Court announces 1st year of self-support

By Gary M. Cates
staff writer

Last year was a turning point for the 35th District Court, according to Presiding Judge James Garber.

As evidence of the claim, Garber and Judge John MacDonald are making the rounds with checks for the communities served by the court — the townships of Plymouth, Canton and Northville, and the cities of Plymouth and Northville.

Presentation of the checks — returned court revenues — marks the first year the court was able to completely support itself, and then some.

"We have had our heads beat in since moving to our own building but, as I told them when we got our building, we would get to the point where we would not need one dime from the communities," Garber said during an interview Tuesday afternoon.

"BEING UNDER one roof has allowed us to administratively hold our costs to the point where we can pay for the building," he said.

The returned revenue, a total of some $355,780, comes following a preliminary audit of the court books for 1984. In 1983 the court returned some money at the end of the year but the communities also subsidized the operation at the beginning of 1983.

A few years ago, the five communities joined together to build the Dunbar Davis Hall of Justice in Plymouth, which houses the entire court operation. Before that, the court worked out of several branches in the various communities.

"The local units haven't given this court a single penny since 1983," Garber said.

"Until we moved into our own building, we never could pay for our operation. Administratively, we have reduced our costs along with some increase in the revenues, however not dramatic."

"It's not any great surprise," he said.

THE TWO judges now are attending government meetings in the communities to present the checks.

Tuesday night, they went to board meetings in Plymouth and Canton townships.

"You will recall that last year we came here and returned some funds from the 35th District Court," Garber said.

"The court now is in a position where we will be making an annual trip here to present you with money," he said.

Garber and MacDonald presented Canton Supervisor James Poole with $213,500 and Plymouth Township Clerk Esther Hulsing with $46,400. The other payments will be: Northville, $26,900; Northville Township, $67,800; and Plymouth, $4,115.

The payments are based on a formula which takes into account court usage.

When the court receives revenues — from fines, court costs and forfeited bonds — they are placed into a fund for the community in which the offense occurred.

According to Garber, the total revenues from each community were: Plymouth, $96,402; Plymouth Township, $277,762; Canton, $517,694; Northville, $114,825; and Northville Township, $179,761.

There are other revenues from probation costs, some $300,000, and interest earnings.

OPERATIONAL COSTS then are assessed against the community funds based on each community's court usage.

For 1984, the usage break down was: Plymouth, 11 percent; Plymouth Township, 28 percent; Canton Township, 37 percent; Northville, 10 percent; and Northville Township, 14 percent.

The payments being made represent the money left over in each community's fund, Garber said. All told, the court had revenues of some $1.4 million in 1984 and spent some $1.05 million.

"Five years ago we told the communities we would get off their backs," Garber said. "If there is one thing that has enabled us to do that, it is getting into one building."

Before the court was consolidated, Garber said calling from the Canton office to the Northville office was a long-distance call. Reducing that cost, and others like it, have contributed to streamlining the judicial operation.

"Given inflation, our budget probably has decreased. And from 1984 to 1985, our budget has gone up less than 10 percent," he said.

"And we still are looking for ways to continue streamlining our operation."

Township refuses offer for donated 'police' car

By Gary M. Cates
staff writer

Whoever said you shouldn't look a gift-horse in the mouth forgot to tell Plymouth Township trustees.

The Township Board declined an offer of a free car for police department use at Tuesday night's regular meeting.

Tom Bohlander of Sunshine Honda on Ann Arbor Road offered to give the township a car for two years use in exchange for being allowed to advertise the deal.

Police Chief Carl Berry approached the board earlier with the offer and was directed to get additional information.

Tuesday night Berry reported that the car didn't meet specifications for patrol use. But, the chief said he intended to use the car for parking enforcement and Community Service Officers (CSOs).

Bohlander was aware of what the car would be used for and agreed not to advertise that it was being used for patrol uses, Berry said.

"IN THE advertising, it would lead the people to believe it was being used for police work — not a gopher car," said Treasurer Mary Brooks.

The advertising would be leading the public to believe it is being used as a true police vehicle," Brooks said.

No matter how you slice the thing behind this is the notion that the Plymouth Township Police Department is using a Honda," said Trustee Jim Irvine.

You're trying to see how close to the line we can get to being deceptive," he said. "You have to turn to your own conscience. I am not going to be part of someone flouting anybody."

This vehicle does not meet the specs. It doesn't meet anybody's specs for this type of vehicle," Irvine said.

The car, a four door Honda Accord, meets specifications for some smaller police vehicles, Berry said.

"I LOOK at it from a different point of view," Trustee Abe Munfakh said.

This is a car that is being given to us. If we were paying $8,000, $9,000 or $10,000 for the car, then I could see it would need to meet the specs — but we aren't."

Likewise, Trustee Smith Horton agreed there wasn't a problem with the deal. He said the township can't control advertising for the other cars, Ford LTDs, that the township bought.

Horton likened the Honda advertising to commercials for aspirin.

"Aspirin manufacturers send out free samples to doctors all over the country and then advertise that nine out of 10 doctors use their aspirin," he said.

"Are we responsible for making sure that everyone reads the advertising correctly? And suppose somebody does read it and misinterprets it, what's the damage? What harm is there?" Horton said.

A motion to accept the vehicle failed in a 3-3 deadlock. Voting no were Brooks, Irvine and Clerk Esther Hulsing. Supervisor Maurice Breen was absent.

FOLLOWING THE vote on the car donation, trustees were asked to approve buying vehicle accessories for the purchased fleet.

Berry presented quotes from two suppliers and recommended buying from Winder Police Equipment in Dearborn Heights. Winder quoted a price of $9,707 while the other supplier, Lins RV Supply of Plymouth, quoted a price of $9,975.

Irvine questioned why Berry didn't go out for bids on the items.

This is a $10,000 purchase with no bids," he said.

"You received written quotations, it's the same thing as a bid," Munfakh said, pointing out that neither supplier knew what the other's price was.

Yeah, but the one guy had one month to find out what the other guy quoted," Irvine said in reference to the dates on the quotes. Irvine made a motion, seconded by Brooks, to send the chief out for sealed bids.

"My experience has been that when you go for quotes and then go out for bids, those who gave quotes won't bid."

Munfakh said, adding that there weren't many police equipment suppliers in the state.

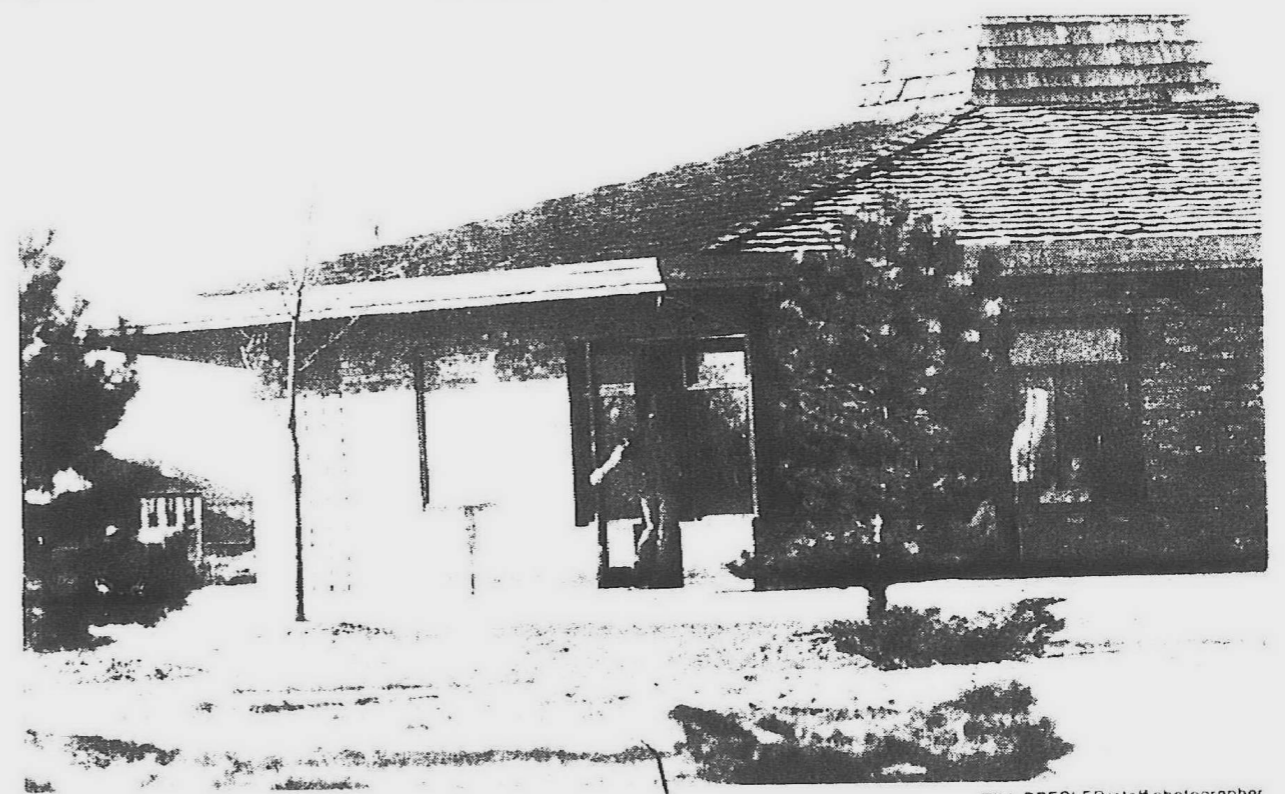

"It's likely that they won't bid again," he said. Munfakh believes the suppliers who gave quotes have "open cards" since others already know their prices.

"But they now start out even and it could go down to $6,000," Irvine said.

The motion to go for bids failed 4-2, with Irvine and Brooks being the only supporters. A subsequent motion to accept the Winder quote was approved 6-0.

IN OTHER police action, the board authorized the purchase of equipment to link the township to the Law Enforcement Information Network (LEIN) rather than leasing equipment.

All seemed quiet during a recent visit to Canton's I-275 rest stop, where police have arrested many persons for homosexual activity over the last several years.

Judge rules on rest stop cases Most go under supervision

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Most of the 31 men arrested for homosexual activities in two raids at the I-275 rest stop in Canton Township last year have been placed under the supervision of 35th District Court.

"Supervision is not to be confused with probation," said District Judge James N. Garber. "Probation implies a finding of guilt, and there has not (in most cases) been a finding of guilt."

The arrests by the Michigan State Police occurred Sept. 20 and 24 and Oct. 18. The arraignments and preliminary examinations on charges of disorderly person/indecent and obscene conduct in a public place were held in 35th District Court.

Court records show the majority of men were given a one-year deferred sentence. They are to meet with a probation officer and pay court costs. After a year the judge will review the case and either impose a sentence or drop the charges. The maximum penalty for the charges is 90 days in jail and/or up to a $100 fine and two years probation.

OTHER CONDITIONS of the "supervised deferred" sentences include reporting on a monthly basis to the district court's probation department, maintaining a Michigan residence, keeping the court informed about their residence and staying away from the rest stop. Judge Garber said Counseling was included in a few of the sentences.

Arrests at the rest stop for homosexual activity are commonplace, Judge Garber said. During the past six years there have been between 400 and 500 similar cases. He mentioned that it was "interesting" that homosexual activity arrests increased rather than decreased after concentrated media coverage about cases.

"It's not the intent of the court to try to change anyone's sexual preference," Judge Garber said. "But, it's the court's role to keep it out of public places."

All but three of the 31 men have been sentenced.

Dennis May, 32, who worked as a school bus driver for Plymouth-Canton schools at the time of the arrest, received a one-year deferred sentence. He is presently working as a "garage helper" for the district and has filed a grievance with the Plymouth-Canton Transportation Employees' Association, protesting the position change.

Judge Garber dropped charges against Richard G. Buerk, 41, principal of Livonia's Stevenson Junior High School during a trial held in November.

The following men received a one-year deferred sentence and were ordered to see a probation officer monthly at $25 a visit with a maximum payment of $250. They pleaded no contest and were ordered to pay $100 court costs.

Tommy Moore Jr., 33, of Canton; Bates Landis, 59, of Canton; William Murphy Jr., 51, of Grosse Pointe Park; Ronald Chopin Rice, 43, of Westland; Daniel Dunn, 36, of Westland; Phillip T. Jenkins, 36, of Bloomfield Hills; William Luallen, 55, of Livonia; and Gene Myers, 47, media specialist with Livonia Public Schools.

OTHERS WHO received the same sentence include Robert Thomas, 39, of Canton, a Michigan Education Association regional representative, who pleaded no contest; Peter Deane, 37, of Wayne, who also pleaded no contest; Dale Summers, 29, of Elk Rapids, who pleaded no contest; Scott Smith, 26, of Novi, who pleaded no contest; John Tate, 43, of Dearborn who pleaded not guilty; Glen Walker, 28, of Garden City, who pleaded no contest; John Radtke, 46, of Detroit, who pleaded not guilty.

Balloon fest makes up for lost time

By Diane Gale
staff writer

It was clear sailing for promoters of the Hot Air Balloon Festival at the Canton Township Board of Trustees meeting Tuesday.

The board unanimously passed a motion announcing Canton's support of the July 5-7 event at the Centennial Educational Park (CEP), Joy and Canton Center roads in Canton.

Preparations for the festivities are about 65 days behind schedule from this time last year when the event was held in Plymouth Township, said promoter Scott Lorenz, general manager of the Mayflower Hotel in Plymouth. He was joined at the meeting by copromoter Gordon Boring of Walled Lake, owner of the Wicker Basket Balloon Center in Plymouth.

THE DELAY was caused by lengthy negotiations with Plymouth Township officials to hold the event in that community.

The proposals were rejected and taken to Canton. Additional time was spent in getting approval from the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

"We have to scramble to get things done," Lorenz said. "We have lost commercial balloons, previously involved with the event, because they needed a firm commitment at an earlier time."

"We want to thank you for offering to put on the event in your community," Lorenz told the board. "We look forward to working with you in the emergence of Canton Township, and making the balloon festival an even larger event than it already is."

The next hurdle for the promoters is to solicit balloon sponsors. Local businesses will pay $750, which buys a 2-foot-by-10-foot banner to be hung below the basket of the balloon, $1 million for insurance coverage, a balloon ride for two people, brunch for six at the Mayflower Hotel, six tickets for the Balloon Ball held July 6 and 7, along with other extras like plaques and T-shirts, Lorenz said. Out-of-town companies will be charged $1,000.

LORENZ ALSO stresses widespread publicity as a major benefit of sponsoring a balloon.

Placemats used at the Mayflower will list sponsors, and national as well as local media will be invited to a press party given to elicit coverage.

The promoters have 50 balloons available for the event, Lorenz said. About 50 local sponsors have committed so far this year.

Cost to Canton Township, mainly comprising crowd and traffic control expenses, is about $5,000, said Supervisor James Poole. This is down from higher initial cost estimates of near $10,000.

At the meeting, trustees said the popular event is considered a plus for Canton because it brings recognition to the community. Township officials said they hoped this year will be the first of what will become an annual Canton event.

"We don't feel Canton Township will be used as a temporary stop-gap, so you can go back to Plymouth Township," Poole said.

Youth job program taking applications

Help is available to residents of western Wayne County age 17 to 21 who are looking for a job.

Growth Works Inc., a non-profit social agency located in Plymouth, is now enrolling participants for a federally funded program known as Employment Dynamics.

The program's activities include job search skill training, on-the-job training, and job placement assistance.

Employment Dynamics is now accepting applications and will through May.

GROWTH WORKS has operated youth employment programs for seven years, particularly in the areas of permanent job placement and retention.

Paul Chamberlain, director of Employment Dynamics, says there are several innovations in the 1985 program.

"We have been able to link with many employers in the area who are expanding their work forces and who find Growth Works' program participants to be excellent job candidates," explained Chamberlain.

Growth Works receives federal funding for the program through the Job Training Partnership Act of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Because of the funding source there are federal guidelines applicants must meet to qualify.

Eligibility is limited to persons 17-21 who live in Plymouth, Canton, Livonia, Garden City, Westland, Wayne, Northville, and Inkster. Participants also must meet economic guidelines.

Families who are receiving unemployment benefits, disability payments, or who receive limited income from working, and young adults who prove some or all of their own support, generally meet the federal income requirements.

Young adults interested in more information about Employment Dynamics may call Growth Works from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday at 455-4093 and ask for Lissa Spitz.

3-year-old loses battle with pneumonia

Lindsay Constance, 3, lost her battle with pneumonia Tuesday morning, ending a long struggle with problems common to children with Down's syndrome.

She would have been 4 years old May 7.

Lindsay was featured a recent edition of the Observer when her mother, Valerie Constance, was searching for child care for her other daughter, Rachel, while Lindsay was having hospital treatments.

Scheduled to enter the Wayne-Westland SPARKY preschool program for 3-year-olds last March, Lindsay's legs one day "collapsed under her." She was diagnosed as having leukemia.

"Lindsay had quite a constituency of people from all over. She made friends everywhere. She really touched a lot of lives in a short time," Constance said.

ENROLLED IN A rigorous treatment program at C.S. Mott Children's Hospital, Lindsay had been in complete remission after 14 days of chemotherapy.

"Everytime she was doing great, she had a fall that was so rapid," Constance said.

The newspaper article brought offers of help with child care, but Constance said it was hard to leave Rachel, 22 months, with even well-meaning, competent strangers.

"I discovered my kids were very precious to me. So I expanded the network of people I had to rely on," she added.

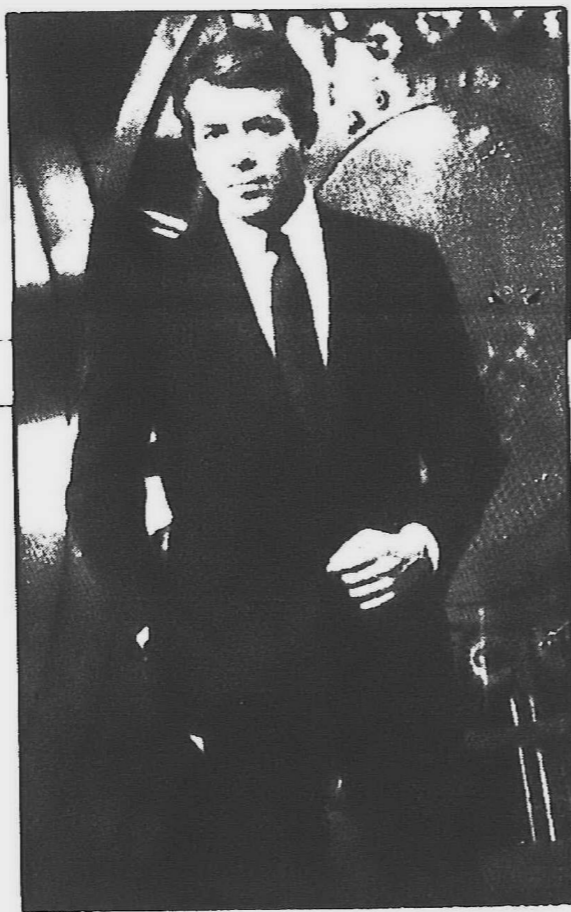

VISITATION IS 5-9 p.m. Thursday at the Vermeulen Memorial Funeral Home, 980 Newburgh Road at Marquette. A scripture service is at 7 p.m.

Funeral services for Lindsay begin with prayers at 9:30 a.m. at the funeral home, followed by a 10 a.m. mass at St. Richard Church, 35851 Cherry Hill, with the Rev. Lawrence Edwards officiating. Burial is at Cadillac Memorial Gardens West on Ford Road.

Lindsay is survived by her parents, Gerald D. and Valerie M. Constance of Westland, her sister, Rachel, grandparents Alice and Frederick White of Syracuse, N.Y., and Robert and Helen Constance of Hale, Mich.

Stars prep for Olympics

THE SPECIAL OLYMPICS for handicapped persons in western Wayne County will be held two weekends this month in Canton and Livonia.

Special Olympics is an international program of physical fitness, sport training and athletic competition for mentally impaired children and adults.

In recent weeks Plymouth-Canton handicapped young people have been working out in preparation for the bowling events on Saturday, April 20 at SuperBowl in Canton and for the track and field competition Saturday, April 26, at Livonia Bentley High School.

The event is sponsored countywide by the Civitan clubs in western Wayne County. Coordinating the activities locally is the Special Education Parent Advisory Council (SEPAC) of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

Local participants in the bowling competition have been practicing late afternoon on Mondays at Plaza Lane in Plymouth. Those who will be entering the track and field events have been working out at West Middle School on Fridays. At last report the local competitors were ready to take on the world — almost.

Barbara Witt is the bowling coach for the Plymouth-Canton Special Olympic keglers while Mary Kay Herr is the track and field coach. Involved at the SEPAC level are Barbara Gusfa and Karen Abraham.

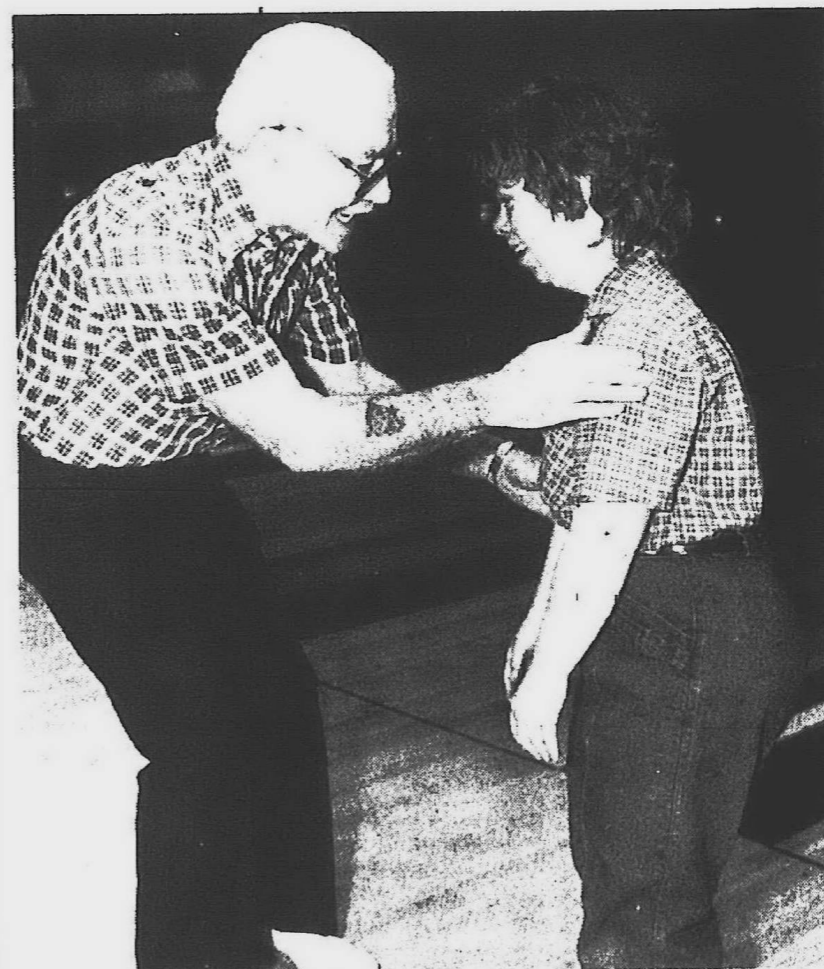

The track and field competition will be launched with the official parade and torch-lighting ceremonies at 9 a.m. Saturday, April 26 — with all the flair and dignity of the World Olympics.

