Compromise language offered on state prison moratorium bill

By Gary M. Cates staff writer

How soon state inmates will be moved into the former Detroit House of the 1,100-acre, city-owned site. of Correction (DeHoco) hinges on Detroit's willingness to modify language in two bills now in the state Senate.

The prison, renamed the Western Wayne County Correctional Facility, is clause. on Five Mile Road in Plymouth Township and is scheduled to be sold to the state.

The two bills, one authorizing the purchase and the other placing a moratorium on correctional facilities in Northville and Plymouth townships, cleared the House earlier this month and have been sent to the Senate Appropriations Committee.

The state plans to buy only 123 acres

SEN. ROBERT Geake, R-Northville, has added language to the bill which "water down" the Detroit would

Geake and Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth Township, are the major opponents to converting DeHoCo into a state prison and objected to the Detroit clause Geake presented "modifying" language at a meeting with Detroit officials Tuesday morning in the governor's office.

'At first they said 'absolutely not' to At issue now is a clause in the mora- the language but then agreed to take it Detroit representatives, which would is acceptable," Geake said Tuesday. He believes Detroit Mayor Coleman Young had to be consulted.

Detroit lawmakers were expected to return with the verdict Wednesday morning because the appropriations committee was scheduled to vote on the bills Wednesday.

Geake said the bills would be approved if the language was acceptable to Detroit, otherwise "we will have to go back to square one."

Targeted in the purchase bill are two Detroit provisions which would give the city mineral rights to the property and first right of refusal should the state ever decide to sell the property.

"These two items are of secondary importance to us but it would be nice to have them removed," Geake said.

THE MORATORIUM bill was authored by Law and sets limits on the number of prisons and prisoners to be placed in the two townships.

Three state prisons are targeted for a one-mile stretch of Five Mile Road, which divides Plymouth and Northville townships. The bill would prohibit the placement of additional facilities without approval from the local governments.

On the Northville side is the existing Phoenix Correctional Facility to be capped at 311 prisoners and the Scott Correctional Facility to be capped at 550 prisoners when completed.

On the Plymouth Township side is DeHoCo to be capped at 650 temporary prisoners and 500 permanent. The bill also places a January 1987 cut-off date for temporary housing. Geake and Law fear the Detroit clause could be construed to allow the city to build a prison on the remaining land.

The proposed language Geake offered Tuesday would modify the clause so that prisons and prisoner caps can't be skirted and that any development on the land would have to meet local zoning restrictions.

velopment to meet zoning regulations,

But because Detroit is involved, Law said the added language is needed.

If Detroit agreed to the modification, and the appropriations committee approved the bills Wednesday, Geake expects them to go to the full Senate

Plymouth mayor swapped for a day with St. Joseph

By Gary M. Cates staff writer

As part of Michigan Week celebrations, Plymouth participated Monday in Mayor's Exchange Day with St. Joseph, Mich.

While Plymouth Mayor David Pugh and Commissioner Eldon Martin ventured off to the western side of the state, other local officials played host to St. Joseph Mayor Frank Smith and Police Chief Tom Cooper and their wives

"I'm quite impressed, I've never been in Plymouth before and I'm surprised that it's such a nice town," Smith said while pausing for a break from his city tour Monday.

"There is a tremendous number of shops in this town," said Smith, whose city is similar to Plymouth in size and population. "It takes a little time to let all the things we've seen and heard jell in our minds."

EACH YEAR the Michigan Municipal League sponsors Mayor's Exchange Day in an effort to foster friendships and allow officials the chance to swap ideas.

Mayor's Exchange also provides the opportunity for communities to show off their town.

And that's just what Plymouth did. The St. Joseph guests started their official visit Sunday evening with a dinties included tours of City Hall, the downtown business district, Tonquish Creek Manor, Plymouth Historical Museum, Old Village, the Arbor Health Building, and Packing Corp. of America.

Police Chief Cooper, who said he had been in Plymouth before, was im-pressed with "the communication between the government and people and the wooden signing around town."

The mayor's wife, Marguerite Smith, was impressed with Plymouth Gathering. She liked the idea of having a pavilion in downtown which could be used for parking and special events.

All of the St. Joseph guests liked the Plymouth Cultural Center and said they wished they had such a facility with an ice arena.

EQUALLY AWED with what they saw were Pugh and Martin

"I was very impressed with St. Joseph, I hadn't been up there in 25 years," said Martin. "The city is well maintained."

Martin said the things which caught his eye were the brick-paved, treelined streets, the utility poles painted white and the use of the city's Lake Michigan frontage.

"It was another example of someone showing interest in a community and keeping it attractive," he said. "It was very similar in respects to said.

ner and reception. Monday's activi- Plymouth," said Pugh, who grew up about 40 miles south of St. Joseph.

"I was impressed with the cleanliness of their downtown and some of the innovations they have there," Pugh said. "They have a lot of parks in St. Joseph and they even have a city-owned marina."

Pugh believes there was a difference in approach to the downtown area

We tend to be a little more 'touristy' while their downtown has more of 'functional' approach."

BOTH PLYMOUTH travelers were interested in St. Jospeh's senior citizen housing, with an 11-story and a seven-story structure.

They also found another part of their trip interesting - a part not in St. Joseph

'As you know, St. Joseph is considered the twin-city with Benton Harbor," Martin said. "They took us for a ride into Benton Harbor and I was astonished. We went into two business sections and almost every building downtown was boarded up.

"That is what can happen to a business area when it isn't kept up," Martin said.

'Mayor's Exchange is nice. You don't always bring back ideas but it gives you a comparison and it always makes me glad to be back home because I believe we've got it," Martin

City approves 'authority' resolution

By Gary M. Cates

staff writer

Despite advice to the contrary from its attorney, the Plymouth City Commission approved a resolution Tuesday night calling for a library district election on Sept. 10.

The resolution, which agrees with the concept of an elected library authority without spelling out the details of an interlocal agreement, was approved last week by Plymouth Township trus-

"I have a problem with the resolution," said Ron Lowe, city attorney.

"You really should have the agreement which provides for the funding in the event the millage doesn't pass, Lowe said. "I'm not prepared to tell you this is the time to approve the resolution.

Officials from both communities began looking at a library authority in the wake of complaints about the current system - which provides for both municipalities to split the debt and operational costs, while the city runs the library

Following a squabble about the library's budget planning process, a joint library committee was formed with representatives from the city and township. The committee recommended an elected library district with taxing powers, as well as proposing an interlocal agreement hammering out the details.

Moving to the district system will require two elections. At the first, set for Sept. 10, voters will be asked to establish the district and elect nine directors. The second election, Nov. 5, will ask voters to authorize up to one mill for the district.

TOWNSHIP OFFICIALS objected to two points in the proposed interlocal agreement - shifting funding from 50/ 50 to 70-percent township/30-percent city, in the event the millage fails, and carrying over current library employee's pay and benefits to the district.

City Manager Henry Graper said the idea was to approve the concept of the district, without approving the agreement, so they can move forward with the election time to beat it out and get it on the ballot," Graper said.

"If you don't do it in September, you'd basically miss this year," Mayor David Pugh said.

Graper believes the items the township objects to won't be hard to work

"The problem is that Maurie Breen doesn't want to carry over the fringebenefit package for the employees," he said

Library employee's current fringe package is the same as city employees 59 percent of their base salary, op posed to the township's package at 32 percent of base, he said.

'The law stipulates that they can't just cut some of those things out," Graper said.

AS FOR THE funding shift, Graper said Breen doesn't want to have to adjust his budget to cover an increase from 50 percent to 70 percent, in the event the millage vote fails.

When the vote passes the amount in the agreement doesn't mean anything. They will only get what you give them," Graper said. "I thought Breen has gone on record

"I don't think you're going to have against the joint agreement. Does he want to soften it or is it just for publicity," said Mayor Pro Tem William Robinson

"In fairness to Maurie, if this millage vote fails, he would be hit with something in the middle of his budget year. I wouldn't want that done to me either," Graper said.

The only real thing to be worked out is the return of properties in the event the district is broke up."

'And I anticipate a problem with that based on the correspondence going back and forth on that," Lowe said.

'You're dealing in an entirely different situation," Graper said. "Before you were dealing with Maurie but now that they have passed the resolution, it's a different situation because we are going forward with the district and it has to be worked out."

The Commission approved the resolution with the understanding attorneys from both communities would continue to negotiate and hammer out a plausible interlocal agreement.

Township officials last week approved the resolution with the same understanding - that the agreement would be voted on before the district election in September.

Plymouth participated in stock market record

By Gary M. Cates staff writer

It isn't the financial capital of the nation, but Plymouth investors and stock brokerage firms did take part in Monday's market activities which boosted the Dow Jones Industrial Average to a record 1,304 closing.

Before Monday's market rally, the Dow Jones - a leading index based on 30 industrial stocks - had broken the 1.300 mark during trading but never closed above it.

There's a lot of investors in Plymouth and the area, and they were as much a part of yesterday as the rest of the nation," Thomas Tybinka of Prescot Ball and Turben said Tuesday.

'We were pretty active," said Tybinka, whose firm is at the corner of Main and Penniman in Plymouth.

The same was true for other Plymouth-based brokerage firms contacted by the Observer Tuesday.

MONDAY'S RISE in the closing Dow Jones, some 19.5 points, was prompted by the Federal Reserve Bank's decision to lower its discount lending rate from dling said the records don't generate as 8 to 7.5 percent, which spurred many much excitement.

large banks to drop their prime rate from 10.5 to 10 percent.

The bullish trading sent 454 stocks to record highs - the most new highs in a ley Bennett McDonald & Co.'s Plymday thus far this year. The previous outh office, 505 S. Main. number of new highs was 309 on January 30

But even as the stock market soared to records, brokers weren't as excited as may be expected.

"It was very hectic yesterday, and we generally were too busy to even notice the record," Tybinka said.

'There's been a lot of records in the past couple of years. In fact, yesterday we broke the record which was just set in March - so the novelty of a record closing has kind of wore off."

LIKEWISE, the enthusiasm in E.F. Hutton's Plymouth office, 459 S. Main, wasn't too widespread.

We had a couple of guys yelling back and forth that we did it, that we stayed above the 1,300 level," said John Findling, vice president and office manager

But being involved with the day-today fluctuations in the market, Fin-

"The press makes a big think of it when you hit a record in anything," said Bernard Cohen, manager of Man-

"The Dow Jones is only one average or one index. It's a very limited index of only 30 stocks and there are many other indexes that made highs before yesterday," Cohen said.

"Many other stocks were on high ground before the Dow confirmed it yesterday."

TOM MENDHAM of Merrill Lynch Pierce Fenner & Smith, with local offices in Plymouth, closely followed the Dow Jones Monday and said there was excitement in their offices.

"I saw it building yesterday," said Mendham, a sales manager. "You could see that we were heading for the 1,300 level and everyone was wondering if it would hold. You could feel it ripple through the office.

The anticipation even carries through to the next day," Mendham said Tuesday. Monday's rally started out with heavy institutional buying, according to Mendham, just as many rallies start.

Many of the financial institutions had been waiting for the announcement on interest rates, which came Friday, Findling said.

So, the institutions started buying when the market opened Monday, with the most active private investors following in the afternoon. The retail, or casual investors, usually don't pick up on the rally until the next day, Mendham said.

"Not too many watch the market on an hourly basis. Most read about it that night and say, 'Gee, I better participate.' We get more activity in the days following a record," Mendham said.

On days when a record is set, Findling said it usually involves "traders who are interested in the market, who jump in and take their position."

AT THE same time Monday, Findling said his firm did a lot of bond buying for its clients - also prompted by the decreasing interest rates.

The bond activity picked up because many investors believe interest rates will continue to decrease, said Findling, who likens the bond market to a see-saw - as interest rates go down, the value of bonds goes up and when interest rates go up, the value of bonds goes down.

Interest rates go up when there is (investors can earn more with other instruments).

Conversely, interest rates drop when more money is available, so the earning potential of money goes down making the value of a fixed-rate bond increase.

Falling interest rates usually precede increased business activity, making stocks a desirable investment, Findling said. He said the stock market is a barometer of what business activity will be in 24 months.

HOWEVER, Monday's record didn't come with a single day's activities.

"To go up a couple of pennies and close at a new record doesn't mean a hell of a lot," said Cohen.

"Major movements appear over periods of time and you have to go back to July 1984 for the beginning of this last bull move on stocks," he said.

"People who have been charmed by high interest rates before are now looking for new areas to invest. With the stock market, the growth exceeds inflation and beats the interest rates on savings instruments.

This overall trend has been caused by growth in the economy, a decline in inflation and a decline in interest rates," Cohen said, noting none of those occur overnight.

"With the bond market vigorously responding to the cut in the discount rate, there was nowhere for the stock market to go yesterday but up," Zinder said.

