The Plymouth-Canton Board of Education, after some squirming before a steely-eyed, breath-holding audience, appointed Marilyn Schwinn to fill the vacancy created by Trustee Nancy Quinn, who recently resigned.

Supporting board President Roland Thomas' motion to appoint Schwinn were Trustees David Artley, Les Walker and Dean Swartzwelter. Dissenting were Trustees Elaine Kirchgatter and Dr. E.J. McClendon.

Both Kirchgatter and McClendon lobbied in support of former Trustee Glenn Schroeder, who lost his re-election bid last June with a fourth-place finish behind Swartzwelter.

Schwinn, 40, will serve a 14-month term extending through June 30, 1986. She was to be sworn-in yesterday by

Those who filed to run for school board posts in the upcoming June election were not considered for the position. Schwinn and Schroeder led a field

Others included: John T. Newland of Hanford in Canton; talented-and-gifted student advocate Joan Kotcher of Canton; Richard Sumpter, who will seek election in June; Harvey Failor, an unsuccessful candidate in the 1984 school election; J. Kenneth Dixon, Raymond Roberts, and April Mundo.

An obviously uncomfortable board deadlocked three times and nearly handed the appointment decision over to the Wayne County Intermediate School District before naming Schwinn.

WHAT RESEMBLED dead-end runs down blind alleys began with Swartzwelter's nomination of Schwinn.

Before a vote was taken, McClendon amended the motion to keep in contention the names of nominees left in limbo by virtue of ties. The motion passed 4-1-1 with Artley abstaining and Swartzwelter dissenting.

McClendon then made a motion, supported by Kirchgatter, to appoint Schroeder. That motion was stalemated in a 3-3 tie, with Thomas joining Kirchgatter and McClendon in voting

Schwinn also died in a 3-3 tie that split the board along the same lines.

Walker, seconded by Swartzwelter, then nominated Kotcher, and a third identical deadlock resulted.

Thomas then called for a 10-minute recess and Artley made a motion to table the appointment.

Swartzwelter questioned what there was "that we can't say publicly" and Artley's motion died for lack of sup-

After some discussion on the advisability of having the intermediate school district make the appointment and the recent high turnover among board members. Thomas turned the chairmanship over to Vice President Artley and nominated Schwinn. The motion was seconded by Walker and passed, 4-

"I certainly wanted the seat, but I felt calm, and that whichever one was on the board would do the best," said Schwinn.

Swartzwelter's motion to appoint Schroeder, and respect for what he did on the board before.

"I was hopeful, but I don't know people on the board well, and I didn't know what their expectations were of board members," she said.

Schwinn has been an active member and officer in the building parent groups and Food Services Advisory Committee, has represented Isbister Elementary and Pioneer Middle on the Plymouth-Canton Community Council, has worked on the Special Services 12 by 12 Committee, helped implement and maintain Isbister's computer program, and worked as a teacher assistant and office mother helper.

A native of Dayton, where she graduated from Miami Valley Hospital nursing college, Schwinn has lived in Plymouth Township for nine years. She lived in Canton for two years prior to that.

Schwinn said she decided to try for the post because her experience has put her in a position "to make a contribution. I think one of the areas in which from district schools to raise and re-I'll be able to add to the board will be solve various issues and concerns.

communication with the taxpayer and students in this district.

"Obviously, by my work in the schools, I am with teachers, students and parents. Hopefully I can add to the information the board is receiving from the grassroots level, and the other way around, too."

Added Schwinn: "I really have no burning issues that I see need to be approached in particular. Obviously I still am getting comfortable with the amount of information I need to consume to get caught up. But we always need to review and move forward in new directions. Anything that stands still is a waste.'

Schwinn, who says she's willing to devote whatever time is necessary to fulfill her school board duties, is active currently with the Health Education Advisory Committee, a group of students, educators, parents and community members who review materials presently used in the district with regard to reproductive health education.

As a member of the Plymouth-Canton Community Council, Schwinn meets monthly with representatives

An outstanding athlete from the Plymouth-Canton area was seriously injured Saturday when the car he was driving struck a C&O Railroad car.

David Knapp, 17, of Canton, a senior at Plymouth Canton High School, suffered compound fractures between the elbow and shoulder, fractures in the left leg between the knee and ankle, a compound fracture of the right ankle, and facial cuts.

He was taken to St. Mary Hospital Livonia, then transferred to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Superior Township where he was listed in fair condition Wednesday. According to Plymouth Police, Knapp, who was driving a car owned by Ernest Krumm, was traveling eastbound on Five Mile Road near Ridge Road when he hit the railroad car. The train was moving diagonally, from northwest to southeast.

The car Knapp was driving struck the 65th railroad car on the 106-car train, which was hauling coal, at 11:50 p.m. Saturday.

The train continued traveling, according to police, until a railroad employee in the caboose saw the smashed vehicle. The train traveled for about one mile after the collision.

Knapp was cut out of the passenger car, which was destroyed.

THE RAILROAD car, which weighed about 13,000 pounds, sustained little damage. A side stirrup was creased, with damage estimated at $85. Police are performing tests on Knapp's blood samples to determine if alcohol was involved in the accident. The railroad crossing signals appeared to be working properly, according to the police report.

Police found no skid marks at the accident scene. Police believe the passenger car was traveling at least as fast as ago."

National and local skaters to perform May 17-19

ATIONAL competitors and local skaters will be appearing in "Ice Spectacular 85," the City of Plymouth's annual ice show Friday through Sunday, May 17-19 in the Plymouth Cultural Center.

Showtimes will be 7:30 p.m. Friday, May 17; 1:30 and 7:30 p.m. Saturday; and 3 p.m. Sunday in the Cultural Center, 525 Farmer at Theodore.

Tickets at $3 for adults and $1.50 for senior citizens and children younger than 12 are available at the Cultural Center or at Sunshine Honda on Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth Township.

Appearing will be two nationally known competitive pair skaters, Maria Lako and Mike Blicharski and Deveny Deck and Luke Hohman.

The show also will feature the Plymouth Recreation Department basic skills students in a variety of musical numbers.

LAKO, 17, AND Blicharski, 23, have been skating together for 11/2 years and are training four to five hours a day at the Ice Box in Brownstown.

In 1984, their first year of skating together, they placed first in midwesterns and ninth at the nationals. The highlight of 1984 was a third-place finish in the international competition at Prague, Czechoslovakia. So far this year the pair has placed seventh in the nationals - this time in the senior pairs divi-

The look of township in 20 years

staff writer

What will Plymouth Township look like 20 years from now?

If you take the word of Supervisor Maurice Breen for it, the township will be a thriving and very modern community with 40,000 residents, plenty of business places, additional light industry and plenty of residential property with attractive homes.

The question often has been asked, and each supervisor in turn envisions bright prospects. But none of them were as optimistic as Breen.

"There is no reason why we shouldn't

The one thing he didn't visualize is heavy industry. And for a good reason. 'We are not zoned for heavy indus-

Lucas: from back of room to center stage

By Kathy Parrish staff writer

Snubbed by party leaders at the 1984 Democratic State Convention, Wayne County Executive watched from the back of a Cobo Hall ballroom.

Wednesday in Westin Hotel's Riverfront Ballroom, Lucas stood on center stage as leading Republicans welcomed him into the GOP.

Supporters cheered as the lifelong Democrat and his wife Evelyn rejected the Democratic party and announced that they had become Republicans.

'We do so because we believe that in Michigan and in our nation the Republican Party clearly represents the values for which we stand," explained Lucas, flanked by his children and grand-

On hand for the Detroit ceremony were a phalanx of GOP party leaders including U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, state Senate majority leader John Engler, Oakland County Executive Daniel Murphy, National Republican Committeewoman Ronna Romney, and 1982 GOP gubernatorial candidate Richard Headlee. Vice President George Bush encouraged Lucas Tuesday during his

Democratic party "bosses."

He was criticized by active Democrats for not making enough appointments from their ranks, for closing Wayne County General Hospital, and relying heavily on Dennis Nystrom, an Oakland County attorney who has been Lucas' chief of staff. Nystrom, long active in Republican politics, attended both the Detroit and Grand Rapids press conferences.

DEMOCRATS ALSO objected to the Wayne County Executive appearing at an event honoring President Ronald Reagan.

Lucas acknowleged that Democrats such as Detroit Mayor Coleman Young and Michigan Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths "believe I'm making a personal mis-

Republican leaders are elated that their ranks were joined by Wayne County Executive William Lucas, who won four elections as a Democrat.

But will Republicans voters let Lucas, who ceremoniously joined the GOP Wednesday, have their 1986 gubernatorial nomination? Many politicos in both parties doubt

"I welcome him into the party," said partnership with Lucas. "If anyone, especially an officeholder, wants to join, I'm there to greet him and shake his hand.

But Murphy's tone of voice changed when he was asked about Lucas for Michigan Democrats "snubbed" Lucas governor. "I guess I'll have something by neither making him a platform to say about that," said Murphy, who is eyeing the governorship himself.

"THEY'RE SHOWCASING him," scoffed James Doyon, a veteran Democratic county commissioner from Madison Heights and Troy. "They know he can't win, so they'll give him the gubernatorial nomination. It's a tactic to say about the Lucas switch: cripple rather than win . . . I'm not sure the good ol' boys in Muskegon are gonna go for him." Even before Lucas' long-anticipated announcement, the Oakland County Republican 300 Club announced Lucas Tuesday in the Pontiac Silverdome's Main Event banquet room. Tickets at him credit for." $10 for members and $15 for non-mem-

WAYNE COUNTY Clerk James Killeen, another Democratic veteran, saw Lucas as "getting out from under the problems" that have yet to surface. "He's gotta get out of here," Killeen said. While Lucas boasts of balancing the county budget in his two-plus years in office, Killeen said, "He owes Detroit $13 million for use of DeHoCo. He ignores that - it's not in his budget. Oakland County Executive Daniel T. "He owes money to the employees Murphy, who has developed a working who won in court on COLA (cost of living allowances which Lucas cut). There are contract negotiations at Probate Court. His claim of a balanced budget believes in the hazards of smoking and is doing something about it.

Plymouth man pushes for clean indoor air act

The 39-year-old president of the American Lung Association of Michigan is using his talents and knowledge to effect a change in the quality of air non-smokers are forced to breathe.

Pellerito, also a member of the Uni-

THE CLEAN INDOOR Acts of 1985 (co-sponsored by Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, and Rep. Justine Barnes, D-Westland) would provide for smokefree areas in public places such as schools, stores, offices and other places of work.

By utilizing his contacts with public officials, citizen advisory boards, health agencies and the media, Pellerito is attempting to raise the level of public consciousness on the issue.

"It is crucial to understand that the issue here is one of serious indoor air pollution and not whether people should or can smoke," Pellerito said recently at an address in Traverse City.

"Just as other serious air pollution problems must be controlled by regulations, we cannot rely on individual choice or courtesy alone to contain in-door air pollution," he said in support of the proposed legislation.

JUST AS seriously as the five-year Plymouth resident takes the smoking issue, he takes his efforts to enact the

"The tobacco industry lobby is very powerful," said Pellerito, a former newspaper and television reporter. His poise and articulation reflect his past

The tobacco lobby has held this act back for years," he said, noting that only three other states have enacted such laws - Oregeon, Connecticut and

If it weren't for the tobacco lobby, Pellerito said his fight wouldn't be as hard. He points to the urea-formaldahyde scare a few years back.

"Do you know how many people died from urea-formaldahyde? Three people," he said holding three fingers out.

"Do you know why it was taken off the market? Because the public perceived it as a significant health hazard, and the industry didn't have a tremendous lobby, a tremendous public relations machine to keep it on the market," he said.

"Now look at the tobacco lobby. Even today it doesn't link smoking to

TO COMBAT the industry's efforts, Pellerito is taking his message to the Laws which require non-smoking areas in restaurants are much like what he is after - restricted areas for smoking. He also points to laws which prohibit smoking in elevators and food

"They made those laws because there was evidence that smoking was not conducive to those areas, and the public understood and accepted that,"

Opponents of the act claim it will ruin the industry, says Pellerito. He doesn't agree with that.

scare tactics when there is no rational argument and scare tactics are not working anymore. "It's like the seat belt law in some respects - it is designed to save lives and is taking some time to get passed.

PELLERITO POINTS to studies that show the harm of second-hand

According to him, the federal Enviromental Protection Agency (EPA) recently said if outside air standards were enforced in indoor work settings, almost all would fail.

That's incredible when you consider that we spend 90 percent of our lives indoors," he said.

"It's not so much that the air outside is that great, it's just that an office is much more confined."

Pellerito also points to a Michigan Department of Labor study which found that over the life of an employee's time at a company, $36,000 more is spent on sick time and increased health care costs for a smoker.

The higher costs also were true for non-smokers working in smoke-filled

"That's a lot of money for a company. It doesn't say very much for management's understanding of the problem and it doesn't say very much for the public's understanding of the problem," he said.

Pointing to another EPA figure, Pel-

"That's a scare tactic, and they use lerito said between "500 and 5,000 people will die next year because of second-hand smoke."

His facts and figures seem endless. The increased amount of studies and data is the result of new approaches to health, according to him.

"Health agencies such as our's are becoming more interested in how to prevent illness than to treat it. Primarily we were interested in the past in taking care of people after the fact," he said.

SO, ARMED with the studies and facts, Pellerito marches across the state to build support for the clean air

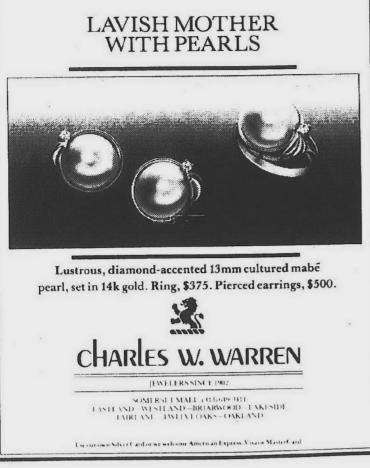

He even has planned a trip to Los Angeles to speak on the subject, to generate national support.

"The clean air act would not be hard to enforce - people will enforce it and police themselves just as they do already in elevators, food stores and restaurants.

"We're bringing this to the public to make them understand, to make them care about their fellow people," he

"We have received literally hundreds of letters of support for our work on this bill. We think it will pass, it might not happen until next year but it's going to pass," he said.

Grabbing another study, this one done by the U-M Institute for Social Research, Pellerito says there is public support for such a measure.

To the editor:

This letter is to thank the community for support of the Plymouth-Canton Substance Abuse Intervention Commit-

Our committee now has had two telethons, a bowl-a-thon, and a number of other fund-raising activities.

Thanks to the support of the community, more than $28,000 thus far has been raised. This money will be used for a substance abuse intervention program which will begin with a workshop for up to 100 community members this Additional fund-raising activities upcoming will include a softball tournament which will take place on June 1-2 at the new Canton softball center.

We are grateful to those who have expressed an interest in the efforts of the committee and those who have contributed materially to the success of our fund-raising activities.

