Township will seek 4-mill tax limit in July

By Gary M. Cates staff writer

Plymouth Township voters will be asked to authorize up to four mills property tax for township operation on July 29.

The Township Board voted 6-0 Tuesday night to seek authorization for increasing the millage, although officials don't anticipate levying the entire amount. Treasurer Mary Brooks was absent proved by residents. According to the tax bills would be one mill from last nothing to be alarmed by." year, township officials argue the increase only is a half mill.

On the 1984 tax bills, which generated revenues for the 1985 budget, the township chose not to collect an additional half-mill available for police. The 1984 bill was the last year that that half-mill could be collected.

If voters approve a four-mill limit, Breen said it would be difficult to determine how much of what is levied will go toward police or fire.

Both departments are expected to cost more than $600,000 in the coming year, which means the one mill for fire won't cover that entire operation as one mill is expected to generate $351,000 on the 1985 tax bill.

Likewise, Breen said it's impossible to determine how much of the levy is needed to meet police costs.

Breen said the township depends heavily upon state-shared revenues to meet its expenditures. According to him, 37 percent of township revenues come from state sources, while 33 percent come from property taxes and the remaining 30 percent are township generated (golf course revenues, administrative fees, etc.)

"We would not be able to fund services without state-shared revenues," he said.

THE BOARD would like to levy 3.88 mills on the 1985 tax bills, even though it exceeds the amount needed for expenses.

Part of the idea is to bolster the township's fund balance, which has been depleted in the past year by depending on it to balance the budget and pay for the capital outlay in forming a police department.

In 1984, the township started out with a fund balance of $908,000 and is expected to end the year with some $282.500 - of which $140,000 is reserved for future solid waste disposal cost increases.

The township auditor told the board the surplus would be too low by the end of the year and should be built up.

According to the auditor, the surplus is needed for meeting cash flow and the township "may be a little strapped for cash in October and November but it's Paying cash for the police purchases, rather than financing them over time, was a smart decision, the auditor said.

"The township has no installment debt at all. The law enforcement outlay may have hurt the fund balance in the short run but in the long run it helped the township because you avoided the high interest rates," he said.

Ideally, the fund balance should be between $350,000 and $600,000 roughly 10 percent of total expenditures or the equivalent of two months' expenses.

By going to a millage rate of 3.88 mills, the township would be able to meet 1986 expenses as well as building back the fund balance.

'My recommendation is that we go for the full limit and bite the bullet.'

- Maurice Breen township supervisor

BREEN TOLD the board rather than asking for 2.88 mills (making 3.88 with the special fire mill), they should seek authorization for the full charter limit.

For those of us who have been on the board for some time, we have pointed to this year as the year we would have to do a total review of the township and our level of services," he said

"My recommendation is that we go for the full limit and bite the bullet," he said

The supervisor said his recommendation was based on residents' desires for more services. He said such services can't be provided without increasing revenues.

Breen said historically the township has maintained low taxes, and still would be one of the lowest taxed communities even if it went to five mills.

We take up only 8 percent of the total tax bill. It's time we moved the millage rate to respond to the actual and perceived needs within the community," he said.

Tanger Elementary School would become a preschool center and its pupils transferred to Farrand Elementary under a plan being considered by the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

The school board is reviewing a proposal for shifts in school attendance areas which have been recommended for the next two school vears

Superintendent John M Hoben presented recommendations to the board Monday from the housing committee which has been meeting over the past several months The board is expected to act on the proposals at one of its next two meetings programs include Headstart, PLUS, and Infant and Preschool Special Education Program (IPSEP).

Tanger is located on Five Mile west of Haggerty, to the northeast of LakePointe Subdivision, while Farrand is located in the middle of

Head Start and PLUS now are located at Central Middle School and IPSEP at Farrand. A year ago there was some discussion of consolidating the preschool programs at Starkweather which now is used as an adult education center.

Two years ago, as a result of declining enrollment, Tanger and Starkweather shared the same principal, and this year the two schools were basically consolidated when Starkweather no longer was used as an elementary building.

SHOULD THE plan be implemented as proposed, Tanger Elementary would become a preschool center in the 1986-87 school year, with pupils in grades one to six transferred to Farrand Elementary. Only minor changes were suggesting having the kindergarten children from Tanger Elementary who live in Honeytree transferred to Fiegel Elementary, and moving some children who live close to Allen Elementary from Tanger to Allen.

Eventually the housing committee has recommended that all Honeytree elementary-age pupils attend Fiegel which is on Joy Road east of I-275 across from Honeytree and Stoneybrook.

The changes are designed so that children may attend the schools closest to their homes. Hoben said public meetings have been held on the changes for next year, and he doesn't think this "will meet with any dissatisfaction at this point."

FOR THE following year, it is proposed that students living in Stoneybrook be transferred from Tanger to Allen.

The other Tanger students would

Students living in Fellows Creek would be transferred from Farrand to Hulsing Elementary. Sixth graders now housed at Hulsing would then attend Central Middle School.

Besides establishing a separate building for preschool programs, the committee's plan would work toward the more long-range goal of dividing the schools by grade so that all elementary schools would return to housing grades kindergarden to five, middle schools grades six to eight, and high school grades nine to

Some of the changes are needed to alleviate overcrowding at the elementary schools and to accommodate this year's large class of ninth graders, said Dick Egli, community relations director.

Plymouth Township trustees approved a police configuration plan Tuesday night, expected to cost $643.000 in the first year

By Gary M. Cates

staff writer

The township is in the process of terminating a $467,000-a-year contract for shared police services with the City noons and two during the midnight of Plymouth and plans to have its own department in place by July 1.

Besides approving the configuration plan, the board also confirmed the appointment of a police commander, authorized the hiring of remaining personnel, and accepted bids for furnishing the police station now under construction

The configuration plan calls for a chief, commander, 10 full-time officers, three full-time officers in training, up to 12 part-time officers, three clerical and computer personnel, a and works primarily in the crime prehead dispatcher, six part-time vention and Neighborhood Watch prodispatchers, an ordinance officer and gram. He holds a master's degree in 30 Community Service Officers (CSOs) criminal justice from Wayne State Uni-

ry, the approved plan will allow the criminal justice from Michigan State township to maintain the desired shift ratio of 2-3-2 - a minimum level of two cars on the road at all times during the day shift, three cars during after-

The number of fulltime officers is up from the original projection of 10 to 13, with the addition of three full-time officers in training. Consequently, parttime officers have been reduced from the original projection of 23 to a maximum of 12

THE BOARD also accepted Berry's recommendation for hiring a $24,700-ayear police commander, or second-incommand. Expected to start work on June 3 is Lawrence Hall of Southgate.

Hall, 31, is a Southgate police officer

According to Police Chief Carl Ber-versity and a bachelor's degree in University.

Three township employees will be reassigned to police positions. The board approved moving Chris Ward and Nancy Miller to full-time positions. Both work part-time with the township's computer system and will use the increased hours to operate the police computer system.

Administrative analyist Kerry Piercy, a trustee candidate in the last township election, will become the head dispatcher for the new department.

In accepting the police configuration plan, the board also authorized the administration to proceed with hiring the remaining personnel.

Included in the plan are 30 volunteer CSOs, which will assist the department with special activities and pair-up with certified officers on patrol. Full-time and part-time officers already have been selected and are expected to start work in June, Berry said.

IN SEPARATE action, the board ac cepted bids for furnishing the police facility being built in a garage behind Township Hall, the corner of Ann Arbor Road and Mill Street.

Architect Stan Tkacz presented the board with low bids for the various furniture, wall fixtures and carpeting. The total program was bid at $33,372, with the exception of window treatments.

'I suggest that the bids for the blinds be held at this time, until I am able to clarify the bids and specifications for this item," Tkacz said.

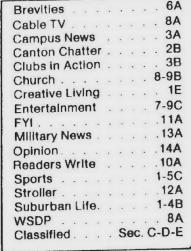

As it stands, without the window blinds, the interior program will be $8,000 under estimates.

The board did decide to award one bid to a company other than the low hidder.

After considerable debate, the bid for carpeting was awarded to H & B Gallery of Plymouth. The board did so because H & B's bid was within 5 percent of the low bid from a Detroit firm.

H & B was selected because it is a local firm and in the past the board has granted contracts to local firms within 5 percent of the low bidder

By Tim Richard staff writer

People would rather have a property tax cut than an early income tax cut, Gov. James J. Blanchard believes. "The property tax is the most burdensome, most out-of-line tax in Michigan," he said.

But state senators - particularly Republicans - prefer to cut the state income tax ahead of schedule. Blanchard thinks he knows why "Legislators fear they will not get credit for property tax rebates, but they will get credit for income tax cuts."

The governor, owner of a house in Pleasant Ridge, is stumping the state for his "Tax Fairness" plan. Its bottom line is to increase the program of property tax rebates for both homeowners and renters from more than $500 million to almost $750 million.

He met last week with suburban newspaper editors and reporters. bringing along a host of charts.

THE PROPERTY tax rebate is a check you get from the state if your homestead property tax exceeds 3.5

percent of your income. If you're a renter. 17 percent of your rent is considered to be property tax.

The state rebate is 60 percent of your "excess" property tax. It used to be lumped in with your state income tax refund. This year, for the first time, you will get the rebate in a separate check. That's because Blanchard and state Treasurer Robert Bowman want to make sure you understand what you're getting.

Nearly half of all Michigan households — 1.5 million — get such rebates, topping $500 million. "Michigan is very generous with its rebate program," Blanchard said, frankly giving credit for the program to his predecessors in state government.

Suburbs of Detroit are big beneficiaries of rebates, Blanchard said, because of high voted property taxes for schools. In out-Wayne County, the average property tax bill is 17 percent above the state average; in Oakland, 45 percent above the state average.

IN HIS JANUARY state of the state message, the governor proposed a $65 Democrats opposed it.

His new Fairness Plan proposes another $150 million in permanent rebates. It's part of a package of 11 tax bills that are "tie-barred" - none becomes law unless all are passed.

One bill would drop the state's income tax rate from 5.1 to 4.6 percent in mid-1986, a full year ahead of schedule. The House Taxation Committee, dominated by Blanchard's fellow Democrats, was scheduled to take up the package this week.

THE SENATE plan, adopted Feb. 27. would roll back the income tax rate to 4.6 percent next Jan. 1, six months earlier than Blanchard's Fairness Plan.

The income tax cut was passed 30-5. with bipartisan support. Area senators backing it were Republicans Doug Cruce of Troy, Richard Fessler of West Bloomfield, Rudy Nichols of Waterford and Robert Geake of Northville; and Democrats Jack Faxon of Farmington Hills, William Faust of Westland and Patrick McCollough of Dearborn.

Two outstate Republicans and three

The Senate plan also would increase the personal income tax exemption from the current $1,500 per person a year to $1,750.

'The Senate doesn't have the funds to make that kind of cut." Blanchard said. He felt the House would be more amenable to his plan.

"THIS IS an ideal time for tax fairness," Blanchard went on.

'We're a year and a half away from an election. We're out of the woods financially. By Nov. 30, the state will be completely out of debt. No matter what else happens, we're going to have a tax cut.

He referred to a 0.25 percent surcharge which was part of the controversial 1.75 percent income tax rate increase the state adopted in March of 1983. That surcharge has been used to retire an accumulated debt of $1.7 billion. That surcharge, Blanchard noted, will expire Nov. 30.

The end of the surcharge will bring the rate down to 5.1 percent - the rate it was at under Republican Gov. William G. Milliken, Blanchard noted, The "normal" rate is considered to be 4.6

voted under Milliken.

OTHER PARTS of the Blanchard Fairness Plan are more controversial than the property tax rebate. Blanchard would • Tax Michigan insurance companies at the same tax rate as out-of-state companies, adding $45 million in revenue. The U.S. Supreme Court recently ruled that split rates are unconstitutional. States must either repeal higher taxes on "foreign" companies or raise taxes on "domestic" firms. Blanchard favors the latter course.

• Tax capital gains on the sale of stocks and bonds, adding $65 million. 'The Grosse Pointers were against that until we pointed out that Ronald Reagan did it," Blanchard said.

• Tax the pay of military personnel on duty here, adding $25 million. Blanchard said Michigan is one of only a handful of states which doesn't levy such a tax.

• Tax financial institutions and administrative service organizations percent, but a temporary hike had been (ASOs), which are currenty almost exempt - $18 million.

> THESE AND other, smaller items would bring in $188 million in new revenue

Blanchard would use that new revenue to 1) grant a single business tax deduction for research and development, estimated to cost $40 million in revenue, and 2) implement his property tax rebate program.

How about raising the 4-percent sales tax and using that to cut property taxes?

Not yet, Blanchard said. "To change it, you would have to have a constitutional amendment. You would have to have time to run a campaign. I don't see that happening in the near future.

"But some day," he predicted, "they (voters) are going to want a sales tax increase to cut the property tax, dollar for dollar

"Our sales tax is the most popular. It's below the average. Our income tax is average. But our property tax is "way off the charts."

No sales tax vote ----Blanchard

Gov. James Blanchard is unwilling to support a vote on increasing the state sales tax for public transportation - at least until tri-county leaders unite behind the plan.

Leaders of the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority want a November 1985 referendum on raising the sales tax from 4 percent to 5 percent to give SEMTA its first earmarked tax.

"They're going to have the local units down here." Blanchard said, referring to Detroit Mayor Coleman Young, Oakland County Executive Daniel Murphy, Wayne County Executive William Lucas and Macomb County Chairman Walter Franchuk.

Raising the sales tax would require a constitutional amendment approved by voters. The Legislature would have to place it on the ballot. "The Legislature won't respond unless there's a consensus, Blanchard said, adding, "I don't even sign it."

Added state Rep. W.V. Brotherton, R-Farmington, in a separate interview "Nobody here is supporting it.'

SEMTA fears it will have to close up shop later this year unless the federal government maintains its transit operating subsidies and the state either allows the sales tax vote or comes up with an additional $8 million grant

Blanchard warned SEMTA leaders that to win legislative support, they must 1) place a cap on the cost of the downtown People Mover project, which has leaped from an estimated $137 million to more than $200 million, and 2) set a timetable for finishing the 2.9-mile elevated electric line.

Steven, 11, was one of the top 25 winners at his grade level competing in the regionals held April 13 at University of Detroit. As one of the qualifiers in a group of about 250 students, he will travel to Central Michigan University in Mount Pleasant this weekend to compete against several hundred other students who also qualified at their regionals. About one student per 100 in each grade from each school was selected to comand Northville townships - now go to the state Senate, where local lawmakers will attempt to delete language added at the last minute by Detroit representatives.

They have added a clause to our moratorium bill which says Detroit reserves the right to do whatever they want with the balance of the DeHoCo land. That all got in right on the last day," said Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth Township.

Law authored the moratorium bill, which is being sought because of the number of prisons planned for the Plymouth/Northville township area.

Three state prisons are targeted for a one-mile stretch of Five Mile Road, which divides the two townships. On the Northville side is the existing Phoenix Correctional Facility (311 inmates) and the Scott Correctional Facility (550 inmates) under construction.

On the Plymouth Township side is the DeHoCo compound (being targeted for 650-500 inmates). Although DeHoCo is comprised of 1,100 acres on both sides of Five Mile, the state plans to buy only 123 acres, including the prison compound.

REPRESENTATIVES from Detroit added the clause dealing with the balance of the land right before the moratorium bill was placed on the House floor, according to Law.

HERE WAS no political superstar on the rostrum. Yet friends and families of Schoolcraft College graduates packed the Physical Education Building gymnasium Saturday evening for Building gymnasium Saturday evening for what appeared to be the best-attended commencement in the 20 years that the northwestern Wayne County community college has been granting degrees.

Some 318 of the 867 persons who received degrees this academic year donned traditional blue caps and gowns for the ceremony, whose popularity has increased during the 1980s.

Altogether, President Richard McDowell said, 11,885 persons have received either an associate degree or a certificate of program completion since the college opened its doors.

A RECORD of sorts may have been set by Jennifer J. Lucas. The Livonia resident was awarded four degrees at once — associate in general studies, associate in arts, associate in applied sciences and associate in science.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Freiman of Plymouth saw three of their nine children receive degrees at the same ceremony — Thomas (engineering), Patricia and Therese (science).

And 78 persons earned two degrees, while five earned three.

THE COLLEGE looked to its own community in finding speakers — Lowell T. Cook, president of the Faculty Forum and business instructor since 1967; and two winners of distinguished alumni awards. They were Dr. Joseph Koppel, 41, now associate professor in Michigan State University's hotel, restaurant and institutional management program; and Timothy Tiernan, 34, of Westland, civic activist and account manager at Ford Motor Co.

HONORARY DEGREES went to:

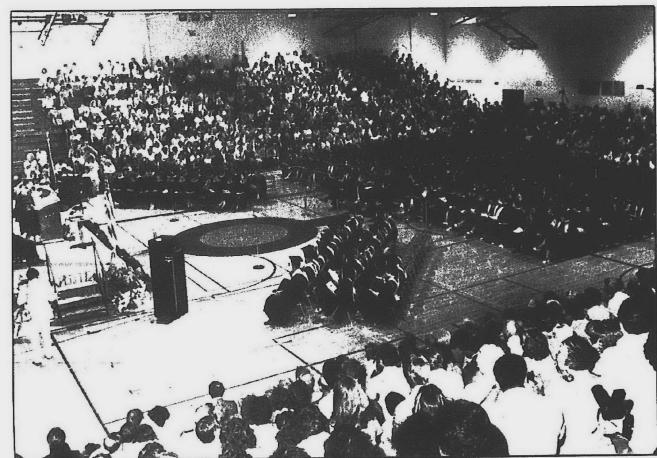

• Dunbar Davis, retired district judge in the Northville-Plymouth-Canton area, who "has actively involved area youth in the procedures of law including taking court to high schools for life sessions, allowing high school students to serve as advisory jurors in court cases, and promoting mock trials by high school students" — honorary associate in arts and sciences.

• Mark A. McQuesten, first Schoolcraft graduate ever elected to the board of trustees (1975-81), editor of the Campus Globe, member of the Student Senate and community activist who is now studying for the Catholic priesthood — honorary associate in arts and sciences.

• John N. Santeiu Jr., Garden City funeral director, life member of the Schoolcraft College Foundation, president of the foundation form 1982-4, donor, instrumental in obtaining a $50,000 bequest for the foundation and civic volunteer — associate in arts and sciences.

McDowell said 47 graduates were inducted into Phi Theta Kappa national honorary society.

The dean's list and other individual honors will be published as they are finalized and made available by the college.

dent Richard McDowell addressed the class of 1984-5.

Retirements, shifts leading to school changes

A number of familiar faces will be gone, or at least relocated, when school opens next year.

It was announced this week that Gus Gorguze, principal of East Middle School and before that at Central Middle, is retiring at the end of the school year. Gorguze has been with Plymouth-Canton Community Schools for 35 years, having started work here in September 1950.

Last week it was announced that

John Sandmann was retiring as director of health, physical education and athletics after 37 years with the school district.

Another principal of longstanding, Earl Gibson, also, will be retiring at the end of the current year. Gibson, now principal at Farrand Elementary, served at the building level and then advanced to central administration for a stint before returning to the principal's chair.

Another longtime employee retiring in June is Malcolm G. "Max" Pierce, fifth grade teacher at Bird Elementary School, who will be ending a 31-year teaching career with Plymouth-Canton. Pierce had taught all of those 31 years in the same fifth grade classroom at Bird.

A CHANGE in location awaits Kent

Buikema who presently is sharing duties as principal of Plymouth Canton High at the CEP and director of secondary education in central office.

Buikema was appointed director of secondary education to replace John Telford when Telford accepted a posi-tion with West Bloomfield Schools. Candidates for the Canton High principalship were interviewed, and a decision apparently made, but the successful candidate reportedly changed his the end of the school year include: Mi-mind and the job has been reposted. chael Kohut, industrial arts teacher at Candidates now are being interviewed for the Canton High job.

Other longtime employees leaving at Plymouth Salem High, retiring after 23 years with the district; Gloria Foust, teacher at Bird Elementary, retiring guze, and the transfer of Buikema to after 191/2 years with the district; and central office, also may result in the Mary Reef, home economics teacher at shifting of familiar faces to new loca- Pioneer Middle, retiring after 14 years employment here.

Razed hotel to be a storage facility

The old Anderine Hotel (most recent- been in its glory days. ly the Lord Nelson) at Mill Street in Old Village has gone from being a popular eating place to a city eyesore. Now it is going to pass into history. The building is due to be razed.

In its place will be built a modern storage facility with individual units nesss will be built in its place. It is seen available. The work is expected to be finished by fall.

The hotel which was built in 1908 adjacent to the railway tracks and proved to a stopping place for traveling men and guests to the city.

The hotel was remodeled in 1948 but peak. it gradually went downhil and was virtually destroyed by fire a few years ago. Since that blaze the ruins have been allowed to remain and it became an eyesore in Old Village area.

Many rumors have, been passed along as to what would happen to it as, the place became day be day a more pitiful sight compared to what it had

It finally passed into control of the Plymouth Community Federal Credit Union and was sold several weeks ago. Many people in the Old Village area are happy that the old hotel is being razed and that a modern storage busias a possible asset to the area

In passing into history, the old Anderine is leaving behind many memories. It was popular in the early days of the city and played an important role when the Daisy Air Rifle plant was at its

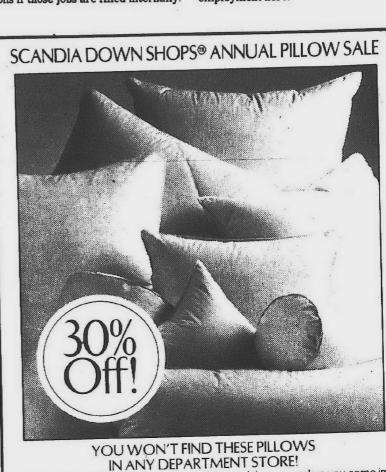

But eventually the years took their toll on the hotel and now it will be only a memory. And local residents will remember it only as a broken-down building that fire had destroyed and made an eyesore of it.

No price has been named when the selling of the building was made known.

And you'll never know how incomparably good they are, unless you come in and compare for yourself.

Now is time for maturity

10A(P,C)

(An open letter to seniors of Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem high schools).

It's that time of year again - time for proms, parties, graduation and commencements.

It's that time when we, as parents and teachers, see you take another step toward adulthood.

It's that time for you to say goodbye to the last three important years of your (high school) life and look ahead to a bright future.

