Coaches lose out on selection exception

Despite emotional pleas from sponsoring Trustee Dean Swartzwelter and two coaches, a random selection proposal died at the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education meeting Monday.

The resolution, which would have enabled the children of Centennial Educational Park employees to select their own high school, was defeated by a 1-5 margin. (Resigning Trustee Nancy Quinn was absent).

Presently, students are randomly assigned by computer to either Plymouth Canton or Salem High School.

An exception for siblings of Canton and Salem students, also sponsored by Swartzwelter, recently was passed by the board. It enables the eighth-grade brothers or sisters of CEP students to attend the high school of their choice.

Swartzwelter's second proposal, which would have been effective for current and future eighth graders, held that: "Whereas the sibling option was implemented because of the close relationships that may exist between siblings, and . . . the same close personal relationships may also exist between staff parents and their children, and whereas these relationships may be jeopardized by random-selection assignment of staff children" . . . eighth-graders who have parents employed at CEP may select their own high school.

Trustee E.J. McClendon was the most vocal opponent of the plan.

"First of all, it would not seem fair to all those citizens and their children who've lived with the district's policies not to continue to carry out the random selection process.

"(Changing the policy) would violate everyone's right to equal treatment. We also could create an imbalance in the size of the schools. Currently, the two schools instructional function as one, so the opportunity for interaction exists now.

"Also, (the proposal) could tend to divide the community by promoting the feeling that there is one good school and one poor school, one weak school and one strong school."

Swartzwelter objected, saying the matter was simply a "generic family issue involving an environment unique to parents who work at CEP and have 10th-, 11th- or 12th-grade children at the high schools." Less than 20 families would be affected, he said.

Modifying random selection would enable those parents and children to look out for their own family interests by deciding themselves whether to attend the same or different schools, said Swartzwelter.

Said Trustee Elaine Kirchgatter: "It's not just a generic issue. I know people who aren't employees who'd like their child to attend one or the other school. I know one parent whose neighbor cares for her child thinks (their child care arrangement) is reason enough to be able to be exempted from random selection."

Trustee David Artley waived, but backed McClendon. "If I was going to make an exception, I would make it for staff. But if we make it for staff, I have some difficulty with what do I say to my neighbor who prefers one school to the other?"

"He has his own reasons. If we're at the point where we're ready to start making broad exceptions to the rules, maybe it's time to look at other alternatives such as open enrollment, boundaries, or consolidation into one school."

TOM MOSHIMER, Salem football coach, gave an impassioned presentation to the board after responding to Artley. "I appreciate the point you bring up about your neighbor. But if you work at Ford and I don't, you get particular fringes that I do not," said Moshimer.

For many of Moshimer's coaching colleagues, even those with several undefeated seasons to their credit, "the biggest thrill of their careers has been the opportunity to coach their sons," said Moshimer, recently inducted into the Michigan High School Football Coaches' Association Hall of Fame.

"There's no comparison between the (father-son) relationship in the classroom and on the athletic field. After having had the great experience of coaching my son I can only hope other fathers would have the same opportunity," he added.

(Salem wrestling coach) Ron Krueger is facing the same possibility, (as have other Plymouth-Canton coaches) of being denied the chance to coach his son (eighth-grader Lee Krueger, a skilled football player expected to enjoy successful careers in both high school wrestling and football).

"At any other district in the state, he'd have that choice.

"Aren't the needs of students supposed to be primary?" asked Moshimer.

"We should be able to implement remedies to inequities when we see them. I know we are losing many quality students and parents to parochial schools. I'd hate to see us lose more because we weren't flexible enough to make logical choices."

GARY BALCONI, Salem boys' track coach, said, "It's hard to believe any one rule fits all situations. It seems rather unfair (to deny Ron Krueger and his son) the chance to continue to grow together. It's a reasonable, fair and deserving request."

After the meeting, Swartzwelter said he expected his proposal to be defeated.

"I'm not surprised. Board members positions haven't changed. The unique nature of this problem isn't recognized by people who aren't involved."

How strained are relations along the border?

By Gary M. Cates
staff writer

Plymouth and Plymouth Township have had a complete breakdown of relations, as far as Township Supervisor Maurice Breen sees it.

"Our relationship right now is putrid, and the police issue has caused it," Breen said during a candid interview Monday.

"I'm tired of sitting back and not saying anything. I'm tired of just letting it ride," Breen said.

But the supervisor's counterpart, City Manager Henry Graper, doesn't see things in the same light.

"The relationship between the city and township is very good," said a reserved Graper Tuesday afternoon.

"There are some areas where we have had some strain and some conversations . . . but I have nothing but the highest regard for them. Maybe, I'm just more optimistic than he is," Graper said.

THE TONE of the two interviews was as different as the viewpoints expressed.

Breen was aggravated and came across hot. Graper remained calm and calculated, appearing surprised that Breen believed relations had deteriorated.

But the condition of city-township relations is no secret.

Verbal barbs have been hurled back and forth since the township started talking about pulling out of an agreement for joint police services.

The resulting crossfire and finger-pointing has taken place both publicly and privately. The spirit of cooperation, which marked joint projects such as the library, district court and senior citizen programs, appears to be fading.

analysis

"We have bent over backwards," Breen said. "We are the ones who went affirmatively forward toward shared services."

"The city manager may have gone out and made a lot of speeches about cooperation and shared services but I am the one who put these programs together," the supervisor said.

"I took the township in for a cooperative position and let the city take all the credit for everything. They have cut it down again because of the pettiness of the system — it's the same attitude which has persisted over the years," he said.

Graper said the two units of government always worked together on shared services. He declined further comment on Breen's claim to have done all the work.

"I don't think it's a matter of being for shared services or against shared services. It's a matter of whether or not the shared services are working for both parties."

YET BOTH agree the contract for shared police service is at the heart of the current state of relations.

In 1980 the township faced finding a way to provide law enforcement. The Wayne County Sheriff's Department was cut back and pulled out of the township.

A shared service agreement with Plymouth was struck. Officials from both communities pointed to the contract with pride, until 1984 when the township started looking toward starting its own department.

Those discussions centered on the quality and price of the service. The township hired a police consultant — Robert Parsons — to lead a study of the contract and department.

Almost at the same time, the city commissioned a study by Bartell and Bartell, police consultants.

"Their police have caused the deterioration in the relationship. The impression they gave us is that there is nothing the commission or the administration can do about the police," Breen said.

ALSO, THE supervisor said the township faced an $800,000-a-year cost for the contract — up from $467,000.

"There's no question the cost to us would have been $800,000 for another year of service. It's not something I'm making up — it's right in the Bartell report which they accepted," Breen said.

Graper said the cost wouldn't have been $800,000, and he doesn't agree with Parsons' report.

"We performed a better service than we are getting credit for in the township, although there are some mistakes we made and our police officers made," Graper said.

"If anything, it's Breen's and Police Chief Carl Berry's feelings toward the policemen," he said.

"Breen told me it basically was a situation of wanting two types of policing — the city way and the township way.

"Obviously, if one person believes and feels that way, then you're going to go your separate ways," Graper said.

"It's not a matter that we couldn't handle the police union. Maurie couldn't do the things he wanted to do with the labor contract we have right now.

"The police union may have caused him some aggravation but I can't control that anymore than he can control his fire union," Graper said.

The city manager said the shared police contract didn't work because of the criteria used for judging performance — response time and staffing levels.

"We needed different standards. We rendered the services we contracted to render. I think Mr. Breen's problem with it was the quality of service for the price he was paying," he said.

WHILE GRAPER believes the police contract is the only real point of contention, Breen said there are others.

"They perceive that they are the ones providing everything and expect us to keep on throwing money at them but they are unwilling to sit down and discuss the delivery system.

"The joint library is something we went for to benefit the library," Breen said.

The Dunning-Hough Library, next to City Hall, recently underwent renovation and expansion. The city and township agreed to split the debt, just as they are doing for the operational costs.

Earlier this year, the township was asked to make an additional operational contribution to the library. The township board initially balked at the request and waited before agreeing to make the payment.

"They want our money but they don't like our input on the library," Breen said.

"We have to maintain budget control to get input," he said. "If you don't do it (complain about increased costs), they just totally ignore it."

Graper disagrees. "The township is a part of the decision-making process on everything for the library," Graper said, even though there are no township representatives on the library's governing board.

Currently there is discussion of forming a library district. The discussions have run into a roadblock — working out an agreement to split the assets in the event the district is abolished.

"At the open house for the library addition everyone said it was donated to the Plymouth community — Plymouth and Plymouth Township," Breen said.

"Now that we're in contract negotiations for a district I keep hearing that it belongs to Plymouth. They believe that without them there would be nothing and that's not the case."

"TAKE THE 35th District Court for example," the supervisor said.

"They make out like they made all the sacrifices but how do you think they expanded City Hall?"

Township police construction costs rising above budget

By Gary M. Cates
staff writer

Plymouth Township trustees took action Tuesday night to complete the construction of a police station at the Township Hall complex, the corner of Ann Arbor Road and Mill Street.

Plymouth Township plans to start a police department by July 1, when a contract for shared service with Plymouth expires.

Architect Stan Tkacz presented the board with a report on a portion of the building which has been completed, as well as the results from bids for the remainder of the work. His presentation contained good and bad news.

The board earlier authorized Tkacz to complete work on the communications and data center portion of the facility based on quotes. The facility is being built in an existing DPW garage, and the communications/data area needed to be done by April 1 to allow for equipment installation and training.

That portion of the work, labeled the "fast track phase," is done and already occupied, Tkacz said.

The good news was that both the fast track construction and related furnishings came in under estimates, he reported.

The fast track construction was estimated to cost $86,700 and came in at $85,337, some $1,360 below projections. The accompanying furnishings were estimated at $7,000 and came in at $5,921, some $1,075 below projections.

THE BAD news came when Tkacz's reported on bids for the remainder of the project — site work and building construction.

The construction work was estimated to cost some $156,000 and the bids came in at $211,550, some $55,500 over projections.

Tkacz said the higher bid price was due, in part, to several items which weren't included or anticipated in the original plans. Among those items were additional work in the detention cell areas, required by state law, and the cost of obtaining electrical service.

The $211,550 bid total was too high in Tkacz's opinion and he recommended the board not authorize the work. Instead Tkacz recommended, and the board approved, accepting the low bidders but negotiating to obtain lower prices.

Tkacz explained that the same situation occurred with the bids for the recent addition to the Dunning-Hough Library. By negotiating with the contractors, he said lower prices were received.

In effect, the board accepted the bidders for the police station construction but rejected their prices. Consequently, Tkacz will negotiate and possibly alter the specifications to reduce the price.

The board authorized Tkacz to proceed with the project, with the cost not to exceed $181,000 — for which he promised it could be done. He will not return to the board for subsequent approval on individual contractor costs.

THE SITE work was estimated to cost some $49,500 and the bids came in at $51,350, some $2,000 over projections. An additional $14,500, not included in the estimates or bids, could be required for road improvements on Mill Street.

The road work, including adding curbs and widening the street, has been requested by the Wayne County Road Commission, he said.

"This was not included in the estimates because it was not known that the Wayne County Road Commission would be so adamant about it," Tkacz said.

Road Commission approval is needed because the township plans to add an entrance/exit onto Mill Street, which is a county road.

Trustee Abe Munfakh asked if the county is allowed to require off-site improvements.

"They can do it but whether or not they are successful is to be seen," Supervisor Maurice Breen said.

"I am recommending that we not include the work. We are of the conclusion they won't do much about it," Breen said.

"I believe it's a bit bullyish," Trustee Jim Irvine said. "I'm of the opinion if they want the road improvements, let them do it — it's their road."

Action on bids for the remainder of the station's furnishing, originally scheduled for Tuesday night's meeting, was postponed until May.

Wayne County ponders blood

As Wayne County commissioners debated whether to require tests for the presence of aids in blood donors, the American Red Cross announced it has begun performing a HTLV-3 antibody test on all blood donors.

All donors will be tested, according to Dr. A. William Shafer, director of Red Cross blood services. Red Cross provides most of the blood used in transfusions in southeastern Michigan.

The test for the HTLV-3 antibody is mistakenly being called an AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome) test, Shafer said.

The HTLV-III test is not a test for AIDS. Blood with positive test results will be retested and destroyed if still found positive for the HTLV-3 antibody.

HTLV-3 is believed to be the agent which causes AIDS. AIDS destroys the body's immune system, leaving the victim susceptible to many rare illnesses.

The AIDS syndrome is found mostly among very active homosexuals, street drug abusers, recent entrants from Haiti and Zaire and persons with hemophilia.

THE PRESENCE of an antibody indicates an individual probably has been exposed to HTLV-3 virus. As Shafer explained it, "The body thinks there has been an invasion and calls up its soldiers (the antibodies). The test will tell if there are soldiers there — and that's all the test does."

All liquid components in storage have been tested for the presence of HTLV-3 and are negative, Shafer said Monday.

The Red Cross said there is no chance of contracting AIDS through donating blood. The risk of developing AIDS from a blood transfusion is low. No cases of post-transfusion AIDS have been diagnosed in Michigan.

But the HTLV-3 test will reduce even that low risk significantly, Shafer said.

MEANWHILE, the Wayne County Commission continued discussion on a proposed ordinance to require testing for HTLV-3. It is sponsored by Commissioner Richard Manning, D-Redford.

The commission's committee on health and community services said it is worried that passage would open the door to county liability. The committee reported last week.

"The committee's main concern was the possibility of liability should the test give a positive result and, after further testing, the donor really doesn't have the antibodies to the virus. . . . The problem associated with inaccurate test results is an area the committee would like additional information."

Ben Washburn, legislative research assistant, told commissioners the federal Food and Drug Administration has licensed the test but hasn't developed regulations to require its usage. "Given the usual processing time, it may take two years to make the change," Washburn said.

"THE RED Cross is apprehensive, however, that use of the test may cause a bigger AIDS risk than it solves," he said.

The reason: If active homosexuals "swarm into blood collection centers in order to obtain a discreet and inexpensive test for the disease, the result could be more rather than less infected blood entering the banks," he said. And because the test is less than perfect in spotting infected persons, the Red Cross was apprehensive about using it.

"An ordinance requiring use of the test would relieve them (Red Cross) of this legal risk," Washburn said.

As proposed by Manning, the ordinance would prohibit drawing of blood for transfusion unless the donor has first been tested for the presence of HTLV-3 antibodies. No record could be kept of persons who test positive, but they would be told of the result and advised to consult a physician.

Violation would be a misdemeanor punishable by the standard $100 fine or 90 days in jail.

Book Bowl ends in library

The finals in the Book Bowl will be held tonight in the Canton Library.

The Book Bowl, now in its fifth year, is a cooperative program between the Canton Public Library and Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

Fourth and fifth graders from 12 elementary schools in the district read from a selected list of 25 books and then participate in matches to answer questions about the books. The contests are based on the "college quiz bowl" format.

Participating elementary schools are: Allen, Bird, Eriksson, Farrand, Fiegel, Field, Gallimore, Hulsing, Isbister, Smith, and Tanger.

The semifinals and finals will be held today from 7-9 p.m. at Canton Public Library. The superintendent of schools, Dr. John M. Hoben, will serve as moderator. The public is invited to watch the competition.

The book list is selected by a committee of school and public librarians and reflects a broad range of themes and reading levels. Multiple copies of each book are purchased by Canton Public Library and given to all the Plymouth-Canton schools.

Copies of the books also are available at the Canton Public Library. Books are housed in special displays to promote the program.

The program begins in November during children's Book Week. Participants read books from the list through the beginning of March, at which time competition begins. Runoffs take place in each participating school until a winning school team emerges. The school librarian serves as the organizer.

The winning school teams meet in quarterfinal matches, which are decided by draw.

All children who participate in the Book Bowl program receive certificates. The semifinalists and finalists receive $5 gift certificates. The winning team will receive a large stuffed animal to display in the media center of their school.

Up, up, away!

NATIONAL LIBRARY Week was celebrated this week at Fiegel Elementary School, on Joy at I-275, by staging a balloon launch.

The balloons were prepared by volunteer mothers who, fortunately, had the insight to prepare a few extra. Sure enough, one unnamed teacher took his balloons outside to distribute to his class, tied the bunch to a chair, turned away to go back to the classroom. While gone, the balloons "untied themselves" and flew away.

The remaining balloons were launched, on signal from Principal John Howe, on Monday. Each carried the message on the outside "Join the USA Reading Team." Library Week was celebrated at Centennial Educational Park (CEP) by having a number of speakers, and was marked by various means at other secondary and elementary buildings in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

How strained are relations between city, township?

in the 35th District, both Northvilles, both Plymouths and Canton, agreed to consolidate the court under one roof.

Consequently, branch court offices in Plymouth, Canton and Northville were moved out of municipal offices.

"Look at their Cultural Center," Breen said.

"They say they are funding it for the township, yet we agreed to let them use the township's population base to get their grant money to build it," Breen said.

"It's not that we thought it was a wise move but they wanted it badly," he said.

Another program Breen questions is the senior citizen van transportation. Like the library, the city and township split the operational costs of the program.

And, like the library, the township recently balked on making its share of the payment. After Mayor Pro Tem William Robinson made a trip to the township, both agreed to work out a contract for the funding.

The supervisor is going to propose paying the township's share through a voucher system.

"I have no idea if the city's claim about township usage is accurate but at least a voucher system will tell me what's happening."

"It is under review because we want to know if the seniors are getting the dollars or if all the money is getting eaten up by administrative charges. It's not that we're being non-cooperative, we're just trying to get a handle on administrative costs," he said.

BREEN WOULD argue with anyone who claims he has caused ill feelings over the shared services.

"The reason relations are breaking up is not because we are being uncooperative," Breen said.

"The city got into a budget situation and decided that someone was getting a free ride and that's not the case. We have paid for every service we have received and overpaid for a lot of things and police is one of them," Breen said.

Graper has a different viewpoint. "He agreed to those police costs through negotiations. If anything, all the reports we received indicated we probably weren't charging enough," the city manager said.

"We've never been in a serious budget crunch and had to depend on his money to run the city. It's just that we don't run the kind of surplus they run."

"We still have two mills that we can levy," Graper said.

BREEN BELIEVES the role of the two communities may be changing.

"There has been a conscious decision over the years by the people involved in township government to not allow extensive commercial development, to bolster the downtown area."

"We have subordinated ourselves for many years because we thought that was the best for the community but we also thought at the same time that the downtown area and merchants should pay their own damn way," Breen said. "We joined the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce in 1981 because they thought of nothing but downtown Plymouth," he said.

"We attend their meetings, and they're always talking about downtown. This attitude is not from everyone of them but there are some down there that think the sun rises and sets on their shiny little heads," Breen said.

The supervisor said the Chamber not only fails to serve the Ann Arbor Road merchants but the Old Village area in Plymouth. He believes the township's emerging industrial base will complement the commercial downtown area, and vice versa.

"Let's face it, we both benefit from each other and we recognize that... but they're making it more difficult to live together."

Graper shares Breen's belief that the township and city complement each other. He doesn't, however, believe the township has been second to the city.

"I have never felt that the township was subservient to the city. If anything, I have felt that the township's role is bigger than the city's," he said.

"The roles are entirely different — we are a full-service city and they are a township and townships don't provide all the services of a city."

"I view us as a strong, well-organized, well-established city. I believe the downtown is looked upon as a downtown for Plymouth Township — it complements the township and helps the property values in the township," Graper said.

"I would just as soon get all this behind us and move on with business," he said.

White Cane sale starts

The Lions Club of Plymouth will conduct its White Cane Drive tomorrow and Saturday at shopping centers and street corners in the City of Plymouth and Plymouth Township.

Some 60 club members will be soliciting donations during these two days for the 37th year the Plymouth Lions have participated in the White Cane Drive to support sight conservation, aid to the blind and community service projects.

The proceeds form all donations will be used to continue the many Lions Club projects, which include:

Leader Dog for the Blind, white canes and Braille watches for the blind, Michigan Eye Bank Research Center Building Fund, glasses, eye examinations, hearing aids and hearing examinations for any needy child or adult in the Plymouth community (more than $2,000 spent annually for children's eyeglasses alone); Penrickton Center for Blind and Deaf Children; Welcome Home Apartments for the Blind; Plymouth Gathering (next to Penn Theatre) building fund; Salvation Army Building Fund; Local YMCA van for transportation of young and old residents;

Also construction of picnic tables and bridges at Plymouth Centennial Park; trash receptacles in downtown Plymouth; providing playground equipment and other improvements at Burroughs Park (now named Lions Park); and large print books at the library and senior citizens apartments.

