City will get to review sewer rates

The city of Plymouth will be participating in a review committee to look at rates charged to users of the so-called Son of Super Sewer.

The Plymouth City Commission tonight will appoint a delegate and an alternate to serve on the Huron Valley Wastewater Control System Rate Review Committee (RRC).

The Commission also will be asked to approve the constitution and bylaws for the RRC which is being established to give participating municipalities a voice in charges for sewage disposal.

The bylaws call for each member municipality to appoint an elected official as a delegate, and an alternate (who does not have to be an elected official).

The City Commission is expected to name Commissioner William Robinson as delegate with city engineer Ken West as alternate. Morrison is a Certified Public Accountant who works in downtown Plymouth.

The purpose of the committee will be to review the apportionment of costs and to review the rates to be charged for operating the system. The committee also will make recommendations on apportionments and rates to the Wayne County Board of Public Works, and to submit names of firms to be used as independent auditors of the system.

AFTER EFFORTS failed to construct the Super Sewer waste treatment and disposal system, a scaled-down version was organized officially known as the Huron Valley Wastewater Control System.

The system has been divided into the North Huron Valley project and the Rouge Valley Project.

Originally the city of Plymouth refused to participate in Super Sewer because it did not need any additional sewer capacity and did not want to participate in sharing the cost.

After repeated attempts, the city finally was coaxed into being a member municipality of the new system with the pledge given by Wayne County that the city won't have to share in the cost of the system.

The recommended project carries an estimated cost of about $110 billion based on 1985 cost projections, according to Bob St. Claire of Wade, Trim and Associates in November 1983.

The recommended combined project represents a savings of some $42 million over independent projects, according to St. Claire who estimates costs for the independent projects to be $30 million for the Rouge Valley improvements and $122 million for the North Huron Valley work.

Among the communities participating in the rate-review process will be Dearborn Heights, Garden City, Inkster, Livonia, Redford Township, Wayne and Westland.

AT TONIGHT'S meeting the Plymouth City Commission also is expected to approve dates for meetings to discuss the proposed 1984-85 operating budget.

The Commission plans to hold a study session at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, April 9 at Plymouth City Hall and, if needed, on Tuesday and Wednesday, April 10, 11. A public hearing on the budget will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday, April 30.

Tonight's meeting will begin at 7:30 in Commission chambers upstairs of City Hall at Church and Main.

After-shift classes are popular Ford-Sheldon Plant attraction

At one local company, some workers willingly come in two hours early or stay two hours late at least twice a week. And the plant doesn't pay the workers extra for their overtime.

During those extra hours, the workers are not employees but students.

Instead of manning production lines, they sit at tables in the company's lunchroom and labor over math or reading and writing assignments given by two teachers from Plymouth-Canton Community School's Department of Continuing Education.

"This is the most rewarding work I've ever done," said Patricia Flaherty, who teaches three math classes, four days a week, to employees at Ford Motor Company's Sheldon Road Plant in Plymouth.

"These students are 'gung-ho' about learning. They have the ability and intelligence, they just need to review basic skills. In high school, many are not at the stage in life where they appreciate the educational process. They do as little as they have to do to get by.

"Here, they know they have a lack of skills and are grateful for help. Some tell me, 'when I was taught this in school, it was way over my head.' Some even ask for additional, harder work."

THE CLASSES, which run 15 weeks each and have been held at the plant since September, are a joint effort of the school district, the United Auto Workers (UAW), the company and Schoolcraft College. The classes are free to Ford employees.

The school district designs each course taught and pays the salary of the two teachers who come to the plant. Both the UAW and Ford pay part of the costs. Schoolcraft makes sure the students get the right courses to make for an easier transfer to college.

Two Canton residents teach the classes. Flaherty, who is a substitute teacher in the district's high schools, teaches one class in computer math and two classes in individualized math. Karen Bossieux teaches one class which, if completed successfully, gives the employee the equivalent of a high school degree through the General Education Development (GED) program.

Before the courses were launched, employees were asked to name classes which would be most helpful to them.

Flaherty said employees take the classes for three main reasons.

"SOME REALIZE the auto industry is changing, becoming more automated, and they want to be ready. Others want to prepare themselves for subjects such as computers and electronics. Some need a high school degree. Others just want to refresh themselves."

The classes are small, 5 to 10 students in each. Computer math is a formal, more traditional class, with weekly quizzes and everyone getting the same instruction.

Individualized math is exactly as the words say — students get instruction at their own level and work at their own pace.

"Some are on fractions and decimals. Others are on algebra or geometry," Flaherty said. "There's a lot of preparation involved for the teacher. It's not one class you have to prepare for — you are preparing for each member of the class."

Since September, Bossieux has been preparing employees to take their high school equivalency test. The test, broken down into five parts, will be given May 14-16 in Plymouth Canton High School. It measures a student's competency in reading, writing, science, math and social studies.

"THE HARDEST part for them is writing skills," Bossieux said.

"The GED uses formalized, academic English. Students are used to conversational English, such as they see in newspapers."

Flaherty described the classes as "still in their infancy stage," with structural changes in the program likely to come next September. Because of the erratic nature of the work at the plant, she would like to see the formal classes dropped and a learning center set up instead.

"The work at the plant is not that cut and dried to allow for regularly scheduled classes," she said. "There are too many variables here, which means workers might not be at work. When the line shuts down or they run out of parts, people get off earlier or later and it affects classes."

She proposes, instead, a learning center set up in the plant's lunchroom which would be open from 1-5 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

Workers could then drop in according to their work schedule, putting in their required hours as it fits into their schedule.

Out-of-court settlement ends dispute over landfill

By Dan Vecchioni
staff writer

A long-standing dispute between Canton Township and the operators of a local landfill was resolved last week when the two sides agreed to a consent judgment that provides each with some concessions.

Under the agreement, Michigan Waste System will be permitted to continue operating the Woodland Meadows Landfill. The company opened the landfill in 1983 despite opposition from the township.

The township, in return, will receive $250,000 lump-sum payment from Michigan Waste System, assurance that the landfill will never be used for hazardous waste disposal, up to $15,000 in assistance in constructing a bicycle motor-cross (BMX) race course, and eventual control of the historic Hasselbach homestead.

The consent judgment was reached last Tuesday and will take effect as soon as it is entered in the Michigan Court of Appeals, where the two parties have carried their dispute.

THE AGREEMENT was described as "very good for Canton" by both township attorney Dave Berry, who recommended the compromise, and the township's director of planning, James Kosteva.

"It was quite a satisfactory agreement from the township's point of view especially when you consider that our chances of closing the landfill were very slim," Kosteva said.

"Our backs were to the wall. But we gained some compensation and hopefully reduced the potential for long-term environmental degradation."

He pointed out that the township's case was hampered by the fact the landfill already was in operation, a circuit judge had ruled against the township, and the state and county had usurped local control of landfill operations.

The 100-acre landfill, located south of the Conrail railroad tracks near Hannan Road in Canton's southeast corner, first came to the attention of the township in late 1981 when Michigan Waste System applied for a permit for it.

At the time, Kosteva said, Michigan Waste System operated a landfill north of the Conrail tracks that received both municipal and hazardous wastes. In their permit application, Waste System proposed using the then-undeveloped site south of the tracks as a landfill for the same types of wastes.

"THE TOWNSHIP denied approval," Kosteva said. The township's position was the landfill should not be used for hazardous waste disposal and Waste System's proposed height for the landfill violated township limitations, Kosteva said.

Waste System, however, sought and obtained approval through other means. The firm took the township to Wayne Circuit Court where Judge Charles Farmer ruled in 1982 in favor of the landfill. The Michigan Department of Natural Resources, under the auspices of Michigan Public Act 641, also approved the landfill.

In appealing the approvals, the township challenged Waste System's claim that the proposed landfill was a continuation of the landfill north of the tracks and proclaimed it had local control over the placement of landfills. In the meantime, Waste System opened the landfill in January 1983.

The $250,000 payment called for in the settlement was based on the township's estimated future tax loss resulting from the site's limited future use.

ACCORDING TO Kosteva, the Woodland Meadows site is in a prime location for industrial use.

Kosteva said the site was located on a major road, was near a major intersection and had railroad access. The use of the site as a landfill reduces its potential future uses, he said.

The $250,000 payment will be made to the township at the time the consent judgment is entered in the court.

Instructor challenges SC sabbatical policy

By Kathy Parrish
staff writer

Schoolcraft College's way of approving sabbaticals is being questioned.

The school's policy is being reviewed following a complaint by an instructor who was recommended for a year's leave but didn't receive one.

In examining the issue, the college will take a look at its paperwork — which doesn't seem to agree with contract guarantees. "The form sent out by the personnel office doesn't agree with the contract," said Lawrence Ordowski, assistant dean of liberal arts and mathematics.

At a board of trustees meeting last week, the Sabbatical Leave Committee recommended leaves for three faculty members. All were endorsed unanimously by the seven member committee.

Of six applicants, two others were "recommended" but not granted. One received no support and was "not recommended."

On the "highly recommended" list were Ronald Rogowski, who plans to become more proficient in Neuro-Linguistic Programming, Donald Waldenmayer, who wants to continue research in using a microcomputer for generating improved instructional aids, and Michael Malinowski, who will investigate using computers in English instruction.

But English instructor Michael O'Toole, one of the two whose projects were recommended but not approved for leave, objected to the process.

O'Toole protested that he was not interviewed about his plan to learn more about the relationship between language use and mass media, especially television.

As backup, he cited the application form which reads "I am aware that I will be contacted for an interview with the Sabbatical Leave Committee."

"Why wasn't I contacted?" asked O'Toole. "I received no notification until the day I was turned down."

BUT WHILE the application guarantees an interview, Schoolcraft's contract apparently doesn't.

Lawrence Ordowski, who headed the Sabbatical Leave Committee, said its members followed the current master contract which says it "may require additional or supplemental information from the applicants."

"We felt as a committee to be fair to all the applicants we wouldn't interview anyone," Ordowski said.

Criteria included the purpose of the leave, actions to accomplish while on it, timetable, method of evaluation, degree of success during leave, and the value of the leave to the applicant and the college.

Instead of approving the sabbaticals, trustees sent the recommendations back to the Sabbatical Leave Committee for more study. They also requested a full list of applicants, instead of just the "highly recommended" ones.

Schoolcraft College president Richard McDowell said the college is in favor of sabbatical leaves, but finances keep it from granting all the requests.