A big move by the Dow Jones always is newsworthy, but when coupled with hurdling a "round number level" such as 1,300, Zinder said it "becomes a big media event and the stock market story is on the front, page of many newspapers.

"But in reality, it is just a catch up move by what had been a lagging index and the Dow Jones did relatively better yesterday than most other market measurements."

E.F. HUTTON'S Findling, like Zinder, said the market now must "digest" what has happened - even though Findling believes the market will continue to rise

"I believe we will hit 1,350 to 1,375 to close out the year," Findling said. Prescot Ball and Turben's Tybinka is more optimistic. "I think we will hit the 1,400 mark this year, probably this summer but there's a lot of variables."

Merrill Lynch's Mendham also is optimistic.

"The indications are that the secondhalf of the year will be even better. The

A 17-year-old Plymouth youth is Lt. Bob Commire. He was allegedly being held in Wayne County Jail on five driving a stolen 1975 Cadillac Eldorafelony charges stemming from inci- do. dents in Canton Township and Plymouth.

Brian Karl McMullen was arraigned in 35th District Court Tuesday on charges of breaking and entering a repair garage with intent to commit larceny, breaking and entering an occupied dwelling, and three car thefts.

He pleaded not guilty before District Judge James Garber, who set bond at $25,000 or 10 percent cash. McMullen remained in the county jail Wednesday morning.

Judge John MacDonald will hear McMullen's preliminary examination May 30 to determine if there is enough evidence to try the case in Wayne County Circuit Court.

MCMULLEN WAS ARRESTED at 12:20 a.m. Sunday by Canton Township Plymouth police and arrested McMulpolice, according to Plymouth police len for car theft.

Police are linking McMullen to a breaking and entering incident Saturday evening at Cabron Motors on Holbrook in Plymouth. Two vehicles were stolen from the business, a 1977 Chevy Corvette and a 1975 Cadillac Eldorado.

Canton police had two outstanding warrants for McMullen's arrest involving a breaking and entering of an occupied dwelling in February, and the theft of a 1983 Ford T-Bird in March, said Judge Garber. The warrants were issued April 1.

Commire said someone broke into the Cabron business, and stole the Corvette. A "short time later he went back," took the keys for the Cadillac, which was parked outside of the business, and drove away, Commire said.

(An open letter to Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen).

The two articles, 1). tax millage increases, and 2). police force, have raised some questions in my mind. Specifically,

What is the need for the tax increase? Is it for the police force alone?

The city of Plymouth provided police services for $467,000; the expected township cost is $643,000. What additional services will be provided?

If the increase is for more than the police force, please prepare a tabulated listing showing the present budget or estimated expenditures as compared to the proposed with a variance column showing the increases and decreases with an explanation of each.

The township fund balance was $908,000. How long did it take to build it up to that level? Please list the expenditures which reduced it to $282,500.

I have addressed this letter to Supervisor Breen and the Plymouth Observer because I realize it will require your combined effort to publish the above information. It seems to me that the above requested information will provide the voters with information which will assist them in making a decision on the millage reguest.

SC tuition to rise 5 percent

By Tim Richard staff writer

Tuition will be up 5 percent next fall, and there will be two fewer faces on the Schoolcraft College full-time faculty.

Meanwhile, trustees are developing questions about 1986 in the backs of their minds. The question is not whether to ask voters for a property tax increase but how much to request, for what purposes and with what kind of campaign?

"I urge the board to develop unanimity before proceeding with a millage request," said Gerald Cox, insurance agent from Garden City and former SC trustee.

During a special meeting last week, Cox told trustees of a roof leak in drawing attention to the need for a large building and maintenance appropriation

THE BOARD was scheduled to meet again last night for final adoption of a 1985-86 operating budget of $18.4 million, about 5.6-percent higher than the current spending plan. Trustees last week were ready to approve fall semester tuition increases of 5 percent across-theboard. The changes: Schoolcraft College District residents would pay $30.25 per credit hour (up $1.50 from the current $28.75). • Out-of-district residents $41.50 (up from $2 from the current $39.50).

• Out-of-state residents $62 (up $3 from the current $59).

The administration earlier had suggested slightly smaller increases. Board Chairperson Michael W. Burley, however, suggested the college stick to its plan for uniform increases of about 5 percent a year.

PROPERTY OWNERS will pay the full 1.77 mills ($1.77 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation), the board decided after conducting a "truth-in-tax-

Under the state constitution, the rate would have had to be rolled back to 1.763 mills because of a slight inflationary increase in assessments.

The total increase amounts to less than half of 1 percent, or $24,000 in a district that produces $6 million in property taxes, according to controller A.H. (Butch) Raby.

"It really amounts to one-tenth of 1 percent in an overall budget of $18.4 million," said Trustee Harry Greenleaf. "We took out more (in property taxes) in 1982-83. We're not back yet to historical levels."

The day before the Indy 500

EVERY year as Memorial Day rolls around, The Stroller's thoughts take him back to the Indianapolis Speedway and two of the most unforgettable moments of his career.

He had been there about a week, 'way back in 1935, and got a thrill out of the racing cars and the speeds drivers were reaching on their trial runs. It seemed like a joy ride as they circled the famous old oval at more than 100 mph.

Then came the day before the race. The trials were ended and the field decided. It was a sunny Sunday afternoon, and The Stroller, being a newcomer, was invited to the drivers' meeting as a guest.

ABOUT MID-AFTERNOON, old Pop Meyers, one of the patron saints of the speedway, rallied the drivers to a place under the grandstand. It was the custom for him to go over the rules. And he did it with the seriousness of a preacher.

He opened his remarks with a strage point.

in nn T-

"Boys," he said, "we may not all be here tomor-row, and we had best go over the rules."

The Stroller almost choked when he listened to that opener. He just couldn't imagine the drivers being warned about death in crackups because of a rules violation.

The drivers listened attentively. It was no time to smile as old Pop seriously went about explaining the rules. But it put the drivers in the right frame of mind. And it was a moment the likes of which this reporter never had experienced.

THEN CAME evening, the night before the race, and the group of New York City writers arrived.

'Thin' skin is first line of defense

Even if you're on the skinny side, your skin is your body's largest organ.

The average human epidermis measures about 19 square feet and weighs more than 7 pounds. Your skin is a fortress which protects you against invading bacteria and viruses. It can do this because the outer layer is really made up of dead cells which don't become infected easily.

They were in high glee, feeling that they were going to attend a farmers' fair.

Close to midnight, while sitting in the hotel lobby, one of the race officials, trying to quiet them, said, "I bet you couldn't get to the track now, even if you tried." They laughed. But the official called several cars, and we headed for the famous oval.

We didn't get there. The streets were jammed with cars. We couldn't move forward or backward.

There was nothing else to do but turn off the road. And would you believe it? - we were on a golf course at midnight. It wasn't a lighted course, and we had to gamble on driving on turf. It wan't bad until we hit sand traps. Talk about getting bumped around. We sure got our share. It was a famous ride, and it is better remembered than the outcome of the race. The result was spectacular but didn't equal the sportswriters' midnight ride over a dark golf course

Many years have passed. The Stroller has been up and down the sportswriting world - fights, championship games, boat races and the like. But never has he had two such memorable events as he did at the Indianapolis 500-mile race on the day before the drivers were given the command: "Gentlemen - start your engines.'

LWV offers school trustee election guide

To help inform residents about the candidates for the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education, the following questions were asked each candidate by the League of Women Voters of Northville, Plymouth, Canton, Novi.

8A(P.C)

The League is a non-partisan organization whose purpose is to promote an informed electorate and encourage participation of citizens in government. The election is on Monday, June 10. QUESTION 1:

How does your past involvement qualify you for the board of education of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools?

Renee Vermeersch Casillas: Experience as teacher, school consultant and parent enable me to understand different perspectives but common goals of these groups. This understanding essential in formulating policies which protect interests of district's children and provides them an excellent educational experience. As a school consultant, I have been involved in resolving conflicts among students, parents and school personnel as well as creating programs for students with all varieties of exceptional educational needs. These experiences seem valuable as preparation for school board membership. Lastly, as mother of two young children, I look forward to long involvement with the district and a longterm commitment important in board candidates

Dean Swartzwelter: Have actively participated in various district activities since moving here in 1977. Understand how district functions and how the budget system works. Served on district finance committee in 1981. Have discussed districtwide issues with many parental groups and understand their viewpoints. Have opened up communication channels with many groups. Have demonstrated that I am approachable.

Stephen G. Harper: Former board member - 4 years; Co-chairperson in all Citizens Advisory Councils since 1975: have remained active in schools difficulty.

George Johnson: I have never held or sought public office but I have kids in school system, therefore promoting an interest in school system.

Dave Artley: As board trustee, have promoted the Internal Communications Committee which surveyed employee concerns; chaired Staff Morale Committee; co-sponsored "Extra Miler Award;" supported procedural format change in board meetings making greater participation a reality; initiated "Coffees with Board;" endorsed expedited bargaining and fostered communications among citizens, staff, board.

QUESTION 2:

What is your opinion of the issue of class size?

Swartzwelter: Lower class sizes mean better educational delivery techniques to the children. Present class sizes are too large. As a district, we must achieve lower class sizes for improved classroom effectiveness.

Artley: Class size is a top priority. It must be expressed in simple, actual terms that exist in classroom. Lower class sizes are conducive to learning and money spent on achieving same is investment in our children's future.

Vermeersch Casillas: Favor decreasing class size to enable teachers to spend more time with each student. Since class size has an inverse relationship with teachers' salaries, input from both staff and parents would be valuable Johnson: I feel the class size is too big and should be limited to maximum of 28 pupils.

Sumpter: On the subject of class size, the current formula is inadequate. One class can have 22 students while another can have 38. The class size should be a maximum number with no exception.

Harper: Average class sizes presently too large and must be reduced as quickly as funds and space permit. At secondary levels, "capacity" in critical elective courses, such as computer li-son, Field, and Hulsing are needed to replace the five-classroom pod, with their high noise level, to four classrooms thus reducing the noise level and improving education.

Because of the cost of needed repairs at Central Middle School and the high value of the property, the district should build a middle school in Canton and sell the Central Middle School property.

Harper: Central Middle School is essential first priority. Districtwide roofing and heating, classroom improve-ments at Hulsing, Eriksson and Field, and re-equipping of older schools are next.

Vermeersch Casillas: Prioritize needs for human resources over physi- needs are the highest priority because pact on instruction of materials and buildings. Would need input from bond committee.

Artley: Needed renovations must be accomplished. Without proper physical environment, there can be no learning. Renovations may be addressed through bond issues and special grants like P.A. 431, not just from the general operating fund. Communication of the NEEDS must be clear - a total community effort is critical. An on-going review of renovation needs is necessary.

Swartzwelter: The principle criteria is the need factor; what are the highest priority needs? There are more needs than available funds. Direct classroom

QUESTION 4:

In your opinion what is the greatest strength of the Plymouth-Canton school district? What is its greatest weakness?

Vermeersch Casillas: Strengths: People - involved community committed to quality education, experienced, professional personnel, management that has provided financial solvency.

Weaknessess: Need for more communication among students, parents, teachers, administrators and the school board and for more continuity and stability on the board.

Swartzwelter: Greatest strength is the parental support that is widespread Sumpter: The renovation of Eriks- cal resources. Recognize, however, im- they affect directly classroom delivery. throughout the district. Without active parents, it is more difficult to make progress. The greatest weakness is lack of funding. State funding, although better, is still very poor in comparison to the requirements generated by state laws. Michigan needs a dependable funding system for education that is more stable during periods of economic downturn.

> Harper: Dedicated staff, community support, and diversity and depth of programs to meet needs of many different kinds of students are major strengths. Weak communications of all kinds among all groups, deteriorating condition of facilities, and obsolete/worn-out equipment in most buildings are principle weaknesses.

Blanchard tells new waste plan

Gov. James J. Blanchard announced a plan to work cooperatively with business to protect the public from hazardous wastes.

The strategy relies on sharply reducing reliance on landfills, strengthening enforcement of environmental laws and working with the nearly 15,000 Michigan businesses that are being brought under federal regulations for the first time.

The governor spoke at the 15th annual meeting of the East Michigan Environmental Action Council (EMEAC) at the Cranbrook Institute of Science in Bloomfield Hills.

Blanchard was honored by the group, which was instrumental in passage of the state's original hazardous waste law, for "outstanding environmental protection and preservation in Michigan.'

Blanchard's plan is designed to reduce the risks from the more than 530,000 tons of hazardous waste generated in Michigan each year. Its four goals:

• Reduce the percentage of hazardous waste placed in landfills by more than 25 percent in the next four years.

