GOP candidates tackle election issues

By Tim Richard
staff writer

IMAGE-MAKING time was over. Now the Republican gubernatorial candidates were being asked tough questions about complex suburban and state issues.

The issues are roads, toxic wastes, paying for special education, the death penalty and negotiating with state workers represented by the UAW.

Daniel T. Murphy, Colleen Engler and Richard Chrysler — who are asking GOP primary voters Aug. 5 for the chance to tackle Democratic Gov. James Blanchard on Nov. 4 — faced the editorial board of Observer & Eccentric Newspapers for more than an hour last week.

"Bill (Lucas) missed a great opportunity to discuss the issues," Murphy said. Lucas, the Wayne County executive, said through a spokesman he had schedule conflicts for both alternative dates posed by the editors.

Q. Roads have become a nightmare in suburban Oakland County and western Wayne County as they've become urbanized. The solutions boil down to money. Whose responsibility is it to solve it — the community, the county or the state?

MURPHY: "The Oakland County executive: 'Road monies come from the state and are passed back out on a formula. It's a problem the local units and state have combined."

"The last (federal) money that came to the state came with the idea that if the state wanted to return 30 percent to the local units, they could. Well, the state highway department doesn't turn 5 percent to deal with our local roads."

"It seems like we (local units) do a better job at everything else. Why can't we do as good a job at controlling our own money that comes from the feds? The state ought to be putting more money down for local roads."

"That doesn't mean in the near future that new corporations opening up near a main highway aren't going to have to put their own roads into their own business. That's what's coming."

ENGLER, state representative from Mt. Pleasant: "The road problem is critical in all parts of the state."

"I think the road problem is both a state and local one. A number of things can be done. We're looking at cutbacks in terms of federal funds. We have some options. The Cobo Hall expansion tax — the hotel tax — could go to roads (when the project is completed)."

"The only option for local units are the property tax and income tax. We're going to have to give more options to local units."

"There's a problem with the state transportation fund. Groups such as snowmobilers want more for snowmobile trails, others want port development, others for public access to lakes. The governor will have to take a hard stand against those groups, saying 'we want the money in the transportation fund for roads. I'm sorry, but that's what the gasoline tax was established for.'"

CHRYSLER, owner and chairman of Cars and Concepts: "We need to work to get more of our federal dollars back. With a Republican governor, at least we'll have an entree into the federal government."

"Our highways are built (under contract) by private sector companies. They should be maintained by the private sector, too. We could cut the cost 25 percent."

For comments on candidates in the GOP primary race and to read our endorsement, please turn to the editorial page in this section.

Chrysler advocated allowing local option taxes to be approved by voters.

Q. What is your plan for continuing the cleanup of toxic and hazardous wastes in Michigan? What kind of impact will your proposal have in the overall cleanup?

CHRYSLER: "When we're talking about clean air and water, we do not play politics. We can't have the governor meddling with the appointment of the head of the Department of Natural Resources."

"Obviously some things have not been cleaned up in the environment. If we're going to pass laws, we should have the ability to enforce them."

ENGLER: "I've been very dissatisfied with the time it's taken to clean up toxic waste sites. Instead, they (DNR) were doing studies of banning brines on roads."

"As we move toward the next century, our problem is going to be toxic waste cleanups and also new sites for solid waste disposal. It's very, very expensive."

"I've favored a ballot question for a general obligation bonds to be split between state and local units, a cap on landfills, and also the establishment of disposal facilities for solid wastes. Sen. Connie Binsfeld (R-Maple City) proposed it (bond issue) two years ago, but the DNR has been dragging its heels."

MURPHY: "I agree with Colleen. The Legislature should start doing something. It would help Oakland County. We have our program in place for the next 20 years, but around the state it isn't done."

"The state saw the solid waste problem and created an act for local government to be involved. If you do the same with toxic waste, you're gonna get them (local units) more concerned."

"When we found the toxic waste drums in Rose and White Lake townships, the state came down and said they would put money to clean it up, but they didn't have the money to put a road in to get the drums out. We (county) put a road in. We got involved. The drums are out of that area now."

Q. What about suing offenders — is that realistic?

MURPHY: "It's a proper way unless they're in bankruptcy."

ENGLER: "We've found some companies were overassessed for the fund."

CHRYSLER: "The people that made the mess gotta clean it up." Chrysler said the state "played politics" by using the election year to reimburse farmers who lost cattle in the PBB poisonings of several years ago.

Q. Several school districts are suing the state, saying it isn't providing enough for special education. How should these categorical items be funded?

ENGLER: "Categorical aid is extremely important to out-of-formula school districts (those that get no general operating aid from the state). We're very much underfunding categorical. It's a tragedy the school districts had to go to court."

"One of the problems is with the formula itself. It's desperately in need of revision. In many northern Michigan districts, people have a high SEV (assessments for property taxes) and very low income levels, and can't afford to vote for millages. "I would propose a median income standard test as well as the SEV test in terms of allocating state aid."

"In the future we should look at tax base sharing. Yes, that was proposed in the '70s, and a lot of people didn't like it because they feared loss of local control. If we looked at a 10-year phase-in — there's a proposal right now (by Sen. Dan DeGrow, R-Port Huron) — that might be a serious option."

MURPHY: "The formula needs to be worked on. A lot of districts get a slight increase, and it puts them out of formula."

"People want to have the local district control education and set policy — if they can put in a swimming pool or art program, they do it."

"Now some of us have said maybe there should be a single school district in Oakland County, spread out the money equally. But you're not going to sell that to the Farmington School District, to Birmingham, to Bloomfield Hills."

Holmes will serve as program director

Maria Holmes has been named the community affairs and program director of the local origination department for Omnicom of Michigan. The announcement was made by Frederick Collman, general manager of Omnicom of Michigan.

Holmes replaces Suzanne Skubick, who recently left the position at Omnicom. Holmes has served as acting director of the programming department since Skubick left at the end of May.

"I am pleased that Ms. Holmes has accepted this position, and I am confident she will serve the community and company well as the new program director," Collman said.

Holmes has been with Omnicom as a programming executive producer for more than three years. She is a graduate of Eastern Michigan University, where she received a bachelor's degree in telecommunications marketing.

The Plymouth Business and Professional Women's Club honored Holmes as a "Young Career Woman" in 1986. She also received the Hometown Video Award, given by the National Federation of Local Cable Programmers, for a student production, "Human Images."

SHE ALSO received the Salvation Army Humanitarian Award for her initiation of the "Baskets Filled With Love" food drive/telethon.

"This is a major step in my career," Holmes said. "I've worked hard and accomplished a lot in the years I've been here, and I'm looking forward to the challenge this new position gives me."

"It's only because of the support from my family, Omnicom and the community that I've been able to attain this position and I'm grateful for that."

Holmes lives in Ypsilanti with her husband, Solomon, and 2-year-old daughter, Karissa. She filled the position at Omnicom last fall when Skubick was on leave.

Water-sewer rate hikes strike Canton Township

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

A 160-percent increase in Canton Township residents' water rates will be paid by the township — for now.

But early next year, Canton Township will begin passing on those increases to private users, who will likely see a 200 percent rise in their water bills.

The Canton Township Board of Trustees on Tuesday considered four ways of coping with increased water-sewer rates to the township from Wayne County and the city of Detroit. The rate increases followed the collapse of a rate averaging provision in a water contract between Detroit, the county, some downriver communities and Canton.

Charlie Williams, director of the Detroit Water and Sewerage Department, wrote in a letter to Township Supervisor James Poole that the cost of service rates for Canton in fiscal year 1986-87 would rise to $5.86 per 1,000 cubic feet, "a substantial increase over the average rate of $4.11."

Township Finance Director John Spencer reported to the township board that the Wayne County Department of Public Works has also requested an increase in sewage treatment rates.

POOLE EXPLAINED that separate water and sewer rate increases from both Detroit and Wayne County would hike residents' rates a total four times by early next year. He suggested that by not acting, the township could in effect absorb rate increases for six months, then pass those increases on when new rates are set by agencies providing water to the township.

Also at the meeting, the board accepted the monthly Canton Police Department report for May. It showed that incidents of crime-arrests through the first five months of the year were up sharply as compared to 1985 in areas of criminal sexual conduct, up from eight reported incidences in 1985 to 17 so far this year. Increases were also seen in robbery, from two to 10, narcotic drug law violations, from eight to 16, and weapons violations, from three to eight.

Commenting on the increase in reported incidences of criminal sexual conduct, Police Chief John Santomauro speculated that the increase of reported incidents "is really due to (increased) public awareness" of child abuse.

The rise in reported drug offenses follows more drug arrests in 1986 compared to the same period last year, according to the report.

Poole also accepted a check on behalf of the township from State Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, for $451,000 — reflecting an adjustment in state-shared revenues to the township over the past two years, Kosteva explained.

Poole said the money, long expected, had been budgeted for Haggerty Road improvements.

GOP contenders say unity pact intact

"When you have $900 million coming from the state in 1971 and $2.5 billion coming from the state now for local school systems, the state is not doing a bad job. I give the state credit. The money's been going up except in the tough times."

CHRYSLER: "In the state budget, we spend more money on welfare than on education. That's how bad we've got our priorities mixed up in this state."

"We do owe the school districts for a missed aid payment. I'd love to see the school districts place a lien against Jim Blanchard for not paying those taxes to the school districts."

Chrysler advocated using state lottery money to supplement general fund state aid to education, not allowing the general fund appropriation to be pared as lottery money grows.

Q. Will you support the capital punishment question (as proposed in the ballot question to amend the state constitution)? And if it passes and you're in the governor's chair, what would you do with a plea for executive clemency?

MURPHY: "I support the concept if that's what the people want. If the bill is not written for governor's clemency, I would veto the bill."

ENGLER: "I'm opposed to capital punishment, and the amendment as drafted would allow the Legislature to pass enabling legislation. As governor, I would veto the bill."

CHRYSLER: "Michigan is one of only 18 states with the right to petition for changes. If the citizens want it and vote for it, as governor I'll support it. With the number of appeals, it's only remotely possible a mistake will be made."

Q. The Michigan State Employees Association has been replaced as the bargaining agent for tens of thousands of state employees by the more militant United Auto Workers. Are you equipped to deal with it?

CHRYSLER: "Being in business, we've been dealing with unions for a number of years (with Big Four companies that send vehicles to Cars and Concepts and with Teamsters, which deliver them)."

"We have had five organizational attempts. The last vote was taken in May of 1985, and of 400-odd people in the bargaining unit, we had only 91 votes for it. Let people make their own decisions."

"In this country, less than 20 percent of the working people belong to a union... but to listen to the 6 o'clock news you'd think the whole world belonged to a union."

ENGLER: "It's interesting the UAW won because most state employees are women, and the UAW hasn't had a very good record of letting women into its leadership."

"The best way to deal with state employees is to treat them fairly, treat them as professionals."

"In some cases the governor doesn't have anything to say about it. As governor, I would discourage any type of featherbedding."

MURPHY: "Well, I certainly would handle the UAW differently from the way the present governor handles them. I don't have to listen to them (politically). I don't have any (political) responsibility to the UAW, nor they to me."

"You have to deal with what's there. I've been dealing with unions in county government for 23 years. I don't think you can deal with unions by taking it to court and have the court decide what's gonna happen."

"I don't think you can let the unions get into management. That's your prerogative; you're gonna set the standard for management."

"You have to deal with the employees on a fair basis. In Oakland County government, we have not been negotiating COLA (cost of living adjustment), and we have not been permitting them to negotiate a closed or agency shop."

"You have to look at the inflation, decide what state employees' salaries ought to be in relationship, and make sure something is done for the employee on that basis."

Q. There has been a commercial in this campaign which questioned the integrity of a couple of candidates. Do you feel you have a reputation for integrity?

CHRYSLER: "Of course. We all do. And it's a real credit to the Republican Party of this state to have the four candidates we have — a diverse group, people who are committed: a legislator, county executives, businessman. It's a positive image for the Republican Party."

"The unity pact is intact."

ENGLER: "I believe I have the integrity to be governor. It's difficult for me to duck an issue. I feel I should be honest and forthright. It would be a refreshing change for the state. The people would know where I stood."

"As far as assessing my opponents, I'll leave that to other people. I don't plan on voting for them."

MURPHY: "The record I have is one of integrity."

"The media has never misquoted me because I don't have a problem with telling the media what I want 'em to know, and they're able to print what I say every single time."

Acknowledging it was his commercial that prompted the question, Murphy said, "When you in the media say something about the candidates, I have a right to contrast myself with those two candidates. I didn't create anything the media didn't bring up."

Commission gives nod to contract

By Susan Buck
staff writer

The Plymouth City Commission Monday voted to approve a 12-percent three-year contract between the city and the Plymouth police union.

Twelve police officers will receive a 5-percent raise the first year of the contract, 4-percent the next year, and 3-percent the third year.

"When we got done negotiating the contract, most of us left with a win/win attitude," said Henry Graper, Plymouth city manager. "We got what we wanted; they got what they wanted. Nobody got everything they wanted."

Jerry Radovic, union business manager, said the union was pleased with the agreement.

"I'm satisfied with it," he said. "I think both sides can live with it. The negotiations went very well. The city handled it in a professional manner."

THE CITY was unable to obtain an agreement with the union regarding the amendments to the supervisor-to-non-supervisor ratio. The city had proposed eliminating or reducing the ratio.

The union said this would dilute the bargaining unit. However, Graper said matter should be resolved by next April when one of the police lieutenants is scheduled to retire.

"Upon his retirement, we will be in a position to hire officers at a lower level of pay and thus, giving us an opportunity to increase manpower for a lower cost," Graper wrote in a memorandum to the city council.

According to the city's analysis, the contract would cost $16,989.75 (first year), $14,371.56 (second year) and $11,109.87 (third year). The addition of sick time payoff would boost those totals to $29,108.75, $26,490.56 and $23,228.87 respectively.

It is not a good idea for any department to get top heavy, Radovic said.

"You end up having too many chiefs and not enough Indians. We want to be able to have a minimum of three non-supervisory police officers per shift. We're concerned that the police officers have this backup for their safety."

THE NEW contract provides for the adoption of a retirement waiver. Police officers can retire at age 50 with 25 years of service. Previously, officers had to be 55.

"Everything has come at the right time," Radovic said. "Now we are working on 25 years and out. Twenty-five years on the road for a police officer is a long time. Of 14 large communities in Michigan, nine have this, including Dearborn and Westland."

Under the contract, sick time accumulation is eliminated. Sick time is granted with pay if the officer has a doctor's excuse for absences of two or more days. An officer can miss two days of work, five times a year, without needing a doctor's excuse.

Current sick time accumulation will be paid off at the rate of 50 percent of time accumulated. Payoff will be made in three equal installments.

Compensation time is earned at the rate of time-and-one-half, with a maximum accumulation of 75 hours.

Officers will be offered enrollment in health maintenance plans. They will be given a cash bonus equal to 50 percent of the savings realized by the city if they enroll in a health maintenance organization.

OFFICERS WILL also be given a bonus equal to 50 percent of the savings realized by the city if they accept coverage through spouse and eliminate coverage with the city. The union agreed to permit the city to hire two full-time community service officers at wages to be determined by the city. Benefits received would be equal to those of non-union employees with the exception of health insurance.

The city will determine the type of health insurance plan provided the community service officers, with that plan going into effect after one year of employment.

The union agreed to permit the city to require periodic firearm proficiency testing. The union also agreed to establish an assessment center for all future promotions.

Tuition reimbursement for officers was increased to 100 percent for job-related courses as long as a C average or better is maintained.

School leaders chosen

Two new administrators have been named for Wayne-Westland Schools.

Recommended by Superintendent Dennis O'Neill, the school board confirmed the appointments Monday of an assistant principal at the William D. Ford Vocational/Technical Center and a transportation director.

The board voted 6-0 for the appointments of Rick Hamrick as assistant principal/special needs coordinator and Gloria Leonhardt as transportation director.

The district includes most of Westland, part of Canton Township, and all of Wayne.

Hamrick joined the school district in 1969 as a substitute teacher, moving to the position of counselor at Adams Junior High School in 1972. He also has served as vocational education coordinator for the alternative education program, a junior high science teacher and as director of the school-based adult education program.

A Westland resident, he holds a bachelor's degree in social science, a teaching certificate and master's degree in education, with a major in guidance and counseling, all from Eastern Michigan University.

O'Neill told the school board he made the appointment after receiving the state Department of Education's recommendation for special needs for the center. The position is funded by federal special needs money and state vocational education funds, said O'Neill.

"Rick has excellent qualifications for the position," he added. "He had an excellent reputation as a junior high and alternative education counselor and his counseling background more than met the requirements for the position."

"I'M FULLY confident he will do an excellent job and will bring additional building supervision to the center."

Hamrick also earned praise from Trustee Sylvia Kozorosky, who noted that "he did a tremendous job in pulling adult education back together the last two years."

Replacing Hamrick as director of the adult education program will be Barbara Eichorn. She was among a number of administrators laid off at the end of the school year and was on a list of four people approved for recall from layoff.

O'Neill named Leonhardt to the transportation post to replace Lloyd Barber who will retire Aug. 30.

Leonhardt has been with the district since 1963, working as a bus driver, leader and transportation supervisor.

A Canton Township resident, her appointment takes effect Aug. 31.

O'Neill noted that Leonhardt as supervisor in the department "is second in command and is involved in all aspects of managing the department," adding that she is "very familiar with the district's computer routing system."

She was praised by board Trustee Kathleen Chorbogian, who said she "has demonstrated the ability to get the job done and to work with people."

Chevrolet theft reported

A blue 1983 Chevrolet Malibu was reported stolen last weekend from the parking lot of the Plymouth Square Apartments on Marguerite.

The car, which had been locked was taken between 11 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. Saturday, the complainant told Plymouth Township police.

