Railroad crossing at Holbrook examined

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Flashing light signals and roadway gates appear to be in the future of the railroad crossing at Holbrook Street in Plymouth but neither the city engineer nor the Chessie Railroad System is excited about the prospect.

The Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) called for the safety improvements after an on-site inspection of the crossing last summer. That decision was affirmed by the manager of the railroad traffic safety section last month following a conference involving all of the principals.

High average daily traffic counts there — nearly 700 vehicles — plus more than 20 trains rolling through every day prompted the call for the automatic warning devices.

Currently, yellow warning signs can be found about 50 yards either side of the tracks. Also, stop signs are mounted on non-mechanical signs almost on top of the tracks in each direction.

On-street parking is presently prohibited at all times about 150 feet south of the tracks on northbound Holbrook in Old Village.

THERE IS NO specific time frame in which the warning devices must be installed, said William Teszlewicz, manager of the railroad traffic safety section. However, court action is possible if progress is determined to be too slow.

The city and the railroad, according to state law, are jointly responsible for the improvements, generally on an even-cost basis, Teszlewicz added.

Holbrook costs are estimated at $125,000.

"We're not opposed to safety. What we're saying is put your money where the most critical needs are and somewhere down the line, this street (Holbrook) becomes the number-one project," said W.B. Vander Veer, a division manager for the Chessie System.

Chessie is told to make improvements at about 120 crossings in Michigan every year, Vander Veer estimated. "The state has a great habit to say do all of 'em.

"Signal design work is a very technical field. Our people are running one or two years behind what we consider an on-time schedule.

"THERE'S ALWAYS more safety recommendations than money available, than we can get designs for, than we can get federal funding for and get material for," Vander Veer said.

City Engineer Ken West said he doesn't anticipate that the city would appeal the state's findings on Holbrook. However, that doesn't mean that he believes the crossing is unsafe.

"In my professional opinion, it is not a dangerous crossing if drivers observe rules of the road. Rules of the road require you to stop at a stop sign," West said.

Federal funds are available to pay for 90 percent of improvements but the wait is often long, West said. It took two years to get funding for the Farmer crossing, he added.

West also said he wonders whether state transportation officials are fully aware of Plymouth's position as a maior railroad junction and the special circumstances that accompany that position.

MORE CROSSING gates would certainly affect traffic movements in town, West said.

"It very definitely would tie up traffic more and that is a concern of ours." Crossing gates can now be found on the two streets directly west of Holbrook — Mill and Starkweather.

West speculated that if crossing gates were installed on Holbrook, traffic would pick up on York one block to the east in an effort to avoid delays. York, like Holbrook, currently has stop signs at the tracks and no mechanical warning devices, West said.

West said he would recommend against barricading Holbrook in lieu of installing automatic warning devices due to the large volume of traffic on the street.

Five accidents have occurred at the Holbrook crossing since September 1980, Teszlewicz reported. None of those involved fatal injuries, West said.

Students learn about good taste in chef's culinary arts classes

By Dennis Coffman
staff writer

"Food fights" at the Gary household in Northville aren't exactly the kind found in the movie "Animal House" where the students fling their lunch at one another.

But because Carey Gary is a culinary arts teacher in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, and husband Jon is an adult education food service teacher in Wayne-Westland Community Schools, dinner time must seem like a battle for the palate.

Carey Gary, a teacher at Plymouth Salem High School, was named Culinary Arts Teacher of the Year by the Michigan Restaurant Association in January.

Jon Gary won the same award in 1981.

"We're a two-teacher family," said Carey Gary. "But he's a better cook than I am."

AS IF THAT weren't enough, the Garys also operate a catering business. "It all works out pretty well," said Carey Gary.

Her job at Salem provides very fast feedback (so to speak). "The students come back and they make sure you know they have obtained good-paying jobs. They make sure I know about it," said Gary.

She said the food service field is an area where her high school students can look forward with near certainty of obtaining employment.

"We've taken polls five years after a class graduates, and they've always been able to find some type of food service job. The jobs are out there. They can probably find a living."

PROBABLY the biggest appeal of the culinary arts program in the vocational education department is its relevancy to the real world. Students quickly, and profitably, put principles into practice.

"It depends on the student. He can be more or less sophisticated," said Gary. "A lot of them go on to college or junior college. About 50 percent of the culinary arts students are interested in going on with the field. They seem interested and are not just passing time. They have aspirations in the culinary field."

Gary began teaching with the Plymouth-Canton district 14 years ago as a home economics teacher. A graduate of Northern Michigan University, Gary began her career as a sewing teacher.

(National Vocational Education Week, "A Choice With A Future," is being observed throughout the U.S. Feb. 9-15. In connection with the observance, the Canton and Plymouth Observer newspapers offer a special "People" feature on Carey Gary, culinary arts instructor, plus a report on a special careers program held last week at the Centennial Educational Park. To share information on vocational education to the community at-large, Clarice Killian from the Chief Connection at Plymouth Canton High and Cathy Lainho from the Rock Shop at Plymouth Salem High, with help from students, have set up a display in the Detroit Edison office window at Main and Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth. Killian and Lainho both are vocational technicians who work as assistant instructors to Dan Chrenko at Canton and Byron Richardson at Salem.)

She remembers the day she got the job in Plymouth-Canton. "I walked into Salem principal Bill Brown's office to ask for a job. It happened that the food service teacher had just turned in her resignation."

SHE SAID getting students training on the right equipment is important. "You must get into a school district with the facilities for teaching food service," she said. "Not every district has it. In some districts, you have to fight for financing."

Sometimes the equipment comes from local businesses. When Wendy's opened a restaurant in the K mart Canton store last year, it looked to Gary for help in staffing.

To reward the school for its help, Wendy's gave Gary a check for $256 (the number of variations on a Wendy's burger) to help finance the culinary arts program.

"When I went in to pick up the check, I told them it would go toward the $2,000 needed to buy a new grill because our's was not state-of-the-art."

"BUT THEY said, just let them know what kind of grill we wanted, and they'd let us have it. It's nice that industry is willing to help."

In addition to being lead food service teacher at Salem, Gary also is the vocational cooperative training coordinator.

"They always get outstanding students from us. The students do not let me down. I'm very pleased with the way things have worked out. The students are a big portion of the people they employ and they provide good student working hours," said Gary.

She also supervises the restaurant "laboratory," the in-school Lunch Box restaurant where students can plan and prepare food, take inventory and wait on customers.

Besides conducting two vocational education classes with 20 students each, coordinating the co-op program and running the Lunchbox, Gary also helps with the drama class' Dinner Theatre and organizes banquets for organizations such as the North Central Association, the yearly retirement dinner for Plymouth-Canton school employees, and the Kiwanis Travelogue dinner.

HER STUDENTS have won awards in the Michigan Restaurant Association Culinary Salon Food Preparation Contest.

Others have gone on to advanced training at such top culinary arts educational institutions as the Culinary Institute of Hyde Park, New York.

Gary gets help in all this from Bonnie Kline, one of 11 vocational technicians who serve 16 educational areas in the two Plymouth-Canton high schools.

"Without her, it would all be very difficult," said Gary.

Formula for future work success equals preparation, opportunity

By Doug Funke
staff writer

If knowledge is power, then knowledge of oneself is one of the most powerful tools an individual can use while pursuing success in the world of work.

High school students at the Centennial Educational Park last week heard that and other pearls of wisdom from three Ford Motor Co. executives as part of a continuing focus on careers.

Even though the talks were billed as oriented to high-tech opportunities, the advice turned out to be appropriate for any career choice.

"Unless you win the lottery, you'll have to work 30 or 40 years," said Ken Faber, manager of central placement services at Ford. "Why not do some work now? Why not start thinking about it?"

"How do you develop focus? You talk to people. You talk to yourself," Faber continued.

"There are careers that revolve around liking people. There are careers that revolve around liking things. What did you like and what didn't you like in school? Think about that for your future."

CAREER PREPARATION and advancement aren't always without forks in the road.

"Rigidity is not for you and me now," Faber said. "I was a flop. I was supposed to be an engineer. I went from engineering to business. When I dropped out of engineering, I felt like a failure."

Positive attitude is all important, Faber said. So is the willingness to persevere.

"Companies do put up barriers. They are requirements and standards. Some of you see them as insurmountable barriers. Others see them as challenges.

"If you see barriers as a challenge, your goal can be attained. If you see them as barriers, you will back off, back off and back off and where will you roost? I don't know."

Kathy Allen, a finance administrator, keyed on several of Faber's remarks.

"Know yourself. Look at yourself, your likes, dislikes, what you're good at. Ask others, but make sure they'll be honest with you.

"A lifetime is really a long time to be in the wrong career," she said. "A little bit of time and a little bit of thought makes a big difference."

Allen cited the keen competition for entry-level jobs and elaborated a few ways to get a little edge.

"IF YOU go the academic way, a good grade point average is important," she said.

Job experience in an individual's field of study is also a big plus. "It tells an employer you're really interested."

"Get into clubs, social and related to your major. Take leadership roles," Allen advised.

"Have a commitment. Changing a major 15 times, taking five, six or seven years getting a degree sometimes tells employers you don't have a commitment."

The interview should be more than a one-way street.

"Your interview starts with preparation," Allen said. "Know what they do. What kind of questions can I ask to show I'm interested? When you come in, be enthusiastic. Don't just sit there. Make it happen. Have a nice blend of talking and interviewing."

"Fifty percent of the interview is you," Faber said. "Start thinking now about your accomplishments. Accomplishments sell. Don't tell me what you were supposed to do. Tell me what you did."

RUDY DORNSEIFER, a manager of technical planning and information management, touched on the need to at least be comfortable with computers in the years ahead.

"The ability to be a computer user will be important for all careers," he said. "You don't have to be an expert, but you shouldn't be intimidated, either."

The focus on careers at CEP is coordinated by June Swartz, a counselor, and Sherry Frazier, media specialist.

"What we are trying to do is develop an on-going focus on career programs that will provide students with information," Swartz said. "Also, it's a real attempt to link the business community with schools on an on-going basis."

Cantonite dies after car crash

A 45-year-old Canton man died Tuesday morning after the car that he was driving hit a patch of ice and flipped over into a ravine on N. Territorial Road in Plymouth Township, police reported.

Paul Mitchell was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia, said Detective Frank Burton of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department.

"He was en route home from work in Whitmore Lake on an area of N. Territorial just east of Ridge, he struck a patch of ice causing him to lose control and it overturned," Burton said.

The sheriff's department was notified of the incident at about 8:30 a.m. Mitchell's vehicle, partially hidden and upside down in a ravine, was discovered by a passing motorist, Burton said.

There were no witnesses to the accident.

School district funds rise with enrollment

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

Higher-than-expected enrollment in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools is contributing to a $1.48 million boost in state aid to the district.

"We are happy to report we are in better condition than we were in June, and it is due to state aid increases," reported Ray Hoedel, assistant superintendent for business, at the Monday meeting of the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

HOEDEL REPORTED that the initial projected 1985-86 budget (nearly $48.7 million) will grow to almost $50.2 million by June 30, the end of the fiscal year.

Hoedel said the aid boost continues a trend. "The last couple of years, state aid for the district has been good."

Most additional funds will be used to pay for increases in health insurance, professional development budgeting, salaries for five plant employees mistakenly omitted from the initial bud-et, and pay increases to transportation employees due to incorrect low projections of necessary employee work hours, Hoedel told the board.

With about two-thirds of the extra state aid going toward these items, the remaining $465,000 will be added to the June 30 fund balance, boosting it to $3.4 million as stated in the 1985-86 revised budget accepted Monday by the board.

The state aid boost followed a K-12 enrollment increase of 176 students.

Reflecting the board's happiness with the aid boost, Trustee Dean Swartzwelder said: "The K-through-12ers are moving right along and bringing in that state money."

The enrollment increase boosted per-student state aid by $676,000, Hoedel told the board, while the district gained $131,000 for reducing average kindergarten and first-grade class size to the state-recommended 25-to-1 student-to-teacher ratio.

State-awarded project funds contributed $604,000 to the total $1.48 million aid increase. Highest funding among these projects was $310,000 for Article III, intended to boost student achievement in reading and mathematics.

Under this project, students receive one-to-one and small group instruction. Money is used to pay for certified staff, instruction aids and learning materials.

Noting one benefit of having an anticipated $3.4 million fund balance at the end of the fiscal year, Hoedel said, "We don't anticipate any requests to cut back substantially."

Saying the board is following a generally conservative path, he said: "This next year we're not going to try to expand," based on current projections.

Ironically, Hoedel said the district lost students overall. The count of adult education students dropped 226 this year, from 596 to 370, he said. While the number of K-12 students rose by 176, it is an increase in this area that sparks a state-aid boost, he noted.

Enrollment projections for the near future are "cautiously optimistic," Hoedel said, indicating further stability. "We'll maintain or possibly grow some."

Tanger pupils honor retiree

By W.W. Edgar
staff writer

With mixed emotions Helen Kelly, one of the longest employed teachers in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, bid goodbye to the students at Tanger Elementary Tuesday afternoon and told more than 300 children seated on the gym floor that she was sorry to leave.

She had been at Tanger only two years, but she had spent more than a quarter of a century at Starkweather Elementary and became known as one of the more popular teachers.

Before she took her place in the middle of the youngsters Mrs. Kelly became real serious about her leaving.

"If the country allowed President Reagan to remain in the White House when he reached 75 years of age, I don't know why I have to leave and I am only 69." That brought a smile from the teachers and friends who had carried cards to bid her farewell.

DURING HER preliminary remarks she explained that she didn't become a school teacher until she had a family. She is the mother of four children.

"I was at Starkweather for 30 years before it was closed and then I came over to Tanger and I have enjoyed every minute I have been here. And I only wish I could stay."

As she bid goodbye she let it be known that she had no plans for the future.

"I'll do anything I can to help people," she said, "just as I have tried to help out as a teacher. I'll work with anyone, who isn't connected with drugs or alcohol."

"I'll do anything that people want me to do, but it must be helpful work."

THEN SHE picked up a few of the farewell cards that the pupils had prepared and nodded, as a sign that it is things like this work she impresses on students.

Born in Toledo, she graduated from Scott High School and like many of the Ohioans coming to Michigan likes to think of the rivalry between the Buckeyes and Wolverines. But Mrs. Kelly proudly wore a University of Michigan headpiece all through the farewell exercise and loved it.

She now lives in Ann Arbor and didn't let the bad weather bother her as she drove to Tanger every school day.

"I certainly enjoyed it here," she repeated, "and would like to stay but the state rules are different and now I have to say goodbye."

It was a rather sad farewell as the youngsters, each of whom had a Valentine in their hands, passed by and wished her well. The farewell celebration was the part of a drive to raise funds to be used to help others — a job she enjoyed.

"I'll be back to see you some day," she said, "and you can bet I never will forget you."

Riegle attacks Reagan's budget plan in deficit speech

By Mary Kieomic
staff writer

While the economy is on the upswing, the United States must contend with its trade problem and national deficit, said U.S. Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich., when speaking in Plymouth this week.

Speaking in the Plymouth Hilton Inn at the Livonia Chamber of Commerce's legislative luncheon Monday, Riegle said the country's trade deficit totaled $148.5 billion in 1985. The United States became a debtor nation six months ago, and will be the largest debtor nation in the world at the end of another six months, he said.

"Servicing that debt is going to be an enormous burden on this country," said Riegle, who serves on the Senate Budget Committee. "All of this is in addition to our domestic debt. This trade problem is not getting better, it's getting worse."

"By and large this administration doesn't understand this problem, but it's getting worse by the day."

The trade problem started in the auto industry, among others, but now has extended into industries in all 50 states, Riegle said.

"It's not just cars and trucks and heavy industry," the senator said. "There are going to have to be limits at some point."

"It's not just cars and trucks and heavy industry," the senator said. "There are going to have to be limits at some point."

RIEGLER ATTACKED President Reagan's proposed budget, which he said calls for a 13 percent ($35 billion) increase for defense.

To pay for this boost, Reagan wants to make cuts in urban development action grants and education. These reductions in education are so large that they suggest up to 100,000 students in Michigan who have been getting aid may have to do without it, according to Riegle. This could hurt the United States' efforts to keep pace with foreign competitors, he said.

Body of woman found near home

A Plymouth Township woman reported missing last Thursday was found dead Sunday in a vacant field near her mobile home.

Hazel L. Lindley, 75, died from hypothermia (subnormal body temperature) and complications from Alzheimer's Disease (diminished physical and mental capacity), according to a spokeswoman for the Wayne County Medical Examiner.

Mrs. Lindley reportedly was last seen alive at about noon last Thursday walking away from her mobile home. She lived with a granddaughter at the Plymouth Hills Mobile Court at Ridge and N. Territorial and at times with another family member in Livonia.

Mrs. Lindley was discovered at about 2 p.m. Sunday by a snowmobiler a quarter of a mile from her trailer, said Carl Berry, Plymouth Township police chief. There were no signs of foul play, Berry added.

Funeral services were conducted yesterday (Wednesday) in the Harry J. Will Funeral Home in Livonia. The Rev. Jerry B. Stroud officiated. Burial was at Grand Lawn Cemetery, Detroit.

Mrs. Lindley is survived by nine grandchildren.

carrier of the month Plymouth

Joseph Pawloszka, 13, son of Rosemary and Eugene Pawloszka of Plymouth, has been named Carrier of the Month by the Plymouth Observer. Joseph, a seventh grader at West Middle School, carries an A-minus average and his favorite subjects are math and social studies. A member of the Colony Swim Club, his hobbies include basketball, soccer and swimming. He has earned first-place trophies in soccer and basketball, and blue ribbons in swimming. His future plans include attending college, possibly to study to become a meteorologist.

"We're getting in place a new economic foundation," he said.

"There's a lot to feel good about today."

Although energy crisis concerns apparently have been "pushed off into the future," another energy crunch can happen, Riegle said.

"I think we ought to continue to try to conserve energy any way we can," he said.

Riegle attacks Reagan's budget plan in deficit speech

By Mary Klemic
staff writer

While the economy is on the upswing, the United States must contend with its trade problem and national deficit, said U.S. Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich., when speaking in Plymouth this week.

Speaking in the Plymouth Hilton Inn at the Livonia Chamber of Commerce's legislative luncheon Monday, Riegle said the country's trade deficit totaled $148.5 billion in 1985. The United States became a debtor nation six months ago, and will be the largest debtor nation in the world at the end of another six months, he said.

"Servicing that debt is going to be an enormous burden on this country," said Riegle, who serves on the Senate Budget Committee. "All of this is in addition to our domestic debt. This trade problem is not getting better, it's getting worse."

"By and large this administration doesn't understand this problem, but it's getting worse by the day."

The trade problem started in the auto industry, among others, but now has extended into industries in all 50 states, Riegle said.

"It's not just cars and trucks and heavy industry," the senator said. "There are going to have to be limits at some point."

RIEGLE ATTACKED President Reagan's proposed budget, which he said calls for a 12 percent ($35 billion) increase for defense.

To pay for this boost, Reagan wants to make cuts in urban development action grants and education. These reductions in education are so large that they suggest up to 100,000 students in Michigan who have been getting aid may have to do without it, according to Riegle. This could hurt the United States' efforts to keep pace with foreign competitors, he said.

"Japan is going to graduate twice the number of engineers per capita as the United States," Riegle said. "This is not the time to be cutting back in education."

MICHIGAN HAS made "a real surge" over the last three or four years, seeing unemployment go down and tremendous commercial development and revitalization taking place all over the state, Riegle said.

"We're getting in place a new economic foundation," he said. "There's a lot to feel good about today."

Although energy crisis concerns apparently have been "pushed off into the future," another energy crunch can happen, Riegle said.

"I think we ought to continue to try to conserve energy any way we can," he said.

It's official: Lucas for governor

By Teri Banas
staff writer

Wayne County Executive William Lucas attacked Gov. James Blanchard's leadership Wednesday as he announced his candidacy for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in Detroit's Westin Hotel.

Noting it was Abraham Lincoln's birthday, Lucas said his candidacy provides a chance "to make American history." He went on to proclaim: "Let the adventure begin."

Lucas said he would elaborate on issues later in the campaign but yesterday knocked Blanchard and the state on a number of issues including joblessness.

Wayne County's first executive criticized state employment figures as being too low, saying the figures conceal the number of unemployed who have left the state.

He blasted the temporary 38 percent state income tax invoked by the state in 1983, challenged workers' compensation rates, and criticized what he said was a 30 percent increase in government spending.

HE ATTRIBUTED Michigan's economic recovery to the actions of the Reagan Administration which, he said, created nine million jobs and reduced the prime lending rate and inflation.

Lucas said taxes must be reduced and more prisons should be built but he declined to specify how spending could be reduced. He said the answers would come as the campaign progressed.

Generally, he said, more prisons can be built by using government bonding abilities and by "tapping rainy day funds." To reduce government spending, he recommended reducing the services and "reorganizing priorities."

He said he opposed abortion and the death penalty and favored "truth in sentencing" in the courts.

LUCAS SAID he is not in accord with every aspect of national Republican philosophy but said, "I am not running for national office, but local office. I don't have to support every tenet of the national party."

He indicated he could not automatically count on the support of blacks whose votes usually go to Democratic candidates. "I am going to have to work for it," he said.

Appearing on a platform with his wife Evelyn, who held a bouquet of red roses, he pointed with pride to his six children and seven young grandchildren. "They're what the American dream is all about," he said.

Daughter Patricia Lucas Perry, a dentist and mother of two, said the family has supported Lucas' decisions to become a Republican and run for governor because he has "the right stuff." She said Lucas and his family discussed the possibility of running for governor at a family meeting last spring.

PERRY SAID the Lucases are a very close family the members of which all live within 10 minutes of each other.

Yesterday's announcement was attended by a variety of people including media representatives, family, friends, supporters and several persons who wandered into the Westin Hotel ballroom where one of four announcements were made yesterday. Other announcements were made in Grand Rapids, Lansing and Detroit.

Sporting a Blanchard lapel button, Lorenzo Moner, who works as a clerk for the county commission, said he thought Lucas' speech lacked substance.

He said Lucas will have to fill out his platform in order to distinguish himself from the other probably GOP candidates — Oakland County Executive Dan Murphy and Brighton businessman Richard Chrysler.

Canton Township Supervisor James Poole declined to say whether he would support Lucas' candidacy but said he liked Lucas' point about the jobless leaving the state for employment elsewhere.

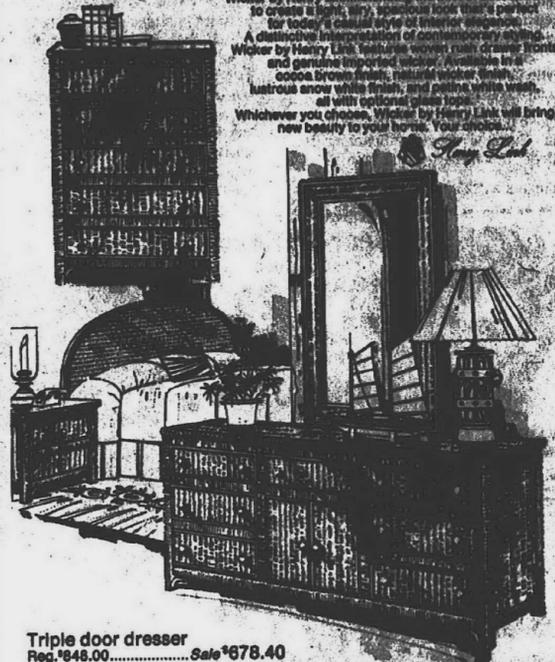

Poole noted that while political groups in western Wayne County appear to be interested in Chrysler's campaign, he believes Lucas will be a frontrunner among western Wayne GOP voters.

Wayne County Executive William Lucas was buoyant yesterday in announcing his candidacy for governor. Lucas said his candidacy provides a chance "to make American history."

Riegle attacks Reagan's budget plan in deficit speech

By Mary Klemic
staff writer

While the economy is on the upswing, the United States must contend with its trade problem and national deficit, said U.S. Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich., when speaking in Plymouth this week.

Speaking in the Plymouth Hilton Inn at the Livonia Chamber of Commerce's legislative luncheon Monday, Riegle said the country's trade deficit totaled $148.5 billion in 1985. The United States became a debtor nation six months ago, and will be the largest debtor nation in the world at the end of another six months, he said.

"Servicing that debt is going to be an

"By and large this administration doesn't understand this problem, but it's getting worse by the day."

The trade problem started in the auto industry, among others, but now has extended into industries in all 50 states, Riegle said.

"It's not just cars and trucks and heavy industry," the senator said. "There are going to have to be limits at some point."

RIEGLER ATTACKED President Reagan's proposed budget, which he said calls for a 12 percent ($35 billion) increase for defense.

To pay for this boost, Reagan wants to make cuts in urban development action grants and education. These reductions in education are so large that they suggest up to 100,000 students in Michigan who have been getting aid may have to do without it, according to Riegle. This could hurt the United States' efforts to keep pace with foreign competitors, he said.

"Japan is going to graduate twice the number of engineers per capita as the United States," Riegle said. "This is not the time to be cutting back in education."

MICHIGAN HAS made "a real surge" over the last three or four years, seeing unemployment go down and tremendous commercial development and revitalization taking place all over the state, Riegle said.

"We're getting in place a new economic foundation," he said.

"There's a lot to feel good about today."

Although energy crisis concerns apparently have been "pushed off into the future," another energy crunch can happen, Riegle said.

"I think we ought to continue to try to conserve energy any way we can," he said.

Body of woman found near home

A Plymouth Township woman reported missing last Thursday was found dead Sunday in a vacant field near her mobile home.

Hazel L. Lindley, 75, died from hypothermia (subnormal body temperature) and complications from Alzheimer's Disease (diminished physical and mental capacity), according to a spokeswoman for the Wayne County Medical Examiner.

Mrs. Lindley reportedly was last seen alive at about noon last Thursday walking away from her mobile home. She lived with a granddaughter at the Plymouth Hills Mobile Court at Ridge and N. Territorial and at times with another family member in Livonia.

Mrs. Lindley was discovered at about 2 p.m. Sunday by a snowmobiler a quarter of a mile from her trailer, said Carl Berry, Plymouth Township police chief. There were no signs of foul play, Berry added.

Funeral services were conducted yesterday (Wednesday) in the Harry J. Will Funeral Home in Livonia. The Rev. Jerry B. Stroud officiated. Burial was at Grand Lawn Cemetery, Detroit.

Mrs. Lindley is survived by nine grandchildren.

It's official: Lucas for governor

By Teri Bence
staff writer

Wayne County Executive William Lucas attacked Gov. James Blanchard's leadership Wednesday as he announced his candidacy for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in Detroit's Westin Hotel.

Noting it was Abraham Lincoln's birthday, Lucas said his candidacy provides a chance "to make American history." He went on to proclaim: "Let the adventure begin."

Lucas said he would elaborate on issues later in the campaign but yesterday knocked Blanchard and the state on a number of issues including joblessness.

Wayne County's first executive criticized state employment figures as being too low, saying the figures conceal the number of unemployed who have left the state.

