Robinson leads field in city primary vote

After making her choices Tuesday, Dorothy J. West leaves the voting machine at the 3rd Precinct in Central Middle School.

Despite an extremely low voter turnout, there were a few surprises in Tuesday's Plymouth City Commission primary election.

With just 736 residents voting some 10 percent of those registered candidates Greg Green and Lloyd Duston were dropped from the Nov. 5 commission race.

There were 10 candidates on Tuesday's primary ballot, with the top eight vote-getters going on to the Nov. 5 general election. Voters were allowed to vote for four candidates.

Candidates for the November race will be (in order of Tuesday's finish): William Robinson (368), Robert Kroeger (325), Jean Morrow (318), An-(297), William Bingley (286), Robert tropical storm in Florida. Jones (281) and Karl Gansler II (251).

GREEN AND Duston - who finished with 119 and 92 votes, respective-- were the only two candidates who missed a League of Women Voters candidate's night prior to the election.

Kroeger, Morrow and Anason, along with sixth-place finisher Bingley, were the focus of some animosity at Monday night's City Commission meeting.

The four were named in campaign literature which urged residents to vote for them to, among other things, save Central Middle School.

Commissioner Mary Childs, during a precommission meeting, said nothing during her years on the commission has irritated her more than the "Central

What can improve productivity, reduce down time and strengthen employee morale?

No, in this case it's not a new hightech computer. Nor is it a space-age telephone or communications system.

The answer, as far as the Plymouth Police Department is concerned, is a team concept coupled with 12-hour

'We feel the police department's morale is as high as it's ever been," City Manager Henry Graper said Tuesday. The 12-hour day and the team concept approach to police work are the most innovative changes we have ever made in the department.

And Graper isn't the only one singing the praises of the recent reconfiguration. Similar comments are coming from city commissioners, residents, judges at the 35th District Court, the police chief, and even the officers

About 140 new jobs will be created for the Plymouth area by late 1988, when employment is expanded to help operate upgraded state correctional facilities at Five Mile and Beck roads. Old facilities - all on former De-

The Scott unit, plus an existing Phoenix Correctional Facility across from the old DeHoCo comlex, and the old DeHoCo building (now called the Western Wayne Correctional Facility) eventually will provide law enforcement authorities with 126 acres of detention

School bosses: A peek at their paychecks

They are paid more than state representatives and senators. And their average pay packages are slightly more than salaries paid to lawmakers in Washington.

In nearly every district, the pay for a superintendent outpaced averages for the region, state and nation.

Yet, there is a great deal of disparity among what local school boards provide their chief executive officers in pay and benefits, with little correlation between district budget size, student enrollment, longevity or state equalized valuation (SEV), which is one indication of a district's ability to pay taxes.

A SURVEY of 12 districts in western Wayne and Oakland counties shows yearly salaries range from a low of $47,500 in Clarenceville, which includes parts of Livonia, Farmington Hills and Redford Township, to more than $93,000 in Southfield. Others districts in the survey included Livonia, Wayne-Westland, Redford Union, South Redford, Garden City, Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, Farmington, Birmingham, West Bloomfield and Troy.

The base salary for school districts in Region 9 (Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties) was $55,643 as reported in the 1983-84 survey conducted by the Michigan Association of School Administrators.

IN 1984-85, the national average base salary for superintendents throughout the nation was $56,954, according to Educational Research Service, a non-profit, non-advocacy organization that provides information and data to local districts. The averages vary widely based on enrollment, according to an ERS spoke-

For districts ranging in student population from 10,000 to 25,000, the national average pay for superintendents was $61,748. For districts from 2,500 to 10,000 the average was $55,897. For those below 2,500, the average was $43,747.

The average base pay of the 12 districts surveyed here is $66,081. The average compensation package (not including fringes) is $72,606.

SOUTHFIELD SCHOOL chief Carl Hassel tops the list with a total pay package of more than $93,000. Not all of that is direct salary, however. He gets $73,140 in pay and for his automobile allowance. Travel expenses are provided.

Hassel, who has been in the Oakland County district for nine years, also receives a $20,667 tax-sheltered annuity, which is not available until he retires.

Southfield had 8,400 students in the past school year, with a budget of $47.8 million. The district SEV for the 1985-86 school year is $1.4 billion. In contrast, the Clarenceville School District is the lowest in num-

In contrast, the Clarenceville School District is the lowest in number of students (2,100), budget ($6.6 million), SEV ($136 million) and superintendent salary.

MICHAEL SHIBLER, who was hired by trustees one year ago, is paid $47,500. He receives a car for professional use only and medical, dental, optical and life insurance benefits. Shibler, who recently received an outstanding review by trustees, has not yet received a raise for the 1985-86 school year. The Clarenceville post is his first superintendency.

There is a great deal of disparity among what local school boards provide their chief executive officers in pay and benefits, with little correlation between district budget size, student enrollment, longevity or state equalized valuation (SEV), which is one indication of a district's ability to pay taxes.

The Wayne-Westland School District, which has the largest student population of the districts surveyed (19,135), gives its superintendent an annual pay package worth nearly $83,000

Dennis O'Neill, superintendent of Wayne-Westland schools since April 1984, receives $71,451 in salary. He also gets $2,000 for having a doctorate and $375 per month for a car lease plus $5,000 for gasoline, oil, maintenance and insurance charges.

ALL OF the superintendents surveyed receive a fringe benefit package that includes medical, dental and optical coverage comparable to what other distict employees receive.

The district has an SEV of $773 million.

Although Livonia Public Schools has the second largest enrollment (17,000) among those surveyed, Superintendent George Garver's total compensation ranks fifth at $77,480 behind Southfield's Hassel ($93,000), Wayne-Westland's O'Neill (82,950), Troy Superintendent Don Shader ($78,000) and Birmingham Superintendent Roger Garvelink ($77,500).

GARVER, WHO recently began his 12th year as superintendent, also receives an automobile in addition to the other fringe benefits such as health, dental and optical insurance. The district, which includes most of Livonia and the northern section of Westland, also has the highest SEV at $1.6 billion of those surveyed. Garver administers a budget of $64 million.

Shader, whose pay package is divided up as $72,000 in salary, $3,000 in tax-sheltered annuity and $3,600 in an allowance for a car, administers a $41 million budget last year. Troy had 10,835 students last year. It's 1985-86 SEV is $1.2 billion.

THE BIRMINGHAM School District with 7,505 students last year and a budget of $45 million, pays its school chief $68,500 in salary, $5,000 in tax-sheltered annuity and $4,000 for car allowance and expenses. The district has an SEV of $1.38 billion.

Student population is not the only factor to be considered, however, when examining the salaries of school chiefs.

Although it's one of the smallest in student population (2,996), the South Redford School District gives Superintendent Jan Jacobs a:pay package worth $76,200, which ranks sixth among those surveyed. Jacobs, who has been superintendent in South Redford for the last 10 years, receives a salary of $67,500 and an $8,700 tax-sheltered annuity. He receives mileage for trips outside the district.

THE SOUTH Redford District has an SEV of $360.5 million.

Rounding out the survey were the Farmington, West Bloomfield, Plymouth-Canton, Redford Union and Garden City superintendents' pay.

In Farmington, Superintendent Lewis Schulman is paid $75,500 annually. He also receives a car, in addition to other fringe benefits such as medical, dental and optical insurance given to other district employees.

There are 10,270 students in the district, which includes the city of Farmington and most of Farmington Hills and part of West Bloomfield. Schulman, who has headed the district since 1976, administers a budget of nearly $50 million. The district has an SEV of $1.2 billion.

SEYMOUR GRETCHKO, who has headed the West Bloomfield School Disrict 2½ years, is paid $72,000 — $62,000 a year in salary and $10,000 in tax-deferred annuity. His automobile and travel expenses are provided by the district.

The Oakland County district, which includes a good portion of West Bloomfield Township and all of Keego Harbor and Orchard Lake, had 4,492 students last year and a budget of slightly more than $18 million. The 1985-86 SEV is $490 million.

Plymouth-Canton Superintendent John Hoben receives a pay package of $677,836 which includes a salary of $63,696 and $4,140 car allowance.

Hoben, who has been head of the district for the last 15 years, administers a $45.6 million budget. The district, which includes the city of Plymouth, Plymouth Township and most of Canton Township, has an SEV of $1 billion.

REDFORD UNION school chief Kenneth Erickson is paid $62,512. He receives benefits given to other district employees. He is paid mileage for trips outside the county.

The Redford Union School District has 6,050 students, a budget of $20.8 million and an SEV of $247 million.

Garden City School Superintendent Michael Wilmot receives a pay package worth $60,197. It includes a salary of $51,697, a $5,000 annuity and $3,500 paid as of July 1. Merit pay of $2,000 also is available upon favorable evaluation by the board.

The district has 7,325 students and a budget of $28 million. The 1985-86 SEV is $264 million.

Being a superintendent is not a 9to-5 job. Superintendents are expected to attend meetings, participate in school events and represent the schools in civic activities — all without extra compensation.

En route from Montreal

A pale cloud hung low over the horizon as a white swan whistled through the trees toward the lake. We are a few miles beyond Chatauqua Lake near the bend in the river where the Conewango meets the Alleghany.

Wild flowers line the banks along here, and the air is laden with their lovely scent. Nearby hundreds of blackbirds, bob-o-links and others frolic and feed. Overhead a lone eagle, searching for breakfast, soars and dives upon his prey. This is the wilderness in all its primitive grandeur — a magnificent sight.

Suddenly, the serenity is interrupted by the sharp commands of Captain Celoron shouting, "Debarquer, Debarquer."

We debark at the designated spot — a peaceful plain near a forest of oak, ash and maple. We are delighted to find our "land lega" again, and to be able to negotiate the hundred feet between the landing and the plain.

Today is July 29, 1749, and we have reached the Ohio (French for the Alleghany) and the Kanaouagon (Conewango) after only a month and a half. What a long way we have come in such a short time. The speed of our birch-bark canoes truly is remarkable.

We left LaChene — near Montreal — June 15, 1749. We safely have carried nearly 200 soldiers and Indians all this long way. We safely have passed the fortified British post at Oswego, portaged around the chasm at Niagara, and successfully transported our boats across land to Chautauqua.

WE DO ALL this in the name of France. Our country is determined to stop the British, the Bostonnois, the Washington group from Williamsburg, and the Philadelphians.

They must not take over our beloved Valley, and destroy our fur trade. Business in d'Etroit is at a standstill and we face bankruptcy if the British are allowed to continue their relentless advance.

But we have hope. We know we have the unqualified blessing of the Marquis LaGalissoniere, Governor General of Canada and d'Etroit.

Our leader is Pierre-Joseph de Bienville Celoron.

Our leader is Pierre-Joseph de Bienville Celoron, a Chevalier de St. Louis, and a faithful servant of his majesty King Louis XV. Celoron was a former Commandant at d'Etroit and Mackinac. We have confidence in him. He knows what he is doing.

On board our 23 birch-bark transport canoes are several natives of d'Etroit including Antoine and Pierre Beaubien, two Chenes, my cousin Robert Navaree's nephew, a Cicotte or two, myself and a Barre. We are all d'Etroiters.

We have a small army of about 200 with us—most of whom came from Montreal and Quebec. In addition we have a band of Abenaki from Maine and a couple of Cherokee who ran away from the British at Albany.

As soon as we landed, Celoron, mindful of the need for discipline in such a large group, called us together to reinforce our good purposes.

Everyone was drawn up in order of their assignments — cooks here, soldiers there, staff and offi-ments — cooks here, soldiers there, staff and officers in front, Indians over there, and so forth.

IN A CLEAR, forthright and rather loud voice - or so it seemed from my position with the other officers — Louis XV Lord proclaimed the entire region.

