NEXT 4TH: Planners for this year's July Fourth celebration thought it would be a good idea to have U.S. Air Force jets fly over the Plymouth Township Park to mark the beginning of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra's concert. It was a good idea but the flyers are in demand and have to be scheduled a year in advance. Through the offices of U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, though, the military aircraft already have been scheduled for next year's Fourth of July in Plymouth.

The case of the missing cannoneer is closed. The symphony was searching for a cannoneer with the first name Jack who had worked for Creon Smith of the Mayflower Hotel in the past. That Jack still has not been located, but a cannoneer did walk into Smith's office and volunteered his services.

UP WITH PEOPLE: Daniel O'Day of Plymouth has just finished one year's participation in the international, educational and cultural program, "Up With People." O'Day was with Cast C and traveled about 32,000 miles across the U.S. and Europe including a performance at halftime of Super Bowl XX in New Orleans.

O'Day also traveled through most of the west coast of the U.S. as well as Colorado, Nevada and the Pacific Northwest and in the spring toured Finland, Sweden, Denmark and Germany before completing the year in the northeastern U.S. During the year O'Day stayed with some 80 host families. He now joins some 10,000 Up With People alumni worldwide who have participated in this program.

LEADING ELKS: Elden J. Thomas of Plymouth is the new exalted ruler of Plymouth Elks Lodge 1780. Thomas and Stewart Israel of Plymouth, the state veterans chairman for 1986-87, were both welcomed to their new positions recently by John W. Curmbis, a past exalted ruler from Pontiac, who now is the newly installed state president for the Elks.

It's a star-spangled celebration

Parade and fireworks will highlight the Fourth of July activities in the community tomorrow.

The parade will begin at 1 p.m. at Theodore and Main Street and disassemble at East Middle School.

Parade viewing spots will be plentiful all along Main Street from Danny's to Farmer Jack's, but particularly good viewing spots will be by the judges' grandstand at Kellogg Park.

THE FOURTH of July Parade, sponsored by the Plymouth Jaycees, is the largest one in the community.

Some of the units appearing will be a McDonald's restaurant float, a "Rosemobile" float from a florist association, the Plymouth Fire & Drum Corps, a Scottish Bagpipe corps, a Skatin' Station float, the Canton Chieftettes and Salem Rockettes, antique cars, politicians including at least two gubernatorial hopefuls, and the second annual appearance of Fred Hill's Briefcase Brigade.

Police Chief Richard Myers says Main Street will be closed shortly after noon from the C&O railroad tracks to Hartsough. City residents are advised it might be easiest to walk uptown to view the parade.

Motorists are advised to park in municipal lots such as Central Parking Lot on Ann Arbor Trail west of Main, in East Central east of Main between Penniman and Church, or the Forest Place Mall lots east of Harvey between Ann Arbor Trail and Wing.

Myers suggests that the Cultural Center, Central Middle, and East Middle School lots should be avoided.

After the parade the VFW Chicken Barbeque will be held at the Mayflower-Lt. Gamble VFW Post home on Mill just north of Ann Arbor Road.

The barbeque will be from noon to 5 p.m. Tickets at $4 per person include barbequed chicken, baked potato, slaw, roll and butter.

FIREWORKS ARE scheduled Friday evening at Plymouth Township Park, Ann Arbor Trail at McClumpha west of Sheldon Road.

Fireworks will begin toward the end of the "Stars and Stripes Spectacular" pops concert presented by the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra in the park.

The concert, scheduled for 8:30 p.m., will mark the local debut of the Symphony's new conductor, Leon Gregorian. Also featured as part of the pops concert will be the return of some orchestra "alumni" such as Bill Beitner on trumpet and Plymouth Community Band representative Sid Drisbrow on trumpet.

The fireworks will start during the playing of Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture Solenne" (at about 10:30 p.m.) and continue through the closing number, Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever."

PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP Police Chief Carl Berry reports that beginning 7 p.m. tomorrow Ann Arbor Trail will be open for westbound traffic only from Sheldon to Ann Arbor Road. Beck Road will be one-way northbound from Ann Arbor Trail to N. Territorial.

We have a parking lot designated at Beck and Ann Arbor Trail," said Berry, explaining the field is within walking distance of the park and can handle 600 to 700 cars. "Parking in the park is for handicapped and VIPs only."

Parking will not be allowed at Hilltop Golf Course at Powell and Arbor Trail. There are about 100 spaces combined at West Middle and Bird Elementary for those who want to park at Sheldon and Ann Arbor Trail and walk to the park. Parking will be allowed on the shoulders of Ann Arbor Trail but no parking will be allowed on the shoulders of Beck and McClumpha.

Ann Arbor Trail will be closed once parking capacity is reached, said Berry, probably at about 9 p.m.

All roads in the immediate area will open in all directions after the fireworks are over. Officers will direct traffic at McClumpha and Ann Arbor Road, Ann Arbor Trail and Ann Arbor Road, and at N. Territorial and Beck.

Township police expect at least 25,000 spectators in the area.

THE CONCERT will open at 8:30 p.m. with the Star Spangled Banner, followed by Sousa's "Washington Post March" and Berlioz's "Hungarian March" from "The Damnation of Faust."

Mancini's "Moon River" from "Breakfast at Tiffany's" will be followed by Kabelvsky's "Gallop" from "The Comedians." After Gimber-Fox's "Killing Me Softly," the first half of the program will end with selections from "The Sound of Music."

The second half will start with Sousa's "Semper Fidelis" followed by Holcombe's "An Evening at Pops" medley of "Longer," "Shadows In The Moonlight," and "You Needed Me."

Next, for the younger crowd especially, will be Chase's "Muppet Medley" including "The Rainbow Connection" and "Movin' Right Along" as well as the Muppet Show theme song.

The last selection, before the 1812 Overture, will be Holcombe's "Manhattan Skyline" from "Saturday Night Fever."

Broken clubs finding new life at repair shop

By Kevin Brown staff writer

If golf is such a tranquil, relaxing game, why are all those clubs lying there broken in half?

"A lot of happy golfers break their clubs," says Vic Shallow, laughing. And he should know. That's because Shallow runs J.P. Golf in Plymouth, a club repair, refinishing and custom club-making business, located about a 5-iron shot away from Kellogg Park on Wing.

Those who play the game — and there are many golfers in this area dotted with good courses — know how exquisitely frustrating it can be. So frustrating, in fact, that Shallow and two employees are called on to repair 100-125 broken shafts each week during golf season.

"We do all the work for Pro Golf (Distributors) and Nevada Bob's," Shallow said. Besides getting the repair business farmed out by those two chain golf suppliers, Shallow also gets direct business from golfers whose woods or irons need refinishing or reshafting.

While Shallow does benefit financially from the bad temper of other golfers, he's experienced a share of golf-induced frustration as well. For example, he missed the tournament cut for the Professional Golfer's Association tour qualifying school by two shots in late '70s.

"I bogeyed the last three holes to miss it but they were the hardest

people

three on the course." That was when Shallow ran a similar repair shop in Palm Springs, Calif.

And in the qualifying rounds of last month's Michigan Amateur tournament in Charlevoix, "The last three holes I had to make two birdies. I made one, but on the last hole I caught a little bit of a tree. Yea, I was a little disappointed, but it was my first year."

SHALLOW, 30, who is from down-river Gibraltar, bought the club repair business from airline mechanic Jim Paul about three months ago, after he and his wife returned from California to the Detroit area.

"Mainly what we do is reshafting and refinishing," said Shallow, who added, "I'm really going to push custom clubs."

Tools used in the club repair business are similar to those you'd see in any wood or metal shop. Shallow explained. Vices are mounted on worktables around the shop and are useful for holding bare metal shafts ready for re-grapping or clubheads ready for filing or sanding.

Prison incident quelled

All 600 inmates at the Western Wayne Correctional Facility were unexpectedly sent to their barracks for about an hour last Sunday when a disturbance arose over an intoxicated inmate, said Warden Emmett Baylor Jr.

An inmate who had been drinking didn't want to be led back into the cellblock, Baylor said. He was unruly. He resisted officers.

Two guards and a couple of inmates were struck with rocks hurled from a crowd of 100 to 150 that gathered with the commotion, Baylor said.

No one was seriously injured, the warden added. The rock throwers weren't immediately identified.

Several inmates helped guards get the intoxicated inmate into the cellblock, Baylor said. Other inmates were returned to their barracks, but allowed back into the compound about an hour later.

The incident itself was over in about 20 minutes, the warden said.

Baylor said he didn't know how the inmate, who allegedly had been drinking, obtained the beverage. He suggested that fruit juice could have been fermented with bread or sugar. Inmates can make purchases from a prison store.

"In any prison, guys are very ingenious," he said.

Baylor said he believes some media accounts overstated the incident.

"When I get a guy who's drunk and needs to be locked up, that happens every day throughout the system," he said. "When you get a crowd, you get guys running at the mouth, instigating."

The incident occurred shortly before 3 p.m. Michigan State Police and Plymouth Township police responded to the scene, but only to secure the perimeter.

"All control of prisoners was handled by prison guards," said State Police Lt. Harry Hall.

Disciplinary action against the inmate believed to be intoxicated is likely, Baylor said.

A taxing situation

Property owners to see summer bills

By Doug Funke staff writer

Summer tax bills are on the way to property owners in Plymouth, Canton and Plymouth Township.

Residential and commercial property owners in all three communities have or soon will receive bills for one-half of the annual tax to support Plymouth Canton Community Schools.

The school tax rate for the summer billing is $19.50 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation (half of market value), meaning a house with a market value of $80,000 would yield $780.

Property owners in the city of Plymouth also will be billed $18.17 per $1,000 of SEV for municipal operations and debt retirement. That tax rate would generate $727 on a house valued at $80,000.

Other taxes — Plymouth Township operations, Canton operations, Wayne County operations, the second half of the school tax, Wayne County Intermediate School District, the Plymouth Library district and the Huron Clinton metroparks — appear on December bills.

TAXES TO support the recently approved school bond issue also will begin showing up on December bills.

Summer taxes may be paid through Sept. 15 without penalty.

Kenneth Way, treasurer for the city of Plymouth, and Mary Brooks, Plymouth Township treasurer, said they expected all bills to be mailed by today.

"We're just processing them as fast as we can," Way said.

Brooks said she and her staff have noticed that more bills seem to be going directly to homeowners rather than to mortgage companies. "We were just commenting people have been refinancing and paying their own taxes.

The reason, most likely, is to avoid losing interest on money tied up in escrow accounts.

The city is sending bills to more mortgage companies, Way found, but probably not a greater percentage of all bills mailed.

First of America bank has been hired by the school district to handle its summer collection in Canton.

THOSE BILLS also should be mailed by the end of the week, said Ray Hoedel, associate superintendent for business.

Property owners in all three communities should receive copies of their tax bills for informational purposes even though mortgage companies may be responsible for payment.

None of the three collection agencies charges taxpayers the 1 percent administrative fee permitted by state law.

Plymouth township and city residents may pay bills in person at their municipal buildings during business hours (8 a.m. to 4 p.m.) via drop boxes at municipal buildings off hours, or by mail.

City property owners also may pay at one of three banks in town — Comerica, National Bank of Detroit and First of America.

Canton property owners must pay at First of America.

Canton and school officials have never been able to work out an agreement so property owners there could pay summer tax bills at Township Hall, Hoedel said.

The school district reimburses Plymouth Township $3.20, Plymouth $2.95 and First of America $2.95 per bill for summer collection services.

Mr. Bulmon, who died June 26 in Livonia, was born in Wayne. He was a longtime farmer and Livonia resident. He served with the U.S. Army in the Philippines in the late 1920s. He was an artist who painted local scenes and had received several awards for his art work. Survivors include wife, Beatrice, and son, Ralph, of Romulus.

International Kiwanis elect Gene Overholt

Gene R. Overholt of Plymouth has been elected treasurer of Kiwanis International at the service organization's 71st annual convention held recently in Houston.

The election places Overholt in the automatic line of succession to become president of Kiwanis International on Oct. 1, 1988.

For the past five years, Overholt has served as an international trustee and just completed one year as vice president for the worldwide association of 8,300 clubs and 315,000 members.

A retired Michigan Bell executive, Overholt is a 19-year member and past president of the Kiwanis Club of Colonial Plymouth which meets at noon Thursdays in the Mayflower Hotel.

He also was governor of the Michigan District of Kiwanis in 1977-78 for which he received distinguished service recognition.

Gene R. Overholt

IN ADDITION to his Kiwanis involvement, Overholt served as an elected Plymouth Township trustee for 10 years and as a member of the township civil service commission.

He was past chairman of the community recreation commission, a former director of the Northwest Wayne County Sanitation Authority, and past chairman and 17-year member of the Plymouth Salvation Army Advisory Board.

A member of the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth, he and wife, Jane, have three daughters.

More than 15,000 Kiwanians attended the Houston convention. Reports to the convention noted that Kiwanis clubs raised and spent more than $50 million on community service projects during the past year.

Mark A. Petroff of Wildwing, Plymouth, will report July 7 to the U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md.

Petroff, a 1985 graduate of Plymouth Canton High School, was offered an appointment to two military service academies — the Air Force Academy and the Naval Academy.

He chose the Naval Academy at Annapolis because he wants to become a naval aviator. Nominated by U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, he is making arrangements for his departure through Capt. Ed Furdak, Navy recruiter in Livonia.

Petroff played varsity football for two years for the Canton Chiefs. He attended Northwestern Prep School in Santa Barbara, Calif., a service academy preparatory school, where he earned a 4.0 grade point average and was a dorm supervisor.

He will graduate from the Naval Academy with a bachelor's degree and a commission as an ensign in the U.S. Navy. The four-year scholarship is worth about $150,000.

Each year about 15,000 persons apply for appointment to the academy of which some 1,300 are accepted.

mounted above workbenches. On a low bench, a thick reference book lies open to a section recommending maximum amounts that can be cut from a club shaft.

One also spots a metal grinding wheel, a spool holding black nylon wrap, stained rags and racks that hold tagged clubs in various states of repair. Several retinished woods cure in a back room heated to 95 degrees.

Shallow said he gets lots of requests to retinish classic MacGregor clubs from the '60s. They were real well made, the woods were oil hardened, they used a real good grade of persimmon.

Today, nearly half the new woods sold are "metal woods." Shallow said clubs that perform as traditional woods with lighter, metal heads. "Eventually, what I'll do is get into retinishing metal woods."

PARTS FOR THE custom clubs Shallow assembles and sells are made by a company in Louisville, Ky.

A customer can choose among various grip styles and thicknesses, traditional iron-forged iron heads or the cast variety, and shafts of various flexes and swing weights.

For weekend golfers, he offers these equipment tips: "I personally feel that people who don't play much don't use a flexible enough shaft. Ninety percent of people who play slice, and they think a stiffer shaft will help."

But Shallow says that with a stiff shaft, the clubhead flexes forward less at impact, thereby remaining open and encouraging a slice.

He also encourages use of cast, perimeter weighted heads for iron clubs. "What it does is make it more forgiving. It's the biggest thing they've done in the last 10 years to help the average player."

To properly care for woods, "don't leave them in the trunk of the car," he said. "It ruins the grips, it dries them out."

Heat also can crack a wood's finish. "It will pick up moisture eventually, it will rot the wood and it will crack." He recommends waxing woods and using head covers to head off problems.

Experience counts with employers

A new survey of corporate CEOs and presidents on the subject of executive recruiting and hiring practices reveals job experience and expertise are the two most important attributes desired in candidates for high-level positions.

The study also showed that the two most common failings of senior-level candidates during the job interview were that they talked too much on their own and poor communication skills.

The survey, commissioned by Elwell & Associates Inc., an Ann Arbor-based executive search firm, polled CEOs and senior executives of Michigan and Ohio corporations.

Executives in the service industry valued expertise more highly than their counterparts in manufacturing where related job experience was the most important attribute in high-level position candidates.

