Tanger, Starkweather may stay open

By Emory Daniels
staff writer

Starkweather and Tanger elementary schools may remain open after all.

The Plymouth Board of Education and central administration are looking at a series of moves which would keep both buildings open and result in better use of school facilities.

The administration also is at least thinking about returning Lowell Middle School to the Livonia School District in two years. The administration also is talking about the possibility of returning ninth graders to the high schools in four or five years.

Two years ago the school board had decided to close Tanger and Starkweather because of declining enrollments — more particularly because of very low student counts in those two buildings.

Two weeks ago, however, the superintendent showed the school board a new set of population projections for the next five years which indicate that Tanger and Starkweather would be needed for at least the next two years.

In his report Dr. John M. Hoben, superintendent, said the board could consider returning ninth graders to the high schools no earlier than the 1988-89 school year, and that the board should take a close look in two years at the lease for Lowell Middle School.

At that time, Trustee Tom Yack asked that the staffs at both elementaries be notified that there may be a change in current plans to close the two schools.

When looking at the enrollment projections for both schools, Hoben explained at Monday night's school board meeting at East Middle School that it has become apparent that combining the student bodies of Tanger and Starkweather would result in an optimum size school.

With that realization, Hoben asked Shirley Spaniel, director of elementary education, to form a committee to study combining the two schools.

THE PRESENT thinking is to move the Starkweather student body to Tanger, with part of Tanger being shifted to Farrand Elementary. Another small group of students would be transferred to Smith Elementary.

The first floor of Starkweather, according to preliminary plans, would be converted to a preschool center. Administrators still are considering what would be the best uses would be for the eight classrooms on the second floor.

The changes would result in about 135 Starkweather pupils being moved next year to Tanger and some 90 Tanger pupils being shifted to Farrand. About 12-15 students might be moved to Smith Elementary, which this year has lost about 40 students.

The "merger" plan also calls for moving four classrooms of the Infant and Preschool Special Education Program (IPSEP) to Starkweather and for it to be housed on the first floor along with Headstart and the PLUS preschool program.

PLUS and Headstart now are housed at Central Middle School while IPSEP is located in Farrand Elementary School.

THE SHIFTS would result in both Tanger and Farrand having enrollments next year approaching 400 to 450, Hoben said, which would result in more efficient use of both schools. The changes also would result in Tanger having a full-time principal next year. (This year, Starkweather and Tanger share a principal).

The superintendent noted that the proposed changes still would allow the building to be used by the Starkweather district for community activities during non-school hours.

Hoben said that one possibility for the second level of Starkweather would be to house the Alternative Education program there.

The superintendent said the merger of Starkweather/Tanger and subsequent shifts could result in a saving of about $110,000.

Trustee Tom Yack objected that the shifts would result in the elimination of an art or music room at both Tanger and Farrand. The loss of classrooms for art or music can only result in a loss in quality for those subjects, he added.

"As we get space available at the elementary level," said Yack, "we have been gobbling it up by closing buildings or redesigning units. This will make it almost impossible to achieve lower class sizes, even if we have the money, and make it harder to have quality programs in music and art. In our efforts to realize maximum loading we are giving up a lot in return."

HOBEN AGREED, and added there could be an even greater crunch on elementary space as a change in law will require that the maximum load in special education contained units be limited to 10 handicapped students instead of 15, and that this could create a demand for six more elementary classrooms.

"That will compound the problem you are talking about," he said.

Yack added that the Talented and Gifted (TAG) magnet center also will take up four elementary classrooms. "The problem is that if we ever do get any money to spend on improving programs the improvements will have to be at the middle school and high school levels," he said.

The first signs of construction for the Catherine McAuley Health Center in Plymouth were evidenced Tuesday as the Gas & Go station at Harvey and Ann Arbor Trail was demolished. The station is being cleared to make room for the $2-million clinic.

City deck in flood plain

DNR permit needed for construction

By Gary M. Cates
staff writer

Construction of the Catherine McAuley Health Center in Plymouth started this week, but may come to an abrupt halt unless a permit is obtained to build in the flood plain.

Wrecking crews descended on the former Gas & Go property at Harvey and Ann Arbor Trail Tuesday to clear the way for the $2 million clinic, according to McAuley spokesman Bill Brauker.

However, the construction could be halted until a flood plain permit is obtained from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

Although the clinic is being built outside the Tonquish Creek flood plain, the adjacent municipal parking deck portion of the project will be in the flood plain.

Construction in a flood plain requires DNR approval, according to Daniel Morgan, chief of the DNR's Technical Programs Water Management Division.

AS OF MONDAY, the DNR had not received a flood plain permit application for the project, Morgan said.

"You are supposed to have a permit to build in a flood plain, but that doesn't mean everybody gets one. We will come in with a cease and desist order if we are aware of a violation," he said.

Morgan's awareness of the McAuley project stems from correspondence with Canton Supervisor James Poole. Poole contacted the DNR in regards to concerns about possible increased water runoff and construction in the Tonquish flood plain.

The DNR, in a June 22 letter to Dr. Joseph Gender, suggested McAuley "consider another less flood prone site" to build the clinic. The letter listed four problems with trying to develop the Central Parking Lot property:

- The city of Plymouth has an ordinance prohibiting any development within the flood plain.

- Michigan's Flood Plain Regulatory Authority prohibits the obstruction of the floodways of the state's rivers and streams.

- A May 1977 presidential order calls for federally financed or assisted construction to be evaluated for the potential effects on the flood plain. "Since the proposal is in the floodway, the effect would be adverse."

- The drain right-of-way probably would have to be maintained to allow for maintenance of the enclosed Tonquish Creek structure under the downtown area.

However, City Manager Henry Graper said that by moving the clinic construction to the former Gas & Go and Plymouth Veterinary Hospital properties on Harvey Street, the flood plain problems are avoided.

The construction of the deck doesn't require a permit because "it won't obstruct floodwater flows," he said.

FOR THE SAME reason, Graper said a waiver isn't needed for the city's ordinance prohibiting flood plain construction. That ordinance was adopted in 1981 as part of the city's involvement in the national flood insurance program.

However, Morgan disagrees with Graper's interpretation of the need for permits and waivers.

"Application for a permit under the state's flood plain regulatory authority is required for such development," Morgan said in a Dec. 22 letter to Poole. "By copy of this letter I will so advise Plymouth's city manager."

Originally, Graper sought to have the clinic built just north of the current site, on the west end of Central Parking Lot. Instead, that property will be leased to the clinic for parking.

Graper said he plans to obtain a flood plain permit for possible expansion of the west Central Lot property — in the event the clinic needs additional space. However, he doesn't plan to seek a permit for the parking deck, he said Tuesday.

The clinic corporation, Huron Arbor, will hold an option to buy the leased Central Lot property, but will be required to build a third level to the municipal parking deck to make up for the lost parking space, Graper said.

HOWEVER, because that portion of land is in the flood plain, the clinic most likely won't expand in that direction — at least on the surface level.

The chances of obtaining a DNR permit depend on the type of expansion, according to Morgan.

Construction on the surface level would be permitted if Huron Arbor enlarged the Tonquish Creek enclosure under the city or built retention ponds upstream, Morgan said.

In either case, the additional work would drive the cost of expansion beyond practicality, he said.

Construction above the surface level — elevating the structure with columns (like the Mayflower II) — would be the best route, Morgan said.

"An elevated structure probably would receive a permit since it does not obstruct water flows so as to cause damage upstream or divert water flow downstream," he said.

Because of the DNR limitations, and the requirement to build the third level on the parking deck, Graper said the clinic likely won't be expanded on the surface level to the north.

Instead, he foresees an elevated expansion, retaining parking on the surface level.

"If they build above the ground, like the Mayflower did, they wouldn't be required to build the third level on the parking deck," he said.

Public safety proposal drafted by former chief

By Gary M. Cates
staff writer

A plan for the implementation of a public safety department in Plymouth is being drafted by a former department head still on the city payroll.

Former Fire Chief Roy Hall, who left the department last November for medical reasons, is drafting the implementation plan, City Manager Henry Graper said.

Under the public safety concept, Plymouth's police and fire departments would be combined to save money. Hall's work is expected to center on the city's approach to such a transition because the emergency personnel would be cross-trained and the departments restructured.

Contributing to the implementation plan are Acting Police Chief Ralph White and Acting Fire Chief Alan Matthews, Graper said.

HALL IS on short-term disability leave and is working on the plan part-time. He will go onto permanent disability April 4 and is expected to have the plan completed by then, Graper said.

Because the city is self-insured for short-term disability and pays a portion of those salaries, Graper said it was to the city's advantage to have Hall write the implementation plan.

"We would be paying him anyway, so we might as well have him working for us," he said.

AT THE SAME TIME Hall is working on the implementation plan, the city administration is attempting to negotiate the public safety issue with the police and fire unions.

Preliminary meetings with the unions have been held this month, without formal conclusions being reached, Graper said.

'Michigan's labor laws say that I must negotiate in good faith with the unions before I can even discuss it with the City Commission.'

— Henry Graper

of public safety," Gardner said.

ONCE NEGOTIATIONS with the unions reach an agreement or impasse, the public safety idea and implementation plan will be presented to the City Commission, Graper said.

Graper said he couldn't negotiate about a public safety plan with the unions because of Michigan's labor laws.

"Michigan's labor laws say that I must negotiate in good faith with the unions before I can even discuss it with the City Commission," he said.

"Until it's worked out, public safety is just a thought in my mind."

However, the state's labor laws in no way prohibit Graper from seeking board authorization to negotiate, according to a Michigan Employment Relations Commission judge.

In fact, the judge said the City Commission should set the parameters for such negotiations.

TO DATE, the commission only has instructed the administration to review the findings of a citizen committee appointed by the mayor to research the public safety issue.

Graper charged three department heads with the task of reviewing the committee's report, and now has entered negotiations with the unions and authorized drafting of the implementation plan.

"I can't present this to the City Commission until we reach agreement or impasse with the unions," he said.

Matney nabbed again

Canton police have once again arrested a Westland man convicted in the December, 1982, traffic death of Canton nurse Madonna Tharp.

The arrest marks the third time in a little more than a year that William Matney, 26, has been arrested for drunken driving.

Matney of Alamo Court was arrested early Saturday and charged with second-offense drunk driving. At 5:30 a.m., Matney's car became wedged into a snowbank on Haggerty south of Palmer, said Canton police Sgt. Alex Wilson.

Matney stood mute at his arraignment Monday before 35th District Court Judge James Garber. The court entered a not guilty plea in his behalf. Matney also was ticketed by police for possession of marijuana and driving with a revoked license.

A pretrial examination on the second-offense drunk driving charge is scheduled for Feb. 23. Matney, jailed in lieu of a $25,000 cash bond, also faces a hearing before corrections officials.

Matney recently was released from a correctional facility after serving 4½ months on an earlier negligent homicide conviction involving Tharp, said Michigan Department of Corrections Supervisor Michael Best.

Matney's earlier brush with Canton police occurred in December, 1982, when his car hit the vehicle in which 34-year-old Madonna Tharp was riding. The accident took place at Sheldon and Cherry Hill.

Records indicate Matney fled the scene and was arrested later by Westland police. A Breathalyzer test showed he was drunk. Tharp died of injuries suffered in the collision.

In June, 1983, Matney pleaded guilty to negligent homicide in Tharp's death. Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Charles Kaufman sentenced Matney to 117 days in the Detroit House of Corrections.

Because Matney had already served that number of days in jail awaiting trial, the time was applied against his sentence and he was freed.

A few weeks later, while Matney was on probation, a Wayne County Sheriff's deputy arrested him for drunk driving in Canton. That incident constituted a parole violation, officials said. On Aug. 4, Judge Kaufman ordered him to serve 1-2 years in prison for negligent homicide.

Matney received 142 days credit against his sentence and, after spending some time at a halfway house in Detroit, was paroled Dec. 15, Best said.

Under state law, a person convicted of drunk driving twice in a seven-year period could receive a year in prison or a $1,000 fine, or both. The conviction also carries a mandatory revocation of license.

New golfer home: an inflatable dome

By W.W. Edgar
staff writer

Golfers take heart.
During these cold winter days when the courses are covered with snow and you have been concerned about your grip and whether your swing has lost some of its smoothness, you need worry no longer.

Through the ingenuity of man there now is a golf dome right in the area — at the intersection of Five Mile and Haggerty roads that provides the facilities for you to test your grip and swing.

It is a large vinyl dome (70-feet high, 250-feet long, 305-feet wide) and is only the second facility of its kind in Michigan.

THE ENCLOSED dome is the nearest thing to being outdoors.

The dome, which at first glance reminds one of a huge pile of snow or on second glance of a large balloon about to take to the air, provides all the room one needs to practice drives.

What's more, according to the pros who have seen it, there is no wind to battle inside the dome, and you get a true test of your swing and the length of your drives.

The dome has come to Plymouth through an odd route. It so happens that the designer of the latest golf facility is a client of Ronald Pierce, a lawyer with headquarters in Troy.

And, to make the case more interesting, Pierce is one of the partners in the Oasis Golf Center that has been in business on the site for 20 years.

The client built the first dome in Madison Heights. When Pierce saw it, he immediately thought of Oasis and what a help that would be as a business venture during the cold winter months.

The deal was made and now the area will be the focus of all golf-minded persons who can't stand the doldrums of the off season and yearn for a place to try their swing.

THE DOME will have 38 driving ranges and with the natural turf the site is the nearest thing possible to the golfer's own club.

No longer will there be any need to carry a bucket of balls from the clubhouse to the range. There will be huge buckets with a bushel of balls which will be refilled on demand without moving from the range.

To make the dome even more attractive, it is large enough for softball games and already 40 teams have been signed for play when the dome officially opens.

Under the present plan, the range will be open until 8 p.m. with six pros on hand. When the driving range is finished for the day the softball teams will play until midnight.

The Oasis site was chosen for this innovation because it is in the heart of an area that is the home of golfers. Along with that the Oasis is located on the highway intersection and can be reached in a half-hour from places as far distant as Ann Arbor.

While the dome is only the second in Michigan there are two others in the country — in New York and in Minneapolis.

The Oasis Golf dome on Five Mile near I-275 offers golfers the chance to practice their swings during the winter months. The dome is 70-feet high and supported by giant air blowers.

Assistant dean gets new post

Clay M. Fechter, assistant dean for business and health careers at Schoolcraft College, is now Dean of the College at Genesee Community College, Batavia, N.Y.

Fechter has worn many hats during his 14 years at Schoolcraft. He came to the college as a history teacher, but was soon named director of social services.

He also was director of public and human services as well as director of the information and instruction center in Garden City.

Fechter ran the satellite campus for the first three years of its existence. He was later named assistant dean of applied sciences, assistant dean for business and public service, then assumed the added responsibility for allied health and nursing in 1982.

Fechter and his wife, Johanne, lived in Plymouth where they were active in community affairs. She spearheaded a movement toward world peace and the abolishment of nuclear weapons.

Batavia is a small city about 30 miles east of Buffalo. There isn't a peace resource center but there is an active chapter of peace advocates.

"Johanne checked that out before I accepted the job," Fechter said.

Genesee Community College is about half the size of Schoolcraft, but has almost 5,000 Continuing Education and Community Services students.

Dance group graces OCC theater opening

Harbinger Dance Company returns to the Detroit stage Friday and Saturday, Feb. 3-4, in Wallace F. Smith Performing Arts Theatre on the Orchard Ridge Campus of Oakland Community College.

The concerts will feature the premiere of "Mobile," a work recently set by Tomm Roud of the San Francisco Ballet. "Mobile," a trio inspired by the free-floating sculpture of a mobile, is choreographed to the music of Khatchaturian.

The work has been called a "brief masterpiece of dance design" and a "striking display of three bodies moving about in space as one continuously redefined object."

The staging of "Mobile" for the Harbinger Dance Company was made possible through a contribution by Mr. and Mrs. Irving Rose. She is a longtime supporter of Harbinger and also on the advisory board of School of American Ballet, the New York City ballet's school.

