SOUTH PACIFIC: Zonta is organizing an outing to the Marquis Theater in Northville for the live on-stage performance of "South Pacific" on Friday, March 20.

Planned as a benefit for First Step, the Wayne County spouse abuse program, the event will begin with a wine and cheese reception at 7:30 p.m. Curtain rises at 8:30 p.m. Zonta, which includes a number of Plymouth and Canton residents, has raised nearly $15,000 for First Step during the past five years. Tickets at $15 each may be obtained at the Marquis Boutique next to the theater in downtown Northville or by calling Glenn Merillat of Plymouth at 453-7146.

TOP TALKERS: The Plymouth Optimist Club recently held its annual girls oratorical contest for seventh, eighth and ninth graders from Plymouth-Canton Community Schools at the Mayflower Hotel.

The winners were Cheryl Kubisiak, of Central Middle School, first place, Melanie Farow of the T.A.G. Center at Central, second, and Karyn Gniewek, third place, of Central Middle. There were 391 students from seven schools who prepared speeches. Of these 14 winners were chosen by the schools for the finals on March 2. Cheryl Kubisiak will now go to the Southeast District Regional on April 4.

The Plymouth Optimists will sponsor the boys oratorical contest on March 16.

JOINS SCHOOLCRAFT: Jeff Lilley of Canton has been appointed director of accounting for Schoolcraft College in Livonia. Lilley most recently was employed as internal auditor for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

INSPECTING CURVES: The Plymouth Lions Club recently donated a state-of-the-art photokeratoscope for the Michigan Eye Bank Research Center, which immediately turned the instrument over to the corneal section of the W.K. Kellogg Center.

The photokeratoscope is an instrument that inspects the curvature of a recently transplanted cornea and enables the surgeon to adjust the stitches to eliminate the astigmatism immediately. Formerly there was often a long wait for some patients before sight could be fully restored using conventional measuring techniques. Only a few of the very best corneal transplant centers in the country have such a device.

Noble Stormont, longtime member of the Plymouth Lions, suggested donating the machine as a way of helping mankind. The club matched Stormont's donation by purchasing a computer program to enhance the instrument.

BAG MAN: Paul J. Munzenberger of Plymouth has been elected treasurer of the 2,000-member American Lung Association of Southeastern Michigan. Munzenberger, an associate professor of pharmacy practice at Wayne State University, has been associated with the Lung Association since 1975. He was involved with the early planning and was one of the first pharmacists for Camp Sun Deer, ALASEM's free camp for asthmatic children.

BUYS DEALERSHIP: Robert MacKenzie of Plymouth and Eddie Hall have become co-owners of Briarwood Ford, Saline.

Prison economics

What's their effect on communities?

By Carolyn Carman
special writer

Prisons — are they an economic boon or burden to surrounding communities? The debate continues.

Prison officials see them as an economic benefit — construction jobs, permanent jobs, purchases from local stores.

But other officials say their effect is negligible — even non-existent.

JOSEPH GONZALEZ, program bureau policy analyst with the Michigan Department of Corrections in Lansing, said ultimately the effect on local communities of a prototype prison like Scott Regional Corrections Facility might be $20 million or more, depending on what formula is used to calculate turnover dollars.

"When talking about a prototype facility like Scott, which has a payroll of $6 million, each dollar brought into the community turns over five to seven times before leaving the area.

"That formula is from research by the Kalamazoo County Convention and Visitors Bureau," Gonzalez said.

Today's Observer continues a series of articles on prisons and prisoners and their effect on the community.

Today we look at the economic impact on the community of having three prisons in its midst. The series ends Monday with a look at the future.

A FORMULA developed by Upjohn Institute for Employment Research suggests that for each job created in a prison, an additional three jobs are created in the private sector, said Gonzalez.

Money does not leave the area when a worker takes home a paycheck. That wage earner will spend it in the community on various items and also may pay local taxes, he said.

Gonzalez said that when a prison facility is under construction, 700 temporary construction jobs are available for local contractors over a two-year period.

The Scott facility, which opened Dec. 31, 1986, and cost $40 million to build, ultimately will offer 250 permanent jobs — two-thirds of which are available to residents within a 30-mile radius of the prison, said Gonzalez.

RETA JOHNSON, administrative assistant to the warden at Scott, said six residents of Plymouth and Canton are employed at Scott out of a current 193 employees.

Johnson said the Scott facility has spent $21,309 on purchases from local hardware stores, locksmiths, office supply stores and engravers since its opening.

As to hiring, Johnson said: "People that live in the area would be given preferential treatment when it comes to hiring, but they must take the exam and be on the proper register to be hired."

Appeals lost on schools' films, books

At a mobbed meeting Monday, school board members quoted everyone from George Washington to Sen. William Howard Taft in deciding not to censor R-rated films and other controversial teaching materials in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

The votes meant defeat for unsuccessful school board candidate Diane Daskalakis. Daskalakis, who says hundreds of parents have rallied behind her, had protested the showing of the films "The Breakfast Club" and "Excalibur," availability of the book "Rules for Radicals" and information about Ouija boards and palmistry.

"Rules for Radicals," by Saul Alinsky, while not required reading, is on a resource list for Plymouth Salem High School English students studying Zen and Emerson.

The R-rated "Breakfast Club" and "Excalibur" are shown to psychology and English literature classes, respectively, at Centennial Educational Park.

Ouija boards are covered in a high school psychology class, while palmistry and crystal ball gazing were discussed in a fourth-grade "Show and Tell" session.

THE APPEALS of Daskalakis, who has addressed the issue on a host of TV and radio talk shows, were denied unanimously with the exception of "The Breakfast Club" complaint, which failed 5-2.

Township roads will be treated

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Plymouth Township residents who live in subdivisions with unpaved roads will benefit from chloridation again this year.

The township board Tuesday authorized as many as three applications of calcium chloride to control dust and stabilize roadbeds.

Thomas Hollis, superintendent of the department of public works, estimated that cost at $50,700. The money comes from the general fund.

The initial application generally is made the first week in May, Hollis said. Subsequent applications follow in June or July and, if necessary, in September.

The county grades roadbeds a day or two before a private company hired by the township applies the calcium chloride. Hollis said. It normally takes 2½ days to chloridate all 12½ miles of unpaved subdivisions in the township.

The county chloridates major mile roads such as Ridge and Napier, Hollis said.

Last year, the township spent $49,500 for three applications.

"IF WE HAVE a hot dry summer, we have more dust and have to do three applications," Hollis said. "If we have a rainy season, we can get by with two."

Two applications were made in 1985.

Trustee James Irvine, as he did last year, objected to the entire concept of a locally funded chloridation program.

"I just don't see it as a function of township government. The county

George Lawton, retiring Community Federal Credit Union general manager, attributes his success in the business world to his humanism.

Lawton, 61, has worked for the credit union for 29 years, currently supervising 95 full- and part-time employees in Plymouth, Canton and Northville. He's been in credit union management more than 35 years.

Community Federal is Michigan's largest community credit union with 23,000 primary share accounts and assets exceeding $70 million. The home office is in Plymouth, with branches in Northville, Canton, Gaylord, Hillman, Lewiston and Atlanta.

On an average day, about 3,000 people come to the Plymouth branch on Harvey, he said.

"For years and years, I pretty much have been able to guide the credit union business. If you're going to be involved in management, your people are going to have to be involved in the process. You must involve the staff in getting the job done and respect people on all levels.

"Communication is everything. My time has been spent working, planning and coaching staff. In the time I'm not working and coaching staff, I'm out in the community selling the product."

LAWTON'S RESUME reveals a man intensely involved in Plymouth and Canton community leadership.

In the late '50s and early '60s, Lawton helped to organize and served as an officer of the Plymouth Industrial Development Corp. He was president of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce twice. Lawton was one of the founders and served on the board of directors of the Plymouth Community Family YMCA.

In 1962-66, Lawton held a post on the Plymouth City Commission followed by various positions on the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education from 1970-78. Next came a chairmanship on the Canton Township Planning Commission in 1971-72 and a post on the Canton Economic Development Board in 1978.

LAWTON SAID he was an active participant and supporter of the Plymouth Community Band, the Plymouth Historical Society, the Plymouth Jaycees, and Rotary and Kiwanis clubs.

Board won't censor teaching materials

disagreed with the process being used to settle such issues. Trustee Marilyn Schwinn dissented because "the school board is charged with setting standards in the district, and I decided 'The Breakfast Club' doesn't represent the caliber of material we should be showing."

Supt. John Hoben has opposed the use of "The Breakfast Club."

Trustee Dean Swartzwelter said there's a difference between presenting material and teaching it.

With a book about George Washington in hand, Swartzwelter said he's a great admirer of the first president and reads everything about him he can find.

"George Washington and many of our founding fathers were deists. That doesn't mean I'm a deist.

"It's the same issue here. There are some things our students are being exposed to but not in the depth that some people are claiming."

TRUSTEE DAVID Artley said, "There's so much apathy in this country, I appreciate that finally, that without anyone in this community being killed or maimed, that we're at least in unison about what happens in our schools."

parental approval (of teaching materials) isn't critical, it's life and death. If there's a parent who doesn't know something about this issue, then they've been buried a long time.

"For my psyche I have to do what I think is right. I've come to believe God and his son are compassionate, loving, and most important, for me, merciful."

"I don't think in light of how I vote tonight that God will paddle me or take me into heaven and make a saint out of me. This is a toughie. Our success can only be judged in the years to come when we see how our young people succeed."

Artley, in denying all Daskalakis' appeals, quoted the "late Senator Taft who said, 'Liberty is an individual that thinks his own thoughts.'"

Said Trustee Roland Thomas, "While the appealed materials are controversial to some, I believe they're being used in a responsible way. We can't be influenced by people who distort facts and employ innuendo.

"The parental approval process should be more consistent so parents can make informed decisions," added Thomas. At present, R-rated films are shown to CEP students whose parents supply written approval.

Thomas advocates "developing a process enabling parents to determine the content of PG- and R-rated films," and "developing more involvement in the film-showing process to make sure they are relevant to the curriculum."

Trustee Jeanette Wines advocates the screening of R-rated films by administrators and teachers. Trustee E.J. McClendon suggested "a uniform letter that goes home" describing the content of PG- and R-rated films.

Hoben saw problems with that. "We're dealing with something that has elastic. It's like Jello."

"And assuming we have that letter — delivery to the home and validation of signatures" present difficulties, he added. "Short of a phone call to each home, I'm not sure how you're going to do it."

WHILE DASKALAKIS sat through the meeting in silence, the district hasn't heard the last of her. She said Tuesday she is recruiting candidates to run for school board this June and pledges to "supply all their camaign needs — money, everything." Daskalakis also has protested the showing of a film strip called "Winnie the Witch" and the movies "Ghostbusters" and "Teen Wolf." School committees have yet to decide about the latter two but have deemed "Winnie the Witch" appropriate for use.

New challenges ahead

He was voted Plymouth Jaycees "Man of the Year" in 1982. He also was Michigan's 1985 Credit Union Person of the Year awarded by the Michigan Credit Union Foundation.

"I've always said that there is no limit to what you can accomplish, as long as you see that someone else gets the credit."

Lawton, a Northville resident, has no plans to slow down after retirement next month.

He will focus on real estate sales, appraisals and financial consulting and is eager for new challenges in the entrepreneurial world.

LAWTON ALSO plans to tend 20,000 baby Christmas trees on his Douglas Fir farm in the Leelanau Peninsula.

Before moving to Northville, Lawton for many years lived in Canton where he operated a sheep farm.

"Entrepreneurial ability means to be free. Like the eagle in the business world. Life is made up of a whole lot of interesting segments."

"You may retire from one place but you don't have to retire from the work world."

Prisons: boon or bane?

LLOYD MAY, warden of the Phoenix Correctional Facility, said 20 percent of the 180 employees there are from the surrounding communities of Plymouth, Northville, Northville Township, Wixom, Livonia and Novi.

May said there are state-approved vendors, and a merchant must be on the list in order for the prison to make purchases from that merchant.

Some approved vendors locally are Plymouth Office Supply, S&W Hardware, Northville Lumber, Thompson Sand and Gravel and Holda Appliance, May said.

May said some prison employees would probably shop and eat in the local communities.

"I would think that would be an advantage. I think there is business generated in the area just by the overflow of people."

EMMETT BAYLOR, warden of Western Wayne Correctional Facility, said 21 of the 281 prison employees live in the Plymouth-Canton area.

Baylor said large purchases are made on a bid basis in Lansing, but immediate necessities are bought in Plymouth or Northville.

"There are dollars and cents spent daily in the immediate area. We buy medicines, paints, plumbing and electrical supplies, and auto parts."

SUSAN HEINTZ, former Northville Township supervisor and now a

Wayne County commissioner (whose 10th District includes Livonia, Plymouth and Northville), said she has not found the Department of Corrections to be living up to its word on jobs or procurement.

"I have not been able to find where prisons have had a significant economic impact," she said. "Prison officials shouldn't tout prisons as having a great positive economic impact."

Heintz said she felt the employment figures at the new Scott facility are too low. She also said she could not find any local contractors who were used in the construction of Scott.

"The economic impact regarding employment may apply in a more rural area or, say, in the Upper Peninsula."

STATE REP. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, (whose 36th District includes Plymouth, Canton and Northville), said he doesn't feel the district gets a lot of economic benefit from the prisons.

"The true economic benefit would be to create jobs locally. This has not happened in Plymouth. The employees can come from anywhere, and there is no guarantee they will come from this area," he said.

Law said the prisons occupy land that would contribute to the property tax base, and they occasionally need local police and fire services for which the communities are not reimbursed.

"They are not buying a whole lot or hiring a whole lot," said Law. "The economic benefits are negligible."

Law explained that large purchases at prisons, for both perishable and non-perishable goods, are on a bid basis. Only purchases of less than $1,000 are not on a bid basis.

Roads will be treated

The township has chloridated local roads for all 17 years that he has worked here, Hollis said.

A circuit court judge has ruled that the county would be responsible for chloridating major roads here, the township — if it so desired — subdivision roads as had been past practice, Hollis said.

The township had initiated a lawsuit asking for clarification of responsibilities.

People who choose to live on unpaved roads shouldn't derive a benefit from tax revenue generated from properties throughout the township, Irvine said.

"There is a simple solution for these people — special assessment."

Condo project is scheduled

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Seventeen condominiums are planned for a four-acre site at the southeast corner of Ann Arbor and Canton Center roads in Plymouth Township.

Brothers Stanley and John Denski, who own the property, are getting out of the trash hauling business to become developers and entrepreneurs, said Stanley Tkacz, their architect.

The Denskis couldn't be reached for comment.

Drawings for the Birch Cove Condominiums filed with the township planning department indicate 10 single-story units with two bedrooms and 1,360 square feet of living space plus seven two-story units with three bedrooms and 1,800 square feet.

The 17 units will be scattered among six buildings.

CONSTRUCTION should begin by May 1, Tkacz projected. He declined to provide a timetable but said the first units may be ready for occupancy sometime this year.

Tkacz also declined to estimate construction costs or speculate at what prices the condos will be marketed.

Both hinge on what Wayne County requires of the Denskis as far as paving Canton Center Road, he said.

"The intent is not to be luxury and we're not looking at economical," Tkacz said. "We're shooting for a nice, average middle range."

An old farmhouse on the site, which the Denskis are renting to a tenant, will be demolished, Tkacz said. "It's literally falling down. It isn't even worth salvaging."

Developing the four-acre parcel would generate more tax dollars.

Records at township hall indicate that the land and building now have a state equalized valuation (half of market value) of $43,570.

Is there, perhaps, quintessential Waterford?

Take a long, close look at Lismore.

If, among all the magnificent Waterford patterns, there is one most typical of Waterford's beauty and quality, we think this is it. Certainly Lismore is the pattern most often chosen, for decades this has been so. Lismore is handblown of full lead crystal, as is all Waterford. And it is handcut in a traditional pattern so classic, it would seem to be timeless. It is only sensible to offer it in all these sizes: Goblet, 37.50. Flute, 37.50. U. or brandy, 50.00. Shot glass, 27.50. Bagglass, 42.50. 9 oz. old-fashioned, $34. And Lismore is only one of our Waterford patterns. In Better Crystal, at many Detroit stores.

Residents speak out on teaching materials

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

At a session that lasted until almost 11:30 p.m., 91-year-old William Buswinka listened to Plymouth-Canton school trustees, teachers, students and parents debate the use of R-rated movies and other controversial materials in area schools.

Buswinka, who was cut off before finishing his presentation earlier in the evening, was shaking his head as he was leaving.

"It's doggone silly. It just don't make no damn sense," said Buswinka, an opponent of R-rated films in schools.

"What the heck do they mean they have it in school but they're not teaching it? Who runs the schools? Not Dr. (Supt. John) Hoben. The kids I guess. These kids are wet behind the ears, but they think they know it all. I've lived history. They're reading about it."

A student 75 years' Buswinka's junior told the school board, "People who don't know much can't do much. Sometimes we're asked to read things thought to be controversial, but we're taught to have an open mind, to look at the good points and bad, and judge something as a whole," said Gary Vercruyase, a junior at Centennial Educational Park. Canton resident Mary Dahn — who plans to run for school board she's so upset about the issue — said she's surveyed area ministers about the occult, Ouija boards, palmistry and other things she says district students are learning about.

School officials say that while students are being exposed to such things, they're not being indoctrinated with them.

"The ministers say it's demonic," Dahn told the board.

"You have a choice. You can serve the majority of the community, which is Christian, or you can serve a group of the occult. Someday you're going to die and you'll be responsible to God for that."

STUDENT KIM Murley, a senior at Plymouth Salem High School, said, "We're not being taught evil. When you take things out of context, it may seem that way. Seventy-five percent of our community may be Christian, but 75 percent of the world is not.

"We will not be living in Plymouth the rest of our lives. How can we be a whole man if we don't learn about other lands? We can't shut ourselves off from the way other people think."

Said Buswinka: "Of what earthly use is this stuff in 'The Breakfast Club'?"

"You go to school, and afterwards the thing is to get a job and make a living. If you're trying to get a job, are you going to put on a resume that you're experienced in all this teenage violence and pornography and also an expert on witches?"

"We can't advance our religion in the schools — whether it be Christian, Protestant or Buddhist. But witchcraft — you're doing your darndest to put that in the schools."

(A film strip entitled "Winnie the Witch" is shown to Plymouth-Canton kindergarten students. Resident Diane Daskalakis protested its use because, in her view, it "shows in detail how to cast spells, how to conjure the dead and uplifts Lucifer as a role model and helper and companion.")

A school committee has ruled the material is suitable for use in the district. Daskalakis is appealing the decision.) "I think there's a great majority of people in our city and country that don't want the devil to capture our children's souls," added Buswinka.

Resident Thomas Shipley, an area coordinator for "Citizens for Better Education," a group Daskalakis formed to press for quality teaching, also spoke.

"Freedom of speech for teachers ends when they walk into the classroom. Will these R-rated movies that show disrespect for authority help our kids in any way? I don't think so. There's a rebellious spirit that's coming from these movies."

Teacher Kathryn Thompson pointed out that the courses at issue are electives. "Students can look at the materials before classes begin."

DASKALAKIS attended the meeting but didn't speak because, "they had their minds made up. They had their speeches all prepared."

Daskalakis plans to continue the fight through the electoral process.

While she isn't ruling out running in June for one of two vacant school board seats, "we have plans to campaign for any two individuals who share our ideas."

"We" refers to the 800 residents who have joined "Citizens for Better Education," a group Daskalakis expects will become national.

"We are not a small, insignificant body of people. My beliefs are that a majority of people in this town just don't realize that their beliefs are not being upheld.

"They're sitting back and wondering why is the youth in trouble and not realizing it's because of a lot of the teachings in our schools that they themselves could change just by voting.

"It's very apparent that the conservative people in this town opposed to R-rated movies and occult-type material being introduced to children absolutely are not being represented on that school board.

"If we plan to roll back the use of these ungodly teaching tools, we have to have people who will uphold scripture and make good sound moral judgments. The rulings last night were blatantly immoral." Daskalakis, who finished 2,000 votes behind incumbent Dr. E. J. McClendon in last year's school board election, has been a talk show guest on several Michigan radio and TV stations since filing her protests.

She's been invited to speak to area groups, and to appear on Pat Robertson's 700 Club program aired by the Christian Broadcasting Network, she added.

Daskalakis is holding off on accepting that one.

"I'd like to have some victories to report."

Students win in math contest

Add energetic bright students to a contest measuring math skills and you get a whole new image of an academic discipline feared and revered by many.

Mathcounts, a nationwide program started in the early 1980s, was developed to draw attention to the importance of math in the technological world.

Seventh- and eighth-grade students compete in chapter and state competitions and the winners will compete in May during the national Mathcounts finals in Washington, D.C.

Students from Plymouth-Canton Community Schools competed for the first time this year and walked away with two of the top three awards.