The statewide competition for the Special Olympics will be held later in the spring at Central Michigan University, Mount Pleasant.

Plans are being made to hold a Mini-Olympics, sponsored by Plymouth-Canton SEPAC, at Central Middle School on Saturday, May 4.

Vote 'freezes' NASA

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes March 28 through April 3.

HOUSE

FREEZE — The House adopted, 369 for and 36 against, an amendment to freeze the fiscal 1986 National Aeronautics and Space Administration budget at its 1985 level of $7.51 billion.

This is $350 million below the 1986 NASA budget sought by both the Administration and the Democrat-controlled House Committee on Science and Technology. A co-sponsor was Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth.

The bill (HR 1714) was sent to the Senate. It was the first major 1986 authorization bill to be voted on this year by the House, and thus the first test of the "freeze" approach to deficit-reduction.

Across-the-board freezes of a departmental budget almost always have been rejected by Congress, because they trample on too many pet programs of individual lawmakers.

However, the margin of this vote indicated that such a drastic strategy may fare better this year as members become increasingly frustrated by their inability to control federal spending.

Supporter Dan Glickman, R-Kan., said "we are bleeding to death because of high deficits, and if we do not start (corrective action) here, we will never start anywhere."

Opponent Bill Nelson, D-Fla., said it was wrong to inaugurate the freeze approach with the NASA budget, because that is "the one agency that is advancing our science and technology . . . which is the future of our country."

Members voting yes wanted to freeze the 1986 NASA budget at 1985 levels.

Voting yes: Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods, William Ford, D-Taylor, Sander Levin, D-Southfield, William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

BURTON — The House passed, 342 for and 69 against, and sent to the Senate a bill (HR 1373) to name part of the Point Reyes National Seashore near San Francisco after the late Rep. Phillip Burton, D-Calif., a leading environmentalist in Congress.

Supporter John Seiberling, D-Ohio, said: "Phil, I know that, wherever you are, you are looking on the work that this Congress and this House have done to protect wilderness areas and smiling. This is our way of saying thanks."

Opponent Robert Walker, R-Pa., noted that this marks the first naming of a National Park Service unit after a member of Congress, and that the Interior Department opposes setting such a precedent.

Members voting yes wanted to establish the Philip Burton Wilderness in California.

Voting yes: Pursell, Hertel, William Ford, Sander Levin.

SENATE

JOBLESS — By a vote of 34 for and 58 against, the Senate refused to extend for six months a program that gives supplemental employment benefits to the long-term jobless. The extension would have cost an estimated $1 billion. After rejecting this amendment, the Senate unanimously passed and sent to the White House a bill (HR 1866) to phase out the program. The House earlier approved the bill on a non-record vote.

rollcall report

Under the phase-out, current beneficiaries will receive checks until their eligibility runs out over the next several weeks, and the program then will be terminated.

The supplemental program, an anti-recession law enacted in 1982, is providing up to 14 weeks of extra jobless pay to some 325,000 individuals who have exhausted their normal 26-week allotment of unemployment compensation program.

Voting yes: Carl Levin, Donald Riegle.

AUTOS — By a vote of 51 for and 42 against, the Senate adopted a tax amendment for the benefit of those who use their automobiles primarily for business purposes.

An individual who uses his auto for business at least 75 percent of the time would be allowed to claim a 100 percent business deduction. Some personal auto costs thus would become tax deductible.

The provision was included in a bill to repeal the IRS requirement that taxpayers keep daily logs to document business use of their autos. Records still must be kept, but they need not be "contemporaneous."

Riegle voted yes. Levin voted no.

The bill (HR 1869) was sent to conference with the House, which passed a similar repeal measure on a non-record vote.

Supporter Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., said it was unreasonable to tax "minute personal use of predominantly genuine business vehicles."

Opponent Robert Packwood, R-Ore., called it "a very expensive amendment" that would cost the Treasury $1 billion annually.

Senators voting yes supported more favorable tax treatment for individuals who use their autos primarily for business.

CORPORATE — The Senate refused, 46 for and 47 against, to kill a tax provision that benefits individuals who make personal use of their corporate aircraft. The vote occurred during debate on HR 1869 (above).

Michigan's Levin and Riegle both voted yes.

Under present law, the IRS sets the value of personal use of company jets as equivalent to the cost of chartering a comparable aircraft. That amount is taxable.

Language in HR 1869 directs the IRS to compute the value according to a formula based on the weight of the plane. Further, the amount to be taxed cannot exceed the cost of a first-class commercial aircraft ticket between the same points.

This would cut federal revenue by an estimated $10 million annually.

City proceeds with '85 street paving program

Plymouth City Commissioners last week directed the city assessor to go ahead with preparations for the 1985 paving program.

The Commission voted 6-1 to proceed with the program as proposed, with the exception of Evergreen Street from Junction to Penniman. Commissioner Mary Ellen McKecher was the lone no vote.

Assessor Ken Way now is in the process of developing a special assessment roll for the project. Way hopes to present the roll to the commission on Monday, April 15.

A public hearing and confirmation of the roll still are needed before the paving begins.

Last week's action followed a public hearing on necessity for the proposed repaving of targeted streets. Because residents from Evergreen didn't believe their street needed repair, it was dropped from the program.

City Manager Henry Graper said the deletion of Evergreen most likely wouldn't affect the costs residents have to pay.

"It will bring a slight reduction, if any at all," he said.

AT LAST week's Commission meeting, resident Peter Ray presented petitions asking that two more streets be dropped from the program.

Despite Ray's request, commissioners decided to keep the streets in the program.

Graper explained that streets could be dropped from the program at a later point, but couldn't be added. He suggested the Commission proceed and decide on the request in later action.

The petitions asked that Hartsough, between Roosevelt and east of Coolidge, and Roosevelt, between Hartsough and Burroughs, be dropped.

"In the opinion of those who signed, the streets do not need the repair at this time," Ray said.

Mayor David Pugh, who lives in the area Ray represented, was aware of the petition movement and asked City Engineer Ken West to prepare a comparison of patching to repaving.

West said that simply patching the streets would cost $5,649 more than the estimated cost for paving. The engineer said Roosevelt and Hartsough were two of the streets which needed paving the most.

OTHER RESIDENTS at the meeting questioned the city's method of assessing for the program.

Currently residents living on targeted streets pay 75 percent of the total program costs, and the city picks up 25 percent.

The 75-percent resident total is assessed to the individual homeowners based on street frontage.

"There is a problem with the method of assessing costs," one resident said. "Some streets require more extensive work than simple resurfacing but we all pay the same per frontage foot."

Commissioner Bud Martin agreed but said the city's share comes from revenues collected from all taxpayers.

"Remember the 25 percent that some of us are paying and getting nothing," he said.

for Main Street when it was done a couple of years ago. I asked about that back then and the answer as I remember it was that it was a main thoroughfare," Jones said.

Main Street has never been assessed for paving before, Graper said, adding that it was a city policy.

"I mention it only because it is a policy that should be reconsidered," Jones said.

OTHER STREETS in the 1985 program are:

- Sunset, between Junction and

- Farmer.
- Blunk, between Junction and Church.
- Ann, between Junction and Williams.
- Adams, between Junction and Farmer.

- Farmer, between Harvey and east of Karmada.
- Liberty, between Amelia and N. Mill.
- Hardenburg, between N. Mill and Holbrook.
- Farmer, between the C&O Railroad tracks and Starkweather.

- Sheridan, between Sheldon and McKinley.
- Harvey, between Wing and Ann Arbor Trail.
- Hamilton, south of Maple.
- Fairground, between Fair and Ann Arbor Trail.

- Dewey, between Hartsough and Burroughs.
- Harding, between Hartsough and Burroughs.
- Coolidge, north of Hartsough.
- Union, Park Place, Jener Place, and Elm.

Assault victim says burglar changed mind

A 61-year-old Marlowe Street woman reported a burglary and sexual assault early Monday morning.

According to Plymouth Police, the woman fell asleep in a living room chair. Shortly after 4 a.m. she was awakened by a man cupping his hand over her mouth.

The man threatened to hurt her if she screamed, the police report said.

The man ordered the woman to undress and lay on the floor. As she complied with his request, the man apparently changed his mind and told her to get dressed.

The woman told police the man left through the window he had broken in through.

The man was described as white, in his early 20s, 6 feet, medium build, short to medium length hair, wearing a dark jacket and dark pants.

The board also postponed a decision on bids for the completion of the police station at the Township Hall complex, the corner of Mill Street and Ann Arbor Road.

Hulsing said sealed bids had been received and opened; however, no one bid for the concrete and structural steel work which must be done first.

"The architect wants to hold the bids for 30 days and go after quotes for the concrete and structural steel work," she said, adding that the bids would be tabled until a later meeting.

"A lot of the people who took out plans, and put down a $50 bill to get them, weren't interested in the work," Irvine said. "Those in the field really don't need the work. It's a matter of money."

The bids that were received, according to Irvine, also came in higher than anticipated.

Resident Robert Jones questioned why the residential paving program was handled differently than Main Street.

Carroll leaves townships for Garden City

By M.B. Dillon Ward
staff writer

Terry Carroll, grants coordinator for Canton and Plymouth townships, is the first choice of Garden City to take a similar position there.

City Manager George DeFrench of Garden City told the city council Tuesday night he will be recommending the candidate for the position at next Monday night's business session.

If Garden City's council confirms Carroll's hiring, he will be assuming a revised position of community development director/administrative services, a combination of two other jobs which have been vacant for several months.

But he is expected to spend most of his time with the city's downtown development authority, created four years ago to upgrade the Ford-Middlebelt business sections.

The "career advancement" move for Plymouth's former senior citizen coordinator comes after a seven-year stint in Canton Township Hall.

In a letter dated Wednesday, Carroll, 34, accepted Garden City's offer.

He expects to assume the $30,700 post May 1. Hired in 1978 at $14,000, Carroll currently earns $28,355 annually.

Carroll, who recently turned down a job offer from a city in Macomb County, received high praise in a March 26 recommendation memo from Garden City Manager George DeFrench to the city council.

"I believe (Carroll) would be an excellent addition to our staff" and could assume responsibilities including working as Downtown Development Authority liaison to spur greater activity in business and industrial development, block grants and housing rehabilitation; managing Downtown Development Authority (DDA) tax increment financing; developing long-range DDA strategy and vacant parcels throughout the city; renovating the downtown area and working on DDA public improvements; promoting industrial park properties; handling some arbitration cases and completing various research and special projects for city administrators, DeFrench said.

Carroll, who has negotiated a month-to-month contract arrangement since his last multiyear agreement expired in January, will be missed by fellow township staffers.

"Terry Carroll has been an asset to Canton Township," said Canton Personnel Director Dan Durack. "In observing him, it's apparent Terry is certainly very knowledgeable and does a good job."

Durack said "it's been no secret" that Carroll has been "applying in other places. He has, himself, requested the month-to-month extensions, so one could have assumed something."

FOREMOST among Carroll's responsibilities has been the securing and administering of federal grant money. During his tenure, Canton's share of federal dollars has increased from $110,000 to $325,000.

About $130,000 in federal funds went toward the purchase of Canton acreage for a proposed senior housing project. Carroll expects that 1985 federal money allocated this fall will mean the 118-unit project at Ford and Sheldon roads will be built.

"I won't be around for the awards in September, but everything looks like it's going very well. Senior housing is well on the way," said Carroll, who also has played major roles in administering federally assisted housing rehabilitation and integrating the community development program with the DDA.

Carroll — a 1974 Wayne State University sociology graduate and a candidate for a University of Michigan public administration master's degree — pointed to some other key accomplishments.

"We relocated seven families from a Dye Brothers' subdivision and bought the acreage for industrial park use at no cost to them or the township," said Carroll of commercially zoned land south of Michigan Avenue.

"We renovated the spouse abuse shelter (capacity 20) for Project First Step. And we wrote a grant every year for five communities for the Senior Citizens' Chores Services administered by Plymouth City parks," he added. (The program provides free lawn-cutting, raking, shoveling and other services for seniors.)

Carroll also was instrumental in locating the Metro West industrial park at Five Mile and Sheldon roads in Plymouth Township, having secured the paving and water main installation and putting together an interest subsidy program.

CARROLL IS looking forward to assuming added duties in Garden City.

"It's a combination of two positions — director of administrative services and director of community development," said the Detroit-born Carroll. "I'll be involved with implementing new cable-TV regulations; with labor relations (one of the reasons they hired me is because of my experience with compulsory arbitration in Plymouth in 1977 with the firefighters), and duties for the DDA such as implementing and designing streetscape improvements.

"Their basic problem is looking at property re-use as opposed to the new development out here."

Revitalization of an aging downtown won't pose a problem for Carroll "because I have worked with public works-type projects and chambers of commerce before," said Carroll, who lived in Garden City as a boy and graduated from Livonia Franklin High School.

"I like the community, and having lived there before, I'm familiar with it," added Carroll, who will move from Livonia to Garden City with his wife, Sue, and young sons, Kevin and Brian.

"I went with Garden City (as opposed to Macomb County) because I come from Wayne County and know all the people. I would have had to learn a whole new set of faces, plus the Garden City job appeals to me more."

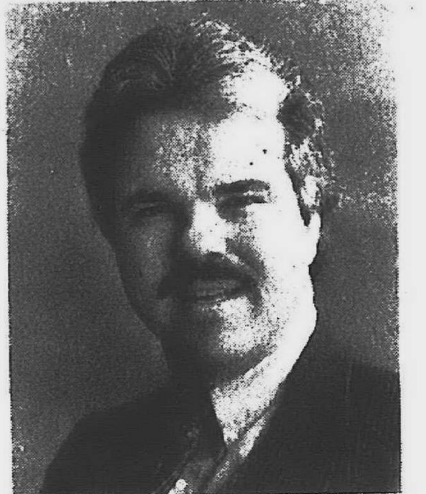

Carroll leaves with few regrets, and says there are few loose ends to be tied.

"The Canton Community Development Advisory Council will be making recommendations to the township board, who will decide April 23 which projects to spend the $325,000 (in federal grant money) on. I will put requests in for those projects," said Carroll of one of his last orders of township business.

"I would like to have seen the senior citizen building (reach completion) but feel rather confident it will happen anyway," he added.

"By May 1, the bulk of the work in terms of putting together the application will be finished. It would have been a matter of sitting around till September to see what the Department of Housing and Urban Development decides."

Trustees OK industrial requests

Plymouth Township trustees acted on two industrial development requests during Tuesday night's meeting.

The board approved issuing $1.5-million worth of Economic Development Corporation (EDC) bonds for the construction of the Province Town center, being built by the Plymouth Building Investors.

The board also set a public hearing date for establishing an Industrial Development District for Galaxy Precision Machining Co.

PLYMOUTH BUILDING Investors plan to buy and complete a partially built 34,000-square-foot multitenant industrial, research and office building at 15111 Northville Road.

The project is estimated to cost some $1.7 million, and the proceeds from the EDC bonds will be used to cover the construction, equipment, furniture, architectural, administrative, legal and financial costs.

The company's advantage by going for EDC financing is that EDC bonds are tax-free and consequently provide capital at a lower interest rate than other methods. EDC bond sales are allowed under Public Act 338 of 1974.

Although the township authorizes the sale of the bonds, attorney Carl Creighton said they are "limited liability" bonds for which the township has no financial responsibility.

Plymouth Building Investors is comprised of a group of people, including Paul Kozowicz, Alan Kristall, Harry Gordon, Dennis Fogel, Kevin Crane and John Hopp Jr.

GALAXY PRECISION owns a manufacturing facility at 41150 Joy Road. The company wants to build an addition onto the plant and desires tax abatement under Public Act 198 of 1974.

Before the property tax relief, 12 years of 50-percent abatement can be granted, an Industrial Development District must be established. The board set an April 23 public hearing on the district.

According to Creighton, Galaxy will be doing some new work for International Harvester, which previously was done "in-house" by International Harvester.

"At this point, Galaxy Precision is faced with the decision as to locating these operations in Michigan or Indiana," he said.

We have all your IRA answers.

"IRA? I won't be retiring for 40 years, I have plenty of time to start an IRA... right?"

Wrong.

Start now with $2,000 each year in your Down River Federal Savings Individual Retirement Account, you'll have $1,084,067 set aside in 40 years!

That's only about $167 a month — you probably spend that much on your car payment. But you don't have to start that high — we can set up an IRA for you for as little as $50 and you can contribute as much as you like at any time.

Plus your contributions are deducted off the top of your income, so the income taxes you'd normally have paid on that amount including the interest earned are deferred!

We make it a little easier for you.

So you're not only saving for the future, you're cutting down on income taxes!

1st Schoolcraft CC librarian blazed own trails

By Tim Richard
staff writer

He's one of the last pioneers — a man who built where no one had been before.

Patrick Butler was not only director of the Schoolcraft College library for 22 years, but he took the job when there were few community college libraries to learn from.

"There was nothing written about how to do it," Butler, 59, recalled during a conversation in his Plymouth home where he is retired. "They were called 'junior colleges,' and they mushroomed."

"As soon as a new faculty member was hired, I wrote a letter and asked 'What would you need?'"

BUTLER WAS the second person hired after voters in 1962 approved property taxes to build and operate a college in northwestern Wayne County.

(President Eric Bradner, who hired him and for whom the library is named, retired 13 years ago. Lois Waterman, dean of students, also is retired. Lone survivor of the first group is W. Kenneth Lindner, vice president for business. This spring, five more of the less-than 160-member faculty will retire.)

Schoolcraft was an early wave in the 1960s flood of community colleges. From five "junior colleges" associated with such traditional districts as Highland Park, Dearborn and Grand Rapids, the movement grew to 29, whose boundaries covered every square inch of Michigan.

Butler was Plymouth High School librarian at the time Bradner hired him. Bay City, where Bradner had come from, and Plymouth were the two big sources of early Schoolcraft faculty and staff.

TO THIS DAY, Butler praises Bradner for having the foresight to hire the librarian fully two years before the beginning of classes.

"I think Dr. Bradner's interest in good books stemmed from his major and doctorate in history," Butler told author Samuel Hudson, author of "Reaching Out . . . A History of Schoolcraft College."

"Studies then indicated that a community college should have at least 20,000 volumes. Dr. Bradner told me to aim for that number by opening day. When I visited other community colleges, asking for advice, the library people there were amazed to hear we were collecting books at such an early stage."

Acquiring books was fairly easy in such academic fields as literature, history and sociology, which 70 percent of Schoolcraft's early enrollees studied, Butler said. It was more difficult in rapidly changing fields of technology, which now enroll 70 percent of the 10,000 students.

"Nursing and allied health occupations require many and expensive references. But auto shop is not book-oriented. About 10 percent of the collection are basic references of an encyclopedic nature."

UNLIKE A public library, a commu-

'There was nothing written about how to do it. They were called 'junior colleges,' and they mushroomed.'

— Patrick Butler, Recalls early days.

President Bradner. Then he reported to the vice president for instruction.

"Last summer, Dr. Jeffress (Conway Jeffress, VP for instruction) revised it so the head of the library will report to the dean of education services. So it's been a progressive . . . draw your own conclusion."

MAO TSE-TUNG, the father of Chinese communism, and Jacques Casanova, the great lover, were librarians by profession. But Butler had no apparent desire to emulate them in selecting that career.

"I was attempting to avoid (reading) student themes," said the Grand Rapids native. "I had taught school in Union City and was going to get a master's degree at Western Michigan University."

"I just sort of accidentally found out there was a librarianship degree. I had thought librarians worked for fun, for free."

"I don't know many librarians. I mostly mingled with the faculty. A lot of librarians get hung up on gadgets. If you can't plug it in and push a button, they don't want it."

The Butlers are parents of eight children, ranging in age from 35 to 20. "We're just starting to get grandchildren," he said, recalling a January trip to Nebraska to see a new grandson.

HE LIKES students, big varieties of good books, downtown sidewalks and traffic lights and streetcars, rain, panhandlers, Democratic headquarters, used book stores, newsstands, The New York Times.

He abhors semi-literate jargon, malls with Rhode Island-sized parking lots, steel-and-wire sculptures, franchise stores.

He talks a little of going into the book business — "on a small scale. I'm pretty book oriented." Then he adds: "It would be just old books."

Some samples of the Butler wit

Here are samples of the wit and prose style of Patrick Butler, retired Schoolcraft College librarian:

From his own mock news release on campus during the Gerald Ford era:

Library Director Patrick Butler last night told a shocked campus that he was granting "full, free and absolute pardon" to all Schoolcraft faculty and staff for any overdue library books they have borrowed or may have borrowed since Sept. 1, 1964. The historic pardon was granted, Butler said, because it was "merciful" and "good for business."

earlier in the day with God and other top advisers, but the decision, he emphasized, was entirely his own.

"As head of the library, I have learned," he said, "that the book stops here."

Over the years, several hundred books have stopped permanently in staff members' homes and offices. It is these books that Butler hopes will be returned. "Books are the glue which holds the library together," he said, flying into metaphor, "and we are coming unglued."