Performance time is 8 p.m. Tickets are priced at $3 for students and senior citizens; $4 for advance sales and $5 at the door. For ticket information, call the theater at 471-7700 or Harbinger at 477-7014.

Feb. 3 and 4 will mark the first performance of the Harbinger Dance Company at the new Walter F. Smith Performing Arts Center at the Orchard Ridge Campus of Oakland Community College in Farmington Hills.

The premiere performance of "Mobile" will be performed by the Harbinger Dance Company. The trio is made up of (left to right) Victoria Lundell, Matthew Turnbull and Laura Hutson.

Lisa Nowak is the creator and artistic director of the Harbinger Dance Company.

Matthew Turnbull and Gayle Stern Eubanks run through one of their routines.

Fire ripped through this Beech Street home Saturday evening. No one was injured in the blaze, which was caused by a light bulb being used to thaw a frozen water pipe.

Fire guts man's home

Fire destroyed the home of an 88-year-old Plymouth man Saturday evening.

Officials believe the blaze was caused by Alan Norling's efforts to unthaw a frozen water pipe at his 1 1/2-story home at 1064 Beech.

When firefighters arrived at the scene the building was engulfed by flames, said Acting Fire Chief Alan Matthews.

Sixteen firefighters were on hand to battle the fire and it was under control in 30 minutes, Matthews said.

Matthews said Norling had placed a lit light bulb next to the water pipe in a kitchen cupboard some time Saturday.

"When he returned to the house about 5:30 p.m., he observed what he thought to be steam on the windows."

The steam turned out to be smoke, and Norling spent close to an hour in the house looking for the origin of the smoke. He told firefighters he was unable to find the flames, but poured water into the cupboard.

"He looked for the fire for some time before calling the fire department," Matthews said, adding that Norling was lucky to have stayed in the house so long without being overcome.

The fire apparently spread from the cupboard to the outer walls and up to the second floor. Firefighters estimate the loss at $40,000.

Despite Saturday's record cold temperatures, Matthews said the firefighters' equipment didn't start freezing up until water lines were turned off. Firefighters avoided frostbite by rotating between the trucks and house to keep warm.

One firefighter who suffered smoke inhalation was treated and released from St. Mary Hospital Saturday night.

CEP eyes eliminating study halls

Thursday, January 26, 1984 O&E

(P)5A

Plymouth-Canton school administrators are considering eliminating study halls and requiring all 10th and 11th graders to take six subjects each semester.

The proposal was generated by the administration of the Centennial Educational Park (CEP) and is being reviewed now by the central cabinet. The idea was presented Monday night to the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

Presently students must have 15 credits, or five per year, to graduate. The proposal is to increase that total to 18.

Students who are having serious problems mastering a subject would be placed in a resource room and receive help from monitors — the persons now hired to run the study halls.

The monitors also would be available to help direct independent study in resource rooms, said Superintendent John M. Hoben.

The CEP administration believes the changes can be implemented without any additional cost or added staffing. They are expected to receive a go-ahead to proceed and report to the board if it is discovered there will be added expense.

The changes are in response to some of the recommendations of the "Nation at Risk" and similar studies, said Hoben, which suggest increasing the time available for learning during the school day.

Presently Plymouth Canton High and Plymouth Salem High each have a study hall aid and six study hall periods a day.

The administration believes a number of students at the CEP are now taking a study hall, instead of a sixth class, to lighten their academic load.

The proposal is to require all sophomores and juniors to take six classes a semester, and to strongly encourage seniors to sign up for six. The aim is to stretch student learning by encouraging them to take more electives.

That goal was spelled out in a Nation At Risk: The Imperative For Educational Reform in a section in which the following appeal is directed to students:

"Even with your parents' best example and your teachers' best efforts, in the end it is your work that determines how much and how well you learn. When you work to your full capacity, you can hope to attain the knowledge and skills that will enable you to create your future and control your destiny. If you do not, you will have your future thrust upon you by others. Take hold of your life, apply your gifts and talents, work with dedication and self-discipline. Have high expectations for yourself and convert every challenge into an opportunity."

Tax appeal board to meet

The city of Plymouth Board of Review will meet in March in the City Commission chamber upstairs in Plymouth City Hall, 201 Main at Church.

The property tax appeal board will meet from noon to 6 p.m. Tuesday, March 6, and from 3-9 p.m. Wednesday, March 7.

The Board of Review meets annually on the first Tuesday following the first Monday in March. The meetings provide taxpayers with an opportunity to present protests or suggestions about assessed values on property.

A written petition must be submitted to the City Assessor's office by March 5, 1984, in order to meet with the board. Petition forms may be obtained at the assessor's office on the first floor of city hall.

The Board of Review meetings will be held by appointment only after the written petition has been submitted. Any resident may make a personal appeal before the board. A written petition will be considered from non-residents who own property in the city.

Treasurer/Assessor Ken Way advises taxpayers to discuss their bill with him before appealing to the board. Problems often can be settled in a visit with the assessor, he said.

Wendell Sikes (left) joins the firm of Lambert-Lochniskar & Vermeulen Funeral Home. Shown with him are James Vermeulen (seated) and James B. Vermeulen.

Sikes moves to different firm

Wendell Sikes has been appointed manager of Lambert-Lochniskar & Vermeulen Funeral Home in Plymouth.

Sikes was associated for the past 13 years with Schrader Funeral Home.

A graduate of Plymouth High School, Sikes earned an associate degree from Schoolcraft College and a motuary science degree from Wayne State University.

Currently is a member of the board of directors of the Plymouth Colonial Kiwanis Club, he is a past vice president of community programming of the Plymouth Jaycees.

A Vietnam war veteran, Sikes reached the rank of Specialist Fifth Class in the U.S. Army. He has been a Plymouth resident for the past 26 years and lives with wife Margaret and two children on Byron Street. He is the son of Norma C. Scherman, a life-long resident of the Plymouth community.

Sikes was welcomed to Lambert's by James Vermeulen, president, and his son, James B. Vermeulen. The younger Vermeulen joined the firm when he and wife Nancy moved to Canton last spring. A graduate of Calvin College in Grand Rapids with a bachelor's degree in business and economics, he earned his motuary science degree from Wayne State.

College-bound Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem high school students "graded" their high schools and profiled themselves in a survey recently.

Fourteen percent of 339 Plymouth-Canton students ranked their education as "excellent," according to an American College Testing (ACT) program survey.

Fifty-two percent rated their high school education at Centennial Educational Park (CEP) as "good," 25 percent called it "average," while 3 percent said their education was below average. Six percent judged it to be "very inadequate."

Figures for 393 Salem High students closely mirrored those percentages.

Forty-eight percent of Canton High students were satisfied with the quality of instruction; 23 percent were dissatisfied.

Course offerings met the approval of 85 percent, while 6 percent disapproved. Grading at CEP satisfied 46 percent of students and dissatisfied 25 percent.

Testing was approved by 48 percent of students and disapproved by 14 percent. Fifteen percent of students were unhappy with guidance and counseling services while 59 percent approved of them.

Corresponding "satisfied" percentages were slightly lower for Salem students in the above categories.

Twenty-seven percent of Canton students and 34 percent of those at Salem favored school policies, while 43 and 37 percent, respectively, did not. Sixty-one percent of Canton students and 69 percent of Salem students approved of library facilities and 10 and 12 percent disapproved.

Nearly 50 percent of all students surveyed were satisfied with school laboratories.

scored a composite 20.0 on the ACT college entrance examination, contrasting with a national average of 18.3, and a Michigan average of 18.6.

The "group mean" high school average for Canton students was 3.0, a shade above the national and state average of 2.9.

Students said they expected to earn a first-year college grade point average of about 3.0.

Salem students performed almost as well. The "typical" student there achieved a 19.0 ACT composite score. High school averages for "group mean" Salem students averaged 2.8. A 2.9 grade point average after one year of college was expected by most students, mirroring the figure for the average Michigan student.

Differences between Canton and Salem students emerged in the areas of college and career plans.

Fifty-three percent of Canton students and 48 percent of Salem students aspired to bachelors' degrees, while 53 and 43 percent, respectively, aspired to some graduate school or a professional degree. Thirty-eight percent of Canton students and 35 percent of Salem pupils were "very sure" of their educational major.

Health professions were the first career choice of surveyed Canton students, while business and commerce were selected by the bulk of Salem students.

Seventeen percent of Canton students, 12 percent of Salem students and 13 percent of the average Michigan seniors plan to attend an out-of-state college.

THE COST of higher education concerned 13 percent of Canton students, 18 percent of Salem's prospective college students, and 20 percent of the students statewide.

The field of study outweighed all other considerations affecting college choice. It concerned 64 percent of Canton students, 59 percent of Salem students, and 56 percent of Michigan students.

New mini-mall to feature 17 shops

Jay Ross Enterprises will begin construction on April 1 of some 17,000-square-foot stores in a mini-shopping center designed by architect Erick Carne of Plymouth. The

1.5 acres on N. Main, across from Krogers, is the largest vacant parcel on Main Street. The development received site plan approval earlier this month from the Plymouth Planning Commission. Each store will be self-contained with parking provided for 85 cars to serve the Charlestowne Square customers.

Township ready to form EDC

Hope local group more helpful than county

The formation of a Plymouth Township Economic Development Corp. (EDC) will be discussed at a Tuesday, Feb. 28 public hearing.

The township board is interested in establishing the EDC to help potential developers finance construction within the township. Projects undertaken by the EDC can take advantage of financing through tax-free bond issues.

The tax-free bonding usually results in lower interest rates on the bonds, thereby reducing the developer's debt obligations.

Currently, commercial and industrial developers in the township seeking such financing have been forced to use the Wayne County EDC. However, township officials have received complaints about the county EDC's administrative fees.

In calling for the formation of the township EDC, Supervisor Maurice Breen said a local EDC could perform the same work for a lower price.

TO PUT THE GEARS in motion, Breen, along with Clerk Esther Hulsing and Treasurer Joe West, petitioned the township board for permission to incorporate the local EDC.

The township board will act on that request, as well as the articles of incorporation and bylaws, at the Feb. 28 meeting.

If the plan is approved, as is expected, the next step will be the appointment of the board of directors. Breen will appoint nine members as directors, with no more than three being charged to developers using the EDC, according to Brian James, township attorney.

The EDC should be viewed as a self-sufficient branch of the local government, James said.

"ALSO, THE LOCAL EDC will preclude the county EDC from operating in the township, without the approval of the township EDC," he said.

Horton also questioned the concept of granting tax-free bonds for private development. Such a plan, he said, ultimately ends up costing the taxpayers money.

Breen said that the EDC theoretically helps businesses stay alive — thus saving taxpayers money.

"Nobody has been able to prove that this brings or attracts businesses, or that it sustains businesses. It's just there," Breen said.

The motion to hold the Feb. 28 public hearing passed unanimously.

Short tenure

The shortest presidential term in U.S. history was served by William Henry Harrison.

Inaugurated in March 1841 as the ninth president to hold the office, Harrison caught pneumonia during the cold, drizzling rain of inauguration day and died in April. He was succeeded by Vice President John Tyler.

Making citizens: Learning from life itself

Part I

IT SEEMS 1983 was the year to examine the effectiveness of public education in American society.

A similar examination, only with fewer studies, was made 50 years ago with our country in the midst of the Great Depression and all the movers and shakers wondering what went wrong and would it ever go wrong again.

That evaluation, entitled "The Making of an American Citizen," was published in October 1934 in Good Housekeeping magazine. One interesting aspect of the series is that one of the prime sources was Henry Ford (the original).

What Ford had to say, at least much of it, is embraced by today's educational theorists. Some of it even has been implemented.

Ford's thesis was that education's primary tasks were to teach students how to earn a living and how to live life successfully — two goals which to Ford were very close to being the same. "My idea is that education is not just preparation for life, but is part of life itself — a continuous part. Earning a living is also a part of life and a part of education. The sooner a child begins to do something, the sooner he will become master of the forces that he lives with.

"Learn to do by doing — that's my favorite principle in education," he told interviewer James C. Derieux. "Functional education, some people call it. Call it what you like, just so long as it turns out boys and girls competent to live happily and to earn a living, and be smart enough not to be victimized by any swindler or stock-market get-rich-quick scheme, I'm all for it. When it fails to do that, I say it is wasted motion."

IN 1934 FORD was operating a trade school in Dearborn, attended by some 2,000 youngsters, based on his "learning to do by doing" philosophy of education.

In that era, of course, most students did not attend a college or university after graduating from high school. Many more, in fact, never made it through high school than do today. So Ford was concerned about a school population much different than in 1984.

"Everybody goes to the primary schools, only a few to the universities. They tell me that even primary education has been patterned to fit into higher education, even though only a handful of boys and girls go into the higher. Let everything they get at any age be of the highest use to them, and as complete as possible, so that even if they do not go on to higher schools, they will have accumulated definite values. This will not hurt them if they wish to continue their studies, and it will do them a whole lot of good if they have to stop school and go to work."

Ford felt we should learn by looking at life itself — study a successful person to determine how success was reached, a healthy person to discover what life style produces good health, etc.

"It may be harder to teach from life than it is to teach from books, but it is easier and more practical to learn from life. The student, not the teacher, is the big thing in a schoolroom, and the teacher has got to do what is best for the student, no matter how difficult that may be."

THEN FORD REALLY got into the heart of what today we call vocational or career education when he commented:

"We forgot for a while that there can be no substitute for individual effort and individual intelligence. We forgot the practical, neglected the hands for the head, taught specialization, instead of teaching boys and girls how to know a great deal about a wide variety of things. We turned out pathetic cogs to fit into a machine that already was doomed, instead of turning out individually efficient human beings. Educate every individual individually and the mass will take care of itself.

"Talk about planned economy! The individual must be personally competent, personally solvent, and able to do any one of several things before anything else can be done. There is no system of government and no scheme of life that can relieve you, individually, of the obligation to do your own tasks with discrimination."

And what about specialization, which helped build the House of Ford? "Specialization is possible only to the man who has an acquaintance with all the arts, so that he can focus the light and skill of all of them on the single thing he wants to do. Broaden the base of education.

"NEARLY EVERYONE has a talent for one thing or another; if not a talent, a tendency to do one task more easily than another. But do not shove that talent ahead. That makes for lopsidedness. If the talent is well-defined, it will take care of itself. Our task is to equip boys and girls to do many things, to live under a variety of conditions, under rapidly changing conditions, and to be quick to make adjustments to new conditions.

"A car must run well over all sorts of roads and in all kinds of weather; the educated person must be able to adjust himself to whatever conditions he finds around him."

Ford also believed in teaching moral precepts and values in education. And he argued for the importance of repetition in doing so. "The truths of life should be stated simply, clearly, and often to children. Just the right truth, coming into a child's mind at the right time may be of great use later on. We can not know when that right time is to arrive, so repetition is the safer course. A platitude is not that the first time a child hears it. To him it is a striking way of putting a fact."

In summary, Ford's system provided that: functional education would prevail; conduct would be stressed; students would be taught to earn a livelihood; and a reverent attitude toward life would be developed.

Fifty years ago, in the midst of the Depression, Ford viewed public education this way: "It is a waste to take years out of a child's life, then cut him free to roam in a world he does not understand, to hunt for work which he must learn how to do. The school must be like life; its activities must be the same, or close to the same, as those of earning a living. A good school will be conducted in such a manner that boys and girls go smoothly from it into life, without the sudden and violent jerk of transition from learning to living."

Shoplifting: a massive crime

PEOPLE HAVE mixed feelings about shoplifting.

On one hand, some public officials throw up their hands in horror at the idea of prosecuting and punishing all those who steal small items from retail stores. "We gotta have jails to put 'em in," said Oakland County Sheriff Johannes Spreen, who is under a federal court order to reduce his jail's population. "We've had to tell 'em not to arrest women. I'm being sued by inmates' lawyers, and they're winning."

With so many crimes of drunk driving, fraud and violence to deal with, law-enforcement officers are understandably reluctant to throw the book at someone pinched for stealing an item worth $14, which is the average theft size at Perry Drug Stores.

ON THE OTHER hand, a lot of $14 thefts can wipe out a merchant.

