BOND INFO: The bond issue in this June's election, grade realignment next year and other Plymouth-Canton school-related topics will be discussed on a special simulcast hour-long call-in program by WSDP-FM and Omnicom Cablevision at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 25. Listeners can tune in to 88.1 FM and viewers can watch Omnicom's Channel 18.

The show, hosted by WSDP Program Director Noelle Torrace, will interview guests such as Ray Hoedel, assistant superintendent of business, and Dr. Michael Homes, assistant superintendent for instruction. "I think it's a wonderful opportunity for two predominant forms of electronic media in the country to work together and benefit one another," says director Torrace. Audience participation in the discussion is invited by calling 459-7392.

TOP SPEAKERS: Parents, teachers, and students were guests recently of the Plymouth Optimist Club Boys Oratorical Contest banquet held recently at the Mayflower Hotel. The honored winners were Paul Garcea, Todd Liljestrand and Sean Pawl. Garcea now advances to district speech competition in quest of a $1,000 scholarship.

Representing Central Middle School in the contest were Robert Roney and Joseph Crabb, Liljestrand and Paul Croll from West Middle School, Sean Paul and Gabriel from Plymouth Christian Academy in Canton, Ron Ritole and James Austin from Our Lady of Good Counsel, and Jim Hartnett from East Middle School. The participants spoke on the subject "Optimism As a Way of Life."

SAFE PLACE: The safest place in the Plymouth community Friday morning probably was the Mayflower Meeting house as some 170 police officers gathered for the quarterly meeting of the Crime Prevention Association of Michigan. Slides of the city of Plymouth were shown and an awards ceremony held.

APPOINTED: Jo Lynn Haas of Plymouth has been appointed director of clinical information systems for St. Joseph Hospital, Mount Clemens. ## Apartment village may rise in city

By W.W. Edgar and Doug Funke staff writers

An apartment village with about 120 units is planned for a 5-acre site behind the Lumber Mart on Ann Arbor Trail at Mill in the city of Plymouth.

The development is proposed even though the state housing authority declined to help finance a senior citizen apartment complex in that area in the mid 1970s due to concerns about proximity to railroad tracks.

The would-be developers — the Allen families of Salem Township — say they propose to reduce noise with bermed landscaping and covered parking shelters.

"They hopefully will add enough of a buffer between the railroad and us to cut down noise," said Cynthia Allen.

Preliminary plans call for constructing 10 individual buildings each with three levels of occupancy and containing 12 units, Allen said.

"Half of the first story would be underground," she said. "We plan on bricking the first 1 1/2 story and vinyling the third. We want to keep with the Plymouth architecture."

EACH OF the 1,000-square-foot units would contain two bedrooms, major appliances and a washer and dryer.

"I would think rents would be under $500," Allen said. "I don't think we would command much more than that."

If the rental projections hold true, the additional housing stock provided by the apartments would be in marked contrast to luxury condominiums planned on property owned by Jack Wilcox in downtown Plymouth and Joanne Hulce in Plymouth Township.

The Allen family — which includes Cynthia, her husband David and David's parents, Darrell and Mary — own three industrial buildings in Livonia, Cynthia said. David also owns Sales & Engineering Inc. in Livonia.

This will be their first foray into residential income properties.

"We love Plymouth," she said. "My husband grew up in Plymouth and his parents lived here 40 years. We'd like to invest in Plymouth because we like it so much."

"We just started looking at something for an investment. We were so fortunate we came across something zoned right in Plymouth. Now just seemed like the time to do it."

FAVORABLE interest rates also made this a good time to act, she conceded.

The Allens were expected to close on the sale of the parcel today (Monday), Cynthia said. They anticipate taking their proposal to the city planning commission in May, start constructing in July and welcoming their first tenants by the end of the year.

Development costs were pegged by Allen at upwards of $3.5 million.

Washers and dryers within individual units are expected to be especially attractive to tenants. "I remember when we lived in an apartment and had to go down to the basement," she said. "It's not the same as the convenience of having a laundry room in your own apartment."

The Allens' architect, Erick Carne, indicated that much emphasis will be put on landscaping to provide visual and acoustical buffering between apartment tenants and other residences nearby.

Teen motorists to vie for safe driving awards

By Diane Gale staff writer

Cash prizes and the use of a new car for a year are being used to get teenage drivers to compete in a national driving program promoting safety.

For the first time since Operation Driver Excellence began, Canton Township will host the district competition.

"One purpose of the program is to make youngsters aware that they have to be safe drivers," said James Sebel of American Veterans of World War II, Korea and Vietnam, which is sponsoring Operation Driver Excellence with Dodge.

"It's to make youngsters aware of courtesy on the roads, defensive driving and to make them aware of what's happening on the highways," said Sebel, adding that 50 percent of all fatal accidents involve youngsters between 15 and 25 years old.

THE DISTRICT competition will be held beginning 8:30 a.m. Saturday, April 19, on Canton Township Hall grounds, at 1150 S. Canton Center Road.

Applications are available at Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem high schools as well as the Canton Township Police Department.

At the district level novice drivers will represent high schools in Monroe, Wayne, Washtenaw and Lenawee counties.

Winners of the district competition will meet with top candidates around the state and those victors will go to the national meet.

"The district level has always been held in Detroit and this is the first time it will be held anywhere else," said Canton Officer Eddie Tanner, who is representing the police department in organizing the event.

"Michigan has never had someone win the national, and that's what we're looking for this year," Tanner said. "We're hoping three students from each high school at the district level will participate."

From 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. the drivers will test their skills on a written exam, maneuver a car through an obstacle course and complete a road test accompanied by a police officer who will grade them for proper handling skills. Refreshments will be available and parents of the youngsters are invited to attend, Tanner said.

FIRST THROUGH FIFTH-place winners at the district level will receive jackets and the top three also will get trophies.

Sincock leaves legacy of public service

By Emory Daniels staff writer

Robert Sincock, who invested his lifetime in community service, died early Thursday morning at age 69.

A Plymouth Rotarian for 33 years, and past president, Sincock lived a life that was committed to the Rotary motto of "Service Above Self."

A retired Realtor and self-employed businessman, Sincock served the city as mayor and city commissioner and played a role in the construction of City Hall, development of the Cultural Center, and in the planning to build a deck on Central Parking Lot.

His name is "cast in bronze" in the city as it appears on bronze plaques at the Dunning-Hough Library, City Hall, Cultural Center and Tonquish Manor.

He died March 20 in St. Joseph Hospital, Ann Arbor, after a long bout with cancer.

BORN IN 1916 in Calumet in the heart of the Upper Peninsula's copper country, Sincock and wife Dorothy moved to Plymouth in 1943 when he joined Burroughs Corp. in war production work.

A decade later he entered business on his own as owner/operator of the Standard Service Station (now Doug's AMOCO) at the corner of Main and Ann Arbor Trail.

In 1954 he was appointed to the Plymouth City Commission by the mayor, Russell Deane. He was twice elected to the City Commission, and worked as mayor pro tem and mayor during the years of 1957-1963.

As mayor, Sincock worked to obtain a $268,000 federal grant to build the present City Hall in 1963. He was given the honor of laying the cornerstone for the city hall, in company with the late U.S. Sen. Philip Hart and then U.S. Rep. Martha Griffiths.

He also worked to annex the Cassidy property for Western Electric, and convinced Hans Gerke Sr. to locate the 1st Federal Savings & Loan building at Penning Avenue and Main. During his mayoral tenure, Sheldon Road and N. Main were widened in the city.

Sincock joined the J.L. Hudson Real Estate Co. and in 1968 was again appointed to the City Commission and then elected in 1970. Because he played hockey as a boy in Calumet, Sincock played a major role in the development of the Plymouth Cultural Center and ice arena during his tenure of service on the commission. He served as dedication chairman when the Cultural Center was opened.

After leaving the City Commission Sincock remained active in city government. He served as secretary of the Municipal Building Authority, chairman of the Riverside Cemetery Commission, and member of the Municipal Parking Commission until the time of his death.

In May 1972 he was awarded a certificate from the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce recognizing him for 25 years of service to the community.

But that service did not end with 25 years. He went on to become a member of the Blue Ribbon Committee on Aging, which organized the Plymouth Council on Aging, and has served on the council's board of directors. As Rotary president in 1976-77, he turned the club's attention to the problems of the aged in today's society.

AS A MEMBER OF Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Church, Sincock was active in the growth of the church from its basement quarters on Union Street to its present location on Penniman Avenue.

