Public safety services on line in tax vote

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen says he doesn't want to be accused of using scare tactics or threats when he outlines what could happen if voters next Tuesday reject a property tax increase for police, fire and emergency medical services.

However, Breen recognizes that a dollar has only so much buying power and that he must propose a balanced budget with the most bang for the buck.

"All I can tell you is with a 2-mill budget (no tax increase), we can't maintain services we have today," he said.

Voters will be asked to approve a tax hike of $2 for every $1,000 of state equalized valuation (half of a property's fair market value) for 20 years.

However, Breen said that due to the expiration of some township millage this year, the actual increase in property taxes — should the proposal pass — would be 1.15 mills.

What does that mean in dollars and cents?

- A homeowner whose property has a market value of $80,000, the township average, would have been charged $114 for township operations this year.
- The same $80,000 house — assuming no increase in value — would produce $160 next year if the public safety millage were to be approved. That's an increase of $46 from this year.
- The same $80,000 house — assuming no increase in value — would generate $80 next year if the public safety millage were to fail. That's a decrease of $34.

(To calculate your tax for township operations should the millage pass, take your property's state equalized valuation — available at township hall or on your most recent tax bill — divide that number by 1,000, then multiply that result by 2).

One mill currently generates about $360,000 in revenue townshipwide, Breen said.

SEVERAL OPTIONS are available, Breen said, if the public safety millage were to fail.

"We have 15 police officers," he said. "In order to maintain 15, we need millage. If we don't get millage, we have to get down to nine."

"We have 12 firefighters. We have to go to 15 to maintain two rescue rigs and two fire stations," Breen continued. "You can't really run at 12. You're betwixt and between. You would have to close one station."

The township's 25,000 residents are spread over about 16 square miles.

Breen also said that should the tax proposal go down to defeat, the township could continue to operate at current levels until money runs out, then ask for additional tax dollars at that time.

The supervisor also has proposed tacking on a 1-percent administrative and collection fee to all city tax bills if the public safety millage is rejected. That fee would generate about $130,000, Breen said.

BREEN'S PROPOSALS for now are just that — proposals.

The township board collectively approves the budget which determines personnel levels.

Police Chief Carl Berry explained how his department would be affected if manpower were cut from 15 to nine. "Neighborhood patrol, more than anything else, would decrease," he said.

Persons victimized by minor crimes — malicious destruction of property and some larcenies — might be instructed to personally come to the station during business hours to file reports. Ditto for persons involved in car accidents on private property.

"Response time would slow," Berry said.

Fire Chief Larry Groth said that response time could more than double if one of the township's two fire stations were closed.

"If it doesn't pass, I wouldn't be able to maintain two fire stations on a full-time basis . . . and there's no way we could feasibly operate EMS," Groth said. Fire prevention programs and inspections would also be cut, he added.

LAST JULY, township residents rejected a 4-mill tax hike by a 3-1 margin. Breen says he hopes for better things this time around.

"We've been told people didn't believe there was the necessity for having it last July, number one, and it wasn't defined where the money was going to be used," Breen said. "The board was convinced nobody wanted to get rid of police, fire or rescue service — that's what's on the line."

"We put information out. We hope people read it, believe it and vote to sustain the community they live in."

A couple of promillage groups have formed to promote the tax proposal. Breen said he isn't aware of any organized opposition.

Board explains decision

Before the final vote was taken on whether to allow Gundella to speak at Plymouth Salem High, all seven school board members expressed their opinions on the issue.

Following is a summary of the opinions expressed by trustees at Monday's meeting of the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education:

- David Artley: Noting that Gundella has 20 years experience as a teacher and has earned degrees, Artley said she was an appropriate resource person to discuss the history of witchcraft and the board would be remiss if it didn't allow her to speak. Artley said he had a problem with people who questioned his religious beliefs because he didn't agree with them. Artley said the best place for a child to explore any idea, including witchcraft, is in an academic setting with the guidance of professionals.
- Dean Swartzwelder: "All of us must support the Michigan and U.S. Constitution, but looking beyond the legal cases a broad issue of principle is raised." Swartzwelder said he has spent time in countries where academic free-

Gundella's talk gets green light

By Emory Daniels
staff writer

Gundella the witch made her scheduled appearance yesterday at Plymouth Salem High, following a last-minute unsuccessful appeal by opponents Monday night at the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education meeting.

Earlier an appeal to prevent her appearance was made to Superintendent John M. Hoben by the Rev. Thomas Pals, associate pastor at First Baptist Church of Plymouth.

Hoben denied the appeal, citing a report from a review committee, which confirmed the right of self-professed witch Marion Kuclio (Gundella) to speak to social studies, psychology and American history classes at Salem High.

Pals appealed the superintendent's decision to the school board, which Monday night voted 7-0 to uphold Gundella's right to speak to students. At that meeting, a legal opinion was presented, which said that separation of church-state did not specifically apply to the appearance but that freedom of speech and academic freedom did.

Pals addressed the board along with the Rev. Marshall Gentry of Calvary Assembly of God in Canton and a half-dozen residents. The motion to confirm the decision of Hoben and the review committee to allow Gundella to speak was made by trustee E.J. McClendon and supported by Elaine Kirchgatter.

The review committee consisted of two parents, an administrator, a librarian and a teacher. The committee's report concluded that "there is room in any carefully developed curriculum for the use of a wide variety of educational strategies. To take one of these strategies out of context is to cast a chill on all that is creative and innovative in the profession of teaching."

The committee and the district's attorney stressed that Gundella was not invited to conduct a religious ceremony or to proselytize and that she had not done so at previous appearances at other schools and groups.

ROLAND THOMAS, board president, noted that the review committee interviewed Pals for 45 minutes before it made a decision.

Thomas then summarized the legal opinion written by John T. MacLean of Draugelis, Ashton, Scully, Haynes, MacLean & Pollard.

After summarizing case law, MacLean wrote: "With these constitutional principles in mind, the school board would face far greater risk of a successful constitutional challenge to its action were it to cancel Gundella's scheduled appearance."

"To be sure, the school district would have sufficient reason to cancel that appearance if Gundella were going to attempt to indoctrinate the students in the virtues of witchcraft."

"Based on the history of her presentations, however, the opposition groups' claims amount to no more than 'bare allegations' and standing alone they are an insufficient basis for interfering with the students' right to receive the information she will impart."

RICHARD KAYE, resident, said he felt selection of the review committee by the administration made it a biased panel.

He argued Gundella was not a positive role model for youth and the administration knew that or they would not have allowed an alternative activity for students who didn't want to attend. "If Jonas Salk were the speaker, would we have an alternative activity?"

Enthusiasm signals bright future in communications

By Diane Gale
staff writer

At 26 years old, Maria Holmes has reached a high-level position at a cable company, manages to juggle "quality time" with her child and husband, has launched a successful community food program and maintains an outlook that holds a promising future.

When Holmes says, "I'll immensely enjoy my life," the nod of her head, conviction in her voice and sparkle in her brown eyes are sure signs the statement will come true.

Since September when Suzanne Skubick went on maternity leave, Holmes has been working as acting community affairs and program director for Omnicon Cablevision, serving Plymouth, Canton, Northville, Belleville and Hamtramck. Otherwise, Holmes works as executive programming producer for Omnicon.

SHE TALKS ABOUT her new responsibilities with enthusiasm.

"I love it. I enjoy it very much. It's an opportunity for me to develop management skills that I believe were always there but I didn't have an opportunity to show."

She refers to Skubick as her mentor who was open to a brainstorm she had

last year to do "something that would serve the community in a concrete way." Last year, Holmes launched a canned food campaign, "Basket of Love," — a joint effort between Omnicon and the Salvation Army in Plymouth.

A drive and telethon netted 30,000 cans of food and raised awareness to a new level.

"People believe Plymouth, Canton and Northville are affluent and there isn't a need for their help," said Holmes, noting that all of the food went to families in those communities.

"There wouldn't be a Salvation Army in Plymouth if there wasn't a need."

A canned food drive eliminates fears that monetary contributions fail to reach the needy.

"When you give a canned good you can be assured that it will be used for people who are hungry, and those people might be your next-door neighbors."

"BASKET OF LOVE" was the type of effort Holmes enjoys the most.

"I'm people-oriented, and I like to do things that serve people. I like to see results and cable allows that."

"Basket of Love" will be repeated again this year and might become an annual event.

"I love to enjoy my work," Holmes said, flashing a smile. The mother of a young daughter, Karissa Maria, Holmes said she hopes to have three or four children.

While working more than 40 hours a week, finding time for her family is difficult, Holmes said. But the trick is feeling as if you're not "cheating either" and having an understanding husband.

A key element for success, Holmes said, is to enjoy your work, and when you stop growing to begin looking for something else.

"I give all that I can. I'm a Christian and one of our most important gifts is the ability to help others. We receive back what we give."

Holmes, who began working at Omnicon as an intern in 1981, has ambitions of being a manager at a communication company and one way of doing that, she said, is by networking.

HONESTY, ENTHUSIASM and an interest for others' needs are key elements she tries to cultivate.

"Being black and being a woman, I believe people should get what they are worthy of. Realistically, we know there is still prejudice, but I think people have to deal with it on an individual basis. That's why we need organizations. BPW (Business and Professional Women) certainly works with women's rights."

"I'm still young, and I have a lot to learn about that," Holmes said about discrimination. "I'm sure as time goes on I'll run into those things."

"But, I'm a fighter!"

Police to launch liaison program in area schools

By Alvia Lewis
staff writer

National Safety Week shouldn't be limited to five days; it should be a year-long venture.

Such is the belief of Plymouth Police Chief Richard Myers who, along with Plymouth Township Police Chief Carl Berry and Canton Police Chief John Santomauro, has decided to bring a number of safety programs to Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

The program, according to Myers, is a "multi agency school liaison program" and will emphasize "education, not enforcement."

"The focus is two-fold," said Chief Myers. "We want to improve and maximize the relationship between ourselves and our youth, and we want to educate them of their rights and responsibilities as citizens."

ALTHOUGH FIVE safety programs have been presented to elementary schools in the last two months, the liaison program is scheduled to begin within the next week.

The program will be funded with a $12,500 crime prevention grant from the state of Michigan, eligible for renewal in one year's time.

Chief Berry said that the program will be "beneficial" to all involved. "If you can get young people to understand that we are a positive, integral part of the community, they won't have such a negative attitude about us as they get older."

The programs, all given by police officers, will be presented via films, slides, lectures, assemblies, talks and individual contacts.

Myers envisions the officers talking about student rights, substance abuse, traffic laws, avoiding strangers, how to dial 911, how to be alert, police safety, law enforcement career orientation and crime prevention.

"Young people are just as much a part of the process as we are," Berry said. "A police department by itself cannot stop crime, and these programs will help to increase their awareness."

ALONG WITH personal appearances by police officers, the three chiefs have agreed to set up a joint library indexing of films and resource material available to all three departments.

Canton Chief Santomauro said there are two main benefits to the program — "Avoiding duplication of efforts and the cost effectiveness involved."

Myers added that night officers will be available to speak at PTO meetings.

"We are trying to adopt a pro-active atmosphere here," Myers said. "In Detroit the police are going into the schools to track down students with guns. Our focus is on educating them so negative things won't occur."

Myers said he will invite the Wayne County Sheriff's Department to participate in the program if they wish. "There's no room for provincialism in police work, we just want to get the job done."

The bleachers were packed (above) Saturday night at the Centennial Educational Park (CEP) athletic field as the CEP Marching Band took the field to capture the state championship for the second straight year. At right is the percussion section warming up.

CEP Band takes state title

Superintendent John M. Hoben presents the first-place trophy to David Annis, field commander.

THE CENTENNIAL Educational Park (CEP) Marching Band captured first place in state competition.

For the second year in a row the local musicians captured the championship at the state marching band competition held at the CEP all day Saturday.

The CEP Band now goes onto the Marching Bands of America National Championship Competition in Indianapolis on Nov. 16.

At Indianapolis they will compete with 50 bands from all over the U.S., with expectations of finishing in the top 12.

Saturday night the CEP Marching Band, directed by James Griffith, won the title with a score of 89.9 outpacing second-place Durand (a perennial favorite), which collected a total score from judges of 87.3.

The Plymouth-Canton musicians also took overall high score of all flights to be declared state champions. The band also captured many caption awards such as marching and maneuvering, best winds, best visual effect, best field commanders and best color guard.

THIS WAS the fourth consecutive year the color guard bested all of the others.

Afternoon Flight I winners, who qualified for evening competition, were (in order of finish): CEP, first, 87.2; Durand, 83.9; Clio, 82.10; Lakeview High from St. Clair Shores, 67.5.

The Flight II afternoon finalists were: Montrose, first, 72.0; Wyoming Park, 71.5; Flushing, 70.4; and Bridgeport, 66.9.

The afternoon order of finish in Flight III was: Petoskey, 67.4; Linden, 63.7; Royal Oak Dondero, 62.1; and Fenton, 51.2.

In the evening finals there were some places changed in Flights II and III. While Petoskey and Montrose finished first in Flights III and II respectively with scores of 67.5 and 73.8, Dondero and Linden traded places in Flight III while Flushing and Wyoming Park traded places in Flight II.

Some 34 bands from Michigan and Ontario participated in Saturday's competition.

"In a general sense all those who participated were winners," said school trustee David Artley. "They gave it their all and did their very best. They should feel proud of their efforts inclusive of students, parents, staff and supporters."

Members of the band boosters get ready to transport hot coffee Saturday night.

Parents group gets approval of Special Olympics funding

An arrangement is being worked out to provide federal special education funding to help support Special Olympics in Plymouth-Canton.

Monday night the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education voted 7-0 to approve the allocation of federal 94-192 money for the athletic program for handicapped students, specifically for mentally impaired students.

Last year, for the first time, the Special Education Parent Advisory Council (SEPAC) fielded a team from Plymouth-Canton to participate in the Special Olympics. All expenses were paid for by fund-raisers conducted by SEPAC and with contributions from civic organizations.

Earlier this year SEPAC asked the school board at a workshop session to give financial support to the program.

The administration recommended that the district make facilities available for training the Special Olympics team and give released time to some school volunteers to act as starters, timers, etc., at the olympics.

The advisory council, however, asked the district to contribute about $2,200 for a stipend for the coach, for sweat-suits and for some equipment expenses. The administration, though, recommended that a financial contribution not be made.

AFTER LENGTHY discussion and amended motions, Special Education Director Ed Page was authorized to allocate $2,000-$5,000 for Special Olympics from within the special education budget. The concern of the board was that the money not come from the general fund.

Trustee Elaine Kirchgatter received the administration's assurance that facilities could be scheduled and would not be cancelled without advanced notice and for good cause.

Trustee E.J. McClendon tried for an amendment that sought to allow allocation of school funds for Special Olympics if they were available. McClendon said he was opposed to allocating funds to non-school groups but the board at times did contract for services with outside groups and he wanted to leave that possibility open.

Page made mention of a review he conducted of how 14 other school districts handled Special Olympics and noted that some made financial contributions. He added that federal law permits such expenditures.

When asked where the money would come from, Page said he originally budgeted for $410,000 from federal funds but received instead $397,000. Earlier this month, Page said he received notification from the U.S. Department of Education that a mistake was made and Plymouth-Canton would receive $412,000.

Page said he could find the money for Special Olympics from 94-192 funds by cutting a little for supplies and a little for inservice without damage to existing programs.

TRUSTEE DEAN Swartzweiler said that if Page can get federal dollars for Special Olympics then it should be done without having to get board approval. "We always should pursue available money."

In response to a question on reliability of federal grants, Page said competitive grants have a time limit and when the expiration date arrives the district must choose to drop the program or pick up the cost. This is not true with 94-192 money, he said, that is allocated each year. The amounts may change, but the funds come each year based on the number of handicapped students in the district.

Parents will be raising money to help support Special Olympics, Page added, and will not rely solely on the district. "It's not a total district subsidy by any means. We cannot, for instance, pay for transportation costs."

"We have inter-scholastic athletic competition, and we ask for the same opportunity for about 60 handicapped students. We are asking that you not discriminate against them."

In response to a question on athletic funding, Dr. Michael Homes said the booster clubs raise a significant amount of money for athletics but the district does budget about $280,000 for inter-scholastic athletics, including some money for going to regional and state competitions, and about $48,000 for athletics at the middle schools.

Bill Abraham of SEPAC said that Special Olympics is an opportunity handicapped students have to participate as they are unable to compete in inter-scholastic athletics or march in band. "This is their extracurricular activity."

"I am concerned that the board is saying you will support Special Olympics only if federal monies are used and not local monies. I would like more commitment from the board in embracing this program than that but we'll take what we can get," said Abraham.

Roland Thomas, board president, said he would expect SEPAC to make an analysis of other programs of a nature similar to Special Olympics for handicapped students who aren't eligible to participate.

Board outlines decision on witch's speech

dom does not exist, where ideas are not freely exchanged and where teaching materials are published by the state. "The U.S. has a great environment for academic freedom . . . If I err, I want to err on the side of freedom and academic freedom."

• Elaine Kirchgatter: "I'm concerned that some people chose to question my belief in God. I have strong personal beliefs and am capable of voting with my conscience on Gundella coming into the schools, even though witchcraft is not part of my beliefs."

• Les Walker: "I have a strong concern because I don't see tonight much confidence being expressed in our young people to sort this out. I have a strong faith in our young people. These kinds of opportunities give them experience in sorting out information. By preventing this experience, you put them in a position of not having a basis to judge by. They do not believe everything that enters their minds."

• Dr. E.J. McClendon: "A resource person is just like a book, article, or a journal where an idea is expressed. There are many ideas expressed we do not approve of, but that does not mean we shouldn't hear them. We have a library with many books in which have ideas we don't believe in so we can explore those ideas." McClendon said he personally felt witchcraft was just so much hokum "Our students can hear an idea and have it pass through without either embracing it or rejecting it."

• Marilyn Schwinn: Speaking from a parent's perspective, Schwinn said she has a child in one of the classes. "To deny him information is not to allow him knowledge of that subject.

Children need to be introduced to knowledge and evaluate concerns and come to their conclusions. Hopefully, it's the conclusion I hold, but I can't guarantee, and don't want to guarantee, that result. I want them to become an individual as an adult."

• Roland Thomas: "She's not an appropriate role model in my mind, but neither should she be stopped from appearing . . . I would hope the administration would provide an opportunity for our young people to be exposed to an opposing view . . . I would strongly recommend to parents that they discuss this with their youngsters and let the two of you make the decision whether the student will attend. It's an important chance for the child to learn the values you as parents have. In my mind, we should allow Gundella to perform and it's not a slip of the tongue when I say 'perform.'"

"Your responsibility is to help create citizens who can contribute something to society. If this type of speaker is allowed to speak, you should all be ashamed," said Kaye.

William Styes, resident, said that Gundella professes to be a witch and that she can't help but speak about her beliefs.

Cindy Porentas, resident, said she has heard Gundella on TV say that witchcraft was her religion and that she will be speaking on her beliefs as a witch. Those beliefs Gundella will present as truths, she added, whether she intentionally tries to proselytize or not.

Porentas said most people she talked with felt Gundella should not be allowed to appear and argued the board should be accountable to what parents, taxpayers and voters want.

PALS SAID he felt the attorney's opinion did not speak to the more important issue of the opposing view not being presented at the same time to students.

The attorney did not address the problem, Rev. Pals said, of freedom of speech for one at the exclusion of opposing viewpoint. Pals added he was certain the majority of people are not in favor of witchcraft and the majority of people do embrace Christianity, which meant the board also was excluding an opposing view that happened to be a majority viewpoint.