William Krupka, assistant vice president for corporate security at the Pontiac-based Perry firm, spoke at a recent seminar on the value of shoplifting, and that petty crime can indeed wipe out entire stores.

Nationally, shoplifting amounts to 6.6 percent of retail sales, he said. If you figure that chain drugstores pocket about 2 percent of retail sales for the stockholders, it means shoplifters are getting three times as much as the owners are. Shoplifters as a whole steal more than bank robbers.

Supermarkets earn about 1 to 1.5 percent on sales in good times. Note, however, that a couple of southeastern Michigan grocery chains have gone through one form of bankruptcy proceeding or another, and another has closed a lot of its Michigan stores. According to economists, it's because folks are eating more and more meals in fast-food restaurants and not buying groceries.

I have my doubts about that economic theory, just as I have my doubts about whether it was declining sales which made Hudson's and a long list of other stores abandon Detroit.

EARNINGS — sometimes referred to as "the bottom line" — are what the owner has left after deducting expenses from sales.

In a highly competitive retail environment, a razor-thin earnings margin can be erased rather easily by too much "inventory shrinkage," especially the kind done by customers.

The shoplifting problem is increasing, Krupka said, not because of the much-cussed recession.

"There no longer exists the 'prototype shoplifter' characterized as a female, 18 years of age, attending high school, from a middle class family," he said.

"The American shoplifter today may be one who is mature, educated and well-dressed. Some middle and upper-class Americans cheat or steal because of boredom and frustration, or to add a little spice to their lives — or simply to gain the satisfaction of beating the system."

WHAT THE DATA show is less attributable to a recession and more likely due to what Krupka called "a dramatic shift in America's value system."

In the same way that our value system failed to prize scholarship in the 1960s and '70s, and school test scores slipped, so too are we failing to prize elemental honesty.

Shoplifting is costing honest companies earnings, it's costing clerks jobs, it's costing customers higher prices, and it's costing the state treasury sales tax dollars.

It's hard to blame the stores for demanding a crackdown.

Frustrations of community editor

(The following editorial column was written by Rolly Peterson, executive editor of the Northville Record.)

CALL THIS my sour grapes column. But there are certain frustrations in this business beyond my control, and I'm going to vent them.

The greatest frustration stems not from doing an inferior job but a superior one. We might write a comprehensive story or series about a major news event in one of our communities. I might think we've done a tremendous job of digging out facts and presenting them in a cogent, lively fashion so that our readers will be better informed. Then I will meet someone on the street and will be confronted with the suggestion, "Why don't you write something about that?"

I try to be understanding and might respond, "We had something about that recently in the paper." Then I pack up my frustration, shake my head, and return to the office.

When I was an editor of one of our newspapers in Livingston County, I found that another media source ran the same stories as appeared in our newspaper on Wednesday. No credit was given to the newspaper. One time I thought I would not be the person who wrote for the competition, whether the commonality of stories was merely coincidental. To my astonishment, the guy admitted he picked up our paper and stole story ideas. His coverage on Wednesdays was our front page. At least I had to admire the guy for being honest.

THIS YEAR one of the editors of our papers also observed the highly coincidental fact that a major daily was carrying stories of the local community a week after similar stories appeared in his paper.

So the editor wrote an entertaining column, speculating that the daily was using his weekly as a story source.

To the editor's amazement, the managing editor of the daily wrote a private letter to the editor openly acknowledging that part of his newspaper's standard operating procedure was to steal stories from our editor's newspaper.

Another frustration in this business is the "big newspaper" spread. A metro daily might devote a whole page to an event, say, in Brighton or Northville. Local residents will rave about the story and it will be "the topic" of conversation for days.

Seemingly forgotten is the coverage — stories and pictures — given the event on a continuing basis in our newspapers. The reaction to the daily's story while understandable is nevertheless frustrating.

I've lost count of the number of stories we have done over the years on such things as the Fonda Lake salt problem in Livingston County. Our objective, of course, is to keep our readers informed of the latest news put in context of previous stories.

Out comes a one-page spread in a daily, and people comment on the story and pictures. All of the information contained in the story and much, much more was previously published in our newspapers.

PEOPLE'S PERCEPTIONS can be frustrating, too.

Several times we have surveyed former subscribers to determine why they discontinued subscriptions to our papers. It's not uncommon for five to 10 people to assert they quit because there was no national or international news.

Fact of the matter is our weekly newspapers are community newspapers, serving all of our communities with local news. We don't make any attempt to duplicate state, national and international news found in dailies.

We don't have the resources to do the dailies' jobs. Nor do they have the resources to provide the comprehensive local coverage we provide for our readers.

— Rolly Peterson

Driving can be hazardous but walking also a danger

Driving can be pretty hazardous during the winter when the weather produces snow, ice, sleet and gusty winds. Walking can get pretty dangerous, too.

Sometimes we forget that our sidewalks are the major means of conveyance for pedestrians. If we leave our walkways covered with snow or ice, we have left a real hazard for walkers. The pedestrian either risks injury by walking on a slippery sidewalk, or risks injury by stepping into the roadway.

Among the frequent users of sidewalks are students who depend upon our sidewalks to get to and from school each day, sometimes when it's partially dark and very dangerous to be walking along the roadway.

But our sidewalks also are used each day by mail carriers, news carriers, delivery persons and by our friends who arrive for a visit. To assure these services and amenities, only a little effort is required to keep snow and ice off the walks.

The U.S. Postal Service points out that in 1982 in the Detroit area nearly 1,050 mail carriers suffered injuries due to hazardous walking conditions during bad weather.

In all communities, local and road authorities and customers are asked to keep public roads and private approaches clear to mailboxes during the winter months. Normally, rural carriers aren't required to provide mail service on foot or by motor vehicle when civil authorities advise motorists to avoid travelling on certain public streets or highways.

In the city of Plymouth, the DPW has the right to shovel the sidewalk in front of any residence or business and charge the owner for doing so. The purpose is to reduce danger to students, mail carriers and others by assuming the responsibility which should be taken by the owner. The cost is high enough that delivery of the "service" usually only occurs once.

But we shouldn't have to subject ourselves to fines or disruption of services or a face possible civil lawsuit against us for damages before clearing our sidewalks. Winter walking can be a hazard. Let's all practice the Good Neighbor Policy.

High-tech firms are admired

"I think this is the finest industrial enterprise in the world." So stated IBM's chief executive officer, John R. Opel. In a recent survey conducted by Fortune magazine, for the second year, IBM was rated as the most admired of the largest U.S. corporations. Fortune polled more than 100 analysts. Those surveyed were asked to rate only the 10 largest companies in their own industry using a scale of 0 (poor) to 10 (excellent), on eight key attributes of reputation.

  - Community and environmental responsibility.
  - Use of corporate assets.
- The survey included 250 companies in 25 industries. Six of the 25 industry groups were high technology oriented. They included: aerospace, chemicals, electronics, office equipment and computers, pharmaceuticals and precision instruments.

IN THE AEROSPACE industry group, Boeing was rated first, followed by United Technologies, Rockwell International, Lockheed, and General Dynamics. DuPont ranked the highest in the chemical industry group followed by Monsanto, Dow Chemical, Hercules and Union Carbide.

General Electric led the electronics industry group with Motorola, Emerson Electric, Western Electric and Raytheon following in respective order.

Not surprisingly, IBM was the leader of the office equipment and computer industry group. Hewlett-Packard was closely behind in second place followed by Digital Equipment Corporation, Wang Laboratories and NCR.

Merck and Johnson & Johnson were neck and neck for first and second place respectively in the pharmaceuticals industry group. Third was Abbott Laboratories, followed by Pfizer and SmithKline Beckman.

In the precision instruments industry group, 3M was first followed by Eastman Kodak, Perkin-Elmer, BQ & G, and Tektronix.

THE MOST ADMIRABLE U.S. companies believe that their ultimate success depends on how they are perceived by the public. Repeatedly, corporations with first-class reputations are seen to put quality, integrity and respect for the customer alongside profits on the bottom line.

Among the 250 companies surveyed, six of the top 10 were high technology firms. However, not all high technology companies were rated highly. Near the bottom of the list, ranked 242 out of 250, was Warner Communications.

Fierce competition in the home computer market and misjudgment of demand for video games led to a $536 million loss in the first nine months of 1983 for Warner Communications' Atari Division.

To earn a Triple A reputation, Fortune's survey suggests it is necessary to earn money consistently. Hewlett-Packard boasted the highest 1982 return to investors at 84.8 percent.

A symphonic tribute given

To the editor:
 When I first contacted Observer photographer Bill Bresler about some publicity for the Plymouth Youth Symphony, he was very receptive, but when I opened the Observer yesterday I was a bit overwhelmed.
 I want to thank you, but I also want to compliment your photographer on a beautiful piece of art. He certainly knows how to capture a story with his camera.
 From all the children and parents involved with the Symphony, thanks a lot!

Joan E. Schmidt

A big help on 'Variety Is . . .'

To the editor:
 Just a note to express my thanks to all of you for your excellent coverage of our recent "Variety Is . . ." band show.
 We had a large turnout for both shows, and I'm sure this was due to your great job of getting the word out to the community.
 We certainly appreciate your continued support of the band program here at the Centennial Educational Park (CEP). Thanks again.

James R. Griffith
 director, Plymouth CEP Bands

Police officer was courteous

To the editor:
 I recently was involved in an automobile accident. As a result I came in contact with a policeman for the first time.
 Being in an accident is not, by any means, an enjoyable experience. But thanks to Plymouth Police Officer Wayne Carroll, my experience was not as traumatic as it could have been. Officer Carroll was professional, courteous and understanding.
 I feel that Officer Carroll should be recognized as being an asset to the Plymouth Police Department. If only everyone in need of a policeman's services could be aided by an individual like Officer Carroll.

Symphony League says 'thanks'

To the editor:
 On behalf of the Crescendos and the Plymouth Symphony League, we would like to express our sincere thanks to all who made the Christmas Luminary Sale such a huge success. It was indeed gratifying to see how much of our Community was "lit up" on Christmas Eve. A special thanks also to the Community Newspapers for their coverage and publicity.

AUDITIONS begin Monday, Jan. 30 for the annual musical presented by the high schools' drama department. The auditions will continue through the week and CEP drama coach, Gloria Logan, reminds ninth graders in the middle schools that they are included. Just call her at 451-6243 for an audition time.

They have selected "No, No, Nanette" and the old-fashioned romantic musical should be a joy for cast and audiences.

Don't forget the mime show this Friday and Saturday evenings. The 20 drama students involved in the show chose the title, "I'll show you mime if . . ." Gloria said this was their second choice and did not elaborate on their first choice.

NATIONAL Geographic World, the children's version of National Geographic, featured an article about Plymouth, Mich. It had to do with the infrared photographs of local houses taken a few years ago to show heat loss. It showed a picture of an unidentified street of homes and explained the ghostly glow really was heat escaping from the buildings.

THE INTERNATIONAL gathering of Girl Scouts and Girl Guides in the United States this summer has promoted all kinds of global projects on the grass roots level. Scouts have been encouraged to participate in an undertaking dealing with one of three global issues: hunger, education or medical care. The purpose is to create an awareness in Girl Scouts of these areas of concern on a personal, local, national and global level.

Cadettes in Troop 533 are conducting a food drive for needy local families. Their "Love Thy Neighbor" project will culminate on St. Valentine's Day. They are tying in the theme of love with the presentation of food baskets.

The 32 girls in the troop are seventh and eighth graders who attend seven area schools. Anyone who wishes to contribute to their food drive should call 455-4215 or 459-5326.

WE HAVE TWO sets of winners at the Thursday afternoon party bridge games at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

Joe Moravek had high score and Judy Guideau second high Jan. 12. Last Thursday, Jan. 19, C.L. Cook took top honors and Frances Peters was in the No. 2 spot.

THE PLYMOUTH Community Band, directed by Carl Battishill, will play a concert at Twelve Oaks Mall at noon Saturday, Jan. 28. The band will join other community bands from Lansing, Birmingham, Novi and Farmington in a mass concert at 1 p.m. under the direction of Jack Pierson of Dearborn High School.

The concerts are part of the 50th-anniversary celebration of the Michigan School Band & Orchestra Association.

If you're yearning for summertime and concerts in the park, Saturday's concert could be a preview or a review. They'll be back in Kellogg Park in (just) five months.

JOYCE TANNER and Beverly Easton were the ninth and 10th winners of the Big 50-50 draw, a fund-raiser arranged by athletic boosters at Plymouth Salem High School. Each won $100 and the 10th drawing marked the end of the contest which realized $700 for the Rocks athletic programs.

At this time, they are undecided about starting another 50-50. It is a lot of work for the parents who run the contest and must be something of a hassle for the coaches who help push ticket sales.

THE VFW is sponsoring a bowlathon to benefit the Statue of Liberty Centennial Campaign to renovate the grand old lady who will mark her 100th birthday in 1986. Both bowlers and pledgers are needed and the public is invited to participate. All individuals or groups interested in participating may contact Fred Schebor, 589-0079; Alice Fisher, 453-6144; or call the post at 459-0079.

The Mayflower-Lt. Gamble Post will miss one of its top bowlathon money-makers, Grace Burley.

'I'll show you mime if' opens Friday at CEP

The 1984 mime show, "I'll Show You Mime if . . ." presented by the pantomime class at the Centennial Educational Park, was created by the class members. The Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem high school students conceive, write, direct and produce the entire show from their imaginations.

Using all types of music as well as silence, they have come up with pantomimes ranging from the sublime to the ridiculous. The stories deal with dogs, robbers, outer space, and war. The titles include: "Times Up at Times Square," "Jaws I, II, III, IV," "Subway Man," "Still of the Night," and "Evil Lurkes."

They will exhibit their performing abilities for audiences Friday and Saturday nights at Plymouth Salem High auditorium, Joy Road west of Canton Center Road. Curtain time is 8 p.m. and admission is $1.

GLORIA LOGAN, general director of the mime company, said, "What they have learned in this class goes beyond performing skills as they have learned to work together as a team in easy going and rough waters. This is a lesson well-learned and basic to a fruitful future."

Members of the cast are: Cathy Anderson, Donna Ashe, Laura Barnès, Rebecca Clapman, Shannon Fitzgerald, Eric Holland, Michelle Johnson and Debbie Kelly.

Also involved are Tina LaRoche, Donna Marowski, Lisa McUmber, Donna Olinger, Stephanie Roettger, Debbie Squilletts, Paula Wasiak and Becky Wiley.

Working behind the scenes are Mark Dodes, master electrician; Fred Bock and Amy Emerson, stage managers; Rene Pikula and Stacy Thibert, house managers; Mark belding, audio master; and John Drake, lighting master.

Robert Abraham, Jeff Hammonds, Dennis Ringer and Linda Solak are spotlight operators.

Quilting theme — antique to contemporary

Dian Smith says the revival of interest in the old art of quilting continues to grow. Quilting classes at her shop on Main Street continue to be popular. And graduates of the classes return for fabrics to make another cushion top, another vest or another quilt.

She will be guest speaker when the Plymouth Newcomers Club meets for lunch Thursday, Feb. 2 at Hillside Inn. She will talk about the history of quilts and quilting, and display quilts from her collection which date from antiques to modern. Newcomers have been invited to bring old quilts and have the patterns identified.

She has discovered that quilting goes back to before the birth of Christ. In the Middle Ages, knights wore quilted padding under their armor to make it more comfortable.

SMITH COMES from a family of quilters. Her grandmother made quilts and her mother made quilts. She has a crib-size quilt that her mother made for her before she was born. The appliqued animals, embroidered and outlined in black etching stitch, are still bright and colorful. The log-cabin quilt, made by her grandmother, was tied and quilted.

Women who are quilting for the first time feel comfortable with the block-of-the-month classes as an easy way to break into quilting. There are stenciled quilts, patched quilts, appliqued quilts and sampler quilts. A cushion top, a child's bib or a quilted piece framed in a hoop to hang on the wall is a starter project.

Quilted vests also are popular — attractive and warm additions to a wardrobe.

