Condos still in the works for local site

By Doug Funke staff writer

Why the delay in erecting condominiums on the Wilcox property in downtown Plymouth?

Plowing through the volume of paperwork before ground can be broken has taken more time than anticipated, said Angelo Plakas, one of five partners in the project.

I guess the truth of the matter is we were probably over-optimistic in January or February," he said.

'I'm involved with red tape every day. I know these things take time. There's no problem I'm aware of that wouldn't enable us to go ahead. We intend to put this building up.'

Plans now call for erecting 46 units of 1,450 to 1,600 square feet on 312 acres overlooking Kellogg Park. A six-story structure and underground parking have been proposed.

A REALTY firm is marketing units at pre-construction prices of $160,900 to $249,900.

The city commission gave its blessing to the controversial development last January. Developers at that time projected a March ground-breaking and a January 1987 occu-

We're trying to put a lot of thought into this thing," Plakas said. 'A lot of that isn't apparent to the public. All the stuff that had to be done has just taken more time than

'I WOULD prefer to go slowly on this to preclude any errors the venture group and the city might regret," he said. "These are like a bunch of dominoes. One has to go down before another.'

Construction estimates on the project range from $8 to $10 million. 'Financing doesn't appear to be any kind of impediment," Plakas said. Work probably won't begin, though, until buyers have committed to a certain number of 46 available units, he said

'We want to make sure the project is economically viable.'

Plakas declined to elaborate on both that specific percentage and the number who have committed to Major objections to the project centered around its six-story height. the height of a brick wall around the structure and price of units.

"I know there's some sentiment ce the huilding (Wilcox House) saved," Plakas said. "I don't think there's any reason to torpedo the (condo) project. We have every intention of going forth with this County officials late last week took steps to secure the mostly abandoned N Building at the former Eloise complex in response to reports of continued vandalism, arsons and vagrancy of the Observer Newspapers recently interviewed the five major Democratic candidates for follwoing is an edited transcript of that 90-minute session Candidates participating in the forum were Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano, Wayne County Board of Commission Chairman John Hertel, Livonia Mayor Edward H. McNamara, Wayne County Commissioner Samuel Turner and Wayne County Deputy Executive Frank Wilkerson.

1. Wayne County is approaching a $30 million (short-term) deficit this year. What actions would you take to alleviate it, and what programs/initratives would you propose to insure that the county remain in the black next year?

health care.

there's no

to insure patient care is kept at any minimum or within the industry's standards. That's why they overshot this thing by $20 million at this

Other savings and efficiencies are lationship the types I've developed in the sheriff's department. We were able to W a y n e waive the (federal) Forfeiture Act County and were able to expand a whole de- Board of partment without taxpayer money. We brought in nine to 10 deputies on that initiative.

The second part, new programs, has to do with crime, and that means that budget adequate jail space. Every urban jail out of balin the country is filled up within a n c e three years after it is built, Wayne County is no exception. We can go to alternative sentencing programs. Some of the inmates you see on freeways and cleaning up in Hines Park are on alternative sentencing. Another program is infant mortality and what's going to happen to pregnant mothers.

Hertel This $30 million is probably at best, it could be worse than

First thing I would do is same thing I did in the state of Michigan in 1976. I impaneled a group of 70 businesses. In Wayne County, we'd ask ciency experts and pay for those efficiency experts for a six-month period. It would not cost taxpayers one Wayne County Executive. The cent. Those experts would be put into each department in county government and actually work in those departments and identify waste. We're not talking about policy decisions; we're talking about out-and-

Then make a public accounting of those results and findings. I would expect the county executive and county commission to act on that report and put it into effect. With the state of Michigan, we saved $200 million annually in the elimination of waste from that report.

Secondly, we've got to continue to consolidate departments. We've already gotten rid of the road commission; we will get rid of the drain commission and consolidate them into one department of public ser-Ficano: The first thing you have to vices. We will have only one set of administrators, one set of enginneers and realize savings immediately in that one effort.

We should also consolidate the department of register of deeds with the county clerk's office. There's no need to have two sets of record keepers for the county.

I've said I want to transfer responsibility of the parks to Huron Clinton Metropolitan Parks Authority, because the HCMP has four times the money to spend. And we can save with respect to probate court and indigent legal fees, get that taken over by the state. That's $32 million off the backs of taxpayers.

We're going to streamline every county account and see where we're spending money we ought not to spending and put caps on it, and people are going to have to bid under that procedure. We go to executive's department and commission and make recommendations for at least half million in cuts. Finally,

we've got to put emphasis on small

Members of the editorial board 50 businesses to volunteer their efficaciones. Small business is the glue to duce $55 million in indigent care. community development; it adds to the tax base and provides 80 percent of the jobs. We're going to have a major emphasis on a small business incubator program. We're going to provide them with computer expertise; we're even going to look at some tax abatement for small business in some of the franchise and licensing fees; we're going to have procedural red-tape-cutting pro-

Finally, we're going to provide leadership to attack the problems of illiteracy, juvenile delinquency and infant mortality. Every day a young baby is in the hospital it's $1,000 to the taxpayer; 30 days, it's $300,000. Forty-six percent of our budget goes to social problems; we've got to start removing those social problems.

Turner: We're going to have to put the kinds of controls possible to (insure) the county lives within its means. And suggest where additional incomes are going to have to come from, as well as handle some essential needs.

The county has cut back on essential needs to the point where it's unreasonable. We're not meeting our essential needs, and that's part of the problem in expansion of our criminal justice system. We're just stacking them up for another day. Social programs are essential to prevent

The county executive can re-examine his own ship for savings that can be made. Some savings can be done through better coordination of services. We can eliminate waste. We have expensive waste in litigation, unnecessary litigation.

We've got to coordinate better between the sheriff's office and the courts to insure prisoners are there on time so as to cut down on waiting McNamara: Personnel is the most costly item in all businesses. Back in 1983 when we experienced reduction in revenues in Livonia, we established a personnel review committee. From that point on, no one was hired without going through that committee. Department heads had to go before that committee and prove the job was still necessary, that it couldn't be jobbed out at cheaper rate or done by someone else. As a result of that, we lost 50 people in DPW that have never been replaced and service is better than it was.

