Districts now set, rep says

The state's legislative districts are back where they were last year, and a state representative from the Plymouth-Canton area figures they may stay that way through the rest of the dec-

"I doubt we'll see another (redistricting) plan for the decade," Plymouth Republican Gerry Law said. Law represents the 36th District. Noting that Democrats no longer control both houses of the state Legislature, Law said it's unlikely that either party would give any ground on reapportionment or agree to a plan that would help the other.

TUESDAY'S RESCHEDULED deadline to file nominating petitions for the Aug. 7 primary gave Law an opponent in the strongly GOP Plymouth and Canton district. She is Kimberly Thomas of Plymouth.

The winner will face Democrat Lucian M. Cayce of Plymouth Township in the November general election.

Canton Township Planner James Kosteva filed in the Democratic race for state representative in the 37th District — a seat being vacated by veteran State Rep. Edward Mahalak, D-Romulus, who is stepping down due to health problems.

Others on the Democratic ticket include John Sheridan of Romulus and Patricia Cullin of Van Buren Township.

REPUBLICAN 37TH District hopefuls include Theodore Jacques of Romulus and Georgia Gramlich of Belleville. The 37th District now includes the south portion of Canton and extends south.

Law said he is happy to see legislative boundaries back to what they were under the so-called Apol Plan as a result of the June 19 state Supreme Court opinion throwing out a redistricting plan approved in 1983 when Democrats controlled both houses.

The 1983 plan was more favorable to Democrats, while the Apol plan is better for Republicans.

LAW OBJECTED to his district being carved up as it would have been under the 1983 plan approved just before Democrats lost control of the Senate as a result of recall elections. The GOP gained two seats, giving it a 20-18 majority in the upper house. The plan took effect on April 1 but was quickly challenged in court and ruled unconsti-

"I didn't like their chopping up my district and sending some of my people to other districts," Law sald.

"I think they should keep townships and cities intact as much as possible (in redistricting), and it's especially tough when you're dealing with isolated precincts."

UNDER THE ill-fated 1983 reapportionment plan, Law's district would have been changed in Canton so that everyone living east of I-275 south to Michigan Avenue would be switched to the 37th District, represented by Mahalak.

Likewise, the House Bill carved out territory in Plymouth Township east of I-375 and all of Lake Pointe Subdivision and placed it in a district formerly represented by 35th District Rep. Jack Kirksey of Livonia. Now, both areas will revert to Law's district.

Who would think two relatives who had never met could find each other in a crowd of 40,000? Well, that's exactly what happened Saturday at Tiger Stadium, when Martin Saltness, an exchange student from Europe, found his cousin, Plymouth resident Ann

Woman finds relative in crowd at stadium

The mother of three children wasn't looking for a needle last Saturday when she went to Tiger Stadium. But she did find a cousin whom she never had seen before. And she found him in a crowd of close to 40,000 Tiger fans.

It was a most interesting finish to a very unusual hunt.

Mrs. Rugg, who lives at 9499 Baywood in Plymouth, was born in America. But all of her relatives live in Scotland and Norway. Hardly a day went by that she did not think about them. Despite the distance, she felt close to those faraway relatives and all the folks on the family tree, a tree that goes back more than 109 years.

Thus her excitement ran high last week when she was told that a cousin, 19-year-old Martin Saltness, had come as an exchange student to America this summer and was living with a family in Muskegon.

She lost no time tracing her cousin and was thrilled when he told her he was coming to Detroit Saturday with a bus party to see the Tigers play.

She promised she would stand at the corner of Michigan and Trumbull after the game and carry a sign reading, "Martin, here I am."

COME SATURDAY, the weather was fine. With keen anticipation, Mrs. Rugg looked forward to the hunt for her cousin. But she made one change in her promise. She thought she might be taken for a picketer if she held up a large sign.

"So I went to Heide's and bought a large balloon," she said. "I figured if I let the balloon go while I was standing on the corner, he would see me. But, lo and behold, the wind carried the balloon away."

Mrs. Rugg was faced with a big problem. But luckily she was carrying an umbrella.

"As the crowd let out of the stadium, I raised the umbrella in the sun. Martin spotted it and we found each other. What a thrill that was."

In that vast crowd, Mrs. Rugg saw her cousin for the first time. And her cousin was just as excited as she was at the chance meeting.

"WE TOOK him to Greektown for dinner. We also showed him Belle Isle, the Ren Cen and many of the other sights. He enjoyed all of them and was struck by the big hotel in the Ren Cen and the island in the river.

Schools juggle budget, still eye tax increase

The Plymouth-Canton Board of Education painted a pretty bright financial picture at Monday's public hearing on the 1984-85 budget — despite district voters having defeated a request for a 1.74-mill tax increase a few weeks ago.

The board also reserved Oct. 2 for a second election and another try at passing the tax-increase request.

District expenditures — estimated at $45.5 million for the next school year — are expected to surpass revenues of $44.2 million. Making up the $1.3 million deficit will be the fund balance of $1.68 million. By June 30, 1985, a depleted fund balance is projected at $380,852, said Raymond Hoedel, associate superintendent for business with Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

UNLESS TAXES are raised, district programs and services will be in jeopardy, Hoedel said.

"The defeat of the 1.74 mills dealt a real blow, we feel, to the schools and to upcoming years in that the increase, in effect, would have protected the fund balance," Hoedel said.

"If we were unable to get it passed (in the second election), we'd be looking at $3 million in excess expenditures by 1985-86 — and severe cutbacks to make up that deficit."

The projected cost of educating one student in 1985-86 is increasing 10.6 percent, to $2,908 from $2,628.

A 1.74-MILL increase would raise more than $1.7 million for the district, which levies 37 mills — 35.26 for operations and 1.74 for debt retirement. A mill is $1 in property taxes per $1,000 of state equalized valuation.

Projected revenues for 1984-85 represent a 6.6-percent increase over 1983-84 totals. Expenditures forecast a 10-percent rise from this year's costs.

Officials expect to net a 1.6-percent, or $545,000, increase in local revenues. The increase from $34.2 million to $34.8 million is due to interest on an energy note and a $153,000 increase in other local income.

STATE AID — yet to be allocated by the state Legislature — is forecast to jump a whopping 41.5 percent, from $4.5 million to $6.3 million, Hoedel said.

School officials foresee a 1.2-percent increase in state equalized valuation (SEV), from $974 million to $986 million, while federal project revenues are likely to drop $33,000 to $1.1 million.

Local SEV projections are as follows: in Canton, a 1.36-percent increase, in Plymouth Township, a 1.16-percent increase; in Plymouth, a 0.53-percent increase; a 5.23-percent increase in Salem Township, a 1.3-percent drop in Superior Township, and a 1.02-percent increase in Northville Township.

A 3.8-percent drop is projected for a recently annexed area that includes parts of Salem, Plymouth and North-ville.

The SEV average has increased from last year, when state equalized valuation dropped 3.7 percent.

ALTERNATIVE EDUCATION funding will drop to zero due to the loss of federal grants totalling $122,133 in 1983-84. The same fate is befalling Indian Education, an $18,643 program in 1983-84.

While the district last year received $36,716 for energy conservation, no 1984-85 federal energy revenue is forthcoming.

No county income is budgeted — in fact "We expect to get a billing for our students who take part in centralized programs," Hoedel said.

Other budget highlights:

Salary and wages increase 8 percent over 1983-84 levels.

Sewer at Wilcox Lake begins Rouge clean-up

staff writer

The first real step in the the long awaited clean-up of the Rouge River now is being taken with the laying of a large sewer on the north side of Wilcox Lake.

The sewer, according to the Wayne County officials, will run from Wilcox Road to Seven Mile and then to Northville Township, Wixom and Commerce townships. The project is expected to take more than a year to complete.

According to the county officials most of the trouble along the Rouge River is brought about by an overlos ed intercepter. The new sewer will alleviate much of the trouble and in result in a much cleaner Rouge River.

This plan has been a long time in coming, according to the officials. For more than 15 years the communities along the Rouge have begged and coaxed to "rescue the Rouge," but most of the task was left to the charitable instincts of the people living along the

"Rescue The Rouge" long has been a chant but most of the time it has gone

SEVERAL YEARS ago the state of Michigan took a hand in it and the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) spent considerable time along the river as it flowed through Plymouth Township, Plymouth and Northville. In fact it was stated that former Gov. Milliken was anxious to see the job done.

When U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell of
Plymouth was serving in the State Senate he lead a drive that brought about a $100,000 allotment in the state budget for the work. Part of the job was to deepen Wilcox Lake and make it a thing of beauty.

But the recession set in and the $100,000 was stricken from the budget. Some work was done in Wilcox Lake when a concrete walk was built to enable the fishermen to enjoy the apart and also to give the water a better chance to pass on. Some of the money also was taken from the budget to improve Newburg Lake in Livonik to make it more ideal for fishermen.

Since then, however, nothing has been done and the part of the Rouge that lays in Plymouth Township at Northville Road, is a target of complaints each year. And the improvement ideas have been laying on the shelf since until the Wayne County Road officials ordered the construction Road officials ordered the co of the sewer from Plymouth to Wixom to Novi — a beginning to "Rescue the

The attempted escape took place at 7:30 p.m. A Michigan State Police tracking dog was brought in to recap-ture the missing inmate.

The most seriously injured of the three inmates was taken to Wayne County General Hospital for treatment, Robinson said. The other two were treated at DeHoCo. Robinson identified the three injured inmates as Keith Newton, James Poe and Mark Sennett. He identified the fourth inmate as Paul

It may not be open meetings' act

FRESHMAN SEN. Rudy Nichols, R-Waterford, gets a gold star this week for being the only area state senator to vote against a crippling, cloudy amendment to the sunshine law.

By a 32-4 vote, the state Senate adopted HB 5219, an amendment to the Open Meetings Act which would allow our local governing boards to hold secret meetings when they evaluate school superintendents, city managers and college presi-

Effect of the bill is to take away what the public thought it had won when the law was passed in 1976 and when the state Court of Appeals ruled in 1981. Using dictionary definitions and not legal jargon, the Court of Appeals said that a performance evaluation is not a disciplinary proceeding, that the public has a justified interest in knowing how local officials are performing, and that such deliberations must be public.

NOT SURPRISINGLY, Plymouth-Canton school administrators support the amendment, admitting "you have a tendency to weigh your words in open session. More candid comments can be made behind closed doors.'

THE BALL is now in the court of Gov. James J. Blanchard. In 1982 candidate

discover Michigan by Bill Stockwell

DID YOU know that Albert Kahn, a legendary figure in American architecture, started his firm in Detroit in 1895? He performed miracles in design for the next 47 years until his death in Detroit in 1942. His long career of matchless creativity entitles him to be remembered as one of Michigan's outstanding citizens in the modern world

Blanchard was asked whether he would sign such a bill. He didn't know what the issue was about and went on to talk about

We hope he has learend a bit since then because his veto is the only thing that can preserve the public's ability to learn how its elected officials are evaluating the work of the appointed ones.

Gov. William Milliken, Blanchard's predecessor, vetoed a similar misbegotten bill. It will be interesting to see if Blanchard is as wise and tough as Milliken.

Sen. John Engler, the majority leader, unfortunately guided the bill through his committee and then; unfortunately, voted.