Pals also said the review committee and attorney did not make any mention that Gundella's talk included a discussion of positive thinking and the power of the mind. "There is a myopia of her talking as a witch but she'll be speaking about the power of positive thinking and power of the mind. What's her credentials in regard to these subjects — is the fact that she's a witch that critical?"

Pals quoted Gundella as saying that any witch who performed their craft to harm someone would be doing an immoral act. He then claimed Gundella attended a ballgame at Tiger Stadium and put a hex on pitcher Vida Blue who lost that ballgame and had a seven-game losing streak until she wrote him to remove the hex. That made Gundella an immoral person by her own admission and standards, he added.

He argued that the talk would violate district policy on outside resource persons as it would be more stimulating than informative. "Stimulation is a near cousin of sensationalism."

Gentry characterized the attorney's opinion as "totally useless" and that it was not sufficient to "get the board off the hook." Gentry added: "We are not challenging the constitutionality of her speaking but are challenging the administration's wisdom in allowing her to speak."

Witchcraft was one of the forces fostering rebellion in youth, said Gentry, who objected to the presence of "stacks of books" on witchcraft in the high schools.

Gentry said there are a large number of professional people in the community who could come to the high schools and speak on a variety of subjects, including the Salem Witch Trials, and it was an insult to go outside and invite Gundella.

Terry Thaurette, resident, told the board he realized they represented diverse views in the community but urged them to "take a stand for good or evil," adding that he felt witchcraft was evil.

If you still believe in me, save me.

For nearly a hundred years, the Statue of Liberty has been America's most powerful symbol of freedom and hope. Today the corrosive action of almost a century of weather and pollution has eaten away at the iron framework, etched holes in the copper exterior.

Less than a mile away, on Ellis Island where the ancestors of nearly half of all Americans first stepped onto American soil, the Great Hall of the Immigration Center is a hollow ruin. Rooms are vandalized, walls crumbling in decay.

Inspiring plans have been developed to restore the Statue and to create at Ellis Island a living monument to the ethnic diversity of this country of immigrants. But unless restoration is begun now, these two national treasures could be closed at the very time we celebrate their hundredth anniversaries. The 230 million dollars needed to carry out the work is needed now.

All of the money must come from private donations; the federal government is not raising the funds. The Statue of Liberty-Ellis Island Centennial Commission appointed by President Reagan is asking every American to contribute. The torch of liberty is everyone's to cherish.

Could we hold up our heads as Americans if we allowed the time to come when she can no longer hold up hers?

Chuhran demands resident resign committee

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Canton Clerk Linda Chuhran is demanding the resignation of Ed Portscheil from a voluntary committee due to a reference he made at a Canton Township Board of Trustee meeting about a seminar she attended in North Carolina.

Portscheil is chairman of a group planning the transition from a strong supervisor to a strong superintendent format in Canton. This five-member "implementation committee," appointed by the board of trustees, also is working on making the supervisor, clerk and treasurer positions part time.

Chuhran's request to remove Portscheil from this committee was made after remarks at a public hearing concerning streetlights in the Sunflower subdivision at last week's board meeting.

Portscheil questioned whether Chuhran attended a Detroit Edison sponsored seminar and, if so, why. Supervisor James Poole said at the meeting that most clerks attend these seminars and implied there was no wrongdoing.

IN A LETTER dated Oct. 24 from Chuhran to Portscheil, the clerk said she expected Portscheil to provide documentation of allegations concerning

"payoffs/kickbacks from Detroit Edison/General Electric on my regard."

"If such documentation cannot be provided, and you have no factual evidence to base such ludicrous remarks, I will expect a public apology," she said.

The letter implied that if Portscheil failed to apologize a lawsuit could be filed: "As you may or may not be aware, your remarks could be construed as slander."

In a separate letter dated Oct. 28 from Chuhran to Poole, the clerk said Portscheil lacked an unbiased, objective state of mind and was unable to make valued decisions "on factual evidence and documentation."

In this letter she demanded his resignation from the implementation committee.

Portscheil said he was amazed by the clerk's actions and that her only purpose to write the letters would be to "publicly discredit me."

"I never made nor intended any allegations of 'pay-off or kickbacks,'" said Portscheil in a letter dated Oct. 27 written to the Canton Board of Trustees.

"Unfortunately, the audience thought the reason for the trip was rather ridiculous and began laughing," Portscheil said. "I believe the clerk felt humiliated by this and, rather than be held accountable, chose to attack me personally."

PORTSCHEIL, A planning commissioner, said the reason he mentioned the seminar was "never to discredit the clerk" but to display streetlighting lobbying efforts by Detroit Edison.

"In order to further illustrate my lack of motive, I wish to remind the clerk of my personal efforts in her election and my attempts to improve her relationships with other trustees of this board," he said.

Portscheil is requesting the board of trustees to "in the strongest language possible, completely disavow, condemn and demand the clerk's action be censured."

If the board fails to take this action he will assume it's an indication that the trustees "no longer have confidence" in his judgment, and he will resign from the implementation committee and the planning commission.

This conditional resignation was written, Portscheil said, before he saw Chuhran's letter requesting his resignation from the implementation committee.

Portscheil said he received a "lawsuit-threatening" telephone call from the clerk at 11:30 the night of the public hearing. During the conversation, Portscheil said, Chuhran expressed anger about the reference to the seminar.

Barricaded man douses self with gasoline

By Diane Gale
Staff writer

Six police officers overpowered a 45-year-old Westland man who had barricaded himself in a van, poured gasoline over his body and the inside of the van and threatened to light the fuel.

No one was injured in the incident at 5:50 p.m. Saturday behind Bruce's Auto Sales, 44844 Michigan Ave., Canton. The man, George Robert Killen, had been fired from his job there as a mechanic.

Canton police officer Leonard Schemanske spoke to Killen for about two hours and was able to approach the van with a cup of coffee. When Schemanske was close enough to see that Killen was unarmed he reached in the vehicle and grabbed Killen.

Three two-person police teams immediately restrained Killen. Officers reported that Killen drank gasoline.

"THE OBVIOUS potential for the loss of life was great because of the threat of fire," said Canton Police Chief John Santomauro.

"We had a very volatile, tense situation. For his own safety and for others, we had to make a tactical decision to go in and remove him."

Dr. Harley Stock, a Saline psychologist who teaches hostage negotiations for the FBI, advised police. Killen's 20-year-old Westland stepson also was present.

Police evacuated Bruce's Auto Sales employees as well as five residents living adjacent to the rear of the lot.

Canton officer Bruce Suter and Schemanske were the first officers responding to a report that Killen had barricaded himself in an old model mail-type panel truck and threatened to commit suicide.

Between 10 and 15 Canton Township off-duty police officers, Van Buren police and Wayne County sheriff's deputies surrounded the van. The Canton Township Fire Department was called and later took Killen to the hospital.

"The subject was very upset over being fired from his job from Bruce's Auto," Schemanske said in a police report. "Subject was intoxicated, slurred speech, was very loud and used obscene language. The subject did have a lighter and threatened to kill himself if anyone tried to enter the van."

Open beer cans, letters and a suicide note were found in the van.

Norman Johnson, owner of Bruce's Auto Sales, said he fired Killen due to "excessive drinking," the report said.

Killen arrived at the car lot about 4 p.m. and sat around the street drinking until about 5:45 p.m., the report said. He briefly spoke to an employee and later to Johnson.

The owner left the lot and was called back by employees. Johnson returned and approached Killen who already had poured fuel around the van. Killen reportedly told Johnson to "come on in."

A police debriefing — a meeting to discuss what happened and what methods could be used in the future — uncovered an equipment "concern," Santomauro said. He cited a need for body armor and a better communication system.

"I was very pleased with the Canton Township Police Department and the Canton Fire Department throughout the whole incident," Santomauro said. "I found out personnel were very cool, and everyone used an intense amount of restraint."

Kids should be vaccinated

According to recent estimates, one in 200 children will contract haemophilus influenzae type B disease during the first five years of life. Although the haemophilus bacteria are commonly found in the nose and throat, under appropriate conditions they can enter the bloodstream and cause serious disease.

In children under 6 the haemophilus bacteria can cause a variety of severe infections, the two most serious being bacterial meningitis (inflammation of the membranes covering the brain and spinal cord) and epiglottitis, inflammation of the cartilage at the back of the throat that closes to protect the airway during swallowing.

The Immunization Practices Advisory Committee of the U.S. Public Health Service recommends vaccination of all children at 24 months of age.

S'craft transfers top WSU 'native' students

By Tim Richard
staff writer

When they transfer to Wayne State University after two years, Schoolcraft College students do well. In fact, they do better than WSU's "native" students who started there as freshmen.

The report comes from WSU itself, according to a chart proudly distributed by Schoolcraft President Richard McDowell. It was received by the board of trustees last week without discussion. The WSU report shows:

- Schoolcraft transfers earned an honor point average of 2.83 (where A is worth 4 points, B 3, and so on). WSU's native students earned a 2.67; the total of all community college transfers, 2.59; and transfers from four-year colleges, 2.66. WSU's overall HPA was 2.66.

- Some 97 percent of the transfers from Schoolcraft completed the term compared to 92 percent for all community-college transfers, 86 percent for four-year college transfers, and 92 percent for all students. WSU natives also had a 97 percent survival rate.

- About one-third of Schoolcraft students are enrolled in transfer programs, which means they are taking the first two years of a four-year bachelor's degree. The other two-thirds are in career programs of a vocational or technical nature.

MORE WOMEN, older students.

Those are the twin trends at Schoolcraft year after year.

This fall (see chart) the proportion of women students in the 21-25 age group increased from 11.8 to 12.3 percent of the total campus enrollment; the proportion of men in that middle group slipped from 13.8 to 13.2 percent.

In the oldest group, age 25 and over, women moved over the one-quarter mark, from last fall's 24.9 percent to a new high of 26.1 percent. The proportion of men in this category also rose, though not as much — from 15.8 percent of the campus total to 16.2 percent.

HO, HUM. They held a public hearing, and no one had anything to say about a proposal to develop commercially a 16-acre corner of unused college property.

The parcel is at the corner of I-275 and Seven Mile and is worth $2.7 million on the commercial market, according to the college's advisors.

One man who didn't identify himself asked: "Why do you want to get into free enterprise? Why don't you sell it outright?"

"That's not the key issue here," replied board chairperson Michael W. Burley. "The issue is whether to convert it from educational to commercial use."

Selling the parcel is, of course, one option. But trustees are more interested into seeking a "synergistic" relationship with a corporation which could train, hire or be helped by association with the two-year college.

Moreover, there's the prospect the college — always looking for new revenue — can rent the land to a commercial developer and collect $170,000 a year as a landlord.

The I-275 corridor, bypassing Detroit on the west and closely linked to both the University of Michigan and the Oakland technology complex, is one of the hottest business markets in the state.

REVENUE FELL a bit short, so the Schoolcraft board of trustees cut its $18.5 million operating budget by $128,000, or two-thirds of 1 percent. The three biggest reasons, said controller A.H. Raby, were:

- Students took fewer credit hours than anticipated, reducing tuition revenue $139,500.

- General Motors Corp. successfully appealed its assessment in Livonia, reducing property taxes $18,725.

- These were offset partially by a state appropriation of $6.1 million, some $39,410 higher than budgeted.

No specific line-item budget cuts were announced.

PUZZLED trustees slapped a moratorium on any more "articulation" agreements with private colleges operated for profit after approving such a deal with Chrysler's MoTech automotive education center.

"I move a moratorium on articulation agreements with private, proprietary colleges until a review has been made," said trustee Harry Greenleaf. Greenleaf gave no reason for his suspicion of his agreements, nor did other trustees, who approved the motion 7-0.

Articulation agreements allow a student to transfer from College A to College B without losing any credits earned at A. The deals are made after administrators study each others' curriculums to make sure the course content meshes.

On the other hand, Schoolcraft trustees had no qualms about articulation agreements with the University of Michigan-Dearborn.

SC graduates will be able to transfer all the credits in child care, criminal justice, nursing, occupational therapy assistant, small business and marketing toward UM-D bachelor's degrees.

THE DONATIONS continue to roll in. Last week the board of trustees accepted gifts from these donors:

R.G.I.S. Inventory Specialist Co., Rochester — an uninterrupted power supply with capacity to keep college computers going 15-30 minutes after an electrical power interruption, allowing the computers to be shut down in an orderly way. The system cost $50,000 new.

Mike Burek, Wayne — a refrigerator-freezer worth $150 for use in the climate systems technology program.

Industrial Metal Fabricators Co., Detroit — 5,000 pounds of scrap steel worth about $500 for use in the welding program.

General Motors Corp., Livonia engine plant — a Cadillac V-8 engine to be used in the automotive program.

County backs away from posting dirty Rouge

By Teri Banas
staff writer

The Wayne County Health Department has decided against posting signs along the Rouge River warning against possible health hazards.

County medical director Donald Lawrenchuk had earlier offered the signs as a response to the death of a Novi man, who swallowed some polluted river water when he fell in last summer. The man later died of a rare, infectious disease known to be communicated through contaminated water.

However, based on inconclusive environmental tests linking the river to the disease, leptospirosis, and a recommendation from the county's corporate counsel, a decision was made last week against the signage, Lawrenchuk said.

GLENN BROWN, director of the department's environmental health division, deferred comment other than to confirm, "that's the latest word."

He said a joint decision was prepared after a recommendation from staffs of the health department, the executive office and legal counsel.

Last Thursday Vernice Davis-Anthony, head of the county Human Services Department, sent a letter announcing the decision to the mayor of Melvindale, whose city council passed a resolution requesting the county post warnings near a city boat dock where pollution is particularly heavy. Melvindale is located near the mouth of the Rouge River.

"I'm really irritated about this," said Melvindale Mayor Thomas Coogan. "They posted Belleville Lake (last summer) when there was a little coliform (human waste) in it, but they won't post where there's a toxic, health problem.

Shame on them."

Coogan said he would order his own warning signs for Melvindale.

ACCORDING TO county officials, responsibility for the waterway lies with the state Department of Natural Resources although much of the 125-mile waterway runs through county property.

"We're not opposed to posting," Lawrenchuk said, "but since DNR is the party responsible for the overall water quality, if a local community requests it, we'll tell them to consult with the Michigan DNR."

Lawrenchuk added that the corporate counsel office — county attorney for civil matters — had advised that postings would be difficult to maintain and locate. "When you're talking about a river that size, there are a number of locations," he said.

The medical director said that even though water tests conducted last month showed a "low level" of pollution and couldn't link a connection to the disease that killed the Novi man, he is still advising residents against "any contact with the river."

THAT FAILED TO satisfy Melvindale's Coogan, however.

"I'm definitely going to call (County Executive William) Lucas and tell him how excited I am about this. Bill keeps telling me he's only a phone call away," Coogan said.

But in Redford Township, County Commissioner Richard Manning said he could understand the difficulties of attempting to post signs along a river of that size.

"It's not a critical health problem because of the rarity of the disease. And the level of pollution from sewers upstream is relatively low," he said. "It's not drinkable or swimmable, but apparently they feel the primary responsibility rests with the DNR."

Leptospirosis, the disease that killed the Novi man, is believed to be carried by as much as 15 percent of the rat population, Lawrenchuk said, and rats are one known carrier. He added that Brown's staff had done a "thorough" rodent survey of the Lola Valley Park area in Redford, where the man reportedly fell into the river, and found a "low level of activity at that particular location."

Manning added: "I've been around this river for around 30 years, and all our residents in Redford recognize that it's not drinkable or swimmable. As far as they're concerned, this is nothing new. Skate on it in the winter time, but don't fall in."

Davis has own retirement idea

By W.W. Edgar
staff writer

You won't find former 35th District Judge Dunbar Davis spending his retirement years sitting down and taking things easy.

Retired since the first of the year, Davis has kept busy trying to find things to do. He has served on special days in most of the courts around here and at times also has served at the Wayne Circuit Court level.

He enjoys helping to ease a heavy caseload for the other judges for he realizes the times he had need for help while on the district bench.

He does all sorts of odd jobs around the house. He even has helped to plant large trees for some of the neighbors.

WITH ALL of that he has helped to take care of an ill wife and spent a month with her at the Mayo Clinic.

Yet with all this he has found time to play. Always a lover of tennis he accepts an invitation from U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell to use his tennis courts on North Territorial. He has been there at least once a week and he enjoys nothing better.

On weekends Davis spends considerable time at church where he is active with the Men's Club at the First Baptist Church of Plymouth. He enjoys these meetings and never misses unless it is necessary.

This is the same pace he maintained while sitting on the local court where he had a gym set up in the basement and ran at least a mile on the track every day.

No judge was more active. He never missed a chance to play tennis. And it made little difference if it was a strange court. He played on most tennis courts in the Observerland area.

THE JUDGE has been an unusual citizen ever since wife Martha and he came to Plymouth in 1937. He was a native of North Carolina and she was from Indiana. They met in college and have been a well-thought-of couple since their arrival in Plymouth.

He is never too busy to help other residents in the condominiums. And she remained active until her sickness, collecting stones and making all sorts of women's gifts. She even advanced to the point where she showed her collection at the various club meetings in the area.

He didn't look forward to retirement but would have liked to carry on in the courts. That's why he keeps busy helping other judges in the area with their caseloads. And at times he becomes irked when there is no work for him to do, either in the area courts or in the neighborhood.

At age 72 he doesn't believe it is time to sit down and take things easy.

Vandals shatter 6 car windows

Plymouth Police investigators have no suspects in a series of vandalism incidents last weekend in which car windows were shattered with pellet or BB guns. Six specific incidents — two on Ann, two on Irvin and one each on Evergreen and Lexington — were reported Sunday. Damage estimates ranged from $60 to $200.

Lt. Robert Commire said the damage may have been Halloween-related, but then recalled that several similar incidents have occurred during the past year.

"The vandals just drive down the street with a CO-2 (carbon dioxide) gun," Commire said. "You don't hear it and you don't hear glass breaking."

Residents were advised by Commire to park their cars in garages, if possible, or at least move them into driveways.

Plymouth police also have no suspects in what appear to be related burglaries at Bentley Clinic and State Farm Insurance on Main, Commire said.

A videocassette recorder and several electronic telephones were stolen from the insurance agency, police reports indicated. An office was ransacked at the clinic, police indicated, but nothing appeared to be missing.

Windows were broken in each instance.

Township police arrested a 17-year-old Detroit for breaking and entering at about 12:45 a.m. Saturday after he and another youth were observed allegedly tampering with a car at Sunshine Honda on Ann Arbor Road.

Officer Shawn Corbett arrested the Detroit following a short foot chase.

Eight cars on the lot had been tampered with, police reports indicated. Police also reported finding a pair of pliers in possession of the man who was arrested.

The dealership had experienced similar break-ins over the past few weeks, said Police Chief Carl Berry.

County suspends drain bill until query's done

By Teri Banas
staff writer

County Drain Commissioner Charles Youngblood violated state law concerning bidding procedures and a 1982 state Supreme Court ruling in assessing some property owners for drain work done in two communities in western Wayne County, according to county auditor general Lester Robinson.

Robinson delivered a report citing legal violations before the County Board of Commissioners Tuesday night, urging them to put off assessing those residents for the cost of drain projects in Sumpter and Huron townships.

As a result, the commission suspended more than $176,000 in drain assessments until a full investigation can be done to fix a fair price on the work.

The commissioners' action, called "unprecedented" by chairman John Hertel, was the latest development in recent charges of illegal practices and extreme drain maintenance charges that have shook the office of the county drain commissioner.

Before a packed room of residents in the far western Wayne County community, the county board voted 12-0 to put off assessing the residents and waiving the charges on the winter tax bills.