He served the church as a member of its building committee, as president of Holy Name Society, and was a charter member of the Plymouth Knights of Columbus 3292 in May 1958.

In civic life he was a past board member and past president of the Plymouth Symphony Society, for several years served on the board of the Plymouth Community Fund-United Way, and was one of the original members of the Neighborhood Retirees Club of Plymouth.

His interest in music went beyond offices in the Symphony Society, though. In 1974, for instance, he was instrumental in arranging the donation by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Root of Ann Street of a Baldwin piano for the Cultural Center and in arranging the gift of a player piano from Betty Stremick to Tonquish Manor.

As a Rotarian, he served as chicken barbecue chairman, president and in numerous other positions. He was club executive secretary until forced to resign recently because of failing health. In recognition of his many Rotary achievements, in June 1984 he was designated a Rotary International Paul Harris Fellow — a fellowship that symbolizes Rotary's commitment to world harmony.

Services were held Saturday in Schrader Funeral Home. Besides wife Dorothy, he is survived by sons, Craig and Paul, and daughter, Mary Ann.

Man killed on M-14

Michigan State Police last Friday afternoon were still trying to determine why an Ann Arbor man killed in a crash on M-14 near Ridge lost control of his van that morning.

Police said Michael A. Watson, 38, was eastbound on M-14 about 6:55 a.m. when his van crossed the grassy median, then struck a semi-hauler head on in the westbound lane. A witness told police Watson did not brake.

Watson was conveyed by helicopter to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor but was dead on arrival.

The driver of the semi wasn't seriously injured, police said.

Westbound M-14 traffic was blocked for about two hours. Motorists were re-routed around the accident scene on surface streets then back to the freeway.

5th Super Bowl

Ex-football hero tackles drug problem

By Carolyn DeMarco
staff writer

WHEN CARL ELLER TALKS, people listen.

At 43, he still looks the part of one of football's most respected and feared defensive ends, a member of the Purple People Eaters. The former Minnesota Vikings star and veteran of four Super Bowls has long since shed his purple battle gear, but Eller is still battling, this time against drugs.

"Don't say it can't happen to you," Eller warns. "Nobody starts out to become a drug addict. It's not the way I started. I was on a joyride, out to have fun. What if it does happen? Who's going to help you? You might not be as lucky as I was."

Eller was in West Bloomfield Township last week to talk about his personal war against drugs, which he refers to as his fifth Super Bowl. Nearly 1,000 students from across metropolitan Detroit — most of them high school athletes and their coaches — attended the afternoon event at West Bloomfield High School.

Among them were students from West Bloomfield, North Farmington, Southfield, Birmingham Brother Rice, Plymouth-Canton, Plymouth-Salem and Catholic Central high schools. The event was sponsored by Henry Ford Hospital's Maplegrove Centers for chemical dependency treatment.

AS A YOUNGSTER in North Carolina, Eller said he fought to gain recognition. I didn't fit into any of the three neat categories of students — "the athletes, the academics and the affluent."

Instead, Eller said, "I found the deviants. Their qualifications were not high; all you had to do was what they did, get drunk."

Recognition followed, but of the negative variety. His high school principal gave him an ultimatum: straighten up or fail a grade. Eller decided to join the football team but, he says, "my behavior didn't change."

Eller listened just enough to win a scholarship to the University of Minnesota. "I wanted to get away from home where my mother couldn't legislate how I'd have fun."

In college Eller discovered parties and nearly lost his scholarship, but his on-field activities made him the first-round draft pick of the Minnesota Vikings.

"I signed a big contract and suddenly I was affluent. I had conquered the athletic and the academic parts and was very much a part of the three groups that had rejected me earlier. I married my college sweetheart and thought, 'Hey this is great. This is the way life is supposed to be.'"

SOON AFTER SIGNING, Eller had his first experience with marijuana. Upon becoming a Viking he learned, "If you want to be a Viking, you have to drink like one." Eller had no problem belonging.

After two partying teammates ended their careers in an automobile accident, Eller "decided to change chemicals" and became a heavy marijuana user. Later he was introduced to cocaine.

"Suddenly I had a whole new set of feelings. I was no longer stinky, dull Carl Eller. I had a new image of a dynamic person. I was a success. I was enjoying my career. It was a pleasure to be a Minnesota Viking."

All that soon changed, Eller said. "Suddenly I was no longer a Viking. I was a Seattle Seahawk . . . I went to the doctor and told him 'I can't pull my life together.' He told me to take sleeping pills."

Friends finally persuaded him to seek help.

"If you're basing your friendships on drugs," Eller told the student crowd, "drugs are your common denominator."

Extract yourself from that group. Refuse to do drugs and see how much your friendship means to them."

AUDIENCE REACTION to Eller's speech was favorable.

Tom Berger, a junior and football player at Southfield High School, said, "He was a good speaker. What he said deals with kids our age. It happens at Southfield, but we've got a supportive coach in Cal Fletcher."

"It was interesting," Gerry Haight, a junior at North Farmington High School, said. "We've got a small problem at North, but it isn't so much the athletes."

Rodney Wilson, a WEHS junior involved in several sports, said, "There's a problem here, very little, but it does exist. No cocaine, but pot and alcohol."

Rich Wilson, counselor, freshman basketball and golf coach brought a seven-person contingent from Plymouth-Salem, both athletes and journalists.

Plymouth-Salem student John Flower intended to write a review for the school newspaper, and Dan Johnston planned to speak to students over the airwaves via the school's radio station, WSDP. Lamar Clayton said, "We're all going to help spread the word."

Above: Julie Weingarden, a West Bloomfield senior, will report on Eller's talk for the school newspaper. Left: Ulfen teacher Stef Starnes and Clarkston student Chip Galley are among those who traveled to West Bloomfield to hear Eller's message.

Home burglarized in daylight hours

Burglars stole more than $7,000 worth of equipment from a home on the 4800 block of Broadshire as well as a car from the garage during daylight hours March 19.

Sometime between 11:10 a.m. and 5 p.m. the burglars apparently entered the home by prying hinges on the front door.

They stole a $850 19-inch Sony television, a $1,000 Magnavox Video Cassette Recorder, a $1,500 Magnavox video camera, more than $4,000 worth of various stereo equipment and a Sharp typewriter.

A gray 1981 two-door Mercury Lynx also was stolen from the garage.

Seed money sown for Canton library

A generous hand is reaching from the far east to help fund a proposed $2 million building housing Canton's Public Library.

Yasuhiko Yazaki, president of the international Yazaki Group, is donating $10,000 to the Canton Public Library Board to commemorate the grand opening of the American Yazaki Corp., 6700 Haggerty west of I-275 and north of Ford Road.

American Yazaki Corp.'s $10 million, 210,000-square-foot Canton headquarters conducts engineering, research, sales and distribution for the company, which primarily sells car components.

The facility — a subsidiary of the Yazaki Group — transferred to the Canton site in December from four adjacent buildings in Livonia where they leased space.

THE DONATION is the first for the library's building fund.

"This is a good start, and it couldn't have come at a better time," said John Schwartz, Canton Public Library board member.

It's premature to pin anything down on when it will be built, "because mainly we don't have the money," Schwartz said.

Yasuhiko Yazaki, Shinji Yazaki, executive vice president of the parent company, and others from the Yazaki group will be present for the celebration beginning at 4 p.m. tomorrow at the Canton site. The Yazaki corporations have annual sales of more than $1 billion.

The festivities will begin with the launching of the six-sided Japanese style rokkaku kite and ribbon cutting. After the gift is presented to the library, a sake ceremonial toast will open a reception and offer a tour.

Community involvement is important to the Japanese, said Jeanne Paluzzi, JGP Marketing Group International Inc.

"The library project was chosen for two reasons," Paluzzi said. "It's a project that needs some funding and the other reason is philosophical. A library is a repository of facts and ideas. It's a means for learning and growing. It truly reflects the philosophy of the Yazaki Company for a multi-cultural experience to grow."

The American Yazaki Corp. began operations in Chicago in 1966 and opened a Detroit-area branch office in 1973 which became the main U.S. office in 1976.

American Yazaki Corp. also deals with gas absorption air conditioning products.

Besides its locations in Japan, the Yazaki Group has operations in Dallas, El Paso and Nashville. Sites in other countries include Thailand, Taiwan, Australia, Philippines, Mexico, Great Britain, France, Iraq and Switzerland.

Old county building project off dead center

By Teri Benas
staff writer

The long delay in beginning the renovation of the old Wayne County Building may be over.

