Law tells of plans for jail

By Gary M. Cates staff writer

The future of the Detroit House of Correction (DeHoCo) in Plymouth Township may hinge on the outcome of legislation calling for double-bunking at the new Wayne County Jail.

The city of Detroit reportedly wants to close the facility, but space for its 700 inmates must be found first.

Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano believes the county could house DeHo-Co prisoners if double-bunking is permitted at the new jail. But Ficano's request for double-bunking was turned down late last year by the Michigan Corrections Commission.

Since then, a group of Wayne County representatives, including Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth Township, have introduced legislation which would permit double-bunking.

Without double-bunking, the new jail

Without double-bunking, the new jail would house 576 prisoners. If partial double-bunking is permitted, the jail can house 384 more prisoners.

The proposed legislation, House Bill 5197, has been sent to the nine-member House Corrections Committee chaired by Rep. Jeffrey Padden, D-Wyandotte.

Although Padden reportedly is against double-bunking, he has promised sponsors of the bill a hearing in 4 to 6 weeks, Law said.

AUTHORS OF THE proposed legislation are seeking faster action on the measure as jail construction nears completion.

"They are building a $52 million jail down there which they hope to open this summer. But they need to know as soon as possible if they can double-bunk," Law said.

"They are finishing up the jail and they need to know whether to put two bunks in. I guess it's cheaper to do it now then coming back and doing it," he said

CLOSING DEHOCO and doublebunking the new jail makes the most sense to Law.

"DeHoCo is deteriorating and needs extensive renovation. I have heard up to as much as $40 million to bring it up to the levels it should be," he said.

Double-bunking at the new jail would save money, according to the freshman lawmaker.

Jackson County was granted a variance by the Corrections Commission to double-bunk at its county jail. The variance was done on a 18-month trial basis

"They double-bunked and didn't have any problems. In fact they were saving a fair amount of money, $100,000 or more a year.

"The Corrections Commission didn't renew Jackson County's variance after the 18 months were up because of Wayne County. They figured they couldn't permit it in Jackson County and then say no to Wayne County," Law said.

"Our state's philosphy has been that they are against double-bunking. They don't think it's safe."

FICANO THINKS differently. He went before the Corrections Commission last year to present his case for double-bunking in the new jail.

"Based upon my department's review of the facility, now that it nears completion, and the current state of the law on the issue of double-bunking, I am recommmending that this commission allow double-bunking in certain areas of the new jail," Ficano said.

"The United States Supreme Court, in the case of Rhodes vs. Chapman, reviewed this issue and set the standard

Attorney calls for policy on how to kill animals

By Gary M. Cates staff writer

A policy for killing undesired animals may be developed in Plymouth Township as a result of Police Chief Carl Berry's recent shooting of a dog.

The call for such a policy comes from Township Attorney Charles Bokos following his investigation of the Berry incident

Bokos was asked to review the January shooting, on the west side of a trailer park off Ridge Road near M-14. The attorney's review was called for by Supervisor Maurice Breen after the Michigan Humane Society asked that Berry receive a reprimand.

"The facts of this occurrence are not in dispute," Bokos said.

"Two residents who I personally contacted . . . both indicated they were fearful of the dog because it had on a number of occasions growled at them and on one occasion attacked a . . . poodle," he said.

"The chief was advised by the ordinance officer that in his opinion the dog posed a threat to the community and that is should be terminated."

Commission to approve use of block grant funds

The Plymouth City Commission will be making adjustments in its threeyear plan for spending U.S. Community Development (CD) Block Grant funds.

The city has been notified that in 1984 it cannot spend $51,500 on its DPW Yard renovation as originally planned.

The city also is expecting a cut in the block grants and now is considering reducing by $9,000 a planned expenditure in 1985 of $47,000 for a commercial rehabilitation program for Old Village.

The City Commission has held public hearings to receive suggestions from residents and taxpayers on how to spend the funds, and tonight is expected to give final approval to the 1984 plan.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in Commission chambers upstairs of City Hall, Main Street at Church. During the study session following the regular session, the Commission will discuss the status of Bathey Manufacturing which has filed for bankruptacy to reorganize under Chapter 11, and hear a report on Central Parking Lot from architects Hobbs & Black.

ORIGINALLY the City Commission planned about $60,000 for the DPW Yard renovation.

The Wayne County office which administers block grant funds, however, ruled the city could not spend the $51,500 allocated for 1984 as the act does not allow funds to be used for any public building except by a fire department.

The county Community Development grant office informed the city that the DPW program is a normal function of local government and is not eligible for CD funds which primarily are intended to benefit low- and moderate-income people or to meet emergency commuty needs. The county agreed it would fund the $8,500 allocated in 1983 for the DPW Yard but would not approve the 1984 amount.

The 1983 plan calls for: DPW program, $8,500; purchase of a replacement senior citizens van and program, $28,000; Plymouth Community Council on Aging, $2,000; and Fire Station No. 2, $41,500.

The original plan for 1984, which now must be revised, called for: DPW program, $51,500; purchase of a replacement senior citizen chore worker vehicle, $12,500; senior citizen van program, $14,000; and Council on Aging, $2,000

The proposal for 1985 is: Commercial rehabilitation Old Village, $47,000; Old Village tree planting and maintenance, $10,000; purchase of large-print books for senior citizens for library, $6,000; Council on Aging, $2,000; senior citizen van and program, $15,000.

Among the plans for Old Village is a street lighting program, renovation of the pumphouse as an office for the Old Village Association and a matchingfund program for rehabilitation of buildings.

The administration is proposing that the Old Village projects be reduced from $40,500 to $31,500 if the city gets a cut in federal CD funding.

In other action tonight, the Commission is being asked to vacate an alley between Ann and Blunk streets. to set a public hearing date of March 19 for use of general revenue-sharing funds, to amend an industrial tax abatement granted earlier to William and Eleanor Piercy, and appointments by the mayor.

Group home forum slated

By Gary M. Cates staff writer

A group home has been proposed for Lexington Street in Plymouth as part of the state's continuing community placement program for institutionalized persons.

Wayne Community Living Services
(WCLS) has targeted a home at 1725
Lexington for placement of six developmentally disabled adults.

Residents in the Lexington neighborhood were notified of WCLS's intentions and a March 13 information meeting is scheduled to review plans meeting is scheduled to review plans.

"We notify neighbors so people know what we are doing from the beginning;

there are no secrets," said Carol Park, a WCLS official.

As a branch of the state Department of Mental Health, WCLS is responsible for the placement of persons from the Plymouth Center for Human Development, the Northville Residential Training Center, and the Southgate Regional Center.

Besides placing institutionalized persons in community settings, WCLS oversees the operation of group homes in this area.

Group homes, like the one proposed for Lexington Street, are licensed by the state Department of Social Services. WCLS contracts for the operation of the home, while providing case management for the persons placed in

The state's move to decrease institutional populations is based on the belief that developmentally disabled persons will progress faster in a home-like atmosphere

ALTHOUGH THE Lexington home still requires licensing, WCLS has plans ready for contracting with an operator for the home, Park said.

WCLS plans to contract with New Worlds Inc., under the direction of Richard Snyder, she said. "He's been an active member of the Northwest Communities Association for Retarded Citizens. He has a good background," Park said.

Snyder also managed the former

Cambridge Club in Garden City, a restaurant which hired developmentally disabled employees.

At the March 13 informational meeting, residents will be given the opportunity to discuss the proposed group home with state officials.

One of the things Park would like to see done that night is the establishment of a neighborhood advisory committee.

The informational meeting, which starts at 7:30 p.m., will be held at the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth at 45201 N. Territorial. Moderating will be Dr. Sandra McClennen of Plymouth, a special education professor at Eastern Michigan University.

