Hiring practices are not challenged here

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Unlike many of their metropolitan Detroit neighbors, Canton Township, Plymouth and Plymouth Township haven't been sued by the U.S. Department of Justice for discriminatory hiring practices.

That's largely because the local governments don't require job applicants to be residents as Livonia, Redford Township, Garden City, Warren, East Detroit and others once did.

But the percentage of minorities in local governmental positions doesn't reflect Justice Department goals, according to Deborah Burstion-Wade, Justice Department spokeswoman.

Suits have been brought against communities that hired only residents in an attempt "to right the wrongs of the past," she said.

"If you start out with an all-white work force in an all-white community, what purpose does it serve to keep it that way by advertising strictly on community bulletin boards and local papers?"

While Detroit's suburbs are predominantly white, the city itself is largely black, meaning "the actual work force is up to 25 percent black," said Burstion-Wade.

"Chances are, with effective recruitment, you'll get a racial and sexual mix of the available labor force."

No blacks are employed by Canton Township or Plymouth, nor do any blacks hold elected or appointed positions on local boards and commissions in Canton, Plymouth or Plymouth Townships. Canton employs two Hispanic meter readers. Plymouth Township employs one black.

"The boards basically reflect the community," said Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen. Plymouth Township hasn't been discriminatory in past practice, nor does it mandate residency for employees, he added.

But problems still exist

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Women working for local government have been gratified to see a few females rise through the ranks to managerial jobs and say the opportunity for advancement belongs to both sexes.

But not everything is as it should be, they say.

Carol Quinn, Canton water division supervisor, has held the same job for the last six years. But only recently did she receive a title and $5,800 raise.

"She's not doing anything differently, they just recognized it and the position was upgraded," said a co-worker.

The same co-worker is troubled by the fact that Canton clerical workers start at a salary of $13,658 while beginning DPW laborers earn $22,588.

"The gap is still there. A lot of qualified girls get tired. You're limited as to where you can go, so a lot go on to better-paying jobs," she said.

"There are no women on the labor force here and no female firefighters," she added.

Kim Scherschligt, hired in 1985 as a research associate with Canton's community and economic development department, became one of Canton's first professional women.

"Frankly I was worried at first. There had been no female professional as an integral part of the organization."

"I was somewhat surprised, considering this was a local, very small government. I have to say I got a very positive response."

SUSAN KOPINSKI, Canton deputy finance director, was hired last March.

"We don't take race, sex or age into consideration in hiring," said Dan Durack, Canton personnel director. "Our position is, we want to hire the best qualified person, regardless. There aren't a lot of blacks who live in this area."

"I feel very strongly about giving minorities the opportunity to work in government at the local level. But you don't have that many opportunities, and it's hard to find (members of minorities) who are qualified," said Henry Graper, Plymouth city manager. Plymouth requires that with few exceptions, department heads must be residents.

1980 census figures show this racial breakdown for Canton: 1 percent black, 1 percent Hispanic and 4 percent other minorities. Plymouth 1980 census figures indicate population totals of 1 percent Hispanic, 0 percent blacks and 1 percent other minorities.

The Plymouth Township census reflected 1 percent totals in each of the three minority classifications.

The Rev. Francis Byrne talks of his career of 57 years in the priesthood, including 34 years at Our Lady of Good Counsel.

Retired priest still active at 83

By Doug Funke
staff writer

The Rev. Francis C. Byrne, associated with Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Church for 34 years, could live in a lot of places during his pastoral retirement.

So why is he still here?
"I like Plymouth," he said. "I like the parish. I like the people. I like to keep active as long as I can. I'm not ready to sit down and watch television all day."

"I like the spirit of the people. I think they're friendly, very cooperative. We have some fine things in Plymouth — the symphony, band, ice show, balloons and everything else."

Byrne, nearly 84 and a priest for 57 of those years, is pastor emeritus at Good Counsel. While no longer responsible for daily operations at the church, he offers Mass every day and recites his daily breviary of prayers.

Byrne still reads, studies and tries to get out in the community.

EVEN THOUGH age has started to slow him down, Byrne's memories remain sharp. He isn't shy about tossing a quip.

When asked if he were related to another Father Byrne in the area, Good Counsel's own said, "Only by Adam."

Byrne, born in 1903, waited until he graduated from the University of Detroit before committing to the priesthood.