"It's not that we're against leaves. We've been very liberal in how we've supported this," explained the president.

"We're in support of him (O'Toole) having a leave as well as others. It's just a question of the number granted."

ORTHOTICS NOT JUST FOR ATHLETES

QUESTION: I have read articles about orthotic devices being used to relieve the pressure and stress on the feet of athletes, particularly runners. What are they, and could they help someone whose job requires a lot of walking and standing?

ANSWER: Orthotic devices are shoe inserts contoured to hold your feet in their best functioning positions. They are made from impregnated, or casts of your feet and can compensate for certain abnormalities or problems.

ANYONE who suffers from painful feet or fatigue due to poor foot function may benefit from use of these devices. They can provide increased comfort, reduce jarring, and even help prevent corns and calluses from forming.

Students learn hardships of handicapped

Wendy Palm steadies herself as she wheels up the ramp leading to the Architecture Building at LIT. "There were a lot of things I hadn't thought about," she said after her experiment. "I'd make more than one access to the building and design things low enough so people can reach them."

MINDY SAUNDERS/staff photographer

By Carol Azizian
staff writer

KARL VOLLMAR dribbled water all over his shirt after trying to reach the drinking fountain from a wheelchair.

Wendy Palm broke her fingernails and injured her knuckles while maneuvering through narrow doorways.

Vollmar and Palm aren't handicapped. They're architecture students who wanted to put themselves in the shoes of physically impaired persons.

The pair, along with nearly 100 other sophomores from Lawrence Institute of Technology, Southfield, strapped themselves in wheelchairs last week to negotiate an obstacle course set up in the college's architecture building.

"We want students to experience first hand the frustrations and problems the handicapped have to deal with so they will better understand Michigan's barrier-free access code," said James Abernethy, associate professor of architecture.

For years, the ins and outs of designing barrier-free buildings were discussed in course lectures, Abernethy pointed out. But, book learning can't replace experience, he said.

"I came to the realization that many students had no idea what it was like to be handicapped. Now, when they hear somebody talk about how much force it takes to open a door, they'll know what it means."

THE FIRST LESSON was a lecture by Stan Haack, president of the Rehabilitation Resource Center of Michigan. The center loaned wheelchairs for LIT's experiment.

Next, students were required to accomplish several feats in a wheelchair: buy food or drinks from a vending machine; enter a classroom, find a desk and write comments; use a drinking fountain; go to the restroom; open a window; negotiate an outdoor ramp; go down the wheelchair lift; and use a computer in the computer room.

The experiment continues through April. During LIT's open house on May 5-6, members of the public will be invited to test the obstacle course themselves.

The course is set up in the architecture building, which was constructed before Michigan's barrier-free code was established.

"They (the students) had to take risks," Abernethy said. "The phrase — no pain, no gain — had a lot of truth in this (exercise)."

Tom Phillips Jr. tries unsuccessfully to reach the top shelf of a sandwich vending machine. He also got wet while trying to get water from a drinking fountain and had trouble squeezing through some doors.

Besides experiencing difficulty with the drinking fountain, Vollmar had trouble maneuvering in the bathroom because there were no rails. He also found the outdoor ramps "a little steep."

But he did learn a valuable lesson. "I appreciate where they're (handicapped persons) coming from a little better," he said.

"Before, I would have done the minimum designs to (meet) the code. Now, I'll make sure there's enough room for them to get around."

Palm quickly became frustrated trying to reach things from a wheelchair.

"The towel dispensers in the bathroom were too high," she said. "The doorways were too narrow."

Palm was familiar with the hardships of handicapped persons from her work experience in a nursing home. But she didn't realize all the trials and tribulations of moving through a commercial building with few provisions for the physically impaired.

Dumas is seeking return to county commission

Wayne County Commissioner Mary E. Dumas will seek re-election to the 10th Commission District, which includes Livonia, Plymouth and Northville.

Citing 11 years of effort toward Wayne County reform, Dumas, a Republican, wants to stay in office until the job is completed.

She cited her leadership in the county reorganization movement, heading a petition drive and introducing resolutions to get the county executive proposal on the ballot.

"There were many deficiencies in the former system including trying to operate Wayne County by committee and the refusal of the old board of auditors to bring county budgetary practices in line with the state auditing requirements," Dumas said.

She was first elected to the county board in 1972 and currently serves as the chairwoman of the public safety and judiciary committee. She is a member of the audit committee, and internal affairs committee.

Dumas was the first woman to be appointed to committee leadership as vice chair of the general government committee. She also was vice chair of the corrections committee and chair of the committee on youth services and juvenile justice.

"One of my first priorities has been the fight against crime and juvenile delinquency," she said.

A member of the National Association of Counties' crime and public safety committee, Dumas helped establish national county policy.

She has testified before congressional and legislative committees on behalf of legislation and monies to curb and prevent juvenile crime.

"As critical as the problems of law enforcement are, other county needs must also be addressed. As a county representative on the SEMCOG executive council and its council on regional development, I have been deeply involved in the questions of regional transportation, land use, housing needs and air and water quality control," she said.

Dumas, a Livonia resident for more than 20 years, has been active in the community. Her three children attended Livonia schools and Schoolcraft College.

Prior to election as county commissioner, she served for two years on the Schoolcraft College Board and is a member of that school's Women's Advisory Council.

Dumas has worked as a volunteer on the Madonna College Fund Drive and a volunteer probation officer in the 16th District Court.

"County services and functions reach into all areas of community life and require that a commissioner have a broad knowledge of government responsibilities, whether in relation to sewers and roads or health care and law enforcement," she said.

"I recognize the duty to provide county taxpayers and residents with county services in the most cost-effective way possible and to monitor the spending of their tax dollars.

"I believe that I am well equipped by my background and experience to set county policy and draft the ordinances which will provide Wayne County with a stable, financially sound future under our new charter," she said.

Consumers brochures now easier to read

Visually impaired consumers now are able to obtain brochures in large print from the Michigan Consumers Council.

Included are "Michigan Consumer Protection Act," "How to Sue Someone in Small Claims Court," "What to Do When You Can't Pay Your Bills," "How to Complain," "How to Review and Appeal Your Property Tax Assessment," "Complaint Referral Guide" and "How to Buy a Used Car."

"Over the years our brochures have assisted and informed thousands of consumers throughout the state," said director Kent Wilcox.

"Unfortunately, there are consumers with special print needs who have not been able to utilize this information because of impaired eyesight."

Consumers Council has changed the design and print specifications of its most popular brochures. Wilcox said consumers interested in particular issues not addressed by the brochures should contact its Lansing office.

The large-print brochures, as well as all other information materials, are available at no charge. They can be obtained by writing Michigan Consumers Council, 414 Hollister Building, 106 W. Allegan, Lansing, MI 48933 or by calling 517-373-0947.

CEP, Lowell bands achieve

Entering band competitions paid handsome dividends recently for bands from Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

The 51-member Centennial Educational Park (CEP) Symphony Orchestra received a first division rating from all four judges at the District Orchestra Festival at John Glenn High School in Westland last month.

CEP performs in class AA, the highest classification at the orchestra festival. First division rating is defined as "superior" by the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association, sponsor of the festivals.

The Lowell Middle School Orchestra was awarded a division II rating at a recent Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association festival in Saline. The Lowell Orchestra was the only one from Plymouth-Canton schools to enter the competition. It marks the first year Lowell has participated.

THE INFLUENCE OF WEATHER ON ARTHRITIS

People with arthritis have a reputation for being able to predict a change in the weather. "Feel it in my bones," they say.

Studies by rheumatologists have uncovered the basis for this ability. The key is the barometric pressure fluctuations in this variable of weather correlate well with changes in joint pains.

The up and down shifts of barometric pressure are paralleled by corresponding expansion and contraction of the bones at joint surfaces. Thus a rise in atmospheric pressure will cause a slight enlargement of bones. This small movement, occurring within a confined joint space, results in pain as irritated surfaces rub against each other.

Thus, leaving Michigan for a warm climate is unlikely to cure your arthritis, as continual changes in barometric pressure occur everywhere. But take heart realizing that you cannot run away from arthritis is the first step toward dealing with your joint pain in a resolute manner.

Graper became Plymouth's 12th manager

(Part 3)

Plymouth's ninth manager was 6' 4" Richard D. Blodgett, who came here from Marysville, Ohio, where he had been city manager. He arrived in August 1965.

During his five years the city observed the centennial (1967) of its establishment as a village, with an assist from the Lord Mayor of Plymouth, England, and three colleagues who travelled 3,700 miles to break bread and participate in the celebration with their American cousins.

While Blodgett was manager, the city adopted a master plan for Kellogg Park (1967-68); became the third city in Michigan to approve an Open Housing ordinance (1968); built new parking lots; and relocated "Plymouth Rock" from the center to the east end of Kellogg Park (1968). Blodgett left Plymouth in 1970 to become manager of Bloomington, Ill.

Next came Norman M. Gaffney, who had been Henry Graper's predecessor as city manager of Dowagiac. Gaffney, who apparently rubbed some of the city commissioners the wrong way, had a short tenure. He arrived in January 1971, and left in December 1972.

It was during his regime that the city held a referendum to decide whether to put money into an iron removal plant to diminish the hardness of local water, or to convert to Detroit water. Those who favored Detroit water won by the narrow margin of 12 votes.

HENRY GRAPER's immediate predecessor as city manager was Plymouth's 11th, Fred L. Yockey.

Yockey came here from Midland which he had managed for seven years. While he was here a "Citizens Committee for United Services" was established. Composed of residents of the city and township, its purpose was to study the feasibility and desirability of combining selected municipal services. It was a decided step away from the contention of the past.

Yockey, who left the job in August 1979, was among those who believed that consolidation of city and township into one government was inevitable. He said it might come about when population in the township reached a density of about 1,500 people per square mile.

"That's when township people usually begin asking for city-type services," he said. "Lacking consolidation, we will continue to have two divided, wasteful governmental units at cross purposes with each other."

"At present," he continued, "there is considerable duplication including two police departments, two fire departments, two of everything." Yockey was speaking in 1976; since then the city and township have been sharing some of their services.

Henry E. Graper Jr. became Plymouth's 12th manager late in 1979. He had been manager at Dowagiac, a city of 6,800 with another 5,000 in the surrounding area. He had managed Dowagiac since 1970 when he succeeded Gaffney there.