BUT THE ambitious senator from Mt. Pleasant deserves at least some credit for candor in moving to change the title of the bill. We quote from the official Senate

"Senator Engler offered to amend the title by striking out 'Open meetings act,' and inserting 'An act to require certain meetings of certain public bodies to be open to the public. .

The amendment to the title was adopt-

Thus, if this bll is signed by Gov. Blanchard, or if he allows it to become law without his signature, it will no longer be public policy in Michigan that governmental debate and governmental decisions are to be made in a public forum. Only certain meetings of certain public bodies will be open to the public. Just pay your tax bill and get out of the room,

TO HAVE ANY meaning, a true Open Meetings Act .hould contain these ironclad guarantees:

- The people have a right to know the governing board's reasons for acting what alternatives it considered, what amendments were offered, what facts were pondered.
- The people have a right to know whom the governing board listened to.

Memories of great winners and losers

ONE PRICE a fellow pays for growing dld is that he becomes of member of the Do You Remember class.

People get the idea that because he has peen around for a long time, he becomes a human encyclopedia. At least that has been the case with The Stroller.

Scarcely a day goes by that he isn't asked, "Do you remember . . . ?" The questioner asks about some happening of long ago. Ofttimes the questions are sur-

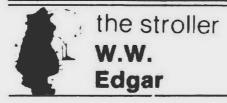

FOR INSTANCE, the other day when the group was discussing the rise of the Tigers this year, one member asked, "Do you remember who the manager was when the Tigers won the pennant in 1934 and how many years had they gone withqut a pennant?'

This question was a stunner. The Stroller thought no one ever could forget flickey Cochrane and the way he drove the Tigers to the pennant.

They had been a rather poor team. Their thinking in a hurry.

When he was introduced to the players y owner Frank Navin, he greeted them ith "It's great to be with a champion." and that's the spirit he instilled until they from the pennant. There never has been snother manager who did such a great first fight in 1936.

He stood in the office of Mike Jacobs. the fight promoter, with a face swollen out of shape. He had been hit with 57 right-hand punches before being counted out. Louis was asked, "What happened?"

While it may have been a bit painful for him to answer, he managed to utter these famous words: "He fight me sideways." What Louis meant was that Schmeling fought out of a crouch — a style Louis never had seen.

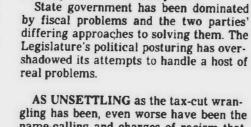

There was no alibi on Louis' part. He just admitted that Schmeling had outsmarted him. And to the day he died, Joe Louis gave the German credit for his stunning victory.

ANOTHER GREAT loser was Jack Dempsey. On the night in 1926 when he lost the heavyweight title to Gene Tunney in the Philadephia rain, he was shocked. But he had no alibi.

When asked, "What in the world happened?" Dempsey simply answered, "I just forgot to duck."

Most often in the world of sport, the losers come up with alibis. Some are strange, but they are excuses for defeat.

But all these happenings are brought tack to The Stroller now that he has been placed in the Do You Remember class in his long journey through life. And it is in-teresting to hear the questions.

called on arch-foe Gov. James Blanchard to do something to eliminate the discord. Engler forgot, perhaps, that he has been one of the chief fomenters of discord. Blanchard wisely refused to take a public role, insisting that the Legislature itself must do the job.

Now, like veteran actors who know their roles well, Democrats and Republicans are getting together to perform a necessary act.

THE TAX-CUT agreement allows both sides to give up something, gain something and try to improve their images.

Curtains for tax-cut follies

Republicans can go into the summer resting on the tax-cutting image they strove almost mercilessly to create. By agreeing to a relatively modest cut, Democrats can ease the pressure.

They also can forget about the Republican clamor to stick it to the Department of Social Services budget, especially the measure sponsored by state Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, which would cut off general assistance to able-bodied men during the warmer months.

The tax increase last year raised the personal income tax from 4.6 percent to 6.35 percent. The rate was dropped to 6.1 per cent Jan. 1 and was scheduled to go to 5.35 percent this coming Jan. 1.

The bi-partisan agreement calls for the decrèase to be pushed up to Sept. 1, rather than Jan. 1, as in the original bill, or Oct. 1 as proposed by Blanchard. To a person earning $25,000 a year, annual savings will be less than $80.

The agreement blesses a cut considera; bly scaled down from the massive tax cuts proposed by the Republicans, chiefly in the Senate, during the past year. But there never was any reason to believe the kinds of cuts the Republicans advocated would go through. The Democratic-dominated House would not have approved them; the Democratic governor would have vetoed

OBSERVER & SOCENTRIC

IN THE PROCESS of agreeing to the cut, the political leaders agreed to add $60 million to the Department of Social Services budget, increase aid to kindergarten-through-12th-grade school districts: and higher education programs and provide $31 million to Detroit as well as drop the Geake bill.

Blanchard said he agrees with the compromise if it includes adoption of the budget he has proposed for next year. Pushing up a scheduled tax decrease by four months is made palatable, of course, by improvement in the state's economy.

The revenue loss will have to be handled, and there's no indication yet how this will be done. But the solution will come in less seamy meetings of the Legislature. The curtain, thankfully, may be coming down on the tax-cut follies of 1983-84.

Reading a composite paper

AS MANAGING editor of a group of 12 suburban newspapers, it's my job to review the stories published.

Since Observer & Eccentric presents as many local stories as possible to our readers, articles usually only run in one edition. Limited space prohibits us from running stories from other towns.

I am fortunate in that I can read all 12 newspapers and put together my own imaginary newspaper.

Some unusual stories appeared in our editions during the past week. In my imaginary newspaper, I would have run these stories for all our readers. Join me on a tour of Observer & Eccentric articles you may have missed.

DO YOU KNOW what the wonderful United States Postal Service has in store

In its never-ending quest to provide fewer services for more money, the post office is thinking of taking away house mail delivery.

The Livonia City Council is considering a request for what the post office has dubbed "Neighborhood Delivery and Collection Box Unit." What it amounts to is that new subdivisions would have mail boxes clustered in one area. Homeowners would pick up their mail from the clustered baxes.

Eby maintains his electric golf cart is cheap to operate and is safer than a moped or a bicycle.

Birmingham police disagree and say they worry about Eby's safety.

Eby reached a "gentleman's agreement" with Birmingham police last week and promised to stay off the streets. He later told a reporter he may ride again in Birmingham "if it just becomes too inconvenient.'

Birmingham police may be right, but I hope I have Eby's spunk when I'm 91. In the meantime, if you see a man with white, flowing hair riding a golf cart down the street, drive carefully.

Class gets dwarf's-eye view of world

Sizing things up

By Richard Lech staff writer

OR A classroom of Madonna College students, it was a chance to discover what it's like to be small.

The students took turns kneeling while trying to conduct a conversation with a standing classmate. The results were revealing

The "normal-size" student didn't know how to make the short person feel comfortable during their awkward con-

One "small" student complained that her neck hurt from looking up so much. Another said she couldn't be sure her classmate was listening to her.

All agreed they got a different, decidedly unpleasant perspective on things from down below.

"It's interesting to me that the things they were sharing are the same things that people with growth disorders share with you," said the class' instructor Teresa Chase of Westland.

THE EXERCISE was part of Chase's "Growing Up Small: Is There a Place for Me?" seminar. Sponsored by the Livonia college's Home Economics and Family Life Department, the twomonth seminar is the first of its kind offered in the state in the educational field, Chase said.

The seminar, which will end Thursday, deals with shortness in general, but particulary focuses on the people "struggle for every inch of growth" - dwarfs and midgets, or short-statured individuals as they sometimes are called today.

Sensitizing students to the problems short people face is the seminar's main emphasis, Chase said.

"A goal is that it will help them to be more open to people who have all types of handicaps," she said. "To see them as people, after you get past that first initial impression, that observation of a

For most little people, there is no chance of attaining a "normal" height. Of the three major forms of growth disorder, only one - hormonal disorder - can be treated, Chase said.

Included in that category are hypopituitary disorders, which lead to proportionate short stature - in which the arms and legs are in their "normal" proportion to the body.

Children with this disorder can be given regular shots of human growth hormone (HGH), much as a diabetic gets insulin shots, and eventually may reach 5 feet or more in height.

But the supplies of the hormone, which is extracted from human pituitary glands, are limited, Chase said.

THERE IS no treatment, however, for either skeletal or genetic shortness Dwarfs, people with regular-size bodies but short arms and legs, suffer from bone cartilage abnormalities, a disorder called achondroplasia. Genetic shortness takes in people who are not extremely small but have inherited a height below 5 foot.

Discovering that their baby has a growth disorder such as achondroplasia can be a traumatic experience for parents, Chase said. In earning her master's degree at Eastern Michigan University, she studied the effects having such a child can have on "regularsize" parents.

Her study was written in conjunction with Robert DelCampo, associate pro-fessor of family and child development

Two years ago, Chase and DelCampo interviewed 30 families of both hypopituitary and achondroplasic children in Michigan and northern Ohio. The researchers found that family pediatricians were not always able to diagnose the growth disorder properly.

Better than 90 percent said to stop worrying, when they get to adolescence they'll have a spurt," DelCampo said. But if a child does not grow 2 inches or more per year, it is reason for con-cern, DelCampo said.

UPON LEARNING that a child did indeed have a growth disorder, particularly achodroplasia, the parents' first response was denial, DelCampo said.

"They say, 'Maybe the child will grow if we feed it right,' "DelCampo said. "Grandma and grandpa say just give it vitamins, and it will grow.

"They parade the child around to three, four or five different physicians in hopes of having a better diagnosis."

After that initial denial, parents must reach the stage where they can accept the disorder for what it is so they can help the child adapt to a largesize world, the researchers found.

"That to me was the real key to a well-adjusted family," DelCampo said.

A FAMILY should not treat its small-statured child differently than a normal-sized child, he said.

"I think the biggest thing, and it's been said time and again, once they (the parents) accept the condition they can treat the child based on chronological and mental age, not on size," he

DelCampo said the most surprising finding of the study was that smallstatured children prefer to be among children their own age, not their own

Creating artificial barriers - that the child can't do this or that because of size - can be detrimental, DelCampo said. One small-statured girl in the study, for instance, wanted to ride a horse. Her parents, reluctant at first, allowed her to do it, and she was suc-

"It's important to let the child experience things and do things the normal child would do," he said.

COPING WITH ridicule and the stares of strangers can be difficult for both the child and family. Much of this antipathy from strangers stems from a misunderstanding of the problem.

One parent surveyed, for instance, recalled how one elderly woman angrily accosted her in a supermarket and accused her of not feeding her child

The families found that having an open attitude about the growth disorder can help the child become accepted by classmates - and ultimately by society as a whole

"It's important that a child feel free to talk about dwarfism and talk about what his or her experiences are, within the class. It shouldn't be a hush-hush thing," said Marge Carlisle, district director of the LPA organization and a special education teacher.

Other students are interested in finding out about a short-statured person she said, about why they are so small and how they deal with the world at large. Then the size difference ceases to be a problem, and the dwarfs can be treated as individual human beings.

"That's so important, to treat me as Brian Morris and not as a dwarf." said Brian Morris, a CPA and former Plymouth resident who now lives in Northville. "That's only part of me as a person. I have my intellect, emotions and

"On first impression, we deal with people based on how they look. Once you get to know somebody our physical differences disappear."