THE CITY administration most likely won't have a representative at the meeting, according to City Manager Henry Graper.

"I don't know what can be done," Graper said.

Municipalities have little say in the placement of group homes. Local officials only are asked to verify if another group home is within 1,500 feet of a proposed site.

"We don't really like it because we think it will be detremental to the neighborhood," Graper said.

Property values in that area have gone down recently, and Graper said a group home could bring a further reduction in value.

The City Commission will review the plans; however it remains doubtful that the city will fight the placement.

"It might just be a waste of money trying to fight it in court," Graper said. Attempts by other communities to fight group home placement have proved unsuccessful thus far.

Canton Township recently lost a group home case in the Michigan Court of Appeals. Despite the setback, the township plans to petition the Supreme Court for an appeal.

Plymouth Township plans to fight placement of an adult foster care home on Betty Hill. The township will try a different approach on the case, arguing that the home doesn't meet local building codes.

Traditional arguments by municipalities have centered on the number of group homes already in the community, or the group home's non-conformity with zoning restrictions — in regards to the number of unrelated persons living in a home

Basement blaze

Plymouth firefighters responded to a basement fire at 1301 Ross Friday afternoon. The cause of the fire, which was contained to the basement, is under investigation, according to Capt. Tom Lenaghan. Although firefighters extingushed the fire in 15 minutes, Lenaghan said there was extensive smoke damage throughout the house. No one was home at the time of the fire, he said.

Plymouth man serves in Honduras mission

A soldier from Plymouth is among about 60 U.S. Army pilots, crew members, and support troops assigned to humanitarian tasks in La Esperanza, Honduras - a small Honduran college town in a high mountain valley. Working in conjunction with representatives of the U.S. AID program, missionaries, and hundreds of Honduran villagers, Staff Sgt. Gregory L. Proctor, 24, of Plymouth is working to improve the lives of families in seven neighboring mountain villages. Proctor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Proctor of Ridgewood Drive, Plymouth, is a senior battalion pathfinder assigned to the 101st Pathfinder Company, based at Fort Campbell, Ky.

"Our mission is to support aviation elements in Honduras," Proctor said. "As a Pathfinder, I set up drop, landing, and pick-up zones, aid in sling-loading operations and offer ground-to-air communications for safety purposes.'

PROCTOR AND fellow soldiers were sent to deliver supplies and building materials for seven schools that will be built in small outlying villages.

According to U.S. AID representative Richard Stephens, "Most of these villages can only be reached by horse, burro, or on foot over narrow mountain trails. If the Army hadn't accepted the mission to fly these supplies in, these schools probably never would have been built."

The Hondurans are a warm and friendly people," Proctor said. "And all of them I've met have welcomed our presence. It's a beautiful country from the Caribbean to the Pacific.

"I'm glad I've had the chance to come here," said Proctor, a 1978 graduate of Plymouth Canton High School. "It's been a challenging and enjoyable expeduran Army and get involved with a good many Pathfinder missions. I have seen Honduras from the east-bay island of Guanaja to the west isle of El Tiger - and most everything in between.'

Jonathan S. Schechter is a naturalist and a resident of Bloomfield Township.

ITH SLOW, rhythmic, glistening drops, the maples announce the end of a long Michigan winter. From tiny cracks in gnarled bark and broken twigs, the sap swells into shiny droplets only to break free from the tree and fall to the earth, and be gone. Some sap droplets are intercepted by red squirrels, lapping at the semi-sweet liquid, while adventuresome homeowners gather and refine sufficient quantities to make pure maple syrup.

If you want to join in and capture the spirit of spring, then backyard maple syruping is the way to go. All you need besides cooperative weather is a maple tree, some common household items, and

It makes no difference whether you have a sugar, red or silver maple, or even a box-elder, which is also in the maple family. They all produce good usuable sap, but the sugar maple is used commercially because of its relatively high sugar content of 2 to 3 percent. Even the black walnut makes a good syrup, but keep in mind that it takes 35 gallons of sugar maple sap to make one gallon syrup. More sap is needed for all other species, a don't expect to fill your kitchen shelves with gal-

BEFORE YOU start, check the weather. The night must be below freezing, the day above. (The season ends when the buds open and/or the night temperatures stay above freezing.) Make sure your tree is at least 10 inches in diameter. Then, at a height that is convenient for you, using a three-eights or seven-sixteenths inch bit, drill into the trunk to a depth of three inches, slanting the hole slightly upwards. The angle helps the sap

Make one tap hole for every 10 inches of diameter. When selecting a site to drill, remember the south side produces a better sap flow because the sap thaws earlier in the day. In addition, sap will never flow from dead wood or old tap holes. To guide the flow of sap, you can use a commercial spile" or you can make one from a piece of tubing or sheet metal.

When the maple season is over, remove the spile and plug the hole with a bit of cork or wood. The flow will stop by itself. A hollowed out sumac stick also makes an excellent spile.

AFTER THE spile is inserted into the tap hole,

Tap that backyard maple and make your own syrup

use your ingenuity to set up a bucket, milk carton, coffee can or other container to catch the drops in. (If you want to have commercial equipment, Sugar Bush Supply Co. in Mason has everything you could possibly want, plus lots of free advice and maple syrup and sugar for sale as well.)

Try to set up the bucket with a lid covering most of it. The lid will keep out rain and snow which won't ruin the solution but will dilute it. Of course in the morning check for mice, moths and other nocturnal sap sippers which may have made the big plunge into the bucket.

ON A GOOD day you might get a quart or two of sap per hole; on a great day over a gallon. You have reason to smile when the steady "pings" of a filling bucket turn to musical splashes as the level

When you collect the sap, treat it like milk. It will spoil if left at room temperature too long, or left out in the sun. If it looks cloudy, throw it out, rinse the bucket and collect some more.

When you have one-half gallon of sap or more you are ready for business.

Grab your kettle, pot or deep pan, and a good candy thermometer in the 200-235 degrees F. range and head for the kitchen. With the large quantity of water you'll be turning to steam, be sure to open a few windows or keep the vent fan

Once you start the boiling, you must be attentive, so enlist the help of the kids, and throw the cat out. Do not leave the boiling liquid unattended. Sap boils down to sugar and if left on the heat it is flammable and you may end up with the fire department at your door, and no syrup for the pan-

THE SAP level will drop more than 50 percent before the temperature on the candy thermometer starts to rise. Water boils at 212 degrees F. and no matter how long water boils it won't get any hotter. However, the temperature will slowly start to climb as the liquid level drops and the sugars concentrate. When the temperature reaches 219 degrees F. it's time to congratulate yourself; you've just made your first batch of pure Birmingham-Bloomfield maple syrup.

If you want the syrup to be just right, filter it through a clean piece of felt or wool to remove the tiny harmless particles called sugar sand. The color of the syrup will vary from yellow-gold to brown, depending on how much sap you boiled and how quickly it boiled down. Regardless of the final color, it's time to flip the pancakes and give Schechter checks the containyour family a treat.

Non-strikers deserve praise

Regarding story on teachers vs. union on Dec. 8, 1983, and on non-striking teachers may gain reprieve on Feb. 23, 19

For the majority of union members to take what appears to be punitive action against those whose convictions would not permit them to strike would appear to be most unprofessional. Surely the recent hue and cry for increased standards of excellence in education dictates that those who "wield the chalk" conduct all of their relationships with absolute integrity.

We have tremendous respect for someone who will not break a valid, existing contract. We hold the utmost regard for those who uphold state laws (teacher strikes are illegal in Michigan) and put the needs of students first. They deserve the commendation of the community, not the condemnation of

Call a Con-Con on the budget?