Students from Frost Middle School in Livonia took first place while Pioneer Middle School took second and East Middle School took third place. East and Pioneer are Plymouth-Canton middle schools.

"We're very proud that Plymouth took second and third places," said Ken West, City of Plymouth engineer and chairman of the Rouge Valley Chapter of Michigan Society of Professional Engineers.

THE STUDENTS competed against 40 other students and 10 schools on such topics as probability, statistics, linear algebra and polynomials. The program consists of written tests and fast-paced oral matches.

The winners received trophies and will go on to the state Mathcounts finals to be held April 4 in East Lansing. They will be competing among 270 teams statewide.

The national winners will receive scholarships and will be treated as guests at the Space Center in Houston.

Youngsters started preparing in September for the first event last month.

The program was organized by the Rouge Valley Chapter of Michigan

Society of Professional Engineers. National sponsors are the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics, the Department of Education and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

New director leads river 'friends'

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

June 6 is D-Day for the Rouge River.

New "Friends of the Rouge" director Bonnie Anderson will lead the battalion of clean-up volunteers descending upon the Rouge to one day make it safe for boaters and bathers. "Our goal is to have people swimming in the Rouge by the year 2000," Anderson said. "Wouldn't that be something?"

Anderson hopes 4,000 people — double last year's number — will dedicate that Saturday to the river's second clean-up.

Prospects look good, she said. "Our sponsors are back and a number of new communities have joined us," Anderson said. "We're excited about the project."

Farmington, Livonia, Plymouth and Westland, as well as Bloomfield and Canton townships are joining this year's effort. Farmington Hills and Southfield, pioneers from last year's clean-up, are also expected to participate.

VOLUNTEERS from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and the Civilian Conservation Corps are also expected to lend a hand.

While each community is targeting specific projects, eliminating logjams near the top of everyone's list.

"Rivers have a natural tendency to heal themselves," Anderson said. "But only if they can flow."

Rouge River Rescue II is a big undertaking, especially for a newcomer, but Anderson is an old hand when it comes to environmental issues.

The Birmingham resident has dedicated much of her adult life to environmental causes. Stints as executive director for the East Michigan Environmental Action Council and as a governor's appointee to the Michigan Environmental Review Board — a position she still holds — dot her resume.

Anderson has been drumming up support for the June clean-up since taking the "Friends of the Rouge" post last month. She replaced Bruce Monson who remains as executive director of the group.

"Friends of the Rouge" is having a Newly appointed Friends of the Rouge director Bonnie Anderson is helping communities plan their strategy for the second annual Rouge clean-up.

membership meeting Thursday, April 9. For more information on the meeting, or Rouge Rescue II, call 42-ROUGE.

Anderson hopes to expand the river's restoration into a year-round project.

"We're expanding beyond a one-day effort," she said. "We're looking at carrying it through the whole year."

Having high school classes monitor the river is one of Anderson's proposals. Another involves year-round public education on Rouge-related issues.

HOLDER OF a master degree's in social work and science, both from the University of Michigan, Anderson calls herself a specialist in conflict management and resolution.

But she's been pleased to find there's no conflict when it comes to cleaning up the Rouge.

"One of the nice things is that everyone's on the bandwagon, everyone wants to clean up the Rouge," she said. "We're getting tremendous support from the state and local governments are also supportive."

The 20-year cleanup project began last summer. Anderson's interest in environmental causes dates back more than 20 years.

The environmental movement of the late 1960s and early 1970s had its effect, but Anderson said she was interested in environmental issues long before it became fashionable.

"Things like Earth Day (a nationwide 1970 environmental rally) helped energize me, but it's not as if it was a catharsis," she said. "I have always been aware of myself as part of the environment not apart from the environment."

THAT AWARENESS has led her into raising an organic vegetable garden at her family's Birmingham home, where she often surprises neighbors with home-canned produce.

"I realize it's a little unusual for Birmingham," she laughed.

But it's also thrust her into numerous environmental conflicts throughout the state. She's consulted numerous citizen groups on waste removal, groundwater and wetlands protection issues.

Recently, she's been involved with protecting wetlands near the soon-to-be expanded I-696 freeway.

Cleaning up the Rouge could prove her most ambitious project.

Already in the running for a national award, the project has attracted international attention as well.

"We've received contact from people living near the Ganges River — they're interested in what we're doing," Anderson said. "So, we can not only have a national impact."

Dates added for assessment hearings

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Tardy property assessment notices resulted in the Canton Board of Review adding two hearing dates. The extra hearings should allow residents time to prepare an appeal, according to assessment department officials. The board was scheduled to hear appeals from property owners at various times March 3-10. But assessment notices weren't mailed until March 6. Most property owners were expected to get their notices March 7 — four days past the first hearing date.

The Canton Township assessment department received the notices from the Wayne County Bureau of Taxation more than one week late. County computer glitches were blamed for the tardiness. The delay was extended because every Canton property assessment changed this year and each parcel had to be entered into the county computer system.

Last year 3,400 assessment notices — indicating property value changes — were mailed. This year 13,500 notices were mailed.

AN ADDITIONAL assessment hearing was held 8:30-11:30 a.m. March 11. Another hearing is scheduled from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. March 21.

To make an appointment, call the Canton Township assessment department at 397-1000, Ext. 281.

"If we need to add more days, we will, but I don't see any need right now," said Glenn Shaw Jr., Canton assessor.

This year residential assessments rose at least 3 percent in every subdivision except one — Holiday Park II, which rose 1 percent.

The assessment department received a flood of calls — especially March 9, the first working day after most property owners received their notices — from people quetioning the increases. "People were curious about why their assessments went up," said Peggy Farrell, board of review secretary.

She said most of the callers were content with an explanation about property values rising. "And others feel their home still is not worth that amount," Farrell said. "We encourage them to appeal."

APPEALS MAY be made to the board in letter form or by filling out an application, she added. The address is Canton Township Hall, 1150

S. Canton Center, Canton 48188. There are two criteria for appeals property owners believe the assessments are higher than the market values, or they financially are unable to pay the bill. Both cases must be proven to the review board.

The board's decisions on the appeals are expected to be mailed by the first week in April.

Property owners who disagree with the board's decision may appeal to the Michigan Tax Tribunal by June 30, P.O. Box 30230, Lansing, MI 48909.

Contest planned for new drivers

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Screaming expletives at a fellow driver won't get you far on the road and definitely won't make points during an upcoming competition.

New drivers will be tested on their driving courtesies as well as their knowledge of traffic rules and ability in handling a car during a national driver excellence program.

High school students will vie for the most points on a written exam, ability to maneuver an obstacle course and on how well they handle a car during road tests while accompanied by police officers. Winners will receive prizes.

Canton Township will host the district contest April 18 at the Canton Township Hall parking lot, 1150 S. Canton Center Road, south of Proctor.

THIS IS THE 20TH anniversary for Operation Driver Excellence sponsored by American Veterans of World War II, Korea and Vietnam, and by the Dodge Division of Chrysler Corporation.

"It encourages teenage drivers to not only be safe but superior drivers," said Frank Krzesowik, AMVET department of Michigan senior vice commander and member of the state driver's excellence committee.

"What we're trying to do is get their skills in driving improved," said Krzesowik, a Detroit police sergeant.

"If they know it's a competition they'll learn more about the traffic rules. It's making them a responsible teenage driver so they can be a responsible adult driver."

Winners of the district competition will compete on a state level May 2 and those finalists will go on to a national event May 15 in Washington, D.C.

The first place winner of the national competition will win $5,000 and the use of a Dodge for one year; the second place winner will receive $4,000; the third place winner will receive $3,000; the fourth place winner will receive $2,000 and the fifth place winner will receive $1,000. Trophies also will go to each winner.

Also the school of the first place winner will receive the use of a Dodge for one year.

THE DISTRICT 1 competition includes students from Wayne, Washenaw, Monroe and Lenawee counties. Michigan has seven districts.

Winners of the district competition will receive jackets, trophies and an invitation to compete at the state level. Top winners of the state competition will receive $1,000, $800, $600, $400 and $200 as well as trophies and jackets.

"They're all winners to us," said James Sebel, AMVETS co-chairman. "We're trying to emphasize that when kids enter the driving population that they have to be superior drivers. We're trying to save lives."

Last year 40 students competed at the competition, which also was held in Canton. Organizers hope to attract more than 50 students this year.

To compete you must be a high school student who has completed a driver education course, have an operating license, have a driving record without any traffic violations and have never competed in the program before.

If you're interested in competing, you may receive an application at the Canton Township Police Department. One will be sent to your area by calling AMVETS Michigan headquarters at 568-0577 or Sebel at 464-7832.

Show aims to help kids

Tips for teaching children how to protect themselves from sexual abuse, kidnapping or violent assault will be shown this week on Omnicom Cablevision.

Appearing on the program to provide information about preventing attacks will be: Diane Motagnano, Fiegel Elementary School kindergarten teacher; Kathy Reilly, a member of the Plymouth-Canton child abuse task force, and Dave Boljesic, Canton police information officer. They are interviewed by Maria Holmes, Omnicom program director.

The program was aired Tuesday during a live taping and will be shown at 4:30 p.m. today; 7 p.m. March 16, 17 and 20 and 6 p.m. March 21.

The program is in response to an HBO documentary, "How to Raise a Street Smart Child," hosted by Daniel J. Travanti of Hill Street Blues. The program highlights "how-to" ideas to avoid becoming a statistic," according to an HBO press release.

The Best Thing About Friday the 13th Is Our One Day Only Good Luck Sale.

Saturday, March 14

If you're superstitious about Friday the 13th, you should see what our employees are doing to improve your luck.

They're taking the whole day today to mark down everything in stock for tomorrow. High prices, they say, are bad luck. So they created prices so low that I'm going a little bit crazy. Here's the scoop:

Connie Balog got things jumping by taking a stunning traditional-styled sofa, valued at over $1,000, down the roller-coaster of reductions. It's now her lucky number: $392. Your lucky number is saving $608. What goes down must come up: this price is for tomorrow only. Get in early.

Then Reece Plummer joined the act. Claiming severe hallucinations arising from fear of high prices, Reece marked down a beautiful transitional-styled sleep-sofa from a frightening $1,013 to a heart-stopping $498. That's 52% off — or $1515 in savings. Ask to see this special bargain.

Don Paul swung into action. Taking his cue from the others, he brazenly took on my favorites: handsome swivel rockers, covered in stunning velvets, priced from $419. They're now $190 off — starting at only $229. I fear they'll be gone by noon. Be the first in line — and enjoy some very good luck.

Sally Morche, one of our most rational people, said the full moon was working its magic. "The full moon's not till Sunday, Sal," I said, "and the Sale is Saturday." No matter. Sally took selected coffee tables, end tables, and lamp tables, marking them down from $299 to start at only $99. "66% off?" I screamed. I'm still screaming — and so will you, if you miss these incredible values.

Craig Madven brought up a point. "Some people might even hide under the covers because of the date," said he. "Let's let them do it in style." The result: Craig marked down a natural wood bedroom set: transitionally-styled bed, dresser, chest-of-drawers, and mirror, from $1,598 to only $747. That's saving 58% — or keeping $851 in your pocket. At these prices, who's afraid? (except of missing the sale tomorrow).

That all-time good guy Dominic Bertucci wants everybody to have good luck every day. So for those of you looking for the perfect dining set, consider this distinctive all-wood dining set, complete. Feeling lucky? It went from $2,359 to only $1,250. That's saving $1,109. Now are you feeling lucky?

I noticed Karen Dabbs, scribbling 2-figure numbers on our lamp tickets. Low 2-figures. "Not enough for the 2-digit lottery," I thought. "Who's going to win this one?" You are. Lamps — including designer ceramic, brass, and glazed-bone base lamps — are now marked down to start at only $49. Savings up to 66% off. It figures. Tomorrow Only.

Warren Fetterman looked nervous. "Lie down," said I. He did — and suddenly got a brilliant idea. "Let's reduce all Serta and Simmons mattresses and box springs, said he, "and let's make them all 40-50% off." I looked around, nervously. We have quite a few. That means quite a few of you will save half off. Don't take this lying down. Come in early — and save.

Then I realized: For One Day Only, everybody can have a lucky day. So I marked down all discontinued dining room and bedroom sets a lucky 60% off. Selected accessories, pictures, bric-a-brac... half off. Tomorrow only.

By now, people were feeling very lucky. Flora Fiscelli spotted a handsome recliner, covered in a rugged English-style tweed, at $499. In the lucky flash of an eye, she marked it down to only $249. That's $250 off. Several per store. First come, first saved.

Sharon Kleinow provided the finishing act. All extra sofas, good-as-new, covered in a variety of elegant fabrics, incl. cottons, nylons and prints were $895 to $1,198. They're now from only $458. Early birds will get the warmest greeting — they have to go. Tomorrow.

Lastly, a stunning country sofa, covered in a muted, sophisticated off-white Herculan cover, regularly priced at $775. Very reasonable. We took a vote. $349 was the unreasonable finale. That's an incredible $426 in savings. Don't wait. We open at 10.

What more can I say? — except that we have more. Much more. And all at the same superb savings. So if you feel unlucky... wait a few hours. Set the alarm early. Come in to our spectacular March 14 Good Luck Sale. Because getting these values might be your best luck ever.

Canham didn't offer bribe, says Finn

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Attorney James Finn said he believed former Wayne County Chief Circuit Judge James Canham wasn't trying to bribe him — but added he wasn't working with Canham to expose a judge who may have offered the bribe — during testimony Wednesday before the Michigan Attorney Discipline Board.

Finn testified in a hearing designed to determine whether Canham conspired with former Michigan Appeals Court Judge Jerome Bronson to extort $20,000 in return for a favorable Appeals Court ruling in an upcoming case.

The hearing continues today. It is expected to conclude Friday.

Key witness Finn said he received a preliminary appeals court report from Canham Nov. 4 — apparently violating state judicial code — but believed the delivery was more an attempt to "tip (me) that something was afoot" than a bribe attempt.

"IF I WEIGHED the two men, I would think Bronson was more apt to be involved than Canham," Finn said.

Canham, a Redford township resident and former Redford justice of the peace, maintained, during almost eight hours of occasionally stormy testimony Tuesday, that he was innocent.

"But for a death in a stable, I have to sit here and say I'm an honest man," Canham said.

Bronson committed suicide Nov. 14 shortly his arraignment on bribery charges.

During testimony, Canham said Bronson asked him if he were a part of the Michigan Bar's "Irish Mafia" and, if so, to tell fellow-member Finn his case was in trouble.

"I never heard anyone discuss a case with me like that," Canham said, adding that he was unaware of case specifics or Bronson's intent.

While agreeing to pass along the information, Canham said he wouldn't call Bronson a friend.

"I never liked Judge Bronson personally," Canham said.

He testified to using the word, "s.uzzball" to describe Bronson to Finn. "It's an old Irish expression," he said.

Finn said Canham's favorable reputation and disparaging comments he made against Bronson ("He called him an awful lot of bad names.") led him to believe Canham wasn't trying to bribe him.

The Detroit-based attorney added that he received no indication Canham was working with him to expose Bronson.

"I THINK he (Canham) left it up to me to do what I wanted," Finn said. "He never talked about the police."

Calling him a "real law-and-order type," Canham said he expected Finn to report Bronson to authorities.

Though wired by the Michigan State Police to trap Bronson, Finn said his original intention wasn't to have Bronson arrested as much as to have him removed from hearing the case.

"I thought he was a biased judge," Finn said. "I didn't think I was building a case against Bronson. All I wanted was to get Bronson off my case."

Bronson was one of three judges assigned to the case, but he allegedly indicated that Finn "would be a winner" if he took the bribe.

In the case being appealed, Kentucky resident Michael Harrington was awarded $3.2 million in damages after being paralyzed when the brakes on the Ford-built tractor-trailer truck he was driving failed near Pikeville, Ky.

Ford appealed the verdict. Ford attorney John Kruse argued the case should have been decided under Kentucky law.

Kruse, a longtime friend of Canham's, testified he "had a hard time believing" Canham would intentionally hurt his case.

Canham's attorney, Sheldon Miller of Detroit, challenged the prosecution to produce evidence linking his client to the alleged payoff!

Though given immunity from criminal prosecution — in return for helping trap Bronson — Canham faces penalties ranging from censure to disbarment if found guilty.

Panel members J. Robert Sterling, Deborah Meis and John Shants have 28 days from the end of testimony to issue a ruling.

A ruling isn't expected Friday, Schwartz said.

Jobless rate rose last month

Auto industry layoffs and post-holiday job losses in the retail trade industry caused Michigan's February unemployment rate to rise by more than a percentage point to 8.5 percent, according to Richard Simmons Jr., director of the Michigan Employment Security Commission.

According to state labor force estimates prepared by the federal Bureau of Labor Statistics, Michigan's jobless level grew by 49,000 during February to 382,000.

"Scattered layoffs in the state's manufacturing industries, especially among the automotive and related firms, and post-holiday employment declines in the retail trade and some service industries accounted for the increase in unemployment," Simmons said.

IN JANUARY the state's unemployment rate was 7.4 percent with 333,000 out of work, Simmons said. Nevertheless, Michigan's jobless rate remained below the February 1986 level of 8.9 percent with 387,000 unemployed.

Although joblessness increased in February, the state still recorded its lowest unemployment rate for the month since 1979 when the February jobless rate was 7.1 percent.

Auto layoffs were caused by production adjustments and contained a mixture of temporary and indefinite cutbacks, he said.

Michigan did set February highs for employment and work force size, Simmons said. In February nearly 4.1 million workers held jobs in the state, down 71,000 from January.

The labor force had nearly 4.5 million workers who were either working or looking for work.

AMONG THE nation's 11 largest states, Michigan's unemployment rate ranked behind those in Texas and Ohio, which had rates of 8.7 and 8.6 percent, respectively.

Michigan's unadjusted jobless rate also rose in February, climbing to 8.9 percent from 8.1 percent in January. The number of unemployed during the month grew by 35,000 to 393,000 from 358,000 in January.

Aid to homeless bill survives floor fight

Here's how area House members were recorded on major roll call votes during the week ending March 6. The Senate had no record votes.

HOUSE

HELPING THE HOMELESS — By a vote of 264 for and 121 against, the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill (HR 558) authorizing an additional $500 million this fiscal year in aid to the homeless.

The money would be added to about $260 million Congress already has appropriated in 1987 homeless aid. The bill is silent on how the new money would be raised.

Although it mainly bolsters existing federal efforts to provide shelter, food and medical care, the bill also creates new programs for mentally ill persons who have been released to the streets by state and federal psychiatric hospitals.

Supporter Bill Green, R-N.Y., said the bill "addresses a crying need ... that we can see virtually on our doorsteps every night."

Opponent Toby Roth, R-Wis., said the $500 million pricetag unaccompanied by offsetting spending cuts "means adding to our unbearable deficit."

Members voting yes favored the bill. Among area congressmen, there was a party-line vote.

Voting yes: Democrats Dennis Hertel of Harper Woods, William Ford of Taylor and Sander Levin of Southfield.

Voting no: Republicans Carl Pursell of Plymouth and William Broomfield of Birmingham.

Third party rules change

AP — Minor political parties and independent candidates would have more trouble getting on the ballot under a bill approved by the state House of Representatives last week.

Third parties would be required to collect more than 23,000 petition signatures to get their slate of candidates on the ballot, up from about 16,000 under current law. House Bill 4090 was sent to the Senate on a 76-21 vote.

The sponsor, Rep. Maxine Berman, D-Southfield, said the bill puts all parties on an even playing field.

But state Rep. Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, said the change was unfair.

"It is an ill-conceived attempt to increase the burden on minor parties and third parties to get on the ballot ... to get their ideas before voters," Bullard said.

"It is a step in the wrong direction, a step away from our democratic ideals," Bullard said. "There is no case made for this change. There is no crowding of the ballot with third parties."

BERMAN SAID the legislation will prevent frivolous candidates from gaining easy ballot access and takes into account the lack of primary challenge most third party candidates face.

The law changes the signature requirement for third parties and independent candidates from collecting 1 percent of the total secretary of state's vote in the last gubernatorial election to 1 percent of the total vote for governor.

Here is how representatives from the Observer & Eccentric area voted:

- Yes (10) — Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia; John Bennett, D-Redford; Berman; W.V. Brotherton, R-Farmington; William Keith, D-Garden City; James Kosteva, D-Canton; Gerald Law, R-Plymouth; Judith Miller, R-Birmingham; Gordon Sparks, R-Troy; and Wilfred Webb, D-Hazel Park.
- No (1) — Mat Dunaskiss, R-Lake Orion.
- Not voting (2) — Justine Barns, D-Westland; David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield.

A SERIES OF four bills the House approved unanimously would permit the use of videotaped testimony in pre-trial hearings, anatomically correct dolls and support people for children afraid to testify against adults accused of molesting them.

Judges also could rearrange their courtrooms so children wouldn't look directly at the defendant or other members of the family.