Other key attributes cited for candidates in order of importance are education, communication skills, capacity for hard work, integrity, and adaptability to company culture. Frequently mentioned deficiencies, in addition to poor communication skills, were a lack of knowledge about the company, and insufficient qualifications for the position.

According to Richard Elwell, president of Elwell & Associates

"Most employers know what kind of person they want for the job, but are often frustrated because they can't find that person."

"The position may require skills that are scarce, or the competition is stiff for qualified people," said Elwell. "Candidates who are not qualified or those who cannot present themselves well will never get through the search process and to the interview stage."

"Executives seeking high-level positions must realize that in addition to expertise in their profession, they must be able to communicate effectively to be successful."

Lots of hot weather ahead

It's set up whether July or August is the most miserable month for weather. And it's even tougher to predict when the thermometer will peak in the metropolitan Detroit area.

That it still isn't too late to get ready for the hottest day of the year, whenever it happens or wherever you are.

That's the word from the Air Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute, a trade association that represents manufacturers of central air conditioning and refrigeration equipment.

The July normal daily mean temperatures and 7 a.m. relative humidity readings of the past years for representative cities in different parts of the United States confirm the hot and sticky outlook.

- Phoenix, Ariz., 91.2 degrees and 28 percent relative humidity
- Dallas, Fort Worth, 84.8 and 81
- Houston, 83.3 and 94
- Miami, 82.3 and 85

- New Orleans, 81.9 and 91
- Memphis, Tenn., 81.6 and 85
- Oklahoma City, 81.5 and 81
- Honolulu, 80.1 and 66
- Washington, 78.7 and 76
- Atlanta, 78 and 90
- New York, 76.6 and 75
- Chicago, 71.9 and 81
- Los Angeles, 68.5 and 69

ANY TIME the temperature gets above 80 or the relative humidity exceeds 60, the forecast is sweat and plenty of it, the ACRI says. When talking mean temperature, remember that half of the day will be hotter than the mean temperature.

However, the institute said, consumers interested in getting maximum cool for their money have a wide range of options. Among other things, they can quickly and inexpensively clean or change their air conditioning system's air filter, schedule hot household chores for the coolest hour, and draw drapes over windows facing the sun.

Sumpter official maps plans for county job

This is another in a series of profiles on the Democratic contenders for Wayne County executive. Voters will select a Democratic candidate on Tuesday, Aug. 5. There is one Republican candidate, he is unopposed.

By Tom Henderson/Staff writer

Thomas Gondek may be a political unknown — and he would dispute that — but if his political projections are correct, the whole country will know him by the year 2000. That is when he plans on being elected president of the United States.

In 1986, Gondek holds the part-time position of treasurer of Sumpter Township. It is his first elected position — he lost a race for the Romulus City Council in 1973 — but not his last, or so he says.

"I don't have a one-year plan, or a two-year plan. I have a 12-year plan," said Gondek. "I'm going to be the Wayne County executive for eight years, a one-term governor, and then we plan to run for the White House. When people hear that, they think 'This guy's either nuts or very ambitious.' I'm very ambitious."

It's a long way from Sumpter Township — follow the cornfields five miles south of Belleville; the township hall is right across the street from the Gateway Ranch and as Gondek talks; goats eat grass just a few yards away — to the White House. But, first things first, and that means a win in the Aug. 5 Democratic primary.

THERE ARE 11 names in the Democratic hat for Wayne County executive. They include such heavy hitters as Livonia Mayor Edward McNamara, Wayne County Commission Chairman John Hertel and County Sheriff Robert Ficano. According to most polls, Gondek, the first to announce his candidacy a year ago, is way down the list. But not according to Gondek.

"We're very confident," said Gondek, who at 40 owns with his brother Stan a financial and computer consulting firm called The Tomstan Group. "If we didn't think we had a snowball's chance, we would have quit long ago. . . . The other candidates see this quote, unquote hayseed who comes out of Sumpter Township (but) with the information we have and the information in our data base, if the election were held today, I'd win it. And I'll win it in August."

Gondek explained his reasoning: Republicans elect McNamara in the non-partisan mayoral elections in Livonia, but they can't help him in August, Detroit commissioner Samuel Turner and Frank Wilkerson, an assistant county executive, will split the Detroit vote; John Hertel is strong only on the east side, and Ficano is weak in western Wayne.

"We've got the western Wayne County vote," said Gondek, "and the votes that put the county executive in place come from western Wayne County."

Gondek has run a low-profile campaign, so far, but he says that will change July 13. "We're launching a media blitz," he said. He said his election committee will run newspaper ads, hire airplanes, send out mass mailings. Money, he says, is no object, though he won't disclose his budget or his source of revenue.

"We're not worried about money. We haven't had one campaign fundraiser — if that tells you anything — and the other candidates can't figure it out."

"It has been rumored we have a budget of $1.2 million. I can tell you we have a budget in place that the (campaign) treasurer (Karl King) controls and I don't dispute the numbers. Nor do I confirm them."

McNamara's much more visible campaign, by comparison, has as a fund-raising goal a figure of $500,000.

GONDEK IS a graduate, not of college, but as he said, "the school of hard knocks." After high school, he entered St. Bonaventure Seminary in Wisconsin to become a monk, but quit school in 1964 and returned home to help give his twin brother, Tim, some direction in his life.

The two applied for a job at Great Lakes Steel, though only Tom was hired — for the mailroom at $235 a month. "To an 18-year-old kid, that sounded like $2 million."

Eighteen years later — with a two-year time out for military service — he had risen through the ranks at Great Lakes and had a sales position in the Chicago office.

Gondek was elected treasurer in Sumpter Township in 1984 and is, he said, responsible for a turnaround that saw the township go from a projected deficit of $30,000 to the highest credit rating in the township's history.

Though the township has just 12,000 residents and its annual budget of $1.7 million is tiny compared to Wayne County's, Gondek said the same principles of sound management can be applied to the county as a whole.

"Government should operate as a business," he said. "It's management's responsibility to make sure the job gets done. The next county executive has got to be an individual with a very strong financial background. We're losing federal revenue sharing and Gramm-Rudman is kicking everyone in the behind. They're saying there are no free lunches and I don't necessarily disagree with that."

A patriotic evening tomorrow for all ages

AN ADDED ATTRACTION to this year's Fourth of July Fireworks will be the pops concert of the Plymouth Symphony Society.

Entitled "Stars and Stripes Spectacular," the concert features the local debut of the symphony's new conductor and music director — Leon Gregorian.

The concert also will provide a spectacular visual/sound mix in the beautiful Plymouth Township Park which promises to be a real crowd pleaser and a lovely way to climax the Fourth of July.

Imagine listening to the "1812 Overture" and "Stars and Stripes Forever" in darkness in a hilly park setting with the sky lit by aerial fireworks. How more patriotic can we be on our nation's birthday than combining spectacular fireworks with the mighty strains of John Philip Sousa?

Maybe even more significant than the grand show and the patriotic exhibition, however, will be the free concert given in an amphitheatre setting by the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra.

FOR YEARS the Plymouth-Canton community has been blessed with an excellent symphony.

By its nature, the symphony has played to crowds of less than 500 because indoor auditoriums are limited in capacity, because ticket prices may be too high for some and because symphonic music does not enjoy broad appeal.

The significance of tomorrow night's concert in Plymouth Township Park, then, is that it is free, it is held at a site where thousands can enjoy hearing the symphony perform and the music selected will have very broad appeal.

For the very young will be a Muppet medley which includes everybody's favorite — "Rainbow Connection" — and the lively "Movin' Right Along." For the slightly older there's "Manhattan Skyline" from "Saturday Night Fever" and Holcombe's "Shadows in the Moonlight" and "You Needed Me." Selections from the "Sound of Music" offer something for all ages and some traditional crowd pleasers, such as "Moon River," "Killing Me Softly" and "Hungarian March" have been included.

For people who do enjoy orchestra music, a popular summer attraction each year has been the Detroit Symphony series at Meadowbrook. The setting of Plymouth Township Park offers a touch of that kind of setting for the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra to perform for the home crowd.

AND THAT'S WHAT makes tomorrow's concert fun — a sort of family day in our home town which offers all of us a chance to become acquainted with two of the community's finer assets — the park and the orchestra.

The concert especially is nice for families because it's free and because of the setting — children can cough or wiggle and not disturb others as they would in a concert hall.

The concert also gives Plymouthites the opportunity to see many of their neighbors perform. While the orchestra contains some of the best throughout the metropolitan area, it also includes many very fine musicians from Plymouth, such as: Janita Hauk, Kiyo Morse, Janice Standish on violin; Laura Giaino Romanik and Mark Rakozy on viola; Betsy Batsakis, Janet Holt, and Edith Schultz on cello; Joan Seay on French horn; Richard Cranston and James Solberg, percussionists.

You can't enjoy the Fourth without fireworks but this year don't wait till dusk to arrive at township park. Bring the family, some blankets or folding chairs, and arrive for the 8:30 p.m. concert. This year your family can enjoy Fireworks Plus!

Love of country is personal tale of dedication

SOME STORIES of patriotism come in quiet versions — no fireworks, no parades, no music.

"Patriotism is not a short and frenzied outburst of emotion but the tranquil and steady dedication of a lifetime," former United Nations Ambassador Adlai Stevenson once told us.

This is a tale of just such dedication. Watching the men sitting at the pool-side bar, the casual onlooker would see two friends chatting, swirling their drinks and smiling — smiling, sometimes laughing and talking. So much talking.

The keen observer would see much more.

Just minutes earlier, a ring of the phone had melted away 18 years of separation.

"Well, it's about time. Where are you?"

"In the lobby waiting for you, where do you think?"

The taunting, jocular tones still were there. Within minutes nervousness and anticipation were replaced by delight in the refueling of a friendship which had been fused half a world away so many years ago.

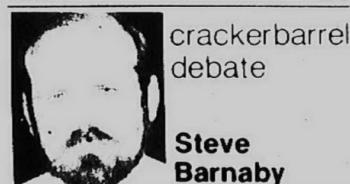

Acquaintanceships can be fleeting but friendships last forever. This they knew as they exchanged hardy hugs at the elevator entrance.

And now this friendship was basking in the hot Georgia sun. Two men, from two different parts of the world, celebrating friendship and a common love for their country.

ONE WAS a middle American, born and raised in a large urban area. Through the years he had escaped from the rough and tumble setting of city streets to become a businessman.

The other, the Georgian with the English accent, was born in America, lived for a time in England, his mother's homeland. The old country had dealt him badly. He sought refuge in the more rural setting of this continent, loving this country because of the opportunities it offered.

To win their refuge both had to pay the same price — a time at war.

Steve Barnaby

The businessman had always been impressed with the Georgian's depth of dedication to this country. He came to America knowing he would be drafted into a war which few cared to support. He came nevertheless.

"It was worth the price," he had said during a long-ago conversation in a rice paddy field.

He said the same thing, with the same intensity, nearly two decades later.

"People think I'm crazy, but I love this country," he said unabashedly.

The accent made the other laugh with delight. His words made him feel that same surge of warmth he had felt so long ago.

He loved this guy as one man loves another. The forthrightness, the innocence, the dedication had all withstood the weathering of time.

They talked late into the evening — a little about yesterday, but mostly about their hopes and dreams for tomorrow.

These two men didn't need a statue or fireworks to celebrate their friendship and the country which had drawn them together.

Later that week as the businessman climbed on the plane to head for home, the words of his friend kept echoing in his ears.

"I keep telling people what a great country this is. It's worth the price you have to pay."

Steady dedication of a lifetime. It makes for patriotism and friendship, too.

Lawmakers pave way, now it's up to business

IT'S A BREATH of fresh air. Senate Bill 196 that is.

Dubbed the Clean Indoor Air Bill, SB 196 is on its way to Gov. James Blanchard's desk for signing. And although it does not cover private workplaces, it is a significant victory for non-smokers.

The new law means that all publicly-owned buildings will have smoking regulations. Smoking will be restricted in public places to designated smoking areas.

We say hooray and congratulate area legislators who supported the measure during its lengthy four-year battle in the state Legislature. Sponsor of the bill was Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Southfield, whose district includes Farmington and Farmington Hills.

IN THE STATE House, area lawmakers voting yes included: William Keith, D-Garden City; John Bennett, D-Redford; Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia; Gerald Law, R-Plymouth; James Kosteva, D-Canton, and Justine Barns, D-Westland, who was instrumental in getting the bill quickly to the House floor for a final vote.

As approved, the Faxon bill will prohibit smoking in state offices, county offices, city halls, courthouses, governmental hearing rooms, meetings of public bodies, colleges, universities, airports, libraries and movie theaters.

When the bill takes effect Jan. 1, state and local agencies will have to develop a policy for the separation of smokers and non-smokers which provides for:

- Non-smokers to be located closest to the source of fresh air.
- Special consideration be given to people hypersensitive to tobacco smoke.
- Providing smoke-free areas.
- Posting signs in public places prohibiting smoking, except in designated areas.

And now that government has taken the lead in providing smokefree areas it's time now for business — big and small — to act and provide a smokefree workplace for employees.

After all, smokers actually cost business money. Evidence published by the American Cancer Society, cites statistics proving that lost productivity due to smoking costs businesses $875 billion a year. Smokers waste 6 percent of work time by smoking, take 50 percent more sick leave and use the health care system at least 50 percent more.

At stake is health and productivity. The Legislature has acted. It's time for others to follow suit.

Armed guards add a new twist to this prom

NOW THAT glorious month of June has run its course, there's a side to the many recent commencement ceremonies — particularly of the high school variety — which merits passing mention as a sign of the times.

In many instances such a social event as the senior prom has been a highlight of graduation season. Personal observation tells me that 1986 must have been a record year for rental of chauffeured limousines in which young men in their tuxedos could transport their chosen beauties to and from the ball, often double dating.

No doubt this is far costlier than borrowing the keys to Dad's car, but not a single father with whom I've talked has complained about the expense. They are unanimous in considering it a wise investment.

It is no secret that many of the young scholars drink. There are far too many reports of celebrating seniors and friends being killed on the highways.

The wail of a siren has frightened many a parent at 3 a.m. and more than one father told me, "His mother and I knew the kids would get home safely. With a chauffeur, we never worried."

AN INTERESTING variation of this theme came to attention through a man named John K. Johnstone, a widowed grandfather of 62 who had been invited to spend graduation week with his daughter and son-in-law whose 17-year-old son, Richard, was one of the 51 seniors in their small high school.

Johnstone, who is known as "Scotty" to his friends, was born and raised in Glasgow, Scotland. After serving in the Royal Navy Air Service during World War II he came to Detroit and within two days after his arrival landed a job in a General Motors plant as a sheet metal worker. That remained his craft for many years and only recently did he retire from GM because of health reasons.

through bifocals

Fred DeLano

Like every grandparent you know, Johnstone came back home loaded down with snapshots of his family, particularly the graduate, and of surroundings where they live. Typical were the pictures of young Richard and the girl he took to the prom, dressed to the nines a couple of nights before commencement.

This is where the script changes from what you may have known. You see, Richard and his date — as with all the rest of the class — were chauffeured to the ball on buses under armed guard.

It was the 10th graduating class of Hahn American High School at Hahn Air Force Base not far from Frankfort, West Germany, where Richard's father, Harold Burden, is stationed as a technical sergeant, in the U.S. Air Force. Richard's young sister, Christina, 8, also attends school on the base.

COMMENCEMENT itself was held in the Hahn High School Gymnasium, but the traditional senior prom was in a castle some miles off base.

"They were taken by special Air Force buses to the dance. They met at the school and the buses took them there and the buses brought them back. They were protected by armed personnel. It was safer than going downtown here.

"This was done as protection against possible attack by terrorists. It was money well spent," said Scotty, referring to expenditure of only an iota from the nation's defense budget — but an important one.

Nonetheless, how tragic it is that people anywhere, of any age, must rely on such safeguards.

