours didn't materialize.

Of course, it's only a game; it doesn't really matter. But blighted hopes are not always so trivial. What if something really big passes you by? Suppose you don't get that promotion, your son's scholarship is given to someone else, an important client changes his mind, or the stock market wipes out your investment? Where do you turn? Where do you find strength to meet life's disillusionments?

Spiritual values are constant. Fortunes may shift and change but your Church stands firm. The truths and inspiration you find there give meaning, purpose, and stability to your life.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL - ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

To orient new PHS students

School in the Plymouth Community School District will begin September 7, the Tuesday after Labor Day, according to school officials.

One more orientation session is slated for August 17; all incoming sophomores and new students should attend if they haven't been to a previous one.

Plymouth High School Principal Carvel Bentley and Assistant Principal Gus Gorguse will conduct the sessions. All incoming sophomores are asked to attend, and any high school students new to the district.

A student new to the district must check at the guidance office at the high school as soon as possible; the office is open from 8:30 to 4.

John Hoben, head of the guidance office, reported last week that two or three new students come in each day.

"We had two from Chicago last week, and one from Whittier, California. It will get heavier, and we'll have about 15 or 20 the first day.

To register at the guidance office, a student's family must be a resident of the school district. All prospective students who do not reside in the district will be required to pay a day-to-day tuition until such time they move into the district.

Superintendent of Schools Russell Isbister said it was not a local rule, but a state law. Tuition is $1.56 per day for elementary children, and $1.68 for secondary school children, grades 7-12.

Parents must reside within the district. Residency in a motel, or at the Mayflower Hotel does count, and no tuition would have to be paid on that basis.

Harold R. Compton "I'll never rust out."

He's 75 and retired, but hard at work

"I tell my daughters that I may wear out, but I'll never rust out."

These are the words of Harold R. Compton, 75-year-old retired factory worker who keeps active by continuing to work.

"I worked for 42 years at the foundry, the old Stall plant, then it was University Stamping. The only reason I quit is because they went out of business."

Compton quit at 68, but ever since has worked either painting, or doing minor fix-it work around town. Last week he was perched atop a ladder painting rooms in the home of Florence Gould, 44707 Ann Arbor Road. He polished off the week repainting his wife's bedroom.

"Too many people retire and sit down and that's it," Compton says. When asked the age-old question of how he managed to work at his age he said:

"I'm up at 6 a.m.; eat anything I like and go to bed when I'm ready. Above all, I guess I stay active." Compton is a spry man, with a crackling sense of humor.

The depression left Compton without a wife. He raised four daughters, and in the process learned to cook, wash, iron and sew.

He still does today. "When the big snow came, I made some cafe curtains for the breakfast nook," Compton said last week.

His second wife Mildred gets a great kick out of this. "He can cook, too", she notes proudly.

The Comptons, who live at 11019 Gold Arbor, are members of the First Baptist Church. Compton is a Sunday school teacher, also, in his spare time.

He works mostly for retired people who can't afford too much on painting or repairs.

A life-time Plymouth resident, he concludes: "I'm thankful I have good health. At 75 there aren't too many."

Pair beaten in car while camping

Two Plymouth youths ran from a crazed escaped inmate in the wilds of Northern Michigan after he had beaten them on the head early Saturday. Doug Jaskierny, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Jaskierny, 41960 Brentwood and Jay Reynolds, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Reynolds, 42011 Brentwood, were sleeping in a makeshift bed in the back seat and trunk of their car when the man attacked.

Both were beaten badly about the face before they could escape down the road.

They were on an isolated stretch of M-18 near Prudenville, a town close to Houghton Lake. They were on a camping trip.

The pair was taken to the Grayling Mercy Hospital, patched up, and released to their parents.

THE YOUTHS report the man woke them up when he started hitting them with what they thought was a flashlight. They got out of the car and the man screamed at them to "get out of here."

The state police told Mrs. Jaskierny that the man had escaped on the 26th of last month. The man took a flashlight and a little food. He took no money, or articles of value.

Jay Reynolds related his experiences to the Mail Tuesday:

"About 6:30 I guess . . . this guy started beating the heck out of us, trying to shut the trunk. . . ."

"We decided to get out of there . . . We were bleeding real bad by then. We started to walk down the road. About two or three minutes from where we had gotten beaten, we saw a cottage. We woke the guy up and he took us to the State Police. . . ."