Last week, county commissioners approved a resolution urging County Executive William Lucas to complete a lease arrangement with project developers that will allow the county to resume ownership of the building after renovation.

The exact financial provisions with the development group — the Old County Courthouse Restoration Venture — still needs to be worked out. But the commission action, by a 9-3 vote with one abstention, encourages developers and Lucas to complete the financial agreements within 45 days.

COMMISSIONER sources said the work could begin in a few weeks. Some engineering and architectural designs have been done. It's expected to take about two years before county government offices are moved from present-day quarters inside the City-County Building on Woodward at Jefferson in Detroit.

"There's no question the deal should have been worked out cleaner and much quicker."

Commissioner Milton Mack
D-Wayne

Calls to the developers for comment went unanswered late last week.

The delay in part was caused when a bitter controversy erupted last September between the county commission and Lucas over his handling of bidding procedures and potential conflict of interest in the project.

Newspapers at the time revealed that his then chief-of-staff Dennis Nystrom was a stockholder in the construction firm of Utley James Inc., which was selected by the OCRV group for major part of the renovation.

Commissioners hired a fact-finder to examine the issue. Although he found nothing illegal, he criticized the executive's office for taking the project under the county's Economic Development Corporation. The fact-finder raised concerns with the legal form of the lease.

Though the commission had given approval to a lease-leaseback agreement, the executive office instead drafted a lease-buyback agreement.

THE COMMISSION'S action followed a review by county auditor general Lester Robinson. He raised a number of criticisms with the bidding process and the way the agreement was reached.

Robinson noted:

- 1) The ability to compare bids accurately was hampered because bid specifications were not prepared.
- 2) The county executive's office was not granted commission approval to negotiate a lease that involved selling the property, but rather leasing it.
- 3) The length of the lease could exceed a five-year state statutory limit.
- 4) He found an "error" in the agreement that would have placed the purchase price at $44.5 million.
- 5) He also found fault with the projected rental rates that "far" exceed current market levels.

According to the report, Robinson stated that the project probably suffered because of a race to meet federal tax benefit guidelines.

COMMISSIONER CHAIRMAN John Hertel of Harper Woods voted against plans to continue with clearing up the lease agreement, saying the county instead should have pulled out of the deal.

Comparing the project to Michigan's ill-fated "Zilwaukee Bridge," he said it was a bad deal for the county which would result in excessive profits to the development group. He said estimates put that at $87-$90 million.

Commissioner Richard Manning of Redford abstained from voting after he raised questions about the financial arrangements.

But other commissioners said they were tired of delays and worried over the potential threat of a lawsuit if the lease were broken. Under the agreement, the partnership already has assumed ownership of the building.

Commissioner Mary Dumas of Livonia, voting with the majority, noted the project has "dragged on for seven, eight years." Originally, she said, it was enacted as a means to save money, but no longer does it appear that that's the case in having a private contractor do the work.

COMMISSIONER Milton Mack of Wayne also urged votes for moving ahead with the plan. He argued that the county would likely be sued and lose if it attempted to break its agreement with the OCRV group.

"There's no question the deal should have been worked out cleaner and much quicker," he said. "The county executive left us hanging on this."

Nonetheless, Mack urged adopting the resolution because it would provide some "protections" by requiring that commission's Public Service Committee monitor each month the project's construction.

According to a 16-year plan, the $20 million project would break down to annual rental bills to the county of $3.9 million plus $19 million at the end.

The county has made no provisions on how to pay for the buy-out. Officials say the commission could either sell bonds or extend the lease.

Blanchard taps 2 judges, signs 3 bills

Gov. James J. Blanchard has filled two Wayne County judicial vacancies and signed into law bills by area legislators.

Joseph B. Sullivan, 64, of Grosse Pointe Park, was elevated to the First District Court of Appeals, covering Wayne and Washtenaw counties.

Formerly a circuit judge, Sullivan succeeds Vincent J. Brennan, who resigned. Sullivan's appointment runs through the end of the year.

To succeed Sullivan on the circuit bench, Blanchard appointed Kaye Tertzag, 47, of Allen Park. A former member of the Wayne County Charter Commission, Tertzag has been city attorney for River Rouge and Melvindale. His appointment runs through the end of the year.

BLANCHARD SIGNED these bills:

● SB 361 to prohibit school bus drivers from transporting more than 110 percent of the number of persons for whom there are seats.

● HB 4750 creating the Building Officials and Inspectors Registration Act. Sponsored by Rep. W.V. Brotherton, R-Farmington, the law establishes a nine-member advisory board in the state Labor Department.

● SB 645 deleting the condition that construction of M-275 freeway must begin before the Department of Natural Resources can convey unused land to the Multi-Lakes Conservation Association of Walled Lake.

WHEN IS SURGERY NEEDED?

Surgery becomes a consideration when all reasonable medical means have failed to prevent your joints from becoming more painful and less mobile.

It is your physician's responsibility to undertake a trial of therapy appropriate for your type of arthritis, excluding those drugs that may interfere with your general health or the care of other medical conditions. Furthermore, he or she needs to combine the therapy with injections, heat, or massage before concluding that medical therapy has failed.

The other aspect in determining if surgery is needed, comes from you. Your physician depends on your assessment as to when joint pain is more than you can accept and mobility has dropped below your needs for walking and self care.

Because it requires answers to difficult questions, the decision to obtain surgical consultation often is delayed. However all surgical judgements are not so thorny. Usually the surgeon will recommend operations: "When you are ready." That time has come when you no longer ask yourself: "Do I want this operation?" but find you are wondering: "how soon can it be scheduled?"

What is Gibson's future?

Life, at times, can take some unusual twists and turns. Take the case of Kirk Gibson, the Tigers right fielder.

During most of the off-season he dominated the sports pages until he came to terms with a new contract that will pay him $1 million a year.

He was looking forward to this coming season when he hoped to prove to the world that he was worth all that money. Then came one of the twists and turns. He was stricken with a sore shoulder and now will sit on the bench — at least for a time — in the role of a designated hitter.

But now the question is being asked, will the Tigers continue to pay him that much for just making casual appearances at the plate? This is doubtful. And if the shoulder doesn't improve the contract may be changed. And that will be another long drawn-out discussion.

BUT IT WON'T be anything new to the Tigers. They have gone through such cases several times in the past.

For instance they lost Mickey Cochrane, one of the finest managers they ever had, just when he was at the peak of his career as a pilot.

A playing manager, he had been hit on the head with a pitched ball and had to sit

the stroller
W.W. Edgar

out the rest of the season. He tried to be only a bench manager when he returned. But he couldn't make it and had to retire.

Hank Greenberg, the hard-hitting first baseman, was another case. At the peak of his career he suffered a wrist injury. Some thought he may have trouble bouncing back. And with Rudy York, another hard hitter, available to play first, Greenberg was shifted to left field.

Hank was the type who took things most seriously. So, he agreed to the shift, provided he got a better contract. He never wanted more than one-year contracts. But he pointed out that his career may be shortened in the new position. So he was given a one-year contract, such as he wanted, and he worked hard in spring training until he learned the tricks of playing the outfield.

Then, at his peak in the new job, he went into the military service. And when he returned he was traded to Pittsburgh where he finished his career. But he was still a Tiger at heart.

IT IS THESE two cases that causes attention to be paid to Gibson's career.

Will he be able to take over again in right field? If he can't, chances are the Tigers will not pay that fabulous salary for a designated hitter.

This is just another of the twists and turns that life takes and Gibson will be the center of attention when the season gets under way.

It will be fine if his shoulder heals and he can take his place in the outfield and make the throws. But life is funny. It cost the Tigers plenty in past years.

Will he do it again? All the eyes will be on him when the season opens and his role will be up to Sparky Anderson. It won't be an easy problem to answer.

Veterans tell concerns on war

By W.W. Edgar
staff writer

In the Veterans of Foreign War hall this week, members of the Mayflower-Gamble Post commented they were confused about President Reagan's plea that $100 million be sent to the contras in Nicaragua to help stave off an invasion by the Russians.

"We don't want another Vietnam," said Archie Bunch, past adjutant of the post, as fellow members nodded their heads in agreement.

"He said in his address on television the other evening that this was the best way to stave off trouble and he made a serious plea that his wish be granted.

"But the president stated that he planned to take the case to the people. So far he hasn't done that and we are puzzled. After the people speak, it will be another thing, but right now it isn't clear."

