Lucas wants state to take over DeHoCo

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

The Detroit House of Correction in Plymouth Township is targeted to close Dec. 1. Wayne County Executive William Lucas wants the state to make the facility a temporary prison. State Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth Township, disapproves, saying it would cost some $20 million to renovate.

Report irks panel members

By Gary M. Cates
staff writer

Wayne County Executive William Lucas has called for the state to take over by Dec. 1 the Detroit House of Corrections (DeHoCo) to provide 1,000 temporary prison beds.

Lucas also challenged the Legislature to address the state's crime and prison problem during its current session, even if it means working through the holidays.

The comments were part of a seven-point announcement Monday of the preliminary findings of the county executive's blue ribbon commission on law enforcement and prisons.

The report came on the heels of Lucas' western Michigan trip to discuss statewide crime problems, and one day before Detroit Mayor Coleman Young made public his commitment to increase prison space.

BUT THE timing of Lucas' announcement didn't settle well with some of the blue ribbon commission members.

"I wasn't surprised by his announcement — I was shocked," said Northville Township Supervisor Susan Heinz. As a commission member, she serves on the site selection subcommittee.

"It was my feeling that we had an understanding that we were going to recommend site criteria rather than actual sites," Heinz said. "I know we didn't make the decision to use DeHoCo."

"We were just starting to write a report. There was no report, no recommendations," she said.

Commission chairman, Wayne Circuit Court Judge Patrick Duggan of Livonia, agrees there wasn't a "formal report" given to Lucas. Instead, Duggan put together a preliminary report.

"I wanted things speeded up and asked the chairmen to put things to the committees," Duggan said. "No one other than the chairmen were aware of the content of the report."

"I DID THIS because we anticipate the possibility of the legislature to consider this problem during this session. If that's true, the original Jan. 15 date wouldn't do us any good," he said.

The seven points Lucas outlined to solve the crime problem were:

• A need for the state to construct 4,000 prison spaces by 1987, with 2,000 of them in Wayne County. DeHoCo, scheduled to be closed Dec. 1, could be used for 1,000 inmates while the prisons are built.

• Establishment of a state "50/50 cash match" program for any county building additional prison space. Lucas anticipates such a program would result in 1,000 to 2,000 additional local jail spaces statewide.

• An amendment of the emergency powers act so that early prison releases are based on the severity of the offense and the inmate's prior record.

• "Development of a local program to identify and prosecute the 1,500 habitual offenders in Wayne County who commit a disproportionate amount of the crime."

• Swift and sure punishment for those convicted of misdemeanors.

• Adequate space to house juvenile offenders.

• Development of an incentive program whereby communities accepting new prisons will be guaranteed space for their convicted felons.

"WE ARE quickly coming to the conclusion that too many offenders are out on the street and there is not enough prison space," said Mike Conway, a Lucas spokesman.

Special coordinator named for sewer project

The state and county are combining efforts to see if there's a chance to make Son of Supersewer a reality.

Gov. James Blanchard and Wayne County Executive William Lucas this week jointly announced the naming of a special intergovernmental coordinator who has been charged with the job of reviving the North Huron Valley project, dubbed Son of Supersewer.

Richard Hinshon of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has been "transferred" to Wayne County for six months to work with local governments, federal and state officers on the two-part project.

Hinshon is administrator of the DNR's sewage treatment construction grants program. He will be on a six-month leave from the DNR and will work on a contractual basis for Wayne County.

"I am assigning Dick Hinshon to the task to further demonstrate our commitment to this project and to working cooperatively with the local communities to advance their needs," said Blanchard.

Lucas added: "We are pleased to be working closely with the governor to address the needs of Western Wayne County."

PLANS ANNOUNCED by the governor last December called for a down-sized, less expensive and more efficient version of the long-debated Supersewer through southern and western Wayne and Oakland counties.

Under the revised plans, the project was split into a northern half and a southern half — the South Huron and North Huron.

Repair work along the existing Rouge Valley system was added to the northern project, boosting the number of communities involved in the north end to 17.

Although work is moving ahead on the $106 million South Huron Valley project, plans for the $120 million North Huron system were rejected by the federal government in October.

In addition, new rules reducing the federal government's share of the cost of the north project have taken effect, threatening to make the local cost of the project prohibitive.

Hinshon will work primarily to help develop and gain approval for a revised plan for the northern half, a plan which would be both affordable to the communities and which would meet the environmental concerns of the federal government.

HINSHON SAID plans for his transfer have been "in the mill for a couple of weeks."

"This is kind of an unheard of thing. We sort of had to get the wheel along the way. We had to invent approval from the feds, state and the counties," he said.

Hinshon's county contract can be terminated before the specified six months, or extended for up to one year.

"My work plan with the county is pretty unstructured. My job will be to repackage the project to come up with an affordable, approvable project — if there is such an animal," he said.

In his DNR role, Hinshon is responsible for approving and prioritizing sewer projects for federal funding.

"I will not be putting this project together and then putting on my state hat and approving it. I believe that would be a conflict of interest," he said.

"Someone else will approve it. I think the idea here is to tap my expertise rather than having me put together something and then approving it," he said.

While working for Wayne County, Hinshon will be paid $25,000 for six months plus $10,000 in benefits. In addition, he will receive use of a car and expense reimbursement.

Officials asked Plymouth Township to pay for Hinshon's contract out of a federal cash advance for the project. Supervisor Maurice Breen refused because Hinshon is a "prime witness" in the township's lawsuit over the decision to split Supersewer.

He will begin the new job Dec. 3.

Arrests lead cops to auto chop shop

By Gary M. Cates
staff writer

The Michigan State Police auto task force has broken up a vehicle "chop shop" operation working out of Plymouth and Pontiac.

Three arrests made in Plymouth Monday led to the recovery of nine stolen vehicles and various stolen auto parts. More arrests are expected throughout the week, according to Detective Sgt. James Gavigan of the Michigan State Police.

The auto task force (comprised of state police, Washtenaw County deputies, and officers from Dearborn and Southfield) made the initial arrests Monday evening near Haggerty and Schoolcraft roads in Plymouth.

Each of the three men arrested was charged with two counts of automobile theft and two counts of receiving and concealing stolen property. They were arraigned Tuesday in 35th District Court.

Dewayne L. Rayment, 27, and Roger W. Hess, 20, both of 400 Plymouth Road in Plymouth, and Bobbie J. Burnside, 43, of Detroit pleaded not guilty. Judge Dunbar Davis set cash bonds for all three — $10,000 for Rayment, $7,000 for Hess and $5,000 for Burnside.

All three are being held at the Wayne County Jail in lieu of bond, pending a Dec. 3 preliminary exam.

THE MEN were arrested following a traffic stop. They allegedly were in possession of 1977 and 1978 Ford pickup trucks stolen from Dearborn and Livonia, said Gavigan.

Following the arrests, police obtained search warrants for 400 Plymouth Road and for a location in Pontiac. Execution of those warrants led to the recovery of the additional stolen vehicles and property, Gavigan said.

"The actual chopping, or cutting, work wasn't being done in Plymouth. What they had there was a telephone number where they were selling parts and then delivering them," he said.

If convicted, the men face a maximum sentence of five years in prison on each automobile theft and receiving and concealing count.

Observer agrees to Walton settlement

A Canton Township man will receive $30,000 in settlement of a lawsuit against three Canton Township employees, the Canton Observer and the Canton Eagle.

Bobby Joe Walton, who operated a horse boarding and breeding facility at a farm on Geddes Road, alleged that the defendants repeatedly trespassed on his property in 1978, that warrantless inspections of his property violated his Fourth Amendment constitutional rights and that because of the newspaper coverage the story received, his business and reputation suffered.

Walton was charged with cruelty to animals by the Michigan Humane Society, but the charge was later "dismissed without prejudice," according to 35th District Judge Dunbar Davis.

Canton Township trustees Tuesday night agreed to pay their $12,500 portion of the settlement on behalf of Canton Township employees John Swalley, animal control officer; former supervisor Harold Stein and police chief Jerry Cox. Suburban Communications Corp., on behalf of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, the Canton Observer and Observer photographer Gary Caskey, will pay $15,000. Associated Newspapers, on behalf of its newspaper the Canton Eagle, has agreed to pay $2,500.

A trial in the case began Nov. 12 in 35th District Court in Plymouth before Davis.

All parties and Davis must sign a consent judgment listing the terms of the settlement and ending the case. A condition of the settlement is that the case never be brought to court again.

Supervisor James Poole suggested the board accept the township attorney's settlement recommendation, although, he said, some may question that "maybe justice is not being served."

"Even if we continued the case and won," Poole said, "the case would be appealed . . . and eventually we'd have more than $12,500 in legal fees if nothing else."

Principal cleared of charges

Stevenson Junior High School Principal Richard Buerk has been cleared of disorderly conduct charges for indecent or obscene behavior at a Canton rest stop filed against him in September.

Judge James Garber found Buerk innocent in a one-day trial Monday in 35th District Court in Plymouth, saying the court had not been convinced beyond a reasonable doubt of the intent behind Buerk's actions.

Buerk was arrested Sept. 24 during an undercover operation at the rest stop on I-275 at Cherry Hill Road by officers from the Ypsilanti Post of the Michigan State Police.

Thirty other men were arrested and charged with the same misdemeanor in the crack down on homosexual activities during September and October. Those who've had pretrial examinations have pleaded no contest. Judge Garber ordered presentence reports on each from the court's probation department. Offenders may be sentenced to a maximum 90 days in jail or to two years' probation or fined $100, or any combination thereof.

Buerk, 41, was suspended with pay in October from his job with the Wayne-Westland School District. Monday night, the Wayne-Westland school board voted 6-1, with Trustee Dewey Combs dissenting, to reinstate Buerk to his job. He will resume work at Stevenson next Monday.

BUERK TESTIFIED that he stopped to use the restroom at the rest area about 10:30 p.m. while on his way to a Southfield singles' bar. Buerk, a Westland resident, said that he saved time when going to the bar he usually takes the freeway from the Michigan Avenue entrance, despite having to drive west and south some distance before going north.

The state trooper who arrested Buerk testified that Buerk approached the officer and placed his hand on the officer's groin.

Charles Bokos, Buerk's attorney, said Buerk "had the misfortune of being in the rest area for a legitimate purpose."

Buerk said he had heard rumors of possible homosexual activities at the rest stop and thought the officer was homosexual because "he wasn't doing anything. He was just there, hanging around."

Calling himself a "smart aleck," Buerk said he slapped the officer on the thigh and made a statement to the effect of "good luck," because he knew what the officer wanted and "I knew he wasn't going to get it from me."

Buerk classified the action as a "put down. I was making fun of him."

After the physical contact in the restroom, the officer arrested Buerk.

GARBER SAID there was no dispute that Buerk touched the officer, but the question was whether Buerk's intention was a "put down" or a "sexual advance." Garber said that the court's test was to "find that the defendant intended to do something obscene." Having some doubt in that matter, Garber ruled in favor of Buerk.

Garber said he found no evidence of entrapment and that the officer performed his duties properly.

Several of Buerk's colleagues and a neighbor testified as character witnesses. Karen Obsluk, principal of Schweitzer Elementary School, said Buerk "has the reputation, particularly with parents and students, of being someone who is very honest and forthright."

Buerk's neighbor, Richard Wilson, called Buerk "a fine, upstanding citizen."

In comments after the trial, Bokos criticized the way the media handled the story. He said that Buerk's neighbors were good to him after he was charged, but that there were incidents of eggs and other objects thrown at Buerk's house, and of obscenities written on the sidewalk and garage there.

Ronna speaks at chamber's luncheon

By Marie Chestney
 staff writer

There were two Ronna Romneys who attended a joint luncheon of the Livonia and Plymouth Chambers of Commerce Tuesday at the Plymouth Hilton. One was a blooming fifth-grader who accompanied her mother, the second was the well-known writer and Republican who was the guest speaker before 165 local business people.

The brief talk given by Ronna Romney, daughter-in-law of former Gov. George Romney and 1984 co-chairman of the Reagan-Bush finance committee, was, of course, mostly political. She began with her own interpretation of the 1984 presidential election. And she ended her visit with her own definition of the word politician.

First, Romney's interpretation of the recent election, which right off the bat she called a "turning point."

"SOME THINGS happened in this election which never happened before," said the writer-politician, who said she prefers to be known more for her role as wife and mother.

"Things will never be the same because (Geraldine) Ferraro was picked as a running mate. That one action changed women's standing. Be she good or bad, Ferraro changed things (for women) overnight. Now, women are going to go farther in politics."

Another big change wrought by the recent election, she said, was a weakening of the power of the press. Romney quoted a writer, who had earlier quipped, "Never have so many journalists influenced so few people."

"Very sophisticated voters are now doing their own thinking," she said. Romney ticked off three other groups which she believes lost influence in the election: unions, political machines which promise to deliver certain votes and special interest groups, especially political action groups (PACs).

"PACs have dominated politicians far more than they should. The move is on to curb the power of these special interest groups."

TWO RECENT social changes will also change the political scene in the years ahead, she predicted. One is the moving of "baby boomers" into higher ranking political jobs. The other is the changing of America into a nation of immigrants.

"One-half of the people in this country come from immigrant stock. There are fewer people now who come from colonial stock."

The biggest problem facing the country today, Romney said, is the national deficit.

"Someone has to bite the bullet. We have to face up to our problems and start cutting back. We have spent ourselves into oblivion and there has to be an end."

ROMNEY then switched to her definition of a politician.

"I hate being called a politician. It sounds so sleazy," she began.

Then she added her kicker. "But I am one and so I accept it. But I believe I'm a politician in a choice country set aside by God to become the cradle of liberty. When they came to America, they wiped the slate clean. There are sacrifices that go with serving your country which go far beyond the word politician."

She named Thomas Paine, Alexander Hamilton and Abraham Lincoln as just a few of the many politicians who had made a difference in their service to America.

"And we have a new generation coming along, a new coalition of Democrats and Republicans who remember what this country stands for."

Prison space debated

"This report was issued early to put pressure on the Legislature," Conway said.

But Lucas' recommendation to use

DeHoCo continues to receive opposition from officials in and around the Plymouth Township site.

"They want to solve their problem in someone else's back yard," said state Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth Township whose 36th District includes parts of Canton and Northville.

Settlement made with Walton

The settlement is "no admission whatsoever of guilt or wrongdoing," Poole said.

WALTON'S ATTORNEY, James Kohl, could not be reached for comment Wednesday morning.

Darrell Grams, attorney for Suburban Communications Corp., said, "I think we had an extremely strong case," calling the newspaper's position "very, very strong."

Grams said the settlement was agreed upon because the amount was substantially less than the costs would have been for another two to three weeks at trial and at least one appeal.

"Based on that, it made more economic sense," Grams said.

Freedom of the press was not an issue in this case, Grams said, and "there were no great journalistic principles at issue. If there had been, we would have pursued it."

Agreeing to the settlement is not an admission of guilt, Grams said. He added that a mediation panel of three attorneys evaluated the case in August and placed a reasonable settlement value at $50,000.

Week set to promote residents' winter awareness

Winter storms bring extreme cold, freezing rain, floods, ice and snow which increase risks to residents.

Among those risks are slippery and snowbound roads, frostbite and exposure, health problems associated with snow shoveling, and increased fire risk due to the use of wood and kerosene heating.

Because of these and other hazards Gov. Blanchard has designated Dec. 2-8 as "Winter Awareness Week" in Michigan.

In keeping with that observance, Plymouth Township has issued a number of winter safety suggestions for homeowners. The tips were released this week by Township Clerk Esther Hulsing who is also public information officer of the Plymouth Township Office of Emergency Preparedness.

AMONG THE safety reminders and suggestions:

- A well-insulated home is a key to winter comfort. Storm windows and attic insulation guard against severe winter weather and high heating bills. They help conserve energy and reduce air leaks. Caulking and weather-stripping windows and doors for added protection also helps.

- Remember a fireplace or fuel-burning stove must be properly vented to carry smoke and fumes to the outside. Never burn charcoal inside as it gives off deadly amounts of carbon monoxide. Because open flames use oxygen, fresh air is needed to prevent suffocation so keep the room ventilated.

- Furnaces should be regularly checked for adequate fuel supply and efficiency. If necessary to supplement the regular unit, install a space heater or wood stove in a room in which a lot of time is spent. Use a professional for installation and maintenance.

- If you haven't cleaned your wood stove or fireplace recently, don't put it off any longer. Hire a professional chimney sweep or, if you don't mind getting dirty, buy chimney brushes and rods and clean it yourself.

- Keep clothing and other combus-tibles away from space heaters and wood stoves. It doesn't take long for old newspapers to catch fire and destroy a home. Always screen the fireplace or fuel-burning auxiliary heater if they are to be left unattended even for a minute.

- Don't do foolish things to keep warm. Opening your stove or sleeping with a still-burning fire can have serious consequences. If your heat goes out during a winter storm, dress in several layers of warm clothing and wear a wool cap. Because the body loses three-quarters of its heat through the head, it makes sense to invest in a wool hat which easily can keep you warm, even during sleep.

- Keep an emergency supply of non-perishable foods on hand and eat well-balanced meals so your body can produce its own heat. Close off rooms you don't need. Sleep with several light-weight blankets instead of one heavy one.

- If you must work outside during a blizzard, take it easy. Cold weather itself — without any physical exertion — puts an extra strain on your heart. Additional exercise such as shoveling snow, or even walking fast, can increase the risk of heart attack or stroke. Dress warmly but comfortably; watch for frostbite and hypothermia; avoid alcohol; keep a thermos of warm beverage close by; and change wet clothing as soon as possible. Get help on the big jobs.

- Signs of overexposure to winter weather include uncontrollable shivering, slurred speech, and drowsiness. If someone has these symptoms get that person into dry clothing and a warm bed. Concentrate warmth on the trunk of the body. Call for medical assistance immediately.

The above information is provided by the Federal Emergency Management Agency, the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration, and the Charter Township of Plymouth's Office of Emergency Preparedness.

Plymouth reports on energy grant

A number of energy improvements have been completed in the city of Plymouth this past year through the state energy grant program.

The program has been in effect for about a year, says Paul Sincock, assistant to the city manager, and to date some $25,310 in energy improvements have been undertaken.

More than one-third ($9,160) of these improvements have been paid for by the energy grant program. On a total citywide basis, adds Sincock, 37 percent of the improvements have been paid for by state and federal funds. The program is administered jointly by the city and Wayne County.

Area heating, window and insulation contractors also have felt the benefits of the program. "More than $25,000 has been spent on energy improvements to city of Plymouth homes," said Sincock, "under this grant program, and more than $9,000 of those improvements have been paid for by the state and federal governments."

Under the program the homeowner is required to have an energy audit completed by either Detroit Edison or Consumers Power.

Once completed, said Sincock, the homeowner should get an estimate from a state-licensed contractor for the work they would like to have done. Then the homeowner would check their household income to see if they are eligible for grant funds.

"Once we qualify the resident they will be required to take out a home improvement loan from First Federal of Michigan for the amount of the project less the grant funds.

"Once they have the loan and have the work completed, the homeowner pays the contractor in full and brings us a receipt, and we process the papers."

Households with incomes up to $46,200 can qualify for some funding. Households with incomes of up to $24,640 can qualify for 50 percent of total project cost in grant funds up to $1,250.

For more information on the energy grant program call Sincock at 453-1234.

Owner wins blasting pot

The owner of a tool and die firm in Warren recently won some industrial equipment from Johnston Sales Corporation of Plymouth.

Paul Schissler, new owner and president of Johnston Sales Corp., gave away a Zero Mini Pot recently at the 1984 International Machine Tool Show — the largest of its kind in the world.

Bill Hayden, vice president of Hayden Twist Drill (a tool and die business in Warren), won the Zero Mini Pot which is useful for a variety of blasting applications including deburring and cleaning of intricate parts.

Johnston Sales, headquartered in Plymouth with a sales office in Holland, Mich., offers solutions to metal finishing problems. Its areas of expertise include blasting equipment, vibratory finishing machines, ultrasonic cleaners, heat cleaning ovens, and related supplies, spare parts, and service.

Paul and Helen Schissler purchased the firm (formerly Bill Johnson Sales) from Bill Johnson in February 1984. Schissler was general manager for seven years at LRI Industries, a manufacturer of vibratory and tumbling media. Helen Schissler, who earned an MBA from University of Michigan, was marketing director for two years for Arizona Corporation and systems analyst for two years at Math Reviews.

The firm has been in business in Plymouth for the past 20 years, including the past eight years at 9185 General Drive.