Critics say allowing videotaped testimony would deny defendants, who may be wrongly accused, a fair chance to confront their accusers.

The bills would only allow the videotaped testimony to be used at pre-trial stages, not during the trial itself.

The House approve a similar package of bills last year, but they bogged down in the Senate.

THE HOUSE also approved, by a 2-to-1 ratio, a bill designed to ensure easily understood consumer contracts.

It requires the agreements "to be written in a clear and cohesive manner using words and phrases with common and every day meaning."

Roll Call Report

REVENUE TRANSFERS — By a vote of 203 for and 207 against, the House rejected an amendment requiring that the $500 million in homeless aid (above) be taken from the budgets of other programs, not raised by Treasury borrowing.

Republicans who originated the anti-deficit amendment did not specify the budgets to be reduced. Mischievous Democrats then narrowed it to require the $500 million to be taken from fiscal 1987 foreign aid budget, which the Administration wants to increase.

Sponsor Robert Michel, R-Ill., said the bill lacked "fiscal integrity" by failing to identify how the $500 million would be raised.

Opponent Barney Frank, D-Mass., said "we can afford in this wealthy country to provide the money."

Members voting yes wanted the increased homeless spending to be offset by foreign aid cuts. Republicans Pursell and Broomfield voted yes.

Voting no were Democrats Hertel, Ford and Levin.

AIDS TESTING — The House rejected, 101 for and 292 against, an amendment to the homeless aid bill (above) to begin testing certain street people for the AIDS virus.

The amendment originally called for mandatory testing, but was softened to make the AIDS examinations voluntary for those seeking medical care at homeless shelters.

Supporter Dan Burton, R-Ind., said it was time for Congress to bear down on the AIDS epidemic. "The number one issue of the late '80s and '90s."

Opponent Henry Waxman, D-Calif., termed the amendment "hysteria" and said that to test the homeless for exposure to AIDS would leave no money for their basic medical care.

Members voting yes favored AIDS testing of the homeless. Voting yes: Broomfield.

Voting no: Pursell, Hertel, Ford, and Levin.

DELAYING HOMELESS AID — By a vote of 124 for and 260 against, the House rejected an attempt to freeze the $500 million in homeless aid (above) for six months after the measure became law.

Mohler is soloist for state concert

A concert in honor of Michigan's sesquicentennial will be given next week by the Plymouth Community Band.

Entitled "Michigan 150," the concert will begin at 8 p.m. Friday, March 20, in the Plymouth Canton High Little Theater. Admission is free.

The concert features professor John Mohler of the University of Michigan as clarinet soloist.

The Community Band will present music by Mozart, Frescobaldi, Mendelssohn and Marvin Harnisch.

Also featured will be marches dedicated to the state of Michigan.

MOHLER STUDIED with Philadelphia Orchestra clarinetist Ralph McLane at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia.

In 1950 Mohler became a member of the U.S. Marine Band and Orchestra, Washington, D.C., where he appeared many times as soloist.

Further study at U-M with William Stubbins and William Revelli led to Mohler being that university's first recipient of the doctor of musical arts degree in wind instruments.

Mohler is chairman of the wind and percussion instruments department of the U-M school of music.

In addition to frequent appearances as guest soloist and recitalist throughout the United States, he has performed with the Philadelphia Orchestra, has been guest recitalist at the International Clarinet Congress and ClarFest Society.

He also has been on the faculties of Drake University, the Brevard Music Center and the Cumberland Forest Music Camp.

Mohler is the principal clarinetist in the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra.

Brownies helping to sell cookies

A weekend cookie booth will be operated the next two weekends at Family Discount Drugs, Ann Arbor Road at Sheldon in Plymouth.

Plymouth Brownie Troop 368 will operate the booths on March 14-15, 20-22, according to troop leader Mary Abts.

"We want to do our part to help the many residents who already have devoured their entire cookie order or, worse yet, haven't even had an opportunity to order any of these great Girl Scout cookies," said Abts.

The booth will be open 5-9 p.m. Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, 4-9 p.m. Friday, March 20, 3-9 p.m. Saturday, March 21, and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, March 22.

"We'll be selling seven delicious varieties of cookies — chocolate chip, Peanut Butter Patties, lemon pastry cremes, peanut butter sandwich, Caramel Delites, shortbread, thin mints — for only $1.75 per box and some of these aren't available in other areas.

"We are looking forward to helping everyone munch their way through these last days of winter. Our motto is no person without a cookie."

Retiree helping readers

Veronica Altemus tutors a student once a week in the Canton Public Library to improve the young person's reading skills so she can attend a cosmetology school.

Altemus is a literacy volunteer for the Retired Senior Volunteer Program, who regularly helps young adults improve their reading skills.

When not tutoring with the student in person, Altemus sometimes is in contact with her student by phone whenever she runs into problems. She is able to tutor over the phone simply by asking the student to spell out words.

"The rewards are experienced when you see the progress of the student," says Mary Murphy of RSVP.

"There is a lot of personal satisfaction derived from volunteering."

Altemus, a widow, raised five children and now is a grandmother of nine grandchildren. She retired from Adistra, a mailing company, in 1984. After retiring she joined RSVP.

She also is active in her church, where she enjoys working in the nursery. She is a member of the Canton Pioneers.

"Volunteerism was with her throughout the years of raising children," said Murphy. "It was either Girl Scouts or Boy Scouts; it was perhaps PTA activities or other school activities."

"As there was a need, she was there assisting others. It is no wonder then that Mrs. Altemus finds time to help others during her retirement years."

"Whether it is volunteering for the Learn to Read program, sponsored by TV-7, or whether it is volunteering as a tutor for her present student or with her local church, Mrs. Altemus finds that it is rewarding to help others."

Anyone 60 or older interested in volunteering for the literacy program may call 883-2100, ext. 365. There are some 1,500 RSVP volunteers in Wayne County.

Census takers start counting residents

Census enumerators will begin their four-week task of counting Plymouth Township residents Friday.

"It's a simple population head count — just names and numbers in homes," said Gail Marnik, who's coordinating the census for the township.

The special census was authorized by the township board to determine whether the township qualifies for supplemental payments under the state revenue sharing act.

Trained enumerators will visit every house, condominium and apartment in the township.

Enumerators will carry certificates of identification with a state of Michigan stamp. They generally will work 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and 4:30 to 8 p.m. Mondays through Fridays and 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturdays, Marnik said.

A pre-postage paid card will be left at residences if no one answers when enumerators call. The cards should be completed and mailed.

"If enumerators can't get in touch with people in a house, they'll telephone or ask neighbors for information," Marnik said.

The field work should last until about April 10.

To qualify for higher state revenue payments 1988 through 1990, the township must show a population gain of at least 3,454. That would represent an increase of 15 percent from the 23,028 counted during the 1980 federal census.

Please Help A Neighbor's Child In Need!

In Third World countries, hundreds of thousands of children are in desperate need of food, clothing, medical care — the basics of life. These girls and boys are even denied the opportunity to attend school.

They are our neighbors in a world that grows smaller every day.

Through CCF, you can sponsor a neighbor's child. The cost is $18 a month — just 60¢ a day — to help a poor child in Asia, Africa or Latin America — a child who has virtually nothing.

Please pick up your phone now and dial the toll-free number below. Be a good neighbor by helping an innocent child.

Prisons' economic payoff is lessened by guidelines

NOBODY WANTS a prison in his backyard — unless you are a community in the U.P. or in another remote area.

To soften community opposition to accepting a prison, the state tries to sell the economic benefits — construction jobs, expanded permanent employment, and local procurement. The bait is attractive.

But the "catch" is not so great once the fish gets the worm — especially in a metropolitan area. The economic benefits of prisons in the Plymouth-Northville community would be diminished because we do exist in a metropolitan region.

Whether the net advantage is a plus is elusive. In measuring the economic benefits, though, it is clear that guidelines, policies and practices implemented statewide lessen the effect on a metropolitan area.

THE PRISON STORY in today's paper examines the economic effect of the three prisons at Five Mile/Beck on the community.

Prison officials and officials at the Michigan Department of Corrections list the economic benefits to the area. Local officials, however, claim the economic advantages are either negligible or immeasurable.

The difference is one of perception. Prison officials and state personnel look at community with a much broader perspective than local governmental leaders. Local leaders would define the "community" as including Plymouth, Northville, Livonia, Canton, Novi and Salem Township. State and prison officials view "community" as an "area" with a 30-mile radius.

State research draws on experiences in the Kalamazoo area, where there are far fewer communities within a 30-mile radius. But those findings apparently are applied here as our newest prison, Scott, reports that two-thirds of its jobs end up with "local residents" within a 30-mile radius.

In outstate Michigan or the U.P., it makes sense to have hiring and procurement policies apply to a 30-mile area. But in this area such a concept of community makes no sense at all. Even if you cut the radius in half, it makes little sense.

As an example, if you draw a circle having a radius of just 15 miles extending from Five Mile/Beck, the circle would take in Whitmore Lake, Brighton,

In outstate Michigan or the U.P., it makes sense to have hiring and procurement policies apply to a 30-mile area. But in this area such a concept of community makes no sense at all.

Milford, Franklin, Beverly Hills, Lathrup Village, Detroit, Dearborn, Taylor, Belleville, Romulus, Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor.

Residents in the village of Franklin or city of Taylor have not even heard of Scott, Phoenix or Western Wayne correctional facilities, let alone be affected by any of them. Yet state guidelines would extend jobs on a preferential basis to residents in any one of these municipalities.

Likewise, the state could hire an architect in Ann Arbor, a general contractor in Bloomfield Hills, and tradesmen from Brighton and believe that local construction jobs were created. Local governmental leaders hardly would agree.

WHEN ADDING up economic benefits, the state should analyze only those communities that are harmed.

Why talk of an economic advantage to a community, like Brighton, which is not faced with any disadvantages of a prison being there?

The main measurable disadvantage is the potential loss of property tax revenue. State land is not taxable, so there are 273 acres in Plymouth-Northville exempt from the tax rolls.

If developed into an industrial park, which each prison site could be, the three sites would add at least $30 million to the tax rolls.

Based on a rate of 50 mills, that $30 million addition to the tax rolls would produce additional tax revenue of $750,000 per year for the affected townships, county and school districts.

Thus the prisons would cost $750,000 in lost tax revenue to the communities in which they are built. The question to ask is whether the benefit reaches that level.

Scott estimates 700 temporary construction jobs over two years. There is no evidence of any of those jobs coming from Plymouth-Northville, however. Wayne County Commissioner Susan Heintz suggests there are none.

WESTERN WAYNE has hired 21 persons (10 percent of its payroll) from Plymouth-Canton.

Phoenix has hired 36 persons (20 percent of its staff) from the broader area of Plymouth, Northville, Canton, Livonia, Whitmore Lake. Scott, which plans to hire two-thirds of its staff from a 30-mile radius, so far has hired six people from Plymouth-Canton.

That's 60 local workers hired for 667 jobs or 10 percent of the work force hired locally — or 90 percent non-local.

All three prisons deal with half a dozen local businesses on a state-approved vendor list. Scott estimates its local purchases at $20,000. Even if the other two hit that level, $60,000 a year in local purchases is not overwhelming.

While we do not support cronyism in procurement, it does not make sense for the state to spend thousands of dollars annually outside the immediate area. Once again, the benefactors become companies in municipalities that are not hurt by the prisons.

What is the effect then? That's difficult to get a firm handle on, but we can assume that a 200-acre industrial park would generate more than 60 jobs for Plymouth-Canton residents. We know the prisons do not buy $750,000 worth of products locally.

So far we have not seen where the state has helped to recoup the lost property tax revenues. Without that effort being made, the economic effect is negative — by state policy and guidelines, which are not applicable to a metropolitan region.

The state should aggressively seek local vendors and should establish quotas for hiring, quotas that would ensure that the bulk of hiring would be done within the Plymouth-Canton and Northville school districts.

If the state would do that, it would have more credibility when it tries to sell the economic benefits of prisons to the public — an important note as Michigan still has more than a dozen prisons to build.

Educate scouts on life together

IT'S TIME WE integrated an American institution — scouting.

You heard me correctly. It's time we raised boys and girls together so they learn how to live together when they become men and women.

So far we have failed. By the time children get to be adults, the lessons are learned. It's just too late.

Scouting could earn a place of significance in our social history beyond anything it has accomplished if it took this giant step.

I don't know about you, but I sure would like my child to have all the same chances as the next.

Nothing extra, mind you. Just that when hiring is done and the promotions are handed out, I want the rules to be the same for everyone.

But as we all know, that's hardly the case when it comes to women in the workplace.

"Sure, it's getting better," you may say.

But I say in return, "that's not good enough."

"GETTING" THERE is a far cry from "being" there.

And women just aren't allowed to be "there" yet.

I was thinking about this recently while watching several troops of Girl Scouts from the Farmington Hills area celebrate the 75th anniversary of their organization.

Some of the speeches given talked of sisterhood and celebrating the idea of sharing the experience of growing up to be women.

But, I thought to myself, if the next generation of girls are going to grow up to be women with a status truly recognized as equal to male counterparts, we have to transcend this idea of sisterhood and brotherhood.

In order for men and women to live together in harmony and understanding, they must be brought up together as children.

CERTAINLY, THE foundation of the Girl Scouts was justified. It was an important step in elevating girls from a mere reflection of Boy Scouts, to a self-sustaining group with its own dreams, goals and ideals.

It demonstrated to girls that they were indeed equal during a time when an overwhelming majority of the population viewed them as inferior.

And while it is essential that girls grow up to be self-confident women, it's equally important that boys grow up to be men who realize that women are their equals.

The problem isn't equality. Women are equal. But a lot of boys are brought up to believe differently. Many girls are, too.

Just as in race, separation on the basis of gender creates the feeling among the dominant group of superiority.

Many men still feel threatened by women in the marketplace. It's unfamiliar competition they never had to face when young. Let's make it familiar.

State backs the wrong things

ECONOMISTS HAVE A rule of thumb: If you want more of something, subsidize it; if you want less, tax it.

For 25 years, Michigan has been paying people to have babies out of wedlock, providing welfare and other "social services." The state found the cash by cutting education from 52 percent of the budget to less than 30 and by increasing social services from 11 percent to more than 30.

With less state aid, our colleges require higher tuition; our local schools require higher property taxes.

SEN. DAN DeGROW, R-Port Huron, made a big splash in Lansing last week with his proposal for "a major redirection in Michigan welfare policy to break the cycle of dependency."

His $20 million plan has many details but one aim: to subsidize desirable behavior. Examples:

- Stay in school — Welfare grants would be cut to a parent where a kid doesn't maintain an 80-percent attendance record. The parent has an incentive to get the kid to class.

- Graduate — "Any low-income Michigan resident (defined as family income less than $11,000) under 20 who completes high school and has not become pregnant or fathered a child would receive a voucher for two years of education at any community college in the state." Two incentives: Complete high school and don't have illegitimate kids.

- Find a job — Low-income kids

America has a 20-percent illegitimacy rate, and it's growing among all races. If we think like DSS, we'll subsidize more of the same. If we think like DeGrow, we'll subsidize school attendance, graduation, college work and family values.

Tim Richard

Then comes a really bothersome notion. As background, consider that a couple of decades ago the majority of children born out-of-wedlock to teenagers were put up for adoption, but today the adoption rate is 5 percent or less. It means we pay more taxes than ever for welfare and less for schools.

DSS DOESN'T advocate "adoption" or "adoption counseling." It doesn't even mention those options.

Instead, it suggests: "Teen parents should receive supportive services in the (transitional) homes which encourage positive parenting behaviors and self-sufficiency" (italics mine).

Many words used by social workers are vague and morally neutered. But these statements, read in context, tell us that DSS is aiding, abetting, helping and encouraging the child-parents of illegitimate children to keep it up.

At taxpayer expense.

America has a 20-percent illegitimacy rate, and it's growing among all races. If we think like DSS, we'll subsidize more of the same. If we think like DeGrow, we'll subsidize school attendance, graduation, college work and family values.

who don't go to college but do get a job and hold it two years get a prize of $1,000 cash.

There's more, but you get the drift.

IN CONTRAST, the state Department of Social Services took the opposite approach in its 74-page report to the Government's Human Services Cabinet.

It never even uses the words "illegitimate" or "out-of-wedlock." Instead, it uses the misleading terms "teen pregnancy" and "teen parenting," indicating it fails to identify the problem.

It advocates even more subsidies for those who have illegitimate children, asking for "categorical eligible for general assistance for pregnant or parenting teens and the child(ren). This should be for teens ineligible for ADC, medical assistance or food stamps."

Ideas take beating from judge's ruling

U.S. DISTRICT JUDGE William Breward Hand last week banned 45 history, social studies and home economics textbooks from Alabama's largest school district because, he says, the books teach godless humanism.

It is not enough to note that Major Frank Burns has found life after "M*A*S*H" by sitting on a Southern judicial bench. Nor is it enough to note that, in the hearts, minds and souls of the fundamentalist right, the term "godless humanism" is redundant.

Many of you, I suspect, do not know what secular humanism is. Many foes can't easily define it, but they know they don't like it. They believe, according to the Associated Press, that secular humanism is a religion that teaches that man rather than God is the center of the universe.

IF SECULAR humanism is a religion, then it is unconstitutional to teach it in tax-supported public schools. That's what the fundamentalists say, and that's what Judge Hand ruled. Not everyone agrees.

"I have a great reservation, quite frankly, about banning, about judges interfering with local decision-making, and particularly prescribing what should be taught in schools or not taught in schools," said U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese who otherwise is not known as a knee-jerk liberal interested in messing with the lives of right-thinking folk.

Rich Perlberg

If Edwin Meese is disturbed about the prospect of special interests dictating the context of school books, then it should be unnecessary to point out that, although powerful, the printed word is something to be cherished, not feared; that ideas should be encouraged, not swept into dank warehouses.

AND WHAT ideas? Here, from the judge's decision, are a few excerpts that led to the books' demise: "We can direct our own lives instead of letting others do the directing for us. Each of us can become the kind of person we want to be." Or, "Your set of values will never be finalized. Your values change as you change." Or, "Self-actualization is the highest level of human needs."

These writings can be criticized for grammatical mistakes and for the horrid use of "self-actualization" and "finalized." But it is not unconstitutional to use bad grammar or educational jargon. It should be, but it's not. According to Judge Hand, it is unconstitutional to teach "secular humanism." It shouldn't be, but it is.

Michigan 150 years old

ANNIE CLEMENC, leader of the 1913 copper strike in the Upper Peninsula, was born March 2, 1888. The wife of a miner, "Tall Annie," as she was called, carried a large American flag in her daily marches in Keweenaw County.

The miners won an eight-hour day and a minimum wage of $3 daily.

Annie Clemenc lived until 1956 and is honored in the Michigan Women's Hall of Fame in Lansing.

The temple's as sturdy as might be hoped

MAYBE I DIDN'T show Pestilence enough respect. I should have known better.

It will be 41 years the night of April 1 since I told a downtown Detroit cop after an evening of noisy revelry, "You can't do this to me." He could and he did. Thus did I learn that those six words never should be spoken to anyone in authority, not even in jest.

But six weeks ago in this column I sort of scoffed at the fear of disease, particularly among hypochondriacs who imagine their ailments.

Even though admitting the body beautiful is not such a temple against creeping decrepitude as pretended through seven decades of keeping the moat filled, I joked about the heart being on the wrong side and taunted the Scorekeeper about borrowed time.

Immediately my lungs were designated as the temporary abode for a homeless family of pneumonia bacteria,

some of whom liked the warmth and coziness so much they paid little heed to eviction notices from medical professionals.

ONE NIGHT I even dreamed that the boss germ led the choir in a chorus of "You Can't Do This to Me," set to the tune of "The Saints Go Marching In."

However, my biggest protest is that there was no reason for my bride, Mother Goose, to be attacked in such a debilitating way and for such a prolonged time. There's no reason for the pain and misery inflicted on her in recent weeks. If whoever's in charge wants me to admit that we're mere mortals, I'll do it.

I'll even say I'm sorry we sold arms to Iran, if that will help put her back on her feet.

And speaking of being mere mortals, I have a suggestion concerning President Ronald Reagan and his memory or lack thereof. First, however, it should be recognized that fancy trappings of office aside, we really do have a common man in the White House.

Here's a person who wears two hearing aids, not one. He also has gone through prostate surgery, and no doubt the demeaning rectal examination which precedes it.

THE SECOND time they used that camera on me, the nurse looked at the screen and said, "I think we've met before." I replied that I hoped she wasn't as old as her shopworn joke, laughing and smiling all the time of course.

Mr. President, I hope your sense of humor was as good, particularly when they gave you that do-it-yourself enema kit.

But about this memory thing. Many of us are forgetful, all the more so the older we get. How many people have you heard complain about not remembering where they left the car in the parking lot of a shopping mall? Does the senior member of your family open the refrigerator door when intending to dump used coffee grounds? Do you quickly run through the alphabet trying to recall your best friend's last name?

