Surplus school land may hit the market

By Emory Daniels
staff writer

Plymouth-Canton Community Schools is in the process of getting appraisals on vacant sites it owns to decide which sites, if any, should be sold.

The process was started after Canton Supervisor James Poole began asking about sites the district owns which the township would like to use for recreation fields.

Specifically Poole is interested in 17 acres the schools own on Proctor Road alongside Canton Township Hall, and another site on Hanford Road.

Letters have passed between Poole and Superintendent John M. Hoben but talks have come to an impasse as the board is under the impression that Poole wants the land to be given to the township.

MONDAY NIGHT Dr. Hoben said the district is willing to offer the Proctor Road site for purchase but Poole wants free use of the site until such time as the district wants to use it.

Hoben added that the land the district owns on Hanford is revenue producing as it is being leased to a farmer. For that reason, he added, the district is unlikely to get rid of this parcel soon.

In discussing the talks between Canton and the district on the surplus lands, Board President Glenn Schroeder commented: "Supervisor Poole has a proclivity for wanting something for nothing. There should be something we could exchange, quid pro quo."

Although not discussed Monday night, at an earlier meeting the school board suggested the district might offer the Proctor Road site to Canton in exchange for the township providing for sidewalks to be built in areas which would reduce the district's busing expenses.

The sites being discussed are those the school district bought years ago when a much greater population was projected than is likely now. For that reason the district appears ready now to sell some of its sites.

"We should identify property we own which is not in our future plans," suggested Trustee Tom Yack. "Then the board could adopt a resolution directing the administration to sell certain properties."

RAY HOEDEL, assistant superintendent for business, said that his office is in the process of getting appraisals on unused school sites and will develop a plan on how to dispose of unwanted property.

Yack said the district should come up with a list of property it wants to dispose of, and let the cities and townships in the district know which ones will be put on the market for sale.

"If a particular property is important to us for our future plans, we should let the municipalities know that also," added Yack. "I assume that the Proctor Road site is one we will want to sell and if Canton knows it's going to be on the market that might change Poole's attitude about the site."

Yack objected to suggestions that the district's operating costs could be met with less burden on taxpayers if it would sell its unused lands. "Just as a township cannot take money from earmarked fire or police millage and put it in the general fund, neither can the school district take money from the sale of land and put it in our general fund."

Trustee Flossie Tonda suggested it might be wise to let Canton use the Proctor Road site temporarily. "If they use it for recreation, and discover what a value it has to Canton residents, the township might be more willing to pay us the price we ask."

Yack said to make the Proctor site useable would require bringing in a lot of heavy equipment and bulldozing the land level. Canton might not want to go to that expense if it knew the schools had plans to sell the site.

Schroeder agreed it was best to ask the administration to identify the sites it wanted to keep and those it was going to sell to give Poole some direction.

YMCA ponders church lot

Although the Plymouth Township board turned down the Plymouth Community Family YMCA's request for land Tuesday night, prospects are looking better for a full service Y building.

The Y's building and site selection committee earlier approached the township in regard to the triangular parcel bordered by Ann Arbor Trail, Powell and Beck roads.

Tuesday night the Township Board voted 4-0 to retain ownership of the property at the recommendation of the township planner. Trustee-Smith Horton abstained from voting because he is a member of the Y's board of directors. Clerk Esther Hulsing and Trustee Barbara Lynch were absent.

Horton said representatives from the Y were not present at Tuesday night's meeting because the township planner's report on the property "had left them discouraged."

HOWEVER, BUILDING AND SITE committee chairman Albert Callie announced this week that the Y has bought an office site. He also said the Y is considering buying church property on Ann Arbor Trail.

The office site, 248 Union in Plymouth, was approved for purchase at the end of last year, Callie said.

"We are planning on using the site for administrative offices and should be moving into that property on Feb. 25," he said.

Currently the Y offices are in leased property on Main Street in Plymouth, above the Armbruster Bootery store.

"Hopefully the Union Street property will give us more room to operate and will serve as a stepping stone to a full-service YMCA building," he said.

Callie also confirmed rumors that the Y board of directors Monday night approved an option to buy the United Assembly of God property on Ann Arbor Trail at Riverside in Plymouth.

"At this point we're just investigating the church property," he said.

"The board of directors did authorize the building and site committee to negotiate an option to purchase the property. However, it is not a decision to purchase the property."

"This will serve as a vehicle for further investigation of the property. It requires a lot more research as to whether the Y can operate that property," he said.

"We are currently negotiating an option to purchase with the church."

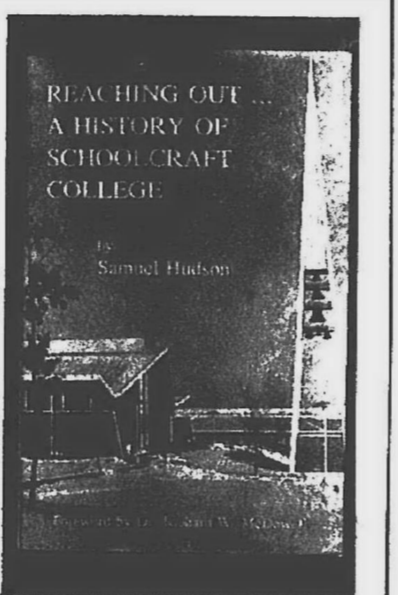

THE SITE COMMITTEE actively has pursued property for more than a year. Besides the Plymouth Township parcel, the committee has looked into property in Canton Township and Plymouth.

"At first, efforts were concentrated on property that might be donated," Callie wrote in a committee report to the Y board.

"However, when donation of property appeared unlikely, the committee investigated the possibility of purchasing property," he wrote.

"This effort has proved unsuccessful up to now due to the weak financial resources of the YMCA."

"The committee will continue its search for either vacant property or an existing facility that can serve as a full-service YMCA," he wrote.

Sam Hudson of Plymouth has authored his third book, a history of Schoolcraft College — "Reaching Out . . ."

Schoolcraft history now is available

A history of Schoolcraft College, written by award-winning author and Plymouth historian Sam Hudson, now is available in a hardcover book.

"Reaching Out . . . A History of Schoolcraft College" chronicles the story of the community college in Livonia from its pre-founding in the late 1950s until 1983, the beginning of the college's third decade.

The fully-illustrated, 204-page book is priced at $9.95. Proceeds from its sale have been earmarked for the endowment fund of the Schoolcraft College Foundation.

The book may be purchased from the bookstore at the college and at several stores in the area, including Book World on Forest Avenue in Plymouth or Eden Books at 45184 Ford Road in Canton.

DR. HUDSON is author of two earlier books on the history of Plymouth, for which he won an Award of Merit in 1980 from the Historical Society of Michigan.

He writes a weekly column, "Plymouth Past & Present," on the history of Plymouth for the Plymouth Observer.

Hudson was a member of four citizens' committees which helped found the college, and also served on the Schoolcraft Board of Trustees from 1964-69.

The idea for a history of the college came to him when, in April 1982, he received an invitation to Schoolcraft's 20th Anniversary festival. He completed the first of a series of articles about the college shortly afterward.

The series began appearing in weekly installments in the Plymouth Observer and Canton Observer on May 10, 1982, and continued through the spring of 1983.

"Those articles, with some revisions and several additions, formed the basis of the history volume," says Hudson.

In the book's forward, Schoolcraft College President Richard W. McDowell describes the author as "a unique individual who possesses an admirable blend of curiosity, perceptiveness and writing talent."

Noting that Hudson was both an observer and an active participant in many of the topics and events the book contains, Dr. McDowell said that others may have a slightly different perspective about the significance of these events or topics. But he said he also doubted many would question the author's accuracy or be in a position to better present the events captured in the history.

Hudson holds a doctorate in English literature from Wayne State University. Born in Salford, England, he lived in Pennsylvania before moving to New York as a young man. In the armed forces, he served as intelligence officer for General George Patton.

He moved to Plymouth more than two decades ago and spent some 17 years as advertising manager for Evans Products Co. He then managed the Frank Hedge public relations firm for seven years before retiring.

A member and past president of the Plymouth Rotary Club, Hudson was instrumental in helping the Plymouth Kiwanis establish the Plymouth Hall of Fame. He also is active in the Plymouth Historical Society.

He conducted interviews with many of the key persons connected with the college over the years, and did extensive research into college records, publications and newspaper articles.

SOME OF THE events highlighted in the history include:

• Growth of the college from its origin to the present.

• The viewpoint of those who opposed establishment of the college.

• Why Livonia was chosen as the site for the campus.

• How Schoolcraft got its name.

• The explosive Vietnam War poster controversy in 1969 and how it was resolved.

• Photos of events and people, including a chronology of important happenings from 1967 to 1983.

• The development of the college's first decade under President Eric Bradner, its second decade under President Nelson Grote and the beginnings of its third and current decade.

Arkwright will close, workers eye purchase

By Gary M. Cates
staff writer

The Plymouth area is losing another industrial plant as plans are being made to close the Arkwright facility on Northville Road.

Arkwright, a graphic reproduction materials manufacturer, is expected to close its doors on April 1 as part of a consolidation of operations.

The closing will idle 33 hourly and eight salaried personnel. The hourly workers are members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union Local 7-389.

Arkwright employees recently were notified of the plans in a letter.

"Management is closing the Plymouth plant in order to provide the level of operational efficiency required to generate the profitability needed for economic health and potential for future growth," the letter said.

"The manufacturing equipment and operations at Plymouth, as well as supporting overhead, duplicate facilities at the manufacturing plant at corporate headquarters in Fiskeville, Rhode Island," according to the letter.

The company's current sales outlook requires that the operations be consolidated at Fiskeville, according to Diana Young, personnel manager.

HOWEVER, EMPLOYEES OF the Plymouth plant aren't taking the news sitting down.

The employees recently sent a letter to a corporate director of Arkwright's parent company in Holland — Oco' Van der Grinten, an international office copy products manufacturer.

"Arkwright employees and their families are making an urgent, personal appeal to you that the manufacturing facilities in Plymouth, Michigan not be relocated in Rhode Island," the letter said.

"The people at Arkwright have worked with dedication and sacrifice for a lot of years and now have been told that their livelihood is to be terminated."

A response from Holland hasn't been received.

Besides the letter, the union is considering an attempt at buying the plant, according to J. Roy Johnston, union business manager.

"They told us the plant's for sale. I don't know how Arkwright would feel about us pooling our money to buy the plant and then competing against them," Johnston said.

"They admit we have a better work force, production and material than Rhode Island. They have just made a decision based on economics. We're good at our trade, but how do you change someone's mind overseas?" he said.

The company talked about closing one of the facilities about eight months ago, he said.

"We figured they would leave this place open, since everyone including management agreed we were more productive and turned out a good product. I guess they have more room in Rhode Island," he said.

The union will meet on Feb. 25, at which time Johnston said they will discuss trying to buy the plant.

THE CURRENT UNION CONTRACT doesn't contain a relocation clause, and a severance pay package is being negotiated, Young said.

"It's very important to us that our employees are well taken care of," she said.

For that reason Arkwright management is putting together a proposal for funding a job retraining program. The proposal, to go to the governor's office, will request federal Job Training Partnership Act funding. Because of Arkwright's specialized work, and the fact that a majority of the company's employees are older than 35, permanent job loss is feared.

Reportedly, there is an abundance of similarly skilled workers due to other plant closings, such as BASF Wyandotte.

Johnston isn't sold on the idea of retraining the workers.

"What good is that with all the layoffs in the area? What are all these people going to retrain for, what type of work?" he said.

Young said the Plymouth employees will be given preferential status for hiring at the Rhode Island facility, if they choose to relocate. However, Johnston isn't certain there will be a need for more employees in Rhode Island since some already are on layoff.

Also because the Plymouth workers have a contract in effect until Dec. 15, 1985, Young said those obligations will be lived up to.

The company and union are expected to meet at the end of the month to discuss the severance pay and contract obligations.

The Plymouth operation has been in existence since 1964. It was known as Specialty Coatings Inc. until 1971 when it was acquired by Arkwright. In 1977 Arkwright became a member of Oco' Van der Grinten.

Arkwright's closing will be the third Plymouth plant closing in recent days. It is preceded by Dunn Steel, which moved south, and Associated Spring, which was closed by the Barnes Group to cut operational losses.

Safety busing will continue

The practice of safety busing will continue another year at the elementary school level.

Two years ago the safety committee of Plymouth-Canton Board of Education advised eliminating safety busing at the middle school level during 1983-84, and cutting safety busing at the elementary level beginning the fall of 1984.

Monday night the board voted to continue safety busing for a number of routes which had been recommended for elimination, indicating the practice may continue to exist for a longer time than earlier thought. The net result of the board's action Monday is that only one area receiving safety busing this year won't in 1983-84.

Losing safety busing will be Field pupils in grades 3-4 living on the west side of Haggerty, north of the school. This route was eliminated after it was reported that the students most of the time don't ride the bus anyhow.

Safety busing, also known as temporary busing, is the practice of busing students who live within 1.5 miles of school. By policy, the district buses all pupils in grades K-2 who live one mile or more from school. When conditions exist which are believed to make walking dangerous, busing will be provided for students.

Because the students live within 1.5 miles, the state does not reimburse for any of the busing costs and the district picks up 100 percent of the cost.

IN DECIDING whether to recommend elimination or continuation of safety busing, the committee considered the age of students, adequacy of walking area, traffic conditions.

Elementary schools where the committee recommended safety busing continue next year include Tanger, Fiegel, Smith, Allen, Gallimore, Starkweather and Isbister. In the Field area, safety busing will continue unchanged for the Northwind/Southwind subdivisions east of Haggerty and for the area south of Cherry Hill between Haggerty and Lilley.

For the following areas, the committee recommended that safety busing be eliminated but the board voted to continue: K-6 at Bird for Beacon Hill/

Glenview, and for students on Ridge-wood and North Territorial west of Sheldon; K-6 at Eriksson, Bedford Village, Sawmill Creek, Cherry Hill east of Haggerty and the Edenbrook/Roselawn/Hystone/Shana area.

IN DISCUSSING the issue, Trustee E.J. McClendon said whenever possible he favored eliminating temporary busing so the district's limited funds could be spent in the classroom instead of on busing.

"We will have to take millions of dollars out of the budget next year, and I

CEP parent group being organized Parents and staff members from Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton high schools are organizing a Parent Teacher Group.

The group has a two-fold purpose, according to Cindy Burnstein, one of the actively-involved teachers from Centennial Educational Park (CEP). She is an English teacher at Salem High and a resident of Plymouth.

One purpose is the clear need for parental involvement at the high school level, she said.

Another, Burnstein adds, is to have timely programs for parents and staff alike which will draw them into the CEP and let them start to understand it.

THE FIRST such program, a presentation by Nic Cooper on substance abuse, will take place at 7 p.m. Thursday in the library of Plymouth Salem High on Joy just west of Canton Center Road.

Cooper, a coordinator of Alternative Education programs at the CEP and a member of the district's current substance abuse committee, will dispel myths and rumors surrounding drug use at the CEP and how it is dealt with.

On parent involvement, Burnstein comments: "Parents need to be in the schools to know what is going on and to understand how their almost-adult children will react."

Just because students are in high school, she adds, does not mean that they are ready to be put on their own. "High school students still need parental input and sharing," says David Artley of Canton, a parent and member of the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

Another parent comments: "The CEP is not a foreign country, but a place where our children go to learn and we as parents have a say in that process."

All persons of the community should be interested in activities at the CEP, adds Artley, as they directly and prominently reflect the role of the educational process in preparing students for the world beyond high school.

Anyone with questions may contact Burnstein at 459-9435 after 5 p.m.

Buying Bengals satisfied his dream

By Tom Saar
staff writer

Thomas S. Monaghan asked a question and then spent the next hour answering it — and telling his life story in the process.

"So what's a guy with a name like Monaghan doing in the pizza business?" was the question he used to kick off his recent talk to a packed lecture hall on Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge campus in Farmington Hills.

Monaghan, who in the early 1960s combined a $500 loan with lots of business savvy and hard work to build a nationwide takeout-pizza empire worth $7 billion today, shocked the sports world last October when he bought the Detroit Tigers baseball team.

At OCC, Monaghan, the 46-year-old chairman and president of the Ann Arbor-based Domino's Pizza Inc., had plenty to say about both business ventures.

Monaghan called the purchase of the team for a reported $43 million "a lifelong dream."

"I've always wanted to play shortstop, and now I can do it," he said, drawing laughs from the audience. "The Tigers are going to have one of the best utility infielders around in Alan Trammell."

But while the knowledge that he really owns his favorite baseball team "is still sinking in," in Monaghan's words, he can call up plenty of not-so-fond memories of his early days in the restaurant business.

ORPHANED AT an early age, Monaghan's entry into the world of work came as a laborer on farms in rural Michigan.

After high school, he spent a year in a Catholic seminary in Grand Rapids, but was kicked out "because they said I didn't have a vocation and that I was mischievous. I was interested in sports, girls and cars — and I failed at all three."

A stint in the Marine Corps "crunching gravel" as an infantryman was "the best experience of my life," according to Monaghan, who retains a fondness for the Leathernecks.

"If I had a son — which I don't; I have four daughters — I wouldn't give him a penny until he'd spent at least two years in the Marine Corps," he said.

Monaghan, who'd saved about $2,000 while in the service, got his first taste of the business world when an oil well contractor fleeced him out of his money.

Undaunted, Monaghan put himself through the University of Michigan by operating his own newsstand in downtown Ann Arbor and delivering the New York Times to homes in the area.

He and his brother, James, entered the pizza business 23 years ago, using $77 of business talk

Dominick's, a two-table carryout restaurant in Ypsilanti.

The business, which was "totally undercapitalized," seemed ill-starred from the start, according to Monaghan.

"The first month we were open, we didn't even have a telephone," he said. "Now, you just try running a delivery business without a telephone."

Monaghan also squabbled with his partners, first brother Jim and then a man whom he said cheated him. Even when business was brisk those first few years, Dominick's didn't prosper.

"The more business I did, the more money I seemed to lose," Monaghan said.

BUT THE 100-hour work weeks and years of frugal living ("To this day, I'd rather eat my wife's hamburger casserole than the food at the fanciest restaurants") finally paid off for Monaghan, and the business began to prosper.

A name change to Domino's — the three dots represented his three outlets — resulted in a long and costly legal battle with Domino Sugar, which wanted exclusive use of the name. But the court fight couldn't stem the growth.

In 1966, the busiest pizzeria in the world was Monaghan's place in Ypsilanti. But then came a disastrous fire in 1968. "The whole thing went up in smoke, and I was busted again," the owner said.

Monaghan built the business again only to have it threatened by overexpansion in 1970. But he survived that, too.

Today, Domino's, which has shed its tables and chairs and is totally carryout and delivery, is one of the fastest-growing restaurant chains in the country, with nearly 1,200 stores in 48 states. One hectic month, 55 new Domino's were opened.

"I fell in love with the delivery business early in the game because nobody else seemed to want to touch it," said Monaghan, who delivered pizzas in a beat-up Volkswagen during the early days.

MONAGHAN, WHO taught a restaurant class at OCC in 1969, was asked his opinion of advertising by a member of the audience.

"I believe the best advertising is walking, not written," he said. "Advertising is over-rated. We've found that if you do a good job satisfying the customer, you'll do fine. You advertise and you'll get a big rush of people, and you'll never keep up."

Also over-rated, according to Monaghan, is a specialized "business education" such as the highly touted master's of business administration degree.

"The real education is doing, not reading," he said. "Satisfying the customer is worth about 20 educations."

MONAGHAN SAID that he was put off the first time he approached Tiger President Jim Campbell about the possibility of buying the team. "I was told that everybody and his brother wanted to buy the team, and that it wasn't for sale," Monaghan said.

But after several meetings with owner John E. Fetzer, the possibility seemed a little brighter.

"I told Fetzer at one meeting, 'If you decide to sell the Tigers, you set the price and I'll meet it,'" Monaghan said.

Monaghan said he feels his stock with Fetzer went up because of their mutual friendship with Michigan football coach Bo Schembechler, one of the directors of Domino's.

A dome for the venerable, Detroit-owned Tiger Stadium, a proposal supported by Mayor Coleman Young, is "a pipe dream," according to Monaghan.

"With the economy the way it is in Detroit, I don't think it's likely," he said.

NO PIPE dream is Monaghan's proposed new headquarters in a 30-story tower, which will be modeled after a 1956 Frank Lloyd Wright design for a 56-story apartment building which was never built.

Location for the tower is uncertain, but Monaghan, who calls himself "the all-time Frank Lloyd Wright fan," said he would like to build on a 300-acre parcel of land at U.S. 23 and Plymouth Road near Ann Arbor.