"There was nobody who pushed me into it. I just wanted to get an education. I think it was in back of my mind for a long time and, no doubt, the example of priests had something to do with it."

BYRNE SERVED as associate pastor at three other parishes in the Archdiocese of Detroit for more than 20 years before he was assigned his first — and only — pastorate at Our Lady of Good Counsel.

His immediate predecessor, Byrne said, was transferred just about the time he had been told he would be getting an assistant. Byrne said he continued the one-man operation for four years after his arrival.

Byrne, apparently, isn't much for sentiment.

He was hard-pressed to come up with highlights of his career in Plymouth, finally settling on an addition to the school shortly after his arrival and consecration of the new church in 1966.

Today, Byrne spends his retirement by rising at about 6:30 every morning to distribute communion to people who stop by the church prior to his 7:30 a.m. Mass.

AFTER THAT, it's breakfast, office work, shopping or otherwise bumming around, lunch, a nap, prayer, visiting parishioners, dinner.

"I think I'm entitled to a siesta at my age," Byrne said, lamenting that the practice never caught on in this country across age and economic spectrums.

"Evenings, I still do some reading, studying. Throw some of my mail away," he added.

Byrne tries to visit his Lapeer cottage weekly in summer and swim — dog paddle, he calls it — a couple of times a week at a health club in the cool-weather months.

He expects to greet Pope John Paul II at Blessed Sacrament Cathedral when the pontiff visits Detroit next month.

BYRNE NEVER has seen a pope in person during his lifetime, although he recalled seeing President Theodore Roosevelt during a whistle-stop tour.

That really made an impression. So have other things, not always so favorable.

In general, people today don't seem as aware of their religion as did churchgoers when he started his ministry, Byrne postulated. Prayer, he added, also seems to be on the wane.

"In former years, I think they got a better foundation. They got a lot of good religious training at home. Then, people were home sometime."

Still, Byrne isn't one to complain too much or too loudly.

"In general, it's been a very happy life. We think we're doing what we should be doing. That's where happiness comes from."

Harvey Street patrols beefed up what's inside

Extra police patrol on Harvey Street in Plymouth, prompted by traffic complaints from residents, resulted in 60 tickets being issued there July 21-30, according to Commander Michael Gardner.

Officers logged just more than 42 man-hours of directed patrol during that 10-day period. They handed out 28 tickets for prohibited left turns at Ann Arbor Road, 26 for stop sign violations and six for speeding, Gardner reported.

Only five were issued to city residents. Gardner was reluctant to interpret the statistics.

"Numbers can be shaped in a number of different ways. They can prove or disprove whatever you want," he said.

PEOPLE WHO live in the area always may have been more careful in their neighborhood than outsiders who use Harvey as a major north-south route through town.

On the other hand, locals, by personal observation and word of mouth, may have been more aware of the directed patrol than non-residents and adjusted their driving habits accordingly.

"Hopefully, after that much enforcement, numbers would decrease," Gardner said.

Police will continue to give special attention to Harvey Street, at least during the immediate future, said Chief Richard Myers.

Ken West, city engineer, told the city commission Monday that he is continuing to study the feasibility of adding more traffic control signs along Harvey.

CRUISERS STILL haven't abandoned the city.

Nearly 1,600 vehicles passed an observation point on Main at Burroughs from 9:15 to 10:15 p.m. Saturday, said Paul Sincoc, assistant to the city manager. "About 67 percent we determined to be cruise related."

Seventy-four tickets, not including parking violations, were issued within the city limits last weekend, according to police.

Forty-five people were ticketed for civil traffic infractions, including 12 for speeding.

Eighteen were cited for trespassing and 11 for more serious traffic misdemeanors, including five for drunk driving and two for open intoxicants in a motor vehicle.

"We feel it (cruising) is picking up," Sincoc said. "Sixteen hundred cars is a lot of cars in a one-hour period. We're going back up in trespassing violations. There's a tremendous amount of alcohol on the street."

Hiring practices not challenged

THE JUSTICE DEPARTMENT also has brought sex discrimination suits "as a way of making certain employee pools are representative of the interests of women." Burstion-Wade said.

While more women have assumed local governmental posts recently, men still outnumber them considerably.