Wavne County has two major costs: Better than a quarter of the budget going to the sheriff's department and better than a quarter going to indigent care.

The county receives about $13 business development in Wayne million a year from the state to pro-

And what appears happening is every bill the hospital can't collect is sent to the state, and the state in turn bills the county. It's gotten totally out of hand. Better than half those indigents are repeat drug cases. Dollars would be better rerouted into something like that. Investigation shows repeat drug people are treated sometimes unneccessarily.

Obviously, there's lot of waste can, be chopped out of that budget.

2. Is the office of the drain commission best elected, or appointed? How to you feel?

Ficano: I think the office can function as an independent, elective body. The board of commissioners have the power to supeona the drain commissioner, and, if he is not performing the job, he can be removed.

Another reason why I'm concerned about it is a conflict of interest. One of the major fund-raiser's for one of the major candidates is one of the major construction firms for drains in the county ings. Last November, I commissioned an audit of Youngblood's office, it was done by Ernst and Whinney, one of the top accounting firms in the nation. They determined in February his office was inauditable because he did not keep records on 120 drainage districts involving tens of millions of dollars over the last six years. It's the only office with no checks and balances. He determines the various assessments; he awards the contracts and makes appointments. It is a fiefdom that should not be allowed to exist.

If we go to this new system, we will have the checks and balances of the commission and also the veteo power of the county executive. It will guarantee contracts only go in bid procedures to the lower bider.

Wilkerson: The drain commission has got to go. Charlie Youngblood is a symptom, he's not a cause. There is no accountability there. And if you put another fellow there, you've got document, and we ought to give it the same propensity for abuse. Beyond that, whatever my position is, let the citizens of Wayne County decide. This is a democracy. Let the people vote.

Turner: This is not a simple question with simple answer. The complaint against the drain commission is one of performance, so I suggested two resolutions, which the board adopted to solve the problem.

McNamara: As I read the law, the only one who can remove the drain commissioner is the governor and not the board of commissioners. Charging someone with incompetence, stupidity, is very difficult to prove. Obviously the framers of the charter did make a provision for it, and we're asking the voters to make their choice. And to talk about it being an elective position, we don't elect sheriffs, we don't elect drain commissioners, they're appointed by a group of power brokers, and that person stays forever. It was 1942 since the last sheriff was elected from scratch. So, we're talking about getting rid of a job that has rural type position in an urban county. How anybody can justify maintaining a position like drain commission other than the fact it's an elected Democratic office - would have

3. Do any of you see a need for additional charter reforms?

great difficulty sustaining a position

Ficano: Obviously, one might be the drain commissioner. However, that office works in Oakland County. To me, we always seem to overreact to everything. If we don't like what's happening to parks, we want to get rid of them. I'm saying, if it takes political courage to do it, then let's do it. If it means getting the drain commisiosn in front of board of commissioners, then let's move forward and stop political posturing.

I don't see any need for any other

Hertel: Over the last 31/2 years, if we're successful in the drains, we will have rectified the three major flaws (hospital and road commission) in that charter. Therefore, I think it's time to move on. There are no more excuses. If this (drain commissioner amendment) is approved, it is now time to deliver services at a reasonable cost. The charter reform era should end at the end of this year, and the efficient Wayne County government deliver services without raising taxes ought to start in 1987.

Wilkerson: I'd be very cautious about amending the charter as I would the Constitution. It's a living turned out. But some areas need to be amended quickly. First, I would not have the ability of the executive to use corporation counsel to defend the executive when there's a conflict between the board and executive's office. It leads to conflict; it leads to distrust. I think the charter should be amended to say the commission must use outside counsel, and so should the executive.

The budget's going to be tough and rocky as the years go by, and the executive should have the authority to impound funds. He does not have that authority now in this present charter.

Turner: I don't think there's an amendment necessary other than the one I've suggested to the board, that is, in the event a person elected to the executive's office decides to change parties, the seat should be declared vacant and go back to the electorate.

McNamara: I think whoever the chief executive officer is must work with the legislative body and within the framework of an administrativelegislative system. I think parts of the charter someday will be ignored, other parts considered inconsequential today we'll drag up and make extremely important. The document is as good a document as you will find, and to tamper with it further by making changes is a mistake.

4. How do you feel about the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings Amendment and its effect on the county?

McNamara:In the city of Livonia, we know it's been coming and have made preparations. No solution lies within federal government. It's like another deficit and must be faced. I do think there are some areas where the county has been mandated certain charges that should be given back to the state.

Turner: I think it's going to have a devastating effect. We don't know for sure; this uncertainty creates deficits. To overcome the impact it is going to be necessary for us negotiate with the state on a lot of levels, for instance, Medicaid because the

Pornography debate cools

By Kevin Brown staff writer

For now, the issue of Canton residents fighting "obscene materials" has cooled, despite a recent federal commission report urging vigilance against pornography on the part of "citizen watch groups."

The Meese Commission report. issued July 9, examined the nation's $8 billion-per-year pornography industry. It proposed that local watch groups use the recommendations in the report as a blueprint for rooting out obscene materials. Civil libertarians responded that conservative groups would use the report as a call to censorship

But Canton Police Chief John Santomauro said that since the release of the commission report, a span of nearly two weeks, his department has received no complaints concerning the selling of sexually explicit materials in Canton Township

Spokesmen for Citizens United for Decency, an area group including Canton residents who have complained to police about the sale of those materials in the township, were unavailable for comment. The telephone number to the group's headquarters has been disconnected. In April, Canton police heard from Canton members of local and national anti-pornography groups, who complained of Canton stores which sell Playboy, Penthouse, and other sexually explicit publica-

FOLLOWING THOSE complaints, Santomauro asked the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office for clarification on obscenity and prosecuting policies. George Ward, chief assistant Wayne County prosecutor, said that by Michigan law, the material has to be "so far out that it definitely" would be considered offensive.

Meese Commission chairman Henry Hudson has emphasized that recommendations for a law enforcement crackdown are not aimed at "mainstream publications," such as Playboy and Penthouse. Those publications have been targeted for censorship by local and some national anti-pornography groups.

Santomauro said it is not his department's role to establish a community standard concerning sexually explicit material. "The role of the police department is to take the complaint and investigate, and give to the prosecutor for review."

