Where now, Plymouth? City officials sort goals, strategies

Communication is emphasized time and again in a preliminary draft of goals and strategies prepared by Plymouth city officials for budget year 1986-87 and beyond.

The report calls for more open meetings with residents, marketing the city, team building within the city administration, and providing visible help to city organizations.

The report advocates continuation of the city newsletter and other public relations efforts.

It also calls for starting to inform residents about city services and their costs, listening to the public more intently, more meetings between commissioners and department heads, and issuing more positive press releases.

"This is our blueprint for the future. These are things we hope to achieve or at least get started," said Mayor William Robinson.

NEAR-TERM opportunities for growth and development include:

- · Establishing a coordinating council for senior citizen activities.
- Enhancing the city's revenue base

tion of older housing stock in Old Vil-

- · Finding more volunteers to pro- vide adequate level of city service. · Negotiating more mutual aid pacts with nearby communities.
- · Designing and publishing a brochure to promote the community in cooperation with other forces in the com-

Long-term growth opportunities include rerouting traffic from railroad crossings, finding additional uses for the Cultural Center and ice arena, expanding the Catherine McAuley Health Center, negotiating more mutual aid pacts and buying more government services from private contractors.

"Timetables are tough to assign on goals and objectives," Robinson said. "If we had 35 to 40 percent of shortterm objectives accomplished this year, it would be a success as long as others are on the way. Long term, you're talking 10 years.'

SEVERAL immediate and shortterm threats also were identified. They

- · Aging water and sewer systems. Skyrocketing liability insurance
- · Growing trash collection costs.

- Further deterioration of low-income housing.
- Other housing stock getting too expensive for young couples.
- · Possible cutbacks in state and federal funding.

City commissioners Monday commented briefly on the need to continue improving the older housing stock in the city, perhaps even requiring that all houses be brought up to code before they're sold.

Local realtors prevailed upon the city commission not to require extensive repairs in the past, said city manager Henry Graper. He added, though, that he's willing to take another look at the situation now

'We think it's a good tool," Graper

Others, though, speculated that houses might deteriorate even more if residents or landlord/owners were to decide it wouldn't be worth making $5,000 to $10,000 worth of repairs. Many of those houses are in Old Vil-

City officials also said they will keep on top of developments at the Ameritech (former Western Electric) and Bathey Manufacturing properties. The former is up for sale; the latter, reportedly, in bankruptcy.

Robinson speculated that the city commission will adopt a final goals and strategies plan within the next month.

Accomplishments cited by city officials during the current budget year in-

- Enhancing the city's revenue base by initiating high-density projects on the Clarence Moore Farm and Jack Wilcox properties and winning approval for housing grants totalling $255,000 for low-income families and senior citi-
- · Reducing the city's operating costs by reorganizing police services and creating a library district.
- Enhancing infrastructures such as paving streets, planting trees and improving lighting.
- Improving community relations by launching a senior citizen van program and staging special events such as art-in-the-park, band concerts, ice sculptures and fall festival.

His musical talents are in demand. Gregorian has guest conducted the orchestras of Venezuela, Mexico, Italy, Korea, the Rumanian Radio TeleToarmina Festival in Sicily, and many orchestras in the U.S. In 1984 he conducted major orchestras in the Soviet Union, Austria and Argentina.

He also has appeared with the Boston Pops Orchestra at the invitation of Arthur Fiedler on nine occasions. His performances with the Boston Pops Orchestra at Symphony Hall were taped by the Voice of America and broadcast in Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union.

IN 1961 Gregorian entered the New England Conservatory of Music to continue his studies wth planist Miklos Schwalb.

While in college Gregorian presented solo recitals and appeared as guest soloist with many orchestras in the New England states and New York City. Graduating with honors in performance he earned the diploma in piano and the bachelor of music de-

At the invitation of Charles Munch, he studied conducting at Berkshire Music Center in Tanglewood with conductors Munch, Richard Burgin and Erich Leinsdorf.

In 1966 Gregorian entered MSU as a graduate fellow. His talents led to an invitation to teach piano and to his appointment as assistant conductor of the Michigan State University Symphony Chamber Orchestra. He continued his piano studies with duo-pianists Luboshutz and Nemenoff, and later with master teacher Joseph Evans.

After earning the master of music degree in 1968, Gregorian completed residency for his doctorate degree. Since September 1983 Gregorian has held the position of professor of music and director of orchestras at MSU in addition to his duties as music director of the Owensboro Symphony Or-

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. in the usual school district polling

"City clerks expect an 8-10 percent turnout," said John Tomey, chief staff man working on the campaign. "With 140,000 registered voters, a 9 percent turnout would mean 12,600 persons going to the polls. We need 6,301 yes votes

THE COMMUNITY college district covers the K-12 districts of Clarenceville, Garden City, Livonia, Northville and Plymouth-Canton, plus a small corner of Novi.

Clarenceville includes northeast Livonia, southeast Farmington Hills and northwestern Redford Township.

College elections are normally held in June, at the same time as K-12 elections. But trustees chose the March 24 special election so that Schoolcraft could be alone on the ballot.

Voter "fall-off" tends to be high between K-12 and college elections. So Schoolcraft chose this special election to get the voters' undivided attention.

THE COLLEGE has operated with 1.77 voted mills since 1966. A mill is $1 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation. The half-mill request would add 9 percent to the college's $18 million operating budget. To property owners, the rate amounts to 50 cents per $1,000 of SEV or $17.50 a year on a house with a market value of $70,000 and SEV of Tomey and college President Richard McDowell are more confident this time because of an intensive telephone campaign to turn out voters friendly to the college. The telephone survey response is 57-60 percent yes, 10-13 percent no and 30 percent undecided.

VOTERS WITH questions during the telephone campaign got calls back from college officials. According to McDowell, the most frequently asked questions were:

· "What will the money be used

"Primarily for instructional equipment," he replied. The $1.7 million in new money will go into the general fund, but only about 17 percent will go for day-to-day operations.

The 87 percent bulk will go into hightechnology equipment, classroom furniture and lighting, repaving of parking lots, renovations for 20-year-old buildings and the like.

"My husband has a saying: If it's for free, my wife will do it - That's her price," says Preblich, exhibiting that sense of humor that falls somewhere between Jonathan Winters and Mork from Ork.

But she has a serious side too.

Appointed to the township's Zoning board of Appeals in January, Preblich takes the time to study reams of state ordinances relating to matters brought before the board.

Likewise, she shows concern over the cityhood issue. "We're trying des-Canton. There's a lot of questions still left in my mind."

To answer those questions, Preblich and other members of the committee, which meets biweekly, will visit Redford Township. "Why didn't they become a city; they had the chance," Preblich asks. "We'll also visit Farmington Hills and find out why they did" opt for city status.

JAMES POOLE, Canton Township supervisor who co-hosts "Canton Update" with Preblich, praises her involvement in the community.

"Any time there's a special event going on, she's serving on a special committee," Poole says.

Asked to trace her involvement in community issues, Preblich recalls that her mother was active in the League of Women voters. "My mother always said you had to take your little corner of the world and make it better."

Preblich says her sense of humor comes from her father. "Dad was a constant kidder." She comes from a family of seven, and explains that if vou're from a large family, you're naturally involved in the community.

Preblich and husband Ken have four children: Brian, 22; Alan, 16; Cathy, 15; and Tammy, 13. "It keeps me busy. It's a blessing when one gets a driver's license."

And like the family she grew up in, Preblich's house is a center of neighborhood activity. "All the kids congregate at my home and that's the way I wanted it to be. I'm the Kool-

In 1980, she joined a citizen's cable group, which eventually brought a cable TV franchise to the area.

Preblich was offered a chance to do "The Sandy Show" in 1982. "Jack Wilcox was doing 'Plymouth Profiles.' They said we'll be doing a show like this in Canton as soon as Canton is hooked up. They asked if I wanted to do a show. I said, 'Moi host a TV show? Yes! Yes!"

Hair-growing solution gets

staff writer

Hair today. Gone tomorrow. Back the next day

There may be good news in store for those wanting to replace their shiny scalps with a brand new crop of freshly grown hair follicles.

The Upjohn Co. has patented a formula, called Regaine Topical Solution, to be applied to the scalp. After years of testing, Upjohn filed a new drug application with the Federal Drug Administration (FDA) last December, drug is marketed. But the FDA may approve or deny the application.

USING MINOXIDIL - the active ingredient in Regaine Topical Solution to grow hair was an accident. In fact, hair growth was initially a side effect of minoxidil, which is the active ingredient in Loniten Tablets, used for controlling high blood pressure.

"In the early 1970s when scientists were studying the potential of Loniten Tablets to treat high blood pressure they noticed that some of the people necessarily all of them," an Upjohn spokeswoman said. "It grew anywhere hair has a potential to grow.'

In 1977 the company launched a full-scale program to study the development of the externally applied medication, which contained minoxidil.

The objective was to localize the desired effects to the scalp and to minimize or eliminate any significant levels of the drug in the bloodstream," the spokeswoman said.

In the meantime, doctors began prescribing ground-up Loniten Tablets in external applications for hair growth and pharmacists were quick to fill the order. This practice has been curtailed.

"If there was a call for it the only way to make it was by using about 50 tablets, crush it all up, mix in a suspen-sion form and put it in with alcohol," said Dave Misura, a pharmacist at Family Discount Drugs in Plymouth. "The pharmacists had to do that them-

Suzanne Skubick, community affairs and program director of Omnicom, says the show "has a fairly good following." The show opens each week with a fast-paced video collage which reflects her enthusiasim and sense of humor. It opens with a shot of the "Welcome to Canton" sign.

Next, we see Sandy standing near the Township Hall, running through a cornfield, and finally spinning around in an open soccer field as the show's title appears on the screen.

On one recent show, Preblich interviewed a makeup artist. Suzanne Farhat. "I just wanted to get my makeup done. I'll pretend we're having a program." Preblich joked.

Wilkerson joins county exec race

Assistant Wayne County Executive Frank Wilkerson launched his candidacy for county executive Tuesday, becoming the fifth major Democratic candidate in the race to be decided in the August primary election.

Wilkerson made his announcement at Detroit's Omni Hotel in the morning, then went on a tour of several Wayne County communities. A major campaign fund-raiser - his second this year - was to be held last night at the Omni.

Until three months ago Wilkerson, 49, and his family lived in the city of Southfield in Oakland County. He moved to Detroit to run for county exec-

Wilkerson has been for the last three years one of three assistants to Executive William Lucas.

WILKERSON SHRUGGED off questions Tuesday as to whether he felt his candidacy would be hurt by connections with Lucas. Lucas broke ties with the Democratic Party last May to seek the Republican nomination for governor this summer.

Frank Wilkerson, one of three essistant Wayne County executives under William Lucas. administrator of

"I will be judged by my own experience, education and sensitivity. I don't have any concerns at all

from his county job to campaign.

He urged other declared candidates who hold elected positions, such as Livonia Mayor Edward McNamara and Sheriff Robert Ficano, to do likewise. But he declined to say when he would make that decision, itimself.

WILKERSON IS the second black candidate from Detroit. Also in the race is county commissioner Samuel Turner.

Wilkerson pledged to campaign "tirelessly" in western Wayne County. "I've been out there hundreds of times" attending civic and social functions, he said. "We're going to have a great deal of support in western Wayne County.

Wilkerson began working for Wayne County 24 years ago as a corrections officer at the Detroit House of Corrections. He became director of treatment there and in 1969 he was named program manager for the state's Michigan Commission on Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice where he developed crime prevention projects. He was administrator of the Wayne County Jail for 13 years until Lucas named him one of three assistant county executives in 1983.

WILKERSON SAID there was still "much to be done" to eliminate waste in county government. He said he would call on local community leaders for in federal revenue sharing money, estimated at $13 million next year, and the effects of the Gramm-Rudman Amendment, a millage hike "would be out of the question."

McNamara nines for political advertising

Livonia Mayor Edward H. McNamara has hired a Washington, D.C.-based consulting firm to coordinate and produce advertising for his campaign for Wayne County execu-

The firm, J. Buckley & Associates, headed by Jill Buckley, two years ago created the "Toyota commercials" for U.S. Sen. Carl Levin in his re-election campaign against GOP challenger Jack Lousma.

A political/media consultant for 12 years, Buckley has produced tele-vision commercials and advertising for a number of Midwestern U.S. Senate races plus the 1984 Democratic response to President Reagan's State of the Union address. This is her first local campaign.

Campaign aide Dave Kats said. Buckley will use local production studies and crews for making radio and television commercials but that the Washington-based firm has many in-house capabilities.

Another aide said that Buckley's fee will be $25,000 and that McNamara plans to spend some $250,000 for advertising, primarily television and radio exposure with some newspaper advertisements. His campaign budget is targeted at $400,000, the aide said.

Budget reductions take aim at fine arts

By Sue McDonald staff writer

If you have suggestions on how the Wayne-Westland Community Schools can cut $2.5 million, the school board wants to hear from you.

After a three-hour study session Saturday on the proposed 1986-87 budget, mostly devoted to questions and comments from residents, board president Kathleen Chorbagian turned to parents for recommendations

Chorbagian asked that suggestions, signed or anonymous, be submitted to Thomas Svitkovich, associate superintendent for communications and finance, to give the board "a beginning point" in its budget talks.

Most parents' comments Saturday centered on the administration's proposed cutback in the elementary schools' fine arts program and what many perceived as misinformation from the district in the Jan. 20 millage

Voters renewed a 32-mill levy for 10 years but rejected a proposed 2 mills for three years that was to be earmarked for instructional programs and materials and buildings and grounds maintenance.

A FACT that apparently few voters realized was that the district would have received an additional $900,000 from the state for levying the additional 2 mills.

That left some parents questioning the board Saturday on just what was said by millage proponents during the

"I think we were all hoodwinked," said a member of the district's Funding

Effective Schools Committee, which supported the two millage issues. "I called on my neighbors and told them the 32 mills would sustain the pro-

Another resident told the board that "you told the citizens that you could keep the existing programs with the 32 mills and, if we voted in the 2 mills, it would be to enhance them. If that was the case, then why are we talking about layoffs now?"

"Evidently, you knew back then that they (the 32 mills) wouldn't pay for the programs, when you told us they would," another said.

"We didn't use a campaign that threatened you," Chorbagian responded. "Nobody likes using our kids as pawns. If omission is a sin, then we have sinned."

Recommendations for cutbacks in areas other than the fine arts at the elementary level centered on adult/community education (ACE), alternative education and transportation.

"We've lost six teachers in seven years (in elementary expressive arts)," one person noted. "You've consolidated elementary classes, done away with the fourth-grade string program and the all-city musical. If you destroy the root of the plant, it won't take the plant long to die.

COUNTERING a question as to why the district is "taking money out of elementary education and dumping it into adult education," Superintendent Dennis O'Neill, said that declining ACE enrollment, compounded by declining K-12 enrollment, has contributed to the

Wayne-Westland prepares cut list

The Wayne-Westland Community Schools Saturday started poring over the 1986-87 fiscal budget numbers to find ways to cut $2.5 million without harming educational programs.