A Fuzzbuster radar detector valued at $200 was reported stolen from a car at the Plymouth Heritage Apartments on Heritage. The detector had been hidden under a seat.

A coat hanger apparently was used to force the lock, police reports indicated. That theft also occurred late Friday night or Saturday morning.

T-tops valued at $1,200 were reported stolen from a car parked at the Plymouth Hilton on Northville Road between 11 p.m. Sunday and 9:20 a.m. Monday. The passenger window was also broken.

An AM/FM stereo cassette radio valued at $100 was reported stolen last weekend from a car on Beech-crest. Two other cars on the property were tampered with, police reports indicated, but nothing appeared to be stolen.

A Sears 40-channel CB radio worth $60 was reported stolen from a motor home in the rear parking lot of Quilt and Fabric on Main in the city of Plymouth. That theft occurred early Friday morning, according to police accounts.

The vehicle wasn't locked. A chrome-colored BMX bicycle valued at $125 was reported stolen from Penniman. The bike, belonging to an employee of a nearby business, had been chained to a tree.

Ficano zeros in on 'hard-core' Democrats

By Teri Banas
staff writer

This is the fifth story in a series profiling candidates for the Democratic nomination for Wayne County executive on Aug. 5.

Robert Anthony Ficano's entry into public life was forged more than a dozen years ago inside his Michigan State University dorm room.

Friend and fellow Livonia Stevenson High School graduate — Alan Helmkamp — had driven north from Ann Arbor and the University of Michigan one night to persuade his political science buddy to run for precinct delegate back home in Livonia.

Ficano ran and won that election. Today, after a few campaigns and a few lucky breaks, he is sheriff of Wayne County, the third largest county in the United States.

FICANO, 34, has had a number of fortunate breaks, and when opportunity knocked, Ficano knew just what he wanted.

This season Ficano has emerged as one of the most well-known and well-connected Democratic candidates in the field for Wayne County executive, the highest administrative post in the county.

He has longstanding ties with the Democratic Party including campaign work for others' campaigns and as a state-level staffer. He was chairman of the Wayne 2nd Democratic Congressional District.

He is now pitted against leading candidates such as Livonia Mayor Edward McNamara, and county commission chairman John Hertel, D-Harper Woods in the race for county executive.

His endorsements have been heaviest among party and labor leaders and include most local Democratic clubs, particularly in the Downriver communities, where Democratic voters number strongest, as well as several congressional district groups. He is getting his largest, single labor boost from the Wayne County Sheriff's Deputies Union (Local 502 AFL-CIO), which has put an army of volunteers from its over 500-member roster to work.

CLEARLY, though, Ficano views fellow Livonian Ed McNamara as the race's front-runner and in recent radio advertisements has directed attacks McNamara's way.

BILL BRESLER/ staff photographer

Robert Ficano follows in the footsteps of another county sheriff who aimed for the job of county executive.

An attorney, who graduated with honors from the University of Detroit Law School in 1977, Ficano said his campaign strategy is to "identify hard-core Democratic voters, traditional Democrats," and those are found Downriver, as opposed to voters in heavily populated communities like Livonia, and Plymouth "who traditionally vote Republican."

"We're not writing any of these communities off, but they don't vote (Democrat)," he said.

(The primary on Aug. 5 is a closed one, which means voters will disqualify their ballots if they cross-vote between races.)

Of Hertel's strength on the far east-side of the county, and

McNamara's strength as a western Wayne County leader, Ficano said: "This is going to be one of those races where if you can second all over the county, you could still win."

THE YOUNGEST candidate in the field, Ficano was nicknamed the "boy sheriff" by the time he assumed that job at age 30, replacing William Lucas when he became the first

election '86

county executive in 1982. With no previous law enforcement experience, he was selected for the job after strong lobbying from his then boss county clerk James Killeen.

Killeen, his political mentor and a strong supporter, was considered at one time to be one of the most powerful Democrats in the area.

It's Killeen who Ficano recognizes as having the most political influence on his career for his extreme "sense of right and wrong, and getting into public service to really serve and achieve for people."

Ficano said he plans to highlight his "energy" and "what I've done in the sheriff's department" to distinguish himself in this race.

Earlier in the administration, he was successful in lobbying Lansing lawmakers to double-bunk prisoners, thereby reducing overcrowding in the Wayne County Jail, and expanding the prisoner rolls from 753 to 1900. He also earned credit for working to waive the Federal Forfeiture Act, thereby funding a newly created five-member narcotics task force with the proceeds.

As sheriff, Ficano holds the largest share of the county purse, spending $55 million a year to manage 1,300 employees in seven unions.

Since taking over, beginning with a department that faced a $12-million deficit, Ficano has restored and expanded the services of the county road patrol. But critics, disturbed by the department's expansion in recent years, say such services are too costly, and are best provided by local units of government.

FICANO'S AGENDA, if elected county executive, would focus on three issues: crime, economic development and fiscal integrity.

"Families won't locate if they don't feel safe," he said.

In this area, he said he's particularly disturbed by juvenile delinquency and bemoans the loss of "a whole generation to narcotics."

In economic development, he speaks of the lessening industrial base and said government officials should be more involved in decisions such as the imminent closing of Dearborn's Rouge Complex which could cost this area 16,000 jobs.

He said local communities, also, must stop their "cannibalistic" practices when trying to out-lure incoming business. "Wayne County has to become a main partner with other communities."

Ficano's own personal background is accented by strong family ties to his Italian heritage. Raised in Livonia and an only child, his parents were the products of working middle-class immigrants.

He has memories of family political discussions across the Sunday table, and his grandfather bringing him to Democratic functions. Grandfather Paris Buccini, who worked in the Rouge Complex and later belonged to Ford Transmission Local 182, was especially influential and often traveled to visit his grandson on the campus of Michigan State.

"I'm the success of everything they came over for," Ficano said.

Team concept is best bet in GOP race

RUNNING TODAY'S state government takes a true team effort. A breadth and depth of experience is needed to meet all the challenges facing Michigan over the next decade.

That's why we urge Republican voters to support a ticket — Daniel Murphy and Colleen Engler. If you're so inclined, reverse the order, Engler/Murphy. It's all the same, a team that can meet the needs and desires of a broad-based Republican electorate.

True, as voters in the Aug. 5 primary, Republicans only will be able to vote for one of the two. But establishing the notion that a team will work best — both on the campaign trail and in the governor's office — is essential.

Let's get the politicians used to the idea that service to the electorate transcends candidates' need to grab all the power for themselves.

The recommended team provides a well-rounded base that Republican voters can feel confident represents their interests. Combined they offer:

- In-depth legislative and executive experience.
- Ideas and concepts that demonstrate an understanding of and concern for the state's future needs.
- An ability to offer a real electoral challenge to the incumbent.

These attributes are in marked contrast to the two front-runners.

ENGLER IS THE shining light of the Michigan GOP. Although hampered by a lack of campaign funds, the state legislator makes a lasting impression wherever she goes. She would make a fine governor or lieutenant governor.

Well-versed in state issues, the best among the GOP candidates, she would give Democratic Gov. James Blanchard or Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths the toughest time in a debate forum. She knows the issues and has an in-depth program to solve the state's problems.

Without a doubt Engler is the future of the Michigan GOP. The voters who have had a chance to see her speak know it. It's time party bosses realize it, too.

Murphy, longtime Oakland County executive, has built a reputation as an administrator who gets the job done. Public flash and dash isn't his trump card, as is the case with some other candidates.

RESULT IS HIS FORTE. And that's what Michigan needs in any gubernatorial candidate.

Oakland is the state's most economically viable county. And with good reason. Murphy has worked hard, and with results, to draw business to his county. That's not an easy job in a state where the cost of running business is so high.

We believe he can do the same for this state.

Murphy also is a master at dealing with a legislative body. The county executive's office and the board of commissioners has an efficient working relationship — a rarity in county politics.

We believe he can do the same with the state legislature.

Observer & Eccentric

Why we endorse in GOP race

BECAUSE OF the nature of this year's GOP gubernatorial primary, the Observer & Eccentric is endorsing in this state contest for the first time.

Three of the candidates, Richard Chrysler, William Lucas and Daniel Murphy, live and work in this newspaper corporation's circulation area. Editors and reporters have covered them extensively throughout their business or political careers — in total more extensively than any other newspaper chain in the state. We believe it is important to share our views of the candidates with you.

The O&E also has covered the action of local state legislators for several years. Because of that coverage we also have become familiar with Colleen Engler.

We have covered each of these candidates on the campaign trail as well as conducted a candidate forum with them.

Heintz tops the field in District 10 race

IN THE RACE for the Republican nomination to the 10th District Wayne County Commission seat our choice is Susan J. Heintz.

While Heintz and Elaine Tuttle both have experience in the political arena — Heintz as supervisor of Northville Township and Tuttle as Livonia city treasurer — Heintz has shown more inclination to get involved in agencies beyond the purview of her elected office. She is a member of the SEMTA (Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority) Board of Directors, serves on SEMCOG's (Southeast Michigan Council of Governments) governing body, chaired the Rouge River Watershed Council and is the new chairwoman of the Blue Ribbon Commission on county parks.

The third candidate, Lawrence Schweiger, although lacking the advantage of having served his community in a political position, nevertheless provides a point of view untainted by a politician's fear of offending the electorate.

Although the position of county commissioner is part time, it requires a candidate who is willing to devote full-time efforts to the commission.

Because Heintz has shown an inclination to get involved beyond the demands of her position, we urge voters to support her in the Republican primary Aug. 5.

Heintz, first as Northville clerk, and then as supervisor in both posts, proved herself willing to devote the time necessary to fulfill the demands of a growing area. By background and education, she is well qualified for a political career. She grew up in Mt. Clemens, the daughter of the mayor of that community. She received her degree in political science from the University of Michigan.

Unlike Tuttle, who maintains she would keep her position as city treasurer if elected to the county board, Heintz said she would not run again for the supervisor's job, thereby devoting her full attention to the business of serving residents as their county commissioner.

In a recent interview with the three Republican candidates, Heintz expressed in-depth knowledge of the concerns of growing western Wayne County — sewer and water services, the economic growth along the I-275 corridor and road development. She has also been actively involved in the prison issue, which has had particular impact on the Northville-Plymouth areas.

The 10th District needs a vocal spokeswoman who knows how to operate within a governmental bureaucracy, a commissioner who will devote her full-time attention and commitment to the job, and one who exhibits a fresh, positive outlook on county issues.

Susan J. Heintz measures up to the task and merits election on Aug. 5

For county executive McNamara has vision it takes to lead

THE FUTURE is clear. With Edward McNamara as the new executive, Wayne County residents will benefit. Without him, county voters will miss an opportunity to make government more responsive to their needs.

McNamara

We heartily endorse McNamara in 1982 for that same office and do so again. County government would be in much better shape had he been elected four years ago.

Because of the overwhelming Democratic majority in the county, the decision will be made by voters in the Aug. 5 primary.

The longtime Livonia mayor is an outstanding prospect in a field of fine candidates that includes John Hertel, chairman of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners; Samuel Turner, Wayne County commissioner; Robert Ficano, Wayne County sheriff; and Frank Wilkerson, deputy county executive.

But what sets him apart from the rest is his in-depth administrative experience and his proven record of accomplishment as a public official.

No other candidate can match his record in these areas.

Livonia is one of the best-planned communities in Michigan. The vision which makes that city work is primarily that of McNamara. Before his election as Livonia's chief executive, McNamara's community was headed for a less-than-spectacular future — a future that has come to fruition for other suburban enclaves.

But unlike other suburban political leaders who failed in developing their communities to their full potential, McNamara was able to:

- Put together an effective management team.
- Respond to the needs of the electorate.
- Work with people representing diverse interests.
- Forge alliances with political leaders beyond his jurisdictional boundaries.
- Stand up to political forces, both inside and out, which are adverse to the interest of his constituency.
- Work with the private sector in bringing new business to his jurisdiction.

- Effectively deal with a legislative body.

What McNamara has done for Livonia, he can do for Wayne County.

He understands that for county residents to benefit, the county government must work with local units of government to solve problems. He realizes that suburban concerns must find a common ground with Detroit if the county government is ever going to be effective.

Although possessing many years of political experience, he is free from obligations to any special interest group or political force. He knows when to compromise, but knows enough not to compromise the interests of those he represents.

A low-key, no-nonsense leader, McNamara will be able to get down to county business, unblinded by the spotlight of higher office shining in his face. We need that kind of leader in Wayne County.

McNamara is the one.

Solution to the bedsheet ballot

FRED DeLANO, my brother columnist, was lucky. He got his 1972 wish, as he noted in "Bifocals" last week.

I haven't had time to look up, as he asked, that massive editorial page effort of 14 years ago — the one where we proposed a host of election reforms. It's in the microfilm, someplace.

Been too busy. Tracking down gubernatorial candidates... working on the League of Women Voters guide to candidates for state senator, state representative, county commissioner, circuit judge and the rest... helping a brother editor with a goofy district judge race... filing away for September the announcements of candidates for secretary of state and Michigan Supreme Court... praying the education board candidates will stay away... figuring out whom to vote for in my own districts and precinct.

BY NOW you've guessed what I proposed: a shorter ballot.

Under my federal government, we would have a parliamentary system. Instead of voting for five federal offices (president-vice president, two senators, one representative), we'd vote for just a member of Congress. The voters wouldn't be able to exercise their massive sense of humor by electing a president of one party and a Congress of another. One party would get the credit/blame.

Under my Michigan government, we wouldn't have to pick 51 state officeholders — governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, attorney general, eight for the state Board of Education, eight for the University of Michigan, eight for Michigan State, eight for Wayne State, seven for the Supreme Court, six for the Court of Appeals, one for the state Senate and one for the state House.

Nope. We'd have a one-house legislature, with plenty of staff help, and a parliamentary system for picking the governor. Again, the voters couldn't whimsically screw up the works by picking the governor from one party and either or both houses of the Legislature from the other party.

The other characters would be appointed.

Same deal in county government. No more fussing around with drain commissioner, prosecutor, clerk, register of deeds and all that.

JUDICIAL RACES, in particular, bug me. Lawyers are so unethical that they have a canon of ethics to enforce their lack of ethics. Here is Canon 7 B 1(c):

"A candidate, including an incumbent judge, for a judicial office... should not make pledges or promises of conduct in office other than the faithful and impartial performance of the duties of the office."

In short, they can't — and don't — discuss anything of substance. Take, for example, the death penalty. I would like to know whether a judicial candidate is so cocksure of his/her own ability as to be able to sentence another human being to the electric chair.

Civic Searchlight asked some candidates that question, and the candidates said they couldn't discuss it.

Nope, Fred, they didn't follow my suggestions. It's worse. We've added county executives and a few judges and haven't even dumped the drain commissioner yet.

This grocer has a long history of success

THE BILLY MARTIN of the food industry may soon be on the move again as an outgrowth of all the turmoil within the Chatham Supermarket chain, and if so I'll gamble that he will land on both feet, scrappy and well paid — just like his baseball counterpart.

It has been just under 15 months since golden boy Wendell Smith came back to his native Michigan as chairman, president and co-owner of newly formed Nu-Trax Inc., announcing purchase of the then 41-store Chatham empire for a reported $17 million.

BESET BY unanticipated financial woes, the once proud empire came apart at the seams as store after store had to be closed and sold. Whether any will remain open after this week is a matter of day-to-day conjecture.

Smith still is president of Nu-Trax, but he has no control. That rests entirely with Alex Dandy, the new board chairman who has an option to buy out Smith and his partners. Dandy owns the Hamady Supermarket group based in Flint, as well as other stores in the Saginaw area, and well over a year ago was approached relative to a possible merger with Chatham. Now he's trying to save a sinking ship.

I DON'T know any more about the supermarket business than one can through bifocals

learn by pushing a grocery cart down the aisles, and I won't lose any sleep over whether my neighborhood Chatham store operates under that or some other logo. The angle that has intrigued me from the start deals with this Smith fellow; just who is he?

If you're about his same age, 52, you quite likely know him — or of him — and definitely you do if you were active in the Jaycees of your community in the '60s. Many of you also know his wife, Margaret.

A small town boy from up Hemlock way, Wendell found her on the Michigan State University campus and wooed her into a marriage that took her from her beloved Birmingham where her father, Dwight Ireland, served as superintendent of schools for about 20 years. As Mrs. Smith, she has moved 17 times.

A Spartan graduate of '55, Smith was hired by Kroger as a management trainee and was assigned to a Kroger store on Forest Avenue in Plymouth. He bagged groceries, dusted the shelves and within 13 years was zone manager over 11 stores in the Detroit area doing a weekly sales volume of $500,000.

Not only did the Smiths set up house-keeping in Plymouth, Wendell also joined the Plymouth Jaycees. In the same fast-paced manner that saw him elected to office in 23 campus organizations at MSU, it was inevitable that he would rise to the presidency of that local Jaycee unit.

THAT WAS in 1963, but did he stop there? Of course not. In 1966 he was chosen president of the Michigan Jaycees, and a year later as one of the national vice presidents.

In the national convention of 1968, with seven candidates in the contest and after more than 20 ballots, Wendell Smith was elected president of the United States Jaycees and his world changed. This was a one year's full-time job, headquartered in Tulsa, Okla., and so Wendell quit Kroger and never looked back.

He was 34 and king of the hill. You will recognize some of these names among fellow junior lightningbugs of that era who helped put him there: Pat Nowak, Terry West, Jack Duggan, Roy Jacobson, Ray Steele and Don Sharritt.

When he returned to real life in 1969, Smith went with Colonial Stores Inc., working four years out of Cincinnati, Columbus and St. Petersburg. Then came three years with P.A. & S. Small Co. of York, Pa. Next there was a four-year stint with Louis Lehrman & Son Inc., at Shiresmantown, Pa.

A year on the payroll of Liberal Markets Inc. at Dayton was followed by four in Chicago as president and chief executive officer of Certified Grocers of Illinois, Inc., with an annual salary well into six digits.