Riley Wilson, the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office chief of the criminal division for civil and special litigation, said he has not yet obtained the Meese Commission report but has read press accounts of 'The report is not going to affect Michigan law; basically, we operate under Michigan law," he said, indicating no change in how the county, might prosecute obscenity

For material to be considered obscene under state law, cases are evaluated under these general guidelines: The material must appeal to prurient or improper interests by a statewide standard; it must lack literary, artistic, political or scientific value; and it must depict or describe sexual conduct in a patently offensive way.

the parks department, which stores park tables and equipment; two other buildings, D and A, and an old farm house

"I don't see how tearing down one building is going to solve the problem. They (vandals) will just move to another building."

Barns said it has been 18 months since she toured the complex when N Building was being considered for a county jail-state prison.

In December Lucas offered to turn the building over to the state for a prison but was turned down. Barns fought that suggestion on the grounds that the building was too costly to bring up to building codes ($15.2 million according to one report at the time), was unsafe because of electrical problems and would be difficult if not impossible to secure because of cavernous tunnels that run underground.

Last 'week, Lucas' spokesman Johnson said the offer to Blanchard still stands.

"Bill Lucas has every intention come Jan. 1 when he becomes governor of this state (to use the facility as a state prison). That's the only reason it's still standing."

Johnson denied that the county has plans to remove "N" building as it has done with other vacated buildings on the property.

Barns said that a 1982 lawsuit held that the city was responsible for providing fire and police protection on the grounds, not the county, since the complex is within the city's corporate limits. The decision ended up saving the county money.

But city officials "don't have the tax base" to support that service, said Barns, a former city council

Barns also addressed the condition of the building.

"There are massive leaks in the roof and the foundation is cracked from the torque," Barns said.

"When lives are at stake, and they "It's just a maze and there are are . . . then a messy looking building, I just can't tolerate that.'

Can Horatio Alger govern Michigan?

Chrysler: State like business

Fourth in a four-part series on the Republican gubernatorial sional people were aware of the candidates.

By Tim Richard staff writer

F HE can become a millionaire in 10 years doing automobile conversions, then Richard Chrysler can manage Michigan better than Democratic Gov. James J. Blanchard - right?

That's the Horatio Alger "American Dream" question that Chrysler hopes voters will answer with a "yes" in the Aug. 4 Republican pri-

Chrysler, who has never run for public office in his 43 years, is making it The Issue. Except for an outline position on liability insurance, he has almost no platform. He fields as many questions as possible with excerpts from his autobiography.

"I'm the only candidate with that real life experience of building a business in some of the toughest economic times the state has ever witnessed." he told an Economic Club surprised me." luncheon in Lapeer last week. "Jim Blanchard has never held a private sector job."

HIS FIRM, Cars & Concepts, is on Grand River Road in Livingston County's Green Oak Township, Privately held, the firm issues no earnings statement.

But indications are it's profitable, or at least desirable: 1) Some executives are seeking to buy shares of ownership, and 2) Chrysler has built a dream house on Woodland Lake in Brighton Township.

Polls vary, but all show Chrysler either leading or sharing the GOP lead against candidates who have been in public office a decade or more. The showing is based on Chrysler think? But no one asked the speaker publicly about them, even in unsigned written questions.

AN EARLY staff member on the campaign was Elaine Donnelly, Livonia publicist, anti-abortion activist and vocal ERA opponent. She quit on May 28, one day before the Detroit Free Press' expose headlined 'The Man and the Image.'

In an interview, Donnelly insisted the timing of her departure was "a coincidence." She said she knew about Chrysler's three marriages, but that the rest "really quite Donnelly said she resigned in order to do other things but added, "I still wish him well. I've heard him say he's had to fill out the balance sheets, had to let people go in the rougher times.

'It (the expose) has had its toll. It's stalled his momentum - just like Lucas and the Denny Nystrom thing. He may recover momentum later

"He's gutsy. He just might surprise people."

FIRST QUESTION at the Economic Club luncheon comes from a person who had heard William Lucas, the Wayne County executive, say his key issue is crime. What does 'The four issues are jobs, taxes, have less crime. Something like 67 In luncheon and social conversa- percent of the meanest crimes are committed by repeat offenders and career criminals." He favors prison sentences mandated by law

The next question zings him on his position favoring "caps" for jury awards for non-economic damages in medical malpractice cases. "This must have come from a lawyer," Chrysler smiles.

The questioner wants to know what benefits should be awarded a 12-year-old quadriplegic who has suffered "no economic loss." Is $250,000 enough?

"Did I say $250,000?" Chrysler asks rhetorically, eyebrows raised. State Senate Republicans, whose position Chrysler followed, had favored a $250,000 cap, but the gubernatorial hopeful never had used that dollar

He answers briefly that the injured 12-year-old would indeed be eligible for actual economic damages because he would never be able to work. Then Chrysler changes the subject to welfare:

"We spend more on welfare than on eduation," he said, referring to the state general fund budget. "We need to judge welfare by how many we take off welfare, not how many we put on."

ANY IDEAS on how to improve funding of public schools? he is

Chrysler zeroes in on lottery money. "They" said the money would go for education, he replies - an argument not actually used by the chief proponents of the constitutional amendment that allows a state lot-

"Money from the lottery needs to go to increased funding for education," he goes on.

He says that when lottery proceeds were added to the school aid fund, the Legislature simply voted less of the general fund for education; hence, the amount for education wasn't improved.

WHAT SPECIFIC liability insurance reforms does he advocate? Chrysler's only campaign position paper is on this topic: "Caps on non-economic losses," as other states have.

• Sanctions for "frivolous" lawsuits. If a damage suit is later proven to be frivolous, the plaintiff would have to pay attorney fees for the defendant.

• An end to the "deep pockets syndrome" — where plaintiffs sue a government or corporation only 10 percent responsible for their damages but expect to collect 100 per-

• Arbitration of some medical malpractice claims.

Music creates magic

By Susan Buck staff writer

Nostalgic strains of college music wafted through Plymouth's Kellogg Park Thursday when George R. Cavender, former director of the University of Michigan Marching Band, served as guest conductor for the Plymouth Community Band Hands clapped and toes tapped as Cavender led the band through a repertoire of college music in a tribute to the University of Michigan. U-M allegiances were evident in the school colors proudly dis-played by some of the 500 audience members who suffered through the evening's oppressive heat.

