State money eyed for Supersewer plan

By Diane Gale
staff writer

An effort is underway to garner state funding for the Son of Supersewer project to increase Canton and Plymouth townships' sewer capacity.

"Completing this project is a number one priority in the state for the Department of Natural Resources (DNR)," said Greg Morris, Gov. Blanchard's personnel director.

Wayne County Commissioner Milt Mack, Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen, Canton attorney C. Gerald Hemming and others met with representatives from the governor's office recently to make a sales pitch for the state to pick up a 20 percent loss in federal funding which initially was committed to the project.

THE MEETING was the result of an order from Wayne Circuit Judge Richard Dunn in an attempt to settle a lawsuit filed by Canton and Plymouth townships against the state of Michigan, DNR, Wayne County and Detroit, Hemming said.

"If Plymouth and Canton ended up without damages and a sewer project that is sound, the lawsuit would be dropped," Hemming said. "But that's a lot of ifs."

Total cost of the project is about $110 million, Morris said.

"We're looking at the avenues and there may be some way to do it," Morris said. "It's a tremendous amount of money."

The federal government had committed to pay 75 percent of the project's cost before the Reagan Administration cut that support to 55 percent. The 20 percent difference is $17 million.

"What we intended to impress upon the governor's office is the fact that if we really are serious about addressing the pollution problem in the Rouge River, then this project is a necessity," Mack said. "It is relatively inexpensive and it still will have a significant amount of federal dollars committed to the project."

More than 20 years ago, the idea for the Supersewer project was born. The system was to run in Oakland County through Wayne County to a treatment plant downriver.

WHEN THE Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) announced it would not fund the entire project, the system was broken into two segments.

A south arm is under construction serving Van Buren Township and communities southward. The north arm will serve northwestern Wayne County — including Canton and Plymouth townships — and southwestern Oakland County. This project will cost $110 million.

"The current system lacks capacity with the result that people living in certain parts of Canton Township experience flooding of their basements during rainy weather and substantial quantities of sewage is being pumped into the Reuge River," Mack said.

Canton and Northville townships will bear the overwhelming majority of the Supersewer cost because these communities will have the most capacity.

"One of the problems faced by the State of Michigan and other states is that there are a large number of sewage problem projects that were left in the lurch by this federal funding cut," Mack said. "The states and local governments simply aren't in the position to take up the loss of that funding."

MORRIS SAID he is reviewing budget possibilities.

"The balance of the case concerns the loss of federal funding reduced from 75 percent to 55 percent or 0 pending certification or non-certification of the project," Hemming said.

If the project is approved by DNR and certified for federal funding by Feb. 13 then the trial will be postponed to April 15, he said. If project isn't certified by then, the trial will begin Feb. 15.

Ameritech site carries $9.3 million price tag

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Most of us are familiar with real estate brokers who scramble to match buyers with sellers in the residential market.

There are many similarities — and some very big differences — where industrial brokers are concerned.

Take the firm of Hanzl, Kopic & VanLokeren which has won a nine-month listing to sell the 535,000-square-foot Ameritech office/warehouse on Sheldon Road in Plymouth.

Mike VanLokeren, president of the firm, alternately says it's more difficult to sell a property that large and that he expects to close a sale by June.

"I think it's a good building in a good area. It has everything a building could have as far as freeway, railroad, land, and it's in a growth area."

The property has a state equalized valuation (one-half of market value) of $4.1 million. It currently generates $282,000 in real property tax revenue of which $181,000 goes to Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

THE FACILITY is listed for sale at $9.3 million, VanLokeren said. He wasn't clear about whether a single user or a user/investor willing to subdivide is the most likely purchaser.

One thing about which VanLokeren was clear is the work involved in selling such a large property.

A brochure including aerial photographs has been or will be mailed to about 15,000 manufacturers and distributors in southeastern Michigan, 1,000 major companies nationwide and other members of the Society of Industrial Realtors, VanLokeren said.

Referrals are also sought from such organizations as the Michigan Department of Commerce, the Wayne County Development Corp. and major utilities via meetings and letters.

"It's very expensive and time consuming. You just keep plugging away," VanLokeren said.

He added that his firm receives no commission and no reimbursement of expenses until a deal is closed. "It's strictly our money and time up front."

SINCE WINNING the listing last fall, the firm has spent as much as $4,000 promoting the property and could spend an additional $16,000 within the next three months, VanLokeren said.

Ameritech acquired the property from American Telephone and Telegraph (AT&T) in January 1984 as part of a divestiture settlement. The 160 employees still working there will be transferred to other Ameritech facilities by September, a corporate spokeswoman said.

None are expected to be laid off as a result of the closing, she added.

Cable, tools and office supplies are currently stored at the 36-acre site.

The Sheldon Plant became a white elephant when Ameritech decided to build a central warehouse in South Bend, Ind., to service Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin.

Commission rates on sales of large industrial properties are generally lower than the 6 or 7 percent found in residential transactions, VanLokeren said.

However, good money can still be made with a big sale.

VanLokeren declined to discuss specifics of his commission arrangement with Ameritech.

The Sheldon Plant opened in December of 1957. At its zenith, 1,000 persons worked there.

"It's a very well maintained piece of property," VanLokeren said. "This is a very unique offering for Michigan. It's a tough one to sell but I think it will sell due to the upbeat market in Michigan at this time."

Cityhood review raises debate

McDonald weighs pros, cons in Canton status switch

By Diane Gale
staff writer

When David McDonald began working on a committee studying cityhood last year, he thought the charter township system worked just fine. Now he's not so sure.

"I'm drawing from my perspective and not speaking for the committee," McDonald said. "But I started out personally saying the township of Canton has been in business for more than 150 years, and I'd have to be sold before I'd agree to change."

"Why fix something if it's not broken? I'm learning the issues and understanding why I might think there should be a change."

MCDONALD, CHAIRMAN of the five-member volunteer committee, realizes the job of reviewing the pros and cons of adopting cityhood status will have an impact on the township's future.

"We're in the educating process and looking for positives."

An Army major for 21 years, assigned to a reserve training division in Livonia as a comptroller, he is used to complex tasks.

The father of three (a 10-year-old daughter, 3-year-old son and 1-month-old son) said working on the committee has turned out to be more than he expected.

"We find that the more we look into this, the more we have to pursue. I knew it would be a challenge, but I never dreamed it would be so complex."

A question the committee must answer, McDonald said, is: What do people expect from their local government?

A public forum is planned for an undetermined date in mid-March at Canton Township Hall to get opinions about the possible switch.

The committee — meeting every other week for an average four hours — has set out to identify all aspects of becoming a city.

For instance, as a city Canton would receive state allocated gas and weight taxes but also would assume Wayne County's responsibility of maintaining roads. Weighing which would be a better deal is being considered.

DETERMINING THE type of city, like strong mayor or strong manager, is another factor.

"Two big differences from the quality of government is that all charter townships function under the same state charter," McDonald said. "And each city has its own charter."

As a charter township it is unclear who the finance director reports to. Some administrative duties also are unspecified. Under the state law the township is allowed to write bylaws, which could change from administration to administration.

"With cityhood you have a charter, which wouldn't be changed unless voted on by the people."

Referring to a lawsuit filed by Clerk Linda Chuhnan citing interference with her statutory responsibilities, McDonald said: "If you're worried about who's running what, to solve that would be to go to cityhood where it says what they're doing."

Committee members recently spent an entire day in Lansing speaking to experts about the issue, including representatives from the Michigan Municipal League promoting cityhood and the Michigan Township Association promoting the township-form of government.

Cityhood offers organization and certain elements of stability between administrations, McDonald said.

ANOTHER CONSIDERATION is threats of annexation from neighboring cities.

The chances of Canton land becoming annexed are remote but there remains a slim possibility. Cities cannot be annexed.

Cities also have more authority to levy taxes, whereas townships have a much more limited cap. Charter townships are allowed to levy a maximum 5 mills with additional special assessments funds for services like police and fire. A city can levy up to its charter limit (often up to 20 mills) which finances all services but does not include debt retirement millage.

McDonald admits this factor might be seen as good or bad because an increased tax bill would be paid by residents.

Image problems and misunderstandings about the types of services provided by townships could affect development in a community. Often townships are associated with rural communities.

"You have to educate people that you don't have cows walking down the middle of the road, and a fire department with hand pumps. Another plus on the cityhood side is industrial development. Some developers might want to build in cities because they don't understand townships."

A negative for cityhood, McDonald said, is that Canton has a "long history as a township. Do we want to get away from that?"

"There appears to be less accessibility to elected people in the city form of government."

"If residents are satisfied with the services presently provided then there's no reason to change."

QUOTING A brochure from the Municipal League, McDonald said:

"The city form of government lends efficiency to government not found in townships. In some ways I'm beginning to believe that."

David McDonald makes a point about Canton Township switching to cityhood status.

Washington volunteers to meet French challenge

Young George Washington wrote in his diary: "I was commissioned and appointed by the Honorable Robert Dinwiddie to deliver a letter to the Commandant of the French forces on the Ohio and set out on the intended Journey the same day..." from J.C. Fitzpatrick's "The Writings of George Washington."

Nine o'clock in the morning of Oct. 31, 1753, a young man was seen riding quickly — almost galloping — down Gloucester Street from the Governor's Palace in Williamsburg.

He stopped briefly at the Raleigh Tavern where he sipped one glass of convivial cider with some political friends. (The Raleigh was full of Burgesses who were much agitated about the French threat in the West.

They had gathered for a special meeting of the General Assembly scheduled for tomorrow morning.)

One of the group of George's friends ventured an educated guess when he queried, "Is it the French matter for the Gov'nor, George?"

"I'm going North for 10 days," was Washington's rather oblique reply.

"Where to?" someone asked.

The young man waved goodbye to the group as he quickly moved toward the door, and he made no reply. It was as though he respected the governor's confidence and did not completely trust his friend's discretion. But it was evident that he wanted his friends to follow him north in their thoughts.

Tonquish tales Helen Gilbert

icksburg, his good mind sorted over a dozen possible consequences of his volunteering for this assignment.

He had heard that 1,500 French troops had landed on the southern shores of Lake Erie and were building strong forts from Presque Isle (now Erie) to LeBoeuf (near Waterford). This was the area Celeron's men from d'Etroit and Montreal had surveyed and claimed for the French in 1749.

As he galloped along, his thoughts sometimes went back to the good times with his family and, most of all, he remembered Sally Fairfax whose charm and grace dwelt in his heart like a dream of love. He wondered if he would ever see Belvoir again.

But it wasn't his nature to dream for long. Most of the time he was making mental note of all he had to purchase to expedite the mission.

As he raced along, he thought of the important letters securely lodged in his saddlebags. One was the governor's letter asking Christopher Gist, noted frontiersman and trader, to accompany them.

Another was an equally important letter to some friendly Indian Sachems near Logston, and a request that they act as guides and guards through the French territory. And another letter was directed to the French commandant at his headquarters at Fort Le Boeuf.

moved on to Alexandria where they purchased part of the supplies they needed. From Alexandria they hurried to Winchester where they bought more horses for their long journey through the mountain wilderness. (Even today, parts of this West Virginia region they must travel is a wild and hazardous country for two people on horseback. Mountain lions abound and falling rock and other hazards are not uncommon. Not a Sunday picnic kind of trip.)

After making sure that they had a serviceable tent, adequate baggage and other supplies, they set out Nov. 1 for Wills Creek (Fort Cumberland) which they reached Nov. 14. They were fortunate to find Gist at his cabin nearby on the Maryland side of the river.

While Gist gathered his gear, George hired four men as hostlers and orderlies. He made sure that each man had some knowledge of the wilderness. He found four experienced Indian traders who seemed capable and reliable. They were Henry Steward, John MacQuire, Barnaby Curran, and John Davidson.

- BUT MORE THAN the letters, his thoughts dwelt upon the urgency of the governor, and also of Lord Halifax, when they discussed the projected mission. He reviewed to himself all the detailed verbal orders — some of them too confidential to be trusted to writing. They included:
- (1) Make sure you welcome Christopher Gist in person and deliver the letter directly to him.
 - (2) Proceed first to Wills Creek after you secure the necessary supplies and men, and check out our situation there.
 - (3) Find out why the French have driven John Frazier, a loyal British subject, from his cabin near Wills Creek. He and his family have lived there peacefully for more than 12 years. He is not a spy but he has been useful to us from time to time. There is no way they could have known that, or is there? Who are the French spies in that area?
 - (4) Find out all you can about the strength of the French defenses, the number of their troops, number of guns and cannon, if any, and their plans for future expansion.
 - (5) Be very discreet. Do not discuss our mission with anyone outside of your immediate party, and limit your conversation with them except to Christopher Gist, who may be trusted.
 - (6) Do not provoke or become involved in an incident that requires fire power if it can possibly be avoided. We are not presently ready for a war. Keep your powder dry.

OF THE MEN in his entourage, the most capable was probably Gist.

A Church of England gentleman with some education, which was not usual in those days, he held the first Protestant religious service in the state of Ohio. On Christmas Day, 1750, he had conducted an Episcopal service for the Indians assembled in the Wyandot town of Muskingum.

No one living on the frontier understood Indians better than Christopher Gist. An honorable man, he sometimes left an Indian town and slept alone in the forest rather than keep company with roughneck "reprobate traders."

But Gist was no sissy. He was a crack shot, a most courageous man who had earned the respect of the natives. The Indians called him Annonasah, a name they said meant "a good man." And so he was.

Gist had the good sense not to try to direct the expedition. He saw clearly the ambition and ability of the 21-year-old major of the Virginia Militia, George Washington, and knew the young man who was determined to run the whole show.

Gist let Washington make all the decisions as long as they did not involve unnecessary danger, or a perilous passage. He usually did not volunteer advice unless asked. George learned to esteem Gist and counted him as a friend. He could not have found a better guide and teacher for the hazardous road ahead.

(The next edition of Tonquish Tales will take us with Washington and Gist and their courageous party through the wilderness to Lake Erie.)

Biker sees America in his own good time

Joe Tate, a plastic dealer in Plymouth Township, has an unusual feeling about enjoying a vacation.

Tate enjoys spending vacation days riding his motorcycle. And to hear him tell it, his vacations have been most enjoyable and educational.

In the past few years he has ridden his cycle 25,000 miles and is ready to start over again when another vacation time rolled around.

"I have circumvented the United States," he said, "and I learned more about our country than I ever did before. I saw the shore lines on the 18,000 mile trip. I also saw the ocean as I rode along, and I had a chance to see the mountains up in New England and in the far west."

Tate said there is a lot to learn about our country and there is no better way to learn than to take your time and ride right in the midst of them.

When he starts on one of these trips there is no thought of time. He wants his vacations to be a time of leisure and tries to make the most of it.

"What's more," he explained, "your time is your own and you can spend as much time as you want and at any place along the way."

"Another nice thing about these trips," he explained, "is that you are not on schedule. You can stop to eat when you feel like it. You can rest when you want. You can't do that with most other vehicles. You go with the group or else."

ASIDE FROM the 18,000 mile trip around the United States he also has traveled the shorelines of Mexico to add another 7,000 miles.

On one of these trips he turned off the shore line and went up through Mexico to Phoenix.

Strangely, while he enjoys trips on his motorcycle he also spends time with speedboats and has raced in some of the better and more skilled events.

"Sure boating is exciting but there isn't as much to see as riding a motorcycle."

One thing about his attachment to riding the motor bike is that it is exciting but you must watch yourself to avoid accidents.

Over the years he has enjoyed both his boats, helping his son, and his motorcycle. He is so attached that he is packed up to move along at any time. It is a common thing to leave the office and get going for a weekend at Traverses City or some other beauty spot in northern Michigan. He likes to keep tabs on Michigan and the changes in the resort areas so he can do his best while riding his motorcycle.

By a rather strange coincidence, his work entails dealing with plastic. But given a choice of which is the most enjoyable he'll cast his ballot for riding the motorcycle and studying the lay of the land in which we live.

Water hike passed on to township consumers

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Most of us are familiar with real estate brokers who scramble to match buyers with sellers in the residential market.

There are many similarities — and some very big differences — where industrial brokers are concerned.

Take the firm of Hanzl, Kopic & VanLokeren which has won a nine-month listing to sell the 535,000-square-foot Ameritech office/warehouse on Sheldon Road in Plymouth.

Mike VanLokeren, president of the firm, alternately says it's more difficult to sell a property that large and that he expects to close a sale by June.

"I think it's a good building in a good area. It has everything a building could have as far as freeway, railroad, land, and it's in a growth area."

The property has a state equalized valuation (one-half of market value) of $4.1 million. It currently generates $282,000 in real property tax revenue of which $161,000 goes to Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

THE FACILITY is listed for sale at $9.3 million, VanLokeren said. He wasn't clear about whether a single user or a user/investor willing to subdivide is the most likely purchaser.