"They forget, and tell us to get something off the top shelf," said Morris' wife, Linda, a dietician and homemak-

CHASE SAID the status of short people is improving. For example, their prospect for employment is much bet-

In a documentary shown in the seminar, one man recalled studying accounting in college in the 1930s, only to be told by corporate recruiters that he belonged in the circus, not on campus.

Today, small-statured people are doing all sorts of jobs - teaching, computer programming, accounting, running their own businesses.

"Things are getting better," Chase said. "The Little People of America stresses that you really need a good education, you have really got to be assertive and determined. People with growth disorders, like people with any handicap, really have to work harder to prove themselves."

In an era in which handicaps are looked at with increased understanding, the problems of short people are being considered more. And changes that benefit one handicapped group can help others, as demonstrated by one sroom experiment in Chase's seminar that didn't work.

Chase had her students, on their knees, try to use the restroom sink, get a drink of water from a fountain and turn on light switches.

"It backfired because Madonna is programmed for the handicapped individual, so they didn't have much of a problem," Chase said.

A seminar sponsored by Madonna College's Home Economics and Family Life Department has been focusing on the problems of short people, particularly dwarfs. Here the class listens to Leonard Sawisch, a counselor for Michigan Rehabilitation Services in Lansing and an outspoken advocate for the Little People of America Inc.

Dwarf takes aim at stereotypes

By Richard Lech staff writer

HEN HE entered college Leonard Sawisch had spent most of his life being ashamed of the fact

He decided it was time for a change. "I remember when I came out of the closet as a dwarf — actually it was a clothes hamper," he said. "It was a turning point in my life.

"I thought people were avoiding me because I was a dwarf. They were avoiding me because I was an ass."

DAN DEAN/staff photographer

'it's dawning on dwarfs that what they are is not a bad thing to be,' Leonard Sawisch, a dwarf and a rehabilitation counselor, told Madonna College's Growing Up Small class recently.

Sawisch said he got a knot in his stomach when he first thought of this unusual idea of "dwarf pride." But he threw himself into the concept, reveled in his short stature.

"I'd call myself Dewey the Dwarf, or dye myself green and become Larry the Leprechaun on St. Patrick's Day. I'd put an Afro wig and be Peter Pygmy, Albino."

But that phase also passed for Sawisch, who eventually got his doctorate in rehabilitation counseling.

"I spent 20 years being ashamed of being a dwarf, so I had to spend some time being proud of being a dwarf. Now I've had to reach that balance where it's neither good nor bad."

SAWISCH counsels dwarfs and other handicapped people for Michigan Rehabilitation Services in Lansing. He also is a nationally known spokesman for the Little People of America Inc., a social and service organization for

He spoke recently at the Growing Up Short seminar at Madonna College in Livonia and gave his own impressions about what it's like to grow up small in

It is society's attitude toward dwarfs, and not the dwarfs' small size, that is the root cause of the problems of little people, he maintained

He was a "well-adjusted" dwarf in elementary and high school, he said. But he still got the impression from others that there was something wrong with him.

"Other people encouraged me to blame me, blame my body, that God was punishing me. I got that from a Sunday School teacher once."

As a child he read about a March of Dimes campaign aimed at wiping out birth defects. Wanting to help, he sent away for a brochure.

"You can imagine my surprise when I opened it up and found I was listed as a birth defect.

"I see a tremendous amount of double messages in society. On the one hand, they're spending thousands of dollars to incorporate the handicapped, to make us part of the mainstream, and at the same time they're spending thousands of dollars to make sure we aren't

THE NEGATIVE image of dwarfs is reflected in the way they have been portrayed in the mass media. Sawisch said the only role models visible to him as a child were the Seven Dwarfs.
"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs did have a profound effect on me. When my friends were out dating I was looking around for six other dwarfs so I could date too."

Dwarfs' cultural status has not im-boss, de plane.' I don't let my kids watch that show. Here's a pet dwarf on national television." Dwarfs are portrayed either as happy elves or evil, twisted little things such as Rumpelstiltskin. "You never see us in the role of the shopkeeper down the street or the person next door. We're never allowed that middle ground." In real life, dwarfs and other handicapped people are expected to be either super achievers or basket cases, "We don't expect handicapped people to be just average people. In adolescence, one of the big things is that every time you do something like your friends, people make a fuss about it. " 'You drive? Ooooh!

" 'You date? Ooooh!' "

MORE PAINFUL are the rude comments and impolite stares of strangers, the "pass the shrimp" comments in restaurants, or the cries of "look at the midget, look at the midget" in a shopping mail. Sawisch calls it the "dislocated arm" syndrome, from the way mothers will grab their children by the arm and pull them away when they point at a dwarf.

What the mom is saying, he said, is, 'It's not polite to look or stare at people who are inferior to you.' "

Once Sawisch and his wife turned the tables on a mother suffering from "dislocated arm" in a mall. After the mother had pulled her child away, Sawisch's wife jerked Sawisch by the arm and told him, "It's not polite to Sawisch tells the people he counsels that the best response to a stranger's rude question is a sarcastic comment.

"I encourage people to defend their own space. They're not nice questions to begin with, especially since people are asking you cold. I recommend that people deal with it flippantly. The lep-rosy, but it's not too far gone."

TOO OFTEN handicapped people wrongly blame themselves rather than the environment for their problems, he maintained.

To illustrate this point, he compares the bathroom in his home with a public rest room.

His bathroom is specially designed so that the toilet bowl is only 9 inches off the ground. But in a public rest room, he must perch precariously on the toilet bowl, risk getting water run-ning down his sleeves when he uses the faucet, and stand on the counter to use the mirror.

"What does society say? Tan't it a shame. Isn't it too bad." Then they blame it on me.

"I invite those people to come over my house and use my toilet. People "What kind of roles do we have on television?" Sawisch asked. "Boss, It's your tollet."

Women learn to sidestep 'Supermom' trap

Patricia Boyle, state Supreme Court Justice, urges women with established careers to help others who are just starting out.

staff writer

It's time to knock down a few modern myths about women.

Although the death knell evidently is sounding for the myth of Superwoman, other incorrect assumptions persist. For all the change that has taken place, the majority of women have yet to win economic equality.

That's the view Michigan Supreme Court Justice Patricia Boyle recently espoused at a meeting of the Michigan Professional Women's Network in the Somerset Inn, Troy.

Although the 1970s saw more women entering traditionally male fields such as law, medicine and veterinary medicine, two out of three persons in the U.S. living at the poverty level are women. More than half of the households in the U.S. which are at the poverty level are headed by women.

This grim reality belies the picture of the '70s as the decade of the woman," Boyle said.

In this group are displaced homemakers, women who have been thrust out on their own through the death of their spouse, divorce or separation. "Many women are only a man away from poverty," Boyle said.

For the divorced woman with custody of her children, it may be difficult to collect child support. "Less than onehalf of the women in the country receiving child support receive the full court ordered child support. One-quarter of them don't receive any," she said. Often, the end of a marriage brings the termination of medical in-

MANY WOMEN find themselves in a competitive job market without specific skills. "They have low confidence and low self-esteem. These problems are compounded by occupation segregation," Boyle said.

"There are more women employed now than at any other time in our nation's history," she said. Women comprise 50 percent of the paid work force. But 80 percent of the working women earn low wages in low status jobs. They are part of the unskilled labor force, toiling in blue- or pink-collar

"There's nothing wrong with these jobs," Boyle stressed. "But although women are employed, they are employed in the jobs which receive the least recognition. They are in low status jobs with low renumeration." Of all working women, 80 percent are clustered in 20 percent of the jobs.

"Women earn 59 cents to each $1 earned by men," Boyle said.

Frustrating women's efforts to get ahead many times is the problem surrounding paying for and obtaining good child care. "There is an absence of inexpensive child care in this country,' Boyle said. Budget cuts at the state and federal level have made it even more difficult to find such facilities.

Women still need to have their family help them with child care or (they) spend a large percentage of their earnings toward child care," Boyle said.

"FOR SINGLE men who live in poverty, poverty can be cured by a job. That's not the case for women. There are social and economic factors which

'We must acknowledge our limits. We must learn to accept responsibility for our decisions and forgive ourselves for being only human after all." - Patricia Boyle State Supreme Court Justice

"We as women must care about other women," Boyle said. "There will be not true equality as far as access to employment unless we accept the notion that the care of children is the responsibility of all of society and not just of women."

It may be helpful to women supporting their families if part-time work was regarded as a viable career alternative, Boyle suggested.

Looking around her audience of women who've carved out careers in such professions as law and medicine, she said, "We may have come a long way but not (most) women."

Boyle relied on women in her family to help with her four children while she attended Wayne State University Law School and pursued her career. Boyle, 47, was appointed to the court in 1983 by Governor James Blanchard. She is running for election to that position.

As she juggled her roles as working woman, wife and mother, she discovered what other women in her situation come to realize. "Somewhere along the way, we've learned that as women we must give up the concept of perfection. The making of one-choice limits other choices," she said.

Combining professional and family roles demands compromises. "It means Little Caesars Pizza for Sunday dinner and doing the laundry at 4 a.m. And it means buying, not baking, cookies for the children's treat day at school."

Success entails loss. She's lost lawver-friends through decisions she's made as a judge. She's left her children at the door to go to school or court.

We must acknowledge our limits. We must learn to accept responsibility for our decisions and forgive ourselves for being only human after all," she

But as women enter different fields of endevour, their paths diverge from traditional expectations. "Now, in employment, we're becoming the men we wanted to marry," Boyle said.

Warning to hobbyists and do-it-yourselfers: Threats to eyesight have been found in home workshops throughout the nation.

Often, the home hobbyist does better in making repairs than in protecting his sight. Eye protection, through the use of impact-resistant safety goggles, is essential of all eye-hazardous tasks, according to experts at the National Society to Prevent Blindness. An estimated 1.3-million Americans suffer eye injuries each year. Forty-five percent of these accidents occur in the home. Most could be pre-

Do you remember, several years ago there used to be a TV commercial for some headache remedy? The daughter said, "Mother, please - I'd rather do it myself!" Then she took a couple of pills and felt fine.

Well, life isn't always that simple. Many women are tormented by unexplainable depression, irritability, headaches, pain, fatigue, or a sense of just being "out of control" every month.

When this happens on a regular basis, it may be a symptom of P.M.S., Premenstrual Syndrome. This chemical-hormonal disorder is now recognized by the medical profession as affecting up to 40s percent of all women of child-bearing age. Happily, though,

P.M.S. can now often be successfully treated and controlled through medical, psychological and nutritional guidance.

If you are a woman who is experiencing all, or some, of these symptoms, or are a man concerned about this condition in a woman you care about, call the P.M.S. Institute. It's a group of highly qualified, board certified gynecologists, psychologists and psychiatrists, trained in the diagnosis and treatment of P.M.S. Your health insurance may cover most of the costs.

Real life problems can't be handled as easily as in a TV commercial, but it's reassuring to know that help for the pain, frustration and anxiety of Premenstrual Syndrome is available.

Planning meetings, under the direction of Helen Smith, set up an organization which would benefit the gardens, its members

On April 11, 1974, an organizational meeting was held and proposed bylaws and constituition were adopted, launching the organization. A membership drive was undertaken and the first regular meeting was held on May 10, 1974.