THESE WERE tough, creative positions. Tough decisions were worth heavy dollars. Wendell was a firefighter, brought aboard to boost business. He recalls that in a couple of instances he saw it triple, but always he was an employee. Always there was a gnawing in his innards to come back to Michigan as the boss.

When he put together the combine that bought Chatham in May 1985, that aspiration became a reality. The three children born to Margaret were all adults by now and when they visit their parents it's in an elite hilltop neighborhood in Plymouth Township which a Korger trainee never could have afforded as a bagboy 31 years ago.

Wendell always has been a go-getter, one of those guys who can crank it up as he goes through a day trying to be two places at once — and sometimes succeeding. As his house of entrepreneurial cards comes tumbling down, he insisted to me a few days ago, "This thing isn't over. I'm not very optimistic, but it isn't over."

He's a realist who still can laugh easily, who swears as often as he laughs, and who is booked often across the nation by business groups who want a motivational speaker. Even if the Chatham dream goes down the tube completely, he says, "I never will retire."

Just one bit of advice, Sir Smith: Your feeling for Michigan and the food industry is great to behold. But as they say around race tracks, "Don't fall in love with your horse; you may have to eat the SOB some day."

Communism - danger to freedom

To the editor:

I am appalled at our country's attitude toward the friendly nation of South Africa and can longer remain silent on this issue.

South Africa is a pro-western, anti-Communist country. While I do not support "apartheid," I believe the danger to freedom everywhere is international communism, not South Africa.

If we are so concerned about the "human rights" of blacks in other countries, why have the hundreds of thousands of Ethiopians who have been murdered by their own Marxist government been ignored? What about the more than 1 million Afghans murdered by the Soviets?

Both our government and news media ignore or minimize atrocities committed by Communists, while working to turn another pro-western country over to the Communist bloc. Does anyone honestly believe South Africa will be "better off" under communism like the blacks of Ethiopia?

The majority of blacks killed by violence in South Africa have been killed because they did not support the Communist "Freedom Fighters" . . . murdered by the criminals our government and news media now openly support.

I BELIEVE that what is happening in Washington with regard to South Africa constitutes giving aid and comfort to our nation's enemies, which amounts to treason. South Africa is the only country in the free world from which certain rare metals are found. These metals are vital to American defense. Thus, our present policy toward this friendly nation is suicidal as well as cowardly and treasonous.

We have systematically sold out one friend after another to the Reds (e.g. Eastern Europe, China, Cuba, Nicaragua, etc.). When will this policy of aiding Communists end? Will South Africa be next?

Local teens need something to do

To the editor:

I would like to make a few comments regarding the article on the front page of the July 10 Plymouth Observer about teens loitering at night in downtown Plymouth.

I have two teen-agers who have lived in Plymouth most of their lives. Thankfully, they are both living responsible lives. However, when they were growing up, I always lamented the lack of recreational things for them to do in Plymouth. (At least I was unaware of anything that didn't cost something.)

Now that they are teen-agers, they have from time to time complained that there is nothing to do at night in Plymouth except "cruise around."

Why can't an alternative to "loitering" be created for teen-agers? It is a basic axiom in life; you can't take something away without providing a substitute. There already exist some good programs for teens like Growth Works.

Perhaps some comments from teen-agers themselves in designing some kind of reasonable solution could be encouraged in your newspaper and ways of funding such a thing investigated.

Does anyone care about the kids themselves?

Susan Crawley, Canton

Aug. 5 primary is an important one

To the editor:

The upcoming Aug. 5 primary election is an important one for all voters. In this election, candidates are elected to represent the major parties on the November ballot for governor, U.S. representative, state Senate, state representative, Wayne County executive and Wayne County commissioner.

You will also be electing precinct delegates to the major party conventions who in turn will determine who the candidates for president will be in 1988.

This year, Canton Township will be using the punch-card voting system. Please take time to understand this new system. In order for your vote to count, you may only vote for one party from governor to precinct delegate.

If you cross over, the complete partisan part of the ballot will be void when it is tabulated by the computer. There will be an election worker at each polling location to completely explain the system and you may even practice on a sample ballot. Aside from the partisan part of the ballot, there are also non-partisan candidates and the Canton Public Library millage issue.

We encourage each registered voter to exercise his/her right to vote on Tuesday, Aug. 5. Absentee ballots are available at the township clerk's office.

Elaine J. Kirchgatter, president, Canton Republican Club

Power praised for aiding jobless

By Teri Banas
staff writer

Philip H. Power, chairman of Suburban Communications Corp., parent company of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, has been named "Business Volunteer of the Year" by the National Alliance of Business in Washington, D.C.

Power was recognized for his part in organizing the Governor's Office for Job Training and creating its overseeing body, the 55-member Michigan Job Training Coordinating Council, which he has chaired since its inception three years ago.

"When you look at the qualities of a candidate, you first must look at how well the state has done," said the national business group's president, William H. Kolberg, about Power's nomination. "Clearly, this has been an important body in coordinating economic development activities with job training around the state, which is outstanding."

"The bottom line is what we look to spotlight are those people who have spent a lot of time, a lot of their talent and a lot of their creativity to make this system work differently than in the past. Phil Power sure has done that."

THE MICHIGAN program's executive director Joseph Forbes said more than 100,000 people have been trained or retrained and found jobs since the program was created to replace the federal CETA (Comprehensive Employment Training Act) program in 1983.

"This award Phil received is well deserved. He's a volunteer and a half," said Forbes. "He's taken this coordinating council and, even though it's volunteer, he's made a full-time habit out of it."

Under the federal Job Training Partnership Act, the coordinating council runs programs to train displaced and older workers. With state dollars, the governor's office runs the so-called M-Job Retraining program through community colleges and the M-Job Upgrade Program for small businesses of 500 employees or less. The Bureau of Industrial Training is attached to that office.

According to Forbes, the office is refining an Employee Ownership Program for industry and has a Plant Closing Program. It has worked with the three major automakers in Michigan. With that, efforts are focused on Chrysler's Jefferson Avenue plant in Detroit where employees are upgrading their skills to avoid dislocation.

AMONG ITS more difficult organizational tasks has been coordinating activities with 41 identified job training programs across Michigan in 11 different agencies.

"There's still 200,000 unemployed in Michigan so we still have a lot of work to do," Forbes said.

Power, an Ann Arbor resident, was nominated for the award by Gov. James Blanchard — the man who assigned him to create a coordinating council for the new jobs program even though Power, as he acknowledges, had "no knowledge of job training." Blanchard considered the program a "highest priority" and "at the core of getting (the economy) out of these boom and bust cycles," Power recalled.

Power discerned that "little imagination" had been used in this field and decided that something "imaginative, bold and far-reaching" was needed. To start, his group removed the operation from the labor department and worked to create a smaller, separate organization similar to a "think tank" for developing policies and new job training plans.

'It's far better to upgrade someone's skills while they're still working, rather than to do it after they've been laid off and have had their lives broken up.'

Philip Power award recipient

"So, I proposed the governor's office for job training," he said.

As to the future, Power said, the goals into the 1990s will include identifying employment needs to properly train workers.

"Employers now say they need certain kinds of skills. And we know by the year 2000 they will need different skills. Our job is to find that out and work with the education and job training system in the state," he said.

One example of the results of the industrial retraining programs initiated under this office involved training auto workers to statistical procedural controls, a necessary ingredient to industry's "Just In Time" programs.

"It's far better to upgrade someone's skills while they're still working, rather than to do it after they've been laid off and have their lives broken up," Power said.

Blast off

Lawrence Stackpoole's (right) summer TAG class at Schoolcraft College ended with a blast last week. Some 15 students enrolled in the "Talented and Gifted" program watched as student Dave Mitchell lit a rocket that then headed skyward.

Commissioner fired over drain issue

County commissioner Clarence Young charged that "vindictiveness" and political foul play led to his ouster as chairman of the county commission's Ways and Means Committee.

Young said he was removed from the chairmanship by county commission chairman John Hertel because he opposes eliminating the office of county drain commissioner.

Young, though, said he would not seek support from other board members to become reinstated.

Hertel ordered Young from his chairmanship last week to thwart a move Young and county Drain Commissioner Charles Youngblood were planning — to seek a court injunction against the November ballot issue.

ON TUESDAY, Hertel appointed commissioner Curt Boller of Brownstown Township as ways and means chairman. As chairman of that committee, Boller automatically joins Hertel and Youngblood on the three-member county Drain Board.

In a letter Young sent Hertel Monday, he complained that the ouster was a "childish, vindictive act (that was) timed to create a much needed issue in (Hertel's) lagging race for county executive."

He stated that his "constitutional right to vote my conscience" was violated.

Some county figures have suggested that Young is interested in succeeding Youngblood as drain commissioner if the job is not eliminated.

Hertel said he tried several times to get Young "to change his vote and stop the lawsuit."

He said he particularly opposed Young and Youngblood's attempt to use $50,000 in funds from drainage districts in assessed in Allen Park, Lincoln Park, Taylor and Dearborn Heights to use for legal counsel on their behalf.

Neighbors reach for acceptance

Time and understanding erode prejudices. When Jim and Denise Fedorko's neighbors heard in 1980 that six mentally retarded adults were moving into a home on the block, they didn't know what to expect. Like homeowners in so many other communities, Roundtable East residents worried about the effect on their neighborhood. Some argued that a group home on the block would bring property values down, group home residents would roam the streets and their children would be endangered. They reacted as did residents in a lot of other neighborhoods throughout the state. Although media coverage has increased in the past decade, group homes are not new. Mentally retarded adults in Michigan have been placed in group homes since the late 1940s.

BUT THE majority of placements from institutions to group homes has been in the last 15 years, according to Thomas DeLoach, Department of Mental Health communication officer.

"When we develop a group home in a community where there are no other group homes, to that community it's a brand new concept, DeLoach said.

"It's been an evolutionary process over four decades in which the state and local mental health agencies say there's a better way to treat people than to send them off to a massive facility setting and imagine that they will live a normal life."

Negative reaction to group homes seems to be waning. Perhaps by understanding and accepting another group into the mainstream, we're reaching a new level of maturity as a society.

TODAY THERE are less than 2,000 developmentally disabled people living in state centers, DeLoach said. The figures have fallen from 11,000 in 1960 and 6,500 in 1975.

In 1974 the state Mental Health Code outlined the rights of the mentally handicapped. It says the person must be treated in the least restrictive setting possible.

The Fedorko's were lauded for extending a hand to their developmentally disabled neighbors. Their kindness and generosity is one of a number of success stories.

Some of the bigger stories are the hurdles the individuals in the group homes are clearing. Many group home residents have been given their first chance to live outside an institution.

Employees at Wayne Community Living Services, responsible for developing group homes in Wayne County, refer to placements from institutions as the "normalization" process.

NORMALIZATION simply means giving the developmentally disabled a chance to live like most of us live. Group homes offer the simple things in life that we often take for granted.

"We're saying that just because they're retarded they shouldn't be put away, and have to wear the same clothes as everyone else," Mogos said.

"The mentally retarded are more like us than not like us. They have the same needs that we have. They should be able to say this is my home, this is my bedroom and this is my kitchen. The group homes give them dignity, respect and an understanding that they're people with disabilities."

THE PRINCIPLE of normalization was adopted by the United Nations in the early 1970s, DeLoach said.

"It's typical now that if we send out 100 letters to residents in the neighborhood that between five and 10 people show up," said Denise Mogos, Wayne Community Living Services acting director of public affairs.

This is quite a switch from the days when residents packed meetings held by the state mental health department to outline how group homes operate.

"I think a lot of people understand the issues now," Mogos said.

Kids strut stuff, kill time at malls

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

A MIDST A WATER fountain and a multitude of stores lies a teen-age oasis.

The shopping mall for them offers shelter from the blistering sun and a summer filled with tedium. They come dressed for the occasion, some looking like fashion models for summer wear.

Others look like beach boys without a wave. Some even resemble candidates for mercenary school, dressed in Rambo-like fatigues.

They dine on such delicacies as soggy cheese pretzels and frozen Cokes.

What these people, ages 8 to 18, actually do in the mall takes many variations. Some sit in prime spots to see or be seen. Others wander about, darting into an occasional record or clothing store.

BUT for Steve Pietryka and Tommy Maxwell, both of Livonia, going to the mall takes on a new meaning. The pair, who live within walking distance, come down to the Livonia Mall "every day."

First on their agenda for the day is to buy an 89-cent slush that comes in a Kansas City Royals cup. Then they each buy a quarter-sized spherical object for a dime called a "goofy ball."

Pietryka, 11, and Maxwell, 8, spend the rest of the afternoon bouncing their newly bought ball off the walls.

"I've got about 20 of these at home," said Pietryka, the self-appointed spokesman of the two. "If they catch you throwing the ball, they kick you out."

They, being the security guard, makes an appearance while Pietryka and Maxwell are demonstrating their art. The balls disappear as quickly as the angelic smiles appear on their faces.

Once the security guard passes, it's back to the business of ball bouncing.

Pietryka and Maxwell might take in a show at the cinema or play a video game. But those run a distant second to bouncing the ball off the wall and catching it.

"IT (catching the erratic bouncing ball) helps you if you play baseball," said Pietryka.

Other young people who wander the malls brush up on other skills, like their keen scoping abilities for members of the opposite sex.

The key is finding a strategic spot to observe, preferably near an entrance or a fountain.

Nikki Ungvari and Heather Gerard, both of Redford, are camped near the fountain at the Livonia Mall. They would appear to fit the description of persons on the lookout, except Ungvari and Gerard look somewhat bored.

"We ran out of money," said Ungvari, munching on a cheese-coated soft pretzel. "So we have nothing to do. My sister is coming to pick us up."

That's not to say they don't take a peek now and then.

"Sometimes," said Gerard who, like Ungvari, goes to Pierce Junior High in Redford. "There's a lot more (boys) at Fairlane."

A group perched near the entrance let out a chorus of reasons for why they're at the mall.

"It's too hot, it's air conditioned here. Nothing better to do. We don't like to sit home alone," they say in unison.

But Mike Radeback, Craig Stacer, Rob Wushel, Don Pascoe, Dave Speier and Jim Walling, all of Livonia, nod a collective yes when it comes to watching for girls. They said they've been known to sit 1 1/2 hours on the same bench.

SHOPPING, for these guys, takes a back seat.

Family honored for 'everyday' helpfulness

By Diane Gale
staff writer

When Jim and Denise Fedorko of Canton heard six mentally retarded adults would be moving into a group home next door they were "shocked" and worried.

Six years later, the family was named "Neighbor of the Year - Community Person" by the Awareness Communication Team for the Developmentally Disabled in recognition of their relationship with staff and group home residents.

"I really didn't know what the group homes were all about," said Jim Fedorko, recalling what he thought when he first heard about the home.

"It was a fairly new concept at the time."

Before the group home was established in July 1980, Jim and Denise attended a meeting with representatives from the Department of Mental Health to discuss neighborhood concerns. Jim Fedorko, a medical technologist, said the problems residents predicted would result never materialized.

HE RECALLED the comments "people hollered about." The group home residents would be "running around the neighborhood," property values would plummet and the home would be neglected.

Shopping malls serve as haven for teens

money," said Pascoe, who goes to Livonia Stevenson.

For some, though, shopping is why they're at the mall. Lisa Starrett and Michelle Randazzo, both of Canton, find clothing stores their favorite.

It's obvious, by the way they're dressed, that fashion is on their minds.

Randazzo wears white baggy pants, a cotton shirt and sandals. Starrett has on a striped cotton shirt with baggy pants.

Also in fashion for teen-age girls are tank tops covered with a loose fitting sweater, like that worn by Janet Davis of Canton. Davis wears a pair of silk shorts with a plastic-type sandal called, aptly enough, jelly shoes.

For the boys, all that's missing is a surfboard.

Ed Fair of Westland, who's dressed in a pair of Bermuda shorts, a sport shirt, and a pair of court shoes (sans socks of course), is a quintessential example of today's male fashion.

And, the item that polishes the whole image off is a pair of sunglasses that hang off his chest.

EACH item is carefully chosen. The first matter of business is the "shorts," which are measured in coolness by how close they come in contact with the kneecaps.

They come in a wide range of patterns and colors that would make even Andy Warhol wince. The louder design the better.

"Then you just find an old shirt that matches... Real carefully."

said Fair, a Westland John Glenn High School student.

The mall, Fair jokingly said, is a place to go "when your parents kick you out of the house."

For the most part, though, it's a place to shop and socialize. The sad truth is some of them appear to have nothing better to do.

Angie Towne of Livonia sums up with the lyric in the Billy Joel song "Italian Restaurant," which refers to an old teenage hangout — once you leave you can never come back.

"I used to come up here every day," said Towne, 16, who attends Livonia Stevenson. "Now I come up here about once a week. Everybody used to come here. Now they don't. It's kind of boring."

Canton family awarded for being a helpful neighbor

It didn't turn out that way. The house is one of the best kept on Roundtable East, he said, and the group home residents are prohibited from walking through the subdivision without supervision.

"Actually, I think it's really great that they're (the state) getting them out of the institutions," said Jim Fedorko, citing differences between institutions and group homes.

One of the residents had never seen a mail box before, he said. And most of the men didn't know what it meant to own their clothes. He tells of one resident who had all his teeth pulled, because he ate too much.

"It's surprising the stories they tell about institutions," he added.

The Fedorko's have three children, Benjamin, 6, Carolyn, 10, and Katy, 2.

"I wondered about our kids," said Denise Fedorko, a public school teacher for learning and emotionally disabled children. "We worried about how that would work out."

Now, her children often go next door and visit the residents, she said, and the "guys like to watch the kids."

ALL SIX men in the group home were present to congratulate the Fedorko's during a luncheon last month at the Southfield Hilton. Supervisor James Poole also awarded the family a certificate of appreciation from the township.

