Police chiefs favor improved 911 syste

By Dennis Coffman staff writer

Most police chiefs are convinced that western Wayne County would benefit significantly from an "Enhanced 911" emergency communication system.

The police chiefs of the City of Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton Township are among them.

John Santomauro, Canton police chief, endorsed the new system. "It's still at the study stage, and we're exploring its implementation but I can see that it would be a great enhancement," said Santomauro.

"There are some features of interest, such as providing a location when the caller is incapacitated. Also, the call can be traced so crank calls can be poComputers to speed emergency response

Santomauro, Berry and Richard Myers, police chief of the City of Plymouth, all have come out in favor of the enhanced system.

Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen and Plymouth City Manager Henry Graper have said they believe E911 would be an important improvement in responding to emergency situ-

"It's a much better system," said Graper. "But we will introduce discussion of it when it comes time to prepare the new budget (April). The earliest we could consider it is during next year's budget discussions.

"We will look at all departments before we make a decision. We have a 911 system now. It's been estimated that it would cost us in the $15,000 bracket. I'm in favor of it. It would be a great service to the city and the police department," said Graper

The CWW has yet to present its proposal to the City of Plymouth. However, Chief Myers is already convinced of

Growth Works program to keep juvenile offenders from repeating

staff writer

Youngsters who fall into trouble with the law at an early age may be diverted from a life of crime under a program launching next month in the Plymouth-Canton community

Labeled a diversionary program, the project would take in youngsters as young as 7 and up to 16 years of age who have been cited by school officials and police as having problems with truancy, vandalism, substance abuse, shoplifting or abusive behavior

The program is regarded as "good opportunity" for first-time offenders, and may plug a gapping need for juvenile attention in the suburbs.

"I've felt for a long time that there's been a need to do something of this nature," said Dale Yagilla, director of Plymouth's Growth Works, which will administer the program. "There are over 10,000 cases handled in Wayne County Juvenile Court each year, and there's a tendency for cases from the outcounty area to be overlooked."

RESOURCES are limited in the county's juvenile system, he said, and consequently reserved for only the most severe cases.

youth home and probation workers have large case loads. The amount of work done with families is limited," he

"I was in a meeting with one local government official who had a stack of petitions that were rejected by the courts. He was saying that something needs to be done about this thing," Yag-

The program is partially sponsored by Wayne County through a $20,000 matching grant with Growth Works. Three other similar programs are funded through county tax dollars and locations, in the Warren-Connor area Rouge Growth Works will handle its early February. share of the program responsibility by offering staff services.

The program is designed for children and their families, involving special training sessions and classes. The services would include Parent Effectiveness Training classes and programs in employment, work-service restitution and youth mentors, a special focus of the program.

"There are only so many beds in the could be like a big brother, big sister or big aunt to that child, taking him fishing or just sitting and studying with them," said Sue Edwards, the county's program coordinator

> "SOME OF these kids come from homes with no kind of communication between the parent and child," she added "Mainly (the mentor) is an adult who could serve as a role model, someone to talk to on a whole facet of life."

According to Yagilla, they plan to begin recruiting volunteers soon to act as mentors in the program. Participation would require working each week opening soon. They include two Detroit with a child on their particular goals for 12-16 weeks. Children will be acand the 12th Precinct, and in River cepted into the program starting in

> Besides meeting with their mentors, youngsters will be expected to meet with staff members and other participants in group setting each week. Where it applies, parents will be asked to attend an existing drug education program in the Plymouth-Canton School District and a "Tough Love" program.

According to Edwards, the program has been modeled after a similar operation in Oakland County called the Youth Assistance Program. In Wayne County, there are other types of juvenile deversion programs, in Livonia and Garden City, for instance, but those are tied to local court systems. The Wayne County Juvenile Court also has launched one this year.

Edwards, a former news anchor and public affairs director for radio station WJLB, was hired earlier this year to coordinate this program out of the county's Youth Development Office.

She said the county has plans to add programs in four or five other areas around the county. A decision on those locations will probably be made later in January.

Chiefs back E911

Neither of the two townships has its own 911 system, so those residents must first dial 911 and then the city routes their calls back to their respective police departments.

"Enhanced 911 would break those calls up and the computer would route them selectively to the townships," said Myers. "Right now, it's actually quicker for residents of the townships to NOT use 911 and instead, use their own police department

Myers said the city gets many emergency calls from residents of Plymouth Township and Canton Township as well as Northville Township.

Even though the city has a basic 911 system in place, Myers said the basic system is not compatible with Enhanced 911. The city, as is the case with most other municipalities, would have to start from scratch if it went to E911. However, the city's new dispatch console and call director could be tied into

Opens office

Dr. Frank A. Smith has opened an office in the Arbor Health Building, Ann Arbor Trail at Harvey, Plymouth. Smith, a cardiologist at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor, is a clinical instructor in internal medicine at University of Michigan Medical Center. Smith, 38, was first in his graduating class at Michigan State University where he earned his bachelor's degree in 1968. In 1972 he earned his medical degree from Wayne State

correction

An incorrect headline, "Pursell, Broomfield back 'Reagan tax bill,' "appeared in the Dec. 19 issue of the Plymouth and Canton Observer Newspapers. The Roll Call Report column underneath the headline correctly reported that Congressmen Pursell and Broomfield both voted "no," which was a vote to kill the tax reform bill by preventing it from reaching the floor for debate.

areas," said Myers, "if E911 does not come to pass. But E911 would mean that we would no longer need to receive calls from other municipalities and that we would not have to transfer those calls.

MYERS POINTED out that it is time-consuming for the city's police department to have to receive emergency 911 calls from Canton and Plymouth township residents and then relay those calls to the proper police department.

'And time is of the essence in emergencies," said

Myers said he is "already sold" on the merits of E911 and has so stated in a memo to Graper.

He said he expected the Plymouth City Commission to hear a presentation from the CWW's executive director, Ann Wagner, in 1986. 'But the big issue is how it will be paid for," said Myers. "It's like putting a man on the moon. It's up to the people to decide where the money goes and there's not a lot of it around." The CWW is trying to enlist as many of its 17 member communities as possible in the E911 system, to make the system efficient, comprehensive and cost-effective.

The economy of scale would hold the cost down," said Myers.

He suggested that, for maximum effectiveness, the neighboring communities of Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton Township and Northville Township should vote to participate in E911.

THE BIGGEST task, according to Myers and other police chiefs, will be feeding every name and address into the computer that the telephone company would use for E911.

Telephone boundaries do not follow geographic boundaries," said Myers. "Each municipality must provide addresses to Michigan Bell. That is the

According to Myers, even if the three townships and the city voted to join E911 in January, it would still take two years to get the system on-line.

"Getting the software is the complicated part," he said. "But the time requirement could be a blessing, in a way, because it would allow the municipalities the time to raise the money.

"For us, it's not as critical. We have 911, which is the universally recognized emergency number. It's quick and there's no need to fumble through telephone books.

The Plymouth Township Board of Trustees became the first western Wayne County government to endorse E911 during a December board meeting.

The CWW will describe E911 to each of its other 16 members in an effort to obtain the same kind of endorsement it received from Plymouth Township.

Reader tells of amazing stories'

To the editor:

I believe Hollywood screenwriters could develop their own "Amazing Stories" scripts from the tales that residents of Plymouth Township have been receiving in the past few months.

On two occasions in the past six months, Plymouth Township residents were asked to approve two different millage proposals with virtually no specific data provided by both past financial performance and future

Of course we were given the customary hata of what one mill would cost to an bwner of an average $80,000 home, but not once were we provided details that would allow taxpayers the ability to really know how funds have been recently allocated or how the proposed funds would really alter the township operations.

Reports in your newspaper never addressed a thorough review of township finances, nor did township officials ever utilize the township newsletter to clearly disclose both past funding or future needs. Consider the probability of the most recent millage request passing if the following had been properly disclosed:

1. The minimal information of substance received regarding the millage proposal suggested it was solely to fund police and fire protection. Your paper disclosed on Nov. 21, 1985, that the township would be adding four additional clerks in the township offices above current staffing levels the ability to fund this staff was attributed to reduced pressure on general operating needs that the new millage funds had provided. Amazing that this was never disclosed as a probability before the election.

2. The concurrent passage of an additional one mill for the newly created library district freed the township of more than $100,000 that had been previously funded by the township — Amazing (or is it?)

I am obviously disappointed that the elected leaders of the township do not have the confidence in the electorate to provide a thorough summary of past and proposed township financial requirements before putting an issue on the ballot.

I am also surprised that the Observer doesn't feel the need to cover these matters in the depth which they deserve. Ballot proposals regarding financial matters of significance should be scheduled only after complete details have been distributed to each and every resident.

The township would never receive funding for block grants, development programs, etc., if it did not provide adequate data to the funding source. Why should information to the taxpayers be so consistently incomplete? I really don't think we have had all the facts presented and made available so that an informed decision could be made (or would that be the most Amazing Story of all?)

College building cash rides prison coattails

By Tim Richard staff writer

"A personal victory," beamed state Sen. Patrick McCollough, D-Dearborn. "A pork barrel," sniffed state Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia.

'A very expensive piece of legislation," intoned Sen. Doug Cruce, R-Troy. "There was something here Northville Township wanted," explained Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville.

'I don't see the Wayne State Univesity library project," demanded Sen. David Holmes, D-Detroit.

"They're zipping it through," complained Rep. Mat Dunaskiss, R-Lake

THEY WERE talking about the same bills - the joint capital outlay package: $323 million in construction, including $154 million for new prisons and $58 million for colleges.

The companion bills meant different things to different people.

While most Democrats supported it, all area Republicans but two were opposed.

Sen. Richard Fessler, R-West Bloomfield, was absent. And the second exception was Geake, who said constituents would be pleased by an unspecified amount for a renovation study of a power plant at Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital. Nearby residents complain their air is polluted by "heavy, black ugly smoke" from the BANKES, A first-term Republican from Livonia, said she was "upset at voting against prison money. The only money absolutely necessary was the prison construction money.'