This year, as in the past, the Lions Club is collecting used eye glasses and hearing aids which may be dropped off with any Lions Club member. These glasses and hearing aids, in any condition, are repaired and given to needy people worldwide. Louis Morton is chairperson of this year's drive.

Gordie Howe to play at golf outing

Hockey legend Gordie Howe heads a list of 50 celebrities who will play golf June 25 at a Celebrity Golf Outing.

The outing, sponsored by the Livonia Rotary Club at the Western Golf and Country Club, Redford Township, is being held to raise funds for Big Brothers-Big Sisters.

Besides Howe, celebrities participating in the day-long event include WXYZ-TV sportscaster Steve Garagiolo, former Detroit Red Wing Alex Delvecchio, former Tigers Hank Aguirre and Jim Northrup, and football greats Dick "Night Train" Lane and Lynn Swann.

A round with one of the celebrities is included in the $150 fee for local golfers. Proceeds from the outing will allow Big Brothers-Big Sisters to continue to help the youth of metropolitan Detroit area. The organization's philosophy holds that children from one-parent homes need the friendship and guidance of another adult during the development years of ages 8 through 17.

Green fees, carts, attendance at an awards dinner and an open bar are also included in the fee. Non-golfers can participate by buying a $5 general admission ticket. An autograph tent will be set up on the golf course grounds.

Checks, payable to Big Brothers-Big Sisters, should be sent to Big Brothers-Big Sisters, P.O. Box 2, Plymouth 48170.

For further information, call 464-0829 or 569-0600.

Jaycees elect slate of officers

Jaycees who were elected are: Mike Armbruster, president; Rich Doherty, internal vice president; Carl Dumas, external vice president; Chuck Lowe, treasurer; Fred Eagle, administrative assistant; Gina Gray, director; Karen Murphy, director; Ron Lowe, director; Bob Houchins, director; and Paul Paron, director.

The Jaycees sponsor several community events such as the Sandbox Fill and the Fourth of July parade, fireworks and picnic. They also participate in other events such as the Fall Festival.

The Jaycees are interested in receiving suggestions for community activities the club can become involved in, according to Eagle.

Anyone with suggestions, or interested in joining the Jaycees, should write to: Plymouth Jaycees, P.O. Box 279, Plymouth, 48170.

"The Jaycees would like to express their thanks to the residents who have participated in Jaycee events this past year," Eagle said.

DeHoCo issue nears its end

By Gary M. Cates
staff writer

Local lawmakers hope to resolve the Detroit House of Correction (DeHoCo) issue in the coming week.

"We're pretty close to a final decision right now," said Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth Township. "We're right at the edge and we just need someone to push it over to get things rolling."

Following Detroit's decision to close DeHoCo earlier this year, Michigan corrections officials have been working toward turning the Plymouth Township facility on Five Mile, between Sheldon and Beck, into a state prison.

But the state's efforts are being fought by Law and Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, who hope to cap both the prisoner level and number of correctional facilities in Plymouth and Northville townships.

A state takeover of the facility requires legislative approval and currently involves three pending bills — a supplemental appropriations bill, for funding; a DeHoCo purchase bill, authorizing the purchase; and a "moratorium" bill to regulate the number of prisoners and facilities in the two townships.

ALL THREE of the bills are in the state House. The supplemental bill recently passed the Senate, while the purchase and moratorium bills are originating in the House.

Law said the only thing standing in the way of resolving the issue is the City of Detroit.

"As soon as we get our deal worked out we will go with it but we're waiting on Detroit," he said.

"Mayor Young still is talking about building a prison on the Plymouth State Home site (at Five Mile and Sheldon). The bill we have worked out right now will protect our area and we won't change it anymore.

"It's going to be one way or the other pretty quick here," Law said.

"I want to get it done and go on to other issues. I would like to start working on selling that Plymouth State Home property.

"I would like to work on them one at a time and get the DeHoCo fight behind us," he said.

"I have rewritten my moratorium bill," Law said. "The major change is that it calls for a corrections moratorium only in the Northville and Plymouth townships area, rather than statewide.

"The corrections people don't have a problem with it and we should be able to 'tie-bar' it to the DeHoCo bill — I don't have a lot of opposition from the legislators," he said.

ORIGINALLY, LAW sought a moratorium on correctional facilities in communities of more than 100,000 population, if the community already had a prison in it. The state would have been prohibited from locating additional prisons in such communities without approval from the local unit of government.

The bill now is limited to the two townships, which are slated for three prisons.

Besides DeHoCo, Northville township already has the Phoenix Correctional Facility across the street from DeHoCo. The Scott Correctional Facility, a regional prison, is being built adjacent to the Phoenix facility.

If Law's bill is passed, no additional prisons or correctional facilities can be built in either community.

Law's bill also contains a compromise on the number of prisoners at DeHoCo, which is being renamed the Western Wayne County Correctional Facility.

"We compromised on the number of temporary prisoners," he said. Permanent inmate beds are set at 311 for Phoenix, 550 for Scott and 500 for DeHoCo.

"CORRECTIONS PEOPLE originally wanted 1,000 temporary prisoners at DeHoCo, then they said 750. We have compromised for 650," Law said.

"The bill calls for the temporary situation to end on Jan. 1, 1987, or until the Scott facility is fully operational, whichever comes first.

"If they want to go beyond the cut off date, then they would have to get the approval of the local unit," he said. "That will give us some leverage for bargaining if we need road repairs or something like that."

Law also said there has been some changes in the DeHoCo purchase bill.

"Detroit has added a 'reverter clause' and asked to retain the mineral rights to the land.

"I did some checking and it's not uncommon to include such things so it wasn't worth fighting over," he said.

The reverter clause would require the land to be given back to Detroit in the event the state doesn't use it for correctional purposes. The mineral clause would give Detroit the right to any mineral resources found on the property.

Law wasn't certain when the House would vote on the bills but said negotiations were taking place Tuesday afternoon.

"The Senate hopefully will pass it as it is and then it will go to the governor to sign. If the Senate doesn't pass it as is, then we have to bring it back to the House for concurrence and everything can get mucked up," Law said.

● SPRAYING CITY ELMS

The City of Plymouth DPW has started its spring spraying of all city elm trees. Homeowners are asked, if at all possible, to keep their vehicles off the streets for at least a two-week period. The DPW will be spraying from 4 a.m. to about 9 a.m. each weekday morning until finished. The department will not have a set schedule regarding what day it will be in a particular area. For the spraying to be done, it must be a calm morning.

● SUBSTANCE ABUSE WORKSHOP

Thursday, April 25 — A workshop to provide all parents with information on how to tell if their child and/or friends are using alcohol or drugs will be 7-9 p.m. in the cafeteria of Plymouth Canton High School, Canton Center Road just south of Joy, on April 25 and May 2.

The workshop also will look at what stages young people go through from experimentation (as early as fifth grade) to addiction, the affect drugs and alcohol have on families, the methods families use to adapt to the symptoms of the disease of addiction and how to discuss alcohol and drug use with children in a non-threatening way. Denise Tardif is the instructor. The workshop is free and registration is not required. The workshop is being offered through the Community Education Department of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

● SCHOOL FAIR

Friday, April 26 — Bird Elementary School will be sponsoring a fun fair 6-9 p.m. Included will be food, games prizes, a plant room and cake walk.

● YOUNG AUTHORS CONFAB

Saturday, April 27 — Plymouth-Canton Community Schools' 14th annual Young Authors Conference will be held from 8:45 to 11:30 a.m. at Tanger Elementary School, 40260 W. 5 Mile, Plymouth. About 300 students will participate in various mini-sessions, including drama, computers, writing and art activities. The students will hear professional story-teller Pamela Vander Ploeg. Each student will be awarded a certificate for their work at the closing of the conference.

Comerica: Region needs 'whale' of a bank

By Tim Richard
staff writer

In an era of bank consolidations, Comerica intends to be a survivor — with corporate headquarters still in southeastern Michigan.

And a first step in surviving is for Michigan's second-largest bank to arrange a friendly merger with No. 3-ranked Michigan National Corp., says Comerica Chairman Donald R. Mandich.

"It's harder to swallow a whale than a minnow," Mandich said at the close of his financial services holding company's annual stockholders meeting Tuesday in Detroit.

BY "WHALE," he meant a merger of • Comerica, with assets of $9 billion, in 17 affiliated banks with more than 200 offices, many in area suburbs; and

• Michigan National Corp. (MNC), with assets of $6.7 billion in a network of 23 banks, headquartered in Bloomfield Hills.

MNC's directors have rejected Comerica's first offer and said they weren't interested in merger talks. There are federal court suits and counter-suits, with Comerica alleging Michigan National's officers are out to "entrench" themselves and betraying their fiduciary trust to MNC's stockholders.

MNC's stockholders' meeting is scheduled for today.

"It would be in the best interest of the region," Mandich told Comerica stockholders, "to have a Michigan-based institution of the critical mass and financial strength necessary to compete effectively in the forthcoming era of interstate banking."

MNC stockholders, by swapping each of their shares for 0.72 Comerica shares, would be getting a stock worth $26.50 — some 40 or 50 percent more than the old market price of $17.50 to $18, Mandich said. He promised advantages for employees and bank customers as well as shareholders and the region, too.

If MNC directors refuse a friendly discussion, Mandich said, Comerica will attempt a takeover by "tender" offer — buying up MNC shares in the market.

MANDICH SAW a good omen, however, in the fact that Comerica finds it necessary to schedule a second stockholders meeting — in late May or early June — on a board proposal to increase authorized common stock from 20 million to 40 million shares. The proposal was to have been voted on Tuesday.

The Comerica chairman said the board needed the additional time to prepare "more information." He explained that the first proxy statement contained enough information if there was to be a "possible" merger with MNC, but MNC's lawyers objected to the proxy statement.

"More information" is needed if there is a "probable" merger, Mandich said, adding, "That raises it to a 'probable' transaction."

Comerica currently has 10.3 million shares outstanding of its 20 million authorized shares. The board asked for authority to issue up to 40 million shares 1) to facilitate an acquisition and 2) to impede a takeover by another company.

SIGNIFICANTLY, MNC's board today will ask stockholders to approve a similar resolution to increase its number of common shares from 16 million to 20 million — mainly for the defensive purpose of impeding Comerica's takeover. MNC has 12 million shares outstanding.

Mandich said that because financial information for MNC for the full year 1984 only recently had become publicly available, Comerica was unable to provide its shareholders sufficient details prior to the annual meeting.

Before the rescheduled vote, Mandich said, shareholders will receive additional information concerning the proposal as well as a proxy.

With the stock authorization question off the agenda, Comerica stockholders had little to do but re-elect a slate of directors. They received 7.1 million of the 7.3 million shares voted at the meeting.

Elected were Earle B. Barnes, former chairman of Dow Chemical Co.; Robert M. Brown, president of Monroe Management Co.; attorney Barbara Hackett; Mandich; Robert F. Roelofs, president of Oakland Community College; Thomas F. Russell, chairman of Federal Mogul Corp.; Howard F. Sims, chairman of Sims-Varner and Associates; and Gilbert Whitaker Jr., dean of the University of Michigan Graduate School of Business Administration.

Comerica is the former Detroit Bank & Trust Co., which in 1983 acquired the former Bank of the Commonwealth. Among its bank holdings are Comerica Bank-Livonia, Comerica-Metro West in Novi, Comerica-Southfield and Comerica-Troy. Other area holdings are Comerica-Mortgage in Birmingham, Comerica Capital and Comerica Ventures, both in Bloomfield Township.

IN PREPARED remarks, Mandich said the banking industry adjusting to deregulation in three steps.

First, state laws are being "liberated" to allow in-state mergers, consolidations and acquisitions. Michigan lags in this area, he said, with legislative bills being "burdened" with consumer-oriented "re-regulations."

Second, states are working on common sets of laws within regions — the Northeast in one, Southeast in another, Great Lakes states in still another.

Finally, after two years of adjustment, full interstate banking would be accomplished.

Brothers operate fish mart

By W.W. Edgar
staff writer

When you link hard work and imagination success can be found.

An example in Plymouth can be found on Starkweather Avenue where Kevin and Mike McNamara, sons of Livonia Mayor Ed Mc Namara, have linked an oldtime grocery store and a fish market and are doing quite well.

Kevin, a graduate of Eastern Michigan University where he studied fine arts, started the success when he purchased the fish market that was in the rear of Milt Orr's store for years.

Once he got settled and moved the market out on the main street, he convinced his brother, who studied marketing at the University of Michigan, to purchase the store. Now they have modernized the two places and are on the road to success.

Mike was talking about the change in things when he said that his father urged them on. "He always told us to walk into the wind and that's what we did."

MIKE CAME to Plymouth seven years ago and now has modernized the fish market. In addition to the market where all the fresh fish is now on view, he has added a few chairs and tables and now runs a seafood restaurant.

"We will prepare the fish any way you desire," he explained, "and we do a great business with fish and chips on Friday evenings."

During the week, they have a good number of customers who want other types of fish. "We always have clam chowder, made by the same recipe that is used in the top seafood houses in the East.

"It was a gamble," he said, "but we took it and now it is paying off."

To add to the fresh fish on display in the racks under glass, Mike also handles several canned varieties of stew and soup, with the famous oyster stew made by Bookbinders in Philadelphia.

"It has been a lot of fun," he said, "and each day it seems to be getting better."

KEVIN MCNAMARA has done much the same with what long has been known as Bill's Market. He had the entire market modernized and the place is handling the most desired stock of a major market.

The two brothers have a great time trying to outdo each other and all the while their father enjoys following their success.

With their activities, the McNamara boys have now joined another successful brother combination in Plymouth.

For years the Jabara brothers, Jim and Kal, ran a tank plant on Joy Road. Then they broke away and started on their own in Plymouth with a business far away from the dirt and grease of a factory.

Kal now has the Wild Wings outdoor art gallery shop on Ann Arbor Trail and Jim is a guiding hand in the rows of business places on Forest and Harvey Streets.

These brother combinations are fitting examples of the reward that can be gained with hard work and imagination.

'Mostly Mozart' on Wednesday

A "Mostly Mozart" concert will be presented by the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park (CEP) Orchestra on Wednesday, May 1.

The concert, open to the public at no charge, will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium of Plymouth Salem High School on Joy Road just west of Canton Center Road.

Featured in this concert will be three compositions by Mozart and one by Haydn.

Steve Harrington, senior, will perform the first movement of the Mozart "French Horn Concerto in D Major, K.412" followed by Dan Stacey and Mark Rakozky performing Mozart's "Sinfonia Concertante" for violin and viola, K.364 first movement.

Ping Chou, senior, will play the third movement from the Haydn piano "Concerto in D Major." This movement is marked "Rondo all 'Ungherese'" — Rondo in the Hungarian style.

Concluding the concert will be Jennifer Walker performing the first movement of the Mozart "Clarinet Concerto in A Major," K.622.

Michael Endres, orchestra director, said he has a significant number of capable student soloists in the orchestra and wanted to feature as many of them as possible in a concert this school year.

Keep pets from postal carriers

With the arrival of warmer weather, the United States Postal Service is asking dog owners to help protect mail carriers and residents from dog bites.

Some 8,000 mail carriers across the nation were bitten by dogs last year, according to Vernon A. Racine, Plymouth postal officer in charge.

Included in that statistic were three Plymouth carriers, Racine said. "In recent years the public has responded to our plea to keep their pets restrained, and we have seen a decline in bites nationally," Racine said.

"Nevertheless, much is still to be done to eliminate the hazard to our employees and other citizens who might be bitten."

According to Racine, dogs are territorial by nature and will bite if they feel their domain is threatened by the presence of a carrier or other person.

"With a little care, a pet owner can not only protect our carriers but his or her pet and pocketbook," he said.

The postal service will, in the event of a dog hazard, interrupt home delivery to a residence, or in some cases an entire neighborhood. The postal service also will seek to recover injury compensation damages and provides counseling to carriers who have been bitten and wish to seek legal action against the dog owner.

"We suggest that pets be kept away from the mailbox and areas the letter carrier uses for access to the property," Racine said.

"If the pet cannot be kept behind a secure fence, the owner should restrain it with a secure leash or tether, or at least keep the pet inside the house during the usual hours carriers are making their rounds."

"We try to do our part by stressing awareness of dog bite dangers to our carriers but we rely heavily on the support and cooperation of the community to help us end these painful and costly injuries," he said.

Train Show is Sunday

Plymouth's third bi-annual Original Train Show will be held Sunday at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

The show will be from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday at the Cultural Center, 525 Farmer at Theodore. Admission is $2 for adults and free for children 12 and younger when accompanied by an adult.

Featured will be more than 100 tables of new, used, and antique model trains, operating layouts, and the chance to climb aboard a real Chessie System locomotive and caboose located trackside on the C&O mainline near the now closed Roundhouse in the Plymouth Yard in Old Village.

New Japanese 'Super Pill'

Insures Rapid Weight-Loss

No Dieting — Eat All You Want, Pill Does All The Work

BEVERLY HILLS, CA An exciting new "all natural" weight-loss "Super" Pill developed by the JMA (Japanese Medical Association) has just been approved for distribution in the United States. Reportedly, it can guarantee that you will lose more than a pound a day without dieting, from the very first day until you reach your ideal weight and figure. News of this "Super Pill" is literally sweeping the country. It's called Amitol and there has never been anything quite like it before.

"Flushes Calories Right Out Of Your Body"

What makes Amitol so thrilling and unique is its reported ability to flush calories right out of your body. Amitol is completely safe, it contains no drugs whatsoever. Its ingredients are derived solely from the Konjac root which grows primarily in Northern Japan.

Why the Konjac root? It has been used in Japan for over 1600 years to produce rapid and natural weight-loss! Japanese studies verify that Konjac root actually prevents fat producing calories from being absorbed into your system. They say it does this by surrounding much of the fats, proteins and carbohydrates you have eaten with a protective viscous coating which is then gently flushed out of your system. And according to Japanese research this produces absolutely amazing results.

And who can disagree! Amitol (although brand new to this country) is already being called by many people, "the most exciting weight-loss breakthrough of the century." In fact, everywhere there are reports of easy and fast weight-loss from formerly overweight people (in all walks of life) who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Company Offers Extraordinary Guarantee

You now can purchase Amitol direct from the North American distributor, and it comes with an extraordinary guarantee.

If you place your order now and then follow the simple instructions for a period of 30 days, you must be completely satisfied with the dramatic visible results or just return the empty container and Dyna Labs will immediately send back your entire purchase price. This guarantee applies regardless of your age or current weight level. What could be better than that! It's just that simple. If you've tried to lose weight before and failed you no longer have an excuse. Amitol is available, it's easy and it works without dieting!

$19.95—30 day supply, or $35.95 60 day supply. Order immediately by sending a check or money order to DYNALABS, 270 No. Canon Dr., Ste. 1255 (Dept. U-21) Beverly Hills, CA, 90210. (Enclose your return address). Credit card holders can order by simply dialing toll free: (1-800-367-2400) 24 hrs a day, 7 days a week. Either way your order will be promptly sent. Please don't wait. You really do deserve to be thin.

Recreation chief at work for county

For the first time in more than a decade, Wayne County has a recreation professional in its parks department.

He is Victor Chiasson, 33, who started work Monday as chief of recreation. He reports to parks manager R. Eric Reickel, a long-time associate.

"My work will be to design activities to bring people back into the park system," said Chiasson, whose office overlooks Hines Parkway in the western suburbs. "We'll co-sponsor events in the park, particularly one-day events to stimulate park usage."

His first major project is coordinating the Sunday, May 5, Activities Day, when most of Hines Drive will be closed to auto traffic and open to non-profit groups' activities and non-motorized recreation.

COUNTY PARKS and law enforcement officials frankly want to continue luring families back into a park that was notorious in the 1970s for drug usage, rowdiness and vandalism.

Like Reickel, Chiasson grew up in the downriver city of Trenton. He earned bachelor's and master's degrees in parks and recreation at Central Michigan University. He worked for Reickel in Oakland County for five years as recreation supervisor.