SINCE ARRIVING in Plymouth, Graper has served under three mayors and three City Commissions.

All of them have welcomed and supported his goal-oriented plans — plans that have made Plymouth a different city, in a number of respects, than it was when he took over the job.

Innovations at Graper's prompting, or under his guidance, have involved the city's relationship with neighboring governmental bodies, particularly Plymouth Township; the city's fiscal policies; its efforts to maintain a sound economic base during the recent recession; and actions that have resulted in changing even the physical appearance of the city.

A few examples. Joint programs were set up with Plymouth Township in an effort to cut expenses. These have involved the public library, the police force, the building and engineering department, the recreation department, and senior citizens' services.

The city and township now jointly run what was once a branch of the Wayne County Library. The city has a contract to provide the township with police and building department services. The city shares the funding of senior citizen in-home support services with the city of Northville and the townships of Plymouth, Canton and Northville.

Old-time residents who remember the rancor that once existed between city and township officials are agreeably surprised at the spirit of amity that now exists between the two bodies.

The Plymouth Cultural Center, once considered a "white elephant" because it was operated at a loss, has been renovated and brought to an almost break-even point.

The city has cooperated with business groups to attract and support hot air balloon festivals, ice carnivals and the promotional events designed to draw shoppers to local stores.

past and present

Serving a similar purpose, the Plymouth Gathering building on Penniman Avenue was erected, with the financial assistance of local service clubs, to protect Fall Festival events and to shelter shoppers attending the Farmer's Market during rainy weather.

Is baseball still national pastime?

In a few more hours the cry "play ball" will be heard across the nation. The cry will mean that the major leagues are swinging into action. The Tigers will be in Minnesota and the race will be on.

But as the cry goes up a question arises. Is baseball still the national pastime?

It is a good question because the baseball scene as of today is a far cry from what it used to be.

There was a time during The Stroller's youth when baseball was the only real national sport. Sure, the colleges had football and the fight game was at its peak. But none of that compared with baseball.

In those days every little town and hamlet in the nation had a baseball team. And the small town rivalries were a thing to behold.

AND WHEN the major leagues opened their season it was a national holiday. When the Tigers opened the parade out Michigan Avenue to Navin Field it was one of the biggest and most colorful parades of the year. Thousands lined Michigan Avenue and the stroller

the teams — the Tigers and their rivals — rode in what were called tallyhos.

It was colorful all the way. But those parades now are only memories. To make those opening days all the more colorful the President of the United States used to throw out the first ball in the Washington D.C. stadium. That one pitch was the signal for a holiday that had few equals for those who liked sport. The practice of the President taking part was started by William Howard Taft when he was the tenant in the White House.

Now the first pitch has become a local political act with the governor of Michigan and the mayor of Detroit doing the throwing. And even that is changed now. That used to be the crowning point after the teams — both of them — marched to the center field flagpole and there took part in the raising of the stars and stripes.

Now they no longer parade. Bill Finzel's band is another memory. Instead they line up along the first and third base lines.

And the home town rivalries are gone, too. They became the victims of radio and television. Folks remained at home to listen or watch the game as it was brought into the living room. Attendance at the minor leagues fell off and they finally gave up. With home town rivalries gone and the minor leagues quitting the scene, baseball now is fighting to retain its claim of being the national pastime.

JUST LOOK at what the Tigers face. For the first time in years there are other high class teams taking the spotlight. The Pistons made the basketball playoffs. The Lions also got into the playoffs.

And now the Detroit Panthers — the newest football team in this area won the championship in its first year. So, the fans will have something else to cheer about unless the Tigers come through this time.

It looms as a great fight.

Appeal made for 4th music

279, Plymouth 48170.

Fred Eagle
Co-Chairman Fourth of July Parade, Plymouth Jaycees

To the editor:
The Plymouth Jaycees are appealing to any patriotic music-minded students to participate in this year's Fourth of July Parade.

The Parade Committee felt this action was necessary due to the non-compliance with requests to the school system's music department under the direction of James Griffiths to participate in the parade.

The school board always has the answer that it is summertime and nobody is available. When the month of August arrives students come out of the woodwork to attend the band camp due to the fact that if they do not attend they will not be able to participate in the band for the coming school year.

What I fail to understand is, if the students can show up in August, why can't they show up a month earlier to march in a parade that states their independence as proud Americans? If anyone wants to participate please contact the Plymouth Jaycees: P.O. Box

Aerospace forms 2 groups

Ford Aerospace and Communications Corp. President Henry E. Hockeimer announced an organizational realignment and several new appointments. Two new organizations have been formed — the Defense Group and the Space Missions Group. "These changes will consolidate our considerable strengths in these areas and streamline our organization to effectively pursue the enormous opportunities in our major businesses over the next few years," Hockeimer said.

EFFECTIVE immediately, the Ford Aerospace Defense Group has been esablished, incorporating the existing Aeronautic and DIVAD Divisions.

Louis F. Hellig, formerly vice president and general manager-Aeronautic Division, has been named vice president, Defense Group.

Robert O. Case Jr. has been appointed to succeed him as vice president and general manager, Aeronautic Division.

Delbert W. Parsons continues as vice president and general manager, DIVAD Division.

SIMULTANEOUSLY, the Ford Aerospace Space Missions Group has been established to consolidate the corporation's extensive space operations and engineering services activities.

Donn A. Starry, formerly vice president, Missions Analysis and Technical Affairs, has been named vice president and general manager, Space Missions Group.

Included in the Space Missions Group are Ford Aerospace activities that support NASA's space flight centers in Houston and Maryland, the Air Force's satellite tracking network around the world; the North American Air Defense Command's Cheyenne Mountain Complex in Colorado, and various U.S. military ranges.

Students enter mechanics contest

Up to four students from Plymouth Canton High School will take a written examination at Schoolcraft College in the first phase of the Plymouth-AAA Trouble Shooting Contest.

Students from 74 Michigan high schools will compete in the written test, given at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Schoolcraft. The test will be given at the same time at 10 sites across the state.

The two highest scorers from each school will become a team, with the top 10 schools competing in a final hands-on competition May 17 in Dearborn.

Instructors will submit students' names at the time of the testing.

The contest is being held locally this year by Chrysler/Plymouth and the Automobile Club of Michigan.

In the state finals, each team works against the clock to correct problems on similarly "bugged" 1984 Plymouth Turismos. The winning team will advance to the national championship in June in Arlington Stadium near Dallas, Texas.

More than two-thirds of all past participants, or about 28,000 students, have taken full- or part-time jobs as auto service technicians, according to Robert Brent of the Chrysler/Plymouth Dealership Association.

The state contest committee is chaired by Mel France of the Michigan Department of Education.

SLIMMING Pastabilities AMERICAN-STYLE

Pasta goes American in specialties prepared with domestic pasta and other of our native foods. Right in tune with the emerging American cuisine are pasta favorites that are good to eat, good for you and can be enjoyed with no concern about calories. Surprised there is no worry about calories? If so, it means you are among many who still think of pasta as a fattening food. Let's clear up the misconception! There are only 210 calories in a five-ounce portion of cooked pasta... an average entree serving. It's what you add to the pasta that makes the difference. Skip the usual oil, butter, cream and other calorie-laden add-ons. Concentrate on go-withs like light sauces (and do sauce lightly), vegetables, poultry, seafood and other foods that keep calories in line.

For example, here are our pasta selections for year 'round enjoyment. Succulent chicken fricassee with egg noodles appears with a calorie tally of only 400 a serving. A version of beef stew with noodles can be savored with a mere 270 calories per portion. Macaroni and Cheese is one of America's greatest pasta dishes. Waistline watchers will love our recipe which allows you to indulge at only 290 calories. Or make a pasta-vegetable stew. Calories on this one...340.

When buying pasta, select American-made products processed from durum and/or other high quality hard wheat. Healthful pasta is an excellent source of complex carbohydrates and offers B vitamins, protein and iron. It is low in fat and sodium.

As you plan slimming menus, choose tea as the appropriate beverage. Dating back to Colonial days, the clean fresh taste of tea is as welcome now as it has been throughout our culinary history. Tea has the happy quality of giving a gentle lift without a later letdown. Especially if you use a good quality tea — a brand you're familiar with rather than a no-name generic. And do brew the tea properly following the simple rules below to make sure you make the best tasting beverage that refreshes and relaxes at the same time.

Take a look at some of our typical Yankee Doodle tea variations. You can travel from Cape Cod to Hawaii in your tea service! How about the Johnny Appleseed version colorfully garnished with a fresh apple wedge... great with the Chicken Fricassee!

| 1 cup water                                     | 1/2 cup chopped onion                         |
| 1 teaspoon salt, optional                       | 1/2 cup milk                                  |

| 1/8 teaspoon pepper                             | 1 tablespoon salt, optional                   |
| 1-1/4 cups cut fresh green beans                | 3 quarts boiling water                        |

Rinse and pat chicken dry; set aside. In large sauce pot, heat oil. Add chicken and cook, turning occasionally, until browned on all sides, 10 to 12 minutes. Pour off drippings. To the pot, add chicken stock, 1 cup water, 1 teaspoon salt, thyme and pepper. Cover and heat to boiling. Reduce heat; simmer 20 minutes. Add beans, carrots, celery, mushrooms and onion. Cook about 15 minutes or until chicken and vegetables are tender. With slotted spoon, remove to bowl; cover and keep hot.

Drain off excess fat from drippings in pot. Boil remaining liquid until it is reduced to about 1-1/2 cups. Add milk. Heat to simmering. Remove from heat; keep hot.

While chicken and vegetables are cooking, gradually add noodles and 1 tablespoon salt to rapidly boiling water so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander. Turn noodles onto heated serving platter. Spoon chicken and vegetables on top. Serve with sauce.

Strawberry muffins make a great breakfast for a spring morning

You're sitting by a window on an early spring morning about to breakfast on a fresh strawberry muffin spread with strawberry butter. Thanks to Florida's crop of early spring strawberries you can have your strawberry breakfast fantasy as soon as tomorrow morning. Though strawberries were one of the hardest hit crops in last December's Florida freeze, a brand new crop has been harvested since then and is available at your local supermarket.

Start your strawberry muffins an hour ahead — or the night before — by combining sliced fresh strawberries with sugar to make a syrup. The syrup is drained and mixed with the batter, seasoned with a bit of vanilla and nutmeg, then the reserved strawberries gently folded in so you'll both see them and taste them. The muffins are served warm with butter, softened cream cheese, apricot preserves, or with the strawberry-apple butter below.