I wish ABC newscaster Sam Donaldson would give this one-question memory test to the president of the United States at the conclusion of a televised press conference:

"MR. PRESIDENT: In 1928, after the football teams of Army and Notre Dame had played through a scoreless first half at Yankee Stadium, Coach Knute Rockne inspired the Fighting Irish with the story of George Gipp's deathbed wish. Some time, Rock, when the team's up against it; when things are wrong and the breaks are beating the boys — tell them to go in there with all they've got and win one for the Gipper.

"Dutch, what was the final score of that game?"

Dollars to doughnuts, Ronald Reagan is the one man who would immediately and correctly answer, "Notre Dame 12, Army 6."

And with that, Donaldson could say, "Mr. President, you have perfect recall."

On the other hand, what if the president hesitated and fumbled with the reply and said, "Wait a minute, I'll have to ask Rock . . ."

Evasive conclusions plentiful and geometric

UNFITTING CONCLUSIONS: Back in the tender years when I am attending elementary school, I am described by more than a few of my teachers as a student of "boundless intelligence." It is only as the decades begin to pile up that I am discovering what they really meant.

A person with "boundless intelligence" is someone who has great difficulty leaping to conclusions. In fact, in my case, I am finding it difficult to even reach a conclusion. For some reason that is beyond the vacant lot of my understanding, while I do not find it hard to gather a large number of facts on a given subject, when it comes to aligning them in some sort of order, I am suffering from constipation of the brain.

The facts are not adding up; they are not subtracting down. They just lie there, odd-shaped little bits and pieces. No quivering. No movement. They do not fit together. They just fit apart.

For instance, let us say that my reading reminds me of the Agency for International Development. Now the world is full of people who know all about the Agency for International Development. They are telling you that it is an agency of the State Department established in 1961 to consolidate U.S. non-military foreign aid programs for developing countries.

Yet when I begin to gather facts about A.I.D. activity over the past 25 years, they are not fitting that description. U.S. non-military aid is not consolidated; it is expanded. And those lands that were once known as "developing countries" have spent the past quarter century "not developing." Then when I am looking in the newspaper, I am finding that these nations are now known as "underdeveloped countries."

Which then brings us to a revolting side effect: In the case of Africa, we are shipping so much aid to undevelop these developing countries that now they feel obliged to ship something back to us. So they are sending some of the aid back in the plural form — AIDS. Like I am saying, for us persons of boundless intelligence, it is a puzzlement. How did we progress from there all the way back to here?

QUESTIONABLE ADVERTISING: (Many times when I am watching TV, I am finding myself with something less than 100 percent concentration on the advertising message during the commercial break. Instead, as the narrator begins to explain the situation, somewhere back in the stagnant pool of my mind little questions begin to bob to the surface.)

AD I: "Hello. I'm Victor K." (Holds up the product) "The R— shaves closer than a blade. In fact I liked it so much I bought the company." (Okay Vic, but why didn't you use some of the money to buy yourself a new bathrobe?)

AD II: "We asked 1,000 doctors that if they were stranded on an island, which pain reliever . . ." (I am not sure I would pay much attention to no doctor which is dumb enough to get stranded on an island with 999 other doctors.)

OFF-COLOR SITUATION: Since I am taught at my mother's knee to be considerate of other's feelings, lately I am taking much more time than usual to get ready for a party or a luncheon. A certain area of my body now requires extra touch-up. The reason: gray hair.

One of the first times I am encountering this problem is a reunion with a few old buddies and their wives. Naturally, at such an event, the topics of conversation are many, but the one that inevitably outlasts all the others is "The Advent of Old Age."

"Did I ever tell you about how my son and I climbed Mount Meeker out in Colorado?"

Come on — you gotta be as old as I am!"

Or: "I'm getting so I don't like to swim in a pool any more. Those chemicals are killing my hair."

"Don't kid me, chum. The chemical industry is doing a great job for you. Just look at your hair — and then look at mine."

So I am doing just that. And as I am fixing my gaze on his tuft of swampgrass, I am seeing what he means. All along the temples and the crown of his head lie more than a few tell-tale silver-gray strands of hair — announcing to one and all that the body below the swampgrass will soon be applying for Social Insecurity.

At other such events it is not uncommon for my eye to catch one or more of my associates scrutinizing my hair from a distance, or for my antenna to pick up a wisp of a comment on how depressing it is to attend an Old Timers Ball when the ticket-taker has let in someone obviously on his way back from the Fountain of Youth.

Naturally, I cannot understand how all my friends have spent so much time searching through the jungle only to find the Fountain of Old Age.

So now, like I said, before leaving for a luncheon or a dinner, I am devoting the time necessary to take care of my hair — streaking a little gray into it here, adding a dash of gray there. It is the least I can do for my friends.

Lawmakers may war over court funding

By Tim Richard
Staff writer

There could be war in Lansing this year over state funding of courts, a lobbyist for Michigan judges warned.

There is a great deal of restlessness outstate, said Milton Zaagman, executive director of the Michigan Judges Association. A former state senator from Grand Rapids, Zaagman testified last week before the state Senate Judiciary Committee, chaired by Sen. Rudy Nichols, R-Waterford.

Sen. Nichols
Detroit

In 1979 state government began paying 100 percent of the cost of lower courts. The process began and ended with the Wayne County Circuit Court, Detroit Recorders Court and the 36th District Court in

THEN CAME the recession and budget cuts. For several years, Michigan has had two funding systems — one for Detroit Wayne County, where the state pays all, another for the Wayne suburbs and the other 82 counties.

The issue of court financing is becoming increasingly vexatious, said Zaagman, who was pinching for MJA president Hilda Gage, an Oakland circuit judge.

Theoretically, there are three solutions.

- Continuing the dual system, which Zaagman sees as doomed.

- State funding of all 571 lower court judges and their staffs, as originally planned, at an additional $150 million to $225 million from the state.

- Ending state funding of Detroit Wayne County courts, going back to the previous system of the state guaranteeing part of judges' salaries and local governments supplementing them. Zaagman sees this as under attack.

"In the House of Representatives last year, there were 57 votes (more than a majority) to wipe out Wayne County court reorganization funding," he said. "There is a great deal of restlessness. There could be a real war this year, and that war could be won."

NICHOLS SAW a political problem with the state's picking up the entire cost.

The governor's office has not got behind state funding, said Nichols, a second-term senator elected during the 1983 tax revolt.

In a post-hearing interview, Nichols quoted Senate Majority Leader John Engler, R-Mount Pleasant, as saying "the Senate won't jump" until Gov. James Blanchard advocates the plan.

Nichols, an attorney, said Michigan's constitution clearly called for a single court system, not multiple systems of paying. "This has not been done because of money," the judiciary chairman said.

JUDGES DISLIKE the dual system because of pay inequities (see salary story) and the budget arguments they get into with local governments.

"Counties like that," said Zaagman, "because a judge comes to them with hat in hand."

Sen. John Kelly, D-Detroit, had a war story from the other point of view. "The Grosse Pointe Park district judge says unless she gets a pay raise, she's going to order the city to give her one."

Zaagman noted that Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, House Judiciary chairman, is author of a bill to provide procedures for handling budget disputes between courts and local control units. The problem has cropped up in every corner of the state.

It has even pitted local governments against each other, as in Oakland County, where county government subsidizes the 52nd District Court (including Troy and Rochester) but not the 48th District (Bloomfield area).

LAST YEAR G. Mennen Williams, then chief justice of the Supreme Court, toured the state making a pitch for full state funding of courts.

Besides Detroit/Wayne courts, the state pays the full price for the Supreme Court and Court of Appeals. Dorothy Comstock Riley, chief justice this year, is expected to renew the battle for full state funding when she makes a "State of the Judiciary" address March 18 to the Legislature.

What judges are paid

Supreme Court justices in 1986 were paid $81,400 and Court of Appeals judges $78,150 — all by the state.

Here was the '86 picture for the lower courts, according to the State Officers Compensation Commission.

- Circuit Court, the highest trial court — its judges are limited to 92 percent of a justice's salary, or $74,888. In every county but Wayne, the state pays part, and the county is allowed to supplement it. Range:

$57,200 to the full $74,888. Average $73,878, or 98 percent of the cap.

- Probate Courts, which handle estates and juvenile matters — judges are capped at 88 percent of Supreme Court salaries, or $71,632. Range: $52,588 to $71,632. Average: $62,594, or 87 percent of the cap.

- District Courts, which handle misdemeanors, pretrial exams and small civil cases — judges are limited to 88 percent, or $71,632. Range: $52,656 to $71,632. Average: $63,629, or 88 percent of the cap.

Audubon lauds Penny Wright

The Michigan Audubon Society has honored freelance writer Penny Wright, whose "Our Land" column appears regularly in Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, for her outstanding contribution to environmental education.

Wright of Plymouth Gov. James J. Blanchard and other recipients were honored at Audubon's annual convention last weekend at Jackson Community College.

The 42-chapter Audubon group, formed in 1904, gives annual awards to six individuals or groups for contributing to environmental legislation, public education and conservation practices, according to Kay T. Dodge, vice president.

"HER COLUMN highlights people and issues affecting the waters, air and natural habitat across the state and particularly in southeastern Michigan," wrote Tim Richard, county editor who nominated her in the statewide competition.

"It's well researched and lucid. Feedback on her accuracy is 100 percent positive."

Among her 1986 works cited were: "Wilderness buffs blast Ottawa timbering plan," March 3; "Timbering aids wildlife," the Mead Co. reply, April 3; "Nature devotee welcome harbingers of spring," April 24; "Will state pesticide guidelines evaporate?"; May 1; "Toxics pose lakes threat," May 22; "Michigan Conservation Corps employs teens," Sept. 18; and "First woman to head the MCCC," Sept. 25.

These walls hold a wealth of art

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Therese Gall knows what local people like in art.

Gall, a Plymouth Township resident, is co-chairwoman of the Plymouth Community Arts Council's art rental gallery. She and co-chairwoman Michelle Dorrington have first-hand knowledge of what's popular in art.

"Plymouth is very traditional," Gall said. "Abstracts don't rent."

"There are some that are more popular than others. Barns are wonderful. Barns and flowers and landscapes."

The seasons don't seem to have much of an influence on rentals either, snow scenes are rented during the summer and flower scenes during the winter, she said.

The gallery is open from 10 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. Wednesdays. It's located upstairs in the Dunning-Hough Library, 223 S. Main in Plymouth.

Art works may be rented initially for two months with no renewal or for one month with a one-month renewal option.

THE ART works on display in the gallery change constantly, as works are returned and as new works are added to the collection. There's never more than one-half of the collection in at one time.

The Plymouth Community Arts

Council has operated the rental gallery since 1975. Proceeds fund a variety of programs offered by the local arts organization.

The gallery opened with 11 pictures and now has approximately 225. Of that number, some 104 are from Michigan artists, including some from the Plymouth-Canton area.

Those who run the gallery wanted to feature the works of Michigan artists. The works are purchased primarily from art shows, such as the Three Cities Art Club show and shows in the nearby cities of Farmington and Ann Arbor.

A committee of four or five people will go to an art show to make decisions about what to purchase. The committee's membership changes, "so we can get a different view," Gall said.

"Buying is great fun, it really is." The gallery's collection is constantly being updated.

In addition to purchases made at those shows, Gall has picked up things for the gallery during her travels. Occasionally, those who run the gallery are contacted by artists with works to sell; some of the works are donated.

"We try and get a variety," she said. "Plymouth is not a modern town though."

LAST YEAR, Gall bought several items for the gallery through the Channel 56 auction. She was glued to the television set, watching to see what was available.

"I got five pictures from the Channel 56 auction."

The gallery's collection includes a sculpture by Peter Rockwell, "Celebration of the Birth of a First Child." The 22-inch bronze sculpture has a pedestal.

Rockwell's sculpture rents for $15 a month and has been popular with those who rent art works from the gallery.

Gall and the others at the gallery encourage people to stop by and see what's available.

"This is a great way to figure out what you want. You can rent it."

Those who run the gallery are offering a free rental of one picture for one month for businesses. That's being done to make people more aware of what's available.

The gallery attracts some traffic from the library; people with new homes also come in to see what's available. Art works are rented both for businesses and for use at home.

Some of those who rent art works match the art with their carpeting, walls and furniture.

"Some of them have to have exactly the right colors." For that reason, the framing has "to stay kind of universal," she said.

ALL OF THE framing for the gallery is done by The Frame Works on Penniman in Plymouth.

In addition to rentals, those who run the gallery donate art works for the West Trail Nursing Home, Tonquish Creek Manor and the Plymouth Community Council on Aging office.

The gallery used to be open two days a week, but staffing became a problem. The gallery has a staff of some 40 volunteers; new volunteers are always needed.

"They usually work one shift a month." Each shift is for three hours.

Working as a volunteer at the gallery allows people to learn more about art, Gall said. It's also a good way to meet people.

The gallery is patterned after the Detroit Institute of Arts program, although rental fees for that program are based on a percentage of the purchase price. In the Plymouth gallery, rental fees are $4 per month for originals and reproductions and $1 per month for "mini" art works.

"They're getting a great value for their dollar, they really are," Gall said.

Using prescription and over-the-counter drugs calls for caution.

Caution Using medication wisely

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Prescription drugs can work wonders — if they're taken properly.

Improper use of medication, however, can have dire consequences.

Those taking prescription drugs need to remember to take exactly the amount prescribed by the doctor and to follow the dosage schedule as closely as possible.

Before visiting the doctor, it's a good idea to jot down any questions you have about your medication. It's also best to visit one pharmacy to have all your prescriptions filled, said Gary Stoner, a pharmacist at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor.

Stoner gave a presentation Monday afternoon at the Arbor Health Building in Plymouth on "Wise Medication Use." The pharmacist's presentation was co-sponsored by the Catherine McAuley Health Center and the Plymouth Community Council on Aging.

GETTING ALL prescriptions filled at one pharmacy allows your pharmacist to keep track of all medications you're taking. These days, patients are likely to visit a number of specialists rather than seeing one doctor, Stoner said.

"It's hard for each one to know exactly what you're taking." Your pharmacist, however, can keep track of all the medications.

During Monday's presentation, a videotape on "Drugs and the Older Individual" was shown. Stoner also answered questions about drug use.

"Drugs" include not only prescription medicines but also over-the-counter drugs, those bought and used without a prescription.

"These can cause serious side effects," Stoner said.

Often, generic drugs can be used. In some situations, a smaller amount of the drug can be prescribed, to allow the patient and doctor to see what the side effects will be.

"Sometimes, doctors forget what the true costs of the medication are," Stoner said. Patients shouldn't hesitate to ask if a less-expensive drug or a smaller quantity can be prescribed.

Other tips for those taking medication include:

- Never take drugs prescribed for a friend or relative, even if your symptoms are the same. Medicines do not produce the same effects in all people.

- Tell your doctor about past problems you have had with a drug. When your doctor prescribes a new drug, tell him or her about all other medications you're taking, including over-the-counter drugs and those prescribed by another doctor.

- Keep a daily record of the drugs you are taking. The record should show the name of the drug, the doctor who prescribed it, the amount you take and the times of day for taking it. Include a space to check off each dose as you take it.

- Pharmacists can provide you with easy-to-open containers. It's important, however, to keep all People visiting the rental gallery will match paintings with their carpeting, walls and furniture, according to Therese Gall.

The gallery assesses late fees of $2 per picture per week; for the "mini" art works, the late fee is $1 per picture per week. After an art work has been in circulation for one year, it's priced for sale. Two rentals are allowed toward the purchase price.

Gall's been working at her job with the gallery for approximately six years now.

"I like it. I think it's fun." Although there's a good deal of paperwork that has to be done, the job is still an enjoyable one.

"It's been a fun job. I've enjoyed it."

The telephone number for the art rental gallery is 459-0110 (Wednesdays during gallery hours). Additional information is available from Therese Gall, 459-8896.

Using medicines the safe way

medicines out of the reach of children.

- Be sure you understand the instructions printed on the drug container and that the name of the medicine is clearly printed on the label.

- Discard all old medicines; many drugs lose their effectiveness over time.

- When you start taking a new drug, ask your doctor or pharmacist about possible side effects, rules for storage, and any foods or beverages to avoid.

- Let your doctor know promptly about any unusual reactions.

"Each patient experiences different side effects," Stoner said. Common side effects include nausea, vomiting and diarrhea.

IN SOME cases, the patient may actually feel worse after starting treatment, he said. Drugs used to treat high blood pressure, for example, may leave the patient feeling worse than he or she did before treatment began.

It's important, however, to treat high blood pressure. Allowing it to go untreated can have serious consequences, such as the possibility of a stroke occurring.

"Remember to give the drug time to work," Stoner said.

If you're regularly forgetting to take your medication, it's important to tell your doctor, Stoner said. The doctor makes his or her diagnosis on the assumption that you're taking the medicine as prescribed — and needs to know if that's not the case.

Patients shouldn't hesitate to ask doctors and pharmacists about the drugs that have been prescribed. Health care professionals can be a good source of information about prescription medicines and how they should be taken.

"My goal is not to see you back at the hospital," the pharmacist said.

Students plan fun-filled play

Students at Central Middle School in Plymouth have been hard at work preparing for their upcoming production of "The Wizard of Oz."

Show dates will be Thursdays, March 19 and 26, and Fridays, March 20 and 27. Performances will be at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium of Central Middle School, at Main and Church streets in Plymouth.

The cast includes students in the sixth through eighth grades. The 130 students of the school's chorus classes will perform.

Main characters will be played by: Melanie Farrow (Dorothy), Becky Bain (Scarecrow), Scott Lefurgy (Tin Man), Kelvin Chou (the Lion) and Kathy Currier (the Wicked Witch).

The performances will include 75 students in the onstage chorus, dancing as well as singing. The offstage chorus will include 50 students.

One of the highlights of the production is the performance by the onstage chorus of the "Munchkin Land" sequence.

THE DIRECTOR for "The Wizard of Oz" is Maureen Mann, a music teacher at Central Middle School. In 1985, Mann appeared as a munchkin in the production of "The Wizard of Oz" done by the Plymouth branch, American Association of University Women.

Each year, students at Central put their time and talents to good use by working on a full-scale musical production. "The Wizard of Oz" is the 16th production.

Last year's production was "Godspell." In 1985, students presented "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown."

Any profits from "The Wizard of Oz" production will go to the chorus to finance scholarships and other activities.

One-act samples of "The Wizard of Oz" will be performed for students from Central's feeder elementary schools. Those schools include Field, Farrand, Allen, Bird and Tanger.

Chorus is an elective course offered for credit; participation in the annual musical production is a class requirement. Students have been rehearsing for approximately four days a week after school since they returned to school in January.

PARENTS OF the students are also involved in the production, helping with publicity, tickets, programs, makeup, costumes and backstage supervision.

Chorus students also participate in backstage activities, including props, costumes, ticket sales and others.

Tickets for the Central Middle School production are on sale at the school between 10:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. on school days.

Ticket prices are $3 for adults, $1.50 for students and children. Those planning to attend the production may call the school, 451-6580, to reserve tickets. Those tickets must be picked up within 24 hours of the reservation call.

Seats are not reserved; seating is open at all performances. Tickets, if available, will be sold at the door.

For additional information, call 459-0617.

Couple puts effort into new church

By Richard Leach
staff writer

A DECADE AGO, Phillip Rogers and Earvin "Magic" Johnson were teammates on the basketball court.

Now Rogers and his wife, Diana, have teamed up for a whole new ballgame.

The Rogerses are shooting to form a new Baptist church in Plymouth Township.

Since August they've been surveying residents and holding Bible study sessions in hopes of building the core group needed to start a congregation.

It's a difficult game plan to execute, but the couple seem confident they'll succeed in the end.

"It's a little bit lonely in that we don't have a constant group of people we can meet with," Diana Rogers said.

"But we didn't come in thinking that all we'd have to do is put a flyer on a car and expect people to flock in. It takes real commitment," said Phillip Rogers, who was Magic Johnson's teammate on the 1977 Lansing Everett High School state championship basketball team.

THE ROGERSES' work is being done as a mission of Merriman Road Baptist Church in Garden City, which is affiliated with the Southern Baptist Convention.

The couple said sometimes people get the wrong idea when they hear the words "Southern" and "Baptist."

"A lot of people do have a negative impression of Baptists," Phillip Rogers said.

"We want people to know we have fun too. I play on a Plymouth parks and recreation basketball team, and I can give the elbow as good as anyone," he said with a laugh.

"A lot of people find out we're Baptist and questions immediately come up, and they think we're fundamentalists," Diana Rogers said. "We try to stay away from that label."

The Rogerses said they don't take a "Thou Shalt See Things My Way" approach to Bible study.

"It's basically more of a dialogue," Phillip Rogers said. "What does this verse mean and how it applies to our lives."

THEIR PLYMOUTH venture marks a return to Michigan for the couple, who both grew up in the Lansing area.