But the word from the administration, which already has proposed 15 budget-tightening recommendations including a two-thirds cut in elementary fine arts, offered little hope.

Based on projections, the district expects to receive $68.1 million in revenues from federal, state and local sources, with a majority of the money coming from local sources, according to Woody London, assistant superintendent for business services.

The district plans on spending $69.1 million by taking $1 million from a surplus fund, leaving just $203,729 in the fund, far less than the 5 percent of budget - from $3.3 million and $3.5 million - recommended by the district auditors and well below the 12 percent state average, London told the board. The district also includes part of Canton Township.

"THE FUND balance basically is the money we have in the bank in case of an emergency," London explained at the study session, which attracted about 30 residents. "Our fund balance would be the same as for a family with an income of $67,000 a year which has only $30 for emergencies."

London noted that the lack of such a balance puts the district in the position of borrowing to get through the fiscal year. With a balance recommended by the auditors, he noted, the district might only have to borrow money once a year for "maybe 15 days" to cover one ; .. yroll.

Wayne-Westland School District

The district serves southeast Canton.

He added that the cost effectiveness of ACE programming has in the past been able to supplement K-12 instruction and possibly with "some marketing of ACE," enrollment could be expanded to raise new revenue.

Woody London, assistant superintendent for business services, noted that "if we have an increase of 500 students in adult ed, the cost would be no where near what it would be for K-12." One resident recommended that the district take the 2-mill tax issue before the voters again, stressing that any and all money generated as a result of its approval would be earmarked.

"I think you were counting on that $900,000 to cover some of the new cuts you knew were comming," she said.

"Secondary programs have been cut tremendously, but those cuts people don't see," Svitkovich responded. "It's gotten to the point where we've nickeled and dimed the budget that there's no room to wiggle without cutting programs."

One parent proposed having students walk to school rather than ride buses to preserve instructional programs, while another urged the board to "get down to the nitty gritty and cut the bone, not the children.

"We know what we have to do to keep teachers in the classroom and we know what we have to do to teach children," Chorbagin said. "We're in a no win situation. We can only do the best with what we have before us."

Questions about employees' and administrators' pay increases and suggestions about cutbacks in the district's athletic programs prompted O'Neill to comment that the employees "have been good to us in the past."

"WE'VE GONE to them three times and asked for concessions, and one year they took a pay freeze," he added.

The questions and comments made at the meeting drew a statement from one parent, who said that "you can't have an art class as opposed to a math class. Which is more important? I feel bad sitting here and it's us versus them. when we're all here for the same thing - our kids."

No big push for check-lane plan

State reps cool to idea of drunk-driver check lanes

By Tim Richard staff writer

Suburban state representatives are visibly cool to Gov. James J. Blanchard's plan to set up drunk driver check lanes in April or May.

They agreed with state Rep. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, who said: "On balance, I'm against but I'm keeping an open mind. It seems there should be a less drastic and intrusive means of reducing drunk driviing."

The House Judiciary Committee, chaired by civil libertarian Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, Tuesday listened to 21/2 hours of testimony, challenging State Police over drunk-driving statistics and questioning how effective check lanes would be.

REP. RICK SITZ, D-Taylor, has been joined by 46 other representatives in sponsoring HB 5400, which would allow police check lanes but not for drunk Area co-sponsors include Mat Dunaskiss, R-Lake Orion; Gordon Sparks, R-Troy; and Gerald Law, R-Plymouth.

Bullard said further hearings would be held the week of April 10, following the Legislature's Easter

Sitz also is seeking, through the appropriations process, to cut off funding for check lanes effective Oct. 1.

The Judiciary panel listened intently when Howard Simon, executive director of the American Civil lenge to the constitutionality of check lanes.

Bullard asked Blanchard's legal adviser to consider holding up the experimental program until the constitutionality question is cleared up, but got no

COL. GERALD HOUGH, State Police director, said 800 of the nearly 1,600 traffic deaths in Michigan each year are "alcohol related," adding, "We have a problem."

He was backed up by witnesses from Maryland and Delaware who said check lanes, while not the "total answer," did reduce traffic deaths in counties where they were used.

Bullard replied, "Michigan's 'had-been-drinking' fatal statistics are down 29 percent since 1980. Whatever we've been doing, we've had more success than Delaware with its check points."

Rep. David Gubow, D-Oak Park, challenged the effectiveness of check lanes, where a trooper would visually observe the driver, compared to watching a driver perform on the road.

"Drinking is not the issue. Impairment is the issue," Gubow said.

HONIGMAN ASKED, "How many officers would it take to create a one in 100 chance of being stopped in a year?"

"I don't know," answered Hough, who said the program would be used in only one county at a time with substantial advance publicity.

"I find it intrusive to stop everybody," objected Rep. Bill Runco, R-Dearborn.

What if they (car occupants approaching a check point) change drivers?" asked Rep. Josph Palamara, Replied Hough: "If they (officers) observe it hap-pening and determine who the first driver is, then that's the person they'll check."

LAWMAKERS BORED in on State Police numbers saying 50 percent of traffic deaths were "alco-hol related."

How did you decide that the half who die in alcohol-related accidents are more important than the non-alcohol-related deaths?" challenged Rep. Ernest Nash, R-Dimondale. When Rep. H. Lynn Jondahl, D-East Lansing, asked the definition of "alcohol related," Hough replied, "Alcohol was involved to some degree.' "It may have been someone who was drunk who stepped off a curb and was hit," said Nash.

Bullard followed up: "It's a little confusing when you have drunk pedestrians showing up in your drinking-related' statistics."

Nash jumped in again: "How many (of the 800) were killed by drinking drivers who caused the accident? Can you tell from the statistics?"

Hough turned for help to a uniformed aide who answered, "No."

HOWARD SIMON, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union of Michigan, had an

Simon called for "old-fashioned police intrusion based on observable, suspicious behavior" rather than "statistical likelihood" that a certain number of drivers on a certain road are impaired by alcohol.

Asking lawmakers to halt the check-point program, Simon cautioned against a "tendency to say, 'I'm clean, so it's OK.'"

Also having a negative effect on the district is the continuing decline in its adult/community education program. At one time the program's popularity and cost effectiveness supplemented the cost of the K-12 program, according to Superintendent Dr. Dennis

THE PROGRAM, however, has been on the decline for more than two years after the district became embroiled in a dispute with the state over enrollment figures, and that loss of revenue coupled with a continuing decline in K-12 enrollment has created the district's financial problems, he said.

state for transportation costs, but indicated that the district may get more, if it "runs a more efficient operation." The downside is that it may get less. The state reimburses the district for 43 percent of its cost for transporting special education students and 47.5 percent for the general student population.

As it stands the district is proposing to spend 57 percent of its revenue for instruction, 5 percent for support administration, 10 percent for support instruction and 26 percent for support business (finances, operation and maintenance, transportation).

The changes from previous years are within the instruction category, specifically elementary education, which due to the fine arts cutback, is down 1 percent from last year, reducing that category the same amount.

At the opposite end is support business, which will increase 1 percent, specifically in transportation costs.

Consumers eyes plan to utilize Midland plant

By Joanne Maliszewski staff writer

Although the Michigan energy customer will pay for the controversial and still incomplete Consumers Power Co.'s Midland nuclear power plant, utility officials have developed a plan which they believe will cost costumers less than abandoning the facility.

Consumers corporate chief William McCormick is betting that costs to the consumer in the long run will be far less if the Midland nuclear power plant is converted to an all-electric, gascombined plant, than if it is totally abandoned.

He told executives of the Suburban Communications Corp. Wednesday that customers would pay an estimated 21-22 percent rate increase over two-four years to convert the controversial nuclear plant to an electric-gas plant.

THE NEW chief executive officer has taken to the hustings in a campaign to convince the public that his utility company has changed its way and developed a plan which will get the company out of the financial soup and, at the same time, provide the state's energy needs for the future.

Consumers Power's new chief executive officer, William McCormick, explained how the utility can utilize its Midland plant.

Customers would pay an 18-percent rate increase over two years — 9.6 percent in the first year, 8.6 percent in the second - if the plant is abandoned.

The Consumers' rate request, which is on file with the Public Service Commission (PSC), would recover $3 billion of the plant's total $4.1 billion cost. Stockholders will absorb the remaining $1 billion, McCormick said.

"If we abandon the plant we will pursue that rate request," McCormick said, adding the firm would need a larger fraction of cost recovery in the first year to keep the financially ailing firm healthy.

THE RATE request that's on file with the PSC asks for less from customers than what McCormick estimates will be asked for plant conversion. But with abandonment, customers would be faced with additional costs beyond the rate request - to add to the firm's energy capacity to meet what company officials expect will be an increase in energy consumption within the next 10 years.

"Customers would be better off finishing the plant, than abandoning the plant," McCormick said.

By converting the Midland plant to either a coal or gas plant, Consumers can meet the need for additional capacity, McCormick said. The cost of converting one of two existing energy facilities within the Midland plant would be about $5.5 million.

CONSUMERS OFFICIALS predict that only one of the units would have to be converted to meet the expected demand for additional capacity. It would take approximately four years to convert the plant, McCormick said.

Abandoning the plant means that the state's energy customers will have to pay the 18 percent rate increase so Consumers can recover the majority of its losses, plus additional rate hikes when the company is faced with building new faciltiies to meet the need for additional capacity, McCormick said.

"We are pretty convinced at this point that the financial risk of completing it (Midland) as a nuclear plant is just too high," McCormick said. "From a political standpoint, nuclear is still a good option for the state. We have seen significant growth in electricity sales with additional growth (expected) in the next 10 years. We are pretty convinced we're going to need additional capacity by the mid-1990s."

"ABANDONMENT though is not a

In November 1985, McCormick commissioned a study on what to do with the Midland plant and what the future holds for both Consumers and the state. Although the study is incomplete, McCormick said he expects to release the findings — particularly the decision on whether to abandon Midland or convert it to another use - sometime

"It (Midland) represents 45 percent of our assets and in my judgment a great asset for the state of Michigan,"

U.S. Representatives from western Wayne County will vote 2-1 against President Reagan's proposed $100 million aid package to Contra rebel fighters in Niçaragua.

Democrats William Ford, who represents south Livonia, Garden City, Westland and Canton, and Sander Levin, who represents Redford, said they will vote against the military support of arms and non-lethal aid.

Amazed people Move slow on like governor

A recent pole conducted in the Detroit area indicated 64 percent of the people polled were "favorably impressed" by the way Gov. Blanchard is doing his job.

Those same people must believe in the Easter Bunny and Santa Claus. This governor has, in four short years, increased the state budget by $1.4 billion per year (your tax dollars), collected $203 million more in 1985 than the constitution permits, violated the Headlee amendment by shifting state supported programs to locally supported programs; thereby, denying local schools and local units of government $500 million per year in revenue.

He has driven us from 12th highest in the nation to sixth highest in property taxes paid, fostered an economy with the highest unemployment in the nation, and continues to have the highest rate in the nation of exodus of persons and businesses from the state. Our colleges have the highest tuition in the nation, and our gas taxes, car licenses and fishing licenses are among the highest in the nation.

Blanchard has accomplished all of that, and in addition spent millions of your tax dollars telling us what a great guy he is and what a great job he did bailing out the state. He has completely forgotten, with whose money, he did that job (our tax dollars). He never mentions that a better but harder (for a politician) way to do the job would have been to reduce spending, simplify government, and reduce regulations.

It amazes me how the ads on radio, television and the written word in the newspaper can substitute for our ability to think for ourselves.

Re: City option debate — Canton Township — Pub. 3-10-86.

Has anyone heard the expression, crawl before you walk, and walk before you run? When the average person hears "city," they automatically expect and come for jobs in the city. Does Canton have a quantity of business, industry, schools and school grounds, parks, housing, apartments, proper roads and traffic lights, large enough police and fire departments, extra money, and enough homeowners who are, at this time, willing to pay "increased city taxes?"

Yes, our taxes go up anyway but to try to maintain and improve a "still growing township." This, we the people accept, even though we don't always

Let's increase our police department that is doing its best to take care of more than 30 home break-ins, numerous place of business robberies, and not to mention the various other unlawful activities to keep up with, and I could

I suggest we "strongly establish" ourselves as a complete working township, and finish our overall building mode in every aspect, and continue supporting ourselves with "growing business and industry" until such a time we are ready to declare "cityship," with city taxes, and support a city gets from our pockets and various

Let us first fill our refrigerators, have adequate housing, roads, police and fire departments, medical facilities, schools, etc. to support our growth. We don't want to become another city in debt for 15 to 20 years owing the government loans we strug-

Voters also should be aware that if they do not re-sign a card their voting rights will not be affected in any way for the next election.

State law requires clerks to purge and maintain voter registration records. "It is difficult to verify your personal signature if it has become faded and illegible. New procedures prohibit this from happening in the future as the original cards are maintained in the clerk's office.'

On Saturday the clerk's office also will be open for other services during gle to pay back, possibly crippling the public. Cities can be nice when built from the bottom up.

Participate to assure peace

To the editor: Easter is just around the corner, and shopping malls and suburban stores are crowded with people looking for clothes to look their Easter best. Among the lilies and jelly beans, I hope we do not lose the message of Resurrection, renewal, change of heart. And central to that message is peace.

I ask the Plymouth-Canton community to support opposition to the arms race. I ask that you protest Williams International's making of engines for cruise missiles. I ask that you oppose military aid to the Contras in Nicaragua. And I ask that you support the work of the Peace Center at Newman House of Schoolcraft College.

We can know the joy of Easter, if we not only cry "No more war!" but also actively participate to assure peace. Jeanne Vicini.

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll-call votes during the week ending March 7.

HOUSE

TO REDUCE THE DEFICIT - By a vote of 314 for and 86 against, the House passed a package of spending cuts and revenue increases affecting a wide range of programs and aimed at reducing federal red ink by $18.1 billion during fiscal 1986-

Some $13 billion of the savings would be achieved over the remaining seven months of fiscal year 1986. The bill (HR 3128) was sent to conference with the Senate.

The legislation is a watered-down version of the $74 billion, three-year deficitreduction measure that the House and Senate were unable to agree on last year, despite the mandate of their own budget resolution that they pass a "reconciliation" bill inflicting savings of that magnitude.

In upcoming months, lawmakers hope to achieve many of the savings that they bypassed last year in the interests of compromise. Such deficit-reduction steps must be made if Congress is to meet the austerity goals required by the new Gramm-Rudman-Hollings law.

While lawmakers touted HR 3128 for its impact on the deficit, they also used it as a vehicle for important policy changes. For example the, bill makes permanent the 16 cents a pack U.S. tax on cigarettes, changes Medicare payment formulas, provides additional federal help for tobacco farmers, and - over Administration objections sets a new, more-costly formula for sharing federal offshore oil revenues with coastal states

Members voting yes favored the bill.

Dennis Hertel, D-Detroit, William Ford, DTaylor, and Sander Levin, D-Southfield.