Incidentally, some of you may know the man who was the principal speaker at the commencement exercises June 6. It was Col. Fred L. Frostic, a native of Howell in Livingston County and a graduate of the University of Michigan, who is second in command at Hahn Air Force Base.

Be it limousine or bus, the "money well spent" phrase tells a revealing story about 1986.

Fun, fun, fun at the fishing hole

I AM NOT much of a fisherman, but I do fish occasionally. Sometimes it's fun. Then there are the other times.

To begin with, I can rarely speak about the big one that got away. The big ones don't even come close enough to me to make any daring escapes. Usually I pull up a fish that looks as though it is a refugee from the pet department at Kresge's. Then the fun begins.

"Oh, well," I think to myself. "He's just a little guy. It'll be a snap to slip him off the hook. Wait a minute. Where's the hook? Omigosh, he swallowed it! He swallowed the hook!"

Fortunately, I never fish without an angling expert (my dad) at my side. "Here, let me see that," says the expert, and he invariably can't pry out the hook. So then — and the squeamish should not read further — he cuts off the fish's head, removes the hook and throws the remains in the weeds. "There," he says. "The turtles will eat that."

After an afternoon of catching little fishes that swallow the hook, watching said fishes have their heads cut off and hearing the comment, "There, the turtles will eat that," over and over again, I begin to ask myself, "Am I having fun here?"

PART OF the appeal of fishing is in the search, in finding that elusive spot where the fish just happen to be biting.

Rich Lech

First I toss my line into open water. After half an hour goes by and nothing happens I decide, "Fishes like to hide in the weeds," so I throw my line into some seaweed. Another half an hour passes and nothing happens. "No, fishes don't like the weeds. It's too constraining to their active, with-it lifestyle." So I try the open water again. When another half an hour goes by, and nothing happens, I ask my companion, "Ahh, you haven't heard about any toxic waste spills around here lately, have you?"

As you sit there for hours and hours you'd think that at least fishing would provide a chance for lazy, relaxed conversation. And sometimes I do try to chat. "Say, did I ever tell you about my days at the old Pontiac-Waterford Times? What a newspaper that was, let me tell you —"

"Sshhh! You'll scare the fish!"

AT THE END of the day, the fish — assuming any have been caught — must be cleaned. Cleaning a fish is easier than you think, however. First line the fishes neatly in a row on a table or other flat surface. Take a sharp knife, preferably one specially designed for cleaning fish, available in most sporting goods stores. Fit the knife squarely in the palm of the right hand (or left hand, if you are left handed), with the thumb firmly gripping the handle at a 90-degree angle. Holding the knife at waist level, hand it to your fishing companion and say, "Here, you clean the fish. I'll go to the store and get some stuff we can eat with it."

At last comes the meal, which makes all the day's frustration worthwhile. A typical day's catch is enough for a fine dinner with a few side dishes such as corn on the cob, baked potatoes, pizza and a bucket of fried chicken.

There's nothing like the taste of fresh fish cooked over an open fire, as long as you don't gag on one of the hundreds of bones or think too deeply about the fact you're eating something that lives on a diet of earthworms and bugs. You savor the meal even more remembering that you caught it with your own hands. Your hands won't let you forget it because they still stink of earthworms and slimy fish sides.

I'll be going on vacation soon, and I can't wait to get into the old fishing boat. But this year I'll take a book with me so I don't have to fish.

Nancy Walls Smith

Marketing strategy mystifies columnist

It seems to me that merchandisers are most likely an intelligent group of ladies and gentlemen. It is they, after all, who devote their talents and energies toward persuading the rest of us on how and what to spend our money. They can and do convince us to purchase many items we don't really want or need.

Now, that takes smarts. Right?

So then, tell me, why do they insist on sending me catalogs full of heavy winter clothing while I'm coping with the mid-summer heat?

PERSONALLY, I can't stand to gaze at pictures of models wearing the layered look with thigh-high boots while I'm in cut-offs and a tank top wishing a friend with a pool would invite me over. Even an enemy with a pool would be welcome on these really hot days.

How can I contemplate those long-sleeved wool sweaters when I've already forgotten what it feels like to be cold (a convenient form of amnesia suffered by the majority of Michiganders). Just thinking of wool makes me itch. Ick.

Also, admit it, no one likes to think about the fact that these lovely summer days are going to end. Don't tell me I'll soon be needing a winter coat and long johns. I'd rather think about buying a nice new pair of leather sandals.

OF COURSE you can't find decent sandals or a varied selection of shorts to buy in the summer. Just as you can't buy a pair of winter boots in the middle of winter.

This makes no sense whatsoever! How can anyone expect me to purchase a swimsuit in February when I never know what size I'll be in July?

Maybe those merchandisers aren't so crafty after all. It wouldn't hurt if they'd just look out the window once in a while.

Engler: No deals for 2nd spot on ticket

It was the first of four articles in the Republican gubernatorial campaign.

By Tim Richard
Staff Writer

Folks in southeastern Michigan may see little of Colleen Engler before Aug. 5, even though she has a good shot at the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

The bottom line in this or any other statewide campaign is the ability to present paid broadcast advertising, to get in people's living rooms, the four-term state representative from Mt. Pleasant said.

She was interviewed in her Lansing office last week just after announcing she would cancel all appearances to concentrate on fundraising.

You'd like to win it the old-fashioned way, speaking to groups and talking the issues — but

THE FUND RAISING will be done where people know her best — the central Michigan farm area and Bay City.

She was Colleen House, a 22-year-old political science graduate from Michigan State University when she stunned the state by capturing a normally Democratic district in Bay City in a 1974 special election.

Later she married fellow Rep. John Engler and moved to the Mt. Pleasant area, following John into the House when he moved up to the Senate.

Her three rivals are all males and all from southeastern Michigan.

A recent Detroit News poll shows her trailing the others, but not by much. "People are turned off; they may stay home, 35-50 percent don't know how they're going to vote," she said.

Even without victory, a good showing in the gubernatorial primary would mean she could have a spot on the Nov. 4 ticket — probably as lieutenant governor, since she's the only legislator in the race, or possibly as secretary of state, since her field of expertise is election laws.

"I HAVE BEEN offered the No. 2 spot (by another candidate). I'm not telling you who it is," she said.

She denied it was Oakland County Executive Daniel T. Murphy. Murphy said it was Wayne County Executive William Lucas. Lucas, also devoting himself to fund-raising, couldn't be reached for comment.

But Engler sees no need to make a deal. "My name would be on the list anyway," she said. "There are rumors about me dropping out. They come from the opposition camp. It's frustrating to overcome that."

Gubernatorial candidates must raise a minimum of $50,000 on their own in order to qualify for $100,000 of state campaign funding. Engler won't say how close she is to the goal except that it's "not close enough."

"My public comments during the next two weeks will consist basically of just two words: Send money."

A HOUSE colleague who is supporting Murphy summed up the Engler campaign's dilemma: "She's everybody's second choice."

Murphy is an admirer and notes they tend to be close on issues. "We're not as political as the other two are. She has corrected (Brighton industrialist Dick) Chrysler more and more. She hangs on facts. She's good for the campaign — very intelligent, very competent," Murphy said.

Engler's spartan State Capitol office is decorated by only two large pictures: Presidents Theodore Roosevelt and Abraham Lincoln, two heroes of moderate Republicans who have contributed to her House campaigns. She confesses to being friends with both GOP camps, noting, "People in the middle get elected to leadership."

In Lansing the issue of the day is Medicaid-funded abortions. Engler, a Catholic, is one of only three women representatives to oppose state-paid abortions; the other nine voted in favor.

But her central issue is the economy. And her perspective is different from a Detroit-area candidate's.

"I WAS BORN 34 years ago. My father was in the trucking business — bulk cement. My father talked about how the new interstate freeway — not toll roads — would revolutionize the state.

"Somebody has to have vision. But that cement plant is Essexville (in Bay County) is now closed down. That tells me a lot. We have to be a state that can compete."

If the theme of competition is familiar, it's because John Engler, her husband, has voiced it repeatedly in outlining the Republican agenda.

In her vision of the 21st century, she sees the Michigan economy as "more diversified. We won't be able to depend on automobiles as being supportive of Michigan. Decisions (in the auto industry) are not made by native sons or daughters any more."

ENGLER KNOWS about the inner city of Detroit, but she reminded the interviewer there are inner cities in Benton Harbor, Flint, Saginaw.

"Maybe we should have an international airport in upper Michigan, to make us a tourist spot for the world," she added. She supports the bill by Sen. Harry DeMaso, R-Battle Creek, to create a state Department of Tourism because "it's important to have a department for our second largest industry."

As governor, Engler would seek a redefinition of "disability" in the workers compensation law. She would support the effort of Sen. Doug Cruce, R-Troy, to move the Michigan Employment Security Office to Lansing, where legislators and the executive can keep an eye on it.

Engler hasn't voiced a word of criticism about the other Republican candidate, but she does rip into Democratic incumbent James J. Blanchard.

"I would work closely with the Legislature. You wouldn't see derogatory comments from me if they didn't agree with me," she said, chiding Blanchard for calling even Democrats "nuts" for supporting a prohibition on Medicaid abortions.

Flying the flag the right way

OLD GLORY will fly with pride this Fourth of July at a number of Plymouth-Canton area homes and businesses.

As with many other things, however, there's a right way and a wrong way to display the United States flag. The Auxiliary to Mayflower-Lt. Gamble Post No. 6695 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Plymouth, provided these guidelines on proper display of the Stars and Stripes.

The following guidelines apply when displaying the U.S. flag outdoors.

- It is proper to fly a flag having less than 48 stars, provided it is in good condition, although it is preferable to fly an up-to-date flag.

- The U.S. flag may be displayed 24 hours a day. Section 2(a) of the Federal Flag Code states: "It is the universal custom to display the flag only from sunrise to sunset on buildings and on stationary flag-staffs in the open. However, when a patriotic effect is desired, the flag may be displayed 24 hours a day if properly illuminated during the hours of darkness."

- When the flag is displayed from a staff projecting from a window sill, balcony or front of a building, the union should be at the staff's peak (unless the flag is to be displayed at half staff).

- The flag should not be displayed with the union down, except as a signal of dire distress. The flag should not touch anything beneath it, such as the ground, floor or water.

- The U.S. flag may be flown in inclement weather under certain conditions. Section 2(c) of the Federal Flag Code states that "The flag should not be displayed on days when the weather is inclement, except when an all-weather flag is displayed."

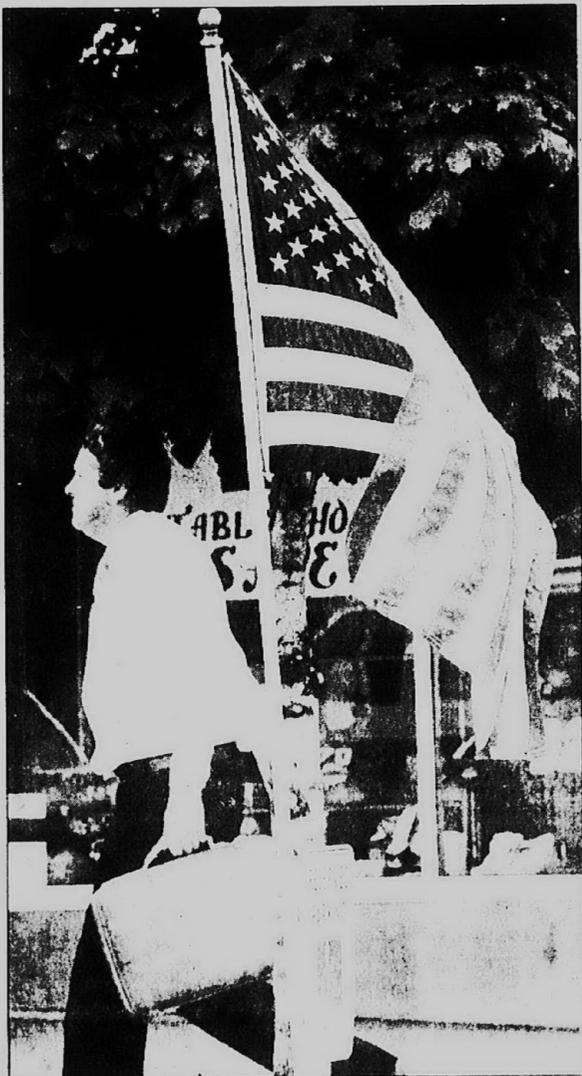

- Not more than one U.S. flag should be displayed on a building. For a decorative effect, display one U.S. flag prominently with other kinds of banners, pennants or red, white and blue bunting, as desired.

- A flag made of red, white and blue electric lights may be displayed at night.

- The Federal Flag Code does not specify or restrict an acceptable decoration to be used on the top of a flag staff. The custom has been to use the eagle, spear, ball, acorn or lance.

- Nothing prohibits painting a flag pole black, but it would be more appropriate to paint flag poles white, gray, stained wood color or almost any other dignified color.

- There is no set regulation for the size of the flag in relation to the flag pole. A good rule to use in de-

The flags in downtown Plymouth are being flown by the Plymouth Jaycees from Flag Day, June 14, through the Fourth of July. "The Jaycees are flying the flags throughout the city," said Paul Sincock, assistant to the city manager for Plymouth. "They do it all, which is great."

termining the proper size is to figure 25 percent of the height of the pole from the ground as the correct length for the flag.

Conversely, the flag pole from ground level to the top of the staff should be at least three or four times the length of the flag.

- The U.S. flag should be hoisted in a rapid manner, but lowered in a slow, ceremonious fashion.

- When a number of flags of states or cities or pennants of societies are displayed from staffs with the U.S. flag, the latter should be at the center and highest point of the group. No other flag or pennant should be placed above or, if on the same level, to the right of the U.S. flag.

During church services for U.S. Navy personnel conducted by naval chaplains at sea, the church pennant may be flown above the U.S. flag.

The following guidelines apply

Guidelines cover the proper display of the U.S. flag, which will be flying with pride this Fourth of July at many Plymouth-Canton area homes and businesses.

Plymouth's Holly Quick is the winner in the Spelling Bee for sixth through ninth graders in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. Holly, 11, is the daughter of Ron and Jan Quick.

This speller is the champ

By Julie Brown
staff writer

HOLLY QUICK is a tiptop speller.

Holly, the daughter of Ron and Jan Quick of Plymouth, is the winner of the recent Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Spelling Bee.

By correctly spelling the word "turbine" and following with the proper spelling of "garish," she became the winner of this year's competition.

Finals for the Spelling Bee were held June 2 at the Omnicon studio in Canton Township. The districtwide event was for sixth through ninth graders.

Although she had plenty of studying for the event, spelling isn't too difficult for Holly, who will be a seventh grader this fall at Central Middle School in Plymouth.

"It comes pretty easy," she said. Prizes for the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools competition were gift certificates for books from the Book Break in Canton.

Holly, 11, used her $35 to buy Agatha Christie books. She was able to buy 13 books with her winnings.

THOSE COMPETING in the Spelling Bee were given lists of words to study.

My dad asked me all the words on all the lists," Holly said.

Her father then underlined the words she missed and the two went over those words again.

During the spelling competition, contestants were allowed to ask for a definition of a word or its use in a sentence. Knowing the meaning of words allowed the contestants to differentiate among homonyms.

Holly is considering a career as a veterinarian or as a psychiatrist. She enjoys reading, swimming, playing tennis, riding her bike and walking her dog.

Gordon Wei, a Pioneer Middle School sixth grader, was the runner-up in the finals of the Spelling Bee.

Other contestants in the finals were Roopa Kadiwala, a Lowell Middle School seventh grader, Tanya Siller, a West Middle School seventh grader, Eva Felts, a Pioneer Middle School eighth grader, Nikki Rutz, a Central Middle School eighth grader, Anindya Roy, an East Middle School ninth grader, and Stacey Bosworth, an East Middle School ninth grader.