Six men and one woman serve on Plymouth's city commission. The same ratio exists on Canton's township board. On the Plymouth Township board are five men and two women. All are elected.

Serving as appointees on other Plymouth Township boards and commissions are 23 men and 10 women. In Plymouth, excluding the library board and beautification committee, the ratio is 63 male to 26 female board members.

A total of 13 women and six men hold library and beautification posts.

Canton is served by 41 male and 18 female appointees on boards excluding the historical commission and historical society. Nine women and five men make up the historical groups.

None of the elected or appointed positions are held by minorities.

The city of Plymouth employs a total of 10 male and five female administrators. Full-time city employees include 60 men and 19 women. About 60 percent of the city's part-time employees (clerks, recreation department staffers, dispatchers and DPW workers) are women.

There are 12 men and five women in supervisory jobs in Plymouth Township. Holding non-administrative jobs in the township are 64 men and 49 women. Among them are one American Indian and one black.

In Canton, there are one female and 18 male administrators. Non-managerial personnel total 94 men and 33 women. Temporary Canton employees include eight men and 44 women. Five white male administrators and one white female administrator were hired during Canton's last fiscal year.

In Canton, job applicants who live in the township "are now given precedence" over non-residents, said Doris Kelley.

Employees say that problems still exist

She left a career with one of the Big Three automotive companies because of sex discrimination. A subsequent investigation led to her boss being demoted and a woman promoted.

"I have to admit that in the beginning I expected to confront sexism because all the department heads here are male, and all of them have been here a long time. But I can absolutely say there's no sex discrimination whatsoever."

What Kopinski found tough was gaining acceptance from the female clerical staff.

"It was very difficult for me. Kim was the only (other female administrator) and Carol hadn't been promoted. The men took me in right away but you still need friends."

Things have worked out since, and Kopinski enjoys both friendships and a healthy working relationship with the staff, she said.

FEMALE EMPLOYEES in Plymouth Township were reluctant to talk, saying they needed permission from the township supervisor.

One secretary said it bothers her to see some female staffers "treated in a degrading way — not in the professional way that men are treated." Few older women hold managerial jobs because "for years, a college education wasn't as available for women," she added.

The peace marchers stretch out over a long line as they walk eastbound on Ford Road in Canton en route to Sheldon for a rest at St. John Episcopal Church before regrouping Tuesday night for a rally in Kellogg Park.

Peace march

Group holds rally in Plymouth

PARTICIPANTS IN the 1987 Michigan Peace March for Global Nuclear Disarmament marched through Canton Tuesday afternoon and ended up in Kellogg Park in downtown Plymouth for an anti-nuke rally.

About 100 people gathered in the park for a low-key ceremony that included unveiling of a symbolic peace pole, some brief remarks and a song.

The marchers started walking May 31 from Sault Ste. Marie and will end in Detroit this Sunday, having walked more than 700 miles.

The aims of the group are to ask governments for: a test ban on nuclear weapons worldwide; a nuclear weapons freeze, including weapons in space; a reduction to zero, a step-by-step plan to get rid of all nuclear weapons; and economic conversion, which urges that government and industry stop spending time and money on nuclear weapons but instead invest time and money on human needs.

From Sault Ste. Marie the marchers walked to St. Ignace, crossed Mackinaw Bridge on June 4 and headed toward Petosky. The march in June brought walkers to Charlevoix, Traverse City, Manistee, Ludington and Muskegon.

On Independence Day the marchers were in Grand Rapids and then in July walked through Holland, Kalamazoo, Battle Creek, Lansing and Jackson. Aug. 1 found the marchers in Ann Arbor, with the walk going through Canton and Plymouth on Tuesday along Proctor to Ford to St. John Episcopal on Sheldon Road.

After the rally in Kellogg Park Tuesday, the marchers spent the night in St. John church before resuming their walk. Today the marchers will stop in Walled Lake before heading for Sunday's destination in Detroit.

Area coordinators nearby are Janis Michael of Ann Arbor, 995-0183, and Mary Diskin of Detroit, 258-5815.

Anne Reynolds and Glenn Davis of Plymouth, shown carrying the banner, joined the marchers in Ypsilanti and are shown here eastbound on Ford Road through Canton.

Van stolen from factory

A white-and-gold 1985 Plymouth Voyager was stolen last weekend from Classic Container on South Mill, according to a report filed with Plymouth police.