Stuart is working as a temporary adviser to the Michigan Department of Licensing and Regulation's executive offices. Three of the eight corps members are from the 6th District of state Sen. ## GIVE YOUR SPECIAL SOMEONE A CHRISTMAS TO REMEMBER FOREVER!

THIS GENUINE BREAKTHROUGH IN WOOD HEAT TECHNOLOGY MAKES IT POSSIBLE.

Blaze King®

201 SHAWNEE ROAD • BERRIEN SPRINGS, MI 49103

Christmas is a time for lovers of all ages. Winter magic surrounds everyone. Christmas trees. Candles and twinkling lights. Crisp white snow. Cuddling before a crackling wood fire in the hearth. And some consumer expert reminding us that the heat from our hearth is heading up the chimney along with lots of warm air from our home. Wasteful magic? The edge goes off the pleasure. The crackling fire is extinguished...along with the fire in our hearts. At least, in homes where the dream of warmth and coziness has to die to economic reality.

But now a genuine breakthrough in wood heat technology makes it possible to give your special someone a Christmas to remember forever. This breakthrough is called a "catalytic combustor". As a leader in wood heat technology, Blaze King has enhanced the performance of catalytic stoves and fireplace inserts. The stove burns the wood. The combustor burns the smoke. Causes more heat. Maximizes heat extraction from the wood. Puts the heat into the home, not up the chimney. What goes up the chimney is cleaner. Means fewer and less frequent chimney cleanings.

With a Blaze King catalytic 4000 hours (24 to 30) pass from the time you or your special someone load the stove until you have to load it again. Extends cuddle time. With such a large and deep firebox, ash cleanup also is done less often. This means less mess. UL Label means safety for your home. For proof of these results from a genuine breakthrough in wood heat technology, ask for your free copy of "More Than Hot Air", a report comparing eight of the best wood stoves available...including the Blaze King. Call now 1-800-331-1009.

Bring back the magic of Christmas. The delight of wood heat in your most intimate moments. Give your special someone a Christmas to remember forever. Blaze King makes it possible.

Schools urged to continue stance toward drug abuse

The spotlight was on substance abuse, at least for a portion of Monday night's Plymouth Canton school board meeting.

Before trustees adopted for first posting a modification of district policy on the possession, use, sale and distribution of drugs, a parent read to the board a letter signed by about 25 parents of students currently undergoing drug therapy.

The parents, struggling to accept the prospect that "if our kids don't recover, they'll die," said they have been encouraged by "Aftercare" classes the district offers.

"We are parents whose children have become addicted to mood-altering chemicals, and we want to express our appreciation for the school district's participation in and support of their treatment and recovery," read Tom Luellman.

"The Aftercare class taught by Ms.

Deb Trapp is an element of the school program, we believe, that is of the utmost and vital importance to our youngsters who are recovering . . .

We certainly would like to have more done to increase community awareness and to support recovering persons," he added. The Aftercare program helps students maintain sobriety by lessening peer pressure and reinforcing concepts learned in primary treatment programs.

Luellman said the extent of the problem is a well-kept secret.

"THE NUMBERS are staggering. If you knew what they were, they would knock you off your chairs," he said.

"This is just the tip of the iceberg. There's a great need for expansion of these classes and programs."

Parents aren't "dumping kids into the district's lap," emphasized Luellman.

In many cases, he said, students participate in a four-to-five week intensive program on an in-patient basis at a hospital.

"When they're out and feeling good about themselves but are afraid of relapsing because they're hanging around with the same friends, it's (the school program) a lifesaver," said Luellman.

In addition to Aftercare sessions, chemically-dependent students are involved in a year-long after-school program. Many attend five Alcoholics Anonymous meetings per week, he added.

"It's a tough thing to look at — the fact that kids may not recover — but we work at it on a daily basis. It's very expensive and comes out of our own pockets."

IN ADDITION to the district's upscaled treatment efforts, revisions of its 1971 substance abuse policy are being proposed.

Key provisions, approved 7-0 Monday, include:

High school students caught using alcohol, drugs or medication for illicit purposes will be subject to the following penalties. First offense — parent contact and a minimum of two days' out-of-school suspension and one day in-school suspension. Second offense — parent contact and a minimum of a four days' out-of-school suspension. Third offense — parent contact plus a third to the board for expulsion.

Administrators will seek police involvement "when warranted" in the case of high school students caught selling or distributing substances for illicit purposes. The offense also will result in the "automatic petition for expulsion to the board."

MIDDLE SCHOOL offenders will be handled in a similar manner.

The first "possession or use" offense will result in a three-day suspension; mandatory involvement in middle school intervention programs for students and parents; and/or police involvement if necessary. Consequences of a second offense include a five-day suspension; participation in an intervention program or acceptable alternative; and possible police involvement. After the third offense, the board will be asked to expel the student. Police involvement may be sought.

The first offense for middle school students who sell or distribute alcohol, drugs or medication will prompt a five-day suspension; mandatory intervention program; and police involvement when needed. Students caught a second time will be subject to possible expulsion and police action.

Elementary students first caught using or possessing drugs or alcohol may be suspended for up to three days; enrolled in an intervention program; and, upon the discretion of school administrators, become involved with outside agencies.

Second offenders may be suspended for up to five days; must participate in an intervention program or alternative; and may elicit the involvement of outside agencies.

Upon the third offense, mandatory suspension will be ordered until a family intervention program is in effect; and mandatory police involvement will result.

REVISIONS were proposed, with advice from district legal counsel, to enhance conformity among the elementary, middle and high school discipline policies. They are expected to be adopted in the near future without major changes.

Hilton in Plymouth plans to stay open

Rumors that the Plymouth Hilton Inn plans to close are just that — rumors.

"No way are we closing," said John Kuhn, Plymouth Hilton general manager.

Speculation about a possible Hilton closing started circulating recently as the Novi Hilton at Eight Mile and I-275 nears completion. The Plymouth Hilton is only minutes away at Northville Road and Five Mile.

The speculation was based on the assumption two Hiltons couldn't survive so close together.

"I really don't think it will have that much of an effect on us," Kuhn said.

"They won't have the banquet facilities we have and our business more than supports our facilities," he said. "As Hilton hotels, we always try to work together."

The rumors currently going around town apparently were started by talk of a pending transfer of Plymouth Hilton employees to Novi. Beyond that, the rumors vary.

One called for the hotel to be converted into senior citizen housing for Plymouth and Northville. Others called for the hotel to be demolished, or sold to the YMCA.

Regardless of what the rumors suggest, one thing is certain — the Hilton is here to stay, at least for awhile.

Career session slated for students brevittes

Area high school students are invited to participate in a career guidance and educational planning session in mid-January.

The career planning program — designed to help students make better decisions about their futures — fills what national studies reveal as students' "most important need," according to Richard Egli, community relations director for Plymouth-Canton schools.

Participants will be assisted in taking stock of their career-related interests, experiences, abilities and plans. Written reports incorporating these topics will be reviewed in group and individual counseling sessions to help pupils translate information into viable career options.

Slated for 8 a.m. to 11 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 12, the program will be offered at both Canton and Salem High Schools. Students must sign up next month in their schools' counseling offices.

A $2.50 fee payable at registration will be charged.

For more information, call Pat Myers at Canton (451-6332) or Diane Pomish at Salem (451-6280).

Ft. Detroit undergoes siege by alien Indians

Now it is late in November 1711 and the ice has begun to rim the river at d'Etroit.

It has not been a good year for the Frenchmen settled here, nor is it a good year for France.

Once again the market women of Paris have threatened to march to Versailles, and the bridge at Sevrès is lined with French troops ready to turn them back.

King Louis XIV, unrepentant and disolute, never has relented in his demands for more taxes.

Crops have failed. The country is starving. Even some of the king's lackeys are begging at the palace gates.

The 72-year-old king, gouty and infirm, has lost touch with his people.

And so the stage is set for one of the most terrible, internal revolts the world has ever seen — the French Revolution.

MEANWHILE, back in d'Etroit, a thousand Fox Indians have dug in back of the fort.

They are in that area where the Peneobscot building stands today on Fort Street between Shelby and Griswold. There they are — men, women, children — waiting and waiting for "Father" Cadillac who had "invited" them, they said.

When they first arrived, a few weeks after Cadillac had left, their old Chief Pemoussa and his retinue came to the fort every few days to ask for food and shelter. Repeatedly Sieur Debuissou, the commandant, turned the chief away with a stern warning. "Go or you and all your people will be killed. We have powerful cannon here. You cannot survive. We do not want you here."

Actually, the fort was undermined. They only had 30 armed soldiers, and three old howitzers. They were short of gunpowder. Debuissou was waiting for a shipment from Montreal. Soldiers, ammunition and more guns were desperately needed. It was late in coming. Montreal and Quebec were having their own troubles and had no guns to spare.

Debuissou held a parley at the Council House with the chiefs of the Potawatomi, Ottawa, Chippewa, and Huron. Unlike Cadillac, who had visualized the Foxes as a protection in the west against the inroads of the Sioux and wanted to block the Iroquois and the Illinois who, with the help of the English, were beginning to make inroads upon the long-held fur routes of the French. Debuissou visualized only war and extermination.

WHEN SPRING finally came the Foxes still were there but they no longer were coming to the fort.

The Potawatomi were anxious to begin their attack upon their old enemies. Temporarily the Ottawa, the Chippewa and the Pota buried the hatchet of private feuds and internecine strife to join in defense of French d'Etroit.

Even the Hurons, who were not Algonquin, joined with them. They wanted to keep the Foxes from forging a link with their blood enemies, the Iroquois, who were on the warpath again. The English were pushing the Iroquois to take over Detroit. So the situation was really quite desperate.

The French habitants are huddled together behind the stockade with their belongings and food supplies. They are warned not to leave the fort grounds. No one in his right mind would think of leaving now — would they?

Many men have gone to the high bastion to see what the Foxes are doing.

Helen Gilbert

Look! They are building a fort of their own — a flimsy structure of vertical logs. They build at night in the dark. Incredible!

AND THE Foxes are digging holes — deep pits in the earth where their women and children can hide. They have extended their protective barricade all the way to Savoyard. That's their water supply.

We'll put an end to all this, Debuissou declared. It's now or never. He issued an order to pull down the little log church of Ste. Anne and to use the logs to improve the barricades. With the church out of the way they had a clear line of fire toward the Fox pits.

Two little houses in the line of fire also were removed and some of that lumber was used to erect a scaffold and a platform from which sniper fire could be directed.

With these preparations completed there is evidence that Debuissou went one step further. In the archives of the University of Michigan at the Clement Library there is an old paper which states Debuissou issued 100 butcher knives from the French trader's stores at the fort. These were to be used as bayonets against the Foxes.

MEANWHILE THE FOXES were not idle.

The Foxes took over a house outside of the fort grounds, built their own scaffold, tied together with vines, skins, and wooden pegs. On it they placed some of their best marksmen.

All the while these bloody preparations were being made there was a young man by the name of Jacques Campau who longed for his home and his orchard. He determined to go there under the cover of darkness in his little pirogue canoe made of a hollowed log from the Campau ribbon farm. (This farm was on Chene Street extending as far as old Campau Street). Jacques promised himself that he would bring back much needed food for the people at the fort. Fortunately, he told a soldier on the dock of his plans before he left and the soldier promised to watch out for him.

So that night Jacques set forth in the little pirogue dragging a small bateau behind. After a swift paddle on the icy river, he found his home undisturbed and all the animals safe but hungry. After feeding the stock, Jacques began to load the bateau with summr squash, apples, and other fruit. He killed several chickens and managed to fill the flat-bottomed boat with some of his mother's jams and jellies. HE brought several casks of homemade wine.

While in the midst of his labor, quietly and without light of any kind, the dawn burst on the horizon. Not far away he heard the ominous sound of an alien drum.

THE DRUM beat came from a place nearby.

A fire roared from the chimney of that house and Foxes were streaming in for a parley of some sort. At this sight Jacques immediately began to tie the bateau to his pirogue and head out toward the fort. This early in the morning, just at dawn, would be the best time to go, he thought.

As he neared the fort he was overjoyed to think of his adventure and he was beginning to count himself lucky. Then suddenly, out of nowhere, came a canoe loaded with Foxes. They pushed in, cut the rope to the bateau, and pulled the heavily-laden boat away with them.

Before they left, a young brave shot several arrows toward Jacques and one of them hit the boat below the water line. Jacques was lucky to escape. A soldier watching from the dock observed the fracas and sent several warning shots over head which drove the Indians away. They dragged their loot back to the Campau dock.

THE ATTACK UPON Jacques Campau may have been the first shot of the war with the Foxes.

It is certain that within a few days the struggle began in earnest. It was an unrelenting bloody battle that lasted for years, although the seige at the fort was over in about 19 days. Most of the Fox War was fought in Wisconsin and Illinois. Peace was not made between the Fox and the French until 1737.

Trapped like animals in their holes, the Foxes eventually had to abandon their pits and under the cover of night escaped to an area where Fox Creek is today — out by Windmill Pointe. There they waged their last battle.

Captain deVincennes surrounded the area and all the Fox stratagems were useless in the face of superior French fire which, at last, had been reinforced by Montreal.

The precise truth about this savage struggle never has been told and probably never will be. The Fox left no memoirs, and the only attempt at a history of the French side, written at the time, is Debuissou's inflated notion of his own skill as a warrior-diplomat. Even the officials at Montreal knew he exaggerated.

So what did happen? We have to translate, interpret, and read between the lines.

We do know that old Chief Pemoussa begged for mercy many times. When he finally realized that there was no mercy he fought bravely and well. He never survived the slaughter at Fox Creek. About 200 of his Fox braves were buried with him. The women and children were brought as captives to the Indian tribal villages near Fort Detroit. Many of them were killed. Some were kept as slaves.

For a more detailed account of the Foxes read Professor Wendell H. Oswalt's "This Land Was Theirs." Pages 236-237 of that excellent study have a good bibliography of Fox history and culture. The Michigan Pioneer and History Collection also has many important references to their tribe.)

Nuclear protests at Williams 'a way of life'

By Kathy Parriah
staff writer

When they sat in the driveway at Williams International Corp. a year ago, 54 peace activists expected to spend Christmas in jail. They never dreamed that decision to trespass would lead to a year of legal haggling.

While their cases inch through the courts, many of those same people will return to the Commerce Township defense contractor's plant Sunday. Some even plan another sit-in Monday morning, knowing it will land them back in Oakland County Jail for the holidays.

"It's a way of life. We're very determined," said the Rev. Peter Dougherty, a Catholic priest who belongs to the Lansing-based faith group Covenant for Peace.

A YEAR AGO Covenant for Peace organized a weeklong protest at Williams International's 64-acre research, development and manufacturing facility at 2280 W. Maple, just west of Hagerly Road.

Founded in 1955 in Birmingham, the maker of small gas-turbine engines is a target of peace groups because its product powers low-flying cruise missiles.

A version of the cruise missile engine is used in WASP II, a small, one-person flying device.

Williams also manufactures turbine engines for cars and trucks, industrial gas turbines and low-pollution turbines for generating electric power from natural gas and coal.

FROM NOV. 28 to Dec. 3, 1983, peace groups tried to block the firm's entrance as employees arrived for work. More than 50 people were jailed for breaking a court injunction against trespassing on the defense supplier's property.

Their court cases received widespread publicity when the Oakland County Prosecutor's office charged them not only with trespassing but also with conspiracy, a more serious charge which could bring a year in jail. The penalty for trespassing is 30 days.

"We support their freedom of speech, but they don't have a right to trespass," explained Richard Thompson, Oakland County's chief assistant prosecuting attorney. "We are going to enforce the law."

WHILE 50 activists still await final court action, many are expected to be back at Williams Sunday.

Covenant for Peace is planning a 3 p.m. prayer service to mark last year's Advent protests. Advent marks the start of the Christmas season.

The legal vigil on the public easement also will commemorate the anniversary of the murder of four American churchwomen in El Salvador and the day when black Detroiters Rosa Parks refused to move to the back of a segregated bus in Montgomery, Ala., touching off the civil rights movement of the '50s and '60s.

Sunday's theme — "Patience in the Darkness" — stems from organizers' concern over not just the nuclear arms race but also U.S. involvement in Central America.

On Nov. 11 about 160 area peace activists gathered for non-violence training in the event of a U.S. invasion of Nicaragua. The nationwide "Contingency Plan" involves sit-ins in legislators' offices, including the Birmingham office of U.S. Rep. William Broomfield, a consistent supporter of President Ronald Reagan's foreign policies.

"We realize we have to be patient. Things are pretty dark," said Sister Liz Walters, a nun who does peace work for Groundwork for a Just World.

"But we will not give up," she said.

MONDAY MORNING, the Ann Arbor Peace Community is organizing a driveway sit-in at Williams. About 15-20 people are expected to break a circuit court injunction against trespassing.

Like last year, they will conduct a non-violence training session Sunday night to prepare people for the "action." Activists and their supporters will gather in St. Vincent Catholic Church, Pontiac, the same spot where police searched protesters' belongings a year ago.

"I don't know if it will be raided. I think that kind of backfired," kidded Dougherty.

While expecting 15-20 people to sit in the driveway Monday, organizers don't really know how many will turn out for the civil disobedience.

Both sides believe the conspiracy charges by the prosecutor's office have deterred people from protesting.

Also a concern are the "open ended" sentences imposed by Oakland County Circuit Court Judge James S. Thornburn. Eight activists are before Michigan Court of Appeals fighting his attempts to keep them in jail until they promise not to return to Williams.

THE PROSECUTION has been unhappy with local District Court rulings in the peace cases. While Thompson would like to see defendants get more than just trespassing sentences, he thinks the conspiracy charges did deterrence. And he will consider charging conspiracy again if the facts support it, he said.

Pointing to the bombing of a Toronto plant which makes guidance systems for the cruise missile, the law-enforcement official said he is determined to prevent that kind of escalation. "We've been disappointed in the court rulings, but that's part of our job," Thompson said.

"But I think firm police action has deterred acts of lawlessness."

Achievers honored by school board

Good news was plentiful at Monday's Plymouth-Canton Board of Education meeting.

"Extra-milers" J.C. Lee, a plant engineer at Smith Elementary School, and Phoebe Vance, a physical therapist at Farrand Elementary in the Infant Pre-School Education Program (IP-SEP) were saluted for "going the extra mile" in performing their jobs.

Board members learned that Plymouth Canton High School teacher Sandy Papalashas had been honored with an "Outstanding Teacher Award" from University of Chicago Dean Donald N. Levine.

Papalashas was recognized as "an outstanding teacher who really made a difference" after being nominated by an unnamed U-C freshman and Canton graduate.

There were accolades for the student newspaper, C.E.P. Perspective, as well. The publication received a Medalist rating and an All-Columbian Award from the Columbia Scholastic Press Association Contest for its 1983-1984 publications.

Medalist honors go to the top 10 percent of entries, while the All-Columbian Award recognizes "outstanding achievement and a mark of distinction."

Content, coverage, writing, editing, design, display and creativity are taken into account by judges.

Last year's Editor-in-Chief Tim McKercher said, "I always knew the effort put into the Perspective and the quality of the Perspective was Medalist quality, and I'm extremely happy that we were finally recognized. The award goes to every person on staff and Sue Welker, our staff adviser."

Reminder from Legion

American Legion Passage-Gayde Post 391 of Plymouth reminds any veteran or widow receiving a non-service connected pension to return the annual Income Questionnaire Card to the Veterans Administration by Jan. 1, 1985.

Commander Roger Cloutier said if the card is not returned to the VA by the deadline it could mean a delay in monthly benefit checks in 1985.

Cloutier reminds pensioners that the card was mailed to them by the VA close to Nov. 1. The card is not a difficult questionnaire, he adds, but to be absolutely certain there is no mix-up recipients may contact Plymouth Post Service Officer Don Hartley at 459-2914 or call the Legion Post Hotline at 453-9494 and leave a message for assistance. There is no charge for the assistance by the Post Service Officer.

Domino theory falls in real life

IT USED TO BE fashionable among white, suburban, middle-class, right-thinking liberals to say that poverty and plenty never could co-exist. The moral was that if Detroit went to pot, suburbia would follow.

I never bothered to argue with proponents of that view because I didn't care to be branded a wrong-thinking, red-neck conservative. Besides, the right-thinking liberals' opinion didn't matter. In point of fact, they were wrong.

The chilling facts came out in a Wayne State University periodical called The Michigan Economy. David I. Verway, director of the bureau of business research in the WSU School of Business Administration, told the story in a mid-year article headlined "Focus on Detroit."