One of the first Friends activities was to raise money for garden projects. The first fund-raising event was the Fall Sale, which has become a yearly event. Volunteers were recruited and preparation for the sale began, making herb wreaths, dried arrangements, vinegars and many other items. The sale was held Nov. 23, 1974 and it was a success, netting nearly $4,000. The Friends had its first major funds for improvements to the gardens.

for improvements to the gardens.

The first year included general membership meetings, a public lecture, a nature photography contest and the contribution of money and volunteer time to improve the gardens. That year, the board authorized funds for a new lobby exhibit case, improved auditorium lighting, plant material for the Rose and Perennial Garden and the first contribution to the Development Fund.

By May, 1975, the Friends had grown from 85 charter members to 135. Several lectures were given, in addition to a field trip to Cranbrook Gardens; and the first Spring Plant Sale was held.

Over the past 10 years, the Friends organization has grown, with many new activities and programs being added each year. Monthly lobby sales have been held the first full weekend of each month, in addition to the Fall and Spring sales.

The Annual Open House in July has encouraged the public to come and have a look at the gardens and what it is all about. A doesn program was set up two years ago to provide public tours for organizations and achool groups with trained guides to interpret the collections on the grounds and in the conservatory.

Last Fall, a new adult education program was set up to provide public classes in horticulture, botany, natural history and related subjects. In 1982, the Friends began sponsoring trips to various hotanical gardens around the U.S. Also over the decade, the Friends has continued to host special gardens lectures; fund summer internships for students in the field; provide lectures, workshops and demonstrations; and contribute money toward improving the gardens' collections and Library. It also funded many of the gardens' collections and library.

It has funded many of the gardens' publications, such as the Bartlettias, and various information guides. A committee is now trying to find a volunteer coordinator of its more than 500 members.

How to submit news items to newspaper

News of clubs, service organizations, engagements, weddings and wedding anniversaries are printed without cost in the Suburban Life Section of the Plymouth Observer and Canton Observer newspapers.

News items may be dropped off or mailed to the office at 489 S. Main St., Plymouth 48170. Special forms are available for club news, engagements, weddings and 50th wedding anniversary announcements.

Black and white pictures are preferred as they reproduce more clearly than color photos. A self-addressed, stamped envelope assures return of the pictures, or, they can be picked up at the office a week after they have been published. Mail should be addressed to the attention of Elinor Graham, Suburban Life editor.

The Rev. David Richards of Livonia leads the Fairlane Sanctuary Singers in a practice for their second concert tour of Europe.

Church choir plans European concerts

By Richard Lech staff writer

The musical outreach program of Fairlane Assembly of God in Dearborn Heights extends beyond western Wayne County — way beyond, to Germany, France, Switzerland, Spain and Portugal.

Those are the countries the church's choir, the Fairlane Sanctuary Singers, will be touring starting Tuesday and continuing through Monday, July 16.

This will be the second European trip for the choir, which visited England, Holland, Belgium and France in the summer of 1982.

The Rev. David Richards of Livonia, the church's minister of music, said that tour had many benefits both for the audience and choir members. And he expects the same blessings the second time around.

"First of all we hope the music will inspire people to make a decision for Christ, and we hope people are changed and helped," Richards said.

"We aren't narrow enough to believe that's going to happen all the time. But we feel some people will be making their decisions later on. We don't feel we'll see all the fruit at

THE CONCERTS also served as an inspiration to European church musicians from the Assembly of God and other denominations, Richards said. Large choirs singing contemporary gospel music just aren't known among Assembly of God churches there, he said.

"We got letters from our people in Europe about what our music meant to them and what they've done since," Richards said.

"For example, a musical group was formed in Holland that was very discouraged, very disillusioned, they really didn't know if what they were doing was really worth it. They said we inspired them, and since then they've done records, become nationally known and in turn have inspired

The tour also had a profound effect on some Fairlane choir members, Richards said. Three members decided to become missionaries because of the experience, and two others went on to study music and drama at Oral Roberts University.

This year the choir will perform nine concerts in all, in settings ranging from a scenic town square in Switzerland to a cathedral-like building in Madrid.

The choir will be larger, 77 voices as opposed to the 54-voice choir of the '82 trip. And it also will be trying something different — a musical drama, consisting of excerpts from its "Alive!" Easter production.

Joining with the choir for that segment of the program will be members of Fairlane Assembly's Rhema/ Drama Department, directed by the Rev. Darrell Ovenshire of Detroit. The choir and actors will be dressed in Biblical costumes to act out scenes depicting the death and Resurrection of Jesus Christ.

The church's senior pastor, the Rev. John Booher of Redford, will deliver a sermon at each concert, accompanied by an interpreter. A program will guide the audience through the musical-drama.

THE TOUR is part of the church's Musical Missions program, a concept Richards said he developed serving as a minister of music for 18 years at seven different churches around the

"I became a little anxious because every church I was at was doing the same old thing, having the church choir sing on Sunday morning and rehearse for it and maybe a few socials, and that was it," Richards said.

To expand his musical horizons, he developed his musical missions conChoir members practice music they will perform at concerts in Germany, France, Switzerland, Spain and Portugal next month. Choir members hall from Livonia, Redford, Westland, Taylor, Inkster, Dearborn, Dearborn Heights and other communities.

cept, which he brought to Fairlane when he became minister of music there in 1980. One part of the program is locally oriented. The choir performs in jails, nursing homes or small churches that do not have enough members to field good-size choir of their own. The second part of the program is oriented toward overseas missions, including the European tours. Richards said the tours take place every two years, and a trip to England Wales, Holland and possibly Scotland and Ireland is planned for 1986.

The first trip had been set up through Richards' father, who was director of Pentecostal Bible School of Holland in Zeist and now does home missionary work for Assembly of God there. Richards and his wife, Cheryl, and their four children had toured Europe three times previously giving small concerts as a family.

A highlight of the Fairlane choir's first trip was an impromptu concert on the steps of Sacre Coeur, a Roman Catholic cathedral on Montmartre, the highest hill in Paris.

They were singing there at the request of French fans who had seen them perform an authorized concert the night before in a Parisian audito-

DAN DEAN/staff photographer

There wasn't time to get the proper permits from the city to gather at Sacre Coeur, but the singers decided to perform anyway.
"The police came and asked a couple of guys what we were doing," Richards said. "After they told them, the police stood guard for us for half A highlight this year will be a trip to see the Passion Play in Oberammergau, West Germany. The play is marking its 350th anniversary.

To finance the trips, the choir uses various fund-raisers, including a rummage and bake sale. This year the congregation itself is donating $10,000 toward the costs of the trip.

"We feel it has unified our people," Richard said of the trip. "The whole church rallies around this music and drama team. It really is a unity factor. It draws people not only closer together, but closer to the Lord."

This is the season for graduations. As students mount the platform to accept their diplomas, we reflect upon the various types of students who enter schools and take instruction. In a book that contains the maxims and aphorisms of the wise men of centuries ago, we see depicted before our eyes four

THERE ARE OTHER people who assume the aspect of a funnel in their attitude to life. They choose nothing, they retain nothing, they ignore everything. They gaze upon the panorama of life like bored spectators. Their motto is: "So what!" Nothing in life is worth the fuss and bother. They are immune to life's pain and joy: blind to its beauty, deaf to its poetry, and unconcerned about its problems. They simply do not care enough to become involved in the

There is a third type of personality who exemplifies an evil far greater than the funnel. We refer to the strainer which rejects the wine and retains the dregs. There are some people who are seemingly capable only of absorbing the corrupt, the rotten, the impure. This is the person who has eyes only for the evil in life, and is blind to the good.

Violet connection takes root in 150 kinds

Most recently, the retired Livonia art teacher has filled his life and home with shelf after shelf of violets. His basement is adorned with more than 300 violet plants in 150 vari-

He had an African violet garage sale Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and had sold 150 of the plants as of Friday afternoon, with his biggest day, Saturday, yet to come. Prices ranged from

THE MAIN REASON he had the sale is to reach other people who grow violets and who would be interested in starting a club. This area needs a club, Maurus sald, because similar groups are either too far away or are filled to

By Friday afternoon he had gotten the support of four prospective club members, Maurus sald.

"So we've got the nucleus of a club, at least." he said.

The club members would hold study sessions to learn from each other and "improve our ability to raise plants," he said. "It will help people enjoy the plants more, too."

"A lot of people came in and saw the plants and said, 'Oh, you have African violets. I get an African violet, and it dies out.' But that's as far as it goes. They don't seem to want to know enough about them to keep them going.

Maurus, who has been raising violets on a large scale for the past five years, took a third-place award in the African Violet Society of America contest in 1983. Yet Maurus still considers himself "an amateur, because of what I've seen other people do," he said.

Learning from "other violet lovers" is something Maurus looks forward to,

and he easily spews data.

There are 10,000 different varieties of violets, and all of them have originated from the wild, blue plants that grow in Africa, he said. The colors vary in hues of blue, white or pink, and the blooms are usually single, double or triple rows of petals, he said.

"But each one has its own characteristics," Maurus said.

MAURUS NOTICED an improvement in his plants after he learned to use a soil-less mix of peat moss, vermiculite and perlite.

"It's a fluffy mix that the plant can anchor in," Maurus said. "But it doesn't have fertilizer, so you have to add

Growing the plants is expensive in terms of electricity as 80-watt flourescent-light bulbs are needed, he said. Maurus waters the plants by using the "touch method" to determine if they need moisture, and he pours water in the plant's tray rather than directly on the leaves.

"I don't have enough hours in the day," Maurus said. "There won't be a rocking chair for me, and that's why I want to start this club, because it will

Bonnie Scotland: land of beauty and beast

Loch Ness has monster and stunning scenery

By William Schemmel special writer

OME TRAINS are a means to an end. Others are a full circle, an end in themselves. Trains on British Rail's Kyle Line have a destination in mind as they set off three times a day, except Sunday, to deliver passengers, freight and the Royal Mail from Inverness, queen of the Scottish Highlands, to the Kyle of Lochalsh, at the doorstep of the mystical Isle of

Yet for all the practical reasons for its being, most of those making the 82mile journey are aboard for the journey itself.

For two hours and 55 minutes, the old reliable diesel pulls its load of baggage cars and passenger coaches around misty lochs, forests of firs and scotch pines, and barren mountains and moors upon which the Bronte sisters would feel perfectly at home.

It whizzes by gleaming whitewashed cottages, with lace curtains hanging in the windows, by fishing boats and lonely heather-carpeted pastures where sheep and reddish shaggy-haired cattle

IT PAUSES impatiently at Muir of Ord, Dingwall, Lochluichart, Achanalt, Achnasheen, Achnashellach, Strathcarron, Stromferry, Duncraig and Duirnish to take on and let off red-faced sheepmen, wiry Highland farm wives, and backpackers proudly wearing their colorful tartan kilts.

Sacred adherence to schedules must occasionally be jeopardized while trainmen shoo petrified lambs off the

From June to September, British Rail graciously puts on a domed observation car, with a guide who relates the history of the line and the glories of the passing flora and fauna.

For pure beauty, August, when the heather goes all technicolor purple, is the prime time. But for those of a more melancholy bent, whose vision of Scotland is not sunshine but mist-covered moors and lochs, winter and spring are the god-given times.