It's not complicated to make a fruit butter when you have an electric blender or a food processor. The strawberry-apple puree is touched with grated orange peel and a bit of spice then processed or spooned into jars, tightly covered and refrigerated. It will keep for 4 weeks (if it stays around that long).

FLORIDA STRAWBERRY MUFFINS
 1 1/2 cups coarsely chopped Florida strawberries
 1/2 cup sugar, divided
 1 1/4 cups all-purpose flour (unsifted)
 1/2 tsp. baking soda
 1/4 tsp. ground nutmeg
 1/4 tsp. salt
 2 eggs, beaten
 1/4 cup butter or margarine, melted
 1 tsp. pure vanilla extract

In a bowl combine strawberries and 1/4 cup of the sugar. Set aside for 1 hour. Drain and reserve liquid and strawberries separately. Preheat oven to 425°. Combine flour, baking soda, nutmeg and salt; set aside. In a medium bowl mix eggs, butter, vanilla extract, remaining 1/4 cup sugar and liquid from strawberries. Add flour mixture; stir just until combined. Fold in reserved strawberries. Spoon into 12 greased muffin pans. Bake until a cake tester inserted into center comes out clean, about 20 minutes. Serve warm. Yield: 12 muffins.

STRAWBERRY-APPLE BUTTER
 1 pint Florida strawberries
 5 cups peeled and sliced tart cooking apples (about 1 1/2 lb.)
 1 cup sugar
 Water
 1 tsp. grated orange peel
 1/4 tsp. ground nutmeg

Hull strawberries. Place in the container of an electric blender or food processor fitted with a metal wing blade. Whirl at high speed until pureed, scraping down sides of container if needed (makes about 1 1/2 cups). Remove and set aside. In a medium-sized enameled or stainless steel saucepan, combine apples, sugar, and just enough water (about 1/4 cup) to keep apples from sticking to pan. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer covered stirring occasionally until softened, about 15 minutes. Blend half of apples at a time until pureed. Return apples to saucepan along with orange peel, nutmeg, and reserved strawberry puree. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer covered stirring frequently until thickened, about 1 hour. (Mixture is thick when a spoonful placed on a cold saucer has no moisture seeping from the edges.) Immediately pour into hot 1/2-pint canning jars leaving 1/4-inch head space. Adjust caps. Process in boiling water bath according to manufacturer's directions for 10 minutes. Cool. Check seal. Remove rings before storing. Or refrigerate without processing in a tightly covered container for about 3 weeks. Yield: 2 (1/2-pint) jars.

Fresh strawberries from Florida make wonderful spring breakfasts... Such as strawberry muffins spread with strawberry-apple butter.

Two tributes to the Hurricanes

We're No. 1. They're No. 2.
 "We're" the University of Miami Hurricanes.
 "They're" Nebraska.
 "We're" Class of '56.
 I hope you don't mind me extolling the national was the Canes 11th straight. It's great to be No. 1.

After an opening loss to the upstate rival University of Florida Gators, the Canes began their roll. They were 3-1 after shutting out Notre Dame and before the game a liquor firm dreamed up the Irish Hurricane to celebrate.

As the anticipation grew for the 50th Orange Bowl showdown with Nebraska Jan. 2, the town went bonkers.

The Hurricane coach's wife, Beverlee Schnellenberger, adopted a recipe for orange wine cake "for our family. I do collect cookbooks... Howard likes anything with buttermilk in it."

The beverage boys at the Fontainebleau Hilton Hotel on Miami Beach concocted a tribute to the team: the Orange Hurricane.

You may have seen the game on television. It

Spice up the veggies

Winter vegetables take to all sorts of spicing, according to the American Spice Trade Association.

Steamed carrots, for example, can be treated to any number of seasonings. Try a combination of cinnamon and ginger, or onion powder and cumin.

Winter squash is delicious when baked with ground nutmeg and cloves. When baked sweet potatoes or yams are mashed the suggested spicing are ground ginger, coriander or pumpkin pie spice.

Cabbage wedges become a treat when lightly steamed with caraway seed or dill weed. Or, try sauteeing shredded cabbage just until crisp tender with some ground ginger and garlic powder for an oriental flavor.

Oriental-style spinach is nice, too, sauteed with toasted sesame seed. Spinach, instant minced onion and dill weed are a Russian combination; Italians like theirs sauteed with basil, black pepper and parsley flakes.

Brussel sprouts get a real pickup from garlic powder and crushed red pepper. Or, stir a bit of powdered mustard into melted butter or margarine and toss with the sprouts.

THE WOMEN'S Resource Center at Schoolcraft College had its first fundraiser, and it turned out to be something of a Plymouth production.

The dinner-theater benefit in the Waterman Center at Schoolcraft featured a wine glow, a spaghetti dinner, scads of prizes and a one-act play.

The place was packed with a sizable contingent from the Plymouth area on hand. Among the sponsors were Ken and Esther Hulsing, Maurice and Mary Breen, Mary Perna, Virginia Larkin, Mac and Lynn Pierce, Jean Wagner, Richard and Mary Rose Hausman and Beautiful People Hair Forum. Glenny Merrillat of Plymouth designed the program and won the grand prize, a microwave oven.

The majority of the prizes were donated by Plymouth merchants.

The culinary arts department prepared the dinner: spaghetti, garlic bread, tossed salad, with a wonderful torte for dessert.

The play, "The Chinese Restaurant Syndrome," was presented by the Fourth Street Players, Royal Oak. Cyndy Zeitz, a 1976 graduate of the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park drama department productions, had a lead role in the one-act. Cyndy does publicity for the Birmingham Theater and has been involved in Reader's Theater at the Fourth Street Playhouse.

PAT GRESOCK of the Oral Majority Toastmasters came in first in the Area 8 speaking competition at the Campus Inn in Ann Arbor. Denis Coleman of the same club won the evaluation contest. Both will go on to the next level of competition, District B, Saturday, April 14 at the Mayflower Hotel in Plymouth.

TOM CRAM had high score and Luella Cook was second at the party bridge session last Thursday. There were seven tables in play at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

FIRST TIGER Cub group in town was organized earlier this year. The seven second grade boys are in the Bird School Pack (Gemini Council). The parents first met last December at Don and Elaine Baine's house to talk about forming a Tiger Cub den. The first meeting was in January.

The members are Bruce Bain, Ryan Giuliani, Jonathan Rakoz, Todd Smith, Edward Gould, Douglas Austin and Charles LeCrox.

Tiger Cubs are a new division of Scouting for the pre-Cub Scout age group.

DIANA ROSINSKI of Plymouth was one of the winners at the recent State 4-H Youth Rabbit and Cavy Show at Michigan State University. Her entry received best of breed placing in the Polish class.

The show, held in conjunction with the Michigan State Rabbit Breeders' Association convention and exhibition, offered competition in more than 169 breed classes, as well as an educational exhibit contest.

"SUGAR AND SPICE and Other Things Nice," Plymouth Canton Panhellenic's luncheon and card party, was a successful scholarship fundraiser. Now Panhel is looking for candidates for the scholarships.

College women interested in applying for these scholarships must be residents of the Plymouth-Canton community or graduates of Plymouth Salem or Plymouth Canton high schools. They must be pledge or active members of a national social sorority on their college or university campus.

Those interested in receiving application forms should contact Janet Garard, 455-0998. All applications must be in by May 1.

Players revive 1925 musical 'No, No, Nanette.'

All the glitz, glitter and fun of the musicals of the 1920s will come to the stage of Plymouth Salem High School this weekend when "No, No, Nanette" opens Thursday night for a three-day run.

"Nanette" is a colorful, tap-dancing, romantic romp from New York City to Atlantic City, the playgrounds of the rich. Probably the most familiar song in the show is "Tea for Two." But the audiences will be tapping their toes to the other great tunes in the production, "I Want to be Happy," "When the Sea is Calling Me," "The Where Has My Hubby Gone Blues" and "Take a Little One Step."

There are three full sets utilizing art deco to beach towels and more than 300 costumes.

"The last number alone is worth the price of admission. The entire company is in silver lame fringe and black tuxedos," said Gloria Logan, director and producer of the all-school musical. She added that the "tuxedos are the generous service of Valente's Formal Wear of Livonia and Doug Montgomery."

CURTAIN TIME will be 8 p.m. April 5, 6 and 7. The box office opens at 6:15 p.m. show nights. Reserved seats may be available by calling the theater office, 451-6243, but they are going fast. Special senior citizen rate is just for opening night.