WHETHER right-thinking liberals like it or not, Detroit not only can go, but is going, downhill while suburbia actually grows over the long haul.

We already knew that Detroit has suffered a 20 percent loss of population — from 1.5 million in 1970 to 1.2 million in the '80 census.

What we now learn is that Detroit's loss of manufacturing jobs is even worse:

Detroit — From more than 200,000 manufacturing jobs in 1963 to about 150,000 in 1977, or about 24 percent; and Verway predicts that when the 1982 census of manufacturing jobs becomes available, it will show the job base is below 100,000 jobs — a loss of more than 50 percent.

Suburbs (the tri-county area outside Detroit) — From nearly 300,000 manufacturing jobs in 1963 to just under 400,000 in 1977, a gain of 34 percent.

A whopping 50,000 of the lost jobs in the region were due to Chrysler's closing of assembly plants in Hamtramck and Detroit and component plants in both Detroit and the suburbs. But if you leap to the conclusion that it's all a part of the decline of Smokestack America, read on.

RETAIL TRADE has taken a similar nosedive in Detroit while increasing in the suburbs. Consider the number of retail jobs:

Detroit — In the 1963-77 period, jobs fell nearly one-third, from 72,000 to fewer than 50,000.

Suburbs — In the same period, retail employment more than doubled, from 93,000 to 193,000.

At this point, the plot becomes thicker, the figures more confusing. Race and sex enter our detective story. Citing 1970-80 census data, Verway tells us:

"Among black Detroiters the number of employed males declined by 16 percent, or over 20,000, whereas the number of employed females rose by 24 percent, or 22,000."

The jobless rates in 1980: Detroit black males, 26.5 percent; Detroit black females, 18.1; suburban nonblack males, 9.4; suburban nonblack females, 8.1.

ALL THE TALK about our region's transition from a manufacturing to a technological society fails to answer some tough but pertinent questions:

Why is Detroit so completely out of it as far as manufacturing jobs are concerned?

Why is Detroit equally out of it as far as retail jobs are concerned?

Why is Detroit's job loss so much greater than its population loss? One would expect the reverse to be true — that it would be a job center even after losing residents, or that it would lose jobs more slowly than residents.

Why is joblessness among Detroit black males increasing so constantly and so precipitously?

No one, not even the most hard-hearted redneck, wishes Detroit ill. Even if we have no sense of compassion toward the old city, it is in our self-interest not to have to pay so much taxes for social services and give so much to charities.

In the meantime, however, let us quit babbling about a non-existent socio-economic Domino theory.

Group home decision due

ON JAN. 1, the new state Supreme Court will take over. "New" in this case means one newcomer — Dorothy Comstock Riley. Six other justices will remain on the job.

Riley's successful political campaign included attacks on the court's ability to handle cases with dispatch, so it will be interesting to see if her presence will result in faster legal opinions.

One of the first things the court should be able to do, if so inclined, is decide the issue of placement of state-licensed group homes in residential areas.

Before the justices since last May has been a case which should decide whether local governments can do much to stop people from putting group homes for the mentally retarded in residential areas.

THE CITIES of Livonia and Southfield took a joint appeal to the state Supreme Court in a last-ditch effort.

The state law governing placement of group homes specifies that homes of six or fewer residents can be placed in any residential area. The suit filed by the cities maintains that, because of the nature of group homes they should not be placed in single-family residential areas over the objection of the residents and municipalities.

Livonia City Attorney Harry C. Tatigian maintains that the issue is one of proper zoning.

Bob Wisler

Attorneys for the cities say that if the decision goes against them, it will be difficult in the future for any community to maintain that group homes for retarded and mentally ill should not be allowed in residential areas. Local governments simply will not have a legal leg to stand on.

ALMOST WITHOUT exception, cases involving a community's right to challenge the placement of group homes have been decided in favor of the group homes and the state Department of Social Services, which licenses them.

In fact, there is some suspicion that city officials who have struggled against placement of group homes carry on the fight for political reasons.

Residents upset at the idea of having a group home in their neighborhood descend on city hall demanding protection. City hall invariably realizes that upset residents will be upset voters at election time unless the city does something to salve their wounds.

THE CITIES often claim — as Southfield and Livonia did — that placement of such homes will give them an "excessive" concentration of group homes.

The law which spells out the procedure for establishing group homes is against an "excessive concentration." But, Tatigian said, the law doesn't define what constitutes an excessive concentration. Because Livonia has several group homes and other cities have none or fewer, the city has maintained that an excessive number are opening in Livonia.

An attorney for the other side maintains, however, that group home residents in Livonia are less than 11 thousandths of 1 percent of the city's population.

When and if the high court finally reaches a decision on the Livonia-Southfield suit — and expectedly turns the cities down — it should put an end to much of the controversy and the idea that people can stop such facilities by filing a lawsuit.

Like most fears, the fear of living near a group home is exaggerated. Where the homes have been built, neighbors have found they have not had the trouble envisioned and that for the most part, group home residents are pretty quiet folk who, like most people, just want to get along with a minimum of controversy.

A learned teacher of holiday tradition

Each Christmas you learn something — whether it's something you'd like to do for future Christmases or something you'd just as soon never experience again in your life.

Last year I learned I'd never like to experience that spray-on snow stuff again. It wasn't bad going on the windows, but it was a bear to scrape off.

Anyway, I'm bracing myself until I find out what lesson is in store this Christmas. For me and wife Debbie this will be the first holiday season in our own home.

I'm bracing because I expect the experience to be fairly enjoyable, much like I expected that spray-on snow stuff to be enjoyable last year.

Our home already has been one very big learning experience.

I've learned about plumbing, painting, wiring and wall repair, while Debbie has learned about Liquid Drano, washing paint brushes, buying fuses and living with plaster cracks.

Shortly after we got married I expounded on my ideas about Christmas at a family get-together. No elaborate decorations, no trees, and especially, no frilly do-dads, I said.

The older, more experienced male relatives assured me, "You'll learn."

NEEDLESS TO say, that first Christmas in our apartment was a learning experience. Debbie is quite a teacher.

I learned there is no limit to the amount of decorations one can own. I learned Christmas trees really aren't that bad. And I learned that, well, everybody has frilly do-dads.

How did this new outlook on Christmas come about? Debbie, in her infinite wisdom, knew how to handle me.

The decorations were there before I could say anything. Seems she ordered them quite awhile back. Same goes for the frilly do-dads — already bought or donated by a relative.

The tree is a different story. She waited for a slight snowfall and trotted me off to the store.

"Oh, look at the trees," she said. We agreed to a compromise. She got a moderate-sized tree, and I got that spray-on snow stuff and a set of stencils. You already know who got the better part of that deal.

Gary M. Cates

Now we have the house. More places for decorations, room for a larger tree, and worst of all, more nooks and crannies for those frilly do-dads.

ACTUALLY, I think Christmas can be rather nice in our house, although I wouldn't admit it to Debbie — you have to keep your bargaining chips.

I'm toying with the idea of lights on the outside, a wreath on the door, and best of all, stockings hung by the fireplace. The apartment didn't have a fireplace, and a wreath would have looked tacky on the door.

I know Debbie has a few ideas of her own. I'm hoping a couple of them are lights on the outside and a wreath on the door — that way, it's her idea instead of mine when we seek a compromise.

What scares me, though, are the stockings by the fireplace. Debbie's not big on socks, let alone hanging them up.

I've yet to build a fire in our fireplace, and I know Debbie's going to ask for one some snowy eve. But we don't have those neat little fireplace tools, a fire rack or firewood. I don't even know if the chimney works.

Undoubtedly the compromise will be a fire in exchange for letting me hang stockings on the mantle. Considering how well I've done on past compromises, I have a feeling this will be one of those experiences I'll never want again.

Maybe I'll just trade her a few frilly do-dads for a can of that spray-on snow stuff and forget about the socks.

I guess those older more experienced male relatives were right: "I've learned."

Shoo-fly pie and mock duck

ANOTHER Thanksgiving Day has come and gone, and from coast to coast it was celebrated with family reunions, simple family dinners with the children, or in the quiet dignity of the area's leading dining places.

But The Stroller had none of that. He spent the day thinking of the times back home when the family couldn't afford a turkey, and Mother turned up some great dinners just the same.

Turkey wasn't always the celebrated dish back home, and at times some of the dishes the Pennsylvania Dutch cooks prepared left lasting memories.

The Stroller got to thinking of these the other night when his friends Tim and Nancy Richard, who had just returned from an auto trip to Philadelphia, called on him and presented him a "shoo-fly" pie.

These shoo-fly pies were always a delicacy back home. And the very sight of it set The Stroller to thinking of some of the dishes that would please the most particular fellow.

AS HE LOOKED at the pie, The Stroller got to thinking of the major dish Mother used to serve at our table on special days. To keep our minds on the bird (turkey), she made what she called mock duck. We thrived on it and preferred it over other dishes later in life.

Mock duck was simple to make. Mother would go to the meat market and buy the largest slice of beef she thought suitable. Once she returned home, the job of preparing it was under way.

She would fold the piece of beef and then sew it to make it appear and act as a pocket. Once this was done, she would stuff it with the same sort of dressing that other folks were putting into their turkeys.

The filled beef went into the oven, and it was roasted just as a turkey would have been. Mother brought the finished roast from the oven to the table and then sliced it.

Those slices were about an inch wide and had a center about four to five inches. What a delicacy! The meat had a special flavor, and the dressing seemed to taste better than turkey dressing. We ate to our hearts' content. Just thinking about it made this Thanksgiving Day all the brighter.

AT THE COUNTRY hotels where most folks went, you didn't get mock duck but a dish that was as good as, or better than, any meal you could get at the dining emporiums.

It was chicken and waffles. Just thinking about it, with a shoo-fly pie for dessert, made The Stroller a bit homesick.

It seemed the Pennsylvania Dutch women had a knack of making chicken gravy. They must have made it by the gallon. When you ordered chicken and waffles, you received not only a goodly supply of chicken but several waffles that were accompanied by a pitcher of chicken gravy.

What a treat! Chicken and waffles with chicken gravy and shoo-fly pie washed down by a cup of coffee — well, that was one of the finest meals a person could enjoy.

You didn't have to wait for a holiday to enjoy it.

And even more enjoyable in those days was that the price of the dinner was only 50 cents.

What a treat the price was, too!

Battle looms over voter signups

Thursday, November 29, 1984 O&E

(R,W,G-9A)*13A

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Political activists and local government clerks are on a collision course. Their battleground will be the Michigan Legislature.

At issue is the clerks' power to deputize volunteers to go out and register voters. City and township clerks frankly are uneasy about it. But political activists want a law which will require clerks to deputize any qualified person, regardless of residence.

"We ran a survey of 41 Leagues of Women Voters in Michigan," said state LWV President Beverly McAninch of Plymouth, "and found a number of local clerks who refuse to deputize." She cited West Bloomfield Township, the cities of Muskegon and Ypsilanti and many townships.

McAninch was among a parade of witnesses Monday speaking to Sen. John Engler, R-Mt. Pleasant, and his Administration and Rules Committee. Engler was joined in the Ann Arbor City Hall by Sen. Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor.

"WE FOUND clerks who were unwilling to deputize non-residents. It is wholly impractical to staff a booth at a county fair with 20 or more deputies," said McAninch.

The LWV, a non-partisan group, and such special-interest groups as the NAACP and Christian fundamentalists conducted heavy voter registration drives during the 1984 election. Many columnists observed the Reagan-Mondale battleground was not debates or rallies but the efforts of politically active groups to register like-thinking people to vote.

The LWV's McAninch had other complaints:

- The Taylor clerk refused to supply LWV with more than six registration forms for a shopping center drive. The LWV quickly ran through them and had to turn away six would-be voters.

- Persons wishing to register in rural townships had trouble locating farmer-clerks. "They were off on a tractor somewhere from sunup to sundown," she quipped.

Secretary of State Richard Austin backed the LWV by advocating "uniform standards for clerks in appointing deputy registrars. Some clerks would not deputize (members of) some groups. The legislature should set standards, if there are to be standards," Austin said.

THERE WERE plenty of officials with dim views of deputizing, however.

An Engler aide pointed out reported instances where volunteer deputy clerks failed to turn in their cards, casting a public cloud over the honesty of special-interest groups who would register only persons friendly to their causes.

Engler, who is also Senate majority leader, agreed that was a real danger.

Gene Thornton, lobbyist for the Michigan Townships Association, cited a news report where a deputy clerk paid persons $1 each to register.

"That's why clerks are reluctant to deputize," he said.

"I would hate to mandate to a clerk that they must deputize," Thornton went on. "I would like to see (deputies required to have) some training."

Elaine Skarritt, Milford Township clerk, said the Michigan system provides ample opportunities for persons to register — with their local clerk, at Secretary of State branch offices and even at high school principals' offices.

"I have never encountered anyone who couldn't register to vote," said Skarritt, testifying she had personally driven to residents' houses to register them when they couldn't come to her office during business hours.

Pollack's big question was who is to judge whether a person is mentally incompetent to vote. "I don't want the doctor judging whether I can vote or not. He might have taken away my right to vote long ago," she said, drawing appreciative laughter from LWV members in the audience.

Marsha Katz Johnson, representing the Washtenaw Association for the Retarded, fired a series of questions about depriving the retarded of the right to vote: "What is an informed decision? Who determines what constitutes an informed decision?..."

SEN. POLLACK said the crux of the problem is "biased" registrations.

A liberal, Pollack had no objection to "some fundamentalist Christian churches" being deputized to register voters as long as "those worried about unemployment lines" also are deputized.

"The only thing you and I need to worry about," she told MTA's Thornton, "is that everybody has an equal shot at it."

She objected to giving clerks discretion about whom to deputize and whether to deputize non-residents. "The clerks are taking on too much power to decide who is deputized," she said.

ANOTHER ISSUE is whether to register retarded persons.

Marian McQueen of Benzie County said, "When they cannot make an informed decision, it is terrible to register them." The mother of a 29-year-old woman with an IQ of 20, McQueen said five retarded persons in her daughter's group home were registered, an absentee ballots were even sought for them.

Pollack replied that raising the question of the retarded also raises the question of aged parents, stroke victims and "people who appear to be incompetent."

'We ran a survey of 41 Leagues of Women Voters in Michigan and found a number of local clerks who refuse to deputize.'

GOOD NEWS WEEKLY

A SERVICE OF GOOD FOOD CO.

33521 West Eight Mile Rd., West of Farmington Rd.

CAROB...the Healthful Alternative to Chocolate
It is known as St. John's Bread and the "manna" of the desert, but whatever name you call it, the flat leathery seed pods of the carob tree are a Godsend for those of us who love the taste of chocolate, but don't want the caffeine and calories that go along with it. The carob tree is native to the Mediterranean area, and before chocolate became such a common commodity, it was used by the children of the region as a candy, due to its naturally sweet, rich flavor.

Carob is naturally high in vitamins A & B, and the minerals calcium and magnesium, and contains only 2% fat (as compared to 52% for chocolate). Although you can eat the dried pod as is, it generally is ground into powder and toasted, and made into everything from carob chips to carob candy bars to carob covered pineapple rings. Although nothing can match the taste of real chocolate, most carob confections really are delicious, especially those with milk added to it. And with carob, we don't have the high-oxalic acid content that chocolate has, which can also interfere with the body's absorption of calcium.

We think carob is good enough to make you switch for good, or at least to satisfy that chocolate craving most of the time. The Good Food Company has a wide range of carob products, including the whole carob pod, carob chips, carob candy bars, as well as carob SANTAS, carob SNOWMEN, carob CHRISTMAS TREES, carob TEDDY BEARS, and carob CHRISTMAS BELLS. The folks of Good Food Company wish you a safe and healthy holiday season.

GOOD FOOD CO. is the largest natural food store in Michigan offering a complete selection of minimally processed and chemical free foods at substantial discounts. We provide a deli, bulk foods, supplements, body care, organic produce, macrobiotics, distilled water, books, appliances and much more!

Senate ties strings to Detroit police tax

By Tim Richard
staff writer

State senators moved again this week to attach tight strings to any help given to the city of Detroit. But a minority of legislators — both Detroit and suburban — fear their strings may be violating Michigan's 76-year-old tradition of local home rule.

"You are ordering a home-rule city to do something Port Huron or Lansing would strongly object to," said Senate Minority Leader William Faust, D-Westland, as the Senate debated a Detroit utility tax to support more police officers.

Tuesday's debate on the strings cut across political lines. A east-side Detroit Democrat, John Kelly, aided by Senate Majority Leader John Engler, R-Mt. Pleasant, won approval of a series of amendments requiring Detroit to use all new revenue to hire 1,100 more police "officers" — not police "personnel" or "public safety" workers. That moved the bill into position for passage later in the week.

DETROIT BUDGET director Walter Stecher shrugged off the Kelly amendments as "an acceptable compromise," saying the city would have spent the money that way anyhow.

Detroit is under U.S. District Court order to rehire officers laid off during 1979-80 budget crises and to pay arbitration awards.

To give Detroit the tools to pay for them, the legislature is considering a permissive bill to 1) allow the Detroit city council to renew a 4 percent utility tax which is due to expire in 1988 and 2) to allow Detroit to raise the rate to 5 percent.

"This is a continuation of what already is in force," said Sen. Jackle Vaughn III, D-Detroit. "I hope you will give Detroit the opportunity to manage itself. Detroit has a unique history of doing what is right and voting the taxes to pay for it."

"We plead with you not to fall for this hysteria, this political posturing," Vaughn said of the Kelly amendments.

His plea was echoed by suburbanites Faust and James DeSana, D-Wyandotte. "If the Kelly amendments pass, we're not allowing them to make that decision," DeSana said.

THE TAX, IF adopted by the Detroit council, would bring in $45 million at the 4 percent rate and $55 million at the 5 percent rate — enough, said Kelly, to allow rehiring of 1,100 police officers.

"Dealing with the crime problem ought to be a first priority," said Sen. Patrick McCollough, D-Dearborn, whose district includes Garden City. "But is $55 million too much?"

"Detroit can absorb 1,100 more officers," Kelly replied. "Actually, 1,100 more wouldn't make a dent in the absolute need."

"Mayor Young wants to see (a total of) 5,500 police officers on the streets.

Let's make good his Christmas gift. Let's earmark this money."

Kelly cited a survey of Detroiters which showed black neighborhoods see more police as the city's No. 1 priority and white neighborhoods as No. 2. "Dead last was the cultural things we promote in Lansing," said Kelly, referring to state aid to the Detroit Symphony, Detroit Institute of Arts, Main Library and Zoo.

HOW DETROIT spends state aid on those cultural institutions has long annoyed state legislators.

On the art institute, for example, they see Detroit as using increased state grants to charge off more patrol, fire, inspection, legal and administrative expenses, rather than on art.

A similar debate occurred in mid-1984 when the legislature approved a $1 million grant for the zoo, specifying it be used for capital improvements and not operations.

The Kelly amendments to the utility tax bill were adopted 17-8 and 14-7. They were supported by Sens. Doug Cruce, R-Troy, whose district includes Birmingham; R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, whose district includes Canton, Livonia, Plymouth and Redford; and McCollough.

Opposed was Faust. Absent or not voting were Sens. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, whose district includes Southfield; Richard Fessler, R-

West Bloomfield, whose district includes Bloomfield Hills, Bloomfield Township and the villages of Southfield Township; and Rudy Nichols, R-Waterford, whose district includes greater Rochester.

Tuesday's debate was known in parliamentary language as "second reading" — when amendments need only a majority of those voting, not an absolute 20-vote majority of the entire 38-member Senate.

Cameron photos in 2 museums

An Oakland University scholar has achieved the dream of seeing his life's work in the permanent collections of two major galleries — the National Gallery of Art in Washington and the Getty Trust's Art History Foundation in Los Angeles.

John Cameron, chairman of the OU Department of Art and Art History, said both museums are purchasing jointly some 55,000 prints of his photographic archive of medieval architecture and architectural decoration.

Cameron has collected the negatives since his early graduate school days in 1955 and today has some 70,000 negatives. He has been told it is the largest private photographic collection of medieval material in the world.

BOTH MUSEUMS are taking an 8-by-11-inch photograph of every decent negative, Cameron says, and that should be 55,000 prints. Some of his photographs have been damaged and others were taken "just to record something for history, not because they would be good photographs," he said.

Some 4,000 prints will be pulled from the collections by October of 1985 under contract with a Pontiac photographic studio. To photograph the entire collection represents a decade or more of work, the medieval expert said.

While he has concentrated on the medieval monuments of France, his collection contains a few thousand negatives of northern Italy and England as well.

