Rockwell to carve locally

By Gary M. Cates
staff writer

If you liked him in his recent role as a one-man art show, you're bound to love him in his new role as artist-in-residence.

Sculptor Peter Rockwell, who took the community by storm last month during a showing of his work at the Frank Lloyd Wright Snowflake house, has been commissioned to carve several pieces for the Plymouth Township Park on Ann Arbor Trail.

Plans for this first-of-its-kind Rockwell work were announced and approved at Tuesday night's Township Board meeting.

Described as a "play sculpture," the Rockwell pieces will be carved at the park next spring. The sculptor plans to spend three months in Plymouth, starting in mid-March, and has invited the community to help him with the carvings.

"I've had this sort of thing in mind for some time," said Rockwell, who flew into Detroit Tuesday for the board meeting.

"It's an exciting idea, having people who are going to be using the sculpture to help make it," he said. "We will have enough extra tools so that anyone can try their hand at it."

PRESENTING THE idea to township trustees, resident Joanne Hulce said the entire work would be done without a single tax dollar. The cost, estimated to be some $35,000, has been guaranteed by a commission committee.

The committee — Hulce, Supervisor Maurice Breen, and residents Janet and Dr. Malcolm Campbell — will raise funds through donations, Breen said.

According to Rockwell, Hulce was the driving force behind the idea.

"I've been to the park several times," he said. "The idea came up during my show here last month. Joanne proposed it."

Ameritech will close Sheldon

By Dennis Coffman
staff writer

Ameritech Services announced plans Wednesday to close its Sheldon Road warehouse and distribution facilities during 1986.

There are 170 employees at the two-story building, located on 36 acres in Plymouth. Ameritech indicated it intends to offer most of the employees transfers or re-assignments.

"Ameritech Services has developed a series of assistance procedures to minimize the impact, including early retirement supplements and layoff allowances," said Mike Brand, a corporate spokesman.

It is unclear what impact the closing will have on Plymouth. "Hopefully, they will get someone in there who is a good tenant," said Henry Graper, Plymouth city manager.

GRAPER SAID although the company now pays personal property taxes, it is difficult to assess the loss in dollars. "We don't know how many people live in Plymouth or how much they spend in the city," he said.

The facility, at 909 Sheldon Road, has been an important link in Ameritech's distribution network, serving as a regional clearing center.

The Plymouth building had been used as a receiving center for Ameritech parts and products.

One month ago, Brand said the company had not planned any layoffs at the warehouse, but was examining its warehousing requirements and would have a better idea of where it stood later in the summer.

Apparently, later was sooner.

THE CLOSING of the Plymouth facility was part of a corporate-wide consolidation of material management operations across Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin.

Ameritech operates warehouses in West Chicago, Indianapolis, Plymouth, Solon, Ohio and Milwaukee.

All will be closed during 1986 and replaced with a single new warehouse to be located in South Bend, Ind.

Ameritech Services occupies space in five warehouses. It owns facilities in Plymouth and Milwaukee and rents space to AT&T. AT&T owns the buildings in West Chicago, Indianapolis and Solon and rents space to Ameritech Services.

Formed at AT&T's divestiture, Ameritech Services is headquartered in the Chicago area and performs centralized operational support for its owners — the five Ameritech Bell companies (including Michigan Bell). The support includes warehousing and distribution material used by the companies in their day-to-day operations.

AMERITECH IS consolidating as part of an ongoing commitment to reducing operating costs, according to Ameritech President Bruce DeMaeyer.

About half of Ameritech's 800 material management force will be affected by the phasing in of the consolidation plans. Most will be offered transfers or re-assignments.

The closing comes about one month after AT&T closed its repair and warehouse facilities in the same location. AT&T had been leasing space from Ameritech.

The AT&T closing of its portion of the Plymouth site eliminated 180 employees from the facility. AT&T, which leased about half of the two-story, 500-square-foot building which originally was a Western Electric plant, also used consolidation as the reason.

AT THE time, AT&T said its Plymouth operations would be consolidated at the service center in Cleveland, although it would maintain a local presence to serve custom assembly and logistics requirements.

Ameritech, too, indicated it would maintain a local presence in the five states through transship points-facilities where shipments are broken down into smaller loads for transfer to Ameritech Bell locations.

Plymouth City Assessor Ken Way said the Sheldon Road facility was still listed under AT&T in the tax rolls, and would be until the end of the fiscal year, which ends Dec. 31, 1985.

Way said AT&T Technologies pays $800,000 and AT&T Information Systems pays $512,000 in personal property taxes. But he said it would be hard to determine how much revenue would be lost, because the company's equipment is scattered throughout the city.

Families to ID Air-India victims

By M.B. Dillon Ward
staff writer

Relatives of the 11 Wayne and Oakland county victims of Sunday's Air-India crash near Ireland will be permitted to view recovered bodies beginning today, according to a Cork County Regional Hospital official interviewed by the Observer & Eccentric.

Families from Canton Township, Farmington Hills and Troy were among the 329 passengers, mostly of Indian descent, aboard the ill-fated flight to New Delhi, India via Toronto, Canada.

NO ONE is thought to have survived the air disaster, the third worst in aviation history.

Rescue workers have recovered 136 bodies from the crash site 120 miles southwest of Cork, Ireland in the north Atlantic. Twelve of the bodies are those of children, said Joseph Lyons of the Cork hospital.

Believed dead are Canton's Pulevelil and Aleykutty Jacob, their daughters Jissey, Jancey, and son Justin, 8. Shashi Gupta of Farmington Hills, her son, Amit, and daughter, Arti, also were aboard the Boeing 747, as were Troy residents Saroj Bedi, her daughter, Anu, and son, Jatin.

NEXT OF kin from all three families were en route to Ireland early this week despite requests from Irish officials that they wait until autopsies were completed.

Cork residents are opening their homes to victims' families, because hotels are reaching capacity, Lyons said. Irish customs officials are waiving visa and passport requirements.

As of early Wednesday, no identifications had been made of the bodies, mostly female. Autopsies were being done at the rate of about four per hour, Lyons said.

"SIXTY HAVE been done so far. Some of the bodies were damaged from the impact of hitting the water, but not too badly. Most were in one piece."

Joseph Moore, a Detroit-based Air-India spokesman, said passengers' bodies retrieved from the sea were almost stripped bare, their clothes shredded by the 31,000-foot fall.

Because of that, and "because the aircraft broke up in flight, we feel certain it was an explosive device that caused the crash," Moore said "We have no conclusive proof; this is based on visual observation."

MAHENDRASINHJI Chudasama, public relations manager for Air-India in New York, said three extremist groups claim to have planted a bomb aboard the jumbo jet.

The airline is making no further statements regarding the crash — or a fatal explosion Sunday in Japan's Narita Airport that may be linked to the crash — pending an investigation.

UNDERTAKERS in Canada are assisting in the identification effort, added Chudasama. "They're helping relatives, supplying information needed to help authorities in Ireland identify the bodies," he said. "Dental charts, X-rays and medical records are being used."

No bodies were found Tuesday, Lyons said, and the 193 unaccounted-for bodies have either sunk or washed away.

City eyes auxiliary cops

By Dennis Coffman
staff writer

The Plymouth Police Department is looking for 12 persons who would like to serve on a new auxiliary unit of the existing 16-man force.

"We would like to have the new unit ready before the Fall Festival," said officer Robert Scoggins, who is coordinating the establishment of the auxiliary group.

"It will be useful when we have serious emergencies. We can bring the auxiliary officers in, to provide us with an expanded capability," said Scoggins.

Auxiliary members will direct traffic, handle crowds and provide the police with added "visibility," Scoggins said.

"The auxiliary would be a positive thing, because its members would be people who feel good about their community and want to participate," he said.

The auxiliary will provide foot patrols, rather than mobile patrols. Its officers will be unarmed, but will be required to wear uniforms provided by the city.

Members of the auxiliary will not be paid.

To qualify, an applicant must be 21-55 years old, be in good health and be free of felony convictions or serious misdemeanors, such as a driving suspension or conviction of driving under the influence of alcohol.

THE POLICE department will provide training, including an orientation into the departmental regulations and city ordinances.

"But what they can do will be strictly limited," said Scoggins. "They'll be helpers for the department, freeing officers for more serious enforcement."

Auxiliary officers' hours would "not be extensive," according to Scoggins. They would be determined by the number of special community events scheduled in a specific period.

"We'd like to get a mixture of male and female officers," he said. "I feel positive about the program. There is a definite need for it. It will allow us to expand into the community. It's a move concerned with the department's desire for community involvement."

The applicants will be required to write a paragraph explaining why they want to become auxiliary officers. They will be questioned by a review board and 12 will be selected to enter in-house training.

Scoggins, who will be in charge of the auxiliary, said its officers probably will enter schools to make presentations on crime prevention.

"We want a balance of citizens," he said. "We want people who want to be a part of what's going on here."

Applications for auxiliary officer are available at the police desk in Plymouth City Hall. The applications will be accepted until July 15.

In addition to the auxiliary, the Plymouth Police Department also will paint its patrol cars red, white and blue.

Both measures are attempts to increase visibility, Scoggins said.

Schools' bond committee appointed

By Dennis Coffman
staff writer

The Plymouth-Canton Community School Board appointed 12 residents Monday night to serve on a Bond Steering Committee during the 1985-86 school year.

The committee will study the needs of the district and make recommendations on whether or not the board should seek a bond issue during a special election to be held either in December 1985 or January 1986.

Appointed to the steering committee by a 6-0 vote were Stephen Harper of Plymouth Township; Flossie Tonda, Canton; Cynthia Fanslow, Canton; Carole Rundio, Plymouth Township; W.

Edward Wendover, Plymouth; Harold Fischer, Plymouth; Barbara Pelkey, Plymouth; Lynn Helland, Plymouth; Margaret Wilson, Plymouth; Maryann Carey, Canton; and Trish Connell, Canton.

The 13th proposed member of the committee — Irene Ras — was not voted upon, because the board had been unable to contact her to get her consent to serve on the committee.

THE BOARD designated Harper the chairman of the committee.

Harper is a former school board member who again ran for the board in June but was defeated by a small margin by Trustee David Artley. Tonda, who recently retired from the school board, is a former member of the Canton Township Planning Commission.

Fanslow is past chairman of the Voter Information Service Committee for the League of Women Voters of Plymouth, Northville, Canton and Novi.

Rundio is president of the Plymouth-Canton Education Association.

Fischer is a Realtor, with offices in Plymouth. He is a member of the Kiwanis Club.

Wendover is publisher of the Plymouth Community Crier, a weekly newspaper in Plymouth.

Wilson is a former owner of the Penn Theatre in Plymouth, and a past president of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce.

Pelkey served on the Food Advisory Council for Central Middle School, and was part of a group fighting to keep Central open.

Carey was a PTO president at Erika-son Elementary School.

Connell serves on the PTO at Field Elementary School.

"I WOULD like to stress the importance of this committee and the impact it will have on the community for some time to come," Board Member Elaine Kirchgatter said during the meeting.

The Steering Committee will be expanded in the coming months, with members from various segments of the

Rockwell to do sculptures for township next spring

Although he has done several large park pieces around the country, Rockwell said this would be the first time he involved the entire community in his work.

Rockwell has done two park sculptures in Philadelphia and one at a children's hospital in Louisville. He claims to have taken the idea of community participation from the Gothic cathedrals.

"When they were building the Gothic cathedrals, every family had to move a block of stone a half mile or so," he said, explaining how the great churches became community projects.

"But I'm not going to ask people to move blocks of stone," he said jokingly.

"To me it's an incredibly exciting project," Rockwell told the trustees. "I wasn't going to come with models tonight."

But the sculptor was so excited about the project, he couldn't resist making models of the work and bringing them with him.

A FORMER student of Rockwell's, Gilham Erickson, will be assisting with the work.

Planned are three groupings or compositions — one vertical and two horizontal — all to be carved out of travertine with a fantasy theme. The idea is to create a "giant playground," Rockwell said.

"All of these sculptures are distinctly an idea for this park."

The vertical piece will have a 14-foot fountain with a wading pool at the bottom. Atop the piece will be faces, which will play to the water and shifting sunlight.

One of the horizontal groupings will incorporate several large, round faces which will set at ground level for smaller children to play on. The other horizontal grouping will have large faces with wide mouths, through which youngsters can climb and play.

Rockwell plans to have kids out at the park during his work, and will adapt the pieces to their suggestions.

"My stone carvings develop as they go along, that's why we want the children and adults out there," he said.

"The purpose is to encourage imagination and creative play in the children who use the park," Hulce said.

ROCKWELL'S SHOWING at the Wright house was sponsored by the Plymouth Community Arts Council in cooperation with the Frame Works shop on Penniman. Hundreds of people attended the showing and were impressed with Rockwell's work.

"We watched him interact with the community, we watched him interact with the students in the classroom . . . he really charmed everyone," Hulce told the board.

Besides working on the park pieces, Rockwell will be spending a portion of his time in school art classes and teaching an adult education class, Hulce said.

Rockwell, 49, was born in New Rochelle, N.Y. He attended the Putney School and received his bachelor of arts degree with honors in English literature from Haverford College in Pennsylvania.

He studied sculpture from 1958 to 1961 at the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts in Philadelphia, where he received the J. Henry Scheidt travelling fellowship.

After that, he moved to Italy and studied for a short time at the Scuola del Marmo in Carrara. He has lived in Italy with his wife and four children since studying there.

Since 1979 the Rockwell family has divided its time between Rome and an old farmhouse in the Casentino valley, which includes a small stone quarry where Rockwell hand quarries as well as carves stone.

The sculptor has lectured and instructed at various schools throughout the world and has had one-man shows of his sculpture in the United States almost every year since 1966.

Central Middle fares well in state's mathematics meet

A number of Canton and Plymouth students scored high in this year's Michigan Mathematics League Competition.

The teams and individual students were honored last week by the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

In Wayne County competitor Purzer finished third with a score of 87 while Mark Madriljo, seventh grader at Central, finished fourth with a score of 36.

The Lowell Middle School seventh grade team placed third in Wayne County with a team score of 159.

Local board's 'craft' is the military draft

By Gary M. Cates
staff writer

A handful of residents meet once a year to train for a job they hope to never perform. To carry out their duties would signal the start of World War III — literally.

The residents are members of the Livonia/Plymouth/Canton Selective Service System board, otherwise known as the local draft board.