"This should rectify the situation for the time being until an investigation can be continued to determine what, if all, you have to pay," said Hertel Tuesday night at the first full commission meeting held off the board's main meeting site in Detroit's City-County Building.

NEXT WEEK the commission's audit committee has called on Youngblood to answer the charges.

Robinson's report noted two legal violations. Despite a 1982 state Supreme Court ruling that spelled out certain administrative costs could not be billed residents, Robinson said the drain commissioner's office has continued that practice. He cited a second violation, finding work that was performed outside the bidding process.

"This would cause the commission to have problems — legally — with the assessments," Robinson said.

THE COMMISSION'S research director, George Cross, also urged against approving the assessments, saying his preliminary probe has uncovered violations of the state drain code, citing that residents were improperly notified of scheduled maintenance work and subsequent costs.

"According to the drain code he's suppose to notify (property owners) within 10 days by first class mail and this wasn't done," said commissioner Milton Mack, whose western western Wayne County district takes in Huron and Sumpter townships.

"The drain commissioner violated the drain code and after that ignored it. What we have here is a jurisdictional problem and the people on these drains shouldn't be assessed at all because he has no jurisdictional authority."

MACK, WHO brought the issue of high assessments to the board after residents in the area complained, also called upon the commissioners, by saying: "The integrity of government is at stake. It seems to me that this investigation the commission ought to pursue vigorously."

Commissioner Richard Manning of Redford asked if any of the money spent on the drain work could be recovered. Cross said that it was "too early to say," although left doubt saying, "if the jurisdictional elements fail, then the assessments fail."

Commissioner Stanley Rosycki of Hamtramck also questioned the costs. "Who's going to pay for this? Are the people in my district going to pay for these assessments?"

One resident who testified at a public hearing before the commission Tuesday told of her $4,000 assessment, which she thought was "some kind of computer error" until she learned the final total was $16,000 to have her drains cleaned out.

Another resident complained of poorly supervised workmanship. "By county drain crews on his property," he was amused until I got my tax bill," he said. "Then I wasn't amused."

Young archer 'paid her dues'

By Lem Meese
outdoors writer

No way was it "beginner's luck," said the proud father.

Shawn Snyder, a 17-year-old Livonia archer, felled a three-point buck Monday from a blind in Crawford County near Grayling.

"She took up archery at the age of 5, and she completed her hunter safety course at the police station in Westland. She's paid her dues," said her dad, Denny Snyder, when he called from his Ford engineering office.

Snyder drove Shawn, a Stevenson High senior, to a blind Monday morning. She hit the buck, her first, from 25 yards — "a beautiful shot," said her father, who has been bow hunting himself since 1970.

WESTERN WAYNE Conservation Association will open its gun range for sighting-in days for deer hunters through Nov. 14. The club's land is at 6700 Napier Road (the Wayne County line), halfway between Five Mile and North Territorial roads in Plymouth Township.

Range hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. seven days a week. A $5 fee is charged for targets, benches, sandbags, spotting scopes and upkeep.

Most range officers on duty are NRA certified instructors. Shotguns as well as rifles may be sighted in.

GET IN SHAPE before you go deer hunting the last two weeks in November, says the American Heart Association.

"Hunters should see their doctors before the trip for an appropriate exercise plan," said Dr. Joseph Rogers, chairman of the Michigan chapter's exercise committee.

And as every reader of my brother columnist Barry Franklin knows, cold weather places an extra strain on the heart.

Signs of heart attack include: a feeling of fullness, heaviness or squeezing pain in the center of the chest and spreading to the arms, shoulders, neck or jaws; nausea, vomiting, sweating or shortness of breath.

Most rules are common sense — don't hunt alone, snow where to get help, get plenty of rest.

And watch the intake of firewater. Alcohol may make you feel warmer, but it also causes you to lose body heat.

Clerk's lawsuit is defended

To the editor: Your recent front page "analysis" of the Chuhran-Poole suit shows a unique lack of understanding as to what Clerk Linda Chuhran's suit is all about.

Have you stopped to think what the alternative is? Have you considered the potential cost to the taxpayers if she hadn't filed her suit? Your comments seem to indicate a lack of understanding on how government works.

Our forefathers separated the power and responsibility of government into three distinct areas, the President, Congress and the Supreme Court. This idea is carried down into local government as well.

In the case of Michigan townships we have the supervisor, clerk, treasurer and township board. Each has their own area of responsibility and duties as mandated by Michigan Law of the Charter Township Act and "can only be changed by the state Legislature," not by a township board or the whims of any of the other elected officials.

These responsibilities include a system of checks and balances designed so that the finances of the township are not totally controlled by one elected official. In Canton Township this system of checks and balances, which is the basis of good government, is not working. The supervisor's office "directly" controls two-thirds of those finances and, therefore, indirectly the other one-third.

The potential for abuse of the township finances, and therefore the cost to the taxpayers, of wasted or unwisely spent money is staggering. It could and probably already has cost many times the $5,000 in attorney fees you are so upset about.

A case in point of wasted money is the salad which Clerk Chuhran brought to the attention of the board and which the media made light of. The salad, which by Jim Poole's own admission he ordered through room service, cost the taxpayers $50. No, that wasn't a misprint, it cost 50 bucks. A fact that was somehow not mentioned in later media accounts.

If this is the kind of waste that is caught by chance, what could be found when a check and balance system is working as it is supposed to? Is it any wonder that Jim Poole is fighting so hard to keep the status quo?

Clerk Chuhran is fighting so that this kind of waste is caught and stopped. Too many people get into government and see waste and do nothing because they don't wish to buck the system or are afraid of the political and economic heat that those abusing the system can bring to bear.

I think you should re-examine your position on the Chuhran vs. Poole suit and try to see the real cost to the taxpayer if the status quo is maintained.

Superintendent backs library tax

To the editor:

In a day and age when mankind's knowledge is estimated to be doubling in each decade, it is imperative that we have resources within the community which allow both citizens and students to keep pace with this knowledge explosion.

The importance of a modern library to supplement lifelong learning is of cardinal importance to the Plymouth community. I would hope that its citizens would support the millage necessary to keep this resource up to date and available to us all. Although the school libraries are excellent, our students need and use supplemental materials which only a well-stocked and modern library can provide.

I urge all voters in the Plymouth community to vote affirmatively in the Nov. 5 election to support our library system.

John M. Hoben, Ed.D.

1-issue candidates can't meet city needs

THIS TUESDAY City of Plymouth residents will be going to the polls to vote on a library millage proposal and to vote for four candidates for the Plymouth City Commission.

The top three vote-getters will be elected to four-year terms and the fourth-place finisher to a two-year term.

Only one incumbent, William L. Robinson, is up for re-election as three commissioners are prevented by city charter from running for a third term. One of the remaining three commissioners was just recently appointed to fill a vacancy and another appointed to fill a vacancy until this election is completed. So there remains on the commission only one commissioner (Mary Childs) with any experience. Leaving are Mayor Dave Pugh, Ron Loiselle and Bud Martin while Jack Kenyon had to resign upon getting elected to the Library Board.

THERE IS a real need for continuity and experience on the city commission.

For that reason alone, Robinson should be re-elected on Tuesday. If elected, of the seven commissioners there would then be two with more than a year's experience. But Robinson also deserves election based on his demonstrated performance as a commissioner who does his homework and comes prepared to vote. He has a professional background in business and finances, and has been involved in the community in a variety of ways. The Observer endorses William Robinson for city commission.

Another candidate with experience is Karl W. Gansler II, a former city commissioner. Gansler was elected to the commission and served four years before stepping aside when business demands were pressing at a time when the economy was slow. But during his term, Gansler demonstrated his effectiveness as someone who could analyze an issue and get to the heart of the matter. He also is involved in the community in a number of ways outside the political arena. The Observer endorses Karl Gansler for City Commission.

One of the strongest candidates is Robert L. Jones, a relative newcomer to the city who serves on the planning commission and has attended almost all commission meetings in the past couple years. Jones, who has degrees in law and engineering, is a group vice president for American Natural Resources Pipeline Co. Possessed with an analytical mind, Jones researches a problem and comes up with one or more possible solutions to pursue. As a citizen, Jones has exhibited abilities to work on the sidelines to improve the city he lives in. He can add much to the decision-making process of city government. The Observer does not hesitate to endorse Robert Jones.

Our final choice does not come so easily. On the one hand, Robert Bingley offers experience in Northville city government when he lived there. But the value of that experience has been diminished greatly by Bingley's choice to align himself with a slate of one-issue candidates. The Observer is not opposed to slate politics, but experience has shown us that single-issue candidates are undesirable choices.

The other choice is Don Keller, a planning commissioner who, like Jones, Robinson and Gansler has a known record of service to the community. Unfortunately, Keller made far too many generalized, non-committal statements at the candidates forum and seems inclined to duck controversy. The city needs leadership on the Commission.

WHICH BRINGS US to the problem of the slate of challengers who refer to themselves as the musketeers — Bingley, Robert Kroeger, Anthony Anason, and Jean Morrow.

These are musketeers with blinders. They are so wrapped up in their concern about police, fire, and ambulance service that they know little about other very important city services. Put kindly, they are very uninformed about non-public safety matters.

Kroeger, the apparent spokesman, goes so far as to define "basic services" as being police, fire, and ambulance — a very limited perspective on city government. What is more basic than snow removal, trash pickup, water and sewer, recreation, and senior citizen programs (including housing)?

After listening to the musketeers talk, there can be little doubt that their platform of hiring more policemen, hiring more firefighters, and hiring more ambulance crews cannot be accomplished unless taxes are raised significantly or major cuts in services are made.

While mouthing platitudes about fat in the budget, the musketeers have failed to demonstrate they know where the fat exists. Kroeger, for instance, promises to make the Cultural Center self-sustaining and then says he will take money from the center's budget and shift it to the fire department. Assuming the self-sustaining programs remain in place, Kroeger (probably unwittingly) ends up with little to cut except the ice rink (all hockey, figure skating and free skating) if he is to find $100,000 or more.

The real problem with single-issue candidates is that they have nothing to contribute once that problem is solved, and sit like bumps on a log when some of the real problems facing the city (other than public safety) are discussed. Their perspective is too narrow, their knowledge too lacking, their concern too small and their grasp of local government too slippery. The musketeers certainly will serve the special interests they represent but show little potential to serve anyone else.

Therefore, the fourth choice for Plymouth City Commission comes back to Keller. In the past, the Observer has seen candidates whom we did not endorse develop traits which the person as a candidate did not possess. We can only hope Keller will grow in the office. He has the potential, has knowledge and a grasp of city government, and has a broader perspective than the musketeers. Given the other four choices, the best choice becomes Keller. The Observer, then, endorses Donald Keller for the commissioner he has the capability of becoming.

In summary, the Plymouth Observer urges its readers to support the candidacies of William Robinson, Karl Gansler III, Robert Jones, and Don Keller. The election is Tuesday, Nov. 5 — don't sit this one out.

Little to debate on township's tax

NOT MANY Plymouth Township residents have said they do not want a fire department or police department. Those who don't should vote "no" on the request for 2 mills on Tuesday's ballot.

Otherwise, there really is not much to debate on whether to approve the request for 2 mills for police and fire in Plymouth Township.

Earlier township residents voted down a request to set the charter limit at 5 mills. That approach would have avoided having any earmarked millage — a preferable approach. However, the margin of defeat was clear enough that a "second best" alternative followed. Historically, the township has earmarked millage for fire protection and so the request follows that existing pattern.

The township board and administration took a frugal approach by not seeking renewal of 1 mill for fire protection because it was not needed at the time. And so that mill was allowed to expire. In effect, the township is asking for a renewal by seeking voter approval of 1 mill for fire protection.

THE BOARD and administration were equally as frugal when they started a new police department without additional millage but instead used monies built up in a "contingency" fund. Thus residents were able to enjoy the comfort and security of a local police force without having to pay for it immediately. But now the bill has come due.

One mill is not enough to operate a police department, but the board plans to supplement that mill with state-shared revenues and other non-millage income to maintain the police force if voters approve the mill. One mill is a small price to pay for a local police department and surely deserves the support of residents.

The Observer, therefore, endorses the request 2 mills — one earmarked for police and the other earmarked for fire. That leaves one mill earmarked fire millage now being levied, and 1 mill for general operation allocated by the county or 4 mills total ($4 per $1,000 state equalized valuation). For the owner of an $80,000 home, the total township operating property tax would be $160 a year. The added 2 mills represent $80 of that total $160 contribution.

Last Thursday the Observer endorsed the request for 0.80 mills (80 cents per $1,000 state equalized value) for the Plymouth Library District. If the library tax is approved, the $80,000 homeowner would pay a total township tax (including library) of $172 a year.

If this request is defeated, residents will be sending one clear message to the township board and administration — quit being frugal! Because the township has collected only the amount of millage it needs in past years, residents should give a vote of confidence and approve the 2 mills Tuesday.

Why Mother taught the lone son to cook

ONE OF the fondest memories The Stroller has of his childhood is a morning in the long, long ago when Mother had her girls in the kitchen for lessons in cooking.

As he passed the door, she called and said "Come in here. This won't do you any harm, either."

In the next few minutes, he was watching sliced potatoes lying on hot plates of the kitchen stove. She was teaching us how to fry crisp potatoes, just like the rich folks have. She paid close attention to see that none of them were burned. And it was quite a trick.

Before the morning was over, she had us making all sorts of things, so we would have home-cooked meals that would be different.

THE STROLLER laughed all the time he was taking the lesson. He just couldn't visualize men doing the cooking.

And yet when he grew up and started to go around, he observed nothing but male chefs. And he wondered why. After all, most mothers taught their daughters how to cook. It was part of the plan to prepare them for being housewives.

But for The Stroller it was just a laughing matter — until his father passed away.

At the time, we had a small lunch counter to afford us a living. Father was too sick to work in the factories so, with the help of Mother, we opened a small eating place.

She made most of the hard dishes at home, and we would carry them down to the lunch counter. She was a very good pie baker, so we had a long list of customers for Sunday pies.

We used to hustle home from Sunday school and deliver the pies. But it was the work behind the counter that came in good for The Stroller.

MOTHER TAUGHT him how to make oyster stew, which always was a great dish in all the months that had an "R" in their names.

It was a great trick in those days to make good oyster stew, and Father had been able to find a good recipe. As a result, we had a great business.

As The Stroller grew older and came to Detroit, he was taken out to Joe Muer's when he was opening his seafood house. In fact, he didn't like the stew he was served, and Joe gave him permission to make his own. From that day, Muer and his sons have used that recipe.

It was simple. They had been boiling the milk or cream and dropping the oysters into the pot. The better recipe is just the opposite — boil the oysters until they curl, then put in the milk or cream — slowly.

IT WAS the same with a lot of other dishes — even to the baking of the Pennsylvania Dutch favorite, shoo-fly pie.

As the years have passed on, it no longer is a laughing matter that he was called into the kitchen and had to take a cooking lesson from Mother while she was teaching the girls.

The Stroller never has been stuck for food. When pressed, he can always prepare his own.

And Mother, from her place on high, must be looking down with a broad smile on her face. The lessons have done some good.

Bill seeks open meetings loophole

THERE IS a good-sized minority of public officials in Michigan who frankly abhor discussing the public's business in public.

They don't say it out loud, but you can see it on their faces when the subject comes up at conventions of the Michigan Townships Association, the Municipal League and school groups. They never wanted the state's Open Meetings Act, and they hate it now. They want to settle things "behind the scenes" or "informally" by "just getting together to chat" — in other words, in secret.

They know they are a minority, that most fellow board and council members have no qualms about letting voters know what's going on. So this minority won't attack the Open Meetings Act directly.

Instead, they want to pick it to death, one innocent-looking little amendment at a time. First they got secret meetings for the most important function a board performs — evaluating a hired executive. Then it was an attempt to hold governmental board meetings in private homes.

THIS YEAR it's House Bill 4871, recently reported out of the House Towns and Counties Committee.

It would add another loophole to the Open Meetings Act by allowing secret meetings with the board's attorney when there is threatened litigation — just the threat of a lawsuit, mind you — when the threat is put in writing by someone's attorney.

The author is a familiar face — Rep. Willis Bullard, R-Milford, who offered the same kind of bill last year along with the one to allow governmental meetings in private homes. You can tell where he's coming from.

This year Bullard has modified his secrecy bill a trifle. A threat of lawsuit would have to be put in writing by an attorney instead of just being blurted out orally.

Big deal. All a sly township supervisor would have to do is tell a theater seeking a zoning change to put his threat on an attorney's letterhead, and the matter can go behind closed doors, where those hot-headed subdivision residents can't bang away on them.

WE CALL on state Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, not to be bamboozled by this "simple" little exception to the Open Meetings Act.

The idea of the Open Meetings Act is that all deliberations on public policy are supposed to be in public because:

● The public has a right to know what the board plans to do before the board does it.

● The public has a right to know who is influencing the board's decision.

● The public has a right to know who on the board offered what amendments and why.

● The public has its own right to try to influence the board.

AS YOU MIGHT guess, the State Bar of Michigan is one non-governmental group which would like to see more secrecy in government. The State Bar supports HB 4871.

The Bar seeks to create is a caste system: Attorneys could hold secret meetings with their "clients," the elected board, but everyone else would be shut out.

Lawsuits are threatened over every subject that a governing board takes up: video ordinances, building plans, closing of school buildings, school boundary changes, "business" signs, rules of student conduct, liquor licenses, landfills, budget changes that would result in layoffs, and so on.

Yes, every year another crippling amendment is offered to permit more official secrecy under the Open Meetings Act. A minority of public officials in Michigan just hate to discuss the public's business in public.

House OKs daylight savings time

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes during the week ending Oct. 25.

HOUSE

DAYLIGHT SAVINGS — The House passed, 240 for and 157 against, and sent to the Senate a bill (HR 2095) adding five weeks to Daylight Saving Time.

It would begin four weeks earlier, on the first Sunday in April, and end one week later, on the first Sunday of November.

Supporter Edward Markey, D-Mass., said this would save energy, cut crime, spur commerce, reduce highway deaths, benefit persons afflicted with night blindness, and make "trick or treating... a little safer for children."

Opponent Harold Rogers, R-Ky., said that to shorten morning daylight hours would cause hardship for farmers doing their chores and prove hazardous to rural children who "will be forced to walk to the school bus in the dark."

Members voting yes wanted to extend Daylight Savings Time by five weeks.

Voting yes: Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods; William Ford, D-Taylor; Sander Levin, D-Southfield; and William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

Not voting: Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth

BUDGET RECONCILIATION — By a vote of 228 for and 199 against, the House passed and sent to conference with the Senate a "budget reconciliation" bill (HR 3500) putting into effect some of the massive deficit reductions that Congress promised when it adopted the fiscal 1986-88 budget resolution last August.

Under the August resolution, projected deficit spending is to be lowered by $276 billion between 1986-88, leaving $438 billion or more in projected new debt to be incurred during the three years.

rollcall report

By changing existing law in a host of federal programs, this sweeping reconciliation bill accounts for $61.1 billion of the $276 billion in estimated savings. Most of the remaining cuts are to be achieved during the normal authorization and appropriations process.

Among the bill's most visible spending cuts are those affecting certain veterans, housing, small business and student loan programs.

Slightly offsetting the deep cuts in HR 3500 were a few programs requiring increased spending. Among them were a renewal of the basic federal housing program and pay raises for members of Congress.

House members and senators, who now earn $75,100, would get two annual raises of 5 percent under the bill, pushing their pay above $82,000, according to Robert Walker.

Members voting yes wanted to enact the budget reconciliation bill. Voting yes: Ford and Levin.