The Kyle Line was not conceived for the scenic enrichment of tourists. It was born before the American Civil War out of a need to open Scotland's remote western coast, and the islands of the Inner and Outer Hebrides, to commerce and industry, and thus stem the tide of young folk to America and the shipyards of Glasgow.

ALTHOUGH short in actual mileage, constructing the line was a prodigious engineering feat. Mountains of solid rock were blasted away, and salt marshes and lochs crossed by 29 bridg-

The most logical route sometimes had to be skirted because a wealthy landowner didn't want the nuisance of a train crossing his property. Finally, after numerous delays and an astronomical cost, it was completed on a joyous day in 1897.

The Kyle Line served its purpose well, but by the early 1960s, its commercial value was sapped by cars and

They wander restlessly through the few shops, fingering the Scotland is crammed tweeds and woolens, downing pints of with small bed and lager at the pubs. trucks, and practical minds at British Rail sought to close it down. However, the Highlanders rallied to the rescue of their "wee Kyle," and after a struggle that lasted a decade, saved one of Scotland's greatest adventures for future generations to savor.

Journey's end is the fishing village of Kyle of Lochalsh. From time immemorial, the town wasn't a town at all, but a small huddle of fishermen's cottages simply called Kyle, the Gaelic word for channel. It gifted itself with the more picturesque name to celebrate the ar-

BACKPACKERS plunge on from

Some staying overnight in Kyle frugally book rooms at a bed-and-breakfast. Others among us toss caution and pounds sterling to the winds and check in at the Lochalsh Hotel. At this gracious hotel's appointed dining hour, waiters bustle discreetly about, serving succulent lamb, and prawns, scallops and sea trout brought to shore that very af-

Sometimes when traveling alone, it's pleasant to seek out companionship, if only for a few pleasantries at a hotel bar, or to exchange life stories with strangers on a train. I have spent the day with a cheerful young Australian couple, making their first voyage of discovery across the old continent. Now, solitude is as welcoming and warm as the red wine the nervous young waiter is pouring.

After a fortnight of uncommon spring sunshine and balm, rain is steadily falling now, and through the dining room's panoramic windows clouds hang low and heavy over the mountaintops of Skye. Seagulls flap frantically by, as if they're all late for some terribly important date.

THE FERRIES glide effortlessly, relentlessly, across the black-glass waters, and yellow lights blink on across the way in Kyleakin. The ruins of Cas tle Moil — really only a forlorn wall of an ancient fortress — rise ghostly in the gloom. Down the channel, the black silhouette of a Royal Navy sub breaks from the depths.

With the creeping warmth of the wine and rich food, the dining room blurs into a scene from a vintage British film, one of those in which all the characters are named Millicent and Larry, lord-this, lady-that.

"Eunice just returned from America," a ramrod straight older lady, in a floral frock and discreet pearls, is saying to her table companion. "Had a perfectly frightful time. Everyone dashing madly about the place. She went into a shop in New York, and said to the shop-

girl in perfect English that she wanted a pair of gloves. Well, the poor child hadn't a clue what Eunice was asking her, and acted quite daft about the whole affair." "Yes, well i'tis a peculiar place, alright, America," says a red-cheeked, white-haired gentleman at her table. 'They're forever saying everything is 'neat', which of course doesn't mean what you'd think it might. No, it means something terribly clever. By the way, you look terribly neat tonight, my dear, INVERNESS, at the other end of the railway line, has adventures of a rather beastle lurking 'neath the dark, cold waters of Loch Ness? The mystery has titillated mankind since the 6th century, when St. Columba, spreading the Christian gospels among the heathen Highlanders, was startled by a water monster which appeared in the Loch like a vision from hell.

Consider a balanced portfolio

In this concluding article we will provide some general guidelines for investing in tax shelters.

The accompanying chart provides a convenient framework for viewing your entire investment portfolio. On the left side you will find products that are either liquid or convertible within a short period of time.

With minor exceptions they do not offer tax advantages. Product categories on the right side of the chart (except hard assets) are generally called tax shelters because they can reduce or postpone your tax liability.

The old cliche, "No one should pay any taxes they don't have to," is still valid. However, it is wise not to go overboard in this area. The following are some guidelines you may follow in deciding how much should be invested in tax shelters:

1. Try to maintain a healthy balance betweeen liquid and convertible funds on the one hand and tax-sheltered investments on the other. An 80-20 or 70-

2. It is unwise - in fact dangerous to attempt to lower your taxes to less than the 20-percent level. For one thing, tax shelters that drastically reduce your taxes generally trigger alternative minimum tax (thereby negating the value of the shelter). For another, such an attempt almost always invites an IRS audit.

3. Unless you have sound advice or you are duly qualified to evaluate the risks, it is better to limit yourself to real-estate tax shelters. Other shelters are often attractive, but someone must carefully evaluate their relative attractiveness and attendant risks.

4. To play it safe, seek the help of your financial planner. A competent planner will select the tax shelters that are right for you.

ARE YOU GIVING MONEY AWAY?

Some people still insist on having an oldfashioned checking account. Letting their financial institution use their money while they get no interest for it.

Smart First Federal of Michigan checking account customers know better. They earn interest on the money in their checking account from the date of their deposit right up until the day their checks are paid. And that can add up to a lot of money.

In 1983, the average interest earned by First Federal regular checking account customers was over $70. And that's money they didn't have before. Extra money for a bill, a gift or a great dinner out. You can even avoid monthly service charges by maintaining a $300 balance in your account. So stop by any of

Schoolcraft forsees older students

A different kind of Schoolcraft College student will require costlier capital equipment while training for the high-technology jobs of the future.

Ironically, that student will be more likely than his parents to have to change careers before retirement. So he may have to re-train in mid-life.

And Schoolcraft's difficulty is that it must purchase the high-tech equipment at a time when fixed costs such as insurance and utilities eat up a bigger and bigger share of its taxpayer-limited resources.

People think of us as a two-year college. We're not," said trustee Harry Greenleaf as the board conducted a special meeting on long-range planning. "We're a six-month college, a oneyear college, a lifelong college.

TRUSTEES AND administrators spent a full evening wrestling with the community college's growth and needs for more space even as census data showed the number of "traditional" 18-20-year-olds will plummet 25 percent between 1980 and 1990.

If that's so, asked trustee Mary Breen of Plymouth, why is the administration talking about 100,000 square feet of additional class and lab space? Answered Conway Jeffress, vice president for instruction: "First, there Greenleaf agreed. "A person near and dear to me told of studying music here - and having to practice in the women's restroom," said the Ford manager from Livonia.

W. Kenneth Lindner, vice president for business, called Schoolcraft's accommodations for fine arts - art, music, speech and drama - "makeshift at Jeffress' most pressing space problem is finding 100,000 square feet of space for a computer laboratory. And his planning report observed, "Virtually all of the college's laboratory equipment purchased on or before 1975 will require replacement as a result of obsolesence or disrepair by 1985."

COMMUNITY colleges saw their greatest growth in the 1960s, when they were a popular way for weak high school graduates to uplift their academic skills for college and, frankly, havens for men avoiding the military

In the 1970s they increased their vocational-technical offerings.

In the 1980s and '90s, however, they will have to do both. At one point the master plan says:

"Most data shows an increased need for 'technicians' or, more precisely, for two-year community college graduates especially in the following areas: lasers and optics; holographics; biotechnology; geriatric social workers; battery (fuel cell) technicians; robot technicians: computer programmers; computer repair, bionic technicians . . . But at another point it adds:

"Educational action to prepare for work and active life should aim less at training people to practice a given trade or profession than at equipping them to adapt themselves to a variety of jobs and developing their capacities continuously, in order to keep pace with developing production methods and working conditions."

HERE ARE some of the college administration's "planning assumptions:"

• Labor market — Fewer traditional four-year graduates will be needed. More technically trained people with less than four years of college will be in demand. But because of sophisticated technology, operators will have to know more about the "how" and "why" of their equipment.

• State aid - The state is expected to be unable to "properly finance" its colleges "in the forseeable future." The federal government will help little. But politics will keep the state from reducng its number of colleges.

• Local finances — A property tax increase "is required within the next three years if the college is to maintain its quality, comprehensiveness and physical ambiance." Trustees shied away from discussing that paragraph, having lost four money proposals on the ballot during the '70s.

• Quality of students - "Basic skills in math and reading are expected to continue to decline on the average." Oddly, they may be poor in English skills but strong in computer skills. Up to 40 percent may already hold a bachelor's or master's degree from another college. The community college population will become "increasingly less homogeneous.'

• Faculty - "Significant resources" will be needed to train and retrain the faculty.

• Population - Average ages will rise. The post-World War II baby boom generation will have fewer children than their parents and are competing with their parents for scarce jobs.

• Internal budgeting — Each year a larger share of the college's budget will go for such "fixed costs" as utilities. liability insurance, health insurance, postage, retirement costs and rents. Within four years, the college will have no ability to add services or programs without cuts in other areas.

Advice to new students: don't buy computer yet

University of Michigan officials advise freshmen and other new students who want to buy personal computers to wait until they arrive on campus this fall to make such pur-

"Wait and see which computers and software are utilized and supported within the program of study they are pursuing. What is suitable for a liberal arts student may differ from what is best for an engineering major," said Gregory A. Marks, special assistant to the provost.

THE UNIVERSITY does not require students to have their own computers. They are provided with adequate access to appropriate computing systems at many locations on the campus, including residence halls, he said.

He offered this advice to those who already own a computer: "If that computer is from Apple or IBM, or is compatible with one of those popular systems, it will probably prove very

"However, students may find it best to wait until they check on their course load, get a sense of their room, and contact their roommates to see if they are bringing their computers and coordinate the use of space in their room.

"Another important step is to make sure the equipment is fully insured, just as should be done with other major personal items."

Mother squirrel weans youngster

My wife and I are expecting our first child this September. Preparme for the baby's arrival, we have en reading books and articles on child development and making the house safe by taking certain precau-

Our anticipation has made me more aware of the young living things around me - from the maple and elm seeds helicoptering to the ground, to the continued growth and development of the young squirrels in the backyard.

NOT LONG ago, the mother squirrel began the weaning process by refusing to let the youngster climb on her back or to follow her to her nest. That process certainly comes sooner in a squirrel's life than in a human's.

The young squirrel has accepted the change very well, though. Lately, he has been tumbling and rollicking on the lawn with sticks and clods of dirt like a kitten with a ball of

At times he will jump straight up into the air from a standing position, twist 180 degrees in the air, land and then race up the nearest tree for no apparent reason.

Play behavior like this helps to develop the animal's coordination and perception. It also develops his rank and position in the squirrel community when he interacts with other squirrels.

PLAY, AS most parents know, can result in accidents and hard knocks.

The other morning I saw the young squirrel fall 30 feet to the ground from the branches of our oak tree. He quickly climbed a few feet up the tree trunk, but then came down to the ground and remained motionless.

After 10 minutes of staring at the ground in front of him, he slowly wandered off. Since then we have seen him tusseling with his brother, so everything seems to be all right.

But I am sure that he has learned not to make the same mistake that led to his 30-foot fall.

Michigan residents give Michigan's community colleges high marks but feel the tuition at four-year colleges is too high, a statewide poll showed today.