He nailed a piece of tin stamped with the royal arms of France to a nearby tree. At the foot of this young tree he planted a leaden plate which was inscribed as follows:

"Year 1749, in the reign of Louis Fifteenth, King of France. We, Celoron, commanding the detachment sent by the Marquis de la Galissoniere, commander-general of New France, to restore tranquillity in certain villages of these cantons, have buried this plate at the confluence of the Ohio and the Kanaouagon (Conewango), this 29th of July, as a token of renewal of possession heretofore taken of the aforesaid River Ohio, of all streams that fall into it, and all lands on both sides to the sources of the aforesaid streams, as the preceding Kings of France have enjoyed or ought to have enjoyed it, and which they have upheld by the force of arms and by treaties, notably by those of Ryswick, Utrecht, and Aix-la-Chapelle."

Little did we know the Treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle and the rest were not worth the paper they were inscribed on. What a charade.

As the quarter-master of this expedition I had to keep a strict account of everything. I must know what we have on board in terms of food, guns, ammunition, lead plates, tin markers, beads, baubles and brandy, and I must be able to give a strict accounting to Captain Celoron upon a moment's notice.

With this in mind, I marked the book immediately after the ceremony — one less plate, and one lead marker buried.

Celoron plans to place markers at the confluence of rivers from here to the falls at Louisville. They will be few and far between because we had only six to begin with.

I DON'T THINK Celoron takes the plate business too seriously. He is a realist. He knows that as soon as we leave the plates may be torn down, and only flood waters centuries later may reveal the lead we have planted.

Celoron is no fool. This is an experiment in public relations and a snooping expedition. We want to find out what inroads the British really have made in this territory, and we want to impress the Indians with our power.

They should know this is our country. The British should go home to their little hamlets along the coast, and to their Boston, Philidelphia and Williamsburg.

This morning Celoron decided to send Chebert do

This morning Celoron decided to send Chabert de Joncaire and two Abenaki Indians ahead to prepare the way for our arrival.

Joncaire speaks the native dialect fluently. He was the half-breed son of a Seneca princess and a French officer. A brilliant young man, with the diplomacy of the French and the wiles of the Iroquois.

Because of Joncaire, we found the Indians along the rivers less fearful of our presence.

At a Seneca village not far from Duquessne (Pittsburg) we had an interesting adventure which will have to wait until next time.

"It is apparent to me that, initially anyway, the 12-hour day and team concept is working. This is reinforced by a dramatic reduction in overtime costs," Myers said.

THE DEPARTMENT underwent major changes when a contract for shared services with Plymouth Township expired on July 1. Besides reducing the department's jurisdiction from some 18 square miles to about two, the end of the contract signaled the end of the department as officers knew it.

Because the contract was worth $467,000 a year, loss of the intergovernmental agreement meant loss of revenue - and four patrolmen.

With fewer officers, changes were needed in scheduling and the overall the department already was working teams.

township contract, the department had lost its chief and the search was on for a replacement.

Rod Bartell was brought in to develop a plan and assist in the selection of a plan was a switch to 12-hour days, instead of eight-hour days, with a corresponding team structure. He also screened chief candidates and recommended Myers.

Under this plan, every officer was assigned to a working team and a specialty team - four working teams (two which alternate on days and two on nights) and four specialty teams (crime prevention, traffic/patrol, evidence technician/investigator, and a supervision team for work team leaders). approach to policing the city - since member from each of the specialty

"THE TEAM approach offers the Also, although not directly tied to the men a profession or career rather than a job," Graper said. "I think the team concept is working quite well.

The cooperation with the new chief It was at this point police consultant is quite well. Overall, I think the officers are doing a good job during the transition," Graper said.

'And I think the City Commission de-At the heart of Bartell's suggested serves a lot of the credit. They had the wisdom to hire Bartell to make the blueprint for the department," he said.

They had the foresight to get the very best consultant and the very best chief candidate to implement the program. I think the officers appreciate the exposure to Bartell and enjoy working with Chief Myers."

Likewise, Myers said things still need some time but the department is moving forward.

"The 12-hour shift appears to be working very well. The officers enjoy Each of the working teams has a the time off and when they come to work, they aren't approaching the 12 hours with drudgery - they are relaxed and look forward to working," Myers said.

'This schedule (two 12-hour days on, two days off) reduces stress. One of the biggest problems with police work is dealing with the job stress and the stress it builds at home.

"ONE SHINING example of the team approach was that rape case we handled - it was an example of the team working at its best. They built the case and just handed it over to the detectives for processing," he said.

'That team - officers Ronald Kaminski, Jerry Vorva and Joseph Kahanec (along with help from Mel Meck) worked in conjunction with the township and gathered the evidence and arrested the suspect," Myers said.

One of the things Myers, as chief, is having to learn is to relinquish more authority to the teams.

A project they are working on is a referral form, which would outline a problem and allow the officers to decide how to resolve the problem.

'After all, they are intelligent people who are professionals and can make such determinations," Myers said.

"What we're doing here is a total reversal from the traditional police structure," he said, pointing to the decentralized command of the team concept and the training involved with it.

'People may ask is it worth a couple days wages to send a guy to training and not have him available for work. My response is, how much does it cost for one lawsuit?"

Officers are happy

With the recent new staff configuration inside the Plymouth Police Department, what do the officers think of the changes?

Three officers - all members of the department's "A team" - took time out Tuesday morning to share their thoughts.

"It's working better than we ever anticipated," said Officer Robert

"Just the change to covering only the city has allowed us more time to deal with the calls we get. We're also getting more time off; we were use to working constantly," Scoggins said.

Officer Robert Henry, the A team leader, said he really appreciates the time off. Prior to July 1, officers would work as many as 15 consecu-

"I was getting one day off every two weeks," Henry said.

"The way to get the stress out of police work is to have days where you aren't in here," Officer Ed Ochal said. "With our time off now, it's like having a vacation," Scoggins said. ALL THREE of the officers claim to enjoy working together as a team. They are developing their individual routines for answering calls, as well as getting a grasp on how each of their partners work.

"For that 12 hours that the A team is on, these three bodies handle what ever happens," Ochal said, adding that each team is working out the "tactical logistics" on how to approach their work.

Also, communication within the department has improved, Henry said. With two shifts working around the clock, officers relieve the same guys who relieve them. "With three shifts you could tell the guys relieving you something and then when you came back in there was a different shift working and they might not have gotten the information," Henry said. Communication lines also are open with the department's new chief.

"The chief is very open in allowing us some experimental latitudes and that's a stress reliever," Scoggins

"When you have an administrator you can work with, it's really good,"

THE OFFICERS also like having specialty teams to develop specific skills and interests.

"Anybody here can do the regular job. But now with everyone working on a specialty team, there's no little kingdoms," Ochal said. "Careeer development is open ended."

Each of the A team members have a different specialty - Ochal in evidence and investigations, Scoggins in crime prevention and Henry in traffic and leadership.

"You are a generalist first and a specialist second," Scoggins said.

"You just wait and see once we get the bugs worked out. People are getting good service now and they are going to get excellent, outstanding service in the future," Scoggins said.

Plymouth Township Police chief Carl Berry said the township and City of Plymouth police departments have been working well together.

Citing a recent arrest made by Plymouth police, with the backup of township police, Berry said, "It is a demonstration of the spirit of cooperation between the two departments.

Last week, Plymouth Police Chief Richard Myers credited township police with providing the key lead which led to the arrest of a Hines Park rape suspect.

On Monday, Berry and township police officer Craig Schwartz provided backup when city police arrested a Plymouth Township man who allegedly broke into the Wellington LTD. store in Plymouth.

Arrested was Gary Robert Vashon, 18, of 9445 Marlowe. Vashon allegedly accompanied Michael Taylor Minton, 17, of 45568 Denise Court in the break-

Warrants for "entering without the owner's permission," a misdemeanor punishable by 90 days in jail, were obtained Tuesday afternoon for both suspects. As of Wednesday morning, both were being held pending arraignment and/or posting of bond.

Minton was apprehended on Harvey

Police said Minton had a fresh cut on his left forearm and thumb. He was taken back to Wellington's and reportedly told police he and Vashon had broken the glass.

Zedan, who said he recognized the suspects, found blood on the glass and the unlatched door at Wellington's. Police sent samples to the Northville Crime Lab before obtaining warrants.

Minton was arrested early Tuesday. Vashon was arrested later by city police with the assistance of Berrry and Schwartz.

The amendment also was unprecedented because it limited the way D.C. officials can spend not only the district's "federal payment" but also such local revenues as property and sales

The ban was attached to the fiscal 11986 appropriations bill for the District of Columbia (HR 3067), which was sent to the Senate.

Voting no: Pursell and Broomfield. Ford did not vote.

EX-PRESIDENTS — By a vote of 219 for and 130 against, the House adopted an amendment that cuts fiscal 1986 staff expenses of ex-presidents.

Former presidents were to receive nearly $300,000 annually of staff support regardless of when they left the White House. The amendment cut this to $250,000 during years five through eight that the president has been out of office, and to $200,000 thereafter.

The amendment, which was attached to an appropriations bill (HR 3036) later sent to the Senate, leaves untouched the $86,200 annual pension for former presidents as well as outlays for Secret Service protection.

SENATE

FTC - By a vote of 71 for and 26 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment to virtually end the Federal Trade Commission's existing authority to combat unfair competition on the part of doctors, lawyers, dentists and other professionals.

The vote occurred during debate on an FTC authorization bill (S 1078) that was passed and sent to the House. Michigan Sens. Carl Levin and Donald Riegle, both Democrats, voted to kill the amendment.

Sen. Levin said the America Medical Association and American Bar Association opposed the amendment as unnecessary in light of court decisions that already have limited the FTC's power

James McClure, R-Idaho, who sponsored the amendment, said his measure would prohibit the FTC from secondguessing the states on questions of licensure and professional qualifications

VETO BY CONGRESS - The Senate adopted, 67 for and 22 against, an amendment giving Congress power to veto certain regulatory action by the Federal Trade Commission and Consumer Product Safety Commission.

The provision, which was attached to S 10788 (above), is designed to overcome the U.S. Supreme Court's ruling that congressional veto authority over the executive branch, if unaccompanied by presidential assent, violates the separation-of-power doctrine.

Senators voting yes wanted Congress, in concert with the president, to be able to kill certain Federal Trade Commission and Consumer Product Safety Commission rules. Levin and Riegle voted yes.

Under this language, both houses of Congress, and then the president, must take affirmative action to kill a regulation issued by either commission

Supporter Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., said the provision insures that "the executive branch — the bureaucracy — not encroach upon the domain of the national legislature."

Opponent Wendell Ford, D-Ky., said the legislative veto is unconstitutional and would not be an issue if Congress were to adequately scrutinize the agencies whose rules it dislikes.

Look for industries aided by a tax decrease

Second of two parts

discuss some additional planning ideas in connection with President Ronald Reagan's tax proposal.

Investment Taxes

The big item here is the capitalgains tax imposed on profits realized by selling stocks, bonds, land, building, jewelry or nearly any other asset held for six months or

The maximum tax rate on such profits would in effect be lowered to 17.5 percent, from 20 percent now. The one exception would be your profits on properties that can be depreciated, commonly found in tax shelters. Those investments would be inflation-adjusted and taxed the same way as rental vacation properties.

That probably means a higher tax - which makes lower-taxed stocks relatively more attractive.

We recommend that you consider In this concluding article, we will buying stocks in companies facing lower tax bills - among them, retailers, food and cosmetics companies, trucking, tobacco, drugs and publishing.

Other companies would pay more - probably autos, steel, leasing, machine tools, airlines, mining, oil, utilities, construction, insurance companies and banks.

However, a caveat must be added here: Tax changes alone do not lead to higher or lower stock prices. Always look for growing profits and widening profit margins.