"We had a smaller crowd than usual because of the heat," said P.ymouth Community Band Director Carl Battishill.

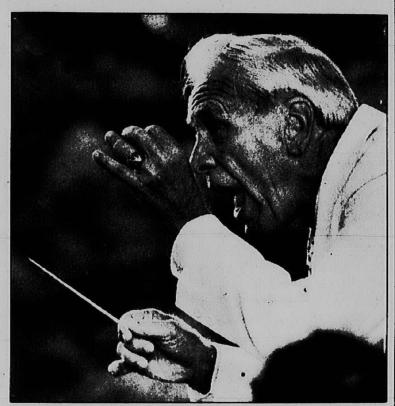

Cavender has guest conducted for the band for the last seven

"He was my teacher in college," said Battishill, who has been Community Band director for seven years. "He's a vivacious, outgoing, spirited man who is very dedicated to U-M. All he thinks about is U-M and band music

In 1978, Cavender retired from his post as director of bands. He continues to work at U-M as a faculty member, and is involved with recruiting and development.

He joined the U-M faculty in 1952, after five years as director of netrumental music for the Yosi-

I would like to take this opportunity to say a special thank you to all those in the Plymouth-Canton communities who had a part in the beautiful Balloon Festival this past week-

Jaycees did a super job

During the four weeks prior to their annual Fourth of July parade and fireworks, the Plymouth Jaycees did a yeoman's job for their community.

Each morning during those four weeks, the Jaycees placed the American flags throughout the business district at 6 a.m. After working at their regular jobs, they returned to take them down each evening. How unfortunate that someone pilfered several of the flags so diligently cared for!

The Jaycees fulfilled their commitment to the community even in the midst of planning their Fourth of

To the editor:

The Plymouth Community Family YMCA wants to compliment Emory Daniels, the Observer staff, and especially Julie Brown for the thorough and excellent coverage of some of the Y classes. The front page write-up of the Y swim classes, explaining our positive approach along with emphasis on safety and accomplishment, reflected accurately the; Y's commitment to quality teaching.

In the June 16 write-up entitled, Fathers, They Deserve Their Own Day," the children in the Y's preschool class, Kreatives, were making cards to honor their fathers and discassing ways to show love to their federal impact is going to be serious on the county. We're going to have to perhaps go back to what we were doing before to negotiate with a hospital for some incentive plans, whereby we can project our costs more easily and guarantee operations at a percentage of costs.

Another thing, we're going to have to negotiate very hard with the state. We're not going to do anything with the Probate Court. I have served as the president of the Michigan Association of Counties. They gave me a special commission to get Wayne County Court reorganization. They (the state) are not about to go for probate court (reorganization) or any other court reorganization in any other county.

So, we're going to have to look at our role as an urban county and what the responsibilities of the state's going to be in meeting those needs.

Wilkerson: I think the effects will be serious, primarily in the area of education. You've seen the impact 4.3 percent made last April, that was $4 million in our education systems in Wayne County, and it's projected to be 30 percent next year, which is $12 million. There has to be a new method of funding education if Gramm-Rudman comes as hard as we expect it to come.

In addition, there are going to be cuts to senior citizens. For instance, we know that food stamps are going to be cut. The cap put on Medicaid by calling it diagnostic related illnesses (will cost senior citizens more). So, they're really having a tremendous impact on the health of our people, which means the state is going to have to look at picking up probate court costs.

Ficano: Obviously, it's going to have an impact. Probate court -I'm not sure - because the state has refused to go any further in court reorganization in the other circuit courts.

The other area we have to look at is getting innovative. For example, Redford — 25450 Plymouth Rd.

Livonia - 37000 Six Mile Rd

Detroit - 4412 Livernois Ave

some of the things we've done in sheriff's office - bring in funds to run a whole unit, going into the private sector and getting help. When people wanted horses in the park, we went to the private sector and said we need between $50,000 and $100,000.

We can build up on that, privatepublic cooperation.

The other impact Gramm-Rudman is going to have is going to be in indigent health care. I think we're really dreaming if we think the state is going to pick up a major portion of anything. Gramm-Rudman's going to hurt them as much as it hurts us. To me, that doesn't spell relief.

We have to take a realistic approach — gather all the elective officials together, all the labor unions, and say this is how much of the pie we have. How are we going to set our priorities?

Hertel: I guess I have to go back to the '70s when I was in the Senate we had the impact on OPEC, the oil embargo, and also the Japanese influx of automobiles. It hurt our economy tremendously. And unfortunately (Michigan Gov.) Bill Milliken and the Legislature made the wrong choice, played some ludicrous bookkeeping to make it appear we had balanced budgets when actually we didn't. That's one thing we have to avoid. It's a real temptation to change fiscal years; we can't do that.

We have to be reafistic with ourselves and the public. My advisers tell me "Don't talk about the parks," but that's one area we have to be realistic. If the people of this county are already paying a millage to HCMA, why should they also be paying part of their tax money to Wayne County to operate four parks that are under operated? HCMA has a fixed millage, a balanced budget or a surplus and can spend four times as much.

Where Wayne County should be looking is where can they make cuts reasonably. Those are reasonable cuts; we're not eliminating recreation, we're transferring it.

In effect, we're going to have to be (innovative). We're going to have to sit down and make a priority list. What services do we want to continue to deliver and what services can we afford to deliver?

5.Outline your specific plan for economic development.

McNamara: You must have adequate roads. I could never understand how a county road commission could own an airport and have the worst roads in the world leading to that airport. Whether you're going from Wyandotte, one of the potentially most beautiful waterfronts, to the airport, all you have to take you there is a two-lane highway.

If you took Northline Road, for example, widened it to five lanes and put in sewers, placed water lines, and put drainage in — which can be done if you controlled the antics of the drainage commissioner, then worked with local community to put in proper kind of zoning. And had a county economic development coordinator, who reported directly to the executive, who searched out businesses business could be brought in

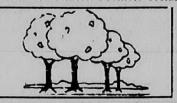

. . You need bellringers, and you've got them, people like Heinz Prechter in downriver, who has spent resources and has great vision.