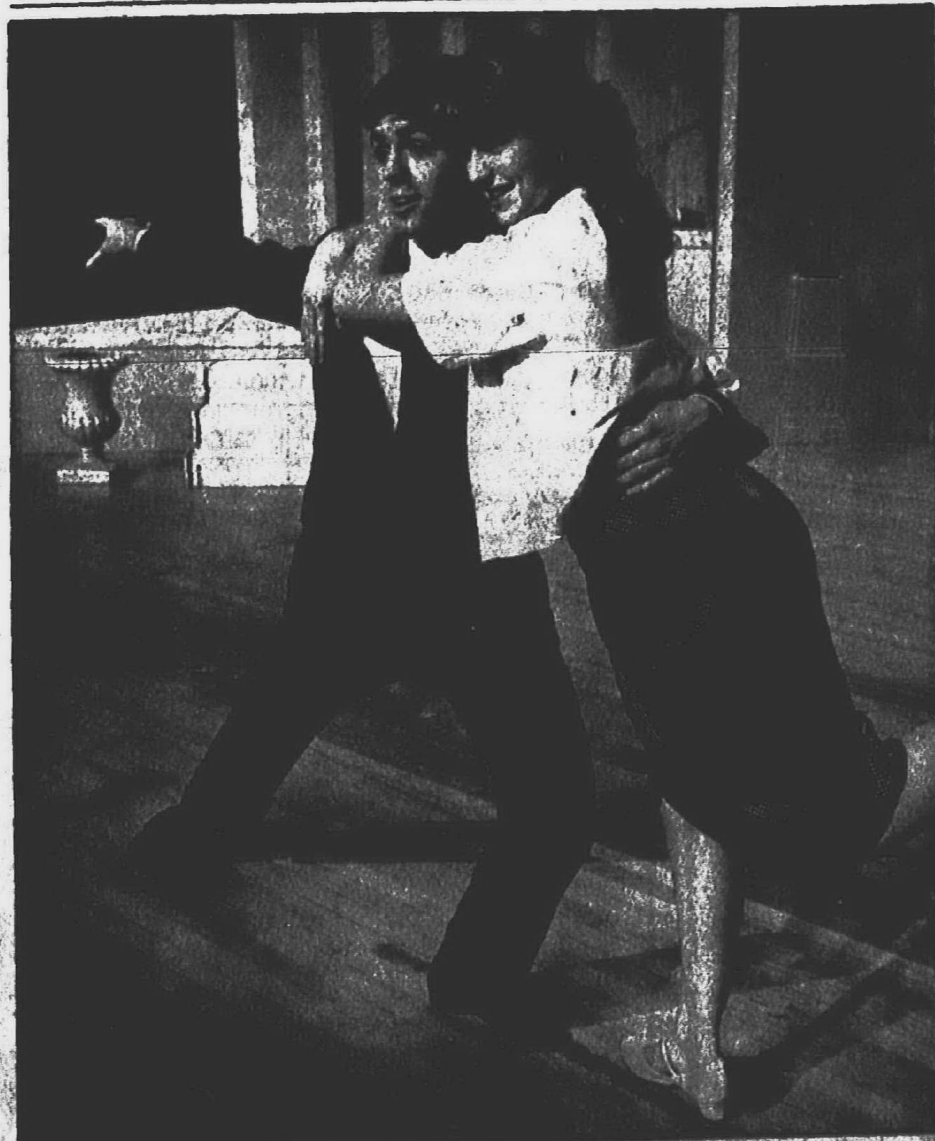

Eric Holland and Jacqueline Eastman play the lead roles of Tom Trainor and Nanette. Other members of the cast are: Michelle Trane as Pauline; Elyse Mirt, Lucille Early; Michelle Barr, Sue Smith; Ian Shephard, Jimmy Smith; Jeff Wilson, Billy Early; Lisa Rohde, Flora Latham; Becky Angell, Betty Brown; and Amy Emerson, Winnie Winslow.

The large cast includes 12 members of the dancing ensemble and 16 members of the singing ensemble.

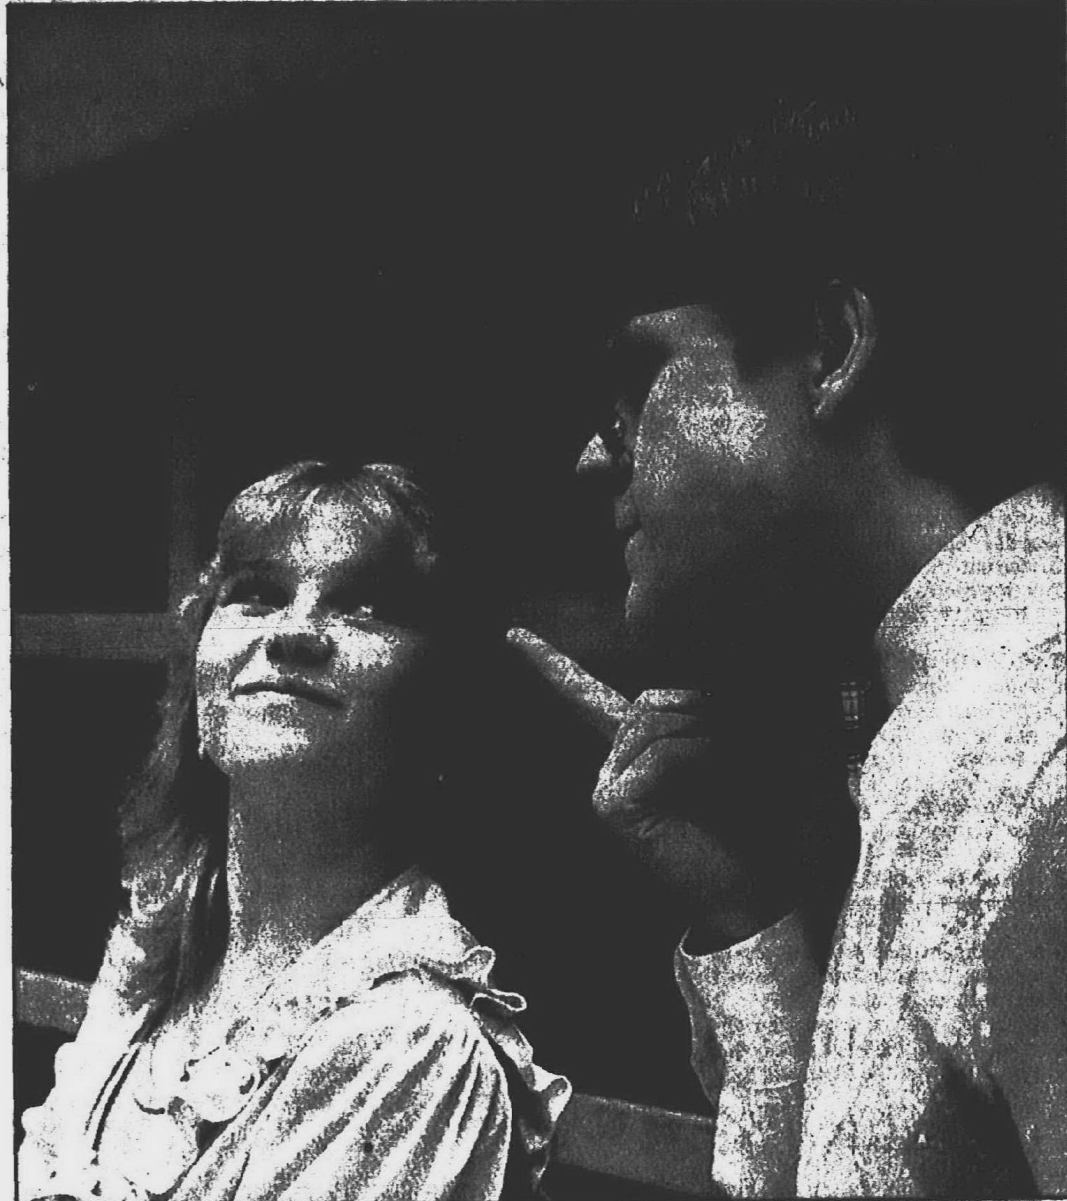

Betty Wiedman is vocal director and pit pianist. Carl Battishill will direct the orchestra. Cletus Karamon is technical director and James Kaiser is master electrician.

Other members of the staff are Jenni Jenkins and Debbie Squilleto, assistant directors and stage managers; Patty Eaton and Renne Pikul, painting masters; Fred Bock and Debbie Kelly, construction masters; Matt Pappa and Stacy Thibert, costumes masters; Lisa Rohde and Kim Schmidt, publicity masters; Kevin Fieldman and Lisa Robert, publicity apprentices; Kathy Stern and Tina Villene, property masters; Amy Metzner, make-up master; and Debbie Kelly and Scot Robert, house managers.