One thing about which VanLokeren was clear is the work involved in selling such a large property.

A brochure including aerial photographs has been or will be mailed to about 15,000 manufacturers and distributors in southeastern Michigan, 1,000 major companies nationwide and other members of the Society of Industrial Realtors, VanLokeren said.

Referrals are also sought from such organizations as the Michigan Department of Commerce, the Wayne County Development Corp. and major utilities via meetings and letters.

"It's very expensive and time consuming. You just keep plugging away," VanLokeren said.

He added that his firm receives no commission and no reimbursement of expenses until a deal is closed. "It's strictly our money and time up front."

SINCE WINNING the listing last fall, the firm has spent as much as $4,000 promoting the property and could spend an additional $16,000 within the next three months, VanLokeren said.

Ameritech acquired the property from American Telephone and Telegraph (AT&T) in January 1984 as part of a divestiture settlement. The 160 employees still working there will be transferred to other Ameritech facilities by September, a corporate spokeswoman said.

None are expected to be laid off as a result of the closing, she added. Cable, tools and office supplies are currently stored at the 36-acre site.

The Sheldon Plant became a white elephant when Ameritech decided to build a central warehouse in South Bend, Ind., to service Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin.

Commission rates on sales of large industrial properties are generally lower than the 6 or 7 percent found in residential transactions, VanLokeren said. However, good money can still be made with a big sale.

VanLokeren declined to discuss specifics of his commission arrangement with Ameritech.

The Sheldon Plant opened in December of 1987. At its zenith, 1,000 persons worked there.

"It's a very well maintained piece of property," VanLokeren said. "This is a very unique offering for Michigan. It's a tough one to sell but I think it will sell due to the upbeat market in Michigan at this time."

Township to cityhood?

On April 30, 1986, the committee is to report to the Canton Township Board of Trustees with a recommendation. The board has the option of accepting or denying the decision.

It is unclear, McDonald said, whether the board, which established the committee, will have the authority to place the issue on the ballot. A petition may have to circulate among Canton residents before the issue can go on the ballot.

McDonald, who has an undergraduate degree in public administration, must avoid civic activity involving partisan politics because of military rules. Local government is exciting, McDonald said, because it's the one level where people can effect change.

"If we want any input of how things will be controlled, it has to be at a municipal level," McDonald said.

"I've always had an interest in local government. It's been a hobby."

Schoolcraft offers 4 new vocational programs

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Four new academic programs — three involving high technology — will be added to the Schoolcraft College curriculum this year.

"These are the areas where there will be employment opportunity. They will contribute to the economic stability of the state," said Dr. Conway Jeffress, vice president for instruction.

The board of trustees gave the new offerings 7-0 approval.

Most can share equipment used in other programs, Jeffress said.

"We go through BLS (Bureau of Labor Statistics) and MESC (Michigan Employment Security Commission) data," added Dr. Louis Reibling, dean of instruction, as he outlined the administration's two years of program planning.

NEW PROGRAMS, all resulting in two-year associate degrees, will be:

Computer Aided Design (CAD) — 150 students expected. Graduates work in the drafting and architectural fields.

In 63 credit hours, they study three-dimensional drawings and computer graphics in addition to academic basics (25 hours). State funds were used to train faculty and purchase computers.

Computer Aided Drafting — 150 expected, with a possible doubling in a year. Graduates work in industrial drafting as detailers and tool layout drafters.

The 62-credit hour program covers preparation of computer drawings for mechanical assemblies, sub-assemblies, detail drawings and product drawings.

Assistant dean Fernon Feenstra called the instructors — Professor Leo M. Bigos and Associate Professor Gilbert de Avila — "the most qualified people in the state" after 14 weeks of paid training at Cadillac Motore.

Computer Service Technician — about 40 expected. Graduates perform maintenance and repair on computer systems, microcomputers, voltmeters and oscilloscopes. In their final semester, Feenstra said, students will be assigned to the college computer laboratory as paid, "on-call" interns. Instructor will be Professor Jerry Wale.

Culinary Management — about 50 expected. The explosion of chain restaurants has created a demand for people who can manage kitchens, schedule personnel, purchase, take inventory, implement cost controls and formulate menus, according to faculty member Kevin Gawronski.

Michigan State University has a four-year program, but Gawronski said Schoolcraft's offering "condenses it and gives a better opportunity to get into the market place." Corporate management training programs are much shorter, he said.

Students will learn to be taught about the relationship of food and culture as well as how to deal with drunken patrons. Present culinary arts faculty and facilities will be used.

The three high-technology programs will be offered in fall. The culinary management program will start with the spring semester.

IN OTHER business last week, the Schoolcraft board:

- Approved a 60-month lease-purchase contract at $2,245 with Xerox Corp. for a new word processor-copier. The existing equipment is used by faculty to make an average of 180,000 copies a month, which controller A.D. Rabe likened to "driving your auto at 120 mph. It's going to break down of- t-ener."
- Accepted a $5,000 echocardiograph from Gratiot Community Hospital, Alma. It will be used in the Cardiavascular Technician program.

- Accepted a $750 gift of Datapoint equipment from Computer Sales Inc., Troy. It will be used in the new Computer Service Technician program.

- Accepted $2,500 worth of video and movie cameras from Dr. Michael S. Salecia, West Bloomfield. They will be used by the English department.

- Received a 1985 Ford LTD from Ford Motor Co., Dearborn, for use in automotive laboratory courses.

- Accepted $400 worth of power sources from Federal APD, Farmington Hills. It will be used in the Electronic Fabrication and Troubleshooting courses.

- Received two art reproductions from retiring Garden City dean Thad Diebel. They will hang in the dean's office in Schoolcraft's Radcliff Center in Garden City.

How Arch Ward began pro bowl

the stroller
W.W.
Edgar

THE SPORTS pages of the nation's newspapers and the TV screens around the country have been filled with the actions of the Super Bowl football game in New Orleans, and it came about because of an all-star baseball game.

This may seem strange to the present-day sports fans, but a young fellow named Arch Ward, who was graduated from Notre Dame and became sports editor of the Chicago Tribune, got an idea — and it worked.

It was back in the early '30s when he conceived the idea of a baseball game that would pit two famous baseball managers against each other.

In his mind, he wondered what it would be like to have John J. McGraw of the New York Giants pitted against Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics. So he set about arranging the game. It was a huge success.

ONCE THAT was proven, he added football and arranged for the selection of an all-star football team to meet the leaders in the young pro league.

It was a gamble. But the nation became interested, and from that game came the Super Bowl, matching the top teams in the pro football league.

The success of these ventures prompted Ward to go a step further. He moved over to the fight game.

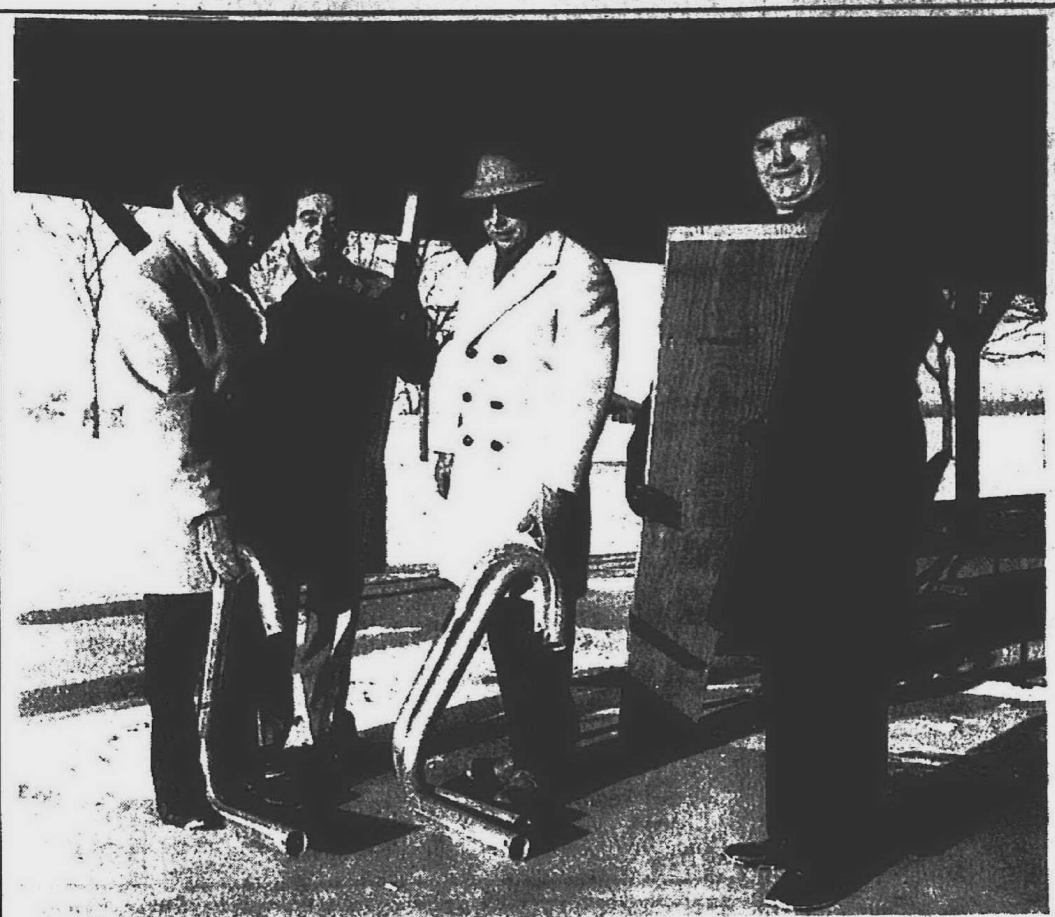

The Tribune, under his guidance, sponsored the Golden Gloves boxing tournament. Again he was successful. In Detroit, Joe Louis came out of the Golden Gloves to become world heavyweight champion.

DETROIT AND the metropolitan area played a leading role in all of these ventures. And the biggest contribution came when Gus Dorais, the University of Detroit football coach, was voted to the coaching job of preparing the college all-stars to meet the Green Bay Packers in Soldier Field, Chicago.

This game made possible the present-day Super Bowl and provided the foundation for the all-star games in all sports — and all because of Arch Ward, who got his schooling at Notre Dame.

One of the most exciting times of the football game came when Dorais was voted the coach. Gus was in a close battle to the last day. But with the help of city leaders, the Ford Motor Co. provided buses the closing day to pick up the votes. When the votes came in from all sections of the city, Gus was the big winner. And he won the game.

This victory of the college all-stars caught the fancy of the public, and now this type of post-season game has taken its place as one of the sports features of the year.

St. Paul winter carnival provides hot time for all

ST. PAUL, MINN. — There is a wail of sirens as Vulcanus Rex and his sooty crew turn the corner of Rice Park in an ancient red fire engine.

The crowd along the parade route leans forward past a rank of red and blue and yellow winter caps to catch sight of them — the Prince of Soot, the Baron de Sparkus and the king of fir himself. The wind chill factor is 11 below zero, but nobody seems to notice.

Boreas Rex, king of the winter winds and reigning monarch of the 100th Street Paul Winter Carnival, has long ago passed the reviewing stand with the Queen of Snows at his side.

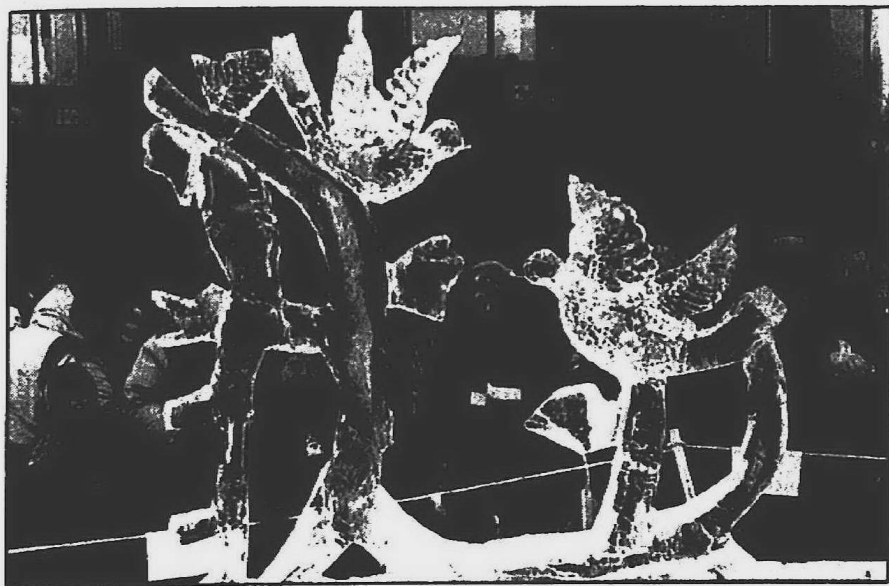

The official cars and the marching bands are disappearing down Fifth Street, along with the hugh floats bearing snow princesses and carved ice palaces.

Now the Vulcans are here, terrors of the town in their red costumes and masks, capes flying behind as they grab laughing women from the crowd and plant black greasy kisses on their cheeks. A greasy-marked face is a sign of honor during the wild ten days of the carnival.

THE ST. PAUL Winter Carnival is the oldest and one of the largest festivals in the country. Some say that the founders of New Orleans Mardi Gras festival learned their ropes here. It all started 100 years ago when a New York City reporter declared that St. Paul in winter was a frozen Siberia, unfit for human habitation.

The pioneers set out to show that demaned Eastener how much fun a St. Paul winter could be. In 1886 they held their first carnival and built their first ice palace. There was no legend quite good enough for them so they created their own.

According to the legend, King Boreas wandered through paradise until he found the seven hills of St. Paul, where he settled with the princes of the four winds, who dominated the four corners of the world.

Boreas, King of Winter, is crowned every year at the beginning of the carnival, which began this year on Jan. 22 and will end Feb. 9.

Every good legend needs a villain, so of course the gods sent Vulcanus Rex, King of Fire, to torment the good King Boreas and delight the citizens of the realm with his antics.

THE SOOTY KING appears unexpectedly with his sooty Krewe every year in city bars, in shopping centers, wherever the princes with their greasy black cheeks can leave their mark on passing faces.

At the end of the carnival, the disreputable Vulcanus de thrones the proper, elegant Boreas, warming the way to spring.

Psychologists say that crazy winter carnivals are exactly what we need to get through a long winter and this one is crazy in all the right ways. There are 120 events in parks around the city and on nearby Lake Phalen — dog sled races, hot-air balloons, ice sculpture contests and Klondike Kate's casino. And fireworks, parades and rides on the Vulcan fire engines.

This year, to celebrate the hundredth anniversary of the carnival, the city planned the biggest ice castle ever built in the world, 155 feet of sparkling splendor scheduled to open with fanfare and fireworks on the opening day of the carnival.

IT WOULD have worked if Vulcanus Rex hadn't breathed too much fire and created a January thaw. The palace was only half built when the parade began. They still hope to finish the ice palace by Jan. 31, so that it can shine the last week of the festival.

There have been 17 ice palaces in a century of carnivals, but this year's fantasy would be the only one to equal the palaces built during the first three years. In 1886, it was a huge medieval castle.

In 1887, eight years after Thomas Edison invented the first practical light bulb, it was a Romanesque fantasy glowing with electric light. In 1888, the turreted wonderland was the largest ever built, although it too thawed slowly under the fiery breath of Vulcanus Rex.

This year's ice palace, an abstract fantasy for children's wonderland, was to be the grandest of them all, and the whole city turned out to build it. People who wanted to own a piece of the palace paid $10 for one of the 50,000 ice blocks, each weighing 700 pounds and measuring two feet by 3.5 feet by 22 inches.

THE ARCHITECTS, who donated their time, estimate now that the palace would cost $1.2 million if everything was paid for. The unions donated their time to build it and the people bought the ice, so the out-of-pocket expenses were $200,000 instead of $2.5 million.

The system of construction was based on that used in the olden days. The city found two men who were involved in the last really major ice palace project in the 1940s. They borrowed an antique ice cutter from another city, built a conveyor belt and went to work.

The ice is cut in huge uniform blocks from the lake, rafted to the conveyor and lifted up hill through a finishing operation that ensures uniform size. Cranes lift the huge blocks to workers waiting to build the walls, layer by layer. No additional materials can be used; wood or steel would melt the ice.

Even the mortar is made of snow and water, and that's what has caused the problem. The ice blocks haven't melted, but the mortar refused to freeze during the thaw, so the blocks wouldn't hold steady.

On the first day of carnival, the palace was only half built, but good freezing weather has held since then. Everybody is praying that the palace will be finished this week.