DAIRY PROGRAM - By a vote of 120 for and 267 against, the House rejected an amendment to keep the federal dairy program within the confines of the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings deficit-reduction law.
This cleared the way for House approval on a plan that cushions' milk producers against the 4.3 percent cut in dairy price supports that took effect March 1 under Gramm-Rudman-Hollings. That cut lowered supports from $11.60 to $11.05 per hundreweight, thus reducing federal outlays by $80 million during the last seven months of the current fiscal year.

However, as a result of this vote, the support was raised back to $11.60. The $80 million, to cover the 55 cents differential comes not directly from taxpayers, but from a new assessment on dairy farmers.

Now that the first Gramm-Rudman-Hollings cuts have taken place, lawmakers are beginning to hear from those getting fewer federal benefits. This vote was the irst of many tests the House will face on whether to keep Gramm-Rudman-Hollings inact or let it be eroded.

The new dairy provisions are among several changes made in the 1985 farm aw by the pending bill (S 2143), which previously had cleared the Senate and was sint to President Reagan by the House.

Barney Frank, D-Mass., who spotsored this amendment, said higher assessments on dairy farmers amount to an excise tax that will be passed through to consumers. He noted President Reagan's opposition to raising taxes to meet Gramm-Rueman-Hollings austerity goals.

Opponent Gerald Solomon, RN.Y., called Frank's amendment "anti-cossumer" in that it would put small dairy farmers out of business and "put all these large consortiums throughout the United Stated in

Members voting no wanted to exempt dairy farmers from the direct impact of gramm-Rudman-Hollings, for at least the remainder of fiscal 1986.

Voting yes: Hertel, Broomfield, Persell Ford and Levin.

SENATE

FARM BILL — By a vote of 65 for and 18 against, the Senate adopted a non-binding resolution urging the Argiculture Department to give farmers all or part of their crop-support payments at planting time, so as to help rural America through its ongoing economic critisis. The loans nor-mally are made after the crop, or collateral, is harvested.

Senators voting yes favored advance payment of crop loans. Sen. Carl Levin, D. Mich., voted yes.

Rousting out the vote

Friends of Schoolcraft College, a volunteer group, spent three weeks making 25,000 telephone calls to encourage a "yes" vote on next Monday's half-mill property tax request. Working from a headquarters downstairs in the Waterman Campus Center, President Richard McDowell (standing), team captain for the night, explains the paperwork for identifying friendly voters. Volunteers are (front table) Carroll Kay, Livonia, and Gayle Fountain, Northville teacher; (middle row) Carl Riegal, Livonia businessman, and Beverly Riegal, member of the Schoolcraft College Foundation board.

House committee OKs right to tape meetings

telecast meetings of public bodies has cleared its first hurdle in the state House of Representatives.

The House Towns and Counties Committee gave 7-0 approval to House Bill 5339, sponsored by Rep. Willis Bullard, R-Milford Township. It now goes to the full House.

"This guarantees that no prior approval is needed to record or videotape a meeting under the Open Meetings Act," said Bullard.

Among supporters were Reps. James Kosteva, D-Canton, and Judith Miller, R-Birmingham. They knew of no specific problems in the area where boards had refused anyone permission to broadcast or record.

Enough scrimping, our college merits tax boost

CHOOLCRAFT College Trustee Paul Kadish said it best, so let's use his

"We've been scrimping and saving. Granted there have been SEV (property valuation) increases, but costs have risen faster."

That, in a nutshell, is why voters should say yes Monday, March 24, to the community college's request for a half-mill increase in the property tax rate. Schoolcraft has been underfunded for more than a decade.

The board of trustees was quite correct in asking for an increase. Indeed, the board would have been derelict if it had failed to seek additional money.

The Schoolcraft district covers the southeast corner of Farmington Hills; a northwestern sliver of Redford Township; all of Garden City, Livonia, Northville and Plymouth; one-third of Westland; and about two-thirds of Canton Township.

SCHOOLCRAFT HAS scrimped and saved. During its largest program growth years, the 1970s, voters put the brakes on new taxes. A lot of programs are cramped.

Schoolcraft has the tightest ratio of students to square feet of space of Michigan's 29 community colleges, according to a state study. To the extent that it's efficient, that is good. But any suburban homeowner knows that when your family is growing, you have to add space. Well, Schoolcraft needs to add space.

The recession of 1979-83 had devastating effects. State appropriations, which normally should be one-third of the college's budget, were pared, sliced and then hacked in order to balance the state budget. The college has a lot of "catch-up"

Some of Schoolcraft's buildings are 20 years old. Ditto with parking lots. Any suburban homeowner knows that "things go" when a house is 20 years old. If you don't make repairs and renovations, your house deteriorates. Worse, your home environment becomes depressing.

MEANWHILE, American industry has leaped into high technology. For the auto companies, it has meant investing billions in computers and robots.

For community colleges, which are Michigan's most important single industrial training ground, it has meant precisely the same thing - more computers, more computer labs, more word-processing machines. Month after month, readers of our news columns have seen story after story about new programs and equipment.

All that requires capital investment just like at GM and Ford.

There is a human side to running a community college. Qualified people to teach on the new equipment are few, so the college has been retraining existing faculty. Sometimes it means matching a grant to send someone to Ferris State College for a summer program. Other times it means giving an instructor released time to study in industry.

The half mill will add $1.7 million, or about 9 percent, to the total budget. About 83 percent will go into physical capital; the remaining 17 percent will go into operations.

The burden per homeowner is only $17.50 a year on a $70,000 market value house. Schoolcraft taxes don't begin to match the burden of taxation they talk about in Lansing and Washington.

A FEW CRITICS have raised some fair questions, and there are fair answers.

A special election and a telephone campaign have raised some hackles. As a newspaper, we haven't been entirely pleased by them.

Yet the political fact of life is that conducting a community college millage election during the regular school campaign in June would absolutely doom the college's chances. Again, college trustees would have been derelict if they hadn't called a special election.

The telephone campaign has kept the issues from being fully discussed in a public setting. Yet the tactic is entirely legal and common. It shouldn't be an alibi for voting against a proposal with merit. And the merits are overwhelming. Schoolcraft's modest millage request deserves voter support next Monday.

Put billboards out to pasture

YOU'VE JUST spent a pleasant evening in Ann Arbor and are driving home, east on I-94. It's dark and quiet when you round the bend and - eee gad! the Marlboro man gallops out in front of you.

You were thinking about the friends you had just dined with. He wants you to think cigarettes. He's bigger, so he wins.

Is there no relief from billboard mania? The galloping cowboy may be the most obnoxious billboard around, but many others aren't much more attractive.

Who wants to look at a local television station's news team sprouting from the top of a building? Don't we see enough of them every day? And how many times do you have to be reminded that the Golden Arches has an outlet ahead?

THE CLUTTER of billboards along highways wending through our cities is disruptive enough - some even argue they distract drivers to the point of being

But they are more annoying when driving through the rural stretches in Michigan. Just as you are reflecting on the rolling terrain and trees in their most beautiful autuma colors, a huge sign pops out in. front boasting that the world's largest collection of seashells is ahead - or that you can buy sweaters at bargain prices

Aren't there sufficient means for advertising - newspapers, television, radio, direct mail supplements, coupon books?

DO WE have to stand for this?

If the billboard companies have their way, we will. Ever since the Supreme Court struck down a California law that prohibited billboards, some billboard companies have been on the muscle.

The largest of those, Gannett Outdoor Co., is picking off one community after another - challenging the various local ordinances that restrict the size and location of billboards. Gannett thinks 300square-foot signs placed 200 feet from the right-of-way and spaced 1,000 feet apart are inadequate.

So the billboard giant took Troy to court. Unfortunately, National Advertising took Troy to court at the same time and the worst possible senario happened - the two Oakland County circuit judges issued conflicting decisions.

One found the ordinance constitutional but too restrictive, the other ruled Troy's ordinance unconstitutional. One case is on appeal, the other may be headed there.

IN ORTONVILLE, Gannett erected a sign without obtaining the permits first. If the company was betting on that small community being unable to afford a court battle, it bet wrong. That case is now headed for mediation - and if that: doesn't work, a trial will follow.

Gannett has been fighting local laws in Auburn Hills, Westland, Dearborn Heights, Roseville and other area towns.

But not every little town along an expressway has the resources to fight - and the courts are more interested in the "freedom of speech" issue than whether billboards cause sign pollution.

ly that a total statewide ban of billboards would withstand a legal battle. So consumers should take the matter in their

Let the advertisers know you don't like being assaulted by billboards that loudly proclaim their products. Don't vote for candidates whose campaign sign blocks your view of the sunset. And let the billboard companies know that bigger isn't always better.

Random tests violate constitutional rights

ANYONE WITH a sense of history should be looking askance at the latest fad in business and government - random testing of people for the use of alcohol or

Lots of legislation, lots of court cases and lots of labor grievances are likely to result. Gov. James Blanchard, latest on the bandwagon, has issued an executive order setting up vehicle check lanes, where every car is stopped and the driver tested for sobriety. Thank goodness, some legislators are fighting it.

THE CHECK-LANE controversy is particularly bothersome because it's unnecessary

State Police know, through the diligent accumulation of records, that certain roads passing certain taverns at certain hours generate a lot of drunk drivers. Oakland County has much experience on Dixie Highway with this phenomenon.

Is that justification for stopping every car in a suspicious stretch of road for an alcohol check?

No, and it ain't fair. The cops have plenty of techniques for spotting drunks a guy driving with the windows open on a cold night, at erratic speeds, even at much slower than posted speeds.

Blanchard, a lawyer and history buff, should know better than to order check lanes. Recalling the sad case of a fraternity roommate who was killed by a drunk driver, Blanchard proceeded to wave the bloody shirt, which even the Romans considered a shabby rhetorical trick.

The cases for testing athletes and employees of private businesses are trickier. We're not talking about criminal cases, as the Constitution specifies.

But we are talking about people's paychecks and the possibility that a person can be blackballed for years — a fate as bad as prison. An employer should have solid reason — bad performance, observable strange behavior — before demanding a sample of worker's body fluids.

Teeting of applicants for other then po-

Testing of applicants for other than police or security jobs smacks of the witch hunt. It ought to be forbidden by law as well as common sense.

Townships need credibility

N RECENT months there has been some discussion of more cooperation between the municipal governments and the school district in the Plymouth-Canton community.

More specifically, the talks have involved cooperation between the township units and the school district. Canton Township asked for donation of an historical school house (Cherry Hill) for use as a community meeting room. Plymouth Township has applied for state money to expand the township park by acquiring adjacent land owned by the disrict for use as a possible school site.

In each instance, the townships are asking the school district for land for municipal use. The suggestion is that the school board should give the land away, lease it for a $1 a year, or sell if for a nominal price since the taxpayers support all units and the money comes from the same source anyhow. The argument is only partially true. The townships get block grant and revenuesharing money from state and federal governments, which the schools don't, while the district gets state aid and federal grants, which the municipalities don't. The source of funds, in fact, is quite dif-

IT IS TRUE, however, that income generated from the property tax comes from the same source (local taxpayers) and so a significant amount of the school's income is generated by township and city resi-

The argument is that local units ought to cooperate with each other in controlling costs since the property tax income comes from the same pot. Why should the schools sell its land to the township and make a township taxpayer (who is also a school taxpayer) pick up the tab? Or should the school sell its land to the township at a price higher than the district initially paid for the land when the "profit" would come out of township taxpayers' pockets?

The questions seem innocent enough and the answers might seem obvious. But neither is the case. Would a township supervisor think the following question to be "innocent?" Should Canton Township, for instance, raise its tax rate by .5 mill if doing so would allow the school district to lower its tax rate by 1 mill, thus saving the taxpayer a net .5 mill?

The reasons why the answers are not so obvious lie in the positions taken by both Plymouth Township and Canton Township in recent years on this issue. Both townships fought dual tax collections tooth and nail, even after it was established that twice-a-year tax collections for the school district would save money for school taxpayers (who are also township taxpayers). The Michigan Legislature had to take action before the townships could agree to save taxpayers money with dual

In fact, Plymouth Township would collect school taxes and delay turning the money over to the district, thus denying the district earned-interest income.

In recent years the school board also has asked Canton Township and Plymouth Township to provide sidewalks in certain areas to make it safe for students to walk to school. If that were done, the dist ict could reduce its busing expenses and operate with fewer buses. It was well established that it would be cheaper to build sidewalks than to buy, maintain and operate the buses involved. The result would have been a net savings to the taxpayers.

GIVEN THE HISTORY of Canton and Plymouth townships, their call for cooperation from the school beard rings rather

The townships need to develop a pattern of cooperation before coming with their hands out. Given the past history of both townships to tell the school board to bag it when cooperation is asked, each needs to establish some credibility before making that pitch now.

The Observer supports cooperation between governmental units. But we do not think it healthy for that cooperation to be one-way. The open relationship needs to exist over time, not just when the townships want something.

Canton has built some credibility by agreeing to share in the expense of certain sidewalks in return for the deed to Cherry Hill School. There's room for more discussion between these two units. Plymouth Township, frankly, has a ways to go before it can earn the position as a cooperative partner in this business of saving money for taxpayers.

Millage will keep college up-to-date excellent start

To the editor:

An important day will arrive in our community shortly, March 24. That is the day we will go to the polls to vote for an increase in the Schoolcraft College mil-

It's been almost 20 years since the college has gotten an increase in the millage. As a parent who had two children, a wife and myself attend this well-qualified cellege "right next door," I am in support of this millage.

The needs are small but very important ih keeping Schoolcraft College "up to date." The need for new computers, the chance to get new grant monies and the development of new programs are a few of the areas of concern in keeping a balanced budget.

It won't take much of your time to remember to vote "yes" on March 24 at your local voting booth.

The youth of our community need job skills and training, and they deserve the excellent start on a college education which Schoolcraft College provides. To assure that continued foundation for tomorrow's youth, I urge you to vote "yes" on Monday, March 24.

Boycott column missed the mark

To the editor:

It's good to see a newspaper offer a column such as "Moral Perspectives" by the Rev. Lloyd Buss. Topics and issues he raises are thought provoking and appro-priate to current news events or life situ-

The column on March 6, relating to his decision to boycott Hormel meat products, was based on an issue recently in the news. It is also a decision he made from incomplete information. As a fellow pastor, I would hope my ethical position is comparable to that of Pastor Buss. As a native of Austin, Minn. (home of Hormel), and with relatives both in union and mangement postilons, I would hope my perspective is more inclusive.

Pastor Buss' perspective that labor-management relations in this country have generally stressed economic issues at the expense of other values is well known. To fault the Hormel management for seeing the economic issue alone is not a valid position. The decision to boycott Hormel products based only on information received through the news media is not only questionable, it is callous.

Local P-9 lost the support of the national union at the beginning. The National Labor Relations Board negotiators likewise deemed the company's position valid and encouraged the local union to accept the company's offers.

The contention that the Hormel management's intent was to break the union is inaccurate. It was P-9, in fact, who hired Ray Rogers, who had previously broken the J.P. Stevens Co., to come to Austin to organize the union tactics and, if necessary, to break the Hormel Co. Tainted food products were a result of individuals in the local union, not the management.