Turner: Develop more incentives, promotional programs and marketing strategy. Emphasize growing potential of development small business for creation of jobs. Put more focus on the efforts of several local economic development councils toward coordination and mutual advantage. Increase county assistance to local agencies seeking to attract business. Promote social and educational incentives such as recreation and finance to persuade businesses to locate in this county.

Hertel: We don't have the resources to build up bureaucracy. I'd like to see the ideas generated from the EDC and let private business go with it and let county coordinate and fund what is absolutely necessary.

I'd like to see us give attention to the businesses we already have. With this we have the potential for full development for small businesses and not just the big industries. It may be surprising to you that the only growth we had in Wayne County last year was not in manufacturing but in agriculture.

Wilkerson: We're going to move quickly to galvanize the community particularly in the city of Detroit against juvenile delinquency. I believe business locates where business can make money, and that means you've got to have good quality of life. We're going to do that in western Wayne County as well.

I'm going to work tirelessly to get regional transportation in this region. It must be resolved. One of the major reasons the Saturn plant went to Tennessee was we didn't have rapid transit. Secondly, we're going to work tirelessly in western Wayne County, not Detroit (because) they nave their own EDC. In western Wayne County, our EDC is going to be cooperating with all EDC units, particularly the Downriver Community Conference. We're going channel projects, and we're going to channel funds into that area. We're also going to work with the Port Authority. We've got an agreement with the Port of Antwerp moving ships into this area We've got a system with the Windsor Port. They've got tremendous capability, we have . not . . . . We can triple the jobs

We have to finally give a great deal of inpetus to the small business development because they're going to generate tax revenue for us and jobs for us, and that's what we've got

Citizens are not going to pay anymore taxes, and they shouldn't.

Ficano: One of the first things I'd like to look into is the heavy industrial belt to make sure we protect it. In the next few years, there are going to be some critical decisions made at the Rouge complex. The county executive can't wait to read in the newspaper that the Ford Motor Co. is going to close the Rouge complex. The building has to be remodeled to keep that plant here and 16,000 jobs.

The Mazda plant is the exception not the rule. Ninety percent of all jobs are created from existing facilities. We have to concentrate on the industries we have right now and make sure they are vitalized and have the necessary resources to keep

We want to emphasize small businesses that can feed into the major industries.

The county should have an EDC, and the coordinator should report to the county executive. Look at what the state of Michigan has done with the department of commerce. There's no reaon why we can't have the same kind of selling point in Wayne County.

Hertel: Agriculture is the secondor third-largest industry in this state,.. depending on how you look at it.

Over 90 percent of all agricultural products are packaged and processed outside this state. One of the first things I would do is utilize the relationship I have developed (as former chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee) to bring about creation of packaging and processing plants in Wayne County to create jobs and give an advantage to our products.

I have formed a military port authority task force. There are no military ports on the Great Lakes even though 20 percent of all servicemen and their families and materiel and supplies that go overseas come from the Midwest.

We'll need warehouse, new hotels. restaurants. Why should the M-1 tank be shipped by rail from Warren when it could be shipped out of downtown Detroit?

How A Small Community Came To See The Light At The End Of The Tunnel.

A few years back, the roof practically caved in on the people who lived in this small mining community.

The mine had been shut down.
Putting half the town out of work.
And taking away a livelihood that had been a way of life here for decades. Considering that miners all across America were struggling with all the same kind of problems, there did not seem to be even the slightest ray of hope left to the town.

Problem was, just like the miners could not afford to go much longer without work, the company could not afford to reopen the the company could not afford to reopen the mine. Much less run it profitably enough to keep it up and running, as it had before. But when the State of Michigan got the miners and the mining company together, people began to see things in an entirely different light.

So when they figured out a way to reopen the mine, we pitched in to help figure out a way to finance it.

Today, the mine is open again.

The miners have gone back and reclaimed their jobs.

And even though there's still some hard work ahead for everyone concerned, the entire town is beginning to see a much brighter future for itself. At First of America Bank, we all take special pride in what this small community achieved just by digging deep inside themselves for answers. Not just because we're bankers.

But because, more importantly, we're part of the community, too.

As the star attraction in this exceptional barbecue, Teriyaki Glazed Duckling quarters are simply basted with bottled teriyaki sauce and glaze. Convenient and great tasting, it gives duckling a rich flavor with just the stroke of a brush. And its "just right" consistency produces a beautiful reddish-brown glaze in only minutes. This recipe couldn't be better tasting.

Duckling, like chicken and turkey, is light and delicious. An excellent source of protein, it's very low in cholesterol and sodium and relatively low in fat and calories. Available year round in most markets, duckling is also economical. One can thriftly feed four of the most enthusiastic eaters, especially if it's accompanied by the delicious dishes featured YOU'LL ALSO relish Spicy Apple Chutney. Seasoned with fresh ginger and tangy cider vinegar, it boasts a special flavor that comes from borded terivaki marinade and sauce, a mixture of soy sauce, wine, brown sugar, herbs and spices.

To keep snackers happy and at bay until the grilling's done, offer them creamy mushroom pate. Its rich, fresh mushroom flavor is delicately spiced with onion, Parmesan cheese and soy sauce.

Barbecue grills not only cook a main course quickly and easily, they're also great for vegetables. Our roasted vegetable duo of corn and zucchini is a breeze. Nestled in foil packets with butter, soy sauce, pepper and basil, the vegetables are done to mouth-watering perfection in just an hour.

The title role in the Two-in-One Salad belongs to the spritely seasoned dressing that doubles as a marinade. Cucumber, tomato and red onion are marinated in the dressing; then the entire mixture is tossed with crisp greens. The simple oil and vinegar combination springs to life with the addition of soy sauce. An all-purpose seasoning, it adds a distinctive spark of flavor to all kinds of tempting dishes.

THIRST-QUENCHING ICED tea is everyone's favorite barbecue beverage. Young and old alike will quaff it down before, during and after this meal. Make the iced tea by one of the methods below; if you like, add your choice of fruit juices to create a super summer punch. Just be sure to start with a good quality tea so you'll come up with a drink that is refreshing and best of all, tastes as good as it looks.

Just add your favorite dessert and enjoy a distinctive dining experience that will long be remembered.