Thanks to you, we will be abel to deal more effectively with substance abuse by our community's youth.

Computer team takes 3rd place

A team from Plymouth Salem High recently finished third in a compter programming competition at Detroit College of Business in Dearborn.

The Salem team of Tushar Mody, Walter Kovaleski, and Malay Mody finished third in the Comp-u-tition sponsored by Detroit College of Business. Some 30 students representing 10 high schools participated.

The teams were given two hours to solve five problems using their own interactive computer or microcomputer

The students were competing for scholarships and cash prizes. The prize for third place was a $1,000 scholarship and $50 per team member. The scholarship will be granted to any graduate of Salem who wishes to study data processing at Detroit College of Business beginning with the 1985-86 school year. If there is more than one applicant, the high shoool will select the winner or elect to divide the scholarship.

More than 90 Pioneer Middle School students recently put themselves into the world of commercial art as they worked on a unit dealing with the importance of commercial art to the business community. Students selected a business or organization in the Plymouth-Canton area which uses advertisements. The students contacted and interviewed their "client" business and designed an advertising poster for the business. The posters were judged by members of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce: Kim Anderson from Plymouth Glass, Michael Ball from Pathfinders, Fred Hill from me and mr jones, and Michelle Wilson from the Crier.

THE WINNER was ninth-grader Arlene DeChavez who had Heide's Flowers as her "client." DeChavez used a black background with red roses and gold lettering to attractively display Heide's. She commented that, "with so many good advertisements, I was really surprised to win." She received roses from Heide's as a gift of congratula-

Her winning should not have come as a surprise, however, as the entire De-Chavez family displays artistic talent, with two older brothers having received recognition in the community as artists. When asked about her future, she said she would probably go into the medical field and be a doctor.

OTHER WINNERS and their clients. were: Second place - Michelle Viele, Station 885; Marc Castro, Pets' Pets; and Malie Shirmohammad, Masons. Third-place winners were: Sandor Koteles, Pagoda Inn; Heidi Plichta, Ann Arbor Road House; Mile Lustig, Fitness Things Inc.; Renee Rice, Solid Gold; and Kevin Heddin, Jerry's Bicycle.

The theme for the conference was "Wizards of Words." One student was chosen from each of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools' classrooms by the classroom teacher. Students were representative of their class.

Following a welcome from Dorothy in a gymnasium decorated to become the Emerald City of Oz, the young authors took part in such sessions as "Magic Popcorn Pictures," "Computer Writing," "Sun Prints," "Magic" and hearing stories told by guest professional storyteller, Pamela Vander Ploeg.

The young authors also had time to review the works of other authors which were on display throughout the Tanger building. The building itself was transformed into a variety of kingdoms, one for each school, with each room decorated to represent a scene from the "Wizard of Oz."

HEAD START is a federally-funded program for 3- and 4-year-olds who meet income criteria. Children with special needs are eligible.

Four-year-old children will attend half-day classes four days a week and parents will attend parent education

Special features will include free breakfast, lunch and field trips. Learning activities will be featured for parents as well as for children.

Three-year-olds and their families will be part of a home-visit program designed for starting 3-year-old learning skills. Parenting skills will be emphasized.

To be eligible for Head Start the child must live in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, be ages 3 or 4 be-

Head Start and the PLUS preschool fore Dec. 1, 1985, or qualify for a handicapped category.

> SPONSORED BY the Plymouth-Canton school district and a government grant (Chapter I), the PLUS program is offered free to children living in the attendance areas of Field, Gallimore, Farand, and Tanger elementaries.

Children must be age 4 on or before Dec. 1, 1985. Classes are offered for parents and children from September

The children's program emphasizes sound child develoment principles and readiness skills. Hands-on computer experiences are part of the children's curriculum. Nutrition and science also are featured.

Pre- and post-testing sessions and parent conferences are held. Joint planning and follow through is done with attendance area kindergartens. The program also can be an alternative for 5-year-olds who need another year of prekindergarten experience. Parents will participate in sessions on nutrition, child management, health, safety, and family living. Parents make instructional tools they can use at home. Joint field trips are planned.

Plenty of places to stop when hungry

By W.W. Edgar staff writer

found in Plymouth for and Burger King at Hagthe business adage that gerty, the Elks Lodge, competition is the life of Friendly's at the inter-

In a recent check there were 22 places along the Main Street corridor (including Old Village) where you can satisfy your appetite either with a light lunch or a full meal. And along Ann Arbor Road there are 26 places from I-275 to just west of Sheldon.

One of the best examples is the area surrounding Main Street and the railroad tracks. There you'll find within a stone's throw Plymouth Landing, Bode's, the Grainery, and the Red Apple. And all are advertising for help, suggesting that business must be up to expectations.

As you move up Starkweather you will see Mike McNamara's fish market where you can pick your choice of fish and have it prepared right there. And nearby is the Old Village Sausage shop, Station 885, and Shelley's Chicken Manor. Beyond the Red Apple on Main is the Taco Plaza. Moving along Main Street you will come to the former Omega, now Little Mary's, the Dairy King, and up Fralick is the Sidestreet Pub. Then up Penniman Avenue you'll find the Penniman Deli, Emma's, and the bake shop where cake by the slice is sold.

Another jam is at the Mayflower Hotel and Round Table Club where there are four eating sections. Just a bit west on Ann Arbor Trail is the Cozy Cafe, and on Forest is Cloverdale's and the Butterfly Bistro. Across Ann Arbor Trail from the hotel is the Box Bar where luncheon is served, and the May-Meeting House flower with its Sunday Brunch.

Further south is Taco Bell, The Clock and Daly's at Main and Ann Arbor Road. In the midst of things is the Wine and Cheese Barn on Forest and at the eastern extreme on Plymouth Road is Hardees and the Hillside Inn, one of the oldest places in Michigan.

Things are just as crowded and competition is at a peak on Ann Arbor Road where you find all sorts of interests for those who want to satisfy a hunger for food.

Elementary students need drug education

It's doubtful the community effort to combat substance abuse among young people has gone unnoticed by many area residents.

14A(P)

Thanks to many dedicated persons, awareness of a growing problem has been heightened. More important, $28,000 toward a needed $33,750 has been raised to award 100 scholarships to an upcoming drug abuse seminar.

At Monday's school board workshop, the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education heard from district substance abuse steering committee chairman Nic Cooper and his colleagues about the progress that's been made so far. It seems hard work in the areas of enforcement, intervention and education is paying off. Chemically dependent kids are getting better, and the district is gaining recognition for its work

But an important fact is unfolding. Drug education at the elementary level, now in its embryonic stages in this district, is crucial to the stemming of drug abuse. Trustees were told that a predommant number of students now afflicted by chemically based disease began using drugs in elementary school. Stu Rahen, elementary substance abuse subcommittee chairman, quotes a recent study suggesting that 30 percent of the country's fourth graders have sensed peer pressure to try

Community leaders and educators also recognize that many students come from homes in which alcohol and drugs are liberally used by their parents.

During the past two to three years, many elementary teachers have received substance abuse training. Thirty will participate in this summer's substance abuse seminar. Elementary students in some classes have been taught on a limited basis about the effects of drug use. Some are learning how to make unpopular decisions, to say no, and to deal with unpleasant feelings and peer pressure. Second graders have benefited from a nine-week "character development" program that

THESE EFFORTS are commendable. But they need to be expanded and standardized as essential parts of the elementary school curriculum. If young people are equipped early enough with the skills and knowledge they need, they'll be better able to shun drugs and deal with the social consequences.

The conviction is shared by a growing number of people. Judges James Garber and John Mac-Donald of the 35th District Court - who observe that "a substantial number" of those arrested for drunk driving are teenagers - say peer pressure can be a useful Garber proposes that recovering middle or high school-age substance abusers be invited to speak to grade school students about their experiences.

"Kids have a tendency to look up to older kids, whereas they don't necessarily look up to 50-year-olds," he said. "I think you can start a positive peer group circumstance with kids. You can sometimes make great inroads with someone fairly close in age who's been there and has had the trouble. I think it would work for elementary students," said Garber, who also emphasizes students' need for accurate information about the dangers of drugs.

Another community leader who works with young people says, "Not many kids smoke anymore, due to the publicity given to the perils of smoking.

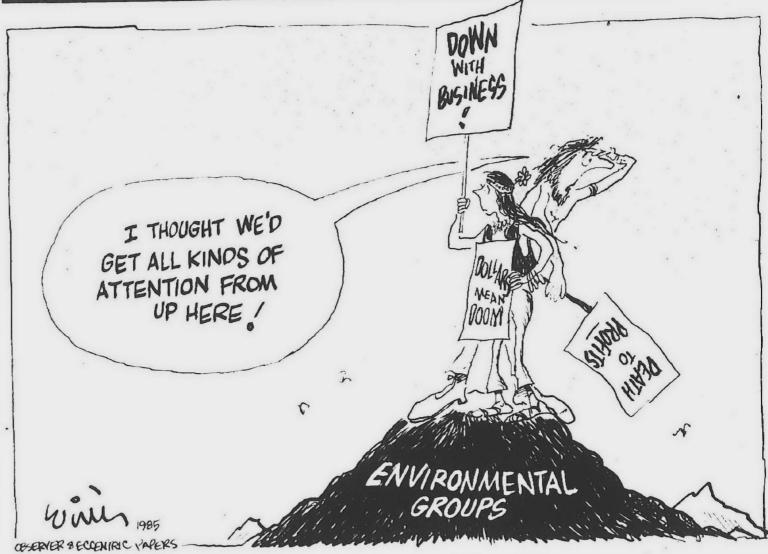

'If you got these kids from kindergarten on and told them about the pitfalls of drugs, I think you could educate them to the point where they wouldn't use them. By the time they reach eighth and ninth grade, it's too late.

Denial by parents and teachers has acted as a roadblock, he adds.

'Anyone who says kids aren't using drugs in grade schools don't know what's going on.

Elementary-level drug education is reaping praise from parents in at least one neighboring district. "It's about time," says one mother. "The schools should have been getting this information to elementary students a long time ago. We can't protect our children from what is out there, but we can prepare ourselves and them to face the 'big bad world' with knowledge and courage.

Goodbye to Earth Day

AN ANNIVERSARY slipped by recently that had nothing to do with World War

Remember Earth Day - April 24? It was spawned in the early 1970s, and everyone had environmental programs.

I covered the first one at the University of Michigan. It was in February, but after that, everyone observed Earth Day on Arthur Godfrey spoke, called himself an "old foof" and apologized for promoting cigarettes all those years. I applauded his change of heart, but most of the students

WHAT BROUGHT the late Earth Day to mind was hearing Marty Fluharty speak at the Moderate Republican Conference in Bay City.

Fluharty, hails from Isabella County, and is a member of the Michigan Natural Resources Commission. She was addressing the likes of Reps. Judith Miller of Birmingham, David Enigman of West Bloomfield, Lyn Bankes of Livonia and other spiritual heirs of Teddy Roosevelt.

"It's difficult to be a strong environmentalist and a loyal Republican," Fluharty said. "There was a chasm between the environmentalists and (former Interior Secretary James) Watt.

"Conservation has been a Republican issue since Teddy Roosevelt," she went on. "I want to end this estrangement."

INDEED THERE is an estrangement between post-Milliken Republicanism and the environmental movement.

Tim

Richard

Fluharty, a six-year member of the Sierra Club board, noted that Sierra members, though 45 percent Republican, rated Democratic congressional candidates consistently higher than Republi-

Closer to home, the supposedly nonpartisan Eastern Michigan Environmental Action Council (EMEAC) issued a rating of legislators in a recent year which gave all its good marks to Democrats and most of its bad marks to Republicans. You'd expect ratings like that from the UAW.

How to account for this one-party environmental movement?

THE OLD turn-of-the-century conservation movement headed by Teddy Roosevelt and Gifford Pinchot was aimed at saving land and natural wonders in the public domain, for all of us to enjoy.

The environmental movement of the 1970s was different. It looked to preserving air, land and water across the nation, in big cities as well as the hinterlands. It also embraced energy conservation.

There is another difference, which I noticed half-way through the first Earth Day at U-M 15 years ago. The persons getting the most uproarious applause were the ones who attacked corporations.

In other words, the environmental movement drew a lot of political types who hate big business. They used environmentalism to bludgeon industry and commerce from yet another vantage point.

WHETHER CONSCIOUSLY or instinctively, Republicans tended to be cool to environmentalism. And when some nationally known environmentalists turned out to be unilateral disarmament and anti-nuclear zealots, too, that settled the matter.

In Michigan, after half-a-decade of double-digit unemployment, politicians are falling over each other to give redcarpet treatment to corporations. Even liberal Democrats like Gov. Jim Blanchard avoid the environmental movement. Although Blanchard may address an issue like toxic wastes, he won't swallow the environmental movement hook, line and I'll miss Earth Day. If it hadn't been taken over by the anti-business left, it could have offered America quite a bit.

Smoking in public is an irritating issue

COMPARE the arguments on the dangers of smoking vs. the dangers of alcohol, and you have a reason why a proposed statewide ban on smoking in public buildings stands a good chance of becoming law this time around.

If you have the alcohol habit, you can drink to your heart's content, and I'm not going to get drunk.

But if you happen to prefer smoking, and I happen to be nearby, I must either breathe the contaminants generated by your habit, or move.

That's not to say that alcohol poses no social threats, as drunk-driving statistics quickly will show

It just says that if you're bent on threatening your own health, OK. Just don't threaten mine in the process.

TWO SUBURBAN legislators, Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, and Rep. Justine Barns, D-Westland, have introduced bills (HB 4500 and SB 196) to ban smoking in public places.

A public place is defined as "an enclosed, indoor area used by the general public or serving as a place of work or a meeting place for a public body, including a retail store, office, commercial establishment, public educational facility, health facility, auditorium, arena, meeting room, or public conveyance."

The bills contain exceptions aimed at protecting the rights of smokers. For instance, they would exclude a private enclosed office or room occupied by a Faxon tried twice previously - in 1983 and 1984 - to get such bills through the legislature, but they died in committee. His prospects look better this time.

ONE REASON is the formation of a group called People Against Tobacco Smoke and headed by Jane Conrad of Troy. She suffers from a vascular prob-

Says Conrad, "They (smokers) have a right to smoke as long as they don't hurt anyone else. As soon as they start imposing their addiction . . . on other people, they don't have a right.

Conrad insists the non-smoker is an innocent victim of the smoker, arguing that 'second-hand" smoke is much more dangerous that the original. Not many people, even smokers, will dispute her arguments. A recent national survey done for the American Lung Association by the Gallup organization showed that a majority, including smokers and non-smokers, believed that smokers should refrain from lighting up in the presence of nonsmokers. Some 82 percent of non-smokers and 55 percent of smokers felt that way.

First of its kind in the United States by a voluntary health organization, the poll also showed a majority in favor of designated smoking areas in public places.