• Work with the nearly 15,000 businesses which produce small quantities of hazardous wastes, which together amount to about 15 percent of Michigan's wastes

• Provide certainty of enforcement to all those who generate, transport, store, treat or dispose of hazardous waste.

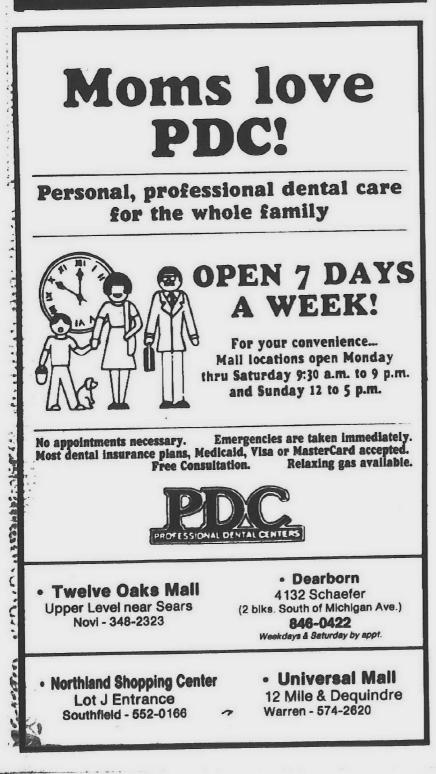

· Provide for the siting of at least one environmentally sound hazardous waste facility by 1990.

Senate vote dooms revenue sharing after '86

Here's how area members 'of Con- Middle East and other areas where gress were recorded on major roll call disputes frequently stem from religious votes May 9-15.

HOUSE

RELIGIONS - The House adopted, 224 for and 189 against, an amendment to prevent spending on a private program that trains Foreign Service officers in "religious sensitivity."

This killed the State Department's plan to spend $50,000 in fiscal 1986 and 1987 to send diplomats to the New York City program, which is conducted by The Appeal to Conscience Foundation, for instruction in Hinduism, Judaism and Buddhism and other religions.

Foreign Service officers have been attending the program for several years. But government money has not been used to defray the foundation's operating costs.

Dan Burton, R-Ind., said "we do not need to spend taxpayers' money on this program," which he said involves an overlap of church and state.

Members voting yes wanted to block the expenditure. Voting yes: Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth; Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods; William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

Voting no: William Ford, D-Taylor; Sander Levin, D-Southfield.

SENATE REVENUE SHARING – The Senate rejected, 43 for and 54 against, an amendment to preserve the general revenue sharing program that channels federal payments to thousands of state and local governments.

The vote, which occurred during de-bate on the budget resolution, signals the end of the program after 1986. The Reagan Administration wants to terminate revenue sharing on grounds that the U.S. Treasury has no surplus to share.

Robert Kasten, R-Wis., who voted to Opponent Bill Green, R-N.Y., said keep the program, said eliminating revenue sharing "would immediately mats serve more effectively in the result in huge increases in property Opponent Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., said: "Revenue sharing goes to some of the wealthiest communities in America," citing cities such as Palm Beach, Fla., Beverly Hills, Calif., and Grosse Pointe, Mich.

Senators voting yes wanted to preserve general revenue sharing. Voting yes: Carl Levin and Donald Riegle, Michigan Democrats. BUDGET — By a vote of 50 for and 49 against, the Senate approved a three-year master plan (S Con Res 32) for the federal budget that would cut the deficit by $50 billion or more in fiscal 1986 and by some $300 billion during fiscal 1986-87.

All savings are to be accomplished by spending cuts rather than tax increases. Later this year, Congress will take up individual bills to implement plan: • Eliminates 13 programs, including the Trade Adjustment Assistance and Urban Development Action Grants.

Opponent Robert Byrd, D-W. Va., criticized the budget for "cutting back on critical responsibilities of government such as education, child nutrition . transportation and economic de-

New Hines 'module' design is safer — Reickel

By Tim Richard staff writer

Hines Parkway is getting a safer design as well as a fresher look.

It has been strung out along the Middle Rouge River, people parked any-where, picnic tables scattered, and trouble difficult to observe.

Today Wayne County's new parks manager, R. Eric Reickel, talks about clustering things into "modules." That means putting all cars in parking lots, grouping all swings and picnic tables near the comfort stations, removing brush that obstructs a police officer's

"We've turned the corner," said Sheriff Robert A. Ficano as Reickel reported on new activities and physical improvements on the 17-mile county parkway to the Hines Park Task Force this week.

"A lot of our discussion used to be the law enforcement aspect. It's nice to see more on the activities aspect," the cult for police to control. sheriff added.

HINES DRIVE was developed in the 1920s, when families took Sunday drives and looked out the window. Fathers took the streetcar to work on didn't have cars at all.

The '20s formula turned into disaster, at least in police eyes, during the 1960s and '70s. County dried up. Hines became the scene of drinking-anddrugs parties, prostitution and just plain trouble. And that kind of trouble, in a sprawling park layout, was diffi-

Reickel, in his first year as parks chief after 11 years in Oakland County, has an answer: the module system.

"We've got to move parking off the roadway and into parking lots. It's unsafe because people open car doors into sunning themselves lying on cars or moving picnic tables to the roadside," said Reickel.

DAN NAVARRE, chief of county parks maintenance, told the task force his crews would remove broken swing sets from scattered, hidden locations and concentrate them in activities areas - "not scattered in the boonies." New chains for swings have been on order for three months.

The river will be made visible by the removal of brush. Windows are being replaced in comfort stations, he said.

weekdays. Non-working teen-agers traffic. It's undesirable to have people But the goal of restoring all comfort stations is elusive because some have suffered extensive, and costly, mechanical damages

Baseball diamonds are getting backstops and being improved.

Navarre said regular programs of grass-cutting and trash pickup have been instituted. "This park has never had planned maintenance. It's had maintenance, but never a written plan," he said.

In June park crews will be augmented by 100 state Youth Corps workers, he said.

TASK FORCE members were in cheerful mood as they reported on activities rather than problems in Hines Parkway as the Memorial Day weekend approaches. Items:

• Park users, particularly families, have increased in numbers in a spring that has been unusually warm.

• Planning will start soon on removing logjams from the river which retard receding floodwaters, Reickel said. The Michigan National Guard will cooperate, and help is being sought from contractors with cranes.

Why fight private schools?

To the editor

I have read with interest the article and letters regarding public vs. private schooling, and several thoughts come to mind.

Instead of spending time and tax dollars fighting private schooling, why doesn't Dr. John Hoben determine why so many parents are opting out of the public school system? The answers should be obvious:

1. An elementary teacher, regardless of how dedicated and concerned he/she is, cannot adequately instruct over 30 children in a small classroom. This teacher babysits. It is frustrating to children, teachers and parents. Private school classrooms are smaller.

2. My children have attended Field, Miller, Eriksson, and East Middle schools. I challenge Hoben or any member of the school board to spend an entire day in a classroom at Eriksson School. The teachers and administrators are wonderful; the noise level is horrendous. Children are cramped in areas smaller than my basement playroom, and I wouldn't dream of allowing 30 plus children down there!

3. When the sixth graders in my area were moved out the grade schools and into the middle school, I was reassured that they would have little contact with the other grades. The first week some ninth graders attempted to urinate on my son. Restrooms are smoke-filled, and threats are made against anyone who dares identify the smokers. What a wonderful environment!

4. Inspite of well-meaning, caring principals and teachers, discipline is not adequate. How can we improve this?

5. Why do we have separate facilities in our school system for TAG students whom the open classroom is designed for, and children whose primary problems in school are caused by crowded classrooms and too much commotion have nowhere to go? Teachers and administrators agreed that one of my children needed a quiet, enclosed classroom; since the child was not certified learning disabled, my only option was private schooling. It amazes me that a public school bus transports her to private school but will not merely transfer her to a less-populated public school in our district.

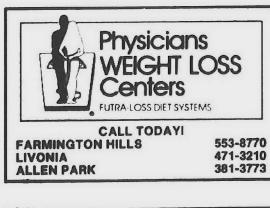

6. Why do sports programs flourish while children do not learn the basics? Considering that a larger percentage of students enroll in art and music courses than participate in organized sports, why are these programs the first to suffer cutbacks when the budget is tight?

My list of frustrations is far longer than can be stated here. My only means of fighting the system has been to gradually pull my children and the tax dollars they represent out of the public schools. I am not happy about this or the financial sacrifice it requires.

As more and more children exit the system, I hope Hoben will think about some of these issues. Before beginning his battle against non-accredited private schools, why doesn't he schedule an open forum between himself and the parents of private and public school children?

Isn't it ironic that we seem to be fighting one another when supposedly we have the same goal: providing a quality education for our children in an environment that is conducive to learning

Our school district needs to implement drug education from kindergarten all the way through high school. "Elementary students need drug education," but so do all others.

To quote a community leader in this article, "By the time they reach eighth and ninth grade, it's too late." I agree, to an extent. By the time some kids reach eighth and ninth grade, it is too late. In my opinion, it is only too late for those who are social deviants and live life in such a way that drugs are an acceptable part of their environment.

I don't believe we have too many of those people in our community. Therefore, we need to assume that we can still help our students when they are in the most crucial years of their lives: those years of adolescence.

I teach in a downriver community in a junior high school and have two teen-aged daughters and a 3-year-old. Drugs are a real concern of mine. In the past two years, I have received training in drug prevention and have implemented the ideas into my classrooms and home.

I encourage discipline rather than punishment and acceptance rather than criticism; open communication of ideas so that children may share their thoughts without being judged or criticized by peers, parents or teachers (this is a vital skill which can be taught); and, by communicating openly, the student learns about his peers and thus, about himself. He learns that he is OK: he learns that others have shared similar experiences and feelings.

A community leader says, "If you got these kids from kindergarten on and told them about the pitfalls of drugs, I think you could educate them to the point where they wouldn't use them." In the last decade, we educated our students about drugs; we taught them drugs. The studies indicate that the result was that we had more highly educated drug users. The actual usage did not decrease. This statement might also imply scare tactics. These are probably effective - for a few days or maybe weeks. How frequently can we bring in a previous drug user or show a film which indicates the perils of drug abuse?

It is easy to teach facts about drugs. The students love doing reports on all sorts of drugs; unfortunately, they already know more about the drugs than the teachers. It is easy to show a few selected movies that provide information or scare the children.

But, I believe the task is much bigger. I believe we need to intervene in the development of values; we need to get our leaders (those from whom the pressure comes) on a team against drugs. We cannot do this by separating ourselves so severely as adults (parents and teachers) from our children.

We must take time to get to know them; to hear the things they are saying, even if we disagree; to make reasonable rules and enforce them consistently, but allow the children room to explore the world around them; treat them with respect, refusing to make condescending remarks; and, most important, accept them as they are, even if they are not exactly as we planned them to be.

Maybe when we can give this kind of support to our children, then they can begin to become strong enough to resist those drugs which can destroy them. Until we merge with the children, we cannot expect them to heed our requests and warnings. They frequently reject our information and values; but they also frequently accept whatever their friend or their acquaintance tells them. We can do something about our drug problem.

We can set good examples, and we can begin to Ruby Lewis Canton hear our children.

Where are the greatest risks?

To the editor:

I can't believe that Pete Pellerito would waste an obviously intelligent and talented mind on the likes of a bill to ban smoking in public.

I guess it is understandable that he would be so concerned with indoor pollution, and it is refreshing to know that his facts and figures seem endless, but what about all the facts and figures, Mr. Pellerito?

For example, taxes average about 40 cents of every dollar spent on cigarettes. Luxury items such as furs and jewelry no longer bear the burden of excise tax. What happens if the tobacco industry loses and the smoking population goes down. Where will the tax come from then, Mr. Pellerito?

I wonder where the EPA gets its figure of between "500 and 5,000 people will die next year because of second-hand smoke." That's a pretty broad range and as a former nurse who worked with many lung cancer victims, I haven't known one who got lung cancer due to "second-hand smoke."

I do know however that OSHA has abandoned its once-vital program of setting standards for workplace exposure to cancer-causing chemicals. The most glaring examples are asbestos and formaldehyde. OSHA admits that its current limit of two asbestos fibers for each cubic centimeter of air means 16,000 workers will get cancer in their lifetimes. Some 16,000 workers - honestly where are your priorities?

According to Pellerito, a worker sitting in a smoke-filled office has the effect of smoking two cigarettes in an eight hour day. Does the worker not run a greater risk of being killed by a drunk driver on his way home from work?

He claims that the issue is one of serious indoor pollution and not one of whether people should or can smoke. It seems he is throwing us a smokescreen (pardon the pup).