Most recently Chiasson was leisure services coordinator for the city of Wayne for six years. There he gained fame for two programs — the Great Marshmallow Drop, a replacement of the Easter egg contest, and the "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas" contest. Winners of the White Christmas contest were guaranteed snow for the holiday — if not from nature then from ice shavings the city dropped on their lawns.

Teacher quits, lists concerns

To the editor:
(Open letter to: the school board, administration, teachers, students and community of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.)

I have been a teacher in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools since the fall of 1978. I chose to become an educator and accepted a position at Pioneer Middle School because of some deeply held convictions that education is the backbone of a democracy.

Only an intelligent, aware and inquisitive people can make wise decisions affecting their lives and the lives of those around them. The Plymouth-Canton schools had a fine reputation about the staff. Although I see "pockets" of these qualities in the district at the present time, generally they are not a part of the district's current philosophy.

I can no longer remain a part of this school district as it becomes more "efficient" and less humane, more concerned with the "physical plant" and less concerned with the whole (physical, emotional, cultural, academic) education of those we are entrusted to serve — the students.

I am therefore submitting my resignation as teacher in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, effective June 15, 1985. I will be pursuing a graduate degree towards an alternative career in mathematics during the next two years.

I believe it is important that I detail some of the reasons that have led me to this decision. There are three major areas of concern that need to be addressed:

- 1) Decision-making — How are decisions arrived at in this school district? Who makes these decisions? How are they made, and to what end? Specifically, changes in program, curriculum, grade alignment and evaluation occur at a rapid rate in this school district. Programs are changed (with the prevailing winds) and later on those most affected are surveyed to death to ask them what they think of the changes. Is this designed to make all of us feel as if we have some power in decision-making? It is a dishonest practice that is being used to control dissent, not encourage it.

The proper way to make decisions is to include all those involved with implementing the decision in the process. Parents, administrators, teachers, support personnel and students must be involved in decisions which affect program content and direction. This group must be involved at the earliest stage in the process of decision-making — not two months prior to implementation.

- 2) Professional growth — School districts must be at the forefront of attracting high-quality students from the colleges and universities. This aim goes hand-in-hand with providing opportunity for professional growth of the district's staff.

The best graduates from our universities are too smart to enter a profession that appears to them to be a "dead-end" job, academically and professionally. Teachers should not be allowed to take sabbatical leaves — they should be encouraged to do so. Yet, in the past five years, only one sabbatical has been granted to teachers in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, in spite of the fact that (contractually) two percent of the total teaching staff are entitled to sabbatical leaves.

I have suggested a number of times in the past few years that we set up a working relationship (possibly an exchange program) between firms doing business in the area and the school district. "Liability," we were told, would be a problem. Instead of searching for a way to do things, we constantly try to "cover" ourselves. If we want good teachers to enter the district, if we want to keep the quality teachers we presently have, and if we want to help all our staff grow professionally, then we must encourage these things — actively.

- 3) Philosophy and direction of education — Is there a philosophy of education in this district?

We seem to have clear-cut goals and a direction that we are heading in, but is it the right direction? A very high priority in this school district is to make things run smoothly. If a student sits passively at his/her spot for 6-7 hours each day, then everything is fine. If there is no labor strike in the district this year, then everyone must be happy. We strive for calmness and efficiency, but this leads to "brain-death."

If the boat is not rocking, it must be a solid boat. Why aren't we questioning where this boat is headed and how the passengers feel about their trip?

Do we want to try to get more students college-oriented? If so, what changes need to be made at all levels to accomplish this? Without a doubt, our courses need to be much more rigorous to fully prepare our students for the challenges that lie ahead.

What should we do for those students who do not wish to pursue college? At present, these students are sorely neglected.

Should our art, music and health programs be viewed as frills, the first to lose out in a financial crunch? What would we think of a people who are illiterate artistically and musically and ignorant of their own bodies? Why isn't the entire community up in arms over class sizes in excess of 30-40 students?

More fundamentally, education must embody the ideals we, as members of society, strive for: cooperation, pursuit of excellence and a respect for differences. To those who ask how one can expect the schools to live up to values that are crumbling in society as a whole, I respond by saying that we are society. It is not out there.

If we choose to make our world a different place, then we must act on that decision. We may not be able to cure all of society's ills, but we have a responsibility to ourselves and those around us not to accept complacency and mediocrity. Needless to say, as educators, we are failing our students if we do not pass this sense of responsibility on to them.

I have chosen to air my concerns in a public manner in the hope that some of these issues are thought about, talked about and argued. Too little of that has taken place over the past few years.

with minor home repair tasks. For information, call 525-8690.

● VETERANS PROGRAM EXTENDED

Area Vietnam era and disabled veterans should be aware of recent changes affecting the Veterans Readjustment Appointments (VRA) program. VRA is a federal hiring program providing special, non-competitive hiring of these veterans. Originally scheduled to expire Sept. 30, 1984, the program has been extended through Sept. 30, 1986, through passage of the Veterans Benefits Improvement Act (PL 98-543). It is not expected that the VRA program will be extended beyond that date.

In addition to extending the program, PL 98-543 raised the entry grade level maximum from GS/WG-7 to GS/WG-9 and also provided limited appeal rights during the first year of appointment. A Vietnam era or disabled veteran who has completed no more than 14 years of education may qualify for a VRA. (This restriction may be waived for disabled veterans.) For further information, interested veterans may call the local American Legion hotline at 453-9494 and leave a message regarding information desired.

● DIABETIC SUPPORT

A Diabetic Support Group will begin meeting 7-8 p.m. the third Monday of each month at Oakwood Hospital Canton Center at Warren and Canton Center Roads in Canton.

● DANCE SLIMNASTICS

Dance, stretch, bop, hop... it's all in the moves with Dance Slimnastics. Aerobic dancing is a rhythmic mixture of simple movements and dance steps set to music, designed to improve and maintain cardiovascular/physical fitness. Participation is not limited by age, sex, or shape. Class meets 7:30-8:30 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays for eight weeks at the Plymouth Cultural Center, Farmer at Theodore. For information, call 455-6620.

● YMCA AEROBIC FITNESS CLASSES

Aerobic fitness classes are offered continuously at Starkweather Elementary School, Plymouth. The six-week program is sponsored by Plymouth Community Family YMCA. Price is $20 for members and $30 for non-members. For information, call 453-2904.

Student earns Merit grant

Kathleen Lawrenz of Adams Street, Plymouth, has been selected the recipient of a corporate-sponsored, four-year Merit Scholarship.

The National Merit Scholarship Corporation announced that Lawrenz, a senior at Ladywood High School in Livonia, was one of some 1,450 corporate scholarship recipients.

Lawrenz, who plans on entering the business field, has been a member of the National Honor Society for three years, belongs to the Inner Corps Thespians, was on the National Forensics Team, received an Interlochen All-State Scholarship, and is a member of the Livonia Youth Choir.

She earned a Division I rating at district solo and ensemble festival, was in the concert choir for two years, played varsity softball for two years, was treasurer of the vocal department, was named Referee of the Year by the Plymouth-Canton Junior Basketball Association, and was a yearbook photographer.

The Merit corporate awards are funded by a diverse group of 315 U.S. corporations, company foundations, professional associations, unions, and trusts. Lawrenz earned her scholarship from Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing. Each year 3M awards 50 four-year scholarships to sons and daughters of the firm's 50,000 employees in the U.S.

The announcement of the corporate scholarship winners is the first of three announcements to be made this year by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation.

By the end of the month, NMSC will announce scholarship winners of the NMSC itself and in May will announce winners of scholarships awarded by colleges and universities.

Flinging midgets is a sport?

How about this? With a midget tucked under each arm, runners race along a track to build up speed, then fling the little people as far as they can.

Two professors at the University of Santa Clara in California, Paul Verden and John Sewart, are writing a book about these kinds of "trash sports," which include "Jell-O" wrestling and cage wrestling. In the latter, 21 wrestlers compete in a cage for a rich purse. No rules, no referees. The only person left wins.

Verden saw a match in San Francisco that drew 18,000 fans. "Blood flowed," he reported.

How to tell kids about sex

"It's so hard now to be a parent, we need all the help we can get!"

That was one of the comments made by a parent in discussing the upcoming workshop for parents about talking to your children about sex.

The four-session workshop will be held from 6:30-8:40 p.m. in Room 100 of Plymouth Canton High School on April 30, May 1, 7 and 8. The workshop is free.

Sandy Franck, Lowell Middle School health educator, will lead the workshop. She will share communication tips with parents who want to discuss sex with their youngsters.

Franck stressed that the topic is a difficult one, sometimes even for parents who have good communication with their youngsters. She pointed out that the workshop is for all parents in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

Registration can be made by contacting Mrs. Franck at Lowell Middle School at 451-6503.

"Early registration provides the opportunity for me to share what areas parents are most interested in discussing," she said. "People are welcome to the meetings, however, even if they have not registered. We'll share thoughts and respond to all concerns."

Parents with questions about the workshop are encouraged to contact Franck for more information. She will provide reading materials and a bibliography at the workshop.

Peace group didn't flaunt court — Thorburn

By Kathy Parrish
staff writer

A group of Methodist peace activists escaped jail when Williams International Corp. failed to show they had a "community of purpose" with organizers of other protests in the Commerce Township defense supplier's driveway.

Oakland Circuit Judge James S. Thorburn refused to charge the eight with violating his court order barring Covenant for Peace from trespassing at Williams.

Thorburn, of Birmingham, ruled Monday there was no proof the group — four of them United Methodist ministers — acted "in concert" with Covenant for Peace. The Lansing-based peace group has spearheaded protests at Williams, where 99 people have been arrested in the past two years.

"The actions at Williams have grown," said Detroit attorney Kenneth Mogill, one of several lawyers defending the activists for free.

"Other people independently and on their own have chosen to participate. The events have outgrown the injunction."

DURING A show-cause hearing, Williams International charged the eight broke the injunction issued by Thorburn against Covenant for Peace.

As in the past, the company asked that the activists be jailed until they promise not to return to the driveway, on Maple Road west of Haggerty.

Michigan Court of Appeals is weighing the practice, which has been challenged by the protesters. One group of activists recently spent 92 days in jail.

Arrested April 8 while handing out pieces of communion bread to plant workers, the defendants still face trespassing charges May 6 before 52nd District Court Judge Michael Batchik in Walled Lake.

THE SEVEN Methodists and one Catholic denied their actions were spurred by the Lansing-based group.

Actually, the activity was undertaken through the efforts of the Peace Section of the United Methodist Church's Detroit and Western Michigan districts, they said.

Defendant Marge Munger said 4,000 invitations were sent out to Methodists who might like to "witness" at Williams.

"We were drawn together to witness as a denomination," explained the Ann Arbor resident, who is office manager of the national arms control lobby group SANE. She said the Peace Section did not advocate civil disobedience, but "did make an invitation."

"We hope people become more familiar with church doctrines and discern for themselves what it means to live faithfully in a nuclear age," Munger said.

WILLIAMS IS a target of peace groups because it makes engines for low-flying cruise missiles.

The firm also manufactures turbine engines for cars and trucks, industrial gas turbines and low pollution turbines for generating electric power from natural gas and coal. A version of the cruise missile engine is used in WASP II, a small one-person flying device.

Attempting to link the new arrests with previous ones, the company pointed out that two defendants were repeat offenders. The Rev. Bill Kellerman and the Rev. Tom Jones were arrested during the weeklong 1983 protests.

Williams also said the presence of two Covenant for Peace members — Mrs. Liz Walters and Margaret Dewey — indicated the recent activists were acting in concert with them.

"The alleged contemptuous conduct here goes to April 8, 1985," said Detroit attorney William Goodman. "The fact that they may have done something December 1983 does not prove an act of concert."

KELLERMAN SAID 20,000 Europeans also protested cruise missiles on Easter, when a prayer vigil was held at Williams. The vigil was linked to the arrests the next morning.

"No one would say we acted in concert with 20,000 Europeans," said the Detroit inner city pastor.

"It was an Easter action." Williams attorney Dawn Phillips admitted all the evidence linking the defendants to Covenant for Peace was "inferential."

"They all knew what they were doing, acted in the same fashion," said the Troy lawyer, who is also Methodist.

"All the evidence is inferential. There is no other proof except parallel conduct."

"You have to establish at least a community of purpose," said Thorburn. "History has its own peculiar sweep. It brings people together," added Goodman.

THORBURN, WHO has been accused of unfairness by Covenant for Peace, said there was no evidence that there was "concerted action."

But while freeing the eight, he leveled charges of his own at the audience packing his courtroom. Thorburn deplored their singing of hymns during recesses. He said it was necessary for four sheriff's deputies to stay in the courtroom to "assure law and order. "Not all, but a number of the people here, are clearly in contempt of court by singing and disrupting the proceedings in chambers," he added.

Thorburn expressed dismay at the "arrogance, dishonesty, immorality and illegality" — especially coming from people "posing as people who believe in a higher morality."

OAKLAND COUNTY Chief Assistant Prosecutor Richard Thompson agreed with Thorburn's decision not to press contempt charges. "I think he was acting within the scope of the evidence the company lawyers had," said Thompson.

But he views the court action as a change in the position of the demonstrators from civil disobedients to political protesters.

"One of the main elements of civil disobedience is to accept the punishment," he said.

"But now they are taking actions we believe violate law and not admitting it. They no longer can be considered civil disobedients but political protesters."

County to hire 350 youths for summer

More than 350 summer jobs will be made available to eligible Wayne County youth between the ages of 16 and 21, according to County Executive William Lucas.

Public service projects will get top priority in this Summer Youth Employment and Training Program. Wages paid by the county in the two-month program starting in mid-June will range from $3.35 to $5 per hour. It is administered by the Wayne County Private Industry Corp. (PIC).

Young residents of Wayne County (except for Detroit and Downriver Communities, which have their own programs,) may apply by phoning two job-recruitment hotlines (728-JOBS and 865-JOBS). Applicants must be unemployed and qualify as economically disadvantaged under federal guidelines.

"Their involvement in community service not only helps them personally in terms of valuable work experience, but also produces a higher quality environment for everyone in Wayne County," Lucas said.

JOBS WILL range from helping communities provide better park and recreational services to improving road surfaces.

Other participants will become involved in such activities as the administration of summer camps, groundskeeping, landscaping, roadway maintenance, clerical activities, and custodial jobs.

Groundwork for the public service approach was laid earlier this year when the Wayne County PIC surveyed 30 communities and colleges on their need for such projects. Nearly two-thirds responded favorably and will take part in the program.

Big show at the bird feeder

YEARS AGO when the decision was made to leave the congested city and move out into the wide spaces of what was then the country, a fellow never dreamed he could have so much fun just sitting at the breakfast table looking out the window.

But now that spring is here, the chair at the window is like the front row in a suburban theater. The actors and actresses are all sorts of birds, squirrels and other members of nature's family coming in for their morning meal and then going to work to build nests.

No theater ever presented such interesting activity as the squirrels. As he sits and watches, The Stroller is learning more and more each day. Long ago, when he was a young fellow attending school, he was told that squirrels were great workers. He listened attentively but never dreamed how masterful they were at taking care of themselves.

Sure, he has watched them run around the yard and feast at the bird feeder each morning. But only recently did he learn how clever they are. The big surprise came the other day when a series of holes appeared in the front yard. The thought occurred that moles must have been having a great time.

THE FRONT lawn looked almost like a checkerboard, and he silently damned the moles for damaging the lawn that he hoped the stroller

would look so nice and green this summer.

Then along came another chap who had lived in the area for quite a spell. When he was shown what happened, he smiled.

"Don't blame the moles," he said. "That is the work of the squirrels. You see, you have an oak tree here in the corner, and they shed acorns. The squirrels come along in the off season, take the acorns and bury them in the ground until spring.

"Your lawn becomes a storehouse. Then when the days start to get a bit warmer and spring arrives, the squirrels return and dig up the acorns. It is just like we humans going to the pantry to get something we had placed there days or weeks ago.

"Those squirrels are very smart animals. You can't fool them. But your lawn will not be ruined. The holes they dug will close up just as soon as the mower goes over them when you cut the grass."

WELL, THAT was another lesson learned just by watching Mother Nature's family going about its work.

It is the same with the birds. And there are all sorts of them. In fact, to become more acquainted, one has to get a modern bird book to learn what species of birds gather there daily.

They seem to know just when the seed is placed on the feeder and when more of the bird food is placed on the rim around the well. No sooner is the seed placed than they start coming. In the group will be the fancy little cardinals, then bluebirds and sparrows. Each takes its turn at the feed ring.

Schools should end soup label collecting

At a recent meeting, 37-year-old farm worker Alicia Patino told Campbell Soup shareholders, "I started as a little baby, with my parents. They would take me in the fields and drag me in to each row. We never had restrooms in the fields or the camps.

"Being out there in the fields, especially the children, it's not funny. It's a hard time for them. It's about time you do something, because we are citizens, too. We never had no kitchens, no nothing. And child labor, it hasn't changed."

"All we want is Campbell's to sit down with us and give us some kind of protection, to give us a better wage so we can feed our families and give them an education," added migrant worker Berna Romero. "We need representation so we can help ourselves from getting sick in the fields from the pesticides, so we can also be living like human beings."

Each year, 65,000 farm workers come to Michigan and Ohio to work in pickle, tomato, cherry, apple and strawberry fields. The average annual income of a migrant family employed in northwest Ohio or southern Michigan is $3,381, according to an Ohio Senate investigative committee.

FARM WORKERS generally work as family units. No records are kept of individuals' hours — only the head of the family is paid. So hourly wages (ranging from sixty cents to $5 based on "piece rates") reported to the labor department actually may be what's earned by the children, parents and grandparents of a particular family.

Numerous governmental and private groups — including the U.S. Senate Subcommittees on Migratory Labor and Labor & Public Welfare, the U.S. Civil Rights Commission and the U.S. Office of Education — have investigated farm workers' issues. Among their findings:

- Farm workers' average life expectancy is 49 years.
- Farm work is the third most dangerous U.S. occupation.
- Some 800,000 children work with their families harvesting crops across the nation.
- Migrant children usually attain only an elementary school education. Only 11 percent of them enter the 12th grade.
- The average migrant child takes three years to move from third to fourth grade.
- Nearly 53 percent of migrants dropping out of school leave to help support their families.

Since 1978, the Farm Labor Organizing Committee has boycotted Campbell, and has refused to work for Campbell growers. The boycott's hundreds of endorsers include the Detroit City Council; the Archdiocese of Detroit; AFSCME Council 25, Michigan; Michigan Congressman John Conyers; the National Lawyers Guild; University of Notre Dame Student Referendum; the Massachusetts Teachers Association, and the United Auto Workers and AFL-CIO International Executive Board.

FOR SEVEN YEARS, Plymouth-Canton elementary schools have participated in Campbell Soup's label program. In return for the thousands of labels they collect, schools receive playground, audio-visual and other equipment. Plymouth's Dunning-Hough Library also participates.

Staffers of at least one school and the library have been made aware of the boycott by parents and concerned citizens. They've decided to keep collecting labels because, in their words: "It's really a worthwhile thing." "You're getting something for nothing." "I don't buy Campbell's myself, but (the program) is something kids enjoy. I don't think collecting labels encourages people to buy Campbell Soup." "We didn't see where there was overwhelming evidence of injustice."

Granted, Campbell's does not directly employ farm workers. But it does control growers' prices as well as planting, cultivation, pest management and harvesting practices.

The issue, to be sure, is too complex to be fully dealt with here.

But until three-party collective bargaining or another solution is agreed to, we have a responsibility to stand up for the human rights of fellow citizens.

Says Plymouth resident Jeanne Vicini who has encouraged the library to drop the label program: "Campbell's has the money to wage an effective advertising campaign. I just think that for our children to reap advantages at the expense of children who have so little anyway is a frightening thing."

Time spent label processing should be replaced by lessons on labor and farming issues. The education would benefit young people far more than a new overhead projector ever could.

The cause is illegitimacy

IF YOU believe Ronald Reagan manipulates the mass media, you should see Agnes Mansour at work.

Dr. Mansour, the former nun from Farmington Hills who now heads the state Department of Social Services, held a recent news conference to launch a $1.7 million program discouraging teen pregnancy. Not even Reagan would have attempted so crass a show.