Despite his own "yes" vote, Geake agreed with her, noting that "the popular clamor for prisons was used to drive through the bill for new buildings. The colleges are using the popularity of prisons to drive through a bill which does both (construct colleges and prison buildings)."

Geake, a member of both the Senate Appropriations Committee and Joint Capital Outlay Committee, said the package also includes:

• $10 million for continued construction of the $33.5 million Scott Regional Prison in Northville Township. • $1 million for clear title to the former Plymouth Center for Human Development properties west of Sheldon Road. When the state acquired the site from Wayne County, there was a clause saying the land would revert to the county if the state used it for anything other than a children's mental institution. The state intends to sell the land, possibly to a private developer. • $225,000 for plans and the start of construction of a $9 million library for Oakland University.

McCOLLOUGH, WHOSE Senate district includes both the University of Michigan-Dearborn campus and Garden City, trumpeted his victory in get-ting $350,000 in planning money toward $11 million worth of renovations at the UM-D campus.

"This was not an easy assignment, given a commission report questioning the future of the UM-Dearborn campus," said McCollough, referring to a report by Gov. Blanchard's special commission on higher education which did indeed question the need for UM-D.

"The turning point in our effort came this fall when budget director Robert Naftaly accepted my invitation and toured the Dearborn campus with me," the senator said.

"Only then - after witnessing the need for better classroom space, the replacement of 10 outmoded modular structures, and the use of otherwise abandoned space in the old student activities building for university and community-oriented cultural programs - did he agree to include the initial

(In a separate news release, UM-D thanked McCollough and two Dearborn-area state representatives for winning $25,000 in special aid for steam line and heating system improvements.)

DUNASKISS' northern Oakland County district had been eyed by the state Corrections Commission for a regional prison, and he is unhappy about

Area residents are vehemently opposed to the site - near an elementary - and the Oakland County Board of Commissioners, after ducking

the issue last May, recommended in fahospital in Pontiac. Dunaskiss voted against these two measures.

Meanwhile, the Corrections Commission took the Orion Township site off its Dec. 19 agenda and will consider it again in January. Reason for the delay is that the site is state recreation land paid for with federal funds, and it may not be converted to another use without a federal waiver.

EACH STATE university got money vor of vacant land next to a mental for one or more projects. Examples:

> • UM-Ann Arbor got $1 million toward a chemical sciences building and $675,000 to renovate their Natural Sciences Building.

• Michigan State scored $1.6 million toward a veterinary center, $1.1 million toward an engineering building and $3.5 million to complete a plant and soil sciences building.

• Wayne State got $375,000 to start renovations of Mackenzie Hall, $850,000 to start a biology building and $1.4 million to complete an engineering building.

ONE BONE of contention was a science building earmarked for Central Michigan University, home base for Senate Majority Leader John Engler, R-Mt. Pleasant.

Engler demanded that in exchange for Senate passage of the prison monearlier vetoed money for the CMU project.

Blanchard in a news conference accused Engler of "holding crimefighting money hostage." The Democratic governor urged Senate Republicans to "work around him or convince him he's wrong."

But Geake said Senate Republicans fully supported the position and felt Blanchard's veto of the CMU building was "political."

Thanks given Ball helpers

To the editor:
On behalf of the Plymouth Symphony
League, I was delighted to see such wonderful coverage of our Christmas Candlelight Ball in the Dec.19 issue.

... While it is always flattering to see one's self in "print," it is unfortunate hat two of the most important women connected with this event were barely mentioned, much less pictured.

Please allow me to publicly thank Christmas Ball co-chairwomen, Joan Kisabeth and Chris Krivick.

Along with the rest of the Nighten-gale group of the League, these two staunch supporters gave endless hours of time and talent in keeping their fingers on the pulse of the project and coordinating the myriad of details that culminate in the kind of special evening enjoyed at the Christmas Ball.

As in any volunteer organization, those most important are the workers—the unseen, unsung people who work tirelessly for the good of the community—always without pay, often without praise. So please, Observer, join me in honoring these two lovely ladies and thanks for your continued support of thanks for your continued support of the Plymouth Symphony League.

How Plymouth rebounded from its darker days

' IF PRESIDENT REAGAN was looking for something to boost his "lame duck' term in the White House, he might ask for a survey to find the community that made the best climb from the recession to the present economy. The hunt need go no further than the city of Plymouth, Mich.

Little more than a few years ago this small community of only a few square miles was on the edge of fading from the

First, the Alexander Hamilton Insurance Co. moved. Then the National Bank of Detroit moved its branch office to the outskirts. The city's newspaper moved its office to another area.

Along with these losses, Kresge departed its store on Main Street, Consumers Power and Michigan Bell moved their offices, and one by one the business folks departed. Most of all, the automobile row that boasted Paul Wiedman's Ford Agency, Allison's Chevrolet dealership, and the Lincoln-Mercury operation moved to other sites — this time to Plymouth Township.

With all of that, Herman Bakhaus, who organized the ice cream plant known as Cloverdale, retired and moved away.

The Bennett House on Main Street was allowed to remain idle, one of the big brick shops of Daisy Air Rifle stood vacant, and there were vacancies on Penniman Avenue on the way to the post office.

THE BIG PARKING lot at the rear of the Mayflower Hotel remained an eyesore in the downtown area and the shops between Amelia and the city limits on North Main were vacant.

Even the Mayflower Meeting House across South Main from the Mayflower Hotel was just another building that had seen its best days — or so it seemed.

There were only a few "die-hards" who remained. There was the Mayflower Hotel, built in 1927, Saxton's Garden Center, the Masonic Temple, and the Penn The-Things didn't look good. It was the depth of the recession. Then a few survivors, who just wouldn't say "die," decided to take a hand in saving the city.

Leading the way was Ralph Lorenz, who had been manager (and now the retired owner) of the Mayflower, and George Lawton, manager of the Plymouth Federal Community Credit Union. Along with them was attorney John Thomas and the Jabara brothers — Jim and Kal. They started things moving upward.

With them setting the pace, Plymouth has grown into one of the busiest cities (for its size) in the state.

Lorenz, who just wouldn't let the city go to pieces, started a move for a new bank.

It didn't take long and it now is a busy financial institution. He also made vast improvements in the Meeting House, which now is the city's major site for banquets and all sorts of meetings.

A number of stock broker firms were landed and the old Markham Air Rifle factory is now a leading restaurant.

THE CITY added to the upbringing by having a deck placed over the downtown Central Parking Lot, and Kellogg Park was improved through the efforts of the service clubs.

Plymouth Rotary Club sponsored the building of a fountain in the center of the park. Plymouth Women's Club sponsored the lighting system in the park and the Plymouth Kiwanis Club made possible the brick sidewalk along the front of the park - the sidewalk which carries the names of the city's leading families.

The Masonic Temple is a monument to the downtown area, along with the Penn Theatre managed so long by Margaret

The old Kresege store has held several tenants, including a large furniture store. Today, under the watchful eye of former Mayor James McKeon, the building now has five stores - from a book center to a

Two medical centers have opened - the Ford Center next to the former Plymouth Mail office now occupied by Growth Works and the Arbor Health Center at Ann Arbor Trail and Harvey.

The Bennett House has been renovated and is now special offices, and the Allison Chevrolet showroom is now a church.

WITH ALL THIS activity, the city attracted many individuals who took a liking to the area.

As a result, there is very little residential property available, and the business section has been enlarged with strings of stores along Forest and Harvey. All the while, new places are opening and even the old-time grainery, owned by the McLaren family, is now a restaurant.

Along with these changes, the city has developed a cultural center which includes an ice rink. The Mayflower Hotel has arranged a long series of motel rooms behind the Meeting House and the Mayflower II which has replaced the former automobile row on South Main.

Yes, the place has changed. The Observer Newspaper has returned and is now working out of the Meeting House and another paper, the Crier, has come on the

There are several travel agencies to take care of the constant business of people on the move.

Plymouth is now a complete city - one that attracts customers to the business area, and draws thousands for the many activities from ice carving to the Fall Festival, and is well known for its symphony orchestra.

The city is now within minutes of two express highways and a short ride to Metro Airport.

WITH THE MANY attractions offered during the year, the city is the area people from miles around travel to, especially as it is part of a nationwide bus travel program.

In fact the city that seemed to be a victim of the recession now is a leader in the climb to the top of the economy.

It is also a place shoppers from miles around come to to do their buying instead of going to larger cities. It has the business areas, the park and recreation areas in the midst of the business section.

It has cast aside its gloom of a couple decades ago and is now one of the most thriving cities in the state - if not the country.

President Reagan would find it a great example of what can be done to cast the recession aside and become one of the leading climbers on the way to a healthy national economy.

What does future hold for Plymouth?

WHAT WILL the City of Plymouth look like at the turn of the century?

In fact, what will it look like 10 years from now? These two questions are being discussed by the Realtors these days and some of their ideas are most interesting. You see things are changing so rapidly that one thing is assured - neither the city nor Plymouth Township will remain in its present stages.

Take the city, for instance. It is only a few square miles and there are very few residential lots available even if someone wanted to buy and build.

Aside from that, under the present regulations, no new buildings may be higher than two stories. More important there is very little industrial property available. So, according to the Realtors, the only major residential sites are the Clarence Moore farm almost in the heart of the city and Central Middle School and athletic field if it is not used as a school.

Because of this the Realtors predict the city will have to change its regulations and permit residential and buildings higher than two stories.

MEANWHILE PLYMOUTH TOWN-SHIP, with more than 30 square miles, is building rapidly and by the close of the century should be the residential center of the area.

More than that, it has plenty of industrial property both on the north and south sides. Industry is piling up fast on Five Mile and will continue to grow. One thing that is agreed upon is that there will be no overpass or underpass at the railroad crossings. They are much too expensive and the cost will increase as the years move along.

And the fact that there are about nine areas where crossings could be improved, there is no chance that the long waits at large city. the crossings will be eliminated.

Meanwhile the city has taken advantage of the downtown business section which will grow and become the shopping center for the entire area.

Years ago the city was designed to cater to the Daisy Air Rifle plant. In the design there was little thought given to other industries. The only plan was for residential property close to the plant and the railroad.