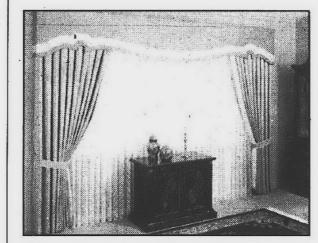

As a smoker, I support smoke-free areas but please don't force me to smoke only in the privacy of my home. I'll respect your rights if you respect mine. Ask me politely to put the cigarette out and I will - become belligerent and nasty and I'll remind you that I live in a free country.

Mr. Pellerito, please direct your energies where they are needed. Eliminating smoking in public is not going to stop the thousands who will die by the hands of drunk drivers or save the lives of the 16,000 workers.

Does researcher care about me?

(The following guest column was written by Jack Bologna of Plymouth. Other readers are invited to submit quest columns for consideration to the Observer Newspapers, 489 S. Main, Plymouth MI 48180).

Their observations are often enlightening (when they agree with our preconceptions and perceptions) and often controversial - when they don't agree with our preconceptions and perceptions.

But whether enlightening or controversial, social research is here to stay because we seem to be living in an era of "pop" social-psychology.

Our daily and Sunday newspapers feature living styles sections. Our general circulation magazines also place great emphasis on life styles of "important" people, i.e., movie stars, athletes, the rich and super rich.

On a weekly basis, we hear reports from polling organizations which probe our hopes and fears, our needs, wants, demands and desires, our political convictions, our tastes, values and interests.

We probably are the most probed society in the world today. Our opinions are solicited on practically anything of economic. social, political significance.

WITH ALL THIS interest in us by social scientists and market researchers, one might conclude that our opinions are valued and that we should feel proud and dignified to be involved in this democratic process of mass analysis.

But from another perspective, one might look at mass analysis as a gigantic invasion of our collective privacy, or as a covert effort to manipulate our minds, or subvert and convert us to another ideology, against our wills.

For example, does the market researcher really care about me personally, or is it my taste in soft drinks, headache remedies and hamburgers?

Is the researcher really interested in producing a more valuable product for my consumption or more interested in understanding my psyche so he can overcome my normal resistance to change or my defenses to sales pitches?

I am beginning to feel that researchers today are less interested in me as a human being than as a human libidio.

There is no joy or dignity in my being selected as a random or stratified sample upon which the craft of the researcher can be applied. There is only loss of privacy and lsos of individuality.

So please, Mr. or Mrs. Researcher, stay away from me. Do your "head" tricks elsewhere.

The Senate plan is to drop the rate to 4.6 percent the first day of 1986, a full 21 months ahead of schedule. In fiscal 1986 the revenue loss would be $550 million.

BLANCHARD'S PLAN, considerably more complex, is based on the unpopularity of local governments' extremely high property taxes. The basics: • The income tax rate would come down to 4.6 percent in mid-1986, six months later than the Senate plan and 15 months earlier than the current schedule. There is no provision for raising the $1,500 exemption.

• A number of business-type taxes would be adjusted for various reasons, raising revenue $200 million, so the net cost of Blanchard's plan would be $450 million. Biggest items: tax long-term capital gains ($72 million), tax "domestic" (Michigan) insurance companies at the same rate as "foreign" (out-of-state) companies ($47 million) and tax military pay ($27 million).

BLANCHARD'S PLAN has the big advantage of addressing the property tax problem that we all griped so loudly about in the inflationary years of 1964-80.

The governor tells us the big beneficiaries would be suburbs in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties, where property

But instead of waltzing into town at some future time to take his place alongside the Hank Greenbergs and the Bobby Laynes, Denny the Great can look forward to spending the next 23 years dressed in prison grey for racketeering, extortion and cocaine dealing in Florida

As the boy once said to Shoeless Joe Jackson of the famous Chicago "Black Sox" scandal stemming from throwing games in the 1919 World Series, "Say it isn't so, Joe.'

No problem for Denny. He's denying it all and still insists the case against him was fabricated.

Many loyalists and sports fans wish they could believe him, but the situation looks bad.

THE BOARD of directors of the Michigan Sports Hall of Fame left the door ajar for Denny's entry into the hall by voting to keep his name on the election ballot. He could be elected any time a vote is taken, but the board reserved veto power over any choice and could refuse to certify an election. That means it could reverse McLain's election to the hall if he bags the necessary votes.

Hall of Fame Commissioner Nick Kerbawy, the former Detroit Lions and Detroit Pistons general manager, promises to convene the board to vote on certifying McLain's election if that should ever happen. McLain's name would stay on the ballot for the entire 10-year eligibility period, after which it could be removed.

McLain's name has been on the Hall of Fame ballot the last two years. His conviction has sparked debate on his name continuing to appear on the ballot. "Criteria for a candidate's election is contained in the Hall of Fame's constitution as 'having brought lasting fame and honor to the state of Michigan," "Kerbawy said.

IT'S PAINFUL to contemplate the fate of Denny McLain. He had the world in his arms, and he let it slip away. He could have been financially comfortable for life, and he's broke. He could be living in Beverly Hills, either in Michigan or California, and unless appeals courts rule otherwise, he'll be living in a prison cell.

Should a man's sins wipe out his accomplishments?

Or do you bar the Hall of Fame door to Denny McLain because of his sins outside baseball?

REGARDLESS of your viewpoint, Denny McLain will go down as one of the most famous persons in the history of Michigan sports. He did something that hadn't been done since Dizzy Dean in the 1930s: win over 30 games. And yet a person of his deeds blew it all and ran afoul of the law.

The best reason to keep Denny out of the hall would be to eliminate him as an inspirational example for kids.

Looking at it from another angle, maybe that's just the reason for putting Denny into the wall - to show an example of what can happen to greatness if it becomes contaminated, to show that good things must be channeled, and that regardless of how good you are, no one is above the law.

THE DIFFERENCE is largely philosophical. The Senate plan focuses on cutting personal income taxes, period. Blanchard's target is lowering local property taxes through rebates.

Blanchard and the Legislature, with only one Republican vote, in 1983 raised the income rate from 4.6 percent to 6.35 percent, with provisions to scale it down as debts were retired and the economy improved.

Currently the rate is 5.35 percent. It will drop to 5.1 percent near the end of this year. Then on Oct. 1, 1987, it will drop to the pre-recession rate of 4.6 percent.

· Property tax rebates would be increased from about $500 million to almost $750 million. Instead of 1.5 million of us getting a state check when homestead property taxes are more than 3.5 percent of income, two million of us would get rebates when property taxes passed 3 percent of income.

Those two items would reduce state revenue $650 million in fiscal '86.

values have been strong and state aid to schools low. He's right. Comparable housing is much higher here than in outstate cities

Unlike his predecessor, Bill Milliken, Blanchard will not push for a sales tax increase as a replacement for property taxes, even though Michigan's 4 percent sales tax rate is low and property taxes 'way off the charts."

"Some day," he predicted, "they're going to want a sales tax increase and property tax cut, dollar for dollar. I don't see it happening in the near future."

Well, Jim Blanchard is known for having a pretty good sense of political timing.

In politics, star is everything

IT IS ALMOST amazing how the possible Republican opposition to Bill Lucas' gubernatorial candidacy seems to be melting away. One after another of the possible challengers says he does not wish to vie with Lucas for the GOP nomination.

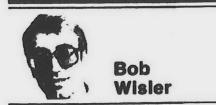

Only Oakland County Executive Dan Murphy appears to be left to oppose the new Republican star.

Former Gov. George Romney is the latest to support Lucas, who is only in his third year as Wayne County executive and second week as a Republican. He has yet to announce his candidacy. Romney raised a few eyebrows by insisting that Lucas should be the "consensus" GOP candidate in 1986.

Perhaps George is mindful of the intraparty primary rows which sapped the possible GOP will to fight a winning election campaign in the fall. The-two Republicans who sought the U.S. Senate nomination in '84 - Jack Lousma and Jim Dunn - provide a case in point. Once he defeated Dunn in the primary, Lousma had trouble lifting off.

It well could be that Lucas will become the Republican gubernatorial standard bearer without being nicked for a drop of blood by a Republican challenger.

How can one candidate appear to spring up so strongly? The answer may be that this is the era of the star. Call it what you will, there are some people to whom the spotlight gravitates. They have some combination of character, personality and style that draws attention.

IT MAY have nothing to do with intelligence, perseverance or effectiveness. It has more to do with such things as selfconfidence, flamboyance, charisma, panache, pizzazz. The person who discovered Bill Lucas in a sense may be compared to the agent who discovered Lana Turner sipping a soda in Shwab's drug store in Hollywood.

At least one newspaper has noted that Lucas displays a significant lack of knowledge about some governmental subjects. The newspapers and the candidates themselves like to call them the "issues." The principals argue about issues and accuse each other of ducking the issues. But voters traditionally pay little attention to issues.

Oh, there are a few that make a difference - Americans held hostage, for example, made everything that Jimmy Carter did seem suspect. And Richard Headlee, the GOP candidate for governor in '82, buried himself by addressing supposed women's issues. But for the most part, issues are things that voters get tired of. They really want to vote on the basis of a candidate's perceived personality.

DENNIS NYSTROM, a longtime Republican political operative instrumental in Lucas' conversion to Republicanism, knows full well the value of a candidacy based on personality and style as opposed to one based on issues.

He is quoted as saying that voters are not unduly concerned with a candidate's stand on specific issues. "It's your approach to problem-solving that counts, not how you answer narrow questions."

It would probably be more correct to say that it is how the public perceives your approach that counts.

This is why the political kingmakers search for stars rather than depending on their party ranks to turn out charismatic candidates.

The time will come when all political leaders will search for the right candidate, no matter what his ideology, political leanings or background. Winning the election is the most important thing. If candidates have to be chosen and courted like football and basketball stars, so be it.

Blanchard's comp plan wins key approvals

GOV. JAMES Blanchard's new proposal to cut workers' compensation costs by addressing only administrative issues has won immediate support from some key lawmakers, General Motors and the United Auto Workers. But it drew sharp criticism from some business officials.

The governer said he expects the plan, which will go to a legislative task force, to be approved before the summer recess.

The proposal evades the controversy over the definition of "disability" while focusing on streamlining the system's administrative procedures.

As such, it reflects many of the December recommendations of University of Michigan law professor Theodore St. Antoine, appointed by the gov-ernor as special counsel on worker's compensation.

DRAWING THE MOST fire are the governor's proposals to eliminate the June 30 sunset on the disability definition, to appoint an advisory council of business and labor to study the issue, and to eliminate the ability of the appeals board to review the entire record of a case decided by administrative law examiners.

Blanchard said the proposal would make the system more cost competitive and equitable for injured workers. Aides said exact cost savings are impossible to calculate.

And alluding to GM's forthcoming decision on a site for its Saturn project, he said, "We are trying to do everything we can to improve cooperation because that could affect future business decisions."

The governor said the administrative reforms will be a major improvement in the job climate and in administrative costs. "Further reforms will be much more attainable if we can move out and clear up administrative problems," he said.

The governor said he would create, by executive order, an advisory council equally represented by business and labor to address the definition issue as quickly as possible.

ST. ANTOINE said he was delighted with the proposals to address administrative problems. He said they constitute "the one universally acknowledged failure of the system - the crushing backlog of cases (five years)."

Senate Labor Committee Chairman Doug Cruce, R-Troy, co-chairman of the task force, said he was encouraged by the proposal, saying, "It will be 95 percent of what we'll end up passing. I believe it does have the foundation to reduce costs."

Task force member Sen. William Faust, D-Westland, said it appears to be a framework for a solution.

House Minority Leader Michael Busch, R-Saginaw, said he was skeptical that another advisory council would be helpful in addressing the longstanding battle over the definition of disability.

MICHIGAN MANUFACTURERS Association President John Thodis strongly opposed delaying action on the definition question, while applauding the proposed changes in administrative procedures.

Commerce Director Doug Ross, who helped win the support of the UAW and GM, said the advisory council would not simply study the definition, but would be charged with the responsibility to resolve the issue as fast as possible.

Major points fo the governor's plan are to:

• Make the disability definition for occupational disease consistent with that for traumatic injury. Streamline the appeals process with a new appellate comission to hear new appeals while the existing board would clear away the existing backlog.

Set time limits on appeals.

Encourage voluntary arbitration.

· Set new qualification for administrative law examiners.

· Encourage alternatives to contested cases, in part through expanded mediation.

· Limit attorney fees by limiting the time period on which fees are calculated to 104 weeks and basing fees on benefits after deductions for other coverages.

"We think it's a good way to make money. This way we don't have to send the boys into the streets selling stuff. They enjoy this project. They get together the night before we deliver to sort and tie up the newspapers."

ROBERT WOODSIDE had ferried in papers gathered by members of the Good Shepherd Church of Westland.

"It's worth $1,000 a year," he said. 'If we really worked at it, we could make $5,000 a year for our special projects.'

Flora Dierdorf drove from New Boston because paper collecting "makes a little extra money for me."