Smith does not use a frame or hoops when she is quilting. She said, "I just feel more comfortable doing it on my lap. I always start in the middle and work out."

Reservations for the Newcomers luncheon meeting must be made by noon Monday, Jan. 30 by calling Eileen Graham, 453-3906. Cost of the luncheon is $5.95.

Trip to ice show planned for Canton kids

How does a 33-point spread sit with all you basketball fans?

Well if that suits your fancy, then you'd better keep your eye on one of Canton's youngest movers and shakers. For it was 13-year-old M.J. Ewald who showed them how it was done as he out-distanced his nearest competitor, Arnold Brookens of Saginaw, by 33 points. M.J. was competing in the Pepsi NBA Hotshot area finals at the Pontiac Silverdome. He totaled up a three-round score of 111 points, demonstrating his outstanding ability while competing in his age group 13-15. He outshot boys 14 and 15 years of age. His nearest competitor totaled only 78 points!

Keeping up the family image, M.J.'s younger brother, Tracey Ewald, didn't let the first-place winner in his 9-12 age group run away with the points. He placed second and only 4 points behind the winner. Congratulations Tracey, and remember, wait until next year.

M.J. has smashed all previous records for Canton Township by winning the area finals. So it's on to Indianapolis, Ind., where he will compete Saturday, Feb. 25, with the champions from Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky. The winner of this division championship will advance to the nationals.

So M.J. Ewald, central division champion, congratulations 111 times, with a special emphasis on the last 33. Congratulations to everyone who competed. Remember you have nothing to be ashamed of if you lost to M.J. here in the Canton Parks and Recreation Competition. After all, nobody in the whole division could beat him or even come close. I want to add another congratulations to Tracey and the parents of these two "hotshots." Having been the mother of a "basketball nut" myself, I can well appreciate the many hours of pounding your backboard it must have taken. Not to mention your patience waiting to get the dishes washed let alone the grass cut. Not an easy job, but you did it well.

Canton chatter Sandy Preblich

NOW IF SKIING isn't your bag; if you never quite mastered gliding along frozen water on two skinny blades; if you love the snow, but you're sure you'll hit a tree if you try to slide down a hill on anything; if you're just having withdrawal symptoms, looking for grass and waiting to hear the crack of a ball against the smooth, swift swing of a bat; if any or all of the above applies to you, Canton Parks and Recreation is waiting and ready to serve you. In other words, "have they got a deal for you."

This is one event I will not promise to see you there. This, folks, is the fifth annual "Groundhog Day Classic" slo-pitch softball tournament.

That's right! Get out your sneakers, better make that boots, for on Saturday, Jan. 28, at Griffin Park the fun (?) will begin. All the hearty die-hard baseball fans will meet to battle the elements and swing at that 16-inch, orange-colored softball. Doesn't it bring back memories to think of swinging at the 16-inch, orange-colored softball?

For those of you who do remember (and I understand you number strong) the teams are invited to contact the Parks and Recreation Department between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. at 397-1000 for more information.

Good luck and bad weather! I say that only because they tell me it is the only sporting event that is canceled in case of good weather.

CANTON PARKS and Recreation thinks of Canton kids even in this freezing weather, and have they got a treat lined up. Space is limited so think about this now.

"Sesame Street Live," the all new ice show, is coming to Cobo Hall. It's a million-dollar production featuring 22 of Jim-Henson's famous muppets including favorites Big Bird, Bert and Ernie, the Cookie Monster and more. It is being offered as a field trip by the recreation department. As always, supervision and transportation are provided by the recreation department. The trip is open to children 4 years and older for $7 per child. Departure from township hall is at 9 a.m. and reservations with Canton Recreation are necessary. So discuss it quick and call fast because Saturday, Feb. 4, will be a day to remember for some very lucky Canton kids.

before your eyes. Almost every merchant participating will be from the Plymouth-Canton community. Some things (few though they may be) are not found in our community, so we had to go to a friendly neighbor. But who knows, maybe when they see we need them, they'll move in and join us.

I have heard the plans and they sound terrific. So watch for more news on the bridal fashion show, scheduled for March 4 at the Plymouth Cultural Center, organized by Rose Catering. For more information, call 453-2980 or 459-6026.

SPEAKING OF days to remember, soon the Plymouth-Canton or Canton-Plymouth community will see what I hope will become a spring tradition in our community. Several businesses in and around our community are joining together in presenting a Bridal Fashion Show.

Now what could be more fun? Just think of the growth potential in something like this? As it is now, so many merchants are involved, I don't know where to begin. There will be every aspect of wedding planning represented. As the time approaches, I will try to pass on more information to you.

For now, I'll just tease you. Naturally, there will be lovely gowns for members of the wedding party, but they will take you one step further with a look at the latest in trousseau fashions for today's bride. What bride would be complete without the perfect hair-do? Not ours, so they'll show you the latest and the greatest. From beginning to end, you'll see the perfect wedding blossom

THANK YOU to all who bought our "Sesquicentennial Cookbooks" at Kroger last Saturday. And special thank yous to all the ladies who came out and bravely sat there selling those books just so we can get the Sesquicentennial Celebration off the ground. All the proceeds go into the fund, sponsoring events through the year. So if you get a chance, get a book.

May I add a special star to Kroger. Not only did they allow us to sell our books there, they welcomed us into the building itself. If any of you remember Saturday, it went down in history as the coldest day in Michigan for the century, climbing up to a big -3 degrees for the high. Even inside we could see our breath as we spoke. We never could have done it without them.

I mention this because not all stores will allow you on the sidewalk, let alone inside their building.

So a Sesquicentennial Star to Kroger, you're a nice part of our 150-year-old community.

UM-D offers public events

Several events will be open to the public free of charge at the University of Michigan-Dearborn in February.

One of them is a talk by Dr. William Shuster of Case Western Reserve University from 3-4:30 p.m. Friday, Feb. 3. To be held in 144 of the Classroom Administration Building, the talk will concern "Molecular Biology of Extra-cellular Toxins of Gram-Negative Bacteria."

A University Preview is scheduled from 3-5 p.m. Friday, Jan. 27 in 1091 University Mall. Topics to be discussed are the co-op experience, financial aid and "Undecided and Looking for a Direction."

To make a reservation call 593-5167. A nature walk called "Animal Tracks" in the UM-D Environmental Study Area will take place at 10 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 11.

For further information, call the university at 593-5555.

Nila at Town Hall

Nila Magidoff will be the third speaker in the Plymouth Town Hall series at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday, Feb. 1 at the Penn Theater on Penning Avenue. Russian-born Magidoff will talk about "Everyday Life in the Soviet Union Today." For reservations at $7.50 per person, call Janet McKelvey, 453-8865. Tickets also may be purchased at the door. For information and reservations for the celebrity luncheon after the talk, call 453-8865. Reservations for the celebrity luncheon must be made in advance.

Club members Guenther and Phyllis Urban and six of their friends came to last year's Fasching party as Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs. Phyllis was Dopey and Guenther was Happy.

Fasching fun Feb. 11

The German-American Club of Plymouth will host its annual Fasching party at 8 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 11, in the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer St.

Festivities will continue until 1 a.m. with dancing and singing to the music of the Melodias. Imported German wine and beer, sausage and sauerkraut on crusty rolls, German potato salad and cake will be served.

The pre-Lenten festival is traditionally a costume ball and prizes are given for the best costumes. People of all ethnic backgrounds attend the Fasching ball and, although costumes add to the fun, they are not required.

Reservations at $4 per person must be made in advance by calling 459-4261 or 453-5839. Tickets will not be available at the door.

Fasching is the German equivalent to the French Mardi Gras. In Europe, the celebration begins six weeks before Shrove Tuesday and varies according to the province or town. Costumes are planned for weeks, even months, in advance. Fasching creates a carnival atmosphere. The costumes are humorous, in keeping with Fasching mood that spoofs authority.

THE GERMAN-AMERICAN Club of Plymouth Inc. was organized in April 1974. Its purpose was to perpetuate the fine attributes of German traditions and culture. It is both a social and service club.

German ancestry is not a prerequisite for membership. Monthly meetings begin with a business session followed by a program and coffee and Kuchen.

The club sponsors an Oktoberfest party in the fall, takes part in the Plymouth Fall Festival, has potluck dinners for its members and grants a scholarship each year. There is a Christmas party in December and a family picnic in the summer. The club also contributes to community projects.

The club's Fasching party usually is a sellout. Last year, the club ran out of imported beverages before the party was over and had to go out and buy more.

The little open-faced meat and cheese sandwiches that were so popular last year will be served.

Our annual sale is almost over.

Hurry—you have only till January 31 to save 10% to 40% off our regular prices.

At Workbench, we don't have lots of storewide sales. Just one a year. But it's a dilly. Because we mark down all our best stuff. Not just a few things. Not even just a lot of things. But almost everything.

And, unlike a lot of other places, we don't bring in so called specials. At Workbench, we just go through the store with our red pencil and slash prices. Which means that right now you'll find 10% to 40% off on butcher block tables, upholstery, storage systems, bookcases, carts, music benches, desks and chair after chair after chair. Even the already reduced "Foreign Policy" prices on most of our imports have been further price cut for this sale.

Of course, there are a few things currently oversold that we can't put on sale. Is there a catch? Only time. Because our storewide sale lasts only until January 31. So hurry.

Classic Danish bookcases from Wester gaard in oak or teak veneers (walnut available at slightly higher prices). As shown, wide tall bookcase, 76h x 35 1/2 w. x 12 1/2 d. $99 reg. $109, narrow tall bookcase, 76h x 21 1/2 w. x 12 1/2 d. $89 reg. $99, single door $20 reg. $25.

A self-directed career seminar for displaced homemakers is being offered by the Women's Resource Center of Schoolcraft College through Project HERS (Homemakers Employment Re-entry System) beginning Feb. 7.

Focus of the seminar is to help participants examine their work history, look at the reality factors involved in career planning and to research careers that interest them.

Interest tests and group sharing will aid in identifying new career options. A second weekly session will offer assertiveness training, a small group process to help one learn how to express one's opinions and claim valid rights without infringing on the rights of others. Participants will practice assertive skills by role playing their own problem areas.

Displaced homemakers are people who have worked in the home most of their lives for their families without pay and who have lost their source of income due to death, disability, desertion, divorce or separation from the person on whom they have been dependent and who lack adequate job skills as well as recent skilled, full-time employment. Students must not be receiving other federal educational aid.

Registration is by interview only. For an appointment, call the WRC at 591-6400, Ext. 432.

The View

"Grace, who has just turned 89 years young this month, fell and broke her leg. Gracie has been one of our top money-producers in past bowlathons, everyone pledged to Grace," said Archie Bunch, post adjutant.

"We shall miss her very much.

She vows to be back knocking them over next year," added Arch.

The bowlathon will begin at noon Saturday, Feb. 11 at the Plaza Lanes on Ann Arbor Road. It sounds like a lot of fun and it would be nice to see the local post and its auxiliary have a respectable sum to turn over to the Statue of Liberty renovation fund.

'Living Word' thrives on repeat performances

By Marie McGee
staff writer

ONE MORE TIME is a familiar refrain for the Living Word Performers of the Lord's House.

They'll be performing one more time at their home base in Livonia the weekend of Feb. 3-4.

The performances will mark the 12th time the group has appeared in the same show, "The Book of Life."

"We don't have time to change it," said director Bob Smith.

It's been a crowd pleaser wherever the loosely knit group of actors have taken the show.

And that's been all over the state of Michigan and includes performances at churches, schools and prisons.

THE CAST OF 22 — most of them young married couples — hardly has time to ponder their success. Last weekend, for instance, they drove to Imlay City where they presented the show. Busy all week with commitments of their daily lives, the cast headed out Saturday morning for Imlay City High School. But preceding them by about three hours was Smith and the busload of props, costumes and musical equipment. With Smith are three other cast members who make up the road crew.

The bus is a 1987 vehicle the troupe purchased several years ago that has had its interior gutted with the exception of four seats.

"You wouldn't believe how meticulously we pack that bus," said Smith. Keeping it in running condition is another challenge. His expertise as an instructor in auto body repair for the Detroit public schools is a big help.

The bus is just one of the improvements the group has made in its eight years of existence. Smith is the last of the original members of the group.

The players organized, he recalled, for the fun of it. He was about 16 at the time.

"WE WERE ALL close friends and a bunch of hams who didn't mind making fools of ourselves," he said, smiling.

The script was based on a song in rock singer Barry McGuire's album "Eve of Destruction." The song was "Enter In."

"What we did was break up into four groups and we all wrote a segment and then put it together," Smith said.

Basically, it's the story of four people who die. Only one makes it to heaven.

He said the group practiced "many, many hours" in preparation for that first performance before the Lord's House audience. The result was unexpected.

"It was a crowd pleaser right away," he said. "The place was packed, and we wound up doing it twice."

In those days, special effects consisted of a spotlight controlled by a dimmer switch and costumes made of sheets.

Today, those costumes more sophisticated, and the group has about $15,000 invested in sound and lighting equipment. The music is live. Special effects are an important part of the show.

At one point, a fogging machine dispenses about six inches of dense fog to create a heavenly illusion.

"IT'S EERIE," Smith admits.

He said the group has thought about changing the show, but is kept too busy doing it to get serious about coming up with something new. They do about three road shows a month. One reason for its success could be the low cost of the production. All they charge is gas money plus $150. A donation is also taken.

Cast member Sandy Provost says she sees the hand of God behind the success.

"From the beginning, the script was inspired by the spirit of God," she said. "It deals with people right where they're at. The audience can identify with some of the characters. It's fairly realistic."

The group of about 20 has had great success with the shows at state prisons, including the federal prison at Milan. It was "rough," Smith said.

Another recent prison performance was for inmates at a Huron Valley maximum security prison for women.

The performance concludes with an altar call in which members of the audience can come up and give themselves to God. A Bible is given to the declarers.

The performances on Friday and Saturday nights will be at 7 p.m. and are open to the public. There is no admission charge. The Lord's House, a non-denominational full gospel church, is located at 36924 Ann Arbor Trail, corner of Newburgh Road, Livonia.

Sandy Provost plays a girl who has an overdose. Sue Moyer, her peer in the play, watches her.

where several million pieces of literature are now printed each year.

In Kenya, Kingsriter headed a team of missionaries in founding the Kenya Assemblies of God, which has grown in the past 10 years from less than 100 churches to more than 450. # Health industry asked to help produce tax cut

By Tim Richard
staff writer

It's up to health care providers whether state government will have more money for schools and an Oct. 1, income tax cut.

Gov. James J. Blanchard is hoping to hold the line on his $5.38 billion "continuation" budget by asking providers to take a zero increase in Medicaid payments in fiscal 1985. If they don't, his tightly drafted budget plan could fall apart.

"It'll be tough politically," the first-term governor admitted after a two-hour stage presentation of his budget in Lansing Monday. "The (providers) lobby intensely. If they don't accept it, I anticipate Agnes' saying 'I want more.'"

"AGNES" MEANS Dr. Anges Mary Mansour, director of the Department of Social Services (DSS), former president of Mercy College and former member of the Farmington Hills-based Sisters of Mercy.

She pointed out repeatedly that welfare recipients haven't had an increase in their basic $5-a-day living grant since October 1979.

"We're asking the same thing of health care providers," Mansour said after the meeting. "We want to highlight a basic problem in the health care industry."

Medicaid is the state program that pays the health care costs of the poor. In recent years, the state's bill has risen 15 to 20 percent annually, according to legislative analysts.

"We're asking efficiencies and sacrifices and doing without by the providers," Mansour said, listing these cost histories since 1981:

- Aid to Families with Dependent Children — down 8.5 percent.
- General assistance (mainly to men who have exhausted unemployment benefits) — down 11 percent.
- Child foster care — up 17 1/2 percent.
- Adult foster care — up 26 1/4 percent.
- Nursing home care — up 32 percent.

THE ADMINISTRATION'S political strategy is clear: If health care providers resist a zero increase in benefit levels and seek more money from the Michigan Legislature, Mansour's "clients" will do battle for a benefit increase.