The State Board of Education's first statewide public opinion survey to measure citizen attitudes about higher education also showed strong support for Gov. James Blanchard's proposal to give more state aid to four-year colleges that freeze their tui-

It showed Michiganians place a greater value on higher education than people in other states.

STATE SUPERINTENDENT of Public Instruction Phillip E. Runkel called the poll's findings "very significant." Results of the interviews with 802 Michigan residents conducted by telephone in mid-May, were released at a news conference in

"Overall, this survey shows there is strong public support for our colleges and universities," said Runkel, noting that state has 100 public and private colleges and universities.

Runkel said the poll shows that nearly three-fourths (74 percent) of all Michigan adults believe a college education today is "very important" com-pared to only 58 percent who placed a high priority on a college education in the 1983 Gallup Poll.

'Survey participants gave a high vote of confidence to the state's community and junior colleges and said they would vote for a millage increase if asked to do so by their community college," Runkel

TWO OUT OF three persons (68 percent) gave an "excellent" or "good" rating on the way their local two-year college meets local educational needs.

Two-thirds (67 percent) said they would vote for a millage increase to enable their community college to continue providing services.

Runkel said the poll shows the public believes the three most important functions of Michigan's system of 29 community colleges are to prepare students to go on to a four-year college so they can earn a degree (88 percent), provide vocational training (85 percent) and give make-up instruction in basic skills (75 percent).

Questions concerning the state's 15 public four-year colleges showed that half (50 percent) of all citizens polled believe the present tuition at these colleges is too high and nearly four out of 10 persons (37 percent) feel the cost of attending a four-year college in Michigan is higher than it is in other 62 percent said they are opposed to the state providing any form of state aid for students going to a private or independent college.

All the world loves a loser

OSING. IS THERE anything more depressing? Of course not. But, let's face it, what would sports be without losers? Just a bunch of cocky winners walking around with big grins on there faces.

Boring Losers comprise at least 50 percent of all sports. (Now that's a profound statement, isn't it?) In fact, I'd venture to say that losers are in the majority.

Take a golf tournament or a tennis tournament. What do you have, 100-150 competitors? How many winners are there? One. The rest are losers.

WHAT'S THE the point of all this? Losers, a majority faction in sports and perhaps in life, haven't received their proper due. Winners make the headlines. To the winners go the spoils. To the losers go the spoiled. It's time we recognize losers for what they are.

Author Philip Roth summed up the difference between winners and losers better than anyone ever has through his character Word Smith in the novel, "The Great American Novel:"

Winning is tops. Winning is the name of the game. Winning is what it's all about. Winning is the be-all and the end-all, and don't let anybody tell you otherwise. All the world loves a winner. Show me a good loser, said Leo Durocher, and I'll show you a loser. Name one thing that losing has to recommend it. You can't. Losing is tedious. Losing is exhausting. Losing is uninteresting. Losing is depressing. Losing is boring. Losing is debilitating. Losing is compromising. Losing is shameful. Losing is humiliating. Losing is infuriating. Losing is disappointing. Losing is incomprehensible. Losing makes for headaches, muscle tension. skin eruptions, ulcers, indigestion and for mental disorders of every kind. Losing is bad for confidence, pride, business, peace of mind, family, love, sexual potency, concentration and much, much more. Losing is bad for people of all ages, races, and religions; it is as bad for infants as for the elderly, for women as for men. Losing makes people cry, howl, scream, hide, lie, smolder, envy, hate and quit. Losing is probably the single biggest cause of suicide in the world, and of murder. Losing makes the benign malicious, the generous stingy, the brave fearful, the healthy ill, and the kindly bitter. Losing is universally despised, as well it should be. The sooner we get rid of losing, the happier everyone will be.

OK MISTER hot-shot author, try to get rid of all the losers. You won't be able to do it. As long as there is competition there will be losers. It's a universal plague that will never go away.

Losers come in all forms. I ought to know. I don't claim expertise in many areas. When it comes to losing, however, I am indeed an expert.

An expert loser is not, let me stress, a bad person. A loser is not someone who strolls along outside Tiger Stadium with a bottle in one hand mooching quarters. That is a burn. A loser is not a burn. Nor is a loser a criminal, lecher, pervert, philanderer, jerk, sloven or schmuck.

Losers, in this context anyway, are those of us who don't happen to win much.

Here's what expert losers lose. They lose their baseball games, their card games, their wallet, their comb at least twice a week, their girl friend, their boy friend, their mind, their bets and their pick-up basketball games. The teams they root for lose. The teams they play for lose. If they don't care who wins the game they are watching, it'll end in a tie. If there is something they want real bad, they won't get it. If there is something they absolutely don't want, they'll get it. Such is the plight of the expert loser.

EXPERT LOSERS are forced to make sacrifices. For example, it is tough for the expert loser to hang on to any feelings of self-respect or self-confidence. The expert loser has no ego. It has long since been deflated beyond vision.

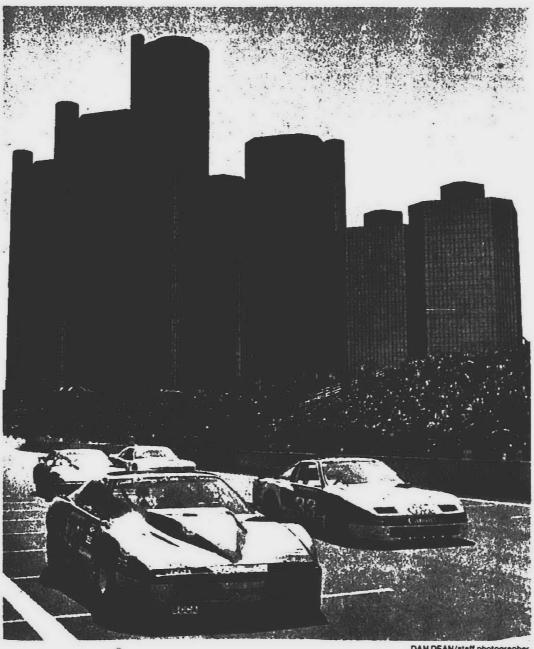

The expert loser tends to become terribly paranoid and insecure. Here's what I mean: A friend calls to tell you the Tigers are on TV. "The Tigers are up 3-2 and they have the bases loaded and one out," says the friend. You rush to the TV. The first thing you see is a Tiger hitting into an inning-ending double play. Immediate reaction: The double play was you're fault. It wouldn't have happened if you weren't watching. You don't watch and the guy hits a grand slam. You keep watching and the Tigers lose 4-3.

An expert loser has to expect to feel frustrated and depressed a lot of the time. You know you're an expert loser when you find yourself leading throughout the contest, only to lose in the waning moments. You know you're an expert loser when you master the technique of snatching defeat from the jaws of victory. When it dawns on you that you are entering contests without the alightest hope of winning, you are fast approaching

Three Trans-Am cars built by the Livoniaplaces in the Trans-Am race in Detroit based Team Roush took the top three prior to the Formula I Grand Prix.

Roush cars pull sweep

staff writer

All three drivers, still garbed in their red, fireproof racing suits, smiled broadly

Each had good reasons. On the right sat Greg Pickett, who stepped into a car he'd never raced before and sped to a third-place finish in Saturday's SCCA Pontiac Trans Am 100 at the Detroit Grand Prix.

On the left was Willy T. Ribbs, who stepped into a car he'd never raced before and, after a month-long hiatus from driving, powered his car to a second-place finish in the Trans Am race.

In the middle was Tom Gloy, who plunked a new engine into his car and, after two straight second-place finishes finally cracked the win column, a victory that also gave him the points leadership in the drivers' standings.

Not appearing with the Saturday's champions was Jack Roush. All Roush did was build the three cars.

IT WAS A HAPPY day for Ford people. GM cars had dominated the Trans Am series in recent years after Ford had reduced its sponsorship. Ford decided to get involved anew, but only with partial sponsorship through the private sector.

That's when Roush entered the picture. He built the Mercury Capri Gloy raced last season in the Trans Am series, a ride that never finished higher than third. So Roush was prompted to completely re-design the Capri for this season. We took the chance this year to hop right in and design our own car, with the hopes that it would be competitive," said the Livonia-based auto designer.

Now it's the opponents that are hoping — hoping something happens to those three Roush-built Capris. They have dominated the last three Trans-Am races, with Pickett winning twice (Gloy finishing second both times) and Gloy capturing Saturday's event. Now Ribbs, who finished second in the Trans Am drivers' points standings last season behind DeAtley Racing teammate David Hobbs, has been added to the Roush team.

The domination of GM-style cars, at least for this season, has diminished.

IF SATURDAY'S race proved anything, it was a tribute to the durability of Roush's cars. "We were determined to put the Roush cars 1-2 here," said

That didn't happen, partially because Pickett lost control of his Capri during warm-ups Friday and crashed. Realizing the car couldn't be repaired in time for Saturday's race, Roush rented Gloy's back-up car — last year's Capri in which Gloy never finished higher than third.

Pickett didn't break the streak. He, too, placed third in the unfamiliar ride.

Ribbs was also on unfamiliar wheels. After being dropped by Neil DeAtley hours before the start of the Trans Am season, Ribbs signed a one-race deal with the Roush team, which built a second car for him.

It wasn't finished until the Wednesday before race day, allowing Ribbs liftle time to get adjusted. But he qualified fifth and finished fourth, overcoming brake problems early and driving the last part of the race without a

Rowdies move to national tourney

By Brad Emons staff writer

The FLiP Rowdies set a familiar pattern in winning the Midwest Regional soccer tournament for girls 19 and under last weekend at Schoolcraft Col-

We'd got off to a shaky start, but we got stronger each game," said the team's coach, Dave Lussier. "We met the challenges all the way through."

The Rowdies, comprised of players from Farmington, Livonia and Plymouth, advance to next month's National Youth Challenge Cup in St. Louis, Mo.

Sue Ferguson scored twice, both from Kim Paterson, to give the Rowdies a 2-0 win over the Westside Renegades of Forest Park, Ohio in Sunday's championship game.

"It was a very defensive game, but that's the way we designed it," Lussier said. "Ohio was very physical. I think our defense deserves recognition Cheryl Galindo, Chris Lussier, Colleen O'Connor, Margie Wangbichler and Kim Reeves. They put in the time."

IN THE SEMIFINALS on Sunday morning. Forest Park eliminated defending champion Tammel Crow of St. Louis, 5-1, while the Rowdies ousted a team from Wisconsin, 2-0, as Annette Ruggiero scored twice.

In the first round, the Michigan champs struggled to beat an aggressive Illinois contingent, 3-2, as Dorene Dudek scored twice. Ferguson, meanwhile, had the other goal. Ferguson scored two more with Galindo and Dudek notching one each as the Rowdies turned back Indiana in the second round, 4-0

"At no time did I think we'd win after the way we played our first game. We had a tough time getting started."

Not only did the Rowdies play solid defense, they also received solid goaltending from Doreen Beagle, who posted three shutouts and made 68 saves in "THE BOTTOM line is that we made it to the final four in the country," Lussier said. "To be in this competition is a real plus. People don't usually recognize soccer in the midwest, except Missouri, as being strong.

"This says a lot for our area." What does Lussier think his team's chances are of winning in St. Louis?