Voting no: Pursell, Hertel and Broomfield.

GOP AMENDMENT — By a vote 209 for and 219 against, the House rejected a Republican amendment to rid the reconciliation bill (above) of $3.5 billion in spending increases, primarily for new federal programs dealing with housing, the homeless and child care.

Even with its smattering of new programs and spending hikes, the bill meets the deficit-reduction requirements of the fiscal 1986-88 budget resolution. But supporters of the amendment said it was wrong to use such a vehicle to authorize additional spending.

Sponsor Delbert Latta, R-Ohio, said "we're concerned with reducing the deficit by $3.5 billion. Vote against the Latta amendment and you're saying, 'I want to go $3.5 billion further in the red. That's the question."

Opponent Jim Wright, D-Texas, said the purpose of the amendment is "to second-guess the committees of the House... and substitute the judgment of one individual for the judgment of the committees that have been appointed to make these individual choices."

Members voting yes supported the amendment. Voting yes: Republicans Pursell and Broomfield.

Voting no: Democrats Hertel, Ford and Levin.

SENATE

CIGARETTE TAX — By a vote of 66 for and 30 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment to raise the federal cigarette tax from 16 cents to 24 cents per pack.

This occurred as the Senate debated its version of the Congressional budget reconciliation measure, which already prevented a scheduled drop in the tax from 16 cents to 8 cents.

The bill (S 1730, the companion of HR 3500 above) was headed for final passage and conference with the House.

Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., who voted to table, said the proposal would have "an extremely detrimental effect on the thousands of small family farmers who depend upon tobacco for a substantial portion of their incomes."

John Chafee, R-R.I., who sponsored the amendment, said the billions raised by the higher tax would defray "health care costs imposed on taxpayers by smokers," which he placed at $4.2 billion annually in Medicare and Medicaid outlays.

Senators voting no wanted to raise the federal cigarette tax to 24 cents per pack. Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., voted no.

Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich., voted yes.

AMTRAK — By a vote of 71 for and 25 against, the Senate tabled (killed) an amendment to eliminate Amtrak, the federally-backed passenger train service, by striking its $616 million budget from the fiscal 1986 Department of Transportation appropriations bill.

The bill (HR 3244) was sent to conference with the House with the federal payment intact.

Mark Andrews, R-N.D., who voted to table, said the federal subsidy of $35 per Amtrak passenger is less than "a $37 per passenger government subsidy for everyone who goes on an airplane."

William Armstrong, R-Colo., who sponsored the amendment, said "people who will never use Amtrak have to pay taxes year after year to continue to subsidize the travel which would otherwise be by airline or inter-city motor bus."

Senators voting no wanted to eliminate the federal subsidy that keeps Amtrak in operation.

Levin and Riegle both voted yes and favored keeping the subsidy.

FIVE PERCENT CUT — The Senate rejected, 29 for and 69 against, a proposed 5 percent cut in certain areas of the fiscal 1986 appropriations bill for the departments of Labor and Health and Human Services.

The amendment, which sought to cut $1.5 billion, was aimed across-the-board at discretionary programs — those whose benefits are not guaranteed by law. Such programs account for about $33 billion of the $107 billion measure.

Sponsor William Proxmire, D-Wis., said the amendment would "send a message loud and clear that we do care about the deficit," by cutting areas such as administrative costs, payments to consultants and travel outlays.

Senators voting yes supported the 5 percent cut. Levin and Riegle both voted no.

THERE WAS A testimonial dinner in Woodbridge, N.J., Friday night. Residents of the community turned out to honor their local hero, Capt. Henrik Kurt Carlsen.

Earlier in the month, he had been honored by the township council when that body passed an ordinance dedicating a portion of the Sewaren boat ramp in his honor. They also declared October, Capt. Carlsen Month.

Back in January 1952, the town welcomed his homecoming with a parade and a presentation of the key to the city. New York City already had welcomed him with a ticker-tape parade. Later, he received a commendation from President Harry Truman.

That same year, Captain Carlsen received a decoration from King Frederick IX of Denmark as well as the Knights of the Order of Danneborg, the equivalent of knighthood in his native Denmark.

THE CAPTAIN joined the Danish Navy when he was 14. He is one of the very few who can sail a square-rigged ship. During World War II, he was a convoy leader on the Atlantic run for the U.S. Navy.

It was in late December 1951 that he became the focus of worldwide interest. His ship, the American freighter Flying Enterprise, was loaded with automobiles, coffee beans, pig iron and peat moss when it was struck by a hurricane. It was 37 miles off the coast of England.

On Dec. 28, Captain Carlsen ordered the 40 crew members and 10 passengers onto rescue vessels. He was alone on the badly listing ship for several days when the British Merchant Navy salvage tug, Turmoil came alongside.

Kenneth Dancy of the Turmoil came aboard. The two attached a tow line from the tug to the Flying Enterprise. They were within 60 miles of Falmouth, England, on Jan. 10, 1952, when a gale and high seas defeated the effort.

The 6,711-ton ship was sinking — fast. Dancy, and then the captain, walked the length of the funnel, which was almost horizontal, and jumped into the frigid waters as the vessel sank. They were rescued by the tug.

The dramatic 13-day adventure had caught worldwide attention, and he went home to the ticker-tape parade in New York.

Two months later, the shipping company made him captain of the Enterprise II. He held the post for 13 years until the Isbrandtsen company merged with American Export. He worked around the world for the new company until he retired in 1976.

And over the years, he turned down all propositions to commercialize his Flying Enterprise ordeal.

information came from old newspaper clippings. I borrowed the clippings from K.C. Mueller of Plymouth Township after K.C. mentioned she was going home to Woodbridge for a special dinner for her father, Capt. Carlsen.

Karen (K.C.) Carlsen's Brownie troop marched in the Woodbridge parade for her father in 1952. She remembers it well.

K.C. is president of the Woman's Club of Plymouth and the Plymouth Symphony Society.

Decked out in linen duster and gauntlets and with hat tied firmly in place, Margaret Dunning poses for one last photograph in her 1906 Ford N6 before it is taken to the museum at Hickory Corners. The classic is the only one of its kind in mint condition.

True classic goes to Gilmore Museum

By Ellie Graham
staff writer

They moved "Grandpa" this week.

He was carted off — very carefully and in grand style — to his new home in the Gilmore Classic Car Club Museum at Hickory Corners, Gull Lake.

"Grandpa" is a 1906 Model N6 Ford, the only one of its kind in mint condition in the world. Collector Margaret Dunning of Plymouth presented the car to the museum where it will take its place among the great old classics. She had dubbed the veteran "grandpa" because it was the eldest of her three elderly Fords.

The Model N was the forerunner of the Model T, the first step from the buggy to the automobile.

"It was heap of junk when I bought it in 1959. It was a shambles, sitting in an old railroad barn," said Dunning.

GLEAMING with paint and polished brass, the Model N6 now has the perfection of a finely wrought piece of jewelry.

"It looks like a watch fob," said Irene Waldorf, who had been giving the solid brass lamps a parting polish.

As she polished, she noted a patent marking, Nov. 24, 1903.

The Dunlop motorcycle tires had been special ordered from England. The brown real leather (buggy) top and seat were made to order. The pale tan paint job with brown striping were the work of an expert.

"They always said a Model T could be any color as long as it was black, but these could be any color. Gentlemen ordered them to match a favorite hat, or one of their wife's ensembles," said Dunning.

SHE CHOSE her color scheme to match a lap robe, made of 20 lynx skins, that once belonged to Charlie Bennett, successful Plymouth businessman.

"You know the Ford Motor Co. could have been here in Plymouth. Charlie Bennett was one of the first of five investors in Ford. Then he didn't like some of the things Henry Ford did, so he took back his money," Dunning explained.

She added that the Ford Motor Co. had borrowed the Model N6 several times for commercials and advertisements.

It was a long road from a "pile of junk" to mint condition.

Dunning called in the experts, a pattern maker and "Walter Heater, an expert from Detroit, Leonard Dairs, a restoration expert.

"The engine is cast two and two, not straight. It uses gasoline and there is a small magneto and the crank."

The kerosene lamps, bulb horn, springs and fold-back top are strictly horse-and-buggy-day vintage. Dunning said the top and other accessories were optional items on the model, just as they were on buggies.

"Grandpa" left Plymouth, as bright as a shiny new penny.

"He'll have a lot of visitors. Busloads of people stop at the museum year round," said Dunning.

Barker, Tauriainen are Women of the Year

Plymouth Business and Professional Women named two Women of the Year for 1985. They are Elizabeth Barker and Zana Tauriainen. Both have careers in education, both are married and have two children.

Daisy Proctor chaired the committee to select a Woman of the Year. They were introduced to the club members at a dinner meeting at Hillside Inn.

Zana Tauriainen is a speech pathologist with the Plymouth Canton Schools. Born in Vermont, she earned a bachelor of science degree from the University of Vermont and a master of science degree in speech pathology from the University of Michigan. She trained in Florida as a myofunctional therapist.

Tauriainen screens children, kindergarten through eighth grade, for speech and language problems. She evaluates them to determine those who qualify to receive therapy. She participates in child study meetings and chairs the district speech and language pathologists.

HER HUMANITARIAN contributions to the community include: Serving as facilitator in a recent Community Intervention Workshop (adolescent intervention program); serving on Plymouth-Canton Community Substance Abuse Committee; speaking frequently on alcoholism and drug abuse to community groups in Plymouth and surrounding area; ongoing service to individuals who need support in recovery from alcoholism.

She also finds time for church activities at United Methodist Church of Plymouth.

ELIZABETH Barker is job placement coordinator at the Starkweather Center on N. Holbrook, Plymouth. She is employed by Plymouth-Canton Community Education.

As job placement coordinator, she does career testing and counseling for adults, conducting seminars on resume writing and interviewing techniques. She coordinates a free job placement network for adults and develops internships with professionals.

Barker creates and supervises co-op experiences for the adult students, enabling them to gather job training and experience in actual employment situations. She arranges programs to enable students, predominantly women, to enrich their skills for employment. She acts as a liaison person for state groups and agencies to keep informed and pass on information of programs and projects.

BARKER WAS publicity chair for Project Health-O-Rama last March at the Starkweather Center. The two-day event was sponsored by Blue Cross/Blue Shield, Oakwood Canton Center and Plymouth Canton Community Education. More than 1,300 participated in the free health screening program.

She also chaired publicity for the Children's Health Fair in August at the Starkweather Center. Oakwood Canton Center and Plymouth Canton Community Education sponsored the day for free health checkups and immunizations for children. Area physicians saw more than 300 children at the health fair.

She is a member of the Southeastern Michigan Adult Reading Network, the Community Literacy Council and is a newly trained Laubach volunteer.

Metal detectors at McDonalds

Happy Halloween!

I hope you are all ready with carved pumpkins and a glowing fire in the fireplace. Please remember that McDonalds in conjunction with the Canton Police Department and some private citizens, once again will provide the metal detection service at both Canton McDonalds 6-9 p.m. As always, this service is free and well worth the trip. They also will be drawing the winning name for the huge pumpkin. Don't worry if you are not in the store. They will contact you.

Oh yes, lest we forget, Dr. Jack Falvo along with McDonalds and the wonderful Canton Chamber of Commerce tell me that they are, as in the past, in close contact with the jolly man in the red suit (Santa Claus). So keep your eyes peeled for updates on his arrival.

It has been the custom in our little court, to have a party. Each child brings an item made by their own mom. This means NO store-bought candy, chips, etc. so we don't have to worry about all that truly scary stuff. We have a wonderful time, between Atari games, videotapes, cable TV and things like apple dunking.

As a matter of fact, the party usually runs for two days. But, alas, the children are older now. It seems they have friends off the block now and many of them do not enjoy the same activities anymore. Such are the growing pains for both parent and child. So this year it's back to the old grind.

They are too old to go out begging, and too young to be partying at a friend's house all night. They are at that age that is just right to complain about everything.

WHAT I WON'T do to get out there and meet my neighbors. You wouldn't believe where I met a group of Cantonites.

It wasn't my original intention, but it sure turned out to be a side benefit. I warned them I was going to tell the whole township what they were up to, so here we go.

If you think for one moment I am the only Cantonite who doesn't speak English until noon, you haven't met Beverly Talbot. Bev was just one of the people I met during my big venture into the cold, cruel world during my "Search for Employment".

As many of my regular readers know, my family has come to a crossroads. Either I go back to work, or they stop eating. As much as they hate the idea of finding where I keep the kitchen and doing things for themselves, they do enjoy a decent meal now and then.

So guess which one they chose? That's right. I do get paid for this column, but I only do one a week, not a good way to feed a family. All the other jobs I have are community volunteer positions.

So, off it was, back to the salt mines. Thankfully, I found I was not alone. For one reason or another, several Canton women rejoined the work force.

We fought our way through the agonizing application, interview and, alas, we met in the "training class." This is where you learn the dos and don'ts of a Hudsonian. This is also known as the great equalizer. No college degree hanging on the wall or stuffed in a drawer was about to be any comfort to anyone. Unless it was still hot in your little hand from recent acquisition of same, you were in serious trouble.

Looking far more frightening than it really was, the class began. In reality, the "wrap-up," as our instructors like to call it, or "the test," as we came to know it, was easier than the class.

There we sat, soaking up all this information with nowhere for it to go. When I came home from work my family would ask, "How did it go?"

What could I tell them? "Ah" was about all I could grumble.

After we had soaked up enough information to be totally confused, they allowed us to drain a bit of it by playing "sell me something." We broke into groups of five and made up stories about selling a particular item. My group, three of the five being from Canton, were to sell a woman about to go on a job interview, something to go with a blue suit. We were to find the "features" of the item and convince her she needed it.

Well, we made up this multi-colored looks-like-silk-but-is-polyester, with removable ties and tailored bottom. Before the afternoon was over, we had included a scarf to tone down this monstrosity. All this was imaginary, of course, but what fun we had.

We also had to sell things to each other, and ring up said sales. Beverly and I harassed each other through this exercise. Then we had a break. This was very interesting.

YOU SEE, I had bought (from a store that shall remain nameless) a brand new pair of shoes, so I could stand all day in some comfort. Well, the shoes were a disaster. I ended up with large red marks on my little feet and I hadn't even been standing yet. We were still in class.

As we walked to and from the class on our breaks, everyone had to listen to me moan and groan. I took them back to the store not five minutes after I purchased them and said they hurt me. They said to give them some time to loosen up. Can you believe I fell for that one?

Well, we had loads of adventure, much of it confusing, but one thing we all know for sure, we must acknowledge each customer within one minute. I think there is some sort of jail term if we fail. Maybe not, but I know it's important.

As so many in the class were from Canton and do read this paper, I threatened to write about them. As I mentioned before, when they broke us into smaller groups, there were three Cantonites in just my group.

So, from the class to our instructors, Nancy and Arlene: Hi and thanks. I think we've got it.

To Lois at the office: We are glad your car wasn't stolen and hello from the class.

Now from me to the class: A promise is a promise. Hi to S. Norman, B. Miller, L. Guyton, B. Talbot, V. Raden, L. Minsterman, C. Myers, B. Tar-kowski, M. Toal, C. Put, N. Farhat, L. Cloonan, J. Bode, M. Robinson from S. Preblich. We made it.

Now I will be watching for everyone in my department — lower level Rainbow shop, dresses. Look for the sales clerk acknowledging people within one minute. See you at Hudson's Westland, naturally.

LAST CHANCE to catch the community league football games this Saturday at Central Middle School. Both our local teams will be playing their last game of the season. Get on out there and cheer these kids on, the Plymouth Steelers and the Canton Lions. Remember, please, these are children, both teams have children from both communities.

If you are in the stands, let's be examples to our children, good examples.

My Library Bears Going to?

Friends name bookmark designers

Winners of the children's bookmark design contest were honored this week by the Friends of Dunning Hough Library, sponsor of the contest. Patrons of the Plymouth Library will have an opportunity to see all the winning designs and to take home one of the winning bookmarks when they check out books at the library.

Theme of this year's contest was "My Library is . . ." All students in the Plymouth-Canton Schools were invited to participate through letters sent to school librarians and art teachers. Several hundred entries were judged by members of Friends of the Library, the library staff and a member of the newly formed library board. The panel selected 12 winners from four categories.

Winners received laminated copies of their own bookmarks and each was given a book. Mary Childs, president of the Friends of the Library, and Pat Thomas, library director, made the presentations.

WINNERS AND their grade levels were: Amy Gay, Nikki Kunec and Patrick Chun, first-second; Kevin Gardner, Reshma Shah and Jennifer Schoes, third-fourth; Nicole Dugas, Tommy Gould and Sonya McWhirter, fifth-sixth; and Andrea Schmidt, Chris Smith and Beth Chapman, seventh-eighth.

The students showed imagination as they illustrated their bookmarks to match their slogans.

A Cardinal baseball player with a bat over his shoulder accompanied "My library is a hit." An owl, reading a book while perched on a branch, illustrated "My library is a place to learn." An antennae creature standing on top of a planet bears the slogan "My library is out of this world."

All 12 have been reproduced on blue, yellow and orange heavy-weight paper. Pat Thomas said the supply of 6,000 bookmarks would not last long at the library.

My Library is out of this world!

"Kathy's family needed hope."

A young mother with a serious illness. Her family in crisis. They came to Harper Hospital and found new hope. They learned that Harper is a university-based research and teaching hospital. A place where scientists work alongside physicians, transforming discovery into treatment. They found that Harper concentrates on the tough adult cases in cancer, heart disease and serious vision disorders.

Patients like Kathy come to Harper Hospital at the Medical Center with confidence. They come because Harper is a major participant, together with the Sloan-Kettering Institute in New York and the M.D. Anderson Tumor Institute in Houston, in America's network of only twenty Comprehensive Cancer Centers. Patients know that if the diagnosis is cancer, there is no better place to be than Harper Hospital. And they come with confidence because the Kresge Eye Institute is at Harper Hospital. This important Medical Center resource is devoted exclusively to the problems of vision. And through its research and clinical work, the Kresge Eye Institute gives new hope to millions with impaired vision throughout the world.

Harper is hope for heart patients, too. Its large scale, nationally recognized program brings together research, teaching, surgery and medicine. More open heart surgeries are performed each year at Harper than are performed at any other hospital in Michigan. But of more significance is the growing number of heart patients Harper is able to treat successfully each year without surgery. For Kathy and her family. For you and your family. Harper Hospital is Science. Research. Hope and Healing.

The church also will be showing the film series "Evidence for Faith" at 8:30 p.m. Sundays beginning Nov. 3. The six-part film series by Josh McDowell gives evidence for intelligent faith from the latest archeological discoveries, physical and historical findings and simple-to-understand proofs.

CHRISTIAN COMMUNITY Church in County government

The county as a unit of government developed from the English County or shire.

It was designed to provide governmental control over large areas with relatively sparse populations.

In the United States, it often acts as an extension of the state government. Traditionally, counties provide for enforcement of state laws, for maintaining roads, keeping records of land sold and supervision of elections.

Through the years, county government has expanded into health and welfare, libraries, parks, education and a myriad of other areas of responsibility.

The scope of county influence grew as needed, supported by constitutional provision or by statute.

Taking aim at violence

DO YOU remember when drugs first began to show up in urban schools? It seems only a short time ago that what had been seen as a city school problem crossed over those city lines.

Now there is another phenomenon which is equally frightening. And again it seems to be for the time being a city problem. Guns are becoming as common in the school yard as yo-yos used to be. Popcorn kernels have given way to shotgun pellets at high school football games. Just as many were panic stricken when drugs come to the locker room, many more are extremely concerned, and rightly so, over guns in the schools.