America loves sandwiches. From peanut butter-and-jelly lunchbox specials to caviar-on-toast cocktail treats, their ease of preparation, versatility and portability make sandwiches hands-down favorites for almost any occasion.

When the weather is fair and meals move out of doors, sandwiches make super pack-andcarry foods. Next time it's your turn to tote the sandwiches, surprise the crowd with a showstopper. Deli-Garden Sandwich Round is a make-ahead masterpiece that's far more fun to make and eat than standard offerings.

Most sandwiches travel well, but those made with mayonnaise-type salad dressing, such as Deli-Garden Sandwich Round, are particularly well suited for movable feasts.

ed when carrying foods from home is simply not true. In fact, the high acidity level of salad dressing actually slows the bacterial growth that causes food to spoil. Research has shown that when a dish containing commercially prepared mayonnaise-type salad dressing spoils, the culprits are the perishable foods combined with it.

To prepare this sandwich spectacular, slice off the top of a favorite round bread loaf - rye, pumpernickel and sourdough are especially good. Using a serrated knife, remove the inside of the bread, leaving a 1/2-inch shell. Alternately layer onion and green pepper rings with turkey, salami and cheese slices and the tasty tomato-cucumber-salad dressing mixture. Replace the top of the loaf, wrap and chill to allow flavors to blend and harmonize, and you're ready to pack up and go.

Group attracts a brainy membership

By Janice Brunson special writer

In 1962, Lu Ann Maxam impulsively married her sweetheart during semester break of her senior year in high school. The A-student chose marriage over a full scholarship to the University of Michigan. Within seven years she was the mother of five children.

After Maxam was married, her mother encouraged her to seek membership in Mensa, an exclusive club whose members have an IQ higher than 98 percent of the general

Maxam finally took her mother's advice 22 years later. The intelligence test she took, the Katell, measured her IQ at 156, placing her in the 99th percentile of intelligence and qualifying her for membership

Maxam joined the Southeast Michigan chapter of the organization two years ago. The unassuming, self-employed computer programmer from Redford Township said she thoroughly enjoys her involvement with the organization.

MAXAM RECENTLY attended a regional conference of Mensa members, accompanied by her 14-yearold daughter. Later, the girl told Maxam, "It was so strange. Every- St. John's Seminary in Plymouth, one sounded just like you do when can relate to. He finds his member- she was able to devote to the club.

When Maxam was growing upnear Flint, she said she was different from most girls her age, "pretty much a loner. I preferred to play alone. I was the great pretender. I'd find a little place to go to by myself and fantasize."

She was also labeled by others as very intelligent," a description she found "frightening. I always felt pressure to excel for fear people would change their minds about

This sense of difference is, according to Jean Herrod, secretary for the Northeast Michigan chapter, not an uncommon feeling among Mensa members. "There is a real love-hate relationship with intelligence in soci-

"Intelligence is not a highly valued commodity in the United States. The majority of people don't like smart people. It's perfectly acceptable to excel in sports or your job, but don't dare threaten your boss, your mate or whoever else by being intelligent.

Most Mensa members are very tolerant people because we have lived with prejudice our entire Tolerance is something the Rev. Jerome Walsh, a professor of Old Testament and Biblical Hebrew at Mensa newsletter until the demands you talk and they acted just like you, ship in Mensa rewarding because there is a tolerance. I can relax and be myself around (other members)." BUT IT "was probably vanity" that originally prompted Walsh to seek membership in Mensa. After settling in Plymouth 11 years ago he wanted to expand his social circle and he chose Mensa as the vehicle to Walsh's reason for joining is common, according to Herrod. "Most people join Mensa for status. Consequently, there is a high dropout rate the first year. But those who remain oftentimes forge strong friendships. It becomes a vehicle for meeting kindred souls."

One place where friendships flourish is at Mensa-sponsored SIGS, or special interest groups. As a priest, for example, Walsh is eligible to join the Priest SIG, sponsored by the national organization.

At the local level, several dozen special interest groups are sponsored each month by the Southeast Michigan chapter. Oftentimes, SIG gatherings are hosted in the homes of members.

For several years after becoming members in 1980, Bobbie and Richard Slade hosted a monthly Bridge SIG at their home in Livonia. Bobby also wrote regular columnns for the of parenting cut into the spare time

THE SLADES joined Mensa after Bobbie, a computer programmer, read an article about the organization. She took the sample quiz contained in the article and found it "easy." She decided to take an intelligence test and see if she qualified for membership. Richard, a math teacher at Clarenceville High School, already qualified because his Graduate Record Exam placed him in the upper 98 percentile of intelligence.

Bobbie took two intelligence tests, one that placed her IQ at 137 and ranked her in the 99th percentile, and another that measured an IQ of 143 but placed her in the 96th percontile. The first test qualified Bob-by for membership. The second did not. While it registered a higher IQ, it ranked her below the 98th percentile. The difference is because each test has a different method of figuring IQ and ranking.
The fact that both Slades are members of Mensa is not all that unique, according to Herrod. In fact, Herrod met her husband, Dennette, at a Mensa regional meeting in Toronto. They were married four years ago and settled in Canton.

Herrod said, "Married women in Mensa tend to be married to fellow members. Mensan men may or may not be married to Mensan won en. But overall, Mensans tend to marry

Show features young talent

By Susan Buck staff writer

Fifteen talented youth with a bent for showmanship performed Thursday at Plymouth's Dunning Hough Library.

The youths, participants in the library's "Spotlight on Books" summer reading program, sang, tap danced and bedazzled the 40 predominantly youthful audience mem-

Three hundred students from Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton Township, ages 6-14 participated in this year's program. According to Pam Rawlinson, the children's librarian, the idea for the talent show was sparked by the theme of the program, which concentrates than usual interest on different reading areas.

There are different themes, Spotlight on Adventure,' 'Spotlight on America,' 'Spotlight on Games,' etc. When we got to 'Spotlight on Entertainment and You,' we decided to hold a talent contest," she said.