UNDER CURRENT state law, it's legal to smoke in public buildings, but nonsmoking areas may be designated. The Faxon-Barns bills would reverse that: Smoking would be banned, but smoking areas could be designated.

Non-smoker protection groups say 95 percent of the air we breathe is indoor air. They argue that indoor pollution levels from tobacco far exceed outdoor air quality standards.

The Faxon-Barns bills provide for $25 fines for violations and leave enforcement to state and local health departments.

It's also possible, some say, that the mere existence of a law will lead to more responsible smoking in the same way that seat-belt laws has enhanced their use.

Maybe so. The Faxon-Barns bills have some kinks that need ironing out, but we wouldn't bet against their chances.

SO, THE two are officially joined: Bill Lucas and the Republican party. The honeymoon begins. The troubles ahead are not yet bothersome.

It is almost the American dream: a black from Harlem who hopes to get ahead handles the challenges of life with sincerity, self-assurance, perseverance, determination and drive. Policeman, lawyer, FBI agent, sheriff, county executive.

Just ahead lies another crown, the governorship. Another milestone in a life of public achievement, a beacon to blacks everywhere. If it all comes true, it should make a great movie.

WILL IT all come true? Ah, there's the rub. There is much ground until August 1986 when Republican voters choose their candidate for governor and between now and November 1986 when Michigan voters choose their governor.

Lucas has not yet announced that he will run for the office, but the announcement will only be the second shoe dropping. The county executive at this point appears to be a long shot, however, no matter how sleek a model he has so far

Lucas certainly does exude an aura of success. He is intelligent, articulate and polished. He appears to have the kind of charisma that can sway voters. Republican leaders have accepted him almost wholeheartedly. And no wonder when you survey the field of candidates who believe they would be governor material.

Wisler

LUCAS PROBABLY will be able to count on strong support from black voters, even as a Republican, even if Republicanism generally is anathema to blacks. After all, when was the last time blacks had an opportunity to vote for one of their own race for the office of governor or senator? Not in this lifetime.

Some experts think that the black vote could make the difference between winning and losing a gubernatorial election. And Lucas could capture the votes of people disenchanted with Democrats gener-

But the roadblocks are many and include Gov. James Blanchard's incumbency and rising popularity, the possible tendency of Republican voters to question the party credentials of a Bill-come-lately, possible reluctance by outstate voters to accept a born-again Republican who is a former Democrat from Detroit, and possible white distrust of a black candi-

Lucas also has to withstand scrutiny of his record in office as executive and sheriff. Over the years, he has made some questionable decisions which will certainly be explored in any political campaign.

EVER SINCE he was elected county executive in November 1982, Democratic leaders have been complaining that Lucas' chief political ally, attorney Dennis Nystrom, was leading Lucas into Republican ranks. The leaders, if anything, helped by publicly snubbing Lucas and privately trying to squelch his authority and influ-

Was he led into the GOP by Nystrom, pushed by the Democrats, induced by a change of thinking about political parties, or seduced by national Republican figures looking for a black Pied Piper who could lead other blacks into Republicanism? Probably all these and more.

As a Democrat, Lucas had little to look forward to in terms of higher office. Incumbent Democrats - Gov. Blanchard and U.S. Senators Donald Riegle and Carl Levin - hold all the higher elective offices in Michigan. He simply could not run as a Democrat because he could not get the party nomination.

And, can you blame him for trying to seek the higher office? Even if he is, as some detractors claim, a man whose personal ambition knows no limits, you must consider that he could feel he has a sense of destiny. He could, after all, become the first black governor in the United States since the Reconstruction days following the Civil War. He could become a model to his race and a historical figure who typifies the American dream. You can't ask for a better movie than

Spending frozen in House bill

Calling it a "blueprint for balance," U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, today unveiled a new House version of the federal budget that essentially freezes spending at fiscal 1985 levels.

"It's extremely good for the Northeast and Midwest. It has a little compassion built into it," said the fifth-term congressman who is a member of the House Appropriations Committee.

At a Washington news conference, Pursell presented the budget, the work of the "Group of 92" - congressmen Pursell described as some conservatives, mostly moderates." Pursell chaired the group's 15-member budget task

In the first year, the Group of 92's budget would pare $50.9 billion from the projected $220 billion federal deficit in President Reagan's

In the second and third years, deficits would be cut $81 billion and $132 billion, respectively, he said.

"The Senate budget is a shambles," Pursell said. "This is the first big budget version in print. We'll present it to the White House Mon-

congressional roll call

Area reps opposed Bitburg visit

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes April 25 through May 1.

BITBURG - By a vote of 390 for and 26 against, the House passed a nonbinding resolution (H Con Res 130) urging President Reagan to cancel his May 5 visit to the German military graveyard at Bitburg where Nazi SS troopers are buried.

Supporter Wyche Fowler, D-Ga., said: "As a human being, I am appalled that (Reagan) is participating in ceremonies commemorating the graves of those who implemented the holocaust, one of the darkest events in the history of humanity."

Opponent Thomas Hartnett, R-S.C., said "the patriotism of President Reagan cannot be questioned," and added that "those horrible men who lie in Bitburg Cemetery have already faced a judgment far more critical and far more important than memebers of this House of Representatives can pass on them."

Members voting yes wanted Reagan to cancel the cemetery visit.

Voting yes: Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods, William Ford, D-Taylor, Sander Levin, D-Southfield, William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

Democrats now occupy 253 House seats and Republicans 182.

In a recount of last November's election results that was supervised by the Democrat-controlled House, McCloskey was declared the victor by four votes over Republican Richard D.

This came after a state recount had resulted in Indiana's Republican secrectary of state certifying McIntyre the winner by some 400 votes.

Each party challenged the integrity of the other's recount.

The vote allows increase averaging nearly 4.2 percent during the next three fiscal years. By contrast, Reagan wants to cap increases at 2.1 percent in fiscal 1986, 2.3 percent in 1987, and 2.1 percent in 1988, saving some $22.7 bil-

That one word certainly describes Wanda Burlett, a small bus operator out of the Taylor terminal. In fact, during her solid four years of service at SEMTA, being dependable has been just part of the job.

And we don't just mean getting to work on time and doing a good job. Wanda certainly does that. But just as important to her is knowing her passengers can count on her in special situations. Especially her senior passengers. "I know my older passengers," says Wanda. "And sometimes they can get a little lost or sometimes be a little late. They know I'm not leaving until they get on my bus."

Dependable. That's Wanda Burlett. But she also brings other outstanding qualities to the job — just like all SEMTA people who make SEMTA the bus system that works. They're simply doing their best to be the best. As for Wanda, it just means doing it very dependably.

(Today's story is the next chapter in the continuing saga of a Detroiter's journey through the 18th Century Readers are urged to read an earlier story, "Detroiters join trip to Montreal," in the April 18 Observer It will make the present chapter more meaningful. For more history of our area read Helen Gilbert's book, Tonquish Tales, which is available at local book stores and at the library.)

Nightfall can bring disaster to the voyageurs. They must get off the waterway before dark. There are no compasses, no sextants, no radar on board these frail, birch-bark canoes.

Our safety rests with Captain Beaubien and his experienced crew. We pray for a calm sea and a clear sight of the sun Here we are several hundred miles from our Detroit home, and after four days of hard paddling we are only about halfway to our journey's end at Montreal.

There has been some heavy weather and headwinds which sometimes forced us to pull near the shore. This slowed the voyageurs down because of the danger of rocks.

UNDER THE aegis of our good friend and cousin Antoine Beaubien, I have been appointed clerk of the voyage - a kind of quartermaster, responsible for the inventory and accounts.

I also am supposed to keep track of young Pierre Beaubien. His is a most active teenager and real challenge to my sense of proportion. There are four half-bred wives of voyageurs, and the other two are a mother and daughter returning to Quebec after spending the winter with relatives in d'Etroit.

The voyageurs seem to appreciate women on board. They are most gallant in their kind treatment of us. Some mornings they decorate with flowers our breakfast table which is a small portable board placed on a rock or a cut log. But these gallantries do not overcome my distaste for the monotonous, tasteless food.

Time moves on, day after day, and we become accustomed to the cramped condition and the little seat in the boat. We enjoy the scenery and the rhythmic chants of the oarsmen. The swish of the water and the beauty of the boat's wake makes us sleepy at times, but we make ourselves stay awake.

We have a duty to watch for rocks on the starboard. Robert Navarre, the scrivener and Royal Notary at d'Etroit, asked us to keep notes on the voyage and send them back on the return trip. We are one of three literates on board; the other two are Captain Beaubien and the elderly lady going to Quebec. My mission on this trip is to investigate the convent school at Montreal and try to persuade them to send a teacher to us in d'Etroit. We desperately need good schools in d'Etroit.

CAPTAIN BEAUBIEN'S mission is quite different from our's.

The government is determined to hold the Ohio Valley at all costs. We are faced with heavy inroads of the English. They have sent their agents other women on this voyage. Two are wily traders like George Crogham and British commissioners from Virginia, Maryland, and Pennsylvania met the Iroquois as early as 1744 and have been meeting them at regular intervals since. Our spies tells us that the French cause is being undermined by a group of Virginians who call themselves "The Ohio Company." But where are we going to get the money for our campaign against the British? Not from Paris. Since the old king, le grand Monarque Louis XIV, died in 1715 everything has gone from bad to worse.

As you probably know, Louis XIV was succeeded by his great-grandson, a 5-year-old orphan and a spoiled child. His many good qualities were buried under a plethora of frailities which almost ruined France. When the old king died he left more than 800 million lives in debt. In no time Louis XV quadru-ously question the so-called "divine right" of kings. While the masses wallowed in poverty, and the middle class suffered under an enormous tax burden, the king gave millions to his mis-tresses — the "grand" Pompadour, the Duchess deBerry, and many others.

When the financial panic finally came, the French leadership relied on the leger-domain of a Scottish financial faith-healer named John Law. When Law's bubble burst the stage was set for the revolution. But that's another

Let's get back to the level where we live which is the third little seat in a crowded canoe headed for Montreal.

NIGHTFALL NEARS and the boatsmen quicken their oars to make the safety of a protected cove.

All six in our little caravan head away from the main channel, but the last boat somehow strayed from the course and hit a rock. Perhaps the steersman was not alert, or was looking for a short cut, or misjudged the passage in the approaching darkness.

At any rate there was a large thud followed by a cracking, strangling racket, and the framework of the canoe shuddered as though in its death throes. The water surged in and the boat was barely affoat. Fortunately, the accident happened in the shallows near the shore. The alert crew jumped out and carried the damaged boat to dry land. What a narrow squeak it was.

Everything in the canoe was removed and several bonfires were started. The heat from the fires dried out the contents. Most of it consisted of Indian trade goods - beans, baubles, and blankets.

Experienced repairmen among the crew set to work at once to repair the damage. The hole was about a foot wide and not more than 10 inches in circumference. It was patched and the boat was retied and regrooved with wooden pegs and heavy pine tar. The last step was the application of a coating of pine gum which helped to glue the whole thing together. The boat was turned over and the bottom was carefully gummed with a heavy coating of pine tar. It will be dry enough for travel in the morning.

Beaubien was jumping around, scolding the steersman of the damaged boat and directing the salvage operation. He could make more noise than any six men. I was to glad to retreat to a distant campfire where I worked on my records until the cook rang the dinner

PEGGY HEINEY, who teaches at Bird Elementary School, deserves some plaudits of her own. She played the piano and rehearsed the four Bird students who sang at the Tom Hulce reception Sunday night. Jason Loiselle as Dow Jones, Andy Bernd as J. Tycoon, Michelle Clemens as Sophie O'Hoolahee and Amy Lenski as Bubbles Blair sang the opening chorus of the operetta, 'The Elevator."

The work was written by Bill Grimmer's operetta production class in the summer of 1966. Bill presented a copy of the script to Tom, who was a member of the class. The locale and situation for the operetta were influenced by the blackout in New York and the idea, the music and the script were all original, according to Bill.

Jeff Wilson, a senior at Plymouth Salem High School, was the Mozart character who appeared in the program. Complete with white wig and laugh, he tried his hand at playing the piano while lying on his back.

THE CENTENNIAL Dancers of Plymouth will have their fifth annual recital at 6 p.m. Sunday, May 18 in Plymouth Salem High School auditorium. The theme will be Anniversary Party.

Admission is $3. Some of the young dancers have been with Centennials for the full five years. They are Andrea Byars, Melissa Krantz, Jennifer Buda, James Buda, Denise Buda, Karyn Gniewek, Kristi O'Connell, Sarah Sheehan, Katherine Wira, Tracie Wrobleski, Laura Humann, Dawn Stanislawski, Marty Wojtowicz, and the Ygeals - Juli, Elaine, Karla and

JENNIFER ZANG is enjoying her year as a sophomore at Western Michigan University. As a French major at WMU, she was one of four students accepted in a foreign study program. Jennifer has been living with a French family in Rennes, France since January. She attends the Universite de Haute Brethagne (Brittany). Her French family consists of a mother, a father and two children. She lives on the third floor of their house in Rennes, a manufacturing city with a population of more than 200,000.

Her parents, Carol and Elden Zang of Lake Pointe Village, decided she couldn't be living in an attic because she is so enthusiastic

During a two-week Easter holiday, Jennifer and a friend went to Italy. Some of the youth hostels they planned to stay at were not open so they spent several nights at

They discovered the rooms were scrupuously clean and the sisters charged about $2 a night. Evidently hostels are not noted for their cleanliness so the girls chose convents whenever available.

They saw the Pope in St. Peter's Square and were standing quite close to the Pontiff.

Jennifer will complete her studies June 12 and is going to do some traveling in Europe for a month before coming home. They plan to visit Germany, Austria, Switzerland and Ireland.

Jennifer graduated from Plymouth Canton High School in 1984. Mary Conklin was her French

The Meeting House had a full house for the reception after the film.

Sitting cross-legged on the stage of the Penn Theater, Tom Hulce talks to the audience after the showing of "Amadeus."

Community welcomes Tom 'Amadeus' Hulce

By Elinor Graham staff writer

If Tom Hulce was beginning to feel like a native New Yorker, the folks in Plymouth dispelled such nonsense Sunday afternoon. They turned out en masse to claim him as their own.

Classmates, old friends, neighbors and teachers were there to stir old memories and give him a hometown welcome. They filled the Penn Theater to see again the marvelous film, "Amadeus" - some of them for the third or fourth time. They applauded his name in the credits. And when the house lights came on and he sat, cross-legged on the edge of the stage to field questions from the audience, they gave him a standing ovation.

They kept him in the theater lobby, signing photographs, albums and programs. They ran out of glossies and there were none left for the reception at the Mayflower Meeting House.

THE SCENE AT the reception was a community busting its buttons with

The endless line of well-wishers had to be interrupted with the promise that Tom will talk to people after the program and after we've eaten.