Don Byers loses fight for life

Don Byers, 30, of 11257 Stark Road, lost a valiant fight for his life last Tuesday when he died of injuries he received in a freak accident in March.

He died in Mt. Carmel Hospital of head injuries suffered when a car on which he was working slipped off a jack at McAllister's Standard Service on Northville Road March 4.

The injuries were termed severe, and he underwent complicated brain surgery several times. He had been at home under intensive care, but had lapsed into coma when he was returned to Mt. Carmel.

Elton McAllister had started a drive to help the stricken father of three, a drive that a spokesman for the family termed "very successful."

Mr. Byer's services were held Saturday at Wilkie Funeral Home at 1 p.m. Burial was at Grand Lawn.

He is survived by his wife Rena; his parents, Eldon and Sylvia Byers; one brother and two sisters; and three children, Sandra, Thomas and Dawn.

Wendell Miller

(Continued from Page 1) a member of the First United Presbyterian Church of Plymouth and a member of the Community Fund Board. He also was life member and Past Master of Northville Masonic Lodge 186, F & A.M.

As a member of the University of Michigan Alumni association, he held a distinguished service award in the association. He graduated Phi Beta Kappa from the University of Michigan.

Born December 23, 1898 in Tecumseh, he was the son of Ernest E. Miller and Pearl Simmons.

Arriving in the Plymouth Community in 1950 from Detroit, he spent his early life in Northville, graduating from Northville High School.

He is survived by his wife Dorothy T.; his mother Mrs. Ernest E. (Pearl) Miller of Northville; one daughter, Mrs. William E. (Carol Ann) Stirtan, Jr. of Plymouth; two sons, Ernest E. of Madison Heights and Harry J. Miller of Livonia.

Services were held from the Schrader Funeral Home on Tuesday, August 10 with the Rev. Edward Castner officiating. Burial was in Rural Hill Cemetery, Northville.

School Board

(Continued from Page 1) Jenkins noted: "I would rather make my decision then, not merely justify it." The motion of Robert Soth to set the rate at 26.95 was passed 5-1, with Jenkins voting 'no'.

SCHOOL BOARD president Gerald Fischer replied: "I am satisfied after months and months of study that we don't have any leeway."

Fischer, however, did comment there may be a possibility of changing the individual operating and debt fund totals.

As a result of Jenkins' objections, a special meeting of the school board was set for Aug. 30. The finance committee may meet in advance of the Aug. 30 meeting. It is possible that the millage total could be changed at that time. The tax rate has to be set by September 1.

the tabs were going exactly the wrong way. The tree broke the fall, according to Cairns.

Parts of the plane were lodged in the tree, and on the wires. Cairns further noted that it was not the airport's fault.

THE FEDERAL Aviation Agency is investigating the accident and will make a complete study of the case, according to a spokesman from Mettetal Airport. They will examine the wreckage, and even take apart the engine, if they feel it's necessary.

The $16,000 plane was listed as a total wreck. The clock in the cockpit stopped at 2:06. Firemen were called at 2:20.

Canton planners shelve request for variance in lot dimensions

Canton Township planners agreed to table a lot variance request for Holiday Park, their first big subdivision, at their regular meeting last week.

They decided to await a legal opinion from their attorney, William Sempliner, who is on vacation in the Alaskan wilds.

Ellis Brownstein, spokesman for Goodell Builders of Detroit, one of two companies building homes in Joseph Bloch's development on Joy Road, asked for a one-foot variance on about one-third of 88 lots.

Canton Township ordinances set minimum requirements for side lot widths, and one of Goodell's homes is a foot too long. They sell three models, all about equally, so about one-third of the lots would lack a foot in meeting standards.

PLANNING commission members were only lukewarm to the idea. Member Richard Palmer commented: "I felt the request was very general, and we are actually setting a precedent. We are hesitant to grant such a variance."

Brownstein noted that he could cut the house down by one foot in certain areas, and meet FH requirements.

Bart Berg felt the matter should go before the board of appeals. "We may approve in principle here, but it should go through the appeals board."

Wesley Kaiser noted that it was not necessary to grant the request, and also felt it was a matter for the appeals board.

Palmer moved the matter be tabled pending a legal opinion as to who could rule on the request.

Brownstein indicated his models were done, that his homes would sell from $14,500 and up, and that Signature Homes was aiding him in the project.

A request from Julie McMath, 41500 Michigan Ave., for proper zoning on a parcel of land for multiple dwellings, a duplex and a home, was reviewed. The matter was referred to Canton's planning consultants Parkins, Rodgers and Associates.