He blasted the temporary 38 percent state income tax invoked by the state in 1983, challenged workers' compensation rates, and criticized what he said was a 30 percent increase in government spending.

HE ATTRIBUTED Michigan's economic recovery to the actions of the Reagan Administration which, he said, created nine million jobs and reduced the prime lending rate and inflation.

Lucas said taxes must be reduced and more prisons should be built but he declined to specify how spending could be reduced. He said the answers would come as the campaign progressed.

Generally, he said, more prisons can be built by using government bonding abilities and by "tapping rainy day funds." To reduce government spending, he recommended reducing the services and "reorganizing priorities."

He said he opposed abortion and the death penalty and favored "truth in sentencing" in the courts.

LUCAS SAID he is not in accord with every aspect of national Republican philosophy but said, "I am not running for national office, but local office. I don't have to support every tenet of the national party."

He indicated he could not automatically count on the support of blacks whose votes usually go to Democratic candidates. "I am going to have to work for it," he said.

Appearing on a platform with his wife Evelyn, who held a bouquet of red roses, he pointed with pride to his six children and seven young grandchildren. "They're what the American dream is all about," he said.

Daughter Patricia Lucas Perry, a dentist and mother of two, said the family has supported Lucas' decisions to become a Republican and run for governor because he has "the right stuff." She said Lucas and his family discussed the possibility of running for governor at a family meeting last spring.

PERRY SAID the Lucases are a very close family the members of which all live within 10 minutes of each other.

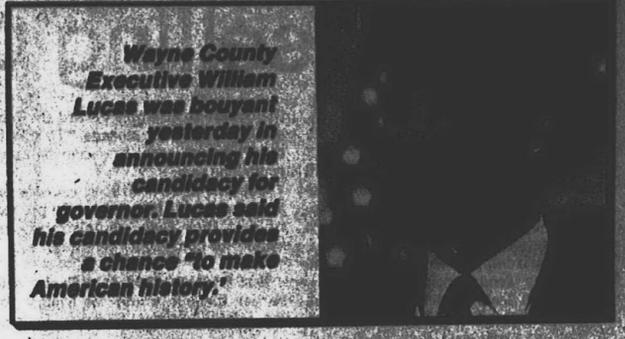

Yesterday's announcement was attended by a variety of people including media representatives, family, friends, supporters and several persons who wandered into the Westin Hotel ballroom where one of four announcements were made yesterday. Other announcements were made in Grand Rapids, Lansing and Detroit.

Sporting a Blanchard lapel button, Lorenzo Moner, who works as a clerk for the county commission, said he thought Lucas' speech lacked substance.

He said Lucas will have to fill out his platform in order to distinguish himself from the other probably GOP candidates — Oakland County Executive Dan Murphy and Brighton businessman Richard Chrysler.

Canton Township Supervisor James Poole declined to say whether he would support Lucas' candidacy but said he liked Lucas' point about the jobless leaving the state for employment elsewhere.

Poole noted that while political groups in western Wayne County appear to be interested in Chrysler's campaign, he believes Lucas will be a frontrunner among western Wayne GOP voters.

Wayne County Executive William Lucas was buoyant yesterday in announcing his candidacy for governor. Lucas said his candidacy provides a chance "to make American history."

School selling part of athletic field to dealership

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

East Middle School will lose a small portion of its athletic field to an adjacent car dealer through a sale approved by the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

The board approved the sale by a 7-0 vote at its Monday meeting.

Richard Scott of Dick Scott Buick on Ann Arbor Road sought purchase of the 31- by 231-foot parcel toward the rear of his property for storage. "To stay in the Plymouth area, I needed the extra room," he said.

The sale price of $12,500 exceeds the appraised value ($10,600) of the property, said Dick Egli, administrative assistant for community relations.

EAST PRINCIPAL Carl Taylor said earlier the sale would "be a plus" for the school district because students would be better controlled by reducing the southern school boundary.

Egli said the board also agreed to the sale because Scott is "very pro-school," citing his support of school activities.

The size of the athletic field at East Middle School "is really more than we need," Egli said. "Scott was asking for a relatively small piece of it."

The feeling among board members, Egli said, is that money from the sale may go into buildings and grounds, although this is undetermined.

Scott has agreed to pay the cost of relocating the soccer field from the parcel of land, and put up security and screening fences around the property. "We'll do whatever they need done,"

Scott said. "We'll put some trees around it so it's not an eyesore."

Scott still needs to obtain industrial zoning for the property, currently zoned single-family residential.

ALSO AT THE Monday meeting, the board rejected by 7-0 a Plymouth-Canton Education Association (PCEA) grievance concerning further instruction for teachers.

PCEA President Carole Rundio said the teacher's union brought the grievance "because we feel they're adding five days to our contract."

E.J. McClendon, board treasurer, maintained the five-day instruction sessions are voluntary, saying "no discipline" would follow an instructor's refusal to take part.

"We have approved of the practice of the personnel department . . . inquiring of each candidate for employment about their willingness to participate in the workshops during their probationary period of employment," McClendon said. Further, he said participation in the sessions would "contribute meaningfully to a teacher's status as an instructor," adding, "We do not believe that candidates for possible employment are covered by the collective bargaining agreement."

But Rundio indicated teacher participation is required. "We feel they are adding five days to the contract," said Rundio, who maintained the board is thereby breaking the contract.

Despite rejection of the grievance by the board, Rundio said the union would decide "probably in the next two weeks" whether to seek arbitration or declare an unfair labor practice. "I'm sure we'll go farther with it," she said.

GOP to hear Rep. Gingrich

U.S. Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., author of "Window of Opportunity: A Blueprint for the Future," will speak at a gourmet banquet gathering of the 2nd Congressional District, Wayne County, Republican organization on Saturday, Feb. 8.

The 6 p.m. dinner will be in Waterman Campus Center, Schoolcraft College, 18600 Haggerty, Livonia.

Tickets at $25 (cash bar) are available from Dan Piercecchi, 591-3293.

The Wayne County part of the 2nd District includes most of Livonia and all of Plymouth and Northville. The banquet is open to all, Piercecchi said.

Gingrich, a fourth-term congressman, is ranking minority member on the House subcommittee on investigations and oversight of the Public Works and Transportation Committee.

Community colleges to help retrain, employ 1,000

By Teri Benas
staff writer

Presidents and representatives from eight area community colleges will help launch a state-led effort to retrain and find jobs for 1,000 displaced workers.

An announcement was to be made today from the downtown campus of Wayne County Community College, one of the 29 Michigan community colleges that will share $4 million in the plan.

The money, made available under the newly formed Michigan Job Opportunity Bank, will be used to fund job training at area community colleges.

To receive their shares, the schools must develop course plans for jobs where there is an immediate employment demand, said a state spokesman.

"The governor says that our most important resource is the people and that's what we're investing in," said a marketing analyst for the program, Lamar Richardson. "We're trying to look to the future."

SOME SCHOOLS have already begun planning a curriculum for displaced workers. Schoolcraft College in Livonia, for instance, has been promised $84,000 and will use the money to train 42 people in auto glass installation.

Under a program designed by the National Institute of Auto Glass Installers, training will run for eight weeks starting in mid-March. This will be the first time the program has been undertaken in the country.

Schoolcraft College in Livonia has been promised $84,000 and will use the money to train 42 people in auto glass installation.

"Apparently, there's a crying need for this," said Schoolcraft's Bruce Sweet, director of the college's Business and Institutional Services division. "Actually, it's pretty exciting," he said. "I expect some people will get decent jobs right away."

ACCORDING TO Sweet, people trained in the field can expect to be paid $6 an hour to start and could work up to $16 an hour with a journeyman's card.

"This program is an opportunity to get a specialized skill in a short period of time. The state is offering scholarships to these people, and I think it's great," Sweet said.

Richardson, who works for state program director Joe Forbes, called the program a "new approach" to government efforts at job training for several reasons. Unlike previous federally sponsored programs, this one "customizes" training for Michigan businesses and it's "employment focused," he said.

Funding to the schools, for instance, will be held back until the time the student is on the job and working, Richardson explained.

ANOTHER restriction on the college's reimbursement is that the employment position must pay the trained student at least $5 an hour. Such restrictions serve as incentives for finding people work, he pointed out.

Richardson says most of the participating colleges are developing quick-training programs in high-tech fields like robotics and computers, but the criteria must be programs that fill an immediate employment need.

To that end, colleges in the Upper Peninsula, for instance, will train students in wastewater treatment as well as heavy equipment use in the lumber industry, he said.

WAYNE COUNTY Community College will likely select a training program in "rapidly emerging fields" such as computers, robotics, plastics or the math and sciences," said college president Ronald J. Temple, adding no selection has been made yet.

"We'll take a look at the programs currently offered for demand areas," he said. Temple said college administrators plan to research telecommunication as an area for developing a curriculum.

Presidents and representatives from these other metro area schools were to attend Thursday: Henry Ford Community College, St. Clair Community College, Macomb Community College, Oakland Community College, Highland Park Community College and Monroe Community College.

MBAs with 'people' skills sought

Master of business administration graduates must learn to work with people as well as theories and computers, according to a survey of chief executive officers of Fortune 500 companies.

Cornell University's Johnson Graduate School of Management surveyed chief executives from the nation's largest and most successful companies.

They learned that senior corporate leaders are seeking M.B.A. (master's degree in business administration) graduates who possess not only the technical skills to handle day-to-day operational problems, but also "people" skills.

The study measured attitudes on a wide range of business issues. It was based on responses from more than 200 corporations.

MAJOR FINDINGS:

• Most (78 percent) are pleased with the performance of M.B.A. graduates at their firms, and believe (67 percent) that business schools are doing a good job in preparing students.

• 79 percent agree that greater emphasis should be placed on the teaching of human values in the workplace. In the words of a transportation company chief, M.B.A. graduates often "lack people sensitivity, and mistakenly believe that good analytical, problem-solving skills coupled with knowledge of computers is sufficient training."

• Half agree with the general characterization of M.B.A. graduates as being "aggressive, overambitious and overpaid."

• Most believe that the "ideal" M.B.A. graduate should be a generalist rather than a specialist and, in measuring the potential worth to business, consider an M.B.A.'s leadership potential and interpersonal skills as more valuable than functional knowledge.

• Half believe that current M.B.A. programs need to be re-evaluated or restructured, and two-thirds prefer that emphasis more on day-to-day operational issues and rank functional areas such as management, marketing, planning and ethics more highly than disciplines such as quantitative analysis, accounting and economics.

CURTIS W. TARR, dean of the school, said, "Business leaders are looking to graduate business schools to strike a greater balance between the technical and humanistic aspects of management, and to produce graduates who can augment the corporate 'culture,' as well as achieve financial gain."

Founded in 1946, Cornell University's Johnson Graduate School admits approximately 225 M.B.A. candidates each year.

Bass, Camper show, Outdoorama mean spring

By Lem Meese
Outdoors writer

SPEED catalogs, my eye! The sure signs that spring is around the corner are the outdoor shows. Here's the lineup:

• Bass-A-Rama is coming up this weekend, Feb. 14-16, in the Waterford Township Civic Center.

• The Southeast Michigan Camper and RV Show is in its second weekend at the Michigan State Fair Grounds in Detroit.

• Outdoorama is due Feb. 21 through March 2, also at the State Fair Grounds.

This angler's "spring" started a week ago at the Detroit boat show. It was mostly lookin', but I picked up three lures from a Manistee manufacturer, one of which is a weedless crawfish imitation that I'm itching to try in the shallows of my favorite Oakland County lake.

BASS-A-RAMA is the fishing and tackle show of the Michigan Bass Busters and its 45-member Oakland chapter.

It runs 3-10 p.m. Friday, 10-8 Saturday and 10-5 Sunday in the Waterford Community Center, 1415 Crescent Lake Road. Take Telegraph Road north, turn west on M-59 and go nearly four miles to Crescent Lake Road.

Attendance has leaped from 1,200 in 1981 to 7,500 in 1984. They expect 10,000 this year. Ralph LeVigne of Bass Masters says parking and display space are expanded this year.

Tickets are $3 at the door and $2.50 in advance. Parking, seminars and movies are free.

Headliners will be Babe Winkelman and Ron Shearer, both of whom have fishing shows on syndicated television. They and other experts will demonstrate casting techniques, boats, equipment and taxidermy.

Some 100 equipment dealers will have booths. So will non-profit groups like Bass Masters and the state Department of Natural Resources.

THE CAMPER and RV Show, sponsored by Michigan United Conservation Clubs, will feature everything from simple "pop-up" units to $100,000 motor homes.

If you're even remotely in the market, it's a good idea to compare many different kinds of equipment in just a few hours under the roof of the State Fair Coliseum, Woodward south of Eight Mile, Detroit.

Hours are 4-10 Friday, noon to 10 p.m. Saturday and noon to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Admission is $4 for adults and $2 for kids under 12. There is a parking charge.

OUTDOORAMA, the Michigan United Conservation Clubs show, starts the following weekend in the State Fair Coliseum.

My personal favorite, Outdoorama is a broader-based show, featuring booths for fly-in flights to hunt and fish, white-water rafting, stage shows and an array of equipment for anglers, nimrods and campers.

Outdoorama will draw 100,000 folks and feature 300 exhibitors. Tickets are $4.50 general admission and $2 for children under 12 and senior citizens, (65 and older, weekdays only).

Hours are 6-10 Friday, Feb. 21; 4-10 weekdays; noon to 10 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays (except the last day, when it will close at 8 p.m.).

Among the more popular stage shows are The Lumberjacks and Tom Dokken's Oakridge Retrievers.

A special attraction this year are panda bears presented by the People's Republic of China. MUCC chief Tom Washington says this will be the first time the panda research exhibit has been seen in the western world.

Oklahoma naturalist Bob Jenni will exhibit his live snakes, reptiles and spiders. As all good nature lovers know, snakes, reptiles and spiders are our friends.

Metroparks

Huron-Clinton Metroparks have a full lineup of weekend activities. All are free once you've paid vehicle admission of $2. Pre-register by calling the toll free 1-800-552-8772.

• Kensington, north of I-96 in western Oakland — "Ski Kensington's Backcountry," 10 a.m. Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 15-16, starting at the Spring Hill picnic area.

Also: "Fossil Workshop," one-hour program of slides and displays, 1:30 p.m. Saturday at the nature center; and "Wild Birds: How They Survive," a 1 1/2-hour walk at 2 p.m. Sunday at the nature center.

• Oakwoods, near Flat Rock in southern Wayne County — "Wildlife Sketchbook," for beginning artists, 1-4 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 18. Bring a sketch pad and soft-lead pencil.

Safe boating

An 11-week Boating Skills and Se-manship course will start at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 18, at the Wayne County Community College western branch, 9555 Haggerty, Belleville.

It's offered by the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary. For registration information, contact Jerry Gratz at 782-2712.

Funding for jobs bureau granted

An employment bureau to serve Plymouth Township residents and businesses should be launched this year with a $20,000 allocation from federal revenue sharing funds.

That appropriation, plus several others totalling $54,720, was approved Tuesday by the township board.

Specific details of the employment bureau remain to be worked out. Preliminary plans call for surveying the business community for job opportunities and then attempting to match them with local job-seekers.

Growth Works, a non-profit Plymouth community service organization, will administer the program.

Other services and purchases approved for funding this year with federal revenue sharing money are:

- First Step, an area spouse abuse shelter, $5,000.
- Senior citizen chore program newsletter and transportation, $5,300.

• Safety Town, a child safety program, $1,200.

• Local emergency preparedness, $9,720.

• Payment on a land contract for the site of a future fire station, $6,000.

• Typewriter, shredder and chairs for township hall, $7,500.

It had been suggested that a new furnace at township hall be financed with revenue sharing money. However, that proposal was withdrawn because the improvement already had been authorized prior to the required hearing on the use of revenue sharing funds.

Township administrators anticipate having as much as $158,500 in additional federal revenue sharing funds available to spend this year. They warn, though, that funding could be cut 25 percent and eliminated entirely after 1986.

State ponders ways to recruit 20,000 teachers

Second of two parts

By Tim Richard
staff writer

On paper it looks like a massive job: Replacing as many as 20,000 of Michigan's 96,000 professional school personnel who are eligible to retire by 1988.

"We may have to reverse the flow of people from the Sunbelt," suggested Hugh Jarvis, a Macomb County history teacher serving as president of the Michigan Federation of Teachers (MFT).

Scott Westerman disagrees. "I think it's going to be awhile before we have to recruit from other states," said Westerman, dean of Eastern Michigan University's education college.

TWO THINGS are certain as suburban schools get set for a wave of early retirements under a liberalized law passed by the Legislature last year:

- The supply of replacement teachers is ill-defined. There are a number of possible sources, but no one knows for sure what kind of numbers each source will produce.
- Everyone is concerned about quality. It's a long-standing principle that when supply is being expanded rapidly, quality can suffer. Educators were badly burned by charges in the '80s that school quality had deteriorated, and they don't want to be burned again.

The Michigan Association of Colleges for Teacher Education recently held a day-long conference on the topic. Besides Jarvis, speakers included EMU's Westerman, who doubles as president of the association, and Larry Chunovich, a former Southfield math and science teacher serving as president of the Michigan Education Association (MEA).

TO UNION LEADERS Chunovich and Jarvis, top priority is pay. "Pay equity is essential," said Chunovich, meaning that teachers' salaries ought to be based on training and expertise, and comparable to other professionals.

MEA advocates a 30-80-90 plan: $30,000 starting salary, $60,000 for experienced master teachers, by the year 1990. "It's a lot of money, but we deserve it," he said.

Jarvis said the number of years it takes teachers to reach top of the scale should be reduced from the present 10-15 to three or four.

Jarvis advocated expanding career opportunities by setting up a system of "mentor teachers" — those who would guide other teachers. He asked for union involvement in the process.

Job sharing, he suggested, would allow recent retirees who don't want to teach full time to teach only part time.

"We have to recognize," said Chunovich, "that teaching competes with industrial jobs that pay more, have shorter hours and command more respect."

WESTERMAN, the EMU dean and a former school superintendent, agreed with them on everything except the notion that teaching is held in low esteem. "Our applications were 266 a year ago and 566 this year — a 110 percent increase. That does not suggest people are avoiding education. It is still prestigious," he said.

He pointed to the certified teachers graduated in the '70s and early '80s who couldn't get teaching jobs and took other jobs. "We have 700 graduates paying for our career bulletin," he said.

"I think it's going to be awhile before we have to recruit from other states. A good one-third of our graduates are going to other states now. Many would have preferred to stay here."

Looking to recruit teachers, EMU at Christmas time wrote to the homes of 100 math and physics majors "to see if they would be interested in adding a teaching certificate to their degrees." At least half expressed some interest.

WHILE MANY teachers make mid-career switches into other lines of work, the odds are slimmer that accountants might be able to become business teachers and laboratory chemists become science teachers.

A big hurdle, they agreed, is that there's more to becoming a teacher than taking education courses at night. One must also do a half year of unpaid student teaching in a live classroom under the guidance of an experienced teacher.

But that hurdle could be jumped, Chunovich said, if school districts or the state paid the student-teachers intern wages, at least.

"All kinds of schemes are going on to bring people in from industry," Jarvis said. "There ought to be great emphasis on testing and retraining."

The union leaders said teachers should not only be competent in their subject areas, but should understand classroom management, learning methods and curriculum design.

THE EDUCATORS did some brainstorming on methods for recruiting high-school graduates and older persons into teaching. Besides higher salaries, they included:

- Asking high school and college counselors to promote teaching as a career choice.

- Organizing high school Future Teachers Clubs.

- Offering scholarships, loan forgiveness plans and other financial rewards to those who go into teaching. Chunovich said MEA will offer a scholarship in memory of Christa McAuliffe, the New Hampshire teacher killed on the spacecraft Challenger.

- Recruiting from the Sunbelt. Jarvis said he was concerned by the possibility that superintendents might invoke an "emergency certification" clause and turn unqualified "warm bodies" into teachers.

But EMU's Westerman was unworried because: "Our education majors have a grade-point average of 3.05. The university-wide average is 2.69. Our (education) students are better than they've ever been before."

High schools need bolstering — prof

Fewer Americans complete high school than in Japan and the Soviet Union, and those who do have weaker preparations in math and physics, according to a national expert.

"American elementary and secondary education, especially in the areas of science and math, are in dangerous condition," Isaac Wirszup, a University of Chicago mathematics professor, said during a colloquium at Wayne State University.

Wirszup, a popular congressional witness on education, believes that the economy and future of the nation could very well balance in the hands of the country's educational system.

PRESENTLY, 75 percent of all American students graduate from secondary education — a much lower proportion than Japan's 94 percent and the Soviet Union's virtual 100 percent, he said.

And those American students who do graduate have a considerably lower level of education than do their counterparts overseas.

"At least 70 percent (of U.S. high school students) have been taught arithmetic for nine years or more," Wirszup said. In other industrialized countries, students complete a comparable arithmetic program in six years. Soviet students also take a mandatory geometry program that spans 10 years. Similarly, five years of physics are mandatory. He expects physics training in the Soviet Union to only improve. "In one year, the Soviets produce the same number of new physics teachers as the total number employed in U.S. high schools."

Part of the reason for the educational success in the Soviet Union and Japan is their respect for teachers. "The status of teachers in the U.S. is inconceivable in Europe and ... Third World countries," he said.

IN THE Soviet Union, teachers receive pay equivalent to that of engineers, and more than medical doctors.

To solve the lagging education problem Wirszup suggested a "national mobilization toward education," including federally sponsored programs in each state.

Although he admires the Soviets' success, he said, "I do not recommend that we adopt the educational goals of the Soviet dictatorship or the Japanese system." He added, "We must preserve (our) system, but make it more efficient."

In April, Wirszup is scheduled to appear as a witness in an attempt to persuade Senate leaders to upgrade the American educational system.

Prisoners to clean up Rouge, area freeways

By Teri Bonas
staff writer

Jail prisoners soon will be clearing out the Rouge River in western Wayne County and picking up trash along metropolitan freeways.

The Wayne County Sheriff's Department expects to launch a jail work program Monday, Feb. 24, for non-dangerous prisoners.

The 12-month pilot program was prompted by jail overcrowding. It will be funded with a new $90,000 state grant. Westside headquarters will be located at the abandoned Wilcox Yard in Plymouth Township.

"It's a sentencing alternative," said Sheriff spokesman Dale Jurcisin. Twenty 20 prisoners are being selected from the jail this week to take part.

TARGET GROUP is offenders who are serving 45 days on misdemeanor charges such as drunk driving or writing bad checks, he said.

The program will screen out those convicted on assault charges or those considered a safety risk, Jurcisin said. Although overcrowding and tight jail space have prompted the program, Jurcisin said there is hope for real rehabilitation.

"There are certain work ethics instilled in a person who is involved in a cleanup program," Jurcisin said. "You can see progress being made. We're hoping it could change a mind set that crime doesn't pay."

There are no projections yet on how much impact the program will make. But Jurcisin said it's expected to draw from the misdemeanor offenders, who make up about 20 percent of the jail population.

THE WAYNE County Jail, with 1,750 beds, is chronically at capacity or overcapacity, even with the ability to double-bunk some prisoners.

This program was recommended at a seminar he and other county officials attended last year at Brandeis University in Boston. It was sponsored by the National Institute of Sentencing Alternatives.

When the Sheriff's Department received a $90,000 grant from the National Institute for Justice to combat jail overcrowding recently, plans went into motion here.

Jurcisin admits that it wouldn't work, however, without the support of the sentencing judges.

WAYNE COUNTY Circuit Court Judge Patrick Duggan, for one, says the alternative goes beyond freeing up jail space. It's an option to choose when "you don't know if jail is the answer, but you want them (convicted offenders) to do more than report to a probation officer."

Duggan said he frequently uses a similar program run under the Community Restitution Program of the Wayne County Adult Probation Department. Through this program, offenders are assigned to community service work instead of to jail.

But unlike the sheriff department's plan, this program is only available for individuals who are indigent and can't afford to pay their court costs, said project director Anne DuCongo.

DuCongo's program, now in its 10th year, operates in Detroit's Recorder's Court as well as at the county Circuit Court and has wide acceptance by judges. Last year, 68 judges referred offenders to some 30 participating community agencies including the Boy Scouts of America, the Capuchin Soup Kitchen and Ron Secour Hospital, for example. It also is funded by a justice grant.

ACCORDING TO DuCongo, she and one other staff person field a 1,000-person caseload by relying on supervision from the participating agencies. Supervision, she advised the sheriff's department, is the key to running a successful program.

"Most of them (offenders) are dropouts, 17-27, who come from families with one parent. There's no motivation and no job.

"And there's a lot of problems in just getting them out on time. It's best to have the judge, an authority figure, mandate their appearance on the job," she said.

IN THE SHERIFF'S plan, Jurcisin said, supervisors from the county roads department will oversee the workers while sheriff's deputies will be asked to "crisis" the workers.

In putting together the project, county officials needed to secure agreements from county labor groups to ensure that union jobs wouldn't be affected. He said those agreements were reached with the stipulation that the work involve manual labor.

Training for work given high priority

ON THE FRONT PAGE of today's Plymouth Observer is a "People" feature on a culinary arts instructor who is running one of the fine instructional programs in the vocational education department.

She was chosen as a topic for one of our personality profiles because she is a person dedicated to the profession of teaching as well as being involved in a high quality program at the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park (CEP). Another reason is that this week (Feb. 15) also happens to be Vocational Education Week and we felt Carey Gary and the culinary arts program are good examples of what vocational education is all about.

THE EMPHASIS on vocational education this week provides a good opportunity to reflect on the commitment this community has made to providing job and career training to our young people.

The culinary arts program offers training for these food services occupations: waitress/waiter, cook, hostess/host, baker assistant, and assistant manager. Following is a sampling of the career training offered by the vocational education department of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools:

Medical — nursing aide, orderly, dental assistant, dietary aide, medical office assistant; office — typist, file clerk, secretary, stenographer, receptionist; trade and industrial — machinist trainee, electronic shop assistant, welder, draftsman, and body shop trainee; child care; and retailing. The culinary art students, of course, get practical experience but so do the child care students at Kiddie Kampus, retailer students at the Chief Connection store and the Rock Shop, cosmetologists at local beauty shops, and medical/dental assistants through local professionals.

THE NEED FOR vocational education and career training was highlighted again in recent years by A Blue Print For Action, the report of the Michigan State Board of Education. Among the recommendations were suggestions for "career education and a process for developing employability skills" and a call to "ensure basic student academic and career competencies and encourage the maximum use of resources to prepare all youth for career jobs through the use of Employability Development Plans."

Another challenging perspective is offered by Herbert J. Spring, a Plymouth-Canton vocational/technical teacher for more than 25 years. Some 15 years ago Spring made these comments which still have merit today:

"It costs money, a great deal of money, to operate a good vocational/technical department. The money is not going to be Federal monies for the most part. It must come from the local school district. Parents of the vocationally oriented student must be heard and must demand that their children receive not just a fair education but an excellent one. It will cost more per child to provide for technical and specialized training.