I, as a teacher, see how proud your parents are. I see how the excitement builds for all your plans for the next month of activities. It's such a joy to share it with you.

But suddenly, there is sorrow mixed with joy. I see those smiles turn to tears. Excitement turns to anguish. I see a mother's happiness become sadness in the blink of an eye.

A tragedy happens to one of you.

For some unknown reason, whether from too much party, too fast a car, or an extra slow blink of that eye, a young man becomes a victim. Now he lies in a hospital bed, and we have sorrow to mix with our joy.

None of you want to be lectured over and over again. But yet we adults want to rather impart a little bit of our wisdom so that it won't happen to any of you. We do this not because we are angry, but more because we fear for you and your bright futures.

should make your own decisions and that you should begin to plan your own To the editor: destiny that the decisions that you make are vate. the right ones.

One tragedy is one too many. As the weeks continue, you will have many decisions still to make. Please make the wise one

Let all your memories be those of happiness, joy and togetherness with all your fellow graduating seniors.

Pops concert was a success

To the editor:

We would like to take this opportunity to thank the Plymouth Observer for the coverage that was given to promote this year's Pops Concert. It was greatly appreciated and helped to make a successful evening.

Many thanks also to the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra, Conductor Johan van de Merwe, guest artists Fat Bob Taylor anld Barbara Kondalski. The Prelude Group of the Plymouth Symphony League also would like to thank The Early American Shop for the great job it did in handling ticket sales, Nancy Hill for her generous donation of the delicious popcorn, and all who gave so freely of their time and talents which made for a very enjoyable 1985 Pops Concert.

In general overview, the main issue of public vs. private in education is the viewpoint that government tax-supported school administrations are the governing force in what is qualified education.

In other words, the state knows what is best. The "State First Philosophy" should concern every American citizen because it basically is the democratic tenet of the countries behind the Iron Curtain, and many freedom-loving bastions such as Cuba and the budding democracy of Nicaragua.

Secondly, in the area of qualified or certified or approved or non-approved, if I were starting or running a private school, I would be hesitant to model myself after the public tax-supported government schools based on the ex-ample of their inability to maintain student discipline, high academic standards and teacher-staff professionalism.

Thirdly, the public tax-supported government schools are unable, incapable or intolerant of private sector day school education and don't want to compete in a battle of excellence to attract students.

The government school administration's pre-occupation on the fundamentalist school issue down deep smacks of religious persecution, and its roots go into the battle of religion of humanism vs. the viewpoint of the fundamentalists.

As a Plymouth taxpayer to the public tax-supported government schools, I would rather Superintendent John Hoben turn the efforts he has put into M.A.S.A. toward improving the areas that need attention in the Plymouth-Canton school district, and directly compete with the private fundamentalist, Lutheran and Catholic schools and excel in education instead of pursuing an expensive legal harassment with public tax dollars.

The elected school board members should urge Dr. Hoben in that direction. Paul D. Mooney Jr. Plymouth

Tanger thanks confab helpers

To the editor:

The students and teachers of Tanger School wish to publicly thank each person who participated in the success of our recent Young Author's Conference based on the Wizard of Oz.

The entire staff, under the direction of Paula Holmes, learning specialist, worked many hours to plan the programs and decorations. Other schools in the district provided small group presenters and Pamela Vander Ploeg told marvelous stories during the large sessions. The Dorothy and Oz Opening, presented by Carrol and Jane Nichols began the conference with an unusual flourish.

Tips on safe hobbying

Warning to hobbyists and do-it-yourselfers: Threats to eyesight have been found in home workshops throughout the nation.

Often, the home hobbyist does better in making repairs than in protecting his sight. Eye protection, through the use of impact-resistant safety goggles, is essential of all eye-hazardous tasks, according to experts at the National Society to Prevent Blindness. An estimated 1.3-million Americans suffer eye injuries each year. Forty-five percent of these accidents occur in the home. Most could be prevented.

HOUSE

THE RECORD - The House voted, 245 for and 184 against, in favor of the softer of two proposed investigations of the accuracy of the Congressional Record, the publication that is supposed to chronicle all that happens on the House and Senate floors.

Democrats prevailed as the vote referred the matter to the Administration 'Committee, rather than to the Rules Committee as House Republicans had requested.

If a member does not deliver a speech but inserts written comments into the Record, his remarks are supposed to be typographically distinguished from words actually uttered.

Partly at issue on this vote was the fact that written material recently inserted by two Democratic members was incorrectly indentified as speeches actually dilivered.

Republicans wanted the Rules Comwell as into the overall integrity of the ing a 1984 increase of 4 percent.

Congressional Record

Thomas Foley, D-Wash., who favored sending the matter to the Administration Committee for a less exhaustive probe, attributed the misidentification of the Democrats' written comments to clerical error.

Charles Pashayan, R-Calif., said the Record must be made a more accurate chronicle of floor proceedings because judges and historians rely on it to determine legislative intent.

Members voting no favored the tougher of two proposed investigations of the Congressional Record.

SENATE

PAY CUT - By a tie vote of 49-49, the Senate rejected an amendment to slash the salaries of senators and House members by 10 percent. The proposed $7,510 cut would have lowered lawmaker's pay to $67,590.

Members of Congress in January mittee to look into that discrepancy as received a 3.5 percent pay hike follow-

rollcall report

The congressional budget blueprint, which remained under debate, sets spending priorities and limitations but stops short of releasing federal outlays. Congress later in the year will implement the blueprint when it takes up authorization and appropriation bills.

Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who sponsored the pay cut, said, "I hear constantly in this chamber and across the country that the burden of reducing the federal deficit must be shared by all."

Opponent Carl Levin, D-Mich., said: "The goal of shared sacrifice is to be fair, not punitive, and should not be exploited for political or partisan gain.' Senators voting no were opposed to cutting congressional salaries by 10 percent. Voting no were Michigan Democrats Carl Levin and Donald Rie-

DEFENSE - By a vote of 48 for and 51 against, the Senate refused to kill an

amendement in behalf of lower defense spending than President Reagan wants in fiscal 1986-88. This occurred during blueprint (above). The vote sustained a proposal that defense outlays be allowed to rise only to keep pace with inflation. By contrast, Reagan has recommended a 1986 defense hike equivalent to the inflation rate plus 3 percent, down from the 6 percent "real growth" hike he originally requested.

The vote would permit 1986 defense outlays of $273.1 billion.

Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., who voted to kill the amendment, said senators should "have the courage and have the wisdom not to cut the defense budget below a 3 percent growth. We need that growth to keep this country free." Disagreeing, Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., said "any nation that is a debtor nation, carrying a $200 billion budget deficit debate on the congressional budget and a $40 billion trade deficit, is not a secure nation in any sense of the word.'

living adjustments (COLAs) in fiscal 1986-88 for retired civil service and congressional employees, military re-tirees, recipients of black lung and veterans compensation benefits, and all other federal pensioners.

The vote is expected to increase deficit spending by $11 billion over three years. It occured during debate on the congressional budget blueprint (above.)

President Reagan had requested lower COLAs - of about 2 percent for Social Security recipients and all other federal pensioners. In a previous vote, the Senate restored full Social Security COLAs, at a projected cost, of $22 billion over three years.

Senators voting yes favored full cost-HIKES - The Senate voted, 80 for and 18 against, to permit full cost-of-sioners. Voting yes: Levin and Riegie...

Mother's advice: 'Learn a trade'

N THAT fateful morning years ago when Mother decided she needed help to raise her family of five children, she turned to her only son and said, "You will have to leave school and go to work."

His chin dropped. He had been head of his class in high school and was looking ahead to some good times. But he realized that his mother's wishes came first.

Before he could comment, Mother said, "I want you to learn a trade. I don't care which one it is, but learning a trade will be important."

She waited for a bit of reaction, then Cement Co., a few miles away, had said, "Learning a trade is like going to openings for young fellows desirous of school. And remember, going to school learning a trade. And The Stroller went is that what you have in your head no come a machinist. one can steal from you.

A group of students from Plymouth Centennial Educational Park (CEP) are helping make this season's graduation season.

Students from Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem high schools are helping WDIV-TV (Channel 4) by appearing in a public service announcement asking fellow students to "make prom night the best night of your life" hy not drinking and driving.

The spots are one of a series airing daily on Channel 4 during may and June.

Thousands of students in the Detroit metro area have responded to "Project Graduation," a joint WDIV/Channel 4 and WTVS/Channel 56 effort to promote safe graduation ceremonies.

The participating students have signed pledges not to drink and drive, not to ride with a driver who has been drinking and to call parents if unable to drive home.

WDIV also is airing an "honor roll" of schools with more than 50percent participation and also will send crews to many prom night parties at schools with the highest percentage of participation.

Project Graduation is a coalition of media outlets and community groups, including Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD), Students Against Drunk Drivers (SADD) and radio station WNIC.

is learning a trade, but the main thing to work on a four-year program to be-It was the second time he actually had learned a trade. The first time came when his father took him to the poolroom that was part of our little lunch counter and told him he would have to learn to shoot pool so he could help with the customers who wanted to play the game.

Strangely, he didn't hand The Stroller a cue. Instead he told him that he should roll the balls down the table and get to learn how they twisted and turned. It seemed simple, but balls on a pool table have a funny way of twisting.

Then Father gave him this advice: "You will have to learn all the angles." That was one of the greatest bits of advice he ever received. For in no business or trade can you get along until you have learned all the angles.

For most of the next year, some time was spent every day just rolling the balls up and down the table. This eventually paid off. For when he was only 12 years old, The Stroller had won the Lehigh Valley junior championship. It paid to learn a trade.

IT WAS THE same when he was taught how to open oysters. In those days, you didn't stab them. You had to hit them and open the shell. It was quite a trick, but The Stroller learned

The Father passed away, and Mother was left with her five children and a lot of problems.

They reached a head when she told The Stroller he would have to leave school and learn a trade. He did just that and became the night "boss" in a machine shop of the large Bethlehem Steel Co. The trade had paid off well.

It wasn't long until he found out that life's highway has many twists and turns. When work slackened in the machine shop, Lady Luck took him in to our small-town newspaper. He was fascinated by the work on the old flatbed DIESS

So he got started in a new line, and that took him to the journalism trade which he has followed for more than 60 years

It helped to prove that learning a trade is important. It is something that not many of the young fellows of today realize.

Help for the hopeless UBLERVER & ECCENTRIC HAPPERS

With the economic upturn that has swept many of us into the comfort zone, the public eve seems to focus less and less on the thorny problems that staggered us during the recent recession. A spotlight that once was fixed on the faces of the unemployed has swung into the arenas of apartheid in Africa, the trade imbalance and the federal deficit.

Nearly forgotten, but not gone, are the jobless - the undereducated, displaced and unskilled workers who've given up and fallen through society's cracks.

Canton's Michigan Employment Security Commission office reports that last month. 1.298 persons applied for MESC jobs for the first time. During the same period, employers notified MESC of 111 job openings. MESC placed 164 persons into jobs, most of them in service industries such as restaurants. Thirty-four people found jobs on their own. In all, 15.3 percent of April applicants were hired.

That's a pretty good batting average, says Ed DeChant, MESC counselor whose branch assists Canton, Plymouth, Belleville. Northville and some Livonia residents

We have more employers calling us than we've had for years," he said. "April was one of our best months.'

THERE'S A downside to DeChant's optimism, however.

"I'd estimate that out of 100 job orders, 85 would be for minimum wage, parttime jobs. Fifteen would be good-paying jobs requiring good experience and pretty good skills," DeChant said.

What's disheartening for MESC staffers is that so often, applicants' qualifications and goals "don't match up" with what's available. "We can fill quite readily the jobs that pay more than $5 per hour machinist and tool and die maker jobs that require experience and skill. But those are few and far between," said De-Chant.

'It's getting more and more difficult to fill jobs that offer $3.35 an hour for 15 or 20 hours a week. Many of the applicants are discouraged. They're trying to support families. They need benefits - medical and hospital insurance that isn't offered for minimum wage part-time jobs. It's a real worry DeChant fears that "if this employment trend continues. it's going to create a whole new class - the working poor. It scares me.

The outlook isn't entirely bleak, howev-

A federal program created by the Jobs Training Partnership Act provides onthe-job and classroom training as well as employment referral for persons who meet certain guidelines.

The MESC refers some workers to Livonia's Wayne County Private Industry Corporation (WCPIC), created as a result of the JTPA. But because the program is "designed to serve the hard-to-serve," the program excludes many with minimal incomes, says WCPIC's Jonelle Thibault.

SURPRISINGLY, a similar, less-restrictive local organization is crying for business.

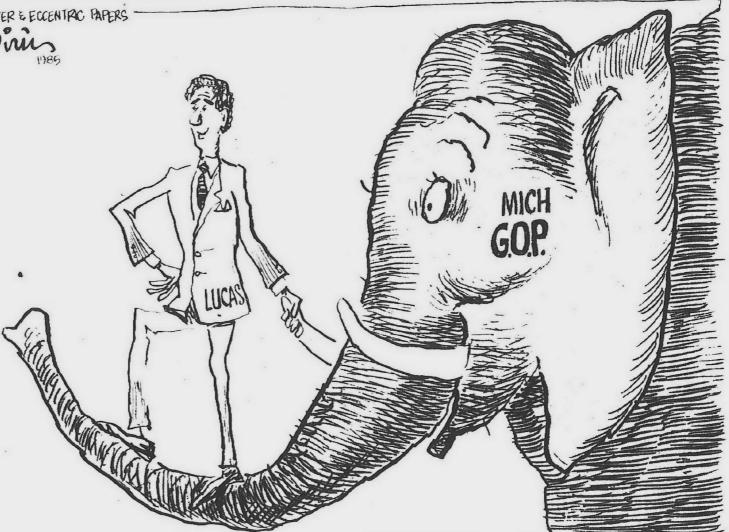

The Greater Opportunities Industrialization Center of Metropolitan Detroit is a multifaceted employment and training operation managing more than $2 million in government and private funds.

With the active support of the UAW, General Motors and other corporations, GOIC since 1972 has enabled 12,000 county residents to participate, at no cost to them, in jobs programs as well as computer, auto mechanics, GED and secretarial classes. It has placed 5,000 people in good, well-paying jobs. GOIC now is engaged in an exciting GM-UAW "jobmatching" and training project.

"Despite this, our organization remains Detroit's best-kept secret, and we don't know why," says GOIC chairman Rev. Dr. Roy Allen.

MESC AND WCPIC officials say they're aware of GOIC, yet use it only "on occasion

Something is wrong. It seems a little communication could go a long way toward alleviating a lot of the frustration and despair felt by the unemployed.

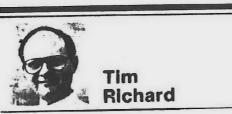

Race won't hurt Lucas

THE LESS written about Bill Lucas' race, the better. It will be a minimal factor, at most, if and when the Wayne County executive decides to run for governor.

If the Democrat-turned-Republican is defeated in the attempt, it won't be because he's black

The interminable discussion of his possible candidacy reminds one of the 1960 presidential campaign when there was endless speculation on how Protestants would take to a Catholic named John F. Kennedy.

It made little difference because another Catholic named Alfred E. Smith had drawn the fury in 1928. The bubble of anti-Catholicism had been pricked by the time JFK rolled onto the scene. Protestant Americans no longer believed Catholics were horned devils.

that he was a dull candidate compared to Don Riegle.

The novelty of a black running for statewide office in Michigan has pretty much evaporated.

No black person has been governor of a state since post-Civil War Reconstruction days. If Lucas makes it, surely it will be like Oakland County, which made townships pay for the sheriff's road patrol, Lucas insisted on a free ride for the Wayne County townships. Many Wayne County rednecks forgot they were rednecks with that kind of free ride.

He was a hero in Plymouth's holiday parades. If he can be a hero there, Kalamazoo and Escanaba will have few qualms.

In 1982, Lucas won the Democratic nomination for Wayne County executive against several far better candidates with records of advocacy of county reform. He cut very deeply into the white vote. The black vote was 95 percent in his favor.

THAT BRINGS us to the real signifi-

can't take up slack

Private charities

THOSE WHO espouse conservative government spending frequently contend that the government should cut back on aid programs, that private resources can best be used to help those in need.

Yet it is more and more evident that private resources are not enough, that it is up to the collective will of the people, in the form of government, to ensure that something is done to alleviate the conditions under which a good percentage of the population suffers.

A new case in point is the Salvation Army's 300-bed Harbor Light Center in downtown Detroit. The national organization has said that either its $600,000 deficit incurred by operating the center has to be eliminated, or the center will be closed.

Even with a state contribution of $12 per day, the center has been going deeper in the hole. There are presently some efforts in the state Legislature to increase the state's contribution to the center to $17 per day.

DURING THE last year the center served 4,805 people. What will happen to the hundreds of unfortunates who found shelter and sanctuary at the Harbor Light? The center was for many a means of staying alive, at least for a time, often until some form of rehabilitative help was available.

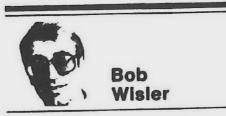

Are we to allow them to go out on their own to seek refuge and understanding in a world where the refuges are strained and dwindling?

We are at the same time approaching a point in our society where the poor, the unskilled and the disadvantaged have fewer and fewer opportunities.

According to a University of Michigan study completed by a former deputy assistant secretary of U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, more and more Americans are slipping into poverty.

Nancy Amidei, adjunct professor of social work, said: "The numbers are sobering: 35 million people - nearly 40 percent of them children - live below poverty while another 12 million have incomes just above the poverty threshold."

According to Amidei, who is also for-mer director of the U.S. Senate Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs. "It isn't just that the poor are increasing or that more of the poor are women. Since 1978, the government's own statistics show that the percentage of fulltime workers who are poor has gone up by one-third."

CALCULATED IN inflation-adjusted dollars, Amidei said, roughly one-third of the nation's poor families needed less than $1,000 to escape poverty in 1978. Today that's true for only 15 percent of the poor families. The majority would need more than $3,000 to get over the poverty line.

This is understandable if you consider that there are now more minimum-wage jobs in the fast-food industry than in manufacturing.

Amidei suggests that while economic indicators are looking better than they have in months, many social indicators are looking worse that they have in years.

"In the face of mounting evidence that proverty and its consequences are growing, the president and Congress have cut back on help, without taking any steps to assure that other sources of help - local, private, voluntary - had been put in place first."

Amidei says the best solution to the problem is not handouts but adequate wages from paying jobs. But for people who work but earn too little, or who aren't employable, "we must be prepared to help with the basics: food, housing, medical care."

The study bears out what many contend: Cutting government loose from social welfare programs and hoping that private programs will take up the slack is so much wishful thinking.

DETROIT WENT through the throes of speculation about black politicians until William T. Patrick Jr. broke the ice by being elected to the city council back in the '50s.

The ice was melted by Richard Austin who became the first black nominee for mayor in 1969. He paved the way for Coleman Young's victory in 1973.

Statewide, Otis Smith calmly chilled the racial issue by being elected to the Michigan Supreme Court in the '60s. Austin's race caused barely a ripple when he was elected secretary of state in 1970. It was raised briefly when Austin sought the U.S. Senate nomination in 1976, but the truth is news. But a critical factor to white voters? Not in Michigan.

LUCAS IS warmly accepted by whites. One reason is his speech - articulate, with a West Indian accent, not the hypedup southern rhetoric of the Rev. Jesse Jackson. Indeed, if you should happen to catch a Lucas speech, ask yourself afterwards: What did he say?

Lucas uses a lot of words but says nothing of substance, certainly nothing threatening to whites. He simply can't be compared to Coleman Young, who still seethes with hatred about his Detroit high school days when kids from Grosse Pointe were bused in Another reason is that as sheriff, Lucas took care of his white constituents in the townships of western Wayne County. Uncance of the racial factor. The white backlash will be insignificant, but will blacks cross over to vote for a black Republican?

I honestly can't answer that one. Certainly, Young helped Republican Gov. William G. Milliken's 1978 campaign by holding back on criticism of the governor and by not busting his tail for the Democratic nominee.

There is no question that blacks will give 95 percent support to black non-partisan and Democratic candidates. But Republican Lucas doesn't need monolithic black support to be elected governor just 12, 15 or 20 percent, like Milliken.

These speculations on race overlook one thing: Michiganians may not vote for or against Bill Lucas. They may just decide to vote for Jim Blanchard.

Parents need to tax own time

AMERICANS APPEAR to be willing to put their money where their mouths are concerning quality education. But is that enough?

A Michigan State University Survey shows 81 percent of those polled agreed to pay $200 more in taxes per year to raise teacher salaries.

Ever since the U.S. Department of Education issued its "A Nation at Risk" report which outlined the shortcomings of public education, parents have been warned that improving schools was going to hit them in their pocketbooks.

WE PROBABLY shouldn't be surprised that parents are in agreement over the need for higher school taxes. When you stop to think about it, it's the American

Americans have a peculiar notion that if we dump enough money on a problem, the problem will disappear. And the deficiency in our educational system is a problem that's embarrassing enough to us that we're willing to try to spend ourselves out of it.

But aren't school administrators and education experts only telling half the story? I wonder what the reaction would be if parents were told that their time and not their money is what is needed for their children to make the most of their education.

We're willing to pay for better teachers, _ nity college offers for kids. better classes and better facilities, but are we willing to give what it takes to be better parents?

WE SEEM to have the attitude that after we've plunked down our tax dollars, we've met our end of the deal, and we're content to let the professionals take over.

Once we get past nursery rhymes, we stop reading to our kids. Maybe we stop reading for ourselves too, so our kids never see an adult who finds pleasure in propping open a novel or a biography. And after our kids get too old for library story times, we stop taking them or even encouraging them to go on their own.

Rather than discuss their homework, we're content to believe that it can be done in a half-hour in front of the television. After we help with the mandatory science fair project, we kiss that off for another year and hope our kids go back to watching "Dukes of Hazzard" reruns instead of urging them toward "Nova" on public television.

We sign them up for Little League, but overlook enrichment classes the commu-

AND PARTIALLY because we feel guilty about our lack of contribution to our child's development and worry about their making the grade, we buy them a home computer and then let them play video games on it.

We love our children, and when we want to show them how much we love them, we open our wallets. But the stakes are too high, the repercussions permanent.

A better education begins at home.

EXT TO crime rates, job security and Tiger baseball, the topic of women's public restroom facilities hardly rates attention — or so you would think. Yet in the last few weeks, 55 women have written to Observer & Eccentric Newspapers with their views about public "powder rooms." Their candid and often lengthy responses were spurred by a three-part series of articles on women's restrooms — the shortage of facilities, the long lines, the overcrowded and dirty conditions.