The thief or thieves broke into the plant through a window at the loading dock, then used a hi-lo to move a pallet of stock that had been blocking the van inside the building.

Class schedules are prepared

High schools students will be picking up 1987-88 class schedules the week of Aug. 24 at Plymouth Centennial Educational Park.

The schedules will be picked up at the cafeterias of Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton. Schedules will be picked up alphabetically on the hour by last names which begin A-E, F-L, M-R and S-Z as follows:

Seniors from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 25; juniors 8:30 to 12:30 Wednesday, Aug. 26; sophomores 8:30-12:30 Thursday, Aug. 27; freshmen 8:30-12:30 Friday, Aug. 28.

Make-up for all classes will be from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Monday, Aug. 31. The first day of school at the CEP will be a half-day schedule from 7:25 to 10:36 a.m. Tuesday, Sept. 1.

Students who fail to pick up a schedule prior to the first day of school should report to their assigned homerooms. Homeroom listings are posted throughout both buildings at CEP. Students picking up class schedules should be prepared to pay any outstanding debts.

Amateurs test skills at FBI shootathon

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Members of the U.S. District Attorney's office, U.S. magistrates, former FBI agents and the media were minute men for a morning at an FBI shoot and cook-out last week in Livonia.

The annual event "is an informal way for people who usually deal telephonically to get together. Firearms are a natural attraction, and this is a good way to socialize," said FBI special agent John Anthony of Canton.

BOB SEYMOUR, FBI senior firearms instructor, demonstrated weapons including a double-barrel black powder 1880 shotgun ("We used it the first five years I was in the bureau," cracked a former agent), World War I Winchester, Thompson submachine gun, 38 special, 357 magnum, M-16 and 9-millimeter Hecklar & Koch automatic.

All were invited to shoot the weapons after a short course.

A quiet, sunny morning in Livonia's industrial park soon exploded with ear-crunching ripples of gunfire, the smell of gunpowder and clouds of dust as guests took aim at silhouetted paper targets and earth berms.

"Are those judges on the targets?" joked one young lawyer John Trafelet, Channel 7 assignment editor and a Farmington Hills planning commissioner and firefighter, took a vacation day to attend the event.

"I HAVEN'T shot in 20 years," he said after firing a Hecklar & Koch automatic, a submachine gun used by FBI SWAT teams and throughout Europe by terrorists and anti-terrorists.

"The last time was at ROTC summer camp in Fort Benning, Ga. It's (the H&K) a nice weapon. It doesn't have much kick."

Retired agents took pride in their still-sharp shooting skills. "Ya still got it," they were heard telling each other.

Ammunition spent, the marksmen retired to the fire pit where double agents (FBI men/culinary artists) Herm Groman and Marty Torgler served up barbecued bratwurst and currywurst, sauteed onion and green pepper, potato salad, cole slaw and drinks.

AGENTS UNDERGO rigorous training intended to prevent needless injury and death, said Joe Jackson, assistant agent in charge of the FBI's Michigan operations.

Two FBI agents were killed and three wounded by two bank robbers in Miami in April 1986.

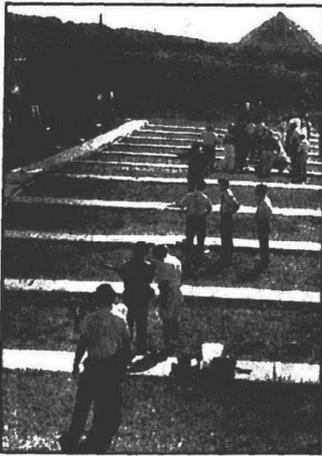

"A dentist has a drill, and an agent has a weapon," said Jackson, a Birmingham resident. "We're serious about this."

"We go out of our way to avoid situations where there is gunfire. We want to control situations as best we can."

"But if it occurs, we believe our people are capable of handling it."

Retired FBI agent Dave Nesbitt gets ready to fire an M-16 rifle while current agent Craig Meyer takes the proper precaution — plugging his ears.

Representatives of the U.S. Attorney's office, federal magistrate's office, media and ex-FBI agents took turns firing vintage or special weapons last week. All were invited to shoot the weapons after a short course. The range was set up in Livonia's industrial park.

FBI firearms instructor Bob Seymour briefed participants on the weapons they would be firing.