They spent the last four years in Fort Worth, Texas, where Phillip received a master's degree from the Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, and Diana served as a television producer and director of communications for the American Heart Association.

Diana and Phillip Rogers starting new church

They've known each other since they were kids, when Phillip's dad was the minister at the church Diana attended. They were married after they graduated from Michigan State University in 1982.

Starting a church is nothing new for the couple, as they were involved in church starts in Texas and Michigan. The Plymouth area was selected as a prime area for a new church because it is one of the fastest growing areas in the state, Phillip Rogers said.

THEIR FIRST STEP in coming to this area was to send out a questionnaire to 700 homes in Plymouth Township. Phillip Rogers also dropped a note to his old friend Magic Johnson "to let him know what we're doing in Plymouth."

The flyer asked such questions as "What is the greatest need in your community" and "Why do you think most people don't attend church?" One comment seemed to be prevalent in all the responses, Phillip Rogers said.

"Even though they live in a neighborhood they did not know their neighbors that well," he said. "There is a lot of isolation. We found that to be pretty prevalent throughout."

The couple currently has two weekly Bible sessions going, at 7:30 p.m. Fridays in the Ridgewood Hills subdivision and 7:30 p.m. Tuesdays in the Colony Farm subdivision. Eight or nine people regularly attend each. They also are planning to start a third session in the Plymouth Square Apartments, where they live.

EVENTUALLY the couple would like to get together a core group of five families "willing to do what's needed" to get a church going. The Rogerses said they have made tentative arrangements with the Plymouth/Canton schools to hold Sunday worship services at West Middle School. For more on their efforts, call 459-5775.

Prayer in classroom shouldn't be mandatory

AS WE CELEBRATE the bicentennial of the American Constitution, we salute this glorious charter of freedom, the wisest of documents that provides for government of law and rights.

Those who are committed to a religious way of life particularly cherish the First Amendment that has shaped the society in which freedom of religion is respected. Because the government remains neutral with regard to religion, Americans have enjoyed unparalleled freedom of religion, freedom from interference by government. This freedom has allowed religious groups to flourish here with a strength and diversity unmatched anywhere in the world.

I am deeply concerned over the rise of those forces that seek to undermine the delicate balance between State and Church by enhancing the power of religion through the coercive forces of government. It is because I cherish so deeply the heritage of my faith that I oppose government mandated and organized prayer in our public schools.

In recent years, the congress has considered two school prayer constitutional amendments: one allowing vocal prayer and another for silent prayer. The legislation was defeated because the majority of Congress recognized the serious dangers of such legislation. Among the considerations that defeated these bills were:

● School prayer is legal today. Any child can pray silently in any classroom under existing law. Any child can pray out loud, in a classroom or lunchroom, or anywhere else on school property so long as it does not disrupt the school's activities, or interfere with other children's rights for privacy. There is no objection to a child praying on school grounds, only to the government — through the school-organizing school prayer activity.

Public schools are an inappropriate forum for religious instruction. If this legislation is passed and implemented, students will inevitably raise questions about religious belief, God and prayer in the public school environment, which is not designed or suitable for such discussions. Such discussions appropriately belong in the home, church or synagogue.

● This legislation does harm to minority groups. Prayer in the public schools will inevitably place unfair pressure on those students who wish to abstain from group prayer either because they do not wish to participate in prayer activity, or in the case of vocal prayer, do not believe in the words of the prayer selected for the class. Why should children be subjected to such discrimination and alienation?

● Public schools should teach about religion, but not mandate student participation. The constitutional promise of religious liberty is nurtured by a corresponding tradition of religious tolerance. Educating students about the diversity of religious expression in America can help promote understanding, alleviate prejudice and prepare students to participate in a pluralistic society. Whether the study of religions is incorporated into the study of history or social studies, the subject matter should be presented objectively as part of the general program of instruction. The academic study of religion should be given an important place in public education. It is a disservice to our students and our society to neglect the role of religion on human history.

Quiz covers poison facts

NEXT WEEK, March 15-21, is the 27th National Poison Prevention Week. While the possibility of an accidental poisoning exists all year long, the week is highlighted to provide education and prepare individuals in case a poisoning should occur.

Last year, the Poison Control Center at Children's Hospital had 56,000 emergency calls and over half were poisonings of children under five years of age. The two most frequent causes of child poisonings are:

- Under 1 year of age — plants, including leaves, mushrooms, berries
- From 1 to 5 years of age — over-the-counter drugs, particularly non-aspirin pain relievers and antibiotics

Since most poisonings occur in the home, but fortunately are not toxic enough to require hospital care, information and phone numbers should be readily available.

CHECK YOUR poison knowledge by taking the following quiz. Correct answers are at the end.

1. Children under the age of 5 are accidentally poisoned more often than any other age group. True or False.
2. Thousands of small children are poisoned each year by common household products. True or False.
3. Only substances with a "Caution — Poison" label can harm a child. True or False.
4. Mixing ammonia with bleach forms a very irritating gas. True or False.
5. All medications can be used for as long as they last. True or False.
6. Leftover household cleaning products can be stored in empty food containers as long as they are properly labeled. True or False.
7. A potential poison is: (a) a product labeled poison; (b) any substance that is misused; (c) a liquid harmful only to children.
8. Potential poisons include: (a) as-consumer mailbag

Terry Gibb

While the possibility of an accidental poisoning exists all year long, National Poison Prevention Week is highlighted to provide education and prepare individuals in case a poisoning should occur.

pirin substitutes; (b) ammonia products; (c) household cleaning products; (d) all of the above.

9. Syrup of ipecac (a) is a type of cough medicine, (b) makes a person vomit, (c) neutralizes poisons, (d) is put on burns.

ANSWERS:

1. True. Nearly 60 percent of all poisonings occur in this group.
2. True.
3. False. Most household products do not carry a poison warning but can do serious, if not fatal, damage if swallowed.
4. True. Not only irritating but sometimes fatal.
5. False.
6. False. Most children do not read labels. They recognize the container.
7. B — any substance that is misused.
8. D — all of the above.
9. B — makes a person vomit. Syrup of ipecac should ONLY be used on the advice of a physician.

ACCIDENTAL poisonings can happen to anyone, at any time, in any situation.

Survey your home closely inside and out. Make sure all medications, cleaning products and pesticides are clearly labeled in the original container and kept under lock and key. Never assume a high shelf is high enough.

Legal restrictions, a company's personal considerations for maintaining a good records management department.

Records managers seek respect for 'forgotten' job

By Marla Gold
special writer

Ask Beth Sherwood about the company whose records department went up in smoke along with the building. "They went out of business, went bankrupt, because they couldn't save the documents," Sherwood said.

Or ask Richard Matyn about the company that disposed of some files they thought were useless.

"They got themselves in all sorts of trouble to the tune of billions of dollars because they could not produce the documents the court asked for," Matyn said.

Sherwood, president, and Matyn, vice president, are members of the Association of Records Managers and Administrators (ARMA), a 30-year-old organization founded to promote records and information management through educational study and research.

If the companies whose records were destroyed or discarded knew how to manage their records properly, the costly consequences could have been avoided. Helping companies decide what records management program will work for them is ARMA's specialty.

The group is holding its fifth annual spring seminar Wednesday, March 18, at the Dearborn Hyatt Regency, a daylong conference. Topics include how to set up a records system, legal requirements for records retention, disaster recovery, and how to lobby for new equipment.

COMPANY RECORDS, an often forgotten aspect of company operations, include all data relevant to every aspect of a company, from employee files to top-secret technologies developing within a department. Records management is a strict set of guidelines that businesses develop and depend upon to organize information and store it appropriately.

It includes everything from following state and national records retention regulations, to determining which storage system will work best for the company, to planning for disasters.

ARMA public relations chairman Jerry Van Loozen, vice president of sales at Van Loozen Enterprises in Redford, says that records retention programs are formulated by three factors. First are the legal restrictions, which dictate how long a company is legally required to retain documents. The rules are often confusing, he says.

Matyn, who works in the corporate records management department of Ford Motor Co. in Dearborn agrees: "Some of the retention schedules are outlandish."

ARMA International is currently pushing for uniform retention schedules.

Second is a company's personal needs, including storage space and maintenance costs.

HISTORICAL importance is the third factor when deciding how long to keep records. Matyn says that a large portion of Ford's records are kept "virtually forever."

Without records retention, Ford's celebrated $5-a-day pay rate and the design for the Model T might be secrets of the incinerator.

Van Loozen says that retention schedules vary with each company, but about 95 percent of company records can be destroyed after 10 years of inactivity. After that time, he recommends destroying the data, but only after writing the retention plan into the company by-law.

"Don't be a pack rat with information," he said, because irrelevant data can come back to haunt a company — in the form of a court subpoena.

A company is required to present all relevant records unless they have been destroyed in accordance with a valid records retention program.

"A records retention program is one way of providing defense for a company," Van Loozen says. "You won't be responsible for something that you're legally not required to have."

Records retained past the legal requirement must also be produced when subpoenaed. These records can work against the company in a lawsuit. Had they been destroyed after the approved period, the company would not be responsible for their content.

But if records have been disposed of prematurely, the company can also incur costly damages.

VAN LOOZEN says that the majority of lawsuits concern former employee and benefits disputes. He cautions small companies that tend to handle employee claims on a personal basis to document everything and keep updated records in employee files. Failure to do so "opens themselves up to a liability that wouldn't be there if they handled the situation right the first time."

Large companies always have some litigation pending, Matyn says, and must be careful to follow every company and legal guideline for each piece of data.

As important to a company as a retention policy is the management plan. Natural disasters, which cannot be avoided, can wreak havoc on a company if they are not planned for.

"Disaster recovery is a plan of how the company can get back on its feet the day after the fire," Matyn said. Knowledge of restoration techniques and backup copies of data stored off-site can save a company.

AS IMPORTANT as records management can be to a company, records managers are often given the status of file clerks, Sherwood said, often making it difficult to convince management to spend money on updating equipment. She is director of policy services at League Insurance Cos. in Southfield.

When Sherwood's department members wanted equipment to set up a microfiche storage system, they needed to justify the cost to management. They explored how the new system could help other departments and itemized cost savings, mostly in paper expenses, from the current system.

The weekly report, a two-inch thick stack of paper, was delivered to management with two tiny sheets of microfiche placed on top. Attached was a note which said that with a fiche system, the pocket-sized sheets would replace the stack of paper.

"The system was approved," Sherwood said. Microfiche, as well as micrographics and magnetic tape, are replacing paper filing systems at many companies where records managers recognized the potential savings from the more advanced systems.

But even the most advanced system cannot help a company whose records are in disarray.

"If you can't manage the records, there is no reason to have them," Sherwood said.

ARMA's Detroit chapter, with 150 members and an annual budget of $25,000, meets monthly to exchange information and discuss the progress of ELF, Elimination of Legal Size Files from records departments nationwide.

The organization, serving the tri-county area, also sponsors scholarships for records professionals and students. The professional award pays up to $300 and the student award up to $1,200. Sherwood can be reached at 557-1300, Matyn at 322-3880.

DEDEC manufacturing operations will be computer-monitored throughout the plant, with up to 100 percent of the engines being tested for certain functions.

It's a step toward re-establishing greater Detroit's reputation as the Motor City.

And establishing an identity for a newly forming company.

Detroit Deere Corp. (DEDEC) recently unveiled its Series 60 engine, a heavy-duty six-cylinder diesel billed as the first production diesel with a fully integrated electronic control system. DEDEC is the long-awaited merger between Deere & Co. and the Detroit Diesel Allison Division of General Motors.

Company officials believe it will soon become the standard for truck engines.

Seven years in coming, the Series 60 includes such innovations as an electronically monitored fuel injection system, parallel port intake and exhaust valves and overhead camshaft.

Early reports are encouraging, company officials said.

"We're heard of truck drivers pulling rank to drive trucks with these engines," marketing activities manager Albin Koziel said.

DEDEC IS shooting for an engine that will produce fuel economy improvements of up to 15 percent and a life span 25 percent greater than that of standard truck engines.

The Series 60 isn't a modification, but a brand new engine designed from scratch, according to company officials. Hence the long incubation period. The engine is named for the first two digits in its serial code.

With an eye toward the bottom line, company officials are banking on the Series 60 to capture one-fifth of the heavy-duty diesel market within five years — a four-fold increase.

If it succeeds, the Series 60 will provide a stunning turnaround for a company whose recent history has been dominated by layoffs.

Officials debated between the Detroit Diesel Allison Redford plant and other sites.

"A number of things fit together in our decision to put it in Redford, no small part an agreement between labor and management," DEDEC chief executive officer Ludvik Koci said.

ROUGHLY 400 jobs will be created, offsetting some of Diesel Allison's 2,100 layoffs over the past five years.

A union/management joint committee selected workers, who received from 178 to 1,600 hours training for their new jobs.

Papers haven't yet been signed on a number of agreements — including union-related agreements — that will establish the new company. But company officials are proceeding full throttle toward getting the Series 60 into production.

They've already based the new company in a Livonia office park and slated manufacturing operations for the Diesel Allison plant in Redford Township.

Using what company officials call a "plant-within-a-plant" approach, 300,000 square feet — or 11 percent — of the 2.7 million square foot Diesel Allison complex will be used to produce the new engine.

The facility received a 12-year tax abatement from Redford Township.

With nearly $50 million in building and machinery assessments the plant accounts for as much as a third of Redford's tax haul.

DEDEC ESTIMATES a $300 million start-up cost, including capital, training, tooling, design and engineering. Company officials said they needed the tax break to compete with other GM facilities bidding on the engine.

Even with the new jobs, white collar workers are expected to be trimmed through attrition and early retirement packages as Diesel Allison merges with Deere.

In that and other ways, DEDEC is striving to become the very model of a modern major company.

Manufacturing operations will be computer-monitored throughout the plant, with up to 100 percent of the engines being tested for certain functions.

DEDEC also strives to keep parts inventories low. Parts will generally be delivered as needed, company officials said.

Forty-seven blue collar job classifications have been reduced to seven.

On the engines, electronic control module sensors will monitor oil pressure, speed and temperature control and will also regulate fuel injection amounts and timing.

Jazzing up the engine's marketing, DEDEC is offering a toll-free hot line and road assistance club to tell drivers where motels and service centers are located.

Series 60 engines will be available in 11.1 liter or 12.7 liter sizes and with 250 to 400 horsepower. The engine is available on selected Freightliner, GMC, Kenworth, Peterbilt, Volvo White and Western Star vehicles.

Disability insurance worth the cost

In October 1986 the Practising Law Institute presented a program titled "Estate Planning for the Aging or Incapacitated Client."

The program, mediated by Peter Strauss and Wolf, New York City, and David Callahan of Whitman and Ransom, New York City, included discussions of medical care issues, ethical issues in working with older and disabled clients, Medicare and Medicaid, and property management alternatives.

Perhaps the most important message of that program was that all of us should make adequate provisions for disability.

OK, you say, that sounds like good advice, but what does it cost? And that's the main problem in buying disability insurance.

Here is a case in point. Mr. John Client, age 39, was recently advised by us that it would cost him $1,270 per year to buy a disability policy that would guarantee him a monthly income of $1,500 until he is 65.

Needless to say, he was shocked, because paying $1,270 to buy a $1,500 policy seemed too expensive to him.

REALIZING THAT Mr. Client had neither the understanding of, nor the patience to appreciate, the cost of the recommendation, I developed the accompanying table for his examination. The table reveals the following important facts:

• If Mr. Client were to become disabled today, he would receive $1,146,348 — not the $1,500 he thought he would receive.

• Unlike life insurance, upon disability, premium payments stop. So if John becomes disabled today, he would only pay the first yearly premium of $1,270.

finances and you
Sld Mittra

• Finally, if he is covered by this disability policy, John Client would come out ahead no matter when he becomes disabled (except at age 65). This is clearly seen from the third column entitled "Net Benefits."

If you think you are not adequately covered by disability insurance, ask your financial planner to select the right policy for you. The planner would also be happy to develop a table for you similar to the one presented here.

Educational seminar: Main Topic

"1987 — A Year of Unprecedented Opportunities." The seminar, sponsored by Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and Coordinated Financial Planning Inc., will be 7-9:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 17, at the Kingsley Inn, 1475 N. Woodward, Bloomfield Hills.

For more information or reservations, call 643-8888.

For information, turn to Small Business Administration

This week's column is in response to the requests I have received over the last several days for additional sources of small business planning information.

As I mentioned last week, there is no substitute for being well informed of what it takes to successfully own and operate an independent business venture. But any information is only as good as the user's ability to apply what he or she has learned.

The Small Business Administration's Office of Management Assistance publishes and makes available free of charge a variety of booklets as part of its Management Aids series, Small Business Bibliographies and Starting Out series.

THE MANAGEMENT AID series offers more than 80 booklets on topics relating to strategic planning, financial management and analysis, marketing, personnel management, legal and government affairs, and general management and administration.

The bibliographies include more than 200 publications such as "Home Businesses," "Statistics and Maps for National Market Analysis,"

Mary DiPaolo

"New Product Development" and "Inventory Management," among others.

The starting out series presents specific information by type of business. It includes such titles as

"Sporting Goods Stores," "Building Service Contracting" and "Interior Design Services."

CONTACT THE Detroit office of the SBA (226-6075) to obtain a complete listing of these publications. There is a limit of 50 titles that can be ordered, one copy per title.

For start-up manuals by type of business, the American Entrepreneurs Association makes available its AEA business manuals. They provide step-by-step details on starting up and running particular small business enterprises.

From "Exact Start-up Costs" to "Equipment Needs" to "Location," these manuals are an excellent planning and reference tool. Almost any business you can imagine is covered — pet cemeteries, "sweats only" retailing, craft success, and "no-wall-paper" wallpapering services. The manuals range in price from $25 to $50 and are available at the "Start a Business Store," 2000 W. Big Beaver, Troy. The telephone number is 542-9742.

Mary DiPaolo is the owner of Marketrends, a Farmington Hills-based small business consulting firm. She is producer and host of the cable television series, "Focus: The Small Business Environment."

Travelers do a night on the town in Detroit

You have probably done a night on the town in Chicago, Cleveland, Toronto or New York City. When was the last time you did a night on the town in downtown Detroit?

That's what I was thinking as I stood on the black and white tile steps, leaning on a brass railing at Trappers Alley, listening to the music, smelling the fudge and savoring the flaming cheese I had enjoyed with a glass of sweet white Cyprus wine at the Olympia Restaurant in Greektown.

I have been in restored malls like Trappers Alley all over the country, but this time I was traveling in my own home town, courtesy of the Metropolitan Detroit Convention and Visitors Bureau.

The occasion was a meeting of the Executive Committee of Midwest Travel Writers Assn., which represents writers and editors in 14 states. It was chaired by President Dixie Franklin of Marquette. The group had already toured Henry Ford Museum and other metro Detroit attractions, and now they were seeing the town by night.

I don't usually have a chance to join a press group so close to home, but Kathy Usitalo of MTCVB invited all the local travel writers to enjoy what she called "A Night on the Town." You and I can explore the town on our own, of course, but it's a long time since most of us pursued pleasure on an itinerary as strenuous as this one.

We started with drinks at the top of the Renaissance Center, had flaming cheese in Greektown, dined at Jacoby's in Bricktown, had after-dinner drinks at the Rhinoceros in Rivertown and ended the night with P-Jazz at the Top of the Pontich. A great evening, designed to make you rise up very, very slowly the next morning.

IT IS ALWAYS great fun to see your own locale through the eyes of out-staters, so we all looked through

1-of-a-kind traveler
Iris Jones
contributing travel editor

the windows of The Summit, atop the Westin Hotel-Renaissance Center, with the eyes of visitors who hadn't seen it before. The best view of the city is from here, especially when the sun is sinking behind the horizon and the river flows like molten gold under the lighted span of Ambassador Bridge.

The group included Fred Karst, Bill Roberts and Fred Nofziger, travel editors of the South Bend Tribune, the Indianapolis News and the Toledo Blade respectively; they had all been to Detroit before but none had really explored Greektown.

It was great fun to wander down Monroe St. on a Friday night, past the lights and the crowds too often missing in downtown Detroit but always present in Greektown. It's also fun to watch their faces when the OPA is served.

If you haven't been to Greektown lately, or have forgotten the ritual, you too would jump out of your chair when the waiter sets fire to the platter of cheese and everyone within sight shouts "OPA!" I've enjoyed the ritual in many Greek restaurants, but I've never had the hot cheese with sausage and sweet white Cypriot wine at the Olympia Restaurant before, nor eaten at tables set in an "outdoor cafe" setting inside Trappers Alley.

You probably know that Trappers Alley Festival Marketplace once housed the fur tanner operations of the Traugott Schmidt and Sons Co. Schmidt was a German who immigrated to the United States in 1852, built his first building here in 1872 and was producing 200,000 dressed skins a day in 1892.