First, the audience was stacked with a cheering section of about 50 representatives of social agencies that will administer the program. On at least one Detroit newspaper, the cheering section had the desired effect.

Second, Mansour took no questions publicly. If you wanted to clarify or explore a point, you had to crowd around her afterward and shout over the din of contractors enjoying coffee and cookies.

It was crude but effective.

THE PROGRAM is intellectually dishonest in supposedly targeting teen pregnancy. In truth, teens have been having babies for thousands of years. Many of our grandmothers and great-grandmothers began bearing children while in their teens.

The latest journalistic fad is to study the incidence of infant mortality. This is supposed to be related to the youth of the mother.

The somber fact is that the culprit is out-of-wedlock births. An unmarried mother attempts to conceal her pregnancy as long as possible and fails to get proper care. The mere fact that she is a teen-ager isn't the root of the problem.

America's, Michigan's and metropolitan Detroit's illegitimacy rates are soaring crazily. In 1950, when formalized sex education was rare and male contraceptives were sold only as disease prevention devices, the illegitimacy rate among black teen-agers was 36 percent. By 1981 the rate was 86 percent.

Before anyone points an accusing finger at blacks, let it be said the rates for whites, though not as high, are also leaping dizzily upward.

THAT MATERIAL comes from the press kit issued by DSS. But neither Mansour nor the anti-pregnancy TV campaign mentions illegitimacy.

I've been lacing Mansour and the DSS pretty hard, but there is a good side to what they are doing. In fairness, we should give them credit.

At least they are attacking one of the root causes of Michigan's budget problems. The reason Michigan ranks 47th in increases to higher education, the reason so many suburban school districts get zero state aid, the reason we're short of cops and prison space — all of these are caused by social services bleeding the state dry.

Social services now suck up about 38 percent of the state budget. Half of that is Medicaid. The other half is various welfare programs, including Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

OUR SOARING illegitimacy rates are a major component of AFDC. No one wants to pick on an unfortunate Hester who makes a mistake by branding her with a scarlet "A," but it seems that each year we have thousands and thousands more Hesters, and they're not getting that way by mistake.

Their boyfriends aren't marrying them, paying for the hospital care or supporting the kids. So the rest of us must pay high taxes for it.

A conservative tax revolt doesn't attack the problem. Mansour and the DSS are moving in the right direction with their soft-sell advertising campaign telling teens to "Do yourself a favor, save it for later."

Even if Dr. Mansour does try crudely to manipulate the media, I still wish her luck.

Daring solutions

LIKE I SAID before, we don't have any problems that can't be solved by new solutions. All we have to do is put our thinking caps on and dare to be different.

BONUSES — Take all the yammering over how much money auto executives earn. Union members squawk that it isn't fair. Union leaders say the inequity stifles incentive for their members, who resent previous concessions.

Let's combine the principles of bargaining with one of the newer principles of government — gambling. How about instituting an Employee Lotto game?

Every year, each of Big 3 can pick out of a hat the name of an hourly employee who will receive the equivalent of the chairman's yearly salary and benefits.

Chrysler drive shaft expert Joe Glotz would pick up a cool $1.3 million at the end of the year — Lee Iacocca's yearly reward — if his name were drawn. Glotz, of course, would never work another day in his life. Every other worker would become content with his miserable lot in life by telling himself that even if he is not making what he should, he might be able to win at Employee Lotto just like Joe Glotz did.

Each employee could increase his or her chances by such things as working 32 Fridays in a row, filing no grievances in a six-month period, leaving no chewing gum in the piston chamber, etc.

FARMERS IN NEED — Much is being made of the plight of farmers. The government is sliding away from providing the underpinning that farmers have grown to expect. A way of life is going down the drain.

How about turning the farm problem over to the richest industry in the USA — entertainers? Entertainers have done a marvelous job of raising money for political purposes, and lately they have made tons of money to help the famine relief effort in Ethiopia.

Why not have them raise money for the Save Our Farms effort? An album with Frank Sinatra singing "Des Moines, Des Moines, it's a wonderful town." Or Perry Como doing "How are going to keep 'em in Paris once they've seen the farm?"

SOCIAL SECURITY — Congress and the president continually talk about containing the costs of Social Security but do nothing about it. They are afraid of being depicted as people who are stealing Social Security checks out of the hands of widows living in retirement hovels.

The fact is that a good percentage of those receiving Social Security checks have substantial retirement incomes and merely use them to pay for exotic vacations. Still, lawmakers are afraid of the image problem.

The solution is to quit calling the department of Social Security by such a name and start calling it the Department of Elderly Assistance. Social Security checks should be labelled "Welfare."

Naturally, no one who has any bucks will want to admit receiving welfare checks, and most of those now taking Social Security assuredly will want to dissociate themselves from any department that assists the elderly.

STUDENT LOANS — Every doctor, lawyer, engineer and professional person who went to college by borrowing government money and refuses to make even a token effort to repay it shall be required by law to have a sign in his office.

Certainly, a sign will give his or her clients the impression that office calls need not be paid for immediately. The professional person can clean up his act by making payments to the government, allowing the sign to come down. That will allow him to continue to charge outrageously and demand immediate payment without feeling even a slightly bit squeamish — just like before.

Death penalty is irrational

Recently ABC-TV reported that about 30 juveniles are residing on death rows around the country. Included is a 15-year-old boy.

ABC said that the only other countries in the world that allow the death penalty for juveniles are South Africa and the Soviet Union.

In the report, experts discussed the pros and cons of executing youths, one saying that even children must suffer the consequences of their actions; the other saying children involved in the process of growing up should not be liable for impulses that oftentimes they simply cannot control.

As a victim of violent crime, I am well aware of the emotions involved.

I know about the shock and terror, the relief of escape, the thrill of finding that my children and I were unharmed. I knew the unspeakable frustration of finding the police scarcely took note of the crime.

I REMEMBER I wanted the knife-wielding youth who attacked us dead. I didn't care whether he had been a victim of child abuse, I didn't care whether he was poor, or deprived, or unloved.

This, of course, is an irrational response. It is the response of a victim. And those responses — the fear, the anger, the desire for vengeance — cannot rule what is ultimately done to perpetrators of crime.

I believe the continuing push for capital punishment is a calculated pandering to this irrational, emotional response, to the frustration and anger of victims (including family and friends) of violent crime.

We are all sick of hearing almost every day of some dreadful crime.

We are all fed up with the number of criminals never caught, the constant frustrating delays until those that are caught are brought to trial, the "tricks" their lawyers use to get them off, the light sentences they frequently receive if they are convicted and the leniency of parole boards in setting them free.

BUT INSTEAD of, in some logical fashion, attempting to deal with the problem, we have demagogues pandering to the emotional pain of victims and the fear of potential victims, demanding the death penalty. And the death penalty solves nothing, does nothing, except to further brutalize an already brutal society.

No one can blame the victims for wanting retribution.

BUT THERE are alternatives to legalized state murder. We could, of course, attack the root causes that drive people to crime. That would take a unanimous national commitment to improve the quality of life in this society for all people.

Because that seems unlikely to occur, perhaps there should be a separate category of murder, reserved for those crimes so heinous that the perpetrators would be sentenced to life in prison in solitary confinement.

The sentence would be imposed by a jury, not a judge. Following a guilty verdict, the jury would then consider evidence relating to the nature of the crime and the nature of the perpetrator. And if they found both utterly irredeemable, then the person would go to jail — forever.

For now, those in a position to influence the way we deal with crime and criminals should stop fanning the flames of bigotry and fear and begin to look for real solutions to one of this society's most perplexing problems. And executing adolescents in the name of the state is certainly not one of those.

Why does black have to be white?

IT'S CONFUSING, very confusing. A University president laments the failure of the school to increase the number of black professors. A state legislator praises a black county executive because "people don't think of him as being black."

Is that the ultimate solution? To make people of other color white?

University of Michigan's annual affirmative action report included the disappointing information that the number of black professors has not increased as desired.

Admittedly complex, part of the reason has been the concentration of black Ph.D.'s in areas where growth has been curtailed. Black student leaders cite the lack of black role models as a factor in the relatively unsuccessful process of developing black professors.

MICHIGAN'S STATE Republican party is anticipating Wayne County executive William Lucas' switch from the Democratic party. A metro-Detroit Republican State legislator has enthusiastically praised Lucas because people would regard him as a "white candidate."

This same legislator claimed that Coleman Young was having so much trouble because he would not let people forget that he was black.

Having a state legislator extol a black person's "white image" is as blatant an expression of racism that could be made. It is a fundamental denial of authentic selfhood on the very issue that no one could ever change.

A black person might choose to be a Democrat or a Republican, but he/she cannot choose one color of skin or the other. To say that "being white" is infinitely more desirable than being black is to tell all black people that they are inferior.

THERE WAS a time when some blacks tried very hard to "be white." They tried to do something with their hair or their mannerisms, their lifestyles and the heritage. Those times are past. For a public official to even suggest that the idea of trying to "be white" is more desirable than being black is a gigantic step backward to raw bigotry and unbridled prejudice.

The Judeo-Christian heritage has been constant in its assertion that we are the creation of God, and further, that all people are equal in the sight of God. Not equal in the sense of ability or appearance — but equal in the sense of worth and rights to God's providence. Claiming a position of superiority for whites is clearly sin.

There might be no correlation at all between a legislator's bigotry and a university president's dilemma in affirmative action. But then again, there might be. Regardless of the correlation, the fact is that we, the people of this state, are the losers.

We are losing an opportunity to help us enjoy the manifold gifts of God, and the right for a county executive to be his own being. The university will probably survive in spite of the disappointing number of black professors available for tenured positions, but public good and well-being surely will not from a continued unbridled bigotry and prejudice.

House rejects NBS budget cut

HOUSE

STANDARDS — By a vote of 196 for and 201 against, the House rejected an amendment to cut the National Bureau of Standards fiscal 1986 budget to the $122 million level requested by the Reagan Administration.

The House later approved "freezing" the bureau's budget at the 1985 level of about $127 million, and sent the bill (HR 1617) to the Senate. Included in the new budget is $9.7 million for the Center for Fire Research and Center for Building Technology, two agencies the Administration had sought to kill.

Rep. Robert Walker, R-Pa., who sponsored the amendment, said, "We ought to give to the administration that amount of money which they say they need" to administer the National Bureau of Standards."

Opponent Sherwood Boehlert, R-N.Y., said: "We have been parsimonious. We have been tight-fisted. But we recognize the importance of the National Bureau of Standards."

Members voting no were opposed to cutting the bureau's budget as deeply as recommended by the administration. Voting no: Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods, Sander Levin, D-Southfield.

Voting yes: William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

Not voting: William Ford, D-Taylor.

The final NBS funding bill sailed through the House on a 398-2 vote. Pursell, whose 2nd Congressional District includes Livonia, and Bruce Morrison, D-Conn., led a bipartisan effort to hold fiscal '86 funding to 1985 appropriated levels.

"This gives the Pursell-Morrison team a 3-for-3 batting record in their effort to freeze every budget authorization bill which comes before Congress with increases over current spending

rollcall report

levels," said a statement from Pursell's office.

The other spending bills held to their '85 levels were for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the National Sciences Foundation.

SENATE

NOMINEE — The Senate confirmed, 73 for and 18 against, the nomination of John E. Krings to head a new Pentagon agency charged with insuring that American weapons function during combat.

Congress created the Office of Operational Test and Evaluation to inject greater scrutiny over Pentagon weapon's procurement.

Lawmakers want the office to be sufficiently independent to blow the whistle, when necessary, on weapons that break down when tested during simulated combat.

Krings, a test pilot and engineer, has worked for the past 29 years for McDonnell Douglas Corp., a leading defense contractor.

Supporter Sam Nunn, D-Ga., said Krings is well qualified and "has agreed to keep in close touch with Congress... and to maintain the highest standards of objectivity and integrity."

Criticizing Krings for being too close to the arms industry and for lacking experience in combat-type testing, foe David Pryor, D-Ark., said he opposed the nomination "on behalf of those who will have to risk their lives in combat Senators voting yes favored the nomination.

Voting no: Donald Riegle.
Not voting: Carl Levin.

CHEERFUL.

That one word certainly describes Sylvia Kennedy, a coach operator out of the Wayne terminal. In fact, during her ten years of service at SEMTA, being cheerful has been just part of the job.

It isn't something you can teach. Although, in all honesty, Sylvia's cheerfulness does seem to rub off on many of her passengers and on the SEMTA people she works with every day. How does she keep so cheerful? "I just try to keep happy thoughts," says Sylvia. "But there are a lot of cheerful people here at SEMTA. We're just trying to spread it around a little bit."

Cheerful. That's Sylvia Kennedy. But she also brings other outstanding qualities to the job — just like all SEMTA people who make SEMTA the bus system that works. They're simply doing their best to be the best. As for Sylvia, she's just doing it very cheerfully.

Hometown welcomes Tom 'Amadeus' Hulce

The Tom Hulce-"Amadeus" party is on for Sunday, May 5.

The internationally-acclaimed star of "Amadeus" is coming home for a community celebration.

The Plymouth Symphony League and the Plymouth Community Arts Council are collaborating in arranging the events as a benefit for both organizations. The young actor's mother, Joanne Hulce of Plymouth Township, founded the arts council and was an active member of the Symphony League.

The film will be shown at 2 p.m. at the Penn Theatre and Hulce will make a personal appearance at the theater.

The reception in the Mayflower Meeting House at 6 p.m. promises some surprises for the guest of honor. There will be hors d'oeuvres, punch and a cash bar.

Middle School, and Plymouth High School for two years. He spent his third year of high school at the Interlochen Arts Academy, then attended the North Carolina School for the Arts. After graduation, he took off for New York City.

The lead role of the mentally retarded youth in "Emily, Emily" led to Hulce's work with mentally retarded children.

A MONTH after his arrival, he was picked to understudy the British actor Peter Firth in "Equus," a Peter Shaffer drama. Eventually, he took over the role.

"Once I played the lead in 'Equus,' it was a calling card. Directors no longer questioned whether I could act, but whether I was right for the part," Hulce said.

He starred in George S. Kaufman's "Butter and Egg Man" at the Berkshire Theater Festival, and joined the Phoenix Theater for their production of Arthur Miller's "Memory of Two Mondays." He made his film debut in James Bridges' "September 30, 1955" as a boy from Arkansas whose world is shattered by the death of James Dean.

Hulce went on to star in the Hallmark Hall of Fame television movie "Emily, Emily" as a retarded youth struggling for self-sufficiency. The role led to his intensive work with retarded children.

He had a major role in "National Lampoon's Animal House," and "Those Lips, Those Eyes" with Frank Langella. His list of theater credits include "Julius Caesar," "Romeo and Juliet," Shaw's "Candida" and Chekhov's "The Sea Gull." He still found time to direct a musical, "Sleep Around Town," at Playwright's Horizon.

"I was working non-stop in New York, and making about equal to unemployment compensation, when I went to Los Angeles for some television, mainly a role on CBS' 'St. Elsewhere.' Then back to New York to star in the title role of 'The Rise and Fall of Daniel Rocket' at Playwrights Horizon," Hulce said.

HE WAS PICKED over intense competition for the title role in "Amadeus," Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, the man-child musical genius of the 18th century.

When director Milos Forman called to say he had the part, Hulce plunged into piano lessons for the numerous scenes showing Mozart at the keyboard. As well as four hours daily of piano lessons, learning scales as well as Mozart concerti, he studied the rudiments of conducting. The script required him to conduct extracts from four famous Mozart operas and three other works.

In addition, he was called upon to duplicate one of Mozart's legendary piano stunts, playing the piano suspended upside down, lying on his back, with crossed hands.

"PLAYING MOZART was my greatest challenge and working with Milos Forman was unusually demanding. He's a perfectionist who insists on, and gets, the most from every performer." "Amadeus" was shot on location in Prague.

Hulce said that at first it was like a costume party. "It took all of half an hour just to put on my wig. But gradually, I began to feel at home as Mozart in Prague. Beth Berridge, who played my wife, Constanze, helped both of us to steep ourselves in our characters. The production designer, Patrizia Von Brandenstein, even catered a dinner for us, just so we could be comfortable eating and drinking on camera.

"And slowly, over seven months on location, I felt at home with the food, the costumes, the wigs, the sets. I became Mozart. Standing on the very spot where he conducted the premiere of 'Don Giovanni' was an eerie and awe-inspiring experience."

TOM HULCE was working once again with Peter Shaffer, who wrote the screenplay and the original stage play.

The results are history. "Amadeus" swept the Academy Awards by winning eight Oscars. Hulce was nominated for the best actor award. When it went to veteran actor F. Murray Abraham who played Antonio Salieri in "Amadeus," Abraham told the millions of television viewers, "Tom Hulce should be standing here beside me."

So the town's only Academy Awards nominee is coming home.

Those who wish to join in the welcome may attend one or both celebrations. Admission to the film at the Penn, where Hulce will make a personal appearance, is $3. Admission to the reception at the Meeting House is $15.

Tickets now are available at the PCAC office, 332 S. Main, Plymouth, between 9 a.m. and noon, Monday through Friday, or at Sideways on Forest Avenue, which is open seven days a week as well as Thursday and Friday evenings.

After being understudy for British actor Peter Firth in "Equus" in New York, Tom Hulce took over the role of the boy.

Walk through springtime in Miller Woods

Spring tours of Miller Woods have a special significance this year. They mark the 10th anniversary of the founding of the Miller Woods Committee. Since 1975, the volunteer group of

Bloodroot with its pristine white flowers and reddish stems is among the first of the spring wildflowers to bloom in Miller Woods, the climax community residents has led efforts to preserve and protect one of nature's gems — a beech-maple climax forest. The woods on Powell Road near Ridge in Plymouth Township is a rare example of what can happen to weeds and grasses in southeastern Michigan if left untouched for nearly 200 years.

Giant maples and beech trees share rich virgin soil conditions with a variety of shrubs and flowering plants.

SPRING IS a prime time to visit Miller Woods. Carpets of spring beauties, trout lilies, toothwort, Dutchman's breeches, hepaticas and trilliums bloom in successive stages. A well-marked woodchip path winds through the woods with markers denoting interesting trees and plants.

Every year the Miller Woods committee organizes spring walks through the woods. Experienced naturalists will lead the tours 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, April 27 and 1-4 p.m. Sunday, May 5.

As a commemoration of the 10th anniversary of the Miller Woods committee, University of Michigan botanist Dr. Warren H. Wagner will conduct two walks. The nationally recognized plant expert will lead tours at 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. Sunday, May 5. Wagner, who regularly brings his U-M classes to the woods, has researched plants throughout the United States, central America and Hawaii.

THE PROFESSOR toured Miller Woods with the Plymouth Study group in 1973. At that time he said, "The people of Plymouth should be proud to own this and they should protect it. When you lose a forest like this, you'll never get it back."

Miller Woods was once part of a 120-acre parcel owned by Norman and Cornelia Miller. In 1968, the 10-acre woods became the property of the Plymouth-

Canton school district when 40 acres were bought for a future elementary school site. Because HUD (Housing and Urban Development) money funded a portion of the purchase, the school district is required to leave a portion of the area as open space. The woods is included in that open space.

The unattended woods became a catch-all for excessive littering and dumping after the school district owned it. Refrigerators, sofas, chairs, water heaters and other household refuse were dumped at the woods.

ALARMED BY the visible decline of the forest, a small group of concerned residents formed the Miller Woods committee to rescue the area. Conditions changed for the better almost immediately.

Aided by the local press, the committee organized cleanup efforts. Many groups helped: Cub Scouts, West Middle School students, YMCA classes, church groups, the Youth Conservation Corps and Bruce Turner, a Canton Eagle Scout.

Financial and material donations came from Detroit Edison, Plymouth Lions Club, Pilgrim Garden Club, Sunshine Garden Club and the Plymouth branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association.

Members of the Miller Woods committee are Evelyn Edgar (chair), Herb Conant, Penny Wright, Charlotte Gaffield, Beverly McAninch, Beverly Doble, Doris Chatterly and Barbara Sprague.

For more information about the walks, call the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools board office, 451-6600.

3 Cities Art Club winners announced

Ann Gentry's etching, "Bulbs," was awarded best of show ribbon at the Three Cities Art Club spring show in the Plymouth Cultural Center. John Loree, an art instructor at Eastern Michigan University, judged the weekend show.