In the late 19th century, they got rid of the palace after the carnival by stringing it with hundreds of roman candles and letting the spectacular fireworks melt the edifice.

PUT INSURANCE considerations dominate this year's construction, so the castle will go down as silently as possible when the carnival is over.

Hundreds of other ice sculptures are an important part of each year's Winter Carnival. As we stand on the parade route, watching King Boreas and Vulcanus Rex go by, the layers of people on the edge of Rice Park make a frame of colorful coats, caps and winter boots around the acres of ice sculptors who have been chopping, chipping and refining their masterpieces for the final judging.

They started at 9 a.m. with 400-pound blocks of ice in a snowy park, in the center of town. As the day wears on, and children watch wide-eyed, fantastic figures emerge under the sculpting hands: eagles and sea horses, birds in a frozen tree, children holding hands.

ALL EYES were turned on the sculpturing until the parade began to wind around the park. Now the crowd faces the street, cheering the young woman being tossed from a blanket into the air, the clown who rides on a high unicycle, the yacht club float that got its funnels caught on the wires as it turned the corner, and of course, on the followers of Vulcanus Rex.

Vulcan's princes capered down the street leaving their greasy kisses behind them as they followed the parade. Now they are coming back, sirens screaming as their fire engine goes the wrong way along the parade route. Sooner or later they will win out against the ice of winter, and spring will come at last.

High court faster in '85

Michigan's Supreme Court said it took less time to decide its cases during 1985 than in any year during the last decade.

Speaking at a meeting of the State Bar of Michigan in Lansing, Chief Justice G. Mennen Williams said the Supreme Court took an average of 7½ months to reach a decision on all of its 1985 cases after hearing oral arguments presented by attorneys in each case.

"During the last 10 years (1975-1984), the time between arguments and decisions has averaged about 12 months," Williams said. "In 1985, that average was reduced by more than four months."

"After all, we plan to adopt time standards for trial courts later this year in an effort to reduce delay in courts throughout the state so we should make every effort to set a good example for all of the state's courts by processing our cases in a timely manner."

Plymouth's pigeon problem pertinent?

IN RECENT WEEKS a controversy has arisen in the city of Plymouth on plans to poison a flock of pigeons living on building tops surrounding the Central Parking Lot.

Some tenants and building owners surrounding Central Parking Lot complained that the pigeons were a health hazard to employees, endangered the building roofs, and were otherwise a nuisance. The city's assistance was requested.

The City Commission, trying to be responsive to constituent needs, arranged for a pest exterminator to come up with a plan to eradicate the problem by poisoning the pigeons — reportedly without endangering other human or animal life. The approach seemed quite reasonable.

The problem is not new to the community. Only two or three years ago pigeons were creating similar problems at Plymouth Centennial Educational Park and a poisoning program was undertaken. Besides the health problem, pigeon feces is so chemically potent that it erodes structures if allowed to remain.

The City Commission approved the poisoning plan with little controversy at that meeting. The news was reported and then all kinds of controversy broke out as individuals surfaced with scattered "Save the Pigeons" efforts being made. Among these efforts was a leaflet campaign during the ice carving festival and the netting of pigeons and transporting them elsewhere.

It is interesting that pigeons can evoke such strong emotional responses. A general principle long has existed that human life may destroy animal life (cows, chickens, pigs, etc.) for sustenance. Some individuals do object to the killing of animal life for food but this position has long been out of the mainstream of American thought.

Another general principle long has existed that animal life may be destroyed when it becomes a nuisance to human life or to the environment. Few persons protested efforts to control the alewife population when it polluted the shores of Lake Michigan. Likewise starving seagulls became a serious problem a couple years ago in northern Michigan and control efforts were put into effect. Packs of wild dogs are killed when they endanger "livestock" or humans.

OVERLOOKED in all the discussion of whether it is right for pigeons to be destroyed is the issue of who should pay.

Right now the expense is being paid for by the general fund, which means all taxpayers share in the expense. That would be a logical choice to make if pigeons posed a health hazard or nuisance to all taxpayers, but that does not seem to be the case.

Often when a public improvement benefits a limited number of taxpayers the expense is paid for by special assessment, such as for sidewalks or street paving. Maybe the bill for pigeon eradication should be paid for only by those who are bothered by their existence. Maybe a special assessment district should be created around the borders of the Central Parking Lot with the cost being borne by the beneficiaries.

Actually the administrative cost of holding public hearings, publishing notices, and establishing the district would be too great in relation to the cost. Maybe the city should just pass the hat instead.

In any event, the Observer is not troubled by the killing of pigeons downtown. Mankind, as steward of the earth, has long killed animals when it seems reasonable to do so and the protection of building structures and human health is a reasonable enough excuse to poison pigeons.

-Plymouth Observer

National Celebration was a big Super Dud

I DON'T want to sound un-American, but what's the big deal?

Is the Super Bowl really worth all that blather? You'd think that the world stood still while the greatest contest in the history of mankind was being decided.

You'd think that every man, woman and child of television-viewing age was vitally concerned with such things as what kind of headband Chicago Bear quarterback Jim McMahon was wearing at any given time, or whether the Refrigerator weighs 308 pounds or 330 pounds.

You'd think that people were really interested in interviews with athletes. Richard Dent, Steve McMichael and Emory Moorhead make the three Stooges sound like college professors.

COMMON. I saw much of the Super Bowl and it was one of the duds of all time. The ever-intrusive mobile minicamera focused on Patriot coach Raymond Berry's face hairline to chin dozens of times waiting for him to wince with anguish. Nothing. Berry remained impassive.

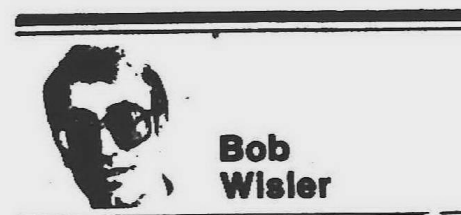

The minicamera focused on Bear Coach Mike Ditka waiting for who knows what. What did he do? Spit. Often.

In fact, Ditka expectorated for more yardage than the Patriots gained. Just what I want to see during "A National Celebration," some coach spitting every few minutes.

Can anyone really get excited about a runaway football game? The announcers tried to make it sound as if it were a contest. The whole television production was geared toward carrying out the program as if it really mattered to the United States whether Chicago or New England won the football game.

BUT, IT was a charade. The network should have had an old Heidi movie to throw on rather than drag the thing out as long as it was dragged out.

Even the following day, the newscasters couldn't leave it alone. Rather than admit that Super Bowl XX was best forgotten, they went through the obligatory interviews with athletes, coaches and owners and evaluations of key plays, etc., ad nauseam.

I woke up Tuesday to see Mike McCaskey, president of the Bears and grandson of George Halas, on a TV newscast barking like a dog. I kid you not. I still don't know what he was doing, but there was this 43-year-old owner of a football team going "Woof, woof, woof!" to a crowd of Bear fans on LaSalle street in Chicago.

To top it all off, the president was interviewed just before the game. Ron "Just Folks" Reagan in his red pullover sweater being interviewed by Tom Brokaw, one of the three major anchors fighting for ratings. What did they talk about? How important the Super Bowl was to America. Ron said the Super Bowl was part of the American personality. Wonderful.

WE HAVE a trillion-dollar budget, a trillion-dollar deficit, a $10-billion-a-year drug business, an economy which has more people serving hamburgers than making durable goods, a nuclear arms stalemate, a society with mounting social problems and a president who is going on national television only to tell us that the Super Bowl is part of the American personality.

Reagan may have been on because the network didn't want to take any more of his post-victory phone calls to the winning coach. Don't blame'em. By now every football fan who ever watched a post-victory celebration dreaded those phone calls.

If Reagan got the coach's name right, he made endless inane observations about the game while the coach shifted and squirmed and waited patiently for the president to get off the line.

I used to like Super Bowls when they were football games, but I think that I'm going to quit watching them as long as they remain national celebrations.

Tannian's access to Lucas

"Mr. Tannian had that most important asset, access to the top decision-maker."

THAT BIT of understatement comes from Richard Strichartz, Birmingham resident and former law professor at Wayne State University, in his capacity as special fact finder for the Wayne County Commission. It's tucked away in his 64-page report on County Executive William Lucas' procedures in letting a $138 million contract to rehabilitate the Old County Building.

There's no "smoking gun" in the hands of either Bill Lucas or his chief of staff, Dennis Nystrom, on the question of conflict of interest.

Nevertheless, the picture that emerges is one of repeated, blatant favoritism toward Phillip G. (Jerry) Tannian, attorney for the firm that won the contract.

THE IDEA for renovating the Old Wayne County Building was hatched in May of 1983 by Robert FitzPatrick, head of the county's Economic Development Corporation — and the man Lucas defeated for executive in 1982.

A month later, Lucas announced his office — not EDC — would take over the project. No reason was given.

Could it have been because the EDC board must operate under the Open Meetings Act but staff work inside the Lucas administration could be closed to the public? Strichartz has no answer.

(Many months before Tannian's client got the contract, FitzPatrick predicted it would happen, based on the favoritism shown to Tannian.)

FitzPatrick had long business experience in real estate deals, but Lucas took the project away from him and placed Jamil Akhtar, one of his assistants, in charge. Akhtar had been a sheriff's deputy, union leader and law student. Questioned by Strichartz on why the renovation contract took so long, Akhtar admitted, "Well, this was the first time I was ever involved in anything like this."

TANNIAN WAS AN old pal of Lucas, dating to their days in the Detroit office of the FBI. Tannian went on to become Detroit police chief; Lucas, to become sheriff in 1969 and executive in 1983.

Tannian is counsel for a partnership called OCBR (Old County Building Renovation), one of five bidders for the contract. But in mid-1984 during staff discussions, Akhtar testified, "I was instructed by Mr. Nystrom that Mr. Tannian would be involved in this project."

How involved? Tannian was given an advance copy of a planning document called Request for Proposal "to look over and rewrite," Akhtar said.

Two companies emerged as top contenders for the renovation contract — Tannian's client OCBR and Amurcon. A staff committee headed by Akhtar analyzed the bids and voted 4-2 for Amurcon.

Although Amurcon's $144 million bid was $6 million higher than OCBR's, Akhtar's committee strongly recommended Amurcon on a point system for reasons of "overall strength . . . far greater record of real estate experience generally . . . superior ability."

A DAY LATER, Lucas, without ever being given a copy of the Akhtar committee's report, decided in favor of Tannian's client.

A week later, Tannian, as a political friend of Lucas, arranged a $186,000 loan from National Bank of Detroit to the executive's political fund in order to pay off Nystrom's legal fees in the infamous road patrol layoff case which Lucas-Nystrom lost.

Akhtar told Strichartz several other stories of how Tannian could "arrange favors" because of his access to Lucas. "What Mr. Tannian would do would be to work with the administrative staff, try to get the best deal that he could, and then go in and see the executive and try to get a better deal . . . I was affronted by Jerry's way of doing business."

Lucas is due to announce for the Republican nomination for governor on Feb. 12, "Honest Abe" Lincoln's birthday. It would be more appropriate for him to hold off to March 15, birthday of Andrew Jackson — "To the victor belong the spoils."

An example for the DAC

UNTIL 11:39 a.m. Tuesday the subject matter for this column was pretty much set in granite. Then in front of our eyes, a precious bit of America died.

We all will remember what we were doing the moment we learned that the lives of seven American astronauts were snuffed out. I was on the phone talking business when I heard.

"Steve, the shuttle just blew up. Everybody was killed," said the voice on the other end.

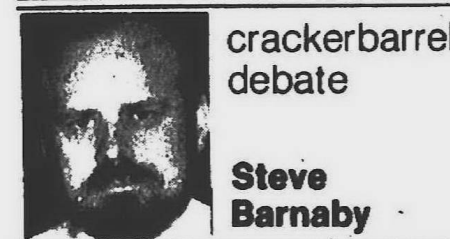

For a moment the words just wouldn't come. I looked down at my handwritten notes which suddenly seemed meaningless.

"Listen," I said, "anything I've got to talk about right now would seem pretty irrelevant. Why don't I talk with you later."

The other person, nearly in tears, agreed and we hung up.

LATER, LOOKING over the notes I had gathered for this column, I tried desperately to blot out the image of the fire ball framed by the crystal blue sky. The image just wouldn't go away.

Driving home that evening, I sorted through the reliable old mental file to salvage my column idea. (For some reason,

crackerbarrel debate

most of the decisions I make in life are finalized while driving.)

Suddenly it all made sense. Today's column was to be about the Detroit Athletic Club's vote to continue its ban on full membership for women. I had typed a note to myself saying, "Business leaders have a special role to play in this country, an example to set. But last week's decision . . ."

That was as far as I had gone.

THEN I THOUGHT about all the women who had made an impact on the nation that day. Naturally, Christa McAuliffe, the school teacher turned astronaut, was first and foremost. And then there was astronaut Judy Resnik, whose determination made her one of the first American women in space.

Watching television later that day, we saw ABC's journalist Lynn Sherr, who has become one of the foremost space experts, tell us not only about the accident but about the astronauts she had come to know so well.

Finally, after an exhausting day of news reports, we saw Joan Rivers tell us she would not be telling any jokes that evening. It just wasn't appropriate.

"All women, all successful, all contributing to society in one way or another. Two of them, in the blink of an eye, have become forever etched in our minds as national heroes."

THEY ALL possess one thing in common. None of them, despite their contributions, could be a member of the Detroit Athletic Club.

It's an affront that this community's most powerful male leaders could have the audacity to forbid membership to those who contribute so mightily to society.

We must question the viability and credibility of business and civic leaders who are so insecure as to want to belong to such an organization. Shame on them.

House, Senate at odds over malpractice 'cap'

A compromise on medical malpractice reform could come in February or March, a key state senator says, although Senate and House leaders are still far apart on key issues.

"The major issue is a cap on liability," said Senate Majority Leader John Engler, R-Mt. Pleasant.

The Senate passed a bill last year to limit non-economic damages ("pain and suffering") to $250,000. House leaders — particularly Speaker Gary Owen, D-Ypsilanti — oppose any cap, arguing juries should decide.

Engler said the interests supporting a cap — insurers and doctors — fell two votes short in the House and may try again this year.

He said Monday the Senate will drop its own bills and deal with the House versions in an effort to achieve compromise.

The "liability crisis," as it's called, stems from soaring liability insurance rates, which the industry blames on an explosion of lawsuits and overly generous juries, particularly in Wayne County. Trial lawyers blame it on greedy insurance companies and bad doctors.

The crisis extends to suits against governments and taverns.

Here are excerpts from a Senate analysis of the differences between the two chambers on medical malpractice.

JOINT AND SEVERAL LIABILITY

Under present law, all defendants are considered liable for the full amount of a jury award. It leads plaintiffs to expect to collect the full amount from the party with the "deepest pockets" — a government or large business — although its share of fault may be small.

Senate would require the court to apportion the relative fault between defendants and assign a percentage of liability to each defendant a percentage of fault. It abolishes joint and several liability for defendants who are less than 50 percent at fault.

House allows for setting percentage limits but allows a party, one year later, to move for reallocation if the amount hasn't been collected.

COLLATERAL SOURCE

This rule prohibits telling a jury that the plaintiff already has been compensated for injury by (for example) an insurance company. Critics say it allows "double dipping" — collecting twice for the same injury.

The Senate passed a bill last year to limit non-economic damages (pain and suffering) to $250,000. House leaders oppose any cap, arguing juries should decide.

Senate bill would modify the rule to reduce any judgment by an amount equal to collateral source payments. But the judgment couldn't be reduced by more than 50 percent.

House version is much the same, with some limitations.

STRUCTURED PAYMENTS

Because of multimillion-dollar judgments, the idea would cap the amount a losing defendant could be required to pay in any one year.

Senate would establish guidelines for a court to follow when damages in excess of $250,000 are awarded, allowing defendant to pay over a period of years. The Senate bill requires the trial judge to review the jury award and either concur with it, grant a new trial or attempt to increase or reduce the award.

House would allow periodic payments, but not where a plaintiff is 60 or older.

PREJUDGMENT INTEREST

Currently, plaintiff is entitled to 12 percent interest on the judgment dating from the time the suit is filed.

Senate would tie the rate of interest to five-year Treasury bills. Prejudgment interest wouldn't start accruing until six months after the suit is served.

House would set the prejudgment rate at 1 percent over five-year T-bills. Interest would be calculated from the date the suit was filed except under limited circumstances.

TIME LIMITATIONS

Doctors and insurers complain that malpractice suits involving acts at birth aren't started until the child is 18; therefore, it is difficult to set up reserves for delayed suits.

Senate would provide that the general two-year statute of limitations for medical malpractice actions also apply to children, except that a claim involving a child under age 6 would have to be brought prior to the 6th birthday.

