Debate rolls on over RR crossing

By Doug Funke
staff writer

The condition of railroad grade crossings in Plymouth has Ken West, city engineer, and Tom Frost, resident engineer for CSX Transportation, on opposite sides of the track.

West wants the railroad to rebuild crossings immediately on Main Street, at Mill in Old Village, and at Mill south of Ann Arbor Trail.

He also wants better results from refurbishing grade work the railroad did last week at Starkweather, Holbrook and York.

The railroad reconstructs grade crossings on average every five years, Frost said. There are no plans to do the Main or Mill crossings this year.

CSX's schedule calls for rebuilding crossings at Ann Arbor Trail and Sheldon this summer, Frost said.

The bumpy condition of grades at Starkweather, Holbrook and York with asphalt patch could be "transitory," he added.

MEANWHILE, cars continue to take a beating as they cross railroad tracks in the city, West said.

"Make the crossings smooth — all of 'em," West said. "They just rebuilt

Board to purchase school equipment

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Remember the $13 million bond issue approved by voters in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools last spring?

The school board Monday approved spending in excess of a quarter million dollars of that money to purchase computers, data processing equipment, musical instruments, desks and chairs, science aids, and industrial arts machinery.

All of the equipment should be in service by the start of the 1987-88 academic year next fall, school officials said.

Some of it, however, could be delivered and used by students during the last couple weeks of the current school year.

THE BOARD approved the purchase of:

- 32 IBM data processors, related hardward and software for advanced secretarial labs at the Centennial Educational Park. The cost: $73,883.
- About 66 musical instruments from bassoons to pianos to tubas to be used for instruction in the five middle schools. The cost: $59,800.
- 16 Apple computer systems for Central Middle School, 12 for West Middle School, 10 for East Middle School and three for Smith Elementary School plus computer-related equipment for the central board office. The cost: $54,058.
- Science equipment including models of human body systems, animal and plant kingdom collections, microscopes, rock collections and goggles to be used in the middle schools. The cost: $27,011.
- A computer-controlled milling machine and two computer-controlled lathes, one-seventh industrial size, to be used at the Centennial Educational Park. The cost: $22,310.
- Desks and chairs for the addition to Gallimore Elementary and portable classrooms at Allen, Erickssson, Fiegel and Bird elementaries.

Also, replacements at Farrand Elementary, Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem high schools and buildings throughout the district as needed. Total cost: $40,227 of which $18,461 is charged to the bond issue.

THE DATA processors, computers, some musical instruments and the vocational educational equipment, depending on how quickly suppliers respond, may get limited use yet this school year.

"As soon as they get their hands on it, they'll incorporate it right away," said Thomas Rose of the musical instruments

Rose is director of purchasing for the school district.

"We'll probably get (data processing) hardware and perhaps start implementing this spring," he added. "For all practical purposes, we're looking at next fall.

"Apple is unpredictable. Lately, we've been getting supplies in two weeks. We need another two weeks to get them installed and operational," Rose said.

Don't expect the computers to get maximum use until next fall, said Richard Egli, community relations assistant to the superintendent.

"In some cases where they may be using a machine for two or three kids, they may just go ahead and use them," he said.

While the milling machines and lathes may be installed before school lets out for the summer, comprehensive teaching won't be provided until fall.

"Kids would get an introduction to it, see the equipment, look over instruction material, but they won't get a lot of instruction in it," Rose said.

Card buying leads to volunteer work

By Susan Buck
staff writer

Regina Smith went out four years ago to buy Christmas cards from the Michigan Cancer Foundation (MCF) on Main Street and ended up a volunteer.

"I wanted to get involved with something I knew a little bit about," she said.

SINCE THEN, Smith has spent two hours a week in service to the MCF.

Smith is no stranger to cancer. She suffered a radical mastectomy two years ago and her husband, Francis, 64, died from lung cancer 4½ years ago.

Smith said that she didn't fall apart. She learned she had cancer and dealt realistically with it. "I have 11 sisters and brothers and none of them had cancer. My mother had intestinal cancer and is now living 21 years after her operation.

"It's not the end of the world when somebody says you have cancer. You can live through it. I did.

"You can only live one day at a time, so there's no point in getting all strung out about it. It may seem trite but prayers help. You have to have faith.

"When my husband was feeling ill, we just used Him to the fullest. We went on little trips and we went out a lot to eat because it's real important to have nutritious food when you are on radiation."

SMITH'S WORK at cancer foundation office in Plymouth consists of processing donations, answering the telephone and filling the orders of the many people who request literature and medical supplies.

Supplies, depending on type, are provided free from the cancer office, like packs of cellulose bed pads sewed by volunteer sewing groups and are cut from a massive roll, or at charge from a rental company, upon a physician's request, she said.

"Sometimes when I answer the phone, it seems like a waste of time but when I get back home, I think 'Oh wow, maybe I helped.' People need encouragement.

"People are more aware about cancer these days and are getting checked sooner than they once did. That alone helps to keep on top of things. There are so many kinds of cancer. Sometimes the phone will ring all day and other days, it won't ring at all."

THE PLYMOUTH office, which is supported financially by the Plymouth Community Fund/United Way, staffs 10 volunteers.

Smith, a Plymouth resident who has lived on N. Harvey Street for 35 years, moved with her husband from Dearborn because she wanted her children to be able to walk to school and not take the bus.

In addition to Smith's time as an MCF volunteer, she also has worked as an organist for Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Church in Plymouth for 15 years.

"My daughter, Catherine, was in the fifth grade there and she volunteered me because they needed an organist for the children's 9 a.m. Mass. I still work as an organist there for the daily 7:30 a.m. Mass and have played for funeral Masses."

Smith has four other children.

During World War II, Smith worked as a clerk and cashier at Neisner Brothers, which was like a Kresge store, and managed four Neisner stores located in Escanaba, Ferndale and Detroit.

Cruisers ticketed

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Non-residents last weekend again received a majority of tickets issued by Plymouth Police as a policy of strict, non-confrontational enforcement of city ordinances and traffic laws continued, said Chief Richard Myers.

Of the non-parking citations issued, 26 went to Westland residents, 23 to Cantonites, 20 to Livonians, 10 to Plymouth Township residents, nine to Dearborn Heights residents and eight to residents of Belleville and Northville, Myers said.

Four city residents were cited, the chief added.

A total of 191 tickets were issued Friday through Sunday, Myers said.

Ninety-nine were appearance tickets relating to disorderly conduct charges, 50 were civil traffic infractions, 10 were more serious misdemeanor traffic citations and 32 were parking tickets.

"It was a busy weekend. I guess we should start calling it a typical weekend," Myers said.

More than 150 tickets were issued the weekend of April 17-19.

"I would say the age for both weekends is 15 to 25 for the majority of people (ticketed)," he said.

People 17 and older who were ticketed this month have court dates of May 8, 11 and 12. Those younger than 17 were referred to juvenile court.

Judges in 35th District Court have indicated that people who plead guilty or are found guilty at trial of disorderly conduct related charges probably will face higher fines and court costs this year — in excess of $200.

City officials hope stiff fines will send carousing young people elsewhere in search of a good time.

Fifty-six tickets were issued last weekend for trespassing, 18 for prohibited left turn, 12 for violation of the city's drive-in ordinance, eight for urinating in public and eight for consuming alcoholic beverages in public, Myers said.

A car parked at Taco Bell Friday night was damaged when it was attacked during an argument, Myers said. A couple of isolated fights also were reported, but there were no serious injuries.

Scholars share spotlight

The Observer Newspapers presents its third annual Academic All-Star team on Page 1B of today's edition. The 14 highest achieving high school students from the communities served by the Observer are featured.

The students will receive the latest edition of the Webster's New World Dictionary, a certificate of recognition and a permanent copy of today's news page as a keepsake of their academic achievement.

Our thanks to those public and private schools who nominated students. A note of thanks also goes to the nine-member committee of the Michigan Association of Secondary Principals who volunteered their time to select the students.

Principals serving on the committee were Dale Coller, Stevenson High School; DeWayne Nutter, Clarenceville High School; Ron Cowden, Garden City High School; Clayton Graham, Harrison High School; Maralynn Keil, Lahser High School; Gary Faber, West Bloomfield High School; the Rev. Dennis Andrews, Detroit Catholic Central and Sister Joan Charnley, Marian High School.

Robert Schramke, principal at Redford Union High School, serves as chairman of the group.

It was Schramke who came to the Observer three years ago with the idea of publicly honoring students for academic achievement in the way students have been honored for sports.

"You do a super job with athletics," he said. "Why not academics?"

And so the Academic All-Star Team was born.

Ban on radar detectors debated here

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

If there's little agreement in Lansing about whether radar detectors should be banned, there's less among Plymouth-Canton law enforcement officials.

Police chiefs in Plymouth, Canton Township and Plymouth Township each see the issue — deadlocked in the Michigan House and Senate over the 65 mph speed limit bill — differently.

"I have no objections to them (radar detectors)," said Plymouth Township Police Chief Carl Berry. "A lot of the ads at being made over nothing. It's just not a big deal. Traffic enforcement is going to take place anyway. I don't think we should be in the business of searching cars."

"I'm very much opposed to the creation of any device for the purpose of circumventing the law," said Canton Police Chief John Santomauro.

"I think we deliver a very negative message when we tell people it's OK to buy something to use to exceed the speed limit. Any time you're speeding, you're creating a hazard for yourself and other motorists. Speed limits are done by design not by accident."

Plymouth Police Chief Richard Myers said, "This is a tough one. I don't know that I favor or oppose it.

"I believe if we're going to raise the speed limit, it makes sense to counter it with something that enhances police ability to hold the limit at 65," said the chief, adding that locally, radar detector use has increased to the point where "I notice them everywhere now — on secondary roads and city streets, not just on the freeway."

THE TWO people who answer phones in the Michigan House of Representatives clerk's office probably have heard more radar detector opinions than anybody.

The office "has been inundated" with calls since Troy-based Sharr Electronics and two citizen groups began spending $35,000 on an ad campaign.

The radio and newspaper ads claim banning radar detectors violates individuals' right to own, sell and possess property. It also claims citizens have a right to know if they are under police radar surveillance, and lists the House clerk's phone number in case voters want to register their views with their state representative.

On the line are Lear Michigan jobs in the manufacture, sale and distribution of the devices, it says.

Radar detector sales total $31 million annually in Michigan. Ten percent of Michigan drivers own the devices, said John Lanken, general manager of Sharr Electronics.

Purchasers of radar detectors, which sell for $65-$250, "typically are people who travel a number of miles, typically in their late 20s to late 40s," said Lanken.

ECONOMICS WEIGH heavily in the fray, say Santomauro and Myers.

"I haven't heard a valid argument for them. I think the bottom line for a lot of folks is that radar detectors mean making money. It's a big business," said Santomauro.

Myers says that while it's "probably important for lawmakers to view the economic side of it . . . the industry can always sell CB radios and tape decks."

The Michigan Senate already has approved the ban, (18-16), and the raising of the speed limit to 65 mph in rural areas, (25-6). State Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, voted for the ban and speed limit increase.

The House transportation committee was scheduled to hold a hearing on the measure yesterday.

State Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, favors the legislation.

"If that's what it takes to pass it I'll vote for it. People are flying out there, and there's not a whole lot of enforcement."

Law dismisses individual rights issues raised by Lanken.

"People can argue all they want about freedom. I don't consider it that greatly. The issue is what should the speed limit be and how should it be enforced? I don't have problems with police using reasonable methods to control traffic."

State Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, who serves on the House transportation committee, was undecided on the issue Tuesday. "I'm still receiving and reviewing material on it, and I'm anxious to hear the tetimony during the hearing," Kosteva said.

Fighting with Sharr against the ban are the national Radio Association Defending Airwave Rights (RADAR), and Michigan's Organization Defending Detector Rights (ORDER), said Lanken.

The group raised the $35,000 it used to hire the Southfield ad firm of Yaffe & Co. in "one day — last Thursday," said Lanken.

"We're doing this blitz to get public awareness going. Based on the House vote, we'll proceed."

Springwalk in woods is Sunday

The annual Miller Woods Spring Walk will be 1-4 p.m. this Sunday.

The woods, on Powell east of Ridge in Plymouth Township, is a beech-maple climax forest.

During spring, many wildflowers bloom in Miller Woods, such as hepatica, blue cohos, spring beauty, wild ginger, trillium, dutchman's breeches, jack-in-the-pulpit, squirrel corn and bloodroot.

The woods also contains a variety of trees and shrubs, including American elm, black walnut, ironwood, sweet cherry and spice bush.

The walk is sponsored by the Miller Woods Committee, a volunteer group of Canton and Plymouth residents involved in preserving the forest.

Leading the tours will be members Evelyn and Bill Edgar, Herb Conant and Emily Kemnitz.

Other committee members — Beverly McAninch, Charlotte Gaffield, Doris Chatterley, Beverly Dobel, Penny Wright and Jean Kee — will be available to answer questions about the newly formed Friends of Miller Woods, a non-profit organization.

U.S. soccer team taps Crain

Rob Crain of Plymouth has been selected to represent Michigan on a TEAMS/USA soccer team to compete this summer in Europe and the Soviet Union.

Crain, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Crain of Arrowhead Court, Plymouth, is a soccer player from Plymouth Canton High School.

A resident of Plymouth for the past 13 years, Crain was identified as one of the most talented players in the area by being selected to the Michigan Men Under 19 Team.

Through an evaluation based on open tryouts and coach's recommendations, he was selected to participate in the 1987 European-Soviet Cup Tour.

A senior, Crain has played for the Canton High varsity soccer team for the past three years. He now plays half back for the Chiefs.

The tour will take the Michgian Team to the Scandanavian Youth Cups, The Holland Cup, and the Dynamo Festival in the USSR — competitions which will showcase some of the finest youth soccer players from around the world.

The squad will be competing against other teams from England, France, West Germany, Denmark, Sweden, Czecholovakia, Hungary, Italy, Korea, Brazil and other nations.

Mark Huck, executive director of International Select Youth Soccer of Vernon Hills, Ill., says that the youth cups for soccer players 19 and younger are equivalent to the Olympic Games in soccer.

TEAMS/USA is a national not-for-profit organizaiton sanctioned by the U.S. Youth Soccer Association. All contributions to the team is tax deductible.

Each soccer player is obligated to pay for his own expenses on the tour and is encouraged to solicit contributions.

Crain was notified of his selection on April 21.

Crossing debate continues three in Old Village and made 'em worse for cars than before. Now, planks don't move but cars bounce up and down."

The refurbishing of crossings in Old Village were made as part of a general track maintenance effort and not the crossing grade program, Frost said.

Work at the Sheldon and Ann Arbor Trail crossings is expected to start in July and August, respectively, he said.

"They will probably take two or three weeks, each one," Frost said. "We can do the job quicker and get better results with total road closure."

Specific details remain to be worked out in that regard with local and county officials.

"Usually we will take up old crossings and replace ties as necessary," Frost said. "We will do whatever soil stabilization is necessary, resurface the track and then we apply new crossing material — treated timber slabs."

WEST BELIEVES that the railroad can do better for the city.

"I want to get along with Tom Frost. We both have budget problems. The city of Plymouth is a critical part of the railroad system. What other city has as many grade crossings as we do?

"That's why I think our railroad crossings deserve more attention than once every five years," West said.

"If there are complaints, we will take a look at it," Frost said. "Here, again, every crossing should be treated on its own merits. If the city is displeased with one specific crossing, they have a right to ask for an inspection."

West said he may contact the state transportation department and do just that.

"My next step is to contact him first and see if he can do better than that or I will go to the railroad safety inspector. I don't know what the legal ramifications are except they fall on them and not us."

The process can drag and recommendations of inspectors can be appealed.

Money is the bottom line, Frost conceded.

The railroad annually spends tens of millions of dollars on maintenance in its service area in the United States east of the Mississippi River, he said.

As much as $50,000 can be spent rebuilding one crossing grade, Frost said. He estimated construction cost of the Sheldon improvements at $27,000 and of the Ann Arbor Trail crossing at $24,000.

Michigan alone has 2,000 to 3,000 crossings, he added.

5 candidates try for 2 seats on S'craft board

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Two incumbents face challengers, while a third is running unopposed in the June 8 Schoolcraft College trustee election.

Incumbents Laura Toy and Wendell Smith are being challenged by Charles Grieg and Robert Sadler for six-year seats on the Schoolcraft governing board.

First-year incumbent Jeanne Stempien is running unopposed for a four-year seat.

TRUSTEES OVERSEE academic and financial issues at Schoolcraft, a 12,000-student community college which serves the Livonia, Westland, Garden City, Plymouth-Canton and Northville public school districts.

Schoolcraft has a $20 million operating budget. It levies 2.27 mills for general operations and .13 mills for debt retirement. The levy amounts to $96 for people whose homes are valued at $80,000.

Toy, a Livonia resident, is co-owner of Cardwell Florist, Livonia. A trustee since 1981, she is currently vice chair of the board. She holds an associate's degree from Schoolcraft, a bachelor's from the University of Michigan and has attended graduate-level programs at Eastern Michigan University.

TOY IS the board's representative to SEMCOG (Southeast Michigan Council of Governments) and has served on the Schoolcraft Policy Review Committee, Schoolcraft College Foundation and the Schoolcraft College Women's Advisory Board.

"I want to continue to keep Schoolcraft in first place among Michigan's community colleges," Toy said.

Smith, a Plymouth resident, is president of Nu Trax/Chatham Markets, Inc., Warren. He was appointed to the Schoolcraft board in October. Smith holds a master's degree from Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y., and a bachelor's from Michigan State University. He served as U.S. Jaycees national president in 1968-9.

Charles Grieg
seeks 6-year term

Robert Sadler
seeks 6-year term

Wendell Smith
seeks 6-year term

Jeanne Stempien

Laura Toy
seeks 6-year term

Until 1985, when Smith moved back to Plymouth from Chicago, he had spent the past 16 years living out of state.

When appointed last year, Smith said he sought to bring a "business perspective" to the board.

"I plan to continue doing that," he said.

GRIEG, A Northville resident, is executive secretary to the Downriver Retired Superintendent's Association and a former consultant to the Wayne County Intermediate School District and executive secretary of the Wayne County Association of School Administrators.

He holds a doctorate and master's degree from the University of Michigan and a bachelor's from Eastern Michigan University.

Expanding senior citizen access is among his goals.

"I want to see retired people have an opportunity to use the college — not that they don't have now," he said. "But I'd like to see it enhanced."

SADLER, a Livonia resident, is a product design engineer with Ford Motor Co. he holds bachelor's and masters's degrees from the University of Detroit.

Sadler said plans to develop vacant Schoolcraft property sparked his interest in running for the board.

"As a trustee, I'd have a say in how it was developed," he said.

Stempien, a Northville resident, is a partner in Stempien & Stempien, a Livonia-based law firm. Like Smith, she was appointed to the board in October.

She received her law degree from Detroit College of Law and holds a bachelor's degree from the University of Michigan. In addition, she attended master's level programs at Eastern Michigan University and Wayne State University.

Stempien said she'd like to see liberal arts included in technical degree programs.

"I'm a big booster of liberal arts," she said.

The Schoolcraft trustee post is an unpaid position.

25 face charges in prescription drug fraud case

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Alleging as much as $200 million was generated in sales and fraud, law enforcement officials called the case the biggest of its kind in U.S. history.

Pharmacists from West Bloomfield, Birmingham, Southfield, Farmington Hills, Troy and Plymouth were among those indicted on fraud and racketeering charges Tuesday by a federal grand jury.

Most of the indicted are or were involved with Unarex of Michigan, a Detroit-based drug store chain allegedly involved in defrauding Blue Cross and selling prescription drugs to street dealers.

Alleging as much as $200 million was generated in sales and fraud, law enforcement officials called the case the biggest of its kind in U.S. history.

THE GRAND JURY claims Unarex and its three principal officers — Melvin D. Boyer, 45, Nathan Lee Pack, 64 and Paul Abraham Mittleman, 59 — gave generic drugs to prescription-holders, while billing Blue Cross for more expensive brand name drugs. In addition, the grand jury alleged Unarex billed insurance carriers prescription refills which never occurred.

It also alleged Unarex sold prescription drugs, including painkillers, to black market dealers who, in turn, sold the drugs to Detroit-area youths.

Boyer and Park are West Bloomfield residents. Mittleman is a Southfield resident.

UNAREX OPERATES a chain of Detroit and suburban pharmacies under the Motor City Prescription Center name. A Unarex/Motor City outlet in Livonia and a Southfield pharmacy once owned by Pack and Mittelman were also named in the indictment.

A Unarex spokesman declined comment on the indictments.

The following Observer-Eccentric area residents, all pharmacists, were among those indicted: Thomas J. Cummings, 41; Plymouth; Kevin T. Deane, 33, Birmingham; Irvin Tevlo, Bloomfield; Carl Martin Rose, West Bloomfield; Isaak Gross, 28, Southfield; Dennis Makowski, 40, Troy; Henry Bzdziuch, 44, Troy; David Levy, 41, Farmington Hills.

Cummings, identified in the indictment as owner/manager of Unarex of Livonia, said he was innocent.

"WE'RE FIGHTING it," he said. "I feel I'm not guilty of anything. The essence is the other three guys (Boyer, Pack and Mittleman). I'm being drawn in it because of them."

Bzdziuch, Gross, Levy, Rose and Makowski all declined comment after being contacted at their pharmacies.

Deane and Tevlo were unavailable for comment.

All pharmacies named in the indictment were open for business Tuesday, law enforcement officials said. A restraining order was sought, however, to block the stores from being sold.

Indictments followed a five-year investigation that involved the Great Lakes Drug Task Force, the FBI, the Federal Drug Enforcement Administration, the IRS and the Detroit Police Department. Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Michigan also cooperated.

A Blue Cross spokesman said the operation affects all its customers though higher premiums.

"IT AFFECTS everybody," Gregory Anderson said. "It's not just the pills, it's the bills."

Ironically, the indictments came at a time when street use of prescription drugs is declining.

"Now, it's crack," Detroit Police Chief William Hart said. "But people who were using these drugs as kids are still using today as adults."

Law enforcement officials added that black market prescription drug sales provided a lucrative market in their 1981-85 Detroit-area heyday.

"Dealers would pay $25 for 100 pills them sell them on the street at $25 a pill," Detroit FBI director Ken Walton said.

Drugs allegedly sold to street dealers included: Dilaudid, Demerol, Desoxyn, Preludin and Percodan. Demerol and Dilaudid are painkillers, Desoxyn and Preludin are amphetimine-like stimulants and Percodan is a tranquilizer.

Canham to appeal license revocation

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

The attorney for former Wayne County Chief Circuit Judge James Canham said he hopes the Michigan Supreme Court will restore his client's law license.

Canham, 60, had his license revoked Tuesday by a Michigan Attorney Discipline Board hearing panel. His attorney, Sheldon Miller of Detroit, said the ruling will be appealed.

Although Canham is entitled to a hearing before the full attorney discipline board, Miller said his client's best chance may lie with the state's highest court.

"The board may be subject to the same pressures — from other lawyers, peers and the media — that the hearing panel was," Miller said. "I'm not saying these pressures were intentional — they were unconscious — but they were there. We hope the Supreme Court will stand up to them."