The 31-year-old, who received an Academy Award nomination for best actor for his portrayal of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, needed a break. The role of returning celebrity was a de-table in front of the podium. Family included his mother. Joanne Hulce of Plymouth Township, brother, Steve Hulce, sisters, Barbara Nelson and Su-

Esther Hulsing, clerk of Plymouth Township, read a proclamation of the community's appreciation to Joanne Hulce. She cited her years on the school board, her work for the Plymouth Symphony, the founding of the Symphony League's antique mart and the Plymouth Community Arts Council.

Bill Grimmer, longtime vocal music teacher at East Middle School, reminded Tom of an operetta class many summers ago. Tom and the other sixth graders in the class had written an operetta, lyrics and music. Grimmer had resurrected the script and four Bird Elementary School students sang the opening chorus. It was a world premiere, because the class had spent the entire session writing the operetta. They did not have time to perform their masterpiece. Grimmer presented the score to the guest of honor.

Sarah Hassinger and Carol Sutton reminisced about who kissed whom first in a school drama involving Tom. Steve Fortney, former classmate and now stage technician for Prince and other groups, spoke for a few minutes.

RICK REUTHER, former classmate, sang one of his original songs and played guitar

The Mayflower had added to the splendor of the homecoming with fresh flowers and linens on each table, buffet tables that rivaled the bounty of 18th century Austria with food, flowers and ice carvings.

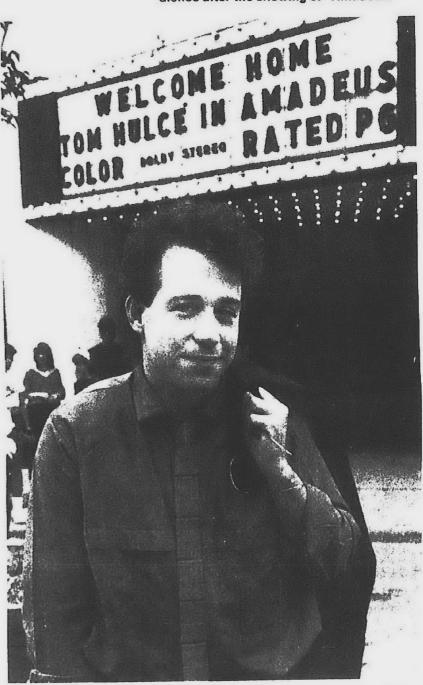

Almost endless lines of wellwishers and autograph seekers converged on the Hulce table. The star gave each one his full attention as he talked to them and signed his name. Cameras flashed as family and friends recorded the meetings on film.

THE HOMECOMING was arranged as a benefit for the Plymouth Community Arts Council and the Plymouth Symphony League. Without the full cooperation of Lauren Falcuson, owner of the Penn Theater, and Ann Arendson, who tied all the pieces together, it could not have happened.

The community loved the opportunity to applaud and welcome Tom Hulce.

They'll be awaiting the release of 'The Rise and Rise of Daniel Rocket," the film Tom was finishing just before he came home. The drama written by Peter Darnell will be shown on American Playhouse (Channel 56) this winter.

From Plymouth, Tom was off to Chicago for a Wednesday evening appearance with the Chicago Symphony Orcaestra. They must have been doing some Mozart.

The Penn Theater has its own welcome sign out for the star of the show who came in from New York for the event.

Only kidding, Tammi. Actually, the dogs' birthday was Monday, May 6, but Tammi's birthday was May 1 and I didn't mention it last week's column. Tacky, right? I'm sorry, Tammi.

As luck would have it, she hasn't been feeling too well lately. Nothing catching, mind you, but who knew she wouldn't get well by the day of her party? She didn't even get all her guests invited, because she didn't feel well all

Michelle Merritt had to baby sit Saturday night, but she hasn't missed Tammi's birthday since they were 5 so she came over during the afternoon. This worked out well because she was at our home when the call came from her mom with the news she had made the Chiefettes cheerleading squad. There was a loud squeal multiplied by about six. Angie's friend, Becky Clark, had been planning a real big bash with the band "New Trend," a favorite of the kids around here. New Trend appeared on the Substance Abuse Telethon and the kids love them.

Islam's Ramadan: month of fasting

the new moon around May 20 when to begin Ramadan, the Islamic holy month of fasting.

Fasting from an hour and a half before sunrise to a few minutes after sunset is mandatory for every Moslem with exceptions made only for minors, the elderly, ill, pregnant or nursing Moslems will know by the arrival of ly, the offender must start the 60 day cycle all over again, Razvi said.

A meal before dawn called 'sahoor' is encouraged. After dusk special prayers are said with the nighttime meal. Special group prayers are called

After completion of the fasting month, a feast called Eid is observed. Special thanksgiving prayers are held in larger mosques. Most Moslems wear new clothes, exchange gifts, prepare special feasts and invite guests for Eid.

Those unable to fast for health reasons must spend in charity an amount equal to feeding 60 persons, Razvi said.

A RUSH to stop hunger

"Around Redford, Around the World" is the theme of a CROP walk that will be a RUSH job.

RUSH is the acronym for Redford United to Stop Hunger. CROP is the name given to local community hunger eeucation and fund-raising events sponsored by Church World Service, an international relief, development and refugee resettlement agency of more than 30 Protestant and Orthodox churches in the U.S.

The walk will take place at 2 p.m. Sunday May 19. Starting and ending point will be Trinity Church of the cure pledges of donations for the num-Brethren at Inkster and West Chicago. The walk will cover 10 miles, moving north on Inkster to Five Mile, along side streets to Lola Valley Park to Six Mile Road, then back on Beech-Daly to West Chicago.

ORIGINALLY SPONSORED by a group of Redford clergy, the event also includes a number of congregations of different denominations in the Redford area. The walk is open to all age groups.

Those participating are asked to se-ber of miles walked. The walk is held to raise funds for work against hunger in the world with 75 percent of the funds raised to be channeled overseas through Church World Services and 25 percent used locally by the Southeastern Michigan Food Coalition, which is based in Detroit. For further information on the walk, call Rev. John Wallace, pastor, Lola Valley United Methodist Church, at 255-6330; or Rev. Barbara Lewis, associate pastor, Aldersgate United Meth-

church bulletin

• RESURRECTION LUTHERAN

Livonia will conduct at 'Offering of Letters' to urge congressmen to support a bill providing both short term food aid and long term self help measures to famine victims in Africa. On Sundays, May 12 and 19, members will write the letters. The offering of letters is an annual campaign organized by Bread for the World, the national Christian citizens lobby against hunger.

Specifically the letters will be written in support of the Food Assistance and Africa Agriculture Act being considered this spring in Congress. The bill includes money to fund small scale sustainable food growing projects for African farmers. Without such long term provisions, Africa will continue to experience periodic and severe famines and African people will be dependent on food donated by other countries. Mark McQuesten nears priesthood

Mark McQuesten, a candidate for the priesthood of Livonia, recently received the Ministry of Lector at ceremonies in Sacred Heart School of Theology in Hales Corner, Wis. These studies will be followed by the Ministry of Acolyte and then in December 1986 with ordination to the diaconate and ordination to the priesthood the following spring. The thirdyear theology student also was elected president of the student body of Sacred Heart for the next academic year. McQuesten was a Schoolcraft College trustee before beginning his seminary training.

even a supportive one — between those who sell drugs to children and child suicides. The boss who lets a contract on someone's life is no less a murderer than the hit man who pulls the trigger. The spy who sells information to the Soviets cannot acquit himself by saying that he is not in charge of the lives of the buyers.

When the issue is removed from what is commonly accepted as criminal, connections are even less likely to be recognized. And so whole segments of society can claim that they are not in charge of other people's lives. Such thinking has been at the basis of any number of human disasters both large and small.

THOSE WHO turned on the ovens in Hitler's Germany were obvious murders. But history has also indicted those who turned their backs and closed their curtains to the smoke and the stench of human kindling.

What will history say of the connections set up in our own time? Will our children and our children's children be impressed with our financial gifts to places like Ethiopia or might they suggest something else?

Might they suggest that we should have challenged the systems that cause the hunger to maintain and even spread? Even when the results of those policies which benefit our own lifestyles are on the other side of oceans we cannot pull our curtains in a world as connected as our own.

The fact that there is not a law against our behavior or that the results are felt in the lives of people whose names and faces we do not know does not remove the responsibility. Our present human condition does not allow for such head-in-the-sand isolation.

UNFORTUNATELY, we learned at a very early age that "It is not my fault." As brash as McLain's assertion may be, it is not all that different from the way we learned to think as youngsters - a way out of which some never

If I build a bomb, I cannot throw the total responsibility for its destructive results on the one who drops it. If my consumer support allows a given corporation to continue unfair practices, I can hardly claim not to be in charge. In many ways the consumer is more in charge than the chairman of the board. Victims seem to know that better than anyone else.

South Africa may be far away but how long could that nation's overt racists policies maintain if the companies that benefit from such a system were given a message at the cash register and at the stockholders meetings on this side of the ocean?

In a recent television show on the making of USA for Africa, it was suggested that in saving the hungry we are saving ourselves because otherwise our consciences will die. When that hap-pens we too may insist that we are not in charge of other peoples' lives. If I recall Bible stories at all, the first one

Anniversary concert Saturday

Twenty-five years of music-making in Kellogg Park will be celebrated by the Plymouth Community Band with an anniversary concert at 8 p.m. Saturday in Plymouth Salem High School auditorium.

The concert promises to bring back memories for every fan of band music, summertime in the park, and the music of Pulling up a lawn chair or spreading out a blanket in the park, enjoying the sounds and sights of a band concert have become a tradition, a sure sign summer has arrived. Children marching in step to the music, senior citizens holding hands and tapping toes, young people just cruising the scene - all are brought together by the Plymouth Community Band concerts.

For the band's fans, Saturday's concert in the auditorium will be the first enjoyed in a truly comfortable seat.

THE PLYMOUTH Community Band will bring together in one concert highlights of the past 25 years.

Past conductors of the band will direct the musicians in their own distinctive styles. James Griffith, director of bands at Plymouth Centennial Educational Park and founder of the Plymouth Community Band, will lead the group in Pineapple Roll, a rousing ballet suite by Sir Arthur Sullivan. Robert Burr, second director of the band, will conduct Ralph Vaughn Williams' English Folk Song Suite Burr is coming from New York City where he is an account executive for Kinney Shoes. George Cavender of the University of Michigan, guest conductor of the community band for many seasons, will conduct a contemporary piece, "Do Not Go Gentle Into That ERNIE JONES, another of the band's favorite guest conductors, will conduct in a an old "warhorse," the Light Cavalry Overture by von Suppe. Jones, a lover of band music, is the advertising executive who brought SuperBowl XVI to Detroit.

Carl Grapentine, host of the morning show on classical music radio station WQRS and voice of the Michigan Marching Band, will narrate the novelty number, "Tubby the Tuba." Keith Burton, a founding member of the Plymouth Community Band, will be Tubby.

Highlight of the concert will be an appearance by Merle Evans, conductor of the Ringling Brothers Circus Band for more than 30 years. He will lead the community band in a delightful trip to the circus with Carl Grapentine acting as ringmaster and narrator. The segment will feature music for the triumphal entry, the trapeze act, the elephants' entry, the clown act and the lion tamer.

CARL BATTISHILL, current conductor of the band, will conclude the anniversary concert with a rousing rendition of the Stars and Stripes Forever by John Philip Sousa.

Members of the Plymouth Community Band range in age from 14 to 70 and vary in occupation from junior high school student to college professor, from engineering students to executive engineers, and from music teachers to computer

Keith Burton, a college professor, reflected on the 25th anniversary of the band. "It has been a part of my life for 25 years. I look forward every year to a new season of playing and I feel that it would be very difficult to leave Plymouth because of the Community Band.

Ann McCracken, a sophomore at Plymouth Canton High School, said, "I really enjoy playing in the band. We read tons of music in two hours and it really helps my playing at "THE LAST TIME I played percussion was in high school and the community band has been a great way for me to get back to my drumming," said Robert Baron, a systems analyst for Burroughs Corporation who moved here recently from New York.

Doug MacLeod, engineer retired from Bell telephone and librarian of the band, said, "I got involved 22 years ago and you'd have to drag me away from it."

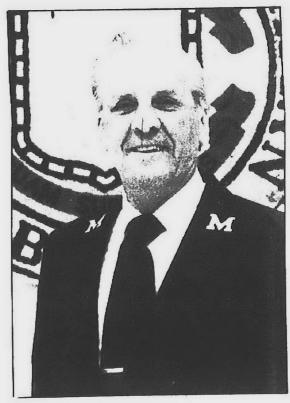

The common denominator for band members is a dedication to performing and continuing their musical careers.

Tickets for the anniversary concert are available at Beitner's Jewelry on Ann A rbor Trail and at the door for a $5 donation.

The band is sponsored by the Plymouth Community Credit Union, First of America Bank, Plymouth Rotary Club, William Decker Realtors, and hundreds of local residents and

Mother's mock duck, corn pie

THE VOICE on the other end of the telephone line the other morning asked, "Are you The Stroller?'

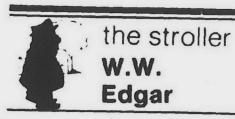

Assured that it was, he said, "You have me puzzled. In your column, you mentioned that when your mother was hard-pressed to feed her family, she always prepared what she called mock duck. Now, I've been around quite a bit and have eaten in many places. But I never have seen or heard of mock duck. Please tell me what it was."

The Stroller had a quiet smile, for mock duck was one of Mother's ideas, and how she got that name she never told us. But it was her favorite when she was pressed for a

FORD-UAW AND OTHER HOURLY EMPLOYES:

CHOOSING A HEALTH PLAN THAT FITS IS EASY.

JUST MAKE YOUR CHOICE BLUE.

Health care choices can be onfusing

But not when they're all from the leader, Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan

We have used our 45 years of health care experience to bring Ford-UAW and other hourly workers all three of these options in health care. Each plan has excellent benefits. One plan, however, may better fit you and your family than the other two.

Study them all carefully
Then make your choice
Just make it Blue

Traditional Blue Cross and Blue Shield is good everywhere.

There are no geographical limitations to health care coverage with Traditional care. It's accepted in any town, county and state in the country. Here in Michigan more than 13.000 physicians and over 200 hospitals accept your LD card without question.

Blue Preferred Plan. A new PPO for Ford workers.

Here is a combination of the best of Traditional and HMO care. Blue Preferred Plan provides you with a panel of preferred providers of health care, including more than 5,000 physicians and 97 hospitals. When you use their services you will receive coverage for doctors' office visits, well-baby care, and childhood immunizations on certain shots for preschoolers.

Choose the only local HMO whose I.D card bears the emblem of Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan. Health Care Network. It is part of the Blue statewide network of seven HMOs. You can get covered services from any of the other six when you travel in the state. No other HMO can offer that protection.

Have peace of mind when carrying the "caring card" that carries our name. Make your choice: Traditional, Blue Preferred Plan or Health Care Network. For more information, see your Benefits Representative, or call Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan at 1-800-426-4610.