"When people nominate others for the award, they think there has to be a miraculous happening," said Denise Mogos, acting director of public affairs for Wayne Community Living Services, which develops small group homes and provides services.

"But in this case it was just the everyday happenings," said Mogos, who is also a member of ACT/DD. "There's nothing heroic about this story. They were just looking to be a good neighbor."

Filling that description meant being available when someone from the home needed help. The Fedorkos named a few instances like helping a worker start the furnace, lending cooking goods and decorating a Christmas tree together.

"It's just the sort of thing that you do for any neighbor," Jim Fedorko said.

The perfectly natural answer

After breast surgery, the choice of a bra is one of the most important decisions you will make. You want a bra that looks and feels like a natural breast. A bra that can wear comfortably all day long. A bra that supports your breasts properly. A bra that makes you feel confident and beautiful.

That's why you want the Angela feature: a Camp. The outside has a velvety surface that is soft to the touch, yet the backing is firm and supportive to fit securely and comfortably. It's the perfect answer to your very special need.

Leagues of Women Voters of Wayne County

VOTERS IN Wayne County and across Michigan will go to the polls Tuesday, Aug. 5, to nominate candidates in Democratic and Republican primaries for partisan offices.

These include governor, U.S. representative, Wayne County executive and Wayne County commissioner. Voters in the Republican primary will pick precinct delegates for county conventions.

Winners of primaries will square off in the Nov. 4 general election when they will be joined by "minor party" candidates. (Minor parties pick their candidates at conventions.)

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. You need not declare your party affiliation prior to entering the voting booth. You may vote in either party's primary — but not in both. If you attempt to vote in both parties' primaries, your ballot can be invalidated.

AS A VOTER education project, the Leagues of Women Voters in Wayne County have prepared this guide.

The League of Women Voters is a national organization founded in 1920 to encourage citizen participation in government. It never supports or opposes any political party or candidate, but it does make an effort to obtain factual non-partisan information on candidates' viewpoints and on ballot issues.

Publication of statements and opinions of candidates is in no way to be considered an endorsement by the League of Women Voters.

The League of Women Voters takes no responsibility for any of the views or facts stated by the candidates. Biographical information and answers to questions were secured by letter. The answers are in the candidates' own words and have not been edited except for removal of articles (e.g., an, the) or the use of an ellipsis ( . . . ) in the event that these measures were necessary to comply with the stated word limitation of 50 words per question.

County executive candidates address LWV election issues

Gerald Edward Berg, 29
700 Whitmore,
Detroit
Democrat

Political/economic consultant; attended colleges in St. Louis and Baltimore; studied economics in association with Lyndon LaRouche; Detroit City Council candidate on anti-casino Save Detroit Industry slate, 1983; 1984 Illinois congressional candidate; campaign adviser, January-April 1986 to Mark Fairchild, Democratic nominee Illinois lieutenant governor.

1. What needs to be done to balance the county budget? Where are reductions possible or advisable and/or should revenues be increased?
The simple moral way to avoid budget cuts is: 1) Declare laundering of dope money by banks a crime (currently only misreporting is illegal — a misdemeanor). 2) Seize all laundered money. 3) Apply those billion dollars toward a "Marshall Plan" for southeast Michigan.

2. How has the sale of Wayne County General Hospital affected the medically indigent? What do you feel is Wayne County's responsibility for health care?
County responsibilities for health care have grown dramatically with the governor's limp-wristed refusal to enforce reporting, testing and quarantine law regarding deadly tropical virus AIDS. An open-ended public health budget for testing and medical quarantine is urgent to meet mushrooming threat to entire population.

3. What areas in the Wayne County Charter need to be amended to enable you to work comfortably within its framework?
The charter's mandatory debt service appropriation is immoral — like federal Gramm-Rudman law is. Putting debt-payment-first-no-matter-what may soon conflict with duty to promote public health, well-being. Government debt outlays are only spending really growing and should be first sacrificed in crisis.

4. What can be done to improve maintenance of county roads and parks?
Only more men and equipment for roads and parks could improve conditions. That takes money. An all-out war on drugs and drug-money could both generate that money — by seizing the laundered billions — and cure the epidemic of pessimism and crime that thrives on dope economy.

Robert A. Ficano, 33
19783 Gary Lane, Livonia
Democrat

B.A. Michigan State University; law degree, University of Detroit; private law practice 1977-1981; deputy county clerk 1981-1982; sheriff of Wayne County 1982 to present; governor's appointee to Michigan Corrections Council; former president of Metro Police Crippled Children's Society; member of Jaycees, Optimists, other civic organizations; married, two children.

1. What needs to be done to balance the county budget? Where are reductions possible or advisable and/or should revenues be increased?
Agreement by all parties, management, labor and elected officials as to the county's debt must be reached. Economic development and fighting crime must be the basis for fiscal decisions. Privately funded projects such as double-bunking of the new jail and confiscated narcotics money must be utilized.

2. How has the sale of Wayne County General Hospital affected the medically indigent? What do you feel is Wayne County's responsibility for health care?
The county underestimated indigent health costs. The state assumed patient care management program costs of up to $19.5 million a year. The county must live up to its responsibility of providing indigent health care. No real savings are realized as the county has failed to live within the agreed budget.

3. What areas in the Wayne County Charter need to be amended to enable you to work comfortably within its framework?
Charters, like constitutions, should only be amended after thorough deliberation. There is an approved November ballot proposal to eliminate the county drain commissioner as an elected office. This course of action is unnecessary. The commissioners have the power to remove the drain commissioners from office for reasons of malfeasance.

4. What can be done to improve maintenance of county roads and parks?
Proper maintenance of county roads and parks adds to the quality of neighborhoods and increases the overall outlook for economic development. Our Alternative Work Force program utilizes inmates to clean up debris in parks. Other areas of focus for maintenance include roads and public buildings.

Member 15th Congressional District and State Democratic Party, Tri-County Democratic Club, Association of Treasurers Wayne County, formerly Chairman National Honor Society, Special Olympics Committee and Ford Motor Company Advisory Board.

1. What needs to be done to balance the county budget? Where are reductions possible or advisable and/or should revenues be increased?
County must be run like a business in that we cannot spend more than we take in. We have reviewed county budget and have found many areas where sound financial management would be very cost effective. We shall review all department operations to make them more cost efficient.

2. How has the sale of Wayne County General Hospital affected the medically indigent? What do you feel is Wayne County's responsibility for health care?
We shall review the practices of all county social services. Where we are lacking services (i.e. indigent care) we shall possibly coordinate our efforts with the PCHA to meet the needs of those who "are in need."

3. What areas in the Wayne County Charter need to be amended to enable you to work comfortably within its framework?
A total restructuring of Drain Commissioner's office. Amend the county charter to bring all commissions under the board of commissioners. We shall form a citizens watch-dog committee to assist in identifying irregularities in government. Findings will be reported to State Attorney General, State Treasurer and if necessary, the FBI.

4. What can be done to improve maintenance of county roads and parks?
There must be a workable and fair plan implemented county wide for our roads and parks. Recreational facilities should be upgraded through a long-range plan for economic development. Our Alternative Work Force program utilizes inmates to clean up debris in parks. Other areas of focus for maintenance include roads and public buildings.

John C. Hertel, 39
19914 Helen,
Harper Woods
Democrat

Lifelong resident of Wayne County. Married (Janice Amorillo), two children. Wayne State University political science major. B.S. degree, teaching certificate (1969). Denby High School (1965), present chairman, Wayne County Commission, Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority. Serving 6-year term Wayne County representative. Re-elected chairman for 2nd term (June 1986). Present-professor, LIT (since 1976). Michigan State Senator 1974-1982.

1. What needs to be done to balance the county budget? Where are reductions possible or advisable and/or should revenues be increased?
We do not need to raise taxes. I would request corporations to donate their efficiency experts to oversee all county departments for 6 months to identify waste in county government. I would also consolidate the county clerk's office with the register of deeds department. County government must be more businesslike.

2. How has the sale of Wayne County General Hospital affected the medically indigent? What do you feel is Wayne County's responsibility for health care?
It has improved the delivery of care by creating satellite offices where the people live. It has saved the county government $1.8 million in annual losses. The county has the responsibility to help those who truly cannot help themselves with their serious health difficulties.

3. What areas in the Wayne County Charter need to be amended to enable you to work comfortably within its framework?
I sponsored two amendments to the county charter. The elimination of the road commission and the elimination of the drain commissioner. Each of these were necessary to save taxpayers millions of dollars. The charter will now be an excellent working document for good county government.

4. What can be done to improve maintenance of county roads and parks?
The appointment of department heads whose major goals are to serve the public, rather than their own political careers. Some county parks can be transferred to the Huron Clinton Park Authority. This will save county tax dollars and HCMA will run them more actively and efficiently.

Edward H. McNamara, 59
16501 Park,
Livonia
Democrat

1954-1959 president, Dearborn Township School Board; 1962-1970 member, Livonia City Council; 1970 to present, mayor, city of Livonia; 1970, Democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor, past president of the Michigan Municipal League, Michigan Conference of Mayors, and Conference of Western Wayne.

1. What needs to be done to balance the county budget? Where are reductions possible or advisable and/or should revenues be increased?
Taxes must not be raised. The county must live within its present funding level until an aggressive and systematic effort to bring in new businesses bears fruit. In Livonia, we have brought in 600 new businesses since I have been mayor which resulted in millions in new revenue.

2. How has the sale of Wayne County General Hospital affected the medically indigent? What do you feel is Wayne County's responsibility for health care?
Dollars spent on indigent hospitalization have more than doubled since the hospital closed so it cannot fairly be said that health care has suffered. I would like to see the county refocus its priorities and allocate a greater share of spending to preventing infant mortality.

3. What areas in the Wayne County Charter need to be amended to enable you to work comfortably within its framework?
It is inexcusable that the county has no overall economic development plan and no agency in charge of coordinating all aspects of business recruitment and assistance. That needs to be corrected either by change in charter or the county reorganization plan.

4. What can be done to improve maintenance of county roads and parks?
We need to take much of the money being used to fill bureaucrats' chairs and put it into filling potholes. Parks will get greater priority in Wayne County under the McNamara administration.

Managed Bayview Yacht Club, private clubs, Botsford Inn. Member of American Association of Retired Persons, Moose, Legion.

1. What needs to be done to balance the county budget? Where are reductions possible or advisable and/or should revenues be increased?
No increase in revenue. Establish sound fiscal policies, with efficient administration. Stop the county commissioners from abolishing the drain commission. It is the least expensive to operate... cost will skyrocket as happened when they eliminated the Wayne County coroner's office and put in medical examiners and the costs multiply.

2. How has the sale of Wayne County General Hospital affected the medically indigent? What do you feel is Wayne County's responsibility for health care?
Selling off of hospital and bulldozing the buildings was a crime against county. For almost 90 some years it was haven for medically ill indigents, knowing that county cared and hospital was there. It is responsibility of county to take care of sick that cannot get medical care because of poverty.

3. What areas in the Wayne County Charter need to be amended to enable you to work comfortably within its framework?
Power of county commissioners and county executive must be curbed in regards to elective offices. County commissioners approves ballot proposal to eliminate drain commission office. With hearing evidence, without public hearings, court and legal appeals they voted eight to seven to put it on ballot to close down and eliminate office.

4. What can be done to improve maintenance of county roads and parks?
Hold off the funding of the various county clubs that are controlled by the county and use those monies for the parks and roads. There is a minority of people using these golf courses. The majority use the parks and roads.

Samuel A. Turner, 60
19401 Canterbury,
Detroit
Democrat

County commissioner, 14th year, attorney for more than 25 years, past president Michigan Association of Counties, served in practically every leadership capacity on board of commissioners including three terms as chairman. Initiated building of new county jail, county reorganization and court reorganization.

1. What needs to be done to balance the county budget? Where are reductions possible or advisable and/or should revenues be increased?
The county must restrict spending to the available resources. I do not favor further reduction of essential services. We can increase available revenue with more efficiency, technological improvement, better coordination of department operations. With improved employee morale, our productivity can be increased.

2. How has the sale of Wayne County General Hospital affected the medically indigent? What do you feel is Wayne County's responsibility for health care?
Sale of Wayne County General Hospital affected quality and delivery of services to medically indigent, most drastically in western Wayne County. Wayne County General cost was in area of $300 per patient day; the county is now paying $600. Present plan for indigent medical services does not meet appropriate standards.

3. What areas in the Wayne County Charter need to be amended to enable you to work comfortably within its framework?
I don't think charter needs to be amended at present time. When I was chairman of the board, I brought about some major changes in county government with only a fraction of the power county executive was given by charter. There are many challenges we have not met.

4. What can be done to improve maintenance of county roads and parks?
The department of public services has to be reexamined from perspective of goals and operations. It has to be made more efficient.

Frank Wilkerson, 49

Graduated Detroit's Northeastern High School 1955; Wayne State University 1963, majoring in psychology, University of Detroit School of Law, 1975, Juris Doctor Degree. Worked as Correctional Officer, Director of Treatment, Detroit House of Correction; Program Manager State of Michigan; Wayne County Jail Administrator and Assistant Wayne County Executive.

1. What needs to be done to balance the county budget? Where are reductions possible or advisable and/or should revenues be increased?
Severe cuts must be made in administrative costs that are unnecessary; last aspect of Court Reorganization must be completed, requiring Indigent Legal Fees, in excess of $5 million to be paid by the state. Payments for contractual services must be reduced to a minimum of $5 million in savings.

2. How has the sale of Wayne County General Hospital affected the medically indigent? What do you feel is Wayne County's responsibility for health care?
The sale of the hospital has saved taxpayers $18 million per year and medical indigents are receiving much better service by better management. Wayne County, by statute, is responsible for all environmental health, communicable diseases and eight other specific areas that cannot be provided by local government.

3. What areas in the Wayne County Charter need to be amended to enable you to work comfortably within its framework?
With the single exception of the elimination of the drain commission, the Charter, like our state and federal Constitution, should not be changed prematurely. No other changes, other than the drain commission, are necessary. The balance of power between the executive and legislative branches of government is essential.

4. What can be done to improve maintenance of county roads and parks?
A director must be appointed, from Western Wayne County, accountable to the executive and the citizens of Western Wayne County, to give constant attention to road maintenance. Our parks must be the best in the nation and budget decisions will be made to significantly increase funding for our park system.

KENNETH J. Roney Manor

Nursing Care with all the luxuries.

It's sad, but most nursing homes provide only the minimum required care and treatment. But at Kenneth J. Roney Manor, a brand-new nursing care facility serving the metro area, there is a different attitude. So-called "luxuries" like personal comfort, honest care, friendly companionship, and true rehabilitation are considered everyday necessities. Meeting special needs is also standard practice at Roney Manor. Referring physicians are asked to identify specific needs for each patient. Roney Manor is uniquely staffed and equipped to carry out such prescribed programs.

But nursing care patients need more than clinical care. They need a little love and someone to talk with. Activities to keep their minds stimulated. Physical therapy to keep muscles moving. Family visits to warm the heart. And nutritious meals. These are more Roney Manor "luxuries."

Roney Manor is affiliated with the internationally respected Detroit Medical Center, so quality is very closely supervised. And specialists are on call 24 hours a day.

The luxury of having someone truly care. It's the Roney Manor difference. Call Janet McEnhill for a personal tour and more information.

Congress cuts spending the 'old-fashioned way'

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll-call votes during the week ending July 18.

HOUSE

GRAMM-RUDMAN TEST — By a vote of 339 for and 72 against, the House adopted a resolution that reaffirmed the first round of budget cuts made under the new Gramm-Rudman-Hollings deficit reduction act.

The $111.7 billion in virtually across-the-board fiscal 1986 cuts was automatically triggered last March 1 by the Comptroller of the Currency, under the law as it stood then.

But the cuts were voided by the recent U.S. Supreme Court decision that the trigger mechanism breaches the Constitution's separation of powers, because it gives executive branch authority to an official subservient to Congress.

So for the foreseeable future, at least, Congress must inflict the periodic Gramm-Rudman cuts by what Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif., terms "The old-fashioned way — by voting for them."

This was the first such vote, with the next vote on Gramm-Rudman cuts affecting hundreds of programs likely to occur in October.

Critics say the substitution of record votes for an anonymous, automatic trigger will doom Gramm-Rudman, because too many lawmakers lack the courage to vote repeatedly to offend special interests and constituent groups.

Members voting yes supported the first round of Gramm-Rudman cuts.

Voting yes: Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, Dennis Hertel, D-Harper

Exec candidates appear in Taylor

The 15th Congressional Young Democrats Club is hosting a forum of candidates for Wayne County executive 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, July 30, in Taylor.

The forum will take place in the UAW Region 1AE hall, 9650 S. Telegraph.

Candidates will answer questions prepared by the Young Democrats as well as questions taken from the audience. One hour has been allocated for the question and answer session.

Roll Call Report

WOODS, William Ford, D-Taylor, Sander Levin, D-Southfield, William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

LEGAL SERVICES CORP. — By a vote of 103 for and 278 against, the House rejected an amendment to kill the Legal Services Corp. by eliminating its proposed budget for fiscal 1987.

The vote left $305.5 million for the agency in the 1987 appropriations bill for the judiciary and the departments of State, Justice and commerce and related agencies. The $13 billion spending bill (HR 5161) was sent to the Senate.

President Reagan wants to terminate the agency, through which taxpayers provide legal assistance to the poor. But the House has increased its 1987 budget by $13.1 million over the previous year.

Members voting yes wanted to eliminate the Legal Services Corp. Voting no: Pursell, Hertel, Ford, Levin, and Broomfield.

TO CRIPPLE EDA — By a vote of 108 for and 302 against, the House rejected an amendment to cripple the Economic Development Administration by eliminating most of its fiscal operating budget.