Josh Worth gets a check for $100 for his winning logo from Larry Olson, chairman of the chicken barbecue committee.

Logo competition winner announced

Josh Worth of Plymouth Township has brought to an end a search conducted by the Rotary Club of Plymouth.

Plymouth Rotarians had been in search of a new logo for their annual Chicken Barbecue held each year on Sunday as part of the Plymouth Fall Festival.

The Rotarians developed the idea of a logo contest to be held at both local high schools.

"We felt the contest was a great way to increase Rotary's involvement at the high school level," said Larry Olson, barbecue committee chairman.

Josh Worth drew and submitted the winning entry — a chicken in a Rotary apron and hat. Josh will be a junior at Plymouth Canton High this fall.

The new logo will begin to appear more often as the Fall Festival draws near, said Olson. "The logo will be used in the various promotions for the event."

The contest was open to all Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton art students; who submitted more than 60 entries. Each student participating was asked to develop and draw a new logo for the Rotary Chicken Barbecue. Top prize in the contest was a $100 check from the club.

Free Press called 'dominated, debt-ridden'

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

The Detroit Free Press hit the streets Monday with a lead article about a handicapped woman who had had her wheelchair repossessed. The Detroit News led by recounting 13 teenage shootings from the previous weekend. But the big news regarding both Detroit daily newspapers was being made in a federal courtroom just down the street from the sand-colored Free Press skyscraper and low, flat News building.

THERE, BATTERIES of lawyers began sifting through arguments regarding the newspapers' proposed joint operating agreement. Under the JOA, the Free Press and News would combine business operations while maintaining separate newsroom staffs and editorial policy. Free Press spokesmen have said their newspaper couldn't continue operating without the JOA Critics — including union and city officials, as well as readers — have charged the move would eliminate jobs and rob the city of two independent editorial voices.

Seventeen witnesses are expected to parade through the paneled second floor courtroom over the next three to four weeks. They'll testify why they believe the two newspapers should or shouldn't operate under the controversial JOA.

FREE PRESS publisher David Lawrence, who sat inconspicuously in the back row during Monday's opening arguments, is expected to testify. So are Allen Neuharth, chairman of Gannett Co., the News' parent company, and Detroit Mayor Coleman Young, a leading JOA critic.

At issue is whether the Free Press is a failing newspaper, as Knight-

Ridder and outside accountants insist.

Attorneys representing the Free Press said the morning daily was being "dominated" by the evening News — "a well-financed, aggressive competitor," according to Philip Lacovara, attorney for Knight-Ridder, Inc., the Free Press' parent company.

Accountant Robert Thibault of Ernst & Whinney, the hearing's first witness, said his audit revealed massive Free Press debt.

"We as accountants have substantial concern about the Free Press' ability to remain a going concern," said Thibault, who was hired by Knight-Ridder attorneys to conduct a special audit for the JOA hearing.

Attorneys for the U.S. Justice Department's anti-trust division and various newspaper employee unions questioned Free Press' bookkeeping.

Anti-JOA attorneys charged the Free Press and Knight-Ridder made no effort to cut losses.

"The Free Press cannot prove and has not proved its losses are irreversible," Newspaper Guild attorney Duane Lee said.

EXECUTIVE DECISIONS made during a 1980s circulation battle between both newspapers are also expected to be called into question, according to the Justice Department's opening statement.

The Free Press filed for the JOA as a "failing newspaper" and claims losses of $17 million for 1986 and a first quarter loss approaching $5 million for this year.

The paper wouldn't be publishing without multimillion dollar loans from Knight-Ridder, Lacovara said.

The News claimed 1986 losses of more than $12 million — a fact that wasn't lost on government attorneys.

"The News' loss is evidence it isn't dominant," Justice Department anti-trust attorney Seymour Dussman said.

Increasing the Free Press' 20 cent daily price could offset debt, the anti-JOA forces argued. But Knight-Ridder officials have said a price increase would push Free Press circulation further behind that of the 15-cent-a-day News.

The hearings will rehash many volumes of previous testimony from Free Press and News principals. Workers wheeled a cart piled with loose-leaf bound testimony into the courtroom.

ADMINISTRATIVE law judge Morton Needelman will eventually make a recommendation regarding the JOA.