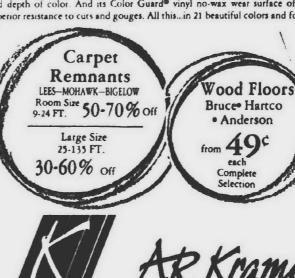

"I feel if the team continues to work hard and they can reach their peak, we've got a shot at a national title," he said. "But it's got to be a team effort.

"But just getting there is something for these girls. It's been the culmination of five years of playing together."

Rounding out the FLiP Rowdie contingent are Pam Craigie, Lori Engel, Terri Groat, Andrea Bokos, Lisa Russell, Jennifer Huegli, Danielle Montroy and Shelly Staszel.

Ozarks nab Scott Ford

Score another for The School of the Ozarks.

The four-year liberal arts college located in Pt. Lookout, Mo., has snatched another talented baseball player from the Plymouth-Canton Community School District.

Scott Ford, who emerged as the stopper on this year's Plymouth Canton baseball team, has signed a letter of intent to attend the Missouri school beginning next fall.

Ford, a crafty right-hander, posted a 7-0 record with the Chiefs last season with an impressive 1.92 ERA.

OZARES COACH Bob Smith rates Ford among his most prized recruits.

Skaters eye national title

By Brad Emons staff writer

Although they say there was no sig-nificance, Phil Fisher and Kim Davis became partners on Valentine's Day. And it's been a lovely match of talent ever since. The two gained their first title on June 17 at the Michigan State Artistic Roller Skating championships held at the Troy Skateworld, beating four other teams, including the defending champions.

This weekend, the 19-year-old Davis and the 20-year-old Fisher will compete in a regional meet at Melody Skate in Indianapolis with their sights set on the nationals July 27 in Lincoln,

"It was great taking all ones (scores)," said Kim, a Livonian who graduated from Bentley High School. The first thing we did was hug. We couldn't believe it."

DAVIS AND FISHER teamed in February after losing their partners.

"The partners we had decided to go together," Kim said. "We all skate out of the same rink. We were both looking for dance partners. We've been together now for four months."

Dreams never wane for sandlot hopefuls

By Tom Henderson staff writer

"Baseball is Americana. Any kid who thinks he can play ball deserves a chance to prove it. Even if he's terrible, if he can't run or throw, if he thinks he can, we'll look at him.

Chuck Tanner, the manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, explaining why the Pirates are one of the few teams in baseball who still conduct regular tryout camps

ERRY CROWLEY peered in at the catcher, motioned that he was coming in with the fastball, kicked up a lanky leg till it was even with his eyes, then came over the top with his hard one.

Crowley, 20, of Detroit didn't look much like a baseball player - he had on long, baggy sweatpants and his car keys were tied to the shoelaces of his work boots. But you can't always tell talent by the cut of its cloth - the Cincinnati Red's scouts had been around long enough to know that - and so Crowley was getting just as good a test as the rest of the 51 hopefuls who showed up Tuesday morning at Ford Field in Livonia for a public tryout

The signal said fast ball, the radar gun said otherwise: 66 it read, slow for a change up, practically stop-action for a fastball. His curve hit 61 on the Jugs gun and in the dirt, three fee wide of

"What else you throw?" asked the

"A submarine," Crowley said. Submarine it did, into the ground barely halfway to the plate

The scout, Fred Hayes, a wizened old-timer with a leathery neck and forearms from too many mornings in the sun timing kids, wrote "NP" on a chart next to Crowley's name: No pros-

"Thanks, son, Next," said Haves, "Next" throws 72, 69, 72. He is wild. breathing hard, wild-eyed, scared stiff. "Relax," says Glenn Scala, who hold the radar gun. "You're hypeswentilating, man, slow down."

AND, FOR THE MOST part, so it goes. In the 60-yard dash, where "a 6.5 will really make our eyes pop," according to head scout Gene Bennett, many of the kids plug across the line in 7.5 seconds. Only 14 of the 51 are under seven seconds and worthy of retiming and another look.

Of the 12 pitchers, only four have fastballs above 80.

One of the 12 is Scott Smith, 17, who will be a senior at Southfield Lathrup. He attributes his 1-6 record this year to a "real bad defense." He is wild, high and consistently at 74-75 on the gun. Good size, average arm: NP.

Another is Mike Miller, 16, a senior in the fall at Bishop Borgess. He keeps the ball low and throws a split-finger fastball in addition to a regular fastball and curve. But the gun says, "78, 77, 78" and Hayes says: "NP.

The attrition rate is high for infielders and outfielders, too. One of them is in a soccer uniform and boots the ball accordingly. Another stands 5-foot-4 and weighs no more than 120. Would-be shortstops bounce throws 15 feet in front of the bag at first.

Finally, the group of 51 is weeded down to 20 - four pitchers, two catchers (including Kevin Moore of Redford Union, who has a cannon instead of a right arm), eight infielders and six out-

The 31 who bid adieu are done so politely. For instance, Hayes tell the

"This baseball is a great game. So, don't give up on it. Especially you young ones, stick with it. It's a great time and a great game. Go to every tryout camp you can. Work on it. I personally want to thank every one of you for taking the time to come out. If there's anything we can do, if there's any question you want answered, we'll be glad to help you."

THE 20 survivors split up for a brief scrimmage, though by that point, the scouts pretty well had their minds made up. The stopwatches and radar gun told much of the story, so did watching the kids throw from the outfield or from deep in the hole at short; the scrimmage was more a reward than a chance to continue showing their

According to Bennett, the camps are intended to pay long-term benefits, not to turn up some phenom worthy of instant signing and stardom. He runs 25 of the camps throughout the Midwest, while the Reds run nearly 600 nation-

"Most of these kids are ineligible," Bennett explained during the scrimmage. "The ones in high school, we can't draft, and the ones in college who are under 21 are ineligible. What we're doing is adding to the files. The ones we like, we'll ask them back to other camps. When it comes time that they are eligible, in one or two or three years, then we can draft them."

(Of recent Reds who have reached the majors after first coming to the team's attention in tryout camps were Don Gullett, who wowed them with his fastball when he was 15, and Dan Driessen and Doug Flynn, neither of whom was drafted but who stood out in subsequent tryouts.)

Cincinnati scout Gene Bennett (middle) watches Farmington's Scott Miller swing the bat during Tuesday morning's tryout camp at Ford Field in Livonia.

Of the 20 who survived the first cut Tuesday, only four were rated highly enough to get requests for repeat appearances. One was Cliff Simpson, 20, a Detroiter who played college ball for Voorhees (S.C.) State last year and who is transferring to Texas Southern next year. A pitcher who had a sharp curve and a fastball consistently timed in the mid-80s, he was the star of the camp and was invited back to Wednesday's camp in Warren.

"WE JUST drafted him," half-joked Bennett after one particularly impressive strikeout.

Another who was invited to Warren qualified for the best-name team, if nothing else. He was Fudarrell (Magic) Maggitt of Detroit, a slick-fielding

And the names of the other two who assed inspection (who will be notified by the Reds to appear at follow-up camps in August or next spring)?

"Oh, we can't have that in the paper," said Bennett, breaking into a laugh. "Cincinnati won't stand for that. That's

A FIFTH WINNER at the camp might have been Roger George, a for-mer coach in the Livonia Collegiate League who runs the baseball program at Henry Ford Community College.

A handful of kids excited him, especially Maggitt and a knuckleballing righthander named Greg McCormick, who also possessed an 84 mph fastball.

Willie T. Ribbs raises his hand triumphantly after taking second in Saturday's Trans-Am race in Detroit. He drove a Roush car.

Roush-Ribbs take 2nd place

"I don't know how the car with-stood it," Ribbs said. "There was absolutely no clutch whatsoever. I misshifted more than a dozen times.

"That car's a tank and a missle. By that I mean it stood up to a lot of pun-GLOY'S VICTORY not only ended nearly two years of frustration, but it came in perhaps the biggest race of the year, considering the large number of Ford executives watching.

"This was definitely the one to win if you had to pick a town to win in," Gloy agreed.

The DeAtley team, which dominated the circuit last season, knew the in Detroit, too. They gambled and brought in Indy-style car driver Michael Andretti, son of Mario Andretti.

to drive a third entry.

The move proved a disaster. Andretti rammed into pole-winner Bob Lobenberg on the first lap, a collision that eventually put Lobenberg out of the race, then ran into the wall three times before retiring midway through the race.

Hobbs took control early in the race until, on the 22nd lap, Gloy slipped by on the first turn. Hobbs never recovered as Gloy pulled away. The DeAtley driver dropped back, finishing the race in sixth.

THE CASUALITIES continued to mount on the bumpy Detroit course with fewer than half the cars entered able to finish.

"I felt we'd have a real good chance if we could avoid the carnage early on," said Gloy. "I just played dodge 'em and stayed out of trouble.'

As for Hobbs, Gloy could "see David's car, how it was handling and braking.

And it wasn't good. As Roush pointed out, "(DeAtley) is in a slump. Their car isn't working well, the suspension is breaking down and it's wearing out the tires faster."

The faulty suspension wasn't helping the brakes much, either, while Gloy enjoyed "excellent braking all day long.

What Roush drivers Ribbs and kett enjoyed a the announcement delivered by Ford executive vice president Harold A. Poling that Motocraft would sponsor the Roush team the rest of the Trans Am season. Both drivers' contracts expired after the Detroit race.

That certainly doesn't brighten the season outlook for the DeAtley team unless they can affect some changes quickly. The problems Ribbs experienced aren't likely to reoccur, and Pickett's car will be back on the track for this weekend's race at Daytona.

So it seems that, for this season at least, Roush and Mercury Capri have the inside track on the Trans Am cir-

"Logan's Run," a visually stunning but ultimately disappointing film, opens our sci-fi week at the movies. The special effects aren't very good but the interiors, costumes and gadgets are neatly futuristic. "Logan's Run" has an interesting premise, too set in a society where no one lives past 30 - but it suffers when its protagonists too easily resolve their difficulties. Even sci-fi films have to build upon a modicum of believability. Michael York, Jenny Agutter, Peter Ustinov and Farrah Fawcett star. Jerry Goldsmith composed the evocative musical score

Rating: $2.75.

"Creature from the Black Lagoon" (1954), 12:30 p.m. Saturday on Ch. 2. Originally 79 minutes. TV time slot: 90 minutes.

Talk about unbelievable: Granted, movies about creatures from black lagoons aren't to be taken seriously, but this film falls right through the credibility gap. It was made only to exploit the wonders of 3D photography but now it provides some unintentional laughs, especially when the fish/man stalks comely Julie Adams. Richard Carlson and

"The Invisible Man" (1932), 2 p.m. Saturday on Ch. 2. Originally 71 minutes. TV time slot: 75 minutes.

Claude Rains was heard but rarely seen in "The Invisible Man," his debut film, yet his performance was so impressive that it launched him to stardom. James Whale, who directed "Frankenstein" and "The Bride of Frankenstein," was at the helm, bringing with him his delightfully irreverent manner and penchant for black humor. John Fulton's special effects were state-of-the-art, and all concerned do justice to the H.G. Wells novel on which the film is based. In sum, here's the week's best bet... Gloria Stuart, Una O'Connor and Henry Travers costar.