Charles Woodhams and son Derrick of Livonia regard paper collecting as a family enterprise. "It shows the kids the value of conserving," said Woodhams, adding that profits go into a vacation fund.

SYLVIA GARRETT and daughter Kim brought from Westland a load of papers to which they and their neighbors had contributed.

"We save papers so our kids can make money," said Garrett.

Newman, who deals with customers and works on the compnay books on Saturday mornings, appreciated Garrett's comment.

"It's good for children to be involved in this," she observed. "It make them realize that money doesn't grow on trees."

She is still impressed by one boy who was absolutely world-class in newspaper collecting zeal.

apartment building," Newman recalled. "He had his customers save their papers and he brought them here. His parents cooperated. I'll bet that kid made $100 a week for years. He started this about the age of 12 and he's now in college.'

NEWMAN ADDED: "We have a lot of children coming in to supplement their income. Many senior citizens also. Some people who came in as children now are coming back with their kids."

Newman suddenly noticed through a window that a customer had driven his van over the weighing platform at ground level outside the window. Peering at a part of the scales inside, she recorded the weight of the vehicle.

The driver then took his load to the other side of the building where Wiener and a crew were waiting to do the work of unloading and bailing it. Weiner bought half of the business two years ago after the death of Newman's husband.

Once the van was emptied, it was driven back to the scales for reweighing. The weight shed by the vehicle was recorded as the weight of the newspapers. L&L's methods of operations leave his vehicle once, when he collects his money

"Recycling paper saves trees," said Newman as the customer department. We save the cities money. They don't have to pick up as much garbage or find land to dispose of it. We need more of this."

WIENER SAID that the 50 tons of paper taken in each week during busy times means 50 tons less material needing landfill.

He explained that the "process of recycling now costs less than creating new newsprint. Technology has taken over with the result that today it is more advantageous to reuse newspapers. The material is also recycled into such items as cereal boxes, making them cost less.'

Recycling metals brings down their cost, in Wiener's opinion.

"Recycled copper is as good as mined copper and less expensive," he noted, "and it means we won't have to use up our natural resources as fast."

L&L deals with such nonferrous metals as copper, alumninum and brass, al-means that the collector only has to though newspapers are the major part of its business. It also buys items like car radiators, starters, generators and batteries.

(P.C)1B

"WE DON'T make much money on batteries," Weiner indicated. "The reason we buy them is that the guy who brings in three batteries might also bring in aluminum and newspapers."

Wiener and Newman are fussy about the paper they accept for recycling. No magazines, no telephone books, no high gloss paper for them.

'Slick paper is almost like glass, it's so slippery," explained Wiener. "It can actually cause the bail to come apart. Then we have 1,800 pounds of newspapers all over the floor. That's no fun.'

He added that the glue in magazines can clog reprocessing equipment, so that "if one of the people buying our paper sees a few magazines in a bail, he might reject a whole semi(truck) load weighing 46,000 pounds.'

Telephone books are turned down because of low-quality paper. According to Wiener, the paper has already been recycled.

"We are one of the few places that hand bail paper," he continued. "It's an advantage to use because it allows us to see what goes in. An automatic bailer takes everything."

CURRENT RATE for 100 pounds of paper is $1.60. The price rises in the winter sometimes when cold weather keeps collectors off the streets.

"The demand is still there in winter, but the supply is less," Whener noted. "If necessary, we shrink our profit margin then to keep busy during the winter. In this business, if you can break even or make a little profit in winter, you're happy."

Wiener felt both happy and lucky during the past recession that area residents remembered L&L.

The business kept going during the recycling company on Brush Street by residents of Wayne and nearby communities such as Westland, Livonia, Plymouth, Garden City, Inkster, Romulus and New Boston. But before it reaches Mayor Washington's breakfast table, the paper is sorted, cleaned, de-inked, shredded, soaked, cooked and eventually transformed into huge rolls of newsprint.

The papers are carried to the company in cars, station wagons, trucks and vans by hundreds of people who want to make a little extra money for their family, or who represent groups such as scouts and churches involved in fund drives

"WE ALSO BUY and sell metal as well as computer and ledger paper," explained Dorothy Newman, a teacher at Hamilton Elementary School in Westland. Soccer, grand opening make for busy holiday which means with friends. I'll admit the timing on these events could have been better but let's get trary, they will be keeping their started.

I hope you have all your gardenyour spring cleaning, because your holiday is going to be a busy one!

Before we dash off to the soccer fields, let me tempt you with a relaxing trip to the new Canton Cinema Six. Yes, the time has come, Canton, to enjoy the first phase of our new, progressive facelift. This is it - tomorrow at 6 p.m. the grand opening of the very first theater in Canton.

This is exciting. Please don't miss it if at all possible for it promises to be great with all sorts of fun including the Plymouth Canton Lions Cheerleaders and prizes galore. How about a trip to Las Vegas, a VCR, 10-speed bike, a PACMAN game, T-shirts, duffle bags and more?

Special admission from noon to 8 p.m. Friday, May 24 is $1.04 for any movie as long as you get in before 8 p.m.

They have been working long and hard to get ready for this opening and the theater is beautiful, red and blue, with a huge snack bar as you walk in. I must, however, take exception to the shade of red, it looks purple to me. But as you all know, I'm no interior decorator (but it sure looks purple to me).

Back to the details. There are ing done and have a decent start on four theaters that seat 220 people and two theaters that seat 380 and a large, fully lighted parking lot. It is time to relax, Canton style. They will be open seven days a week from noon to midnight.

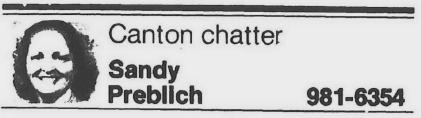

Despite some rumors to the conprices competitive with surrounding theaters, with the exception of our beloved Penn, for which there will be no replacement in our pocket-books or our hearts.

Every day, from noon to 6 p.m., there will be a special matinee price of $2.50.

One more terrific thing is that they are planning to hire 60 people, and that is no small potatoes.

Just in case you haven't heard, let me run the opening films by you: "Brewsters Millions" (PG), "Rambo" (R), "A View To A Kill" (PG) and "Code of Silence" (R). Tim Jahn (Jan), the manager, assures me that General Cinema will be bringing us a variety of family pictures, including many Disney releases. transforming discovery into treatment. They found that Harper concentrates on the tough adult cases in cancer, heart disease and serious vision disorders. Patients like Kathy come to Harper Hospital at the Medical Center with confidence. They come because Harper is a major participant, together with the Sloan-Kettering Institute in New York and the M.D. Anderson Tumor Institute in Houston, in America's network of only twenty Comprehensive Cancer Centers. Patients know that if the diagnosis is cancer, there is no better place to be than Harper Hospital. And they come with confidence because the Kresge Eye Institute is at Harper Hospital. This important Medical Center resource is devoted exclusively to the problems of vision. And through its research and clinical work, the Kresge Eye Institute gives new hope to millions with impaired vision throughout the world.

Harper is hope for heart patients, too. Its large scale, nationally recognized program brings together research, teaching, surgery and medicine. More open heart surgeries are performed each year at Harper than are performed at any other hospital in Michigan. But of more significance is the growing number of heart patients Harper is able to treat successfully each year without surgery. For Kathy and her family. For you and your family. Harper Hospital is Research. Science. Hope and Healing.

Gallimore crowns 'Tom Terrific'

A special day was held recently to relax during the lunch, Derald McKinhonor Tom Bennett, head custodian at Gallimore Elementary School.

The staff and students at Gallimore are so fond of Bennett that they proclaimed May 15 as "Mr. Bennett Day" and planned a day full of surprises.

A T-shirt emblazoned with the words "Tom Terrific" told how everyone at Gallimore feels about their tall, modest, young custodian.

A special table was reserved for Bennett, his wife and two daughters at lunchtime. So that the custodian could ley, a fifth-grade teacher, took over Bennett's noon-time cafeteria duties.

In the afternoon a school assembly was held and Bennett was presented with handmade cards and poems of appreciation from the students, as well as a gift certificate for dining from the staff.

"Tom's constant good humor and helpfulness beyond the call of duty have earned him respect, affection and appreciation from the students at Gallimore," said Principal Joyce Deren,

"and they decided a Tom Bennett Day was in order."

The week of the observance, Deren added, an incident happened at the school which typifies Bennett's contributions. "A little boy was in near-tears because he 'lost' his teeth retainer somewhere in the school.

"I had a feeling that 'somewhere' was amongst the lunchroom garbage. Who agreeably dug into the trash looking for the small metal wire retainer? Tom Bennett, of course . . . and he found it!"

Questions shall persist as long as life unfolds

ONE BUDDHIST. Three Jews. Two Christians. Seated around the table, sharing food and a faith in God who unfolds the destiny of all life.

Two refugees. One from Vietnam and the other from Yugoslavia. Four native-born Americans with European ancestry. All citizens of the United States. Seated around the table, sharing food and the freedom of opportunity to become what one chooses.

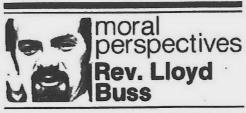

A dermatologist. A pathologist, teacher and student. A musician and Lutheran clerayperson. Seated around the table, sharing food and the recall of events that brought them together shape our present. It was also a time to create memories. Tra Mi had entered our lives because she could no longer live hers in her own country. There was sorrow in the death of her husband at the time in his life where hapiness and joy could again be known.

WE ARE assembling the memories that

There was sadness in hearing again of her mother's life of hardship in Ho Chi Minh City. There was anguish and pain in tracing her route as a refugee from Saigon in 1975 to Michigan, 1985. There was celebration and commendation for her success in reconstructing her professional and personal life as a dermatologist, wife and mother in a new land.

We are led by God through life, but life is never pre-packaged. Life is never delivered to us in a finished form. To be led is to have a direction, the direction of the Spirit and the direction of memory and the direction of hope.

THERE ARE some things we will want to forget. If there are too many experiences or events without ultimate meaning, then we shall collapse in despair. If your anguish and anger from the past makes us impotent in shaping a life with meaning in the present, then there will be no future.

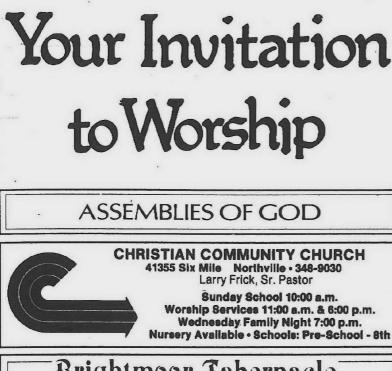

But the past is never past. Life will have meaning only when the past is folded into the present, or we discard the past and let it fall emtpy to the ground.

I really don't know the best way to remember or recall such painful events as flight from one's homeland, the loss of all prsonal goods and professional status, permanent separation from older parents and extended family. Where does one start to reconstruct the life of meaning we must have when the one we had is taken from us?

ONE BUDDHIST. Three Jews. Two Christians. Six citizens of the United States with unique ancestry. Professionally competent and productive participants in the order of life and community.

Some things were more important than others. Some things we would never want to change. Perhaps some day we can recall the past without the sorrow and sadness that gave us the present with its joy of accomplishment and hope.

Perhaps some day we will know the mean-ing of all that has unfolded for us. the possibility of meaning in what often appears to be a meaningless world was an experience of grace.

Drugs in sport: help or hinder?

HE MESSAGE Drs. Frank Pollina and Joseph Femminineo and former pro baseball prospect Barry Ruppenthal had to deliver was an important one. Only problem was there was almost no one there to receive it.

The three held a free seminar Saturday morning at The Community House, Birmingham. The subject: drug use and abuse in sports. Good topic, considering the cocaine controversies and the steroid stories circulating through the press. Their goal was simple. As Pollina put it, "We want to try to educate people about the side effects of these substances. And we want to educate them about any possible benefits."

Seems like this would stir an interest in a wide spectrum of society - from high school and college athletes to their coaches, or even parents of athletes. But, for whatever reasons perhaps 9 a.m. on a Saturday morning is too early for such a serious subject - only eight people showed, counting yours truly.

TOO BAD, because their message was worthy of greater attention. True, much of it was nothing new to me. I had read many of the same details regarding steroids in Sports Illustrated. Many, but not all.

While educating the public may be their intention, their seminar could also be titled, "Drugs: Are They Worth the Risk?"

Their conclusions would surprise no one, but Ruppenthal's first-hand testimony of his use of steroids adds a great deal of clout to their arguments.