The results: Blanchard's tenuously balanced budget would unravel; the $130 million tax decrease that he wants

MEDICAID ELIGIBLE PERSONS & EXPENDITURES IN MICHIGAN FOR FISCAL YEARS 1973 THROUGH 1985

NOTE: 1984 and 1985 figures are estimates.

to push forward from Jan. 1 to Oct. 1 would be out the window, and the new money the governor is promising educators would evaporate.

Mansour's DSS this year is spending 40 cents of every $1 in the state general fund. Blanchard wants to cut this to 37 cents in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

The DSS budget has two main components: 1) direct payments to individuals and 2) Medicaid, which goes entirely to health care providers.

To do it, he is betting the welfare caseload will drop 40,000 from the current level of 394,000 as the economy improves. That 10-percent decrease is a compromise between cautious DSS estimates and more buoyant estimates by the University of Michigan.

THE TIPOFF to Blanchard's strategy was contained in these sentences tucked away in the text of his 43-page budget message:

"I am proposing for fiscal 1985 a recommended $1.395 billion for the Medicaid program, $56 million less than the level appropriated in fiscal 1984.

"To encourage the same commitment to cost-containment that I have made, this recommendation omits the customary and heretofore automatic inflation-related increases to Medicaid health-care service providers."

Further pointing the finger at providers, Blanchard noted that in 1973-83, the number of persons eligible for Medicaid rose 31.6 percent (771,000 to 1,015,000) while costs rose 209 percent ($419 million to $1.295 billion), or seven times as much.

LAST YEAR Blanchard, at Mansour's urging, asked a 5-percent grant increase in welfare benefit levels. After a political eruption, the idea was shot down by legislators.

Blanchard Monday freely confessed his request was a political mistake. Instead, he is asking other increases for welfare recipients.

These include raising "workfare" to $47.2 million (from $22.9 million), raising energy allowances to $30 million (from $25 million), a second year of the Youth Job Corps, a Michigan Conservation Corps and an incentive payments to private employers who hire general assistance recipients.

Mansour said her long-term goal is more than just raising welfare benefits. "We can't continue just to sustain the poor. We have to address the conditions that made them poor," she said.

CAN STATE government force health care providers to accept a zero increase in payments? The answer seemed to be yes.

"The federal government (which puts up half the Medicaid money) has to allow us to amend our agreements with hospitals," said Robert Naftaly, the certified public accountant from West Bloomfield Township who has been Blanchard's budget director since September.

State Sen. Patrick McCollough, D-Deerborn, whose Senate committee has been studying health care costs, said the state's position should be: "This is what we will pay. We will go no further."

McCollough, whose district includes Garden City, said that if large Detroit hospitals refuse to accept a freeze on Medicaid payment levels, "There are a lot of good, small, community hospitals that charge far less than the downtown Taj Mahals."

For example, an alcoholic "drying out" can do it as well in a small community hospital than in a major institution with all sorts of cancer technology, he said.

MCCOLLOUGH, WHO faces a possible recall election for his March 1983 vote in favor of Blanchard's income tax increase, said the governor hadn't yet offered him the chance to sponsor the bill rolling back the increase.

The tax rate was raised to 6.35 percent, fell 0.25 percent last Jan. 1 and is due to drop another 0.25 percent Jan. 1, 1985.

Grid team drops ball

The Plymouth-Canton Steelers football organization has agreed to set aside thoughts of football for a few weeks and respond to human needs.

Dave Bryant, new president of the Steelers, has asked the Steelers to respond to the outcry for winter clothing which is desperately needed in the metropolitan Detroit area.

The Steelers have begun collecting coats and other winter apparel, such as boots, gloves, and hats. Adult clothing will go to Detroit Rescue Mission; children's clothing to the Plymouth-Canton Clothing Bank. To provide the community a chance to participate, the Steelers are asking residents to bring a useable piece of winter clothing to Kellogg Park from 1-4 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 5.

"Just look for the Steelers banner in the park, and someone will be there to accept your donation and provide you with a receipt for tax purposes," said Bryant.

In addition, Steeler players and cheerleaders will be canvassing their neighborhoods looking for donations.

Community Band to perform

The Plymouth Community Band will be appearing at the fourth annual Festival of Community Bands which will run 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday at Twelve Oaks Mall's Center Court.

Music will begin at 11 a.m. with a Novi Concert Band performance. The concerts will continue with the Plymouth Community Band at noon, the Lansing Concert Band at 2 p.m., the South Oakland Concert Band at 4 p.m., the Birmingham Community Band at 5 p.m. and the Farmington Community Band at 7 p.m.

As a special feature, a combined band of community musicians will musically salute the 50th anniversary of the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association (MSBOA) at 1 p.m. and 6 p.m. Guest conductor for the 1 p.m. concert will be Jack Pierson and Donald Miller for the 6 p.m. concert. Both maestros are former MSBOA presidents.

MSBOA is a professional association of over 1,500 Michigan instrumental teachers. Founded as a single district in 1934, it has grown to a 16 regional-district association covering both peninsulas and serving over 1,200 public, private and parochial schools.

Twelve Oaks is located at I-96 and Novi Road and is open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

AN EXPLOSION OF INTEREST IN CHIROPRACTIC IS SWEEPING THE COUNTRY

Hippocrates, the father of medicine said, "Know the nature of the spine, what its natural purposes are, for such a knowledge will be a requisite for many diseases."

According to Medical World News of April, 1971, Dr. James Mennell of London's St. Thomas Hospital adds: "It is indisputable that chiropractic has brought relief to many patients after orthodox treatment has been tried and failed."

In West Germany, medical doctors increasingly study chiropractic and have formed an organization called, "Medical Research and Work Group for Chiropractic."

Harold T. Hyman, M.D., writes in "Applied Therapeutics": "These things are not taught in medical schools. Usually the concept of manipulation is condemned so that new doctors go out in the world with no knowledge, an antipathy toward this most useful method."

Bernard Finneon, M.D., F.A.C.S. chief of neurosurgery at three Pennsylvania hospitals, insists, "One of the disadvantages of this form of therapy (manipulation) is it requires as much skill as surgery. Some doctors attempt to manipulate with little or no instruction."

Herman Rubin, M.D., a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, writes "The headaches, stomach trouble, neuritis or nervous irritability that my medical colleagues are attempting to cure may be due to nothing more serious than a displaced vertebra, which any competent chiropractor can restore to normal in ten seconds."

Over forty million Americans have discovered the benefits of chiropractic, and over 5 million new patients each year are turning to chiropractic. Have you tried this natural, safe, and painless approach to health? It may be the one alternative approach that may be the answer to your health problem.

Interested teachers can call the DIA to arrange a presentation.

The volunteers undergo a year-long training program given by Michael Farrell, art history professor, and various curators from the DIA education department.

"Portraits and People" has been added to the presentations which include an introduction to the museum, arts of Asia, Native Americans and Africans, and the 20th Century.

The Right Stuff for a successful coaching tenure

THINK I'LL WRITE a book. And I know just what I'll call it: How to be a Success and Coach Basketball, Too.

Not that I know anything about the Xs and Os of the game, like how to execute a full-court zone trap defense or run a three-on-two fast break. But that's simple stuff; you can pick it up by going to any two or three of the dozen coaching clinics held throughout the area.

Nah, this book will deal with more important matters. For instance:

- What do you say to the opposing coach when his team buries your team, 85-25, and he leaves his starting five in until a minute remains?
- What do you do to an opposing coach after his team buries your team, 85-25, with the starters in for all but one minute?
- And, most importantly, how do you get even with a coach who leaves his starters in for all but one minute in an 85-25 rout?

COURT ETIQUETTE — or How to be a Success No Matter What the Score — is what this all-important work would detail.

Prospective coaches should first understand this book's perspective. What is most important: 1. winning; 2. not losing too bad; 3. looking good whatever you're doing.

The obvious answer is No. 3.

My book would teach all the necessary fundamentals: proper terminology, how to get the officials to see things your way, how to get the crowd behind you, what to say to the media.

Example: Suppose Plymouth Salem had just made a mockery out of your team, ridiculing them by 80 points as in the situation stated above (note: A Fred Thomann team would not do such a thing; this is entirely hypothetical). There are several courses to take when it's time for the traditional post-game handshake:

- You can show your disapproval by refusing to shake hands, but that would just make you look like a poor sport.
- You could shake hands, say what a magnificent job the Salem team did and how crummy your team played, then add something obvious like "Today, yours was the better team." But such cowering would certainly result in a team mutiny.
- You could try punching Thomann out, but considering he stands 6-foot-8 that might not be so smart.
- You could look (up) at Thomann, straight in the eye, and say, "Is that how your mother raised you — to take advantage of the disadvantaged?"

MY SELECTED COURSE of action is the last. My mythical Fred Thomann probably wouldn't feel sorry for you or he would have pulled his starters earlier — with maybe two minutes left. But such a statement might make him feel guilty enough to take you off his schedule so you could avoid further embarrassment.

That's probably what this pretend Fred would want, anyway.

Of course there's lots more. Like success through the press. And I'm not talking press defense, either. Colorful quotes make coaches. Like "The way we played today, you'd think we had banana peels for shoes and porcupines for hands." Doesn't make a lot of sense, but it sounds good.

Confusing, too. Which is important in handling the media. They don't want any of this "We got beat in the transition" or "We couldn't handle their pressure." They want something different.

Give it to them. Even those like former Canton coach Mike McCauley, who used to tell the press, "I don't know what to tell you. Make something up, but make me sound good, will ya?" were more inventive than a lot of coaches these days.

HANDLING OFFICIALS is another integral part of a coach's makeup. One hint: call them by their first names, even if you're going to swear at them. A friendly complaint draws less heat.

Another hint: study Bobby Knight's style carefully. That'll give you a good idea of what not to do.

Of course, this book would be just a guideline with suggestions of possible recourse. The important thing to remember is to get the fans on your side. It'd be kind of a "Being Popular with the Right People" study.

One final hint: Keep the fans on your side by scheduling the Redford Catholic Centrals and Birmingham Brother Rices. Even if you get your clock cleaned, the stock excuses are all there — we're not afraid to play Catholic schools, the competition will make us better, they recruit so what do you expect, etc.

Remember to say it in showboat terms and you'll be set. The important thing is to be impressive. Who knows? Mastering these techniques could lead to a college job, and from there you'd be just one short step from . . .

Television! After all, look what saying and doing the right stuff did for Dick Vitale? Want more? Then save your pennies. This masterpiece will be on sale soon at a book (or athletic shoe) store near you.

Ypsi makes pebbles of Rocks

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

Plymouth Salem basketball coach Fred Thomann said Tuesday night's game at Ypsilanti would be his team's mid-term evaluation.

If so, his team failed. Ypsilanti used a half-court diamond zone trap and a trapping zone defense to confuse and frustrate the Rocks' offense, and the deadly shooting of James Campbell (25 points) and Mike Mellon (14 points) to puncture the Rocks' defense.

The final score: Ypsi 65, Salem 39. Salem's grade: F.

"No, we didn't flunk," said Thomann after the game. "But, we didn't exactly do a great job, either."

IN ONE sense, Thomann is right. The Rocks far from failed the first half of their season. They enter the second half with a 9-1 record, 7-0 in the league. They are certainly in good shape.

But, they no where near resembled the brilliance they flashed in their first nine games.

"For some reason, we were not ready to play tonight. I don't know why," Thomann said. "It was just a game that Plymouth Salem didn't play good."

Thomann was perplexed by his team's lack of intensity. "I just don't know why we were flat. We have been getting good recognition across the state. We were playing a real good basketball team that has proven it could play with the best teams in the state. We should have been excited to play in this game. Instead we were tentative and methodical."

Much of the blame for Salem's ineptness can be placed on Ypsilanti. Despite three losses, they are 8-3, they are one of the state's best teams. Their losses were to Brother Rice, Willow Run (by a point) and Lansing Eastern.

"I think we are a much better basketball team than our record would indicate," said Ypsi coach Dick Ouellette. "We have been shooting very well, over 50 percent from the floor, and that kind of carried over tonight. No way did I want to get behind. I know how Fred (Thomann) is when he gets ahead. He'll control the game."

basketball

HE DIDN'T have to worry about that. Salem's only lead was 6-2, early in the first quarter. Ypsi led 14-12 after a quarter.

After Salem tied it off the second quarter tipoff, the Braves reeled off six unanswered points. They went on to outscore the Rocks 16-6 in the quarter, most of the baskets were created by Ypsi's 1-2-1 diamond press.

Salem, who had been averaging better than 85 points per game, turned the ball over five times in the second quarter (17 in the game), and could only muster seven shots in the quarter. The five turnovers resulted in seven Brave points.

"Their press definitely took us out of synch," said Thomann. "We handled it OK, but when we didn't, they scored."

Things went from bad to worse in the second half for the Rocks. While the Rocks were making just eight of 23 shots in the second half (15 of 42 on the night), Ypsi was hitting 13 of 28 (26 of 56 total).

The Rocks trailed 46-30 after three and never got closer.

Campbell and Mellon were outstanding for the Braves, hitting from mostly from the perimeter. The Braves also dominated the offensive glass, getting second and third shots throughout the game. Campbell, a 5-foot-10 guard, pulled down 10 rebounds in addition to his 25 points.

Salem got nine points each from Rick Berberet and Scott Jurek. Thus, Ypsi's majesty over the Rocks continues. The Rocks have never beaten the Braves.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

It was a bad night for Erich Hartnett (above) and the rest of the Salem Rocks basketball team. Rated as high as No. 7 in the state, the Rocks came up flat against a good Ypsilanti team. The result: a 65-39 Ypsi rout.

On guard Rocks, Chiefs in battle again

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

ACOUPLE OF things will be straightened out for us tomorrow night at Plymouth Canton High School.

No. 1, we'll find out who the park's best basketball team is. Many think they can answer that right now. Obviously, Plymouth Salem is the superior team, right? The question merits analysis.

No. 2, we'll find out just how good those Canton guards are. Are Mark Bennett and Gary Thomas the best pair of guards in the area, as Canton coach Dave Van Wagoner has been saying since the beginning of the season? They will be given their most stringent test by Salem's Jeff Arnold and Erich Hartnett.

The game: Plymouth Salem (7-0 in the Western Lakes, 9-1 overall) at Plymouth Canton (5-2 in the league, 8-3 overall), 7:30 p.m. Friday.

The game could be a thriller. Just as easily, it could be a blowout. It all depends on how well Canton plays.

SALEM HAS LOST only twice to Canton. The Rocks are currently ranked No. 10 in the area cage polls, No. 1 in Observerland. It may be one of the best teams coach Fred Thomann has put together at Salem — offensively, it may be the best, despite its poor showing at Ypsilanti Tuesday.

The Rocks, on paper, are a better team than Canton. But then, so was Livonia Stevenson. But there is a special magic to this Canton team. There seems to be the right mix of intelligence and experience. The Chiefs have been able to play over and above their obvious limitations.

The Chiefs have taken the Western Lakes by complete surprise so far this year. Little was expected out of them. They were too small to compete, the tallest player being all of 6 feet 2.

But, after getting slaughtered at Ypsilanti in its season opener, Canton reeled off five straight wins, including victories over Walled Lake Central (at Central) and Northville.

After falling to Churchill, the Chiefs let everyone know they were not to be taken lightly by going into Stevenson's gym and upending the heavily favored Spartans.

"WE CAN WIN," said Van Wagoner. "If we play well, if we play up to our potential, we can beat anyone."

Some will snicker at that comment. The Rocks had better not.

"We have to deal with the strengths of their team," said Salem's Thomann, who is not about to

A PLYMOUTH HIGH SCHOOL FLASHBACK

In September of 1970, Plymouth Salem football coach Tom Moshimer moved a journeyman tailback Greg LaMirand, a 6'1" senior, into the starting quarterback position. Against rival Northville High in the opening game of the 1970 season, LaMirand, making his first start at Varsity QB threw 3 TD passes to glue-fingered 6'4" senior Charley Wolfe. That performance plus the durable running of Capt. Ed Scott, Don Chopp and Carl Huter enabled Plymouth to blitz Northville 36-8 and capture the Silver Bell emblematic of football supremacy in the rivalry between the two teams. It also marked the last time ever the Silver Bell was up for grabs.