House would provide that a medical malpractice suit could not be started more than six years after the act which is the basis of the claim, except in limited circumstances.

House also would allow a child who is more than 18, but not yet 19, to sue if the claim wasn't asserted by a parent or guardian.

EXPERT WITNESSES

Senate would require that expert medical witnesses be persons who devote at least 75 percent of their time to clinical practice or teaching, eliminating out-of-state witnesses who testify for plaintiffs for a living.

House would require expert witness to be licensed health care provider in Michigan. Court would have to evaluate the person's educational and professional training.

MALPRACTICE FUND

Senate has no provision. House would create a state malpractice insurer similar to the old Brown-McNeely Fund.

House would add new reporting requirements for insurance companies. Insurers would have to report malpractice judgments and settlements to licensing boards. Lawyers would be required to report malpractice suits to the state.

Sweden has no-fault medical liability

Michigan could have avoided its long political battle over medical malpractice lawsuits with a Swedish-style no-fault insurance plan, says a University of Michigan-Dearborn professor.

"I find this to be eminently rational and even-handed for both consumers and doctors," said Marilyn Rosenthal, UM-D sociology professor. She spent three years studying methods of disciplining doctors in Sweden.

IN SWEDEN, a patient who is injured while under a doctor's care is compensated — regardless of fault — at a set rate.

Michigan's system leaves the determination of fault and the amount of damages to a jury. A Senate bill sought to limit non-economic (pain and suffering) damages to $250,000. The House and the Michigan Trial Lawyers Association calls limit unacceptable.

In place since 1975, the Swedish system compensates about 80 percent of the complaints filed. Since then a special drug no-fault insurance system also has been established.

Instead of settling patient-doctor disputes by lawsuits, the Swedes set up a Medical Responsibility Board to hear complaints, Rosenthal said.

Its nine members include: four members of Parliament, three representatives of union cartels, one representative from the council that runs the health care system, and a Court of Appeals judge who chairs the group.

She said it provides strong consumer representation.

A private insurance company called Skandia administers the plan. There have been none of the complaints of shrinking profits that have stimulated the "malpractice crisis" in the U.S., she said.

A NO-FAULT system was recommended for the state in a report commissioned by Gov. James J. Blanchard.

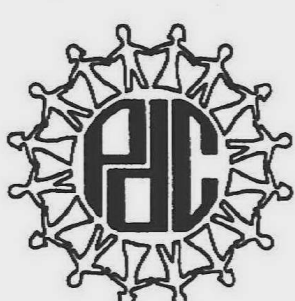

A no-fault system could be implemented on a state-by-state basis, Rosenthal said, although it might be fought by lawyers and some in the insurance industry.

But a patient-doctor coalition could push it through, she said.

She called the Swedish model desirable because fault isn't a factor. Many fine physicians who get less-than-perfect results aren't subject to lawsuits.

This, she said, leaves the medical profession free to weed out the really bad physicians.

PTG presents 'Picnic,' Pulitzer-winning drama

Plymouth Theatre Guild's presentation of "Picnic" opens at 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 31 in the auditorium of Central Middle School. The William Inge drama won both a Pulitzer Prize and Critic's Circle Award.

Show dates are Jan. 31, Feb. 1, 7 and 8. Admission is $4 for adults and $3 for students and senior citizens.

The action takes place in the joint backyards of two middle-aged, small-town women, both long since deserted by their husbands. One of the women is trying to raise two maturing daughters; the other is caring for her helpless invalid mother. To round out the household, a spinster schoolteacher is renting a room from her.

It is Labor Day weekend. Into this female atmosphere comes a young man of neither polish nor promise, who upsets the daily routine.

The result is a warm and exciting, sometimes happy and sometimes sad story that provides an evening of excellent entertainment.

SUE SUCHYTA, president of Plymouth Theatre Guild, is producing "Picnic." She has been active both on the stage and behind the scenes. She appeared in the guild's 1984 season productions of "The Bad Seed" and "Romantic Comedy," and in "Carousel" and "Stolen Identity" for the Players Guild of Dearborn, where she serves as a board member.

Director is Manfred Heuser, who has directed more than 80 full-length plays and musicals for German Theatre Detroit, Redford Union Drama Department and Players Guild of Redford. Heuser is teacher and department chairman for foreign languages and drama for Redford Union Schools. He brings two RU students to the cast of "Picnic." He has bachelor of arts, master of education and master of arts degrees from the University of Berlin and Wayne State University.

JAY STOCK of Northville is assistant director and stage manager. He teaches at Lawrence Institute of Technology and has been involved in community theatre since 1979. He has worked as assistant director, stage manager, sound manager and actor.

Donald C. Watkins of Plymouth designed and built the set for "Picnic." He is scenic technician at Meadow Brook Theater in Rochester. His previous theatre experience includes six years as a master puppeteer for Theatre West Virginia and two years with Meredith Bixby Marionettes. He earned his bachelor's degree in theater from Olivet College and has done graduate studies at the University of South Carolina.

THE CAST INCLUDES Belinda Biggs of Redford Township as Helen Potts, one of "grass" widows. Biggs appeared in the PTG production of "Witness for the Prosecution."

Bob Polkowski of Plymouth is Hal Carter, the role played by William Holden in the film version of "Picnic." This is his first appearance with PTG. He is employed as a metal divisions manager at Winston-Morrow Corp. A graduate of the University of Michigan, he was active in drama at Dearborn Fordson High School.

Holly Hissong of Canton Township plays Millie Owens. Younger daughter

Flo Owens is played by Pat Gresock.

Holly Hissong and her husband, Tobin, are very involved in theater. Holly, familiar to PTG audiences, graduated from Albion College and is working toward a master of business administration degree at Eastern Michigan University. Pat Gresock is making her second appearance in a guild production. An EMU communications major, she is a job placement specialist at the William D. Ford Technical Center and has won awards in competitive speaking as a member of Toastmasters International.

ROSEANN ROSSI, a senior at Redford Union High School, is Madge Owens. She had the same lead role last fall in the RU production of "Picnic." She works in a doctor's office in Southfield, sings in the Madrigal Choir and as a soloist. She plans to attend Michigan State University next year.

Murray Pudvan plays Bomber, the paper boy. He is a graduate of Livonia Franklin High School where he appeared in "My Fair Lady." He plays guitar in a progressive rock band and is employed as a picture framer.

Donna End is Rosemary Sydney, a schoolteacher. She has considerable experience in all phases of theater and is a Ford Motor Co. employee.

ROBERT CORZINE is repeating his role of Alan Seymour, the part he played last fall in the RU High production of "Picnic." He also was involved in "Inherit the Wind" and "Sound of Music" at RU.

Cheryl Shelden plays Irma Kronkite. She lives in Plymouth and works as a nurse at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital,

Rosann Rossi and Pat Gresock. Don Watkins designed and built the set for the Inge drama which opens Friday at Central Middle School.

Ann Arbor. She has many credits in theater and is a member of the University of Michigan Gilbert and Sullivan Society and the Ann Arbor Civic Theatre.

Ann Shaffer of Plymouth plays Christine Schoenwalder and serves at stage manager. She is a two-year member of the PTG board and has extensive experience on stage and behind the scenes.

Mike Gresock of Canton is Howard Bevans. He is a manager in custom services for the Livonia Postal Services.

He earned a bachelor of arts degree in management/marketing at EMU. He made his first appearance with PTG in "Witness for the Prosecution."

Curtain time for all four productions of "Picnic" will be 8 p.m. For information, call 261-2875 or 455-5263.

Pat Gresock (left) as Flo Owens does not want her daughter, Marge, played by Roseann Rossi, to leave with drifter Hal Carter, played by Bob Polkowski.

Veteran director Manfred Heuser watches rehearsal at Central Middle School.

Howard Bevans (Mike Gresock) tries to convince Rosemary Sydney (Donna End) that it isn't practical for him to marry her.

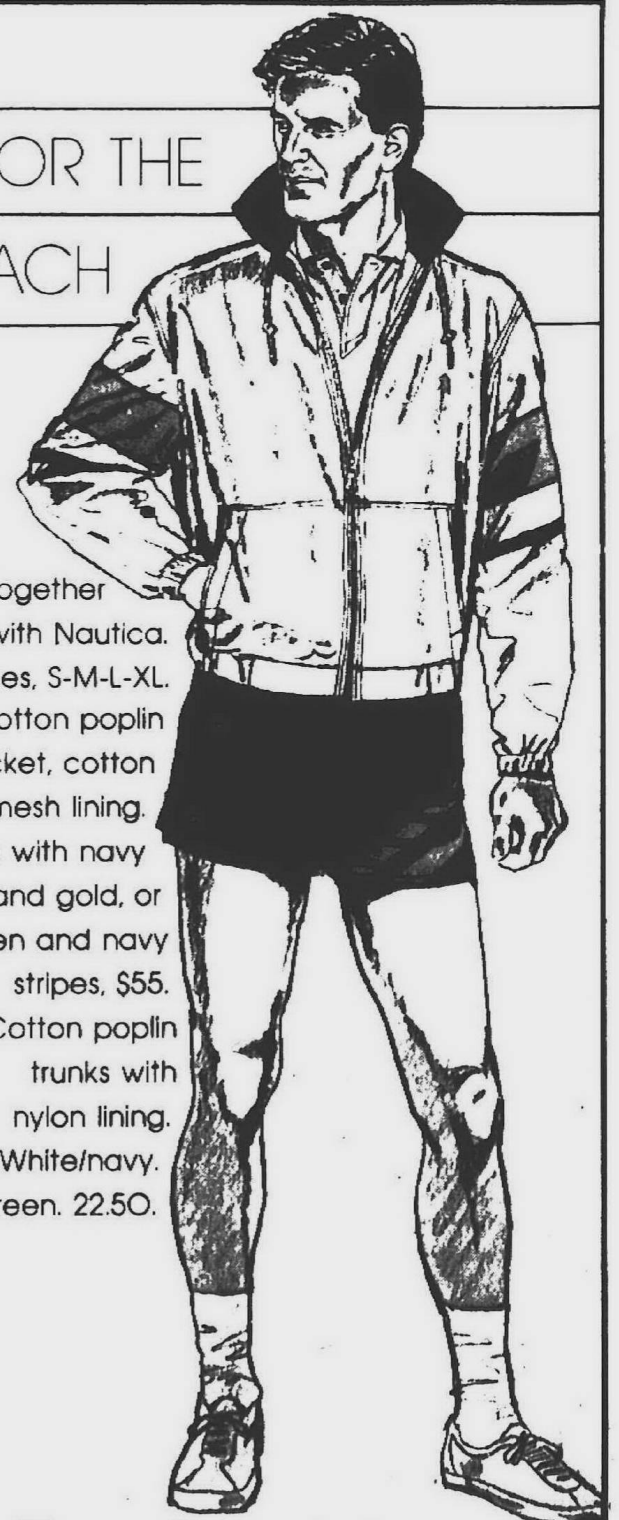

Irma Kronkite (Cheryl Shelden) offers congratulations to her friend Rosemary who is about to marry the less-than-enthusiastic traveling salesman.

Santa's arrival concludes 1985 revisited

Well, this is the last week of January and the last week of our walk down memory lane. But I must take time out this week to say a fond and very heartfelt farewell to the person who reads this column first, as she does every week. This one's for you, Ellie Graham, and may be a bit difficult to edit this week. But I don't see how it could be any more difficult than all the other helter-skelter columns I have written in these past years.

It was almost four years ago that I started to write the Canton Chatter column, and I have had a whole new world open up to me because of it, a chance, if you will, to get to really know my community and so many, many wonderful people living in it.

I know you have enjoyed her column "The View" found on the front page of the Suburban Life section of this paper, as you have told me so. What you may not know, is the amount of patience and understanding that it must take to edit my column each week. As a matter of fact, I could tell when she was on vacation and someone else edited my column.

She told me when I was hired to write a column that was "easy reading." (I don't think she had any idea that my writing style, if I may call it that, would turn out to be more of a conversation than a report.) And yet, I never heard a harsh word, or noticed any frustration in her voice. She bore a grace and a charm I have admired from day one and a love for the people and the community. It came through in her writing as she cherished and rejoiced in every accomplishment of every citizen, and every event in the community.

Local writers have come and gone by the dozens, but she has remained steadfast and loyal. So, to the lady I feel is truly the "First Lady of the Press" in our community, to the lady who writes with a kind heart, and a hope for our community: Thank you, for the good times you have brought to us, and all you have taught us about taking pride in, and giving pride to our community. We shall miss you, I shall miss you.

Have a great retirement, from writing anyway. Enjoy, Ellie. What will I do without you?

(Editor's note: Sandy is prone to getting carried away with her subject. The above demonstrates this failing.)

celebrated his 75th birthday with 75 guests, and 75 pounds of barbecue chicken. The guests ranged in age from 3 to 95. The latter was Andy Smith, another long time resident. Since Phil's family's roots in Canton go w-a-y back, many guests were relatives of founding fathers.

Speaking of which, Phil himself has done a little family founding in Canton with eight children and 21 grandchildren to his credit. At a party that lasted from 2 p.m. until the late evening, three sacks of Canton sweet corn, loads of brownies and all sorts of salads were missing when the day was done.

With so many years served in the Canton community in one capacity or the other, we must add a thank you to that happy birthday. Congratulations, Phil.

WE HEARD from Charles Zazula with a little bitty ditty he wrote for the Canton Newcomers to honor them for all their hard work.

THEN IT WAS on to the 25th wedding anniversary of Judy and Roger Horne. Friends and family came in from all over. They had a wonderful evening which included one of those Memory Boxes, that have become so popular in this area, and some pretty unusual ideas done with Las Vegas Dollars. I still wish I could have gotten my hands on some of the mostaccioli.

It was just about time for what may well have been the last garage sale of the season, given by the Franklin Palmer Subdivision. We reminded the senior citizens to go to the school board office and get their free pass for admission to all school sporting events. I sure hope many of you take advantage of this, this season.

ONCE AGAIN we warned people to STOP for school buses. When some teen-agers were asked why they didn't stop for the bus, they replied they really didn't know they had to. Scary!

The Historical Society was winding up its collection of goods for its garage sale, and the Lions were having a blood drive.

I took a moment to wish Li Chun Huo a happy birthday.

Soon the senior citizen group called the Zesters could be found at their annual bazaar sale at Westland Mall. I took a moment to thank Dorothy West, Helen Maloney, and Charles Zazula for all the enriching conversations I have shared with them about Canton's past.

We congratulated Dorothy West and Ray Schultz for their well-deserved awards of "Winner of the Year!"

The Newcomers announced their upcoming annual auction to benefit the Hospice organization, and we sent get well wishes to La Donna Lambert and Rick Preblich and birthday wishes to Ron Byrnes and Brett Byrnes and Lori Karpinski

CANTON PARKS and Recreation prepared for its annual Halloween parties and Canton Center Food Market decided to change its name to Canton Community Food Market. You heard that bit of news first right here, too.

Halloween was upon us and once again McDonald's offered the metal detection service. Parks and recreation announced the return of the popular dynamic aerobics class. The two local community football teams, the Plymouth Canton Steelers and the Canton Lions, played their last game.

And then, the event of the year. I stopped begging, threatening and shaking, and got a job. To tell you the truth my family is enjoying the pittance I am bringing home and I'm still working.

This is a good moment to thank all of you who recognize me and say "hi" when you see me. I love it. No kidding, I really appreciate it. It makes me feel special and not so alone when I'm facing the retail customer. I'm still there so if you'd like to drop by, I'm at Hudson's Westland Rainbow Shop, usually in women's dresses. The rainbow is in the basement.

I never could understand that. Isn't everything supposed to be under the rainbow? Maybe they should call it the Treasure Chest?

How to submit news

News of clubs, service organizations, engagements, weddings and wedding anniversaries are printed without cost in the Suburban Life Section of the Plymouth Observer and Canton Observer newspapers.

News items may be dropped off or mailed to the office at 489 S. Main St., Plymouth 48170. Special forms are available for club news, engagements, weddings and 50th wedding anniversary announcements.

Black and white pictures are preferred as they reproduce more clearly than color photographs. A self-addressed, stamped envelope assures return of the pictures, or, they can be picked up at the office a week after they have been published. Mail should be addressed to the attention of Elinor Graham, Suburban Life editor.

Activities of more major scope than regular club meetings may warrant more extensive coverage and a photograph. Call the newspaper, 459-2700, well in advance of the event to permit scheduling a photograph.

Breaking news stories (and we appreciate telephone calls on these) like fires, accidents, etc., receive on-the-spot coverage.

Other events, planned for in advance, should be announced a week or so before the actual date.