Although currently inactive, the board would be responsible for hearing draft deferment appeals in the event of a national emergency or war.

"The mere thoughts of having the board put into action are something we don't look forward to," said William Brown, a Plymouth Township resident and board chairman.

In 1980, under President Jimmy

Carter, the Selective Service System (SSS) was reinstated — having been eliminated since 1974. Men born after 1959 were required to register for the draft and a skeleton SSS staff was created.

As the sparse staff was established, procedures were set for selecting volunteers to serve on the local review boards.

"Like everyone else on the board, I read the story about it 3 1/2 years ago and applied," said Brown, a retired Michigan State Police sergeant now working with the Department of Social Service's child protective services division.

"When we did it, we thought something was imminent. It's kind of hard to hold up the desires now, when nothing has happened," Brown said.

The local board also includes the Rev. Richard Cassidy from St. John Seminary in Plymouth Township, William Tesen of Canton and Joyce Wheeler of Plymouth.

THE MEMBERS held their annual training meeting Monday.

Equipped with thick policy and procedure notebooks, they reviewed recent changes with George Topoll, the area office manager for western and southern Wayne County.

"They get informational material on a regular basis and we go over that," said Topoll, a Southfield resident whose SSS work is tied to being in the Army Reserves.

"In an emergency situation we need people on the local boards. We save a significant amount of time by having people ready to adjudicate deferment claims — you can't teach them how to do that overnight," Topoll said.

"In the second World War it took almost one year to get the local boards in place," Brown said. "Now, 48 hours after a national emergency, draft notices would be sent out. Within 10 days of sending the notices we would start hearing the appeals."

The system is structured so that appeals of local board decisions would be handled at the state level within 10 days, and national appeals 15 days after the state decision.

"It's not an appeal system that will drag on like the courts . . . if you don't win at the national level, then you're in," Brown said.

At the same time draft notices are sent, Topoll would begin emergency hiring of SSS staff for the area office. The staff would assist the local boards with the administrative work.

"It's a big task because it would have to be done right away," Topoll said.

ONE OF THE jobs the SSS doesn't get involved with is enforcement of draft registering, although the system does keep track of who should be registered and turns the names of non-compliers over to the FBI.

Since 1980, more than 13 million young men have registered for the draft — representing seven year-of-birth groups, 1960 to 1966.

"Failure to register is not a victimless crime. Each man who does not register increases the draft vulnerability of those who do register," according to Thomas K. Turnage, SSS director.

"A strong inducement to comply with the law, followed by prosecution if necessary, is imperative.

"Our Active Compliance Program ensures that the young men of this nation are treated in a fair and equitable manner," Turnage recently reported to Congress.

Through the compliance program, non-registrants are identified and informed of the requirement. The non-registrants — found through driver license, Social Security and other governmental information — are sent a registration form and return envelope.

"More than 750,000 registrations have been received as a direct result of the compliance letter mailings," according to Turnage.

Those who fail to comply after the mailing are referred to the Department of Justice.

AS OF January 1985, SSS reports 98.4-percent compliance with the registration requirement. Of those who failed to comply, 18 have been indicted.

A recent SSS newsletter states that 10 of the 18 have been convicted, with some being sentenced up to two years in prison. Of the remaining eight, four are awaiting trial, two registered after indictment, one registered during trial and one was dismissed on a pretrial motion.

The most notable case is that of the U.S. vs. David Wayte. Wayte of Los Angeles was charged with refusal to register and pleaded not guilty.

A U.S. district court dismissed the case after the government failed to disclose documents Wayte requested for his defense. The government claimed executive privilege.

Government attorneys appealed the case to the 9th Court of Appeals in 1983, and the lower court's decision was reversed. Wayte appealed to the Supreme Court to rule on the question of selective enforcement!

In March of this year, the high court ruled Wayte's case wasn't one of selective enforcement and remanded the matter back to district court for trial.

A more local case, U.S. vs. Daniel Rutt of Dearborn, has been on hold awaiting a decision in the Wayte case. Rutt also requested large amounts of documents and data.

EVEN THOUGH most young men are required to register, many would be eligible for draft deferments.

According to Brown, deferments can be granted for a variety of reasons including being a minister or ministerial student, conscientious objectors, and hardship cases.

Another exemption, recently amended, applies to those who had a father or mother die in the military service. Prior to the change, according to Brown, the exemption was for those whose father or sibling died in service.

France lays claim to Michigan and the Ohio Valley

Three days after we landed on the island of Ste. Helene near Montreal, I had to say au revoir to my friends from d'Etroit who were going on to Quebec to join Chevalier Celoron and try to reclaim French rights to the Ohio Valley.

Many good citizens in d'Etroit were most concerned about the lack of school for our youngsters. We had a room near Sainte Ann's that would be ideal, but we had no books, no slates, and no teacher.

So I was delegated, probably because I was most willing to go, to ask Sister Constance, the Mother Superior, to try to solve our problem.

It was an important task because the young people of our little village on the strait were devoting their time to hunting, fishing and playing a fierce game of lacrosse with the Indians.

Delinquency was becoming a problem. Their speech also was a disgrace. They spoke a strange patois of French and Indian. In fact, at this rate they would become illiterate waifs with no standards and no future. So my mission was urgent and my duties were clear.

While I went about my duties, the Beaubiens and a dozen others from our town proceeded toward Quebec. Their six canoes were laden with goods from d'Etroit to help supply Celoron's army in its journey through the Ohio Valley.

MANY YEARS have gone by since all this took place, but I remember it well.

And what I don't remember I have pieced together from my translation of Celoron's personal journal, and from the day-by-day diary kept by Father Bonnacamps, a Jesuit priest.

Bonnacamps accompanied Celoron every foot of the long, tedious way. (Today, important excerpts from these journals may be found at the Clement Library of the University of Michigan, and at the Archives Nationales du Quebec. I have a "laissez-passer" to both institutions. The originals are in Paris.)

Before we make the trip with Celoron, let us look once more at the political situation for the people of d'Etroit in 1749 and elsewhere in America's mid-continent.

The powers of the world — England,

Helen Gilbert

France, Germany, Austria, Spain, and Italy — were exhausted after centuries of conflict. Then on Oct. 7, 1748, they reached a compromise. They called it the "peace" of Aix-La Chapelle. It wouldn't last long. But when they rode out of Charlemagne's old citadel, some had hope in their hearts, and that would make all the difference.

From the American point of view, the chief success of King George's War was the capture of the gateway to the St. Lawrence, the Port at Louisbourg. But jubilation over this success did not last long. Secret negotiations at Aix-La-Chapelle handed the fort and all the environs "appertaining thereto" back to the French.

Why? No one in Boston claimed to know, nor did the farmers of Connecticut, or the New Yorkers, or the planters of Virginia and the Carolinas, or the French Canadians.

All Americans on this continent were enraged by the British concession, and out of that rage a new spirit was forged. For the first time, the Americans defied the British and began to see themselves as an independent country — a people capable of controlling their destiny.

And so it came to pass that the decisions made at Aix La Chapelle contributed greatly to the development of a truly American spirit of freedom and independence.

THERE ARE widely varying opinions as to why the British returned Louisbourg to the French.

One view, which I support, is that the British wanted to keep the colonies hemmed in. Britain feared the Yankee will toward independence. If she could keep the colonists out of the St. Lawrence and keep their fishing fleets under control, there wouldn't be much of an opportunity for rebellion. This was the kind of thinking that led to the American Revolution.

While these struggles rocked the political and social systems of the world, there were other major problems which created almost continual conflicts between the French and English.

The Canadian French lived in an autocracy subject to the dictates of a corrupt court. The American colonists, exploited by the British, were forced to shift for themselves. It was a case of dig or starve to death.

The French colonies were maintained by the motherland. In d'Etroit, starvation sometimes seemed imminent but somehow they managed to muddle through. The fur trade and fishing kept them going. Some ambitious Frenchmen sank their nets as far east as Cape Cod, and this led to many a sea fight with the doughty New Englanders.

Smuggling was rampant on both sides, and the coureurs de bois, once devoted to their own France, were corrupted by the bribes of the British. Too often, rich loads of furs would find their way to the New York market. Detroit could not afford to lose this trade because that is where all the golden sous came from.

To protect herself, France built a string of forts from Quebec to Detroit and on to Mackinac. The British countered with their own forts on the opposite shore. So the stage was set for war.

AFTER ALMOST 150 years of colonization, the French population of Canada and Louisiana in 1749 was only about 80,000.

The New Englanders from New Hampshire to the Carolinas and Georgia numbered more than a million and a half. This total does not include hundreds of thousands of black African slaves whose cheap labor helped to enrich the colonists, particularly in the South.

France sought to balance this unfavorable situation by holding the friendship of the Indians, but the British deliberately offered them a better deal.

In spite of this, most of the Algonquin of Michigan, which included the Ottawa, the Chippewa, and the Pottowatom, remained loyal to the French for a long time.

The British controlled the fierce Iroquois and their allies the Mohawk and other members of the Five Nations.

To counteract these unfavorable conditions, the Marquis de Gallioniere, governor general of Canada, wanted to settle 10,000 Frenchmen in the Ohio Valley. He advertised in Paris for settlers to move to Detroit.

Any settler who would accept the governor's invitation to emigrate would receive one spade, one axe, a plough, one large and one small wagon, and a set of tools. Seeds would be given to be returned after the third harvest. Each settler in Detroit would be given a cow and a pig.

Many came to d'Etroit but few stayed. Some just wanted the dole and after their year was up, they ran away. Yet La Galissonier persisted in his plan, saying that if a thousand would come, "d'Etroit would feed and defend all the rest because it is the best adapted locality in the interior of Canada for a town where all the trade of the lakes would concentrate."

The Beaubiens also had large interests in Michigan because they owned several trading stations in the interior near such wilderness places as Owosso and Coldwater.

(An account of this fascinating journey through the wilderness will be the subject of the next Tonquish Tale.)

community added to form the Citizens Bond Committee.

The Citizens Bond Committee will review the equipment and technological needs of the district as submitted by each school, review proposed renovation projects, review potential new construction projects, review possible site development projects and make recommendations to the board on a proposed bond issue.

Those who want to serve on the committee should contact either Harper or the school board, which will vote on whether to add the new member.

The bond committee will be expected to provide an interim report during a special meeting of the School Board Sept. 9. It will make a final report at a special meeting Oct. 7.

THE BOND issue would be called the 1985-86 Equipment Refurbishing and Building Renovation Bond Issue. The bonds would provide funds for new buildings, renovations, equipment, library books, band instruments and school buses.

Renovation projects would include Central Middle School, Eriksson Elementary School, Field Elementary School, Hulsing Elementary School and Radio Station WSDP.

Construction projects would include a new kindergarten through sixth grade elementary school, a new middle school, classroom additions to Field, Hulsing and Eriksson, storage additions at six elementary schools and three middle schools, addition to the existing school board meeting room and the purchase of relocatable classrooms.

Improvements would be made at Centennial Educational Park and in the transportation bus yard.

Portable classrooms could be used to help the district obtain a 25-to-one student-to-teacher ratio, according to Raymond Hoedel, associate superintendent for business.

Families to view crash victims

"We expect no bodies will surface for "nine or 10 days."

The Irish Navy and others still are searching for the plane's black box, which contains cockpit communication taped just prior to the crash.

"THEIR HOPE is that it is still floating. If it sank with the wreckage, it could be buried a mile deep."

Two hundred seventy-nine of the passengers were Canadian residents. Of the estimated 28 U.S. victims, 21 were from six families in southeastern Michigan communities including Sterling Heights, Ypsilanti Township and Ann Arbor. Eighty-six of the passengers were younger than 12, Moore said.

● VETERANS PROGRAM EXTENDED

Area Vietnam era and disabled veterans should be aware of recent changes affecting the Veterans Readjustment Appointments (VRA) program. VRA is a federal hiring program providing special, non-competitive hiring of these veterans. Originally scheduled to expire Sept. 30, 1984, the program has been extended through Sept. 30, 1986, through passage of the Veterans Benefits Improvement Act (PL 98-543). It is not expected that the VRA program will be extended beyond that date.

In addition to extending the program, PL 98-543 raised the entry grade level maximum from GS/WG-7 to GS/WG-9 and also provided limited appeal rights during the first year of appointment. A Vietnam era or disabled veteran who has completed no more than 14 years of education may qualify for a VRA. (This restriction may be waived for disabled veterans). For further information, interested veterans may call the local American Legion hotline at 453-9494 and leave a message regarding information desired.

Fun Day Gala on Hines Drive

FAMILY use of Hines Parkway is growing. That's what Wayne County, its parks and recreation department and its sheriff want. "The number of bicyclists who use the parkway never ceases to amaze me," said Vic Chiasson, chief of recreation for the department, after last Sunday's partial closing of Hines Drive to motor vehicles.

"The public is surely appreciative," said Chiasson, adding that the next partial closing will be Sunday, July 14, when the section from Newburgh Road east to Ann Arbor Trail will be closed to motor vehicles.

Last Sunday's closing was from Newburgh Road west to the outskirts of Plymouth.

THE IDEA for partial closings was hatched when Chiasson listened to public comments at an earlier Activities Day. The parks and recreation department is starting with the western end and working eastward.

A full-scale closing of the 20-mile parkway is scheduled for September.

About 85 walkers hiked a mile to qualify for the Blue Cross/Blue Shield "Walk Michigan" drawing. Winners will receive a trip for two to the Straits of Mackinac Labor Day weekend for the bridge walk.

A "baby crawl" drew only a couple of entrants, Chiasson said, so folks organized an impromptu baby stroller grand prix.

"The weather cooperated, the number of families was significant, and I was real pleased," Chiasson said.

Deputy Greg Fiorentino had a pleased stowaway as he patrolled Hines Park Sunday — daughter Amy.

Biking good family activity

Spending quality time with children is becoming increasingly important now as both parents are working, say family life specialists. But how can you find something to do that everyone will enjoy?

Greg Givens, Oakland County 4-H Program associate, suggested that bicycling is an ideal family activity.

"These days, almost everyone has a bike. Kids want one almost as soon as they're able to walk, and adults are buying more bicycles than automobiles each year. Bicycling can be a fun way to spend time together," Givens said.

AMONG HIS suggestions and safety tips:

• Plan outings to visit local attractions, such as a kite-flying festival or a Frisbee tourney. Pack a picnic lunch and spend a whole day.

• Make sure that all your bikes are in good condition so you don't get stranded somewhere.