"It is very rewarding to me and to OU to see this kind of endorsement of my research activities," he said.

He feels his collection was singled out not only because of its size, but because of his approach, that of looking at each detail as an indicator of architectural history and not simply as sculpture, and the providing of painstaking detail as to just where each photographed piece stood in relation to other details in the structure.

CAMERON HAS been amazed that almost all photographic records concentrate on the artistic or sculptural quality of a base, capital, molding, rib or bay, but never bother to provide much detail about the piece in relation to the structure itself.

Cameron's schematic system is like a blueprint about the building and its architectural history. It is as simple as asking a current college student to recognize the difference in styling between a 1955 and 1985 model car, he said. Cameron believes his collection is the first to be catalogued with such detail to function and location.

Cameron has been in contact with the International Center of Medieval Art (ICMA) to establish a uniform system of topographical nomenclature and computer encoding and he hopes the system will be used internationally.

THE QUESTION of uniform nomenclature will be discussed under Cameron's direction this May at the Kalamazoo Conference, the largest medieval conference in the world.

From this meeting, Cameron hopes a recommendation will go to the board of directors of the ICMA and that the system will be published in the center's journal, "Gesta."

Carl F. Barns Jr., OU professor of art and art history, is a past president of the ICMA, and currently on the board of directors of the ICMA.

Holidays tough on shoppers' feet

Whether you're making a last-minute dash to the toy store or fighting supermarket crowds, the holiday season usually takes its toll on your bank account, your patience and especially your feet.

Dr. Jerry D. Brant, president of the American Podiatric Medical Association, points out that holiday shopping sprees keep people standing, walking and even running for longer than usual periods. Foot fatigue is the common result.

Brant called foot fatigue shopping's most common and annoying problem. "It's brought on by diminished circulation to the feet and legs, and muscle strain," he explained.

"WAITING IN line is a major cause for the discomfort. It can be relieved by just moving slightly every moment or so, and by shifting your weight from foot to foot."

The Illinois podiatrist stressed keeping feet warm and dry, especially in harsh climates. "The smart shopper should wear comfortable, well-fitting shoes with low heels."

"In snowy areas, shoe boots are more comfortable than boots with shoes, and footlets should be worn to absorb normal perspiration and prevent chafing and blisters."

People who perspire freely must take extra precautions with foot hygiene, he added. "This includes bathing the feet regularly, and applying a good foot powder. The rewards are increased comfort and less chance of a fungus infection, such as athlete's foot."

SOCKS SHOULD be discarded as they wear out. Holes can cause excess friction or pressure, which can lead to blisters or corns.

When the shopping day is over, Brant recommends removing the shoes and elevating the feet on a chair or ottoman "to bring them back to life."

ALL IRAs ARE NOT CREATED EQUAL.

SO WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE?

The difference is the yield at Security Bank and Trust.

Because at Security Bank & Trust we don't just add interest to your IRA account at the end of the year the way many other banks and financial institutions do. With compounding, we add earned interest to your principal every month or every quarter depending on the certificate maturity you choose. That means your retirement fund builds up faster and actually yields more than other funds paying the same rate at simple interest.

In addition, Security Bank & Trust provides a wide range of retirement accounts with maturities from 3-120 months and also the flexibility of a fixed or variable rate account permitting regular deposits for as little as $25.

Security Bank & Trust's IRA provides you with a tax-deferred retirement program to supplement your Social Security benefits, while providing a tax deduction in the current year.

If you qualify, Security Bank & Trust can also provide a loan to help you fund your IRA in full, now. But remember, when investing in any IRA, federal law requires substantial forfeitures of interest when withdrawing funds before maturity or before you reach age 59½. There may be substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal.

And if you can't make your way through the crowds inside the Cultural Center, you resort to peeking through a window.

Discriminating shoppers inspect the handmade crafts.

Tree decorations are labeled for teacher, grandma, and just about everyone.

Crowds of holiday shoppers take in Cultural Center show

The Plymouth Cultural Center was bulging at the seams last weekend as crowds flocked to the annual post-Thanksgiving craft show. The parking lot was full and shoppers parked their cars blocks away, walking to the center in mild, Indian summer temperatures.

Tom Willette of the Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department, sponsor of the show, said attendance hit a new record. "We always have a crowd on Friday, opening day, but the Saturday and Sunday attendance was larger than usual. The weather helped and the Christmas Walk in Old Village brought in new people on Sunday."

He said craftsmen, who filled the 80 table spaces with their wares, reported excellent sales.

"Some of them sold out on Saturday and we had to bring in replacements on Sunday."

The lady with the pierced lamp shades was one of them. She just didn't have enough shades to meet the demand," said Willette.

NOW THE STAFF at the center is gearing up for this weekend's three-day show.

Willette said a dozen or so of the artisans will return for the second show and sale. "But we'll have about 60 new ones."

Among them will be basketmaker Bunny Pomije of Birmingham. One of her specialties is handmade crib-type baskets for Cabbage Patch Dolls.

Margaret Stacey of Plymouth is doing her first Parks and Rec show. She will offer a potpourri.

Alice Landis is coming from Traverse City with her handmade pewter jewelry.

Beekeeper Russ Hinckel of Grand Rapids will be selling drained honey and honey-in-the-comb. Hinckel always brings along a cross-section of a hive, under glass, as part of his display.

RAE THOMAS, Canton potter and artist, is doing her first show at the center. She paints on ceramic tiles and takes special orders for her work.

Her display at last summer's Art in the Park (Kellogg Park) attracted a good deal of attention. She will have hand-painted tapers, Christmas eggs, boxes, panels and casseroles.

Admission to the show is free.

Hours are 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Nov. 30 and Dec. 1, and 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 2.

Museum has until Jan. 1 to match funding offer

The Plymouth Historical Museum has a deadline of Jan. 1 to match the $25,000 offered by a local benefactor.

The donation is contingent upon an equal amount being contributed by private donors. The money will be placed in the Plymouth Historical Society Trust to perpetuate the purposes of the museum. Only the interest from the fund will be used for the operation of the museum.

Margaret Burr Kidston, president of the society, announced this week that private contributions have passed the halfway mark. "And we have more than 100 new memberships in the process," she added.

Since mailings went out the third week in October, most of the responses have varied from $1 to $50. And accompanying the donations were many notes explaining "I always meant to join the Historical Society, but never got around to it."

THE MUSEUM, owned and operated by the Plymouth Historical Society, is a tax-exempt organization. Contributions to the trust fund are tax deductible.

The museum is housed in the Dunning Memorial Building, Main at Church Street. It was donated by Historical Society member, Margaret Dunning, and dedicated to "the preservation of our heritage and to the education of our youth about their past."

Each year expenses have increased, resulting in the need for more funds just to maintain its educational programs, its permanent and short-term exhibits. It is supported only by donations from individuals, groups and businesses.

MUSEUM artifacts include an exclusive collection of Daisy Air Rifles and an Alter car, manufactured in Plymouth.

The Then and Now area has been visited by thousands of school children from many communities.

It provides a "hands-on" experience as well as an introduction to life in early Plymouth.

The Grandmother's Trunk presentations to groups of children add knowledge of how the early settlers of the community lived.

These educational programs and other workings of the museum are handled by volunteers.

Barbara Saunders, museum director, has been doing double and triple duty as director, tour director and exhibits chair.

Kidston said, "If we can come up with matching funds and establish the trust fund, it will be possible to continue our programs and keep the museum open."

Family Thanksgiving appeals to lawmakers

I thought it would be nice to introduce the new leaders of our township, so I called each of them. Without preparation I asked them to answer any or all of these three questions: 1) How did you spend your Thanksgiving? 2) What, if anything in particular are you thankful for? 3) What are your hopes for the future?

I found all our leaders friendly, eager to participate, and not one of them asked if they could call me back later after they had time to think.

So understand, while some answers may not seem profound, they are honest, and what better quality could we desire in our leaders? If I was unable to speak with an official I explain that in the text?

I hope you enjoy meeting our new leaders up-close and personal. Please understand that for the most part these are not direct quotes but rather taken from the telephone conversations.

I think I got the essence of what each wanted to say, I hope so. I enjoyed it, and I hope you do.

THE POOLE FAMILY finds itself grateful for so much — for a full and rich life together, and the joy three daughters have brought them.

They spent a wonderful holiday with a houseful of guests. Family included Jim's mother, brother and niece, a sister-in-law, another brother and his brother's girlfriend. Naturally, their three daughters were there — Le Rehea with her husband, Gary McKinley, and the Pooles' grandchildren, Cameron and Casey; daughter Gena, who recently graduated from Michigan State; and Lynnette.

I was unable to catch our supervisor at home. However, I did learn that Lynnette is probably the most grateful of all the Pooles for her father's re-election. She took advantage of that moment of joy, and was able to wangle a lifelong dream of her own — a horse, which now takes up most of her time.

As for the future, I know the Pooles are wishing for the best for and are going to miss Le Rehea and her family as they move to Erie. This will not happen until they have one more Christmas together.

JIM KOSTEVA, new state representative for some of Canton and one of the nicest politicians I have the pleasure to know, spent Thanksgiving in an original way. He took his wife Laura on a well-deserved and probably much-needed vacation to the get-away-from-it-all land. That's right folks, he left this circus and went to Disneyland.

He knows how to relax and enjoy the pleasure of life, and he understands the importance of the holiday. Jim says he's thankful for two parents who gave him love, direction, and opportunity.

He's also grateful for a fantastic number of friends, relatives and others who gave valuable parts of their lives and time to make a contribution toward the effort he recently undertook.

As for the future, he went again to traditional values. He envisions a dream where everyone puts aside individual greed and self-serving nature, looks more to long-term concerns, and becomes involved in the common problems facing our world at large.

A NEW MEMBER of Canton government and another family-oriented Cantonite is Linda Chuhnan, our new clerk. Linda split her Thanksgiving day, as so many of us do, between her very ill grandfather and the family of her husband, Terry.

Most thankful? Linda lists things like the good health of her children and Terry, as well as the opportunity to spend another holiday with her grandfather. And what a joy to be able to share her news of the election with him.

Linda finds herself especially proud of daughter, Stacy, the only female on her hockey team. She plays goalie and not only is surviving it but loving it too! And son Scott's hockey team, the Goalbusters out of Wayne, are undefeated thus far this season. And she's absolutely thrilled about her sister, Debra Harwell-Braun, who was up from North Carolina for Thanksgiving and is about to make Linda an aunt for the very first time.

As for the future, she hopes to use the opportunity to serve the community she lives in and see it progress in a positive direction.

ON TO THE TRUSTEES. Loren Bennett, Mr. Talk Talk Talk, actually did converse about an hour. But in response to my questions he was brief and precise. "On Thanksgiving, I had turkey; I am thankful there was plenty to go around; and as for my hopes, I hope it will be gone soon so I won't have to keep eating it."

Loren may not say much, but he knows what he wants, says what he means and gets the job done.

Steve Larson, can you believe it, had another traditional Turkey Day with not one but two kinds of dressings. There to share the holiday with Steve and his family were his brother and sister-in-law from Columbus, Ohio.

As he shared the day with his family, he was most thankful to live in a country where we can do just that — gather with his family and have a wonderful meal, whenever he chooses.

After all the recent news of places such as Ethiopia, he feels we must remember now, more than ever, how very, very lucky we are for our rich and free nation.

We must never forget to be thankful for that.

BOB PADGET — again this wild and crazy township has another leader who goes for a very traditional family holiday. Bob and wife Kay had all the children who live close enough to come home, Kay's father, Carl Thorne, brother Roger Thorne, and grandmother, Gertrude Thorne — a spry 92 years young. Bob's family was well represented with his brother, John Padget, and his mother, Marian Padget.

I suppose, along with the wonderful meal, the phone call to the one missing Padget child in Texas was the best part of the day. Bob says holidays are pretty traditional in their family, and probably always will be. That's how he likes them — much too much food but always someone to share it with.

As a matter of fact, having been an employee of American Airlines for nine years myself, as is Kay, and having been one of the few married employees of American, I know how welcome homemade leftovers are. I'm sure she'll have no problem getting rid of the extra food.

LAST BUT not least is John Preniczky. Believe it or not, Canton, another traditional turkey day. The Preniczky's gathered with his sister, her husband and children, at the home of his sister's sister-in-law.

With his wife, Thomasine, and their boys, one home from Michigan Tech, and one still in Catholic Central, John says he is grateful for many things, especially two young men he thinks have turned out pretty well.

John, first in his family to run for public office, enjoyed filling in his family on his victory. You can imagine how exciting it must be for them all to share in the fun.

As for the future, John says he hopes four years from now Canton will be a little better place to live and he will have contributed to that. He hopes he can say, "I'm proud of what I've done," and that somebody up there will guide him in his decisions in those four years.

ONE FINAL note. You'll notice that Jerry Brown, our treasurer, did not have a response. This was not intentional on anyone's part. You see I had the incorrect number for our treasurer. Although I finally did get the correct number, I failed to reach him.

Other board members, who have had an opportunity to speak with him since taking the oath of office, say he has a good-natured, cooperative attitude. They see a sincere intent to carry out the functions of the treasurer's office in a professional manner and a desire to promote the common cause of "Canton, from a proud past to a strong future."

Congratulations, Canton. Let's have a great year.

Don't forget the tree-lighting ceremony Monday, Dec. 3, at Township Hall!

Bowlbys wed 50 years

Frances and J. Craig Bowlby of Lakeside Drive, Plymouth, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Nov. 17 at Dearborn Inn. More than 50 guests attended the reception and dinner. They heard the couple repeat their marriage vows before the Rev. Irving M. Mitchell.

Frances and J. Craig Bowlby

The party was arranged by their family, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Givens of Bloomfield, Mrs. Marilyn Mitchell of Roswell, Ga., and Mr. and Mrs. J. Craig Bowlby II of Westland. The Bowlbys have eight grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Daughter Patricia Givens presented a red rose to each of the guests on arrival. Talisman roses, carnations of the same color, and white doves were used throughout the decorating theme. The wedding cake was decorated with flowers, gold ribbons and bows. Pianist Betty Wolf played the couple's favorite old songs — "I Love You Truly," "I Believe," and others — and they danced to "The Anniversary Waltz."

A movie-slide presentation on a large screen reviewed the lives of guests of honor from childhood to the present.

J. Craig Bowlby and Frances Sager were married Jan. 1, 1935 at the home of the bride's parents on Haggerty Road in Northville Township. They have lived in the Plymouth community for 45 years. He is retired from Travelers Insurance Co.

The anniversary party was planned for an earlier date, because many of their friends spend the winter in warmer climates. Guests came from Plymouth, Farmington Hills, Bloomfield, Dearborn, Grass Lake, Lathrup Village and Philadelphia.

Giczewski-Judge

Catherine Frances Judge and Norbert G. Giczewski Jr. exchanged marriage vows Sept. 21 in the Mercy Chapel of Farmington Hills. The Rev. Thomas Duffey officiated. The couple's parents are Betty and James Judge of Brookside, Plymouth and Sylvia and Norbert Giczewski of Allen Park.

The bride wore her mother's wedding gown of ivory imported Chantilly lace with a train. She carried a replica of her mother's wedding bouquet, orchids, ivy and stephanotis.

Sue Beger was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Jo Ann Giczewski, Kathy Judge, Colleen Hutcherson, Anna Swieczkowski and Kim McAuliff. They wore dark lavender dresses with large puffed sleeves and carried colonial bouquets. Lybra Lindke was flower girl.

The bridegroom's attendants were best man Ron Sn, Barney Judge, Tom Judge, Ken Giczewski, Tim Giczewski, Mike Giczewski and ringbearer Andrew Judge.

The couple left on their wedding trip to the Hawaiian Islands after a reception in the formal lounge of the Mercy Center. They are living in Livonia.

The bride is a graduate of Mercy High School and Michigan State University. She is employed as a computer trainer for Fortune Systems, Dearborn. Her husband graduated from Cabrini High School and Lawrence Institute of Technology. He is a mechanical engineer, employed by the Budd Corp.

Bolton-Lowe

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Bolton of Howell announce the engagement of their daughter, Carol Anne Bolton of Canton, to Meredith Edwin Lowe, son of Mrs. L. Lowe of Brighton. The bride-elect graduated from Redford Thurston High School and is employed at the Hydra-Matic Division of General Motors. Her fiancé graduated from Redford High School and is employed by Marathon Industrial Service, Inc.

They plan a September 1985 wedding in St. John Episcopal Church.

Zoppetti-Pink

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Zoppetti of Gwin, Mich. announce the engagement of their daughter, Ann, of Mt. Clemens, to David C. Pink, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Pink of Oxford, Plymouth. The bride-elect graduated from Gwin High School in 1977 and from Northern Michigan University in 1981 with a bachelor of science degree in mathematics and computer science. She is employed by the Chevrolet Division of General Motors. Her fiancé graduated from Plymouth Canton High School in 1976 and the University of Michigan in 1980 with a bachelor's of science degree in engineering. He is employed by General Motors-Chevrolet.

They plan a May wedding in St. Kenneth's Catholic Church, Plymouth Township.

McGlinn-McCully

Carolyn McCully and Daniel McGlinn had a background of full autumn color and Scottish bagpipes for their Oct. 13 wedding in Bellaire Community Methodist Church. The Rev. David Cheyne of Alden United Methodist Church performed the ceremony.

The couple's parents are the Adam McCullys of Bellaire and Richard and Elaine McGlinn of Plymouth.

The bride, wearing a long ivory satin gown with an overlay of English lace, carried a cascading bouquet of white roses, white orchids and stephanotis. Harriet Bright, the bride's sister, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Jill Sabiston and Marissa Bognasco. Michelle Bright, the bride's niece, was junior bridesmaid. They wore brilliant red gowns and carried matching flowers.

Stephan Murphy of Lansing was best man. Groomsmen were David McGlinn and Dale McCully. The bride's nephews, Scott Bright and Thomas McCully, lit the candles. A dinner reception after the ceremony was in the Bellaire Room of Hilton Shanty Creek.

The newlyweds are 1980 graduates of Plymouth Canton High School and 1984 graduates of Michigan State University. They will live in Lansing, where they are continuing their education and pursuing business careers.

Ingathering aids Detroit church to help needy

PEOPLE CARING for people is more than a catchy seasonal phrase for parishioners at St. Timothy United Presbyterian Church in Livonia.

It became reality when the church held its second annual Harvest Ingathering — reminiscent of an old small-town tradition when farmers and the people of the community would gather together to share their excess crops, food and clothing for the winter.

"Through the generosity of our 220 members," said David Miller of St. Timothy's board of deacons, "we were able to be a part of the food program at Grandale Presbyterian Church of the Master, in Detroit, which, since January of this year, has served over 18,000 people who were hungry or without clothing."

The Grandale program is not just a handout or welfare, he noted.

"Each recipient is required to do four hours work with the good program. This entitles them to enough food for each member of their family for three days."

GRANDALE, HE explained, feels that by requiring the recipients to work for their gifts, they can retain their independence and self-esteem.

The ingathering at St. Timothy's is promoted by the board of deacons, but the "real backbone" of the program is 71-year-old Kathryn Martin, who initiated it, according to the Rev. E. Dickson Forsythe, pastor.

Marching two by two, children (above) brought their offerings to the altar. In her choir robe, Kathryn Martin (left), credited with starting the ingathering, turns over the food collected to Christine Henry (center) and Lin Dawson, wife of Grandale's pastor.

Our goal should be to change hearts

Jerry Falwell is reported to have said that he would push the button to unleash a nuclear war. The statement is quoted as having been made on the "Late Night America" television program.

I was discussing the report when my son said that he was astonished that a minister would launch nuclear missiles. He had come to believe that a minister stands for God's love, forgiveness and peace. He could not unleash weapons which would kill millions of people.

It is hard to understand how a person who espouses the law of love of one's enemies can decide to kill them. It is equally puzzling to comprehend the pressure even among religious people to institute a death penalty.

ALL OF THIS is difficult to understand until one sees how some religious people and clergy view life. They believe that evil is so awful it must be destroyed.

moral perspectives
Rev. David Strong

It is difficult to understand this position until we see that these people believe that a cosmic warfare is going on between good and evil. The only way this war can be won is to destroy evil. They fail to grasp the idea that God will redeem his world in his own manner.

An even more important point is lost in this view which sees a cosmic battle between good and evil. An American Baptist medical doctor in Haiti, Dr. William Hodges, describes the world outlook of people in Haiti who follow voodoo.

