9 candidates file in school board race

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Nine people, including two incumbents, two fundamentalists, a former school trustee and a former private investigator are seeking seats on the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

Monday was filing deadline for the June 8 election, in which two four-year terms will be filled.

Candidates have until today to withdraw.

Plymouth-Canton voters also may be asked to decide on a ballot issue to authorize the distict's full operating levy — a proposal defeated in February.

School board members Roland Thomas and Dean Swartzwelter are seeking their third and second full terms, respectively.

THOMAS, in business planning at Ford Motor, said he is "going to invest whatever is necessary to win, particularly in time and energy.

"I think we have something good going, and I'd like to see it continue," said the Plymouth resident.

school board race

Thomas, 43, has three children who attend Plymouth-Canton schools. Among his goals are to:

- ". . . follow through on the bond issue passed last year. I'd like to see it successfully launched.
- "Encourage programs that teach higher-level thinking skills — the ability to take a concept and transfer it into an unrelated situation.
- "Maintain sound financial conditions" and enhance school improvement programs.
- "Achieve new economic agreements that are fair, just, and within our means to pay.

"We have made some progress with working staff, and I would like to see it continue so that people recognize the employee is the important person, not the school board. Change has to come from the bottom up, and we have just begun working on that," he said.

SWARTZWELTER, 52, a finance manager for Ford Motor, is running again because "there are several things that need to be completed that were started in the last 2½ years.

"One of the big ones is to complete the implementation of the bond project approved last June, and secondly . . . will be the issue of controversial material in the district."

The district recently has been bombarded with complaints filed by resident Diane Daskalakis. Daskalakis, formerly an unsuccessful school board candidate, objects to instructors' use of R-rated films and materials dealing with witchcraft and the occult.

Swartzwelter, also a Plymouth resident, says the issue can be resolved by allowing parents to decide whether their children should be exposed to controversial subject matter.

The trustee wants "to continue the communication I think we've had with the public, administration and staff" and "to continue to have good working relationships with all employee groups."

Improving test scores and keeping buildings in good condition are other Swartzwelter priorities.

The trustee has two daughters who graduated from Plymouth Canton High School and a son attending Canton.

THE CANDIDACIES of Canton residents Mary Dahn and Robert E. Anderson are being backed by Daskalakis and Citizens for Better Education.

The 1,000-member, pro-Christian group was founded by Daskalakis and seeks to upgrade district curricula.

"Bob Anderson and Mary Dahn will represent the same goals as CBE. I will be assisting them financially to whatever extent is necessary," said Daskalakis, a local merchant.

Dahn is running because "I want to make sure that citizens that graduate, in addition to intellectual competence, also have the moral standards of our forefathers," she said.

A part-time manufacturer's representative for an automotive supplier, Dahn is the mother of four school-age children.

She ran unsuccessfully on the Republican ticket for the Wayne State University Board of Governors last year.

Saying the pledge of allegiance should be reinstituted in schools, Dahn says.

"Kids have to learn patriotism and love of country. The pledge of allegiance is not mandatory. This is wrong.

"I feel the school board should develop a moral code upholding Judeo-Christian values all teachers should adhere to," added Dahn, 42.

Dahn also favors a "tougher stance toward drug use in public schools."

ANDERSON WOULD "like to be effective in every way. But we do have an agenda. Basically, witchcraft, the occult, R-rated movies and those kinds of things we feel have no place in the schools.

Graper wants to hire part-time policemen

By Doug Funke
staff writer

City manager Henry Graper says he wants to hire part-time police officers to help monitor special events in Plymouth but expects strong opposition from full-timers already working in the department.

"I don't think the union is going to give me permission to do it," he said.

Graper announced Monday plans to reopen contract talks with the Plymouth Police Officers Association. Changes in working conditions must be negotiated. The contract expires in June 1989.

The union is concerned about job security and potential loss of overtime, said Joe Kahanec, the local president.

"We haven't seen any type of proposal from Mr. Graper yet, so it's difficult to make a comment," Kahanec said.

"We're a professional organization. We take pride in the job we do. Philosophically, I don't care for part-time police but I'm willing to talk about it," he added.

MORE MANPOWER is one way to deal with problems associated with large crowds of young people gathering downtown in summer, Graper said.

"We're never going to catch people urinating in the back alley or drinking in the park with four or five officers on duty," he said.

The city incurred $25,000-30,000 in overtime costs last summer directly attributable to law enforcement efforts along Main Street, he said.

"This year we're looking at a minimum of $25,000 and we may be pushing $40,000," Graper added.

'I propose to handle this with the resources we have.'
— Henry Graper, city manager

Using part-time officers instead of paying overtime for full-time officers would seem to give taxpayers more service for their money.

The going pay rate for part-time police officers is $6-$9 per hour, Graper said. Costly fringe benefits, such as health insurance, generally aren't paid.

Anything still goes

Artist warns: Don't stifle creativity

By Doug Funke
staff writer

If painting as art is to flourish in this country, children should be encouraged to express themselves through painting at a very early age.

Instruction on art's value also should be part of elementary school education.

That's the assessment of Dorothy Koliba, a painter and president of the Three Cities Art Club.

Well-meaning parents can inadvertently stifle the creativity and inborn talent every child has by focusing too much on order, Koliba maintained.

"You know how you teach children to color inside lines? You shouldn't do that. They lose their artistic ability.

"Everybody has this ability. We're so limited we have to stay within the lines. We're squashed.

"Buy them paint sets and let them paint," she said. "Buy them a little easel. Make them think they're a little artist. You'd be surprised what children don't have to be told. They have it in them.

"Of course, they have to want to do it," Koliba continued. "If you start them young enough, they will."

KOLIBA, 45, said she never had a painting lesson until after she married.

"When I was a child, I used to sit on my porch and draw. I just liked doing it. I was from a large, poor family.

"When my daughter was 2 (she's 27 now), I painted Disney characters on her wall because I couldn't afford canvas. I guess it was just aching to come out."

Life has been good to her and husband Mel over the years. They've built a large home on five acres in Plymouth Township. "I have two studios in this house — one where I paint, one where I teach."

Koliba has studied privately and taken classes at Schoolcraft College, Oakland Community College and Eastern Michigan University.

Honing a talent takes dedication. It really is a labor of love, she said. "It's just something you have to push yourself because you want to do it."

KOLIBA SAID she's disappointed with the seemingly low regard in which art is held in this country.

"The U.S. is probably — they have probably the least amount of educated people as far as the arts go," she said. "We don't push it enough. We don't know it.

Skateboarding out in downtown area

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Youngsters caught skateboarding or rollerskating in Plymouth's central business district — now illegal activities — can be dealt with in several ways, said Police Chief Richard Myers.

Children younger than 17 can be ticketed and referred to Wayne County Juvenile Court. Those 17 and older can be ticketed and referred to 35th District Court.

A fine ranging from $10 to $100 is in effect for those convicted.

Police also will look at diverting some offenders into Growth Works, a youth counseling program, Myers said.

"I'D ANTICIPATE regardless of whether or not a ticket is issued, we will confiscate many skateboards," Myers said. "That results in parental involvement and that's the key to the program."

Parents must appear at the station to retrieve skateboards confiscated by police, the chief said.

The city commission Monday approved an outright ban on skateboarding and rollerskating on public sidewalks in an area roughly bounded by Church, Wing, Harvey and Union streets.

Concerns about the safety of pedestrians, motorists and skateboarders prompted the measure.

The ordinance also requires prior written permission to skateboard or rollerskate on private property. That provision would tend to keep kids out of business parking lots.

The ordinance takes effect immediately.

Karl Gansler was the only commissioner to vote against the measure. "Are children in Plymouth allowed to do anything?" he asked during a pre-meeting discussion of the issue.

"IT LOOKS like we're picking on kids but this should have been done a long time ago when problems didn't exist so severely," said city manager Henry Graper.

The first big test of the ordinance probably will arise the week of April 19, Easter break for the schools.

"We'll do the best job we can to enforce the ordinance," Myers said. "It's just going to be part of the overall enforcement program.

"We can't assign all five officers to skateboarding just as we can't assign them all to left turns on Byron."

SPECIAL SECTION IN TODAY'S ISSUE

9 candidates file for election to school board

"There's been a lot of controversy in the schools and right now I feel it's time for a change.

"I also feel a lot of people will go along with that."

Anderson, employed by the America Group, a financial planning business in Farmington Hills, has worked as a teacher in Plymouth-Canton, Garden City and Livonia public schools.

"I've been involved politically as a Republican precinct delegate," added Anderson, the father of a newborn and a 1-year-old.

"I also am for fiscal responsiblity. I'm not saying that there's mismanagement or anything like that but, just by nature, I am a cost-conscious person and I want to pay particular attention to that," said Anderson, 30.

NANCY QUINN of Plymouth — who served on the school board for seven months in 1984 before resigning for personal reasons — also has filed.

"I'm ready to go back. I owe it to the people who voted me in last time to try and do what I wanted to do before," said Quinn.

Tops on Quinn's agenda are "cooperation and communication. People have to talk and listen to try to work together to solve problems. I would just like to help make this school district be the best it can be."

A full-time homemaker, Quinn has a son in middle school and a daughter in high school. She's certified as a K-12 teacher, and during her 15 years in the district has done a lot of school volunteer work, she said.

Quinn, who is planning a "low-key" campaign, sees the curriculum issue as the district's biggest problem.

"There is a policy in place, and I do think the policy has to be followed. If there's a problem, then it has to be looked at and changed. From what I can tell, it doesn't need changing, but I haven't read through that policy lately. It seems to be working well," said Quinn, 40.

"The community and parents do have a choice to allow students to see the material."

WILLIAM L. BROWN of Plymouth is seeking office for the second time.

The first, in 1976, was a "half-hearted" effort because "I was accepted into Michigan State University's master's program in criminal justice," said Brown, 53.

Brown, who retired from the Michigan State Police in 1981, is a welfare specialist and investigator with the state Department of Social Services Children's Protective Services division.

He also has worked as a private investigator.

Of interest to Brown is "the administrative certification coming about very shortly. The state school board has a program whereby all administrators can and should be certified. I want to see it (implemented locally.)

"I am very interested in the state dropout rate of students," added Brown, who served on a district modular scheduling committee. "I don't know how bad ours is but I don't want us to get into that spiral. It's one of the biggest wastes we have.

"With the advent of possible property tax reduction and school funds being taken away from that, I am very interested in what the future holds for the funding of scools. I lean toward the use of sales tax to produce revenues for schools.

"Also, I hope to see the day when a school within our district will be held accountable for its output, more than the entire school board at large," he said.

Brown favors the equal distribution of funding among Michigan school districts.

Brown has two children who graduated from the local school system and has two grandchildren who will enter the district this fall.

BRENDA ANDERSON, a 31-year-old Canton resident, is running because "I felt I have something to contribute. I have three kids in the district, so I have a vested interest in schools," said Anderson, a volunteer with Plymouth-Canton schools.

"I suppose my main goal is to have more community and parent involvement with schools. I think if we get more parents helping teachers in the classroom, we'll show children that we do care about their education, and that we don't think of school simply as a place to avoid day care."

While Anderson, who teaches at Southfield's Control Data Institute, is satisfied with the school board's progress, "I am very much for promoting education, which to me includes encouraging an interest in learning and getting information and facts on all kinds of subjects — not just a narrow curriculum."

Students should know "education isn't something that's dreary. It opens up their future," Anderson said.

BARBARA GRAHAM of Plymouth said "the controversy that has been raised lately" over teaching materials "is the prime reason I gave running some consideration.

"I don't think the schools had the best interests of students at heart with regard to material. I think the staff could have used better discretion . . . and I think the board members were remiss in not listening to taxpayers," said Graham, who served for six years as a Detroit school board member in the 1970s.

"I am opposed to that kind of material being used."

Graham said she is not being backed by Daskalakis or Citizens for Better Education.

Graham is a part-time clerk for a Plymouth Township laundry. Fifty-two years old and the mother of four, Graham's youngest child graduated in 1982 from Plymouth Salem High School.

She anticipates waging "the cheapest run for office you've ever seen."

"I know what I'm in for," she added. "Some of the people aren't aware of all the hours you have to put in if you want to do the job and do it right. It's a time-consuming responsiblity, no doubt about it."

Candidate Chris Robison of Canton was out of town and unavailable for comment.

Artist warns about stifling creativity

"I don't know why it is. Is it because of the auto industry here or what? The schools don't touch on it nearly enough.

"I taught high school boys. It was a shame. They didn't want anything to do with it. It was too late in their life."

Koliba is delighted by the curiousity of youngsters age 6 to 10 when she gives demonstrations during Art-in-the-Park shows.

"They're so interested. They stand there and ask questions. Their parents are embarrassed. They say don't bother me. I say I want them to bother me."

KOLIBA WORKS with watercolors and oils and specializes in animals and flowers. That interest in nature was sparked when she accompanied her husband into the fields during deer hunting season with a camera.

The Three Cities Art Club, at least 30 years old, was the first organization Koliba joined when she moved here a dozen years ago.

The three cities originally referred to were Livonia, Plymouth and Northville. Most members, seasoned painters, now live in the Plymouth-Canton community.

The group meets at 7:30 p.m. the first Monday of the month in Plymouth Township Hall.

"We promote each other. I don't think it's for the average individual who wants to learn about art. It's basically to help each other. We have critiques."

THERE'S MORE than one dimension to Koliba's life. Other hobbies include interior decorating, sewing, quilting and golf.

Koliba, like most artists, has her dreams.

"I have a goal. I think I'd like to go to Carmel and be represented in a gallery there. Or New York. Actually, it's not as hard as it sounds. You have to get your work together and get it out there."

That time may yet come but Koliba has a more immediate goal.

"I'd like to become well-known here first."

Three Cities Art Club will present its annual show April 11-14 at The Hillside Inn, 41661 Plymouth Road, during the restaurant's hours of operation.

The proceeds from an auction, noon to 2 p.m. Sunday, and a percentage of all sales will be donated to the American Cancer Society.

There is no admission charge to the show.

Part-time cops talked

GRAPER SAID Monday he doesn't know yet how many part-timers would be hired immediately and exactly when they'd be scheduled if the union were to agree to the plan. "I could use 20."

Graper said he wouldn't recommend raising taxes to expand the police department. "I propose to handle this with the resources we have."

The department currently has 18 officers, all fulltime, 13 of whom are represented by the union. All union members except the ordinance officer work a 12-hour day, 84 hours every two weeks.

The cycle is three days on, two days off, two days on, three days off, two days on and two days off.

Police this year plan to take a less confrontational stance initially in dealing with cruisers and young people congregating downtown, said Police Chief Richard Myers.

Putting more officers on the street wouldn't necessarily prove to be more confrontational, Graper said.

"It depends on how you use them. Five or six policemen on foot on sidewalks isn't going to cause escalation. When you line up 30 across the street is when you get escalation."

Plan would give homeowners tax break

Little effect seen on local school district

By Tim Richard
Julie Brown
staff writers

Some 90 percent of Michigan homeowners would get $100 rebates on their property taxes if Gov. James Blanchard gets his newest plan through the Legislature.

Some businesses, military personnel and Lottery winners would be asked to pay the $200 million difference to the state treasury through "closing loopholes," Blanchard told a Monday news conference, adding:

"I am able to look them in the eye and say 'this is only fair.'

"Chances are much better now for passage, for three reasons," said the governor, whose similar 1985 proposal was passed in the Democratic-run House but stalled in the Republican-run Senate.

"First, this is not an election year. Second, the income tax rate (4.4 percent) is below what it was for years before I became governor (4.6 percent). Third, we've got the time to do it."

THE STATE would reimburse homeowners on the first 10 mills of property tax up to a market valuation of $ 000 — hence Blanchard's slogan.

Usually, property taxes are levied on state equalized valuation, which by law is supposed to be half the market value. Thus, the rebate amounts to $10 per $1,000 on the first $10,000 of SEV — a flat $100 for most houses.

Homeowners' checks would arrive in 1989 after 1988 state income tax returns are filed.

"I understand that the state is going to pay the difference," said Dr. John Hoben, superintendent of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. "Other than that, I couldn't tell you much about it.

"I don't know where the state's going to get the money. But it's good political posturing, I guess."

The governor's plan shouldn't have much of an effect locally, Hoben said.

"As I understand it, it isn't going to affect our tax revenues. I suppose they're going to have to make it up someplace."

Plymouth-Canton is an in-formula district and relies quite heavily on state aid, the superintendent said. That aid adds up to some $600 per year per child. Other nearby school districts, such as Livonia and Northville, are out-of-formula.

"They get the full benefit of the tax dollar," Hoben said. "We don't."

State support of education costs has dropped from about 50 percent in 1970, Hoben said.

"Now it's only about 36 percent. The state's commitment to education has been on a reduced basis, in terms of funding."

An increased state sales tax is one possible funding option, Hoben said.

"I think the heavy reliance is still going to have to be on the property tax. I frankly don't see a lot of relief coming in the property tax."

Currently, 1.35 million households get a total of $650 million in income tax rebates because they live in communities with high property taxes.

Under Blanchard's plan, 2.15 million households — an 800,000 increase — would be rebated a total of $850 million. Homestead and farm property taxes total $3 billion, Treasurer Robert Bowman said.

UNAFFECTED would be households with adjusted gross incomes (AGIs) above $50,000, business property tax payers and non-residents who own property in Michigan and don't pay a state income tax.

Blanchard's plan amounts to an expansion of the current program, under which households get an income tax rebate when their local property taxes exceed 3.5 percent of income.

Unlike rival property tax cut plans in both the House and Senate, Blanchard would not pay for the $200 million in rebates through an increase in the voter-approved sales tax. Rather, the Democratic governor would close what he calls "loopholes," chiefly:

- On insurance companies — "domestic" (resident) insurance companies pay the single business tax but not a 2 percent tax on premiums that "foreign" companies pay. Estimated new revenue from taxing domestic premiums: $55 million.
- On banks — a 20 cents per $1,000 increase in the intangibles tax to eliminate what the governor called "an unintended windfall" from the single business tax since 1975. No revenue estimate was available.
- On lump sum distributions — treat like other types of pension income. No revenue estimate.
- On military personnel — Michigan is one of only two states exempting service people from the state income tax. Even the federal government taxes its own soldiers, Blanchards said, adding, "They (their kids) go to our schools." No revenue estimate.
- On Michigan Lottery winners — already taxed by the federal government. Apparently only pots of $600 or more, collected at Lottery offices, would be subject to the tax. No revenue estimate.
- On computer programs sold over-the-counter — these would be subject to the sales tax.

The homestead property tax credit would be limited to households with incomes under $50,000. "Current law allows taxpayers with incomes up to $82,650 to receive a credit," said Bowman.

"Ending credits to higher income families allows greater relief to lower-income taxpayers."

RIVAL PROPERTY tax cut plans abound in Lansing, though most would require voter approval.

State Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, would collect all school property taxes statewide and make up the difference with a voted sales tax increase.

A Senate-appointed citizens committee proposes collecting industrial property taxes statewide and substituting a sales tax increase.

Homeowners' checks would arrive in 1989 after 1988 state income tax returns are filed.

Real estate values on rise

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Used homes in Canton are selling for an average $93,281 — a 25 percent increase from last year.

Last year at this time, the average selling price for used homes in Canton was $74,556.

"I can't remember seeing anything like that," said Jerome A. Delaney, president of Western Wayne/ Oakland County Board of Realtors. Most good selling areas have shown increases ranging from 18 to 20 percent.

Average selling prices in surrounding communities are: city of Plymouth and Plymouth Township, $113,189; Livonia, $84,700; Farmington, $118,256; West Bloomfield, $151,000; Novi, $109,800; and Northville, $130,000.

"Different people are attracted to different communities for different reasons," Delaney said. "Twelve Oaks Mall has a different attraction than downtown Plymouth."

THE REASONS Delaney gives for the good selling market in Canton are:

- Homes are well kept and are in a good area.
- Schools get high marks.
- Shopping is available in nice surroundings.
- Canton is a family oriented community.
- There is easy access to Detroit, Ann Arbor, Metropolitan Airport and Southfield via I-275.
- Major streets recently have been paved.

BEYOND THE surroundings and statistics, Delaney says, the people in the community are a major attraction.

"It's a place to show homes that are occupied and introduce buyers, because of the people who make up the community. It's a delightful community and a young community," said Delaney, manager of Weir, Manuel, Snyder & Ranke Inc. Realtors in Plymouth.

"I characterize Canton as being an ideal example of Middle America," Delaney said. "It captures the best of the middle price ranges."

He added that Canton may not have a lot of doctors and judges living in its limits, but it has drawn a lot of management people and executives.

CANTON GETS GOOD marks in other areas Delaney uses to test the market.

This year the average time it takes to sell a home in Canton is 29 days. On Tuesday Canton had 107 homes for sale.

Home listings are down 12 percent compared to April 1986.

"The number of available homes in Canton is very low, and the selection is limited for buyers," Delaney said.

But that means more money if you're selling a home.

"It's the old supply and demand law of economics. People are willing to pay more for homes because the availability is selected."

Plymouth and Plymouth Township also have an average 29-day selling period. In other top selling communities, Delaney said, the average selling time is 50 days.

Canton Sunflower, Mayfair Village, Windsor Park and Carriage Hills subdivisions and areas near the Centennial Education Park on Canton Center and Joy are the most popular areas, Delaney said. Parks are a major attraction.

IT HASN'T always been so good for Canton.

When the economy was suffering across the U.S. in the early 1980s, prices were "terribly low, and Canton suffered more than in other communities," Delaney said.

"Canton was growing very, very quickly at that time. Canton was caught in a period of over accelerated development.

"Now all the advantages and real attractions to Canton are paying off in terms of home values for people."

PRICE INCREASES now in evidence are similar to the market in 1978 and 1979, when yearly fluctuations rose 15 to 20 percent.

Delaney predicts the market will level off because mortgage interest rates are beginning to creep back up.

"I would be shocked if they went back down any further," Delaney said. "There's an insignificant increase in interest rates, but it's yet to be seen whether it indicates a trend."

Since January, 67 new single home building permits have been issued, according to Canton's building department. In 1986, there were 291 permits issued — 83 of those were issued during the first three months. And in 1985, 294 permits were issued — 56 of those were issued during the first three months.

IN THE five-county metropolitan area there will be an estimated 15,000 new single family home permits issued this year, said Dennis P. Dickstein, owner/president of Ralph Manuel Realtors and president of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan.

In 1986 there were 26,973 single family permits issued in the state; in 1985 there were 21,379 permits issued.

Rochester Hills has the most growth in single family development with Farmington Hills, Troy and West Bloomfield following. Canton trails these communities in single family growth, Dickstein said.

Students' plays win awards

Students at West Middle and Pioneer Middle schools got a taste of prize-winning German drama last week.

The presentation was from the German classes of Central, West and Pioneer middle schools who recently won drama and other honors at a special event for German language high school students at the University of Michigan.

Each of the classes performed a challenging play, adapted from Grimms' fairy tales: "Puss in Boots" (Der gestiefelte Kater) by Central Middle; "Sleeping Beauty" (Dornroschen) by West Middle; and "Snow White" (Schneewittchen) by Pioneer Middle students. Central took first place and West took second.

AS AN additional award, Central had the honor of presenting its play at the afternoon awards assembly in a large auditorium before some 300 students, teachers, and professors in the U-M German department.

Central, which has the first all-eighth grade German class in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, competed against many older students. (Before this year, no foreign language class was offered in Plymouth-Canton Schools until the ninth grade).

After returning home from the competition, some of the German language students presented "Snow White" and "Sleeping Beauty" to the student bodies at West and Pioneer.

STUDENTS from Plymouth-Canton also won many individual honors in Ann Arbor.

Though most of the participating schools were from southeastern Michigan, one busload came from as far away as Musker Plymouth-Canton middle sc with a large share of prizes awarded — ab of the Level I awards

In the poetry recitation competition, which involved 30 students, Heather Kaye of West took first prize and Matt Walters of Central took third.

Wendy Stuart's visual display took first place, while a group display of German restaurant menus made by Rachel Henry, Heather Kaye, Kerie O'Donnell and Michelle Tomaszycki of West tied for second place with the map display made by Chris Witschonke of Pioneer.

Patrick Meyer of West took second prize in extemporaneous speaking. Guy Downs and Tim Reger of West took first place in the German baking competition.

A few of the students also had time to order a meal in German at noon at one of the German restaurants in Ann Arbor.

In the afternoon awards assembly local students viewed the winning plays and TV commercials on levels I-III as well as some German folk dancers from the Ann Arbor area.

"We brought home some beautiful books, posters, magazines, maps and cards to share in our classrooms," said German teacher Joy Large.

Job training group forms

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Five local school districts took a step Monday toward shifting the job-training burden from employers to education.

Delegates to the Metropolitan Education Commission's organizational meeting set operating guidelines for the newly formed partnership of public schools, universities and community colleges. The MEC would provide job training for laid-off UAW members and other jobless workers.

Though it isn't designed to replace current adult education classes, the commission will provide courses ranging from high school completion to college credit. It would also provide services ranging from job couselling to technical training for specialized jobs within the group's service area.

Workers requests are coming in even though MEC program haven't yet begun, group organizer Gerald Dunn said.

"MY SECRETARY tells me we had 35 applications already," Dunn said. "The interest is there."

Garden City, Plymouth-Canton, Redford Union, South Redford and Wayne-Westland public schools are among the commission's members. Each is expected to pay $9,000 to support worker retraining in the coming year.

"It's a capital cost that, hopefully, won't have to be needed next year," Dunn said. "The system should pay for itself but we don't know if we'll need some additional capital funding next year."

The commission's 1986-87 operating budget is $115,000.

Other members include Wayne State University, University of Michigan-Dearborn, Henry Ford Community College and the Dearborn, Inkster, Romulus and Taylor public schools. Eastern Michigan University is also expected to join the commission.

Even though MEC members are drawn from throughout Wayne County, the commission boasts strong local ties.

Garden City superintendent Michael Wilmot was elected temporary president. Garden City Public Schools is also providing office space.

COMMISSION MEMBERS are looking for a full-time director. The $60,000-$65,000 position could be filled as early as Friday, May 15, members said. Applications are open through Wednesday, April 15.

Workers would be referred to services in their local district or in the district where they formerly worked.

The commission will coordinate its members' services, negotiate contracts with employers or unions and subcontract services with appropriate MEC members.

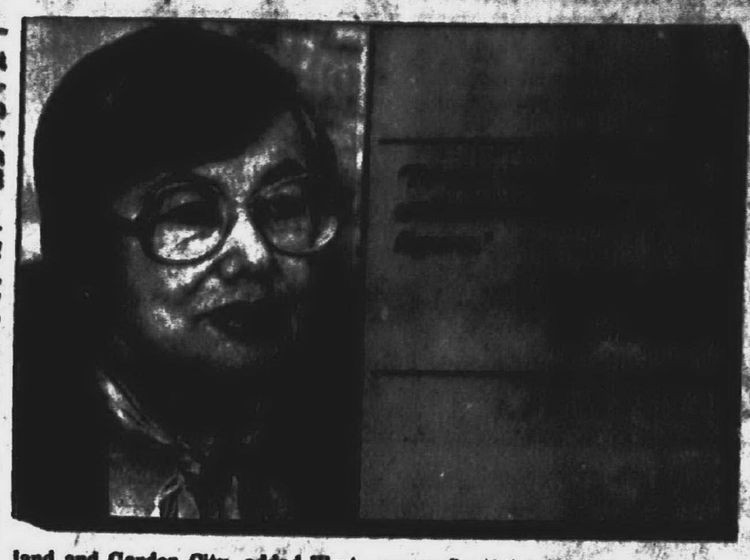
The commission intends to fund itself by charging employers and unions for services rendered.

While schools would pay the capital charge, each MEC member would receive an annual percentage return — as yet unset — on its original investment.

MEC meetings are open to the public under the state's Open Meetings Act.

Beard: Don't sell Westland

By Wayne Peal
staff writer



Though formal discussion won't begin until today, a blistering opening argument has already been sounded in an attempt to block Westland Medical Center's sale from Wayne County to a private hospital consortium.

Attacking the sale price and raising concerns about the adequacy of indigent, emergency and AIDS care, Wayne County Commissioner Kay Beard, D-Inkster, said the county should keep the former Wayne County General Hospital even if the facility had to be "mothballed" for up to two years while a new county operating plan could be worked out.

"I'd like to see the county regain it," Beard said.

Calling the proposed $7.56 million sale price an "unconscionable giveaway" far below the property's true worth, Beard said the sale would do little to relieve the county's massive debt.

"To me it's an unbelievably low figure," said Beard, alleging roughly $1.5 million would be chopped off once the county forgives outstanding utility and prisoner care debts incurred by Southwest Detroit Hospital Corp., which has leased the site since 1984.

A recent study indicated it would cost more than $52 million to replace the site, Beard said in a 19-page position paper on the sale.

"WHY ON earth are we giving it away for $6.06 million when it would cost $52 million to replace," she said. Beard, who represents Westland and Garden City, added Westland staffers offered $19 million to purchase the site three years ago.

In addition, Beard criticized a mortgage agreement which would allow the mortgage holder to recover its financial interest ahead of the county in the event the facility went bankrupt.

Officials from Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara's office, which negotiated the purchase price, were unavailable for comment.

Among other concerns, Beard said Westland's sale would leave the county without adequate space for AIDS patients and reiterated her longstanding concerns about the future of indigent health care and a Western Wayne emergency and trauma center if the site were sold.

It would become the county's responsibility to provide care should AIDS join tuberculosis, syphilis and gonorrhea on the Michigan Department of Public Health's list of hazardous communicable diseases, Beard said.

"THE NEED to prepare for the onslaught of AIDS patients makes it imperative that the county not sell our hospital," she said.

While the Detroit area boasts five emrgency centers, Beard said the sale would leave Western Wayne without one, "although more than half the county population lives west of Telegraph Road."

The crash of Northeast Airlines flight 2268 highlights the need for increased trauma center care, Beard added.

Westland Health Network includes Garden City Osteopathic Hospital, Oakwood Hospital Corp., Southwest Detroit Hospital and the People's Community Hospital Authority, which operates five hospitals in Wayne and eastern Washtenaw counties.

Though indigent care services would be provided at various consortium hospitals for four years, Beard charged the sale would jeopardize long-term care for indigents.

"My big concern is what happens to the indigent after four years," she said.

Beard also said it was unclear whether counseling services would be provided for indigents who need help figuring out Medicaid forms.

Beard's comments came one day before the commission's Health and Human Services Committee was to begin discussing the proposed purchase agreement with Westland Health Network, Inc.

While calling on her fellow commissioners to re-think the purchase agreement, Beard also said she expected a groundswell of public support for her position.

"I think the prospects (for blocking the sale) are good once people see what's at stake," she said.

Approval by the full county commission is necessary for the sale to proceed.

The movement to sell the former county hospital began under former County Executive William Lucas, who charged the site was costing the county money. Beard, however, said Lucas' figures were inflated.

McNamara offers plan to cleanup litter on freeways

In some places, prisoners built the freeways. In Wayne County, they could be used to clean them.

And litterers could find themselves on clean-up crews.

Saying the county should "get tough" on trash, County Executive Edward McNamara announced plans to use prisoners serving community service sentences to clean the county's vast freeway miles.

"I'm sick and tired of driving on freeways that look like garbage dumps," McNamara said. "It's depressing and it affects everybody's image of our communities and our county."