The three-member hearing panel issued its penalty Tuesday morning. Earlier this month, board members found Canham "aided and abetted" former Michigan Appeals Court Judge S. Jerome Bronson in soliciting a $30,000 bribe from Detroit attorney James Flint.

The penalty was the maximum which could have been levied.

"We were shocked, but then we were shocked by the original ruling," Miller said.

Panel members ruled Canham violated professional ethics by not reporting Bronson. Saying Canham wasn't specifically charged with failure to report Bronson, Miller unsuccessfully asked panel members to reverse their ruling.

Canham was given immunity from Michigan State Police charges in return for helping trap Bronson, though he could face federal charges.

Canham also was assessed $6,672 in hearing costs.

Canham, a Redford Township, resident had practiced law since 1954. He began his judicial career as a Redford justice of the peace before being appointed to the circuit court bench. He served as a circuit court judge for 16 years.

In recent years, Canham had operated a Southfield law practice. He voluntarily suspended that practice pending Tuesday's ruling.

Townships oppose campgrounds

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Outlying townships batted two-for-three in their efforts to block state-funded campgrounds and hiking trails near metropolitan suburbs.

A committee of SEMCOG (Southeast Michigan Council of Governments) gave weak approval to one state Department of Natural Resources' plan for a new campground on Kensington Road in the Island Lake State Recreation Area.

"We lose tax revenue at the same time they generate a need for more services," objected Ron Niece, supervisor of Green Oak Township in Livingston County.

BUT NORTHVILLE Township was more successful in stirring SEMCOG opposition to a campground in Maybury State Park on Eight Mile Road in western Wayne County.

Finally, Green Oak and Lyon townships persuaded the SEMCOG panel to oppose a state-funded extension of a hiking/horse trail across Livingston and western Oakland counties.

The two areas are heavily used by residents of the western Wayne and Oakland counties' suburbs, according to license plateholder checks.

The debate last week revealed a lot of bad blood between DNR and township governments.

THE COMMITTEE is called "RC2" — Regional Clearinghouse Review Committee. It does a review-and-comment on requests for federal and state grants that have a regional impact.

"Our recommendations go to the proposing agency," said SEMCOG Executive Director John Amberger, the non-voting chairman of RC2. "They have to file these (SEMCOG's negative comments) along with their application to the funding agency."

That left open the prospect RC2's recommendations could be ignored because the funding agency is DNR itself. The three requests total $1.6 million.

Money source is Michigan's voter-approved Natural Resources Trust Fund. It's the money that comes from oil and gas leases on state land, mainly the Pigeon River Country State Forest.

"The state owns the land," Amberger told six RC2 members, all local government officials. "They can supersede us, supersede local zoning, and do whatever they want."

RC2 MEMBER Greg Pilconis, a Taylor council member and Wayne County economic development staffer, pointed up the townships' and SEMCOG's biggest single complaint against the state:

"It's absolutely obvious DNR would save itself a lot of trouble if it would start by sitting down with local government first."

Green Oak's Niece agreed. "We got our notification of the purchase (of the Island Lake campground acreage) through the press. We're always notified by other people, not DNR."

In the Island Lake campground case, RC2 gave approval only on the condition that DNR work with the township on long-range planning.

But one RC2 member, Jack Morris, a township supervisor from Washtenaw County, shook his head and said, "I'm pessimistic anything will be worked out."

IN EACH CASE, townships' objections were similar:

- Expanded state land holdings would take property off township property tax rolls.
- Township police and fire forces are called upon when there's trouble. Greater public usage of state parks will create greater demand for services at a time when townships' revenue sources are shrinking.
- Townships themselves would like some of these land trust fund grants for their own softball diamonds, not for state park campgrounds.
- Much of the townships' land already is in state or institutional ownership — 16 percent for Green Oak, one-third for Northville.

DNR PLANNING official Robert G. Heimic argued back.

Camping is growing in popularity, but campgrounds in populous southeastern Michigan are scarce, he said.

"Our ownership at Island Lake goes back to 1929, and the recreation area was established in 1944. There has been camping all those years, though it has fluctuated in location and extent," he said.

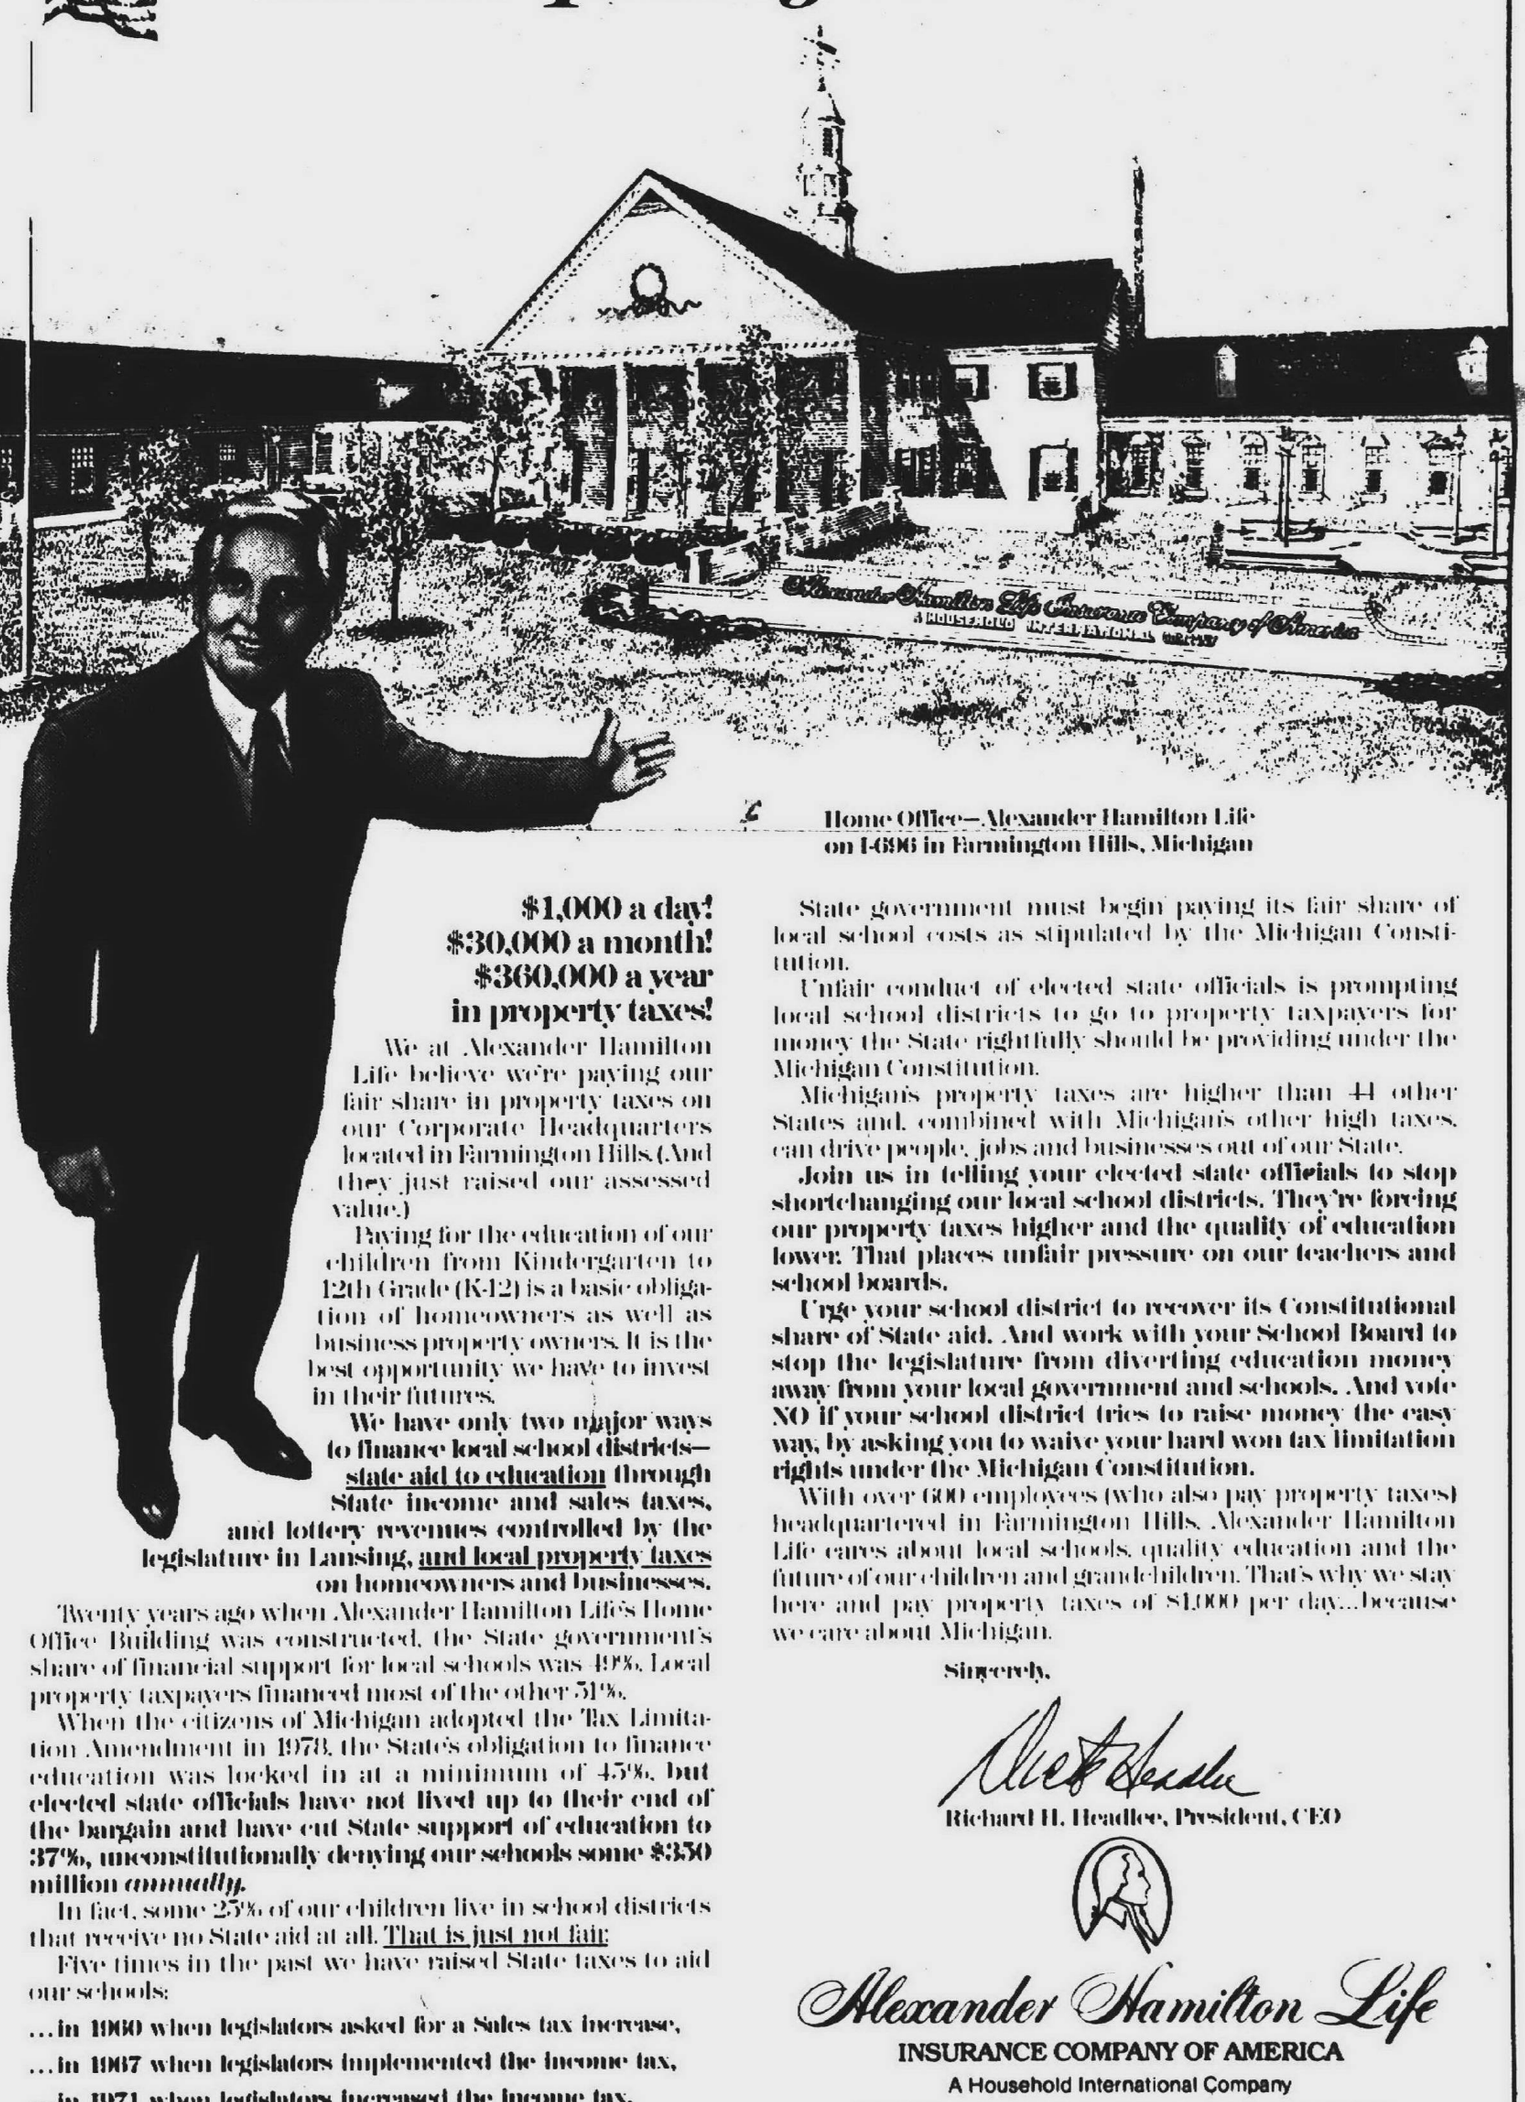
"When you pay $30,000 a month in property taxes you should be concerned about quality education."



Home Office—Alexander Hamilton Life on I-696 in Farmington Hills, Michigan

$30,000 a month!
$360,000 a year in property taxes!

We at Alexander Hamilton Life believe we're paying our fair share in property taxes on our Corporate Headquarters located in Farmington Hills. (And they just raised our assessed value.)

Paying for the education of our children from Kindergarten to 12th Grade (K-12) is a basic obligation of homeowners as well as business property owners. It is the best opportunity we have to invest in their futures.

We have only two major ways to finance local school districts—state aid to education through State income and sales taxes, and lottery revenues controlled by the legislature in Lansing, and local property taxes on homeowners and businesses.

Twenty years ago when Alexander Hamilton Life's Home Office Building was constructed, the State government's share of financial support for local schools was 49%. Local property taxpayers financed most of the other 51%.

When the citizens of Michigan adopted the Tax Limitation Amendment in 1978, the State's obligation to finance education was locked in at a minimum of 45%, but elected state officials have not lived up to their end of the bargain and have cut State support of education to 37%, unconstitutionally denying our schools some $350 million annually.

In fact, some 25% of our children live in school districts that receive no State aid at all. That is just not fair.

Five times in the past we have raised State taxes to aid our schools:

...in 1980 when legislators asked for a Sales tax increase,
...in 1967 when legislators implemented the income tax,
...in 1971 when legislators increased the income tax,
...in 1972 when legislators initiated the State Lottery, and
...in 1973 when legislators implemented another income tax increase.

State government must begin paying its fair share of local school costs as stipulated by the Michigan Constitution.

Unfair conduct of elected state officials is prompting local school districts to go to property taxpayers for money the State rightfully should be providing under the Michigan Constitution.

Michigan's property taxes are higher than 41 other States and, combined with Michigan's other high taxes, can drive people, jobs and businesses out of our State.

Join us in telling your elected state officials to stop shortchanging our local school districts. They're forcing our property taxes higher and the quality of education lower. That places unfair pressure on our teachers and school boards.

Urge your school district to recover its Constitutional share of State aid. And work with your School Board to stop the legislature from diverting education money away from your local government and schools. And vote NO if your school district tries to raise money the easy way, by asking you to waive your hard won tax limitation rights under the Michigan Constitution.

With over 600 employees (who also pay property taxes) headquartered in Farmington Hills, Alexander Hamilton Life cares about local schools, quality education and the future of our children and grandchildren. That's why we stay here and pay property taxes of $1,000 per day...because we care about Michigan.

Sincerely,

Richard H. Headlee, President, CEO

Reading program classes are offered

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Nancy Weycker used to teach reading to illiterate adults in Novi and Belleville — an experience "so sad I decided to go back and help students before they become adults."

Weycker hopes someone else is helping those 40- and 50-year-olds unable to fill out a job application. She's now a reading intervention specialist with Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

Weycker, on staff at Pioneer and Central middle schools, had so much success heading up last year's award-winning reading program that it's being offered again this summer.

THE DISTRICT qualifies for state funding because at least 1,000 Plymouth-Canton students scored in the lower quartile on a standardized Michigan reading test.

Five hundred students — up from last year's total of 260 — in grades one, five, six, seven and eight will be able to enroll in the program for free. Also provided at no charge will be transportation, tutoring, books and field trips.

Ninety-minute classes begin June 22 and continue through July 23. Sessions will run from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m., Monday through Thursday.

Plymouth-Canton was among five area districts whose reading programs were honored with an achievement award by the Wayne County Reading Council.

"We were selected for having one of the most commendable and exemplary reading programs in the county," said Weycker, who developed and directed the program.

The district offers the county's only summer program.

PARENTAL response has been positive, said Weycker.

"Many of the parents wrote letters to school board officials saying their kids for the first time in their lives were interested in reading. We were thrilled to accomplish that.

"Kids scored a lot higher on their post-program test than on the pretest, meaning they did get a lot out of it," added Weycker.

In an age when graduates are suing school districts and universities because they can't read, the district is faring well, said Weycker.

"I'm sure Plymouth-Canton has its share of problems. I want to get to the problem before it gets any worse. If we can get to them now we can do something," she said.

For more information on the reading program, call 451-6575.

Downtown expansion gets under way

By Doug Funke
staff writer

The owner of one commercial property on Main Street in Plymouth already is expanding closer to the roadway, and another has confirmed that he plans to do the same.

Remodeling of the Caviston Insurance Agency at 864 S. Main is well under way and should be finished by the end of June, said Nancy Caviston, who owns the building with husband, Tom.

Ralph Lorenz, owner of Lorenz's Mayflower Square, said he intends to expand the building occupied by Thomson McKinnon Securities at 805 S. Main 20 feet closer to the street.

Work on that project is expected to begin next week.

Nancy Caviston said she and her husband opted for expansion at the front rather than behind their building to save parking places.

Lorenz said his client's needs dictated the direction of his expansion. That and high property taxes on the grass, he said.

CITY CODE requires no minimum front yard setbacks in the general business zoning district, said Jim Penn, engineering aide for the city.

"As a rule of thumb, the property line is generally one foot above the sidewalk," he said.

No other property owner on Main between Ann Arbor Trail and Ann Arbor Road has submitted plans to expand closer to Main, Penn added.

The expansion of some properties toward the street could affect the view from other businesses along the roadway. Also, some green space — grass and trees — could be lost.

"Basically, you can't block someone from building because it blocks your view," Penn said. "We look at it from a safety standpoint of cars coming in and out."

While the general business zoning district doesn't require minimum front yard setbacks, minimum rear setbacks and on-site parking requirements are mandated.

The Caviston Agency moved from Amelia Street to Main about 2½ years ago, said Nancy Caviston. A 1,100-square-foot expansion will just about double the building's size.

"WE NEED the space, storage and everything," she said.

The addition and interior renovations should be finished by the end of June, Caviston said. She estimated construction costs at $25,000 to $30,000.

The agency employs nine people full-time. No additional hires are expected with the expansion, she said.

Work on a 1,200-square-foot expansion across the front of the Thomson McKinnon building should begin next week and wrap up in 90 days, Lorenz said.

He pegged construction costs at between $40,000 and $60,000.

"They wanted a bigger front entrance, office space and lobby space," Lorenz said. "It won't change the appearance in any shape or form. When it gets through, you'll think it's been there forever."

Bernard Cohen, office manager for Thomson McKinnon, said expansion will provide for five or six more jobs at the brokerage. Twenty-two work there now, he said.

Lorenz indicated that he wouldn't be surprised if more businesses along Main with available land expanded toward the roadway. "Downtown, there's no place to go."

How long will woods be here?

ONE ASSET of the Plymouth-Canton community, especially at this time of year, is the Miller Woods on Powell just east or Ridge.

Miller Woods, one of the few remaining beech-maple climax stands in the area, has been called a "botanical gem" by plant experts. The woods contains an unusually rich assortment of wildflowers and shrubs — particularly in spring when wild ginger, trillium, jack-in-the-pulpit, bloodroot and many other annuals bloom forth.

Forest and maple trees dominate the woods because the natural progression of plant growth was left undisturbed by farming and tree harvesting for almost a century.

Trillium blooms in Miller Woods

EFFORTS HAVE been made locally to protect the woods, especially since 1975 when the Miller Woods Committee was formed.

Over the years, that committee worked with many groups who have helped clear the woods of trash dumped by thoughtless people. As a result, Miller Woods has become a vivid example of how care and attention from volunteers can restore a neglected patch of land.

One problem with volunteerism, though, is the challenge of passing the torch of commitment from one generation to the next. While those who have been since 1975 can be counted on to "keep up the good work," what will become of the woods in 1995, 2010 or year 2025?

Each generation must produce its crop of volunteers interested in botany, conservation, and natural beauty if Miller Woods will continue to have its lure for all ages.

That means the Miller Woods Committee needs to be "institutionalized" so it can outlive the present.

TO ENSURE the protection of Miller Woods far into the future, the committee has formed a "Friends of Miller Woods" non-profit organization.

The existence of a Friends of Miller Woods group will make it easier for individuals, businesses or institutions to make financial contributions and still receive tax credits. The Friends are working with the Plymouth-Canton Educational Excellence Foundation to expedite financial support.

But the Friends are not being formed just for financial support. The Friends is a way of organizing volunteer efforts and bringing together residents of Canton and Plymouth interested in preserving nature's enclave on Powell between Ridge and Beck.

Anyone interested may call the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education offices at 451-6423 for information about joining Friends of Miller Woods.

Learning to compete

HANGING IN my office is a picture some say represents a dying tradition. I just wonder.

This painting is of a kid standing on a corner hawking newspapers. That's right, "hawking."

You remember. Newspaper carriers would yell out the headlines from the latest edition. That's when newspapers would print multiple editions to keep readers abreast of the news throughout the day.

With the advent of television and spot news, hawking did fade away. Its last remnant was the "bulldog," an evening edition tailored to catch the commuter coming home from work. I'm not sure bulldogging ever worked. The attempt to get to weary travelers before they got to a television set was undermined by drive time radio news.