— J.F. terButler

Nothing" in the Library Journal, Jan. 1, 1970:

The caller was Dr. Eric J. Bradner, who had just been appointed as president of the Northwest Wayne County Community College District. . . 20 miles west of Detroit. . . He was operating out of an old, abandoned schoolhouse, the college's temporary headquarters. There he dwelt 18 hours a day, his mind ablaze with plans of educational glory. . . a man whose fervor could sell telephones to Trappists. . . He converted me in 20 minutes. "Mr. Butler," he said in a firm voice: "Yes," I answered, turning. He looked me in the eye. "Can you nity college library contains few popular writers. And it's not like a university research library, either.

Today, the Bradner Library houses 70,000 volumes, subscribes to 500 magazines and owns more than 20,000 documents. Butler considers the magazines and periodicals a particular treasure. In his working days, he took different ones home to read in the evening.

The Schoolcraft library is also one of the few places where one can find a book by the college's namesake, Henry Rowe Schoolcraft, historian of the 1821 Cass expedition through the Great Lakes and later a federal Indian agent at Sault Ste. Marie. His researches were popularized by the poet Longfellow in "The Song of Hiawatha."

The college's master plan in 1970 called for building a learning-resource center about triple the size of the Bradner Library. Four times, however, voters said no to tax increases and bond issues.

BUTLER IS unruffled by the trend to call libraries "learning resource centers." Smiling faintly, he said, "Call it what you want. Every junior high school in the country has a learning resource center. Yale and Harvard still have libraries."

For the first six or seven years of his tenure, Butler reported directly to

You don't need a lot of money to get the tax-deferred, tax-deductible benefits of an Individual Retirement Account (IRA) at Michigan National.

● SPECIAL OLYMPICS

Special Olympics, an international program of physical fitness, sport training and athletic competition for mentally impaired children and adults, is being formed in the Plymouth-Canton area. Anyone interested in participating should contact a representative of the Special Education Parent Advisory Committee (SEPA) at 455-7684 or 420-0509.

● SEEKING DISCOUNTS

During April representatives from the Plymouth Community Council on Aging Inc. will be contacting new merchants to become participants in the Senior Discount Program.

● SOAPSTONE CARVING

A rare soapstone collection is on exhibit through April 24 at the Plymouth Historical Museum, 155 S. Main at Church. Soapstone carving, a "cottage industry" of China passed down from one generation to the next, dates back to the Sung Dynasty (960-1279 A.D.). Also on exhibit is the museum's ivory collection (also carved in China), rocks, minerals and fossils displayed by the Plymouth Rock and Mineral Society, and children's chairs (1800s) including highchairs, rocking chairs, and potty chairs. The museum is open 1-4 p.m. Thursday, Saturday and Sunday. Admission.

● INCOME TAX FORMS

Although most taxpayers receive a tax package from the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) by mail, the forms they receive may not meet all their needs. If you experience that problem as you prepare your 1984 tax report, the forms you need may be at the Plymouth Post Office. Office-in-Charge Vernon Racine says that changes in filing status, capital gains or losses, or profit and loss on a business may require the taxpayer to seek IRS forms which are not included in the package. "We have many forms for these situations at the post office," adds Racine.

● EMPLOYMENT DYNAMICS

Recruitment for the Employment Dynamics program is under way with applications being accepted through May. Purpose of the program is to help unemployed young adults improve their job-seeking skills and find permanent employment.

Participants must be ages 17-21 and live in western Wayne County (including the municipalities of Wayne, Westland, Garden City, Inkster, Canton, Plymouth and Northville). Participants must meet income guidelines. The program is sponsored by Growth Works Inc., Plymouth. Interested persons may contact Lissa Spitz at 455-4093.

Employment Dynamics is a federally funded program which provides young adults with job search skills training, paid on-the-job work experience and job placement assistance. The program helps develop foundation skills to enhance job performance and promote continued growth and success in the working world.

● FOURTH OF JULY

Plans are being made for the 1985 Fourth of July celebration in Plymouth featuring a parade and fireworks sponsored by the Plymouth Jaycees. Last year, the parade attracted some 4,500 spectators and the fireworks some 25,500 persons, according to Fred Eagle, parade co-chairman. The parade will begin at 10 a.m. Thursday, July 4. Parade entry forms soon will be available at Plymouth City Hall or Plymouth Township Hall or by calling Eagle at 464-6797. The parade also needs donations from businesses to cover the expenses of the parade. Send donations to: Plymouth Jaycees, c/o 1985 Fourth of July Parade, 14728 Ronnie Lane, Livonia MI 48154.

● SCHOOLCRAFT SCHOLARS

Applications are being accepted for the 1985-86 Schoolcraft College Presidential Scholarships. Recipients receive $500 their first year at Schoolcraft, and the awards are renewed for the second year if the student completes 26 credit hours with a minimum of a 2.5 grade point average. ● 'RIDE WITH US'

Plymouth Area Citizen's Team (PACT) is looking for new members. Take a ride with a PACT member and see how the team of volunteers works. For more information, call 455-5396.

● WEATHER SPOTTERS

Training meetings are from 9 a.m. to noon on the fourth Saturday of each month at Plymouth Township Hall, Mill at Ann Arbor Road. Volunteers are trained by the Plymouth Township Office of Emergency Preparedness as severe weather spotters. As part of the area's early warning system, the volunteers are trained to spot and report emergency weather situations such as tornadoes, severe wind or hail storms.

● VETERANS PROGRAM EXTENDED

Area Vietnam era and disabled veterans should be aware of recent changes affecting the Veterans Readjustment Appointments (VRA) program. VRA is a federal hiring program providing special, non-competitive hiring of these veterans. Originally scheduled to expire Sept. 30, 1984, the program has been extended through Sept. 30, 1986, through passage of the Veterans Benefits Improvement Act (PL 98-543). It is not expected that the VRA program will be extended beyond that date.

In addition to extending the program, PL 98-543 raised the entry grade level maximum from GS/WG-7 to GS/WG-9 and also provided limited appeal rights during the first year of appointment. A Vietnam era or disabled veteran who has completed no more than 14 years of education may qualify for a VRA. (This restriction may be waived for disabled veterans.) For further information, interested veterans may call the local American Legion hotline at 453-9494 and leave a message regarding information desired.

● CPR TRAINING

The Community Education Department of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools will be conducting CPR Instructor Training classes for persons who have completed the full course in CPR and currently have a valid CPR card. The Community Education Department has provided free CPR classes for a number of years. To continue this, more CPR instructors are needed. For that reason, the department is seeking currently trained CPR personnel to devote 12 more hours to receive their instructor's card. Anyone interested in becoming a CPR instructor may call the department at 451-6660.

● CANTON HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Canton Historical Society at 7:30 p.m. meets the second Thursday of each month in the Canton Historical Society Museum on Canton Center Road at Proctor.

● COMPUTERS IN LIBRARY

Four Apple IIe computers are available for public use in the Dunning-Hough Library, 223 S. Main, Plymouth. Children younger than age 14 will be required to attend a training workshop or pass a users test. Children younger than age 8 must be accompanied by a parent while using the computer. All patrons must have a library card and must sign a responsibility card also signed by a parent or guardian. Once the responsibility card is on file at the library, patrons may reserve computer time and software. Rules and instructions for using the computers, the responsibility card, and a list of software are available at the library. For more information, call 453-0750.

Common sense finally won out

To the editor:

Having attended the March 25 Plymouth-Canton Board of Education meeting, I received quite an insight into the process that determines the policies governing the school district.

Following a presentation to a teacher for her going the "extra mile" (spending many hours on her own time — giving of herself and upholding the finest tradition of teachers in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools), a resolution was introduced to correct a rule that everyone present agreed needed correcting.

Parents spoke of the emotional stress this rule was causing their families. (Superintendent Dr.) John Hoben introduced a resolution to not only correct the problem but to do so immediately. (Director of Secondary Education) Kent Bukieina told the board that making the change would not pose any staff or enrollment problem.

A statement was read indicating that correcting the rule would mean more state money to the district, as we were currently losing students, and therefore state money, because of this rule. A classic example of a "no lose" situation. Not one person spoke against the rule change.

Then it was the turn of the seven trustees to comment prior to their vote. One member felt this stress and pain the parents spoke about was in reality just a game, apparently played for her enjoyment. (Trustee) Elaine Kirchgatter's comment was, "I view this as a game, and we should not change the rules while the game is being played. I vote against the resolution."

(Trustee) E.J. McClendon's comment was, "People will think we didn't know what we were doing last year if we change this rule now. I vote against the resolution." After loudly proclaiming (for some unexplained reason) that he was a proud native of Arkansas, he appeared to me to behave more like a four-legged native of Missouri.

(Trustee) Nancy Quinn espoused this pearl of logic, "I voted against the change last time, so I'll be voting against it this time."

Fortunately, common sense did prevail, and the remaining four members voted for the resolution.

This really was an education. Ignorance, pride and politics cannot prevail over common sense. Or can they?

Let's wait and see how the vote on giving those fine "extra milers" the choice of having their children assigned to the same school goes. I can hardly wait for the next board election.

Plymouth

Salmon anglers drifting to Westland clinic

By Lem Meseo
outdoors writer

Westland is a fair distance from the Great Lakes, and its major body of water is the Rouge River. But it will be the center of salmon fishing attention Sunday, April 21.

That's when the sixth annual clinic of the Michigan Steelhead and Salmon Fishing Association takes place from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Bailey Recreation Center, Ford Road between Newburgh and Wayne, behind Westland City Hall.

The free clinic will feature bargains on tackle and equipment, displays of Great Lakes fishing boats, displays on the making of spinners, flies and drift

baits, and demonstrations of downriggers and graphs.

SPRING FISHING is getting a slow but sure start.

Perch are being taken from Lake Erie at Grosse Ile and Mouille Creek. Small perch are biting from Bolles Harbor at the Lake Erie shore fishing site.

Cass Lake has drawn active anglers but failed to produce active fish. Water's too cold, they say.

Out Lake St. Clair way, small perch are hitting minnows in the south channels of Harsen's Island. Trolling is slow for salmon on the north channels of the St. Clair River. Smelt are running in the St. Clair River between Algonac and Port Huron.

NOW IS the time to trap woodchucks if they have a tendency to damage your property. The state Department of Natural Resources says woodchuck season is 12 months long, and any landowner may take them at any time.

It's best to do it soon before the 'chucks have little ones in late April and early May. They are now waking up, moving about and feeding heavily.

It's easy to spot their den entrances — fresh dirt. Burrows can be 50 feet long and six feet deep.

After you've removed them, plug all den entrances — there are usually emergency holes — with rocks to prevent other 'chucks from using them.

To learn more about the life and legend of the woodchuck, take in "Woodchuck Wander," a wildlife program at Oakwoods Metropark near Flat Rock, at 2 p.m. Sunday, April 14. A naturalist will lead a 1 1/2 mile hike in search of their haunts. It's free, but call the Metroparks office to register at 1-800-552-6772.

We once had a black dog who liked to dig up woodchuck burrows. His favorite was in the embankment of a creek behind the house. One particular spring afternoon, he dug more than 75 feet of burrow, furiously scraping earth and panting like a wolf.

For two or three years, woodchuck mining was the dog's chief hobby. He never caught the woodchuck, but the digging kept him safely off the streets.

One year the farmer sold that field to a developer. The developer's bulldozer leveled the little embankment in 30 minutes. And that was the end of the woodchuck burrow and our dog's hobby.

KENSINGTON Metropark, north of I-96 at the Kensington Road exit, has three nature center programs scheduled. All are free. To register in advance, call the toll-free number 1-800-552-6772.

"Amphibian Symphony," 10 a.m. Sunday, April 14 — a 1 1/2 mile walk to identify amphibians.

"April Adventure," 2 p.m. Sunday, April 14 — a guided wildlife hike.

"Wildflowers in Your Garden,"

1:30 p.m. Monday, April 15 — a two-hour program on growing wildflowers.

ANOTHER ELK hunt next fall? DNR is thinking hard about it and will hold public meetings around the state to review the '84 hunt, the status of the herd and proposals for an '85 hunt.

One meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday, April 18, in the Community Arts Building at the Michigan State Fairgrounds on Woodward south of Eight Mile, Detroit.

DNR estimates the herd at 1,000 currently. The '84 elk hunt was the third in modern times, the earlier ones being in 1964 and '65 when elk numbers were high and crop damage severe. The elk herd is mainly in the Pigeon River Country State Forest in the northeastern lower peninsula.

Sen. Geake fumbles the ball on DeHoCo

STUDENTS OF government know that power and position go hand-in-hand. Those in power hold key positions, and those in key positions hold power. Attaining either requires two things — seniority and belonging to the majority party.

Consider state Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, the senior member of the majority party in Michigan's Senate. As such, one would expect Geake to carry some clout and possess political savvy.

Geake holds key positions but fails to exercise power, much to the dismay of his 6th District which includes Canton Township, Livonia, the Northville community, the Plymouth community and Redford Township.

The ongoing scramble to find additional state prison space is a prime example of Geake's inability to protect the interests of his constituency. His actions, or lack thereof, prompt questions about his effectiveness as a veteran legislator.

THE DETROIT House of Correction (DeHoCo) on Five Mile Road in Plymouth Township has been targeted for housing state inmates. Detroit recently closed the aging facility and wanted to unload its employees and part of the 1,100-acre site.

Aside from scrutinizing how the senator has handled efforts to limit DeHoCo's use, voters need to ask a fundamental question: How did Geake get into such a defensive position in the first place?

Geake serves on the influential Senate Appropriations Committee, the Joint Capital Outlay Committee and the three-member appropriations' subcommittee for corrections.

His district already has shouldered more than its fair share of the correctional burden. Also on Five Mile Road, across from DeHoCo, is the Phoenix Correctional Facility and the Scott Correctional Facility, a regional prison under construction.

Elsewhere in his Senate district is an abundance of institutional land either currently or formerly used for mental health, higher education, juvenile corrections and recreation.

Considering Geake's committee assignments and the amount of land already devoted to governmental uses, the state never should have been allowed to consider using DeHoCo.

EXPECTING Geake to put his foot down on DeHoCo was expecting too much.

How did Northville Township end up with the Phoenix and Scott sites? Both were landed in Geake's district while a Republican governor was in office.

Apparently trustees from Plymouth and Northville townships realized their senator couldn't handle DeHoCo. They each pumped $40,000 into hiring a lobbyist to do the senator's work for him.

The same thing happened a couple of years ago when the state wanted to move the Scott site eastward from Five and Beck to Five and Sheldon. Residents gathered money and support for the same lobbyist to go to bat for them.

Now, when the state is preparing to sell the Five Mile-Sheldon land, it is learned there is a reverter clause in the deed. The land must go back to Wayne County in the event it isn't used for mental health facilities. The state couldn't have put a prison on it.

Why didn't the senator research the deed? He has one of the larger staffs in Lansing and could have devoted resources to checking such things out. If Geake had done his homework, time and money devoted to fighting the site shift would have been saved.

DETROIT VIRTUALLY has unloaded the DeHoCo complex without a fight.

Geake recently chose to "take a walk" rather than take a defeat on a bill approving the purchase. At the time, Geake said he lacked the votes in committee and plans to bring it up on the Senate floor.

How does he plan to get the votes on the floor when he couldn't get them in committee? The easiest place to do battle is in committee. Now other lawmakers looking to the committee vote for direction won't see opposition to the purchase from the local senator.

Instead, Geake devotes his time to introducing welfare legislation designed to lessen the burden on the general assistance budget. Although noble in nature, such legislation seldom passes and only serves to upset Democrats — Democrats whose support Geake needs in the DeHoCo fight.

Geake has received strong voter support in the 6th District because of his tough stance on issues like welfare. But unless he starts taking an active role in issues which directly affect his district, Sen. Geake may find voters becoming disenchanted with his rhetoric.

Saving balloon fest good for community

REMEMBER LAST summer when Plymouth Township Park was adorned by the tranquil pageantry of colorful hot air balloons gracefully floating across the sky?

Who would have thought the delightful event last summer would have led to the release of so much hot air this winter in political circles? But such has been the case.

Plymouth Township, for whatever reason(s), has bailed out of the hot air balloon festival business. There were complaints about too much traffic, about the tranquility of nearby subdivisions being disturbed, about parking problems, damaged sod and the expense of shuttle bus operations.

None of these complaints was heard last summer, though, when thousands of people from Plymouth, Canton, Livonia, Westland, Northville and the surrounding communities flocked to Plymouth Township for weekend's festivities. The "problems" emerged when concerns were raised in the quiet of winter about the shuttle buses and damaged sod.

The City of Plymouth, as a matter of course, regularly replaces sod in Kellogg Park because of activities such as summer band concerts, art fairs and Fall Festival being held there. Sod replacement is seen as a cost of doing business and is not an issue.

SOD PROBABLY was not the issue in the township. Somehow an agreement was made that the township would arrange for the school district to provide shuttle buses, and somehow the cost wasn't nailed down. That seems to have been the major rub between the township and the balloon festival promoters — the Mayflower Hotel and Gordon Boring.

When the difference(s) could not be ironed out, the festival was canceled. The school board and Canton Township officials proposed holding the festival at the Centennial Educational Park (CEP), and the festival was on again.

The CEP is a large tract of land with plentiful parking. The parking lots for staff and students at Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton high schools provide many more spaces than Plymouth Township Park.

There also is logistical advantage to having the lots empty onto different roads (Canton Center and Joy). The presence of the two high schools plus Canton Phase II makes it convenient to provide the public with restrooms and concessions. Student groups have an excellent opportunity to operate concessions.

The CEP security staff is experienced in parking large number of cars as evidenced by the fine work they do at such events as graduation and the state marching band championships. The existence of two major feeder roads (Canton Center and Joy) also has its advantages, although there is bound to be a great deal of traffic congestion.

TRAFFIC CONGESTION and large crowds are the prices paid for success. Ann Arbor residents have learned to adjust to the congestion caused by 100,000 people converging into their residential neighborhoods six times a year for home football games. Plymouth and Canton residents living around the CEP are flexible enough to adjust to one weekend of success.

And it's worth the effort. The Observer agrees with Roland Thomas, president of the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education, that the Mayflower Hot Air Balloon Festival is a showcase for the Plymouth-Canton community. It contributes to the economic well-being of the area.

For that reason, there is nothing wrong with the school district and township joining hands with private business to promote a community event popular throughout the region. It's a shame that petty politics has tainted an event which has such a positive effect on the community.

The Observer hopes the effort to keep the balloon festival alive won't get bogged down by political bickering. There is enough exposure and identity to spread among the sponsors. Canton easily can get proper recognition and benefit from its involvement. The three parties involved can take a close look at their responsibilities and agree how to share the spotlight.

More important is that the school board, township board, Gordon Boring and Scott Lorenz reach agreement about what will be done with damaged sod, whether shuttle buses will be provided, who will pick up the bill, what will be done about traffic control, parking, concessions, etc.

We urge a spirit of cooperation among the parties as planning proceeds. The Observer, and most of its readers, would like the festival to get off the ground again.

Junky glut of credit cards

EACH DAY'S mail brings more junk from banks.

In the last month, at least a half-dozen banks tell me I've been pre-approved for lines of credit totalling $30,000. Just sign here.

Astounding.

Less than four years ago, I stopped at my neighborhood bank with the big blue sign to see about borrowing a couple grand for a little Plymouth Horizon. I wanted to do the patriotic thing during a recession by helping Lee Iacocca and all the suffering souls at Chrysler.

"We aren't seeking any new loans," the woman at the bank told me.

"You don't understand," I said. "I'm the one seeking the loan. It doesn't matter to me whether you seek a loan or not."

"We aren't seeking any new loans," she replied, robot-like. So I went to the credit union, but that's not what I'm writing about.

TODAY, BANKS in Detroit, New York, Chicago, San Francisco and all points in between are sending out gold credit cards, unsolicited.

Meanwhile, young couples need mortgage loans to buy houses. It's bad enough that housing prices have risen faster than inflation. When you consider the inflated interest rates those young folks have to pay for their inflated houses, you wonder how they can make it.

It seems to me that if some of that $30,000 credit could be made available to young couples needing housing, the economy would be healthier, and families would make smaller monthly payments.

Same with inventors. I've heard many a would-be entrepreneur lament the difficulty of obtaining venture capital.

Ditto with farmers. The same week I received a solicitation from a South Dakota bank, the entire South Dakota State Legislature was in Washington moaning for help for the farmers — credit help, among other things.

I send back all credit card applications with a note suggesting the banks' lending priorities are screwy.

DR. MARTHA Seger, former Oakland University professor who is now on the Federal Reserve Bank board, spoke in town last week. I asked her about it. President Reagan is concerned about supply side economics — which means farmers and entrepreneurs. Shouldn't he be concerned about this glut of retail credit?

"You're a good credit risk," she explained. "Banks are interested in the retail side. Those mailing lists are purchased from magazines."

"I can't imagine he (Reagan) would want to allocate credit or tell institutions how to allocate credit. I don't know how well you know the president, but I know his philosophy."

"Believe it or not, if you let the markets work, eventually things even out," Seger said.

WELL, SHE has three University of Michigan degrees in the economics fields, and I have only one, so she must know 50 percent more than I do.

Therefore, I won't suggest federal credit controls.

But if I grasp supply-side economics, the notion is that the New Deal and its successors kept stimulating consumer demand while regulating the incentive out of suppliers. The result was lots of money chasing too few goods — rising prices, even during recessions.

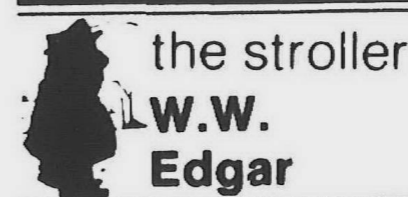

But if we stimulate inventors, house-builders and farmers with easier credit terms, we would increase the stock of goods and hold down inflation.

I was hoping the president would give me a "hero" citation for sending back all those credit card applications to the banks.

Hmmph! Not even an "attaboy."

TV bucks bring big salaries

the stroller
W.W.

THESE DAYS, the daily papers are filled with all sorts of stories dealing with the high salaries being paid to the top members of sports teams, be they baseball, football, basketball and prizefighting.

One National Football League player is being paid $7 million for five years. In baseball, the Tigers' Kirk Gibson has announced his plan to get more than $1 million a season — and the end is not in sight.

In a few days, Tommy Hearns, the Detroit fighter, is going to meet Marvin Hagler in Las Vegas. Each is signed for $1 million.

So the question is asked: How can the owners and the promoters pay that kind of money, especially when the seasons last only part of the year?

Well, the papers are beginning to supply the answers.