The Minnesota National Guard was called to Austin. At issue is not only the economic side to which Pastor Buss refers, but the integrity of oth labor and manage-

The Hormel strike has sharply divided a small city. All of the community knows it depends on the George A. Hormel Co., and many of the citizens are not supportive of the Local P-9ers who have not yet gone back to work. The plant is operating again, with many of the former strikers at their previous jobs. Few towns are as reli-ant upon an industry as is Austin. Participation in this boycott is not only senseless, it is a devastating blow to the entire com-

On March 24, voters of the Schoolcraft College District will be asked to approve an additional half mill for general purpose" for the college. Historically, the board of trustees, administration and staff have done an excellent job in providing a sound educational program for our students with the present 1.77 mills that is levied. Cost do go up and new programs do require more funding and a millage may be needed. However, this particular request may far exceed those needs. It is disappointing in the manner in which the college has opted to conduct its campaign. To quote one administrator We're keeping it as low key as possible" (Observer, 2-27). The campaign has not gone public to inform the voters as to the needs of the college and specifically how these revenues will be used. The campaign is limited to phone contacts of those who are students at Schoolcraft or others who have had contact with the college. What is not being publicized by the campaign committee is that half mill that is being asked for represents a 28 percent property tax increase in monies going to the college from the taxpayer. That half mill will generate an additional $1.7 million to the college in its first year of collection. This assessment is not for 5 years or 10 years but is permanent. Since the millage is not earmarked for a specific purpose and is designated as "general purpose," its use is unrestrict-

As a resident and alumni of Schoolcraft, I consider myself a supporter of the college. But I have a hard time accepting this particular millage request. I also feel the expense of holding a special election at the cost of $40,000 ws unnecessary as this election could have been held during the annual June school board elections with minimal cost to

In job hunting, persistence pays

Successful search takes time, effort

staff writer

When the time comes to look for a job - whether for the summer or for a lifetime - it's important to look every-

"If they're looking for a job, they. should let everybody know they're looking," said Elizabeth Barker, job placement coordinator for Plymouth-Canton Community Education. "The more people that know you're looking, the more your chances grow.

Contacts with friends, family, neighbors and others can be a good source of job leads. Newspaper ads can also be helpful.

Temporary employment services also can be a good place to apply for those at least 18

'That's an excellent opportunity for them to gain experience and earn some money at the same time," Barker said. "They have all sorts of jobs, including light industrial.'

KNOWING WHERE to look for jobs is a good beginning for younger jobseekers. It's also important, however, to know how to look. Such basics as dressing appropriately when job-hunting and filling out applications completely and correctly will help an applicant stand out from the crowd.

This is the time of year when many area students will be looking for summer jobs. Their lack of work experience can be a disadvantage, particularly when they must compete with older, more experienced workers.

That lack of experience can, however, be an advantage for a younger jobseeker. He or she can be trained as the employer wishes - and hasn't had the opportunity to learn any bad work habits. Barker said. Younger employees also cost employers less thatn than older, more experienced workers.

It's helpful to emphasize willingness to work then applying for jobs. Mike Minton, an 18-year-old Plymouth resident, has found that kind of willingness can make the difference in getting

"I THINK the most important thing is to have a real positive attitude, benot putting yourself above any job, I think that's really important.'

Minton, who is getting his G.E.D., was recently laid off from the Adistra Corp. in Plymouth, where he had been working as an inventory control clerk. He found the job through a temporary agency and worked for Adistra for five

Minton came into the Job Placement Service office of Plymouth-Canton Community Education recently and was sent off to interview for a job at another area employer. The Job Placement Service office, a service of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, is housed in the Starkweather Center in Barker, the job placement coordinator, works with those who are 17 and older, primarily Community Education students and former students. She also works with other agencies that provide help for job hunters.

"WE WILL refer them to different services," such as Growth Works in Plymouth and the local office of the Michigan Employment Security Commission, she said.

Successful job hunting involves three steps, she said. The first involves thinking through goals.

"Have those figured out before you even start job hunting," Barker said. Job applicants should also know what hours they will be available when they start their search and should know what skills they can offer an employer.

The second step involves actually finding a job, including such basics as following up interviews with a thankyou note and remembering to dress appropriately.

'You don't have to wear a threepiece suit if you're going to a warehouse," she said. "But if you're going for high-tech, you have to look like

FILLING OUT applications completely and accurately also counts for a lot when job-hunting. At the Job Placement Service, job-seekers are given a form to fill out with such information as name, address, Social Security number, education, work experience and Having that information handy will make filling ott job applications easier. Job-hunters may also find it helpful to take applications home, Barker said, where they can be filled out carefully.

A Social Security number is essential for job-hunters. Those who don't have a number should apply for one, she said, even if they're not looking for a job. "You've got to have that on file or you cannot work."

When using a resume to apply for a job, it's important to include a personalized cover letter. Both should be kept

"That way, they're more apt to be read. You're trying with that resume and cover letter to make them want to talk to you, so you can sell yourself in

YOUNGER JOB-SEEKERS can include such things as volunteer work, baby-sitting experience or lawn work on their resumes. A library has many books to help job-seekers prepare resumes. Barker recommends the "Guide to Preparing a Resume" of the Michigan Employment Security Commission's Job Service.

When listing references, job-hunters should always check with those people, to make sure it's OK to use their Nervousness is bound to be a problem in job interviews, but it can be overcome. Barker recommends roleplaying with friends or family before going to an interview.

Everybody gets sweaty palms and nervous. It just takes some practice."

Once they get a job, new employees must keep it. This includes showing up on time, calling when circumstances prevent getting to work on time, and getting along with co-workers.

Minton has found that attitude makes all the difference in being successful at a job. He approaches each day on the job with the idea of doing his

"IF I'M doing my best, things will work out," he said.

Thinking of the positive aspects of a job - whether it's the paychecks and what they'll provide or the experience to be gained - can also help, he said.

'There's always something in it." Getting along with co-workers can present problems on the job, but it needn't make life impossible. "Just be sociable and do your best to get along with people," Minton said. Just as there's a right way to get a job, there is also a right way to leave one. It's important to give an employer plenty of notice when leaving a job

Common-sense tips help seniors in crime fight

By Julie Brown staff writer

Police officers can't fight crime all by themselves, they need help from the public to keep communities safe and

"We can't be everywhere all the time," said officer Wayne Carroll of the Plymouth City Police Department. "It's those eyes and ears that help us to help you in your neighborhood."

When reporting suspicious activity to police, it's important to be as accurate and thorough as possible. Any identifying characteristics of an individual, such as the color of clothing or hair, will aid police in their investigation. If a situation doesn't appear to be an emergency, calls should be made on the non-emergency telephone number. "All you have to do is tell the dispatcher who answers the phone what your problem is," Carroll said.

EMERGENCY SITUATIONS, however, should be reported on the emer-

"We'll be there right away. You won't be tied up for very long."

Some residents may be reluctant to report suspicious activity to the police, Carroll said during a Monday program on crime prevention at the Arbor Health Building in Plymouth.

They may fear retaliation or ridicule, or may worry about being sued if their information leads to a false arrest. Often, it's easier to ignore a suspicious situation rather than taking the time to notify police

"In the city of Plymouth, apathy is a big problem for the Police Department," Carroll said.

Fears about retaliation or ridicule, however, don't have much basis in real-

Unless a citizen "out-and-out lies" to police, it's unlikely he or she would be held liable for providing information. The police officer assumes the responsibility of assessing the situation and taking appropriate action.

Fear of retaliation also shouldn't keep a resident from calling police.

"We can keep your information se-cret up to a point," Carroll said.

A RESIDENT'S observations may be needed for a trial, but his or her identity won't be revealed to a suspect at the Crime reporting was one of several areas the Plymouth police officer covered in a Monday program at the Arbor Health Building of the Catherine McAuley Health Center. He also discussed the Neighborhood Watch and Operation Identification programs.

The Monday session was one of two on crime prevention for the elderly offered by the Catherine McAuley Health Center and the Plymouth Council on Aging. The second session will be held from 1 to 2 p.m. Monday, March 24, at the Arbor Health Building.

The second session will cover crimes against the elderly involving consumer fraud. It will be presented by officer Robert Scoggins of the Plymouth City Police Department.

During the Monday session, those attending watched a film, "Neighborhood Watch." Following the film, Carroll described the benefits of Neighborhood Watch programs, in which neighbors work together with the police to fight

IF A POLICE officer sees a man in a front yard with a lawn mower, he or she has no way of knowing if that man is stealing the mower - or merely mowing the lawn. Neighbors, however, can provide that kind of information.

The program depends on cooperation among neighbors, Carroll said. Without that kind of cooperation, it can't suc-

"The Police Department merely assists you in technical areas you're not well-versed in.'

Operation Identification is another helpful crime prevention tool. Marking valuables with an identifying number makes ownership easier to prove. The presence of such identifying numbers also helps discourage thieves from stealing items.

The Plymouth Police Department provides engraving tools to residents free of charge. Residents can then mark their property, using a driver's license number. (For non-drivers, identification numbers are available through the secretary of state's office.)

A form is used to record the items. Residents are also provided with stickers for windows, to indicate that they are participating in the program.

In addition to engraving items, such basics as good locks and adequate lighting can help reduce the likelihood of a break-in. Alarm systems are another helpful tool.

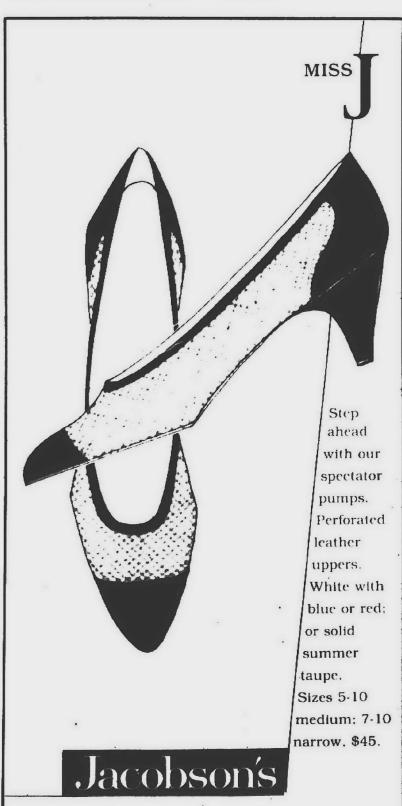

IT'S ALSO IMPORTANT to make a home appear occupied at all times. Timers can turn lights off and on at appropriate times. A radio can also be left on, to make it appear that residents are at home.

A simple step, such as pinning windows to prevent them from being forced open, often "is enough to deter crime in your building," Carroll said.

Additional information on crime prevention is available from the Plymouth Police Department's Crime Prevention Buréau at 453-8600.

Information on crime prevention for older people may also be obtained from the American Association of Retired Persons, Criminal Justice Services, 1909 K St. N.W., Washington, D.C.

ter F. Bartels, son of Frank F. and Jo Bartels; Duong Luu, son of Lang Thi Chung; James E. McCarthy Jr., son of James E. and Florence M. McCarthy; and Krista Lee Nielsen.

The competition is open to students whose parents live or have a business in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. Financial need is not a consideration.

Woman's Club members review the applications and choose the students to be invited to the Scholarship Benefit Ball. A panel of judges who are not club members evaluates the candidates. The judges use a grid system, with each candidate having a number; no names are used.

Schools represented were Plymouth Christian Academy, Catholic Central, Plymouth Salem High School and Plymouth Canton High School.

Special people aid Sparky

Canton chatter

That's the good wish that comes from Linda Salvador at the McDonald's on Ford Road in Canton. Sparky and his wife are regular customers at McDonald's and he's coming home from the hospital where he has been recuperating for about a month.

It's no accident, or so I have learned, that Linda knows exactly how long Sparky has been hospitalized. Although Linda doesn't welcome home every customer from the hospital, there's a special reason why she is so aware of this homecoming.

It was not easy to get the story to unfold, but as it was told to me, Linda and another citizen kept Sparky alert when he suffered a heart attack until help arrived at McDonald's.

THE INITIAL thought was that he was choking. As Linda and an alert customer (as yet unnamed) lowered him to the floor and prepared him for cardiopulmonary resuscitation, they soon discovered he was more than a choking

They couldn't believe the speed with which the Canton police and fire rescue squad responded. Linda said she never knew anyone could move that fast as she and the others watched in awe.

Sandy As for Officer Kenneth Winkler, he was not summoned but still dashed to McDonald's. Since seconds count in such life-threatening situations, the value of his CPR assistance cannot be measured.

Linda had noticed that the couple was a little late that day for their usual arrival time. They explained that they had had some car problems, delaying their arrival.

They had just started eating when Sparks began to have trouble. Linda talked to him and kept him alert, with the assistance of the customer. Winkler then arrived, followed almost immediately by the fire rescue squad. The rest is history.

With the help of all these people, and those at the hospitals he was transported to, Sparky is coming home.

Linda put it, "you can't keep a good man down!" It is times like these that make you believe in tomorrow.

Some of you may remember some time ago when my daughter, Tammi, fell on her bike when we were riding together. Believe me, I know concern from curiosity, and the many people who came to our aid were much more than curious! THE POLICE officers, the fire rescue team, the patience and concern in their voices alone made me understand that they cared. Even today, the neighbors remember the incident and ask about Tammi.

It's not easy to boast about something you have done. I know that, but I wish that if you know of some good deed that has gone unnoticed, you'd give me a call.

While we are on the subject of something good to report, Fran Johnson asked me last year to say "Happy Birthday" and "I love you" to her husband, Wesley R. Johnson. Well, I forgot. Later on, I saw her and she asked

R. Johnson Sr. more than anything in the world."

Well, I forgot again, but now I've got some good news! Hey Fran, I remem-

It's the time of year when kids start planning their summer vacations.

Some plan a summer at the beach, some will visit relatives in other states, some are planning vacations with their family. Then there are the special ones; the ones that are planning a trip away from it all. I know you are out there, and I'd love to hear from you.

Those that make tours in other parts of the world singing, playing an instrument or doing some sort of special missionary work. Or how about those planning to be advisers or group leaders at a special camp this summer?

Please give me a call; maybe you could give some others an idea or two on how to do something different this year. Please don't hesitate to call and fill me in; it's not boasting, it's sharing.

Believe it or not, there are lots of great kids out there who just don't know what to do with themselves or who have no inspiration to do anything. They don't have any idea of all the marvelous opportunities open to them.

You could help someone. So call!

A word to the wise is enough: IRA.

For age and want, save while you may; No morning sun lasts a whole day.

Use the time you have to save for retirement with Heritage Bank IRA Investment Plans.

Courteous Reader:

What Benjamin Franklin wrote over 200 years ago still applies today. And the best way to apply it is with a Heritage Bank Individual Retirement Account.

Heritage Bank has ten IRA plans to suit your needs. From a no-time-limit passbook account to a 10-year Additional Deposit IRA Certificate. And you can open one with a minimum deposit of only $50 for passbook accounts or $100 for certificates.

No matter how much time you have before you retire, whether 3 years or 30, building a Heritage Bank IRA will make your retirement more comfortable and secure. And the sooner you open one, the sooner you begin to compound interest. Your investment is a credit on your income tax and your interest earned is tax-deferred.