Insurance

The new tax proposal would end the tax deferral on the net savings build up in cash-value insurance policies and tax-deferred annuities. If you consider these to be valuable investments, you may wish to buy them now.

finances and you Sid Mittra

Fringe Benefits

Of the amount that your company pays for your health insurance, up to $300 would be treated as your taxable income. In the 25-percent bracket, that cost boils down to only $75.

Here is an excellent planning tool. Take a careful look at your company's 401 (k) savings plan. Some plans allow withdrawals for hardships like college tuition.

If you expected to use that privilege, see if it's possible to reclaim your money before the end of the year. If the tax plan passes, you normally wouldn't be able to get at these savings before you are 59 1/2.

Summing up

President Reagan's proposed tax law is complicated and far from being a certainty. The best advice I can give you is to start planning your strategy as you keep your eyes on what's transpired.

Better still, engage a competent financial planner you can trust and charge her or him with the full responsibility for taking advantage of the opportunity presented by the tax proposal.

Clean Rouge?

DNR says its possible to clear up murky river

By Teri Banas

Some day, residents living along the murky Rouge River may be able to point to a clean resource.

But making it happen will take cooperation and commitment from the 36 communities that border the Rouge's three branches, along with a central coordinator to organize pollution cleanup activities, according to a state Department of Natural Resources offi-

Using that formula, a state-led effort to make a clear, clean Rouge a reality is currently before the Michigan Water Resources Commission. Next month, the WRC is expected to finish plans for a DNR strategy to improve the river.

"In the past there was a lot of studying that took place before anything was done," said Roy Schrameck, DNR water quality specialist. "But the orientation of the new strategy presented to the commission is that there are a lot of things that can be done now.'

THE STRATEGY would involve such measures as:

• Placing the DNR at the lead to direct improvements, list remedies and coordinate the cleanup.

• Finding for permanent listing all the sewer lines and pipes that discharge into the river. -

• Eliminating more than 180 combined sanitary/storm-sewer discharge points that dump raw sewage and industrial waste into the river during high water. Schramek is detailing a work plan for the cleanup. It will be presented to the WRC Sept. 19 in Delta Township, west of Lansing. WRC's seven members include representatives of the departments of Natural Resources, Agriculture, Public Health and Transportation. Its main concern is water pollution, and it issues water discharge

By the WRC's request, the plan will include a section detailing community involvement. Central to this, new stab at cleaning the Rouge is community support and input in the 467-squaremile Rouge basin.

"It will be their (communities) responsibility to develop a correctional plan and submit it to the state to coordinate with other communities. Our (DNR'S) role will be to coordinate,"

Schrameck said. BUT SOME community spokepersons believe local involvement is needed even earlier - at the development

Karen Gottlieb, executive director of the 19-community-member Rouge River Watershed Council, said she urged the WRC at its last meeting to seek community involvement in the developing the strategy.
"My contention was you need to have the people who are implementing the plan in on developing it," she said. "You can't just hand them a plan and expect it to be carried out."

Northville Township Supervisor Susan J. Heintz, who chairs the watershed council, agreed.

"They can't expect local communi-ties to implement a state policy if they didn't have input," Heintz said.

For that reason, she said it was a good idea that the DNR established an advisory committee made up of Gottlieb and representatives from Wayne and Oakland counties, the Southeast Council of Governments (SEMCOG), the Detroit Water and Sewer Department and the DNR. (The committee is meeting for the second time today in SEMCOG'S Detroit offices.)

Both Gottlieb and Heintz called the strategy extremely broad in scope, though they agreed it is an important "first step."

THE ROUGE River is comprised of three branches that flow through southeastern Michigan into the Detroit River. Branches of the lower, middle and upper Rouge are found in parts of Wayne, Oakland and Washtenaw coun-

According to Schrameck, the state intends to develop a computerized model of the river basin to aid in correcting pollution problems.

There are all kinds of uses for this model down the road," he said. "For instance, if there's a fish kill in Redford Township, we'll plug in the coordinates, and we'll be able to figure out what remedy would have the best impact."

THE DNR'S action is far from the first study into the causes of pollution in the Rouge. Gottlieb said part of the problem has been that while "studies have been done, no one has come up with the impetus to do anything.

"Most of the focus has been on the Detroit sewage treatment plant and bringing it up to capacity. But now, there are other issues. The DNR has it as a top priority, so something has to be done," Gottlieb said.

Schrameck said less than half of discharges into the Rouge River are from combined sanitary/storm sewers operated by the Detroit wastewater system. Discharges are evenly divided between storm water and sanitary sewer overflows. Industrial discharges account for a small portion.

The sewer pipes are designed so that during heavy rainfalls, wastewater in the pipes overflows into the river. But now wastewater is discharging even emedy would have the best impact." during dry times. Each year, sewers dump 600 billion gallons of water into the Rouge River and its tributary riv-

Fund to save lakes will soon run dry

State Department of Natural Resources (DNR) officials fear water quality in Michigan's inland lakes and streams will be jeopardized if the department's 10-year-old Self-Help Program goes unfunded.

Self-help is designed to counter a major threat to the recreational value of Michigan's inland waters - eutrophication.

After Oct. 1, federal funding for the Self-Help Program expires.

EUTROPHICATION is the word experts use to describe the gradual transition of a lake to a weedy, algae-covered marsh. The cause is the gradual enrichment of natural waters with plant nutrients such as phosphorous.

"The goal of every lake is to become marsh. It's a natural aging process," said DNR inland water expert Howard

He continued "Man accelerates the process by nutrient loading with im-properly treated waste water discharges and agricultural run-off."

Wandell contends that the best way to slow the eutrophication process is to get rid of nutrient loading sources. Finding those sources is the tough part. According to Wandell, the DNR Self-Help Program is one aid in the fight .

"THE INTENT of the Self-Help Program is to correct a long-term monitoring problems," says Dick Mikula, who heads the monitoring effort. "The state tries to monitor all lakes in Michigan but is not meeting that goal."

Mikula noted that over the last 10 years, 650 lakes of more than 50 acres in size have been sampled at least once. "The Self-Help Program provides a much needed means of monitoring water quality in a wider range of public and non-public lakes."

Under the program, lake property owners sample their own lakes on a yearly basis. Throughout the summer Lake Management Unit, P.O. Box months, participants take transparency 30028, Lansing 48909.

Too many ignore the local elections

ECENT ELECTIONS IN Plymouth and Plymouth Township have been disappointing — and not because of the outcomes.

It's the time-honored problem of voter apathy. Last month's township millage election and Tuesday's City Commission primary aren't the first elections to pull less than 20 percent voter turnouts. Unfortunately, they probably won't be the last either.

There's an interesting paradox at work within our society. Throw a presidential race on the ballot and voters will wait in line to get inside the polls. Schedule a commission primary or millage election and you might as well work out of one

Undoubtedly, people vote in presidential elections because they view it as an important decision — one which will have a direct effect upon their lives. I'm sure an argument can be made to substantiate that point. But an even stronger argument can be made that the presidential election has less direct effect on an individual voter than the local elections.

A CASE in point — the tax issue.

How many voters went to the polls in November believing their vote for a presidential candidate was a vote for or against income taxes? More than would probably admit it.

Yet, the only direct decision these voters were making was who will be president of the United States come the following January. In no way, shape or form was their vote insuring what would happen with income taxes.

A campaign promise to raise or lower

Michigan entered the Union in 1837 becoming the 26th state. Michigan might taining Toledo.

income taxes is just that — a promise. Because the candidate has no legal obligation to abide by the pre-election pledge, the promise only is as good as the candidate who made it. (And that's not to mention the question of whether the candidate could get his/her program through the legislature once elected.)

But consider a millage election. Voters are asked to make one decision - yes or no on the tax proposal. A vote either way has a direct effect on the voter's property

The bottom line is: If someone is interested in how much money they pump into taxes, which election has the most direct impact on their tax bill? Obviously, it's the millage election.

ANOTHER CASE in point - voting because the candidates will make decisions which directly effect our lives.

Again, how many voters went to the polls last November because they see a direct link between presidential decisions and their everyday lives? Probably quite a

But how many of the president's decisions actually have a direct effect on our lives. Very few. Sure, many of the president's decisions effect us indirectly but few come straight home to effect how you Consider now the City Commission, School Board or Township Board. How many decisions made by these bodies directly affect our lives? Quite a few.

If schools are closed, we need to make arrangements for the kids. If streets are closed, we must find new routes home. If firefighters are laid off, our safety (and home insurance rates) are affected.

The great majority of decisions made by the local bodies directly affect how we go about our lives.

Yet, voters ignore local primaries and general elections because they don't believe they are important or will matter.

They do matter, and your vote matters. One vote out of several hundred means more than one in millions. Local races are decided by several hundred votes; presidential races are decided by millions. Isn't it time you stop letting a few make the decisions which most directly affect Territory officials led by Stevens T. your life? Get out and vote in the Mason decided to force the union to accept ing library (Sept. 10) and general (Nov. 5) Michigan as a state despite the "Toledo elections - your vote doesn't count unless War" and took all the steps necessary for you cast it.

The theater gets narrow

UP, UP went the ticket prices. Up, up went the demands for donations. Finally, Detroit and the Metropolitan Opera ended their relationship. The Met won't return to the Masonic Auditorium next year.

The story is far from an isolated one. It seems that the live theater is pricing itself out of the market, just like the gas-guzzling dinosaurs of the American auto in-

For support of this notion, we can turn to one of the University of Michigan's most famous sons, playwright Arthur Miller, author of "Death of a Salesman,"
"The Crucible," "All My Sons" and others.

MILLER SAYS high ticket prices are keeping Americans out of theaters and new ideas out of plays.

Interviewed for the Michigan Quarterly Review, the U-M cultural and literary journal, Miller said: "I know when I go to Minneapolis or Dayton, there's a different atmosphere between the play and the people, because it costs next to nothing to get in - at least when compared to New York prices. A much wider group of people is in the theater, and I find this very stimulat-Shakespeare, he noted, had to address a wide audience - from the nobility to the 'groundlings," the non-literate folks who stood on the ground and howled at his comic scenes.

Tim Richard

EVER SINCE Shakespeare's day, the audience for live theater has become narrower and narrower. At today's $40 ticket prices, the audience is pretty narrow, Miller contended.

Miller's ideal audience would be a national political convention. "You know: real ugly toughs from Chicago, professors from Massachusetts, Southern crackers from Georgia, Alabama. I could talk to those people. But I can't get 'em!

"I was a delegate to the 1968 Democratic convention, and there was the American people. That's the audience I wish I had. They're not in my theater. And if they ever got into the theater, you would have something. You would have fever!"

(Myself, I would quibble with Miller over whether a Democratic convention is a cross-section of "the American people." Michigan Democratic delegates come from the ranks of non-profit organizations - government, politics, unions, churches, law, social agencies. Practically none work for commerce or industry.)

With this amendment, Miller's point seems valid: When your audience has to pay $40 a seat, the audience becomes pretty narrow, the playwright restricted.

ORIGINAL DRAMA isn't dead, at least in these suburbs. I wonder what Miller would say about the "The Trial of Mary Lincoln," the play our one-time theater critic Bob Wall wrote about the Emancipator's widow. We history buffs loved it when it was produced in Dearborn a few years back.

I wonder if Miller would be impressed by the Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford's current production of "Friends in Dark Places," playing through Aug. 10. The playwright is Janet Mackie Hackel, 26, o won a Hopwood award at the University of Michigan for it — the same award Miller himself won four decades ago.

Ticket price for TGLR's performance: a democratic $3. I know Miller would like Theater groups in Franklin and Farmington have produced original dramas at pretty reasonable prices. Would Miller find the playwrights restricted by the audiences in these suburbs?

You concentrate on ideas more when you see live theater than when you idly twist the TV dial. American society is the loser if the theater dries up as a source of

Remember the penny post cards? Well, it will cost you 14 cents now to mail a card to your next-door neighbor.