HIS FELLOW veterans nodded and the former adjutant went on to say that "we seem to be in trouble, but are not being told everything that is going on. There are times when these things happen that the people aren't told all the facts. That could be possible now. So we will wait until we get all the facts. It might then be a plan we can approve all the way."

He said that the Vietnam War was costly and that it "was a case where not all the facts were given to us at the start. We don't want another war, and we don't want the Russians over in Central America. But we ought to be given all the facts."

He repeated that the facts may come out when the president goes to the people.

confused. The time has come when we don't want another Vietnam."

In his television address the other evening, the president was speaking seriously when he said that he is not asking for this huge amount out of our funds, but in military help for the Nicaraguans and the other military things needed to prevent the Russians from having a stronghold in Central America.

The VFW members are eager for some sort of settlement, as soon as possible, but until that happens, they admit being confused.

Plymouth Rock Masonic temple built in 1924

Part Two

Membership in the Plymouth Masonic Lodge grew from 79 in 1893 to 323 in 1924.

In 1924, when Henry Hondorp was Worshipful Master, the lodge built a new temple — the one which exists today. It was designed to accommodate the needs of both the Masons and its auxiliary, the Order of the Eastern Star.

The temple, a three-story brick building, has a dining room on the first floor with a seating capacity of 300. Lodge room and parlors are on the second floor. The third was built for recreational purposes.

Most of the cost of the building was borne by private subscription raised by a committee headed by Frank Hambo and Charles Rathburn Jr.

ROSWELL TANGER recalls that the first meeting in the new temple was on Dec. 4, 1924.

Tanger, Worshipful Master in 1927, is the oldest living member to hold that office. The new building, corner of Peniman Avenue and Union Street, was dedicated by officers of the Grand Lodge of Michigan on Dec. 29.

The Plymouth Mail on Jan. 2, 1925 devoted more than half of its front page to articles about the building and the lodge, including a three-column photo of the building committee in front of the temple. Shown were George A. Smith, D.F. Murray, R.O. Mimmack, Henry Hondorp, C.H. Rauch, Karl Hillmer, John H. Patterson, Herman Mack and William Wood.

Mimmack, president of the committee, was the community's first mayor when Plymouth became a city in 1932. He died in office that year, and was succeeded as chairman of the building committee by Fred Schrader who served in the post until 1939. Smith was superintendent of schools here from 1918 to 1945. Patterson was the general contractor who built the temple.

The furnishings committee for the temple consisted of Fred Schrader, Charles Bennett and Edward Hough. Schrader founded the funeral home that bears his name. Bennett and Hough ran the Daisy Manufacturing Company, then the largest employer in the village. (Fred Hadley, Worshipful Master in 1959, says that one of the oldest items in the lodge today is a wooden gavel brought back from Jerusalem in 1925 by Charley Bennett).

MEMBERSHIP IN the lodge, at 323 when the Masons moved into the new temple, increased to 362 during the next five years. It began to decline, however, during the Depression of the 1930s. It reached a low mark in 1935, the year the song at the top of the charts was "I Got Plenty o' Nuthin'."

Things got brighter after the economic upturn.

On May 25, 1944, the mortgage on the building, which stood at $10,400 during the depths of the Depression, was paid off and burned. Better times also led to an upturn in Masonic membership, culminating in January 1950 when the lodge reached 543.

The 100th anniversary of the founding of the lodge was observed on Jan. 15, 1952, when Walter Gregory was Worshipful Master. (The dispensation creating the lodge had come in January 1951 but the charter was not granted until January 1952, the year the U.S. imported sparrows from Germany as a defense against caterpillars).

The committee for the 1952 celebration was chaired by past master Harry Mumby. James Gallimore delivered the lodge history. Music was provided

past and present
Sam Hudson

by a string trio led by Evelyn Woods, a charter member of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra.

Clifford Smith, secretary of the lodge for the past 10 years, said membership continued to rise during the '60s and '70s, reaching an all-time high of 800 on Jan. 1, 1970. After 1970 there was a steady decline. Part of this was due to an increasing number of deaths among older members, part to the retirement of members who moved to warmer climates.

On Jan. 1, 1988, membership stood at 564. Of this figure, 100 were members with 40 or more years in Masonry.

THE YEAR 1984 was a turning point for Masons in terms of participation in community activities and needs.

Prior to that time, money raised by lodges was used primarily for charitable use within the order. Relief was available for distressed members, widows or orphans but not for those outside the order.

This custom changed in 1984 when the Grand Master of Michigan Masonic Lodges designated the month of March as "Community Charity Month." He asked each lodge to donate to a charity in the community.

Plymouth Rock Lodge decided to aid the Salvation Army. A dinner was held on March 23, 1984, with Salvation Army and City of Plymouth officials as guests. Profit from the dinner plus donations from the lodge and its members totalled $610, which was presented to the Plymouth Corps of the Salvation Army.

In 1985, the lodge decided to assist the local branch of the Michigan Special Olympics organization. A total of $354, raised from a dinner held in March that year, was given to the local Olympics committee. In his message to the members of the lodge in January 1986, the current Worshipful Master, Earl Spaulding III, wrote: "It is time to let Masonry out of the closet. Plymouth Rock Lodge has become more active in the community and will continue to do so."

As an example of this policy, the dining room of the lodge was open to the public during the recent annual ice festival, and Masons served hot drinks and cookies to those who entered.

Eggs have multi-religious appeal

Easter Sunday
On this day thousands upon thousands of people will be feasting on hard-boiled eggs to carry on an Easter tradition.

How did it start?
The story that has been passed along states that early man stared in wonder at an egg. It looked like a stone. Then, with a crack, out of the dead thing poked a tiny beak, a head and the warm body of a living bird. It seemed a miracle — the miracle of new life. This is the meaning of the Easter egg. It goes back far beyond any one religion and belongs to mankind.

This came about because this was the day that Jesus rose from the dead to a new life and the egg has become a tradition in many walks of life and in many religions.

MOST RELIGIONS celebrate in some manner with the egg.

The Egyptians, Persians, Phoenicians and Hindus believed the world itself began with an enormous egg. In one Hindu myth the large egg broke in two. Half turned to gold becoming the sky and half to silver, forming the earth. Mountains, rivers and oceans, clouds and mists came from beneath just under the shell. And then, hatched from the giant egg, came the sun. And the broken bits of shell became islands in the Pacific.

The ancient Persians, Greeks and Chinese gave one another gifts of eggs during spring festivals in celebration of the new life among them.

Today when a baby is born to Chinese parents they share their happiness by giving a red egg to each relative and friend. The egg comes to a person's home like an announcement card.

In Greece people used to dye eggs red. It was thought to be a magical color. These eggs were colored red to symbolize Jesus's bleeding on the cross. Today the Greeks dye eggs all different colors and use them in a special Easter greeting. When two people meet they hold out their eggs and tap them lightly together. One says "Christ is risen" and the other answers, "He is risen indeed."

Back home in the Pennsylvania Dutch country, we youngsters used the dyed eggs as a sort of gambling implement. When we met we tapped each other's egg. If your friend's egg cracked, you took it. We used to come home at times with enough eggs to feed the entire family.

We used to spend enjoyable evenings while visiting in the neighborhood to dye eggs. Of course you brought your own eggs. And we raced to see which of us could come up with the brightest and most colorful of the eggs on the table.

It was this season of the year, too, that we carried the colored dyed eggs to school and often swapped colors at lunch time.

Two of the best exercises with the dyed eggs was egg hunting and egg rolling.

The egg roll was inspired by the message we got before the event started. We were told this egg roll was to symbolize rolling the stones away from Christ's grave. We also had our races to see which of us could locate the most eggs. For fun we used to watch the teachers and janitors place them. It might have been cheating a bit but it was fun.

Cat fanciers flock to annual show of feline champions

By Tim Smith
staff writer

Marnie Wettlaufer was ready to make an issue out of the 74th Annual Mid-Michigan Cat Fanciers Show of champion and household cats last weekend. In fact, you might say she took a "Special Issue," her 1 1/2-year-old Persian beauty, to the competition. Reaching Special Issue and a seven-month-old Persian kitten called Kallylace Cliche for competition is pretty much a full-time job, according to the Southfield resident.

But the adulation and attention heaped onto the animals by total strangers made the effort worth it, she said.

OWNERS OF THE 375 feline beauties, worth about $1.5 million, probably would have agreed with an estimated 10,000 cat lovers flocking to the Southfield Civic Center.