Readers were asked to give their feedback by filling out a survey form.

Women who read the series agreed with the findings. In summary, they said: Women's public restrooms fail to meet user needs most of the time.

A MAJOR share of the complaints blamed building designers and plumbing code officials for providing insufficient numbers of toilets in public places. Fully 82 percent of the respondents deplored the congested conditions women face using public restrooms, particularly at large-crowd complexes.

A Plymouth woman: "I wholeheartedly agree that women have been discriminated against long enough when it comes to public bathroom facilities. Waiting in long lines has caused me to miss many important moments at public functions I have attended."

A Livonia mother: "I'm so tired of waiting in line while there are no lines at men's rooms. It's hard when you have a child who is about to wet his pants and you have to wait and wait."

A Redford woman: "Lack of adequate restroom facilities is an extremely sore point with me. While standing in line during intermission at the Masonic Temple, I noticed that the men had stopped trickling in and out of their restroom, and I asked a Masonic employee if the women could use the men's facility. I was refused, and I and many other women were late for the second portion of the show."

THE SOLUTION? Three-quarters of the poll respondents said: Add more stalls.

Here are some of their comments:

"We need to double the toilets in shopping centers and restaurants" — a Westland woman.

"How about doubling the women's rooms at arenas, sporting events and wherever there are large crowds?" — Penny Greer of Livonia.

"An obvious solution is to have more bathrooms in public facilities with more stalls in each bathroom" — Susan Harrington of Plymouth.

"Designers of restrooms should remember the biological differences between men and women. Men can breeze in and out with very little difficulty and no sitting down. Women need more time because of their biological design, clothes and the need to care for children" — Suzanne Landes of Livonia.

Readers say: It's a problem

Readers have been writing the Observer newspapers ever since we did a three part series on the problems women experience finding adequate and sanitary restrooms. These excerpts are a sample of the comments submitted:

"Thanks for bringing out the problem of public restrooms. It's been a problem for me for years. Something needs to be done. Rest stops on the interstate (freeways), theaters and arenas are disgusting. As a woman, I feel degraded having to use such dirty, disgusting places. And then to have to stand in line to use it!

Certainly something can be done with a little planning. Thanks for bringing this out in the public eye.

A concerned female citizen

them for planning any outing or shopping trip. Today I started out to go grocery shopping with the intention of also going to ACO Hardware store and Little Caesar's for pizza. All three stores were located in the same center. However, after grocery shopping, I had to skip the other two places — no restrooms — and dash for home.

THE SUGGESTION of using female urinals to shorten restroom lines provoked mixed responses. While 35 percent of respondents indicated a willingness to give a female urinal a try, some 64 percent flatly rejected the idea. "I have used a woman's urinal, but given women's clothing and anatomy it is very inconvenient," said a Livonia woman. "When I read this item to my husband, he just laughed and commented, 'How can you straddle a urinal with clothing around your legs?' "

Another woman made the point: "It seems the idea requisite for a woman to use the female urinal with the ease a man enjoys is to not have packages or a purse, wear a skirt or dress and no panty-hose and absolutely no underpants. Amen."

MANY BESPONDENTS were troubled by the absence or inaccessibility of restroom facilities in public buildings.

"Too many small shopping centers have no public conveniences," noted one woman.

"Why are places built with bathrooms thrown in as afterthoughts?" asked another. "By the time,

Agencies take complaints

The Michigan Plumbing Code determines minimum numbers of toilet fixtures required in a building. Complaints about inadequate numbers of restroom facilities, along with health and safety problems, can be sent to:

Albert Cohen, Chairperson State Plumbing Board 25900 Greenfield, Suite 210 Oak Park, MI 48237 Complaints about misuse of toilet fixtures, broken or leaking fixtures, unsanitary conditions and inaccessible restrooms should be directed to county health departments or local building departments.

Wayne County Health Department: 467-3300.

Oakland County Health Department: 424-7000.

you climb all the stairs and hunt down the right door, it's almost too late."

"There are so many people who have to use a public restroom — ask someone on water or high blood pressure pills," wrote a Garden City woman. "It doesn't have to be a plush place, but an available place with the bare essentials and clean."

TURNING TO building management, 96 percent decried the lack of cleanliness in most public washrooms. Their comments:

"Too many restrooms are pigsties."

"I'm worried about catching a disease." "I have been able to avoid public restrooms a lot," said a Canton woman, "but with an 8-year-old and a 2-year-old, when they have to go, they have to go."

"If my children or I have to go," said a Livonia mother, "I will purposely look for a McDonald's because they usually have very clean restrooms." In fairness, respondents noted the problem of

pleaded one woman.

"If women are going to urinate all over the seat, ask them to wipe it up. I have to sit down to go, and so do the kids," said another.

LACK OF regular restroom maintenance distressed 60 percent. Women noted frequent absences of such basics as soap, towels, locks on doors, toilet tissue, and broken plumbing fixtures.

According to one, the long lines at the powderroom door result because "half the toilet fixtures don't flush or have paper."

A Canton woman wrote her biggest complaint is the lack of soap and paper towels in restaurants. "Where is the cook/waitress washing hands?" she wanted to know.

They suggested such additional sanitary and convenience features as disposable toilet seat covers, more package shelves and hooks inside stalls ("There is nowhere to hang or set a purse except on the floor — ugh!"), more counter space, hooks for coats near sinks, more paper towel dispensers, changing tables and a chair for nursing mothers.

SOME 60 percent complained about lack of space within a stall.

Marilyn Sloan of Redford suggested, "Make larger stalls so you can get out without apparel and packages touching commodes." "Make stalls big enough so my knees are not against the door when I sit down," urged another. "Make stalls large enough so mom and toddler can both fit into one," said still another.

Had any complained about restroom conditions previously? "Yes," said a surprising 53 percent, while 44 percent said "no."

Their reasons: "No one admits responsibility," or, "What good would it do?" And, "Too many times the person in charge is not on duty." Fully 82 percent of the respondents deplored the congested conditions women face using public restrooms.

"And remember, PLENTY of women's restroom this time!"

S'craft honors employees

Schoolcraft College recognized eight outstanding employees at a staff recognition luncheon.

Two of the awards recognized special teamwork projects. One team award went to Culinary Arts and Food Service personnel for their contribution to promoting Schoolcraft College. The other was presented to members of the Mutual Gains bargaining teams.

Sixty-five employees also received pins recognizing years of service.

President Richard McDowell presented Presidential Recognition Awards to John Angell of Northville, skilled maintenance; Charles Castillo of Northville, speech professor; Larry Ordowski of Northville, associate dean for liberal arts; Jean Pike of Livonia, director of career planning and placement; Maud Piggot of Canton, volunteer coordinator RSVP Program; Butch Raby of Northville, comptroller; Michael Ragan of Westland, general maintenance; and Donna Sudik of Plymouth, assistant coordinator, Learning Assistance Center.

Board of Trustees resolutions also were presented to seven faculty members who will retire this year. Honored were: Charles Castillo of Northville, speech professor; Robert Jones of Plymouth, music professor; Ray Naslund of Plymouth, accounting professor; Ruth McCormack of Dearborn Heights, nursing professor; David Perkins of Ann Arbor, English professor; Kenneth Russell of Lincoln Park, climate systems associate professor; and M.S. Sanborn of Northville, business coordinator/ professor.

Jane Lurain of Farmington Hills, secretary-community services, also was honored. She will retire Sept. 1 before the next recognition ceremony.

FRUGAL.

That one word certainly describes Nick Coluccelli, in stock and parts at the Wayne terminal. In fact, during his eleven years of service at SEMTA, being frugal has been just part of the job.

Nick is very aware that money he spends on new parts is the taxpayers' hardearned money. But he's also aware that the safety of the driver and the passengers comes first. "I'm not going to buy a part just because it's cheap or because someone recommends it," says Nick. "It's simply a matter of finding the right part at the right price."

Frugal. That's Nick Coluccelli. But he also brings other outstanding qualities to the job — just like all SEMTA people who make SEMTA the bus system that works. They're simply doing their best to be the best. As for Nick, it just means doing it very frugally.

Congratulations Students, Parents, Teachers

Virtue may be its own reward, but academic preparation in high school also offers material rewards. The students named above receive full tuition scholarships to Wayne State University. The WSU Merit Scholarship Program recognizes students who achieved mean grade point scores of at least 3.85 during their high school careers. These students join the 1,400 WSU Merit Scholarship recipients on campus.

The Merit Scholarship Program is one of many programs which attract top scholars to Wayne State University. The WSU Merit Scholars come from the top 5 percent of their high school classes. In fact, the average student entering WSU comes from the top one-third of his or her high school class, has a 3.22 grade point average and an ACT score of 21. Once again, Congratulations students, parents and teachers. For more information, call your "Opportunity Line" at 577-1000 from 8:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Wayne State University serves the community: Oakland County is home to more than 5,300 students and almost 28,000 alumni; Macomb County more than 4,500 students and more than 13,000 alumni; Wayne County almost 16,000 students and 54,000 alumni.

WSU is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

As co-leaders of Brownie Troop 326 at Allen Elementary School, they gave Pilsbury one of the special peace patches that had circled Earth in a space shuttle. The patch was a troop project planned in conjunction with the international Girl Scout-Girl Guide conference last summer.

Colleen Dolan-Green, new president of Huron Valley Girl Scout Council, presented a Thanks Badge to Peggy Seery, retiring president of the Plymouth, Northville, Canton Area Association. Kathie Landrum of Northville is the new area association president.

DOLAN-GREEN replaces Pat Levos of Livonia.

The Thanks Badge is the highest recognition award. It credits outstanding service to Girl Scouting over a significant period of time. The award can be presented to any adult member of Girl Scouts - volunteer or employed staff -- for service abbove and beyond the call of duty.

Other awards include: Adult Appreciation Pin, recognizing dedicated and enthusiastic service over a period of years, presented to any adult member of Girl Scouts; Certificate of Appreciation, recognizing service of high level, presented to any individual or group in or out of Scouting; Best Friend of Scouting, recognizes a person or group doing the most to promote aims of Girl Scouting, presented to any adult or organization in or out of Scouting; Presidential Goal Award, recognizes an adult who has made a significant contribution in a specific area of Scouting.

CERTIFICATES of Appreciation were presented to Rose Lebbon and Sue Hoffmeister, both of Canton.

Barb Weir of Canton received the Presidential Goal Award for program and Judy Parker of Plymouth the Presidential Goal Award for fund development.

Mae Lewelling of Plymouth received the Thanks Badge; Ruth McMahon of Plymouth, an Adult Appreciation Pin; and the Plymouth and Canton Observers, the Best Friend of Scouting plaque. Leaders and adult volunteers in the PNC Area Association surprised Peggy Seery with a dinner party and roast at the Washtenaw Country Cluba few days before the recognition dinner.

Pageant opens doors for show biz careers

By Loraine McClish staff writer

This year's Miss Michigan United Beauty Pageant will be televised for cable TV Wednesday. June 19, in Center Stage Entertainment Complex, tary make-up and hair make-overs giv-Canton

"That will be one more bit of exposure for the girls who want to break into modeling or show business careers," said Cindy Guenther, executive director of the pageant that is now afpageants are still the number one watched speciality program in the Neilson ratings and getting these girls seen is what my pageant is all about."

Guenther stresses that no talent presentation is required for the competition. The entrants are judged in a personal interview, on their figures, charm, poise, personality, intelligence and photogenic potential.

The pageant is open to all women who are either a resident of Michigan cials for the chain. or officially registered in a Michigan school or university, who have never been married.

A former Miss Michigan World, Guenther initiated the pageant in 1977 to provide Michigan women with a vehicle for obtaining recognition to begin careers in modeling, the media and the auto shows.

EACH YEAR the contenders who are chosen as the 25 finalists automatically win auditions for the auto shows.

'Last year Ford Motor Co. alone hired 40 girls from the pageant, and those girls make a lot of money. So you don't have to be the title winner to win. It's not unusual for a talent scout or a photographer in the audience to spot something in a girl he likes that the judges don't see. And I see a lot of business cards passed during our prepageant parties," Guenther said.

The pre-pageant parties are given for the contenders to meet one another and the judges on an informal basis, and the contenders are invited "to bring the family," Guenther said.

Another pre-pageant event is a drawing for a portfolio, a video tape of the of Esthetics of Mira Linder in Southpageant and a year's pass to Wayne Amusement theaters for the first 30 contestants who enter the pageant.

And another pre-pageant event for the first 30 contestants is complemenen by Ondine's Beauty Salon in Southfield

'Ondine's is a new sponsor this year and so is Fitness USA. We met them when they hired Jacky Meyer (Miss Michigan United for 1984 from Utica) filiated with Miss Venus USA. "Beauty as their spokesman for the health spas," Guenther said.

> A FORMER sponsor returning for this year's pageant is Dittrich Furs of Detroit and Bloomfield Hills who coordinate the now traditional parade of furs on pageant night.

> One of the new sponsors for the pageant is Elias Big Boy which will automatically hire 1985's title winner to star in one of next season's commer-

> The new Miss Michigan United will win a full-length fur coat of her choice from Dittrich's, the use of a car for a year, a $1,600 modeling scholarship to John Robert Powers Modeling School in Southfield, an all-expense trip to the Bahamas on Eastern Airlines and an all-expense trip to the nationally televised Miss Venus USA Pageant in New York.

The new Miss Michigan United will also reign during Detroit's Grand Prix events this summer.

"Last year was our first year of affiliation with Miss Venus USA and our Miss Michigan United came in third runner-up. Pretty good for first time out. I think it might have had something to do with the amount of help our girls get from the John Robert Powers staff. So many of them have never been on a stage before and they get a lot of help just learning how to walk, how to handle themselves on stage," she said.

JUDGES FOR the pageant are a diverse group that run from welterweight Tommy Hearns to jazz instrumentalist Earl Klugh. Mira Linder field, a sponsor of the pageant, will be back as a judge along with Dike Dake, scout for Ford Motor Co. shows, Steve Danton of Dittrich's and Harriet Fuller whose company produces fashion shows.

"This is the wrong time of the year to change my phone number, but we are moving, and we don't want to miss any calls from anyone who wants to be part of this year's pageant," Guenther said.

Guenther can be reached at pageant headquarters by calling the new number, 851-7468.

Jacky Meyer, Miss Michigan United 1984, will give up her title in June, but not her fur cost. A cost of the winner's choice from Dittrich Furs is one of the prizes lined up for the woman who wears the crown in 1985.

Historical Society sells plants this weekend

Next week is a biggie. I'll fill you in on the details in next week's column, but just keep your holiday open You don't have to worry about a thing.

We'll have soccer tournaments with hotel packages available, a grand Grand Opening of our first theater with prizes galore. These prizes include a trip to Las Vegas, a VCR tape recorder, a 10-speed bike, a PacMan game and loads more. If that doesn't peak your interest. I don't know what will. But I'll keep searching.

That's next week's news. Now about this week's stuff.

Let us begin with Cliff Lambert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Lambert of Bunkerhill Lane, Canton. Cliff has never failed to make his parents proud, and this summer will be no exception.

Cliff was the valedictorian of the class of '84 at Plymouth Christian Academy on Joy in Canton, and is now on the Dean's List at Liberty Baptist University, Lynchburg, Va. Some of you also may remember a couple of years back when I reported that Cliff was on tour with the Continentals.

This is a Christian singing group that tours the world and made a stop right here in Canton at the Calvary Baptist Church. In keeping with that idea, Cliff once again has embarked on a singing tour, this year with the Chamber Choir from Liberty University. The choir consists of 30 of Liberty's finest voices, chosen from a group of the 300 best voices Liberty has to offer.

The tour departed May 8 for one month, during which time they will travel throughout Great Britain.

Cliff, and his brother Lane, are excellent examples of what a great place Canton can be to raise children. Cliff displayed tremendous talent in so many areas - vocal, instrumental, sports, and has a long record of scholastic excellence.

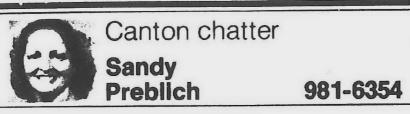

Lane is no slouch either. Currently he is burning up the tracks on the school's track team and is trying to decide which school to attend this fall. Good luck, Lane.

NEXT IS something very close to my heart and a worthwhile service - the Canton Historical Society plant and flower sale this Museum, and the museum will be weekend.

Last year my daughter bought some small flowers that looked like miniature zinnias. Being the expert that I am, that's what I called them, miniature zinnias. They bloomed and spread beautifully. and she took care of them all uy herself. It was a great learning experience and took some of the work off my hands. I just handed her a small patch of the garden and it museum on Canton Center Road was her responsibility to care for it right next to the new police station. all by herself.

Well, she's ready and willing to go at it again, and so am I. Until last year when society President Bart Berg asked me to mention the sale in this column, I had grown only vegetables and roses, and maybe a marigold or two to keep away the grub worms. But I hadn't tried any real flowery type flowers. I put them in, around and between my roses, and they were beautiful.

I always liked the look of just roses, but the little flowers really added something. As a matter of fact, I planted impatiens, because and Mary Dingeldey would have plan on getting as much yard work haunted me forever if I hadn't. But as possible done this weekend with now I'm glad I did and I hope you get the nerve to give them a try.

The sale will be at the Historical open for inspection if you would care to take your children through. Remember there is no charge to tour the museum, and lots to learn.

The books from the Sesquicenternial are on sale there if you didn't get one. They come in very handy for school reports. You might want to show your children some of the old farm implements we have on display alongside the

WHILE YOU'RE around that way, take a minute and decide where you'll be seated next weekend at the International Soccer Tournament.

Remember, that is next week family.

As for the past weekend, if you're real honest about it, I'll just bet most mothers spent the day running from one mother to the other with perhaps a grandmother to fit in somewhere.

As with every other year, I'm de-it was the Sesquicentennial flower claring a belated Mother's Day. I my family helping. Perhaps I'll make them a terrific meal or barbecue something, since I didn't have to cook on Mother's Day. But, by running from here to there, I really didn't get waited on either and I'll bet many of you ended up the same.

So join my belated Mother's Day Club and declare this Saturday Mothers Do-For Day. Naturally, this results in a demand for Father's Do-For Day to follow or precede the official Father's Day, when he drives from one father to another and never gets home in time to enjoy the relaxing day that he so richly deserves. Especially when the Canton Country Festival will be on Father's Day. It's a compromise, but I still get my garden in without nagging.

IF YOU'RE NOT completely exand lots of free fun for the whole hausted after the great Memorial Day weekend we have planned here in Canton - or even if you are exhausted - I have a relaxing and very enjoyable treat for you.

This is a little advance notice, but I'll remind you next week. On Wednesday, May 29, many residents of our community will be to communicate with middle concert. The Midwest Harmony when they come to the office with Chapter of the Sweet Adelines will their creative excuses for what not. perform at the Kirk of Our Savior But communicate she did, and we on Cherry Hill between Wayne and all are thankful she did. I shall miss Newburgh Roads, Westland.

Under the direction of Dixie Dahlke, the evening promises to be one you won't want to miss. So much of the time, we don't hear about these things until it's too late. I know I would love to spend an evening relaxing and letting someone else do all the work and entertain me.

As I mentioned, I'll try to get more details for next week and the reminder I promised you. But for now, remember 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, May 29, at the Kirk of Our Savior. I have been trying to get over there to preview the program, but as many of you know, my family's health has kept me hopping.

But have no fear, I'll have final details for you next week.

ONE FINAL note - I want to say goodbye to a terrific lady at Pioneer Middle School who has been standing in while Kathleen Cominskey was recovering from surgery.

We are pleased that Mrs. Cominskey has recovered beautifully and will be returning soon to Pioneer. At the same time, we must say a sad so-long to Sandy Kennedy, who has been no less than wonderful to everyone - parents and students alike.

It takes a special type of person home!

participating in a beautiful vocal schoolers all day long. Especially her smiling face and kind attitude.

> We can be grateful that many terrific ladies, such as Mrs. Wood, who has been there for so many years, do indeed tolerate our intolerable kids. If your child should ever come home and tell you of the mean people in the front office, I recommend you spend 30 minutes sitting there, listening to the rude remarks and bad manners of some of our community's future leaders.

> You will understand why, perhaps once and a while, a child who doesn't deserve a sharp answer may receive one in the fallout.

> My thanks to all the women in school offices everywhere, but especially in the mms elementary students, for the most part, know an office means "shape up fast, the hour has arrived, death could be imminent!"

> The high school students know detention could be the least of your worries if you mess up in the office. But middle schoolers . . . ah, there's a special breed. They know it all, and are anxious to show you what they can do.

So from all of us, to all the office workers: our apologies for what our children may have done, or said, or may do, or say, in the future. Honest, they didn't get it at We hope.

On Sunday afternoon, May 20, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Saxton will celebrate their 65th wedding anniversary, but the owner of Saxton's Garden Center in Plymouth just can't believe that so many years have passed since they were joined in holy wedlock.

"I just can't make myself believe that more than 60 years have passed since that day in the Messiah church on East Grand Boulevard have been this way and that I have lived that long. I never expected to."

While he was sitting in his office recalling the day in 1920 when the minister conducted the official ceremony Saxton recalled how he met the girl who was to be his bride.

troit, and she lived across the street. She was Margaret Van Fleet then.

"Every year the group over there sponsored a picnic, and I was invited to go with them to Grosse Ile. We spent some time together and soon I was off to war. I was 22 years old and she was four days younger.

When I returned, we dated and finally married on May 20, 1920. And it has been a grand life every since - but I still can't believe so many years have passed."

THE CEREMONY marking the anniversary will be held for the family on Sunday and with one son unable to be there the rest of the family and friends will mark the day.

ton started in the garden business shortly after they were married and has been in it since, Mrs. Saxton has been extremely busy.

"She is always busy," Saxton said. "She has written a book of poems, does some painting and several kinds of writing. She is a member of several societies in Plymouth and when on vacation in Florida she is active in several others.

"This is the first year she hasn't painted a picture for the group in Florida. So, you see, she is always busy with something interesting for the various groups in which she is active." As he awaited the anniversary Saxton recalled his start in the garden center business.

"I had been working at Fords and

"Some of my folks lived near East Grand Boulevard and Lafayette in Derent free. I took the offer and we almost starved that first year. But we stuck at it, with her help, and we progressed from there."

> At one time they owned two places and finally wound up in Plymouth. In the meantime Mrs. Saxton had worked for a photography company and knew about business.

She also studied geology and does considerable work along that line at their winter vacation home in Palm Beach, Fla.