An estimated 20 prisoners a day are sentenced to community service by 36th District Court judges, McNamara said.

Teenagers hired through the Michigan Summer Youth Corps job program would also be used to clean highways, McNamara said.

State police, Detroit and Wayne County Truck Inspection officers have all pledged to ticket litterers, McNamara said. District judges are being asked to levy maximum fines.

In addition, the county has established a hot line "22-Get-Em" to report litters. Signs bearing the new number will be posted along county freeways.

The county's 10 largest trash haulers have also pledged to cut down on uncovered loads, McNamara said.

Freeway workers are being asked to keep any piece of litter that identifies its source.

Dirty freeways were listed among the county's top problems during an intergovernmental meeting between Wayne County Commissioners and representatives of local governments earlier this month.

Focus:Hope will host journalism olympics

Entries are being accepted for the third annual Focus: HOPE Journalism Olympics. Two students from each tri-county high school are eligible to compete for more than $2,000 in scholarships.

The program is a daylong event. After an introductory tour and news conference, students research and report their stories before an afternoon deadline. Professional print and broadcast journalists supervise students' assignments.

Judges include Steven Barnaby, managing editor, Observer & Eccentric Newspapers; Mitch Kehetian, managing editor, Macomb Daily; Neal Shine, managing editor, Detroit Free Press; William Thomas, executive editor, Oakland Press; and James Vesely, managing editor, Detroit News.

Scholarships are donated by WXYZ-TV news anchor Bill Bonds and will be presented by him at a May 27 awards ceremony at the Detroit Press Club.

Students from Plymouth-Canton and Redford schools were among last year's winners.

Registrations must be received by Friday, May 1. Call Focus: HOPE at 883-7440 for additional information.

Established in 1968, Focus: HOPE is a civil and human rights organization working to improve the quality of life in metropolitan Detroit.

Schoolcraft to sponsor 10th wildflower walk

Schoolcraft College's 10th annual Wildflower Walk will be held April 19 through May 23 in Livonia's Bicentennial Park, Seven Mile between Newburgh and Farmington roads.

The free event is sponsored by the college's biology department.

Tours will be conducted by faculty members or those who have completed the college's wildflower class. Guides will include Margaret Converse and Angella Krull of Livonia, Roger and Mary Sutherland of Ann Arbor, Jane Kohring of Grosse Pointe Farms and Kay Wittliff of Farmington.

Bicentennial Park features more than 35 species of wildflowers, which are expected to be at their peak of beauty and color during the walk period.

Tours last 45 minutes and cover approximately one-half mile.

Individuals and groups such as scouts, garden clubs, retirees, church or other organizations can arrange a tour by calling Roger Sutherland, Schoolcraft biology professor, at 591-6400, Ext. 521.

S'craft seminar to discuss helping kids deal with stress

"Helping Your Children Deal with Stress," is the title of a one-day course scheduled for Saturday at Schoolcraft College, 18600 Haggerty, Livonia. It will be held from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The course emphasizes practical, lifelong skills for stress reduction, including relaxation response, active listening, communication skills and activities to develop positive feelings of self-worth.

Friday only.

Hoerner to head Family Service

Richard C. Hoerner of Plymouth has been named chairman of the board of directors of Plymouth Family Service, replacing Ken Hulsing of Plymouth who had been chairman since 1980.

Horner, who recently retired as vice president of American Airlines, serves on the boards of the Southeastern Michigan Junior Achievement, Children's Center in Detroit, and the Schoolcraft College Foundation. He is an elder of the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth and a member of the Rotary Club of Plymouth.

Plymouth Family Service is a professional counseling service created in the early 1960s through the efforts of the Plymouth Community Fund.

Annual boat show set

The third annual Western Wayne County Boat Show will be held April 24-26 in the city of Plymouth.

Held at the Central Parking Deck, the show hours will be noon to 8 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Admission is free.

The Central Parking Deck is surrounded by Main Street and Harvey, Ann Arbor Trail and Penniman Avenue.

SPONSORED BY the Plymouth Kiwanis Club, the show will cover all aspects of boating from water skiing and fishing to sail and power boating for summer fun.

Among the dealers displaying boats will be Marine Affiliates of Canton, Paul's Sailboats of Gibralter, T-J Sales of Pinckney, Prop and Sail from Taylor, Trenton Marine of Trenton and Byrd Marine of Dearborn.

Marine Affiliates will display Grumman aluminum fishing boats, runabout and water skiing boats. Ebb Tide Cuddy Cabin sport boats and Dyna Trac Bass fishing boats also will be shown.

Trenton Marine will feature an 18-foot Lund aluminum fishing boat with pedestal seats and trolling motor mounts, along with a 17-foot-5 inch Aerocraft Monte Carlo runabout bow rider ski boat. Trenton Marine also will display Smoker-Craft fishing boats, the 16-foot Meyer runabout and the 15-foot Galilee — a stable daysailer with self-bailing cockpit and reverse transom.

Paul's Sailboats will show Compact 19-foot and 16-foot trailerable sailboats, along with Little River rowing shells. Being on Lake Erie, Paul's Sailboats operates a sailboat charter service and will provide information to those interested in chartering and learning how to sail.

Prop and Sail will display Glassmaster runabouts and Fisher aluminum fishing boats, along with Johnson outboard motors.

T-J Sales will feature two Spindrifts, one 19-foot and one 22-foot, which are trailerable weekender sailboats that sleep four. T-J Sales also will display Sunfisher and Lasers.

Byrd Marine of Dearborn will display SmokerCraft aluminum fishing boats and Mach I fiberglass ski and offshore runabouts 176 to 25 feet long.

Spending plan OK'd

A spending plan for more than $61,000 in 1987 federal Community Development Block Grant funds was approved Monday by the Plymouth City Commission.

The largest single allocation, $25,000, is a final payment for an emergency response fire vehicle purchased last year.

The commission also budgeted $19,000 toward a senior citizen van transportation program, $8,259 for additional streetlighting in Old Village and $3,000 for a council on aging newsletter.

Additionally, $6,139 was earmarked for administering the grant.

The streetlights, on Mill between the railroad tracks and Liberty, probably won't be up until spring of 1988, said Paul Sincock, assistant to the city manager.

It may take that long for county officials to approve the city's spending plan and then follow a bidding procedure.

At that, only a couple of additional lights will be installed with the allocation, Sincock conceded.

Jabe named to Jackson post

By Julie Brown
staff writer

John Jabe, warden at the Scott Regional Correctional Facility in Northville Township, has been named warden at the State Prison of Southern Michigan at Jackson.

Scott is on Five Mile, just across the road from Plymouth Township.

Tomorrow will be Jabe's last day at the facility in Northville Township. He's scheduled to start at Jackson on May 3.

"I'll be going there prior to that," Jabe said Tuesday afternoon.

Jabe plans to meet with Dale Foltz, the prison's retiring warden, and with others at Jackson to guarantee a smooth transition.

"I look forward to working with the people at Jackson."

JABE HAD discussed the move to Jackson with the director of the Michigan Department of Corrections, Robert Brown Jr.

"I agreed to go in the middle of March." Jabe made his decision to leave Scott prior to the recent murder of a woman corrections officer at Jackson.

"It's unfortunate that it occurred," he said. "It hasn't changed my mind about going to Jackson. I will still go."

At Scott, deputy warden Jim Stegall will fill in for Jabe until a permanent successor is named.

Jackson's size and prison population make it a difficult facility to manage, Jabe said.

"There is no comparison (to Scott). There is none. Jackson's a very large, very difficult institution to manage."

Jackson has about 5,500 prisoners and some 1,800 staff members.

"That's a large institution. But I look forward to it. It is going to be a challenge."

Jabe plans to meet with staff members and prisoners at Jackson.

"There's probably a number of things I'm going to do. I'll be looking at all the staffing patterns at Jackson."

He'll try to determine if additional staffing is needed to guarantee safety at the prison. Mechanical aids, such as cameras, monitors or personal protection systems, also are options.

ADDITIONAL STAFFING isn't always the answer to prison security problems, Jabe said.

"A prison environment can be volatile, explosive, very dangerous."

The prison at Jackson receives a good deal of attention, both due to its size and its dangerous felons.

"It receives a lot of attention. I'm not sure it's the hot seat but it does receive a lot of attention."

Jabe has worked at Jackson two times previously, for a total of seven years. He began work there in 1969 as chief engineer, continuing in that position until 1973.

In 1973, Jabe left for a corrections position in Muskegon. He was back at Jackson from 1977 to 1980, working as the business manager.

In 1980, Jabe left to become warden at Kinross. He became warden at the Michigan Reformatory at Ionia in 1982.

"Then I kind of came to heaven," he said with a chuckle. He was appointed warden at Scott in July 1983.

Jabe's planning to move closer to the Jackson facility. He now lives in Northville Township.

"I like the area. It's one of the things that's made it difficult to make the decision."

Many area residents have volunteered their time to work with the prisoners and staff at Scott, he said.

"Plus they're just neat towns, both Plymouth and Northville."

Jabe's also going to miss the staff he worked with at Scott.

"There's an excellent staff here. A lot of enthusiasm, a lot of dedication to making a new facility work."

Scott began receiving prisoners in December 1986.

Bill tries to open nursing homes to all

By Wayne Peat
staff writer

A new bill proposed in the state legislature would open nursing home admissions to all patients, regardless of whether they need Medicaid assistance to pay their bills.

Supporters hail it as an anti-discriminatory measure that would put an end to "price gouging" nursing homes. Local nursing home operators, however, say the state would do better to supplement Medicaid payments, which, they claim, aren't in line with day-to-day operating costs.

"DISCRIMINATION by nursing homes against people eligible for Medicaid is rampant," said state Rep. Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, in proposing a bill that would force Michigan's 441 nursing homes to accept patients on a first-come, first-served basis.

Operators of nursing homes that don't accept Medicaid patients said their action was based upon economic necessity, not discrimination.

"The decision was made a long time ago because they (Medicaid) weren't reimbursing at the rate it costs us for nursing care," a spokeswoman for Plymouth Court, formerly the Hendry Convalescent Center, said.

EVEN HOMES that accept Medicaid patients worry the bill might unintentionally reduce the number of available nursing home beds, rather than expanding them as sought.

"The private-pay patients, in effect, pay for the Medicaid patients because the state doesn't make up the difference," Brian Suter, manager of the Canton Care Center, said.

"On one hand, the state's demanding that you take everybody, but on the other it isn't offering any money. What you could have is homes going out of business."

Canton Center's 91 beds are almost exclusively filled with Medicaid patients, Suter said.

Citizens for Better Care, a patient advocacy group, said it is common for nursing homes to reserve beds for affluent patients while shuffling Medicaid patients onto long waiting lists.

"The vast majority of homes do discriminate," said group spokeswoman Hollis Turnham.

Bullard's bill has lined up some heavyweight supporters.

"As far as I'm concerned they're just gougers and I'd like to nail them," said Attorney General Frank Kelley in pledging his support for the bill.

SOCIAL SERVICES director C. Patrick Babcock also supports Bullard's proposal.

But the practices Bullard blasted as discrimination were defended as business realities by an organization representing 270 Michigan nursing homes.

Judith Waara Hooyenga, president of the Health Care Association of Michigan, said it is a fact of life that private-pay patients are more attractive to nursing homes than Medicaid patients.

Nursing homes receive money from private-pay patients "the day they walk in the door," while Medicaid checks arrive three to six months after the care is given, she said.

About 65 percent of nursing home patients rely on Medicaid for payment, while the remainder use other benefits, insurance or their own money. Medicaid reimburses nursing homes at rates ranging from $35 to $70 a day per patient, while private-pay billing ranges from $45 to $300 daily, Turnham said.

Hooyenga said the average rate charged by nursing homes was $50 per day for a semi-private room.

She said some facilities reserve their last one or two beds for private-paying patients but it is more likely applicants experiencing long waits didn't fit available openings.

NURSING HOMES may pass over a male if the available bed is in a room with women. Or they may pass over a person who needs a lower level of care if the opening is on a floor that provides a higher care level, she said.

Only four states, Connecticut, New Jersey, Ohio and Washington, require nursing homes to maintain one waiting list for all applicants, according to Citizens for Better Care, which is funded by the federal government and the United Way.

A recent study by the Washington-based Institute of Medicine estimated 60 percent of the nation's nursing homes engaged in some form of preferential treatment. The advocacy group couldn't provide statistics for Michigan but Turnham said she believed the percentage was the same.

"It's very difficult to conduct a 'scientific survey' on this," Turnham said.

She said discrimination can come in the form of longer waiting lists, four-bed rooms instead of two-bed rooms, or special Medicaid wings or floors.

Eviction of patients who run low on money and are forced to apply for Medicaid apparently isn't uncommon, either.

Livonia Nursing Center administrator Roxanne Chetcuti said several of her home's 88 patients had transferred from other homes after going on Medicaid.

"WHAT I HEAR from most people, however, is that private homes won't take them, because they're Medicaid patients," she added. "The biggest complaint I hear from the homes is that Medicaid doesn't cover costs."

Another local nursing home official said the state was perfectly within its rights to regulate the quality of nursing home care, but the Bullard proposal went too far.

"Everybody deserves quality care but it's like choosing the neighborhood you live in," said Sally Levay, director of public relations for the Westland Convalescent Center. "Many private-pay patients have worked hard all their lives to be able to move into a nicer place. That's the American Way.

"As a rule, we don't accept Medicaid patients, but if they go on Medicaid, we don't ask them to leave," Levay added.

The Associated Press contributed to this story.

Woman is killed in 2-car collision

A 46-year-old Dearborn Heights woman was killed in a collision on Ford Road west of Canton Center in Canton Tuesday as she tried to avoid a motorist who entered her lane.

Susan Hebbeler was driving alone at 11:45 a.m. in a Ford Escort east on Ford Road.

She swerved to avoid an oncoming Mercury Capri driven by an 18-year-old Canton man, said Dave Boljesic, Canton Police public information officer.

The Mercury entered her lane while passing other westbound traffic.

Hebbeler's car was struck a quarter mile west of Canton Center Road by a Domino's Pizza semi-tractor trailer driven by a 27-year-old Ypsilanti man.

The truck driver was taken to Oakwood Hospital, but was not believed to be seriously injured, Boljesic said.

Hebbeler was pronounced dead at 12:39 p.m. at St. Joseph Hospital in Ypsilanti.

The Mercury was not struck but the driver stopped at the scene, Boljesic said.

"An investigation is continuing and there's a possibility of charges down the road," Boljesic said.

Traffic was diverted at the scene of the accident to allow officers to investigate.

Robbery, theft reported

Robbers sprayed a McDonald's restaurant manager in the face with an unknown irritant to steal the cash he was about to deposit Sunday at Wayne Bank on Michigan Avenue in Canton.

The 27-year-old manager of the McDonald's on Michigan Avenue at I-275 in Canton was sprayed in the eyes between 3:30 p.m. and 4 p.m. as he was about to deposit $1,000 in the bank.

"He pulled up to the locked deposit box and got out of the car to make the cash deposit," a police report said. "He approached the locked box on the east corner of the building."

He paused to get keys out of his pocket, when someone sprayed an unidentified irritant in his face. He said for a moment he felt as if he couldn't breathe. He said he was pushed to the ground and doesn't recall seeing anyone clearly.

The man walked across Michigan Avenue and sought help. Police do not have a suspect.

IN A SEPARATE incident, robbers broke into a unit on Nectar in the Honeytree Apartment complex, at I-275 and Joy Road.

The burglars got away with about $3,600 worth of jewelry and $20 of frozen food.

While the apartment dweller was at work March 30 robbers apparently used a screwdriver to break into the front door.

The victim's dog was locked in a cage at the time.

The stolen items included earrings, rings, chains, watches and bracelets. Police do not have a suspect.

Headlee blisters Blanchard plan

Richard H. Headlee accused Gov James J. Blanchard of provoking "class warfare" with his latest tax shift proposal.

Headlee, Blanchard's Republican rival in the 1982 election, said the Democratic governor's plan "pits banks and insurance companies against their fellow property tax payers."

Headlee is president and chief executive officer of Alexander Hamilton Life Insurance Co., Farmington Hills, which is among the 100 largest life insurance companies in America.

Blanchard's plan would offer property owners $100 per family of income tax relief and make up the $200 cost by increasing a half-dozen taxes on businesses, including levying a 2 percent tax on premiums of Michigan insurnce companies and on financial institutions.

"Adding a 2- or 3-percent premium tax on top of a $500 life insurance policy, or a homeowners' policy, or a health insurance policy will simply make it a $515 policy. Individuals pay insurance premiums, not insurance companies," Headlee said.

"Any scheme to additionally tax insurance policies issued by Michigan insurance companies would hit the Michigan families who could least afford it.

"The problem of increasingly high property taxes in Michigan stems from state government's refusal to abide by the Headlee Tax Limitation Amendment to the Michigan Constitution.

"Blanchard is now diverting more than $400 million a year away from education and local government programs to finance state spending increases.

"This unconsitutional shift forces up local property taxes as school districts struggle to replace lost state aid."

CITY OF PLYMOUTH
ORDINANCE NO. 87-4

An ordinance to amend Chapter 131 of the Plymouth City Code by re-titling and adding Sections 10.106 through 10.113, to provide for the regulation of the use of skateboards, roller skates, and street skates.

THE CITY OF PLYMOUTH ORDAINS:

Chapter 131 of Title X, Traffic entitled Bicyclists is hereby amended to add Sections 10.106 to Section 10.113, and to re-title as indicated.

Chapter 131 is hereby amended to read Bicyclists, Skateboards, Roller Skates and Street Skates.

Section 10-106. Definitions - For the purpose of this Ordinance certain items and words are hereby defined:

(a) "Roller Skates and Street Skates" mean small wheels near the toe and the heel of a shoe or frame that would attach to a shoe which are used for gliding on a hard surface such as a floor, sidewalk, etc.

(b) "Skateboards" refers to an item consisting of a short, oblong board with small wheels at each end, ridden on a hard surface such as a floor or sidewalk.

(c) "To roller skate" means to skate on any type of roller skates or street skates.

Section 10-107. ROLLER SKATES, STREET SKATES AND SKATEBOARDS REGULATED - No person shall roller skate or ride a skateboard within the City of Plymouth without complying with the terms of this Ordinance.

Section 10-108. SKATING OR RIDING ON SIDEWALKS - Whenever any person is roller skating or riding a skate board upon a sidewalk or other paved surface intended for use by pedestrians, such person shall yield the right-of-way to any pedestrian and shall not approach, overtake or pass such pedestrian in a reckless or careless manner, and shall not pass such pedestrian except in a single file if such person is roller skating or riding a skateboard with other such skaters or riders.

Section 10-109. SKATING OR RIDING ON CERTAIN DEVICES OR STRUCTURES PROHIBITED - It shall be unlawful to roller skate or ride on a skateboard on any bench, table, planter wall, retaining wall or other device or structure in the public business sector, which is not intended for pedestrian or vehicle traffic, or to jump or step on or off such devices or structures in the process of roller skating or riding a skateboard.

Section 10-110. SKATING OR RIDING PROHIBITED WHERE POSTED - The City Manager is hereby authorized to direct signs on any sidewalk prohibiting roller skating or the riding of skateboards thereon. It shall be unlawful to roller skate or ride a skateboard on any such posted sidewalk. No riding or skating is permitted on any lands leased or owned by the public in the Central Business District described as that area bounded by Harvey, Wing, Harding, Maple, Hamilton, Penniman and Church Streets.

Section 10-111. RECKLESS OR DANGEROUS SKATING OR RIDING PROHIBITED - No person shall roller skate or ride a skateboard on any sidewalk or other paved surface intended for pedestrians in a reckless or careless manner, or in a manner which is likely to result in injury or harm to any person or property.

Section 10-112. SKATING OR RIDING ON PRIVATE PROPERTY WITHOUT PERMISSION PROHIBITED - No person shall roller skate or ride a skateboard on any private property open to the general use of persons [illegible] on the property to allow such skating or riding. Failure of the owner or occupant to prohibit roller skating or riding a skateboard on his property shall not be evidence of permission. Upon the request of any owner or occupant, police officers shall order any person found skating or riding a skateboard on such property to leave the premises. Refusal to leave upon the request of any police officer shall be prima facie evidence that said person is in violation of this section.

Section 10-113. PENALTIES - The penalties for violating Section 10-110 shall be [illegible] the right to eject any person from the [illegible] or police station. The penalties for Sections 10-107 through 10-109 and 10-111 shall be [illegible] evidence any skates [illegible] [illegible] pending the prosecution of such violations, and/or a fine of not less than [illegible]

Section 10-114. [illegible] is an emergency ordinance and therefore shall [illegible]

[illegible] City Commission of the City of Plymouth, [illegible]

Party-line vote overrides highway veto

HOUSE

HIGHWAY BILL VETO — By a tally of 350 for and 73 against, the House achieved the two-thirds majority it needed to override President Reagan's veto of a bill (HR 2) authorizing nearly $88 billion over five years for mass transit, highway construction and other programs.

When the Senate also voted to override the veto (below), the bill (HR 2) became law.

Reagan had denounced the bill as pork barrel and budget-buster. But it had overwhelming support in part because it allows 65 mph driving on rural interstates and funds many politically popular road projects.

Members voting yes wanted to override the veto. Voting yes were Democrats Dennis Hertel, Harper Woods, William Ford, Taylor, and Sander Levin, Southfield.

Voting no Republicans Carl Pursell, Plymouth, and William Broomfield, Birmingham.

GOLDEN AGE PASSPORT — By a vote of 43 for and 375 against, the House rejected an amendment to begin a $10 onetime charge for the Golden Age passport that gives senior citizens access to certain national parks.

This means the passports will continue to be free of charge to people over 62. About 190,000 were issued last year.

The vote occurred as the House sent to the Senate a bill (HR 1320) funding National Park Service operations with Land and Water Conservation Fund revenues.

Sponsor James Hansen, R-Utah, said the Golden Age passport is used by "people who do control a lot of money."

Opponent Bruce Vento, D-Minn., said the passport users "can barely afford basic transportation, let alone a $30,000 or $40,000 Winnebago."

Members voting yes wanted seniors to begin paying a small fee for the Golden Age passport.

Pursell, Hertel, Ford, Levin and Broomfield all voted no.

COMMON MARKET — By a vote of 269 for and 147 against, the House adopted a resolution (H Res 121) commending the European Community on the 30th anniversary of its creation March 25, 1957 under the Treaty of Rome.

Supporter Tom Lantos, D-Calif., said the Common Market deserves praise even though relations between it and the United States are "not a love boat."

Opponent Fred Grandy, R-Iowa, said it was wrong to commend an organization "whose success has come at the expense of the American farmer."

Members voting yes wanted to commend the European Community. Voting yes: Hertel, Ford, Levin, Broomfield.

Voting no: Pursell.

SENATE

THE PRESIDENT'S VETO — By a tally of 67 for and 33 against, the Senate achieved the minimum number of votes necessary to override President Reagan's veto of the $87.5 billion, five-year highway and mass transit bill.

This followed a House override vote (above) and reversed a previous Renate vote that tentatively sustained the veto. Reagan saw his temporary victory vanish when Terry Sanford, D-N.C., changed his vote and opposed the veto.

Senators voting yes wanted the highway bill to become law. Michigan Democrats Carl Levin and Donald Riegle voted yes.

URBAN DEVELOPMENT GRANTS — By a vote of 23 for and 75 against, the Senate rejected an amendment to end the Urban Development Action Grant (UDAG) program, in which U.S. grants are used by localities as loans to lure private development.

The Reagan Administration each year targets UDAGs for elimination, arguing they usually end up as taxpayer gifts to well-off companies.

The vote occurred as the Senate debated and passed a $88.3 billion measure ($ 925) extending community development and housing programs through fiscal 1988-89. A companion bill is moving through the House.

Robert Dole, R-Kan., called the vote "a litmus test" on congressional resolve to cut the deficit.

Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., called said UDAGs have "a proven track record."

Senators voting yes wanted to end UDAGs.

Voting no: Levin, Riegle

NEW HOUSING PROGRAM — The Senate refused, 44 for and 54 against, to eliminate the proposed Nehemiah home ownership program from a bill extending housing and community development programs for two years (above).

Named after the Old Testament prophet who rebuilt Jerusalem's walls, Nehemiah would provide interest-free and possibly forgivable loans of up to $15,000 to help families of modest means buy their first house. Buyers remaining owner-occupants of the unit would not have to repay the loan, which would be second-mortgaged to Uncle Sam.

Amendment sponsor Don Nickles, R-Okla., said the program is misnamed because Nehemiah "was a pretty responsible individual."

Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said Nehemiah 'would help build healthy neighborhoods in our cities' most distressed areas."

Senators voting yes were opposed to the new housing program.

Voting no: Levin, Riegle.

Roll Call Report

Hearing will address housing for the disabled

Developmentally disabled people can share their concerns about housing options with state and local legislators during a public hearing Monday in Birmingham Unitarian Church, 651 N. Woodward.

The hearing will last from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

Representatives from the Detroit-Wayne County and Oakland County community mental health boards and state Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, are among those expected to attend.

The hearing is sponsored by the Awareness Communication Team for the Developmentally Disabled. For more information, call 832-0143.

Some candidates fail minimum test

NINE residents of Canton and Plymouth have submitted nominating petitions for election to the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

Unless one or more withdraws by the end of the day today, all will be on the ballot June 8 for two seats.

As the Observer Newspaper begins its considerations of the candidates and their qualifications, the very first element we examine is voting record at school elections.

We always have maintained that the minimum responsibility of any citizen is to vote in all elections — presidential, congressional, state, city or township, school district and community college.

Every time an election is held, whether general or special, a responsible citizen will be at the polls. Voter apathy is such a major, obvious problem in this country that we view not voting as an irresponsible act.

A RECORD OF voting in school elections is a minimum qualification for candidates who wish to serve on the school board.

While it may not be possible to vote in every election — personal crises sometimes arise — the ease of obtaining an absentee ballot makes it simple to vote in at least two-thirds of elections.

Voting is so easy that we view the practice as an indicator of commitment to community. Anyone who doesn't have time to vote certainly lacks time to serve on the school board. Anyone who cares so little about the community that he or she doesn't vote certainly does not care enough to deserve a seat of service on the board.

Over the years we have heard all the excuses on why people don't vote, and most just don't wash. Anyone who cannot vote in at least half the elections held has no business serving in public life. That, pure and simple, is our editorial platform.

OF THE NINE candidates, these three have admirable voting records:

Nancy Quinn has voted in 88 percent of the 26 school elections held since she first registered to vote in December 1971; Roland J. Thomas Jr. has voted in 88 percent of the 17 elections held since registering in February 1978; and Dean Swartzwelter has voted in 94 percent of the 17 elections held since he registered in August 1977.

We commend all three for the concern and commitment demonstrated by their steady turnout at the polls over the years.

One other candidate, William L. Brown, has a mixed record. Brown has voted in only 50 percent of the 24 school elections held since registering in August 1973, but has maintained an 80 percent voting record since casting his first school ballot in 1979. As a late bloomer, Brown has performed well.

THE OTHER five candidates have rather dismal records. One has voted in only three of the 13 elections held since she registered in October 1979, a mark of only 23 percent. Four candidates have not voted in a single election.

Of the four who have not voted, three are relative newcomers. One candidate registered four years ago and has missed all seven elections since then. The other three are recent residents who have had two or less opportunities to vote. Two missed both chances; one missed her only chance.

Not much can be said about the commitment of the three newcomers, but we do have to question their concern for the community at large. If they filed nominating petitions in early April to run for the board in June, why did they miss voting in the Feb. 17, 1987, election? That election was held one month before nominating petitions were circulated.

We can only conclude that a candidate is apathetic and unconcerned for the public welfare when he or she fails to vote in a school election at the same time considering running for the school board.

As things stand now, the Observer sees three viable candidates — possibly four.

The other five candidates ought to give serious thought to withdrawing today. Seeking public offices is not a joke or something to be done on a whim. Some who filed Monday simply do not possess even the minimum qualifications for public office.

We do not wish to embarrass people who show an interest in government. But voter apathy is so important that we do publish voting records of candidates. We will publish the voting performance of those who remain on the ballot after the withdrawal deadline. The level of voter apathy cannot be improved by electing apathetic citizens to office.

'Funnies' - no laughing matter

Catherine Tralnor

OVER THE past 20 years or so, some really strange people and movements have come and gone — Richard Nixon and his Watergate crew, Bert Lance and his banking friends, the Hippies, the Yippies — and now we have Yuppies, Boomers and Funnies.

Funnies?

That's what I call Fundamentalist Christians, at least those associated with the likes of Jim and Tammy Bakker, Oral Roberts, Pat Robertson. (And this is not some distant TV-land joke: Local Republicans recently helped "Smiling Pat" and his pals take control of the Michigan Republican Party state committee.)

But they are funny because so many of the things they decry — situation ethics readily comes to mind — they are up to their necks in.

FUNDAMENTALISTS believe in the Bible as the literal word of God. The Bible says there was a flood that inundated the world several thousand years ago, therefore there was a flood. OK, that's a relatively harmless concept.

Where we part company is in their use of situation ethics. For instance, one of the 10 Commandments says, "Thou shalt not kill." It doesn't say "Thou shalt not kill, except for Russkies, murderers and Sandinistas." It says, "Thou shalt not kill."

Of course, if you point this out to a Funny, he/she will say, "Yes, but the Bible also says 'An eye for an eye.'"

That's true. The Old Testament does say that. But didn't the New Testament, which tells of Christ's life and death on earth, basically supplant the Old Testament as the Bible for true believers? Wasn't that the whole point of Christ's life, to bring a message of love — "Love thy neighbor as thyself"?

BY USING this retort about the eye, Funnies also demonstrate a lack of knowledge about the intent of the eye-for-an-eye law.

Rather than part of a harsh system of punishment, it exemplified man's attempt to come up with a set of laws that did away with arbitrary and often unfair laws. If a man stole a loaf of bread, you didn't kill him. Instead he might have to pay a fine of 50 cents.

If Christ came to earth today, I think he would feel more at home with Mother Teresa than Oral Roberts. Christ would be a civil rights marcher, an anti-nuke demonstrator. He would support Save the Children and the World Wildlife Fund.

CHRIST WOULD tell Tammy to wipe the makeup off her face and use the money she would save to support a starving Ethiopian family. He would tell Jim to sell the posh mansions and move to a ghetto where he might be able to do some real Christian work.

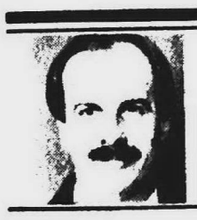
I don't think Christ would feel real comfortable in Oral Roberts' prayer tower, and I think he would tell Pat Robertson that sharp, slippery con men who try to ride the backs of real combat veterans to the White House will never make it past St. Peter.

And, yes, Christ would be an anti-abortionist because surely when Roe vs. Wade was handed down, "Jesus wept."

Most of all, I think Christ would tell the Funnies that they and their children cannot affect the world at all if they stay in their own little worlds, teaching their children their narrow little views. Surely true Christians should move as Christ did, into all walks of life, not preaching and moralizing but as living examples of real love.

Perhaps they could all apprentice with Mother Teresa to see how that is done.

Safeguarding lives: Solutions lie with us



Rich Perlberg

I ONCE DID an interview with a cancer specialist who declined my offer to blame cancer deaths on toxic-belching factories, PBBs and other such causes.