THEY EXTERNALIZE evil so that life becomes a constant battle between good and evil. He contrasts this with a Christian understanding. He says, "When we admit the inner nature of evil which is sin, we need no longer call the evil influences outside of ourselves and beyond our power."

Christian and Jewish understandings of evil bring us to see that evil also resides within the human heart. Each person seeks the grace to be free of this brokenness. Life is not simply a matter of good people destroying evil out there in the world.

A story from scripture illustrates this idea. A group of men had caught a woman in the act of adultery. They decided to eradicate this evil by killing the woman.

Jesus said that the one who is without sin should throw the first stone. Each of the men slipped away one by one. The woman's accusers left because they had been forced to acknowledge their own sin.

THE RELIGIOUS and moral person will take sin seriously. They will acknowledge that sin is a condition within all persons. They will support ways in which evil can be contained and controlled.

Cure your insomnia with better sleep habits

THE FAINT light from the clock's LED display casts an eerie glow in the darkened room. The silence throughout the house is broken only by those unexplained creaks and groans found in every home.

The clock says 3:10 a.m. Only ten minutes have passed since the last time you checked, but it seems like it was an hour ago.

For the umpteenth time, you rearrange the pillows, blanket, and your posture — yet nothing feels right. You become increasingly discouraged as you wonder, "How am I going to make it through the day without any sleep?"

SOUND FAMILIAR? Most all of us have had an occasional bout of insomnia.

It may have been the result of a stressful day, a new bedroom, physical illness, too much caffeine and excitement, a recent shift change at work, or worries about the next day.

In most cases, difficulty falling asleep or staying asleep lasts only a night or two, or a couple of weeks at the most.

When sleep difficulties persist longer than this, a physician should be consulted to make sure there are no medical problems which are interfering with normal sleep. But referral for a psychological evaluation may be made if the physician suspects the sleep problem is the result of emotional difficulties such as depression.

OFTEN, CLOSE evaluation reveals that poor sleeping habits are a major reason for the persistent or chronic insomnia. Although the use of prescribed sleeping medication on a short-term or intermittent basis can be helpful, changes in sleeping behavior are very important.

The following suggestions can help improve the quality of sleep for all of us:

- Be sure to get enough sleep. Some people can function well on three hours of sleep a day; others require 10 hours a day. Determine how many hours of sleep allow you to go through the day without feeling overly tired.

- Establish a regular sleep pattern. Our bodies have an internal time-clock which becomes disrupted when our times of sleep and wakefulness vary dramatically from day to day. Rising at a fairly consistent time each day is especially important for keeping our internal sleep-wake cycle functioning properly.
- Reserve your bed and bedroom for sleep, not for reading, television viewing, or doing paper work. This practice helps to condition you psychologically to associate the bedroom environment with sleep, not stimulation (at least not most forms of stimulation). Likewise, avoid falling into the habit of sleeping on the family couch.

- Don't retire immediately after strenuous exercise. A regular exercise program has many health benefits including improving the quality of sleep.

However, for optimal sleep, the body needs at least two to three hours to cool down and return to normal functioning before retiring.

- Avoid caffeine, nicotine and alcohol in the evening. Although most people are aware of the stimulating qualities of coffee and nicotine, they are often surprised to hear that alcohol can disturb sleep. Alcohol can indeed relax you and help you to fall asleep, but research shows that even moderate amounts of alcohol have an adverse effect on the quality of sleep.

IF YOU ARE having problems with insomnia, avoid midday naps.

- Don't go to bed hungry. A late night pizza or greasy-spoon hamburgers are not the answer, but something light and bland such as warm milk can be helpful.

- Keep your bedroom temperature no higher than 72 degrees. Researchers suggest that the quality of sleep decreases when the room temperature is too warm.

- On those nights when you find yourself awake while the rest of the world is asleep, don't fight the wakefulness. You struggle will only result in the sheets and blankets being pulled off the bed, not sleep. Talk to yourself, reassure yourself that if you don't sleep, it won't be the end of the world.

After 15 minutes of tossing and turning, leave your bedroom and read a boring book or turn on a late-night movie (preferably something rated G).

When you find yourself dozing, then return to bed. If necessary, repeat the process.

Sleep well!

Cabbage Patch find's coup

By Marie Chestney
staff writer

For the avalanche of shoppers who descended on a small Livonia store these past few days, getting a Cabbage Patch doll to put under the Christmas tree has been a major holiday coup.

Never mind the long wait in a long line behind a security guard, with only 20 or so customers being let into the Cabbage Shoppe at any one time. The shop is located in the Market Place section of Wonderland Shopping Center at Plymouth and Middlebelt roads.

And never mind the $60 price tag for the chubby-faced doll made by Coleco, a price almost double the going rate at most retail outlets.

Ever since it opened at 10 a.m. Friday, hundreds of customers have walked out of the shop clutching at least one, and sometimes as many as six or seven, of the much-prized, but hard-to-find, soft-sculptured dolls, said Wonderland manager Michael Polinelli.

"It's amazing a doll would have this kind of interest," he said. "We've had a tremendous response with calls coming in from outstate Michigan, Ohio and even from Wisconsin."

A NEWSPAPER ad Wednesday announced the opening of the store as follows: "We have thousands of dolls available."

Around noon Saturday, cartons and boxes of the dolls were still stacked high throughout the show and storage areas of the shop.

The stacks were still there even after shoppers had started lining up outside the door at 7 a.m. Friday, three hours before the store's opening.

In most retail stores, the demand for the dolls is so great they barely sit on a shelf overnight before being sold. Some stores even keep waiting lists of anxious buyers.

So when "thousands" appeared in one tiny store, the big question among other retailers must have become: How did one store wind up with so many dolls?

Store spokesman Dennis Hickey would only say the dolls were "accumulated by different sources."

Although refusing to name the person who signed the temporary store lease, Polinelli shed a bit more light on a possible answer.

"The man said he didn't want to be identified because of the deal he had made," Polinelli said. "If he lets his source out, it might hurt his other business ventures. But he did say he had worked a full year in getting the supply. He knew a particular supplier. I think it was a good business move. He saw a good deal and capitalized on the market."

BARBARA Wruck, communications director of Connecticut-based Coleco, said the dolls were most likely bought from a distributor. Mass merchandisers, she said, have more trouble keeping larger supplies of the dolls because bulk shipments sent by Coleco to merchandisers' warehouses are broken down into smaller lots before being shipped to store outlets around the country.

She also said she knew of no other store like the Cabbage Shop popping up around the country.

One thing appears certain — buyers had few complaints about the high price tag. Both Hickey and Polinelli said no complaints had been voiced. Customers appeared to pay the $60 willingly.

A survey of area stores shows the dolls sell in the $30-$35 price range. Wruck said the warehouse price of the doll is $23.50.

A Circus World spokesperson, who asked not to be identified, predicted that whoever bought the dolls "will make a ton of money."

Last year, the doll became the most asked for Christmas gift by children.

County drops 137 health jobs

Some 137 Wayne County positions will be eliminated Dec. 1, the beginning of the new fiscal year, according to Vernice Davis-Anthony, director of the county's Health and Human Resources Department.

Fifty employees — some temporary, some permanent — will be laid off and 86 employees will be displaced or "bumped."

Davis-Anthony said the changes will affect three county operations:

- Jurisdiction of the respiratory disease control division of the County Health Department at Herman Kiefer Hospital (59 positions) will be transferred to the city of Detroit. The city will pick up some, but not all, of those county employees.

- The Job Partnership Training Act (JPTA) division of the personnel department (20 positions) will be discontinued.

- Transitional Wayne County General Hospital employees (58 positions), who had been retained for close-out operations, are being laid off.

She said that, while 137 jobs are eliminated, actually only 50 persons will be laid off, because the displaced employees can fill vacant positions elsewhere in county government.

Jobless rate to drop below 10 percent in '85

Continuing recovery in the Michigan economy will bring the state's unemployment rate below 10 percent by the end of 1985, the first single-digit jobless figure in more than five years.

That prediction came from University of Michigan economists at the 32nd annual Conference on the Economic Outlook.

The outlook for the 1985-86 Michigan economy, prepared by Joan P. Crary and Saul H. Hymans, calls for total employment to grow by a bit more than 2.5 percent per year for each of the next two years.

"This is a slower pace than the 4.4 percent growth that we experienced in 1984, but is still well ahead of the rate of growth which we are predicting for the labor force," Crary said.

"Consequently, the unemployment rate is forecast to decline from 11.2 percent for 1984 to 10.3 percent for 1985 and to 9.6 percent for 1986, which will mark the first time the unemployment rate has dropped below 10 percent on an annual basis since 1979."

WITH THE more modest increases in employment, personal income is forecast to grow about 8 percent for each of the next two years — down from the 9.7 percent increase for 1984.

The inflation rate, forecast to remain constant at 3.5 percent for 1985, is projected to rise to 5.2 percent for 1986 as national markets begin to tighten.

"The result of our projected increases in income and our inflation projections," Crary said, "is a steadily declining rate of growth of consumer purchasing power from 6.5 percent for 1984 to 4.5 percent for 1985 and 2.9 percent for 1986." However, she added, "even with more modest increases in real disposable income over the next two years, we are forecasting that consumer purchasing power in 1986 will finally exceed the level for 1978, which was the last year to show an increase before the recession."

THE FORECAST projects increases of a little more than 3 percent for manufacturing employment for each of the next two years.

Within private non-manufacturing, employment should continue to improve in both residential and non-residential construction in the spring of 1985, and non-residential building should remain strong through 1986.

Other industries also exhibit steady growth over the forecast period. Government employment, reversing recent declines, is predicted to show small increases during the next two years.

The forecast notes that Michigan's employment mix has altered in recent years. Manufacturing dropped from about 35 percent of total employment in the early 1970s to less than 28 percent in the early 1980s. Meanwhile, private non-manufacturing rose from a 47 percent share to just under 55 percent of the total between 1970 and 1982.

WHEN THE GROWTH slows in 1986, the Michigan employment rate is expected to remain about 3 percentage points above the national rate, the forecast said.

Part of the reason for the failure to make up the recession-induced "unemployment gap," Crary said, is the huge increase in output per Michigan worker since 1980. The productivity improvement, largely due to automated procedures in the automobile industry, is expected to continue in 1985-86.

"Such productivity improvement is absolutely essential to the long-term viability of the domestic automobile industry — and to the long-term health of the Michigan economy as well," she explained.

"But it is quite clear that this process presents us with a painful adjustment in the short run."

THE FORECAST for the state revenue outlook projects a 6.4 percent decline ($185 million) in income tax revenues for fiscal 1985, to be followed by an 11.9 percent increase ($322 million) for fiscal 1986.

The drop in revenues in fiscal 1985 results from the reduction in the tax rate from an average of 6.1 percent for fiscal 1984 to 5.35 percent for fiscal 1985. On Jan. 1, 1986, the state income tax rate drops to 5.1 percent for the rest of the forecast period.

Total general-fund/general-purpose tax revenues are forecast to decrease 1.7 percent ($92 million) in fiscal 1985 and to increase 11 percent ($87 million) in fiscal 1986, mirroring the pattern in the personal income tax as effective tax rates change.

The Michigan forecast reflects key inputs from the U-M analysis of the national economy, also presented at the Economic Outlook Conference.

The U.S. economy is predicted to continue to expand through both 1985 and 1986, accompanied by a drop in the unemployment rate, a slight rise in inflation, sizable personal and corporate income gains, and little change in the general deficit levels.

Bread of Love made available

Church seeks preservation of Polish yule custom

The Mariavite Old Catholic Church, founded in Poland in 1893, plans to preserve a centuries-old Christmas tradition by making available the traditional Polish Christmas Oplatkis wafers.

The church's purpose is to make available these often unobtainable and yet much sought after wafers to area readers for the preservation of this custom.

The Oplatek is the treasured link that brings fond memories of Poland to her children who have settled in various parts of the world. The Oplatek has a mystical meaning which cannot be logically explained.

ALSO KNOWN AS the Bread of Love, or Angel's Bread, the Oplatek is a thin unleavened wafer similar to communion wafers.

The bread is stamped with figures of the Christ Child, the Virgin Mary, the Angels, or other Nativity scenes.

Use of the wafer no longer is restricted to persons of Polish descent, but have become a part of the holiday customs of others as well.

In the Christmas tradition of the Polish people, as the first star appears in the eastern skies on Christmas Eve, the family gathers at the table for the Vigil, or "Wilia" supper — a feast of Lenten-like foods to commemorate the nativity of Christ in Bethlehem.

In farm homes sheaves of grain tied with colored ribbons are placed in the corners of the room with a silent prayer for a good harvest in the next season. Before sitting down to eat, at a table where a thin layer of straw has been placed under a snowy white tablecloth as a memento of Christ's birth in the manger, all family members break the traditional Christmas Wafer (Oplatek) and exchange wishes of happiness, love, and peace with one another.

THE WAFERS, baked by the Mariavite Nuns at their Motherhouse in Poland, are available in envelopes of three each by writing to the Most. Rev. Robert R. Zaborowski, O.M., Prime Bishop, Mariavite Old Catholic Church, 2803 10th Street, Wyandotte, MI 48192-4494.

Requests for the traditional Oplatkis will be honored now through Dec. 17 to assure delivery. A voluntary offering of $3 is requested for each envelope to assist in defraying costs and postage.

A reprint of the December 1982 issue of "The Mariavite Monthly," a publication of the church which contains articles about the traditional Polish Christmas Eve customs which also has a number of traditional Polish recipes in English, is available upon request at $1.50 per copy.

The church also has prepared a brief catalog of other Polish Christmas items which also is available upon request. All offerings are tax-deductible as proceeds will be used to assist needy and orphaned children in Poland.

Archbishop Zaborowski explains that the church retains the old Latin language Mass and other church traditions, customs, and devotions which now are nearly extinct, but is an independent Catholic Church not subject to the Vatican since 1906. The church is similar in worship and doctrine to the pre-Vatican I (1870 A.D.) Roman Catholic Church.

The administrative center at Wyandotte serves as the headquarters for the Mariavite Old Catholic Church, Province of North America.

On Christmas Eve a Latin Midnight Mass will be offered in the Archepiscopal Oratory followed by a Polish High Mass at 9:45 a.m. and an English High Mass at 11 a.m. on Christmas Day.

Refreshments will be served following the Masses. All are invited and welcome to attend.

UM-D hosts students

Prospective students and their parents will have an opportunity to visit the University of Michigan-Dearborn campus for "preview day" on two Fridays, Dec. 7 and Jan. 25.

Programs will run from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. in room 1091 of the University Mall. The UM-D campus is on Evergreen south of Ford Road in Dearborn.

They may view the campus and attend three free sessions on these areas: liberal arts, co-op, financial aid, pre-professional planning, computer science, teaching, engineering, business and "undecided." Administrations and faculty members will answer questions about their departments.

An optional tour of the campus will start at 1:30 p.m. from room 104, classroom and office building.

Interested persons should reserve space no later than one week prior to the preview by calling the admissions office at 593-5170.

Ocelot success: gamble paid off

THERE WERE DOUBTERS. In any new endeavor there always will be. Some dare to envision, while others are too timid to peak.

Mary Gans and Ed Dudek dared to dream of what Schoolcraft College could gain as the first community college in this region to field a women's varsity soccer squad.

The decision paid handsome dividends when the Ocelots traveled to Trenton, N.J., last weekend and came home as the NJCAA tournament finalists.

You doubt the weightiness of the decision that Gans, as Schoolcraft's athletic director, ultimately had to make? Then consider:

- The first time Schoolcraft formed any kind of women's team was last year, when it was treated as a club-level sport;
- Being varsity meant putting more games on the schedule, an increase from 10 to 22;
- Varsity also meant more money, particularly to cover travel expenses, since few of the east coast schools (where most of the NJCAA's women's teams are located) would travel to Michigan for one game, and that against a team of unknown quality.

Also note that Michigan State University, which boasts an athletic budget that would dwarf Schoolcraft's, will not grant its women's soccer club varsity status despite players' pleas and student's petitions.

THE VALUE of a dollar is far greater at a community college, with its limited resources, than at a major state university. At Schoolcraft, it must be spent wisely; if not, it could be lost forever.

All these were weighed by Gans, who approved funding the trip to the NJCAA nationals for the women's club team last year. Coached by Dudek, the Ocelots were 3-3-1 going into the tournament. They lost all three of their matches.

Not exactly the kind of performance to build confidence for the future. Schoolcraft qualified for the tournament because it was the only community college team in the region, giving it an automatic berth.

But Gans, who once coached Schoolcraft's men's soccer team, and Dudek, who also coaches Livonia Churchill's girls squad, know their sport. They knew the team they took to nationals last year was not the best they could muster.

"We were somewhat competitive last year," said Dudek. "We knew, with a little strengthening of our team, we could compete with any team on the east coast."

DUDEK DIDN'T need to convince Gans. "After what we saw," the Schoolcraft AD said of the '83 tournament, "we felt we had the local talent to compete nationally. We went to get the experience, and to see what it would be like."

So he pushed through the team's varsity status, which not only meant more money and more games, but security. That allowed Dudek to start recruiting in earnest.

His efforts landed him a sizable portion of this year's team, including two players who were named to the NJCAA's all-tournament team: Sue Ferguson and Jenny Gans.

Ferguson, from Farmington, racked up 39 goals during the season, including five in the three-game tournament. Gans, from Northville, permitted just four goals at nationals. She's the daughter of the Schoolcraft AD.

THE DOUBTERS never wanted varsity status, nor did they want Schoolcraft to foot the bill for a team trip to New Jersey, especially after last year's showing.

"I never did (doubt our chances)," the elder Gans said, "but some of our people here did. Some people thought we went only because we were the only team in the region."

The Ocelots proved otherwise. They surprised everybody with easy wins over Union CC (Cranford, N.J.) and Morrisville (N.Y.) CC. And they battled Nassau CC (Long Island, N.Y.) until the final minute before falling.

Schoolcraft's performance earned the school more than a line in newspapers nationwide as the team that lost in the NJCAA finals. It also earned Schoolcraft respect. None of its eastern rivals expected much from the midwestern school.

THAT'S CHANGED. As Dudek explained: "Nassau said they want to come here and play us now. Monroe (N.Y.) CC does, too."

"Instead of always going out to find opponents, we'll have teams coming here. We'll have a much stronger schedule, and better home games."

Which in turn will cut travel costs and aid recruiting. It's bound to be the best women's college soccer in the state when the top two NJCAA teams in the nation tangle at Schoolcraft.

What will also aid Dudek's recruiting is the lack of a varsity women's program at any state university or major college.

"My feeling is the four-year colleges have really missed the boat on this," said Dudek.

He's right. A college-bound female soccer player might want to think twice about enrolling at a four-year school with a club-level team. At Schoolcraft, she'll get to the NJCAAs, a tournament frequented by college scouts. That translates into a possible athletic scholarship at a four-year college.

Such a success breeds all sorts of amenities for Schoolcraft: nationwide recognition, greater opportunities for its athletes and a whole bunch of proud students.

And remember that it started with a dare, because one has to dare to be great to achieve it.

It's Rocks vs. Chiefs in finale

By Brad Emons
staff writer

It will be the second meeting of the season between neighbors Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem, but this time the stakes are much higher.

The two teams will battle Friday night for the district girls basketball crown at Westland John Glenn. (Salem's record is 18-4, while Canton's is 12-9).

Canton, which lost to Salem in overtime earlier this year, earned a spot in the final with a 36-28 win over Northville in last night's semifinal. It was the Chiefs' third win in four games against the Mustangs.

Salem, meanwhile, struggled to get past Livonia Churchill, 32-26, in the second game of a double-header at Glenn.

The Rocks, who put forth one of their finest efforts of the year in Monday's 35-33 first-round win over highly touted Glenn, simply came out flat in their third encounter with Churchill. Salem, however, had enough to beat the Chargers, who bowed out with a 5-16 record.

"It's really hard to come back after a physical, emotional game against an extraordinary team like Glenn," said Salem coach Fred Thomann. "The kids didn't really get ready to play."

THOMANN added that there were "two factors" that caused some tense moments.

"Churchill was really prepared to play against us and I think our legs were lacking — we really didn't have them early," said the Salem coach.

Salem led 13-9 at the half, but fell behind 16-15 with 4:12 left in the third quarter on Jennifer Huegeli's basket.

The Rocks then suddenly regrouped as Fran Whittaker, Kendra Hostynski and Mary Beth Weast (a shot at the buzzer) scored baskets to make it 21-16 at the end of three quarters.