BUT IT was fun — and profitable while it lasted. It also was educational. To hawk effectively, a carrier had to read the newspaper. Often competing hawkers would stand on opposite corners. Sales would depend on who could scream out the most exciting headline.

And those who did buy were often generous, thrusting out a dollar bill, grabbing a paper and rushing off to home in time to catch the Cunningham News Ace zooming into their home.

If you're from Detroit and remember hawking, you know that the Cunningham News Ace was Dick Femmel, who hosted one of the first local television news programs on Channel 7. Femmel, by the way, now does business at Blue Cross/Blue Shield these days.

You'll also remember that a dollar for anything was big bucks.

TODAY, NEWSPAPER executives scratch their heads in bewilderment. Trade publications are full of articles dissecting what is commonly referred to as the "carrier problem."

In the last 20 years, newsrooms have turned into technological wonders, with computers beeping, blinking and honking out the news. But in the end, it all depends on that kid with the bag.

Frankly, kids are being drawn away, lured by a variety of competing interests. And more and more newspapers are turning to adult carriers.

WHAT a shame.

Working on a paper route really is different from any other job a kid could have. But a carrier is a one-person business. To succeed, a carrier has to think about new and better ways to attract and keep customers, to become more efficient, to make the bottom line balance. Some carriers are more successful than others. But they do it on their own.

Folks attend MBA schools to learn those skills today.

Working at a fast food restaurant teaches little, if anything, about entrepreneurial initiative. Robots could do the job.

Competing in the world market, this country needs people who can think for themselves. Think about that the next time you talk with your child about working.

Adoption can solve surrogate dilemma

Tim Richard

CASUALLY I'VE sounded out several women on the surrogate parenting question and have been surprised at the vehemence of their feelings.

They see it as baby selling.

Political liberals concentrate their fire on what they see as "exploitation of poor women" — paying them $10,000 to be artificially inseminated and have a baby for a couple who can't (won't?) have a baby of their own.

Political conservatives cite the position of women, but go a lot farther by also seeing bad effects on children who fear they will be sold if they're not good. They see problems where a sperm-donating father wants to back out of the deal.

Both groups see Dearborn attorney Noel Keane as a slime bucket for arranging such deals.

MEN TEND to have fewer qualms. They tend to favor regulation of surrogate contracts — making them enforceable in a court of law.

There are lots of questions to be decided:

Should fees to surrogate mothers be limited, thus discouraging the practice? Should the state require mental and physical tests of the parties?

Should surrogate contracts be permitted where an abortion is required, or where the father decides to back out because he's going through a divorce, or there's evidence the fetus will be deformed or retarded?

I've seen Noel Keane only once and dismiss him as a "slime bucket" verdict.

THE SURROGATE controversy arises because there is a shortage of adoptable babies. Childless couples [illegible] willing to put up $20,000 for a baby [illegible] $10,000 to the surrogate mom.

There's a shortage of babies because [illegible] to 19 is down 40% [illegible] the majority [illegible] from [illegible] to teens, would have been put up for adoption. Today less than 5 percent are put up for adoption.

Why? First, government today subsidizes single mothers through welfare and a host of "social services." Second, social workers appear not to be counseling teen mothers about the adoption option.

THE WAY OUT of this surrogate mess, in the long run is neither prohibiting nor regulating surrogate contracts.

Dr. Edward V. Mech of the University of Illinois, writing in "Child Welfare Journal," reported that "usually no options other than keeping (the baby) are considered" by teen mothers. Counselors simply never brought up the subject.

He adds, "A sizeable proportion of pregnant adolescents — about one in three — expressed moderate or high interest in adoption, with a possibility that some . . . would be serious candidates for in-depth exploration of adoption as an option."

My casual survey found unanimity among liberals, conservatives, men and women that adoption counseling is a great idea.

How do we accomplish it? Darned if I know. My contacts in the Michigan Legislature also are unsure.

We need to find out who in the Department of Social Services can get a handle on the rules in order to encourage adoption counseling — not high-pressure tactics on teen mothers, just honest counseling.

A killing causes outrage

THE KILLING OF Chester Jackson, shot to death at his Detroit high school, has mobilized leaders from Lansing to Detroit and all points between to "do something" about the slaughter of Detroit youths.

About time.

If there is a way to measure these atrocities, then Chester's death was particularly senseless. He was a good kid with a lot of friends and a lot of respect in his school. A silly confrontation with a troubled 14-year-old ended all that.

Check that. It was not a silly confrontation. It was a confrontation in which one youngster had a gun.

SO NOW the action begins: weapons sweeps, curfew crackdowns, and promises that any students — all students — caught with a gun in school will be kicked out. Forever.

Everyone seems to agree that Chester's death was the catalyst for all this. But why the wait? Before Chester was killed, 10 Detroit youths 16 or younger died violently this year. Another 99 were injured.

These figures are startling but not unusual. They are in line with the pace of 1986. If some of these high profile folks had been as forceful a year ago — when there was plenty of carnage to wring their hands about — then maybe there wouldn't be the need to grieve for Chester Jackson.

That's only a maybe, of course. But until Chester died there was more noise than action from the same people dominating the headlines today with their concern. Always there were excuses, always roadblocks, always so-called legitimate reasons why all that could be done was done.

It is naive to believe that cures for such a complicated problem come about just because important people talk tough. A key part of the solution starts at home. But those parents who do teach discipline and responsibility must depend on elected and appointed officials to protect their children from gun-toting students.

Such protection is not forthcoming when Detroit's mayor encourages his residents to stay armed to protect themselves from roving suburban terrorists.

I HAVE long been a fan of Coleman Young, warts and all. But I can't understand how he can move mountains to buy hotels and encourage development on the riverfront, but can't find a way to demolish the abandoned homes in the inner-city. And, for the life of me, I don't see how a man can advocate guns in the homes of a community whose children are being regularly shot down.

Rich Perlberg

And not just children. In a short period after Young's ill-advised call to arms, two Detroit police officers were killed by gun-toting citizens who thought the cops were crooks and a Detroit resident was shot to death in Southfield by her sister who thought she was an intruder.

Now the mayor is among those calling for a get-tough policy on weapons in schools. His support is as welcome as it is necessary. But he of all people knows how to look at the big picture. The guns that come to school came from home. And the mayor said that's where they belong.

A look 'Through Bifocals' at an eventful year

Fred DeLano

IT WAS SUE Shaughnessy, then editor of the Farmington Observer, who picked the name of "Through Bifocals" for this column back in '83, capitalizing on my split-level spectacles and perhaps even a split-level mentality although the delightful and capable Shaughnessy lass never put it in quite those words.

After several interruptions, it was reborn just a year ago and for 52 successive Thursdays has been available to the current crop of editors throughout the Observer & Eccentric chain with a publication average that would be the envy of some of Sparky's alleged hitters.

It was written last May 8 that this column would concern itself mostly with people and things, leaving the deep thinking "to the pundits of the political realm, of whom the O&E has several, all highly skilled."

LOOKING BACK, I think I have stuck to my guns for the most part and for a refresher course am about to present a roster of many whose names have been in these paragraphs the past 12 months. Some are alive, some deceased, some real, some fictional. They represented the passing scene as I have viewed it:

Hopefully in these 52 weeks there have been more laughs than tears or anger, but we'd be dull people without some of each. Meanwhile, as a friend has been known to say, "Onward and upward, damnit."

Experts keep fixin' what works

Tim Smith

I OFTEN THINK I was born in the wrong century. If this is the right one, how come so few things are done the way I'd like them to be?

This thought occurred to me recently as I walked into another of those indoor metropolis that passes for grocery stores these days.

Speaking from experience, it's quite traumatic when your regular store closes. I had shopped at the same store for more than 10 years. I knew most of the clerks by name. We discussed diets, child rearing and our aches and pains over the years. If I missed a week, they'd ask where I had been.

When my husband had to shop for me while I was recovering from surgery, I drew a map of the store for him — I knew where everything was!

BUT NOW, due to the permanent closing of my good ol' Chatam, I feel like a stranger in a strange land cast out in search of a new store that I can feel comfortable in.

It's not just a matter of memorizing a new store. The difficulty lies in finding the kind of store that I'm used to — one that sells groceries.

I don't like it when I'm in search of food and the first section I walk into is completely devoted to garden supplies. I'm looking for ketchup and all I see is fertilizer. 'Tis disconcerting.

Whose idea was it, anyway, to combine a simple grocery store into a hardware store, gift shop, book store, deli, bakery, salad bar, liquor store with 3,000 what-nots thrown in for good measure?

I just want to buy some simple groceries — you know, the stuff you use to make meals for your family. I hate wading through gardening tools when I'm looking for salad dressing.

GUESS MY major problem with this new "state of the art shopping" lies with the fact that these new stores are humungous, I mean really BIG!

They have to be to accomodate the cornucopia of goods housed in one building.

"The bigger the store, the more unpleasant the chore," I always say. Well, I don't always say it but I may start.

I'm one of those shoppers who like to run into the store, grab all that I need, get through the checkout quickly and back to my car before it's even had time to realize it's been turned off.

I don't like feeling like I've made a commitment to spend a few hours as soon as the automatic door closes behind me. Makes me want to turn immediately to the "out" door.

As I was saying, I've just been born in the wrong era. I long for those little Ma & Pa groceries of yesteryear. Can't you just imagine ringing up the grocer and having his errand boy drop off the days supplies.

Yeah, that's the ticket.

Who will protect Miller wildlife?

To the editor:

Easter Sunday we went to Miller Woods on Powell Road. This is a piece of woods posted as a "Protected Area" for wild plants and flowers.

We were surprised to find in the center of the protected area a group of people with trowels digging up some of the wild leeks and putting them in paper bags.

We noted the license number and description of the car that was parked right in front of the sign saying, "Protected Area." We then went to the Plymouth Police station. They said that it was not their territory and that we should go to the Plymouth Township Police station.

At the township police station, they said that they do not take care of this kind of problem. They gave us the phone numbers of Nankin Mills Nature Center and Mayberry Park. Neither answered their phones when we called on Sunday.

We wonder who is protecting the wild plants in Miller Woods.

GOP pair back cut in foreign aid spending

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes during the week ending April 24.

HOUSE

FOREIGN AID — By a vote of 209 for and 194 against, the House removed the $651 million foreign aid section from a supplemental appropriations bill for the current fiscal year.

The fiscal 1987 spending measure (HR 1827), which later was sent to the Senate, allocates nearly $7 billion of its $9 billion to farm subsidies provided through the Commodity Credit Corporation. It also provides money for pay increases and pension benefits for federal workers and scores of other programs including ones for defense and the homeless.

The bill also contained strict arms control language (see next vote).

Mickey Edwards, R-Okla., a supporter of eliminating the foreign aid, said "we can't just throw the money out and forget how that money gets used against us."

Opponent David Obey, D-Wis., called the aid cut "irresponsible, gutless and stupid."

Members voting yes wanted to delete the foreign aid. Voting yes were Republicans Carl Pursell of Plymouth and William Broomfield of Birmingham.

Voting no were Democrats Dennis Hertel of Harper Woods, William Ford of Taylor and Sander Levin of Southfield.

TO STRIKE — By a vote of 151 for and 261 against, the House rejected a motion to strike the enactment clause of the $9 billion supplemental appropriations bill (above). This was a parliamentary attempt to kill the legislation.

House Republicans, the minority, generally voted yes to protest spending priorities and policies written into the bill by the Democratic majority.

A major GOP leadership objection was to the bill's ban on nearly all nuclear tests if the Soviets reciprocate, and its requirement that the administration obey SALT II, the 1979 strategic arms limitation treaty never ratified by the Senate.

Most members voting yes wanted to kill the bill. Republican Broomfield voted yes.

Voting no: Republican Pursell and Democrats Hertel, Ford and Levin.

Roll Call Report

DRUG TESTING — The House rejected, 145 for and 242 against, an amendment in behalf of a presidential order that certain federal workers undergo mandatory drug testing.

The amendment to the supplemental appropriations bill (above) sought to restore money for President Reagan's executive order last fall that civil servants be tested if they hold positions where drug abuse could harm public health and safety or national security.

Supporters said the federal government must take the lead in combatting America's drug epidemic. Opponents argued the administration program infringes too far into federal workers' Constitutional rights.

Members voting yes supported Reagan's executive order last fall on drug testing. Voting yes were Republicans Pursell and Broomfield.

Voting no: Democrats Hertel, Ford and Levin.

SENATE

FAIRNESS DOCTRINE — By a vote of 59 for and 31 against, the Senate passed and sent to the House a bill (S 742) writing into law the Federal Communications Commission's fairness doctrine requiring radio and television stations to air public affairs programming and a diversity of viewpoints.

The FCC wants to repeal the 38-year-old policy, which is based on the premise that the finite broadcast spectrum should not be monopolized by license holders. Stations say the doctrine abridges their First Amendment rights.

Supporter Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., called the fairness doctrine "no more than good journalistic practice that does not chill the speech of broadcasters."

Opponent Robert Packwood, R-Ore., termed the bill a test of "whether the federal government has the constitutional power to tell broadcasters what they must program, when they must program, how they must report the news . . . ."

Senators voting yes wanted to codify the FCC fairness doctrine into law. Michigan Democrats Carl Levin and Donald Riegle voted yes.

STAR SCHOOL — The Senate passed, 77 for and 16 against, and sent to the House a bill (S 778) creating a "star schools" program for teaching of mathematics, science and foreign languages to American students at all educational levels beginning with elementary school.

Its goal is to keep pace with the Japanese.

About $100 million in grants would be provided over five years to enable the nation's best instructors to teach to mass audiences via satellite technology. States, school districts, businesses and other units would form telecommunications partnerships to administer the program.

"Japanese students score twice as high as our students in both chemistry and math achievement tests," said supporter Ted Kennedy, D-Mass.

Calling the program "a waste of money," opponent Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said it would duplicate telecommunications instruction being conducted by NASA and the National Science Foundation.

Voting for the bill on final passage were Michigan's Riegle and Levin.

Awrey tour set for Sunday

Awrey Bakery will host an open house and bakery tour from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Sunday at the plant, 12301 Farmington, just south of the Jeffries Freeway.

Awrey is one of the largest family-owned bakeries in the United States. It was founded in 1910 by Fletcher and Elizabeth Awrey, who came from Essex County, Ontario.

Mrs. Awrey baked breads and pastries in her wood-fired home oven for neighborhood customers. Later, the family opened a plant on Tireman Avenue in Detroit. In 1967 it moved to its current headquarters on Farmington Road in Livonia.

Academic All-Stars

Top picks tapped in area student scholar ranks

The 14 members of the third annual Observer Newspapers Academic All-Star team were selected based on high school grade point average in academic subjects combined with national test scores.

Their totals are the highest among 22 responding public and private schools in the Observer circulation area. The all-stars are headed for such schools as Harvard, the University of Michigan, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Johns Hopkins, Michigan State University and Michigan Technological University where they are planning to study science, medicine, engineering, physics, history and journalism.

They are an ambitious, intelligent, highly motivated group of young adults.

Here they are in order of ranking:

Mark J. Schiefsky

Harrison High School, Farmington Hills

Schiefsky's future plans include pursuing a doctorate in astronomy at MIT, California Institute of Technology or the U-M.

A senior at Harrison, he is a National Merit finalist and was a Michigan Mathematics Prize Competition semifinalist in 1984-86. He is president of the National Honor Society at Harrison and a member of the marching and jazz bands. His other extracurricular activities include playing in the Metropolitan Youth and Oakway symphonies and Olympics of the Mind.

Who has been the biggest influence in his academic career?

"My parents (Mary Ann and Donald Schiefsky), by providing a stable environment in which learning was encouraged," he said.

Annette Dilworth

Stevenson High School, Livonia

Dilworth, a senior, plans to major in theater or education/communications at Western Michigan or Wayne State University.

At Stevenson, she is active in the National Honor Society, math club, forensics and drama. She's played 10 roles in her high school stage career and worked as a student director.

She won the National Council of Teachers of English writing contest and the Madame Curie Award.

She's been influenced most in her academic career by her parents, Charles and Mary Ellen, through their "support, understanding and encouragement."

Paul Fontana

Stevenson High School, Livonia

Fontana, a senior, plans to study physics in the honors program at Michigan State University.

A National Merit Scholarship finalist, Fontana is a Presidential Scholarship nominee. He qualified for Part II of the Michigan Mathematics Prize Competition and is a state of Michigan Competitive Scholarship winner.

At school he is editor of the Spectrum, a literary arts magazine, and a principal in the all-school music and all-school play. He also belongs to the math club, National Honor Society, mixed and men's vocal ensembles and class council.

His family has been the biggest influence in his academic career — particularly his parents, Paul and Margaret Fontana.

"I received the greatest influence to my academic career at a very young age, when my potential for and love of learning were being cultivated. At that point, my parents, warmly encouraging but never pushing, imparted to me an attitude in which the challenge of learning has always been fun and exciting, much like a hobby."

Michael Chiang

Detroit Catholic Central, Redford

Chiang, a senior, plans to study electrical engineering and computer technology in a premedical curriculum. He has been accepted to U-M, Stanford, MIT and the University of California at Berkeley. He also has applied to Harvard and Princeton.

During high school, Chiang participated in 11 school-sponsored activities and one sport including student government, computer club and team, math team, Quiz Bowl Team, newspaper staff reporter and National Honor Society.

He studied piano for 10 years and won numerous awards. He has received 35 math and science awards. He was a member of Johns Hopkins University "Study of Mathematically Precocious Youth's 700-800 SAT (Scholastic Aptitude Test) Math Before Age 13."

The son of Shangli and Ann Chiang, he can speak, read and write Chinese and is fluent in five computer languages.

A National Merit finalist and a 1987 Presidential Scholar nominee, Chiang is listed in the 1986-87 Who's Who Among American High School Students.

His academic career has been most influenced by Dr. Julian Stanley, a professor at Johns Hopkins University.

"By supervising four Johns Hopkins summer programs for gifted youth which I attended, he provided me an excellent environment for learning. This extremely competitive environment stimulated me to do my best," Chiang said.

Heather L. Burrows

Churchill High School, Livonia

Burrows, a junior, plans to attend college and earn bachelor's and master's degrees in biological, chemical or genetics-oriented subjects.

She is a member of the National Honor Society and National Art Honor Society. She participated in track for two years and has been a basketball and varsity football statistician. She is a member of the girls synchronized swim team. She's been on the school honor roll every marking period.

Her parents, Denise and Major James Burrows, have been the biggest influence in her academic career.

"My parents have always encouraged me to take demanding classes and strive for excellence in my education," said Burrows.

He won second place in the World Hunger/United National essay contest and fourth place in the Detroit College of Business Accounting Contest. He is valedictorian for the Class of 1987 and winner of the United States Achievement Academy National Award.

Who has influenced his high school career?

"My mother's continual support has made me strive to be the best that I can be. Her encouragement has given me a reason to never give up and to always give 100 percent," said Payne, the son of Frank and Jan Payne.

Todd Wright

Lutheran High Northwest, Farm. Hills

Wright, the son of Richard and Sally Wright, plans to attend Michigan Tech and study physics.

A senior at Lutheran High Northwest, Wright is a member of the handbell choir and photography club and president of the computer club.

His academic honors include National Honor Society, Phi Beta Kappa and National Merit Finalist.

Wright said no single person has influenced his academic career.

"It has been a collection of all the people I have come in contact with, by their supportiveness of my decisions."

Gregory L. Shomo

Franklin High School, Livonia

Shomo, a senior, plans to major in history at college and pursue a career in teaching.

At Franklin, Shomo is treasurer of the Student Congress and president of the Bel Canto Choir. He also is a member of the National Honor Society, the Singing Patriots, varsity soccer, varsity track, all-school musical and all-school varsity show.

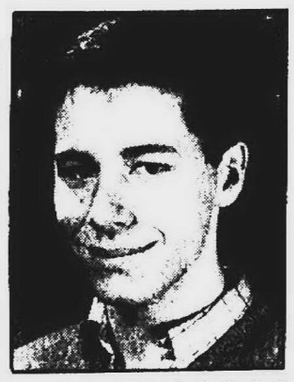
He is a National Merit Scholarship winner and a recipient of the Hillsdale College Distinct Honors Scholarship. He also received the mathematics department award at Franklin.

Who has influenced his academic career the most? Don Nicholson, a teacher at Franklin.

"Mr. Don Nicholson has influenced my academic career by teaching me that school can be fun and learning enjoyable. Also, I learned that content is more important than form," said Shomo, the son of Bonnie Neuman and Roger Shomo.

Brian Tobin

Farmington High School, Farmington



Tobin, a senior, plans to attend the college of literature, science and the arts honors program at the U-M.

During high school, Tobin has been a member of the physics and Spanish clubs.

He has been honored by Phi Beta Kappa.

Tobin, the son of Edward and Elizabeth Tobin, credits his middle school teachers "who saw potential in me even though I fooled around . . . and received poor grades due to lack of effort" with having the most influence on his academic career.

Philip Brosnan

Thurston High School, Redford

Although he enjoys science and math, Brosnan hasn't selected a major yet. For the first few years of his college career, he plans to concentrate on fulfilling liberal arts requirements.

He has received scholarships at Northeast Missouri State and Wayne State University. He's also considering MSU and Oakland University.

Besides academic classes, Brosnan plans to get involved in extracurricular activities during his college years. He has played varsity golf for three years in high school and wants to continue golfing in college. He also plans to continue acting.

When he graduates, Brosnan plans to get a job in a technical field.

"Someday I hope to open a small theater company where I can act and direct. I am also going to get married and have a small family," he said.

At Thurston, Brosnan has participated in several school plays and musicals. He's also been active in orchestra, concert choir, varsity tennis, student council, the school yearbook and newspaper and National Honor Society.

His father has had the greatest influence on his high school years.

"He has always encouraged me to be successful in anything I set out to do," said Brosnan, a senior at Thurston and the son of Martin and Joan Brosnan.

Helping out

Plymouth Lions Club member Phil Himebaugh collects money from a motorist at the corner of Ann Arbor Trail and Main in Plymouth. Proceeds from the sale support a variety of local and state projects, including programs to help the blind and visually impaired.

Praise

Local volunteers lauded

Plymouth-Canton residents were among those recently honored for volunteer service at the Catherine McAuley Health Center. Volunteers were honored at a recognition banquet April 7 at the Holiday Inn West in Ann Arbor.

Carolyn Jacobs of Plymouth and Mary Tyson of Canton were honored for donating 1,000 hours each of volunteer service. They received the Marie Peterson Award.

Jacobs was one of several Plymouth women who started St. Joseph Mercy Hospital's volunteer program in the admitting department in 1978. The program was started as a living memorial to their friend, Hazel Larson, a longtime Plymouth resident.

Nine years later, Jacobs is still with the program, rarely missing her Wednesday afternoons at St. Joseph's. She takes patients to their rooms and shows them how to operate the beds and phones. Jacobs answers patients' questions and tries to make them feel comfortable in their new surroundings.

JACOBS ALSO serves as a health center tour guide. She also helps out as a substitute at the Arbor Health Building in Plymouth.