"She is always doing something," Saxton repeated, "and we have lived a grand life. But I still can't believe that 65 years have gone by since that day in 1920 when we were married in that East Side Church."

'Festival of faith' aids renovation

Parishioners at St. Richard Catholic Church, Westland, will remember 1985 for two reasons. One is that it marks the 25th anniversary of the church and the other is that to celebrate the event, a major renovation of the church building got under way. Launching the project will be a "Festival of Faith" May 24-27 on the church grounds at 35637 Cherry Hill. Plans calls for completely redoing the worship area of the church and for renovating and expanding the religious education areas, according to the Rev. Bill Immel.

RESURRECTION LUTHERAN Resurrection Lutheran Church of Livonia will conduct an "Offering of Letters" to urge congressmen to support a bill providing both short-term food aid and long-term self help measures to famine victims in Africa. On Sunday, May 19, members will write the letters. The offering of letters is an annual campaign organized by Bread for the World, the national Christian citizens lobby against hunger.

Specifically the letters will be written in support of the Food Assistance and Africa Agriculture Act being considered this spring in Congress. The bill includes money to fund small-scale sustainable food-growing projects for Af-rican farmers. Without such long-term provisions, Africa will continue to experience periodic and severe famines and African people will be dependent on food donated by other countries. For more information, call Pastor Merlin Jacobs at 427-9575.

Mother's Day meaning changes with times

OTHER'S DAY is still celebrated in the churches of America. It typically is the second-highest attendance Sunday of the year. Yet on all the other days of the year it is much harder to be a mother these days than ever before.

Most of the young mothers I know are going back to work. Some return just months or even weeks after their child is born. They feel guilt in leaving their newborn with someone else while they are working, yet they do it. Some return to work to hold their job, others to help to pay the mortgage. When they do have time with their children, they are often tired and divided by many tasks and needs.

The luckiest working mothers have family nearby. These children are raised in an extended family of grandparents, uncles and aunts. Too many live far from their family or find that others in their family do not wish to share their child raising.

IT IS HARD to be a mother today. The many factors which affect families

of mothers work. Living in such a family, I find that many adjustments have to be made. Some families can make these changes in order to maintain the chores of the home and nurture and guide the children. Few are prepared to do this well and avoid paying a cost.

Surprisingly, teen-age girls still typi-cally have traditional expectations of their role in the family. Not more than 13 percent of American families are constituted with both parents in the home and only one working.

Yet most young people expect that they will live a traditional marriage role when it comes to the child raising. In such a role, the mother has the major responsibility of raising, nurturing and guiding the young children in the family.

I BELIEVE THAT unrealistic role expectations in the family are a major cause of family troubles. Both external and internal conflict occurs when expectations of mothers and wives are not met. If both parents work full time, ing is done to remedy the pressures it is hard to adjust to the changing needs of children. The pressures on women who are mothers are often celebrated on Mother's Day will hardly enormous.

Where does hope lie in this problem? Men and women need to share the nurturing and home-making rolls. Women have to resolve the guilt they often feel when someone else is doing what they think they should do. Young families need to enlist their parent's help in child care.

They may need to locate their residence near to those who will love and care for the children. I know people who have refused an advancement which would have taken them some distance from the supportive care of their extended family.

Women's study groups need to exam-ine the issues of women's changing role. This is the appropriate concern of churches and synagogues. Support needs to be shared in order to meet this challenge

The family is under assault. If nothexist.

Figures show that close to 60 percent

N.Y. by boat: It's a wonderful ride

By Joy Schaleben Lewis special writer

Steven Moran, a jolly, highly informed commentator for what has been called "America's favorite boat ride," keeps up a continuous patter as a Circle Line boat takes its three-hour, 35-mile sightseeing cruise around Manhattan Island

'If you can't find it in New York, you can't find it anywhere on this cockamamy planet of ours. But Disneyland we ain't. So don't stroll through Central Park at 4 a.m. Stay where the people are. It's that simple. And above all, enjoy yourselves. We are the Big Apple."

The Circle Line may well be America's most used boat ride judging by the hundreds of thousands of tourists who've gawked at New York's majestic, arrogant skyline while cruising by hundreds of famed landmarks.

When New York City came into being, after Peter Stuyvestant surrendered the Dutch Fort Amsterdam to the English in 1664, the population was about 1.500 - less than the capacity of any three Circle Line yachts. Today nearly half of the city's population of 7.710,000 is of foreign birth or parentage.

Township will seek 4-mill tax limit in July

By Gary M. Cates staff writer

Plymouth Township voters will be asked to authorize up to four mills property tax for township operation on July 29.

The Township Board voted 6-0 Tuesday night to seek authorization for increasing the millage, although officials don't anticipate levying the entire amount. Treasurer Mary Brooks was absent

which generate revenues for the 1986 budget

Although the four-mill limit, coupled with a special mill voted for fire, exceeds what trustees believe is needed for 1986, they are seeking the authorization so millage elections can be avoided in the future.

Township Supervisor Maurice Breen and one mill general operation. had recommended the board seek authorization for the full charter limit of isn't guaranteed because the one mill five mills. However, because the spe- for general operation never was ap-

The millage request is needed as a special voted mill for police expires this year, according to Breen. If voters fail to approve the July request, the township's levy will drop to two mills the one mill special voted for fire

But Breen said the two mill level

Paying cash for the police purchases, rather than financing them over time was a smart decision, the auditor said.

"The township has no installment debt at all. The law enforcement outlay may have hurt the fund balance in the short run but in the long run it helped the township because you avoided the high interest rates," he said.

Ideally, the fund balance should be between $350,000 and $600,000 roughly 10 percent of total expenditures or the equivalent of two months' expenses.

By going to a millage rate of 3.88 mills, the township would be able to meet 1986 expenses as well as building back the fund balance.

'My recommendation is that we go for the full limit and bite the bullet.'

BREEN TOLD the board rather than asking for 2.88 mills making 3.88 with the special fire mill), they should seek authorization for the full charter limit.

For those of us who have been on the board for some time, we have pointed to this year as the year we would have to do a total review of the township and our level of services," he said

'My recommendation is that we go for the full limit and bite the bullet," he said

The supervisor and his recommendation was based on residents' desires for more services. He said such services can't be provided without increasing revenues

Breen said historically the township has maintained low taxes, and still would be one of the lowest taxed communities even if it went to five mills

Tanger Elementary School would become a preschool center and its pupils transferred to Farrand Ele mentary under a plan being considered by the Plymouth Canton Board of Education

The school board is reviewing a proposal for shifts in school attendance areas which have been reommended for the next two school vears

Superintendent John M. Hoben presented recommendations to the board Monday from the housing committee which has been meeting over the past several months. The board is expected to act on the proposals at one of its next two meet ings

Tanger is located on Five Mile west of Haggerty to the northeast of LakePointe Subdivision, while Farrand is located in the middle of

programs include Headstart, PLUS, and Infant and Preschool Special Education Program (IPSEP)

Head Start and PLUS now are lo cated at Central Middle School and IPSEP at Farrand A year ago there was some discussion of consolidat ing the preschool programs at Starkweather which now is used as an adult education center

Two years ago, as a result of declining enrollment. Tanger and Starkweather shared the same principal and this year the two schools were basically consolidated when Starkweather no longer was used as an elementary building

SHOULD THE plan be implemented as proposed. Tanger Elementary would become a preschool center in the 1986-87 school year with pupils in grades one to six transferred to Farrand Elementary Only minor changes were suggest

ing having the kindergarten children from Tanger Elementary who live in Honeytree transferred to Fiegel Elementary, and moving some chil dren who live close to Allen Ele mentary from Tanger to Allen Eventually the housing commit tee has recommended that all Honeytree elementary age pupils attend Fiegel which is on Joy Road east of 1.275 across from Honeytree and Stoneybrook

The changes are designed so that children may attend the schools closest to their homes. Hoben said public meetings have been held on the changes for next year, and he doesn't think this will meet with any dissatisfaction at this point

FOR THE following year, it is proposed that students living in Stoneybrook be transferred from Langer to Allen

The other Tanger students would

IPSEP would transfer from Far rand to Tanger

Students living in Fellows Creek would be transferred from Farrand to Hulsing Elementary Sixth graders now housed at Hulsing would then attend Central Middle Schenl

Besides establishing a separate building for preschool programs, the committee's plan would work toward the more long-range goal of dividing the schools by grade so that ail elementary schools would return to housing grades kindergarden to five, middle schools grades six to eight and high school grades nine to 12

Some of the changes are needed to alleviate overcrowding at the elementary schools and to accommodate this year's large class of ninth graders, said Dick Egh community relations director

Plan accepted for police force Second-in-command hired

By Gary M. Cates staff writer

Plymouth Township trustees ap proved a police configuration plan Tuesday night, expected to cost $643,000 in the first year

The township is in the process of ter minaling a $467,000-a year contract of Plymouth and plans to have its own shift department in place by July 1

Besides approving the configuration plan, the board also confirmed the appointment of a police commander, authorized the hiring of remaining per sonnel, and accepted bids for furnishing the police station now under construction

The configuration plan calls for a chief, commander, 10 full time officers, three full-time officers in training, up to 12 part time officers, three clerical and computer personnel, a and works primarily in the crime prehead dispatcher, six part time vention and Neighborhood Watch prodispatchers, an ordinance officer and gram He holds a master's degree in 30 Community Service Officers (CSOs) - criminal justice from Wayne State Uni

ry, the approved plan will allow the criminal justice from Michigan State township to maintain the desired shift ratio of 2.3.2 a minimum level of two cars on the road at all times during the day shift, three cars during after for shared police services with the City noons and two during the midnight

> The number of fulltime officers is up from the original projection of 10 to 13. with the addition of three full-time officers in training Consequently, part time officers have been reduced from the original projection of 23 to a maximum of 12

recommendation for hiring a $24,700 a year police commander, or second incommand Expected to start work on June 3 is Lawrence Hall of Southgate

Hall, 31, is a Southgate police officer

According to Police Chief Carl Ber versity and a bachelor's degree in l'niversity

Three township employees will be reassigned to police positions The board approved moving Chris Ward and Nancy Miller to full time positions Both work part-time with the town ship's computer system and will use the increased hours to operate the police computer system

Administrative analyist Kerry Pier cy, a trustee candidate in the last township election, will become the head dispatcher for the new department

In accepting the police configuration THE BOARD also accepted Berry's plan, the board also authorized the administration to proceed with hiring the remaining personnel

> Included in the plan are 30 volunteer CSOs, which will assist the department with special activities and pair up with certified officers on patrol Full time and part-time officers already have been selected and are expected to start work in June, Berry said

IN SEPARATE action, the board ac cepted bids for furnishing the police fa cility being built in a garage behind Township Hall, the corner of Ann Arbor Road and Mill Street

Architect Stan Tkacz presented the board with low bids for the various fur niture, wall fixtures and carpeting. The total program was bid at $33,372, with the exception of window treatments

I suggest that the bids for the blinds be held at this time, until I am able to clarify the bids and specifications for this item." Tkacz said

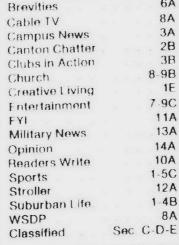

As it stands, without the window blinds, the interior program will be $8,000 under estimates. The board did decide to award one bid to a company other than the low bidder

After considerable debate, the bid for carpeting was awarded to H & B Gallery of Plymouth The board did so because H & B's bid was within 5 per cent of the low bid from a Detroit firm

H & B was selected because it is a local firm and in the past the board has granted contracts to local firms within 5 percent of the low bidder

By Tim Richard staff writer

People would rather have a property tax cut than an early income tax cut. Goy James J Blanchard believes The property tax is the most burdensome, most out-of line tax in Michigan. he said

But state senators particularly Republicans prefer to cut the state income tax ahead of schedule Blanchard thinks he knows why Legislators fear they will not get credit for property tax rebates, but they will get credit for income tax cuts

The governor, owner of a house in Pleasant Ridge, is stumping the state for his "Tax Fairness" plan Its bottom line is to increase the program of property tax rebates for both homeowners and renters from more than $500 million to almost $750 million

percent of your income. If you're a million one-time sweetening of the rerenter. 17 percent of your rent is considered to be property tax

The state rebate is 60 percent of your 'excess' property tax. It used to be bates. It's part of a package of 11 tax. lumped in with your state income tax bills that are "tie-barred" refund This year, for the first time, comes law unless all are passed you will get the rebate in a separate check That's because Blanchard and state Treasurer Robert Bowman want mid-1986, a full year ahead of schedule to make sure you understand what you're getting

Suburbs of Detroit are big beneficiaries of rebates, Blanchard said, because of high voted property taxes for schools. In out-Wayne County, the average property tax bill is 17 percent above the state average, in Oakland, 45 percent above the state average

bate pie

His new Fairness Plan proposes an other $150 million in permanent renone be

One bill would drop the states in come tax rate from 51 to 46 percent in The House Taxation Committee. dominated by Blanchard's fellow Democrats, was scheduled to take up the package this week

THE SENATE plan, adopted Feb 27 would roll back the income tax rate to 4.6 percent next Jan 1 six months ear her than Blanchard's Fairness Plan.

The income tax cut was passed 30-5. with bipartisan support Area senators backing it were Republicans Doug Cruce of Troy, Richard Fessler of West Bloomfield, Rudy Nichols of Waterford and Robert Geake of Northville; and Democrats Jack Faxon of Farmington Hills, William Faust of Westland and Patrick McCollough of Dearborn.

Two outstate Republicans and three

The Senate plan also would increase the personal income tax exemption from the current $1,500 per person a year to $1.750

The Senate doesn't have the funds to make that kind of cut." Blanchard said. He felt the House would be more

amenable to his plan

THIS IS an ideal time for tax fairness. Blanchard went on We're a year and a half away from an election. We're out of the woods financially By Nov 30, the state will be completely out of debt. No matter what else happens, we're going to have a lax cut

He referred to a 0.25 percent surcharge which was part of the controversial 1.75 percent income tax rate increase the state adopted in March of 1983 That surcharge has been used to retire an accumulated debt of $1.7 billion. That surcharge, Blanchard noted. will expire Nov 30 percent, but a temporary like had been (ASOs), which are currenty almost exvoted under Milliken

The end of the surcharge will bring the rate down to 5.1 percent — the rate it was at under Republican Gov. Wilham G. Milliken, Blanchard noted. The "normal" rate is considered to be 4.6.

OTHER PARTS of the Blanchard Fairness Plan are more controversial than the property tax rebate. Blanchard would

• Tax Michigan insurance compames at the same tax rate as out-of-state companies, adding $45 million in revenue The U.S. Supreme Court recently ruled that split rates are unconstitutional. States must either repeal higher taxes on "foreign" companies or raise taxes on "domestic" firms. Blanchard favors the latter course

• Tax capital gains on the sale of stocks and bonds, adding $65 million. The Grosse Pointers were against that until we pointed out that Ronald Reagan did it." Blanchard said.

• Tax the pay of military personnel on duty here, adding $25 million. Blanchard said Michigan is one of only a handful of states which doesn't levy such a tax.

• Tax financial institutions and administrative service organizations

empt - $18 million

THESE AND other, smaller items would bring in $188 million in new rev enue

Blanchard would use that new revenue to 1) grant a single business tax deduction for research and development, estimated to cost $40 million in revenue, and 2) implement his property tax rebate program.

How about raising the 4-percent sales tax and using that to cut property taxes

Not yet, Blanchard said. "To change it, you would have to have a constitutional amendment. You would have to have time to run a campaign. I don't see that happening in the near future.

"But some day," he predicted, "they (voters) are going to want a sales tax increase to cut the property tax, dollar for dollar.

"Our sales tax is the most popular It's below the average. Our income tax is average. But our property tax is "way off the charts."

No sales tax vote ----Blanchard

Gov. James Blanchard is unwilling to support a vote on increasing the state sales tax for public transportation - at least until tri-county leaders unite behind the plan.

Leaders of the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority want a November 1985 referendum on raising the sales tax from 4 percent to 5 percent to give SEMTA its first earmarked tax.

They're going to have the local units down here." Blanchard said. referring to Detroit Mayor Coleman Young. Oakland County Executive Daniel Murphy. Wayne County Executive William Lucas and Macomb County Chairman Walter Franchuk

Raising the sales tax would require a constitu tional amendment approved by voters. The Legislature would have to place it on the ballot. "The Legislature won't respond unless there's a consensus," Blanchard said, adding, "I don't even sign it.

Added state Rep. W.V. Brotherton, R-Farmington, in a separate interview "Nobody here is supporting it

SEMTA fears it will have to close up shop later this year unless the federal government maintains its transit operating subsidies and the state either allows the sales tax vote or comes up with an additional $8 million grant

Blanchard warned SEMTA leaders that to win legislative support, they must 1) place a cap on the cost of the downtown People Mover project, which has leaped from an estimated $137 million to more than $200 million, and 2) set a timetable for finishing the 2.9-mile elevated electric line

DeHoCo fight now centers on Detroit clause

By Gary M. Cates staff writer

Two bills dealing with a state purchase of the Detroit House of Correction (DeHoCo) in Plymouth Township cleared the House of Representatives last week

Both bills - one authorizing the purchase and the other placing a moratorium on future state prisons in Plymouth

To compete

Steven Edford, a sixth grader at Steppingstone, a center for potentially gifted students in Plymouth, will be competing Saturday at the state finals of the competition sponsored by the Michigan Council of Teachers of Mathematics. Steven, 11, was one of the top 25 winners at his grade level competing in the regionals held April 13 at University of Detroit. As one of the qualifiers in a group of about 250 students, he will travel to Central Michigan University in Mount Pleasant this weekend to compete against several hundred other students who also qualified at their regionals. About one student per 100 in each grade from each school was selected to compete at the regionals.

and Northville townships -- now go to the state Senate, where local lawmakers will attempt to delete language added at the last minute by Detroit

They have added a clause to our moratorium bill which says Detroit reserves the right to do whatever they want with the balance of the DeHoCo land. That all got in right on the last day." said Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth Township.

Law authored the moratorium bill, which is being sought because of the number of prisons planned for the Plymouth/Northville township area

Three state prisons are targeted for a one-mile stretch of Five Mile Road, which divides the two townships. On the Northville side is the existing Phoenix Correctional Facility (311 inmates) and the Scott Correctional Facility (550 inmates) under construction.

On the Plymouth Township side is the DeHoCo compound (being targeted for 650-500 inmates). Although DeHoCo is comprised of 1,100 acres on both sides of Five Mile, the state plans to buy only 123 acres, including the prison mittee on corrections. That threecompound.

REPRESENTATIVES from Detroit added the clause dealing with the balance of the land right before the moratorium bill was placed on the House floor, according to Law.

Although he wasn't happy with the the Senate floor. Geake couldn't be added language, Law said he decided to let it go and deal with it in the Republican-controlled Senate.

'It was in our interest to move both bills from the House and into the Senate," he said.

Despite dealing with an issue in a Republican-dominated district, Law's moratorium bill passed the Democratcontrolled House unopposed - as did the DeHoCo purchase bill.

"It's really just an argument between us and the state. None of the other representatives have any problems with DeHoCo as a prison or our moratorium." he said.

The second-term lawmaker doesn't believe there will be a problem removing the Detroit clause in the Senate. What the hell does that clause mean," he said. "I don't know what it means. Does it mean Detroit can build a state prison on the land if it wants to? Then we don't want the clause in there.

BOTH BILLS are expected to be sent to the Senate Appropriations subcommember subcommittee includes Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, who has been working in concert with Law on the DeHoCo issue.

Law said Geake will attempt to remove the clause in subcommittee, rather than trying to battle with it on reached for comment Tuesday.

"I look at this way," Law said. "If we pass the moratorium bill, it is very clear and gives us our moratorium. If we pass it with the clause, then it contains poor wording which we aren't certain what Detroit can do with. I plan to argue it from that point - poor wording.

"Maybe we will rewrite it so that Detroit is just like any other private property owner and that anything they want to do with the land would be subject to local zoning restrictions," he said.

Party ends in several arrests, injured officer

By Gary M. Cates staff writer

Plymouth Police Chief Richard Myers has a message for people planning graduation and/or other springtime parties - don't let things get out of hand.

The chief's warning follows an unfortunate incident early Saturday morning outside 433 Leicester in Plymouth. Officers responding to several complaints about a party at that address were assaulted while attempting to

"It was a pretty large crowd but be-yond that the crowd had become loud and unruly," Myers said.

ACCORDING TO police reports, the responding officers were punched, kicked and grabbed around the throat. Myers said one juvenile even grab-people under 21, were drinking and were intoxicated.

Officer Jerry Vorva, who recently returned to duty after suffering a heart attack, was struck in the chest. Vorva was treated and released from Oakwood Hospital Canton Center Saturday, Myers said.

"I think our officers used the minimum amount of force necessary to handle the situation, and I think our of-

"IN THE course of duty our officers have to take quite a bit of abuse but we won't tolerate physical abuse," Myers said.

"We will prosecute anyone who assaults an officer. I have talked to the city attorney, and we will take a hard stance with these individuals and I hope the judges will too."

Besides prosecuting those who assault officers, Myers said the depart- Myers said.

"This is the time of year where you get a few parties for graduation or whatever and there is drinking," he said.

"Unfortunately, I believe we have got to the point in our society where people believe you can't have a good time without getting drunk and that's not the case.

"Anytime there is a party and there is alcohol and there are people between 17 and 21 years of age, the parent throwing the party is responsible for that alcohol. We will actively prosecute people who furnish alcohol to minors,"

Schools update sex ed. materials

By Mary Ellen Dula special writer

The Plymouth-Canton Board of Education updated sex education and reproductive health materials at its regular meeting Monday night.

At the same time, trustees lauded the innovative nature of the district's programs.

"We have a real progressive way of dealing with sex education - not only a progressive way but a learning way," said David Artley, board vice president.

Artley, noting the prevalence of veneral disease in this country, said: "It boggles my mind that other districts haven't done the same. I feel we're kind of a leader in this program." Shirley Cunningham, who heads the program, said the district has had a sex education program since before she was employed here 20 years ago. Cunningham is a school nurse at Plymouth Centennial Educational Park (CEP) and for parochial schools in the district

A 1977 state law made it mandatory for districts to offer sex education and specified subjects to be included in that curriculum.

Schools now are required to disseminate information on sexually-transmitted diseases, a topic which has been added to the eighth grade curriculum for Plymouth-Canton students.

The school board Monday approved a material on an ongoing basis, Cunningcurriculum for the high schools.