Staff photos by Bill Bresler

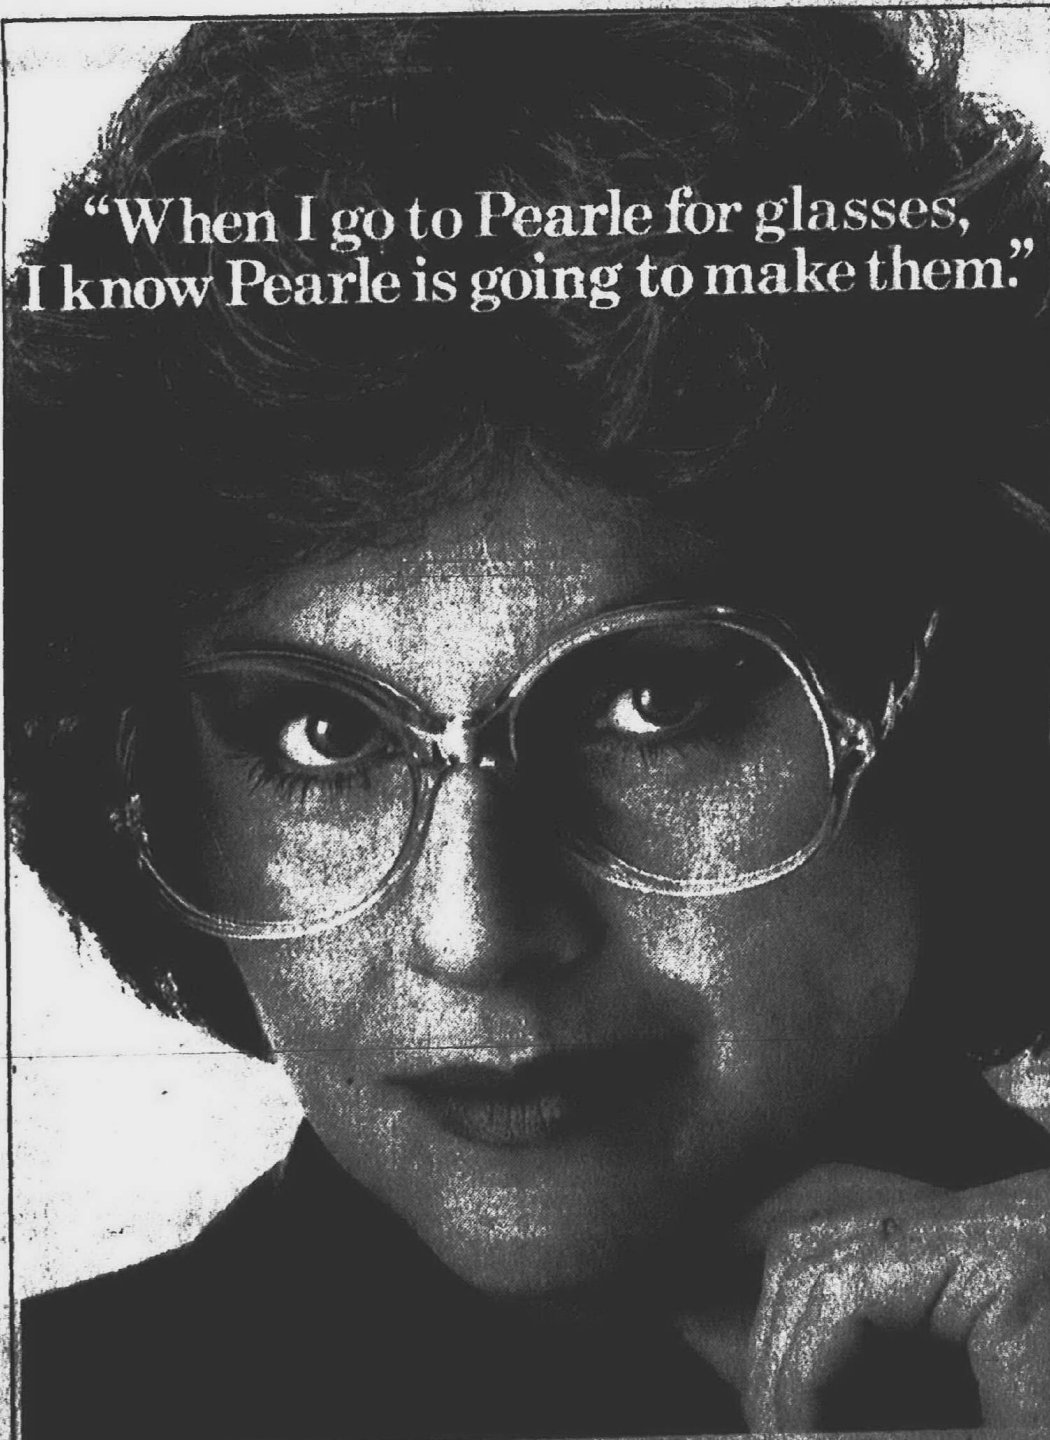

Elyse Mirt, as Lucille Early, tells Jeff Wilson, as husband Billy Early, to go to Atlantic City and have a good time, but don't forget to come back.

Nanette (Jacqueline Eastman) is leaving town with $200. Her boyfriend Tom (Eric Holland) believes no decent woman has $200. Nanette has had it with everyone always saying, "No, No, Nanette."

Junior juices up All-Observer team

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

THE PROBLEM WITH selecting All-Area teams is that good and perhaps deserving players always get left off. If you scan our second and third teams, and even our honorable mention listing, you will find talented basketball players — players who arguably could have made the first team.

But, if everyone were named to the first team, All-Observerland honors would mean little.

To make second and third team All-Observer is in itself an achievement. To make the first seven, well, it means you are the best around.

The 1984 All-Area team is led by a junior. That seems unusual until you see who that junior is — Catholic Central's John McIntyre. McIntyre was the only unanimous choice to make this team. Not only that, but the intelligent and awesomely skilled young man was a consensus all-stater as well.

Plymouth Salem, Observerland's No. 1 team this past season, is doubly represented on the team with seniors Rick Berberet and Erich Hartnett, co-MVP's for the Rocks this year.

Combined, each player on the first team averaged 18 points and 10 rebounds per game. Those numbers become more impressive when you figure three players are primarily guards and two, Hartnett and Mark Bennett (Plymouth Canton), were their teams' playmakers.

There is no talent shortage on this team.

John McIntyre, junior, Redford Catholic Central: About the best way to describe this 6-3 1/2" guard, without gushing, is to simply say, "He is a player."

CC coach Bernie Holowicki has had some outstanding players come through his program — players like Tom LaGarde, Barry Spencer, Frank Tanana and Tom Zalgarias. Holowicki isn't afraid to say that when McIntyre is done at CC, he will top that list.

"He is one of the most outstanding players ever to wear the blue and white of the Shamrocks. John is an artistic blind-side passer and an excellent long-range shooter — he is also a strong and smart rebounder," Holowicki said.

McIntyre had to do it all for the unusually short-of-talent Shamrocks. He was, truly, a one-man arsenal. He averaged 31 points, 11 rebounds and nine assists a game.

If he continues to improve his game, McIntyre will be a strong contender for Michigan's Mr. Basketball honors next year. What higher praise is there?

Tom Domako, senior, Livonia Stevenson: This 6-8 forward would probably just as soon forget his senior season. Not because his stats were bad. He averaged 19.8 points and nine rebounds per game — fine individual numbers. But his ball club, picked to be one of the area's best, struggled.

Domako's future, though, seems bright. He is headed to Montana State, where he is projected to play swing forward as a freshman. Domako said he hopes to be moved into the shooting

Despite his wiry 6-8 frame, Domako showed that he could handle the backcourt position. He is a good passer, as his 61 assists last year attest.

"Tom is a very likeable young man," Stevenson coach George Van Wagoner said. "His future could be very interesting out at Montana State. He is a 3.2 student, too."

This is the second straight All-Observerland honor for Domako. He has also made the Free Press all-metro west team and the all-Western Lakes team the past two years.

Mark Bennett, senior, Plymouth Canton: The Chiefs had their best season ever this year winning the Western Lakes conference and Western Division titles. Bennett was the driving force behind the team's success.

No pun intended, but few players share Bennett's talent for driving and penetrating through opposing defenses. He was Canton's creator — that is, the points the Chiefs scored, more often than not, were as a result of this man's playmaking ability.

At 6-2, he was the Chiefs' tallest player, and therefore was asked to play inside on defense and rebound.

"Mark is a team-oriented player," Canton coach Dave Van Wagoner said. "He excels at every aspect of the game. He possesses great court awareness and is a premier passer. He is just a coach's dream. He's a true winner."

In his career, Bennett dished out a school-record 423 assists. He led the area with 10.6 assists per game this year. He also averaged 12.3 points and 3.2 rebounds per game.

Bennett, a 3.8 student, appears to be headed for Alma College next fall on a basketball scholarship.

Canton's Dave Van Wagoner Observerland's coach of year

The announcement was first made over a public address system at a trendy Milwaukee night spot named Major Goolsby's — located across the street from the MECCA Arena.

"May we have your attention, please. Can we have a round of applause for the 1984 Observer Newspaper's basketball coach of the year — Mr. Dave Van Wagoner of Plymouth Canton High School."

Van Wagoner, his family and some friends were in Milwaukee to watch the NCAA Mid-East Regional tournament.

The announcement drew a moderate round of applause from the unknowing Milwaukee crowd, but it has drawn a standing ovation from the Canton community and from the area's prep basketball community as well.

VAN WAGONER, you see, has breathed life into a stagnant basketball program. And, in so doing, has brought life to the Canton community. Van Wagoner has taken a team with a history of losing and molded them into winners in just three seasons.

This year, after 4-17 and 10-11 seasons, the Chiefs compiled a 16-6 record and brought home Western Lakes conference and Western Division championships.

"I've just tried to build the program on teamwork, togetherness and a lot of communication and hard work. I'm very proud of the things we've accomplished in three years. I hope we will continue to do as well in the future," Van Wagoner said.

Van Wagoner gives the credit for the Chiefs' success in 1984 to his players. "These guys have made me a good coach," he said at his team's banquet last Thursday night.

But his players, young men like Mark Bennett, Gary Thomas, Mike

Jennings and Elijah Rogers, say they are better players because of Van Wagoner.

Both the players and the coach are correct.

FOUR YEARS ago, when an evaluation was made as to which school (Canton or Salem) got the best basketball players from the Plymouth-Canton district's middle schools — it was said that Salem got 18 of the 20 best players.

Through the players' hard work, and through Van Wagoner's tireless efforts, the four aforementioned players blossomed into outstanding ballplayers — far exceeding anyone's expectations.

"They are self-made players, all of them. They accepted the challenge that was placed before them, they worked hard during the summer months, and they made themselves better players," Van Wagoner said.

Van Wagoner has a knack for getting young men to believe in themselves.

This season his team was expected to be an also-ran in a tough Western Lakes conference. The Chiefs were small. Their tallest player was 6-foot-2. They lacked depth. They lacked in many areas.

But what they didn't lack was intelligence, intensity, and confidence. And as the season wore on, the Chiefs grew harder and harder to beat. After they stunned Livonia Stevenson in the Spartans' own gym, the basketball community knew Plymouth Canton was a force to be reckoned with — a fact that Dave Van Wagoner had instilled in his players long before the season began.

The Observer Newspapers salutes Dave Van Wagoner — 1984 Coach of the Year.

Young Canton contingent eyes .500 season

By Rich Swenson
staff writer

The high school track and field season starts soon, and Plymouth's two high school teams are preparing for it. Plymouth Salem finished third in the Western Lakes Activities Association's Lakes division last season, and the Rocks' want to do better this season.

"We had an excellent turnout," Salem coach Gary Balconi said. "It's difficult to say how well we'll do because bad weather this spring has put us behind. But our seniors are doing a good job getting us ready."

"Right now, I'd say we're in the middle of the pack. Livonia Churchill (defending league champ) is still the favorite."

The sprint and long distance running teams are the Rocks' strengths this season.

SENIOR TRI-CAPTAINS Marc Tindall, Jeff Arnold and Karl Gansler lead a fine contingent of sprinters. Balconi expects the sprinters to carry the team. The trio combined to qualify for the state meet in the 440 relay last year, and they should be even better this spring.

The long distance team (one- and two-milers) is paced by five juniors — Scott Steiner, Rick Routsou, John Geddes, John Keros and Brian Vladu. "They're a solid bunch," Balconi said. "They came off a very good cross country season."

The half-mile squad is also ready and should score a lot of points for Salem, Balconi said, giving Salem strength in all running events.

The top half-milers are versatile senior Phil Madis (who can run anything from the 220 to the mile), Gansler and junior Eric Pederson.

The Rocks' appear to be weak in the hurdles and field events, however.

GONE FROM LAST year's team are three excellent hurdlers, including WLAA hurdles champ Glen Medalle. Arvinder Souch and Marv Zurek, who combined with Medalle win the league 440 relay title, also graduated and will not be easily replaced.

"Hurdles is a weakness. I see it as our biggest need right now."

Balconi hopes that senior Dan Hasley and juniors Mike White and Craig Morton will pick up the slack.

Salem will miss two-time Observer All-Area long jumper Dan Lingg, who also graduated, but White and Arnold still give the Rocks a strong lineup. Both leaped more than 20 feet last season.

The high jumping team also is paced

boys track

by White. Senior Erich Hartnett should make a major contribution.

JUNIOR POLE vaulter Mike Harwood, who cleared 12-feet-seven-inches last season, heads a young group of pole vaulters, including the Pitwko brothers — Rich and Ron.

"They're young, but they have a lot of potential. They've come a long way." Salem also has holes to fill on the throwing squads — the shot put and discus. The team has no experience and will have to find some help if it is to score any points in either event.