ACCORDING TO the latest information, baseball's major leagues are planning to increase the format of the league playoffs. That is the series to determine the teams that will meet in the World Series.

Ever since these series started, the playoffs were based on a best-three-of-five games. Now the plan is to increase it to four-of-seven. That means the owners will get more money from the crowds, and that will help pay the huge salaries.

But the big increase comes from television. Each club gets a big share of that money, and it goes a long way in meeting the salaries.

It is the same in the fight game. The Hearns-Hagler fight is being televised around the world, and it is expected to draw at least $20 million. so it is an easy matter to pay each fighter $5 million.

TOO BAD that Frank Navin, one-time what has happened. One of the favorite stories of ballplayers' salaries is the one told by David Jones, the old-time outfielder.

He and Sam Crawford were in the outfield when the Tigers won the pennant in 1909. They then sought Navin and asked for a raise.

Jones claimed he had scored the most runs, and said that runs win ball games. Navin listened, smiled, and then brought out the record book. He admitted Jones was right. Then he asked, "How many would you have scored if Crawford wasn't hitting behind you?"

Jones signed for the old price. Crawford followed and told Navin he had driven in more runs than anyone else, and that was what won the games. Navin looked at his record book again and said, "Sam, you're right. But how many would you have driven in if you didn't have a fast man like Jones on base?"

Crawford had to admit Navin was right. He, too, signed for his old price.

What a time the ballplayers would have if Frank Navin were still living and boss of the club.

Anti-smoking law could clear air

THE TABLES WERE placed corner to corner, forcing diners to rub shoulders with strangers. Holding a cigarette, one smoker rested his right hand on the table. The smoke wrapped around the face of an adjacent diner.

Sandra Armbruster

"Sir, please!" the diner said, looking pointedly at the cigarette. "Oh, sorry," the smoker said and moved the offensive stick.

Years ago it was good manners to ask — before lighting up — if smoking would bother a nearby person. That rarely happens now.

State Rep. Justine Barns, D-Westland, notes that not smoking is a "voluntary thing" on the four committees she serves.

"If that were the way to go, legislation wouldn't be necessary," Barns said.

BUT MORE OFTEN than not, it takes official action to make smokers sensitive to the distress caused non-smokers.

The Wayne-Westland school board, for instance, narrowly passed a ban last year on smoking during public meetings. The ban was requested by one board member bothered by asthma. The Schoolcraft College board passed a similar rule several years ago because some trustees were physically sickened by smoke.

Consideration should have snuffed out the smokes without legislation.

But we don't live in an ideal world. So Barns and state Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, have introduced into their respective houses of the Legislature bills which would prohibit smoking in public places.

At a news conference introducing the legislation, startling results of a survey by the University of Michigan Institute for Social Research also were distributed.

According to the survey, not only do 82.5 percent of the general population favor some restrictions on smoking in public places, so do 73.8 percent of those who smoke.

SO THE BILL ought to be destined for quick passage, right? Wrong.

Lobbyists for the tobacco industry will "shake the hustings" for tobacco and candy distributors, Faxon said.

"They'll make every mom and pop store in the state see this as a threat to business."

To do so, the tobacco industry will "use its money wisely to influence people," he added.

That's enough to make non-smokers, who only have votes to peddle, do a slow burn.

TOBACCO INSTITUTE spokesman Bill Aylward denies his organization will spend millions to thwart the legislation. But two tobacco companies did spend $1.2 million in an unsuccessful attempt to strangle a San Francisco ordinance.

Aylward also disputes reports which claim passive smoke inhaled by non-smokers is damaging. The smoke is merely "irritating and annoying" to non-smokers, he said.

"The position we take is that we can't imagine a city council levying a $500 daily fine for anyone bringing the flu to work. Yet that is a health hazard."

That kind of specious reasoning ignores the real issue: Catching the flu is accidental; lighting a cigarette is not. And there is no escape from those noxious clouds in closed, poorly ventilated rooms.

In fact, a February 1985 Consumer Reports issue cited by Aylward notes that the more concentrated the smoke in a room, the greater is the risk. Passive smoke may not cause disease in healthy people, according to the article, but it does impair some lung function and is hazardous to those with chronic illnesses.

YET AYLWARD says that non-smokers have "tears of rage rather than from physiological effects." Unlike nuclear war, he added, "it's obvious it's something people can react to."

He's partially correct. Who wouldn't be outraged after putting up with clothing that reeks with smoke and eyes that burn only to find the tobacco industry is out to override the promise of relief?

Maybe the issue will get constituents fired up enough to clear the air for dubious legislators.

For women starting business

Women considering starting their own businesses can benefit from a day-long workshop Saturday, April 20, at Schoolcraft College, 18600 Haggerty, Livonia.

The morning panel will explore setting goals, pricing goods and services, dealing with shopkeepers and using computers in a home-based business.

The afternoon panel will address inurance needs, legal and financial fundamentals and funding. Allen Cook from the U.S. Small Business Administration will discuss SBA sources.

A $15 registration fee includes a gourmet luncheon. Registration information is available from Schoolcraft's community services office at 591-8400 ext. 409.

RUSSELL DWYER was out the other morning, walking his sprnger spaniel

"We were just on the border of Plymouth Township Park in a wooded area when I saw the balloon, lying by the fence," said Russell.

He picked up the tatters of a yellow balloon with a note attached. The typewritten message had been laminated in plastic, so it was perfectly legible. It read: "Hello, To celebrate Reading Month in Michigan, I have done some extra reading and joined in a colorful balloon blast. When you find my balloon or this tag, would you please write me at my school address? If my balloon travels the farthest, I will receive a prize of posters and books. My address is, Joshua Schmalz, Bridgman Elementary School, 3891 Lake Street, Bridgman, MI 49106 P.S. Please be sure to mention where you found my tag."

Russell checked the location of Bridgman on a Michigan road map

"There's Bridgman," he said, pointing to a spot not too far from the Indiana border by Lake Michigan. He estimated it was about 180 miles from Plymouth. When he writes to Joshua, he's going to ask him his age and the date of the balloon blast.

"I think it was caught in the branches of a tree, then fell to the ground. It was just about 150 yards from the launching site for our balloon festival," Russell said.

"He'll let us know what he hears from Joshua."

TALKED TO Peter Sparing Monday morning and discovered I had the wrong date for the closing of the Martha Graham production in the Lincoln Center. It runs through April 21, not April 27.

Peter said their audiences had been growing since the show opened. It's an enormous auditorium, I don't know how many it seats, but it seems about 4,000.

He said Martha Graham, at 91, comes in every afternoon for rehearsals and comes to the theater every night.

She doesn't perform any more, but it's thrilling to see her so lucid at 91. And when she goes on stage to take her bow, the audiences go wild.

I asked him if there would be any chance of seeing her new work.

"Song," on public television, had been videotaped at the Lincoln Center," Peter said they planned to tape "Song" during a performance in Denmark. It probably will be shown on television next fall.

Peter met Martha Graham in 1972 and joined her company in 1973. While earning his bachelor of fine arts degree at Juillard, he choreographed and danced with the Martha Graham Apprentice Group and was a member of the Jose Limon Dance Company.

MICHELLE HOWELL, a 1983 graduate of Plymouth Salem High School, was crowned "Sweetheart of Tau Kappa Epsilon Fraternity," Omega chapter, Albion College. She was named at the annual Red Carnation Ball.

Michelle is an accounting major at Albion College and an active member of Alpha Xi Delta Sorority. She spends her summers working at the Willow Tree in Plymouth. Her parents are Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Howell of Beacon Hill Drive, Plymouth Township.

BETTY NORMAN reports the acquisition of several memorial books by the Plymouth Historical Museum, honoring members of the Historical Society who died during the past year. They are:

For Don Sober, "Wallpapers for Historic Buildings" by Richard C. Nylander.

For Jane Moehle, "An Everyday Guide to Exploring the American Past" by David Weitzman.

For Dorothy and Larry Becker, "Fiery Trail" (the great fire of 1881 that swept Michigan's Thumb), by Judge James H. Lincoln and James Donahue.

For Clarence Moore, "Practical Blacksmithing," by M.T. Richardson.

"Fat" Bob Taylor

The pop concert theme, "Give Our Regards," leaves little doubt as to its musical mood. Conductor Johan van der Merwe has programmed favorites from Broadway musicals. The Plymouth Symphony will play familiar tunes from "The Sound of Music," "Fiddler on the Roof," "West Side Story," "Carousel," "Porgy and Bess" and "New Moon."

Reservations may be made at the Early American Shop, 621 S. Main, Plymouth for the Saturday, April 27 concert in the cafeteria of Plymouth Canton High School. Reserved seating tickets are $8 for adults and $6 for senior citizens and students. For mail orders, send check and a stamped self-addressed envelope to: Plymouth Symphony League, 45501 Turtlehead Court, Plymouth, Mich. 48170.

Concert time will be 7:30 p.m. and the doors will open at 7 p.m.

PERFORMING with the orchestra will be guest soloists "Fat" Bob Taylor and Barbara Kondalski. It will be Taylor's second appearance with the Plymouth Symphony.

He is host of WJR Radio's Great Weekend on Saturday mornings. For the past 14 years he has sung the National Anthem at Tiger Stadium and the Silverdome. The recording star has been a guest on the Kelly & Co. television show.

Taylor was working on a construction job in Ann Arbor when he called J.P. McCarthy, who was broadcasting on WJR, to complain about a flat note. McCarthy challenged him to do better.

Then and there, he sang "Vesti la Giuba" from "I Pagliacci."

That marked the beginning of his career on radio. It was McCarthy who dubbed him "Fat" Bob the Singing Plumber, for he actually was a plumber.

BARBARA Kondalski is one of Toledo's most versatile performers.

She made her New York Town Hall debut premiering the songs of Charles Haubiel. She has soloed with the Miami Philharmonic and the Lima, Toledo and Detroit symphonies in oratorio and operatic works.

A former Dearborn resident and a graduate of Marygrove College, she is the daughter of the late Dr. John Sturbis. She has given concerts at the Detroit Institute of Arts, the Toledo Art Museum, and sung with the Michigan Opera and Overture to Opera under David Di Chiara.

Her singing roles include Marcellina in "The Marriage of Figaro," Domina in "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," Mrs. Sowerberry in "Oliver," Mother Abbess in "Sound of Music," Agnes Gooch and Vera Charles in "Mame," Lalume in "Kismet" and Aunt Alicia in "Gigi."

She is the mother of four children, teaches voice and vocal theory, and directs musicals at Cardinal Stritch High School in Toledo.

For ticket information, call 459-7016 or 455-3199. The Prelude group of the Plymouth Symphony League is arranging the concert with proceeds going to the support of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra.

Spring's the time to learn new skills

Spring workshops offered by the Plymouth Community Arts Council have been planned with an eye to adding a decorator touch to homes and gardens.

During a three-hour class, participants will make a colonial beehive from wheat straw. For $6 tuition and $15 for materials, the result will be a charming straw bee skep for a flower or herb garden.

Usual retail cost for the hive is more than $40.

Marilyn Toth will instruct the class on country-decorated flower pots and baskets. Using the techniques of sponge painting and stenciling, students will complete attractive baskets to hold an ivy, napkins, or whatever. Matching decorated clay flower pots will decorate a porch or windowsill.

Grace Kabel's students will weave a slim tote basket that could be an attractive summer purse, a sewing basket, or a tote for magazines or newspapers.

Beth Komescher will teach the basic skills of making decorative lampshades in the popular pierced style. She'll also offer unusual ideas for lamp bases.

Linda DenHaan's primitive doll workshop will recreate dolls sewn a century ago by little girls. Materials fee of $12 includes a copy of the book "From the Prairie Child's Memories" by J. Vibert and L. Brannock, which contains patterns and information to make more dolls.

Arts council workshops teach a variety of craft skills. The colonial rag dolls are replicas of those made by girls 100 years ago and the straw beehives also are from days of the early settlers. Stenciled and sponged flower pots and baskets add a decorator touch to patios and porches. Two of the workshops are designed for children.

Congratulations to Nancy, Rick, Shirley and Joe

Happy Birthday! Am I behind. So many good people have had their birthdays pass without proper recognition or remembrance, or, in at least one case, sympathy.

It seems that while I was preoccupied keeping you up-to-date on community events, a black day passed as a tiny, but powerful, redhead turned a major corner in her life. I don't know if she wants her exact age mentioned, but her family turned in ALL the vital statistics and I feel obligated to at least give you a hint. Would you consider that really unfair? Anyway, Nancy McGuire is one decade closer to Social Security, unless they raise the age of eligibility again. I don't see why Nancy should get upset. I should have looked that good when I turned 20, or 21, or 22, or 19. When did I lose it?

Oh well, congratulations Nancy. Hope you had a great one and will have many, many more.

SPEAKING OF redheads, I have two more.

Remember the young fellow I mentioned, the cousin my sweet son bit in the leg to stop him from walking? It seems he read that column. So just in case he makes that a regular habit, I think I had better say happy birthday, Rick.

You see, in spite of the severe bite, he managed to grow to 6 feet something. You know the kind — they look like a tree.

I think they were put here on earth to tell us when we are getting old, because we get a kink in our necks when we talk to them. Perhaps that's the real reason each generation gets taller.

Rick is one of those college types, going into business management computer, something, something. The type of kid you know soon will be after your husband's job. Can you remember when you were just starting out? We all thought people over 40 were rude and stuck-up and seemed to think they were so much smarter and better than we? Now we understand. They simply were trying to ignore us because they knew we were the new age, the younger generation. They knew we soon would be after their jobs... just like my nasty son and nephew are right now.

Happy birthday anyway, Rick Byrnes. Thought I would forget, didn't you?

ON TO THE SECOND redhead — a close friend and neighbor, Shirley Roberts. Shirley and I have a great agreement. I don't mention in print how old she is, and she doesn't ask me if I've got my housework done. AND, she let's me swim in her pool all summer!

But I'm sure I'm allowed to wish her well and let all her friends know that now is the time to start showering her with expensive gifts. When I say now, I mean now. You never know when she'll get up and scoot over to Wisconsin to visit her incredible granddaughter, Jessica!

So happy birthday, Shirley, and many, many more! When does the pool open?

Remember the birthday wish to my son? Well, Shirley has a son of her own

Canton chatter

Sandy Preblich

who is pretty special indeed. Good looking, respectful of his elders, and terrific to his mom, Joe Roberts just turned 21, too!

Actually, he and my son Brian were inseparable when they were younger. Both grew to be over 6 feet, both worked out in the gym, and both messed up their knees. Joe, as some of you may recall, played football for Salem. He graduated in 1982, and, like Brian, had to give up any thoughts of college sports due to knee surgery.

But Joe is in excellent health, and as any girl in our neighborhood will tell you, excellent physical shape too! I refuse to make any statements as to whether he knows where the dishwasher is, although I know Shirley had him in intense training last time he was home on break. Joe attends school in Illinois. We wish him not only the best birthday, but a terrific year for a terrific guy with the cutest little twinkle in his eyes. Happy birthday, Joe.

I GUESS spring cleaning is on my mind.

I gave up housework years ago. After all, something had to go, and I picked housework! It seemed the right thing to do.

Just think about it. How many times in your life did your mother tell you, "Don't start something you can't finish?" Now, do you know ANYBODY who can honestly say that she has finished her housework? Me neither.

So out of respect for my mother, not to mention a complete lack of ability, I don't even try to start what I KNOW I cannot possibly finish.

As a wise son of mine once told me, "But Mom, why should I clean my room while I'm on summer vacation? You'll just want me to do it again at Christmas!" Somehow there is a simple logic in that.

MORE congratulations are in order but not for a birthday.

These are for the Canton Whoppers, our seniors volleyball team. That's right! When I warned you to catch them in action, I meant action. The Whoppers just finished first in the B Division of the S.P.R.I. (Sports Program for Retirees Inc.).

So, hats off to our team: Adam Brozek, Capt. Al Dill, Walt Dziegieleski, Lew Fitchett, John Frazee, Alex and Lenore Jagodzinski, Joe Jagodzinski, Joan Jasin and Wilma Rising. They did a darn sight more than many of us accomplished over the winter.

Keep those cards and letters coming in for Bart Berg as he is convalescing at home, 48630 Michigan Ave. Canton, 48188. Bart's name is ever present in the Rotary and the Historical Society. He is sort of the spirit behind the township, and a real booster for bridging the gap between the old and the new Canton. I'm afraid without Bart's prodding and sly maneuvering, many of us would never get involved in half the community projects that we do.

He has this way of making you see what he envisions, and then somehow you feel compelled to help him achieve it!

A sneaky guy if I ever met one. Get well soon Bart or we are all going to get real lazy.

DON'T FORGET to catch the Channel 56 Auction which begins tomorrow, Friday, April 12. Lots of good bargains, plenty of excitement and a good cause to boot! I'll be there, somewhere behind the scenes, watching for calls from Canton. Be one.

NEXT WEEK on the Sandy Show on Omnicom, we'll be speaking to the frightening and very real threat of teen-age suicides. The number has more than doubled in a little more than a decade, compared to the overall increase of 25 percent in all suicides. These numbers should give you some idea of the urgency of this information. The program is expected to air 4:30 p.m. Monday, April 15, and 9:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 17. Check the listings provided by this paper on Monday. If you can't catch the program, seek information elsewhere... now.

On that cheerful note, I'll say so long for now. Call me if you have anything cheerier. I need your help to write about you!

John Hoover, director of International Ministries, demonstrates one of a series of hand movements used to help participants remember key events during the Walk Through the Bible seminar.

Trip through the Bible

CALVARY BAPTIST CHURCH in Canton is inviting area residents to let their fingers do the walking through the pages of the Bible.

The educational journey will focus on the Old Testament in a six-hour seminar Saturday, April 20 sponsored by the church at 43065 Joy Road. The seminar was developed by Walk Through the Bible Ministries and is non-denominational and non-doctrinal.

Emphasis is on helping participants to better understand the sequence of events through a running narrative of the entire Old Testament.

"It's like a charismatic Tupperware party," one of the seminar's developers is quoted as saying.

A series of hand motions is used to help participants remember key events.

Cost of the seminar is $28 per person, $43 per couple or families at $48. Student and senior citizen rate is $23. For more information, call 455-0022.

New Beginnings: for those who grieve

"We had just had our 40th wedding anniversary," the widow told the minister as they talked about her husband's funeral. Forty years of marriage is a lot of memories.

New Beginnings is a program which helps people to find the many ways to effectively grieve. Using memories is one way.

New Beginnings is a four-week course with a follow-up support group which will begin at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 16 at St. Matthew's United Methodist Church, 30900 Six Mile Road, Livonia.

The class is taught by Rev. Robert Weikart and physician Dr. James Peggs. Weikart is a pastoral consultant at the University of Michigan Medical School's Department of Family Practice. He also does counseling at the Family Practice Center in Chelsea.

FOR WEIKART, personal insight on grieving stemmed from the loss of his wife when he was a still a seminary student. He struggled alone, finding that long walks and physical work helped through this period of loss. As a hospital chaplain, he also found that 80 to 90 percent of the patients he saw had experienced a significant loss before they entered the hospital. It was one of the facts that led him to believe that grieving openly helps to keep a person healthy.

A major focus of Weikart's course is his insistence upon the importance for grieving people to tell the story of their loss.

"We are strong advocates of meditation, instead of medication," according to Weikart.

Weikart says that many people do not allow themselves to express their loss fully.

"They feel they should be over it, or they think they are crazy when still grieving years later," he said.

That is why storytelling and recalling memories is an important part of getting well, he said.

"When people share their stories, they find they are not crazy. They learn that others have experienced the same thing," he added.

It's the beginning of the road back, he said.

For more information on the program, call 422-6038.

Reason to think we run on fear

A little bit of fear can be a good thing. It keeps people from getting hit by trucks, struck by lightning and any number of other disasters. But fear also has a way of diminishing the very lives it claims to be saving.

While the fear of water can prevent drowning, an overdose of that same fear can prevent one from ever learning to swim or from enjoying a boat ride. Teaching children not to ride with strangers is one thing, but instilling in them the kind of fear that keeps everyone around them a stranger is quite another.

This all came sadly to mind lately in talking to a young person who is afraid to meet anyone for fear of what that person might emotionally do to hurt her. There is little doubt that what might have started out as a healthy fear has run amok.

Actually, the young lady may typify the society of which we are all a part. There seems to be good reason to believe that we are a society that runs on fear. And very little thought seems to be given to which of it is healthy and which causes us to be less than our moral perspectives

human dignity deserves.

PERHAPS IT DOES not go well to suggest that we are a society which runs on fear. Adults, no less than children, do not like being told that they are "scaredy cats." But look at us. And like it or not, until we call it for what it is, we have little chance of growing out of it. Fear is alive and well and in many instances, we are the losers.

The international community wheels and deals daily out of fear of what another nation, another culture or another lifestyle will do to threaten its own. Within our own nation, fear continues to dictate our priorities. So it is that major portion of our national monies go to the manufacturers of war machinery while needy senior citizens go without.

The builders of such machinery thrive on the fear of a nation even while they themselves run on fear. How else can we explain their elaborate lobby system designed to convince Congress to allocate more "defense" money lest they lose a contract or fail to get another one. One person suggested to me that other people's fear is his bread and butter.

RELIGIONS OFTEN seem to be into fear as much as governments. How else can we account for so many people holding to a God who is more frightening than loving? While the really great religious leaders have not deemed it necessary or good to resort to fear as the medium of their message, many of their followers have seemed to miss the point.

Jesus, for one, would more likely have difficulty with much of what is insisted upon in his name. But then one of his often repeated admonitions was, "Do not be afraid."

Even on an individual basis, fear is often what diminishes our lives. The young woman to whom I referred is not alone. Being open with another human being is often seen as stupid and counterproductive to the personal arms races in which we often take part. And like the national model, such races sap an awful lot of resources that could be put to better use.

The really sad part of all of this is we tend to do homage to the very fears that diminish us. In short, we have been sold out. National fear has been re-named patriotism. Religions call it holiness. Individuals refer to it as wisdom or self-protection. And who can be against any of that?

Keep news writers off baseball beat

The rites (and wrongs) of spring.

REMEMBER WHEN Free Press sports columnist Mike Downey wrote daily columns about the 1984 presidential election campaigns? I remember reading numerous comments from indignant readers wondering how the Free Press could let, god-forbid, a sportswriter cover something as significant as an election.