David Apel, 48800 Michigan Ave., was on hand to request rezoning of seven acres of land he owns from M-1, light industrial, to one-quarter lots.

He was told his present commercial zoning on the front might have to be included as front parcel, presently improved.

the proposed 701 master plan called for the entire area to be single family residential.

THE MATTER was tabled after the commission urged him to get the names of all property owners within 300 feet of his land, and to wrestle with the new land use master plan, as yet unapproved.

Woman seeks to put master plan on ballot

A Canton woman, Mrs. Letha McDermid, her property doomed to condemnation for the new I-275 freeway, is fighting a running battle with Canton's proposed new land use map.

She has been traveling all over Canton Township in her red pickup, seeking signatures on a special referendum. The referendum asks that the master zoning ordinances and land use maps be placed before the Township voters.

To get the matter on a ballot she needs about 15% of Canton's registered voters. According to Mrs. McDermid, the master plan could be adopted without a vote of the general public.

She visits about 25 homes a day, armed with a map and the referendum; to date, she has 300 signatures.

She also led a move to get written notification of all rezoning requests and plans for all property owners involved, or those close to the affected land.

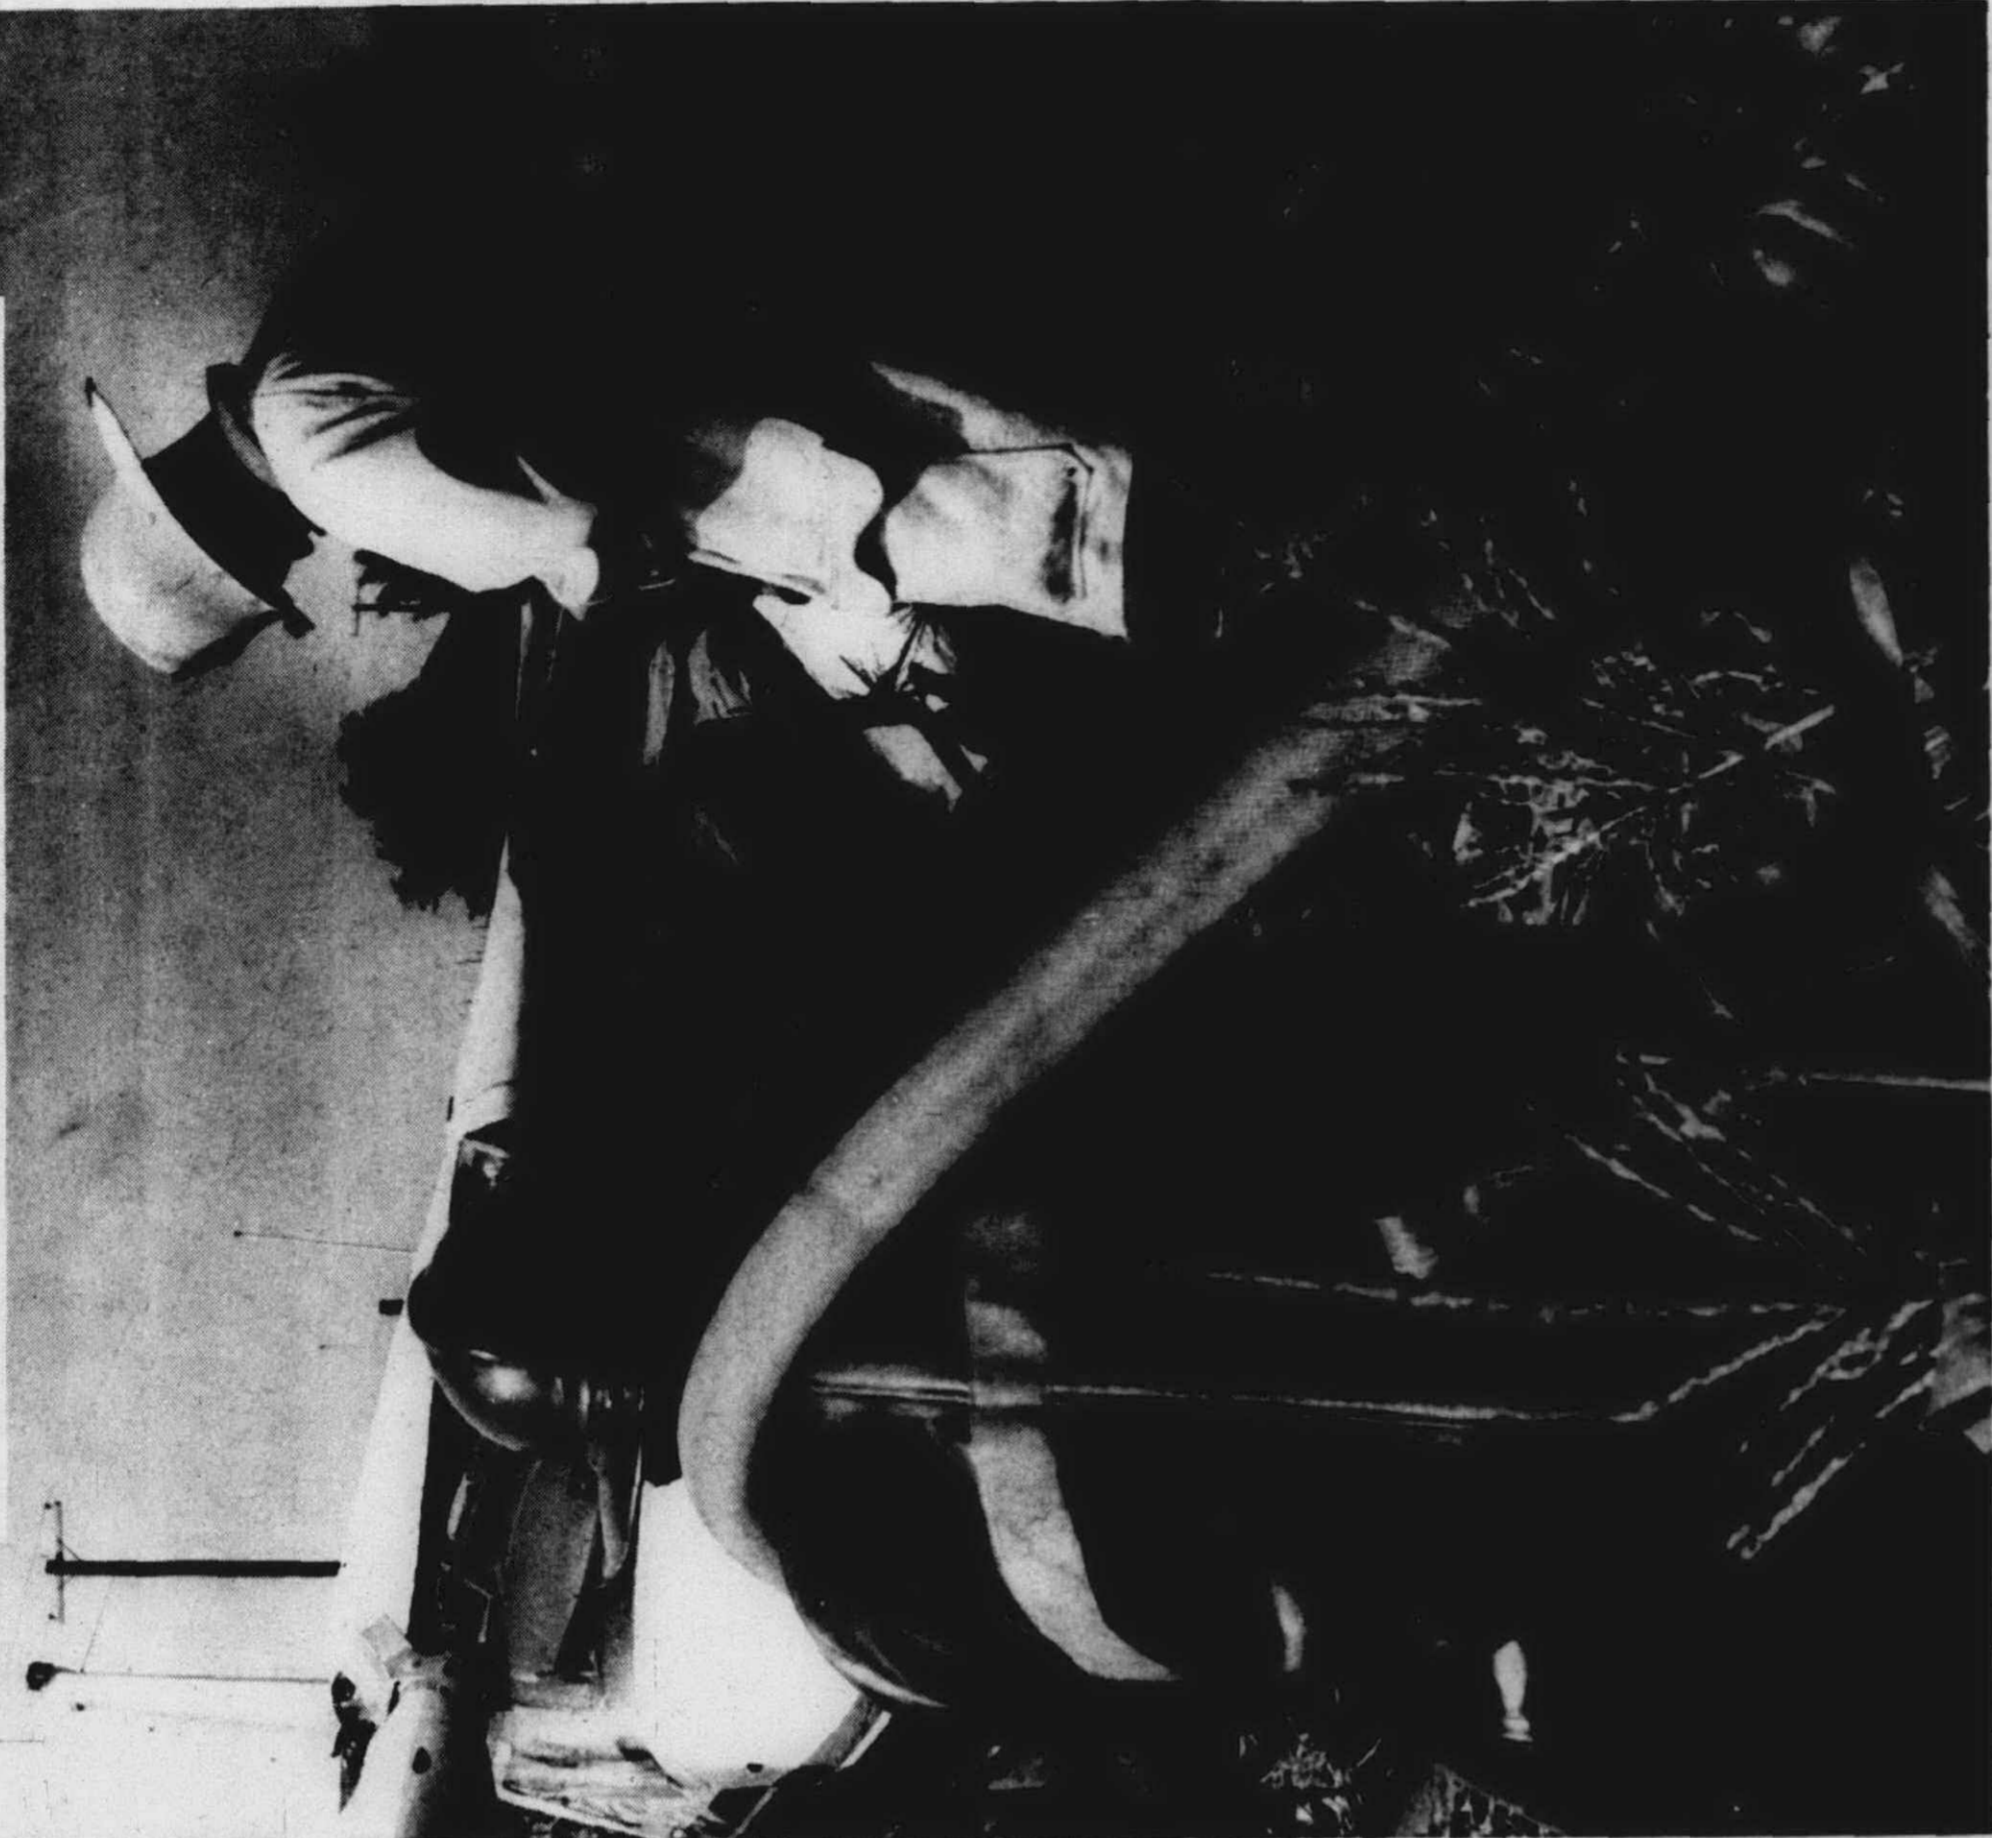

"My house is going to be gone with the cloverleaf. So I spend my time helping my neighbors," Mrs. McDermid said.