Three school nurses and two health educators attended the school board meeting and expressed their pleasure at the board's sanction of the classroom materials. They said that makes it easier for them when they talk with concerned parents.

"It's very helpful for those of us teaching the seventh, eighth and ninth graders to have the board's approval of the materials we are using," said Janet Larson, a health educator at East Middle School.

Schoolcraft commencement: 20th year of degrees

HERE WAS no political superstar on the rostrum. Yet friends and families of Schoolcraft College graduates packed the Physical Education Building gymnasium Saturday evening for what appeared to be the best-attended commencement in the 20 years that the northwestern Wayne County community college has been granting degrees.

Some 318 of the 867 persons who received degrees this academic year donned traditional blue caps and gowns for the ceremony, whose popularity has increased during the 1980s.

Altogether, President Richard McDowell said, 11,885 persons have received either an associate degree or a certificate of program completion since the college opened its doors.

A RECORD of sorts may have been set by Jennifer J. Lucas. The Livonia resident was awarded four degrees at once — associate in general studies, associate in arts, associate in applied sciences and associate in science.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Freiman of Plymouth saw three of their nine children receive degrees at the same ceremony — Thomas (engineering), Patricia and Therese (science).

And 78 persons earned two degrees, while five earned three.

THE COLLEGE looked to its own community in finding speakers — Lowell T. Cook, president of the Faculty Forum and business instructor since 1967; and two winners of distinguished alumni awards. They were Dr. Joseph Koppel, 41, now associate professor in Michigan State University's hotel, restaurant and institutional management program; and Timothy Tiernan, 34, of Westland, civic activist and account manager at Ford Motor Co.

HONORARY DEGREES went to:

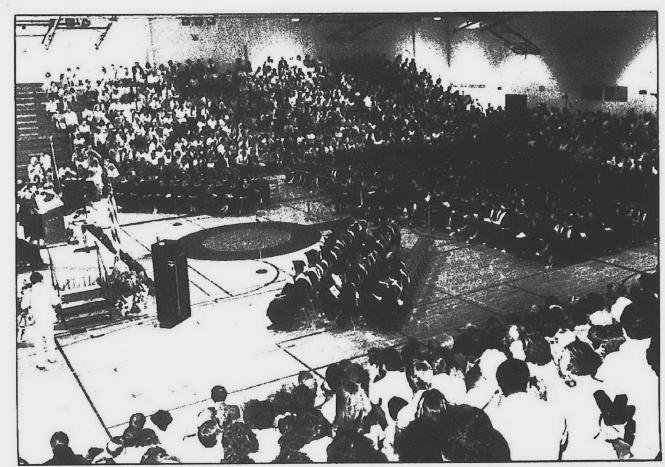

• Dunbar Davis, retired district judge in the Northville-Plymouth-Canton area, who "has actively involved area youth in the procedures of law including taking court to high schools for life sessions, allowing high school students to serve as advisory jurors in court cases, and promoting mock trials by high school students" — honorary associate in arts and sciences.

• Mark A. McQuesten, first Schoolcraft graduate ever elected to the board of trustees (1975-81), editor of the Campus Globe, member of the Student Senate and community activist who is now studying for the Catholic priesthood — honorary associate in arts and sciences.

• John N. Santeiu Jr., Garden City funeral director, life member of the Schoolcraft College Foundation, president of the foundation form 1982-4, donor, instrumental in obtaining a $50,000 bequest for the foundation and civic volunteer — associate in arts and sciences.

McDowell said 47 graduates were inducted into Phi Theta Kappa national honorary society.

The dean's list and other individual honors will be published as they are finalized and made available by the college.

dent Richard McDowell addressed the class of 1984-5.

Retirements, shifts leading to school changes

A number of familiar faces will be gone, or at least relocated, when school opens next year.

It was announced this week that Gus Gorguze, principal of East Middle School and before that at Central Middle, is retiring at the end of the school year. Gorguze has been with Plymouth-Canton Community Schools for 35 years, having started work here in September 1950.

Last week it was announced that pal's chair.

from our readers

Now is time for maturity

To the editor:

(An open letter to seniors of Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem high schools).

It's that time of year again - time for proms, parties, graduation and commencements.

It's that time when we, as parents and teachers, see you take another step toward adulthood.

It's that time for you to say goodbye to the last three important years of your (high school) life and look ahead to a bright future.

I, as a teacher, see how proud your parents are. I see how the excitement builds for all your plans for the next month of activities. It's such a joy to share it with you.

But suddenly, there is sorrow mixed with joy. I see those smiles turn to tears. Excitement turns to anguish. I see a mother's happiness become sadness in the blink of an eye.

A tragedy happens to one of you.

For some unknown reason, whether from too much party, too fast a car, or an extra slow blink of that eye, a young man becomes a victim. Now he lies in a hospital bed, and we have sorrow to mix with our joy.

None of you want to be lectured over and over again. But yet we adults want to rather impart a little bit of our wisdom so that it won't happen to any of you. We do this not because we are angry, but more because we fear for you and your bright futures.

should make your own decisions and that you should begin to plan your own To the editor: destiny.

All of us, parents and teachers, hope that the decisions that you make are vate the right ones.

One tragedy is one too many. As the weeks continue, you will have many decisions still to make. Please make the wise one Let all your memories be those of happiness, joy and togetherness with all your fellow graduating seniors. DANIEL RIGGS

Pops concert was a success

To the editor:

We would like to take this opportunity to thank the Plymouth Observer for the coverage that was given to promote this year's Pops Concert. It was greatly appreciated and helped to make a successful evening.

Many thanks also to the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra, Conductor Johan van de Merwe, guest artists Fat Bob Taylor anld Barbara Kondalski. The Prelude Group of the Plymouth Symphony League also would like to thank The Early American Shop for the great job it did in handling ticket sales, Nancy Hill for her generous donation of the delicious popcorn, and all who gave so freely of their time and talents which made for a very enjoyable 1985 Pops Concert.

Don't model We feel that it is time that you public schools

It is with interest and concern that I write about your article Public vs. Pri-

In general overview, the main issue

of public vs. private in education is the viewpoint that government tax-supported school administrations are the governing force in what is qualified education.

In other words, the state knows what is best. The "State First Philosophy" should concern every American citizen because it basically is the democratic tenet of the countries behind the Iron Curtain, and many freedom-loving bastions such as Cuba and the budding democracy of Nicaragua.

Secondly, in the area of qualified or certified or approved or non-approved, if I were starting or running a private school, I would be hesitant to model myself after the public tax-supported government schools based on the example of their inability to maintain student discipline, high academic standards and teacher-staff professionalism.

Thirdly, the public tax-supported government schools are unable, incapable or intolerant of private sector day school education and don't want to compete in a battle of excellence to attract students.

The government school administration's pre-occupation on the fundamentalist school issue down deep smacks of religious persecution, and its roots go into the battle of religion of humanism vs. the viewpoint of the fundamentalists.

As a Plymouth taxpayer to the public tax-supported government schools, I would rather Superintendent John Hoben turn the efforts he has put into M.A.S.A. toward improving the areas that need attention in the Plymouth-Canton school district, and directly compete with the private fundamentalist, Lutheran and Catholic schools and excel in education instead of pursuing an expensive legal harassment with public tax dollars.

Tanger thanks confab helpers

To the editor:

The students and teachers of Tanger School wish to publicly thank each person who participated in the success of our recent Young Author's Conference based on the Wizard of Oz.

The entire staff, under the direction of Paula Holmes, learning specialist, worked many hours to plan the programs and decorations. Other schools in the district provided small group presenters and Pamela Vander Ploeg told marvelous stories during the large sessions. The Dorothy and Oz Opening, presented by Carrol and Jane Nichols. began the conference with an unusual flourish.

Dr. Michael Homes, assistant superintendent for instruction, and Roland Thomas, school board president, gave inspiring talks to the young authors from each school in the district. In addition local businesses proivded

Mock trials very helpful

To the editor:

In conjunction with Law Day, May 1, Plymouth Canton High School held a series of mock trials. We would like the community to know of the outstanding help given by the following attorneys who spent hours advising students: John Ashton, Stephen Boak, D. Clancey, Ronald D'Avanzo, Patricia Holzworth, Ronald Plymouth Lowe, and Paul Hines.

The trials were presided over by Judge James Garber of the 35th District Court. Judge Garber spent the entire day patiently teaching the law to students. His help and dedication is appreciated.

The students at our school would like to publicly thank the attorneys and Judge Garber for all of their time and effort.

Tips on safe hobbying

Warning to hobbyists and do-it-yourselfers: Threats to eyesight have been found in home workshops throughout the nation.

Often, the home hobbyist does better in making repairs than in protecting his sight. Eye protection, through the use of impact-resistant safety goggles, is essential of all eye-hazardous tasks, according to experts at the National Society to Prevent Blindness. An estimated 1.3-million Americans suffer eye injuries each year. Forty-five percent of these accidents occur in the home. Most could be prevented.

Here are some acitivities where eye

Senate rejects 10 percent pay cut in tie vote

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll cali votes May 2-8.

HOUSE

THE RECORD - The House voted, 245 for and 184 against, in favor of the softer of two proposed investigations of the accuracy of the Congressional Record, the publication that is supposed to chronicle all that happens on the House and Senate floors.

Democrats prevailed as the vote referred the matter to the Administration Committee, rather than to the Rules Committee as House Republicans had requested.

If a member does not deliver a speech but inserts written comments into the Record, his remarks are supposed to be typographically distinguished from words actually uttered.

Partly at issue on this vote was the fact that written material recently inserted by two Democratic members was incorrectly indentified as speeches actually dilivered.

Republicans wanted the Rules Committee to look into that discrepancy as well as into the overall integrity of the ing a 1984 increase of 4 percent.

sending the matter to the Administration Committee for a less exhaustive probe, attributed the misidentification of the Democrats' written comments to clerical error.

Charles Pashayan, R-Calif., said the Record must be made a more accurate chronicle of floor proceedings because judges and historians rely on it to determine legislative intent.

Members voting no favored the tougher of two proposed investigations of the Congressional Record.

Voting no: Carl Pursell, R-Plýmouth, William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

SENATE

PAY CUT - By a tie vote of 49-49, the Senate rejected an amendment to slash the salaries of senators and House members by 10 percent. The proposed $7,510 cut would have lowered lawmaker's pay to $67,590.

Members of Congress in January received a 3.5 percent pay hike follow-

rollcall report

thorization and appropriation bills. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who sponsored the pay cut, said, "I hear constantly in this chamber and across the country that the burden of reducing the federal deficit must be shared by all." Opponent Carl Levin, D-Mich., said:

The goal of shared sacrifice is to be fair, not punitive, and should not be exploited for political or partisan gain."

Senators voting no were opposed to cutting congressional salaries by 10 percent. Voting no were Michigan Democrats Carl Levin and Donald Rie-amendement in behalf of lower defense spending than President Reagan wants in fiscal 1986-88. This occurred during debate on the congressional budget blueprint (above).

DEFENSE - By a vote of 48 for and 51 against, the Senate refused to kill an

The vote sustained a proposal that defense outlays be allowed to rise only to keep pace with inflation. By contrast, Reagan has recommended a 1986 defense hike equivalent to the inflation rate plus 3 percent, down from the 6 percent "real growth" hike he originally requested.

The vote would permit 1986 defense outlays of $273.1 billion.

Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., who voted to kill the amendment, said senators should "have the courage and have the wisdom not to cut the defense budget below a 3 percent growth. We need that growth to keep this country free."

Disagreeing, Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., said "any nation that is a debtor nation, carrying a $200 billion budget deficit and a $40 billion trade deficit, is not a secure nation in any sense of the word.'

Senators voting no favored the lesser of two proposed hikes in defense spending. Voting no: Levin and Riegle.

and 18 against, to permit full cost-of-

(P,C)11A

The vote is expected to increase deficit spending by $11 billion over three years. It occured during debate on the congressional budget blueprint (above.) President Reagan had requested lower COLAs - of about 2 percent for Social Security recipients and all other federal pensioners. In a previous vote, the Senate restored full Social Security COLAs, at a projected cost, of $22 billion over three years.

Senators voting yes favored full cost-HIKES — The Senate voted, 80 for and 18 against, to permit full cost-of-sioners. Voting yes: Levin and Riegle...

Mother's advice: 'Learn a trade'

N THAT fateful morning years ago when Mother decided she needed help to raise her family of five children, she turned to her only son and said, "You will have to leave school and go to work."

His chin dropped. He had been head of his class in high school and was looking ahead to some good times. But he realized that his mother's wishes came first

Before he could comment, Mother said, "I want you to learn a trade. I don't care which one it is, but learning a trade will be important."

She waited for a bit of reaction, then Cement Co., a few miles away, had one can steal from you."

A group of students from Plymouth Centennial Educational Park (CEP) are helping make this season's graduation season.

> Strangely, he didn't hand The Stroller a cue. Instead he told him that he should roll the balls down the table and get to learn how they twisted and turned. It seemed simple, but balls on a pool table have a funny way of twisting.

Then Father gave him this advice: "You will have to learn all the angles." That was one of the greatest bits of advice he ever received. For in no business or trade can you get along until you have learned all the angles.

For most of the next year, some time was spent every day just rolling the balls up and down the table. This eventually paid off. For when he was only 12 years old, The Stroller had won the Lehigh Valley junior championship. It paid to learn a trade.

They reached a head when she told The Stroller he would have to leave school and learn a trade. He did just that and became the night "boss" in a machine shop of the large Bethlehem Steel Co. The trade had paid off well.

It wasn't long until he found out that life's highway has many twists and turns. When work slackened in the machine shop, Lady Luck took him in to our small-town newspaper. He was fascinated by the work on the old flatbed press.

So he got started in a new line, and that took him to the journalism trade which he has followed for more than 60 years.

It helped to prove that learning a trade is important. It is something that not many of the young fellows of today realize.

The warning to them should be what The Stroller's father warned him: "You've got to learn the angles."

Help for the hopeless

With the economic upturn that has swept many of us into the comfort zone, the public eye seems to focus less and less on the thorny problems that staggered us during the recent recession. A spotlight that once was fixed on the faces of the unemployed has swung into the arenas of apartheid in Africa, the trade imbalance and the federal deficit.

Nearly forgotten, but not gone, are the jobless — the undereducated, displaced and unskilled workers who've given up and tallen through society's cracks.

Canton's Michigan Employment Security Commission office reports that last month. 1.298 persons applied for MESC jobs for the first time. During the same period, employers notified MESC of 111 job openings. MESC placed 164 persons into jobs. most of them in service industries such as restaurants. Thirty-four people found jobs on their own. In all, 15.3 percent of April applicants were hired.

That's a pretty good batting average, says Ed DeChant, MESC counselor whose branch assists Canton, Plymouth, Belleville. Northville and some Livonia residents.

"We have more employers calling us than we've had for years," he said. "April was one of our best months."

THERE'S A downside to DeChant's optimism, however.

"I'd estimate that out of 100 job orders, 85 would be for minimum wage, parttime jobs. Fifteen would be good-paying jobs requiring good experience and pretty good skills," DeChant said.

What's disheartening for MESC staffers is that so often, applicants' qualifications and goals "don't match up" with what's available. "We can fill quite readily the jobs that pay more than $5 per hour machinist and tool and die maker jobs that require experience and skill. But those are few and far between," said De-Chant.

"It's getting more and more difficult to fill jobs that offer $3.35 an hour for 15 or 20 hours a week. Many of the applicants are discouraged. They're trying to support families. They need benefits — medical and hospital insurance that isn't offered for minimum wage part-time jobs. It's a real worry."

489 S. Main/Plymouth, MI 48170

DeChant fears that "if this employment trend continues, it's going to create a whole new class — the working poor. It scares me."

The outlook isn't entirely bleak, howev-

A federal program created by the Jobs Training Partnership Act provides onthe-job and classroom training as well as employment referral for persons who meet certain guidelines.

The MESC refers some workers to Livonia's Wayne County Private Industry Corporation (WCPIC), created as a result of the JTPA. But because the program is "designed to serve the hard-to-serve," the program excludes many with minimal incomes, says WCPIC's Jonelle Thibault.

SURPRISINGLY, a similar, less-restrictive local organization is crying for business.

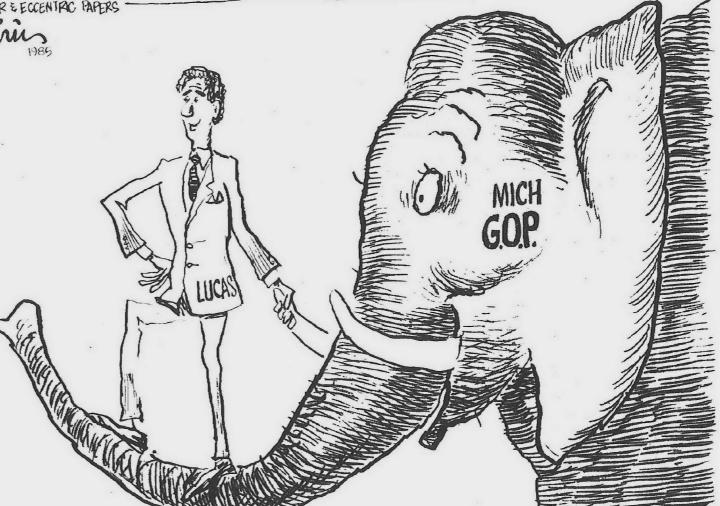

The Greater Opportunities Industrialization Center of Metropolitan Detroit is a multifaceted employment and training operation managing more than $2 million in government and private funds.

With the active support of the UAW, General Motors and other corporations, GOIC since 1972 has enabled 12,000 county residents to participate, at no cost to them, in jobs programs as well as computer, auto mechanics, GED and secretarial classes. It has placed 5,000 people in good, well-paying jobs. GOIC now is engaged in an exciting GM-UAW "jobmatching" and training project.

"Despite this, our organization remains Detroit's best-kept secret, and we don't know why," says GOIC chairman Rev. Dr. Roy Allen.

MESC AND WCPIC officials say they're aware of GOIC, yet use it only "on occasion."

Something is wrong. It seems a little communication could go a long way toward alleviating a lot of the frustration and despair felt by the unemployed.

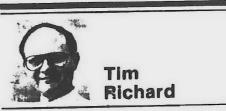

Race won't hurt Lucas

THE LESS written about Bill Lucas' race, the better. It will be a minimal factor, at most, if and when the Wayne County executive decides to run for governor.

If the Democrat-turned-Republican is defeated in the attempt, it won't be because he's black.

The interminable discussion of his possible candidacy reminds one of the 1960 presidential campaign when there was endless speculation on how Protestants would take to a Catholic named John F. Kennedy.

It made little difference because another Catholic named Alfred E. Smith had drawn the fury in 1928. The bubble of

that he was a dull candidate compared to Don Riegle.

The novelty of a black running for statewide office in Michigan has pretty much evaporated.

No black person has been governor of a state since post-Civil War Reconstruction like Oakland County, which made townships pay for the sheriff's road patrol, Lucas insisted on a free ride for the Wayne County townships. Many Wayne County rednecks forgot they were rednecks with that kind of free ride.

He was a hero in Plymouth's holiday parades. If he can be a hero there, Kalamazoo and Escanaba will have few qualms.

In 1982, Lucas won the Democratic nomination for Wayne County executive against several far better candidates with records of advocacy of county reform. He cut very deeply into the white vote. The black vote was 95 percent in his favor.

can't take up slack

Private charities

THOSE WHO espouse conservative government spending frequently contend that the government should cut back on aid programs, that private resources can best be used to help those in need.

Yet it is more and more evident that private resources are not enough, that it is up to the collective will of the people, in the form of government, to ensure that something is done to alleviate the conditions under which a good percentage of the population suffers.

A new case in point is the Salvation Army's 300-bed Harbor Light Center in downtown Detroit. The national organization has said that either its $600,000 deficit incurred by operating the center has to be eliminated, or the center will be closed.

Even with a state contribution of $12 per day, the center has been going deeper in the hole. There are presently some efforts in the state Legislature to increase the state's contribution to the center to $17 per day.

DURING THE last year the center served 4,805 people. What will happen to the hundreds of unfortunates who found shelter and sanctuary at the Harbor Light? The center was for many a means of staying alive, at least for a time, often until some form of rehabilitative help was available.

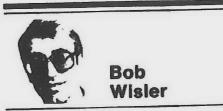

Are we to allow them to go out on their own to seek refuge and understanding in a world where the refuges are strained and dwindling?

We are at the same time approaching a point in our society where the poor, the unskilled and the disadvantaged have fewer and fewer opportunities.

According to a University of Michigan study completed by a former deputy assistant secretary of U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, more and more Americans are slipping into poverty.

Nancy Amidei, adjunct professor of social work, said: "The numbers are sobering: 35 million people — nearly 40 percent of them children — live below poverty while another 12 million have incomes just above the poverty threshold."

According to Amidei, who is also former director of the U.S. Senate Select so much wishful thinking.

Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs, "It isn't just that the poor are increasing or that more of the poor are women. Since 1978, the government's own statistics show that the percentage of fulltime workers who are poor has gone up by one-third."

CALCULATED IN inflation-adjusted dollars, Amidei said, roughly one-third of the nation's poor families needed less than $1,000 to escape poverty in 1978. Today that's true for only 15 percent of the poor families. The majority would need more than $3,000 to get over the poverty line.

This is understandable if you consider that there are now more minimum-wage jobs in the fast-food industry than in manufacturing.

Amidei suggests that while economic indicators are looking better than they have in months, many social indicators are looking worse that they have in years.

"In the face of mounting evidence that proverty and its consequences are growing, the president and Congress have cut back on help, without taking any steps to assure that other sources of help — local, private, voluntary — had been put in place first."

Amidei says the best solution to the problem is not handouts but adequate wages from paying jobs. But for people who work but earn too little, or who aren't employable, "we must be prepared to help with the basics: food, housing, medical care."

anti-Catholicism had been pricked by the time JFK rolled onto the scene. Protestant Americans no longer believed Catholics were horned devils.

DETROIT WENT through the throes of speculation about black politicians until William T. Patrick Jr. broke the ice by being elected to the city council back in the '50s.

The ice was melted by Richard Austin who became the first black nominee for mayor in 1969. He paved the way for Coleman Young's victory in 1973.

Statewide, Otis Smith calmly chilled the racial issue by being elected to the Michigan Supreme Court in the '60s. Austin's race caused barely a ripple when he was elected secretary of state in 1970. It was raised briefly when Austin sought the U.S. Senate nomination in 1976, but the truth is days. If Lucas makes it, surely it will be news. But a critical factor to white voters? Not in Michigan.