"Let's not be afraid to tip the scales and provide additional monies necessary to assist the majority of the students who will need the specialities in the world of work. Parents of vocational/technical students should take an active interest in our schools and work to completely remove the stigma which still is attached to working with one's hands."

The Observer long has supported the need for vocational and career education and commend those educators and staff members who are "in the ditches," fighting the good fight day after day.

Society has changed and now gives more value to voc ed. We no longer place highest priority on college-bound students but recognize the need for skilled tradesmen of all sorts.

This week is a good time to renew that commitment.

Arab image needs PR—whatever that is

THERE IS A furor these days over the American depiction of Arabs. Arab leaders in the Detroit area were especially incensed that the TV movie "Under Siege" had Arab terrorists operating out of Dearborn, which has the largest concentration of Arabs in the United States.

Whether Arabs truly have reason to be concerned that there is anti-Arab feelings, I suggest that they ought to work on their image by hiring a public relations specialist.

Once the public becomes aware that not all Arabs are somehow related to trouble in the Middle East, things will get better. I suggest a few TV ads showing an Arab family in front of an American flag in front of their American business.

The idea came to me while watching the television ad for Dick Chrysler, one of the Republican candidates for governor.

AFTER WATCHING the ad several times, I am convinced that Chrysler is the father of the auto industry, a businessman who started at the bottom sweeping floors and ended up owning the company. Since the ad never says what company he ended up owning, I assume it is the Chrysler Corp.

The reason I'm sure that he owns a large corporation is that in the background of his ad there is film footage of workers on a production line — obviously a large manufacturer of cars and not some dinky place where a small group of workers make custom conversions on cars.

If anyone were to tell me that it was some public relations person's idea to use a factory background of a company that Dick Chrysler didn't work his way up to own, I would be flabbergasted.

I MIGHT even think that it is a good idea to license public relations people just as the Public Relations Society of America is talking about doing. What a great idea the society is considering — have the government step into the area of public relations and say who is qualified to be a public relations person.

The first job government can do is define what public relations is and what a public relations person is expected to do. An old-timer in the business once told me public relations was just a fancy term for publicist or press agent. Things have become more sophisticated since then, however.

I still think the government will have as much trouble defining public relations as the government and the entire legal system have had in defining pornography.

I like the definition of a Supreme Court justice who said, "I can't define what pornography is, but I know it when I see it." I confess that I have an idea of what public relations is, but I don't necessarily know it when I see it.

DO THE PEOPLE who make ads for Dick Chrysler qualify, or are they just advertising people who don't need to be licensed?

Do people who write speeches and perform public relations-type activities for politicians qualify as public relations people? If so, then New York Times columnist William Safire would qualify for the time he served as Spiro Agnew's speech writer. Safire could be licensed by the government, although never forgiven for having supplied Agnew with the immortal phrase "nattering nabobs of negativism."

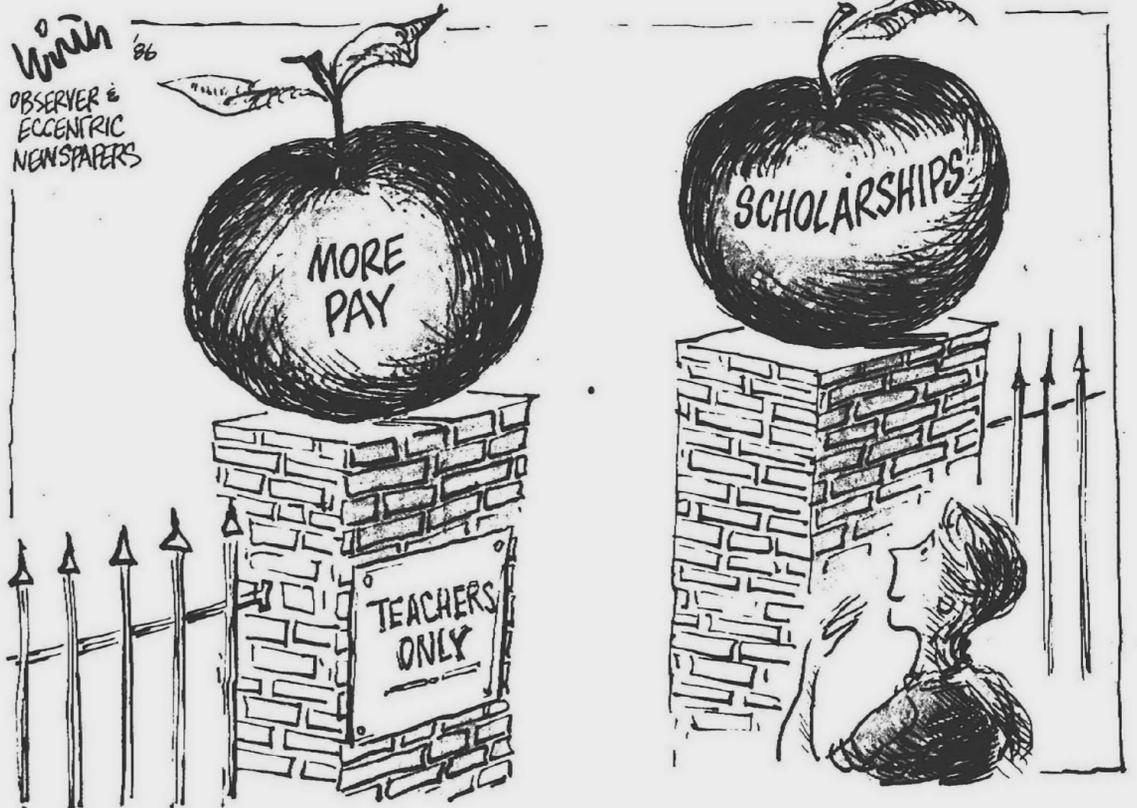

On the other hand, the greatest public relations person of all time, P.T. Barnum, would not qualify because he did not spend the requisite time apprenticing in the business, as defined by the society.

SOMEHOW, I get suspicious about attempts to license members of various organizations.

The state licenses teachers and doctors, for example, but not lawyers. The lawyers' own association does that. Who knows for sure whether there are more bum lawyers or bum doctors?

The next think you know, somebody will be talking about licensing journalists and proposing minimum qualifications and making people take writing tests. We could never stand for that.

'Good pay, high prestige'

Geez, we like to talk about teachers in this country. Natural targets, these folks. After all, they do take care of our kids for a big hunk of the time while they're growing.

And parents do get envious. We complain that they're paid too much, yell at them about the job they do and once, just every once in a while, we praise them for the undeniable contribution they make to our society.

Now imagine this. We're about to run short on teachers. You heard me correctly — run short. Strange to hear that refrain. Must be at least 25-30 years since we've heard the plea for more teachers.

You remember, it looked like the Soviets were going to beat us to the moon so we had to have more teachers.

Seems silly now. But back then getting to the moon first was a top-notch priority. So we turned to the teacher corps to beat the Russkis.

Well, frantically recruiting teachers really didn't help Neil Armstrong to step on the moon before Ivan the Cosmonaut. But at least recruiting a lot of teachers made us feel like we were doing something for the cause. Sort of like buying bonds or cultivating a victory garden.

Of course, we ended up with far too many teachers, too few students and lots of pink slips as enrollments declined throughout the nation.

Now we find out during a conference of state teacher college faculty and administrators that we once again are about to run short of K-12 teachers — at least in Michigan.

It's labeled a mini-crisis by some state educators. Because of a retirement plan, Rule 80, teachers now will be able to retire when their combined age and years of experience add up to 80. That means a lot of 50-year-old teachers will be thinking hard about taking the big recess.

That could add up to a loss of more than 20,000 teachers by 1988. In Wayne and Oakland County alone, that adds up to approximately 8,400. No small number to replace.

Now that doesn't mean they will retire. But experts admit that within three years of eligibility many of them will take advantage of the plan.

Well good. It's about time we were forced to take a good, hard look at our teachers. For far too long we've been able to look the other way. After all, we've had more than enough teachers.

WHETHER WE LIKE to admit it or not, education still is a number one priority in our country. We were distracted from the hopes of the '50s and '60s that a top rate educational system could aid in solving society's problems and meet its challenges.

We let ourselves down. Our educational system has become stuck in a morass of political dissension and philosophical malaise.

The fresh thinking of new teachers will help us rise above the problems of our troubled schools. But this time, let's remember, those teachers will need our support if we are going to succeed.

Lucas leads with jugular

IT'S A STUPID issue. There never should have been an argument.

But what do you do when Wayne County has an executive like Bill Lucas who is terrified of dealing with people face to face?

This week Lucas is touring the state again, this time stumping for the Republican nomination for governor. And neither he nor anyone else at home is minding the store — or in this case, Metro Airport.

THE ISSUE, as I said, is stupid. Lucas — or his troops, for the exec himself often doesn't know what's going on — decided last year a State Police detail should be evicted from its office in the Metro terminal so that an airline could expand its operations.

It's only a four-man detail. They work in plain clothes and don't require a lot of fancy equipment, riot gear, communications gimmickry or laboratory test tubes. Just four desks and some phones.

You would think rational adults could find some other place to put the State Police.

Think again.

COL. GERALD Hough, State Police director, said the new digs Lucas offered weren't acceptable because they're outside the terminal building. Lucas gave him an eviction notice. Then the county commissioners got wind of the problem, and what a glorious time they are having!

Leading the parade is Chairman John Hertel, D-Harper Woods. He introduced an ordinance whereby the County Commission would make a finding that the State Police presence is necessary in an era of drug trafficking and terrorism. The ordinance would tell Lucas to negotiate with the State Police.

Hertel, who wants to succeed Lucas as county executive, is making Lucas, a Republican convert as of 1985, look bad in the media. It's not difficult. Lucas leads with his jugular vein.

LUCAS, AS is his custom, wasn't available when a County Commission committee discussed the action. A woman I had never seen before attended from the executive's office.

Commissioners asked three times if an executive office spokesman were available. She finally confessed she didn't have their schedules and no one was available.

Poppcock.

Another Lucas staff member attends every commission meeting. The man never says anything publicly. He sits there with a little tape recorder. I don't know what the executive's staff does with the tapes or the transcripts. The guy just sits there and records, and records, and records. Meeting after meeting. Honest.

LUCAS COULD have headed off the entire silly flap, either with a simple, factual explanation of his position or else a sincere effort to find the State Police new digs. He didn't do his job. Bill Lucas can't deal with legislators.

As one of the few newsmen who has observed both the Wayne and Oakland county executives in action, I can tell you Oakland's Dan Murphy has handled a couple dozen issues like this. He meets with lawmakers. He explains things. If he has to pull in his horns, he asks that the item be dropped from the agenda so he can work out a compromise.

Those two dozen issues never got more than a paragraph in the papers or a minute of the 6 o'clock news. Problems were resolved quickly — by an executive who kept in touch with his job.

Political contributions pay for a lot of lunches

County commissioners file statements of expenses

By Teri Banas
staff writer

Western Wayne County commissioners spent little on the frills of their offices. Instead, they used their office holders expense accounts to keep their names before the public.

That pattern showed up in recent finance statements filed with the Elections Bureau of the Wayne County Clerk. The reports covered a one-year period ending Jan. 31.

Most typical expenses were political contributions, tickets to civic events and political ads in program books. Commissioners frequently used their office-holder accounts for meals spent with civic and social groups.

COMMISSIONER Mary Dumas, R-Livonia, for one, used her fund often to pay for breakfasts, lunches and dinners across the county. In all, her dining bill was about $335 out of the $704 she reported receiving during the year.

Dumas dined with such civic and political groups as: Livonia Chamber, Livonia Republican Women, Livonia PTA, Schoolcraft College Women's Resource Center, Civitans, Michigan Political Women's Caucus and a reception for U.S. Rep. William Ford, D-Taylor.

A Republican, she even spent $180 for tickets to a "Friends of (Livonia Mayor Edward) McNamara" fund-raiser last February.

Dumas' other expenses included $78 to pay for picture frames to encase proclamations and resolutions offered during the year.

TAKING INTO account a couple hundred dollars on hand at the start of the reporting period, she spent just over $500 out of the office holder's account.

Her campaign committee, however, reported raising $2,462 and spending $2,462 during the year.

Its listed expenses essentially covered a fund-raiser in Roma Hall last February and nearly $1,000 for commercial printing. Her only fund-raiser during that off-election year was held at Livonia's Roma Hall, raising $2,430 and costing $1,048.

IN CONTRAST, Commissioner Milton Mack, D-Wayne, whose district includes Canton, directed a sizeable portion of his spending to political contributions to the Democratic Party.

Mack's $3,423 account listed expenses of $2,888 during the year. Most of the money ($2,700) came from his campaign committee.

He made almost $1,500 in political contributions to groups such as the 16th and 18th Congressional Districts Democratic organizations, the Blanchard for Governor Committee, Sheriff Robert Ficano's Committee, Dollars for Democrats-Michigan, Linda Choate for Clerk in Canton, and Bev McNamally for Mayor in Romulus. The largest single contribution was $500 to the Democratic Club of Canton.

Mack's expenses included Christmas cards ($300 worth), Christmas party decorations ($275), sponsorship of a bowling team ($40), dues to the Detroit Institute of Arts' Founders Society ($25), the Wayne County Farm Bureau ($25) and $10 donation to the Boy Scouts.

MACK'S CAMPAIGN committee listed almost $13,300, some $8,800 of which was raised during the year. He spent only $4,884.

His single largest contributor was Frank C. Kelly, owner of Maybury Medical Clinics, who gave $1,000.

The Wayne County Sheriff's Deputies Union, Local 562, which contributed at least $500 to both Dumas and commissioner Kay Beard, D-Inkster, made a $700 contribution to Mack's campaign.

Mack's committee held one fund-raiser during the year, a dinner at Paddy's Pub in Westland that raised $8,800 and cost $1,629.

COMMISSIONER Kay Beard, D-Inkster, whose district includes Garden City and Westland, took $1,710 into her office holder's account, spending all but $69 of it by the year's end.

She paid for dues to the Gaelic League ($25), a fund-raiser for Westland's former mayor Charles Pickering, dues to a women's chapter of the National Association of County Officers ($50), Casa Maria ($30), and the Millender Memorial Fund ($100) and the Robert Battle III Legal Defense Fund.

Other groups whose functions she attended included the Schoolcraft College Foundation, the Inkster Elks Lodge, the Western Wayne County YMCA and the League of Catholic Women.

Political contributions went to U.S. Rep. Bill Ford, the Michigan Democratic Party, County Clerk James Killean, county officer Orville Tungate, and Michigan Secretary of State Richard Austin.

BEARD'S CAMPAIGN committee raised $4,372 during the year, spending $5,029 of it.

Her contributors included several deputies ($500), the United Steel Workers of America ($200), Teamsters DRIVE ($100), a county labor group GAA-PAC ($200) and the Wayne County Bar Association ($100), among others. Beard listed campaign expenses of $180 for frames for resolutions and the cost of a fund-raiser in June. That fund-raiser, a birthday brunch held at Westland's New Hawthorne Valley Club raised $4,300 and cost $1,871.

Commissioner Richard Manning, D-Redford, said he didn't open an office holder's account, adding that he took in no campaign contributions last year and therefore did not file a campaign committee report either.

Kids to explore own potential

A new class, "Me and My Potential," is being offered at Schoolcraft College for 12- to 14-year-old boys and girls.

The class will be Saturday mornings 9-11 a.m. starting Feb. 15. For registration details, call Robert Burnside, Schoolcraft's admissions and financial aids coordinator, at 591-8400 Ext. 345. Cost is $30.25 with $3 registration fee.

Participants will explore their own values in an auction, bidding for 5,000 "life units" and placing them on their own priorities — such as having one's own room, freedom or popularity.

Polish Dancers thank Grange

To the editor:
The Plymouth Centennial Dancers would like to thank the Plymouth Grange and its members for their support during the Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular.

Without the Grange members help and support this fund-raiser for the 39 children who are representing Plymouth and the U.S.A. in Poland would not have been a success.

Thank you for lending your building to us. Thank you one and all for supporting us.

Name calling a last resort

To the editor:
I recently attended the Plymouth City Commission meeting during which time the majority of the Citizens' Comments segment was dedicated to the condemnation of the city's plan to poison the downtown pigeons.

I was impressed by the comments of my colleagues who had done their homework and were well-armed with empirical evidence which supported their position. I was similarly impressed by touching and informative speeches given by a senior citizen, a third grade boy, and a representative of the Humane Society.

The city commission's reply was that we are "bigots" because we don't express similar feelings when some community sets out to eradicate roaches or rats. I don't remember ever being called a bigot before and it simply served to strengthen my resolve to see that this plan is cancelled. The old adage of "when you don't have a reasonable argument, resort to name calling" seems to apply here.

City Manager Henry Graper said that only 15 "taxpayers" had complained; we must have all been at the meeting last night. It should be noted, however, that not one "taxpayer" spoke up in favor of the poisoning procedures. Graper told us that because few people have written to complain, he assumes that most people either support or are simply indifferent to the plan.

State law dictates that we teach children to behave in a humane manner in regard to animals. Why is it that the city government can ignore this imperative?

If you agree, you can help. Sign or distribute petitions. Ask the downtown merchants if they support the plan. Better yet, look for the posters in the windows of stores which disagree with the city's plan. Write a letter to the commission. Just maybe we can change their minds.

Sam Fullerton, Plymouth

No one listens to condo views

To editor:
I attended the City Commission meeting Jan. 20, 1986. This was D-Day for approval or disapproval of the six-story condos on the Wilcox property.

Myself and several others had previously appealed to the planning commission but to no avail, even though it says "all comments and suggestions of those citizens participating will be considered by the planning commission prior to rendering its decision."

The city commission did not even attempt to listen to those who were against a six-story condo. Five people spoke, four against and one for. The mayor and city manager were both very rude to the four persons who spoke against, trying to cut them off in attempt to speak even after they had been recognized. As I spoke, the mayor and city manager were continuously talking to each other. Only when I stopped to wait until they were finished with their private conversation did they stop.

Is it pure politics? I think so. It doesn't seem to matter what the people think, only what our mayor and city manager want. Maybe we need to vote for a mayor and do away with a city manager. It would save the city some money.

I am not against condos, just a six-story one in the center of town. If this one goes up it leaves things open for many more. The Mayflower, which is three stories, would want to add and who knows who else.

I would like to see Plymouth's motto stay city of homes not the city of towers and traffic jams. We want people to come to Plymouth, not stay away because of the traffic patterns such as in Ann Arbor.

Let's let Plymouth stay Plymouth — not turn into a Southfield, Birmingham or Ann Arbor.

I urge you to attend the City Commission meetings.

Ellen Curtis, Plymouth

Lawsuits have gone too far

To the editor:

Lawsuits against government officials actually end up at the expense of the taxpayers. It has become the fad of the day, especially here in Canton. One economist put it this way: "The more society relies on taxes to determine income, the closer it approaches an era of political fighting and economic stagnation."

Here, in Canton, we taxpayers are reaping the burden of the whirlwind. Clerk Linda Chuhnan is not only suing Supervisor Poole but the board of trustees. School bus driver Dennis May, who was fired for disorderly and obscene conduct, is suing the Plymouth-Canton school district for a return to bus driver status and back pay. Fireman Gary Sova, who refused to attend Emergency Medical Technician sessions, filed a union grievance suit demanding back pay, etc. etc.

In olden days a worker was rewarded for his or her efficiency and productivity, but now its the rule breakers that demand the sympathy and favors. They simply hire defense lawyers who manipulate the law via technicalities.

The pendulum has swung to the extreme left. Civil rights has turned into civil wrongs. In the old days there was no such a thing as suing the public officials since they constituted the government for the people. The ironic tragedy of it all is that the innocent taxpayer has become a punching bag for shrewd operators.

Take the case of Donna Ford who is suing for "emotional stress." We taxpayers would like to know who doesn't experience stress, especially you? Everybody struggles with stress from morning till night, be it at home, office or traffic. All this sounds like a laughing joke, except that it is causing quarrels, waste of time, disruption of government functions and ripping off the taxpayers.

I don't know Maria Sterlini personally but she was a friendly public official. She also had her problems but she didn't sue the township. Nor did firefighter Harry Harrison who was slandered by offensive jokes of a union official. Public officials dedicated to good service make a happy community.

Charles Zagala, Canton

Tired of label as 'outsider'

To the editor:
The city manager, Henry Graper, has finally gotten me mad enough to fight his words.

I am tired of being called an "outsider." I have lived in Plymouth for 24 years and because I have resided in Westland for the past two months, (and not from my choosing) my pleas to him on the pigeon poisoning have been ignored.

Graper does not seem to mind bringing in thousands of people for the Fall Festival, the Ice Sculptures, and any other big event that seems worth merit, and so just how fair is he being?

I stood up in front of those who run the fair city of Plymouth and gave them a direct quote from Kevin Clark of Clark's Critter Control in Westland about a program of Ornitrol — a sterility drug for pigeons, which gives guaranteed results in two years. The price of this program would be the same price for the strychnine proposal — plus it is humane!

Now, Graper says he doesn't believe that the Ornitrol proposal is necessarily effective or economical in that the process would have to be done twice a year. I sure wish Graper would listen to the people who know what they are talking about. He does not know what he is talking about!

We concerned citizens called on the assistant director of the Humane Society, who is an authority on the subject, to back our statement. He told the commission the same thing. If the commission would have listened, they would have heard that the price quoted was for the twice-a-year program.

I believe Graper should listen to anyone who shares concern for the City of Plymouth for they only care that Plymouth flourishes productively and humanely!

Advertising aims to fill hospital beds

By Susan Buck
special writer

Five years ago, Sunrise Hospital in Las Vegas shocked the public by advertising cruises for patients who had specific procedures performed at Sunrise.

The offer was considered blasphemous and unethical.

Hospitals in this area have been more modest in their approach, but they are hitting the drawing boards to produce advertising strategies designed to promote services and lure customers.

Of 41 hospitals answering a Southeast Michigan Hospital Council (SEMC) survey, 32 said they advertise. Of those advertising, 21 of 26 reported spending a total $1.8 million annually on advertising. Survey responses were anonymous, but one hospital listed spending $500,000, and four others more than $100,000 each year. SEMC is an 80-member trade association based in Southfield.

With the emergence of alternatives to traditional health insurance plans like health maintenance organizations (HMOs) and preferred provider organizations (PPOs), hospitals are placing advertising higher on their list of priorities.

"Hospitals are becoming more a business because of changes in the economic reimbursement arena," said Donald Potter, president of SEMC. "What we have now developed is an economic system of delivery that works like any other capitalistic system."

THE SURVEY, the first for the three-year-old SEMC, is the brainchild of Jane Eckels, SEMC's director of public relations. Eckels, 38, a White Lake Township resident, is a former Oakland Press reporter who also worked in public relations at Henry Ford Hospital before joining SEMC.

"I felt it (the survey) was important because advertising is such a concrete emerging trend. I tried to put a finger on the pulse of the industry," Eckels said. "National research showed that five years ago five major hospitals had marketing people in them. Now most hospitals have a marketing person."

When a hospital decides to advertise, it is usually the public relations department alone or with help from planning or marketing resource people, which is responsible for advertising programs. But 54 percent of those surveyed said they are presently or planning to use an advertising agency mainly for copy, design work, production, placement and general consulting.

Seventy-eight percent of the 41 hospitals responding to the survey said that they were involved in advertising. Another 17 percent who do not advertise plan to begin within the next year.

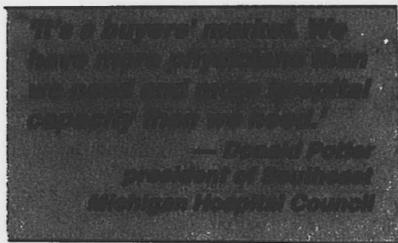

The most popular media used by hospitals to sell their services and to establish an institutional image are newspapers and direct mail, followed by radio, magazines and TV. Print is the most economically available method, Eckels said.

"Frequency and reach are the two measurements that determine how effective advertising is — how often it appears and how many people it reaches."

Henry Ford, Sinai and Harper-Grace are hospitals that do a lot of specialty work and which are heavy print users, Eckels said.

Fifty-three percent of the reporting hospitals said advertising was part of an overall institutional marketing plan while 37 percent of the hospitals called advertising an occasional effort. Many of those who advertise occasionally said a comprehensive advertising strategy is or will be developed.

Seventy-nine percent said they had or will conduct some research or testing before beginning an advertising program. The most frequently mentioned market research activities include focus groups, general awareness, and telephone, patient and physician surveys.

WITH INCREASED health care costs and increased use of outpatient services at major Detroit hospitals' satellite branches, consumers are taking a hard look at the services a hospital provides rather than accepting the referral advice of their physician, Potter, 38, a Plymouth resident, said.

"It's a buyers' market. We have more physicians than we need and more hospital capacity than we need. Occupancy rates in southeastern Michigan hospitals have been reduced 10 percent in the last five years."

Today, 62 percent of patients have some say in which hospital they are admitted, Eckels said.

"Patients will physician shop," she said. "What they are saying to their physicians is, 'I know you have privileges at more than one hospital. I want to go to hospital X instead of Y.' Consumers are no longer the complacent, 'Whatever you say, doctor. You're the boss.'"

Hospitals are keenly aware of consumer "comparison shopping."

"How did referrals go in the past? Well, that's cronyism and not necessarily in the negative sense," Potter said. "The family practitioner doesn't know every surgeon in town, but he will know someone he went to school with or who he has as members of the country club where he plays golf."

MOST HOSPITALS named more than one reason for deciding to advertise. The largest number of respondents (38) named promotion of specific services as their number-one aim followed by a desire to establish an institutional image, to increase inpatient use, as a response to competing hospitals advertising, and because of a board of trustees directive.

And how do they measure effectiveness? By use of advertised services along with patient and general awareness surveys. And they believe their advertising is favorably accepted by employees, physicians and the public based on improved employee morale and favorable comments from patients and employees.

Twenty-three of 39 respondents said that direct product advertising of services like urgent care and obstetrics is more effective than institutional positioning that stresses "first," "only," "biggest" and "brand name" recognition and retention of the hospital's name. And 23 of 38 hospitals said advertising appeals that emphasize touching or emotional aspects are more successful than those that deal with technical facts or testimonials and endorsements.

Of 41 reporting hospitals, 11 had a 500-plus bed capacity, 11 had 250-499, 12 had 100-249 and seven had less than 99 beds.

Hospitals fret over competition

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

With the emergence of health-care advertising, some local hospitals are jumping on the bandwagon. Some are considering it, but others oppose the Madison Avenue approach.

And while most area hospital spokespersons freely admit whether they advertise, they are mum on the number of dollars spent.

"We've been influenced by the competitive movement," said St. Mary Hospital spokeswoman Audrey McConackie, whose hospital didn't have a public relations department until 18 months ago. "You have to get into the ball game."

Replacement lenses sold at pharmacies

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Pharmacy owners Abe Seiderman and Bob Leal want their customers to see things more clearly.

A soft contact-lens replacement service at both of their stores makes it possible and affordable. The pair, who own Mendel's Pharmacy on Seven Mile between Beech Daly and Inkster in Redford, and Leal's Pharmacy on 12 Mile and Ryan in Warren, consider themselves pioneers in Michigan in providing replacement contact lenses.