There is a bill being debated in the Michigan Senate Committee on Administration and Rules and Elections called Senate Joint Resolution E. This bill would petition the U.S. Congress to call a Constitutional Convention ("Con-Con") to propose an amendment to the U.S. Constitution which would ensure a balanced budget.

In this country, our only experience with a Con-Con was in 1787 when it was created to amend the Articles of Confederation. Instead of merely amending the Articles, the convention scrapped it and wrote a new constitution

If the 1787 Con-Con could ignore its mandate, then if a new Con-Con is called, special interest groups, sectarian and secular, could try to control the delegate selection process and the Con-Con itself.

IN ADDITION to groups seeking to require a balanced federal budget, groups supporting the following issues would surely try to dominate the convention: tax aid for sectarian schools; outlawing of abortion; government-sponsored prayer in public schools; school and library censorship; teaching of "creationism" in public schools; stripping the federal courts of jurisdiction over certain First Amendment cases; and other forms of interference.

The only way a Con-Con could possibly be effective without endangering the Constitution and Bill of Rights would be for the U.S. Congress first to construct a comprehensive set of rules and guidelines for the Con-Con to follow. This measure is being considered on Capital Hill to follow. A Con-Con could also waste a lot of time and distract the nation's attention from its real problems.

WE MUST not forget the other way to amend the Constitution, which has worked successfully 17 times since 1789 in which mandates are proposed by two-thirds votes in each hosue of Congress and ratified by three-fourths of the states. Why not use this

Our own state Sen. R. Robert Geake is a co-sponsor of Senate Joint Resolution E. The five members of the Michigan Senate Committee on Administration and Rules and Elections are: Sens. William Faust, John Kelly, Gary Corbin (who is against the bill), Connie Blissfield and John Engler.

The possibility of a Con-Con without firmly established rules and guidelines to direct it is a definite threat to human rights in the United States. What is equally scary is that 32 state legislatures have already passed a similar bill and only two mroe are needed to make it happen. Let us not allow Michigan to be the 33rd.

Parent & staff should combine

I am writing to thank you for your support of the new Parent-Teacher Group that has been started at the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park (PCEP) this year.

Your editorial, "High schoolers need own lobby" printed the week of Feb. 20, stated our case very well. Too often, we teachers have neglected to cultivate an active invovlement of parents in the educational process. We can no longer afford to make

To achieve excellence, our schools need dollars, but they also need the participation of the Plymouth-Canton community. I believe a parent-teacher group at the high school is one way to meet this goal.

On Thursday, March 15, the PCEP Parent-Teacher Group will hold a meeting to hear a panel of Salem and Canton students representing various groups at the high schools speak out on their concerns. We feel this is a most valuable opportunity for member of our community to learn about our schools from those who are most intimately involved — the students themselves. We would like to extend an open invitation to all those interested in the students' point

Family Service subsidized by Community Fund

Between 1969 and 1971, during Fred Gibilisco's tenure as director of Plymouth Family Service, the case load grew from 190 to 328. Fifty of those needing help had little or no income.

On May, 1, 1970, Family Service of Ann Arbor, which sponsors and staffs the Plymouth agency, merged with two other agencies (Family Service of Ypsilanti and the Washtenaw County Branch of the Michigan Children's Aid Society). The new corporation was called Child and Family Service of Washtenaw County.

The Plymouth agency continued its relationship with the new corporation, but exercised its option of offering family services only. Child welfare services were available to Plymouth from other child welfare programs in Wayne Gibilisco resigned in 1971 to join the faculty of Eastern Michigan University. His successor was Ruth Abell, who had started to work with Plymouth Family Service as a part-time social worker in 1970. Like many others who have supervised the local office, Abell had her master's degree in social work from the University of Michigan.

The Detroit News reported in February 1972 that Plymouth Family Service, then consisting of Mrs. Abell and caseworker Walter McDonald, had counselled 666 Plymouth residents during the preceding year, of which 440 had been adults, 130 teen-agers and 96 under the age of 12. These figures are inflated in contrast to today's because it was the practice then to include telephone calls when calculating the case load. In 1983, the agency counselled 238 clients on a case basis, but handled an additional 600 telephone calls.

WHEN THE AGENCY observed its 10th anniversary here in 1974 it was receiving $17,000 a year from the Plymouth Community Fund, the same amount of subsidy received in the year

An Article in the Observer in October 1975 indicated that more than 2,000 families had sought assistance since the Family Service had opened an office here in 1964. Of 313 Plymouth families receiving counselling in 1975, 275 were adults, 69 teen-agers and 23 between the ages of 6 and 12.

Ruth Abell retired in June 1978 after eight years in the office on Wing Streeet. When Elinor Graham of the Observer interviewed her, Mrs. Abell told her that the heavy drug years were in the early 1970s. That may have been true nationally, but Connie Cavanaugh, who has been secretary at Plymouth Family Service for the past 14 years, recalls that local family problems seemed much simpler when she arrived on the job in 1970.

We had cases of children not wanting to go to school, or housewives who didn't want to make beds. Today, the problems are much more complicat-

ETHEL NORTH WAS honored by the Plymouth Family Service Advisory Board in January 1980.

Mrs. North, who had helped set up the relationship between Plymouth and the Family Service agency in Ann Ar-bor in the early 1960s, and who had served on the Advisory Board her for six years, was named the board's first honorary life member.

Later Robert Barbour, who had served as president of the board during the early years when the Family Service was establishing itself in the com-

In 1983, after enjoying a Lebanese dinner at the home of advisory board member Jim Jabara, the other members of the board decided to sponsor a booth in the Plymouth Fall Festival. It offered "Kesta," made of spiced ground beef served in a pita bread pocket stuck on a stick. The purpose was two-fold: to call public attention to Farber left in January 1983 to accept a position with a brokerage firm in Ann Arbor. It was then that the agency's present director, David Breeden, assumed the postion. Breeden, a native of Saginaw, had joined the local staff as a caseworker in 1978.

Memories of old editors

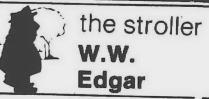

On these cold winter evenings, after listening to the weather report, The Stroller likes nothing better than to lean back in his easy chair, close his eyes, and visit again with some of the colorful editors he has met along the

On these sessions he can't forget the old editor who gave him his start years ago, and the thing that he recalls best is the day he ruled out a baby contest and ended that fad for all time

Up to that time it had been the custom each year to have a contest to select the best baby in the area. But when our paper, then in its infancy, was tempted to run such a contest he ruled it out with some great explanations.

"We can't win," he said, "The winner will claim that we had no other course, so we won't pick up a friend there. And inasmuch as all mothers think there baby is the best, they'll be our enemy for not picking them. So, out with it." And no paper has run such a contest

HE ALSO gave The Stroller some good advice that he's followed through the years.

"If you can't write anything good about a person," he advised, "don't write anything." It was good logic to follow.

When he came west The Stroller found one of the great editors in Malcolm W. Bingay, and the rules he laid down have been carried out through the

The first, and one of the most interesting, forbid the use of the words "the", "a" or "an" to start a story. This sounded easy to follow, but there were many times when a writer is tempted to use them. He also was a great follower of baseball and one of his strictest rules would be most difficult to follow today. He ruled that any time a baseball game lasted more than one hour and a half, the reason should be written near the lead in the story so the public would know. Imagine how he would feel today when games go close to three hours?