LUCAS IS warmly accepted by whites. One reason is his speech — articulate, with a West Indian accent, not the hypedup southern rhetoric of the Rev. Jesse Jackson. Indeed, if you should happen to catch a Lucas speech, ask yourself afterwards: What did he say?

Lucas uses a lot of words but says nothing of substance, certainly nothing threatening to whites. He simply can't be compared to Coleman Young, who still seethes with hatred about his Detroit high school days when kids from Grosse Pointe were bused in.

Another reason is that as sheriff, Lucas took care of his white constituents in the townships of western Wayne County. Uncance of the racial factor. The white backlash will be insignificant, but will blacks cross over to vote for a black Republican?

I honestly can't answer that one. Certainly, Young helped Republican Gov. William G. Milliken's 1978 campaign by holding back on criticism of the governor and by not busting his tail for the Democratic nominee.

There is no question that blacks will give 95 percent support to black non-partisan and Democratic candidates. But Republican Lucas doesn't need monolithic black support to be elected governor just 12, 15 or 20 percent, like Milliken.

These speculations on race overlook one thing: Michiganians may not vote for or against Bill Lucas. They may just decide to vote for Jim Blanchard.

Parents need to tax own time

AMERICANS APPEAR to be willing to put their money where their mouths are concerning quality education. But is that enough?

A Michigan State University survey shows 81 percent of those polled agreed to pay $200 more in taxes per year to raise teacher salaries.

Ever since the U.S. Department of Education issued its "A Nation at Risk" report which outlined the shortcomings of public education, parents have been warned that improving schools was going to hit them in their pocketbooks.

WE PROBABLY shouldn't be surprised that parents are in agreement over the need for higher school taxes. When you stop to think about it, it's the American way.

Americans have a peculiar notion that if we dump enough money on a problem, the problem will disappear. And the deficiency in our educational systém is a problem that's embarrassing enough to us that we're willing to try to spend ourselves out of it.

But aren't school administrators and education experts only telling half the story? I wonder what the reaction would be if parents were told that their time and not their money is what is needed for their children to make the most of their education.

We're willing to pay for better teachers, better classes and better facilities, but are we willing to give what it takes to be better parents?

WE SEEM to have the attitude that after we've plunked down our tax dollars, we've met our end of the deal, and we're content to let the professionals take over.

Once we get past nursery rhymes, we stop reading to our kids. Maybe we stop reading for ourselves too, so our kids never see an adult who finds pleasure in propping open a novel or a biography. And after our kids get too old for library story times, we stop taking them or even encouraging them to go on their own.

Rather than 'discuss their homework, we're content to believe that it can be done in a half-hour in front of the television. After we help with the mandatory science fair project, we kiss that off for another year and hope our kids go back to watching "Dukes of Hazzard" reruns instead of urging them toward "Nova" on public television.

We sign them up for Little League, but overlook enrichment classes the community college offers for kids.

AND PARTIALLY because we feel guilty about our lack of contribution to our child's development and worry about their making the grade, we buy them a home computer and then let them play vi-

We love our children, and when we want to show them how much we love them, we open our wallets. But the stakes are too high, the repercussions permanent. A better education begins at home.

Women say restrooms fail to meet their needs

By Penny Wright special writer

EXT TO crime rates, job security and Tiger baseball, the topic of women's public restroom facilities hardly rates attention - or so you would think.

Yet in the last few weeks, 55 women have writ-ten to Observer & Eccentric Newspapers with their views about public "powder rooms." Their candid and often lengthy responses were spurred by a three-part series of articles on women's restrooms - the shortage of facilities, the long lines, the overcrowded and dirty conditions.

Readers were asked to give their feedback by filling out a survey form.

Women who read the series agreed with the find-ings. In summary, they said: Women's public restrooms fail to meet user needs most of the time.

A MAJOR share of the complaints blamed building designers and plumbing code officials for providing insufficient numbers of toilets in public places. Fully 82 percent of the respondents deplored the congested conditions women face using public restrooms, particularly at large-crowd complexes.

A Plymouth woman: "I wholeheartedly agree that women have been discriminated against long enough when it comes to public bathroom facilities. Waiting in long lines has caused me to miss many important moments at public functions I have attended.'

A Livonia mother: "I'm so tired of waiting in line while there are no lines at men's rooms. It's hard when you have a child who is about to wet his pants and you have to wait and wait."

A Redford woman: "Lack of adequate restroom facilities is an extremely sore point with me. While standing in line during intermission at the Masonic Temple, I noticed that the men had stopped trickling in and out of their restroom, and I asked a Masonic employee if the women could use the men's facility. I was refused, and I and many other women were late for the second portion of the show."

THE SOLUTION? Three-quarters of the poll respondents said: Add more stalls.

Here are some of their comments:

"We need to double the toilets in shopping centers and restaurants" - a Westland woman.

"How about doubling the women's rooms at arenas, sporting events and wherever there are large crowds?" - Penny Greer of Livonia.

"An obvious solution is to have more bathrooms in public facilities with more stalls in each bathroom" - Susan Harrington of Plymouth.

"Designers of restrooms should remember the biological differences between men and women. Men can breeze in and out with very little difficulty and no sitting down. Women need more time because of their biological design, clothes and the need to care for children" - Suzanne Landes of Livonia.

Readers say: It's a problem

Readers have been writing the Observer newspapers ever since we did a three part series on the problems women experience finding adequate and sanitary restrooms. These excerpts are a sample of the comments submitted:

"Thanks for bringing out the problem of public restrooms. It's been a problem for me for years. Something needs to be done. Rest stops on the interstate (freeways), theaters and arenas are disgusting. As a woman, I feel degraded having to use such dirty, disgusting places. And then to have to stand in line to use it!

Certainly something can be done with a little planning. Thanks for bringing this out in the public eve.

- A concerned female citizen

You are doing a poll on one of my favorite subjects - restrooms. As an older woman with an incontinence problem, it has become a way of life to seek out restrooms and know just where to find them for planning any outing or shopping trip.

Today I started out to go grocery shopping with the intention of also going to ACO Hardware store and Little Caesar's for pizza. All three stores were located in the same center. However, after grocery shopping. I had to skip the other two places - no restrooms - and dash for home. -from a three-page letterr

THE SUGGESTION of using female urinals to shorten restroom lines provoked mixed responses. While 35 percent of respondents indicated a willingness to give a female urinal a try, some 64 percent flatly rejected the idea. "I have used a woman's urinal, but given women's clothing and anatomy it is very inconvenient," said a Livonia woman. "When I read this item to my husband, he just laughed and commented, 'How can you straddle a urinal with clothing around your legs?'

Another woman made the point: "It seems the idea requisite for a woman to use the female urinal with the ease a man enjoys is to not have packages or a purse, wear a skirt or dress and no panty-hose and absolutely no underpants. Amen."

MANY BESPONDENTS were troubled by the absence or inaccessibility of restroom facilities in public buildings.

"Too many small shopping centers have no public conveniences," noted one woman.

"Why are places built with bathrooms thrown in as afterthoughts?" asked another. "By the time,

Agencies take complaints

The Michigan Plumbing Code determines mini-mum numbers of toilet fixtures required in a building. Complaints about inadequate numbers of restroom facilities, along with health and safety problems, can be sent to:

Albert Cohen, Chairperson State Plumbing Board 25900 Greenfield, Suite 210 Oak Park, MI 48237

Complaints about misuse of toilet fixtures, broken or leaking fixtures, unsanitary conditions and inaccessible restrooms should be directed to county health departments or local building departments.

Wayne County Health Department: 467-3300.

Oakland County Health Department: 424-7000.

you climb all the stairs and hunt down the right door, it's almost too late."

There are so many people who have to use a public restroom — ask someone on water or high blood pressure pills," wrote a Garden City woman. "It doesn't have to be a plush place, but an available place with the bare essentials and clean."

TURNING TO building management, 96 percent decried the lack of cleanliness in most public washrooms Their comments.

"Too many restrooms are pigsties."

"I'm worried about catching a disease."

"I have been able to avoid public restrooms a lot," said a Canton woman, "but with an 8-year-old and a 2-year-old, when they have to go, they have to

"If my children or I have to go," said a Livonia mother, "I will purposely look for a McDonald's because they usually have very clean restrooms." In fairness, respondents noted the problem of

pleaded one woman.

"If women are going to urinate all over the seat, ask them to wipe it up. I have to sit down to go, and so do the kids," said another.

LACK OF regular restroom maintenance distressed 60 percent. Women noted frequent absences of such basics as soap, towels, locks on doors, toilet tissue, and broken plumbing fixtures.

According to one, the long lines at the powderroom door result because "half the toilet fixtures don't flush or have paper."

A Canton woman wrote her biggest complaint is the lack of soap and paper towels in restaurants. "Where is the cook/waitress washing hands?" she wanted to know.

They suggested such additional sanitary and convenience features as disposable toilet seat covers, more package shelves and hooks inside stalls ("There is nowhere to hang or set a purse except on the floor - ugh!"), more counter space, hooks for coats near sinks, more paper towel dispensers, changing tables and a chair for nursing mothers.

SOME 60 percent complained about lack of space within a stall.

Marilyn Sloan of Redford suggested, "Make larger stalls so you can get out without apparel and packages touching commodes."

"Make stalls big enough so my knees are not against the door when I sit down," urged another.

'Make stalls large enough so mom and toddler can both fit into one," said still another.

Their reasons: "No one admits responsibility," or, "What good would it do?" And, "Too many times the person in charge is not on duty." Fully 82 percent of the respondents deplored the congested conditions women face using public restrooms.

"And remember, PLENTY of women's restroom this time!"

S'craft honors employees

Schoolcraft College recognized eight outstanding employees at a staff recognition luncheon.

Two of the awards recognized special teamwork projects. One team award went to Culinary Arts and Food Service personnel for their contribution to promoting Schoolcraft College. The other was presented to members of the Mutual Gains bargaining teams

President Richard McDowell presented Presidential Recognition Awards to John Angell of Northville, skilled maintenance; Charles Castillo of Northville, speech professor; Larry Ordowski of Northville, associate dean for liberal arts; Jean Pike of Livonia, director of career planning and placement; Maud Piggot of Canton, volunteer coordinator RSVP Program; Butch Raby of Northville, comptroller; Michael Ragan of Westland, general maintenance; and Donna Sudik of Plymouth, assistant coordinator, Learning Assistance Center.

Board of Trustees resolutions also were presented to seven faculty members who will retire this year. Honored were: Charles Castillo of Northville, speech professor; Robert Jones of Plymouth, music professor; Ray Naslund of Plymouth, accounting professor, Ruth McCormack of Dearborn Heights, nursing professor, David Perkins of Ann Arbor. English professor; Kenneth Russell of Lincoln Park, climate systems associate professor; and M.S. Sanborn of Northville, business coordinator/ professor

Jane Lurain of Farmington Hills, secretary-community services, also was honored. She will retire Sept. 1 before the next recognition ceremony.

FRUGAL

That one word certainly describes Nick Coluccelli, in stock and parts at the Wayne terminal. In fact, during his eleven years of service at SEMTA, being frugal has been just part of the job.

Nick is very aware that money he spends on new parts is the taxpayers' hardearned money. But he's also aware that the safety of the driver and the passengers comes first. "I'm not going to buy a part just because it's cheap or because someone recommends it," says Nick. "It's simply a matter of finding the right part at the right price."

Frugal. That's Nick Coluccelli. But he also brings other outstanding qualities to the job - just like all SEMTA people who make SEMTA the bus system that works. They're simply doing their best to be the best. As for Nick, it just means doing it very frugally.

Congratulations Students, Parents, Teachers

Virtue may be its own reward, but academic preparation in high school also offers material rewards. The students named above receive full tuition scholarships to Wayne State University. The WSU Merit Scholarship Program recognizes students who achieved mean grade point scores of at least 3.85 during their high school careers. These students join the 1,400 WSU Merit Scholarship recipients on campus.

programs which attract top scholars to Wayne State University. The WSU Merit Scholars come from the top 5 percent of their high school classes. In fact, the average student entering WSU comes from the top one-third of his or her high school class, has a 3.22 grade point average and an ACT score of 21. Once again, Congratulations students, parents and teachers. For more information, call your "Opportunity Line" at 577-1000 from 8:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Wayne State University serves the community: Oakland County is home to more than 5,300 students and almost 28,000 alumni; Macomb County more than 4,500 students and more than 13,000 alumni; Wayne County almost 16,000 students and 54,000 alumni.

Pageant opens doors for show biz careers

By Loraine McClish staff writer

This year's Miss Michigan United Beauty Pageant will be televised for cable TV Wednesday, June 19, in Center Stage Entertainment Complex, tary make-up and hair make-overs giv-Canton.

"That will be one more bit of exposure for the girls who want to break into modeling or show business careers," said Cindy Guenther, executive director of the pageant that is now afpageants are still the number one spas," Guenther said. watched speciality program in the Neilson ratings and getting these girls seen is what my pageant is all about."

Guenther stresses that no talent presentation is required for the competition. The entrants are judged in a personal interview, on their figures, charm, poise, personality, intelligence and photogenic potential.

The pageant is open to all women who are either a resident of Michigan or officially registered in a Michigan school or university, who have never been married.

A former Miss Michigan World, Guenther initiated the pageant in 1977 to provide Michigan women with a vehicle for obtaining recognition to begin careers in modeling, the media and the auto shows

EACH YEAR the contenders who are chosen as the 25 finalists automatically win auditions for the auto shows.

"Last year Ford Motor Co. alone hired 40 girls from the pageant, and those girls make a lot of money. So you don't have to be the title winner to win. It's not unusual for a talent scout or a photographer in the audience to spot something in a girl he likes that the judges don't see. And I see a lot of business cards passed during our prepageant parties," Guenther said.

The pre-pageant parties are given for the contenders to meet one another and the judges on an informal basis, and the contenders are invited "to bring the family," Guenther said. Another pre-pageant event is a draw-

And another pre-pageant event for the first 30 contestants is complemenen by Ondine's Beauty Salon in Southfield.

"Ondine's is a new sponsor this year and so is Fitness USA. We met them when they hired Jacky Meyer (Miss Michigan United for 1984 from Utica) filiated with Miss Venus USA. "Beauty as their spokesman for the health

> A FORMER sponsor returning for this year's pageant is Dittrich Furs of Detroit and Bloomfield Hills who coordinate the now traditional parade of furs on pageant night.

> One of the new sponsors for the pageant is Elias Big Boy which will automatically hire 1985's title winner to star in one of next season's commercials for the chain.

> The new Miss Michigan United will win a full-length fur coat of her choice from Dittrich's, the use of a car for a year, a $1,600 modeling scholarship to John Robert Powers Modeling School in Southfield, an all-expense trip to the Bahamas on Eastern Airlines and an all-expense trip to the nationally televised Miss Venus USA Pageant in New York.

> The new Miss Michigan United will also reign during Detroit's Grand Prix events this summer.

> "Last year was our first year of affiliation with Miss Venus USA and our Miss Michigan United came in third runner-up. Pretty good for first time out. I think it might have had something to do with the amount of help our girls get from the John Robert Powers staff. So many of them have never been on a stage before and they get a lot of help just learning how to walk, how to handle themselves on stage," she said.

JUDGES FOR the pageant are a diverse group that run from welterweight Tommy Hearns to jazz instrumentalist Earl Klugh. Mira Linder

ing for a portfolio, a video tape of the of Esthetics of Mira Linder in Southfield, a sponsor of the pageant, will be back as a judge along with Dike Dake, scout for Ford Motor Co. shows, Steve Danton of Dittrich's and Harriet Fuller whose company produces fashion shows.

"This is the wrong time of the year

to change my phone number, but we are moving, and we don't want to miss any calls from anyone who wants to be part of this year's pageant," Guenther said.

Guenther can be reached at pageant headquarters by calling the new number, 851-7468.

Jacky Meyer, Miss Michigan United 1984, will give up her title in June, but not her fur coat. A coat of the winner's choice from Dittrich Furs is one of the prizes lined up for the woman who wears the crown in 1985.

Historical Society sells plants this weekend

Next week is a biggie. I'll fill you in on the details in next week's column, but just keep your holiday open. You don't have to worry about a thing.

We'll have soccer tournaments with hotel packages available, a grand Grand Opening of our first theater with prizes galore. These prizes include a trip to Las Vegas, a VCR tape recorder, a 10-speed bike, a PacMan game and loads more If that doesn't peak your interest, I don't know what will. But I'll keep searching.

That's next week's news. Now about this week's stuff.

Let us begin with Cliff Lambert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Lambert of Bunkerhill Lane, Canton. Cliff has never failed to make his parents proud, and this summer will be no exception.

Cliff was the valedictorian of the class of '84 at Plymouth Christian Academy on Joy in Canton, and is now on the Dean's List at Liberty Baptist University, Lynchburg, Va. Some of you also may remember a couple of years back when I reported that Cliff was on tour with the Continentals.

This is a Christian singing group that tours the world and made a stop right here in Canton at the Calvary Baptist Church. In keeping with that idea, Cliff once again has embarked on a singing tour, this year with the Chamber Choir from Liberty University. The choir consists of 30 of Liberty's finest voices, chosen from a group of the 300 best voices Liberty has to offer.

The tour departed May 8 for one month. during which time they will travel throughout Great Britain.

Cliff, and his brother Lane, are excellent examples of what a great place Canton can be to raise children. Cliff displayed tremendous talent in so many areas - vocal, instrumental, sports, and has a long record of scholastic excellence.

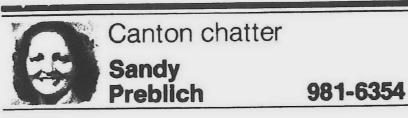

Lane is no slouch either. Currently he is burning up the tracks on the school's track team and is trying to decide which school to attend this fall. Good luck, Lane.

NEXT IS something very close to my heart and a worthwhile service - the Canton Historical Society plant and flower sale this weekend.

Last year my daughter bought some small flowers that looked like miniature zinnias. Being the expert that I am, that's what I called them, miniature zinnias. They bloomed and spread beautifully, and she took care of them all uy herself. It was a great learning experience and took some of the work off my hands. I just handed her a small patch of the garden and it was her responsibility to care for it all by herself.

Well, she's ready and willing to go at it again, and so am I. Until last year when society President Bart Berg asked me to mention the sale in this column, I had grown only vegetables and roses, and maybe a marigold or two to keep away the grub worms. But I hadn't tried any real flowery type flowers. I put them in, around and between my roses, and they were beautiful.

I always liked the look of just roses, but the little flowers really added something. As a matter of fact, I planted impatiens, because and Mary Dingeldey would have haunted me forever if I hadn't. But now I'm glad I did and I hope you my family helping. Perhaps I'll get the nerve to give them a try.

The sale will be at the Historical Museum, and the museum will be open for inspection if you would care to take your children through. Remember there is no charge to tour the museum, and lots to learn. The books from the Sesquicen-ternial are on sale there if you didn't get one. They come in very handy for school reports. You might want to show your children some of the old farm implements we have on display alongside the museum on Canton Center Road another and never gets home in right next to the new police station.

WHILE YOU'RE around that way, take a minute and decide where you'll be seated next weekend at the International Soccer Tournament.

Remember, that is next week and lots of free fun for the whole family.

As for the past weekend, if you're real honest about it, I'll just bet most mothers spent the day running from one mother to the other with perhaps a grandmother to fit in somewhere.

As with every other year, I'm de-

it was the Sesquicentennial flower claring a belated Mother's Day. I plan on getting as much yard work as possible done this weekend with make them a terrific meal or barbecue something, since I didn't have to cook on Mother's Day. But, by running from here to there, I really didn't get waited on either and I'll bet many of you ended up the same

So join my belated Mother's Day Club and declare this Saturday Mothers Do-For Day. Naturally, this results in a demand for Father's Do-For Day to follow or precede the official Father's Day, when he drives from one father to time to enjoy the relaxing day that he so richly deserves. Especially when the Canton Country Festival will be on Father's Day. It's a compromise, but I still get my garden in without nagging.

IF YOU'RE NOT completely exhausted after the great Memorial Day weekend we have planned here in Canton — or even if you are exhausted — I have a relaxing and very enjoyable treat for you.

This is a little advance notice, but I'll remind you next week. On Wednesday, May 29, many residents of our community will be to communicate with middle concert. The Midwest Harmony when they come to the office with Chapter of the Sweet Adelines will perform at the Kirk of Our Savior But communicate she did, and we on Cherry Hill between Wayne and all are thankful she did. I shall miss Newburgh Roads, Westland.

Under the direction of Dixie Dahlke, the evening promises to be one you won't want to miss. So much of the time, we don't hear about these things until it's too late. I know I would love to spend an evening relaxing and letting someone else do all the work and entertain me.

As I mentioned, I'll try to get more details for next week and the reminder I promised you. But for now, remember 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, May 29, at the Kirk of Our Savior. I have been trying to get over there to preview the program, but as many of you know, my family's health has kept me hopping.

But have no fear, I'll have final details for you next week.

ONE FINAL note - I want to say goodbye to a terrific lady at Pioneer Middle School who has been standing in while Kathleen Cominskey was recovering from surgery.

We are pleased that Mrs. Cominskey has recovered beautifully and will be returning soon to Pioneer. At the same time, we must say a sad so-long to Sandy Kennedy, who has been no less than wonderful to everyone - parents and students alike.

It takes a special type of person home!

participating in a beautiful vocal schoolers all day long. Especially their creative excuses for what not. her smiling face and kind attitude.

> We can be grateful that many terrific ladies, such as Mrs. Wood. who has been there for so many years, do indeed tolerate our intolerable kids. If your child should ever come home and tell you of the mean people in the front office, I recommend you spend 30 minutes sitting there, listening to the rude remarks and bad manners of some of our community's future leaders.

> You will understand why, perhaps once and a while, a child who doesn't deserve a sharp answer may receive one in the fallout.

> My thanks to all the women in school offices everywhere, but especially in the mms elementary students, for the most part, know an office means "shape up fast, the hour has arrived, death could be imminent!"

> The high school students know detention could be the least of your worries if you mess up in the office. But middle schoolers . . . ah, there's a special breed. They know it all, and are anxious to show you what they can do.

So from all of us, to all the office workers: our apologies for what our children may have done, or said, or may do, or say, in the future. Honest, they didn't get it at We hope.

Saxtons will mark 65 years of wedded life

Margaret and Dean Saxton marking 65 years of marriage

By W.W. Edgar staff writer

On Sunday afternoon, May 20, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Saxton will celebrate their 65th wedding anniversary, but the owner of Saxton's Garden Center in Plymouth just can't believe that so many years have passed since they were joined in holy wedlock.