Beale 2nd in Dearborn tournament

By Jim Hughes
staff writer

One section in the bleachers at Dearborn High was cluttered with young ladies in black and gray warmup suits who looked like they were hurrying to finish a math test.

The leader of the group, Troy gymnastics coach Pat Rasmussen, was adding numbers by the drop the zero, carry the one method. Junior gymnast Michele Sirna used a calculator, but came up with two different answers.

The "official" results calculated by the scorekeepers at Dearborn High totalled 131.35, even though the final score should have been 130.35. But, no matter how they figured it, the results were the same: The Colts successfully defended their championship Saturday at the 13th Annual Dearborn High Gymnastics Invitational.

Although the competition hadn't been completed, the Colts had finished their events. And when Dana Watson shuffled across the chalk-filled floor and announced, "Freeland needs to score 36.05 in floor to beat us," her teammates cheered since they knew their championship was in the bag.

TROY, WHICH won the meet last year, scored 130.35 points to top defending state champion Freeland's 128.40 total. It was one of those total team efforts for the Colts, as all seven members who competed placed in the top 10 in at least one event.

The Colts set the tone for their performance with a strong showing in vaulting — highlighted by Suzanne Enciso's 9.10. Originally, the judges scored an 8.85, but after conferring with each other, changed the score to 9.10. As a team, Troy scored 34.50, and had the luxury of throwing out Laura Sienkiewicz' 8.35 mark.

"They started so strong on the vault, and they had so much confidence after that," first-year coach Pat Rasmussen beamed. "We planned on starting on the beam because we thought the rotation would go that way. Then we finished strong on the bars, and that was a pleasant surprise because we had been shaky on bars. That was our highest score on bars all year."

Troy scored 32.20 on bars, 31.00 on beam and 32.65 in floor exercise. In each event, there was an outstanding routine from a different performer. On the beam, Kim Cousino watched her teammates collectively fall five times.

gymnastics

Then, while her teammates urged her to "stick it," she almost flawlessly worked her routine for a first-place overall score of 8.50.

"I was telling myself I've got to stick it to make up for our falls," Cousino said. "I was a little worried, but my tricks are not that hard, so if I fell, I would have been disappointed."

IN VAULTING, Enciso recorded Troy's first above 9.0 score when she hit her trick. On floor, Enciso led the team with a sixth-place 6.40, while teammate Dana Watson ripped off an energetic routine and scored 8.30.

The uneven parallel bars competition featured a picturesque routine by Astrid Klose, who scored an 8.40, which was good for third place overall.

Going into the meet, Rasmussen and assistant coach Colleen Grosz were optimistic, although the team was more aware of the competition.

"Colleen and I thought we could win it," Rasmussen said. "We almost would have been satisfied finishing in the top two or three. The kids weren't as confident as we were because they knew the competition was tough and they saw Freeland at the state meet last year. They knew they were strong. They just planned on doing their best ever."

The Colts succeeded in "doing their best" for 1984. Their 130.35 surpassed their previous best of 126.20. But to Freeland's credit, it competed without a top all-around performer, who, according to coach Alice Buchalter, is capable of scoring in the plus-9 range.

Freeland, a Class C school, lost just two starters from last year's team, and Buchalter believes her squad will contend again.

Freeland, like Troy, is without a senior on the team.

"I GUESS we'll be seeing a lot of each other," Buchalter said with a grin.

In the all-around scoring, Freeland's Lori Stanick was first with a 35.55, followed by Plymouth Canton's Linda Beale (33.30) and Bloomfield Hills Andover's Amy Nadler (33.10). Cousino was fourth (32.55), while Sirna finished fifth (32.35).

Beale's performance was a surprise to some, and maybe even herself since she was competing under less than ideal conditions. Canton coach John Cunningham said Beale has been ill with the flu.

"Linda's been sick, although you certainly wouldn't have known it," Cunningham said. "This was her best performance of the year so far. I knew Linda would score well on the floor and vault because she's been scoring well this early in the season."

Beale was second in floor (8.80), fifth on vault (8.70), sixth on bars (8.15) and 10th on beam (7.65). As a team, Canton finished seventh in the 14-team field with a score of 115.45.

"The way I look at it, this is an up-and-coming team," Cunningham said. "We have the potential to go a lot further and we have a lot of depth. We're not real good on bars and beam; floor is excellent and vault is good."

ANOTHER INDIVIDUAL standout

was Andover's Nadler, who scored more than one third of her team's last-place total of 93.95. However, the Barons used just four competitors on vault and bars, and three each on beam and floor.

Nadler was second on beam (7.65), fourth in floor (8.60), fourth on vault (8.95) and tied for 10th on bars (7.70).

Cousino was first on beam (8.50) and tied for sixth on vault (8.60). She also scored a 7.40 on bars and an 8.05 on floor. Sirna was fourth on bars (8.30), tied for sixth with teammate Sienkiewicz on beam (7.75) and tied for ninth with teammate O'Rourke on vault (8.40). Sirna also scored a 7.90 on floor.

Dearborn's invitational, the premier gymnastics event short of the state meet, highlights some of the best performers in Michigan. And as far as team's are concerned, a trio has monopolized the meet trophy. Since 1976, Troy, North Farmington or Ludington has won the team title.

The Colts claimed the crown in 1976, 1983 and 1984, while North Farmington won back-to-back titles in 1981-82. In 1977, 1978 and 1980, Ludington owned the title. The 1979 meet was canceled due to a blizzard.

North Farmington did not compete this year because, according to Farmington public school district athletic director Ron Holland, the Raiders "did not have a contract from them (Dearborn) telling us we were in that invitational."

After Troy won this year's title, Rasmussen talked about the future of her team, now that she's had a taste of what the Colts can accomplish.

"I think if we continue to work as hard as we have and keep our confidence, I think we can take state," she said.

JERRY ZOLYNSKY

Linda Beale, Canton's senior gymnast, was at her best last week, placing second in all-around point totals at the Dearborn Invitational Saturday, and leading the Chiefs to a win over Walled Lake Western Monday.

Salem gymnasts win 3rd straight

The Plymouth Salem gymnastics team continues its amazing roll.

The Rocks beat Northville Monday 117.05-113.15 for its third straight win. The 117.05 is the most amassed by the steadily improving Rocks, and it is the first of three scores better than 115 needed to qualify for the state regional meet.

The Rocks performance has coach Kathi Kinsella smiling.

"I'm just happy," she said. Beth Raffail, who placed second in the all-around scores with 31.05, took first place in balance beam (8.0) and the floor exercise (8.4). She tied with teammate Jackie Huff (7.8 each) to win the vault and Raffail was fourth in the uneven parallel bars, 6.85.

Huff placed third in the floor exercise (7.8), and was third in the all-around (29.10).

Salem's Sara Michalik scored some key points with thirds in the vault (6.9), and balance beam (7.55).

In the bars, Debbie Bahna qualified for state with a second-place 7.4. Bahna took fourth in the vault (6.0). Suzanne Gibbons was third in the bars with a 7.2.

The Rocks will travel to Trenton Monday, the only team Salem beat last year.

PLYMOUTH CANTON got another outstanding performance from senior Linda Beale and some high scoring from Annette Bryce to romp Walled Lake Western Monday 117.55-99.7.

The win is the second straight for the Chiefs.

Beale took first in the vault (8.85), the beam (8.6) and the floor exercise (8.7). She was second in the bars (7.45).

Beale's 8.6 in the beam established a school record.

Bryce won the bars (8.1) and took seconds in the vault (8.25) and the floor exercise (8.2). She was fourth in the beam (7.5).

Beale was No. 1 in the all-around tally with 33.6 points, just 25 off the school record. Bryce was second with 32.05, her personal best.

"We are on the road to improvement," said Canton coach John Cunningham. "We're hoping to break 120. Even though Linda was exceptional, the rest of the team has a ways to go."

Canton (2-1) will host Observerland's No. 1 ranked team North Farmington on Monday.

Salem battles Canton

take the Chiefs for granted. "They are a tremendous perimeter shooting team, so we have to be aware that all jump shots are put under pressure."

"They have decent quickness and they play an aggressive man-to-man. And they've done a good job so far in terms of their board game."

What do the Chiefs have to do to beat the Rocks? They will have to be able to stop Salem's torrid scoring pace. The Rocks are averaging more than 65 points per game — an amazing statistic considering Thomann's basic philosophy of playing defense first and getting the points when and where you can.

"If we're going to win, we will have to play good 'D,'" Van Wagoner said. "I really don't know if we can stop them. I hope we can. But they are an awesome offensive team, the best I've seen by far."

Said Thomann: "There isn't any more pressure on us to score in this game. We just try to be consistent. Our whole philosophy is to take what the opponent gives. If they give us the perimeter, we've got some people who will hit from there. If they give us the inside game, we'll take it inside. The pressure on any team is defense. You've got to stop the other team from scoring."

The match-ups for tomorrow night, because both teams play man-to-man defense, will be critical. They will also be interesting. They may also be switched throughout the game. Here's how the team's will most likely match up.

SALEM WILL be without swingman Barry Bell, who has been sidelined with an injured ankle. In his place will be 6-4 junior LeSean Haygood, adding to the Rocks' height advantage.

Haygood will most likely be matched against Mike Jennings or Kevin Hawkins, both players are in and out of the Canton lineup. Salem has the height advantage here, but with Jennings in, Canton may have the edge in quickness. Jennings' strength is on the perimeter, Haygood's is inside.

Canton's Jim Schlicker had been hobbled with a leg injury earlier this season, but is back at 100 percent. His leaping ability has enabled Canton to rebound with the taller teams. He will be a key man again against the Rocks.

Schlicker will most likely be matched against Salem's Scott Jurek. Jurek is a strong defensive player. Schlicker is a crafty, often sensational, offensive player. Jurek's size (6-2, 215 pounds) and strength can be intimidating. He may have problems, though, with Schlicker's quickness.

Salem will have its biggest advantage at the post. That's where Salem's 6-6 senior Rick Berberet hangs out. Berberet has been outstanding for the Rocks this season averaging 17 points and nine rebounds per game. He can be dominating both inside and outside and he's mobile enough to run the break.

Canton's 6-2 senior Eli Rogers will have the task of trying to harness Berberet. If things don't work out, look for Schlicker, Hawkins or Jennings to try and take on the Rock big man.

BUT THE BEST matchups of all are at the guards. Canton's long-range bomber Thomas and penetrating, play-making floor leader Bennett against Salem's long-range bomber Arnold and penetrating play-making floor leader Hartnett. They will be out to prove who, indeed, is the best backcourt.

Salem also will throw in Mike White, a speedy junior backcourt man who has the ability to score, and score quickly. Canton's bench is very limited.

Can Canton beat Salem? Of course they can.

Will they? Game time is 7:30 tomorrow night. See for yourself.

Mike Jennings (No.20) pulls down a rebound and passes to a teammate in Canton's rout of Livonia Franklin Tuesday.

Chiefs beat Pats with free throws

Successful teams make free throws. Particularly down the stretch.

Using that formula, Plymouth Canton qualifies as a success. The Chiefs proved it Tuesday, busting the game open in the final quarter with 14 points from the stripe to ward off Livonia Franklin 66-55 at Franklin.

Canton (8-3) hit 24 of 32 free throws to seven of 17 for the Patriots. That advantage offset a 24-21 Franklin edge in field goals.

"We controlled the game," said Chief coach Dave Van Wagoner. "They fouled us and we made the free throws."

"When you make your free throws you win."

CANTON TRAILED by a pair (27-25) at the half, but went up by five after a 21-14 third quarter. "Our defensive intensity picked up in the second half," Van Wagoner said. "We stopped their penetration and forced them to shoot outside."

Mark Bennett turned in another solid all-around game, scoring 19 points, including 11 of 13 free throws, and adding 10 assists and eight rebounds. Kevin Hawkins netted 16 points in what Van Wagoner called "his best varsity game," and Gary Thomas scored 14. Mike Jennings grabbed eight rebounds.

"The free throws were the difference," said Franklin coach Jim McIntyre. "We didn't back off. I have to give credit for that kind of effort."

Mike Wilkins earned high scoring honors with 26 points for the Pats (2-9). Dave Carravallah chipped in with 16.

Salem swimmers destroy Central

Easy pickin's. That's about the only way to describe Oberverland's No. 1 ranked swim team, Plymouth Salem's, 121 1/2-50 1/2 rout of Walled Lake Central.

It was such a rout that the best Salem coach Chuck Olson could say afterwards was, "It was a good opportunity to let some of the younger kids swim."

The Rocks captured every event.

In the 200-yard medley relay, the team of Don Harwood, David Workman, Mike Harwood and Bob Bowling, won in 1:50.3.

THE 400- freestyle relay team of Dean Jarski, Rich Hornby, Eric Gachenbach, and Greg Wolff won in 3:40.62.

Hornby captured the 200-free with a 2:06.7. Wolff won the 200-individual medley with a 2:16.5.

It was Jarski in the 50-free with a 25.0.

The diving went to Salem's David Huffman. He amassed 160.8 points.

Scott Anderson won the 100-butterfly (58.0), Erik Kleinsmith won the 100-free-style (50.3), Jon Cain won the 500-free (5:24.9), Jim Burns won the 100-backstroke (1:08.2) and Bill Mathews won the 100-breaststroke (1:09.7).

The Rocks (6-1, 4-0 in the Western Lakes) travel to Livonia Churchill tonight.

wrestling rankings

The following wrestling rankings are based solely on individual records. They are compiled weekly by Plymouth Canton coach Dan Chrenko. Coaches are urged to call their wrestlers' records in to Chrenko from noon to 5 p.m. every Friday. The phone number is 451-6398. All Observerland schools are eligible. If there isn't better cooperation from area coaches, this weekly feature will be dropped from the Observer sports section.

Chiefs 3rd in tourney

Thursday, January 26, 1984 O&E

(P.2)5C

The Plymouth Canton wrestling team earned some more hardware last Saturday at the Rochester Adams Invitational. The Chiefs placed third, technically, in the 17-team field. Actually, they placed fourth, but Montrose and Brighton tied for first with 154 points. Tournament officials decided to move everybody else up a notch in the standings.

Flint Northwestern amassed 118 points, earning them second place and Canton was next with 108.

"This was kind of unexpected," said Canton coach Dan Chrenko, about his team's third place finish. "We were kind of drained, emotionally, after last week, but the kids really wrestled well. They really wanted to get that trophy."

THE CHIEFS were coming off an intensely fought 30-27 win against Plymouth Salem last Thursday. They produced three champions in the Adams meet.

Heavyweight Jim Malson continues to get better and better, according to Chrenko. Malson took an 8-2 decision from Montrose's Mike McGraw in the championship round Saturday. McGraw had defeated Malson earlier in the year. Malson's record is now 21-8.

Todd Gattoni won at 112 pounds, blanking

Brighton's Rob Phifer 4-0. Gattoni is now 16-1, his only loss administered by Salem's David Dameron — a talented sophomore who Gattoni has beaten three times.

Tim Collins continued to prove he is a state-class wrestler by whipping the 140-pound field. He pounded Marine City's Joe Messina 15-0 in the championship. Collins' record is now 31-2.

Heath Smith placed third at 107, Jeff Condit fifth at 100 and Scott Tasker sixth at 145 for the Chiefs.

The Chiefs resume Western Lakes action tonight as they travel to Farmington to take on the tough Falcons.

Salem netters stage a comeback victory

Plymouth Salem played the kind of volleyball match Monday that cliches are made of: They snatched victory from the jaws of defeat.

The Rocks were trailing Northville 14-8 in the third game. The match was even at a game a piece. That's when Shelly Staszal took over. With her pounding spikes, the Rocks were able to tie and eventually defeat the Mustangs in the final game, 17-15.

The comeback pleased coach Jeanne Martin.

"It was a real nice comeback. Shelly finally decided to be offensive and hit the ball, and Lisa Madis set the ball real well. We have shown that we have the potential. We just have to keep it all together and jell."