The new master plan first came before the Canton public in April during three stormy public hearings. Mrs. McDermid noted that many farmers, for instance, were alarmed by provisions of the new ordinance that provided once they sell their cattle, they cannot repurchase more.

Canton planners sent the plan back to their planning consultants, Parkins, Rodgers and Associates, and expect revised plans very soon.

A 1965 Cessna Skyhawk couldn't quite get airborne out of Mettetal Airport last Friday; four were aboard the aircraft when it crashed due to trim tabs set in the wrong direction, according to Wayne County Sheriff's Department detective George Cairns. Canton Township Fire Chief Fred Korke makes out a report at the scene in a corn field near the airport on Joy and Lilley Roads. For the full story of the mishap and the four aboard, see Page one, Section A, of the Plymouth Mail.

Junior highs - invisible, sleeping monsters

Just off Mill Street, south of Ann Arbor Trail, stands a building erected in 1897. Aside from it being a nightmare in glass it stands for an idea born somewhere in the late 1940's and early 1950's.

It's one of the thousands of mausoleums that was the outcome of some bright individualist who decided to create a new sociological group. In an era that was finding more groups in our society than seemed existed, this group has weathered the brunt of time, weathered countless abuses, and come out among the few survivors.

It is, unmistakably, the junior high and the age bracket it houses from September to June. When school administrations across the country took the big step and decided to set apart the seventh, eighth, and ninth grades from either the elementary or high school, they created an invisible, sleeping monster.

But as this wore off the parent tired of saying his child was in junior high in a sense, child began taking his own newly created educational bracket completely for granted. When this finally evolved, a new emotion had to take the place of the old one, which was a type of anticipation. When the newness and novelty disappeared, there was no set emotion for the upcoming junior high school. No pre-set pattern such as had been formed by thousands of former high school relatives. Since there'd been a relative handful of previous junior high students they were, in a sense, pioneers responsibility which is supposed to be an essential part of the student government idea.

But this is only a small segment of the same type of problem created by how the junior highers are treated and how they think of themselves. Because they've been pushed into it, they've dissociated themselves from a very avoidable seeing as how so many adults were chanting "you're different now, you're in junior high."

This being apart, being different, has driven many to what would happen to the two adverse conduct. The continual strive is to be like the high school. Since it is the thing to be "in" in the high school, all junior highers must shoot at that same goal at that same time. Their ideas of "in" attitudes and actions differ greatly from most high school students.

THE GREASE, the big hood, is the big man in the junior high. This is cool. It is not necessarily always "in" but it's "in" enough. As age takes over though, much of it dies out.

Social difficulties and differences classified tend to alienate most, even among this one general group. Fourteen-year-olds certainly have drastically different social problems and snags than do twelve-year-olds.

Dating is one. While the freshman has, to some extent, this problem in common with a senior, he has no such common problem, or shouldn't have, with a seventh grader.

This moment taxpayers are asking, f u r y quickly rising, what would happen to the two junior highers in Plymouth we paid so much for? This city obviously needs more elementary schools. These two buildings would do beautifully.

into a new realm—realm they had no business being in.

They wallowed, the blind result, it seems, is less than favorable. Adult guidance was been faced before with a group of students of this age set off as a separate educational and social level, and the planning for it had been inadequate. The same teachers that had taught seventh through ninth grade before were put to work in their respective grades.

NOT ONE was given professional help as to what they might expect now that these students had a level of their own.

It appeared, from the outset, that no one had sufficient delved into what might happen, psychologically to children this age when placed in a contoured environment, suited for great fun, and would relieve overcrowding. For this problem, I admit, it was a brilliant idea.

But the adverse after effects have led me to believe they've outweighed the one problem solved.

As its name implies, it is a "junior" high school. A miniature senior high, in a sense. It has a little football and baseball team, a few classes of officers and a student council, and the like.

But they are only shells, the student government being the biggest mockery. The "advisors" let the students play around as if they have a voice only to knock them in the teeth a little later.

In other words, the students get to have somewhat of a look, however blurred it may be, of how affairs are handled after they get to high school, but they've had none of the responsibility which is supposed to be an essential part of the student government idea.

But this is only a small segment of the same type of problem created by how the junior highers are treated and how they think of themselves. Because they've been pushed into it, they've dissociated themselves from a very avoidable seeing as how so many adults were chanting "you're different now, you're in junior high."