Well, after all the hub-bub over the Tigers season opener, I'm wondering why the Free Press would allow so many news writers to cover a baseball game? It made for some pretty dull reading. You couldn't say Downey's political writing was dull.

The spring sports season kicks into gear Monday. All those suntanned athletes can put their rusty talents to work on the field or the track.

Perhaps I shouldn't let this Easter exodus thing bother me. After all, there's no crime in students wanting to spend their vacation time in sunny Florida.

On the other hand, if you make a commitment to play a spring sport, and that team practices or plays games during the break, you should honor your commitment to the team. That means no Florida trip. If the trip is that important, don't play spring sports.

I don't know, I'm probably just jealous. I couldn't afford to go to Florida when I was in high school and I certainly can't afford to go now.

Still, I can't help rooting for teams that stay home and play ball over the break.

MEANINGLESS PREDICTIONS: Salem will win the Lakes Division and Canton will win the Western in the Western Lakes. Walled Lake Western, after its state title a year ago, will falter this year. Livonia Churchill will average 7-10 runs per game and give up 10-12. Farmington will be the surprise team in the league and seriously challenge Salem in the Lakes. Canton wins its first Western Lakes title and makes it to the regional finals.

Garden City baseball coach Bob Dropp could become the first coach in recent memory to win two Northwest Suburban League titles the same year. Dropp's Cougars won the NSL basketball title earlier this year and his baseball team is favored to win as well.

IT'S AMAZING the type of athletic success Garden City has had since combining two high schools (Garden City East and Garden City West). The Cougars were 7-2 and fourth in Observerland in football. And they were champs in volleyball, wrestling and basketball. Are you listening Plymouth-Canton Community Schools?

It's also amazing how the Garden City community supports its athletic program and how the Garden City district administration supports its coaching staff. Two long-time coaches, Dean Shipman and Chris Babler, were promoted to administrative roles in the district.

Next time Plymouth-Canton wants to do a comparative study on how area schools operate, focus on Garden City.

MORE MEANINGLESS predictions: Bishop Borgess will win the Observerland Boys Relays and Churchill will win the Observerland Girls Relays. Farmington boys will be the champions of the Western Lakes track and the Falcon girls won't be as bad as coach Jerry Young says they'll be. I really can't tell who will win the Western Lakes girls meet. If I had to pick, I'd say Churchill. Glenn's girls dominate the NSL and its anyone's guess for the boys.

Long range forecast: Look for Farmington Hills Mercy's Michelle Fryatt to be one of Observerland's best point guards next season.

Plymouth Salem softball coach Rob Willette is generally very low keyed when he discusses his players. That's why I'm excited to see Salem's Leslie Plichta play this season. Here's what Willette had to say about this junior.

"Leslie Plichta is the best outfielder in the state. LIVONIA STEVENSON will be one of the favored teams to win the state title in girls soccer. The Spartans won the title two years ago, but were upset last year by a scrappy Northville team. That loss continued an unusual string of bad luck for the Spartans in state tournament play.

The boys soccer team made it to the state finals and lost to Troy Athens (for the second straight year). The Spartans' boys and girls swim teams, after dominating the area, faltered in the state meet the past two seasons. The Spartans' volleyball team lost in the state finals in 1984 and in the state semifinals this year. The Stevenson hockey team, always powerful in the area, was knocked out in the first round of the state tourney this season.

Still, how many Observerland schools can boast of having as many opportunities for state titles as Stevenson has? Not many.

A POST-MORTEM boys basketball item: The talk around the Catholic Central basketball camp was that the reason Ken George transferred from CC to Farmington Harrison was that he was told he didn't have the physical tools needed to play regularly at CC. I can't help thinking that George would have taken a huge load of John McIntyre this year. George could have brought the ball up court, which no other Shamrock could do consistently this season besides Mac.

One last note: I would like to extend, on behalf of this sports department, a special congratulations to John Glenn basketball star Mike Baydarian. For two straight years, Baydarian missed making All-Area first team by one vote. But Mike Baydarian was a special player and a special person. His talent on the court (his sweet jump shot and his deceptive passing skills) will be missed. Even more, I'll miss the class and sportsmanship he displayed on the basketball court, win or lose. I wish there were more players like him.

It's been a long road, but for the first time, it appears the level of high school girls soccer in the Plymouth-Canton area is equal to that of the vaunted Livonia teams.

"The new players coming in get better every year," said Plymouth Salem coach Ken Johnson. "This year, I can see three or four freshmen starting right away."

Freshmen are making their mark in the Plymouth-Canton camp also. Coach Mike Morgan is counting on at least two freshmen to crack the starting lineup.

The heavily populated youth soccer programs in the Plymouth-Canton community are certainly responsible for the recent influx of talented players. Freshmen players are coming into high school soccer programs with three to five years of playing experience.

For many years, only the Livonia teams had the advantage of youth soccer programs. Now Plymouth-Canton and Farmington have improved youth programs and are finally able to compete with the Livonians.

Observerland has become a hot-bed of soccer talent. The Western Lakes Soccer League has produced the state's only two champions (Stevenson and Northville). And while the other teams have improved, the league remains dominated by the three Livonia powers: Stevenson, Churchill and Bentley.

Can Salem or Canton unseat these perennial powers in 1985? Here's a pre-season glimpse at the Centennial Educational Park squads.

PLYMOUTH SALEM

Ken Johnson's team finished 8-7-1 last year and lost standouts Shelley Staszal, Colleen O'Connor and Sarah Wallman to graduation.

But Johnson thinks his crew will be a factor in the Western Lakes.

"With our newcomers, plus our returning strength, I think we can challenge Stevenson for at least the division title. Churchill is the team to beat for the conference and state, though."

Three seniors and two juniors will supply Salem with a strong, experienced nucleus. Seniors Ruth Knoerl (all-division defender), Fran Whittaker (all-division wing) and Tracey Greenhalge (midfielder) return, as do juniors Julie Tortora (35 goals in two seasons) and Suzie Balconi (midfielder).

Ah, but those freshmen. Dena Head has terrorized the youth soccer fields the past three years with her explosive style of play. The strong and extremely quick winger should have an immediate effect upon the Rocks' offense.

Other freshmen expected to contribute are Rachael Thiet (back), Ellen Schnackel (defense), Tracey Krajewski (midfield) and goalie Karen Phillippi. Sophomore Lisa Hysko also will help out at midfield.

"Our strength will be our overall fitness, good team spirit, strong young bench and a dynamite front three with Tortora, Whittaker and Head — they should give us all the goals we need."

Johnson, though, is worried about his team's lack of experience, especially in goal, where freshman Phillippi is replacing all-stater Wallman.

Salem will open the season this weekend at the Schoolcraft Invitational.

PLYMOUTH CANTON

Second-year coach Mike Morgan put his team through an intense pre-season aerobic conditioning program, and he's hoping the Chiefs will be able to dance their way to a division title.

"We hope to improve our record (which was an impressive 11-5-1), although the other teams in the league are very strong," Morgan said. "The loss of key players due to job commitments will hurt defensively, but our fitness and skills should help us attain our goal of a division championship."

Canton, Salem battle for S'craft kick title

By Robert McElhany
special writer

The competition will be fierce Friday and Saturday when 16 teams compete in Schoolcraft College's fifth annual High School Girls Soccer Invitational.

Defending state Class A champion Northville returns to the tournament along with last year's Schoolcraft winner, Livonia Churchill. Tournament runner-up Troy Athens also returns.

Churchill coach and tournament director Ed Dudek, whose squad beat Athens 1-0 for last year's crown, said any of four teams, including his own, have the best shot at winning the tournament.

"Northville, Athens, Troy and ourselves are the strongest of the bunch," he said. "Plymouth Salem will also be tough. Other teams to watch out for include Plymouth Canton, Farmington Hills Mercy, Fraser and Brighton."

LIVONIA FRANKLIN, Garden City,

Dearborn, Dearborn Fordson, Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher, Harper Woods Regina and Madison Heights Bishop Foley round out the weekend invitational, which will run 2-6 p.m. on Friday and 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday. The championship game is scheduled for 1 p.m. Saturday.

Tournament matches consist of two, 25-minute halves in favor of the standard 45-minute periods. Games tied at the end of regulation play will be decided by a pair of 5-minute overtimes, followed (if necessary) by a pair of 5-minute sudden death periods and (if necessary) a shootout.

Key players to watch, according to Dudek, include forwards Jennifer Flowers and Jennifer Huegll of Churchill; goalie Tricia Ducker and halfback Kathy Korwin of Northville, center Sheila Brett, Athens; halfback Liz Suttie, Troy; forward Dena Head, Salem; center-half Annette Ruggiero, Mercy; forward/halfback Tamara Brown, Dearborn; and forward Jenny Wilcox, Brighton.

Wayne State's maestro still 'foiling' them

By Tom Panzenhagen
staff writer

Istvan Danosi cultivates fencers. He grew a bumper crop of All-Americans at Wayne State University, where his mens teams won NCAA championships five times in 11 years. His last title in 1982 capped a 25-year career with WSU.

Danosi also sowed a rich harvest for his coaching successor — former student Gil Pezza — who has returned the NCAA crown to WSU each of the last three seasons. The Tartans wrapped up their eighth championship in 14 years with a come-from-behind win over Notre Dame in South Bend, Ind., last week.

Now the 73-year-old Danosi, who retired from the collegiate fencing wars following the 1982 season, teaches fencing to children, housewives and weekend athletes twice a week at the Michigan Academy of Fencing in Southfield.

If you think that's a step down from what he calls "the glory years" of the mid-1970s, when he built a collegiate fencing dynasty, think again.

Danosi still thrives on coaching, and to see him thrust and parry with his newest proteges is to know this man is in his element wherever swords are crossed.

And he's still nurturing champions.

"FENCING is like flowers," Danosi said. "Depending when you plant is when they flourish. It's nice to start early."

One who flourished is 26-year-old Jon Zelkowsky, who was 17 when he started working with Danosi at the fencing academy, which then had recently opened in Birmingham. It moved to the Brace Lederle School in Southfield in 1978.

Zelkowsky went on to star with the WSU fencers from 1977 to 1981. He just finished his fourth year as fencing coach at Roper City and Country School. And earlier this month he won the Michigan fencing championships, qualifying him for the June national finals in Cleveland.

Another budding champion is 18-year-old Ivan Madrid of Lathrup Village, a University of Detroit High School senior who was 13 when he began fencing at the academy. He finished second to Zelkowsky in the men's division in the state championships, and he won the high school division.

He, too, is headed for the nationals in Cleveland, and then on to WSU, Harvard or Columbia.

Add them to the list of athletes who have blossomed under Danosi's steady hand.

DANOSI — known to former students, associates and even his youngest pupils as "Maestro" — started coaching at WSU in 1958.

He said he regrets having retired three years ago, but the academy keeps him busy. And he looks trim and vigorous enough to out-duel any of his students.

"Very few people know what fencing offers for the human body," he said. "It's like a very active chess game. You have to think, and at the same time you have to move."

"It's the only sport where there is no age limit, no weight difference, no sex difference. You join with each other by the blade."

"But fencing is not a popular sport because it's so fast. It's like opera. Maybe you can't enjoy opera but you like operetta, like 'My Fair Lady,' because you can understand it."

"People watch fencing and get interested in it maybe a couple minutes, and that's it. I would like to strengthen the sport 10 times better than what it is today."

Toward that end Danosi is seeking a permanent home for his academy. Despite a record of successes he said, "We greatly appreciate the city of Southfield giving us sponsorship twice a week, but that is not enough time to improve people."

His students might disagree. TWELVE-YEAR-OLD Andrew Mutch of Novi, a first-year academy student with an eye on the future, said, "Maestro makes it a challenge. He really pushes you and wants you to do your best. Fencing is something you can do for a lifetime — and it can get you a scholarship into college."

Don Hoag of Southfield — at 43 one of the older students in the academy — has just ordered his own fencing equipment. He compared the workouts to aerobics, saying, "You get into a lot of positions you're not used to."

Madrid said the key to Danosi's success is, "He's really dynamic. He makes you work hard during every lesson."

According to colleague Yuri Rabinovich, "Maestro's very strict when he has to be. He enjoys teaching, but he also enjoys having a good time after an event."

JERRY ZOLYNSKY/staff photographer

What keeps Danosi in fencing? "It's the only sport where there is no age limit, no weight difference, no sex difference. You join with each other by the blade."

Rabinovich went to many events with Danosi as a WSU All-American in the mid-1970s. He's now assistant coach at WSU and an associate of Danosi's at the fencing academy.

"Of course he was fencing for a long time — 50, 60 years — he knows it well. He has a good personality for teaching and a lot of charisma," Rabinovich said.

Andrew Mutch's mother, Kathleen, tied Danosi's accomplishments to his rapport with students.

"Look at him," she said as Danosi worked on a youngster's lunge. "He's got that accent and he looks so imposing. He works them hard, but the kids take it. They really look up to him."

THE ACCENT is Hungarian, Danosi's home until he fled to the United States during the Russian invasion of 1956.

After a brief stop in Yonkers, N.Y., he settled in Southfield, where he still lives with his wife, Margit.

The Danosis have two children — Steve, yet another WSU fencing All-American during the mid-1970s and now a doctor, and Margit, who fenced at WSU at a time when women's fencing was not a varsity sport.

IF YOU WANT to join with Danosi "by the blade," the next 10-week session starts April 16.

Classes run 7-10 p.m. Tuesdays and Fridays at Brace Lederle, on Nine Mile between Evergreen and Southfield roads. Cost is $60 and includes all equipment — a mask, jacket and sword.

The workouts are divided so beginners receive attention 7-8 p.m. Individual instruction is offered more advanced students for the last two hours, but beginners may also participate.

To register or for more information, call 355-1326.

Salem, Canton strikers put WLAA title in sight

Canton did sustain some significant losses from a year ago: All-Area standout Margie Wangbichler and Kim Reeves are gone from the defense, and Lori Engel and Nancy Gray will be missed at midfield.

But a talented group of returnees help boost Canton's optimism. All-Area midfielder Lisa Russell is back for her 3rd and final season. Juniors Beth Frigge, Jenny Thomas and Kendra Whiteley plus sophomores Cheryl Nippa and Kellie Daily will be prominent players for the Chiefs.

"Our strength will be that we have experienced players in key positions," Morgan said.

Morgan is high on four others new to the Canton lineup: freshmen Michelle Lonigro and Renee Rice, sophomore Shelly Tutor and senior Kelly Murphy (an ex-track standout at Canton).

Morgan's biggest concern is a group of young and untested defensemen and the goaltending.

The Chiefs also open this weekend in the Schoolcraft tournament.

Injuries slow Slavin's bid for big time

By C.J. Rieak
staff writer

College life as an athlete hasn't been a giant surprise for Dave Slavin, but it hasn't been everything he thought it would be, either.

For one thing, it's starting a year late.

Slavin was one of the top college baseball prospects in the state when he graduated from Plymouth Salem 2 years ago. A catcher, Slavin pounded opposing pitchers for a .519 batting average with 6 homers and 45 runs batted in during his senior season at Salem.

THAT KIND of performance earned him All-State honors. He was voted the top baseball player in the Observer coverage area.

Lots of colleges were interested in Slavin, but he wanted a top-notch baseball school. Missouri called, and Slavin signed.

There are few conferences in the NCAA that can match the Big Eight for baseball. Three of the circuit's schools — Oklahoma, Oklahoma State and Nebraska — are ranked among the nation's top 10. Missouri isn't far behind, rated among the best 15.

PUT BLUNTLY, potential is at a premium.

"I wouldn't say it surprised me," said Slavin of the high grade of talent. "I knew it would be good."

"When I was in high school I tried to picture it in my mind, what it would be like. But there are so many things you have to learn. Here, you have to do all the little things right."

Slavin's education was delayed when he developed tendonitis in his wrist early last season.

"I really couldn't do too much," he said. "I could throw but really couldn't hit. So I played hard all summer and came here knowing that I would have to prove myself."

SLAVIN GOT his summer work in playing for Dearborn Vacuum in the Detroit Adray League. He was redshirted last season, saving a year of eligibility, and now admits that his injury may have been "the best thing that could have happened. I wouldn't have played too much, anyway."

That's because Missouri had Roger Johnson catching. Johnson was drafted and signed by the Philadelphia Phillies after last season.

With Johnson gone, four players share time at catcher for coach Gene McArtor, including Slavin. Junior Matt Greer is No. 1, and with good reason, according to Slavin.

"EXPERIENCE MEANS a lot here," he said. "It's a whole different game than in high school. In high school, you could get away with a lot of little things. Even if I made a mistake, I knew I would play the next game no matter what."

"Here, you make a mistake, well, you don't get that many chances. There's a lot of pressure on you, but you can't play like there is."

So far, pressure hasn't bothered Slavin. He appeared in 9 of Missouri's first 36 games (a 26-10 record), batting 17 times and collecting 7 hits for a .412 average with one double and 3 RBI. He had 2 errors afield for a .935 average.

LEARNING THINGS like "framing a pitch" and "working on defense, which I need," are what Slavin is concentrating on. It's the little refinements that he thinks will make him that much better. He committed only 3 errors his entire senior season at Salem, but that was high school.

And despite his current lofty batting average, Slavin felt he was just starting to come around with the bat.

"They changed my hitting stance around," he explained. "They wanted me to hit with more power. At Salem, I used mostly my arms and hands. Now I'm using my whole body."

THE ADJUSTMENT hasn't been easy. "I really haven't started to hit the way they want me to hit. I'm just now starting to feel comfortable with it."

"When coach (McArtor) told me, 'This is the way I want you to hit,' I was a bit stubborn. I thought, 'I got here hitting like this, why change now?'"

After talking to other players and coaches, Slavin became more receptive to the idea. He hopes his potent bat will earn him some playing time, but he knows it won't make him a star.

"They'll take the best defensive catcher and play him every time over the better bat," he said.

So Slavin knows the score, and he knows how to improve his own chances. The year he missed was of no benefit to his development in the field, but it did help him realize just what it was going to take to make it in the Big Eight.

Dave Slavin is finally finding the swing that made him one of Observerland's most dangerous hitters when he played at Plymouth Salem.

Jacquemart Trophy awarded

Race drivers Mario Andretti and Rene Dreyfus were named co-winners of Renault USA's Patrick Jacquemart Trophy recently in New York.

Patrick Jacquemart, former Canton resident, launched Renault's competition department in 1977 and was its driving force until his untimely death in an automobile accident in July 1981.

"Mario and Rene's dedication to racing recalls the reason for the Patrick Jacquemart Trophy," said Renault president Pierre Gazarian. "It is to perpetuate Patrick's memory by honoring those who feel as strongly as he did about the sport."

Added Gazarian: "Patrick was a very good friend to many of us and he was a very good driver. But it is his qualities as a special human being that inspired the creation of this award."

Maryvonne Jacquemart, Patrick's widow, was on the award's nominating committee.

Hall inductees

Observerland football coaches take a bow

By Rich Swenson
staff writer

They say that bad things come in threes. But that's definitely not the case for an outstanding trio of area high school grid coaches who will be honored together later this month by the Michigan High School Football Coaches Association (MHFCA).

Redford Union's Harvey Heitman, Livonia Churchill's Ken Kaestner and Livonia Stevenson's Jack Reardon will be among 30 coaches inducted into the MHFCA's Hall of Fame Saturday, April 20, at a banquet at the University of Michigan's Crisler Arena. Longtime Plymouth Salem coach Tom Moshimer also will be inducted.

Special guest speakers include U-M head football coach Bo Schembechler and former Michigan State grid coach Duffy Daugherty.

Heitman, who resigned after posting a 3-6 mark at RU last year, compiled an impressive 117-68 record in 23 years as head and assistant coach at now defunct Catholic high schools — Detroit St. Ambrose and Nativity, as well as Redford St. Agatha and Redford Union. He went 61-62 as a head coach.

"I FEEL VERY, very good about it," Heitman said of his planned induction. "It's quite an honor to be picked by your peers — to be recognized by your fellow coaches."

His finest season came in 1979, when he piloted the Panthers to an 8-1 record and Northwest Suburban League (NSL) championship. The highlight that season was an opening day 12-0 win over Reardon-led Livonia Stevenson, quarterbacked by David Hall. The Spartans slipped into the state Class A playoffs that year after the Panthers beat another outstanding team — Adrian — in the season finale. RU's fine season culminated with a top-10 ranking in Class A final ratings.

In nine years at RU (1976-84), Heitman led the Panthers to a 37-44 record in the tough NSL. He was also 12-12 in three seasons at St. Ambrose (1969-71), and 12-6 in his two seasons at St. Agatha (1974-75) before coming to RU.

Heitman also served as head coach at Oakland Community College — Orchard Lake Campus — for two years, guiding the team to a 10-5-3 mark.

THE OWNER of a mail advertising company in Detroit, Heitman still found the time to launch a successful coaching career. Coaching's biggest reward, according to Heitman, is guiding players to the college ranks, where players have the chance to acquire a good education while representing their schools on the gridiron.

"Football has given my players the chance to go to school on scholarships," Heitman said, "and we feel good about that. It's nice to know we're helping kids get a good education."

"Football builds character. It's one of the few sports left that teaches mental discipline — where 11 people move on one command. The greatest thing about football is teamwork."

Heitman misses coaching. In fact, he hasn't ruled out the possibility of coming out of retirement.

Former Chargers coach Kaestner missed the sport so much that he is coming back — as an assistant to Herb Osterland — a longtime Churchill assistant who took the reins after he retired following the 1983 season.

KAESTNER DOESN'T regret leaving, but he's thrilled to be back.

"It's been a very high year for me — I'm tickled," he said of his Hall of Fame honor and return to the gridiron. "I'm going back with a joy in my heart. It's going to be fun."

In his 16 years at Churchill (1968-83) and one at Brighton High School (1967), Kaestner racked up a fine 81-59-3 mark, including four Western Six League championships (1972, 75, 78, 79). His 1972 and 1978 teams went unbeaten in the regular season, finishing 9-0. The latter squad qualified for the Class A playoffs before being ousted by North Farmington, 14-3.

Jack Reardon stays enthused

But his biggest thrill may have come in his final season — the year his mediocre Chargers (4-5) shocked powerhouse Farmington Harrison, ending the school's 29-game winning streak and knocking them out of the state playoffs.

"It was one of those days — the kids played darn near perfect football," he said. "We've had some tremendous ball clubs and some great groups of kids. The highlight of coaching is the kids — they come first."