Now it is easy to see that a mistake had been made. The city needs more residential property. It also needs industrial sites. But there are none available unless some drastic action is taken.

WHEN THESE things are studied by the Realtors, the picture of the future becomes a bit clearer.

By the year 2,000 years before, Plymouth Township will be heavily dotted with residentiaal areas. An example is the plan of Joan Hulce to build a series of condominiums. This is just a starter. The entire township will develop with residential areas and it is thought that these areas could stretch almost to

And strange as it may seem now the city will profit by it.

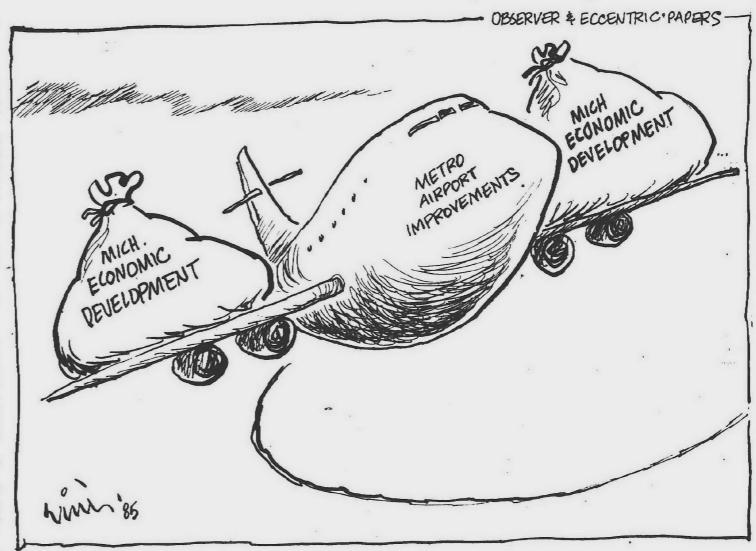

The downtown area is a real business and shopping center for the entire area. More than that, with Kellogg Park, it will become the entertainment center - especially with the annual Fall Festival.

So, if the Realtors' predictions come to pass, the township will be for residents and the city will become the shopping center for the entire area - both city and

If you agree with the Realtors there are good times ahead for both communities. One thing certain in their view is that the two never will join and become one

Metro Airport means jobs

by James A. Meyers director of Public Services Wayne County

AM extremely optimistic and enthusiastic about future prospects for Detroit Metropolitan Wayne County Airport. Carefully controlled growth promises to stimulate our economy and provide considerable opportunities for our citizens.

When I accepted this position - which includes, among diction over both Detroit Metro and Willow Run airports Wayne County Executive William Lucas advised me of his vision for Detroit Metro. His other things, jurismain objectives: 1) To provide a first-class facility for the traveling public, particularly residents of Wayne and Meyers County southeastern Michigan. 2) To take advantage of all the opportunities the airport offers, as a stimulant to economic development in Wayne County. As a longtime business administrator in the private sector, I embrace these principles and believe Bill Lucas has his priorities admirably in order.

OBJECTIVE 1 means the public comes first. In managing the airport, we don't automatically concede to the dictates of the airlines. Expansion will occur only by means of a logical and orderly master

The second objective holds great promise for a job-starved metropolitan area anxiously seeking economic development.

Detroit Metro has become the nation's fastest-growing urban airport and now ranks among the largest dozen American airports — up from 19th two years ago. One airline, Republic, has doubled its number of daily flights from Detroit, and Northwest Airlines is seeking to do the same. At this time, approximately 900 flights arrive and depart every day.

This means jobs. Around 8,000 people are employed at Metro, and off-airport development is booming, as an ever-increasing number of air cargo companies and related industries are popping up in Romulus, Livonia, Taylor and other nearby communities.

Additionally, as Wayne County and southeastern Michigan become increasingly accessible to more parts of the nation and the world, the Detroit area becomes much more attractive as a convenient location for conventions, tourism, business expansion, and relocation by nátional and international firms.

BEST OF ALL, this economic stimulation comes at little or no expense to the taxpayer. Not many realize that no county money goes into Metropolitan Airport.

It is a self-sufficient, user-supported facility. Landing fees and concessions pay for operation and maintenance. Capital costs and major improvements are financed by FAA grants and bond issues backed by the airlines. To accommodate Republic, Northwest and other carriers, we are discussing a bond issue designed to solve some of the inconveniences associated with this rapid

The need is clear. Detroit Metropolitan Wayne County Airport will handle more than 15 million passengers this year. This exceeds the predictions in our original master plan for the year 2000.

HOUSE

TAX BILL RULE — By a vote of 258 for and 168 against, the House adopted the rule for debating legislation to give the U.S. tax code its first housecleaning in nearly four decades.

Coming soon after the House had bottled up tax reform by rejecting essentially the same rule, this vote was a major breakthrough for President Reagan, Democrats who run the Ways and Means Committee, and others who wanted the House to pass

Most members voting yes favored the tax-overhaul bill as well as the rule for debating the bill. Voting yes: Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods, William Ford, D-Taylor, Sander Levin, D-Southfield, William Broomfield, R-Bir-

Opponent Buddy Roemer, D-La., who objected to the bill's higher taxation of the timber and oil and gas industries, said the rule "reminds me of a Louisiana bullfrog, all mouth and no guts. This rule does not alow us to touch the guts of the bill."

CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS - The House adopted, 230 for and 196 against, an amendment to the tax bill (above) to permit a tax credit of up to $100 for a contribution to a House or Senate candi-

On joint returns, $200 would be the maximum credit. Because tax credits enable individuals to lower their taxes by the full amount of the credit, this was seen as a form of public financing of cam-

The amendment was drafted by House Democrats, who touted it as a way for small contributors to offset the influence of political action committee (PAC) money in House and Senate races. But many Democrats vote against it and many Republicans supported it.

Democratic opposition and GOP support was based mainly on a suspicion that members of singleissue pressure groups, which tend to favor Republi-can candidates, would utilize the tax credit much more than would union members, minorities and other small donors in Democratic ranks.

Members voting yes favored the tax credit for small congressional compaign contributions. Voting yes: Pursell, Hertel, Ford, Levin and Broomfield.

GOP SUBSTITUTE — By a vote of 133 for and 294 against, the House rejected the Republican substitute to the Ways and Means Committee's taxoverhaul bill (above).

Like the Democrats' committee bill, the GOP plan was designed to neither raise nor lower federal tax receipts. Among other similarities with the committee legislation, it eliminated a host of tax breaks for business and used the newly-found revenue to permit a lowering of personal and corporate tax rates.

But it was more accommodating to business, primarily in shifting $110 billion of tax burden from individuals to businesses, compared to the Democrats' transfer of $140 billion.

Also, it phased in a top individual rate of 35 percent, compared to the Democrats' 38 percent. And it set a $2,000 personal exemption for itemizers and non-itemizers, except for taxpayers with incomes of more than x$100,000. The Democrats set only a $1,500 exemption for those who itemize deductions. Members voting yes supported the GOP alternative for overhauling the tax code. Voting yes: Republicans Pursell and Broomfield. Voting no: Hertel, Ford and Levin.

RECOMMITTAL — By a vote of 171 for and 256 against, the House rejected a motion to effectively kill the tax-overhaul legislation (above) by sending it back to the Ways and Means Committee.

When the bill later was passed and sent to the Senate, it was advanced by a non-record, voice vote. In the absence of a roll-call on final passage, this recommitted vote provided contituents with the most definitive record of where individual members stood on the bill.

Voting no: Hertel, William Ford, Levin and Broomfield.

Suburban Life

Now back to reminiscing about 1985.

In late March we started getting serious about the upcoming telethon. The project was to bring the Plymouth-Canton community together closer than it had been since we city folks took over and drowned out the farmer-city relationship that worked so well for so

It seems that great peril and threat of peril brings a community together better than anything. For us, it was the realization that our children were being torn away from our community, our families and life itself by substance

So, we took up arms along side Nick Cooper, Rick McCoy and Dick Egli from the school system; John Schwartz and the Canton Rotary; Linda Salvador from Plymouth; and Bob Card from McDonalds, along with loads of community service groups and individual volunteers. Businesses donated items for the auction and food for the production staff.

Together, we joined the Omnicom staff and followed a schedule (script) developed by Linda Salvador and produced a telethon not unlike that of any network level. We even had a variety of real stars that live in our area step forward and join us hosting or auctioneering. Indeed, the excitement was starting to grow.

IT ALSO WAS a good time to bring you up-to-date on the activities at the Senior Citizen Center on Michigan Ave-

Diane Neihengen, coordinator, and Louise Spigarelli, assistant coordinator, keep things rolling, as the active seniors demand. They are involved in everything from trips to local attractions and, on a grander scale, to other states and vacation spots. There are classes and lectures, not to mention the many sports teams as well as our very own Senior Kitchen Band that has made a name for itself far and wide.

We also took time to tell of some of the fantastic lunches provided at the senior center Monday through Friday.

Menus featured things like lasagna, pork chops, turkey tetrazini, scalloped chicken, beef stew, stuffed peppers, sweet and sour pork.

Finally, in late March, we had the

A Substance Abuse Task Force was formed and nearly 100 people were trained to spot and assist a substance abuser. Now there are groups in elementary and high schools. We have merchants, clergy, teachers, police all specially trained to help our kids.

We made a declaration that weekend that was heard for miles: Our kids were not useless druggies. They were, first and last, our children. And we were not about to let them drift away for our lives without a fight.

No matter how involved any of them are, were, or will be, in substance abuse of any kind, we want them back. Also, the children who are involved today need us all now, more than ever. This is not the time to write them off, but rather a time to really start paying attention and doing something.

THEN IT WAS on once again to the Cow Chip Fling question.

We needed to step back and put it in perspective. The community was being torn apart over what amounted to no more than an entertainment issue, not worth the fury it caused.

I must confess we did have a ball, reading the letters from other communities throughout the nation that have been sponsoring Cow Chips Flings

TIME TO CATCH up on a few birthdays I had missed: Nancy McGuire, Shirley and Joe Roberts, and Rick Byrnes (my nephew).