Auditions were held last week, and as long as the participants kept their act within the required three-minute limit and could perform their act in the area provided in the upstairs room of the library, they became instant local stars

BEFORE THE start of the show, two participants caught stage fright. But the others confidently displayed their level of talent and expertise. Several acts commanded more their guise as magician and assistant, deftly managed to make coins and a ball disappear and a playing card go blank. But, no wonder, Ken's magic equipment had the word 'Blackstone" emblazoned on it. "Ta da," Ken proclaimed proudly at the end of their act. Christie Hilken, Linda Ragan and Jodie Coyle presented their version of "The Price is Right."

In the same fashion as the wellknown TV program, an emcee selected a contestant to price various items. As a special treat at the end of the skit, the performers threw out pieces of candy to the audience.

In another act, Alex and Becky Bain linked arms and legs for a skit called "Midgets." Alex, hidden from Ken and sister, Kristin Hilton, in the audience by a large, dark blue cape, which covered him behind Becky, attempted to apply makeup te Becky's face by touch without looking. The effect was disastrous but slapstick humorous.

Other performers were: Becky Uhlman, tap; Amber Norris, gymnastics; Erin Skene, modern dance; Stacey Johnson and Krista Atkinson. dance gymnastics; Shelley Willams, dance; Angela Johnson and Mindy Sofen, dance gymnastics; Kanwal deep Bogrie, song; Bill Chapin, ukelele; Julie Coyle and Jean Ragan, gymnastics; Holly Quick, recorder; and Bruce Bain and Derek Clemens,

A VHS tape of the talent show will go on loan from the library beginning next Thursday.

Bill Chapin sang of a "cannibal king with a big nose ring."

THE X-RAYS SHOW I HAVE ARTHRITIS OF THE BACK
X-rays taken in the evaluation of your backache may provide deceiving results. Often, alterations in the vertebrae do not explain the pain, as many people have similar findings and no back complaints. Also, the changes in the back noted on x-rays, may have taken years to occur and cannot explain why your pain began a week ago.

X-rays may give answers that are at once evident and irrelevant. The obvious changes of bone compression, disc narrowing, and calcium loss (osteoporosis) are readily seen on the x-ray, but may not be the reasons for present pain. The cause may come from back muscle strain or from irritation within the spinal facet joints—the joints between vertebrae which permit you to bend forward, as when making a bow. X-ray cannot identify either of these problems.

Back x-rays are useful when they reinforce the physician's impressions formulated after hearing your history and doing an examination.

Otherwise, x-rays are unlikely to explain the reason for your pain, or suggest when it will cease.

Hartnett is south-bound

By Chris McCosky staff writer

It took nearly three years - and a fair amount of anguish - but Erich Hartnett's longtime dream is coming true.

The 1984 Plymouth Salem grad-uate is heading south. He's leaving Orchard Lake St. Mary's College, where he has been the starting point guard on the baskethall team for the better part of two seasons, for the University of South Florida.

"It's a great deal," Hartnett said of the change. "I'm all set-up down there. T expected to just go down there as a walk-on and try out with all the other walk-ons. I have to sit out a whole year before I'm eligible, but J'll be able to practice with the team and the coach is optimistic that I'll be able to earn a scholarship the next season. I've wanted to go to school in Florida since high

THE PROBLEM, though, is that South Florida is currently without a head basketball coach. Lee Rose, the one-time Purdue coach, resigned recently. Hartnett's contact at South Florida has been assistant coach Everett Bass. Bass is currently the leading candidate to replace Rose.

Hartnett faces another problem: He'll be making the formidable leap from small college basketball te Division I major college basketball. It won's be easy. Four teams from the Sun Belt Conference, of which South Florida is a member, earned berths in the NCAA Tournament last year.

"I've played a lot against Division I players and I know I can hold my own against them," said Hartnett, who averaged better than 10 points a game at St. Mary's. "I may nőt be as consistent as Division I players should be, but I know I can play with them."

THE POTENTIAL problems that await the flashy 6-3 guard in Florida pale in comparison to what he's leaving behind in Orchard

Hartnett's problem wasn't limited to sporadic disagreements with Domke - rather, it appears the disagreements were a byproduct of several aggravating circum-

No. 1, St. Mary's was a consistent loser the last two years (9-25 last year). Losing was something Hartnett rarely experienced at Sa-

No. 2, Hartnett lived on the small, enclosed campus at St. Mary's, in a hermetic one-room dormatory, full-time for 21/2 years. His family had sold their Plymouth home while Hartnett was still in high school. His mother worked at St. Mary's and also lived on campus (she has since resigned from St. Mary's and is in the process of moving back to Plymouth).

"It felt like I graduated from high school then stayed at a basketball camp for 21/2 years," Erich Hartnett said.

Said Domke: "It was real hard for him living here all the time. When the other kids went home for vacation, Erich had to stay in the same room. He was going nuts."

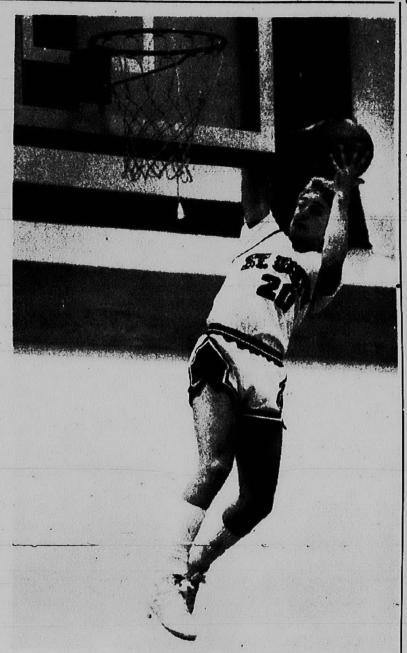

A THIRD aggravation for Hartnett was the growing confusion within the St. Mary's basketball

Hartnett started every game as a freshman and responded by playing the best basketball of his young career. After an impressive summer, playing in both the Sandy Sanders and St. Cecilia's summer leagues, Hartnett endured a disastrous sophomore season at St. Mary's. His playing time dwindled, so did his effectiveness. He eventually lost his starting job.

"My second semester was just a fiasco," he said. "I knew that St. Mary's was not for me anymore."