Canton's Mary Tyson has been volunteering at the health center's ambulatory surgery facility for five years. She escorts patients to pre-operating rooms and gives them their hospital gowns and general instructions.

After surgery, Tyson brings families to meet patients in the recovery rooms and then wheels patients to the car for the trip home. She works from 7:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Tuesdays.

"I enjoy it very much," Tyson said. "I always wanted to be a nurse and this is the closest I've come."

The Catherine McAuley Health Center volunteers work in a variety of areas.

"The value of their precious time and caring cannot be measured," said JoAnne Desmond, director of volunteer services. "Their help and concern add a special dimension to the health center."

Others from Plymouth are: Arlene Keasy, Phyllis Kordich, Joyce Larsen, Helen Merrill, Jeanine Miller, Jacqueline Monte, Bob Mullen, Betty Murray, Nancy Nelson, JoAnne Persico, Mary Priebe, Rosalene Renauer, Bruce Scott, Veralou Scott, Stella Smith, Norma Stevens and Lila Vincent.

CANTON HONOREES are: Jasmine Abbosh, Bob Beebe, Nicholette Bonnett, Georgia DeNoyer, Doris Ewald, Loretta Olesuczuk, Jane Paeschke, Dorothy Park, Betty Rolig, Jessie Sandison, Jacquiln Stack and Doris Timberlake.

Volunteers work at a number of Catherine McAuley Health Center facilities, including St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor and the Arbor Health Building in Plymouth. Volunteers can work directly with patients or in non-patient contact positions.

Day, evening and weekend assignments are available. Training is provided for all volunteer jobs. For more information, call the volunteer services office, 572-4159.

Chorus plans spring concert

The Plymouth Community Chorus will present its annual spring concert, "A Night on Broadway," at 7:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, May 16-17. The concert will be presented in the auditorium of Plymouth Salem High School, Canton Center and Joy roads in Canton.

The annual concert by the 135-voice chorus will feature accompaniment by the Plymouth Symphony.

The concert will feature musical selections by Lerner and Loewe, Cole Porter, Rodgers and Hammerstein, Rodgers and Hart, Jerome Kern and George Gershwin.

The original Broadway scores were obtained through the Rodgers and Hammerstein Library in New York. They include songs from such memorable shows as "Oklahoma," "The Sound of Music," "Camelot," "Gigi," "Paint Your Wagon," "Porgy and Bess," "Carousel," "My Fair Lady" and many more.

THE CONCERT will feature solo and small group performances by Plymouth Community Chorus members.

"A Night on Broadway," a concert for soloists, chorus and orchestra, was the original idea of Michael Gross, director of the Plymouth Community Chorus.

Gross and Clara Camp, Plymouth Symphony Society president, have been working in recent months to combine the talents of the chorus and the Plymouth Symphony for a full-length concert. Kay Mintz was also instrumental in the negotiations.

Tickets for "A Night on Broadway" are available from chorus and symphony members. Tickets are also available at the Stagecoach Shop in Plymouth and the Gittleman Music Store in Northville.

Reduced rates are available for groups, students and senior citizens.

The Plymouth Community Chorus draws its membership from throughout the tri-county area. The chorus is in its 13th year of presenting programs for mixed voices across a spectrum of traditional and contemporary music.

The Plymouth Inn
The Gracious Alternative

Someone you love is growing older and needs just a bit more support than he or she can get in their current living situation. A nursing home isn't the answer. Normal activities like eating and dressing aren't a problem. But you would be happier knowing someone was there to provide gentle encouragement and firm support when needed, in a non-institutional atmosphere.

The answer is The Plymouth Inn, a magnificent residence for seniors who want their independence but need some supervision as well. Consider some of the many advantages:

- Spacious mini-suites for those who desire extra comfort and privacy.
- Deluxe semi-private accommodations, richly appointed, with private lavatories and showers.
- Conveniently located near Plymouth, Northville, and Livonia, with easy access to major highways.
- Tranquil landscaped grounds and lovely common areas.
- Three delicious meals served in our central dining room by a friendly, attentive staff of professionals.
- Extensive, varied social programs and recreational opportunities.
- Game room, chapel, beauty parlor and lounges, all designed with the special needs of our residents in mind.

The Plymouth Inn welcomes your inspection visit. When you see what we have to offer we think you will agree that The Plymouth Inn is a very special place where your loved one can feel secure, yet independent. We invite you to call today for an appointment.

Riders needed for area event

Riders are needed for the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital's "Wheels for Life" Bikathon.

The event is scheduled for Saturday, May 30, at Mayberry State Park. Canton's Kathleen Bradbury is chairwoman of the event.

The bikathon honors Jolene, a leukemia patient at St. Jude.

"This ride is a vital part of the fight against childhood cancer at St. Jude," Bradbury said. "Riders are really needed. They make or break the bikathon."

Sponsors donating a sum for each mile completed are enlisted by riders. All riders turning in money will receive a certificate.

Those who raise $50 receive a certificate and a St. Jude T-shirt. Those who raise $75 receive a navel pack bag, a T-shirt and a certificate.

THE RIDER who raises the most money will receive a savings bond, a gift certificate for the Easy Rider Bike Shop, a barrel tote bag, a T-shirt and a certificate.

Sponsor forms are available at the Easy Rider Bike Shop, at Ford and Sheldon roads in Canton, or at the Canton Public Library.

The event is designed to be fun for participants, Bradbury said.

"The general plan is to have a good time while helping a wonderful group of children. Coming out for support."

For information on riding or sponsoring a rider, call 397-9441. Information is also available by writing to Kathleen Bradbury at 1751 Regency Court, A204, Canton, MI

Pastor installed at Plymouth church

The Rev. Rod Trusty was recently appointed as pastor of The Praise Chapel Church of God, 889 N. Mill St., Plymouth.

Trusty, along with his wife Julie, came to Praise Chapel from Warren where he served as assistant pastor of the Evangel Temple Church of God for over two years.

Since their arrival, the church name has changed from Plymouth Church of God to Praise Chapel Church of God. Renovations on the church building are also under way, including a new $9,000 sign and reconstruction of the bell tower.

"We wanted to have a new image in the area," Trusty said. "Our motto is: 'The new church in the old village.'"

Rod and Julie Trusty

The Trustys preside over a congregation of 60 at the Pentecostal church. Both Trusty and his wife are musically inclined and provide the musical ministry at the church.

While at Evangel Temple, he was also coordinator of Active Christian Teens (ACTS), a non-denominational club designed for high school students.

He also served as the state evangelist for the Churches of God in Maryland, Delaware, Washington, D.C. and Illinois. He traveled to churches in each state, speaking and organizing revivals.

Former Livonian to be ordained as priest

The Rev. Mark McQuesten, formerly of Livonia, will be ordained to the Roman Catholic priesthood at 6 p.m. Friday at St. Peter Cathedral in Marquette.

McQuesten, 37, will be ordained along with fellow deacon John Maloney of Ishpeming. Bishop Mark Schmitt will preside.

For the last four months, McQuesten has been a deacon at St. Peter Cathedral. He's also worked at St. Mary Parish of Norway, St. Andrew Parish of Nahma and St. Stanislaus Kostka Parish in Goetzville.

Before entering the seminary, McQuesten's home parish was Our Lady of Good Counsel in Plymouth.

Said McQuesten on entering the priesthood, "My pastors had called me and invited me to explore the possibility of being a priest . . . The priesthood offered me the opportunity to practice my faith and exercise my moral values, whereas I found it necessary to constantly compromise those things in business and politics."

The Rev. Mark McQuesten to be ordained

McQUESTEN'S INITIAL interest in the priesthood occurred while at Livonia Bentley High School. After graduation, he worked with a priest in Mexico at a mission.

His parents, Richard and Valerie McQuesten, live in Livonia. They belong to St. Genevieve Parish of Livonia.

More discipline could lead to less divorce

IT'S ALWAYS the same. Even after all these years in the ministry. When someone tells me, "We're getting a divorce." It just tears me apart.

Most divorces are not unexpected. There have been enough signs along the way to indicate a precarious relationship. Usually not major issues, but rather persistent and more contentious incivility. Divorce is frequently a cumulative decision.

As individuals and a society, we do not respond well to incivility. We do not understand it, and we do not know how to handle it. But we do not like it, and we exacerbate the condition with our reactions.

THERE'S A BASIC streak of simple meanness that runs right through human nature. Some call it malice, or inferiority, or sin. But regardless of what it is called, when we feel ourselves threatened in any way, we activate all the defense machanisms we have at our disposal. The problem is that our defense mechanisms are most often used to defend only ourselves at all costs.

An illustration of incivility: A junior executive is not selected for promotion. He blames his wife and children. They were not supportive and cooperative. They made too many demands on him. He was not able to concentrate on his work.

She had said the wrong things at the office dinner dance. She fights back. They argue. When the children ask for something, he says they can't afford it because he didn't get the promotion.

Most of the divorces I know include children. I can't recall children ever being the cause of a divorce, but they certainly become an issue in the divorce.

Children are not usually privy to the decision-making process, but they are most assuredly its victims. Parents need to remember what happens to children in divorce cases, and they need to recognize how they often use their children as a means to get even with their spouse for grievances unrequited.

Even the designation of custody, a practice used to provide a community judgment, and thus a more reasoned one, is pejorative in tone. We use it for criminals and children.

WE NEED MORE discipline of thought and practice in marriage and family life. We need to be mindful of our acts of incivility and how they create discontent and discord. We need to recognize and acknowledge our capacity to be self-centered. We are not be nature kind and loving and generous of heart and mind. That is why we teach our children to say "please" and "thank you".

We have made divorce a legal issue. Husbands and wives can file to end a marriage. Children can be assigned to custody. Property can be divided. Lawyers can propose and courts can dispose. It all has to do with our rights as citizens and members of this society.

Divorce is a moral issue. Marriage is a promise of faithfulness for the sake of life and community. Children are gifts of life for the sake of life and community. We need more attention to our responsibilities.

Responsibilities to be stewards of decency and civility. Responsibilities to be care-takers of one another with love and compassion. Responsibilities to be examples of faithfulness and truth. Responsibilities to be disciplined of thought and action. Responsibilities to be fathers and mothers in thought, emotion and action, and not just in body and spirit.

MAY 3-9 is Michigan Recycling Week

Recycling as an American tradition began with the Revolution. A statue was recycled into bullets for the patriots.

During World War II, there were children's scrap drives where everything from tin cans to animal fat was collected for reuse. Oil recycling began during WWII, and service stations still continue the practice today.

Since WWII, however, Americans have been conditioned to think that anything old, empty, broken or worn-out should be thrown away. It wasn't until the late '60s and a re-emergence of the importance of protecting our environment that people discovered "when you throw something away, there really is no 'away.'"

THE 1974-75 recession ended that phase of recycling prosperity, and many of the country's 3,000 recycling centers closed down.

The early '80s brought another look at recycling from an unlikely source — local government officials. These officials were beginning to face a problem of increased trash disposal costs combined with fewer landfills available to receive the trash.

But progress has been slow because most of us are unaware we face a crisis. There really is no "away" any more, even though our trash still disappears from our curb weekly.

The time has come to join (or rejoin) those recycling "fanatics" to solve this increasing solid waste problem.

Recycling in the broadest sense refers to any process that reclaims materials for reuse. Recycling can play an important part in reducing the amount of waste produced and achieving a more sustainable way of life by conserving resources. However recycling is really only half the answer to our growing waste problem.

THE OTHER half is to reconsider the use of our resources in the first place and eliminate unnecessary waste when using our natural resources. These principles encompass both halves of this problem:

1. Avoid creating waste in the first place.

- Avoid over-packaging on all products.
- Avoid products with "built-in obsolescence" such as disposable lighters, batteries and machines that do not have available replacement parts.
- Avoid goods made from a combination of materials that are difficult to separate for recycling.
- Avoid long-life materials when they are for disposable items, such as plastic bags and styrofoam cups.
- Avoid goods that are unnecessary or wasteful of resources, like electric knives.

2. Products should be designed for reuse.

Reuse is usually more energy efficient than recycling. Melting down glass containers saves only 2 percent more energy than making new ones. Reuse can save from 25-40 percent of the energy consumed to make new containers.

3. When reuse is impossible, materials should be broken down into their basic components and recycled.

- Many materials can be reused in this way including the lead in batteries, copper products, tin and aluminum, and motor oil.

4. If materials are not reuseable or recyclable, they can be used for energy generation.

Energy can be recovered from waste through burning and using the heat created either directly or as a power source for electricity or steam generation.

ECO-TIP: Recycling Centers:

Oakland County: Birmingham Recycling Center, DPW Yard Corner Eton-Holland Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Glass, paper, cans. 545-0322.

Wayne County Recycling Center: W. Jefferson, in front of the Detroit Edison smokestack (Downriver area), Saturdays 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Newspapers, glass, cans. 671-0170.

Huntington Woods has a newspaper dropoff. Call 541-4300 for details.

In Monday's Street Wise column in the Street Scene section, we mistakenly mentioned that a hot-air balloon race would be part of this year's Great Chili Cook-off in Saline, a benefit for the Kidney Foundation of Michigan Inc. Although balloons have been featured at past cook-offs, the Kidney Foundation points out that balloons will not be a part of the cook-off this year.

The sanctioned cook-off will be Saturday and the renegade cook-off (which allows cooks to add beans and other thickening agents) will be Sunday at the Saline Farm Council Grounds. Take US 23 south of I-94 to Michigan Avenue, then go west on Michigan Avenue to Saline.

The Adult Adoptee Discussion Group is for people who were adopted as children and are now adults.

The group meets 8:30-9:30 p.m. the second and fourth Mondays of the month at the Lee Shulman and Associates Building.

For more information, call Linda Yellin at 822-8546. Or write her at: Post Adoption Resources, 8131 E. Jefferson, Detroit 48214.

Workshop focuses on teen adoptees

A workshop for teen adoptees and their parents will be 12:30-5:30 p.m. Saturday, May 16.

Sponsored by Post Adoption Resources of the Lutheran Adoption Service, the workshop will take place at Cana Lutheran Church. The church is at 2119 Catalpa (11½ Mile), a half mile west of Woodward, in Berkley.

Hard work drives trucking entrepreneur

By Brian Lysaght
staff writer

Right now one of Jim Ratliff's semi-trailer trucks is probably rumbling down an interstate in Kentucky or Illinois or Indiana loaded up and headed back to Michigan.

Twenty-two of the big trucks run out of the Ratliff Trucking terminal in Plymouth. They carry mostly auto components across the central states of Illinois, Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana, and, of course, Michigan.

Ratliff, a Canton resident, employs 25 drivers and five mechanics to drive the rigs and keep them running. His trucks are on the road 24 hours a day, six days a week.

Four years ago Ratliff Trucking had three trucks and wasn't much more than a hand-painted sign on a door. Today Ratliff is feeling squeezed in his company terminal on Eckles Road and plans to build another on Michigan Avenue in Canton.

The company grew as the result of hard work. Ask Ratliff when the day begins and he'll say "early." Ask him when it ends and he'll say "late."

"It's a long day," he said.

His trucks haul unfinished parts from vendor to factory or factory to factory for General Motors and Ford Motor Co.

"We have a lot of round robin with the auto companies hauling racks one directon and loaded auto components the other direction," Ratliff said. He doesn't drive his trucks anymore because of insurance regulations, he explained.

RATLIFF BEGAN his career driving as a route salesman for a drink company in New Jersey. From there he began leasing and driving his trucks for 7-Up, hauling liquid sugar to company plants in Michigan, Ohio and Indiana.

Ratliff said living in Canton and working in Plymouth is advantageous, but the family settled in the area by chance.

"I had an option to settle in many places," Ratliff said. "I feel it's a God-given thing. I just followed where my mind led me."

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Jim Ratliff's trucks haul unfinished parts from vendor to factory or factory to factory for General Motors and Ford Motor Co.

He is probably thankful he did. A neighbor and Ford employee named Jay Harris told Ratliff about Ford's minority supplier program. After making some phone calls and filing some paperwork, Ratliff got an interstate trucking license and began hauling Ford products from vendor to assembly plant. His business began to grow.

Ray Jensen, a Ford spokesman, said the minority supplier program seeks out minority-owned and controlled companies like Ratliff Trucking and tries to develop with them "a long-term profitable relationship with Ford."

Canton resident Steve Larson, coordinator for Ford's Transportation Minority Supplier Development Council, the group that works directly with truck companies and other transporters, said Ratliff's is a small company by Ford standards.

"(Ratliff) is a very good entrepreneur," Larson said. "He owns his trucks, he doesn't lease them, and he is growing at a pace he can handle."

RATLIFF SAID his trucks are now licensed to haul anything but explosives. He says he is hoping to expand his business. The new truck terminal, into which the company will move next January, will have a dock and larger garage. The facilities should enable Ratliff Trucking to haul locally, carrying non-auto related loads in addition to the interstate work for auto companies.

Ratliff hopes to hire eight to nine more employes and buy more trucks, but he talks cautiously about the future.

"Our future for the company is to make plans for any downfall or depression that might occur," Ratliff said.

Ratliff said each of his trucks drive 100,000 miles annually. Multiplied by 22 trucks, that equals 2.2 million miles. He said he aims to keep each of his big Kenworth trucks seven to eight years. The list price on the new trucks is $90,000-$100,000 each.

"Preventative maintenance," Ratliff said, "is the key to getting your money's worth out of the semi-tractor trucks."

Prepaid legal coverage imitates medical HMOs

By Carolyn DeMarco
staff writer

What happens when a usually healthy person displays symptoms of a minor illness which nonetheless require professional care? If he or she is like many of us, the problem is taken care of with a visit to a physician through a prepaid health maintenance plan. The patient pays little or nothing extra for the visit.

And if that same person finds himself in need of professional help for a minor legal problem? Chances are he'd take his chances with an attorney recommended by his brother-in-law or attempt to handle the problem without legal advice.

There's a better way, says Chris Nolan, regional executive director of sales and marketing for American Legal Access Systems — prepaid legal protective services, much like those used in the health field.

"Our market is 80 percent of the population," Nolan said. "We're not concerned with the upper 5 percent that can afford attorney fees or the lower 15 percent that can usually get free legal aid." Annual cost of a family legal protection plan is less than $300.

American Legal Access Systems is the company owned by the marketer, Nationwide Legal Services. Offices were recently opened on Haggerty Road in Livonia, but the company has been digging its toehold into the Michigan market since last December. Nolan is also building a sales force in New York, Illinois, Colorado and Vermont.

Douglas Sweet, director of research and development for the Michigan Bar Association, says another estimated 20-25 prepaid legal protective firms have also begun operations in Michigan, with 20 of them somewhat functional.

Coverage provides for unlimited telephone consultation with an attorney on a toll-free hot line. Review of contracts and written documents, preparation of two wills, and a 30-minute in-office consultation with an attorney for each new legal problem are included.

THE IDEA OF prepaid legal systems is simple — to practice preventive law. The American Legal Access System sells the individual or small business a contract which provides for unlimited telephone consultation with an attorney on a toll-free hot line. Unlimited letters and calls made on behalf of the client are included at no additional charge as well as review of contracts and written documents, preparation of two wills, and a 30-minute in-office consultation with an attorney for each new legal problem.

If a legal situation is too complicated to advise on by telephone or mail, members will be referred to a specialist at a rate of $50 per hour in office or in court.

Contingency cases arising from negligence, breach of warranty, product liability or malpractice are exempted from the hourly rates. But participating attorneys will handle cases for 25 percent less than their usual fee rates. Probate of uncontested estates are also handled at discounted fees.

Sweet said specific programs are not endorsed by the bar association, but neither is their general use discouraged. A committee is at work reviewing the idea, he said. "We're working on getting information so we can give advice. There's no indication that anything is wrong with them."

Sweet said there is no way to determine which prepaid plans are best for the consumer. "The individual should try them out. There should be a way to cancel and a way to complain and solve any problems."

AMERICAN ACCESS does provide such a cancellation, Nolan said. "If you don't like the speed or quality, you can ask for your money back within 30 days. Less than half of 1 percent do." An initial registration fee is non-refundable.

In addition to individual and family plans and those for small businesses, many corporations have adopted prepaid legal services as a benefit to dangle in front of prospective employees. Unions, too, are looking to prepaid legal services as a bargaining item for its members.

Most prepaid legal services have contracted with existing law firms to hire attorneys. Nolan said 60 firms are listed with American Access, but he gave no names. "It's a two-edged sword. We don't reveal the names because we don't want clients calling them directly and wasting their time. We want them to go through channels."

Each law firm gets a percentage of the contract and in turn provides free services. If referral firms are needed, the client is billed at $50 per hour. The initial firm gets no kickback.

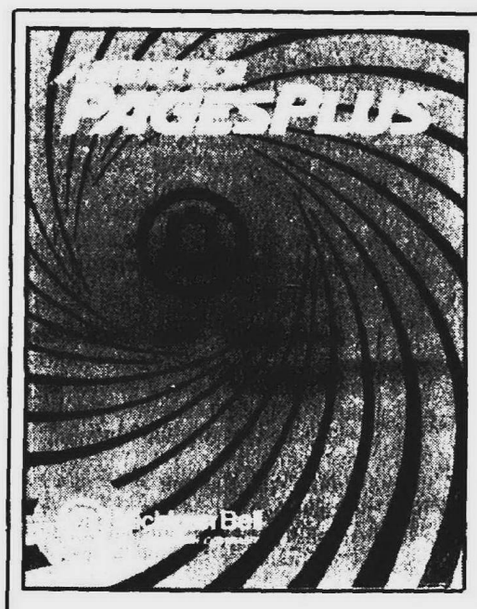
All attorneys used must have a minimum of five years experience, Nolan said, and are checked for qualifications by the New York office. "We work with the American Bar Association and ask if the complaints and lawsuits against them are excessive. County court records are checked to verify the area of expertise, and we insist on a $2 million malpractice insurance. If they're sued, we want them to be collectible."

OWNERS OF family plans most often use the service for divorce, traffic citations and real estate, Nolan said. "If you hired an attorney to handle a real estate closing you could pay 1 percent." On a $100,000 home, that could be as much as $1,000. With a legal plan it would be no more than $300 if it were a complicated closing.

Other services provided by attorneys may include adoption, name change, trust preparation, tax planning, title search, counsel regarding evictions or foreclosures, premarital contracts, garnishment or cases involving consumer or civil rights.

Prospective salesmen can find out more about the marketing aspect in regular training sessions, Nolan said. Ongoing training is also provided.

For more information on the prepaid legal services provided by American Legal Access Systems, call Nolan at 397-8886. For information on marketing, call Ken Head at 963-5712. American Prepaid Legal Services Institute in Chicago (312-988-5751) serves as a non-profit association for promotion of the legal prepaid services field.



Ameritech answers competition

Same book, different cover.

Officials of Ameritech Publishing, the people who bring you the yellow and white pages, say their new telephone directory looks different but works the same old way.

Ameritech's PagesPlus directory, with its bright yellow cover and prominently displayed company logo, has been hitting doorsteps all month. Delivery to homes and businesses will be completed by month's end.