"THE EMOTION and enthusiasm they play with and the commitment they make is really something. I've been lucky to be a part of it. But I've also coached with some great guys (assistants). They're capable people that have been extremely loyal to the program."

Reardon celebrates his 20th season at Stevenson this fall, and he has no desire to quit — at least not yet.

"I just take it season by season," he said. "When it gets to the point when I no longer want to walk out to the football field, then I'll get out of it."

"Coaching has been very rewarding — not in the win-loss column — but just working with the kids. I've enjoyed watching the kids develop into good citizens and good athletes."

Reardon's record at Stevenson is impressive. In 19 seasons, his teams have brought home 10 league championships, winning 115 games while losing only 58 (there was one tie).

His best squad was the 1979 team quarterbacked by Hall, who went on to the University of Michigan. The Spartans qualified for the state playoffs with an 8-1 record. After winning its first playoff game, the Spartans fell to Escanaba in the quarterfinals, 28-26 in the game's final seconds.

"WE GOT BEAT on a perfectly executed play," he said. "Going to the playoffs was a highlight of my career. It was a great team."

Reardon's biggest disappointment came in 1976, when his Spartans finished with a perfect 9-0 record, only to miss the playoffs by one-tenth of a point.

Tickets to the banquet — open to the public — are $15 per person. Tickets can be obtained by sending a check to: Tom Fagan, 3540 Galpin, Ann Arbor, MI 48105. Checks should be made out to "Hall of Fame Banquet." For more information, call Dr. Donald Lessner at (313) 671-6072 or 285-7361.

Will the Tigers be able to match fast start again?

I just hope the fans don't expect too much for I don't think there will be another start like we had last year by winning 35 of our first 40 games.

baseball

These were the words of Jimmy Campbell, general manager of the Tigers, just before he sat in the chill weather to see the Tigers beat Cleveland 5-4, before a gathering of 51,180 chilled spectators.

In that vast gathering and in the press box, there were many feeling the same as Campbell did. After all they didn't beat the Indians until a flare up in the eighth inning to start their defense of the pennant and the world series.

While the opening game was close it seemed to drag and many of the experienced baseball writers voiced the belief that the Tigers chief opponent in the race will not be listed in the league standings.

They will have to fight pressure, many of them explained, and that won't be easy. Like Campbell, they felt that the bleacher crowd may upset them if they don't come up with an early winning streak.

Even Sparky Anderson, the white-haired manager who left Ford Hospital in time for the game feels the same way.

WHILE CAMPBELL was pleased with the showing of Jack Morris who went the first six innings he added a new touch to the Tigers drive. "Don't forget," he said, "one of the things they'll be trying to do is keep the pennant in the United States, and Toronto, one of the challengers, has a good team. But it will be a fight."

Meanwhile for most of the game Sparky Anderson sat silent in the dug-out, and finally was relieved when one of the stars of a year ago, Willie Hernandez, fanned two men in the ninth inning to save the game after the Tigers had taken the lead.

Before the game, Anderson explained his theory of the race when he said, "you can't expect us to repeat the 35-15 start we had last year, but if we are 20-20 after our first forty games, we'll be in the fight."

While the officials were making these predictions, Mayor Coleman Young didn't help to ease the pressure, when he fumbled two pitches from Governor Blanchard to mark the opening ceremonies. But the Tigers did better than that, even though it took eight rather slow innings to start the defense of the pennant.

So, as the fans sauntered out of the stadium they were of the opinion that the Tigers must fight pressure and the first month will tell the story.

Charity bowlers for tourney set

The sanctioned bowlers in the state will open their annual charity tournament on Saturday and many of them will compete in each of these three establishments in Observerland — Woodland Lanes, Merri-bowl and Bel-Aire.

In keeping with other years they are shooting for a goal of $100,000. The proceeds will go to several hospitals and other organizations for the sick and needy.

This started as the March of Dimes Tournament 30 years ago, and the bowlers never have failed to reach their goal.

WONDERLAND: The pins were flying again in the Classic and three new members were inducted into the 700 Club. Jeff Dishong showed the way with a 734. Bernie Claston was next with 720 and Pete Overaitis had a 707.

Wonderland also will host the senior division of the Michigan Majors Tournament starting on April 27.

MERRI-BOWL: Anne Troke managed to keep up her steady bowling in the women's leagues. She started the week with a 623 and came back a few days later and posted a 613. In the men's competition Ed Malenowski posted a 213 in 697.

BEL-AIRE: Al Feldman paced the house league with a 652 that included an opening game of 241. The high game of the week was a 268 by Ray Lynch.

WESTLAND: Bob Pniewski found the range for a perfect game in the classic. It came between games of 228 and 233 for a 761 count. In the Monday morning men's league John Hurley had a 624 and Daryl Magoon had a 672. In the regular men's loop Pete Overaigis rolled a 266 in 679.

WOODLAND: George Gaekiewicz converted the "impossible" 7-10 and still doesn't know how he did it. Donna Herrin paced the ladies with a 624 and Jean Kaza had a 265 game.

GARDEN LANES: There was a close finish in the St. Linus league when Jeff Malizian set the pace with a 664 and beat Ed Kespornicki by a single pin. In the St. Vinco loop Jim Voss was top man with 651.

SUPER BOWL: Tom Brudginski showed the way in the Classic with a 715 that made him a new member of the club. Jim Zimmerman Jr. had a high game of 256.

PHYSICAL FITNESS

The third annual Catholic Elementary School Physical Fitness Competition Finals will be held April 28 at the University of Detroit's Callhan Hall.

Elementary school physical education instructors have been putting boys and girls — grades 6, 7 and 8 — through a series of physical fitness tests throughout April.

There will be close to 1,000 boys and girls participating in such exercises as sit ups, shuttle run, standing long jump, 50-yard dash and 600-yard run: There is also one more event for each sex — flexed arm hangs for girls and pull ups for boys.

Each school will select 3 students in each event to compete in a regional meet. The top 3 placers in each event at the regional meet advance to the championship at Callhan Hall.

The unique program is coordinated by Mike McIntosh, associate physical education director for the Catholic League's Physical Education, Health and Athletics Department. The idea is to stress the importance of proper physical conditioning.

For further information, call 237-5960.

U-M SUMMER SPORTS

The University of Michigan-Dearborn Campus will host a series of summer sports schools.

Dave Rosteck, U-M-D's hockey coach, will host a hockey session for AA and AAA players in midget, bantam, pee-wee and squirt players Aug. 5-10.

Instructional camps also will be held in boys basketball (Lofton Green coordinating) June 24-28 and July 29-Aug. 2) and girls basketball from July 7-11 and July 15-19.

All schools will include camp T-shirts or hockey jerseys and camp-concluding all-star games. For more information or to register, call 593-5540.

All-Area cage stars make college choices

By Brad Emons
staff writer

The opportunity to play right away seemed to be the determining factor in the decisions of three area basketball performers, who all signed national college letters-of-intent yesterday.

Joe Gregory, a 5-foot-9 All-Area guard from Redford Bishop Borgess, hopes to shore up the Bowling Green backcourt.

Also headed for the Mid-American Conference is 6-2 All-Area standout Howard Flowers of Wayne Memorial, who could step in at shooting guard spot at Eastern Michigan, due to the graduation of All-Conference guard Fred Cofield.

Meanwhile, Livonia Ladywood's two-time All-State forward Char Govan is bound for Illinois State, an NCAA tournament qualifier which loses four starters to graduation.

Bowling Green coach John Weinert was "just ecstatic" with the signing of Gregory, who averaged 30 points per game this season in the Catholic League.

"The thing that impressed us about Joe was his leadership," Weinert said. "I'm not concerned about his size. We measure a point guard from the chin up."

BOWLING GREEN, without a true point guard, struggled to a 12-15 record this season.

"We've really had problems at the point-guard spot the last two years," Weinert said. "We had to move our top scorer, Keith Taylor (a senior), to the point for the last seven games in order to make the playoffs. That's an area we had to fill.

"I think he'll be an unbelievable all-around player. He can shoot from the outside and he's got good court vision."

Gregory also visited Eastern Michigan and considered such schools as Duquesne, Holy Cross, Youngstown State and Toledo.

"Bowling Green was close to home," Gregory said. "And another factor was my relationship with my mom (Joalyn). We're very close and I wanted my family to see me play over the next four years."

"I enjoyed my visit and they made me feel at home. The opportunity to play next year as a freshman was also there."

"Something in my heart said that Bowling Green was for me. It just clicked. I didn't get the same feeling at the other schools."

Gregory joins former All-Observer standout Mike Maleske at BG. A sophomore forward, Maleske is coming off knee surgery.

GOVAN, meanwhile, played somewhat in the shadow of teammate Emily Wagner, Michigan's Miss Basketball in 1984. (Wagner signed with Stanford).

Govan, who averaged double figures in scoring (18.8 points) and rebounding (10.4), made her decision this week after considering Western Michigan and Northern Iowa.

"It was tough because I liked all three schools," said Govan of her decision. "It was tough to say no."

"I liked the fact about Illinois State that I have a chance of playing in the top competition. I also felt that their athletic program was for me. They get good backing from the university and the community. They might be building a dome for men's and women's basketball."

At 5-9½, some observers contend that Govan may be too small to play a forward position at a big time school.

Ladywood coach Ed Kavanaugh disputes that theory.

"That's been a question for some people, but her attitude and nose for the ball convinced them," he said.

Govan, who resides in Redford, said that Illinois State coach Jill Hutchinson is projecting her as a small forward "because they think I can play inside and outside."

FLOWERS and teammate Pollis Robertson, a 6-6 center who signed in November with Wisconsin, led Wayne to its best record ever this season at 21-2.

Flowers averaged 18 points per game, but played particularly effectively during the latter stages of the season.

His 29-point performance in the regionals against Detroit Southwestern convinced EMU coach Jim Boyce to offer him a scholarship.

"I think a lot of schools missed out on him," said the EMU coach. "We saw him here (at EMU's Bowen Fieldhouse) and I was very impressed."

"I think he'll be a helluva scoring guard. And he could be a small forward, too."

"We saw him when we were recruiting the big kid (Robertson), and my assistants and I like what we saw back then."

EMU is also expected to sign Hugh Smith, a 6-8 center from Detroit Henry Ford; and Sillmon, a 6-4 forward from Southwestern.

Flowers was also recruited by several Great Lakes schools, including conference champion Saginaw Valley.

TEAM MICHIGAN 1-1-1

Team Michigan finished the Junior Olympic High School Hockey Tournament, played last weekend in Danvers, Mass., with a 1-1-1 record.

After losing to New England (the tourney's champion) 6-3, Michigan tied Massachusetts 5-5 and beat Minnesota 5-1.

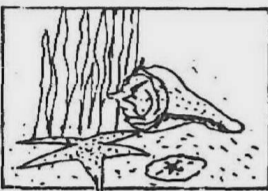

Plymouth-Canton natives Scott Dawson and Pete Podrasky competed with Team Michigan. Both, according to team representatives, played very well. Dawson, a defenseman, earned an assist against Minnesota.

PCJBL SIGN-UP

Late registration for the Plymouth-Canton Junior Baseball League will take place 7:30-8:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 17, in the Canton High School cafeteria.

A late fee of $10 will be assessed per family in addition to the regular sign-up fee.

Umpires and managers are still needed. Anyone interested should sign up at this session.

Last week, we discussed an important investment called taxtion. It is unique in that it combines the features of current income with growth potential.

Mr. M.G., age 33, invests $10,000 in taxtion. He withdraws $900 a year (9 percent) for 25 years. At age 58, he wants to withdraw his money. Can he do it?

The answer is: Yes. He will receive $14,273 upon termination. This amount, coupled with $22,500 ($900/year for 25 years) he has already received will provide him with a net profit of $26,773 ($36,773 — $10,000). However, since he canceled the contract, he will have to pay taxes on this amount plus interest.

PROS AND CONS

Taxtion has several advantages:

- Taxtion provides an excellent opportunity to invest your money safely.
- Because an insurance contract is used, income taxes are completely eliminated from the amount of money the surviving spouse receives upon death. A loan is not income, so your cash flow is not taxable.
- Your investment is generally protected from day-to-day market fluctuations.

Gourmet burgers They're a specialty of the house

By Ethel Simmons
staff writer

HAMBURGERS USED TO BE just hamburgers, unless they were cheeseburgers. Sometimes, they were teeny ones, with grilled onions, or bigger ones with fat slices of raw onion or tomato.

Then, modern fast-food places got ahold of them, and burgers became whopper-sized, with special sauces.

Now it's the era of the gourmet burger, so-called because they come with all sorts of exotic toppings and various kinds of cheeses. Many have fancy names to order them by, or numbers, because there are so many to choose from at each restaurant.

The Lemon Peel restaurant and lounge in Birmingham has been serving all kinds of hamburgers, since long before burgers went gourmet. O'Sheehan's Tavern, with three locations including its original one in Plymouth Township, has built a menu around variations of the Gourmet Sheehan Burger. Max & Erma's Neighborhood Gathering Place in Farmington Hills is part of a chain of self-described "Gourmet Hamburger" restaurants.

AT THE LEMON Peel, 575 S. Hunter Blvd., owner John Kales said, "We started here as Biff's. We've pushed hamburgers for 20 years." His Biff's franchise became the Lemon Peel nine years ago, when the counter-service chain folded.

About six years ago, the Lemon Peel got a liquor license and expanded its menu to go along with the beer, wine and cocktails. Its spiral-bound menu has pages of eats, two pages alone listing 14 "1 1/2 Pound Burgers."

Most popular burger is the Lemon Peel Special, at $4.25, served with Canadian bacon and melted American cheese. Most of the other burgers are named after members of Kales' family, or their friends who include celebrities such as rock 'n' roll stars.

There are burgers named after Kales (the John Burger, served with yogurt, cucumber and garlic sauce); his wife, Fran (the Fran Burger, with two strips of lean bacon, lettuce and tomato); daughter Ellie (the Ellie Burger, with homemade barbecue sauce); daughter Laurie (the Laurie Burger, swiss cheese, lettuce and tomato); daughter Kathy (the Kathy Burger, the Lemon Peel's special sauce, lettuce, tomato and onion); and father-in-law Leo Demitrios (the Leo Burger, grilled onion, lettuce, tomato and bleu cheese). Kales' wife, three daughters and father-in-law all work in the restaurant.

Because of their Greek heritage, the menu includes another top favorite, the Saganaki Burger. This is "the house's best, served with gooey saganaki cheese." The burger takes its name from the saganaki cheese and sausage appetizer; the appetizer is flamed at the table to the server's shouts of "Opa!"

OTHER BURGERS include the Don Was Burger, which takes its name from the stage name of a rock 'n' roll singer; the Gunner Burger, named after the drummer from Strut, and the Boy Howdy Burger, named after Boy Howdy, the mascot for Creem, the American rock 'n' roll magazine published in Birmingham.

"Gunner is a personal friend of mine," Kales said. "He's one of the top 50 drummers in the United States."

The Lemon Peel is only a few blocks from the Birmingham Theatre. "Cast members from the shows come in here," Kales said. Jack Carter (when he starred in "Oliver!") was here almost every night.

All burgers on the menu are broiled,

table talk

100-percent ground round, "hand pattied to perfection." Each of the giant burgers is garnished with lettuce, tomato and pickles. Price range is from $3.25 for the plain Nick Burger (the least ordered) to $4.75 for the Patty Melt, with sauteed onion and melted American cheese, this one served on grilled rye bread instead of a bun.

O'SHEEHAN'S TAVERN on the Green, 39450 Five Mile at I-275, at the Oasis Golf Sports Complex, is managed by George Barnum of Northville, brother-in-law of owner Larry Sheehan of Northville.

The green-decor tavern is as Irish as Sheehan, who recently changed its name from Sheehan's to O'Sheehan's because he discovered the family name originally had an O' that had been dropped.

Sheehan started with this, his first tavern in Plymouth eight years ago and has added two more locations, at 35450 Grand River in Farmington Hills and 43333 Seven Mile in Northville. A fourth O'Sheehan's will open shortly in Jacksonville, Fla. Two of Sheehan's sons manage the Farmington Hills and Northville places; another son is in Florida.

Between 38 and 48 kinds of gourmet burgers are served at the Farmington Hills and Northville taverns. The Tavern on the Green offers about 20 varieties of burgers. "We have a limited grill here," Barnum explained. "This summer we will put in a new kitchen and go to 40 burgers."

Sheehan has been dedicated in creating the Gourmet Sheehan Burger. "He put a lot of time and effort into this thing. He was one of the first to go into gourmet burgers," said Barnum.

"He has a special meat man and special buns. The meat is ground to his specification and texture. All burgers are over six ounces."

THE BARNUM family keeps things humming at the Tavern on the Green. George's wife Ginger is the cook and their daughter Michelle tends bar.

George's favorite burger is the George Burger, which he designed. "Virginia ham, American cheese and grilled onion. It's a meal in itself," he said. Both his wife and daughter got to create their own burgers, too. The Ginger Burger has American and Swiss cheeses, lettuce and her special dressing on an onion roll. The Michelle Burger has Swiss cheese on an onion roll, with au jus for dipping.

The customers' preferred burger is Joan's Favorite Burger, with bleu cheese and bacon on a pumpernickel roll, at $3.95. Irish burgers also have their fans — the Shamrock Burger has grilled green onion and American on onion roll. A touch of the Irish is in the Bacon O'Burger, bacon, American cheese, lettuce and tomato on burger bun; the McMushroom Burger, with sauteed mushrooms and Swiss on burger bun, and the O'nionmushroom Burger, grilled onions and sauteed mushrooms on onion roll.

"We just added the Sheehan Burger Burger. Two patties, over two-thirds of a pound." It's a biggie that not everyone can handle, but young guys come in and order it, Barnum said.

Burger prices range from $2.85 for the over-1/2-pound Sheehan Burger up to $5.75 for Dan's Best Burger of two patties, bacon and American cheese on burger bun.

Big, smiling Barnum, in his kelly green sweater, looked as welcoming as the tavern's mood. And he has the proper respect for a Gourmet Sheehan Burger.

Telling how to cook one, he said, "Here you turn it once." You never turn it again.

"It's treated with tender, loving care, believe me. I train most of the employees. When they come through the door, I make them a burger." That way they learn how Sheehan wants it.

MAX & ERMA'S at 31205 Orchard Lake Road at the Hunter's Square Shopping Center has a decor as lively as its big, colorful menu that devotes a page to Gourmet Burgers.

Tiffany-style lamps, red-and-white-checked tablecloths, bentwood chairs, walls filled with old photographs — these are some of the nostalgic and art-deco touches that help set a mood.

Manager Scott Lindquist said the restaurant's most famous burger is the Garbage Burger. "It's been around as long as the company has, since 1972," he said. "Garbage" on the burger includes pizza sauce, mushrooms, swiss cheese, mozzarella, cheddar, American cheese, guacamole, grilled onions and bacon. "You generally have to use a knife and fork," Lindquist said. It's served on a sesame-seed bun, like the other burgers.

At $6.25, the big Garbage Burger is the highest-priced on the menu. The rest of the Gourmet Burgers, all a hefty 10 ounces of hand-pattied ground beef, cost $5.45.

THE FAVORITE burger is "basically a cheeseburger with any of these toppings," he said, pointing to the menu. Choices of Gourmet Burgers are Canadian bacon and cheese, bacon and cheddar, mushroom and cheese, guacamole, bacon and swiss; bacon and bleu, bacon and mushroom, pizza burger, guacamole and jack, BBQ burger, tijuana burger, swiss, bacon and water chestnuts; Philly burger and olives burger.

Poets gather in Farmington

The Ninth Annual Michigan Poetry Festival Friday and Saturday at Botsford Inn, Farmington, will have an interesting roster of speakers.

Donald Hall, nationally recognized poet, prose writer, critic and anthologist, will be the feature poet. Hall's newest book, "Fathers Playing Catch with Sons," is a collection of essays on sports, particularly baseball.

Others from Michigan will be Faye Kicknoway of Birmingham who teaches at Wayne State University and has published five books of poetry since 1972; Jack Driscoll, editor of The Interlochen Review and creative writing instructor at Interlochen Arts Academy; and Paulette White, recipient of the 1984 Creative Artists Award, Michigan Council for the Arts and author of "The Watermelon Press."

Every year the sponsoring Poetry Resource Center of Michigan holds a competition for Michigan poets who have never read before a statewide audience. This year the eight winners were selected from more than 100 contestants.

Other programs will include "Poetry of Yesterday" and a discussion of Spanish-American Poetry in Exile, led by Herman Castellano-Giron and Emil Efthimedes. There will be manuscript workshops and open readings.

"An Evening with Donald Hall" closes the festival on Saturday and this too is open to the public for an admission fee.

Henreitta Epstein of Southfield is festival chairman.

New concerto pleases violist Paul Doktor

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Even at Monday night's final rehearsal with the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra, soloist Paul Doktor was suggesting small changes in the Concerto for Viola and Orchestra to composer Robert W. Jones. But they were minor changes.

"I was delighted when I got the music — 100 percent delighted," said the Vienna-born, internationally famed violist.

Doktor, who teaches at the Juilliard School in New York City and concertizes occasionally, speaks with genuine admiration of the concerto written by the Schoolcraft College professor. Doktor said Jones has solved the problem of making the plush, alto voice of the viola contrast vividly against a full symphony orchestra.

"He has the right feeling for the instrumentation. He comes up with the right combinations all the time. He's really extremely good at it," Doktor said.

PLYMOUTH SYMPHONY fans can draw their own conclusions at 4 p.m. this Sunday in the auditorium of Plymouth Salem High School, Joy west of

Violist Paul Doktor concerto rolls out

Canton Center roads, when Doktor premieres the concerto with the orchestra conducted by Johan van der Merwe.

Also on the program will be the late Samuel Barber's overture to "The School for Scandal" (1932) and Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 6, the "Pathétique" (1893). Unreserved tickets are $6 general admission and $3.50 for senior citizens and college students. K-12 students are admitted free. Girl Scouts provide free baby-sitting service.

Tickets may be purchased at the door or in advance at Beitner Jewelry in downtown Plymouth, Hammell Music in Livonia and Arnold Williams Music in Canton Township.

THE CONCERTO is dedicated to Doktor though not commissioned by him. It was commissioned by the Plymouth Symphony Society with funding from the Michigan Council for the Arts and the Michigan unit of the American String Teachers Association.