Concerns were there, to be sure, but he said my average reader was more apt to get cancer because of something he did to himself — by smoking, eating a poor diet, etc. — than because of a sinister substance.

Recently, the specialist's words were brought home to me in a number of ways, none of which had a thing to do with cancer.

First there were the bills, introduced by state Sens. Richard Fessler, R-West Bloomfield, and Douglas Cruce, R-Troy, that would raise the speed limit on rural highways to 65 miles per hour. The legislation is the easy part. The hard part will be to lower the speed limit to 55.

MONDAY, I DID a short survey while driving on a stretch of I-696 where the speed limit will stay 55 even after new legislation is passed. I was cruising between 60 and 65 and passed five cars. Twenty passed me. That's why they call it rush hour.

That evening, I was headed in the other direction at a smooth 65 when, too late, I saw a state trooper in my rear-view mirror. He was not interested in me. Nor did he care about the numerous cars passing me or pulling away. Perhaps in his [illegible] more important destination. Or perhaps the speed limit on expressways long ago passed 65 mph.

Also on Monday, I was making a purchase at a Farmington drugstore when the clerk refused to sell a bottle of cognac because the customer did not have identification. That's a statute you see far too seldom. In the Farmington area, police [illegible] and found about 75 percent of the stores tested willingly sold alcohol to youngsters.

EVEN WORSE, Farmington area officials discovered that some parents were renting hotel rooms for their children's drinking parties in order to slide past a law making parents criminally responsible if teenagers drink in a home.

What do these people use for brains?

Finally, I saw a wire service report that said that highway deaths and injuries for infants had decreased by 97 percent since a state law mandated safety restraints in cars.

Unfortunately, the safety record for children slightly older had not changed, presumably because parents were less insistent that they wear safety belts.

Of course, as an adult driver you are required by law to wear a seat belt but many of you don't. No surprise. The Legislature had to be embarrassed into passing the law. But because of it, some people are alive today because they bothered to buckle up.

So there you have it. Three of the biggest reasons that people die in car accidents are speed, drinking and failure to wear seat belts. And they are three things that could be solved in a minute if we wanted to.

Why don't we? I think that's a tougher question to answer than a cure for cancer.

U-M president's other dream

Tim Richard

LAST WEEK I took president Harold Shapiro to task for making promises that he couldn't deliver — aiming for a black enrollment at the University of Michigan of 12 percent. That was only half the story.

Under enormous pressure, Shapiro also agreed to try to raise black representation on the faculty to the same 12 percent, the proportion of blacks in the total state population.

If Shapiro succeeds, according to the Rev. Jesse Jackson, U-M will be richer for it. I won't quarrel with Jackson. But again it appears improbable Shapiro can succeed.

"IN 1976 Michigan had 2,200 faculty members, but only 63 blacks on the tenure track," Jackson was quoted as saying. "It's beneath that now."

My calculator says that amounts to 2.9 percent black faculty. Memorize that number.

Last week David Adamany, president of Wayne State University, shed light on the situtation when he answered a question from the Economic Club of Detroit. Of 31,400 doctorate degrees granted last year, he said, 909 went to blacks.

Let's see, 909 divided by 31,400 is (hm-m-m-m) 2.9 percent.

Furthermore, said Adamany, 52 percent of the doctorates granted to blacks were in the field of education, so they could become principals and superintendents.

That leaves 436 black doctorates — 1.3 percent of the total — available for recruitment as college teachers of history, literature, economics, biology, chemistry, physics, math, engineering, architecture, design, library science, law, medicine, business administration, pharmacy and dentistry, to mention only a few U-M programs.

"It's simply not able to be done," Adamany said.

JACKSON'S SOLUTION is that U-M should recruit nationally for scholars and faculty, the same way it recruits basketball players.

That would work if a) other major institutions weren't doing the same thing, b) there were no United Negro College Fund keeping black institutions alive and c) corporations weren't recruiting greater numbers of people with doctorates, particularly in math and the sciences.

The state of Michigan has a new budget item called the Martin Luther King Jr./Rosa Parks Fund that I just learned about.

With it, our 15 state universities are supposed to bring minority eighth graders to campus for a day to expose them to a college atmosphere. The colleges also are supposed to swap black faculty around so black students can see black "role models" and white students can be introduced to the notion that someone other than "one of us" can be a scholar.

Great idea — but another competitor for the tiny pool of black talent that poor Shapiro is supposed to recruit to U-M.

THE RECRUITING game is a dead end.

The reason there aren't more blacks in college and on faculties is that more than half of blacks today are born to single mothers, raised in a welfare environment and never exposed to the value that knowledge is important.

Shaprio has raised expectations he never can satisfy.

The U-M Board of Regents should bring its distinguished president back to reality. If it doesn't, Shapiro's impossible and costly promises ought to be an issue in the 1988 board of regents election.

Letters must be original copies and contain the signature and address of the sender. Limit letters to 300 words.

To the editor:

Regarding the article "Altar Girls" on March 26, I feel that the Catholic churches should respect the advisory of Cardinal Dearden in 1980.

If Good Counsel can conform with 3,000 families, I am sure St. John Neumann can conform to the policy with 2,500 families.

I am sure that in seven years they could find enough boys to fill the need.

If our priests don't follow the rules, what a poor example they are setting for us! After all, this was a directive from Rome.

Roberta Ryan,
St. John Neumann parish

To the editor:

The church's attitude of not allowing girls to assist priests during services is a prime example of the archaic philosophy which is causing the loss of priests and nuns. Gone are the days when people simply accepted the dictatorial edicts of parents, physicians, and the church.

For years it has been acknowledged that women are not "second class citizens" and can perform virtually any task on par with men. I, for one, am disappointed that the church hides its ancient attitude behind the facade of "tradition."

It appears only a reduction in financial support due to lack of attendance will force the church to realize change is a necessity.

David Baranski,
Plymouth

To the editor:

Being a Catholic I do not feel that having altar girls "goes against the law of the church." I feel that no Catholic belief or law is going to be broken by having females partake in the Liturgy.

If the former archbishop said it is a "question of discipline to liturgical usage," what about the changing of saying the Mass in Latin to English, and the priest's now offering Mass facing the parish family? I think these two examples show that times do change and the church can make some "cultural adaptions" without sacrificing any of our Catholic beliefs.

Mary Lou Tuckowski,
Canton,
member St. Thomas A' Becket Parish

To the editor:

All Catholic priests, indeed all Catholics, are called to obedience to those placed in ecclesiastical authority over them.

Since Cardinal Dearden's 1980 advisory to all archdiocesan priests to terminate the use of altar girls remains in effect, I think it is incumbent upon all priests in the archdiocese to follow both the letter and spirit of this directive and discontinue the practice immediately.

Moreover, the use of girl acolytes suggests a further step — women priests, and that would be a very sad error for the Catholic Church.

G. Masea,
Canton,

To the editor:

I read with interest your article concerning altar girls.

I am a Catholic because I believe in and practice my faith. The basis of my faith is obedience to the Holy Father. It really is that simple.

I love my faith and am offended by those who try to change it or cannot accept God's command. I imagine these to be the many people that also think the 10 Commandments are suggestions. It is far easier and, sadly, more popular to disobey, but "what goes around — comes around" or "as we sow so shall we reap."

Nancy Wilson,
Plymouth

To the editor:

As regards my opinion on this subject, it is quite apparent that my so-called "universal" Church must be dragged into the mainstream of relevance screaming all the way.

The issue here is not theological, dogmatic or anything other than insistence on the letter of procedural rule to the detriment of the Community of Christ. The male-dominated hierarchy of the Church seems blind to the need to accept women as equal human beings within the Community.

In many respects the current reactionary trend is much like that promoted by the religious leaders who condemned Christ. That is those individuals who felt form and rule took precedence over substance such as faith, hope, and the central meaning of God and the relationship with humanity.

G. Michael Loewe,
Canton

To the editor:

In response to your call for reaction to the article on altar girls, I would like to submit my ideas. I found it most difficult to express my thoughts within the 100-word maximum. As you can see, I was not successful.

For many this can be a very sensitive issue. For others, it is minute in the total faith-life experience. I have tried to compactly state my feelings. I ask that, if you choose to print them, nothing be edited out.

We gather as family to worship the Lord in a Sacred Meal — the Mass. As with any special family meal, there are jobs to be done. Here, we are serving the Lord by serving each other. For special Masses, we have invited the children to answer the Lord's call to serve one another by taking some of the jobs usually done by adults. Each child can experience the feeling of the specialness of the Lord's love. And all who ask can help do something.

Would the Lord, who calls us to serve, then say, "Because you are female, you may not now serve at My Table?" My answer is: No. Not EVER. Allowing children to serve the Lord at Mass should affirm the personhood of each individual — male and female — as a worthy child of God, in service to the community.

Thank you for the opportunity to express my opinion.

Marilyn A. Karras
Canton

To the editor:

I had been a mass helper at St. John Neumann Parish for about six years and I enjoyed every minute of it. Why shouldn't girls be allowed to be altar girls? Are the parishes afraid that girls will drop something and ruin the mass?

I loved being a mass helper because I felt important. The priest needed me to help with the mass. Many kids think mass is boring but if boys and girls would become involved in the mass, they would think differently. I am proud that I was a mass helper and I am proud that I attend a church that "bends the rules" a little to include girls as mass helpers.

This is the 1980s — more Catholic churches should realize this and include girls in the mass.

Elizabeth Yares,
Canton

Selecting a seat is half the fight

Fred DeLano

LET'S LIGHTEN the mood. . . .

Our recent O&E story by Brad Emons that the Golden Gloves boxing eliminations were in progress brought my decision that this is a propitious moment to pass on some advice to the gentlemen in the audience who may be thinking of escorting their ladies to the fights. It concerns where to sit. Better still, where not to sit.

Mind you, this is a true story, and the lesson learned by a young lady named Muriel Rumsey may have stood her in good stead in later years, as you will see several paragraphs hence.

Rumsey, who never seemed to be called by her first name, was a fellow student at the University of Michigan. She was from Romeo, but despite delightful physical attributes never reigned as queen of the Peach Festival. By now she must be about 70 and I hope has avoided life's pits.

At any rate, there came a day when, as a collegiate journalist, I had a pair of press tickets for the Golden Gloves fisticuffs in Ann Arbor and suggested she join me for this evening of novel entertainment. After all, these were Depression times and it was impossible to beat the price.

WE SAT in the first row, of course. Not in a neutral corner, but rather in a gladiator's corner, close enough to the ring to smell the action or even reach up and touch the canvas. Also, the spit box.

Now I must deviate. There may be some uninitiated readers who do not know the sport's between-round procedures. Foremost is to let each fighter take a swig from a water bottle, slosh it around in his mouth and then disgorge the fluid in the general direction of a spit box. Blood and teeth are secondary inclusions, and errant aim does not detract from his score.

You can guess what happened as our evening progressed. As a youthful reporter into whose mind the immortal words, "on assignment," were just being etched, I insisted we stay for the full card.

Although the occasion fell far short of inspiring any billing and cooing, the ultimate chapter did have a happy ending, inasmuch as the last time I saw Rumsey she said she was engaged to a [illegible] surgeon who then was in U-M med school.

Through half a century, my heartbreak has been assuaged by the assumption that she would rue on the wife of a rich doctor and that, rich or poor, she always remembered to take a seat far back from the scalpel if any blood was to be spattered.

NOW COMES Lee Sales, a reader in Farmington Hills, whose letter says he "thoroughly enjoyed your humorous article in a recent edition on President Reagan, memory, etc." He also attached an anonymous poem given him by an 83-year-old aunt.

Sales reports that the dear lady "still has all her marbles and her terrific sense of humor" in spite of severe pain stemming from an illness. He thinks others, too, who are on a memory kick may get a chuckle from these lines of verse, and there's no harm in seeing whether you agree:

"Just a line to say I'm living, that I'm not among the dead, though I'm getting more forgetful, and more mixed up in the head.

"For sometimes I can't remember, when I stand beside the stairs, if I must go up for something, or if I just came down from there.

"AND BEFORE the fridge so often, my poor mind is filled with doubt; have I just put food away, or have I come to get some out?

"And at times when it is dark out, with my nightcap on my head, I don't know if I'm retiring, or if I just got out of bed.

"So if it's my turn to write you, there's no need of getting sore; I might think that I have written, and don't want to be a bore.

Men, if you're about to turn 18, it's time to register with Selective Service at any U.S. Post Office.

It's quick. It's easy. And it's the law.

GET OUT OF THE DARK.

Baby deals: prohibit, regulate, ignore?

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Michigan lawmakers are in no rush to regulate surrogate parent contracts now that a New Jersey court has upheld their validity in the Baby M case.

"The Baby M case vividly points to the need for legislation regulating surrogate parenting arrangements," said Noel P. Keane, the Dearborn attorney who pioneered such arrangements, including Baby M's.

But three legislators typified three different moods in Lansing last week.

● Sen. Connie Binsfeld, R-Maple City, again will seek to declare surrogate contracts as null and void. "It's a nightmare," she said.

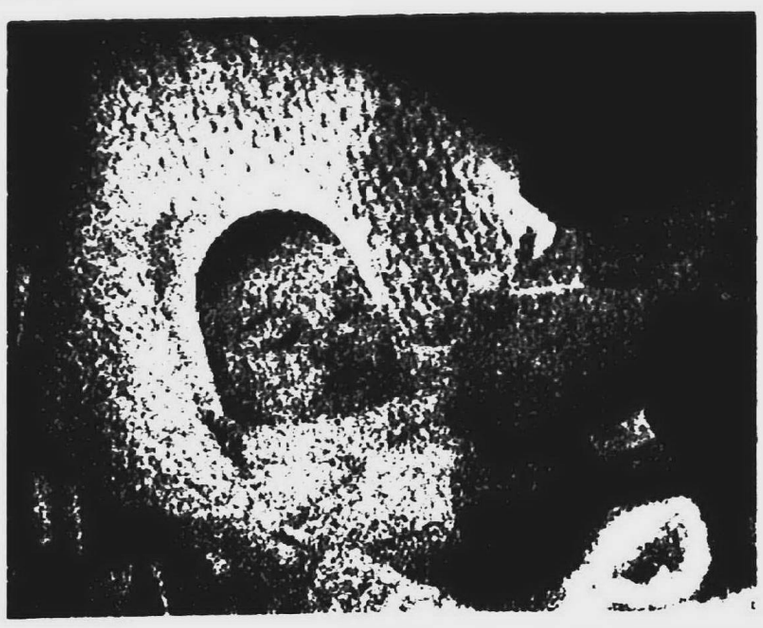
● Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, would prefer to legalize the contracts as "a way for couples to have a child who is the biological child of at least the father."

● Rep. Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, sees "no chance of a resonable regulatory approach" as long as "the Senate is controlled by ultra right-wing fanatics." The chairman of the House Judiciary Committee sees "my role as to prevent precipitous action."

IN THE BABY M case, a New Jersey judge ruled that a surrogate contract arranged by Keane was enforceable and that the mother gave up all her rights to the child.

William and Elizabeth Stern contracted with Mary Beth Whitehead to bear a child through artificial insemination by William's sperm. Whitehead sought to keep the baby. The Sterns won custody of the girl they named Melissa.

"This is the best result we could have hoped for," said Keane, whose statement was issued through a Detroit public relations agency.



'Public policy should assure the child of a stable home and guarantee the enforceability of the contract.'
— Sen. Robert Geake

"Although the ruling is not binding outside the state of New Jersey, it does set a precedent that will be cited in any future cases. It gives an infertile couple greater assurance that surrogate parenting agreements will be recognized and enforced," said Keane, who has handled more than 150 such agreements.

IRONICALLY, Sen. Binsfeld, a conservative Republican, and liberal feminists are on much the same ground when they condemn such contracts.

"If we were to legalize such contracts, I see a continuation of the problems," Binsfeld said in an interview. She concentrated on the emotional trauma of people involved in such cases:

● "The child would be a commodity. They would grow to realize they were sold. That's reprehensible."

● "Think of the siblings, who would see the woman pregnant and have to be told what happened. We've had children testify they want to see their brother or sister." (In the Baby M case, the Whiteheads had two children of their own.)

● "We've had pediatricians testify that knowledge of such cases makes a child insecure. The child wonders, 'If I'm not good, will mom and dad sell me?' "

● In a sensational Michigan case, a surrogate mother bore a child with a birth defect. The sperm donor, who by the time of the birth was going through a divorce, was able to prove the child wasn't his and "got off the hook."

● There is "anguish for the grandparents."

● "Husbands have forced their wives into situations with bad endings."

Binsfeld blamed state government for reducing the supply of adoptable babies by 1) funding Medicaid abortions, 2) failing to counsel single mothers on the availability of adoption and 3) setting up young mothers in their own apartments through welfare payments.

In 1983 the Senate passed a Binsfeld bill, but it died in House committee.

GEAKE, A child psychologist, said the state should legalize surrogate contracts. "Public policy should assure the child of a stable home and guarantee the enforceability of the contract," he said.

Geake would not require psychological testing of the surrogate mother or parents. "There should be no more state regulation of this than of parents who conceive children naturally," he said.

"Emotional stability is a transient thing. There is no guarantee that one who is stable now will be stable later. And a person under stress now may recover later."

Nor would he limit payments to the surrogate mother, as some have suggested. Standard fee to a surrogate mother is about $10,000.

"Unfortunately, under our welfare laws, unwed mothers are encouraged to keep their children," he said, echoing Binsfeld.

"State government could adopt a policy of encouraging children to be adopted. Our social workers are, at best, neutral (on advising adoption). Three is a natural tendency for a woman to keep it, and we subsidize keeping it through ADC (welfare)."

BULLARD RECALLED that a regulatory bill sponsored by Rep. Richard Fitzpatrick, D-Battle Creek, was reported out of his House Judiciary Committee several years ago, but was sent back to committee and thus killed.

He predicted a regulatory bill will be introduced "by somebody. No, not by me." He characterized the Republican-held Senate as "ultra right-wing fanatics. These folks are there until 1990, and apportionment is there until 1994."

He doubted a regulatory bill could be adopted, later adding, "It's not a hot current issue for us."

Bullard's own view: "I personally am not in favor of prohbiting surrogate parenting, though society may eventually conclude we want to prohibit it.

"There is an archaic need for males for genetic replication. But there are plenty of children all over the world ready for adoption.

"Some feminists groups are saying it is intrinsically an exploitation of lower-income women."

Asked if he wanted to limit fees paid to women, Bullard hesitated — then said no.

DON MERENGERE, a Bloomfield Hills man involved with an adoption group, said that if adoption became more common, "Noel Keane would be down to tens and twenties instead of hundreds of clients.

"The losers were Mary Beth Whitehead, the Sterns and Baby M. The winner was Noel Keane, who is marketing his services. They know where to find him.

"Whitehead has had her face plastered all over the country. The Sterns didn't get what they wanted — anonymity for their child."

The Plymouth Park Players have been hard at work rehearsing for "Anything Goes."

Joan Zaretti plays Reno Sweeny in the local production of "Anything Goes."

Showtime

Production offers fun for all

"Anything Goes" is anything but subdued.

The musical comedy, featuring the music of Cole Porter, has glitz and glamour to spare. Its action takes place on the U.S.S. America, a luxury liner sailing for England in the 1930s.

The Plymouth Park Players will present the show at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, April 9, 10 and 11, in the auditorium of Plymouth Salem High School.

General admission ticket price is $3.50. Ticket price for reserved seats is $5. For ticket information, call 451-6600 Ext. 243.

The local production features a cast of 47 students in grades nine through 12 at Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem high schools. Students began rehearsing for "Anything Goes" in February.

"It's a really jazzy show," said director Gloria Logan, who's been on the job at the school for 17 years.

THIS YEAR'S group of seniors at Centennial Educational Park is a special one, Logan said.

Plymouth-Canton students performed "Anything Goes" in 1975.

"That was a really, really special group of seniors that year too." This year's students saw the photographs from the earlier production and thought the show would be a fun one to do.

The plot of "Anything Goes" begins its series of twists and turns as the passengers board the U.S.S. America. Mrs. Harcourt, a society matron, and Hope, her daughter, are sailing to England for Hope's planned wedding to Sir Evelyn.

Hope, however, isn't in love with Sir Evelyn. She only has eyes for Billy Crocker, who has been searching New York unsuccessfully for Hope.

Billy Crocker brings his boss, Elisha J. Whitney, to board the ship and bumps into Hope. Billy decides to become a stowaway on the U.S.S. America in order to try to win Hope back.

The luxury liner's passenger list also includes Reno Sweeny, a former evangelist turned nightclub singer who is sailing with her six "Angels." Moonface Martin, a gangster and Public Enemy No. 13, is also on board with his sidekick, Bonnie.

The rehearsal schedule has been a busy one for the cast and crew at Centennial Educational Park. Some of the students are also working on the production of "Harry and Sylvia."

THE MUSICAL comedy "Anything Goes" is one theatergoers will enjoy, Logan said.

'It's a lot of fun. And Cole Porter is just wonderful. I just love him, I think he's great."

Logan isn't looking forward to saying goodbye to this year's group of seniors.

"It's hard every year. This'll be a very hard year."

The director is hoping that some of her former students from the 1975 "Anything Goes" will be able to attend this year's production. Linda Dwyer is among those who were in the earlier production.

"She's an actress in New York. She's going to try to come back for it." Cindy Carmody, who played Reno Sweeny in the 1975 production, lives in town.

"I hope she'll be coming back."

Seeing younger people in the show's roles must be unusual for the graduates, she said.

"I'm sure it brings back all kinds of good memories for them. I'm sure it feels odd too."

Graduates who return to see the Plymouth Park Players' productions the first year after graduation tell Logan it feels strange not to be backstage.

"So it's kind of a mixed thing."

Play's set for opening

LOGAN SETS high standards for the students and is pleasantly surprised at how well they do.

"And I've never had a group of kids disappoint me."

Logan's found that having students prepared for each production is the key to fighting stage fright. Once they're prepared, the students do just fine.

"Then you can't hold them back."

The productions at Centennial Educational Park attract a variety of students. Some are involved in sports; some work on the school newspaper or yearbook or participate in a variety of other activities. For some of the students, theater's their only school activity.

Working on productions brings together students who otherwise wouldn't have much contact, Logan said.

"And that's the neat part about it, I think. To me, that's very special. There's far too much isolation in the world anyway."

Production wins special honors

The Plymouth Park Players' production of "Harry and Sylvia" has been meeting with success across the state since last October.

Gloria Logan is the director for "Harry and Sylvia."

The local students competed in the Michigan Interscholastic Forensic Association's one-act play competition. The district competition was held at Southfield High School and the regional competition at Frankenmuth High School.

At each of those competitions, the Plymouth-Canton students received perfect scores from the judges. The students' success at those sites brought them an invitation to perform at the state competition, held March 20-21 at Oakland Community College.

At OCC, the Plymouth-Canton students competed with other top theater groups from around the state. Performing groups came from as far away as Marquette.

Show's cast, crew

There's no shortage of talent among the cast and crew of "Anything Goes."

The cast for the Plymouth Park Players' production of the musical comedy includes a number of local students.

The cast includes: Joan Zaretti as Reno Sweeny; Ed Bellaire as Billy Crocker; Ryan Slavin as Moonface Martin; Jenny Kincer as Hope Harcourt; Cathy Miller as Bonnie; Jeff Krolicki as Sir Evelyn; Dana Pressede as Mrs. Harcourt; Paul Croll as Elisha J. Whitney; Joe Lambert as Bishop Henry T. Dobson.

Others are: Scott Kimmins as the steward; Greg Fitzgerald as the reporter; Cory Cox as the cameraman; Charlie Packard as Ching; Jeff Wears as Ling; Jeff Hendry as the purser; Jeff Behringer as the captain.

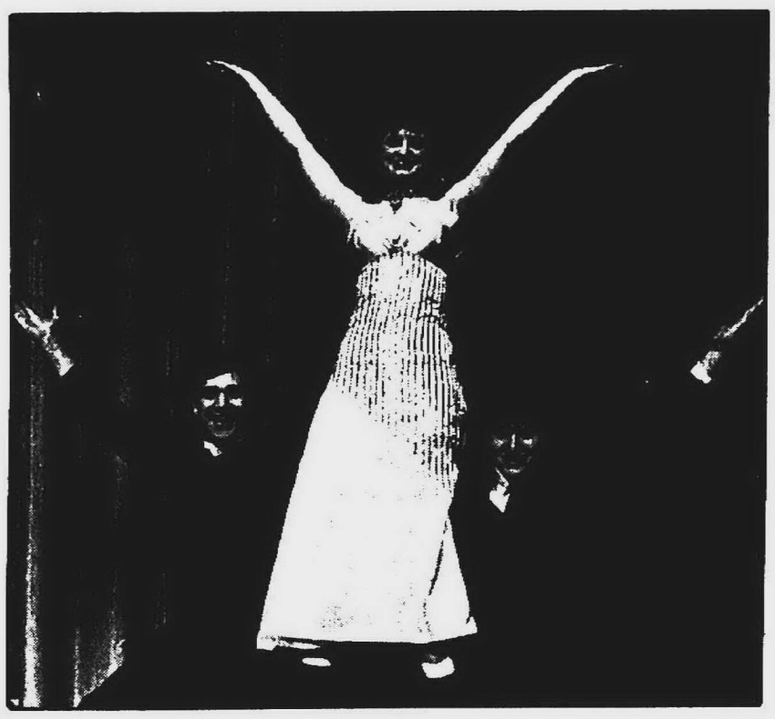
Those appearing as Reno Sweeny's "Angels" are Jyll Adams, Lysa Townley, Amy Zasadny, Janai Stepp, Cheryl Williams and Julie Zasadny. The sailors will be played by Jeff Hendry, George Markley, Minh Quach, Scott Kimmins, Kevin McKenna and Mike Talbot.

A NUMBER of students will appear as the passengers on board the U.S.S. America. Those students are: Leslie Boughton; Jeff Behringer; Ann Janette Cuper; Cory Cox; Toni Krochenberg; Phillip Derleder; Nancy Lee; Greg Fitzgerald; Meghan Lynch; Dave Kavalhuna; Jennifer McGrath; Mike Kavalhuna; Heidi Morey; Joe Lambert; Amy Pennington; Charlie Packard; Martina Pliteke; Loyd Young; Jennifer Ratcliffe; Jeff Wears; Sandy Scott; Tonya Thomas; Lisa Tilley; and Shannon Silye.

Gloria Logan is the director for "Anything Goes." Jeff Wilson is the vocal director and James Griffith is the orchestra conductor.

Other production staff members are: Hope Buchan and Robin Fielman, assistant director/stage managers; Karen Massey and Wendy Kulczycki, choreographers; Scott Kimmins and Ryan Slavin, construction masters; Charlie Packard, construction apprentice; Dana Pressede and Shannon Silye, painting masters; Meghan Lynch, painting apprentice; Kate Downes, Dana Pressede and Chris Foster, costume masters.

Others are: Cathy Miller and Julie Zasadny, property masters; Kim Hugheston, property apprentice; Nancy Lee, makeup master; Karen Massey, hair stylist; Amanda Rogers, house manager; Robin Fielman and Josh Worth, publicity masters; Charles Gregory, sound master; Glen Holland, lighting master; Jennifer McGrath and Jennifer Ratcliffe, costume apprentices.



Ryan Slavin (left) will play Moonface Martin and Ed Bellaire will appear as Billy Crocker. Joan Zaretti will play Reno Sweeny in the local production.

The Plymouth Inn
The Gracious Alternative
Someone you love is growing older and needs just a bit more support than he or she can get in their current living situation. A nursing home isn't the answer. Normal activities like eating and dressing aren't a problem. But you would be happier knowing someone was there to provide gentle encouragement and firm support when needed, in a non-institutional atmosphere.
The answer is The Plymouth Inn, a magnificent residence for seniors who want their independence but need some supervision as well. Consider some of the many advantages:
• Spacious mini-suites for those who desire extra comfort and privacy.
• Deluxe semi-private accommodations, richly appointed, with private lavatories and showers.
• Conveniently located near Plymouth, Northville, and Livonia, with easy access to major highways.
• Tranquil landscaped grounds and lovely common areas.
• Three delicious meals served in our central dining room by a friendly, attentive staff of professionals.
• Extensive, varied social programs and recreational opportunities.
• Game room, chapel, beauty parlor and lounges, all designed with the special needs of our residents in mind.
The Plymouth Inn welcomes your inspection visit. When you see what we have to offer we think you will agree that The Plymouth Inn is a very special place where your loved one can feel secure, yet independent. We invite you to call today for an appointment.

This train's a special one

By Julie Brown
staff writer

In Plymouth, trains occasionally are considered a source of aggravation.

The Artrain, however, doesn't have much in common with the garden-variety trains that lead to traffic jams and frazzled nerves.

Artrain, the only art museum on a train in the U.S., traveled to Plymouth last week for a visit Thursday through Sunday, April 2-5.

Artrain resident artist Jenny Mendes works on a candleholder.

"We have traveled extensively through Michigan and also to 27 other states," said Joan Krueger, Artrain's on-board manager.

The train's local visit was presented by the Plymouth Community Arts Council with the assistance of a number of local businesses and organizations. Those who organized the local visit were pleased with its success.

"I thought it was fabulous, just fabulous," said Peggy Blaisdell of Plymouth. Blaisdell and Pam Dietrich were co-chairwomen of the local Artrain visit.

The Artrain exhibit is changed from year to year. This year's exhibit, in honor of Michigan's sesquicentennial, features treasures from the Cranbrook Academy of Art in Bloomfield Hills.

THE CRANBROOK Academy of Art exhibit includes drawings, photos, fabrics, furniture, sculpture, ceramics and silver work. The train's first couple of cars include work done by the founding faculty at Cranbrook, Artrain's Krueger said.

"Many of them were members of the Saarinen family."

Also among the Artrain exhibit is work done by current faculty at Cranbrook. There's one section on "Design Michigan," a program coordinated by Cranbrook and sponsored by the Michigan Council for the Arts.

The train also includes staff artists and local guest artists hard at work on pottery, painting and other art projects.

The train's local visit began with a preview dinner reception Wednesday, April 1, at the Mayflower Meeting House in Plymouth. Artrain was open to the public Thursday through Sunday, April 2-5, at the Pearl Street tracks in Plymouth's Old Village.

Last week's visitors included a number of students from local schools. Some Scout groups also visited Artrain, as did a number of families and individuals.

Artrain's local stop attracted 4,394 visitors, Blaisdell said. Of that number, some 1,741 were schoolchildren, primarily in the upper elementary and middle school grades.

SENIOR CITIZEN groups also visited.

The turnout was impressive, Blaisdell said, particularly considering the visit came "in probably the worst weather since last winter."

The Artrain idea was conceived by the Michigan Council for the Arts. Its purpose is to bring art to local communities and their residents.

Those who visited the train last week in Plymouth may then choose to go to Cranbrook in Bloomfield Hills to see the collection there, Krueger said.

"I hope maybe they see something they never thought of before."

VISITING THE train allows people to find out "art is something everybody can enjoy. We hope that they discover it's not intimidating."

Visitors to the Artrain don't have to go into a big, imposing building to see the artwork, she said. The use of local volunteers at Artrain sites also makes a visit less intimidating "just because it's somebody you know."