All Michigan Bell customers will get the books. Ameritech will deliver 190,000 North Oakland, 290,000 North Woodward and 232,000 West-Northwest directories. As in past years, the directories contain both yellow and white pages.

"It's still the same: same company, same book, different cover," said Ameritech Publishing spokeswoman Karen Fontanive.

With the breakup of the Bell Telephone system, other companies have begun to publish telephone directories. None are publishing in metropolitan Detroit though. Still, Troy-based Ameritech Publishing is preparing for competition in the lucrative field.

'AT&T felt it only enhanced its position in the market to have other companies using the 'fingers walking' logo. Today we know differently.'
— Karen Fontanive

"THE TREND across the country is expanded yellow pages, and we assume that Detroit will be part of that," Fontanive said. PagesPlus, with its new look and expanded format, is Ameritech's answer to the competition.

Measure prospective sites against standard

Mary DiPaolo

When conducting the actual site-selection process, the current or prospective business owner needs to develop a standard from which all potential sites are evaluated. By defining the criteria by which one will judge any site, the owner may avoid the problems associated with choosing a poor location.

In the book, "Principles of Retail Location," Richard Nelson discusses eight major criteria to be considered. First, how much business can you expect to generate (dollar volume) from potential customers doing business within the trading area of a particular site? The U.S. Department of Commerce publishes its statistics among competitors by local trade area.

Next, can potential customers be easily and conveniently served by the site? Although an area may appear "busy" in terms of automobile traffic flow, there needs to be an associated level of pedestrian foot traffic in order for any site to be considered viable.

Nelson's third criteria has to do with growth potential. How does the site compare to others in terms of population growth, income trends and purchasing power? Demographic data by zip code would be used to evaluate diferences existing between alternative site locations. Next, what type(s) of stores share business with the site and would they work to atract customers to the site and your store?

One excellent local example involves a wine/party store merchant sharing 6,000 square feet of retail space with a videotape rental facility and a bagel/deli shop. The compatibility and cumulative attraction offered customers patronizing the site has turned what was once a dead retail location into a thriving center of business activity.

Additional criteria pertains to site economics. In terms of cost vs. productivity, how efficient is a site relative to its size, shape, facilities and topography? If a site seems favorable but requires extensive leasehold improvements, it may not be cost effective to pursue that specific location. Lastly, does the site minimize competitive hazards given its location, character, size and type of present and potential competitors?

Available sources of local market data and information include county and city planing commissions, downtown development authorities (DDAs), and retail merchant associations. It is also recommended that the entrepreneur contact other business owners whose personal judgment and experience may prove a valuable source of assistance.

Mary DiPaolo is the owner of MarkeTrends, a Farmington Hills-based business consulting firm. She is also producer and host of the cable television series, "Focus: The Small Business Environment."

Ameritech answers book competition

AT&T never registered the familiar walking fingers logo, or the slogan, "Let your fingers do the walking . . ." or the equally familiar Bell logo.

"At the time, AT&T felt it only enhanced its position in the market to have other companies using the fingers walking logo," Fontanive said. "Today we know differently because there are so many other companies publishing."

With other companies using the walking fingers in their books, Ameritech opted for the new name and new look for this year's directory.

One of the new companies, United Phone Book Advertisers Inc., will publish this fall its second Ann Arbor-Ypsilanti telephone directory. The company will also be publishing directories in Lansing, Kalamazoo and Grand Rapids.

JIM BAKER, United's regional sales manager, says his company is the country's largest growing independent directory publisher. Based in Omaha, United began publishing directories in 1984, and last year saw sales reach $35 million to $40 million, Baker said.

The company buys its white page listings from Bell. The books include yellow pages, and Baker says United's yellow page advertising is 42 per cent cheaper than Ameritech's. The directories are delivered to every door and shop just like Ameritech's.

But United has no plans to move into metropolitan Detroit, Baker said.

"It takes an awful lot of money to move into an area like that," Baker said. "It takes a tremendous amount of capital, and at the moment I don't see anyone capable of doing that."

There can be confusion, Fontanive said, when salespeople walk into sell advertising for the yellow pages. "Which yellow pages are they talking about?" Fontanive asked.

Baker said his salespeople ask merchants if they are interested in buying yellow pages advertising. But, he added, there should be no confusion. "There is no misleading the customer. Once we talk to the people we identify who we are and what we represent. We don't try to hide anything."

Ameritech also produces Travel Pages, a magazine of a state's tourist attractions; Ameritech Industrial Yellow Pages; and Ameritech Skiers' Guide, a national publication. It also is an investor in Changing Homes, a magazine for those who have recently relocated.

Mazda lab open

Mazda (North America) Inc. has opened a "window for the future" with its $7.8 million Research and Development Center at Ann Arbor Technology Park.

"This window is a symbol of Mazda's objective for this center — to become our window for future advancement," said Hisao Kaide, president of Mazda (North America), referring to a sky window located near the middle of the building.

Initially, it will employ a staff of about 12, Kaide said. It contains about 34,000 square feet.

Protect yourself against decline in stock market finances and you

Sid Mittra

The stock market continues to follow a roller-coaster path. Because of huge unrealized gains, infusion of foreign money, domination by the professionals and the increasing use of futures options, huge market swings are expected to be experienced by millions of investors.

What is especially disturbing is that unless you take special steps now, you could suddenly lose most of your unrealized gains and even incur huge losses.

Here are several strategies you might use to protect yourself against potential losses.

Buy Put Option

A put option gives you the privilege to sell 100 shares of a stock at a predetermined (strike) price within a specified time, which can be as long as nine months. This option eliminates the effect of a price drop — no matter how severe — on your stock holdings.

You do have to pay a premium for the put option and a commission for trading in your stock. However, the total cost of such a transaction could be far less than the loss you might suffer because of a significant drop in stock prices.

Here is an illustration. Say you bought 100 shares of Chrysler at 28 some time ago and the stock is trading at 56. Chrysler has been very strong, and you wish to hold onto it.

However, you are afraid of losing a large chunk of the unrealized gain if the market experiences a major downturn. You can avoid taking undue risk by buying, say, a six-month option on Chrysler with a strike price of 56.

Assuming that the price of the put option is $200 and the commission to trade 100 shares of Chrysler is $50, you would limit your loss in the 100 shares of Chrysler to $250, no matter how far the price of the stock declines.

Here is how it works:

100 shares at $56/share	$5,600
Value at $28/share	2,800
Your loss	-2,800
100-share put at $56	5,600
Commission to trade 100 shares	-50
Cost of buying put option	-200
Your cost	-250

But what if your fears proved baseless and Chrysler actually went up? In that case, you'll never exercise your put option and would lose just the $200 purchase price. However, you will make up a part or all of that loss because of the price appreciation of your stock.

Sell the Stock and Buy Call Options

If your personal tax situation warrants the realization of a big capital gain and you are bullish on the market, you may adopt an alternative strategy. You could sell Chrysler at 56 and buy a call option for, say, $350.

This option will authorize you to call on the seller before the expiration date (say, six months) to deliver to you 100 shares of Chrysler for the specified price of, say, $56.

If you prediction is correct and Chrysler does go up to, say, $76, you reap a hefty profit of $2,000 — ($76-$56) x 100 — less the cost of options plus commissions.

Here is how it works:

Assume price rises $76 before call option expires.

Exercise call option by calling on the seller to deliver

100 shares at $56/share	-$5,600
Price of option	-350
Commission	-50
Sale at $76 per share	7,600
Your gain	$1,600

Here again, if you are wrong in your prediction and the stock goes down, you just let your option expire and lose just the $350 you paid for that option.

Next week: More on stock market.

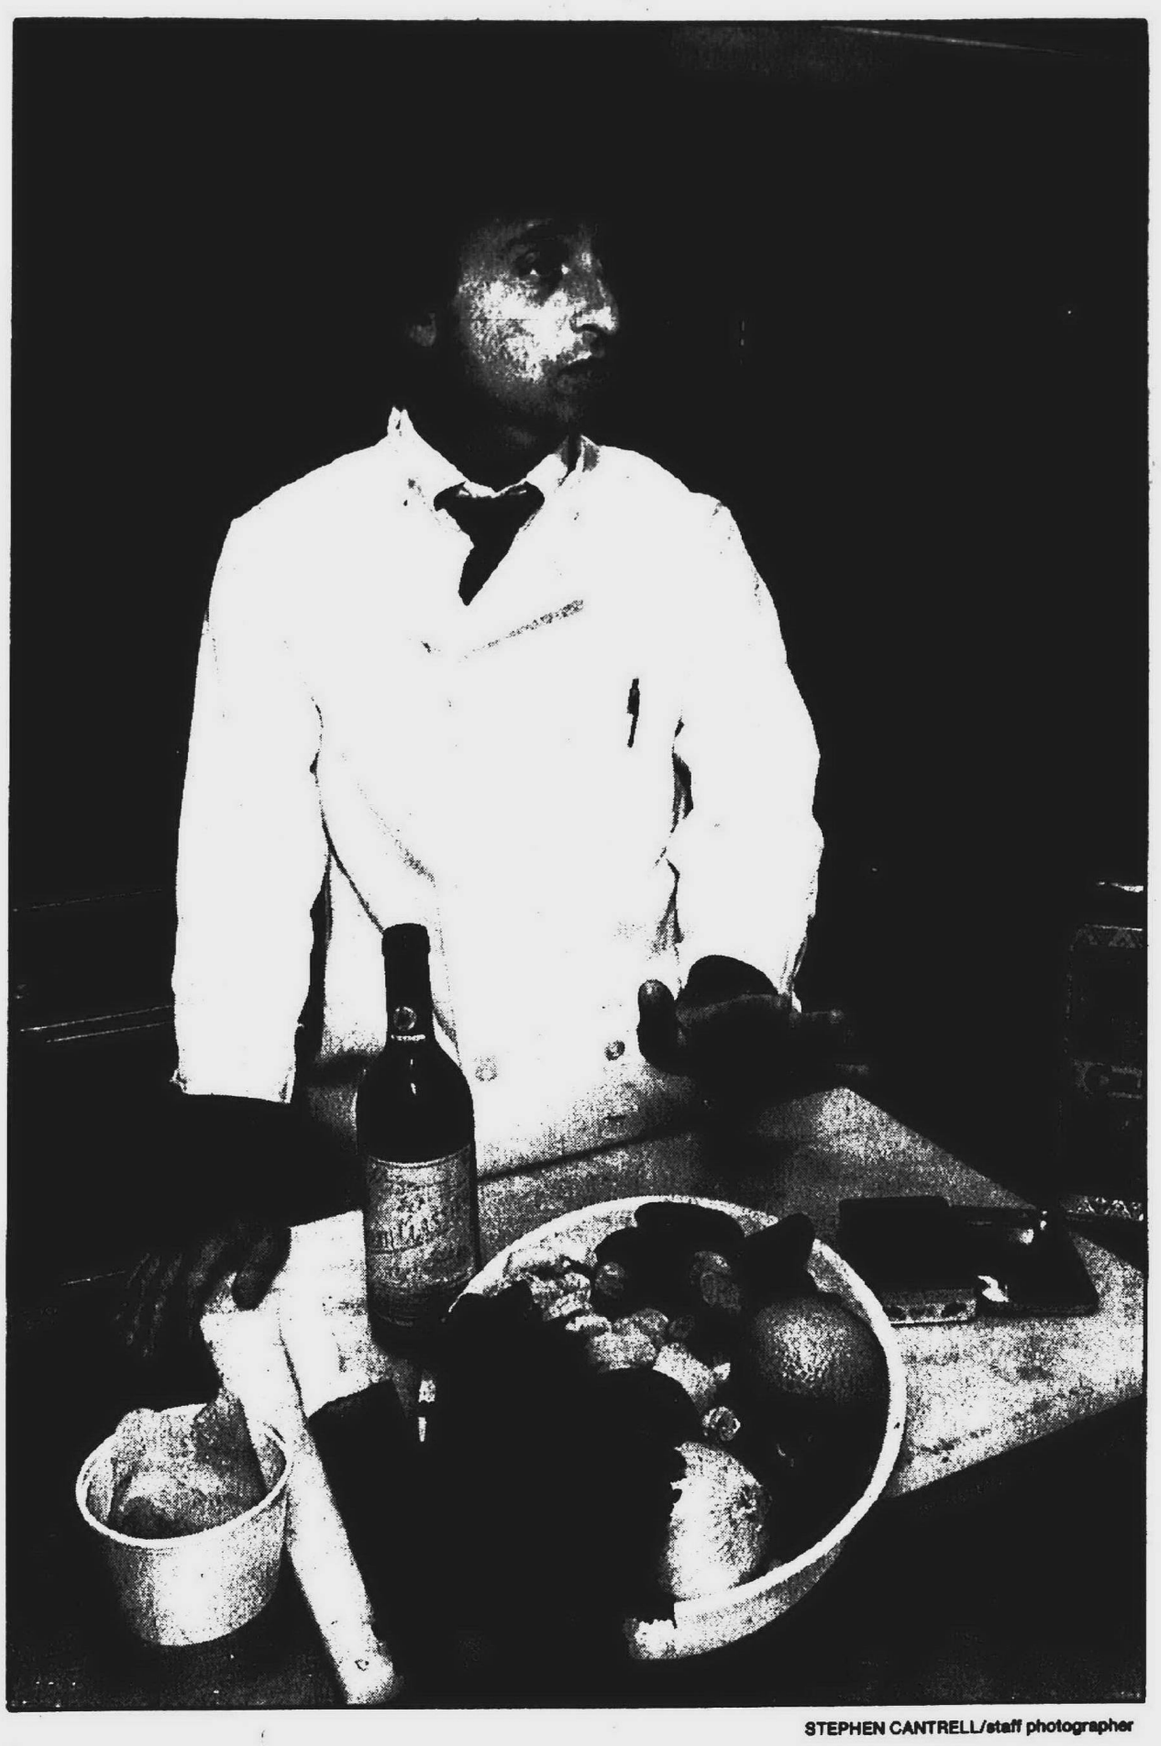
A dish fit for Le Gala de Cuisine



STEPHEN CANTRELL/staff photographer

Rik Halberg of R.I.K's Total Cuisine Center at Bloomfield Plaza in Bloomfield Township displays the ingredients that go into frutta di mare, an Italian seafood stew he will prepare at Le Gala de Cuisine. Monkfish and shellfish combine with red peppers, onions and tomatoes for the delicious dish that will be served in the Great Hall at Cranbrook Kingswood School.

By Ethel Simmons
staff writer

R.I.K.'s Total Cuisine Center in Bloomfield Township does hundreds of parties each year, but one of the events owner Rik Halberg and his gourmet carry-out and catering-service staff look forward to the most is Le Gala de Cusine.

This lavish, springtime party at Cranbrook Kingswood School in Bloomfield Hills is also sponsored by the Michigan Chefs de Cuisine Association and features the finest in foods, from appetizers to desserts.

The annual benefit for Cranbrook Kingswood School will be held 3-7 p.m. Sunday at the school's Eliel Saarinen-designed Quadrangle. Halberg, who will be participating for the fifth time, has selected frutta di mare (fruits of the sea) for the dish he and his co-workers will prepare.

Asked why he selected frutta de mare — an Italian version of bouillabaisse, served like a stew, Halberg said, "You want something sophisticated that people are going to like and has a lot of flavor."

NOT ONLY IS frutta di mare tasty, but it is extremely eye-appealing. First, colorful red peppers join olive oil, onions and garlic in the frypan. Then more bright accent comes from tomatoes before a fish or chicken stock is added to boil down.

"Other than the expense of the seafood, this is a fast, easy dish to make," Halberg said, as he stirred his frypan in the open kitchen at Rik's. He was putting together four to six portions of the dish that will be served in quantity, to 500 guests, at Le Gala.

"The seafood is added last," he said. Clams, mussels, sea scallops, shrimp and monkfish cut into cubes went into the pan. Halberg gets all his seafood from Superior Fish in Royal Oak. His vegetables come from the Eastern Market in Detroit.

A strip of orange peel will be removed from the frypan before the seafood stew is served. A pinch of saffron is an essential ingredient. "The saffron gives a mellow, musty flavor. It gives kind of a golden color," Halberg said.

At Le Gala, Rik's contribution will be among the entrees offered in the Great Hall, the dining room inside one of the school buildings. Appetizers are served in individual schoolrooms and halls and out-of-doors before guests proceed to the Great Hall.

DESSERTS AND coffee are served outdoors, where tents protect against the elements (rain seldom darkens Le Gala). Wine and other drinks are available at many locations.

"With us, everybody wants to go," Halberg said of his cuisine-center staff. He and chef Ken Fink will prepare frutta di mare at Le Gala.

Mussels, littleneck clams, sea scallops and shrimp lend color and variety to a platter of frutta di mare. Here shown in a serving for four to six, the dish will be prepared for 500 guests at Le Gala de Cuisine. The sauce will be brought to the site, and the seafood will be cooked in a frying pan and served with the sauce from chafing dishes.

'You want something sophisticated that people are going to like and has a lot of flavor.'

— Rik Halberg

Halberg said he didn't know exactly how many pounds of seafood he would be serving but estimated "several thousand shellfish." He will make the sauce earlier that day and transport it to Le Gala, along with the fish to be iced down at the site. The seafood will be cooked at the party and served from chafing dishes.

Halberg is especially fond of Italian cooking. "I just got back from Italy. I will be taking a group to Italy on an eating tour. I love Italian food."

"This was my second trip to Italy. I visited some of the best restaurants." He is planning a two-week trip — which he will sell through the store — to northern Italy.

HALBERG FIRST participated in Le Gala when he was working as a chef at the Holly Hotel. The next year, he represented R.I.K.'s.

General admission to Le Gala is $125. Patrons contribute $150, benefactors $200. In addition to food and beverages, each guest receives a spiral-bound cookbook containing recipes from chefs at the culinary event.

The recipes don't necessarily match up with the dishes being presented that day, but Halberg has chosen his recipe for frutta di mare for inclusion. After a taste of his specialty, Le Gala-goers may want to prepare the Italian stew at home some time.

Halberg started out in the health food business in Arizona. He ran two vegetarian restaurants there and also grew and manufactured food.

After attending the Culinary Institute in New York, he worked at a restaurant in High Park with one of the developers of new American cuisine.

He got out of the health-food business because of, in a word, "economics," he said. At R.I.K's, the emphasis is on greater variety and what he describes not as health food but as "healthier food. We try to offer everything."

Frutta di mare fits the requirements. "It's low in fat and calories."

At Le Gala, more than 44 chefs from Detroit-area restaurants and country clubs will take part.

'Brighton Beach Memoirs' brings family close

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Sisters Laurie (Amy Rosenthal) and Nora (Kathleen L. Lietz) talk about their late father and how they wish they didn't have to live with their Aunt Kate and Uncle Jack, in "Brighton Beach Memoirs."

Performances of Neil Simon's "Brighton Beach Memoirs," presented by the Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford, continue through Saturday, May 9, at the playhouse in Redford. For ticket information call 522-8057.

special writer

Director Mattie Wolf has done a masterful job of casting the Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford's current production, "Brighton Beach Memoirs," especially in achieving the feeling of real families, rather than stage families.

One is seldom conscious of the "acting." Rather one feels more like an voyeur, looking in on very private moments that all families have experienced at one time or another.

The family in this case belongs to playwright Neil Simon. This mostly autobiographical work recalls what it's like growing up in a poor Jewish family during the Depression in New York.

Actually, there are two families living under one roof. One is dependent on the other. Therein lies the human mulch pile of conflict and guilt leading to crisis and humiliation.

IN THE MIDST of this endless trail of troubles we find Simon, disguised as Eugene, and played to perfection by Vito Guerra. Eugene is the only comedic role in the play. It's young Simon with a funny perspective of events. His comic delivery is superb.

Guerra slips effortlessly from narrator to performer in episodic scenes depicting boyhood memories of baseball, dreaming about girls, running errands, learning about girls, being blamed for things that go wrong, trying to talk to girls, surviving an angry father, thinking about girls, eating liver and cabbage, talking to your older brother about girls, being the family gofer and so on.

Bob Weibel

Pat Varga is excellent as his mother, Kate, who holds the family together. John Battle gives a sterling performance as his older brother, Stanley, who must choose between a job and dignity. David Berg is very good as the overworked father, Jack, who attempts to provide the money and wisdom to support two families.

Sue DeLosier is convincing as a young widow with two daughters to raise — and feelings of guilt for sponging off her sister's family. Kathy Leitz and Amy Rosenthal are both good as the daughters, Nora and Laurie, who would prefer a home of their own.

Lighting is well done, and the set design is exceptional. Somehow they crammed two bedrooms, a bathroom, a hallway, two entrances, a kitchen, dining room and living room on a 30-foot stage.

Bob Weibel of Westland is a freelance writer, who has spent more than 25 years in community theater as a director, designer and performer.

British film is thought-provoking

"My Beautiful Laundrette" is a story of misplaced hope, unlikely dreams and the different attitudes people assume as they struggle to assimilate. Recently released on videocassette for the home market, the 1985 British film takes a look at the prejudice faced by Pakistanis in Britian through the eyes of Omar (Gordon Warnecke.)

Omar's father(Rosman Seth), once an influential leftist journalist in his native country, languishes in a tiny apartment. His motivation has faded with his glory as a writer. Even getting out of bed demands too much energy and an amount of optimism that's barely attainable. Omar, who spends his days waiting on his father and subsisting on public welfare checks, is given a job washing cars by his Uncle Nassar (Saeed Jaffrey.)

It makes for 94 minutes of interesting viewing, full of quirky performances and wry laughs.

Uncle was born hustling the coin of the realm. It doesn't matter if most of that realm views him as an interloper. He laments that the old country is no longer good for making money. He's successful enough to keep a British mistress. Jaffrey manages to keep Nassar from turning into a caricature of a man who strives to earn enough money to buy acceptance.

Omar turns out to be a bright and willing if somewhat innocent pupil. Uncle finally hands over to him a hole-in-the-wall laundrette in a working-class neighborhood. It's so tough, the laundry needs a bouncer. It's a job for Omar's punk friend, Johnny (Daniel Day Lewis.)

OMAR AND JOHNNY fix it up and dream of limited glory. Powders, the laundrette, boasts an overly ornate neon sign. Its walls are painted canary yellow punctuated with a motif of white curling waves. There's an aquarium on one side and Vogue magazine on the coffee tables. It's a monumentally optimistic gesture in an area mowed down by despair.

Lewis infuses Johnny with eccentric gestures. He hops and shimmies as though that's the only outlet for his energy. His emotional and financial pairing with Omar gives him something other than the streets. His friends see him as a traitor. Unemployed, they resent that Johnny is earning money from a Pakistani. The motley gang tells Johnny that the Pakistanis were brought there to work for them.

Meanwhile, Omar's uncle and a family friend, Salim (Derrick Branche), the Pakistani community's power broker, treat his partner as a nonentity. He waits outside the house while a business meeting is conducted.

Omar is as quiet and closed as his community. For him perhaps there isn't truly such a thing as assimilation or total acceptance. It's a matter of living in parallel cultures.

These are people scrambling not for the top but for the first rung on the ladder.