That fact makes Doktor, who never has commissioned a work, more comfortable.

"Very often we (soloists) ask a composer to write something. We pay huge sums. But what they get is not necessarily what they wanted," he said. The result is that an unpopular work can become identified with a soloist who doesn't particularly enjoy it.

But Doktor enjoys the Jones concerto. So did the orchestra, which applauded in rehearsal. "He may say he sweated it out, but I have the feeling it came rolling out," Doktor said.

"Everything comes together (at the conclusion). It's an unexpected, happy, down-to-earth tune."

JONES WRITES in contemporary sounds and harmonies, no question about it, and the percussion section will get a workout. But he also writes in the familiar, four-movement, classical format.

Always witty, Jones inserted several musical jokes in the score. The final movement quotes circus music. The third movement contains what he calls a "barbershop quartet" among four violas to a tune reminiscent of the 1940s pop song "Tangerine."

Doktor recognizes listeners sometimes freeze up at the notion of hearing contemporary music, confessing he doesn't always take to modern art. But he encourages listeners to rise above that comfortable prejudice. "Of all the modern works, I like this," he said.

Besides being a difficult instrument to write for, the viola is difficult to play, Doktor said. The viola's best sounds don't soar through an auditorium, the way the soprano violin and baritone cello sounds carry. He and Jones agree that the viola is the "neglected stepchild" of the string family.

The viola is larger and less comfortable to hold than the violin. Students — including himself and his famous father, Karl Doktor — usually start out on the violin and later switch.

Doktor said violists, by taking up the instrument later in life, don't condition their fingers to it during their formative, childhood years. The result: "Among 100 violinists you may have 50 or 80 who are excellent. Among 100 viola players, hardly 10 are excellent."

UM-D group brings art to area

If you think fine art can be found only in galleries, think again. The Fine Art Associates invites you to the library on the University of Michigan-Dearborn campus, where a treasure trove of drawings, glass, paintings, prints and other artworks can be viewed and not just read about.

The Fine Art Associates is an organization formed by university members and people from the community, to collect and promote art at UM-D. Although the works are housed on campus, they represent the involvement of people from throughout western Wayne County. Students, faculty and area residents are among the group's 50 members.

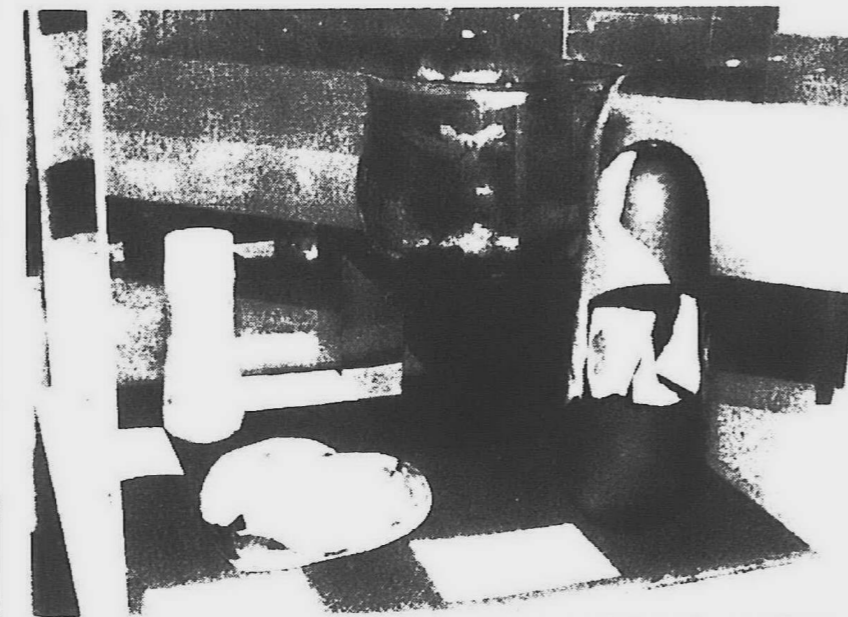

"I THINK IN the western Wayne County area there are a lot of people who have a deep concern for art and haven't had any really public outlet," said Greg Palka, assistant director of sponsor and development research at UM-D. "There are no (major art) museums between Detroit and Ann Arbor. They really have a concern for art. It is personal and close to them."

More than 500 works are in the university's permanent art collection, on display throughout the library. Included are works by Rembrandt, Matisse and Picasso. Also there is one of the state's largest public collections of contemporary glass, with pieces by Dali, Daum and others.

Since it was formed in November 1984, the Art Associates has organized exhibits, lectures and receptions. It also provides such services as picture framing.

"We're not really looking to promote any particular art or person," said Electra Stamelos, group chairman and director of art acquisition and exhibition at the university.

"We do a complete program. All the senses have to be stimulated. It's a lovely evening. You hear a good lecture and see fine art. It's the best show in town. For the price (free), you can't beat it."

An exhibit of glass works by three Czech sculptors is one three exhibits at UM-D.

'I think in the western Wayne County area there are a lot of people who have a deep concern for art and haven't had any really public outlet. There are no (major art) museums between Detroit and Ann Arbor. They really have a concern for art. It is personal and close to them.'

— Greg Palka
assistant director sponsor and development research

THE ART Associates is an offshoot of the Dearborns Collect, a major annual art show of works borrowed from private collectors in the area. The pieces in the show are by internationally known and local artists.

"Many of the same people (are involved with the Art Associates)," Palka said. "We said we need a group to carry this on and expand it. It really has become a very strong group."

C. Edward Wall, head librarian at UM-D at the time, thought the library should be a community resource for significant art and more than just a repository for books, according to Stamelos.

Now the Art Associates conducts three shows a year. The first of these is the Dearborns Collect. The second show is an invitational, allowing one artist to display his work. This is followed by the final display, which this year features contemporary glass-works in honor of Michigan Glass Month.

Greg Palka, assistant director of sponsor and development research, and Katie Finnerty, a student member of the Fine Art Associates, examine works by Russell Keeter in a current exhibition at UM-D.

AMONG THE exhibitions, on display through April 30, are "Glass — Three Sculptors: Progression Toward Monumentality" by three Czechoslovakian artists, "Albrecht Durer: Selected Woodcuts" and "The Paintings of Russell Keeter."

The woodcut exhibit was organized completely by UM-D students, including Robin Bedrosian and David Rau of Livonia; Susan Fancy, Kay Hommel, Paulius Jurgutis and Edee Ritten of Farmington Hills; Karen Brotherton of Farmington; Mark Mardiros of Southfield and Lauren Symington of Birmingham. Southfield resident Alex Neshkes and UM-D staff member Joseph Marks coordinated the installation of the glass exhibition.

A recent reception at the library, featuring a presentation by American art glass sculptor Howard Ben Tre, drew 300 to 350 people, Stamelos said. She said a reception in Midland, by comparison, was attended by "barely 100" persons.

The organization, while enjoying local popularity, is trying to reach Detroit art critics and others who tend to look only to downtown Detroit or Birmingham for art, according to Palka and Stamelos.

"If we could just break through that ice," Stamelos said.

"This area, western Wayne County, is a very fertile ground for artists to grow and prosper," Palka said.

The Art Associates welcomes charter members. Cost of a one-year membership is $25 individual, $35 family, $100 patron and $5 for high school, college and university students. For information, call Palka at 593-5130.

What to do when the fun goes out

This is another lesson on art and drawing by special columnist David Messing. He has taught for eight years and operates an art store, Art Store and More, 16340 Middlebelt, Livonia, 522-6311. Messing encourages questions and comments from readers. You may write him at his store or c/o Observer Newspapers, 23352 Farmington Road, Farmington, MI 48024.

By David Messing

Quickly I hung a sign on my display boards which read, "The artist will return in 15 minutes." I ran to the nearest phone and called my wife.

"Honey," I said, "I just took a commission for five paintings." Over the phone we immediately schemed how the money would help pay off our "run-away" charge account. You know the kind most every young couple develops after buying their first house.

THE OCCASION was my second mall show, and the year was 1971. As soon as I returned I was thrilled to see a group of people around my display.

play. One of the mall store owners said to me, "I'll take this one, this one and that big one."

So back went the sign and I'm right back on the horn with Sandy, talkin' and laughin' about paying off our charge account with plenty left over. I returned and a man waiting for me, commissioned me to paint a picture of his brand new Ferrari, his Rolls Royce-Silver Cloud and his Cobra. Out of my mind with excitement, I couldn't muster a reasonable price quote, so I put my chin in my hand while thinking. To break the silence he made me an offer which, was at least a $100 more than the quote I was going to make. After a quick "joy ride" in his Ferrari, I came back just before the mall closed, and low and behold, a Detroit Lion football player was standing there looking at my work and commissioned me to paint, of course, a picture of a lion.

By now my emotional fuse had completely blown so I just casually walked to my car ending the most successful night I ever had in my short-lived mall show career. I received 15 commissions that week and was looking forward to getting started on them in between my full-time job at Ford Motor Co.

AFTER A day or two of just basking in the glory of it all, my bubble was suddenly burst by the sharp ring of the telephone. "No Miss, I'm sorry I haven't even started your picture. There are three ahead of yours." With the same anxiety I had when I was late for work, I started the first of 15 paintings.

By 1 a.m. that night I thought, "Well that's one of em." By 1 a.m. the next night I thought, "Whew ... that's two down." By 1 a.m. the following night I thought, "This is kind of a drag," and midway into the fourth night it hit me: "I'm not havin' any fun at all here."

"When the fun goes out" is the title of this article, and anyone with any commercial or commission experience knows the feeling quite well. When you see, hear or think of something that stirs your creative juices, it is a blessing and a joy to make your inspiration visual on canvas, paper, stone or clay. But that is your work to express. Your idea. And that is miles away from trying to make your work visually express your customer's idea. Commissioned work is quite often boring. Really, how excited can you get about painting someone's cock-a-poo or their yappy little Yorky?

Commercial art can be, and most often is, the same case of the blues. Your client is so excited about this new product that his forehead is sweating, his nostrils are flared and his voice tremors with the joy of it all — while you sit there, battling a yawn, trying to look interested.

So what do you do when the fun goes out? Even though your commission or assignment isn't particularly interesting it still can be challenging. Challenge yourself off the bench and on to the playing field. Perhaps you could paint or render it in a new medium, or try to beat the clock and therefore increase your hourly rate.

IT'S INTERESTING to note that the word "challenge" is defined as "a call for skill, effort or imagination." So challenge your mind to think like your customer. Put yourself in their place. Feel the love they have for their animal or car. Try to acquire the excitement they feel about their new product.

Then do whatever you must to make it visual for them. Challenge your ability. Dig deep into your vault of media and pick the one you can handle best and the one that best suits the job at hand. Technical skill rarely grows at the same rate when it is unchallenged. I personally would be a one- or two-medium artist with a limited scope of subjects were it not for the many commissions and commercial requests that forced me to grow artistically.

Challenge your business skills. Try to call your customers and stay "in touch," treat them just as you would like to be treated. Commit yourself to a schedule and a deadline and stay with it. If you deliver the artwork on time, technically correct and in a creative manner, you will succeed in art and may actually be in demand.

So take those commissions even if there is no money involved; experience is the best teacher. In doing so you are allowing yourself to be forced to grow in your mind, technical ability and business sense. Even though it may seem at first to be shakey ground, perhaps it will be the ground upon which you build a foundation that will someday support you as a working artist.

Talk about challenging — we're still out of breath from the move to our new facility in Livonia, and we just signed the lease for a new Art Store & More in the city of Plymouth. So here we go again.

staff writer

Inger McCabe Elliott's message at the Design Center of Troy was bold and clear. Mauves, taupes and neutrals are taking a back seat to brilliant primary colors in the months ahead.

"The color now is marigold and aqua," she said. Later in her slide talk to a group of interior designers in the Campbell Louis showroom which handles the China Seas line, she said, "January 1986 will be quite different than what you see about you now."

Where we think things are going is in the very brights — aqua, red, green, marigold (orange was also mentioned, but not in this list). Your mind has to stretch and your eye has to stretch."

Elliott, founder and president of China Seas, a multi-talented entrepreneur is the author of an exciting new book, "Batik: Fabled Cloth of Java."

THE BOOK is really a catalog of this wonderful and fast disappearing art, which Elliott has been collecting and studying for many years.

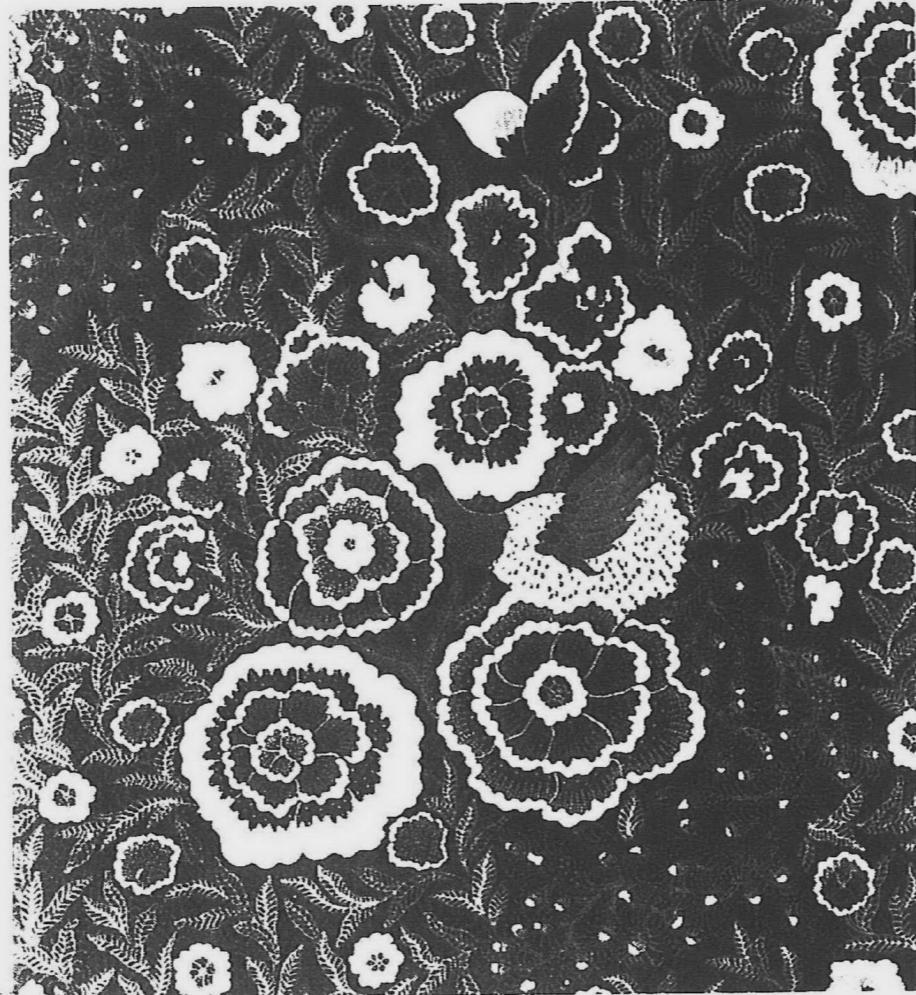

An exhibit of antique batik which complements the book, partially funded by Mobil Corp., and organized by The Textile Museum of Washington, D.C., will be at the Royal Ontario Museum of Art in Toronto in May. About half of the pieces in the exhibit are from Elliott's personal collection. As she collected, she cataloged, and it was The Textile Museum people who asked her to do the book.

And which came first, the book or the international excitement about the patterns and colors is a moot question. The fact is that these prints and colors are already a strong influence on the interior design market as well as areas of life, clothing for one. And the hottest color among the batik prints is raspberry.

Among the many things which China Seas does is two collections a year of fabrics and wallcoverings.

And, as expected, part of the current one, "Fables of the China Seas" is a batik extravaganza inspired by the vivid colors and designs of Java's north coast where Elliott said there is both a Chinese and an Arabic influence.

There are four Batik inspired patterns:

Named "Hokokai," this batik pattern in fabric and coordinating wall covering is one of the new China Seas line which comes in a palette of bright, exciting colors.

Batavia, exotic flowers; Hokokai, a flowered woodland; Indramayu, menagerie of mythical creatures, and Semen (accent on the second syllable), a fantasy design. Each comes in a variety of colors.

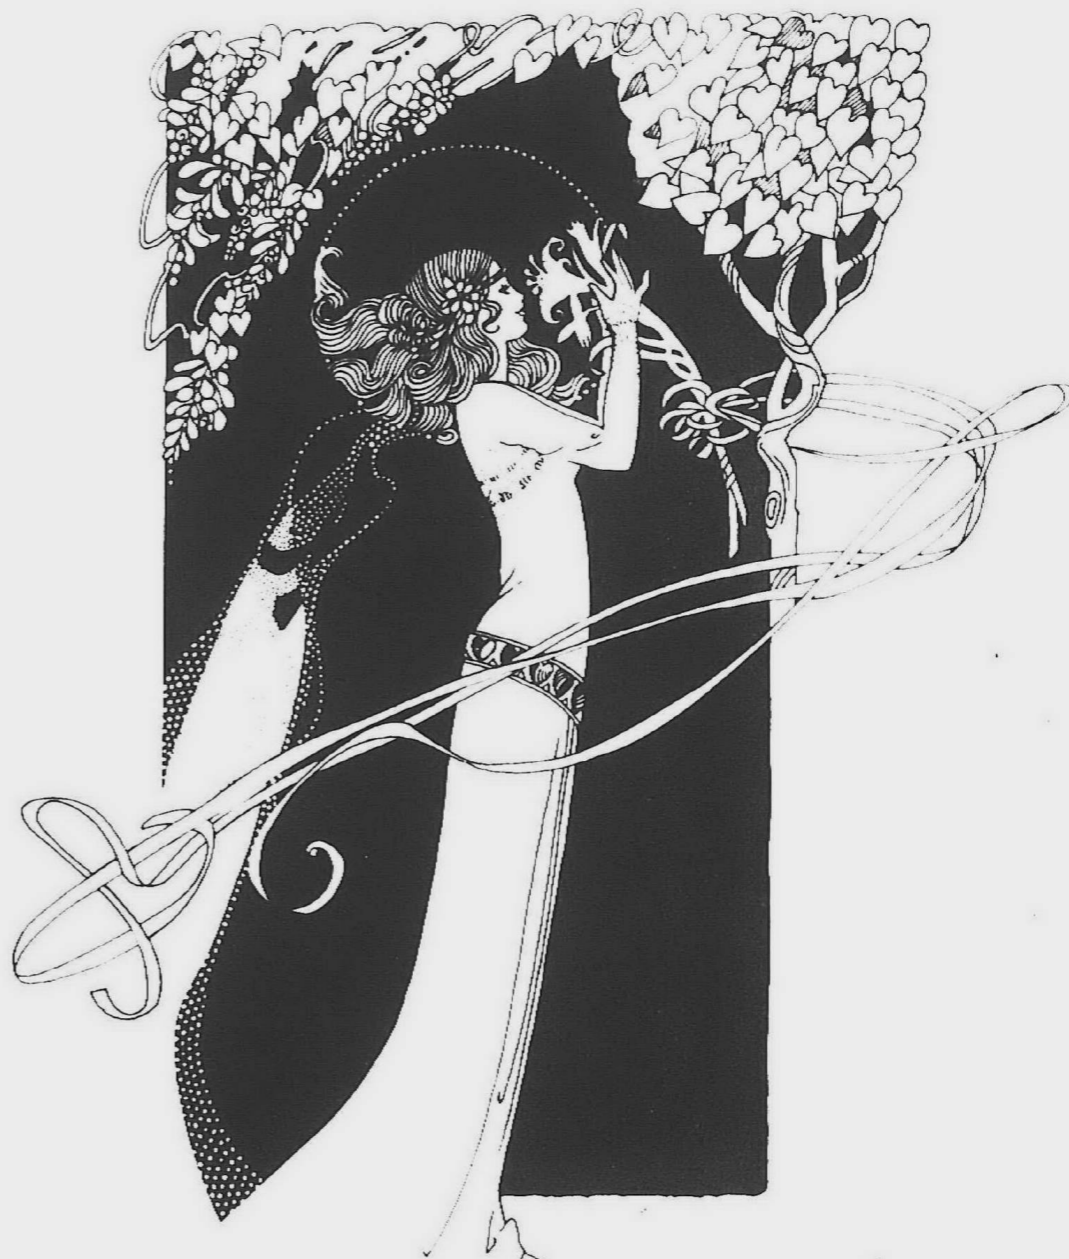

The collection is on cotton from the United States, handscreened in Switzerland. The collection of real batik is made in Java. Along with this is a collection of what Elliott called "tea towel plaids," in cotton and linen and a selection of Ultrasuedes.

Before Elliott talked about the collection, demonstrating the many combinations of patterns and colors, she showed her own slides of Java and the Far East, an area where she has lived and worked.

HER FAMILY escaped from Norway during the Nazi occupation, made their way across Siberia to Japan and eventually to the United States.

After completing a master's in history at Harvard, she was a photographer for Life, Time, Newsweek and other publications and lived in Hong Kong during the '60s.

HOME and GARDEN

No need to add on to get more space

No matter the size of your home, there are probably times you feel it's too small.

And perhaps it really is. Small homes are being built these days in an effort to hold down costs. But it could be that you're not making the best use of the space you have.

Making the best use of space — that pretty well sums up what the designers at Armstrong sought to illustrate in their conversion of a two-car garage into a small home or efficiently apartment for two people. Complete in every way, the garage-turned-home is chock-full of space-stretching ideas that can be adapted to just about any kind of building or remodeling project. It's just about anybody.

To give you an idea of how well the designers succeeded in achieving their goal, this little home has nearly 50 cubic feet of storage space — as much as some homes three times the size. It's a little bit of extra space that can be used for anything you want.

The home has an unusual diagonal floor plan. Its interior is divided into a kitchen, living, dining, sleeping area, bedroom, bathroom, main living area, a den or office, a bathroom, and a utility room, which functions as a party storage bin and laundry.

The home is not wanting in amenities. Among its other attractions, it boasts a fireplace, skylights, a greenhouse in a corner of the kitchen and every modern kitchen appliance. Manufacturers now make scaled-down appliances for just such situations.