Winner in the water color division was Susan Crawley's "Vegetables," also named best of color. "Glad Glads" by Celia Kilpatrick was second; "Hines Park" by Cuyler McCutchan was third in water colors.

Honorable mention ribbons went to Kilpatrick's "Detroit Abandoned," Judy Schonberger's "River Bluff" and McCutchan's "Novi Farm."

IN THE OIL division, Gentry's "Plymouth 1976" took first place, Janice Sparks' "The Window" second, and Cindy Jackson's "Winter Village" third. "Tulips and Scissors" by Dorothy Koliba and "Creek Street" by Florence Hirschmann received honorable mention.

First in mixed media went to Kilpatrick's "Leaf Mood." Jean Bologna's "Legs — Legs" was second, and Laurie Sapientza's "After Frost" was third.

Koliba won the public vote for best of show with her water color, "Copper and Pansies."

Six paintings, donated by club members, were awarded as prizes to visitors to the show.

Beautification committee alive and active

Remember when I said the beautification committee was alive and well?

As they say, the proof of the pudding is in the eating, and the pudding is about to be served. You will notice in the weeks and months to come that the committee has been working overtime and has hammered out an ambitious program for this year's activities.

To start things off with a bang, you'll be happy to know that our free seedling distribution is back again. In case you have not been able to take advantage of that in the past, please allow me to explain.

From 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, April 27, you can walk into Canton Township Hall, present proof that you are indeed a township resident, and faster than you can say "free seedling giveaway," you will be the proud owner of some free seedlings. Yes sir, it's that simple and, as the name implies, it is absolutely free!

The seedlings are a variety of spruce and pine trees and a silky dogwood shrub. But that's not all, folks! There also will be two varieties of deciduous trees, mountain ash and red oak. Now that's a deal! The limit is five plants and one tree to each resident. So get over there early and get your fair share.

Of course you'll want to get started planting those little devils as soon as possible, but try not to overdo. Perhaps if you get there early and then get home and rest a bit, you can get them settled in the early evening when the air is a bit cooler.

AFTER ALL, you won't be able to work too hard after donating blood! Just sort of slipped that one in, didn't I?

OK, so it wasn't such a smooth slip, but it was sincere.

Actually, one event has nothing to do with the other. But they were scheduled for your convenience so you wouldn't be running to township hall two weeks in a row.

The Children's Leukemia Foundation and I, were hoping you could take a minute of your time while you're there and donate a life or two.

I know this is a frightening thing for many people, but they really do try to make it as simple as possible. And believe me, losing a loved one is much more frightening than the thought of donating blood. Each year there are some first timers, but they always seem to survive and always are better off for having done so.

A catchy slogan once said, "The life you save may be your own." This remains true today and applies itself nicely here. The truth of the matter is you never know when you or someone you love will need blood. You can never be properly protected, so you simply have to keep the supply strong to the best of your ability. If you ever have felt the need to contribute to the community or to do something for someone else — purely for the sake of helping — this is your opportunity.

One big advantage of donating blood is no monthly meetings, no bazaars to work for. You have an opportunity to do a community service without losing a lot of time.

It shouldn't take more than 45 minutes, and it can be done in 15. It really is up to your arm. Another thing to remember is that everyone cannot donate. Don't feel badly if you are turned away, (ha ha ha). But remember that does happen to some people. You could be underweight or anemic or any number of other things, so there is always hope.

Canton chatter

Seriously though, the fact that many people cannot give, and many others will not give, causes a serious shortage of blood. I know you probably never hear about it, but those who donate on a regular basis do hear about it. As soon as the need gets desperate, the phone rings and these people go in AGAIN to do your work! So if you're a local macho man, or busy executive, or busy macho executive who always intends to do his part for the community and the good of all mankind, now is your big chance. You'll see some of the best people there — good people, caring people, people you would like to get to know. And now is the perfect time.

Prove to yourself, your children and your community that you are the wonderful person you keep saying you are. They'll even give you fruit juice and a cookie. Finally, you get a big red cross to wear that tells everyone to be nice to you today because you gave blood.

What more can you ask? Get out there and do your part.

ONE MORE thing I think is worth mentioning. I'm sure many of you have heard about AIDS and I know some of you have a fear of getting the disease when donating blood. Please let me explain that.

The disease is not acquired when DONATING blood. You can catch the disease only when you RECEIVE contaminated blood. More simply, you cannot get AIDS when donating blood. That is as clear as I can make it. You may call your own doctor, or Oakwood Hospital or whoever.

The fact is, either you bite the bullet and donate blood, or take the chance that it isn't there when you, your little child, your spouse, or parent needs it. I know it can be done, and teen-agers be-

All kinds of things are being planned by the beautification committee and the recreation department. I just love it!

But are you ready for this? You have your cabbage dolls and their adoption certificates, the Rice Pattie Babies with passports, even your yearly Zoo Adoptions. Now, right here in Canton, Adopt-a-Tree?

That's right, folks. This summer, all the trees along Sheldon Road are going up for adoption. Hopefully, each one will be adopted by a person or family. For no fee whatsoever, they will receive, absolutely free from the beautification committee (handling the adoptions) some edging, top soil, and marigolds to be planted around said tree. Each owner will name the tree and promise to tend the flowers through the growing season.

Can't you see it now? Throngs of Cantonites gathering each Sunday on Sheldon to weed their little babies. Families biking over or jogging over. It's great!

The project will begin June 8 but you can call now to arrange your adoption, 455-5915, 453-1122 or 459-4132. The whole project will be entered in the naional magazine, "Family Circles Make America Beautiful" contest.

Call now for name of your choice. I already have "Ashley," so call early.

Speaking of trees, did you know that our township is setting aside a large patch of land to plant seedlings? In the future, when township landscaping plans call for a tree, our very own DPW can dig one up and plant it where we want it, with absolutely no cost to the taxpayers!

This should save our township hundreds, if not thousands of dollars. Just a little of the news Mr. Poole told me during an interview on the Sandy Show — loads of things happening. Watch for the grand opening of our movie theatre in May. The beautification committee has lots more planned. Call me if you or your child has a party, or am I the only poor soul in Canton that has parties anymore?

How many of you know where the slogan "From a proud past to a strong future" came from? The first correct legitimate caller will receive a special prize! Members of the sesquicentennial committee or employees at Township Hall are not eligible!

Psychic Eye now forming local chapter

The fifth chapter of the Psychic Eye, Ltd. is planned to accommodate the Plymouth, Canton and Northville area. The non-profit organization is dedicated to the esoteric sciences and psychic phenomena.

One need not be a psychic to become a member as the program is geared toward helping one achieve a higher awareness and sensitivity level.

Monthly dinner meetings include speakers who lecture on new age topics such as life after death, dream analysis, UFOs, spirit communication, reincarnation, astral projection, hauntings, spiritual healing, forgiveness, prophecy, positive thinking, goal accomplishment, universal energy, auras, and so on.

Respecting and welcoming all faiths, the group is non-denominational, investigating many avenues of thought. Each member formulates his own philosophical opinions.

ASTROLOGICAL predictions for the forthcoming month and complimentary mini-readings by participating psychics follow dinner and lecture. Each member receives a complimentary reading with enrollment. Membership dues are 420 per year and members are selected from attending guests by invitation only. The agenda is both educational and social.

Qualified mediums of the club work as a team and have made major contributions toward crime investigation.

Lynne Browning of Canton has been appointed director of the new chapter. Qualified assistant directors are being sought from this area. To be notified of a registration meeting, leave name and address by dialing 453-4872, or call the Psychic Eye office, 356-6354.

Psychic Scorpions founded the Psychic Eye in 1982. She has experienced psychic phenomena since childhood and has been doing card readings for 22 years. She has appeared on local radio and television stations with mini-readings and her interpretations of supernatural events.

Nuclear chili recipe competes in cookoff

The Flamethrowers, a group of friends from southeastern Michigan, have but one goal in mind these days, to make "Wild Willies Nuclear Chili" a nationally recognized name.

Next competition for the recipe is The Great Chili Cookoff, sponsored as a benefit for National Kidney Foundation of Michigan, Saturday and Sunday, May 4-5 in Saline. The Flamethrowers have been in competition since 1983 and in 1984 took the regional championship during the Livonia Spree days.

"All of the contests are sanctioned by the International Chili Society, and of course Wild Willies Nuclear Chili is registered," said Gerry Gazda, a professional photographer affiliated with Meteor Photo in Troy.

Gazda is a member of the Flamethrowers team which mixes up the nuclear stew with Gary Whetstone, a machine operator at General Motors and a resident of Plymouth; Bruce Rubadeux, a director of computer services and a resident of Troy; Frank Zuccaro, owner of Aero Data Instruments; William Thomas, a job facilitator from Belleville; and Rhonda Armstrong, a recent nursing school graduate from Detroit.

UNDER THE rules of the International Chili Society, cooking teams must only use commercially canned or bottled ingredients, must chop vegetables and meats at the contest site, and must not premeasure ingredients.

The group's affection for chili turned competitive after sampling Thomas' canned tomatoes, peppers and hot sauce.

"We started make chili using the name "Bill's Wild Willies Atomic Child Sauce," Gazda said.

When the group got involved in contests, members had to make several alterations in the recipe to make the commercial foods simulate the taste of Thomas' home-canned foods. The recipe for Wild Willies Nuclear Chili contains about 30 ingredients.

To make certain their chili stands out during the competition the Flamethrowers have created a three-dimensional atomic bomb blast which fits over their table.

"It's our way of getting attention," Gazda said. "We compete with anywhere from 30 to 80 teams and the contests always turn into outstanding parties with literally thousands of people wanting to taste all the different recipes."

'Spring Magic' in fashions

There was spring magic in the fashions and magic entertainment by Bill Heiney at the Plymouth Newcomers luncheon in the Mayflower Meeting House. The audience admired the skirt and blouse from me

Alpha House

... A Message of Hope

Catherine McAuley Health Center is pleased to announce the opening of Alpha House, an extended residential treatment facility for chemically dependent youth. The Alpha House program is designed to meet the needs of adolescents, age 13-17, who have successfully completed a short-term chemical dependency program and require longer treatment. This 16-bed facility provides a school curriculum, group therapy, individual and family counseling as well as social and recreational programs.

You are invited to attend an open house and tour of Alpha House at the following times:

Sunday, April 28 3-5 pm	Tuesday, April 30 7-8:30 pm	Thursday, May 2 7-8:30 pm
----------------------------	--------------------------------	------------------------------

Alpha House and Huron Oaks, our primary residential chemical dependency facility, provide a message of hope for chemically dependent youth and their families through professional care that can lead to recovery and a healthier life. Along with other Health Center activities, the opening of Alpha House brings us a step closer to our shared goal of health care services providing optimal health and well-being for each person in our community.

Alpha House has been funded in part by community philanthropy. We gratefully thank you for the community support needed to make this much-needed facility a reality.

Piece of the Action." Reservations are required. For reservations, call Priscilla Scheck at 937-9457. Baby-sitting is available.

BEREAN BIBLE
Dr. Roy Lawson, general secretary of the Fellowship of Evangelical Baptist Churches in Canada, will preach at the 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. services Sunday, April 28, at Berean Bible Church, 35375 Ann Arbor Trail, between Newburgh Road and I-275, Livonia.

The church's junior and primary church groups will present the musical drama "Amazing Grace" at 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, April 27 and 28.

PILGRIM'S MISSION
Evangelists the Rev. and Mrs. Millard L. Downing of Loveland, Ohio, will be preaching from Friday, April 26, to Sunday, May 5, at Pilgrim's Mission Church, 5737 Middlebelt, one block north of Ford Road, Garden City. Besides being preachers, the Downings also are singers and instrumentalists. They will appear at 7:30 p.m. each night. For more information, call the Rev. Ethel Lucas, the church's pastor, at 422-2082.

TRI-CITY ASSEMBLY
The Tri-City Assembly of God will host five sessions of teaching and ministry emphasizing the works of the Holy Spirit in the life of the Christian believer. The guest speaker will be the Rev. Sam Dobrotka, former director of Detroit Teen Challenge and religious radio broadcaster.

The sessions will be at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday, April 28, and at 7 p.m. Monday, April 29, through Wednesday, May 1. There is no admission charge. Tri-City Assembly is at 2100 Hannan, between Michigan and Palmer Road, just east of I-275. For more information, call 721-6832.

ST. PAUL'S LUTHERAN
The 90-voice massed chorus of the Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod in Southeastern Michigan will present a sacred concert in honor of the 300th birthday of J.S. Bach. The concert will be at 7 p.m. Sunday, April 28, at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, 17810 Farmington, Livonia. There will be musical selections by the bell choir and woodwind ensemble and a trumpet duet. The concert will be directed by Karen Phipps, Kurt Heyer and Vera Janes.

MEMORIAL CHURCH OF CHRIST
Memorial Church of Christ will have its sixth annual Junior High Statewide Youth Rally on Friday and Saturday, May 3 and 4. This year's theme will be "Trusting in the Truth." The Impact Brass and Singers from Ozark Bible College in Joplin, Mo., will be the main program. The 24-member group will provide a five-screen multi-media presentation with their concerts at 7:30 p.m. Friday and 4 p.m. Saturday. The program will begin at 7 p.m. Friday. Registration is $10 for any junior high youth attending Friday and all-day Saturday. There is no charge for admittance to the concerts only. The Impact Brass and Singers will perform a third concert at 6 p.m. Sunday, May 5, free of charge to the public. The church is at 35475 Five Mile, Livonia. For more information, call 464-6722.

FIRST METHODIST OF GARDEN CITY
Organist Dr. Arthur Vidrich, trumpeter Kevin Cordt and violinist Kevin McMahon will perform in concert at 4 p.m. Sunday, April 28, at First United Methodist Church, 6443 Merriman, Garden City. The concert will include works by Bach, Cellier, Charpentier, Vierne, Vitali and Vivaldi. There is no admission charge, but a voluntary donation will be taken. A reception for the artists will follow the concert.

CHERRY HILL PRESBYTERIAN
The Chancel Choir of Cherry Hill Presbyterian Church in Dearborn will present its Friendship Ambassadors fund-raising concert at 4 p.m. Sunday, May 5, at the church, 24410 Cherry Hill. Music from their planned summer tour of Austria and Poland will be featured. Sights and sounds of the two countries will be offered in a cabaret setting, and Austrian and Polish desserts and coffees also will be available. The concert donation to the group's travel fund is $3 for adults and $2 for children. For information, or for reservations for groups of 20 or more, call 583-4800.

ST. MARK'S PRESBYTERIAN
A program entitled "The Joys and Frustrations of the Sandwich Generation" will be given at 1:15 p.m. Sunday, April 28, at St. Mark's Presbyterian Church, 26701 Joy, Dearborn Heights. The program will look at the concerns and joys of three-generation families. Leading the program will be Loren Hoffman, director of Westside Mental Health Services in Dearborn Heights, and Audrey Wasserman of the United Community Services Agency's Well-Being for the Aged program.

CHURCH OF GOD OF PROPHECY
A revival crusade featuring evangelist William R. Foley as guest speaker will continue through Sunday, April 28, at the Church of God of Prophecy, 28563 Pardo, Garden City. Services will begin at 7 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, April 25-27, and at 6 p.m. Sunday. For more information, call 525-5397.

First Baptist to burn mortgage

First Baptist Church of Plymouth will take another historic step in its 155-year existence with a mortgage-burning service this Sunday.

The Mortgage Burning Service will begin at 11 a.m. Sunday at the church on N. Territorial Road west of Sheldon in Plymouth Township.

The ceremony will feature civic leaders from the city and township, church leaders, and former pastors returning for a visit to mark the occasion.

The church, organized in 1830, moved to the six-acre site on N. Territorial in 1969.

The new building has a seating capacity for about 400 persons, has some 15 Sunday School classrooms, and combined fellowship hall/gymnasium, and a chapel. The church acquired a new organ at its 150th anniversary celebration in 1980.

Besides the regular Sunday services the congregation, led by Pastor Dr. William Stahl, offers an extensive family program Wednesday evenings, including Boys Brigade and Pioneer Girls. The church also has a daily five-minute radio program on WYFC in Ypsilanti.

THE THEME for Sunday's service will be "To God Be The Glory."

The service will open with handbell choir preludes, "Golden Breaks the Dawn" with Charlotte Mathers on violin, followed by "This Is My Father's World" with brass quartet.

After the processional hymn, invocation, and children's anthem by the cherub choir, greetings will be extended by Councilwoman Mary Childs, City of Plymouth, Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen, and from the Rev. Dr. Robert Shaw, Executive Minister, American Baptist Churches of Michigan.

A representative of National Bank of Detroit (NBD) will be on hand to return the mortgage document to the congregation, represented by James Maddick, chairman of the board of trustees, and Andrew Scott, church treasurer.

Following the anthem by the chancel choir, "Hallelujah, Amen" by Handel, the Rev. Donald E. Williams (former pastor of First Baptist Church of Plymouth) will lead The Litany For Burning. Dr. Paul Thompson, another former minister at the church, will lead a unison prayer of celebration and thanks.

The litany of appreciation will be led by Eddie Olson, chairman of the mortgage burning committee who also was chairman of the building committee when the present church building was constructed.

Rev. Williams was pastor of First Baptist Church from 1961-67, during which time the property on N. Territorial was purchased. He now is pastor of the First Baptist Church of Howell. Dr. Thompson was pastor of First Baptist from 1967-75 during which time the church building was constructed. He now is senior pastor of First Baptist Church of Colvina, Calif.

Dr. Stahl, senior pastor at the church since July 1975, is assisted by the Rev. Thomas Pals, associate pastor. Cheryl Kaye is organist and minister of music as well as director of the bell choir. Irene Veresh is financial secretary of the church.

BEFORE MOVING to N. Territorial Road, the church was located for many years in Old Village in the brick building which still stands at Mill and Spring.

The church was organized on March 6, 1830 when 15 persons met at the home of S. Sly. Elder Caleb Lamb was chosen as moderator and Lyman Tarel as clerk. In December 1834 preaching services were held in the old coopershop at Cooper's Corners and in 1837 a church building was started at Shutt's Corners which was completed three years later at a cost of $500.

The Plymouth Village Baptist Society was organized in February 1846, merged with the Baptist Society two years later, and moved to Old Village in Plymouth with the first meeting held in the school house on Feb. 16, 1849.

The church purchased the old frame Presbyterian church building for $110 and moved the building to a half-acre lot donated by George Starkweather. The building was remodelled for $300. After outgrowing the structure it was sold to the Lutherans and the congregation moved to the Mainpring site.

The original building's frame structure was covered with brick in 1900, an educational unit was added in 1948, and later the sanctuary was enlarged.

On Dec. 7, 1967 the N. Territorial Road property was purchased for $17,900 worship service in the new church was held on a Sunday morning in March 1969.

AAU basketball clash a classic

ROCKY WATKINS hasn't had much to smile about lately. The last two winters with his Schoolcraft College basketball team have been dismal. Those teams, both below .500, were nothing to shout about. Watkins also coaches AAU basketball during the off-season. Last year's team was a disaster. For the first time in almost a decade, his Detroit AAU 19-and-under squad failed to make the nationals. That team, led by Mr. Basketball Demetreus Gore, was knocked out of the midwest zone tournament in Anderson, Ind. You couldn't help but notice last weekend that Watkins was nervous when he loaded up three vans for a trip to the state tourney in Grand Rapids. Watkins usually takes his team directly to the zone tournament and then to the nationals, but for the first time ever there was opposition at the state level.

KALAMAZOO was sending a team loaded for bear. Watkins was facing the likes of Roy Marble of Flint Beecher, B.J. Armstrong of Brother Rice, 6-foot-10 J.P. Oosterbaan of Kalamazoo Christian, John Jimmerson and Kevin Brown of Grand Rapids Ottawa Hills, Mark Brown of Hastings, Loy Vaught of East Kentwood, 6-9 Mark Hughes of Muskegon Reeths Puffer and 6-8 Brad Sutton of Grand Rapids Union. Oosterbaan, Hughes and Vaught are going to Michigan, while Armstrong and Marble are headed for Iowa. Jimmerson signed with Marquette, Brown with San Diego State, Sutton with Missouri and Brown with Michigan State. Watkins' arsenal was just as spectacular for Sunday's championship final at Ottawa Hills — Mr. Basketball, Glen Rice of Flint Northwestern, Redford Catholic Central's John McIntyre, Terence Greene of Flint Central, Darryl Spinks of Detroit Finney, Ken Rice of Detroit Kettering, Jarvis Walker of Dearborn Heights Robichaud, Rodney Heard of Detroit Cody and Pollis Robertson of Wayne Memorial.