Craig-Jeffrey

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Craig of Canton announce the upcoming marriage of their daughter, Lisa Marie, to Brad Lee Jeffrey, the son of the Rev. and Mrs. John E. Jeffrey of Redford.

The bride-to-be graduated from Plymouth-Canton High School in 1983 and is a receptionist with Hollowell Engineering in Dearborn.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Schmitt of Ann Arbor announce the engagement of their daughter, Loretta Sue, to Dennis J. O'Flynn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. O'Flynn of Canton Township.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Ann Arbor Pioneer High School and will receive her bachelor of science degree in foods and nutrition from Michigan State University in June of this year.

Her fiancé graduated from Plymouth Canton High School and attends Eastern Michigan University. He is an associate member of the technical staff at Comshare Inc. of Ann Arbor. A September wedding is planned.

Now, when we talk about our "local coverage," you won't think we're talking about your hands.

(With our new ink, your hands should stay cleaner.)

It used to be a fact of life that when you read the newspaper, your hands looked like they'd had a session under the hood of your car.

And how many times have you heard, "Don't put the paper there, it'll rub off!"

Our new "Low-Rub" ink should minimize all of that.

You can sit back, relax, and enjoy your hometown news without getting as much of it on you as before.

From now on, local coverage will mean news of your community and your neighborhood and not fingerprints on the refrigerator, the wall or the dog. Well, maybe the dog.

Low-Rub ink means 70% less rub-off. Who knows? It could even save a bit on the family soap bills.

MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY'S MBA PROGRAM FOR EXPERIENCED EXECUTIVES

"The MSU Advanced Management Program has helped 131 Chrysler managers contribute to the success of our corporation."

JOHN D. WITHROW, JR., Executive Vice President, Product Development, Chrysler Corporation

"In these days of intensified competition, there is a growing need for formal education to understand basic business processes and to effectively contribute to your company's success. The Michigan State University Advanced Management Program is one of the best ways I know to gain this important education."

"I graduated from the Advanced Management Program in 1971. The professors, all from the faculty in East Lansing, helped me understand my on-the-job problems and taught me management techniques I use daily. We think so much of this program at Chrysler, that we have sent 131 of our top and emerging corporate leaders through it since 1964."

Experienced executives can complete this MBA program in two years while continuing their full-time jobs. Classes are taught two evenings a week at MSU's Management Education Center in Troy, Michigan.

Applications for admission to the class starting in September 1988 are now being accepted. Interested executives should call Arthur Seltzman at (313) 878-2725 or contact the program office at:

Camp Fire to hold candy sale

The annual Camp Fire candy sale, which raises money for the activities of the Detroit Area Council, will be held from Feb. 7 to March 3.

Camp Fire boys and girls will sell candy in area shopping malls, supermarkets, bowling alleys and community centers located in Wayne, Oakland, Macomb and Livingston counties.

Camp Fire members will sell Almond Roca, butter crunch and mint patties for $2. The proceeds will help underwrite some of the costs of camping activities for youth at Camp Wathana and to support programming for children who take part in neighborhood Camp Fire clubs.

Camp Fire is one of the major youth service organizations in the Detroit area. The Detroit Area Council is celebrating 74 years of helping boys and girls between the ages of five and 17.

Camp Fire camping programs help boys and girls learn outdoors about responsibility and resourcefulness, while having fun.

Camp Wathana, a 370-acre wooded lake site, was opened in 1926. It has a full-time staff and trained counselors.

Camp Fire neighborhood clubs are informal, co-educational, life-learning experiences for youth. The activities are designed and directed by trained adult volunteers for small groups of boys and girls of similar maturity.

Camp Fire in-school clubs provide opportunities during the school day, to learn skills and develop self-reliance. A variety of cultural and creative experiences helps club members become more sensitive to the diverse qualities of life.

Adult volunteers are guided by a full time professional staff.

The council is supported by funding from the United Foundation, by grants from foundations and by gifts and contributions from individuals.

This year it will be "Fiddler on the Roof," this weekend at St. Paul Presbyterian Church, Livonia, in the leading role of Tevye is Brett Ray (below), a former Livonia resident who now tours with a Christian mime group, Epic Mimes. Directing the play are Pat Hutchison and Jeff Vella.

If we are Christian, we must care

Mothers of Twins members who made the presentation of two maple rockers to St. Mary Hospital are Martha Kruz (left), Diane Bowles, Debbie Mathis, Judy Boyer, Joyce DeBoe and president Barbara Phillips.

BISHOP DESMOND Tutu says of apartheid in South Africa: "It is not a political issue. It is a spiritual issue." He goes on to say that it is not politics or theology that makes him concerned about how his people are treated. "It is because you and I know that we worship a God that cares."

There are many who would want Bishop Tutu to leave politics out of the church. There are many who still try to separate the church from "worldly issues." They would hope that everyone would keep religion in its place. They want to keep religion within the walls of the church, synagogue and home.

This view is no different than the policies of Jim Crow and apartheid in South Africa. In contrast, I argue that it is impossible to separate an authentic Christian faith from the rest of life.

Bishop Tutu battles away at the idea of a private religion when he says, "And so I come to say thank you and to remember with you that nothing that happens to a Christian can ever be of only personal or individual significance."

moral perspectives

Rev. David Strong

BISHOP TUTU is one of those persons who is unwilling to separate life into neat little categories. He instead takes a holistic approach to life. Everything is connected. We are connected to one another. It is God's compassion which connects us all. Apartheid is therefore as much a spiritual issue as it is a political one. God cares when he sees his children suffer. For this reason a person of faith cannot claim that such issues are not his concern.

It makes a difference how we define life. We can separate life into categories and so avoid the contradictions. Those who separate life in this manner can worship on Sunday and then go out on Monday and carry out their business in such a way that it destroys people. In like manner one can practice a private religion and then fail to see the contradictions in doing business with a regime which ignores the human rights of a majority of its people.

A human rights activist in Czechoslovakia links peace talks with the human rights issue. He says that you cannot trust a nation to keep its commitments regarding peace if that same government is unwilling to keep its human rights commitments to its own citizens. Again we find someone who is linking issues.

IN ECONOMICS we find that the world is ever more closely connected. The current sharp drop in oil prices has a complex and pervasive effect. We can no longer ignore what is happening in another corner of the world. We need to redefine our old understandings of life. We are as connected spiritually and morally as we are in economic terms. People like Bishop Tutu and the Czech activist push us to drive deeper into the core of the issue. Two other significant religious leaders in America, Billy Graham and Martin Luther King Jr. found that they arrived at a point where they felt that they must deal with the world peace issue.

In both cases their advisors wanted them not to pursue this concern. Both men decided that they must address the peace issue because they knew that it connected with concerns that were central in their faith.

We can no longer practice faith as though we lived on an island. Our religious life must reflect a value system which is both parochial and international. Everything that happens to us and to the world is linked. Worship and witness must express this fact.

If we agree with Bishop Tutu: "You and I know we worship a God that cares," then we will have difficulty separating out areas of life that we can comfortably ignore.

Prep athletics: innocence lost

THINGS AREN'T ALL peaches and cream in the world of high school sports. It may appear as such to the naive eye. Prep sports paints itself a handsome exterior: the purity of competition, the innocence of playing for school and community pride, the lessons learned through both victory and defeat, and the satisfaction of doing the best you can.

Beneath that exterior, though, the foundation is beginning to crack.

There are sinister forces at work here — forces that operate under the guise of concerned parents and coaches.

The intention of this column is not to point fingers at any one coach, parent, player or athletic program. The intention is to toss out issues and stir up constructive debate.

This column contains no remedies for the issues it raises. It contains evidence, it is hoped, that will incite those in power to take an introspective look at high school athletics.

SCENE ONE: Sally plays basketball on her middle school team. She's a very talented player. Varsity basketball coaches from both the public and the private high school regularly attend her games. Both coaches have made it known they'd like very much for Sally to attend their school.

Both high school coaches spend time talking to Sally's parents about the benefits of their school.

"Our basketball program has produced many college players," the private school coach tells the parents. "If she comes here, I can guarantee her a college scholarship."

Said the public school coach: "The reason the private school team wins all the time is that they come here and steal all of our players. I think it is disgusting to have to put this kind of pressure on Sally. But I feel that if I don't, we'll keep losing kids to the private school."

Sally, meanwhile, has become increasingly popular among her friends at school. Because of all the attention, she has become somewhat of a celebrity. Consequently, Sally's ego has grown disproportionate to her ability. This begins to cause problems for her, her coach, teammates and family.

FINALLY, SALLY'S parents decide it would be best if their daughter attends the private school. Sally cries because all of her friends go to public school.

Sally is miserable at the private school and is unproductive during basketball practice. The coach benches her until she's ready to contribute.

Sally's parents sit in the stands wondering why their daughter isn't playing. They argue with the private school coach and eventually pull Sally out of the school.

After losing a season of eligibility, Sally is ready to resume her basketball career.

The problem is Sally's two-year sabbatical has made her a stranger on the public school team. Girls whom she played with at middle school have grown and improved and are now stars on this team. Sally doesn't fit in.

Sally's basketball career is shot. Forget about the scholarship.

These kinds of things are happening right now in Observer & Eccentric land.

SCENE TWO: Coach Jones has won five consecutive league championships, two state titles and has coached 250 more wins than he has losses.

His team will not win the league title this year, and Jones can hear the grumbling in the stands.

"He's lost it. . . Why isn't he playing so-and-so. . . The kids don't respect him. . . His offense is totally archaic. . . He's got to go."

After a particularly galling loss, a parent steps from the stands to talk to coach Jones.

Apparently, the parent's kid didn't play much during the game. The coach and the parent exchange heated words.

Coach Jones resigns the next day. The team is still looking for a replacement.

SCENE THREE: Coach Doe has had the best team in the area for nearly 15 years. The area rankings always list the team No. 1. The team rarely loses league contests.

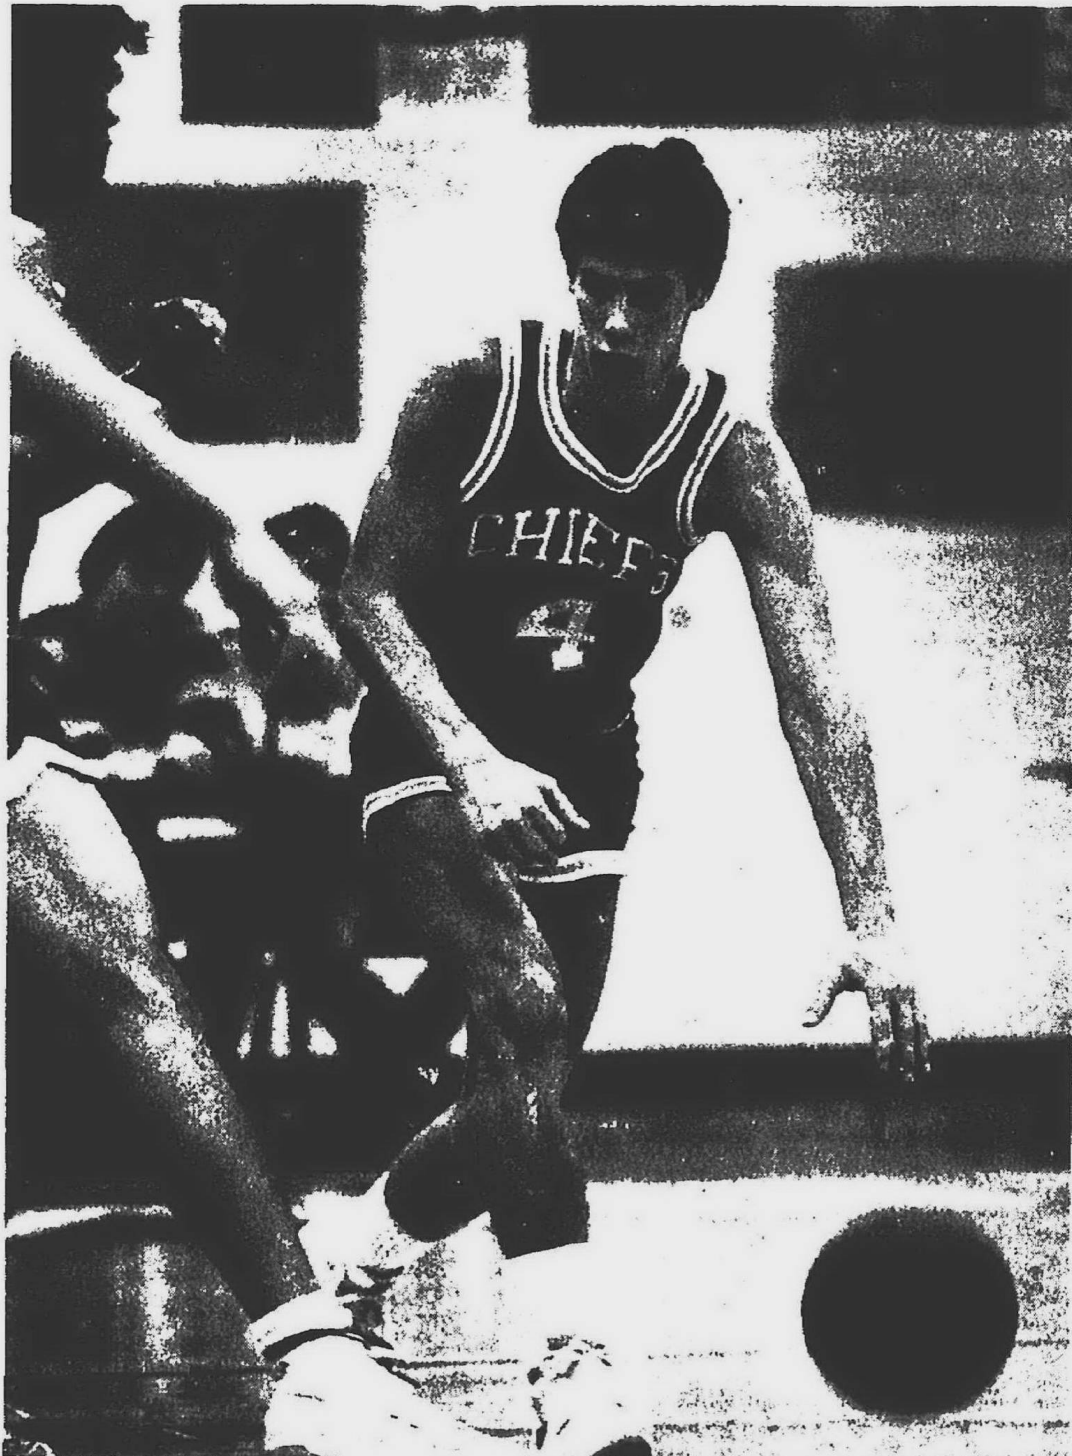

Coach Smith's team, also very good, plays in a neighboring region. Smith repeatedly requests games against Coach Doe's team. Coach Doe steadfastly refuses.

Coach Doe's athletic director, in an off-the-record statement to the press, confides that Doe is obsessed with his win-loss record and will not jeopardize it against Smith's team.

More and more, good teams shy away from scheduling good teams. Lost is the sports axiom that it is more productive to lose against the best than beat the worst.

THIS SPACE does not permit any more scenes, although there are a good many to discuss — like the basketball player who quit the team because he was ashamed of the way his father carried on in the stands.

Nevertheless, recruiting at the middle school level is a reality. Overbearing, power-hungry, know-it-all parents are forcing good coaches and players out of the game. Some coaches do pad their schedules with powder-puff games to maintain win streaks and winning percentages. The luster of high school sports is fading.

Western wins spike tourney

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

Walled Lake Western stole the show at the second annual Plymouth Salem Invitational Volleyball Tournament Saturday, and the Garden City Cougars could just kick themselves.

Western, in a heart-stopping championship match, defeated Dearborn 1-15, 17-15, 15-12 to take the title. Garden City could do no more than sit and watch, wondering how things might have been.

Garden City had Western down and all-but-out in the semifinal match. The Cougars won the first game against the eventual champs in a breeze, 15-1. But GC let down and Western rallied to a 15-9 win in game two.

Despite a heroic effort by GC's Missy Ward, Western prevailed in the deciding game, 15-13.

"It seems like when we take the first game easy, we have trouble in the second game," Garden City coach Tom Teeters said. "We let down and lose our consistency."

Still, the Cougars commanded more respect from the 23 competing coaches than any other team. Three Cougars — Ward, Denise Kokowicz and Nikki Stubbs — were selected to the all-tournament team by a vote of the coaches.

Ward, named the tourney's most valuable player, took control of the net at various times throughout the day.

In the deciding game against Walled Lake Western, Ward singlehandedly brought her team into contention. GC fell behind 7-3, but four ace spikes by Ward quickly tied the game.