Today it has 90 restaurants and shops on the many levels set amid the restored brick walls, and expansion begins into the Beaubien building late this spring, adding new retail tenants and the Attic Theater.

By the time we left for Jacoby's, oldest continuously operating restaurant in Detroit, we were protesting that we would never eat again, but that didn't stop us from wolfing down hot sausage and red cabbage when we got there.

It is quiet outside on Brush Street in Bricktown, but when you go in past the etched glass window door of "Jacoby's Since 1904," as it is officially called, the voices rise in a quiet roar from the white-clad tables.

Gary Jacoby gave us a little history with our food and drink: the place was opened in 1904 as a stable, a party room was opened upstairs in 1909, and the restaurant grew and changed through the twentieth century until it was restored in 1970 to its 1904 look.

WE WERE ALL sluggish with food when we arrived at the Rhinoceros in Rivertown, but it didn't take Pinkie Smith and her band long to wake us up. We leaned against the black grand piano near the great mahogany bar, clapping our hands with the crowd under the hanging lights, while Vernon Falls, the man with the flying fingers, led us on a musical trip, with Ben Jones on guitar and Randy West on drums.

Our final stop of the night was at the top of the Pontchartrain Hotel, where singer Ortheia Barnes was belting out the songs, with a lot of help from her band, her amps and her loyal table-thumping fans.

By that time we were all so high on Detroit, the food, drink and music of the city, that we had to drag ourselves back out onto the freeway and home.

As I tapped my foot against the car floor and hummed homeward, I wondered how many of the hometown folks had enjoyed a night on the town in Detroit recently. It's easy to do it when you are traveling in another part of the U.S. or Canada, but not so easy to put it on your agenda at home.

Trapper's Alley in Greektown houses numerous shops and eateries.

STEVE FECHT/staff photographer

Marty Somberg, originally hooked on music by the Everly Brothers and Buddy Holly, is one of the area's premier Irish fiddlers.

Brothers Tom (right) and Jim MacNeil are performing St. Patrick's Day at the Monaghan K of C.

'I got particularly enamored with Irish music because it has a lot of different moods, rhythm, and a wide range of feelings as compared to say, American fiddle music.'

— Marty Somberg
Irish entertainer

THE MACNEIL brothers are third generation musicians. Their grandparents migrated in 1926 from Cape Breton Island in Nova Scotia to Detroit, bringing with them aged Scottish reels, jigs and strathspeys their sons and grandsons still play.

Playing fiddle for the Scandinavian Symphony and the Allen Park Symphony, Bob MacNeil inspired sons Steve, Jim and Tom.

Steve is an award-winning champion Highland piper and a member of Canada's MacNish Pipe Band. Tom, a classical pianist who learned Scottish piano from his grandmother, can be heard playing several tunes on an album recently recorded by the pipe band.

"In Cape Breton, you couldn't throw a stone and not hit a fiddle or piano player," said Jim, an accomplished fiddler whose made countless trips to his grandparents' homeland to perform at concerts, all-day festivals and dances.

While Jim's first love is Scottish music, he enjoys playing the subtly different Irish music.

"The two are very close. It's one of the reasons we can go over to Ireland and play. Most people wouldn't notice the difference. But the rhythm is a little different, and you might find the Irish music a little more flirtatious."

Cape Breton dances in metropolitan Detroit often find all the MacNeils entertaining.

Pipers and fiddlers are a mainstay at area fundraisers, and in Nova Scotia, at funerals and "in all facets of life," said Jim.

Jim is partial to square set dancing, too.

"It's great to watch, but it's more fun to do," he says.

Jewish, Scottish have Irish spirit

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

YOU WOULDN'T THINK a Jewish guy who dropped out of Mumford High School to join a rock band in the 1960s would have much in common with a pair of apple-cheeked, college-age Scottish brothers from Dearborn.

But Marty Somberg and Tom and Jim MacNeil do. They share a passion for Irish music and play it expertly.

The three are headlining the second annual St. Patrick's Day Festival of Irish Music and Dance slated for 4 p.m. until closing Tuesday, March 17, at Livonia's Monaghan Knights of Columbus Hall, 19801 Farmington Road. Joining them in a colorful display of Irish culture will be a host of authentic Irish entertainers including the Tim O'Hare step-dancers from Plymouth, champion step-dancer and Canton native Michael O'Hare, Redford fiddler Mick Gavin, Jim O'Callaghan on bouzouki, Brendan McKinney on flute and Charlie Wilkie on guitar.

Also in store are performances from champion Highland piper Steven MacNeil, several Cape Breton musicians, and Ceili dancing instruction from Livonia's Kitty Moran Heinzman.

IT WASN'T until Somberg got out to California that he heard Irish music. He'd been weaned on songs like "Shine on Harvest Moon" and "For Me and My Gal" in the family car. His dad sang outside the Somberg sedan as well, often in synagogue choirs. Max Somberg still is a backup cantor at Shaare Zedek Synagogue in Southfield.

"I started playing fiddle music of various kinds, and I had met some people who played Irish music in Berkeley in the '70s," said Somberg, who as a kid studied piano, guitar and fiddle.

"I got particularly enamored with Irish music because it has a lot of different moods, rhythm, and a wide range of feelings as compared to say, American fiddle music. The Irish stuff has more a variety of scales, modes, and different kinds of tunes. There's more of a range of expression, and it has a certain melancholy to it that has appeal."

Somberg gained extensive experience as a professional musician before taking his present job — art director at Industrial Technology Institute in Ann Arbor.

With groups in California, he played before audiences of 15,000 and 20,000 at Renaissance fairs. He played bluegrass and square dance tunes with bands that "formed and re-formed."

The traditional Irish group ended up in Washington, D.C., where Somberg later performed with Celtic Thunder.

It was about then that Somberg decided that "being a sophomore for 11 years" wasn't all that satisfying. He went back to school, earned his degree and "got a real job."

With Irish singer Jim Perkins, Somberg is performing St. Patrick's Day at the University of Michigan-Dearborn, and later that day at the Soup Kitchen Saloon in Detroit. The duo is performing Saturday at Domino's Farms in Ann Arbor and Monday at Somerset Mall in Troy.

'It Had to Be You' is winsome comedy

Performances of "It Had to Be You" by Joseph Bologna and Renee Taylor continue Fridays-Saturdays through June 13 at Somerset Dinner Theatre at the lower level of Somerset Mall in Troy. Dinner is available at 6 p.m. at Sebastian's or at 7 p.m. at Cafe Jardin. Cocktails and show only also are available. Curtain is at 8:45 p.m. For reservations call 649-6629.

The zany, touching romantic comedy "It Had To Be You" at Somerset Dinner Theatre peels off layer upon layer of uninhibited nonsense to reach the brave, sweet core of a love story set in New York one snowy Christmas Eve.

Theda Blau lives in a one-room, walk-up apartment decorated in a haphazard shoestring style that would give an interior designer apoplexy. Schmaltzy Christmas decorations hang everywhere and a deer head hurls above the bed with antlers dripping tinsel.

The place suits Theda, the tousled-blond flibbertigibbet who lives there. Set Designer Mel Kramer cleverly makes the narrow one-room set work as an extension of Theda's fruitcake personality.

Mary Whiting is delightful as Theda, a sometime actress and would-be writer who lives on uninhibited impulse and pipedreams.

AT AN AUDITION Theda sets her sights on Vito Pignoli (Joseph Haynes), a hot-shot director of commercials, and lures him to her apartment. No passive Cinderella who waits for Prince Charming to make his move, Theda seduces him, then steals his pants and hides his shoes to keep him captive long enough to fall in love with her. A blizzard outside and his bad back work in Cupid's favor.

Joseph Haynes plays a convincing Vito, a man-about-town, outwardly content with his life. Theda manipulates him into critiquing her dreadful "comedy" about a Russian aristocrat tortured by the demonic Rasputin. In the process, she uncovers his secret longing to write.

She feeds him vegetarian seaweed delicacies, threatens acupuncture for his bad back and dances to Russian gypsy tunes. He is captive, but not amused.

Her impulsive antics work through his veneer, and they bicker their way to real knowledge of one another. One unpredictable thing leads to another in this offbeat romance aptly directed by Annette Madias.

Call it a fairy tale or a hallucination, "It Had To Be You" is riddled with comic absurdities and underlying warmth. Happily, only the end of this "boy meets girl" play is predictable.

tables baked in phyllo leaves (delicious), roasted half duckling in a subtle glaze (excellent), and brandied sirloin tips with morels.

All dinners include a chef's salad, house-baked breads and rolls served with three whirrs of butter in different subtle flavors, two vegetables, tea or coffee, and a selection from Sebastian's sinfully scrumptious pastry tray. Sebastian's waitpeople are attentive and knowledgeable and the atmosphere comfortable yet cosmopolitan. Cathie Breidenbach of West Bloomfield has always loved theater. A former high-school English teacher, she works in public relations, advertising and as a freelance writer.

Some actors weak in 'Oedipus Rex'

Performances of "Oedipus, the King" by Sophocles, presented by the Schoolcraft College Players, continue with dinner at 6:30 p.m. and play at 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday, March 13-14, and play only at 7 p.m. Sunday, March 15, on campus in Livonia. For ticket information, call 591-6400, Ext. 265.

There's good news and not-so-good news about the Schoolcraft College Players current production of Sophocles' "Oedipus Rex."

Most of the not-so-good news has to do with disappointing performances. In the lead role as the tragic Oedipus (who, according to Greek mythology, unwittingly killed his father and subsequently married his mother), Robert Hamblin looks appropriately regal, seems to have worked hard to learn his lines, delivers them clearly and appears comfortable and in control on stage. But there is a peculiar lack of nuance or shading in Hamblin's portrayal.

His anger, for instance, comes off pretty much the same as his terror, and his terror pretty much the same as his frustration or impatience. When there's a strong emotion to display, Hamblin seems to believe that shouting will somehow do the job.

GRANTED, the beleaguered Oedipus meets with enough disaster to bring on some shouting, but if there's no display of genuine feeling behind those shouts, Oedipus begins to seem not heroic but merely blustery.

As Jocasta the queen, Cynthia McEvoy, while not given especially to shouting, is nevertheless prone to a significant amount of overacting. Like Hamblin, she certainly looks regal enough (although she does appear too young to be his mother).

She's comfortable enough with her lines, but the delivery of those lines and even her mannerisms onstage are at times considerably exaggerated.

A certain amount of staginess in classic drama is expected, of course, but this is often excessive and serves only to detract from the overall effect of her character.

Dennis Siedlaczek as the priest, and Frank Betzel as a messenger also have their troubles, although they decidedly can't be faulted for overacting. Perhaps striving for subtlety, they've succeeded too well, and at times their performances seem almost somnambular, their facial expressions curiously unchanging, their speech patterns wooden and uninspired.

John Drouillard fares better as Creon, the brother of Jocasta. In his purple robes, he turns in an effective performance as Oedipus' proud and honorable regent. James Howland as the blind seer, Tiresias, and Ward Bartlett as the lowly herdsman who brings to Oedipus the ultimate, awful truth do well, also.

Costuming by Lisa Smith, who is also production stage manager for the play, is first-rate. There's not a hint of that awful tiredness seen in the costumes of so many amateur productions, and the muted colors, interspersed with scarlet and purple, work extremely well here to complement the mood of Sophocles' great tragedy.

Makeup by John Drouillard deserves special mention, also. In the final scene, the blinded Oedipus is a vision you won't soon forget.

New winery has class

Once upon a time there was no Ridge Vineyards, no Stag's Leap, no Jordan either.

Twenty years ago the name Robert Mondavi did not automatically mean fine wines, and Caymus was only the Indian name for the Napa land grant (I suppose there was even a time when there was no Inglenook or Charles Krug, but I don't really believe that. They have always been with us, it seems.)

All of this is by way of saying that a new winery has come into our area, one that is not yet a household name but may soon be. It is Black Mountain Vineyards from Sonoma County, increasingly considered the equal to Napa as California's premium wine-growing region for many varieties. Black Mountain produces uniformly excellent wines, full of class and warm flavors.

Owner Ken Toth began in the wine business as a grower, as he began to replant his 1976 purchase of a 275-acre plot on the edge of the Alexander Valley appellation. It is bordered on three sides by the meandering Russian River. That and the hills there combine with various soil conditions to create several microclimates within the property. In the last decade Toth has sold grapes to such well-known producers as Bouchaine, Girard, St. Clement, Phelps and Simi.

INCREASINGLY, however, his grapes are going into Black Mountain wines as well as into his subsidiary label, J.W. Morris (which he acquired at the turn of this decade). Today he has released into our market some chardonnays, a sauvignon blanc and a zinfandel. There are also 1984 vintages of cabernet sauvignon (not to be released until 1989) and petite sirah, the latter from old vines on the property.

The first local release of a Black Mountain wine was several months ago when a limited quantity of the 1983 chardonnay appeared in a few select outlets. The wine was priced in the $18 range (a rather tough one for an initial release from a winery with no track record). Though not so designated, it was from what Toth has named the "Gravel Bar" part of his vineyard. The location is near the river where shallow soils overlap deep gravelly slopes, for conditions that cause poor water retention with resultant stress on the vines.

This, plus cooler temperatures in the area, produces few berries on the vine, and these have great intensity of character. The newest chardonnay release, the 1984, carries the "Gravel Bar" appellation and is more readily available at about the same price.

The first local release of a Black Mountain wine was several months ago when a limited quantity of the 1983 chardonnay appeared in a few select outlets.

For those who want a truly fine chardonnay for that special occasion, this is the one: intense fruit, moderate oak overtones and sound acidity, all adding up to a most satisfying wine.

In addition, a second chardonnay release is available now, a 1985 Douglass Hill (also a vineyard designation). This is the wine from Black Mountain that captured me. At $10 a bottle, it is immediately approachable, lacks the sock of the Gravel Bar, is crisp, fresh and yet carries oak complexity while being extremely clean. A chardonnay not to tire of, ever, I suspect. The Gravel Bar may be a bit too much for some, not this one.

THERE ARE, in addition, two other releases now available selectively, a 1985 sauvignon blanc (Lauriwood) that is lean and crisp, very much in the best Graves style. And the zinfandel, labeled Cramer Ridge, is loaded with fresh fruit aromas and flavors yet has suggestions of creaminess and an intensity that make it much more than a traditionally fresh and fruity zinfandel, the greatest of all California grapes. This is an excellent representation of the wine at its best.

I must add a culinary postscript. At the urging of Jaclyn Milburn, marketing associate for Black Mountain/J.W. Morris, I tried a dessert that improbably combines Morris 1981 Vintage Port over vanilla ice cream. Shudder not, ye skeptics — it was noteworthy.

TWO NEW SETS of wines are now available locally. The first is the release, finally, of Gallo's 1980 cabernet — this at a time when some wineries are releasing their 1985s. Ripe, full and well aged, its almost prune flavors will be a fine accompaniment to any beef or spiced meal.

And Sebastiani has come up with a second label: Vendenge. Aimed at the restaurant trade, it is also on local shelves: three flavors, each costing under $5 a bottle, and most attractive wines they are. There is a cabernet, chardonnay and a white zinfandel. Worth exploring at little financial risk.

Salem's Tony Moore (with ball) handled the pressure applied by Farmington's Darin Magera with little trouble.

Hale lifts Salem past stout Chiefs

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Winning time. There's a stretch of every basketball game that earns that title. Some coaches insist it's the start of the second half; others argue it's the midpoint of the opening half, when tempo is determined.

In Monday's state district tournament opener at Plymouth Salem, winning time was defined differently. It came when Mike Hale was on the floor.

Hale, Salem's 6-foot-5 senior forward, scored five points in a 9-1 Rock run in the final 2:51 to lift his team to a hard-fought 71-63 victory.

Nothing came easy in this third meeting between the two neighboring schools. But after a Hale-sparked second-quarter surge in which the Rocks outscored Canton 10-2 to grab a 28-20 lead, Salem never trailed. Hale knocked down seven straight in that streak; he finished with 20 points and 14 rebounds.

"HE'S DEFINITELY one of the better players in the area," said Salem coach Bob Brodie of Hale. "He's been that way for the last two years. Mike's not a fancy player, but he always seems to thump people inside and out."

Two things kept Hale from thumping Canton worse than he did: A pesky Chief pressure defense that forced 23 Salem turnovers (Canton only had 11) and kept the much-bigger Rocks from taking control with their inside game, and the officiating.

"(The officials) called it very tight," said Brodie, "and early on we didn't adjust to it."

Both teams were shooting the bonus before the three-minute mark of the first quarter. Three Chiefs fouled out. Salem lost one and three others had four fouls by game's end.

One of those three Rocks with four fouls was Hale. After drawing his third and fourth personals in a five-second span of the third quarter, he watched the last 5:25 of the third quarter and nearly three minutes of the fourth from the bench.

HALE WASN'T the only one in trouble. Teammate Rick Taylor also had four fouls and a seat on the bench, which meant Brodie had to trust his back-ups to hold on.

"We were just trying to keep our finger in the dike," said Brodie. "I have to give credit to those guys coming off the bench. That's what struck me about this game. Our bench guys played really well."

When Hale re-entered in the final quarter, Salem led 58-52. Canton was the team to rally in the next two minutes, though, outscoring the Rocks 8-2 to knot it at 60-60 with 3:06 left on a Roger Tree jumper.

Two Bryan Kearis free throws put Salem back on top, but Mike LaSota tied it again for Canton with 2:51 to go. That's when Hale took over.

A driving shot with 1:52 left put the Rocks ahead to stay. He then rebounded a Canton miss and was fouled. After hitting the first free throw he missed the second, but Taylor rebounded and scored on a put-back to boost Salem's lead to 67-62.

"WHEN THEY got the rebound on that missed free throw and scored, that probably broke our backs," said Canton coach Tom Niemi. "That was the key."

The Chiefs' shooting down the stretch didn't allow it to overcome any mistakes. They missed their final six floor attempts of the game. They also committed three turn-

Rocks crush Farmington

So much for preliminaries. Enough of the rematches. And no more mismatches.

The state tournament has reached district final time for Plymouth Salem. From here on out, the road to Crisler Arena will be unfamiliar and treacherous, perhaps impassable, with roadblocks constructed by teams foreign to this part of the state.

Wednesday night the Rocks took their second step, but this one was far easier than the first, when they struggled to beat Plymouth Canton. They led from the first basket until the final buzzer, routing woeful Farmington 75-45 at Salem.

THE VICTORY put the Rocks into the district final at 7:30 p.m. Friday at Salem, against Novi, a 54-51 winner over Northville in Wednesday's first game. The winner earns a berth in the state regionals at Eastern Michigan University.

"I wrote on the blackboard before the game that this will buy us a ticket to (the district) finals," said Salem coach Bob Brodie.

The outcome was hardly a surprise, not when two teams at the opposite end of the scale oppose each other. Salem was 18-2 during the regular season (the Rocks are now 20-2). Farmington was 2-18 (the Falcons finish at 2-19).

Two Rocks each outscored Farmington in the first quarter. Salem led 24-8 after one, with Mike Hale scoring 12 points — mostly from the perimeter — and Rick Taylor scoring 10 points — mostly from the paint.

THE GAP was never less than a dozen after the Rocks outpointed Farmington 18-4 in the final 4:29 of the opening quarter. Hale netted 22 points for Salem; Taylor had 20.

Part of the reason for their scoring was Farmington's box-and-one defense, with Salem guard Bryan Kearis drawing man-to-man coverage. The strategy was apparent: keep the ball from getting to Salem's scorers. Problem was, it didn't work.

considering he drew his fourth foul with 6:21 left in the third period. Darin Magera and Ronald Jones added six each.

Novi, which is 14-7, presents a different challenge for Salem. "They've got a lot of good athletes, and they've got good size at the guard positions," said Brodie. "They've played against a lot of zones. We're going to step out on them and force them to shoot with a hand in their face."

Salem's man-to-man defense and size should give Novi problems. "(Novi's) probably outrebounded a lot of teams," said Brodie. "They hit the glass hard when they miss. But they're going to have a hard time doing that against us."

Engineers face test

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

If there is a message A.J. Baker would like to deliver to his hockey team, it would be the past is past.

Which means what happened before is no certain indicator of what will happen in the future. That's important as Baker's Hennessey Engineers prepared for their North American Junior Hockey League (NAJHL) playoff with the Fraser Falcons.

"We had an informal practice yesterday," Baker said Tuesday, "and I think it helped us to get on the ice. That's what we're trying to focus on now, on what we can do."

Examining the past won't do much good. The Engineers finished third in the three-team NAJHL, Fraser was beaten out of first place Sunday when Compuware edged the Falcons 7-6.

IT WAS AN important win for Compuware. It will host the national Junior A playoffs April 3-6 in Oak Park, and its first-place finish guarantees it a spot in the four-team field. The winner of the Engineers-Falcons seven-game playoff, which began Tuesday in Fraser, also will earn a berth.