Of course, sooner or later, I would have to mention spring cleaning. With me, it's usually later - the later the lating the Canton Whoppers, Canton's senior volleyball team, that finished first in its division of the Sports Program for Retirees Inc.(SPRI).

Finally, we started to prepare for the Channel 56 auction.

I went down there expecting to work on the phones and ended up working on the boards, putting up bids and keeping track of the bids for four days. I love it.

In the latter part of April, I took you step by glorious step through "How to throw a party the easy way." I had found the best price, with excellent food, in a lovely setting, a simply marvelous afternoon, for a bridal shower honoring my youngest sister, Gail. All this at the Roman Forum in Canton. Simply book a date, make a menu selection, greet your guests, have your party. Leave the dishes on the table and enjoy. The only shopping or plan-ning you need to do is for prizes. It was the best party I have ever had. I loved it and so did my guests.

LATE APRIL and the Canton Beautification Committee came alive, presenting the biggest and best Free Seedling Give Away I have ever seen.

Approximately 10,000 trees were given away that day. The extra trees were planted by our D.P.W. for future use in the community. The committee is stronger than ever and promises another bumper crop of free seedlings for

The very first 'Adopt a Tree' program was initiated last year. I adopted Ashley and Anders - and nearly killed both. A green thumb is not exactly one of my attributes. I think I burned their roots over-fertilizing.

The Children's Leukemia Fund had its annual blood drive the same day as the seedling giveaway, hoping to make it one trip does all and gaining people from the long line for the free trees.

The Beautification Committee hadn't dreamed they would attract such a tremendous response to their giveaway.
Actually, they had almost 10 times the people they had expected.

Remember Heartso, the clown? Geri Wojcik did her best to keep the spirits up in the long line. Inside, the women coddled the little kids, giving many, bush of the own to care for. This year, they promise there won't be near the wait. Plans are in the making and things will run more smoothly and fast-

Don't forget these women are neighbors. They are putting their time in for Canton on a volunteer basis and doing a marvelous job. Be, patient, kind and considerate. They are doing their very best to do something nice for you.

The discovery that President Reagan fiber is an inhibitor. had cancer of the colon generated mew concern and interest in measures of prevention and detection.

The American Cancer Society estimates that 96,000 new cases of colon cancer will be diagnosed this year, and 51,600 people will die of the disease. It is second in deaths from cancer only to lung cancer.

While there are no certain means of prevention known, recent studies indicate that dietary fats promote the development of cancer and that dietary

How this occurs is not fully understood. The inhibitory activity of some types of dietary fiber may be connected with their ability to absorb and remove toxic substances that have been deposited in the intestines, thus decreasing the time these substances are in the colon.

Although these theories are not yet proven, there are many additional reasons for adopting a high-fiber diet,

Volunteers keep talking books in constant repair

The conference room of Farmington Hills Branch Library is reserved from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. the second and fourth Tuesday of the month throughout 1986, a reservation that has been renewed every year since 1980 for the Telephone Pioneers, who utilize the space repairing the machinery and equipment used by the handicapped.

Our experience in the telephone company just lends itself to our getting together to do this," said Leigh La-Chappelle, one of about 15 retired Bell Telephone employees who repair from 800-900 Talking Books machines each year in the library's conference room.

LaChappelle does not think of his twice-a-month visits to the library as work to be done, nor does he think of himself as a volunteer worker.

"This is a social event for us," he said. "We used to do this individually. Take the machines home and repair them in our own basements. Now we brown-bag it to the library. We help one another with problems that one or · the other may have more experience with. The library has given us storage space so we don't have to lug any equipment with us and we make a par-

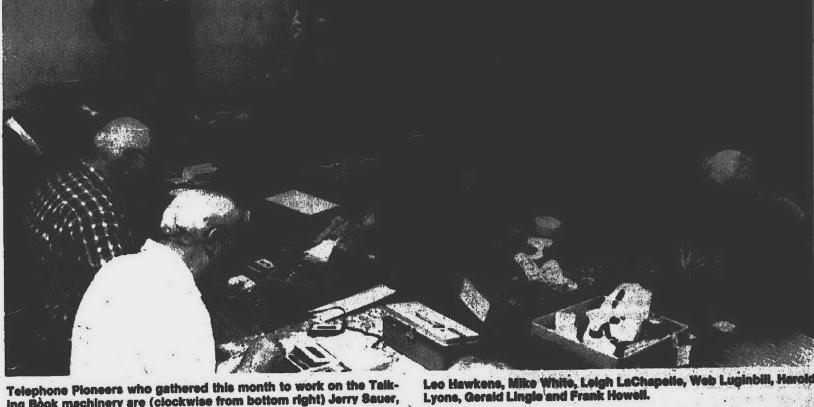

Magazines as well as books are re-corded on the special machines in the Oakland County Library for the blind and physically handicapped, housed in the local library. They are available for the blind as well as anyone who has difficulty in holding a book.

IF UP TO 900 repairs a year sound like a large number, LaChapelle says, "Think about it. If you have defective eyesight or a physical handicap you are much more likely to spill the coffee on the book, knock it over, hit it off the table. I think that number would be about average for any library(of its

But the local library is far ahead of its sister libraries in the repair depart-

"As a rule there is a pile waiting for us and we keep up, even if we have to schedule another day in the month to do it. The (Michigan School for the Blind) library in Lansing is stocked to the ceiling they are so far behind and I've heard the same thing is true for the library in Wayne County," LaChapelle

The keeping-up earned the Telephone Pioneers who work here the 'Volunteers Helping All to Read in Michigan" Award from the Michigan Lions Club last fall.

Telephone Pioneers who gathered this month to work on the Talking Book machinery are (clockwise from bottom right) Jerry Sauer,

But Talking Books is not all the Pioneers repair. They repair whatever machinery in the library that needs repairing, and as the work load increases so does their skill:

In one instance they modified a Braillewriter machine to allow a deaf woman to know when she was reaching the end of her typing space. Normally a bell rings seven spaces before the end of the line. That machine is now wired so a light comes on the same time the In another instance the group was called upon to repair an outdated telephone switchboard so a company could put it on display in working order.

"That took a while but we did it,"

LaChapelle said.

TELEPHONE Pioneers of America are long-service employees, both active and retired, who have been in the industry for at least 18 years. The company thinks of the Pioneers as "an honor society of men and women who have contributed to the progress of the in-dustry and who are still preparing the way for others to follow.

It's been in existence for 74 years, now has about 602,000 members and is is the world's largest voluntary associ-ation of industrial employees. Pioneers are involved in a large range of charitable activities, but work for the blind and handicapped are notable priorities for the Wolverine Chapter, based in Southfield.

"The Pioneers encourage those of us who can to repair the books, and this is all over the U.S.," LaChapelle said. "I think most of us who are doing this now never had seen a Talking Book before we started this and some didn't even know such a thing existed." The group that gets together here never spend time on any formal business meetings.

"One person might order parts and another take care of re-charging bat-teries. But there are no officers. Everybody's in charge," LaChapelle said.

Lie detector an enemy of truth

In an angry exchange before reporters, Secretary of State George Shultz said that he would take a lie detector test if it were required by his boss and then he would resign.

Shultz obviously was angry not at the press but at the new directive of President Reagan that mandatory polygraph tests will become standard for many more government officials. This requiremewnt will seem like an affront to those who seek to serve our nation with integrity.

It is an advancement for control. It is a defeat for morality.

Is this government lie detector testing not a symptom of deeper problems which have become evident among the highest leaders of our nation? Who wants to catch whom? The officials say that they want to catch spies in the highest levels of our nation. Will this in fact happen? Won't the harm be worse than the value? Experts claim that Soviet trained spies are able to fool the polygraph tests.

morality which gives even our president an excuse for lying. Americans remember clearly the presidents who lied to us about the U-2 plane over Russia, Cuba's Bay of Pigs invasion, the bombings of Cambodia and Watergate. Why don't we require those who require the tests also to face the tests? If this is such a good way to bring back truthfulness in government, why not get it from our president as well.

Our founding fathers designed our government with checks and balances to protect us against the misuses of power which would hurt the people.

A morality which requires polygraph tests for mid-level government em-ployees harkens back to the days of the McCarthy witch hunts. Many people get hurt. On the one hand the real spies get away and on the other hand people are frightened. And others at the highest level can still lie. The plan sets us

gram "Dallas" knows that power corrupts. Should we still expect honesty at the highest levels of government? The answer is yes. Yet leaking information about clandestine events, against the government rules, has been one of the ways in which the American people learned the truth. In these cases we are better off because someone decided to reveal the truth by breaking governmental secrecy.

Lying will always be a problem in government. Yet we suffer the most when those at the very top lie to pro-tect themselves or our "national security." Such acts diminish our faith in our leadership and damage our national life far more than secrets passed on to the Soviets. The risk of secrets being sold is a price we must be willing

"Little Big Man" (1977), 1:30 Saturday night on Ch. 50. Originally 150 minutes. TV time slot:

It's a comedy, it's a tragedy, it's an American epic. Arthur Penn's film of Thomas Berger's novel is movie opera (and horse opera) at its best. Dustin Hoffman plays Jack Crabb, either one of the world's great adventurers or one of the world's great liars. The action keeps on coming, and along the way Penn has a great deal to say about the American experience and myth building. Gen. Custer, Wild Bill Hickok and other western luminaries appear. Chief Dan George gives an inspired performance. Rating: $3.50.

"The Subject Was Roses" (1968), 12:30 Sunday night on Ch. 7. Originally 107 minutes. TV time slot: 145 minutes.