Where we were accustomed to two-cent stamps for mail to any part of the country, today you'll have to pay 22 cents, and if your mail is slightly over an ounce, it will cost you twice as much.

By the same token, there was a time when air mail to anyplace was 10 cents. Now the lowest rate is 20 cents, and it gets higher with almost every passing day.

For years The Stroller paid only a few dollars to have his hair cut. Now, with a lot of the hair gone, he pays $7 on a weekday and $8 on Saturday.

It seems almost unbelievable that the value of our money has changed so much.

YEARS AGO when The Stroller left his home in the Pennsylvania Dutch country to start his career on a nationally known newspaper, he was delighted to be paid $45 for a six-day week. Today it costs him almost that much to have a schoolboy cut the lawn. Even trimming costs a bit extra.

It seems almost like a joke now when he recalls purchasing his first automobile.
Through the kindness of an old friend,
Jack Adams, then boss of the Detroit Red Wings, The Stroller was hired as official

On another occasion, he earned $75 for doing a special job. And with that money, he and his bride purchased two acres for his home and grounds in Livonia. He may never have had a home of his own if the price had been any higher.

The Stroller almost choked the other evening when he entered one of our restaurants and noticed a special menu pointing to homemade strawberry pie for $1.25 a slice.

Egad, he said to himself. When we had our lunch counter back home, the price was a nickel. And if you bought the whole pie, it was only 15 cents. We used to deliver them for a quarter.

PEOPLE WOULD look at you with a weird glance if you told them you could purchase a suit of clothes for $15. Yet that's all The Stroller paid for years when the Scotch Woolen Mill store was on Cadillac Square in downtown Detroit.

Today you'd be lucky to purchase a belt for that amount. And an automobile even the cheapest — would set you back a

Earth issues: bombs, baseball

REPORT from Earth:

Greetings to my fellow beings. I have been able to land unnoticed on this planet and dwell in a place called Michigan in the United States of America. I am voraciously reading and watching on the television box all reports about this planet in hopes of learning more about its people. I think I have learned the native language quite good and will communicate in it to avoid

As you know from air wave monitors, the chief bureaucrat of this country has had recent illnesses and is recovering. His assistants say his illnesses will not affect his ability to direct all the bureaus.

The people of this country have two concerns. One is whether this country or any other country will drop a bomb similar to one dropped exactly 40 years ago. That bomb destroyed a population center. Some people fear that a country will soon think of dropping even more powerful bombs and destroying even larger population centers.

THE OTHER issue is whether there will be a continuation of what television box reporters call the "grand old game" of baseball.

It has been difficult to determine which is the more important issue. Most reports devote more attention to the grand old game issue. But people who are considered experts on government say the more important issue is preventing more bomb droppings.

Judging by the natives' reactions, though, it seems that the grand old game of baseball is more important. A person who lives in the next dwelling unit says that the media (the television box reports and the news pamphlets) "run all that junk about the atomic bomb for several days, and then you won't hear about it again. People don't want to be reminded about wars and what might happen in the

His words may be true. I have tried to strike up conversation with natives about the possibility of bombs being dropped, but no one wishes to speak of it. On the other hand, everyone in my dwelling unit vicini-ty wishes to discuss the continuation of the grand old game of baseball.

This is difficult to understand. Dropping of bombs seemingly would lead to mass destruction of peoples and countries, but temporary cessation of the grand old game of baseball would seemingly affect only a small segment of the population.

Those affected would be a group of less than 30 persons of substantial wealth who own what are called baseball teams and a group of several hundred persons who play the grand old game of baseball. The two groups disagree over dividing money that is earned from staging baseball games. Watching baseball games is considered a form of relaxation by most na-

THE PLAYERS on average earn more than 98 percent of the native population but say they need more money. The owners have even more money than the players but say they can't afford to give up

The natives who are neither owners nor players do not seem to care which side gets more money. They want no disruption in the continuation of the grand old

The person in the next dwelling unit says the people can live with the threat of destruction by bombs, but only if there is baseball. In his words: "How are you going to be able to stand life if you don't have a baseball team to root for?"

I am still in process of learning about life on this planet.

Buyers wince as insurance rates soar

By Tim Richard staff writer

Prices of property and casualty insurance are roaring upward — when insurance is available.

And the consensus among "risk managers" - the business office people who buy insurance for industry and government - is that growing numbers of customers will be unable to get insurance at any price. They quote figures of 91 percent availability this year and only 75 percent next year.

"It's a seller's market," said Paul Y. Kadish, who knows the subject from two angles - as president of Associated Group Underwriters in Livonia and as a trustee of Schoolcraft College.

During the recession of 1979-83, interest rates were in double-digits. Insurance companies could earn comfortable profits on their investments. They didn't need to hike premiums to cover benefits, since those 18 or 20 percent interest rates brought in the revenue.

During that period, there was cutthroat competition to sell insurance so much so that premiums sometimes failed to cover the cost of benefits. insurance at any price?

Mute swan census is on; duck numbers down

By Lem Meses outdoors writer

OW'S THE time to count mute swans, says the state Department of Natural Resources. The majority of the 20-25pound birds are flightless during the first two weeks of August, so DNR is taking a census - with the public's help.

One of the largest waterfowl in southeast Michigan, mute swans have bright orange bills. Males (cobs) have a prominent knob at the base of the bill. Juvenile swans are grayish brown, especially in the head and neck.

Mute swans don't breed until they are 3 years old. They average four to five eggs in a nest, and they are pretty Pontiac 48054.

Oldest, newest in Old Village

staff writer

By happenstance, Plymouth's Old Village section now has another distinction that stands it apart from the rest of the city

There, in the area known for its unusual shops and antique stores, is both the oldest and the newest home in the city - both just blocks apart on the top of the hill near Wilcox Lake.

The oldest and one of the most interesting homes in the city is the residence of Harold Guenther and family. And the newest is the modern condominiums being built by Pat Hann, owner of a beauty salon at Starkweather and Spring.

While no exact date is on record at Plymouth City Hall for buildings before 1900, it is claimed that the Guenther home was built between 1840 and 1850. The Guenthers have lived there for 40 years.

Asked if the age of the home was an attraction when he and family moved there, Guenther confided that they liked the appearance and the location on the edge of the city - and that they have liked it from the first day they moved in to it.

The home is of Greek Revival design and consists of eight rooms in the main section and four that were added after it had been built for some time.

To make the place more attractive, the Guenthers added an enclosed gazebo made of glass with a full view of Wilcox Lake and Hines Parkway.

"It was just something we thought would be nice and a suitable addition and it has worked out fine," Guenther said.

In the background of the distinctive home a large windmill can be seen and Guenther smiles when he tells how it

"You see," he said, "I was brought up on a farm with a windmill and I thought this would be in keeping with memories of my youth.

'We found it in Rapid City, Michigan, and Kal Jabara, who had just purchased a new Cadillac, offered to bring it down here. So, we dismantled it and hauled the parts here and then reconstructed it. It is the lone windmill for an interesting story. Always on the lookout for something new and different, even in her salon. she decided on three-story condos on a steep hill with the building only half way to the top.

When finished, they, too, will provide an interesting look and the design is such that the passersby have been busy asking questions.

With the building on the middle of the hill, the question arose as to what happens when it rains. If the rain is any way heavy, folks have wondered how the water would drain or how it would be kept free from the home.

And what about the heavy snows? They could be troublesome when melt-

Hann lives in one of the condos to give proof that they are real homes but the question still arises.

Nothing official has been said, but some of the workmen report that there will be water pipes at the back of the condo to catch the water and turn it over to the driveway at the edge of the property.

The same source said that heated pipes would be used in the winter months to melt the snow and send the water over the driveway.

The water question and the proximity to Guether's home make the condos more interesting.

The Guenther home is on the corner of Holbrook and Wilcox and the condos are on York.

Together they form an unusual attraction for the walks sponsored throughout the year by the Old Village Association. There is nothing like it any other place in the city.

THE THREE-DAY SENG (Supporting Emotional Needs of Gifted) conference last weekend at the Michigan Inn in Southfield attracted wide attention. Parents and teachers of talented children turned out to garner a wealth of information from leaders in the field of educating talented and gifted children.

Conference theme was "Cultivating, Creativity, Courage and Caring.

Louise Townley of Plymouth was a co-chairman of the conference and thanks to her, delegates were entertained by some of our own local talented and gifted.

The Plymouth Park Players, directed by Gloria Logan, performed the mini-musical "The Apple Tree," based on a story by Mark Twain.

Louis Stockwell assembled a group to play at a conference wine and cheese gathering. Louis, who plays saxophone and piano, teamed up with two friends from Plymouth Canton High School, Carl Wilson and John Hill.

Carl plays bass and John is a drummer. Matt Berger on guitar made a fourth. Matt is John's cousin from Chicago who was visiting the Now Susie's Viennese friend, Uschi Binder is here as well as Lisa's friend, Aline Marcotty of Liege, Belgium. Chris enjoyed his month at the Children's International Summer Village for 11-year-olds near Haifa. He was a member of the United States group consisting of a leader, two girls and two boys. Ten countries were represented - Italy, Spain, Holland, Brazil, England, France, Finland, Sweden, Israel and the U.S.A.

CHRIS SAID he took some pictures of Athens from the plane, but they haven't been printed yet.

Group helps gifted students

By Richard Lech staff writer

T AGE 15, Dallas Egbert already was attending Michigan State University.

A "computer wiz," Egbert was an extremely bright - but extremely troubled - youth.

He felt alienated from other people and escaped into the make-believe world of the role-playing game Dungeons and Dragons. "His parents sought professional help well before he went to Michigan State University," said psychologist James Webb, director of the national Supporting Emotional Needs of Gifted (SENG) organization.

"But most professionals don't know the importance of brightness, the impact being gifted can have on a child or

"Most psychiatrists and social workers receive no training of any kind working with the gifted. They say they don't need help or that being gifted can't be a problem. They don't realize it's a mixed blessing."

Dallas Egbert's inner turmoil ultimately became too much for him to bear. He killed himself in 1980 at age

AFTER HIS death, Egbert's parents and Webb joined to form SENG, an organization designed to help gifted children and their parents cope with students' emotional problems.

The organization offers parent groups, testing, counseling and psychotherapy and in-service workshops and consultations. Last week, SENG held its fourth annual conference at the Michigan Inn in Southfield, with more than 400 persons from 20 states and Canada attending. "There is a myth across the nation nat gifted children don't need help," sid Webb, who is the assistant dean of apecial programs at the School of Professional Psychology at Wright State University in Dayton, Ohio.

"PEOPLE SAY a bright mind will find its way. That clearly is not the case.

In school, gifted children are underachievers and make up anywhere from 6 to 18 percent of high school dropouts, Webb said. They are bored with classes geared to the needs and pace of the av-

'One mother said it's like learning to dance with the numbers for someone who's already teaching ballroom dancing, and how frustrating it is to move your feet on the little footsteps on the floor when you already know how to waltz or tango."

The emotional pressure continues when they reach college. Gifted college students are more likely to commit suicide than their fellow students, Webb said. Some feel lonely and alienated from other people, who may refer to them derisively as "eggheads," "nerds" or "Einsteins."

AFTER DALLAS Egbert's suicide, his parents, through a mutual friend, contacted Webb, a specialist in child psychology.

"I never knew Dallas," Webb said, but after he died, his parents contacted me and asked where in the country there was an organization that focused on the emotional needs of gifted children. I had to tell them there wasn't

In January 1981, Webb and the Egberts appeared on "The Phil Donahue Show" to discuss the emotional problems which even the brightest students can have. The show received 20,000 responses from people across the coun-

"The Donahue folks say that was the most response they'd gotten to any show that year," Webb said. "People are still talking about that show."

Webb had never before done any particular work with gifted children. But he made a commitment with the Egberts to form SENG, with their financial help, as a modest organization operating out of Wright State.