"That's why it's incredibly important for us to win this series," said Baker, whose team finished with a 14-16-7 NAJHL record and a 20-18-10 overall mark.

But it won't be easy. The Engineers had few successes against the Falcons this season, going 3-9-1. They lost their last four meetings and only won once at Fraser. The last time they won was by a 6-3 score back on Jan. 30.

Compounding the difficulty of their task was a season-ending slump, in which the Plymouth-based team posted an 0-4-2 record. The last two setbacks were last weekend. Fraser battled back Friday to edge the Engineers 5-4 at the Plymouth Ice Arena, and on Saturday Compuware claimed a 4-2 triumph at Oak Park.

"That was probably the most disheartening loss for me all year," said Baker of the Falcon defeat. "We've played good hockey, we've played well, but we haven't played winning hockey."

THE ENGINEERS led 4-2 after one period against Fraser Friday. Scott Markiewicz provided the spark, notching a goal and two assists. Steve Ramberg, Darryl Sattler and Dan Frantti also scored for the Engineers.

But after a scoreless second period, Craig Colby got two of the Falcons three third-period goals in the comeback win.

On Saturday against Compuware, Todd Tamburino and Matt Wiljanen collected goals for the Engineers. Todd English scored twice for Compuware.

A six-game winless streak isn't what Baker would like to be saddled with entering an important playoff. A year ago, the Engineers and Fraser battled through their entire seven-game series before the Falcons won and earned a berth in the national tournament. All four Falcon wins came at Fraser.

Baker does not foresee a high-scoring series. "Their defense is pretty stingy," he said. "If our goals are hot, we can keep it pretty Leif Gustafson (18) leads the Engineers in goal scoring with 24. He'll have to produce if his team is to survive its best-of-seven series with the Fraser Falcons.

A PLYMOUTH HIGH SCHOOL FLASHBACK

Three years ago, the Plymouth Salem basketball team won their third straight district championship. The Rocks defeated Northville 57-42. Erich Hartnett led Salem with 17 points and 6 assists. Jeff Arnold added 15 for the Rocks, including six important free throws in the final moments. Berberet scored 11 points and had 5 assists. Coach Fred Thomann described the game saying: "It was probably as physical a game as I have ever coached in."

Engineers take lead

So much for advantages
The Hennessey Engineers made a myth out of any such belief entertained by the Fraser Falcons Tuesday with a stunning 5-4 victory at Fraser in the first game of their best-of-seven North American Junior Hockey League playoff series.

It was a surprising victory for Hennessey, which finished last in the three-team NAJHL. The Engineers were winless in their last six games entering the playoffs and had lost four straight to Fraser. Their last win over the Falcons was Jan. 30, and in 13 meetings this season they were 3-9-1, with just one win at Fraser.

THE ENGINEERS broke the game open with a 3-1 second-period surge. The two teams were tied 2-2 after one, with Mark Harmes and Todd Tamburino scoring for Hennessey and Danny Selsner and Jeff Napierala getting goals for Fraser.

Eric Kapelanski gave Hennessey a 3-2 lead early in the second period, but Fraser's Mike Herber answered to tie it again. The Engineers took the lead for good on goals by Bryan Krygier and Leif Gustafson.

Their 5-3 advantage was narrowed to one when Sean Worden, from Plymouth, scored for the Falcons in the final period. But the Engineers hung on, getting a break when an apparent goal by Fraser's Don Burton was waved off because a teammate was in the Hennessey goal crease.

Tamburino finished with a goal and two assists, and Bob Mlynarek had two assists.

The winner of the NAJHL playoff meets regular-season champion Compuware in a best-of-seven league championship series. Both finalists qualify for the national tournament on April 3-6 at Oak Park.

low. The last three or four times we've played them, five goals has been the most we've needed to win."

BILLY PYE will likely be in the nets for Fraser most of the time. "He's been pretty tough against us," said Baker. "But I thought we got his number a bit last Friday when we got four goals against him."

But all four came in the opening period. After that, Pye shut the Engineers down.

Other Falcons to watch are center Don Stone, who leads the NAJHL in scoring, and 6-foot-2, 215-pound defenseman Eric Reisman. "He's a big boy and an experienced defenseman," said Baker of Reisman. "When he starts leaning on people and moving the puck,

Leading the Engineer scorers are center Larry Pilut (16 goals, 35 assists) and right wing Leif Gustafson (24 goals, 24 assists). Defenseman Tom Madden is one of the few Engineers with playoff experience, and he leads the NAJHL blue-liners in scoring (14 goals, 28 assists).

Baker plans to keep rotating goalies Doug Brown and Dave Church. The key to the Engineers' success may rest with them, he admitted. "We had a hot goalie last year (in the playoffs) with Mike Williams," said Baker. "We're going to need something stellar like that this year."

Unfortunately, Williams has taken his talents to Ferris State, so if the Engineers are going to challenge Fraser, they'll have to get a spark somewhere else.

CC an unhappy 3rd at state

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Even with two individual state champions, coach Mike Rodriguez and his Redford Catholic Central wrestling team came up short in their bid for a seventh state Class A team title.

CC sent eight grapplers to the meet, held Friday and Saturday at Lansing Eastern High School, but couldn't come up with enough points for the crown.

Senior Mitch Quint (138 pounds) and junior Toby Heaton (heavyweight) won individual titles, but Lansing Sexton scored 99 points to finish first. The host school, Eastern, tallied 90 1/2 to edge the Shamrocks by a half-point for second place.

"I was never comfortable going in, but you never give up a dream," said Rodriguez. "You still hope and pray for a miracle."

"I'm not surprised Sexton won. I thought they'd lose some (matches), but they didn't lose enough. It's a disappointment because we were still alive in the semifinals, but then we lost matches we shouldn't have lost."

QUINT'S VICTORY march was remarkable in that he defeated two unbeaten wrestlers, Dave Walt of Flint Carmen in the semifinals (a pin in 1:00) and Jim Schlener of Romulus in the finals (6-3 decision). Quint finished the year with a 55-4 record.

Both Walt and Schlener had beaten the CC standout in earlier meets.

"Mitch is very emotional, he can't wait to get at you," said the CC coach. "He's so intent and high strung."

Quint, a Northville native, appears headed toward the University of the Michigan.

"He's got a 4.0 grade-point average and he wants to go into engineering," said the CC coach. "He wants to stay in state and be close to home, and the Michigan coaches are very interested in him."

Heaton is a 6-foot-6, 252-pound gentle giant, until he steps onto the mats.

THE CANTON NATIVE defeated Oak Park's Gary Brown in the finals with a pin in 1:58 of overtime to finish the year at 55-5. In his semifinal match, Heaton beat Alfonso Martin of Sexton in overtime, 3-1.

"Toby is a patient young man, not overly emotional," said the CC coach. "He's smart, and he doesn't get rattled. He just waits his time. He and Quint are like Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

CC's Bob Yeager, a senior, finished fifth at 198, but he was pinned by Troy's Chris Scott in a second round match, 2:55 in overtime.

"He (Yeager) just turned the wrong way, and the other guy capitalized," said Rodriguez. "He was one of the guys I thought could win it, but it was like a big balloon that burst. But I admired him to come back and get fifth."

At 167, CC sophomore Lee Krueger, despite an injury, finished sixth to finish the year at 35-13. Also in the same weight class, Garden City's Tim Howell was in the top eight, and Churchill's Brian Clemens went 1-2.

At 126, Plymouth Salem's Dennis Dameron, a senior, duplicated his third-place finish of a year ago. He was ousted in the semifinals by Conn Allison of Grand Ledge, 8-6, before coming back in the consolation round to take third, including a 3-0 win over CC's Matt Helm, to gain a 3-2 edge in their season series. Helm, meanwhile, had eliminated Westland John Glenn sophomore Rob Matigan, 7-4.

Livonia Stevenson's Dave Wojciechowski was eliminated in two straight at 105, as was Salem's Sean May at 112 and Glenn's Bryan Krazel at 119.

Churchill's Mike Krause enjoyed a fine day, placing fourth at 132. He lost a tough match to Hazel Park's Scott Burger in the semifinals, 7-2, in overtime, but got revenge against season-long nemesis Jason Horowitz of Southfield Lathrup in the consolation round, winning 7-3.

At 145, CC's Chris Rodriguez won his first round match, but lost to Davison's Roy Hall for the third time this season, a fall in 1:50.

CC'S CHRIS LEMANSKI, who won the 155-pound title at the regional a week earlier, won his first-round match, but was sent reeling to the consolation round by John Cody of Pontiac Central, 5-3 in overtime. Birmingham Brother Rice's Dean Moscovice then beat Lemanski, 13-4.

At 185, Churchill junior Dave Zenas bumped into third-place finisher E.J. Pasteur of Sexton, falling in 32 seconds of his first-round match. Zenas then beat Jason Nichols of Walled Lake Western before losing to Rochester's John Coyle.

The only other Observerland qualifier in Class A was Garden City's Don Giese (198), who was eliminated in two straight by Grandville's Scott Lubbers (4-0 in OT) and Curtis Chapman of L'Anse Creuse North.

Although CC finished third in the team standings, Rodriguez is optimistic about next season. He loses only Quint and Yeager to graduation.

"You can only pull out so many tournaments," said CC coach, whose team won numerous titles this season. "They're young and they'll learn. You got to have more senior power, and that's what Sexton had. But we'll come back."

Salem survives Canton

overs in the last minute, adding to their woes.

It was the only bad stretch of the game for Canton. Their defense and the foul trouble sustained by Salem's key inside players allowed the Chiefs to establish the tempo.

"I thought we had a heck of an effort," said Niemi, whose team finished the season at 12-9, including three setbacks against Salem. "We added some wrinkles to our press, to adjust to what they tried to do to break it. I thought that worked well."

BRODIE AGREED. "It was like a chess game at the end," he said. "We were adjusting to their press, and they were adjusting to our adjustments."

"But our biggest problem in handling their press was that we didn't have Mike on the floor. (Jeff) Justice did a nice job filling in for him, but Jeff doesn't attack the press like Mike does."

Joining Hale in double-figures in scoring for Salem was Justice, who came off the bench to net 14, and Taylor with 11. Justice also nabbed 16 rebounds. Dave Collins collected nine points and Kearsis had eight to go with seven assists. Ted Hanosh also contributed off the bench, dishing out seven assists.

Canton got 16 points from Tyrone Reeves, 14 from Brad Carey and 11 from Trice. While the Chiefs pressured Salem into making mistakes, it was the Rocks who controlled the boards, outrebounding Canton 51-30.

Eagles whip Crestwood

So much for the preliminaries. Now for some real fun.

Or at least that's the attitude Redford Thurston coach Mike Schuette says his team is taking into tonight's Class B district semifinal against Dearborn Heights Robichaud.

"The kids are anxious to play a team that's rated," he said after his Eagles knocked off Dearborn Heights Crestwood 56-45 in their district opener Tuesday at Dearborn.

Thurston split with Crestwood during the regular season, but in this meeting the Eagles were in command from the start. They increased their 14-10 first-quarter lead to 23-16 at the half and maintained that seven-point edge (38-31) entering the final period.

Defense was a big part of Thurston's win, particularly that applied by Bob Bertrand on Crestwood gunner Larry Alsbrooks. Alsbrooks scored just 12 points, far below his season's average.

The Eagles were paced by Steve Ewing with 19 points and five assists. Dave Stroud and Kevin O'Connor each notched 12 points, with Stroud adding 16 rebounds.

The win improved Thurston's record to 10-11 and, while Tuesday's win was satisfying, Crestwood — which bowed out of tourney play with a 5-16 mark — is nothing like state-ranked Robichaud.

OLSM 65, ST. AGATHA 48: What Tuesday's Class C district opener at Orchard Lake St. Mary's came down to, basically, was OLSM was better prepared than Redford St. Agatha.

"I wish I had a better excuse," said Aggie coach Larry Dupke. "They played better than we did. We just didn't play well. St. Mary's is very, very quick, and they caused a lot of turnovers on their press."

After falling behind 16-6 after one quarter, St. Agatha never seriously threatened. The Aggies managed to stay within 10 at the half (26-16), but a 19-6 third-quarter surge iced the triumph for the Eagles.

Kevin Rich scored 15 points for St. Agatha, which finished the season with a 10-9 mark. OLSM got 25 points from Ed Ramirez, 20 from Plymouth resident Matt Figurski and 12 from Westland native Sean Maloney.

Last Saturday, St. Agatha concluded its regular season with a 66-39 rout of Detroit Holy Redeemer. Larry Burnett's 10 points paced the Aggies.

Glenn, Stevenson win titles

By Bill Parker
staff writer

Livonia Stevenson and Westland John Glenn are the only two Observerland volleyball teams still alive in Class A state tournament competition. And only one of these teams will have the opportunity to make the state finals March 21 at Flint Carman-Ainsworth High School.

Both teams will compete, beginning at 2 p.m. Saturday, at the Wayne Memorial regional tournament.

Stevenson squares off against Dearborn Edsel Ford while Glenn faces Temperance-Bedford. The championship match is scheduled for 3:30 p.m.

Stevenson earned a berth to the regional tournament by winning the Southfield-Lathrup district tournament last Saturday. The Spartans defeated Redford Bishop Borgess in the championship match, 15-6, 15-10.

"It's pretty ironic that we happened to beat Livonia Stevenson in the district finals last year," said Borgess coach Jerry Abraham. "They played very well this time. We were playing well and I thought we may beat them, but they played tough and were deserving of the win."

"WE CAME off a banner year last year in which we won the league, district and regional titles, the Operation-Friendship championship, and advanced to the state finals before losing to Portage Northern. We had a lot of positions to fill this year. I feel the girls did a great job. Overall we had an excellent season."

Borgess ousted Detroit Henry Ford in the semifinals 15-8, 16-14, after beating Livonia Churchill in its opening match 15-12, 15-4.

Stevenson upended Farmington (15-0, 15-1) in the semifinals after opening the tourney with a 15-2, 15-0 win over Redford Union. The Spartans defeated Southfield Lathrup 2-15, 15-6, 15-2 in a pre-district match Thursday.

"I think the most pleasing thing is that we didn't have a letdown," said Stevenson coach Lee Cagle. "We faced some competition that we beat pretty easily in the regular season, and many times you tend to play at a lesser level when you play those teams again. Fortunately we had no letdown at all. We wanted to be on all day because we knew we'd have to play a tough team in the finals."

AMY ANDERSON, Kristine Bailey and Sue Zatorski carried much of the load for Stevenson in the district tournament. Anderson served 35 times, had seven aces and just one error. She also recorded nine kills in 16 attacks.

Bailey, the power hitter on the team, had 52 kills in 69 attacks, including 20 kills in the championship match.

Zatorski finished the tournament with 10 aces in 29 serves. She also registered 50 spikes with 31 kills, including 10 kills in the finals.

Rocky Cibor had an exceptional day of setting for the Spartans finishing the day with just three errors in 38 sets in the finals.

Rocky is often overlooked but she is a very important part of our game," said Cagle. "She sets the whole game in our 5-1 system and is just a superior setter. She has set over 1,600 times for us and 1,400 have been perfect sets, where the hitters can expect the ball to be there and don't have to do anything to change their approach. She's very, very good."

Stevenson, with a 43-4 overall record, will face Edsel Ford, the co-champions of the Northwest Suburban League along with Garden City.

"We're favored to win it and I hope we do," said Cagle. "Right now the girls are playing with an awful lot of confidence. We're looking forward to playing much tougher competition."

JOHN GLENN advanced to the regional competition after winning the Ann Arbor Huron district championship. The Rockets opened the tournament with a 15-5, 15-2 triumph over Romulus. They defeated Plymouth Canton in the semifinals (15-8, 15-5) and took out Ann Arbor Huron in the finals (15-11, 16-18, 15-1).

"I thought we had as good a chance of winning it as anyone else did," said Glenn coach Wendy Bostwick. "We've had a pretty inconsistent season, and I didn't know if we'd be up or down. After our first game I knew we were on."

Stacy Graham paced the Rockets with 18 kills on the day. Denise Gumke had 10 kills and Chris Jones had 35 assists. Jennifer Okon ran the offense with exceptional passing and setting.

"Overall it was a total team effort," said Bostwick. "This is the third year we've won the district championship."

The Rockets enter regional competition with a 15-14 overall record.

FARMINGTON HARRISON came up one match short of advancing to the regional, falling Saturday to host Madison Heights Bishop Foley in the district championship 15-11, 13-15, 7-15.

"We won the first game and were leading 13-7 in the second game," said Harrison coach Ron Shortt. "We came that close and just couldn't put it over the edge. After coming from behind like they did, Foley had so much momentum in the third game there wasn't much we could do."

In the opening round the Hawks defeated Warren Fitzgerald 15-2, 15-5. They disposed of Redford Thurston in the semifinals 15-6, 15-11.

Janine Whittemore led the Hawks with 13 kills in 20 attempts against Foley. Heidi Reyst added six ace serves for Harrison.

"This is the best season for a Farmington Harrison team since I've been here," said the fourth-year coach, whose team finished 22-14. "We started out at .500 and have been a little better each year."

LIVINIA LADYWOOD advanced all the way to the finals of the Northville district before being eliminated by Walled Lake Western 15-7, 13-15, 17-15. The Blazers defeated South Lyon and North Farmington en route to the championship match and finished the season with a 32-9 overall record.

Raiders shooting at national crown

Now Kalamazoo Valley Community College knows how it feels. Just two weeks ago, KVCC came into Oakland CC's territory and upset the Raiders 107-101 in the Michigan Community College Athletic Association state finals at Schoolcraft College.

The loss was a heartbreaker for OCC, which had won the state tournament in 1986 and made it to this year's finals by knocking off the Eastern Conference regular-season champs, Highland Park CC, in the state semis.

"I don't think we took them lightly," said OCC coach Lynn Reed of KVCC. "We were just mentally down after the Highland Park game."

Last weekend, the Raiders got a shot at revenge and made the most of it. They met KVCC in the NJCAA Division II regional finals, which the Cougars were hosting, and whipped them 95-88 with a strong defensive effort Saturday.

The regional title earned them a berth in the NJCAA Division II quarterfinals at Delta CC. OCC (now 26-8) will play Meramec (St. Louis) CC at 8 p.m. tonight.

"WE CAUGHT them like they caught us," said Reed, noting that in Friday's regional semis KVCC edged arch-rival Lansing CC in overtime. "It was an outstanding defensive game for us. We stayed out of foul trouble a little better this time."

"In our first game, we got into foul trouble and couldn't play defense. And we didn't get the ball inside like we should have. This time, we jammed it down their throats."

Reed uses a half-court pressure defense, but his half-court defense is almost exclusively man-to-man. When KVCC met the first time, the Raiders' foul troubles forced them to go to a zone, which the strong outside-shooting Cougars gobbled up.

Saturday's contest was another story. KVCC had the early lead, going up 24-17, before OCC rallied to trail by just one, 40-39, at the half. A second-half run gave the Raiders a 13-point bulge they never surrendered. The closest the Cougars could get was six.

OCC'S INSIDE game destroyed KVCC. Frontcourters Sam Smith (25 points and 14 rebounds), Derrick Williams (22 points and 15 rebounds) and Jimmy Sherrell (19 points and eight assists) dominated. Guard Gary Holt added 16 points and eight rebounds and guard Carson Butler scored just nine points but dished out 12 assists.

Matt Lahman paced KVCC, which finished its season at 30-6, with 28 points. Ed Finch, the Western Conference player of the year, stung OCC for 33 points in the first meeting; this time, Smith, Williams and Holt took turns guarding him and limited him to 12.

WHO: Hennessey Engineers.

WHAT: North American Junior Hockey League (NAJHL) playoffs.

WHEN: Second game of the best-of-seven series is 8:30 p.m. tonight.

WHERE: Tonight at the Plymouth Cultural Center; other games both in Plymouth and at the Fraser Ice Arena.

FACTS AND FIGURES: As state is a berth in the four-team national Junior A hockey tournament in Oak Park April 9-9. After tonight's game in Plymouth, the Engineers will travel to Fraser for the third contest of the series Saturday. The fourth game will be in Plymouth at 8 p.m. Tuesday, with remaining games (if necessary) in Fraser Thursday, March 19; in Plymouth at 8 p.m. Friday, March 20; and in Fraser Sunday, March 22.

The Engineers enter the series after finishing last in the three-team NAJHL. The Falcons, who missed finishing first when they lost to Compuware 7-0 Sunday, have a commanding 9-3-1 edge over the Engineers this season, including wins in the last four meetings. In last year's NAJHL playoffs, Fraser eliminated Hennessey four games to three.

The Raiders advanced to the finals of the 14-team region with a first-round 98-71 win over Glen Oaks CC; a 97-86 triumph against Macomb CC; and a tough 82-80 semifinal victory over Owens Tech (from Toledo).

Smith delivered the win over Owens Tech in Friday's semi by canning a 12-foot jumper with eight seconds left. Smith finished with 16 points, 12 coming in the second half, and nine rebounds.