Early in the fourth period, Churchill began to unravel as Salem's hawking full-court defense took its toll. The result was a 10-1 scoring spree, capped by Suzie Balconi's basket with 3:50 to play, making it 31-17. The Rocks then held on. Churchill's doom, meanwhile, came at the free throw line. The Chargers made only 5 of 15 shots in the final quarter.

Huegeli and sophomore Tracy Greenwald each scored 10 points for Churchill. Whittaker led Salem with 10.

IN THE OPENER, Canton led 13-8 at the half and then outscored Northville 13-6 in the third period to take command of the game.

The Chiefs' full-court press, spearheaded by Beth Frigge and Lisa Russell, coaxed Northville into numerous turnovers.

"Because of the pressure, they were rushing and not taking good shots," said Canton coach John Mulroy. "I thought we cashed in on half of our opportunities off the press. If we can do better than that, then we have a chance to be in there (Friday)."

Canton used a balanced scoring attack with Kathy Ross netting 9, mostly from the perimeter. Frigge added 8, while Diana Knickerbocker and Russell contributed 6 each.

"This time we decided to control the tempo because Northville does a good job of setting up," Mulroy said. "And they play a sticky zone, too."

Mulroy also saluted the play of Ross. "She's the key against a zone," he said. "If she can hit a couple out, it opens things up inside."

Dena Head played a hero's role in the Rocks' win against Westland John Glenn Monday.

Rocks top Glenn by a (Dena) Head

By Chris McCosky

Plymouth Salem freshman Dena Head seemed more nervous during the post-game interview than she did standing at the free-throw line with 18 seconds left in the first round of the Class A district tournament girls basketball game Monday.

In front of a very boisterous crowd at Westland John Glenn, Head coolly sank a pair of free throws to ice Salem's 35-33 upset win over host Glenn.

After the game, in front of only a reporter and his notebook, Head, with bowed head and soft, soft voice, gave a very low-keyed account of her heroics.

"I was just thinking I had to make my free throws," she said. "I miss them all the time." When asked about her jubilant reaction when the 2 shots fell, she said, "I was happy. It was the first time I ever made free throws to win a game."

THE PRESSURE free throws were just a small part of Head's contribution to Salem's win. She led Salem with 10 points, and she pulled down 12 rebounds despite giving up an inch in height to all 3 John Glenn front-court players.

"This, to me, was the finest game this Salem team has ever played," said the Rocks' head coach Fred Thomann. "And we really needed it. We were playing against a very talented team, a team with all the attributes that we don't have. We had to utilize

Schoolcraft kickers fall in finale, 2-0

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Not one of the seven teams opposing Schoolcraft College at the NJCAA women's soccer tournament expected much from the Ocelots. After all, last year they were hardly competitive, losing all three of their tourney games.

That opinion has since changed. It changed about the time Schoolcraft was blanking highly-regarded Morrisville (N.Y.) Community College 2-0 in the semifinals. Suddenly a team in its first varsity season was in the finals.

The last hurdle proved too difficult. Schoolcraft battled Nassau CC (Long Island, N.Y.) until the last minute before tumbling 2-0 in the tournament finals at Trenton, N.J.

"None of them were really prepared for us," said Schoolcraft coach Ed Dudek, whose team ended its season with a 16-4-1 mark. "I kept an eye on them, but they didn't even bother scouting us."

THAT WAS a costly mistake, because it allowed high-scoring Ocelot forward Sue Ferguson, from Farmington, to roam the whole field. She responded with 3 goals in Schoolcraft's opening 5-2 win over Union CC (Cranford, N.J.) and 2 more against Morrisville.

Ferguson finished with 39 goals this season and was named to the All-NJCAA tournament team. Amy McCauley and Doreen Dudek also scored against Union CC.

"No one marked Sue early," said Dudek. Nassau learned from the mistakes of its predecessors and shadowed Ferguson in the final. Ferguson injured

HIGH SCHOOL boys basketball in the Plymouth-Canton public school district, it's safe to say, is in a period of transition.

Fred Thomann is no longer the coach at Plymouth Salem. Erich Hartnett, Rick Berberett and Jeff Arnold, key members of the Rocks for the past three seasons, have graduated.

Across the way at Plymouth Canton, Dave Van Wagoner, last year's coach of the year in Observerland, is still there. But, four of his starters have departed. Mark Bennett, Gary Thomas, Mike Jennings and Elijah Rogers have graduated.

Indeed, there is a new look on the Centennial Educational Park boys basketball horizon. Yet, although the names and faces have changed, the results will most likely remain the same in 1984-85.

Both teams, despite some obvious deficiencies, should be very competitive in the Western Lakes Activities Association again this season.

Canton, winners of both division and conference titles last year, will be in a dogfight with Farmington Harrison in the Western Division.

basketball

Salem, Lakes Division and state district tournament champions a year ago, will have to battle Livonia Stevenson and Walled Lake Central in the very balanced Lakes Division.

Here's a pre-season look at the two teams:

PLYMOUTH CANTON

The 1983-84 year was a magical season for the Chiefs. They went 16-6 overall, but most importantly, they won the hearts and support of the entire community.

They played before jam-packed crowds and they treated them to some fantastic basketball.

The challenge before this year's Canton team is to continue the magic.

"We really turned the corner last year," said Van Wagoner. "I think we will be a respectable team year in and year out. I'm not saying we'll win a championship every year, but we'll be respectable. I just can't see us going back to mediocrity."

Despite losing four starters, there are many similarities between this year's Chiefs and last year's. Like last year, there are some electrifying individual performers. Like last year, there is tremendous team speed. Like last year, the team is committed to playing tenacious defense.

UNFORTUNATELY, the team also shares last year's biggest weakness — a lack of size. Rogers, at 6-foot-2, was the tallest Chief last year. This year's tallest Chief will be all of 6-1.

"We will be as good or better defensively as we were a year ago," Van Wagoner said. "And we have to be. We also have to really crash the boards. Our starting 5 will probably go 6-1, 6-1, 6-1, 6-0, 5-11. But, I won't use that as an excuse. I still think we will be able to compete in our division."

The way Van Wagoner sees it, his team's success will be predicated on

Wendy Gilles places 12-16 in indoor 18's

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

Wendy Gilles did not bring home the top prize from the National Indoor Junior Tennis Championships played last week in Kansas City.

But the talented junior amateur player from Plymouth continued to play outstanding tennis.

The Plymouth Salem junior won 5 of 7 matches during the 6-day tourney and finished 12 through 16 (exact places are not awarded).

"I didn't go into the tournament with any real goals," Gilles said. "I just wanted to do the best I could. Last year, I set all kinds of goals and didn't come close to any of them. I don't set goals anymore. I just go out to do the best I can."

Lately, Gilles' best has been very good. She won the last 4 tournaments she played in prior to Kansas City.

GILLES TEAMED with her older sister Chris in the National Indoors doubles competition. The Gilles sisters won 3 rounds before being ousted in the Round of 16 (1 round shy of the quarterfinals).

Chris Gilles, the No. 1 singles player at the University of Wisconsin, had a tough time in singles play. She lost her first match of the tournament, won 1 round in the back draw (consolation bracket) then lost her next match.

Chris Gilles, a freshman at Wisconsin, has a 10-4 record in No. 1 singles.

Wendy Gilles beat Joline Watanabe of California in her first match, 6-3, 6-1. Irene Usiskin of New Jersey was her second victim, 6-2, 6-0.

Gilles was then defeated by Illinois' Katrina Adams, 7-5, 7-5. Adams was seeded in the tournament.

Then in the back draw, Gilles beat Diane Merrett of Texas, 5-7, 6-3, 7-5, and Trish Laux of Georgia (ranked No. 7 nationally in Girls 16), 7-5, 6-3.

Wendy was ousted from singles competition by Lynn Nabors of Ohio, 6-4, 6-2.

"I thought Wendy had a real nice tournament," said Brian Gilles, the father of the two tennis aces. "She beat Diane Merrett, who was ranked, and another who was ranked No. 7 (Laux). She was disappointed that she lost her last match (to Nabors), but she played real well."

Both Chris and Wendy were highly ranked nationally last year. The new amateur rankings are expected to be released in early December.

Aiken redhot in Ocelot win

The Schoolcraft College women's basketball team, behind the outside shooting of Missy Aiken, earned its first victory of the season Saturday against host Muskegon CC, 74-59.

Aiken, a 5-foot-10 sophomore forward from Plymouth Canton, finished with 22 points to lead the Lady Ocelots, now 1-3 on the season.

Freshman Kim Chandler added 16 points, while Rhonda White contributed 14 off the bench. Amy Brow of Livonia Churchill chipped in with 12.

MEANWHILE, the Schoolcraft men's team is still searching for its first win.

The Ocelots (0-6) traveled last weekend to Rochester, N.Y., for the Central Trust Classic and lost to host Monroe (N.Y.) CC in the opener, 103-85, and Rhode Island CC in the consolation game, 75-74.

Brad Turner, a 16-year-old freshman from Detroit DePorres, was named to the All-Tournament team after scoring 22 points in each game.

Clarence Jones added 20 in the loss to Rhode Island and Tony Randall added 20 in the Monroe loss. Bronx (N.Y.) CC won the championship with a 64-54 win over Monroe.

Rocks, Chiefs cagers have speed to burn

Jim Schlicker is an important cog in the Plymouth Canton attack. The senior will have to carry a heavy load, both scoring and rebounding.

the success of his 3 tri-captains — Jim Schlicker, Kevin Hawkins and Brent Stack.

"We'll go as they go," Van Wagoner said.

Schlicker is certainly no stranger to Canton basketball. He has started since his sophomore year. But, the senior jumping jack will be in a very different role this year.

"I'll be having the ball a lot more," Schlicker said. "The last two years I've played more of a (supporting) role. I'll still play a role, but I'll be more of a scorer. That's a lot better for me."

Schlicker is currently sidelined by an ankle sprain. He hopes to be ready to go within a week. He is very anxious to get going with the season.

"I've always wanted to be in a leadership position. I always knew I could be. I don't really feel any pressure. There is some, but I knew it would be there. I expected it," he said.

VAN WAGONER said the other two positions are up for grabs, but several promising newcomers have emerged.

One of the newcomers is Joel Mies, a transfer student from Illinois. He is battling to become Canton's point guard. Dave Knapp, a multi-talented athlete, has decided to give basketball a try this year and may win a forward spot.

Tom Penland and Joe Bono saw some time last year and should contribute, as should juniors Dan Olzewski, Jeff Lyle and Dan Young.

"We are certainly optimistic," Van Wagoner said. "With only two players with experience back, it may take some time for us to jell. We have a very small team, but if we can play an up-tempo game and hold our own on the glass, we will be right in there battling for a Western Division title."

Canton played 32 games over the summer. They work as hard as any team in the area, and Van Wagoner hopes the hard work will pay off as it did a year ago.

One thing is certain, win or lose, the Chiefs, with their fast-paced style of play, will be an exciting team to watch.

PLYMOUTH SALEM

Many eyes will be focused on the Plymouth Salem bench this year. The reason: Bob Brodie.

"A lot of people have been asking me how the team has responded to me. Are they receptive? The way I look at it, I've been coaching these kids longer than Fred (Thomann) has," said the first-year Salem coach. "I had these kids as sophomores and now as seniors. Fred only had them in their junior year.

"They've been receptive to me because it hasn't really been a drastic change for them. I use the things that I believe in and they are mostly the same things Fred used. The transition has been very smooth."

The only problems facing Brodie and the Rocks are anxiety ("I just can't wait to start playing") and a lack of size and experience.

"We are not very big so we are going to have to work real hard on blocking out. We're not going to be able to jump with people," he said. "And, we are going to have to have good shot selection."

THE BULK of the rebounding responsibility will fall on the shoulders of 6-5 senior LeSean Haygood. Haygood's continuous improvement last year was a driving force in the Rocks' 20-4 season.

But Brodie has a word of caution for his talented post player. "Last year, a lot of people were keying on Rick (Berberet). That left LeSean free to roam the paint. This year, they will be keying on him. He's going to have to really work."

Senior Mike White will be a key figure in the Rocks' attack. The 6-0 tri-captain (along with Haygood and Eric Sovine) is an outstanding jumper and a capable scorer. Brodie expects him to see time at both the forward and guard spots.

Sovine cracked the Rock starting lineup the second half of last year and proved he belonged there. Sovine will be Salem's point guard. He is also Salem's premier scoring threat from the perimeter.

The other two spots are open according to Brodie. Senior Steve Potoczak and sophomore Mike Hale are vying for the other front court position along with junior Tom DeAngelo.

Juniors Paul Makara and Bryan Waldron, along with senior Steve Sobditch and sophomore Bryan Karas are battling to see action at a guard spot.

THE BIGGEST weapon in the Rock arsenal this year is speed. If Haygood and White can control the boards, the Salem fastbreak could be devastating.

"Yes, we will try to run if the situation warrants it," Brodie said. "But, if the break is not there, we will play a very controlled, patient offense."

Defensively, Brodie said his team will live by its man-to-man. But, he will play a zone if the situation calls for it.

"I hope that we will do well this season," Brodie said. "I don't fear having a losing season, every coach worries about that. My biggest fear, really, is just competing with the teams in our league."

Brodie said he is entering his rookie season with cautious optimism.

"The players have all been winners at the younger levels. If they can continue that tradition on the varsity level, as a team, the outlook will be good."

The Rocks will open the season Tuesday, Dec. 21, at home against Southfield. Canton opens its season Friday, Dec. 7, also at home against Livonia Franklin.

Salem tri-captain Eric Sovine will play the role of floor general this season. His outside shooting will also key the Rocks' offensive attack.

Coaches tab North as NSL cage favorite

Can Rockets retain league crown?

By Brad Emons
staff writer

If you go by size and returning talent, North Farmington is the team to beat in the Northwest Suburban League (NSL) boys basketball race.

Four of coach Tom Negoshian's top six players return, including 6-foot-5 junior sharpshooter Rick Anderson, All-League as a sophomore; and muscular 6-4 senior Bob Chwalik.

But many won't count out Westland John Glenn, the defending NSL champ, which returns a talented JV group and point-guard Mike Baydarian.

Garden City will be hard-pressed to replace All-Observer forward Scott McCloskey, but the Cougars could be a surprise with some talented newcomers.

Redford Union, with Redford Thurston transfer Raffi Kostegian joining junior Dennis Bushart in the backcourt, is expected to be improved along with Livonia Franklin, which lists three sophomores in its varsity lineup.

NORTH FARMINGTON

The Raiders started last season at 1-8, but rebounded for a 9-11 overall record.

Rick Anderson, the 6-5 junior, averaged 16 points and 6 rebounds per game last year. His frontline mate, 6-4 Bob Chwalik, averaged 10 points and 11 rebounds per game.

Anderson, an outstanding shooter, is joined by point guard Rick Pennala and Dean Temple, both seniors. More help is expected from juniors Paul Wahrman and Mike Rudin.

But the big question is whether Anderson will be ready for the Friday, Dec. 7 opener at Farmington Harrison. The talented junior injured his big toe while lifting weights a few weeks ago.

WESTLAND JOHN GLENN

Coach Gordie Davis lost four starters, including All-League center Mario Grazulis, the team's leading scorer and rebounder.

But the Rockets (13-8, 9-1) will bank on three-year starter Mike Baydarian, a 5-11 senior, who made second team All-Observer as a junior.

Other returnees include a pair of 6-2 seniors, Dave Jensen and Ron Taig.

Incoming help is expected from 6-6 junior center Jerry Diets-Spiff, 6-1 sophomore Steve Hawley, 6-2 junior forward Tim Wiseley and 6-0 senior guard Phil Koeller. Ken Geitzen (6-2½) and Gary Cook (5-11) are also vying for playing time.

"Inexperience will hurt us early," Davis said. "We have an outstanding point guard (Baydarian), but we must be more aggressive on the boards to be successful. Our defense must be more consistent."

"But we're team oriented, play hard and shoot well. We hope to be competitive in defending our league championship."

GARDEN CITY

The Cougars (13-8, 6-4), who finished in a three-way tie for third place last season, must replace Scott McCloskey's 19 points per game.

The lone holdovers are 6-2 senior guard Steve Freier, who averaged 8.8 points; and 6-6 senior center Dave Wegzyn, who averaged 3.7.

Three seniors hope to step into the limelight, including 6-3½ senior center Jeff Brothers, a transfer from Inkster Cherry Hill; 6-2 center Steve Dunning; and 5-11 guard Kevin Sheridan, who averaged 3.4 ppg on the varsity.

But GC coach Bob Dropp, now in his fifth season, says to keep an eye on 6-5 sophomore Skip Barnett, "who could be a good one."

Garden City's bread-and-butter defense is the 3-2 half-court trap. The Cougars will have to be sharp with a murderous pre-Christmas schedule that includes Wayne Memorial, Livonia Stevenson and North Farmington.

"We won't have a Scott McCloskey (now at Henry Ford CC) to go to as we have in the past," Dropp said, "but we'll be much quicker than last year."

REDFORD UNION

If any team is going to be vastly improved, it's Redford Union.

Second year coach Lee Bjerke can kiss away a repeat of last year's 1-18 season with the likes of Thurston transfer Raffi Kostegian (11 ppg) and junior Dennis Bushart (12 ppg) in the backcourt. Both made second-team All-League last year.

They are joined by senior returnees John Copley, a 6-2 forward who averaged 10 ppg, Alex McKay, a 6-3 center (7.5 ppg), and Pat Lowney, a 6-1 forward (7.5 ppg).

Promising newcomers include James Pavlovich, a 6-0 senior forward; and Gary Walter, a 6-4 junior center.

"The key for our program is how well our front-line progresses," said Bjerke. "We feel that this season we can move into the first division of the league."

"We'll play a fast tempo and take advantage of our overall team speed. Last season, out of 19 contests, 17 teams played zone defense. We must improve our outside shooting."

LIVONIA FRANKLIN

The Patriots, 8-13 overall and 3-7 in the league last year, lost three starters including first team All-League pick Dave Caravallah, who averaged 16 ppg. (Caravallah is now at Schoolcraft College).

The returnees include 6-3 senior center-forward Tim McGilivray (7 ppg), who came on strong at the end of last season; Jeff McCaw, a 6-3 senior forward-center; Mark Olschanski, a 6-1 senior swingman; 6-1 sophomore forward Chris Parenti; and 6-foot sophomore guard Mark Kerpet.

Hoping to shore up the backcourt is 5-10 senior guard Tom Phillips, a transfer from Catholic Central; 6-foot junior Bob Solnikowski; 5-9 junior Craig Dlugos; and 5-10 junior Pat Hollingshead. Dave Janes, a 6-3 center-forward, should also contribute along with urban League favorite although Glenn is the defending champion.

LARRY CARUSO/staff photographer

5-9 junior swingman Dave Setlock.

"At this point we're very optimistic and if our defense can jell as a team, we hope to be a challenger," said Franklin seventh-year coach Jim McIntyre.

One thing for sure about the Patriots, they'll run, press and shoot for 32 minutes a ballgame.

REDFORD THURSTON

New coach Mike Schuette (pronounced shooty) returns one of the league's top scorers in 5-9 leaper Scott Filipiak (14 ppg). (Thurston finished 15-7 overall and 6-4 in league play last year).

Filiplik, a good long-range shooter, is joined in the backcourt by Dan Ramos, a 5-9 point-guard junior who saw considerable time on the varsity a year ago.

In the middle is another junior, 6-4 Tony Sokol, another varsity returnee who backed up All-League center Dan Starinsky last season.

"Tony is going to be a big factor," said Schuette. "He's really improved. You can see the change in him. He's just got that much more confidence."

Junior Kevin Munson, who averaged 22 ppg on the JV squad last year, fills one of the forward spots.

"He'll be handling the ball and have to rebound," said the Thurston coach.

Brian Wojkowski, a 6-2 senior, and Jeff Frellich, a 6-1 senior, will share time at the other forward spot.

"They're really into basketball," said Schuette of his team. "They go 100 percent. They've been taught well in the fundamentals. They can dribble shoot and pass. What's nice is that a lot of these kids got the playing time last year."

Billy no goat at Classic

The Michigan Majors Bowling Association that makes its headquarters at Cherry Hill lanes in Dearborn, but sponsors events in all sections of the state, now has gained national recognition.

For the past several years it has been sponsored by the Bonanza firm and has been gaining recognition and now has a national sponsor.

At the annual banquet last week Ken Charrette, head of the group and organizer of the association, announced that Miller High Life has taken over the sponsorship for the 1985 season and an even more important schedule lies ahead. It will be rated with the Tuesday and Thursday all-star classics that are rated among the best in the country.