BUT WATKINS held three trump cards — all juniors — 6-10 Terry Mills of Romulus, 6-6 Willie Burton of Detroit DePorres and guard Anthony Pendleton of state champion Flint Northwestern. What happened Sunday afternoon may never happen again when it comes to AAU basketball. Mills, the nephew of Piston John Long, was the class of the field in a high-powered game that was certainly worth more than the $3 admission charge. Scoring in the clutch (inside and outside), rebounding, blocking shots and making blind passes, Mills led all scorers with 32 points as the Detroit AAU squad beat Kalamazoo, 125-115. "I haven't seen a performance like that since Chris Mullin beat us in the nationals," Watkins said. Stalking the court like a mad stork, Mills is simply the most talented player to come out of this state since Magic Johnson. And not far behind is the finesse-like Rice, who scored 27 points and drew the oohs and aahs from the crowd. Greene, who played a strong second half, added 13 points, while Burton, a monster on the boards, added 11. Pendleton, meanwhile, stormed the court like a paratrooper.

THERE'S BEEN some criticism of Oosterbaan, but after Sunday's showing, he proves he belongs in the Big 10. He led the Kalamazoo team with 20 points. Hughes added 17 with Marble and Jimmerson adding 16 each. The game was played above the rim all afternoon. The thing that sticks out about this Detroit AAU squad is that they play unselfishly, passing the ball almost to a fault. That's a far cry from last year's team, led by Gore and Jackson's Gary Thompkins, who held a one-on-one contest most of the tourney. Gore and Thompkins may have had a hard time finding playing time on this year's Detroit team. Heard, a talented guard going to Kansas State, never got into the lineup Sunday. Watkins likes the character of this group, similar to the team in 1975 that won the nationals, led by Magic. "That team had togetherness and this team is the same, and they're talented as well," he said. "They take things seriously."

THIS WEEKEND, the Detroit AAU squad will travel to Akron, Ohio, for the midwest zone tournament. On Friday, they will face a team from Cleveland, Ohio, with the winner playing Indianapolis on Saturday. Kalamazoo, which also qualified, is on the other side of the bracket with Team Ohio and a team from Columbus. The top two finishers will advance to the nationals this June in Jacksonville, Fla. On Wednesday, Watkins' Detroit AAU squad will face the Junior National Team from the Peoples Republic of China at Schoolcraft College. But the first job at hand is qualifying for the nationals. I think Watkins can sit back and relax. He's got a good chance at reliving those Magic days. Rocky, you can at least start cracking a smile. This team won't break your heart.

Powerful

That's just what Hollie Ivey and the Plymouth Canton girls track team have been so far this season. The Chiefs, with their 90-38 win over Northville Tuesday, are 4-0. It's their best start ever. And Ivey is among the Observerland leaders in the shot put and discus (see page 4C).

Borgess wins Elks, Rocks 3rd

Redford Bishop Borgess, for the second straight season, won the annual Elks Relays boys track championship, run last Saturday at the Centennial Educational Park track in Plymouth. Borgess scored 45 points. Dearborn was second with 40 and host Plymouth Salem was a close third with 36 points. Rounding out the field were Cass Tech (33), Livonia Stevenson (21), Catholic Central (17), John Glenn (16), Livonia Franklin (14), Plymouth Canton (13), Wyandotte (7), Hazel Park (5), Woodhaven (3) and Taylor Truman (1).

"We went into this meet thinking we could finish in the top five," said Salem coach Gary Balconi. "Obviously, we're pleased. This is only our second meet. We've yet to make a lot of decisions as to who will run where."

PLYMOUTH CANTON coach Mike Spitz was also encouraged despite his team's ninth place finish.

"I'm very pleased. Even with some of the events where we didn't place we had kids running personal bests," Spitz said. Salem brought home three firsts on the day. Mike White (22-0), Brian Neuhardt (19-11 1/4) and Doug Batsel (18-5) combined to win the long jump relay. Dave Bertell (5-6), Tony Moore (5-6) and Dave Collins (5-6) won the high jump relay. And Bertell, Neuhardt, Sean O'Hare and White teamed to win the low hurdle relay.

Salem also captured a second in the mile relay (3:32.0) and a third in the 440 relay (45.78). Canton set a couple of school records. The Chiefs long jump relay (Tom Bowie, Tyrone Reeves and John Migyanka) placed second with a combined 59-2, which eclipses the old mark of 57-8 set in 1980. Bowie's jump (21-1) broke Frank Asis's record of 20-7 1/4 set in 1982.

Canton's 4-mile relay team of Bob Teller, Paul Trout, Doug Rich and Keith Rosol placed fifth with a 19:55.7, but that mark broke Canton's old mark of 20:07.0 set in 1980. The Chiefs also placed second in the 440 relay as Matt Flower, Pat McGow, Steve Morell and Bowie went 45.5. Canton scored fourth-place finishes in both the 880 relay (1:35.45) and the low hurdle relay (1:23.6).

Franklin hurler shackles Salem

By Chris McCosky staff writer

By all accounts, it should have been a better game.

You had Observerland's No. 2-ranked softball team (Plymouth Salem) against No. 3-ranked Livonia Franklin. It was a warm, sunny Monday afternoon. The Franklin field was dry — the stage was set for a classic battle.

Tracy Lectka sure knows how to spoil a good time.

The Franklin pitcher completely shackled the Salem hitters and the Patriot bats slowly but surely came to life. When it was all said and done, the classic battle turned into a 11-0 rout for Franklin.

"We're starting to hit the ball now," said Franklin coach Joe Epstein. "That was my biggest concern coming into the season. We play good defense and the pitching is sound. I only wondered how well we'd be able to hit."

The hitting was there, but the story of the game was Lectka. For 6 1/2 innings, the only thing that separated her from a perfect game was a second-inning error by first baseman Sue Panzel.

WITH 1 OUT in the seventh, Salem's Cindy Runge ruined Lectka's no-hit bid with a sharp single to center. Leslie Plichta followed that up with a single to right, but right fielder Cherie Mascarello threw Runge out at third. It was the closest thing to a scoring threat Salem could muster.

Lectka fanned 6 and didn't walk a batter. "When you only get 2 hits you aren't going to win," said Salem coach Rob Willette. "I thought we'd hit her (Lectka) better. I don't mean to take anything away from her, she pitched well. But, she's not what you'd call overpowering."

softball

What you'd call her is intelligent and deceptive. Lectka mixed a live fastball, a sharp curve and a paralyzing change-up with her pinpoint control to keep the Rocks at bay.

Offensively, Franklin banged out 10 hits, but had trouble knocking in runs in the game's early stages.

The Pats loaded the bases with none out in the first, but scored just 2 runs, one the result of a Salem error. They loaded them up again in the fourth but failed to score.

Finally in the fifth, the Pats got to Rock starter Sue Carlson with a 4-run explosion. The big blows were back-to-back 2-run doubles by Patti Wixson and Lectka.

THE PATS, aided by 6 walks off Salem reliever Denise Tackett, scored 5 more times in the sixth. Beth Stewart, who went 2-for-3 with 3 RBI, knocked in a pair with a bases loaded double.

Panzel, Carolyn Smith, Stewart and Wixson all had 2 hits for Franklin (3-0).

"This was a non-league game," said Willette. "That's about the best thing you could say about this one."

The Rocks are 1-1.

Canton 9 stays unbeaten

Fred Crissey's Plymouth Canton baseball team, after beating Walled Lake Central 3-1 last Friday and Northville 5-2 Monday, is a perfect 4-0 on the young season.

But, according to Crissey, there's nothing perfect about the 4-0 record.

"I told the kids today that we've been winning ugly," the successful coach said. "I don't like to win ugly. I mean, I'd rather win ugly than lose, don't get me wrong. But, for us to be successful, we're going to have to play to our capacity all the time."

"We just aren't concentrating. But the thing is, it hasn't come at critical times so a lot of people won't notice. Those are the things that bother me. Winning and losing isn't all we're about here. We aspire to play as close to our capabilities as we can and we just haven't done that yet."

NEVERTHELESS, the Chiefs have been getting tremendous pitching and have been scoring just enough runs to win.

One year ago on a cold, grey, blustery day, Plymouth Canton's MARK BENNETT was steaming. The senior pitcher mowed down all but one Farmington batter in the Chief's 8-0 victory. The one batter, Neil Davis, stroked a fourth inning single. That single stood between Bennett and a perfect game. Meanwhile, the Plymouth Salem Rocks banged out 12 hits and scored 10 runs to defeat Walled Lake Western 10-8. CHRIS MOWERS led the Rock hitters going 3 for 4 with a double and a two-run home run.

The manager positions are voluntary. Those interested should contact Jim Burt at 451-6575 as soon as possible.

SENIOR SOFTBALL

The senior softball league is expanding. The plan is to have a mens league and a co-ed league. For those men and women aged 55 or over interested in participating, there will be an indoor training session at the Plymouth Salvation Army (Main Street, south of Ann Arbor Road).

The training sessions will be held from 1-3 p.m. on the following Mondays: April 29 and May 1. Call 397-1000 Ext. 278 for more information.

STEELERS SIGNUP

The Plymouth-Canton Steelers junior league football team has scheduled registrations for players and cheerleaders from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on the following Saturdays: May 4, May 18.

The sessions will take place in the lobby of the Phase III facility at Plymouth Canton High School.

Players and cheerleaders aged 9-13 are eligible. The cost is $40 per player, $25 per cheerleader and $100 family maximum.

WOMENS AND SENIORS GOLF LEAGUE

The Canton Parks and Recreation Department will sponsor golf leagues for women and senior citizens beginning in mid-May.

League meetings will take place at the Canton Township Administration Building (Canton Center Road) Wednesday, May 1: the seniors at 9 a.m., the womens league at 10 a.m.

MENS GOLF LEAGUE

The Canton Parks and Recreation mens golf league, for Canton residents only, will play Wednesday evenings beginning May 8 at Fellows Creek.

The fee is $20 plus greens fees. The league meeting is set for 7 p.m. Wednesday, May 1, at Township Administration Building.

CO-ED SOFTBALL

The Canton and Plymouth Parks and Recreation departments' co-ed softball league, games played on Sunday and Monday nights, will commence on June 2.

Registration for all returning teams will take place between April 22-26 at either rec office. New teams can sign up between April 29 and May 17.

The fee is $80 per team. Teams must supply game balls and pay $6 umpire fee per game.

Monday, left-hander Mark Coburn won his second game for the Chiefs, stifling Northville on just 2 hits in his 7 innings. He fanned 9 and only walked 3.

Canton took the lead for good in the top of the third on junior Mark Stevens' 2-run home run. The Chiefs added 2 more in the fifth on a walk to Tony Aiken (one of his 4 walks on the day to go with his 3 stolen bases), an RBI single by Dwayne Bennett, a double by Stevens and a pinch-hit RBI single by Adam Kocik.

The Chiefs stole a run in the sixth on 3 walks and a double steal.

The Chiefs got some insurance in the fifth on a double by Dave Knapp, a sacrifice and a wild pitch.

"I couldn't be happier with the pitching," Crissey said. "Blake, Coburn and Mike Clark have done an outstanding job for us."

Tri-City Seals set for CP regional games

By C.J. Rieak
staff writer

The Cerebral Palsy (CP) Games are expanding. Or maybe shrinking.

It depends upon your viewpoint, but this year for the first time the National CP Games, slated for Aug. 7-14 at Michigan State University, will include a separate competition for Les Autres athletes.

Les Autres is French for "the others." It refers to those athletes not eligible to compete in any other national organization's sports for physically impaired.

In the past, Les Autres athletes — those with muscular dystrophy, multiple sclerosis and a handful of other conditions — competed along with the CP athletes.

THIS YEAR they'll have a separate competition. Just like the CP athletes, the Les Autres (LA) competitors will be classified according to severity of disability — Class 1 for most severe, Class 8 for least.

And also, just like the CP athletes, members of the LA division will have to qualify for the nationals at the Michigan regional games, scheduled for May 17-20 at Eastern Michigan University.

More than 300 athletes, mostly from Michigan, on 13 teams will partake in the regionals. Those bettering national qualifying standards for their events in their class will advance to the National CP/LA Games at MSU.

And likewise, the best national athletes will be selected to represent the United States at the International Games next year in Belgium.

SO THERE'S a lot at stake, but the Observer coverage area will be well represented by members of the Tri-City Seals, which operate out of Westland's Parks and Recreation building.

"As far as regionals go, ours is a very competitive meet," said Mary Beth Jones, head coach and director of the Seals, which won the small team (20 members or less) regional title last year.

"But it's at nationals where the real strong competition is," Jones added. "Those athletes put in a lot of time and they have a lot of talent."

"And, at the international games, there are the elite athletes."

ONE SEAL who made it to last year's International CP Games in Nassau, New York, was Erika Benjamin of Westland. Benjamin, 20, a Class 6 CP athlete (has use of all four limbs), had a best finish in the 200-meter dash (43.95).

"She's got great potential in track," said Jones of Benjamin. "Definitely she's improved her times. I know she'll do quite well at nationals."

Benjamin will compete in the 60-meter, 200-meter and 400-meter runs and the 1,500-meter cross country run. Athletes are restricted to five events.

OTHER POTENTIAL medal-winners for the Seals include:

- Dawn Darlington, 18, from Plymouth. As a Class 7 CP athlete (slightly impaired), Darlington is up against "very, very strong competition," according to Jones. "She's going to have to do a lot of fighting and training to make it to the International Games." Darlington's best events are the 100, 400 and the long jump.

- David Larson, 15, from Plymouth, a Class 6 CP athlete. "He needs a little more training," Jones said, "but he's a natural athlete. He should make nationals, no problem." A member of the Michigan team that traveled to the 1983 nationals in Ft. Worth, Texas, Larson's best chances are in the shot put, club throw and table tennis.

- David Marcy, 18, from Livonia, a Class 3 LA athlete (needs wheelchair for mobility). A six-year Seal veteran, Marcy has been to the 1981 Rhode Island nationals and was a medal-winner at the Texas nationals. The shot put, discus and powerlifting are his best events. He'll also be in the 60-meter and slalom races.

- Terri Rohrig, 31, from Livonia, a Class 6 CP athlete. "A very gutsy athlete," according to Jones, Rohrig will compete in a pair of new events: the 1,500-meter and 3,000-meter tri-cycling. She'll also be in the powerlifting and, according to Jones, "has a great chance" to make nationals in each.

- Tony Stroia, 14, from Livonia, a Class 5 CP athlete (uses some device to assist in walking). Stroia will compete in the junior division, which is divided into three age categories: 9 and under, 10-12 and 13-15. "He'll do great there," predicted Jones. Stroia's events are the club throw, shot put, 100-meter race and powerlifting.

- Eric Smith, 12, from Livonia, a Class 1 LA athlete (a muscular dystrophy competitor who uses an electric wheelchair). Smith is in his first year as a Seal who "should do very well" in the slalom, according to Jones. He'll also compete in the 60-meter race, bocce and precision (a contest of accuracy with points scored for bean bags thrown on a target).

- Steve Dell, 17, of Livonia, a Class 1 CP athlete (using an electric wheelchair). A six-year veteran who competed at the Rhode Island and Texas nationals, Dell's top events are in swimming: the 25-meter freestyle and 25-meter backstroke. He'll also compete in the soft shot distance throw and soft discus.

Pats hold Rocks in 2-2 deadlock

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

Soccer, like all athletic competition, can be very humbling. Just ask Plymouth Salem.

The Rocks came to Livonia Monday riding a five-game win streak and ranked No. 2 in Michigan according to the state coaches' poll. All was going well. And considering Monday's opponent was a 1-5-1 Franklin team, the Rocks had to be feeling rather secure. Crash.

A gritty Franklin defense, an unflappable and nearly unbeatable Patriot goalie and some wayward shooting brought the Rocks back to earth. Only a desperation goal by Julie Tortora staved off defeat for Salem, as the game ended in a 2-2 tie.

"WHEN YOU don't have it, you don't have it," said Salem coach Ken Johnson. "Franklin is not a bad team. We didn't have our shooting on today, just a little wild. But this is good for Franklin and good for the league."

The key to the tie, according to Franklin coach Judy Brda, was a slight player shift.

"I kept our faster players out on their wings," the second-year coach said. "I knew what Salem's forwards were capable of so we just gave up some of our offense for the defense."

Salem dominated play, outshooting Franklin 42-12. But, when Salem wasn't missing the net, Patriot goalie Kim Owings was making spectacular saves. Several times, especially in the final 10 minutes of the game, she robbed Salem's high-scoring forwards Fran Whittaker and Dena Head.

WHITTAKER AND FRANKLIN'S Mary Schultz traded goals. Then halfway through the second half Franklin's Janice Lebedeff scored from about 20 yards out to put the Pats in front.

Two minutes later, Head broke down the right wing, sifted a pass through the Franklin defense to Tortora who nudged it past Owings.

Salem kept heavy pressure on the Pats' goal the rest of the match but couldn't get the game winner. Franklin sweeper Laura Alcalá did a superb job pestering the Salem attackers.

"I'm not too disappointed," Johnson said. "We just didn't shoot well. This is high school soccer, you expect this from time to time."

Summer Fun Boat Show: a miniature Detroit show

Water sports enthusiasts will have the chance to see their favorite boats and boating equipment this weekend at the Summer Fun Boat Show in Plymouth.

There'll be something for everyone, ranging from fishing boats, pontoon and ski boats to cabin cruisers, sailboats and windsurfing equipment. Motors and trailers will also be for sale.

Sponsored by the Plymouth Kiwanis Club, the show will take place from noon to 8 p.m. Saturday and Sunday in the parking deck in downtown Plymouth.

"We hope to have another great weekend in Plymouth," show coordinator Ted Campbell said. "It's a miniature Detroit Boat Show. We have a good variety of boats and we're looking forward to a good-sized crowd."

Marine Affiliates of Canton will be one of 12 dealers from across the state displaying their wares.

"WHETHER YOU'RE a devout fisherman or a pleasure boater, you will be impressed with our complete packages," said Marine Affiliates owner Tom DiDario.

Windsurfing has become popular in recent years and Washtenaw Windsurfing will offer 10 different models at the show.

"Anyone between seven and 60 — with the will to try windsurfing — can learn," said Washtenaw Windsurfing owner Dennis Deschaine. "It's a misconception that the sport is difficult and not for everyone. We've taught more than 1,000 people in the last three years."

The reasons for the growth of the sport are simple, according to Deschaine.

"The sport allows the average person a very portable sailing device — something they can move around on top of their car, set up in a short amount of time and requires a small storage area," he said.

Gilles earns spot in national tourney

Three Observer & Eccentric area tennis players have been selected to represent Michigan in the prestigious Seventeen Magazine's Tennis Tournament of Champions, May 7-11 in Mission Viejo, Ca.

Wendy Gilles, 17, of Plymouth, Elizabeth Nau, 14, of Bloomfield Hills, and Amy Frazier, 12, of Rochester will be among 159 teen-age girls from across the nation competing in the 10th annual event.

The tournament is sanctioned by the United States Tennis Association (USTA) and annually attracts the top junior players in the country. Past winners include Tracy Austin, Andrea Jaeger, Kathy Rinaldi and Zina Garrison, all top-ranked professional players.

GILLES, a junior at Plymouth Salem High School, is ranked No. 13 in 16's of the Western Tennis Association and No. 54 nationally. She qualified for the Seventeen tournament by placing in the finals of the Battle Creek Classic last January and winning the Western Closed Championship in November.

Gilles' sister Chris is currently the No. 1 singles player at the University of Wisconsin. Wendy plans on joining her sister at Wisconsin next year.

This is Wendy's third appearance at the Seventeen tournament. She'll be playing in the 18-under division.

Playing 16-under is Elizabeth Nau, an all-stater at Kingswood High. Nau is ranked No. 8 nationally in the USTA 14's.