But if zoning changes there can't be achieved, the headquarters could be part of the proposed Stroh's River Place project in downtown Detroit.

"If I can't have it in Ann Arbor, I'll go to Detroit," Monaghan said.

Questioned on business ethics, Monaghan gave the following advice: "In business, you can be the screwor or the screwee. Always be the screwor. Never be the screwee."

Monaghan was invited to OCC by business administration teacher Harvey Bronstein. Many in the audience were students in Bronstein's principles and practices of business class.

"Guest speakers are really good for the students," said Bronstein, who last December convinced former Gov. George Romney to speak to the class. "The speakers motivate the students and tell them how it is in the real world."

Board nominating forms available

Any resident wanting to run for one of two seats on the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education has until 4 p.m. Monday, April 9, to file a nominating petition.

In the June 11 school election, residents will vote to fill two four-year terms on the school board.

The deadline to register to vote is Monday, May 14. Residents may register to vote for school elections at any Secretary of State office or at the township hall or city hall of their hometown.

A registration drive is expected to be conducted within the next one or two weeks by the Plymouth-Canton Education Association, the teachers' union. Also urging residents to register are leaders of a group wanting to recall the school board — only registered voters may sign a recall petition.

Of the two positions to be on the June 11 ballot, one is held by Glenn Schroeder of Plymouth Township, board president, and the other by Flossie Tonda of Canton, board vice president.

Petition forms are available from the Board of Education office at 454 S. Harvey, Plymouth, and should be returned to that office. Office hours are from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Each nominating petition must contain at least 20 valid signatures of residents of the school district. The deadline for a potential candidate to withdraw from the ballot is 4 p.m. Thursday, April 12.

Voting will be at the regular school election polling places. For further information on petitions, call 451-6422.

Jenkins seeks GOP nod

Tom Jenkins of Livonia is seeking the Republican nomination for state representative from the recently reappointed 35th District.

The district includes all but six miles of Livonia (most of it east of Middlebelt Road) and a western corner of Plymouth Township, an area that normally votes Republican.

Jenkins, 30, is the first announced candidate for the post which has been held by state Rep. Jack Kirksey, R-Livonia. Kirksey last year announced that he would not seek re-election to the state house.

An international credit analyst at Manufacturers National Bank, Jenkins has a bachelor of science degree in business finance. He is presently treasurer of the Livonia Republican Club and assistant treasurer of the Wayne 2nd Congressional District Republican Committee. He has been a delegate to state and county conventions.

AN ADVISER in the Junior Achievement program, Jenkins is a member of the board of directors of the Quaker-town Civic Association.

"As a state representative, I expect to serve the people of the 35th district as their watchdog. I will be watching for issues and legislation which will affect the well-being of the people of Livonia and Plymouth Township. When such things appear, I can be counted on to inform the people and protect their rights and freedoms," stated Jenkins in a prepared statement announcing his candidacy.

Jenkins, who was a pre-law student before switching to business, believes his dual training offers a background in areas which are bound by the legislative actions of government.

"Professionally my current work as an international credit analyst requires me to make evaluations of the economic and political conditions of countries throughout the world, giving me an overview of world situations and their impact on the United States and Michigan. As a bank international audit staff member, I have acquired the ability to research and evaluate facts and figures. This eliminates the need for me to rely exclusively on others for correct information," stated Jenkins.

In his effort to win the nomination, Jenkins said he will focus primarily on four issues:

- Education — Improving the quality (of education) with emphasis on local control including more parental control. "I'd like to give parents a greater say in their children's education," said Jenkins.

- Property taxes — Reviewing and reforming the current system in order to lessen its effect "as a disincentive in property improvements." In addition, he would seek to lighten the tax burden on those who no longer have children in schools. Jenkins said this would require a shifting of budget priorities from social services to education.

- Oppose government funding of abortions. Jenkins describes himself as a "supporter of the right to life while recognizing certain medically accepted reasons for abortions."

- Racetrack revenues. Jenkins said he will work with other area legislators to ensure that the proper revenues are paid to areas containing race tracks.

Jenkins, a former Detroit resident, moved to Livonia in 1981.

Safety busing continues can't assume the parents' responsibility to get their kids to school safely and take money out of the classroom to do so.

"Parents have the responsibility to see that their children get to school. I could never understand why we spend so much money busing students to school and then spend more money on physical education so they can get exercise. Walking to school in the fresh air is good exercise."

McClendon added, however, that if the Legislature had to make decisions about whether specific students would walk specific routes to school or not, as local school boards must, the state laws on busing would be changed.

Glenn Schroeder, board president, said he agreed with McClendon's position. In fact, in almost all votes where the board decided to continue safety busing against its committee's advice, McClendon and Schroeder voted "no."

Trustee Floesia Tonda said she disagreed with the safety committee on some routes the group believed were safe to walk for pupils in grades 3-6. "In all decisions we make we sometimes look at the same thing in different ways. This is a case where I differ with the safety committee."

GUILTY AS CHARGED by Doc Keeth

It's true! We admit it! The new LENNOX Pulse Furnace uses two plastic vents and nobody else does. Well folks, lend me your ear and I will explain why...

Only the LENNOX Pulse Furnaces have both an exhaust vent and a combustion air intake vent which makes possible a 20 year warranty on the entire heat exchanger. All new condensing type furnaces recover latent heat of combustion, thus producing condensate (water). This is true with all furnaces rated at 85% AFU efficiency or better. LENNOX Pulse Furnaces are tops with 91 to 96% efficiency.

Anytime condensate is produced in heat exchangers or vent systems, acids are formed by chemical changes that take place during combustion and involved elements present in fuel and the combustion air. All condensing furnaces, except the LENNOX Pulse, use indoor air for combustion and draw in chlorine laced air from a variety of household activities.

Chlorine comes from municipal water treatment during bathing & showers. Chlorine can also come from household bleach, pool chemicals, diaper pads, from based aerosol products, solvents, etc. Recent laboratory tests have shown that small amounts of chlorine in combustion air can cause a ten-fold increase in condensate acidity.

Sorry to get so technical but now you can see why we install a separate sealed combustion air intake from outdoors to the LENNOX Pulse Furnace. Instead of using indoor air for combustion, there are other good reasons, such as less infiltration (drafts of cold outside air) and better humidity control, which we will cover in a future column.

Stop in anytime. Boy, Mel and I are here to help you a LENNOX Pulse Furnace in operation, and answer any questions you may have. Or give us a call for a free in home estimate that could cut your fuel consumption by 20% or more.

Canton computer team wins programming contest

By Gary M. Cates
staff writer

The Plymouth Canton High School computer team won't earn a varsity letter for its efforts, but it did take first place at a recent competition.

The four member team, "coached" by computer instructor Ron Carlson, earned the first-place honor at last month's University of Detroit computer competition. The local team qualified for the finals out of a field of 15 schools.

"Both rounds, the preliminary and final, were the same. They were given a task to do that required a program to solve it. You try to do as many of the problems as possible in a three-hour time period," Carlson said.

The team — students Mark Harris, Pat Kehoe, Jeff Stillson and Atul Patel — had to perform the work without the help of Carlson.

"The problems themselves were not that difficult, but trying to get four people working together on one terminal is difficult," Carlson said.

"The contest was run on a Burroughs main-frame computer, which is a slightly different system than we use here at the school. The programs they had to write are something like we would assign in the second semester of computer," he said.

Although they finished the four final-round problems before their three hours were up, the Canton team didn't expect to win first place.

"Two other schools had finished the problems before us," said Kehoe. "We figured at best we would get second place."

However, because more than one school finished all the problems, the judges looked at each team's number of errors and attempts at running the program. Penalty points were subtracted for those factors.

Out of a possible 500 points, the Canton team earned 400.

"If we would have had one more run, we wouldn't have won," Patel said.

"THEY'VE HAD THE competition for the past seven years," Carlson said. "We've participated every year but last year. We've made it to the final runs before but never did this good."

As a result of the team's first place, the school has received a $800 scholarship to U-D for a student going into the computer curriculum.

Carlson selected the Canton team from his computer classes and contests held at the school level.

The recent competition was the first timed contest for all of the team members. Harris has competed in an untimed contest, where he won first place for a computer program he mailed in.

"The U-D competition is different than the type where you mail programs. With this competition you know absolutely that it is the students' work," Carlson said.

Selecting the team wasn't an easy task, according to Carlson. "We have a lot of good students."

CARLSON HAS BEEN teaching computer at the high school since 1971. Interest in the courses is at an all-time high, he said.

Although the school offers three semesters of computer instruction, with 15 sections, Carlson said the demand exceeds the class openings.

"The increased amount of computers in the market place have increased the interest in the course. Students realize it's almost a requirement for a job."

As technology has changed, so has the high school computer curriculum.

When Carlson started teaching the course students keypunched programs. Today they use microcomputers much like the ones found in many homes.

"All of us have computers at home," Kehoe said. "It's hard to get enough experience at school to compete in the contest and win."

The increasing number of computers in homes is reflected in Carlson's classes.

"Each year the students come in with better ideas; they've seen more software."

"Some of these kids feel uneasy that their younger brothers and sisters are catching up with them when it comes to computers," he said.

"Although we aren't training these kids for jobs with computers, we have found that most of them go on to college and have a head start. Most of them that go to college have done quite well in their computer classes."

House fire investigated

Plymouth Township firefighters are investigating the possibility of arson following a house fire at 40977 Schoolcraft early Sunday morning.

The home, owned by Don Szalay, was unoccupied at the time of the fire. The blaze was contained to the basement, with some $17,000 in smoke and heat damage done through the structure.

Samples from the fire have been sent to the Michigan State Police Crime Lab in Northville for testing, according to Fire Chief Larry Groth.

Firefighters and Plymouth police have listed the fire as suspicious, and will continue to investigate, Groth said.

School chiefs given pay hike

The Plymouth-Canton Board of Education Monday night voted to increase the wages of its three assistant superintendents.

With those adjustments made, the board is finished with all salaries for the next two years except for the superintendent.

The assistant superintendents (for instruction, business, personnel) will receive a 3 percent increase for the current school year and a 6 percent hike for 1984-85.

In lieu of receiving increased life insurance as negotiated with union employees, the three will receive an increase of 1.5 percent in tax-sheltered annuity payments.

"The rationale to support this request is that it falls in line with the percentage gains of the bargaining units," said Superintendent John M. Hoben, "with the exception that we are not asking for the additional 1 percent that was granted to those who are at the top of the scale beginning with the second semester of the '84-85 year."

The board began discussing a salary adjustment for the assistants after negotiating a settlement last month with the Plymouth Congress of Administrators, the union representing principals, assistant principals, area coordinators and certain directors.

Tax counselors help seniors

Chuck Childs of Plymouth, a volunteer tax counselor for the Plymouth-Northville chapter of American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), double checks a return. The AARP Tax Aide Counselors will at the Plymouth Cultural Center, Farmer at Theodore, from 2:30 to 4 p.m.

Some school lines changed

Some neighborhood attendance boundaries likely will be adjusted for the coming school year.

Most of the shifts are related to the merging of Starkweather and Tanger elementaries into one school, and the continued growth at the elementary level in the Eriksson and Field attendance areas.

Monday night Supt. John M. Hoben gave a preliminary report to the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education on the thinking of the district's boundary committee.

This week discussions are being held between administrators and PTO representatives from Starkweather and Tanger concerning the closing of Starkweather and merger with Tanger.

On March 5, beginning at 7:30 p.m., a workshop meeting will be held at Tanger to discuss the change in use for Starkweather building, the combining of the new schools and boundary adjustments.

ONE OF the major housing recommendations is that all 6th graders now at Isbister would attend Pioneer Middie this fall. This move involves some 93 students.

The committee also recommends that current 7th and 8th graders from Honeytree would remain at East Middle School as 8th and 9th graders.

The committee also is suggesting that some 16 6th graders from Honeytree now at Tanger go to East Middle for the 7th grade, and all new middle students moving into the Honeytree apartment complex would be assigned to East.

Some 30-40 kindergartners from the Field attendance area now attending Eriksson Elementary will continue to attend Eriksson for first grade, if another recommendation is adopted.

In addition the district is considering assigning some 30 students from the Hulsing area, including all kindergartners in the Morton Taylor/Warren Road area to Miller Elementary.

Although the shifts involve a fair number of students they are less massive than earlier years when enrollment was increasing fast and large blocks of students were uprooted throughout the district.

This weekend the Lone Eagle comes home to roost.

You'll see Detroit-born Charles Lindbergh during our 1920s Great Escape Weekend. And you'll hear the music of the Jazz Age, dance its dances, watch its movies, meet its people, taste its foods. So come on out. Quick. Before the 20s fly away again.

Skinner has been active in Plymouth Rotary for the past eight years, now serving as vice president and membership chairman of the organization.

Last year he headed up the Rotary's major fund-raiser, the annual chicken barbeque at the Plymouth Fall Festival. On the Sunday of Fall Festival, Skinner's group served some 15,000 chicken dinners. It was Skinner's fifth year of involvement with the massive cookout.

The old pumphouse by Wilcox Lake is being leased by the city of Plymouth for $1 a year to Old Village Association. As evident by this picture, it's in need of some renovation.

Village's vision Time proudly marches on

EARLIER THIS month the Plymouth City Commission agreed to lease the old pumphouse near Wilcox Lake to the Old Village Association for $1 a year.

The city and association will work together to renovate and transform the neglected building into an office building for the association. That move represents just part of an ongoing commitment city government has made to Old Village. And rightfully so.

IN RECENT years, the city has helped develop and beautify the so-called Cannon Park at the south end of the village. Later the city and villagers joined to develop an attractive gazebo which has become a popular spot for weddings as well as a focal point for the village.

Service clubs, government and the association worked together to provide the brick walkways, benches, floral plantings, trees, lampposts and similar adornments. City engineers worked up the system of one-way streets and angle parking to increase parking — a valuable asset in any commercial area.

The result has been not only an increased pride of merchants and residents in the village, but an increased awareness by outsiders (even non-village residents in the city) of Old Village. (For newcomers who haven't yet discovered the charm of Old Village, the area is bounded by Mill and Starkweather on the east and west, and by Main Street and Wilcox Lake on the north and south).

With this change, the association and merchants have developed walking maps of the village. Annually they promote special events to draw thousands of outsiders into Old Village.

THERE STILL is much to be done — ask those in the village infested with a vision of a brighter tomorrow. But enough has been accomplished that a permanent office for the association is in order.

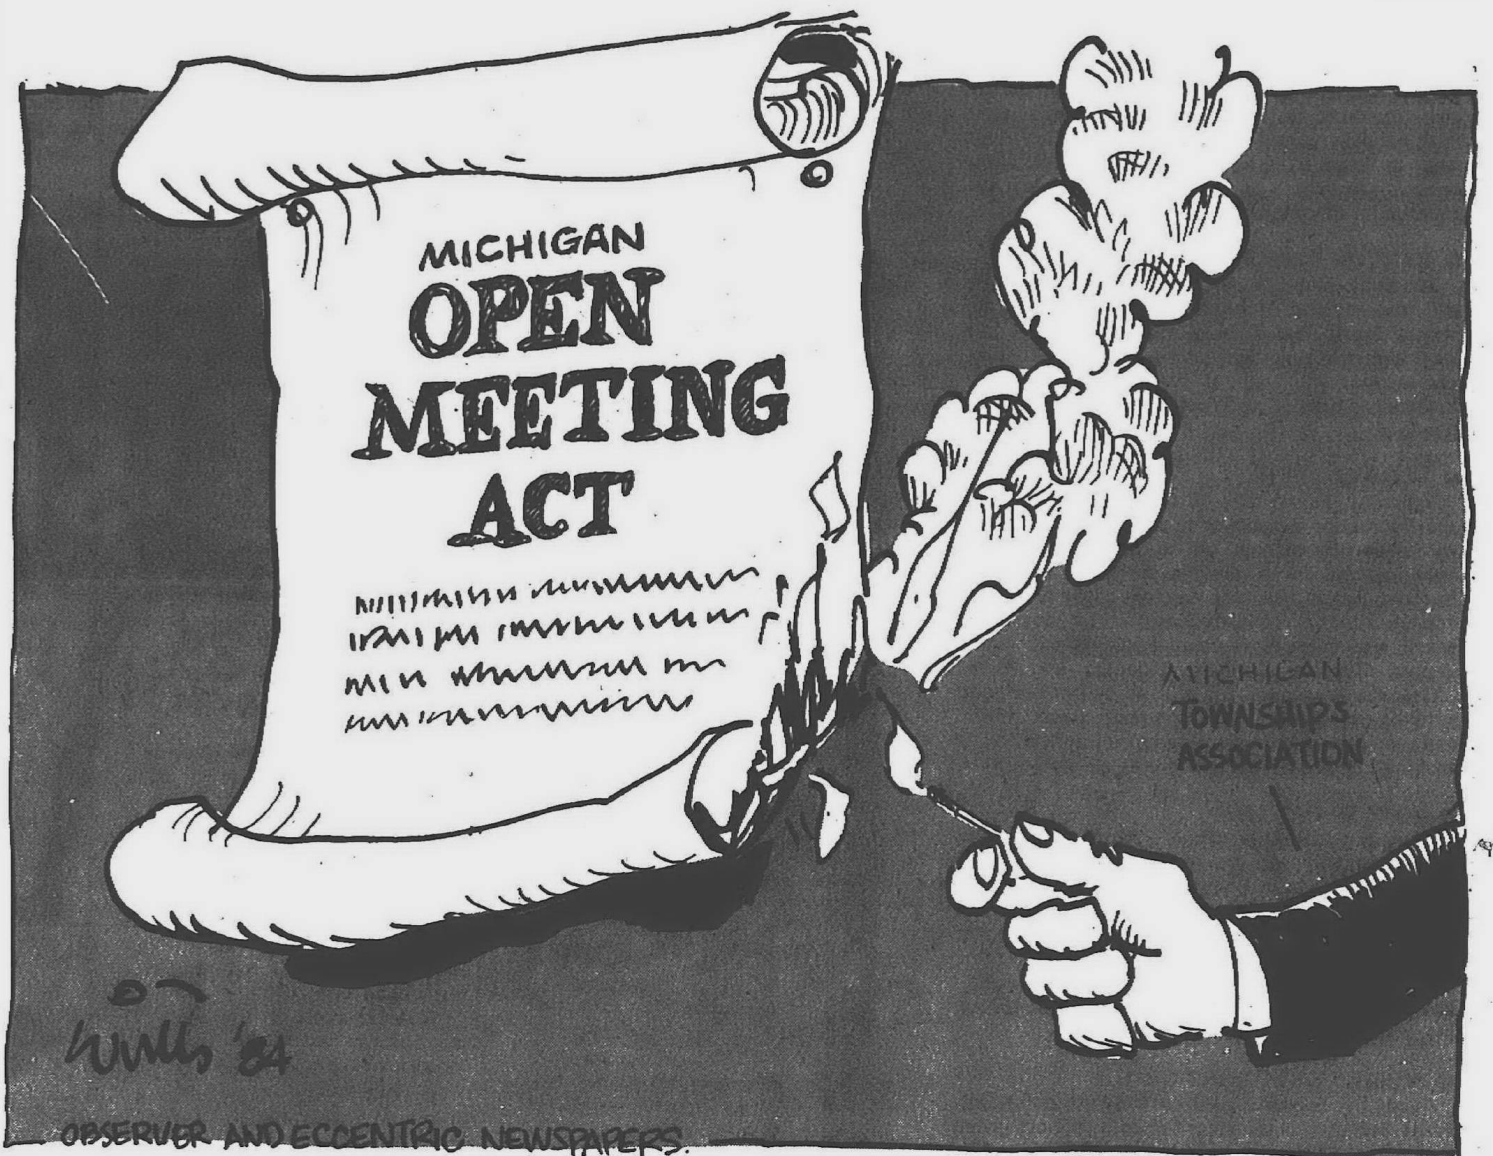

The Observer commends the city commission and administration for working out the deal. Knowing a little about the vision Old Village leaders and the city fathers have for the village, the Observer also anxiously awaits the future.

More could be done to contain the shopping areas and better identify the parking areas, so that it becomes easier to find parking and then walk to any shop in the village.

There are some beautiful homes in the village, and a number of residences that owners have taken special care in recent years to upgrade. As in any neighborhood, though, there still are some residential properties which could be freshened up. Some have talked about a matching grant program to provide funds for residential face-lifting. That idea has merit and deserves further exploration.

Much progress has been made; some work still remains to be done. Old Village already is a goldmine waiting to be discovered. The day that it becomes a prime attraction in southeastern Michigan is not that far away. The leasing of an office building to the association is just one of many actions taken toward that goal.

While commending that step, we also commend the goal and all those now and through the years who have worked and are working toward its achievement.