Balconi hopes senior shot putters John Jouppe and Scott Jurek will develop as the season progresses.

The same goes for senior Doug Spencer and Hasley, who lead the discus contingent.

PLYMOUTH CANTON is a young and inexperienced squad, but coach Mike Spitz hopes to mold a good crop of freshman and sophomores into a winning team.

"We're young. We won't have a lot of depth, but we have good individuals. Our goals are modest. We'd like to improve our overall position in the league standings."

The Chiefs finished second in the WLAA-Western division last season with a 2-3-1 dual meet record. They placed seventh overall in the league.

"We'd like to improve our dual meet record to above .500. It usually takes three years of experience to build confidence and to feel comfortable. But I have a lot of faith in these kids. They're working real hard."

MUCH OF CANTON'S success depends on the performance of its talented long distance running team. Senior Mark Cratty heads a list that also includes three juniors — Bob Tellier, Dave Barger and Steve Benzie.

"Our distance crew will be one of the best we've had in the past few years. They will score some points."

The Chiefs also have an excellent throwing squad. Seniors Eric Wines and Brian Bogden and junior Jim Wallace will carry the load.

"I think we have a fine group of weight men. They have an awful lot of experience, and they're improving steadily."

Canton's top sprinter is senior Elijah Rogers. He is joined by senior Tom Wygonik and juniors Wallace and James Rattliff.

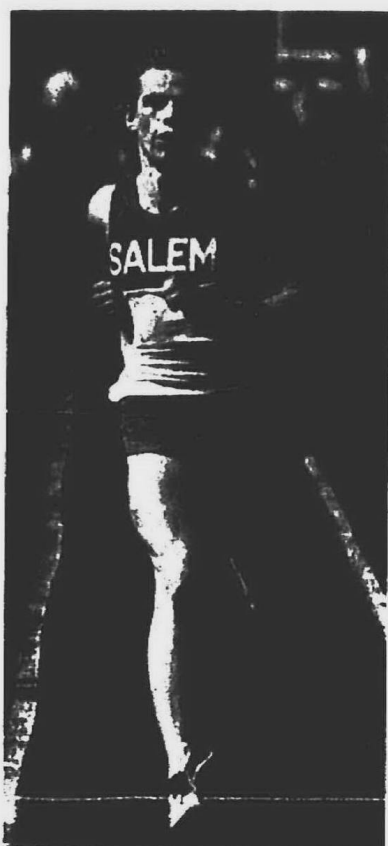

"I don't think we'll be real outstanding, but we won't be hurt by our sprinters. They'll hold their own."

SENIOR HURDLER Jin Kim, who Spitz said is "one of the best around," will be chasing the school's high hurdles record this season, but the rest of the squad will need time to develop. Junior David Kahng should help.

The high jump, long jump and pole vaulting teams are all untested, and only time will tell how they Chiefs will fare in these events.

Wallace and senior Rich Place lead the pole vaulting contingent; junior Scott Tasker gives the Chiefs their only experience in the long jump; and juniors Jon Barrett and Bryant Gattos pace the high jumpers.

But Spitz is optimistic. "We have a good core of kids. They have a good attitude and they're looking forward to competing."

U-D baseball hopes rest on local shoulders

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

They've got some health problems, those University of Detroit baseball Titans.

First they lost a pair of players to injury on their 10-game spring trip south. Starting catcher Scott Sutherby tripped over first base and fell on his throwing shoulder, which caused a slight separation. He's just now beginning to throw again.

Then promising freshman Gary Peters was the victim of a freak accident. A foul tip off his bat hit him in the eye, crushing the bone underneath and forcing him out for the season.

IT WASN'T the kind of start Titan coach Bob Miller would have liked. His team managed to split its 10 games, beating Georgia Southern twice and James Madison, West Virginia and Richmond once each.

And there remain other "health" problems for Miller and his staff to deal with — those plaguing three of his new additions. Each one could help U-D attain greater heights, should they lick their problems.

For freshmen Joe Taraskavage and Mickey Madsen, it's a case of what Miller termed "freshmanitis." They're both trying too hard.

For junior Gary Beggs, a transfer from Henry Ford Community College, the ailment might be described as "locationitis." Beggs is a hard-throwing righthander whose "got some great tools," according to Miller. His problem is finding the plate.

"THIS SHOULD be a good team," said the veteran coach, now in his 20th season at U-D. "It's not a great team, but it is a good one with the opportunity to get better. It's got a lot of potential."

"The pitching depth will be better than last year. But there are some key spots that I'm worried about, like shortstop and catcher."

Beggs, a Redford Thurston graduate, will be part of that mound depth should he cure his control problems. He was 0-1 in the southern trip, hurling 3½ innings and giving up six walks and 11 hits. His earned run average soared to 13.51.

"He throws real hard and has a good breaking ball," said Miller of Beggs. "His only problem is throwing strikes."

Beggs' appearances down south were both in relief. One was good, one was poor. Miller has him slated as a spot starter and long reliever.

TARASKAVAGE WAS pencilled in as the starting designated hitter and a sometime first baseman and pitcher. But his trip south was not a strong one, although Miller is still counting on both his bat and his arm.

"Maybe we put a little too much pressure on him early," Miller said. "He's probably the strongest kid we've got. He can hit the ball a country mile."

"He's going to hurt an infielder some day, he hits the ball so hard."

Tarasakavage, a Garden City graduate, has spent long hours getting ready for the season, dropping his weight from 240 to 227. But his intensity may be part of his problem. On the trip south, he pressed and his stats showed it. He batted just .214 and was blasted on the mound, giving up four runs in two-thirds of an inning.

He did flash his power, however. Of his three hits, two went for extra bases — one double and a home run. He knocked in four runs.

"He tried too hard in spring," said Miller. "He overthrew, overstrung. He's a big part of our future."

MADSEN, A PLYMOUTH Salem alum, shared a case of freshmanitis with Taraskavage, reflected in his six errors at shortstop. Yet Miller was highly impressed with the speedster.

"We're very high on this young man," said the U-D coach. "The way he played down south at shortstop, he's going to give (starter Mike) Lopiccoco a battle."

"He's very quick on his feet, and he's the fastest player on the team. He's got a good bat, he can hit to all fields. He's going to play a lot."

Madsen collected four hits in 16 trips, batting .250 with one double and a stolen base on the spring trip.

ONE PLAYER Miller knows he can count on already is first baseman Tom Miner, a graduate of Garden City West. The senior is a sparkling fielder with a .987 career fielding average, committing just 10 miscues in two full seasons.

Miner, one of three Titan captains, contributes at the plate as well. As a sophomore he batted .348, with three homers, 15 doubles and 30 RBI. Last year he slipped a bit to .273, with five doubles and 23 RBI.

"I would say one of his strengths is his defense, which is excellent," said Miller. "But he's steady with the bat, too. He's a very heavy ballplayer."

Miller described Miner as a line drive hitter and the Titans' "best hit-and-run batter. The only thing he lacks is speed." Miner batted .340 with six hits, including three doubles and a home run, and six RBI on the southern swing.

WITH SUTHERBY HURTING, one player Miller may call on is Luke Mortiere. Catcher is one position that U-D is fairly deep at, and Mortiere, a sophomore from Redford Bishop Borgess, is at the end of a four-deep line.

"I've been impressed with his attitude and his ability," said Miller of Mortiere, who made the team as a walk-on. "He swings a good bat."

"But he's behind a couple of people. He realizes his role."

Mortiere went hitless in one at-bat on the spring trip.

1984 All-Area team: size, speed — talent

Van Wagoner's description of his ace is accurate — he's a winner.

Erich Hartnett, senior, Plymouth Salem: This 6-2½ guard-forward is a crowd-pleaser.

He moves with the ball as well as anyone, possesses strong passing and jumping skills, and despite his size, throws down some mean dunks, 15 this season. Hartnett has brought his share of crowds to their feet with his flashy play.

Hartnett, because he plays in Salem coach Fred Thomann's team-oriented system, does not have the numbers some of the others have. He averaged 12 points, 8.5 rebounds and six assists per game.

Those stats don't even begin to describe the kind of player Hartnett is or what he meant to his team.

"He's a great ballhandler, great passer, great leader — he's just an exciting player," Thomann said. "Erich has unlimited potential. If he will continue to work at his game, he can go on and be a fine college player."

Highland Park Community College has been hot after Hartnett throughout the season. HPCC plays a fast-paced, run-and-gun style of ball, and Hartnett would fit right in.

Rick Berberet, senior, Plymouth Salem: What has this talented 6-8 center meant to the Salem basketball program?

How about this — in the three seasons Berberet was a varsity starter, the Rocks compiled a 61-10 record.

"Rick is an excellent outside shooter, has great hands and can pass the ball extremely well for a big man," Thomann said.

Berberet may have saved his best ballgame for his last. In the state regional championship loss to Southwestern, Berberet was brilliant. He scored from the inside and outside, rebounded and helped break the Prospector press. He possesses many skills, and he set all of them out for everyone to see that night.

He led the Rocks with a 17.3-point scoring average and a 9.7 rebounding average. He also dished out an average of 5.3 assists per game.

"Rick has worked real hard on his game for three years. He has made himself into a real nice player," Thomann said.

Berberet has also worked hard in the classroom, compiling a 3.5 grade point average.

As good a player as he has become, Berberet's future most likely will be in another sport — baseball.

Phil Graczyk, senior, Livonia Bentley College coaches are drooling over the 6-foot-4 senior center because of his potential.

Playing his second year on the varsity, Graczyk averaged 16 points and 7 rebounds per game this season. His season totals (22 games) were 370 points and 211 rebounds.

"Phil is a good, solid player."

worked hard to improve his skills," Bentley coach Tom Niemi said. "He's one of the underrated big men in the state."

Scoring in double figures in 20 of his 23 games, Graczyk scored a season-high 37 points and grabbed 27 points in a heartbreaking triple overtime loss to Stevenson. In the district final, he led Bentley to an upset 73-55 win, scoring 26 points and hauling down 11 rebounds.

The All-Lakes Division pick is also an excellent student, sporting a 3.6 grade-point average.

Scott McCloskey, senior, Garden City: The 6-foot-4 senior forward was Mr. Consistency for the Cougars during the past two seasons.

A third-team All-Observer pick last year, McCloskey averaged 19.7 points and 11.4 rebounds per game in 1983-84. He hit 48 percent of his shots from the floor and 65 percent from the free throw line. As a junior, he averaged 18.3 points per game.