Another of his rules concerned the use of the phrase "over." Anytime he saw a bit on the paper where the writer had written "over 20,000 people," Bingay would race out of his office and take the writer to task. He claimed it was improper and that it should have been "more than." He'd say, "You jump fences, but not when figuring num-

He also had strict rules in the use of the word "whether" when it was used, as so often happens, as "whether or not." He claimed the words "or not" were unnecessary. Furthermore, he

Then there was Hal Mitchell, a night editor at the Free Press who never took off his fedora hat while working. And being a very religous man, he never used cuss words.

Hal adjusted his eye glasses that had a chain over one ear and explained, "I meant total loss and no insurance. Is there anything worse than that?"

Oh, there has been many a colorful editor along the line.

Merit finalists are announced

All six National Merit Scholarship semifinalists from Plymouth Canton High School have been named finalists.

The finalists are Tammy Budlong, Pamela Burton, Mark Davis, Jin Kim, Lisa Nelson and David Rozian.

These students now are being evaluated further by the National Merit Scholarship Progrem-for the possibility of being named merit scholars.

Attainment of finalist status is an indication of exceptional ability and is attained by only a small percentage of American high school students, said Kent Buikema, principal of Plymouth Canton High School.

Creative Casseroles Catch Compliments

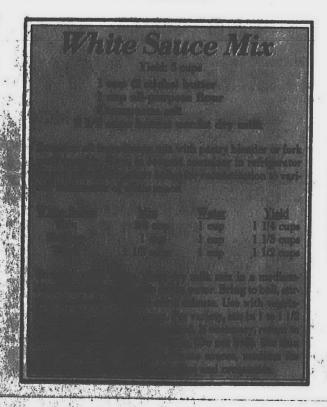

Casseroles are an important part of family lifestyles, particularly when both Mom and Dad are working. Because planning in advance, stocking non-perishable foods such as nonfat dry milk on pantry shelves and assembling dinner dishes beforehand, to heat for convenient, ready-made meals.

Dry milk in these casseroles makes it easy to enrich their flavor as well as to supplement nutritional values, especially with calcium, a mineral likely to be in short supply in most diets. Instant nonfat dry milk does not need to be reconstituted. It mixes readily when added to other ingredients.

Swiss Tomato Strata, a classic cheese-bread main dish, fortified with milk and eggs, offers proof you can make a nutritious entree with basic ingredients you probably have on hand. If you prefer a fish and pasta combo, Salmon Shell Casserole is the answer. It too needs only pantry shelf ingredients. Meatand-potato fans will enjoy Hurrah for Hamburger. If you pipe mashed potatoes decoratively around the edge and sprinkle with cheese, you'll catch plenty of compliments

The white sauce mix can be stored in your refrigerator ready to become a part of a casserole you create with your favorite vegetables, pasta, rice and meat, fish or chicken. Mix or layer the ingredients in a casserole, top with bread crumbs or crushed chips and bake long enough to heat through. Shredded cheese added as it comes from the oven will enhance the flavor.

Any casserole you refrigerate will need 15 to 20 extra minutes in the oven for thorough heating.

Swiss Tomato Strata

1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter, melted 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard

1/4 teaspoon garlic powder 1 loaf (1 pound) Italian bread, cut into 3/4-inch cubes

2 tablespoons minced green onion

1 jar (15 1/2 oz.) spaghetti sauce with mushrooms

3 cups (12 oz.) shredded Swiss cheese

1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter 1/3 cup all-purpose flour

3 eggs, beaten

1 1/2 cups condensed chicken broth I cup instant nonfat dry milk

Combine 1/4 cup melted butter, mustard and garlic powder until well blended. Place bread cubes in a large mixing bowl. Drizzle butter over bread; toss lightly; set aside. Stir green onion into spaghetti sauce. Reserve 1/2 cup of the Swiss cheese; wrap tightly in plastic wrap and refrigerate. Layer 1/3 of the bread cubes, 1/3 of the sauce and 1/3 of the cheese in a buttered 2-quart rectangular baking dish. Repeat twice; set aside. Melt 1/4 cup butter in a small saucepan. Stir in flour until smooth. Remove from heat; gradually stir in condensed broth and dry milk. Bring to boiling, stirring constantly. Boil and stir 1 minute. Stir a small amount of sauce into eggs. Return egg mixture to saucepan. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, 1 minute. Pour sauce over mixture in casserole. Cover with plastic wrap. Refrigerate several hours or overnight. Bake in preheated 350 °F. oven 40 minutes. Remove from oven and sprinkle with reserved Swiss cheese. Return to oven and bake 10 to 20 minutes, or until a knife inserted in center comes out clean.

Salmon Shell Casserole

4 ounces uncooked pasta shells 1 can (7 3/4 oz.) salmon 1 can (10 3/4 oz.) condensed cream of mushroom soup 1/2 cup instant nonfat dry milk 1/3 cup dairy sour cream teaspoon Worcestershire sauce 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard 1/4 teaspoon salt

1/8 teapoon pepper 1 1/2 cups (6 oz.) shredded Swiss cheese

1 can (2.8 oz.) french fried onions, if desired

I cup cooked peas 1 jar (2 1/2 oz.) chopped pimiento, drained

Preheat oven to 350 F. Cook pasta according to package directions; rinse, drain and set aside. Meanwhile, drain salmon, reserving liquid. Add enough water to liquid to make 1/3 cup; set aside. Bone, skin and flake salmon; set aside. Combine condensed soup, dry milk, sour cream, salmon liquid and seasonings; mix well. Stir in pasta, 1 cup cheese, peas, salmon and pimiento. Spoon into buttered 1 1/2-quart casserole. Bake 20 minutes. Remove from oven and sprinkle with onions and remaining cheese. Bake about 10 minutes longer, or until cheese is melted and mixture is hot and bubbly. Serve immediately.

For additional information on nonfat dry milk and its use in delicious, easily prepared casseroles, send a stamped, self-addressed long envelope (No.10) to American Dry Milk Institute, 130 North Franklin Street, Chicago, Illinois 60606.

Hurrah For Hamburger

CASSEROLE:

1 pound ground chuck 1/2 cup chopped onion 1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter

1/4 cup all-purpose flour 1/2 teaspoon salt

1/8 teaspoon pepper 1 1/2 cups condensed chicken broth 3/4 cup instant nonfat dry milk 1 1/2 cups (6 oz.) shredded Cheddar

1 package (10 oz.) frozen mixed vegetables, cooked and drained 1 can (4 oz.) mushroom stems and pieces, drained 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce MASHED POTATOES:

4 medium potatoes, peeled and quartered

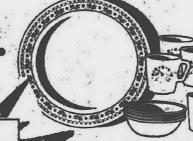

2 cups water

1 teaspoon salt 1/2 cup instant nonfat dry milk 3 tablespoons butter Salt and pepper to taste

For casserole, cook ground chuck and onion in skillet until meat is brown and crumbly; drain; set aside. Preheat oven to 375 °F. Melt butter in medium-sized saucepan. Stir in flour and seasonings until smooth. Remove from heat. Gradually stir in condensed broth and dry milk. Bring to boiling, stirring constantly. Boil and stir 1 minute. Remove from heat; stir in 1 cup cheese until melted. If necessary, return to low heat to finish melting cheese. (Do not boil). Stir in mixed vegetables, beef mixture, mushrooms and Worcestershire sauce. Spoon into 1 1/2-quart shallow casserole. Bake 20 minutes, or until hot and bubbly. Meanwhile, for mashed potatoes, boil potatoes in salted water in a covered pan until tender, 10 to 15 minutes. Drain, reserving cooking liquid. Add nonfat dry milk to 1/2 cup cooking liquid. Stir until dissolved. Mash potatoes, then add milk mixture and butter. Beat until fluffy. Season to taste. Pipe potatoes through a fluted pastry tube around edges of casserole. (Or spoon around edge). Sprinkle with remaining 1/2 cup cheese. Return to oven 5 minutes, or until cheese is melted.