Visit one of Heritage Bank's 24 friendly offices to discuss this wise investment or call 285-1010 for the current rates. In Monroe, call 243-6600 and in the Northwest area, call 477-9340. Put both time and money to work

Y THE TIME this column appears in print, Congress will have cast its vote on Contra aid. Regardless of which way it goes, the issue will not die with a vote. Few issues of late have provoked so much passion. But as is usually the case in the human condition where passion reigns, light gives way to heat. Rhetoric runs high and, proportionately, reason takes a back seat.

As heated exchange escalates, each side tends to claim morality as the basis for its position. And who can expect any group who passionately believes in the morality of its position to consider change? Or for that matter, who can expect such a group to even liear those arguments which may challenge their convictions? ## practically speaking

Is it the lure of easy money? Or something tangible on which to base our dreams?

Whatever, millions of Americans are caught up in hitting it big on the lottery. Purchase of a new home, a new car, taking a trip - that's how most people say they'd spend their windfall. But after luxury items are bought, the bills paid off, where do you go from there?

Maybe the first step is the realization that, technically speaking, you're not a millionaire. Most large lottery prizes are paid out in installments - not a lump sum. A $1 million prize would be paid at a rate of $50,000 per year, less income tax. Mathematically speaking, the present value today of the $50,000 for the next 20 years, assuming an 8 percent interest rate, is about $500,000. (Present value theory assumes that a dollar today is worth more than a dollar tomorrow because of the income today's dollar can earn.) A true millionaire is one who is considered to have a net worth of at least $1 million and who spends the income from it without consuming the principal. The lottery winner has to receive the prize as income over a period of time and it is reduced by income tax. In effect, the state keeps your "million dollars" and pays you out of earnings over time.

THEN COMES the nagging (for some) question: If I won the lottery, should I go back to work Monday morning? This may be a laudable but misguided plan. Under the present tax structure, you may be giving back to Uncle Sam upwards of 50 percent of your salary because of the tax bracket you now find your-

On the other hand, if you do quit your job, what will you live on when the lottery payments end? If you win at a time when the payments are for a shorter period than your expected lifespan, you need to consider a few things before you follow Johnny Paycheck's example. Do you have a vested interest in a pension plan? If so, how much will the benefits be and when will you be eligible to receive them? Have you worked long enough to qualify for Social Security benefits when you reach the eligible age? Do you have job skills that won't grow stale, or are you likely to have lost your marketability 20 years from now if you try to re-enter the job market? What about health insurance benefits provided to you and your family? These will need to be replaced if you quit your job.

If we raise the ante, here's a plan for a couple who wins $10 million, spread over 20 years, using onethird of the winnings for taxes, onethird for savings and one-third for consumption. Part of the savings might be invested in a tax-sheltered investment such as real estate, and the rest might be put in a tax-exempt investment such as municipal bonds. To simplify the example, assume no taxable income from the real estate investment until the end The municipal bond interest in not

On $500,000 annual income, the federal income tax for the couple would be about $229,000 if they took no steps to reduce their liability. To reduce this to the goal of one-third of their income deductions of $126,000 are needed to produce a tax savings of $63,000 to bring the net tax to $166,000. Many of the deductions could come for a leveraged real estate shelter producing annual losses of at least twice the cash investment. Charitable contributions could also reduce the tax burden.

TO ACHIEVE savings of $166,000 and in addition to the purchase of real estate shelters, the couple might invest about $100,000 in taxexempt municipal bonds or a fund devoted to them. Assuming a 7 percent yield and reinvestment of the interest, $100,000 a year for 20 years would grow to about $4 million by the 20th year.

Consuming $168,000 annually breaks down to $14,000 per month for food, clothing, shelter, travel and other expenses. The $4 million might be capable of yielding $280,000 in tax-free income per year, a substantially larger income than the $168,000 allocated to consumption at the outset. More likely the plan would be adjusted annually to increase the consumption share as the earnings increase, rather than wait the 20 years to do so. Inflation may even force an increase in con-

State plans changing manufacturing future

By Marilyn Fitchett

Michigan is reveling in its economic recovery, but state officials haven't forgotten about the bleak recession that gripped the state at the end of the

Speaking informally before a group of reporters in Lansing recently, state Commerce Director Doug Ross outlined a five-point economic development strategy that embraces the state's connection to manufacturing but with an eye toward making it less vulnerable during economic down-

'We're still an industrial state," Ross said. "Over 40 percent of our income comes directly from manufacturing, and indirectly more than 50 percent. In the late '70s and early '80s we were losing market share in every field except office furniture.

"It was apparent that we can no longer compete in industries which require lots of low-skill labor. There were two solutions mentioned: drop labor costs to Third World level or the one the futurists suggested - the services path was what looked most promising.

"But the private sector, led by the auto industry, saw that not as a fork in the road but a convergence of two

But we have to have employees who can make the machine work. Once routinized, then it gets shipped to Mexico (for low-skill processes to be completed). We're on the flexible manufacturing

"Michigan has lagged in productivity growth. We have to become the emerging center of technology in North America, and we have to accelerate at a rate faster than our competitors -Japan, Germany and northern Italy."

THE SECOND POINT of the strategy deals with new social relationships.

"We are looking at a new system designed without unskilled labor. We have to have a workforce of problemsolving teams. We can't compete with the old confrontational relationships because they'll sabotage against you.

'The challenge is to be first in North America to have those who understand philosophies of this kind of relationship. Now we're talking culture. We have to change fast or we won't make it."

Budget with a calendar

Does the word "budget" give you a ey market accounts. Begin to survey chill? Are your finances managed with all the attention you give your sock drawer?

If you need to add some discipline to your financial life, consider organizing a monthly maintenance file to gain better control over your money. The Michigan Association of CPAs suggests the following schedule:

NOW: The sooner you contribute to a 1986 Individual Retirement Account, the more tax-free earnings you'll accumulate. If self-employed, open a Keogh

Investing in a 1986 tax shelter should be considered now to ensure getting the safest and fullest tax benefits.

Draw up a new budget. Figure your fixed expenses for each month including rent or mortgage payments, utilities and any other expenses which you do not control. Then calculate the monthly sum of all expenses over which you have some control: transportation, taxes, medical care, entertainment, clothing, insurance and food. Then total your income from wages and investments for each month. Subtract the difference to determine your 'discretionary' income - if any. Set aside a reasonable cash fund each week for out-of-pocket expenses.

MARCH: Plan to reduce your taxes income. Make sure you're not having too much withheld from your weekly paycheck. If in need of shelter from taxes, review investments now. Check your capital gains position. Consider establishing a trust or making a gift to shift income to a lower-bracket family

APRIL: Deal with debt. If you are in debt because of credit cards, consider consolidating credit card loans. Credit card debts frequently carry annual interest rates that are higher than other loan rates. By taking a personal loan to pay back credit card companies, you can cut the interest dollars you pay

MAY: Tune up your savings. If you are maintaining a savings account, be sure to leave no more than a three- to six-month "emergency fund" in ordinary savings for money market accounts. Put any extra cushion in other investments that yield more than monthe investment arena for a stock, bond mutual fund or other investments that will suit your ability to take risk. JUNE: Manage risks. Review insurance policies. If you were to become disabled or suddenly die, what cushion has been provided for your family? Find out how long you must be unable to work before a disability policy will begin paying you. Many policies do not pay benefits until your are disabled 90 days. Determine if you have ample life insurance to keep your family secure in the event of death.

JULY: Devise an investment strategy. Write down your investment objectives. Do you want to finance your child's education? Are you planning for retirement? Or is saving for a down payment on a vacation home your main objective? Writing down three main investment goals gives you a notion of whether your goals are realistic, and it shows how much income you need to achieve goals. Match goals with invest-

AUGUST: Retirement planning is advisable for almost everyone over 30. In your 30s, consider contributing the maximum amount to an IRA. People in their 40s should think about when they would like to retire and the location. Estimate how large an income and nest this year. Estimate your 1986 taxable egg is needed. Figure out the savings you need to set aside in order to retire at age 55. People in their 50s may want to begin looking for ways to raise equity. You may want to sell a home after your children are grown and no longer live there. As retirement nears, it's wise to coordinate insurance, estate, investment and tax planning to match retirement goals.

SEPTEMBER: Figure out your net worth. Add up your assets - your house, car, personal possessions, current investment values, cash surrender value of life insurance and your savings. Then total your liabilities mortgage debt and other outstanding personal debts. Subtract liabilities from assets to find your net worth. Annually examining your net worth will make you aware of major trends in your financial well being. It will also be helpful if you need to apply for a personal loan.

OCTOBER: Determine how your estate will be divided in the event of your death. If your taxable estate is greater than $500,000 and you die in 1986, the excess will be taxed at progressive rates of 37 to 55 percent. An estate passes to a spouse tax free, no matter how large it is. If you do not have a will, you may want to consult an attorney to draw up one. An existing will should be updated.

NOVEMBER: Review deductible expenses you've paid since Jan. 1. If income is expected to be about the same as next year, accelerate deductions and defer income when possible. Non-itemizers should try to "bunch" deductions, lumping several deductions into a single year, and this may push itemized deductions beyond the zero bracket amount. Beware of year-end tax law

DECEMBER: Catch up on recordkeeping, making sure all receipts will be available for filing 1986 income taxes. Organize all receipts, old bills and budgeting aids. Assemble a list that can be utilized by family members if something happens to you. Write down the location of your will, insurance policies, stocks, bonds and other financial documents. # How to compute any alternative minim

Even though in the past I have covered this topic in my column, I keep receiving inquiries on how to incorporate alternative minimum tax in tax planning. This column addresses that

Investors who load up on tax shelters may be playing into the IRS's hands after all. That's the irony that will become clear to tens of thousands of taxpayers when they fill out their 1985 form returns and discover that they have been affected by alternative minimum tax, or AMT.

Congress expanded the AMT to prevent wealthy taxpayers from using too many loopholes to avoid paying taxes. The new AMT sharply cuts back the tax advantages of limited partnerships and other sheltered investments.

TO FIND out if the AMT affects you, first complete your regular 1040 computations. Then add certain items labeled tax-preference items by the IRS - to your adjusted gross income. The tax-preference items include the following:

Dividend exclusion.

· Incentive stock options, also known as bargain element. This is an amount that is in excess of the fair market value of a share at the time of exercise over the option price. · Accelerated depreciation and am-ortization. • Depletion.

· Intangible drilling costs. Then calculate your AMT and compare it with your regular tax.

SUPPOSE YOU are married filing jointly. You have an adjusted gross income of $40,000. AMT itemized deductions total $10,000. You have a preference item for capital gains and charity of $60,000. Your regular tax is $6,600.

Your AMT is $11,600 requiring an additional tax payment of $5,000 as shown below:

If you think that the AMT may affect you, let your accountant or financial planner compute the complex tax to

The IRS does not include the AMT form - No. 6251 - in the packets it sends out. Those who want to compute the tax themselves must request a form - which lists all preference items - from a local IRS office.

TO AVOID the AMT during 1986, be sure to take an extra close look at a tax shelter's perspectus before investing any money in one.

You or your accountant also should make a rough projection of your alternative minimum tax as soon as you receive unusually large long-term capitions during the year.

Incidentally, don't be overly cautious in your tax planning just to avoid the AMT. The tax mainly affects those who have gone to enormous lengths to keep their money from the IRS.

My best advice is that you carefully plan your tax strategy but do plan to pay your fair share of taxes.

just you, the boat and hopefully a rock large enough to hold you, the fish and an open fire. Fishermen are motivated by the universal rule: no fish, no lunch

Here is the recipe. Catch a few fish. Tie up to the shore or to a rocky island. Filet the fish away from the eating area so that the flies don't join you for lunch. Light a fire. Heat an inch of oil in the pan. Dip the fish filets in a little flour carried in a plastic bag. Fry fish lightly.

Fishing? Yes.

According to the Metropolitan Toronto Convention and Visitors Association, sports fishing has "caught on" in metro Toronto to the tune of over $180 million annually.

THE GREAT Salmon Hunt, a fishing tournament started in 1975 and sponsored by the Toronto Star newspaper, drew approximately 12,000 registered anglers to Lake Ontario

Approximately 15 miles from downtown Toronto, on the shore of Lake Ontario, a fleet of charter boats work out of the marina at Bluffers Park in Scarborough. Plans are under way to build a new 300 slip marina in the area. Adams Charter Service, run out of Bluffers Park, features up-to-date electronic equipment, including sonar scanners.

The sports fishing season in Toronto runs from July to late September. During that time, you can take in Canada's Wonderland theme park, the Canadian National Exhibition, Ontario Place or the Toronto Zoo.

The current currency exchange rate makes metro Toronto a good deal whether you're interested in fishing or sightseeing. For more information on sports fishing or other attractions, call the Metropolitan To

Detroit-area writers, actors work on radio mystery

ILLIE JAMES JONES wants to frighten you to

Or at the very least, make life a little unsettling twice

"It started five years ago with an idea after listening to WJR's mystery theater. I was fascinated by it. I got the idea to do a radio show," said the producer of "Proceed with Caution Radio Theatre."

"I didn't want to do straight dramas. I wanted eerie stories out of ordinary situations. The idea is, I want to scare the hell out of listen-

The half-hour series, leaning more toward melodrama than the macabre, airs at 10:30 a.m. Mondays on WPON-AM and at 8 p.m. Thursdays on

Jones, a Hamtramck High School English teacher, wrote the first 13 episodes originally broadcast on WCHB-AM and bankrolled production costs without sponsorship funding. Since "Proceed with Caution" debuted a year ago, Detroit Arts Council grants and an eager - and volunteer team of would-be actors, semiprofessional performers and writers have eased the program's shoestring budg-

The cast, which changes with each new episode, rehearses in Jones' Detroit home several times before taping in the cramped recording booth at WPON studios in Bloomfield Town-

BUT STOP-AND-GO recording sessions, informal rehearsals and cramped quarters don't bother some actors, like Bloomfield Hills motherof-two Nancy Matejak.

"That's show biz. I'm an aspiring actress. You try to do anything you can," she said.

Matejak views the radio experience as another star on her broadcast acting resume. The former commercial artist has performed on stage and taught theater workshops but is aiming for commercial film and televiwithin another year or my husband is going to make me work," she said with a laugh. "I've been doing this (acting) for four years."

For Birmingham playwright Therese McGee - one of several amateur and semiprofessional writers who contribute scripts to the program "Proceed with Caution" provides an audience for stories that might otherwise gather dust at home.

"It's a fun thing to do. It's nice to get it produced," said McGee, who's working on a dramatic play and several comedies in her spare time. "I'm past 60. They're (actors) all quite young. I'm very much their senior. But I'm hoping I can do more with

JONES SPENDS two to four hours taping the actors' parts at WPON before mixing in sound effects and editing - another six to eight hours in post production - on portable equipment at home.

'We don't know much about him," Matejek noted. "As an actor you just go into things not knowing what you're reading for. He had a major audition for a TV pilot of the same series. It's possible it really could succeed. I think there's a real method to

With limited broadcast experience and an untested dramatic market in Detroit radio, Jones systematically researched his idea before recording the first two pilots.