"That little, bitty program has grown incredibly, to the point where it's had a national impact," Webb said.

"We're now being looked upon as hav- too, Webb said. He recalls hearing ipated in some of the new programs which gather together gifted children for such activities as summer camps. That would have helped Dallas feel less like an alien, to find other kids like him who share an interest in computers or mathematics or the Brazilian brown spider, for that matter." UNLIKE SOME critics, Webb saw nothing intrinsically wrong with Dungeons and Dragons, the game that so preoccupied Egbert. "Parents began to wonder if somehow Dungeons and Dragons might be bad for their child. I try to reassure them I don't think there's anything inherently harmful in the game.

"But I do think so if the children get so involved in Dungeons and Dragons that they cut themselves off from others, or don't have the skills to interrelate with others. But I would say the same thing with computers or going to the museum. I would see the same thing in any form of excess.'

WEBB SAID meeting the educational needs of gifted students in the school system shouldn't necessarily mean much greater outlays of money. He said it is a matter of adding enrichment classes and doing some restructuring so children can be pulled out of regular classrooms into gifted programs at an earlier age.

School systems also should move away from the general trend toward conformity, in which creativity is stifled and bright kids are seen as "ob-

Educators' attitudes must change, some principals and teachers say, "Why don't you spend your time with children who really need you rather than teaching the gifted?"

"IF WE could achieve that change in attitude, that would accomplish a tremendous advance. We would have created an environment where the children feel they are accepted and belong.

On the whole, Webb was optimistic about the future of education for gifted children in the United States. He pointed to the growing numbers of gifted and talented programs being offered in school systems around the country.

"It wasn't the educators who started it, it was the parents. That's happened with schools across the country. Parents of gifted children are questioning will last a whole lot longer."

the school system, saying, 'Why aren't you individualizing the curriculum?' They demand that the school board tell them what they are doing or planning for gifted education." HE COMPARED the state of gifted education to that of learning disabilities programs 10 years ago. Then, learning disabled programming was unheard of. Now every school district offers it. He sees the same thing happening with gifted education. "The last time there was a great interest in gifted was when the Russians launched Sputnik," Webb said. "There was a big flurry of excitement, which eventually died out. "This time there doesn't seem to be any clear precipitant. It's just a groundswell. Which makes me think it

Incontinence in elderly focus of U-M study

The University of Michigan School of Nursing has received a $341,000 twoyear grant from the National Institute on Aging which will be used to research, diagnose and treat the problem of incontinence in elderly women.

Thelma Wells, an associate professor in the School of Nursing and the project's investigator, said that this is one of the largest grants ever awarded to the school of Nursing.

U-M researchers will investigate the causes of incontinence and whether exercises can be an effective alternative to conventional drug treatment.

'Incontinence is a problem commonly suffered by one-fifth of all women 55 or older," Wells said. "Incontinence is embarrassing, costly and inconvenient, and it often requires modification of social activities and increased laundering. It may even lead to an elderly person's placement in a nursing home where the problem can be more easily

EACH YEAR incontinence costs the nation approximately $1 billion, including laundry and other expenses, according to a 1984 study, Wells notes.

She said many causes of incontinence are sometimes related to the complications of diseases such as diabetes, multiple sclerosis and urinary infections.

"The two major types of incontinence," she said, "are urge incontinence, which is usually caused by a neurological dysfunction between the brain and the bladder that can be controlled with medication, and stress incontinence, which is related to physical stress that weakens the pelvic floor muscles used to control urine flow, monal changes after menopause." The study is being conducted at U-M's Continence Clinic, the first of its kind established in the United States.

Now is the time for all good Cantonites to root for one of our own.

That's right, folks. Right here in Canton we grew another Cantonite Extraordinaire. It seems there is no end to the unusual and interesting things Cantonites get into, but never more so than this week as I proudly present Cantonite Greg Lea.

Some of you may remember this young man during the telethon we did at Omnicom to 'Kick Out Drug Abuse' in our community. It was during this telethon that I met him when he came to visit his mom, Barb Timmerman, a volunteer on our phone bank. I asked him to help out with the hosting duties and he took to it like a duck to water. Since then he has been a frequent cohost on the 'Sandy Show' and has started a career in modeling.

Greg graduated from Plymouth Salem High School in 1981 and is employed by Galaxy Boring on Joy Road. Now here is the best part. Greg has been chosen to participate in the United States Michigan Men's Pageant.

The winner of this pageant will be flown, all expenses paid, to Beverly Hills, California to compete in the national pageant.

For those of you who may not have seen Greg, allow me to give you the vital statistics. He is 6-2, weighs 170 pounds, has blond hair, brown eyes, a beautiful tan - a mere 22 years old and he is all ours. The contest began with 140 contestants competing for 30 spots. After the interviews were completed, our Greg was one of the 30 chosen to participate in the Michigan

As always, each participant needed a sponsor. Greg has three: Dr. Ronald Kraynek, Dr. Evans John Farres and his folks, Barb and Denny Timmerman.

The pageant will be at the Premiere Center in Sterling Heights, 6:30 p.m. Monday, Aug. 12. Commentary will be by Marilyn Turner, with TV coverage by Good Morning America, Kelley and Company, P.M. Magazine and 15 cable companies. Although Omnicom is not planning on covering this event, it can acquire a copy of another cable company's tape. Admission is $15.75 and can be purchased by phone by calling the Premiere center

No less than $25,000 in cash and prizes is at stake and that is just on the local level, not including that all-expense paid trip to California.

This is an exciting thing to happen to one of our own. He already has done us proud by being chosen one of the 30 to compete Aug. 12.

Good luck, Greg, our hearts are with you. Also to Barb and Denny, and Greg's brother, Jeff, and sister, Gina. We'll be thinking of you. I almost forgot something. For his talent segment, Greg will be doing a contemporary dance routine to Geno Vanelli's "Black RIDE A DUCK? Perhaps you don't think that sounds very exciting at first glance. But read on.

A duck is an amphibious craft and only part of the fun you can find in the Wisconsin Dells. I can honestly say I had heard the term "Wisconsin Dells" but really had no idea what they were Lorene Green: until I heard from Danny and Nancy

I know it's not in Michigan, but is in America. It's close to home and it sounds like a ball.

According to Danny, it's only about 500 miles away. Although that's not next door, for the amount of entertainment, it's worth the drive. The Dells contain all types of amusement parks, everything to keep the weary traveler amazed and or well exercised.

The McGuire Family, Danny, Nancy and their two tax deductions, Danny, 9, and Stephanie, 7, (both of Miller School), packed up and journeyed to this not-so-far-away wonderland. They had a terrific time.

You wind down the Wisconsin River through amazing rock formations of sandstone. Your duck takes you on and off the water, visiting each area on your guided tour. Throughout the Dells, you'll find hundreds of strange and interesting sights. The Foam House of Tomorrow, Xanadu, includes such innovative ideas as heat sensor stereo, a magnetic induction range, and a children's Swiss Cheese Room. Or how about a stop at Robot World, with the world's only robot-guided tour.

You say you came for water adventure? They have it, with water parks everywhere. Just take your pick. You can get a 265-foot water slide, mini bike rides, bumper boats, roller coasters, dune cat dragging, go cart racing, timed grand prix races, and bumper cars all in the same park. The more parks you visit the better the discounts on tickets. And you can obtain tickets through your hotel, no need to run from this place to that.

egibility points to friendly neatnik

I am anxious to know what your reading of my writing will divulge. I shall give you feedback. I have been reading it for a long time, and I feel some of your answers relate to me but the writings are variable.

Dear R.D. Handwriting such as yours, that is attractive, neat, legible and right-slanted all point to a person who is warm, friendly, affable, spontaneous and neat. Your kind heart usually rules your head. Bet the underdog always gets your support. You have learned to ingratiate yourself to others by making an effort to be friendlier than you may inwardly feel. You both enjoy and need attention. And a little showmanship and humor may help you accomplish this quite success-

Marginal spacing and attractive capital letters suggest a sense of aesthet-

Family oriented, many of your values and traditions are of long standing. A tendency to be possessive of those you love seems quite possible.

There is a basic optimism and belief in a higher being here. Also a spirit of adventure and imagination in those high flying i dots and t bars.

Your attitude toward many may vary somewhat. You probably start out your shopping wanting to be a tad careful with your spending. However as you become involved you may spend more than orginally intended, right?

This pattern can be hard on a budget. You strive to do all things well. Pride and discipline are both here. After you have done your best and worked to please others, you try to tell yourself you don't care when others are critical.

Seemingly, you do not always perceive yourself the same. Sometimes you hold rather modest feelings, even to the point of under estimating yourself. Still there are times you realize how much you really have going for you. It is important to be aware of your uniqueness and think positive at all times. tices, learning their skills.

Youngsters at First Methodist Church of Plymouth Summer Bible School had an opportunity to go back in time to 29 AD and a marketplace setting in the Holy Land.

Tents were set up on the rolling land back of the church on North Territorial Road and the children became members of the 12 tribes of Israel. Each day of the week they wore robes and sandals and experienced life as it was almost 2,000 years ago.

More than 180 children took part in the project planned by Sally Kalozi, Cindy Sossen and Fran Loiselle. Adult members of the church filled many roles to make the make-believe setting a reality. They became the artisans of the community, the leaders of the tribes, teaching the young peo-

"Kathy's family needed hope."

A young mother with a serious illness. Her family in crisis. They came to Harper Hospital and found new hope. They learned that Harper is a university-based research and teaching hospital. A place where scientists work alongside physicians, transforming discovery into treatment. They found that Harper concentrates on the tough adult cases in cancer, heart disease and serious vision disorders.

Patients like Kathy come to

Harper Hospital at the Medical Center with confidence. They come because Harper is a major participant, together with the Sloan-Kettering Institute in New York and the M.D. Anderson Tumor Institute in Houston, in America's network of only twenty Comprehensive Cancer Centers. Patients know that if the diagnosis is cancer, there is no better place to be than Harper Hospital. And they come with confidence because the Kresge Eye Institute is at Harper Hospital. This important Medical Center resource is devoted exclusively to the problems of vision. And through its research and clinical work, the Kresge Eye Institute gives new hope to millions with impaired vision throughout the world. Harper is hope for heart patients, too. Its large scale, nationally recognized program brings together research, teaching, surgery and medicine. More open heart surgeries are performed each year at Harper than are performed at any other hospital in Michigan. But of more significance is the growing number of heart patients Harper is able to treat successfully each year without surgery.

For Kathy and her family.

For you and your family. Harper Hospital is Science.

Research. Hope and Healing.

Blaskie-Lake

Susan Margaret Lake and Gerald John Blaskie exchanged marriage vows June 29 in Our Lady of Counsel Catholic Church, Plymouth. The Rev. Kenneth MacKinnon officiated. The couple's parents are Richard and Betty Lake of Fairground, Plymouth, and Gerald and Sally Blaskie of Walnut, Dearborn.

The bride's white lace dress had a four-foot train that converted to a bustle for dancing. Her mother made her veil. The bride carried a bouquet of roses, lily of the valley, pink daisies, carnations and baby's breath. Maria Lake, maid of honor, wore dusty rose. Her bridesmaids, Tina Blaskie and Judy Zajac, and flower girl Kirsten Pelz wore rose gowns. Their flowers matched their gowns.

Tracy Blaskie was best man and ushers were Michael Kwolek and Robert Moore. Jason Kwolek was ring bearer. The wedding reception was at Behnan Hall, Southfield, and the couple honeymooned through central Michigan. They will live in Westland.

The bride earned an associated degree in child development at Schoolcraft College in 1985 and is employed at Children's World in Livonia. Her husband is a 1983 graduate of the University of Michigan with a bachelor of science degree in electrical engineering. He is employed by Ford Motor Co. in Dearborn.

Tennis coach switches to the ministry

staff writer

Barbara Koch has switched from serving on the tennis court to serving from the pulpit.