"I just can't make myself believe that more than 60 years have passed since that day in the Messiah church on East Grand Boulevard have been this way and that I have lived that long. I never expected to."

While he was sitting in his office recalling the day in 1920 when the minister conducted the official ceremony Saxton recalled how he met the girl who was to be his bride.

"Every year the group over there sponsored a picnic, and I was invited to go with them to Grosse Ile. We spent some time together and soon I was off to war. I was 22 years old and she was four days younger.

When I returned, we dated and finally married on May 20, 1920. And it has been a grand life every since - but I still can't believe so many years have passed."

ton started in the garden business shortly after they were married and has been in it since, Mrs. Saxton has been extremely busy.

"She is always busy," Saxton said. "She has written a book of poems, does some painting and several kinds of writing. She is a member of several societies in Plymouth and when on vacation in Florida she is active in several others.

"This is the first year she hasn't painted a picture for the group in Florida. So, you see, she is always busy with something interesting for the various groups in which she is active." As he awaited the anniversary Saxton recalled his start in the garden center business.

"I had been working at Fords and

"Some of my folks lived near East rand Boulevard and Lafayette in De-sons and two daughters — they have enjoyed life to the utmost. While Sax-asked to get started — with six months rent free. I took the offer and we almost starved that first year. But we stuck at it, with her help, and we progressed from there."

At one time they owned two places and finally wound up in Plymouth. In the meantime Mrs. Saxton had worked for a photography company and knew about business.

She also studied geology and does considerable work along that line at their winter vacation home in Palm Beach, Fla

'Festival of faith' alds renovation

Parishioners at St. Richard Catholic Church, Westland, will remember 1985 for two reasons. One is that it marks the 25th anniversary of the church and the other is that to celebrate the event, a major renovation of the church building got under way. Launching the project will be a "Festival of Faith" May 24-27 on the church grounds at 35637 Cherry Hill. Plans calls for completely redoing the worship area of the church and for renovating and expanding the religious education areas, according to the Rev. Bill Immel.

Letters" to urge congressmen to sup-port a bill providing both short-term food aid and long-term self help measures to famine victims in Africa. On Sunday, May 19, members will write the letters. The offering of letters is an annual campaign organized by Bread for the World, the national Christian citizens lobby against hunger.

Specifically the letters will be written in support of the Food Assistance and Africa Agriculture Act being considered this spring in Congress. The bill includes money to fund small-scale sustainable food-growing projects for African farmers. Without such long-term provisions, Africa will continue to experience periodic and severe famines and African people will be dependent on food donated by other countries. For more information, call Pastor Merlin Jacobs at 427-9575.

Mother's Day meaning changes with times

OTHER'S DAY is still celebrated in the churches of America. It typically is the second-highest attendance Sunday of the year. Yet on all the other days of the year it is much harder to be a mother these days than ever before.

Most of the young mothers I know are going back to work. Some return just months or even weeks after their child is born. They feel guilt in leaving their newborn with someone else while they are working, yet they do it. Some return to work to hold their job, others to help to pay the mortgage. When they do have time with their children, they are often tired and divided by many tasks and needs.

The lucklest working mothers have family nearby. These children are raised in an extended family of grandparents, uncles and aunts. Too many live far from their family or find that others in their family do not wish to share their child raising.

IT IS HARD to be a mother today. The many factors which affect families

add up to a virtual assault upon motherhood. It's a wonder that many mothers function as well as they do.

Figures show that close to 60 percent of mothers work. Living in such a family, I find that many adjustments have to be made. Some families can make these changes in order to maintain the chores of the home and nurture and guide the children. Few are prepared to do this well and avoid paying a cost.

Surprisingly, teen-age girls still typi-cally have traditional expectations of their role in the family. Not more than 13 percent of American families are constituted with both parents in the home and only one working.

Yet most young people expect that they will live a traditional marriage role when it comes to the child raising. In such a role, the mother has the major responsibility of raising, nurturing and guiding the young children in the family.

I BELIEVE THAT unrealistic role expectations in the family are a major cause of family troubles. Both external and internal conflict occurs when expectations of mothers and wives are not met. If both parents work full time, it is hard to adjust to the changing needs of children. The pressures on women who are mothers are often enormous.

Where does hope lie in this problem? Men and women need to share the nurturing and home-making rolls. Women have to resolve the guilt they often feel when someone else is doing what they think they should do. Young families need to enlist their parent's help in child care.

They may need to locate their resi-dence near to those who will love and care for the children. I know people who have refused an advancement which would have taken them some distance from the supportive care of their extended family.

Women's study groups need to exam-ine the issues of women's changing role. This is the appropriate concern of churches and synagogues. Support needs to be shared in order to meet this challenge

The family is under assault. If nothing is done to remedy the pressures which bear upon a mother's role, the day may come when the sentiments celebrated on Mother's Day will hardly exist.

N.Y. by boat: It's a wonderful ride

By Joy Schaleben Lewis special writer

Steven Moran, a jolly, highly informed commentator for what has been called "America's favorite boat ride," keeps up a continuous patter as a Circle Line boat takes its three-hour, 35-mile sightseeing cruise around Manhattan Island

'If you can't find it in New York, you can't find it anywhere on this cockamamy planet of ours. But Disneyland we ain't. So don't stroll through Central Park at 4 a.m. Stay where the people are. It's that simple. And above all, enjoy yourselves. We are the Big Apple."

The Circle Line may well be America's most used boat ride judging by the hundreds of thousands of tourists who've gawked at New York's majestic, arrogant skyline while cruising by hundreds of famed landmarks.

"When New York City came into being, after Peter Stuyvestant surrendered the Dutch Fort Amsterdam to the English in 1664, the population was about 1,500 - less than the capacity of any three Circle Line yachts. Today nearly half of the city's population of 7,710,000 is of foreign birth or parentage.

Bridesmaids: Hand loving care, conside

Accompanying the more than 2.5 million brides expected to walk down aisles all over the nation this year will be more than 10 million bridesmaids. And while the days of worrying about always being a bridesmaid and never a bride have passed in most quarters, being a wedding attendant still carries its share of anxiety.

According to Bride's Magazine, today's bridesmaids share some complaints and concerns that have worried attendants since the advent of the modern wedding party.

Perhaps the most frequently heard complaint is that the bridesmaids didn't like the dresses the bride chose for them. Color, style and price of the gowns chosen all came in for criticism from the women who wore them.

Although it's hard for the bride to please everyone, Bride's suggest that brides take their maid or matron of honor shopping with them to narrow down the choices to about three styles.

Be sure the dresses you chose flatter your attendants. Full skirts and blouson tops are classic styles that look good on a variety of figures. You may even want to look at two-piece outfits or shorter styles that can be worn again.

Once you've made the preliminary selection, schedule a time when the rest of the women in the wedding party can come to the bridal shop and vote on the final selection.

Be considerate of your attendants' budgets. Costs can add up when you consider that it's usual for attendants to pay for their own outfits, including shoes, accessories and maybe even an extra dress for the rehearsal dinner. Add that to the cost of wedding and shower gifts as well as transportation, lodging and meals for attendants from out of town.

You may want to enlist friends and relatives to offer your attendants a place to stay. Or let your bridesmaids select their own shoes, perhaps even wear a pair they already own. If you can, offer to provide all meals.

Another problem encountered by bridesmaids that can be readily alleviated by brides centers around a uncertainty of exactly what their duties are. Give your bridesmaids a chance to practice walking down the aisle with you. Make sure they know where to stand during different segments of the ceremony. Allow them to rehearse and feel comfortable with anything they may be required to read during the ceremony. Practice passing the bouquet to your attendant.

Before the wedding, ask them for help if you need it, in choosing your dress, addressing invitations and welcoming out-oftown guests. Remember, though that bridesmaids, as well as brides, are busy with the details of their own lives. Don't expect a total committment to planning your wedding.

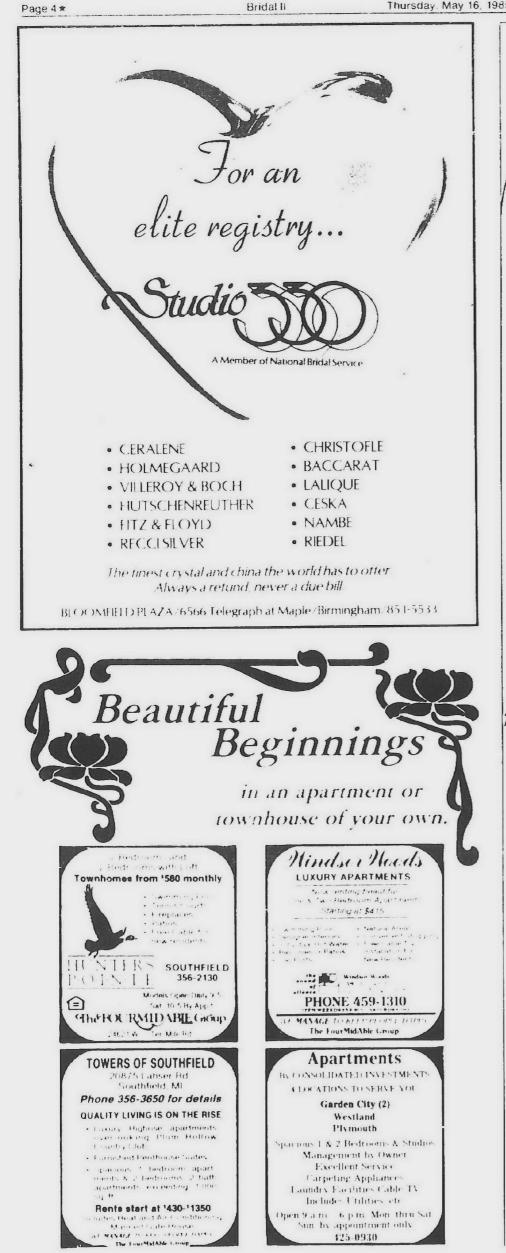

Finally, try to find time to spend with your bridesmaids. They're friends and relatives who, it's assumed, will continue to be close to you after the wedding ceremony is but a fond memory.

Sensitivity is the key to handling many aspects of planning your wedding. Brides should be sensitive to the fact that even an impending marriage doesn't allow one to ride roughshod over her friends.

Paul Scicluna has had enough

HE LITTLE MAN with the beard was conspicuously absent Monday night when the state's two top girls soccer teams, Livonia Stevenson and Livonia Bentley, took the field for a league championship showdown.

Though small in stature, Paul Scicluna usually isn't hard to pick out when he's coaching on the sidelines. If he's not harping on a referee, he's admonishing his players to work the short passing game

Though it was the biggest game of the year (see related story), Scieluna decided Monday morning that he was no longer suited to coach Bentley, one of the state's top powerhouses.

"Paul resigned, but we didn't want him to," said Bob Bentley, the school's athletic director. "He had philosophical differences with the team." An incident last week touched off the resignation, according to Bentley.

Scicluna suspended two standout players. Amy Weber and Colleen McQueen, for improper behavior during a 4-1 victory over North Farmington. The two parties had a vehement disagreement on the field.

BUT SOME OF the players, according to the AD, felt the suspensions should have been lifted for the big game with Stevenson.

"I felt Paul took the normal disciplinary action," Bentley said. "He couldn't disgard his principles. It defies a more logical explanation." Scicluna, apparently looking for complete support from the team on the suspensions, didn't get it "It was time for me to resign," Scicluna said Monday night. "I'm a man of principles and was within my own right. It was the best thing to do for the team." Scicluna, who has coached at Bentley for nearly seven years, admits he's demanding

"I get pretty hyper." he said. "I'm a tough coach. I'm tough on skills. I demand character and respect. I teach soccer as a tool for the future. I'm not concerned with the won-lost record."

Bentley principal Dr Ken Watson, who attended Monday's match, said the door is still open for Scicluna to come back

"MR. SCICLUNA did a nice job for us." Watson said. "He left for important reasons. There were no hard feelings.

"I'm sure it was a difficult decision. He spent many hours above and beyond the call of duty

If every picture tells a story then this one speaks volumes. Salem third baseman Mike Kesson mishandles the throw, Stevenson's Brian Song is safe. Song later scored. Stevenson won 8-7.

Spartans ruin Rock streak

By Chris McCosky staff writer

Plymouth Salem and Livonia Stevenson played a little tortoise-and-hare baseball Monday afternoon.

Salem, the hare, jumped quickly in front 4-0. Then, thinking it had the game won, the hare decided to rest.

Stevenson, the tortoise, took advantage of Salem's nap and raced ahead 7-4.

The Rocks eventually woke up and tried to regain its lead but, in the end, the underdog tortoise won the game 8-7 in eight innings.

As in the fable, the hare learned a great lesson.

"We just lost our intensity," said Salem coach John Gravlin. "We got a four-run lead and then flat-out expected them to lay down and die. You can't do that against a team like Stevenson.

STEVENSON IS no stranger to the role of spoiler. Salem is the second undefeated No. 9-ranked team in the state to be humbled by the Spartans. Two weeks ago the Spartans put the first blemish on then No. 9-ranked Plymouth Canton.

Salem came in Monday, unbeaten in the Western Lakes and ranked No. 9 in the state.

"We had a little pregame talk today about staying together," said Stevenson coach Jim George. "With our record (6-7), we're not going anywhere. But, if we stay together and play ball, some crazy things can happen. Like we can knock off the No. 9 team in the state again.

The game-winner for Stevenson came in the bottom of the eighth. Chris Tancill's slap single through a drawn-in Salem infield scored Brian Trainor from third. Trainor had reached first on a bad-hop single and went to third on Frank Williams' single, his fourth hit of the day

But, two factors enabled the Spartans to be in a position to win: Salem's inability to score runners from third with less than two out and Stevenson's unrelenting seven-run burst in the five of the seven were unearned.

fifth, which was aided by some sloppy Salem fielding

TOM MOORE'S double triggered Salem's four-run first. After a pair of Stevenson miscues let in one run. Doug Kirkpatrick scored two more with a single and Pat Walsh's single scored the fourth.

The Rocks let Stevenson pitcher Pat McAlinden off the hook squandering scoring chances in the third and fifth.

Tim Robinson led off the third with a 400foot triple that landed in the middle of the old Stevenson softball diamond. But, the next three hitters failed to bring him home.

With one out in the fifth, Mike Kesson doubled and stole third. He stayed there.

Then Stevenson exploded. Five hits, three Salem errors, two walks and a stolen base accounted for the runs. Five were charged to starter Brian Tiller, two to Shane Smith

Salem awoke in the top of the seventh, thanks to some crafty bunting. After Steve Dawson led off with a single, Jim Lynch and Moore each reached base on bunt singles. After a strikeout, Robinson's routine ground ball took a bad hop into left field to score a pair. Rob Adams then hit a sacrifice fly to tie the game. Robinson was thrown out at third after Moore crossed the plate.

McAlinden, the third starter in Stevenson's rotation, allowed nine hits in eight innings, only six after the first. He struck out six and didn't walk a batter.

Smith absorbed the loss for the Rocks (12-5, 9-1 in the Western Lakes).

We really wanted the undefeated league season," Gravlin said. "If somebody beats us, that's one thing. But to just throw it away ourselves, that's terrible. You know, we haven't won anything yet. We're in good shape, with a 9-1 record and three games left. But, we haven't won anything yet."

I'm not opposed to reconciliation."

Scicluna's love affair with soccer has gone on for nearly 30 years. He does not teach and coach for a living His owns and manages three florist shops

"There's no chance that I'll be back." Scicluna said. "But you don't work seven or eight years at a school and not have it hurt

"I'll die with Bentley in my heart

Scicluna, who led his team to a 14-1 record, couldn't stay away Monday night. He watched Stevenson's 4-3 victory over Bentley from a distant perch

"I thought the team got together and played a good match," he said "I was pulling for them "

The new coach is Paul Dugan, whose daughter Dana is one of the team's key members. Dugan had been Scicluna's assistant

ALTHOUGH THE TEAM gave Stevenson a battle, you have to wonder how long this awkward situation can continue Weber and McQueen played Monday night, so apparently Dugan has wiped the slate clean as far as they're concerned Scicluna said, "I regret putting Mr. Dugan in this position

After the game, Dugan did not want to comment on the situation

Watson, meanwhile, said it's not proper for him to become a mediator

"There was no time for involvement." he said "There was no chance to do that "

Both Watson and Bentley (the AD) say they have given Scicluna their full support, but have they really?

Earlier in the season. Scicluna accused his team of "choking" in a 4-1 loss to Stevenson. When the AD was asked if that comment had strained relations between Scicluna and his team, he said he wasn't made aware of any complaints from players or parents.

Bentley also told me that Scicluna had brought in a motivational speaker to address the squad on Friday

The AD said that the speaker had been lined up before the season, and in no way was aimed at any particular player

THE FRUSTRATIONS of losing to Stevenson should in no way diminish the success of these Bentley teams.

Watson stressed that the team's record during the past three seasons is something the school and surrounding community should be proud of.

But I got the feeling from the stands the other night that until this Bentley team beats Stevenson, their supporters won't be satisfield.

It's silly to rate this team as a failure It's not my job to choose sides on this matter, but if Scicluna felt as strongly as he did, he should have stayed. The whole thing is unfortunate.

Bentley is closing its doors in June and it's a shame that this school has never won a state championship. This team was the only one left that had a chance.

take 2 of 3 in Midland

The Plymouth Canton baseball team has sur vived what will most likely be its most gruelling portion of the 1985 schedule

The Chiefs have endured a nine-games-in-sevendays stretch, winning six of the nine contests.

Considering what the kids have gone through with David Knapp (Canton's starting shortstop who is now recovering after a serious automobile accident) and the kind of week we had, you have to feel a bit proud of these kids," said Canton coach Fred Crissev

The Chiefs, after losing a tough 7-6 decision to rival Plymouth Salem Wednesday, and dropping a 5-3 decision to Walled Lake Western Thursday (the completion of the game suspended Monday May 6). got back in the win column with 4-2 victory over Northville Friday.

THE CHIEFS rallied from a 2-0 deficit with four runs in the sixth. Singles by Pete Morman and Mark Stevens set the table for Dwayne Bennett's RBI ground out and Tom Kenyon's RBI suicidesqueeze bunt single Then, with the runners moving. Danny Young drilled a double, scoring the third and fourth runs.

Bucky Blake got the win, going the first five innings and allowing just one hit. He walked five and fanned seven. Mike Clark worked two perfect innings to notch a save.

But the unsung hero of the game was Jeff Rummel. The senior outfielder was not in the starting lineup, but he was still very much in the game. In the top of the sixth, Northville ahead 2-0, the Mustangs put runners on first and third with only one out. Rummel stole the squeeze sign from the third base coach and relayed it to Crissey. Crissey called for a pitchout and the Chiefs nailed the runner at the plate.

"A lot of times you sit a guy down and he goes off in the corner and sucks his thumb," Crissey said. "Jeff stayed alert and contributed to the team. We gave him a lot of credit for that."

THE CHIEFS hit the road for Midland immediately following the game. At 9 a.m. Saturday, the Chiefs took on a 15-6 Alpena team. With left-hander John Lenders turning in his best pitching performance of the season, Canton won 9-3.

Canton broke open a 3-3 game with a six-run sixth inning. Chris Sisler, 2-for-3 on the day, seven hits on the weekend, knocked in a pair of runs that inning. Stevens capped it with a three-run homer.

The Chiefs also defeated Midland (17-7) on Satur day 10-9. Mike Clark hit a grand-slam home run to put Canton on top early. Jeff Lyle and Mark Coburn held off Midland's late rally.

The Chiefs ran out of arms on Sunday. Saginaw Arthur Hill, which scored 45 runs in three games over the weekend, blitzed Canton 12-4.

On Monday the Chiefs, 15-4 and ranked No. 1 in Observerland, rested.

"I've really been concentrating on the 5,000," he said. "It combines speed with endurance. I'm not strong enough

TOWN 'N COUNTRY

IT WON'T be easy, nevertheless. Robbie Hipwood of Adams State College (Colo.) has the season's best time, 12 seconds faster than Nugent. And Hipwood runs in the thin air of the Rocky Mountains.

"I think I can drop 15 seconds off my time," Nugent estimated. "It depends on the race. I haven't had a good one since the Dogwood Relays. But I ran the 1,500 in a meet last week and dropped seven seconds off my previous best, so I think I'm ready."

Nugent is banking on the home track advantage working in his favor, too.

"I felt a lot of pressure at the indoor meet because I was the returning national champion," he said. "This one I'm more relaxed. I'm not the favorite. he's 12 seconds faster than me. So there's less pressure, and that's the way I like it.'

Of course, a victory in his final race as a collegian, anyway - would make Nugent that much happier.

Women rescue summer bowling

There was a time not too long ago when women were barred from the bowling lanes, If they bowled at all it was behind curtains at the old Detroit Recreation.

But things have changed and now the women bowlers are going to be the saviors of the game in the Detroit area during the summer months.

While the men are playing golf or baseball the women have their own leagues at most of the establishments and many of them are in mixed leagues and bowl with the seniors. So, the surymer will not be dull as had been suspected.

FARMINGTON LANES: The juniors at Farmington Lanes have set a new record for the high school loops and the race for scholarships will be decided during the next week.

Thus far they have collected $6,000 that will be divided, with the $1,900 scholarships going to the top boy and girl. There will be 10 scholarships of $200 all told.

WOODLAND LANES Eleven-yearold Howard Clark Jr. topped the week's bowlers in his league with a 210 in 591.

Grid playoff format expanded to 64 teams

By Chris McCosky staff writer

The Michigan High School Athletic Association's Representative Council voted last week to expand the high school football playoff format to include 64 teams, 16 from each of the four enrollment classes.

A computer-based point system will still be used to determine which teams qualify for the playoffs. There are four regions in each class and four teams will qualify in each region.

"I think it's real good," said Farmington Harrison football coach John Herrington, a vocal proponent of playoff expansion. "It takes a lot of the pressure off coaches to win every single game and still worry about all the the other teams in the region."

The former playoff system, a target of heavy criticism from the Michigan High School Football Coaches Association, took in 32 teams total, eight per class, two per region.

LAST YEAR the Representative Council (the MHSAA's rule-making body) ruled against a proposal to ex-pand the playoffs to 128 teams, 32 per class.

The 19-member council convened Monday through Wednesday of last week in Cadillac and voted 10-9 to expand the playoffs. The council was armed with a MHSAA survey, taken among the 713 member high schools earlier this year. The results of the survey indicated that 68.8 percent of the schools offering football were in favor of a 64-team playoff system.