Soups of all descriptions are served in Mexico. Some are referred to as liquid soups. Others are considered "dry with a stew-like consistency. Soup, Sonora style, a cross between the two, is a hearty thick vegetable-bean-cheese soul which is served with a scoop of rice. It's a complete meal and an economical one. Although meatless, it provides adequate nutrition. The rice, cheese and beans combine to form a complete protein.

Eggs are also a good and inexpensive protein source. In the form of a souffle, eggs are elegant. Add rice and cheese and the souffle becomes a hearty meal. The Mexican touch here is in the jalapenos processed in the cheese. These fiery peppers, a favorite south of the border, add the zip for interest and flavor to Jalapeno Rice Souffle.

Pay attention at the store against supermarkets that lowers my boiling point: running out of ad-vertised specials the first day of the ale. A case in point involves a chain that advertises:

"John knows! Meet John, the meat man's Meat Man. John is a professional, just like all the other mean men at (our stores). Their job is to bring you dependable top quality meats at dependable low prices. There's a new spirit at (our stores) and there's more to come. At (our stores), only the meat gets trimmed."

Dependable turned out to be only a word on a newspaper page of adver-tising. I heard the same old excuse when I dropped by in the morning to pick up the sirioin steak for $1.99 a

"The truck will be in this afternoon," the meat man said after I rang the bell to bring him out of the back

"I won't be." I fumed. I didn't even ask him if his name was John because he didn't look at all like his picture.

You can't do much when the supermarket throws you that kind of curve, except ask for a rain check or motor back to see if the truck really arrived. Another case in point:

I was looking through the display-case for chicken breast quarters at another store that were advertised at 89 cents per pound. I unstacked two rows of packages, but couldn't find any. The price stickers all read 99 cents a pound.

I pointed out the error to a meat man who was stamping prices on packaged ground beef.

"Do you want me to revise it?" he

No, I thought to myself. I'd rather pay the higher price, I said to him quite calmly, "Why not."

Thus, a package of chicken stamped $3.19 became $2.96. It may not seem like much of a saving, but multiply that by each visit to the store and it adds up.

Sometimes, supermarket price ir-regularities stare you right in the face, but don't register.

On top of the grocery bin containing bagged onions, the sale price read three pounds for $1.09. Two bins away, the same onions, loose, carried the price tag of 29 cents a pound.

I watched two women shuffle the

the view Graham

THE MUCH-MALIGNED "Good Old Days" weren't all that had. Two top news stories last week brought those good old days to mind. One was the snow storm and the other was the New Hampshire primaries.

Elections and the elements remind me of my grandfather in pre-radio, pre-television times. Grandpa had a vital interest in both. As a farmer, his livelihood was dependent on the weather. As a man of strong political preference, his peace of mind, his disposition, were dependent on the outcome of elections. The whole family suffered his anguish when the wrong party won at the polls, for he did not suffer in silence.

Grandpa was a great reader of newspapers and subscribed to dailies and weeklies all over the country, delivered by Billy the Mailman in a horse-drawn buggy. One of the first things the family did after Grandpa died was cancel about 80 percent of his subscriptions. In his day, he read them all, reading aloud items that caught his fancy. As a 7- or 8-year-old, I found this extremely boring and I'm sure grandma, the three uncles, one aunt and assorted visitors were as bored as I. But rapt attention was expected and we listened politely.

ONE OF THE FIRST things Grandpa checked out was the weather in Chicago.

In the absence of forecasts, Grandpa knew Chicago weather was heading our way.

His reactions would vary with the reports and the seasons. Rain in Chicago would trigger getting the hay in, speeding up the planting or not spraying the orchard. A thaw in Chicago would bring about the samual chiora of washing all the sap buckets and preparing for the maple syrup season.

A snowstorm in Chicago elicited the suggestion, "You boys had better bring in some extra firewood for your mother - and fill up the reservoir."

I wonder how he would have responded to full-screen "STORM WATCH" or "WEATHER WATCH" announcements on television.

It seems we over-react. People dash to the supermarkets to stock up on food, drink and cigarettes; office managers tell their employees to leave early because in a mad, off-schedule rush, we're like lemmings rushing to the sea. The result is traffic pileups, confusion and utter havoc. ELECTION YEARS were full of excitement. Everyone knew everyone's political leanings so the best of friends and neighbors became enemies in an election year. Even the farmers' dogs, normally on friendly terms, snarled at each other along political lines. All you had to do was mention the name, Mike, to Grandpa's dog, Rex, and he'd go running to the fence to make sure Mike was staying on his own property.

The excitement simmered and grew, peaking on election day. All the good guys in the neighborhood assembled at Grandpa's house election night. The bad guys were down the road at Sherk's. Results were relayed by friends in town via

It was a party line so when the long and a short, long and a short, rang to give Grandpa results, he knew they were eavesdropping at the Sherk's. He listened in on on their calls. When it was good news for Grandpa's party, he would shout, "What do you think of that, Frank

WHEN THE FINAL results were learned the next day, or the day after that, Grandpa was ready to "live and let live," if his party won. All of them had expended so much energy that calm returned, eventually. Rex and Mike discovered they could go back and forth as usual. The feud was spended, until next time. Memories of those election days in the '20s must be responsible for my reaction to the results of New Hampshire primaries. The political pundits, those know-it-all predictors, were wrong.

Those experts with their polls and computers are not infallible and I rejoice in their confusion. They have been taking the excitement out of elections for years by declaring winners a few hours after the polls open in the east.

Bernstein savors fanfare and Philharmonic

By Tim Richard staff writer

Listening to Leonard Bernstein rehearse the Vienna Philharmonic in the University of Michigan's Hill Auditorium, I remembered the last time I had heard musicians play at mid-day in street clothes. It was a fall day in 1982, and after playing the closing bars of Haydn's "Farewell" Symphony, the De-troit Symphony Orchestra walked out

Also unlike the DSO, which has a number of women members, and unlike the suburban Plymouth and Oakway symphonies, where 80 percent of the violinists are women, the Vienna Philharmonic has no women members - and isn't likely to.

Clearly, there are two sides to this business of running an orchestra demo-

BERNSTEIN MUGGED hilariously when I asked him, during the news conference later, why there were no womto pass the buck.

The stolid gentleman turned out to be Professor Alfred Altenburger, a member of the violin section and the orchestra's president. He muttered a bit in German, then answered in Eng-

"Tradition - 150 years. And we didn't want to change it."

There was another reason. Bernstein explained the VP also is the local opera orchestra in Vienna. Some days the members show up in their tuxes for a 3-6 p.m. symphonic rehearsal with him. Then they must grab a bite to eat, race across town, park and be in the opera house pit by 7 p.m. A woman, they explained, wouldn't have time to get home to prepare dinner for her family.

"It's not that women are weaker," said Bernstein. He added, "I understand Berlin finally broke down and hired two women. One is leaving

There was a third reason: The orchestra selects its own new members. "A jury from the members decides," Altenburger said. "Everything is decid-

> UNLIKE AN American conductor who has much to say about who joins the orchestra, Vienna has a different "managaement style." According to the VP's publicity:

> "All the administrative tasks from press releases and ticket distribution, to answering office phones and. decorating for the annual New Year's Ball — are performed by orchestra musicians elected to their posts by their colleagues.