All people need is their prescription from their optometrist to order lenses. The process takes three to five days.

The store doesn't provide fitting or sizing. They order the lens(es) from the manufacturer and return them, unopened in the vials, to the customer.

The advantage of going to a pharmacy, according to Seiderman, is the cost. He said the lenses at their stores are 35-65 percent cheaper than at full-service contact lens centers.

BUT SOME optometrists are not exactly enthusiastic about the new service.

"My feeling is that I really don't favor it," said Dr. Susan Hahn, a Southfield optometrist who's the president of the Metropolitan Detroit Optometric Society. "Mainly, because it's a good idea to have the lens checked while it is on the eye when it's picked up. Sometimes the wrong type of lens is written on the bottle or there is a defect and they have to be returned."

Complaints made by optometrists don't faze Seiderman, who said most optometrists don't fit replacement lenses either. And, he adds, sometimes their lenses are sent through the mail.

If there is a problem with a lens, Seiderman said he directs persons to their optometrists.

Seiderman doesn't believe the claim that people will avoid eye checkups holds water.

"Actually, this all started because of the opposite happening," he said. "People were wearing torn or bad lenses because they couldn't afford to buy replacements. We helped make that affordable."

SEIDERMAN said that it was an optometrist, Norman Gintis, who started the service in the first place.

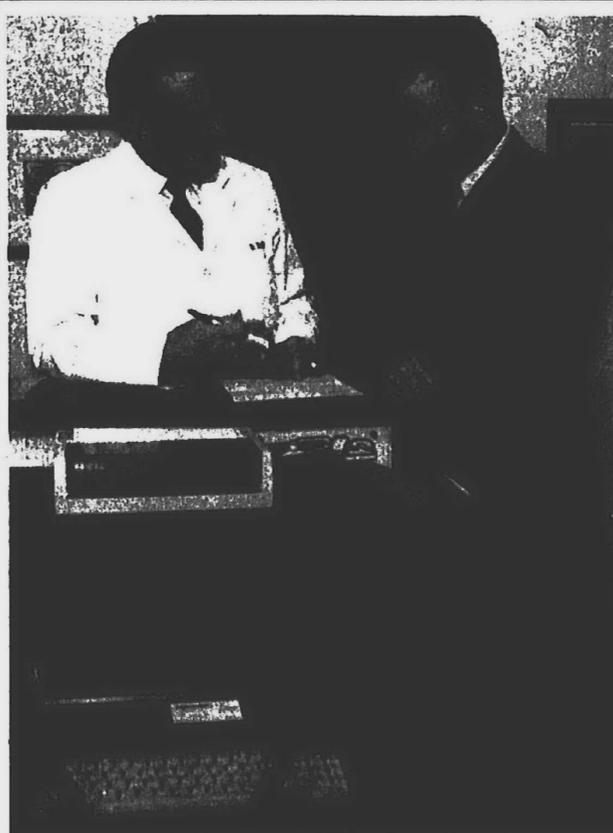

Liability is another concern. Both Seiderman and Leal said they're no more liable than they are dispensing medication.

Interest has been high for the service. It has boosted business at Mendel's nine-month-old store, which had a sluggish start.

One obstacle has been some optometrists' reluctance to relinquish the patient's prescription. Michigan law says they don't have to.

"This makes people mad because they feel they paid for it," Seiderman said. "Most (optometrists) give them up though."

Both Seiderman and Leal would like to see the service become statewide as in Ohio. In fact, it was a trip to the Buckeye state that sold Leal on the idea.

Doctors, druggists join computer age

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

With Transcript Services' system of computerized prescriptions, pharmacists no longer need to take a course in Egyptian hieroglyphics.

More legible prescriptions are just one of the features of the new system being developed by the Bloomfield Hills-based company. The system, the first of its kind known in the country, is not only designed for doctor-pharmacist convenience but as a way to curb prescription-drug fraud caused by altered or forged prescriptions.

For the patient, the wait for prescriptions is eliminated. And, with clearer prescriptions, the chances of error (wrong type of medication, wrong dosage) are greatly reduced.

The service, in its infancy, establishes computerized links between medical offices and pharmacies with equipment placed on a lease arrangement. Bloomfield Hills physician, Dr. Wilson P. Richards, and Square-Wood Pharmacy, at Woodward and Square Lake Roads, are the first users of the electronic-transmitted system. Another physicians group in Taylor is in the process of obtaining the system.

"I THINK it's great," Richards said. "I resent having to write prescriptions manually now."

The patient receives a copy of the prescription from the doctor, which is also transmitted by the physician to the pharmacy via computer. Usually, the prescription is ready by the time the patient arrives at the drugstore from the doctor's office.

The system is programmed with prescription types and patient demographics. Richards said 500 patients are entered on his system with 4,000 prescription types.

Richards, who's also the chairman of the Oakland County Prescription Drug Abuse Task Force, sees the system as a deterrent to prescription fraud, which he said is prevalent in Michigan. It would make prescription blanks, which are often stolen from doctor's offices, obsolete, thus eliminating false prescriptions. New Detroit, the Federal Drug Enforcement Administration, Macomb and Wayne County have been contacted by the task force about the new system.

According to Richards, 4 percent of the population living in southeast Michigan consumes 38 percent of the codeine and 36 percent of amphetamines in the state.

"That's a helluva lot of fat and a helluva lot of pain," Richards said.

KATHLEEN CANTLON, director of sales at Transcript Services, said it took three years to develop the system. The company has targeted the tri-county area for expansion. It leases the equipment to either physician or pharmacist and charges patients a $10-a-year subscription fee for the service.

Limited partnership can reduce your tax bill

"The legal right of a taxpayer to decrease the amount of what would be his taxes, or altogether avoid them, by means which the law permits, cannot be doubted." — The Supreme Court of the United States.

What is a Tax Shelter? In the broadest sense, any legal method of reducing one's taxes is a tax shelter. A personal exemption is a tax shelter. So is a medical deduction.

From the simplest to the most sophisticated, tax shelters abound and are often overlooked. Since many taxes are based on the philosophy of graduated rates, any deduction in the total amount being taxed not only can cut the tax but also the bracket.

As a rule, the more financial success anyone has, the more important it is to come to grips with taxation's twin reference points: Graduated rates and source.

finances and you

Sid Mittra

For these successful people, particularly, tax shelters involve three basic concepts:

- 1) deferring taxes;
- 2) converting current income to future income at a lower tax rate;
- 3) using tax incentives provided to encourage people to invest in certain fields.

Most people seek economic gain for specific purposes. So the field of tax shelters divides itself logically into various areas. These areas include: retirement, estate planning, special tax shelters such as charitable trusts, installment sales, municipal bonds, and limited partnerships. The last shelter is discussed below.

Limited Partnerships. The limited partnership provides individuals a means of going into business and using the losses reported in the early years of that business to offset the taxpayer's regular income. Unlike a corporation, however, a partnership passes through to its individual partners all profits and losses without an intervening tax.

The partners, not the partnership, pay the taxes. But few people, by themselves, want to go into an unfamiliar business. And even in high tax brackets, few people want to spend enough on just one sideline business to own it all.

So a partnership divides the business into more usable shares. And the limited partnership restricts an individual partner's liability.

He can lose his whole investment, of course, but he cannot lose any more. Yet the expenses of that business may produce significant losses during the early years, which the individual partners can use to reduce their own taxable incomes.

Since a limited partnership brings its partners tax benefits unavailable in a corporation, it is wise to keep in mind the basic tests that determine the difference between a corporation and a limited partnership.

First, there cannot be perpetual life — in other words, a limited partnership must not just go on forever.

Second, a partner may not freely substitute another for himself without restriction.

Third, except for non-recourse debts such as mortgages, the general partner must be personally liable for the partnership debts.

Fourth, there must be centralization of management — control must not be available to all the partners.

These last two points reveal the importance of the key person in any limited partnership: the general partner. The limited partners supply the money to start the business. The general partner supplies the expertise and runs the business of the partnership.

Hospital advertising

"We haven't decided yet (to implement a direct marketing program)," Beaumont spokesperson Mike Killian said. "Advertising is a valuable tool and could be very beneficial in informing people of what we do here."

OTHERS, like Garden City Osteopathic Hospital, don't plan to change direction in the way they (don't) advertise.

"We would rather relay on word of mouth," said Garden City Hospital spokesperson Mitch Nimmoor, who doesn't believe mass marketing is effective in the hospital industry. "You're not going to see ads on TV, or radio spots or full-page ads in newspapers (about Garden City Hospital) unless it's to advertise for help."

Instead, Garden City Hospital prefers to market itself indirectly through its community-relation efforts like a health-care cable television show.

Other hospitals and their advertising policies include:

● Botsford General Hospital in Farmington Hills advertises "from time to time" a specific program (like a new chemical dependency clinic). But there's no general advertising campaign. Newspapers are the primary medium used. Radio and television are used only for public service announcements.

● St. Mary Hospital in Livonia does no advertising on its own. Instead it teams up with nine other Catholic hospitals in the area to promote such programs as Care Link for persons over 62 years of age.

● Westland Medical Center (formerly Wayne County General Hospital) in Westland has just finished the last leg of its reorganization and has begun to advertise with help of an outside public relations firm. According to Ruth Whitmore, a public relations consultant who handles the Westland Medical Center account, more marketing plans are in the works.

● Providence Hospital in Southfield uses a direct-mail campaign to spread the word about its specialized services. Print media is also used. A hospital spokesperson said Providence's marketing efforts could be increased.

● Annapolis Hospital in Wayne, a member of Peoples Community Hospital Authority, does little advertising, according to Maureen Camps, director of community relations.

"Occasionally, one of our hospitals will advertise an educational program, new services or special classes. We don't have an organized effort, but it's something we're in the process of looking at."

Hospital administrators refused to release exact figures on how much is spent on the programs. But those who are big advertisers also report plans to expand their efforts.

Electronic prescriptions

Higher prescription costs are not expected to be a result.

"It shouldn't," said Randle Samuels, a pharmacist at Square-Wood Pharmacy. "I'm sure it would be absorbed in the operating costs."

Along with the convenience of not having to wait, patients also have a better idea of what type of medication they're receiving. Included with prescription is instructions on taking the medication.

"YOU'D BE surprised how many people don't read the labels," said Samuels.

The system has built-in safeguards. Users have their own passwords, and the overall system can be monitored by Transcript Services' central office.

If the system should go down, a physician could still print out valid prescriptions, according to Tim Fino, Transcript Services vice president.

"It would be difficult for the system to go down," added Fino. "There's an uninterrupted power supply and a dedicated power line."

Transcript Services trains both doctors and pharmacists on how to use the computer.

Compared to the use of triplicate prescriptions, Transcript system is considered an inexpensive alternative. Triplicate prescriptions, which are designed to cut down on fraud, is a system where the doctor, pharmacist and the state each keep a copy. The system is used in Texas, Missouri and California.

With the Transcript system, the same process can be done.

But Drug Enforcement Administration spokesman John Mudri, sees one problem. The triplicate process would have to be mandated by the state; the Transcript Services system is voluntary.

Mudri does see a benefit of such a system.

"It would make doctors keep good records," Mudri said. "As far as I know, there isn't a law which makes them do that."

WINNERS CIRCLE
BY LAURIE KIPP

THE MICHIGAN LOTTERY RECEIVES MANY QUESTIONS ON PRIZE PAYMENTS. THE FOLLOWING SUMMARY PROVIDES MANY OF THE ANSWERS:

Q. What percent of Lottery revenues are returned to players as prizes?

A. State law requires that as near as possible to 45 percent of gross Lottery sales be returned to players as prizes. For example, in Lotto, this means 25 percent for the Jackpot, nine percent for the Second Prize pool and 11 percent for the Third Prize pool.

Q. Why are Michigan Lottery prizes paid in 20-year installments?

A. This method of payment for large prizes benefits all players by increasing the total prize money that can be awarded.

Q. Can you explain this benefit?

A. The Lottery invests approximately $550,000 of revenues for each $1 million to be awarded in a program similar to an annuity purchase. The combined principal and interest from this investment give the winner the entire $1 million in 20 years. The other $450,000 not needed for immediate full payment of a $1 million award then is used in the game as other prizes.

Q. Must winners pay taxes on prize amounts?

A. Michigan Lottery prizes are exempt from state and local taxes, but not from federal income tax. The Internal Revenue Service requires a 20 percent deduction from payment of all awards over $5,000. Total tax paid by any prize winner may be higher or lower depending on other income.

Q. Does this benefit winners of large prizes who receive annual payments instead of a lump sum?

A. Using a $1 million award as an example, present tax laws might cut this amount in half if it was all paid at one time, giving the winner only $500,000. Under the 20-year payment plan, a $1 million winner is paid $800,000 by the Lottery, $300,000 more.

Q. Do all Lottery states use this method of payment?

A. All Lottery states do, for the same reasons.

Q. What if a winner dies before the 20-year payout period passes?

A. The Lottery ALWAYS pays out the full prize amount. The remainder of a prize is paid to the estate of a deceased winner. Payments also go to the estate of deceased winners of $1,000 a week for life prizes until the $1 million minimum has been collected.

Send your Lottery question to: Winner's Circle, Michigan Lottery, P.O. Box 30077, Lansing, MI 48909.

If your question is used, you will receive 50 free instant game tickets. This month's winner circle question comes from Lucky Fulton of Brohman.

Michigan's resurgence is our wave to the future.

When the Michigan economy started making ripples some people were astute enough to notice. They noticed something special. A new wave rising in business. A wave of fresh ideas sure to help business.

Michigan business began to master the demands of the changing economy. It began to rise on the strength of existing manufacturing capabilities and resources. To follow the inroads of its many manufacturing innovations. To utilize the latest technology and take advantage of flexible production capabilities. To initiate completely new labor-management techniques. And it's being helped further by a state government which is dedicated to trimming costs and maintaining an environment in which business can prosper. All of which have made Michigan what it is today, a national leader in advanced manufacturing.

Everyone couldn't help but see it. And hear it. And join in with it. In 1984 manufacturers throughout Michigan planned over $1.7 billion in new construction, more than any other state. 1985 also brought a record high in business start-ups and a top-three national ranking in spending for research and development.

Today, around the state and around the world, Michigan is being recognized as the center of it all. And businesses want to ride the crest with us.

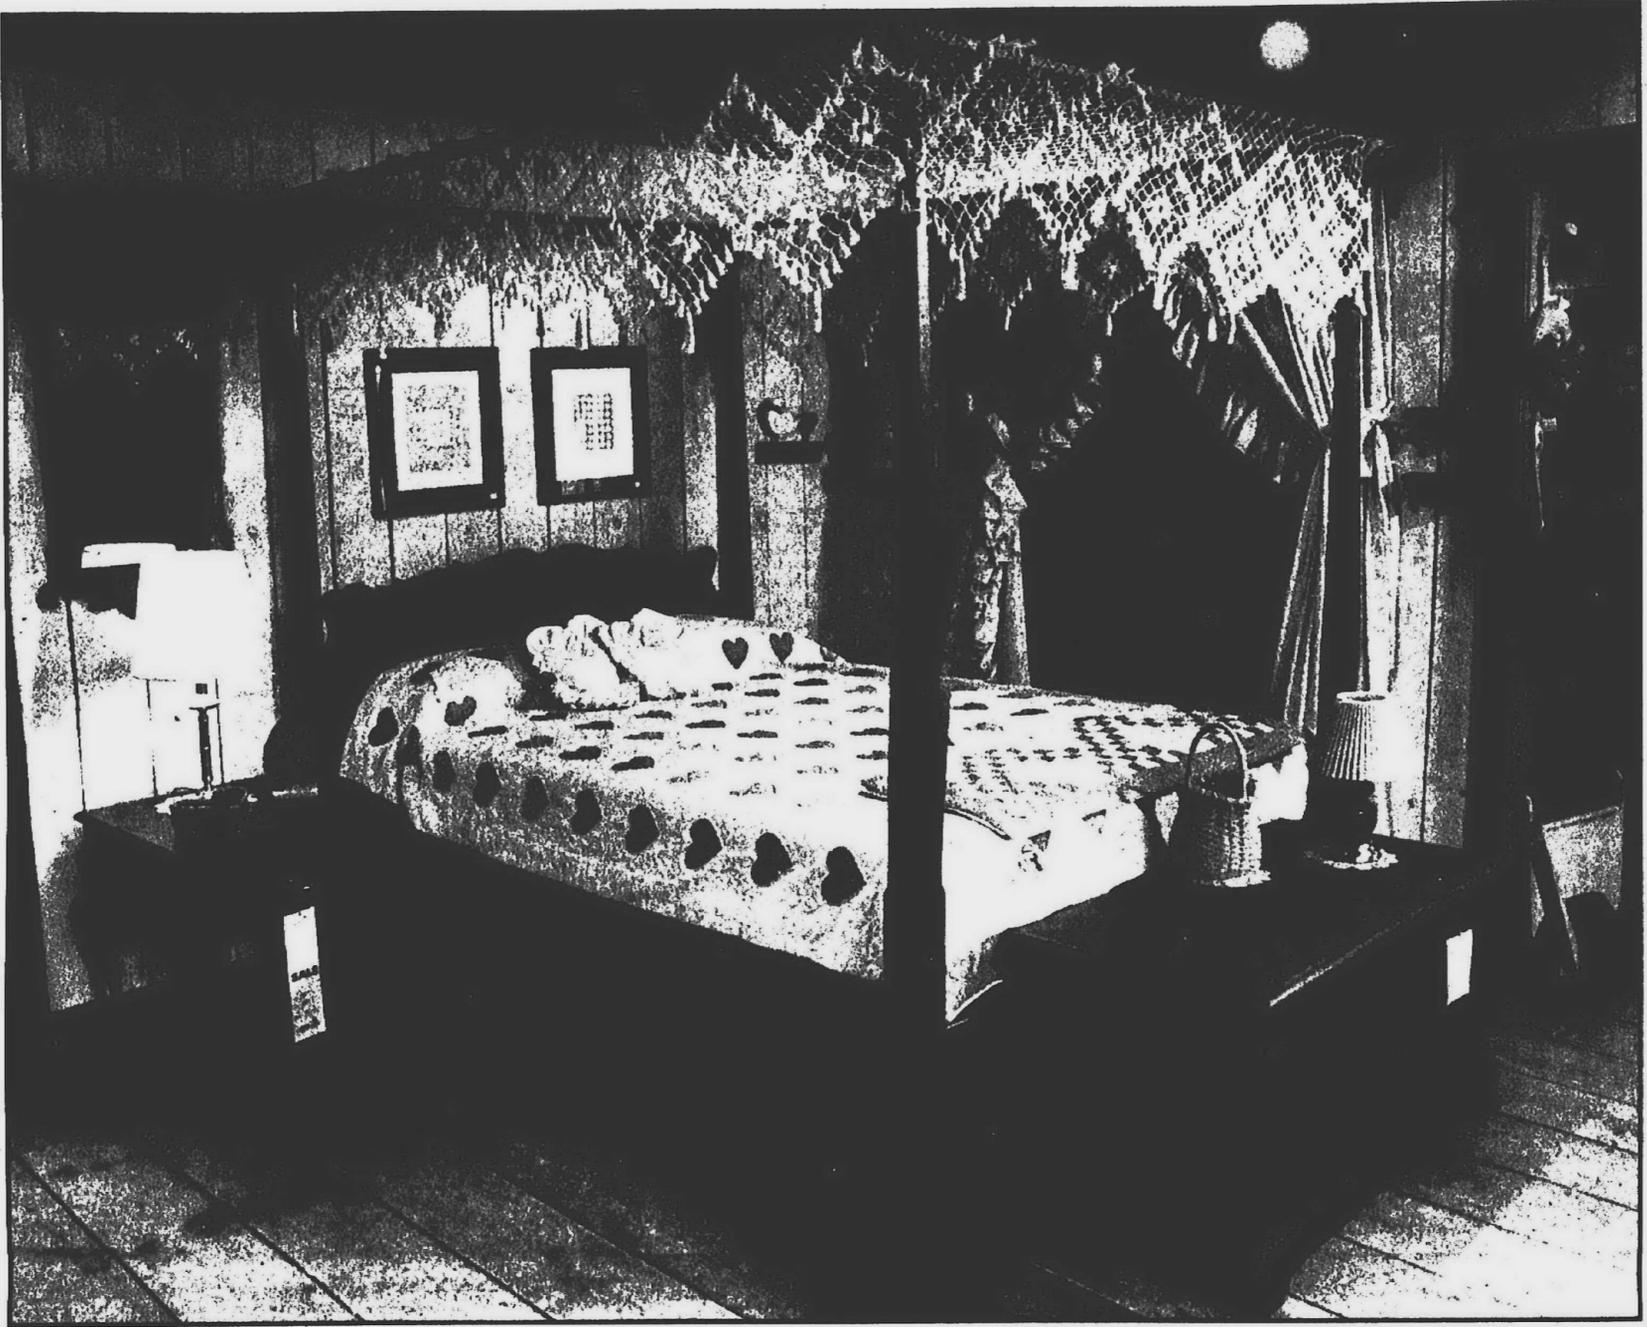

Michigan's resurgence. We're making waves. Straight into tomorrow.

For kids, adults: an emotional tug-o-war

By Jeanne Whittaker
staff writer

NANCY ERVIN and her husband, Tom, moved their family of eight 13 times in seven years. Kids, said the author of "Kids on the Move," frequently get lost in the confusion.

One particular event resulting from a move eight years ago was sufficient reason for writing about a subject that Ervin thinks too few adults treat with the importance it is due.

Moving, said Ervin, can be a wonderful experience for one member of a family, and a total disaster for another.

Leaving Florida and returning to Michigan was a homecoming for the adult Ervins. But, for their eldest son, who was entering the second half of the seventh grade, the experience had long-term repercussions.

On the first day at a new school, explained Nancy Ervin, her son came face to face with the reality that the school he would attend was totally unlike the integrated school he had grown used to in Florida. Worse was the realization that his clothes labeled him a misfit.

BY THE TIME the boy confided what had happened it was three weeks later, and the label had stuck. He never did fit in with a crowd at the school.

It could have been different, Ervin said, had they known that the school "uniform" included a down-filled jacket and Adidas shoes.

In her book, Ervin details the effect such things as clothes have on a successful adjustment to a new school and community.

It isn't always the most expensive items that are the best choices, she cautions.

One girl arrived at a new school in Wyoming to discover that her $60 Guess jeans were all wrong. Her peers took one look at the faded jeans, considered fashionable in Birmingham, and labeled her too poor to own a pair of Levi's like theirs, Ervin said.

Clothes are just one aspect of what families must contend with when they are uprooted, according to Ervin.

Knowing when to tell children a move is imminent, selecting the new home, understanding the sense of loss they feel for friends, hobbies and familiar activities that must be left behind, the fear of leaving the old community and adapting to a new environment are subjects that affect every member of the family.

A growing number of major corporations agree with Ervin. Companies such as Coca-Cola, State Farm Insurance, the Northrop Corp. and United Airlines have ordered copies of the booklet for distribution to employees moving from one community to another.

Ervin said that a company will spend an average $35,000 to move an employee and his/her family to a new location.

"When one 9- or 13-year-old is unhappy he can turn the whole house upside down," she said. "A company willing to spend that kind of money to move a talented employee isn't going to get its money's worth until the family has settled down in its new home."

Ervin addresses disquieting questions — the fear, and yes, the anger felt by everyone involved in a move.

The format is based on a series of questions posed by Ervin, followed by responses of children who have experienced multiple moves, and concludes with her analysis and advice based on that information.

To begin with, she said, parents should tell children about the move as soon as possible.

She recalled her daughter, Sarah, telling her about a friend who told his friends on Monday that his family would be moving on Friday. To ease his pain, Sarah asked for and was immediately given permission to organize a going-away party. It was worth the effort because of its soothing effect on the upset friend, she said.

Taking part in her survey were 100 youngsters, ranging in age from kindergarten to college students. The only criteria, she said, was that they had to have moved at least the distance of one school district to another. The group was made up of half boys and half girls, living in 28 states, eight countries and the District of Columbia.

THOUGH SHE directs questions such as "How long did it take until you felt at home?" to the children, Ervin said most of the concerns they expressed mirror the concerns of adult family members.

"Adults are better at camouflaging their feelings."

"There are plenty of angry trailing spouses," she said — 60 percent of corporate moves these days involve a working couple.

What happens when one partner is moving to a job where there may be no job for the other partner? Anger, she said, is something that is universal to family members who lose friends, projects and surroundings that they depend on for security.

Kids, in particular, feel that their lives are out of control. Everything that made them feel secure is slipping away.

However, there are ways to deal with a move that will help everyone survive the experience, even find it a rewarding, positive event in their lives.

"Let the child be involved in as much planning as you can," she advises. If you can't take them with you to look for a new home, "ask them what they would like you to look for. Write it down, that's important. Let the kid feel you respect his opinion, that you are concerned about what they think."

Another Ervin recommendation: "When you decide where you are going to live, go to the school when it is in session, and I mean in session, so you can see the kids. Notice the jeans they wear, their shoes and their hairstyles. How do they carry their books? Then, go home and tell your kids what you have seen. They may decide to reject everything that you tell them, but they are on notice."

Ervin believes that ongoing, honest conversation is the key to a successful move.

Noting that some children told her that parents withheld information about the move in an effort to spare them pain, she said that children have a right to be part of the entire decision-making process. Left in the dark, children have a tendency to blame the parent who is causing the move.

Perhaps the most difficult move is one where one spouse is leaving the other. Possibly one child will be going with the mother and another remaining with the father.

Many children fear that they may never again see the parent they are leaving behind.

"It's really important that a definite time and date be set when they will see that parent again, and they have to hear it from both parents."

Ervin said there is an added bonus for parents who take time to read the booklet. The bonus? How to deal with guilt.

'On average, a company will spend $35,000 to move an employee and the trailing family to a new location. When one 9- or 13-year-old is unhappy, he can turn the whole house upside down. A company willing to spend that kind of money to move a talented employee isn't going to get its money's worth until the family has settled down in its new home.'

Valentine's nice, but why not a thank you day too?

Happy Valentine's Day! There is still plenty of time to get a valentine surprise ready for anyone you might have forgotten.

Don't forget teachers, parents, children, news carriers, special grocer, bus drivers, doctor, friend, grandparent, favorite aunt or uncle, bridge club, bingo buddies, bowling team.

You see, the list is endless. It's not just an opportunity to declare your undying love... although that's a good one, but it's a chance to say thanks, you are appreciated to anyone who has been special to you.

Perhaps it's a sales clerk who always greets you with a smile, or a customer you enjoy serving. How about a politician you feel tries hard? Or even your favorite columnist... or cable TV host?

There are all kinds of people you have probably forgotten. I think this day should lead into a new holiday that I'd like to be credited with starting. "Thank You Day."

Presents wouldn't have to be expensive like Christmas... just a day set aside to say thank you to someone, anyone or everyone who has been special in your life during the year. A very special day for a very special reason.