HOWEVER, PANIC seldom translates into solution and even concern by itself does not make a problem go away. If we repeat the past mistake of thinking this is a city problem and that the outlying districts do not have to concern themselves, we will be playing a very lethal game.

The adage of "Monkey see, monkey do," is alive and well. And today what is seen in the city gets seen in the suburbs. One of the contradictions of youth is that it mimics the very establishment that it rebels against.

moral perspectives

Rev. Robert Schaden

The adolescent drug scene certainly carries the dimension of rebellion. But at the same time the very youth who anesthetize themselves with drugs have been watching their elders doing the same for years. The younger generation shocked the older one with their pot parties. At the same time, the shock was discussed at many a cocktail party where other drugs, despite their legality, were equally debilitating to the participants. Even in rebellion modeling is the name of the game.

ACCORDING TO SALES and interest, "Rambo" is the one to be this Halloween. Other combat types follow close behind in popularity. Christmas toys are pointing in the same direction. We may wish to comfort ourselves by talking that all up to fantasy. The fantasy is a dangerous one because it reflects the reality of the adult world.

Violence is an accepted means to an end. That is what comes through terribly loud and clear. Dirty Harry is alive and well. He has simply changed his name to Rambo. It is OK if you consider yourself the good guy or if you believe it is necessary to defend your turf.

THIS IS the message of the arms race in which we so proudly point to our accomplishments. It is the message of so many of the fops and machos of television fame. Macho is back with a variety of weaponry.

The kids in the cities may have gotten the message first, but guns are as sure to cross municipal lines in the 1980's as drugs did in the 1960's. The question is not what to do about it after the fact. It is how can we turn it around. Do we use violence against it or can we model another way?

Fashion's sun side

"Sunrise-Sunset" is the theme of the Catholic Central Mother's Club fashion show on Monday, Nov. 18 at Fairlane Manor, Dearborn. Fashion will be presented by Crowley's. Wally's Bob Taylor will be guest celebrity. Donation is $17. Reservations can be made by calling Susan White at 895-9002. Committee members planning the

Imaginative mind suggests a successful yuppie

Dear Ms. Green:

Thought you might be interested in the handwriting analysis I had done in 1982. This analysis was done at a time when I had just made a career shift, from teaching writing to working as a writer/planner in the creative department of a communications and training firm.

I found this analysis interesting and wonder if you find the same traits in my writing that he did.

I hope you will have space in your column to comment on differences and similarities between your analysis of my writing and that one.

confirm that analysis. I think he did an excellent job.

The overall picture of your interesting handwriting strongly suggests a successful yuppie.

Here is my analysis for your comparison.

A high degree of intelligence is the hallmark of your personality. You are ambitious and seek to make your place in the sun.

A creative and imaginative mind open to new ideas and concepts is here. High originality points up one who is not bound by tradition and can present a non-conforming viewpoint which adds ingenuity to problem solving.

And you are also independent and individualistic.

A good sense of organization is revealed. You would tend to make your area an enthusiastic, dynamic and upbeat one. Overall management potential is high.

A self-starter, no one needs to push or prod you. Through self-motivation, you see the job at hand and you do it.

graphology
Lorene Green

You eliminate non-essentials, move directly to work, and are results oriented. Tastes are simple attitudes are direct.

In both writing and speaking you express yourself well. The valuable gift of words makes you very articulate.

You perceive yourself as a winner and have good self esteem. Enthusiasm permeates all you do. A secure ego allows you to expose your real self.

You have the impetus to accomplish and achieve without putting yourself under unnecessary tension.

You need your space. Too close supervision or too many restrictions might be an area to avoid.

This is not to say you do not need people because you do. And you can be attentive, open and receptive. You dislike friction. While you are sensitive to others' problems, you will question circumstances when necessary. You are often direct, but can smooth troubled waters by adapting to the needs of the moment.

A good sense of timing as to when to move and when to hold in abeyance is here. This intuition serves you well in your contacts with others. You are progressive, spontaneous and unrestricted in the use of your resources; time, money and energy. To summarize: You are a woman who can coordinate thoughts and feelings with action. Outstanding strengths are a fine mind, the gift of words, and a winning attitude. Have you ever considered presenting motivational seminars?

'Deadwood' voter bill advanced

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Secretary of State Richard Austin likes state Sen. Robert Geake's Christmas tree but complains it doesn't have enough ornaments.

Austin, as election chief of Michigan, agrees in principle with Geake's bill to cut "deadwood" from the voter registration rolls after five years instead of 10.

"It doesn't go far enough," according to his spokesman, state elections director Chris Thomas. Austin wants any changes in state laws to grant county clerks power to appoint registrars to sign up voters, too.

Currently, only local city and township clerks and the Secretary of State's office may register people to vote.

NEVERTHELESS, the Senate Local Government Committee last week gave 3-0 approval to Geake's bill to both purge voter lists of inactive registrants and make registration drives more uniform.

Supporting the measure were Chairman Harmon Cropsey, R-Decatur; Norman Shinkle, R-Lambertville; and McCollough. Two other members were absent.

Using an idea from the Plymouth Township clerk, Geake, R-Northville, is making his third try at a registration reform bill.

Gov. James J. Blanchard has vetoed the earlier versions. But Geake — whose district includes Plymouth, Canton, Livonia and Redford — says he has addressed the Democratic governor's complaints in his third version, Senate Bill 403.

Geake has support of GOP leader John Engler of Mount Pleasant and Democratic leader Art Miller of Warren, along with endorsement from the Michigan Townships Association, the Michigan Municipal Clerks Association, the Michigan Clerical League and the state chamber of commerce.

KEY PROVISIONS in the bill that goes now to the Senate floor:

- Clerks may cancel the registration of voters who have been inactive for five years (instead of the current 10) provided they send a written notice and allow 30 days for the person to reapply.
- It sets training standards for deputy registrars appointed by local clerks. Groups such as the League of Women Voters have complained that some clerks refuse to deputize them for registration drives at shopping malls, the clerks saying they fear for the integrity of the process.
- Clerks could not reject an applicant for deputy registrar solely because of political affiliation or residency. Clerks would have to keep records on the persons they deputize.

- Deputy registrars would be prohibited from campaigning or wearing buttons while conducting registration drives. At the insistence of Sen. Patrick McColough, D-DeARBORN, whose district includes Garden City, the bill was toughened to make violation of this section a $500 misdemeanor.
- Local clerks could make agreements with other clerks to cross-register residents. For example, the clerk of Communityville could appoint a deputy registrar to work at the Communityville Mall and register voters from Hometown if the clerk of Hometown is agreeable.

Such deals could cross county lines, which Geake said makes the registration process even more open than Austin advocated with his idea for county clerks to deputize registrars.

"The Energy People" can save you big bucks!

What is owned by 50,000 Michigan families, saves money, is clean and environmentally sound? If you guessed solar heat you would be right on all counts.

Dennis Jordan, owner of The Energy People at 6744 Highland Road in Waterford believes it is not only a money saving and a sound investment, he believes it to be the most intelligent decision a family can make.

"With the government paying up to 70% of the initial cost of buying solar furnaces you save when you buy. Our model can reduce a family's energy bill by up to 40%, so you save while you own it. When you sell your home, it will add thousands to the resale value. You even make money when you get rid of it. What other products on the market today can make that claim?" the transplanted North Carolinian said with a grin.

Dennis, a Waterford resident, has only been in Michigan for a couple of years. He has, however, been a licensed builder most of his adult life. He got involved in solar heat while selling and installing for one of the leading solar companies in this area. "I thought the price we were selling them for was high, but when I found what the units cost, I felt we were charging far too much for them to be affordable, so I quit and formed my own company." That company is The Energy People, and Dennis has been selling solar furnaces for even better quality than he did before. For as little as $1995.00 you will logically come up with a solar furnace that enables you to enjoy more comfort while saving money.

With only weeks left on the government tax credit program for solar installation Dennis suggests that readers give him a call for free information on Solar Heating for Your Home.

"I know that if I charge less and still do better work, people will tell their relatives, neighbors and friends and each job will lead to several others."

Some of the biggest objections encountered by solar salespeople have to do with myths about solar energy spread by people selling competitive sources of energy. Myths like "Michigan doesn't get enough sunshine to make owning solar heating worthwhile." Not true according to Jordan. "According to the National Weather Service, this part of Michigan gets 2200 hours of sunshine a year. Miami only gets 2800 hours annually. When you add to that the fact that one solar panel will heat between seven and eight hundred square feet of living space, you will see just how worthwhile it is."

Another myth-type objection they find themselves combating on a regular basis is that solar furnaces are so expensive it takes years to make back your original investment from savings. Again, not true says Dennis.

"With the original cost of our unit as low as $1995 and the government returning as much as 70% of the installed price in tax credits to those who qualify it doesn't take a genius to figure out how little time it will take to pay off your investment and start pocketing the savings."

A time to weep?

The last two Canton-Salem football games have ended in sorrow for the Chiefs. In 1983 (left) the score was 13-7. In 1984 (top) it was 14-7. Will it be more tears for the Chiefs in 1985 (right)? Who knows? But to a lot of folks in the community, the more frequent question is: Who cares? Observer sports editor Chris McCosky takes a look at Friday night's backyard battle and how things could be for the CEP football teams on Page 3C. A rundown of all the football games in Observerland can be found on Page 2C.

Rock-Chief battle nears

When Dena Head is on her game, she can be flat-out dominating. Ask Farmington.

The Plymouth Salem sophomore was on Tuesday and led her basketball team to a 45-19 win against Western Lakes foe Farmington.

Head scored 17 points and pulled down 13 rebounds. Stacy Sovine, Jessica Handley and Laura Clifford chipped in six points apiece.

Lisa Edwards led Farmington (2-13) with seven points. Stacy Swanderski added six.

The Rocks, leaders of the Western Lakes Division, are 13-3 on the season.

CANTON 37, FRANKLIN 26: Livonia Franklin tried to press Plymouth Canton, it tried to play a delay game against Canton, tried several different defenses against Canton — nothing worked.

The Canton victory clinches the Western Division title for Canton.

Beth Frigge led the Chiefs (12-1 in the conference, 15-1 overall) with 15 points and Karen Boluch added nine.

The Pats (6-7, 7-8), who got as close as eight points in the final quarter, were paced by Tracy Lectka's 14 points.

Canton and Salem are gearing up for the Western Lakes title game slated for Nov. 14.

Canton bows a winner

The Plymouth Canton soccer team fell short of its goal to win the Western Lakes title this season, but the Chiefs finished like champions, besting Farmington Monday 6-1 and Farmington Harrison Tuesday, 2-1.

Steve Rudelic and Steve Morell keyed Monday's win with a pair of goals each. Morell, Observerland's leading scorer with 30 goals and 12 assists, assisted on both of Rudelic's goals.

Brad Neville and Rob Opatrny also scored against Farmington. Scott Morgan and Pat Frederick each garnered two assists.

Tuesday, Canton fell behind 1-0 to Harrison but got goals from Morell and Rudelic to save victory. Morgan assisted on both goals.

The Chiefs finish the season with a third-best 10-5-1 record in the Western Lakes, 16-7-1 overall.

PLYMOUTH CHRISTIAN closed out its most successful campaign Monday on a down note, losing to Detroit Bethesda 1-0.

The Eagles finish with a 9-4 record and will lose just two starters to graduation.

Christian got a strong defensive game from freshman sweeper Ryan Davies, sophomore fullback Mark Dains and freshman goalie Jason Anthony.

The Eagles' scoring duo of Dave Presley and Rod Windle were kept off the board despite several solid scoring chances.

Don't play politics with prep sports

EVER LOSE A GOLF ball in a water trap? You know right where it went in, within arm's reach, but the water's stirred up and muddy and you can't see it. So you poke around with your nine iron for a while and the water keeps getting muckier, and soon there's no hope of ever finding it.

Had you waited until the water cleared, you probably could have plucked it out with ease. Forget it now.

I present this brief story on behalf of the Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA). It seems there are people who want to effect some changes within the organization that oversees the state's junior high and high school interscholastic athletic competition.

Fine and dandy. I wouldn't mind making some changes in the MHSAA myself. For instance, I still see no reason for the regional set-up for the football playoffs. Why not just take the top 16 teams per class according to computer ratings, instead of dividing the state into four regions and taking four teams from each?

AND THE APPEAL process for decisions made by the MHSAA, which does exist, should be more widely publicized. The hearings also should be conducted by impartial third parties.

Those are but a few of the changes I'd like to see. Some of my ideas will never see the light of day, I'm certain. But that's OK. I know some people out there wouldn't be in favor of everything I propose (the dummies) and I'm not going to hold it against them.

Now: Here's something I'm not in favor of. A state senator representing Ann Arbor, Lana Pollack, is gunning for the MHSAA. She wants changes made in the structure. Her belief is that the MHSAA's representative council does not truly represent the people of the state.

"I am not saying the MHSAA has not done a good job," Pollack said Tuesday, "or that the state should take over its operation. I have a problem with a private organization overseeing a public school function. I think it has to be made accountable."

Pollack said her concerns are not only with the MHSAA but with any private organization that governs a public institution, an institution that could, conceivably, be discriminatory.

FOR EXAMPLE, if the MHSAA ruled that parochial schools must compete in a separate state football tournament, no state organization could forbid it. Only two sources could prevent such a development: the school districts that are members of the MHSAA and the courts.

Such a development isn't likely, but you get the picture. Pollack's belief is that there is no one the MHSAA must answer to.

She suggests following one of two options to make the MHSAA "accountable." Either amend the state school code, which currently says that a school district can join any interscholastic organization that has the state superintendent of public education as a member of its board, or pass a law forbidding school districts from joining a discriminatory organization. Think about that for a moment. What Pollack wants is the state government to have a say in what the MHSAA does. A position of authority, so to speak. If the school code cannot be changed, pass a law.

NOW POLLACK'S intentions may be good. She's fears that girls sports aren't getting fair representation. She wants to ensure prejudice doesn't infiltrate the MHSAA. What she wants is to establish a series of checks and balances overseeing the MHSAA.

That may sound fair and good and in line with all that's just in our U.S. of A., but in fact it would only make matters worse. I've been around long enough to see what government intervention can do. Good intentions are often lost in the shuffle.

Every week the MHSAA and its executive committee must rule on dozens of problems regarding eligibility and rules clarifications. The appeal process to challenge these rulings is spelled out in the MHSAA handbook and includes two hearings, in front of a hearing officer and, if appealed further, before the representative council.

Imagine what would happen if a state government official stepped in somewhere during this process to put in his two cents worth. I'll tell you what would happen — chaos.

THE MHSAA doesn't make many favorable decisions. But name an umpire that gets cheers. That's all the MHSAA is anyway, a judge who must make a decision others avoid. And often that decision is going to hurt some feelings.

But putting the state government in a position of authority would only make a murky situation murkier. Soon the bureaucracy would overshadow the purpose.

"The MHSAA has been very successful being run as a small business," said Jack Cotton, former athletic director for the Farmington public school system and a past president of the MHSAA representative council. Cotton is currently chairing a committee for the MHSAA studying Pollack's proposals.

"As it's currently funded and run, the MHSAA does: cost the school systems a thing," he added.

God knows that would change if the government got involved. Make some changes in the MHSAA, establish a court of appeals or change the procedures regarding at-large and elected members to the representative council.

But don't let politicians get mixed up in this. The water's cloudy enough.

Falcon runners lead state parade

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Being healthy is a big factor in running cross country.

Farmington's boys weren't completely at full strength, but they had enough to capture their first Class A regional title since 1974 Saturday in the Section I meet at Royal Oak Kimball.

Meanwhile, Livonia Stevenson's girls were at their peak for the first time this season, winning their first regional crown since 1978.

Coach Jerry Young, whose team has been ranked among the state's top 10 most of the season, was elated with the results.

"Our No. 3 runner Bryan Lawton was out with the flu," said Young. "And anytime you can do that (win a regional), you've got to be real happy."

Farmington's one-two punch of Chris Inch and Al Stebbins lived up to their reputations in the 5,000-meter race, finishing one-two with times of 15:54 and 16:04, respectively.

The Falcons' next man was Ken Dunneback, who gave his team a lift by finishing 18th overall in 17:07. Teammates Matt Walter and Ron Smedley took 29th and 30th, respectively as Farmington scored 80 points. (See statistical page.)

"Chris and Al couldn't run any better," Young said. "They will give us those low numbers at the state meet."

THE STATE CLASS A meet begins at 12:30 p.m. Saturday at the Flint JMA Brookwood Golf Course.

Trish Donnelly
Salem state qualifier

"Holly is probably the favorite," said Young, whose team qualified along with Royal Oak Kimball and Hazel Park. "They've run solid all year. And Portage Northern could also be in there, but after that it's a grab bag of teams."

"We'd love to be somewhere in the top 10, but our goal is to be in the top five."

Plymouth Canton, fourth in the team standings at the regional, qualified two runners for Saturday's individual state meet — James Swiecki and Scott Moore.

Also qualifying was North Farmington's Kirk Armstrong, who was fourth at the regional. He will be joined by Livonia Churchill's Rob Annett, Farmington Harrison's Chris Hart and Livonia Franklin's Charles Olschanski.

Stevenson, ninth in last week's Western Lakes meet, got healthy in time to win the regional, scoring 83 points to Farmington's 100.

The Spartans this time, however, were a full strength after missing two of its top five runners at the league meet, Michele Economou and Pat Bagley.

"MICHELE WAS sick and out of school that day," said Stevenson coach Paul Holmberg. "And with her out, we didn't have a shot to win (the league)."

Stevenson's top five at the regional included Karen Kuphal, sixth place, 20:23; Economou, 10th, 20:53; Lynn Johnson, 20th, 21:33; Bagley, 24th, 21:39; and Michelle Forbes, 26th, 21:43.

"Qualifying for the state is always our goal," Holmberg said. "We're in the top 25 now, and we're in good company. This is just icing on the cake."

Farmington, the Western Lakes League champs, will be sending Bonnie Stecker, who was seventh at the regional in 20:26; Nicole Jolley, ninth, 20:38; Leslie Martin, 13th, 21:04; Judy McKeever, 18th, 21:26; and Julie Trunk.

Churchill, fifth in the team standings, boasted the regional champion, Karen Kantor, who was clocked in 19:52. Churchill's Carol Sulick, who finished fourth at the regional in 20:19, also qualified for the state individual race.

Other Observerland state qualifiers included Donna Chuba of North Farmington, Rachel Mann of Canton, Trish Donnelly of Salem and Meghan Gerig of Farmington Hills Mercy.

Rivalry week

Final football week holds magical matchups

By Brad Emons
staff writer

It's that time of year in high school football where you can get out the calculators and try to figure out who will make the state playoffs.

Observerland's lone unbeaten team, Westland John Glenn (8-0) can wrap up a berth in Region II with a victory in its last regular season game against city rival Wayne Memorial (3-5).

But in Region IV of Class A, the playoff picture is a bit clouded.

It very well could be that a team with two losses would qualify.

Grosse Pointe North (8-0) is the front-runner with Redford Catholic Central (7-1), Dearborn Fordson (7-1), Detroit Murray-Wright (7-1), Detroit Pershing (6-2), East Detroit (6-2) and Livonia Churchill (6-2) having a shot at the other three qualifying spots.

Murray-Wright is no cinch to get by unbeaten Detroit Henry Ford this weekend in the Public School League championship game.

CC, coming off a big win Saturday over previously unbeaten Warren De La Salle, faces another toughie Sunday for the Catholic League championship in unbeaten Dearborn Divine Child, the state's top-ranked Class B team. The game will be at the Pontiac Silverdome.