As owners of the prized animals lapped up the attention heaped on their prized Persians, tabbies or Scottish folds, they knew the important "Grand Champion" status and contacts for future-kitten-buyers were at stake.

"The show was a tremendous success," said Eve Russell, event director and vice president of the cat fanciers.

"We had virtually all 31 different breeds of cat represented, and people are here from as far as Charlevoix and Traverse City.

"Our emphasis is on the importance of cat care. I'm confident that message got through."

The event also helped raise money for cat care by various southeast Michigan organizations.

PROCEEDS FROM the non-profit event will support the Michigan Humane Society, Humane Feline Research at Michigan State Small Animal Clinic, neuter-spay programs in southeastern Michigan, local public libraries' juvenile departments, and humane societies of Wayne, Oakland and other counties.

"Variety is what brings you here," said Sterling Heights resident Joyce Johnson, who fell enough in love with the Himalayan breed at a past show to go out and buy two of them.

"Every time I look at one I get the urge to buy," Johnson said.

But for Special Issue, an adult male with wide, copper eyes and a gleaming, white coat, the show meant another step in his pursuit of a Grand Championship, now having reached the half-way mark, Wettlaufer said.

To attain that status, the animal must defeat 200 champion cats. In order to be labelled a "champion," open-division cats (showing for the first time) must impress judges and garner six blue ribbons.

To Wettlaufer, who has attended 15 to 30 shows annually for five years, her adult champion and Persian kitten, a neophyte to the cat show game, already are winners.

ONE CAT that successfully passed enough judges' inspections to become a Grand Champion is Iran's Starblitz, a red/white tabby belonging to Doris Pape of Livonia.

According to Pape's husband, Don, receiving a passing grade depends on who is doing the judging.

"Some like shorthairs, some like longhairs. Others go for colors," Pape said. "It depends on the judge."

(The judge) picks out the cats he thinks are good, marks down on the side, and through the process of elimination comes up with what he thinks are the 10 best cats in the show.

"For some to reach Grand Championship status, it takes a full year of competition. Others can do it — if they're a good, top cat — in an average of three shows."

And the felines have to put up with quite an inspection to chalk up the blue ribbons.

STATIONED at one of the four "rings" was Don Williams. Behind him were 12 cages with occupants ready for scrutiny.

Williams painstakingly lifted the cat up off the judging table, looked at his face, checked his eyes and coat, then looked at his face again. He redisplayed the contestant into its cage and grabbed another for inspection.

"They check everything about their physical beings," said Wettlaufer. "Not only do they judge physical features, such as boning, the shape of the head, or the coat, they look at the facial expressions and personality."

One cat with a large dose of personality was Spud, a championship division Scottish fold, owned by Gail and Mark Alsager of Canton.

Gail Alsager, twirling a cat toy in the face of her playful blue and white cat, said the breed got the name because they originate in Scotland and because their ears are folded down.

Looking up with big, gold eyes, Spud jumped up at a toy and latched onto a thin stick with both paws. The champion, belonging to one of the rarer breeds of cat, then held on for dear life.

"ONE LOOK at his round, sweet face, and you can see why they are becoming much more popular to breed and own," said Alsager, a veterinarian.

Troy's Vivian Artrip, owner of Vistar's Flaming Star, a red Persian champion, said breeding and showing cats is merely "an expensive hobby."

"My husband (Harry) bought me a blue Persian kitten 15 years ago as a gift, and that got me started," she said.

"But these shows give people a chance to see what you have, make some business contacts, and meet a lot of new friends."

Artrip said her hobby branched out in 1979, when she began entering cats into shows.

Farmington's Suzanne Campeau, the owner of Sun Val Top Brass, a cream Persian cat, also said she attends shows more as a hobby than anything else.

"But it's fun to win, exciting. I've had cats all my life, and I've been showing them for eight years."

But more than winning awards, the main message of the show, according to Russell, is the need to take proper care of, and love the animals.

Fancy that.

WANT TO CHOOSE THE SEX OF YOUR BABY?

Throughout history methods have been suggested to increase the odds of conceiving either a male or female child. They have generally proven to be unreliable. Dr. Ronald J. Ericsson has developed methods for the separation of sperm thus increasing the chance of conceiving a child of the desired sex. Using his method to increase the odds for a male or female child, has proven to be 80% successful. The Ericsson procedure has been tested in laboratories, university centers, and private clinics. It has been shown to be safe and effective. The Midwest Fertility and Sex Selection Center is the only center licensed in Michigan to use Dr. Ericsson's technique.

OLD WORLD FAVORITES FRESH AS SPRING

From ancient times to the present, in countries around the globe, people of varying faiths have celebrated numerous spring rites. Food often plays a prominent role in the festivities with eggs standing out above other foods and serving variously as a symbol of life, the renewal of life and the resurrection of Christ. In addition to their symbolic decorative use, these nutritious natural wonders have also shown their versatility in a host of dishes traditionally served for the occasions. The holiday treats below are merely a small sampling of classic ethnic recipes that have been adapted for modern cooks. One of them might be just the thing to add a fresh note to whatever you celebrate this spring!

PARED-DOWN PASKHA

about 2 cups

You might describe this Russian Easter cheese dessert as a spreadable cheese cake. Customarily made with baker's, farmer or pot cheese, and sometimes cream cheese and whipping cream besides, our uncooked version is still rich and creamy, but considerably lower in calories. After Easter, serve it with fruit, plain cookies or pound cake.

- 1 carton (12 oz.) dry cottage cheese
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup dairy sour cream
- 1/3 cup butter, softened
- 3 egg yolks
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 1 teaspoon grated orange peel
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- Candied fruit pieces, optional

Press cottage cheese through sieve into small mixing bowl. Beat in remaining ingredients except nuts and fruit until thoroughly blended. Line a 2 1/4 cup (or larger) perforated container with double layer of dampened cheesecloth. Spoon cheese mixture into cheesecloth. Fold over ends of cheesecloth and place a weight smaller than container on top. (About 1 lb. A full food can works well.) Set in shallow pan so liquid can drain. Refrigerate overnight.

To serve, remove weight and turn back cheesecloth. Unmold onto small serving plate. Garnish with fruit pieces, if desired. Refrigerate any leftovers. *Sieve: colander, strainer, clean non-clay flowerpot, or empty cottage cheese carton with a few holes punched in bottom.

NEW WORLD SIMNEL CAKE

12 servings

Legends about and recipes for this delicious fruitcake vary from county to county in England, but most often it is associated with the fourth Sunday in Lent, Mothering Sunday, when the British honor either the Mother Church, their own mothers, or both. This variation simplifies the tedious and toughening step of boiling before baking and is simply made with only one layer of almond paste.

- 1 3/4 cups all-purpose flour
- 1/2 cup currants or seedless raisins
- 1 tablespoon grated lemon peel
- 1/2 cup diced candied mixed fruit
- 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 cup butter
- 1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 2/3 cup sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 6 eggs, beaten
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1 can (8 oz.) almond paste

Place 9x3-inch springform pan on 12-inch length of waxed paper. Trace around pan. Lightly grease bottom and side of pan. Set pan and waxed paper aside.

In medium bowl, stir together flour, peel, baking powder and seasonings until thoroughly blended. Stir in fruits. Set aside. In large mixing bowl at medium speed, beat together butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Set aside 2 tablespoons of the beaten eggs. Add remaining beaten eggs to butter/sugar mixture. Beat at medium speed until thoroughly blended. Fold in reserved flour mixture. Pour into prepared pan. Bake in preheated 350°F oven 1 hour.

Meanwhile, cut scant 1/2-inch slice from almond paste. Cover and set aside. Place remaining paste in center of circle on reserved waxed paper. Top with another piece of waxed paper and roll paste to fit circle trimming edges of paste, if necessary. Cover and set aside. Knead trimmings, if any, into reserved slice and form into 11 small balls. Cover and set aside.

Remove cake from oven. Increase oven temperature to 400°F. With a spatula, gently loosen cake from pan at side and remove pan side. Brush top of cake with some of the reserved beaten eggs. Carefully place rolled paste circle on top of cake. Brush paste circle with some of the remaining beaten eggs. Gently press balls onto top of paste. Brush balls with remaining beaten eggs. Bake until paste is lightly browned, 7 to 8 minutes. Cool on wire rack.

MODERN SPINACH MATZO KUGEL

4 to 6 servings

The 8-day home festival of Passover marks the Hebrew exodus from Egypt and the liberation of the Israelites from slavery. Joyously celebrated by Jews, the feast called Seder is notable for the lack of leavening foods, legumes and grains. The symbolic matzo crackers, eggs and vegetables are all combined in this kosher, quiche-like kugel.