HOLT AND WILLIAMS each scored 17 points to lead OCC. Williams also had eight rebounds and eight assists. Butler had 15 points (nine in the second half on four-for-four shooting) and eight assists and Reggie Anderson contributed eight points and 10 boards. Brian Williams topped Tech with 21 points.

OCC trailed 40-37 at the half and was behind by nine before mounting a comeback in the final five minutes.

In Thursday's win over Macomb, Smith got 27 points, Butler had 19, Anderson netted 16 and Holt had 14. OCC got ahead quickly, building a 48-31 halftime bulge. Jay Miron's 26 points was best for Macomb.

Against Glen Oaks Wednesday, Anderson hit seven-of-eight field goals and scored 21 points to pace the Raiders. He also nabbed 10 rebounds. Three others were in double-figures in scoring: Smith (19), Williams (18) and Holt (17). John Bowie had 12 assists and Sherrell grabbed 10 rebounds. Tim Smith led Glen Oaks with 13 points.

Should the Raiders defeat Meramec CC tonight, they would play the winner of the Eastfield (Texas)-Shawnee (Ill.) game in Friday's semifinals. The NJCAA Division II championship game is slated for Saturday at Delta.

Cage star takes Drake

By C.J. Niesk staff writer

What Yvette Maison was looking for in a college was the right attitude. What she found was Drake University.

Earlier this week, Maison decided to attend the Des Moines, Iowa, college. She had narrowed her choices to Western Michigan and Drake.

The Farmington Hills Mercy basketball star was recruited by nearly every Mid-American Conference school before singling out WMU. After comparing the Bronco program with Drake's, she opted for Drake.

"The dedication toward basketball was far greater at Drake than at Western," said the 5-foot-8 guard. "And the education was more personal, too."

DRAKE COACH Susan Yow spotted MAISON at a summer all-star camp and began recruiting her. Maison's senior season at Mercy attracted more attention; she averaged a school-record 18 points per game.

She also collected five rebounds and 4.3 assists as the Marlins' point guard, and was a first-team all-Observer pick.

"She's been recruited by several MAC schools," acknowledged Mercy coach Larry Baker. Yet, Maison chose Drake — a team that lost its first 11 games last season and finished 9-18 overall — over WMU, which reached the MAC tournament final four and is a perennial conference powerhouse.

"It was an unusual choice," agreed Baker. "Few people around here know about Drake. They're definitely rebuilding. But I know for certain she made a mature, objective decision, that she weighed all the factors."

Drake was 9-9 in the Gateway Conference last year, despite an injury-plagued campaign. The team was down to seven healthy players much of the season.

THREE GUARDS with extensive experience return next year. Freshman Jenny Fitzgerald started 27 games at the point and averaged 8.2 points per game; sophomore Missy Slocgett played in 17 games — she missed the rest because of a broken ankle — and scored 13.4 points; and junior Julia McGee, a guard-forward, played in all 27 games, averaging 7.4 points. But there was no one else behind them. Fitzgerald averaged 39 minutes (out of a possible 40) per game.

Last year was Yow's first as Drake's coach. Her rebuilding of the program and the school's renewed commitment to the sport had a big impact on Maison's decision.

"I think I can help the program now," said Maison. "I want to step right in and play right away."

PART OF MAISON'S attractiveness as a top-notch recruit is her versatility. With Drake's depth problems, Maison's proven ability to play either point or shooting guard made her a valued commodity.

"She can enhance your passing game and she can shoot well enough to play off-guard," said Baker. Yet, the Mercy coach didn't think playing time was a major part of Maison's decision.

"Western has a successful program, and they wanted her to step right in and play for them next year," he said. "I don't have any doubt she can do the same for Drake."

Now that her choice is made, Maison, who is tentatively planning to study physical therapy, knows her work is cut out for her.

"I have to work on everything," she said. "I have to work on every aspect of my game."

Division I college basketball is a big step up from high school. For some, it can be too intimidating a step.

"Yeah, but it's exciting, too," was Maison's view. "I'm ready for it."

CC rips Southfield

By Brad Emmons
staff writer

It was an embarrassing night of basketball for Southfield High.

The Blue Jays opened Class A district tournament play Monday against host Redford Catholic Central and laid a big egg, 71-55.

The pre-game hype never lived up to its billing as CC took the Southeastern Michigan Association champions completely out of synch.

Immediately after the game, Southfield coach Greg Sliwka hurried his team onto the bus and had little to say other than: "I feel bad for my kids. They (CC) played too well, and we could have performed better."

The loss was demoralizing in light of the fact that the Blue Jays had high expectations entering the district tourney. They had just finished the regular season with an impressive 17-3 record, two of those losses coming against state-ranked teams (Detroit Southwest and Highland Park).

But it was not their night and, as Sliwka said, CC had plenty to do with their poor play.

CC coach Bernie Holowicki saw his team coming around after an

81-70 victory last week over Northern of the Detroit Public School League. (CC finished the regular season at 14-8.)

"I WAS JUST HOPING we'd play the way we did against Northern," he said. "That was a good sign. We had hoped to play hard. This game was very similar."

Southfield led 11-8 after a lackluster first quarter before CC took control, using a balanced attack. The Shamrocks opened up a 35-25 halftime lead, saw it whittled to four midway through the third quarter, before running away with it in the final period, leading by as many as 21 points.

The Shamrocks protected the basketball, beat their counterparts down the floor and outlasted the Blue Jays on both ends.

"We played better in our matchup (zone defense)," Holowicki said. "We were contesting the (passing) lanes and we were confident."

"We ran better, and we were more organized. We ran more plays and we were more careful with the basketball. We ran the break well and we didn't give up any easy baskets."

The page features a musical score for a piano piece. The score is written in treble and bass clefs with a key signature of one sharp (F#). It consists of several systems of staves, each with a treble and bass line. The music includes various notes, rests, and dynamic markings such as 'p' (piano) and 'dim.' (diminuendo). Fingerings are indicated by numbers 1-5. The score is framed by a decorative border that also contains musical notation on the right side.

Grandmother has fear of falling

Dear Jo:
My 91 year old grandmother has what I feel is an exaggerated fear of falling. She had a fall last year, and after a brief hospital stay she hasn't returned to her previous active lifestyle. Is this a common worry for people her age?
Mrs. C.H., Detroit

of external factors.
Internal ones include age related changes (a decrease in vision) and disease related problems (poor mobility because of arthritis). Drug toxicity and psychological conditions also play a role.
External factors are environmental conditions such as slippery stairs or poor lighting.

Dear Mrs. H:
Falls are a major worry to people of your grandmother's age. Falling is the leading cause of accidents in people over age 65 and the most single cause of death due to injury in the elderly. According to an article in the December 1986 issue of the journal "Ergonomics" (Edwards & Kay), women over age 75, your grandmother's age group, who are homebound are at greatest risk.
Falls can be due to either internal

YOUR GRANDMOTHER is probably suffering from a condition referred to as "fallaphobia" which is not only debilitating but can lead to more falls.

You did not mention the cause of her previous fall only her ongoing fear of falling. If the cause was internal, she should have a complete evaluation by her physician. She should make her fear known to her doctor so that something can be done about it.

gerontology
A. Jolayne Farrell

If her fall had an external cause, you can help her by assessing her home, then take the necessary steps to make it safe. The best way to do this is to walk from room to room with her.

In her bedroom look for the height of her bed (it may be too high), inadequate lighting, slippery floor and scatter rugs.

In the bathroom check to see if she has had any safety devices installed, such as grab bars or elevated toilet (if she hasn't you may want to have this done for her). Other bathroom hazards include a slippery floor and a tub.

IF HER HOME has stairs, a common place for falls, note if there is a handrail. Again check the lighting (bulb should be at least 100 watts) and the condition of the carpeting or stair treads.

briefly speaking

● CONCERT CANCELLED
The Arts Alliance Group (TAAG) has announced that it has canceled the previously scheduled March 15 "Music at Eight" concert of the Greater Michigan Symphony Orchestra.

Individuals who have purchased tickets for the March 15 event may secure a refund by contacting either TAAG, P.O. Box 9226, Livonia 48151 or by calling 591-8800.

"It is regrettable that we have taken this action as a last resort," a TAAG spokesman said. "But we really did not have any choice, given fund-raising limitations we've recently experienced."

● DESIGNER FEATURED
As part of an ongoing event, the Hillside Inn of Plymouth will present Eunice Scully in its Sesquicentennial Parade of Unknown Designers. Scully will informally model her custom-designed collection from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m., Friday, March 20.

● ROTHAMEL EXHIBIT
Artist Susan Rothamel will exhibit her contemporary, impressionistic and interpretative artwork of a very old subject, entitled "An Old Testament Survey," at Baker Street Interior Design Studio, 16320 Middlebelt Road, Livonia through May 1.

A dramatic departure from the familiar pieces of the Old Master's biblical renditions, Rothamel's work includes a wide range of subject matter in a variety of media from mixed-media collage, watercolor and pastel to oils, which are often distinguished by her unusual application of metallurgical powders.

The biblical series tells 20 Old Testament stories heretofore uninterpreted by most "religious" artists.

● TIFFANY ART GLASS
John Zawadzki will be guest speaker in the Second Thursday lecture series at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, March 12 in Northville City Hall council chambers. His topic will be "Witness the Revival of Art Glass." Admission is $3.

● NACO CONCERT
The National Arts Chamber Orchestra will present a concert at 8 p.m. Sunday, March 29 in Hill Auditorium, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. Music director and conductor is Kevin McMahon, concertmaster of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra. Featured soloist is Theodore Lettvin, professor of piano at the University of Michigan School of Music. General admission is $7, seniors and students, $4. For more information, call Irene Boruszko, 747-8546.

● DEARBORN CONCERT
The Dearborn Orchestral Society will present the Dearborn Symphony Orchestra in its fourth concert of the season at 8:30 p.m. Friday in the Edsel Ford High School auditorium.

Featured soloist will be Cynthia Raim, performing the Prokofiev Piano Concerto No. 3 in C. A native of Detroit where she first studied with Mischa Kottler, Raim was the youngest soloist ever to perform a complete concerto with the Detroit Symphony.

Tickets are $7 for adults and $3 for students. They will be available at the door. For additional information, call 561-5782.

● 'FIGARO' AUDITIONS
Open auditions for Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro" (to be sung in English) will be held 1-5 p.m. Saturday, March 21, and 2:30-6:30 p.m. Sunday, March 22, in St. Andrew Memorial Episcopal Church on the Wayne State campus, 1/4 block north of Warren on the northbound Lodge service drive. An accompanist will be provided.

Performances will take place the first three weekends in June in the Marquis Theatre in Northville. Director/producer is Arthur Rizzo and conductor/artistic director is Douglas Morrison. For more information, call 531-2085.

FOR NEARLY 20 years, Bob and Norma Sarver have captured adventures with a 16mm Bolex camera.

Bob, assistant principal at Livonia Stevenson High School, is self-taught in the fine art of film making — from writing the script to shooting the scene and editing the shots into a finished film.

Norma, a second-grade teacher at Buchanan elementary in Livonia, is Bob's production assistant and film crew, handling such tasks as lugging equipment on location, to recording sound and, later, choosing a musical score to accompany the film.

The Sarvers' foray into filmmaking began with short "nature" films done on 8mm film. A camping vacation to Michigan's Isle Royale provided the backdrop for the initial endeavor.

"We paddled canoes all over the north end (of the island) and backpacked 40 miles on Greenstone Ridge. The loons woke us up in the morning and moose practically stepped on us at night," Bob recalled.

LATER, THE Sarvers' interest in filmmaking expanded to 16mm film. It took advantage of spontaneous events occurring right in their backyard.

One film, "Backyard Bees," was the result of such an event when a swarm of wild bees landed on the Sarvers' property. Realizing the filming opportunity of the visiting insects, Bob built a glass-walled hive around the bees and proceeded to document their stay into the following winter.

This film was then shown on Jerry Chiappetta's TV show, "Michigan Sportsman," where it was felt that the Sarvers' "non-professional" filmmaking skills were indeed very professional.

The Sarvers were then invited to show another of their films, "Finale at Meadowbrook," on the television show. "Finale" was the Sarver's first sound film. It involved filming a colony of chorus frogs uprooted from their natural habitats when basements were dug in their subdivision.

Five subsequent Sarver films were then shown on "Michigan Sportsman." That not only demonstrated Bob's and Norma's skills in filmmaking, but their love of adventure. It made wherever they happened to be the right place and time for a filmmaking event.

ONE OF these five television-aided films, "Sharptail Grouse," was the result of positioning camouflaged sleeping bags at the edge of a sharptail courtship arena. The Sarvers then filmed the birds at dawn from their hidden posts.

"Filmmaking has helped us get more directly involved with the world around us," Bob said. "If we weren't making a film (about them), we wouldn't get to know gannets or moose or whatever our subject so well."

During those almost 20 years of filmmaking, the Sarvers have produced a series of 15 films. They've lugged film equipment on burros in the California Sierra Mountains, on horses in Montana, and even on rafts on the choppy white waters of the Colorado River. And, as might be expected, these adventures didn't escape being challenged by danger and harrowing experiences.

"In the summer of 1982," Bob said, "we followed the Colorado River for 1,400 miles — from snow-topped mountains through the Grand Canyon. The river was unusually high that summer, and we thought we were going to drown when we got caught in Crystal Rapids. A horrendous wave stood our raft almost completely on end."

Danger aside, the Sarvers enjoy all phases of filmmaking and feel that it has given them an opportunity to fully appreciate their experiences, even when it doesn't work out.

"AT THE beginning of the bicentennial observance," Bob said, "I drove all the way to Massachusetts to film the re-enactment of the Battle of Lexington. I didn't realize that the battle would take place at 5 a.m., just as it did 200 years ago! It was much too dark to film, and I didn't get a single shot."

For the Sarvers, filmmaking has also been a method of promoting family togetherness. Their children — Gail, Reed and Heidi, now grown — have played a large part in these adventure films, from handling canoes to controlling animals to appearing in the films.

Gail played a significant role in a film shot in the Florida Keys and Everglades, Reed a major part in a ski camping film shot in the Colorado Rockies, and Heidi as "guide" through one of the Sarvers' favorite sound films, "Indian Summer."

This particular film was shot over a two-year period, from visits to the Taos Pueblo in Arizona, a Navajo Indian dwelling. It focuses on the "pueblos" — homes dug from caves and canyon walls where the Indians live, with Heidi seemingly leading a crew of tourists, in and around the pueblos.

OTHER INTERESTING images captured on film are Navajo women building mud ovens and a young Navajo boy performing a hoop dance. The film also encompasses a visit to a pow wow that was held in a stadium in Flagstaff, Ariz., and an all-Indian rodeo.

Particularly noteworthy were the beautiful full-color, authentic costumes of the squaws and braves, set against the backdrop of the "white man's civilization." An added accent is a sequence of a squaw performing an ancient dance, which tightens into a sustained close-up shot focusing on her expressionless face nonchalantly chewing gum.

The Sarvers finished the film with a professional narrator who read Bob's script throughout the film, educating the viewer as to the places and events seen on film.

The "natural" sounds of the events captured on film were recorded at the moment they occurred, on cassette recorded, then later added to the film along with a pre-recorded musical score that punctuated the rodeo's bull riding sequence.

During the filming of the Taos Pueblo, the couple were in good company. National Geographic magazine was also on hand to do a story on the Taos Pueblo. They stood side by side with the Sarvers as they watched the Navajo's build a wall around the village.

THE MAGAZINE reporters had previously been denied permission to take pictures of the Indians building the wall, but the Sarvers managed to capture a minute or two of the event on film.

"It's being in the right place and the right time, but we really have to work hard at making it so," Bob said.

The Sarvers have visited 48 of the United States and their national parks in their vacation/filming expeditions. They have made 13 30-minute films that include the various places they've visited. They've also made two 90-minute "travelog"-type films that were shot in Europe. They even have footage of the Royal Wedding of Diana and Charles.

Their only regret about some of the places they've visited and filmed is that they are becoming too civilized.

"Many of our favorite camping/filming spots have changed drastically over the years. Sixteen years ago, we filmed sea horses just off the mangroves on Key Largo (Florida). A few years later, when we returned, a trailer park had been built there, and the mangroves have been replaced by condominiums. The sea horses may still be there, but we'll never know. We can't get near the water."

WHAT'S NEXT for the film company of Sarver and Sarver? Bob and Norma would like professional recognition of their work, with their hopes set for another television airing of their films on either a local show, or, perhaps, a spot on national public television.

As the cost of making a 30-minute film can run into thousands of dollars, the Sarvers would like a commercial, buying market for their finished products. They want to be able to continue their "serious hobby" as they both move toward retirement from careers as educators and, hopefully, turn their skills as filmmakers into a new vocation.

For now, they've planned to follow the trail of Huck Finn down the Mississippi, chart the inside passage to Alaska, command a sailboat through the Bahamas, and rediscover Michigan via the original settlers' trails. And, of course, the Bolex will be star-boarder.

Lincoln look-alike performs

The wry humor of President Abraham Lincoln comes to the forefront in the presentation Sunday by Jack Bradford sponsored by the Livonia Arts Commission in its Sunday Showcase series at 3 p.m. in the Livonia City Hall auditorium. Bradford, who resembles the president, does the one-man show replete with stovepipe hat and beard — and a collection of endearing stories.

Family fills basket full of fantasy

Joan and David Kennedy assemble book baskets in their Plymouth home.

WHAT DO you do when you have two kids in college and you still haven't finished paying off the expenses from the oldest two?

Well, if you're David Kennedy, you hold a family meeting and try and come up with a project that will bring in some extra money.

After a lot of trial and error, that was how the Plymouth family's order book business, "The Book Basket" came about.

"Since we're all readers, we tried to come up with something we would be interested in. We thought about combining books with comparable themes and then one of us came up with the idea to put into baskets," Kennedy said.

Kennedy's wife Joan, their three sons, a daughter and daughter-in-law experimented for awhile. "The books looked pretty lonely in the empty basket," Kennedy said, "so we lined it with fabric, then we added silk flowers and candy — and whatever else we could think of that went along with the books' motif."

The Romance Basket holds three or four best-selling paperback titles, a silk rose, Mon Cheri and Cherry Cordial candies, topped off with a lace doily, red tissue and a bow.

The Western Basket is lined with a colorful bandanna, holds three or four books ("usually some Louis L. Amour"), beef jerky and Jolly Rancher candies.

The Kennedys assemble the baskets themselves (the baskets are "top quality, not the cheap imports," Kennedy said) and ship them by commercial carrier. They make the book selections, though for a few dollars more, you can add books or ask for specific titles.

They make up special baskets, too. "We're just getting into children's baskets," Kennedy said, "and we can do almost anything where they're concerned. Specific authors or genres — we want to be careful with them, they have their own likes and dislikes."

Gift baskets are priced at $29.50, gift card included. There is an extra charge for overnight delivery, additions or changes. Order by calling 1-800-853-4441 or write to: The Book Basket, P.O. Box 616, Plymouth 48170-0616.

Untraditional choices

Research uncovers moms' resiliency

MARGARET Taylor Smith, back home in Birmingham fresh from a two-week tour sponsored by Doubleday, the publishers of her book, "Mother, I Have Something to Tell You," scoffs when she's called a "writer."

"For this book I was a researcher — for seven long years I researched it — but I think my true calling is as a professional volunteer."

Smith, a volunteer at the Kresge Foundation among others and the mother of four grown children, got the idea for her book from mothers like herself whose children were making "untraditional choices in their lives."

What surprised her, she said, was how some of these women, whose children might be living in prison, on the streets, in communes or cults, or in the gay communities, had learned to cope and to accept their children all over again.

"What I was finding was that the children might not survive, but the mothers do," she said.

Smith eventually found an agent and Doubleday bought the book — or rather the research.

"They chose Jo Brans, a marvelous writer, to take what I had written and polish it for the commercial market. Jo asked for her own byline," Smith said, "and I happily agreed."

The book came out in January and was reviewed "quite favorably" in the New York Times. Smith took two weeks off to go on the road. The book tour took her to New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and points between.

Her big moment was an appearance on the Phil Donahue Show (on Jan. 12). Locally, she talked with Sonya Friedman on J. P. McCarthy's "Focus" show (McCarthy was in Australia for the America Cup races) and on "Kelly & Co."

Smith says the mothers in her book went through six stages: shock, attention, action, detachment, autonomy and connection. "Some of it was two steps back and one step forward but they did it."

Doubleday thought enough of the book to take out a full-page ad in last Sunday's New York Times, complete with coupon and money-back guarantee.

Smith will talk about her book at the Mount Clemens Library at noon Tuesday, March 24. The library is at 150 Cass. Call 469-6200. The talk is free and open to the public.

WRITE IT AND REAP!

Writing a classified ad that gets results—whether it be for real estate, employment, the personals, transportation, or merchandise— is easy if you follow the guidelines below.

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!

5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.

2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.