While hearings follow court procedure they aren't binding. U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese will ultimately decide whether the partial merger can proceed.

Another indication the hearing decision isn't binding, the small, slight Needelman is presiding over the hearings in a business suit, not a black robe.

Detroit economy losing momentum

The latest survey of Detroit's purchasing executives reveals that the local economy continues to behave sluggishly and is losing momentum.

The Purchasing Management Association of Detroit (PMAD) found in June that local business conditions, while edging higher for a second consecutive month, remained below the key level of 50.

According to David L. Littmann, vice president and senior economist at Manufacturers National Bank of Detroit, the good news in June's survey was that the composite index rose to 46.3, up from a low for the year of 44.5 registered in April.

The bad news was that the surveys taken thus far in 1987, with only one exception, have shown a local economy whose momentum is slipping.

Any survey with a composite index reading below 50 generally reveals a majority of respondents who are citing either no change or a slowdown in various facets of their businesses — including new orders production, employment and inventories," Littmann said.

National survey results averaged 55 for the first half of the year, compared with less than 47 for Detroit.

In June's survey, PMAD members generally cited rising materials prices, particularly on plastics. They noted special shortages in high density polyethylene, copper, oleic acid, glass and corrugated products.

The PMAD survey report is compiled from monthly responses of local purchasing managers belonging to the 370-member PMAD. The report indicates whether fundamental measures of the economy are stronger, weaker or unchanged from the prior month.

'Choice' makes schools better — Minnesotan

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Three years ago the idea bombed. This time southeastern Michigan educators and public officials are paying attention to talk about "choices" in public schools.

Minnesota Gov. Rudy Perpich had a rapt audience on Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge Campus as he told how a private school in St. Paul shut down, in its words, "because the public schools are getting so good."

The idea is to provide choices: Let schools choose different kinds of curriculums, let parents and kids choose between schools, let people choose between different learning environments in the same building, let administrators choose different ways to deploy their resources.

The result is to make public schools competitive with each other — and better, advocates say. "It's the marketplace at work," Perpich said.

CHIEF PROMOTER of choice here is Metropolitan Affairs Corp. (MAC), a business-supported regional affairs research group, and its education committee chairman, restaurateur Chuck Muer.

In 1984 MAC made public a paper advocating choices in education, but little attention has been paid to it until now.

MAC also shows a videotape of a public television program on how programs of choice helped the East Harlem school district in New York boost its performance records from last to the mid-point among regional districts.

"Educational excellence is a very high priority to the business community in the reindustrialization of southeastern Michigan," Muer told 300 of MAC's guests at OCC Tuesday.

MAC brought in Perpich, 59, to talk about his successes in Minnesota. He took a detour on his way home from the National Governors Conference. A dentist, Perpich was a Hibbing school board member and state senator before being elected governor in 1982.

State Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, knows Democrat Perpich from their service on the Education Commission of the States (seven members from each state) and considers the Minnesotan "a level-headed guy."

"CHOICE MEANS greater parental involvement," Perpich said.

"In 1985 I recommended that we allow Minnesota families to select among various public schools as long as there was no negative impact on segregation.

"This year legislation was passed encouraging but not mandating school districts to voluntarily adopt open enrollment policies. It's called the School District Enrollment Options Program.

"One-third of Minnesota students this fall will have the option of enrolling at the school of their choice.

"Today we are moving toward creation of a residential school for the arts, and I'll be appointing a commission to look at improving math and science education in our schools.

"We made major progress in enacting what we call a Post-Secondary Options Program. Eleventh and 12th graders may take post-secondary classes at state expense. They receive credit for both high school and college. . . . 95 percent of students and parents were satisfied or highly satisfied (according to a survey).

"Students from low-income families told us this encouraged them to try college classes they never would have attempted. Students in rural areas took math, science and foreign language classes not available in their high schools."

A NEW program, he said, mandates choice for dropouts and potential dropouts.

"It allows those troubled students between ages 12 and 21 to find a learning environment in which they can succeed. They can select from any secondary school in the state or from any school offering alternative programs."

Already Minnesota boasts the highest high school completion rate in the "As a result we have good public support, because you have to ask for the dollars to make it all work," he said.

Because two-thirds of American prison inmates are high school dropouts, Perpich said, Minnesota has the second-lowest prison population (in percentage) in the U.S. "We incarcerate about 2,300. Most states our size incarcerate between 10,000 and 15,000."