Townships applaud secrecy

THE ROTUND township supervisor from the northeastern suburbs was applauded by fellow members of the Michigan Townships Association as he told a legislative committee:

"... those newspaper people can go to court and get a court order if they want to find out something. The court will let them find out anything they need to know."

The topic: House Bill 4849, a severely crippling amendment to the state Open Meetings Act, a 1976 law which allows the public access to most of what local governing boards do. Sponsored by state Rep. Willis Bullard, R-Milford, the pro-secrecy bill is endorsed by the Michigan Townships Association.

You would think that township politicians, who talk about having "grass roots" government close to the people, would want to be very open and candid about what they do. Not so, ironically. Over the years, I have observed township officials to be the most guarded and secretive about public business and the quickest to ask, "What do you need to know for?"

I'm mystified as to why. But as a generalality it is so, and the attitude of those who attended last month's MTA convention in Dearborn was strong evidence.

THE TOWNSHIP supervisor quoted above was dead wrong in seeing newspapers alone as benefiting from the Open Meetings Act in its present form.

Reporters have no special rights under the law. We are treated as part of the great unwashed public, the same as any voter or taxpayer trying to find out what's happening to his or her money.

Elsewhere in the session, township officials talked about the need for "cooperation, not confrontation," with cities over annexation questions. Nice idea. But when it comes to finding out what happened at a closed township board meeting, the MTA's attitude suddenly changes. If you want to know what your elected officials did, you're supposed to get a court order.

That's the kind of thinking MTA applauded when the House Towns and Counties committee came to town.

JUST WHAT kind of material do the townshippers want to close off to the Open Meetings Act?

The bill's sponsor, Rep. Willis Bullard (not to be confused with Perry Bullard, a civil libertarian), says it's "just a couple of words." In a section of the law which allows governing boards to hold secret strategy sessions with their lawyers over specific pending lawsuits, his HB 4849 would add the words "or threatened."

Thus, any time anyone even threatens a lawsuit, the board could close the doors, ostensibly to consult with the attorney.

The fact of life is that people threaten lawsuits all the time. My brother and sister editors and I recently compiled a list of all the topics we had heard lawsuits threatened over:

Video game ordinances. Rezoning — threats by homeowners if it were done. Rezoning — threats by developers if it weren't. Reassignment of a school principal. A change in a local sign ordinance.

AN ITEM in the teachers' master contract — both the school board and union were threatened if it were ratified. Group homes. School bus routes. A policy on student locker searches. A policy on car searches. Liquor licenses. Landfills.

A cable television system bill now before Congress would allow companies with cable franchises broad powers to sue if a local governing board denied them renewal of a franchise. Thus, every single cable TV franchise renewal could be the topic of a possible lawsuit. And it would be subject to a closed meeting of the local governing board.

Township officials — and those who think like them in other bodies of government — would be more honest if they simply asked to be allowed to do everything behind closed doors, then announce the results when they got good and ready.

Bad time to be a hero worshiper

HERO WORSHIPERS are in for a rough time — especially those who idolize the performers on the playing fields of the land.

For years these so-called heroes were held in high esteem because of their feats in competition. You never heard anything but superlatives concerning their ability to run on an open field in a football stadium or whack a baseball out of a major league park.

But times have changed, and the athletes have changed them. All that appears in the newspapers of the day are stories dealing with battles over salaries and the length of their contracts.

YOU NEVER heard of such things when such heroes as Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb, Mickey Cochrane, Ted Williams and a host of others dominated the sports pages of the land.

For instance, it came to light the other day that Lou Gehrig, the New York Yankee's legendary first baseman, accepted a $5,000 cut in salary after a poor season and then received only $30,000 for the year.

The recent case in point this winter concerns Billy Shaw, the Detroit Lions running back, who knowingly signed two contracts in two different leagues and then demanded he be paid $1 million a year for running up and down the field. This is nothing more than a real holdup.

Then there is the action of Bob Hebert, the young quarterback of the Michigan Panthers, who broke the team to a title

the stroller
W.W.
Edgar

last year. He still has a year left on his contract, but walked out of camp because his demand for a much higher salary was not granted.

ANOTHER CASE is that of Kirk Gibson of the Tigers. Although he was paid $220,000 and had a poor season, he planned to go to arbitration with a demand for $250,000. Finally he settled for $250,000 — a raise of $30,000 and a plain holdup.

He will have to come a long way to become the hero of the bleacher fans. You don't worship contract breakers who are dissatisfied with salaries higher than that of the president of the United States.

What these fellows should do is copy the trait of Hank Greenberg, the old-time Tiger star who never wanted more than a one-year contract. Greenberg worked on the theory that he wanted to get paid each season for the work of that season and not have the salary prolonged.

Few if any players in other major leagues would do what Al Kaline did. If you recall, he refused a one-year salary of $100,000 until it was forced on him. And he went to the Baseball Hall of Fame.

Women still fight bias battle

In the Plymouth-Canton community Jaycee Week is being recognized this week.

Some, however, are taking the opportunity to honor those who are denied Jaycee membership despite their contributions to society — women.

This year it's especially appropriate in light of the recent report by the U.S. Census Bureau showing that women actually have lost ground in wage parity over the last decade.

Imagine, in 1970 women entering the marketplace earned 86 percent of the average wages paid to men who were starting work. After a decade of struggle for equality in the workplace, their average has decreased to 83 percent.

Even worse, those women who started work in 1970 have seen their wages, compared to men with comparable experience, decrease from 86 percent to 68 percent.

We can give no quarter to those who offer feeble excuses. We have only to look at our school-age daughters and grieve over the discrimination they will face, and the battles they are destined to fight because our society fosters a philosophy of separation for men and women.

Fathers would like to fight the battles for them, to protect them from the hurt. But time is passing quickly — too rapidly for the millions of fathers who want to see their daughters have an equal chance.

DESPITE ONGOING discrimination, more and more women are breaking the psychological bonds of subservience.

The recent television dramatization of the Willmar, Minn., women is an inspiring example.

For three years, these valiant women fought an employer who had forced them to train men who later were promoted to higher paying, more influential jobs. The women went on strike, lost their jobs and faced rejection from neighbors, friends and family in a community where escape was impossible.

From the beginning of life, men and women are taught to be separate, to learn different values, play different games, read different books and seek different careers.

Those who cotton to that creed should open their eyes and take a look at the real world.

In the Plymouth community, they should look at:

• Esther Häising: Plymouth Township Clerk, former Plymouth-Canton Board of Education president.

• Pat Hann: Leader in Old Village; promoted renovation, beautification and joining together of merchants and residents, business woman.

• Margaret Wilson: Longtime owner of Penn Theatre; promoter of arts, leader in civic affairs. Worked on Plymouth Fall Festival Board, president of Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce.

• Margaret Dunning: Benefactor to city — Plymouth Historical Museum, Dunning-Hough Library, moving force in history of Plymouth Credit Union, former longtime businesswoman.

• Jane Moeche: former Schoolcraft trustee and president of board, research led to its being named Schoolcraft College, president of Plymouth branch AAUW, president of Plymouth Symphony Society Board of Directors, educator, administrator State Board of Education and at Eastern Michigan University, active in arts.

• Beverly McAninch: Second woman in city's history selected mayor; leader in SEMCOG, now president Michigan League of Women Voters; former school trustee.

• Mary Childs: Plymouth City Commissioner, former mayor, selected Plymouth Hall of Fame.

• Flossie Tonda: Plymouth-Canton school board member, moving force behind school Clothing Bank.

• Daisy Proctor: Longtime executive director and volunteer force behind Plymouth Community Fund Drive.

Many more could be mentioned if space allowed. These women persevere despite organizations which foster the exclusionary rule.

All are women who have learned that "service to humanity is the best work of life."

roll call report

House blocks voting probe

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Jan. 28 through Feb. 1.

HOUSE

ABSENTEE VOTING: By a vote of 236 for and 155 against, the House tabled (killed) a resolution calling on the rules committee to investigate absentee voting in House committees.

Most panels have rules under which absent members can have colleagues cast their votes "by proxy" on pending legislation. Critics say this encourages absenteeism, causes uninformed voting and enables members to escape accountability for their acts.

There was no debate before this vote. Later, Rep. Hal Daub, R-Neb., said proxy voting should be banned because "the vast bulk of the truly significant work" of the House is done in committee.

Members voting yes wanted to block a rules committee probe of absentee voting in House committees.

Voting yes were Dennis Hertel, D-Detroit, William Ford, D-Taylor, Sander Levin, D-Southfield.

Voting no was Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth.

LINE-ITEM VETO: The House rejected, 144 for and 248 against, an amendment to give the president authority to veto specific outlays in a library-aid bill (HR 2878). Later passed and sent to the Senate, the bill authorizes $250 million over five years in library construction and development grants.

President Reagan has called for a "line-item veto" constitutional amendment allowing presidents to kill outlays for a particular program that Congress has funded. This would bolster a president's authority to veto entire appropriations bills.

Fiscal conservatives said the library amendment was the first of several attempts they will make this year to give President Reagan the new veto authority on a bill-by-bill basis.

Supporters called this vote a test of whether members are serious about budget-cutting. Foes said amendments such as this should undergo hearings before reaching the floor.

Members voting yes wanted President Reagan to be able to veto any part of the library aid bill.

Voting yes: Broomfield.

Voting no: Pursell, Hertel, and Levin.

Not voting: Ford.

Absent reps vote 'by proxy'

ORGANIC FARMING: By a vote of 206 for and 184 against, the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill (HR 2714) that advocates "organic farming" to reduce American agriculture's dependence on chemicals and its high rate of energy consumption.

The measure would spend $10.5 million over five years to step up Department of Agriculture research, including demonstration projects to be carried out on a cross-section of U.S. farms.

In part, organic farming minimizes the use of synthetic fertilizers and pesticides, stresses conservation, and recommends against the use of chemical additives to fatten animals for slaughter. Foes, such as the American Farm Bureau and livestock organizations, say it would cripple productivity by returning farm technology to where it was before the Industrial Revolution.

Supporter Kika de la Garza, D-Tex., said organic farming "can be the salvation of American and world agriculture in the years to come."

Opponent Thomas Bliley, R-Va., said, "A new study of this most ancient of farming methods can do little but waste the taxpayers' money."

Members voting yes wanted more federal research into organic farming.

Voting yes: Hertel, Ford and Levin.

Voting no: Pursell and Broomfield.

SENATE

CELEBRATION: By a vote of 67 for and 23 against, the Senate passed a bill creating a commission to plan a national celebration of the 500th anniversary of the year - 1492 - in which Christopher Columbus discovered America.

The bill (SR500), which was sent to conference with the House, authorizes $2 million for the commission.

Supporter Charles Mathias, R-Md., said, "It is not too soon to begin to plan for... such an unprecedented event, the 500th birthday of the New World."

Opponent James Exon, D-Neb., called the $2 million price tag too high.

Michigan Democrats Carl Levin and Donald W. Riegle Jr. were among the senators voting yes to establish the commission.

Dunn, Lousma to meet

Voters will get their first closeup look at two major contenders for the Republican U.S. Senate nomination at 8 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 23, in Livonia.

Jim Dunn, 40, former congressman from East Lansing, and Jack Lousma, 48, retired U.S. astronaut, will address the Livonia Republican Club meeting in Quality Inn, 36655 Plymouth Road east of Ann Arbor Road.

The meeting is open, a club spokesman said. After opening talks, the candidates will meet informally with attendees in a wine and cheese reception. There will be no debate format.

It will be the first time Dunn and Lousma have been on the same stump since last month's Republican State Convention in Grand Rapids. Winner of the Aug. 7 primary will face U.S. Sen. Carl Levin, a Democrat, in the Nov. 6 general election.

Information on the club is available from Audrey Greenleaf at 522-3985 and Jean Ritters at 464-6492.

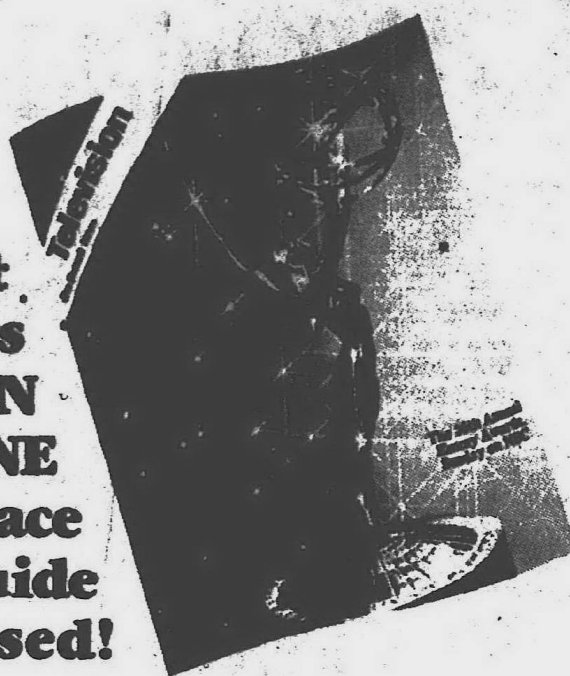

This contract saves lives

A major multimedia education effort to fight teen-age drunk driving has been launched by a coalition of pro-football players, educators, students and the liquor industry.

The campaign is aimed at stimulating what is termed "the most effective, untapped weapon against drunk driving" - the American family.

Centerpiece of the campaign is a "Contract for life," developed by Students Against Driving Drunk (SADD), a Massachusetts-based network of students in some 6,000 high schools coast to coast. The Contract calls on parents and teen-agers to agree that either may call home for help at any time if they or their driver has had too much to drink to drive safely.

Compete for ideas not for more dollars

By Jack Bologna
special writer

Last in a series

(Author Jack Bologna of Plymouth is president of a management consultant/computer security firm).

Flushed with the success of the Model T from its inception in 1908, Henry Ford would allow no fundamental change in the vehicle.

In fact, from 1913 to 1924, the car came in only one color: black, which gave rise to the old saw that "you can have any color you want, so long as it's black."

But the tenacity of spirit which made Ford so successful led to his undoing. He refused to believe his car had revolutionized American life to the point where customer preferences were changing.

With growing affluence and a rise in social status, the "common man" was asking for more choices, more variety, more elegance, more comfort.

Alfred P. Sloan, at General Motors, saw this development on the part of the mass market as an opportunity he could exploit with all the choices his firm had to offer — from Chevrolets, to Pontiacs, Buicks, Oldsmobiles, LaSalle and Cadillacs.

Sloan positioned his company to cater to the discriminating needs of his customers by segmenting auto buyers into different income categories. He had a car for everyone's pocketbook and colors to match the rainbow.

So by 1927, GM began to grow rapidly, and by the end of the decade had taken the lion's share of the market for automobiles, never again to lose it to Ford. (In 1921, Ford had 67 percent of the auto market; by 1926, the share had dropped to 46 percent).

GENERAL MOTORS' SUCCESS can be attributed to another factor.

In 1919, GM instituted an installment buying plan (GMAC). Ford, on the other hand, thought credit buying was the bane of American business.

We are seeing about the same evolution in the computer industry. Large systems still are in demand and will continue to be sold for many years to come. But the real growth in computer usage is just now beginning, with the micro — the "universal computer" for the universal man.

The micro will revolutionize our times as much, if not more, than the automobile. It will make information and knowledge and entertainment affordable to the masses. It will give rise to a host of new products and services.

Just as the auto created a need for better roads, gasolin stations, repair shops, machine tools, parts manufacturers, collision insurance, driver training schools, auto dealers and finance companies, the micro will give rise to a host of new businesses.

Just as autos spawned another industry larger than itself (petroleum exploration, refining and distribution), the micro is spawning a gigantic industry: software development for micros. Software is the fuel which drives computers. And just as the auto led to a network of highways, the microcomputer will lead to a network of telecommunications utilities.

WHAT WE SHOULDN'T forget in all this is what the mass customer wants and needs: enlightenment, enjoyment, ease of operation, affordability and service — something small, simple and cheap, which satisfies a basic human need.

If the auto gave us a better sense of our national geography, and television gave us a better sense of the world, perhaps the micro will give us a better sense of history and a better sense of our own universe.

The micro will make knowledge cheap; that is, affordable and accessible to all. There will be a market large enough to sustain us all. Not since the Gutenberg press has mankind had such a golden opportunity to enliven man's spirit and enrich his life.

In this great new era of knowledge dissemination, let's not "blow it" with dirty tricks. Let us compete for new ideas, not dollars.

If the right ideas come, the dollars will follow.

Upset random appeal denied

To the editor:
Monday, Feb. 13, 1984, I attended the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education meeting. My concern was random selection.

I requested that my Central Middle ninth grader be changed from Plymouth Canton to Plymouth Salem. My motive was simple. I have a 1983 graduate and I will have a 1984 graduate of Plymouth Salem and my ninth grader wants to be a 1987 graduate. Request denied. Just another burden that a family has to cope with in this non-family-oriented society.

I have two problems with this decision. First of all it seemed to me that the decision was made before I even got to make my appeal. I did get to address the subject but it was cut and dry.

David Artley asked me for the solution to the cut-off problem. It seems simple to me. If a family starts at one high school they should continue to that high school as long as children are in that family. Of course, this would mean that the board has one less powerful decision to have control over.

Second, I resented the fact that I had to give up an evening with my family to attend this fruitless meeting. I feel there should be some way of handling this over the phone or by an appointment instead of giving up my valuable free time to sit in on the board's working hours.

Speaking of the phone I tried to call several of the board members during my busy working day and was unable to reach any of them, including the superintendent.

My last point is, if my 1984 graduate fails to complete the requirements for graduation will I then have a child attending Plymouth Salem High School at the same time that my younger child enters the High School?

1st Ladies inaugural gowns shown

Woman's Club benefit Feb. 29

THERE ARE no winter doldrums out at St. Thomas a Becket Catholic Church in Canton. The Women's Club at the church has taken care of that. They started rehearsing for their February Follies early in January and everyone enjoyed the results last night when the show was presented.

Mary Albus, president of the club, chaired the follies. She even persuaded some of the men to get into the act. Billed as the "Follies' Lovelies," they brought down the house.

Members of "lovelies" team were John Dale, Tom Albus, Bill Kravez, Jim Galoch, Tom Pierz and Gerry Grady. Their gowns and wigs were glamorous, in spite of John Dale's full beard.

The kazoo orchestra made beautiful music. And the whole cast appeared for the grand finale rendition of "New York, New York."

"THE THREEPENNY Opera" closes Saturday evening at Eastern Michigan University's Quirk Theatre. Curtain time is 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday. In the cast are two June graduates of the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park — Ann Marie Roberts and Cella Stuart. Both were active in drama during their years at the CEP.

Ann Marie appeared in "Annie Get Your Gun," "Mame," "Fiddler on the Roof" and "The Long Silence" when she attended Plymouth Salem High School. She was active in Little Theatre of the Young at EMU and appeared in "African Tales."

She is the daughter of Carol and Bill Roberts of Canton Center Road, Plymouth.

Cella Stuart appeared in the high school musicals "Annie Get Your Gun" and "The Music Man." She was in the cast of "Fellfer's People," which they were invited to perform in Villach, Austria last June. Cella is the daughter of Alan and Lois Stuart of Clemons Drive, Plymouth Township.

Cella is a freshman dance major at EMU and Ann Marie is a freshman theatre major.

JUNIOR Achievement students from the Plymouth JA Center had the opportunity to attend the Feb. 6 meeting of the Economic Club of Detroit. The Honorable Coleman A. Young, mayor of Detroit, was guest speaker and the Junior Achievers met the mayor for a question-and-answer session before the luncheon.

Guests of Don C. Parker, president of the Detroit Free Press, were Susana Matulevich, Bishop Borgess High School; Eric Loose and Sandy Danielski of Plymouth Salem High School; Bill Merkel, Clay Good and Ehab Aryan of Plymouth Canton High School; and Aleda Aryan of Pioneer Middle School.

IT'S A FAMILY affair every Thursday when three generations of the Barnes family of Plymouth head for the Plymouth Cultural Center and their Weight Watchers session.

Joel (Jody) Barnes, the father, was the first to join Weight Watchers. His wife, Donna, and daughter Jennifer, 14, were next.

"They were getting so many compliments on their changes in appearance that Donna's mother became a member and attained her goal of decreased poundage."

Donna's father was so impressed that he joined the group last August.

The five slim-and-trim members of the family credit their leader, Jerry Morris, with their success. Donna said, "He was so positive in his approach and he and members of our class applauded every pound, every half pound and even every quarter pound we lost. It was easy to start feeling better about ourselves."

Canton Township's first lady, Greta Poole, tries on the reproduction of Mrs. Ulysses S. Grant's inaugural gown. Julia Dent Grant wore the original pale green satin and lace gown in 1869.