"There were a couple of kids doing a better job than he was," Domke said of Hartnett's eventual demotion. "He worked so hard over the summer, I think he expected to play better than he did. I think he was mad at himself more than any-Domke's future as head coach me and him, I didn't know about was also in doubt toward the end of said St. Mary's coach Tim last year. At one point, it appeared Domke. "I'd be very surprised if that assistant coach Richard Zalenthat was the case. Sure, we had ski would replace Domke as head run-ins, that's not unusual. But I coach after last season. Now, it ap-of South Florida.

IT ALL TOOK a toll on Hartnett. So much so that he seriously pondered giving up his final two years of basketball eligibility.

"It was pounding in my head for a long time. I was all set to quit," Hartnett said. "I made up my mind, then I went to tell Mr. Thomann (Salem basketball coach Fred Thomann). I've never been more serious in my life. I told Mr. Thomann everything. He just looked at me and said, 'No, no way.' That just blew me away. He said I still wanted to play and I would regret not playing out my final two years.'

Thomann, Hartnett admitted, was correct

And now that his St. Mary's chapter is history, Hartnett wants to burn no bridges as he heads south. He insists that he's not bitter, in fact, he feels better off for the experience

"I just want to say that I learned a lot," he said. "I grew up a lot, especially my sophomore year. I used to think basketball was everything. Now I realize that school is really more important. I did real well at St. Mary's (from a C to a solid B grade average). I'm proud of that. I'm looking forward to getting my degree and getting my career going."

And while he's at it, he'll finish out his basketball career the way he'd always hoped: in Division I and in sunny Florida

First, you have to understand what Bob Moss' business is.

If what you're interested in is purchasing a cheap set of golf clubs for a friend, or just popping in and picking out a pre-packaged set for yourself because it's a pretty color, chances are you might be happier going someplace other than Moss' Better Golf Center in Bloomfield Hills.

On the other hand, if you're serious about improving your golf game, Moss is someone who can assist you.

Pro soccer to return?

By C.J. Risak staff writer

In its first attempts to find a foothold in the metro-Detroit area, professional soccer was a dismal fall-

First casualty was the Detroit Cougars. Then the Detroit Express went belly up, although a succession of owners kept searching for different routes to success.

Two indoor, seven-man franchises failed to last more than a year.

Well, soccer aficionados, prepare yourselves for another attempt. One local expert is convinced pro soccer will return to Detroit, probably by 1988, and more than likely its home will be the Pontiac Silverdome or the proposed Auburn Hills facility.

"I think it's just a matter of time." said Gordon Preston, who with Roger Faulkner was part-owner of the first Detroit Express franchise. "There's not going to be a team here this fall, but the following year I think so.

What Preston referred to was a franchise in the Major Indoor Soccer by the American public than the we think there is an interest.'

now-defunct North American Soccer League (NASL) was.

MISL FRANCHISES in Cleveland, San Diego, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Tacoma, Baltimore and New York are all prospering. The Cleveland franchise averaged nearly 13,000 fans per game last season.

Preston and Faulkner both still want a part of a new soccer franchise. But, according to Preston, "Our interest is to get the thing going, whether we're involved or

A soccer exhibition matching former Express players against members of Cleveland's indoor team Saturday at the Pontiac Silverdome rekindled the former Express owners' interest. Better than 10,000 tickets were sold, despite poor pre-game publicity.

"Our media coverage was only fair," said Preston of the exhibition, which marked the return of former Express star Trevor Francis, "so our walk-up attendance was not as good as we hoped for.

"We went into this to test the mar-League (MISL), the 14-team circuit ket to see if there's an interest. We that has been more widely accepted didn't do as well as we thought, but

soccer

But Preston remained wary. What doomed the Express was a lack of commitment from financial backers. To make an indoor team successful will take a stable group of investors.

OR, AS PRESTON put it, "We've got to have a man with a lot of mon-

Starting an MISL franchise will be both hazardous and expensive. "We met with the former (MISL) commissioner several months ago," said Preston. "His estimate was that the team would lose $1 million in the first year, and if everything went well, another $500,000 the second

"If things went great, it might break even by the third year. Now, that may or may not be the case. A big part of it depends on how much you pay for rent."

Which would make this a good time to bring a franchise to the city. Detroit Piston owners are planning on leaving the Silverdome after the 1987-88 season for a 20,000-seat arena being built in Auburn Hills.

"I know the Silverdome people are definitely interested (in an indoor team)," said Preston. "I would think, since they are going to lose the Pistons, they would want to sharpen their pencils.

"The Auburn Hills arena would be ideal, but we'd be No. 2 tenants there to basketball. Still, I think we're going to take a look at it.

A DOWNTOWN location is not being considered because the majority of the soccer audience is in the suburbs. Either Auburn Hills or Pontiac would be ideal to attract fans from Troy, Birmingham, Rochester, West Bloomfield, Bloomfield Hills, Farmington and Livonia, all hotbeds of youth soccer.

Wherever a new franchise takes root, it will require sound financing over a lengthy period.

"There's definitely a market here, no question about it," said Preston. "The question is where the money is coming from. I know I don't have it, but we do have people that are interested. You have to stay with something like this for at least five

THERE ARE a wide range of variables, Moss said, from weaker, tall men to strong, short ones and everything in between. But finding the right club is essential, he said. "No one can do that better than we can.

"The club fit is a big part of what we do," he added. "When it comes to club fitting, the shaft is the most important thing. The term 'wide sweet spot' (on a club) that some manufacturers sell is a lie. It doesn't exist."

Moss works with golfers on conditioning, too, dividing it into mental and physical. Books, tapes and lessons can help a golfer improve his mental outlook. "We teach them course management," said Moss.

AS FOR THE slime itself, the alien evil is of undetermined sex, although something was laying eggs. Since we're being chauvinistic about the whole thing, there must be he-slime and she-slime, although the photography is such that there's no telling.

As a matter of fact, it gets rather boring after a while, watching Colonial Marines zap monsters. The visual impact of teeth emerging from dark slime, followed by blinding explosions, is not my idea of entertainment.

Remember the old airport "switch-the-luggage" routine? Naturally Hall gets the one with a million bucks worth of heroin, and the chase through the decadent L.A. drug world is on. A pretty high and gruesome body count for such a short mevie. It was only 90 minutes. It just seemed forever.

Quite clearly filmmakers have little sense of responsibility to the minds they pollute. Profits are the name of the game and it never seems to matter what they project in order to make those profits.