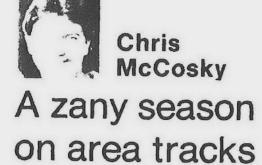

Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan

T HAS NOT been your typical spring for high school track and field. First we had the now-infamous baton throwing incident at the Farmington city track meet. All three competitors, Farmington, Farmington Harrison and North Farmington, were disqualified from the mile relay - two of three teams for firing batons at each other.

Last week, we had the damn-that-new-math caper at Farmington High. The Falcons, one of the better boys teams in the area hosted a muchimproved Livonia Bentley team. As the meet drew to a conclusion, the scoreboard said that Farmington was comfortably in front. Neither team took the last event seriously, running freshmen and sophomores.

The bad news for the Falcons was that the scoreboard was wrong. Points for the discus event - an event in which Farmington took 15 points were counted twice. When the mistake was corrected, the scoreboard read that Bentley had defeated the Falcons. The final event, thought to be superfluous, decided the meet.

It was only the second dual-meet loss for Farmington in 21/2 years.

THOSE TWO incidents served only as a prelude to what happened at the 15th annual Observerland Track and Field Relays last Saturday at Livonia

So many unusual things occurred Saturday that the actual competition - which was quite stirring in its own right - was overshadowed.

I got out to Churchill about 4:30 p.m. The first thing I discovered was that Fred Owens was not competing in the meet.

Imagine that. Here's the premier track athlete in Observerland, the man featured in a color photo in our story previewing the meet, not competing. Also not competing were three of Owens' Bishop Borgess teammates.

This had serious ramifications on the meet itself. Borgess, the heavy-favorite to win the meet, was now on even terms with Plymouth Salem, Farmington and Livonia Churchill. What would have been the battle for second place suddenly became a dogfight for first.

Owens and his three teammates had missed a practice, broken a team rule, and thus had to suffer the consequences. Coach Gene Grewe realized the absence of those athletes could have cost him the Observerland title. But, he also understood that winning the Observerland title was not as important as the lesson those four Borgess runners learned Saturday.

Gene Grewe not only earned the respect of every coach and parent in Observerlar but he earned the respect of every kid on his Borgess track team as well

I THOUGHT that would be the big story of the

Churchill and Plymouth Salem went after the title with all weapons drawn. It was a classic shootout for the most vaunted track and field prize in the area. But, with four events to go. things got ugly.

I think by now those who care know what happened in the sprint medley relay Saturday. Salem placed second and Churchill fourth, but the Salem team was disqualified - thus losing eight points. Churchill wound up winning the meet over Salem by three points.

The track officials, all of whom were affiliated in some way with Churchill, ruled that Salem runner Mike White had impeded the path of a Churchill runner In other words. White cut the Churchill runner off

Salem coaches stormed onto the track protesting the call. White, they claimed, was too far in front of Churchill to cause a collision.

The argument, at first very violent and heated, then more rational, carried on until well after the meet had ended.

I saw what happened. I was standing on the infield of the track. A Churchill runner was indeed tripped. When it happened, I looked to see who was leading the race. I saw Bishop Borgess and Salem ahead of the pack. Churchill was running in the pack with Livonia Stevenson and two other teams

BOTH STEVENSON and Salem wore blue jerseys. The official who made the call said it was someone wearing a blue jersey and he thought it was Salem. The track, because a power failure had shut down more than two-thirds of the lights, was dark and the official would have had trouble putting his finger on the exact culprit.

But meet official John MacKenzie, after listening to all sides and reviewing the lane assignments, upheld the official's ruling. It was the proper decision on MacKenzie's part. Even if the call was wrong, which I believe it was, the decision of the track official has to be final. He was closest to it, he saw it and he called it right away. He did his job.

There was a lot of talk about the official showing favoritism to Churchill. I don't buy that argument. The official may have made a mistake, but it was an honest one

There was also a lot of criticism of Churchill coach Fred Price. Some coaches feel he has too much influence on the decisions made at the

For example, Churchill miler Doug Plachta was disqualified for failing to turn in his entry card to meet officials. Price, however, appealed the ruling to MacKenzie and Plachta was reinstated.

Canton 9 shuns adversity and wallops Western, 12-2

Courage is not a shortcoming of the Plymouth Canton baseball team.

In the face of saddening adversity, the Chiefs came out Monday and defeated Western Lakes league rival and defending Class A state champion Walled Lake Western 12-2 in the first game of a double-header.

Game two was suspended because of darkness after four innings with Western, behind the pitching of Dan Gabriele, ahead 3-1.

Plymouth Canton's girl tracksters did everything humanly possible Tuesday to break Plymouth Salem's nine year hold on the Mangan Relays.

The Chiefs gave it a valiant effort, shattering four school records and posting numerous other personal bests, but it still wasn't enough. The Rocks took the charge out of the Chiefs in the last two events to post a 70-58 victory in the annual track and field rivalry begun in 1977.

SALEM'S GIRLS fell behind early and it looked for a while like this was finally to be the year the Chiefs would snap the jinx. But Salem came back strong to keep its streak in tact.

"It was a tremendous high school track and field meet — the best dual meet I've ever been associated with," Salem girls coach Fred Thomann said. "The level of talent on both teams is very good. The fact that a number of school records and personal bests were broken shows that the kids came to run. They really went after each other in a real positive, sportsmanlike way.

"We knew it was going to come down to the end. We felt they'd go ahead early and we'd have to comefrom-behind. That's exactly what happened and we're delighted with the results.'

Canton coach Bob Richardson wasn't happy with the end result, but he certainly wasn't disappointed with his team's performance.

Salem's Kristin Hostynski was a double winner, capturing both the 110 (16.62) and 330 (49.15) hurdles. Teammate Amy Johnson placed second in both events and also posted a second place finish in the high jump with a leap of 4-10.

As Bob Dylan once said, you don't need a weatherman to know which way the wind blows - not at the Plymouth Salem-Plymouth Canton soccer match Monday, anyway.

If you wanted to know which way the wind was blowing, you just had to look and see which team was dominating the action.

T HAS NOT been your typical spring for high school track and field.

First we had the now-infamous baton throwing incident at the Farmington city track meet. All three competitors, Farmington, Farmington Harrison and North Farmington, were disqualified from the mile relay — two of three teams for firing batons at each other.

Last week, we had the damn-that-new-math caper at Farmington High. The Falcons, one of the better boys teams in the area hosted a much-improved Livonia Bentley team. As the meet drew to a conclusion, the scoreboard said that Farmington was comfortably in front. Neither team took the last event seriously, running freshmen and sophomores.

The bad news for the Falcons was that the scoreboard was wrong. Points for the discus event — an event in which Farmington took 15 points — were counted twice. When the mistake was corrected, the scoreboard read that Bentley had defeated the Falcons. The final event, thought to be superfluous, decided the meet.

be superfluous, decided the meet.

It was only the second dual-meet loss for Farmington in 2½ years.

THOSE TWO incidents served only as a prelude to what happened at the 15th annual Observerland Track and Field Relays last Saturday at Livonia Churchill

So many unusual things occurred Saturday that the actual competition — which was quite stirring in its own right — was overshadowed.

I got out to Churchill about 4:30 p.m. The first thing I discovered was that Fred Owens was not competing in the meet.

Imagine that. Here's the premier track athlete in Observerland, the man featured in a color photo in our story previewing the meet, not competing. Also not competing were three of Owens' Bishop Borgess teammates.

This had serious ramifications on the meet itself. Borgess, the heavy-favorite to win the meet, was now on even terms with Plymouth Salem, Farmington and Livonia Churchill. What would have been the battle for second place suddenly became a dogfight for first.

Owens and his three teammates had missed a practice, broken a team rule, and thus had to suffer the consequences. Coach Gene Grewe realized the absence of those athletes could have cost him the Observerland title. But, he also understood that winning the Observerland title was not as important as the lesson those four Borgess runners learned Saturday

Gene Grewe not only earned the respect of every coach and parent in Observerland Saturday, but he earned the respect of every kid on his Borgess track team as well.

1 THOUGHT that would be the big story of the

Churchill and Plymouth Salem went after the title with all weapons drawn. It was a classic shootout for the most vaunted track and field prize in the area. But, with four events to go, things got ugly.

I think by now those who care know what happened in the sprint medley relay Saturday Salem placed second and Churchill fourth, but the Salem team was disqualified—thus losing eight points. Churchill wound up winning the meet over Salem by three points.

The track officials, all of whom were affiliated in some way with Churchill, ruled that Salem runner Mike White had impeded the path of a Churchill runner. In other words, White cut the Churchill runner off.

Salem coaches stormed onto the track protesting the call. White, they claimed, was too far in front of Churchill to cause a collision.

far in front of Churchill to cause a collision.

The argument, at first very violent and heated, then more rational, carried on until well after the meet had ended.

I saw what happened. I was standing on the infield of the track. A Churchill runner was indeed tripped. When it happened, I looked to see who tripped. When it happened. I looked to see who was leading the race. I saw Bishop Borgess and Salem ahead of the pack. Churchill was running in the pack with Livonia Stevenson and two other teams.

BOTH STEVENSON and Salem wore blue jerseys. The official who made the call said it was someone wearing a blue jersey and he thought it was Salem. The track, because a power failure had shut down more than two-thirds of the lights, was dark and the official would have had trouble putting his finger on the exact culprit.

But meet official John MacKenzie, after listening to all sides and reviewing the lane assignments, upheld the official's ruling. It was the proper decision on MacKenzie's part. Even if the call was wrong, which I believe it was, the decision of the track official has to be final. He was closest to it, he saw it and he called it right away. He did his job.

There was a lot of talk about the official showing favoritism to Churchill. I don't buy that argument. The official may have made a mistake, but it was an honest one.

There was also a lot of criticism of Churchill coach Fred Price. Some coaches feel he has too much influence on the decisions made at the Observerland meet.

For example, Churchill miler Doug Plachta was disqualified for falling to turn in his entry card to meet officials. Price, however, appealed the ruling to MacKenzie and Plachta was reinstated.

Plymouth Canton's girl tracksters did everything humanly possible Tuesday to break Plymouth Salem's nine year hold on the Mangan Relays.

The Chiefs gave it a valiant effort, shattering four school records and posting numerous other personal bests, but it still wasn't enough. The Rocks took the charge out of the Chiefs in the last two events to post a 70-58 victory in the annual track and field rivalry begun in 1977.

Canton's boys could do no better, losing a lopsided 97-41 decision to a talent-laden Salem squad. The boy Chiefs also are looking for their first Mangan win.

SALEM'S GIRLS fell behind early and it looked for a while like this was finally to be the year the Chiefs would snap the jinx. But Salem came back strong to keep its streak in tact.

"It was a tremendous high school track and field meet - the best dual meet I've ever been associated with," Salem girls coach Fred Thomann said. "The level of talent on both teams is very good. The fact that a number of school records and personal bests were broken shows that the kids came to run. They really went after each other in a real positive, sportsmanlike way.

"We knew it was going to come down to the end. We felt they'd go ahead early and we'd have to comefrom-behind. That's exactly what happened and we're delighted with the results."

Canton coach Bob Richardson wasn't happy with the end result, but he certainly wasn't disappointed with his team's performance.

"We've never beaten Salem, but every year we get closer," he said.

track

"I'm just really proud of the girls. They're disappointed, but they have nothing to be ashamed of."

WITH THE SCORE tied 57-57 going into the next to last event - the two mile run - Thomann pulled a switch. He yanked star long distance runner Denise Durrer out of the mile relay (the final event) and placed her in the two mile. The move paid off.

Durrer broke the tape in 12:10.56 to finish first. Teammate Trish Donnelly crossed the finish line in 12:33.86 to clinch second and the meet for the

A triple winner for Salem, Durrer also took top honors in the mile (5:30.53) and 880 yard run (2:25.45). Canton's Angie Miller set a new school record in the 880 (2:27.3) only to finish second.

Salem's Kristin Hostynski was a double winner, capturing both the 110 (16.62) and 330 (49.15) hurdles. Teammate Amy Johnson placed second in both events and also posted a second place finish in the high jump with a leap of 4-10.

IRONICALLY, THE third-place finishers in the high and low hurdles Canton's Cheri Remer and Lori Schauder, respectively - also established new school records with their times. Remer ran a 17.37 in the 110's while Schauder recorded a 51.8 in the

But the Chiefs showed up with fire in their eyes instead of tears.

With between 15 and 25 major league and college scouts, one local television station and the two major daily newspapers on hand (they were there to see Western's Gabriele, one of the top prospects in the nation), the Chiefs exploded on Western with five runs in the second and six in the fifth.

"This is a tribute to our kids," Crissey said after the game. "I don't think anyone can question our guts or our 12-1 record. We're legitimate.'

Most of the damage came at the expense of Western's Mike Gabriele, Dan's brother.

In the bottom of the second, Danny Young singled with the bases loaded to drive home the first run of the game. Chris Sisler then followed with a towering grand slam home run to right center.

THE CHIEFS put Western away in the fifth. Singles by Dwayne Bennett and Tom Kenyon, an RBI single by Tony Aiken, a two-run single by Young and a long RBI double to center by Sisler chased Gabriele.

The Chiefs greeted reliever Quent Scannell with an RBI double off Pete Morman's bat and and RBI single by pinch-hitter Mark Moreno.

On the game, Kenyon went 4-for-4 including a bunt single and a nifty hit-and-run single, Young had two hits and three RBI, Morman had a pair of hits and Sisler knocked in five runs with his two Bucky Blake, with a solid relief performance from Mark Coburn, got the victory for Canton. Blake gave up four hits and two runs in 42/3 innings. He struck out five and walked seven.

Coburn came on with the bases loaded and two out in the top of the fifth. The score was 6-2 at the time and their was a 2-0 count on John Holyfield. Coburn threw a ball on his first pitch, then threw three straight strikes to a dumbfounded Holyfield.

Coburn retired all seven men he faced, fanning four of them. WESTERN UNVEILED its big gun, Dan Gabriele, in the second game. In the four innings, with his fastball being clocked between 83 and 88 miles per hour, he struck out eight of the 16 batters he faced. He walked two and yielded a single to Sisler. Meanwhile, the Western hitters came alive against Coburn. Coburn walked the leadoff hitter on a close 3-2 pitch. The lefty picked the runner off first, but the umpire called a balk

That seemed to unsettle Coburn. He gave up an RBI single to Dave O'Kragly, he was called for another balk. Mike Gabriele scored another run with a sacrifice fly and he walked Dan Gabriele before

"I was a little disappointed that we didn't play good defense early (in game two)," Crissey said. "But. I think at the end we were starting to get to Danny a bit

"We are very deserving of where we are right now. You know, our kids play the game the way its supposed to be played. We have no big horses here. We don't have a Danny Gabriele. But, I'll tell you this, day in and day out I'll take my kids. Considering the emotional element coming into this game, our kids gave a very noble effort."