One of the biggests concerns of those against expansion was scheduling the extra playoff games. "There's an empty Saturday on the 1985-86 calender that falls between the dates previously set for the semifinals and finals," said MHSAA assistant difootball rector Lonnie Lowery. "That's when we'll play the added playoff game this year. We'll go back and re-evaluate the system after the 1985 season."

Next year, the three playoff rounds will be played Saturdays Nov. 9, 16 and 23 with the championship game Nov.

According to MHSAA officials, the added playoff date will be scheduled one of two ways after next season: either by beginning the season one week earlier, or by dropping the ninth date of the schedule for the teams that qualified for the playoffs.

HERRINGTON SAID that the new system would not bring a complete halt to the complaints.

"You're still going to have the fifth place team (in each region) complaining that they should get in," the successful Harrison coach said. "I would have liked to see them add a few atlarge berths. There are still flaws in the system, but nothing is perfect. I'm happy with this."

The council did not take up the issue of where the playoff games should be played. In recent years, crucial quarterfinal and semifinal round games have been played on muddy, natural grass fields. The coaches association has proposed that the games all be played on fields with an artifical surface.

"We met with the MHSAA earlier this year and they said at that time they would try to at least schedule the semifinals at sites with artificial surfaces," Herrington said.

"I think the toughest thing is the Local pros set sights on Open qualifiers

By Marty Budner staff writer

The long trail to participation in the prestigious 1985 U.S. Open, to be hosted by the opulent Oakland Hills Country Club, begins Monday with local qualifying.

Because of the tremendous homestate enthusiasm. Michigan will host two, 36-hole qualifying tournaments.

The larger tournament will be played at the Washtenaw and Travis Pointe country clubs in the Ypsilanti-Ann Arbor area. Officials expect 182 players to compete at those sites for a mere 18 berths to sectional competition in early June.

The Muskegon Country Club will play host to 45 golfers vying for four sectional-qualifying berths.

According to state officials, the 227 golfers competiting for the 22 sectional berths represents the largest field ever assembled in Michigan for U.S. Open qualifying. The field includes 100 ama- tice time this season because of the

The head pro at Great Oaks Country Club has made it through local qualifying on three different occasions.

And, in 1982, Traub participated in the Open at California's renowned Pebble Beach Country Club. Although he failed to make the cut (he shot a 155 and missed by four strokes), it was a rewarding experience.

"Just to play out there in the Open was a great experience," said Traub. "I got a chance to practice with people like Tom Watson and Seve Ballesteros.

Salem tames Spartans; Franklin bumps Chiefs

There's still a race for the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) girls softball crown, thanks to Plymouth Salem's come-from-behind 5-4 upset Monday over perennial champion Livonia Stevenson.

With just three league games left, the Rocks trail the Spartans by only a game. Stevenson, which suffered its first league loss, stands at 9-1 (11-3 overall) while Salem has two losses against nine wins (12-4 overall).

The error-prone Spartans committed six miscues that resulted in three unearned runs, handing losing pitcher Lisa Bokovoy only her second setback of the season (10-2).

The winning run was scored in the sixth inning when Patty Maslak - who had singled with one out - crossed the plate when Marci Walker's two-out flyball was dropped.

"I'm a little concerned," Stevenson coach Lee Cagle said. "With three league games to go and playing like we are, anything can happen. With six errors, not even the best can win. And Lisa's (Bokovoy) not getting any help behind her."

"We gave them tougher plays - we hit the ball harder," Plymouth Salem coach Rob Willette said. "They made errors - they booted the ball. But they weren't easy plays. We made a good comeback after being down 4-2."

STEVENSON GOT all four of its runs in the fifth on RBI singles by Carolyn Kunz, Anne Marie Dalimonte and Kristine Baily.

But the Rocks came right back in the bottom of the inning to tie the score on Leslie Plichta's RBI triple and Denice Tackett's run-scoring single.

Sue Carlson went the distance, scattering eight hits while striking out one and walking two. Bokovoy pitched a six-hitter, fanning 10 in absorbing the loss.

Tackett had two hits to lead Salem. Shannon Snyder and Nancy Bell had two hits each for Stevenson.

In weekend action, Salem easily swept a pair from River Rouge, 23-2 and 25-1

The Rocks banged out 15 hits in the opener, including three hits and two drove in two runs for the Patriots.

RBI from Tackett. Debbie Starr went 2-for-3 with three RBI while Kim Vesnaugh and Marci Walker had two hits and two RBI apiece.

(P,C)5C

Carlson earned the victory in a game stopped after five innings because of the mercy rule. She gave up five hits while striking out four and walking none

In the nightcap, Tackett pitched onehit ball in a game that ended after the third inning because of the mercy rule. Salem batters drew 17 walks en route to the lopsided victory. Lynette Poole went 2-for-2 with four RBI.

FRANKLIN 7, CANTON 3: Tracy Lectka had four hits and Carolyn Smith contributed two while pitching a fourhitter in visiting Livonia Franklin's triumph Monday over Plymouth Canton.

Smith went the distance, fanning seven batters while walking eight as Franklin improved its season's record to 16-2.

The Chiefs four hits came off the bats of losing pitcher Monika Benedict, Laura Darby, Beth Butzow and Leslee Fidge. Benedict yielded 11 hits while striking out five and walking nine.

Marie Vesseliou went 2-for-5 and Insurance usually protects your invested money

By Sid Mittra

special writer

The collapse of the Ohio Savings and Loan Association has sent shock waves throughout the country. Many of our clients are panicking. Is this fear real or artificial? Is the question, "How safe is my money?" unwarranted?

You probably know the answer to the question, "How safe is my money?" when it comes to money in the bank or in a savings and loan association, where your money is insured by an agency of the federal government. But what about the amounts you have with a brokerage house, commodity firm, money market fund or credit union?

Chances are that question has entered your mind as the half-million de- pledge of the "full faith and credit" of positors of the Ohio Savings institution the federal government. Usually, cussweated over their frozen deposits. The odds are overwhelming, of course, that you are a customer of banks that provide coverage of up to $100,000 per account from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. That gives you the surety of having your money protected both by the contents of their own deposits and a tomers with deposits exceeding $100,000 end up being fully protected as well as the regulators arranged for a healthy institution to take over the one that got into trouble.

But you may well have the majority of your money in institutions that are outside the scope of the FDIC and FSLIC. Your brokerage account, for instance, is not covered by those two basic insitutions, even if it happens to be with a discount broker working through your bank, or owned by it. Unless you have more than $500,000 in one amount at one brokerage house, however, you should not have to worry too much. That's how much insurance protection is provided by the Securities Investor Protection Corp. (SIPC) at each firm registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

You will want to keep an eye on any brokerage account that nears the maximum figure. The $500,000 limit includes protection for no more than $100,000 in cash (such as the proceeds of a security sale before they are reinvested). But most brokers provide additional private insurance at no charge the Coordinated Financial Planning on accounts in the $2 million to $10 staff will conduct a seminar 7-10 p.m. million area. They can arrange for you to buy still more if you feel that the size of your account warrants extra protection. You should note that splitting one account into two under slightly different names does not give you twice the protection. You get that only if the accounts are at different brokers or if the accounts at one broker are distinctly separate, such as one for you and another that you hold as trustee or someone else.

Next week: More on safety of your money.

Met's last aria here will be its swan song

Catherine Malfitano is Mimi in Puccini's "La Boheme," to be presented at 8 p.m. Wednesday during the Metropolitan Opera Company's last visit to Detroit.

HE DETROIT GRAND Opera Association won't be signing a contract for 1986 with the Metropolitan Opera Company. "Our financial projections indicate that because of spiraling production and touring costs, the gap between the Metropolitan's fee and box office income will continue to widen at a disproportionate rate," said John B. Ford III, Detroit Grand Opera Asociation president and general manager. "In order to keep up, the corporations who now support us would have to double and triple their support."

The 1986 contract, for $915,000, would have brought the Met to Detroit's Masonic Temple for the 28th consecutive season. The Detroit Grand Opera Association's projected budget for 1986 included that figure along with Masonic Temple rental of $150,000 and $110,000 to backstage crews.

The remaining amount would go for office and staff, publicity and the opera audition scholarship fund.

THE MET pays the cast, orchestra musicians, transportation costs and hotel accommodations. According to Charles Bonheur, production coordinator in charge of tour operations, many Met prople choose to stay in Canadian hotels.

The Met's formula for tour cities, according to Melodee A. DuBots, managing director, is for ticket sales to cover the Met fee.

From 1959-1967, ticket sales were $20,000-$46,000 in excess of the Met fee. In 1984, the Detroit office grossed the highest ever from ticket sales ($595,567) and was still $250,000 short of the Met's fee.

According to DuBois, a sold-out once was," said DuBois, "TV, record-house at Masonic Temple will net $200,000 less than the same size house in Minneapolis due to the number of seats with poor sight lines. In Detroit, the average of sales in the top three price ranges is 95 percent, but only 51 percent in the bottom range.

When the Met brings in operas with no major stars, it means financial losses for all of the tour cities. DuBois said that with no star, projections are down $50,000 before tickets even go on sale.

"The tour is no longer the means for stars to gain national exposure as it Performances of the musical jealous floozy who was Billy's boss at 'Carousel," presented by the St. Bede Players, continue at 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday and 2 p.m. Sun-day, May 19, at Mercy College in Detroit. For ticket information, call 537-7275 or 646-9413.

With competent acting and fine ren-ditions of Rodgers and Hammerstein's wonderful music, the St. Bede Players production of "Carousel" rises above a slow-moving storyline full of the bubbly troubles common to daytime television and country-western ballads.

The musical unravels the tragic love story of Billy Bigelow, a hot-headed carnival barker who blows into town and falls in love with a hometown factory girl named Julie Jordon. They marry, which in 1873 was decidedly protocol among the good New England folk in the seaport town where the musical is set.

The plotline sounds like a soap opera recap. First Billy gets fired from his carnie job and has no luck finding a new one. The young couple is penniless, out of work and sponging off relatives when Billy hits Julie in frustration.

Then Julie finds she's pregnant. To add to their domestic turmoil, the the carnie wants him to leave his wife and come back to her.

IN THE MIDST of these already heartrending troubles, Billy links up with a jailbird friend and plans a robbery to solve his money woes. This all takes place in an Act One that runs more than an hour and a half - a long sitting despite fine vocals and the handsomely decked-out chorus to watch on stage Cast members wear period clothes, for the women bright dresses billowing from the multiple petticoats underneath, and for the seafaring men, salt gear. Members of the chorus fill the stage with animation as they sing the timeless favorites, "June Is Bustin' Out All Over" and "You'll Never Walk Alone.

Music Director Joseph Gamache succeeds well in balancing and blending the 26 voices in the chorus. He doesn't manage quite as well with the 27-piece orchestra, which occasionally overpowers solos with too much vol-

SMELL (NOSE) (4 points): The smell should reflect the wine in the glass. Off odors should reduce points, but always allow a few minutes after opening for any gas smells to blow off. They are not part of the wine but of the bottling operation.

TASTE (6 points): Very hard to distinguish from smell, but try the following. Get some wine in your lower mouth and then suck in air on top of it, making an ugly gurgling sound. The air passing through your mouth allows the wine to open up its full flavors. Or, just drink some with concentration to what you are doing.

Too much oak, too much or too little acidity and a lack of fruit are all faults.

BODY (2 points): Thin and watery? Penalize. A full, round feel in the mouth? Reward. Chewey? That's good, especially in red wines. Crisp is a good atrribute of some whites, delicacy in others.

OVERALL (again): Now repeat your first evaluation, perhaps drinking some water or chewing bread to clear your palate first. Take a second score and count the midpoint between this and your first overall evaluation.

Total score: As close to 20 as possible. A score of 20 should be a most rare one indeed. (I know people who claim to have never given one. After all, we pay a lot of money for wine. Test it

"I Never Sang for My Father' (1970), 2:35 tonight on Ch. 7.

Adapting a play to movies is an often thankless task. The two arts share so many things in common - actors, sets, similar technical crews, dramatic form - that it is easy to forget that they are essentially different. Stage is verbal, film is visual. Each has elements of the other, of course, but the difference is important.

Robert Anderson's play is still a play in Gilbert Cates' film version. Little things have been done to "open it up," more scene changes have been added, the outdoor world is used; but this is still a play and the emphasis is still on words. For that reason, it is one of those movies that will play better on television than it did in the movies.

This is a somber, but involving story of an adult son's coming to terms with his father. Gene Hackman and Melvin Douglas give outstanding performances.

"Pat Garrett and Billy the Kid" (1973), 1:50 Saturday night on Ch.

The legend of the New Mexican Lincoln County Wars and the desperado Billy the Kid has been told an endless number of times. From dime novels to television shows to movies to ballet, Billy has been a fascinating subject, America's first juvenile delinquent

Arthur Penn brought the television drama "The Left-Handed Gun" to the screen and embarked on a career of films dealing with the theme of myth versus reality, finding his greatest success with the tale of those other desperadoes "Bonnie and Clyde."

Billy must have seemed like the perfect subject for Sam Peckinpah. He had already made the landmark, violent, disturbing "The Wild Bunch," about the Hole in the Wall Gang. Billy's story had the right setting, the right amount of violence and a quirky story about a friendship that went sour and a father- figure sheriff who went searching to gun down his wayward friend.

It was all there and Peckinpah ruined it. He miscast a plump, softfaced Kris Kristofferson as Billy. He paced the film more slowly than a hot day on the Rio Grande. He introduced Bob Dylan as a Greek chorus type friend of Billy and then never developed the character (perhaps because the great songwriter is a terrible actor). He did some things right. James Coburn is well cast as Garrett and very similar to John Dehner in the Penn film. The scenes of 19th century political manipulating are realistic and Jason Robards is interesting as Gov. Lew Wallace. Rating: $2.25

Like father, like son Sculptor Peter Rockwell emphasizes joy of life

staff writer

It's appropriate that 34 pieces of sculpture by Peter Rockwell in his one-man show are on display at a Plymouth residence.

Rockwell's sculpture is being shown at the Frank Lloyd Wright "Snowflake House" and its surrounding gardens. Another 23 Rockwell works may be seen at Frame Works in Plymouth.

At the "Snowflake House," the changing sunlight adds alternating touches of light and shadow to the works. A wall is angled just so, setting off several pieces

THE ARTIST is as pleased by the setting as he is by two ducks that wandered over one afternoon last week to swim in a pond on the grounds and, maybe, take in the show, which runs through May 28.

"I like doing big pieces once in a while, but I really like doing things for the home, things you're going to live with," said Rockwell, who is scheduled to speak tonight at the Plymouth Canton High School Theater, part of his first visit to Michigan.

"Sculpture works with architecture. I hope," he added, glancing up at the blue sky, "Frank agrees with me.

Daytime hours for the free exhibit at the house are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday-Saturday and 1-5 p.m. Sunday. Evening hours are 7-9 Thursday-Saturday. For information, call the Plymouth Community Arts Council at 455-5260.

IF YOU THINK marble or bronze pieces are cold and serious, Rockwell's artworks in those materials will be a delightful surprise. His art is approachable, inviting the viewer to come close and touch the surfaces.

"I get so much fun out of working with my hands," Rockwell said.

Rockwell's white marble "Miracle Flower" has both rough and smooth surfaces, showing the different types of chisels used. This piece is a favorite of his because "everything worked out right," he says.

"When working with marble. I am very interested in trying to convey the very sensuous feeling I have about marble. Marble has a variety of qualities. Different tools have different effects.

A SENSE OF balance can be felt as one looks at Rockwell's sculpture. In the whimsical bronze pieces "Dancer" and "Hat Dance," figures stand on one foot. Another bronze work, "Trapeze," is a hanging piece that features two figures on a swing.

"Hat Dance" is one of a series of dancing figures that came about when a friend tried to teach Rockwell how to tap dance. The artist thought his teacher deserved a better partner than himself, so he sculpted one for her.

Sculptor Peter Rockwell enjoys making home size sculptures such as this piece, "Trapeze Ring," made of bronze.

nothing works. I try to work all the same. I work on

"One of my great heroes is Fred Astaire," Rockwell said.

A piece designed for a fountain represents a family tree. Rockwell's actual family tree has some talented branches. He is the son of artist Norman Rockwell

BOTH ROCKWELLS show a sense of humor in their art. When his father seriously tried to paint sexy women, they always looked funny. His own attempts at tragic works "just looked silly," Peter Rockwell says.

"That's what the work is about. Humor and delight and joy are things worth having around," he

"It isn't that we don't think (tragedy) doesn't exist, that's just how it works out in our art, that's what we emphasize."

Another thing the two Rockwells have in common is a love of traveling.

"I really enjoy traveling. The only vacation he took was to travel. We (Peter's family) like the kind of traveling where you arrive in a town not knowing where you're going to go."

BORN IN 1936, Peter Rockwell earned a bacehlor's degree in English literature with honors from Haverford College in Pennsylvania. Although his mother and an older brother, as well as his father, were painters, Peter Rockwell was never interested in that medium. He didn't get interested in sculpture until his fourth year in college, and then it was "by accident," he says.

I got sick of taking sports. The only thing (left) to take was a sculpture class. I fell in love with sculpture."

Rockwell studied the art from 1958 to 1961 at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts in Philadelphia, where he received a traveling fellowship. In 1961 he moved to Italy, where he and his wife raised four children (now ages 25, 22 and 19, including a pair of twins). The Rockwells live there today, dividing time between Rome and an old farmhouse in the Casentino Valley. A small stone quarry was discovered on the farmhouse property.

"IT'S SAID sculpture is half engineering and half child-playing-with-mud-pies. I love getting my hands into clay. I just love getting my hands into things. I love stone.

"I have a feel for clay. I don't have a feel for twodimensional surfaces too much. Every drawing I do never fits on the page.

Rockwell has several art projects going at once. "There are times when everything works and a lot of things at once. I set my studio up so there's nothing else to do but sculpt. No comfortable place to take a nap."

"I don't plan things out. I almost never make a drawing.

THE ARTIST also is a consultant for the Italian government, "learning more about the way people worked in the ancient world," he said. "The carving tools don't change."

In addition, Rockwell has taught, lectured and published articles. He may have dreamed of dancing, but sculpture is what he likes best

"Sculpture is where my heart is. When I'm doing something else. I'd rather be sculpting." Rockwell said

"I tend to like the things I've just done very much.

REASONS FOR Rockwell's staying in Italy include the nearness of marble, bronze foundries and carvings by such artists as Michelangelo, Bernini and Donatello. Another advantage is the year-round circuses of that country, the artist says.

"I adore buying toys," he said. "I was mad at my children for growing up. I want grandchildren."

Art clubs promote brotherhood of artists

This is another lesson on art and drawing by special columnist David Messing. He has taught for ten years and operates an art store, Art Store and More, 16338 Middlebelt. Livonia, 522-6311, 265 N. Main Street, Plymouth, 455-1222 Messing encourages questions and comments from readers. You may write him at his store or c/o Observer Newspapers, 23352 Farmington Road, Farmington, MI 48024.

rin' my gray socks and where is the asprin"" And so it was an hour before I was to speak. Adam, my 6-year-old, showed me how to remove the child proof cap on the bottle of asprin. Scott, my 15-year-old, gave back my gray socks, and Sandy stood there defending herself

You may be wondering how my headache was my wife's fault? Well my wife's twin sister, Sue, just has a little haby girl. So to Sandy that's kind of like I woke up at the same time, looked at her baby too . . . sort of . . . I think. At any rate. Sandy was anxious to have baby Lindsay spend the night, which night swim caused my all day headwas fine with me because her cry is still at the pre-scream stage. It is as if someone is softly saying "waaa ... hic crick in my neck, the talk waaa." So just before bedtime, den City Art Club went fine.

Laying the baby on our bed, she took out the diaper pins and stuck them in the bed. She then cleaned, powdered and rediapered the baby as she always did. All the time talking a steady stream of baby talk, just like she always did when the kids were young.

YES, EVERYTHING was just as it always was, except one thing . . . now we have a water bed. For the rest of the night baby Lindsay was dryer than we were. By 3 a.m. gallons of water had seeped up into our night clothes. By 5 a.m., I had run the gamut of bizarre dreams and twisted into every possible position to unconsiously escape the ensuing flood. For some reason Sandy and each other and asked the same question, "are you okay?" So you see my all ache and that was Sandy's fault. Despite a slight overdose of asprin and a crick in my neck, the talk at the Gar-

As I was up in front of the group, I couldn't help remembering about three years ago when they were just starting their club. Now they boast 62 members and are growing fast. I thought to myself look at all the husbands, wives, mothers and even grandmas, taking time out of their schedule for one common love - art. That common love is in fact the qualification for brotherhood. With that qualification, I felt very much a part of their group and enjoyed answering their many questions

Like a preacher, I ran 20 minutes over . . . five minutes at a time. And, like a politician, I probably didn't sufficiently answer their many questions. But by being there, I felt their common enthusiasm and interest and thought to myself, "What a good thing an art club can be." It is good for the city in that an art club promotes the arts in the local community and shame on the city fathers if they do not support them. With all the planning commissions, zoning boards and business/city study groups, it would be a sorry place if someone somewhere wasn't promoting local art participation.

Practice sharpens skills

Photographers, like athletes and musicians, require continuous practice. A violinist works daily on bow and fingering techniques. A gymnast pracnces his routines constantly to improve his performance Photographers need their own kind of practice, too.

First, you need to keep in tune with the technical skills needed to take good pictures.

A photographer must know his equipment thoroughly Basic controls such as aperture and shutter speed settings, focusing, ASA settings, and depth-offield preview must become second nature.

Knowing what each lens will do is important, too. Many shots requiring spontaneity may be lost if you have to fuss and deliberate over the controls on your camera.

Second, you must practice seeing picture possibilities. Learn to see picture potential in ordinary ituations that others may miss

Good photographers are open and receptive to the world around them. They let the subject

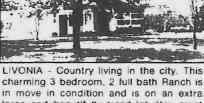

"speak" to them, and, more importantly, learn to listen. Mind and feelings should be like a piece of film ready in an instant to respond.

Practice looking at all things in new ways. Study your subjects from all angles. Try different camera positions, lighting conditions, or lens selections. Look at your subjects with an inner vision, allowing your personal experiences to become involved.

To stay in practice, use your camera often. A tennis player, for example, develops skill and expertise only by spending hour after hour on the court. In photography, it's the same. As you practice, new horizons will open and your photography will be greatly enhanced.