DIVINE CHILD and CC are similar teams, both possessing bruising defenses.

The Falcons are led by 6-foot-4, 241-pound tackle Darryl Zammit and 6-7, 230-pound end Tom Dohring.

CC, which held De La Salle's running back duo of Allen Jefferson and Eric Ford to a mere 78 yards on the ground, has been getting standout play from 6-1, 225-pound nose guard Nick Varajan and 6-2, 195-pound linebacker Kevin Tulley.

CC also used a new quarterback, Mark Stieve, who played effectively against De La Salle.

"For his first start, Mark did a tremendous job," said CC coach Tom Mach. "He was an inspiration for our kids because he was ready to play. He picked up our team and came through like a champion."

Churchill faces a tough test in Livonia city rival Stevenson (4-4), Friday night at home.

CHURCHILL COACH Herb Osterland has heard the playoff talk, but he's got something else he's concerned about.

"The playoffs are remote but possible," he said. "It's a cloak and dagger type of thing. This week we're preparing with only one thing in mind — the Stevenson Spartans."

"When we meet you can throw everything out. The team with the fewest mistakes will win."

There are several other big season-ending games this weekend including the renewal of the North Farmington-Farmington Harrison game, Plymouth Canton vs. Salem, and Mount Clemens Clintondale (7-1) at Garden City.

FRIDAY GAMES

LIV. STEVENSON at LIV. CHURCHILL (7:30 p.m.)

grid predictions

This is a grudge match between two city foes. Stevenson has the edge in offense, led by the Rosochacki brothers. Churchill relies on defense, led by Joe Payne and Bob Pensari. Picks — Emons leans toward Stevenson, while McCosky favors Churchill.

WSLD. JOHN GLENN at WAYNE (7:30 p.m.): The Rockets are flying high but must guard against a letdown against city foe Wayne Memorial. The Zebras are capable of an upset having come within a TD of unbeaten Trenton three weeks ago. Picks — Glenn marches toward the playoffs.

PLY. CANTON VS. PLY. SALEM (7:30 p.m. at CEP): Winless Canton can salvage its season with a win over rival Salem (2-6). Maybe the Chiefs, despite losing quarterback Tony Aiken last week to another broken leg, can rise to the occasion. Picks — But then, maybe not. Salem gets win No. 3.

FARMINGTON at REDFORD UNION (7:30 p.m.): RU can finish 6-3 with a win over Farmington (3-5). The Panthers, must generate some offense in order to win. Farmington boasts one of the top linemen in the area, Craig Petersmark, who will be paired against RU standout Jim Bommarito. Picks — McCosky sticks with Farmington, while Emons favors RU.

CLINTONDALE at GARDEN CITY (7:30 p.m.): Last year at this time Garden City was finishing off Mount Clemens Clintondale for a 7-2 record. But the roles have reversed this season as once-beaten Clintondale is trying to recover from last week's stunning 39-0 loss to Grosse Pointe North. Picks — Clintondale makes it 8-1 on the year.

REDFORD THURSTON at SOUTH LYON (7:30 p.m.): The Eagles (2-6) appear to have their hands full with South Lyon, which has won seven of eight games. Picks — Thurston starts thinking about next year. South Lyon rolls.

BISHOP BORGESS vs. SHRINE (8 p.m. at Royal Oak Kimball): Fumbles have cost Redford Bishop Borgess (2-6) of late. Fullback Mike Stewart, however, is having a banner year. He rushed for more than 100 yards against Birmingham Brother Rice last week. Shrine (6-2) is coming off a heartbreaking loss to Southgate Aquinas. Picks — Shrine gets two votes. L.

ST. AGATHA vs. ST. FLORIAN (7:30 p.m. at Hamtramck's Keyworth Stadium): Redford St. Agatha (4-4) is playing for pride after barely missing a C Division title and a trip to the Silverdome. Hamtramck St. Florian, a D Division team, is 1-7 and playing the string out. Picks — Agatha goes out a winner in 1985.

SATURDAY GAMES

N. FARMINGTON at BIRM. HARRISON (1 p.m.): The Hawks (6-2) moved the ball effectively last week against Westland John Glenn in the championship game, but fumbles cost them. North (4-4), meanwhile, is starting to put the pieces back together, led by running back Scott Selzer, who rushed for more than 100 yards last week in a 16-14 win over Northville. This one is for the Farmington city championship. Picks — Harrison breaks its one-game losing streak.

LIV. FRANKLIN vs. MONROE (1 p.m. at old Bentley): The game has been switched to Bentley High School because the Patriots' home field, recently resodded, is torn up. Both teams are 3-5, and both are coming off victories last week. Picks — Franklin will honor its 1975 state championship team, but Monroe spoils the celebration.

CLARENCEVILLE at INKSTER CHERRY HILL (1:30 p.m.): The Trojans (1-6) didn't play last week against Flint Academy when the athletic directors from the two schools couldn't agree on a time, date or site. Cherry Hill (3-5) is playing its final game ever. The Cherry Hill district is being merged into the Wayne-Westland and Crestwood school districts. Picks — McCosky goes against his alma mater in taking Clarenceville. Emons knows better. Emotion wins for Cherry Hill.

SUNDAY GAME

CATHOLIC CENTRAL vs. DEARBORN DIVINE CHILD (7 p.m. at Pontiac Silverdome): What a battle for the Catholic League's A-B championship. Both teams have the defense, but which offense will move the ball? Picks — The momentum carries CC into the playoffs, both agree.

Sports editor Chris McCosky went 9-4 last week, raising his season total to 78-29. Brad Emons continues to falter, going 7-6 last week to fall to 66-41.

Together we rule, divided we tumble

ON THE eve of Friday's annual Centennial Educational Park football showdown — Plymouth Canton vs. Plymouth Salem — let's pause to ponder the question: What if?

What if, like everything else within the CEP structure except sports, the Canton and Salem football teams were combined into one unit?

Huh? Think about it. As it is, Canton is 0-8 and Salem 2-6 this season. Would there be only two victories at the park this season if the two squads combined personnel?

I can hear them squawking down on Harvey Street already. "Combine the two athletic programs and half the kids don't get a chance to play."

Horseleep. Combine the two programs and create an intramural program using the wealth of athletic facilities the park has at its disposal. Then instead of limiting the number of participants, you've opened it up to everyone. Even under the current two-program system, only a small percentage of students compete at the varsity level.

But I've raised this argument before so my intention isn't to belabor the pros and cons of that issue here.

RATHER, I would like to demonstrate what kind of football program this district could have fielded this season — if.

Let's start with the backfield. At quarterback would have been Tony Aiken, a young man with a strong arm, good speed and a competitive spirit that could lift an entire ballclub. He would be the field general for this CEP squad.

The three running backs would be Paul Makara, Brian Tiller and Scott Selzer. Makara and Tiller have All-Area talent but have been forced to share time at quarterback for Salem this year.

Selzer plays for North Farmington and has gained more than 100 yards rushing in each of his last three games. If the athletic programs had been combined two years ago, Selzer and his family would be living in Plymouth right now. The Selzers didn't care for

Chris McCosky

CEP's random selection method of balancing enrollment so they bought a house in Farmington Hills.

Providing depth in the backfield would be Lee Krueger, son of Salem wrestling coach Ron Krueger and who started all season for the Catholic Central junior varsity. He opted for CC rather than accept a red chip to go to Canton.

ANCHORING THE line of scrimmage would be Dan Nash. Nash, a resident of Plymouth, is a likely choice for all-state honors and one of the main cogs on the powerful Catholic Central team. Had there been one athletic program when Nash entered ninth grade, he too would have stayed in the district.

The rest of the line would include Kirk Bennett (Canton), Rich McConnell (Canton), Frank Moore (Salem), Bill Juchartz (Salem) and Steve Boyd (Canton).

At tight end, Dan Olszewski (Canton) and Brian Johnson (Salem) would share time.

At wide receiver, Todd Wood (Canton), Kirk Rentz (Salem), Rob Adams (Salem) and Chris Hill (Salem) might all see action.

On defense, Olszewski, Juchartz, Joe Jouppi (Salem), Rick Cummings (Salem), Makara, Troy McCall (Canton) and McConnell (Canton) would be the mainstays.

The kicking game: outstanding. Olszewski would punt. Brian Storm and Dave Liuzzo would handle the place-kicking.

THAT'S A good football team, one that could contend against the tough Western Lakes competition provided by John Glenn, Farmington Harrison and others.

As it is, we have Canton vs. Salem Friday night at CEP. Two teams that have taken a beating both mentally and physically all season.

Canton could be without three quarterbacks. Tony Aiken rebroke his leg last week. Tony Boucher is out for the season, and Steve Genyk quit the team last week. Todd Wood, a wide receiver, may get the call.

Salem has been going with halfbacks at quarterback all season.

There is enough talent between the two schools to field one competitive football team. Divided, though, the teams are mighty thin.

Still, it'll be a spirited contest; it always is. There is a lot of pride on the line. It's one thing to lose to a school that's 20 miles away. It's quite another to lose to kids you'll be seeing Monday at school.

There will be other motivating factors. Canton coach Richard Barr will be coaching his last game. His players should be extra eager to send him out with a victory.

Salem has never lost to Canton in its history. They won't want to buck the trend.

It'll be a fun game tomorrow night, but personally I'd rather see a CEP team challenging for the league title.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Salem quarterback-halfback Paul Makara, handing off to fullback Jerry Sumner, will play a key role in Friday night's Canton-Salem football clash at CEP.

'Miracles do happen'

Southern belle lifts Canton pool hopes

I've got my own way of talkin' But everything is done With a southern accent Where I come from

—Tom Petty

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

PLYMOUTH SALEM swim coach Chuck Olson once told Hooker Wellman that he'd never coach another swimmer like Ginnie Johnson.

Swimmers as talented as Johnson are more the exception than the rule. Johnson graduated from Wellman's Canton program last year after three All-Area, state-qualifying years.

But Olson was wrong. Fate has delivered another Ginnie Johnson into the Canton pool. Her name is Julie Cox.

"Miracles do happen," Wellman said.

COX TRANSFERRED to the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools two months ago from Birmingham, Ala.

"The first thing they told me was that I was either going to be a Chief or a Rock," the amicable, brown-eyed junior said, with her pleasant southern drawl intact. "I said, 'a Raw-uck?' I couldn't believe it."

After all, how flattering is it for a swimmer to be called a Rock? But she drew a red chip and became a Chief, much to Wellman's delight and Olson's chagrin.

"Her mother called me and said her daughter was a swimmer," Wellman said. "I said, 'Does she swim breaststroke?' Please tell me she swims breaststroke." She said she could swim breaststroke — she was ranked No. 6 in the state in Alabama.

But while Wellman rejoiced, things were far from cozy for Cox.

"I WAS GOING to quit swimming," she said. "I've been doing it year-round since I was 5 years old. It was no fun." Competitive swimming doesn't exist at the high school level in Alabama. Cox competed at the club and AAU level.

"There were just three seniors and a bunch of little kids. It got boring. But my mom kept saying, 'you have to swim, you have to swim,'" she said.

There were other problems. She couldn't attend classes at Canton for the first two weeks of the semester because her immunization papers were slow in arriving from Alabama.

"That put me way, way behind. Especially in chemistry," she said.

And her family had to take up residency in the Knights Inn until the occupants of their Canton house moved out. The Coxes finally moved into their home Wednesday.

A 16-year-old girl moves from a 350-student high school in the deep South to a 3,500-student double high school in suburban Detroit, has to sit out the first two weeks, has to live in a motel for two months — tough adjustment.

BUT COX is having a great time so far in her new environment.

"I really like it," Cox said. "High school swimming is a lot more fun. I have a lot of friends. I think swimming helped me make friends."

Said Wellman: "The kids (on the team) just love her. She had never swum in a high school meet in her life, and her first meet here was against Salem. And that's pretty serious around here. We put on war paint and the whole bit. She loved it. When she swam a state qualifying time the kids jumped up and hugged her."

The change has pumped life into Cox's swim career. She's gone from hating swimming to loving every minute of it.

"I'd never seen anything like that Salem meet," Cox said. "I really got excited. It definitely psyches you up."

Halfway through the prep season, Cox has qualified for the state meet in four events: breaststroke, individual medley, backstroke and butterfly. And she has set Canton varsity records in the breaststroke and backstroke.

"So many coaches have told me that she has perfect strokes," Wellman said. "When she swims breaststroke, she gets what they call a fountain effect. She shoots water off of her chest."

BUT COX has also found out about the competitiveness of the Observerland pool wars. Last Thursday, she was ousted in the breaststroke by Churchill freshman Audra Martin.

"I couldn't believe her. She was something," Cox said. "I'll get her in the state meet, though. Hopefully I can surprise her."

When Cox was 14, she swam a 1:08.0 in the 100-yard breast. She is currently swimming in the 1:11.0 range.

"I have to get back down to 1:08. That's my goal," she said.

While Cox is adjusting nicely academically and athletically, she's doing even better socially. She said she hasn't had much trouble meeting boys.

"They like my southern accent," she said.

Salem grad Scott Steiner has anchored the Schoolcraft defensive wall all season.

Schoolcraft men kickers clinch regional crown, 5-0

In the decade that Van Dimitriou has been coaching Schoolcraft College's men's soccer team, he cannot remember a team dominating Region XII the way the Ocelots have this season.

Schoolcraft clinched the regional title and the berth in the NJCAA Inter-regional tournament that accompanies it Saturday with a 5-0 win over visiting Cuyahoga Metro Community College.

The win was the Ocelots seventh straight in Region XII competition without a loss. It pushed their overall record to 9-1-1 with one game remaining in the regular season, at Delta CC Saturday.

John Gelmisi, the freshman forward from Livonia Stevenson, has been hampered by an assortment of illnesses and injuries all season, and Saturday's game was no different. But a touch of the flu didn't keep Gelmisi from scoring two goals and assisting on another.

THE OCELOTS, playing into a strong wind, managed only one first-half goal, that coming on Rick Hamers penalty shot, called after Cuyahoga was whistled for a hand ball.

In the second half Schoolcraft had the wind at its back and immediately assumed command. Joe Novak (from Stevenson) converted a Gelmisi pass with 2:30 into the half, and Gelmisi made it 3-0 at the 31:00 mark, driving home the rebound of Jim Moreau's (Redford Catholic Central) shot.

Gelmisi scored again five minutes later after a pass from Abe Yaffal (Livonia Bentley). Novak capped the scoring with four minutes left to play, punching in another penalty kick after he was tripped in the box.

"The whole second half was played in their end," said Dimitriou. "(Cuyahoga) didn't have one shot on net in the second half."

Sam Matovski (Livonia Churchill) earned the shutout, his second of the season.

● STEELERS BLITZ COMETS

The Plymouth-Canton Steelers junior league football team blasted Westland three times Sunday.

The freshmen Steelers (6-0-1) got touchdowns from Joey Herman (2-yard run), Andy Coburn (14-yard run) and Ray Alvarado (3-yard run) en route to a 20-0 win. Jason Duerr made Western Suburban Junior League history becoming the first freshman ever to kick an extra point. He kicked two.

The junior varsity squad pummeled the Comets 32-6 to improve their record to 6-1. Here's how the scoring went: Jonathan Brand hit Jason Griffith with a 40-yard pass that set up Joe Mondro's 2-yard TD run. Liam Rentz scored from the 4 and added the point after. Brand ran one in from the 6. Rudy Cervantes scored from the 2 and Shawn McMullen threw a 20-yard TD pass to Mark Meszaros.

The varsity Steelers (6-1) set a team scoring record with a 59-0 triumph. Just about everyone got into the scoring act: Rob Kowalski returned the opening kickoff 70 yards for a TD. Chris Decker scored from the 16. Steve Burlison scored from 3. Erik Wiklendt earned two points with a safety. Bryan Dobbs scored on runs of 20 and 30 yards. Mike Cygan returned an interception 31 yards for a score. Brain Burlison scored from the 5. Joe Nora added five points on extra-point conversions.

The Steelers, who lead the Western Suburban League with a 18-2-1 overall record, host rival Plymouth-Canton Lions in the season finale Saturday at Central Middle School.

● BASEBALL TRYOUTS

Plymouth-Canton Pee Wee Reese indoor baseball tryouts for boys 11-12 years of age will take place 6:30-8:30 p.m. on Fridays Nov. 15 and Nov. 22, at the Bird Elementary School gym.

Interested players should call George Niebuhr at 455-6191 or Jerry Tiell at 981-0213.

● OPEN HOOPS

The Plymouth Salvation Army gym is open Monday nights 7-10 for informal men's basketball. Cost is $1.50 per visit. Call Jeff Beachum for more information, 453-5464.

● COED VOLLEYBALL

The Canton and Plymouth parks and recreation departments will co-sponsor a coed volleyball league at West Middle School on Friday evenings beginning Nov. 15.

The league will be limited to eight teams and entry fee is $120 per team plus $15 for players living outside the Plymouth-Canton School District.

Registration for new teams is Oct. 21-Nov. 1.

● BONANZA SOCCER — 1971

Plymouth, Canton and Northville-area boys born in 1971 interested in trying out for the Plymouth Soccer Club Bonanza-level team for the spring of 1986 should call Don Nippa at 459-6774, or Jack Welchans, 453-8098 by Friday, Nov. 1.

Teams resort to strange habits when they're on a roll.

Superstition intercedes, as if the spot you take on the bench or which shoe you tie first can make a difference in the outcome of a game.

Schoolcraft College's women's soccer team has a more practical method for making sure their eight-game win streak remains intact.

"I told them to take a day off," coach Ed Dudek said Monday after the Lady Ocelots returned from the Ohio State Invitational with a championship. Seemed logical, since Schoolcraft had played four games in three days.

"You know what they said?" Dudek asked. "They told me they wanted to practice. Do you believe that? I've never had that happen before."

But the Lady Ocelots can smell an NJCAA tour-

name berth now that their record is 10-3-4. They clinched the OSU Invitational with a 2-0 win over Miami (of Ohio) in Sunday's finals. Denise Piwko scored both goals, both in the first half.

Piwko's first goal resulted from passes from goalkeeper Doreen Beagle (from Livonia Stevenson) and Lori Nicley (Troy Athens) at the 25:00 mark.

BUT IT WAS Piwko's second tally, from Sheri

Wolfe (Livonia Bentley) and Jane Moylan (Livonia Ladywood) that "broke (Miami's) back," according to Dudek. "We had the momentum going into the second half."

The Ocelots didn't get another score, but they didn't need it, either, not with Beagle in the net and Shannon Bowler (Ladywood) as a defender in front. Both Beagle and Bowler, together with Piwko, were named to the All-Tournament team. Nicley and Wolfe earned honorable mention.

Schoolcraft made it to the finals after ripping Oakland University 6-1 Saturday. Nicley scored two goals and Kerry Lanaghan assisted on three. Piwko had a goal and two assists, Moylan and Propp each had a goal and an assist and Bazur had two assists. Angie Butterfield also scored a goal for Schoolcraft.

Cindy Martin scored for OU.

In the Lady Ocelots second game, they overcame a 1-0 halftime deficit to nip Bowling Green State 2-1. Piwko scored both Schoolcraft goals just 1:05 apart. Moylan and Wolfe assisted on the first and Julie Kusza (Livonia Stevenson) and Nicley assisted on the second.

Schoolcraft blanked Ohio State 3-0 in its tournament opener, with Propp and Nicley each scoring in the first half. Sue Bartram (Farmington) and Lanaghan assisted on Propp's goal and Bazur assisted on Nicley's. Butterfield scored in the second half for the Lady Ocelots, with Propp and Nicley assisting.