- 3 matzo crackers
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 cups sliced fresh mushrooms (about 8 oz.)
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 8 eggs
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 3/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 package (10 oz.) frozen chopped spinach, thawed and drained
- 1 cup (8 oz.) low-fat cottage cheese
- 1 jar (2 oz.) chopped pimiento, drained

Soak crackers in enough warm water to cover just until softened, 3 to 5 minutes. Press gently between paper towels and set aside.

In 10-inch omelet pan or skillet over medium heat, cook mushrooms and onion in butter until tender but not brown, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat and set aside. Set aside some attractive mushroom slices for garnish.

In large bowl, beat together eggs, lemon juice and peel and salt until thoroughly blended. Stir in reserved mushroom-onion mixture, spinach, cheese and pimiento.

Place one of the reserved crackers on bottom of lightly greased 2-quart casserole or 8x8x2-inch baking dish. Cut another reserved cracker into four strips. Line sides of dish with cracker strips. Pour in about 2-1/2 cups of the vegetable mixture. Top with remaining cracker and remaining vegetable mixture. Bake in preheated 350°F oven 30 minutes. Arrange reserved mushroom slices on top. Continue baking until knife inserted near center comes out clean, 10 to 15 minutes.

QUICK KULICH

1 large or 2 small loaves

Though it's less time consuming to make this Russian Easter Bread with today's fast rising yeast, its classic cylindrical shape is preserved by baking the rich yeast dough in empty food cans. Traditionally, the bread is sliced into rounds (with the top slice served to the guest of honor or senior member of the family) and spread with Paskha.

- 4-1/2 cups all-purpose flour, divided
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 2 packages fast-rising active dry yeast
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/4 cup water
- 1/4 cup butter
- 4 eggs
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1/2 cup chopped nuts
- 1/2 cup golden seedless raisins
- 1/2 cup chopped dried or candied mixed fruit
- 1/3 cup confectioners' sugar
- 1-1/2 to 2 teaspoons milk
- Nut halves, optional
- Fruit pieces, optional

Set aside 1 cup of the flour. In large mixing bowl, stir together remaining flour with 1/4 cup sugar, yeast, salt and nutmeg until thoroughly blended. In small saucepan over medium heat, heat 1/2 cup milk, water and butter until very warm, 120° to 130°F. (Butter need not melt completely.) Add to dry mixture along with eggs and vanilla. Stir until blended. Stir in enough of the remaining 1 cup flour to make a soft dough. Stir in chopped nuts, raisins and chopped fruit. Knead on lightly floured board 4 minutes.

Place dough in well-greased 2-pound coffee can OR 2 (1-lb. each) coffee cans OR 2 (46-oz.) juice cans. Cover can/s with plastic wrap and cloth or paper towels. Let rise in warm place until doubled (finger pushed into dough will leave an imprint). 20 to 30 minutes for large can or 15 to 20 minutes for small cans.

Bake in preheated 350°F oven until lightly browned and bread sounds hollow when tapped with finger, 30 to 35 minutes for large can, about 25 minutes for small cans.

Tap can/s gently on side/s to loosen. Remove from can/s. Cool on wire rack. Beat together confectioners' sugar and 1-1/2 to 2 teaspoons milk until smooth. Drizzle over bread/s. Garnish with nut halves or fruit pieces, if desired. To serve, slice horizontally into rounds.

EASY ITALIAN EASTER PIE

6 to 8 servings

Sometimes made in as many as thirty-three layers (representing the years of Christ's life), this savory main dish is delicious hot or cold. Despite the lack of all those layers, this modernized recipe is still lovely to look at when sliced.

- 4 ounces link mild Italian sausage
- 2 tablespoons water
- 4 eggs
- 1 carton (15 oz.) low-fat or part-skim ricotta cheese
- 4 ounces prosciutto or cooked ham, chopped
- 2 ounces Genoa salami, chopped
- 1/2 cup (2 oz.) shredded mozzarella cheese
- 1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 1 sheet frozen puff pastry, thawed
- 4 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
- 4 thin slices Genoa salami, optional
- Parsley sprigs, optional

In small skillet over medium heat, cook sausage with water, covered, 5 to 6 minutes. Uncover and continue cooking, turning occasionally, until lightly browned, about 2 minutes more. Set aside.

In large bowl, beat 4 eggs well. Set aside 2 tablespoons. Thoroughly blend ricotta into remaining beaten eggs. Slice cooked reserved sausage. Stir sausage and remaining ingredients except puff pastry and sliced eggs into ricotta mixture until well combined. Set aside.

On lightly floured surface, roll puff pastry into 14-inch square. Cut 12-inch circle from the square. Line 9-inch pie plate with rolled pastry. Press trimmings together and roll into 10-inch circle. Make small slit in 10-inch circle and set aside.

Pour 1-1/2 cups of the reserved ricotta mixture into pastry-lined plate. Reserving 1 center egg slice for garnish, arrange sliced eggs over ricotta mixture. Pour in remaining reserved ricotta mixture. Brush edge of bottom pastry with some of the reserved beaten egg. Place slit circle on top of ricotta mixture. Pinch edges of pastries together to seal. Trim edge even with rim of plate. Flute edge of crust and brush top and edge with remaining reserved beaten eggs.

Bake in preheated 350°F oven until lightly browned and knife inserted near center comes out clean, about 40 to 45 minutes. Garnish with reserved egg slice and salami and parsley, if desired. To serve, cut into wedges.

*To hard cook, put eggs in single layer in saucepan. Add enough tap water to come at least 1 inch above eggs. Cover and quickly bring just to boiling. Turn off heat. If necessary, remove pan from burner to prevent further boiling. Let eggs stand, covered, in the hot water 15 to 17 minutes for large eggs. (Adjust time up or down by about 3 minutes for each size larger or smaller.) Immediately run cold water over eggs or put them in ice water until completely cooled. To remove shell, crackle it by tapping gently all over. Roll egg between hands to loosen shell, then peel, starting at large end. Hold egg under running cold water or dip in bowl of water to help ease off shell.

Bacon frittata is Easter treat

Canadian Bacon Frittata makes an elegant, quick-to-prepare Easter brunch entree.

Easter is traditionally a time of new beginnings — the first signs of spring begin to appear, new clothes are purchased and festive holiday foods are prepared for family celebrations. Start a new tradition in your home this year by preparing an Easter brunch featuring Canadian Bacon Frittata.

A brunch is a convenient and relaxing way for family members and guests to enjoy each other's company as well as participate in all of the busy holiday festivities. And Canadian-style bacon, with its marvelous flavor and aroma, is an excellent mid-morning meal choice.

Canadian-style bacon has a similar flavor and appearance to ham. This lean, meaty bacon actually comes from the prestigious pork loin muscle. The loin is processed to remove most of the fat, then shaped into a compact roll, cured, smoked and cooked. Since this boneless, full-flavored bacon offers little waste, one pound of meat provides four to five three-ounce servings.

Canadian Bacon Frittata takes only about half an hour to prepare and cook. Arrange the bacon slices around the edge of an ovenproof frying pan. Then pour a seasoned egg mixture in the pan over the slices and cook until the mixture is almost set. Just before serving, put the entree briefly under the broiler to give the eggs a golden brown color.

CANADIAN BACON FRITTATA
Preparation time: 15 minutes
Cooking time: 17 to 20 minutes

- 16 slices Canadian-style bacon, cut 1/8-inch thick (about 8 oz.)
- 5 eggs, slightly beaten
- 5 Tbsp. water
- 6 Tbsp. grated Parmesan cheese
- 1 Tbsp. chopped fresh dill (or 1/2 tsp. dried dill weed)
- 1/2 tsp. each salt and dried oregano leaves
- 1/4 tsp. pepper
- 1 1/2 cups thinly sliced fresh vegetables

(zucchini, mushrooms, red pepper, green onion)
1 Tbsp. butter

Combine eggs, water, cheese, dill, salt, oregano and pepper; reserve. Cook and stir vegetables in butter in ovenproof frying pan 2 minutes or until vegetables are almost tender. Stir vegetables into egg mixture. Arrange overlapping slices of Canadian-style bacon around edge only (do not go over rim) of same frying pan. Carefully pour egg mixture into frying pan. Cover and cook over medium-low to medium heat 15 minutes or until eggs are almost set. Place under broiler to lightly brown egg mixture. Garnish with fresh dill, if desired. 4 servings.