"All decisions concerning repertoire and conductors — the Vienna Philharmonic currently has no resident conductor - are made by plebiscite, and all performance fees are divided evenly among the musicians. The last chair in the violin section makes the same amount of money as does the concert-

Last year the members made Bernstein, whose association with them goes back to 1966, an honorary member. "The gave me a big, campy ring, with the arms of the city," grinned the 65year-old one-time wunderkind. "This few minutes after 11 that morning, the winds greeted him with a fanfare. The elated Bernstein turned to the reporters in the audience and explained:

"You want to know what that racket was all about? This is our 100th concert together tonight. I didn't even realize it. They played the fanfare from 'Mass' and put it together with another piece so it sounded like (Charles) Ives rather than me. But they've got the spirit."

DEMOCRACY extends into performances, too.

When the orchestra rehearsed the Brahms' Symphony No. 2, I noticed the perfect unity of the violinists' bowing - all used exactly the same part of the bow, down to the inch, for each note and gave the identical emphasis. At the break, I asked Bernstein who worked out the bowings.

"I worked out the bowings," he said. "If they don't like it, we discuss it. They may say, 'We're used to doing it this way." Bernstein shrugged, as if to say they work out their differences.

"It's an inner precision — a precision of intention. Not just — umph!" he said, indicating a half-bow down stroke.

Many remarked at the rapport which the Massachusetts-born Bernstein had with this Viennese orchestra. With the New York Philharmonic (of which he is conductor laureate) and the orchestas of Israel, Boston and London, it ranks among his favorites in the world.

They almost know what I mean before I do it." he exulted.

REHEARSING the final movement of the Haydn Symphony No. 88, Bernstein jammed his hands and the baton in his pockets and let the orchestra play on its own, only signalling an em-phasis with a nod of the head and a diminuendo with a crouch. The news corps applauded at the closing chord.

"I made the ultimate demand a conductor can put on an orchestra," Bernstein explained. "They really listen to each other. And this is a strange hall a shallow stage, no depth and a lot of A reviewer noted Bernstein and the VP, who began their American tour in of the repertoire" (late 18th through 19th centuries), though Bernstein had championed the moderns as conductor of the New York Philharmonic. Why?

"Because that's what they play marvelously," he answered. "If I were touring with the Philharmonic, I would play differently; 50 percent of what we played (with New York) was 20th century music.' HE RECALLED the time in Vienna the members asked to play one of his works — "Kaddish," a symphony. "This orchestra is not famous for loving modern music or taking easily to

In 1982 the average math score for males on the Scholastic Aptitude Test was 492 vs. only 443 for females. The result is consistent with past years.

Scoring between 600 and 800 on the math test were 20 percent of the males and only 9 percent of the females. This is significant because mathe-

In high schools as well as colleges, most advanced math classes have few, if any, women enrolled. "Before they become teen-agers, little girls do well in all subjects. In high school, the paths veer apart," according to Jacqueline Scherer, sociology professor at Oakland University.

Scherer believes sufficient evidence exists to show that it is our culture and socialization, not biological limitations, which have steered women away from technology.

"As they mature, girls begin to avoid 'male' activities and, more sadly, 'male' subjects such as science and mathematics." declared Scherer.

Professor Scherer feels myths about women continue to perpetuate female isolation from technology. "These myths," she concludes, "condition our daughters and perpetuate the gulf that keeps women away from technology."

ONE MYTH promotes the persistent view that girls get along better with people and should avoid the study of objects.

A second myth encourages the believe that women are not tough-minded enough to deal with hard facts.

The third, and most insidious, myth is that women by nature have no role in technology. The perpetuation of these myths places women at a severe disadvantage when they seek jobs in the marketplace. It closes doors to women. It makes them weak in opposing the improper use of technology. In plain words, it renders them powerless.

Women currently make up more than 40 percent of the labor force in America but are substantially underrepresented in the technologies.

Canton — Salem rule WLAA

Bennett leads Chiefs to 1st title

By Chris McCosky staff writer

Monday, March 5, 1984 O&E

Never accuse Plymouth Canton basketball coach Dave Van Wagoner of

After three rather arduous years, the Chiefs are champions. They defeated Livonia Churchill 60-56 Friday night in that effect. "We're league champs this front of an exuberant crowd at Canyear and that's all I care about. Don't ton's jam-packed gym.

When asked about his team's turnaround from a 4-17 season in 1981-82 to 15-5 this year, Van Wagoner almost spit.

"Bleep that," he said, or something to ever say that again."

It was Van Wagoner's first championship, the Chiefs first since 1980-81, and he wanted to savor every moment.

"I'M JUST ecstatic," he said. "This has been the greatest year in Canton's history. Words just can't describe how I feel right now.

The game itself was a heartstopper, regardless of your allegiances. Both teams played at a championship pace. The game featured tremendous outside shooting on both ends, deft passing, and aggressive rebounding and defensive play. The game began at a fast tempo and steadily accelerated.

Churchill was well prepared for the Chiefs. The Charger zone defense effectively kept Canton sharpshooters Gary Thomas and Mike Jennings from getting off any shots.

Thus, the Chiefs were a cold five of 17 from the floor in the first quarter and Churchill led 15-11.

"We knew that is what they would try to do," said Van Wagoner. "We wanted to kick the ball inside, but we weren't able to do that at first."

Defense got the Chiefs untracked in the second quarter. The Chiefs created turnovers on the Chargers' first three possessions. Churchill committed six turnovers in the quarter.

SEEING THAT the perimeter was well-guarded, Canton's court-wise point guard Mark Bennett began puncturing the inside of the Churchill defense. He scored six points, he hit Thomas with nice passes for six more points, and when Jennings converted a three-point play, the Chiefs took a 32-27 lead into the lockerroom at half-

The game was close throughout the second half, but the Chiefs never gave Bennett was brilliant. He scored a game-high 18 points, dished out 12 assists and made four steals. He also did a good job limiting Churchill gunner John Grzybek to 12 points.

"I can't say enough about Mark Bennett," said Churchill coach Don Albertson. "He does so many things for them.

And Thomas, we did a good job on him, but when he's open, he doesn't miss."

Albertson didn't really want to tall about it, but he knew exactly why his team lost control of the game in the "It's the same thing you guys (the Observer) have been saying all season," he said. "At times we made improper shot selections. When you take improper shots, it's a turnover. We were guilty of forcing up some shots when we were four and five points ahead. We'd have done better to work the ball around."

STEVE JUODAWLKIS gave Churchill a tireless effort both offensively and on the boards. His 15 points paced the Chargers, eight in the fourth quarter. His efforts kept Churchill in the game in the final quarter.

Scott Hille added 14 for the Chargers. Grzybek had the hot hand for Churchill in the third quarter, but oddly, he took only three shots in the final eight minutes - a combination of good defense by Bennett and Churchill not getting the ball to its hot shooter.

Thomas, as he usually does, hit some clutch long-range bombs to keep Canton in control in the second half. He finished with 13 points. Jennings added 11

Both Jennings and junior leaper Jim Schlicker pulled in nine rebounds.

A pair of baskets by Juodawlkis tied the game at 46 with 5:30 left in the

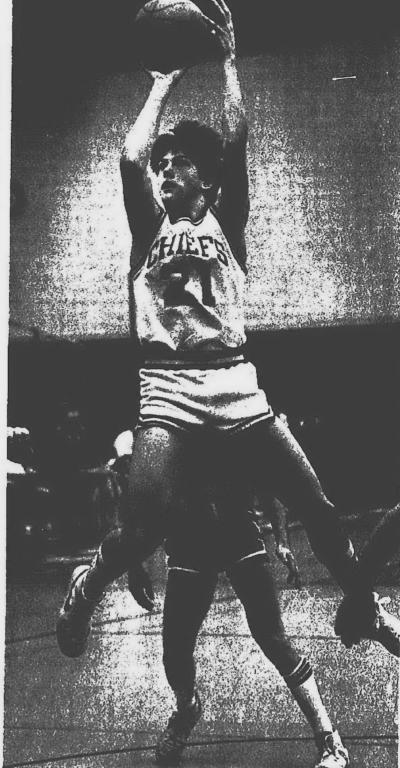

THE CHIEFS, spurred by five quick points by Bennett, reeled off a 9-2 spurt. From there it was a matter of hitting free throws - which the Chiefs did and the Chargers didn't. Canton hit six of 11 down the stretch, while Churchill went 0-6.