Rich, Damone make a good pair

By James Windell special writer

IC DAMONE DOESN'T quite match the electric personality of drummer Buddy Rich. But that's all right. Together to open the pop/jazz portion of Meadow Brook Music Festival's 21st season they complemented each other very Rich's 15-piece big band kicked off the show with the brash personality of its leader and the drummer's remarkable abilities as a musician setting the tone for the orchestra's 50-minute set.

Shouting encouragement to his band, changing the order of the charts and breezing through a short, vigorous drum solo. Rich was just as one expects him to be. The word that best describes that expectation is fiery. His young, fresh band never takes it easy or too casual. Rich would never permit that.

review

Rich, who suffered a heart attack a little over a year ago, has been prodding some band or another from his position behind the drums ever since 1938. In his own bands and small groups which he had off and on for some 20 years, Rich has set the beat and lit a fire that has made his bands exciting to listen to.

HIS PRESENT band has a strong sax section with five reed players and arrangements that rely on those musicians. However, with the leader's everpresent clickity-click cymbal sound and a biting brass section, tunes like Ellington's "In A Mellotone" and a Jumping at the Woodside" Count Basie tribute appear new and vital.

Even with his physical problems, Rich has lost nothing as a drummer. A very dramatic "West Side Story Medis made all the more significant when he takes his one long solo of the night. Attacking his cymbals, adding snare drums and building to a crescendo punctuated by his magnificent bass drum work, Rich is a real powerhouse.

Retreating from this crescendo, though, he downshifts to playing his sticks and a single beat before rebuild-ing the solo with a rapid drum roll. He gets more mileage out of playing his drum sticks against each other than some drummers do out of playing their

With Buddy Rich taking a rest for the second half of the show, the band backed another Brooklyn-born musician, Vic Damone.

Damone, born Vito Farinola in Brooklyn 11 years after Rich, has a much different way of relating to a crowd. Rich's mild invectives were replaced by the smooth vocals and pleasant sales techniques of Damone. He's been winning over audiences with both since his CBS radio show "Saturday Night Serenade" in 1947.

OUT OF THE limelight since he had a TV show about 20 years (called "The Lively Ones"), Vic Damone has retained his smooth delivery and excellent style that is clear and straightfor-

Looking handsome and sounding relaxed, Damone charmed the Meadow Brook audience with a combination of old favorite songs and some updated covers. "The Song is You" and "You'd Be So Easy to Love" worked well with his cover of the Willie Nelson-Julio Iglesias hit "To All the Girls I've Loved Before" and a couple of Lionel Richie

Together with Buddy Rich, Vic Damone has set the tone for a summer concert season that should be a boon to pop music lovers.

Baldwin Pavilion and the lawn begin to fill up for the opening concert in the Friday Night Variety Series at Meadow Brook Music Festival on the Oakland University campus near Rochester.

Fabulous Cleo Laine returning to Meadow Brook

It's difficult to remember a time which wasn't all that long ago — when Cleo Laine wasn't around. She appears in metro Detroit at often as any major talent and always seems to draw capacity crowds.

That's why Meadow Brook Music Festival has booked the flawless singer with the four-octave range for Friday and Saturday night performances this weekend.

The mop-haired 56-year-old singer was virtually an unknown entertainer in the United States until her first tour here in the fall of 1972. By the end of that tour, which included an appearance at Alice Tully Hall in New York, she was a resounding success in America as she already was in her native England.

Continuing to travel to the United States - now she makes three trips a year - Laine is always accompanied

Eclectic Artist discovers joy in variety

staff writer

For a definition of "eclectic," you can turn to the American Heritage dictionary and read that the word means "choosing or consisting of what appears to be the best from diverse sources." But for an example of "eclectic," you can turn to Doreen Lawton.

The former Plymouth resident has a multitude of "diverse sources," whether you're talking about her past experiences, her present interests or her future plans. She's an artist who started in oils, went on to watercolors, is now into silkscreening and woodblock painting and is planning to move into lithographing and etching.

"I'm eclectic," Lawton said. "I like so many different things, styles and whatever. When I'm watercoloring, (the style) is loose. When I'm doing screen printing, sometimes it's tight. I'm still finding my style, and some people nev-

LAWTON, A part-time instructor with Schoolcraft College's Garden City campus, recently entered two silk-screen prints in the Ann Arbor Women Painters' Show. Both were selected out of 97 entries. One of Lawton's, a pastelcolored work entitled "With Feather," was chosen as "best of show" by judge Marilyn Symmes from the Detroit In-homes and in such public buildings as libraries and credit unions in Plymouth, Canton and Ann Arbor. She has contributed to a collection at Eastern Michigan University. Her pieces have been sold at prices in an estimated $50 to $125 range, "based on the amount of time it takes to do it," according to IDEAS FOR Lawton's artworks come from anywhere and anytime, including her own back yard. A silk-screen print called "The Flock" was inspired by the sheep on the sheep farm she used to have. "Fence Row Spring," a woodblock, depicts flowers along a

"With Feather" includes a real feath-

By David Messing special writer

I used to work at one of the automotive companies, well . . . at least I was employed by one. Some of my old bosses might have a little trouble with the word "work." But those same bosses that often scolded me about talking would also come to me on the sly and ask me to do a cartoon for the boss' birthday or the big boss' retire-

Sometimes the big, big boss would be transferred which promoted the boss to big boss and the big boss to big, big boss and etc. They usually wanted a cartoon to celebrate the occasion. So where did that leave me, the hourly employee? Usually someone would stuff me into some room which was usually the boiler room next to the kitchen. As a matter of fact I signed many cartoons, cards and caricatures "the boiler room studio." There I would not only reap an occasional compliment for my talent but found many new friends and gained about 23 lbs. splitting pastries with Jan, the cook, and eating anything that would fit into

Once I was reprimanded for drawing on the job and at the end of that mini lecture, the foreman lowered his voice and said, "If you get a chance do one of my boss, it's his birthday." As it grew close to the time I was leaving the company to open the Art Store, none of ses bothered me about my cartooning because they thought it might be a cartoon for them and they didn't want to spoil the surprise. I had it made in the shade. To think, I quit a job like that. Hey . . . come to think of it, nobody drew a cartoon for me when I

SO TODAY'S Artifacts is about "caricatures." Maybe you have done them before, if so I would like to offer some artful hints. Maybe you have never even given them a thought, if so I would like to encourage you to give

First I would like to say that caricatures are fun. They are 180 degrees from portraiture. In a portrait you try to play down unattractive or uncommon features. In caricatures you emphasize or poke fun at certain characteristsic features. I feel a caricature should never be cruel or disrespectful. Any feature of face or body can be overdone to the point of injury and this should never be the goal of the caricaturist. So with that warning out of the way let's talk about how to do carica-

A caricature is truly an art form. Art is selection and selection is caricaturing. It is studying the model or photo and extracting only those lines and shapes that are characteristic of the person. How you place those lines and shapes on paper sets the mood of the caricature. If your lines, shapes and colors are bold and greatly exaggerated than your caricature will be wacky or silly. If your lines shapes and colors are more carefully drawn and more subtly placed then your caricature is more realistic yet still humorous. Both styles are appreciated and will be accepted. Of the two, however, the latter is more often framed and more likely hung in office or home.

A caricature is a visually brief description, and that is a good tip for finding what to draw and what to leave out. Mentally describe the features to yourself before you begin to draw. Remember it is your mind that tells the hand what to draw. Clarity in the mind produces clarity and accuracy of line on the paper.

ABSTRACTION MEANS to pull out or select, and the caricaturist must first master abstraction if he or she is to improve in this field. Caricatures of many artist are weighted down with too many lines and details, causing the artwork to hover somewhere between realism and cartoon. Probably the greatest compliment to a caricaturist is when someone says something like "that's his face exactly. In just a few lines you got his features perfect."

The hardest people to caricature are pretty girls and women because everything is pretty and there is little to be humorous with. Men are a caricaturist's play ground because their features are usually bolder than those of women. Always ask what are the hobbies of the subject and also the occasion for the request. Probably what will make you or break you as a caricaturist is style. "Style" is your personal touch or the look that is characteristic of your ability. The quality that causes people to say "Oh, I've seen his work before." Style is not taught and it is particularly distasteful if it is copied. Style is developed by practice and is appreciated if only for it's originality.

Pricing is of course up to you. I used to do caricatures for a lunch and a sincere thank you, now I usually charge aroung $100 for a framed caricature. You must set your own minimum. I feel, however, that $25 is a good base price for even beginning caricaturists.

I usually do a caricature of myself in the Artifacts column, but today I have done a caricature of my friend, Roger Buelow, who when fully dressed in his Boy Scout uniform is a most cartoonable character. Also he is having his 40th birthday this week, so I just couldn't resist.

How to add sparkle to your July 4 photos

Want to add some "flare" to your photographs? Want to "sparkle" up your shots with lots of color? How about a new "burst" of excitement to your pic-

All of this and more are yours if you get out your camera and record the thrill and drama of Fourth of July fireworks.

Photographing fireworks isn't as difficult as you might think. Follow the advice given here and you'll reward yourself with some truly memorable holiday

To begin with, use slide film. Because of the large element of chance in shooting fireworks, slide film is less expensive and will also enable you, at a quick glance, to select your best shots for printing.

Further, use daylight balanced film. Despite the fact that the color temperature of fireworks is that of tungston films, tungston balanced films may give your pictures too cool a look.

We expect fireworks to look warm and "alive" and daylight film will do just this.

AT PUBLIC displays you can hand hold your camera using exposures of about 1/60 second at wide open aperture with ASA 100 film. But because of varying intensities of different fireworks, be prepared to

Also, the faster shutter speeds required by hand holding won't give your photograph that certain mystique that a long shutter speed will.

So better yet, use a tripod. That will enable you to set your camera on "B" which in turn offers a wide range of options

First, a long shutter speed will allow light patterns from the firewoks to spread into a more exciting design. Also, with your camera on "B," you'll be able to wait until several bursts explode capturing them all on a single frame of film. Remember, in the intervals of darkness, nothing is being recorded on the

Try tilting, panning, even wiggling the camera during exposure to spread the image of the fireworks across the frame. Think of the abstract patterns you

DO YOU have a zoom lens? Try zooming in and out during exposure for a remarkable effect. You can even hold colored filters over the lens, changing colors after each burst. Imagine the colorful images you'll be able to create.

Want to try something exciting at home? Wait until dark, set your camera on a tripod and the shutter speed on "B" with a small aperture. Have a friend or family member stand in front of the camera and twirl a sparkler in either an abstract pattern or a recognizable word or shape.

All of this will be recorded on the film. If you want the person in the finished picture, snap off your flash at the end of the exposure.

So make this Fourth of July a real blast - not just for you, but for your camera, too.

Observer & Eccentric PILA

644-1070 Oakland County 591-0000 Wayne County 552-3222 Rochester/Avon

Holding a garage sale is a fun way to do a little business on your own . . . but it takes a bit of planning. Like you'll want to decide what to sell and how much to charge for each item

... and then you'll need price tags so other people will know what you're charging. And you'll have to be able to make change for all your customers . . . so that means you should have lots of one dollar bills and an assortment of coins. Then you'll want to advertise your sale to attract that crowd. You can do it with a sign or signs in your neighborhood . . . but you'll want a bigger crowd than that . . . so you'll run an ad in Classified which tells the time and place of your sale to a host of potential buyers.

Have fun with your little business adventure!