The next state budget will provide for child-care facilities at every technical institute, he said, adding, "I'm going to recommend in 1988 that we fund child-care facilities at all of our center city high schools."

Opposition was strong at first

Here's how Minnesota Gov. Rudy Perpich answered written questions from the audience of public officials, business people and school administrators on how his state introduced choices into public schools:

• What's in it for teachers? "Community support. Rarely now do we have a bond issue that fails in Minnesota."

• Who opposed enrollment choice plan? "Just about everyone." But support grew as people found their kids could take fiber optics and that a teacher of Spanish could be shared by three rural districts.

• Is it costly? "Well, it's a good investment. . . . We are a high tax state. We are trying to get out of the top 10," he said, but noted Ford Motor Co. expanded a Minnesota plant citing the local high quality workforce.

• Who pays to transport students who choose to attend school in another district? The school district of residence pays to transport the child to the boundary, and the receiving district pays from that point.

• How did the state persuade the first school district to adopt an open enrollment policy? The state wrote to 60, and 20 responded voluntarily. "It's spreading like a prairie fire," he said.

• Do some districts pander for enrollment with easy courses and lots of sports? No, educational quality is improving — "absolutely."

Pursell hosts town meeting

Western Wayne residents can share their concerns with U.S. Congressman Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, during a town hall meeting Saturday, Aug. 8.

"Obviously, there is a lot going on in the federal government these days and people probably have a good number of questions," said Pursell, who represents Plymouth, Plymouth Township and northern Livonia.

The 90-minute meeting will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the Schoolcraft College Liberal Arts Building Theater, 18600 Haggerty, Livonia.

WSU Symphonic Band Director Harold Arnold, of Harper Woods, explained the WASBE is considered the "who's who" of music. This organization is made up of composers, conductors, publishers, performers and musicians from 40 countries.

He further noted WSU was the only college symphony band to have received such an invitation.

Before leaving for the Boston conference, the WSU Symphonic Band presented a series of concerts in Gullen Mall on Wayne State's campus.

CANDACE BALDWIN

The United States Achievement Academy announced that Candace Baldwin of Canton has been named a Collegiate Academic All-American.

Baldwin, who attends Eastern Michigan University, was nominated for this National Award by Wash-tenaw Community College. Baldwin will appear in the Academic All-American Collegiate Directory, which is published nationally.

Baldwin is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Krause.

Mayflower Hotel now has 'carry-in' pizza

The Mayflower Hotel is now offering pizza in its Crow's Nest Pub.

That may not seem very unusual, because the Mayflower boasts three restaurants featuring a variety of food and decor, including the gourmet Round Table Club, and recently was named one of the 250 best hotels in America.

The interesting thing is that the Mayflower, like millions of individuals around the world, orders its pizzas fresh and hot from Domino's.

When a customer in the Pub orders a pizza, a waitress will get on a direct phone line to the neighborhood Domino's franchise on Main Street and order it. The same choices and prices — even Domino's 30 minute-or-less guarantee — apply.

Because Domino's in Plymouth is less than 300 yards south of the door of the Mayflower, customers can expect pizza served hot. Pizzas will be available from 11 a.m. to 1 a.m. seven days a week. The only stipulation is that patrons are asked to purchase an average $1.95 beverage order.

Scott Lorenz, the Mayflower's general manager, explained the idea. "We've been thinking about serving dinner in the Pub for some time, but we didn't want to overload the kitchen. We were afraid we would slow down the service to the other rooms. This idea came about after a meeting with Domino's owner Tom Monaghan and reading his book, "Pizza Tiger."

Bob Middleton, manager of Domino's in Plymouth, said, "We're really excited about the whole concept. We expect to sell a lot of pizzas."

Sailor goes to 'footprint'

When Elizabeth R. Potere of Canton joined the Navy in 1981, it is unlikely she ever thought she would be assigned to a historic "footprint."

But Navy Personnelman 3rd Class Potere says she is glad about her assignment to the U.S. Navy Support Facility on the island of Diego Garcia, dubbed the "Footprint of Freedom."

"I was very excited about coming to Diego Garcia," said Potere, daughter of Katherine and John Potere of Canton. "In fact, I had asked to be stationed here."