President Reagan has long wanted to terminate the agency, which has targeted federal grants and loan guarantees to the most depressed areas of the country. The administration argues these areas will benefit from "the rising tide" of economic recovery brought about by the president's policies.

Under this amendment, virtually all money for public works grants and related development projects, some $190 million, would have been deleted from the 1987 EDA appropriation. The vote occurred during debate on HR 5161 (above).

Members voting yes wanted to virtually kill the Economic Development Administration.

Voting no: Pursell, Hertel, William Ford, Levin, Broomfield

SENATE

TREATY WITH BRITAIN — The Senate ratified, 87 for and 10 against, a treaty with Britain under which Irish Republican Army members who are suspected terrorists can lose their safe haven in the United States and be extradited to Britain.

It sets a landmark precedent because it permits extradition even of those who claim their alleged crimes back home were politically motivated. This interrupts the American legal tradition, embedded in some 100 other extradition treaties, of harboring individuals whose crimes at home can be considered political crimes.

The pact with Britain is retroactive. The Senate vote finalized it because House concurrence is not required and president Reagan endorses the treaty. Supporters said the treaty was in order because acts of terror cannot be considered legitimate political dissent, while opponents said the American tradition of protecting political renegades from abroad should not be undermined.

Senators voting yes favored a treaty permitting IRA members accused of terrorist crimes to be extradited to Britain. Voting yes were Michigan Democrats Carl Levin and Donald Riegle.

How to keep your digestion on track

Your digestive system performs the amazing task of breaking down the food you eat into the nutrients your body needs. As you grow older, you may occasionally have a digestive problem.

To keep the system at its best, you may want to follow these do's and don'ts recommended by the National Institute on Aging.

• Do eat a well-balanced diet that includes a variety of fresh fruits, vegetables and whole grain products.

• Don't gobble your food. Eat slowly and whenever possible try to relax for 30 minutes after each meal.

• Do exercise regularly, with your doctor's consent.

• Don't have large amounts of caffeine.

• Do use caution when taking over-the-counter drugs.

Pets of Week

Looking for good homes are these two feline friends, named Fred (left) and Ethel. Fred, a neutered gray-and-white housecat, 1½ years old, and Ethel, a 14-month-old tiger cat, are available through the Humane Society of Southeastern Michigan. They're located at Livonia's Kershaw Animal Hospital (421-7878). The cats have had their shots.

He puts cars in fine-art perspective

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

N GRAY COUNTS of Clarkston is one of the newest names in that rather select group of artists who use cars for subject matter.

He ventured into the field for the first time at the 1985 Concours d'Elegance (Meadow Brook Hall) as one of the dozen artists nationwide showing their paintings of cars in the gallery area in the big tent.

This year, Counts, a full-time designer with GM, was invited to do the painting for the Concours poster — an honor he couldn't refuse.

But he knew from the time it took last year, the extent of his commitment as well as that of his family.

"I've always loved to paint, but you don't have time for this kind of stuff when you're working, raising a family, mowing the grass, putting in a garden. . . . A broad smile crossed his face as he listed responsibilities that typically accompany home, family and career.

TOM HALE OF Farmington Hills, also an artist specializing in car subjects and one of the major forces behind the Concours d'Elegance exhibitions, gets the credit for discovering and encouraging Counts.

He saw Counts' paintings of the theme vehicle for Disney World's Epcot Center in which Counts, creator and developer of the idea, had included some antique cars in the background.

"Tom Hale saw them in Florida and asked me if I would consider being in the Meadow Brook show. While I got ready for the show, the yard went to pot, my daughters put in the garden, but didn't realize you also have to care for it and weed it — it was quite a commitment on my family's part."

That was 1985, and Counts said he loved doing the paintings, but had spent vast amounts of spare time preparing them.

When Hale called him again last fall, it was to invite him to do the 1986 poster.

He and his wife hurried out to Meadow Brook Hall on a rainy October day to take exterior color photos for resource material. In January the Concours committee chose one of the three acrylic sketches he had submitted for the final poster painting.

COUNTS SAID of the finished painting for the poster, "It took nine weeks to do working non-stop."

He has completed about nine more which will be for sale at the Concours exhibition.

Counts does a good deal more than just paint pictures of exciting antique cars such as the Mercedes, Cadillac, Packard and Stutz Bearcat. He creates moods with light, shadows and backgrounds, does paintings within paintings and delights in giving himself artistic challenges in each work.

One of the latter is the yellow 1913 Stutz Bearcat on a dirt road with its reflection in the mud puddle.

He quickly found that a reflection in a mud puddle is far more than a mirror image. Colors have to take on a muddy hue and light refractions from the water and the angle alter the perspective dramatically.

IN ANOTHER ACRYLIC, Counts placed a 1931 Cadillac roadster at the corner of a house. But the house is more than a backdrop; it has a life and identity of its own, with neutral siding and long windows with sheer curtains. The car, actually a cream color, looks green because of the reflections of the bushes and trees in its super shiny exterior. This one, with right-hand drive, was actually made in Germany for a customer from Argentina.

N. Gray Counts worked nights for several months on the 1986 Concours d'Elegance poster art. In the foreground is Counts' conception of a 500K Mercedes-Benz, one of the priciest collector cars. In the background is the SSK Mercedes-Benz, customized for road travel. The racing version of the SSK, built in the late '20s, hit 130 mph.

Counts' painting of a 1927 Packard just coming out of a barn is an interesting study in light and dark.

"I like to play with color," he said.

He is extremely adept at reflections in the chrome headlights, trim and the shiny surfaces of the cars. These are the paintings within the painting, each a charming landscape or abstract design.

He said that the paint used on the restored antique cars is far superior to the original and is buffed and treated to produce a much higher sheen. And he capitalizes on the interplay of light and luster to add interest and vitality to his art.

As he describes each problem-solving situation in his paintings, he concludes with, "I really enjoyed it."

Being a nighttime fine artist demands sacrifices.

"There's no spare time," he said matter-of-factly. "We're a close family — we like to be together. That's the one thing I've missed, but I still try to do the best I can. Every night I don't even think about it. I just go down there (his home studio) to paint."

Yet, he seems to thrive on demands. It was a night class in rendering techniques at Wayne State that really started him on his design career. He finished his degree in Industrial Design there in 1962. He was in the Navy for three years "flying in and out of Vietnam" and after that moved his wife, Kay, and twin baby daughters to California so he could get a second degree in transportation design from the Art Center College of Design in Los Angeles.

Once that was accomplished they moved back to Michigan and he went to work for GM where he has been for 18 years.

Counts remembers that he's always been drawing — as a kid, airplanes, boats and landscapes, but not cars.

Now he's making up for that with a vengeance.

Mercedes featured at 8th Concours

The eighth annual Concours d'Elegance will be held 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 3, at Meadow Brook Hall, Oakland University, Rochester.

In addition to 194 prestige autos from 17 states and Canada, there will be an automotive art exhibition and an art auction.

Mercedes is this year's featured auto and a spectacular array of Mercedes autos is expected to be part of the show. The Mercedes company, celebrating its 100th year, created a three-wheeled engine-driven vehicle in 1886.

Among the cars visitors will see in the Mercedes circle will be a 1939 540 K Convertible Coupe, reportedly the last car produced by the plant in World War II — and rumored to be the exact car ordered by Hitler as a gift to Stalin. Another spectacular vehicle will be the Mercedes S-Touring.

The vintage autos to be displayed on the rolling landscape around the mansion include Auburns and Buicks as well as Marquies, Packards, Dusenbergs and Rolls Royces. There will be Jaguars, Bugattis and Cords as well as a 1911 Oldsmobile Autocrat, a 1925 Wills St. Clair and a 1957 Morgan.

Keith Crain, vice chairman of Crain Communications Inc. is the honorary chairman, and Richard Hinson, associate publisher and editorial director of Autoweek, is chairman.

All proceeds from the Concours benefit Meadow Brook Hall.

On Saturday, Aug. 2, the second Meadow Brook Historic Races will be held at Waterford Race Course. This event, which also benefits Meadow Brook Hall, will feature outstanding vintage and modern race vehicles driven by some of the great names in the history of the sport. For information, call Mike Sheridan or Teri Freeman, 373-2525.

Artists' fantasies make interesting show

By Manon Meilgaard
special writer

A nude male statue with a beatific expression, standing on nails is imprisoned in a barred, metal cage.

Another lifesize male figure wearing nothing but a steel jockstrap is strapped to a post in an attitude suggesting torture, with two satin-lined drawers of decapitated dolls' heads at his feet.

The first is a self-image sculpture installation in fiber glass by Tom Paul Fitzgerald titled "Escape from the Twists of Self" and the second is an equally dominating assemblage in plaster by Michael Shaw with the mind-boggling title "For My Donna's Daughter."

These are two of the more macabre pieces in the gargantuan, many-faceted "Artists Interpret Fantasy" exhibition at the Michigan Gallery where more than 60 Detroit and Windsor artists present 200-plus sculptures, paintings, installations, jewelry, photographs and prints.

Give artists a theme like fantasy and it's sometimes akin to opening Pandora's box — the fantasies run the gamut from symbolic, grotesque, sexual, dreamlike, funky, outrageously avant garde to humorous and whimsical.

JEROME FERRETTI appropriated a cubbyhole gallery office to erect his fun "Dioramic Dance Fantasy," complete with cut-out dancing figures, lights and music.

Cindy Weeks literally spent weeks working in the gallery basement on three fantastical installations of ghostlike, lifesize figures. (Like another sculpture by Weeks upstairs, one basement installation includes live goldfish swimming nonchalantly around in a bowl.)

Again, in the eerie light of the basement is a large, carved-into-the-wall construction by Tracy DeMing in tin and mixed media, which it seems is meant to represent an esophagus, but closely resembles a honeycomb-lined tunnel or tomb.

Every conceivable nook and cranny of the gallery has been used. Standing in the yard is an installation of felled, skeletal trees from the 55 Peterboro Gallery garden by Mary Meserve. It is painted in vivid colors with porcelain tags of kitchen-surface samples looped along the branches and wooden silo buildings in the background.

A show-stopper is the work of two relatively unknown Detroit artists and brothers, painter Robert Hyde and sculptor Ronald Hyde. Robert is represented by no less than 68 plus oils — the smallest being medallions or miniatures and the largest approximately 3 by 4 feet.

Some (mostly of women) recall the Pre-Raphaelite School or medieval stained-glass window paintings. Others suggest the massed-figure symbolism of say, James Ensor's "The Entry of Christ into Brussels."

Ronald's highly personal, small sculptures fashioned from wood and found objects are arranged in a sanded section underneath his brother's paintings.

THERE ARE SOME fine smaller sculptures — Brian Ciupka's theatrical fantasies composed of ceramic tile. Jay Holland's head of a jester. Gary Kulak's "laughing" chair, Robert Bielak's stones surrounded by a grid, and Dewey Blocksmas's whirligig, "Statue of Liberty" in which viewers can look through her eyes to pinpoint some of the other exhibits.

Photography takes the fore with some original fantasy images by John Barker, Bill Sanders, Jose Petrazza, Terilee Arnett and Dan Grascuck.

Barker captures the plastic surgeon's hand remodeling the nose of what appears to be a plaster-cast head. Rick Leider uses the wide-eyed, but slightly menacing metaphor of the doll for his armless, suspended image.

Among the many excellent paintings are a triptych of a tornado by Anne Marie Benton, Charles McGee's point on cut-out metal fantasy from his "Noah's Ark" series, Holly Branstler's Rousseau-like oil and pastel of a prostrate woman facing an equally prostrate tiger, and an interesting, abstract, water-color fantasy by Sue Kramer. There are also some outstanding drawings by Sergio Lapore and David Becker — plus many others.

Livonia photographer Rick Leider titled this work, "The Obscure Silence."

"Artists Interpret Fantasy," curated by Dan Grascuck, will be on view through Aug. 5 at the Michigan Gallery, 2661 Michigan Ave., Detroit. Hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday, Detroit.

Manon Meilgaard, who lives in Birmingham, was born in England. She has been a freelance writer for 10 years with a special interest in art and theater.

"In his photo, 'Creation II,' John Charles Barker creates an eerie mood with the hand of the plastic surgeon sculpting a nose on a plaster cast.

The Inn — how it began

Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of excerpts from the book, "More Than A Tavern — 150 Years Of The Botsford Inn," by Jean M. Fox, published by the Botsford Inn in cooperation with the Farmington Hills Historical Commission, 1986, as a sesquicentennial tribute to Michigan's longest surviving hostelry.

By Jean Fox
special writer

The Inn was built in 1836 by Allen and Orrin Weston, whose family had come from Western New York to Michigan and settled near Eight and Nine Mile and Inkster roads where Farmington and Southfield townships meet. Orrin Weston constructed the building as home; both he and his brother, Allen, who had obtained the land from the United States government in 1830-31, probably worked on the construction of the building.

Michigan in 1836 was in the throes of becoming a state. Since 1787 it had been a territory, part of the Old Northwest when the Northwest Ordinance created the Northwest Territory; out of this had already emerged the states of Ohio (1803), Indiana (1816), and Illinois (1818).

Michigan was slow to savor statehood. After the War of 1812, settlers flocked to the Northwest — but not to Michigan. A poor surveyor's report indicated the future Water Wonderland had, in 1817, entirely too much inland water in the form of swamps and impassable areas to make good settlers' lands. So early land-hunters went to Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, which were easily accessible by means of the Ohio River.

A few settlers came to Michigan during the 1810-1820 period; it was the second influx of pioneers during the 1820s that swelled the state's population from 5,000 to between 30,000 and 40,000.

And in 1825 the Erie Canal — "Clinton's Ditch" — across western New York state, began carrying boats to what became Buffalo. This considerably aided travel during the decade, and quickened the trip from the East — even at four miles an hour. In Michigan, the main routes were still the ways of the French voyageurs: the rivers and lakes of the wilderness.

Detroit's population was 1,500 — hardly more than a substantial village. For slightly more than a century it had been an important Indian trading post; under the French, the Potawatomi, the Wyandottes and Chippewa made their annual treks for trading the winter's cache of furs, either to Detroit or Michilimackinac. And the Indians, when they weren't portaging canoes, came by certain well-defined routes, the superhighways of their primitive world through the forest.

One such route, the Old Sauk Trail, led from Chicago to Detroit. This became the Chicago Road, and eventually today's U.S. 12. Another came to Detroit from Saginaw Bay area, where many tribes hunted and fished; this became the Saginaw Trail and U.S. 10 — Woodward Avenue — today. A third heavily travelled route was from the Grand River in western Michigan, which emptied into Lake Michigan (and later saw Grand Rapids and Grand Haven settled on its banks). This in time became the Grand River Road, later the Grand River Turnpike, U.S. 16, and today is paralleled for much of its length by I-96.

It was on this trail that Botsford Inn was built.

Jean M. Fox, Farmington resident who is active in historical organizations at both the local and county level, has written three books and many articles on local history.

Members combine troubadour songs of the Middle Ages and Renaissance with lively Irish reels and jazz-flavored improvisations presented with a wit that has been delighting audiences for nearly a decade. # Will court ruling spur harassment complaints?

By Carolyn Smith
special writer

Sexual harassment on the job is not new, but a U.S. Supreme Court ruling last month is expected to find employers more watchful and advocacy groups more supportive of victims' rights.

In a new twist, the court said victims may sue bosses and employers for creating an "abusive working environment" even if the claims do not involve loss of a job or a promotion. Before, victims generally felt too intimidated to file lawsuits, unless they could link their bosses' behavior to specific changes in job status.

The court also said employers are not always legally liable when supervisors sexually harass workers. But ignorance does not excuse employers from taking appropriate actions when necessary. Justice William Rehnquist, who wrote the opinion, declined to issue a definitive rule on employer liability.

What is sexual harassment? The Equal Opportunity Commission issued 1980 guidelines describing it as:

- Unwanted verbal or physical sexual attention, explicitly or implicitly made a condition of employment;
- A basis for employment decisions whether the victim accepts or rejects such advances; and
- Interference with the victim's work performance.

THE MICHIGAN Task Force on Sexual Harassment in the Workplace has adopted the EEOC definition, but further describes such conduct as sexual propositions or physical contact, verbal abuse such as graphic comments about the victim's body and sexually suggestive objects and pictures.

Men are sometimes sexually harassed by women and homosexual men. But most victims are women. With increasing numbers of women in the workplace — most of them undergoing a probationary period for review of job performance — their vulnerability to unwanted sexual advances is increased, experts say.

Some of them, often as single parents, would rather submit to sexual harassment than risk losing their jobs.

Justice Moore, assistant director of the complaint investigation bureau of the state Civil Rights Department, said the Detroit office does not keep statistics by type of claim, so couldn't predict a rise or fall in sexual harassment cases.

"We'll just have to wait and see about complaints resulting from the court's ruling," Moore said.

CALLING THE court's decision "a major coup," Dottie Jones, assistant director of the Women's Department of the United Auto Workers-International, said, "We'll see an increase in the number of complaints. It's already happened the last few days."

Jones narrates a UAW film depicting six women who tell how sexual harassment brought fear into their lives. Shown so far to about 5,000 men and women across the country, the film "has helped educate them on the hazards of this very emotional type of thing," Jones said.

In 1979, at the request of vice president Odessa Komer (now director of the Women's Department), the UAW took the sexual harassment issue to the bargaining table. The UAW won contractual language in talks with Ford and Chrysler, later with General Motors.

AREA COMPANY spokesmen said a push to rid the problem from the workplace has spurred strong management policies.

Edd Snyder of American Motors said a 1981 management directive "suffices today." The memo asks managers to be alert to incidents of sexual harassment and "to pass the information on to higher-ups. . . . We don't get that many complaints, but the ones we do we take care of," he said.

A 1980 written policy in store manuals states K Mart employees "should be able to work in an environment free from all forms of discrimination, including sexual harassment," said public relations spokeswoman Leslie Kota from Troy headquarters. "We don't foresee a change in policy," she said.