Artrain began operating in 1971. Its last visit to Plymouth was in 1972.

"I wasn't here before, but it's a great place to be," Krueger said.

Blaisdell would like to see Artrain return to Plymouth, if not next year then the year after, "just because it was so widely accepted. I think the people would want it."

For many of the young visitors, this was their first exposure to an art collection, Blaisdell said. Visiting the train is often more convenient for local people than traveling to a more distant art museum.

SHE'S SURE that a number of those who visited Artrain will make the drive to Cranbrook in Bloomfield

Canton artist Celia Kilpatrick paints a mixed media work during the Artrain opening reception. She uses a wet brush to spatter paint. The work includes salt sprinkled on the wet paint; the salt absorbs the pigments.

Hills, not only to see the Academy of Art but also to visit the planetarium and the gardens.

"The inquiries were unbelievable."

At about 1 p.m. Monday, Blaisdell watched Artrain pull out of Plymouth. Its next stop is in Walled Lake.

Watching the train leave was a bit sad for Blaisdell.

"It's been a part of my life since Christmas. It was kind of sad."

BLAISDELL ENJOYED working with the Artrain staff and with the local volunteers.

"The Artrain people were absolutely wonderful. And they were very impressed with Plymouth and the people. Artrain cannot figure out why they have not been back."

The community support for the project was a big help, she said. That support included displays of student artwork in the windows of local businesses.

"They were all over town."

The project also was helped by the financial assistance of the Ford Motor Co.-Sheldon Road plant and by others, Blaisdell said.

"It was just a wonderful experience."

During Artrain's Plymouth stop, Blaisdell talked to visitors from Dexter, Livonia, Novi and other nearby communities.

"The whole town pulled together. Everyone worked wonderfully together."

The Plymouth Community Arts Council didn't make a dime from the Artrain visit, Blaisdell said. The project was done as a community service.

"I thought it was a great service that the arts council would do this. I would definitely help again."

The winners

Several local students were named winners in the recent citizenship essay contest of the Plymouth-Canton Civitan Club. The winners are (from left): Mark Madrilejo, second place, $150; Janet Turner, third place, $125; and Minal Hajratwala, first place, $200. The subject of the essay contest was censorship in the schools and its impact on students and society. Madrilejo is a freshman at Plymouth Salem High School. Turner is a Plymouth Salem junior and Hajratwala is a junior at Plymouth Canton High School.

in their first year of competition, were then one of two schools selected to represent Michigan secondary school theater at the Michigan Youth Arts Festival. The festival will be held at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo this May.

The "Harry and Sylvia" company had the additional honor of being the only production to have each cast member and the entire crew receive individual awards for superior acting/technical ability.

Cast members are Ryan Slavin, Dana Pressede, Shannon Silye and Karen Massey. The crew includes: Hope Buchan; Scott Kimmins; Cathy Miller; Joan Zaretti; Jeff Hendry; Meghan Lynch; and Kate Downes.

The production company has also been invited to perform at the annual conference of the International Thespian Dramatic Honor Society. The conference will be held at Ball State University in Muncie, Ind., this June.

Pinkerton-Zecman

Gerald and Janice Pinkerton of Plymouth announce the engagement of their daughter, Kimberlie Marie, to Kris McClurg Zecman of Plymouth, son of Kenneth Zecman and Carolyn Simons of Plymouth.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Plymouth Salem High School. She is a student at Schoolcraft College.

Her fiance is a graduate of Plymouth Salem High School. He attended Ferris State College and is enlisted in the U.S. Air Force.

An early June wedding is planned at the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth.

The reaction to AIDS could test our values

THE PUBLIC HEALTH service of the United States has recently announced that the next five years are going to bring a catastrophic medical condition in the United States that is termed the AIDS Epidemic.

In the course of the last six years, 30,000 cases have been reported with a total of 17,000 deaths. By 1991, there will be 270,000 cases of AIDS, 75,000 of which will have been diagnosed in that year, and 50,000 deaths. The Secretary of Health and Human Services has declared that the AIDS Epidemic may dwarf all the epidemics of history, including the Black Death, in terms of numbers who become sick and die.

The seriousness of this disease arises from the fact that a very large population has been infected with the virus that causes AIDS, a number that is estimated between 1 million and 2 million people. Everyone infected is potentially infectious, even if they are asymptomatic.

THE FUNDAMENTAL clinical fact that makes the control of AIDS so difficult is that the disease is spread in the most private and intimate of settings. Therefore, halting its spread requires an intrusion upon privacy in some form or another.

The question our society now faces is how will we respond to the control of this disease? The measures that are being proposed can have a transforming effect on the political and social institutions of the United States.

For more than two decades, the courts have followed a jurisprudence of privacy which is almost the same as a jurisprudence of sexuality. They have declared in essence that the state may not intervene in the sexual activity between heterosexual adults who have made a decision to have a relationship of intimacy.

It is also important to note that virtually all of the jurisprudence surrounding the legality of search and seizure in this country developed around cases related to drug abuse and efforts to control it.

THESE TWO fundamentals of liberal jurisprudence now must be viewed in relationship with the disease spread primarily by intravenous drug use and promiscuous sexual activity. How can we alter the course of this illness and limit its spread?

The only effective strategy we have for limiting the tragedy of 1991 and subsequent years is a dramatic and unprecedented alteration in the sexual behavior of millions of men and women in this country and an unprecedented change in the pattern of drug use in this country.

We shall be required to confront the deepest biological and psychological drives. Our society will be forced to ask for behavior modification of millions, not for the moment, but for their entire lives. Thus, women who are infected must be told that for their own sakes as well as for the welfare of any child they might wish to bring into the world, child bearing is not permissible.

Teenagers and adolescents beginning to experiment with sexuality need to be restrained. Homosexual men will have to alter the entire nature of their sexual culture. Indeed, if the AIDS epidemic is to be stopped, our society requires a fundamental revolution in sexuality.

One journal presented an extreme solution: "At this point, the only way to prevent the spread of this disease is by making it physically impossible. This implies strict quarantine as has always been the case in the past with serious, not necessarily lethal infectious disease that had been spreading. Quarantine implies accurate universal testing in turn."

In short, it is being proposed that between 1 million and 2 million individuals be subjected to lifelong incarceration, a medical version of preventative detention. Consider also that the call for mandatory screening would ultimately involve most of the entire U.S. population.

For our society to undertake these measures would, at the same time, shake the very foundations of our constitutional liberties and the moral values that we cherish. Other approaches are required to effectively address this grave concern now before us.

Miss Michigan United adds to pageant prizes

The Miss Michigan United Beauty Pageant has its "best ever" lineup of prizes, according to pageant executive director Cynthia Guenther.

"We're going to be giving scholarships for the first time, $5,000 to be split between the winner and the first three runners-up," Guenther said. "I was able to connect up with the Milton Shoong Foundation and that was important to me because so many of the contenders want to go on to school."

The winner also will have the use of a $26,000 car from Bill Brown Ford in Livonia, a Bahamas trip from Sabra Travel in Southfield, a gown from Couture Boutique in Farmington Hills, a Norweigan blue fox from Penney'S and a $1,600 scholarship from John Robert Powers. She also will get the chance to appear in an Elias Brothers commercial.

Darlene Plewa, Miss Michigan United for 1986, crown the new title holder Wednesday, June 24, at the Premier Center in Sterling Heights.

TO QUALIFY for the pageant a contestant must be 17 years of age before Dec. 31, 1987 and be no older than 29 on Dec. 31, 1987. She must never have been married and be a resident of Michigan, or officially registered at a Michigan school or university.

Contestants are judged on a personal interview, their figure, charm, poise, personality, intelligence and photogenic potential.

There are more prizes to be won through a drawing for the first 25 girls whose applications are received; a trip to Atlantic City, a portfolio of photographs to be used as a modeling composite; a video tape of the beauty pageant.

ENTRY FORMS are available by calling Miss Michigan United Beauty Pageant headquarters, 851-7468. Deadline for entry is Wednesday, June 10.

The first official preliminary judging will take place Monday, June 22, in Ginopolis, in Farmington Hills.

Take any head injury seriously

A. Jolayne Farrell

Dear Jo:

A few months ago, I had a fall and bumped my head. At first I thought I was all right, but after a while I got an upset stomach and a headache, so I went to see my doctor. Apparently, I had had a slight concussion.

I would appreciate it if you would discuss injuries to the head in your column as it would be helpful (for us older folks) to know what to look for after even a slight bump to the head. Thank you.

Mrs. G. A., Northern Reader

Dear Mrs. A.:

It is hard to know when to take even a minor bump on the head seriously, particularly when you are the one who has been injured. As a general rule, all older people should take any injury to the head seriously and seek medical help at once.

You were wise to be concerned about your upset stomach and headache.

Other signs that indicate that something serious may be going on after a bump on the head are: flushed, pale, or cool clammy skin; slurred speech or any change in speech pattern, neck or back pain, blurred vision or difference in pupil size; lethargy or sleepiness at unusual times; and lastly, feelings of uneasiness and restlessness.

A general rule to follow after any head injury is to trust your own instincts. If you just don't feel right, even though you can't pinpoint the exact symptoms, it is better to alert a doctor rather than ignore the problem.

Dear Jo:

Is there a quick test to measure if a workout is strenuous enough to improve fitness but not so hard to be unsafe. I am over 50 and plan to stay fit.

Mr. H., Victoria Reader

Dear Mr. H.:

According to Bernard Gutin, Columbia University Teachers College, a quick and easy test that measures if a workout is strenuous enough to improve your fitness, but not so hard that it is unsafe: "You should not have enough extra breath while exercising to sing but should have the wind to speak."

After trying this test, you may want a more detailed evaluation from the fitness experts in your community.

Men, if you're about to turn 18, it's time to register with Selective Service at any U.S. Post Office.

GET OUT OF THE DARK.

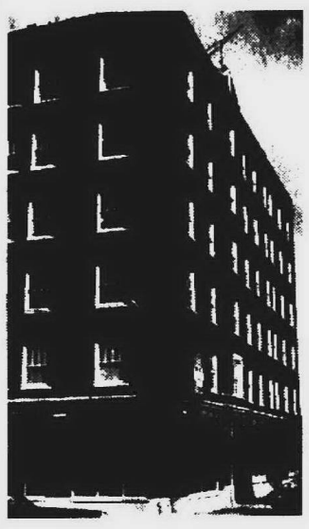
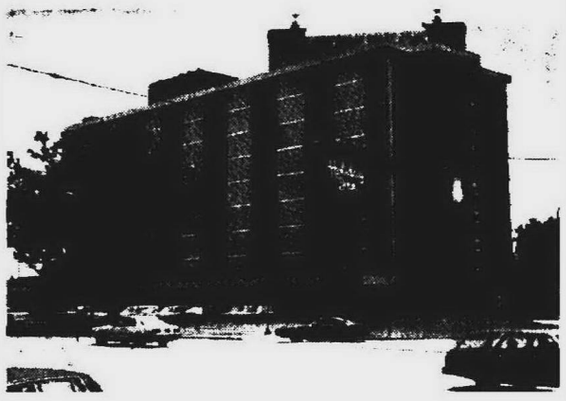
Commercial investments

Dietz Organization is a one-of-a-kind business whose low profile doesn't preclude its success in commercial real estate. Founded in late 1979 as a three-person company, Dietz had sales in 1986 of $200 million, and the company expecst to reach the quarter-billion-dollar level by 1988.



Bit of history

Jack Belkin of Southfield purchased this 1923 office building in Ypsilanti.

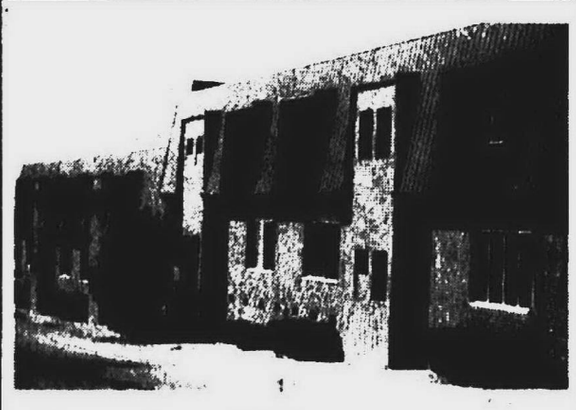


Life's a holiday

A Florida real estate fund purchased the Hazel Park Holiday Inn for $6.4 million. Seller of the property was M.F.P. Investments of Birmingham.

Campus flavor

Arbor Forest Apartments, a 55-unit building on the University of Michigan campus, was sold to an Ann Arbor man for $2 million.



Cool milllon

The Georgetown Office Building on Packard near Eisenhower Highway was sold for $1 million to Diro Enterprises of Birmingham. Dietz Organization served as broker for all buildings shown.

With its low profile you may not have heard of it, but the Dietz Organization is well known by investors in million-dollar income property.

"What we do is sell any existing property that is improved, meaning it has a building on it that is more than $1 million and that is being held for income purposes as an investment," said Paul Dietz, founder and sole owner of the Dietz Organization.

Founded in late 1979 as a three-person company, Dietz had sales in 1980 through 1982 of $15 million to $30 million. Sales in 1983-84 jumped to $70 million and were up to $125 million in 1985.

"Sales for 1986 were $200 million and we expect to reach the quarter-billion-dollar level by 1988," Dietz said.

The firm has grown to more than 30 employees and occupies 3,500 square feet of office space at 50 W. Big Beaver, Birmingham. Plans are under way to expand its office quarters to 5,000 square feet in April.

Dietz said the company's sales include apartment and office buildings, shopping centers and industrial buildings that are investor-owned.

"We are selling people's large income properties," he said. "We have a low profile because unlike a home, people don't put a for sale sign on their properties and frequently don't advertise."

DURING THE FOURTH quarter in 1986, the firm served as broker for the sale of 22 properties worth about $80 million.

The sales included the Holiday Inn in Hazel Park for $6.5 million, the 30100 Northwestern Highway Building in Farmington Hills for $4.5 million, Southfield Industrial Park in Southfield, Ind., for $22.5 million, Towers Medical Building in Grand Rapids for $6.2 million and Huron View Commercial Park in Ann Arbor for $2 million.

Other sales in the final quarter included Oakwood Villa Apartments in Royal Oak for $3 million, Cavalier Manor Apartments in East Detroit for $2.4 million, the Hyform Building in Livonia for $2.5 million and Connecticut Corners Office Building in Northville for $2.2 million.

Dietz said many of the properties sold during the final quarter were the result of sellers and buyers wanting certain tax benefits before the new tax law came into effect.

"Sellers were seeking capital gains benefits while buyers wanted to take advantage of existing depreciation schedules," Dietz said.

DIETZ SAYS he thinks commercial real estate will continue to sell at a brisk pace because of low interest rates and a surplus of available capital for investors to place in commercial property.

"Also, owners who have held their properties for many years are starting to recognize that the market is at a peak and that 1987 will be an opportune time to sell," he said.

The Dietz Organization is expanding its business beyond Michigan to include St. Louis, Indianapolis, Cincinnati and other major markets in the region, Dietz said.

Dietz said last year when Prudential Insurance Co. was looking for a broker to sell a $7 million project in Grand Rapids it interviewed other commercial brokerage firms along with Dietz and found there was no company that came within "one-third of what we are doing in the commercial brokerage area."

Dietz also did a survey on his own, calling other brokerage firms and asking how large the sales force that dealt strictly with income property brokerage was. The most any other company has was four compared to his sales staff of 17, he said.

BUT DIETZ NOTED that the other firms were also involved in other activities like land sales and leasing retail space.

"There are no other firms that are exclusively doing income property brokering," he said. "We have a profile that is fairly unusual.

Each sales person in the company has a specialty such as shopping centers or apartment buildings and works within a certain geographic territory. Each sales person is also part of a team, for instance a shopping center team, and information is shared with other members of the team.

"The sales staff ranges in age from 26 to 32 years and they are dealing with sophisticated properties worth $2 million or $3 million and fees in excess of $80,000 to $90,000," he said. "They become extremely knowledgeable extremely fast."

The firm is heavily computerized with a 7,000-property data base. Pictures are available of each property along with its vital statistics. About 5,000 to 6,000 mailers are put out each month listing available properties.

Dietz said Michigan and the Midwest are probably the best markets in the nation for investment properties.

"This area of the country underwent a severe recession several years ago, and thus had been more conservative then other regions in investing in new commercial properties," he said.

"The result is that there is less overbuilding here than in the East and Southwest, and that properties are maintaining a high value."

Other properties handled by Dietz in 1986 included Hampton Court Apartments in Westland for $5.9 million, Roxbury Apartments in Sterling Heights for $4.5 million, Innsbrook Apartments in Northville for $7.8 million. Civic Center Plaza in Livonia for 2.5 million, Square Lake Hills Apartments in Bloomfield Hills for $4.5 million, Village Professional Building in Bloomfield Hills for $5.9 million and Lincoln Park Industrial Building in Lincol Park for $5.7 million.

Out-of-state sales included Hickory Creek Apartments in Columbus, Ohio for $8 million and Sierra Vista Apartments and Whispering Lakes Apartments in St. Louis, Mo., for $29.2 million.

Dietz graduated from University of Detroit Law School in 1967 and had a two-year fellowship specializing in urban law at the University of Pennsylvania law school.

He was with The Hartman Group Realtors, one of Michigan's largest commercial Realtors from 1969 to 1975 where he was a minority stockholder and vice president in charge of investment properties.

He was a principal and stockholder from 1976 to 1979 in Atlantic Associates, which both brokered and syndicated income properties.

The U.S. now claims the title of the No. 1 debtor nation, having passed Mexico, Brazil and Poland. And we're adding $1 billion in debt every 2½ days. Sen. Don Riegle painted a bleak economic picture if the downward spiral continues, listing two possible outcomes. One is "enormous inflation," with interest rates reaching 20 percent. The other is a lower standard of living for all.

Riegle zeroes in on budget deficit

By Marie Chestney
staff writer

"No one knows what this means," Sen. Donald W. Riegle Jr. said Monday as he neared the end of his brief breakfast talk to members of the Livonia Chamber of Commerce. "Economics text books have not been written to deal with this. But it's a dangerous condition that the country has to struggle with."

Before breakfast, Riegle passed out graphs that dramatized the "dangerous" problem. One chart showed this country's $40 billion trade deficit in 1982 escalating to $170 billion by the end of 1986.

Another graph showed a financially healthy nation start its plunge into debt in 1984. That country, the U.S., ended up $250 billion in debt by the end of 1986.

"These are rapid and dramatic changes," Riegle said. "We're adding international debt at an extraordinary rate of speed. We're now the No. 1 debtor nation. We've passed Mexico, Brazil, Poland, as debtor nations. And we're adding $1 billion in debt every 2½ days. By 1990, we'll owe the rest of the world $1 trillion."

RIEGLE PAINTED a bleak economic picture if the downward spiral continues and gave two possible outcomes. One is "enormous inflation," with interest rates reaching 20 percent. The other is a lower standard of living for all. That includes both lower wages for the worker and lower profits for the business person.

"This is not acceptable," Riegle said. "People will not accept this."

The only way out, he said, is for all workers — from the student to the company president — to perform at levels "way beyond what they are use to doing."

"We have to work harder, smarter, using team work. Labor and management have to work together. We have to create a work ethic. We have to do this or these lines (on the graphs) won't turn around."

CITING THE Japanese high school dropout rate — 2 percent — Riegle urged parents to turn off the TV set and put books in their children's hands.

"The high school dropout rate in the U.S. is 29 percent," he said. "In Detroit, it's 50 percent."

At the government level, Riegel said the U.S. should put aside its "marshmallow" trade policy and use "more aggressive trade tactics."

To dramatize his point, he told the story of a U.S. businessman who wanted to open a Chrysler dealership in Tokyo.

"Sorry, it can't be done," was Japan's answer to the businessman, Riegle said.

On the brighter side, Riegle told of the $312 million soon to come to Michigan because of the recent passage of the federal highway bill.

"That was high drama," Riegle said. "I saw things I never saw before, like the freshman senator who voted three different ways, yes, no and maybe. But we need a top-notch highway system to remain competitive. We can't excel if people are sitting in traffic jams."

ONE OF THE BIGGEST influences on legislation in Washington these days, Riegle said, is the "state of the presidency." Little is being done on such important items as product liability because President Ronald Reagan is not exerting "strong leadership," he said.

Because of the Iran-contra controversy and Reagan's lame-duck presidency, Riegle said the administration has no "clear-cut set of operational goals."

"It takes the executive branch leading the charge," he said. "It breaks open debate. Presidents have a short list of objectives, but no one knows what's on Reagan's short list. In the absence of (a presidential) initiative, it's tough for Congress to be the engine to drive the government."

Run over deductions for income tax return finances and you

Sid Mittra

It is important that you use all the deductions allowed by the law. Here are the key deductions allowed by the Tax Reform Act, if you itemize.

Medical Expenses. You may deduct unreimbursed medical expenses for your family's medical care, but only if these expenses exceed 7.5 percent of your adjusted gross income.

Mortgage Interest. Interest on mortgage on your home and a second residence is deductible. However, the interest is deductible only to the extent the mortgage does not exceed the purchase price and the cost of improvements. The "excess" interest is deductible if the debt is incurred for payment of education or medical expenses.

Income and Property Taxes. You may deduct state and local income taxes from your federal taxable income. In addition, real property taxes on principal or second residence are deductible.

Interest Expense. While the Tax Reform Act disallows the deduction of personal interest expenses, because of the transition rule, in 1987 65 percent of non-home interest is deductible. You may also deduct investment interest from your net investment income.

Charitable Contributions. A charitable contribution is a gift to a qualified charity organization. The tax law allows charitable contributions to reduce taxable income and therefore the actual cost of the donation reduces your taxable income. Two important caveats: The cost of certain charitable travel is no linger deductible. Also, untaxed appreciation on charitable gifts is included in the calculation of Alternative Minimum Tax.

Casualty and Theft Losses. A reduction in your property's value because of damage or destruction is deductible. So is a theft due to unlawful removal of money or property. However, to be deductible you must file timely insurance claims on your casualty or theft losses.

Miscellaneous Itemized Deduction. The miscellaneous itemized deductions, including the employee business expenses, are subject to a floor of 2 percent of your adjusted gross income. However, the floor does not apply to certain items, such as impairment-related work expenses.

Minor Children. The net unearned income of a child older than 14 will be taxed at the child's tax bracket.

IRAs. You may contribute up to $2,000 ($4,000 for two working spouses) if you are not eligible to contribute to a qualified plan or your income is below the specified limit. Note, however, that regardless of your eligibility the law still allows your IRA fund to grow tax-deferred.

Home Office Expenditure. Home office expenses are still deductible provided certain conditions are met. However, under Tax Reform Act the amount of an otherwise allowable home office deductions is limited to your net income from the business.

Next week: Passive Income and Losses.

Educational Seminar: Main Topic "New Solutions to Old Financial Problems under the New Tax Law." The seminar, sponsored by the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and Coordinated Financial Planning Inc., will be held 7-9:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 14, at the Baldwin Public Library, 300 W. Merrill, Birmingham. For more information or reservations, call 643-8888.

Location is important to success

By Mary DiPaolo
special writer

As I was driving down one of the main roads the other day, I noticed a billboard promoting a local shopping center. What caught my attention was the message: "Location! Location! Location!"

How important is location? Is there a process to guide the entrepreneur in selecting the "right" location for the new or expanding operation? What information is required to successfully carry out this process? This week's column is the first in a series discussing tips for selecting a retail location.

The Small Business Administration confirms that location is a major factor influencing small business success or failure. Poor location ranks second as a primary cause of small business failures nationwide. Conversely, an excellent location can be a primary reason for success when the operation is otherwise unsatisfactory.

Before burning the telephone lines with calls to commercial real estate agents, the entrepreneur needs to understand the "levels" of decision making which affect choosing the best location. First, there are the decisions associated with selecting a market area (rural, small town, big city). Some retailers skip this step by limiting market area to their hometown or city. This type of decision can work for the retailer because it provides an opportunity to operate in familiar surroundings. But it can exclude more lucrative opportunities which exist in surrounding market area.

Information to assist in selecting a specific market area include population size and trends, trading-area size, purchasing power and its distribution and customer buying habits. This type of information is easily obtained through publications such as "Sales and Marketing Management" magazine.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION needs include state and local legislation governing local retail activity, the nature and level of competition, composition of the community at large (college town? tourists attraction? industrial area?), and community "image" (progressive vs. little or no market growth vs. market decline). This information would come from a number of sources to include city planning commissions, local real estate firms, and publications such as "Contacts Influential" (competitive data) available through any local library.

Finally, the entrepreneur's individual preferences regarding market area factors need to be considered. Does the small town environment sound appealing? How "big" a city is too big? Next week we'll discuss the second level of location decision making — selecting a location site — given the numerous alternatives.

Grand weekend accents mystery

By Ethel Simmons
staff writer

MURDER AT THE GRAND." It's all in fun and such a great getaway that many who have attended a murder-mystery weekend at the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island return again and again, every six months, to solve new crimes.

Among those who go back for more are Roger Willis of Southfield and his fiancee, Stacey Chrusciel of Dearborn Heights, who have attended three "Murder at the Grand" four-day fantasy trips.

'I'm rather a mystery buff," said Willis. "I've got rather a vast collection at home."

In this, he may be the exception, rather than the rule. Most of the guests who sign up for this special travel package with ATS Travel of Huntington Woods are not big mystery-book readers.

Area residents, reached by phone and asked about their participation in "Murder at the Grand," agreed the pleasure is a combination of dressing up in costume, acting out their parts, enjoying social activities in the re-created setting of the historical period where the crime occurs, and working on teams that put together the clues in an effort to solve the murder.

ALL THIS IS backdropped by the spectacular setting of the Grand Hotel — one of the nation's top resort hotels. Entertainer Eddie Jaye, who writes the scripts for these mystery weekends, proudly quotes Stephen Birnbaum, travel editor of CBS News, who has called this "the Cadillac of the murder mystery vacations."

'I've always wanted to play the role of the sleuth. The guy fell right at my feet.'

— Roger Willis weekend guest

The first weekend Roger Willis attended, the scene at the Grand Hotel was the 20-year reunion of Mackinac High School in the 1940s. He got hooked on these weekends.

"A guy made a toast and keeled over during the reception drinking a glass of poisoned champagne," he said, recalling an exciting moment from a weekend. "I've always wanted to play the role of the sleuth. The guy fell right at my feet."

Willis, creative director of an automotive account at Gail and Rice in Livonia, and Chrusciel, a programmer analyst, are getting married at the end of April. The next mystery weekend they attend will be their first as a married couple, said.

"We typically dress in period," Willis said.

Last October, the weekend's theme was the movie premiere of "Gone With the Wind" in Atlanta in 1939. Activities included an ante-bellum ball prior to the Civil War, with him dressed as a riverboat gambler and her in a hoop-skirted gown.

Usually, they rent costumes, but for the weekend last June, set in the Roaring '20s, "She made three flapper outfits, from scratch."

OF THE THREE weekends they have attended, their team solved the mystery for the first time on the weekend last fall.

"Murder at the Grand" is planned and executed with great polish, down to the last detail.

"It would not be possible without Eddie Jaye and the people at ATS Travel. They are absolutely fantastic," Willis said.

The next mystery weekend coming up will be Saturday-Tuesday, May 23-26.

"The event is set at the opening of the Grand Hotel in 1887," said writer Jaye. "All the guests will play agents of the Pinkerton Detective Agency, which is still the No. 1 private detective agency in the world."

The archivist and vice president of Pinkerton will attend and play Chief Detective. Jaye, who is in costume to emcee each weekend, said he will probably dress as a western marshal.

Wayne and Diane Bates of Farmington Hills went on their first "Murder at the Grand" 1920s weekend last May.

"I changed four or five times a day," said Diane Bates.

DAN DEAN/staff photographer

Carol and Jac Purdon illustrate the kind of dramatic murders that may take place in "Murder at the Grand," coming up in May at the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island. They are part of the cast of actors who will be involved in the action during the murder-mystery weekend. Cranbrook House in Bloomfield Hills was used as a backdrop for this photo.

Her husband is from Tennessee, where he has an automotive manufacturing plant. The sales office is in Southfield.

SHE SAID all their costumes were made in Tennessee, by a company that does costumes for Opryland and the entertainers.

"I described the costumes over the phone and had them made," she said.

They had costumes for each event on the weekend.

"Everywhere we went people took pictures of us," she said. "They thought we owned a costume shop."

Bates describes herself as 4 foot 11 with platinum hair.

"I wore wigs and hats to match, and old-time jewelry."

She said her husband is "a cross between Kenny Rogers and Grizzly Adams." He's 6 foot 2½. One evening, "He wore pink and purple stripes, dressed as a zoot suiter. All the men had tuxes on. He was the hit of the party."

The couple was going to attend the "Murder at the Grand" in May but had to bow out, due to another family activity.

"We go to the Grand Hotel lots anyhow, four or five times a summer," she said. "We try different suites — the Dolly Madison, the Presidential. We always go first class."

David and Ellie Kalt of Franklin are real enthusiasts when it comes to the murder-mystery weekends.

St. Bede's needs more zing with 'H.M.S. Pinafore'

Performances of Gilbert and Sullivan's operetta, "H.M.S. Pinafore," continue at 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday at Mercy College in Detroit. For ticket information call 557-6527 or 557-7781.

Arthur Sullivan's music and W.S. Gilbert's wit are so powerful that "H.M.S. Pinafore" is an operetta that pretty much carries itself, despite how it is produced.

That is the case in the St. Bede Players production at McAuley Auditorium at Mercy College. The music carries the weak production.

There is some excellent acting and some good singing. Both are not enough to make up for an unrehearsed chorus, only strong for the finale "Oh Joy, Oh Rapture Unforeseen."

There is well-thought-out choreography that is sloppily executed, and an orchestra that does not keep the tempos of Conductor Joseph Gamache, often playing out of tune.

St. Bede Players has talent represented in the show and the makings of a lively production. But the timing is slowed by a segmented approach. The elements for success are present, but the concepts of Mimi Malfroid's stage direction are not blended into a fast-moving production.

Mary Jane Doerr

THE NONSENSICAL plot revolves around the satire on the British navy of 1878 when the musical first came out. Ralph is a sailor, in love with his captain's daughter. The captain is the subject of Buttercup's affections. Both couples are unable to marry because of social position.

George Brown's tenor voice is lovely, lyrical and perfectly suited for the part of Ralph.

Thomas Murphy, as the captain who draws the line between rank and lowliness only to find himself on the wrong side, pretty much carries the show with his strong and humorous acting.

All those antics are balanced by George Bloomfield as Sir Joseph Porter. Bloomfield recently performed the role with the Michigan Lyric Opera, but his performance in this show is even stronger.

Ann Arbor Summer Festival announces events for 1987

New York's Circle Repertory Company, with its acclaimed production of Sam Sheppard's "Fool for Love," will headline the Ann Arbor Summer Festival, which runs from from Saturday, June 20, to Saturday, July 18.

Other theatrical events at the fourth annual celebration of the performing arts include the Colla Family Marionettes from Milan, Italy, in "Excelsior," and Michael Morschen and Bob Berky in "The Alchemedians," a vaudeville evening.

Ann Arbor Civic Theatre's annual festival offering will be "A Romantic Comedy" by Bernard Slade. The Brecht Company will make its festival debut with "Baal," Bertolt Brecht's first major work.