• Children are better off with three-speed bicycles, rather than single-speed models, because the extra gears enable them to keep up with their longer-legged parents.

• Helmets are important safety gear. Givens points out that 75 percent of all bicycle fatalities are due to head injuries.

• Bike seats, mounted over the rear wheel of a bike, are advisable for youngsters up to 40 pounds who are too young to ride alone. Insure it has foot guards, a seat belt, a headrest and padding.

• Unless youngsters are on their own bikes, they tend to become easily bored. Make frequent stops and vary travel routes.

Use care with those fireworks

With the Fourth of July just around the corner, the Plymouth Fire Department reminds residents to exercise caution when using fireworks.

"In Michigan during 1983, there were 356 reported fires caused by fireworks which resulted in property loss of approximately $286,600," according to Al Matthews, acting fire chief.

During 1982, there were 8,500 firework-related injuries requiring hospital emergency room treatment, according to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission.

"Not all 'D.O.T. Class C' labeled fireworks are legal in Michigan for use by the consumer," Matthews said.

"The only fireworks devices which may be sold at the retail level and used by the general consuming public are restricted to the following:

"Toy paper caps, wire sparklers (size No. 14 or less), flitter sparklers, toy snakes, toy smoke devices, toy trick noise makers, cone fountains and cylinder fountains."

Fireworks other than those noted are illegal for sale and use, unless proper permits are obtained from the local governing body.

"FIREWORKS devices which send a projectile into the air, spin, twirl, or emit an audible report (excluding toy paper caps and toy trick noise makers) are illegal," Matthews said.

If a person is unsure whether a firework is legal they should contact their local fire department, as some communities have ordinances which are more restrictive.

Matthews offers the following safety tips when using fireworks:

- Make sure the fireworks are legal for use — check against state law and municipal ordinance.

- Check for a manufacturer's label on all fireworks and instructions for proper use — illegally manufactured fireworks rarely have either.

- Carefully follow the instructions.

- Provide adult supervision for children and do not allow very young children to handle fireworks.

- Light only one device at a time.

- Ignite fireworks only outdoors and away from buildings and combustible materials.

- Do not attempt to alter the device or use in a manner not intended.

By following the tips, Matthews hopes everyone can have a "safe and legal holiday observance."

Kelly Koch wins local spelling bee

Kelly Koch, eighth grader at Pioneer Middle School, is the best speller in the Plymouth-Canton area.

Kelly was one of eight Plymouth-Canton students who competed Monday, June 3, in a final district spelling bee to determine the school district champion.

To win, she spelled "imperial" correctly, after having correctly spelled "doldrums," the word missed by runner-up Shalini Bahl, ninth grader at East Middle School.

Also representing their grade levels at the competition, televised by Omnicon Cablevision, were: sixth graders Neil Noland from Lowell and Amy Suiter from West; seventh graders Courtney Lemon from Central and Jennifer Harris from Pioneer; eighth graders Scott Haucher from Central and Shani Cowmeadow from West.

THE STUDENTS devoted hours of study to words like "dissimilar, changeable, preferred, hiccups, coliseum, phenomenon, adobe, perpendicular, exigency," and "amulet."

The winners received gift certificates for books of their choice from Merrill's Book Store in Redford Township.

Sixth-grade contestants at the semifinal spelling bee were: Becky Wu and Rebecca Smith from Allen Elementary; Jennifer Machiewicz and Kelvin Chou from Bird Elementary; Jennifer Crowder and Donna Norfleet from Farland Elementary;

Also: Jean Lipscomb and Jeanine Conklin from Hulsing Elementary; Julie Dukas and Shawn Bakewell from Tanger Elementary; Deana Kurdupeki and Kim Jones from East Middle School; Neil Noland and Kim Caldwell from Lowell Middle School; Payal Parekh and David Donald from Pioneer; and Amy Suiter and Amy Brown from West Middle School.

Seventh-grade participants were: Courtney Lemon and Joe Timpko from Central; August Raschke and Pam Kearney from East; Resham Barta and Tina Barchardt from Lowell; Jennifer Harris and Christin Slavin from Pioneer; and Jenny Kath and Chris Antzak from West.

Eighth-grade contestants were: Laura Porterfield and Scott Haucher from Central; Gina Kaplan and Kristen Scheibel from East; Karrie Lancaster and Shawn VanDerziel from Lowell; Brenda Brobst and Kelly Koch from Pioneer; and Denis Seremak and Lori Maul from West.

The evolution of a man to a father

BEFORE KIDS, he used to come home from work, put on the expensive jogging shoes and run his miles. Afterwards, he'd take a leisurely shower and then escort his date out to a candlelight dinner.

The expensive shoes have held up fairly well over the ensuing years. They are taped on the bottom to keep the soles from falling off. Nowadays, however, he rarely even gets a chance to jog.

As for the dinners out, they have been limited to hastily gulped peanut butter sandwiches at Little League games.

Before kids, he was well-groomed and meticulous with his dress. He would spend 30 minutes just blow-drying his hair.

Since that time his hair has become more white than blonde. It is often attacked by cowlick from a coach's baseball cap perched atop his head. The shirts he wears are older than the last two kids.

Before kids, he was an organized, punctual man. Everything had its place and appointments were kept promptly. That was before "spit-up" on his business suit would require a speedy change, making him late again for a dinner meeting.

As for everything having its place, it usually does — in Daddy's briefcase. Even good-intentioned attempts to leave the house early for church are sabotaged by the deadly diaper that cannot avoid being changed.

BEFORE KIDS, he was a carefree, patient soul. Totally unflappable. Now I watch him struggle to control his temper as he explains for the millionth time to his 2-year-old, that crayons are not meant to be used on freshly painted walls.

Before kids, he was a well-rested man. Eight hours of sleep every night left his mind sharp and clear.

Now he staggers through midnight feedings, pacifying young nighttime fears and covering the feverish, cranky child. All of which makes for a foggy, sleep-starved mind that longs for whatever rest the following night may or may not hold.

Before kids, he was a quiet, private man who loved his solitude.

His inner sanctum now is bombarded with children's squabbles and urgent pleas for help in retying the perpetually untied

guest column

sneaker. Even the bathroom is lost as a haven from the distractions and interruptions of four noisy kids.

Before kids, he was well-read. He would devour books, magazines and newspapers.

Now he stores the unread newspapers by the hearth. They are food for the fire and not for his brain. The last book he read was on how to be a good Lamaze coach. The only magazine he's seen lately was four months old and in the pediatrician's waiting room.

BEFORE KIDS, he'd been an unyielding person, sticking to his point of view without concern for the consequences. Now I see him bending to a tiny tyrant's demand for yet another bedtime story.

Before kids, he had a disdain for anything he thought would diminish his masculinity.

Now, he can hang out wash with the best of them. Racquetball has been replaced with bouts at the ironing board. And an apron around his waist isn't the same source of irritation it once had been.

Before kids, he could be a hard-driving, ambitious, unemotional person. But I have seen his eyes fill with anguished tears as he saw his small son in a hospital bed. Often he stops to allow a pair of grubby, sticky hands to hug his neck.

Before kids, I fell in love with this man. He was young, intelligent, handsome and so masculine.

That was 11 years and four kids ago. His masculinity has expanded and grown in its dimension. He is older, heavier and wiser. He's also more loving, impatient, harassed and tired. He is a father. I loved the man before kids. But I love the father even more.

If coaches taught at summer school

ALL across the country these warm afternoons, there is some interesting planning going on in the quiet of college campuses.

It is the coming of the football season, and there are all sorts of methods being taught — not only how to win the big games, but to keep from losing them.

It would be most interesting to listen in on some of these plans because the legendary coaches had unusual lessons for their athletes.

FOR INSTANCE, at the University of Michigan, Fielding H. ("Hurricane") Yost taught one of the most fascinating.

He taught his players never to keep the ball in their own territory. He told them it would be easier if they kicked the ball back deep and let the opponents make mistakes in their own territory.

One afternoon The Stroller had the chance to visit "Hurricane" in his library, and he asked the coach the reason for his unusual plan.

Twisting the ever-present cigar in his mouth, Yost leaned forward very seriously and answered, "Isn't it rather silly to try to buck the ball over from Ypsilanti when the goal posts are in Ann Arbor?"

That was simple enough, and that plan carried Yost to the heights of his profession.

KNUTE ROCKNE at Notre Dame was another favorite. He taught his players a very simple lesson, but one most difficult to perform.

"If every man does his job," he advised the players, "we can score on every play." Rockne made this remark one afternoon in Yankee Stadium in New York.

Playing against the Army in one of the big games, the Irish were trailing at halftime. He talked to the players during intermission, Rockne repeated very seriously, the stroller

W.W. Edgar

does his job, we can win the game."
And that is exactly what happened. His plan brought results.

GUS DORAIS, at the University of Detroit, was the man generally credited with putting the forward pass in football and made good use of the air battles. His U-D team won 22 games in a row in 1927-8 and was given some consideration for the Rose Bowl.

Gus had been told at Minnesota, where he attempted to enroll, that he was too small for college football. That irked him, and he left to enroll at Notre Dame.

There he met Rockne, and each summer they vacationed together — with a football. They worked hours each day and later became the best passing combination in football.

It was their belief that it was better to throw the ball over the line than to try to push their way through the line. It worked.

The forward pass is one of the key plays at U-M. You can always bet that Bo Schembechler will have a passer on his battle front.

THERE WERE other great coaches who had "pet" plans.

Fritz Crisler, at Michigan in the 1940s, liked what he called the "spinner" play, and it worked for a 49-0 victory in the Rose Bowl.

If the fans could listen to some of these lessons, the games in the stadiums on autumn Saturdays could be much more interesting.

GOP moderates still alive

TO HEAR conservatives talk about it, the nation is swinging into right field. The government-hating politics of Ronald Reagan and U.S. Rep. Jack Kemp are attracting majority support, they say, and the middle of the road doesn't exist.

When Spence Abraham, Michigan Republican state chairman, does his polling, he makes folks classify themselves as "conservatives" or "liberals." His data has no place for "moderates."

It's odd to hear that kind of talk in Michigan. A history professor acquaintance of mine used to say that you can't understand Michigan politics unless you grasp the fact that there always have been two Republican parties — moderate and conservative.

Michigan Republicans have been in the moderate camp most decades, as when they nominated Hazen Pingree, Chase Osborn, George Romney and William Milliken for governor and supported Teddy Roosevelt, Dwight Eisenhower and George Bush for presidential nominations.

THERE WAS, to be sure, a predominance of conservative rhetoric at the GOP's leadership conference last weekend in Grand Rapids. But in April there was a different kind of conference when the moderates met at Bay City.

Who's in these groups?
In the conservative camp are Abraham; Richard Headlee, the 1982 gubernatorial standard bearer; John Engler, state Senate majority leader; and most of the local state senators — Bob Geake of Northville, Rick Fessler of West Bloomfield, Rudy Nichols of Waterford and Doug Cruce of Troy.

Tim Richard

In the moderate camp are Congressmen Carl Pursell of Plymouth and Paul Henry of Grand Rapids, state Sen. Harry DeMaso of Battle Creek and a fairly new batch of suburban state representatives — Lyn Bankes of Livonia, David Honigman of West Bloomfield, Shirley Johnson of Royal Oak and Judith Miller of Birmingham.

WHAT ARE their philosophies? At the risk of oversimplifying, I would say: Conservatives see government as an enemy. "Get government off our backs and out of our pockets."

Moderates see government as a positive tool of economic progress. See Alexander Hamilton's "Report on the Manufactures."

Liberals see government as the regulator of private greed and as the successor to church and family in taking care of the needy. In liberal conversation, "corporation" is a dirty word.

HOW CAN YOU tell them apart in Michigan?

• Balanced budget amendment: Conservatives back it by way of a federal constitutional amendment. Moderates abhor the con-con.

• State tax hike of '83: Conservatives opposed any increase. Moderates saw the need but would have preferred a smaller hike for a shorter period. (The question never came to a roll call vote.)

• Equal Rights Amendment: Conservatives shun it. Moderates favor it, just as moderate Gov. Chase S. Osborn was for the women's vote back in 1910.

• Urban sprawl: Conservatives never use the word and support Michigan Townships Association bills. Moderates want to preserve cities, sometimes including Detroit.

• Death penalty: Conservatives favor it enthusiastically. Moderates will either waffle or oppose it.

Rarely will you find a Michigan Republican politician in either camp 100 percent. But most have one tendency or the other.

The point is that moderates have been flourishing in Michigan Republicanism for the better part of a century. If conservatives think the moderates have evaporated, they have another thought coming.

Part-time legislature is here

IN ADDITION to hustling petitions for the death penalty, Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson has taken to the stump to promote a part-time Legislature.

State Rep. Tom Power, R- Traverse City, and other outstate legislators have started a petition drive to put a part-time legislature proposal on the ballot. Needing 376,000 signatures, they think they can make it by the November 1988 election.

Patterson, eloquent as usual, spoke to the Livonia Chamber of Commerce recently to promote the idea. Patterson suggested that there are now too many people in the Legislature who don't know enough about business and about people and too many lawyers.

The prosecutor thinks that part-time legislators should spend more time with "the people" back home and less time with other legislators.

AGREEING WITH the prosecutor is not always easy, but this time we disagree more on the fine points of his argument.

The part-time legislature is already here, even though Michigan is listed as one of five in the country which has a full-time legislature.

Our Legislature takes breaks all year long. Lawmakers start work late in January, break for Easter and break for the summer. This year's break will start in a few days and run until Sept. 10 — not bad for a full-time body. The lawmakers also have Christmas breaks and Mackinac Island conference breaks.

In an election year — every other year for state representatives — the lawmakers break to campaign for re-election to their full-time jobs. That means the summer break extends until November. Their full-time jobs, by the way, pay $33,000 a year, highest rate in the country.

SOME WILL tell you that lawmakers need to have long and frequent breaks in order to spend time among constituents back home, learning what their problems are and attempting to help them.

Foey. If you see a legislator back in the home district, it is at a picnic or barbeque, and he is walking around introducing himself to those he hasn't already met and making sure that his tax-paid informational literature is delivered to the right mail box.

After all, the real business of the Legislature isn't solving problems but getting re-elected.

Patterson is on target in saying that if you have a Legislature which is titled "part-time" with reduced part-time pay, the members thereof will worry less about being re-elected. They won't mind losing a $16,000-a-year part-time salary so they will spend their time getting things done rather than politicking and socializing.