Arlene DeForest, Central Middle School teacher, coordinated the event. The final contest was hosted by William Bartlett, East Middle School teacher.

weddings and engagements

Adler-DeGrazia

Kimberly Ann DeGrazia of Plymouth and Eric John Adler of Ypsilanti were married April 18 at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church in Plymouth. The Rev. Timothy Hogan and Miriam Jerris performed the ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Thomas and Sally DeGrazia of Plymouth and Dr. and Mrs. George Adler of Saginaw.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Michigan. She is employed by the Ford Motor Co. in the public affairs department.

Her husband is a graduate of Eastern Michigan University. He is employed by Computer Task Group as a computer consultant.

Kelly DeGrazia was the maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Lisa DeGrazia, Tracy DeGrazia, Laura Adler and Judy Botaish.

Richard Keith was the best man. The groomsmen were Robert Adler, Kenneth Adler, Douglas Adler and John Vaughn.

A reception was held at the Mayflower Meeting House in Plymouth. The wedding trip was to Cape Cod.

The couple will live in Dearborn.

Eaton-Bradley

Connie Bradley of Manchester, Vt. and Kevin William Eaton of Plattsburgh, N.Y., were married May 30 at Immaculate Heart of Mary Catholic Church. The Rev. Joseph Reicher performed the ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bradley of Rutland, Vt., and Mr. and Mrs. William C. Eaton of Canton Township.

The bride is a graduate of Rutland High School and of Castleton State College in Vermont. She was previously employed by Richard Engel.

Her husband, a graduate of Plymouth Salem High School, also attended Lawrence Institute of Technology. He is serving with the U.S. Air Force in Plattsburgh, N.Y.

Cynthia Bradley, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Kimberly Abbott, Debbie Dodds, Lisa Mainolfi, Karen Ryan and Noreen Wilk.

Bill Dye was the best man. The bridegroom's other attendants were Jerry Eaton, brother of the bridegroom, Kevin Bradley, brother of the bride, John Gagne, Mark Mangan and James Tarazewich.

For her wedding, the bride wore a white organza gown with silk Venice lace. The gown had a fitted bodice and a sweetheart neckline. The headpiece was made of silk flowers and pearls with a fingertip veil.

A reception was held at the Vermont Centre Holiday Inn. The wedding trip was to Mackinac Island and the upper peninsula of Michigan.

The couple returned to his parents' home for a June 14 reception for friends and relatives unable to attend the Vermont wedding. The couple will live in Plattsburgh, N.Y.

Local teen in pageant

Susanna Matulevich, daughter of Glen and Susan Matulevich of Plymouth, has been selected to compete in the 1986 Miss T.E.E.N. Pageant to be held July 4-6 in Kalamazoo.

In the pageant, Matulevich and other 13- to 18-year-olds will be honored for achievements and service to school and community.

Those who participate in the pageant must maintain a B grade point average in school and must participate in a volunteer service program.

The new state queen will receive a $500 cash scholarship and a $500 personal appearance contract. She will also receive a round-trip flight with all expenses paid to Kansas City, Mo., to compete in the National Miss T.E.E.N. finals, and other prizes.

Matulevich's accomplishments include serving as homeroom representative for the student council in 1985-86 and as treasurer of the student council in 1986-87. She has also been a volunteer for six years at the West Trail Nursing Home and is a member of the Catholic Youth Organization.

Her hobbies include dancing, horseback riding and roller skating. She will be sponsored in the pageant by Colonial Collision, the Penniman Delicatessen and Dr. Aram Mechigan.

Guidelines for displaying flag

when displaying the U.S. flag indoors:

- The U.S. flag should be staffed to the right of a speaker. Section 3(k) of the Federal Flag Code states that "The U.S. flag should hold the position of superior prominence, in advance of the audience and to the right of the speaker."

- It is not permissible to place the Bible on a flag when both are upon an altar. Section 4 states that the flag should never be used as a desk/table covering, nor have any object placed upon it.

- The flag should not be used as a garment, handkerchief or napkin. It should not be used for advertising purposes.

- When hung flat against the wall, the flag should be hung horizontally or vertically with the union uppermost and to the flag's own right. The field should be to the observer's left as he or she faces the flag.

- When displayed above an honor roll, the flag should be hung flat or suspended so that its folds fall free. It should never be draped, festooned or allowed to touch the honor roll.

GUIDELINES ALSO cover saluting the flag. According to the VFW's "Questions and Answers on the United States Flag," those in uniform should give the military salute (fingertips of the right hand to the cap).

Those in civilian dress should place the right hand over the heart. A man who is wearing a hat should remove it and hold it at the left shoulder.

When the flag is displayed during the playing of the National Anthem, the salute should be directed to the flag. All present should stand and face the flag.

According to the VFW, it is not proper to dip the U.S. flag to anyone. The Federal Flag Code states "Do not dip the flag of the United States to any person or thing. Regimental colors, state, organization or institutional flags will render that honor."

(A U.S. Navy ship, however, shall return the compliment dip for dip upon receiving a salute by the dipping of a flag from another vessel.)

DURING THE passing of the flag in a parade, all persons should stand and salute. Those in uniform should give the military salute, holding it until the flag has passed their position.

Civilians should place the right hand over the heart. (A man wearing a hat should remove it and hold it at the left shoulder, with the right hand over the heart.)

The Pledge of Allegiance should be rendered by standing with the right hand over the heart.

Civilians, however, will always show full respect to the flag when the pledge is given by merely standing at attention; men should remove hats. Those in uniform should remain silent and render the military salute.

It is acceptable to repair, wash or dry clean a flag, according to the VFW's "Questions and Answers on the United States Flag." Such a flag should be hung for drying in such a way as not to reflect carelessness or disrespect.

WHEN A flag is no longer suitable for display, it should be destroyed in a dignified way, preferably by burning in private.

League plans July 16 event

The League of Catholic Women will host a bundle tea Wednesday, July 16, at Mill Race Historical Village in Northville. Hours will be 1-4 p.m.

A donation of $5 or a bundle of resalable items will help the league open its new resale shop at 598 Mill St. in Plymouth.

The historical village is located on Griswold just north of Northville Road (Main Street) in Northville. Refreshments will be served in the New School Church, built in 1845.

The village was created in 1972 by the Northville Historical Society.

On Wednesday, July 16, tours will be run concurrently throughout the village. The tours will include:

- the Hunter House, built in 1851, now a museum housing several historical pieces on loan from the Detroit Historical Museum.

- the Wash Oak School, built in 1873, one of the few remaining one-room schoolhouses in Michigan;

- the Yerkes House, built in 1868, featuring Victorian carpentry in traditional Gothic style;

- Cottage House, built in the 1890s and now used as a studio by the Mill Race Eavers Guild;

- the Hirsch Stone Blacksmith Shop, complete with a "smithy." This replica also houses a separate museum.

In conjunction with its 80th anniversary, the League of Catholic Women is opening a new "Bargain Boutique" in Plymouth. Services assisted by the organization include Barst Human Services, the Casa Maria Family Center, Peter Claver Neighborhood Services, Project Transition and Vistas Nuevas-Head Start.

Donations are tax-deductible and may be sent to: League of Catholic Women, 120 Parsons St., Detroit 48201.

Lots of hot weather ahead

It's a tossup whether July or August is the most miserable month for weather. And it's even tougher to predict when the thermometer will peak in the metropolitan Detroit area.

But it still isn't too late to get ready for the hottest day of the year — whenever it happens or wherever you are.

That's the word from the Air-Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute, a trade association that represents manufacturers of central air conditioning and refrigeration equipment.

The July normal daily mean temperatures and 7 a.m. relative humidity readings of the past years for representative cities in different parts of the United States confirm the hot and sticky outlook:

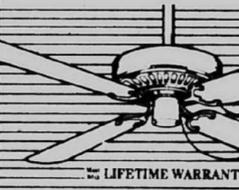

- Phoenix, Ariz., 91.2 degrees and 28 percent relative humidity.
- Dallas/Fort Worth, 84.8 and 81.
- Houston, 83.3 and 94.
- Miami, 82.3 and 85.
- New Orleans, 81.9 and 91.

SUMMER FUN

"Summer Fun" is the theme for the special exhibits in the Plymouth Historical Museum, 155 S. Main, now through Sept. 7. The exhibit includes a sea shell collection from around the world, fishing equipment from the 1920s, Coca Cola items such as an 1895 urn used for Coke syrup, trays used during the 1920s and '30s depicting clothes and important events of those years, Santa memorabilia and other items. Plymouth Historical Museum is open to the public 1-4 p.m. Thursday, Saturday and Sunday. Admission charged.

VOLUNTEER TRAINING

Growth Works Inc., 271 S. Main, Plymouth, is conducting volunteer recruitment and training to prepare volunteers for Crisis Phone intervention and phone line counseling. The training covers communication, empathy listening, building and bonding relationships, brokerage skills, crisis intervention, depression management, loss and grief, alcohol and substance abuse and problem-solving methods.

Training is open to any interested person; no previous experience is necessary. After the initial training program it is required that volunteers make at least a six-month commitment to three nights per month. For further information and a training schedule, contact Sue Davis at 455-4902 from 9 a.m. to noon Monday through Friday.

VOLUNTEERS SOUGHT

Canton Care Council, an affiliate of the Ann Arbor-based Community Councils Association, is seeking volunteers interested in enhancing the quality of life for nursing home residents. Volunteers serve on the council, which meets once a month to plan social, service or educational activities for residents at Canton Care Center. The time commitment is three to six hours per month. For more information, contact Kathy Belisle at 981-2382.

Four-year-olds attend morning classes four days a week and a limited number will be served in a Home Visit program. Breakfast and lunch are served each day and bus transportation is provided on an established route. Three-year-olds can qualify in a special-need category to be part of a Home Visit program in which visits are made to the home one day a week. Income status involves receiving public assistance or having an annual income of no more than $11,000 for a family of four. Students also may be eligible if they are a foster child or can qualify in a handicapped category. Those interested may call 451-6656.

PLUS PRESCHOOL REGISTRATION

Preregistrations are being accepted for enrollment of 4-year-olds in the free PLUS preschool program offered by Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. Children must be 4 on or before Dec. 1, 1986, to attend classes in the fall of 1986. Two half-day sessions are offered — one with a parent attending a concurrent parent education class. Many joint parent/child activities are planned. Children's activities are planned as readiness for their school's kindergarten program.

PLUS is sponsored by the school district and is financed by a federal grant. Children must live in the attendance areas of Gallimore, Field, Farrand, Eriksson and Tanger elementary schools. Classes are held at Central Middle School. Registration may be made at local elementary schools. More information and phone registration may be made by calling PLUS at 451-6656.

Phone line helps in crises

By Faye Kuzma
special writer

SOMETIMES PEOPLE just need someone to talk to — or so it would seem from the nearly 7,000 phone calls received by the Telephone Listening Center last year.

The Livonia-based phone line, commonly known as TLC, is sponsored by Ward Presbyterian Church. TLC helps callers undergoing a crisis or a temporarily overwhelming situation.

A staff of volunteers mans the phone lines. For its phone listeners, TLC looks for the caring person willing to learn listening and helping skills. The listeners must agree to remain anonymous and respect the confidential nature of the calls.

Often, family and friends may be unwilling or unable to listen to the caller, and the listener can fill that void. But the volunteers try to get the caller to do more than just talk about his or her problem.

"We aren't just a rap line," one TLC listener said. "We do try to zero in on problems people are having or a crisis in their lives and help them to sort things out or set goals."

DURING THE 15-week training course, volunteers learn about youth and adolescent problems, marital and divorce conflicts, substance abusers, grief and suicide and the referral process.

At a recent class, volunteers learned how to follow a conversational process intended to help a caller come to terms with a problem. Volunteers find there is more to listening than meets the ear.

"People who have longstanding problems have been judged 'He's crazy' or 'She's slow' or 'They'll never get it together, those two' or 'You're never going to be adequate,' 'You're not a good husband,' 'You're not a good wife,' 'You're a lousy kid,'" at TLC listener said. "That's been the case all their life, and we should try really hard not to be judgmental."

The volunteers define listening as a three-fold process in which needs are met, decisions are made and problems are solved in the Christian growth process.

To achieve this other-person-centered attention, "you have to kind of turn yourself off, although you can share your experiences," a TLC listener said.

TLC LISTENERS try to help callers get to the heart of a problem.

'We aren't just a rap line. We do try to zero in on problems people are having or a crisis in their lives and help them to sort things out or set goals.'

— A TLC listener

"Someone may say, 'My problem is this,' but as you get talking with them in a conversation, you realize that though that is a problem, there are other things that caused that," a listener said.

"A lot of times people feel they can change someone else," another listener said. "That's never the case."

The training makes the point that many problems do not require the help of a psychiatrist. For instance, a woman who has just lost her husband may just need someone with whom she can share her sorrow. TLC listeners are there.

But suffering is not the only thing TLC listeners share.

"There are calls that lift you up," a listener said. "Because we do get good calls. If we didn't, maybe we wouldn't last."

Even when they don't hear back from a caller, the listeners said they can intuitively sense when they have been able to help the caller through a problem. As one listener put it, "Maybe you talk to someone for a while, and all of a sudden the light shines."

TLC listeners, who must be at least 18 years old, receive 50 hours of training. Volunteers are asked to serve eight hours a month.

The volunteers put their skills to use first in apprentice training. Then they are ready to serve as TLC listeners.

Those seeking help with a problem as well as those interested in serving as a TLC volunteer may call 422-4852. TLC is on call 24 hours a day.

Student wins award for essay on her faith

The Early Risers Kivants Club of Livonia recently sponsored an essay contest for young people on the subject "What My Faith Means to Me." The winner was Jackie Hourigan, 14, who recently moved to Plymouth from Livonia.

She was a member of Laurel Kavanaugh's eighth-grade English class at St. Michael School in Livonia when she wrote her winning entry. Jackie, who will be a ninth grader at Ladywood High School in Livonia this fall, is the daughter of Charles and Judith Hourigan. This is her essay.

Jackie Hourigan

As I grow older, I am beginning to realize that life can be a difficult journey — a journey which I will not be able to make without much help. When I ponder what "help" I will need, I am awakened by the realization that it will be my faith which will guide me surely and steadily toward my ultimate destination — eternal life with Christ. "My faith, Catholicism, is very dear to me. It gives me strength to face painful events in my life. Death, illness and disappointments are easier to accept because I know they are part of God's plan to prepare me for my goal.

My faith teaches me to respect my fellow man — He is made in Christ's image and deserves my consideration and love. I see how kindness can make another person happy. It is wonderfully reassuring to face each day knowing I am being watched over and loved by a God who wants me to live each day so that I am drawn closer to living closer with Him for all eternity.

My faith means everything to me — It is my life's ambition.

SINGING GROUP

Ward Presbyterian Church, Six Mile and Farmington roads, Livonia, will present a Concert by New Song, a singing and drama team from Geneva College, Sunday, July 6. The group will perform at 8:30 a.m., 10 a.m. and 11:30 a.m. services.

The public is invited to attend. New Song presents a program based on scripture. Geneva College, in Beaver Falls, Pa., is a Christian liberal arts college and is a ministry of the Reformed Presbyterian Church of North America.

NEW ORGAN

Hosana Tabor Lutheran Church in Redford Township recently consecrated their new 33-rank pipe organ. The addition of the pipe organ marks the final completion of the Sanctuary, which was dedicated in 1970.

Before the Hosana Tabor Congregation used a seven rank self-contained pipe organ.

The consecration services were conducted by Pastors Roy Pranske and Glen Kopper. A short concert by the Hosana Tabor organist Nancy Maul followed the service.

FILM PRESENTATION

Plymouth United Assembly of God will be showing the film, "It's Friday, but Sunday's Comin'" at 8:30 p.m. Sunday, July 6. The public is invited to attend the showing of the one-hour film.