The Chiefs, 7-1 in the Western Lakes, swept a double-header from Farmington Saturday, 6-0 and 11-6 John Lenders and Adam Kocik combined on the shutout and game one. Paul Swartzinski got the win in game two.

The fourth Canton record belonged to Carolyn Nagy, who jumped 15-7 to win the long jump. Tricia Carney won both the 220 (27.61) and 440 (1:02.61) dashes for the Chiefs while Kim Bennett was victorious in the 100. Angie Miller captured the high jump with a

In the relays, the teams split. Canton won the 880 (1:52.5) and two mile (10:26.23) relays while Salem took the 440 (53.44) and mile (4:31.8).

THE BOYS meet wasn't even close, but Rocks coach Gary Balconi still applauded the Canton effort.

"This is the most well-balanced Canton team we've faced," he said. "This (Mangan Relays) has always been a good meet for Canton and Salem. The kids get excited about meeting each other and they've done very well. They performed very well to-Canton coach Mike Spitz agreed. "Some of the races were a lot closer than the score indicates," he said We had some very good individual performances. But they're a deep, strong team.

The Rocks were led by triple winner Mike White, who blazed to victory in the 110 hurdles while tying a school record held by Scott Bublin (1982). He came back to grab both the 330 hurdles (38.75) and the long jump

Craig Morton also was a double winner, taking top honors in the 100 (10.39) and 220 (23.0) dashes.

OTHER ROCKS individual winners were Marc Cygan, shot put (46-4); Bryan Waldron, 440 (53.31) Brian Vladu, 880 (2:07.0), Scott Steiner, mile (4:49.92) and John Keros, two mile (10:16.69). John's twin brother Bill finished second with a clocking of 10:33.8. Mike Harwood won the pole vault (12-8).

Canton's winners were Steve Genyk, who cleared 6-0 to win the high jump and Jim Wallage, who tossed flung the discus 131-9 - more than four feet farther than Salem's Frank Moore - who placed second.

Canton won the shorter relays while Salem was victorious in the mile and two-mile events.

Farmington unbound?

Rocks, Chiefs set to stop RU Relay jinx

By Chris McCosky staff writer

There is absolutely no truth to the rumor that you have to be from Farmington to win the Redford Union-Observerland Girls Track and Field Re-

But, according to tradition, it helps. The RU Relays (the Observer Newspapers are co-sponsoring the event for the first time) will run its fourth annual race Saturday at Kraft Field on the grounds of Hilbert Junior High School (on Puritan and Kinloch in Redford).

The three previous winners were Farmington Hills Mercy (1982), Farmington Harrison (1983) and Farmington

Meet director and RU girls track coach Jim Gibbons thinks this could be the year that somebody breaks the Farmington lock on the relay title.

"Plymouth Canton is a bear and Plymouth Salem is tough," said Gibbons. "I'll tell you, the way it looks, Canton looks really strong. Then you have Bishop Borgess, Farmington, Salem, Ladywood, Mercy, Harrison and Livonia Stevenson all right there. It's going to be an exciting, competitive

THE RU RELAYS is Gibbons' baby. He talked RU atheltic director Bob Atkins into instituting the event and he has nutured it, refined it, and today, the meet seems on the verge of becoming as prestigious as its brother - the Observerland boys relays.

"I grew up in this area. I went to Catholic Central," said Gibbons, "I used to go and see the Observerland relays when I was a kid and it used to get me fired up. When I became girls track coach I figured, why not have an area meet for the girls?"

Gibbons is happy that the Observer has tossed its hat into the ring, but by the same token, he has offered some caution.

"I personally like the idea of the Observer being involved with this meet," Gibbons said. "But I want this meet to stay at Redford Union. The boys coaches felt that because the Observer was sponsoring the meet, it should be moved to an all-weather track (RU runs on a cinder track). So they took a vote and moved it to Churchill. I don't want to move this meet."

FOURTEEN TEAMS are in the running for the fourth RU Relays prize, including four of the Observerland's top five teams: Canton, Salem, Farmington and Ladywood. No. 1-ranked Westland John Glenn had a previous commit-Others competing are Borgess, Livonia Churchill, Livonia Franklin, Livonia Stevenson, Garden City, Mercy, Farmington Harrison, North Farmington, Northville and RU

Canton and Salem, most coaches agree, will go into the meet as favorTHE OBSERVERLAND GIRLS RELAYS

ites. Salem outpointed Canton in a dual meet Tuesday night, 70-58. But the Chiefs have won the Belleville Tigers Relays and placed an impressive third at the Stafford Relays, besting the Rocks on both accounts.

Canton has been paced this year by several notable individuals. Freshman Angie Miller has been a leading scorer, as have Carolyn Nagy, Hollie Ivey, Marie Jarosz and Kim Bennett.

Salem's top gun this year has been Denise Durrer, and Saturday's meet will have an extra special twist for this senior. Durrer, one of the area's premier distance runners, transferred to Salem from RU a year ago.

One of the highlights of Saturday's meet promises to be the 100-yard and 220-yard dashes. Terri Ford of Mercy, Lonnie Washington of Borgess, Donna Wozniak of Franklin and Alyse Fortune of Farmington should burn a few cinders off the track. Ford and Washington have gone 12.2 in 100-meters this year.

FARMINGTON IS a team most coaches fear coming into a big meet. Coach Jerry Young has been pulling off startling victories at Farmington for more than 20 years. His young team has begun to hit its stride, beginning with a narrow win over a solid Farmington Harrison team in the Farmington City meet a year ago.

Mercy is currently alone atop the Catholic League dual meet standings. With Ford, Tracy Balog on hurdles, Ellen McCarthy in distance events and some of the area's fastest relay teams to date, Bob Kirkland's team could be a major factor Saturday.

Other key individuals that will compete Saturday include Melly Mogielski, Nancy Brichford and Janis Bilinski of RU, Lisa Dominato of Franklin, Joan Arndt of Ladywood, Sambia Shivers of Borgess, Jill Birsa, Jamie Lyons and Jamie Holcomb of Harrison, Missy Ward of Garden City, Terry and Tammy Spengler of North Farmington, Amy Rozman of Stevenson, Jenny Lindbert of Farmington, Carol Sulick of Churchill and Cindy Panowicz of

WHAT FRED Price does is no different than what any other area coach does. He fights for his kids. He's supposed to fight for his kids. Gary Balconi fights for his Salem kids. Dave Catherman fights for his Farmington kids. They wouldn't be the successful coaches they are if they Maybe Price has the advantage at Observerland because he is the host team. I doubt that. But if other area coaches feel that way, why not offer volunteers to help run the meet? Farmington's Jerry Young is the meet's course clerk. Perhaps some other teams should offer the services of track officials.

Fred Price does an outstanding job running a very difficult meet. That's the bottom line as far as I'm concerned.

The Observerland meet has grown into something very special around here. It's special to the athletes and to all the various communities

In one sense, I appreciate what happened Saturday. The Observerland prize is so valued that the coaches and athletes fought bitterly to attain it. That kind of thing makes the appeal of prep sports so unique - these coaches and athletes were sweating blood, not for money, but for the simple pride of being the area's best track

Sadly though, the battle between the officials and the coaches overshadowed the fantastic efforts put forth on the track itself. That should never happen.

Fuzzy Zoeller: The perfect promoter

By Marty Budner staff writer

UZZY ZOELLER was a big hit Tuesday afternoon at Oakland Hills, and he didn't even swing a golf club

The defending U.S. Open champion was flown into Bloomfield Township by United States Golf Association (USGA) officials to promote the 1985 Open, slated for June 13-16 at Oakland Hills' venerable South Course.

The 33-year-old Zoeller was chased around the course by caravans of golf carts filled with television sportscasters and their cameramen. Perhaps hoping to record some precious golf gibberish, one local television station fitted Zoeller with a portable micro-Zoeller relates well to crowds. It's his way of relaxing. And he showed that free-spirited warmth Tuesday afternoon.

"He's that kind of person," USGA Communications Director John Morris said. "He's pleasant towards everyone. Some players just like to put on a show, but Zoeller's (personality) is genuine."

Zoeller turned professional in 1973 and has won nearly $1.4 million. His best year was 1983 when he won the wasteful chores is to periodically check on their life insurance program. Isn't life insurance associated only with morbid thoughts?

Check insurance through life

Not quite. Like everything else in life, your life insurance needs may change, requiring a reorganization of your insurance portfolio.

that would require a change in your life insurance coverage.

• Type of polices - term, whole life, endowment, universal life, or annunity? Do you need more coverage? Has inflation been taken into account?

• Change in your financial status up or down? If it is up, consider insurance on your spouse's life to make up for the loss of the marital deduction if he or she dies before you.

· Provision for children's college costs - is it enough? You may want to take into account the possibilities of professional schools and post graduate studies.

• Cash value of your policies - how much have they increased? Figure out your paid-up insurance if you were to stop paying premiums.

ASSURED PAYMENT

Planning your monthly budget is easy with this simple interest flexible term loan. You will always pay the same amount. Only the total number of payments will increase or decrease to accommodate interest rate changes.

ASSURED VALUE

Your car can be financed with our newest borrowing option that guarantees the value of your car at the end of the loan term. This allows you lower monthly payments and tax deductible interest. At maturity, you also have the options of selling the car, returning it to the dealer, or refinancing the remaining balance.

ASSURED RATE

You can obtain simple interest, fixed rate financing on any car you choose, usually in the same day! We'll adjust the length of the loan to fit your needs. And since it's a simple interest loan, you can pay less by paying it off early.

ASSURED LEASE

For those who would prefer lower monthly payments without the commitment of ownership, Manufacturers can arrange auto leasing with participating dealers. And the initial cash deposit is usually less than the down payment required for the purchase of a new car.

New Japanese 'Super Pill' Insures Rapid Weight-Loss

No Dieting - Eat All You Want, Pill Does All The Work

BEVERLY HILLS, CA - An exciting new "all natural" weight-loss "Super" Pill developed by the JMA (Japanese Medical Association) has just been approved for distribution in the United States. Reportedly, it can guarantee that you will lose more than a pound a day without dieting, from the very first day until you reach your ideal weight and figure. News of this "Super Pill" is literally sweeping the country. It's called Amitol and there has never been anything quite like it before.

"Flushes Calories Right Out Of Your Body

What makes Amitol so thrilling and unique is its reported ability to flush calories right out of your body. Amitol is completely safe, it contains no drugs whatsoever. Its ingredients are derived solely from the Konjac root which grows primarily in Northern Japan.

Why the Konjac root? It has been used in Japan for over 1600 years to produce rapid and natural weight-loss!

Japanese studies verify that Konjac root actually prevents fat producing calories from being absorbed into your system. They say it does this by surrounding much of the fats, proteins and carbohydrates you have eaten with a protective viscous coating which is then gently flushed out of your system. And according to Japanese research this produces absolutely amazing results. And who can disagree! Amitol (although brand new to this country) is already being called by many people, "the most exciting weight-loss breakthrough of the century." In fact, everywhere there are reports of easy and fast weight-loss from formerly overweight people (in all walks of life) who are now slim, trim, and attractive again

Company Offers Extraordinary Guarantee

You now can purchase Amitol direct from the North American distributor, and it comes with an extraordinary

If you place your order now and then follow the simple instructions for a period of 30 days, you must be completely satisfied with the dramatic visible results or just return the empty container and Dyna Labs will immediately send back your entire purchase price. This guarantee applies regardless of your age or current weight level. What could be better than that! It's just that simple. If you've tried to lose weight before and failed you no longer have an excuse. Amitol is available, it's easy and it works without dieting!

$19.95-30 day supply, or $35.95 60 day supply. Order immediately by sending a check or money order to DYNA LABS, 270 No. Canon Dr., Ste. 1255 (Dept. U-21) Beverly Hills, CA, 90210. (Enclose your return address). Credit card holders can order by simply dialing toll free: (1-800-367-2400) 24 hrs a day, 7 days a week. Either way your order will be promptly sent. Please don't wait. NUMBER ONE

FREEDOM OF CHOICE

Freedom. The very foundation of America's greatness. The freedom to choose your family dentist is your right, and has long been a tradition. A tradition that makes sense because it puts you in charge. You decide which dentist, which location, and which treatment you receive.

Traditional dentistry gives you the freedom to choose, freedom to change dentists, freedom to say no, freedom to seek specialty care.

But, be aware. Through changes in your employee benefit program, you may now be faced with alternatives to traditional dentistry. These alternative plans are called by different names and may contain restrictions. Some may limit your freedom to choose.

Your family's dental health means more to you than it ever could to anyone else. Can you afford to let someone else make your decisions when your family's dental health is at stake?

Before you give up your precious freedoms, think it over carefully!

You and your family dentist... prevention at its best!

He was born in Taiwan in 1960. He played the Violin Concerto in G Minor by Bruch.

It turns out that the Germans and the Chinese are not as far apart as one might expect. Both are capable of providing hyphenated names, as well as producing good music.

As violin concertos go, Bruch's don't rank with the top - certainly not with those of Beethoven and Brahms. The themes are extremely syrupy, making "schmaltz" almost a foregone conclu-

The true heavyweight champion of the program was Schubert's Symphony No. 9. Even for somebody who is thoroughly familiar with this work, its scope can be a surprise in a live performance. This is one aspect that tends fective when performed with precision to be overlooked in a casual listening to length of the performance is known.

By coincidence (if one believes in coincidences) this work was performed on WQRS by the Cleveland Orchestra that same evening and it so happened that the beginning perfectly matched the time of arrival to our car following the concert

It is a tribute to both Schubert and the DSO, as well as Maestro Herbig, that we didn't mind listening to this symphony all over again (but twice was enough, however).

"Getting Straight" (1970), 1 on Friday night on Ch. 50.

By the time this movie was made, it was already unfashionable. This is a 1960s Movement movie, but the makers couldn't decide whether to play the protesters seriously or for laughs. Now, even the serious parts seem ludicrously funny. We've learned that all those idealists weren't so idealistic, that all causes have their flaws and that rumpled clothes don't necessarily mean open minds. On the plus side, Elliott Gould gives one of his last energetic performances, and the film is an interesting, inaccurate, Hollywood pe-

"Dirty Harry" (1971), 11:45 p.m. Saturday on Ch. 7.

I hated this movie when it first came out. I recognized its energy, but I deplored its right-wing politics. I've changed my mind. This is an important movie that says a lot about human value systems, what we as a people value. Clint Eastwood's quirky, often vicious cop is regarded by many people as a hero and the movie cunningly tilts the argument in Harry's favor as he chases a demented killer in the face of bureaucratic indifference. The politics are still deplorable but fascinating to watch. Don Siegel is at the top of his form as a director, and in Eastwood he has the perfect actor. Eastwood went on to perform in other, lesser, "Dirty Harry" movies ("Go ahead, make my day!") and more interesting films that explore other sides of this same volatile but repressed personality, from the light "Bronco Billy" to the distubring "Tightrope." Eastwood is finally getting his due as an important and complex film actor.

"Touch of Class" (1973), 12:30 Monday night on Ch. 7.