It makes for 94 minutes of interesting viewing, full of quirky performances and wry laughs. Ludus Tonalis' score under the credits, mimicking the chug-chug-pop of a washing machine agitator, stops just short of being cute. Out of a top score of four stars, we'll flip it 2.8. Worth renting for an adult audience.

Farmington excels with Simon's view

Performances of "The Good Doctor" by Neil Simon, presented by the Farmington Players, continue through Saturday, May 16, at the players' Barn Theatre in Farmington Hills. For ticket information call 626-5061 anytime.

review

The Farmington Players production of Neil Simon's "The Good Doctor," directed by Bill Salisbury, is marvelous theater.

The cast of five is polished, consistently funny and makes the most out of what may prove to be one of Simon's most durable works.

The play is based on stories by Anton Chekhov, one of the finest short story writers. Simon has fashioned a series of vignettes that are as fresh and delightful in 1987 as they were when Chekhov published them in the late 19th century. Simon has not played havoc with Chekhov, and the Farmington troupe gives Simon its all.

Ralph Rosati, an actor well-known for his ability to move with terrific ease from one character to another, draws us into the play. He wears a worker's cap, a long white scarf wrapped round his throat and a black coat. Holding a quill pen, he writes away at a small desk. Rosati makes us feel the chill of a heatless room and the heat of a writer's mind in high gear.

ROSATI WEAVES in and out of the 11 vignettes the play contains and manages to be witty, poignant and thoroughly entertaining whenever he appears. Whether playing the writer, an aged lover, a seducer of other men's wives or a hapless bank manager, Rosati's quick wits are a pleasure to watch.

Jan Salisbury, an actress with lots of experience, shines as an upper-class mother who is so good at mathematics she manages to cheat her children's governess out of her wages in order to teach the girl a lesson in spunk.

Salisbury has a clear, wonderful ringing voice, and she's just as good as a lower-class woman who manages to drive a banker to a nervous breakdown.

C.M. Novess III is deft, clever and totally believable in all his roles. Novess has the best accent in the troupe. He manages to convince the audience that he's Russian by using inflections rather than an accent. He moves with assurance, and he's dazzling as the waterfront man who gets a gentleman to pay to see him drown, with unpredictable consequences.

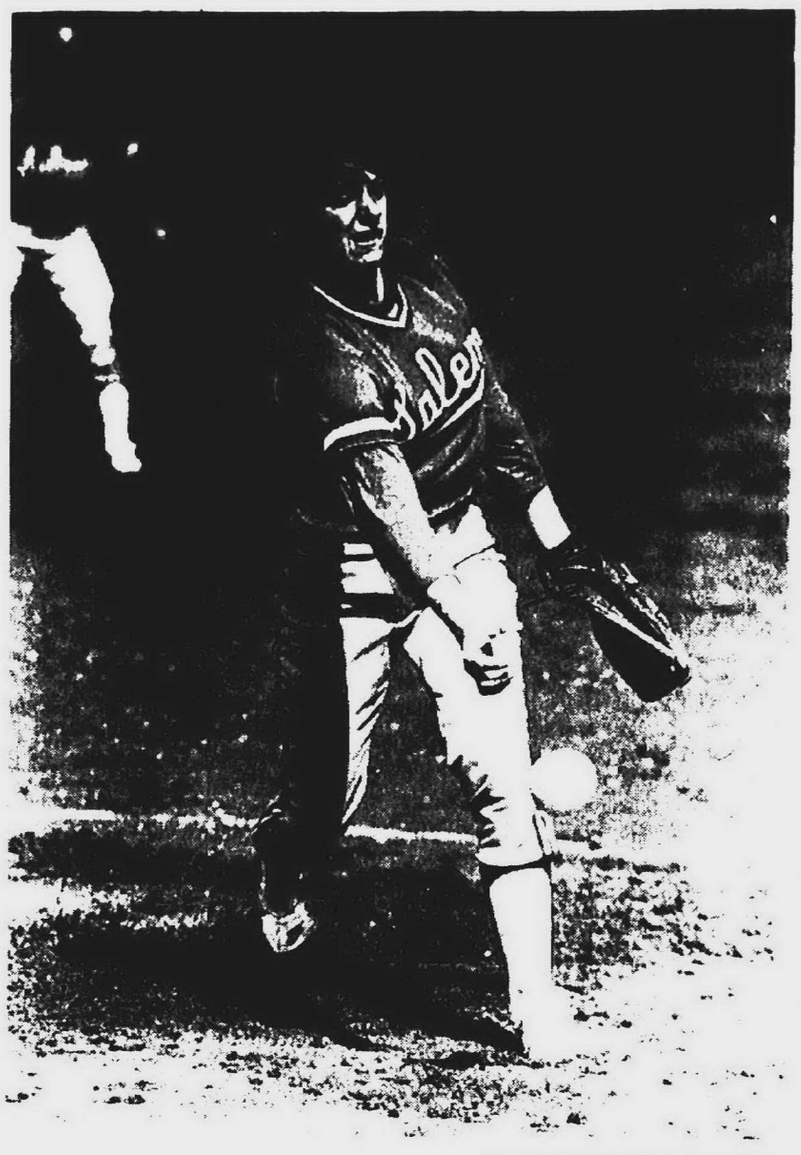
Salem's softball record hits 6-0



BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Kim Berrie pitched all seven innings for Salem and guided the undefeated Rocks to their sixth straight victory.

Westland John Glenn outhit Plymouth Salem 7-4, but that didn't stop the unbeaten Rocks from claiming their sixth consecutive softball victory Monday.

Salem made its four hits count and also capitalized on seven walks to defeat the Rockets 5-1.

Kim Berrie, who struck out three and walked three, went the distance for the Rocks, who improved to 4-0 in the Lakes Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association.

"I think we've got a pretty good team," said Salem coach Rob Willette, whose ballclub is ranked No. 9 in Class A. "If we were anything less than (6-0), I think I'd be disappointed, and I'm sure the girls would be, too."

The Rocks were never behind after pushing across their first run in the opening inning. Denise Tackett's base hit scored Jessica Handley, who had singled and moved up on Marcie Walker's sacrifice bunt.

Salem added two more in both the third and fifth innings before John Glenn got its lone run on Lolita Burgess' RBI single in the sixth.

The Rocks took advantage of a bases-loaded situation in the third when Tackett and Sandy Oberliesen had back-to-back RBI sacrifice flies. Oberliesen had another sacrifice fly in the fifth and Walker an RBI single.

John Glenn's Dawn Williamson worked five innings and took the loss. She struck out four.

Burgess had two of the Rockets' four hits. In the John Glenn sixth, Christina Hoffman reached base with a two-out double, advanced on Jennifer Okon's single and scored on the base hit by Burgess.

The Rockets are 2-2 in the Lakes Division and 3-3 overall.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Salem's Bonnie Waller is tagged out at third base by John Glenn's Christina Hoffman on this play, but the Rocks still outscored the Rockets 5-1.

MERCY 12, LADYWOOD 3: Amy Edward pitched a complete-game victory and drove in four runs Tuesday as Farmington Mercy clobbered Livonia Ladywood 12-3 in Catholic League softball.

Edward, who has all of the decisions for the 6-3 Marlins, walked four and struck out three. The sophomore hurler scattered nine hits.

Edward was two-for-three at bat and had an RBI single, a two-run double and a bases-loaded walk.

Molly McWood stole six bases, scored three runs and had one RBI. Linda Raymond and Kristin Orlandoni had one hit and two RBI apiece. Raymond's RBI came on a single and a walk, Orlandoni's on a base hit and a fielder's choice.

Mercy broke a 1-1 tie with three runs in the bottom of the second inning and put the victory on ice with a six-run fourth.

In tournament play Saturday in Bay City, the Marlins defeated Saginaw High 13-8, but lost to Saginaw Swan Valley 7-2 and Clio 7-5.

Mercy, 2-1 in the league, played at Allen Park Cabrini Wednesday and has a double-header at Bishop Gallagher today.

'If we were anything less than (6-0), I think I'd be disappointed, and I'm sure the girls would be, too.'

Area teams vie for Observerland title

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Jay Swiecki and Canton teammates will defend title.

It won't come as any great surprise if Redford Bishop Borgess wins the Observerland Relays Saturday, but the competition isn't willing to concede the trophy without first making the Spartans earn it.

Borgess, based on its outstanding speed and depth in the sprint events, rates as the favorite, according to most area coaches, to succeed Plymouth Canton as the team champion.

Spartan coach Marion Pittman's 400-, 800- and 1,600-meter relay teams, which boast the top area times, will compete intact, though Pittman plans on using "everybody" to keep from asking some runners to do too much.

In addition to the sprint and distance medleys, there also will be an open 100 dash, which strengthens Borgess' position since it boasts one of the top sprinters in junior Corey Ivey, whose 10.6 time is among the area's best.

PITTMAN isn't planning to enter Ivey in the 100, but that shouldn't make much difference, he said. The Spartans' Derrick Green finished ahead of Ivey in Saturday's West Bloomfield Invitational. And because Green is a senior, Pittman would like to see him win an Observerland race, too.

To offset the strengths of a challenger such as host Livonia Churchill, Pittman hopes Borgess can make a better showing in the field events than it did last year when it scored only one point.

"We have to get a real good performance out of the field events because we know that's where they're planning to score a lot of their points," he said.

With Eric Harp, the area's best in the long jump, Ivan Blacksmith and Ray Johnson, the prospects for a Spartan victory in that relay are pretty good.

Pittman added Borgess' shot putters are coming along, too, but Livonia Stevenson, led by Kevin Belyk, won that event in the Elks Relays and is looked upon as the favorite to win the Observerland title.

WAYNE MEMORIAL, a newcomer to the Relays, is likely to provide Borgess' chief competition because of its parity with the Spartans in the speed relays. The Zebras also boast a top-notch sprinter in Darren Tatum.

"Generally, the teams that have speed are the favorites, and that's why Bishop Borgess will be favored," Wayne coach Joe Grasley said. "But a lot can happen in speed events — a dropped baton, a disqualification.

"I don't know if we can be considered a threat to (Borgess). "We'd like to go there thinking we can be competitive, but there will be other good teams there who are capable of winning."

One of those teams Grasley referred to is Westland John Glenn, which defeated Farmington and Churchill in dual meets and has fared well in invitationals.

"It's been a real turnaround from the last couple years," John Glenn coach Richard Gordon said. "We think we're just a little Cinderella team having a lot of fun. We're running and letting things fall into place as they come."

boys track

THE ROCKETS should be competitive in every event but the hurdles, Gordon said, and that's a strategy shared by other coaches who are counting on team balance to carry them.

"This meet lends itself to that," Plymouth Salem coach Gary Balconi said in regards to the scoring system in which teams through sixth place earn points based on a 10-8-6-4-2-1 format.

"I told the kids we have to be able to score all over the track. That doesn't mean we have to win a lot, but we have to be competitive in a lot of events. When it's all over, we'll see how those points add up."

The Rocks, who won the Elks Relays, figure to be in the running for the trophy as well. Brian Neuhardt is one of the best at 400 meters and will be a key to helping Salem stay close to Borgess and Wayne in the speed relays.

The Rocks' Shawn Hunter, Plymouth Canton's Tyrone Reeves and Southfield-Lathrup's Eric Stokes are excellent long jumpers and could help their schools pose a threat to Borgess in that event.

JOHN GLENN is a strong candidate to win discus with Harold Lovelace on its side, and the Rockets should be strong in the speed events with Marcus Lowe leading the way. Plus, Kevin Wilson has recovered from a knee injury and will bolster Glenn's outlook in the relays.

With none of the Farmington schools competing, Glenn's Dan Liedel could be favored to win the open 1,600 run. He finished one second behind Monroe's Todd Williams, considered by some to be the top high school runner in the nation, in Saturday's Dick Waters Relays.

Wayne's Derrick Allen, Northville's John Frisbee and Redford Catholic Central's Jeff Fedewa could push Liedel in the 1,600, and Grasley is hoping the Zebras can do well in the 3,200 relay when Dave Richards and Chris Woolley hook up with Allen.

A PLYMOUTH HIGH SCHOOL FLASHBACK

The first week of May, 1975 saw the Plymouth Salem Rocks record 2 key baseball wins. The first, a 7-6 nonleague victory over Ypsilanti featured a fine hitting and pitching performance by John DenHouter. Chuck Thomas picked up the save. Charlie Johnson, Dave Pierce, Brian Wolcott and Tim Dillon all delivered key run-scoring base hits. Against Belleville later in the week, Tom Willette pitched the first 5 innings allowing just one hit while striking out 12 in a 10-0 Salem bombardment. Hitting heroes included Dan Moore, Doug Tripp and Howard Inch. The Rocks took a 5-2 league mark into a Tuesday showdown with Redford Union.

John Glenn squeaks by Rocks with 3-2 victory

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Anyone who expected a quality baseball game between Westland John Glenn and Plymouth Salem was not disappointed Monday.

Both teams were undefeated going into their Western Lakes Activities Association contest, and the encounter lived up to its pregame billing as John Glenn squeezed out a 3-2 victory over the Rocks.

As expected, pitching played the biggest role in shaping the game and limiting the number of offensive opportunities.

The Rockets' Bill Barber and Salem's Todd Marion went the distance, with Barber getting the win and raising his record to 3-0.

Barber, a left-handed senior who struck out eight and walked three, had only one bad inning — the third when Salem collected four of its five hits and scored both runs.

"They were hitting good pitches," John Glenn coach Norm Hoenas said. "His fastball was down.

"They're a good ballclub, so you're not going to strike everybody out. But (Barber) didn't get rattled; that was the main thing. He sucked it up and kept us in it."

DESPITE LOSING, Marion, a junior right-hander, was equally impressive. He allowed two more hits than Barber, but he didn't walk anybody while notching five strikeouts.

The third inning also proved difficult for him as the Rockets rallied to tie the game in the bottom of the frame. However, the fifth was most costly when John Glenn scored its winning run on Tom Walker's two-out single.

"If Barber is one of the best pitchers in the area, Todd is right in his class," Salem coach John Gravlin said. "He did a heckuva job today."

John Glenn's Larry Robinson started the fifth-inning rally with a leadoff single, moved up on Pat Pettit's sacrifice bunt and scored from second when Walker drove the ball into center field.

"The pitch the kid hit to win the game was up out of the strike zone," Gravlin said. "It was a waste pitch. Todd was just trying to get him to swing at something and strike him out."

BARBER RETIRED the Rocks in order in the sixth, but Salem put the tying run at second in the seventh. Bob Files singled and advanced on a passed ball, but hopes of a rally ended when Barber avoided further trouble with a strikeout and game-ending popout.

"I knew, being a run up and with Barber pitching, we had a pretty good shot," Hoenas said.

Gravlin was disappointed the Rocks didn't produce more runs, pointing to the third and fifth innings when Salem left two runners on base. The Rockets left only two runners stranded the whole game.

But Gravlin was most frustrated by a failed defensive opportunity that eventually led to John Glenn's first run.

Robinson opened the Rocket third inning with a single. When Pettit made a dash for first base on a called third strike that was dropped, Robinson took off for second and was caught off base after rounding the bag too far.

But Salem's throw from third to second was mishandled, and Robinson returned safely to second. Robinson went home on Scott Staples' single, and Clint Straub's base hit brought in Staples to tie the score.

"If (Robinson) doesn't score, it's a 2-2 game and we're still playing," Gravlin said.

"But this is what high school ball is all about — two excellent teams playing," he added.

IN THE THIRD, Salem sandwiched base hits by Andy Gee and Tom Henig around Jerry Heath's sacrifice, putting runners at first and third and setting the table for back-to-back RBI singles by Rick Genrich and Jerry Sumner.

But the Rocks posed only one serious threat in the last four innings. Barber walked Heath and Henig to start the fifth, and Genrich's sacrifice gave Salem baserunners at second and third with one out. But Barber got out of the jam with a strikeout and groundout.

"He's going to run the plate all day, so he's not going to walk many," Hoenas said of Barber. "He's tough enough to get out of it, too."

Straub was three-for-three and Pettit two-for-two for the Rockets, 4-0 in the WLAA Lakes Division and 6-0 overall. Salem, 3-1 and 7-1, had no one with more than one hit.

Salem's Brian Dawson tries to put the tag on John Glenn's Clint Straub during a first-inning pickoff attempt. Straub made it back safely, and the Rockets went on to win 3-2.

Christian baseball winner

Andy Stevens' bases-loaded, suicide squeeze bunt brought in the go-ahead run as Plymouth Christian defeated Hamtramck Immaculate Conception 9-6 in baseball action Monday.

Christian jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the first inning but fell behind 6-4 after five at Hamtramck's Memorial Field. Stevens' bunt capped a three-run sixth inning for the winners.

Ben Odom was two-for-three for Christian, and Jeff Leach knocked in a pair of runs.

Pat McCarthy was the winning pitcher in relief. While working the last three innings, he allowed four hits and struck out six.

Steve Windle, Christian's starting pitcher, tossed a one-hitter for the first four innings.

Potential, not production, rates high in NFL

THE EQUATION of life in America: Hard work equals success and financial reward.

Or so I'd been told. Silly me, I believed it.

It became evident in Tuesday's pro football draft of collegiate players that such a belief isn't true at all. Three Birmingham Brother Rice graduates proved it.

Paul Jokisch, Dave Yarema, John Henry; University of Michigan, Michigan State, University of Richmond. Who had the best collegiate career?

- Jokisch, a wide receiver, caught 11 passes his senior season for 229 yards, a 20.8 average, two touchdowns. He had 58 catches for 1,088 yards (18.8 average) and eight TDs for his career.
- Yarema was the most productive quarterback in MSU history. He hit 200 of 297 attempts as a senior for 2,581 yards, a 67.3 completion rate. All are team records. His 150.7 pass-efficiency mark was third highest in the nation.
- Henry finished his career at Richmond (a Division 1AA school) with team records for receptions (122) and yards receiving (1,422) for a tight end. He was a second-team All-American at his level as a senior, hauling in 50 passes for 609 yards.

Who's best? Which made the biggest contribution to their team?

IN THE TOPSY-TURVY world of pro sports, it should hardly be surprising that the only one drafted was Jokisch. He was selected in the fifth round by the San Francisco 49ers. Yarema and Henry were pondering free agent tryouts.

Does that make any sense? Not according to the rules taught us at an early age. Production counts, we were told.

Does it? Yarema produced. Henry produced. Jokisch, injured as a senior, didn't; yet he was drafted.

Does that make any sense?

It didn't to Yarema. "I knew this would happen," he said. "I'm not surprised. I thought I'd go in the late rounds, if at all."

Yarema was pleased with his former teammate's fate. But Jokisch's selection hardly aided him in evaluating his own predicament.

"I don't know why I didn't get a lot of looks (from pro scouts)," Yarema said. "I don't know. You got to wonder . . . The whole thing is puzzling to me."

HENRY TREATED the draft with an equal mix of puzzlement and disdain. While others like him faced the same anxious situation by never straying further than arm's length from the telephone, Henry spent Tuesday evening studying for a final exam with friends.

"I didn't really think I'd get drafted," the 6-foot-5, 225-pounder said. "You can tell by what the scouts say when they come by to test you. They talked about free agency to me."

Henry did get a call — Wednesday morning from the Denver Broncos. They offered him a free-agent contract.

Both Yarema and Henry will take their shots with the pros. Both realize their chances of making it are slim. "I've interviewed for some sales jobs, if football doesn't work out," Henry said.

JOKISCH HAD reason to be jubilant. At least more than his Brother Rice comrades. And yet . . .

"I was a little disappointed," he admitted. "I thought I would go between the second and fourth rounds."

It's been a strange road that Jokisch has traveled. He went to U-M to play basketball, then switched sports after two years. He played three years of football and as a junior caught 37 passes, but a pulled hamstring hobbled him as a senior.

Jokisch has worked hard to make the transformation, to be sure. It certainly wasn't easy, particularly at a school like U-M. Yet his confidence never wavered.

"I always thought I'd be in that position, that I had that ability (to play in the pros)," he said.

Of course, it wasn't hard to fuel that optimism. Jokisch stands 6-8 and has run the 40-yard dash in 4.5. Those are the statistics that intrigued the pros, not his reception or touchdown totals.

Henry is considered too small and not quite fast enough (4.78 in the 40) for his position. Yarema lacks mobility and a strong throwing arm, critics claim.

Production or potential? It's apparent which the pros value most, however cockeyed their view is.

It's hard to figure how Yarema and Henry could go undrafted when they piled up superb figures against lesser-producing opponents who were picked.

They deserved better. Maybe not better than Jokisch, whose untimely injury as a senior prevented him from making an impact, but at least they earned an equal chance.

Don't expect either to get one, though — not in a profession that rates what you might do higher than what you've accomplished.

Marlins run past Regina

Adanna Amanse won the 100- and 200-meter dashes and anchored a pair of relay victories to pace Farmington Mercy's 67⅛-60⅛ victory over Harper Woods Regina in girls' track Monday.

Amanse sprinted to winning times of 12.07 in the 100 and 29.5 in the 200. With Amanse running the final leg, the Marlins posted times of 55.44 in the 400 relay and 1:55.04 in the 800.

Mercy's Nicki Kostecki was a double winner in the 100 and 300 hurdles, and Caroline Semerjian leaped 15 feet to win the long jump.

The Marlins, 1-0 in the Catholic League and 2-1 overall, also won the 1,600 relay in 4:30.0. Regina is 0-1 in league meets.

FARMINGTON HARRISON defeated Walled Lake Western 78-50 April 15 as Jenny Anderson won the 1,600- and 3,200-meter runs. Her times were 6:01.0 and 13:13.0.

Tracey Radke gave the Hawks first place in the long jump (14-9⅛), and Jane Peters won the 300 hurdles (52.0).

Harrison also swept the relays with times of 55.0 for 400 meters, 1:57.5 for 800, 4:38.8 for 1,600 and 11:15.8 for 3,200.

Cheers greet drivers at end of 10-day, 8,000-mile trek

They drove over mountains and through deserts. They battled rain, sleet and snow. They passed through 32 states, breezed by parts of two oceans and ran rallycrosses at some of the toughest tracks in the country.

Ten days and 8,000 miles after the start of the Uniroyal Goodrich One Lap of America, the cars and crews returned to the cheering of families and fans Sunday at the Uniroyal Technical Center in Troy.

"It was difficult, that's for sure," said Southfield's Erhard Dahm, who teamed up with Gene Henderson of Pinckney, Rick Shue of Dearborn and John Townsend of Gibralter to win the SS (sports sedan) division of the performance touring class. "It's a very long event, and without sufficient sleep it makes it pretty tough. But it's amazing how the human body can adjust. Actually, I enjoyed it very much. It was one hell of a challenge."

JOHN BUFFUM of Colchester, Vt., piloted his factory-entered 1987 Audi 5000 Quattro to a first-place finish in the performance touring class. The Buffum team finished with a total of 62.64 penalty points, just 22.95 points ahead of Dahm's team which finished second overall in the performance touring class driving a prototype 1988 BMW M3.

Had it not been for a mix-up on the flags in the time-speed-distance (TSD) rallycross at Laguna Seca in Monterey, Calif., Dahm's team could have won the race.