THE OLD TIMERS More than 500 of the old time bowlers took part in the annual tournament last Saturday at Thunderbolt, but the winners in all age brackets will not be announced until all the scores are checked.

Among the bowlers were several who ## in the pocket by W.W. Edgar bowled at the old Detroit Recreation building in Detroit 60 years ago.

BILLY G one of the old timers who still is bowling well is Billy Golembieski, known throughout the bowling area as Bil G. still is going strong. He posted 759 series last week in the Wonderland Classic. He linked games of 226, 268 and 265.

DONNA JONES paced the ladies classic with a 657 and Debbie Hansen posted a 657 and Irene Rich had a 605.

MERRI-BOWL Tom Loebel was inducted into the 700 club when he rolled a 727 series on games of 264, 256 and 207. Kevin Barksdale just missed gaining membership when he closed with a 285 for 695. In the ladies doubles Judy Murphy rolled a 611.

SOMETHING UNUSUAL Dennis Uniatowski had a unusual time at Woodland Lanes. He posted a 288 game and failed to bowl 600 for his series. In the Monday women's league Sherry Broyles showed the way with 614 and Carol Sturgis had high game with 244.

BEL-AIRE John McKillen was high for the week in the senior house league with a 684. Right behind him came Tim Smith a 672.

GARDEN LANES Davis Bagner set the pace in the St. Linus League with a 658, but attention went to Pat Ragford who rolled an all spare game for a 182 count.

SUPERBOWL Ginny Cook closed with a 241 to earn the pace making role in the ladies league with a 639. Ted Brudziski had high game with a 257.

WESTLAND BOWL Judy Whalen joined the ranks of the leaders when she turned in a 657 in the ladies classic. Betty Hoener was next in line with a 628.

Salem rallies to beat John Glenn

our quickness and basketball ability, and thank goodness, we prevailed." It looked like a mismatch in the first half, a mismatch in John Glenn's favor.

The Rocks came into the game riding a 2-game losing streak. Glenn came in with a 6-game winning streak.

With Salem hitting just 6 of 27 shots in the first half, Glenn was able to pound out a 23-16 halftime lead. Glenn completely dominated the second quarter, outscoring Salem 17-7.

Senior point guard Julie Pucci was instrumental in the Rocket's second-quarter surge. She pulled down numerous rebounds and controlled the tempo of the Glenn offense. Her crisp passing continuously found open teammates inside for easy hoops.

BUT, THE John Glenn team that left the floor after the second quarter wasn't the same team that returned for the third. The same could be said of the Rocks.

"We came out cold and started doing dumb things that really hurt us," said Glenn coach George Sommerman. "They gave us chances to shoot, and we couldn't make them."

Said Thomann: "Our pressure began to get to them in the third quarter. They weren't able to control the tempo of the game like they had in the first half. When we cut the lead to 3, we knew we were back in the game. It kind of let us off the hook because we didn't have this huge lead to overcome and it put pressure on them."

Salem outscored Glenn 11-2 in the third quarter to take a 27-25 lead into what proved to be an electrifying fourth quarter of basketball.

The game was tied 3 different times in the final eight minutes and the lead shifted 4 times.

Salem's Fran Whittaker and Glenn's Michele McCullen, 2 talented seniors, began asserting themselves in the fourth quarter.

MCCULLEN, WITH Whittaker shadowing her every step, was checked on just 6 points coming into the final quarter. But, she shook free for 7 more to give her a game-high total of 13.

But, Whittaker answered with 5 critical points down the stretch. With 2:40 left, Whittaker took a pass from Reggie Rojeski, faked 2 Glenn defenders off their feet, and drained a 10-footer to put the Rocks up 33-31.

The teams exchanged turnovers and with 2 minutes left Thomann called timeout.

"With a 2-point lead and 2 minutes left, we want to shorten the game. We don't want to get into a situation where we come down and take a bad shot," Thomann said.

The strategy worked — sort of. The Rocks worked 1:19 off the clock and Kristen Hostynski was fouled with 41 seconds left. But, she missed the front end of the 1-and-1 opportunity.

Glenn, however, couldn't capitalize. The Rock defense forced a turnover and with 18 seconds left, Head nailed her 2 free three throws to put Salem up 35-31.

Glenn, co-champs of the Northwest Suburban League, hadn't given up the fight. McCullen was fouled and hit 2 free throws with 12 seconds left.

GLENN QUICKLY fouled Head. With 7 seconds left, the freshman missed the foul shot.

The Rockets moved the ball quickly up the floor. Cheryl Dozier ran over Rojeski with 2 seconds left. It looked to the world like a charging foul, but the referee called the foul on Rojeski giving Dozier a 1-and-1 opportunity. Her free throw hit off the back of the rim and the game was Salem's.

"It was a game we could have won," Sommerman said. "I felt in terms of personnel, ours is as good as theirs, better in other ways. We just lost control."

Glenn ends its season with an 18-3 record. Salem is now 17-4.

Mercy AD Yager calls it quits

By Chris McCooley staff writer

It seems almost inconceivable that just 12 years ago there wasn't statewide competition in girls high school athletics.

Today the Michigan High School Athletic Association sponsors 11 state tournaments in girls athletics.

One of the driving forces in the push for statewide competition in girls sports was De Loris Yager. Yager, after 21 years, is stepping down as the athletic director at Farmington Hills Mercy High School.

"Yes, I put my hands in there,"

Yager said Monday of the early battle for statewide competition.

Indeed, she wrote letters, attended meetings and even pleaded her case on several television talk shows. The result was, in 1973, the MHSAA sponsored the first state tournament for girls. The sport was girls swimming and Yager's Mercy team won the very first state title.

"WE HAD to win after all the fuss I made," Yager said.

In 1973, the MHSAA added state tournaments in girls basketball, golf and gymnastics. Girls sports has continued to grow each year.

The irony of it all is that the baby

Yager helped conceive and watched grow throughout the 1970s has now gotten too big for her.

"It's really gotten to be a lot of work," she said. "I mean, I'm a department chair, I teach a full class load, I coach girls swimming at Mercy, boys swimming at (Redford) Catholic Central, I have nine children, I have three foster children in Mexico — you know, I just need a little time."

Yager, perhaps the most successful swim coach in the state, will keep both her coaching positions. Her swim teams at Mercy have not lost a dual meet or a Catholic League championship in 21 seasons.

her back early in the second half with Schoolcraft trailing 13 and was forced to leave.

That sapped the Ocelots' offensive capabilities. Schoolcraft was forced to press in the late stages and Nassau got an insurance goal with just 1:10 left.

OCELOT GOALKEEPER Jenny Gans also earned a berth on the all-tournament team. She allowed just 4 goals in the three tournament games.

"Our defense was outstanding," said Dudek, praising the play of backs Heather Brda, Martina Millen, Page Ericson and Sue Bartrum, and midfielders May Taylor and Dudek, as well as Gans. "Jenny was outstanding. She made all the right moves, all her decisions were good ones."

The team captured one other prestigious award from the tournament: the Sportsmanship Trophy, for which Schoolcraft was the unanimous choice.

"It shows our kids were good examples on and off the field," said Dudek of the award. "It was a really nice experience for us — no, I shouldn't say nice. It was great."

Real estate can protect you from inflation

By Sid Mittra and Mariola Kulikowski special writers

Part III

If inflation returns, as many economists forecast, real estate investors may prosper.

The mid-1970s inflationary period was, after all, great for real estate and, since then, the recession-fueled buyer's market has restocked real estate portfolios with properties that could yield good profits now and during the next 2 to 5 years.

Here are some pointers on how to hedge inflation with real estate:

- Keep up with changing real estate tax angles. The mid-summer 1984 tax bill changed some important aspects of the 1981 Economic Recovery Act, especially in regard to appreciation.

- Carefully select your real estate broker. These special times demand professionalism. Ask your broker to demonstrate his or her knowledge of real estate investment.

- Watch for Wall Street's good buys. Syndications and limited partnership shares are especially attractive to the investor with a $1,000-$5,000 real estate allocation. Many of the partnership funds can be bought on a no-load finances and you

basis through the mail with no broker involvement.

- Keep your rental income property clean and sharp. The key to making money in rental property is full occupancy. Well-maintained rentals attract tenants first.
- Inflation-proof your leases. Most standard lease forms more than three years old are outdated. A good lease agreement should provide for rent increases tied to some economic index.

- Minimize your creative financing exposure. Now is the time to refinance adjustable-rate mortgages and settle balloon payment agreements you entered into three or five years ago.

As with any investment, real estate investment is not for everyone. Consult your CPA, attorney or financial planner before you invest money in real estate.

Kentucky has 4-season parks

IT IS RAINING in Pine Mountain State Resort Park here in southern Kentucky, but it doesn't really matter. We are cozied down in our cottages, which make dark brown shapes down the hill between pine and maple trees.

Our group of friends occupies five of the ten cabins on the road leading downhill from the lodge, and we think of this cluster of two-bedroom cottages on Pine Mountain as "our town," a place where we can run across a few feet of grass to a neighbor for drinks, food and a game of Trivial Pursuit.

There are other accommodations in the park: modern rooms in the lodge, and one-bedroom log cabins uphill past the Living Stairway Trail. Wherever you sleep, you can eat in your cottage or in the lodge, walk to the nature center and game room, or cross the face of the mountain on one of the ten walking trails.

Pine Mountain is one of 15 state resort parks in Kentucky, all of them offering various combinations of lodge, cabins, campgrounds, hiking trails and nearby attractions. Most of them have lodges and cottages open all year, so you can "go to the cottage" at any time of year and you never need to repair the roof.

Pine Mountain was the first Kentucky state park, its 2,500 acres of forested mountainside donated by the residents of Pineville, the historic town at the foot of the mountain.

ITS LOCATION here in southeast Kentucky, 15 miles north of the Tennessee border, is of special interest because of its proximity to the Wilderness Trail, that 200 miles of foot-slogging hardship that carried pioneers through the Appalachians to the west.

If you look at a relief map of the area where Tennessee, Kentucky and Virginia meet, you will understand why the colonists from the eastern seaboard could not move west across the Appalachian mountain barrier for 200 years, until Daniel Boone and his long hunters hacked a trail through the spine of mountains.

Cumberland Mountain and Pine Mountain are not mountains in the normal sense of the word, but high unbroken ridges that form stone "fences" ranging from 2,000 to 4,000 feet in height. These barriers have only a few well-hidden "gates" or water gaps to allow passage from east to west.

The buffalo, the Indians and eventually a few hunters found a break in the Cumberland ridge at Cumberland Gap, marked now by a national historic park ten miles from here near Middlesboro, and another break in the 120-mile-long ridge of Pine Mountain here at Pineville.

Pine Mountain is a steep relentless climb, whether you are switchbacking uphill from Highway 25 E, walking uphill from the cottages to the lodge, or hiking the steep mountain trails with their eloquent names: Honeymoon Falls Trail, Buccaroo Horse Trail, Fern Garden Trail, Moonshine Still, Living Stairway, Chained Rock.

CHAINED ROCK, one mile by car and another half mile on foot, is a high rock perched menacingly above the city of Pineville, anchored by a huge chain in 1933 — allegedly to protect the town below. There are beautiful views of Pineville and the surrounding mountains from that vantage point.

The same road takes you to Laurel Cove Amphitheater, said to be one of the country's most beautiful natural amphitheaters. Planned park activities are held there in season.

The four well-defined seasons are part of the charm of this park. In spring, the wildflowers poke through the forest floor and the bees feed the roadside daisies. In summer, the rhododendron blossom in a riot of color on canyon floors already thick with trees and brush.

In fall, when the trees undress for winter, you can see through the barren branches to the rock ledges, walk in a bowl of autumn leaves or bend to see the tiny "British soldiers," red-topped stems poking up from green puddles of lichen.

THE LODGES and cottages are open year-round but of course the campground and picnic areas are closed in winter, when only the hardy climb the snaking mountain road and the picnic tables are heaped with snow.

All of the lodge rooms here have two double beds and a balcony overlooking the woods. The two-bedroom cabins where we are staying have the same two-bed bedrooms, plus a living room with a huge dining table, kitchen facilities and a large screened porch. All of these accommodations are heated and air conditioned, and have both television and telephone.

There is no maid service in the cottages, but fresh linens are brought to your door daily. All bedding, dishes, cutlery, pots and pans and other household needs are provided. You need only bring your own food to fill the refrigerator.

The one-bedroom log cabins uphill from us, built by the Civilian Conservation Corps during the depression of the 1930s, have been renovated to include all of these comforts.

THE STATE resort parks don't all offer exactly the same accommodations, but the setup here at Pine Mountain is apparently typical in many respects. The same quality of accommodation, and lodge meals, can be found in all parks. Frankly, the

Most of the resort parks are in a scenic setting, but not all of them are in wilderness settings like this one. Those that are most accessible to Interstate 75 are General Butler, a modern lodge facility with a nearby ski area, at Carrollton; Natural Bridge, with its great stone arch and gorge, near Slade's Buckhorn Lake, with its 1,250-acre mountain lake in Buckhorn; and Cumberland Falls, the Niagara of the south, in its wilderness setting near Corbin.

One of the many two-bedroom cottages at Pine Mountain State Resort Park in the mountains of southern Kentucky is nestled between pine and maple trees.

Jazz surprises: Played by Larry Nozero and his friends who sit in

Larry Nozero on saxophone performs with Rick Kowalewski on bass and Buddy Budson on piano at Gotsis in Livonia. Nozero's group is made up of different top-flight metro-Detroit jazz musicians each week.

Larry Nozero and friends are playing every Friday and Saturday night at the Gotsis Restaurant and Lounge in Livonia. And if you think you have the reedman's music pegged, maybe you should stop by Gotsis and hear what the former bebopper is doing.

On a recent Saturday night, Nozero was perched on a stool in the corner of the lounge with one foot propped up and his tie loosened. Playing his alto saxophone in a relaxed manner, Nozero casually floated through a half-dozen ballad standards like "What Am I Here For?," "Here Comes That Rainy Day" and "All the Things You Are."

The friends with Nozero? Whoever he asks to stop by and play with him. On Friday night last week it was trumpeter Johnny Trudell. Saturday night it was keyboard player Buddy Budson and bassist Rich Kowalowski.

"It's a surprise," cracked Nozero after the set, "who's going to be on the stand. I'd like to get everybody down here to play."

Since his quartet broke up several months ago, Nozero, who lives in Livonia, has been enjoying the luxury of playing with old friends and people "I grew up playing with."

"What I'm trying to do," as was evident in his relaxed and inspired approach to the ballads, "is put the fun back into my playing."

Nozero and surprise friends will continue at Gotsis every weekend indefinitely. Gotsis is on Middlebelt between Five and Six Mile roads in Livonia. For more information, call 522-5600.

WHEN THE extraordinary and remarkable Irish flutist James Galway comes into the area to play a concert, who does he hang out with?

If you guessed musicians, you're close. Specifically, he gets together with other flutists. When he had a concert in Ann Arbor a couple of weeks ago, Galway called his friend Ervin Monroe, principal flutist for the Detroit Symphony, to let him know he was on his way.

Monroe obliged by calling a few friends — many of whom are flutists — to invite them to a party for Galway.

The bearded, pixie Galway was at his convivial best with the assembled multitude that always seems to descend on a Monroe party.

Among the stories that came out of this party, that went into the wee hours of the morning, and can be repeated, is one from pop-jazz flutist Alexander Zonjic.

"I was admiring his bow-tie," said Zonjic, "and I told him I loved it. He immediately took it off and said, 'It's yours.'"

Despite the late hours of the party, Galway reportedly played brilliantly in Ann Arbor the next evening.

AMONG THE newer acts to play at Birmingham's Archibald's is a show called Hound Dog Elvis. Archibald's, which once had a jazz policy, has been experimenting with various musical acts trying to find the right combination for the room.

An Elvis Presley impersonator though?

Larry Musgrave, who is Hound Dog Elvis, also was concerned about going into the jazz room on Tuesday nights. "It was taking a chance," Musgrave said in a recent interview, "but from the first night the place was sold out."

Josh White, Jr. stars as father

The act worked so well in Archibald's that the original booking for two weeks turned into a three-month return engagement.

Musgrave, a Grand Trunk Western Railroad brakeman in real life, became an Elvis impersonator on a lark when he owned a small coney island restaurant in Waterford and wanted to do something different to attract customers. He became his own entertainment.

Now, Musgrave performs in several clubs and for benefits and would like nothing better than to make it a full-time career.

"Elvis just amazes me," said Musgrave, "he was a very interesting person. The more I've done him, the more involved I've gotten in his life. My home is filled with teddy bears and hound dogs, which were gifts, and the whole thing has been a dream come true for me."

It's not certain yet that Hound Dog Elvis will be continuing at Archibald's on Tuesday nights past this week. But he will certainly be back at some club in the area. A review of his show suggests that he is one of the better Presley impersonators around.

IN A WAY, you could say that Josh White Jr. is doing a Josh White Sr. impersonation at Oakland Community College in Royal Oak.

There through Sunday, Dec. 2, Josh White Jr., the renowned folk singer, is playing in the musical "Josh: the Man and His Music."

A one-person musical, "Josh" tells the story of Josh White Sr. and the fascinating life he led. Born in the south, White left home before the age of 10 to lead 66 blind street singers around the United States. From them, he learned a treasury of American folk and blues songs.

In later years, White became a celebrated folk singer and guitar player and the first black man to be awarded a gold record for a million-selling record. He was also blacklisted for his civil rights activism.

His son, Josh White Jr., who has lived on the west side of Detroit for several years, grew up traveling, singing and even acting on Broadway with his father. So who else could play the role as well as his son?

"I guess I sort of won the role by default," he said a few days ago, "because although we could have gotten almost anybody to play the role in the movies or on television, no one could pull it off on stage. There isn't any actor I can think of who could play his style of guitar."

On stage, Josh White Jr., plays his father and sings the songs that were associated with White Sr. over the decades. He admitted it wasn't all that easy playing his father.

"I guess a good actor is supposed to take the character of whomever he's playing and look at it as simply a project," White said. "It's a little harder than that when it's your father. Although it's more difficult than I anticipated, doing the story is too important to let anything get in the way."

"Josh: the Man and His Music" plays Thursdays-Sundays at OCC's Royal Oak campus and is likely to move into a theater in New York sometime after the beginning of 1985. For more information about tickets, call 967-5744.

GUITARIST Pat Metheny will appear Saturday, Dec. 8, at the Hill Auditorium in Ann Arbor.

An excellent guitarist with a talent for constructing nice solos and pretty tunes, Metheny recently collaborated with David Bowie on the title track for the new movie "The Falcon and the Snowman."

Ever since the release of his first album in 1978, Metheny has been a leading jazz guitarist whose albums usually show up on the best-selling jazz-albums charts. Over the years he's played with such leading musicians as Sonny Rollins, Joni Mitchell, Dewey Redman and Charlie Haden.

Sponsored by Eclipse Jazz, the Ann Arbor concert is part of a nine-week U.S. tour for Metheny. For more information about the concert, call Eclipse Jazz at 763-0046.

second runs Tom Panzenhagen

"Public Enemy" (1931), 11:30 p.m. Saturday on Ch. 2. Originally 84 minutes. TV time slot: 90 minutes.

"Public Enemy" is raw and dynamic — not unlike director Brian de Palma's recent "Scarface," some might say — in its depiction of a small-time hood-turned public enemy. The difference is style. "Public Enemy" exudes it while "Scarface" attempts to imitate it and fails. James Cagney turns in a powerful performance as an ill-fated everyman named Tom Powers. Jean Harlow, Joan Blondell and Mae Clark, who gets the grapefruit in the face, co-star.

Rating: $3.40.

"Harry and Tonto" (1974), 1 p.m. Sunday on Ch. 50. Originally 115 minutes. TV time slot: 120 minutes.

Two recent films — "Going in Style" is the other — offer glowing testaments to old age, and Art Carney stars in them both. That could be a coincidence, or it could be that Carney provides a wit, grace and presence that imbues these films with a charm beyond their substantial scripts and direction. Ellen Burstyn, Larry Hagman, Chief Dan George, Geraldine Fitzgerald and Barbara Rhodes co-star in "Harry and Tonto," the story of a senior citizen who refuses to grow old. Director Paul Mazursky's at the helm.

Rating: $3.50.

"Escape from Alcatraz" (1979), 9 p.m. Sunday on Ch. 7. Originally 112 minutes. TV time slot: 140 minutes.