Twenty-six of the most elegant gowns in United States history will be shown at the Woman's Club of Plymouth luncheon-fashion show Wednesday, Feb. 29. Not one of the fabulous fashions, each valued at $1,500, will be for sale.

The Seely-Deer Gown Collection, accurate reproductions of inaugural ball gowns of 26 presidents' wives, will be modeled for the occasion. The collection was made originally for the Republican Party of Michigan to be used as a fund-raiser. It was purchased from the party several years ago by Dr. and Mrs. Edwin Deer of Birmingham.

Jean Deer was Republican state finance chairman when she conceived the idea for the gown collection. Details of the gowns were researched and sketched at the Smithsonian Institute and from historical fashion records at the Congressional Library by Troy designers David Zeese and Donald Nagel. They shopped far and wide for the fabrics.

THE FABRIC FOR Grace Coolidge's inaugural ball gown was discovered in a little shop in New York City. The shopkeeper insisted the bolt was the one from which the original gown had been cut.

Betty Curran will model the red velvet creation of 1923 with its shapeless low waistline and three-ruffled skirt of the flapper era.

Hair styles were researched as well as the favorite tunes of the presidents. The gowns will be modeled to appropriate background music provided by pianist Frances Lang.

Narrators Mary Childs and Judge Dunbar Davis will provide comments and biographical information of the first ladies.

The earliest dress in the collection is that of Martha Washington and the most recent will be Nancy Reagan's. The dresses will reflect changes in styles over the years. Deer said that the President's wives were greatly influenced by European royalty in the style and fabric of their gowns.

William Henry Harrison's wife, Caroline, was the first to wear a gown made entirely of domestic materials.

BETTY KOCH will model the Harrison gown. The models have been warned to avoid a walking pattern that involves sharp turns. Those who are wearing hoops and trains have been reminded not to step backwards, it could ruin the gown or injure the model.

Each of the gowns is insured for $1,000 but coverage does not include damage caused by smoking, eating, drinking or being stepped on.

First ladies and models are: Martha Washington, Patricia Centofanti; Abigail Adams, Ruth Rossano; Dolley Madison, Elinor Graham; Elizabeth Monroe, Nancy Tanger; Louisa Catherine Adams, Patricia McCombs; Angelica Van Buren, Patricia Thomas; Sarah Polk, Martha Davis; Mary Todd Lincoln, Lillian Payne; Julia Dent Grant, Greta Poole; Lucretia Garfield, Barbara van der Merwe; Frances Cleveland, Jean Jones; Caroline Harrison, Betty Koch; Edith Roosevelt, Esther Hulsing.

Also, Helen Taft, Geri Vollmer; Edith Wilson, Arline Robinson; Florence Harding, Sharon Armbruster; Grace Coolidge, Betty Curran; Lou Hoover, Wilma Rinderknecht; Eleanor Roosevelt, Julia Kenny; Elizabeth (Bess) Truman, Lee Ann Graper; Mary (Mamie) Eisenhower, Kay Wood; Jacqueline Kennedy, Janice Foster; Claudia (Lady Bird) Johnson, Phyllis Redfern; Thelma (Patricia) Nixon, Altha Stewart; Rosalyn Carter, Constance Heidt; and Nancy Reagan, Carole Hackett.

THE WOMAN'S Club has arranged the inaugural ball fashion show and luncheon as a benefit for its scholarship program.

Admission to the luncheon and show in the Mayflower Meeting House is $20 per person. Wine will be included with the luncheon and each guest will have a chance to win a trip for two to the nation's first capital. Luncheon will be served at 11:30 a.m. The fashion show will begin at 12:30 p.m. Guests will be seated at tables for eight and table numbers will be assigned when reservations are made. For reservations call K.C. Mueller, 455-0075, or Linda Pawling, club president, 420-2094.

The club is planning its second annual scholarship ball for the evening of Saturday, March 10 in the Mayflower Meeting House. Proceeds from the Inaugural Ball Gown Fashion Show and Luncheon will go to fund the scholarships.

Betty Curran wears a copy of the gown worn by Grace Goodhue Coolidge to the 1923 inaugural ball. The original gown and the reproduction are said to have been cut from the same bolt of deep red silk velvet.

Family violence can be curbed — with help

The growing social problem of violence in the home can be prevented or greatly curtailed, according to the Michigan Psychiatric Society.

"We as a nation do not have to passively accept the growing tragedies of child abuse and spouse abuse," said Dr. Melvin Bornstein, a Birmingham psychiatrist and psychoanalyst who is president-elect of the society.

"We have to somehow reach those people who have used violence — or have the potential to use violence — because they can't cope with the pressures in their lives," Bornstein said. "We have to let them know there are alternatives to striking out and hurting those they love."

LINDA FEINFELD, M.D., a specialist in child psychiatry at Mt. Carmel Mercy Hospital in Detroit, added, "It is typically not a lack of love that leads to family violence but a lack of coping skills."

"Abusive parents rarely want to hurt their children," Feinfeld explained. "There are certain life experiences such as being abused as a child that make parents prone to abusing their own children. Violence occurs under stress-filled circumstances in which the parent feels provoked, and anger flares up," she said.

In the heat of the moment, if you feel you can't contain your anger, cool off by leaving the scene of the irritation. If a child is the target of your anger, leave the child with a friend, neighbor or baby-sitter, but leave — get away from the upsetting environment.

TO HELP people understand the roots of family violence, the psychiatric society has developed a checklist of warning signs to identify those who have the potential to inflict violence on a child or spouse, as well as a list of preventive steps that can be taken.

Here are the warning signs of a potential for violence:

- You feel hopeless or helpless about your life circumstances.

- You experience feelings of anger out of proportion to the cause.
- You feel unloved or unlovable.
- You feel unable to care about or love someone else.
- You feel chronically depressed, hostile or frustrated.
- You feel little satisfaction in your life.
- You feel indifferent to other people in your life.
- You experience marked changes in your moods or personality.
- You were mistreated by your parents.
- You grew up with low self-esteem.
- You are or feel isolated from other people.
- You resent criticism.
- You resent your baby's crying or your children making noise.
- You feel deprived.
- You feel you have too many pressures and stresses in your life.
- You feel no one understands your problems.

IF YOU or someone you know feels pressures mounting and believe yourself capable of striking out and hurting a child or spouse, it's time to seek help. There are many sources of help.

Relieve pressure by talking through your problems with a friend or clergyman.

If your problem is serious, you can learn new ways of coping with tension and anger through therapy with a psychiatrist or other mental health professional. Professional family therapy can solve upsetting behavior patterns that cause friction in the family.

Develop a support system by joining a group such as Parents Anonymous, which teaches violence-prone parents how to avoid hurting their children. Individuals can find a "buddy" in the group to call when they fear they are about to lose control and injure a child.

Take classes in Parent Effectiveness Training (PET) to learn appropriate ways of responding to difficult situations with children.

Energy savers to be auctioned

More than 200 items designed to save energy such as the window shade shown above will be auctioned by Plymouth auctioneer John Whalen at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Waterman Center at Schoolcraft College. They include flue dampers, window insulation, solar systems, setback thermostats and engineering and architectural services. Proceeds from the Sunshine Energy Fair and Auction will benefit the Schoolcraft Energy Studies Program. Bob Crotean (right) of Energy Connection in Plymouth, one of the businesses donating products to the auction, shows Frank McMurray of Canton a window shade that seals a window in cold weather.

Between ice and petitions, what a week!

I remember saying to myself several times, "I'll just type up a little note, get off work earlier, and stuff one in each place." — Well, that's in now, and now it's too late for a simple note. But maybe it's not too late to help in the future.

So here goes:
Dear Neighbors,

I know the weather has been lousy this year. I ask only that if, in the future, our snowfall picks up again this year or next or the year after, please think twice before you walk into the house and say, "It's too cold or windy to shovel." Hire someone.

You see it's not just your family who could fall and be injured, or even your apry, young news carrier. It is a disaster for the carrier, but an even bigger problem for the inevitable "carrier substitute."

You see, my youngest son Alan, a newsboy, suffered such an accident while delivering his paper route Thursday, Feb. 2 — a sprained knee and ankle, to be exact.

So on Saturday, his conscientious father was delivering his route when Alan, at a completely different home, he, too, took a nose dive on the ice. Perhaps I should say shoulder dive, for it was Saturday Feb. 4 when my husband broke his shoulder.

You wouldn't believe how that throws your life into a spin. As always there are so many people much worse off than we. However, that does not negate the fact that we have a problem. What I really want to relay to you is, "Please shovel your sidewalks and porches, for it's not just your family that uses them. And the consequences could be serious."

Canton chatter
Sandy Preblich
981-6354

A SPRAINED ankle or knee is painful and annoying for a newsboy, reason enough to shovel your property. However, a broken and dislocated shoulder for a mailman, Avon representative, or concerned father etc. can be disastrous. So please, take it from one who is wearing this trying to care for a very uncomfortable husband, "A little care of the sidewalk today, can save a family from distress someday."

NOW, FROM THE "I don't believe it!" department.
I usually write about what Canton-ites are doing, planning, or have done. Well, I'm from Canton, and this happened to me.

While entering Kmart on Saturday I was approached by a person who asked me if I was a registered voter.

I answered, "You bet! Never miss!"

He proceeded to do his best to get me to sign a petition, mentioning all the while catchy little phrases like "rising utility costs" and the famous "stop tax increases" etc. He kept insisting that he represented a group of people that wanted to make a change and put a lot of new people on the ballot, and get "our" complaints on the ballot, and so on.

Well, I searched the petition from top to bottom and I couldn't find one blank explaining anything about what it was for. The only blanks filled in, were the lines the people were signing. Even the "county of" line was blank.

I tried to get him to tell me what this petition was for and he said they would be used for a lot of different things. But the idea was to get as many signatures as possible so all the people and all "OUR" issues would get on the ballot. He didn't even want me to read what the blank petition said.

I SMILED and told him I couldn't sign it.

He asked why, and I told him because I didn't know what it was for. He stressed the importance of having lots of signatures so all the issues would be brought to the people.

He took the clipboard away from me and insisted the blanks didn't have to be filled in because they were forming a "brand new party" and that wasn't required. I never was allowed to read the standard form, blank as it was. He wanted just my signature.

I didn't want to embarrass him. But I didn't want him to think I had NO idea of how petitions work. So, I explained I was too conscientious a voter to sign without some idea of what the page I was signing was going to be used for.

Now, he decided to add insult to the intimidation. He asked who I voted for in the last election.

I hemmed and hawed, nervously giggled and said, "The right man, I'm not saying they win, but I always vote for the right man." (Oh how clever I was.)

Unfortunately, he wasn't looking for clever, and asked again. I paused, trying desperately to remember if the last election was for millage or candidates. I was concerned about making a fool of myself by giving a candidate's name when it was millage.

That's a way out I would rely on my rights as a citizen to private ballot. But rather than make an issue of it, just casually giggle but a shy "I don't remember."

What a mistake. This was the moment he had waited for. Now, in a very loud voice he says, "A conscientious voter? You can't sign a petition because you say you're a conscientious voter and you can't remember who you voted for?"

AT THIS, HE turned his back and walked away, refusing to listen to my reply.

• Forget that he insulted me in MY township, in front of MY Kmart. (I believe he said he was from Garden City.)

• Forget that my teenage son was with me and confused by his attitude.

• Forget that he insulted me in front of my son (this I was able to explain later).

• Forget all the emotions that an incident like this creates.

• Remember the blank petition was filled with pages of names from Canton, Plymouth, Novi etc. Remember two members of our state government were recalled recently with the aid of petitions. Conceivably, the signatures could be gathered in this manner.

Regardless of which side of the party line you are on, your's could be next:

• Remember recall drives and all special elections are a privilege, but costly to all.

• Remember even groups from outside our United States could attempt and very possibly succeed in destroying our system, using our system, if we do not guard it, protect it, watch it.

• Remember, don't let people abuse it. (And right in front of our Kmart's!)

FINAL NOTE: I still have no idea what those petitions were for. They could have been as pure as the driven snow. And they could have been to cut education, or annex Canton.

Who knows? Why didn't they say?

ON A MORE chatty note. If you know anyone with a birthday Feb. 29, please give me a call. Thanks, Sandy.

How was your week?

Local club's Fasching gala a sellout

The German-American Club of Plymouth had a full house for its annual Fasching Party Saturday night in the Plymouth Cultural Center. The pre-Lenten celebration was a sell-out.

And this year they did not run out of the imported German beer and wine, ordered months in advance of the party. There was plenty of hearty German food for the celebrants who came from neighboring German-American clubs and the metropolitan area to join the fun. Many of the guests had no German background. But once they attend, they wouldn't miss the party.

Club member Phyllis Urban won the prize for the best female costume. She came as a fairy godmother. Her husband, Guenther, was Father Time.

PRIZE FOR the best male costume went to Tom Moslyk in glittering robe and turban as he portrayed a mid-Eastern sheik.

The Melodias provided music for dancing and singing. Voices and beer steins were raised as they sang the old songs from the Old Country.

The German-American Club of Plymouth will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 16 in the Odd Fellows Hall, Elizabeth Street at Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth. The potluck dinner on the Thursday after the Fasching Party has become a club tradition, and they welcome visitors.

Tom Moslyk, as an Eastern potentate, enjoys the Fasching festivities with Robin Neiman.

Eye-to-eye contact

Teens see Haiti's poverty up close

By Marie McGee
staff writer

Souvenirs of native handwork aren't the only things Christine Marsh and Jeff Swanson brought back from Haiti where they spent two weeks helping a medical missionary team.

They have some pretty powerful memories, accumulated while assisting the medical missionaries by sorting glasses, fitting them for Haitians, sacking vitamins and medications, taking blood pressures and directing the people to the professionals.

One of those memories was formed when they observed help being administered to a woman whose eye was literally hanging out of its socket. More pleasant was another woman who shouted for joy after receiving a pair of glasses.

Marsh, 14, of Westland and Swain, 14, of Canton were participating in the trip as teen representatives of the Seventh-day Adventist Church's Pathfinders, a group of young people who emphasize camping, march and drill, nature, crafts and fitness skills in context of spiritual values. Both attend the SDA school in Plymouth.

THIS IS THE third year that a Michigan group of Seventh-day Adventist teen-agers joined forces with a dentist, optometrist, intern, physician and registered nurse to help the people on the island of Hispaniola.

The opportunity came after both wrote winning essays stating why they wanted to make the trip. After that came the job of raising the $400 needed to finance the trip. Sponsors helped, but a lot of the money came through work projects. Chris did baby-sitting and Jeff mowed lawns.

The 37-member mission group conducted 11 clinics serving about 400 people each day. They dispensed about 1,500 pairs of glasses of the 2,000 that were taken. These had been collected in the United States and marked by prescription specifications. Medical supplies worth $10,000 were also dispensed.

But the trip wasn't all work and no play.

The teens had time for swimming in the Caribbean, snorkeling and bargaining with the Haitians. They also enjoyed the camaraderie of other Michigan Pathfinders. The group bunked in dormitories and ate in a hospital cafeteria.

THEY ALSO LEARNED what real poverty is, both teens said. Haiti, they learned, is the poorest country in the western hemisphere. Most of the people served had no income at all. "But they were as clean as they could be under the circumstances," said Chris. And very friendly, she said.

Both said the trip "was the opportunity of a lifetime." Never mind the bugs and sweltering temperatures. "I'd go again any time," said Chris, "just to help people."

LARRY CARUSO/staff photographer

Exploring the marketplace was on the fun side of a recent mission trip to Haiti for Seventh-day Pathfinders Christine Marsh (left) and Jeff Swanson. Among the mementos they brought back are a delicately carved wooden tea set and an authentic machete.

Author is dinner speaker

Maury Blair, author of the biographical book, "Child of Woe," will be guest speaker at the Saturday, Feb. 18 dinner meeting of the Northville-Plymouth-Livonia chapter of the Full Gospel Businessmen's Fellowship.

Having been director of "Toronto Teen Challenge" for many years, he is now serving as executive director of "Breakthrough," a broad-based Christian youth outreach ministry designed to reach young people throughout Canada.

The meeting at 7 p.m. follows dinner which will be at 6 p.m. in the Sweden House restaurant in Farmington Plaza.

Reservations are required for the dinner and may be made by calling Leo Beauchamp at 348-2265 or David Herczeg at 255-2845.

'Barnabas' film shown Sunday

At 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 19, Presbyterians from the 98-member churches comprising the Presbytery of Detroit will group together in homes to view "Be a Barnabas" on channel 62.

The program describes how the churches of the Detroit Presbytery and the agencies receiving support from these churches, are meeting human needs.

The half-hour documentary stars Dr. Frank Marvin, pastor of Cherry Hill Presbyterian Church, Dearborn as Barnabas, the first-century "son of encouragement" who traveled with the Apostle Paul, bringing help and comfort in a time of turmoil. The show has Barnabas appearing in Detroit to see how Christians in this century are continuing the work of encouragement to those who are troubled.

The show, which shows such divergent ministries as a weekly indigent men's luncheon gathering at Detroit Fort Street Presbyterian, and a drug rehabilitation program at Milford Presbyterian, is the first in what is expected to be a series of TV documentaries showing local aspects of the Presbyterian continuous mission effort on behalf of the area's needy.

Feminism needs understanding moral perspectives

Rev. Robert Schaden

There are those for whom feminism is a disease that the world would be better off without. For others, it is all there is. But regardless of whether we're anxiously awaiting its demise or carrying its flag, the women's movement has happened.

Not only is it a fact of life, it has proven to make a difference in the way that many people, women and men alike, look at life.

Feminism is certainly not without its antagonists. They can be found among both genders of the race and on both sides of most other issues. But regardless of where we stand, it may be as important to understand the antagonists as it is to listen to those who are marching in the parades.

On the one hand, not unlike the plantation workers who were deprived of their workforce more than 100 years ago, many of these folks have much to lose. When the slaves were freed, the plantation people lost much more than a handful of workers. They lost a lifestyle. That is the way it is when people call for equality in a society in which inequality has become an unquestioned way of life.

THAT IS PRECISELY what is at stake, and those who oppose movements of liberation know it only too well. It is no wonder they rise up in an anger born of fear. They have much to lose and the losses go far beyond the kitchen. Corporations will never be the same. Those who pay women 41 cents to every dollar in the male paycheck stand to lose a bundle. Wouldn't you be an antagonist?

Government people can be no less blamed for their reluctance. Some of them may take pains to put a woman here or there to whom they can point with pride. But as of now, they know that on the bottom line the men run the show. And they also know that if the parade is allowed to march on, that will change. That is a fact to be understood whether you walk in the parade or are waiting on the sidelines for it to end.

Even the churches stand to lose a lifestyle in the face of feminism. No wonder it is easier for them to preach against the very inequality that lurks in its sanctuaries. When we consider that "God intended it this way," the challenge of the women's movement has got to be a terribly difficult pill to swallow. The very fact that there have been some inroads makes the prospect even more frightening for those who until now have thought it was all a bad dream.

Some of the antagonists are from among the female of the species. Like so many of the slaves of old, they have perhaps become so accustomed to the status quo that they can envision no other way. After all, it is no easy thing to be told you are not free when all along you thought you were.

And then there are those women who are painfully aware of their lack of freedom. They are aware, too, of the lack of freedom known to so many males and females alike. At the same time, they are reluctant to leave the sidelines and join the parade because they do not wish to be branded as "radical." They want to be able to be for freedom — for themselves and others — without being identified as pro-abortion. It may be that parades are not their style, and they may be beyond the anger zone. Even movements for freedom can unknowingly become a source of its deprivation.

Understanding the antagonists of course, is one part of the problem, but not until the marchers can sit down with the spectators to understand the issues will we really know what it means that "to the image of God they were created, male and female they were created."

Off-turnpike treat: Pennsylvania's highlands

Perfect for weekend trip

By Mary Augusta Rodgers
special writer

FOR MANY of us in Michigan, the Pennsylvania turnpike is simply part of the route leading to Washington, D.C., or on to Philadelphia and New York City. There are few who know that this was the first major limited-access highway built in the country, an engineering marvel of its time.

The rolling countryside of southwestern Pennsylvania is hardly noticed as the miles go by; there's the Laurel Mountain tunnel, an occasional Amish barn painted dark red and decorated with hex signs, and some dreary restaurant areas that inspire customers to plan a picnic next time.

But take a look at what lies past the Donegal exit on the turnpike, a little more than an hour's drive past Pittsburgh.

This is pastoral country made up of gentle valleys and hills that are the remains of an ancient mountain range, far older than the Rockies or the Alps.

There are some appealing small towns, covered bridges along the back roads, parks and nature preserves, two reconstructed forts from the days of the French and Indian wars, and an unusual vacation house designed by Frank Lloyd Wright and built over a waterfall.