THERE ARE pitfalls even there, however. With people paid part-time wages, you will get more rather than fewer lawyers (they will be looking in Lansing for clients), business owners who can afford to be away from their primary job and employees whose companies and agencies like to have a say in deciding how state government is run.

Worse yet, you might get people who will be part-time legislators at full-time pay. Any state Legislature worth its salt knows how to create a compensation commission which will be glad to boost a part-time legislator's salary into full-time pay, even though the supposed amount of hours spent on the job are greatly reduced.

If you want to know how that works, look at the Wayne County Commission.

Reps split along party lines on nerve gas OK

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes June 13-19.

HOUSE

NERVE GAS — The House approved, 229-196, an amendment to retain $124.5 million in nerve-gas funding in the fiscal 1986 Defense Department budget.

Because it followed Senate approval of new funding for chemical weaponry, the vote indicated the U.S. will end its 16-year moratorium on nerve gas production.

However, the House stipulated that production cannot be resumed until fiscal 1987 and that certain conditions will have to be met.

The new gas would be binary, consisting of relatively impotent chemicals that become lethal only when combined during warfare. Existing nerve gas stocks already are toxic.

Supporter Richard Ray, D-Ga., said "failure to modernize our offensive chemical warfare capability amounts to unilateral disarmament."

Foe John Porter, R-Ill., said America's existing nerve gas stockpile already is "a sufficient chemical deterrent" against Soviet use of the weapon.

Members voting yes wanted the U.S. to resume nerve gas production.

Voting yes: Republicans Carl Pursell of Plymouth and William Broomfield of Birmingham.

Voting no: Democrats Dennis Hertel of Harper Woods, William Ford of Taylor and Sander Levin of Southfield.

MX — By a tally of 233 for and 184 against, the House defied President Reagan and voted to limit to 40 the number of MX missiles that can be ultimately deployed. The vote occurred as the House debated the 1986 Pentagon budget (HR 1872).

rollcall report

Reagan originally wanted 100 MX's for basing in existing, though reinforced, Minuteman silos in western states. He reluctantly agreed earlier this year to a Senate-approved limit of 50 copies, which will have to be reconciled in conference with the House's cap of 40.

The 10-warhead MX is America's next-generation land-based missile, replacing the Minuteman. Early next decade, it is to be supplanted by the more mobile, single-warhead Midgetman.

Members voting yes wanted to limit MX production to 40 missiles.

Voting yes: Pursell, Hertel, William Ford, Levin.

Voting no: Broomfield.

FAMILY PLANNING — By a vote of 214 for and 197 against, the House failed to pass a bill extending for three years a program that provides family planning advice and services to the poor. The 15-year-old program is administered by state and local governments mainly at hospital outpatient clinics.

A two-thirds vote was needed for passage because of the way the bill was debated.

None of the $454 million authorized by the bill (HR 2369) was to have been spent on abortions.

Supporter Henry Waxman, D-Calif., said the program helps teen-agers to avert pregnancies and pregnant women to receive adequate prenatal care.

No opponent spoke against the bill.

Members voting yes wanted to extend the federal government's main family planning program.

Voting yes: Pursell, Ford and Levin.

Voting no: Hertel and William Broomfield.

SENATE

SALT — By a vote of 79 for and 17 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment to thwart President Reagan's plan with respect to U.S. compliance with the SALT II arms control treaty.

Reagan wants to dismantle a Poseidon nuclear submarine to keep the U.S. within SALT II limitations. The amendment sought to knock $21 million in dismantlement money out of a 1985 appropriations bill (HR 2577) that was headed for final passage and conference with the House.

Although the U.S. has not ratified

SALT II and the Soviets repeatedly have violated it, Reagan says he wants to comply with the treaty in hopes of achieving success during the new round of American-Soviet arms control talks.

Senators voting yes wanted to kill the amendment. Voting yes were Michigan Democrats Carl Levin and Donald Riegle.

OIL — By a vote of 44 for and 55 against, the Senate refused to create a federal program aimed at cushioning the chaos likely to result if there is another cut-off of Mideast oil exports to the U.S.

The amendment would have authorized the payment of block grants to states in the event of another oil-supply crisis. The states would use the money to counter disruptions caused by the sudden surge in oil prices.

Sponsor Bill Bradley, D-N.J., said the government must prepare now to respond "to the panic, to the chaos, to the rush to gas stations, to the suffering that will accompany the next oil supply disruption."

Opponent James McClure, R-Idaho, said it would be unwise to simply "write out checks to 50 state governors."

Levin and Riegle voted yes.

BARBARA CARPENTER, city of Plymouth's meter maid for the past six years, has mixed feelings about leaving town. She and her husband, Jack, will be on their way to their new home in Plano, Texas, in less than two weeks. Jack was transferred to Texas by his company and has been down there for some time.

The Carpenters will be living four miles from Southfork and Barb's former cohorts at City Hall have been making all sorts of comments. They said they'll be looking for blue chalk marks on JR's tires when "Dallas" returns in the fall. There also was the suggestion that she may be JR's new love interest.

During her 14 years in Plymouth, Barb was involved in the community through her children and their schools and as a volunteer probation officer. She was a "doughnut lady," one of a group who collected day-old doughnuts from the bakery and delivered them to the needy.

And they'll miss Barb when the next arts council follies is produced. Her effervescent stage presence has become a tradition in the biennial musical revues.

We all wish her well and if you're ever down Plano, Texas, way, stop in at the Carpenters. With one son getting married and a daughter away at college, Barb says they will be right back where they started. Just the two of them.

JANE KUHN'S of Plymouth is vice president of membership for the Children's Hospital of Michigan Auxiliary. She was among the eight officers for the 1985-86 term installed at the annual luncheon meeting at the Detroit Golf Club.

The auxiliary provides services and financial assistance to the hospital. A check for $60,000 was presented to hospital president Paul L. Broughton at the luncheon. The group raised the money through its annual sale of Christmas cards, a resale, its "Cuisine Extraordinaire" and hospital gift shop sales.

ONE WEEK at Lake Huron and it didn't take long to lure the birds back to the feeding station with whole wheat bread crumbs. It was interesting to watch the parents with their young birds, now almost full-grown. The parents' patience was remarkable.

A brown thrasher was showing her offspring how to whip through the sand with her beak, in search of food. The doltish youngster just sat, paying no attention to its parent's efforts, wouldn't even look in her direction until she came close by. Then it opened its mouth to be fed.

A blackbird left its kid under a low branch and told it to stay there. The parent came to the feeding station and crammed its mouth with crumbs. Every time the adult returned, the youngster had wandered out into the open. The parent was determined not to feed it until it was back under the branch. It took a lot of patience and time to get it under cover.

Once I added some shredded dry cheese to the crumbs. The brown thrashers loved the cheese and wouldn't touch the crumbs until it was gone.

There wasn't a blue jay around this year. But a couple of male red winged black birds were regulars. They weren't too friendly toward each other. The chipmunk was back as well as those little red squirrels with their bushy tails. They are about six inches high, when sitting, and can leap amazing distances from branch to branch when they're up in the trees. These are full-grown adults. Must get a squirrel book and find out what kind they are.

Art of auctioneering is the rhythm

By Penny Wright
special writer

The essence of an auction? Plymouth auctioneer John Whalen replies, "Speed."

Speed is one of the most important things about an auction. Speed promotes spontaneity, excitement and keeps things moving.

"Take a chant. You couldn't get the speed by saying '10, 15, 20.' What helps with the speed are the fillers to get the rhythm going." He illustrates with a tongue-twisting sing-song.

"Ladies and gentlemen, we have a cup, a white one, and a beauty, what are you going to give for it, tell me what you're going to pay for it, here we go, 10, 15, five, five, want to bid 15, 15, what about 20, 20, can we make it 25?"

"There is a lot of showmanship involved," he adds with eyes twinkling.

JOHN WHALEN appears to have his auction showmanship under control. Sporting an honest smile, homey drawl and attired in Western-style boots, he has successfully wooed auction audiences into buying thousands of dollars worth of merchandise.

Surprisingly, Whalen is a newcomer to the profession of auctioneering.

"He was always selling things — for as long as I can remember," laughed Cathy Whalen. She ticked off a long list of automobiles, tractors and farm equipment that passed through her husband's hands over the years.

"When it reached the point where we could no longer sell in front of the house, I suggested he go to auctioneering school."

Whalen, a Foodland manager in Livonia, followed his wife's suggestion and enrolled at the Ruppert School of Auctioneering in Decatur, Ind.

"Up until the day I arrived, I insisted I shouldn't be there. Once at the school, I didn't want to turn back," he said.

He admits there was more to learning the art of auctioneering than he thought.

Hours of classwork along with on-the-job training as apprentice to seasoned auctioneers were requirements for certification. Whalen has continued to learn through seminars and professional conventions.

NOW IN HIS third year of auctioneering, his part-time auction business is a family affair.

In addition to recording auction transactions, Cathy Whalen handles the details of conducting a sale including appraisal, advertising, settling up and bookkeeping. Their children, Ann and Tom, have auction assignments that often keep them working alongside their parents for long hours.

"My plan is to get into the business full time, sometime in the future," Whalen said.

He noted the profession has evolved over the years into a recognized career. Vocational schools around the country provide in-depth training to potential auctioneers.

Professional organizations such as the National Auctioneers Association and Michigan State Auctions Association promote continued education, professionalism and business integrity.

WHALEN PREDICTS within a year or two, Michigan will follow the lead of Ohio and Indiana and begin requiring licenses for practicing auctioneers.

"Such a law will help weed out unprofessional auctioneers. It's like any profession; if you abuse the system, you won't last."

Cathy believes the concept of auctions is changing. Though the auction is a selling method dating back to ancient Babylon, she said some people still associate auctions with bankruptcy proceedings or charities.

"I think more people are recognizing anybody can use auctions to sell items quickly," she said.

At the recent Bissey auction in Wayne, John Whalen sold out a diverse array of tools, appliances and household miscellanea in quick succession. He noted garage sales that day at neighboring homes were far from sold out.

ITEMS MOVE more quickly at auction due to competitive bidding, he observed.

"Competitive bidding at auction can't be beat. Human nature responds to the gambling aspect of bidding. It often reaches the point, when two people are bidding, that the object becomes unimportant and the bidding becomes a personal thing."

Whalen said, "At auction, the limit is what a person is willing to pay. The seller often gains because more people are bidding." In one-to-one selling (private treaty), the buyer often will negotiate the price down.

Buyers can get bargains at auctions.

"My main objective is to sell the merchandise for as much as I can and as fast as I can. If I feel we're going into a lull, I snap off an item and sell it real cheap."

The bottom line is the important part. "Some items go for more, some for less."

THE WHALENS say auctions are more popular in other states. They believe people in Michigan aren't as auction oriented.

Whalen makes every effort to change the trend.

"I'll try every way possible to sell something to a new auction-goer. Once you break that ice, they get a this-is-neat look and you're rolling."

He listed some tips for auction-goers: Come early to look over the merchandise, plan ahead and decide what you will pay for an item, and pay attention.

Whalen confided that the first number mentioned in his sing-song generally is the approximate value of the item. He works down from that price to give people time to get ready, then starts going up in the bidding.

Ann Whalen holds up items from a box of odds and ends as her father auctions them off. Sorting through odd lots for treasures is an exciting feature of sales for auction habitués.

Bidder ups his offer to $200 on an air conditioner.

This is the promised "rest of the story" about the Country Festival. However, let me make a very important point. It is very critical that the festival committee know how you feel about the festival.

If you were particularly fond of something, it is important to let a member know. You may tell more than one member, but I beg you to refrain from trying to stack the deck, or stuff the ballot box, as it were. Each event is considered each year for return privileges, especially this year, when weather was a problem. If your event didn't gather a crowd, and nobody mentioned it to the committee members, or even worse, if it was being questioned as to its popularity already, this could be a deadly combination.

So, if you love something, let them know. If you hate something, let them know. But remember, each member doesn't always love everything either. There is no need to bite their head off because you didn't like this or that. Simply state your case, they'll tally the remarks and make decisions accordingly.

If you have any ideas, don't hesitate to turn them in. If it sounds good, who knows, you may see it next year.

Finally, as always, the committee is in need of new members. We all know this community is working very hard to become just that — a community. We simply must not continue to rely on the same people to do all the work all the time. As many of you know, you meet the same people at every committee meeting.

THIS IS NO longer a situation handled by the "mothers that stay at home." For one thing, more and more mothers cannot afford to stay at home. Furthermore, those that do are overburdened now raising everyone else's children, and handling committees.

In reality, many committees are now in the hands of "full-time, employed" residents. Should these groups fall apart, your community will become less desirable to live in, resulting in a drop in real-estate values and eventually more business losses and boarded-up buildings. Before you know it, you'll have a lot of money invested in the "Canton Slums."

Why? Because you couldn't find the time to join one little committee to keep your community alive. How's that for pressure? What good will your two incomes do then? You won't be able to sell your home to move. The schools will close, and your children will not get an education, then they'll have to live with you, forever. They'll be too stupid to get a job! You'll have to quit work to take care of your grandchildren since their parents are always gone somewhere, supposedly looking for a job. And why? Because YOU couldn't find the time to join one simple committee.

Boy, it's amazing how I can turn a nice little thriving community into a dump in two paragraphs. So let's get out there and join a committee.

NOW, ON A LIGHTER note, The Cabbage Patch competition was a great success.

First time out and very popular, the tent was filled with talented Cabbage Patcher kids and their parents. With two categories, fashion and talent, it was a very busy afternoon.

I did have one complaint, I couldn't see. Other than that, it was wonderful. Naturally I would have enjoyed getting to know them better, but you know how those beauty contests go.

Believe me, if you're looking for entertainment, don't miss this next year. Every little girl or big girl, will be working all year for this next one.

The costumes were unbelievable and I assume next year will be even more impressive. We learn each year, and this year we learned that Cabbage Patch Kids look great in sequins. So do their parents. I still do not have a Cabbage Patch Kid. My daughter has one, Marcia Suzy. I hope to get one with blond hair, curly on the sides, double pony tails, and a pacifier, naturally. Not that I have been looking, mind you. But you might keep your eyes peeled for Sandy, and her amazing columnist Cabbage Patch, the typing Cabbage Patch Kid.