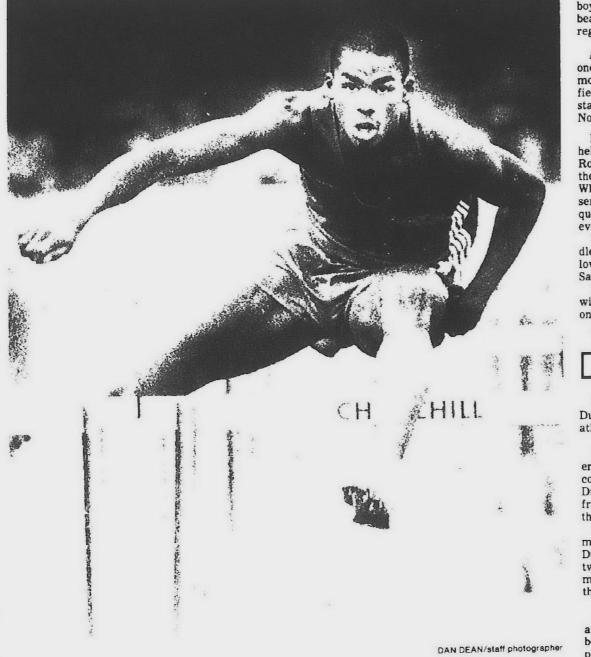

When I graduated from Ferndale High School in 1974," Ruppenthal told the dinky audience. "I was probably the cleanest guy in the state. I took nothing, I didn't drink or anything.

RUPPENTHAL WAS a pro pitching prospect with arm problems. Prior to a tryout with the St. Louis Cardinals, he recounted, a Grosse Pointe doctor approached him and told him how much steroids could help. Ruppenthal decided to give them a try

"The first week I took them, they were everything he told me," he said. "It was like being on a 24-hour high. I felt as if I were invincible.'

His arm problems melted away, in part because of the anti-inflammatory ingredient of the steroid But also, the drug dulled the pain. And as Pollina explained "Pain is a signal. It

Ann Arbor Huron (92), Ann Arbor Pioneer (71) and Belleville (65) captured most of the points Saturday and qualified the largest percentage for the state meet Saturday, June 1, at Flint Northwestern.

But Plymouth Salem and Mike White helped preserve Observerland (and Rock) pride. The Rocks placed fifth in the team standings with 47 points and White, a serious contender for Observerland's Track Man of the Year, qualified for the state meet in two events.

White won the 110-meter high hurdles (14.46) and placed third in the 300 low hurdles (38.38). He also ran a leg of Salem's second-place 400 relay (44.58). Pole vaulter Ron Piwko placed first tells us something is wrong.

At his pro tryout, Ruppenthal "struck out something like 14 of the 18 batters I faced. The scouts there were very much impressed with my improved fastball."

He started training eight hours a day. He also started getting steroid injections once a week.

But there were side effects. "I couldn't relax," Ruppenthal recalled. "I remember having to go outside and run around the block three times to calm myself down

These severe mood changes proved to be his downfall "I got so pumped up on the mound, I couldn't control it. I started getting wild. It took me a while to recognize it, but (steroids) were all was taking

Ruppenthal is now studying to be a sports trainer

HIS EXPERIENCE is not unique. Neither are those who have suffered liver damage and sterility - usually temporary - from using steroids

But whatever risk steroid use carries, athletes who take them swear by their effectiveness. Medical studies indicate steroids are far less helpful physically than athletes claim. They do build body mass, but that feature is more evident on someone who is ill and emaciated than a 250-pound weightlifter

The psychological effect concerned Femminineo. "Some say they are less fatigued, that they have this feeling of well-being and invincibility," he said. "That feeling may help increase workouts, but (the effect) is more psychological than physical."

Ruppenthal's experience supports those beliefs and raises another frightening prospect. As Pollina put it, "Athletes feel, 'How can I compete with these guys when they have such an edge on me?' '

The mental approach to any sport is allimportant. If an athlete believes steroids have given his opponent the advantage, it's going to be difficult to convince him he can still win.

EDUCATION, ACCORDING to the trio, is the key. As Pollina said, "There are very few substances that will actually help the athlete. Of the few that do, the risks aren't worth it."

But having a message of importance for the public and making them aware of it are two different things. So Pollina has decided upon a different approach, taking his seminar on the road

"I've contacted several high schools and offered to present our seminar, and some have been very interested," he said.

Maybe that will help. Getting young athletes to realize how much harm they risk by taking such drugs is a task in itself. But it's only half the battle. When well-known athletes say they couldn't have made it without drugs, the risk seems worthwhile.

Convincing the uninitiated that there are no real advantages is the key.

Erika Benjamin captured four events and placed second in another, qualifying for nationals in all five, to pace the Tri-City Seals second-place performance at the Cerebal Palsy (CP) regional games last weekend at Eastern Michigan.

The Seals 29 athletes scored 368 points in the large team (21 members or more) division to 470 by the champion Downfiver squad's 48 competitors The Oakland Mighty Oaks were third with 295 points (34 athletes) while Sterling Heights was fourth with 147 points (30).

Benjamin was one of six Seals to qualify for the National CP/Les Autres Games, slated for Aug. 7-14 at Michigan State University.

The 20-year-old Westland resident won the 200meter run (47.0), the 400 (1.54.6), the 1,500 cross country (10:46.0) and the 60 (12.4). She also placed second in the 25-meter freestyle in swimming (30.27)

Benjamin, who competed in last year's International CP Games, is a class six athlete. CP competition is divided into eight classes, with one the most severely handicapped and eight the least.

TWO OTHER Seals qualified for nationals in four events. David Larson, a 15-year-old from Plymouth competing in class five in field events and class six on the track, won the table tennis and club throw (28.60 meters), was third in the 60 (15.4) and fourth in the shot put (5.28). He'll compete in all four at nationals.

Steve Dell, 17, a Livonia class one athlete, won the 25 backstroke (3:04.03) and was second in the 25 free (2:01.43), the soft discus (6.33) and distance throw (8.43).

Others to qualify were:

· Dave Marcy, 18, of Livonia, a class three Les Autres athlete, who was first in power lifting (100pounds) and qualified for nationals in the slalom (second in 2:17.0), discus (third, 6.69) and shot put (third, 2.55);

· Eric Smith, 12, of Livonia, a class one Les Autres athlete, who won the 60-meter weave (33.1) and slalom (1:56.0) in qualifying standard and was first in the precision throw (64 points);

• Dawn Darlington, 18, of Plymouth, a class seven CP athlete who was second in the 400 (1:56.6) and fourth in the 100 (20.2), qualifying in each, and placed third in the long jump (1.82).

OTHER WINNERS for the Seals were Tony Stroia, 14, of Livonia, a class five athlete competing in the junior division who took top honors in the javelin (3.85) and 100 (1:08.9) and was third in power lifting (60 pounds), and Terri Rohrig, 31, of Livonia, a class six CP competitor who won the 1,500 and 3,000 tricycle races, was second in the power lifting (60 pounds) and placed third in the club throw (3.55).

Adams established a record with her 17.6 clocking in the 110 yard hurdles and also her 15'16'' leap in the long jump set a new record. Chiefs wrap up Western Division crown

Plymouth Canton, the No. 1-ranked baseball team in Observerland, wasted no time in stopping a pair of impressive Farmington Harrison streaks Monday

Harrison hurler Mike Inch had thrown 26 scoreless innings coming into the game. Canton greeted him with eight runs in the bottom of the first and went on to win the game 12-1.

Harrison (10-10) had gone six consecutive games without an error - a rarity in high school ball. The Hawks commited a throwing error in that first inning

Dwayne Bennett's two-run double was the biggest blow of the eight-run Canton outburst. Walks and wild pitches contributed far more to the scoring. John Lenders, though, contributed a long pinch-hit three-run homer in the fifth.

Canton lefty Mark Coburn checked a good-hitting Harrison team on just five hits - three of the hits came off catcher Mike Colovos' bat. Coburn (5-1) walked three and fanned nine.

the junior varsity, went 3-for-4 with three RBI and handled all seven chances at shortstop. Pete Morman knocked in three with a pair of hits, and Bennett scored three and knocked in two. Mike Clark (4-1) earned the victory.

In the second game, Adam Kocik, with scoreless relief help from Bucky Blake and Coburn, won in his first start of the season.

Tom Kenyon had a two-run single and Mark Stevens banged a two-run double.

PLYM. CHRISTIAN 5, LUTHERAN NW 4 (8 innings): Dave Cadaret's double tied the game in the seventh and Rob Cannon's single in the eighth provided the margin of victory for Plymouth Christian in this Michigan Independent Athletic Association contest played Tuesday at Lutheran Northwest.

Cannon pitched two innings of no-hit ball in relief of Rod Windle to post the victory. He and Cadaret led the Eagles' 10-hit attack with a pair of hits each.

Western bounces Salem from state tournament

Plichta has done her best to live up to the billing. In her last 11 games, Plichta has hit at a .615 clip. Salem has won its last 11 games

On Monday, Plichta went 2-for-2 with a triple and an RBI to lead the Rocks to a 13-1 romp over Livonia Bentley.

The win avenged Salem's startling loss to Bentley earlier this season.

"This was kind of a revenge game for us," said Willette. "They got us 9-8 at their place."

That loss, in effect, cost Salem the Western Lakes title.

Sue Carlson (15-4) allowed just one hit and walked four to earn the win. Jessica Handley went 2-for-3 with a pair of RBI and Denice Tackett went 2for-4 with a triple. Debbie Starr knocked in three runs with a triple. The Rocks (18-4, 11-2 in the Western Lakes) swept a pair from Dearborn Edsel Ford on Saturday, taking the CANTON 17, HARRISON 3: When the Chiefs are on, few teams in the area can hit with them.

Canton pounded out 14 hits Monday. Laura Darby knocked in four runs with a pair of home runs. Monika Benedict, the winning pitcher, had two hits including a solo homer. Kristina Wines had three hits, a single, triple and home run, and knocked in four runs. Leslee Fidge also had three hits.

The Chiefs are 9-9 overall this season, 7-5 in the Western Lakes.

Chuck Apap, Walled Lake Western coach, helped Gravlin put things into perspective.

"Coach, I just wanted to congratulate you on winning the league," Apap told Gravlin. "You guys never quit. I told our kids, 'Look at Salem, they got down, but they just kept battling. That's why they are champions of our league.'

UNFORTUNATELY FOR Gravlin, Apap's team wasn't as polite.

Western scored what proved to be the winning runs in the first inning. With two out and a man on second (Tim Osburn reached on an error), Dan Gabriele hit a Chris Davis fastball into the woods beyond the left field fence.

"They got their hits at the right times," Gravlin said. "You have to give them credit. We needed to shut them down early. But, even when we were down 5-0, I felt like we could come back. I thought he (Gabriele) would give us chances to score runs and sure enough, we had our chances."

Tom Moore, who has hit Gabriele hard all season, singled and stole second with one out in the first. He was stranded.

Gabriele walked a pair in the second, but Salem couldn't move them.

A bizarre bit of baserunning cost Salem its best scoring chance in the third.

Salem, which had defeated Gabriele season, managed four hits off the righthander Monday. Gabriele walked six Davis, Salem's junior right-hander, suffered his first loss of the season (6-1). He was relieved in the third by Brian Tiller. Of the seven runs charged to Davis, only two were earned.

Denny Atwell, Mike Gabriele and Dave Bartone collected two hits apiece

Salem (15-7) split a pair of games with Redford Union Saturday. RU took the first game 4-2, Salem captured the nightcap 5-3.

MICHIGAN DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION

- NOTICE -

PROPOSED IMPROVEMENTS TO EIGHT MILE RD. (M-102)

All interested citizens are advised that the Michigan Department of Transportation is proposing to widen and resurface Eight Mile Road (M-102) from Grand River Avenue (M-5) easterly 5.2 miles to the Southfield Freeway (M-39) in the cities of Detroit and Southfield and Redford Township in Wayne and Oakland Counties.

The proposed project calls for adding a fourth travel lane for each direction of Eight Mile Road. This would be accomplished by paving the outside shoulder and installing curb and gutter at the edge of this new pavement. The existing pavement would be recycled and the road resurfaced. As part of this project, the two bridges carrying Eight Mile Road over the River Rouge would be widened to carry an additional lane. This widening would occur on the median side of the roadways to avoid disruption to the Telegraph (US-24) ramps. This project would not require the acquisition of any additional right-of-way

Under Federal and State Policy, any citizens who would be affected by the proposed project may request in writing, that a formal public hearing be held concerning the social, environmental and economic effects of this proposal.

As required by Federal regulations, an Environmental Assessment has been prepared. Studies and coordination for this project demonstrate that implementing the proposed action will not have a significant impact upon the quality of the environment. Copies of the Environmental Assessment for this project may be obtained from the addresses below.

Those disagreeing with the determination set forth in the Environmental Assessment,

751 series tops in area

Despite the coming of warm weather which is not conducive to good scoring several unusual performances were turned in on the lanes in Observerland during the past week.

Topping the list was the 751 series rolled by Bob Ziomek at Merri-Bowl. He linked games of 235, 258 and 258 and finally won a membership in the 700 club.