Nau, playing in her first Seventeen tourney, qualified by advancing into the third round of the National Indoor Championships in Flushing, N.Y. last

Wendy Gilles in national tourney

November. Last summer she reached the quarterfinal rounds in both the National Claycourt Championships in Greensboro, N.C., and the National Harcourts in San Rafael, Ca.

AMY FRAZIER, ranked No. 1 in the nation in USTA 12's and No. 13 in USTA 14's, is also making her first appearance in Mission Viejo.

The Rochester seventh-grader qualified for the tournament by winning the National Indoor Championships played in Southfield last year. Frazier also captured the National Harcourts title last summer.

Seventeen Magazine provides all players with an all-expense-paid trip to Mission Viejo, a traveling outfit and a playing outfit, as well as many off court activities in Mission Viejo.

Benefits befall marathon champ

By Brad Emons staff writer

The customers browsing around Racquets Unlimited, a tennis and running shoe store in Livonia, failed to notice that the women's winner of the Boston Marathon was in their midst.

Lisa Larsen Weidenbach isn't exactly a household word yet, but by the 1988 Olympics in Seoul, Korea, she hopes to rank right alongside Joan Benoit, the 1984 Olympic Gold Medal winner.

Lisa, a native of Battle Creek and a University of Michigan graduate, was in town Tuesday accompanying her husband of seven months, Bill, who was here on business as a technical rep for Saucony Shoes.

WEIDENBACH, a member of the Saucony Racing Team, was the favorite going into the race and she lived up to her billing.

But with temperatures in the low 70s, Weidenbach scrapped her plans of running a sub-two hour, 30-minute time.

people in sports

She won the race, though, in 2:34:06, receiving national attention and acclaim.

"It hasn't been that long (since she won)," Weidenbach said. "It's only been a week, so I haven't really gotten any calls for appearances. I've been out of town anyway."

MANY OF THE top women's runners bypassed Boston, mainly because the committee that runs the race refuses to give appearance fees.

"The shoe company (Saucony) produces a bonus for winning the race," she said. "I'll come out of this nicely."

"But I think Boston ought to change with the times. They have the publicity, the fans and the media coverage, but not the incentives or the money. I gave them (the press) my opinion."

"People are going to Rotterdam and London (marathons) instead of Boston. I might go back to Boston, but if I don't, I won't use the word boycott."

JULIE ISPHORDING, who nipped Weidenbach at the finish line for the third and final spot on the U.S. Olympic team during last year's U.S. Olympic Trials Marathon, bypassed Boston in favor of next month's marathon in Pittsburgh, where the top prize is $20,000.

"They're offering $20,000 (to the winner), not including appearance fees," Weidenbach added. "I considered going this year. They're going to have to change at Boston."

The weekend after Weidenbach's triumph, Ingrid Kristiansen of Norway broke the women's world marathon record in London with time of 2:21:06, almost 1 1/4 minutes better than Benoit's mark of 2:22:43, set at Boston in 1983.

Kristiansen won a total of $75,000, one of the biggest payoffs in marathon history. She earned a $50,000 bonus for breaking Benoit's mark.

"MY REACTION to that was that I've got a lot of work to do," Weidenbach said. "I think I would have placed third in that race."

Weidenbach, who began running only five years ago after being an All-American swimmer, will continue intensive training right through the 1988 U.S. Olympic Trials.

"I race frequently, but I run only two marathons a year," she said. "I'm going to the Cascade Run-off (marathon) in October in Portland, Ore."

"I'm taking things easy right now. I was tired (after the marathon) because every weekend in March, up until Boston, I had raced."

Weidenbach's husband, a Grosse Pointe native and marathoner himself, supports his wife's efforts, but the two do not train together.

"We might go on morning runs together," said Lisa. "But we have major efforts on two different levels. I don't want to take away from the glory or concentration. You tend to be selfish when training intensively."

The reasons for the Weidenbach's move to Massachusetts was Bill's job and Lisa's training.

"I'm also much more marketable out there," Lisa added.

GC picks new grid coach

By Rich Swenson staff writer

Garden City High School has a new head football coach.

Bob Lusk, the Cougars' defensive coordinator last year under Dean Shipman, takes the reins of a team that's coming off a fine 7-2 season. Garden City finished second in the Northwest Suburban League (NSL) behind North Farmington.

Shipman resigned last month after accepting the position of associate principal at the high school.

Better known for his career as a wrestling coach at Westland John Glenn where his teams were perennial NSL champs, the 52-year-old Lusk returns as a head football coach after a 10-year hiatus.

"I've been out of coaching for a few years," the longtime John Glenn physical education teacher said. "But it's something I've always enjoyed. There was a little void in my life. My children have grown up and it (the offer) came at a good time. I'm pleased that I was selected."

LUSK IS no stranger to the gridiron. In the 1960s and early '70s, he piloted teams at Lincoln Park and John Glenn for 14 years (the last nine at Glenn). Lusk also has served stints as an assistant coach at Western and Eastern Michigan universities.

A defensive specialist, Lusk believes in teaching solid, fundamental football — stressing good blocking and tackling. But he isn't afraid to put the ball in the air on offense.

"More games are won with a good defense, but you need balance," he said. "I like to score points too."

GC dumps Eagles

The Plymouth-Canton American Eagles men's soccer team dominated the second half of its Great Lakes Men's Soccer League game against Garden City Sunday but couldn't overcome a 3-1 deficit, losing 3-2.

"Garden City scored right at the start of the second half then we just took over," said Eagles' coach Charlie Vella. "We just couldn't get that third goal in."

Garden City's Dave Dewar scored what proved to be the winning goal. Carmien Savastano and Bill Hyde also scored for GC (1-1).

The Eagles goals were scored by Steve Whiteley and Chris Koenig.

Goalie Tim Butzow faced 20 shots in the nets, while the Eagles pestered the GC nets with 18 shots.

The Eagles (0-2) will travel to Livonia Sunday to play the Wolves East.

Timing service works best over the long haul

By Sid Mittra and Mariola Kulkowski special writers

Last week, we discussed the technique of timing a mutual fund.

This week we will discuss the major pitfalls of this service.

The Major Pitfalls

The above discussion would be utterly misleading without recognizing the pitfalls of this strategy.

First, timing service constitutes a long-term strategy. No significant gains can be realized over a short period, except by accident.

Second, the results are highly influenced by the timer's ability to recognize the peaks and valleys. Timing is not an exact science, and no one can ever be expected to have a perfect score. In fact, a rational investor must assume that there will be "several misses" over a long time period.

Third, even when a timer carefully selects a mutual fund that is likely to fluctuate, changed market conditions may push it into a steady or declining price pattern. In that case, the timing service will produce inferior results.

Fourth, even when the timing service is operating effectively, certain events, which can be likened to "exogenous shocks" to the system, can totally frustrate the timer's efforts and produce disastrous results. Failure of Continental Bank, Iraq-Iran War, and the Proposed 1985 Tax Law are examples of these exogenous shocks. Since none of these can ever be predicted, no timing service can act upon them soon enough to avoid significant declines in investment values.

Fifth, a timing service does cost money. For instance, a 2-percent annual fee charged by timing service means that a 15-percent return from a timed mutual fund is no better than a 13-percent return from an untimed fund.

The Verdict

When the advantages of a timing service are stacked up against the pitfalls of such a service, on balance, the advantages far outweigh the disadvantages. However, you must recognize the ABC of a timing service before signing on the dotted line:

"A" countable: The timer must be accountable. Remember: He can only produce superior results in the long run.

"B" aware of shocks: Recognize that exogenous shocks render timing service temporarily impotent.

"C" cost: Timing service can be expensive, especially if during any given period your mutual fund experiences a long decline or a sideways movement.

finances and you

Educational Seminar: The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and the Coordinated Financial Planning staff will conduct a seminar 7-10 p.m. Tuesday, May 14, at the Bloomfield Township Library, 1099 Lone Pine Road, Bloomfield Hills. This seminar will cover: Strategic planning; tactical planning; insurance, taxes, education, wills; product planning; mutual funds, stocks and bonds, real estate and oil and gas tax

The seminar is free, but registration is required. For more details, call 643-8888.

Sid Mittra is president of Coordinated Financial Planning, Inc. in Troy and a professor of economics and management at Oakland University.

Vicki Cravens is Doris Levine and Daniel T. Booth is Hepatitis in "God" at the Spotlight Players.

Rollicking comedy 'God' is fun in ancient Greece

Performances of the Spotlight Players production of Woody Allen's "God" continue at 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday at the John Glenn Auditorium in Westland. For ticket information, call 729-6453 or 595-6117.

By Victoria Diaz
special writer

The Spotlight Players of Wayne-Westland has chosen to conclude its 1984-85 season with a fast-moving, well-performed production of Woody Allen's zany one-act comedy, "God." Directed by Michael S., the play-within-a-play (within-a-play?) is set (sort of) in an Athenian amphitheater, circa 500 B.C.

As the play begins, the Greek playwright, Hepatitis, has a problem: The all-important Athenian Drama Festival begins in five minutes and he, as yet, has no suitable ending for his play. The rest of "God" has to do (sort of) with efforts to solve this weighty problem.

HEPATITIS — pretty weighty himself — is portrayed charmingly by Daniel T. Booth, who manages to seem properly befuddled, lovingly lecherous and worried to death all at the same time.

As his actor "friend," Russ Holder-ness is precisely on the mark — which is to say he is an actor who seems to be an actor playing an actor. His Diabetes is pretension personified, complete with all the affectations and mannerisms required, down to the last little sassy fling of the glitzy cape over the shoulder.

AS A MEMBER of the audience, and as Doris Levine, Vicki L. Cravens is cute, funny and always entertaining.

Then there's Annette Aben as Blanche Dubois (I mean, how can you have a Greek play without Blanche Dubois in the cast?), who wanders onstage at one point to tell us, in a kind of breathy Southern accent, that she's "got to get into a play where God exists." Later on, as one of the members of the cockeyed Greek chorus, Aben is also a stand-out.

Helen DeJulio as the king deserves special mention. She's certainly, ahem, versatile, too.

Unfortunately, space doesn't permit discussing the merits of each member of the large cast. Suffice it to say that all turn in admirable performances, especially the nine members of the Greek chorus.

"God" not only entertains, but it looks good, too. Costumes, make-up, lighting, scenery — all imaginatively conceived and nicely executed.

THIS RELATIVELY obscure play of Allen's explores, in a delightful way, the fine line between illusion and reality. Its action occasionally spills over into the audience. The performers become part of the audience, and the audience even, at times, becomes a part of the play.

Be prepared for a few surprises, and a great deal of crazy fun.

Village curse makes for mild humor in 'Fools'

Performances of the Garden City Civic Theatre production of "Fools" by Neil Simon continue at 8 p.m. Thursday-Saturday at the O'Leary Performing Arts Center in Garden City. For ticket information, call 525-9258.

By Victoria Diaz
special writer

If you're yearning for a fun trip to Never-Never Land, check out the Garden City Civic Theatre's current production of Neil Simon's comedy, "Fools." While you may not find it fall-out-of-your-seat-funny from start to finish, it nevertheless makes for a pleasant evening's entertainment, suitable for the whole family.

Not your typical Neil Simon fare, "Fools" takes place in the goofy little village of Kulyenchikov, long, long ago. A curse, you see, has been visited on the hapless residents of Kulyenchikov: just about every last one of them is, shall we say — backward. Enter our hero, the teacher, Leon Tolchinsky, determined to wipe out the curse — and win the town beauty, Sophia, in the process. Therein, of course, hangs the tale.

As Leon, Phillip Assenmacher is amiable enough, pleasant to watch, and has a rather determined and jaunty air about him — as all good storybook heroes should. Storybook heroes, however, have a decided inclination to be stereotypical, and stereotypical tends to be dull. One can't help but wish, from time to time, that Leon were just a bit more interesting.

As the villain of the piece, Michael Rothaar is a riot. In the role of Count Gregor Yousekevitch (a descendant of the bad guy who inflicted the curse in the first place), Rothaar is lecherous, treacherous and absolutely charming. He has a hilarious style all his own that threatens to steal every scene in which he appears.

IN THE ROLE of the beautiful, but oh-so-dumb Sophia, Kathleen Lietz does a nice job. She displays a promising gift for comedy and, as Sophia, her efforts to master the simple art of sitting down properly make for some of the funniest moments in the play. A very attractive actress, she's certainly physically suited for the part of the fair young maiden.

Jim Hand as her muddled-minded father, Dr. Zubritsky ("The purpose of man's existence is 12 — or is it 14?"), and Diane Kremser as her even more muddled mother, Lenya ("I can't draw the curtains, but I can draw a cat."), complement each other well and seem to have a great time working together.

Even though Dr. Zubritsky can't read his own eye chart and Lenya often has trouble telling up from down, they're thoroughly likable, and the fun Hand and Kremser have with their roles is definitely infectious.

Amusing sets and colorful costumes round out the production appropriately, and Rose Leighton's direction keeps things going at a nice, fast pace.

'Witness' doesn't quite measure up

Performances of "Witness for the Prosecution" by Agatha Christie, presented by the Plymouth Theatre Guild, continue at 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday at Central Middle School in Plymouth. For ticket information, call 455-2632.

By Bob Weibel
special writer

The Plymouth Theatre Guild's production of Agatha Christie's classic thriller, "Witness for the Prosecution," was something less than classic on opening night.

While there were bright moments generally, one was left with the feeling that the guild's reach seems to have exceeded its grasp. "Witness" has proven a popular choice of theater groups for 30 years because of the play's convoluted plot, its variety of three-dimensional characters and its bizarre triple-ending surprise.

The play, however, also has formidable prerequisites. It requires a cast of 30 (or more), strong characterizations, a variety of accents, an English setting and two full sets. All too often, this proved a difficult task for the PTG.

The story itself begins simply enough. One Leonard Vole, played convincingly by Tobin Hissong, is on trial for murdering a rich old woman (who has made him beneficiary of her fortune).

BELINDA BIGGS as Roamine Vole gives the best performance of the evening as his cunning wife. Only her testimony can save him — but who can trust his wife when a fortune is at stake. Only Agatha Christie knows for sure.

Belinda definitely knows how to use a pause, a look, or an inflection of voice to create a mysterious, fully developed character. Everything from her German accent to gestures, phrasing and costuming is excellent.

Also contributing sparkling performances are Sylvia Lanz, who plays Greta, an office worker, with bright, zesty good fun; Cheryl Selden as Dr. Wyatt, who seems very much an expert witness; Pat Gresock, whose Scottish accent makes her very believable as Janet MacKenzie, the murdered woman's housekeeper, and Maggie Sergus as the Other Woman, what you might call an English version of Dolly Parton in a leopard-skin jumpsuit.

Manfred Heuser plays the defense attorney, Sir Wilfred Roberts. He looks very British, but he has a natural "German" accent, which is incompatible with the character. And too often he seems to be reciting lines by rote rather than interacting with other performers.

Seldom does Heuser or Robert Pici, who plays the prosecutor, Mr. Myers, exhibit the interplay, mental gymnastics, cleverness and wily tricks of opposing attorneys.

AND JUDGE Wainwright is played by Donna Barne but is referred to as "My Lord" — an unnecessary bit of casting and confusion, when other male roles could have been double-cast as the judge. For example, Robert Regan, who does a good job in the small part of Carter, Sir Wilfred's chief clergyman.

Oh, yes, about the set. Barren, beige walls do nothing to establish mood or locale (especially when the attorney's office and the courtroom are the same colors). And the huge, gaudy Union Jack flag in the courtroom looks out of place and is distracting.

A better choice would have been to do the show in curtains with suggestive scenery. But now that it's there, let's hope someone locates a few pictures or decorative pieces.

upcoming things to do

TEEN DANCES

"New music" will be offered beginning Friday, April 26, for teen dances from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. Fridays at Center Stage in Canton. The format will be a test for the Metro Westside Teen Club, which has been dancing to the sounds of funk and disco for the last six months at the club. The progressive, new music — alternative/punk — from England, Ireland, California and New York has been continuously requested by Westside teen club members. Look-alike contests and new-music videos on two large screens are other features at the Friday night dances. Admission is $3.

HUNTERS' RUN

Eddie Russ on piano and Marion Hayden on bass join Larry Nozoro & Friends from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. Friday-Saturday, April 26-27, and 7:30-11:30 p.m. Sunday, April 28, at Hunters' Run in Livonia. For more information, call 522-5600.

BENEFIT RECITAL

Paul Wingert of Livonia, a member of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and principal cellist of the Dearborn Symphony, will perform a cello recital at 4 p.m. Sunday, April 28, at the First United Methodist Church of Dearborn. The recital will be a scholarship benefit musicale for Mu Phi Epsilon international professional music fraternity. Accompanist will be Fontaine Laing, Detroit-area pianist, who is a member of Mu Phi Epsilon. Wingert will be assisted by his wife Karen, a cellist with several Detroit-area orchestras and chamber music groups. For more information call Marion Dowler at 837-0354.

'NOISES OFF'

Final play of its spring season will be "Noises Off," a farce in three acts, opening Tuesday, April 30, at the Fisher Theatre in Detroit. The Broadway comedy, which has two touring companies, will remain through Sunday, June 2. For ticket information, call 872-1000.

BACH EXTRAVAGANZA

Oakway Symphony Orchestra will present a Bach Extravaganza, featuring performances by nine pianists, at 3 p.m. Sunday, April 28, at Harrison High School in Farmington Hills. Tickets at $4 for students and senior citizens, $7 for general admission are available at Madonna College in Livonia, Hammel Music in Livonia and Plymouth, Executive Office Supply in Farmington and the Livonia Board of Education Offices.

Family Irish Festival celebrates springtime

Folks in the vicinity of St. Patrick's Senior Center on Sunday might catch Detroit Tiger owner Tom Monaghan and Neal Shine, Detroit Free Press senior managing editor, doing an Irish jig. The two are honorary chairmen for the senior citizen center's annual Spring Festival. Proceeds will fund the free hot lunch program and free educational, medical, legal and crafts services provided daily for the area's needy seniors.

Irish entertainers from throughout metropolitan Detroit will be performing 2-9 p.m. at the center, 58 Parsons at Woodward behind Orchestra Hall.

Family entertainment will be continuous with volunteer Irish musicians, vocalists, pipe and drum bands and dancers taking turns on the stage. Admission is $3 for adults and $1 for children.

Irish food and beverages will be available, and prizes will be given away.

For more information, call 833-7080.

'The Chinese and Dr. Fish' comes off splendidly

By Bob Weibel
special writer

Director Art Rizzo has fashioned an evening of splendid acting and amusing good fun for the Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford spring show — something with the unlikely title of "The Chinese and Dr. Fish." Actually, it's not a single show, but two unrelated one-act plays.

The first play, "Dr. Fish," features the comedic talents of Dale Van Dorp in the title role. Van Dorp is engaging and most convincing as a most uncommon sex therapist — especially when he explains to his patient, a Mrs. Mendelsohn, that he's not a psychiatrist, not a psychologist, not even a lay analyst. No sir, you'll hear none of that mumbo-jumbo, head-shrinking nonsense from Doctor Fish.

What he has is a doctorate in American history, with an overwhelming interest in social relationships, especially their sexual aspects, because history is merely a gross reflection of the sexual. With that wacky opening, author Murray Schisgal proceeds to poke fun at sex therapists and those who seek help.

JOAN IRWIN is excellent in the role of the emotionally distraught Mrs. Mendelsohn, who wants her husband to be more open and imaginative. Stan Taylor is equally good as the boorish husband who refuses to recognize the possibility of any problems.

For example, he figures that making love with the lights on doesn't make sense, because his electric bill is already too high.

Adding to the fun and confusion is Pat Dorrian-Sandboth as a charming pixy of a grandmother, Mrs. Fish, who has just arrived, and keeps interrupting the consulting sessions with free advice and hot soup.

The plot revolves around a young man with Caucasian features who has been passing himself off as Jewish, even though both parents are obviously Chinese.

Things really get sticky when he brings a Caucasian girl home to meet his parents, but has neglected to tell her they're Chinese — and hilarious when they attempt to strates outstanding comedic abilities as the frantic father. Maxine Parshall is the perfect Chinese mother, and Rich Blumenfeld keeps the show at a madcap pace as he searches for his biological ancestors.

The Chinese make-up is well done as is the tastefully conceived set that serves both shows, although something should be done to hide the actors on their downstage entrances — like move (or mask) the doors.