Now take the ball and run with it... the beginning of a new holiday... Thank You Day. Employers could even say thank you to employees or vice versa. Teachers to students or vice versa, parents to children or vice versa; business to clients or vice versa. See how it can bloom?

If you think of a special one, let me know and I'll say thank you for you in my next column.

MEANWHILE, a special note of happy birthday is in order for Nancy Zelek, president of the West Middle School PTA who, I am told, turned 40... but this is no great surprise if you were on Sheldon Road recently. Although the signs sorta ran in the rain, the point was well taken and you knew where Nancy lived if you saw the house decorated with a wall of signs proclaiming this momentous occasion.

How about the black "Over the Hill" balloons? Tacky, tacky, tacky, cute but nice to know you are loved so? I know the age 40 is a hard way to learn how much you're loved, but at least someone cared enough to embarrass you a whole lot. Happy Birthday Nancy!

Another very special birthday is that of my eldest daughter Cathy, turned 15 yesterday the 12th... You know, I think that's harder on a mother than a daughter! I have to face certain things. One is recalling what I was allowed to do at 15. Boy, it's tough letting go, isn't it?

Canton chatter

Sandy Preblich

AS OF TONIGHT, Cathy is almost sure what she absolutely, probably, might want to do for her birthday, and I thought I had trouble making a decision. It's somewhere between taking in a couple of movies, rollerskating, bowling, overnighing, shopping all day, or a combination of some or all of the above with one, two or three friends or just Mom and/or Dad (we tend to spend more money on the shopping part if we are with her).

Oh, for the good old days when the only decision was a McDonald's birthday, skating birthday, sleepover birthday, bowling birthday or Chuck-E-Cheese. Or how about when it was a kiddie party with grandparents or a separate party for relatives?

Anyway, I hope you decide soon honey, and whatever you decide have a great birthday, and many more.

This time of year also means it's Cathy Alterman's birthday; that's tomorrow, Valentine's Day. Cathy will also be 15. I wonder if she has decided what she wants to do? Happy birthday Cathy. And a belated but sincere happy birthday to Veronica Roman and my brother-in-law, Doug Selewski.

A FEW REMINDERS on upcoming events, senior citizens; if you are not a member of the Canton Senior citizen group may I suggest you call Diane Neihengen today at 397-1000 Ext. 278 and see what they have to offer.

You need not take a trip every week and luncheon every noon to find some value in the senior groups in Canton. They have plenty of activities that only come up once a year, or once in a while, which you may find beneficial if not just plain fun. Things like legal aid, tax counseling, free blood-pressure checks and even Social Security information and updates.

Then, if you so choose, there are endless activities and groups to join. Right now, it's volleyball season for those so inclined. The Kitchen Band is always in season, and always active. Different groups take different trips and there are always pool, bingo, cards, and delicious lunches, just to scratch the surface.

So, get on the phone and take advantage of what you fought so long and hard to insure you would have: life, liberty and a crack at happiness... without the children.

For the adults who are not quite seniors, but would still like to have some fun... without the children, take heart. Parks and Recreation announced the first meeting for interested persons in softball, both men and women, to be held Saturday, March 1 at 10 a.m. for men and 11 a.m. for women.

Both will be held in the township administration building on Canton Center Road.

All questions will be answered at that time.

TEENS! The last ski trip of the season is planned for Feb. 21. Cost is $8 if you have your own equipment and $15 if you need to rent it. Call 397-1000. These trips have become very popular. The price includes lifts, transportation and rentals.

Also, there are still positions available in the Junior Baseball Little League as either a director or on the executive board. If interested in serving in this capacity, or if you'd just like more information, call Chris at 455-5253 or 459-6085.

Last but not least, the Canton Country Festival is still looking for more board members. Call Larry Bowerman at 455-5915.

For something different, she tried ribbon dance

Several years ago, former Plymouth resident Trudy Siewert was working as an audio technician taping a seminar on acupuncture.

As part of the evening's entertainment, a traditional Chinese dancer performed a beautiful, elaborate dance with ribbons.

"Siewert, who has had a passion for dance all her life, watched the dance intently. "I was so excited by the dance," she said, "that I stood up on a chair for a better look. And I took notes."

She forgot about her notes until two years later. "I was asked to dance to a song by Heartsong called 'Global Thread,'" she said. "When I heard that tune, all I could think of was the Chinese ribbon dance."

Fortunately, she was able to find her notes and piece together her version of the dance. The result was a bright, quick-paced dance which has delighted audiences of all ages.

THIS WEEK, she is performing it for an all-school assembly at Ann Arbor's Bryant School and again for a Chinese New Year's party in Troy.

Martha Nicol, formerly of Plymouth, and Anthony Gerard Hejka, of Middleton, Wis., were married Jan. 11 in St. Thomas Aquinas Church, Detroit.

The bride is the daughter of June and Max Nicol, formerly of Plymouth. The bridegroom is the son of Thaddeus and Jeanette Hejka, of Houghton Lake.

She is a 1974 graduate of Plymouth Salem High School and a 1985 graduate from Henry Ford Community College and is employed as a record technician at Sinai Hospital, Detroit.

He is a 1985 graduate of the Wayne State University School of Medicine and served pathology residency at the University of Wisconsin Hospital, Madison, Wis.

The maid of honor was the bride's sister, Lisa Nicol. The best man was the bridegroom's brother, Pat Hejka.

The bride wore an ivory satin gown and carried a cascade of ivory roses and greens.

Her attendants wore royal blue gowns, with cascades of ivory roses and blue flowers.

The reception was held in the Warren Valley Country Club, Dearborn Heights. The couple spent their honeymoon in Nassau, The Bahamas.

They will live in Madison.

the musical styles of many nations together into one energetic tune.

The Chinese ribbons represent that "thread" which binds all nations. Siewert said she likes to think of her dance style as universal, a blend of ancient and contemporary forms.

People who watch her perform are surprised to find out that she has had very little formal training in dance. "I've enjoyed watching dancers all my life," she said, "and I'm able to combine what I've seen with something else I seem to draw from within."

Her precise and graceful hand movements, which add a visual dimension to the words as well as music, have been compared to the Hawaiian, Balinese and Oriental style, as well as Indian mudras, native American sign language and signing for the deaf.

BORN IN Germany, Siewert came to the Detroit area with her parents when she was three. After graduating from Denby High School, Detroit, she moved with her family to Plymouth.

She has been a Plymouth resident for most of the last 15 years. After working in the health food business at Zerbo's, Livonia, and Healthy Jones, she spent three years with Creative Audio, traveling around the country taping seminars.

Throughout her career in the health food business and as an audio technician, she always found time to dance, but never professionally. "It wasn't until I heard words and music that truly inspired me, that I decided to make dance my career," she said.

While taping a seminar in Chicago two years ago, she heard the music that would inspire her career change. "I was about to take my first bite of food in 10 hours, when this music literally took the fork right out of my mouth."

THE TUNE was "White Light" and the group was "Heartsong," the same group that recorded "Global Thread."

The next night, she pulled together a white outfit and danced to the song at the seminar. She was so well-received that she continued to perform the dance at seminars she was taping whenever she had the opportunity.

Siewert has had success dancing to still another Heartsong number, "Open Your Heart America."

"This, along with 'Global Thread,' are my two most requested numbers," she said. "It was a tremendous thrill for me to be invited to Washington, D.C., last year to perform 'Open Your Heart' at the National Speakers Association convention. I think it was then that I realized that I could do something that not many others can do — move people with my dancing."

SINCE SHE decided to devote her full attention to dance last June, Siewert has danced at concerts and seminars in Chicago, Atlanta, Virginia Beach, Florida and Detroit.

She also has performed at the Human Unity Conference in Hawaii. There have been the parties, school events and business conventions, too.

"People love to see this kind of dance," she said. "It's high-energy, upbeat and uplifting. In fact, I'm always taking orders for Chinese ribbons."

Siewert said she hopes her dancing will catch on in the business community, where belly dancers are often hired for office parties and conventions.

"Nothing wrong with belly dancers," she said. "In fact, I've done some like the Eastern dancing myself. But for variety's sake, why not try 'Global Thread' instead?"

The Canton BPW Monday night named Janet Webley of Canton and Janis Hayward of Plymouth as its young career women for 1986.

Webley is director of operations for the Plymouth Community Federal Credit Union, in Plymouth.

Hayward is a dentist, with offices in Canton. Webley is married to Adrian Giaccaglia; Hayward is single.

Webley is the daughter of Stanley and Mary Catherine Webley of Garden City. Hayward's parents are Westley and Betty Hayward of Bay City.

Webley is a graduate of Garden City West High School. She has a degree from the University of Michigan and is working on her master's degree in business administration.

Co-op nursery has openings

The Plymouth Children's Cooperative Nursery Inc., Warren Road and Haggerty in Canton, has openings for 3-year-old girls, 3-year-old boys and 4-year-old girls for the fall term, which begins in September.

The school was founded in 1962 by Plymouth-Canton area residents who believed that the best opportunity for learning is provided through free play, rather than formal educational experiences during the preschool years.

To be eligible, children must be between 3 and 3 years-old by Dec. 1, be toilet-trained and meet State of Michigan health requirements.

The co-op is associated with the Huron Valley Council of Cooperative Nurseries and the Michigan Council of Cooperative Nurseries.

The three teachers at the school — Emily Sparling, Marlene Lloyd and Jackie Binder — have taught there for 14, 11 and seven years.

Parents interested in learning more about enrolling their children should contact Linda Gawronski at 981-1707 or Gail Conte at 455-5298.

The exhibit includes more than 800 previously unpublished photographs and documents from Dutch and German archives and private collections that recreate the everyday reality of the Frank family's life in Nazi-occupied Holland.

The exhibit is a combined effort of the Anne Frank Center in Amsterdam, the American Friends of the Anne Frank Center, and the American Jewish Committee.

Privacy should be our right

THE OTHER day an interviewer called me to the telephone to ask what make of refrigerator I have in the kitchen. I told him it was none of his business. Such queries are usually from people planning a sales pitch, but more impudent questions are those proffered by sociologists, pollsters and opinion-gatherers. I refer to those who call us to find out what TV programs we are watching, what our views are on matters of topical interest, or what our feelings are about some controversial subject.

The motto of all of the above could be characterized as the business card of the private detective which reads: "Other people's business promptly attended to."

There isn't much we can do about all of this except to throw questionnaires into the wastebasket. We can also reply to strangers who call us on the telephone, "None of your concern," or, in the case of sales pitches, "I never respond to any solicitations made over moral perspectives

Rabbi Irwin Groner

the telephone." I don't suppose enough of us will do any of these things sufficiently often to have an effect, just as too few of us will write "Refused" on junk mail.

ALTHOUGH THESE invasions of privacy are annoying, they do represent a serious trend in society, neither freedom nor privacy can be absolute or all-inclusive. There are only "freedoms" and "privacies." But the quality of civilization depends to a considerable degree upon which freedoms and which privacies its members enjoy, and in a democracy, these are likely to depend, in part at least, upon which people value most.

Free speech, including the free use of obscene language, is obviously much valued in our society, but freedom from annoyances — and worse — in the name of progress and the common good, is not similarly valued.

The situation is similar with respect to privacy. If I am called in the telephone seven times in a day only to be told that I have just won free tickets to Arthur Murray's, and that the tickets solicitors want to sell me everything from health insurance to long-lasting electric light bulbs, I have no recourse.

When a public complaint was made, the telephone company replied not only that it did not want to put any restriction upon such use of its facilities, but also that it endeavored to discourage private listings because the whole purpose of the telephone was to put people into communication with one another.

It did not seem to recognize the fact that the desire to communicate should not be unilateral and that a valuable part of its business consisted in putting people into communication with one another who do not want to be contacted with one another.

For those of us not interested in privacy, the invasion of privacy through the telephone is a nuisance. But for those of us who value privacy, the invasion of privacy through the telephone is a serious threat to our freedom and our democracy.

Talk comes cheaply at recruitment time

PROMISES, PROMISES. College recruiters are full of them. Not just for the Torin Dorns or Tony Boles, either.

College coaches need insurance, too. Just in case they sign a dud, they have to be sure they have a back-up. And a back-up to the back-up.

So they use any leftover scholarship money as bait. They tell high school athletes labeled borderline prospects to come out as a walk-on. Win a spot on the team, they say, and you'll get a scholarship.

Problem is, promises like that aren't always kept.

These aren't world-wise adults recruiters are dealing with. These are kids, young athletes who believe in fair play. They grab at any opportunity because they figure they'll get a chance to prove they're worth a scholarship.

Ray Nagy, for one, found out differently.

A YEAR AGO, Nagy was in the nets when Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook swept to the Class B state hockey crown. He was not highly recruited, so he took an offer to walk-on at Western Michigan. After one semester, he quit.

"I can't say anything good about Western," Nagy said. "I guess that's how college hockey is. If you don't have a scholarship, you don't play."

Nagy says he was misled by WMU coach Bill Wilkinson. The Broncos had two other unproven goalies — both on scholarship — and Nagy said he was told all three would be given a shot at the No. 1 spot. Nagy never played in a game, never got a chance to prove himself during the first semester. When Wilkinson designated him as No. 3, he left.

"They don't tell you anything while you're there," Nagy said. "They say you're going to play, but they didn't treat me equally."

NAGY SAID the other goalies both had equipment allowances. Both had a dozen sticks before the season started. Nagy got nothing. He was to supply his own sticks.

To Nagy, it all added up to one thing: no chance to play. And without an opportunity to play, he could never win a scholarship.

"I can't sit around and wait four years to get a chance," Nagy said. "I have to play. School was hard enough with hockey. To make it worthwhile, I have to have a scholarship."

Wilkinson claims he did not play favorites, although he admitted Nagy didn't get into a game early in the season and he was designated as the third goalie. But scholarships had nothing to do with it, he said. He went with his best players.

NAGY THOUGHT he was the best. But he left because he never got a chance to prove it. And he didn't feel he could afford to wait for that chance.

Nagy is playing now for the Hennessey Engineers, a junior hockey league team based in Redford. And Nagy is waiting. Waiting for a chance, hoping for a college scholarship or perhaps to be drafted by the pros.

"Whatever happens, happens," he said. "I've been the college route, and it wasn't the best. I wish I could say it was my fault. It just didn't work out."

"I guess it's just a business."

THAT'S JUST how the Kimberlys found college recruiting. The family now is in Troy, but 1 1/2 years ago they lived in Apple Valley, Minn., a town just south of Minneapolis. Keith Kimberly was a star at Apple Valley High in football, basketball, soccer and baseball.

Keith's career plans were clear. He wanted to study sports medicine. As a placekicker, several colleges were interested in him, but they either weren't NCAA Division I — which Keith's coaches said he was good enough to play — or they didn't offer his academic program.

So Keith talked to Kirby Cannon, a graduate assistant football coach at Iowa State. Cannon told Keith he couldn't get him a scholarship, but if he walked on and made the team he'd earn one.

Keith Kimberly decided to attend ISU. He made the travel team as the No. 2 kicker his freshman year. Cannon left to coach elsewhere after that, and last year Keith was redshirted. He's been told he fits into ISU's plans (the No. 1 placekicker graduated), but ISU coach Jim Criner still hasn't offered a scholarship.

The Kimberlys are caught. Keith has decided to remain at ISU through spring practice, but if no scholarship is offered he figures he'll have to transfer.

"IT'S TOO BAD" seniors and parents coming into this don't know how to handle it," said Keith's mother, Joan, of the recruiting process. "Parents, totally, absolutely, have no idea what's going on."

"I really think some kind of seminar is needed to make parents aware of the (recruiting) rules, and that recruiters don't always tell the truth. I mean, some of the fantastic promises they make these kids."

It's true that athletes often hear only what they choose. For many, praise and compliments are things they feel they've earned. But they need to remember that talk is cheap.

They need to listen carefully to what's offered. Separate facts from mere chatter. If guidance or advice is needed, consult the coach or school athletic director, for starters.

Nothing is for certain, so athletes and their parents, sooner or later, will have to trust their instincts. If a promise of a scholarship is made if an athlete makes the team, Joan Kimberly suggests to record it in writing if possible.

That idea is worth remembering. And what's most important is the education the college will provide. That should dominate any decision.

Salem wrestling coach Ron Krueger congratulates Dave Dameron after the senior 126-pounder won his third straight league championship Saturday.

Salem wins 4th WLAA mat title

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

Ron Krueger could barely talk, his throat so abused by nearly 12 hours of screaming. His chest ached from the incessant pounding of his heart. His head pounded too.

But Ron Krueger never felt better in his life. His Plymouth Salem wrestling team had just won its fourth straight Western Lakes conference wrestling tournament, its fifth straight league title dating back to the disbanded Suburban 8 League.

On Saturday, at Westland John Glenn, Salem amassed 210 points to defeat the determined 12-team field. Walled Lake Central finished second with 184 points and Glenn took third with 140.5. (See statistical summary for complete results.)

"This meet was a lot tougher than last year, and I really didn't think we had the same type of team we had last year," Krueger said. "But we scored more points today than we did last year, so I guess we did a better job. I'm just really pleased, proud of all the kids."

THE ROCKS placed wrestlers in the finals in 11 of the 13 weight classes. Ten of those finished in the top four. Seven placed among the top two. Two were crowned champions.

All of that takes on greater significance considering each weight class has the potential of 12 participants.

Afterward, though, Krueger's thoughts were on his four wrestlers who fell short in their championship match.

"A lot of people don't think I care as much as I should (about those who lose)," he said. "But some of these boys have worked hard for me for four years, and it hurts to see them miss out in the end. It's just not fun when you lose."

The championship trophy presented at the meet's conclusion helped dry many of the tears shed by the fallen Rocks.

THE DAMERON brothers, as they were last year, were the Rocks' top scorers.

Senior Dave won his third straight league title, this one at 126. He simply overpowered Livonia Churchill's Mike Krause in the finals, pinning him in 3:15.

The three wins during the meet put his seasonal record at 40-0. Thirty-one of the wins were by pins, that's one shy of Salem's single-season record.

Dennis, a junior, won his second consecutive league title. He was presented a serious challenge from Plymouth Canton's Dave Dunford in the title match at 112 pounds, but Dennis prevailed 17-6.

John Glenn was perhaps the meet's overachiever. After a mediocre dual meet season, the Rockets claimed four individual championships in the league meet.

"I'm very pleased with the way the entire team wrestled," Glenn coach Tom Buckalew said. "Coming into this meet for the first time, I didn't really know what to expect. It was an extremely competitive meet. I think we're going to enjoy our association with this league very much."

Churchill tips Chief spikers

It's to the point now where you almost have to root for the Plymouth Canton volleyball team to win a match.

The Chiefs, winless in the Western Lakes, have been playing superb volleyball for nearly three weeks with nothing to show for it except some floor burns.

Livonia Churchill, one of the league's top teams, nipped the Chiefs Monday 15-13, 15-12.

The team did many of the things it had to do to upset the Chargers. No. 1, the Chiefs neutralized Churchill's power spiker Jackie Wozniak. Diana Knickerbocker took charge at the net to offset her.

SECONDLY, the team held its own in the service corner.

The difference was Churchill's ability to gain the key points late in the games.

In game one, Churchill jumped on top 11-3. But led by Laura Darby's eight straight service points, the Chiefs pulled even 11-11. The game went to 13-13 before Churchill prevailed.

Stephanie Knowlson kept Canton close in game two with her strong serve. But again, Churchill came out on top late in the game.

Canton, 0-10 in the league, 1-12 overall, will host Farmington Harrison Monday.

Rob Neu (left), the varsity girls basketball coach at Canton, will replace Mike Spitz as the Chiefs' boys varsity track coach this spring. George Pryzgodski will take over the Canton girls track program for the resigning Bob Richardson. Athletic Director Paul Cummings made the announcements last week.

Indoor soccer: Americanization makes scores high, game fast

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Indoor soccer could turn this country's soccer players into a bunch of shut-ins. The sport, still relatively new, has offered forward soccer players shelter during the winter. If the current trend continues, they might have to be pushed back outside when warmer weather hits. American ingenuity has taken the age-old sport, shrunk the playing field from 110 yards in length to 200 feet, placed dasher boards around an astro-turf surface and put a roof over it. And, what's most important, the innovation has made it an exciting spectator sport where a four-goal lead is worth about as much as a Marty Castillo baseball card.

SOME TRADITIONALISTS have called it the "bastardization" of the game of soccer. Others hail it as a possible savior to the professional outdoor game in the country. But for most people, men, women, boys and girls, ages 6 to 60, indoor soccer is just a ton of fun to both watch and play. "Indoor soccer is the immediate future," said Brian Tinnion, who's coached and played indoor soccer professionally and currently runs IV Seasons Indoor Soccer in Farmington Hills (on Freeway Drive between 10 Mile and Grand River). Other area indoor soccer facilities include Square Lake Indoor Soccer Arena in Bloomfield Hills (on Denison Road off Franklin) and Lakeshore Arena in St. Clair Shores. There are leagues for adults and youths of all ages and playing experience.

The indoor brand of soccer is played much like hockey. Players, six on a team, play two-minute shifts in an enclosed area with hockey-type boards surrounding it. ALSO LIKE the Canadian winter sport, there are two-minute penalties for such infractions as tripping, holding and boarding. Players serve time in a penalty box while their team plays short-handed. Players can use the boards to bounce passes or take shots on goal. A goalkeeper, a beleaguered-looking individual, tries to stop a deluge of shots in front of the 12-foot wide, 6-6 high net. "You got to be crazy to be a goalkeeper in this," Tinnion said.

In short, it's controlled mayhem as 12 players scramble about with the ball ricocheting off everything. The game is more fast-paced and high-scoring than outdoor soccer. There are no 1-0 results. Risk of injury (except for netminders) is minimal. Judging by business at IV Seasons and Square Lake, plenty are playing the sport. Terry Dilworth, director of Square Lake Racquet Club's indoor soccer facility in Bloomfield Hills, and Tinnion said that they're filled to capacity with 2,500 participants playing at each place. "WE'VE HAD to turn some teams down," Dilworth said. "It's really a hot sport." It's already quite the attraction in places like St. Louis and Cleveland. Klaas de Boer, who runs four indoor facilities in Cleveland, estimates there's more than 400 teams playing at his four places. "It's more popular with the adults, whose fitness level might not be there," said de Boer, whose book on the sport, "Indoor Soccer For the Coach, Player and Spectator" is due out in June. "With the shorter field and the substitution rule, they can play it." Novices also enjoy it along with experienced outdoor players, who get an opportunity to work on individual skills year-round. Gary Parsons, Oakland University soccer coach, said most of his players go to the indoor game dur-

'If we were in Florida, I might not (advocate indoor soccer). Beggars can't be choosers. That's what we are in the winter time. You have to take what you can get.'

— Gary Parsons
OU soccer coach

ing the winter. Parsons, though, is a reluctant advocate of the sport. "If we were in Florida, I might not (advocate indoor soccer)," said Parsons, whose OU squad made three-straight NCAA Division II tournament appearances (1982-84). "Beggars can't be choosers. That's what we are in the winter time. You have to take what you can get." One of the negatives of indoor soccer, in relation to the outdoor brand, is that the smaller playing area doesn't promote the long-passing game. Also, goalkeepers tend to develop bad habits by stopping shots indoors with their feet, instead of using their hands, Parsons said.

THERE ARE some pluses, though, according to Parsons. One is because of the smaller area, players have to dribble out of tight spots which enhances their ball-handling skills. "Another plus is that instead of 11 players playing on a large field, there's six on a side indoors. "Players can get a lot more touches on the ball." Good dribbling techniques are needed to excel indoors along with good eye-and-foot coordination. The running is harder than outdoor soccer, but it's done in short shifts in a smaller area. The strategy of the game also incorporates a little from basketball, especially when setting up man-to-man defenses. Borrowing from hockey and basketball has made the indoor game more identifiable with Americans. Professionally, the outdoor game has failed miserably as a spectator sport because of its slow pace and foreignness. In Detroit, three pro soccer teams went belly up.

TINNION, WHO'S also been involved with amateur soccer in the state as a coach, sees indoor soccer as a needed factor in the development of U.S. players. "A lot of people didn't start playing this game (here) until they were 9 or 10 years old," he said. "Now they can play it year round." Since 1983, when IV Seasons first opened, Tinnion said there has been a 50 to 75 percent improvement in the standard of indoor play, especially in the over-30 leagues. Outdoor soccer coaches, who first learned the game from manuals, are practicing what they preach by playing soccer indoors. Tinnion, an Englishman, learned like most of his countrymen to play soccer (or football) outdoors. He later encountered the indoor game. In the U.S., the opposite has happened. The first contact most people have with soccer is indoors. Then they might go and learn how to play outdoors.

Purdue-bound McDonald puts 'spike' into S'craft

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Two weeks ago, Redford Bishop Borgess' Debbie McDonald didn't exactly have little boilermakers dancing in her head. But the 6-1 senior volleyball player will be a Boilermaker of the Purdue variety next year. McDonald, whose pursuers included USC, Kentucky and Western Michigan, made the Indiana school the college of her choice. The irony is Purdue didn't start its recruiting efforts for the talented hitter until two weeks ago. But 14 days and a trip to West Lafayette was enough for McDonald, an Observer All-Area player the last two years, to say yes. "I went there for a visit, and I really liked it," said McDonald, who carries a 3.5 grade-point average in the classroom. "It's close to home, and the players there made it feel that way."

SATURDAY, HOME for McDonald and her Bishop Borgess cohorts is the Schoolcraft Invitational Tournament at Schoolcraft College. Borgess and two-time defending champion Livonia Stevenson are two of the 30 teams expected. Some area teams also participating include Livonia Ladywood, Livonia Churchill, Livonia Franklin, Plymouth Salem, Redford Union, Redford Thurston, North Farmington, Farmington Harrison, Garden City and Wayne Memorial. "I like being able to play against different schools," McDonald said. "Some of the teams are tough competition." Competition isn't foreign to McDonald,

VOLLEYBALL CLASSIC
WHAT: The annual Schoolcraft College Invitational High School Volleyball Tournament.
WHEN: Saturday, Feb. 15, beginning at 7:30 a.m. and continuing until approximately 10 p.m.
WHERE: Schoolcraft College, Haggerty Road north of Six Mile in Livonia.
HOW MUCH: All-day passes: $1 students, $2 adults.
WHO: 30 teams. Area teams include Livonia Stevenson (two-time defending champ), Bishop Borgess, Clarenceville, North Farmington, Farmington Harrison, Farmington, Garden City, Ladywood, Livonia Churchill, Livonia Franklin, Plymouth Salem, Redford Union, Redford Thurston and Wayne Memorial. Others include Temperance-Bedford, Dearborn, Dearborn Fordson, Fenton, Lutheran East, Roseville Brablc, Allen Park, Detroit Henry Ford, Rochester Adams, Grand Blanc, Ida, Walled Lakes Western, Walled Lake Central, Northville, Novi and Flint Atherton.

who toured West Germany last summer with a team sponsored by the Livonia Rotary. The team finished second to a squad from Turkey in the tournament.

McDonald, who plays volleyball year-round, was a member of the U.S. Junior Olympic team after both her sophomore and junior years.