Ann Arbor's Peninsula Productions will present "Nightingale," Charles Strouse's musical for children and adults. Ann Arbor's Wild Swan Theatre will run its children's production of "Hawk I'm Your Brother," in English and sign language.

The silent film extravaganza at Ann Arbor's Michigan Theatre will feature "The Three Musketeers" starring Douglas Fairbanks. The Ann Arbor Chamber Orchestra will accompany the film and a live on-stage vaudevile prologue.

MARCEL MARCEAU will return to the festival for the fourth consecutive year, performing as his alter ego, Bip. Opening night attraction will be jazz star Dave Brubeck and his quartet. The MIDI (Musical Instrument Digital Interface) Music Festival will combine computer-programmed material with live performances. Guest artists will be Bob James, Roger Powell, David Borden, David Gregory and others.

Other music presentations include the World Saxophone Quartet, first festival offering by Eclipse Jazz. The Ark, also with its first festival presentation, will spotlight folk artist Don ("American Pie") McLean.

Eight organ recitals will feature the complete works of Buxtehude, performed by Marilyn Mason and other guest artists, at Ann Arbor's First Congregational Church. Pianists Louis Nagel and Michael Gurt will give a pair of solo recitals at the festival.

Dance events include the Momix company, under the direction of choreographer Moses Pendleton, a co-founder of the Pilobolus Dance Theatre. The Copasetics, known as the grand old gentlemen of tap, will be another dance attraction. The Harbinger Dance Company, Detroit's leading contemporary dance group, makes it Ann Arbor debut at the festival.

The Detroit Chamber Winds and Ann Arbor Dance Works combine talents for a new production of Stravinsky's "L'Histoire du Soldat." Completing the dance schedule will be a joint performance by two Ann Arbor dance groups — the J. Parker Copley Dance Company and Whitley Setrakian's People Dancing.

Tickets to festival performances go on sale Monday, May 11, at all Ticket World outlets. For phone orders, call 763-TKTS. For more information, or to request a free brochure, write to the Ann Arbor Summer Festival, P.O. Box 4070, Ann Arbor 48106 or phone 747-2278.

Weekend at Grand Hotel accents murder mystery

"We've been to all of them," she said. "We've already signed up for the one at the end of May."

SHE WORKS AS administrative assistant to a vice president at EDS in Southfield, and he's a body shop manager of a Ford dealership.

"It's just a good time. You meet new people," she said. "There are a lot of repeat people, and we can ask if we want to be in the same group."

Kalt said her mother is a seamstress and makes all their costumes. For the "Gone With the Wind" weekend, Ellie Kalt wore a hoop-skirted dress and her husband wore tails. For the upcoming weekend, she will wear an old-fashioned dress and he will wear tails again.

Solving the mystery is challenging.

"The last murders (there are two or three murders at each weekend) were the first time we guessed right," she said.

Mary Leamy of Westland and her fiance, Dr. Mark Wegzyn of Garden City, attended both mystery weekends last year. Guests are given the option of being actors in the script,

'This is the ideal getaway weekend. You're transformed to the different time period.'

— Mary Leamy
Westland resident

'He wore pink and purple stripes, dressed as a zoot suiter. All the men had tuxes on. He was the hit of the party.'

— Diane Bates
Farmington Hills resident and for "Gone With the Wind" they were part of the story.

"He played an inspector, and I played a movie queen, of all things," she said.

Leamy, who is in charge of a computer system for St. Raphael's Parish in Graden City, and Wegzyn, a dentist practicing in Garden City, will be married this summer.

"THIS IS THE ideal getaway weekend," she said. "You're transformed to the different time period. You don't have time to recall things back home. You're finding bodies, and trying to figure out the clues. It's a real neat experience.

"You have to think on your feet," she said, of playing a character in the script. "I had to study quite a bit. You go to the library about a month ahead and read ads, from 1936-39, and look at covers from different magazines."

They're planning to return to "Murder at the Grand" in May and the one coming up in October, again set in the 1920s.

She's starting to look for costumes, usually rented from Cinderella's Attic in Dearborn, which has period clothing, or the Hollywood Costume Shop, also in Dearborn. She gets ideas from fashion books in the library.

USUALLY, ATS Travel buys out the entire Grand Hotel for the mystery weekend, filling 240 rooms each time. But this year, because it's the hotel's 100th anniversary, only 160 rooms will be available for the May weekend.

Eddie Jaye said the October weekend will take place during a Roaring '20s party at Pickfair Mansion.

"I write them. They're formulized. I know how much information I have to feed them," he said. He produces and directs the mystery weekend, using professional actors from the Detroit area.

Each team must make a three-minute presentation, in song, poetry or verse, explaining how they determined the murdered. Winning team members each get a framed certificate that reads, "I solved the 'Murder at the Grand.'" Another award is given for the cleverest skit.

Jaye (Ed Bliznick) has a master's degree in mass communication from Wayne State University in Detroit. He also performs as a standup comic and ventriloquist, with Carlton Crow, specializing in corporate shows.

One of the most amusing episodes of "Murder at the Grand" occurred when one team of players admitted they were stumped, then identified themselves. In real life, they were a 20-year homicide detective from the Warren Police department and his group, all police officers.

St. Bede's operetta needs zing

As Josephine, Jacqueline Turri Bacus has a beautiful middle voice with an exquisite top when the part calls for it. Her acting is superior.

James S. Masalskis gives the role of Dick Deadeye, the villain who foils Josephine and Ralph's plans, a more human interpretation. Certainly this production's unusual ending is sympathetic to the character.

Ruthann Logsdon Zaroff as Little Buttercup uses a chest voice for the mezzo-soprano role. Her upper notes hint at another voice quality.

THE BEST singing, besides that of Bacus, comes in the trio of Brown, Donald Oakley and Richard F. Schultz, when they perform "A British Tar." Their perfect blend is one of the show's highlights. As Boatswain, Donald Oakley sings the operetta's most famous refrain, "He is an Englishman," with inflection.

● BENEFIT CONCERT
"Love Song II — A Concert from the Heart" will be presented at 7 p.m. Sunday, April 12, at Groves High School in Birmingham. The talent line-up includes Phil Marcus Kaser, Barbara Bredius, Ron Coden, Charlie Latimer, Sheri Nichols, Jonathon Round and other entertainers. The concert, a whole new show, is a benefit performance for the Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association. Tickets are $12.50 each, $15 at the door. For more information call 557-8277.

● JAZZ ENSEMBLE
Bill Hlad of Redford Township is one of the 20 members of the Henry Ford Community College Jazz Ensemble, which will set sail this month for a Caribbean tour, performing on the S.S. Emerald Seas and in Parliament Square in Nassau. The group's reputation has earned it an invitation to perform at the Montreux Jazz Festival in Switzerland. The ensemble also is the only one from a community college throughout the country asked to compete in the first annual National Downbeat Magazine Jazz Competition in Chicago this month.

The musical group Sinnamon plays Tuesdays-Saturdays at the Plymouth Hilton.

● ONE-MAN BAND
Albert Glasier (formerly of Procol Harum) and his "Amazing One-Man Band" is appearing from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Thursdays-Sundays through Saturday, May 30, at Benny's Pizza Pub in Westland.

● CHILDREN'S PLAY
Garden City Parks and Recreation's Ice Cream Theater will present "The Three Little Pigs" by the Ann Arbor Goodtime Players on Tuesday, April 14, at the Maplewood Community Center. The play is geared to children ages 3-12. Tickets at $3.50 are on sale at the center. For more information call 522-0845.

● OPERA COMPANY
Barab's opera "Little Red Riding Hood" will be staged by the Piccolo Opera Company at noon and 2:30 p.m. Saturdays, April 4, 11 and 18, at Westland Mall. The opera company is celebrating its Silver Anniversary this season.

● RADIO DRAMA
Several area residents are in the cast of "Dreamliner: Titanic," an original radiodrama to be broadcast at 1 p.m. Wednesday, April 15, and 3 p.m. Sunday, April 19, on WDET (FM 101). The story is based on the 1912 sinking of the Titanic. Anthony Hamilton of Farmington Hills plays the Captain and Lindy Brixton of Southfield is "Old" Heather. Also in the cast are Pat Judd and Randy Judd, both of Birmingham.

Michigan travel business begins at home

one-of-a-kind traveler

Iris Jones
contributing travel editor

It is amazing how much good travel information you can collect by just hanging out for a day or two with people in the tourism industry. That's what I did last week at the Fourth Annual Governor's Conference on Tourism, which unveiled the recommendations of the state's Task Force on the Future of Tourism.

The conference was held in three locations: at the Westin-Renaissance, which celebrates the tenth anniversary of the Renaissance Center this year; at Cobo Hall, which is in the middle of a $135 million expansion; and at Henry Ford Museum, which is undergoing the most dramatic overhaul of its exhibit space since the museum began more than half a century ago.

The two most important words in a conference like this are "marketing strategy." The state is working to increase its share of money spent by domestic and foreign travelers. Michigan cities and major attractions are working for their share of the state tourism pie. And hundreds of entrepreneurs, people in the hotel, restaurant and attractions business, are fighting to be seen and heard by travelers to Michigan.

The most important conclusion you reach after listening for a few days is that you, the Michigan traveler, are the customer most in demand. As Gov. James J. Blanchard said at the windup luncheon:

"THE PEOPLE of Michigan and our closest neighbors are our best customers. Forty three percent of the travel in Michigan is by Michigan travelers. Business starts at home."

Don Adams, director of public affairs for Henry Ford Museum/ Greenfield Village, is looking for more of those Michigan travelers. "Less than 25 percent of our visitors are from Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties. We are perceived by local people to be an unchanging product."

Some of you may still think that tourism money is just play money. Think again. Tourism is among the top three industries in almost every state and in many countries of the world. It is either second or third, after the auto industry, in Michigan; it depends whether you talk to the people from the agricultural or the tourism offices in Lansing.

Tourism creates an impact in Michigan that adds up to more than $13 billion. It returns $600 million in tax revenue to state coffers; that's $150 per taxpayer. The travel industry sustains 300,000 jobs in Michigan. It's big bucks.

The Governor's Task Force on the Future of Tourism was asked to create a plan to increase those figures, so that Michigan would have a $200 billion tourism industry and 450,000 travel-related workers within five years.

THEY RECOMMENDED that the state create an Interagency Coordinating Council on Tourism, chaired by the state travel director, and that the director be upgraded to a deputy director within the Department of Commerce, so that all state travel-related programs are coordinated under the Travel Bureau instead of being scattered all over Lansing.

They also recommended that we upgrade the infrastructure of air service, highways, trails, marinas, etc., within the state; spend more money promoting travel to Michigan and nearby states; increase our travel research and increase the state promotion budget to $20 million.

I can attest that Michigan has really been getting its tourism act together since John Savich became became travel director in 1984. Al Sandner, communications director of the Michigan Travel Bureau, tells me that the bureau saw a real network of Michigan tourism businesses created while the state was organizing the annual convention of the Society of American Travel Writers in 1985, and that the network is getting stronger.

THAT NETWORK was busy during the Conference on Tourism last week. Several hundred conferees attended sessions by the departments of Agriculture, Commerce, Natural Resources and Transportation, where travel-related decisions are made every day.

I went to the Department of Transportation session and learned all kinds of things about air service, welcome centers, etc., within our state. If you have traveled outstate since deregulation, for example, you know that jet service has been lost to 10 Michigan communities and that it can cost you almost $600 to fly to the Upper Peninsula and back during prime rate times.

The Governor's Air Service Task Force recommends that state and local governments work with air carriers to create strategies to improve that service.

I also talked to all kinds of people from around the state who are trying to make it in the travel industry. Michigan has a lot of Mom and Pop travel businesses that need help communicating with the traveling public.

One shy young woman promised to send me information about a new animal ranch opening to the public this summer near Gaylord. I met H. James St. Arnold, the tourism/recreation director of the Keweenaw Bay Indian Community, who is trying to promote the Ojibwa Casino up there in Baraga, Mich.

HE WAS attending a workshop given by Circle Michigan, an organization of Michigan travel businesses organized with the sole purpose of bringing more motorcoach tours to its members.

Other workshops were led by the Michigan Regional Tourist Associations, Michigan Boating Industries Association, Michigan Association of Recreational Vehicles and Campgrounds and other groups that are a wonderful source of travel information.

While wandering through a travel marketplace in Cobo Hall, I picked up pamphlets from other sources: the Commuter Transportation Co., which runs buses and limos from hotels to the airport; the Michigan Horse Council, which published a Campground and Trails Directory (P.O. Box 12074, Lansing 48901); the Sesqui Train '87, which invites you to drive a wagon, ride a horse, volunteer time or sponsor part of the June 15027 wagon train (contact the Office of Michigan Sesquicentennial, 300 S. Washington, Suite 201, Lansing 48933).

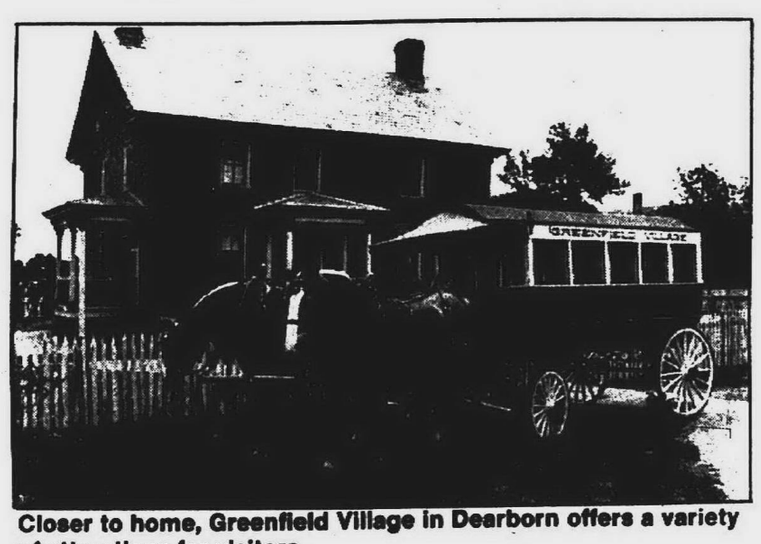
Michigan boasts dozens of bed and breakfast places, such as the Riverside Inn in Leland.

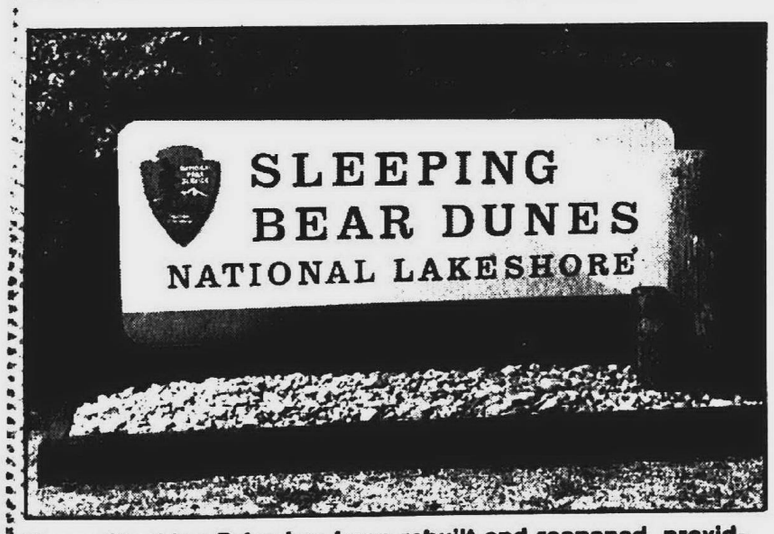
While I was sipping wine at Henry Ford Museum reception I met Andrea Casteel and Pamela O'Connor, who run Bed & Breakfast Lake to Lake, and will send you a brochure listing dozens of bed and breakfast places in the state. Contact Lake to Lake Bed & Breakfast Association, 405 Stuart Ave., Kalamazoo 49007.

I also had a look through the "window" of walls that surround the construction site of a major new $6 million exhibit called the Automobile in American Life, set to open at Henry Ford Museum next fall.

Remember, you, the Michigan traveler, are a prime target for all these tourism promotion activities. Call the Michigan Travel Bureau toll-free 1-800-543-2973 for information about your own state.



Closer to home, Greenfield Village in Dearborn offers a variety of attractions for visitors.



Pierce Stocking Drive has been rebuilt and reopened, providing visitors a driving tour through Sleeping Bear Dunes National Lakeshore near Frankfort.

Restaurant Management

Here's Your Opportunity To Experience Our Reputation For Career Excellence.

There is a world of difference between a career and a job. Here at Red Lobster, we pride ourselves on the fact that we provide management careers. The difference is in the fun, warmth and friendliness we transmit to our guests through our employees. Our managers look forward to being here, setting the tone, and making friends who keep coming back time after time. Isn't it time you turned your job into a career?

To be considered, it takes strong interpersonal skills, a commitment to quality, decision-making abilities, and prior management experience or a degree in food service. The fun you create pays off in terms of a generous salary, valuable comprehensive benefits, and a state-of-the-art 10 week training program. It doesn't end there. We also offer regular merit increases and, as you progress, bonuses based on performance. For immediate consideration, please send your resume to: Mark Scott, Red Lobster, 6184 Glenway Ave., Cincinnati, OH 45211.

We're America's largest full-service seafood restaurant chain...an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer.

Canton opens title defense

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Surprise, surprise.

It happened a year ago. Plymouth Canton, never before renowned for its boys track program, emerged as the best in a very good Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA).

That was surprise enough. After all, Canton had to beat perennial power Livonia Churchill to pull it off, and the Chiefs had never done that before. Not in the WLAA, and not in the old Western Six League.

However, that wasn't the end of surprises generating from CEP. At the WLAA finals, Plymouth Salem shocked everyone by not only finishing second, but nearly upsetting Canton. The Chiefs won the title by just two points.

"I think we surprised everybody," said Salem coach Gary Balconi. "I think people thought Canton would win, but no one thought we would come that close. It was one of those things where everyone had a good day for us."

AND THAT made it a doubly good day for the CEP — a one-two finish in the WLAA meet. Neither coach — Balconi or Canton's Rob Neu — is predicting anything similar this year. But they both have the talent. And they definitely have the numbers.

"I think it's going to be a dogfight," said Balconi of the league race. "Farmington has state championship material in its distance events, Canton is the defending champion so they'll be tough, and Churchill — you can't count (coach) Fred Price out. He's always going to have his people ready."

And Neu's view? "We have a good nucleus back. We'll be competitive. I hope we can challenge for the division championship."

Both the Chiefs and the Rocks will do more than merely challenge. Their depth alone — Salem has more than 80 on its team, and Canton has comparable numbers — should make both formidable in dual meets.

Here's an in-depth look at each.

CANTON

"It was outstanding," said Neu of last season's success. "The key to last year was depth. We had a ton of seniors with track experience."

But, as seniors have a tendancy to do, Neu's championship group graduated. Don't lament for the Chiefs, however. They still have plenty of experience, with 20 returnees from the '86 varsity.

Leading the group are senior quad-captains Tyrone Reeves, Brian Carney, Larry Allman and Pat Frederick. They will be Canton's catalysts. Reeves and Carney are sprinters, with Reeves also filling a spot in the long jump. Allman runs the hurdles and sprints, and Frederick is a mid-distance specialist.

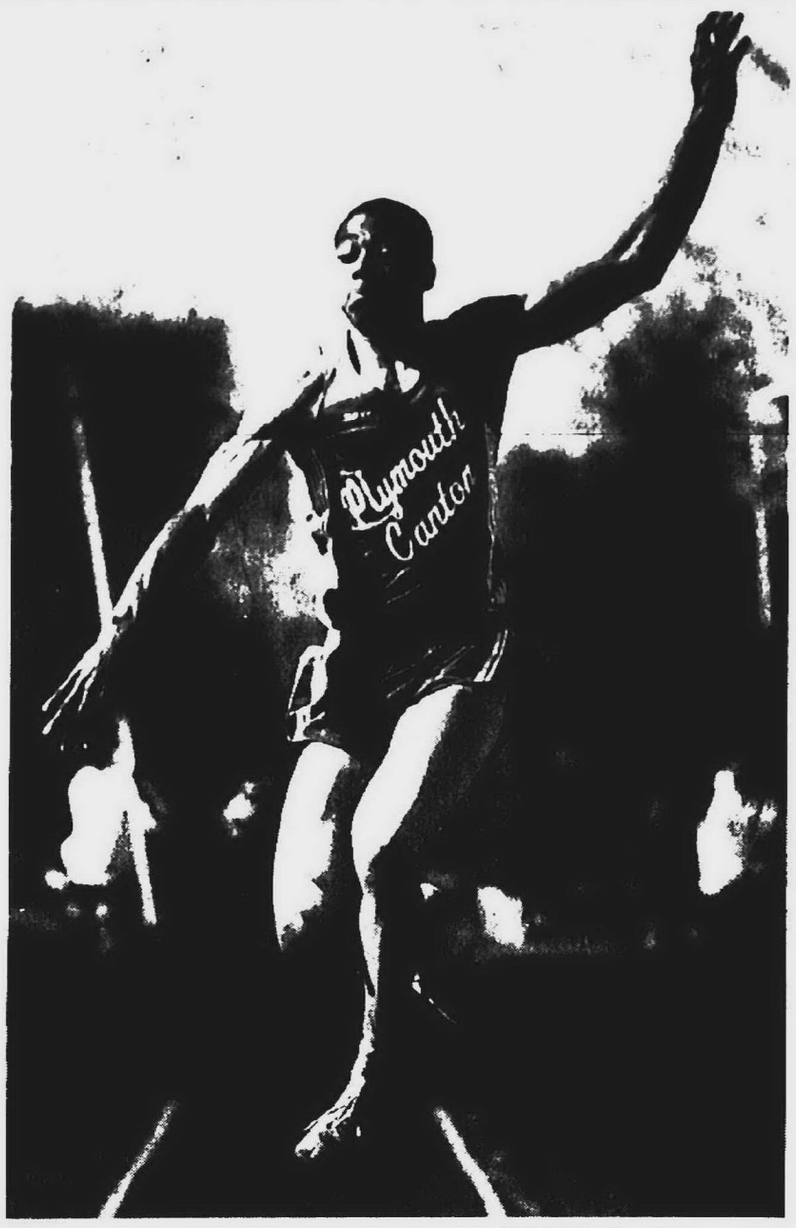
That foursome will turn up often for Canton. Reeves has state-caliber potential in the long jump; he finished second in it at the Huron Relays two weeks ago, leaping 22-feet indoors.

Others to watch are seniors Dave Mac (hurdles, high jump), Steve Genyk (high jump) and Ralph Reeves (shot put, discus); and juniors Roger Trice (sprints, long jump), Jay Sviecki (distance) and Al Byrnes (distance).

"We have a lot of experience returning from last year's team," said Neu. "We'll be strongest in the sprinting events, the high jump and long jump. And we have a lot of guys running distance from our division champion cross country team."

The Chiefs struggled last year in the weight events, and although Neu said they should be improved there this season, it still looms as a problem area.

That is, if they have any real problems. Canton will be tested immediately, opening its dual meet season Wednesday at Churchill.



STEVE FECHT/staff photographer

Tyrone Reeves has already long-jumped 22-feet this season for Canton, finishing second at the Huron Relays.

SALEM

Canton's experience is impressive. Salem's is outstanding.

The biggest holes in the lineup are in the long jump (only two with experience in that event) and, perhaps, the high jump. Balconi did have four high jumpers who could clear 6-feet, but one was injured and another left the team.

That doesn't sound like too much of a problem. Anchoring the Rocks are their tri-captains, seniors Jeff Armstrong (hurdles, sprints), Chris Hill (low hurdles, sprints, 800-meters) and Brian Neuhardt.

Enough excuses — let's play some ball!

I'M SO CONFUSED.

For the majority of high school baseball and softball teams, the season officially started Monday. It says so on my schedules.

So what happened? Where were all the phone calls with results?

The rain had nearly stopped. The ballfields had a couple of hours to dry, sort of. What, was it too cold? Still too wet?

Those are wimpy excuses. Hear what I'm saying, ballplayers? YOU ARE WIMPS. The snow's melted, the rain's down to a drizzle, the temperature is above freezing — now get out there and play ball!

If you're going to call it just because you might get a little wet, then your athletic directors might as well schedule rainouts instead of ballgames.

I'M SO CONFUSED.

I thought ballplayers were athletes. And I always believed athletes were more than mere mortals. I thought they were tough. That they could withstand any physical hardship. That with the demeanor of demi-gods, they could ignore pain and suffering and meet any challenge.

Well, maybe they can. Some of them. But I haven't seen it from any ballplayers yet. And the way the season is going so far, I may not.

When I was a kid, we played. And we didn't have dugouts to take refuge from the elements. We didn't have a dozen balls, in case one got scuffed up. We didn't have aluminum bats.

We had one, maybe two, waterlogged balls. We'd lob it in to the guy standing at the plate with a water-logged wood bat, and he'd hit it toward an outfielder who'd try to make the catch with a waterlogged glove and throw out a runner sloshing along in waterlogged sneakers.

That's a lot of water. It's no wonder I gave up baseball for swimming.

I'M SO CONFUSED.

I don't understand. I'm disappointed, too. Other sports are played in all kinds of inclement weather. They're adaptable. Football is at its best in ankle-deep mud.

And soccer — it's the most adaptable sport in the world. It's played indoors on small fields with seven-man teams, or outdoors in gigantic stadiums with the traditional 11-man squads. It's played in the heat of a Mexican summer (remember last year's World Cup?) or in the cold of a Michigan winter.

So what's wrong with baseball and softball?

Don't tell me it's for the fans' sake that games are canceled when stormy weather looms on the horizon. That's nonsense. Diehard fans come to games whatever the weather. And when they show up, they want to see a game. They'll wait for one, too, even after it's been canceled. Maybe not more than a day or so, but they'll wait.

I'M SO CONFUSED.

I don't understand who's responsible for this travesty in athletics. Calling off games without even a tornado watch or hurricane warning issued.

Engineer hopes end

By Brad Emons
staff writer

The Hennessey Engineers settled for a bronze medal last weekend at the U.S. National Junior A Hockey Championships.

Hennessey was eliminated Sunday by host Compuware in a game played at the Oak Park Arena, 6-3.

The Engineers finished the season with a 25-24-9 overall record.

"It was an incredibly enjoyable season for me," said head coach A.J. Baker. "We made it to the nationals and I saw a great deal of improvement. I think that's the key to any level."

The Rochester (Minn.) Mustangs took the title Monday with a 3-0 triumph over Compuware.

The Mustangs opened tournament play Friday with a 7-2 triumph over Hennessey, despite being outshot 18-10 in the first period.

Leif Gustafson, who had both Hennessey goals, was injured in the second period. It was discovered he had suffered a dislocated elbow.

"We thought it was just a cut, but it was a break on the joint," Baker said. "We really missed him and we also missed Matt Wiljanen (not eligible for the playoffs) not being in the lineup."

GARY SCOTT and Bryan Krygier each scored twice in Hennessey's 8-6 triumph Saturday over the Madison (Wis.) Capitols in a second round game.

Bob Mylnarek added a short-handed goal for the winners, while Darrell Sattler, Larry Pilut and Steve Ramberg also tallied goals. Pilut, named to the all-tourney team, also collected two assists.

Goalie Doug Brown made several key saves for Hennessey, which prevailed despite being outshot 37-26.

Trailing 3-2 after two periods, Compuware scored three times in the final period to write the Engineers' final chapter.

The Engineers, in fact, trailed only 5-3 with six minutes remaining after a short-handed goal by Tom Madden, but a five-minute spearing penalty to Mylnarek led to the final Compuware goal.

"That really irked me," said Baker of the call. "That just killed our chances."

So upset by the penalty call, general manager Hugh Melvin of Hennesssey was tossed from the arena after hurling water bottles out on the ice.

SOUTHFIELD'S JOE SNOVER and Dave Szymanski each scored twice for Compuware, the regular season champions of the North American Junior Hockey League.

Todd Tamburino of Farmington Hills and Mylnarek chipped with goals for Hennessey.

Hennessey was outshot 35-26.

Baker said he plans to return as coach next season for Hennessey.

Tom Madden scored a short-handed goal against Compuware to pull the Engineers to within 5-3 Sunday, but that was as close as they got. Compuware won 6-3 and advanced to the national tournament finals before losing 3-0 to Rochester (Minn.).

Kosnik lifts Pioneers to win

Expectations? Rod Righter had few entering his first season coaching Oakland University's baseball team. That's because it was also OU's first season of baseball since 1980.

Righter did know one thing. He knew he had picked up a good ballplayer when he signed Jim Kosnik.

He was right. Kosnik carried OU to its first baseball victory in seven years, first of this season and first Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (GLIAC) win, 7-4 over Ferris State in the first game of a double-header Sunday at FSC. The Bulldogs took the nightcap, 8-0.

KOSNIK WAS literally a one-man show. The lefthander started and went the distance for the Pioneers, allowing five hits and one earned run, striking out 10 and walking nine.

OU sports

But that was hardly the end of Kosnik's contributions. He slammed a run-scoring double that tied the score at 3-3 in the fifth inning, then poked a grand slam home run for the winning runs in the sixth.

Kosnik's efforts — he was seven-of-14 at the plate in OU's first week of baseball, with a double, two homers and eight RBI — earned him GLIAC player of the week honors.

The Pioneers collected nine hits against FSC. Keith Grant had three, with a double and an RBI, Mike Hickey went three-for-four and knocked in a run, and John Finley slugged a solo homer in the second inning for OU.

MIKE GILLARD started for FSC (5-16 overall, 2-2 in the GLIAC) and went the first four innings. Jim Stros relieved, pitching the final three frames and getting tagged with the loss.

The second game Sunday was all FSC. The Pioneers managed just two singles off three Bulldog pitchers, by Kosnik and Eric Asiala. Bob Sekula started and pitched five innings for FSC, allowing both hits and two walks, striking out 10. Chris Foster, a righthander from Rochester Adams, got the loss. Foster lasted five innings and allowed eight runs, four earned.

LAST FRIDAY, OU opened its season at Aquinas College by losing both ends of a double-header, 3-1 and 10-6. Lefthander Eric Jorgensen pitched well in the opener, surrendering just five hits and a walk in six innings. But Aquinas' Carl Dehn and Jim Kumurris were better, stopping OU on four hits. Don Righter's sacrifice fly in the fourth scored the only Pioneer run.

In the nightcap, Aquinas (15-9) pushed in five runs in the first and five more in the second to build an insurmountable lead. The Pioneers battled back with six runs, three on Kosnik's sixth-inning, three-run homer. Kosnik had three hits in the game. Hickey also had three hits (and one RBI) and Finley collected two.

Dave Waldis started for OU but lasted just ⅔ of an inning, giving up five runs. Dan O'Brien relieved and pitched 3⅓ innings, giving up another five runs.

OU, 1-3 overall and 1-1 in the GLIAC, plays a double-header at 1 p.m. Saturday at Hillsdale, then returns home for a pair against Saginaw Valley State at 1 p.m. Sunday.

VanderMey makes his mark — All-American

To some, Mark VanderMey's goals for the NCAA Division I swim championships might have seemed like wishful thinking.

Without doubt, VanderMey, a junior, was a standout swimmer — at Division II. But swimming against many of the best in the world at the Division I meet was another story completely.