Jones, who holds a bachelor of fine arts degree in theater from the University of Detroit and a master's degree in education from Wayne State University, is an experienced actor and director. While in college, he also wrote several scripts, one which won a writer's festival in 1976 and was staged at the Music Hall in 1977.

He convinced a college business class to conduct market surveys in Detroit and wrote the first 13 episodes in his spare time after work.

"I did one thing toward it every day," he said.

"It would have been two years sooner but I got sidetracked. I got involved in a soap opera produced by Channel 62. I started working on it, but it didn't go anywhere."

THE EXPERIENCE set his own project back but didn't dampen his

Meanwhile, Jones continued writ-ing and in late 1984 taped pilots for the program and began shopping for a sponsor. When sponsorable didn't pan out ("they want to invest in someone with a reputation"), he paid for air time and production costs out of his own pocket.

VETERANS PROGRAM EXTENDED

information, call.453-0750.

Area Vietnam-era and disabled veterans should be aware of recent changes affecting the Veterans Readjustment Appointments program. VRA justment Appointments program. VRA is a federal hiring program providing special, non-competitive hiring of these veferans. Originally scheduled to expire Sept. 30, 1984, the program has been extended through Sept. 30, 1886, through passage of the Veferans Beed through fits Improvement Act. It is not expected that the VRA program will be extended beyond that date.

In addition to extending the program, the act raised the entry grade level maximum from GS/WG-7 to GS/ WG-9 and also provided limited appeal rights during the first year of appointment. A Vietnam-era or disabled veteran who has completed no more than 14 years of education may qualify for a VRA. (This restriction may be waived for disabled veterans). For further information, interested veterans may call the local American Legion hotline at 453-9494 and leave a message regarding information desired.

Titan relishes Devils' delight

O MANY WAYS to rate success. Consider the following scenerio and try to imagine what Greg Wendt must be thinking. Then prepare for something quite different. Wendt was expected to lead University of Detroit's basketball team into contention for the Midwestern Collegiate Conference (MCC) title. The team's success seemingly balanced on his performance.

That assessment proved inaccurate. Wendt struggled early and never was the consistent offensive force he hoped to be, that he thought he could be

But U-D still succeeded, and even though his shots weren't falling, Wendt did his share. He rebounded with authority, played defense expertly, and passed with precision.

And the Titans won. After a sluggish 5-7 start, they succeeded in eight of their next 11 games. Seven of those wins, and just one loss, came in MCC play. They beat Xavier, the preseason title favorite, twice. They beat Iowa State - a team Michigan fans will remember - and battled Kansas evenly before falling by nine.

THEN, AS WENDT described it, "The floor caved in on us." Back-to-back-to-back defeats, all to MCC opponents. U-D fell from the conference lead. Its stay in the MCC tournament lasted two games, a win over Evansville followed by a loss (for the third time in three meetings) to St. Louis.

Xavier won the MCC's berth to the NCAA tournament. And Wendt?

"I went to Fort Lauderdale for spring break," he said, then added, "I would have rather gone to a (NCAA) regional somewhere."

That's the breaks. The Titans were left to plan their future and commiserate their 14-15 season. And as Wendt, vacationing in Florida, mulled over his final campaign at U-D, he tuned in the NCAA tournament on TV.

Watching that and trying not to think whatmight-have-been would be difficult for any of the Titans. It was different for Wendt. Because there, in living color on national TV, was the tournament favorite and No. 1 team in the nation: the Duke Blue Devils, the team Wendt left to come to U-D.

WHEN WENDT went from Livonia to Duke after graduating from Redford Catholic Central in 1981, he was thought to be part of a rebuilding process. He performed well as a freshman, but then Coach Mike Krzyzewski brought in a recruiting class that included Johnny Dawkins, Mark Alarie, Jay Bilas and David Henderson.

Those names sound familiar? They should. They are the reasons Duke is No. 1. Wendt's playing time as a sophomore diminished, and with it went his desire to remain a Blue Devil. He was a basketball player, and he wanted to Antagonism, even regret, would be natural perhaps even expected - from Wendt. His former mates are still in the hunt for a national title. They were on national television almost every week this season, while U-D's games were picked up occasionally by Channel 62.

Logic dictates second-guessing. But Wendt won't. In retrospect, his transfer still makes perfect sense to him.

'I watch Duke all the time, whenever they're on TV," the 6-foot-6 forward said, "because I still have a lot of friends there. We went through a lot of the same things together.

"I have no regrets. I'm happy to see them do well. There are no grudges. After we beat Memphis State last year and got a lot of publicity for it, Coach K (Krzyzewski) sent me a nice letter saying he was glad to see me doing so

Had Wendt stayed at Duke, he would have graduated last year. And, he is certain, had he stayed he would "probably be working on Wall Street somewhere. I would have played only 10 minutes a game for them."

Still, transferring from a potential national champion sounds like solid evidence for commitment to a mental hospital. But as Wendt noted, "When I left, the team was 11-17. It wasn't like they were on top of the world."

ANYWAY, HE hasn't done badly at U-D. He averaged more than 36 minutes a game this season, instead of 10. He scored 13.9 points, grabbed 7.3 rebounds and dished out three assists per contest.

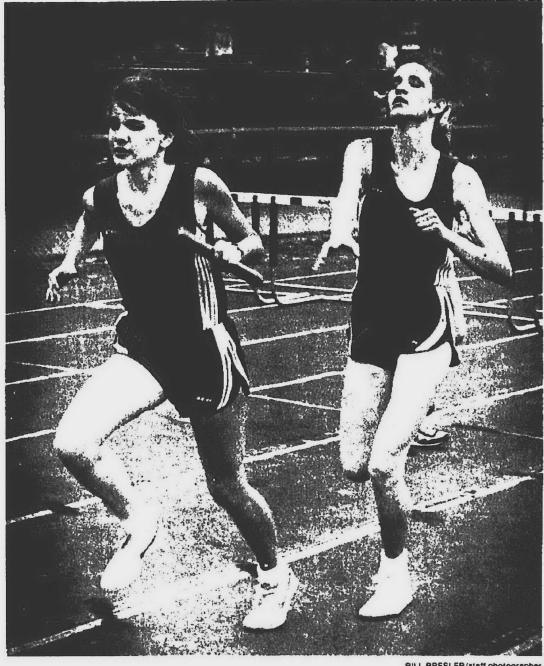

And even though his shooting percentages lagged (45.5 percent from the floor, 65.2 percent from the free throw line), Wendt did well enough to earn all-MCC honors for the second-straight year and keep a longtime dream alive: a chance to play pro basketball.

'I thought I did have a good year," he said. "I didn't have the kind of season I had hoped for, but it wasn't bad. Right now, what I really want to do is play pro ball. I want to see how far I can take it." Wendt figures he has the size and strength necessary to play small forward, and the ballhandling and passing abilities to play off-guard. He plans on waiting to see what happens in the pro basketball draft; if that doesn't work out, he plans on going to Europe to play. Wendt will graduate in May, with a major in communications and a minor in business. Grad school is another possibility, but not right now, not right away. First comes basketball and the hope that somewhere, he'll get a chance to prove Canton's title chances may well rest in the able hands of Marie Jarosz (right) and Rachel Mann.

Chiefs building toward a title

staff writer

The script for the Plymouth Canton girls track team is getting more exciting, so George Pryzgodski wants to stick around to see the climax.

Which is the main reason the firstyear coach wanted to take over for Bob Richardson, who left at the end of last season. Pryzgodski remembers his four years as Richardson's assistant when things weren't going so hot.

"My first year as assistant, we had only 13 kids on the team and we were the door mats of the league," said Pryzgodski. "Over the course of four years, our program has gained respectability, and we now have 70 kids on our team. I'd like to see Canton continue toward a stronger.program."

With a 7-2 dual meet record, which was best in the Western Lakes Activities Association, the Chiefs could be well on their way. Last year, Canton was second at the league meet behind Walled Lake Western.

Graduation hit hardest in the field events department. Canton lost 400meter runner and long jumper Carolyn Nagy, who went on to Eastern Michigan, and shot put and discus tosser Hol-

But don't bother with the condolences. Back are Angie Miller and Marie Jarosz, both middle distance runners and high jumpers. Distance runner Rachel Mann, who took third recently in the 1,000-meter run at the Michigan Intercollegiate Track Coaches Association (MITCA) indoor state meet, also returns.

'We lost a few field events people," said Pryzgodski. "But we have a lot of people back to pick up the slack."

The middle distance and high jump events will be Canton's forte, said Pryzgodski. But, he adds, some sprinters and hurdles people will have to pop

PLYMOUTH SALEM

The Plymouth Salem girls track team has some skill, and a few holes to patch.

With a team that rivals anything out of China in terms of numbers, the Rocks has some people to fill the va-

How much? Salem coach Fred Thomann has 70 runners, which he could probably stage his own Boston Marathon with.

Sure, the Rocks suffered some losses due to graduation. Distance runners Denise Durrer and Amy Myazaki are both gone, along with sprinters Stacy Stojeba and Nancy Smith. Discus thrower and relay runner Mary Beth Weast has also departed.

Thomann hardly sounds worried,

'The younger kids have to come in and give us some depth," said Thomann. "Overall, with the numbers we have, overall team depth will be a strong point. We have some good skilled people in the high jump and the long jump. We need to find some speed in our sprinters."

With 70 tracksters to choose from, that shouldn't be much of a problem.

The number of returnees alone should keep Salem in the thick of things in the Western Lakes Activities Association race. Last year, the Rocks finished fourth in the league meet behind Walled Lake Western, Northville and Plymouth Canton.

Redford Catholic Central is always noted for its prowess in cross country. wrestling, football and basketball.

Despite little fanfare, the Shamrock swim team continues to make waves on a statewide level, finishing 10th recently at the Class A meet after winning the Catholic League title for the third straight year.

In DeLoris Yager's 20 years as CC coach, the Shamrocks have been among the top 10 on nine different occasions. Area coaches gathered recently to select the best among Observerland. CC captured four of 11 first-team The remaining first-team and at-

Rocks' Rafail posts beaming score at state

staff writer

Beth Rafail didn't try anything so complicated that it would take a computer to figure out Saturday at the Class A state gymnastics meet.

Yet the senior Plymouth Salem gymnast dazzled the judges with the basics to tie for second on the balance beam with a total score of 17.80 in the twoday event at Grand Rapids' Creston

North Farmington made it to the final eight in the team competition but finished seventh with a score of 131.45. Holland took first as a team with 141.25 to take the Class A championship.

Rafail, who had the meet's highest beam with a 9.25 Saturday, tied with Holland's Jeni Hescott for runner-up. Andrea Veurink, also of Holland, took first place on the beam with a combined score of 17.85. FOR RAFAIL, it was Saturday's strong showing that almost netted her a first on the beam. Friday she tied for fourth place out of 70 participants with Rafail performed a regular routine with perfection for the score Saturday.

"The other girls were trying highrisk techniques, but they weren't clean," said Salem coach Kathi Kinsella. "Beth's routine didn't have a lot of high-risk stuff, but it was clean . Fortunately that's what the judges RAFAIL WASN'T the only one to have a fine individual outing. Farmington Harrison's Tana Burningham, a sophomore, tied for third on the vault with a combined score of 18.80.

Jeff Sleving of the Clarenceville Swim Club set three records recently at the Waverly Piranha "Squirt Splash.

More than 200 swimmers from 21 clubs participated in the meet, considered the Mini-C state championship.

Sieving broke records in the 25-yard breaststroke (20.62), 25 freestyle (16.04) and 50 breaststroke (46.15) en route to runner-up point honors in the boys 7-and-under age group.

Scott Tucker, who was runner-up for boys 6-andunder, set state meet records in the 25 backstroke (19.86) and the 25 butterfly (19.83).

Clarenceville, third overall in the team standings, also had a runner-up finish from Lynn Knapp in the girls 7-and-under division.

Raiders roll to 3rd place

The situation looked gloomy for Oakland Community College's basketball team. The Raiders had lost 69-59 in the NJCAA Division II semifinals Friday night to eventual champion Parkland CC, wasting a valiant comeback from a 16-point deficit.

Now they had to play the consolation final against Meramec (St. Louis) CC. And they had to do it without starters Pat Gardner and Gary Holt, both sent home by interim coach Fred Thomann for disciplinary reasons. Thomann was subbing for Tom McPhillips, absent because of medical problems.

With such odds stacked against it, OCC could easily have given up without a fight. Instead, the seven-man Raider squad tore into MCC with a vengence, routing their opponents 82-58 to claim third place in the Division II tournament at Delta CC in

"We really couldn't have done much better," said Thomann of OCC's tournament performance, which enabled it to finish with a 26-4 season record. "(MCC) never led in the game, and they never made a serious run at us."

WITH ONLY two substitutes on the bench, Thomann was limited in his defensive options. He had the Raiders pressure from three-quarter court, then fall back into a zone. He planned to use the man-to-man defense only when necessary.

That moment never arrived. OCC led 34-21 at the half and never let up. "We never had to go to our man defense," said Thomann.

Willie Jones popped in 30 points for the Raiders and earned this praise from Thomann: "I think he was the best player there. If we could have won the tournament, he would have been the most valuable player."

Thomann also singled out Rod Thompson and Darrell Darling for accolades, calling their performances "outstanding." Thompson netted 20 points against MCC. Joe Liggans came off the bench to Jeff Hummel paced MCC with 21 points.

Salem looks to rebuild; Canton well-stocked

staff writer

Gary Balconi will miss the racket of Mike White breaking school records. It was music to the Plymouth Salem boys track coach's ears.

Graduation nabbed White, who set school marks in the long jump, the high hurdles and the low hurdles, plus as a member of all three relay teams (the shuttle, the sprint and the 440). Also gone is sprinter Craig Morton, who was an anchor on all three relay teams.

Understandably, Balconi can be excused for crying the blues.

"We've got a lot of places where there are gaps, and we're looking for some help from our younger kids," said Balconi, whose team was 5-2 in dual meets and placed third in the Western Lakes Activities Association meet behind Livonia Churchill and Farming-

The Rocks lost 23 seniors last season but have a pool of talent to make up for the departed.

There's plenty of sprinters as Brian Neuhardt leads the pack. Balconi is looking for Neuhardt to run in the 100-, the 200-, the 400-, and 800-meter events. Other sprinters include Sean O'Hare, Keith Larson and Rick Wilson. Doug Olender and Chris Hill are two

"A major disadvantage is learning everybody's names," said Neu, who succeeds Mike Spitz as coach. "I'm getting to learn them, though."

One thing Neu is quick to pick up on is that the Chiefs are a veteran outfit. The hurdles, the high and long jump, plus the 440 relay team should all be strong again this year for Canton.

Dave McCullum, who runs the 100 meters and the 400-meter relay, is back along with Chris Hayosh, also a

Pioneers 3rd at NCAA meet

Going into the NCAA Division II championship swim meet, Oakland University's men's swim coach Pete Hovland figured his Pioneers would finish among the top five teams in the nation. Third was certainly within reach and, if everything broke just right, perhaps even second.