Plymouth United Assembly is on 46500 N. Territorial, between Sheldon and Beck roads.

MUSICAL DUET

Missionaries Warren and Lillian

Rogers will perform in a special service 11 a.m. Sunday, July 6, at Plymouth Church of the Nazarene, 41550 Ann Arbor Trail.

The duet preaches the gospel and play an entertaining variety of instruments, including the electric guitar, banjo, ukulele, trombone, hand-saw, piano and multi-kord.

SINGING PSALMIST

Bill Powell, "The Singing Psalmist," will be performing 11 a.m. Sunday, July 6, at the Livonia Assembly of God, 33015 W. Seven Mile, near Farmington Road.

Powell has been on television's 700 Club with Pat Robertson and PTL with Jim and Tammy Bakker.

GOSPEL SINGER

Gospel singer, The Rev. Rick Ballach, will be singing Sunday, July 6, at Bethel Baptist Temple, 29475 W. Six Mile, Livonia. Ballach will perform at the 10 a.m. and 11 a.m. services.

For more information, call 525-3664 or 261-9276.

FILM SERIES

A film series titled, "Turn Your Heart Toward Home," will show 7 p.m. every Wednesday, through Aug. 6, at Calvary Baptist Church, 43065 Joy, Canton. There's no admission but a free-will offering will be taken to help defray costs of the film.

A nursery is available with a children's program, which includes the movie, "Sunshine Factory."

Extremist stance offers no flexibility

RELIGIOUS AND political movements are increasingly being led by extremists. The Greek philosophers felt that balance is the hardest thing in life to come by, and as we hear the strident voices of the extreme right or left, and as we view the grim zealots consigning to damnation all who do not agree with their definition of Absolute Truth, we are inclined to agree with the ancient Sages.

To teeter on the sharp edge of life's choices, like a tightrope performer in the circus, is truly human, but to plunge headlong to one extreme or other is dehumanizing. Even worse is the self-righteousness of the extremist who is convinced that he has Divine endorsement. As Finley Peter Dunne once noted: "A fanatic is a man that does what he thinks the Lord would do if He knew the facts of the case."

The dehumanizing effect of fanaticism is the central theme of Eric Hoffer's book "The True Believer." He explores the psychology of extremists, and proposes the cogent thesis the extremists in religion and politics are essentially of the same temperament. He anticipated the current movement by some religious extremists to seize control of the political process.

It is hard to know whether there are more zealots now than in the past. Maybe they seem more numerous because of late communications which make them more visible and more heard. They telephone talk shows, get themselves on TV discussion programs and, in general, use the media to deliver their impassioned messages. It gets tiresome to behold these intense and inflammatory people, day after day, acting as though the whole course of civilization depends on agreeing with their views.

EXTREMISTS ARE the worst enemies of their own most cherished causes. They make what they promote so repulsive that anyone with a sense of balance wants to flee, even though the cause may have merit. They stimulate kindred souls; thus causing the unbalanced to be attracted to the unbalanced.

What makes a fanatic so unlovable is his arrogance. A Hasidic master once taught that everyone must have two pockets. "In his right pocket, he must keep the words 'For my sake was the world created'; and his left, 'I am dust and ashes.'"

The distinguishing feature of extremists is their lack of tolerance. Tolerance is the positive and cordial effort to understand another's beliefs, practices, and habits without necessarily sharing or accepting them. The fanatic refuses to consider other views and opinions, for he is determined to impose his own true doctrine on society.

It is not surprising that the radical right and the radical left are brothers under the skin, for they are alike in narrowness and intolerance. Every extremist group generates energy for one purpose, to force others to conform. Walter Lippmann once pointed out that the radical left goes one way that the radical right goes and when they meet at the bottom, they are not nearly distinguishable.

He said a new contract on a copying machine saved $300 a month and a new phone system allowed the township to buy a van and still save $400 a month with the money left over. And he raised fees for permits and licenses.

McCollough joins Hertel camp

By Tom Henderson and Teri Banas staff writers

Wayne County Commissioner John Hertel announced Monday that retiring state Sen. Patrick McCollough would be his choice for deputy county executive.

Hertel, a candidate for Wayne County executive, will appoint McCollough, who represents the 10th Senate district, as deputy county executive.

McCollough is expected to boost Hertel's standing among downriver and west-side voters as he has represented communities from Riverview to Garden City.

Hertel, chairman of the county commission, is a resident of Harper Woods and has good name recognition there.

"I want to bring together eastern and western Wayne County," said Hertel Tuesday. "We have similar problems. Crime and unemployment are the biggest problems wherever you're at. I want to get away from east and west, from city and suburb, from black and white."

Hertel, the first of the nine Democratic candidates to announce a in every branch of state government, we saved the state $200 million a year," said Hertel. "We're facing a $30 million deficit in Wayne County and we can eliminate that deficit just by eliminating waste."

Hertel and McCollough have been friends since their days in the Senate together. They co-sponsored a number of key legislative packages, including Michigan's Toxic Waste Bill, the Clean Water Bill and law enforcement legislation such as the two-year felony fire-arm law.

SINCE THE county executive form of government was adopted, there has not been a deputy executive, though the new charter provided for such a post. William Lucas opted instead for a chief of staff, Dennis Nystrom, who, because he wasn't a resident of Wayne County, couldn't legally serve as deputy.

"Unfortunately, Lucas never filled the post," said Hertel. "The position is tantamount to vice-president or lieutenant governor. He runs the county if you're not there, or if you become incapacitated or resign."

running mate, said: "The public should know who the deputy executive is going to be before they vote."

The other candidates have pretty much made their choices, but they haven't announced them. They made them in back rooms."

The Democratic primary is Aug. 5 and it is generally assumed that the winner of that primary will be a landslide winner in the main election in November.

HERTEL SAID the selection of McCollough was more than just a convenient marriage of east and west.

"I worked with Pat on the state efficiency task force, and he's an honest, hard-working guy," said Hertel. "It took me about a week of discussions to talk him into it. He'd pretty much decided to get out of politics. I had to have three conversations with him to bring him back in."

Hertel said that if he is elected he will appoint McCollough to head a county efficiency task force. "Just by putting efficiency experts

Underemployment

Education, retraining necessary to escape low-level jobs

By Carolyn Smith
staff writer

The employment picture in Wayne County may be brightening, but the poor economy in recent years has cast a shadow known as "underemployment."

The Private Industry Corporation of Wayne County stands ready to help the underemployed — a class of people generally working at jobs paying less than $5.50 an hour. PIC, with offices in Livonia, is a joint effort of government and business to help workers get trained and placed in unsubsidized jobs. The average hourly wage being paid to employees trained by PIC is $5.68.

"Employers are more cost-conscious than in the past. But a lot of families are working at two and three jobs to make ends meet."

PIC figures show 5.2 percent of Westland residents live below the poverty level, 4.3 percent in Canton Township, 2.7 percent in Redford and 2.2 percent in Livonia.

"The problem is to retrain the workers to get them better-paying, more marketable jobs," said Barry

'Some workers think things will be the same forever. That's not so. We're approaching the point where just about everybody will have to be trained on computers of some kind.'

— Barry T. Hawthorne,
PIC executive director

T Hawthorne, PIC's executive director.

And that, Hawthorne said, is what PIC does best.

But he pointed out that in Wayne County there are three times more businesses in service industries, which tend to pay lower wages, than in manufacturing. In round numbers, there are about 10,500 service businesses compared with 3,500 in manufacturing.

PIC is keeping tabs on basic employment trends in the years ahead.

Service industries will expand while the number of manufacturing sites shrink, their reports predict.

ACCORDING TO PIC data, the average manufacturing job in 1982 paid $487 a week; the average service job paid $276. That disparity isn't about to change, Hawthorne said. Wayne County will have more white-collar jobs in professional, technical and clerical services and fewer in blue-collar industries, he said.

And that's where training and retraining will become a major undertaking if the work force is to keep pace with realities in the job market.

Hawthorne stressed the need for a change in attitude among workers. "Some workers think things will be the same forever. That's not so. We're approaching the point where just about everybody will have to be trained on computers of some kind."

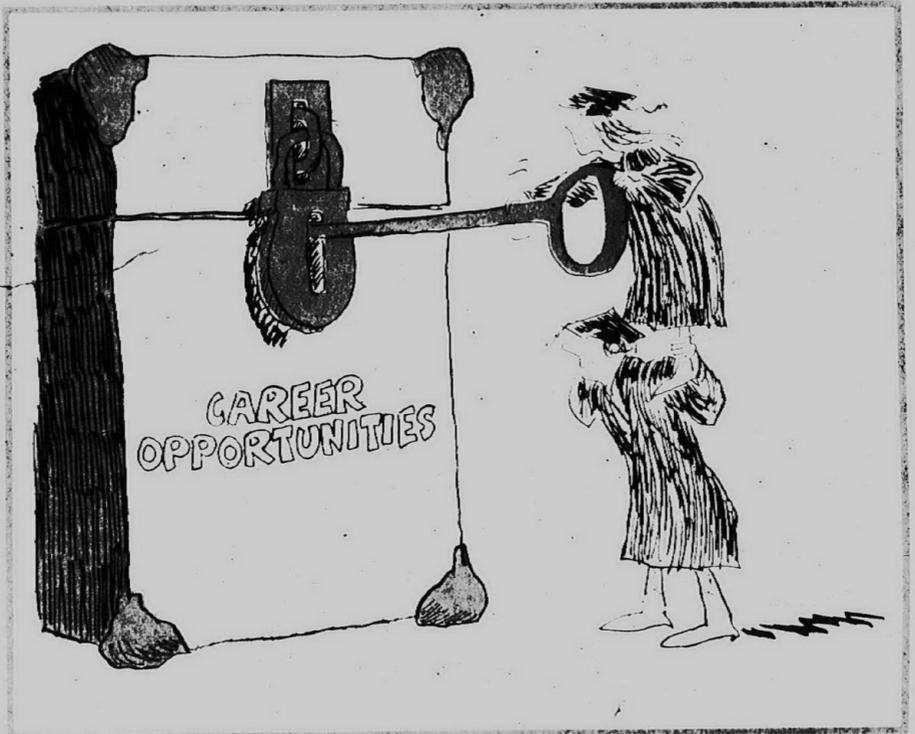

But he said 40 percent of the 63,000 low-income people in Wayne County have no high school diploma.

"It's a serious problem. Schools have to be more sensitive to the problem. They have to think about the reasons why they (students) dropped out. They have to tailor their courses to available employment," Hawthorne said, adding that the PIC's "Partnership in Education" program is helping educators come to the same conclusion.

Although PIC will train high school dropouts in limited job capacities, they should strive to get their General Education Diploma, Hawthorne said.

PIC, working with a $10 million budget beginning July 1, offers a variety of classroom and industry-based training programs, job placement and employee development services.

Occupational training has included airline reservationists, machinists, mechanics, food management and horticultural workers, press operators and quality control inspectors, among others.

Hawthorne said the agency constantly keeps its eye on new, emerging businesses and occupations.

Employers, he said, benefit from PIC's ability to test and screen prospective employees. In some cases, participating companies are eligible for Targeted Jobs Tax Credit. In addition, the 10 public and private sources of funding for training programs have been consolidated by the agency as a service to employers.

Hawthorne said PIC is pleased by its placement of 1,066 people in jobs created by the expansion of Republic

Airlines in Livonia. "It shows what can be done when business and government work together for a common goal," he said.

But when he talks about changing attitudes among workers, he cites PIC's successful training and recent placement of 97 workers for the new high-tech ventures at Double Eagle Steel Coating Co. and Rouge Steel Co. in Dearborn. The companies joined forces to construct and operate a $200 million electro-galvanizing plant.

"There was total paranoia among the workers there. They would say, 'You're going to put us on computers so we can fail and they can get other people.' But they're very happy and doing very well there."

Hawthorne said workers in Wayne County are highly attractive to employers. "Most of our people have good skills and good attitudes. They only need retraining. Michigan spends $850 million a year on training. It's not coordinated very well. We say, let's bring all the parties together, work with our local governments and get the job done."

Quality, not just cost, needs to be budgeted

By Carolyn Smith
staff writer

A Northville Township business consultant will talk about quality control of goods and services anytime. Just ask him.

William M. Harral — director of Arch Associates, a member of the Livonia Chamber of Commerce and vice chairman of the Greater Detroit section of the American Society for Quality Control — warns that poor quality can erode profits enough to shut a business down.

So he tries to help service and industrial businesses get and keep a handle on good quality.

Harral, who spent 20 years at Ford Motor Co. before starting his own business 2½ years ago, said he thinks American business representatives are getting smart about quality. "They're finally becoming aware that quality is the quickest way to profits. Think about it. Save a nickel an hour over a year's time, and that equals the profit on an average domestic car."

BUT LIKE any intangible, quality has no form, shape or color. It's often subjective. But Harral thinks quality can be defined and measured and a set of criteria applied to assure its consistency. And it doesn't matter whether it's at a restaurant, on an airplane or in a new washing machine.

Service industries are just beginning to receive attention from quality control specialists, and many of those businesses have their work cut out for them, if customers have anything to say about it, Harral said.

He believes businesses should survey customer preferences more often. "The concept of a good product or service is very important. Not enough research is being done to find out what consumers want. What they wanted last year may not be what they want today."

Harral, who has an industrial/systems engineering degree and a master's degree in business administration, also criticizes Americans for not addressing priorities properly. "We, and to a lesser degree the Europeans, look to short-term results. However, the Oriental mind looks five to 10 years ahead."

'Everybody talks about quality, but we're often unwilling to look at our own performances.'

— William Harral

AMERICAN BUSINESS representatives don't have a continuous, consistent commitment to quality, he said. "A business has a financial budget. It should have a quality budget, also," Harral said.

Finally, American businesses get caught up with the latest techniques for producing things. Better, he said, to use a set of methods that have proved they work.

Harral has one fear. It's that the momentum this country has gained in the past five or six years isn't lost. Although common sense largely prevails in judging quality, its greatest detriment is a lack of interest. And that includes looking closely at work habits. "Everybody talks about quality, but we're often unwilling to look at our own performances," Harral said.

HARRAL RECALLS the words of Alfred P. Sloan Jr., former president of General Motors Corp., in a 1934 memo to all employees in GM factories: "Your grocer knows that if you and your fellow employees don't like his goods, he will lose your trade and before long, he will have to go out of business. General Motors also would have to go out of business if the public stopped buying our products."

Basically, Sloan's philosophy doesn't differ from that preached since 1924 by octogenarian W. Edwards Deming, a Washington, D.C.-based quality control engineer, who along with J.M. Duran of Wilton, Conn., introduced the Japanese to techniques to improve their products more than 30 years ago.

Among them "Increasing the quantity of poor quality is foolish." And "goals and slogans without support create conflict." Or "institute a vigorous program of retraining people in new, necessary skills."

Harral thinks American automobiles are as well made as foreign ones, but that's because the industry began taking a long, hard look at quality control in this decade.

THE OPPORTUNITIES to improve quality and enhance profits are infinite, Harral said. "The big item yet to be addressed is quality in government," he said. A large, international quality improvement seminar recently held by the Juran Institute had the Internal Revenue Service as its largest representative.

"Looks like things are looking up," Harral said, laughing.

The 1,400 members of the Greater Detroit section of the American Society for Quality Control meet monthly. On Aug. 23, the group will sponsor a baseball outing and will resume regular business meetings in September.

Tax changes to affect stock, bonds favorably

The relative appeal of stocks and bonds as well as tax shelters could change drastically if the current Senate bill is signed into law.

Although no one knows the exact provision of the bill that would eventually become the law, in this column I am sharing my views on this highly emotional subject.

Tax shelters

At a 50-percent tax bracket, one dollar of tax loss saves 50 cents in tax. At the 27-percent rate, the savings are 27 cents.

Besides this, the bill severely limits the tax write-offs, thereby putting a damper on tax shelter deals.