Koch, the former women's varsity tennis coach at Cornell University, is the new pastor of Good Shepherd Lutheran Church in Redford.

Although she's changed her emphasis from body to soul, Koch said her two fields of interest complement each other nicely.

"What I've learned through sports the dedication, drive and determination - all helps in strengthening my faith life," she said.

"I feel that coaching and being a pastor are similar in many respects. There is the motivation, there is a critical, analytical eye. There is the critical ability of the coach to help players perfect their strokes, and the motivation of the teacher to educate, to help people to understand their faith life.'

KOCH, WHO graduated from Luther Northwestern Seminary in May, assumed the pastorship of the Redford church last week.

She said it was a gradual process that transformed her from physical education teacher and coach to Lutheran Church of America minister.

A native of Monroe, Mich., Koch started playing tennis as a child and competed in junior tennis tournaments in Michigan and other states. She earned a bachelor's degree in physical education from Adrian College in 1970 and a master's degree in physical education from Western Illinois University in 1971.

After teaching at Monroe's Jefferson High School for a year, she was hired to replace her twin sister, Cathy, as a physical education teacher and coach 'What I've learned through sports — the dedication, drive and determination - all helps in strengthening my faith life.'

- Pastor Barbara Koch Good Shepherd Lutheran

at Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y., in Koch was the women's varsity basketball coach at the Ivy League school her first three years there. She also was the women's B team tennis coach, and eventually became the varsity tennis coach her last three years at Cor-

AS SHE was helping others strengthen their game, she was also strengthening her own faith.

In 1976 and 1977 she attended Myron McNamara's tennis camps at the University of California at Irvine where the focus was both on tennis and religion. The players would meet for prayer time and Bible study before meeting on the courts.

"That started my combining sports and faith," Koch said.

While coaching and teaching at Cornell, Koch worked on the side with teen-agers and children through a local Lutheran youth association. Years of competitive tennis and badminton had taken their toll on Koch's legs, however. Eventually she underwent arthroscopic surgery for de-generative bone arthritis in her right knee. She decided she to quit coaching and left Cornell in 1981.

HER WORK with the youth groups encouraged her to enter the two-year youth ministry program at Luther Northwestern Seminary. She eventually decided to make a full commitment to the ministry and switched to the four-year, master of divinity program.

Women Lutheran ministers are becoming increasingly common, but Koch still felt some gender-related ssure when she made her decision for the ministry.

"When I entered the seminary I wanted to prove to myself I could perform at a higher level than men. But that's not what's important. What's important is being in Christ, which allows me to do the work of the ministry. "There will be and are people who are prejudiced. All of us are, if we're honest. At this point I feel it's the pastor that's important in me, rather than the fact that I'm a woman. I'm a pastor who happens to be a woman, rather than a woman who happens to be a pas-

When she graduated from the seminary last spring, she was one of 34 women in a class of 152.

Koch said she is eager to take on the challenge of the Good Shepherd pastorship and is delighted with the response of the congregation.

She also intends to keep playing tennis — although she recognizes where her first priority is.

While working toward her ministry degree, Koch served an internship at First Lutheran Church in Idaho Falls, Idaho, in 1983-84. Before she left, the church's pastor, Paul K. Hanson, wrote a poem that humorously sums up the differences between Koch's two ca-

In tennis love means nothing, but in church it means it all; it's greater e'en than Faith and Hope to quote Apostle Paul. You serve in church and ministry, as in a tennis meet, but here you always serve to help and never to defeat. Here you don't play to weaknesses, but only to the strengths.

And in this you have got the stuff for going to great lengths

The Rev. Luther A. Werth will be installed as pastor of Christ Our Savior Lutheran Church at 3:30 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 11. The installation will be in the sanctuary of the church, 14175 Farmington Road, just north of I-96, in Livo-

Dr. Paul Foust, executive director of stewardship and evangelism, Michigan District Missouri Synod, will deliver the message. The Rev. Gordon Light, vice president of the Michigan District, will install the new pastor. Pastors from throughout southeastern Michigan will be involved in the service and participate in the traditional "laying on of the hands" ceremony.

Special instrumental and choral music is planned to support congregational responses in the installation service of praise. A dinner/reception will follow the service, at which time the congregation and friends will more intimately welcome the new pastor, his wife, Norma, and their three daughters, Rachel, Rebekah and Christina.

Werth graduated from Concordia College in St. Paul, Minn., Concordia Senior College in Fort Wayne, Ind., and Concordia Seminary in St. Louis. He most recently was the pastor of Hope Lutheran Church and School in Shawnee, Kans. His wife graduated from Concordia College in Seward, Neb., and worked as a teacher for seven years.

But perhaps the real tragedy of 1945 lies in the fact that even in 1965 we still think in the same fateful terms as we did then. O&E golf champ relishes chance to defend crown

EATH AND TAXES aren't the only certainties in life. As surely as working days will forever be too long and summertime will always be too short, the annual Observer & Eccentric golf tournaments will endure. And it's a sure bet that Geralyn Repasky will

"Oh, yeah - why wouldn't I?" the Livonia native asked, seemingly surprised someone might consider that she wouldn't show up. "I really like the championship. Gary Whitener and the people at Whispering Willows do a good job."

And yet, the O&E tournament has not been too kind to Repasky over the years. Her five-year record is, without doubt, the best of any golfer. And yet, until last year victory always eluded her. Three times she battled to within striking distance of the championship only to finish

THAT STREAK of frustration finally ended a year ago. Yet even her victory was shadowed by controversy. Repasky and Ann Lauer of Birmingham, the 1983 O&E champ, tied at 79

But Lauer was accused of illegally moving her ball. She denied the charge and, after a long and agonizing discussion, a playoff ensued. Repasky won the title on the first extra hole.

Whether or not Lauer moved her ball, in the long run, made no difference. Repasky won. The O&E title deservedly belonged to her

That memory is tucked deeply away now. Too much has happened since then for Repasky to dwell on it.

She'll start her junior year at Bowling Green State at the end of the month, and soon afterwards she'll be back on the links, defending her status as the Falcons' No. 1 female golfer. She earned that distinction by averaging 80 strokes per round last year.

"I WAS VERY happy with my golf last fall," she said. "I was shooting in the mid to upper 70s a lot of the time. I didn't play as well as I hoped this spring, but I played pretty well this Repasky's best finish last fall was third at the Michigan State University tournament. She had rounds of 76, 74 and 77.

The difference, she said, was a new practice routine. "Last year, before I went to school even before the O&E - I started working on a routine around the green," she explained. "That really made a difference in my short game."

When school ended, Repasky went on the tournament trail. She traveled to Webster, N.Y., for a feature tour event, then returned to Michigan for the state publing tourney. She won that in June and qualified for the national publinx championship in New Jersey

HER RUN for the national publinx title was a short one. Repasky was eliminated in the first round on the 18th hole, 1-up.

A trip to Columbus, Ohio, for the Judy Shock Tournament, was next, followed by an attempt to qualify for the U.S. Women's Open in Harrisburg, Pa. Repasky did not play well in Harrisburg -"My heart wasn't as in it as it should have been,"

she said — prompting her to return to Livonia early in July and set her clubs aside for awhile. 'I'm doing a lot of things," she said, adding, "but I'm not practicing as much. I decided to take some time off when I got home." Her first real exposure to life on the tour left Repasky with mixed emotions.

"I'VE BEEN going back and forth on whether or not I want to turn pro or not," she said. "Living week-to-week, out of the trunk of your car, not knowing whether or not you have a check coming or not - I want more security in my life than that.

"Getting my degree is the most important thing to me right now. So, despite a good year of golf, a year she agreed was her most consistent ever, Repasky remains uncertain about much of her future.

Except, of course, for the O&E tournament, scheduled for the first time on a Saturday Aug. 24.

"Entries don't close until the 17th, right?" Repasky asked. "I'm going to wait until I get my paycheck this week, then I'll go to Whispering Willows and enter."

The O&E tournament would never be the same without her.

Entry forms for the O&E Ladies Golf Championship, scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 24, are available at Whisper Willows Golf Course in Livonia and inside your Observer & Eccentric sports sections. Entries close Aug. 17.

West's bombs befuddle East

6 turnovers help West stop 2-game losing skid

By Chris McCosky staff writer

Craig Morton sat in an isolated area of the East all-stars' bench. Although the 5th annual Michigan High School East-West All-Star Football Game was in its final few minutes, his uniform was spotless, clean. If he perspired at all, it wasn't noticeable. There was a pained expression on his

"This is embarrassing," the Plymouth Salem graduate said. "I brought my family and my friends down here for this. This is just terrible."

Indeed, Saturday's football game was not a pleasurable experience for anyone connected with the East squad - and nine players and four coaches from the Observer & Eccentric area were very much connected with the

The West unleashed an explosive passing attack at MSU's Spartan Stadium and took advantage of a confused and disorganized East team en route to a 14-0 triumph in front of an announced crowd of 22,298.

Members of the press and several coaches felt the announced attendance was a bit exaggerated, although the crowd was larger Saturday than in the past two years. The final score was also deceiving.

It could easily have been 35-0 in favor of the West.

frustrations. "I've been open all day and haven't had a pass come near me," Morton

MORTON SUMMED up the East's

While West quarterbacks Tom Sullivan (Jackson Lumen Christi) and Joe Malatinsky (Lansing Eastern) combined for 266 yards passing and the two touchdowns, the East quarterbacks (Shamus O'Keefe from De La Salle and Mark Stroia from Allen Park Cabrini) could connect on just 7 of 26 passes for 94 yards with four interceptions.

"These things will happen in an allstar game," explained Livonia Churchill's Ken Kaestner, the East's head coach. "We just could never get untracked. Their quarterbacks were outstanding. They passed more successfully than we did and in this game, that was the major difference. Their quarterbacks had better days than ours." Things seemed to sour early for the East. The West, on their second possession of the game, marched 82 yards in 12 plays, scoring on a 13yard pass from Malatinsky to James Moore of Lansing Sexton.

THE EAST, on the running strength of Fred Owens (Bishop Borgess) and John Miller (Farmington Harrison), took the ensuing kickoff from their own 35 to the West 8. Owens gained 26 yards and Miller 16 on the drive.

It was the East's first and last sustained drive of the day and it died when Chad Darke (Livonia Bentley) shanked a 27-yard field goal attempt.

The West scored its final TD with 49 seconds left in the first half on a 9yard pass from Sullivan to Joe Durocher of Traverse City. It capped an impressive 55-yard drive, all but six of the yards coming via Sullivan's

On the day - and this stat really sums up the West's domination - the West gained 407 total yards to the East's 154.

Maurice Ware of Albion and Andre Rison of Flint Northwestern, a pair of All-Americans, were omnipresent for the West. Ware caught four passes for 75 yards. Rison intercepted two passes, caught one for 19 yards and had a 30-yard TD pass nullified by a penal-Borgess grad Fred Owens was the leading ground gainer for the East all-stars Saturday with 25 yards in nine carries. It was far from enough to prevent a 14-0 loss to the West.

Deck upbeat after Sports Festival

By Chris McCosky staff writer

If you haven't seen Deveny Deck skate in a while, you might want to head out to the Detroit Skating Club in Bloomfield Hills on Friday.

Deck, the pretty Plymouth Salem senior, is beginning to make a serious push toward the 1988 Olympics.

Fresh from a not-so-disappointing eighth-place finish in the senior pairs figure skating competition at the National Sports Festival in Baton Rouge, La., Deck and her partner, Luke Hohmann, of Buffalo will be particpating in the Pops on Ice exhibition at the Detroit Skating Club beginning at 8

The exhibition will feature U.S. National Ice Dance silver medalists Renee Roca and Donald Adair as well as local skaters who have achieved national and international acclaim.