"We got a white flag, which means there is one lap to go then a cool-off lap," explained Dahm. "We lost 40 points because we took a cool-off lap and everyone else kept going. Afterwards they told us the white flag was to let us know there was a slower car in front of us. But we already passed that car, so they didn't even need the flag.

"To my estimation we definitely know we should have been first in the performance class, but what are you going to do? Overall, it was an enjoyable event and I'd love to do it again."

BOB MARTIN of Sterling Heights, Mark Fox of Dayton, Ohio and Dave Head of Indian, Ind., won the touring class competition in a 1987 Dodge Lancer.

Other area individuals who were members of teams participating in the race included Richard Wise of Bloomfield Hills, who finished 16th in the performance class with a 1988 Dodge Shelby; John Kish of Livonia, 17th in the touring class with a 1988 GMC Safari Van; Jim Burdin of Bloomfield Hills, 22nd in the touring class with a 1988 Ford Van that had to be towed across the finish line; Nick Helen of Livonia, 32nd in the touring class with a 1988 Audi 5000; James Bacon of Bloomfield Hills, 37th in the touring class with a 1988 Buick Regal; Carl Grolla of Farmington, 43rd in the touring class with a 1986 Olds Delta 88; and Wayne Wolfe of Rochester, 44th in the touring class with a 1988 Ford van.

"I thought the best thing about the whole race was that between our two vehicles (the van and the follow car), everyone got along great through the entire event," said Kish. "We noticed a few competitors that at times were actually out of their cars yelling at each other. But we got along really well and had a lot of fun. Another nice part of the race was that all the teams helped each other. If you saw someone on the side of the road you would stop and help them. We were competitors in each division, but we were all friends, too."

CHURCHILL FIGURES to do well in the hurdles with Mike Lyskawa heading a foursome that includes Ryan Polney, Mark Beebe and Jason Belaire. Borgess' outstanding hurdler Brian Kelly is not expected to compete while he continues to recuperate from an injury.

The Chargers should fare well in all the field events, and the trio of Belaire, Jim Rintala and Steve Galindo could give Churchill first place in the high jump, having jumped 6-3, 6-2 and 6-0 this season, respectively.

"Our strength is that we end up scoring in many of the events," Price said. "If were able to get a lot of sixes (third places) that helps you out."

Grayling return to state waters

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, Michigan.

Since the great state is celebrating its 150th birthday this year with numerous sesquicentennial celebrations, the Department of Natural Resources decided it would be a good time to present Michigan with a rather special birthday present — grayling.

No, the DNR isn't developing another large city in the middle of the northern half of the lower peninsula. They're reintroducing a long lost and once native sport fish back into the waters of the state.

"We tried to reintroduce grayling back between 1900 and 1940 but the attempts were unsuccessful," said DNR fisheries biologist Dave Weaver. "But since then we've learned a little more about the fish. Since this is the sesquicentennial, and grayling were (native) to the state, we thought it would be a nice thing to do."

GRAYLING DISAPPEARED from Michigan waters in the late 1930s. The last reported sighting came in 1937 from the Otter River in the Upper Peninsula.

During the mid-1800s grayling were the predominant stream fish along many rivers in the UP and the northern half of the Lower Peninsula. According to DNR officials, the biggest contributing factor to the disappearance of the fish was the heavy traffic of log jams on these rivers in the late 1800s and early 1900s. These jams gouged the river bottoms, destroying the spawning grounds of the grayling and often destroying the eggs themselves.

Grayling were also easy to catch, especially when they gathered at dams during spawning runs. And since there were no regulations or daily catch limits, the fish were seriously overharvested. Brown, and rainbow trout were also introduced into what were previously grayling waters, and these more aggressive trout, along with the native brook, competed with grayling for food, space and breeding ground. Many young grayling were also eaten by aggressive, hungry trout.

AS WEAVER POINTED out, the first attempts at reintroducing grayling failed. The logging practices had stripped the land of its vegetative cover, which in turn, allowed eroded soil to run into the rivers, cover up the gravelly spawning areas and to fill in the deep pools which the grayling prefer. The planted fish were fingerling size (under four inches in length), and many were eaten by larger trout before they had a chance to reproduce.

The first steps in the most recent reintroduction effort took place April 20 when 40,000, seven-inch, Montana strain grayling were released into the Au Sable River. More than 32,000 more grayling were released between nine lakes and two rivers on April 21, and an additional 3,000 were split between Fish Lake and Fuller Pond on April 22.

The DNR also plans to release 6,000 grayling into Spray Creek and 2,400 into Steele #4 Creek during National Fishing Week, June 1-7.

"Trying to stock grayling is a good start," said Weaver. "But the habitat must be there for the fish to survive. If we plant the fish and they don't have the proper water, cover, food, space and breeding ground ..."

"We don't know exactly how well we'll do with natural reproduction, but we're hoping for the best. The planted fish are already 6-7 inches so they aren't as prone to be eaten by trout. Any new born fish probably will be eaten though."

Grayling look a lot like a trout but have coarse scales covering their body. The most distinguishing feature of the fish is its dorsal fin, which is huge in comparison to the rest of the fish and waves like a flag and sail as the grayling swims through the water.

It will be illegal to fish for grayling this year. If anyone accidentally catches one it must be released. But if they do well in their new habitat, DNR officials feel Michigan anglers could be fishing for 12-14 inch grayling on a one-a-day limit in 1988.

The president of the U.S. Weightlifting Federation, Murray Levin, says his sport is making a comeback in this country.

But whether the United States can compete internationally remains to be seen. Weightlifting followers may get a better indication this weekend when the 1987 National Championships and Pan American Games Trials will be held Saturday and Sunday at Eddie Edgar Sports Arena in Livonia. (See accompanying box).

Four Olympians and seven 1986 national champions will compete for spots on the 10-member U.S. team, which will compete Aug. 7-23 in Indianapolis, Ind., at the Pan Am Games.

"We went through a period of about 10 years where we went down," said Levin, who has been head of the federation for 13 years.

"I lay the blame partially on drugs (namely steroids), but I think we learned that it takes more than a funny pill to lift 500 pounds. I think we've done everything in our power to wipe out drugs. Now we're getting rid of it."

ALTHOUGH THE United States captured two medals at the 1984 Olympic Games in Los Angeles, Americans have not fared well internationally during the past two decades.

In 1983, a promising lifter from Chicago, Jeff Michaels (holder of four U.S. records), was suspended prior Pan Am Games for using banned substances. He later charged that the testing was not valid, but lost his fight and was subsequently kept out of the Olympics.

"I think we're on the way up because we've cleaned up the steroid problems," Levin said.

"We were the first to sign up with the U.S. Olympic Committee's drug testing program. We've also had stiffer penalties than any other sport."

But Levin concedes that drug testing may not be foolproof.

"You hear that some of the other countries have found ways to mask certain substances, and I may be wrong about it (valid testing). But I believe we're testing correctly with the devices the U.S. Olympic Committee has developed."

DRUGS ASIDE, Levin believes the U.S. Weightlifting Federation, in conjunction with the U.S. Olympic Committee, has taken the necessary steps in training practices to enable our lifters to be more competitive on an international scale.

"I think that we have a great junior program right now. But I think it takes more than that.

"We have to change the attitude of the coaches, as well as the guys lifting. In Europe, places like Bulgaria, the athletes are hungry."

The U.S. Olympic Committee subsidized and housed promising lifters for nearly 1½ years in Colorado Springs, Colo., Levin said, but the results were not encouraging.

"We weren't making the progress we had hoped for. We learned that it takes more than food and lodging."

Levin predicts a couple of American records will fall this weekend.

He is confident Roberto "Tony" Urrutia, a three-time world champion from Cuba who defected to the United States seven years ago, could break two marks in the 75-kilogram class (175 pounds).

URRUTIA, 29, now living in Hollywood, Fla., is expected to get stern tests from defending national champion Gary Savage, 27, of Kansas City, Mo. Savage finished with the same total in the snatch and clean and jerk as U.S. record holder Michael Jacques of Warner Robins, Ga.

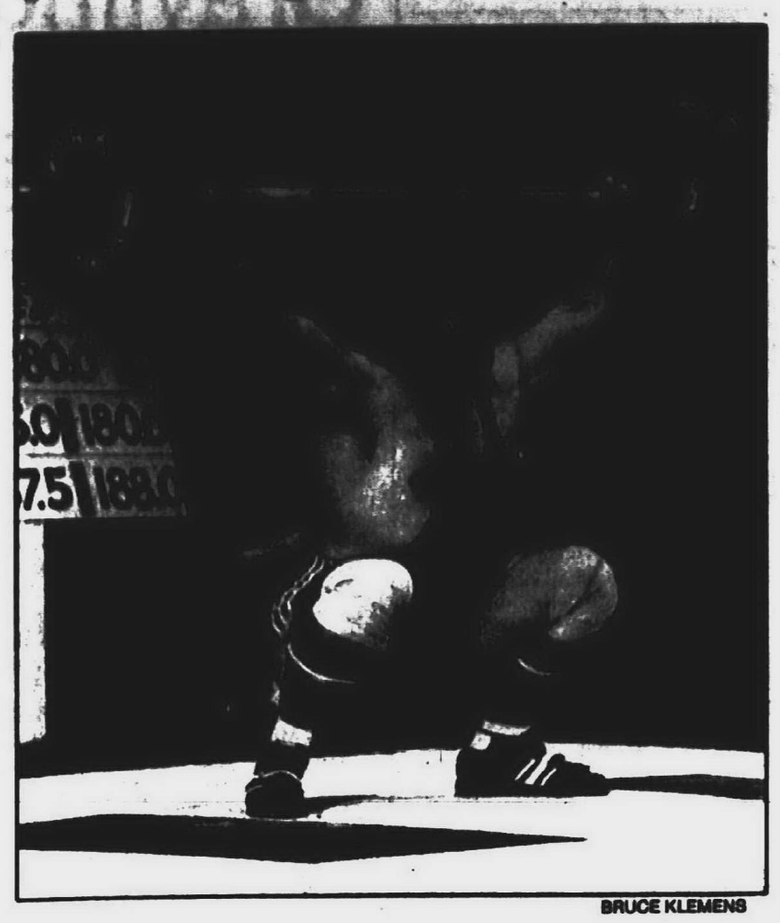
In the 110-kg class (242½ pounds), one of the rising stars is 21-year-old Rich Schutz of Mount Prospect, Ill. Schutz was the 1986 Weightlifting Athlete of the Year after bursting through the junior ranks.

Schutz, who could break the snatch mark of 413¼ pounds, will square off against 1984 Olympic bronze medalist Guy Carlton, 33, of Colorado Springs.

Mario Martinez, 29, of Salinas, Calif., is one of the top super-heavyweights (over 242 pounds). He won a silver medal at the 1984 LA Games but lost the national title last year to John Bergman, 24, of San Rafael, Calif.

OTHER U.S. record holders expected to compete include 25-year-old Brian Okada of Wailuku, Hawaii, who has moved up to the 56-kg class, and 29-year-old Cal Schake of Butler, Pa., who has dropped to the 67.5-kg class (148¾ pounds).

Michigan lifters expected to challenge include 19-year-old Dave Phillips of Clawson, a member of the junior national team (75 kg); 22-year-old Jim Hewelt of Royal Oak, a student at Oakland Community College who finished first last year in the American Championships (75-kg); and 26-year-old Al Jakubowski, of Grand Rapids, who finished second last year at the U.S. Olympic Sports Festival (82.5 kg).



BRUCE KLEMENS

Mario Martinez is a super-heavyweight who won a silver medal at the 1984 Olympic Games in Los Angeles. He is one of the top weightlifters in the U.S.

WHAT TO WATCH FOR AT THE PAN AMERICAN WEIGHTLIFTING TRIALS

Two lifts are contested in weightlifting, the snatch, and clean and jerk. Medals are normally given to the top three lifters in each individual lift category and for overall total, but in Olympic and national championships, competition medals are awarded for the overall total.

● The snatch is the more technical and more explosive of the two lifts. It is performed in one continuous movement: The bar is brought from the floor to a position overhead using one fluid motion. The lifter pulls the bar to about chest height and then, in the moment before the bar starts to descend, pulls his body into a squat position under the bar, securing it overhead — arms held straight. The lifter must then stand and wait for the referee signal, called a "down" signal, to lower the bar. The down signal is indicated by the sounding of a horn.

● More weight is lifted in the clean and jerk than in the snatch, and the two seperate efforts are opposed to one. For the clean, the lifter must pull the weight from the floor to his shoulders in one motion. The bar is pulled to about waist level, keeping it close to the body; close enough for the bar to brush the thighs. Then, before the bar starts to descend, the lifter pulls his body beneath the bar, secures the bar on his shoulders or chest, and then stands erect. The jerk then follows in which the lifter thrusts the bar from his shoulders to a position overhead, again in one motion, and splits his legs front and back. The lifter then brings his feet together and awaits the signal from the referee to lower the bar.

Marlins, Blazers settle for soccer tie

The pressure was there, but Farmington Hills Mercy couldn't convert its chances into goals Monday against visiting Livonia Ladywood. The two Catholic League teams settled for a 1-1 tie.

The game was scoreless at the half. Ladywood broke the deadlock eight minutes into the second half when a corner kick was deflected into the net off a Mercy defender.

Mercy tied it 10 minutes later when Karen Baldas crossed a pass to Kathy McDonald, who punched it into the net.

The tie gave the Marlins a 2-2-2 record. Ladywood is 3-1-1.

FARMINGTON 3, STEVENSON 3: Carrie Maier scored two second-half goals for the Falcons, but it wasn't enough Monday at Livonia Stevenson.

Amy Trunk gave the unbeaten Falcons a 1-0 halftime lead. Stevenson tied it early in the second half, but Trunk then powered a corner kick to Maier who converted to make it 2-1, Farmington.

Again, the Spartans battled back to tie it at 2-2 with 10 minutes left. But Maier regained the lead for Farmington, with Leslie Martin assisting. But that lead, too, wasn't safe; Stevenson got the tie with just 1:15 to play.

CHURCHILL 3, FRANKLIN 0: Monday Livonia Churchill lived up to the state's top ranking by defeating Franklin.

Churchill scored on a first-half goal by Kim Montgomery and an assist by Montgomery on Dana Dugan's second-half score. In between, Colleen Churchill knocked in a penalty kick.

Angee Stiglmaier was in goal for Franklin. Liz Monroe and Dana Keller split goal-keeping duties for Churchill. Churchill outshot the Patriots, 25-13.

SALEM 11, W.L. CENTRAL 2: Jill Estey wrecked Walled Lake Central single-handedly, scoring four goals in Plymouth Salem's lopsided win Monday at Central.

Not that Estey didn't have a lot of assistance. Michelle Minton, Teri King and Sara Hayes each scored twice for the Rocks, who led 8-1 at the half. Lisa Hysko also scored for Salem (6-1-1 overall, 6-0-1 in the Western Lakes Activities Association).

GARDEN CITY 20, RU 0: Twelve Cougars scored in this rout of Redford Union Tuesday at Garden City.

Lori Hodges' four scores paced the winners. Chris Buggy, Tina Gierucki, Sandy Meadows, Denise Daggart and Kathy Kasza each contributed two, as the Cougars improved their record to 3-2.

Robinson signs with SVSC

After a 4-12 season in the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Saginaw Valley State basketball coach Bob Pratt knew he needed an instant infusion of talent.

He figures he got it with the signing of Wayne Memorial standout Mark Robinson. A 6-foot-2 guard, Robinson averaged 20.3 points, 7.5 rebounds and 4.0 assists as a senior for the 17-4 Zebras. He earned co-Most Valuable Player honors as a junior and a senior in the Wolverine A League.

Robinson is expected to fill a sore spot at shooting guard for the Cardinals, who posted a 13-17 overall record.

"We had to recruit to fill that spot," said SVSC assistant coach Tim Inman. "Our expectations are that Mark will make an immediate impact on our program."

Robinson was named to the all-Observer first team after both his junior and senior seasons.

Planning for your summer vacation

By Victoria Diaz
staff writer

Summer comes early to Sea World of Ohio this year and stays late. The marine life park in Aurora, Ohio, will open for business the weekends of May 2 and 9, and begins daily operation May 16. Gates won't close this year until September 27.

New entertainment features include a spectacular laser light show over the lake, and 90 new residents from the polar region: gentoo and chinstrap penguins, collected as eggs on a recent Sea World Antarctic expedition.

A new Maritime Museum recently opened its doors in Manitowoc, Wis. The Resource Center inside the new museum provides a setting for the preservation of Great Lakes history, housing over 20,000 photographs, plus 10,000 books, a 10,000-piece manuscript collection, and a blueprint collection with over 5,000 plans for schooners, passenger vessels, ship parts and other ships.

You might want to cruise down to Ft. Lauderdale in your '50s and '60s nostalgia trip that'll knock your day-glo socks off.

Four live weekend concerts will feature such luminaries as Fabian, Bobby Rydell, the Kingston Trio, Jan and Dean, the Drifters, Del Shannon and Little Anthony, and will be hosted by Frankie Avalon and Connie Stevens.

During the week at the Spring Break Reunion, you can take in '50s dress parades, bathing suit shows, fin-and-furry-dice car rallies, memorabilia swaps, moonlight dance cruises, and "oldtimer" football and baseball games, featuring sports stars from the era.

Also scheduled is a 50s-60s film fest. All will be part of a television special (to be aired in the fall), focusing on the Spring Break phenomenon that first took hold way back in the fab '50s. Contact the Greater Ft. Lauderdale Area Convention & Tourism Bureau, Dept. MS, 201 S.E. 8th Ave., Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. 33301.

IF YOU'RE a mystery buff, an amateur sleuth, or just think you're smart, the pleasure of your company is requested at Mackinac Island's Grand Hotel May 23-26, where a "murder" will be committed and you will be challenged to discover the perpetrator of the dastardly deed. The mysterious four-day event is part of the Grand's Centennial Year Celebration.

While the game is afoot, you'll stay at the Grand and (when you're not sniffing out clues) be treated to a Wild West square dance, a Railroad Man's barbeque, a moustache contest and much more. Every activity is designed to fit into an 1887 theme. ATS Travel, 26075 Woodward, Huntington Woods 48070.

ALSO IN MAY, Chicago will kick off its annual Navy Pier festivals with an International Art Exposition running May 8-12. Art dealers from all over the world will gather at the Pier to exhibit the works of such modern masters as Alexander Calder, Joan Miro, Claes Oldenberg, and Roy Lichtenstein.

The Chicago International Wooden Boat Festival and Sailboat Show, at the Pier June 19-21, features daily demonstrations of boat building, U.S. Coast Guard rescue operations, marlin-spike seamanship, and semaphore signaling.

Boat rides on Lake Michigan are offered, as are free sailing lessons. A New Art Forms Exposition will be at the Pier Sept. 18-21, and an International Antiques Show Oct. 16-18. Lakeside Group, 600 N. McClurg Ct., Chicago, Ill. 60611.

JUNE 5-7 Oklahoma City will host what is expected to be the world's largest Pow Wow ever, and you're cordially invited, regardless of what your ancestry may be. During Red Earth '87, downtown Oklahoma City will be the scene of this gigantic festival, in which some 100 tribes from the U.S., Canada and Mexico will participate.

You can view and purchase Indian painting, pottery, jewelry, basketwork, sculpture, beadwork, graphics, weaving, and clothing at the hundreds of booths that will line Oklahoma City streets. On Thursday, June 4, you can attend a Buffalo Barbecue and rub elbows with tribal chiefs, artists, Pow Wow dignitaries, and the Red Earth Princess.

On the last day, don't forget the finals of the Pow Wow dance competitions. Indian encampments will be set up along the banks of the nearby North Canadian River. Oklahoma City Convention and Tourism Bureau, 4 Santa Fe Plaza, Oklahoma City, Okla. 73101.

FARTHER AFIELD, special package tours have been set up during May and June for those who want to view the Royal Ascot, the Epsom Derby, the Pilkington Ladies' tennis championships and the Stella Artois tennis championships in England.

Added highlights of the packages include sightseeing tours of London, plus tickets to hit London musicals and plays. Keith Prowse, 234 W. 44th St., New York, N.Y. 10036.

Housing sales dip across state

Housing sales in Michigan for the first quarter this year were 3.8 percent below a year earlier, according to the Michigan Association of Realtors.

The slight dip in sales reflects a leveling off of the fast-paced buying of a year ago resulting from the lowest interest rates in almost 10 years.

"The 1986 increase was dramatic," said Elizabeth (Libby) Wright, MAR president. "A year ago, we showed a 29-percent increase statewide over 1985.

"This year, with interest rates remaining fairly stable during the first quarter, the industry is back to a more steady pace, having met the demands of those homebuyers who were holding out for lower rates."

WRIGHT ALSO noted that the decline in sales reflects a problem real estate agents throughout the state are experiencing: a shorter supply of homes available for sale. Real estate boards participating in the survey all noted a diminishing supply of new listings.

"Our members report homes are selling faster than they can be replaced with new listings," said Wright. This demand for housing in turn contributes to an increase in the average sale price, as more buyers are competing for fewer homes.

The association reports the average sale price went up 8 percent over the same period last year.

The average price of a home was the most expensive in the Livingston County area, $78,115, up 34 percent.

THE BATTLE Creek area offered the lowest price, $40,613, representing a price decline of nearly 10 percent. The Battle Creek area also reported the highest increase in sales, up 35 percent over the previous year.

The Flint-Saginaw area experienced the steepest decline in sales, 26 percent and 16 percent, respectively.

"These figures reflect the economic activity in the areas," Wright noted. "Battle Creek's stable employment base is evident in the strong increase. On the other hand, the concern and uncertainty in the Flint-Saginaw area regarding automotive jobs has turned up in the sales decrease."

Overall, there were 15,867 homes sold so far this year in the 15 regions surveyed by the association, compared with 16,497 sold a year earlier.

Ford Motor Co. donates tents to Wayne County park system

Wayne County Parks recently received four tents, valued at $15,000, from Ford Motor Co.

Jerry Brown, Ford Municipal Affairs manager, made the presentation to Wayne County Executive Edward H. McNamara on behalf of the Ford division.

The tents will be available as portable picnic shelters throughout the spring and summer. Individuals or groups can reserve tents by calling the Wayne County Parks system.

"We have worked with the Wayne County Parks system on several projects," said Brown, who is a former Livonia councilman. "We thought it to be most appropriate to assist in providing adequate recreation facilities to the community of which Ford is a big part."

Invitational show only the beginning

Yorika Cronin won first place with her oil painting, "Interior."

AFTER AN ABSENCE OF a year, the Livonia Cultural League reinstituted its Purchase Award Invitational with an outstanding 75-exhibit show now on display in the Livonia City Hall.

Top honors in the show went to Livonia resident Yorika Cronin for a modernistic oil painting, "Interior." Second place went to Farmington resident, Donna Vogelheim for a watercolor, "Outside My Window." Third place winner was Southfield resident Jodie Stein with an acrylic, "Threat."

Stein also won an honorable mention for another acrylic, "Saturday Afternoon." Joan E. Bonnett was also awarded an honorable mention for "Sailform Abstract."

All the winners — including the honorable mentions — will become a part of the public collection of art assembled by the cultural league via the invitationals. The collection is on permanent display in the Fifth Floor Gallery of the city hall.