Specifically, in the case of real estate shelters, depreciation would be calculated over a 27.5- or 31.5-year period, and additional new limits would be imposed on the deduction of interest by individuals.

For alternative minimum tax calculations, the excess of depreciation claimed using a 27.5- or 31.5-year life over that available using a 40-year life would be treated as a preference item.

Also, the at-risk rules would be extended to real estate investments. The proposed repeal of the exemption for oil-and-gas ventures may hurt that industry as well.

In general, highly leveraged tax shelters that rely on big borrowing to generate large yearly write-offs would be hit hard by the new tax bill.

Capital gains

The elimination of the preferential finances and you

treatment of capital gains will force investors to learn new tricks of investing money. With advantages of holding assets for longer-term gains, investors would have to become more sophisticated traders to take advantage of short-term fluctuations.

Stock, bonds

If the new tax bill results in a drop in interest rates, both equities and fixed income securities would be favorably affected. In addition, a part of huge sums of money now pouring into the tax shelter market may be diverted to the securities market.

With tax rates dropping, dividend and interest income would become more attractive, thereby boosting the demand for stocks and bonds.

On the negative side, the elimination of preferential treatment of long-term capital gains might increase the volatility in the stock market.

A dark cloud in this otherwise bright horizon is municipal bonds. Currently, a municipal bond that pays 7 percent tax-free interest is worth 14 percent taxable rate to a 50-percent-bracket investor.

Now the bond would be equivalent to a taxable rate of just 9.6 percent.

Mutual funds

Like stocks and bonds, most mutual funds would be favorably affected by the new tax bill. Lower rates will make mutual fund dividends more appealing.

Mutual funds that invest in bonds and utilities would gain in value. But aggressive growth funds that depend heavily on low long-term capital gains tax rates might be harmed.

Next week: Tax reform: what to do now.

Educational seminar: Main topic "Impact of proposed tax legislation on your 1986 investment, tax and retirement planning." The seminar, sponsored by Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and Coordinated Financial Planning Inc., will be held 7-9:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 8, at the Baldwin Public Library, 300 Merrill, Birmingham.

Sid Mittra is director of certificate program in personal finance at Oakland University and president of Coordinated Financial Planning Inc.

Wetzel, 29, named to Schoolcraft post

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Bob Wetzel, Schoolcraft College's new men's basketball coach, wasn't wasting any time.

He was already asking for a list of phone numbers of the area's high school coaches in order to line up potential recruits.

The 29-year-old Wetzel was named Schoolcraft's new coach on Thursday by athletic director Dr. Marvin Gans.

"He has the knowledge, he's young and he's enthusiastic," said Gans of his new coach. "We also like his philosophy as far as academics."

Wetzel, who served last season as Lansing Community College's interim coach, was interviewed by Gans along with Judy Mack, athletic coordinator at the school's Learning Assistance Center, and Mike O'Toole, an English instructor and former Schoolcraft volleyball coach.

Wetzel replaces Rocky Watkins, who was released in April after posting a 100-70 record in six seasons. Last season, Watkins' 17-13 team was plagued by academic woes. Several of the team's top players were declared ineligible at mid-term break.

"I HOPE TO provide the right framework and get the right group of committed students who are motivated to do well," said Wetzel. "What I want generally is a mix of players. They won't all be from the city, and they won't all be from the suburbs. I want the combination of a good student, good person and good athlete. I'm not looking for the quick fix. I'll stay within the framework and go for the long term. I want to get the best individuals I can."

Last season at Lansing, Wetzel served as interim coach, replacing Art Frank, who took a one-year leave of absence.

Wetzel's team, also plagued by academic woes and injuries, finished the season at 2-21.

"We had a lot of problems," admitted Wetzel. "I can tell you all about it some other time."

A native of East Liverpool, Ohio, Wetzel is a graduate of Kent State University. He is married to the former Sue Anderson, who is a graduate of Livonia Churchill High School.

HE SPENT TWO years as head women's coach at Wabash Valley (Ill.) Community College, posting an impressive 45-21 record. (He also spent a year as a high school assistant in Ohio.)

Wetzel arrived in Lansing three years ago in pursuit of a master of arts degree, which he just recently completed. He spent two years as an assistant under Frank before being named interim coach. (Wetzel also taught physical education part time at Lansing CC and was a Nautilus fitness instructor.)

The new Schoolcraft coach said it may take a year to adjust to his new environment, but he is somewhat familiar with his new team.

"Schoolcraft played us the first game of the year and we lost 89-88," recalls Wetzel. "We missed a layup with three seconds to go. We should have won, but I was impressed with their team. They were talented, and they played under control."

Wetzel said he will try to mix the style of play next season.

"I do like the transition game, but I like to play good defense, too," he said. "I like a balance — a midpoint — where you be effective both ways."

"IT'S IMPORTANT to have continuity from one year to the next. I'd like to have three or four key players back every year, but that will be difficult next year."

As many as eight players are eligible to return next season at Schoolcraft, but it is unknown whether they all will be back.

Wetzel said he plans to get in touch with the returning players as soon as possible and start recruiting. The new coach will have 17 hours per student of scholarship money available.

"I'm sure I'll be going down to St. Cecilia," said Wetzel, referring to Detroit's hotspot for summer basketball talent.

Fusco: no to Gans' job offer

Bob Wetzel, recently hired as Schoolcraft College's new men's basketball coach said, "I have no feelings one way or the other," after learning that Mike Fusco was the school's original choice for the position.

Fusco, currently the head coach at Bishop Borgess High School in Redford, reportedly turned down an offer made last week by Schoolcraft Athletic Director Dr. Marvin Gans.

Fusco, who was out of town and unavailable for comment, will be entering his fifth season at Borgess.

Latest 2 drug deaths don't rate martyrdom

IT COULDN'T — it wouldn't — happen to me. I wonder how many people out there still stuck to that in the wake of the drug-caused deaths of Len Bias and Don Rogers?

Parents read about the "tragic" deaths and wonder why two athletes with so much to live for decided to risk it for something as foolish as cocaine. What madness compelled them, these parents ask.

Funny. Because the answer is the same response parents give when asked about their own children. The deaths of Bias and Rogers were lamented nationwide by parents who kept telling themselves: "It's too bad that happened to them."

WAKE UP, folks

When your kids go to a high school party and someone offers them a line of coke, they know what could happen. Heck, Rogers knew what killed Bias a week before, but he still snorted enough to kill himself.

Your kids will say, "Aw, one or two lines couldn't hurt. What happened to them couldn't — wouldn't — happen to me."

God, that kind of attitude is frustrating. Parents believe the problem exists everywhere but in their own house, and kids don't know enough about death to care.

It's true. What, for instance, do you think high schoolers feel about Bias and Rogers?

ASK THEM. Here's some probable replies.

First, understand both will be remembered far more for how they died than how they lived. Bias was the best college basketball player in the country last year, and Rogers was one of the top young defensive backs in the NFL. Yet, their cocaine-induced deaths will be their legacies.

Secondly, prepare for their martyrdom. Already they're being portrayed as innocent victims, casual cocaine users who didn't realize the dangers involved.

That will lead to a third — and far scarier — prospect. Hero worship. The deaths of Bias and Rogers will be used in the war against drugs for as much as possible, then tossed aside.

Wrong, wrong, wrong

It's all so wrong. First of all, why idolize someone for dying before their time? What Bias and Rogers did was worse than suicide, really. There was no reason, no justification, for their deaths.

AT LEAST those who commit suicide normally provide an excuse, however twisted and cowardly.

If these two superb athletes are to be remembered, it should be for what they accomplished while they lived, instead of how they died.

Making them into martyrs in the war against drug abuse is of no use, either. How would you do it? Try to scare kids with their deaths?

Let me tell you something. It won't work. Danger is a big part of the attraction. No doubt, that's what led Bias and Rogers to their demise. Athletes are paid to take risks with their bodies, remember.

NO, SCARE tactics won't keep kids from trying drugs. And portraying Bias and Rogers as anything more than what they were — stupid — won't work, either.

That's the light they should be cast in. And make it a very bright light. Play up the fact that Bias didn't give a hoot about his schooling — he was flunking every class in his last semester at Maryland.

Because, in the final analysis, they were just plain dumb. Their deaths are tragic, if only because their stupidity proved fatal.

OK. So I don't have much sympathy for either bimbo. The question still lingers.

HOW CAN WE convince anyone of the dangers, the risks of drug abuse?

I always thought the truth is the best path, whenever available.

A few hours of mindless pleasure can cost plenty, tell them. Indeed, cost may be the best weapon currently available in the battle. You can thank our South American neighbors for keeping cocaine prices so high — too high for almost all high school kids.

Also, don't make dummies like Bias and Rogers into heroes or martyrs. They risked everything for a few nosefuls of pleasure, and now they're dead.

And, perhaps most important, it's time we destroyed this image of noble death. Dead is dead. It's cold, it's empty, it's final, and it always comes too early. The only honor associated with death is how hard one fights to stay away from it.

CHALLENGING IT is silly because you can never win. Sooner or later, death triumphs. The object is to drag out the game as long as possible.

And whatever else, parents, please, please, don't think your kids are immune just because they're your kids. Talk to them. When you do, remember most people say what they think others want to hear. Kids learn that trick too early in life.

You'd be surprised how many kids in your high school use drugs. The percentages are high. And so is the potential for another Bias or Rogers, a gifted young student who surrenders his life too easily.

 Question No. 1: Name the four major pro golf tournaments.
 Answer: the Masters, the U.S. Open, the British Open and the PGA.

Question No. 2: Name Michigan's four major tournaments.
 Answer: the Michigan Open, Michigan PGA, Michigan Match Play and the Yamaha Classic.

Question No. 3: Name the most prestigious of local golf tournaments.
 Answer: Can anyone possibly argue? The Observer & Eccentric/Whispering Willows Men's and Women's Golf Classics, of course.

Yes, golf fanatics, the dates you've anxiously awaited have been established. Now the rest of your golf calendars can be filled in.

The O&E Women's Tournament is slated for Saturday, Aug. 16. This will mark the second time the women's tourney has been competed on a Saturday. Cost for the 18-hole, medal-play event is $18, with low gross and low net prizes awarded in each of three flights: championship, first and second.

The O&E Men's Tournament is scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 13-14. Cost is $32 for the 36-hole, medal-play tourney, with prizes for low gross and low net scorers in championship, first, second and third flights.

There will be a new wrinkle for the men's tournament: a shotgun start for the morning session golfers on both Saturday and Sunday. Tournament director Gary Whitener of Whispering Willows instigated the change to help expedite play.

Also listed on the entry form (which includes handicap requirements, who is eligible to play, etc.) are rain make-up dates for both tournaments. The women's make-up date is Aug. 23, the men's is Sept. 20-21.

Completed entry forms can be mailed to, or dropped off at, Whispering Willows Golf Course, 20500 Newburgh, Livonia, 48152. Checks (not cash) should be made payable to Gary Whitener, tournament director.

Steele's up to billing sluggers live

ROB REED/staff photographer

Steele's Scott Virkus, who plays football for the Buffalo Bills when he's not touring the nation playing softball, has hit the least number of homers among the team's regulars — he's only hit 120.

By Chris McCooley
staff writer

THE YOUNG man in the muscle shirt watched the vaunted Steele's mens softball team from behind the backstop at the Canton Softball Center.

In less than two innings, Steele's sluggers had pounded out 10 home runs against Bunca Car Wash, a state-ranked Class A team from Kalamazoo. The young man was not impressed.

"We can play with these guys," he was saying. "All you've got to do is hit with them."

Right. And all David had to do was slay Goliath.

Steele's is everything their No. 1 world ranking and their 130-7 record would suggest them to be. The 2,106 home runs in 128 games prior to this weekend's Coor's-Steele's Open Classic was not a product of a statistician's imagination.

"The best softball team that's ever played" is what a USA Today headline said about Steele's. No argument here.

JUST ABOUT every player Steele's manager Dave Neale sent to the plate looked like a Vic Tanney ad: big and strong. (Although, there were a couple of candidates for a Gorman Thomas lookalike contest.) The team's average height is 6-3, average weight 244; average number of runs scored per game, 33.7; average number of home runs per game, 16.5 — an obvious correlation. Guys 6-3, 244 should be able to smack a slow-pitched softball 300 feet and beyond.

They do. Steele's is like the Baskin and Robins of softball hitters: They hit home runs in all flavors. They hit rainbow shots, high, arching and out of sight. They hit rocket shots, balls that don't seem to get more than 15 feet off the ground and carry well beyond the fences. Those are the ones you can hear, shhhhhhhhh. If you look close, you might see smoke coming off the ball.

softball

COOR'S-STEELE'S
OPEN CLASSIC
SOFTBALL TOURNAMENT
at Canton Softball Center

MENS OPEN A: Steele's Sports of Grafton, Ohio (5-0) def. Bunca Car Wash of Kalamazoo (4-1), 28-6. Coor's of Detroit placed third, 3-2.

MENS B: L & B Softball Club of Pontiac (6-1) def. Alwards Market (8-2) of Washington Twp., 15-13.

WOMENS A: Steele's Sports (4-1) def. Empress Chili of Cincinnati (3-2), 10-0 and 6-0.

WOMENS B: Untouchables of Detroit (6-1) def. Little Caesars of Detroit (4-2), 9-8 and 10-8.

Impressive stuff, really.

STEELE'S SWEPT through the round-robin Mens Open A division this weekend, winning all six of its games (one was an exhibition with Bunca Friday night). The competition was good, Steele's was far and away superior.

But, not everyone was enamored with the team. They can be irritating. On the rare occasion when a routine fly ball is hit, the hitter stands disgustingly at home plate, not bothering to run it out. The players constantly bicker with the umpires. Sportsmanship is not the dominant characteristic of the men of Steele's.

There's also something irritating about the team's origin and purpose. An ambitious owner of Steele's Sports Company, makers and distributors of bats, balls, and all other softball paraphernalia, decided that a good way to promote business was through a world-class softball team.

"The more home runs we hit, the more bats we sell," Steele's president Dennis Helmig told USA Today.

It's a fact that since Steele's softball team was created, Steele's Sport's Company has more than doubled its revenues. Steele's made $2.1 million in total revenue last year and is expected to bring in $4.5 million this year. Next year's earnings are projected at $8 million.

When you watch Steele's, you are more or less watching a paid advertisement.

APPARENTLY, THOSE facts are only slightly bothersome to the paying public. Steele's drew huge crowds at the Canton Softball Center. Preliminary estimates show that more than 3,000 people attended the games over the weekend. And Neale said that attendance continues to grow in every city they play.

"We had 5,000 people come see us at Liberty Park (in Sterling Heights) Thursday," Neale said. "They are coming out to see us hit the ball."

Steele's outfielder Dan Griffin, a 1975 graduate of Detroit Catholic Central, has another idea about the attendance.

"People either come to see us hit home runs, or they come to see us get our butts kicked," Griffin said.

The team ran into a hostile crowd in Chicago prior to coming to Detroit. Steele's lost a game against Chicago's championship 16-inch softball team (the normal softball is 12 inches) and were verbally assaulted by the large crowd. The barrage continued when Steele's pummeled the local 12-inch team.

But as long as the crowds keep coming, hostile or otherwise, Steele's will continue its million-dollar softball odyssey.

"I GUESS you feel a little like a professional athlete," said Griffin, who has rapped 152 home runs this season. "But right now, I mean, I haven't been home since June 5 and I'm a little tired. We play at least two games every day, it gets a little hard to get motivated."

The current stretch has taken Steele's on tour of the southeast, the east coast and the midwest. From May 22 through June 29, the team had but five days off. They will spend July 9-13 touring Tennessee.

Why do it?

"For the money," said Griffin, only partly joking.

As those men of Steele's, what a whacky (no pun intended) group.

Coburn hurls 2-hit gem

Prep linksters on national tour

By Marty Budner
staff writer

The first-year World Series of Junior Golf Tour made quite an impression in Michigan.