Still, VanderMey was confident. He said just before he left for last weekend's meet, hosted by the University of Texas in Austin, that he wanted to go under two minutes in the 200-yard breaststroke. Considering that his best to that point was 2:01.03, it seemed a tall order, especially just two weeks after a major meet like the NCAA II championships.

VanderMey, though, was up to the challenge. He splashed to a 1:58.77 Saturday, shaving nearly 2⅓ seconds off his own OU record, and finished fifth overall to become the first Pioneer ever to earn Division I All-America honors.

It was an outstanding performance, appreciated all the more by VanderMey after his outing in the 100 breast Friday. He busted his own school record of 55.59, set at the NCAA II meet in March, in the preliminaries with a time of 55.31 to qualify ninth. In the finals, though, VanderMey fell to a 16th-place finish.

VanderMey's placing in the 200 earned him more than All-America status. National teams for the World University, Pan-Pacific and Pan American games are to be selected based on the NCAA results, and VanderMey should end up on one of them. He swam for the U.S. at the Goodwill Games in Moscow last summer.

Let's play some ball!

Why even bother making a schedule? It's never followed. Why not just make a tenative arrangement with a team to play them on either Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday of a certain week, around 4 p.m., at a neutral site? Then, if it's too cold Monday, you could play Tuesday or Wednesday.

Either that or take control of the situation. Because believe me, it's getting out of hand.

Coddled. That's what our young ballplayers are getting out of their sport. They're learning what it's like to be coddled. Catered to. Waited on.

I'M SO CONFUSED.

I can't believe this is the kind of stuff parents want their kids exposed to. Soon these prima donnas will come home from school and demand their dinner be served to them in front of the TV.

Ask them to cut the lawn and they'll say they're holding out for $1.85 million, "same as Jack Morris gets for mowing down batters."

No doubt you'll be enraged. But when you start to argue with them, watch what happens. They'll dismiss you with the wave of a hand and say, "Talk to my agent."

Don't say you haven't been warned. Baseball and softball are already the laziest of sports (bowling, pool and darts are considered games, not sports, by this writer). Even golfers get more exercise — if they play like I do.

I say get these ballplayers out there and make 'em play. Dress them like mailmen and have them recite the postal service's motto: "In rain or sleet or snow, we deliver."

No more lame excuses. I don't want to hear that a team isn't playing because it's wet and cold and someone might get hurt. If you don't want to play, stay home and eat quiche.

Otherwise, PLAY BALL!

Engineers are ousted

"Being the head coach was an enjoyable experience," he said. "I'd just like to thank all the people who supported us. The people from Plymouth and the arena (the Cultural Center, Hennessey's home ice venue)."

Hockey notes: Michigan will be sending a pair of teams to the High School Hockey Invitational, April 15-19 in Franklin Park, Ill.

Area players selected to play for Team Michigan, coached by Adam Mitchell, include Tim Olschanski, Livonia Franklin; Bill Dorough, Livonia Churchill; Lee Ziegler, Redford Catholic Central; Fred Calkins, Bob Tambornini and Sean Skinner, Livonia Stevenson.

Harrison routs Mott

Farmington Harrison's boys track team defeated Waterford Mott 98-47 at home Tuesday.

Aaron Yaverski led Harrison, winning three events. He took the 100-meter in 10.8, the 220 in 24.1 seconds and the 440 in 53.4.

Chris Hall won the 1600 with a 4:46.8 and the 3200 with a 10:33.6.

Chad Burgess won the 800 with a [illegible]. The Harrison 880 relay team [illegible] 1:33.6.

In field events, freshman Mark and Chad Burgess took the shot put and discus, respectively, with [illegible] throws of 39-10 and 116-4 to win.

Team members are: Andy Dudley; Clay Ramsay; John Leo; Ray Kantor; Mike Guillery; Chris Hart; Tony Bunting; Chris Scarchilli; Todd Gesund; Brian Miller; Dave McGrath; Tim Horton; George Sinanis; John Peiti; Scott Hemike; and Keith Mackey.

Coaches are: Larry Hart Sr.; Vic Miller; George Gesund; Jack McGrath; and Gary Singerman.

Diver grabs NCAA gold

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Mike Wantuck has what he sought for so long — an NCAA championship.

It took the Ohio State diver and Bloomfield Hills Andover graduate a long time to get it — right up until his final collegiate event, the three-meter board. But Wantuck made no mistakes; he piled up 641.45 points, easily outdistancing second-place Jose Rocha of Auburn, who totaled 614.20, in Saturday's finals at the University of Texas.

"When my coach (Vince Panzano) came up to me and said, 'Congratulations, Mike,' I just sighed and said to myself, 'Finally — I am so glad,' " said Wantuck. "I have waited so long for this. I definitely dove well."

IT WAS NOT an easy meet for Wantuck. He was favored to win the one-meter board, but Rocha put together a tremendous 11-dive routine and edged Wantuck, 549.20 to 545.85 Thursday.

"I ended up second and very disappointed," said Wantuck. "I went there really hoping to win both. My (one-meter) score was very good. Jose just dove very well, he had a lot of good dives."

What bothered Wantuck was that he led from the preliminaries until the ninth dive of the finals. He was ahead by 10 points entering that round, but he didn't hit his dive well. That gave Rocha an opening, and he took advantage of it to take the lead. Wantuck executed his final two good dives with precision, but it wasn't enough to overtake Rocha.

"I shouldn't have been so upset, but I was," said Wantuck. "I was confident, even going into the last dive, that I could beat him."

HIS FAILURE in the one-meter board left Wantuck "bound and determined" in the three-meter.

"My attitude on the three-meter was to go and dive, really show them what I could do," he said. "Even in the final dives in the prelims, when everyone was tired after Thursday's one-meter finals, I wanted to show everyone I wasn't going to falter."

He didn't. Wantuck was safely ahead throughout Saturday's three-meter finals. He said he wasn't feeling any overwhelming pressure to succeed, even though it was his last chance to capture an NCAA title (a first-year law student at OSU, Wantuck is in his fourth and last season of NCAA eligibility).

"I wasn't really looking at it that way, that it's my last chance, I HAD to win," he said. "I kept on thinking about all the other performances I've put together, the improvement I've made. I wanted to go out in style, and I did.

"I didn't want even a glimmer of doubt in any of the judges' minds that I won the event."

HE LEFT NONE. By the end of Friday's prelims, Wantuck led by 12 points. In Saturday's finals, he built a cushion early and kept it throughout the competition. His score was the highest in recent NCAA meet history.

It was a gratifying and long-sought victory. But triumph is fleeting, a fact Wantuck knows well. He travels to Baton Rouge, La., Saturday for the U.S. Diving Championships, which are April 14-18. The top finishers at that meet will make the U.S. team to compete in the World FINA Cup in Amersfoort, Holland, April 22-26.

In between, Wantuck has his law degree to pursue, so he has little time to savor his NCAA three-meter title. Which hardly seems fair, after chasing it for so long.

Spring schedules sink

I FEEL JUST LIKE a kid these days.

School can't get out soon enough for me.

I'm sure area athletic directors feel the same way. Like myself, this is the time of year they dread.

If you didn't know it, spring sports officially started March 25 with girls soccer. Baseball and softball started last week.

But somebody forgot to tell the Michigan High School Athletic Association that basketball season should have ended March 21 instead of March 28.

Usually there's a week between the end of winter sports and the start of spring sports.

Because of typical Michigan weather, spring sports shouldn't start until the middle of April, but things don't work that way.

Larry Joiner, the Churchill athletic director, already has to reschedule four soccer games. Other ADs are faced with similar headaches.

JOINER'S FOOTBALL FIELD, also used for soccer, is still under water from last fall's torrential, monsoon-like rains.

Another problem facing Joiner and his fellow ADs is the small time frame in which they can schedule events before the MHSAA tournaments start.

The predistricts in baseball and softball begin early this year, May 22.

The ADs are also handcuffed from Wednesday, April 15 until Friday, April 24 because of spring break.

Coaches have tried to use spring vacation as a week to play non-league games and catch up on fundamentals, but that's a thing of the past.

The only thing going between April 15 and the 27th are beach parties. We're talking Daytona, not Saugatuck.

Late in the season, "senioritis" then takes hold. The ADs have even a harder time scheduling because of graduations, proms and skip days.

WITH THE FIRST WEEK already wiped out because of rain and snow, some teams could be playing up to four or five times a week.

The regular season for girls soccer is supposed to end Friday, May 8 with the districts starting Monday, May 11.

Jamming 20 or so games into 5½ weeks could present some problems.

With reduced practice time, players will be more susceptible to injuries.

Fields, already skinned from last year's fall rains, will be reduced to dust and mud bowls by the time things dry out.

These conditions lend themselves to poor quality of play.

So it's easy to see why this sports writer can't get serious about spring sports until summertime weather sets in.

And normally summer weather doesn't take hold until the state tournaments are well underway.

THE SOLUTION to these problems are complex.

Some ADs cracked that we could introduce some new sports in the spring, maybe along the lines of canoeing, mud wrestling or water skiing.

The MHSAA needs to revise its calendar so football doesn't start before Labor Day and soccer doesn't start before basketball ends. We don't need another "dead week" as we had during the recent basketball season. District tournaments didn't start until March 9. That's ridiculous.

Reducing the number of allowable dates could also help alleviate the problems, but many warm days are wiped out by rain anyway.

My solution would be to make spring vacation earlier, maybe in mid-March instead of mid-April.

Schoolcraft College's spring break comes the first week of March instead of the traditional Easter week. Why not try it?

THERE USED to be a time when I looked forward to spring sports, but in recent years it's become really watered down.

It's tough enough for the ADs and even tougher for me, keeping track of reschedulements and standings.

● SPORTS STANDOUT

Mark Bennett, a 1984 Plymouth Canton graduate now in his junior year at Alma College, earned a second-year varsity basketball award. The 6-foot-2 guard-forward was the Britons top free throw shooter last season, hitting 87.5 percent from the line. Alma was 13-11 overall and 6-6 in the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

● CRAIGER BASEBALL

Tryouts for the Craiger Pee Wee Reese travel baseball team will be 3-6 p.m. Saturday at Griffin Park, located on Canton Center just north of Cherry Hill. Interested players must be 11 or 12 years-old by Aug. 1.

For more information, call Bob Rueto at 397-8149.

● STEELERS SIGNUP

Registration for football players and cheerleaders interested in participating with the Plymouth-Canton Steelers Junior League Football Club this fall has been scheduled from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on the following Saturdays: April 11, April 25 and May 9.

The registration sessions will take place in the lobby of Plymouth Canton's Phase III facility.

Players and cheerleaders ages 9-13 are eligible. The cost is $50 per player and $35 per cheerleader. There is a $125 maximum per family.

For more information, call Sue Herman at 455-7299 or Linda Roushkolb at 459-9519.

● LIONS FOOTBALL

Speaking of football, the Plymouth-Canton Lions are also holding registration for their 1987 season. Any boys or girls, 9-14 years old, interested in playing or cheerleading can sign up from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Ford Road McDonald's April 25 and May 2.

For further information, contact Ernie Parrish (981-1981) or Kathy Milligan (981-6406).

● SOCCER FUND-RAISER

A 24-hour soccerthon is planned April 11-12 at Plymouth Salem to raise funds for eight members of a Michigan elite team which is making a trip to Europe July 2 to Aug. 5. All eight team members are from Plymouth and Canton.

Anyone wishing to make a pledge should contact David O'Malley, a team member, at 981-4513.

● VOLLEYBALL TOURNEY

Schoolcraft College is hosting a men's and women's volleyball invitational Saturday, April 18. The tournament will consist of both men's and women's classes in open and B Divisions.

Cost is $60 per team. Play starts at 9 a.m. at Schoolcraft, located on Haggerty between Six and Seven Mile. For further information, contact Tom Teeters (261-4725, or at Schoolcraft 591-6400, Ext. 483).

● SOFTBALL TRAVELERS

Any girls 14-16 years old interested in playing for the Mid-America Mustangs, a sponsored, slo-pitch softball travel team, this summer should call Ray Knickerbocker at 455-5893 for further information.

● CANTON GOLF LEAGUES

The Canton Parks and Recreation Department is sponsoring several golf leagues at Fellows Creek Golf Course this spring.

The Thursday night men's league will begin April 23, tee times 4-4:44 p.m. The league will run for 22 weeks. Call 397-1000 for more information.

Registration fee for both leagues is $25 plus weekly greens fees. Each league will hold 36 players.

On Tuesday mornings, the seniors golf league will meet. Cost is $5 registration plus weekly greens' fees. Play begins in May. Call 397-5110 for further details.

On Friday mornings starting May 8, a women's golf league will take to the course at Fellows Creek. Cost is $10 for registration, plus weekly greens' fees. Call 397-5110 for further details. There will be a league meeting at 7:30 p.m. April 30 in the Canton Township administration building.

● PLYMOUTH SOFTBALL

The Plymouth Parks and Recreation men's slow-pitch softball league will begin the week of May 4. The entry fee is $500 per team.

New teams can sign up now. There will be a 32-team limit.

For more information, call 455-6620.

● CANTON SOFTBALL

The Canton Parks and Recreation Department still has openings for its men's and women's softball leagues.

Here are the fees: men's first division, $360; men's second division, $340; women's Class A, $350; women's Class B, $260.

Fees must be paid in full at the Canton Parks and Recreation Department.

Canton's P&R department is also sponsoring a coed softball league, with games scheduled for Sunday and Monday evenings beginning in mid-May. Cost is $140 per team, plus a new game ball and a $7 umpire fee before each game. Registration will continue through April 30 at the Canton P&R department.

Call 397-5110 or 455-6620 for more information.

● CANTON S'BALL CENTER

Canton Softball Center is accepting registrations for its 1987 softball season, which will begin April 12. Men's, women's, coed and over-35 leagues are being offered. There also will be tournaments every weekend. Call 483-5600 for more information.

● WOMEN'S SOCCER

Anyone ages 16-30 interested in trying out for the Canton Wildcats Great Lakes Women's Soccer League team should call Pam Bolser at 453-5413.

The outdoor season runs from June through August. Practices will begin in April.

Salem has the depth to challenge in the WLAA

Neuhardt is back for his fourth varsity season. "He's been the fastest guy on the team since he was a freshman," said Balconi. Neuhardt proved it last year, finishing ninth in the state in the 400 and winning the 200 at the WLAA meet. He also anchored Salem's first-place 1,600 relay at the league meet.

Other seniors Balconi will summon often are Kevin Jones and Brian Grapentien (distance); Shawn Simms (sprints, 800); Doug Soho (sprints, high jump); Tom Foley (low hurdles, 800); and Sean Hunter (sprints).

There's more. The junior class is equally impressive: Jay Blaylock and Romolo Maura (shot put, discus); Bill Atwell and Doug Vergari (distance); Keith Smith and Mike Park (hurdles); Joe Page and Alan Rye (800); and Lamar Crayton (long jump, sprints). Sophomores J.P. LaRoche (400) and Mike Albertson (high jump, sprints) should also contribute.

All of which makes for a promising outlook for Salem. "I would identify us as pretty solid," said Balconi.

West Bloomfield site for half-marathon test

By Tom Henderson
staff writer

running

Ahh, the rites of spring.

Groundhogs look for shadows, baseball fans look for scarce tickets to opening day, and runners throughout southeastern Michigan look toward West Bloomfield, where the annual half-marathon race serves as the unofficial start of the local racing season.

This year's 13.1-mile race will be held Sunday, a week earlier than usual to avoid a conflict with Easter Sunday.

Whether it was the mild winter, which allowed runners to keep their mileage up, or a resurgence by a sport that some skeptics said was dying, a record field of 1,000 could take off from the West Bloomfield High School parking lot when the starting gun sounds at 12:30 p.m.

More than 600 had entered by Tuesday morning and race director Sally Slater Pierce said that race-day registration was more than 200 last year.

Thus, with a solid final week of registration by mail or drop-ins at the West Bloomfield Parks and Recreation office on Middlebelt, the all-time record of 939 entrants in 1984 could fall.

"We're ahead of last year," said Pierce. "I'm keeping my fingers crossed for good weather. You know how runners are. They'll get up and if it's a nice day, they'll decide to come out and run."

Early weather forecasts called for a nice weekend.

THE HALF-MARATHON is a grueling early test of fitness. Most runs this time of year are shorter distances — 6.2 miles or 5 miles — but runners seem to relish the chance to see how their training is going on the rolling, twisting, scenic residential roads of West Bloomfield.

The weather on race day has been erratic, as only April in Michigan can be. The 1984 race was delayed a week by a seven-inch snowfall. The next year temperatures soared into the upper 80s. Last year a slight rain fell on the runners and 150 volunteers.

The two constants have been the course and the response by runners. This route has enough hills to make you think you are in Appalachia. Throw in 68 turns and you've got as tough a course as you'll find in the area.

But the runners seem to love it. The run is always one of the largest spring races around and Michigan Runner Magazine, the bible of the running community, recently ranked the run as one of the top 50 in the state.

The quality of the field is outstanding, too. The run draws former college All-Americans and the cream of state racing. Past winners such as Tim Fox and Liz Watch both went on to win the Free Press International Marathon later in their careers.

THERE ARE TWO new wrinkles this year. Elkin Travel is donating cruises for two to the Bahamas for both the men's and women's winners.

And Pierce has added a Supermen division — no, Clark Kent hasn't entered, but enough men 60 and over have been entering this year to warrant their own division.

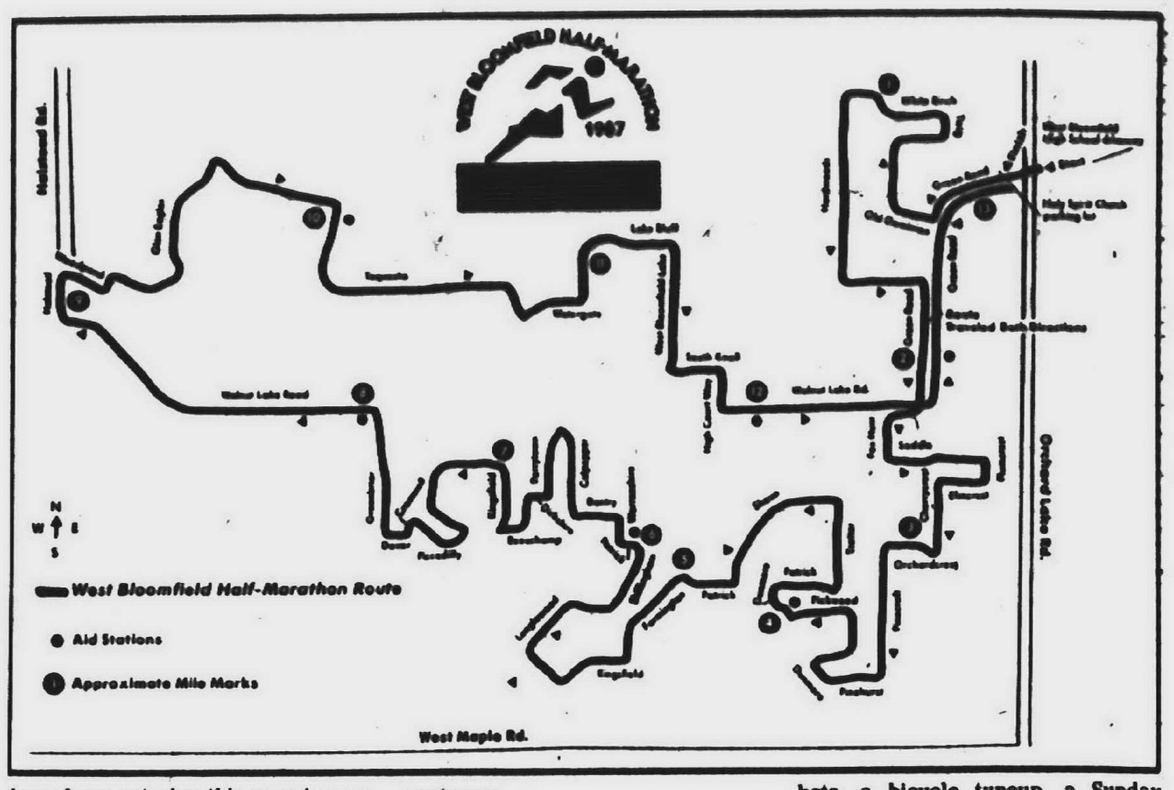
There were 11 entered through last Friday, including Clarence Shelton of Orchard Lake (see related story on Page 1A) and Jim Ramsey, a 78-year-old Detroiter and former heart-attack patient who travels the country running 26.2-mile marathons.

Pierce said if she can get a few more 60-and-over women to enter, she'll begin a Superwomen's division next year.

Runners can enter the 11th-annual race at the Parks and Recreation offices through Friday or at the high school Sunday morning. Entry fee is $13, which includes a colorful T-shirt and post-race goodies such as yogurt, oranges and juice.

The award ceremony, scheduled for the high school gym at 3 p.m., will include at least 30 random raffle prizes, including gift certificates from local running stores, fruit baskets, a bicycle tuneup, a Sunday brunch at Aristocrats, pizza, posters and a New Balance running outfit.

Some of the proceeds of the run, which is co-sponsored by the Henry Ford Medical Center, will be used to erect a sign dedicating West Bloomfield's 4.25-mile portion of the "Discover Michigan Trail," a sesquicentennial project along abandoned railroad rights-of-way, which will eventually circle the state for use by runners, hikers, skiers and bikers.



Trout make Clinton River home

Bill Parker

THE CLINTON trout stream. Sounds kinda weird to me. But according to Ron Spitler, fisheries biologist of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, "the Clinton River is the newest trout stream in Southeastern Michigan."

After thorough testing of the water the DNR actually proclaimed the river dead in 1968, stating that pollution had caused the oxygen levels to drop so low that no fish could possibly survive.

Many people, especially anglers, simply forgot all about the filthy Clinton River.

But in the early 1970s a sewer system came through the neighboring communities of the river. Around the same time the Warren and Pontiac waste water plants, which were dumping their effluent (exit) water directly into the Clinton, upgraded their facilities top the tertiary level.

With these changes intact the quality of the water began to improve almost overnight. By 1975 the water was looking so good the DNR began to speculate on restocking the river with trout.

IN 1984, with the release of some 4,000 brown trout, those speculations turned into reality and for the first time in nearly 20 years the Clinton River was thriving with some of Michigan's finest gamefish.

Since that timwe the DNR has been releasing about 4,000 browns a year. Over the past three years they have also released steelhead into the Clinton at a rate of about 15,000 per year.

The browns stay right in the river after being stocked. They are usually under seven inches long when released but reach legal size — eight inches on streams in lower Michigan — by midsummer.

"There's been a lot of activity in the past and a lot of fish have been caught," said Spitler. "The best time for (catching) browns in early in the morning before a lot of fishermen are at the river and the trout become spooked. By midsummer the fishermen are using spinners and small spoons and most of the fish they catch are keepers."

THERE HAS BEEN a problem, however, with anglers fishing for browns immediately after the fish are release into the river.

"The fish take a few days to orient themselves to the water and move on," said Spitler. "Fishermen use small hooks and the fish can swallow these hooks which then become caught in their gullets. This can cause severe problems and even kill some fish. It isn't a good practice, and we really don't like to see people going after the smaller fish just for the fun of it. If there is too much damage and a lot of fish are being wasted we could even be forced to stop planting. Hopefully it won't get that bad."

In mid-April the DNR will plant of approximately 1,000 browns at each of three road crossings; Crooks, Avon and Dequinder. Anglers are asked to stay clear of these areas or use bait large enough so that it won't be appealing to the smaller fish.

THE STEELHEAD, meanwhile, retreat to the open lakes after being planted until they are ready to spawn which usually takes about three years. Then they return to their parent stream, in this case the Clinton River.

This past fall there were some steelhead reported in the Clinton River but no major runs. There were even some reports of a few salmon straying up the river.

The spring runs should be a little stronger since the first fish that were planted have had three full years to mature. The runs should continue to get stronger each year from here on out.

The steelhead only advance up the river as far as the dam at the Rochester/Utica Recreation Area, near Yates Cider Mill. Browns have been caught from Pontiac to the mouth of the river.

Reports from Belleville Lake indicate that nice bluegill, averaging eight inches in length and up to three-quarters of a pound in weight, are not an uncommon catch. Kent Lake has also produced some seven and eight inch bluegill and an occasional large pike or walleye.

Livonia club fares well at Golden Gloves event

Four Livonia Boxing Club fighters survived their Golden Gloves semifinal bouts Sunday, advancing to the finals.

John Larkin, a 20-year-old Livonian, scored a third round knockout to claim the 165-pound Senior Novice division. Larkin, a University of Michigan student, is undefeated in his last seven fights.

Rich Singer knocked out his opponent in the first round. Singer, of Livonia, is a 27-year-old heavyweight.

Gary Hart, 27, a 225-pounder, advanced with a bye. Livonia Boxing Club trainer Dave Mundy called Hart, who has never fought before, 'a phenomenon.'

Also advancing through a bye was Corey Mundy, a senior novice light-heavyweight.

The bouts were held at Monaghan Knights of Columbus Hall in Livonia.

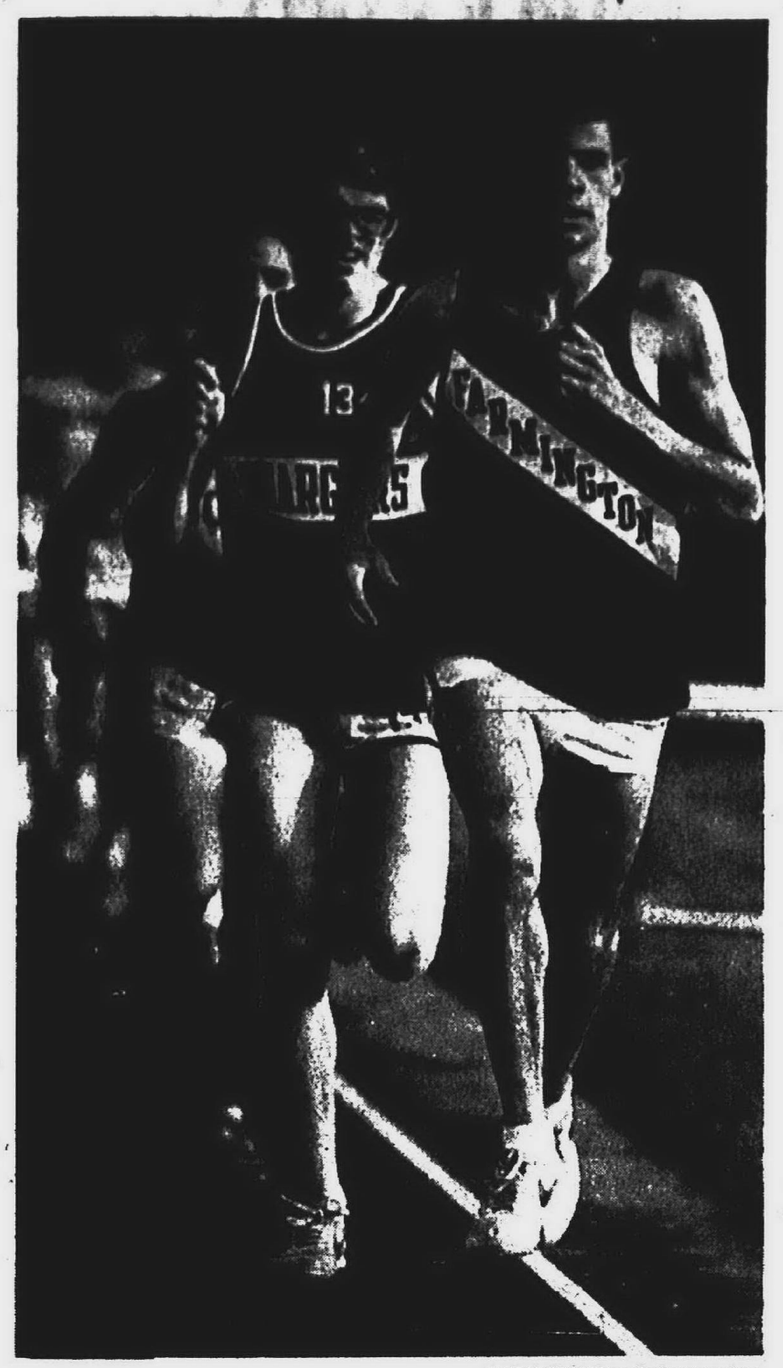
Falcon trackmen will be formidable



STEVE FECHT/staff photographer

As a junior, Farmington's Chris Inch set a tough pace to beat in the distance events. He should be even tougher as a senior this season.

By Brian Lysaght and C.J. Risak
staff writers

Farmington has been fielding strong track teams since the Western Lakes Activities Association came into being. And as the new season begins, coach Dave Catherman and his boys have their minds set on continuing the tradition.

"I was talking to the team about that just today," Catherman said. The Falcons won the Lakes Division title last year with a sterling 9-0 dual-meet record and finished third in the WLAA.

"We've won the division ever since there's been a Western Lakes," Catherman said. "We're going to set our goals on continuing that. But it gets tougher every year. We're a small school."

Schools like Plymouth Salem and Livonia Stevenson are likely to offer tough conference competition. Farmington lost a lot to graduation last year, talent like Craig Petersmark in the discus and shot put and sprinters Chris Mineweaser and Chris Nichols. Still, Farmington has looked strong early in the season, especially its distance runners.

Catherman can enjoy the benefits of another fine cross country team. Falcon harriers finished second in the state last fall. Runners like Chris Inch and Steve Quenneville in the two mile, and Alan Stebbins and Ron Smedley in the mile, will make the Falcons formidable in the long hauls. Other distance runners are transfer student Brandon London, in the mile and 800 meters, and Matt Walter.

"From the 400 on up we will be very strong," Catherman said.

Sprinters include Dave Barringer, John Buchanan, Bill Lindbert and John Lekovich. Ed Sudzina will be throwing the shot put and Rob DeForge the discus. London will also do the long jump.

Farmington's distance medley team of London, Inch, Stebbins and Barringer set a meet record with a first at the Huron relays last week, and pole vaulter Andrew Holliday cleared 12 feet and took took third.

The Falcons meet North Farmington and Harrison today in the city meet at North.

NORTH FARMINGTON

Rich Jones is beginning his first season as North Farmington's boys track coach. He says the Raiders will likely be rebuilding this year.

"We told the kids not to worry about anything, just to work hard and do the best they can," said Jones, who graduated from North in 1967 and took over as track coach from Dave Thorne. Jones had been coaching and teaching in Florida for the last decade.

Jones said the Raiders should be strongest in sprints and relays. Mark Weintraub, a senior, is the only remaining member of North's prized 400-meter relay of last year. Football star Scott Selzer, one of the best sprinters in the WLAA last year, chose not to run this spring because of a stress fracture in his leg.

Other sprinters include Pat Lowe, a senior, Bill Krall and Doug Cohn. Dave Brow will run the 400, and senior Adam Kahn will run relays and hurdles.

Distance runners include Jeff Simpson at two miles, Jim Nader and Dave Cline at the half-mile, and junior Tom Harnden in the mile. Jones says that his distance men may not be as strong as Farmington's, though Harnden ran a personal best in the mile at the Huron Relays.

"We're working hard and that's the best we can ask for," Jones said.