Meanwhile at Woodland Lanes Ted Stuart, a 10year-old, posted a 638. He started with 172 and followed with a 176 and 190 to take the week's honors.

WONDERLAND LANES - Mary Mohacsi, who owns a pro shop at Merri-Bowl, went down the road on Thursday nights to top the women's averages with 215. That put her in a position to be the highest-ranked woman bowler in the area. It was only one pin behind Lary Brant, who topped the men with 216.

WESTLAND BOWL - Lou Mijel opened the Monday morning men's league by setting the pace with a 595. The high game of the opening day was a 227 rolled by James Hanna.

SUPER BOWL - Sandi Fleury, who carries a 125 average, paced the Las Vegas league with a 590 that included a 230 game.

BEL-AIRE - Cas Pagoda helped usher in the trio league when he toppled the pins for a 949 count for the four games. Larry Franz was next in line with 948.

PLAZA LANES - A novel experiment was tried during the week when the students from the elementary school were given a change to roll on the star lanes. They were given one to two hours, to get them acquainted with toppling the pins.

Tony time: Ivan Bloch vies for top awards

By Ethel Simmons staff writer

HE SHOWS ARE some of the biggest hits on Broadway, their stars are among the most glittering, and the man behind them, who makes these dreams come true, is most at home not in the Big Apple but in suburban Detroit's Birmingham.

Ivan Bloch, an entertainer turned real estate developer and then Broadway producer, will be in the audience when the Tony Awards are given out Sunday night, June 2, at the Shubert Theatre in New York.

Success has not spoiled him so far. Everything is going well right now, but he reasons, "Tomorrow I could be a bum.'

With two of his shows nominated for Best Play and one for Outstanding Reproduction of a Play or Musical, Bloch has two opportunities to be up on stage to receive the theater's most prestigious honor.

WITH PERFORMERS in several of his shows nominated for best performance, in all Bloch is awaiting a possible 12 Tony awards for his shows or their stars.

Bloch spends much of his time in New York, but last week he was back in Birmingham in the offices of Uniprop, his real estate equity company, talking calmly about the possibilities of the Tony awards.

Looking casually debonair, seated behind his big desk, he was wearing a pink, open-necked golf shirt, topped by a subtle pink and charcoal sports jacket with a pink hankerchief pouffed in the pocket.

His hair is softly graying, his eyes brown and direct, his voice unhurried. This producer appears to have things well in hand. Behind his desk, a papiermache sculpture of a businessman balancing skyscrapers on his head and troit, next Oak Park, West Bloomfield multi-faceted career.

The four Tony nominees for Best Play include "As Is," "Biloxi Blues" and Bloch's two shows, "Hurlyburly" and "Ma Rainey's Black Bottom." The reproductions nominated include "Cyrano de Bergerac," Bloch's "Joe 'Strange Interlude."

ASKED WHICH of his shows he is most hoping will win, Bloch said he didn't want to choose between "Hurlyburly" and "Ma Rainey." In fact, he is predicting that Neil Simon's "Biloxi Blues" will take the Tony. But he professes he doesn't mind, and that he and Simon are good friends.

'Joe Egg' win," he said. "It's really magnificent." Although Bloch first began producing on Broadway in 1980, winning a Tony award is nothing new for him. Last year, he received the Best Play award for "The Real Thing," as well as a nomination for the musical "Baby." His 1982 production of "Master Harold . . . and the Boys" was nominated for a Tony. Even the first show he produced, the musical "Tintypes," was nominated.

Ivan Bloch is no longer the new kid on the block. He may have come up very fast, but he has the instincts that create a winner - from selecting the year. show, to the casting and the entire production process.

Becoming a producer is partly an outgrowth of his background as an entertainer. "I was in the business as a kid," he explained. "I was a singer and an actor. I left the business in the '60s. Everybody was becoming a star but me.

INSTEAD OF working nightclubs, he returned to Detroit and built his real estate firm. He lived in downtown De-arms seems appropriate to Bloch's and, since 1972, in Birmingham. Bloch and his wife Linda, a lawyer, have two children, a daughter, 16, and a son, 18, who is in college.

"In 1980, a friend in the theater business (Richmond Crinkley, executive director of Lincoln Center) asked me if I wanted to produce a show," Bloch said. Egg," "Much Ado About Nothing" and Crinkley was too busy to do the show, which was "Tintypes." "I wound up being the hands-on producer."

"I next saw a play at the Rep called 'Master Harold and the Boys.' I was still pretty naive. I thought you just get a theater and produce it."

Finally, the Shuberts gave him a theater. They also said, 'Get other producers.' "Master Harold," which was originally mounted at Yale, was produced Of the revivals, "I would love to see by Bloch, two others and the Shuberts. After Tony nominations for both Tintypes" and "Master Harold," Bloch found, "People started to notice me in the theater.

He describes his earliest success as a producer as "beginner's luck." Then Bloch did the musical "Baby" and "The Real Thing," which broke box-office records on Broadway and won the Tony.

"BABY" IS PLAYING in summer stock. "The Real Thing," which just closed on Broadway after a one and 11/2-year run, toured this winter and may play Detroit's Fisher Theatre next "Tintypes," which has been at the Birmingham Theatre, is still going strong, with eight summer stock companies. "Master Harold" has played all over the world.

Bloch has the highly profitable knack of picking the right show. "I love to do young American writers," he said. "I think you have to be a kind of a patron of the arts to be successful. I look for new, inventive things."

But it's more than just making a buck. "I have produced shows critics liked I knew would not do well financially," he said. He looks for "something that says something, that will add to the repertoire."

Bloch believes the theater does not have enough good writers today because most of them are writing for television and films. "They can write for a film and make $100,000," he said. Writing for the stage is a long, involved process that can take years before a show is produced.

HE RECEIVES about 500 scripts for plays and movies each year. For the theater, "I read everything that comes to me." Because he thinks he is not familiar enough with the camera, he has a film development company with 20th Century-Fox that sends promising scripts on to him.

His interest in a show extends well beyond the script. "I'm looking for plays for Robert DeNiro and for Robert Duvall," Bloch said. "I get involved totally in casting. That's the fun part." Bloch was co-producer of "Shot Thru the Heart," a musical that debuted at the Birmingham Theatre in a proposed pre-Broadway run. The show didn't make it to the Great White Way.

"That was a work in progress. Once or twice a year, I take a piece out and work with it. 'Shot Thru the Heart' didn't work. There were a number of elements we just couldn't fix."

His current work-in-progress is "Peccadillo." "It played Florida and got wonderful reviews, but it just wasn't ready for New York," Bloch said. "We couldn't get it to work right. I think the principal characer was a problem."

WORKING WITH author Garson Kanin, Bloch meets the author and his actress wife Ruth Gordon for lunch once a week in New York. "It's probably the most fun I have in the theater business," he said.

In his movie endeavors, Bloch produced "The Stone Boy, starring Robert Duvall and Glenn Close, which was re-leased last year. "It just came out in tape," he noted. Current film projects are "Night on the Town" for the Disney studio and "The Color War."

In his Birmingham real-estate office, Broadway producer Ivan Bloch coolly discusses the possibilities of winning Tony awards for his hit shows. It won't be the first time, if he wins.

dy City," based on the classic drama Bloch also is looking at a play directed "Front Page," and "Czar of the Movies," about the film business from silents to talkies. Another musical he is producing is "Carrie," based on the movie. "They came to me with this piece," he said. "I'm looking for a director now."

Bloch has talked to Robin Williams about starring in a play called "The Nerd," but the project has been delayed and will not open in the coming season.

by George C. Scott with Ben Gazzara.

Has Bloch had any flops? "Requiem for a Heavyweight" was projected as a Broadway hit this season, but the show didn't go. Bloch had thought itmight be more successful than some of his other shows because of its well-known story and a cast with big stars.

Comedy revue is a grand show

'El Grande de Coca-Cola" continue at 8:30 p.m. Fridays-Saturdays and 6:30 p.m. Sundays through June 16 at the Actors Alliance Theatre Company in Southfield. For ticket information call 642-1326.

"El Grande de Coca-Cola" at the Actors Alliance Theatre is so outrageously funny that all the muscles charged with lifting a face in laughter come away exhausted.

The show, written by the team of Ron House, John Neville-Andrews. Alan Sherman, Diz White and Sally Willis, isn't really a play at all but more a nutty comedy revue, and it's spoken in pidgin Spanish with a smattering of massacred French and German.

It couldn't matter less if you don't speak any of the languages because the humor communicates in spite of (and because of) the atrocious things the actors do with the words. If you can't imagine a fat. middle-aged entertainer from Honduras reciting Hamlet's "to be" speech in bastard Spanish and next telling "knock knock" jokes (still in Spanish), then impersonating W.C. Fields, Jimmy Cagney and Dirty Harry, you've got to see Jonathan Round's masterful portraval of the third-rate impressario, Senor Don Pepe Hernandez.

Plot doesn't matter much more than language does in "El Grande." What there is of it provides an excuse for the shenanigans on stage at a nightclub in Tujillo, Honduras, which Pepe Hernandez has persuaded his uncle to rent for a month.

THE UNCLE owns the local Coca-Cola bottling plant, hence the title of the play and the campy ads from the sponsor that pepper the already spicy vaudevillian fare. Pepe has bragged all over town that he's bringing famous international stars to Tujillo to play at the nightclub.

Some stars! All except the piano player are Pepe's stagestruck relatives who act the parts of cabaret performers from across the sea.

Performances of the musical loves to heat things up backstage with any available male and to giggle delightedly all the while she's doing it. Anita Barone is marvelous as Maria. Consuela Hernandez (Maggie Wysocki) does a fine job as Pepe's vamp-ish stepdaughter, who is Maria's rival. In their first act, the two come on like Carmen Miranda twins doing a

Beechnut gum ad, but definitely minus the sisterly sweetness. They swing their arms and hips trying to knock each other off stage and all the while they manage to balance giant pyramids of plastic fruit on their heads

In "El Grande" the style is decidedly slapstick. Bimbos get kicked in the backside and sprawl on stage, and everyone races around like hyped-up stooges. The cast under Annette Madias' expert direction is so good at its hijinks that even those in the audience resistant to slapstick will break down and howl

TED RAIMI as Pepe's cousin, Juan Rodriguez, is the quintessential nerd in any language. He bumbles splendidly. Tom Monolides plays excellent piano backup in the role of Hector Jimenez. Undoutedly he's allowed to be good at what he does because he's not related to this hyperactive family of screwballs.

Miguel Vasquez, Pepe's nephew (Jon Michael Manfredi), is a Latin Lothario with rakish dark eyes and a decided flair for comedy. His portrayal of the short-legged painter, Toulouse-Lautrec, is the funniest part in the play, thanks to inspired costumes by Mary Ellen Shindel. He acts the whole skit (if you call his melodramatic nonsense acting) wearing sponge rubber feet taped to his knees so he can hobble around like a dwarf. Sound stupid? It is - masterfully so.

Costuming for the Wagnerian diva is nearly as outrageous. She wears twin coconuts glued to her breastplate and uses them as weapons. And of course, since she is a diva in the French skit, she wears a beret with the requisite Wagnerian horns at-There's his daughter, Maria, a ripe tached — only the horns are knocked little chickadee in a halter top who askew and quiver absurdly.

"The Exorcist" (1973), 8 p.m. Friday on Ch. 50. A much-praised, big-budget horror film when it was released, it seems more ludicrous with every passing year. William Blatty's exploitation novel gets the treatment it deserves, though some of the religious mumbo-jumbo of the book gets lost in translation. There is something sadistic about enjoying watching a 12-year-old girl flopping about while gutterally chanting obscenities (no doubt edited for television). Good actors, high gloss and intellectual pretensions don't make this a good film. Rating: $1.50.

"Birds" (1963), 10 p.m. Friday on Ch. 20. This strange allegory of birds turning on people is not one of Alfred Hitchcock's more subtle or witty films, but it packs a certain terrifying punch. The bird attack scenes are well handled, and the threatening mood is sustained throughout. Rod Taylor makes a good strong man but isn't in the same class as Cary Grant or James Stewart, who took leads in other Hitchcock films of the period.

"The Jolson Story" (1946), 1 Friday night on Ch. 7.

Pure hokum, you'll love it. Larry Parks sparkles as the ultimate showman, Al Jolson. So what if Jolson's life wasn't like this, the story is still entertaining. The acting is excellent. And

At HUNTERS' RUN

Jolson himself provides one of the finest soundtracks up to that time. Or since for that matter. Rating: $3.50.

"Long Day's Journey Into Night" (1962), 12:05 Saturday night on Ch. 9.