Kelly Bemiss played a strong game for the Rocks both defensively and in the service corner.

The match shouldn't have gone three games. Salem had defeated Northville in game one. But the official noticed Salem had only five players on the court, and took away the game-winning point. The Rocks' sixth player was getting a drink of water. Northville came back to win, 16-14.

Salem roughed up the Stangs in game two, 15-5. That set up the thrilling finale.

"Our defense has been solid and our serve has been solid," Martin said. "But, offensively, we have a tendency to get lazy and just tap the ball over instead of really hitting it."

The Rocks are now 3-2 on the season.

PLYMOUTH CANTON met the league's top team Monday, Livonia Stevenson, and the results were no surprise. Stevenson clobbered the winless Chiefs, 15-2, 15-0.

"They were pretty much awesome," said first-year Canton coach Peggy Moore. "We had never faced a team that served as tough as them."

In the first game, Stevenson's Tami Scurto served 14 straight points. Four of those serves were aces and several others weren't returned.

Margie Wangbichler kept Canton in contention in game two, with five service points. Cindy Fisher made several fine saves for the Chiefs.

Stevenson is 10-2 overall this year, 5-1 in the Western Lakes. Canton is now 0-5.

Both Canton and Salem will compete in the 10-team, Plymouth Invitational this Saturday.

PLYMOUTH CHRISTIAN lost to a tough Temple Christian team Monday to drop its record to 5-5.

Temple held off the Eagles, 15-5, 13-15, 15-8 to win the match.

"Temple was a strong offensive team," said Eagle coach Jan Brandel. "They were the toughest we faced all season."

Still, the Eagles didn't back down. They got good net and service play from junior Carrie Barnes to stay in contention.

A week ago Tuesday, the Eagles knocked off Roepér, 15-8, 15-8. Kelly Pike (12 service points) and Val Andries (11 service points) paced the victory.

Net tourney

Brighton will defend its title Saturday in the ninth annual Plymouth Invitational volleyball tournament at Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem high schools.

Brighton bested the 10-team field last year and is expected to be the team to beat again this year.

The 10-team field is: Harper Woods Regina, Hazel Park, Westland John Glenn, Ann Arbor Huron, Redford Union, South Haven, Livonia Franklin, Brighton, Canton and Salem.

Pool play begins at 8:30 a.m. The quarterfinals, semifinals and finals will take place from 2:30 p.m. on. The finals will be in the Canton gym.

Skate success

The results of last week's U.S. Figure Skating Championships in Salt Lake City, Utah, were encouraging from a hometown viewpoint.

Westland's Carol Fox and partner Richard Dalley (formerly of Livonia), earned a spot on the U.S. Olympic team by finishing second in the Ice Dance Pairs competition.

The two scored 4.0 in the final standings behind the team of Judi Blumberg of Tarzana, Calif., and Michael Selbert of Washington, Pa.

Fox and Dalley were also second in the free skating program with a score of 104.0.

Jeri Campbell, 13, of Garden City, finished second in the Novice Ladies Division. Campbell, who captured the Eastern Great Lakes and Midwestern Sectional crowns, represents the Garden City Figure Skating Club.

In the Junior Pairs final standings, Deven Deck of Plymouth and Kevin Poit of Lapeer finished seventh overall. Shelly Propson of Rochester and Jerod Swallow of Northville were sixth.

"The Bravados" (1958), 1 p.m. Sunday on Ch. 4. Originally 98 minutes. TV time slot: 120 minutes.
Last week we touted a young Joan Collins in "Rally 'Round the Flag, Boys!" and she's back this week — again at 24 — but in a much better film. Gregory Peck and Collins star in "The Bravados," a grinding western that betrays its name but one that provides thrills and provokes thought — a neat trick for a picture made when Hollywood was churning out so many bad westerns. Stephen Boyd and Albert Salmi co-star.
Rating: $3.

"Pocketful of Miracles" (1961), 1 p.m. Sunday on Ch. 50. Originally 136 minutes. TV time slot: 180 minutes.
Rating: $2.95.

"Pocketful of Miracles," a remake of Frank Capra's "Lady for a Day" (1933), is director Capra's last film. It's almost a pity it's not Bette Davis' last film, too, because she's made some stinkers since. But Davis is at her best here as Apple Annie, a street urchin who comes turn into a lady to impress Annie's visiting daughter. The pace is a bit slower than vintage Capra comedies but the film is nonetheless enjoyable. Glenn Ford, Peter Falk, Hope Lange, Thomas Mitchell, Jack Elam and Ann-Margret, in her first film, round out the cast.
Rating: $2.95.

telligent, virtuous women, and that's to her credit. Unfortunately, the chemistry between Day and co-star Cary Grant is all wrong in "That Touch of Mink" but John Astin does provide some laughs. This isn't anyone's best work but if you like Doris Day, you'll probably find this film passable.
Rating: $2.65.

"The Final Conflict" (1981), 9 p.m. Wednesday on Ch. 2. Originally 108 minutes. TV time slot: 120 minutes.
Sam Neill, who co-starred in "My Brilliant Career" and now may be seen as public TV's Reilly, the ace of spies, is caught with his pants down in one of those early efforts that most movie stars have hidden in their closets. Here he's that bad, bad boy Damien Thorn of "Omen" infamy grown up and become U.S. ambassador to England in the final episode of the "Omen" trilogy. This is a truly bad film with many incredibly implausible moments, yet just maybe worth watching for the fun of it. Rossano Brazzi, Mason Adams and Lisa Harrow co-star.
Rating: $1

"That Touch of Mink" (1962), noon Tuesday on Ch. 9. Originally 99 minutes. TV time slot: 120 minutes.
Every once in awhile we pause to give Doris Day credit. After all, how many other screen comedienne have enjoyed popularity without playing dumb blondes, stooping to degrading material or generally abusing themselves? Sure, Doris maintained her virginity well into her 40s, or so it seems, but for the most part she portrayed in-

Cakes and more Restaurants say 'Happy Birthday'

By Ethel Simmons
staff writer

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! Whether your birthday's in January or February, you can celebrate with flair when the occasion arrives, with some complimentary offerings from suburban Detroit restaurants.

We're all familiar with the birthday dinner where the guest of honor is feted in a restaurant. After the meal, surprise, surprise, a small birthday cake with a candle is brought to the table and a cluster of waitresses and staff sing the greeting.

Usually, the cake's a small one, topped with a single candle, and it's often a freebie provided by the restaurant. Of course, there are variations on this theme, ranging from Alfred's in Troy, which offers a free meal, cake and framed photograph of the birthday celebrant, to the Roman Terrace in Farmington Hills, which provides a complimentary split of champagne.

Here are some details on who's giving what, and how you can arrange for the fun. In most cases, just a whispered word to the host/hostess on arrival, or to the waiter/waitress at the table is enough to have the birthday cake show up at the right time.

AL LOWENSTEIN, owner of Alfred's at Somerset Mall, Troy (phone 643-8865), said of the free cake, dinner and photo, "We've been offering that for years. Many people come back every year on their birthday."

As at many of the restaurants offering free cakes, the little cake at Alfred's reads a simple, "Best Wishes." This also makes the cakes suitable for anniversary parties, but that's another story.

At the Roman Terrace and its neighboring McFrock's Saloon and Gathering Place, 27822 Orchard Lake Road, Farmington Hills (855-3860), cakes are avoided entirely. The restaurant, as mentioned, gives free champagne and, manager Diane Debold said, in the sa-

table talk

Soon the honoree gets a big "boom" glass (32 ounces) of the cocktail of his or her choice.

Bill Knapp's family restaurants have one of the most elaborate programs for celebrating birthdays. At Bill Knapp's, 1899 Laurel Park Drive, Livonia (459-1616), manager Barb Bianchi explained the choices. For children age 10 and under, there's a free Children's Birthday Club. Youngsters who fill out a registration card in advance at the restaurant will receive a card in the mail on their birthday. On any child's birthday, free cake and 10 dishes of ice cream will be served free to the party.

The cake is a chocolate layer cake, although white cake is available on request. The candleholder is a birthday chef, with a candle sticking out of the chef's hat.

"THE ADULT Birthday Club is for age 11 and older," Bianchi said. "They come in on the day of their birthday and receive their age percentage off their birthday check." Presumably, a 100-year-old receives a free meal, but even 50-year-olds get half off.

At Bloomfield Charley's family tavern, 5656 W. Maple, West Bloomfield (855-2244), instead of a cake, birthday celebrants get a free hot apple mountain sundae. "It's one of our trademark desserts," manager Craig Cassidy said. The sundae is served with a candle in it and five or six employees "sing our little jingle." Cassidy recited it:

*"We'd like to take a minute,
We have one thing to say,
The best of luck and happiness on this important day."*

"We have about 10 of them a night," he said about the birthday parties requesting the sundae. Sometime one party will see the celebration and ask for the same.

At Machus Red Fox, flagship restaurant in the Machus group at 6676 Telegraph, Bloomfield Township (626-4200), the birthday guest may receive a three-inch cake, frosted and decorated with the message, "Best Wishes," general manager David Page said. "Generally, we don't charge for them, but that doesn't mean they're not expensive.

"PEOPLE USUALLY call ahead, or one person lags behind and says, 'There's a birthday at our table. A helpful hint: 'Who is the birthday for and their name?' That way, the cake can come to the right person and their name be sung in the 'Happy Birthday' song.

"Usually, four or five people sing. I have to join in singing near the end because of the high note, singing with four sopranos."

Birthday dinners also may include a cake specially ordered from the Machus Bakeries — although this is not a freebie. "A party of eight may order a special cake through the bakery," Page said. "They tell the bakery when the reservation time is and have the bakery contact us. The cost of the cake is added to the guest check," Page said.

At Molly McGuire's, 34290 Ford Road, Westland (728-7490), a little round cake with a candle or two is served without charge to birthday parties. "We prefer they call ahead of time if they want it to be a surprise, or they can ask when they check in at the host stand," said Ken Lux, one of the owners.

At Jim Mather's Mr. Steak, in the moderately priced restaurant chain, at 44401 Ford Road, Canton (phone 981-1048), manager Robert McWatt said, "We offer on the day of the birthday a substantial discount of $5.95 on any dinner entree."

AT THE ELEGANT Jacques's Sea Food and its companion, J.T.'s cafe, 30100 Telegraph, Bingham Farms (642-1373), manager Lynn Hayes said, "Our policy is, as a surprise, that we bring our most popular-selling torte, autumn leaves chocolate mousse torte, served with a candle in it.

"If the birthday is not a surprise, they get their choice of anything off the pastry cart, compliments of the restaurant."

What about singing "Happy Birthday"? "We do not sing out here at Jacques's," Hayes said, "but we do next door at J.T.'s Desserts at Jacques's are extra-special, baked in the restaurant's own bakery.

MARVIN TEEPLES

Some restaurants that provide cakes on birthdays do charge for them. At the Main Street Seafood Bar & Grill, 327 Main, Rochester (652-9400), manager Gary Trogu said, "There is a slight fee, $1.95, for an individual, small round cake that says 'Best Wishes.'" At Cooper's Arms, 306 Main St., Rochester (651-2266), owner Roger Knapp said, "We get requests for cakes. Customers should call ahead. We charge $3 for the cake. They're about eight inches. We get them from the home bakery next door."

At the Hillside Inn, 41661 Plymouth Road, Plymouth (453-2002), manager Mike Jackson said a six-inch cake made by Sara Lee is available for $2.75. Patrons may call ahead or request the cake when they arrive at the restaurant.

CHILDREN'S PARTIES are a specialty at Chuck E. Cheese's Pizza Time Theatre locations. At Chuck E. Cheese's, 208 S. Wayne Road, Westland (phone 729-5100), general manager Kevin McNutt explained the Chuck E. Cheese Birthday Package at $3.90 per person and the Jasper T. Jowls Birthday Package at $3.40 per person. Both packages include game tokens, pizza, soft drinks and birthday table decorations, plus the Pizza Time Players singing "Happy Birthday."

The Chuck E. package offers more game tokens and also sundaes for each guest. No cake is provided, but customers can bring their own. There is one complimentary gift, however. McNutt said, "The birthday person gets a minipizza free. It's limited to two items because that's all that will fit on it."

'Vanities' doesn't hold interest

Performances of the Garden City Civic Theatre production of "Vanities," comedy by Jack Heifner, continue at 8 p.m. Thursday-Saturday at the O'Leary Performing Arts Center, 6500 Middlebelt Road, between Ford and Warren, Garden City. For ticket information call 525-9258.

By Victoria Diaz
special writer

If you're entertained by characters with oversized egos, superficial values, and an unrelenting preoccupation with appearances, you'll probably enjoy the Garden City Civic Theater's recent production of "Vanities."

Directed by Mary Bremer (who recently won the top acting award at the American College Theatre Festival), the play tells the story of three women friends at different stages in their lives. The first scene is set in a high school gymnasium in 1963 when they are cheerleaders, the last in a New York apartment in 1974 when one is an alcoholic, one a pornography dealer and one a "kept" woman.

The three, played by Lisa Hagelthorn, Shannon Lee McNutt, and Susan Reno, go, in the course of the play, from being vain, self-absorbed teenagers to being vain, self-absorbed adults.

Although each woman does eventually exhibit some awareness of what she has become, none ever indicates that she has any ability to change or any

review

real inclination to do so. Hagelthorn as Kathy, McNutt as Joanne and Reno as Mary are attractive, energetic actresses who deliver their lines most of the time with such ease and naturalness that they hardly seem to be acting at all (one exception occurs in the opening minutes of the play when Hagelthorn speaks with a slight, inexplicable Southern accent, then quickly abandons it).

THE THREE work well together, appear comfortable in their roles and possess of stage presence.

One wonders, however, if the production might not be substantially improved if the actresses and Bremer had chosen to interpret the roles with a bit more sensitivity. As is, the characters too often seem almost one-dimensional in their vanity. As portrayed, they are difficult to empathize or identify with and, ultimately, to really care about. This, of course, puts things on a rather treacherous footing.

Delightful comic lines, delivered with a distinct flair (especially by McNutt) go far toward saving the production from failure, though. Even with its rather negative outlook, the play contains some genuinely hilarious moments.

ART EMANUELE/staff photographer

Shannon McNutt (left), Lisa Hagelthorn and Susan Reno are the three cheerleaders who grow up, in the Garden City Civic Theatre production of "Vanities."

Eric Brewer's set designs are simple, attractive, and work well. Lighting, make-up and costumes are nicely done also, giving the production a near-professional appearance.

As in the original Off-Broadway production, the actresses, during two intermissions, change costumes and hairstyles and apply make-up at separate vanity tables on stage, in full view of the audience. It's a clever, highly effective touch.

2nd mortgage frees cash locked in home

In recent years, we have frequently discovered that our financial planning clients have substantial locked-up equity in their homes.

The situation is comparable to carrying a large balance in a non-interest-paying checking account. In many of these cases, borrowing against the equity in the home with a second mortgage can be the solution to the problem.

As a general rule, many homeowners shy away from the idea of a second mortgage, which would require the making of monthly payments to two lenders to retain ownership of one piece of property.

STILL, IF your home is worth $100,000, $200,000, or more in today's market and has only a low-interest $10,000 mortgage remaining on it, your equity is considerable.

finances and you

Sid Mittra

A growing number of banks and financial services companies will give you cash for a large part (up to 75 percent) of that equity without providing collateral, or waiting weeks for approval.

Lenders who promote their loans as an easy way to obtain money for purchases, expenses and investments may call this second mortgage a home equity loan or a junior loan.

BASICALLY, MORE people are seeing how sensible it is to take some of the cash value that built up in their homes over the last decade and put it to use. If you are paying off an 8-percent mortgage, adding a new one that carries an interest rate of 15 percent or so can still leave you with an average rate of only about 10 percent.

And the interest charges on the loan are deductible, so the net after-tax interest cost would be substantially lower than the 10-percent rate.

A second mortgage might involve several options, depending on regulations in Michigan and how eager local lenders are to give you money. You may be able to choose a lump-sum loan or a revolving line-of-credit arrangement that lets you draw out various amounts as you need the money.