IT'S A wonderful place for a weekend retreat.

In the winter, there's downhill skiing at Laurel Mountain, a wealth of cross-country ski trails, and a variety of activities — ski touring, backpacking, snowshoeing, etc. — available at the Bear Run Nature Reserve (between Fallingwater and Mill Run on Route 381) and other locations.

But it's in the spring that this area comes into its own, with rushing streams and rivers and Appalachian wild flowers, mountain laurel, rhododendron and wild cherry trees bursting into bloom. Some of the best hiking trails in the state are here.

There's also fine trout fishing, many places offering canoes and kayaks for rent — I'll mention Ohiopyle and Confluence for the pleasure of the names — and whitewater rafting on the Youghiogheny River, commonly called "The Yough".

THE RIVERS are graded on the international scale, from 1 or Easy ("moving water with small riffles and waves; course is easy to find") to VI or Limit of Navigability ("nearly impossible and cannot be attempted without risk of life; for teams of experts only").

So the point is obvious; pick your river, as well as the kind of boat, with care.

Fallingwater, one of the most celebrated of Frank Lloyd Wright's works, was built as a weekend and vacation house for Lilliane and Edgar J. Kaufmann of Pittsburgh and their family in 1936. (A guest and servants wing was added in 1939).

Elements of this beautiful and secluded site — the swift stream, the waterfall, the massive sandstone boulders, and trees and beautiful and secluded site — the swift stream, the waterfall, the massive sandstone boulders, and trees and flowers — are reflected in the dramatic design.

FALLINGWATER — one of the most celebrated of Frank Lloyd Wright's works, this house was built as a weekend and vacation retreat over a natural waterfall. The secluded site includes massive sandstone boulders, myriad trees and flowers. Giant stepping stones across a stream are concrete bases forming living and bedroom levels of the house, cantilevered over the stream. It now belongs to the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy.

WHAT LOOK at first glance like giant stepping stones across the water are concrete bases forming living and bedroom levels of the house, cantilevered over the stream.

In 1963, Edgar Kaufmann Jr. presented the house — with all its furnishings and art objects — to the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy in honor of his father and mother. "Its beauty remains fresh, like that of the nature into which it fits," he said then. "It has served well as a home, yet has always been more than that: a work of art."

Nature lovers and photographers should also note that the Conservancy's Bear Run Nature Reserve 3,700 acres of wild mountain land, with 20 miles of trails — begins only a half mile north of Fallingwater.

NOT FAR away, in the small town of Farmington, is the Fort Necessity National Battlefield, the site of the first battle of the French and Indian Wars in 1755 — a defeat for the British under General Braddock and the first experience under fire for a young major named George Washington.

Part of the land, then known as the Great Meadows, was later bought by Washington, who owned it until his death. There's a visitor's center — Mt. Washington tavern, restored as a stagecoach inn, and a replica of the original fort, all open year-round.

In 1758, the English forces began another campaign to drive the French from their strongholds along the Ohio River, and Fort Ligonier was built as a supply station for troops on their way to attack the French at Fort Duquesne (the settlement that became Pittsburgh).

THE LAND was then covered by a dense forest; the site of Fort Ligonier, at Loyalhanna Creek, was a former Indian Village, and one of the few cleared places where the sky could be seen.

Fort Ligonier survived a surprise attack by French and Indian forces in October 1758 — with George Washington and his Virginia regiment helping in its defense — and another siege by Indians under Pontiac in 1763.

Today, Fort Ligonier consists of a small but rewarding museum, and an accurate reconstruction of the British fort.

The museum ranges from an unusual collection of artifacts from the French and Indian wars to dioramas, two elegantly furnished period rooms — there's a portrait of Lord Ligonier by Sir Joshua Reynolds in the Ligonier room — and a copy of the haunting lament by Logan, chief of the Mingo, for his vanished tribe, which ends: Who is there to mourn Logan? Not one.

THE FORT brings history to life with a striking collection of life-size mannikens to illustrate various activities among the soldiers; a short recorded explanation is available in each room by pressing a button, and children are usually entranced.

Many special events are planned during the summer, coming to a climax with the annual Fort Ligonier Days celebration, the second weekend in October. This includes a parade, reenactment of the October, 1758 battle, and displays of frontier crafts.

Other annual events in the Ligonier area include the Highland Games and Gathering of the Clans of Scotland in Idlewild Park in September; for information, write Highland Games, 1208 24th Ave., Altoona, Pa. 16601. And there are steeplechase meets at Rolling Rock Club on Wednesday and Saturday, the second week of September.

Plan ahead for summer Olympics in Los Angeles

Despite rumors to the contrary, discount air fares are available to Los Angeles during the summer Olympics.

While Olympic contenders are skating and skiing across your television screen, it is a good time to think ahead to other sports-related travel experiences. Especially the summer Olympics in Los Angeles.

You have probably been told that there is no discount air fares available to Los Angeles during the summer Olympics. Don't believe it. The major air carriers did agree to eliminate discount fares for the period covering the games, but American Airlines has already broken the agreement. American's fares are still not real discount fares however. For that, try Canada.

Air Canada still has space on its flights from Windsor via Toronto during the July 24-August 12 period that would interest most Olympics travelers. Regular fare is $662 plus tax in U.S. dollars, but B-class fares are much cheaper.

You can fly Monday through Thursday Windsor to Los Angeles for $430 plus tax round trip. Friday, Saturday, Sunday flights will cost $497 plus tax round trip. Both quotes are in US dollars.

I asked Ron Patterson, Michigan Sales Manager for Air Canada, whether there was any advantage to buying the ticket in Canadian dollars in Windsor. He said that the savings were too small to be worth the trouble.

There are restrictions on these fares. You must buy the tickets 14 days ahead of flight time, you must stay over at least the first Sunday before returning, and you must return before 60 days are up.

For information contact your travel agent or Air Canada.

LOS ANGELES HOUSING, a private organization selling various kinds of accommodations in Los Angeles during the summer Olympics, is also offering an unusual ticket-swapping service.

If you have tickets to Olympic events you don't want to see — and if there are events you want to see, but don't have tickets for — Los Angeles Housing will act as a free clearinghouse and exchange service for those people using its housing service.

Los Angeles Housing has several hundred bed accommodations listed in its computer, including five-bedroom houses. Their press releases say: that the average cost is $60 per person per day.

They have two-week rental minimums for accommodations, that include separate bedrooms, kitchens, linens, television and weekly maid service. It is not inexpensive: four people will spend $3,400 to $5,000 for a two-bedroom place for two weeks. Five bedrooms can cost $7,000 to $10,000.

If you want to know more, contact Los Angeles Housing at 461 Prospect Ave., Manhattan Beach, CA 90266 or telephone (213) 376-0994.

OLYMPICS VISITOR HOUSING is also worth a look. The organization has 3,000 beds in the residence halls of Claremont College and Biola University July 20 through August 20, for seven, 11 or 21 days. For information send a stamped self-addressed envelope to ASTRA Tours and Travel, 10929 Weyburn Ave., Los Angeles CA 90024.

RECREATIONAL VEHICLES can be rented for the Olympics through the Good Sam Club by calling toll-free 1-800-423-5061.

SC adopts rules for building names

Schoolcraft College has set up criteria for the naming of buildings, rooms and streets on campus, hoping to end political in-fighting.

With almost no debate, trustees recently voted 7-0 to adopt recommendations of a heritage and honors committee.

The 20-year-old community college last year became embroiled in disputes over renaming the Administration Building for a former president (approved) and the Liberal Arts Building for a deceased faculty member (avoided).

"AN EXISTING building may be considered (for naming) to a retiring president who has served in an exemplary manner for a period of at least 10 years but only after a three-year separation period has passed," according to one policy.

A building also may be named for a contributor who has donated half its cost.

So far, Schoolcraft has named its campus center for retired Dean Lois Waterman; its library for retired President Eric Bradner and its administration building for former President C. Nelson Grote. Had the policy been in effect last year, the Grote naming would not have come before the board until mid-1984.

Rooms, areas within a building and open spaces may be named for a person who has a) contributed $200,000 to the college, b) had a minimum of 20 years affiliation or c) had their selection made by an appropriate committee.

The board annually will form a committee to determine if any candidates comply with the criteria. The committee will have representatives from the board, community at-large, executive administrators, faculty and other campus work units.

A CAMPUS street may be named after a person who has contributed $250,000 in cash or material to upgrade college property.

A street may be named for a corporation which has donated $1 million.

Campus streets currently bear the names of such Indian tribes as Fox, Huron and Menominee. Henry Rowe Schoolcraft, the early Michigan scholar for whom the college was named, had been a federal Indian agent who collected much of their lore. His writings were popularized in Longfellow's "Song of Hiawatha."

"LIVING MEMORIALS" of trees may also be made to honor the living and the dead.

A donor must cover the cost of the tree and a plaque or marker. Costs are still to be determined. The biology department and physical plant department will develop lists of trees and a campus plan to show their proposed location.

The list, campus plan and approximate cost are to be on file in the physical plant office for public use.

The lengthy policy also sets up rules for memorial recognition of deceased employees, recognition of retirees, a remembrance fund for employees and their families in the event of illness or death, emeritus status for administrators and faculty, honoree status for other employees and a staff recognition luncheon for persons employed 15 years or longer.

Collecting for needy

The Plymouth-Canton Steelers Junior Football Unit recently gathered under the black and gold Steelers banner in Kellogg Park to collect donations of winter clothing. Players, cheerleaders and residents brought in clothing by the bagful: 178 winter coats, 36 pairs of boots, more than 75 hats, scarves, gloves, and mittens. People also contributed snowpants, slacks, shirts, sweatshirts, sweaters, robes, and other winter apparel. David Bryant, Steeler president, thanks all who donated to the drive. The clothing has been distributed to Detroit Rescue Mission and to the Clothing Bank of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. Shown above are Steelers in the park loading clothing into boxes.

U-M OKs computer deal

Burroughs Corp. and the University of Michigan's Graduate School of Business Administration have made an agreement in principle to install a computer network at the business school.

The multimillion-dollar cooperative program will help to establish the business school, in Ann Arbor, as the premier institution in the United States for studying methods of integrating computing into all aspects of business education.

"This project represents an important partnership between business and the academic community," said Gilbert R. Whitaker, dean of the business school.

W. MICHAEL Blumenthal, Burroughs chairman and chief executive officer, and Whitaker said the computer network will link all of the school's teaching, research and administrative activities.

"Because of it, our business school probably will be the first in the world to offer such an extensive state-of-the-art computer linkup designed to enhance our approach to educating not only the future decision-makers who now are enrolled in our graduate degree program, but also current business leaders who come to us to continue their executive education."

The network will serve the school's 2,300 students, more than 150 of its faculty and staff, and more than 4,500 business executives who annually participate in its management training program.

"This network will be a tremendously efficient tool for modeling and simulating business and industrial activities, developing and managing data resources, and designing and constructing computer-based information systems," Blumenthal said.

Details of the agreement will be concluded in the next 60 days.

COMPUTER HARDWARE to be used initially for the network will include up to 500 of Burroughs' most advanced microcomputer workstations and three of the company's downsized central processing units, which will function as network controllers and file servers for the work stations.

During the first phase of the program, Burroughs will provide approximately $6 million in computer hardware, software, support and services. The U-M Business School will contribute another $6 million in new facilities and equipment, and in research and operating personnel.

As a part of the program, Burroughs also has agreed to sell its latest microcomputer work stations at substantially reduced prices to university faculty, staff and students, as well as to business executives and others who take courses offered by the university's Department of Management Education.

New facilities under construction to accommodate phase one of the computing installations include a 25,000-square-foot computer center, a library and executive-education facilities, collectively valued at more than $15 million.

The new buildings and the initial computing installations are expected to be operational by September.

Burglars hit jewelry shop

Police are investigating what they call a "smash and grab" burglary at Bluford Jewelers in Plymouth's downtown area.

The jewelry shop, 467 Forest, was broken into early Friday morning, and an undetermined amount of merchandise taken, according to Police Chief Ralph White.

About 4 a.m. Friday the front window of the shop was smashed, setting off the shop's alarm system, White said.

Although Plymouth police were on the scene within 45 seconds of the alarm, the burglars had smashed four display cases and left, he said.

Similar burglaries have occurred in Farmington, Livonia and Dearborn Heights, according to Det. Lt. Henry Berghoff.

The Plymouth area experienced a rash of "smash and grab" burglaries several years ago, Berghoff said.

Police believe such breakins involve several people, two or more to grab merchandise while one holds a bag.

"They know what they're doing, because they're right in and right out," he said.

Finding youth in a 'fountain'

PONCE DE LEON spent years trudging through unexplored Florida searching for the secret to eternal youth. He probably ended his life looking for his youth.

Not much has changed. To this day people do all they can to impede the progress of age.

But alas, the answer at long last may have been uncovered. A combination of de Leon's belief and Alex Haley's "Roots" could unravel the mysteries of time and aging.

The secret, you see, is not to live longer but to live better longer. At least that's the motto of the U.S. Masters Swimming program.

De Leon was in the ball park when he went searching for a "fountain" of youth. Problem was he should have been looking for a pool.

And Haley? Go back to the roots of humankind. All life, so it is generally believed, sprung from the sea. It is therefore logical to assume that the secret to youth be discovered in water — whether it is chlorinated or salted.

IF A TESTIMONIAL is desired, check some of the members of the South Oakland Seals (SOS), the local masters swim team. As Carol Rhudy, one of the initial SOS members, described it:

"Some of these people are in their 70s and look 50. Swimming keeps you young."

Not that SOS members must be on the brink of retirement to join. Some are older, some younger, and quite a few are in between. Anyone over 19 can swim masters. The age groupings are in five-year increments, starting at 19-24 in Michigan (nationally, the first division is 25-29) and going to 90 and over.

There are some very fine older swimmers, too. Like Elwood Conlan, who earned the high-point scoring trophy at Saturday's master's swim meet at East Kentwood. Conlan swims for SOS. He's 71.

Ed and Ruth Brown, who started SOS, are both near Conlan's age bracket. Further down the line is Tom Koenig, a top three finisher nationally in the 50-54 breaststroke. And then there's Lynn Weir, another SOS member who won the 1,650-yard freestyle national title in the 40-44 group last year.

DON'T GET THE WRONG idea. This isn't strictly for the 40 and over crowd, anymore than it's just for elite swimmers.

"People think masters is for the geriatric crowd," said Dennis Carter, Birmingham Seaholm's girls' swim coach and the first coach of SOS. "The biggest group we have is the 30-45-year-olds. They're professional people who have their careers set and can find time for workouts."

Any doctor will tell you exercise and physical fitness are keys to a healthy life. Swimming is good exercise. Many of the body's muscles are utilized, and the heart gets a good, hard workout.

But what makes swimming so attractive is the lack of physical punishment. Injuries are few; there are no fractures or twisted ligaments.

"Swimming is one of the few exercises where you don't get beat up, break a bone or tear a tendon," Carter said.

CARTER RUNS three SOS evening workouts a week at Seaholm. The team also has morning practices Saturday and Sunday at Oakland Community College.

Practices are "loosely structured," according to Carter. He writes three different workouts on the board near the Seaholm pool. Swimmers can pick whichever workout they wish, from the most difficult — Monday's was nearly 4,000 yards — to medium (3,550) to least difficult (2,950 yards).

The workouts last 90 minutes and are designed in a manner that would keep anyone from getting bored. Just figuring them out keeps interest peaked.

Masters swimming is growing in popularity, both in Michigan and in the country. There's a state meet in April, a national championship in May, and this year, for the first time, a world championship in New Zealand in April.

"I'd say the program has doubled in the last four or five years," estimated Rhudy, who, together with husband Bo, was among the first national masters' champions 10 years ago.

MASTERS IS COMPETITIVE swimming, certainly. But competing isn't the No. 1 reason for joining.

"Health," is what Carter called the main attraction. Rhudy agreed.

"Some really love the competition," she said. "Once you're an old competitive swimmer it's hard to give it up. But health and camaraderie are the reasons I do it."

"And the parties afterwards are nice, too."

Aha! An ulterior motive.

"This is completely different than high school or college," said Carter, who has swum in all three. The psychological tenseness is missing in masters, he explained. "At nationals last year in Ft. Lauderdale, guys would go out between events to a local bar for a beer."

"They called it carbohydrate loading."

SOME SOS MEMBERS don't compete at the meets. Others never competed in a pool until joining the masters' program.

"There's room for everybody," said Rhudy. "We get people who have never competed before. They improve through correct workouts."

And with an exercise that doesn't take a toll on the body, a swimmer will end up looking better longer — or so the masters' theory goes.

"Age is all in your mind," was what Carter told an SOS member. His reason for continuing?

"I feel a lot better when I'm working out," he answered. "Besides, it's a great reason for drinking beer."

So much for theory.

Surprise! It's Salem in WLAA

RICK SMITH

Tim Collins gets caught in a foot hold by Salem's Bill Morley during the Western Lakes conference meet Saturday. Collins, Canton's winningest wrestler, beat Morley and everybody else at 138 pounds.

Chiefs upset

The Plymouth Canton basketball team stumbled en route to a division championship Tuesday night. The story is on Page 3C.

Plymouth Salem wrestling coach Ron Krueger joked about pulling a rabbit out of the hat after the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) wrestling meet Saturday.

His team didn't exactly pull a rabbit out of the hat, but it performed a bit of magic nevertheless. The Rocks won the WLAA meet and thus, its second consecutive conference title.

Salem, champion of the WLAA's Lakes Division, rallied to oust backyard rival Plymouth Canton 174-168 to win the 10-team meet. Canton had led by six points entering the championship round.

Finishing a distant and disappointing third was Western Division champ Walled Lake Western, with 149 points. (Complete team and individual results are on the Observer stats page.)

Most coaches felt the meet would feature a six-team tussle for the top spot, with Western and Canton as the favorites. Salem, 7-2 in dual meets, was picked by most for third. Walled Lake Central, Livonia Bentley and Farmington were also considered among the favorites.

AS IT TURNED out, Bentley placed fourth (133 points), Central fifth (130 points), and Farmington a most disappointing seventh (106 points). Northville beat out Farmington for sixth with 123 points.

"Of all the league championships we've won over the years," said Krueger, "this one was the hardest to achieve. The kids just did a great job."

Salem raced out in front early in the meet, then had to have two "minor miracles" to pull the championship out, Krueger said.

The minor miracles came in the 112-pound division and the 145-pound division.

Salem sophomore David Dameron had lost three of four matches against Canton's Todd Gattoni at 112 over the course of the regular season. But in the league championship match, Dameron scored a 1-0 overtime decision.

At 145, Salem's Andy Ward and Canton's Larry Janiga had met three times — their records were 1-1-1. They met again. Again, it was an overtime decision. Again, the decision went two the Rock wrestler — this time the score was 4-2.

"THOSE OVERTIME matches really hurt us," said Canton coach Dan Chrenko. "But, you know, you don't get any points for being close. We needed two win one of those two matches. If we did, we were league champs."

Chrenko said he expected the meet to be a six-team fight. The fact that four of the six teams struggled hurt the Chiefs.

"We were kind of expecting some help from the other teams that we didn't get," Chrenko said. "It got down to a two team race and they beat us head

Rock swimmers put streak on line vs. Spartans tonight

By Chris McCosky staff writer

Will Plymouth Salem's swim domination in the Western Lakes Activities Association come to a screeching halt tonight?

The Rocks have won 18 WLAA dual meets in succession. They have won the two Western Lakes relay championships and the only Western Lakes league meet. In short, they have never been beaten in WLAA swim competition in the league's two-year history.

But that streak is in serious jeopardy tonight as the Rocks host powerful Livonia Stevenson. Stevenson is 11-1 overall this season, 7-0 in the league. The Spartans are ranked No. 1 in Observerland. Salem is 11-1 overall, 8-0 in the league. The Rocks are ranked No. 3 in Observerland.

Despite Salem's historical domination, the Spartans are the favored team to win tonight's clash.

"ON TIMES I sure do think we are the underdogs," said Salem coach Chuck Olson. "They have swum awfully well. We are the defending league champs and I don't think we have worked hard enough to get back to that point. I didn't anticipate being the underdogs in this meet, but they seem to have us by a few points. We've closed the gap considerably since Christmas."

Both Olson and Stevenson coach Doug Buckler agree that the Spartans, if everything goes as expected, have a four to six point advantage over the Rocks.

But Buckler is aware that, in big meets, things don't always go as expected.

"This will be such a chess game-type of swim meet, if you can put it in those terms," Buckler said. "Salem has more seniors, more experience in big meets. We seem to be strong in areas where they are weak, and they are strong in areas where we are weak. It could come down to who dives the best."