With Ward, Kokowicz, Stubbs, Mary Hebert and Marla Evans doing a large share of the work, GC assumed leads of 9-7, then 13-11. Western, led by the strong net play of both Pam Roselle and Dawn Andrews, scored the last four points in a row to win the match.

WESTERN BARELY made it out of its pool. Dearborn, Ladywood and Western each posted 6-2 records in pool play. Dearborn was the first team to advance based on total points scored. Western and Ladywood played each other in pool and split their two games. Western, though, scored more points than Ladywood and advanced.

Ladywood coach Mike O'Toole was incensed by the ruling, although it was clearly stated in the tournament rules that total points in head-to-head play would be the tie-breaker in that situation.

Dearborn's main obstacle on route to the championship match proved to be Livonia Stevenson. Despite some inspired play by the Spartan's heavy-hitting Kristine Bailey, Dearborn prevailed 15-12, 15-13. In the second game, Stevenson trailed 11-2 before rallying to a 13-13 tie.

Dearborn easily dusted Warren Cousino, 15-8, 15-9, in the semifinals.

Other Observerland players named to the all-tournament team were Bailey from Stevenson, Marie Becker from Redford Union and Jenny Okon from John Glenn.

Chiefs win at the wire

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Tom Niemi wouldn't pass for being a jockey, but the Plymouth Canton basketball coach whipped his towel and prodded his team past rival Plymouth Salem in a battle to the wire Tuesday night, 42-40.

Although the match-up between neighbors at Centennial Educational Park was a bit ragged, just about everyone was standing for the photo finish.

Salem missed sending the game into overtime, failing to capitalize on three consecutive shots in the frantic final seconds.

Canton had to rally for the victory after watching a nine-point halftime lead evaporate. The Rocks, in fact, enjoyed a four-point advantage midway through the final quarter.

"When they (Salem) went ahead I thought our team showed some real poise," said Niemi, whose team is 4-5 in Western Lakes play and 5-7 overall. "We started playing better defense and we worked hard. We made some crucial free throws and came up with some clutch baskets."

BALL-HAWKING GUARDS Roger Trice and Tyrone Reeves led the stretch run.

A steal and layup by Reeves put Canton back ahead, 39-38, with 2:38 remaining.

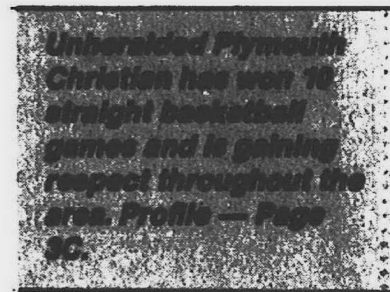

Trice then scooped up a Salem turnover and flew in for a bucket (despite a goaltend by Salem's Mike Hale) with 1:35 left, making the count, 41-38.

Salem, however, pulled within one on a pair of Bryan Kearis free throws with 1:12 to go.

Canton then milked the clock down to 31 seconds before Joel Mies was fouled.

The senior point-guard made one of two free throws to put the Chiefs up by two.

Mies then tied up Kearis with 17 seconds left, but the jump ball arrow pointed Salem's way.

The Rocks' starting center, 6-foot-7 Tom D'Angelo then put up an off-balance shot just inside the free throw line with eight seconds left. Antonio Diaz, at 6-8, then missed a tip. Smith, anchoring himself inside, picked up the rebound, but couldn't get enough muscle on his shot.

TIME THEN EXPIRED as players from both teams scrambled for the floor for the loose ball.

Coach Bob Brodie and his flu and injury-ridden team may have hit Rock bottom with the defeat. Salem, which has lost five of its last six, fell to 6-6 overall. And although D'Angelo returned to the lineup after a bout with the flu, Brodie got more bad news when team leader Paul Makara caught the bug and missed the game. (Canton's Matt LeVesque was also out).

"We're trying to bounce back," Brodie said. "We've just got to fight through this and come back, but it always hurts to lose to your neighbor."

Salem got a game-high 19 points from Hale, a 6-3 junior. Smith was next best with eight.

"In the first half we didn't execute," said Brodie. "Canton's hard, pressure defense took us out of our offense. Our guards couldn't get past 24 or 25 feet.

A PLYMOUTH HIGH SCHOOL FLASHBACK

On October 4, 1963, with 3 conference games left to go, the Plymouth football team defeated Redford Union 26-7 to maintain 1st place in the Suburban Six League. Coach Mike Hoben's team was out in front early in the game due to superb offensive playing of fullback Dave Agnew. 4 Interceptions by Plymouth hurt Redford Union. The closing touchdown came on a seven yard dash by the Rock's left halfback Roger Toby.

Unbeaten Plymouth Christian gains respect

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

After last Friday night, Observerland could boast but two undefeated basketball teams: Wayne Memorial and Farmington Harrison.

Umm, make that three undefeated teams.

Plymouth Christian Academy is used to such oversights — not totally appreciative or insensitive to them, but used to them.

The Academy — located on Joy Road in the shadows of the Centennial Educational Park which houses Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem high schools — has a total enrollment of 175 students and is listed as a Class D high school by the Michigan High School Athletic Association.

The exploits of its athletic programs are, for the most part, anonymous.

The 1986 Plymouth Christian boys basketball team is altering things a bit.

FIRST OF all, it is winning games: nine straight going into Tuesday night's clash with Southfield Christian.

Second, the team is on top of the Michigan Independent Activities Association. Third, the team plays an exciting, up-tempo game which has caught the fancy of the small-but-growing band of Plymouth Christian fans. Fourth, the team has two sets of brothers that can flat-out play.

"We have never stressed winning on the scoreboard," said Jeff Cook, coach of the Eagles. "We stressed being successful and we defined success as being the best you can be. But, we found that by just giving their best shot, the people were not too concerned with winning and losing. We had to strike a balance."

"You are a success if you give 100 percent effort. If you do that, the win-loss column should reflect that, as well. So we've altered our goals. No. 1 is to be successful and No. 2 is to win. Ideally, the two will come together."

THE TWO have come together nicely for the Eagles thus far this season.

In 1984, the Eagles posted a 5-15 record. The same nucleus of young men posted a 13-7 record last year.

"Really, we're not doing a lot of things differently than we have in the past," said Cook. "The difference is the kids. They're more mature, they've been in the system four or five years — really, that's been the difference. They're bigger and stronger, and their basketball IQ is such that they are able to comprehend and do more things that are needed to win games."

THE NUCLEUS:
• Rod Windle is the senior captain and floor leader of the club. He came to the Academy from Fort Wayne, Ind., as a sophomore and labored through that 5-15 season two years ago. He is the team's second-leading scorer and top assist man this year. His speed also keys the team's fastbreak and pressing defense.

• PAT MCCARTHY is the team's leading scorer, averaging better than 17 points a game. A junior, he is a flashy player, both offensively and defensively. Arguably, he is the Eagle's most talented player. He's also quite an all-around athlete. He played soccer and golf at the school. Two years ago, he won his age group at the Observer & Eccentric Golf Tournament.

• Steve McCarthy, Pat's older brother, is the team's inside muscle. At 6-2, he plays center and is the team's top rebounder. He, too, was a part of the 5-15 season. He left the Academy to attend Ann Arbor Gabriel Richard, but returned midway through last school year.

• Dave Cadaret and Steve Windle are the team's role players. Cadaret, a senior, has been with the Academy since seventh grade. He is the team's defensive standout. Windle, a junior, has a knack for turning loose balls on the court into quick baskets. Cook calls him the team's garbage man. He typifies the team's hard-nosed, scrappy style of play.

• Andy Stephens is the team's sixth man. He is 6-2 and takes some of the rebounding load off Steve McCarthy. He can also be a factor offensively.

"THIS TEAM blends together real well," Cook said. "They are all good kids and they work real hard."

Did someone mention a fast-paced style of play? The Eagles average 80 offensive possessions a game. The high school norm, in this area, is between 60 and 70. The Eagles' press forces teams to turn the ball over nearly 40 percent of the time. Plymouth Christian, on the other hand, has turned the ball over just 25 percent of the time.

Cook began to sense something special in his team just prior to the holiday break in December. In successive games, the Eagles knocked off perennial MIAA champs Southfield Christian on the road and Class D power Troy Zion Christian at home.

"It's kind of hard because people in the past considered it a joke when they played us," he said. "It was like an automatic win. Now, everyone gets geared up to play us. Everyone wants to be the first team to beat us. We have to get better every day. We cannot rest on what we've done in the past."

COOK IS cautiously pleased with the 9-0 start. He knows many of the MIAA teams are licking their chops in anticipation of a rematch — many teams feel that Plymouth Christian's 9-0 start is somewhat of a fluke.

"After we beat Troy Zion, I read in the Troy paper that our small floor stifled their offense. Funny, it never bothered them before when they used to press us to death," said Cook.

"But, we're only half-way through the season," he added. "We could easily lose tomorrow. But I'm pleased with the way the kids are handling this. Today's practice was just as intense as day one. It has not gone to their heads because they know we still have a long way to go. We have to prove we deserve the respect."

Brothers Jim and Pat McCarthy have been two of the driving forces behind Plymouth Christian's basketball success this season. They are one of two sets of brothers on the team.

Salem tankers fall to flu bug, River Rats

A flu-ridden Plymouth Salem swim team traveled to Ann Arbor Huron Tuesday night. Huron did nothing to make the Rocks feel better, beating them 111-61.

Rick Cummings garnered the only two firsts for Salem, winning both the 50-yard freestyle (23.5) and the 100 freestyle (51.7).

Paul South placed second in the 200 free (1:58.6), Jamie Dunn took second in the 100 butterfly (59.2) and David Miller placed second in the 100 backstroke (1:00.9).

The Rocks, 5-2 on the season, will host Western Lakes-leading Livonia Stevenson tonight.

Caddies become Evans Scholars

Chick Evans college scholarship have been awarded to 28 outstanding Michigan caddies, including two young women, by the Golf Association of Michigan. The awards, part of the national Evans Scholars program administered by the Western Golf Association, were announced recently by newly elected GAM President Jere Gillette. Fourteen Evans Scholars will attend the University of Michigan, and 14 more will be enrolled at Michigan State. Each Evans grant covers full tuition and housing in the Evans Chapter House on campus, an estimated value of more than $10,000 if renewed for four years. The coeducational chapters at MSU and Michigan are two of the 14 houses operated by the Evans program in the Midwest. There are some 860 Evans Scholars attending college under the national program, and more than 200 new award winners have been announced this winter. The caddie-scholarship concept was initiated by famed amateur golfer Chick Evans in 1930, and more than 4,300 former caddies have graduated as Evans Scholars since that time. The scholarships were awarded on a competitive basis considering caddie record, academic standing in high school and the need for financial aid. Support for the Evans program comes from contributions of more than 100,000 golfers, including more than $15,000 in Michigan. AREA AWARD WINNERS University of Michigan: Michelle Fox, 17, Detroit, Bishop Borgess High School, Joel Koviak, 17, Farmington Hills, North Farmington High, Stephen Pigula, 17, Farmington Hills, North Farmington High, Ronald Randall, 17, Livonia, Stevenson High. Michigan State University: Marc Baron, 18, Detroit, Bishop Borgess High, Robert Gagne, 17, Detroit, Bishop Borgess High, David Johnson, 17, Livonia, Catholic Central High, Joseph Smith, 17, Farmington Hills, Harrison High.

Hubenschmidt lifts CC

Freshman Jim Hubenschmidt enjoyed the best night of his young hockey career Saturday, scoring four goals and adding one assist in Catholic Central's 10-0 triumph over Birmingham Brother Rice in a Michigan Metro game at the Redford Arena. CC led 1-0 after one period, but then Hubenschmidt exploded for all four of his goals in a seven-goal CC surge in the middle period. Walt Bartels and Eric Kapelanski contributed two goals each for the winners, now 13-3 overall. Chris Peters and Jamie Atkinson also scored for the Shamrocks, who increased their West Division record to 8-2, just one point behind first place Trenton (8-1-1). Chris Hohnick had three assists on the night, with teammates Pete Barnes and Ted Miloch getting two each. "The first period was up and down, but they (Rice) couldn't get off a shot," said CC coach John Gumbleton, whose team outshot the Warriors, 39-11.

hockey

Shasky hurt by Gophers trouble

What can you say? What can you say to someone who's just had his lifelong dream crushed? What can you ask a gentleman and a scholar who, through no act of his own, may forever be linked with a sour, sordid affair?

If life is a series of peaks and valleys, then John Shasky and his University of Minnesota basketball teammates are at rock bottom. If the Good Lord means to test us with one challenge after another throughout our lives, then John Shasky now faces one that dwarfs even his 7-foot frame.

Shasky, a Birmingham Brother Rice grad and Bloomfield Hills native, is a co-captain for the Gophers. A week ago they were peaking. A win over University of Michigan, at the time unbeaten, got them started. They followed with victories over Michigan State and, last Thursday, at Wisconsin.

After three straight Big Ten losses, Minnesota had charged back to win three straight. Now came a game at cellar-dweller Northwestern, followed by consecutive home games against Ohio State, Indiana and Iowa. And the Gophers were unbeaten at home.

SO THEY had reason to be jubilant as they boarded their flight back from Wisconsin last Friday. Their euphoria crash-dived when the police arrived.

Three of Shasky's teammates — Mitch Lee, George Williams and Kevin Smith — were arrested and charged with sexual assault.

The next day, Gopher coach Jim Dutcher resigned. Sunday's game at Northwestern was forfeited. The balance of the season was in question.

Shasky who, like many college players hoping for a good enough season to induce a pro contract, was watching his career crumble.

Not because of injury. Certainly not because of his own failings. Not even due to the sometimes cruel, fickle fate produced by the bounce of a basketball.

Because of an alleged crime, as distasteful an act as man can commit.

"It was a big shock," he said of Friday morning's events. "I had no idea what was coming."

"From the perspective of our season, it really has been devastating. We were on a roll, we were looking to go on a streak with our next three games at home. We haven't lost here yet."

MINNESOTA IS 13-7 overall and 3-4 in the Big Ten, where winning's never easy. As Shasky said, "Being a senior, I know what it takes to win in the Big Ten."

Now it will be that much harder. Shasky knows that, too.

"I'm going to have to shoulder more responsibility," he said. "I'm going to have to work that much harder. Other teams were keying on me inside already. Now it's going to be that much more difficult." At 7-feet tall, Shasky is one of the dominant pivot players in the conference. He's done his part this season for Minnesota, averaging 15.8 points and 7.6 rebounds, connecting on 53.5 percent of his floor shots and 63.4 percent of his free throws.

But impressive individual statistics won't salvage this season. As a team captain, Shasky has an even bigger responsibility, particularly now that the Gopher ship has no captain.

The resignation of Dutcher, who coached at Eastern Michigan previously, was not a complete surprise to Shasky. "By the time everything came around, I thought he would (resign)," he said. "But I thought he would wait until the end of the season."

Dutcher didn't wait because of the administration's decision to forfeit Sunday's game at Northwestern. According to Shasky, Dutcher did not want to punish the rest of the players for what three were accused of. He had planned to resign at season's end.

Assistant coach Jimmy Williams has assumed Dutcher's position. Two Minnesota football players have joined the team, so, together with a player redshirted for the season, the Gophers have 11 players for practice.

THE SEASON will continue, starting tonight against Ohio State. How it progresses depends on how well the remaining Gophers can adjust to losing three players, to a new coach and to the sometimes vicious fan reaction around the league. Ask MSU's Scott Skiles (arrested three times on drunk driving and possession of narcotics charges) about the latter.

"I'll try to lead by example, try to be positive and work hard in practice," Shasky said. "Probably the best attitude we can take is to approach it as a challenge."

But Shasky is a realist, too: "It's going to be difficult. There's going to be a lot of distractions. We're going to have to overcome all of that."

It seems unfair Shasky must pay the price for another's act. Whether it proves to be unfortunate as well depends on what the Gophers do during the remainder of the season.

For them, wins and losses won't be the only yardstick to measure this season. Not now. How they conduct themselves, in the face of such adversity, will be.

Dameron is king of the Salem mat

The Plymouth Salem wrestling team limped back into town late Saturday night after a grueling day in Mount Clemens.

The Rocks placed a disappointing sixth at the star-studded 17-team Mount Clemens Invitational. Hazel Park won the tourney with 159 points. Redford Catholic Central was second with 149 and Warren Woods Tower was third with 146. Salem scored 100 1/2.

"We had kids out sick, kids out hurt — we're a little banged up," said a tired-sounding Salem coach Ron Krueger.

One Rock grappler came home triumphant. Dave Dameron established himself as the most productive Salem wrestler in the team's history.

The 126-pound senior won four matches Saturday, including a stunning pin in the championship match over Flint Northern's Anthony Crater who came into the match 34-0 on the year.