The second play, 'The Chinese,' also borders on the absurd. This time Murray Schisgal takes a few pot shots at our ethnic hangups.

THE DETROIT INSTITUTE OF ARTS OFFERS A LIMITED OPPORTUNITY

Acquire this fine keepsake for your family's collection

THE DETROIT INSTITUTE OF ARTS offers you the opportunity to own a memento designed to commemorate the exhibition The Precious Legacy: Jewish Treasures from the Czechoslovak State Collections. The Smithsonian Institution commissioned this blue and white ceramic serving plate, adapted from a Passover plate in the exhibition.

The original plate was made by Joseph Vater in Vienna around 1900. The scallop-edged plate is approximately 14 inches in diameter. A six-pointed Star of David in the center of the plate is surrounded by six heart-shaped wells to hold the symbolic foods eaten during the Passover meal. The Precious Legacy offers a unique opportunity to view treasures from The State Jewish Museum in Prague, Czechoslovakia, and to discover the history, artistry, and cultural memories embedded in these artifacts.

True, we had to "shoot" our 1985 10-speed bicycle winners in three sessions, but first they had to "have it together" in order to qualify for the award.

To be tapped for membership in our "10-speed club" they had to keep accurate, neat records. Their February collections had to exceed their January totals. With this going for them, their names were placed in our drawing for a shiny 10-speed.

Images of southern India: panorama of calm

I HAVE A huge batik bedspread, in exotic purples and blues, hanging on my wall at home. I bought it at the Victoria Technical Institute in Madras, in the state of Tamil Nadu, where they assured me it would fit a king-sized bed. It doesn't, but it fits a large wall.

On the mantle over my fireplace is a graceful miniature boat with a high prow, made of horn and set with tiny bone figures, each with his own little oar. Everytime I look at it I think of Trivandrum, on the southern tip of India in the state of Kerala.

contributing travel editor

It was the British who made India a country with a single language, which of course is English. Before they came, the subcontinent was a hundred small kingdoms, each with its own culture. They still have their individualized cultures and multiple tongues, even though they are now part of India.

Tamil Nadu, southeast on the Indian Ocean, and Kerala, southwest on the Arabian Sea, are the two southernmost states of India. Traders from Cathay and Rome and Europe found the remains of ancient monuments on both of these coasts, and you will find them too.

You will also find a slower, easier life, as you do in the southern areas of our country.

MADRAS WAS found by the British East India Co. in the 17th century, so your tour will find both Britain and ancient India here. The apostle St. Thomas is said to have introduced Christianity to India, to have lived out his life in Madras and died on St. Thomas Mount. There are many interesting highlights in the city, but the most sensational stop on your Madras tour will probably be south amid the seventh-century temples of Mahabalipuram, carved rock temples by the sea.

Indians don't swim in the sea as much as we do, but they have glorious beaches in the south, especially at Kovalam near Trivandrum in Kerala, which may be the most overlooked tourist destination in the country. Kerala has the highest literacy rate in India, and a mixed population that includes Christians, Jews, Arabs, Moslems and Hindus, who have lived together peacefully since the Portuguese explorers were here centuries ago.

Palm-studded beaches, empty except for local fishermen and a few resorts, curve around the Arabian Sea to the Indian Ocean. In the backwater canals, boys pole boatloads of passengers past scenic coconut-palm-fringed islands.

There are images here that most of us don't have in our mental slide show of India. The area around Trivandrum has a gentle south seas look, with cool breezes blowing through palm trees, fine sand beaches and villages set along gentle canals.

JOIN ME as two young boys pole us down a canal in a hand-made wooden boat. Small square-brick and mat houses thatched with palm dot coconut groves on either side. A woman bathes at the shores, her Kaili sarong wrapped around her like a bath towel. Children splash and wave, shouting "ta-ta" in greeting as we pass. Everything is mild, a gentle breeze, the slow drift of the boat toward the sand spit that separates the canal from the open sea. Trees bend seaward.

Under the trees a family laughs and jumps in a circle, playing the games of the family festival of Oman. People are poor here as they are throughout India, and the area is less developed in some ways, but it seems easier to be poor when the land is gentle and productive and the weather mild beside a plentiful sea.

On the shore, as we walk through a village, we watch women pull the fiber of cocnut husk while a boy makes coir rope from it on a spinning wheel. This is the

THE CHILDREN laugh hilariously at us as we stop to talk to them during a local game of football.

This southern area is another facet of the ancient land of India. There are temples and historic sights galore here, as in other areas. There are festivals to delight you. The bone boat on my mantle is a miniature of those used for the snake race during the Festival of Oman.

Classic Indian dancing is a very common form of entertainment throughout India, but here it takes a very famous form, the Kathakali Dancers. Students spend years learning the song and dance of Kathakali. It takes several hours to apply makeup and dress for a single performance. During Hindu festivals, the story of the God Shiva (God of destruction and reproduction) and his wife, Parvati, are danced for several days.

Several hours may be more than enough for most foreign tourists, but it is an artistic highlight of India.

Those who prefer discos and modern nightlife should probably continue by Indian Air Lines up the coast of the Arabian Sea to Bombay, where you can shop in excellent government-sponsored quality-controlled handicraft shops, take a tour boat to the Elephanta Caves and immerse yourself once more in the grand hotels, enjoy the monkeyman who entertains you on the sidewalk and walk among the poor, who are indeed always with us in India.

Images of India. We bring them home as the best souvenirs from a land that has given us brief glimpses into 5,000 years of multiple cultural histories. There is always more to the feast than we can eat, but it is an experience that we will never forget.

For more information, contact your travel agent or the Government of India Tourist Office, either at 30 Rockefeller Plaza, North Mezzanine, New York, N.Y. 10020 or at 230 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Ill. 60601.

Books

Comics, classics may get top price

By Mary Kleimic
staff writer

Those dust-covered boxes in your attic or on your shelves may contain a treasure. They may, that is, if they hold old books, comic books or magazines.

Book collecting can be fun as well as a good investment. A collector may search the shelves in a store or at a sale and discover a publication worth money or at least sentimental value.

"Books are collected because they're considered to be important cultural artifacts," said Tom Nicely, owner of Leaves of Grass Rare Books in Ann Arbor. "(Collectors) look for the first edition because it's the first embodiment of an important work."

"A lot (of collectors) like a certain author," said Pat Nardone, owner of the Village Paperback Exchange, 819 N. Mill in Plymouth. "They like Louis L'Amour, Agatha Christie. Some are collecting for a hobby."

A variety of Bibles and an 1886 gold-leaf copy of "Pilgrim's Progress" will be featured when the Plymouth Branch of the American Association of University Women holds its annual used book sale, Thursday-Saturday, May 2-4, in Westland Center. The center is at Wayne and Warren roads in Westland. "The illustrations and printing (of older books) is interesting," said Lorna Nitz of Plymouth Township, the branch's old and rare books chairman. "Beautiful" is the wrong adjective. The (wording) is not so blunt, but softer."

HOW MUCH can a book bring? Anywhere from 50 cents to $2.5 million, according to Nicely. He said the latter figure is the value of a Gutenberg Bible, one page of which could sell for $7,500.

Some publications are valuable because they are historical, such as the first printing of a Shakespeare play or the first reports of explorers Lewis and Clark, Nicely said.

Manuscripts with miniature paintings can be considered works of art. A recent book fair at Ann Arbor featured a selection of 19th century fore-edge paintings, which are scenes or portraits painted on the edges of the pages of a book.

Books written by Dashiell Hammett, Ernest Hemingway and others in the first half of the century can be worth money if they're in good condition. A dust jacket can be worth more than the book.

SCIENCE FICTION, westerns, mysteries and adventures appeal to the collector, according to Gary Reed, owner and manager of Readers Exchange, 160 Merriman in Westland. "Pulp" works by Jack Vance, a science fiction writer of the 1940s or 1950s, can bring $600 to $800, while more common values are $20 to $80, Reed said.

Works by authors from past centuries or decades aren't the only ones worth money. Stephen King and Janet Daly are among such current writers whose works have value. A first edition of 1978's "The World According to Garp" by John Irving can be worth $25, and Irving's earlier works can be worth more, Nicely said.

"It's always a gamble with a (newer) author," he said.

COMIC BOOKS and magazines also are dear to collectors' hearts. Comic book collecting was a hobby until those publications grew in value.

"They have their own way of making markets," said Phil Jones, manager of Classic Movie and Comic Center, 19047 Middlebelt in Livonia.

Recent television programs and movies relating to a comic book character — such as the Smurfs, Mr. T, "Star Wars" and Conan the Barbarian — have boosted a comic book's market popularity. Golden Key "Star Trek" comics didn't really take off until the "Star Trek" movies appeared.

"With the number one issue, you're taking a long shot on what it's going to be worth," Jones said. "The (first issue) Fantastic Four (from the 1960s) can be more than $1,000. 'X-Men' is the most popular comic today."

MAD MAGAZINE is popular, but only its older issues might really be worth money to their owners.

Early issues of Life magazine could be valuable, because that publication was important to many people. Pre-1910 issues of National Geographic could be worth a lot. Magazines from 1850 such as Harper's Monthly may not be as valuable as expected, but a bound volume of Harper's Weekly dating from the Civil War and carrying illustrations by Winslow Homer can be worth $250, Nicely said.

Most old books don't need special care.

"It depends on what they're made of," Nicely said. "If they're leather-bound, they should be oiled once a year or so with special oils. Other books you keep out of direct sunlight or they will fade. But a book isn't like a dog or a cat. You put it on the shelf."

ANYONE WHO would like to enter the book collecting field seriously should read up on the subject and visit used and rare-book stores. You could collect whatever type of book interests you.

"It depends on what you're after," Nicely advised. "If you're a serious collector looking to build a collection of Hemingway first editions, it's going to take years going to garage sales, and you'll probably not find the rare books."

"(In book stores) you're going to be with people who do this full time for a living. A good collector will be known by book dealers, and when he decides to sell, he will go back to see the dealers or auction house that he dealt with."

"Buy what you want to read," Reed said.

SCIENCE FICTION conventions, where such works are sold, usually aren't publicized, but can be listed in fantasy magazines. The Paperback Forum publication can help the collector, Reed said.

Jones recommends the Overstreet price guide, a publication that comes out every April, for the would-be collector. He also advises hanging on to those comics.

"Keep them in (good) condition, out of damp areas, in a protective box,"

Jones said. "Keep them away from the attic, where there is extreme hot or cold."

"Don't get frustrated. Hold onto them. There are no instant successes."

Accentuate positive in career goals

This is another lesson on art and drawing by special columnist David Messing. He has taught for eight years and operates an art store, Art Store and More, 16340 Middlebelt, Livonia, 522-6311. Messing encourages questions and comments from readers. You may write him at his store or c/o Observer Newspapers, 23352 Farmington Road, Farmington, MI 48024.

By David Messing
special writer

"Hi! my name is David 'n' I'm gonna be a commercial artist." That was my opening line when I met someone for the first time.

"Good for you Sonny," most people would say as they rubbed my brush cut hairdo.

Of course most people didn't know what a commercial artist was and I certainly didn't either. It sure brought me lots of favorable remarks though. I think I got the idea from a career book at the school library.

I can't remember how old I was, but I was at my Grandpa Messing's

artifacts

house and to impress Grandpa I hit him with the old "I'm gonna be a commercial artist" line. Smiling he said, "then let's go talk to my neighbor because he is one." Excited that Grandpa cared, I remember walking a step or two ahead of him and thinking to myself "Wow... I'm gonna meet a for-real commercial artist."

As the neighbor stepped out of his house, Grandpa said, "this is my grandson, David, and he wants to be a commercial artist." The neighbor had a closed-mouth smile, you know the kind that doesn't register in the eyes. Come to think of it, maybe it was a grimace.

IT WAS as if he punched me in the future and still worse, he punched me in my dream. Like a bell without a clapper I stood mute and listened to this disgruntled artist. I mustered a smile, but spoke not a word, for quite some time.

I am not and was not a strong-willed person, but before the wind was completely out of my sail I thought to myself, "that's just him... maybe he ain't that good and maybe I'll be better." What a precious seed is a young person's dream and what a tender reed is the first sight of its fruition.

Just last week my wife and I marveled at how some flowers had already pushed their way out of the soil in response to the fickle spring-time sun. It just so happened that a few days later we were hit with two days of snow flurries.

When I looked at the fragile flowers they were humbled under an inch of snow. Within hours, however, the sun reappeared and melted the snow and the new plants appeared to be unaffected. Now all of the aspirations for the flower's life is in its seed and fragile beginnings of roots.

Perhaps in this light, the flowers, though on a much lower plain of existence, are stronger than ourselves. Because our aspirations tend to germinate or decay with the most recent forecast of promise or doom.

And what a blessing it is to have someone give us an emotional boost in the down times and a realistic rap on the knuckles in the up times. Be it writing or rhyming, drawing or painting, sculpting, dancing, etc., the artist must do his or her art. Just like the flower must obey its genetic blueprint.

THE ARTIST must at some time, somehow, ventilate artistic urges to create or express. So if you are the artist then realize that there will be both ups and downs and positive and negative input in your lifetime of artistic expression. If you are the parent or friend of an artist then you supply the honest praise or constructive criticism that will help the artist do his or her art.

The artist is sometimes a "leaner" looking for support and sometimes a "lifter" raising his fans to view his or her work.

Not long after my visit to Grandpa Messing's, I was right back at the local art store with my dreams burning as bright as ever. I used to love to look at the art materials, touch the brushes, look at the papers, study the colors and peek through the glass showcase and ask, "What's an air-brush?"

Come to think of it I would probably have thrown me out if I was the owner. Not really. Every once in a while some kid will come in my store without a cent to his name and ask a hundred dollars in questions. I have to smile to myself as I wonder how I was watched by the owner of the art store I frequented.

My dream soon changed from a commercial artist to an artist that owned an art store. My dream began to germinate when the economy was not just experiencing snow flurries. No, it was an all out blizzard.

Against all odds and advice of most people, we opened the Art Store & More in 1979, with the support of my wife and mother-in-law. Dreams require tremendous effort and support. So you support the dream with the hope that the dream will, one day, support you. With an increase in volume and an over abundance of students my dream has more than come true. In fact it's overflowing into a new store in the city of Plymouth.

So hold on tight to your dreams whatever they may be. Try to accentuate the positive and eliminate the negative. Learn all you can about your particular art and... oh yes, work... work... work.

Auto art exhibit to open

"Automobilia: The Raymond E. Holland Collection" will open at the Detroit Historical Museum on Wednesday, May 1. The exhibit will continue through Sunday, Sept. 29.

This major new exhibition, which focuses on art and the automobile, is part of Holland's automotive art and toy collection, permanently located in Allentown, Pa. Holland has developed what is perhaps the finest and most representative collection of automotive art in the world. He has loaned more than 65 pieces from it to the museum for this display.

"Automobilia" complements the exhibit, "Made In Detroit: Unique Automobiles," on display at the museum now through the fall. "Made In Detroit" showcases 10 automobiles unique in styling or engineering.

The museum is open to the public 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday. It is at 5401 Woodward, at Kirby, in Detroit's University Cultural Center. Admission is by voluntary donation. Free parking is available. Call 833-1805 for more information.

"The Passing of the Horse" by Stanley Wanlass from "Automobilia," a new exhibit coming to the Detroit Historical Museum.

IN RECENT years, collectors have shown an increased interest in art and art objects depicting the automobile. Recognizing the intrinsic artistic merit of these objects, art museums and galleries have organized important exhibitions on the automobile in art. Further, automotive art has historical significance as evidence of the influence of the automobile on modern life.

The automotive art in "Automobilia" depicts primarily the early pioneering era of the automobile, the period prior to World War I. This is emphasized in Holland's collection. However, both the exhibit and collection contain automotive art reflecting our modern era as well.

Artists represented in "Automobilia" span the 20th century. Graphic artists, including Peter Helck, Walter Appleton Clark, J.C. Leyendecker and Rene Vincent, as well as sculptors Adrien-Pierre Dalpayrat and Paul Moreau-Vauthier, witnessed the pioneering age of the automobile. Sculptors Stanley Wanglass, Larry Brown and Emmanuel Zurini are among the contemporary artists whose work is included in the exhibition.

A number of artistic media is represented in "Automobilia," including bronze and silver-plated sculptures, glazed porcelain pieces, lithographs, posters, and original paintings and sketches. Also featured are desk sets, clocks, trophies and even cigarette cases bearing the image of the automobile. This variety of objects is further evidence of the automobile's impact on 20th century culture.

HOLLAND'S INITIAL interest as a collector was in classic automobiles. He since has become an avid collector of automotive art.

Holland was born in rural Duplin County, N.C. He is president of Holiday Hair Fashions, Inc., a chain of 175 beauty salons, which he founded in 1963. The company's headquarters are located in Allentown. Holland is active in civic and community affairs in the Allentown/Lehigh Valley area.

"The Triumphant Scene" from "Aida" with, foreground, Leona Mitchell as Aida, James Dietsch as Amonasro and Z. Edmund Tolliver as the King.

MOT 'Aida' is exciting

By Mary Jane Doerr
special writer

Michigan Opera Theatre, MOT, returned to the Egyptian temples of Isis and Osiris last week with a grand opera production of Verdi's "Aida."

This time, the company didn't need either magic or the Canadian Opera Company to put together a magnificent spectacle.

It was the enormous sets from the Syracuse Opera, the elaborate costumes from the Dallas Opera and the dramatic voices of the six leads that excited a sell-out crowd of some 4,500 people at Detroit's Masonic Temple last week.

Stage director Anne Ewers is extremely talented. The men's chorus was powerful. And the 61-piece orchestra under conductor Cal Stewart Kellogg came through beautifully despite only one rehearsal.

"AIDA" is a story of love, war, divided loyalties, misguided purposes and stoic honor. In his first act aria, Radames dispels all doubts as to his affections with "Celeste Aida." The Egyptian princess, Amneris, is also in love with him. Hatred, jealousy, trickery and revenge result and Radames and Aida are condemned to death, while Amneris prays for peace.

As Radames, McCracken took his two b flats strong and loud in his heavenly first act aria. I have heard McCracken many times at the Vienna Staatsoper. I knew he was ill before his voice failed in "Forse l'arcano amore" and "O terra, addio." He went into a falsetto voice and a sweet Leona Mitchell, in keeping with her Aida character, covered so beautifully amazingly few people knew what happened.

Speaking with the almost voiceless McCracken backstage after the performance, it was evident a Saturday performance was going to be out. Saturday morning, Italian tenor Augusto Pagliolunga flew in from Seattle to replace McCracken.

UNLIKE McCracken, Leontyne Price has her successor in Leona Mitchell, who made her North American debut in this role last week. Her voice is lyric on top, darker at the bottom. She has control, pitch, volume and a dramatic quality combined with a rich, lyric sound. With a few more performances, she will find the acclaim Price has had with the role.

Bianca Berini gave a polished performance as Amneris. Her changing moods of depression, anger and hatred were evident in both her voice and her acting. James Dietsch made a commanding impression as Amonasro as did Z. Edmund Tolliver as the King of Egypt and Kevin Langan as Ramphis.

Aida was first produced at the Cairo Opera House in 1871. That house burned in 1971, the year MOT was founded. Now 14 years later, with the success of this production, MOT enters the league of the major companies in the U.S.

If the decision is made in May not to bring the Met to Detroit next year, perhaps the $1.4 million Detroit pays to bring the company here for one week would be diverted to the $2.5 million MOT budget and Detroit would have its own opera company of national prominence.

"The Strength of a Nation Lies in the Homes of Its People."

- Abraham Lincoln

These words, attributed to Abraham Lincoln, still confirm a basic American freedom--the right to own, use and transfer property.

The National Association of Realtors has set aside the week of

PRIVATE PROPERTY WEEK.

This weeklong observance reaffirms the rights that come with owning property. For most of us this means a home of our own. And as homeowners we tend to put down roots, to become involved in local government processes and to care about what takes place in our community and neighborhood.

On Thursday, May 2, we will dedicate a CREATIVE LIVING REAL ESTATE SECTION to Private Property Week. Look for this special edition filled with beautiful homes listed by area Realtors.

The right to home ownership is precious and must never be taken for granted. We think it is a right that should be preserved for future generations.