WHILE SPIKING is her main forte, McDonald's leadership abilities just surfaced in her senior year. Her new role has helped the Spartans to be heard in their quest for a Catholic League title.

"She's really grown into a leader-type," Borgess coach Jerry Abraham said. "She's intense, but it's a quiet intense. She's not flamboyant."

Even with her towering 6-1 frame, McDonald never felt comfortable with teammates looking up to her until this season.

"I feel closer to my teammates," she said. "I didn't feel like a leader before. When the team gets down, you have to motivate them to play together and get along." McDonald, who plans to major in special education at Purdue, finds encouraging autistic children just as rewarding. In her spare time, she works with them at Burger Center in Garden City. She started there only a few weeks ago as a volunteer. It was somewhat intimidating at first. Now, getting them to attempt writing their name ranks up there with the satisfaction of a well-placed spike.

"YOU PLAY WITH talented people, and then you work with people who are slower," McDonald explained. "When those people are able to communicate with you, it's a good feeling."

It's comparable to the feeling McDonald gets when she plays volleyball, a sport she didn't embrace until three years ago. Her sister, Colleen, was active in the sport and wanted her sister to play.

At first, Debbie didn't take up her sister's offer. Since relenting, it's hard to get her off the court.

Her one-dimensional sporting venture, though, has turned out to be McDonald's strength.

"She's only played one sport," noted Abraham. "She's played the high school season and then in the summer."

"So many people ask me if I play basketball," said McDonald, whose size would make her a center on most teams. "I played it a few times in grade school. I didn't feel right."

For the Boilermakers, it's a hitter instead of a cager.

Falcons drub listless Rocks

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

Somebody has extinguished Plymouth Salem's pilot light. The team is playing with no fire.

Farmington, loser of its last six basketball games, came into the Salem gym Tuesday night and waxed the Rocks 66-60 — the game was not as close as the score might indicate.

"We're just not playing with any intensity at all," Salem coach Bob Brodie said. "You'd think when a team beats you once you'd want to get a piece of them the next time around."

Salem didn't look like it wanted to beat anyone, especially in the first half.

Inspired by the play of Bruce Kratt and Kyle Mutz, Farmington raced to a 42-27 halftime lead. Kratt scored 16 of his 22 points in the half and Mutz score 11 of his 19.

THE FALCONS scored at will against several different Salem defenses.

es. They scored inside, outside and at the foul line. Kratt was nine for 10 at the line in the second quarter.

"Bruce had a real good game tonight," Falcon coach Rich Roy said. "Salem played a man-to-man on us for the most part, and we just posted up Bruce because he was bigger than his man. We did not have to shoot from the outside much tonight and that's good for us. Most teams have been playing zone against us."

Salem pinned its ears back and made a run at Farmington in the second half. But the closest it could get was the six-point spread at the buzzer.

"It seems like every game has been like this for us," Brodie said. "We'll play one good half or one good quarter. We just never seem to put a whole game together. You know, I cannot remember the last time we've played a good game."

SINCE BEATING Livonia Churchill on Jan. 7, the Rocks have lost seven of its last 11 games.

To add insult to injury, Farmington had not only lost its last six games but had never beaten Salem at Salem.

When asked to explain his team's sudden turnaround, Roy jokingly said, "We were due."

Seriously, though, several things happened Tuesday that hadn't been happening during the skid. No. 1, the shots were falling. Farmington had been shooting under 30 percent over the last three weeks. The team shot nearly 45 percent against Salem (22 of 49).

Second, the team played a physical inside game. Mutz (nine rebounds), Craig Petersmark and Mike Kramer helped Farmington control the paint.

Third, the Falcons knocked down their free throws. The team hit 22 of 28 from the line. Salem hit 10 of 15.

"They deserved every free throw they took," Brodie said. "We played lazy defense. Instead of moving our feet, we just slapped and reached."

Lastly, Farmington got a huge boost from its bench. Kramer (eight points and three rebounds) and Mark Stevens (six points) gave the team quality minutes.

THOSE FACTORS, plus the superb efforts of Kratt and Mutz, minimized the absence of starting guard Tony Racka who was in Florida competing for $1 million in the CBA hot shot contest.

For Salem (7-6 in the Western Lakes, 8-8 overall) Mike Hale led the way with 23 points. Paul Makara added 19 points and seven assists.

"Those two have been doing it for us all year," Brodie said. "We just have to get them some help."

The win improves Farmington's league record to 5-9, 7-9 overall.

CANTON 59, FRANKLIN 45: The Patriots managed to stay close for three quarters, but visiting Plymouth Canton pulled away in the final eight minutes for the Western Lakes win.

Joel Mies scored a game-high 21 points and pulled down eight rebounds for the Chiefs, 9-5 WLAA and 9-7 overall. Tyrone Reeves connected for 12.

Livonia Franklin, 9-13 WLAA and 0-14 overall, stayed within striking distance most of the game. The Patriots trailed by only three points going into the final eight minutes of play.

Canton, which led 13-11 at the half, responded with a 22-point deluge in the final quarter. The score was tied 8-8 after the first eight minutes.

Mark Kerpet collected 13 points for the winless Patriots.

PLYM. CHRISTIAN 84, LIGGETT 82, 3 OT: Dave Cadaret sank two free throws with four seconds left in the third overtime Tuesday to lift Plymouth Christian past host Grosse Pointe Woods University-Liggett in Michigan Independent action.

The win helped the Eagles rebound from their first loss of the season last Friday to Huron Valley.

"This one was a big one to see if we were going to rebound," said Plymouth Christian coach Jeff Cook. "Our kids played well mentally and emotionally."

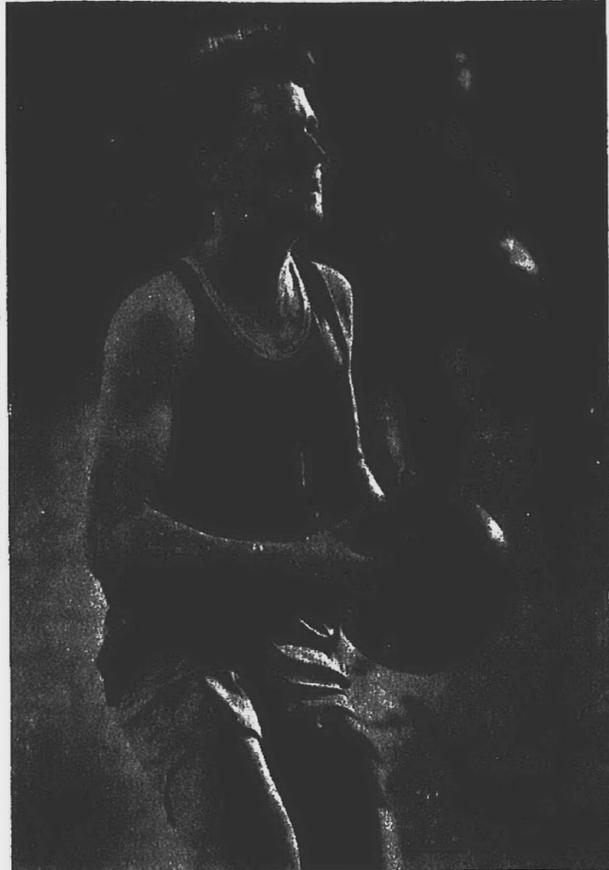

The score was knotted at 50-50 at the end of regulation, 55-55 after the first overtime and 63-63 to send it into a third session of overtime.

The Eagles outscored the Knights 11-9 in the third overtime.

Rod Windle, who scored 16 points from the fourth quarter on, finished with a game-high 28 for Plymouth Christian. Jim McCarthy collected 18 while brother Pat McCarthy sank 14. Steve Windle scored 10.

Kevin Calcagno scored 25 for Liggett, 2-9 Michigan Independent and 2-11 overall. Kevin Darby added 22 for the Knights.

Plymouth Christian is 10-1 in conference play and 12-1 overall.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Pat McCarthy scored 14 points helping Plymouth Christian take out University-Liggett in triple overtime Tuesday night.

CC advances

With 50 points in the second half, Redford Catholic Central had its ticket to Calihan Hall already bought.

The Shamrocks advanced to second-round play in the Catholic League A-B playoffs with an easy 85-61 romp Tuesday over visiting Royal Oak Shrine (12-4) in the first round game. CC now meets Southgate Aquinas in a second-round battle at 6 p.m. Sunday at the University of Detroit's Calihan Hall.

Paul Tavara and Lance Vaccarelli could even drive the bus there. Both had hot hands in the rout, each scoring more than 20 points for the Shamrocks. Tavara checked in with a game-high 27 points. Vaccarelli followed suit with 25.

CC (12-4), which already had rung up a 35-24 halftime lead, outscored the Knights 50-37 in the second half. In first eight minutes, the Shamrocks led 22-7.

Shrine was led by Tyrone Fuller, who netted 18 points.

Damerons lead the way as Salem keeps league crown

Glenn Cemazar took the 132 title beating Salem's Kevin Freeman 8-3 in the finals.

As expected, Dan Schimansky won at 145, besting Walled Lake Western's Paul Colone 10-4.

In perhaps the most dramatic championship match of the day, Glenn's Mark Kropp nipped Walled Lake Central's Chris Pryjomski at 167, 1-0. Kropp's point came late in the third and final round.

Central, though, posted three champions. Tom Farr outpointed Salem's Jamie Woochuk 9-2 at 185; Pat Pruitt pinned North Farmington's Paul Cook in 3:42 at 138; and Larry Sevigny outpointed Salem's Todd Bourlier at 98, 15-8.

LIVONIA CHURCHILL placed fifth overall in the meet but could boast two league champs. Salem Yaffai nipped Canton's Tim Birely at 119, 3-1, and Brian Clemens took the crown at 155 besting Livonia Franklin's Doug Stebbins 12-6.

Other champions crowned Saturday were: Dan Parilo, Farmington, was the class of 198 pinning Western's John Holyfield in 3:28 and Dave Zender, Western, beat Salem's Fred Calma 18-5 at 105.

In addition to its league championship trophy, Salem picked up some hardware for winning the Lakes Division championship. Walled Lake Western was the Western Division champ.

CC wears Catholic crown

Redford Catholic Central produced nine individual winners en route to a team record 238 team points in capturing yet another Catholic League wrestling championship Saturday at Harper Woods Notre Dame.

CC clearly outdistanced the field as second-place Southgate Aquinas scored 132 points. Third-place Birmingham Brother Rice had 99.

Among the CC individual winners were Mike Gentile (98 pounds), Brendan Rock (105), Jason Wiebeck (119), Matt Helm (126), Chris Lemanski (132), Mitch Quint (138), Chris Rodriguez (145), Lee Krueger (167) and Judd Snyder (198).

Bob Yeager (155) finished second for the Shamrocks, ranked fifth in Class A by a statewide coaches poll.

Mary Mohacsi honored as top woman bowler of year

By W.W. Edgar
staff writer

After serving eight one-year terms as Detroit's Bowling Queen, Mary Mohacsi reached a new high in her bowling career last weekend.

She was honored as the top woman bowler of the year at the Bowling Proprietors Hall of Fame ceremonies at the Fairlane Club in Dearborn.

Prior to that, the native Livonian was named top woman amateur bowler by the Women's International Bowling Council. That honor came after her showing in international competition where she won a pair of gold medals.

For her efforts, Mohacsi was honored at the White House where she presented President Reagan with a bowling ball and bag.

Later she represented the United States in London in another tourney.

Prior to Sunday's award, she was named Woman Bowler of the Year in Michigan.

MOHACSI WAS introduced to bowling by her mother more than 40 years ago. She was taken at the age of 10 to watch her mother bowl at the Denby Recreation Center on Detroit's east side. She watched and became fascinated by the toppling pins.

Mohacsi graduated from Denby High School and later, when her family moved to the west side, she became a teacher at Cody High. It was there that she started to make a name for herself. (She later taught at Wedgewood and Elm schools in Clarenceville).

She sought out the late Clarence Hoffman, at the time part owner of Livonia Lanes, for help. Mohacsi was attracted to him because he had developed three good bowlers in his own family. (Lois McAllister, his daughter, was inducted into the Hall of Fame last year).

Under the tutoring of Hoffman, Mohacsi corrected her flaws and started up the ladder, eventually leading to a Detroit Bowling Hall of Fame spot.

But her biggest thrill in bowling, however, came during a Tigers' season opener where she was driven to home plate and honored before a packed stadium during pregame ceremonies.

ANOTHER CAREER highlight came when she converted the almost impossible 7-10 split only two nights earlier at Wonderland Lanes before her last honor.

"That's the first time in about 40 years that I've ever topped the impossible," she said. "Now that I did that, and earlier rolled a perfect (300) game, I am going to shoot for an 800 series. I'll be trying every time I appear with the team in league bowling every Monday and Wednesday."

When Mohacsi decided to switch from school teaching 10 years ago, she gave her life to bowling. She is now closer than ever as the owner of a pro shop at Merri-Bowl Lanes.

She has taken on her son, Mark, as a partner, and like his mother, Mark is improving with a perfect game to his credit.

Meanwhile, mother and son have built up their clientele, and as Mary puts it, "Business is well."

She received quite an ovation Sunday night when she was introduced to the nearly 600 people gathered at the Hall of Fame dinner.

As she tucked the latest plaque under arm, Mohacsi said, "I've got one more goal. I want to shoot an 800 series."

Jones captures Western Open

The steady Dina Jones of Pontiac averaged 214 to win the monthly Western Open tournament recently at Wonderland Lanes.

Jones went against a strong field that produced good bowling among the women.

Aside from the tourney, Marilyn Lueck took high scoring honors for the week with a 279 game.

MERRI-BOWL: Clark Chuck Anderson took scoring honors for the week when he turned in a 698 series to beat Steve Haefner by four pins. Behind the pair came Max Hansen, who rolled a 286 for high game.

WOODLAND LANES: In the Ford Ladies league, Darlene Walker took top honors with a 6-1. In the Thursday Ladies circuit, Laura Kurczynski showed the way with a 650. On the men's side, John Waluner earned a place in the 700 club when he blasted the pins for a 724. Scott House, meanwhile, posted a 286 to pace the Juniors.

WESTLAND BOWL: John Connor showed the way in the Hungry Howie's Classic with a 688. Rick Rotto was next in line with a 668. In the other men's loop, Rod Rumble was high with a 656.

sports roundup

SALEM 91, BRIGHTON 81: Plymouth Salem muscled up in a couple of events Tuesday night and swam to an impressive non-league win at Brighton. The Rocks put together two strong relay teams, swept the 100-yard freestyle and went 1-2-4 in the 200 individual medley en route to the victory.

David Miller, Geoff Taylor, Jamie Dunn and Don Harwood went 1:48.2 to capture the 200 medley relay. Kevin Zarow, Tony Atwell, Phil Bocketti and Rick Cummings took the 400 freestyle relay in 3:29.2.

Individually, Cummings took the 200 IM (2:11.8) and Zarow the 100 free (50.4).

It wasn't many firsts, but it was enough. The team is now 7-3 on the season.

GYMNASTICS
A.A. PIONEER 137.0, E. LANSING 121.35, CANTON 118.9: The 118.9 was Plymouth Canton's third state qualifying score (the team needs one more to qualify), but coach John Cunningham believes his team's score should have been higher.

"We just got drilled on floor exercise," he said. "We were scored two full points lower than we had been all year. We just weren't that bad."

Darcy Gignac and Mary Jo Charron were the Chiefs top all-around scorers. Gignac scored 8.05 on vault, 7.6 on uneven bars, 7.8 on balance beam and 7.1 on floor. Charron earned a 7.75 on vault, 7.0 on bars, 8.3 on beam and 6.95 on floor.

Maureen McLean scored an 8.15 on vault. Megan McGowan posted a 7.5 on bars and Sharon Moran scored 7.25 on floor. The Chiefs are 2-6 on the season.

OCC women upset league-leading S'craft

The women's basketball team at Schoolcraft College had its 10-game winning streak snapped Saturday night by host Oakland Community College, 61-57. Despite its first Eastern Conference loss in 10 games, first-place Schoolcraft (9-1) still maintains a one-game lead on OCC (8-2). The Lady Ocelots are 18-5 overall.

The Lady Ocelots' downfall was fouls as they played the final 15 seconds with only four available players after four were disqualified.

"Our offense didn't move well against their defense," said SC assistant coach Jack Grenan. "We did a lot of standing around."

Kim Chandler, Schoolcraft's leading scorer with 18 points, fouled out along with Lori Abbas (14 points), Tracy Ladouceur and Michelle Richards. Sue Lubbe added 10 in a losing cause.

"Losing our two big people, Ladouceur and Chandler, really hurt," Grenan said. OCC hit only 9 of 22 free throws compared with 12 of 19 for Schoolcraft.

Julie Campbell, who scored 15 points in the second half, led OCC with 17. Joanne Gregory and Heidi Erlandson each contributed 14.

On Friday, Schoolcraft traveled to Flint Mott and came away with a 77-64 Eastern Conference win.

Queen, Goose: 2 biggest stars in Long Beach

By Doris Scharfenberg
special writer

THE R.M.S. QUEEN MARY, once empress of the high seas, has reached 50 and her birthday party is going full steam ahead in Long Beach, Calif.

Permanently berthed next to another celebrity, Howard Hughes' Spruce Goose, the ship-turned-hotel has scheduled a long list of anniversary high jinks through May 26.

They include a "50 years of Fashion" show, egg hunts, big bands, commemorative coins, and a search for the "missing crown jewels" (Winner keeps a diamond). There will be more champagne than was seen at her launching.

Ocean liners are expected to be of ample size, but the 1,000-foot-long Queen Mary is awesome, a 12-story ship looming at dockside like a walled city.

SHE WAS built to be the biggest, fastest, most glorious ship ever to leave Southampton, and, incidentally, to carry England's messages abroad; "R.M.S." stands for Royal Mail Ship.

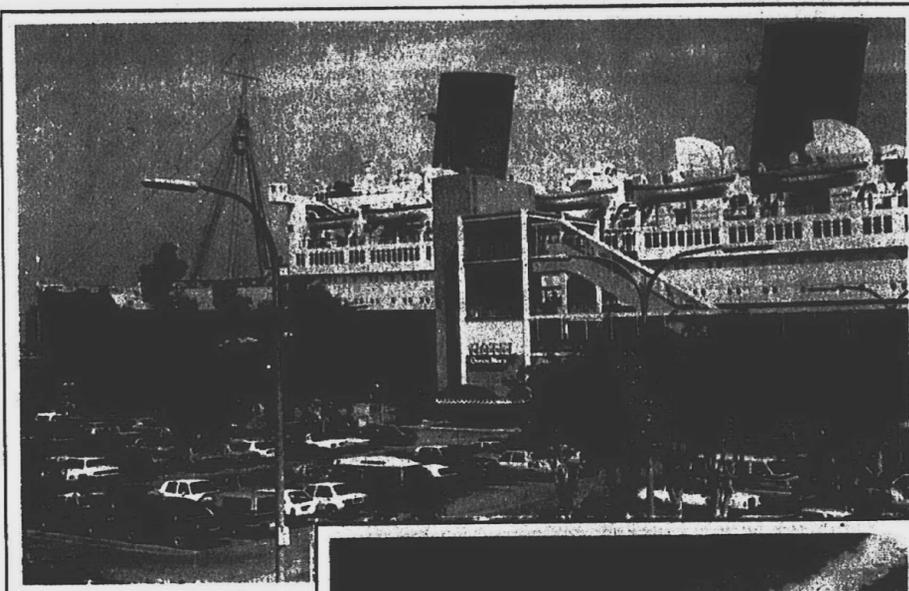

Two thousand passengers could be carried in three classes of accommodations, none of which were sparse.

A First Class ticket at $564 round-trip (1936 prices) gave you a chance to dine near Gloria Swanson or the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, and rented one of the largest cabins ever seen on a cruise ship. These original staterooms still gleam with wood paneling, Art Deco trim, streamlining, formica and plastic... costly materials in the thirties.

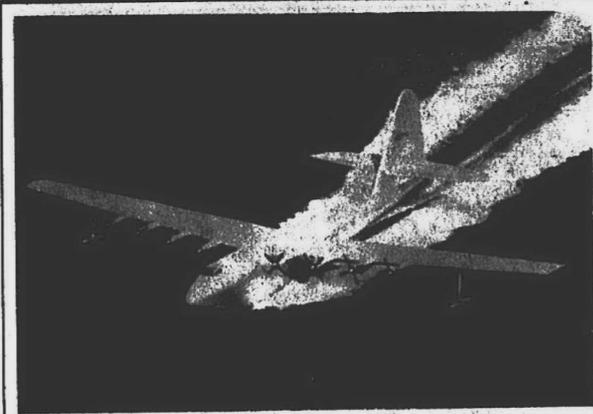

DURING WORLD War II, the Queen went to war, putting her 27 massive boilers to work transporting 800,000 men past enemy subs and winning citations for bravery.

In postwar economic battles, however, the high-priced Queen could not compete with inexpensive jet service to Europe. Long Beach paid $5 million in 1967 to buy the vessel as a tourist attraction. After 1,001 Atlantic crossings and a farewell voyage around Cape Horn, she became a Californian. More than a million spectators welcomed "their ship" to her last port.

After reconstructive surgery and cosmetic paint, the Queen Mary is like a museum outfitted with every luxury hotel facility. You can dine in high style, hold a convention, or sail into matrimony in the gem-like Gothic Chapel.

NO ONE gets seasick on Q.M. honeymoons any more, but you can feel the sea moving when harbor waters are rough.

Stretched out in your own suite, you can wonder about the famous people who occupied it in earlier days. There is a "living time capsule" feeling on board; an echo from the past that doesn't interfere with the present.

Groups touring the ship are piloted around most of the hotel areas to preserve guest privacy and at-sea illusions. On the bridge, for example, a sound light show simulates an ocean storm crisis, even to rain pouring against windows.

A night on board runs from $59 to $89, single occupancy; $75-$105 double. Lower prices are for inside rooms.

THE SPRUCE Goose, another think-big creation, is berthed a few steps away from the Queen. It was also built to carry quantity payloads across the Atlantic in record time.

Hughes' XF-11, called the Flying

Boat or the "Spruce Goose," was designed to lift men and arms to Europe above the reach of German U-Boats in World War II.

The Goose, the world's largest airplane, nests under the world's largest geodesic dome, a bubble worthy of its own postcard. Inside the roof is painted black; the Flying Boat under spotlights is white. It stuns. Nobody expects much airplane. Eight-engines, wings spreading as wide from wing-tip to wing-tip as two Boeing 707s.

Visitors clamber up a steel staircase, walk through the cargo hold and peer into the cockpit where a wax Hughes is looking over his shoulder. "Here's Howard" exhibits, aviation displays, and a 400-seat theater showing related films are there to answer questions.

HUGHES'S PERSONA so dominates that it is nearly forgotten how Howard had to be argued into this project by Henry Kaiser, inventor of the Liberty Ships. Once Hughes saw the merit of Kaiser's idea, however, the aviation ace, millionaire movie-maker, etc., put everything he could into making it work. The prototype was begun in 1942.

Metal shortages forced the use of laminated wood, but only slivers of spruce are found anywhere. The Spruce Goose is really a birch bird. Another high-tech note: ordinary beach balls were used to add buoyancy when it landed.

Of course there were nay-sayers to battle. In a scenario suitable for one of his own movies, Hughes faced congressional inquiries and was accused of fraud and boondoggling, but in the last reel he dazzled 'em all.

It took five years to finish the plane but in November 1947, he taxied across Long Beach Harbor and flew. It flew under a minute, under a mile, but it flew.

TOO LATE. The war was over by then and no one needed even one such plane, let alone the 5,000 optimistically planned.

When Hughes died his Goose became an endangered specimen, threatened by museums and collectors who sought to buy parts. When the Goose was on the auction table and ready to be carved up, it was the Aero Club of Southern California and Wrather Corp. who came to a last-minute rescue. Hughes would have relished the drama.

The Spruce Goose, the Queen Mary and an English-accented shopping complex called Londontown Village are found at the southern end of the Long Beach Freeway. They are open daily from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. but the box office closes at 4 p.m. to allow two hours for the last tour. For information, call 213-435-3511.

FIFTY YEARS ago Long Beach was a sunny town for tense Hollywoodians like Clark Gable and Carol Lombard. Stylish homes and cottages, some grand major industries like oil, aviation as well as abundant convention facilities. Aging Art Deco and Spanish Revival structures have been fixed up to reflect proudly in glassy high-rise offices. Downtown shopping is good.

The 1926 Breakers Hotel, for example, is old elegance in new shape, just a short hike from "Queen." $50 and up for a double room. In the same area, Shoreline Parak offers biking, hiking and fishing.

Go on a whale watch, sail to Catalina, or take a "Gondola Getaway" canal tour around Naples Island. It is a true Venetian ride with cheese, crackers and Pavarotti singing on tape. You bring the wine. $40 per hour.

Rancho Los Alamitos (Ranch of the Little Cottonwoods), L.B.'s oldest structure, invites tours. Intriguing Spanish-Victorian home, once the center of a huge ranch. Wed.-Sun. afternoons.

Served directly by Republic and other lines, Long Beach draws from Los Angeles International, "is an easy drive to Disneyland, Hollywood, San Diego or Palm Springs.

And don't forget the long, long sandy beach for which Long Beach was named. For a visitors guide and more information: Long Beach Visitors Council, 180 E. Ocean Blvd., No. 150, Long Beach, CA 90802. Phone 213-436-3645.

For a mini-vacation, try a hotel

Special weekend price packages at area hotels, coupled with events and activities that range from the sedentary to the strenuous, make Southeast Michigan a great place for winter weekend getaways, according to the Michigan Travel Bureau.

The Hotel St. Regis in Detroit's New Center offers "The Holiday - With a European Accent," a package including weekend accommodations and theater tickets.

Rates for the elegantly restored rooms range from $175 for one night per couple, to $199 for two nights per couple, and include chilled champagne upon arrival as well as a $35 credit toward a weekend dinner in the Restaurant St. Regis.

Reservations for the St. Regis "Holiday" also include tickets for a performance at the Michigan Opera Theatre, the Attic Theatre or the Fisher Theatre, all in the New Center's "Theatre Row," or an Orchestra Hall concert.

WEEKEND selection is based upon ticket availability.

Another all-around-downtown Detroit excursion takes advantage of special weekend rates at the Hotel Pontchartrain, the Westin Hotel or the new Omni International. Rooms range from $59 to $135 per night, based on double occupancy.

The Detroit Institute of Arts offers films, Sunday Brunch with Bach, youth theater performances or just the opportunity to quietly contemplate its 65,000-work collection.

The Detroit Science Center will fascinate kids of every age with its hands-on approach to the sciences.

For an evening with an ethnic twist, Greektown and Trapper's Alley, a five-level "festival" mall with 90 shops and restaurants, provide the stage for a colorful event.

THE GREAT Escape Weekends at Dearborn's Henry Ford Museum take winter visitors back into another era to enjoy recreations of its entertainment, fashions, food and famous personalities.