Other directors may have received more awards and notoriety, but there can be none better than Don Siegel, who has mastered movie genres from horror ("Invasion of the Body Snatchers") to crime ("The Killers"), to tough cops ("Dirty Harry"), to westerns ("The Shootist"), to prison breaks in "Escape from Alcatraz." Clint Eastwood and Patrick McGouhan are perfect rivals in this taut, thrilling film that's based on a true story.

Rating: $3.25.

"Doc" (1971), 8 p.m. Wednesday on Ch. 50. Originally 96 minutes. TV time slot: 120 minutes.

Compare "Doc" with the mythic, 1957 "Gunfight at the O.K. Corral" (with Kirk Douglas as Doc Holliday and Burt Lancaster as Wyatt Earp), which lionizes the pair, and you begin to understand the term revisionist western.

Rating: $3.20.

Actors Alliance puts energy into sporty 'Godspell'

Performances of the Actors Alliance Theatre Company production of the musical "Godspell" continue through Sunday, Dec. 30, at Lycee International, 30800 Evergreen Road, Southfield. For ticket information call 642-1326.

By Cathie Breidenbach special writer

The Actors Alliance production of "Godspell" puts athletic muscle into the old story of Christ's ministry. The cast of 13, decked out as athletes of all per-suaions, offers a biblical revue, a vigorous musical rendition of the Gospel according to St. Matthew.

Players bound energetically up and down a basketball court, baptizing Coach/Christ, acting out the parables and huddling around to listen to his teachings.

William P. Ward, the director; Susan Panek, choreographer, and Phillip J. Michael, musical director, succeed in staging fine, foot-tapping songs and dances and high-energy entertainment in this updated version of "Godspell."

The sports metaphor, in which all the players are athletes, is a new presentation for the musical. It sometimes works astonishingly well, as when a rich society lady wearing impeccable tennis whites (Annette DePetris) takes the role of a Phillistine as the cast acts out one of the parables. At other times when the disciples stretch their hamstrings and shoot baskets for God, the sports metaphor seems merely a sweaty contrivance.

THE METAPHOR may be a gimmick, but the sheer energy of the sporting presentation keeps the action moving well, as each sport in turn has its moment to shine.

The captivating solo by petite gymnast Laura A. Lamun is a graceful highlight. Wit and humor shine when swimmer Irene Schwyer and the whole cast sprawl on the floor to present an Esther Williams-style synchronized swimming routine.

The cast harmonizes beautifully on the songs, and the three musical basketball players, Carol Lempert, Sandi Litt and John Pitoniak, deserve special mention. The songs, written by Stephen Schwartz, are full of lively rhythms and lyrical melodies.

There's an ingenious exuberance to the whole show in keeping with the quote from the book of Matthew, "Unless you change and become like children, you will never enter the kingdom of heaven." The simplicity of the presentation keeps "Godspell" from being too Broadway slick despite sophisticated musical productions and choreography.

The story of Christ's ministry is, after all, a simple tale, written to reassure common folks that the poor, the merciful and the pure in heart are blessed in God's eyes. Christ espoused some downright revolutionary ideas, among them the notion that power and wealth are liabilities when it comes time to be admitted into the kingdom of heaven.

review

"GODSPELL" TELLS the stories with childlike simplicity and doesn't leave out favorites such as the tale of the Good Samaritan, which has topped the biblical bestseller list for centuries. A Sesame-Street-style puppet show retells with warm humor the popular parable of the Prodigal Son.

Mark F. Maccagnone has the dubious honor of playing Christ, always a difficult role despite Christ's connections up above. Maccagnone plays a gentle Jesus, an almost-Charlie-Brown type who makes up for his lack of charisma with goodness and wisdom. He's a good sport who does a softshoe routine with Manager Christian A. Gardner.

Though they're not the crackerjack dancers that some others in the cast are, their routine using hockey sticks for canes is winning.

Cast members Harold Y. Adams, Nicole Hakim, Terry Gerald Hunt, Anthony D. Lord and Jeffrey Nash turn in worthy performances full of vigor.

"Godspell" at the Actors Alliance energizes St. Matthew's gospel and brings forth fresh insights into old truths.

Artist has gallery in her back yard

By Mary Klemic
staff writer

There's an art gallery in the yard of the Gibbs residence in Livonia.

An art gallery? Indeed: the Gibbs Gallery of Impressions, the idea and work of artist Judy Gibbs.

"I thought it would be big enough to paint and display," Gibbs said. "It's a home away from home. I can come here and everything is set up for me."

HAVING A gallery in her own yard is a blessing, according to Gibbs. Now she doesn't have to leave her two daughters (ages 12 and 14), something she was hesitant to do. Now she can move her art equipment out of a bedroom, in a sense adding another room to her house. And now she has a place of her own where she can paint and keep an eye on things.

"The more I paint, the better I get," Gibbs said. "It really helps to have a place to paint in. A lot of people are painting on top of the washing machine. I really had taken over the whole bedroom."

The 12-by-20 foot structure resembles a barn from the outside. Inside, it is bright and cozy, complete with parquet floor, coffee pot and telephone.

But the first thing a visitor notices is the art display. The little gallery holds a lot of talent, including oil paintings, pen and ink works and painted wooden items.

"I try to paint a little variety of everything," Gibbs said. "I like to paint what I feel at the time."

WHILE CLOWNS and Siamese cats are frequent subjects for her work, Gibbs is equally skillful at painting landscapes and seascapes.

"I like working with warm colors," she said. "I use greeting cards as an incentive to get going.

"I want to do more abstract (paintings). I think there's a need for bizarre paintings right now."

In addition, Gibbs paints designs on almost anything, from maternity tops to woodworks to pumpkins. Once, some friends gave her a rock they picked up while on vacation. On it, she painted the landscape it came from.

"If it stands still, pretty much I'll paint it," she said.

Prices of Gibbs' regular paintings range from $35 to $200. Doll-size pieces sell for around $8.

GIBBS DESCRIBES her art as "mostly impressionistic," or her interpretation of the subject.

"The only one I aim to please is myself," she said. "I feel very stifled with (a suggested) idea. I want it to be all mine."

The artist doesn't sketch her ideas first.

"When I'm done with a painting, it's pretty much a surprise at the end," she said. "I usually get a high when I paint a picture."

Gibbs puts a lot of herself into her art.

"I like to sell them, but I always feel, deep down, bad that it's gone," she said. "I always like my last picture best."

Gibbs says she is a "strictly self-taught" artist who uses "very unconventional" techniques, such as adding touches of sealing paste on waves or sea gull wings to make a raised, slightly three-dimensional effect.

"I'm sure I do everything wrong, but it works for me," she said.

"I don't like anybody telling me anything. My pictures represent me. Whatever look or style is something I developed. I didn't have an instructor, it was just a trial-and-error type thing."

LARRY CARUSO/staff photographer

Judy Gibbs paints in her back-yard gallery and displays her many creations.

GIBBS, A member of the Three Cities Art Club, has shown her work in Plymouth's Art in the Park. The club will hold an exhibit in Plymouth in mid-December.

"It's my hobby, but I would like to develop it into a job," Gibbs said. "It makes me feel good."

Gibbs has been painting since she was a youngster going to school in Westland. As an adult, she continued painting as an "inexpensive way to decorate your own home," she said.

The artist recalled the time her grade school class was painting valentines. Gibbs, then 8 years old, ended up painting a bright green jungle scene instead, featuring a native, snakes, ferns and coconuts.

ANOTHER TIME, Gibbs' mother heard jingling in her daughter's pockets and asked what it was. The young artist replied that it was money she collected from selling her drawings to classmates at three cents each.

The Gibbs Gallery of Impressions is at 19343 Bethany, one block west of Newburgh, north of Seven Mile Road in Livonia. Call 591-6518 for an appointment.

"If the sign's out, I'm open," Gibbs said.

The little gallery held its open house in mid-November, so reaction has been "very, very slow" so far, according to Gibbs. "I'm off the beaten track," she said.

This seascape is one of artist Judy Gibbs' favorite works. She also paints clowns, flowers and abstracts.

Artists leave part of themselves behind

This is another in a series of lessons on art and drawing by special columnist David Messing. He has taught for eight years and operates an art store, Art Store and More, 18774 Middlebelt, Livonia. Messing encourages questions and comments from readers. You may write him at his store or c/o Observer Newspapers, 23352 Farmington Road, Farmington MI 48024.

By David Messing
special writer

I was 9, and I clearly remember walking out the side door of our house. The sun was shining, as it did the day before.

The neighbors were working in their yards, as they were the day before. The sky was blue, the grass was green, as a matter of fact everything was, as it was, the day before.

All of this frustrated my 9-year-old reasoning. How could everything be the same the day after my father's death?

MY WORLD had stopped. But everything around me went on as if nothing had happened. Of course, we were surrounded by relatives for the days and nights after his early death.

I winced as aunts I hardly knew kissed me and friends of my father told me to let them know if I ever needed anything.

artifacts

How precious do the paintings and even sketches become as a loved one passes on. Works of art speak so much of the one who created them. They mirror their compassion for detail or echo the boldness of their abstract stroke of brush.

Those first weeks after his death were like a whirlwind of emotion, and the memory of my dad has become like a dream I can't clearly recall.

I DO, however, remember going downstairs and looking at Dad's work bench. In the dim light of the basement I wondered if the hammer was casually laid where it was by Dad?

Did he forget to clean the paint out of the paint brush, that was almost hard and stuck to the top of the paint can? There was the jar of screws I tipped over onto the top of his work bench.

I promised him I would pick them up the next time I was downstairs. As the screws clinked into the jar, a 9-year-old fulfilled his last promise to his Dad.

PERHAPS BECAUSE I was so young, I was soon adjusted to the fact that Dad was gone forever. Odd as it may seem, I miss him more dearly the older I become.

How brief is our stay here on earth and perhaps in the light of eternity our span of time is unseen. But we, who are artists or craftsmen and women, create works that outlive ourselves.

How precious do the paintings and even sketches become as a loved one passes on. Works of art speak so much of the one who created them. They mirror their compassion for detail or echo the boldness of their abstract stroke of brush.

THE SUBLTLY or strength of color suggests their particular mood at the time of creation.

The proportion and accuracy outlines the artists' technical skill. Even the choice of subjects speak much of the interest of the artist.

The creation of an artist is a two- or three-dimensional representation of the artist's body, soul and spirit.

Body: in the physical characteristics of the work. Soul: the thought and coherence behind the work. And finally Spirit: the feeling that is apparent within the work when it is viewed.

HOW FASCINATING it is that even a quick pencil sketch can incorporate the total person and forever remain long after their passing. These days, people don't sit around and tell stories about great-grandma and great-grandpa. I guess we either don't take the time or just plain don't know.

But long after the stories end and the memories fade, there will be the thing they left behind. Like the needlepoint great-grandma did hanging in the hall or study, and the desk that great-grandpa built, the oil painting left by Aunt Mary or the poem written by Uncle George.

THESE THINGS will be treasured as a part of them.

You should know how to make your artwork stand the test of time.

First of all if you use paper, use good paper. If, for example, you have a pretty good start on something that happened to be on cheap paper, hurry and transfer to an "acid-free" high rag paper before your inspiration lifts.

As of this year, every paper manufacturer has come out with a line of acid-free high rag paper.

IF YOU like pencil, try doing your next drawing on single-ply museum board. It has an excellent tooth for graphite and is 100 percent acid free and 100 percent rag.

Watch out for some dye and marker colors, as they are listed as fugitive and may fade even before you. Pastels and color pencils are relatively permanent.

Of course, you cannot frame them all because of the cost. Unframed artwork rarely holds up to the handling and shuffling it receives even from admirers.

Especially pencil, ink, pastel and watercolors should be matted and covered with tracing paper or wrapped in acetate.

ARTISTS ARE often their own worst enemy. Often we will reframe a picture that Grandpa did in the '50s. What we soon find is that Grandpa also stuck about 100 yards of masking tape all over the back of the picture and preservation is almost impossible.

Since we can't see into the future, count on your works of art, even your sketches, as being precious to your offspring. Quite often at the Art Store, someone will bring in this now-precious sketch from days gone by and have it framed.

Often, there is a loving look in their eyes as they hold a frame corner against the art work of the loved one. Perhaps it is the same look that I had in my eyes when, as a 9-year-old, I stood gazing at my father's work bench.

SURE, I still have his hammer, but what a treasure it would have been if he could have left me a painting, even a sketch or any creation that was a part of himself.

As you pass through this life, be sure to leave a part of yourself behind. There are many ways to do this, but of course, I think art is the best.

Don't forget to watch next week for the winners of the Christmas card contest.

Fast film enabled Monte Nagler to use a small aperture and obtain the necessary depth-of-field as the late-afternoon sun spills through a single window, illuminating the empty chairs. An exhibit of Nagler's work continues at iBrowse Bookstore, 33088 Northwestern Highway, Bloomfield Hills

Super fast film

Such things as partygoers, drive-in theaters and vampires come alive as darkness approaches. After dark is one of the times that the new super fast films comes alive, too!

Never before have so many high-speed emulsions been available. They've practically introduced a new dimension to photography. You can now shoot in dimmer light than ever before, use faster shutter speeds and gain increased depth-of-field.

Dimmer light means natural, indoor portraits (even under candlelight), illuminated night scenes, and good shots at the concert and circus where flash just won't do.

FASTER SHUTTER speeds mean more motion can be frozen and handheld exposures are possible in poor light.

Increased depth-of-field means you can get more in a picture in sharp focus because faster films enable you to stop down the lens to a smaller aperture.

All of these advantages are available with Kodacolor VR1000 and Fujicolor HR 1600 films. If you prefer slides, there's Kodak Ektachrome 800/1600,

Monte Nagler

Fujichrome 1600, or 3M Colorslide 1000.

Remember that film speeds are directly related to shutter speeds and apertures. Say, for example, that ASA100 film gives you a meter reading in a low-light situation of F-4 at 1/4 second — too slow to hand hold.

CHANGING TO 1000-speed film will enable you to gain over 3 F-stops (100 to 200 is one, 200 to 400 is two, 400 to 800 is three) and you can now hand hold at 1/60 second at the same aperture. Conversely, remaining at the 1/4 second will enable you to close down the lens to F-11 for a tremendous increase in depth-of-field.

Be sure not to use fast film for all your photo taking. When the light is bright, stick to the slower emulsions. Your pictures will be less grainy and with better color values.

Museum features costume designs

"Designed for Theater" is a staging of more than 100 drawings and prints of sets, costumes and theaters dating from the 16th to the 20th centuries.

The exhibition continues in the Schwartz Graphic Arts Galleries of the Detroit Institute of Arts through Sunday, Jan. 6.

This material is a loan from the Cooper-Hewitt Museum, the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of Design in New York.

The graphics begin with Andrea Palladio's Teatro Olimpico in Vicenza, Italy, in which all action takes place in front of a permanent setting.

Early-17th-century work introduced the wing stage and machinery for changing scenes. In the 18th century, the Bibiena family — here represented by 10 works — eclipsed competitors with dazzling designs, incorporating wonderfully realistic architectural detail.

Early 19th-century designs for opera productions at Milan's La Scala are included. By the mid-19th century, content triumphed over special effects. Stage designs of the 20th century became appropriately realistic or minimalist, as demanded by the production. (In this group are Eugene Berman's work for "Amahl and the Night Visitors" and Oliver Smith's for the film "Oklahoma.") cluding two Leon Bakst designs, Charles LeMaire's work for the "Zigfield Follies," Edward McKnight Kauffer's for "Henry IV" and "Checkmate," Donald Oenslager's for actress Ruth Gordon as Nora in Ibsen's "A Doll's House."

A selection of set and costume designs from the permanent collection of the Detroit Institute of Arts includes six prints from Umberto Brunelleschi's colorful art deco portfolio, "Masques and Characters of Italian Comedy," purchased in memory of the late Robert Scott, who was manager of the Museum Shops.

In this group are "Harlequin" and "Saramouche," as well as "Florindo," which will be shown with Brunelleschi's original ink, watercolor and gouache representation of "Florindo" in the Cooper-Hewitt loan.

Audley Grossman, curator of performing arts at the DIA, will discuss works in the exhibition gallery at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 2, and Friday, Jan. 4. These "Masterwork of the Week" talks are free.

"Designed for Theater" is open to the public without charging during regular museum hours: 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday. Closed Mondays and holidays.

Gingerbread production is holiday specialty

By Loraine McClish
staff writer

Terri Anderson converted her living room and dining room into an assembly line of candies and frostings late last summer and now is busy turning out gingerbread houses and Hanukkah houses until mid-December.

Pets and little visitors are barred from entering her work space and she says her husband enters only hesitantly into the operation area that has already produced about 500 holiday houses this year.

"I've had to standardize the gingerbread walls, roof and base, to make it easier on myself while baking, but otherwise no two are the same," the Farmington Hills resident said.

At least two dozen houses are in some stage of being created constantly, from batches of dough mixed up in her kitchen that has never lost its ginger-filled aroma, to the finished product encased in its permanent storage box with instructions that tell how to preserve it for many years of use.

The orders got so heavy at one time during the fall Anderson canceled out the rental of a booth in Farmington Community Center's October Arts and Crafts Show. After working preholiday craft shows for many years, and all the while trying to conceive a craft idea that would be different, as well as worth her time and talent, being forced to cancel a show because of too many orders was a bit ironic.

FOR DIFFERENT, every minuscule piece of decoration on the colorful houses is placed by hand. Tiny spots of icing that make a flame for a candle are piped in individually. Pine trees are hand rolled and frosted with precise detail. Each tree takes a minimum of 30 minutes and its trim goes on one small bead at a time. Most recently teen-agers from the neighborhood have been hired to roll out a gumdrop, for example, and reshape it for one specific spot on the house or its landscape.

The other notable something-different is the creation of a Hanukkah house that came about for no other reason than that Anderson wanted to give a gift to a child who was Jewish.

A few Jewish neighbors helped me with that one and I've since researched it out very carefully so every symbol is both meaningful and right," she said. "The Hanukkah houses seem to be just as popular as the traditional gingerbread houses now, and if anyone else is creating them I'm not aware of it. I started early on those because at least a dozen of them were taken to Florida for the holidays. They had to be packed well for traveling and besides, I just can't bring myself to rush."

All of the houses are completely finished on all four sides so they can be used as centerpieces. As for those that are being purchased for gifts, Anderson said she believes they are going to the person on the list "who has everything," and many are going to the hard-to-buy-for young teen-ager.

They are the ones who seem to be making the biggest fuss over them," she said.

THE TRADITION of holiday gingerbread houses stems from the Grimm Brothers' Hansel and Gretel fairy tale and has no religious connotation.

It was a fun custom picked up by the bakers in both Germany and England in the mid-19th century, said Anderson, who researched the history as she became more involved with the art form. "They were made for all holidays, and the bakers' guilds were quite zealous about keeping the houses for themselves. In England the guild was powerful enough to even prohibit anyone but a guild member from making one during the Christmas and Easter holidays."

The English bakers had more trouble getting the recipes in that period of history than the German bakers, she said.

The Germans were getting all the spices they wanted from every port they had so everybody could bake as much gingerbread as they wanted. They were the ones who started gingerbread house contests all over the country, generally before the Christmas season, which is probably why you associate gingerbread houses as strictly a German Christmas tradition."

The history books list gingerbread houses as an art form. But Anderson does not consider herself an artist.

"The hardest thing about them is getting all the pieces of the house to bake at an even thickness. I've gone through three thermostats on the oven since I started this," she said.

ANDERSON FELL back on some sales training she had in a premarriage career to create her gingerbread house market.

Newly married, she and her husband came to live in the Detroit area at a time when the bottom fell out of the job market here. For a while she was kept busy making a new home.

"I was never an enthusiastic cook, or a baker, but I did sew all my life, both practical things and crafts, toys, aprons, doo-dads. And that was the trouble with the craft shows. I was in a saturated market with people like me working hundreds of hours, for pennies an hour, creating the same things as everyone else. It took a long while to come up with something no one else was selling, something not seen in the craft shows," she said.

The idea to create the gingerbread houses turned into a reality when a close-up look at the commercial houses revealed them as "both standardized and not too attractive," she said.

One of her houses has been created for Ramada Inn, on Telegraph Road in Southfield. She's taken a couple of special orders for churches, fashioned with her own recipe for hard candy which is used for stained glass windows. And she is toying with the idea of creating an entire village she expects will have to be started next summer.

Meanwhile she has a definite cut-off date for orders this year, Dec. 5, and that is only from nearby customers who will pick up the houses themselves.

"One of my biggest surprises is that I had 80-percent return sales from my list of first-year customers. But I'm still building that customer list and after the order deadline date I'll have at least two-three weeks to finish those up," she said.