Running the hurdles will be seniors James Rhodes, Eric Malzahn and Jason Rhodes. Andy Avery and Matt Garver will handle the shot put, and Cohn and Scott Sinilli will toss the discus.

Sophomore Brad Armstrong will pole vault. Junior Chad Henry will be a high jumper and long jumper. Pat Row, a senior, and Warren Johnson will also compete as long jumpers.

FARMINGTON HARRISON

John Schumacher knows he's got something good at Harrison this season.

Not that Schumacher's previous teams have been faulty. But as the Hawks' coach said, "We've had four winning seasons back-to-back, but this team is the best I've had."

Which should make for an interesting season for Harrison, particularly in the WLAA's Western Division, which also happens to be the home of defending WLAA champ Plymouth Canton and perennial power Livonia Churchill. Schumacher expects both to be difficult to beat.

But Harrison will be tough, too. The Hawks have depth everywhere, and a lot of quality.

Leading the sprinters is junior Aaron Yaverski, who is capable in any race up to the 800. Senior Todd Lowry, sophomore Bobb Beauchamp and freshman Scott Ratsos add depth.

Junior Bob Conlon tops the hurdlers and is a 6-foot-plus high jumper. Juniors Brian Soeder and Wes Wood are solid low hurdlers, and senior Pat McClintock and junior Rich Esker are good at the high hurdles.

Juniors Chris Hart, Craig Mortz and Pat Runk and sophomore Chad Burgess were a state-qualifying 3,200 relay team last season. The Hawks placed 10th in the event without an injured Mortz. That foursome, plus freshman Brian Mortz, give Harrison a solid middle distance team.

Sophomore Jeff Barringer and freshmen Dave Foss, Bob Widenhammer, Mark Kushner and Andy Jones are talented, if inexperienced, in the distance events.

In the field events, John (a senior) and Mark (a junior) Bonasso and junior Dave Gurke anchor the shot put and discus. Soeder is a top-notch long jumper, and Soeder and Wood join Conlon to make Harrison formidable in the high jump. Schumacher also has three good pole vaulters in seniors Eric Wise, Jason Turk and Eric Cole.

"Our depth and overall talent are our strengths," said Schumacher, who guided the Hawks to a 4-3 dual-meet record in '86. "I don't think a lack of experience will be a problem if they mature. The quality is there, it's going to come, it's just a matter of how quickly it comes."

Farmington kickers stay perfect with 8-1

Freshmen Margaret Martin and Amy Trunk combined for seven goals as host Farmington (3-0) roared to an 8-1 triumph over cross-town rival North Farmington Monday.

Farmington outshot the Raiders 9-5 to take a 3-1 halftime lead. Trunk scored twice in the half and Martin added one.

In the second half the Falcons continued their assault, outshooting North 15-3. Martin registered three goals, Amy Smith added one and Trunk got one.

Martin finished with four goals and Trunk scored three. Carrie Maier, another freshman, added two assists.

STEVENSON 5, N. FARMINGTON 0: Livonia Stevenson remained unbeaten in girls soccer, booting a pair of Western Lakes League opponents in games played Monday and Friday.

On Friday, the Spartans (3-0) ripped host North Farmington behind a pair of goals by Allison Eichhorn. Laurie McLachlan, Karen Carney and Lori Green also scored for Stevenson, which led 1-0 at halftime.

Goalie Elaine Zager posted the shutout.

On Monday, the Spartans pounded host Walled Lake Central, 7-1, behind Eichhorn's two goals. Carney added a goal and three assists.

Green, Jackie Danahy, Mary Pelloni and Carrie Nemec also tallied goals.

EDSEL FORD 6, GARDEN CITY 0: On Tuesday, Dearborn Edsel Ford blanked host Garden City in a Northwest Suburban League match.

"We had three games canceled last week because of bad weather and it showed," said GC coach George Vella. "We had to play the best team in the league first. That's no way to open."

You need not lose health care coverage

consumer mailbag

Terry Gibb

I received some literature in the mail recently from OWL (Older Women's League) about the Health Insurance Continuation Law. With the status of women — and men — frequently changing in our society, this information may become important to you at some point in your life.

Most Americans participate in the group health coverage provided by their employers. You and your family members are covered as long as the employee continues to work for the company.

However, if your work or family status changes, you often lose your group health coverage. Most group insurance also terminates for individuals or families when there is a divorce, death of the employee or the employee loses the job or retires.

PUBLIC LAW 99-272, which took effect last July, provides help for many individuals to retain their health care coverage when one of these changes occurs.

If you are protected under this law, you will be able to continue this health coverage for up to a maximum of three years depending on your situation if you pay the premiums.

While group coverage is not cheap, the group premiums are usually considerably less than individual coverage premiums. No medical examination is required. Just notify your health plan of the change and pay the premium (both the employee and employer portions) plus a 2 percent administrative fee.

PL 99-272 is only for health plans beginning after July 1, 1986, and takes effect in your specific case when the company's next health plan begins, whether that is June 1987 or in some union-negotiated contracts not for two years.

THOSE COVERED by this law include:

- Widows and dependents — If your insurance coverage was through your spouse's employer, you can continue coverage for three years if your spouse dies after the group health insurance continuation law takes effect.
- Divorced/separated spouses and dependent children — If you were covered under your spouse's plan, you can continue coverage for three years if the divorce or legal separation takes place after the group health insurance continuation law takes effect. The details for this group should be discussed with your lawyer.
- Workers and dependents — You can continue your group insurance coverage for a maximum of 18 months after the employee quits, takes a leave, is laid off, fired (except for gross misconduct) or reduces work hours (voluntarily or not) after the law takes effect for you. If your family status changes during this 18 months through death or divorce, the spouse and dependent children can continue coverage for a total of 36 months.
- Retiring workers — The employee, spouse and any dependent children can continue coverage for up to 18 months or until Medicare begins after retirement. The employee's spouse may continue coverage for up to 36 months if the employee is eligible for Medicare but the spouse is not.
- Other eligible children — If your health insurance is through your parent's employer, coverage can be continued for a maximum of three years if you become ineligible because of age, marriage, student status, etc.

To continue group coverage, you must:

NOTIFY YOUR group plan within 60 days of any change in your work of family status. The health plan then has two weeks to notify you of your right to continue coverage.

Respond to the health plan notification with 60 days that you wish to continue coverage. You will then have additional 45 days to bring the premiums up to date.

This law will not help you if you have already lost your health insurance before the law took effect in your case.

YOU ARE NOT protected under the law if you:

- Work for a company with fewer than 20 employees.
- Are covered by a church plan.
- Are a federal employee.

For a brochure outlining the entire law, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Older Women's league, Insurance Continuation, 1325 G Street, NW, Washington, D.C. 20005.

The Consumer Mailbag answers your questions. Address mail to The Consumer Mailbag, Concern Detroit, 1025 Shelby, Detroit, 48226.

briefly speaking

● VAAL CLASSES

Registration is under way for spring art classes sponsored by the Visual Art Association of Livonia. The classes are conducted in Jefferson Center, 9501 Henry Ruff, Livonia.

Included in the schedule are night classes in watercolor and photography.

A new class being offered is "Everything You Wanted to Know About Modern Art but Were Afraid to Ask," will be offered from 12:30 p.m. to 2 p.m. Fridays, beginning April 24. The five-week series will conclude in a tour of local galleries.

Workshops include "Wet in Wet Watercolors" by Michigan artist Edee Joppich from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Saturday, April 25. Price is $20 for members and $25 for non-members. She also will conduct a workshop, "Landscape on Location," from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Friday, June 5.

"Watercolor by Design" will be the focus of a third workshop to be conducted by VAAL instructor Marge Chellstorp from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Friday, May 15. The price is $20 for members and $25 for non-members.

For more information, call Shirley Ceasar, 421-3207, or Marge Masek, 464-6772.

● TIFFIN GLASS

"Tiffin Glass" will be the subject Paul J. Williams will present to members of the Henry Ford Museum Collectors Club-Glass and guests at 7:30 p.m. Monday, April 13 in the lobby conference room of Lovett Hall, Greenfield Village, Dearborn.

Williams, a retired Tiffin Co. glass worker, will show slides of the operation at Tiffin and will also being samples of glass. Visitors are welcome.

● VOICES OF SPRING

International Opera Theater presents "Voci Di Primavera," a celebration of spring; songs and arias performed by Christina Lypecky, Kaye Rittinger, Denise Brander, Quinto Milito, Clayton Norris and commendatore Dino Valle. David Wilson will accompany on harpsichord and piano.

The event will take place at 8 p.m. Thursday, April 23, in Henry Ford Estate-Fair Lane on the University of Michigan-Dearborn campus. Tickets are $8. For ticket information, call 525-1111.

● FARMINGTON MUSICALE

The Farmington Musicale will present Dan Ross as featured soloist at its annual spring concert 8 p.m. Friday, April 10, in Farmington High School auditorium.

Ross, a French hornist, is former musicale scholarship winner. He attends the University of Michigan. He will play the Mozart Concerto No. 2.

Tickets at $4 and $2 (for students and senior citizens) will be available at the door. An afterglow will follow the concert.

● MID-STATE CERAMICS

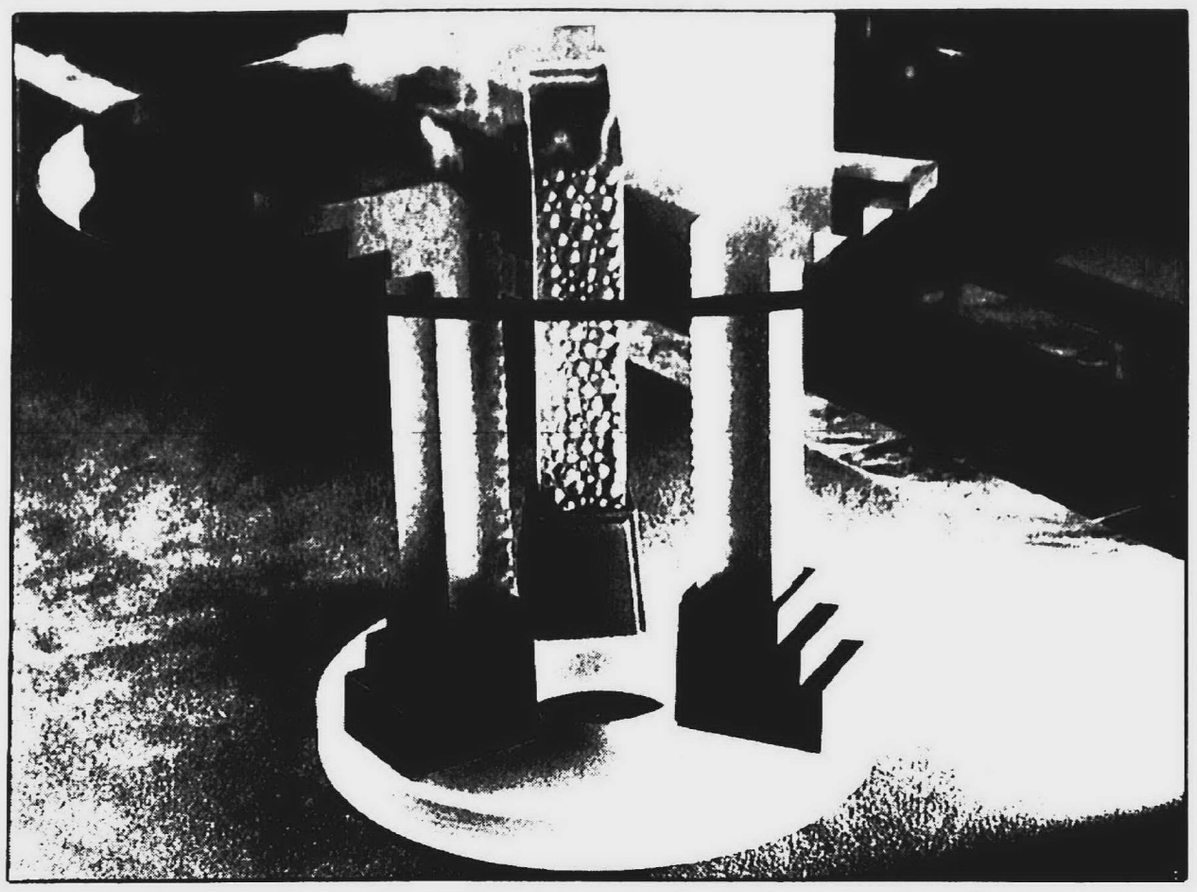
Pete Douglas Jr. will be guest speaker at the general meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday, April 15 of the Mid-State Ceramic Study in Lovett Hall at Greenfield Village. His topic is "Trends in Contemporary Pottery." Interested persons are welcome to attend.

● SABBATICAL LEAVE EXHIBITION

Sabbatical Leave Exhibition will open Thursday, April 16, in Sarkis Galleries, Center for Creative Studies, 245 E. Kirby, Detroit, featuring Maxell Davis, Russell Keeter, Leo Mardirosian, Gordon Orear and Keith Vreeland. A reception for the artists 4-6 p.m. will highlight the opening.

● BUNKA WORKSHOP

Bunka thread art will be the focus of a meeting 8-10 p.m. Thursday, April 14, sponsored by the Sunshine Picture Framing Co. of Livonia and the Doves Chapter of the ThreadArtists International. Examples of the specialized art form will be on display, and experts will be on hand to answer questions. The meeting will be in Sunshine facilities at 37279 Six Mile, Livonia. Reservations are suggested. Call 591-7746.



Full-size table in the main lobby of the Triatria Office Complex is by John Lewis. The supporting columns are a soft green and black at the bottom.

Celebrating glass month

It is sedate and elegant, humorous and titilating, serene and disturbing. It is Michigan Glass Month 1987, and galleries and malls, libraries and workshops from Muskegon to Port Huron, Dearborn to Pontiac have exhibitions of glass, old and new, traditional and experimental.

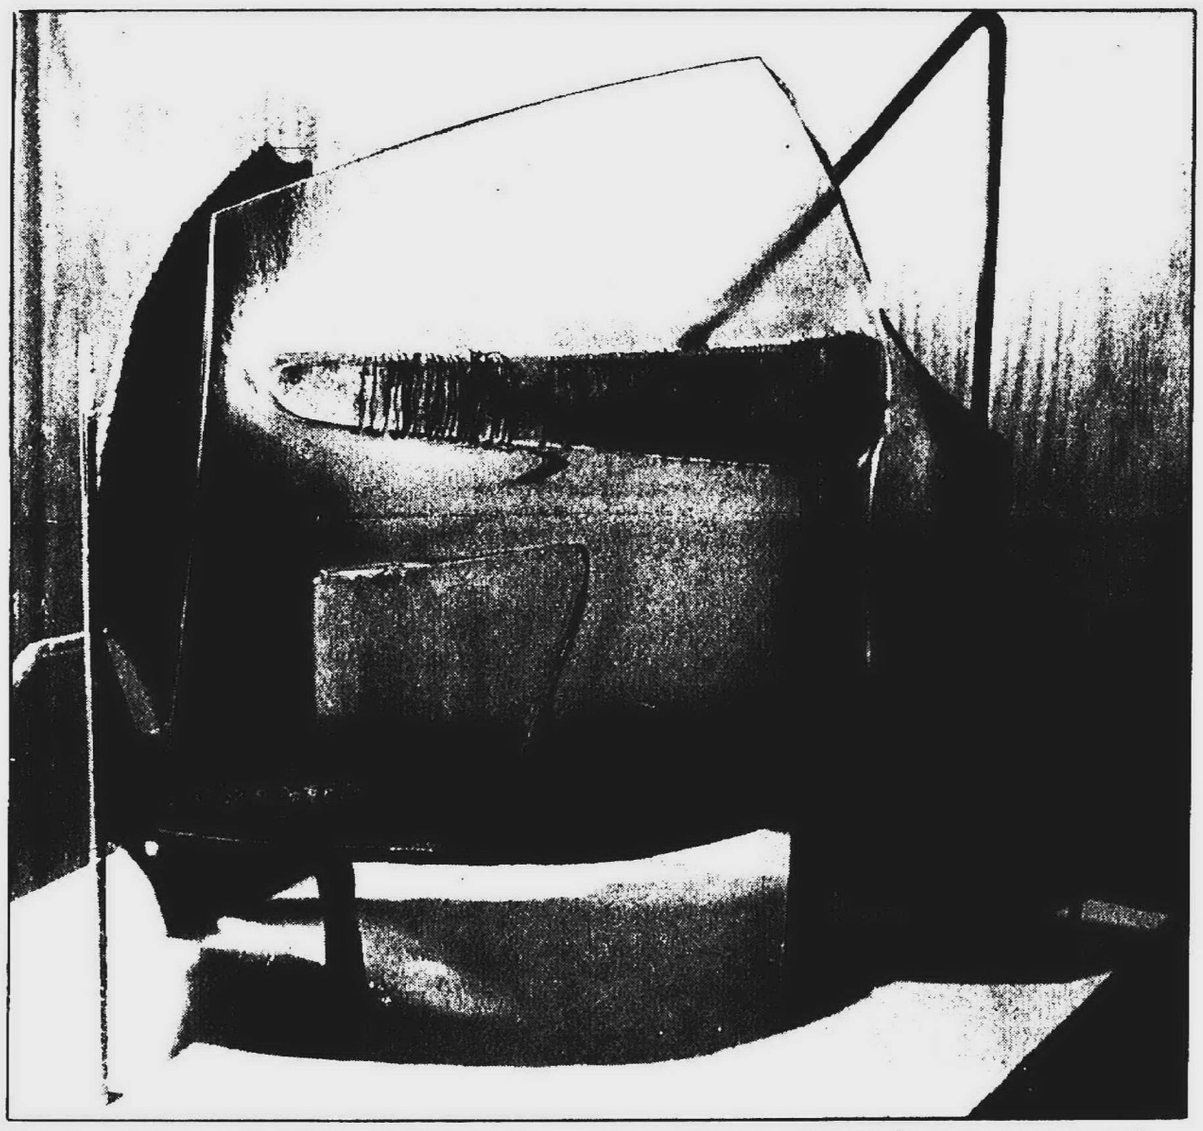
Habatat Galleries of Lathrup Village, long the hub of glass as an art form extraordinaire, expanded its annual invitational this year to include 20 top artists from outside the United States.

Ferdinand Hampson, Habatat owner, said while it might have been easy several years ago to identify the works of foreign glass artists, "They're hard to identify now because there's been so much blending. There may be a little more interested in clean crystal in Europe."

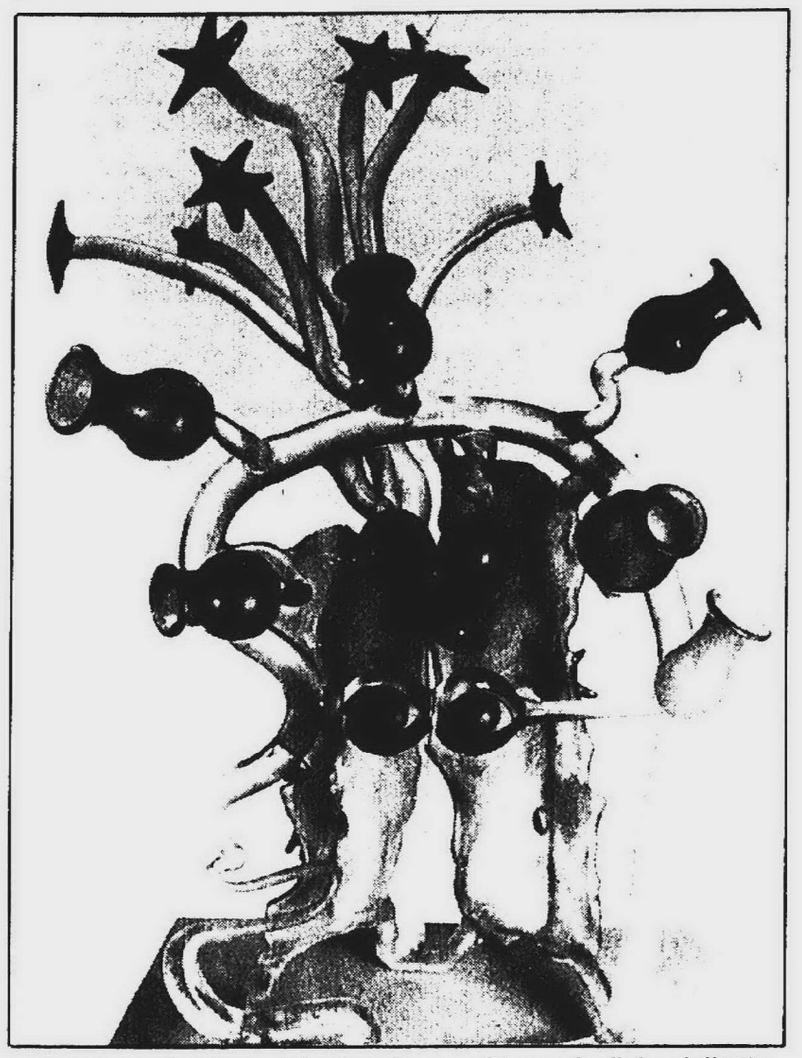
As fine contemporary glass by master artists has climbed dramatically in price, it has also been pushed to levels of artistic excitement not even dreamed of a decade ago.

Habatat Galleries has installed breathtaking displays of glass sculpture in the Triatria Building, 32255 Northwestern, Farmington. There's room of magnificent work by Dale Chihuly, a corridor of dazzling pieces by Richard Ritter, architectural columns by Howard Ben Tre and a fountain area resplendent with sculptures by Damion Prior, John Lewis, and Kent Ibson. And these are just the beginning.

Staff photos by Jerry Zolynsky



"Nocturnal Passage" at Robert L. Kidd Galleries is by one of the newer names in the glass field, Linda Ross. It is metal and slumped glass with enamel, pate de verre, copper and steel.



A lamp work piece, "Jughead sees Fireworks," in delicate shades of peach, blue, lavender and pink by Ginny Rufner, who presents the unexpected with style and humor.

NEWSMAKER IN THE ARTS

Weaving a story on equality

This feature on Livonia resident Diane Little initiates a special series which will focus on newsmakers in the arts that will appear from time to time in the Creative Living section of the Observer Newspapers.

By Barbara Ziemba
special writer

WOMEN JUST got off collectively on the wrong foot.

Ever since Eve bit into the apple and Adam followed suit, women have borne the stigma of that incident in the Garden of Eden.

But the grudge held by Adam and his male descendants is slowly giving ground to a fresh perspective on women's history.

Finally emerging from centuries of anonymity, a full accounting of women's roles over the passage of time is winning acceptance in educational curricula and other public platforms.

TESTIMONY TO THAT fact came in Newburgh United Methodist Church in Livonia recently in an address by Diane Little, known to many for her quilting and weaving artistry.

(In her Rosedale Gardens neighborhood, for instance, she's referred to as the "Spinning Lady" because she's been known to display her handiwork on the backyard fence.)

A teacher by profession, Little is a Livonia resident and the mother of two boys who has worked in her neighborhood schools arranging for special events that focus on colonial days and crafts.

Those events and tracing her family history generated her fascination with women's history, she said. It's lead to a new hobby of collecting clothing and old books dealing with the topic. The books are the basis for her talks and the clothing helps to visually illustrate them.

Dressed in a black, flapperlike jumper worn over a white blouse flowing with lace, with a cameo necklace as her jewelry, Little's appearance was reminiscent of a very demure woman from America's past.

Limiting her topic to the American woman since this country's revolution, Little described how the difficulty of life in 18th Century America made women the temporary equals of men.

"Originally, women did almost everything the men did, especially when the men went off to fight in the revolution. They operated inns, handled finances and ran the family farms. Disguised as men, they even fought in the war. Most of those who are nameless now, but they were there."

WHETHER IT WAS the Revolutionary War, the Civil War or World Wars I and II, women stepped into the breach the men left and resumed their traditional roles when they returned, her research points out, Little said.

By the 19th century, the concept of womanhood and femininity had solidified around marriage, motherhood and church. Anything else was considered part of the world of men, something women were to be kept ignorant of, should they be "contaminated or soiled."

Mona Grigg

TO CELEBRATE Michigan's sesquicentennial, the Friends of the Detroit Public Library and the Detroit Women Writers are offering "Michigan Writers," a series of readings by writers who have lived and worked in Michigan.

The four-part series gets under way at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, April 16, in the Friends Auditorium in the main library with the series' "star," Joyce Carol Oates.

Seven writers in all are taking part.

At 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, May 6, it's Cynthia King and Stuart Dybek, Wednesday, May 20, Nicholas Delbanco and Charles Baxter will read; and on Thursday, June 4, Gloria Whelan and Nettie Jones finish up the series.

The price for the entire series is $20; individual programs are $6 each. The deadline for series reservations is Friday. For individual programs, make reservations a week in advance or take your chances on tickets at the door. Call 833-4048 for information.

And speaking of Gloria Whelan, the prize-winning Mancelona writer has the spotlight short story in the current issue of "Passage North," the Upper Peninsula-based national literary magazine. "Passage North," in case you haven't seen it (and it's no wonder — why don't you bookstores stock Michigan magazines?), is an exciting, innovative magazine published in tabloid format by the Bay Area Writer's Guild in Escanaba.

Editor Elinor Benedict is known to so many downstate writers for her laid back, Southern-style, articulate talks at area writer's conferences.

Benedict sends word that the Winter 1987 issue also includes prose and poetry by 12 other Michigan writers (along with the works of some 30 other writers and poets) including poems by Margo LaGattuta of Rochester and Lorene Erickson of Livonia.

But you don't need to wait for the bookstores to stock it. Funded in part by the National Endowment for the Arts and the Michigan Council for the Arts, this is the literary magazine bargain of the century: $5 for a three-year subscription (six issues, published winter and summer). Write Passages North, William Bonifas Fine Arts Center, Escanaba, Mich. 49829.

MARIANNE WILLMAN, prolific historical novelist from Farmington Hills, is up for the prestigious Golden Medallion Award, presented annually by the Romance Writers of America.

Winners — announced in May and this year presented in Dallas — are selected by their peers — other writers. Willman says, "Just to be nominated is an honor."

Willman's latest book, "Pieces of Sky," published by Worldwide last August, is a gripping period western set in the Arizona Territory of 1873. The book has already won the Critics's Choice Award from Rave Review magazine, and the Golden Pen Certificate from Affaire de Coeur, a California-based magazine.

And just how prolific is she? Well, at the moment she is working — simultaneously — on "a couple of mysteries and two historicals."

Oh, yes — she's also awaiting word from her agent on a couple of TV scripts she popped out between books. Willman figures she can write about 100,000 works in three months time.

Ah, me . . . .

TWO MORE event from the Cranbrook P.M. series:

James Woodruff, popular speaker and faculty member at Creanbrook, takes a "Literary Walk through Ireland," at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 14. On the following three Tuesdays, Woodruff will explore the literary lives of Joyce, Synge and Yeats through slides and writings. $25.

On Wednesday, April 29, longtime Cranbrook favorite Helen Williams explores laughter and the comic spirit in literature up to "the gaity of the middle ages." Williams calls herself a "salon speaker," not a lecturer and often uses props and costumes. It's at 9:30 a.m. with a coffee reception to follow. Price is $8.50. Call 645-3635.

Poet Alice Fulton comes to UM-Dearborn as part of their Visiting Writer's Series. Author of two highly acclaimed volumes of poetry ("Dance Script with Electric Ballerina" and "Palladium"), Fulton has won numerous prizes, including the AWP award and the National Poetry Series Competition. Fulton reads her poetry at 2:45 p.m. Monday, April 13, in Room 2022 of the University Mall.

Cancer Foundation benefit

Three Cities Art Club's annual exhibition will benefit the Michigan Cancer Foundation via an auction of five paintings donated by members, including Dorothy Koliba (left) and Andrea DeZell. At the right is Jan Newell, representing the cancer foundation. The auction will be at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Hillside Inn in Plymouth where the art works is currently on display through Tuesday, April 14, in the Jacob Room. The art show/auction is open to the public.

Women's historical role

Ironically, Little noted, while women were idealized as nurturers, formal education was denied to the vast majority of females.

Mary Wollstonecraft Shelley, author of "Frankenstein," was an early advocate of education for women. "She used the pretext that since women were in charge of raising children, educating them made sense, although she felt women should have the opportunity regardless if they were married and had no children," explained Little.

THE SETTLEMENT of the West is given a different personal and historical perspective than the more popular male version.

The diaries of women traveling west on wagon trains, Little said, tell stories of helpful Indians who, in many instances, aided the settlers with food and medical help, contradicting today's stereotypical image of bloodthirsty savages preying on helpless pioneers.

The diaries also describe the hardship and suffering endured by the pioneers.

Little quoted from one journal: " 'We have been walking all day, and a baby was born tonight.' We don't know if the baby was her's (the writer's), but more than likely, it was," commented Little.

The terse, matter-of-fact prose belies the emotion locked away in the souls of these frontier women. Not even in the privacy of a diary would they expose the depth of their feelings, particularly in matters of childbirth and sexuality, Little's presentation indicated.

DURING THIS period, the legal rights of women were even more limited than their roles in society, Little said, "Everything belonged to the man, even the clothes on a woman's back. If a woman was working outside of the home, all the wages went to her husband. Also, any children resulting from the marriage belonged to the husband."

Little pointed out that in return, the man's duty was to protect and look after his wife. In the best of all possible worlds, these arrangements may have been acceptable, even ideal.

But in the real world, women were often abandoned or they left the marriage of their own accord rather than continue living with a man who did not fulfill his obligations to them.

One area where men and women joined together to defeat a common enemy was the abolition movement. At this same time, since women were still forbidden to speak publicly at anti-slavery gatherings, two women, Lucretia Mott and Elizabeth Cady Stanton, organized the first national women's conference.

It was the unvoiced desire of these women that the fight to abolish slavery would spill over on to the issue of women's rights, but this wish went unfulfilled.

"MEN BECAME MUCH more concerned about the (newly enfranchised) male blacks, and couldn't be bothered with women's rights," said Little.

While these conferences, movements and organizations such as the Women's Christian Temperance Association, were largely nonpolitical, their limited impact stemmed from the persistence and grass roots spirit of the women involved with them

In addition to her oral presentation, Little displayed some women's fashions from the 19th century and old photographs.

After the discussion, the audience milled around the tables, carefully fingering the dresses, corsets, bustles and high-top shoes Little had on display.

Comments ranged from awe over the slightly yellowed but still beautiful wedding gown to laughter at the armorlike stays sewn into almost every garment.

As Little observed the women huddled over the displays, she said, "Just watching the reactions of my audience gives me such motivation and enjoyment."

By that she probably means she'll keep on scouring flea markets, antique shows and book sales for proof via the printed word of the intense struggle that preceded the ongoing struggle for women's rights.

Groups interested in having Little speak can make arrangements by calling her at 421-8382.)

1st garden? Don't be too ambitious

By EARL ARONSON
special writer

ARE YOU THINKING about your first vegetable garden? Don't be too ambitious. Keep it small enough so that you can tend it properly.

Here are some tips from National Gardening Association experts to help you get started:

— Early season soils tend to be moist and cool, which delays the release of natural nitrogen in the soil. Add a synthetic fertilizer (5-10-10 or 8-8-8). After the soil has warmed, organic fertilizers such as dehydrated or composted cow or horse manure are suitable.