Visitors at the 1920's Great Escape, Feb. 22-23, will listen to early jazz, dance the Charleston, ogle "daring" flapper fashions, and mingle with Charles Lindbergh, Gloria Swanson and Charlie Chaplin. Weekends in January, March and April will bring back the 1900s, 1940s and 1950s.

Greenfield Village also offers winter walking tours from January through mid-March. For information about tours and the Great Escape Weekends, call (313)-271-1976.

THE HISTORIC Dearborn Inn offers a two-night package including lodging and cocktails upon arrival for two people, and admittance to both the museum and village for $180. Call (313) 271-2700 for details.

Concert doesn't have any zing

By Neil Galanter
special writer

The Plymouth Symphony made an excellent attempt last Sunday to play an afternoon of orchestral music by Brahms, Faure and Shostakovich. Unfortunately, guest conductor Russell Reed's attempt did not make it many steps further than a good start.

First off, the Plymouth Symphony without a doubt has played much better on several occasions. It seemed as if last Sunday was just not its day. The symphony is experiencing the winter flu bug, orchestrally speaking.

The program opened with a constrained and overly metronomical reading of Brahms' Academic Festival Overture, Opus 80. Instead of the piece lilting along or flowing eagerly, the music seemed to plod along uneventfully.

Next up at bat was an effort at recreating various tonal colors in French composer Gabriel Faure's Suite: "Pelleas et Melisande." Although there was some enjoyable playing from the flute and harp in the duet part of the Sicilienne, due to poor intonation from the string section — weak entrances among other problems — the performance was otherwise lackluster and unsolidified.

THERE WERE many good beginning formations of musical ideas. However, nothing ever seemed to gel or formulate, and one was left waiting.

Reed's conducting throughout the entire program was precise and reliable, but I never felt any real deep or meaty insight into music itself. The Shostakovich Symphony No. 5, Opus 47, was played by the orchestra after intermission. This piece has many areas in the movies

score that can be at the least hair-raisingly exciting. Needless to say that never was the case.

Instead, one heard some highly polished brass playing, a few very decent and solid development sections, but almost no provocative conviction or relaying of meaning of Shostakovich's musical ideas. There is tension, heroism and nationalism in this Russian music. None of that really came through.

The piece is filled with various musical innuendos, and there was far too infrequent evidence that the Plymouth Symphony was highlighting these. It is obvious that Reed is an accomplished conductor both of orchestral and band ensembles, but to my ear it would seem that perhaps he is more at home in the band repertoire because his orchestral shapes and ideas didn't really create that many musical sparks.

It is always difficult to analyze and give an exact cause to each problem. Sunday afternoon was just an off day, and one waits for the return of a good day. With zeal at that!

Actors help one another

By Cathie Breidenbach
special writer

THERE'S SOMETHING new stirring in the theatrical community. Last June, a group of actors and directors founded the Detroit Actors Collective as a support and networking group for those in the Detroit area who work professionally in theater, television and commercial film.

Every Monday night when most theaters are dark, they meet to exchange news of upcoming auditions as well as to support one another and provide opportunities to develop professional skills. They talk shop and sometimes swap props.

The group is small with 10 core members plus their guests, and until recently they met in a member's home. The format of meetings varies according to the needs of the members. Sometimes members critique one another as they read scripts to prepare for upcoming auditions. From time to time they invite a specialist to a meeting to lead the discussion, and next summer, they plan to sponsor a weekend workshop featuring instructors from Herbert Berghof and Uta Hagen's acting school in New York.

Meetings sometimes center on reading new plays by area playwrights because a goal of the Detroit Actors Collective is to foster original theater in the Detroit area.

PERFORMERS, better than others, know it's a Catch 22 proposition for an unknown playwright to get an original play produced. Most theaters are unwilling to take a chance on a new play unless it's already had a successful run, and it doesn't stand a chance of having that successful run unless some theater gets things rolling by daring to produce it in the first place.

Last spring the Detroit Actors Collective launched Kitty Dublin's play "Mirrors" in a public reading. Some of those who heard the reading decided the play warranted a full production. "Mirrors" is now playing at the State Fair Theatre through Saturday, March 1.

Detroit Actors Collective will present another original play, "All of the Monkeys" by Jan Radcliff, a Birmingham playwright and multifaceted entertainer. The comedy will debut as a full production at 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday, Feb. 21-22, and Thursday-Friday, Feb. 27-28, at the Knox Auditorium of the First Presbyterian Church of Birmingham.

Arthur Beer, celebrated actor and member of the University of Detroit Theatre Department, will direct.

Radcliff said of Beer, "He has a wonderful comedic sense and the actors love working with him because he's such a good actor himself."

The production is "very much a collaboration," with Radcliff producing

'Lots of people think an original play is probably avant-garde and obscure. Mine isn't. It's middle of the road, middle American.'

— Jan Radcliff

and consulting on all facets of its first staging.

Radcliff said the cooperative arrangement is "better for me as a playwright than it would be to see the play produced in an established theater."

Working closely with the experienced Beer gives her an opportunity to polish the play as it moves toward opening night, and to see what works before a live audience and what doesn't.

THE PLAYWRIGHT has already added three short scenes to her two-act comedy about a successful 40-year-old novelist who is trying to sort out what the patterns in his life mean.

"LOTS OF people think an original play is probably avant-garde and obscure. Mine isn't," she said. "It's middle of the road, middle America."

Radcliff, a native of the southwest, spent 10 years as a singer with a group that presented a Las Vegas-type act featuring a variety of popular music. She wrote song lyrics and even cut several records.

"I don't sing a lick now and I have no desire to go back into a bar six nights a week, but I like singing," she said. "It's just not a form of expression for me."

A number of years ago, she moved to Birmingham where she lives with her husband, Rip, a director of industrial films, and with her young son and daughter. In the Detroit area, she has worked on stage in a Jimmy Linn Dinner Theatre production and at the University of Detroit in "Talking With"

Radcliff is tall, slim and model pretty. In fact she worked briefly as a photographic model and as a modeling

All her years on stage have endowed her with an innate sense of what is likely to please an audience, and she puts that sense of theater to use now as a playwright.

She feels writing plays is her creative relief, a well-meaning bumbler, slow-witted, dense but always loyal. He is also noticeably older than Holmes, which was not the case in the stories. The ending, restored in recent years to some prints, makes a, for the time, shocking reference to Holmes' cocaine addiction.

cellent in atmosphere, acting and pacing. Rathbone was nearly perfect as Holmes — razor sharp, brutally quick witted, athletic. He fit the physical look of the early illustrations to a tee. Bruce was a perfect foil for Rathbone's wit. He is not the Watson of the stories, who was a charming, intelligent, patient man who was just not in the same genius league with his gifted friend.

Bruce's movie Watson is a comic relief, a well-meaning bumbler, slow-witted, dense but always loyal. He is also noticeably older than Holmes, which was not the case in the stories. The ending, restored in recent years to some prints, makes a, for the time, shocking reference to Holmes' cocaine addiction.

timing in our lives can make all the difference. Things go on in Alex's (the main character's) life that he's unaware of. "The play is a discovery of what those things mean."

She admits to being a doer of crossword puzzles and reader of English mysteries.

"What I like about the play is that there are clues there, and there's satisfaction for the audience to discover what they mean. 'All of the Monkeys' is a comedy — sheer entertainment — just fun."

ALTHOUGH SHE is an experienced entertainer, she has never formally studied drama and doesn't hold a college degree. She says she came to playwrighting by the back door and speaks well of the merits of learning a skill by doing it.

"Most things I write about have to do with my personal philosophy of life," she said.

In the six-character play "Monkeys," timing is crucial. "Comedy, of course, is timing," she said, and explains how stars flocked to perform in these formula films because they could be guaranteed a healthy profit. This was the biggest star coup of them all.

Steve McQueen and Paul Newman were the top box office draws. Here they don't even have to act very much as a firefighter and architect who work together to battle a fire in a high-rise office building. William Hol-

If you enjoy seeing people burn and get a thrill out of watching flames shooting into the sky, this is your kind of movie. Otherwise, it gets tedious and even McQueen's macho and Newman's passion can't save it.

Performances of "The Wayside Motor Inn" continue through Sunday, Feb. 23, at the Studio Theatre on the Oakland University campus in Rochester Hills. For ticket information, call the Center for the Arts box office at 370-3013.

By Helen Zucker
special writer

If you can find the Studio Theatre in the wilds of Oakland University's snowy hills, by all means, do so. "The Wayside Motor Inn," by A.R. Gurney Jr., of the impeccable ear, is easily one of the best productions of the year.

Directed by sure-handed, intelligent Yolanda Fleischer, Gurney's endearing play, about 10 people who are holed up in a motel near Boston for different reasons, travels effortlessly across the footlights. It's real theater. A slice of authentic middle-Americana.

The remarkable cast enters and exits with easy precision, never loses a cue, never intrudes into the "wrong room" on the open set and always makes the most of Gurney's wonderful dialogue. This playwright hears how real people speak, and this cast is up to rendering Gurney's dialogue justice.

Tom Emmott is intense as Andy, the doctor who has come to the inn to battle over furniture and photos. Mary E. Rychlewski, a 21-year-old actress, turns in an astonishingly mature, strong performance as Ruth, the wife who "can't be neat," but knows that her five kids, her home and her part-time job are more important.

EMMOTT AND Rychlewski are immensely touching while playing scenes that could easily drop into soap opera. They never fall off the tightrope.

David Fox is very fine as Vince, the father who wants into Harvard, and the world of "Cabot, Cabot and Forbes." Vince makes speeches about "moving up and away" (from his immigrant parents and State U.). The investment of his own ambitions in his son's life is beautifully undercut by the love he feels for his son, his willingness to sew a shirt his son has torn, and by his changing the date of an interview that means more to him than it does to his son.

Ivan Geese is touching as Mark, the put-upon son, who manages to strike a blow for independence while giving in to the interview.

Christopher Olszty (who looks like a thinner Nick Nolte), is funny as Phil, the future med student who wants to buy a night with his girl with his birthday check from grandma. Jana Nicol, as Sally, the girlfriend (who reads "Jane Eyre" in bed and insists on "paying her half"), is sexy, funny and a natural, petite foil to Olszty.

Kelley Dillon as Sharon, the waitress who knows all about foods that will kill you (all foods), nearly steals the show. Sharon has terrific lines (most of them about who owns what), and Dillon is all energy as a '60s mentality who lives with her mother and kid and gets fired a lot.

STEPHEN A. LUCCI is slick and amusing as Ray, the man who talks to computers, calls his wife to accuse her of making out while he's gone, then dresses up in '60s gear and tries to make it with Sharon.

This cross-section of humanity is rounded out by Jim Ozinga as Frank, the grandpa who is tired of driving, who doesn't want people "fussing," and by the wonderful Shirley Benyas as Jessie, the grandma who gets lost driving around in circles, who wants to know "whatever happened to all those nice people who used to help us when we traveled?"

Jessie thinks the country is being run by teen-agers and tells Frank: "Half our friends are dead, the rest are staggering around Florida. Let's move to Boston." Benyas' great, dark eyes travel to the back of the theater whenever she speaks; her mobile face is never at rest, and the closing moments of the play are moving as Jessie comes in, a baby in her arms, happy at last, as the lights dim.

Play continues premiere run

In celebration of Black History Month, the Detroit Center for the Performing Arts is presenting the Detroit premiere of "Colored Peoples Time" by Leslie Lee.

Performances continue at 8:30 p.m. Fridays-Saturdays through Feb. 15 at the Eastown Theatre in Detroit. Tickets are $8 general admission, $7 in advance and $6 for students and seniors.

By Dale Northup/Herbert Conlan
special writer

The name Yamasaki has become a key word in American architectural vernacular.

Minorou Yamasaki who died last week made a notable imprint on the American landscape as he approached the second half of a century in architecture with the same gusto as when he began.

The Yamasaki-designed Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. building, now American Natural Resources, had a significant impact on the World Trade Center of New York which he did 17 years later.

He attributed his entry into the field of architecture to his uncle Koken Ito, a graduate architect from the University of California. Yamasaki attended the University of Washington where he excelled academically, despite racial discrimination, an issue to which he addressed himself in later years.

After his stint at U of W, he went to New York where he could be self sufficient. There he worked for the firm of Shreve, Lamb and Harmon, architects of the Empire State Building and Harrison, Foulhoux and Abramovitz, architects of Rockefeller Center.

From there he went to become the chief designer with Detroit's own Smith, Hinchman and Grylls. Yamasaki later went into partnership with George Hellmuth, but the St. Louis-Detroit partnership proved to be too much of a physical strain.

HE THEN embarked on the development of his own firm and the seminal work which really marked his beginnings — the McGregor Conference Center on Wayne State University's campus.

This building is a jewel which captures the architect's lifelong philosophy of architecture. Nestled in the center of an urban university, and surrounded by other structures, it is a breathtaking oasis of beauty.

Words that best describe it are delight, silhouette, texture and, above all, delicacy. The latter is most significant and characteristic of Yamasaki's later work. In regard to his work and a reference to fragility, his retort was, "No, delicate. Fragile means breaking apart."

It received an architectural award from the American Institute of Architects and, most notably, this year a 25-year award from the Detroit Chapter of the AIA.

WITHIN THE Detroit skyline, Yamasaki designed the Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. Building

(1959), now American Natural Resources. It was another significant work to influence the later development of the World Trade Center in New York (1976).

As he put it, "Our first high building. This was fun for me because it was the first time we used narrow floor to ceiling windows. They work well because people who work in the building get frightened with large windows. By narrowing the frames, the windows are no wider than your shoulders so people can look down or lean against the window."

The same format was chosen at the Trade Center along with the facade clad in aluminum, a technological first since the material actually helps support a part of the building's weight. Once the world's tallest buildings, they are slender, graceful silhouettes which punctuate the Manhattan skyline, a testament to the man who created them.

Yamasaki has left an indelible mark on the world of architecture. His works include an international airport in the eastern province of Saudi Arabia (1983) and the Shiga Sacred Garden in Shigan, Japan (1983).

On the local level are the Temple Beth El (1974) and the to-be-completed Wilshire West Office Building on Crooks Road by the Kirco Development Co. of Bloomfield Hills. The latter marks Yamasaki's re-entry into the area.

CLAD IN GLASS, the building represents "the cheapest material," said Yamasaki. Above all, it will compliment the community with a landscaped area three times the required area and typifying the element of serenity which the architect espoused in his designs.

From the smallest to the largest, the architect left his unique touch. A YMCA in northwest Detroit includes an unusual canopy roof section suggestive of a pagoda.

His office in Troy blends so unobtrusively into the natural surroundings, that it is hard for those who haven't been there to find it a first time. Inside it is a masterwork of simplicity with soaring ceilings and walls of glass.

Dale Northup teaches architecture at Center for Creative Studies and at area community colleges. Herbert Conlan is a local builder.

The McGregor Memorial on the Wayne State University campus is an architectural jewel nestled in the center of urban life. The building captures Yamasaki's architectural philosophy.

'Update: Detroit Artists' — rich, diverse

By Manon Meilgaard
special writer

"I never select artwork solely from slides," said Roy Slade, director of the Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum.

And in keeping with this solid principle, Slade, together with Susan Waller, curator, and Michele Rowe-Shields, administrator, undertook an extensive tour of the workplaces, studios and homes where the 18 Detroit artists chosen for the "Update: Detroit Artists" exhibition create and often live. One exception to this exploratory survey is primitive-nature painter Betty Brownlee, whose studio is the great outdoors.

The overall effect of this pastiche of more than 60 recent works — paintings, sculptures, assemblages, photographs, drawings and mixed media — is an exercise in diversity.

"There are two important aspects," said Slade, "definitely color . . . For example, Steven Benson is using more color in his photographs and an ongoing, tactile sense in the materials, shapes and forms of the sculptures and assemblages."

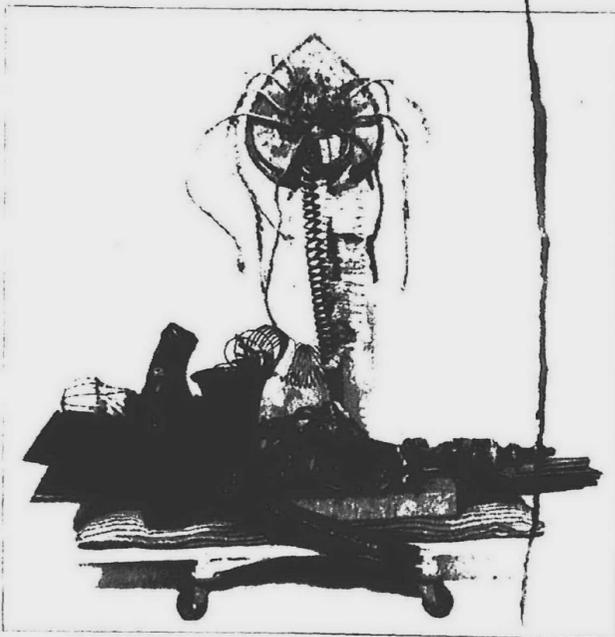

APART FROM Benson's sensitive photographs, which combine car-lined streets with a delicate tracery of bare-branched trees, two other members of Detroit's photographic community, Doug Aikenhead and Michael Sarnacki, are represented by some striking black and white studies. In one, Sarnacki captures the mood of jubilation, verging on the edge of violence, after the Detroit Tigers' World Series victory.

In the area of painting and drawing, realist Don Jacot magically transforms urban blight and squalor into images of nostalgia with his boarded storefronts, tubed factory towers, "burlesk" movie theaters and near-derelict money-lending establishments.

Former Guggenheim-fellowship recipient Don Shields has two large canvases in his unique abstract style, with splashes of brilliant, almost psychedelic color and Yolanda Sharpe uses symbolic, pyramid shapes and a progression of steps for her heavily pigmented, bold painting and construction with biblical themes.

Sculptures and assemblages predominate — from Susan Aaron-Taylor's small, delicate wood carvings of "Last Night's Heart Attack," an assemblage by Matt Corbin, dates from 1978.

Icarus-like creatures with wings and bird-heads on elongated, male torsos, Wendy MacGaw's steel and bronze pagoda-like miniature towers, to Ron Lear's two large, allegorical and symbolic assemblages that represent Man's destruction and contamination of the environment.

ANOTHER HUGE assemblage is Bob Vandervennet's free-standing, brickwork arch (the artist is also a skilled brick layer), which at first glance resembles a fireplace destined for a Gothic mansion. On closer inspection it is an arching bridge, set over panels of mirrors that simulate water. These three large assemblages are exciting, but demanding.

A new "find" is sculptor Matt Corbin, who has no inhibitions about explaining his work. He freely admits he is constantly on the lookout for any kind of scrap-heap junk. His "Last Night's Heart Attack" is a veritable example of art-out-of-detritus, complete with a skate-board base covered with striped ticking, grids, cables, mangled wires (a la Chris Burden) and an actual electrocardiograph reading that extends from a blood red, Valentine chocolate box heart.

Gilda Snowdon's encaustic layered wood, intertwined with rope and wire, reveals a progressive, more open dimension from her "cocooned" earlier work.

Artist Ted Lee Hadfield, who has become fascinated with balance, equilibrium and the joys and horrors of modern technology, explores "a new direction" with a majestic but menacing space rock (aren't they all?) in wood and aluminum.

Gary Einko exhibits imaginative, organic images in wood, which are wrapped in canvas and rope and painted with oils.

Joseph Wesner's two kinetic, painted steel over wood sculptures have the flavor and perception of some of Richard Serra's work.

natures, a fish. "A rose is a rose is a rose," said Gertrude Stein.

This exhibition demonstrates the richness and diversity of the Detroit art world. As Susan Waller, curator said, "Detroit remains a tremendously vital city for contemporary art."

"Update: Detroit Artists" continues through April 6. Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum, 600 Lone Pine, Bloomfield Hills, is open 1-5 p.m. Tuesday to Saturday.

Choosing the right paper takes some study

By David Messing
special writer

"I'd like a bottle of Coke to go with that carry-out order please!"

The man behind the counter said, "Sure, what kind?"

"What kind?" I asked in wonder.

"Yeah... ya want the new Coke, Classic Coke, or Cherry Coke?"

"Oh, I got you now," I exclaimed. "Just give me a diet Coke."

"Well, ya want low sodium, caffeine free or just regular die Coke?" he asked patiently.

Feeling like a dummy, I said, "Well, gee, I guess I'll try low sodium, caffeine free."

He turned and said, "One liter or 1/2 liter," and watched as I took the first slug.

"It's good!" I said, "but if it hasn't got any calories, has no salt and doesn't even have caffeine... what in the world am I drinkin' it for?"

We both laughed and I turned to go out the door thinking, "Boy... I never knew there were so many choices when it comes to just buyin' a Coke."

You know I see that same bewildered look in some customer's eyes when they come into the art store and say "I was just looking for some art paper."

Believe me there are many more types of art paper than there are kinds of coke. So let's take a week or two and talk about the papers and boards and what media they are best suited for.

Wow! I just started listing some of the basic papers and boards and there are over 30 names on my list... this may take three weeks. First let's look at some basic papers.

SKTECHING PAPER: When a pad reads "sketch" it is usually a very thin, medium toothed paper. It is intended for light and loose sketching and development of ideas and concepts. If a drawing begins to develop quite nicely you really should transfer it to a better quality paper. Sketch paper is best suited for pencil/colored pencil, charcoal pencils and fine point felt tip pens.

DRAWING PAPER: It is good for pencil, charcoal pencils, colored pencils, technical pens and all felt tip markers. "Drawing" is even OK for charcoal, pastels and oil pastels. However, it lacks the sharp tooth often appreciated in charcoal papers. It is probably the best single pad of paper you can buy.

LAYOUT BOND: Layout or bond is really just cheap paper. It is thin, light toothed and slightly transparent. This is throw away stuff. When you do a quick layout or sketch, if part of it is good you trace it through to a new sheet then throw away the first sketch. Continue with this process with layout until you have developed your design or sketch. Like "sketch" this paper is not suitable for finished art. But it is excellent for developing an idea.

TRACING PAPER: This paper is similar to layout bond. Tracing is, however, much more transparent than bond. So if your layout or sketch is too intricate to trace through layout bond then use tracing paper. Tracing paper is useful in line art for silk screen photo emulsion technique and several other special applications. Best of all it is good for... tracing.

MARKER BOND: Marker bond seems a lot like layout bond. But place a marker on a layout pad and it will penetrate several sheets. On marker bond, the felt tip ink will not even penetrate a single sheet. It usually can accomplish this feat by being either a high rag or 100 percent rag paper. This accounts for its cost being somewhat higher than bond papers. Marker bond has a nice tooth to receive colored pencils over felt tip marker base colors.

NEWSPRINT: This is again a pad of throw away paper. It is intended for quick gestures and is best suited for charcoal. It is also an excellent pad to practice airbrush as it is very absorbent. I have framed finished pastels and drawings on newsprint. Although the paper looks fine for several years I doubt that it will stand the test of time.

Please remember that if any drawing seems to be developing nicely, hurry and transfer it to good paper or board before your inspiration lifts. I probably wouldn't put any more effort or inspiration on newsprint than I would on a chalkboard with a piece of chalk. All papers are good for the media and use that they are intended.

What they are intended for is what I hope to talk about for the next few weeks. Gee I'm thirsty, I think I'll have a low sodium, caffeine free, half liter of diet Coke.

This is another in a series of lessons on art and drawing by special columnist David Messing.

He has taught for 10 years and operates two art stores, Art Store and More, 16338 Middlebelt, Livonia, and 265 N. Main, Plymouth.

Messing encourages questions and comments from readers. You may call him at 522-6311, write to him at his store or in care of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 33203 Grand River, Farmington, Mich. 48024.

Wedding traditions

Every culture has its wedding traditions intended to symbolize the good things marriage means to a couple: happiness, commitment, sharing. Such customs offer a couple the opportunity to personalize their celebration, perhaps even with traditions of their ancestors. Following are some ideas from Bride's magazine.

use it not only for the champagne toast at your reception but also for all future special occasions.

Germany — Both bride and groom hold candles trimmed with flowers and ribbons. A late afternoon or evening wedding is perfect for saying vows by candlelight. And you can save one of the tapers to relight for a romantic first anniversary dinner.

India — To ward off evil, the grooms' brother sprinkles flower petals on the bridal couple at the end of the ceremony. After your ceremony is over, have a special relative or friend hand a single flower to every guest.

Ireland — The traditional wedding cake of the Emerald Isle is a heavy, rich fruitcake with golden raisins, ground almonds, cherries and spice. In true Irish spirit, lace your reception cake with brandy or bourbon.

Italy — For centuries wedding guests have tossed confetti — sugared almonds — at the couple to symbolize the sweet and bitter in life. Decorate reception tables with pretty boxes or bags brimming with almonds.

Japan — Bridal couples take nine sips of sake, becoming husband and wife after the first. The two of you could drink together from a wine cup then ask your parents to exchange sips, too.

Mexico — Reception guests gather around the couple in a heart-shaped ring. Your friends and relatives might do the same as you whirl through your first dance together as husband and wife.

Poland — Guests customarily have pinned money on the bride to "buy" a dance. Collect your pin money in a white satin purse.

Russia — Wedding guests not only give presents — they receive them, as well. Favor your guests with tiny picture frames, bud vases or instant photos of themselves.

Scotland — Traditionally, a bridegroom purchased a silver "wedding spune," engraved with the couple's initials and wedding date, to give to his bride. You and your groom might buy something special to commemorate the day.

Spain — In certain regions, the bride wore a black silk mantilla and orange blossoms in her hair. The groom wore a tucked shirt hand-embroidered by the bride. Try a lacy white mantilla for your headpiece and give your groom a formal shirt on which you've embroidered his initials on the cuff.

Wales — The bride gives her attendants cuttings of myrtle from her bouquet. Tell your bridesmaids that if their plants bloom, they'll soon wed.

In good taste: choosing a wedding cake

Years from now when you think back on your wedding and the festivities that surrounded it, there's one thing you'll almost certainly remember: the wedding cake.

Your wedding cake will no doubt be prominently displayed at your reception and be a focal point of both family photographs and toasts to the union of the bride and groom. Whatever the size of the reception or the location, having exactly what you want for your wedding cake is most important.

Christina Christ at the bakery in Bloomfield finds that many brides-to-be are choosing more interesting flavors for their cakes these days. She notes that carrot cake with a cream cheese frosting is growing in popularity.

"I also note that there's a demand for more realistic cake toppers in porcelain that make nice keepsakes," she added. When the bride chooses her cake she is also likely to select items for her dessert table and Christ notes that the fresh fruit flans are a featured selection.

"One of the best things we have to offer at Baker's Loaf is the talent of Mary Denning, our cake decorator," she commented. "It takes real talent to make the beautiful spring flower decorations and string work that gives the wedding cake real elegance."

At Mrs. Maddox Cakes in Farmington Hills, boiled icing is a feature for wedding cakes.

"People come to us for the special look of the icing," notes Marian O'Neil at the Farmington Hills store. "We also work in fountains and special decorative effects with the cake. We've made eight-tier cakes to serve 700 guests."