'A steelworker recalls that when women were first hired in her mill, men had a habit of howling at them like dogs. So she brought a bag of dog biscuits to work and tossed them to the men every time they howled.'

— from 'Stopping Sexual Harassment: A Handbook' by Elissa Clarke

Like K Mart, the Automobile Club of Michigan employs a large number of female employees. Of its total full-time work force of 3,974, more than 65 percent are women.

AAA Michigan adopted a policy in late 1981 that discourages any form of sexual harassment affecting a worker's employment.

"Our policy has always been very direct," Thomas Freely, public relations manager, said. "It has always protected all our employees, male and female alike."

Where to go for help

Victims of sexual harassment may seek outside help from:

- The Women's Resource Center, Schoolcraft College, Livonia, 591-6400, Ext. 430.
- Michigan NOW (National Organization for Women) Feminist Network of North Oakland County (651-8328); Northwest Wayne County (476-3352); remainder of Oakland County (646-5559).
- Women's Department, UAW-International, 8000 E. Jefferson, Detroit 48214, 926-5269.
- Women's Justice Center, 651 E. Jefferson, Detroit 48226, 961-7073.
- Michigan Department of Civil Rights, 231 W. Lafayette, Detroit 48226, 226-7636.
- Michigan Task Force on Sexual Harassment in the Workplace, 309 N. Washington, P.O. Box 30015, Lansing 48909, 517-373-9475.

A National Organization for Women pamphlet offers the following advice for dealing with sexual harassment:

- Keep a daily log including names, dates and short descriptions of relevant information. Discuss the discriminatory practice with your immediate supervisor in the presence of a witness if possible.

• Describe in writing the discriminatory situation and the relief sought. Request a written reply. Send copies to all relevant personnel and keep your original copy.

• Talk to other employees about the possibility of filing a class action complaint.

• Contact your bargaining unit and if recommended file a grievance through the union/organization.

• If dissatisfied with internal procedures, file complaints with the Michigan Department of Civil Rights and the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

Complaints with enforcement agencies must be filed within 180 days. Records for documentation should be provided. Documentation includes: letters between you and the employer, job postings, seniority lists, dates and contents of phone conversations, informal meetings and copies of any grievances. Keep all original documents.

Beware of taxes on home sale

Your home can be an excellent tax shelter and an asset that is increasing in value. Selling it may give you a handsome gain but a hefty tax bill unless you're aware of the way capital gains are treated when a home is sold.

Under current tax law, the entire gain on the sale of your home may not be taxed if you buy or build and occupy a new principal residence two years before or after the sale. The new residence must cost at least as much or more than the adjusted selling price of your old home — the tax on the gain is deferred, not forgiven.

Any gain that is not taxed must be subtracted from the cost of the new home giving you a lower "basis," defined as the amount you are considered to have paid for the new home. If you sell the new home later and buy another one, you may continue to defer the tax.

If you do not buy a new home or if the cost of the new home is less than the adjusted sales price of the original home, then all or part of your gain is taxable as long-term or short-term capital gain, depending on how long you owned your home.

The profits on home sales are taxed the same way as capital gains on other investments — such as stocks or bonds. If you own the home for more than six months, it is taxed as a long-term investment, thus only 40 percent of the gain you make on the sale is taxable. But if you own the home for six months or less, all of the profit is taxable.

THE SAME TAX laws apply if your new home is a condominium, a co-op, trailer, houseboat or other type of principal residence. A home you constructed can also be considered a replacement residence.

An example: You sold your home in 1984 and gained $10,000. Within two years you bought and occupied a new home for $80,000, which is more than you were paid for the sale of the original home. You won't be taxed for the $10,000 gain in 1984, but you must subtract the untaxed gain from the $80,000, giving you a $70,000 basis in your new home.

If within two years you did not buy a replacement home, you would be taxed on the $10,000 gain. If you must sell your home at a loss, the loss is generally not deductible by federal income tax standards.

The capital gain from a prior sale can be reduced or eliminated by increasing what you originally paid for the home by amounts paid out within the 24-month reinvestment period through home improvements. The resulting figure is the adjusted basis. If you added to your home a porch that cost you $10,000, you can add that to your basis. If you don't have receipts for your home improvements, you should ask the company that did the work to write an estimate of the cost or retrieve the original receipt. It's smart to keep receipts on all capital improvements.

HOME SELLERS can also benefit by sprucing up their old place. Maintenance or "fix-up costs" can be subtracted from your home's selling price if they're done within 90 days of the sale and paid for within 30 days of the sale. But you must have receipts to document the costs.

— Michigan Association of CPAs

Housing prices, sales soar

Source: Michigan Association of Realtors

Sales of homes rose 20 percent and prices jumped 30.8 percent in the Western Wayne-Oakland County Board of Realtors area since June 30, 1985. The price rise is the largest in the state and marks the area as having the most expensive average priced homes based on the year's sales figures. In 1985, six other statewide boards of Realtors reported higher average prices. Two boards reported decreased sales — Greater Lansing (-2.8 percent) and South Oakland (-4.3 percent). Prices in both areas rose — 2.3 percent in Lansing and 15.7 percent in South Oakland.

Some changes are predictable

Because of the moves in the stock market, I am constantly asked to make market predictions.

Some investors also allow their judgment to be swayed from time to time by over-concern with future uncertainties. Yet, this obstacle can be avoided if predictable major economic and investment trends are analyzed and weighed against those that cannot be measured.

Here are the stock market unpredictables and predictables, excerpted from my book, "Inside Wall Street," published by Dow Jones-Irwin.

The unpredictables

- What stock prices will do next week, next month, or next year.
- How and when investors' moods will change from optimism to pessimism, or vice versa.

- Which group of stock will become the next fad.
- Whether international developments will bring war or peace.
- How the political winds will blow.

The predictables

- When business activity will swing up or down.

• The population of the United States and the rest of the world will keep growing. It just hit 5 billion.

• More people will need goods and services.

• Research will develop new products and new methods, creating more demand and greater productivity.

• The burden of taxation will become even heavier.

• The dollar's buying power will continue to decline.

• Political uncertainties will continue.

• Energy prices will rise in the long run.

• There will always be good buys available in the market.

• Long-term investors win in the long run.

Happy investing.

Summertime fun time just a bunch of hot air

SUMMERTIME FUN. Or what some people, in perverse pursuit of laughs and enjoyment, do for recreation this time of year.

Go boating. What nonsense. Convince me this is worth the expense in time and money. Enthusiasts spend $12,000 for a high-powered boat, then sink hundreds more in accessories, dock and lake privileges, etc. After which, they invest — in a conservative estimate — twice the time laboring on the boat as they do riding in it.

And for what? The cost keeps them working overtime so they can afford to have so much fun. That means they can go on their boat on Saturdays and Sundays, weather permitting — which limits them to about a dozen days a year.

Of course, on those 12 days traffic on the waterways is worse than rush hour in Southfield. Come to think of it, the lake is probably where all those people on the road are rushing to.

Is it worth it? Those who still answer yes, that the few precious moments of high-speed escape, with the cool lake air whipping against their face as the boat skims over the waves, should take a look in their boat's rear-view mirror. That flashing red light is a cop about to give you a ticket for speeding.

Play softball. It's about time the myth that couples softball, or just about any other competitive athletic pursuit, and recreation together was scuttled.

Recreation, by definition: refreshment, in body or mind, by some form of play, amusement or relaxation. Does that sound like sports to you?

Lots of people insist they play softball for the fun of it. Whack the ball around a bit, go out and have a few beers after the game, and forget about it. Win or lose? Who knows — who cares? They say.

Re-examine those same happy-go-lucky types at playoff time. Intense. Nervous. Their job takes a backseat to batting-order strategies. And when they lose — geez, you'd think they'd been fired. Which is a distinct possibility if they continue to hit the bars after games three worknights a week.

Exercise. This hardly deserves attention. Exercise, in any way, shape or form, is work. There is no fun or relaxation involved, unless you're sadomasochistic.

You might feel better afterwards, but never during. Show me someone who enjoys running in 95-degree midafternoon heat and I'll show you a candidate for a lobotomy. Or a triathlete in training. Or both.

Swimming. This is not exercise. Not when you paddle 15 feet, then rest for 15 minutes. The activity most people refer to as their No. 1 form of exercise isn't swimming. It's bobbing.

So. For all the bobbers out there. Who like to spend their time in a pool on a hot summer day. With thousands of other bobbers. In water that's warm enough to boil a lobster. With noise deafening enough to muffle a Walkman on high. In chemicals strong enough to turn your hair green.

Have fun.

Play golf. This is a game, not a sport. It gets its name from the following acronym: Game Of Little Fun. It probably was invented by Sherlock.

All-America: Dameron

Salem grad claims national mat crown

By Chris McCosky
staff writer

His eye was black, blue and bloodied. His leg was scabbed and scruffed. His back ached.

Dave Dameron had been through a war.

And he had won. Dameron, the state champion wrestler from Plymouth Salem, has gone nationwide. Last week, he won the prestigious United States Amateur Grand National Wrestling Tournament at Cedar Falls, Iowa.

Not only did he capture his 132-pound Greco-Roman weight class, but of 742 wrestlers from 48 states, he was named the tournament's most outstanding wrestler.

Dameron is just the second Michigan wrestler to win at the USA Nationals, the other was Andre Metzger in 1977. Dameron now claims the title all-America, and his name will be engraved on a plaque at the United States Wrestling Hall of Fame in Pennsylvania.

THE BLOND-HAIRED, blue-eyed Dameron was rather quiet about his accomplishment, probably because he was in a good deal of pain.

"I should go see a doctor," he said to his mother, Nora Morrell. "My back is killing me."

With good reason. In an 18-hour period on Tuesday and Wednesday of last week, Dameron wrestled 10 matches. There were 84 wrestlers in his 132-pound weight class.

"I've never wrestled that much in such a short span. The most I ever did was, I think, six matches," he said.

There were very few, if any, easy matches. He managed six pins in nine victories. His one loss came on a decision, after wrestling the opponent to a tie on points. The wrestler who beat Dameron was disqualified from competition in the next round.

'I should go see a doctor. My back is killing me.'

after 10 bouts in 18 hours

"There was one guy from California who had won four straight titles," Nora Morrell said. "Dave beat the kid who had beaten him."

Dameron also scored a 12-point mercy-rule win over Duaine Martin of Nebraska, who was a member of the U.S. High School Dream Team.

In his sixth match of the tournament, Dameron suffered a cut in the corner of his right eye. It required three stitches. Thirty minutes later, Dameron was back on the mat.

IN THE CHAMPIONSHIP match Wednesday night, Dameron won a 5-4 decision over Phil Trimble of Indiana.

"The best part of it all was that Steve Fraser presented Dave's medal," Morrell said. Fraser, an Olympic gold medalist, is a former member of the University of Michigan team. Dameron is headed for U-M next fall.

"Steve said that it was a big thrill to present the medal to a Michigan boy," Morrell said.

Dameron, who compiled a 148-34 record at Salem, plans to take a couple weeks off wrestling. Then, he'll begin taking up the challenge of Big 10 and NCAA wrestling.

"We're going to have a tough team. I'm hoping to make it to the NCAAs (national tournament). That's my goal."

Salem Yaffai, a state champion from Livonia Churchill, also competed at the USA Nationals. He placed fifth in the 119-pound weight class.

Dave Dameron's list of opponents in last week's USA National Amateur Tournament was taller than he was, but he chopped them down in rapid order.

Caesars grabs Collegiate prize

By Brad Emons
staff writer

With first place all wrapped up, Redford Little Caesars can now turn its attention to the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League playoffs, which begin Sunday at Ford Field. (Four of the league's six teams qualify.)

Caesars, now 20-6-1 in league play, won four straight over the weekend to clinch at least a tie in its second regular season title in three years.

"We're trying to get ready, and we feel we've peaked in the last week or so," said Caesars coach Bob Moraitis. "We worked the kids out from Tuesday to Sunday, and I could see the difference in our hitting Saturday and Sunday."

The league title quest began Friday when Caesars upended its closest pursuer and defending Collegiate champion Livonia Adray, 5-3.

Winning pitcher Tom Liss scattered seven hits. He walked four and struck out seven. The losing pitcher was John Poszywak, who worked 4½ innings before giving way to Rick Spence.

Tyrone Gaines smacked a double and a triple for the winners. Teammate Mike Harte went 2-for-3.

Livonia got two hits apiece from Scott Weiler and Dennis Bushart.

IN A MAKE-UP GAME on Saturday at Bentley High School, Caesars drilled Tom Holzer Ford of Northville, 10-2, behind the five-hit pitching of Thurston High School product Chris Kloc.

The left-hander struck out six and walked three, besting Northville's Chris Stout, who went the distance in the losing cause.

A two-run double by Mike Koceski in the sixth inning, sparking a six-run surge, broke open a close duel.

Gaines led Caesars with a 3-for-5 performance, while Don Taylor and Brian Bonby each contributed two hits and two RBIs.

Martin Eddy collected two of Northville's five hits.

In Sunday's title clinching double-header at Capitol Park, Caesars swept Maple Appliance of West Bloomfield, 5-0 and 7-5.

In the opener, pitcher Todd Mahaney ran his league-leading record to 7-0, tossing a three-hitter. He fanned three and walked one.

Caesars collected six hits off a pair of Maple hurlers, Rich Goldberg, the loser, and Dan Zang.

KOCESKI LED THE WAY by going 3-for-3, including two stolen bases.

In the nightcap, pinch hitter Paul Oster's two-run double in the fifth inning gave Caesars to its seventh straight win.

Bob Czaplak knocked in three runs for Caesars, including a two-run homer in the first inning. He later added an RBI sacrifice fly. Koceski also had an RBI single. Roney, meanwhile, went 3-for-3.

Dave Culton collected two hits in a losing cause.

Pat Miller, the winning pitcher, scattered six hits and walked only two in going the distance.

Maple hurler Jim Robinson, the Northwestern University product, also went the distance, giving up eight hits and four walks. He struck out six.

Dave Culton collected two hits in the losing cause.

Moraitis' team will open the playoffs Sunday against the league's fourth place team, yet to be determined, at 3 p.m. at Ford Field. The second game, beginning at 6 p.m., pits the league's second- and third-place teams.

"PITCHING IS THE KEY, especially in nine-inning ballgames with a double-elimination format," said Moraitis. "We have as good of depth as anybody in the league, but that won't be a factor in the playoff. I feel the bottom part of our order is the strongest in the league, but it's pitching that wins."

Falcons roll to 5 straight, eye road trip

By Chris McCosk / staff writer

hockey

A.J. Baker, commissioner of the Midwest Summer Hockey League, made it official Tuesday: The Challenge Cup series will continue in Chicago.

The past three seasons, the champions from the hockey league have traveled to Chicago to play in a tournament with an all-star team and the league champs from the Chicago Windy City Summer Hockey League. Financial troubles in Chicago had cast some doubts on the future of the Challenge Cup, but Baker received the go-head for the fourth annual series Tuesday.

"We'll go there Aug. 16 and 17," Baker said. "Our champions will play the Windy City All-Stars the first day, then we'll play their championship team the second day."

The SUMMER LEAGUE season is just under three weeks old and already one team is bugging Baker to make reservations in Chicago.

The Falcons are flying high, winning five straight games after playing to a draw in their opener. The team won three straight last week.

The most recent victory came Sunday night, a 13-7 bombardment of the Wildcats. Dave Davidson, one of the league's youngest players, scored three goals and dished out five assists. Kenny Chaput, one of the league's smallest players, notched the hat trick in goals and assists.

Jeff Dobek scored three goals and Pat Marody added two for the Wildcats. The Wildcats knocked off the Broncos last Tuesday 8-6 getting two goals from Livonia Franklin product Tim Olschanski and two more from Dobek.

Last Thursday, the Falcons beat the Broncos 8-5. E.J. Sauer (Hennepin Engineers Junior A standout) scored two goals and added two assists. Plymouth Salem grad Chris Belhart added three assists.

Eric Van Acker (Chicago Lake Forest College) and Dave Bramble (Western Michigan) each scored twice for the Broncos.

Last Tuesday, the Falcons won a 4-3 thriller against the Spartans. Bill Terry (Kalamazoo Red Wings) scored the game-winner with 20 seconds left in the game.

IN OTHER GAMES Sunday, the Bakes Conference-leading Spartans snapped a two-game losing skid with a 5-3 win against the Huskies. The Spartans, coached by Baker, scored four goals in the final 10 minutes of the game.

Bill Trisch (Potsdam College) scored two goals and Joel Koviak (Southfield) added three assists. Catholic Central product Jeff Safran played superbly in the nets for the Spartans.

Mark Issel (Ferris State), Claude Tunison (Milford Lakeland) and Mike Hartman (Buffalo Sabres draft choice) scored for the Huskies.

The Broncos picked up their first win of the season Sunday, bopping the Lakers 13-5. The Broncos led 5-4 after two periods, then scored eight third-period goals.

Craiger wins Reese tourney

The Plymouth-Canton Craiger Pee Wee Reese baseball team (11-12-year-olds) conquered the Milan Invitational Tournament last weekend in impressive fashion.

The team won five straight games. In those games, the team scored 59 runs on 60 hits, including nine home runs. Craiger hit .438 as a team in the five games. The pitching staff yielded only five earned runs.

Chris Tomas (.714) and Chris Moore (.636) led the team. Josh Wiegand batted .500 with three home runs, including a grand slam in the championship game.

Other Craiger contributors were: Kevin Goff, Pat Adams, Jeff Belisle, Bryan Kittleson, Frank Learned, Ryan Long, Mitch MacDonald, Brian

Marion, Mike Setlock and Chip Wadowski.

The team is managed by Bob Ruete with assistance from Dennis Kennedy, Tom Tomas and Barry Marion.

Craiger will take a 17-game win streak and a 19-2 record into the Pee Wee Reese Regional this weekend in Westland.