Jack Albertson, Patricia Neal and Martin Sheen give outstanding performances in this film version of the Pulitzer Prize winning play. It is a sad, umcomfortable look at family relationships. Everyone tries so hard to make things work out, but they never do. Albertson won an Oscar for his reprise of the role he originated on stage. This is essentially a filmed play but worth seeing.

eateries and rates them on a 100-point scale. Up to 30 points are awarded for ambiance, which includes general atmosphere and service; 55 points for food, and 15 points for price/value rat-ing. A total count of 55 points or less indicates a restaurant is not recommended, 56-74 points signify from passing to good, 75-89 points designate very good with some extraordinary features and 90-100 points show that a very special dining experience awaits you

PLYMOUTH LANDING, 340 Main, Plymouth (455-3700), is located in a turn-of-the-century factory building. The restaurant decor remains true to the 1890s, with stained glass, brick walls and lighting that suits the Victorian period. Plymouth Landing has a cozy feeling, although paper placemats detract a bit. Since our table was not ress was pleasant and helpful, but serready for our 8 p.m. reservation, we had a drink at the bar. The bar area, located within a partitioned portion of the dining room, is small but adequate. The few dinner booths in this location are not as quiet as tables and booths in the main dining rooms. Our table was ready by 8:30, but we have begun to expect (but not accept) delays in reservation seating. GENERAL ATMOS-PHERE — 15 points maximum.

Points awarded - 11 When she was at our table, the wait-vice overall was slow and disappointing. Our meal took more than two hours, and we often had to ask the waitress for water and other needs. At first it seemed a problem of too few waitresses but even as the restaurant became less crowded, our service did not improve. SERVICE - 15 points maximum. Points awarded - 9.

The drinks were strong and reasonably priced, but the high point of the meal was the hot hors d'oeuvres for two. Clams casino, oysters Rockefeller, smelt, crab legs, scallops and more were included in abundance in this out-standing appetizer. At $9.95, this was a bargain of delicious seafood, well worth the price. The bread and rolls were ordinary. DRINKS, APPETIZ-ERS AND BREAD — 10 points maximum. Points awarded 10.

After such a nice beginning, the salad was a letdown. Although the vegetables were fresh, the house dill dressing did not have much dill taste. SALAD — 5 points maximum. Points awarded — 3.

The Veal Picante at $9.95 was tender and full of flavor. The breaded scallops were very good and quite reasonable at $10.95. The fresh salmon special at $13.95 was juicy but without any real potatoes were very undercooked. In all, the entrees were better than average, but they were unimaginative and more bland than we would have wished. ENTREE, VEGETABLES AND GARNISHES — 30 points maximum. Points awarded — 24.

Although the dessert selection was somewhat limited, the two cheesecakes we tried were both good. The pumpkin cheesecake was especially well flavored, with the pumpkin taste not overpowered by the cheese. The marble cheesecake was extremely sweet and a quite a bit heavier. DESSERT AND COFFEE — 10 points maximum. Points awarded - 7.

At $47 per couple for a meal which included hors d'oeuvres, salad and soup, you get a lot for your money at the Plymouth Landing. Although our-hors d'ocuvres were an unbelievable value, the rest of the dishes were also quite reasonably priced. PRICE/VALUE — 15 points maximum. Points awarded — 13.

A COUNTING FOR TASTE - 100 points maximum. Total points awarded: 77. If you enjoy food that is prepared simply, the Plymouth Landing is a very nice place to dock.

Vertical wine tastings review the effects of time

The diverse sources of these columns never cease to amuse me. Some are planned carefully, thought through over an extended period of time. Some just feel right as they pop into my type-writer. And then there are those that are sparked by chance, perhaps by choice lines overheard in any of a variety of places where wine-speak occurs. This is one of those.

I only caught the last stages of the conversation between the salesman and the customer. Apparently the latter was looking for three bottles to use at a modest dinner party he was soon having for some people familiar with wine. Alas, there were not three in stock of the wine he wanted. After some pondering he noted that there were others from the same chateau but of different vintages. Then the light went on. "I know. I'll get one from three different years and we can do a ate his own vertical tasting, a truly original idea for him. I'm sure his dinner party was the better for it.

Books and columns that urge this

All of this by way of introducing the topic: vertical wine tastings. The concept is defined roughly as comparing two or more different vintages of the same wine, e.g., a 1976, 1977 and 1978 Mouton Cadet. (I suppose it would still be a vertical if one were to sample three different vintages of red Bor-deaux from three different chateaux, but I don't quite see what the point of that exercise would be.)

THE WINES need not reflect consecutive vintages. They could be from three great vintages years from the last decade, or from three relatively weak vintages. The whole point of a vertical tasting is to review the effect of time on a kind of wine, the constants kind of thing ignored, he came up with the idea all by himself. He would cregrapes for the wine would come from the same region, particularly with larger producers.

As an illustration, let us hypothetically presume we were to do a Beau-lieu Vineyards Cabernet Sauvignon tasting. Each year B.V. issues three different Cabernets: a Beau Tour, a Rutherford and a George de Latour. Using the middle of these for our example, we know them all to come from the Rutherford area of Napa, probably from the same vineyard, or at least predominately so.

Because we want to maximize the effects of age we could select the recently issued 1981, still find the 1979 available on some shelves and somehow secure a 1977 from someone (let your choices of wines and friends for the evening be influenced by who has what . to contribute to the needs of the evening as their admission).

Use the same style of glass for each wine. Open them at the same time. After pouring out at least four ounces, we would immediately see the first differences between them. The youngest should be the brightest in color. The '79 would have a slightly deeper hue. The '77 may show bits of brown traces around the edges of the glass and the color in general should be more muted, less fresh appearing.

By the time the 1977 is tried, the sensation of fruit should be more subdued, the wine definitely softer and the puckering-quality reduced by a fair amount. The wine should be more complex, that is, it should have more layers and produce a greater variety of taste sensations, all of them pleasant The 1981 should have seemed to, be the most unidimensional of the three. Drinking wines with some age on them should always be a subtler experience and should reward the concentration of Another evening, same guests (if they proved worthy), try a horizontal tasting. The idea behind this is some-what different and contains more variables than a vertical one does. Let the focus be the wine, say a Chardonnay, hold the vintage constant and let the wines come from these nations, three sections of France or California, three different counties in California, three different vineyards and/or microclimates within the same valley.

Depending on the variables selected, the differences will be greater or less than with the Cabernet tasting. But it will be a different kind of path in wine the cabernet will be collected with a judging you will be following with a vertical.

Whichever kind of comparison evening you have, do not rush to judge ment as to which vintage or region you prefer. Rather, focus on describing similarities and differences between the wines under consideration. You are the better, more abort section you do. Titing and the section of the section of trip to Europe this new year, it is time to start gathering the information needed to get the best prices and make the best decisions.

Here's ins, outs and inns of travel in Europe

Many travelers to Europe go to Paris or London, so this week I will concentrate on basic hotel information for those two cities, as well as noting luxury hotel barges and Rhine cruises in Europe.

Flatotel and RHPS America are two organizations of special interest to travelers looking for accomodations in Paris.

Flatotel offers about 600 apartments with kitchens or kitchenettes in various parts of the city. You can reserve by the day, week, month or longer.

FlatotelExpo is an eight-story Jones apartment buildcontributing travel writer ing near the Exhibition Center of Port de Versailles. Apartments range from studio rooms to three-room apartments. Some hotel facilities are available, such as a breakfast buffet, piano bar, conference rooms, etc.

Flatotel Tour Coenson is a 32-floor building near the Eiffle Tower, the Seine and a shopping center (shops, restaurants, bowling, swimming ets.) Studio rooms through five-room apartments are available.

Contact your travel agent or write to Flatotel, 14 Rue de Theatre, 75015 Paris, France.

RHPS AMERICA is offering lowseason rates year round for hotels in Paris. Their list includes nine moderate and seven superior hotels in the right and left bank areas, plus two budget and three deluxe hotels elsewhere in Prices range from $39 double for budget, $52 to $66 moderate, $55 to $82 superior and $100 to $212 deluxe. You must reserve for a minimum of two nights, and be prepared to pay an additional $10 if you make more than one change in your reservations. You will also be charged a cancellation penalty.

For a brochure and other information call toll-free 1-800-361-1304 or write RHPS America, c Americanada, 139 Suave St. West, Montreal, Canada, H31 1Y4. You can reserve through your travel agent.

DELTA AIR LINES will also help find interesting accommodations in France through its Vacances de Campagne or country houses program. The airlines says in its brochure that you can rent a castle or a cottage in France for an average of $100 a week per person. Call toll-free 1-800-521-0643 for in-

You do not need to be a member to use the AAA travel service, although I highly recommend joining AAA if you travel often. The free information and free travelers chacks are well worth the small annual fee.

AAA gives the U.S. addresses and phone numbers of European national tourist offices. Otherwise the travel department of a local library could help. The long-distance information operator in either Chicago or New York may provide helpful phone numbers. Most European tourism departments have New York offices and many have Chicago offices. Call and ask for maps, hotel lists and other travel information.

The organization is a member of the London Visitor and Convention Bureau and is registered with both the English Tourist Board and the British Tourist Authority.

It operates on a membership scheme, as do most of the bed-andbreakfast organizations in the U.S. The $40 annual fee offers other minor services, such as discount shopping coupons, convenient car rental, maps etc., but the main advantage is finding you an accomodation of choice in one of Europe's most expensive cities.

There are more than 500 homes on the organization's list, ranging from modest studios to luxurious apartments. A two-bedroom apartment in central London will cost about $120 a night, a studio about $50. Bed-andbreakfast starts at $25 single and $45 double. Reserve for a minimum of three nights.

YOUR HOME in London has an office at Suite 1310, 485 Madison Ave., New York, NY 10022, or telephone (212) 688-2996.

Bed-and-breakfast accomodations in England can also be reserved the night before you want them by driving up to the appropriate tourist office in almost any English town and signing up for the next day's destination.

Travelers can stay in farmhouse accomodations in Wales or in manor houses in Northern Ireland. Contact the British Tourist Authority, 875 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, IL 60601. For these special accomodations in the Republic of Ireland, contact the Irish Tourist Board, 230 N. Michigan Ave., Chicage, IL 60601.

Eastern Air Lines hs a special phamnlet for businesswomen flying to London. It includes some interesting travel suggestions for hotels, restaurants, shoppings, etc. Ask for it the next time you are at the airport or call toll-free 1-800-EASTERN.

Inland cruises are popular in Europe. One of my favorite trips was aboard a hotel barge that took a week to float 50 miles of the Thames River in England, allowing us to walk through country styles and ancient churchyards to enter tiny English towns from the river side.