"I felt we were the better team," said Van Wagoner. "and that it was just a matter of time before we wore them down, collected ourselves and got the victory. It was a total team victory."

Said Albertson: "I'm very happy for Dave and his team. They have gone beyond the goals they set for themselves, which was to win the division title. I don't feel down about this game at all. We went out like champions."

Finally, as the celebration in the gym was quieting down and there was a lull between that and the celebration that would occur later, Van Wagoner was asked what he was going to say to 13 points in Canton's win over Churchill.

Chuck Olson was a happy coach Friday night. His Plymouth Salem swim squad had just won its second consecutive Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) title. But this championship was a bit different.

Last year it was real enjoyable, from a coach's standpoint," Olson said moments after his Rock team clinched the title with a winning performance in the 400-yard freestyle relay. "There were a lot more gray hairs this year."

THOSE "GRAY HAIRS" can be directly traced to the closeness of this year's meet. Salem won the title by a slim 14.5 point margin, ahead of Livo-nia Stevenson. Farmington finished third, 54.5 points behind Stevenson, with Northville fourth, Livonia Churchill fifth and Plymouth Canton sixth.

Four league records fell, two courtesy of Stevenson, and there were two double-winners in individual events. Salem and Stevenson each had three wins, while Farmington and Churchill had two apiece. "We had a real good prelims and finals," Olson said. "Stevenson got real tough tonight after the diving.

"But our guys came through in the clutch, really. It's called intense."

IF BEING INTENSE means winning, then Erik Kleinsmith was on top

(48.94) and 200-yard (1:47.35) freestyles - and anchored the Rocks' triumphant 400 free relay team of Bob Bowling, Jon Cain and Greg Wolff (3:21.83).

Kleinsmith's time in the 100 free broke his own WLAA record of 49.19 set in this year's preliminaries.

Stevenson's Kurt Hein enjoyed a fantastic meet that might have been even better. Hein teammed with Kevin won two events himself — the 100-yard Everhart, Dennis Ward and Steve Toarmina to win the 200 medley relay (1:40.21), shattering the previous record of 1:43.13 set last year by Stevenson.

Hein later got his name in the league record books by splashing to first in the 50 free (22.12), lowering the WLAA mark of 22.51 he set a year ago.

March sadness?

Chances vary for area basketball teams

ARCH MADNESS could quickly turn into March Sadness for many area basketball teams this week.

This has not been a banner year for Observerland basketball. At least one Observerland team is guaranteed a berth in a regional tournament. The Livonia Churchill District is comprised of five Observerland teams.

But that may be the only area team to escape district tournaments.

Certainly teams like Plymouth Salem and Bishop Borgess have legitimate shots at winning their districts, as does Plymouth Canton and Catholic Central - but the odds, at this point, are stacked against them.

Let's take a look at the area hopefuls and see what kind of chance they have of tasting some March gladness. For the fun of it, let's list the teams according to their chances of escaping the Livonia Stevenson: The Spartans have played great and terrible this season. They are indeed a mystery team. Luckily for them, they are in a weak district - Livonia Churchill. Even more fortunate for them, they drew a first-round bye. Churchill will offer the stiffest challenge to the Spartans. The Spartans have a wealth of talent. They can be awesome. But, if they play the lackluster, stand-around type of game they offered against Canton Wednesday, they won't beat anyone. Plymouth Salem: The Rocks, despite losses to Canton and Churchill, are the best "team" in the area. They have, however, the task of bettering a very powerful Wayne Memorial team in the Canton district. It won't be easy. The Rocks have been deeply hurt by the ineligibility of Barry Bell. They have had to restructure their lineup and are still searching for the right combinations. This tournament is the last hurrah for seniors Rick Berberet, Erich Hartnett and Jeff Arnold. Look for them to be at the top of their game.

Bishop Borgess: The Spartans run stnack-dab into Detroit Henry Ford in the first round of their district. The winner of that game tonight will most likely survive the rest of the tournament, although Redford Catholic Central is no pushover. Spartan guard Joe Gregory has averaged 21 points and nine assists this season. He is a very exciting player and, if he gets hot, he could carry the Spartans into the Livoinia Franklin regional.

Catholic Central: The Shamrocks have the best player in the area in John McIntyre. Mac leads the area in scoring (27.5 points), and averages 8 assists and II rebounds per game. And he's only a junior. Unfortunately for CC, to win the district, they will have to upset either Henry Ford or Borgess (the Shamrocks did beat the Spartans this season).

Livonia Churchill: The Chargers have been playing good basketball of late. The players seem to finally understand their roles and Scott Hille, a transfer from Redford St. Mary, has given them a tremendous lift. Churchill also has the home court advantage. The Chargers drew Franklin in the first round. The Pats ripped them two weeks ago. If Churchill survives that game, they will meet Stevenson in the semis. The district champion will most-likely emerge from that game.

North Farmington: The Raiders are young and they are forever improving. After a 1-6 start, they have won eight of 11 games. Sophomore Rick Anderson has blossomed into a consistent scorer and rebounder. Junior Bob Chwalik is strong and physical inside, plus he possesses a soft shooting touch. Steve Bambach can be deadly from the perimeter and point guard Rick Pennala brings all the pieces together for Tom Negoshian's team. To win the district, though, they will have to upset the host team - Southfield.

Redford Thurston: The Eagles have a great shot at getting into the Oak Park district championship game. If they do, however, they will probably have to deal with Oak Park, one of the best Class B teams in the state. That's a mighty tough assignment. Coach Gary Fralick and the Eagles put together a fine season despite losing talents George Sibel and Jim Weiss from last year's NSL title Westland John Glenn: The Rockets, Northwest Suburban League champs, are in the Canton district and have Salem in the first round. It's a tough draw, but the Rockets are very capable of beating the Rocks. Mario Grazulis, Mike Baydarian and Jeff Hawley have steadily improved throughout the season. While many teams have faded toward the end of the season, Gordie Davis' crew seems to be hitting stride right now. If they do get by Salem, they will have to beat rival Wayne - a team that has defeated the Rockets twice this season.

Plymouth Canton: The Chiefs are enjoying their most successful season. Unfortunately, they drew Wayne in the first round of the district. Still, if the Zebras don't come to play, Mark Bennett, Gary Thomas and company will beat them. Just ask Salem and Stevenson. The Chiefs, a small team, have held their own against their taller Western Lakes foes. But Wayne is much more powerful inside than the most powerful among Western Lakes teams.

Garden City: You have to give Bob Dropp's club a shot at the Churchill district title. In fact, all five teams have a shot at it. That says something about the quality of the Churchill district, doesn't it? Scott McCloskey, though, is one of the area's top players averaging 20 points and 11 rebounds per game.

Briggs faces tough choice

ARLOS BRIGGS has come a long way. He came out of Detroit Benedictine High School three years ago like a wild stallion waiting to be tamed. He was a basketball player with nothing better than a high-scoring average. Defense was a foreign language.