THAT WAS NOT the only pageant. We must not forget the "Cow Chip Queen." I was proud to be one of the judges along with Aaron Machnik, Shirley Winkel, Ray Schultz and Art Winkel.

What a job we had. Never have more qualified, lovely gals assembled for this honor.

But pick we must, and we decided on a dandy.

"Queen Ginny," a born and bred farm girl with years of experience herding the little darlins. She jumped at the chance to be a part of her own past, returning to the "old sod," so to speak. Active in Scouting, a 4-H leader for six years, and active worker for the Heart Association in Ohio, Ginny even did substitute teaching for a number of years. She is a floral designer and has all who applied, especially those finalists called for interviews, and, naturally, the Queen and her Court. Nice going!

TALK ABOUT good nature, did you ever see a trustee on a donkey?

Now, about dignity. I guess if you've got it, you've got it. No cow chip or donkey can take it away, and, Canton, we've got it.

Now 50 of you go volunteer for a committee.

There were other applicants, all perfect for the job, all with the right attitudes. Each will probably outlive us all because of their good nature, but we had to pick a Queen and her Court, and we picked some dandies. Our thanks to had an opportunity to work part time in several flower shops. She has her own business, sewing products for several cross stitch shops in the area.

All this during her spare time as she raised two lovely girls, Karen and Joy, now all grown up and graduated from college. Both girls, by the way, live in Ohio and came up for their Mom's big day.

Her husband, Ted, is assistant pastor at St. Michael Lutheran Church on Sheldon Road. Now if that doesn't lend an element of dignity to our event, I don't know what will.

Ginny could be found smiling all weekend all around the festival. She enjoyed her reign and wore her crown proudly. My heartfelt congratulations to a wonderful queen.

Make no mistake, Ginny had some stiff competition. A candidate who works in the adult education program at Plymouth Canton High School, won our hearts even before she even entered the room. On her application, she used the term "Canton/Plymouth area; and Canton High School." With this pro-Canton attitude, we were thrilled to see her come bounding in with a "South Dakota Lollipop," and a straw hat. Dressed the part and displaying a warm, let's-have-fun attitude, she proceeded to tell us how she shucks "chips" and gives them out as prizes at various gatherings. Mary Nalepka hails from South Dakota and has now declared her S.D. lollipop a Canton lollipop.

Last, but not least, was Jean Berry. Born raised in London, England, and every bit the country lady, as stated in her application, she longed for the pomp and circumstance of royalty and felt this fit the bill. Believe it or not, she gave her phone number with the notation for "any udder information."

"Kathy's family needed hope."

A young mother with a serious illness. Her family in crisis. They came to Harper Hospital and found new hope. They learned that Harper is a university-based research and teaching hospital. A place where scientists work alongside physicians, transforming discovery into treatment. They found that Harper concentrates on the tough adult cases in cancer, heart disease and serious vision disorders.

Patients like Kathy come to Harper Hospital at the Medical Center with confidence. They come because Harper is a major participant, together with the Sloan-Kettering Institute in New York and the M.D. Anderson Tumor Institute in Houston, in America's network of only twenty Comprehensive Cancer Centers. Patients know that if the diagnosis is cancer, there is no better place to be than Harper Hospital. And they come with confidence because the Kresge Eye Institute is at Harper Hospital. This important Medical Center resource is devoted exclusively to the problems of vision. And through its research and clinical work, the Kresge Eye Institute gives new hope to millions with impaired vision throughout the world.

Harper is hope for heart patients, too. Its large scale, nationally recognized program brings together research, teaching, surgery and medicine. More open heart surgeries are performed each year at Harper than are performed at any other hospital in Michigan. But of more significance is the growing number of heart patients Harper is able to treat successfully each year without surgery.

For Kathy and her family. For you and your family, Harper Hospital is Research. Science. Hope and Healing.

Missionary invites Koreans to church

By Dennis Coffman
staff writer

Canton has been sounding more Asian in recent years, and not just because its name is the same as a city in China. The township, with its Main Street Baptist Church, has been a kind of sanctuary for South Koreans who have relocated to the United States.
The church, through a stipend from the Southern Baptist Church Home Mission Board, is able to provide the missionary services of Mary Kim, herself a transplanted South Korean.
Kim is one of 8,500 Baptist missionaries (3,500 serve abroad, the rest in the United States) who spread the Gospel.
She conducts Bible classes in Korean at the homes of Koreans (there are 30 known Korean families in Canton) three days a week and in the church every Sunday.
"During the recession, they had plenty of time to come to services," said Kim.
"But lately, since they have been back to work, they have often been too tired to care about the spiritual life. Koreans have been through many trials in their lives. They are a very industrious people. So now that there are jobs, they work 14 hours a day, mainly as laborers."
The Main Street Baptist Church motto is "Laborers Together with God," and it seems to apply very well to the work the church is doing with the Koreans.

KIM WAS in similar circumstances when she arrived in the United States 12 years ago, although religion was one of her primary reasons for leaving South Korea and moving to Los Angeles.
She had been working as a secretary for an export company in South Korea when she spotted a classified ad for a secretary for Continental Airlines in Saigon, South Vietnam.
The situation was too tempting to resist: $450 monthly in salary and $500 in living expenses — a veritable fortune in Saigon.
Today, she works for the church for $500 a month, out of which she must provide for her own living expenses.
"Twelve years ago I became a Christian," she said. "Before that, I loved the money."
Her family became Christians after it lost everything following the Korean War. Billy Graham was taking his crusade to South Korea and it had an impact on families like Kim's.
According to her, South Korea remains predominantly Buddhist, but Christianity is making inroads.
She said that today, 40-50 percent of South Koreans are Christians.
"Christianity is getting stronger and stronger," said Kim. "But 100 years ago, it was dangerous to be a Christian missionary."
Kim said she believes more Koreans

SHE CAME to the United States to study 15 years ago, but returned to Korea when her family arranged a marriage between her and a doctor.
"Although a Christian, I loved the worldly things," she said. "I married him, but wanted to come to the United States. I divorced him and returned to the United States in 1973."
Kim worked as a church secretary in the extremely active Barendo Street Baptist Church in Los Angeles, then obtained her bachelor's and master's degrees.
She stayed in Los Angeles until 1980, when she went to Fort Worth, Texas, for four years to study at a seminary, then came to Canton in January 1985.
"I have been trying to contact Koreans," she said. "It was easier during the recession, when they had more time. But now, most of them work seven days and save. They want to stay here. They don't want to go back to Korea."
It's difficult for South Koreans to come to the United States because of a tight quota system. There is a long waiting list.
Kim said she plans to try to reach Korean students at area colleges, such as Eastern Michigan University. Most of the students, here only temporarily, are Buddhist and can find places of worship locally (there is a Buddhist Temple in Novi).
Kim said she believes more Koreans

Mary Kim

will turn to Christianity. "The fire is spreading," she said.
Most Korean Christians are either Presbyterian or Catholic, she said. "I am the only Baptist in my family."
Her sister, who recently arrived in Pennsylvania, is a Presbyterian.
Before Christianity, the family had followed Confucianism.
Kim plans to continue to try to obtain the names of Koreans in the area, visit them and invite them to church, where services are held in Korean.
"I want to spread the word that a church is here," she said. "I work for the Lord and the Lord supplies my needs."

Church artifacts at museum

Two exhibits featuring artifacts of the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth have been placed on display at the Plymouth Historical Museum.

One contains a variety of old documents and photos of people and events in the history of the church.

The other contains a quilt made in the early 1930s and presented by the Women's Association to Anne Nichol, wife of the Rev. Walter Nichol, pastor of the church from 1926 to 1943.

Embroidered on the quilt are the names of many of the women who were members of the church at that time.

The display was put together by Doris Richard, a member of the church and of the Plymouth Historical Society. Sam Hudson, whose history of the church is due from the printers in mid-July, said the Presbyterian Society first met here in 1833.

The first resident minister did not arrive, and the first church was not built, until 1835, however, and that is the date used in setting 1985 as the 150th anniversary of the church, which has stood on the same site throughout its existence.

Judy Morgan, chairman of the church's 150th anniversary committee, said the museum display is part of an ongoing series of events which will culminate in festivities on the church lawn after morning services July 14.

Non-heroics separate he-men from he-boys

MALNESS IN AMERICA has traditionally been defined in terms of strength, and strength itself has generally been defined in terms of toughness. Despite the lessons we learned in elementary school, the classical American hero is not Benjamin Franklin or Abraham Lincoln.

Our prototype hero is more likely a figure like Billy the Kid, the grinning gunslinger who mows down his enemies without a remorseful wince or the merest whisper of regret. He stands aloof, aloof, above the striving and the stress of human emotion.

Our fast-shooting, slow-talking hero has been updated in recent years, but alterations in his appearance seem to have changed little else in him. He remains the same — decade after decade, movie after movie, TV series after TV series.

He has come to us as: the man in the uniform, protecting his country in a jet fighter in the lonely duel at 40,000 feet; the football hero surrounded by a huddle of admiring coeds; the police detective who manages to protect society by spraying bullets in the direction of his enemies; the former G.I. who returns to Vietnam in a valiant effort to annihilate the wicked and rescue the oppressed.

THESE POPULAR images reveal something to us about ourselves which is disturbing and unsettling. In our gallery of hero imagery, there are few suggestions of compassion, tenderness or spiritual depth. Males appear as flawless models of physical strength. There comes a time when we must ask ourselves whether this definition of maleness should be our definition.

There is ample psychological evidence to show that man who expresses himself as hunters, killers, and risk-takers are not always the people who show bravery in life's more meaningful moments, or who possess an authentic inner strength.

The most difficult bravery is moral bravery. After all, there are bullies who are really cowards and the capacity to kill another human moral perspectives

Rabbi Irwin Groner

being is not a sign of moral achievement.

In his book, "Courage," General Slim, who had commanded Allied Forces in Burma during World War II writes: "Moral courage is much higher and rarer than physical courage; women and civilians often exhibit more courage of this kind than the bravest combatants."

AS THE hostage drama continues to unfold, I would nominate for courage and bravery the men and women who have endured and are continuing now to endure the terror of their captivity. The hijackers, with their guns and grenades, are despicable and worthy only of contempt.

It is not easy to be courageous, as was the stewardess on the plane who challenged the hijackers, when one is defenseless and vulnerable.

Unfortunately, our modern definition of masculine strength is centered on the exercise of physical, not spiritual, prowess. Actually, true heroism should not always be pictured as the result of the spectacular feats of the sportsmen, outdoorsmen, policemen, or even soldiers in battle.

In the deepest sense, true heroism is demonstrated by the man who lives up to his personal obligations and his highest responsibilities in a consistent and exemplary manner. He meets the challenge of moral temptation with the integrity that comes from spiritual courage.

SYDNEY HARRIS, in his book "On The Contrary" puts it this way: "Being a man has little to do with stalking deer in a woods or shooting ducks in a blind; these are . . . not tokens of manhood.

But continuing to work when you are tired, assuming duties when you would rather loll, making sure the nest is safe and warm and that the future holds promise of continuity and growth — these are the unrelenting demands modern society makes upon its grown men.

How well and how willingly we measure up to these demands — non-heroic in a dramatic sense, but more difficult in many ways — is a more accurate criterion for separating the he-men from the he-boys."

Wayne: big county

Big is the word for Wayne County.

It is the third largest in the country, is the home of the world's largest industrial corporation (GM) and the largest industrial labor union (UAW), and is anchored by the country's sixth largest city (Detroit).

It is the builder of 160 miles of expressway, maintainer of 4,380 miles of county roads and creator of 4,450 acres of public parks.

It is bounded on the west by Washtenaw County at Napier and Rawsonville roads, on the north by Oakland and Macomb counties at Eight Mile Road, on the southeast by the Detroit River, and on the south by the Huron River and Monroe County. Several islands, including Belle Isle and Grosse Ile, are also part of the county.

EIGHT MILE is also known as Base Line Road because surveyors used it as the "base line" when establishing the size and shape of Michigan's other counties in the early 19th century.

Drained by the Rouge River system, Wayne County is relatively flat. The land slopes in a southeasterly direction toward the Detroit River from a high point of 980 feet above sea level on the Maybury Sanatorium property west of Northville to a low of 570 feet at Pte. Moullie, where the Huron River enters Lake Erie.

Excellent for agriculture, the soil is a mixture of sand, silt and clay — lakebed sediments left by a series of glacial lakes. These were formed 18,000 years ago. Underlying this are great beds of salt formed early in geologic time.

Area softball: finesse and fire

Youth soccer clubs war for local talent

YOUTH SOCCER is beginning to show its ugly side.

Ten years ago the sport was played for fun and exercise, but now parents have ruined the sport like they did little league baseball and little league hockey.

Winning is everything these days, and it's no more evident than in Livonia, where soccer is becoming big business.

Drive past Bicentennial Park any weeknight or cruise by Schoolcraft College on a weekend and you'll get the picture — soccer galore and more.

How popular is soccer in this area?

When the sixth annual Wolverine VI Tournament is held Fourth of July weekend at Schoolcraft, nearly 230 teams and 4,000 players from across the Midwest and Ontario will participate. Last year an estimated 12,000 attended the three-day extravaganza.

Youths in western Wayne County are playing soccer in record numbers, but unfortunately the policing and governing of youth leagues is far behind, leaving the job to soccer clubs and parents with self-serving interests.

THE U.S. YOUTH Soccer Association is the national governing body with the Michigan State Youth Soccer Association (MSYSA) its subsidiary.

These organizations have jurisdiction over state, regional and national tournaments, but rarely get involved on a local level.

This is only the start of the problems.

Children in these parts have become semi-free agents, with youth soccer clubs and leagues bidding aggressively for their services.

During the past two months, this sports department has been under siege from various clubs with announcements about registration and tryouts for the fall season.

"We're definitely in competition with other clubs," admitted Ruth Dober, secretary of the Livonia Youth Soccer Club (LYSC), incorporated in 1977.

The LYSC sponsors a team for each age group in the Bonanza League, which was formed to develop the elite talent. LYSC members also play in the Great Lakes Soccer League.

THEIR CHIEF competitor is the Livonia YMCA, which started in-house leagues during the early 1970's and has since sent teams into the Western Suburban Soccer League and Bonanza.

Further competition for players has evolved with the advent of open teams, which participate in Bonanza. Even a Dearborn Heights-based club called Vardar has gotten into the act, recruiting players from as far away as Dearborn.