FLOATING THROUGH Europe, which celebretes its tenth anniversary in 1986, has nine luxury hotel barges in four countries: Holland, Belgium, France and England. These are converted cargo barges with small sailboat-style bedrooms, gourmet meals and the kind of intimacy you find when 10 to 24 passengers spend a week together on a boat.

You can walk or bicycle along the towpaths that line the rivers of Europe; ships were towed up the rivers from these towpaths in other centuries.

The hotel barges run from early spring to late fall. Most sail once a week upriver and the following week downriver. You can tour the tulip fields of Holland, the walled cities of Bordeaux, the vineyards of Burgundy, the museums of Belgium, the Saxon villages of England and the tiny pubs and inns of all these countries.

I highly recommend it if you are willing to spend the fairly high price of $1,000 to $1,600. You will meet mostly, tourists on the barge itself, but of course, you will meet local people in towns along the way.

For information, contact Floating Through Europe, 271 Madison Ave., New York, N.Y. 10016 or telephone toll-free 1-800-221-3140.

Nothing to look ahead to in '86

EADLINES FOR 1986 that you'll probably never see.

 Basketball teams from the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) and the Metro Suburban Activities Association (MSAA) all finish the month tied for first in their respective divisions. No team from either conference boasts better than a .500 record.

February

• The WLAA basketball season ends with every team tied at 8-8, forcing athletic directors from each school to determine a playoff format.

March

 After supplying two solid months of vocal incentive, Plymouth Salem wrestling coach Ron Krueger is sidelined with severe laryngitis just prior to the state district tournament. As a replacement, CEP athletic director Paul Cummings hires Hulk Hogan to inspire the

• Farmington jolts Flint Northwestern in the state basketball tournament, ruining both the Wildcats' 66-game win streak and Falcon coach Rich Roy's pledge never to smile immediately following a game.

• The Detroit Red Wings shock their followers by winning their final five home games of the season. The team's sudden success, which boosts their win total to 15 for the season, is credited to the late signing of former Michigan State stars Don McSween of Plymouth and Mike Donnelly of Livonia, who run their unbeaten Joe Louis Arena string to 23 games.

• Former Plymouth Canton, Farmington Harrison and Michigan State standout Bob Wasczenski drops out of the University of Toledo after two days of spring practice, saying he did not like his role in the Rockets' offense.

May

• Kim Archer announces that, after two knee operations, she is giving up her basketball career at Michigan State. The Livonia Bentley grad adds she will pursue a career in bowling.

• The Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA), unable to decide which football playoff format to subscribe to following the 1986 season, announces the sport is being dropped in 1987.

June

• Westland John Glenn's Tony Boles and Southfield's Torin Dorn reach agreement for the first-ever Scholarship Stakes. The two speedy football stars will race each other in three sprints, covering 40, 100 and 220 yards. Both wish to attend Michigan on a football scholarship, so the winner will go with Bo while the loser must shop elsewhere. The MHSAA likes the idea and adopts it as an annual event.

· After carefully studying Eastern Michigan University's plan to pay coaches according to team performance, the Catholic League replaces their coaches' contracts with pay-perwin premiums. All coaches will be paid for victories only.

• The WLAA athletic directors, in conference since the end of the regular basketball season, decide a coin flip is the fairest way to determine a champion. In the final, Livonia Churchill coach Don Albertson calls tails and wins the title, disappointing a vocal Livonia Franklin throng.

July

 Bob Wasczenski signs a baseball contract to pitch for the Chicago Cubs, commenting that he opted for the National League so he could outh, is congratulated by his Michigan State teammates after scoring the win-

Don McSween (center), a native of Plym- ning goal in overtime Friday knocking off Michigan Tech in the first round of the staff writer

The types of leaders populating the world are as varied as the climates.

Some are quiet and peaceful, others long-winded. Some demand attention by their mere presence, while others go about their jobs without fanfare but with such efficiency that their underlings unknowingly imitate them.

Somewhere among those descriptions is Don McSween. The team captain for Michigan State's hockey team, McSween has talent that demands attention, the steadiness to lead by example, and the experience to earn respect.

If that makes McSween sound like the Smith Barney of college hockey, then you're getting the message.

"I can't say enough about the kid," said MSU coach Ron Mason of his junior star, "He's an All-American on and off the ice. He doesn't get a lot of points, so he doesn't get the recognition he deserves. He's a Rod Langway-type of player."

HIGH PRAISE, comparing the Redford Catholic Central grad from Plymouth with an All-Pro defenseman. But Mason believes it, and at Sunday's conclusion of the Great Lakes Invitational at Joe Louis Arena enough of the media did to vote McSween the tournament's Most Valuable Player.

McSween's blue-line steadiness was evident enough in MSU's 8-3 trouncing of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute (RPI) in the finals. But he contributed in other ways, too.

In Friday's 2-1 overtime victory over Michigan Tech, it was McSween who got the game-winning goal. It was only his second of the season (after 21

Against RPI, the defending NCAA champions, McSween chalked up three assists. He also anchored the Spartans' enalty killing unit and made occasional appearances on the power play.

McSWEEN TYPIFIES MSU hockey at Joe Louis. Bluntly, the Spartans are unbeatable at the arena they refer to affectionately as "Munn East" (MSU plays its home games at Munn Arena). They have won 16 straight there, including four consecutive GLI titles.

McSween has done his part. Sunday marked the third time he was named to an all-tournament team at Joe Louis. "We play real well here," McSween

hockey

said. "Playing in front of so many Michigan State people helps. "It started before I got here. It's some kind of mystique. We feel confident when we get here, we feel com-fortable. We know we can win, and I think other teams are intimidated somewhat."

But it goes beyond confidence. MSU's success has stretched too far to be merely a feeling. The roster changeover since the streak began is evidence of that. Many of the current Spartans had no part in MSU's illustrious past.

THAT'S WHERE leadership comes in. Enter McSween.

"They know it's a big tournament," McSween said of his uninitiated teammates. "We talked about it when we started practicing after Christmas.

"We tell them about all the great victories we've had here, about all the guys who've made the all-tournament team, about what we do when we win it, like singing the Spartan fight song in the locker room.

"We just try and convey to them that it's a big tournament and how important it is to win. One guy won't win it for us, it takes 20. That's the kind of attitude you'd like to have all year long, but the mind can get kind of lazy."

The Spartans have been battling lethargy throughout the first half of the season. With several key players gone from last season's potent squad, they were struggling with an 11-7-1 record entering the GLI. MSU is now 13-7-1.

"WE HAVE been struggling a bit," said McSween. "We lost a couple of one-goal games, and that hurt us because we have such a young team.

"That's why we've been pushing this tournament, the past history and the foundation we can lay for the future. We want to put ourselves in position to win that final game here in March."

That "final game" would be in the Central Collegiate Hockey Association (CCHA) championship tournament, which MSU won at Joe Louis last year. Should the Spartans make it that far, history would be in their favor.

And that's something an experienced, talented leader like McSween would be certain to point out.

He has brought together 17 teams for the 13th annual Plymouth Salem Invitational Wrestling Tournament this Saturday and among them are some of the state's most potent teams.

"We put us a field together this time," Krueger said. Yes, he did.

For starters, there's Eaton Rapids, last year's Salem Invitational champ and the defending Class B state champs. Redford Catholic Central will come into the tournament ranked No. 5 in the state Class A coaches' poll. Class B powers Montrose and Fenton will be there, along with arda powers Garden City, Westland John Glenn and, of course, Plymouth Salem.

OTHER TEAMS are Plymouth Canton, North Farmington, Wayne Memorial, Redford Union, Ann Arbor Pioneer, Belleville, Flushing, Mount Clemens, Portage Northern and Ypsi-

"I would have to say Eaton Rapids is the favorite," Krueger sald. "I've seen them a couple of times this year and they are awfully good. Montrose is coming on strong, too.

"I'll tell you something else, too. Catholic Central, as much as people like to keep them down, is one tough team. Teams in our league (the Western Lakes) would have a difficult team beating them. We might beat them in this tourney, but head up, they'd be a

An interesting sidelight to CC's entry into the tourney: Krueger's son, Lee Krueger, wrestles at 167 pounds for the Shamrocks. It'll be a homecoming of sorts for the young freshman.

"That's one way of seeing my boy wrestle," Ron Krueger said.

DON'T COUNT the host team out of contention, either. The Rocks, led by 126-pounder Dave Dameron, have been very impressive this season placing third at the Temperence-Bedford Tourney, winning the John Glenn tourney and placing third last weekend at the Davison tourney.

Dameron has won his weight class in all three tournaments, earning MVP honors at both Bedford and Glenn. He is 14-0 on the season, giving him 113 career victories at Salem - 15 wins shy of the school record.

"I don't know if we'll be champions or not," Krueger said of his team. "But, we'll give out three trophles and we're fighting for one of them."

Wrestling will begin at 10:30 Saturday morning. The consolation matches are expected to begin at 6 p.m. with the finals at 7 p.m.
All-day tickets will be on sale, $2 for students, $3.50 for adults. Tickets for the morning session cost $1 for stu-dents, $2 for adults. Tickets for the late session (consolation and final rounds) are $1 for students and $2.50 for adults. Salem is located on Joy Road, just west of Canton Center Road

Hubert ends career on top

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

EFF HUBERT, who once ran the wishbone offense for Plymouth Salem, pulled hard for two things to happen this football season.

In four years at Hillsdale, the 6-1, 210-pound defensive back perhaps came away with the bigger piece, but he didn't get his wish on two counts.

First, Hubert wanted a better result for Hillsdale in the NAIA Championship than a 10-10 with the University of Central Arkansas recently. Secondly, he certainly yearned for a spot on the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference First Team along with his partner in crime, free safety Paul Mac-

Instead, Hubert and Mackey were relegated to the second team for the second-straight season, which really cheesed off Chargers' defensive coordinator Dave Dye.

"That's upsetting," said Dye. "We felt we had the two best defensive backs in

IT DIDN'T exactly have Hubert dancing in the streets either. He and Mackey teamed up for 13 interceptions this season as Hillsdale won the GLIAC and advanced to the national cham-

"That was just politics," said Hubert, a highly personable personnel administration major at Hillsdale. "You know we had the stats."