National stars roll in PCJBL

The National League was the dominant force last weekend in the Plymouth-Canton Junior Baseball Association A-League All-Star Tournament at McClumpha Park.

The National League East all-stars won the championship Sunday with an 11-3 victory over the American League East.

The National League West won the consolation game, 11-9, against the American League West.

Eric Stemmer tossed four innings of no-hit ball for the National League West. He hurled two innings in the West's 7-3 win against the N.L. East on Saturday and two innings in the championship game.

Jason Dardis led the N.L. West offensively, picking up three straight hits in the championship game.

The American League East advanced into the finals with a thrilling 5-4 win against the A.L. West Saturday. Eric Tomei's two-out, two-run single in the bottom of the seventh provided the margin of victory.

Boys ages 10 through 12 compete in the PCJBA A-League.

LCBL teams vie for playoff spots

The scramble is on for the three remaining playoff spots in the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League.

With Redford Little Caesars (20-6-1) already claiming a share of the crown with three regular season games remaining (last night's games not reported), four other teams are still in the hunt. (See related story on Caesars.)

Livonia Adray (17-9-1) put a virtual lock on second place by sweeping Tom Holzer Ford of Northville in a double-header at Ford Field, 6-3 and 12-4.

In the opener, winning pitcher Don Vesling (6-1) scattered nine hits and struck out 10.

He bested Northville starter and loser Chris Willerer, who gave up a solo homer to Bill Ulle followed by two-run single by Dennis Bushart in Livonia's four-run sixth.

Martin Eddy, Scott Peterson and Eric Engel each had two hits in a losing cause.

In the second game, Vesling went 3-for-4, including a triple and two RBI. Ulle went 4-for-4 and Bushart added two hits.

Jeff DePorter also played a key role in the victory, delivering a pinch-hit two-run double in the fourth inning.

Rick Rozman, who worked the first six innings, allowed three runs on two hits. The Michigan State hurler fanned 11 and walked three. (Rob Ogian finished up).

Darrin Armstrong was the losing pitcher.

WALTER'S APPLIANCE and Holzer battled Friday to a 2-2 tie.

The game was halted after eight innings at Ford Field due to a Livonia city curfew.

The game was marred by a bench-clearing brawl.

Ray Samolin, who took over for Walter's starter Gary Zwolinski in the second inning, pitching 6½ innings of strong relief. Samolin gave up just one run to go along with six strikeouts and one walk.

Dan Kopitzke went the distance for Holzer, allowing five hits. He struck out seven and walked four.

Eddy went 2-for-4, including a double and homer for Holzer.

Kirk Boyd contributed an RBI double for Walter's and John Knittel scored the game-tying run in the seventh on a ground out.

On Sunday, Walter's swept last place Wendy's, 9-3 and 8-1.

Boyd was the winning pitcher in the opener. He allowed four hits, three walks and fanned six.

In the nightcap, Chris Semik pitched seven strong innings, scattering three hits to pick up the win.

The right-hander, who struck out eight and walked two, got out of a dangerous bases loaded jam in the sixth with a pair of strikeouts and a fly out.

John Stoitsiadis and Scott Hille each contributed two hits for the winners.

MAPLE APPLIANCE of West Bloomfield, which defeated Wendy's on Friday, is 16-11, good enough for third place.

Walter's is next at 13-13-2 followed by Holzer at 12-13-2.

Caesars wins LCBL

"Our success (during the regular season) has been our aggressiveness. We try to move the ball and make things happen. That has to continue in the playoffs."

Moraitis said second place Livonia Adray, which has captured the Collegiate playoffs five straight times, is still the team to beat.

"I like our chances, but Livonia is the defending champion," he said. "We have a lot of respect for them and Ron Hellier (the Adray coach) always has them ready for the playoffs."

The only question mark facing Caesars this weekend is pitcher Mark Coburn, who may be out awhile after suffering a back injury while working on a summer job.

"I DON'T KNOW whether he can pitch," said Moraitis. "We'll just have to wait and see."

But Moraitis is confident this will be the first Redford team in years to qualify for the All-American Amateur Baseball Association regional.

"This is the best group of kids we've had in three years," said the Caesars coach. "Their attitude has been just great. Everybody has been showing up on time all year and we've always dressed at least 15 every game."

"Everybody gets along well."

For the love of it

Softball fanatics can't get enough of their game

Everyone has their favorite source of athletic activity.

Racquetball is fun, but I don't have much time to play anymore. My thirst for football was satisfied a couple years ago. These days I prefer to watch along the sidelines as my brothers and friends bash heads and bodies in search of that elusive pigskin.

I certainly like bowling in our Sunday night mixed league with my wife and mom and dad. Our team — Bud's Wisers — had a shot at first place this season, and I quickly learned nerves can fray a bit even when approaching the alley in need of a strike in the 10th. We finished fifth.

But none of them whet my appetite for competition like softball. Maybe it's because softball is the universal sport for men and women of all ages. Maybe softball is the post-high school way to continue that "baseball dream." Or maybe softball is merely a way to get a little mid-week exercise.

It could be the camaraderie around the softball diamond. It could be the happy memories of championship triumph. It could be the more forgettable moments of hitting into that game-ending double play.

Softball teams are composed mostly of individuals who have known each other for a very long time. They play together, work together and party together. That's the spirit that makes most teams click.

The game is simple and fun.

Softball is:

- Scoring the winning run in the tournament championship game and having your teammates rush out to greet you.
- Looking for that perfect pitch you can smash cleanly through the gap in center field.
- Watching Major A teams like Coors, Budweiser and Snickers play the game with professional ease.

Marty Budner

- Watching Class D recreational teams trying to imitate the talents of the Major A players from Coors, Budweiser and Snickers.

- Diving to your glove side, snagging the hard ground ball and getting up to throw the runner out.

- Sipping a couple post-game beers with your friends and discussing how you should have really won the game by five runs instead of losing by one.

- Lining a "rope" to right field allowing the runner on first to move to third with no outs.

- Wondering how an umpire can call a deep strike after having called them balls on the previous batters.

- Having that loyal fan following to cheer you on.

- Hoping to bat in the bottom of the seventh with the bases loaded, then getting the game-winning single.

- Slapping a high five with your best friend after he just belted a 300-foot home run the way you wish you could do it.

- Driving from the Canton Softball Center to Suburban Softball in Rochester to get in both games in one evening.

- Feeling like a real bozo after botching a routine infield grounder.

- Listening to your teammates shout "Keep it down," "Hit it hard," "Ducks in the pond," or "Be yourself" when it's your turn to bat.

- Having women's teams like Steele's and the Tosti Raiders show some of the men's teams how to play good softball.

- Watching Class D players enjoy the game with the same enthusiasm as Class A players.

- Having acquired memories that will live with you the rest of your life.

Softball is a game where you can be a kid forever.

Hot fun in the summertime?

Holmes. Such a deduction is simply assumed. It takes a detective to track down a little white ball after whacking it with a stick, aiming it at a three-inch hole 500 yards away.

Millions get enjoyment out of this "recreation." Hit and chase. Hide and seek. What fun.

Sure, it's relaxing bending $500 worth of clubs around selected trees, one after another. It's fun, crawling through jungle-like terrain in search of a 50-cent dimpled ball. It's enjoyable, wading knee-deep in stagnant water to retrieve an errant shot.

Go camping.

Roughing it in the great outdoors. Someone's been watching too many beer commercials.

Remember what recreation is — an activity to relax body and mind. For three-quarters of the year, television, a comfortable couch, a hot shower, a delicious meal are warmly embraced to fulfill this need.

In the summer, though, those proven methods are abandoned.

Wandering into the forest, to be one with nature, somehow becomes an attractive alternative.

So what if the comfort of the couch is replaced by the cold, hard earth? And you can live for a couple of days without a hot shower, even if you are covered with dirt from sleeping on the cold, hard earth. Meals — well, there's nothing like cooking over an open fire, even if it takes three hours to get the fire started and you can't see what you're eating (you wouldn't want to anyway — not after it fell on the cold, hard earth).

But television — who could survive without it? Of course, you can always take a portable set with you. No cable hook-up, though. Unless the family camped 10 yards away from your site in the wide-open wilderness have one.

OK, so the above-mentioned, so-called recreational activities aren't all they're cracked up to be. There are lots of other things to do for fun in the summer. Like taking a walk, in an air-conditioned mall. Or going to a movie, in an air-conditioned theater. Or bowling, in an air-conditioned —

Wait a minute. Let's not go overboard.

Finnish club enjoys visit, but not weather

YOU COULD IMAGINE how hot it was Friday afternoon in the Stevenson High School gymnasium.

Brad Emons

Sweltering was one word that came immediately to mind. And for a group of 15- to 17-year-olds from the Wartti Basketball Club of Helsinki, Finland, they could not find words to describe their plight.

"Back home, maybe we get one day, 30 degrees Celsius," said assistant coach Pekka Rankinen. "I spent one year in Arizona and it got up to 116 degrees (Fahrenheit), but it never felt like this."

The plus 90-degree (Fahrenheit) temperatures led to thoughts other than playing basketball in spacious Stevenson gym, which felt more like a large sauna room.

Most of the sweat-drenched players from both Stevenson and the Wartti Club had their minds on other things on this hot and humid day — like getting to the pool.

The Wartti Club is here for two weeks as part of a cultural exchange trip with the Livonia Cardinals, who visited Finnish team last summer.

The trip was arranged by Livonian Dennis Nazelli, who heads Young Athletes Abroad, an international exchange basketball program.

NAZELLI HAS done extensive work abroad.

With a bachelor of arts degree in linguistics from Wayne State, Nazelli's informal education includes three years in West Germany and journalism seminar studies in Yugoslavia.

He has traveled throughout eastern Europe where he served in 1976 as a special Bicentennial representative. Nazelli also served for cultural exchange organizations in New York City and Washington, D.C.

Nazelli, who works fulltime at the Detroit News, made arrangements with Finnish assistant foreign ministry director Kari Karanko to bring the Wartti Club to Detroit.

"This is the first time a Finnish youth team has been here to the United States," said Rankinen, who plans to attend college in Boston this fall. "We're having a good time and it's great that somebody takes us."

Hockey, soccer and nordic sports all rank ahead of basketball in Finland.

BECAUSE OF THE HEAT, it was hard to tell just how the Wartti Club would rank, even after playing the Stevenson kids.

"We're not used to the climate or the American rules," said Rankinen. "We'll go back with some ideas, but nothing specific."

"I think we'll go back and concentrate on defense more. But since we've been here, we've had to play our own game. We don't know the style of how the referees call the game. Here it's so much different."

Rankinen, who said he "knows the American way," after having spent a year in Arizona, said his team can play better.

"We haven't been practicing too much this summer," he said. "And everybody has gained about 10 pounds. All they do is drink Cokes and eat pizza and hamburgers. They really like the pizza. It's thick. They don't eat like that at home."

Before they leave on Wednesday, the Helsinki group will have taken in all the Detroit tourist spots such as Greenfield Village. On Wednesday, their hosts will stage a banquet in their honor at Holy Cross Lutheran Church in Livonia.

ALL IN ALL, everybody seems to be having a grand time, despite the heat.

The host families have enjoyed their visitors, calling them a well-mannered bunch.

I'm just afraid our visitors, experiencing the equator-like temperatures, may have gotten the wrong impression about our climate. Or maybe they feel they've been led astray by their accompanying foreign minister.

As the players dripped in sweat, I could only think of winter — shoveling snow and skidding around the ice.

Maybe we should invite these guys back in January.

Crusaders cruise

The Livonia Crusaders captured the Open Division in the seventh annual Womens Soccer Fest held last weekend at Schoolcraft College.

The event, which raised $3,000 for the Wayne County Special Olympics, was sanctioned by the Michigan Soccer Association.

The Crusaders, posting a round-robin record of 4-0-2, won their division based on head-to-head competition against the Farmington Furies, who went 5-1. Coach Dave Lussier's team beat the Furies in their opener, 2-0.

Members of the first place Crusaders include Janice Kosman, Lori Green, Kim Paterson, Kelli Davis, Colleen Churchill, Gina Carozzo, Jackie Berbaum, Angie Carozzo, Leigh Clancy, Michelle Wise, Jodie Smalec, Laurie Hauber, Rachel Thiet, Kim Flading and Chris Paciero.

Goalie Jenny Swalec posted three shutouts during tourney play.

Following a win over the Furies, the Crusaders beat the Kalamazoo Sidekicks, 3-0; tied the Ann Arbor Artemis, 1-1; defeated Olentangy, Ohio, 5-0; the Oakland Strikers, 3-1; and tied the Senior Crusaders, 2-2.

IN THE WOMENS B Division, Saginaw took first place, defeating the Kickers, an Oakland County team.

In the Womens over 30 bracket, the Brighton Stingers downed the Shooting Stars.

review

Pia Zadora and Norm Crosby had a 40-piece band, a backdrop filled with stars, perfect weather and a willing audience, but none of the expensive embellishments helped.

Comedian Crosby opened with puns on biblical stories, literary classics, old age and anti-science jokes. All jokes lead to sex in Crosby's canon.

Zadora, on the other hand, is an interesting reminder of the old adage that wealth can't buy everything — even in 1986. All the expensive coaches in the world can't make Zadora what she isn't — a lady with a real voice.

Monday night's concert at Meadow Brook Music Festival was a replay of the painful scenes in "Citizen Kane," wherein Kane tries to make Susan, his second wife, a nice, ordinary girl with a small voice, into an opera star.

I DON'T WANT Zadora to leave her wealthy, lawyer businessman husband of many years, but I wish she'd have the sense to pack it up and go home.

Some of the audience packed it up and went home long before the concert was over. This evening marked the smallest crowd I've seen at this summer's concerts.

There was no interchange of pleasantries, no dialogue between Zadora and her musicians. Now and then she'd point the mike in their direction as if it was the proper thing to do. She never left stage center, and conductor Vincent Falcone never acknowledged her introduction as "my friend, confidante and pianist, Frank's (Sinatra's) man."

Zadora talked and sang like a little girl playing alone in a room, and in the process dropped names, said she'd been on Broadway and in movies since age 7. Her lack of presence and lamentable lack of voice did real injustice to all the greats whose songs she used.

A woman sitting near me whimpered, "Oh, please, don't," when Zadora said she was going to sing "Pennies from Heaven." I knew what the woman meant. "Pennies" belongs to Bernadette Peters.

After what Zadora had done to Judy Garland, Liza Minnelli, and Ella Fitzgerald, using all their gestures from "A Star is Born," "Cabaret," and so on, without any of the sense of melody, or the spark, the charm those greats have, destroying Peters seemed like the last straw.

Helen Zucker has many years experience reviewing pop performers for newspapers and magazines in Michigan, New York and Massachusetts.

Pia Zadora made her Meadow Brook Music Festival debut Monday.

Restaurant offers limousine service

By Ethel Simmons
staff writer

Don Vargo, owner of the 1940 Chop House, said he's the first restaurateur in downtown Detroit to offer free limousine service to dinner guests arriving from the major hotels, apartments and convention center nearby.

Vargo, a Farmington Hills resident, explained, "Competition is getting keener and you have to offer more service."

Vargo's restaurant, specializing in certified Angus beef, opened last October. He introduced the limousine service in December and it has proved very popular.

"It's a VIP treatment," he said. "They really like it when that limo pulls up, and their guest is impressed."

THE LIMOUSINE has been taking calls from such places as the Hotel Pontchartrain, the Westin Hotel, the Omni Hotel, Riverfront Apartments, Millander Center Apartments, and Cobo Hall, for conventions.

"We had 22 runs with the limo last week," Vargo said one recent afternoon at the restaurant.

He recalled that during the filming of "The Rosary Murders" in Detroit, "I personally picked up Charles Durning. His hotel called, and I wasn't doing anything, so I just jumped in the limo and went over. I picked up this portly gentleman."

Durning enjoyed the 1940 Chop House so much, "He became a very good customer," and returned at various times with other people involved in the film production.

Also making Vargo happy at this time is the word he received recently from Esquire magazine, which called him from New York to say the 1940 Chop House has been chosen as "one of the 100 best restaurants in America," he said. The magazine will be talking about the chop house in the column Cheers, in its November issue.

WHAT MAKES his restaurant special, Vargo believes, is the top quality of its food and drink.

"The certified Angus beef has just been received marvelously," he said. Visitors from Europe have been especially pleased because, "The European market doesn't get good beef."

The restaurateur used to have a restaurant in Livonia, which was called Vargo's. It had a fine wine cellar.

He continues to emphasize good wines at the 1940 Chop House. "Ev-everything we serve here is premium," he said. Wine by the glass — a seven-ounce one — from the cruvinet, is priced from $3.75 to $6.50. Wine runs him $50-$180 by the case.

Vargo said his prices are reasonable for the wines served. "I barely double my cost of wine." Among wines available are superior first-growth ones.

Along with the regular offerings, there's also a wine of the month. As to liquor, "I never feature anything but brand names — only premium."

RETURNING TO the menu, Vargo noted, "We have seafood, fish, veal and lamb but about 70 percent of our business is the certified Angus beef." Entrees range from a low of $14.95 to a high of $29.95, for steak and lobster tail.

"We're an all-American restaurant," he continued. "We're having a love affair with a steak and a baked potato."

On a recent afternoon, Vargo offered a sampling of his specialties. Shrimp with curry and chutney was one tasty dish. Another was a plate with soft-shell crab, escargot and batter-fried shrimp.

"I've been doing Maryland soft-shell crab since 1966-67," Vargo said. "We saute 'em."

Next sampled were melt-in-your-mouth filet mignon and top sirloin. A champagne he chose was Lembey Brut, a Spanish wine.

Then it was time for dessert from the pastry tray. Two of these are creations of Joe Salis, the chef. They are a warm, rum-bread pudding and a Hawaiian, fresh-fruit cup. Other desserts are midnight layer cake, chocolate velvet, Grand Marnier cream torte and raspberry cream torte.