The Pioneers did swim fairly well last weekend in Orlando, Fla. And it's a good thing they did. They needed it in what proved to be a very fast meet to secure third place.

California State-Bakersfield won the team title with 549 points, ending California State-Northridge's four-year reign as champion. Northridge was second with 438 points, followed by OU with 335 and University of Tampa with 321. Clarion State was fifth (228.5).

A TRIO of second-place finishes highlighted OU's performances during the final two days of a competition in which several records were busted. Sophomore Bruce Verburg placed second in the 200-yard freestyle (1:40.24) on Friday, with freshman teammate Dan Andrus taking 11th (1:41.46).

VE GOT A GREAT story idea for narrator Let's call this one: "In Search of . . .

Ralph Walker." On my annual trek to the NCAA basketball tournament in Dayton, Ohio, I got an idea about a column piece. Here's a local guy, Ralph Walker, of Southfield

High School fame, who is part of Michigan State's Final Four quest, an odyssey that has taken the Spartans to the round of 16 and a date Friday night with Kansas at Kemper Arena in Kansas

I went to Dayton strictly as a spectator. You know, Section 313, Row E, Seat 9.

Wanting to make an introduction Thursday night. I bumped into MSU assistant Mike Deane. He told me that if I wanted to set up an interview with Walker, I should clear it first with MSU Sports Information Director Nick Vista.

The 6-foot-8 forward, the Spartans' seventh man this season, was receptive and seemed pleased that I was interested in doing a story on him when I greeted him in the tunnel of the Dayton Arena.

The Southfield Eccentric?" Walker responded. "Sure, I'm staying at Stouffers and I should be there around 9 in the morning."

THAT WAS THE LAST I've seen or heard of Walker after missing my scheduled contact by phone Friday morning.

No. Walker hasn't been avoiding my calls. Security is tight around MSU players. I suspect it's that way because of the media's run-ins with coach Jud Heathcote over the Scott Skiles affair.

But that was no problem for me, I'd just go through the proper channels Monday and have Vista set up an interview The call went through to one of Vista's student assistants at 1:30 p.m. Monday, but there was no I tried again Tuesday, but struck out. The press is only allowed interviews with the players and coaches on Mondays," said Vista's secretary. "That's the rule." I didn't want to talk to Scott Skiles or Jud, I just wanted to talk to Ralph Walker, a guy who's played in relative obscurity for four years. Vista later called me back and said: "It's like we've been hit with a bomb. We've got the hockey tournament here this weekend and the high school

(state tournament) games Friday. Plus, we're in the NCAA basketball tourney. We've had over 300 calls today

I APPRECIATED Vista's sincerity, but I told him I had to talk to Walker before Tuesday night's

"I see your message here, and I don't know why somebody didn't get back with you - I'm sorry, Vista said. "I just can't do it. Jud has strict rules." My next step in finding Ralph weighed upon the shoulders of Southfield High coach Greg Sliwka. In 1982, Sliwka's Blue Jay team, featuring Ralph and brother Jerome Walker, Mike McCaskill and Mike Priest, captured the fancy of prep fans by reaching the Class A semifinals.

When Walker graduated from Southfield High, he was only 16 years old, having been promoted a grade during his elementary school days.

Sliwka offered me great insight on his former pupil: "Ralph was extremely cooperative and a determined one. He was one of the more coachable kids I ever had. He was a great kid. And his parents (Arthur and Janie) gave them tremendous support.

SLIWKA ADDED that Walker was a B-minus student who excelled in the creative arts.

And because he was only 16 when he graduated, Sliwka said that the pencil-thin Walker "was physically underdeveloped."

That played a big part in his recruitment. Because of his lack of strength, Big 10 schools

Dick Parfitt (the Central Michigan coach) was here just about every game and every practice," Sliwka recalls. "The University of Detroit came on late and there was a time when I thought they might get him.

'Michigan State didn't come around until we got to the regional (late in the season). It was a tremendous surprise when he went to MSU."

Walker has been unspectacular in his four years, but according to Deane, "the last four or five games Ralph has been a factor."

In MSU's final two regular season games Walker scored 14 points and pulled down 10 rebounds in a loss to Indiana, followed by a 10point, 13-rebound game in a victory over Ohio IN MSU'S NCAA wins over Washington and Georgetown, Walker has played a key role coming off the bench, giving the Spartans much needed rebounding and defense.

"Ralph comes back every year and we talk," Sliwka said. "There's been some tough times and Central, 200 medley: This quartet paced the area with a time of 1:38.93 en route to a seventh-place finish in Class A. They also combined to capture the Catholic League crown.

The accomplishments of Kouseh Supplies and re the Catholic League crown.
The accomplishments of Kovach, Surowiec and McDernott are well documented.

Teal, a sophomore, was outstanding in the 50 and 100 freestyles, posting times of 22.2 and 48.8. He was a big reason for CC's league title quest.

Mike Buatti, Craig Burland, Dan Mannisto and Mike Turney, North Farmington, 400 freestyle: This foursome was learsome, posting an area best of 3:15.8 en route to an eighth-place finish in Class A.

Turney and Buatti were also first-team picks (see above).

Mannisto, a senior, was valuable in the 50 and 100 freestyles with season best of 22.4 and 48.7.

Burland finished second at the WLAA meet in the 200 freestyle and was sixth in the 100 freestyle. He was also a team captain.

AT-LARGE BERTHS

Bryan Madigan, Livonia Franklin: The Patriot senior co-captain was a state qualifier in the '50, 100 and 200 freestyle events, posting season bests of 22.3 (a Franklin pool record), 49.6 and 1:50.1. He won 22 of 25 races and was the team's most valuable swimmer. Madigan is headed for Michigan State.

Dave Goralski, Livonia Franklin: The Dave Goralski, Livorila Prankitti: The Franklin senior won 12 of 13 races in the 100 breaststroke, his best event. He captured the WLAA crown in the 100 breaststroke with a league and school record time of 1:02.57. He also placed first at the Western Wayne invitational and was a member of Franklin's school-record 200 medley relay squad. He is headed to Wayne State or MSU.

D.J. Ward, Livonia Stevenson: Ward

epeats as an All-Area performer.

The Stevenson senior pulled a mild upset by winning the 100 freestyle at the league meet. His sea-son best in that event was 49.1. He also clocked a 22.14 in the 50 freestyle and helped the Spartans to a sixth-place finish in the 200 medley relay at the Steve Taormina, Livonia Stevenson: A junior, Taormina was a member of Stevenson's successful 200 mediey squad. Taormina was tops in the 100 breaststroke but sacrificed his talenta in that event for the benefit of the team by swimming in the 200 IM (2:04.8).

In the WLAA meet, Taormina gained third in the IM and also placed in the butterfly.

Tony Atwell, Plymouth Salem: Atwell a senior, was a valuable member of Salem's WLAA championship team.

In the league meet, Atwell took third in the 100 butterfly (54.4) and fourth in the 200 IM (2:08.6). He was also a state qualifier in three events. Atwell was the team's captain this season.

Rick Cummings, Plymouth Salem: Cummings, a senior, was one of the Rocks' top sprinters, posting season bests of 22.4 in the 50 freestyle and 49.9 in the 100, good enough for a third and fifth-place finish in the WLAA.

He was a state qualifier in both events and was a member of Salem's 400 freestyle relay squad.

Hitting dominates for new Pioneer spikers

staff writer

A year ago, Bob Hurdle was lauding the group of soon-to-be Oakland University freshmen as his best class of volleyball recruits ever.

Apparently, that group - from which two starters emerged during last season's school record-breaking campaign - won't hold that claim for long. Just one year, in fact.

That's because Hurdle has just completed this year's recruiting, and he is now certain the title should be passed

"I know I said we had a great recruiting class last year, and we did." said Hurdle, whose five-year record at OU is 100-50, including a 33-10 1985 mark. "But top to bottom in skill level, this group is the best we've ever had. We've had a very good recruiting college sports year, and we had to have one. We graduated four seniors.

AMONG THOSE lost were a pair of all-Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (GLIAC) performers in Mary Pike and Becca Wyatt. The hitting and blocking lines were hit hardest, and that's where Hurdle concentrated his efforts.

One recruit he's counting on helping immediately is Sue Lermin, a 1984 graduate of Troy Athens. Lormin, a 5foot-9 outside hitter, has played the last two years at Utah Tech, a junior college that was among the top 10 teams in the country in 1985.

"She's very strong, she's good defensively, and she gives us some muchneeded experience on the front line," said Hurdle of Lormin. "But her strongest attribute is her mental toughness. I think she can start for us right

Joining Lormin in competing for a starting role on the Lady Pioneers' front line will be Leslie Teper, a 5-10 outside hitter/middle blocker from Sterling Heights Stevenson. Teper helped Stevenson record a 48-4 record this season and earned Macomb Athletic Conference player of the year hon-

"She's a great defensive player," said Hurdle, who coached Teper at the OU volleyball camp. "She should step in and give us immediate help. I'm not saying she'll start, but she'll compete for a starting spot.

MISSY WARD, from Garden City, stands only 5-8 but Hurdle called her "the best hitter I've recruited this year." Garden City was 47-7 last sea-

"She's not up to Leslie's ability on defense or passing," Hurdle added. "But she's a pure hitter. I'd compare her to Mary Pike, only (Ward) gets up better and she's stronger. She's a solid outside hitter, and she doesn't understand los-

Jenifer Henry hails from another winning program: East Kentwood, which was 56-4. Henry, who stands 5-9, was a setter until this season. She was moved to outside hitter, a position she hasn't completely mastered.

Engineers win in playoff

"She's a diamond in the rough," said Hurdle. "She a strong passer and a good defensive player. She's going to be a player for sure, I'm just not sure how far she can go (in developing).

Hurdle's final recruit is Kris Morrison, a 5-6 outside hitter and defensive specialist from Berkiey. Morrison caught Hurdle's eye at a national elite camp for high school players at Western Michigan University.

'She was ranked as one of a handful of players capable of playing world-class defense," said Hurdle. "She's very capable."

MORRISON WILL be a role player her first two seasons. Hurdle said, in defensive situations.

The Lady Pioneers were selected to finish fifth in last year's pre-season GLIAC coaches' poll. They ended third, after tying for the regular season title.

'We'll surprise some people next year. We're very talented but very young. Obviously, we won't be picked very high in the preseason poll. But there won't be any pressure on us, either.'

> - Bob Hurdle OU volleyball coach

Hurdle figures this young team (only one senior and three juniors) will earn even less respect. But that's OK. "We'll surprise some people next year," he said with confidence.

Many people all over America are surprised when they hear what U.S. Savings Bonds have to offer. For starters, Savings Bonds give you market-based interest rates—like the money markets—plus the security of a guaranteed return. This means you can earn a lot more than the guaranteed minimum rate of 7½%, but never less! To earn the higher rates, just hold your Bonds for five years or longer.

Here's more surprising news—the interest you earn from Savings Bonds is free from state and local income taxes. And you don't have to pay federal taxes on the interest earned until you cash in your Bonds. Savings Bonds are easy to buy, too. They cost as little as $25 and can be purchased at most banks and savings and loans. Or through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

All of these advantages are making Savings Bonds an increasingly popular investment. Last year, sales of U.S. Savings Bonds were up nearly 30%!

With all that Savings Bonds have to offer, it's no surprise they're one of the best investments in America. For the current rate, just call toll-free 1-800-US-BONDS.

Diego Rivera

Assistants remember the genius

By Ramona Grigg special writer

When artist Lucienne Bloch was a young girl in her 20s, during the height job teaching sculpture for Frank Lloyd Wright at Taliesin to grind powdered paints for Diego Rivera - a backbreaking, poor-paying, thankless job, at

She met the famed Mexican muralist in 1931 in New York, at a banquet given in his honor during an exhibition of his work.

"My romantic notions of art and life, at age 22, were knocked out of joint by this burly giant of a man, and I marveled at his preposterous opinions," Bloch wrote in a recent article for Art in America titled, "On Location with Diego Rivera."

What swayed her the most, Bloch wrote, was Rivera's notion that man doesn't control the machines. "The machines control us," he told her. "We are the catalysts that transform the raw materials of the earth into energy. We are the continuation of the geologic

LAST WEEK Bloch and her husband, Stephen Dimitroff, another of Rivera's early assistants, stood in the Rivera Court at the Detroit Institute of Art transfixed by the 53-year-old Detroit Industry murals. They stared at them, moved closer to pick out certain touches, and delighted in them as though they were seeing the 27 frescoes for the first time - as though they themselves had not worked on them. "Can you imagine the genius of the man?" Dimitroff said, "He was incredible. It was the thrill of our lives to work for Diego."

When Bloch asked Rivera at the banquet if he would let her grind colors, the muralist already had a reputation as a self-centered perfectionist who worked his assistants until they dropped, then refused to pay them a dime when a nickel would do.

He had the energy of 10 men half his age, and if he worked 20 or 30 hours straight, as the Dimitroffs said he often did, his assistants worked as long, without question. And there were plenty of young artists, including Dimitroff, who begged for the job.

Dimitroff was born in Bulgaria, but his family eventually settled in Flint, where he and his father worked in the auto plants.

He went to Chicago to study art, but left in a fury when the art school wouldn't recognize his three years of

In his book "Apprentice of Diego Rivera in Detroit." Dimitroff remem-

"An overwhelming urge to reject art Diego Rivera, had propelled me by night bus and streetcar to the DIA. That early chilly November, 1932, I ran up the marble steps boldly. I winked at the bronze hulk of Rodin's The Thinker - then the fact hit me that this was Monday, when all the museums of the world are closed!"

DIMITROFF CAJOLED the guards and finally got in by saying he had to get back to Flint "where my dad was laid off from Buick." The guard turned away and said, "Well, son, if I don't see you go in I can't stop you.

He met Riveria and told him he just and looked all over for the Riveras. wanted to watch. He did that for days, going back each night to his $2.50 a month room, until finally somebody let him grind colors.

"It was the Depression then, you have to remember, and nobody mentioned money," Dimitroff said with a laugh. "But I was there to learn. It was what I wanted to do." Dimitroff was hired when one of the assistants suddenly quit.

Rivera asked to see some of his paintings and the young man was terrified. "I showed him landscapes and still lifes and portraits of my family, including one of my dad coming back from the factory with his lunch pail. (Rivera said) 'Very fine, sketches good - but why you not paint worker's factory? That interesting.' I was stunned. I didn't know how to answer. The factory was just plain routine to me."

At one point Dimitroff stopped working long enough to pose for Rivera, whose habit it was to choose real people for the subjects of his paintings. He appears as a pink-shirted worker on the North Wall lifting a motor block with another Rivera assistant, Art Niendorf.

Though Bloch and Dimitroff both worked with Rivera in Detroit, they didn't meet here. "I left for New York one day, and Steve showed up in Detroit the next day," Bloch said. They met for the first time some months later in New York when Dimitroff and Niendorf came to her door begging for money.