An overrated comedy of adultery. Glenda Jackson won an Oscar and George Segal is boyishly charming, but the film is a tepid attempt to recreate the comedies of earlier times - a bit of '40s Howard Hawks (a true master of the form) by way of '50s Ross Hunter (who gave us all those Doris Day movies). In the end, it's hard to care about these people, and we know that both Jackson and Segal could be doing something more important. Jackson eventually did, but Segal has yet to reach the heights that his talents promised.

St. Bede Players is affiliated with St. Bede Catholic Church in Southfield and will open its spring production of "Carousel" on Friday at Mercy College's Macauley Auditorium in Detroit.

First Theatre Guild is sponsored by the First Presbyterian Church of Birmingham, where it rehearses and stages productions.

Typically 100 to 125 people take part in a production. Some perform on stage, others play in the 27-piece orchestra and many more work behind the scenes on sets and costumes.

St. Bede Players has presented varied musical and dramatic productions since 1965, but the group has remained loyal to the lively music and irrepressible lyrics of Gilbert and Sullivan, whose shows it performs more than that of other composers.

Dallan Kaminski, producer for the players, said, "In our productions we want to involve lots of people. It's more fun with a large chorus and we like the challenge of singing eight-part harmo-

ST. BEDE PLAYERS stages one major musical each spring, most often something from the pens of the Englishmen, Gilbert and Sullivan. About every four or five years it varies the fare and stages a non-G&S musical. This is the year for "Carousel."

Presale tickets for evening shows are $5 for adults and $2.50 for children. At the door, adults pay $6 and children $3.

Last year's production. "The Mikado," was a blockbuster success, and Kaminski mentioned "The Gondoliers" as another all-time favorite. He said the success of Stratford's Gilbert and Sullivan productions and of pop music stars like Linda Ronstadt, who star in G&S operettas, has brought the music to the attention of a wider audience.

Besides the large musical each spring, St. Bede's puts on a smaller seasonal production at Christmastime.
"Amahl and the Night Visitors" is becoming a regular favorite for the holiday season, although the group occasionally varies its Christmas production by performing a cantata.

Members of St. Bede's sometimes join with the Lathrup Youth Theatre and the children's group, the Peanut Butter Players. Both are headed by Joann Lamun, who frequently directs St. Bede productions.

MIGRATING FROM one group to another to take part in productions is common practice. First Theatre Guild draws people to its auditions from the St. Bede Players, the Avon Players, the Peanut Butter Players and the Birmingham Village Players.

Jim Robertson, a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Birming-ham and onetime president of the Birmingham Village Players, decided in 1970 to start a theater group affiliated with his church. Now the membership roster for the First Theatre Guild lists more than 200 amateur thespians of all

"The Wizard of Oz" was last year's fall production and "Belles on their Toes," sequel to "Cheaper by the Dozen," was staged last spring. Both are warm-hearted musicals that appeal to young and old.

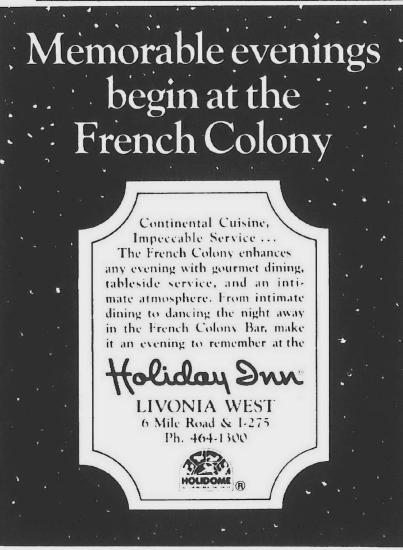

The board of the theater guild selects the season's plays and the Adult Education Board of the church approves them before auditions begin. First Theatre Guild has staged a variety of productions including musicals, comedies, dramas and mysteries, but musicals remain the most popular with audiences. Last fall's production, "Fiddler on the Roof," was its most successful to date, said Donna Rhinehart, citing the high quality of performances and the number of people who came to see it.

THE GROUP TRIES to do two productions each year, one in the fall and one in the spring. Alternate years, when the church puts on "Christmas Hand in Hand," the theater guild chooses a scaled-down play in the fall because so many church members commit their time to working on "Hand in Hand" displays.

The guild planned to do "Arsenic and Old Lace" this spring, but it ran into difficulties filling two major men's roles and decided not to stage the play. "It's often harder to get men to come out," Rhinehardt said.

Next fall the group will put on the Michigan premiere of an original play written by a member's friend. It's a melodrama called "Life upon the Wicked Stage" or "Pity the Poor Farmer," which will be followed in the spring by "Charlotte's Web."

E Day at a POW Camp in England

(The author, Sam Hudson of Plymouth, served with Gen. George Patton's Third Army in France, was wounded in Alsace-Lorraine, and was assigned as commander of a prisoner-of-war camp in Newbury, England. The article about his experiences was written to commemorate the 40th anniversary of Victory in Europe (VE) Day.)

I don't know where you were the morning before VE day, but I know where German Field Marshal Alfred Jodl and I were.

On May 7, 1945, Jodl was at Allied headquarters in Reims agreeing to Eisenhower's demands for unconditional surrender. I was in a prisoner-of-war stockade at Newbury, England.

Jodl probably spent the next day wondering what had gone wrong, but I celebrated Victory-in-Europe in an English pub. I wasn't a prisoner at the stockade, I was its commander - a job thrust upon me after I got wounded in France helping General George Patton win another medal.

World War II began for me in August 1944, when my unit landed in Normandy - Cherbourg, to be exact. I was an infantry battalion intelligence officer with a New England outfit, the Yankee Division. I was the only one on the battalion staff who was not from Boston. My rank was first lieutenant.

AFTER A SHORT stay in Normandy, near St. Mere Eglise, we got orders to move to the front. The Germans had been pushed back beyond Paris. Our division got into the line about 35 miles east of Nancy in Alsace-Lorraine.

Our first taste of combat was near a little French town called - I shall never forget it - Bezange-la-Petite. During the next few weeks I had enough of potato masher grenades, screaming meamies, schmeisers and German 88's to last me the rest of my life.

A German sniper put me out of action shortly before my division was ordered into the Battle of the Bulge. I suppose I owe him a debt of thanks the Bulge was no picnic.

I was trucked to a tent hospital at Toul. They expected 18 casualties that day. They got 118. The inside of the tent was a mess. Nurses in high boots walked around in a couple of inches of mud. Casulaties, German as well as American, were propped up everywhere, waiting for somebody to take care of them.

They put me on a bench to wait for a doctor. A wounded German, whose head was bandaged, sat next to me. He was moaning. His head kept falling on my shoulder. I would reach over and straighten him out, but his head would flop down again.

I didn't know the term at the time, but that incident was what literary people call foreshadowing. What it foreshadowed was that, after recuperation, I was to spend the balance of the war straightening our 1,000 German POW's in a stockade in England.

After Toul they sent me to a hospital in Paris. I was there a week. Then they shipped me by train to Calais and over the English Channel by boat to Britain.

army hospital in Yeovil. After being discharged from the hospital I was put on limited assignment. For a while, I was a transient officer at Lichfield Barracks, near Birmingham. One of my jobs there was to lead incoming troops in calisthenics. In March, 1945, I got a call to go to the orderly room. "Lieutenant, you are to report to Newbury to take charge of a German prisoner-of-war camp.' The master-sergeant who broke the news to me might just as well have told me I had been named warden at Sing

I was brought up on old movies, going back to the nickleodeon. I had visions of tricky prisoners building trap doors and tunnels and going over the hill in droves. With me left holding the

For a brief moment - but only a moment - I toyed with the idea of asking to be sent back to combat.

Quickly rejecting that foolishness, I set out for Newbury.

NEWBURY IS A small town, about 60 miles southwest of London on the London to Bath road

During the English Civil War, in the 1600s when Oliver Cromwell came to power, Newbury was the site of two battles between the Roundheads and the Cavaliers.

Newbury also is known as the home of the Newbury Race Track, one of the largest horse tracks in Britain.

That's where I was headed for - the Newbury Race Track.

The track had been converted into a U.S. Army depot. All kinds of supplies were stored there prior to being shipped to the front on the continent.

The workers at the depot had been American GIs or English civilians. As we captured more and more Germans, the U.S. Army used them to replace the allied personnel.

The stables, near the track, had been converted into a stockade to house the prisoners. Some of the Germans slept four to a stall. The balance slept in pyramidal tents.

The camp was enclosed with a double ring of barbed-wire fences. Concertina wire was rolled up between the inner and outer ring.

Guard towers, located at each cormer, were equipped with powerful searchlights. The towers were manned by American GI's equipped with M-1 ri-

The orderly room of the camp commander was inside the stockade. The day I arrived at the gate, the corporal of the guard called the orderly room. The officer I was to replace came out to meet me.

He was also a first lieutenant in the U.S. Army, but a real Spit-and-Polish type. His shiny boots and full dress uniform made my old Eisenhower jacket and combat boots look rather shabby. I said, "Hi!"

His first words were "What is the date of your rank?"

He thought he was going to remain at the place and wanted to make sure he would be in charge, not me. He was obviously relieved when he found that he outranked me.

I was sort of relieved, too. Who wants to be head watchdog at a prison camp. I said to myself.

But Spit and Polish was soon assigned to another stockade. I was on

It didn't take me long to find that most of the POWs were placid, reasonable men. They were perfectly willing to sit out the remainder of the war. Those were the ones who had their heads screwed on right.

There were others. The kind that hero-worshippers and movie directors like. Gung-ho young SS-men, with lightning marks tattooed on their arms, and I was four months in an American vague notions of escape on their minds. Fortunately, they were in the minority.

> THE U.S. GUARD company was quartered in a building outside the enclosure, not far from the gate.

Inside the stockade, with the 1.000 Germans, were myself and my squad of seven men. All were non-coms, headed by a master sergeant. All of the them were combat veterans.

After a couple of weeks on the job, I began to wonder who were the prisoners, the Germans or us. We spent most of our time inside the stockade with the German cooks and a few others who had duties inside.

This is an oil painting of a mess hall done of Camp Newbury in "Ocktober" 1945 by a German POW. The outside boilers were used

During the daytime, most of the Germans were outside of the stockade at work in the depot.

At the time of their capture, the Germans had been asked this question: Will 'you agree to work for a small stipend payable in scrip to be redeemed after the war? Those who thought it would be best to be active during their internment said yes. The rest were sent to non-working camps.

Among the POWs at our stockade were crane operators, riggers and other technicians. Their skills were used in moving supplies in and out of the depot.

Inside the stockade, we had Germans who were barbers, tailors, shoe-repairers, watch-ma

Each morning, the Corps of Engineers, the Quartermaster Corps, and other army units would send guard details to the stockade to pick up Germans for work in their section of the

The corporal in charge of the detail presented us with a requisition slip for a specified number of POWs. Before we released the Germans to him, we had him sign a receipt form.

Whoever had composed the receipt form had a macabre sense of humor or was devoid of it entirely. The form read: "Received (blank number) of live German bodies."

They had to return them to us live, too. Workers of that calibre were not expendable

When I took over at the stockade, the German camp leader (called the Lager-fuhrer) was a master sergeant who had won the Iron Cross. Later we were sent four German officers, two captains and four lieutenants. One of the captains had been in charge of supplies for a German Army Corps. He took over from the sergeant as leader of the POWs. The other captain was a doctor, an

M.D. He had graduated from Heidelberg University and had the sabre marks on his cheeks to prove it. More about him later.

EACH MORNING, as they left for work in the depot, the POW's marched out of the gate in columns of five. The German Lager-fuhrer stood on one side of the gate, making sure his men were aligned. I stood on the other and counted them out in fives.

I made daily inspection of the camp with the Lager-fuhrer. I would examine the long grass that grew between the inner and outer strands of barbed wire. I was looking for depressions in the turf. That would tell me whether anyone had tried to crawl out.

Only once did I find such a sign. We had an immediate count of all prisoners and none were missing. Later, I had evidence that made me believe that two of the young POWs had gotten out, stolen some canned goods at the depot, and crawled back in. But the problem of escape did not weigh heavily on my mind. Where, I told myself, would an escaped German POW find assistance in a country that had been plastered with buzz-bombs, vbombs, and continual raids by the German Luftwaffe?

On periodic occasions, we would inspect all of the possessions of every POW. Before going to work on that day, the prisoners were instructed to place everything they owned on top of their beds.

MY SQUAD and a guard detail would examine all of the objects displayed. They also would look into stoves, up stove-pipes and anywhere else that one could imagine a prisoner would hide something. They were, of course, looking for knifes or other weapons.

As I walked around the camp with the Lager-fuhrer, I would examine the earth in the stockade to see if any of it had been disturbed. One day, I saw a spot that looked as if it had recently been upturned. I turned to the Lager-fuhrer. "Tell one of your men to get a shovel and dig there," I told him. A POW began to dig. He unearthed a gallon can filled with small bags of Bull Durham tobacco. We had a German PX in the camp. It sold very few items, which the POWs could buy with their scrip. It sold no cigarettes, but did carry the markings.

That explained the Bull Durham. But why was it buried? I puzzled over this for quite a while.

Then I called in the Lager-fuhrer. "Make an announcement to the prisoners," I instructed him. "Tell them the tobacco will be returned to the man who buried it if he will come in and explain why. No punishment will be given for hiding the can in the ground." Next day, the Lager-fuhrer came into my orderly room with the interpreter and a quiet, middle-aged German POW. He admitted that it was he who buried the tobacco.

"But why?" I asked him, through the

The POW explained that he didn't smoke, but was saving the tobacco to take to a relative in Germany when the war was over.

, The team examined the kitchen and which was adjacent to my orderly the mess hall from top to bottom. As room. usual, both places were scrupulously

Then a doctor on the team, a major, spotted a large box of lemon crystals on a shelf over the sink. Lemon crystals were one of the two powders issued to our troops by the U.S. Army during World War II. They were to be mixed with water to make a drink, something like Kool-Aid.

In addition to lemon, we got some purple crystals that made a drink the GIs called "bug juice." It was a tossup as to which drink tasted worst, but most of us wouldn't touch either one.

The doctor took the box off the shelf and asked the German sergeant what he used the lemon crystals for. "Sir," he said, "We use it to scrub the floors.' The Germans couldn't stand the taste of the stuff either.

My living quarters were in a quonset hut not far from the race track grandstand. A room in the grandstand was used as the American mess hall. That's were I took my meals. One morning we had pancakes for breakfast. I have always been fond of pancakes, but I couldn't eat these. They were one stop away from leather. As I looked around the mess hall, I saw that I told the interpreter what was wrong and he told the doctor. The doctor examined my nose and throat and took my temperature. Then he seemed to hesitate. . .Finally, he said something to the interpreter. "Sir," the interpreter said to me, "the doctor wants to know if you will take a pill?" I downed the pill and left for my orderly room.