Numbers support Hubert's and Mac-key's case. Hillsdale was No. 1 in the NAIA in scoring defense, second in both rushing defense and total defense. Hubert had seven interceptions; Mackey had six.

Last year, after a 6-4 season, both Hubert and Mackey were tabbed on the second squad. This season, despite the Chargers' championship drive, Hubert and Mackey both were on the second team again.

DYE, WHO felt that his players were deserving of the award, made a stipulation to the GLIAC coaching board that either both get on or neither of them get on. Instead Louis Scarpino and Rick Wyka, both from Grand Valley, were chosen to the first team.

But that's not to say Hubert's career at Hillsdale has been filled with disappointment. Quite the contrary.

The converted defensive back lists a number of high points in his four years under Dick Lowry. One was his first start as a freshman against Grand Valley, who had Jeff Chadwick at the time. Another was an interception in the NAIA championship during the same season against Carson-Newman of Tennessee to preserve the Chargers' 20-13 win with two minutes left.

And, of course, there was this season's opener against Wisconsin Whitewater when Hubert returned an interception 35 yards for his first collegiate the slowest time amidst a bunch of touchdown.

"Those were just highlights," said Hubert. "The semifinal game we won to get to the championship. Nothing beats that. The Mesa game is the best thing that's happened to me at Hills-

SO NOW Hubert hopes to take his act to the pros. Both Detroit and Cincinnati have offered him tryouts. Green Bay is also on his list.

Playing against the likes of Chadwick (who caught only two passes against Hillsdale in Hubert's freshman year), plus his size and hitting ability, he believes he has a chance.

"That (Chadwick) shows it doesn't matter what college you play for. If you have the talent, they'll find you," said Hubert, who in his junior season collected 112 tackles.

The only concern in his quest for the pros is speed. He'd like to trim his 40yard dash time from 4.75 to 4.65. In the Hillsdale defensive backfield, he had 4.5's and 4.6's.

As a strong safety, Hubert said he excels more in a zone-type pass defense than in a man-to-man arrange-

We had good personnel in the backfield," said Hubert. "We'd do pretty much what we wanted. (The opposition) nickeled-and-dimed us to death, but from 15 or 20 yards, we were pretty HUBERT'S KEEN sense of where the ball is can be traced to his quarterbacking days at Salem. He turned down offers from Miami of Ohio and Saginaw Valley to attend Hillsdale, which quickly converted him to a defensive back.

"I didn't know I had it in me," said Hubert, who admittedly wasn't a defensive standout for the Rocks. "It seemed unnatural at first, but I just improved from there.

"It was hit or be hit," he added. "It was a lot more intense." And certainly not wishy-washy.

Spanish Rock:

Language, dunks aside, Diaz fitting in at Salem

By Chris McCosky staff writer

Having a foreign exchange student from Spain on your basketball team is, well, interesting. Just ask Plymouth Salem coach Bob Brodie.

Brodie figured he'd given Antonio Diaz all the preseason training necessary. Diaz understood the Salem offense, the Salem defense and the Salem game plan for the season-opener against Trenton. Diaz knew his teammates by name, he knew who the coach was. Everything seemed to be muy

Except nobody told Diaz he couldn't dunk the basketball in pregame warm-

He burst out of the lockerroom with the rest of team, naturally hyped with pre-game gitters - more so considering he was making his American debut.

His first trip through the layup line, he went up to slam one through. He missed the dunk, ironically, and caught hell from team captain Paul Makara. "Hey, you can't do that," Makara told the befuddled Spaniard.

The referee assessed Salem with a technical foul

Just one of many adjustments for the 6-foot-7 senior from the northern sea coast region of Spain.

"THE PROBLEM is, basketball is a different language all together," said Brodie. "He's trying to pick up on all the things I'm telling him, and when you only have a minute during the timeouts, it's tough. I'll be talking and I'll see Antonio's eyes getting smaller and smaller. I tell him, "if you're confused, just put the ball in the little orange hole and try to keep the other team from putting the ball in the orange hole."

Making the transition easier to handle for both Brodie and Diaz is the fact that Diaz came to America with exceptional basketball skills.

For his size, Diaz possesses solid passing and shooting skills. He has a soft perimeter jump shot and can go to the basket strong.

"He has great fundamentals," Brodie said. "He has had a problem with his stamina. He still can't go as long as some of the other kids, but he's getting better. His legs have gotten much

The basketball Diaz played in Spain was very different from the high school game he is playing at Salem. He played in recreation leagues, usually against older and stronger men.

"IN SPAIN, I played with more big guys," Diaz said in broken, but passable English. "I prefer to play with the big guys. It's easier. They are big, strong and slow. Here, everybody is faster. It's a faster pace game."

Diaz, playing the role of Salem's sixth man and often getting more playing time than the starters, has been a big factor in Salem's 4-1 start. He scored 12 points against both Trenton and Walled Lake Western and has been a consistent force on the glass at both

"I really like having him on the team," said Makara. "He's a real good passer. He's a definite plus for us.'

He's a plus for Makara in another sense, too. Makara is a Spanish IV student at Salem and in Diaz he has a fulltime tutor. Makara also has his own

HE PLANS to study economics in college, either in Spain or in the U.S.

"I would like to go to college here, but it is very expensive," he said. "A basketball scholarship would be nice."

So far, he has had no offers from American colleges.

"The hardest thing (about living, in America) is I miss my friends in Spain," Diaz said. "I'm making some friends here, the team is fun. But I have more fun in Spain. I used to play basketball every day. And then go out with my friends. In Spain, there is no age for drinking. We would go out and have a couple of beers and play cards. Can't do that here."

Still, he's happy with the opportunity he's been given and he's having a good time playing ball on a good Salem

"I was not surprised," said Owen of the resignation. "Gary had confided in me and has been up front with me all Owen said that Cook, a certified teacher who worked in the Borgess building as a para-professional, would like to coach in a public school setting or possibly join a collegiate staff.

The Borgess AD added that Cook was looking for a job with more stability. Salaries and benefits are considerably lower at parochial schools.

The 31-year-old Cook, vacationing in Florida, could not be reached for com-

"Gary has done a good job for us," Owen said. "I think he still wants to be in coaching and he'd like to stay in OWEN SAID the job is "wide open."

"We'd like to finalize this as soon as possible," he said. "We're looking for experienced people. We're offering a head coaching and teaching position."

Interested candidates should send their resumes to the school. They should also call Owen at 225-1100 (school) or 459-0549 (home).

In six years, Cook produced only one winning season. His 1983 team finished with a 7-2 record, but failed to make the Catholic League playoffs.

His record, however, may have been better had his team not played in the Catholic League's Central Division, considered one of the state's tough circuits, which features such perennial football powers Redford Catholic Central, Warren DeLaSaile and Birmingham Brother Rice.

During his stint, Cook produced several outstanding players including Chuck Gregory, a wide receiver at Bos-ton College; and Fred Owens, a reserve-running back at Wisconsin. Several other Borgess players perform in the small college ranks.

DESPITE A DISAPPOINTING 2-7 record in 1985, two of Cook's players, tackle Ed Dreslinski and fullback Mike Stewart, were named to the All-Area team. In 1984, Borgess won its first two games before a string of injuries, including a season-ending one to Owens in the third game, devastated the Spartans. They eventually finished 4-5.

Financial planning is never-ending process

By Sid Mittra special writer

Through this column I would like to share with my readers a unique experiment which began in the fall of 1985. In September Oakland University introduced a Certificate Program in Personal Financial Planning to prepare qualified individuals for a career as a professional personal financial planner. It has been my pleasure to be the academic director of the new program and guide its development.

Our experiences thus far has been extremely positive. We are emphasizing that personal financial planning is an on-going process and the importance of that process. The professional planner is a key factor in the process.

The planner taps a variety of other professional resources to develop information and offer alternative courses of action for clients to consider.

WE ARE preparing people for the real-world. The program uniquely combines conceptual and theoretical knowledge in financial services with practical approaches to serving clients' financial planning needs. Case studies are used in each course to allow students to apply what they are learning. Final take-home examinations are comprehensive and quite time consuming but they serve as a useful tool to bring all the materials together and help students realize the scope of the financial planner.

The ten-course curriculum offers finances and you much more than simply preparation tions is being expanded. In the past, acfor the Certified Financial Planner (CFP) national examinations. Qualified instructors bring a wealth of real-world experience to the classroom as an integral part of the pedagogy. Special seminars provide program enrollees with a unique opportunity to interact with leading professionals in the the College for Financial Planning educational program. The criteria will include those per-Access to sit for the CFP examinasons who are enrolled in personal financial planning programs through an educational institution whose curriculum has been approved by the Interna-tional Board of Standards and Practices for Certified Financial Planners. The IBCFP has been established to test and certify candidates for the CFP designation. I am honored to have been asked to serve on the five-person Board of Examiners of the IBCFP. Oakland University will be submitting its certificate program for review by the IBCFP early in 1986.

TO PROVIDE additional help to anyone who plans to sit for the CFP examinations, we will be offering special one-day review sessions just prior to the Sept. 13, 1986, examination date.

Courses offered are: Survey of Personal Finanical Planning, Risk Management, Investments, and Income Taxes. Individuals who wish to enroll in a particular course but not in the certificate program may do so on a space-

Enrollment is now open for the eve-ning courses that will begin the week of Jan. 20 on the campus in Rochester and in downtown Detroit. Advance registration is required. To request a brochure detailing the certificate program, call Continuing Education, 370-3120, weekdays, 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Sid Mittra is academic director of the Certificate Program in Personal Financial Planning at Oakland University and President, Coordinated Financial Planning Inc.

Figures can be confusing

I get very confused when I try to follow the figures for a company. For instance, I have been looking at the Standard and Poor's report in my library on Hasbro Inc., the world's biggest toy maker.

In 10 years, sales have gone from $93 million to $714 million. That's an increase of eight times. When I look at earnings per share, they are up from $.11 to $2.58. That's an increase of 23 times in 10 years. The price of the stock has gone from a low of 25 cents to a high of 391/2. that's an increase of 158 times. How could any company grow that much in just 10 years?