Included in the program will be Su-

Deck-Hohmenn Olympic-bound? san and Jason Dungjen of Troy (third at the Sports Festival), Shanda and Brandon Smith of Rochester, Micki McMahon of Garden City, and, of course, Deck and Hohmann, the 1985 junior pairs champions.

"WE WON'T be doing the programs we use in competition," the personable Deck said, taking a break from her workout Tuesdsay afternoon. "We will be using our show program, which is Deck came away from the National Sports Festival with a very positive outlook on her future in figure skating.

We placed eighth but I don't really feel too disappointed," Deck said. "Of course we hoped to do better. But we went out there just to get experience. It was our first competition in seniors. Going from juniors to seniors is a big step. The experience we got was the big thing."

To add a little extra pressure, Deck and Hohmann used a brand-new program at the festival.

We made a few mistakes, but considering it was the first time we used the program, it wasn't too bad," she

How far are Deck and Hohmann from challenging the elite in senior pairs?

"A couple of years or maybe just a year," Deck said. "It all depends on timing and experience. We have to go out and perform well every time. They are looking for consistency in pairs. If we can be consistent, we can be there with the best."

THE NEXT hurdle for Deck and Hohmann will come Oct. 14-20 in Minnesota. The pair will represent the U.S. in Skate America, the only winter national competition held in this country.

Friday's Pops on Ice exhibition is free, although donations will be accepted for the United States Figure Skating Association's Memorial Fund, which assists competitive skaters.

The Detroit Skating Club is at 888 Denison Court near Telegraph and Square Lake roads.

MSHL race down to wire

staff writer

At the outset of the season, commissioner A.J. Baker said his Midwest Summer Hockey League, in its third season, was "the best it's ever been." He couldn't have known at that time the title chase in each division would come down to the final game of the season.

But that's exactly what has happened. Five of the eight teams are in the running for a division crown in the league's final week.

Each team has one game remaining (after Monday night). In the Tex Conference, the Wolverines and Bulldogs are dead even with 7-3 marks. In the Bakes Conference, the Huskies hold a one-point lead over the Wildcats and Lakers, both 5-5.

It'll all be settled by Saturday. On Tuesday, the Wildcats and Broncos battled, as did the Spartans and Falcons. On Wednesday, the Huskies and Wolverines went at it. Tonight, the regular season concludes with the Lakers battling the Bulldogs at 9:30

THE MSHL playoffs commence Saturday (see playoff schedule). At stake is a trip to Chicago for a fourteam tournament Aug. 17-18.

On the Plymouth Cultural Center ice last week the play had already reached playoff intensity.

Sunday, the Bakes Conference-leading Huskies blew a 7-4 lead against the last-place Spartans, but Steve Szydlowski came to the rescue with a goal late in the game to give the Huskies an 8-7 win.

Dave Bramble, the league's scoring leader with 13 goals and 19 assists, earned the hat trick for the Huskies. He also notched a pair of assists. Fourteen-year-old Neal Carnes of Plymouth scored a goal and added three assists.

For the Spartans, Livonia Franklin's Tim Olschanski and John Galuardi each scored a pair. Livonia Churchill's Ed Shepler also scored. In a Tex Conference showdown

Sunday, the Bulldogs earned back their share of first place by outslugging the Wolverines 10-7. The Dogs fell behind 3-0 early. It could have been much worse. Bulldog goalie Jeff Safran (Catholic Central) came up with several crucial stops to keep his Finally, New York Islander Mark Hamway and RPI College's Rick Tosto began finding the net. When it was over, Hamway and Tosto each scored three times, with Hamway also getting a pair of assists.

Tony Byers scored twice for the

THE FINAL contest Sunday pitted a pair of teams going in opposite directions. The Lakers, winners of three straight, knocked off the Wildcats, losers of five in a row, 8-5.

For A.J. Baker's Lakers, brothers Darryl and Bobby Moise figured in seven of the eight goals. Darryl scored three times and added two assists, while Bobby scored two goals.

Sean Flynn scored twice for the slumping Cats.

The excitement continued Monday as the Wolves and Bulldogs survived serious challenges to stay atop the Tex Conference.

THE WOLVERINES ousted the Broncos 7-5. Rob Brown scored three goals including the game-winner. Tony Byers stayed hot with two goals and an assist.

Todd Krygier scored thee goals for the Broncos

The Bulldogs kept pace by nipping the Falcons, 4-3, despite the excellent play of Falcon goalie Mark Tardish (Country Day).

Joe Hamway scored a pair of goals and Mark Hamway one for the Dogs. Mike Stahley also scored.

Rick Osborn, Paul Kobylarz and Brian Gimotty scored for the Falcons.

The Midwest Summer Hockey League, sponsored by Little Caesars and Chrysler-Plymouth, features players from pro, college and high school as well as the best players throughout the Observer & Eccentric coverage area.

Rick Tosto, who played on the NCAA champion RPI College team, is among the scoring leaders this summer in the Midwest Summer Hockey League.

The objective: improve the Michigan MDA 10-kilometer run.

How: plan a three-pronged attack, with goals of a better weekend, better competition and better prizes.

Why: a better run means greater community involvement, increased publicity and, in the long run, more money generated for the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

SO FAR, all plans are on target for the second annual Michigan MDA 10kilometer run, co-sponsored by Seven-Eleven and the Observer & Eccentric and hosted by the Redford Road Runners. The run will be Sunday, Aug. and placing in age group, pace and 18, starting at the Southfield Civic Cen-

Mike Keeler of Seven-Eleven, the race director, has assurances that last year's overall winners - Joe Caruso and Cindy Barber — will return to de-fend their titles. The competition will be stiff, however.

"The field this year will be real tough," Keeler said. "No one's going to be able to just jog through this and win it. There's going to be some real horses out there.

Joining Barber, Michigan Runner magazine's 1983 Runner of the Year and a past Free Press marathon champion, and Caruso will be Doug Kurtis (1984 Michigan Runner of the Year) and Kathy Grover. Keeler has tentative commitments from other highly regarded runners like Ron Lesard, Sam Torres, Gary Reffitt and Tony Mifsud.

BUT A GOOD RACE isn't the only attraction. Last year the race was in November and poor weather hampered participation. With a summer date for this year's run, weather is bound to be better. Also, no other major runs are scheduled for that date.

Pro future still bright for Robertson

With the major league Baseball strike in full gear, it wouldn't be a bad time for former Redford St. Agatha High School product Andy Robertson to impress the Cleveland Indians' brass.

It took a shootout, but the Redford Marauders captured the Great Lakes Men's Soccer League title Sunday, defeating the Livonia Wolves West, 1-0. at Livonia's Whitman Park.

Both teams went through 90 minutes of regulation play and 30 minutes of overtime without scoring. The squads followed by engaging in a shootout. which the Marauders won 3-2.

Marauders coach John Pettersson, whose team finished the regular season in the first-place tie with the Wolves. said having shorter and faster players worked to his team's advantage.

"We played a 4-4-2 system (four backs, four midfielders and forwards)," Pettersson explained. "We succeeded in tiring out their backs with a smaller and quicker team."

Injuries took their toll on the Wolves. according to coach Emilio Troiani.

"John Galindo broke his nose and couldn't play, and Gary Mexicotte and Dave Kusza were both bothered by injuries," said the Wolves coach. "With those three at 100 percent, there's no regulation time. But a shootout can go son, then preserved the victory by bateither way."

THE WOLVES took an early 1-0 lead in the shootout.

Mexicotte, a former All-Stater at Livonia Stevenson and Bowling Green University player, beat Marauder goalie Brian O'Shea with the first shot. Marauder Brian Jones then missed wide to the right.

In the next series, the Marauders tied it up.

O'Shea made a good save on the next attempt taken by Kusza, while 'ames Sorgahan put the Marauders ahead 2 on a from point-blank range.

Russ Gans then froze O'Shea on one side of the net, and went the other way for a goal that nicked the lower right-side post to make it 2-2. But Ilja Vreeken scored what proved to be the game winner for the Marauders, going high to make it 3-2.

Richards also beat Sabatini's (6-2) and Stark Hickey (14-3) in first- and second-round games, respectively.

Jerry Staszel was the losing pitcher in the final two games for the defending Metro-Detroit champions, who received a berth in the 10-man National Invitational Aug. 30 to Sept. 2 in

There were several heroes offensively in FGS's 8-2 win in the championship against Total Foods.

CRAIG LEE homered and Keith McManaway collected two hits and two RBI for the winners. Charlie Johnson also knocked in two runs.

Earlier in the week, McManaway doubled in Rick Dreher and Charlie Johnson with the tying and winning runs in the top of the seventh to give FGS a 3-2 win over Total Foods for the Canton Softball Center's Modified Fast Pitch League crown.

The bar is a local pub and the Irish singer has to compete on many a summer evening with big-screen television broadcasting Tiger ballgames.

But, Marty Burke has probably dealt with worse things in his life at least that's what you think when you listen to his smokey voice tell a story in song or watch him chain smoke in a European manner between songs. Even the sound system, which can't overcome the talk at the tables full of softball players, is against Marty Burke some nights. Yet, he captures something Irish when he sings. Give him a chance at a song like "Streets of London" or the polgnant "Armstrong" and his songs become unique, unforgettable things.

A 42-year old singer who's been at Royal Oak's Four Green Fields since it opened four years ago, Southfield resident Marty Burke is one of the few Irish singers in the area. "Some people come for genuine Irish songs," Burke says between sets, "and that's what I'm known for."

That's not to say that he doesn't do contemporary songs or an occasional old Kingston Trio standard. But, Burke, who earns a living by day in the computer business, has been enchanted with Ireland and its history for much of his life. He has guest lectured on the subject here and there, and he adds, "If the audience is really listening, I like to weave a story out of my songs and the history. Often people don't know history well and I like to shake them up with it."

Born in Grosse Pointe, Burke

Even as a solo act, which he's been for a few years now, Burke loves a good story and he emphasizes that's what his songs are all about. "I've al-

SEVERAL MUSICAL highlights are on the scene this month. Included are a concert at Meadow Brook Music Festival on Monday, Aug. 12, by French pianist and composer Claude Bolling with Jean-Pierre Rampal, and the beginning of the Montreux Detroit Jazz Festival.

Another highlight is the first Detroit-area appearance by the Dirty Dozen Brass Band.

The Dirty Dozen will perform at 6 p.m. Monday, Aug. 19, at P'Jazz at the Pontchartrain Hotel Terrace in Detroit. The New Orleans-based brass band built its reputation in the Crescent City by playing in parades and funerals. It also, strangely enough, started out as a kazoo band.

And although it comes from a long brass-band tradition in its hometown, the music the Dirty Dozen Brass Band plays is anything but traditional. It doesn't sound like the Preservation Hall Jazz Band, which represents another tradition. Nor does it sound like the Canadian Brass.

Instead, the Dirty Dozen Brass

Band keeps the spirit of turn-of-thecentury New Orleans marching bands while employing a contemporary format that brings together funk, bop and swing arrangements. The effect, both on its first album ("My Feet Can't Fail Me Now," Concord Jazz) and in person, is electric.

Using bop tunes like Thelonious Monk's "Blue Monk" and Charlie Parker's "Bongo Beep," along with big band standards such as Ellington's "Caravan" and its own chanted "My Feet Can't Fail Me Now," the band always generates audience enthusiasm and a dancing, marching spirit.

"Just let the people know that it's all right to get up and dance," Greg Tate, the band's leader and trumpeter, has been quoted as saying. And it's certain that he means it when he adds: "You should be up on your feet. You know, we want you to have a

It will be a slimmed-down festival in this its 6th year, with fewer jazz acts and fewer venues. But still, there'll be more music going on most of the six days of the festival than anyone could hope to listen to.

Among featured attractions, in addition to singer Sarah Vaughan and saxophonist extraordinaire Sonny Rollins, will be former Detroiters Ron Carter (bass) and Tommy Flanagan (piano). Carter and Flanagan will play at Baker's Keyboard Lounge Friday, Aug. 30, through Sunday, Sept. 1, with two shows each night.