Careful analysis is important for speedy recovery.

Dr. Mashike explaining the cause of a patient's problem.

Dr. Mashike has corrected these symptoms in many people without drugs. The procedure is as follows:

1. Each vertebrae of the spine, when out of position, usually causes a certain symptom to appear.
2. The spine is analyzed to find misplaced vertebrae (subluxated vertebrae).
3. These subluxated vertebrae are adjusted into place, unblocking nerve fibers.
4. When pressure is removed from nerve fibers, the tissue or organs they supply are regenerated and return to normal.
5. When the tissue or organs are normal, symptoms are alleviated.

If you have these symptoms, we suggest a spinal examination to find the underlying cause of the problem.

For a spinal examination call 459-0200.

'Birds' actress recalls career

also works with wildlife-preservation groups and is a volunteer with Food for the Hungry, a relief group.

Shambala, which is about 40 miles northeast of Beverly Hills, is home to just about every type of big cat — lions, tigers, leopards, cougars, jaguars, cheetahs, and even tigers, which are combinations of tigers and lions. The cats, many of which have been raised as cubs in Hedren's home, roam compounds within the ranch, where they do everything their wild brethren do, except hunt.

At Shambala, Hedren and her family have been able to develop close relationships with the beasts. Hedren said each of the big cats has a personality all its own — a personality that is more than the "fierce hunter" image commonly associated with the big cats.

"The big cat has a full, rounded personality," Hedren said. "They're very lovable, very playful. They have a great capacity for love. Some are very serious animals. Some are very funny. To portray any living being as having no other characteristic than being menacing is very unfair."

To prove her point, Hedren showed slides of a lion playfully jumping through a kitchen window, lying on a couch watching television and sleeping with her daughter on her daughter's bed.

SHE CONCEDED that she and members of her family have gotten hurt at times in their associations with the big cats. She said that can be expected when you're fooling around with a 600-pound playmate.

But it is comforting, she said, to hear the roar of the big cats outside her home at night and the sounds of their heavy bodies knocking against the outer walls.

The idea for Shambala started in 1969 when she made the adventure film, "Satan's Harvest," in Africa. It was the first time she had gotten the chance to see lions up close. She and her then husband, producer Noah Marshall, decided they would one day like to make a film focusing on the big cats.

The family began raising lion cubs in their home in the city. When an animal control officer lodged a complaint, the couple decided to buy the Shambala ranch as a setting for their cat menagerie.

The film they eventually produced, "Roar!," survived a disaster-laden filming schedule. The bad luck started with the first piece of film that was shot, as a promotional piece for potential backers.

The scene called for Hedren to lie on a log while a parade of big cats walked over her. Unfortunately, one of the cats, seeing Hedren in such an uncharacteristic position, decided to grab her head in its mouth. Hedren could hear her skullbones grinding in the animal's grip before someone was able to shoo it away.

Another scene called for one of Shambala's elephants to wreck a boat. During the filming of that scene, Hedren suffered a hairline fracture and gangrene after her leg was caught between the elephant's trunk and tusk.

Other injuries to the cast, a disastrous flood and a forest fire also played havoc with the film's shooting schedule. The family ended up going into hock to keep the film afloat, with Hedren even selling the fur coat that Alfred Hitchcock had given her during the filming of "Marnie."

COMPLETED in October 1979, "Roar!" eventually was released throughout the world — everywhere, that is, but the United States.

"That's because the distributors we dealt with wanted, if you'll excuse the pun, the lion's share of the proceeds," Hedren said. She is now considering marketing the film on videocassette.

Compared to what she went through to film "Roar!," working on "The Birds" was "duck soup," Hedren said. "The Birds," a 1962 movie about birds attacking mankind, was her first film. Alfred Hitchcock had selected her for the film after spotting her in a "Today" show commercial.

Many of the birds trained for "The Birds" could not be used for anything else afterward, Hedren said. They had learned their lesson — how to dive on people and peck them — only too well. But there was one raven named Buddy who befriended Hedren and would perch on her makeup table.

"He couldn't be in the film because he was so nice."

According to Spoto's book, the most harrowing part of "The Birds" for Hedren was the filming of the scene in which her character is trapped alone in a roomful of birds. The filming of that scene took a full week, and Hedren suffered many real pecks along with the false wounds applied by special effects artists. Hedren's courage in doing the scene elicited praise from many on-lookers, including actor Cary Grant, who was making a picture on a nearby stage.

SAYING THAT the "birds were the stars of 'The Birds,'" Hedren instead selected "Marnie" as her favorite film role. She liked the role "because it was a very complicated character and it was very much a challenge to do that."

ART EMANUELE/staff photographer

Tippi Hedren, known for her role in Alfred Hitchcock's "The Birds," was the speaker last week at Livonia Town Hall. She talked about Shambala, her California ranch, and also touched on her film career.

Her co-star in "Marnie" was Sean Connery, who had recently made his first appearance as James Bond. Connery played a man in love with Marnie, who refuses to respond to his love.

"Sean was just out of 'Dr. No,' just beginning to acquire the fame he eventually got. He was a super gentleman. I always wondered about Marnie, how she could turn him down."

The set of "Marnie" also was the scene of some real-life drama. According to Spoto's book, Hitchcock's fascination with Hedren as one of his "cool blonds" reached a level of explicitness it had never reached before with any other actress.

Along with Hedren in her trailer, Hitchcock made an overt sexual proposition and threatened he would ruin her career if she refused, Spoto wrote. When she turned him down, Hitchcock lost interest in "Marnie," according to Spoto, and the finished film has sloppiness in technique and special effects that are uncharacteristic of Hitchcock's other work.

HEDREN LATER worked with director Charlie Chaplin on "A Countess from Hong Kong," which also starred Marlon Brando and Sophia Loren. The directorial styles of Chaplin and Hitchcock were very different, Hedren recalled.

Hitchcock had everything planned out before he filmed and relaxed and cracked jokes on the set. Chaplin was very serious on the set and would act out the things he wanted his actors to do.

Team accomplishments and individual achievement often go hand in hand. This year is no different as area coaches voted to select the All-Observer boys basketball team.

The area's top team, Wayne Memorial, was eliminated in the state tourney by Mr. Basketball Terry Mills and Romulus in an exciting 93-92 double overtime game. But even though Wayne never got out of its district, the Zebras enjoyed a cinderella season of sorts.

After losing two All-Observer players from a year ago, Pollis Robertson (now at Wisconsin) and Howard Flewers (Eastern Michigan), the Zebras ended up defending their Wolverine A Conference title. And despite its tallest player being only 6-foot-2, Wayne managed to finish the season with an 18-3 record.

Eighteen area coaches gathered recently to select the area's best players. Wayne High, Observerland's top-rated team, had two players named to the first team. Coach Chuck Henry was also picked as Coach of the Year.

WESTLAND JOHN GLENN, which captured the Western Lakes championship, landed one player on the first team along with Farmington Harrison, the conference runner-up.

Garden City, the Northwest Suburban League co-champion, gained one berth. Redford Catholic Central, North Farmington and Plymouth Salem — all district champions — are also represented on the first team.

Because of two tie votes for the final spot, eight players were voted to the first team.

Introducing the 1985-86 All-Observer boys basketball team:

FIRST TEAM

Rick Anderson, senior, North Farmington: The 6-foot-5 swingman repeats as an All-Area performer.

He averaged 19 points, 13 rebounds and three assists per game this season, while shooting 49 percent from the field and 77 percent from the line.

A three-year All-League pick, Anderson holds North school records in career rebounds (686), season scoring (432 points), career scoring (1,171) and career scoring average (17.7).

"Rick's success on and off the floor is no accident," said North coach Tom Negoshian. "He has a tremendous capacity for hard work. I pay him my highest compliment by small forward was Wayne's leading scorer, averaging 18.0 points per game. He scored 379 points on the year.

He also grabbed 206 rebounds, added 62 assists and made 43 steals this season.

Wayne's sixth man a year ago, Robinson developed quickly as a junior. He was voted co-MVP in the Wolverine A along with Wyandotte's Norm Erickson.

"Mark is the best athlete that I have ever coached," said Wayne's Chuck Henry. "He's really an outstanding player on offense and on defense."

"It's great to have him back another year."

Spence Williams, senior, Wayne: Directing the offense, the 5-9 point guard was Zebras' brains and quarterback.

During the season, Williams shot at an amazing 67 percent clip from the field (102 for 153) for an 11.0 scoring average.