Hasbro has been an excellent growing company and when the figures come out for the end of 1985, it seems likely that they will show substantial advances again.

When you are looking at the figures for any company, particularly one like Hasbro, where mergers or similar consolidations have taken place, it is a good idea to read

The first thing in the footnotes in the Standard and Poor's report is "Data as originally reported." What this means is that the figures you see in 1975 are for the business as it was in 1975.

THOSE FIGURES have not been adjusted for any of the changes that have occurred since that time. One of the things you sometimes see in the footnotes is "figures are pro rata," meaning they have been adjusted to show what the figures would have been each year for the businesses that the company now operates.

That kind of figure is useful in seeing how much growth actually has taken place in the present businesses, assuming that they were part of the company all along.

There is nothing wrong with the figures the way they are presented by Standard and Poor's - as long as you understand how they are constructed and what they really represent. When the figures are not "pro rata," they can give the effect of much greater growth than what actually occurred. Or to say it another way, they don't show how the growth came about.

OF COURSE, a very important gauge is what has happened to the original share-

In this case, the 10-year-ago Hasbro shareholder who has seen his value go from 25 cents to 391/2 dollars has fared very

Some of the services are estimating that 1985 earnings per share will be $3.50 to $3.60. If that happens, the stock doesn't seem overpriced at 39 1/2

Miniaturist carves Adams Collection

special writer

The newest creation in the miniature world is a three-piece set of oriental furniture called "The Adams Collection." But the story began many years ago in the lives of three women who make the miniatures possible.

Hortense Adams, a Birmingham resident, owns the antique Chinese furnishings that are miniaturized. Her daughter, Clarissa Goad, is owner of Miniature Makers' Workshop where the collection is reproduced and sold.

Judy Shelhaas of Plymouth is the extraordinarily talented wood carver commissioned by Goad to carve the replicas. It was destined that the experience and interests of these three people one day would meld to create a new product for miniature collectors.

The home of Hortense Adams is filled with family treasures from China. Purchased shortly after the turn of the century by Goad's grandfather, Henry Carr Adams, each item of furniture was carefully selected by Goad's grandmother to bring back to Michi-

HENRY CARR Adams was a professor of economics at the University of Michigan. He had been head of his department for 40 years when he was asked by the United States government in 1912 to go to China as a consulting accountant on railroads.

"Railroads were in a terrible mess in China back then," Mrs. Adams said. "Some were owned by Germany, France, England, and Russia, and they needed a neutral person to come in and try to figure out what to do."

Henry Carr Adams earned so much respect from the Chinese that they sent an envoy to Michigan to place a memorial on his grave when he died in 1922.

Thomas Adams, Hortense Adam's husband and Clarissa Goad's father, was only 12 years old when the family went to China to live. Today, their home is a showplace for unique oriental cabinets, teakwood tables and chairs, a pair of chests, various sized stools, a Ming vase, a folding screen, porcelain lamps and plates, colid brass incense burners, buddhas and horse stirrups, all from the Far East.

When Clarissa Adams Goad was a little girl, her father gave her a doll house. It was a replica of her home where her mother still lives.

The intricately hand-carved teakwood miniatures of "The Adams

Don't forget the many fine photography galleries where you can really begin to "look at photographs." I can't overemphasize the importance of looking at pictures and the rewards you can gain by doing so.

Even browsing through books at your favorite bookstore will be a valuable experience. This year especially has produced the finest crop of photography books that I have ever seen.

Been procrastinating on insurance coverage for your camera gear? How about resolving this year to check into an insurance policy? Premiums are inexpensive when compared with the financial and emotional losses if a camera is lost or stolen.

To all of my friends, students, and readers, I'd like to offer best personal wishes for a picture-filled 1986.

This year is going to be different!

First of all, with recovery from my second back surgery and my unbridled passion for food I feel that by summer I could be mistaken for Jabba the Hut! This year I am taking my family on two vacations.

Last year the farthest we traveled from our Art Store in Livonia . . . was let's see . . . I guess, the Olenburg's Art Store in Plymouth!! I am going to finish remodeling my home this year.

I'm going to keep up my dog better, my cars better, draw paint and sculpture more and find leisure time! This year I'm going to write right . . . I mean better . . . I mean I am going to write better this year, oh, that should be "this year I am I am going to . . Oh, forget it!

FOR CHRISTMAS my employees gave me a thesaurus to help me fulfill my last goal. So now I can write, "as another year dawns anew I aspire altitudinous improvement in my writing efficacy.' Gee, that sounds good. The only problem is that it took me 24 minutes, 16 M&M's and a half of a bottle of Diet Coke to look up all those words! I am, however, a goal setter.

I believe in goals. I must always have a goal! Did you ever hear the saying, "if you aim at nothing you'll hit it spot at home to do your art. Perhaps artifacts

every time." I even need deadlines for my artwork and writing. If I receive a commission and the customer says, 'when you find the time" I have to interrupt them and say "No, I'm sorry, but I have to work on a deadline or pick-up date." Why? Because I know me, and "me" will never find the time. So I know "me" but do you know

Are you the artist, who has for 10 years only worked a black and white or one color medium? Are you one who even sells paintings but lacks background in the drawing media? Are you secretly afraid that you will be asked to draw people? Do you fear the commercial commission? Have you ever wondered about sculpture or anatomy but feared you weren't good enough?

WELL COME on you guys, make some resolutions! Set some goals and then make the commitment. Remember the word commitment means "no alternatives" or otherwise stated "go for it." Maybe all you need is a better your talent is apparent but you lack the technical know how.

What if all you need is to start? Perhaps all you may need is some encouragment from your family or friends. Artists are "sensitive" (usually) and their art is dependent on the maintenance of that condition. So the push to begin or change subject/media often comes from loved ones

Oh, by the way, I said, "sensitive" and not touchy! A touchy artist might, just as well, hang a sign around their neck that reads, "Hi, I'm a touchy artist, I am insecure and will never improve in my ability or attitude.' You see, you never know until you are exposed to a learning situation. Our oil painting class, for example, is right next to my sculpture class. Sue Rothamel is an excellent oil teacher with a wealth of information.

So, often I drift into her class to listen or just watch. Then I give a knowing nod and walk out. But, just between you and me, I am thinking, "Gee, I didn't know that," or "Wow is that a neat technique." Honestly I would be of all men most miserable if I thought I

I knew it all. I learned, early on, the very good feelings of the phrase "I don't know," and the challenge of the following phrase: "But I will find out."

It is true that this year many of the circumstances and situations in which you will find for yourself are out of your control. It is also true that many of this years situation and circumstances are a result of your decisions and commitments. So make this the year you decide to try art or expand your art. As for me this year's going to be terrific!!

Aim high for the coming year

By Avigdor Zaromp special writer

The Quest for Excellence series completed its second annual cycle with the Grand Final contest at Orchestra Hall last month.

The series sponsored by the Maccabees Mutual Life Insurance company, gives young musicians exposure and provides a chance for them to win scholarships.

The series consisted of 13 weekly contests, the weekly winners take part in the final contest.

There was a respectable turnout for the final event, which was free to the public. Judging such a contest is never simple and easy. In this situation, things were even more complicated because several different instruments were involved.

Since all 13 contestants demonstrated ability, they deser e to be mentioned. The following is the list, sorted by instruments and order of appear-

Violin - Kevin Case and Elizabeth Rowin; bass trombone - Anthony Giles; piano - Damon Gatewood, Kurt Kunzat, Lourdes Santiago and Julianne Markavitch; cello - Alicia Stegink; alto saxophone - Andrew Dahlke and Kevin Stewart; marimba - Todd Alan Johnson; flute - Mark Estes; horn -Ketherine Canfield.

Three of the more fortunate contestants won the top prizes, totaling $10,000, which must be used as scholar-

THE TOP PRIZE went to alto saxophone player Kevin Stewart, who played a portion of the Concertino da Camera by Ibert. Stewart reached the final stage last season as well, but didn't win a top prize on that occasion. This is an example of the principle that persistence pays, at least occasionally. Second-prize winner was cellist Alicia Steging, who played three movements from a Hindemith cello sonata.

Third prize went to violinist Kevin Case, who played the first movement from the Symphonie Espagnole by Lalo. These selections present an idea of the total program, in which most of the items were outside the familiar repertoire.

The selection of winners isn't a scientific process and many people in the audience had their own ideas about the best players. Two of my own selections coincided with the ones chosen, but it would be inappropriate to state which the quality of the performance and have it detached from the popularity of the instrument.

It is nevertheless my opinion that such contests should be made within the same instrument category, chosing a winner in each. Many exotic instruments could still be lumped into one category, but a comparison in each category would make more sense.

We wish all of these contestants success and satisfaction in their musical careers. For those who did not win this time, there are going to be other occasions. Hopefully, genuine talent will always be in demand.

Editors note: Third-prize winner, Kevin Chase is the son of Mr. & Mrs. Nelson Chase of Bloomfield Hills, attends Lahser High School. He previously won first place in the Livonia Youth Symphony Concert Com-

Our home mortgage interest rates are the lowest in six years!

It's a great time to buy a house.

At Standard Federal, we're now offering 15-year and 30-year fixed rate loans at our lowest rates in six

You can apply for a new mortgage loan at any Standard Federal office. Stop by and talk to one of our mortgage counselors about a new mortgage that will be just right for you.

Or it's a great time to refinance your present mortgage.

Even if you already own a home, you can take advantage of our low mortgage interest rates by refinancing your current loan. Chances are that we can save you thousands of dollars in interest and lower your monthly payment!

Here's an example of how much someone who obtained a 30-year loan for $50,000.00 at 12.75% (13.18% APR) interest in March of 1983 could save by refinancing that loan with a new 15-year loan at Standard Federal today.

The homeowners in this example had monthly principal and interest payments of $543.35. If they continue to pay on that loan until it matures, they will pay an additional $127,623.27 in interest. However, by obtaining a 15-year fixed rate loan now at 10.25% (10.78% APR) they will save $80,001.22 in interest. What's more, they will be able to pay off