Recreation departments run youth soccer programs in Garden City and Plymouth-Canton, but Livonia has stayed clear, letting the Livonia Y and LYSC run its own show using city-owned fields.

The fierce competition among these clubs in procuring players has reached the ridiculous stage in my opinion.

Trying to outdo each other, youth soccer clubs have resorted to using display ads in the newspaper to announce tryout times for greater visibility. They've also resorted to going to the news department because our Sports Shorts feature, where these items belong, apparently doesn't meet their needs.

THESE PEOPLE are seeking preferential treatment and it's about time they learn that they carry no more weight than the little league baseball people, the swim club people and the junior hockey people.

I've tried to be as accommodating as possible, but no matter what I do, nothing ever seems to be satisfactory.

The pressure on this sports department by the youth soccer people is enormous, but can you imagine what pressure is being placed on these kids, some as young as eight years old?

The competition for players has harbored bad feelings among these clubs. Several complaints were lodged last year through this newspaper against the Vardar group, but I get the feeling that it goes beyond a few tournaments. The bad blood runs deep.

So what's the solution?

I'm inviting the soccer people to write letters to the editor to express their opinions about the state of youth soccer in this area — pro and con.

PETE SCERRI, the successful boys soccer coach at Livonia Stevenson, told me last fall that soccer will become a better game when today's generation of players becomes the coaches and the referees of tomorrow.

He says there are not enough qualified Americans coaching or officiating at the present time.

When more qualified coaches are groomed, the less parents become involved and the better off the sport is.

That's not to say that parents are not qualified to coach their own kids, but looking at the established elite youth programs in baseball, hockey and swimming, many continue to coach long after their sons and daughters have grown up.

The people covering the sport should keep pace as well.

I'll be the first to admit that I never played organized soccer. It wasn't available when I was growing up.

BUT I'VE TRIED to get out and watch summer tournaments, cover high school games and follow the pros worldwide via television.

One thing I've learned, however, over the years Youth Soccer, especially in this area, needs to straighten up its act.

DAN DEAN/staff photographer

The season may have ended unhappily for Franklin hurler Tracy Lectka, being consoled by her father Ron Lectka after losing in the state finals, but it was filled with many triumphs along the way.

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

IT WAS THE year of the change-up in Observerland softball.

Tracy Lectka, a junior, catapulted Livonia Franklin to the state finals with a deceptive variety of pitches, the most devastating being a pokey change of pace.

Though the Pats, champions of the Northwest Suburban League, lost the title game to L'Anse Creuse, they clearly established themselves as Observerland's top team and a bonafide state power.

There were two state powers in the area; the other being Livonia Stevenson. The Spartans, champions of the Western Lakes, were ranked among the state's top 10 most of the year — their biggest nemesis being Franklin.

Lectka out-twirled Stevenson fireballer Lisa Bokovoy three times this season — the last time coming in the state district tournament.

Other teams illuminating the area diamonds this season were Garden City, who, speaking of change-ups, went from 0-13 last year to 16-4 this year. Plymouth Salem, a perennial area power under coach Rob Willette, finished second in the Western Lakes with a 19-5 record.

Observerland coaches gathered recently and selected the 1985 All-Area Softball Team.

PITCHERS

Lisa Bokovoy, senior, Livonia Stevenson: There has not been a more dominant figure on the area softball scene the last three years than this young woman. In her three years, she has tossed 10 no-hitters and two perfect games, racking up a 52-9 won-lost record. She has a career ERA of 0.80 with 490 strikeouts in 410 innings. This season she was 15-4 with a 0.41 ERA. She fanned 181 in 118 innings. She also was an asset at bat, compiling a .390 career average (.349 this season). She will attend the University of Kentucky on a volleyball scholarship.

Tracy Lectka, junior, Livonia Franklin: A direct contrast in pitching style to Bokovoy, but no less effective. Where Bokovoy is overpowering, Lectka is crafty, sneaky. Lectka compiled a 22-3 record with a 0.67 ERA. She struck out 168 in 178 innings (through the state regional finals). The true measure of Lectka is her performances in clutch situations — like the four shutouts she fired in state tournament play. She also helped her team with her glove and bat (.368).

all-area softball

CATCHER

Jill Phillips, senior, Livonia Franklin: A prototype catcher, big, strong, a team leader. Phillips gave Franklin many clutch hits (25 RBI) and occasional power. She hit .308 with a double, two triples and a home run. In 26 games, she didn't yield a passed ball and she gunned down 12 of 20 attempted base stealers.

INFIELD

Chris Bruce, senior, Redford Thurston: Bruce just missed making first-team All-Area last season and her .554 batting average made her a lock this year. The solid fielding first baseman knocked in 21 runs with five doubles, six triples and four home runs. She was a three-year starter for Ron Lectka's team.

Carolyn Smith, senior, Livonia Franklin: If Lectka was the heart of the Franklin team, Smith had to be the guts and glue. She is perhaps the best all-around softball player in the area. She made only one error in 27 games at second base. She hit .421, scored 27 runs, knocked in 16 more and stole 23 bases. She struck out only once in 102 at-bats. She will be attending the University of Detroit on a softball scholarship.

Joan Frysinger, senior, Livonia Stevenson: For two seasons, this 6-foot shortstop has covered the left side of the Stevenson infield like a blanket. In 15 games, she made but two errors. She was also one of coach Lee Cagle's most consistent hitters with a .311 average. More importantly, she carried a .535 on base percentage.

Karen Crespi, junior, St. Agatha: A three-year starter in her junior year.

Hawks claim regional title

The Livonia Hawks under-16 girls soccer team is singing "Rocky Mountain High" these days after capturing the Midwest Regional Tournament last weekend in Burnsville, Minn.

The Hawks, coached by Paul Dugan, swept five opponents en route to the crown, thus qualifying for the Nationals July 17-19 in Denver, Col.

"There are no superstars on this team," said Dugan, the team's only coach since 1981. "Whatever success we've had on the field is due solely to the dedication and hard work of the players."

"The girls have stuck together through the good and the bad times because of their love for the game and one another."

The Hawks defeated state champions from Ohio North (6-0), Wisconsin (2-1), Iowa (10-0), Nebraska (5-2) and Minnesota (3-2).

The Hawks also attribute their success and support to these sponsors: Livonia Family Y, Livonia Florist, Frostways, Inc. and Soccer Store and More.

Winless Angels stun Adray

Dave Demay went three-for-four and knocked in two runs Friday as the Angels snapped a 13-game losing streak Friday in the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League (LCBL) with a 7-6, eight-inning triumph over Livonia Adray at Ford Field.

The Angels scored the game-winner when an Adray double-play ball went awry in the eighth.

Pitcher John Williams, in relief of starter Bob Copiac, picked up the victory.

Jeff Price was the losing pitcher. He relieved starter Kevin Harrah, who worked the first 6 1/2 innings.

Doug Kaiser, a new Adray acquisition, collected two hits in a losing cause as did teammate Todd Krumm and Tim Michalik.

Adray, meanwhile, handed league leader Walter's Appliance a 12-1 defeat in the first game Friday at Ford in a five-inning, mercy-rule game.

Krumm, the winning pitcher, tossed a one-hitter. The Michigan State sophomore fanned five.

Brian Barney went 3-for-4, while Tim Collins and Kaiser each added two hits for Adray.

John Fraser, the Walter's starter, took the loss.

Adray, behind the shutout relief pitching of Rick Rozman, beat Northville in an LCBL game Sunday at Ford Field, 7-4.

Rozman took over for Price, the starter, and allowed just two hits over the final five innings to pick up the win.

Pete Rose, Krumm and Jeff DePorter each collected two hits for the winners. Rose also smacked a solo homer in the third inning and knocked in two more with a single.

Eric Engel collected two of Northville's six hits.

REDFORD LITTLE CAESARS split a double-header Sunday with Walter's at Capitol Park.

In the opener, Todd Wallace raised his season record to 4-1 with a four-hit shutout in a 4-0 triumph. The right-hander fanned five and walked only three.

baseball

Mike Betz clubbed a triple and double for the winners and Gary Lizanich added two hits.

Dave Roberts was the losing pitcher, giving way to Chris Semik.

In the second game, the clutch pitching of Doug Doyle and heads-up play by outfielder Leo Lanigan sparked Walter's to a 1-0 victory.

Doyle, a left-hander, raised his record to 4-0 with a five-hitter. He worked out of a bases-loaded jam in both the sixth and seventh innings.

Lanigan, meanwhile, accounted for the game's only run in the fourth inning.

He singled, went to second on a sacrifice bunt and eventually scored on a steal attempt of third. The throw from home to third got away as Lanigan scored. John Rogers, victim of the unearned run, suffered the loss.

Lanigan then came up with the defensive play of the game, throwing out Caesars runner Dan Michaels at the plate in the bottom of the inning.

ON FRIDAY, Caesars outslugged Garden City at Garden City Park, 13-7, as Betz went three-for-three, including a three-run homer in the first followed by a solo round-tripper in the third.

Wallace added a two-run blast in the sixth. He finished with two hits on the day as did teammate Tyrone Gaines.

For Garden City, Mike Krauss and John Bolen both homered and singled. Caesars outhit the host team 14-11.

Tom Liss, with relief help from Betz in the sixth and Wallace in the seventh, was the winning pitcher.

GC's Mike Roffi was charged with the loss.

Livonia Mantle team wins pair of slugfests

Livonia's Mickey Mantle (16-and-under) baseball team won a double-header Saturday, beating Riverview in a wild game at Ford Field, 17-16, and then tripped Bloomfield in a game at Churchill High School, 9-8.

Scott Patterson, in relief of starter Greg Haeger, was the winning pitcher in the opener, withstanding an eight-run Riverview barrage in the fifth inning.

Haeger, Mike Weiss and Brian Wisniewski each scored three runs for the winners.

Against Bloomfield, Livonia rallied from an 8-5 deficit in the sixth, scoring four runs for the victory.

Eric Opalach's bunt single past the drawn-in Bloomfield infield scored the game winner. That came after Steve Owens had clubbed a two-run double and Weiss a run-scoring single.

Livonia, now 3-6, lost Thursday to Redford, 7-2, as Chris Kloc tossed a four-hitter. Earlier in the week, Mantle fell to Taylor, 8-7, despite a three-run homer by Weiss.

NEWTON FURNITURE, meanwhile climbed into first place in the Livonia E Major circuit with an 8-5 win over the second place Chargers.

Avenging an earlier loss, Newton is now 8-1 in league play followed by the Chargers at 7-2.

Mike Derkowski was the winning pitcher.

He got help from teammate Steve Prokes, who walked twice, collected one hit and scored four runs.

Tom Randall, losing pitcher, and Eric Haygar each homered in a losing cause.

Area bowlers earn $100,000 for hospital

There is an old saying that bowlers never forget. They are the first to offer assistance in time of trouble and always are ready to make sizable donations to those in need.

The proof of this came during the past week when the bowling proprietors purchased a van for the children at the children's association and donated another $100,000 to the children's hospital. And from the Kids Bowling for Kids tournament, another $10,000 was made available.

Meantime the Johnny Smith Old Timers, the oldest charitable group in bowling made its annual contribution to the Capuchin Fathers Soup Kitchen. This year it amounted to more than $10,000.

More help is on the way as soon as the statewide charity tournament is completed.

WONDERLAND: Bill Funke took top honors during past week when he posted a 498 for the top series. He had in the pocket by W. W. Edgar games 253 and 245. Next to him came Tony Crafton with a four-game count of 483.

WOODLAND: Mike Smart bowled twice in the trio league and set up counts of 928 and 826. In the seniors league Lucy Schaffer showed the way with a 205 game.

GARDEN LANES: Norma Johnson turned in a 629 series to take top honors in the ladies league. Meanwhile, Richard Hall came through with a 680 to top his circuit.

BEL-AIRE: Tony Banks earned a place in the winners circle in the trio league when he used a 259 game for a 906 series. Meanwhile, Dave Lewiston was one pin behind with a 905 in the closest race of the season.

Craiger on a roll

Plymouth-Canton area Babe Ruth League (age 13-15) baseball teams are making their presence felt in the league.

The four Plymouth-Canton area teams have compiled a 10-3 record against the teams from Detroit and Westland.

Craiger is currently 7-0 in the conference, 4-0 in the Plymouth-Canton League. R.J. Marauders are 5-1, 2-1 in the Plymouth-Canton League. The Dodgers are 2-5 and 1-3 while Twist-N-Shake is 3-4, 0-3.

All league games are played at Flodin Park on Saltz Road between Sheldon and Lilley.

Certificates or book-entry T-bills are safest

A question often asked is "Are Treasury securities riskless?"

Treasury bills, notes and bonds are among the safest investments you can make, provided you have them in a safe form of ownership.

The safest way to own government securities is to have them directly in your name.

For Treasury bills, which mature in a year or less, the safest route is to buy them in person or by mail from a Federal Reserve Bank or branch, or from the Treasury's Bureau of the Public Debt in Washington. Or ask your bank to do it for you.

TREASURY BILLS come only in "book entry" form, so you can't get a certificate. But your receipt assures that you are the owner listed on the Treasury Department's books.

Treasury notes mature in one to 10 years. Treasury bonds mature in more than 10 years. You — or your bank — can buy either through Federal Reserve banks and branches, in which case you receive an engraved certificate.

You can also buy Treasury bills, notes and bonds in the open market through banks or some brokers and ask for and receive a certificate for the bonds or notes. Even though such documents add safety, most large brokers won't obtain them for customers because selling them requires a bond power of attorney, bank corporate seal and other procedures.

INVESTORS WHO do not obtain certificates or buy through Federal Reserve banks or the Treasury often order government securities from a bank or broker without receiving an official document. That could lead to questions of safety.

If you buy Treasuries that way, you may receive as evidence of ownership a confirmation statement saying that finances and you

the securities are "in your account." But that is not strictly true.

The security that you order might be bought through a discount broker from a bond dealer, who would lump your order with many others and buy the lot from a large bank that owns the securities through a "book entry" in the Federal Reserve's computer system.

EACH OF these institutions would have the securities in its account with the next one up the line.

The reason for that so-called tiered system is that, except for original-issue sales to individuals, the Federal Reserve deals only with banks that have accounts with it and have set up the reserve.

Brokers and most bond dealers are not eligible, and a great many banks do not consider it worthwhile to maintain such an account. Many of these institutions trade, lend and borrow millions of dollars' worth of these securities every day through computer bookkeeping.

WHAT IF one of the institutions in this tiered system of ownership goes broke?