Olson said being the underdog may force him to juggle his lineup, play more of a chess game, than Stevenson will. But, Buckler said, he has a trick up his sleeve for the Rocks.

"I should probably set out my lineup and make him beat my best, but I have a big surprise waiting for them," Buckler said. He wasn't about to divulge the surprise.

THERE ARE CERTAIN events that are likely to produce few surprises. Salem's Erik Kleinsmith should take both the 100- and 200-yard freestyle events. He has swum a 1:50.6 in the 200 free and a 49.9 in the 100.

Greg Wolff will also be tough to beat in the 500 freestyle. His best is a 5:08.8.

Salem also should take the 400 freestyle relay. The Rocks' time of 3:24.4 is the best in the area.

Stevenson's Kevin Everhart is currently Observerland's best man in the 100-backstroke, swimming as well as a 56.5. Kurt Hein may have a lock on the 100-butterfly with his 55.5.

Greg Deska (2:11.7) and Steve Taormina (2:11.8) will be tough for the Rocks to overtake in the 200 individual medley.

Stevenson also has a lock on the 200 medley relay. Their team's best time, 1:43.1, is the area's best.

There are also several events that will be decided by a touch. Those events could decide the meet.

ONE SUCH event will be the 50 freestyle. Salem's Bob Bowling and Stevenson's Everhart and Hein should go right down to the wire. Bowling's best has been 22.9. Everhart has the best time in the area, 22.4. Hein has done a 23.0.

The 100 beaststroke will be another pivotal event. Salem's David Workman and Stevenson's Taormina will battle to the finish here.

"I hope I have the depth in beaststroke," Buckler said. "If I win, he's (Olson) in trouble."

Neither team is particularly potent in diving. Stevenson will rely on Ken Milligan and Mike Vertort, while the Rocks' hopes rest with Bob Longridge.

As in every close meet, team depth becomes a factor. Both teams are considerably deep in talent. That's where the chess game come into play.

"This team hasn't lost a dual meet in the league," Olson said of his team. "But, I don't know how important that is to them. I don't know how hungry they are for this meet. They are still thinking in terms of their own times."

If the Rocks are not hungry, they will be in big trouble. The Spartans are indeed ready.

"We've been looking forward to this," Buckler said. "We are both mentally and physically ready." The meet begins at 7 p.m. Salem High School is located on Joy Road, west of Canton Center. It should be a thriller.

Rocks ready for Canton

Plymouth Salem geared up for its gymnastics showdown with Plymouth Canton next Monday, by outpointing Walled Lake Western 122.40-110.05 last Monday.

Sophomore Beth Rafail was the leading all-around scorer amassing 33.1 points. Rafail won the vault (8.2), the balance beam (8.5) and the floor exercise (8.80). She placed third on uneven parallel bars (7.55).

Freshman Jackie Huff also was hot for the Rocks. She placed second all-around with 31.2 points. Huff was second on vault (8.0), beam (7.65) and floor (8.5).

Salem's Sarah Michalik was third all-around with 28.9 points.

Senior Suzanne Gibbons won the bars for Salem with an impressive 7.95. Second place was teammate Debbie Bahna, whose 7.65 qualified her for the state regional meet.

gymnastics

Salem broke its own individual event record in the floor exercise with 32.55 points. The Rocks had set the record against John Glenn earlier this season.

The Rocks (7-1) are off until Monday night.

PLYMOUTH CANTON had the unhappy task of competing against one of the top teams in the state last Friday.

Worse, they had to compete without Annette Bryce, Lisa Carson and Megan McGow who didn't make the trip because of illnesses and injuries, and Cheryl Battaglia, who was injured during the meet.

The result: Freeman 133.45, Canton 110.25.

"I think Freeman is the best team in the state," said Canton coach John Cunningham.

Linda Beale was outstanding again for the Chiefs, but her efforts could net her nothing better than a third-place finish. She scored 8.45 on the vault, 8.25 on the bars, 8.4 on the beam and 8.2 on the floor exercise, all third place finishes. She amassed 33.3 all-around points, again third best.

Cindy Wyant was the only other Chief to place in the top six - she scored a 7.75 on the floor.

Pam Modson, a Plymouth native who is Farmington Hills Our Lady of Mercy's one-woman team, scored well in the meet, totalling 33.20 all-around. She scored an 8.1 on vault, 8.1 on bars, 8.45 on beam and 8.5 on floor. Modson is coached by Cunningham.

The Chiefs (5-3 overall) met Walled Lake Central yesterday.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Sarah Michalik placed third on the balance beam (7.6) and third all-around (28.9) for Salem Monday against Walled Lake Western.

up. You have to give Salem credit, they had a great day."

Besides league champs Dameron and Ward, Salem got second place finishes from Rick Vershave (119), John Jeannotte (132) and Eric Retting (167). The Rocks also got key third place finishes from Marc Cygan (heavyweight), Bishop Borgess transfer Kenny Freeman (105) and Bruce Zak (155).

The Rocks placed 10 grapplers in the final four. Canton, which placed eight wrestlers in the final four, had one league champion. Tim Collins raised his season record to 37-2 by scoring a 4-1 decision over Western's Rod Schuh for the medal at 138.

Livonia Bentley had four champions in the meet and one second place finisher. Salem Yaffai (105), Anwar Yaffai (119) and Abe Yaffai (126) all brought home championship medals, as did Mark Zenas (185).

Bentley's Marty Altounian lost by default to Livonia Churchill's Dave Scott at 198.

FARMINGTON, despite a disappointing team score, got championship performances from Dave Hovey (98) and Ab Hazen (187).

Western had three champions: Chris Thompson (heavyweight), Bob Rich (132) and Matt Turner (155).

Revengeing his team's dual meet loss to Canton earlier this year was bitter-sweet for Krueger.

"He (Chrenko) has one of his best teams and I have one of my youngest," he said. "But, a lot of people like to compete against an arch rival like Canton. Dan is such a nice guy that, you're first feeling is of joy and your second is you feel down for the other team."

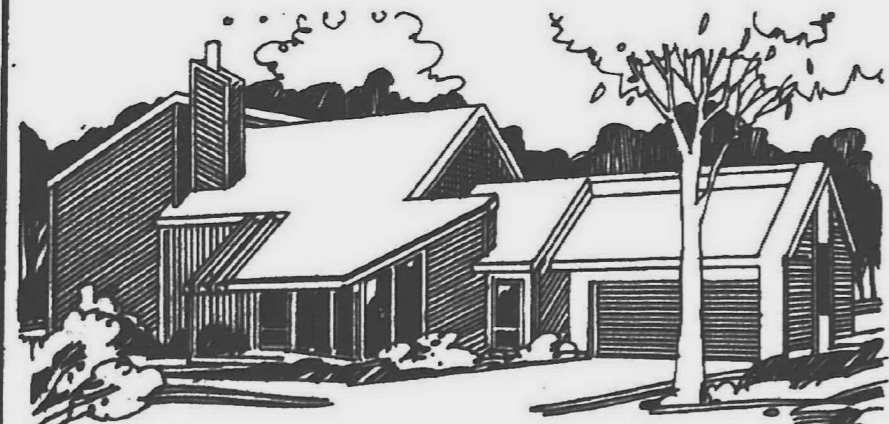

"I liked it better when we were in different leagues. He'd bring home his championship and we'd bring home ours. Then we're both happy."

Area wrestlers now set their sights on some individual state honors. The district meet will take place at Temperance-Bedford Saturday. The top four wrestlers in each weight division qualify for the regional meet the following weekend.

Hawks stall Chiefs' division title bid

Farmington Harrison's cagers played "spillers" Tuesday, scalping Plymouth Canton, 73-69 to keep the Chiefs from clinching the Western Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association.

The Chiefs, now 8-4 in league play and 17-5 overall, still have a chance to take the title outright by defeating Walled Lake Western Friday night.

"They played real well and we didn't," Canton coach Dave Van Wagoner said. "We were prepared and ready to play. But their kids met the challenge and played an excellent game. They are a well-coached team."

"Now we have to turn our thoughts to Walled Lake Western. We want to win the title outright. We'll work hard this week and give it our best shot."

DOWN 52-49 entering the final quarter, the Hawks, led by Dave Younger's 10 points and Brian Hickey's five basketball

clutch free throws, outscored Canton 24-17 to steal the victory.

Four of Younger's buckets were layups, three on passes from Hickey.

Younger scored a game-high 25 points to lead the Hawks. Hickey added 16 points and seven assists and Dave Quarles tossed in 18.

Harrison played without starting forward John Miller, who was out with an injury.

"We kept coming and coming after them," Harrison coach Mike Teachman said. "We used a token press and match-up zone, and a fast-breaking driving offense.

"I WAS VERY pleased with the team as a whole. We've played only one bad game all year. These kids have high character."

Canton got balanced scoring as four players hit in double figures, but it still wasn't enough.

Gary Thomas poured in 19 points to lead the Chiefs. Mark Bennett tossed in 13 and dished off a school record 14 assists. Mike Jennings netted 14 and Elijah Rogers added 11.

Free throws were a deciding factor in the contest.

The Hawks went to the foul line 37 times and connected on 27 (73 percent), while Canton could manage only seven of 11.

Harrison also controlled the boards, outrebounding Canton 46-33 in the contest.

The Hawks improved their record 68-2-10 in league and 4-12 overall with this upset.

Hartnett on fire—Rocks on a roll

There's one thing for certain when it comes to Western Lakes Conference basketball.

Plymouth Salem is going to have the homecourt advantage throughout the conference playoffs, which begin Friday, Feb. 24.

The Rocks kept rolling Tuesday night, stopping Livonia Bentley, 77-52, behind senior Erich Hartnett's 20 points and 11 rebounds.

That gives Salem, the Lakes Division champs, a 14-2 overall record, 11-1 in league play. The Rocks led 40-21 at halftime and never looked back.

"I thought the key was that we were able to stop the 6-8 kid Graczyk (Phil)," said Salem coach Fred Thoman. "I attribute the win to being able to move the ball, our defensive press and we didn't give up any second shots."

"We made a lot of transition baskets. We were solid across the board."

Graczyk, Bentley's towering center, was held to nine points. Senior guard John White led the Bulldogs (5-10) with 14.

Salem, meanwhile, used a balanced attack as Rick Berberet scored 16 points, Jeff Arnold added 15 and eight steals, and junior LeSean Haygood hauled down 10 rebounds.

ZION 51, PLYMOUTH CHRISTIAN 41: Things were working well early for the Eagles, but Zion rallied Tuesday behind the shooting of Don Gardner and Joe Karasek with the two combining for 26 points.

"We had two starters out so we went to a delay — layup offense," said Plymouth Christian coach Butch DeRenzo, whose team is 3-13 overall. "We were doing what we wanted to and then we made some turnovers. Then we had to go to our man-to-man (defense)."

Zion (11-4) outscored the Eagles 14-8 in the second period and 15-9 in the third to take a commanding 39-25 lead.

"In the third quarter we kind of stood around, but overall I'm pleased with our effort," DeRenzo said.

Rod Windle scored 14 points in a losing cause.

On Saturday at the Pontiac Silverdome, Ann Arbor Greenhills downed the Eagles, 50-32. Christian notched only four points in the opening quarter and never recovered.

"We played pretty good defense," said DeRenzo, "but like the last two weeks, we just have not scored."

Center Matt Doughtery scored 18 for the winners, while Windle tallied eight for Plymouth.

Ocelot women take pair

By C.J. Risak

Back on the right track.

That's the best way to describe Schoolcraft College's women's basketball fortunes after Monday's convincing 78-59 home court victory over Madonna College.

That win came on the heels of Schoolcraft's 67-63 triumph over Delta College Saturday. Both were needed after the Ocelots stumbled Feb. 4, losing their first Eastern Conference game to defending champion Oakland Community College.

SCHOOLCRAFT IS STILL in control of its fate in the Eastern Conference, a game ahead of its rivals. Monday's non-conference win over Madonna was its 14th in 20 games and ninth in the last 10.

Schoolcraft sports

The scoring was balanced for Schoolcraft against Madonna. Caryn Lamb was high for the winners with 16, followed by Sheryl Evans with 14. Evans also nabbed 14 rebounds.

Cathi Hengy finished with 12 points and Jane Hart hit for eight points and passed off for five assists.

Jeanne Cummings topped Madonna with 21 points.

Schoolcraft hosts Flint Mott at 6 p.m. Friday.

S'craft loses at buzzer

Unusual tactics — at least for Schoolcraft College's men's basketball team — didn't pan out Saturday as Tony Ford hit a desperation 25-foot jumper at the buzzer to lift Delta College to a 50-49 victory at Schoolcraft.

The score was tied at 48 with 8:57 to play when the Ocelots went into a semi-stall "looking for an easy basket, a layup," according to coach Rocky Watkins. The opportunity never presented itself and Schoolcraft, normally a run-and-gun team, patiently ran the clock down to 57 seconds before calling time out.

"Our motto for the game was, 'If we're in the game, we'll win the game,'" said Watkins. "We played our best defense of the year. And we showed great patience. If someone had told me this team could hold the ball that long, I wouldn't have believed them."

WATKINS DECIDED to continue looking for an easy basket and, if that didn't work, call another timeout at the 10-second mark and set up for one shot.

Carlos Briggs' off-shooting night — he hit just four of 15 floor shots and finished with nine points — played a part in Watkins' decision. Going into the game, Briggs led the NJCAA in scoring.

Delta fouled Briggs with 10 seconds left, sending him to the free throw line. He missed the first but hit the second, giving Schoolcraft a 49-48 lead. Delta called time out with seven seconds left and set up a final shot. Ford, a 6-foot-guard, launched his game-winner over 6-3 James Orr and 6-6 Pat Martin.

The loss dropped Schoolcraft to 10-15 overall and 2-8 in the Eastern Conference. Mott is 17-5 and 5-4 in the conference.

Orr led the Ocelots with 16 points. Eric Sink contributed 12 points and seven rebounds. Ford topped Delta with 14 points.

Schoolcraft plays at Flint Mott Saturday.

St. Matthew cagers stay winning course

The St. Matthew Lutheran girls' basketball team is on a roll.

The Westland cagers captured the 16-team Lutheran West High tournament on Feb. 5 by defeating Detroit Urban School, 16-11.

Shough, Michele Owens, Lisa Olson, Beth Rule, Terri King and Lisa Fusciardi. Coaches Larry King and Jess Shough received the team trophy.

It is largest Lutheran elementary school girls tournament in the state.

En route to the crown, St. Matthew downed Lincoln Park Calvary, 21-10; Farmington St. Paul, 17-8; and Detroit St. Timothy, 16-10.

Individual trophies were awarded to St. Matthew team members Anne Flunder, Angela Walton, Heather Bangert, Sherry Schultz, Kimberly Mehl, Nicole Hines, Susan Fletcher, Tracy

LAST WEEK, St. Matthew captured a share of the Division I championship by beating Northville St. Paul in a thriller, 24-20.

By winning, St. Matthew earned a first place tie with Farmington St. Paul. Each team sported identical 6-1 records. The Westland team is 11-1 overall.

The two teams will advance to the league championship playoffs next weekend along with the first and second place teams from Division II.

S'craft net invite set

Thirty women's volleyball teams, including defending champion Temperance-Bedford, will vie Saturday for the prestigious Schoolcraft Invitational title.

Pool play begins at 9 a.m. with the top eight teams advancing to the quarterfinals, which begin approximately at 4 p.m. All day admission is $2 for adults and $1 for students.

Tournament director Joe Jandasek said that the final match should begin approximately at 7:30.

Bedford, ranked No. 9 in Class A by a statewide coaches poll, will compete in Pool F along with Livonia Clarenceville, Northwest Suburban League (NSL) co-leader North Farmington, Northville and Novi.

Livonia Stevenson, sporting a 20-3 overall record, is in Pool A along with Burton-Alterton, Roseville Brablec, Walled Lake Western and Farmington Harrison.

POOL B includes Livonia Bentley, Garden City, NSL co-leader Redford Thurston, Walled Lake Central and Dearborn Heights Annapolis.

Dearborn appears to be the favorite in Pool C, which also includes Livonia Franklin, Southfield, Southfield-Lathrup and Ferndale.

Livonia Churchill, currently on top of Western Division of the Western Lakes Conference, is grouped with Farmington, Livonia Ladywood, Redford Bishop Borgess and Ida in Pool D.

Spartans pound Rocks

Thursday, February 16, 1984 O&E

(P.1)C

It came during a two-game tournament match and against an extremely weak opponent, but the Plymouth Canton volleyball team will take it just the same.

The Chiefs finally scored their first victory of the season, taking Detroit Northwestern 15-3, 15-2 during pool play in the eight-team Dearborn Heights Crestwood Invitational Saturday.

"They (Northwestern) were not really that good of a team," said first-year coach Peggy Moore. "Our serves really did it all. They didn't return much back to us."

Laura Darby played strong throughout the tournament for the Chiefs, both in the back court and at the net.

Despite the win, the Chiefs were plagued by a familiar nemesis — inconsistency.

"We play so good one game, then absolutely fall apart the next," said a bewildered Moore.

In their first match in pool play, Canton lost to Garden City. They played badly in game one, losing 15-6, then played well in game two, still losing, 15-13.

Jackson Lumen Christi then took the Chiefs in two, 15-9, 15-7, before the victory over Northwestern.

The Chiefs were ousted from competition by Southgate Aquinas in the first quarterfinal match, 7-15, 15-2, 15-7.

volleyball

The Chiefs, according to Moore, put together their finest effort of the season in game one. Kris Ingersoll aced seven consecutive serves to spark the win.

But in games two and three, the Chiefs faded. "When we are applying the pressure, everything's fine," said Moore. "But once the other team puts the pressure on, we can't seem to handle it. I guess it's our lack of experience."

The Chiefs (1-14) host Livonia Churchill tonight.

PLYMOUTH SALEM didn't offer much of a fight against the No.1-ranked team in Observerland — Livonia Stevenson — and the Spartans crushed the Rocks, 15-4, 15-2, Monday night.

"We just didn't play," said Rock coach Jeanne Martin. "We weren't there at all."

Martin said her team was able to run maybe four or five plays the entire night against the hard-hitting Spartans. The rest of the time they were trying to dig up spikes and return serves.

"It wasn't so much what Stevenson did to us but what we didn't do," Martin said. "Oh, Stevenson is good. I'm not trying to take anything away from their game, but we just weren't ready to play tonight."

Stevenson (10-1 in the Western Lakes, 20-3 overall) won the Edsel Ford Invitational over the weekend. The Spartans' serves kept the Rocks out of their offense, said coach Lee Cagle.

Linda Loeffler served all but three points for the Spartans in game one. Lisa Bokovoy served nine points in game two.

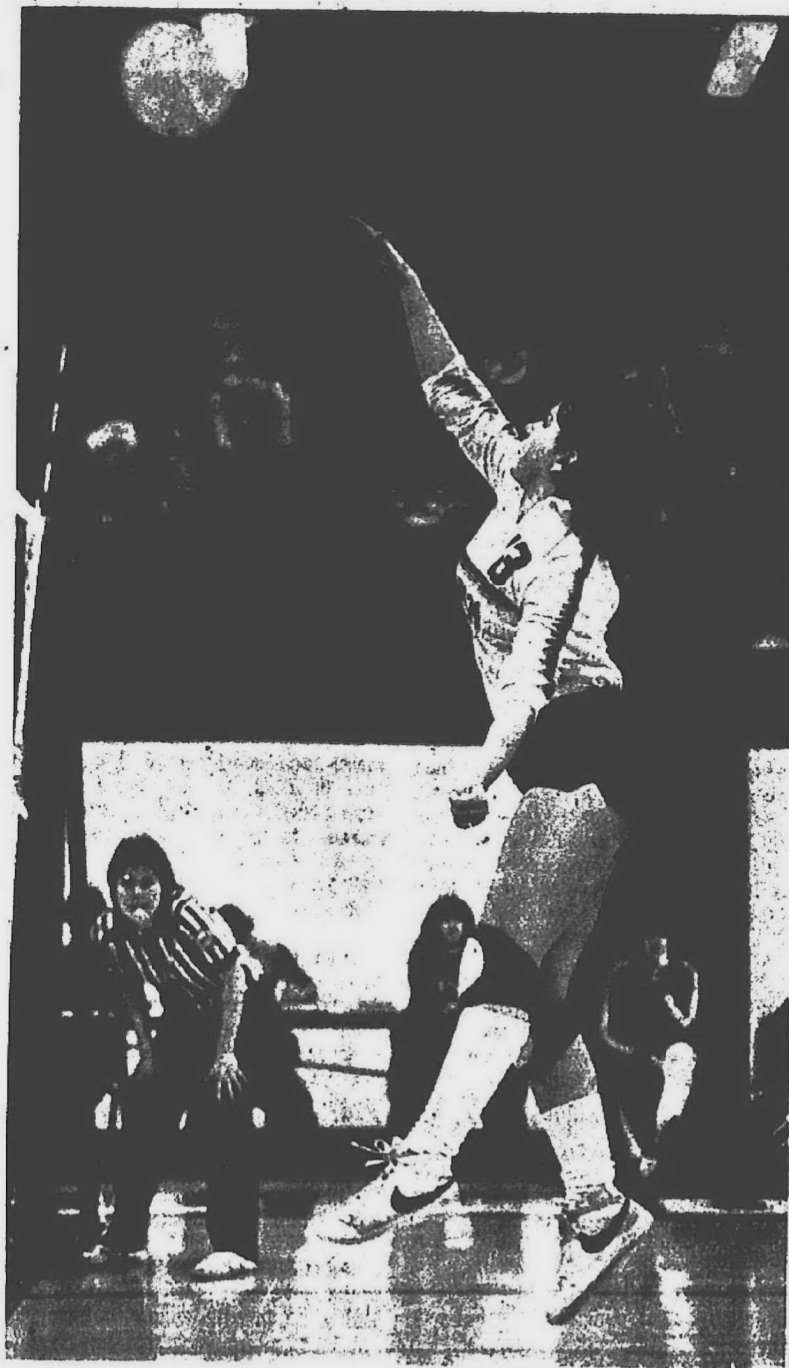

"We have been serving extremely well," Cagle said. "And when we serve well, it makes our game go so much easier."