"Scott is an excellent jumper with a soft touch on his jump shot," Garden City coach Bob Dropp said. "He also played through an ankle injury which slowed him up in the middle of the season." (He missed two games.)

The team co-captain registered high games of 34 and 30 points this season. He was a two-time All-Northwest Suburban and team MVP selection, leading the Cougars to a mark of 27-15.

You've got size, you've speed, you've got playmakers and scorers — and you have some pretty nice defensive players. Let's face it, in the 1984 All-Area basketball team, you've got one fine team.

Park teams out to get their kicks in '84

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

THE PLYMOUTH Salem girls soccer team has all the attributes of a champion. It is young though experienced, it has strength, depth and speed. It is solid defensively and can score goals.

The Rocks were 12-6-1 last year. They appear to be much better than that this year.

But, there is a problem. The two teams that finished ahead of the Rocks last year, state champ Livonia Stevenson and Livonia Bentley, also appear better than they were a year ago.

"I'm very optimistic this year," said coach Ken Johnson. "The only thing is that Churchill, Stevenson and Bentley have all gotten better. It's really unbelievable how tough our league (the Western Lakes) is. We will have to at least split with those teams and think that we could do it."

JOHNSON DID get some good news as far as the competition goes. The Rocks have always been in the same regional tournament as the Livonia teams. That has changed this year. Salem will compete in the class A regional tournament at Lansing Waverly, thus giving the Rocks, who have an outstanding record outside of the Western Lakes, a good shot at making it to the state quarterfinals.

But, before the Rocks get that far, there is this thing called the "regular season" standing in the way. If the Rocks are to be successful, they will have to overcome three losses.

Two were expected. The Rocks lost Jacquie Merrifield and Kelly Clark, two top players from last year, to graduation. The other loss, though a tentative one, was not expected.

Shelly Staszal, an all-stater last year, injured her knee during volleyball season and isn't expected to be ready to play for a while.

"She just got the cast off this week," Johnson said. "She wants to play right away. But, I'm not sure that will be possible. We'll have to wait and see."

'soccer

Staszal's absence will hurt the Rocks offensively. She has scored 40 goals in her two-year varsity career, 23 last season.

BUT THE Rocks are deep in talent. Returning to the fold this year is all-state goalie Sarah Wallman. Also back is last year's freshman phenomenon Julie Tortora, who tallied 22 goals.

All-area performer Colleen O'Connor is back for her senior year and is being touted as a potential all-stater.

Senior Ruth Knoeri is slated to fill Merrifield's shoes as the Rocks' center fullback. Also back is senior fullback Robin Brandt.

That alone is a strong nucleus, but Johnson has much more to work with.

Six freshman are expected to make the team, two of whom — Chris Casler and Niki Stojeba — should contribute immediately.

Johnson was greeted with another surprise. Two track runners have switched sports. Juniors Fran Whittaker and Suzie Balconi (the daughter of Salem track coach Gary Balconi), both gifted athletes with exceptional speed, will play soccer this spring.

"We have more depth at more positions than ever before," said Johnson. "We've lost a number of games in the past when we've lost a starting player through an injury."

This may be Johnson's best girls' team at Salem. Whether or not they can overtake the Livonia powerhouses remains to be seen. The Rocks open the season at home Monday, April 9, against an improved North Farmington team.

PLYMOUTH CANTON

Mike Morgan may be the new Canton girls soccer coach, but, he's hardly new to the game of soccer.

Morgan has been a very successful coach for the past seven years, heading Bonanza League and Plymouth Soccer League teams. He hopes to carry his successful methods over to the Chiefs.

And if the pre-season practices are any indication, the Chiefs seem to have a, well, successful look about them.

"The team came on strong at the end of last year and did well in the regionals. Most of that team is back," Morgan said. "We have a lot of experienced sophomores and juniors back, and we have a lot of 10th graders who have been playing now for seven and eight years."

LEADING THE Chiefs' charge will be seniors Kim Reeves, Lori Engel and Nancy Gray. Reeves is a goal scorer, while Gray and Engel anchor the midfield.

Morgan will be counting on some offensive production from sophomores Kendra Whiteley and Beth Frigge.

Sophomore Carol Kleinsmith and junior Pat Phillips will share the reminding chores for Morgan. Sophomores Jenny Thomas and Ronda Rice, plus juniors Lisa Russell, Alice Shobe and Lisa Goff will also be key performers for the Chiefs.

Morgan expects his team to be very strong defensively.

"We aren't going to blow anyone out," he said. "But, by playing good defense, we'll keep the games close and get our goals when we can."

How does Morgan think his team will fare in the tough Western Lakes Soccer League?

"We'll hold our own. I hate to use clichés, but, I think we will hold our own. We have a lot of experience and enthusiasm. We'll just have to wait and see how the season plays out," he said.

The Chiefs travel to Livonia Franklin in their season opener Monday, April 9.

BILL BREBLER/staff photographer

Kim Reeves, shown slipping down in a game last year, is expected to be Canton's top offensive weapon this season.

BILL BREBLER/staff photographer

Salem will miss all-stater Shelly Staszal (left) for at least the first part of the season. The high-scoring senior is recovering from a knee injury sustained during volleyball season.

Here are the picks for Oscar winners, plus critic's 'best'

Amidst much hoopla and Hollywood hype, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences will present Oscars on Monday, April 9, to those the industry deems most deserving of recognition.

Forty-five films have been nominated in 20 categories. In addition, there will be three special awards.

The whole thing is a lot of fun, particularly if you don't take it too seriously. My wife, who is a bigger film fan than I am (if that's possible), always dresses for the event. She calls her friends to find out what they're wearing, but I know she's going to wear her best robe to watch the event on the tube (at 9 p.m. on ABC-TV, Channel 7).

A good many awards are relatively minor. Fifteen of the 45 nominated are documentaries and shorts. There tends to be limited interest in the technical categories of editing, costume design and sound effects.

While the purported purpose of the Oscars is to recognize excellence in film production, the academy's system of balloting and the extensive campaigning for nominations and selection is such that there are elements of a popularity contest.

CERTAINLY THERE are box office values to winning, and even a nomination helps. But such are the vagaries of film distribution these days that many communities in the United States haven't had the opportunity to see all the nominees.

I am in one such community so my choices are based on informed ignorance. The only three films I haven't seen, among the major category nominees, are "Reuben, Reuben," "Educating Rita" and "Cross Creek." "Cross Creek" is available for 16mm school and film-club screening, has played Chicago and elsewhere for months but only had one brief week in the Detroit area, despite its four important nominations.

So, here I go, picking winners based on limited knowledge. But that's what most people think of critics: "What does he know?" "Good critics are those who agree with me!"

Generally, critics are people whose knowledge and experience of the motion picture are more extensive than average. The problem arises when we confuse what we like with what we think is good. We can like anything we want, but that doesn't make it good. Quality is something that can be demonstrated.

There is a problem in measuring quality. Are there standards? Or is it just box office that tells the tale? I'll go with standards since box office, however important, reflects what people like, not what can be demonstrated is good.

BUT WHO NEEDS philosophy? Where the Oscars are concerned? There's a great deal of fun and politics and cam-paing involved so I'm going to go with the flow and pick "Terms of Endearment" to win most of the biggies even though I didn't think it was that good. It's an OK film but doesn't measure up to much of the competition.

However, who am I to argue with the New York Film Critics Circle that gave "Terms" everything except the Nobel Peace Prize. I still think "Atlantic City" was far superior to "Chariots of Fire" but they say Burt Lancaster isn't popular in Hollywood so the Oscar went to "Chariots" a few years ago. That seems to be how the Oscars go, popularity and sentiment.

And now, the envelope, please: Best Picture: "Terms of Endearment." My vote for "The Dresser" obviously was overwhelmed by the masses. "Tender Mercies" is my No. 2 preference.

Best Foreign-Language Film is interesting this year because "Fanny & Alexander" (Ingmar Bergman) also has nominations for five native awards: Best Director, Original Screenplay, Cinematography, Art Direction and Costume Design. Since it already won the French Academy's prize for Best Foreign Film and some British Academy Awards, I'll rule it out.

All things considered, I'll go for the Spanish entry, "Carmen," an excellent, creative film by any standard.

BEST DIRECTOR will go to James Brooks for "Terms," although I think all four of the competitors produced better films: "The Dresser," "Silkwood," "Tender Mercies" and "Fanny & Alexander," in that order.

The several categories — Best Actor, Actress, Supporting Actor and Original Song — with two nominees from the same film — present a problem. I suspect the reasoning will generally go: "It's hard to decide between two such great performances, so let's give it to someone else." In the case of the song category, with two from "Yentl" and two from "Flashdance," I'll bet on "Over You" from "Tender Mercies."

As far as Best Actor — in spite of the fact that I'd stay up nights trying to decide between Albert Finney and Tom Courtenay in "The Dresser" — I'm betting on Robert Duvall in "Tender Mercies." Best Actress should go to Meryl Streep for "Silkwood," but I think "Terms" momentum will win it for Shirley MacLaine.

No question in my mind: Cher should get Best Supporting Actress for her role in "Silkwood." I'm so sure of that one that I'll probably jinx her.

Best Supporting Actor is the last category, with two nominations for one film: I think the John Lithgow/Jack Nicholson competition will be resolved in favor of Charles Durning, who did an excellent comic role as the Gestapo Colonel in "To Be Or Not To Be."

Robert Duvall is most likely to win the Oscar for Best Actor and Shirley MacLaine probably has it all wrapped up for Best Actress.

I SUSPECT Lawrence Kasdan and Barbara Benedek are in the lead for "The Big Chill" Original Screenplay, but I'll go with "Silkwood."

The academy will probably recognize the innovative and creative cinematography of "Zelig" and "Flashdance" for its fast-paced editing. That leaves Best Original Score, Art Direction and Sound for "Terms" to sweep. Best Costume Design probably will go to "The Return of Martin Guerre" and Sound Effects Editing to "Return of the Jedi." Since John Glenn dropped out of the race for Democratic Presidential nomination, "The Right Stuff" gets nothing.

I wouldn't dream of discussing the Short or Documentary Film Categories. Not only haven't I seen any of them, I don't even recognize their titles. This is sadly indicative of the limited exposure documentary and short films get — in spite of the fact that there is a tremendous amount of excellent, informative and entertaining film shot and shown in those categories. The three special awards are Honor-