It is true that when you own securities in this way, you have a fiduciary relationship with each institution. Thus, theoretically, if one went broke, its creditors could not seize your investment.

But most dealers in government securities are not regulated. Consequently, your securities might not be there.

WHILE BUYING through banks or brokerage houses is generally safe, a confirmation statement alone should not be considered full proof of ownership.

Here is one way in which you can invest safely in Treasury securities. You could order either from a broker you trust or your bank, making certain whichever one you choose has an account directly with the bank that would hold your security in book-entry form with the Federal Reserve.

EDUCATIONAL SEMINAR: The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and the Coordinated Financial Planning Staff will conduct a seminar 7-9 p.m. Tuesday, July 16, at the Baldwin Public Library, 300 W. Merrill St., Birmingham. The seminar is free, but registration is required. For more details and to make reservations, call 643-8888.

A different seminar will be conducted Aug. 13 at the Kingsley Inn. Out-of-town guest speakers will present specific investment products. This seminar will also be free and registration is required.

Sid Mittra is president of Coordinated Financial Planning Inc. in Troy and a professor of economics and management at Oakland University.

Growth stocks form best foundation

I want to start an investment program of owning stock. Could you direct me to a selection of stocks that would be good for a beginner to look at and suggest some particular stocks I could start with?

Over the next two years, I will have about $10,000 to invest.

I am sending you a copy "Better Investing" magazine because this issue contains a model portfolio that is designed for the beginning investor.

These stocks are placed in the model portfolio in the belief that the selection of 12 stocks have the potential of doubling in value in the coming five years.

You should not expect these stocks to advance quickly in price, but if you developed a holding of each of these stocks, the average performance over the next five years should come close to doubling.

If we have a good stock market they should do better than that.

THE 12 STOCKS in the model portfolio are: American Home Products, Blount "A", Briggs Stratton, Comair, General Cinema, General Signal, W.R. Grace, IBM, Kuhlman, Oneok Inc., Precision Cast Parts and Sears.

If you decide to own these stocks, I would first buy Sears, Kuhlman and W.R. Grace. All of these have been showing strong upward trends in earnings and, if we should get an upward movement in the market, they might move upwards sooner than the others, so I would be inclined to buy them first.

Kuhlman, particularly, seems to be on the way to record earnings.

Precision Castparts and Comair are very fast-growing companies and could appreciate a lot if their growth continues. Precision castparts makes parts for jet engines. There is a new series of jet engines being developed, and when they get in volume production both for commercial and military aircraft, this company will be very busy.

COMAIR IS one of the very successful and profitable regional airlines. It has a new feeder arrangement with Delta Airlines that should help keep earnings in a strong upwards trend.

I won't cover the other stocks at this time since you may not be making additional purchases for several months. The model portfolio is published every three months, and when you are ready

today's investor

Thomas E. O'Hara

of the National Association of Investors Corp.

to make your next purchase, there may be some different stocks in it that you will want to look at.

With the amount of money you have to invest, about $1,000 of each of those stocks would be my suggestion.

New Japanese 'Super Pill' Insures Rapid Weight-Loss

No Dieting — Eat All You Want, Pill Does All The Work

BEVERLY HILLS, CA — An exciting new "all natural" weight-loss "Super" Pill developed by the JMA (Japanese Medical Association) has just been approved for distribution in the United States. Reportedly, it can guarantee that you will lose more than a pound a day without dieting, from the very first day until you reach your ideal weight and figure. News of this "Super Pill" is literally sweeping the country. It's called Amitol and there has never been anything quite like it before.

"Flushes Calories Right Out Of Your Body"

What makes Amitol so thrilling and unique is its reported ability to flush calories right out of your body. Amitol is completely safe, it contains no drugs whatsoever. Its ingredients are derived solely from the Konjac root which grows primarily in Northern Japan.

Why the Konjac root? It has been used in Japan for over 1600 years to produce rapid and natural weight-loss!

Japanese studies verify that Konjac root actually prevents fat producing calories from being absorbed into your system. They say it does this by surrounding much of the fats, proteins and carbohydrates you have eaten with a protective viscous coating which is then gently flushed out of your system. And according to Japanese research this produces absolutely amazing results.

And who can disagree! Amitol (although brand new to this country) is already being called by many people, "the most exciting weight-loss breakthrough of the century." In fact, everywhere there are reports of easy and fast weight-loss from formerly overweight people (in all walks of life) who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Company Offers Extraordinary Guarantee

You now can purchase Amitol direct from the North American distributor, and it comes with an extraordinary guarantee.

If you place your order now and then follow the simple instructions for a period of 30 days, you must be completely satisfied with the dramatic visible results or just return the empty container and Dyna Labs will immediately send back your entire purchase price. This guarantee applies regardless of your age or current weight level. What could be better than that! It's just that simple. Summer festival opening 2nd year

THE UNIVERSITY of Michigan will kick off its second Summer Festival of entertainment with a garden party at 6 p.m. Saturday at the Power Center for the Performing Arts in Ann Arbor. The entertainment begins at 8 p.m. with a concert by the Canadian Brass.

"Something for everyone" is the theme, according to Gail Rector, festival coordinator and president of the University of Michigan Musical Society. "It offers music, dance, opera, films, art exhibits, a magician, an outdoor cafe and more."

The festival runs until Tuesday, July 23. Sponsors are the University Musical Society and the Professional Theatre Program and School of Music of U-M.

THIS YEAR'S events take place in six locations: First Congregation al Church, Michigan Theater, Museum of Art, Power Center, Rackham Building auditorium and Lydia Mendelssohn Theater.

Festival brochures, including the complete schedule of dozens of events, are available by writing: Summer Festival, PO Box 4070, Ann Arbor 48106. Tickets are available from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily in the Power Center.

This year's festival salutes Canada by featuring many Canadian performers. Besides the Canadian Brass, these include classical guitarist Liona Boyd, the Toronto Dance Theatre, the National Arts Center Orchestra, contralto Maureen Forrester and magician Brian Glow.

Among celebrity performers will be actor Hal Holbrook in "Mark Twain Tonight," pantomimist Mar-

The Michigan Theatre near campus will present a three-part film series including Charlie Chaplin features, "The Wizard of Oz," "Willie Wonka and the Chocolate Factory" and "Beauty and the Beast."

Music by Johann Sebastian Bach, baroque composer whose 300th anniversary is this year, will be featured in organ recitals in the First Congregational Church.

French mime Marcel Marceau will introduce new repertoire in two different programs at the Ann Arbor Arts Festival.

Tom Panzenhagen

"The Cheyenne Social Club" (1970), 12:15 Sunday night on Ch. 7. Originally 103 minutes. TV time slot: minutes.

The script's lame and the plot predictable. But veteran cowpokes Jimmy Stewart and Henry Fonda seem to thoroughly enjoy themselves in this western spoof and the fun is contagious. Their buddy Gene Kelly directed the movie, too, so it's little surprise that the light-hearted comedy comes off so well. Shirley Jones and Sue Ann Langdon co-star. Rating: 2.95.

"Girl Happy" (1965), 8 p.m. Monday on Ch. 50. Originally 96 minutes. TV time slot: 120 minutes.

Elvis Presley made 28 movies from 1960 to 1970, and he played the same character in every one of them. Oh, he might have been a cowboy here and a race car driver there, but each role was essentially the same. In "Girl Happy" he's a headstrong leader of a musical combo given the unlikely task of keeping an eye on a club owner's daughter. That, of course, is like asking management to watch over labor's best interests. Shelley Fabares, Mary Ann Mobley, Harold J. Stone and Jackie Coogan co-star. Rating: $2.75.

Traveler's discovery: land of Lewis and Clark

This is the second in a series of articles about the Portland, Oregon, area.

I am standing on a hill watching the mighty Columbia River flow into the Pacific Ocean. There are a lot of romantic scenes associated with the junction of these two great waterways: the annual migration of salmon to their spawning grounds upstream, John Jacob Astor and the fur trade, the Lewis and Clark Expedition.

I am standing on the ground, but many of my compatriots have climbed the 125-foot Astor Column here on Coxcomb Hill above Astoria and are standing on the observation platform that gives a long glorious view in both directions. The column is a copy of the Vendome Column in Paris and the Trojan Column in Rome.

Iris Jones
contributing travel editor

The scenes on the side of the Astor Column tell the story of this northwest coast of Oregon. From its top you can see many of the places where Lewis and Clark left legendary stories behind when they wintered here in 1805-06 after completing their 18-month journey across America to the Pacific.

You can follow their footsteps on a day trip out of Portland, nearly 100 miles to the southeast. A pleasant round trip is to take Highway 30 along the river to Astoria, follow the Lewis and Clark trail down Highway 101 through Fort Clatsop, Seaside and Cannon Beach, and return on Highway 26.

FORT CLATSOP: It was raining when the Lewis and Clark Expedition came down the mouth of the Columbia in 1805. It rained for all but 12 of the 106 days they spent in a wooden fort called Fort Clatsop.

The original fort, two low log buildings facing one another across a 10-foot path, crumbled slowly as the area was settled during the 19th and 20th centuries. In 1955, several local organizations rebuilt the fort from a sketch the explorers had made on a piece of elkhide and from detailed accounts left in their notebooks.

It was notebooks and maps that busied Lewis and Clark during those long four months of drizzly rain, and provided information for the fur traders who came a decade later with John Jacob Astor.

Fort Clatsop is now a National Memorial operated by the National Park Service. Summer visitors can see the film recreating the Lewis and Clark Expedition of 1805-06, and watch craftsmen making tallow candles and doing other things that the explorers did during those long winter months.

Visitors to Cannon Beach can see what William Clark called the most beautiful sight he had ever seen.

THEY CAN visit the canoe-landing site and the visitor-center exhibits, but the main summer attraction is the living history that goes on outside the re-created fort.

Overnight accommodations are available in any of the wonderful little towns along the coast here in Clatsop County. There are 600 camping sites practically next door to Fort Clatsop in Fort Stevens, Oregon's largest state park. The kids love to climb on the Civil War cannons at Fort Stevens, which was guarded by the military, from the Civil War until World War II.

The town of Seaside is exactly what its name implies, a seaside village with a glorious sand beach as well as two or three streets of tourist shops and restaurants centered on the four blocks of Broadway. Its most prized possession is the salt cairn mentioned in the notebooks of Lewis and Clark.

Larry Lehman, who came to Seaside from West Branch, Mich., via Arizona, took me on a "city tour."

TOURISTS WALK the seaside promenade, watching the people, enjoying the ocean, and buying caramel corn at the popcorn stand. Tourists and locals both buy the corn dogs, especially at the Dog House, and the salt water taffy at Phillip's Candy on Broadway.

The water is too cold for most, but sun lovers lie on the beach from Memorial Day to September, and dig for razor clams in the tidal pools. When visitors come to town, Seaside take them north seven miles to Astoria or south five miles to Cannon Beach.

'Surf rolls in past monolithic black rocks to a great curve of sand beach, with mountains rising layer upon layer through the mist beyond.'

Fort Clatsop is a replica of the fort Lewis and Clark stayed in at the end of their journey across the U.S.

Dotting the Pacific Ocean seacoast are giant black rocks rising from the sea. This one at Cannon Beach is called Haystack Rock.

A day on this Northwest Coast of Oregon is an unfolding story, the story of fur traders and explorers and ordinary Americans having fun. The denouement, the moment when the trumpets blow and the drums roll, is when you lean against the guard rail high above the sea in Ecola State Park and look down on Cannon Beach.

SURF ROLLS in past monolithic black rocks to a great curve of sand beach, with mountains rising layer upon layer through the mist beyond. Ecola was named for the great whale found stranded on the beach a century ago.

The town of Cannon Beach, full of little boutiques and restaurants on a shoreline marked by Haystack Rock, was named for the cannon washed ashore from the shipwrecked U.S. Schooner "Shark" in 1846.

People love to quote Lewis and Clark on this coast. Sometimes it's hard to argue with that. It was William Clark who hiked to this cliff overlooking the glory of the seacoast and called it the most beautiful sight he'd ever seen.

Travel information: Reserving an air ticket to Portland from Detroit is an interesting experience. I flew Republic Airlines via Minneapolis because I had business in Minnesota. One of my associates flew United Airlines via Chicago.

According to the Official Airline Guide, which is the bible of the airline industry, all flights to Portland require you to change planes somewhere in between. People Express flies from Detroit to Portland via Newark, N.J. All the other listings from Detroit to Portland suggest traveling part of the way on one airline and the rest of the way on another airline. Check your travel agent on this one.

For information on Portland, contact your travel agent or the Greater Portland Convention and Visitors Association, 26 S.W. Salmon, Portland, Ore. 97204.

A shooter dressed as an early fur trader takes aim outside Fort Clatsop. Visitors can see re-enactments of the days when Lewis and Clark ended their 1805-06 Expedition at the fort. Fort Clatsop is now a National Memorial operated by the National Park Service.

SOME OF THE GREATEST THINGS IN AMERICA

In Ansel Adams' eyes, America's wilderness is its most precious national treasure. Through photography, he immortalized the unspoiled beauty of Mt. McKinley for all to see. Some things never change.

NEVER CHANGE.

But one great American tradition has changed—U.S. Savings Bonds. Now Savings Bonds pay higher variable interest rates like money market accounts. That's the kind of change anyone can appreciate.

Just hold Savings Bonds for five years and you get the new variable interest rates. Plus, you get a guaranteed return. That means you can earn a lot more, but never less than 7½%.

But some of the best things about Bonds haven't changed. The interest earned is still exempt from state and local income taxes. Still cost as little as $25. And can be purchased at almost any financial institution. Or easier yet, through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

Buy U.S. Savings Bonds. Like the wilderness, they're another part of our proud heritage. For the current interest rate and more information, call toll-free Variable rates apply to Bonds purchased on and after 11-1-82 and held at least 5 years. Bonds purchased before 11-1-82 earn variable rates when held beyond 10-31-82. Bonds held less than 5 years earn lower interest.

Artist tries variety of media

By Mary Klemic
staff writer

Audrey DiMarco may have gotten started in art "as a lark" years ago, but she couldn't be more serious about it today.

The Livonia resident has won art awards and shown her work at Bloomfield Hills, Farmington, Rochester, Livonia, Detroit and Lansing. Recently, the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association (BBAA) awarded her second place in its 50th anniversary competition, the display of which will run through Saturday, June 29 at 1516 S. Cranbrook, Evergreen and 14 Mile roads in Birmingham.