The 1940 Chop House at 1940 E. Jefferson has a smart, art-deco look. The downstairs dining area features a large glitzy bar. The upstairs dining area is usually opened to the public only when there's an overflow, on Saturday nights, and the rest of the time is used for private parties.

Banish Misfortune giving concert

Banish Misfortune, an ensemble known for appearances on "A Prairie Home Companion," will give a free performance at 8 p.m. Monday, July 28, at the Detroit Community Music School.

Banish Misfortune is known for its blend of styles called "renaissance jazz." The group combines troubadour songs of the Middle Ages and Renaissance with Irish reels and jazzy improvisations.

The group's credits include recordings, television specials and guest appearances with symphonies.

To appeal to lovers of early classical music, the members play such medieval and renaissance instruments as lutes, recorders, gemshorns, krummhorns and cornamuses.

Improvisations, contrapuntal singing and use of synthesizer, guitar, mandolin, marimba and vibraphone add to the concerts.

On stage Summer shows accent youth

By Cathie Breidenbach
special writer

The young are in luck this season. Summertime theater productions focus on youth.

Children's Fairy Tale Theatre is designed to involve squirmy preschoolers in the dramatic action. Higher up on the age ladder are productions by students at the Cranbrook Theatre School and by college thespians in Avon Players Collegiate Summer Stock, which is doing a production of "Grease."

Henry K. Martin and his wife, Sue, of Bloomfield Township direct Children's Fairy Tale Theatre. The group scheduled three plays this summer, for the young and the young at heart, at the Jewish Community Center on Maple Road in West Bloomfield. Sue Martin has her doctorate in child development and teaches at the University of Windsor. She designed the productions of favorite fairy tales to appeal to children from age 2½ through those in third grade.

The Children's Fairy Tale Theatre company taps the spontaneous energy of kids and encourages interplay between the cast and the young audience. In the first production earlier this summer, performers drafted lively members of the audience to play some of Snow White's dwarfs.

GOOD THEATER thrives on the interplay between audience and cast and percolates with vitality, compared to the two-dimensional passivity of watching TV or movies. Children's Fairy Tale Theatre aims to give members of the audience a good time and, along the way, to show them the excitement of live theater.

Young theater-goers can see Children's Fairy Tale Theatre bring to life the tale of "Rumpelstiltskin" at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday. The audience will meet the funny little man who can spin worthless straw into gold, and they'll meet the miller's daughter, who must guess the little man's peculiar name.

A very vain emperor gets tricked by a pair of zany rogues in "The Emperor's New Clothes," at 7:30 p.m. Tuesdays, Aug. 5 and 12. Call 661-1000, Ext. 351, for ticket information.

For the last 45 summers, Cranbrook Theatre School has been teaching students the art of the theater and putting on productions to showcase student talents. For classes, the school on Lone Pine Road in Bloomfield Hills uses the outdoor Greek Theatre, rimmed by pines, as well as St. Dunstan's playhouse.

Students are divided by age. Those 13 and under form one company. Those 14 through college age form another. In addition to receiving daily instruction and performing in weekly in-house presentations, students from each company stage productions open to the public, in the Greek theater.

THE YOUNGER company of students at Cranbrook Theatre School will unravel legends about Dick Whittington, in a play by and for kids, at 8 p.m. Wednesday-Thursday, July 30-31. Dick Whittington was a founding tion on Cranbrook Theater School productions.

Danny, Sandy, Kenicke and Rizzo are back in town, reviving memories of the 1950s. The Collegiate Summer Stock production of the musical "Grease" recreates the '50s in song and dance.

Remember cars with tail fins, girls in full skirts with poodle appliques, boys wearing pompadour hair styles in the days before the magic of mousse, and what it was like to be a teenager?

Collegiate Summer Stock — made up entirely of college students interested in theater — is a subdivision of Avon Players in Rochester Hills. Last year, the company's premiere production, "Godspell," was a sell-out.

This season's "Grease" is a musical well suited to the energies of the young company. The show goes into a second week, with curtain time at 8:15 p.m. Thursday-Saturday, July 24-26 at the Avon Players Playhouse, 1185 Washington Road. Call 656-1130 for ticket information.

who grew up to become Lord Mayor of London during the 15th century. According to legend, he owed his remarkable success to his cat, who went to work on the rat problem in London and launched Dick's career in politics.

The older company of Cranbrook Theatre School will stage three plays, also in the Greek theater.

The mystery-comedy "Danger — Girls Working" will be presented at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday-Wednesday, Aug. 5-6, followed by the drama "Guest in the House" Friday-Saturday, Aug. 8-9. To end the season, the students will present the comedy, "Time Out for Ginger," Tuesday-Wednesday, Aug. 12-13. Call 644-9668 for ticket information.

Collegiate 'Grease' is slick production

The Avon Players Collegiate Summer Stock production of the musical "Grease" continues at 8:15 p.m. Thursday-Saturday at the Avon Players Playhouse in Rochester Hills. For ticket information, call 656-1130.

On a scorching Saturday night in a non-air-conditioned theater — conditions that would have sent a less-dedicated cast into a coma — the Avon Players Collegiate Summer Stock troupe came through with an energetic production of "Grease."

The audience fanned itself with programs, but no one left. Credit goes to director John M. Deierlein and the well-rehearsed cast and crew. Everyone onstage and in the tech booth behaved professionally.

It's hard to care about "types." Why Sandy (the new girl in town in this production wants to hang out with people she calls "tramps" and "morons" is never made clear, yet Sandy's conversion from nice girl to vamp is the axis "Grease" revolves around.

Jill Blazis as Sandy exhibits a fine voice, but her lines make her seem too sensible to abandon the middle class for the likes of Danny. Danny, played by good-looking Todd Dickinson, seems lost competing with the school nerd (instead of a star athlete, as in previous productions of this show). The lack of competition between nerd and minor hood loses whatever tension was left in the script.

Michael A. Gravame, however, grabs hold of the role of Eugene, the nerd, and nearly turns the show into "Revenge of the Nerds." He's quick and funny.

JOHN P. KRAUSE is a strong Kenickie. I suspect Patricia L. Powell (Rizzo) would make a wonderful Hedda Gabler. Powell is a tall, beautiful, classy girl. She's simply miscast as leader of the Pink Ladies.

John R. Jones is a smoothie, and "Beauty School Dropout" is the best production number. Sue Kenny is funny as Marty, the gum-chewing redhead. Amy Sharpe is good as Frenchy.

And Sue Warner, who looks like everyone's absurd notion of an English teacher, is fine as Miss Lynch, who has to deal with Frenchy and her pals in class and at dances.

Good dancing and explosive energy manage, for the most part, to overcome this nebulous script. Johnny and the Gamblers provide fine backup. Fifty-cent root beer floats during intermission, and Peg Deierlein's 1956 touches are dandy.

Henry Ford Day

Remembering Jon Essex

By Ethel Simmons
staff writer

Jon Essex, Fisher Theatre publicist for nearly 25 years, who died Friday, is remembered fondly by many of the people who worked with him.

Harry Nederlander, who runs the Birmingham Theatre as part of the Nederlander Organization, said Tuesday morning, "I would describe him as a fellow without an enemy in the world... a man who in his own quiet way accomplished a lot. He will be sorely missed."

Essex's offices were at the Fisher Theatre, which is run by Joseph Z. Nederlander of the theater-business family. Harry Nederlander said that when the Nederlanders first took over the Birmingham Theatre, Essex was very helpful initially, and he continued to help on other occasions.

"I'd say Jon was a kind of steady influence and a guiding light for all of our theaters in this area," Nederlander said.

THE NEDERLANDER Organization operates three legitimate theaters locally — the Fisher and the Masonic Theatre in Detroit and the Birmingham — and also owns the Pine Knob Music Theatre near Clarkston.

A tribute to Jon Essex will be held at 3 p.m. Friday at the Fisher. Harry Nederlander will be in California on business and unable to attend, but he said Joe Nederlander (who is presently out of town and could not be reached for comment) will be at the memorial tribute, as well as Charlotte Lally, the Birmingham Theatre's general manager.

Valerie Hilsen, who has been "Miss First Nighter" at the Fisher for nearly as long as Essex worked there, spoke about Essex on Tuesday morning.

"I was one of the last ones who talked to him before he died," said Hilsen, a Bloomfield Hills resident. She said she called his home about two weeks ago and spoke to a friend, who told Jon that Valerie was calling. "He came to the phone and said, 'I love you, and thank you.'"

Essex, 62, a Detroit resident, died of amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, known as Lou Gehrig's Disease. He was stricken three years ago but continued to work at the Fisher.

HILSEN FIRST met Essex when she asked to do some interviews at the theater. He hired her on the spot, she said, and told her, "You'll be our 'Miss First Nighter'."

"I worked with him for 24 years. I never met a man who never had a fight with anybody... He worked endless hours... I would consider him one of my dearest friends."

Hilsen said she was up since 6 a.m. searching for tapes of interviews she did with Jon. She plans a tribute to Essex, with tapes of opening nights at the Fisher and Friday's memorial tribute, on her radio show "Valerie's As You Like It" at 11 a.m. Wednesday on WPON (1460 AM), from the station's Bloomfield Hills studios.

Sept. 6 is the 25th anniversary of the opening of the Fisher Theatre. Jon Essex, a great guy to work with and a person who might be described as a class act, won't be there to observe it, but he will be remembered with affection.

second runs

Hugh Gallagher

"Dog Day Afternoon" (1975), 8 p.m. Friday on Ch. 50. Originally 119 minutes. TV time slot: 150 minutes.

An unusual and riveting drama about a bank robbery that goes awry. Al Pacino gives an excellent performance as a robber who holds up a bank to get money for his lover's sex change operation. Chris Sarandon as the emotional boyfriend and Charles Durning as a tough but sympathetic cop add to the overall excellence of this unusual film. Rating: $3.25.

"Mother, Jugs & Speed" (1976), 3 p.m. Saturday on Ch. 50. Originally 95 minutes. TV time slot: 150 minutes.

Not everything Bill Cosby does is top notch. This is a case in point. This was an attempt to do for ambulance drivers what "M*A*S*H" did for military medics. It has its moments and Cosby, Raquel Welch (she is not Mother) and Harvey Keitel work well together in the title parts. But it is not special, even under the usually steady hand of director Peter Yates. Rating: $2.75.

"African Queen" (1951), 1 p.m. Monday on Ch. 9. Originally 105 minutes. TV time slot: 120 minutes.

Now this is special. Humphrey Bogart and Katharine Hepburn are superb as opposites floating down a river during World War I. Bogart won an Oscar for his performance. Hepburn is the epitome of the missionary lady. John Huston directed from a James Agee script based on a C.S. Forester novel. And with all that going for it, it succeeds brilliantly. Rating: $3.80.

"The Horse Soldiers" (1959), 8

An underrated John Ford western set during the Civil War. Ford gets some superb texture into this film and good performances from John Wayne and William Holden. If not top-drawer John Ford, this is still better than the average western and well worth seeing. Rating: $3.20.

Priest helps marriage adjustment

By Janice Brunson
Staff writer

IN 25 YEARS of service, the Rev. Francis Cusack, chaplain of St. Paul of the Cross Monastery chapel in Detroit, has counseled and married thousands of couples, Catholics and others, who have been "churched, unchurched or even non-churched."

They have also been young and old. They have represented a variety of races. Their reasons for marrying have differed.

Whatever their religious affiliation, ethnic background or inclination for marrying, Cusack estimates 95 percent of them have stayed married and are happy.

And he thinks he knows why.

"Marriage is made up of a relationship. If you have two well developed persons, their relationship has something to grow on," Cusack said he attempts to tap into this "personal development" at whatever level it exists and assist in developing it more fully, thereby building a stronger foundation from which the marriage can flourish.

Cusack attempts to instill this process prior to the wedding. He counsels the couple for six or so hours on separate occasions and refers them to an additional six hours of encounter experience or instruction.

If at some point after marriage a couple runs into trouble, Cusack is also there to offer "after care" counseling.

IN THIS instance, Cusack normally finds couples who "don't know what the problem is but they are seriously bothered." He finds the majority of problems are caused by "growth" of one or both of the partners. "They are growing and don't know it."

Most problems, according to Cusack, can be solved "by talking." "I don't mean just talking, but communication. That's 50 percent talking and 50 percent listening, huh?" he asks.

Most of those seeking "after care" counseling from Cusack do so early on, within the first few years of marriage or, even more often, immediately after the first year. Another group Cusack sees frequently is older couples, those who have spent many years together and are facing retirement in years ahead.

Not surprising, Cusack believes, "People who have stayed close to the church... have a faith, hope and spirituality that makes them love." Cusack explained his use of the word "love" in this instance to mean perseverance and fidelity.

Old-fashioned advice, perhaps, but advice that has been effective for ages and appears to remain so in a world fraught with social problems such as sky-rocketing divorce rates, infidelity and mate abuse.

While Cusack has no official statistics on the results of his work, he has his own measure. Each September he hosts a reception where couples he has married and counseled renew wedding vows. More than 1,000 invitations will be mailed to guests this year.

COMPARED TO couples of yesterday, Cusack believes "today's generations are a degree or two more open. If someone got mad 25 years ago, they stayed mad. Today there is a chance of talking it out, huh?"

Still, since the mid-1970s all Catholics in Michigan have been required to complete church sponsored, pre-marriage counseling six months prior to the wedding date. Couples seeking to marry in St. Paul's chapel, Catholic or not, are also required to participate in the counseling.

In instances of second marriages, marriages involving older adults or pregnancy, the requirement may be waived but only after the attending priest is satisfied the marriage is beneficial. Even then, couples are still encouraged to take the instruction.

The counseling covers a host of practical concerns like finances and in-laws, personal matters such as marriage readiness and role adaptation, and religious orientation.

If partners have no religious background or are inactive in church (Cusack's "non-churched" or "unchurched"), or if partners are of different faiths, Cusack said he waits for them to bring the subject up. "Chances are they have discussed it. I just find out what they already think and then help to deepen their ideas, huh?" Cusack said he never pressures conversion to Catholicism.

WHAT CUSACK offers is "pastoral counseling" or spiritual care. Although he will never marry, Cusack said "marriage is a human relationship. It is about being a person. I know about such things, huh?"

In addition to the counseling, Cusack also trains couples who have been happily married five years to work as sponsor couples. They volunteer their time in counseling those who are planning to marry, conducting marriage encounter groups and serving as supports during the early days of a new marriage. There are presently 17 sponsor couples helping Cusack.

Cusack readily admits the help is needed. St. Paul's is a popular wedding chapel and while Cusack attempts to limit the number of couples he counsels and marries to 100 a year, it is a futile goal. The calendar for 1987 is already nearly filled and Cusack is preparing now for his first 1988 reservation.

moral perspectives

Rabbi Irwin Groner

Injustices of life are to be rectified

LIFE IS not fair. We have seen men and women of virtue and generosity who have had to carry grievous burdens of illness, distress and affliction. As we grow older, we witness the suffering of the good, the death of the all-too-young, and the passing of the righteous. We know cruel and licentious people who are not scarred by any failure, who are unscathed by any travail, who luxuriate in privilege, and we say life is not fair.

By conventional wisdom, this does not make sense. We are taught from birth that the good would be rewarded and the evil doer punished. When we began to grow up, we gradually became aware that what we had learned as children was not quite so in the marketplace of life, and we recognized the sad truth that life is not fair.

Upon this realization, different responses are possible: submission, bitterness, or rebellion. They do not assuage the pain or offer us any solace.

BUT A FOURTH response is morally superior. Is life fair? Life can be grossly, grievously, tragically unfair. But our faith teaches us that we were put on earth to make it more fair.

Moral teaching states: What is the worst sin? To do unto others what we hate to have done to us, to inflict upon others the unfairness that we have endured. This is the basis of true morality — the more unfair life is, the more fair and just and compassionate we are to be. If life is unfair to you, make it more fair to others. This is therapeutic. This commitment enables us to live in a world which can be unfair without becoming deranged or filled with bitterness.

Newman and Berkowitz, psychotherapists, in "How to be Your Own Best Friend" writes "People feel very justified in their anger. They can give you all the details of how unfairly they were treated years ago. They usually are right; they did get cheated as children. But what they don't see is they're now cheating themselves. Their rage can't hurt their parents, but it's crippling them. 'It doesn't seem fair. You mean we should just let them get away with it?'"

"Wipe the slate clean, after all they put us through? It isn't fair? But there is nothing you can do about that now. Hamlet tried to even the score and it led to multiple deaths. Life lies in another direction, in letting go, giving up your grievance." But it is more than that. If we make the world more fair, we ourselves become healed, revived, restored.

LIFE IS unfair to families who are not together because of divorce, death and alienation.

Life is unfair to children who are not impressive achievers.

Life is unfair to slow learners and those with learning disabilities.

Life is unfair to many older people, particularly those who are infirmed and weak, and who suffer from neglect and emptiness.

Life is unfair to the disenchanting and disaffected young, who have yet to find their way in the world.

Life is unfair to those whose lives are ravaged with the suffering of terminal illness, and for their loved ones.

Life is unfair to those whose careers and work are threatened by unemployment, economic uncertainty.

Life is unfair to the afflicted and the handicapped. And who is not handicapped.

FOR ALL these and more, we should make the world more fair, more sensitive, more compassionate.

As we make the world more fair, we discover that we belong together. The weak need the strong, the sick, the well, the ignorant, the learned, the frightened, the brave. The only way to make life more fair is to affirm that it is a common gift in which all of us must share.

The question for us is not "Why?" — but "What?" Not why did this happen to me? But what can we do to make the world more fair? How can we enlarge the boundaries of what is good, right and decent?

For the world should be made more fair. And if God will not do it, then we will undertake to do it for Him and on His behalf.