A throng of 161 golfers competed in the rescheduled Michigan qualifier June 23 at Michigan State University's Forest Akers Golf Course. State director Jim Rademacher said Michigan had the highest number of entrants among all the tournaments conducted across the country.

Approximately the top 25 males and top six female finishers in the Michigan tournament will qualify for the upcoming regional tour which begins July 10-11 at the Otter Creek Golf Course in Columbus, Ind.

The four other scheduled regional stops will be Madison, Wis., (July 29-30); Rockford, Ill., (Aug. 5-6); Kent, Ohio, (Aug. 11-12); and Ann Arbor (Aug. 14-15).

Golfers compiling the most points from those five regional-tour sites then qualify for the seven-stop national tour which begins in November in Tuscon, Ariz.

THE MICHIGAN qualifier was a 36-hole format completed in one day. The event, which was originally scheduled for June 16 but cancelled because the course was flooded, attracted a number of top junior golfers throughout the state.

Wayne Mueller of Lansing Catholic Central won the boys tournament with a total score of 143. Dean Kobane of Livonia Churchill was second at 148 and Dave Brown of Birmingham Brother Rice was third at 149.

The female winner — Hamel Shannon of Ann Arbor Pioneer — shot 167. Birmingham Marian junior Anne Marie Motzenbecker carded a 169 for second place.

"It was a long day for all the golfers and the attrition rate was high," said Rademacher, golf coach at Brother Rice High School. "It was physically, as well as mentally, demanding."

Following are the top 30 boys golfers and the girls golfers who participated in the tourney:

A weekend sweep has lifted first place Redford Little Caesars to a two-game lead in the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League.

Caesars (13-4-1) captured three straight against its closest pursuer, Tom Holzer Ford of Northville (9-8-1), which fell from second to fourth place.

On Sunday, Caesars swept Northville in a double-header at Capitol Park by scores of 6-2 and 6-3.

In the opener, Plymouth Canton product Mark Coburn hurled a two-hitter in going the distance. The Kansas City (Mo.) Community College left-hander struck out eight and walked four.

Northville starter Troy Connors, the victim of four runs in the fifth inning, took the loss.

Chris Looney and Bob Czaplak combined for four of Caesars' seven hits.

In the second game, pitcher Pat Miller gained his first win of the year, hurling a four-hitter as Caesars rallied for the win.

Mike Koceski led an eight-hit Caesars attack, going 3-for-4 with three RBI. Teammate Rob McCamant went 2-for-4 and scored two runs.

Tom Cotter's short-run double gave Northville a short-lived 3-0 lead in the third.

Caesars came back with one run in the third, three in the fourth and two in the fifth to hand Northville starter Dan Kopitzke the defeat.

In a game played Friday at Northville High, center fielder Paul Oster, the No. 8 hitter in the batting order, drilled a three-run homer in the second and added a two-run blast in the fifth to give Caesars a 10-9 victory over Holzer.

Martin Eddy led Northville with a solo homer in the first and a three-run shot in the sixth. Teammate Kevin Ritter added two hits, including an RBI double.

Todd Mahaney, with relief help from Redford Thurston product Chris Kloc in the seventh, was the winning pitcher. Chris Stout took the loss.

LIVONIA ADRAY, meanwhile, swept its weekend series with last place Wendy's of Ann Arbor, moving into second place behind Caesars with an 11-6-1 record.

Sunday at Ford Field, Livonia invoked the mercy rule twice, beating Wendy's in five innings, 11-0, in the opener, followed by a 15-0 win in a four-inning nightcap.

Eastern Michigan University standout Don Vesling had a big day, going 7-for-8 with eight RBI.

Bill Ulle went 3-for-3 and knocked in three runs, while Derron White also added three runs in a 3-for-4 performance.

Livonia's Dennis Bushart and Ken Stack both went 3-for-3 in the nightcap.

The winning pitcher in the opener was John Poszywak, now 4-1. He struck out seven, walked one and allowed just two hits.

Pitcher Rick Spence won the second game, allowing just two hits and two walks.

On Friday, Vesling struck out 13, walked one and scattered five hits as Livonia blanked Wendy's, 4-0.

The winners scored three runs in the fifth without the benefit of a hit. Adray added another in the sixth on an RBI double by Bushart, the Redford Union all-stater.

WALTER'S APPLIANCE dropped two-of-three in its weekend series with West Bloomfield, which moved into third place all alone with a 10-9 record.

In the opener of the series played Friday at Ford Field, shortstop Bob Foust collected RBI doubles in the third and fifth innings as Walter's rallied for a 5-3 victory.

Walter's scored three in the top of the seventh, capped by Kirk Boyd's line-shot double to right field.

West Bloomfield took an early 2-0 lead in the first on a homer by Craig Mathews. WB then added another run in the fourth against Walter's starter and winner Gary Zwolinski, who went the distance, striking out eight and walking four.

On Sunday, host WB completed a twin bill sweep by winning the nightcap, 8-6, in eight innings.

Casual approach helps actor pursue his career

By Cathie Breidenbach
special writer

SOME ACTORS RATTLE off stereotypes for interviewers and say something like, "I've known ever since I was a kid that I was destined to become an actor."

Southfield resident Danny Hicks doesn't fit the intense, egocentric mold. His resume includes leading roles at area theaters, award-winning commercials running on national TV, and several acclaimed industrial films, yet this character actor doesn't embellish his image, or act smitten by his own talent, when he says, "I love acting. It's the greatest job in the world, but I'm not star struck."

The laid-back Hicks became an actor through casual quirks of circumstance, and he says of his future, "I'll see what turns up."

This summer he's working in North Carolina on a horror film, Part II of "Evil Dead Part I," a film that became a cult favorite in England. (Sam Raimi, who is from Detroit, directed "Evil Dead Part I" and is also directing the sequel.) Hicks plays a mean, "not very bright" redneck named Jake. "Evil Dead," produced by Dino De Laurentiis, is the biggest budget film Hicks has ever made and he says, "I'd love to make a living for the rest of my life making feature films."

WHEN HE WAS working as a crane operator several years ago, Hicks never dreamed of becoming

— Danny Hicks

'One of my favorite things is to play a tough guy with a heart of gold, to make the audience hate me, then later have sympathy for me.'

an actor and had never even been in a school play. A friend coaxed him into taking a part in a workshop production at the Farmington Players Barn and his success at the Barn led to supporting roles at the Fourth Street Playhouse in Royal Oak.

He's never taken an acting class and says about learning his craft, "I consider my entire career as an acting class, from the first time I stepped on stage." In the early years, Hicks made his living operating heavy equipment by day, and by night he acted. Then an injury sidelined him for several months from his job operating a crane. When he recovered in January 1983, the job had evaporated. Instead of looking for another, he decided to try making his living as an actor.

The career of the 34-year-old performer has been climbing ever since, with plum roles as Mo in Clifford Odets' "Awake and Sing" and as George in "Of Mice and Men," both at the Attic Theatre in Detroit, and as Starbuck in "The Rainmaker" at the Actors Alliance Theatre in Southfield.

These are parts he considers some of the choicest in theater. He's partial to Mo because, "One of my favorite things is to play a tough guy with a heart of gold, to make the audience hate me, then later have sympathy for me." Someday he'd like a chance to play two other favorites, Biff in Arthur Miller's "Death of a Salesman" and Tom in Tennessee Williams' "The Glass Menagerie."

"It was hard making a living as a stage actor," he said, so he registered with agencies and began to tap the financially rewarding market of commercials and industrial films. "It makes financial sense to do commercials," he said, because every time one of his spots runs to advertise the Michigan Lottery, HMO, Manufacturers Bank or Don Foss Used Cars, he earns royalties.

HICKS AUDITIONS four or five times every week and has found that rejection is the flip side of applause in the acting business. "Once I auditioned 23 times in a row and didn't get any of them." He says he's had to train himself to ignore frustration and enjoy each audition for its own sake.

Of the prolific industrial film industry, he says, "Most people aren't aware that there's more film footage shot in Detroit than anywhere else in the world. . . . An actor can make a very, very good living in this town."

"A lot of people seem to think that if an actor has any talent, he would be somewhere else. I've worked (in Detroit) with some of the best in the business."

Of the great debate between technical actors — "those who can cry without feeling emotion" — and method actors — "those who have to conjure up visions of a puppy being run over in order to cry," he said, "I try to understand the situation (in a part) and let it in. I've been angry. I've been in love. I know what it feels like and have the ability to recall those feelings. For me the only way to be successful is to combine techniques."

Energetic costars do lively show

Debbie Reynolds and Donald O'Connor drew an older audience, including thousands of brightly dressed senior citizens, to the Meadow Brook Music Festival on Friday.

Packing the pavilion and filling the lawn as far as the eye could see, the "Cocoon" crowd (they looked as robust as if they had just stepped out of the pool) whistled, clapped and offered feedback and applause, from the casual opening to the "Singin' in the Rain" finale.

Reynolds and O'Connor didn't need the encouragement. Between them they exuded enough energy to fuel a spaceship. Both displayed easy, perfect timing and the ability to hold the stage alone. Opening together with a medley that included "Feel Glad When You're Glad," the twosome soon split its new act into solo performances.

He drifted offstage and she did a Catskills/Las Vegas routine. She worked the crowd for half an hour, talking to a "bowling team with good seats," remarking on "the defunct Fisher," calling herself "Princess Leia's mother" and leaping from lap to lap in her red, glittery jumpsuit. Returning to the stage, her throaty voice picking up volume, she belted out "Come Rain or Come Shine" in honor of Judy Garland, then did impersonations of Kate Hepburn, Mae West, Bette Davis and Dr. Ruth Westheimer.

Helen Zucker

THE IMPERSONATION of Barbara Streisand seemed out of keeping with the general good nature of the show. Remarks about Streisand's refusal to have her nose bobbed, her one-woman production of "Yentl" and her diction seemed mean-spirited (since Streisand has perfect phrasing and can blow Reynolds off-stage with one sustained note). Neither did O'Connor need his anti-rock number. (I happen to like Buddy Holly, Elvis, all those guys

Nylons offer rockappella sound

The Nylons from Toronto will perform at 8 p.m. Saturday at the Meadow Brook Music Festival. The Laredos, Detroit doo wop stars, share the bill.

Think of doo wop. Four guys sporting D.A.'s, harmonizing on a street corner. It's a scene straight out of a time when a convertible with fins was the height of cool and groups like the Belmonts and the Spaniels were hot.

Beginning at 8 p.m. Saturday, July 5, at Meadow Brook Music Festival, that scene comes alive again when the Toronto-based group, the Nylons, shares billing with Detroit's own doo-wop survivors, the Laredos.

The Nylons will present a cappella versions of such pop classics as "Silhouettes," "Town Without Pity" and "The Lion Sleeps Tonight." The four-some isn't a rock revival group, however. Critics have dubbed its style of delivering classic and original pop tunes as rockappella.

preview

Initially, the Nylons was truly a cappella, without any percussion instruments. But tamborines, congas and electric drums have been introduced to the act.

Beginning in early 1979, the group appeared in Canada, the U.S. and Great Britain. It has released two albums on Open Air/Windham Hill Records: "Seamless" and "One Size Fits All."

Pavilion tickets are $17; lawn tickets, $11. For ticket information, call the Meadow Brook box office on the Oakland University campus in Rochester Hills at 377-2010.

Waves, in a jazz dance concert, is featured at 8 p.m. Saturday and Sunday at the Power Center during the Ann Arbor Summer Festival.

guests will be shown at 3 p.m. Saturday, July 5, and 6 p.m. Sunday, July 6, on Continental Cablevision. The special was filmed at Coden's 25th anniversary show Friday, June 13, at the Comedy Crossing in Southfield. The hour and 45-minute special was aired twice previously this week on the cable TV station.

MEADOW BROOK

The Lettermen will perform old favorites and new songs at 8 p.m. Friday, July 4, at Baldwin Pavilion on the Oakland University campus in Rochester Hills. Topical songwriter-singer Tom Paxton will perform on the same bill. The Nylons, close-harmony male vocal quartet, sings "rockappella" in a show opened by the Larados with classic 1950s doo-wop, at 8 p.m. Saturday, July 5. A gigantic fireworks display will burst over the festival hill following each concert. Folk Fest '86 will be presented Wednesday, July 9, at Meadow Brook. Joan Baez, Don McLean and Livingston Taylor star. For ticket information, call the box office at 377-2010.

CONCERT CHANGE

The Mamas and the Pappas, the Association, and Gary Lewis and the Playboys replace "The Golden Boys of Bandstand" concert at 8 p.m. Friday, Aug. 8, at the Meadow Brook Music Festival. For tickets call the box office at 377-2010.

'WEEPING ICON'

Wayne State University and the Modern Greek Chair Committee will present the premiere of "The Weeping Icon," a Greek family drama by Pearl Ahen of Brighton, at 8 p.m. Friday, July 18, at the General Lectures Building on the WSU campus in Detroit. The play will benefit the Modern Greek Chair at the university. Gordon Reinhardt, the director, lives in Westland. Elaine Phillips of West Bloomfield is chairman of the fund-raiser. Tickets at $20 include an afterglow. For further information, call Phillips at 626-0924.

HOLIDAY CONCERT

"Star Spangled Southfield," a holiday concert with Leonard B. Smith and the Detroit Concert Band, will be presented at 8 p.m. Saturday, July 5, outdoors at the Civic Center Plaza. Imogene Bird, soprano, and James B. Underwood, cornetist, will be featured in the concert. A fireworks display will follow. Admission is $2.50 per person. For more information, call 354-4717 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. through Friday. The concert was originally announced by the Detroit Concert Band as having no admission charge. Reportedly, Southfield is required to charge admission, in accordance with its Michigan Council for the Arts grant.

CARILLON RECITAL

Bagpipes and drums of the White Heather Highlands and a carillon recital by Borough Carillonner of Loughborough, England, will be featured at 4 p.m. Sunday, June 6, at Christ Church Cranbrook in Bloomfield Hills. The program is free to the public, who may listen from the church lawn or across Lone Pine Road in the Cranbrook Gardens.

second runs

Hugh Gallagher

"Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" (1958), 1 a.m. tonight on Ch. 50. Originally 108 minutes. TV time slot: 126 minutes.

Tennessee Williams' sizzling story of family infighting and confused masculinity was brought to the screen with an all-star cast and a altered script. The motivations are left more vague but the film still packs a lot of power. Burl Ives, Paul Newman and an incredibly beautiful Elizabeth Taylor were perfect embodiments of Williams tortured Southern characters.

Rating: $3.25.

"Yellow Submarine" (1968), 1:30 a.m. Saturday on Ch. 50. Originally 85 minutes. TV time slot: 83 minutes.

This colorful, witty and musical cartoon was inspired and blessed by the Beatles, who in animated form rush off to Pepperland to save Sgt. Pepper's band from the Blue Meanies. Visually and verbally this was lightyears ahead of what was being done in animation by the late 1960s. Disney was in retreat and Ralph Bakshi hadn't made his move yet.

The designs are sometimes stunning and the visualization of the Beatles' wonderful music is both charming and perceptive. The film only begins to drag in the final battle scene.

Rating: $3.20.

"The Raven" (1963), 1:30 p.m. on Ch. 50. Originally 86 minutes. TV time slot: 105 minutes.

Vincent Price made a wonderful career starring in horror films laced heavily with comedy. Here he is joined by Peter Lorre and Boris Karloff, also veterans of the horror genre. Roger Corman, the genius of low budget concocted this silliness that has little to do with Poe's poem of lost love. But who cares.

Rating: $2.50.

Co-stars do lively show who worked a rich American vein.) O'Connor was wonderful tap-dancing to "Tea for Two," and "Make Someone Happy" and singing Hoagy Carmichael songs and tunes from "Guys and Dolls."