● ALBION VS. ADRIAN

Observer & Eccentric area players will play key roles Saturday when Albion and Adrian hook up for the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association football championship at Albion.

For Albion (3-0, 6-1), Ed Ewald (Redford Catholic Central) and Ken Kish (Farmington Harrison) are vital to the Briton hopes. Ewald is Albion's second-leading tackler with 40 solos, 45 assists. In Albion's 38-14 win against Olivet last week, Ewald recovered a fumble and picked off a pass to set up two of the Britons scores.

Kish, who had been used in a relief role, got a start last week at quarterback and was ineffective. Before being relieved in the third quarter by Dave Yaw, Kish completed two of 11 passes with one interception.

Garden City's Charlie Wasczenski, John Glenn's Dan Strehl and Garden City's Steve Freier have also been keys to the Albion defense.

Adrian (3-0, 5-2) is led by Rochester quarterback Bruce Crosthwaite. In the Bulldogs' 70-6 rout of Alma last week, Crosthwaite completed 19-of-22 passes for 291 yards and two TDs. On the season, he has hit on 107-of-185 passes for 1,437 yards and 13 TDs.

Plymouth Canton grad Matt Santilli is among Adrian's leading tacklers with 44 from his cornerback spot.

● JUREK GETS START

Eastern Michigan football coach Jim Harkema said that he expected Plymouth Salem grad Scott Jurek to see a good deal of playing time this season.

Well, eight weeks into the MAC season and Jurek is the Huron's starting inside linebacker.

He is the third leading tackler on the team with 54 (23 solo and 31 assists). In Eastern's 17-10 loss at Central Michigan last week, Jurek recovered a fumble.

Another area product is performing well on the Huron defense: junior Mike Skiver (St. Agatha). Skiver, a rover back, has been in on 53 tackles, made two interceptions and returned one for a TD.

6 investment techniques to pay for college

In the 1985 Tax Reform Act, President Ronald Reagan proposes to bar families with incomes of more than $32,500 a year from receiving federally guaranteed college loans.

This comes at a time when college costs continue to escalate. For example, in 10 years, a four-year public-university education may cost as much as $38,000.

Obviously, anyone who has college in mind for the child, grandchild, niece or nephew needs to do some serious financial planning. Here are some recommendations for accumulating money for children's education.

GIFTS — You can make a gift of assets to a minor under the Uniform Gifts to Minors Act. You set up a custodial account and name a custodian to manage it until the child reached majority.

The minor cannot use the zero-bracket amount to offset investment income but can use the personal exemption and the dividend exclusion.

CLIFFORD TRUST — You put income-producing assets into a trust with a minimum life of 10 years and a day. Income is taxed to the child. The principal returns to you after 10 years.

One bank in New York, for example, offers a "university trust" available by mail. It requires an initial minimum investment of $10,000.

The money can be invested in three ways: for income, for income and appreciation, or primarily for growth.

One problem with the Clifford Trust is that it must last for at least 10 years and a day after the trust is funded to shift income to the beneficiary.

If the investment-based property is to revert back to the grantor within 10 years, he is treated as the owner of the trust and taxed on all its income.

finances and you

Sid Mittra

When a child is older than 18 and ready to start a college, creating a Clifford Trust means that the child will have to receive the trust's income six years after graduation from college.

SPOUSAL REMAINDER — An alternative to the 10-year commitment of a Clifford Trust would be a Spousal Remainder Trust.

The trust, which is funded by one parent, can be set up to terminate at a time that corresponds to the child's graduation from college. The child is named income beneficiary of the trust.

At the termination of the trust, the investment-based property is paid to the grantor's spouse. Because the grantor never gets back the investment-based property back, the Clifford Trust 10-year plus term requirement is eliminated.

TREASURY ZERO-COUPONS — These are U.S. Treasury bonds bought at a deep discount.

They rise in value at a compound rate so that at maturity they are worth several times the initial investment.

The IRS imputes interest annually, even though no interest actually is paid, and requires payment of income tax on that sum.

Thus, Treasury zero-coupons are suited for a trust or gift to a minor, where tax rates are low.

An investment of $12,176 in Treasury zero-coupon might bring $38,400 in 10 years.

MUNICIPAL BONDS — These are somewhat riskier than Treasuries, but since the interest is tax-exempt, you need not give them to the child to obtain shelter.

The safest are new issues with at least an AA rating or, better yet, those that are insured. They can be bought in zero-coupon form.

To build a $38,400 fund in 10 years, you could invest $15,817 in a municipal zero-coupon, AAA-rated and guaranteed by the Federal National Mortgage Association.

TAXTION — You may buy the annuity called taxtion. The interest can accumulate at, say, 10 percent a year. When your child is ready for college, you may start borrowing from your policy without paying any taxes.

Taxtion provides an outstanding vehicle for financing college education.

Look for 3 figures before buying today's investor

Thomas E. O'Hara

of the National Association of Investors Corp.

I have read a number of places that the way to get ahead in investing is to buy small companies and stick with them while they grow.

I thought I would try this, and I bought Fortune Systems at $16, International Teledata at $8, Best Products at $17 and Chi-Chi's at $27. Now Fortune Systems is $1%, International Teledata is $1%, Best Products is $13% and Chi-Chi's is $12%.

The advice I read sounded great and I read it in more than one place, but my results have been a disaster. What's the secret of investing in small companies?

There is a great deal of money to be made in investing in small companies, but you can't do it blindly. We have just gone through a period when there has been a great deal of speculation in small technological companies and many people have lost money.

There is no guarantee of success, but you can increase your odds of making a profit and reduce your possible losses by checking just three figures before you make a purchase.

For instance, if you had looked at the figures for Fortune Systems before you bought it, you would have found that sales had gone up very rapidly but the company was also losing money just as fast. It's dangerous to invest in a loser.

AS NEAR AS I can tell, none of the services publish figures on International Teledata. If you can't find a sales and earnings record for the company, don't buy it.

There are too many good companies whose records are readily available, and no need to bother taking a chance on one you don't know much about.

IN THE CASE of Chi-Chi's, you have a little different problem. The sales record of the company has shown good increases, and at the time you bought it, the earnings record was just about as good.

There was a third factor you should have checked, and that was the price. When you bought Chi-Chi's at $27, it had reported earnings of $39 a share for the year.

That means that you paid 69 times earnings for it ($27 - $39). At that time, the average stock in the Dow Jones Industrials was selling at 10 times earnings.

Remember When A 9.75%^(APR) Auto Loan Was Still In Fashion?

Ten years ago, two things were all the rage. Extra-wide ties. And extra-low auto loan rates. Today, First of America reintroduces 9.75% variable interest rate auto loans. Auto loans that are good for any new make or model car or light truck. With whatever options or special features you want.

Loans that are available at First of America offices all over Metro Detroit. And at our new Pontiac locations (formerly Community National Bank of Pontiac). Call your nearest First of America bank to find out how to get a 9.75% variable interest rate auto loan.* Because it may be another ten years before auto loans are this fashionable again.

Phones ring, MOT is $21,129 richer

By Mary Jane Doerr
special writer

IT IS LIKE squeezing blood out of a turnip," said Michigan Opera Theatre Operathon '85 chairwoman Roberta Starkweather of Franklin.

The six telephones at the WQRS-FM 105 studios were silent and fund raising for the opera company had stopped momentarily in the recent one-day event.

The day started at 7 a.m. with $160. At noon a sudden surge of $3,000 took the total up to $5,700. At another table MOT board of trustees member Norman Smith of Beverly Hills was charting the day's totals every half hour to determine how close they would come to the projected goal of $30,000 and to find out what time most pledges are made. By 1 p.m. Smith's projections showed $21,000 by midnight.

"Operathon '85 is a wonderful opportunity to showcase Michigan Opera Theatre to a wide radio audience and at the same time raise much needed funds for our greatly expanded program," said MOT General Director David DiChiera of Bloomfield Hills between on-the-air interviews. "It's especially heartwarming to see so many volunteers come down to WQRS and work long hours and enjoy the camaraderie."

"EVERYTIME David goes on the air, the phones begin to ring," said Jacque Mularoni of Franklin, member of the MOT board of trustees and director of the Opera Guild board. "He seems to be able to motivate people, and we always have a run of phone calls."

A week in a London flat, a financial analysis package, a chance to meet Ghena Dimitrova, tickets for "West Side Story" and posters, tote bags, nuts and T-shirts were some of the items offered.

Restaurant packages were popular and the 30 male super roles at $125 for "Turandot" were gone almost as soon as they were offered.

The woman who won the opportunity to meet Martina Arroyo had gone to school with her and had not seen her for many years.

"It is easier this year," said Starkweather, who also chaired the event in 1984. "Last year was our first year. This year people know what to do."

Starkweather is a member of Opera Guild International Board where she shares ideas on fund raising with people from all over the world. A few years ago she helped with the operathon for the Chicago Lyric where they raised $120,000.

"My goal for Michigan Opera is for us to be like Houston Grand Opera or the San Francisco Opera," said Starkweather, who started the MOT Opera Guild in 1978 with Karen DiChiera. "I guess I am on my soap box for MOT, but I was so proud of the company opening night at the Fisher. We have come a long way. I am already making plans for next year's operathon to make it bigger and better."

STARKWEATHER had arranged for the approximately 80 volunteers to come down to Masonic Temple to man phones. The Gnome Restaurant provided salads, bread and cheese for lunch and Domino's brought in pizza for dinner.

"It has always been a joy for me to work with David and Karen over the years," said Mularoni, who has been a part of MOT since 1972. "It is like watching a baby grow up."

The new format for WQRS of only playing orchestral music had raised $6,000 in seven hours.

Inquiries by telephone callers as to why no opera was being played and the professional enthusiasm of radio announcer and flutist Miriam Cieala raised that amount to $12,000 by 5 p.m.

WQRS announcer Dave Wagner's irresistible humor and the charisma of MOT's press and public relations director, John Finck of Southfield, increased the amount to $15,000 by 7 p.m.

"I have been working with MOT for three years," said Sharon Gioia of West Bloomfield, now president of the MOT Guild of 7,000 members. "It has been the most wonderful experience for me and my family."

GIOIA was supervising the telephone operators for the operathon. During the year her volunteer work with MOT involves driving people such as Cleo Laine to the airport, planning cast parties and arranging for the grand estate sale in the spring.

"You can't believe how nice everyone is and how much fun it is to work with the MOT people," Gioia went on.

Press director Finck's Indian dinner at David DiChiera's was such a hit with the callers it had to be offered three times and raised the total another $1,000.

At 11 p.m. staff members returned from the Fisher where the final performance of "Gianni Schicchi" and "I Pagliacci" had taken place and people had made pledges to the opera.

The 17-hour operathon was wrapped up with DiChiera on the air.

For all of the hard work, fun and camaraderie, at midnight Michigan Opera Theatre was $21,129 richer. To celebrate everyone headed for the cast party at the Normandie Restaurant.

David DiChiera of Bloomfield Hills, general director of the Michigan Opera Theatre, was on the air at radio station WQRS-FM, raising funds for the opera company.

"Pardon Us" (1931), 1:30 Friday night on Ch. 50. Originally 55 minutes. TV time slot: 73 minutes.

This is Laurel and Hardy's first starring feature film. It is a spoof of prison movies that were something of a rage in the early '30s. Several Stan and Ollie routines are laced through the plot. As always the duo provide plenty of laughs. Rating: $3.

"The Jayne Mansfield Story" (1980), 1 p.m. Sunday on Ch. 50. Originally 100 minutes. TV time slot: 120 minutes.

This is a hum-drum made-for-TV film bio of the blonde bombshell of the '50s. Loni Anderson looks the part of the intelligent, driven actress who always played in the shadows of the more beguiling Marilyn Monroe. Not much substance to this effort. Arnold Schwarzenegger plays Jayne's body-builder husband and doesn't kill anyone for a change. Rating: $1.75.

'A Chorus Line' — good dancing, weak singing

Performances of the musical "A Chorus Line" continue through Sunday, Nov. 24, at the Birmingham Theatre. For ticket information call the box office at 644-3533.

By Barbara Michals special writer

With its hummable tunes, energetic dancing and broad emotional appeal, "A Chorus Line" at the Birmingham Theatre is a sure-fire bet. While the cast is not particularly memorable, the show — the longest-running musical in Broadway history — is just too good to suffer much effect.

There is no question that every cast member is a highly accomplished dancer, but there's a lot of mediocrity in the vocal department, where Marvin Hamlisch's wonderful tunes deserve better. Many of the players do not imbue their characters with as much intensity and poignancy as have previous companies of "A Chorus Line."

Set at backstage dance auditions for the chorus of a Broadway show, "A Chorus Line" is ostensibly a tribute to the hard work, devotion and heartbreak of professional dancers.

As the tryouts progress, "A Chorus Line" becomes a kind of psychodrama. Each young dancer lets down his or her hair in response to the director-choreographer's God-like voice at the back of the theater. The play strikes a sympathetic note with anyone who has ever sweated through a job interview or cringed with embarrassment at recalling painful moments of childhood and adolescence.

AFTER THE individuality of the dancers is established, the finale blends them into an ensemble where the whole is greater than the sum of its parts. There's an emotional high when all those scruffy, sweaty young dancers are transformed into lovely swans, struttin' their stuff amidst the theatrical glamour of sequins and satin.

Nancy Hess plays Casale, a once-featured dancer now trying to make a comeback to the chorus after some bad career moves. Hess is not a strong actress and, while she is a fine dancer, her solo is not the show-stopping dazzler of past productions.

As Zach, the demanding director-choreographer, Scott Allen projects a satisfactory blend of toughness and empathy. Pamela Khoury, cast as Diana, does a pleasing rendition of the beautiful ballad "What I Did for Love."

John Crutchman is likeable as Mike and his footwork is impressive on "I Can Do That." Trudi Green's Sheila is convincingly bitchy, and Amlee Turner is endearing as the hopelessly off-key Kristine.

Katherine Lynne Condit's Val lacks the fresh-faced innocence to give "Dance Ten; Looks Three" its full impact, and Chikae Ishikawa's Connie strains credibility when she totally stumbles through her tap routine.

Real-life director-choreographer James Beaumont has done a nice job adapting the production to the relatively small stage of the Birmingham Theatre. The stage is crowded but never oppressively so. Kenneth Evans' lighting is oddly intrusive, especially lacking in subtlety during Casale's solo time.

Dancers hoping for that big break on Broadway go through the trauma of auditioning, revealing facets of their lives as they talk to the director, in "A Chorus Line" at the Birmingham Theatre.

Mystery 'Laura' is just outdated

Performances of "Laura" by Vera Caspary and George Sklar continue Friday-Sunday, Nov. 1-3, and Thursday-Sundays, Nov. 7-10 and 14-16, at the Farmington Players Barn in Farmington Hills. For ticket information, call 626-5061.

By Barbara Michals special writer

"Laura," a 1940s mystery thriller, is a mood piece, developing like the languorous curls of smoke from the detective's cigarette. In the Farmington Players current production, however, the mood is not always effective, and key dialogue seems disappointingly dated.

The detective, Mark McPherson (Ralph Rosati), has become so captivated by murder victim Laura Hunt that he sits alone in her apartment, staring at her haunting portrait.

When Laura (Judith Rosati) turns up very much alive, McPherson must determine whether the intended victim was Laura or the friend who borrowed her apartment, before he can be sure of the culprit.

Prime suspect is Laura's fiance, Shelby Carpenter (Joseph Haynes), who tries to hide his involvement with Laura's best friend. Other possibilities are Laura's jealous, elderly mentor; the teen-age boy with an unrequited crush on her, and the boy's resentful mother. There's also Laura herself, caught lying to the police.

RALPH ROSATI does a great deal to humanize the cliché character of the hard-bitten detective, but he cannot overcome dialogue like, "What is there about you that drives men crazy?" The classic '40s-style detective is more often presented tongue-in-cheek today; audiences are not used to taking him seriously.

As Laura, Judith Rosati successfully shows the multifaceted personality of her character, but overall she is too wholesome to be entirely convincing as a sophisticated temptress.

Adventure vacation on an island: tagging seals

During the summer of 1985, Debbie Vesely of Bloomfield Hills was a volunteer on an Earthwatch expedition called, "Closely Watched Seals" on Miquelon Island, off the coast of Newfoundland. For three weeks she helped with tagging, observations in blinds and compass readings.

Her adventure, which cost $1,800, is one of many offered by Earthwatch in locations around the world. This is her story.

By Deborah Vesely
special writer

SLOWLY AND carefully I eased out of the small motorboat onto an unstable patch of sand still skimmed with high-tide. I walked towards the group of harbor seals basking in the August sun. A rush of excitement went through me. This is what I would talk about: the moment I walked among the seals of Miquelon Island.

I had come to this French island off the coast of Newfoundland as a volunteer for Earthwatch, a non-profit organization which funds and provides volunteers to support research expeditions around the world.

Earthwatch finds volunteers to help scientists. The volunteers pay their own way and help fund the research through their assistance. From Nepal to East Africa, the Amazon to the American West, Earthwatch volunteers spend their free time assisting research and going to some of the most exotic locations in the world.

As I approached the seal herd, an adult raised his head, alarmed at my presence. I stopped and stared at the seal who sleepily lowered his head among the others. I could see the net strung in the water to catch the seals for tagging.

EARTHWATCH SPONSORS this tagging program, which helps us to learn about the seals' haul-out sites, interactions between the seals and maternal behavior.

As I moved closer, more heads popped up. The seals were getting restless and some flushed, barreling toward the safety of the Barachois, or Bay of Miquelon Island. The seals crashed into the water as I came near them, but some stubborn adults and confused juveniles remained on the sandflat.

With my next step, they rushed toward the water. I ran towards them, yelling and waving my arms to steer them to the net. A big adult remained, undisturbed. I came within five feet of the animal before it moved slowly into the water.

The other seals torpedoes and porpoised — both methods of swimming fast — from the sandbar into the net, a perfect flush. The roundup began and ended in 10 minutes. The seals managed to get through the worm net and within minutes weaners, seals less than a year old, were bobbing around the boat and following us back to the cabin on the shore of the bay.

This Earthwatch expedition was called "Closely Watched Seals" and brought a group of five volunteers to assist professors and graduate students in the behavioral sciences.

The project was to observe and record the movements and manners of grey and harbor seals of the North Atlantic gathered in the Barachois from May to late August.

THE ISLANDS of Miquelon, Langlade and St. Pierre have been part of France since the 16th century when they were claimed by Jacques Cartier. The islands flourished momentarily during the Prohibition when they became an important way station for illegal whisky. But the islands have always been the home of seals, thousands of birds, migrating whales and wild horses.

On an earlier attempt to tag, we were able to catch a female weaner who was a little too curious and brave. The graduate students lugged her onto the shore as she flicked and complained.

She had a black head, typical of a young seal, and brown eyes like all harbor seals. Her coat was slicked down, a speckled grey and white. Her nostrils opened and closed as she puffed in anger. She grunted and made fighting noises, the only known time they vocalize.

I SLID onto her back and held my hands firmly around her neck, which bunched up when she moved. Her front flippers were tucked close to her sides so she could not struggle free.

This seal had been previously tagged so I eased my grip and stepped back. She galloped into the water like a fat inchworm, dove and popped up 20 feet away, whiskers twitching and blowing bubbles.

The work of the volunteers was simple but not always desired. Sitting by the Goulet, a narrow opening between the Barachois and the sea, was a dreaded job. Even in August the islands of the North Atlantic can turn cold and wet.

THE JOB was to count the seals, to identify and estimate the seals' direction of travel, either into the Barachois or out to sea. By observing the seals in their aquatic environment, information is gathered on travel migration and the role of the seals in the marine ecosystem.