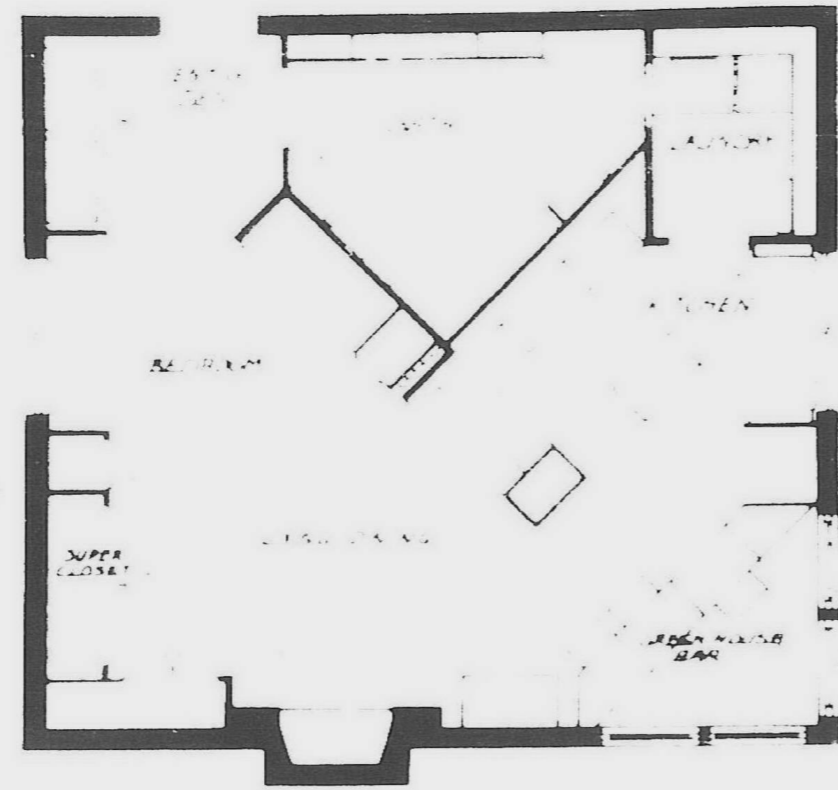

There are two secrets to making a space seem larger than it actually is. One of them calls for the talents of a magician.

Magicians must be skilled in creating illusions to pull off their tricks. In the garage home an open floor plan creates the illusion of extra space. Only the utility room and bath are fully enclosed with walls.

A night's sleep is partitioned to a track in the ceiling screens the space-size bed, which is in the main living area, from view. During the day it tucks up into its own closet — it's a Murphy bed — or can be left out and fitted with a slipcover to serve as a sofa.

A portable table and chairs and windows would have made the garage home seem quite habitable, complete. The designers opened it up with a large greenhouse light blind and rattan furniture, mirrors, and white walls, kitchen cabinets, and counters.

The winter is a narrow tie floor in a floral pattern, which flows throughout the entire home, drawing together the various elements of the decor into a harmonious whole. Such centers are essential in decorating an open-plan home. This particular floor was selected from Armstrong's Supercraft series.

Secret number two to stretch a limited space is to make the furnishings do double duty, like the Murphy bed. Or triple duty, like the movable kitchen island.

The island has a pull-out chopping block for food preparation.

The garage home is described in more detail in a free 12-page brochure, illustrated with color photographs of the interior and diagrams of individual projects like the kitchen island and supercloset. To obtain a free copy, write to: Armstrong World Industries, Dept. PYF 17, P.O. Box 2001, Lancaster, Pa. 17604. Or call 800-233-3823 toll free and ask for department PYF 17.

Rites of spring include home, garden chores

WINTER is finally over. The spring sky is bright and clear, the air warm, and the extra hours of daylight are an especially welcome change from the winter darkness.

For many, traditional spring cleaning, planting a garden and tackling some home improvements go hand in hand with rising temperatures. By planning ahead, organizing your time efficiently and making adequate preparations for each job, you will find that all these projects can be accomplished without severely disrupting your regular schedule.

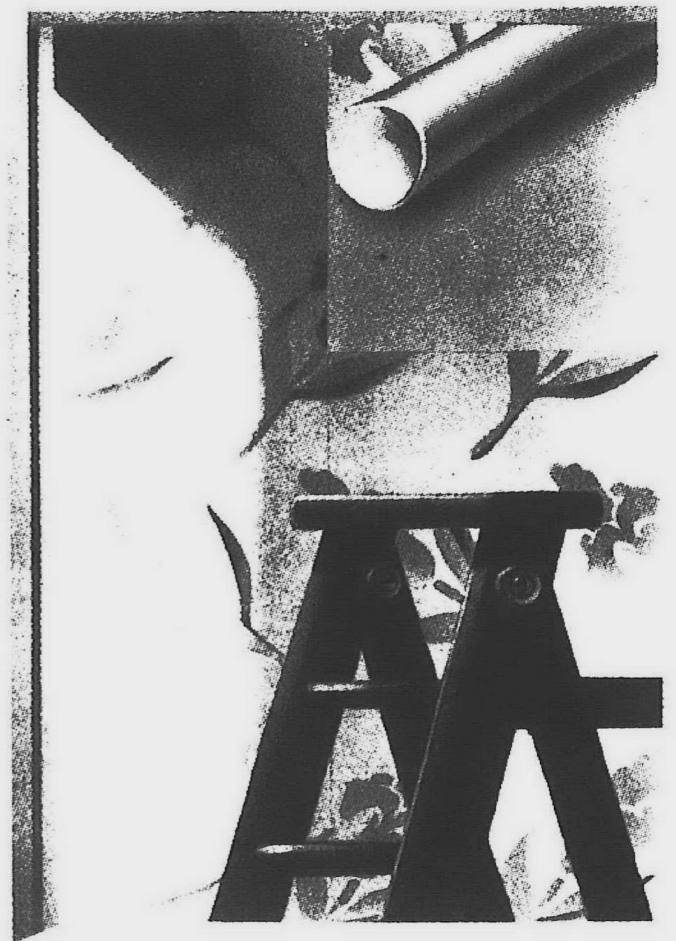

Don't try to do every chore in one grand sweep. First decide on a specific time span during which a spring overhaul of your house and garden will be the priority.

Within the framework you've chosen, designate the jobs you plan to do at specific times, balancing the more complicated, time-consuming jobs with simpler, less involved tasks that can be completed more quickly. Set up a schedule of work for both indoors and outdoors, so if the weather doesn't cooperate, you won't waste time wondering what project to tackle.

Be realistic about the length of time each project will take and be sure to have everything available that you will need. It is less frustrating to spend the necessary time in preparation than to be forced to interrupt a project because you don't have the right size of nail.

Involving every member of the family in some part of the spring projects will make these jobs seem less overwhelming. Even young children can help to pack away their winter clothes and return warm weather clothes to drawers and shelves. Their help in the garden will even such minor chores as watering will give them a lasting sense of accomplishment as they see the plants grow and bear fruit or flowers.

Comfy location is important to roses

Although seemingly delicate and fragile, roses are sturdy plants. Capable of withstanding moderate seasonal changes in climate, they'll bloom year after year with the same consistent resplendency.

But to insure this continued health and growth, a few preventive measures against the damaging effects of wind, summer heat and autumn chill should be taken when you begin planting your rose garden.

With more than 1,000 varieties of roses, each responding differently to various climates and soils, only the most general rules of protection against the elements can apply to all roses. Still, most roses are particularly sensitive to the harmful effects of wind.

Wind causes evaporation of moisture from plant leaves and petals, causing rosebuds to thirst for more water than they normally require. Even if the surrounding soil is moist, the plant can easily become dehydrated, causing petals to dry and crumble and leaves to turn brown.

Building a fence or planting a hedge of shrubs around the bush will prevent this. But with hot, dry winds, a fence isn't appropriate protection because it doesn't add moisture to the air as a shrub will. With either, allow 10-12 feet between the rose bushes and protective screen. A bur-lap cover will also serve as a wind-break.

Temperature changes have an even more dramatic effect on the growth and overall health of roses. Most roses are sensitive to heat, especially those grown in the sunbelt and Midwest where summer temperatures can easily reach 90 degrees or higher.

Plants grown in these often dry climates shouldn't be overpruned during winter. The less pruned a rose plant is, the more foliage remains, with warehouses of energy and moisture available to help the plant combat summer heat. Roses growing in hot, sunny climates might require more immediate protection.

For example, a lath sheet laid over the rose garden during the day's hottest hours will protect the plant from losing water and leaf suppleness.

Roses react to the cold much as people do, curling up to retain warmth. In cooler climates, roses tend to ball, opening only halfway. When blooms that ball are spotted, cut them off so other blooms can grow when the weather warms.

Kitchen geometry

Relocating the door to a dining area made possible a change of floor plan that converted a small, old-fashioned kitchen. The plan works around an existing window — now a greenhouse window covered by mini-blinds. Old cabinets were replaced with those with a cherry finish. A ceiling fixture supplements under-cabinet fluorescents that light the tile counters. A tapestry blue stripe in the lambswool backplash reverses the color treatment of the floor's geometric design.

Perfect pegboards

Pegboards have been around a long time — in offices, schools and kitchens. Pegboard organizers are perfect for storing small and medium-sized tools and utensils. Mount one in the garage, the basement or the shed, and it will make life easier and more orderly.

Today, there are dozens of hangers, shelves, bins and jars available to be mounted on a pegboard, creating a comprehensive storage system. A pegboard can be used to make a storage wall that will keep all sorts of items neat, accessible and visible.

For example, the flashlight will be there, so you won't have to rummage around in a drawer or closet when the next emergency occurs. Tools can be mounted on a pegboard, so you can find them quickly and easily. Bins, racks and shelves are now available to be mounted on pegboards, and small items, such as nails, washers and rubber bands, can be placed in glass jars and mounted on the pegboard.

Be wary of lawn services

If you're choosing a lawn care service for the first time this year, remember that unqualified lawn services can pose a hazard to the unsuspecting homeowner.

According to James R. Brooks, executive director of the Professional Lawn Care Association of America, misuse of fertilizers and control compounds can damage your lawn or vegetable garden.

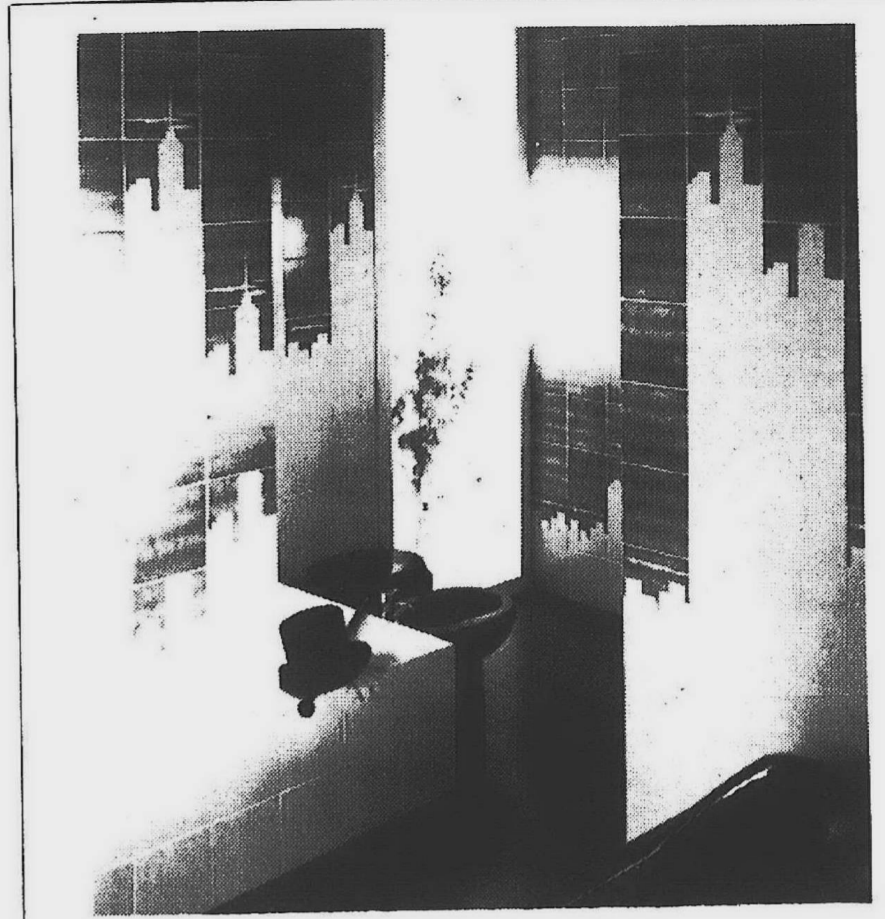

Brooks offers some tips in choosing a company. "Pay attention not to the size of the lawn care company but instead to the way they approach their work."

If a company quotes you an abnormally low price for servicing your lawn, beware. "You can cause yourself many problems trying to save a few dollars."

Another warning signal is the inability of the company to satisfactorily answer questions such as how many applications of fertilizer or weed control materials will be needed.

Inquire about billing procedures. "Be extremely wary if someone wants cash up front."

And be sure to inquire about the company's safety concerns such as what precautionary measures will be taken around pets, gardens and ponds.

Ease into gardening with containers

Just 15 minutes a week is all the time you need to take care of a container garden.

For those people who have busy work and recreation schedules, container gardens provide all the joys of gardening but demand a few of the time-consuming chores necessary in a large garden.

Whether you are an experienced or a novice gardener, containers offer a challenge that bring fun and rewards. Initially, you may have to spend a bit of time setting up — say one afternoon.

Once the containers are planted and in place, 15 minutes a week is all the time it will take for maintenance.

If you are beginning a container garden from scratch, the National Garden Bureau suggests you invest in new pots, growing medium and seeds. By starting with clean, new pots, fresh medium, and vital seeds, the chances of a successful gardening adventure are guaranteed.

For pots, a handy combination is three each of 8-, 10-, and 15-inch diameters. They may be of any material — terra cotta, ceramic, wood or plastic; choose a design and color to harmonize with the existing landscape. Make sure the containers have drainage holes in the sides or bottom for water to drain.

Nine pots will be sufficient to grow three to 18 varieties of garden seeds. Containers, growing medium and fertilizer may be purchased at a neighborhood hardware store, garden center or department store.

The growing medium should be a composition suited to garden plants.

There are many combinations of soil and soilless media and any labeled for garden plants or as all-purpose would be fine. Often the medium will have slow-release fertilizer mixed in. This kind is very handy and helps to minimize the potential mess of mixing medium and fertilizer. If the medium you have selected does not have fertilizer, purchase a slow-release, 10-10-10 fertilizer.

There are two important factors to consider when selecting garden seeds. First, pick varieties which are easy to grow and care for. Second, grow only the varieties of vegetables to select?

The Nation Garden Bureau suggests these nine as easy-to-grow varieties which are well suited to container culture.

- Dwarf, edible-podded peas
- Dwarf, determinate tomatoes — they will not require staking but must be started indoors six to eight weeks before transplanting
- Loose leaf lettuce
- Bush green beans
- Dwarf marigold, 8 to 10 inches in height
- Alyssum

- Zinnias — dwarf and semidwarf varieties do best in containers
- Nasturtiums.

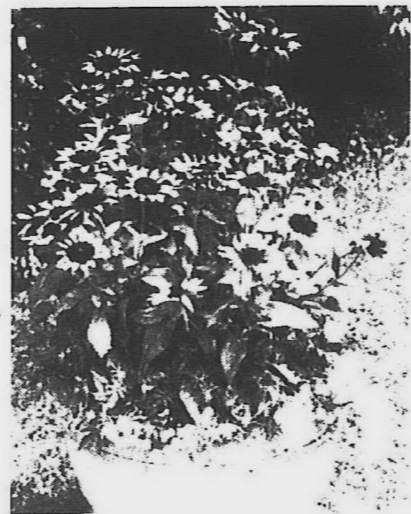

Begin by filling the pots with soil. Use something to protect the work surface, such as a large plastic garbage bag, grocery sack opened at the side, or several layers of newspaper. Even if working outside, place something under the pots and soil as it will make clean up easier. If soil falls on the paper instead of in the pot, it is easy to pick up the paper, fold in half and pour back into the bag.

Most media come in plastic bags and are slightly moist when first opened. If the medium you've purchased should feel dry to the touch, carefully moisten it before filling the garden pots. It should be damp enough so that it clings together after squeezing.

Fill the containers with growing medium and tap the bottom gently to settle the soil and fill any air pockets trapped inside. When filled, the soil line should be 1 to 1½ inches below the rim to allow for a "well" in the pot to fill when watering.

Read the seed packet carefully for planting directions. Most seed packets will have planting instructions for pot culture. If these are not included, plant at the same depth as in a garden but space the seeds to fit in the container.

After the seeds have been planted, water each pot carefully and thoroughly to soak the medium. Place a saucer under it to catch the run off. Leave the excess water in the saucer half an hour; if there is any water remaining, pour it off and replace the saucer.

It is possible to mix flowers and vegetables in the same container. In fact, this is often an aesthetically pleasing and efficient idea. If lettuce and zinnias are planted in the same pot, the lettuce will come up quickly and be harvested before the middle of the season. The zinnias take more time to germinate and won't be in full bloom until the middle of the summer. Thus, when the lettuce fades

Gardening is No. 1 leisure-time activity

More than eight out of 10 — 83 percent — of American households were involved in at least one form of indoor or outdoor gardening in 1984. Gardening ranked as the number-one outdoor leisure activity of U.S. households, more popular than golf, jogging, biking, tennis and swimming. The most popular gardening activities were lawns with 54 million or 63 percent of all households in-olved, indoor houseplants with 39 million or 46 percent, flower gardening with 40 million or 47 percent, and vegetable gardening with 34 million or 40 percent participating.

The data are based on results of a nationwide poll sponsored by Gardens for All, the National Association for Gardening, a 250,000-member-supported non-profit organization based in Burlington, Vt. The national survey is conducted annually in July and August by the Gallup Organization of Princeton, N.J.

The survey shows that vegetable gardening in backyards and community gardens saw a slight decline in 1984 — down 1-million households from 1983 to 34-million households. The incidence of households growing a small amount of vegetables and fruits in containers, border plantings, on roof tops and patios increased to 10-million households in 1984.

Gardens for All president Charles Scott said food gardening took a slight dip in 1984, indicating that those gardening as a fad or only for economic reasons seemed to have dropped out.

Only a little time needed to start

water, the zinnias will be starting to bloom until the frosts in the fall.

The reverse is true in the fall. If the flowers you planted in the spring should begin to look spent and leggy, sow some cool season vegetables seeds (lettuce or peas). The seeds will germinate quickly and continue to grow throughout the fall, yielding garden fresh vegetables until a hard frost.

Place containers where they will receive full sun for several hours a day, as most garden flowers and vegetables need at least four hours of sun a day.

Ideally, they should have eight to twelve hours of full sun, but most plants will adapt to less. One of the nice things about containers is their mobility. As the sun shifts from one area to another, the gardener can move the pots to follow the sun.

Once the container garden is planted and in place, the only requirement left is to make sure the plants receive ample water throughout the season.

For most areas of North America, Mother Nature will help take care of this responsibility. At times she forgets her duties or becomes overzealous for her charges.

If there has not been any rain for at least three days and temperatures have been high, you will probably need to water the container garden, but check the pots first. One way to do this is to lift the pot and assess its weight. If its weight is light, water the container; if the weight still seems as heavy as it does after a rain, hold off on watering until another day. Of course, if the plants begin to wilt and the medium is dry, water immediately. Water the containers thoroughly in the same manner as when setting up the pots.

On the other hand, there are times "when it rains, it pours and pours." If the rains come frequently, day after day, plants can become waterlogged and suffer damage. In this situation, the simplest remedy is to remove the saucer from under the pot and allow the water to drain away.

Containers are an inexpensive and attractive way to bring the beauty of garden flowers and the taste of fresh vegetables to your home. Containers of vivid summer annuals at the front entrance say "welcome" to guests; a grouping of flower pots along a driveway is a quick and easy way to landscape; a tub of salad greens and tomatoes next to the back door means instant dinner for the busy homeowner.

Container gardening allows the novice to ease into gardening without spending a great deal of time or money. After the simple skills are mastered, expansion is as easy as purchasing another pot.

Birds flock to suet

To an oriole, an orange half is heavenly. For a cardinal, sunflower seeds are scrumptious. Bakery products are special to sparrows. All birds, however, love suet. If you're trying to attract birds to your backyard, you can do it with suet.

Suet, which is beef or mutton fat, is to birds what bread is to humans — the staff of life. Suet is an energy-rich, inexpensive and readily available source of animal fats for birds. Fats are essential in a bird's diet, together with protein.

Sources of protein for birds, which can be added to suet, are seeds, grains, ground meat, nutmeats, peanut butter mix and table scraps.

Grit is also necessary for bird feeding because birds have no teeth and rely on the fine particles of grit in their gizzards to grind up hard seeds. Available in garden centers and feed stores, grit should be scattered on the feeding platform or offered to birds in a shallow dish.

You can buy suet from the butcher; ask for "short" suet or kidney suet, rather than "stringy" suet and make sure it is fresh, firm and white. Beef suet is preferred, and you should have your butcher grind it for you.

One method of preparing suet is to render the ground suet to a liquid state by heating the suet in a double boiler or in a small saucepan placed in a larger pan of boiling water. After the suet has cooled and thickened, you can stir in seeds, chopped fruits and other bird treats. Then pour the mixture into forms or pack into bird feeders.

Birds love this soft, homemade suet mixture, although commercial, suet-seed cakes are widely available.

The following recipe for high-protein suet mix is from the Ortho book "How to Attract Birds." If you give birds the suet treat they love, they will flock to your backyard in droves.

HIGH-PROTEIN SUET MIX FOR INSECT-EATING BIRDS
4 1/2 cups ground fresh suet
3/4 cup dried and finely ground bakery goods* (whole or cracked wheat bread and crackers are best)
1/2 cup hulled, raw, and unsalted sunflower seeds
1/4 cup millet (white proso is best)
1/4 cup dried and chopped berries (currants, raisins, or dried wild berries)
3/4 cup dried and finely ground meat (optional)

1. Melt suet in a saucepan.
2. Mix together the rest of the ingredients in a large mixing bowl.
3. Allow suet to cool until slightly thickened, then add it to the mixture in the bowl. Mix well.
4. Pour or pack into forms or suet feeders; smear onto tree trunks or overhanging limbs and branches or pack into pine cones.