DAMERON IS 33-0 on the year and holds three team records. He has the most career wins (132, passing Jeff Brown's total of 128), he has amassed more team points than anyone (800, Brown's total was 728), and he is tied with John Beaudoin for most career pins (63).

wrestling

"He has broken some long, long standing records here," Krueger said.

Dave's brother Dennis also came home a victor. He won the championship at 112 despite being seeded third behind two state-ranked foes. He out-pointed Warren Woods Tower's Mike Dinverno 6-0 in the finals.

Jamie Wochuk placed second at 185, losing to Portage Central's Jim Jackson 6-5. Kevin Freeman placed sixth at 132.

Salem will resume its Western Lakes dual meet season tonight at Westland John Glenn.

PLY. CHRIST. 33, SOUTH. CHRIST. 71: Four Eagles reached double figures in scoring, led by Pat McCarthy's 30 points, to keep Plymouth Christian unbeaten after 10 games and 6-0 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Association (MIAA).

McCarthy also tallied 11 rebounds, seven assists and four steals. The Eagles pulled away from a one-point lead after three quarters (39-38) to a lopsided win with a 24-13 final-period onslaught.

Andy Stephens added 18 points and 15 rebounds for Plymouth Christian, with Rod Windle adding 11 and Jim McCarthy 10. Southfield Christian (6-3 in the MIAA) got 24 points from Chip Huber.

Canton tops Rocks; 10 in row for Eagles

"But in the second half we did a nice job of adjusting. We talked about isolating Hale because he wasn't getting the ball. We certainly had the height advantage."

MIES, who directed Canton's offense, scored 11 of his team-high 16 points in the first half, while Trice, a 6-foot sophomore, came on in the second half, scoring 10 of his 12.

"I was proud of the way we came back after being down," Niemi said. "We got our concentration back and our intensity, although I thought we played with a lot of intensity throughout the game."

"What happened (in the third quarter) is that we missed some real easy shots and we had some defensive lapses. We allowed them to get shots inside, particularly Hale.

"We also got some tremendous bench

Producer struggled to get film made

By Dan Greenberg
special writer

THOSE OF US who live in the world where the decimal point is way over near the left have romanticized images of the heavy hitters that produce megabuck movies. It is refreshing and encouraging to meet a film writer-director-producer whose sensitivity, literacy and humanism rise above the megabuck psychosis.

Bud Yorkin was in town recently promoting his new movie, "Twice in a Lifetime." At a press luncheon at Dimitri's of Southfield, Yorkin spoke at great and interesting length about the problems independent filmmakers face.

"Everybody's going for the brass ring. Spielberg did the business a disservice. Now everyone thinks a movie has to gross a hundred million. If it doesn't appear to have that potential, no one will touch it," he said.

Yorkin described the great difficulties he encountered with the production of "Twice in a Lifetime," which premiered last November in New York and moved into major, nationwide distribution, opening Friday in 600 theaters around the country, the Detroit area included.

"I WAS attracted to the material because it looked at divorce in a very honest way. Colin Welland's screenplay avoids all the easy outs," he said. Yorkin began working with Welland on the screenplay in 1983, thinking its quality would attract studio backing. "No one would touch it," Yorkin commented wryly, "because it was a movie for people over 25. I didn't think so, so I went ahead and signed Gene Hackman, Ellen Burstyn and Ann-Margaret with a 'pay or play' agreement. I thought some studio backing would be forthcoming with a cast like that."

Considering Yorkin's credits, it's hard to imagine him having so much difficulty with a property he was convinced would make a great movie. Yorkin, who started in the '50s in television, is a four-time Emmy Award winner. He worked on Fred Astaire specials, the Jack Benny shows, Martin and Lewis and the Tennessee Ernie Ford show.

He directed Frank Sinatra in "Come Blow Your Horn" and also directed "Divorce American Style" and "Start the Revolution Without Me." He was executive producer on "Blade Runner" and produced William Friedkin's "Deal of the Century."

In spite of those credits and his great success in partnership with Norman Lear on "All in the Family," "Sanford and Son," "Maude," "Good Times" and many other projects, Yorkin was disappointed that even with such a stellar cast no one would back him. "But, I believed so strongly in this project that I hocked all my negatives for $7 1/2 million and produced the film myself," he said.

PRINCIPAL photography began July 15, 1984, and was completed

Bud Yorkin, who produced and directed "Twice in a Lifetime," believes a film's worth isn't measured in megabucks.

Sept. 13 in and around Seattle with the Washington State Film Commission cooperating tremendously. Local citizens got into the act as extras for crowd scenes and eventually got accustomed to so many celebrities in town. Footage was shot at Seattle Mariner and Seattle Seahawk games. "By that time they were so used to us that they just ignored us in the stands," Yorkin said.

Yorkin described the filming: "We pretty much shot the film in sequence, which is unusual, because I wanted to build on ensemble acting." In "Twice in a Lifetime" the characters do grow and mature tremendously as they work together. One of the film's great attractions is the stunningly realistic and evocative interplay of family life.

Most notable in the cast is Ellen Burstyn as Kate Mackenzie, whose husband, Harry (Gene Hackman), is leaving her for another woman after 30 years of marriage. Kate must rebuild her life if she is to survive and Burstyn gives the season's most exciting performance as an individual who gathers her inner strength to fend off disaster, to survive and rebuild her life.

Burstyn gained 20 pounds, intentionally, before principal photography began and then lost it gradually as filming progressed. As her character Kate rebuilds her life, Burstyn the actress graphically, as well as psychologically, restructures herself. That devotion to craft is the hallmark of this fine production.

Burstyn is really Edna Rae Gillooly from Detroit, where she attended Cass Technical High School. Although her first performance was as a Cass Tech cheerleader, she has the distinction of winning an Oscar and a Tony in the same year, 1975, when she won an Antoinette Perry Award for her Broadway performance in "Same Time, Next Year" and an Oscar for "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore."

WHEN THE FILM was completed, Yorkin was stunned to find that none of the studios would distribute it.

"But I was so convinced 'Twice in a Lifetime' was a good movie, that I decided to distribute it myself," he said. "Besides, the clock was running on the $7 1/2 million. That's a lot of interest."

Yorkin began screening the film at festivals and on college campuses, getting good reviews and good response.

"We put together our own distribution network — and that means doing the trailers, everything, all yourself. I'm distributing it for about 15 percent, 10 percent where the studios charge 35 percent, but I don't make so many long-distance calls," he said.

"When the film opened last November in New York, I took a full page in the New York Times for $5 grand, and that's pretty scary when you only have one theater to support that expense."

"But the reviews were good and word of mouth has built the film's following so that we're now in about 100 theaters and, as of the 24th, will be in 600 theaters around the country. That's major distribution so that the cable and VCR people can look at the big grosses and feel secure they've got a financial winner."

Yorkin was asked about his next project.

"I've been working on a script about prisons for a long time. There's got to be something wrong with the whole system when you hear what goes on. I'd like to take a look at the problem, in a comic way, from a different viewpoint than the usual prison film."

"Twice in a Lifetime" opened in the Detroit area to at least one rave review (the Observer & Eccentric). It is an exciting example of film art produced by someone with talent and the courage of his convictions — Bud Yorkin.

Timing is too slow in production 'Table Manners'

By Barbara Michals
special writer

British playwright Alan Ayckbourn chronicles the foibles and absurdities of middle-class life with wit and style. The Farmington Players current production of Ayckbourn's "Table Manners" captures the wit, but the style is disappointingly flat.

While some of the individual characterizations are satisfying, director Sandra Sutherland does not always get her players to interact convinc-

review

ly. Comic timing is ponderous at key moments, especially on curtain lines.

Like a traditional comedy of manners, "Table Manners" takes place during a weekend in the country, the action set entirely around a family dining room table. Although the larder is inexplicably bare (guests were, after all, expected, albeit not this many), this family devours one another at each meal, then complains of emotional indigestion.

Annie (Sue Rogers) is the single sister, bogged down with an invalid mother and a dead-end relationship with the local veterinarian (Bobb Locks). Feeling used and manipulated, Annie longs to be free of her family's well-meaning but inept prodding. Rogers gives Annie a breezy naturalness that works exceedingly well.

BOB SMITHAM is well-cast as Reg, Annie's easy-going but self-centered brother. Reg's main concern is feeding his stomach, while he pretty much ignores his unhappy wife and the growing family conflicts. Smitham has a casual, understated delivery that suits the role admirably.

As played by Paula Myers, Reg's wife Sarah is a British version of Lucy of the "Peanuts" comic strip. She is a fussybudget and busybody, domineering and shrill. Myers is generally convincing, but her early speeches are so shrill!

5 women named Young Artist winners

Oakway Symphony Orchestra named five women as winners in the 1985-86 Young Artist Competition held recently at Madonna College in Livonia.

The musicians, three instrumentalists and two vocalists, will be presented in concert with the Oakway Symphony under the direction of its conductor, Francesco DiBlasi, at 3 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 23, at Harrison High School in Farmington Hills.

First-place winner is Margaret Parkins, a Birmingham cellist, who is a master's degree student at the State University of New York at Stony Brook. Parkins holds a bachelor of music degree from the Eastman School of Music. At the concert, she will be awarded $600 from the Arts Foundation of Michigan.

Andrea Azar, violinist, won the second award of $400, also given by the Arts Foundation of Michigan. She is a student of Camilla Wicks at the University of Michigan School of Music.

THIRD PRIZE of $200, presented by the Oakway Symphony Society, was awarded to clarinetist Jane N. Carl, a U-M student who studies with Fred Ormand.

For the first time this year, a special vocal award from an anonymous donor has been named in the amount of $300 in memory of Neida Clausen DiBlasi. This award went to soprano Marie L. Radcliffe of Berkley. Radcliffe is a student of Carolyn Grimes at Wayne State University.

A second vocal award of $200, named in memory of Edward Bielaczyc and presented by Adele Barrett Bielaczyc, went to April McNeely of Mount Clemens, also a soprano. McNeely is a student of Alice Engstrom of Birmingham, who for 20 years was chairwoman of the voice department at Oakland University.

Concert tickets may be obtained at the door or by calling 355-9280. General admission is $7, with senior citizen and student tickets $4.

Film series revisits India

The Detroit Institute of Arts World Adventure Series will present "India Revisited" at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 2, in the DIA auditorium.

Tickets at $4 may be bought at the art institute ticket office and at the door. For reservations, call 832-2730 any day during business hours.

The Grandparents Ticket Plan offers one ticket at regular price and up to four tickets at $1 each for grandchildren to age 18.

Frank Klicar, veteran travel-cinematographer, will narrate his own adventure into the mysteries of Bombay, Delhi and Calcutta, as well as rarely visited coastal and interior temples, palaces and villages. Throughout this work, Klicar documents India's entry into the modern world while it retains its ancient religious heritage.

Play's timing is too slow

 and her accent so nearly incomprehensible that she sees her getting used to.

While Sarah sees her motherhood as a glorious martyrdom, she clashes head-on with Ruth, Annie and Reg's sister. A no-nonsense female executive, Ruth has neither time nor inclination for motherhood or her husband Norman. Joyce Sponcia gives Ruth insufficient animation and drive; she is no match for Myers' steamroller. Also, some squinting would make Ruth's extreme myopia more credible. The catalyst for the entire weekend is Norman, Ruth's pockish husband. Phil Hadley is inconsistent in the part. At times, he strikes just the right note of jaunty insouciance, while at other times he is just too bland, despite his winning grin. Locks is effective as Tom, the shy, rather dense veterinarian. Even the broadcast of hints about heating up his long-time relationship with Annie seem to bounce right off his shoulders.

Golden Feather Bar-B-Q: It's worth the wait

Your traveling taster visits area eateries and rates them on a 100-point scale. Up to 30 points are awarded for ambiance, which includes general atmosphere and service; 55 points for food, and 15 points for price/value rating. A total count of 55 points or less indicates a restaurant is not recommended; 56-74 points signify from passing to good; 75-89 points designate very good with some extraordinary features, and 90-100 points show that a very special dining experience awaits you.

GOLDEN FEATHER BAR-B-Q, 29633 Ford Road, Garden City (421-2114) is perhaps the best-kept secret in Garden City. A neighborhood restaurant that does not take reservations, this friendly, casual spot really does have the right touch. There's nothing fancy here, except the food, but plan to wait unless you go before 5 or 5:30 p.m. Waiting means standing at the bar (if there is room), at the front door or — possibly — outside in the parking lot. The tables have vinyl table covers, and the simple interior which includes exposed brick walls is attractive though smoky. No credit cards are accepted. GENERAL ATMOSPHERE — 15 points maximum. Points awarded — 11.

Service is what you would expect: friendly, neighborly, sometimes a bit easy-going. We asked to have our water refilled on several occasions. With barbecue, water pitchers on the tables would be a nice addition. The young, enthusiastic servers are anxious to help, but when one of the hostesses cleared our table, she left dirty napkins and empty drink glasses. Dinner moves right along and takes about an hour to an hour and a quarter. SERVICE — 15 points maximum. Points awarded — 11.

The drinks seemed a bit weak, but on the other hand, $1.75 for a premium liquor is quite reasonable. The onion rings ($1.80) and the mushroom rings ($1.95) were both delicious. Neither one was at all greasy, and in both appetizers the taste of the vegetables was enhanced, not at all hindered, by the light batter. The mushrooms were especially juicy. Ingredients were fresh and portions large, and this proved to be true for all the other dishes served. Our only disappointment was that the garlic bread served with the entrees did not have enough garlic flavor. DRINKS, APPETIZERS AND BREAD — 10 points maximum. Points awarded — 8.

a counting for taste

Dinners offer a choice of cole slaw or salad. Again, the fresh vegetable ingredients were obvious in the taste, but the dressing on the slaw was heavy. The garden salad was large but had no special appeal. SALAD — 5 points maximum. Points awarded — 3.

If you enjoy barbecue, you'll be in heaven here. The chicken ($7.95 for a whole chicken) was succulent, and the sauce delicate enough to permit us to enjoy both the chicken's taste and the barbecue flavor. The ribs ($10.50 for a slab or $11.95 for a whole slab and extras for two) were also juicy, with excellent seasoning. Again, complementing the meat. The extra barbecue sauce we requested was a little stronger in flavor but wonderful on either chicken or ribs. The shrimp was served with a light batter that, once more, allowed us to taste the shrimp. You also receive your choice of potatoes, but we would have preferred a bit of additional seasoning on the home fries. ENTREE, VEGETABLES AND GARNISHES — 30 points maximum. Points awarded — 27.

We felt a bit let down by the desserts. The rice pudding was flavorful but too thick, and we missed the raisins — a personal preference. The strawberry shortcake had frozen fruit and a very large pile of whipped cream which overwhelmed any shortcake there might have been. DESSERT AND COFFEE — 10 points maximum. Points awarded — 6.

At $25 per couple, including tip, this is a real value. Portions are very large and extremely well prepared, and almost all have fresh ingredients. The appetizers are also especially worthwhile at the price. PRICE/VALUE — 15 points maximum. Points awarded — 14.

A Counting for Taste — 100 points maximum. Total points awarded: 89. Golden Feather Bar-B-Q is an ideal place for young and old alike. The obvious caring of the owners makes it worth the wait, but wear comfortable shoes because you'll be on your feet for a while.

Hugh Gallagher

"The Long Hot Summer" (1958), 3:30 p.m. Saturday on Ch. 4. Originally 117 minutes. TV time slot: 150 minutes. This film based on several William Faulkner short stories was recently turned into a television mini-series to exploit the hubba-hubba popularity of Don Johnson. It wasn't half bad but you might find the Paul Newman-Joanne Woodward-Orson Welles version more appealing. Though television today is more explicit than the commercial movies of the '50s, those movies created sensuality out of more subtle material. The real-life electricity between the Newmans is more evident in this, their first collaboration, than in any of their other films. Rating: $3.

"Carrie" (1976), 8 p.m. Wednesday on Ch. 50. Originally 97 minutes. TV time slot: 120 minutes. This is a strange film. Brian DePalma has built a career on slavish imitation of Alfred Hitchcock without the master's restraint or fine tuned and ironic sense of humor. DePalma believes the more gore the better. Here he works from a novel of that other goremeister, Stephen King. The results are, in the end, predictable. But there is a good, human-scale and emotionally involving movie underneath all the cheap thrills involving telekinesis. Sissy Spacek gives a superb performance as an inhibited high school student, the butt of jokes by other classmates and the target for all the frustrations of a religious fanatic mother (Piper Laurie). The scenes at high school are truthful views of the cruelty of adolescence and the film has many good performances — Nancy Allen as the most vicious of the teen-agers, John Travolta as her dim-wit boyfriend, Amy Irving as her go-along-with-anything friend and, best of all, William Katt as the sensitive high school hunk doing Robert Redford as a boy to the hilt. But all of this goes for naught when the special effects department takes over. Flying knives and hands from graves are poor substitutes for resolving good stories. This is a sad example of how movies can trivialize good work. Worth seeing, but look behind the thrills. Rating: $3.