They'd been sent from Detroit to Rockefeller Center to prepare the walls of the RCA Building lobby for Rivera's next job - three frescoes commissioned by Nelson Rockefeller depicting "Man at the Crossroads."

RIVERA KEPT "forgetting" to send the two men their living expenses and they were dead broke. "You're the only one I know in New York," Niendorf told Bloch. "Can we borrow $20?"

When Bloch hesitated, Neindorf said she could be chief photographer for the "It was the most signficant $20 I ever

Throughout her days with Rivera in Detroit (where she shared an apartment for five months with Rivera and his wife, Frida Kahlo) and in New York, Bloch managed to find time to keep a diary.

A passage, dated March 20 (1933), has Bloch looking for the Riveras in New York after they'd arrived there fresh from the Detroit project: "I met Dimi (Stephen Dimitroff) at RCA. We went together to the Barbizon-Plaza shocked at the big nudes. Some object that the workers in the factory scenes don't look happy. But the greatest of the commotion is the panel which some call a 'travesty on the Holy Family'.

"This is a small panel, glorifying the great medical research work of science. It shows a blond baby. (The model, Bloch said later, was the kidnapped Lindbergh baby which Rivera sketched

"In the foreground are the ox, horse, and sheep - the source of serums needed to control epidemics. A beautiful theme! Newspapers are having a holiday on the furor the mural causes. Luckily Edsel Ford shows real GUTS not to weaken before the hue and cry of the bigots. I'm impressed. Maybe he's, got some of his Dad's stubbornness. Diego says that thousands of people are visiting the Art Institute who never went there before.

Today, a half-century later, Rivera is back at the DIA, in the form of a major retrospective on view through April 27 before going on to Philadelphia, Mexico City, Madrid and West Berlin. It includes Rivera's huge preparatory drawings - or "cartoons" in museum lingo - found in the basement of the museum in 1979, after the Dimitroffs and others assured staff members the drawings existed and should be there.

And the Dimitroffs, major forces during Rivera's United States stay, are back, too. They're here at the DIA's invitation to teach and lecture on Rivera's Detroit frescoes.

Twice a week they're at Detroit's Northern High School teaching the lost art of fresco painting to gifted students "who, with such joy, do all the dirty work," Bloch said. The adults in the class come from Cranbrook.

There's a 70-year-old man who's just marvelous!" She said, adding, "He's so full of life." Bloch herself is a 75-year-old human dynamo who admitted she "works all the time. We're only

And if the year 1986 is significant at the DIA - the retrospective celebrating 100 years since Rivera's birth is a major event designed to coincide with the DIA's Centennial Celebration - it is no less significant for the Dimitroffs. In September they celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary.

The two fell in love in New York while they worked on the ill-fated Rockefeller Center frescoes. After seven months of work, the murals were almost completed when Rivera, an avowed Communist trying to get back in the good graces of the party, painted the head of Lenin into one prominent

The sponsors protested, but Rivera refused to remove it. All work stopped and the murals were eventually smashed to bits.

As Dimitroff and the other assistants ground colors and applied the five coats of plaster needed for Rivera's style of fresco, Bloch shot roll after roll of film. Later, when the assistants got wind of a shut-down, the photographs took on a new importance.

Near the end, when RCA guards were ordered to confiscate cameras, Bloch tucked her little Leica into her blouse and entered the building with Dimitroff, saying they had last-minute work to finish up.

While Dimitroff pounded on boards to mask the sounds of the clicking shutter, Bloch took the final photos of the murals - including the controversial head of Lenin.

"It was insane, that destruction," Bloch said. I'll never understand why they couldn't just cover the murals with canvas. To destroy such a work and to think it could have happened to the Detroit murals, too." RIVERA WENT back to Mexico and the Dimitroffs never saw him again, though Bloch corresponded with her friend, Frida Kahlo. The Dimitroffs set up a lecture tour to discuss the "Fresco Debacle" as they called it, and when the interest waned, Bloch signed on as a WPA artist.

"You had to take what they called a 'pauper's oath', saying you didn't have any money," Bloch recalled. "Steve absolutely refused to do it, even though he was so broke, but I wanted to.

"They asked me how much money I had and I told the truth - I said I had $60. They weren't going to let me sign up and I said, 'Listen, by next week I'll have nothing. My rent is due and I have to eat.' Well, they wanted a woman fresco painter so they let me go."

She painted two frescoes in New York City - one at the Washington School, since torn down and one at the Women's House of Detention.

About that mural she later wrote: Conversation with the inmates revealed with what sarcasm and suspicion (they) treated the mention of art . I chose the only subject which would not be foreign to them - children - framed in a New York landscape of the most ordinary kind. In their make-believe moments the children in the mural were adopted and named . . . Such response clearly reveals to what degree a mural can, aside from its artistic value, act as a healthy tonic on the lives of all of us."

THEY MOVED to Flint, Dimitroff's hometown, where he worked as a machinist and later a draftsman and she taught art classes twice a week at the Flint Institute of Art.

"After we'd been there about eight years - by that time we had three kids and a house - we proposed a mural for the offices or dining room at General Motors," Bloch said, "Something in the style of Rivera. They weren't the least bit interested. That's when we decided we had done all we could in Flint, so we sold the house, loaded up kids, tents and sleeping bags into the car and headed

"Since those days with Diego, Steve and I have never stopped working together." Bloch said last week, as they surveyed the frescoes before rushing off for another speaking engagement.

"And our great love is still fresco painting. We do other things out of necessity. You can't make a living from frescoes - each one takes too long so we've done book illustrations, mosaics, anything anyone asks of us.

"Sad to say, fresco painting is becoming a lost art. It's scary to see in print how much work goes into it. It sounds more complicated than it really

"There's a joy to it. You can see it in the students at the fresco workshop But it is very difficult work - timeconsuming - and artists nowadays seem to want to do everything spontaneously. They don't seem to understand that even the spontaneous Japanese and Chinese brush painting is done only after 30 days of studying. Very disciplined study.

So our joy is turning people on to painting frescoes again. Aside from a man we heard about in Texas, we seem to be the only true fresco painters left in this country. And that is so sad."

Detail of one of the murals shows the power of line and form, the earthy nobility that Diego Rivera gave to the working man.

Orchestra, piano needed balance

By Avigdor Zaromp special writer

Raymond Leppard, the renowned English-born conductor, was the guest for the latest Detroit Symphony Orchestra program. Two of the three items on this program are rather obscure and received their first DSO performance on this occasion. These were a suite from Dardanus by Rameau and the more modern Symphony No. 5 by Vaughan Williams.

Between these little known works was a stretch of familiar territory in the form of Mozart's Piano Concerto No. 17, K. 453 in G Major. The soloist was the Russian-born, highly esteemed pianist, Bella Davidovich.

While sometimes rare treasures may be discovered in unknown domains, the treasure on this program was definitely in the more traditional and familiar.

Davidovich, who had been considered one of the top-rated Soviet pianists until her departure in 1979, demonstrated that her reputation is well deserved. Her delicate phrasing in the Mozart concerto brought significance to every note.

LIKE SO MANY other classical masters, Mozart tends to elicit his own share of the opposing and controversial approaches. The performance of Davidovich was on the low-key side in terms of intensity, more so than any other performance I can recall.

Stylistically there is ample justification for this, in view of the fact that Mozart's small keyboard instrument was a far cry from the modern concert grand. On the other hand, concert halls and audiences were also considerably smaller and the full, more intense sound in most modern performances can also be supported.

However, whatever style is chosen by the soloist, it should be adequately supported buy the other participants. In this respect, the performance turned out to be deficient. While Leppard wisely chose to engage a small, chamber-size orchestra, he failed to scale was the case here down the sound to match the soloist's low volume.

Consequently, Davidovich was frequently overwhelmed by the orchestra and one had to strain to listen to her tender phrases, which had a lot to offer, however, to those who managed to focus on them. It is hoped that efforts will be made to engage Bella Davidovich here in subsequent seasons. The Rameau suite is one of those works that can be classified as "cute," but its exclusion from the repertoire could hardly be described as a big loss. Among its more exotic features were the "Tambourin" movements, in which percussionist Robert Paingborn provided a vivid accompaniment on the

NOT HAVING been exposed to this work before, it would be difficult to determine its authentic, stylistic sound. However, I have my doubts that Rameau intended this suite to sound like a collection of Irish folk songs, as

The Vaughan Williams symphony is a substantial orchestral work for which Leppard had a noticeable affinity. As fifth symphonies by various composers go, they tend to have a special significance to the extent they are known.

With Beethoven's famous fifth serving as a role model in terms of concept, if not in form, Vaughan Williams' symphony does feature lavishness and grandeur, which were present in this performance.

All this being said, the exclusion of this work from the standard repertoire has its justification, in view of its overbearing phrases. However, its occasional presentation to audiences serves a useful purpose. It does seem to offer more than meets the ear upon first listening, in particular the final passacaglia is of interest.

Raymond Leppard will be presenting a special program dedicated to the music of the Bach family on March 31 at Orchestra Hall.

DÉTROIT FOCUS GALLERY

Friday, March 21 - Four-person exhibit features works by Michael Boss. Mary King, Karen Rhodes and Gary Zych with the idea of showing art by young professionals. Boss and Rhodes are painters, King works with mixed media and Zych is a sculptor. Reception to meet the artists 6-8:30 p.m. Friday. Hours are noon to 6 p.m. Wednesday-Saturday, 743 Beaubien, Detroit.

• ELECTRIC FANTASIES AND LIGHTING

Saturday, March 22 - Paintings by Jose Romero of Southfield are hanging in this store in Farrell's Shopping Plaza. The artist uses acrylics with a style that makes them look like watercolors. Most of these were done in the '70s.

He's a member of the Scarab Club and has been in many regional shows. Hours are 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday-Saturday. The shopping plaza is on Southfield, north of 12 Mile, Southfield.

 CADE GALLERY Saturday, March 22 - New work by Michael Joseph will be on display through April 23. This is a series of drawings and paintings that deal with the bar hustle, drinking, smoking and the "trying to get lucky scene." Reception for the artist 3-7 p.m. Saturday. Hours are 10:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. Tuesday-

Saturday, 214 W. Sixth, Royal Oak. • SOUTHFIELD CIVIC CENTER

Tuesday, March 27 - Paintings by Dorothy Delahanty, flowers, still lifes and the ribbon series, are on display through April 4. Hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. every day, Evergreen between 10 and 11 Mile, Southfield.

O D & J BITTKER GALLERY

Wednesday, March 26 - Etchings on handmade papers by Shoichi Ida, a contemporary Japanese artist whose works are in many major museums around the world. On display is his fivepiece portfolio, "Descended Blue," 536

N. Woodward, Birmingham.

• DETROIT ARTISTS MARKET

"New Work: Landscape" includes works by 16 outstanding area artists along with three artists' works in the Upper Gallery, Anne Marie Beneteau, painting, Robert Mark Packer, sculpture and Brian Schorn, photography. Hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, 1452 Randolph, Detroit.

EXTRA THANKS to Park West Galleries in Southfield where the color features were photographed. The gallery has many qualities that have enabled it to attract exhibitions of important and talented artists, both local and international. A special thanks to all the reslaurants and businesses that let us take photographs on location as part of the image of "Going Places." And thanks to all the businesses that provided models and the fashions to bring the new season to our read-

ashion for fun!

It's time the kids can put together their own looks from today's fashion lineup for young juniors and teens. They want comfortable styling that's practical for their favorite activities. This year's fashions bring them more choices and an opportunity for more individuality.

Fashlon on the go makes eating doughnuts at the Donut Scene in Canton a special delight. The time has come for young juniors to look their best: Crowley's offers kids the new season's best in yellow and navy dots. The You Babe II polkadot group features, right, Meg Oliver in a skirt with roll waist, $15; Henley top, $21; and solid legging, $10. The sleeveless cowl, left, worn by Molly Brenner is the hottest top for spring, $10. Pants are $18 and V-neck pullover is $21. Nike hightops at $37 complete the look Teen talk at Tally Hall in Farmington Hills is just right for Molly Brenner (left) in her Spumoni denm outfit in gray rose print from Loretta Lorion's in Birmingham. The three-piece outfit with mini-skirt is priced at $129. White socks with ruffles by Leroi complete the look. Liz Berkley shows off an oversized floral print cardigan jacket, trumpet skirt and coordinating T-shirt from Gould's Children's Boutique in Birmingham, three-piece priced at $98.

COVER: Bonwit Teller fashions sparkle at Mike Kelly's Landing in Livonia. French Rags by Brenda French lend a rainbow of colors with a $180 top and $190 skirt; scarf to toss as you will, $26. Her earrings by Tulla Booth, $128. His Georgio Armani sweater in a blue, teal and white knit, $115; Georgio Armani slacks, $140. Add an Armanı sılk tie, $27.50, and TKE Behar white cotton shirt, $55.

Curved and crisp charmeuse and white linen combine in a three-piece ensemble by Linea Z. The slim, curved hip—skirt has a deep back vent, $180. The blouse has a triangular back cut-out and front patch pockets, $250. The eased cardigan jacket is $280. Ivory oval earrings, $105. Roz & Sherm, Bloomfield Plaza. Hairstyle by David Munson, Mariomax Salon.

Accessories dot the warm-weather fashion scene with new importance. Lively shoes tone to the garment or act as a pastel or primary accessory point, handbags are smaller, more stylized and often make a strong color statement. Lettuce pin, $115, pink leather shoulder bag, $150; pearls with gold flower clasp, $250; primary color leather pump with cut-outs, $115. Poz. & Sherm, Bloomfield Plaza.

SOFTLY CURVED smoother looks, longer hair: More sophistication to go with the slender, curved clothes, predicts Yiannis for Billisima of Southfield. Back of the hair is all one length in a blunt cut and comes forward in wisps on the face. Makeup stylist Samia for Hanan Cosmetics defines the eyes using pastel yellow with blue-violet and coral accents, lined in smoke pencil. Cheeks are soft and warm with pearlized peach rouge covered with flat pink rouge and blended. Lips are coral, covered with apricot and lined in persimmon.

AS SIMPLE AS POSSIBLE, just blow out, says Jon Spiro for Jon's L'Atelier of West Bloomfield. "The key is the cut. In this style, the bangs are baby blond with the base of the hair colored in big patches so that as it grows out, the color change is not noticeable." Makeup stylist Kiki Likes uses soft colors and a pale face with smokey eyes in yellow, pink and olive highlights. No blush. Lips predominate, creating a porcelain-looking face.

CLEAN CUT LOOK but with a slightly longer, more finished looking back is the focus for men's hair, Ylannis says.

FULL AND THICK-LOOKING with short, defined bangs brings a more precise definition to spring haircuts, says Felicia Shaw of the Nino Salon in Somerset Mall, Troy. "Hair moves forward for spring, toward the face and hugs the nape of the neck. Blonds are blonder with pale highlights, brunettes are honey lightened, and redheads have strawberry shimmer lights." Makeup artist Patricia Dutzy gives super-pale, shimmery pastels smoothed on the face for sheer color. Brows are brushed up and freestyle. Gone are the lipliners that show, heavily lined eyes and dark blush-on.