Later, I began to have second thoughts. If the situation had been reversed, I wonder if he would have taken the pill from me? Our POW stockade was right in the city of Newbury, not out in the countryside. On the way home from school, a few of the local children would stop at the barbed wire fence and talk to the prisoners. I couldn't permit that, so I phoned the local police station. Two bobbies came to visit me. I told them my problem. They offered to make an announcement in the schools that the area was off limits. Knowing that would attract even more kids, I vetoed the idea. I asked then to just tell the children who had been in the habit of stopping. Then I decided to attack the problem from the inside. I gave orders that a white line be painted on the ground a few feet inside the wire enclosure. I got the German commander to announce to the POWs that the area beyond the white line was off limits. Any prisoner who crossed it would be fired

I instructed the tower guards to fire a warning shot if they saw any prisoner cross the line

Two nights later, as I was about the climb into the sack, the sound-powered telephone that connected my quarters with the stockade began to ring.

It was the corporal of the guard. "Lieutenant," he shouted, "we just shot a POW. He was over the white line."

I jumped into my clothes and barreled up to the stockade.

On the way I thought: What will the Red Cross make of this? What will I tell headquarters? Why hadn't the guard just fired a warning shot? When I got to the stockade, I found that the information given to the corporal had been exaggerated. The guard had shot at a POW. He had not hit him. No one had been hurt.

I was relieved, but mad as hell. I called in the German commander and read the riot act to him. This is an example of what could happen, I told him. Make sure your men stay away from that line in the future.

Then I went back to my quarters and tried to sleep.

About 10 days went by. Then the German commander asked for permission to speak to me. When they were in my orderly room, the interpreter pointed to the commander and said:

"He wants to know if it's all right to take in the laundry?"

For a minute, I thought that either he or I had cracked up. I didn't know what he was talking about.

After a bit of questioning, the story came out. The white line had cub through an area where a POW clother.

The POW who had caused the wa ing shot to be fired was merely trim to reclaim a shirt he had hung up to fore the white line had been painted.

'. . . but in spite of all warnings friendships sprang up between the Americans and Germans.'

He had buried it because at every in- I was not the only one who pushed his spection when he had put his property on the bed, the tobacco had disappeared. The GI guards who made the inspection always stole it.

HIGH ECHELON, at U.S. headquarters in London, kept sending me memos warning that it was dangerous for us to fraternize with the prisoners. I drilled that into my squad, but inspite of all warnings, friendship sprang up betwen the Americans and Germans. An American sergeant, who had been in the service for a ling time, was getting out on points. When he left for the U.S., the Lager-fuhrer presented him with a gift. It was the Iron Cross that he had risked his neck for in combat. I would often drive my jeep around the race track that enclosed the depot.

My purpose was to make sure the guards were on their toes. On more than one occasion, I saw POWs run to warn dozing guards of my approach.

On hot summer days, as I walked inside the stockade, I would often have to throw stones up at the guard towers. That was to keep the guards awake. Guard tower duty is a boring job. One day, I happened to see an American guard herding 20 POWs into the rear end of a 21/2-ton truck. The last of the prisoners had climbed in and taken a seat at the end of the bench. Before he climbed in after the prisoner, the guard held up his rifle for the German to hold.

A few months before, these two men had been trying to kill each other on opposite sides of the line in France.

THE KITCHEN in the stockade was staffed with German cooks. They prepared all of the food the POWs ate. The diet was heavy on potatoes which the Germans seemed to love.

One day we were being inspected by a team of officers sent down by London. When I entered the kitchen with the inspection team, the German mess sergeant and his men snapped briskly to attention. That is, they snapped their heads smartly to the right. Germans never use the hand salute indoors or when the head is not covered.

plate away. Later in the day, I saw a group of POWs carrying several large GI containers, full of pancakes, from the American mess to the stockade. I stopped the guard and asked what was going on. He said the pancakes were left over the American breakfast.

The Germans, who cleaned the mess hall after meals, had asked, and had

overs to the German mess. Great, I thought to myself. Wait until they eat those. We are finally getting back at the Germans for getting us into Next day, about mid-morning, I pressed the buzzer that connected my orderly room with the German orderly room. When "Jersey," the German interpreter, came in, I ordered a pot of coffee. He had that name because he had once lived in New Jersey before returning to Germany and being draft-

When Jersey came back from the German kitchen, he not only had the coffee, he had a big tray containing a large mound of tasty-looking coffee I knew what food the Germans were issued and I knew they never got the ingredients to make cake. 'Where did these come from?" I asked.

German cook had ground up the tough pancakes left over from the American mess. He had reconstituted them into flour from which he had made some ade. He had begun by asking for special treatment which I refused to grant.

One morning I woke with sore throat. As the day progressed, my throat got worse. I decided to visit the dispensary

This line-drawing of two POWs also was done by a German prisoner. Behind the tents in the background is a building which was part of the racetrack complex before the war.

Antiques: What makes 'em so fascinating?

By Corinne Abatt staff writer

An area couple who were anxious to share their love of antiques asked not to have their names used. They know what it means to be robbed and they are, understandably and judiciously, cautious

They collect as a couple. Over the 20 or so years that they have been actively acquring, first brass and accessories, then major pieces of English and early American furniture, they have shared adventures, joys, triumphs, and, now and then, disappoint-

Collection has become a way of life whether they are on business trips r their professions or purely pleasure, they find opportunities to meet other collectors, attend auctions, and visit museums.

The latter is a vital component of a collector's life, this couple agreed, pointing out their extensive personal library of books on antiques and mentioning their visits to museums all over the country.

"The only way you can pursue this kind of hobby," he said, "is through knowledge - to see and touch, to learn and read. We felt we had to have a good library.

SHE MENTIONED they have visited Williamsburg a lot in the early years of building their collection. They enjoy touring Wintherthur, the Du Pont home in Delaware where there is also a fine collection. They traveled to South Carolina to see Southern furniture, done extensive research in the Connecticut Valley and have found some choice pieces in northern Michigan.

Her husband added positively, Greenfield Village has the finest collection of American 17th, 18th, 19th century furniture in the Midwest. And the Ford Museum has a superb collection of Chinese export porcelain. It's one of the best study collections for a collector.

As they talked about how they started - she became interested in brass candlesticks, and he gradually developed an interest in furniture she said, "We never purchase anything unless we both like it." Her husband said, "She's much better at color that I am, and I think I have a better feel for form and style of furniture."

They both quoted from the book, "Fine Points of Furniture," by Albert M. Sach and said they had bought from his firm. Sach will speak at 2 p.m. Friday, May 17 in the Henry Ford Museum Theater in conjunction with the Village Antiques Show.

He recalled that once when he was in the hospital awaiting major surgery, he saw a desk in a magazine ad a great deal of the fun, these and by a Chicago dealer. He left the hospi-other collectors will tell you — addtal, made the trip to Chicago, inspected and bought the piece and then was ready to get on with the surgery.

A STORY goes with every piece candlestick, porcelain bowl, high boy, low boy, corner cupboard or Massachusetts block front chest. And that's other collectors will tell you - adding their personal history to the already substantial legacy of each antique.

He explained they have both English and American furniture in their home, probably also true of many co-

Greenfield Village hosts 1st show

The first Village Antiques Show, May 16-18, will be in the most natural of settings, Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village. It is also a benefit for those two interlocked institutions.

The collectors and resident authorities on various types of antiques who are behind this show are many. Out in front as chairpersons are Bill and Bobbi Mullen and Fred and Mimi Reed. Jordon Humberrstone, who has a lifelong link with those two institutions is show manager.

And the coup for veteran and new collectors alike is the lecture by Albert M. Sack, vice president of Israel Sack Inc. at 2 p.m. Friday, May 17, in Henry Ford Museum Theater.

He's considered one of the top authorities in is field and is the author Furniture," in which he illustrates the good, better, best ranking.

His topic is "Authenticating American Antique Furniture." The $5 ticket includes a tea and pastry reception.

Sack is the son of company founder, Israel Sack, a pioneer antiques dealer and authority on American antique furniture. The elder Sack played an integral part in assisting Henry Ford I in acquiring artifacts for the museum and vil-

There will be more than 40 dealers from 19 states in the show.

The excitement starts with a cocktail preview and dinner Wednesday evening. Show hours are 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday and Friday, May 16 and 17, and 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday, May 18. The site is Lovett Hall. Tickets are $5 each. All proceeds help support Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village.

"Ketchup? Sure, here you go Bill." Yes, big businessmen that we are we conversed within earshot of the drivein window and the carry-out speaker.

Stuffing down a burger and some fries, I said, "We want to open a store west of here but we can't right now with moving into our new store and all." "Three burgers and two french fries" someone barked into the microphone as our business luncheon contin-

"Hey, Bill" I said, with mayonnaise on my mustache, "Why don't you and Judy open an Art Store and we'll be partners." Bill's fry, ladened with ketchup, bent in half as it halted half way to his mouth.

Momentarily we stopped chewing, looked at each other and then I added "then you two would be as broke as we are." Then we laughed and nothing more was said.

Well, if you could see the rate of speed at which we eat then you would probably understand why nothing more was said. Anyway, a day or so later Bill called me on the phone and said,

artifacts

"About our conversation . um maybe we . . . um we could and a day or so after the phone call Bill and Judy turned their "maybe's" into "will bes" and we became partners.

Yes, the indigestion from our business luncheon only took a couple of days to heal, but look what it produced. A new store in Plymouth. It's still a family affair, we just added another family. Bill and Judy Oldenburg and their two sons, Aaron and Brian.

TURNING "maybes" into "will bes" is pretty much what art is all about. Instead of only wondering if you can draw, try to draw. If you are wondering if you can paint, try painting.

If there is a rule in art try breaking it, mix media, try different subjects. If you're too tight, loosen up. If you're too loose, tighten up. Often many who are newly introduced to art, come through a maze of rules that they have either heard of or read about.

Turning maybe's into will bes is risky business. Try stepping out of the established pattern or procedure for your art. In artwork, the worst that can happen is that you ruin the picture. So big deal! You probably learned something in the process. My most enthusiastic students are those "will bes" that found they can do that which they never thought they could. Sometimes it is good to lay down your learn to draw/paint books and just start doin' your own thing. I love to hear the stories that students and customers tell me when they tried something new or experimental.

There is a certain glow of new life and pride when someone successfully tries the untried to produce a positive art form. That's what Artifolks is all about. . . sounds like a good time to have one, come to think of it.

DALPHINE of Dearborn Heights asked me if I knew how to make a deckled edge on watercolor or heavy paper. "Sure," I said, "you fold the paper where you want the edge, then pull the fold swiftly against the edge of a metal ruler and if you're lucky it will work half of the time."

But "half of the time" isn't good enough. Delphine told me that you can create the irregular look or a deckeled edge by holding a ruler flat on the paper an eighth or quarter of an inch in from the edge.

Then with a wet sponge or rag, begin rubbing the edge back and forth. Almost instantly the moisture and friction begin to wear the edge down to whatever look you desire with no risk of damaging the paper. Thanks Delphine, that's a good tip. This week, I was asked to judge an art contest for the veterans at the Vererans Hospital in Allen Park, sponsored by the Elks Association. M. Pinardi, the past grand exalted ruler, asked if I would take the time, and I am so glad that I did.

Every piece I looked at was a "maybe" turned into a "will be." Perhaps some of the pieces I viewed were done by heroes injured in battle who now battle daily, with heroic persistence. The word "hero" is defined as a person known for a special achievement and these works of art were truely special achievements.

Each artist overcame obstacles that would no doubt discourage the average person comfortable in relative good health. I was not supposed to see any of the artists so that my judging would not be affected

BUT, THE ROOM was hot and they had to open a door into the hallway. I tried to hide my smile so that they wouldn't know that it was obvious that many of the artists just happened to be taking their "I.V." bottles for a walk or their chair for a roll past the open door to see how their particular piece was fairing. I could see faces peeking in with more than just a casual interest.

As I always feel when judging any contest, I wish I could have given out more awards. I wanted to know who these people are and why are they here? How can I pick a winner, who has overcome what to achieve theri finished piece?

Sensing my frustration, Pinardi said, with a smile, "Dave, just look around and pick what looks best to you, never you mind anything else." So I did and here is the list of winners. Really as far as I was concerned, everyone that entered a piece was a winner • First Place - David B. Gier, $50. Second Place - Genevieve Gartner, $35.

• Third Place - Rudolph Mixon, $25. The following 10 received $10 except Calvin Joe Wald received $5 extra for Best Honorable Mention.

Best Honorable Mention - Calvin Joe Wald, William Craft, Edward Mielcarek, Aloysius Iwaniec, Ruth Crenshaw, Thomas Daily, Barbara Callanan, Berry Broadnax, Christopher

Marshell and Joseph Favio. Though I have never been a soldier nor felt the heat of battle, I hope my praise is not discounted when I say Gentlemen and women, I salute you

Peter Rockwell, son of famous illustrator Norman Rockwell, followed his father into art but found his own form of expression in sculpture.

Peter Rockwell has exhibit in Plymouth

Sculptor Peter Rockwell will be featured at a one-man show May 11-29 in Plymouth

Rockwell, the son of the late artist Norman Rockwell, also will discuss his Technique in Relation to the Tradition of Sculpture" at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, May 16, in the Plymouth Canton High School Theater on Canton Center Road. The public is invited. Admission is $3.

The one-man show will be presented in the famous Frank Lloyd Wright "Snowflake House" and its surrounding gardens. The property recently was purchased by Tom Monaghan, owner of the Detroit Tigers and Domino's Pizza, who has been an admirer of Wright architecture for many years.

PERSONS ATTENDING an opening benefit Friday, May 10, will have an opportunity to meet Rockwell. The benefit will be held 7-10 p.m. Tickets are $25 per person.

After May 11, the show will be open to the public free of charge. Anyone interested in acquiring any of Rockwell's works will have a chance to do so while viewing the exhibition and house.

Entrance to the exhibit and house is available only through a shuttle service that will leave every half-hour from the Frame Works on Penniman Ave. in downtown Plymouth.

Hours of the show will be 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Saturday, 7-9 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, and 1-5 p.m. Sunday. Group tours may be arranged by calling the Plymouth Community Arts Council (PCAC) at 455-5260. Two lectures, to take place during the exhibition, are being planned

Helen Milliken will be honorary chairman of the show. It will be sponsored by the PCAC and the Frame Works, and partially funded by the Michigan Council for the Arts.

ROCKWELL HAS said that because his mother and an elder brother were painters in addition to his famous father, he never was interested in painting as his own form of expression.

Rockwell arrived in Italy in 1961 planning to stay six months or a year, but "never got around to leaving," he said. He stayed in Italy partly because of the proximity to marble and partly because of the nearness to the excellent bronze foundries of Rome. Another advantage of living in Italy was that being able to look at carvings by people like Bernini, Donatello and Michelangelo was for me one of the most important ways to learn," Rockwell said.

Wright, who died in 1959, is famous for the use of materials native to the building site. Further, he used glass extensively to give the illusion of being