The Rocks (4-5) will host Churchill Monday.

Lisa Madis tries to set up teammate Kelly Bemiss (5) during the match Monday night. Chris Radzik (10) is also ready for a set. It was not a good night for the Rocks.

Is a long mortgage wise?

Although most house buyers still opt for the standard 30-year mortgage, a surprising number are choosing 15-year notes. According to a recent survey by the Mortgage Bankers Association, nearly 17 percent of all fixed-rate mortgages are for 15 years. It is therefore pertinent to ask: What is the big attraction with these mortgages?

finances and you

Sid Mittra

LESS INTEREST. The most obvious reward for a 15-year mortgage is that you make monthly payments only half as long as on one for 30 years. For a $60,000 note at a fixed rate of 13.25 percent, that translates into a savings in interest payments of more than $70,000 after taxes.

INCREASED EQUITY. Another advantage is that the 15-year mortgages offer greater equity at the end of 15 years than 30-year notes. On a $60,000 house financed by a $60,000 mortgage at 13.25 percent rate, a 15-year note builds up equity of $137,200 by the end of the 15 years. During the same time period, a 30-year mortgage builds up only $84,510. This assumes an annual inflation rate in housing prices of 5 percent.

HIGHER PAYMENTS. The big drawback of 15-year notes is that payments are considerably higher than over 30 years. On a $60,000 mortgage, after-tax cost — assuming a 33-percent income-tax bracket — for 15-year financing would be $592.64 versus $457.11 for a 30-year note, or $95.53 more.

INVESTMENT ALTERNATIVES. Many families might prefer to use that difference for other things — vacations, car payments, college tuition or investments. If it were invested at a 7-percent after-tax yield, compounded monthly, such an investment would add up to $30,456 after 15 years. The combined equity and investment yield for the 30-year mortgage add up to $114,957 — or $22,252 less than the equity for a 15-year note.

INCOME REQUIREMENTS. To make sure that you can handle the higher payments, lenders require you to have a higher income for a 15-year mortgage payment after taxes. For a $60,000 mortgage at 13.25 percent, you need an income of $28,527 for 15-year financing. Only $21,941 would be required for a 30-year mortgage.

YOU ARE INVITED TO AN IMPORTANT FREE SEMINAR.

You may think of an Individual Retirement Account (IRA) primarily as an excellent way to obtain a $2,000 deduction on your income tax every year. Almost everyone with earned income now has that opportunity. But it is also much more than that. It's an opportunity to add substantially to your retirement funds. What you may not know — and will discover at this special seminar — is that some IRAs do more for your money than others. You'll learn how some lock you in to one type of investment. How others limit you to a fixed rate of return. While a Merrill Lynch IRA opens up virtually the entire range of investment opportunities to your money during the important accumulation years. The reason, of course, is to give it more chances to grow faster. You'll learn how you can choose from over 50 different investments. How you can switch from one to another any time your goals change or new opportunities arise. And why you, like more than 750,000 Merrill Lynch IRA customers, who have invested over five billion dollars to date, can have confidence in our world financial leadership and IRA experience. Before you make a decision as important as a retirement investment, you should know all your choices. We'll explain them to you. The seminar is free, but reservations are essential. Return of capital is a plus

today's investor

Thomas E. O'Hara

of the National Association of Investment Clubs

About two years ago, we invested in a utility company with an above average rating by both Value Line and by Standard and Poors. The stock has performed satisfactorily with regard to both dividend and appreciation, but recently the company has designated a substantial portion of the yearly dividend as a Return of Capital, and tax free.

I do not know what the company gains by this practice, but there appears to be no advantage whatsoever to us, since the first $1,500 in utility dividends is already tax exempt, and we are well below that figure.

The stock currently yields about 13 percent, and if the return of capital is continued at the present rate, our original cost of purchase would decline to zero in seven to eight years.

We should greatly appreciate any further information you can give us on the consequences to the stockholder of receiving a return-of-capital dividend.

The "return of capital" part of a utility dividend results from an accounting treatment of capitalized construction costs permitted by the government. It is of benefit to the shareholder in two ways: (1) It postpones taxes on the dividend until the stock is sold, and (2) It makes it taxable at "capital gain" rates.

It is important for you to know that you do not have to report the "return of capital" part of the dividend as return of capital. You can report the full dividend as an ordinary dividend, and when you do that, you do not have to reduce the tax cost of your investment.

In your situation, where are you using the $1,500 utility exemption, that would be the way to go.

If you had less than $100 in total dividends ($200 for married couples), you would have another situation where you would want to report the dividend as ordinary income.

I've read your manual on investing, and you frequently tell people to invest regularly. Please explain the advantage.

Long experience has shown that a fixed-sum regular purchase program results in the buyer having a very good average cost on purchases over a long period of time and is a powerful factor in producing a good record for the investor. Mathematically, a regular purchase in a fixed amount over a long period of time produces a lower average cost per unit.

Hardly anyone has the skill to guess when the best time to invest is. If individuals are left on their own, they usually buy when stock market interest is high, and prices are high and consequently get few bargains.

When stock prices are low, people become afraid and do not buy, and consequently fail to acquire stocks at bargain prices. A commitment to regular buying overcomes our emotional weakness.

Thomas E. O'Hara of Bloomfield Hills is chairman of the board of trustees of the National Association of Investment Clubs and editor of Better Investing magazine. O'Hara welcomes questions and comments but will answer them only through this column.

This year your IRA will be a tax saver. Someday it could be a life saver.

When you open your IRA at Manufacturers Bank, you'll get a hefty tax break for 1983. Someone who makes $30,000 a year, for instance, would save an estimated $650 in taxes on a $2,000 IRA contribution. In a few years, your IRA could give you an even bigger break. It could help you live the kind of retirement you always dreamed of. And when you look at it that way your IRA will really be a lifesaver.

At Manufacturers Bank, we offer high-yield 48-month and 72-month IRAs. We offer something else, too: a way to help you finance your IRA through our revolving lines of credit.

Even after you consider the interest you'll pay, you'll still come out ahead with your tax break.

Helping you establish your IRA is just another new way we've found to help plan for your future. And looking out for your future has been one of our ideals for over 50 years. So come to any Manufacturers branch. Once you hear what we can do for you, we think you'll say, "Manufacturers...that's my bank."

Herbig is off to a good start second runs

Tom Panzenhagen

"Total Total Total" (1970), 8 p.m. tonight on Ch. 50. Originally 143 minutes. TV time slot: 180 minutes.

Credit this film for accomplishing the difficult: presenting sets of events with foregone conclusions and maintaining a high level of suspense. A nice touch, too, is that the attack on Pearl Harbor is told from both American and Japanese points of view. Martin Balsam, Jason Robards, Joseph Cotten, E.G. Marshall and James Whitmore co-star.

Rating: $3.15.

"My Name is Nobody" (1974), 2:30 tonight on Ch. 4. Originally 115 minutes. TV time slot: 120 minutes.

"My Name is Nobody" is part send-up, part personification of spaghetti westerns, and it's very easy to look at and highly entertaining. Henry Fonda, Terence Hill and R.G. Armstrong star in a film that doesn't mince words but does provide action galore.

Rating: $2.95.

"Fun with Dick and Jane" (1977), 8 p.m. Friday on Ch. 50. Originally 95 minutes. TV time slot: 120 minutes.

Here's a mindless, little comedy noteworthy for one thing: an impeccable supporting performance from Ed McMahon. Why hasn't Johnny's sidekick made more films? George Segal and Jane Fonda star.

Rating: $2.60.

"Carrie" (1976), 8 p.m. Tuesday on Ch. 50. Originally 87 minutes. TV time slot: 120 minutes.

Brian DePalma's only good film is a very good film. Sissy Spacek stars as a painfully shy high school student coming to grips with her newly discovered telekinetic powers. The build-up is flawless, the suspense excruciating and the climax wonderfully cathartic. Unfortunately, "Carrie" has been cut for TV before and that danger persists this time around. Piper Laurie, John Travolta, Amy Irving, Nancy Allen, Betty Buckley and William Katt co-star. Incidentally, look closely at the film's eerie, last sequence and you'll note that it was shot backward and is run backward in order to give it an added dimension of other-worldliness.

Rating: $3.30.

"The Howling" (1981), 8 p.m. Wednesday on Ch. 50. Originally 91 minutes. TV time slot: 120 minutes.

Why did they make so many werewolf films in 1981? There was "Wolfen," "An American Werewolf in London" and "The Howling," which may be the best of the pack. Its storyline strains credulity, even for a horror film, but Dee Wallace excels as a TV reporter out to uncover a cult of werewolves. TV news comes under some broadsides along the way, and Rob Bottin's special effects are first rate. Patrick Macnee, John Carradine, Slim Pickens, Kevin McCarthy and Denis Dugan co-star.

Rating: $3.10.

After weeks of anxious expectations, the beginning of Maestro Gunther Herbig's tenure as music director of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra has begun.

Herbig's official debut Saturday consisted of an all-Beethoven program. It was broadcast over the classical music station WQRS and was seen on WDIV-TV (Channel 4). In spite of other major events downtown, including the Hearn's boxing match, the musical event was sold out.

In a rare occurrence, Detroit's Mayor Coleman Young came on stage to speak briefly before the concert. He made his preference clear by indicating that he wouldn't stay for the concert but would attend the fight instead. Hopefully, he will find a less hectic opportunity to enhance his musical horizons.

Thus, stumbling between these ceremonies and over a seemingly endless network of cables and microphones placed in entrances and passageways, we maneuvered our way to our seats for the music.

IN TERMS of making a program pleasing and appealing, the choice of Beethoven is a safe bet indeed. The one possible risk is that of predictability, which is the common pitfall of the standard repertoire.

Here, Herbig proved masterful by exposing us to a Beethoven one rarely hears in live performances. The compositions themselves are among the most frequently performed works — the Leonore Overture No. 3, the Violin Concerto and the Symphony No. 7. The rare aspects in terms of the quality of the performance was manifested especially in the Leonore Overture and the concluding symphony.

The opening overture came through as a substantial, dramatic piece of music. After all, Beethoven didn't engage in his painstaking revisions to come up with yet another cute, inconsequential tidbit.

A case in point was the trumpet fanfare, customarily sounded behind the stage. In this performance, the first fanfare sounded more remote than the second, which in itself might be only a trivial detail. But the combination of such details resulted in the total, moving impact of the work.

The soloist in the Violin Concerto was German-

review

born Edith Peinemann, who appeared here almost two years ago. There is no question that her talent and ability are impressive and substantial. There is some doubt, however, that this particular masterpiece is the best suited vehicle for her particular talent.

WITH THE exception of a noticeable blunder in the final movement, Peinemann demonstrated a remarkable technique. The clarity of her tone was exemplary. Yet her lines lacked the necessary full body, even though they were, as a whole, very articulate.

This was especially true in the first and third movements. But in the middle movement, her style created the feeling of a cliff-hanging suspense. In retrospect, it seems that the Khatchaturian violin concert, which she played during her previous engagement here was far more suitable for her.

The ultimate in rewarding moments was attained in the performance of the seventh symphony. It is frequently suggested that Beethoven's odd-numbered symphonies, except No. 1, are more dramatic and, possibly, more significant than the rest. While this might be true, it does not imply that the former should be lifeless and stagnant.

This performance showed that drama, triumph and joy can combine into a formidable force. The dynamic range was wide, with the stormy creacedos resembling those in a Brahms symphony. The pauses between movements were minimal, which had mixed effects. Between the first and second movements, for instance, this makes good sense. The A minor opening chord in the second movement doesn't make much sense unless it is perceived as a bridge between the concluding A major chord in the first movement and the main theme of the second.

Between the second movement and the scherzo, however, a longer pause seems to be in order. But what truly counts is what takes place between the pauses. One is seldom privileged to hear such a vivacious final movement with an accelerated coda that provided it with an even more climactic impact.

If this event is any indication, the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and its new director are off to a good start.

Theater's new director stresses quality plays

By Cathie Breidenbach
special writer

WE MAKE A POINT of selecting plays that don't rely on splashy technical effects or elaborate sets," said former Livonia resident Keith Hindmarsh, who is the new managing director of the Fourth Street Playhouse in Royal Oak.

"We rely instead on good-quality scripts and some of the finest actors and directors in Michigan."

At the intimate Fourth Street Playhouse, half a block off Main Street in downtown Royal Oak, the farthest seat in the house is nine feet from the stage. With a total of 72 seats, the small professional theater capitalizes on the intimacy of live theater.

"It's not like being at the Fisher where a TV would be better to see the actors' expressions. At Fourth Street we use the intimacy of the playhouse to our advantage," Hindmarsh said.

"WE DO MORE plays than 'anybody,'" he said of Fourth Street, which changes plays every six or seven weeks with no weekends off in between.

The playhouse has staged two world-premiere productions, most recently "White Tail" by Michigan playwright William Sonnega, who was raised in Plymouth. "We want to produce plays that can touch people, that give people situations they can relate to."

Hindmarsh has chalked up an impressive 250 performances himself at the theater since he came to Fourth Street in the summer of 1981.

"I fell into acting," explained the lanky 26-year-old, who grew up in Livonia, graduated from Bentley High School and went on to Wayne State University as a pre-med student. "One day I was sitting in chemistry class, and I realized how much I hated chemistry. So I dropped all my classes except English and French. Then a guy came into my French class and invited us to do French theater."

Hindmarsh did French theater the rest of the year and switched to acting in English at the Studio Theatre, downstairs at the Hilberry. "That was when I was taking my one and only acting class. Now I don't have time to take acting classes because I'm too busy acting," he said.

BESIDES ACTING and directing, Hindmarsh handles the financial affairs of the theater as its new managing director. He likes combining the business of theater with the business of acting.

"On any given day in the USA there are 10,000 unemployed actors. Almost all actors need to have some other talent to offer a theater. Maybe they're good at lighting design or whipping up costumes. People who're qualified to do something else are what we look for," he said.

During his early days with Fourth Street, Hindmarsh managed the box office and served for a year as technical director.

Now he's in charge of the business side of the theater. Like many art endeavors in recent years, the Fourth Street Playhouse "has experienced some very tight moments, but we've always pulled through." Hindmarsh anticipates that the theater's recently acquired tax-exempt status as a non-profit corporation will open some financial doors. It can accept contributions from individuals and businesses.

Fourth Street offers a feature play four times each weekend (8:30 p.m. Fridays, 6 and 9 p.m. Saturdays and 7:30 p.m. Sundays). Ticket prices range from $7-9, with half-off discounts to students with ID, senior citizens and unemployed people with MESC cards.

FOURTH STREET also has the best group rates in town, Hindmarsh said. Every Friday and Saturday night, its Midnight Studio produces short, often experimental plays, at the witching hour.

Most of Fourth Street's audiences come from the northern suburbs — Royal Oak, Southfield and Oak Park, with heavy support from Birmingham and the Bloomfields and some from Livonia. "Our usual playgoer is very literate, usually college-educated and somewhat affluent," he said.

"Waiting for the Parade," next feature play, opens Friday, Feb. 24, and runs through Saturday, April 7. It's a warm, gentle show about five women in Alberta who are waiting for their men to come home from World War II. "What the Butler Saw," an outrageous British farce by Joe Orton, will follow "Parade" in April.

Back in 1980, a group of actors and directors formed the theater to guarantee they would have a place to perform. The nine-member board of directors, composed of theater people and members of the community, hires four permanent staff members: managing director, Keith Hindmarsh; artistic director, J. David Kelley Jr., who comes up with a season of plays; chief publicity director, Walter Hill, and marketing coordinator, Beth Temple.

And there's Natasha, the only other permanent personality at Fourth Street. She's the resident feline who gets paid in cat chow for her vivacious company.

FOURTH STREET is a professional company, which uses at least one Equity actor (member of the professional actors' union) and an Equity stage manager in each production. The cast receives minimal pay for its work.

The lineup of plays each season offers meatier and less well-known selections than the safe musicals and Broadway crowd-pleasers that are the favorites of amateur groups. As an "alternative" theater, it doesn't attract audiences by featuring big-name lead players, who come from out of town. Its draw week after week is consistent quality in acting and scripts.

"Well, it isn't Walt Disney," is a line that's become a running family joke in the Hindmarsh household. Some of the Fourth Street productions mince neither words nor situations and are definitely "not Walt Disney."

Movies organist to perform

The Motor City Theatre Organ Society Inc. will present John Muri at the console of the 3/16 Barton Organ for "A Concert in Comedy" at 8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 17, at the Royal Oak Theatre, 4th Street at Washington, Royal Oak.

Muri, who has been called "the dean of theater organists," will accompany three short comedies of George Melles, produced from 1903-05: "The Inn Where No Man Rests," "The Enchanted Well" and "The Apparition." These were the first films produced in magnavision, single-frame photography (animation).

Muri also will accompany four early comedies, "The Waiter's Ball" with Fatty Arbuckle (1915), "The Sawmill" with Larry Semon (1923), "The Playhouse" with Buster Keaton (1925) and "Liberty" with Laurel and Hardy (1928).

Tickets at $5 may be purchased in advance or the night of the concert at the theater box office. For reservations, call 624-3479.

'The Dresser' delivers punch

The Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford production of "The Dresser" continues at 8 p.m. Fridays-Saturdays through Feb. 25 at the playhouse, 15138 Beech Daly, just south of Five Mile, Redford. For ticket information, call 522-8057.

By Bob Weibel
special writer

Director Marc McCulloch has fashioned a magnificent artistic success for the Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford, which is presenting the Michigan premiere of Ronald Harwood's highly acclaimed "The Dresser."

Neither the stage play nor the movie has appeared in the Detroit area as yet, so TGLR playgoers are experiencing a unique treat.

Time of the play is World War II England. Air raid sirens, the drone of bombers and the specter of death are daily occurrences. Somehow, the bombs have missed a musty, dingy old theater where a touring Shakespearean repertory company is performing.

A near miss, however, has rocked its senile old lead-actor-manager, Sir, into a state of delirium. He is missing and the company is concerned that the evening's performance of "King Lear" will have to be cancelled.

AT THE LAST moment, Sir staggers in, knows he has something to do, but he's not sure exactly what it is. Reminded that "King Lear" is scheduled, he first says, "Oh, yes, let's go," then panics. He can't remember the first line, even though he has played the part 227 times.

And when he begins to apply make-up, it's black for Othello, not the beard and scraggly hair for King Lear.

Norman, his dresser, then takes over, as he guides and cajoles the old actor on stage and through the evening's performance. This doesn't necessarily make for great dramatic art, but "The Dresser" does give the audience a seldom-seen look backstage and the actors a vehicle for tour-de-force acting.

Howard Egan (Sir) and Warren Reinecker (Norman, his dresser) play off each other in a wonderful psychological-comical duet.

Egan's Sir ranges from a tired old actor who is a whimpering pile of nerves to an imposing monarch who summons the inner strength to pull off a masterful performance one more time. At other times, he is vain, sad, pathetic, wily and, for one marvelous moment, a lecherous tyrant.

review

Reinecker's Norman is equally brilliant. His character is a carefully crafted one of precise mannerisms and speech. It makes for a perfectly prissy and bitchy dresser. His unrequited love of 16 years for Sir is subtly portrayed, which heightens the emotional impact of the play's tragic ending.