A LUMP-SUM deal can carry a fixed rate of interest, probably for a maximum of 15 years, or you may be offered a variable-rate loan with payments over 25 or 30 years. Or the mortgage might call for monthly payments based on a 25 year schedule with a "balloon" requiring you to pay the balance in full after 10 or 15 years.

Typically, you will pay a point or two more for the second mortgage and get a shorter pay back period than if you were taking out a first mortgage. The reason is simple. A second lender assumes a higher risk.

If you default, the holder of the first mortgage gets the property to sell and recoup his loan; any excess proceeds go to the second lender.

So if you have substantial equity in your home, it is time for you to give second mortgage a serious thought.

I see the letters CFA after the name of some securities people. Can you tell me what they stand for and mean?

The letters CFA stand for Chartered Financial Analyst. They indicate that the individual has attained a level of professional training and testing in the field of security analysis. It is similar to the designation an accountant uses with a CPA title.

As you know, most companies whose stock is publicly owned indicate an officer of the company as an "investor contact." My question is "What rules govern what information they are allowed to give?"

Can you ask, for example, what day their next earnings report is coming out? I know you can't ask what the earnings will be, but can you ask any other questions that would give you some idea of how the business is going?

I did make one phone call to a company and noticed that some of the answers were not specific to the company, but generalizations that began with "The industry is experiencing . . ." In short, what questions are proper and/or legal to ask?

The broad guideline set by the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) in advising a corporation what to say to shareholders and security analysts who call it for information is not so much what they can say, but that everyone be treated equally and given information

today's investor

Thomas E. O'Hara

of the National Association of Investment Clubs at the same time.

A corporation can tell you what it hopes to announce for its latest earnings, but if it does that, it must at the same time, make that information available to the press for dissemination to the entire investing public.

I WOULD NOT hesitate to ask any question that you want to ask as a shareholder. You may ask what the corporation expects to earn, but be prepared for a variety of answers, such as: We are sorry, it is not the policy of the corporation to discuss earnings until they are publicly announced.

Some corporations may answer: "We have announced that we expect earnings to be in the range of $1 to $1.25 a share." Others may say: "We don't estimate earnings, but security analysts are estimating we will earn between $2 and $2.80 a share."

Some will add that they believe those at the low end of that range will be closer.

SOME BUSINESSES are subject to many less variables than others, and the management of such businesses may be more willing to give you earnings estimates.

If you ask questions about products, research or manufacturing procedures, you will usually get all the information you need, unless the company believes you get into an area where answering your question might reveal competitive information.

If the corporation is about to sell more stock, and is in the process of registering a new issue for sale, it is subject to more-than-normal scrutiny by the SEC and is likely to restrict its comments to pretty broad subjects.

But, as a shareholder, ask the questions you want answers to. Let the corporate officer decide how fully he can answer you.

Compare IRAs

Which would you prefer... a higher stated interest rate or more money?

Michigan National compounds interest monthly to pay you more money for your money

Higher stated interest rates on Individual Retirement Accounts (IRA) may sound good initially. But, if you're interested in earning more money for your money, consider the effects of Michigan National's monthly compounding of interest versus other banks' simple interest method of payment.

Earn interest on your interest

A minimum deposit of only $50 at Michigan National earns interest each month. So, month by month, year after year you continually earn interest on your interest.

Most other banks, however, pay interest on a simple basis.

No compounding.

No payment of interest on your interest.

That's why other banks can quote a higher rate, and yet, pay less interest over the lifetime of your investment.

Don't be fooled by high interest IRA claims.

Invest your retirement savings with Michigan National where your IRA will earn more money for your money with monthly compounding.

Need a loan to fund your IRA?

Borrow up to your annual IRA contribution limit at preferred rates to take advantage of 1983 or 1984 tax deductions. Then write off interest payments for an additional tax savings. Ask for details on the advantages of an IRA loan at any branch office.

Korab's dilemma—architecture or photography

By Ellen E. Mason
special writer

BALTHAZAR KORAB is known among architects as one of the best architectural photographers in the world," according to Birmingham architect John Jickling.

Jickling, who was recently named 1983 Gold Medalist by the Detroit chapter of the American Institute of Architects and whose designs include the Gerald R. Ford Presidential Library at the University of Michigan, speaks glowingly of Korab's work.

"Korab makes even the ordinary look extraordinary," Jickling said.

"That's really a double edged sword, isn't it?" Korab mused.

Korab, who lives in Troy, has had his photographs published in newspapers, books and magazines worldwide, including Life, National Geographic, Vogue, Horizon, Saturday Review and the AIA Journal.

Currently, Korab's photographs are part of the Detroit Institute of Arts exhibit "Design in America: The Cranbrook Vision 1925-1950."

"It was really an after-thought," Korab said. "The exhibit cuts off brutally at 1950. Something that didn't fit the image."

So Roy Slade, president of the Cranbrook Academy of Art, asked Korab to put together a side presentation to travel with the exhibit to New York, London, Paris and Helsinki.

"There are some vintage Cranbrook photographs taken when the shrubs were this small," Korab said, indicating an inch height with his index finger and thumb.

"It's almost like going there. You get the feeling of Cranbrook. It's a tactile show," he added.

"WHENEVER I was in a creative itch, I was running to Cranbrook," the Hungarian-born photographer said. "It's truly unique in the world. The slide presentation was really a labor of love."

"It's so much more gratifying to photograph something that's been there for 50 years or so instead of doing the routine — photographing something when you can still smell the paint and the trees are still twigs."

"Cranbrook has the patina of years," he said. Korab studied architecture at the Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris. He worked with Le Corbusier, one of the giants of modern architecture, before coming to the United States.

In 1955, he became a designer for Eero Saarinen, son of Eliel Saarinen, the designer of Cranbrook Educational Community.

Korab resigned his position with the younger Saarinen twice. Both times he entered a major design competition including a competition to design the Sydney Opera House in Australia. His design came in fourth.

"They would have saved themselves an awful lot of headaches if they had picked my design," he said. "It took 10 years to build. They had to establish a national lottery to pay for it. And the architect was fired. It was a very painful process."

He smiled and joked as he explained how he went from architect to photographer of architecture.

"I didn't have the patience to go into architecture little by little," he said.

"I wanted a major project. To do that you needed a commission. I felt I had to win a competition."

"After the Sydney competition, I returned to Saarinen with a raise of 75 cents an hour."

"One of the most frustrating experiences I had working with Eero was when I had to design a fireplace for the Irwin Miller house that was already completed. That was the only private residence he ever did."

"But Eero wasn't satisfied with the fireplace, and

MINDY SAUNDERS/staff photographer

'He (Eero Saarinen) drew a picture for me that I really ought to frame some day. It was of a tree with two branches. He cut off one of the branches and said that I would eventually neglect either architecture or photography. He was right.'

— Balthazar Korab

he couldn't just abandon the project. He felt a sense of responsibility to it.

"I spent three months fiddling with that fireplace," Korab said.

But it was with Saarinen that Korab's photographic talents were discovered when he started photographing Saarinen's building models.

"It was most useful to have an architecturally educated photographer in the design process," he commented.

"Through the principles of photographing models, I developed a very special technique that's still very helpful to me."

HE SAID that contrary to what many people believe, Saarinen did not encourage him to become a photographer.

"He drew a picture for me that I really ought to frame someday," Korab said. "It was of a tree with two branches. He cut off one of the branches and said that I would eventually neglect either architecture or photography — and he was right."

Today Korab's photographic assignments take him to places as diverse as Grosse Pointe and Moscow. But the place to which he keeps returning is Tuscany, Italy.

There, near Orvieto, he owns a house which was built sometime prior to 1560.

"We don't really know when it was built," he said, "but we know there was an earthquake in 1560 and the house sits on a cliff and there's the imprint of another house on the facade of ours."

"The house must have been in good shape then. But that's the only way we can date it."

Korab hopes to renovate the house, by himself, from plumbing to roof when he has some time. The house includes five caves which were once used for storing animals and olive oil. He plans to convert these to family living areas.

"As an architect I have an interest in the man-made character of landscape," he explained. "In Tuscany, every stone, every shovelful of dirt has been turned over."

Fate placed Korab in Tuscany in November 1966 during the Florence flood.

He was near the Uffizi when the Arno River raged over its banks. His photographs document the Ghiberti "doors of Paradise" being removed to save them from destruction. And he photographed an almost surrealistic mannequin, mud splattered and torn, in front of the Duomo.

"I REALLY botched the assignment," he said. "I only had five rolls of film with me, they were all black and white, and two got wet in the flood."

He seems to be the only one who thinks he "botched it" though. Those three rolls of photographs have been printed in books and magazines including Life and Time.

"When he takes a photograph, he seems to conjure up the skies," Jickling marveled. "Look at his skies. His skies are incredible."

Korab's slide presentation on Cranbrook can be seen at the Detroit Institute of Arts exhibit from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. now until Feb. 19, Tuesday-Sunday.

He will lecture on "The Magic of the Tuscan Hills," Monday, Feb. 6, as part of a Cranbrook P.M. series on Italy. For more information, call 645-3635.

Balthazar Korab's photographs of Cranbrook illustrate his love and appreciation of the place which he calls "truly unique in the world."

Balthazar Korab's photo of the mud splattered manikin during the 1966 flood in Florence, Italy became world famous as a symbol of the destruction of that historic city.

How to draw the eyes, nose, mouth

This is another in a series of lessons on art and drawing by special columnist David Messing. He has taught for eight years and operates an art store, Art Store and More, 18774 Middlebelt, Livonia. Messing encourages questions and comments from readers. You may write him at his store or c/o Observer Newspapers, 23352 Farmington Road, Farmington MI 48024.

By David Messing
special writer

Everything in life is relative. For example you can't enjoy winning unless you occasionally lose. Rest is only restful after you have worked. Quietness is only quiet as it relates to loudness, and so it goes, on and on.

All things in life are considered and even judged by how they relate to each other. Don't you hate those charts that relate your weight to your height? I'm sure they were probably designed by a team of very skinny doctors. According to that chart, a 6 foot, 3 inch man should weigh 189 pounds. Well, I never did weigh 189 pounds. At least I don't remember it. I probably was the correct weight for my height, maybe for one hour, somewhere, in high school in the year 1964. It would probably be better to name those charts "shortness charts" because everyone who reads one exclaims, "I am not too heavy, I'm just too short!" For example: I am the correct weight for a man 7 foot 2 inches!

So if everything in our lives is relative, than how important it is to understand the relativity of our own anatomical features in attempting to draw ourselves. How big is the nose of a man? Where is it on his face? How does it relate to his ears? If his nose is about the same size as his ears, then where are they located on the head? These questions all seem simple but these simple problems of relating and positioning the facial features can give any artist fits of rage and frustration.

INSTEAD OF drawing a skull and showing the features and muscles today, I would first like to look more at just the features. I would like to say, however, that structure is the main objective. Without the structure of bone and muscle and the proper understanding of them, your figures and faces will look like inflated manikins.

This week I will talk about the structure of the features. Usually new artists struggle to get the head shape right or at least humanoid. Then for seemingly hours they shift features all over this shape trying to come up with a realistic face. Of course you must have somewhat of an outline of where the head will be, but allow that outline to be merely a gesture. Then go in and locate the features. As you draw in the features, most of the time you will see they do not correlate with your gestured outline of the head. So you then merely change the gestured outlined head to fit the better drawn features. You see, as you draw the many lines required to establish the facial features the whole drawing tends to enlarge. So it is better to lightly gesture the head shape and later change it to fit the features.

So let's start with the very important, most looked at features, which are the eyes. The reason many artists have trouble drawing the eyes is because they are drawing what they think eyes look like.

Many times my students will have carefully drawn semicircles, producing almond shapes. I will say "Hey that's a nice set of almonds, but that's not what his/her eyes look like." The eye is structurally more like a rounded parallelogram. I always recommend that students place the iris so that it is partially covered by the upper lid. I find this relaxes the look of the eye. A small clean white dot or catchlight placed in the upper right or left of the pupil adds sparkle and wetness to the eye. Never place the catch light in the middle of the pupil because it creates a frightened or staring look.

SOME WOULD say "Sure I can draw a beautiful eye, but I can't draw both eyes to look the same!" Of course this takes practice, but you should draw them both at the same time. No, I don't mean draw them with both hands. Just sketch the main shape of each eye, then add the pupil in each eye, then the iris, then the catchlight and so on. This way they both develop together. I used to get so frustrated because, I could draw and shade one beautiful and completed eye. But I could never match it up with the other eye. Of course this problem left, as I began developing both eyes together.

One tip is to show the thickness of the lower eyelid, another is to shade the upper part of the iris as it is shadowed by the upper lid. There are many shapes and shades to look for as you render any feature, especially in the eyes. For instance you see very little of the eye lashes in the middle of the top lid. Most of the lashes should be rendered at the outside of the upper lid. Also the white of the eyes are really never white and should be lightly colored to an off-white. When the white of the eye is off-white, it also makes the white catchlight look brighter and adds sparkle to the eye.

Before I run out of space here I want to mention the second most critical feature which is the mouth. To help understand the basic shape of the lips draw three balls, two on the bottom and one on the top. Now draw a line horizontally and separate the upper and lower ball shapes and you will have the line of the lips. Of course this is merely the basic shape. Your models lips, will be much different than the one shown. Female lips are generally fuller and rounded. Male lips are usually flatter and less shapely, but the same basic structure applies to both.

A FEW tips here would be to always add highlights. A strong white highlight would be for the wet lipstick look and a light highlight for softness and for the male lips. Don't forget to draw the ever present little triangular pockets at the corners of the mouth. As always don't rely on a line to define shape. Make the shape of the lips with shades of gray or with color. Many artists only outline the lips, which doesn't come off as realistic.

If you can draw pretty good eyes and a decent mouth, you should have little trouble creating a successful drawing. The rendering of the nose though difficult and involved is less important than the eyes and mouth. The nose has many planes, shapes and shades that can be a problem if you don't know what to look for. The male nose is usually a classic example of these planes and shapes. In drawing pretty women, however, it is best to ignore many of these shapes. I think pretty women forget they even have a nose. I guarantee you won't get a pleasing response if you draw a heavily shaded nose on any pretty face. On a feminine face pay more attention on where the nose meets the eyebrows and the underside of the nose. If you do draw the line of the nose, make it light and shaded slightly.

What has for years fascinated me is the fact that all these features are basically the same, yet no two people look exactly alike. I almost failed in college because of this fascination. I loved to just sit in the plaza and watch all those noses, eyes and mouths, all basically the same and characteristically different. So relate these features to each other. If a person has a large nose it must be relatively large as compared to his eyes, mouth and head. With a greater appreciation for features you will not depend on Hollywood to dictate to you "this is a handsome face or this is a pretty face!" You will enjoy the many features and subjects that surround you everyday. Like me, perhaps, you too will get lost in a sea of faces, all relatively the same yet wonderfully different.

Don't miss next week's Artifacts. I will discuss the skull structure and the muscles that shape the face. Why do wrinkles form and where? How best to locate the features on the head. I should also like to mention the often neglected sometimes hidden features of the head which are the ears. Hair and facial hair, skin texture and more.

The first 10 installments of Artifacts have been published in a booklet form that is available at the Art Store and More for $3.95 each, 18774 Middlebelt, Livonia, in the Middlebelt Plaza.

ASK Your REALTOR

...by Tony Garrisi

Q. We made an offer to purchase a home. A washer and dryer were listed with the home but were gone when we moved in. Do we have any recourse? M/M Woods, Canton.

A. Without more information about the transaction, I can only explain the way it works with personal property. If an owner lists his home at a certain price and terms and agrees to leave certain personal property, then yes it should still be left. But a buyer should still protect himself by writing all of the items into the purchase offer. If an offer is made less than asking price, then the seller's personal property is not required to be left unless it is clearly specified in the purchase offer. If you requested the items in the purchase offer and the seller agreed to leave them and did not, then you may have a claim. At that point I would advise you seek legal advice.