This is rich enough stuff to work with, and the audience was content with the timeless music. O'Connor's pleasant baritone spread joy when he sang "Walkin' My Baby Back Home."

When O'Connor in his tux and Reynolds in a pink prom dress climbed a ladder for a duo finale, they sent the crowds back to their buses and cars singing in the sweet summer night.

Tim Fowler, conductor, and backup were excellent.

Helen Zucker has many years experience reviewing pop performers for newspapers and magazines in Michigan, New York and Massachusetts.

reation would like to organize a walking club for senior citizens in the Plymouth area. Walking can reduce blood pressure, increase the efficiency of the heart and lungs, improves oxygen consumption, and burns off calories. Those interested may call Carol Donnelly at 455-6620.

● TABLE TENNIS CLUB

A Table Tennis Club meets 6:30 to 9 p.m. each Wednesday at Central Middle School. For further information, call city of Plymouth Parks and Recreation at 455-6620.

● BIKE RIDERS

The Ann Arbor Bike Touring Society is sponsoring a midweek group ride every Wednesday night from May through September. Riders leave at 6:30 p.m. from the northwest corner of Canton Center Road and Warren in Canton. Rides are about 25 miles in length. Non-members are welcome.

● MENS OPEN HOOPS

The gym at the Plymouth Salvation Army Community Center will be open 7-10 p.m. for an informal pickup game of basketball on a first-come basis. Fees are $1 per night for members, $1.50 for non-members.

● ISSHINRYU KARATE

Isshinryu Karate classes are 7:30 to 9 p.m. Wednesdays and Thursdays at the Canton Recreation Center on Michigan Avenue at Sheldon for people ages 9 to 50. Fee is $35 per person for 10 weeks. Canton Parks and Recreation is sponsoring karate lessons for all levels. Sam Santilli, fifth-degree black belt, will instruct all ages. Register at the recreation center in person before classes on Wednesday or Thursday. Registration is continuous. For more information, call the recreation department at 397-1000, Ext. 212, between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Details lure older buyers

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

HOUSE LOOKERS and buyers have grown accustomed to the look and style of Robertson Brothers Co. houses in this part of Oakland County.

And the newest developments, Hickory Glen of Bloomfield Hills, Bingham Pointe of Bingham Farms and Village Pines of Beverly Hills all have that well-designed, conservative, quietly affluent style that has come to be a Robertson Brothers' trademark.

Not that other builders don't do similar things — it's just that the Robertsons have covered a lot of ground in recent years.

Changes are subtle, but present. This is a company that watches its market as closely as good traders watch stocks.

Catherine C. Dew, general sales manager for Robertson, said many of what are often considered extras are included in the base price, adding that sales people are usually uncomfortable dealing with a lot of extras, "and, we do not like to surprise our buyers with fine print exclusions."

So, Hickory Glen buyers, targeted as older singles and empty nesters, will have a travertine marble fireplace in the living room, travertine marble counter in the powder room, customized master bedroom walk-in closets, quite a few choices concerning Formica, stair rails and foyer floor plus some elegant fixtures and appliances. These aren't the only extras now considered standard, but they are among the most popular with buyers.

WITH THE EXCEPTION of the furniture, much of what people see in the recently opened Hickory Glen models is what they get for the base price. And that happens to range from $219,900-$247,900.

Paul Robertson Jr. and his associates have always had an eye for attractive chunks of land and the 14 acres on which the 41 Hickory Glen units will be located (not all are up yet, but models are open) come complete with gently rolling terrain, a meandering stream and a view of an Albert Kahn designed estate.

Kitchen/breakfast nook area in the Glenstone models has oak-lined floors, woodwork and ceiling beams which work together to create a freshly scrubbed country look.

The extension of a picturesque stone wall along Hickory Grove, the addition of large rocks in the landscape maintain the continuity of the English countryside look from the estate into Hickory Glen. The architecture of the condominiums also reinforces the continuity — the half-circle topped windows in the living room, the traditional brick and frame exterior, high ceilings, graceful lines.

While floor plans from model to model vary, and a second floor with bedroom and bath is an option, the basic plan includes large master bedroom suite, living room, separate dining room, library or bedroom, kitchen, large breakfast area, powder room, first floor laundry and two car garage.

WITH THE FIRST phase of Village Pines already sold out, the 24-unit second phase, to the south on Lahser between 13 and 14 Mile, is well under way. Prices on these are $219,000-$259,000.

The Bingham Pointe houses, larger than their relatives in Bingham Woods, also have some features such as greenhouse-effect windows and customized closets. This group is at 13 Mile and Bingham Road, Bingham Farms. With their exterior of cedar and reclaimed brick, an attractive brick entrance off Bingham Road, closely related in style to those of the nearby estates, Bingham Pointe houses blends easily into that picturesque area.

While many condo designs make ample use of decks to expand the spatial horizons, the atrium in one of the Bingham Pointe models is a little jewel of a private area.

Models in all three developments are open noon to 6 p.m. every day.

The master bedroom combines practicality with style. In addition to the room's customized walk-in closets, a master bath with a steeping tub is just steps away.

Artist manipulates stripes and shadows

By Manon Meilgaard
special writer

In the window facing the boardwalk at the I. Irving Feldman Galleries on Orchard Lake Road are two decidedly eye-catching compositions.

One is a colorful collage mounted on wood of puppets, clowns, celluloid and china dolls (one consisting only of a head, another only of an arm) plus a photograph of an attractive blonde lying on a bed, hugging a teddy bear. The other is an acrylic on canvas painting which is an exact replica of the collage. These 42-by-31-inch pieces are titled "Marionette." The photograph transposed into a painted image is of the artist, Jeanne Norman Chase. If you find this interesting, step inside.

Again in acrylic on canvas, the artist has painted seven large, super-realistic paintings. Three of these, approximately 47-by-62 inches and the largest, 45-by-78 inches are of the same model wearing four different and becoming straw hats, in varying tones of soft yellow and beige, and blue and pink tones.

Although these might in some ways resemble illustrations for Vogue Magazine, they are only tangentially concerned with fashion. The content is submerged in other issues such as composition, color, light, shading and meticulously detailed paintwork. The sunlight filtering through the weave of the hats depicts an unusual effect of stripes and shadows on the top half of the model's face. It seems that Chase is concerned with the way things look — taking her cue from billboards, the beach, themes that are spectacular, pleasing and seemingly easy to read.

The artists also has an obvious feeling for beautiful fabrics and interesting faces — or glimpses of interesting faces. In "Pensive," a young woman is draped in multicolored lengths of floral, striped and patterned cloth. In "Floral Scarf," yet another model looks over her shoulder with only the middle part of her face visible, the rest is obscured by flowing black hair and a head scarf in vivid blue. Stripes predominate in "Beach Patterns," where this time the model's face isn't visible as she sits with head bent in her arms on a striped beach lounge with a striped beach towel.

The accent on sun in these paintings is no mere coincidence. Chase grew up in California and now resides in Florida. An artist of considerable reputation, she teaches and lectures on one of her favorite subjects, "Women and Their Art." She is included in "Who's Who in American Art," and "Female Artists in the United States," and has exhibited widely in several of the southern states as well as Massachusetts, Utah, North Dakota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Michigan. Her work also has been exhibited in Spain.

review

A "Self Portrait" collage in acrylic, including a portrait of herself, a poster of Bob Dylan and another from Paris, a Picasso dove, a pin of J.F. Kennedy and a handwritten anti-war pamphlet would seem to establish Chase as a feminist and a no-nukes advocate as well as an innovative figurative artist.

The exhibit runs through July 19 at I. Irving Feldman Galleries, 6017 Orchard Lake Road, West Bloomfield. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Saturday.

Science is a gardener's partner

It is important for gardeners to realize that science is an important part of our favorite hobby.

It is never too late for us to be aware of scientific contribution in the handling of seeds and plant material.

Scientists have found it is better to wash soil away from a plant before transplanting it. Plants take 90 percent of their nutrition from the air while 10 percent comes from the ground.

Lettuce seed will germinate in 10 days instead of two or three weeks if the seed is soaked in water for one hour. If the seed is exposed for two hours under a 60-watt filament lamp before planting, it will germinate even more rapidly.

IF RAINFALL is over 20 inches a year, the water and soil will be acid. Otherwise, alkaline predominates.

If you cut flowers between 10 a.m.

and 4 p.m., the blooms will last for a longer period of time.

If black pepper is sprinkled over the tips of iris leaves and their rhizomes, the rhizomes will increase.

Plants grown in the sun respond best to organic fertilizer.

If you wish to analyze the condition of your soil, avoid contact with the skin and have a clean tool for examining the soil. Roots rarely penetrate deeper than eight inches.

For fast seed germination, soak the seeds in one teaspoon of household ammonia in one gallon of water. Soak small seeds for one hour and large seeds for half a day, then wash the seeds in clear water.

WHEN WE REMOVE a plant from the soil and examine it, scientists tell us that in addition to the roots we can easily see, there are minute hair roots which remain in the soil.

down to earth

Alice Burlingame

The above comments will make you realize your successes and failures in the field of horticulture are often dependent upon a knowledge of plants and their needs. It is always a temptation to share with my readers the academic training and study I have gained through the years.

We may expect some dry, hot days in July and August and gardeners shudder at the thought of dried-out lawns, shrubs and vegetables. To make matters worse, this is the time of year when city fathers often warn us to conserve water. Under such conditions, the use of Canadian sphagnum peat moss can do wonders to keep plants moist. It will hold 12 to 20 times its weight in water.

It has the greatest moisture-retaining capacity of any organic material. Work it into clay soil. It will aerate the soil. In addition, it binds the soil and helps it to retain fertilizer. Sphagnum peat is 98-percent organic and is free from harmful salts, chemicals and insect life.

Immortalizing the city

"Detroit Lover 1" and "Detroit Mother," both latex and fabric works by James Malone, an alumnus of Center for Creative Studies College of Art and Design, are exhibited in "Immortalization" through Sunday, Aug. 31, at the Detroit Historical Museum. Juried works in all media were inspired by Detroit. Hours are 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday-Sunday. No admission. The alumni exhibition is made possible through a grant from the Arts Foundation of Michigan.

Dance classes offered

Choreographer and ballet master Jacob Lascu will teach a two-week ballet workshop at Oakland University beginning Monday, Aug. 4.

His workshop is among three being offered this summer by the Center for the Arts and the Department of Music, Theatre and Dance. Others are in jazz and modern dance.

Lascu trained in Romania where he was a choreographer for the Romanian National Ensembles and the National Theatre of Bucharest. He is ballet master and choreographer for Dance Detroit, which regularly performs the "Nutcracker" with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra; the Flint Ballet Theatre; the Lascu School of Ballet; and Margy Grove College.

Denise Szykula will begin teaching modern dance on Monday, July 7. She is a free-lance choreographer and director of the Nonce Dance Ensemble of Detroit.

On Monday, July 21, Jackie Ammond will begin a series of jazz dance classes. She is an OU visiting instructor in dance, choreographer for Robert L. Maloney Productions Artwork by James Malone.

Jacob Lascu and a former owner of a dance studio.

All workshops are offered at beginning, intermediate and advanced levels and limited to 20 students per class. The registration fee is $85 for one class and $75 for each additional class. For times and complete registration information, call the Center for the Arts at 370-3018.

Artist has pastels; will travel

By David Messing special writer

Everything was going perfect. The weatherman predicted a gunny and high 80s weekend and my pool was almost clear. Turning 18,000 gallons of pea soup into crystal clear water is no easy trick, you know. But just to be sure, I decided I would run my pool filter all night. With an almost boastful tone, I said to my wife, "By tomorrow morning, this pool will be as clear as a glass of drinking water."

To my dismay - no, make that, utter horror - when I awoke the next morning, the pool was half empty.

My prediction was close. Now it was as clear as an empty glass. Sometime during the night the hose leading back to the pool loosened from its fitting. By morning my neighbors' yards looked like Cypress Gardens - without the cypress.

SO EVEN THOUGH you think you have all of your bases covered, sometimes things go wrong.

On location, full-color painting or drawing can be very frustrating too. Everything is just right and then you notice you forgot your brushes.

Full color location work does not always require a U-haul full of art supplies either. To name a few, I would first think of pastels, oil pastels, colored pencils watercolor pencils, water colors and finally oils.

Pastels are easy to carry and require little more accessories than a few pastel pencils, vine charcoal for layouts and of course pastel paper.

CANSON MAKES a beautiful range of colors for their pastel papers. Also available are velor papers which can produce air-brushed realism and softness. Then finally there is snuffing paper which is a big sheet of ultra-fine sand paper. This understandably offers a good tooth for pastels and it does a pretty decent

artifacts

job on your fingernails too.

Oil pastels are great for location work. They are inexpensive and they feel like you are painting with tubes of lipstick. Oil pastels work well on pads of canvas or canvas panels and even illustration boards. After you block in the main colors, you can blend them nicely with a brush dampened with turpentine. Probably the best part about oil pastels is that you can, upon returning home, finish your painting with your oils.

I love colored pencils for location detailed studies. Since they are opaque, use colored pencils on colored paper. You can even use pastels for smooth graduations in backgrounds. Colored pencils and watercolor pencils are especially good on location. You can use a lighter color as a blender in a color pencil drawing.

WITH WATERCOLOR pencils, you may use a brush dampened in water for blending colors. Obviously, it is best to have watercolors or oils with you out on location. But most often people combine their vacation or weekend outing with location art work. Usually if it comes to lugging a ton of art materials, most people opt to leave it all home.

So I always say (well, almost always) travel light enough so that it doesn't matter whether you use them or not, just so you have something along if the situation arises. I also always advise: "Never run your pool filter at night."

Flute workshop slated

A flute workshop is scheduled July 8-15 at Madonna College, Livonia. Detroit Symphony flutist Shaul Ben-Meir will direct the workshop with assistance from Dr. Sheryl Cohen, flute professor of University of Alabama, Cynthia Ferris, Madonna College flute instructor and Jackie Hofstetter, professor of flute at Interlochen Arts Academy.

A recital ends the one-week workshop on Tuesday, July 15, in Kresge Hall on the Madonna campus. Open to the public and free of charge, the recital will feature a wide range of classical selections.

Workshop sessions will be held in Rooms 188 and 186, Kresge Hall. Fee for the workshop, sponsored by Flute World music studio, is $160. For more information, contact Flute World at 855-0410 or Sister Edith Marie, chairwoman, Madonna College music department at (313) 591-5098.

Madonna College is at I-96 and Levan, Livonia.

Symphony plans program

Favorites from Berlioz's "Hungarian March" to selections from the Muppet movies will be on the program when the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra gives its July Fourth concert.

Fireworks sponsored by the Plymouth Jaycees will begin during the second half of the concert and continue past the concert's conclusion.

The concert begins at 8:30 p.m. Friday in the Plymouth Township Park on the north side of Ann Arbor Trail, west of Sheldahl.

The pops program begins with the "Star Spangled Banner" and includes three marches as well as tunes from "Breakfast at Tiffany's" and "Saturday Night Fever."

The Mayflower Hotel provides the canon and cannoneer for the "1812 Overture." The cannoneer will be cued by Paul Burnett, assistant conductor.

The performance marks the local debut of the symphony's new music director, Leon Gregorian.

Salinas antique show is slated

The Salinas antique show is set for 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, in the Washenaw Farm Council Grounds, 5055 Ann Arbor-Saline Road, Ann Arbor. Early birds will be able to shop at 5 a.m.

Chicken dinners and Mackinaw Island fudge will be served in addition to food made by Girl Scouts. Among the antiques for sale are: gold and silver jewelry, Civil War military items, pocket watches, stained-glass windows, early American pine furniture, turn-of-the-century oak furniture, cast-iron toys, brass chandeliers, postcards, linens and quilts, Heisy glass, pottery, Victorian-era oil paintings and railroad memorabilia.

Admission is $2. Children 12 and under, free. For more information, call 429-9303. Next show is Oct. 26.