Concerts that seem most appealing will be the Friday night (Aug. 30) concert by diminutive French pianist Michel Petrucciani at the Detroit Institute of Arts Recital Hall. Petrucciani, only in his early 20s, has been influenced by the major jazz pianist Bill Evans, but the Frenchman has a mature, individual style that has impressed both fans and critics.

Toshiko Akiyoshi is one of the major female voices in jazz, although she doesn't sing (that we know of). Her voice is heard through her compositions and arrangements for her own jazz orchestra. Humor just doesn't measure up

The Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford production of "Friends in Dark Places" by Janet Mackie Hackel continues at 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday at the TGLR Playhouse, 15138 Beech-Daly, Redford. Tickets at $3 are available at

By Michael R. Rothsar special writer

Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford's premiere performances of the farce "Friends in Dark Places" occasionally comes up to the level of being moderately amusing, but the uneven cast never quite makes it all the way to funny.

"Friends in Dark Places" is the first work by new playwright Janet Mackie Hackel. This type of comedy depends upon vulgarity and outlandish situations for its humor rather than wit or subtlety. Like all good plays in this genre, "Friends" uses stereotyped characters and unlikely plot reversals. The story is about four young female roommates preparing a party in their apartment for influential people who are considering giving a grant to one of the roommates.

Complications include bickering among the friends, an intoxicated bartender, stopped-up plumbing, clumsy accidents and a rather strange visitor who quite inconveniently dies.

It is likely that the playwright has based her fictional roommates on people she knows. She seems to have a good ear for everyday dialogue. In fact, one of the play's flaws is that the conversations in the introductory scene sound so much like real life they border on monotony. But she does succeed in introducing her characters well enough to achieve

ONE OF MACKEL'S strong points is her ability to write overlapping dialogue, in which simultaneous conversations produce amusing non sequiturs and startling revelations. Unfortunately, the cast of this production is allowed to pace its lines so slowly that the effect is almost completely obliterated.

Pace, in general, is the major flaw in the performance. Outrageous farce demands a breathtaking speed if the plot twists and sardonic lines are to be effective. Here, the humor is muffled by long pauses and hesitant movement.

Susan Reno is featured as Luther, the high-living roommate with the low-life friends. The production makes good use of her fine singing voice as she drifts off regularly into her headphones and comments on the action through the words of pop songs. Reno also is effective in portraying the touch of melodrama unnecessarily provided by the script through Luther's pregnancy.

Joseph Haynes exhibits a fine sense of timing and an attention-getting voice as O'Toole, the only male character who is well-drawn. The audience brightens up each time he is on stage. Haynes deserves every bit of his lingering applause for creating a whimsical and convincing character.

review

Linda Kruz is suitably aggressive as Tedi, the rich, sexy roommate always willing to try something (or someone) new. While Kruz frequently seems awkward in her stage movement, she gives a performance with enough energy to overcome it.

PATRICIA JAMES plays Blue, the roommate who (as the playwright incessantly reminds us throughout the second act) likes to mother everyone. Mark Willette is frequently charming as J.D., the attorney who discovers her more romantic side. As a couple, Jones and Willette occasionally spar-Kathleen L. Lietz is an unfortunate choice to play the principal character of Alice. Obviously inexperienced, she needs much more work on characterization and comic timing. Daniel Taylor is adequate as Alice's boyfriend Sam, but the role is so barren that he has little opportunity to make much impact. Others in the cast are Scott E. Dlugos, Bob Pici and Mark Tucker.

Directed by Robert Welbel, "Friends in Dark Places" is being presented as part of the guild's summer workshop program.

"The Prize" is a spy thriller scripted by a screenwriter whose work comes highly recom-mended. Ernest Lehman's best effort in the spy genre is "North by Northwest." But he's crafted many another Hollywood hit, from "Sabrina" to "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" "The Prize," starring Paul Newman and Elke Sommer, looks a little better than it actually is. But it's quickly paced and an amusing enough diversion. Edward G. Robinson, Leo G. Carroll and Diane Baker co-star in the film from the Irving Wallace novel.

"Major Dundee" (1965), 8 p.m. Friday on Ch. 20. Originally 124 minutes. TV time slot: 120 minutes.

"Major Dundee" is a brutally realistic and stirring cavalry picture by director Sam Peckinpah, who in later years would inundate his films with blood and gore. Here he remains on a more even tack, spicing the film with bits of violence, a lot of action and fascinating characters. Charlton Heston, Richard Harris, Warren Oates, Ben Johnson, Jim

Curlously, Peckinpah disowned "Major Dundee"
after its release, claiming it was butchered by studio chiefs. Yet the film stands up as one of the director's best efforts. Ch. 20, on the other hand, is definitely butchering the film by cramming it into a two-hour time slot, as is so often its wont (see above). George Hamilton is a fine comedic actor, as he proved in "Love at First Bite" (1979), a pretty funny spoof of "Dracula." He's just as good in this parody of "Zorro," but "Zorro, the Gay Blade" is a lousy movie. Ron Leibman as an abrasive, bellowing, terribly exaggerated villain, sets the tone for this boorish film. There's no subtlety or charm to be found anywhere here, and Hamilton can't salvage

Young pianists shine in S'craft competition

'It was mind-boggling how talented they were. They played better than some college students.'

> - Donald Morelock, Schoolcraft College piano program director

By Sandra Armbruster staff writer

They came from as far away as Hawaii and parts of Canada. They were sent by such prestigious institutions as Julliard and Eastman. And when all 615 of the semifinalists arrived, the young students competed for prizes totaling $55,000 in the fifth annual international piano competition sponsored by the Young Keyboard Artists Associ-

"It was mind-boggling how talented they were," said Donald Morelock, director of Schoolcraft College's preparatory piano program. "They played better than some college students."

So it was a real tribute to the Schoolcraft program when three of its students brought home honors as finalists in the junior artists division.

HONORED FOR their ability were Brad Buszard, 17, of Livonia, Yun Kyung Lee, 9, of Oak Park, and Rox-anne Chang, 13, of Ann Arbor.

Buszard, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Buszard, tied with another contestant for a $100 Steinway dealership award for special recognition. A student at Interlochen this summer, he also has won a $4,000 scholarship to the University of Michigan, the third student from Schoolcraft's program to have received an award from the uni-

Yun, another finalist, came to the states from Korea one year ago and has since placed first in the Schoolcraft honors recital and was a winner in the Ann Arbor Bach Sonatina/Sonata competitions.

Roxane, like the other finalists, began studies as an early age. She received an honorable mention in the competition and was chosen as an alternate for a scholarship to Interlochen's national music camp.

"The competition was great for the kids," Morelock said. "I told them they could enter if they would listen to the others. They got to hear repertoire, what's happening around the country. It was a positive exposure."

THE RECENT Ann Arbor competition is the only one Morelock knows of with that prestige for the younger plano student. But the quality of the voung musicians reflects chang teaching of the instrument, Morelock

"There have been changes in training, so that children are getting the best possible instruction earlier, instead of waiting," he said. Those changes in training include dents ranging in age from 6 to 18. Students are chosen by interview, not by audition, Morelock said.

That reflects the type of students. Most teachers don't get exceptional students. For those teachers who want more, that's built into the program also, so we can teach the whole thing."

During the summer, the college has operated a chamber music program, which runs from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. five days a week for four weeks. Students learn chamber music technique, sight reading, duets and solo performance.

ALL THE LEARNING paid off for the three in the competition.
"Students seem to be challenged,"

Morelock continued. "They need to know what's possible for them.

"The judge said no longer does just the east and west coasts have a monopoly (on good pianists)."

That reflects better training available in the last 10 years, said Morelock, who has a master's degree in piano performance from U-M and has studied at the Aspen School of Music in Colorado, as well as in Vienna and New York.

What happens when a student graduates from the Schoolcraft program? Morelock says that a lot choose to pursue the study of music, but not as their only subject. Some combine piano performance with an MBA. Other students Morelock has know have chosen computers and engineering as something to

"By preparing for two careers, they have the solid training earlier so if they get the chance (to excel as a pianist) they've got the background."

MORELOCK BELIEVES the best time for a youngster to start lessons is at age seven. After having been in school for a year, the student has developed some reading ability, important in following passages. In addition, most music is written for that age, Morelock

Students start out in groups, with parents encouraged to visit. That gets students accustomed to performing for the public, making the transition to competition easier.

Most students in the Schoolcraft program are from the western metropolitan area and take lessons twice a week, according to Morelock

Of course, every member in our family needs divine supervision, but it just seems like Adam needs a little more than the rest of us.

You see, I am an "early riser." I'm usually "up and at 'em" at the crack of 9 or 9:30 a.m. OK, I used to be an early riser. Early Monday morning I stepped out on the back deck, stretched, yawned and then choked at the sight I side down.

"Be careful," were my first spoken words that morning, as I couldn't bear to watch my 6-year-old boy just being a boy. Also, as I backed into the house with my hand over my eyes, I whispered aloud, "and especially Adam. By the time I had eaten breakfast and put on my swim suit, Adam had already suited up complete with goggles and nose plugs. The second I stepped outside I saw his little body doing a half twisting "cannonball" dive smack in the middle of our pool where it is seven feet deep. When he didn't immediately reappear, I hurried towards the water. Then with a splash, a gasp, a giggle and a grin Adam yelled, "Did ya see how long I can hold my breath?"

Again I said, "Adam, please be careful," and subconsciously requested, "Oh Lord, especially Adam."

Later that day it was a yardstick sword fight with Devon (the little neighbor boy). Then a serious game of floor hockey in the drive way. Ouch! The sound is unmistakable: bare knees against concrete. "Hey, you guys be careful," I yelled again, and whispered, "Oh Lord, especially

If it is true that everyone has a ist tightens up too much and the meguardian angel, I think Adam is working his overtime. In fact, I'm afraid that some little kid is going around without a guardian angel, because I'm almost sure Adam has two. Really, though, my little Adam isn't reckless at all, he is just a very typical 6-year-old boy doing the stuff that little boys do. It's more likely that it's just me. I am older now, and better appreciate the miracle and responsibility that is embodied in each of my

Like a worried parent, many artists internally call to themselves "be careful," "now watch out for paint drips," "that wash is too dark" and "don't go out of the lines." If the artwork could talk back it would probably say "Aw, come on, let me just be a pen and ink or a pastel or a watercol-

Michigan Barn Architecture' at MSU

Chew Mail Pouch Tobacco.'

That message, painted in bold letters on weathered barns, was once a common countryside sight. But these barnyard billboards have become scarce. Barns and other farmstead structures are rapidly disappearing, along with the dwindling farm population. A new Michigan State University Museum exhibit, "Michigan Barn Architecture," captures the changing architectural forms found on Michigan farms from the 1830s to 1960.

Terry Shaffer, assistant curator, spent the past six months researching and developing the exhibit, which includes barn models, photographs, tools and barn-related implements.

how historical materials can contribute to agricultural research and education," Shaffer said. "Barn architecture reflects changing agricultural ideas, new technology, family traditions and ethnic backgrounds.

Photographs from collections by Lee Hamilton and Jack Worthington have been selected to show English, German, Dutch, Finnish and Middle European invluences on Michigan examples of round and polygon barns.

Display cases feature wooden barn models from the museum's collectin of Works Progress Administration structures, used in agricultural engineering courses on campus until Exhibit materials trace the architectural evolution of barns from hand-hewn, heavy of the early 1900s - the classic barn design to the 1920s modern barn kits from Sears and the 1930s laminated rafter barns.

The exhibit will be on display in the muse-um's West Gallery until Feb. 5. Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday - Friday, until 9 p.m. Thursday, and 1-5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Admission is free. The building is accessible to the handicapped.