The bakery has also added several new wedding services this year: hot hors d'oeuvres complete with servers and set-up and complete sweet tables with all serving pieces provided.

The Machus Pastry Shop in Bloomfield works closely with the bride to get the cake she wants, which might even include adapting a special recipe.

"Just recently we did an anniversary cake for the 150th celebration of the Botsford Inn," noted Pearl Thoun, pastry manager for the Machus shops. "We were given a century-old recipe to adapt. It had raisins, currants, citron, spices, yeast, leavening and wine and brandy instead of milk or water."

Thoun, who oversees an average of six to eight wedding cakes each week, also sees a growing trend to tortes as the wedding cake. Machus uses the richest whipped cream possible in recipes for tortes.

"Some of the requests we get from brides include pastel trim colors to match the bridesmaid dresses, heart-shaped tiers and fresh flowers on their cakes," she commented.

"We never use preservatives in the cakes and they are always made fresh for the day of the wedding," she added.

Stu Koster at the Bavarian Bakery in Troy is often requested to use several different kinds of batter in his tiered wedding cakes.

"The butter creme frostings are being requested in mauve and pink, but the bride likes a choice for her guests with the different cake flavors," he said.

For the bride who wants the wedding cake to serve as the dessert as well, Bob Brinacombe of the Cheesecake Cafe in Farmington Hills suggests a New York style cheesecake in any one of 30 flavors.

"For 300 people we'd make a five-tier cake weighing 80 pounds," he said. "The icing and flowers are done in whipped creme and all the flowers are done by hand."

Brides-to-be would do well to visit area pastry shops and sample the cakes to find the taste she likes. Most often, there's also a sample cake she can view.

bridesmaid dresses, heart-shaped tiers and fresh flowers on their cakes," she commented.

Your guide for planning the Perfect Wedding

Before the big day arrives, every bride should plan to ensure as carefree a wedding as possible. Fashion and wedding experts recommend that brides begin planning for a formal wedding anywhere from six months to a year in advance.

Worrying about details too near to the date of the wedding can detract from the romance of this important day. So get organized and check off the following items in your bridal organizer as they come up.

A checklist can be a fun way of counting down the months, weeks, days and moments before you say, "I do."

1 YEAR TO 6 MONTHS

- Avoid wedding trauma by talking about your budget and wedding style with everyone involved: both sets of parents and your fiancé.
- Pick a place for the ceremony and reception and make reservations.
- Decide on the number of guests you can afford and accommodate and put together a guest list.
- Meet with the person who will officiate
- Choose your dress and accessories
- Choose a color scheme and plan the reception
- Register china, silver, etc.
- Select your wedding attendants
- Start house or apartment hunting
- Talk to a travel agent about your honeymoon.

5 to 2 MONTHS

- Order the announcements and invitations and address them as soon as they arrive. This way it's exciting instead of a chore.

- Shop for your trousseau.
- Select a photographer, florist and musicians.
- Order attendants' dresses and suits.
- Meet with your caterer.
- Put everything in writing to avoid last-minute hassles.

3 to 7 WEEKS

- Buy your fiancé's wedding gift and gifts for the bridal party.
- Mail invitations.
- Have final dress fitting and take formal portrait.
- Order rings.
- Reserve hotel rooms for out-of-town guests
- Plan rehearsal dinner.

2 WEEKS

- Get marriage license.
- Arrange transportation to ceremony.
- Organize luggage and do a last-minute confirmation on honeymoon reservations.

1 WEEK

- Start packing and organize each day and evening outfit.
- Confirm number of guests for caterer.
- Arrange rehearsal.
- Keep up with thank-you notes as gifts arrive.

If you take care of all the little things, the big things have a way of taking care of themselves.

Latest Fashions for all the wedding party

Brides want to feel like royalty on their wedding days, so they dress the part.

Yet, the primary consideration is not style, but comfort, according to bridal store consultants. That means no pinches or pulls and nothing too tight, but it also means the gown must suit a bride's personality.

The gown should be selected far in advance of the wedding day so that other preparations can be made.

Bridal consultants recommend beginning the bridal gown search eight months to one year before the wedding. That gives plenty of time to suit your style and find attendant gowns that complement it.

Beth Frantz of Jacobson's Bridal Salon sees a most exciting trend in the popularity of the designer market.

"The designer gowns have the quality, styling and fabrication that the brides are looking for," noted Frantz.

Japanese designer Yumi Katfura follows the body silhouette with her creations using a lean or draped look. Only Japanese fabrics are used and her total look is one of flirtation.

Greek designer Christos provides flair for the romantic bride with elongated waistlines.

"The new bridal look also includes a lot of sequins and a lot of glitter," commented Debbie Pollak-Zimberg of Creations by Pollak in Farmington Hills.

"Older brides will find more sophistication in today's styles. There are deep plunging backs and a fitted dropped waist that comes to a point," she added.

Zimberg-Pollak also sees the black and white wedding look coming to the Detroit area.

At Beginnings Bridal Shop in Plymouth the bride can be in the latest fashion in an ivory embroidered Merryay Hamburger tea length gown. A bridesmaid can choose the intermezzo length and flower girl can have flour length fashion.

And for bridesmaid fashions, where there was once a choice of ten colors, an array of 20 or more colors is now offered.

Ruth Seligson of Today's Bride in Birmingham sees new looks for spring summer silhouettes in sheath, ornamental and traditional gowns.

"The figure enhancing sheath can be slim to the knee and then flounced to the hem. Fabrics used for this look include silk or synthetic charmeuse, use of Alex jersey, all lace and shirred taffeta.

"The ornamentals can have bustled backs, ruffled side panels, gathered front shirts and puffed sleeves with drapings and tulip shapings. The trains are pleated or ruffled and the looks are achieved in silk satin, silk shantung and tulle," she added.

This decade's traditionals all have interesting sleeve treatments. Many designs feature extended shoulders, deeply veed low backs and use of small to large bows at waist, shoulders, at the dropped torso or near the hem.

All varieties of satin and taffeta are used in the traditional designs with some chiffon reappearing. Beading and the glitter of sequins and rhinestones is also being used more on the traditional dresses.

"The new thing in headpieces for the spring is the spray," noted Pollak-Zimberg. This look brings the spray design down one side of the face and accents the eyes. Pearls and veiling depend on the bride's dress.

Cathedral veiling that is detachable to a fingertip veil is also a popular look.

At Jacobson's, Frantz sees the brimmed hat replaced by the smaller cap with a blusher veil.

"Tiaras are still in as are pointed wreaths and ribbon and rhinestone clips," said Frantz.

Stardom filters down to the groom and his attendants in a new line of Miami Vice designer tuxedos from After Six.

"It's brand new for this season," noted Tom Nahas of Four Seasons Formal Wear. "Its basic inspiration is to bring color back into the weddings for the men."

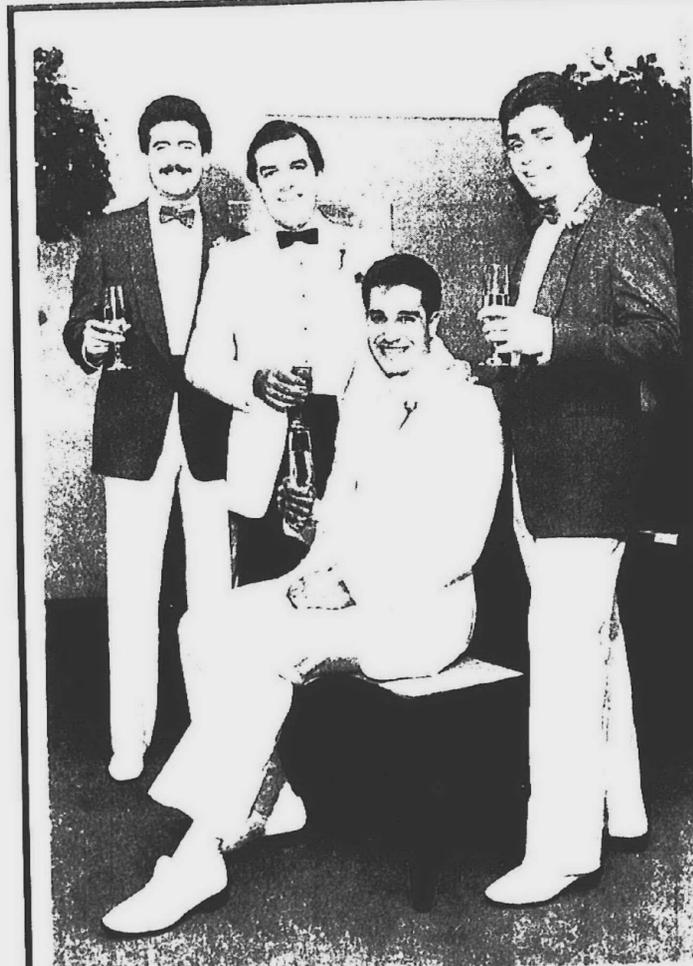

Fiesta Blue, Flamingo and Purple Haze are jacket colors for the best man and ushers in the Miami Vice line.

The trousers have a double reverse pleat and the multi-pleated spread collar shirt is also color-coordinated.

"Designer lines such as Bill Blass and Dynasty have given the men in the wedding party an updated look," reflected Nahas. "With Miami Vice as well, men have more choices for the wedding day."

Other members of the wedding party have not been forgotten in the new season's lineup of fashions.

"The mother's dresses are not as frilly and there are many offerings in the two-piece tailored look," commented Carol at Beginnings Bridal.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

It's the Miami Vice line for this wedding party, toasting groom John Mequid in the lobby of the Ramada Hotel in Southfield. Father of the groom, Mike DeFour, looks snappy in his White Heat Miami Vice dinner jacket. He wears black slacks and sports a pleated spread collar shirt with studs. Groomsmen Paul Fraser and Jim O'Connor wear Fiesta Blue Miami Vice jackets with double reverse pleated white pants. This new look is by After Six and available in the Greater Detroit area at Four Seasons.

Bride-to-be Kim Rocho of Livonia models an Eva Haynal Forsyth embroidered beaded organza wedding dress with cathedral train. She'll soon choose a gown to wear at her August 16 wedding to Timothy Birr, also of Livonia. Dressed as mother of the bride is Cora Federman of West Bloomfield whose daughter Judy Abbott will be married in September. Her hand beaded silk chiffon dress was designed for Amoureux. The bloused bodice and draped hipline is one of today's more popular looks. Fashions from Today's Bride in Birmingham.

Both mothers and bridesmaids can enjoy a much wider selection in color choice and a greater variety in dress lengths.

"Fashions for bridesmaids include elongated torsos, basque waists, one shoulder looks, strapless and many more tea lengths," noted Seligson.

"The mother of the bride can wear the tea length to almost any formal wedding," added Debbie Pollak-Zimberg. "The mother should also avoid wearing the same color as the bridesmaids, but complement the wedding party's dresses."

Pollak-Zimberg also encourages bridesmaids to choose dresses they can wear again. Many, she says, are attractive cut down.

Once a bride has found the perfect wedding dress and headpiece, she might think she's all set. But what about shoes, lingerie and jewelry? Accessories pull together and complete any fashion look.

For the underpinnings, pick a slip when you choose your dress. The right slip makes a dress fall the way it should.

Before your dress is fitted, choose a bra that looks right under it and feels comfortable. With low cut or off the shoulder styles, you may need a strapless. If your dress has a snug fit through the waist and hips, a long-line bra might smooth you best.

A formal dress with sleeves, a high neck and sumptuous material calls for closed-toe shoes. If you're wearing elegant satin with lace and pearls, try a pump in a matching satin or Chanel-tyup with a satin tip and open sling back. For any style dress, and particularly if you don't want your shoes to add much height, classic ballet style slippers are a pretty choice. When you shop for shoes, take along a fabric swatch from your dress so you can match colors. To be certain the dress is long enough for the heel height, take along your shoes to the final fitting.

If your dress has a plain bodice or a bare neck, set it off with a necklace -- a pearl drop, a heart, a precious gem -- or a classic single or double strand of pearls. A high-necked dress doesn't call for a necklace, but a brooch or antique cameo pinned at the throat.

To flatter an upswept hairdo or add sparkle to a simple headpiece, look for earrings that command interest without being too bold: a pearl cluster or single drop, a brilliant ruby or sapphire surrounded by pinpoint diamonds.

A Diamond is forever...

You've just decided to get married — one of the biggest decisions of your life — and now you must make a serious investment decision. You need to select engagement and wedding rings.

It's hard to be completely objective. After all, rings are symbols of your love. But purchasing a diamond is still basically a consumer decision. You should do the same kind of research and comparison shopping as you would when buying any other high-ticket item.

Buying diamonds and other precious stones without the help of a trained jeweler can be confusing. It can be difficult for the average consumer to price jewelry because of the wide range of quality in stones, settings and styles.

"You don't need a special education to be a smart diamond shopper," says Robert Spratford, president of the American Gem Society, a 50-year-old trade association of jewelers dedicated to consumer protection and gemological education. "But there are a few simple factors that can help you select a diamond that's best for you. We call them the four C's: cut, color, clarity and carat weight."

- Cut: Even the biggest diamond will have less value if it's cut incorrectly. A diamond is actually a series of 58 sides or facets that move light through the stone in a precise path. If the stone is cut at the wrong angle, all the sparkle and fire will lead out of the diamond and never reach your eye.

In a social setting, there's an easy way to tell who's wearing high-quality diamonds. Spratford offers this suggestion:

"When you go to a party — even in dim light, there will be some diamonds that can be seen glittering across the room. Those are the ones that are cut correctly. Most stones today are cut for size, but it doesn't matter how big they are, if they don't sparkle from far away, they're not correctly cut diamonds."

- Color: While there are extremely rare diamonds that are very valuable because they have a blue tinge or other unusual color, such as pink or canary yellow, absence of color is what makes most diamonds valuable. Diamonds naturally occur in a range of colors from crystal clear to yellow to dark brown.

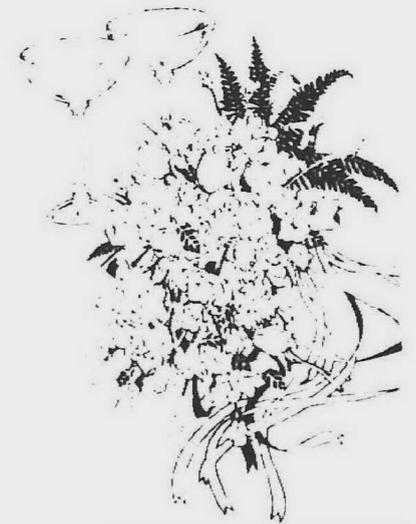

The American Gem Society has developed its own method of grading diamonds with zero to three being the best colorless stones. A three to five rating means the stone has a tinge of yellow and is not considered as valuable. Diamonds that fall in the five to 10 category are distinctly yellow to brown and they fall in the lowest price range.

- Clarity: The third C is clarity, meaning any marks, bubbles, clouds or scratches inside or on the surface of the diamond, any flaw will have some impact on the value and beauty of the stone, but the impact depends on size of the imperfection.

- Carat weight: The last and least important quality, the price of a diamond is determined not per carat, but its cut, color and clarity. A smaller, higher quality stone will be worth much more than a larger, badly cut or yellow-hued diamond.

A Perfect wedding reception

The real celebration of the wedding follows the ceremony.

It's time for friends and relatives to congratulate the newly married couple and share in wishing them well in the future. Food, drink and music help make everyone relaxed and happy.

The key to planning for a successful reception is to consider each other's wishes for the special social occasion and compromise as necessary to decide on number of guests, budget, food, atmosphere and choice of music.

Once you agree on the size and type of reception and if you can find yourself a competent, caring caterer or banquet manager, then half your battle is over.

Ethel Burns, catering manager for 30 years at the Mayflower Hotel in Plymouth, is quick to take much of the reception planning work from the bride and groom.

"They walk in and there are no decisions to make," she says. "We'll plan everything right down to the fresh flowers, table decorations and room setup."

"Our head banquet chef Dennis Samonds is very creative. He'll help with the planning of the meal," she explained. "We feature five-course sit-down dinners at the Mayflower."

Burns notes that reception facilities are available to parties of 150 to 300 persons and that the bride and groom receive a complimentary room in the hotel for the wedding night and a full breakfast the next morning.

At the Holiday Inn West in Livonia, sales and catering coordinator Kim Hickey helps couples with receptions for up to 400 persons.

"We have a traditional decor with an elegant ballroom setting and portable dance floor," she commented.

Chef Alex Buffone, a graduate of the Culinary Institute of New York, offers continental cuisine in buffet or sit-down style and decorates with food sculptures and butter carvings.

"We have several packages available to help the couple plan their reception and a professionally uniformed staff is in attendance to help the special day run smoothly," she added.

Roma's offers several different locations in suburban Detroit for wedding receptions: Bloomfield, Livonia, Garden City and East Detroit.

Jaro Kolisnyk, vice president and director of marketing, emphasizes the full-service catering aspect of Roma's.

"We offer wedding packages with wedding cake and fruit table and there are a variety of menus to choose from for either a buffet or sit-down dinner. There are options of appetizer tables, salad bars and hors d'oeuvres," he noted.

"We can also cater at your own location."

To help the couple chose entertainment for the reception, Roma's holds monthly showcases at various locations. Six or seven bands play several songs, enabling the bride and groom to select the most suitable entertainment. It's also a good way for the couple to see the facility and sample the foods available for the reception.

Depending on which location is selected, receptions at Roma's are available for parties from 100 to 2,500.

At the Hyatt Regency in Dearborn Chef David Bidwell prepares reception banquets that catering director Lori Metz terms as intimate gourmet meals.

"The couple can select meals with two entrees," she noted. "There is medallion of beef and veal medallion, poached salmon with dill sauce and swordfish. Instead of just one entree, the guests receive half-portion of each."

Facilities at the Hyatt Regency range from a room for 10 persons to a ballroom for 1,200.

"The rooms have a contemporary style and all have dance floors. We can also provide the wedding cake and work with the couple on a consulting basis for entertainment."

Valet parking and guestrooms are also available.

Kosher catering is a new feature at the Ramada Hotel in Southfield.

The hotel, which recently underwent a complete renovation of the banquet, sleeping and public rooms, can accommodate receptions of up to 250 people.

"With kosher catering we are able to offer hors d'oeuvres or full dinners that meet with the approval of our consultant rabbi," commented catering manager Susan Kelly.

Entree choices include chicken Kiev, cornish hen stuffed with wild rice, Long Island duckling, Chateaubriand, baked white fish, and pasta dishes. The kosher hors d'oeuvres offered include smoked fish, meat blintzes, barbecued baby lamb ribs, whole roast turkey, Chinese egg rolls, and noodle kugel. A sweet table is also available.

A new and expanded menu is also a highlight of receptions at the Kingsley Inn in Bloomfield Hills. Chef Dennis Lindinger welcomes special requests and offers new dishes such as stuffed boneless breast of chicken Mediterranean with rice and raisins, broiled veal chop with Bordelaise sauce and fresh roast duck.

Co-owner Layla Zawideh, in charge of the banquet facilities, notes that the chef's peppered shrimp — each shrimp wrapped individually in bacon with a splash of brandy is a highlight of the hors d'oeuvres menu.

"We can handle receptions for up to 450 people. In the main ballroom, which has a minimum of 200 persons, we have a sunken dance floor," she added.

Zawideh also notes that with the completion of a new west wing of the hotel, several bridal suites, each with its own jacuzzi, will be available.

For a different setting for the engagement party or reception, one may choose to be afloat.

Diane Moore of Great Water Yachts in St. Clair Shores offers over a dozen yachts, ranging from 37 feet to 110 feet, for the party of a lifetime.

"We are having a 100-foot dinner ship built in Escanaba that will host a maximum of 149 guests," noted Moore. "A reception aboard the new Infinity will include the captain, crew and fuel for the cruise. Great Water

Capturing the wedding on film

As video cameras and recorders become more affordable, amateur documentarians are springing up at graduations and weddings. Perhaps a friend has said he'd be happy to videotape your wedding. Or, if your budget is up to it, you can turn the whole affair over to a professional videographer.

Either way, it's important to think carefully about what you want videotaped and talk to an experienced wedding videographer before making a final decision.

"Technology has improved the picture and now state-of-the-art lowlight video cameras allow all moments of the wedding to be taped in the most candid way," comments Jim Clare of Clare Video Service.

If you visualize the sequence of photos you'd like in a wedding album, do the same with video. The bride putting on her makeup with her mother looking on and the groom and his father working on that bow tie fit as comfortably on a TV screen as in an album of pictures.

"Many couples love watching traditional scenes with the bride and mother, or the bride with her bridesmaids," says camera man Claud Brown of Ann Arbor Video, "but an experienced videographer excels at capturing the unplanned, real emotions that happen spontaneously. When you view wedding video samples, that's an important quality to look for."

Make sure you understand exactly how your wedding will be videotaped. Insist on seeing a portfolio of the videographer's work. Most professionals will be able to present a demonstration tape highlighting parts of weddings they have taped on film.

Ask the videographer to explain, in detail, different packages to choose from. Choices should include a one-camera unedited economy package to a multi-camera fully edited deluxe package.

Don't be afraid to list all the events you want videotaped. Discuss who you want (or don't want) videotaped, adding music or photos over some scenes, and so on. You can expect to pay more for early afternoon ceremonies and third location shootings, such as the bride's home.

The fees will depend on the variables, such as the cost of editing or the inclusion of extra audio or lighting personnel.

"Video editing often makes the difference between a professional looking videotape and a video home movie. Editing makes it possible to go back and forth between scenes of the wedding day. Photographs can dissolve into a scene to heighten emotion and provide variety," explained Brown.

"The final edited tape should include titles, highlights and dubbed-in stereo music," noted Clare.

"Your wedding video, by a professional, will much more resemble a made-for-TV movie rather than a home movie," he added.

Unique honeymoons

The popular image of a honeymoon is of a special time when a just-married couple goes off for a "getting to know you" period of privacy. While privacy and romance are still on the list of honeymooners' desires, new social trends such as living together before marriage have brought out a different emphasis.

The honeymoon takes on greater proportions as a new and fresh experience for the couple with plans being made for a unique place that will provide some very special memories for the beginning of a life together.

With that in mind, local travel agents have come up with some suggestions for honeymoons with a bit more adventure involved. Plans should be made early to not only guarantee space, but to get the best price possible on travel costs.

The main consideration in choosing the romantic trip is honesty between bride and groom. Personal interests should be discussed and activities planned that please each partner.

Two hearts will beat as one when viewing the breathtaking scenery along the California coastline around San Francisco Bay for the couple enjoying their honeymoon on the West Coast.

"Take advantage of special air fares to get to San Francisco from the Metro Detroit area," says Helen Butler of Russell's Travel in Livonia. "Fisherman's Wharf is an ideal area to stay to enjoy the local color and casual atmosphere. It's a perfect spot for a short honeymoon with a different flavor."

Butler notes that side trips such as a wine tour of the Napa Valley and a drive along the Monterey Peninsula are fun day trips that are easy on the budget. "This is a medium budget getaway for a newly married couple interested in windowshopping and enjoying local arts and crafts," she says.

For a couple who really likes to walk, consider a honeymoon in the British Isles with bed and breakfast stops in the country. It's a chance to get to know local people, tour quaint villages and sample country tastes at local pubs. Rent a car or use the railways to make it a medium-priced trip; plan ahead to get the best airfare deal.

The British Isles are steeped in history and there are plenty of opportunities for side trips to castles, churches and scenic areas. Remember to take a good pair of walking shoes to get the most out of your visit.

Marge Clements of Adventure Travel Service in Belleville suggests May through September as the best season although one should be sure to pack a rain poncho!

Honeymoons

the move without having to do the walking, then a WINDJAMMER CRUISE in the Caribbean might be just to their liking.

Cheryl Fernitz of Venture Out Travel in Westland suggests a five-day honeymoon cruise in a private cabin aboard the 282-foot Phantom, the largest four-master in the world. The crew of 45 caters to the guests, but also encourages them to take a turn at the wheel or help hoist a sail. Dress code is bathing suits and cutoff jeans with relaxation on the deck followed by a cool dip at a beautiful island anchorage.

The sailing adventures are available practically year-round and qualify as a medium-priced romantic interlude.

Like the water but prefer the view from land? Gaze together into the clear blue-green sea from beneath your private palm tree on COZUMEL, MEXICO, on the Yucatan Peninsula. This island paradise is off the ordinary tourist beat, but still offers good accommodations and relaxing times sailing, sunning, or scuba diving.

Judy Zack of Sanders Travel Consultants in Farmington Hills points out that a vacation here is a very good deal for the American dollar and a medium-priced honeymoon.

The happy couple will enjoy the outdoor cafes, walks along the bleached white beaches, dining on red snapper and lobster, and the casual dress.

If the happy couple is really looking for adventure and the photographs of a lifetime, an AFRICAN SAFARI could be the right answer.

Allow two weeks for this trip. Travel from Detroit to New York and then through Amsterdam before going on to Nairobi and the game reserves of Kenya. Bed and board is in very comfortable lodges and meals are truly gourmet. It can get a bit hot and dusty traveling in the van from reserve to reserve, but unforgettable sights of grazing herds, a chorus line of zebras in the sunset and the rare rhino make up for any minor inconveniences.

Terri Rotenberg at Gemini Travel in Farmington Hills, who has gone on this adventure herself, notes it's an expensive honeymoon.

"Don't forget evening dress for some very fancy hotel stops," she adds.

Pull out all the stops for a fantastic honeymoon in central FRANCE if the sky's the limit on cost.

Farmington suggests a four-day trip to Burgundy for tours of medieval castles, wine tasting at world famous vineyards and daily hot air balloon flights above the gorgeous French countryside. Each day's stay at a different castle includes candlelit dinners, picnics on castle ramparts and luxurious accommodations.

For this unforgettable honeymoon, best times to go are late spring through fall. There's a maximum of 16-18 persons on each tour and separate balloon flights for each couple.

A French flavor is also one of the many charms of a honeymoon in one of the ultimate romantic settings: the South Pacific islands of TAHITI, MOOREA AND BORA BORA.

From late March through early November temperatures range from 69 to 87 degrees for pure enjoyment of sunbathing and water fun. Delight in drinks made with coconut milk and freshly prepared dinners of marlin and dolphin.

"Local hotels offer fine entertainment and there are native shows weekly," comments Vicki Zahra of All-Ways Travel and Tours of Garden City.

Up to 100 guests may enjoy an eight-course sit-down dinner aboard Infinity after witnessing the exchange of vows of the newlyweds while cruising Lake St. Clair. The boat's sky lounge bar and open air deck for dancing and stargazing are part of the luxury offered.

The Star of Detroit, a 162-foot cruise dining vessel docked in Detroit, is also available for reception charters.

Director of Sales Cheryl Corcoran notes that a three-hour dinner cruise with live entertainment can include a dinner buffet with four hot entrees. Two-hour cocktail cruises and Sunday afternoon cruises are also available for booking.

Choosing the right place for the reception and the perfect menu for the occasion help make a wedding one of the most memorable events in a person's life. It does take care and planning, but there are plenty of experts at area locations to help make the day's dreams come true.