IN ADDITION, THE LIVONIA Arts Commission, a co-sponsor of the show, has indicated an interest in the show and quite possibly will purchase one of the paintings to add to the public collection.

Judges for the show were Elaine Godfrey, professor emeritus, Eastern Michigan University and John Loree, professor of art, Eastern Michigan University. The show's chairman was LCL board member Lucille McNamara.

The show will be on display through Friday, May 15. Artists were honored at a champagne awards reception Sunday, officially opening the show.

IF YOU'VE wondering what the Livonia Cultural League has been up to lately, wonder no more.

The group surfaced brilliantly Sunday at its invitational purchase award art show with the message that there are bigger things to come.

High on that list is involvement in a "birthday bash" that will be held in conjunction with Livonia Spree activities in late June and the state's sesquicentennial observance.

"The bash will be an excuse to hold any kind of an anniversary celebration you can think of," said the project's chairman, Bob Bishop.

"Actual birthdays, your birthday as a Livonia resident or your subdivision's birthday — and for the business community, how long you have been in business here," Bishop said.

"In other words, we'll accept any kind of an excuse."

THE EVENT has such promise, Bishop said, that the city of Livonia has agreed to be a sponsor of the bash, which will be held Friday, June 26, in Eddie Edgar Ice Arena.

A committee of Livonia Cultural League members and Livonia residents meets regularly to plan the event, which will include "Taste of Livonia" food booths, refreshments, dancing, door prize drawings and, of course, ice cream and cake.

All the trappings of a birthday party — including clowns and balloons — will be included, and all ages will be welcome, Bishop said.

Proceeds will help the Livonia Cultural League pay for its many activities such as the Civic Center Environmental art sculpture, the Ruth Knight Young Artists Awards (coming up soon) and the invitational art show now in progress.

BUT BEFORE the bash takes place, the Livonia Cultural League hopes residents will "tune into" another one of its projects, which begins tomorrow.

Through the cooperation of Metrovision, cable television viewers can arrange to have fast-moving film "Top Gun" shown on Channel 20 at either 7 p.m. or 9 p.m. through May 10.

The cable TV company has agreed to donate half the proceeds to the Livonia Cultural League.

Dorothy Stockbridge tinkles the ivories of an antique piano at the home of her aunt, Eileen Toy of Livonia.

A new pitch for performing arts

By Marie McGee
staff writer

MAYBE IT GOES back to her days as an advocate for the arts for the city of Lansing. Or maybe it comes from her rich Italian musical background. But whatever the reason, Dorothy Stockbridge continues to make a pitch for the arts.

Her biggest challenge will come the weekend of May 8-10 in Livonia Mall when she presents the first-ever "All Things Musical," an unsual lineup of talent to treasure.

She's calling it "The first music speciality show of its kind in the country," and it's designed to serve the needs of the musical community as well as the public.

Collectors of vintage sheet music, records, radios, pianos and the like will find much to suit their fancies, she said.

"THAT'LL BE FUN," she said, "but the real purpose of the show is to showcase musical talent."

This will be done in several ways, she explained, including demo tapes, videocassette films or in live performance during the musical clinic and showcase segments of the event.

Anyone looking to hire a musical group — for a wedding, for example — will be able to see and hear several groups perform without ever leaving the mall, Stockbridge pointed out.

A former Livonia resident who now lives in Ann Arbor, Stockbridge is currently a portrait painter. But it wasn't so very long ago that she was employed by the city of Lansing as liaison with the arts community. She was a member of Michigan Concerned Citizen for the Arts, which helped draft legislation to aid the arts community.

She also knows what it's like to be a working musician. For awhile, she made her way as a ballad singer, accompanying herself on the piano, in various supper clubs.

THE MAIN PURPOSE for the show and sale, she said, is to visually promote musicians, "to find them jobs and keep them from leaving Michigan."

Computers are putting a lot of musicians out of work. "Somehow we have to help those who have chosen music as their life's work," she said.

One of the highlights of the show will be the performance at 3 p.m. Saturday of the popular Max Davey Singers.

Davey is doing the show because he believes in what she is trying to do for musicians, Stockbridge said.

How decision-making fits into picture

David Messing

HOW DOES LIZ Demyan sleep at night? There I was — well into my third week of dieting when in walks Liz with an Easter basket loaded with goodies. She even had the nerve to put in a package of rice cakes.

Decisions, decisions. Do I eat the rice cakes and take the chocolate home to my chocoholic family? Or take the rice cakes home and save the goodies for me?

As an artist, I should know about decisions. We make them all the time when drawing. What do you draw and what do you leave out? If you are drawing in the right progression, that is, main shapes first and details last, you usually find yourself ending with a good balance of structure and detail.

It is never advisable to overdraw just a part of drawing when you have yet to block in the main shapes of the rest of your picture. When you add details to small sections at a time, your total drawing doesn't grow together. Often certain features which are completed at one time are out of proportion to parts of the drawing which have details completed at another time.

Those who are able to see details, or have been taught to see them, have a problem of deciding what to draw and what to leave out. Those who haven't the ability, or haven't learned to see details, are bothered by their inability to render their way to realism.

Both kinds of artists are in trouble. Although those who are able to see details are better suited, their drawings are most often rendered to death and they look like they should be titled "studies in patience."

NOW THOSE WHO cannot see details usually don't spend the time needed to draw a good picture because they simply do not "see" the need. Their drawings float somewhere between gesture drawings and cartoons.

Pen and ink will quickly and graphically show you if you are an "overlooker" or an "underlooker."

Overlookers sit and watch as their hand systemically adds more and more ink and their drawing slowly approach a black blob on the paper while underlookers sit and stare at their almost blank sheet of paper wondering what they left out.

In some media, you blend with your fingers or brushes but in pen and ink you have a pen tip that makes a clean, black line. So how do you get shades of gray?

"Line" shading is the most common way of shading. This is merely drawing a lot of lines in one direction which appears to form a gray area. If you need this area darker, turn the paper slightly and cross over the same lines. This will shade the area twice as much. This is called crosshatching.

Consider short, fine and thin strokes for an area like the fine hairs on the nose of cat. Often there are times that a line, nor matter how fine, seems too bold. Here, stipple or pointalism is extremely useful. This is merely lots and lots of dots. The lighter areas need just a few dots. The darker areas need hundreds of dots.

ONE OF MY BEST tips in pointalism is that the light areas should be white with black dots and the black areas should be black with white dots. Try to avoid sold black areas as they pull the eye away from all the subtle shading in the light area.

Materials are not that important to begin with. Any smooth white paper will do, a fine felt-tip pen, a pencil and an eraser. As you improve you should try other materials. A quill pen tip is my favorite for cartooning. It tends to flood the paper anytime you momentarily stop. This causes tears of frustration to new artists, but if you stick with it, you can enjoy the varied line widths and fluid lines it produces.

The drawback is that you constantly have to keep dipping the pen tip into an open bottle of ink. And that open bottle of ink has a way of getting knocked off the table.

A technical pen is the best tool there is for pen and in. .fter you have made the decision on a technical pen (I like Reform pen by Alvin), try some bristol board or some hot press illustration board. There is a new illustration board called line coat. This is very white and has a smooth clay coating, so you can easily scratch off a mistake with a razor knife.

Examples of several techniques of shading is displayed here in this illustration by Messing.

Monte Nagler

When light hits smooth, shiny surfaces — glass, metal and water — many light waves bounce off without becoming scattered and diffused. From the proper angle, we see these as reflected images.

Reflections surround us constantly. Have you ever noticed the reflected images in the exterior glass of a modern office building, that polished oil tanker you passed on the way to work or even a pair of sunglasses?

How about colorful, abstract reflections in an oil spill, puddles after a rain, or across a still lake in early morning?

Reflections abound. If you tune your photographic vision their way, you'll have marvelous opportunities to give added dimension to your photographs.

With building glass and metal surfaces, the reflected image will nearly always be distorted into a surreal, dream-like quality.

MIRRORS, on the other hand, provide the truest reflections. In fact, mirror reflections can be so lifelike it may be hard to distinguish between the actual scene and the reflected one. A photographer can often use this to his advantage to produce some surprising results.

When photographing mirror reflections, study your composition carefully and get in the viewfinder only what you desire. You may even want yourself in the picture for an unusuall self-portrait.

Use a small aperture to get as much depth-of-field as possible. This is necessary to keep both the reflected image and the scene surrounding the mirror in focus.

Another effect can be obtained by holding a purse-size mirror next to your lens. If the mirror is held at a right angle to the lower half of the lens, it will split the scene and you'll obtain a double image.

Water, as artists and photographers have long known, is the greatest source of reflection, offering a great range of photographic possibilities.

On a calm, clear morning, a body of water can become an enormous mirror, reflecting almost perfect images of clouds, mountains, trees, and boats. Just after dawn is the best time to find glass-smooth water, before the warming air stirs up breezes.

WATER CAN also fragment reflections. Slight surface undulations can result in an image with soft overtones while pronounced ripples can produce an abstract scene or even a collage of reflected colors.

Don't limit yourself to reflections that you happen upon. You can create your own, too. Mix up a batch of soap bubbles and you'll be surprised at the reflected pictures you'll be able to capture on film. Or take a piece of crinkled aluminum foil and tape it to a sheet of stiff cardboard. Place brightly colored subjects in front of it and photograph the reflections in the aluminum to obtain dazzling photographic effects.

So reflect for a moment on the many reflections you encounter daily. You'll be glad you did.

TROUT FISHING COULDN'T BE BETTER!

George Griffith, founder of Trout Unlimited, stated "There is probably no other stretch of productive trout water in the world so close to large cities and yet in such a wilderness state." The main lodge, which overlooks the south branch of the AuSable River, near Grayling, Michigan, was built with the finest materials and craftsmanship. It has four guest suites all including their own fireplaces. There are also caretaker's quarters with three bedrooms and two baths, guide cottage, boat house, stable and various other out buildings.

Enjoy the privacy of over 300 acres with 1.2 miles of frontage on the south branch of the AuSable. Besides excellent fly fishing for German browns and brook trout, there is an abundance of deer and grouse. The second growth hardwoods and uncommonly large White and Norway pines make this a sportsman's dream come true. Offered at $650,000.

Timetable is important to planning

A COUPLE CAN be wed as quickly as it takes to get a license and an official to tie the knot. But it gets more complicated if they decided on a large wedding to solemnize the event.

Nowadays, hotels, catering halls and churches are often booked a year in advance, so planning can begin as much as a year in advance to select the wedding date and secure the site.

Six months is considered reasonable time to plan a large, formal wedding. Here's a list of the chores and approximately when to do them.

ONE YEAR AHEAD:

1. After discussing budget and deciding how the party will be paid for, choose and reserve wedding date and ceremony and reception sites. (Both for efficiency and as a souvenir, bridal authorities suggest the bride buy a wedding planner and memory album.)

SIX MONTHS AHEAD:

1. Choose and order the wedding dress after deciding on the color scheme. At the same time, begin thinking about wedding attire for the groom, best man, ushers and fathers.
2. Choose and invite the attendants.
3. Begin the guest list.
4. Schedule meetings with clergy, travel agent for honeymoon ideas, bridal registry representatives to select and register for china, silver and other gifts.

THREE MONTHS AHEAD:

1. Complete the guest list, order invitations and stationery, start addressing invitations.
2. Shop for trousseau and order wedding rings; order groom's and attendants' attire, confirm delivery date for bridal dress.
3. Select photographer, arrange transportation for wedding.
4. Complete honeymoon plans.
5. Plan ceremony and reception details regarding music, caterer, bouquet, mothers' corsages, boutonnieres.

ONE MONTH AHEAD:

1. Mail invitations.
2. Buy groom's and attendants' gifts; pick up wedding rings.
3. Have final fitting for gown and headpiece.
4. Have bridal portrait taken.
5. Plan bridesmaid's luncheon, rehearsal dinner and bachelor party, if not already done.
6. Arrange for announcement in newspapers and for lodging of out-of-town guests and attendants.

TWO WEEKS AHEAD:

1. Obtain marriage license and send announcement to newspaper.
2. Make appointment with hairdresser, check to make sure luggage is in order and that honeymoon arrangements are all settled, if not already done.
3. Arrange for transportation to departure point for honeymoon. (Best man often provides it.)

ONE WEEK AHEAD:

1. Finish addressing announcements to mail on wedding day.
2. Provide final guest count and go over final details with caterer, florist, musicians, etc.
3. Give/or attend bridesmaid's luncheon and bachelor dinner. (Present gifts to attendants at rehearsal dinner.)
4. Groom gives clergy fee to best man who will deliver it after the ceremony.
5. Arrange to move belongings to new home; begin honeymoon packing.

WEDDING CEREMONY TIMETABLE:

Two hours to go: wedding party gets dressed.

One hour to go: pictures taken at home with attendants.

Forty-five minutes to go: ushers arrive at ceremony site, place wedding programs and prayer books in pews.

Thirty minutes to go: organist starts music, ushers show in guests.

Ten minutes to: bridal party assembles in line in vestibule.

Five minutes to go: groom's parents take seats in front pew on right of main aisle; last-minute guests are seated. The last person to take her place is the bride's mother.

Zero hour: wedding procession begins.

STEPHEN CANTRELL/staff photographer

Wonderful new glittery materials put new emphasis on the bridal party. New season is lame — not just in gold but in pastel shades as well — and iridescent swishy taffetas. At the left is a off-the shoulder, straightline lame gown with a floral accent at the waistline. At the right is a puff sleeve, scoop neckline gown of taffeta. Both are from Boulevard Bridal Shop in Birmingham.

Romantic elegance

THE TRADITIONAL formal wedding dress with a long train is enjoying great popularity this spring as romantic elegance takes over center stage.

But styles that reflect more sophistication are also being seen in bridal departments and shops, including for example, sheaths and many shorter lengths. Some styles include pale pastel gowns, puffy sleeves and multicolor beading on white lace bodices.

At the right is a Milady alencon lace with satin and organza sheath with a cathedral-length train. Hanging borealis crystals are a brilliant touch.

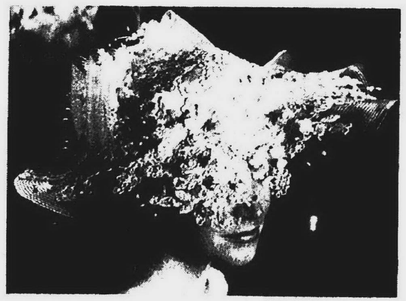
A closer look at the hand-band-style headpiece worn by the model in the upper right photo shows hand-beaded veiling. It is a custom designed by Bradley for the Couture Collection and is available at Boulevard Bridal Shop in Birmingham.



In keeping with the popularity of the Victorian era, this wide-brimmed horsehair creation by Ilissa is a stunning eyecatcher with its beaded alencon lace, generous bow in the back and lilies of the valley trailing down the back. At Alvin's in Birmingham. $450.

Here's help in finding the right love boat

A CRUISE IS like a good pair of jeans.

It must fit just right. It should be tight enough to show off your best assests, but not so tight that it cuts off your circulation. It should feel good all over.

The cruise lines are selling a dream. A dream of romantic encounters, nonstop fun, exotic destinations and food beyond compare. And the lines deliver the dream — at least to a certain extent.

To have a perfect cruise, it has to fit right. So here are some hints to help you tailor your cruise to your body.

PICKING A SHIP: This is the hard part. With several dozen cruise lines serving the American traveler, it is difficult to choose just the right size and fit. Good travel agents can help because they carry a whole line of cruises and can help pick just the right one.

CHOOSING AN ITINERARY: What's your pleasure? Alaska, Hawaii, the Caribbean, the Mexican Riviera, the Mediterranean, the Far East or the Norwegian fjords? Pick a destination, then pick a ship.

The Caribbean is by far the most popular destination for Midwesterners. But within that one area are a number of itineraries. The most common is the seven-day cruise out of Miami that hits Nassau in the Bahamas, St. Thomas in the U.S. Virgin Islands and San Juan, Puerto Rico.

An increasingly popular route is the western Caribbean area, featuring the Yucatan peninsula of Mexico with its Mayan ruins.

Other ships are heading farther south to Cartagena, Colombia or Caracas. Still others transit the Panama Canal, then head to Acapulco, Caba San Lucas and Puerto Vallarta on the Mexican Riviera, which also is a popular cruise destination from Los Angeles.

Most of the Alaskan itineraries are the same, leaving from Vancouver and hitting the Inside Passage, Ketchikan, Juneau, Glacier Bay and Sitka. Some leave from San Francisco for longer trips, while others go all the way to Anchorage and back.

PICKING A CABIN: The higher the cabin, the higher the price. Cabins in the bowels of the ship are the cheapest, as are inside cabins with no portholes.

Nearly all cabins on a ship are the same size — small, despite what the brochure and scenes from the "Love Boat" TV series show. The largest suites on a ship are nearly as large as a room in a budget motel. A higher price does not necessarily mean a larger room. The price is determined by the location.

The best room may be in the middle of the ship on a middle deck, because here is the smoothest ride. Lowerdecks are closer to the engines and service areas. Higher decks are farther from the center of gravity and thus rock more with the ship. Be sure to get a cabin away from the disco.

Windows are nice, but for the extra money, the view may not be worth it, especially on a short cruise.

FOOD: Those jeans will be considerably tighter when you disembark from a cruise. There is no way of avoiding a severe case of overeating.

Figure on eating at least six times a day, and sometimes eight. There are early riser's coffee on deck, breakfast, mid-morning bouillon, lunch, mid-afternoon snacks, dinner, the midnight buffet and, sometimes, a post-midnight buffet as well.

The best thing about dining on ships is that the food never ends. If you can't decide between lobster and steak, have both. Go ahead and have the baked Alaska and the rum cake. It's all included in the price.

PAYING THE PRICE: Cruise lines and travel agents sing the praises of cruises as the best travel bargain afloat. It may be a bargain for what you get, but it isn't cheap. A couple can expect to spend a minimum of $2,000 to $3,000 a week for their cruise, with costs going higher on longer cruises.

So find the cruise that fits, and come aboard.

Engaging traditions

Why we have the ring, shower, hope chest

PROPOSALS HAVE been emblazoned across cakes, tucked inside fortune cookies, etched in the sand, written in the sky, placed in newspaper ads, sent via Western Union and carrier pigeon and lettered five feet high on billboards.

But no matter how unique the method of popping the question, the "engaging customs" that follow have survived centuries, and the background of these traditions can be as meaningful to today's bride and groom as they were to the first Egyptian who gave a ring to his betrothed.

If you're wondering why you're attending showers, saving for your hope chest or wearing an engagement ring on the third finger on your left hand, Bride's magazine provides some interesting answers.

Lacy sheath

Perfect for the informal wedding or mother of the bride is this tier-on-tier hand-crocheted lace sheath from Creations by Pollak of Farmington Hills.

WHY AN ENGAGEMENT ring? A symbol of the groom's honorable intentions, a ring also was considered partial payment for the bride. Under Roman law, a bride groom furnished a ring as a sign of security, to protect the interests of the bride-to-be. The ring is worn on the third finger of the left hand because the pharaohs of Egypt believed a vein, the "vena amoris," ran from that finger directly to the heart.

Why a trousseau or dowry? The 20th century dowry — the material goods a bride brings to her marriage — is considered the career and salary of the working bride. But the custom of a dowry began in Europe sometime after 500 B.C., when the esteem in which the bride was held was heightened by her dowry — the land, money or household goods she brought with her. As long as the husband and wife were married, he benefited from the dowry, but if the husband died or the marriage was dissolved, the bride had her dowry to fall back on.

Why a bridal shower? Tradition has it that a Dutch maiden fell in love with a poor miller, and when her father denied her a dowry to marry, the miller's friends showered the bride with gifts to help the young couple set up housekeeping. In the 1890s, this theme was furthered when friends put presents in brightly colored Japanese paper umbrellas; when the bride popped it open over her head the parcels "showered" down on her.

WHY A BACHELOR party? While the days of the dancing girl jumping from the cake may be past, few grooms pass up the chance to gather with buddies before the wedding. Traditionally, the purpose of the bachelor party was to raise a fund for the groom so he could continue to go out with his friends after his bride took control of the household finances. But the gathered bachelors mainly mourned the loss of one of their own, even as they toasted the bride with champagne, and smashed the glasses in the fireplace or underfoot so the glass would never be used for a less worthy purpose.

What is a hope chest? Your hope chest may be a recently acquired trunk of gifts and purchases for your new home, but originally the bride's family began preparing for her marriage when she was born. Collecting, embroidering and crafting items to store in a marriage chest, even a bride's childhood was spent "hoping" for the day she would marry and share the precious things inside.

Extending invitations, writing the thank-yous

WITH THE return of the traditional wedding comes the return of traditional choices in invitations and thank-you notes.

With longer engagements, brides have more time to make the appropriate selections for all the formalities surrounding their weddings. This includes finding the perfect invitations.

Neiman-Marcus, for example, plays the arbiter of taste in handling only. Crane paper, ecru in color and engraved in black ink.

"The basic invitation package," according to a Neiman-Marcus spokeswoman, "is your engraved invitations, two envelopes — an inside one and outside one, a reception card and response card with envelope. And, of course, the invitations are tissued."

STACEY HIMMEL, who has been helping couples select their invitations for the last several years, also notices a traditional trend.

"There is more and more engraving. . .but the message inside the invitation may be personalized for friends and family."

Among the contemporary selections made by her clientele, florals remain a popular choice.

Handwritten invitations are acceptable and appealing for those having a small wedding of less than 50 guests. Handwriting on the envelopes even adds a personal touch to the most formal invitation. For an extra touch, brides can have professional calligraphers address the envelopes being sent to guests.

SOME COUPLES personalize their invitations with a photograph taken by a professional or friend. Some prefer formal studio sittings, while others like a carefree, relaxed pose outdoors.

A couple should choose their invitations no less than 10 to 12 weeks prior to their wedding date so there will be time for word selection and proofreading, delivery and addressing. Invitations with photographs may require additional time.

Invitations should be mailed at least one month prior to the ceremony. This allows adequate time for guests to respond and make gift selections.

With gifts in mind, the bride may wish to select her thank-you notes at the same time she selects her invitations. A blind-embossed thank-you card with her maiden initials can be used prior to the wedding for shower thank-yous.

FOR AFTER THE marriage, an engraved ecru thank-you card with the name of the married couple is appropriate.

How can the bride keep track of hundreds of invitations? For years, brides made 3-by-3 cards listing guests' names and placed them alphabetically in a box or binder. They used the cards to eliminate duplications, check spellings, tally the wedding and reception counts and do necessary cuts to keep the event within budget.

Today, any family that has a computer might try out its mailmerge system. Lists can be placed in the computer, alphabetized, tallied for responses and gifts can be listed for thank-yous.

FOR ADDRESSING the invitations, a bride can hire a service or undertake the task herself. The bridesmaids might want to lend a hand over afternoon tea. All invitations should be hand-addressed in blue or black ink. A typewriter should never be used.

The thank-yous also should be handwritten, but only by the bride and groom. Since timeliness is important, most experts suggest writing thank-yous as soon as the gifts are received.