Walking along the sand, past fresh water bogs, to the Goulet, only a short distance from the cabin, seagulls and tern birds hover above making threatening calls. Playful seals made a greeting as I took a seat in the fine white sand. The more daring ones bobbed close to the rocky shore, where washed up sand dollars and sea urchins can be found.

Scanning the Goulet, I saw two shiny black heads huddled close together like inseparable twins. I lifted my binoculars to identify their age class. I could already tell they were harbor seals by the size of their heads and the distinctive droop in the forehead.

When I lifted my binoculars the heads disappeared. They appeared some minutes later heading into the Barachois. Everytime I raised my binoculars they would dive down. They were too fast and I was not fast enough.

OCCASIONALLY I saw a seal porpoise to sea. The seal would raise its whole body out of the water in a row of leaps and come gracefully down in a crescent curve. Grey seals would also proudly swim by. Because of their big size the greys are not tagged.

The adults are easy to spot because of their huge grey nose extending like a trunk. Large folds of fur adorn their heads and cover their tiny black eyes. The grey seals don't stop, like the curious harbor seals, but continue on their way.

After my three-hour shift, I headed towards the cabin to relax. The cabin where I stayed was built in the early 1950s to provide shelter to weary and lost fishermen, and has the dates and names to prove it carved on our bulkheads.

Our cabin was a small wooden house separated into four rooms, each with four beds and a picnic table. The fourth room was sometimes occupied by a French family on holiday. We slept in sleeping bags on foam or air mattresses. There was no running water so drinking water was taken from a nearby well.

BEHIND THE cabin were tall grassy fields where wild horses roamed. The view from the cabin was of land on the other side of the Barachois, bumpy with sand dunes. To the right was the Goulet, visible only on clear days. To the left, mountains covered with wind-stunted forests towered over summer homes.

All of our fresh food was brought from the town of Miquelon, a half hour drive by truck from the cabin. Miquelon imports all of its food from France and nearby Canadian provinces so visitors can indulge in French chocolates and cookies. For dinner our meals were spaghetti, hamburgers, steaks, pizza and baked cod.

Fresh bread was always available directly from the town bakery. We ate and cooked in a dome-like structure behind our cabin. Inside, we had a refrigerator, grill and a gas stove. One night we feasted on mussels collected from the sand flats. For dessert we had fresh strawberries from surrounding fields, mixed with French cream.

After dinner, we watched the sun slowly set then disappear fast into the horizon. Some evenings we played frisbee. The bright orange saucer whirled with the wind carrying it up and around. The young harbor seals came to see this fluorescent object.

THEY BOBBED up and followed the frisbee along the shore, coming quite close sometimes. The frisbee often got away, crashing into the Barachois. The seals swam away in fright but came back quickly, their eyes even wider with curiosity.

Other seal observations were conducted from blinds scattered on sandflats where the seals haul-out and tagging occurs. From the blind, data on organization and behavior on land is gathered. Records of fighting, torpedoing and the disturbances between the seals are to be made while in the blind.

The islands have always been the home of seals, thousands of birds, migrating whales and wild horses.

THE OBSERVATION blinds are three meters tall. The observer sits in a rectangular canvas with three windows and a wooden floor. The box is mounted on four iron legs which stretch into the sand. The seals are not disturbed by the blind so haul-outs can be watched from as close as 10 meters.

Half an hour later I heard splashing and grunting in front of the blind and to my right. I rose to look out the window. Some harbor seals were gathering. They torpedoed, swimming like bullets with white water flowing from their sides, up to land; they hopped inland.

Weaners played in the water and adults rested on shore. I heard fighting noises coming from the middle of the group and saw head mocking and tail raising. One weaner could not get comfortable among the other seals and would torpedo onto land, hop around then swim off. Other seals scoffed at him.

AN HOUR later about 45 seals were to my right and all was calm. They spread their back flippers like a fan to absorb sunlight and warm their bodies, one reason for haul-outs. A row of weaners and juveniles, one-to-five-year-olds, lined the group. They all faced the blind and my right window. They laid on their sides with their heads slightly up, blinking and scratching their bellies with their front flippers.

The day of departure, I was sad to leave Miquelon Island. Time had gone by fast. I had learned so much about the seals by observing them. From the plane I saw green landscape and blue lakes, the same view as three weeks before, but now it seemed like so much more.

If you still believe in me, save me.

For nearly a hundred years, the Statue of Liberty has been America's most powerful symbol of freedom and hope. Today the corrosive action of almost a century of weather and pollution has eaten away at the iron framework, etched holes in the copper exterior.

Less than a mile away, on Ellis Island where the ancestors of nearly half of all Americans first stepped onto American soil, the Great Hall of the Immigration Center is a hollow ruin. Rooms are vandalized, walls crumbling in decay.

Inspiring plans have been developed to restore the Statue and to create at Ellis Island a living monument to the ethnic diversity of this country of immigrants. But unless restoration is begun now, these two national treasures could be closed at the very time we celebrate their hundredth anniversaries. The 230 million dollars needed to carry out the work is needed now.

All of the money must come from private donations; the federal government is not raising the funds. The Statue of Liberty-Ellis Island Centennial Commission appointed by President Reagan is asking every American to contribute. The torch of liberty is everyone's to cherish.

Could we hold up our heads as Americans if we allowed the time to come when she can no longer hold up hers?

You can keep the torch of liberty burning bright. Send your tax-deductible contribution to The Lady, Box 1986, N.Y.C. 10018. Or call, toll free, 1-800-USA-LADY.

Another in a series of informational messages concerning your phone service.

We're trying to make things simple for you again.

Starting with your new phone bill.

When all those changes happened in the telephone business a while back, some things got more complicated. Including your phone bill. Ever since we've been looking for ways to simplify it, so it's easier to read and understand. And after a lot of research and listening hard to customers like you, we think we've done it.

For starters, we've cut out some duplication, so the new bill you'll be getting could have as few as three or four pages.

From now on, you'll just mail in the Payment Page with your payment. The Payment Page is the top page of your bill. We've done away with the computer card you used to have to send in. (If you pay in person you should bring the whole bill with you.) The Total Amount Due will be easy to find because it's shaded in a box on the Payment Page.

You'll find the new appearance and wording of the bill help make it a whole lot easier to understand.

We think you'll agree that a confusing phone bill is just one more little problem none of us wants to muddle through. That's why we hope our new shorter version will be easier for you.

Sculptor's challenge — a metaphor for madness

By Benita Bornstein
special writer

On this the first anniversary of the Holocaust Memorial Center in West Bloomfield, it is time once more to reflect on the horror of the Nazi genocide and the memorial to its millions of victims.

The somber blackened steel doors, designed by the well-established sculptor, Morris Brose, are the artistically appropriate form to initiate entry into memory and this "heart of darkness."

Because of his lifelong background in Judaic sculpture, his personal sensitivity to the monumental tragedy and his abundant sense of humanity, architect Leonard Siegal of Siegal Tuomaala Associates approached Brose to design the doors, transom, and windows of the museum.

After walking many long soul-searching miles in which he painfully probed his past as well as his thoughts concerning the Holocaust, Brose conceived his idea.

There would be no disjointed screaming crying or broken bodies and no sorrowful tear-stained faces. These are images that have been seen and done, almost popularized, giving a kind of finite limitation to the grief.

Likewise, there would be no ornamentation and no glass to catch and reflect a sparkling light. Instead, Brose would cast the doors in his characteristic abstraction, devoid of figurative forms, thereby denoting in an intense powerful simplicity, an infinite limitless and universal sense of tragedy.

THE STEEL doors (bronze is too luminous and too precious a metal) with its planked barricaded exterior would communicate, according to Brose, "the point of no return — no escape."

Working first in wood and wax models, Brose made his presentation to the board. He was subsequently awarded the commission and ultimately witnessed the doors installed exactly as he had initially conceived them. When one critic exclaimed, "The doors look like a damn jail," Brose was satisfied.

Brose arrived at his composition of abstract shapes and forms which "tells everything that took place and more" by reflecting on certain images.

He said, "In my image there was always the boxcars with slats — with sad eyes looking through, fingers reaching out searching for help. My idea was not to show the faces but to introduce the idea of it."

"This abstract concept is different and will last longer . . . I asked, what would it look like if I was there and looking out, but I couldn't look out. I was doomed completely. I knew I didn't want to make any openings."

Brose's other sustaining image was the interior of the barracks that housed the crude wooden bunks all seemingly built in a helter-skelter manner.

Indeed, there is an immediacy to Brose's elongated pointed and piercing planks that intersect with each other as if they hurriedly nailed on a huge slated dark wood coffin.

THE TRANSOM, the crosspiece above the doors, usually required for air return, is in Brose's design solid and devoid of opening. The thin vertical shapes and configurations form a relief reminiscent of a jail. The windows in the museum relate in form to the transom.

Brose's design would suggest stained glass windows where light filters and is reflected in a showy

'My idea was not to show the faces but to introduce the idea of it. This abstract concept is different and will last longer . . . I asked, what would it look like if I was there and looking out, but I couldn't see out. I was doomed completely. I knew I didn't want to make any openings.'

display of jubilant color. Deliberately he omitted the colored glass retaining only the blank darkness and the prisonlike iron grids.

For Brose this work was an emotional and painful experience. "The project gave me the greatest opportunity to express my horror at the great tragedy — the Holocaust."

In recalling his youth in Poland where he lived in the restricted confines of a ghetto and experienced the bitterness of anti-Semitism, Brose also remembers his fascination with the local blacksmith and carpenter.

The blacksmith would take cold steel and with the intense heat of fire create shape and form such as horseshoes. The carpenter would build furniture with glue, nuts and bolts. These creative trades left an indelible impression on Brose, for like the carpenter he builds art and like the blacksmith he welds, bends and shapes metals into aesthetic forms.

After many successful years of sculpting, Morris Brose has melded experience into an enduring architectural and sculptural form.

HE SAID, "As a Jew" as a citizen, as a concerned person, as a human being, it was my greatest satisfaction to make the doors for this museum."

Brose's commissions, awards and exhibitions are staggering in number and formidable in content.

His work is in many private collections as well as the Chase Manhattan Bank, New York, the Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C., and Wayne State University, Detroit.

Brose lives in Huntington Woods with his wife, sculptor Suzanne Linburg.

Sculptor Morris Brose pauses in front of the blackened steel doors that he designed for the entrance to the Holocaust Memorial of West Bloomfield, which is celebrating the first anniversary of its opening. He wanted to communicate "the point of no return — no escape."

Art therapy opens doors to inner feelings

By Louise Okrutsky
staff writer

Much like archeologists decipher the meaning of prehistoric cave paintings to learn about early man's fears and desires, art therapists study patient's drawings to uncover emotions not easily expressed in words.

"What's cave art? It came out of the soul, the spirit. It wasn't for decoration," said Felice Shecter, an art therapist and artist.

She works with emotionally impaired children at Judson Center, formerly the Baptist Children's Home. She also works with patients who have eating disorders at the Orchard Hill Psychiatric Clinic, Farmington Hills.

Still a relatively open field in Michigan, art therapy has been used for the past 25 years on the east and west coasts. It encourages patients to use art in a clinical setting as it has been used throughout centuries, as an expression and release of deep seated emotions and concerns.

Any freshman art history major worth his salt can rattle off a list of artists, from Rembrandt to Edvard Munch to Van Gogh, who found in their work an outlet for personal problems and tragedies.

While conversation offers the chance to erect a smokescreen of rationalizations or an opportunity to obligingly reiterate points made by a therapist, art offers no place to hide. Art makes a statement about the artist. "You can't cover anything," Shecter said.

"Children can expose themselves through art without being frightened," she said. Under a therapist's direction, children can use artwork to reveal incidents they are afraid to discuss or don't know how to talk about. It can be used as a springboard to engage a child in a discussion of his feelings about incest or other physical and psychological abuse. Often children won't talk about incidents because they don't want to get an adult into trouble.

WHEN told to draw a picture of the sort of things he'd do during an afternoon with his beloved grandfather, a boy diagnosed as a schizophrenic drew the two of them entering liquor store. He couldn't tell Shecter or his therapist about his grandfather's drinking problem, but he could draw a picture about it.

Puppets, made by clients in what they perceive to be their own images serve as another outlet for emotions that can't be directly expressed. The therapist can encourage the client to express himself through the puppet.

Patients with eating disorders are well practiced at keeping their emotions and activities hidden from family members and friends. "They can go through $100 of groceries a day without anyone knowing," Shecter said.

They'll deny to themselves and others their actions. "Patients with eating disorders function with acts of denial," Shecter said. The veracity of their answers is colored by their perceptions of their lives. "You ask an anorexic person if they've eaten and they'll say, 'oh, lots' when they may have had

One youngster who couldn't express what was happening when a relative was caring for him, managed to tell the story of driving to the liquor store, with a picture.

an orange two days ago. But to them, that's a lot of food."

Art can serve as a springboard to talking about what is actually happening in their lives. People with eating disorders don't see themselves as individuals. They're caught up in a specific detail of their lives. Their self portraits can be revealing.

A young woman with anorexia pictures herself as a fat woman she doesn't resemble. When asked to draw herself as she'd like to be, she pencils in a slender, girlish figure.

A man who experiences extremes of emotional highs and lows doesn't put much detail into his own portrait. But he lavishes enormous care on the picture of his brother, whom he has identified as an important person in his life. He draws his brother's stripes and buttons on the shirt.

A schizophrenic boy draws a picture of a very large, very strong person which he identifies as himself.

HOWEVER, therapists can't read patients' pictures without being familiar with the person.

"I couldn't do that. That wouldn't be professional. You must be attuned to the person. You must read it within the context of their own language," Shecter said. Some generalizations can be made.

Strong ego structures usually manifest themselves on paper as strong lines. Broken, light lines generally indicate that the person doesn't hold themselves in high esteem.

"If you have a good ego structure you can overcome a lot of things, with the exception of a chemical imbalance," Shecter said.

Conference scheduled

A conference, "Art as a Diagnostic and Therapeutic Tool," will be held Friday and Saturday, Nov. 8-9, at the Northfield Hilton, 1800 Crooks, Troy. Dr. Elizabeth Fisher Ross will speak at 8:30 p.m. Friday, Nov. 8. She will focus on art and its relationship with the dying.

The conference is sponsored by the Wayne State University Center for the Study of the Arts and the Michigan Association of Art Therapists.

Small hand puppets that children make in their own image are another way to discover the problems and conflicts that are too difficult to reveal in straight conversation.

By David Messing
special writer

The time was B.C., no, I don't mean "Before Christ." I mean, "before coffee!" I was sitting at a McDonald's watching the cream billow and mix in my coffee. Sitting and staring, I was waiting for some signs of life, you know, like a pulse rate, even a heart beat or two would be sufficient. Just then I was jolted to semiconsciousness when a little old man breezed by and gave me a hearty, "Good Morning." To which I slowly replied "Oh . . . um . . . thanks, I mean, yes sir . . . good morning to you . . . too."

From that time on I couldn't help but notice this gentleman every time I came back. Even when he sat at the "senior citizen-groupies" table. He still seemed to stand out in the crowd. Why? Because, he always carries a sketchbook and can most often be seen using it for notes or quick sketches. His brain doesn't rest for a minute.

Finally, after about eight "good mornings" I asked him to sit and share a coffee with me. His name is Carroll Wilkie and within a few coffees I realized that this guy is the tradesman and I wanted to be his apprentice.

WHAT A wealth of knowledge and experience wrapped up in his 74 years of life. I am interested in molding and casting in different media and Carroll is a retired toy/model maker, designer, artist and you name it. Last week I had the opportunity to visit him at his shop in the basement of his home. I was in a dream world. He has laths, kilns, saws, lightables, pewter casting equipment and ceramic molds, not to mention some tools that I can't even describe.

Every drawer in his basement was full of stuff and he had a great story for everyone. I learned more about casting, last Friday morning, than I did in four years of college. "Somehow in his remaining years," I told my wife, "I want to learn everything Carroll can teach me." That may be sometime yet, because Carrolls mother is 96 years old and still going strong.

Carroll is an "old friend" I haven't met before, at least until a few months ago. I pray that God will grant me acuity, energy and creativity, that I too, may stay as well within my art as Carroll is with his.

"An old friend I never met" sounds like a paradox, but that describes Carroll and it also describes a technique that was popular long before my time. "Sepia-tone" is the only name I know to describe this technique. It looks like a one color pastel. However, the colored paper must first be prepared. Sepia-tone prepared drawing paper has a deep rusty brownish look to it. You use charcoal pencils or graphite for the lines and the darkest areas. Then you erase or "pull out" the highlights which appear to be a rosey or flesh like color.

OF COURSE this technique is perfect for life drawing, but it is especially beautiful for still life and some scenery. So if you are tired of black and white or feel a little uneasy handling full color, then let's do a sepia-tone. Here's what you will need.

A piece of white drawing paper, vine charcoal, conte' crayon, a sand paddle and a leather chamois. All of which totals under $5. First sand about one half or three quarters of the vine charcoal evenly over the piece of paper. Then sand about a quarter of the conte' crayon, again allowing the dust to be distributed as evenly as possible. At this point your paper should look like someone spilled pepper and paprika on it. Taking the chamois in hand begin rubbing the mixture and you will see the beautiful and classic look of sepia-toned paper. When you have rubbed the paper and have produced an even smooth color, then you are done with the preparation.

Next I would do my rough sketch on layout paper and then transfer to the prepared paper with charcoal or graphite. The reason for this step is to eliminate the need to erase on the prepared surface while developing the sketch. When transferred you can either draw charcoal, conte' crayon or pencil. Lastly you can knead your eraser and "pull out" many tints of the original base, sepia-tone color. This technique has such a classic or antique look to it that you could finish the drawing today and it may look like a sketch Carroll Wilkie did back in 1930.

Try this technique and I know you will be pleased with the color and this age old look of sepia-toned paper. It is simple, fast and can handle abstraction as well as realism. It may be, perhaps, like a stranger you have yet to greet "good morning," like Carroll.

This technique may be withholding many surprises for you. So stop by for a coffee, and if you see Carroll ask him lots of questions and tell him Dave says, "Hi."

This is another lesson on art and drawing by special columnist David Messing. He has taught for ten years and operates an art store, Art Store and More, 16338 Middlebelt, Livonia, 522-6311, 265 N. Main Street, Plymouth, 455-1222. Messing encourages questions and comments from readers. You may write him at his store or c/o Observer Newspapers, 23352 Farmington Road, Farmington, MI 48024.

SOME OF THE GREATEST THINGS IN AMERICA

In Ansel Adams' eyes, America's wilderness is its most precious national treasure. Through photography, he immortalized the unspoiled beauty of Mt. McKinley for all to see. NEVER CHANGE. Some things never change.

But one great American tradition has changed—U.S. Savings Bonds. Now Savings Bonds pay higher variable interest rates like money market accounts. That's the kind of change anyone can appreciate.

Just hold Savings Bonds for five years and you get the new variable interest rates. Plus, you get a guaranteed return. That means you can earn a lot more, but never less than 7 1/2%.

But some of the best things about Bonds haven't changed. The interest earned is still exempt from state and local income taxes. Still cost as little as $25. And can be purchased at almost any financial institution. Or easier yet, through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

Buy U.S. Savings Bonds. Like the wilderness, they're another part of our proud heritage.

For the current interest rate and more information, U.S. SAVINGS BONDS call toll-free 1-800-US-Bonds. Paying Better Than Ever Variable rates apply to Bonds purchased on and after 11/1/82 and held at least 5 years. Bonds purchased before 11/1/82 earn variable rates when held beyond 10/31/87. Bonds held less than 5 years earn lower interest.