"The Conversation" (1974), 1 Wednesday night on Channel 50.

Gold medal architect is star of Redstone team

JERRY ZOLYNSKY/staff photographer

By Maureen Aitken
special writer

Don't tell Leo Shea "they don't make good old, dependable buildings the way they use to," Shea, president of Livonia's Louis G. Redstone and Associates Inc., will strongly disagree.

And he should know. The recent recipient of the Detroit Chapter of American Institute of Architects Gold Medal of excellence in architecture, Shea has demonstrated an ability to develop outstanding, functional architecture while fulfilling the needs of a variety of clients.

Cited as an exemplary leader in the field, Shea knows that a successful architect doesn't hoard his own talent.

"I've been in the profession for a number of years and I've felt that I have an obligation to the profession to offer whatever I could in the way of knowledge to others coming along," he said.

A NATIVE of Oak Park, Ill., Shea lives in Bloomfield Township with his wife, Patty, and two of their five children. He graduated from New York's Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in time for the Korean War where he spent two years as an engineer platoon leader with the 1st Marine Division.

He worked for a Chicago architectural firm for eight years and received a master's in business administration from the University of Chicago before joining Redstone and Associates in 1961. He is an active member of the AIA, an author, lecturer, arts connoisseur and president of the Birmingham-Bloomfield Art Association.

Architecture to Shea means more than one man doing a good job; it is the result of the company's talents and attention to minute detail.

Shea's view of architecture has worked for Redstone and Associates, which has been responsible for projects such as the University Liggett School's Creative and Performing Arts addition in Grosse Pointe, the Grand Traverse Tower near Traverse City, the hospital at Jackson Prison and Somerset Mall in Troy.

REDSTONE and Associates designed the projects to fit the individual needs of its clients, and tried to add some of its own architectural preferences, such as using natural lighting, said Shea.

"There is always a balance of function, aesthetics and cost," Shea said. "All attempt to be as functional and logical as possible."

Greg Vassi, assistant administrator at Grosse Pointe's Cottage Hospital, said the hospital chose Redstone and Associates because of its expertise in dealing with hospital problems.

"They are known for building parking decks in restricted areas. That is a very specific problem," Vassi said. "We also chose them based on their stature in the Grosse Pointe community."

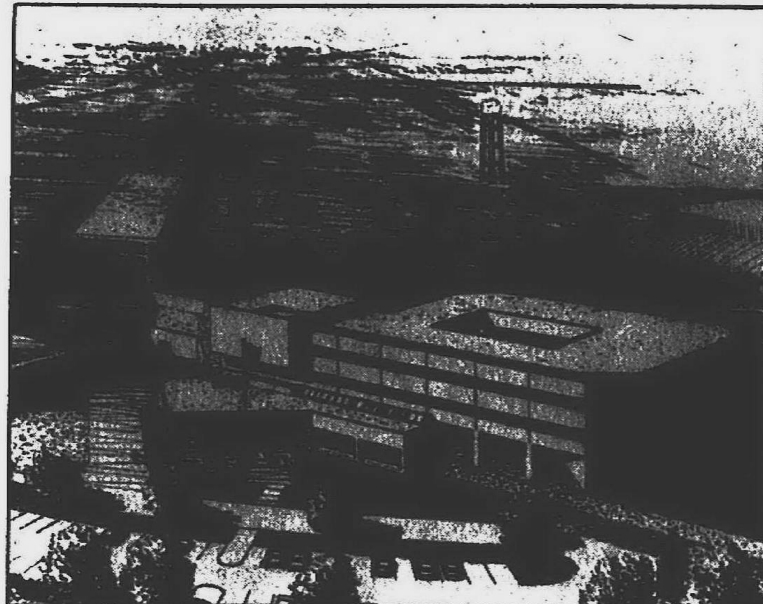

SHEA EXPLAINED that while older buildings overflowed with elaborate fixtures, and were unrestricted by finances, post-modernism has used more economical materials.

Glass and mirror is more energy efficient and less costly. Metal studs have replaced wood, and dry wall has replaced plaster. Shea said the new materials produce substantial buildings that will last.

He cited the GM Tech Center as an outstanding collection of buildings. Wayne State University's McGregor Conference Center's design is excellent, Shea said, because it's both functional and aesthetically pleasing. These buildings are products of Detroit's highly competitive architectural market, which follows the changing needs of its clients, he said.

Despite the high cost of building, Detroit architecture firms have enjoyed a resurgence of development.

ALTHOUGH clients might not be

KEN COLES/photographer

Shea has demonstrated an ability to develop outstanding, functional architecture, as well as an ability to fulfill the needs of his varying clients. The hospital at Jackson Prison presented an unusual security problem for designers. The maximum security prison cuts through the middle of the building which serves both employees and inmates. The hospital will be ready for occupancy in about 60 days, according to Redstone officials.

able to afford buildings like those at Cranbrook, Shea said, the post-modernist influence has allowed for the integration of art and architecture in a new breed of buildings, such as the recent Redstone projects. This trend gives new buildings a form of aesthetic quality, he said.

Shea also said that occasionally an architect's plan evolves into a new concept. Somerset Mall is an example of an architect taking an original building design, adding a restaurant in the middle and using available sunlight to set a mood.

"They have concerts on Sunday afternoons, they have art exhibits. It's really turned into a community center of a certain type . . . it's a very pleasant place to be," Shea said.

Shea predicts several changes in architecture, including increased efficiency and computerization.

As for Redstone and Associates, Shea said the firm will continue to develop high-quality projects.

"I would like clients to be so pleased that they come back and ask us to do the next project," he said. "And about 80 percent of the time, we succeed."

Leo Shea, president of Livonia's Louis G. Redstone and Associates, believes that architecture is a balance of function, aesthetics and cost.

KEN COLES/photographer

Shea's view of architecture has worked for Redstone Associates, which is responsible for projects such as the Grand Traverse Tower currently being built and slated for completion in May. Shea was the principal in charge on the condominium tower and conference center, which was designed to take advantage of the northern Michigan vistas and natural lighting.

Stumbling on the corporate ladder

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

Of the thousands of people who work for corporations, only a few have ever used them as a subject for a novel.

George Lee Walker of Bloomfield Hills did and his novel, "The Chronicles of Doodah," Houghton Mifflin 1985, has received wide national and international attention.

Walker puts a Kafkaesque twist on corporate life with some Orwellian touches. The nameless protagonist is a speech writer for an unnamed corporation, located in "a suburb of a large, decaying city."

Walker was with American Motors for two years, writing speeches for the chairman and president and did the same thing at Ford for three years. He also wrote speeches for President Gerald Ford, Sen. Robert P. Griffin, and Gov. William Millikin.

Without a name, Walker's central character who tells his story first person becomes, as the author intended, a 20th century "Everyman," registering his impressions of corporate life — the silence, the mystery, the insidious fear that is pervasive at all levels. He is tested, tried, examined and finally approved.

WALKER said, "I tried to capture the mood of secrecy and mystery that often prevails in a corporate setting — most people don't like to tell you what they're up to and this promotes fear. Some corporations are more relaxed and easy going than the two I worked for. I had three years in the Navy and Ford was more military than the Navy."

Walker, however, was quick to quash impressions that he used specific people as models for his characters.

"There will be a lot of people in Detroit who won't like this book. I don't think everybody in a corporation is bad or corrupt," and then as his voice picked up intensity, he said, "And this book is definitely not about Iacocca. I have very great respect for Iacocca. He's tough — very demanding. He sets his sights for himself very high. He's not a fun guy to work for. He's a workaholic. His office is stacked with big, black notebooks which he is (always) studying. He wants things done immediately.

"The basic idea of a novel based on a corporation in which something strange would be happening in the basement offices started in 1966-67."

He said he was hired as a speech writer for American Motors while his employer, the Free Press was on strike.

"For some reason I would find myself in the basement with all those closed doors," he said adding that the same thing happened to him later at Ford and his curiosity was peaked.

Walker said he hopes that corporate people who read the book will "feel a sense of verification" about their feelings, their need to talk with someone about them, but not daring to go beyond prefatory remarks about the weather.

HE SAID, "I hope it will be a beneficial warning to yuppies — you may get your BMW and all the stuff, but you're gonna pay the price."

With this book well-launched — an alternate Book-of-the-Month Club selection and two other book club selections, movie rights under discussion, Italian rights sold and others pending — Walker has finished a second is starting a third.

His second, with the working title, "Night of the Toy Soldiers," he said, "Ranges from the suburbs to the corporation."

Nan Talese, editor in chief of Houghton Mifflin, liked the original manuscript, so no rewriting was needed and only a few words were changed, he said.

The book is dedicated to Walker's wife, Edith, an English teacher at Royal Oak Kimball High School. They have three children, David, a senior at Oakland University, Cindy, a speech pathologist in Exeter, N.H., and Suzy, a senior at CCS-College of Art and Design.

Walker, a 1950 graduate of University of Michigan, was a member of the Detroit Free Press staff which won a Pulitzer Prize for its coverage of the Detroit riots in 1967.

"The Chronicles of Doodah," by George Lee Walker, Houghton Mifflin, 1985, $16.95.

Pastels do the trick on watercolor, pencil goofs

By David Messing
special writer

I had so much fun writing about tips last week and this week that I decided to have one article a month totally devoted to this subject.

If you love watercolors or colored pencils, you better buy some pastels. Why? Because pastels are excellent for watercolor repairs and soft backgrounds behind colored-pencil renderings.

If you make a mistake in watercolor you can usually add pastels over the problem area and rub the color into the tooth of the paper. If you do it well, nobody will even know.

Colored pencils can produce beautiful results ranging from expressionistic to photographic realism. But on the big scale, pencils seem too small and even prismacolor sticks show the grain of the paper or board.

artifacts

YOU CAN, however, lay in beautiful soft backgrounds with pastels. All you do is take a wad of paper towel and stroke it with a pastel stick. When you have a good amount of pastel dust on the towel, gently rub it into the background of your picture. The pastel rubs smoothly into the background showing no tooth and does not stick to the waxy surface of the colored pencil.

WHILE I'M on the subject of pastels, with this same technique you can rub the colored paper towel over torn paper cloud patterns, mountain ranges or horizon lines. This tip will give the airbrushed look to your work and most would never guess that it was done with pastel.

Here's a little tip I read in a magazine. To help you start the ink flow when you work with pen and ink, try premoistened tissues. When needed, simply pull one out and touch your pen to the tissue. This will immediately start the ink to flow.

Did you know you can greatly extend the life of your pencils if you use a little hand sharpener? Any other sharpeners will grind the points to long, sharp points which really is a waste of any pencil.

I recommend a little hand sharpener by Rogers and it cost about 75 cents. It has two extra blades, will produce short, sharp points and will last for years.

IF YOU like to design logos or symbols, do all your sketches on graph paper. The horizontal and vertical lines help you stay consistent and allow all your creative energy to go directly onto the paper without the hesitation and correction of a straight edge.

My favorite is a little glossy-covered pad called Grid by Pentallac. My pad is about seven inches by seven inches and costs $2.95.

If you like sketching people, here are a few tips that are easy to remember and will help you correctly proportion even a loose drawing.

The size of the hand is equal to the length of the collar bone, the height of the sternum and the height of the shoulder blade. From the heel of the hand to the middle finger tip is equal to the distance from the chin to the hairline... except on me. You see, I'm not losing my hair, it's just that my hands are getting shorter.

There is always one eye width between the eyes. If people appear to have close eyes, usually you will note that their eyes are very narrow. If their eyes appear widely set, then they probably have very wide eyes. So the rule is rarely broken.

The ears should fall somewhere between the line of the eyebrows and the bottom of the nose.

HERE'S A good one: Many drawings of children look like "E.T." or little old people. Why? Because the whole face, including the eyebrows, is at or under the half line of the head. As little children approach adulthood, the half line gradually moves toward the line of the eyes.

The body of an adult is approximately 7 1/2 to eight "heads" high. Which is about 3 1/4 to four heads for the upper torso including the head and 3 1/4 to four heads for the legs.

Please mail or call in your tips. If you are bashful, just tell me and I won't print your name. I'll just mention the city. Share your knowledge.

This is another in a series of lessons on art and drawing by special columnist David Messing.

He has taught for 10 years and operates two art stores, Art Store and More, 16338 Middlebelt, Livonia, and 265 N. Main, Plymouth.

Messing encourages questions and comments from readers. You may call him at 522-6311, write to him at his store or in care of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 33203 Grand River, Farmington, Mich. 48024.

Trip the self-timer for vacation shots

Did you get back from Yosemite last summer only to discover that in the shot that friendly stranger took of you and your companion in front of Yosemite Falls your head was chopped off and the falls are at a hard-to-believe 45-degree angle?

Or did you just return from Europe to find that the trusty tour guide had the shakes and all of the pictures of the two of you in front of the famous landmarks are blurry?

Lesson to be learned? You can't always trust your tour guide or that eager-to-help stranger to get the shots you want.

Solution? Take the pictures yourself with that important, but seldom used feature on your camera, the self-timer.

You'll need a tripod or solid ledge to do the trick. (Don't think you'll have to travel with a cumbersome tripod just for self-timer shots, you should have one with you anyway.)

MOUNT YOUR camera on the tripod and place your companion(s) in the viewfinder. A vertical composition usually works best. Be sure to allow room in the picture for yourself, and if you're taller, leave plenty of space at the top so that you don't lose your head in the final result.

As always, check your background to

include subjects you want and eliminate things you don't. That distant mountain range makes a fine backdrop so make sure your aperture is small enough to capture it in the depth-of-field. If you want to zero-in on just the two of you, use a wide aperture to blur an unwanted background.

Once your composition and exposure are all set, you're ready to go. Set your self-timer, trip the shutter and start moving into position. You'll normally have 10 seconds to get yourself situated. Count down the seconds silently so that you'll know just when to spread that big smile across your face. You'll hear and see the shutter trip so you'll know when the shot is over.

Don't trust your photography to the potential errors and miscalculations of a stranger. Proper use of your camera's self-timer will guarantee you'll have the shots you want.

This picture of Monte Nagler and his new bride, Mickey, was taken on their Hawaiian honeymoon with the aid of a self-timer. The frame was filled and there is just enough foliage to give the flavor of the tropics.

Take the time to make friends, smell the roses

Many of our readers beginning to pull their suitcases out of the closet and prepare to take off for warmer climates.

If you can afford the time to drive you will have a wonderful experience. For years we drove south and savored visiting with the residents of various states, really prying into what made their area "tick."

That is really the way to get the most from the travel experience. Don't forget this technique of savoring areas, whether in our country or on another continent, is the way to receive the maximum travel dividends.

Here's a sample ice-breaker, "Good afternoon, I am from Michigan and have been enjoying the beauty of your community and the rural areas of your state. It shows a fine character, just like reading the expression on a face."

If the farmhouses or houses in a small community look cared for, be sure and make a comment about the quality of their community as you make needed purchases.

You will be surprised at the human interest stories which you will hear from strangers who are proud of their community. You haven't really traveled until you take time to invest in knowing the viewpoint of casual strangers you meet while traveling.

MANY YEARS ago when I became a widow, I entered a travel office and said, "I want a ticket with many stops down to earth

Alice Burlingame

to go around the world and meet the citizens of many countries."

Golly it was a good experience. I took time to remark about the beauty that I saw. I noticed how people built their houses. In Norway they have such long winters with lots of darkness, so they introduce color on the exterior of their homes and in the decor within.

I remember in New Zealand, a housewife and home gardener said to me, "Won't you come to tea?" So at the appointed hour we walked across her lovely lawn and had tea at a circular tea table, and as we sat under a spreading tree, enjoying the treat we talked about beauty, the relationship of color to form in ending up with a good pattern of flowers. My, those cookies were delicious. Twice I have been to New Zealand to re-taste the beauty of my favorite country in the world. Of course, I would not sell the U.S. short.

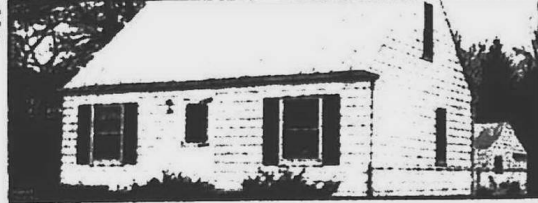

You can see if I whizzed through New Zealand in a plane or car, I would miss that feeling of the heart of this beautiful country.