— Mulch cabbage, lettuce and broccoli early in the gardening season with a 4- to 6-inch layer of organic materials such as hay, composted leaves or straw. These materials will help keep soil temperatures low, which is favorable for vegetables planted early in the spring. Don't mulch tomatoes, peppers, beans or okra until four to five weeks after planting. When temperatures warm, mulch will stop weeds and hold moisture rather than cool the soil.

— Transplants purchased at a greenhouse should be "hardened" for six to seven days before planting. "Hardening" means getting the plants accustomed to outdoor weather. Start by setting plants in a shady, protected area for a few hours the first day and then add more time and sun on succeeding days.

— Transplants need to be protected against the wind, which can whip and dry them. If the garden site is exposed and windy, set up cardboard, wooden shingles or other wind blocks around plants, or put these protections on the prevailing wind side for several weeks.

— If it hasn't been done for several years, have your soil tested. Early testing gives you time to plan what organic materials, lime or sulfur you might have to spread. Testing may also alert you to a nutrient deficiency that could be corrected by summer.

WHAT TO GROW IN your first garden?

Beans: Snap and lima beans need little care, grow rapidly even in weak soil, and produce abundantly. They are a good source of vitamins A, B1 and C, riboflavin, calcium and iron. Bush beans are compact, low plants that mature in 50-60 days and grow only 1-2 feet tall. Pole beans climb 8-10 feet and can be planted along a fence. They mature more slowly than bush beans but produce longer.

Wait until after the last frost to plant beans. Soak seeds overnight in a jar of water to aid sprouting. Beans like light, well-drained soil. Plant bush varieties 1 inch deep, 3 inches apart, in rows, removing seeds carefully since bean roots are not deep. Set pole beans on north side of the garden to protect other vegetables from the wind. Pick pole beans every four to seven days so that the vine will keep flowering. Water beans often, especially the pole variety.

Beets: Beets grow rapidly, 60 days from seed, in almost any soil. They contain vitamins B and C. Plant early varieties in cool spring weather; late varieties in late spring or early summer. Sow seeds 1¼ -inch deep in light soil. When seedlings reach 5 inches, thin to 3 inches apart.

Lettuce: Iceberg lettuce prefers cool weather. Romaine and loose leaf lettuce can be grown successfully in summer. Any well-drained soil is suitable. Sow 1¼ -inch deep in loose soil. From seed, leaf lettuce matures in about 45 days; romaine and head lettuce in 60-85 days. Thin leafy types to 1 foot apart. Thin iceberg lettuce 2 feet. Water well in hot weather.

Peppers: Peppers don't like cold weather so sow seeds inside about nine to 10 weeks before the last frost. Transplant to permanent, warm soil when plants are 5-6 inches tall. Soil should be moist, light and well-drained. Plants will mature 65-80 days after transplanting. Water every eight to nine days unless rain helps. To facilitate growth, buy seedlings instead of seeds.

Tomatoes: Tomatoes are another rewarding plant. For the new gardener, seedlings are easier than seeds. Treat tomatoes much the same as peppers. However, tomatoes need much more gardening space, especially if you don't stake them.

A few decorating changes may be all that's necessary to make your home a real refuge for your family and a place you want to show off to others.

Savvy

Lessons in design help create dream home

WHEN IS THE last time you stepped back and took a really critical look at the furniture in your home? Like most of us, you probably take your home for granted until company comes — and then, suddenly, its flaws become painfully apparent. Like the faded, worn sofa that should have been replaced years ago, the coffee table that has a puppy-chewed leg and a water mark in the corner and the family room that's a hodgepodge of styles — from Early American to early childhood development.

If the home of your dreams has never materialized, perhaps it's time to think about what it would take to make your home really special — and finally to do something about it.

A few decorating changes may be all that's necessary to make your home a real refuge for your family and a place you want to show off to others. Often, making a dramatic change is as simple as replacing a single piece or adding a few lively accents.

GETTING STARTED begins with an evaluation of your budget, and a re-evaluation of your priorities. Surprisingly, Americans put aside a very small amount of their income for furniture, despite the fact that they spend over half of their time at home.

When you compare the expense with the enjoyment, furniture is one of the best values your money can buy. Think about what it's worth to you to have a given room or the whole house the way you want; plan your budget for each project and then check with local dealers for items that fit your plan in the price range you've chosen.

A good way to start the planning process is with a critical inventory of the furniture in each room of your home. Pretend you're a stranger entering the house for the first time. Armed with paper and pen, make a room-by-room tour, noting every piece of furniture in each one. Then, decide how each piece fits the overall look you want to achieve.

Be as realistic and ruthless as your budget and emotions can afford. Remember, redecorating should be a cleansing experience, so try not to get bogged down by the sentimental value of furniture that has outgrown its beauty and usefulness.

THE OBJECTS THAT remain after your fearless evaluation can serve as building blocks for your new room. The next step is to think about what you want the room to express. Do you want to create a totally different mood, and if so, what should it be? What new additions would help you create the look and feel you want? How can your existing furniture be integrated into the new setting?

To be successful, a decorating plan must take into account your family's lifestyle, the anticipated uses of the furniture and the architecture of the rooms themselves.

As you go through each room, list the activities that take place there. Are they havens for children and pets, or strictly off limits except for entertaining? Be realistic about how practical your furniture must be, and choose a style that best suits the uses you plan for it.

CONSIDER ALSO the style of your house and the shape and size of each room to be decorated. Does the room have a fireplace or window view that could serve as a decorating focal point? Does it get the morning or afternoon sun, or little light at all? Remember, lighting is critical in your selection of your color scheme.

Think about the traffic patterns, the color of the walls, the height of the ceilings and the type of floor with which you're dealing. All of these factors combine to create the background against which you must plan your furniture settings.

If you haven't shopped for furniture in a few years, you may be pleasantly surprised at what you find. Never before has there been such an abundance of beautiful, well-made furniture in such a wide range of styles and prices.

New approaches to wood, new glues, new veneering processes, new finishes and new synthetic materials have all come together to produce a stunning variety of furniture for all uses, in all price ranges.

Furniture-making in America today remains a time-honored craft, and a piece need not be the most expensive to give a quality look and provide excellent value for your money.

BEFORE YOU SET out, list in hand, you'll want to find the best dealer (or dealers) to serve your needs. Are you looking for interior design consultants? Free delivery? Or the widest possible array of styles and prices? The kinds of services offered — as well as the furniture itself — will vary from store to store.

Get references from friends and call ahead to determine the policies of specific retailers. If you don't feel comfortable dealing with the first dealer you visit, go to others until you find one who earns your confidence.

When you can't find the exact items you have in mind on display, remember that you still have a vast selection open to you through manufacturers' catalogs, which can be viewed at your furniture retailer. Special ordering through your dealer allows you to individualize your furniture purchases by choosing from a wide range of available sizes, finishes, fabric types, colors and patterns.

Remember, it's important to enjoy your decorating project. Above all, don't allow the mechanics of your project to overshadow the enjoyment it can bring. Redecorating and shopping for furniture should be fun and exciting, as well as a learning experience.

Keeping a clear view on thermal windows

Thermal insulated windows long have have been recognized for their superior energy conservation. They also are sometimes known for "looking dirty" or fogging between the two panes of glass. These problems are caused by seal failure, according to Martin Peck of Artic Window Replacement Industries, Westland.

Insulated glass consists of two pieces of glass that are separated by a spacer bar and completely sealed. The spacer bar contains a dessicant that insures complete dryness once the glass is sealed. Insulation is obtained from the layer of air that separates the window panes.

Problems begin when the seal is broken and air and moisture penetrate between the panes of glass. Peck said seal failure can be caused when one of the window panes is accidentally cracked or when the fitting of the unit doesn't allow for normal expansion and contraction and too much pressure is put on the unit's seal.

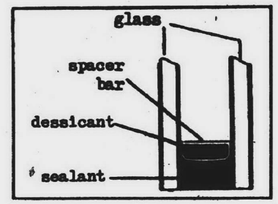
MOST OFTEN, however, seal failimproper glazing, or age, Peck said. On the manufacturing level, errors occur when skips occur in the seals, when the small hole in the spacer bar that is used to blow the air between the panes is not plugged, or when a unit is out of square.

Improper glazing causes premature deterioration of the sealant, Peck explained. This is avoided when the insulated glass unit is properly fitted into the frame to avoid gaps that allow water to sit inside the sash frame.

When properly sealed, glazed and maintained, the unit's seal should last for at least 10 years, depending on climate conditions, Peck said. "The sealant will eventually dry out and shrink, which can cause fogging," he said.

Homeowners faced with broken seals in their insulated windows have variods options, depending on the cause of seal failure. New replacement windows may be covered by a warranty. Windows can also be replaced, but cost can be substantial (to replace a single 3-by-4-foot window, including glass frame and installation, costs about $320.)

A LESS EXPENSIVE option is replacing only the insulated glass unit, Peck said. He warned against homeowners trying to fix the broken seal problem themselves. "People sometimes take the insulated panes apart, try to clean them, and then try to put them back together. Then they usually end up calling us."



Tile catalog free for the writing

3 ways to revive an old wood floor

WOOD FLOORS are regaining popularity because of their charm, durability and ease of maintenance. However, existing wood floors may be in good condition or in desperate need of a new finish. "Floors," a new 16-page publication of the Small Homes Council-Building Research Council of the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, provides the homeowner with information to help him decide what to do and how to do it.

There are three ways to revive an old floor:

- recondition the existing finish
- strip the existing finish
- sand the flor and refinish it.

BEFORE DECIDING WHICH alternative to choose, a careful inspection should be made to determine:

- whether the floor is a hard or soft wood
- whether the floor has been sanded before
- the thickness of the wood
- the condition of the wood
- the condition of the finish

If the floor is not too badly scarred, renewing the old finish may be enough. If spots are discolored from water or animal stains, or if dirt and sunlight have darkened the finish, it will be necessary to strip the existing finish and apply a new finish. This sometimes can be done on parts of the floor and the new finish feathered into the old if the color match is good. Sanding the floor and completely refinishing it is a last resort. While floor sanding can be done by an experienced do-it-yourselfer, professional help is often recommended.

"Floors" presents detailed information on evaluating the existing conditions and reasons for choosing the various alternatives. It also includes step-by-step instructions for removal of old finishes, repair and refinishing techniques. A table of characteristics and advantages and disadvantages of the various types of new finishes is also provided.

Copies of this latest publication in the Old House Restoration Series are available for $1 plus 50 cents postage and handling from the Small Homes Council-Building Research Council, 1 E. St. Mary's Road, Champaign, IL 61820.

Wood mouldings are making big home fashion statement

WHAT DO adjustable-rate mortgages, carports, wood stoves, and toast and platinum appliances have in common?

As buyer preferences in the housing industry they're all out of fashion, according to a recent survey in Builder magazine.

What's in, found the survey, are fixed-rate mortgages, three-car garages, fireplaces and moulding.

The popularity of moulding is easy to believe, says the Wood Moulding and Millwork Producers Association. 'It's an attractive and economical way to give ordinary walls added depth and dimension.'

Wood moulding has the range of projects and can be found in lengths ranging from three to 16 feet at most home centers, building supply stores or lumber yards.

AMONG THE MORE common types are base, chair rail, ceiling and casing mouldings.

Base is a decorative moulding used to cover the area where the wall meets the floor. It also protects the wall when cleaning and helps give a room a finish look.

Chair rail, which gives a room added architectural interest, protects walls against marring by chairs.

Usually placed between 33 and 35 inches from the floor, chair rail moulding can also be used to separate two different types of material, such as paneling from wallpaper or paint.

Patterns of ceiling moulding can be used alone or in combination with others.

CASING IS THE trim that goes around most windows and doors and is used to seal gaps between the window and door jambs and the walls. It also serves to give windows and doors a decorative, finished look.

Ideas on how to use wood mouldings throughout the house are illustrated in "Design and Decorate With Wood Moulding." To get a copy of this booklet, send 75 cents to WMMPA, P.O. Box 25278, Dept. HP, Portland, Ore. 97225. Ceiling moulding is used to cover the junction where the wall meets the ceiling.

Borders are a great way for people to learn about the elegance and versatility of today's wallcoverings. The border above the counter, surrounding the window and the window shade, provides attractive contrast with the lighter shade on the wall.

Budget decorating: borders do it well

BORDERS ARE a good way for the uninitiated to learn about wallcoverings without spending lots of time and money. They're also a good way to decorate on a budget for the person who hesitates about covering an entire wall. They add design, pattern and a touch of color without overpowering a room. Borders used with coordinating fabrics, says the Wallcovering Information Bureau, can make the job of decorating that much easier.

Though inexpensive, borders can transform an ordinary room into one that makes a stylish, elegant statement. Easy to apply, they come in many patterns, designs and colors. They can be applied alone or with other wallcoverings for added detailing and visual interest.

AT CHAIR RAIL height, for example, borders can be used to separate one wallcovering pattern from another. Or they can be used to accent windows, doors or ceilings. Consider giving a fireplace, kitchen cabinet or picture frame a customized look with an attractive border.

Think of borders whenever there's a need to disguise architectural flaws. A high ceiling, for instance, can be lowered by applying a border just below the line where the wall meets the ceiling. Borders also serve to tie a room together because they lead the eye around a room.

If the family budget is a consideration, think about prepasted borders installed by a do-it-yourselfer. All that's required after measuring is to dip the border in water and smooth it on the wall.

Just be sure the walls are clean and dry, that any fasteners are removed from the wall and that any holes are filled and sanded.

Like other wallcoverings, borders are available in paint and wallpaper stores, home centers or department stores. For more information on the entire range of wallcoverings, write for a free copy of "The Wallcovering How-To Handbook" to WIB, Department HP, 66 Morris Avenue, Springfield, N.J. 07081.

Repairing closet doors

Closet doors appear simple and usually operate smoothly for years. But fixing one can easily become an exercise in futility.

Many homes have malfunctioning closet doors because either the repair parts cannot be located, or the principle of their operation is so unique that the average homeowner is reluctant to undertake the project.

For more information on where these universal parts are sold in your community and a copy of "The 15-Minute Fix-It Guide for Closet Doors," write L.E. Johnson Products Inc., Dept. HT, Box 1126, Elkhart, Ind., 46515.

Hardwood planking adds interest to walls

TIRED OF staring at the same four walls? Regardless of whether you want to redo a wall because it is hopelessly cracked and bumpy-looking, because you think an accent wall will make a room really special, or because you just don't like the look of a plain wall. Whatever your reason, consider redoing your wall with hardwood plank flooring.

Flooring on your wall? Yes, that's right! Today's prefinished hardwood floors make absolutely incredible wall-coverings. Bruce Hardwood Floors has introduced a new do-it-yourself plank hardwood floor called "Hampton Plank." Each plank is cut to 3 inches by 48 inches featuring milled tongue and groove construction that locks together.

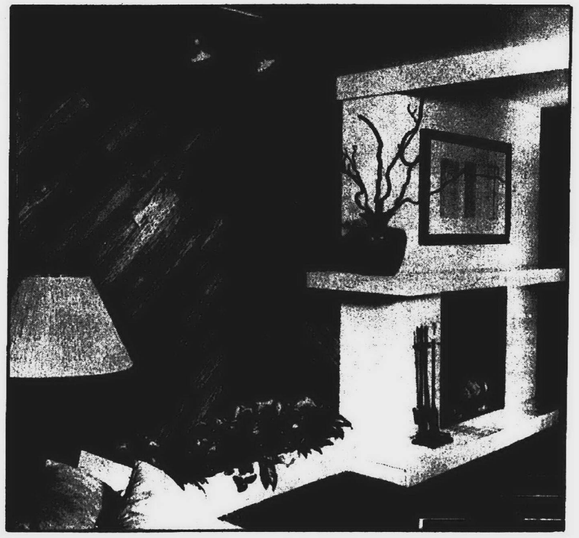
Prefinished and ready to install right from the carton, Hampton Plank is the perfect length for wainscoting. Simply glue the planks from the baseboard vertically to the selected wall, and finish off with a chair rail for a perfect professional look.

If you prefer, run the planks all the way from floor to ceiling, or try an angled inverted "V" effect.

EXPERIMENT, CREATE your own unique wall design, and turn an ordinary wall into an extraordinary asset. If you don't want to do a whole wall, consider highlighting a fireplace or accenting a built-in. Nothing adds substance, style, warmth and richness to a room like the natural beauty of wood.

Hampton Plank's glue-down installation is easy, and so is care of your new wood wall. It virtually cares for itself, just dust the wall and chair rail occasionally. Splashes wipe off easily with a damp cloth.

Hampton Plank comes in a chestnut color and a new light desert shade; each is packaged in special cartons with all types of helpful information on the outside, and detailed installation instruction enclosed inside.



Hardwood floors make beautiful wall coverings. Experiment; create your own unique wall design.

Classic American look

The style of decorating known as the Williamsburg look is an American classic. Never really out of fashion, it nonetheless has ups and downs. Today it's on the upswing again. Here's an example. Decorated in the style of colonial Williamsburg, this suite in a remodeled home links kitchen with formal and informal dining areas and sitting area. Color scheme is periwinkle blue (almost violet), soft blue tinged with green, and white.

Many homeowners are choosing to stay where they are and improve rather than move.

To retain its value, however, an existing home has to be kept in good repair. Twice-a-year inspections, indoors and out, are a good way to see that it does. This kind of preventive maintenance should provide ample warning against spur-of-the-moment decisions on hastily needed repairs.

The roof is an excellent example of an area of a house that too long neglected can be a real problem. Too many homeowners ignore the roof until it is so worn out that it has to be replaced immediately. Like all the other major components of a home, the roof should be inspected periodically to determine its condition.

The roof is an excellent example of an area of a house that too long neglected can be a real problem.

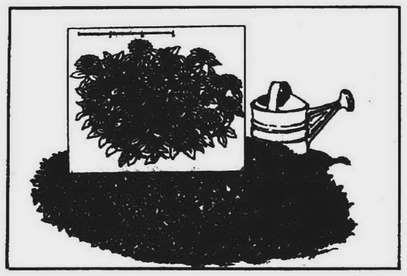
SINCE WALKING on the roof is dangerous, examine the roof from the ground using field glasses. Look for signs of a roof in need of replacement, which include curled, cracked and missing shingles.

If spotted early, homeowners can plan the reroofing with the same care as any other improvement project. Among the decisions to be made that require careful consideration are the material to be used, its design life, its color and the cost of reroofing.

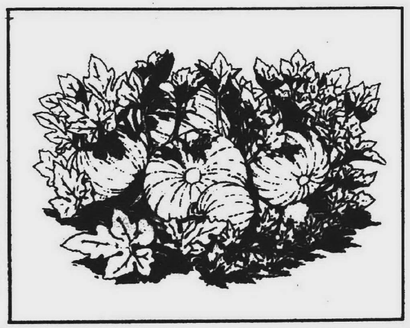
In many cases, asphalt shingles can be applied over the old roof eliminating the cost of a tearoff. The money saved might be invested in three-dimensional asphalt with an organic or fiberglass base that are designed to last up to 25 years or more.

Available in attractive earthtone colors of brown and beige, these shingles require only minimal maintenance. At the same time, their multilayered appearance creates rustic, attractive shadow lines.

All-America Selections names



'Mandarin Orange' has a spreading growth habit similar to that of more familiar ground covers. Planted in containers or hanging baskets, it will cascade over the edge. The semidouble orange flowers look like miniature sunflowers.



Early to color, early to harvest best describes the 1987 vegetable winner Pumpkin Autumn Gold. Gardeners need not wade through the pumpkin patch, possibly injuring vines or leaves while searching for their immature pumpkins. The bright yellow immature pumpkins "stand out" amidst green foliage.

Five All-America Selections award winners — three flower varieties, a pumpkin and an herb — will be available to gardeners in 1987.

The award-winning flower varieties are a double grandiflora petunia, "Purple Pirouette"; the first orange-flowered sanvitalia (creeping zinnia), "Mandarin Orange"; and a bicolored snapdragon, "Princess White with Purple Eye." The new pumpkin is "Autumn Gold" and the herb is basil "Purple Ruffles."

Extension horticulturists at Michigan State University point out that AAS award winners have been judged the top varieties at 60 official trial gardens across North America, including the flower trail garden at MSU. To win an award, the new varieties must show superior garden performance in side-by-side trials with proven varieties.

"PURPLE PIROUETTE" is a double petunia with a purple center and a white edge on each ruffled petal. Blossoms measure 3½ to 4 inches across. Plants form compact mounds. This petunia grows well in hanging baskets, patio urns, window boxes or sunny flower beds. Full sun is best, but "Purple Pirouette" will also flower abundantly in half-day shade.

"Mandarin Orange" sanvitalia has a spreading growth habit similar to that of more familiar ground covers. Each plant will spread to 12 to 15 inches. On a slope or in a hot, sunny garden spot, use it as a ground cover. Planted in containers or hanging baskets, sanvitalia will cascade over the edge. The 1-inch, semidouble, orange flowers look like miniature sunflowers.

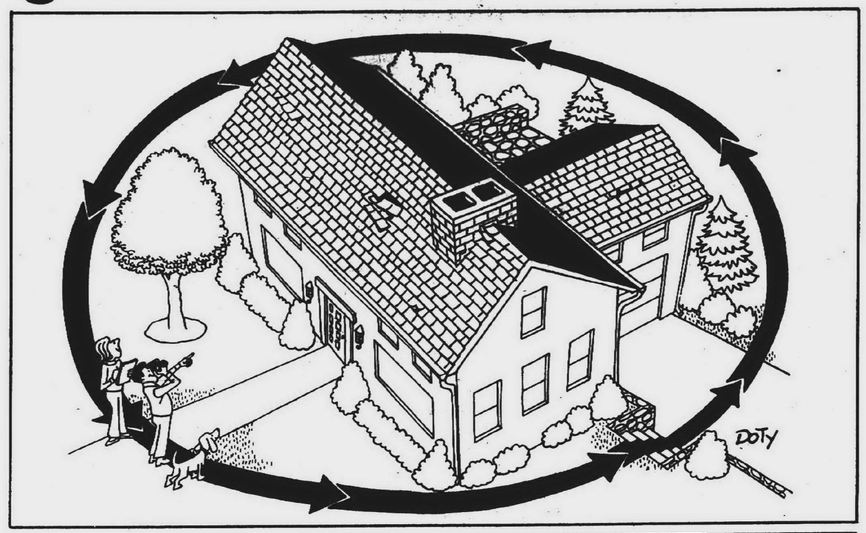
TO ESTIMATE the probable annual cost of a new roof, add the cost of labor and materials and divide the result by the years the shingle is designed to last. The longer-lasting shingle may cost less in the long run because the cost of materials and labor is amortized over a longer period of time.

More information can be found in "A Homeowner's Guide to Quality Roofing." To get a copy, send 50 cents to the Asphalt Roofing Manufacturers Association, Box 3248, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10163.



Twice a year inspections indoors and out are a good way to prevent minor repair problems from becoming major headaches. Inspecting a roof, for instance, is best done by walking around the house with a pair of binoculars for a close-up look.

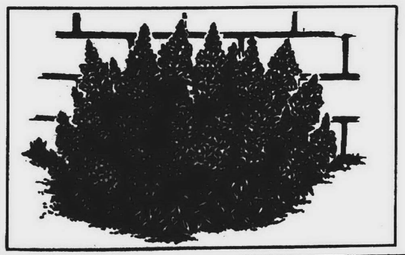
THE NEW SNAPDRAGON 'Princess White with Purple Eye" is a semidwarf variety (14 to 16 inches) that thrives in either a full- or a half-day's sun. The 6-8-inch spikes of white florets with purple centers can be cut and used for floral arrangements. Many snapdragons lose their spikes in midsummer as seed capsules ripen, but "Princess White and Purple Eye" continues to flower prolifically.

Pumpkin 'Autumn Gold' matures only 90 days after sowing. Each vine bears three to five pumpkins weighing 7 to 10 pounds. They can be carved or cooked and the seeds roasted for snacks. Pumpkins turn yellow while still immature, changing to a rich golden orange as they approach harvest.

Basil 'Purple Ruffles' is an annual ornamental herb that can also be used in cooking. The foliage is deep, reddish black and glossy, and it gives off a strong fragrance when leaves are lightly crushed. 'Purple Ruffles' thrives in full sun and a well drained, organic soil. Late in the gardening season, the plants bear attractive lavender flowers.

Home gardeners with facilities for producing their own transplants from seed should find seeds for these varieties listed in 1987 seed catalogs. Others can look for started plants at garden centers, greenhouses and other places where bedding plants are sold.



The new snapdragon, "Princess White with Purple Eye," is a semidwarf variety that thrives in either full- or half-day's sun. Many snapdragons lose their spikes in midsummer as seed capsules ripen, but this variety continues to flower prolifically.

Decked out

This entertainment center doesn't need any furniture

WOOD DECKS are wonderful entertainment centers for family and friends.

The warm, natural look of real wood coupled with easy maintenance add up to a lot of carefree living. But imagine a beautiful deck without furniture. No place to sit, no tables, no planters — in short, none of the amenities that make a deck truly livable.

What should top the list of accessories you want for your outdoor deck? Benches, small tables, perhaps a planter or two? Eventually, most people want to add these accessories, but don't want to spend the summer building them. The answer is to build all your deck accessories from a basic modular unit. This way, you can get a supply of the same sized western lumber and build your accessories when you want them or have time for construction.

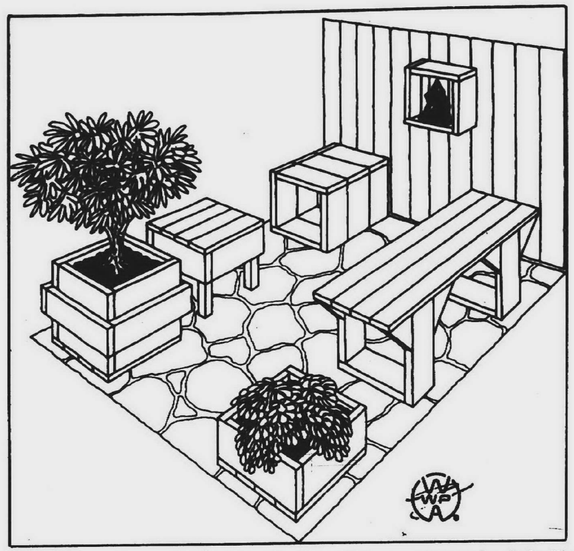
ALL THE DECK furniture pictured is easily built from a basic unit of four two by sixes, each 12½ inches long. When the ends are glued and nailed together in an overlapping butt joint, the pieces form a 14-inch square.

Depending on how this basic unit is combined with other lumber, the 14-inch square can be a planter, table, bench, stool, or even a wall sculpture. For example, a row of four 1-by-4 western boards nailed along the square's bottom turns the module into a shallow planter.

Stack a second square on top of the first, tie the two together with a 2-by-4 collar, and you have a deeper planter. Flip the shallow planter over, add 2-by-2 or 4-by-4 legs, and you have a small table or stool. Grouped together, four or more modular tables form a larger table for outdoor entertaining.

Other deck accessories developed from the basic 2-by-6 square include a bench support, a shelf to hold potted plants, or a striking three-dimensional wall sculpture.

A plan sheet detailing all these simple-to-build deck accessories is available for 35 cents from the Western Wood Products Association, Dept. HI-122, 1500 Yeon Building, Portland, OR 97204.



Deck accessories easily built from basic modular square constructed with two-by-six-inch western lumber. Basic unit combines to form planters, tables, bench, stool and wall sculpture.

Silk flowers should be considered as accessories for the home, and not as an imitation for real flowers, or a substitute for them.

Making a lasting impression with plants and flowers

IF YOU HAVEN'T stopped to smell the roses for a while, you may be surprised. The rose you stop to smell may well be artificial, so real in looks that only the nose knows for sure.

In the last 10 years, sales of artificial plants and flowers have more than tripled, winning acceptance of homemakers, and overcoming the negative image of that plastic geranium stuck into a white pot.

A wide variety of single flowers, arrangements, trees, plants and hanging plants are flooding the marketplace, many of them coming from the Far East, Italy and Honolulu.

Jimmy Reeves, design coordinator for Ethan Allen's plant and flower program, said the breakthrough came in the evolution of quality materials . . . silk for flowers and polyester for plants and trees . . . and in the technological developments resulting in better design and colors.

"The key word," he said, "is quality. The new flowers and plants are beautifully designed and come in almost all species, colors and shapes to provide exciting decorating opportunities for all rooms in the house, and for outdoor plantings as well."

STILL, QUESTIONS ARISE. Are these artificial flowers a "breed" unto themselves, or should they simply simulate the real thing?

Reeves feels they should be considered as accessories for the home, and not as an imitation for real flowers, or a substitute for them.

"Any home benefits inside and out by combining the best of real and artificial plants and flowers," he believes, adding that, with both, it's the skill of decorating with them that counts. Some tips:

- Buy first with color in mind, using the flowers to pick up the accent color in the room, just as would be done with an accessory. Scale, too, is important, using the bigger plants and trees as verticals.
- Do not mix fresh and artificial flowers. If you put water in the vase, you ruin the stems of the artificial flowers, and the rust hurts the real flowers. However artificial and real plants can be mixed, creating the impression that all are real.
- If you cannot afford an entire arrangement of silk flowers, buy what you can, and gradually add to the arrangement, taking them back to the store or florist for help with the arranging.
- Change the flower arrangements or plants in your rooms from time to time, to keep the element of freshness and surprise.
- Clean the flowers and plants with a cool hair dryer, or a vacuum. For silk flowers that go limp, hold the flowers in your hand, giving some form to the petals with your fingers, and then lightly spray a good quality of hair spray to adequately saturate the petals, and follow this with a hair dryer — from a distance.

WHAT FLOWERS AND plants are the most popular?

According to Reeves, the plants that work particularly well in artificial interpretations are the ficus, English ivy, maple leaf ivy and philodendrons. Favorites in flowers are the cyclamen, cabbage roses, iris, bearded iris, lilies, clematis and orchids.

With a silk flower arrangement as a focal point, this room comes alive with vibrant green potted plants and flowering window boxes.

Keeping Cool

A room air conditioner can keep you comfortable at less cost than central house air conditioning, reports the Better Heating Cooling Council.

A cooling unit, either in the window or through the wall, can cool just the room being occupied, rather than the whole house. In very hot weather, it may be desirable to precool some rooms even before using them, a bedroom, for example. In milder weather however, turning on the room unit only when needed can bring the temperature down to comfort level quickly.

BUTCHER THIS ENERGY HOG

Because it's butchering you!

That tank-type water heater you're using is an energy hog! Why heat 30 to 80 gallons of water 24 hours a day so you can have hot water only a few times daily? Did-you know that your big, bulky tank is the second largest energy user in your home?

SAVE UP TO 50%

on your water heating bill and have an ENDLESS SUPPLY of HOT WATER!

You may have read about it in national magazines...how experts are raving about the AquaStar TANKLESS Water Heater...

TANKLESS Water Heaters have made the old-fashioned tank-type heater obsolete. Now, more and more people are making the switch to AquaStar TANKLESS Heaters...here's why:

- Heats your water only as you use it. Never run out of hot water again!
- More efficient and less expensive to operate.
- Heats water only to the temperature you want (no scalding). Safer and more convenient ... especially for small children!
- More compact. One fifth the size of a tank-type heater. Open up more storage and floor space.
- Millions already in use in England, Europe and Japan.