NORMAN ADORES Sir. Others simply want to use him. Cathy Sharon is excellent as Irene, one such aspiring actress. When Norman discovers her devious plans, we see another side of his personality — Sir's guardian and protector. He reduces Irene to ashes in a snarling, vicious attack that is perhaps the dramatic highlight of the evening.

Other supporting performers are also uniformly good. Ruth Palmer is most believable as Her Ladyship, Sir's love of many years. Susan Soumi is all business as Madge, the company's stage manager. Robert Closson as Geoffrey Thornton and Jim Finucan as Mr. Oxenby play minor Shakespearean roles with precision and clarity.

The set design by Reinecker makes excellent use of relatively cramped quarters. It provides a highly detailed and authentic look at a backstage area. Even to the point of rare wind and thunder machines.

A scrim is used upstage. It doubles as Sir's dressing room wall, and when it's backlit, we can see through it to the stage where the Shakespearean troupe performs. It's well done and effective.

It appears that no detail has been overlooked, including costumes, lights and sound effects, to make this a memorable production.

Linette Popoff (left) and Cynthia Ferris will appear in recital at 3:30 p.m. Sunday at Madonna College.

McMahon excels in Symphonic Suite

Following are more notes on the recent Plymouth Symphony Orchestra concert, which was reviewed in part last week.

By Mary Jane Doerr
special writer

Highlight of the Plymouth Symphony's concert came with Rimsky-Korsakov's Scheherazade Symphonic Suite. No soloist had been hired for the afternoon. None was needed. Concertmaster Kevin McMahon's solo as the "voice" of Scheherazade was superb. His tone, particularly in the upper ranges, was so mellow, sweet and clear that I wondered why I have sometimes hated violinists.

Though McMahon took the honors for the afternoon, fine performances also were heard from principals Glenn Gould, Steve Kelly, Robert Abel, Thomas Nelson, Kelly Mark Avery, and others.

review

This is the interesting aspect of this famous musical five-movement tale of the Arabian Nights. Rimsky-Korsakov moves his melodies from instrument to instrument, giving the flavor of the story in his musical expression. Of course, his experience at sea gave him the wonderful feeling of the water, and his music transmits that to his listeners.

The work was intensified by the quick and energy-filled style of van der Merwe. He is never so quick that soloists are lost in the speed, but then he always slows from phrase to phrase so that the audience has the understanding of direction.

In keeping with this youthful approach, the Plymouth Symphony's next concert will present the orchestra and Young Artist Competition winners at 8 p.m. Sunday, March 4.

Variety of crafts thrive in Old Village

Last in a series
By Mary Klemic
staff writer

Michael Camp watches intently as he guides the smooth wood around the buzzing saw in a back room in his shop. The saw roars eagerly and throws fine bits of dust as it cuts tiny bites into the wood.

At this point, it's hard to say what the wood will be transformed into. Under Camp's direction, it could become part of a drawer, a chair or even an entire wall.

Camp is among the painters, patchwork artists and other skilled crafters in Old Village in Plymouth, who can give a personal touch to a house decorating scheme.

FROM HIS shop at 636 Starkweather, Camp turns the same concentration and care to his wood that a musician would to an instrument. The result is a reproduction of an old American style.

"It's not just something to put socks in," Camp said. "It's a part of Americana. It's like a painting. You'll stand back and look at it. It's not just a piece of furniture."

Camp has worked from photographs and sketches, figuring the measurements for each piece himself. He has researched the early American styles and sometimes uses wooden pegs as carpenters in an earlier century would have done.

Camp has built a reproduction of a wall in the Metropolitan Museum of Art for a house in Birmingham. The wall, 20 feet long and 8 feet high, features a cupboard with a shell-like design hollowed out at the top.

What once was a hobby is now a serious job for the Farmington Hills resident. Advertising in a national magazine, he has filled custom orders from all over the country and from England and Japan as well.

PINEAPPLES ARE in abundance at Useful Uniques, situated in a stately but cheery 94-year-old house at 557 N. Mill. They are found along the wall and 'Being creative has come back. People have again started being creative. Quilting is a piece of art. It's more of an art than a craft.'

— Luna Morin

on tags and literature from the shop.

"The pineapple meant hospitality, welcome and friendship in colonial days," explained employee Kay Micallef.

This theme is carried out by shop owners Chuck and Barbara Every, who will not only answer questions from customers but refer them to other stores if necessary or track down information and supplies themselves.

The business will fill custom orders for mailboxes, lampshades, signs, frames and lamp bases made from crocks. It has prepared arrangements for weddings.

ALMOST EVERYTHING in the store is handmade. Works in stencils, duck decoys, glass engraving and punched metal, folk art and the more intricate Bavarian folk art are for sale there, along with antiques. And there are unusual furnishings available, including a wooden spinning wheel.

"Country is in," Micallef said. "Everybody likes it."

Classes for all ages in needlework, painting, decorative arts and other crafts are conducted at the shop, along with courses on how to make "Vitamix" health food. Supplies and instructional books are sold there as well.

Patterns and samples of works from Useful Uniques have appeared in national magazines, spreading the store's reputation around the country.

ANOTHER WHO agrees that the country look is popular these days is Luna Morin, of Luna's Patchwork at 615 N. Mill.

Morin, who says she is one of "three generations of quilters," suggests that quilts can be used as year-round decorating accents in any room in the house. New techniques include arranging patchwork to resemble a stained glass window and fabric stenciling.

"Quilts can be graphic art as wall hangings," she said. "They can be small to accent the room. We can custom make the quilt or you can make it."

Some 800 women have completed basic quilting classes taught at the shop, according to Morin. The store also sells supplies and fabrics and is the largest supplier of calico in the area, Morin said.

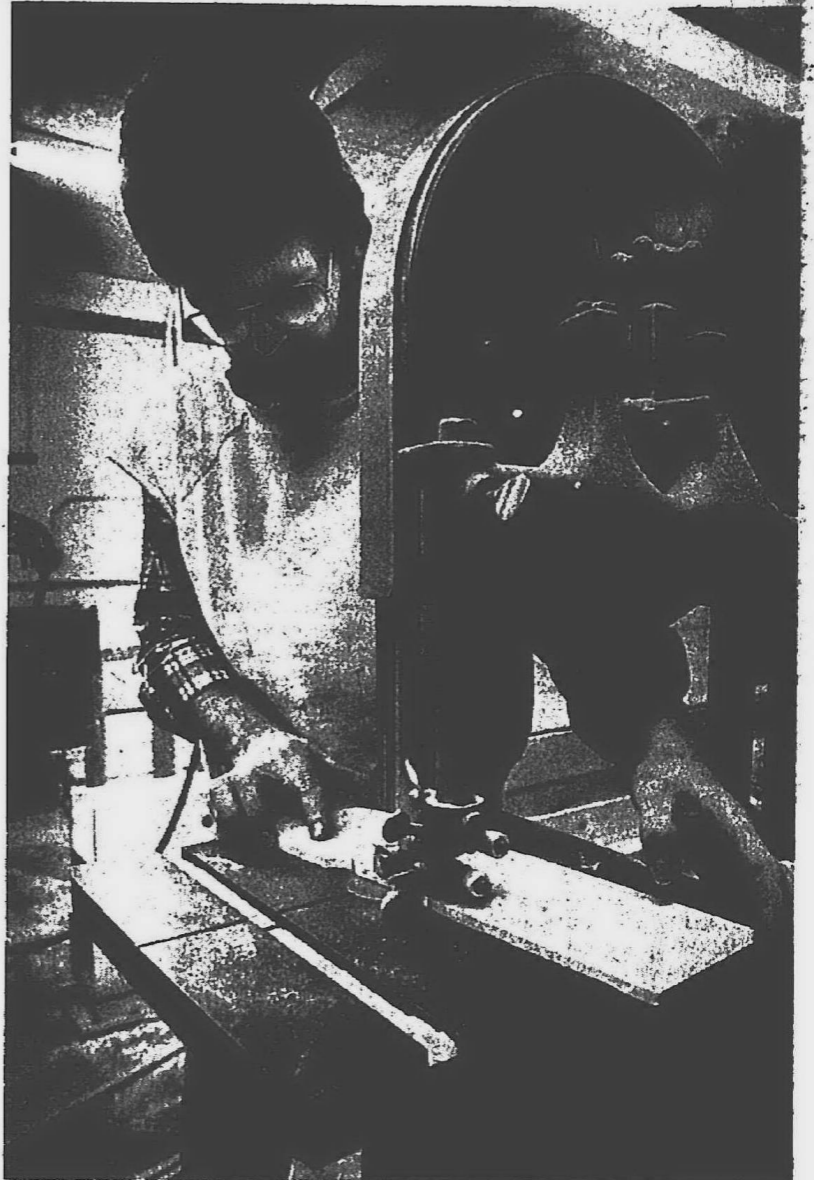

"Being creative has come back," she said. "People have again started being creative. Quilting is a piece of art. It's more of an art than a craft."

THERE ARE Victorian-style quilts rooms with Victorian furniture, as well as contemporary patterns. Quilts can be draped on tablecloths as an accent and used as placemats, Morin said.

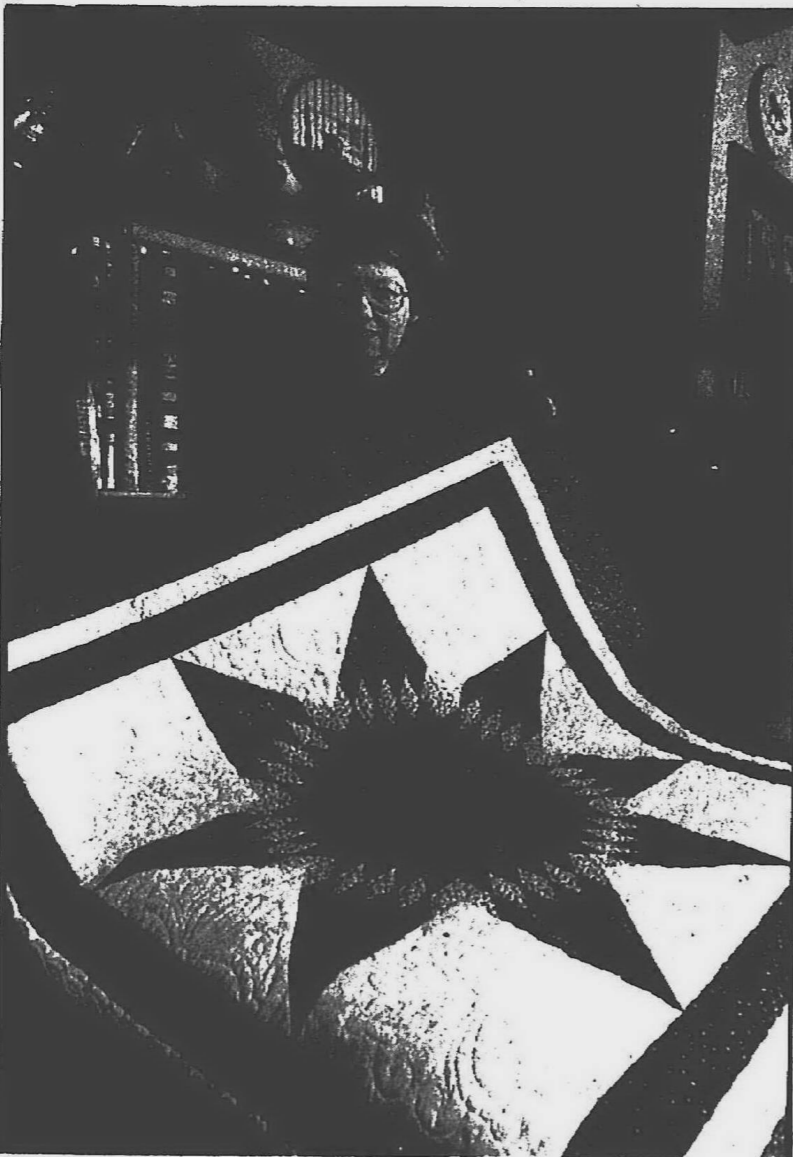

"A quilt is a fabric sandwich. There's a top, batting and a back, stitched together with a fine running stitch," she said.

Quilts require "tender loving care," Morin said. She explained that this includes keeping a quilt out of a lot of sunshine, washing it on a gentle cycle and drying it flat. A quilt shouldn't be washed often, she adds.

"Never hang a quilt wet," Morin advised. "The weight of the water will pull it out of shape. I spread a white sheet on the ground and lay the quilt on that. The grass lets air get under it and I let Mother Nature do the work. I flip it two or three hours later."

Michael Camp fashions a piece of furniture on a saw. He recreates pieces of the past using his own patterns.

Faces separate the sexes

This is another in a series of lessons on art and drawing by special columnist David Messing. He has taught for eight years and operates an art store, Art Store and More, 18774 Middlebelt, Livonia. Messing encourages questions and comments from readers. You may write him at his store or c/o Observer Newspapers, 23352 Farmington Road, Farmington MI 48024.

By David Messing
special writer

There are enough things in everyday life to keep you uptight and nervous, so when I listen to music I like something slow and relaxing. My students say that the music I play at the store is elevator music! Nothing could be further from the truth . . . I play deejay office music.

Occasionally I am forced to defend my music, which causes me to say things like "hey . . . I'm cool," really, I like rock music in five minute spurts, here and there, mostly there. Also, my mother-in-law, June, is my partner in the Art Store and I really can't imagine her working with "get down funky" music in the background.

TO PROVE I'm cool, I brought in a radio for the student area and tuned it to a station that I thought the students would enjoy (it sounded like rock and roll to me). Everybody just sat there looking at each other as if to say "aw . . . isn't that cute, he's trying to relate to us, he really thinks that is rock music."

Nancy and Joelle are two "awesome" teen-agers who know what is really "decent rock" (so they say). Why, they even took the "mojo rock for life pledge" or something like that. Whenever I want to say anything to Joelle I have to lift one side of the Walkman away from her ear. Joelle and Nancy tell me that according to all rock music standards my so-called rock and roll station is a "real bummer . . . for sure."

Since I can't relate to a certain few students by playing their music, I compromise by letting them draw pictures from their album covers, which, I might add, look like home slides from "the Addams Family."

I was looking over one of the albums a student brought in and I mentioned how pretty the girl on the cover was. Immediately there was a great silence followed by snickers and giggles. So I looked a little closer at the cover and realized my mistake. The "pretty girl" was a guy with makeup on. But he was kind of pretty. That mistake made me realize that we artist need to know the structural differences between male and female. Of course, you can be fooled by surface makeup and hair but just in the head and neck, there are definite structural differences that all artist should be aware of.

Let us first talk about the obvious features, like the eyes, nose and lips. The eyes on a female are usually more rounded and relatively large compared to males. The roundness of the eyes make them appear to be more open, which is definitely a beautiful characteristic of the female face. There is a greater distance between the upper eye lid and the eyebrow, which also gives the female eye a largeness or roundness. Since the female eye is already round, it is no surprise that as of several thousand years ago women began adding makeup to the outside of the eye. This makes the eye appear larger and is considered a trait of beauty.

The eyes are usually the most attractive facial feature on a female. When it comes to eyes on the male head "what you see is what you get." Male eyes are usually flatter and longer, their eyebrows are rugged and often run across the nose to meet in the middle. The fact that the eyebrows appear closer to the upper lid causes the male eyes to look deep set. For this reason also you see less of the white of the eye on a man.

THE FEMALE nose is usually more smooth and rounded. By rounded I mean that you see less of the structure of the nose. The female nose is just a little neglected. By reason of the natural beauty of the eyes and lips, usually enhanced by makeup, the nose is often unnoticed. Now the male nose is a real piece of art (or maybe even abstract art). Male noses come in all sizes, textures and shapes, but as a general rule they more rightly show the cartilage and planes that make up the basic structure of the nose.

The female lips are like the eyes, more rounded and relatively large. The play of light across them is at least interesting, at best beautiful. I guess you can tell this article is being written by a man. But if being an artist has done anything for me it has helped me to appreciate the beauty of the beautiful, the strength of the strong and the miracle of God's handy work in all creation. Even though the basic structure of the lips of the male and female are the same, the male lips are flatter and thinner. Because of this, the male lips often are smooth and the full female lips tend to have more wrinkles.

NOW HERE is something I bet you didn't know, the female forehead is rounded or bulging and smooth. The male forehead is flat and has what is called a brow ridge. The brow ridges are two prominences or bumps under the eyebrow just over the nose. Most men have them and most women don't. Once you know what to look for, this brow ridge on most men is very obvious. The purpose of the brow ridge is to better protect the eye. If you take a long flat object and hold it up to your eye you will see that it touches your eyebrow and your cheekbone, but hardly touches your eyeball. Some women because of the largeness of their eyes and the absence of a prominent brow ridge find the flat object does indeed touch the eyeball. This difference of flat or round forehead and brow ridge prominence or absence is very important since it is so characteristic, and must not be overlooked in your drawing.

The female chin is more rounded and delicate. The male chin is often square and padded so much so that it often forms a cleft or at least a depression. In all of the features mentioned so far the male features are bold and can be drawn quick and linear, the female features, however, are delicate and should be drawn soft and shaded. I have often pictured that if you could take the classic male head and sand down all the features, brow ridge, forehead and chin you would produce the classic female head.

One big characteristic difference between males and females is in the part that supports the head which is the neck. The female neck is long and graceful where the male neck is short and thick. Probably every college football team has several men on their squad nicknamed "no-neck." To explain this difference without all the Latin names for muscles and cartilage will perhaps make it a little easier. Then on the other hand I don't remember all those Latin names anyway.

In the male neck the Adam's apple is very prominent. Then below is another bump called the cricoid cartilage. Below this is the thyroid body and all structures are surrounded by supporting muscles. In the male neck however, the thyroid body is deep set into the neck. In the female neck the thyroid body is full and rounded which produces an uninterrupted line from the thyroid body to the collar bone. The female collar bones tend to be slightly angled up toward the neck wherein the male they are more horizontal. Likewise the female shoulders are less square which also emphasizes the length and gracefulness of the neck. The male shoulders are square and when combined with the horizontal collar bones and supporting muscles creates the appearance of a shorter neck.

Skin is skin, but how different it is on male and female. I am sure that most men neglect their facial skin as compared to women and perhaps this causes the coarse appearance and large pores which seem to be more obvious on the male head. Female skin is fair, smooth and should be rendered delicately. Male facial skin can, however, be rendered rather boldly and fine cross hatching seem to add a delightful realism to even a pencil sketch.

Of course all the characteristics I have mentioned are generalities and there will always be exceptions.

Cellist to perform here

David Geringas, internationally acclaimed cellist, will make his only area appearance this year with the American Artists Series at 3 p.m. Sunday at Kingswood Auditorium, 885 Cranbrook, Bloomfield Hills. Geringas studied at the Moscow Conservatory with Mstislav Rostropovich before moving to West Germany in 1975. He made his American debut with the National Symphony Orchestra in 1976. Single tickets, $10, will be sold at the door as available.

Picasso prints on exhibit

The full span of Pablo Picasso's career is represented in 253 prints selected for "Picasso the Printmaker: Graphics from the Marina Picasso Collection." The exhibition continues in the Schwartz Graphic Arts Galleries of the Detroit Institute of Arts through Sunday, March 25.

All the prints have been selected from the private collection of the artist's granddaughter, Marina Picasso of Geneva, Switzerland.

This is the first exhibition in recent years to focus entirely on Picasso's prodigious achievements as a printmaker. It includes the 1904 etching "The Frugal Repast," rare proofs of his Cubist prints from the Minotaur series, and prints inspired by the women in his life — Olga Koklova (his first wife), Marie-Therese Walter, Dora Maar, Françoise Gilot, and his second wife, Jacqueline Rogue.

For some prints, comparisons of various state and edition impressions with the actual plates are shown. Working in a variety of print media from 1904 to 1972, Picasso was as experimental and inventive in printmaking as he was in painting, sculpture and ceramics.

The exhibition includes lithographs, serigraphs, etchings woodcuts, linoleum cuts and monotypes.

The exhibition was organized by the Dallas Museum of Art; its tour is limited to Brooklyn, Detroit and Denver.

"Picasso the Printmaker" is open to the public without charge during regular museum hours, 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday.

Free "Masterwork of the Week" gallery talks with be presented in the exhibition at 1:30 p.m. on Wednesday and Friday, Feb. 29 and March 2, by Marilyn Symmes, the museum's associate curator of Graphic Arts.

"Wit and Humor in Picasso's Prints" is the subject of Dr. Burr Wallen's talk at 8 p.m., Wednesday, March 7, in the Lecture/Recital Hall.