Briggs, a muscular 6-foot-1 athlete, was undisciplined and that's exactly what Schoolcraft College got when he arrived in January 1982 after a brief stint at El Camino Junior College in

But after showing his stuff last week in the Michigan Community College Athletic Association tournament at Delta College, Briggs may have erased his bad-rap image, which is often associated with being the nation's leading scorer.

On Wednesday night, Briggs was asked by his coach, Quinton Watkins, to control the tempo and play "team ball" against a 21-7 Delta team. The result was a 53-52 Schoolcraft win. Briggs scored only 13 points, 17 below his average, but more importantly grabbed six rebounds, had six assists and made three steals.

ON THURSDAY NIGHT there was a different challenge - wheeling and dealing Highland Park, a team which could send any one of three players to a major college program.

Hot-shooting Highland Park scored the first 10 points of the ballgame and led Schoolcraft by 19 at the half. But to Briggs' credit, he wouldn't let his teammates quit. The Ocelots fought back and pulled within five with 1:14 to play. Schoolcraft, however, simply ran out of time and lost, 98-88.

Briggs played 39 minutes and 52 seconds without a break. Fouling out with eight seconds to play, Briggs had scored 30 second-half points to finish with 42, drawing a light applause from the 100 or so spectators on hand.

But nobody in the stands knew that the black kid with red hair had finished his career with nearly 2,000 points and a bundle of assists, steals and rebounds.

That's the way it's been for Briggs, who has played in relative obscurity.

"FORTY-TWO POINTS," muttered Highland Park coach Glen Donahue, combing the scorebook. "Holy Christ - I don't remember anyone ever scoring 42 points against us. And we put our best defensive player, Herman Hill, on him."

Briggs played seven times against Highland Park and gave Donahue's teams trouble every step of the way. "Carlos is a tremendous player, especially on the offensive end," Donahue added. "He shot on us inside and played very hard on defense tonight "He made some key steals and played us tough. I really respect his game. He's a fine Division I pros-

Briggs is finally getting the respect of major colleges. Schools such as San Diego State, Baylor, Oklahoma City, Murray State. Cincinnati. Central Michigan and Central Florida have expressed interest.

But there was a time when Briggs wondered if anyone would offer him a scholarship.

"I HAVE no regrets about coming to Schoolcraft," said the personable Briggs. "There were a lot of good times and bad times, but I learned a lot from the bad times.

"I received a good education and I got my associate's degree, so I can move on further. I think I've turned around since high school."

Briggs and the coach they call "Rocky" went 'round and 'round for two seasons. Watkins would often yell at his star and kick him out of prac-

Watkins, however, never gave up on the prize pupil.

"Carlos is the type of player who is just irreplaceable," said Watkins. "You come across a player of Carlos' ability once every five or six years — if you're lucky. I'm really going to

Briggs, a sensitive kid, often appears frustrated on the court, but during the second half of the season he seemed to gain control of his emotions and become a leader both on and off the court.

BUT SCHOOLCRAFT'S under .500 season bugged him. (The Ocelots won the Eastern Conference title last Losing to Highland Park four times this season also left him sore, but to his credit, he played hard until the final act, staying away from the foolish fouls which plagued him early in his junior college career.

Briggs shook the hands of his adversaries when it was all over and later reflected on his final game: "We got down in the first half because we were lackadaisical, but we got back because the guys showed some heart and the desire to win.

"You can't blame the coach. He did all he could do "

Wherever he ends up, Briggs knows there's room for improvement through more hard work.

But you get the feeling he came of age Thursday night, and some fouryear school is going to be mighty

Rocks tune up for districts, rout Bentley

There were a couple of objectives Plymouth Salem had going into its game Thursday against Livonia Bent-

One was to "reset our sights for the (state) districts," according to Salem coach Fred Thomann. The second was to keep 6-foot-8 Bentley center Phil Graczyk from having a big night scor-

Both goals were reached, and rather easily, as the Rocks romped past Bentley 70-48 at Salem.

They really didn't mount an offense where they had to," Thomann said of Bentley. "Rick (Berberet) guarded Graczyk most of the game, but we dou-

Salem jumped to a 12-4 lead and never trailed. The Rocks outpointed Bentley in every quarter and, as Thomann "We methodically took them apart, really."

As for getting ready for the state district tournament which starts Monday at Plymouth Canton, Salem has tuned up with consecutive lopsided victories this week. On Wednesday, the Rocks pummeled Farmington, 68-40.

of box-office smash "Footloose" has been playing to successful box-office all around town, as well as all around the country. Viewing it leaves one big.

unanswered question: "Why?" Perhaps it's spring, harbinger of summer rock-'n'-roll movies for the vast teen-age audience.

Last week's storm cured me of that misconception.

"Footloose's" success may result from a promotional music-video spinoff on MTV. Last spring Paramount successfully set a new movie merchandising trend with its music video of Michael Sembello's "Maniac" from "Flashdance." Most box office is generated by 12 to 25 year olds, MTV's most faithful viewers. Ergo, big box-

"Footloose" advances the theory that rock music and dancing are the keys to salvation. If you believe that, you'll probably like

IF YOU HAVE some other idea about what's important in life, you may not be overwhelmed by this latest entry in the teen movie sweepstakes. If you expect a sensible story (even by musical comedy standards) sweepstakes. If you expect a sensible story (even by musical comedy standards) you're in for a major disappointment.

Scriptwriter Dean Pitchford obviously flunked Logic and Dramatic Credibility while studying in the Whatever-Sticks-to-the-Wall School of Writing. Imagine a story as ridiculous as this:

Chicago teen-ager Ren MacCormack (Kevin Bacon) moves to a small Midwestern town (Bomont) with his mother, Ethel (Franes Lee McCajn). (Things are so bad that the moviemakers had to truck out to Utah to find a small, Midwestern town where much of "Footloose" was filmed). "Footloose" was filmed).

The town is "run" by the local minister, the Rev. Shaw Moore (John Lithgow), who prohibits dancing because his son was killed five years earlier in a drunken auto accident after a school dance.

In his ministerial zeal to ban dancing, the Rev. Moore somehow missed cigarette smoking, beer drinking and motorbiking as sources of moral contamination. Nor does he seem aware that his daughter Ariel (Lori Singer) is kissing boys and riding two motor vehicles at once (a neat but dangerous trick) and is involved in other wild stuff, including — promise you won't tell — S-e-x!

NATURALLY THIS free-spirited girl quickly falls in love with our hero, who is rapidly ostracized by the town because of his dancing compulsion. Frankly, if that's all he had on his mind, they should have tarred and feathered him. And don't tell me his urge to dance represents youth's progressive spirit.

Ren is preoccupied with staging a school dance. By some mystical legerdemain, Screenwriter Pitchford equates banning dancing with burning books and invokes the First Amendment. For once I was glad that the forces of bigotry had the upper hand.

The town's over-reaction to Ren's dancing proposal includes book-burning, midnight lynch-mob bricks through the window, a "stacked" town meeting and the minister's daughter, Ariel, beaten by her ex-boyfriend, while she smashes his truck headlights.

All that drama, some intense, some silly, is interspersed with stagey but energetic musical numbers. These are entertaining but just don't mix well in the film's mish-mash of styles, ideas and stories.

But in the end, have no fear, Having written himself into a dramatic corner, Pitchford stages a dance across the town boundary in a grain warehouse the kids have decorated, Ren beats up the town bullies just before the dance and — with hardly a hair musped — leads grateful, well-dressed teen-agers in a rousing

THEY SURE HAD a lot of formal clothes in that small town. Remarkable how well they danced the latest Break and Wave steps after a five-year layoff.

Hard to believe? Yep! But the first four days' national box-office exceeded $8.5 million. You figure it out.