DiMarco is an instructor at the Barabazon School of Fashion Merchandising and for the Visual Arts Association of Livonia (VAAL). She speaks excitedly about her artwork, which fills her house.

"I don't think I chose it, I think it chose me," DiMarco said. "It seems I'm almost driven, I have to paint. It's a wonderful, satisfying thing. I love pushing the paint around. It's an extension of playing with mud when I was a kid."

'I don't think I chose it, I think it chose me. It seems I'm almost driven, I have to paint. It's a wonderful, satisfying thing. I love pushing the paint around. It's an extension of playing with mud when I was a kid.'

— Audrey DiMarco
Livonia artist

DIMARCO MAKES portraits and abstract artworks in a variety of media. She doesn't favor one medium over another. One work may have as many as 15 layers of paint. She paints in oils, acrylics and pastels, and makes collages out of wood and tin.

"What you're doing at the moment is the most important thing," the artist said.

Emotion is important in art, according to DiMarco.

"You must be willing to relax with your work and go with your emotions," she said. "You must get emotionally involved with your work."

DIMARCO NOW is working on her hands and knees in her basement, using "sponges and brushes and rollers and everything," on an abstract artwork that at last count featured 10 layers of paint. In the near future, she would like to spread out 15 canvases in her basement and paint as she listens to a recording of Stravinsky's "Rite of Spring."

"I'm constantly experimenting with new media," DiMarco said.

The former Westland resident wishes she had more time for her artwork. She starts one art project before finishing another.

"Many times I try not to have any preconceived ideas. I think that first spontaneous emotion is what I need," DiMarco said. "I find that if I take a break, I do better when I go back to it."

THE ARTIST tells her students that "the first rule of art is, there are no rules. To me, everything has been done on earth and everything can be done," she said.

DiMarco once developed a way to paint pastels over oil on a raw canvas, something she was told couldn't be done.

"I thought there has to be a way," she said. "If somebody says you can't do it, I have to find a way."

DiMarco has a creative family. Her mother wrote and sold stories, and her "mathematically inclined" husband has won awards for his photography.

PAINTING IS something DiMarco "always had to do," since she drew her own cutouts at the age of 4.

"I just have to keep painting," she said. "There's always something to learn. It seems I learn every day. I'm amazed. The only thing I know for sure is how little I know."

DiMarco first exhibited her artwork 18 years ago at a friend's suggestion.

"She said, 'Why don't you enter the show at the gallery?'" DiMarco said. "It turned out to be a national show and I got in."

DiMarco went on to study at the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit, Eastern Michigan University and the BBAA, and worked as a fashion illustrator.

"At the time I wanted to be a fashion illustrator, I learned enormous speed," she said. "I do paint rather fast. It's so exciting. I just jump right in. I love it so much."

Though Audrey DiMarco does abstractions, she is also an accomplished portrait painter as this painting of a young woman shows.

Audrey DiMarco works on a new abstract work that already has 10 layers of paint. It is one of her many art experiments.

The variety of DiMarco's work includes abstractions, raised canvas collages and representational still lifes.

'Zoophabreaks' lacks special appeal

By Lisa Simon
staff writer

review

"Zoophabreaks," the first of three Hudson's Children Series concerts brought to Meadow Brook this summer began promptly but inaudibly last Saturday morning at 11 a.m. in the Baldwin Pavilion.

As a summer storm was brewing, the Mime Ensemble, a local mime troupe, delivered a somewhat sleepy show to an audience comprised mostly of toddlers.

"Zoophabreaks" was billed as a delightful combination of mime, inflatable creatures, the alphabet and break dancing.

The mime portions were interesting, but not breathtaking or original. The innovative creatures made up for the lackluster motions. The children were especially excited about an upside down lawn pool which was contorted and transformed into a clam-like snapping creature.

This creature was one of four including an anteater, where a mimist's posterior was decorated as the front of the animal with a long, hanging snout, a large-eyed bug and a three-person swing thing (a man swinging two smaller women in front of and behind himself).

ARTISTICALLY, the three-person swing creature was the most impressive. The movements of the three mimists were smooth and effective. Other mime sections were less invigorating. The snapping clam-creature was the favorite among the crowd.

It was difficult to hear Professor Windbag, master of ceremonies for the hourlong Zoopa journey. His attempts to get audience participation seemed to fail. But the majority of viewers clapped whenever they saw people around them applauding.

The costumes were creative and colorful. The mime movements were, at rare instances, quick and well-rehearsed. A few taped children's songs played for creature-solo mime skits were too long and unexciting.

There wasn't any break dancing at all despite the fact break is a vital part of the show's title, and break dancing was included in the show's description. The alphabet was touched upon because the creatures called out in the vowel sounds, A,E,I,O,U.

It's important for today's generation of children's television viewers to see live drama. Even though the caliber of the show wasn't up to par, the audience responded well.

The brewing storm had distorted the sound, and parts of the show were rather long. Still, the children seemed to be attentive. Sounds of laughter bubbled consistently above the wind.

If not all eyes were watching the stage, they were taking in the rows and rows of other children who had filled three quarters of the Baldwin Pavilion.

A 35-minute show extended to fill a full hour, "Zoophabreaks" was an entirely acceptable production. The audience began to leave rather quickly as big raindrops started to fall several minutes before the show's conclusion.

Judging art show can be a risky business

This is another lesson on art and drawing by special columnist David Messing. He has taught for ten years and operates an art store, Art Store and More, 16338 Middlebelt, Livonia, 522-6311, 265 N. Main Street, Plymouth, 455-1222. Messing encourages questions and comments from readers. You may write him at his store or c/o Observer Newspapers, 23352 Farmington Road, Farmington, MI 48024.

By David Messing
special writer

Just last week I was asked to judge the "fine arts" in the arts and crafts festival sponsored by the Livonia Arts Commission. Well it was the day of the show and my lower lumbar vertebrae told me "it's a gonna rain."

See... I'm only 37 and already I can predict the weather in lower Michigan and upper Ohio, just by the pains in my back. By the time I was ready to go out the door of my home it was a beautiful and sunny day. So against my lumbar predictions I left all Michigan paraphernalia at home. What is Michigan paraphernalia? Well, at any summer outdoor gathering in Michigan you must bring: shortsleeves and long sleeves for sunny or cloudy weather. A sweater or sweatshirt for nighttime chill. A tank top or sleeveless shirt for sweltering humidity. An umbrella, swim suit and goggles for flash floods. A hard hat for tornadoes and a jacket for instantaneous fall conditions and... oh yes, a snorkel parka for unexpected snow.

So, like I said, I left that all at home. Now in the five mile trip to Livonia City Hall, my lights and wipers were on and off twice and the temperature setting on my dashboard went from "air-condition (cold) to defrost-warm." I guess our Michigan weather was best capsuled by a Florida born exhibitor. As we stood and talked about his art, a deluge of rain gushed down upon us. Instantly soaked, I turned to him and jokingly asked, "So how do you like it here in Michigan?" His blank stare and opened mouth that uttered nothing, seemed to say it all. Finally the sun was back in the sky and everyone was out and about as if nothing ever happened.

WHAT WOULD you do if you had to judge 120 artist's works numbering well over 1,000 pieces. You would yell for help, just like I did and three of my teachers, Carol Porter, Pam Grossman and Sue Rothamel came to my rescue. Still it was an awesome task. Since the girls were all teachers at our store it was remarkable how often our likes and dislikes coincided. Hey... judgin's risky business. There are now probably 18 artists who think we are very wise, knowledgeable and of impeccable taste. Then there are perhaps 102 artists who are thinking "that jerk and his helpers wouldn't know a good piece of art if it slapped them in the face."

Since this article is in eight different cities, I at first, decided against writing about an art show that basically only involved Livonia and neighboring cities. But then I thought back about the many times I have wondered what the judge was looking for when he or she viewed a show that I was in. Probably a year ago I wrote an article on how to mentally handle a juried art show. In that article I remember saying, "don't be too elevated by winning a ribbon nor too down cast by receiving nothing."

THE TERM "art" is in itself difficult to define, let alone "good art," "better art" and "best art," which is almost impossible to define. So it is therefore up to a person or persons to judge any work of art with in their personal framework of how well each media finds it's place in the broad concept of art. Remember when you were a kid and Mom seemed to know everything that you said or did. And in amazement you would turn and ask "How'd ya know that Mom?" She would say, "a little bird told me." Well imagine that same little "rat fink" bird was sitting on our shoulders that day while judging. I thought it might be interesting for you to see some of the "whys" for some of the awards.

1st place - watercolor - Burger "White barn" "Painting shows a good use of the media... it looks like a watercolor." "Look, from a distance, how clear it is and up close there is enough detail to keep your interest."

2nd place - watercolor - Reifer "Summer Rain" "Sure fits today," "Dangerously dark for a watercolor but beautiful."

2nd place - watercolor - Weber

2nd place - Oil - LeGault - "Reflections" "Almost too clear, but refreshingly definite." "Too decorative or commercial, but then again it is bold."

2nd place - oil - Shoemaker "Maxwell house coffee and ball jar" "Too much one color but that's what makes it work."

1st place - graphics - Ollie "Train" "Technically amazing, very correct, wow."

2nd place - graphics - Ollie "Indian" "Good place to white, tons of detail."

1st place - wood sculpture - Berari "Pintail" "Life-like, good use of wood grain, I think I see it breathing."

Americans keep their cameras busy

By Monte Nagler
special writer

The latest edition of the Wolfman Report, which has just come out, contains some interesting facts and figures on the 1984 photographic market. Read on and see if you have contributed to the numbers.

The report indicates that over 12 billion pictures were taken in America last year - that's 135 photos per household. Of these, 130 were color and only five black and white. C'mon you black and white shooters - get clicking!

Still camera sales for 1984 totaled almost 16 million cameras of all types. Thirty-five mm cameras are the market favorite with 2.6 million reflex units and 3 million lens/shutter units.

These are the cameras that use optical viewfinders instead of through-the-lens focusing systems and often incorporate such features as automatic flash, automatic film advance and automatic focusing.

They're sold at prices averaging less than $150 and offer amateurs an almost foolproof camera at affordable prices.

One of America's most popular vacation spots - where millions of pictures were taken last year - is Yosemite National Park. This is Monte Nagler's photograph of Half Dome.

Guided tours set for Fair Lane Estate

A technological and aesthetic marvel awaits you at the Henry Ford Estate-Fair Lane, located on the University of Michigan-Dearborn campus.

Designed by the renowned landscape architect Jens Jensen, the grounds of Fair Lane remain a magnificent example of landscape art. Another impressive feature of the estate is the four-story powerhouse that supplied all of the power to Fair Lane, making it truly self-sufficient.

Guided tours of the powerhouse and garden - and historic mansion rooms as available - now will take place at 10 a.m., 11 a.m., 1:30 p.m. and 2:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Guided tours of the house and powerhouse are available 1-4:30 p.m. Sundays. Admission is $4 for adults and $3 for senior citizens and children.

Visitors to Fair Lane also may enjoy lunch at The Pool restaurant, featuring soups, sandwiches, salads and quiche. Hours are 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Friday.

For more information, call the estate at 593-5590.

to decline as only 60,000 8mm cameras were sold nationally in 1984.

However more and more photographic companies such as Nikon, Canon, Pentax and Fuji are entering the video market and a record-breaking 500,000 video cameras were purchased last year.

How about dollars spent? According to the Wolfman Report, the Gross National Photo Product, the basic indicator of total photographic activity, reached a record $16 billion for 1984. That'll buy a lot of film.

In shopping, Americans preferred their local camera stores for cameras but opted for the drug store for photo-finishing.

Drug stores accounted for over 30 percent of the 3.4 billion dollars spent for photofinishing.

In a reflection of changing preferences, the once-

photography

popular drive-in stands for photofinishing continued to decline while the number of on-site photofinishers - the minilabs - doubled over the past year. Per capita spending by Americans on photography reached almost $45, the highest anywhere in the world.

HOW TO MAKE YOUR GARAGE SALE A SMASHING SUCCESS

Garage sales are on their way to becoming a great American tradition with appeal for both the budget-conscious buyer and the enterprising seller who can earn extra cash by recycling unused but still useful "treasures." With this in mind, Real Estate One offers the following tips for making your garage sale a pleasant and successful experience.

1. Allow plenty of time — three to four weeks — to prepare for the sale.
2. Choose a date that will not conflict with holidays or other special events that might lure prospective customers away.
3. Weekends are more convenient for more people than weekdays.
4. Your sale is likely to attract more customers if you join together with neighbors in a larger effort with anticipated sales that are growing rapidly.
5. Practice household sales that are growing rapidly. Practice household sales that are growing rapidly. Practice household sales that are growing rapidly.
6. Merchandise your items attractively in neat surroundings. Paper tablecloths, cluster things in categories, place most valuable items in the back of the garage so browsers are urged to look at other items.
7. Have a 25-cent merchandise table for your customers.
8. A table should be clean, polished and in a temporary park using the ladder and hung.
9. Use the "Buyer's Choice" sign to attract customers.
10. Be sure there is adequate parking for your customers.
11. Have plenty of paper bags and boxes for customers and neighbors to take home their finds.
12. Place a classified ad in the local papers including 3 or 4 specific items for sale directions and other pertinent details.
13. Take advantage of free publicity provided by bulletin boards in grocery stores and other public places.
14. Provide directional signs to your property if needed. Use an indelible felt tip pen.
15. If your home is listed for sale, have your Real Estate One sign on the same day as the garage sale to hold an open house on the same day as the sale thus increasing interest in both the house and the sale.
16. Visit other sales to form an idea on how to price things, but remember that garage sale shoppers are looking for bargains. Be prepared to bargain and lower your prices.
17. Really valuable items such as antiques should not be sold at a garage sale because it is unlikely they will bring the desired price from bargain-minded shoppers. On the other hand, nothing is too worthless to be valuable to someone. Have a giveaway box for old magazines and other assorted odds and ends.
18. Post a notice that all sales are final and payment must be in cash.
19. Have plenty of change in a cash box kept in a protected spot. Keep a record of sales, especially when there are several sales. One recording device that is simple and efficient is to use small white stickers that price items and when the item is purchased remove the sticker and place it next to the name of the seller.

After holding one or two garage sales, you can probably add some newly discovered tips of your own. A bit of organization will make for a successful sale and an uncluttered house!