Many great plays have received awful film adaptations. "Death of a Salesman" and "The Glass Menagerie" are two examples of weak films from great plays. But this Sidney Lumet film of Eugene O'Neill's masterpiece is a worthy translation of the original and a must-see for the great acting alone of Ralph Richardson, Katharine Hepburn, Jason Robards and Dean Stockwell as the doomed Tyrones. This is not light entertainment. It is, with "Salesman," one of the saddest and most intense examinations of interpersonal relationships ever staged. It is all the sadder for being autobiographical. But out of the pain comes some rich insights into who we are. Rating: $4.

His changing ideas and approaches have led him invariably into breaking with past patterns and associations. One of the few remaining links with the past is Trio Detroit.

The two other members of the Trio are Italo Babini, principal cellist with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, and pianist Jonathan Shames, who was one of two American finalists in the 1982 International Tchaikovsky Competition in Moscow.

There was one new element in the Trio's recent program at Orchestra Hall. Rachlevsky wasn't playing his own violin. Instead, he played a 1709 Stradivari and a 1741 Guarneri (not simultaneously - he isn't that good yet).

These instruments, on loan from the collection of the Henry Ford Museum, will be Avigdor Zaromp

THE TWO works on the program were familiar and attractive masterpieces Beethoven's "Archduke" Trio and the Trio in B Major, Op. 8 by Brahms. Both were performed here several times in recent years, by Trio Detroit as well as by other groups.

> The Beethoven Trio received a competent treatment, but it wasn't always in good balance. The piano part, which in itself was crisp and clear, was nevertheless overly dominant, mostly at the expense of the cel-10.

Wright house 'Snowflake' fits into environment

By Mary Klemic staff writer

Get a land with some character to it, where you can build a house different from any other, Frank Lloyd Wright told Gregor and Elizabeth Affleck more than 40 years ago.

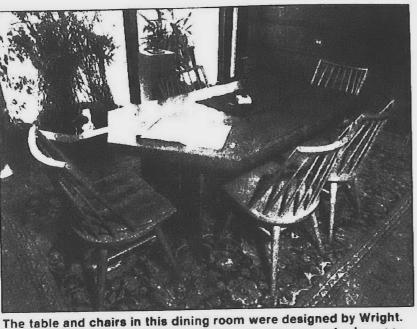

It was the famed architect's belief that structures shouldn't disrupt the landscape. In 1941, he designed a house for the Affleck couple in Bloomfield Hills that was part of the natural scene.

Another unique local example of Wright's architecture on land with character, built the same year, is the "Snowflake House" in Plymouth Township. The house and the surrounding gardens contain a sculpture exhibit by Peter Rockwell, open to the public. through May 28.

The site can be reached only through a shuttle service that leaves downtown Plymouth every half hour. For information on the free exhibit, call the Plymouth Community Arts Council at 455-5260.

THE FOUR-LEVEL Snowflake House fits comfortably into the surrounding five acres, which are a combination of sun and trees on gently rolling hills. The structure, with seven flat, skylighted roof lines, is a similar harmony of bright glass and cool wood. Wright also designed the furniture so the entire house flowed with the grounds.

"It is one with nature," said Carl skylight.

'It is one with nature. When he walked into the front room, he said, "I brought the outside in and the inside out." ' - Carl Wall Wall, who commissioned Wright to design the house. "When he walked into the front room, he said, 'I brought the outside in and the inside out.'

Approaching the house, a visitor becomes aware of its straight, unbroken lines and angular, three-sided pillars. These angles are repeated throughout the house, as is the theme of nature.

Outside the residence is a garden light, designed by a student of Wright's. Wall made the lights as a hobby. A small pattern seen on an outside wall, resembling a little flight of steps, was Wright's way of "signing" his buildings, according to Wall.

THE WALLS and ceiling are wood cypress, while the floor is polished, colored concrete. The structure faces southeast, receiving the southeast sun in the morning.

Wright generated the feeling of being outdoors by using glass extensively. Long, tall windows abound, and the kitchen's high ceiling contains a Originally, Wright designed the dining room table so it came out of the wall. It later was made into smaller pieces. As seen today, sitting in the middle of the room, the table is pentagonal and its legs are angular.

Plants in the same room as the table stand in hexagonal bases.

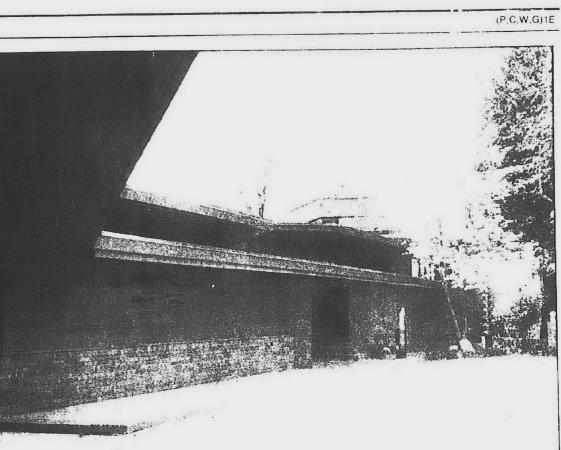

OF THE EIGHT rooms in the house, Wall's favorite is the front room.

"It's very comfortable," he said. "It's nice and warm."

This room features a cherrywood carving that depicts a scene of animals and plants. It was made by Milton Horn, a resident artist at Olivet College, which Wall and his wife both attended. Horn collaborated with Wright on the panel. The ceiling of the front room features an angular design.

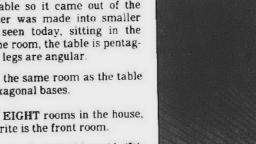

Not even a doorway interrupts the neat horizontal line along one side. The head of a person 5 feet 51/2 inches tall who was standing in the doorway was a few inches below the top of the door.

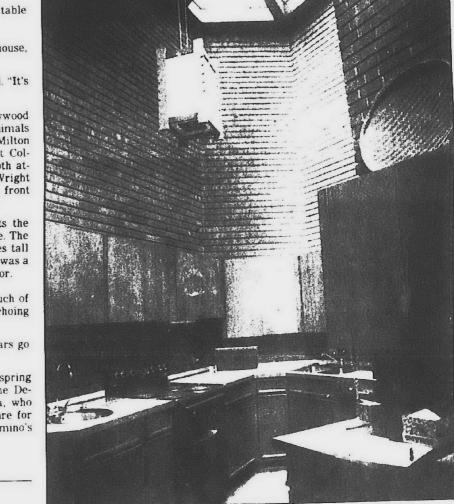

WALL runs around much of

The low profile of Frank Lloyd Wright's "Snowflake" brings the house into the landscape. The stair-step design on the wall is a Wright signature mark.

Five times in my life I have spent the whole day home waiting for "the truck" to come. Twice out of the five times it never came. Did you ever wonder what a tremendous boost it must be to a truck driver's ego. ARTIFOLKS: This artifolks is kind of shared between me and Sharon Dobney of Livonia. Sharon came into the art store on a hopeless venture. She was looking for an inexpensive light table. The least expensive light I have seen is $129. What Sharon and I figured out was an inexpensive alternative. There is a table easel that is made to elevate drawing or lap boards. An 18by-24 is, for example, about $15. Instead of placing a board on the easel, Sharon bought a piece of transluscent white plexiglas which only cost $12.95. For her light source, she merely bends her drafting light down behind the easel which, by the way, has a completely open back. "It works perfect" she says and it only cost a total of $27.95

Chicago's art expo draws local galleries

By Benita Bornstein special writer

Someone jokingly remarked, "In terms of distance, Chicago is a suburb of Detroit!"

A mere five hours by car or 40 minutes by plane, this dynamic and beautiful city on the lake should be considered "a stone's throw away" at least during five days in May. For at this time. Chicago becomes the undisputed world center for art.

The Chicago International Art Exposition (CIAE), the largest juried, worldclass art forum of its kind is an unparalleled "happening.

Held this past May 9-13 at Chicago's 72-year-old historic landmark, Navy Pier, the Expo brings the most prestigious galleries of the world together in one spectacular setting, itself the most awesome work of art - Lake Michigan against the backdrop of the Chicago skyline.

Here, the two long warehouse arms of the Pier stretch two miles out into the sun-dappled turquoise-green water culminating in a central rotunda, fareview mous for its stunning hatch-marked, cast-iron bracing beams.

NEVER mind that the pipes are rusted and the plaster crumbling, for this is a trade fair of the highest quality, a delightful fun-filled blend of fast food and fantastic art.

This year, 150 exhibitors included 50 foreign galleries from London, Paris, Rome, Vienna, Berlin, Munich, Barcelona, Tokyo and 100 of the finest galleries from the United States, with 15,000-20,000 pieces of art for sale.

Every media was represented painting, sculpture, watercolor, graphics, photography and even the video of Nam June Paik, with prices ranging from $30 to $500,000.

The sense of enthusiasm was shared by dealer and viewer as visual senses were stimulated by the great 20th century masters such as Picasso, Leger, Mondrian, Kandinsky, Klee and Dubuffet as well as the modern American artists, Frankenthaler, Motherwell, Hockney and Francis to name just a few.

Sounds of the European dealers negotiating in their native language contributed to the international aura and excitement.

Chicago, as host, was represented by 24 galleries; Alice Adam Ltd. and Richard Gray Gallery were both instrumental in helping to develop the show six years ago. The Chicago Imagists, Ellen Lanyan, Phyllis Bramson, Roger Brown were represented as well as the bag-lady artist, Lee Godie.

Essentially, the finest galleries in the country brought their best work. Birmingham's Sheldon Ross and Donald Morris galleries contributed to the show's quality.

ROSS agreed that the entire experience was remarkable, that Navy Pier Expo is the best show of its kind and that it is high quality in ever aspect. Because the show draws connoisseurs and collectors, Ross met a collector of Saul Steinberg who recognized two fine well-documented Steinberg pieces. He not only bought the two works, but sent other collectors to the Ross booth because he determined that Sheldon Ross Gallery was so fairly

But the sport of people watching also has its place in such an event, expecially when 40,000 turn out. This is, after all, an art show and yet the select crowd comprises the full spectrum, from connoisseurs, artists, serious collectors, museum curators to the high school and college student, the "yuppie," the beginning and budget-minded collector and the "gawker." DETROITERS spotted were the

DIA professionals, Ellen Sharpe, Helen Shannon and Janet Landay. Also seen milling their way through the art and crowd were Jean and Joe Hudson, Alan and Marianne Schwartz, of the Schwartz Graphic Arts Gallery at the DIA; Gere Baskin, director of Detroit Focus; Barrie Werba, director of Michigan Foundation for the Arts; Mr. and Mrs. Hughes Potiker, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Stone, Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Cos-

Artists seen were Mary Clark and Gary Zych. Former Detroit artist Michael Luks was represented at the Oscarson Hood Gallery.

One can stretch a point and say that Michigan is at the heart of the Expo since the idea was originated by Flint's John Wilson.

Of the six year old Expo, Wilson claims, "My main interest is developing the Navy Pier. What greater service than to provide a cultural show place in the most exciting city in the world?

WILSON believed in what others felt to be a white elephant. And as a member of Mayor Harold Washington's task force to come up with development plans for Navy Pier, Wilson, who views culture as a service industry, envisioned the Pier as a cultural show place. Thus, what began as a practical business venture turned into an artistic phenomenom.

*3E

More than 1,000 dealers were turned down this year, Wilson said while the cost per booth tripled from $800 in 1980 to $2,400 this year.

Waddington Galleries of London took 24 booths, 12 for Waddington Graphics. The Navy Pier is big, the Expo is big and the idea is big.

In addition to the visual arts, next May the Chicago International Theatre Festival, a Quadrangle Corp. production, will perform for four weeks. Such international theatre groups as the National Theatre of Britain, Haifa Theatre of Israel, the Scot Theatre of Japan and more will be part of Chicago's month of festivals.

"The Duchess of Malfi," starring lan McClellen, "The Critic" and "The Real Inspector Hound," directed by Tom Stoppard are just some of the plays that will be performed.

With such an international draw, Chicago seems closer and closer to Detroit just a suburb away.

Flower art blooms at the DIA

Few of us can bring great art into our homes, but all of us can see and enjoy it in our museums.

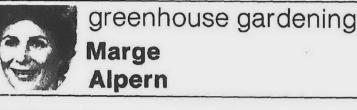

Last week many people who perhaps rarely visit the Detroit Institute of Arts found a special reason to go there. Gardeners throughout Michigan came to see and experience "Arts and Flowers A Festival of Spring."

In the low humidity of the museum, the perfect petals became somewhat soft and limp by the end of the exhibit. I am sure the planners of this largescale flower show were very concerned about the life expectancy of many of the floral arrangements.

There were many aspects of the festival that were top quality. As a gardener, I must say, however, that everything was overshadowed by the magnificence of our great museum itself. It deserves our strongest support.