He also added 55 rebounds, 94 steals and 129 assists in 21 games.

A three-year varsity starter, Williams made the All-Wolverine A Conference team after being second team last season.

"He'll be missed next year," Henry said. "His record as a starting point guard is 39-5. Spence has great quickness, and is a great ball-handler and defensive player."

Paul Tavara, senior, Catholic Central: The springy 6-4 forward capped an outstanding three-year career for the Shamrocks by averaging 15.3 points, nine rebounds and 3.2 block shots per game this year.

The first team All-Catholic pick led CC to a 16-7 overall record and a berth in the A-B Division playoffs. He also helped CC to a district title.

Noted for his quick jumping ability, the CC co-captain was an intimidating force for the Shamrocks.

"Paul was our best defensive player," said CC's Bernie Holowicki. "He is very intense and hard working."

Steve Hawley, junior, John Glenn: The 6-1 guard led the area in scoring with a 21.9 average. He also dished out six assists per game in leading the Rockets to the WLA A crown.

A pure jump shooter, Hawley was named All-Conference in the 12-team Western Lakes circuit.

"Steve is one of the most consistent players I've ever coached," said Glenn's Gordie Davis. "He is a team leader and pressure player."

Hawley, who will be back another year, missed Glenn's school scoring record by only three points.

Mike Hale, junior, Plymouth Salem: The 6-5 forward was busy under the boards all season.

He averaged 17 points and 12 rebounds per game. He shot 64 percent from the field and 77 percent from the free throw line.

Rick Anderson has been a mainstay on the North Farmington basketball team for three seasons. The 6-foot-5 junior forward was voted to the All-Area squad for the second consecutive year. Several Mid-American Conference schools are interested in his services including Eastern Michigan, Western Michigan and Kent State. Anderson's best asset is his outside shooting ability.

Defense keys Rock plans

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

With a strong back, the Plymouth Salem girls soccer team should be more than able to pull its own weight this season.

And, better yet, have a better chance at beating Western Lakes nemesis Livonia Stevenson. The Rocks have only pulled off that feat once in nine attempts since the two started playing each other.

"This year, I think we can take Livonia Stevenson," said Salem coach Ken Johnson. "That's our goal every year at the start of the season."

Salem's returning backbone, along with senior goal-scorer Julie Tortora, is the main reason for such optimism.

Michelle Cygan will switch from left fullback to center fullback to make up for the loss of graduated defender Ruth Knoerl. Defenders Chris Casler, Niki Stojeba and Lisa Hysko also return to lend some experience on the defensive front.

In goal, the Rocks have Ellen Schnackel and Jenny Cebula keeping things tidy.

But such austerity plans for opponent's offenses have little benefit without some offense from Salem's front line. Since Johnson fancies a 4-3-3 formation, which stocks up on defenders and leaves only three forwards, the scoring burden lies with Tortora. In three years, Tortora's netted 44 goals. This season, the senior striker is flanked by Pam Mayer.

soccer

The other wing position is unfilled, but there are plenty of freshmen applicants. The frosh list includes Jill Estey, Teri King, Missy Smith and Jo Wiklund.

The job requirement for the incoming wingers is to feed the ball to Tortora, considered exceptional in the air on headers. "She's the general," said Johnson. "If we can get the wingers crossing the ball high, she'll knock a few in."

At midfield, Salem returns Suzie Balconi, Rachel Thiet and Jennifer Belhart.

One of the few things the Rocks don't return are some seniors. Tortora and Balconi are the only two on the team.

Last year, the Rocks were 9-7-3. Johnson thinks his team can run up a few more wins this season.

"We're a fast team," said Johnson. "We're very fit."

PLYMOUTH CANTON

Mike Morgan needs only four fingers to count the number of players Plymouth Canton lost to graduation.

The thumb that's left could be used to plug up the holes in the defense those losses might cause. Gone are defenders Lisa Goff and Kelly Murphy along with goalkeeper Pat Phillips.

"We have a very good offensive team," said Morgan, whose team finished with an 11-7-1 mark last season. "The question mark is defensively. I rely a lot on my defenders. That's where most of the plays come from."

So, in turn, the Chiefs are going to count on Cheryl Nippa, Ronda Rice and Shelly Tutor to support the backbone, which includes freshman Jenny Saul in the net.

But don't tremble. While Saul might be a freshman, she also has seven years of goal-keeping experience in area youth leagues on her resume.

In "Just Between Friends," Mary Tyler Moore finds out that her new best friend, played by Christine Lahti, is actually her husband's girlfriend. Also starring are Ted Danson as the husband and Sam Waterston as his friend.

the movies
Dan Greenberg

Women are friends, despite same man

"Just Between Friends" (PG-13) nicely straddles the thin line between domestic tragedy and maudlin melodrama while managing to be entertaining and emotionally stimulating.

Someone remarked acerbically that Mary Tyler Moore gets younger and cuter every day, but in "Friends" she controls the saccharine with an effective, low-key characterization of a dependent woman who, to survive, must become independent.

Holly Davis (Moore) is happily married to Chip (Ted Danson) who is devoted to her and their teenage children, Kim (Susan Rinell) and Jeff (Timothy Gibbs). Chip is a seismologist whose good friend and co-worker Harry Crandall (Sam Waterston) helps Chip live a double life with TV Newscaster Sandy Dunlap (Christine Lahti). Girlfriend Sandy, in turn, becomes close friends with Holly who works as a substitute aerobics/exercise instructor.

Only in the movies... but if you think about it, life's like that and it's often hard to tell whether people are discussing family tragedies or the latest episode of "General Hospital."

"Just Between Friends" has a complicated plot, but part of the film's pleasure is following developments. Often it seems as if the film is reaching far beyond credible boundaries. At each step, however, the resolution is reasonable and the film works well.

Excellent, naturalistic acting is one reason that this emotional roller-coaster is a pleasant ride. Literate, intelligent, amusing writing and directing by Allan Burns is another. Both major and minor roles are performed with tightly reined control so that seemingly exaggerated situations become plausible.

Teenagers in films often are bratty, unpleasant characters as are successful professional women having affairs with husbands of vulnerable women who have devoted themselves to home and family.

Not so here as Kim and Jeff are restrained in performance and, of course, limited by the script. Lahti is alternately a brusque, streetwise, sharp-tongued, tender and vulnerable woman trying to make it in television and on the home-front as well. Her performance is fine-tuned to those oppositions. Similarly with the other principals whose performances are exceptionally real and natural.

"THE OFFICIAL STORY" is Argentina's powerful and touching expiation of rightist guilt for the thousands who were tortured, murdered and are now "missing," the fascist euphemism for elimination of the opposition.

"The Official Story" traces Alicia's (Norma Aleandro) horrifying discovery that her husband, Roberto (Hector Alterio), is involved in the disappearances. The horrible secret of how he obtained a child, Gaby (Analia Castro), for adoption destroys their marriage.

In her obsessive search for Gaby's parentage, Alicia learns what she and her sheltered circle have been ignoring for many years, their good life has been guaranteed by rightist repression.

Aleandro deservedly won Best Actress at Cannes and Cartagena Film Festivals as Alicia, and the young Castro, delightful as daughter Gaby, should win something during this awards season. "The Official Story" has been nominated as Best Foreign Film.

In spite of all that, however, the film is not as artistically, emotionally or politically as satisfying as its Brazilian cousin, "The Kiss of the Spider Woman," which should win a few Oscars tonight. "Official Story" is emotionally powerful in subject and treatment but annoying in technique — elliptical editing, overdone bridging sound and unexplained plot elements — none of which are fatal, but they do reduce the film to good when it could have been great.

"9-1/2 WEEKS" (R) is the title, not the length, of a Kim Bassinger-Mickey Rourke exercise in boredom. Supposedly this is a "hot" film about a sado-masochistic love affair between an art gallery type (Bassinger) and a big-time Wall Street operator (Rourke) who always needs a shave.

For an hour-and-three-quarters, the SM crowd is treated to an endless series of closeups that occasionally zooms in for extreme closeups. Visual variety is provided by closeups at odd angles.

"9-1/2 Weeks" is supposed to be about a sado-masochistic couple, but the sadism is entirely on the part of the filmmakers while the masochism is deeply ingrained in anyone who willingly sits through such a painful experience. Good soundtrack. Buy the tape and forget the flick. Or, at the very least, repress it.

Analia Castro (left) and Norma Aleandro portray an adopted daughter and mother in "The Official Story." The mother discovers a shattering truth that surrounds her daughter's past.