The tiny British Indian Ocean Territory of Diego Garcia is remotely located in the north-central Indian Ocean. The island was discovered about the year 1500 by Portuguese explorers, subsequently was claimed by the French and finally came under British rule in 1814 as a result of the Napoleonic Wars.

Previously used for copra production, the island today is a hub of activity for U.S. Navy telecommunications, oceanographic research, port facilities and logistical support for aircraft carrier battle groups.

Portere, a 1980 graduate of John Glenn High School in Westland, said her job is important to the mission of Diego Garcia "because I'm the one to process people and to take care of their administrative needs when they arrive. I enjoy meeting the new arrivals and also enjoy the variety my job brings each day."

Potere said she plans to re-enlist in the Navy and continue her higher education with the goal of eventually becoming a naval officer.

Navy personnelmen provide enlisted personnel with information and counseling related to Navy occupations, educational opportunities, job training, promotion requirements and Navy rights and benefits. They also maintain enlisted service records and help Navy families with administrative problems.

Thus far in her Navy career, Potere has visited three countries — Japan, Singapore and the Philippines. She said she likes Japan the most because of its culture and cuisine.

Controversy isn't new to Northville land

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Northville Township doesn't look like the rest of Wayne County. It's the kind of place where crops dot the skyline, not factories. The kind of place where horses graze along rolling hills.

Yet, the mostly-rural township is playing a larger role in the affairs of its urbanized county.

That's because 1,040 county-owned acres smack in the heart of Northville Township could be up for sale.

Still, this isn't a tale of paradise lost. No Brigadoon. Township officials would be more than happy to see the property go on the tax rolls.

"We don't have much of an industrial tax base at all," township manager Steve Brock said. "We'd love to see it sold."

It's county officials who are having mixed emotions about selling the Northville land.

COUNTY EXECUTIVE Edward McNamara has said the land must be sold to pay off county debts.

"It's never been more important to sell and there's never been a better market," deputy county executive Michael Duggan said. "The whole strip, from Livonia to Ann Arbor is booming."

The county land, at Five Mile and Beck, is about three miles west of

'It's never been more important to sell and there's never been a better market. The whole strip, from Livonia to Ann Arbor is booming.'

— Michael Duggan, deputy county executive the bustling M-14/I-275 interchange. Some see it as a missing link in a business chain that could eventually stretch from Detroit to Washtenaw County.

But several county commissioners, including commission Chairman Arthur Carter, D-Detroit, have argued against selling all the property at one time.

Commissioners say they're concerned about getting top dollar. The property, they argue, will only increase in value over time.

Thus far, pro-sale commissioners haven't been able to get the issue out of committee. They'll try again Aug. 27.

The recent dispute isn't the first time the peaceful, tree-lined property has been awash in controversy.

Arguing the proposed sale price was too low, commissioners squelched a land sale plan proposed by former county executive William Lucas.

Meanwhile, a tentative settlement was only recently reached in an ongoing land title dispute between the state and county. The dispute involves slightly less than a quarter of the 1,040 acres. If approved, the county would pay the state $1.8 million for on-site buildings that once housed the state-run Plymouth Child Development Center.

REVELATIONS about treatment abuses at the portion of the property that had been reserved as a home for mentally-impaired adults made newspaper headlines several years ago.

"There were some problems out there," Deputy Township Clerk Eunice Switzler recalled. "And a lot of it got into the newspapers."

The revelations, in fact, may have helped accelerate the move to group homes — mainstreaming the mentally and physically impaired into residential neighborhoods rather than keeping them apart from society.

Today, the neat brick buildings stand empty — a ghost campus abandoned in the wilderness.

Lettering on a peeling silver water tower announces to the world that land on the other side of Beck Road once served as the Wayne County Training School.

"It was a place for young people who didn't have any place else to go," Switzler said. "Not just boys, but girls, too."

It, too, was abandoned by the early 1980s.

Tucked away in Wayne County's northwest quarter, with plentiful — and cheap — land, Northville was long ago earmarked for parks and prisons.

"With Maybury State Park and all the state and county correctional facilities we have, about 35 percent of the township is off the tax rolls," Brock said.

Throughout the years, Switzler said, township officials have been frustrated about their lack of control over development.

"We've been at the mercy of others," she said.

Until the day private developers approach township planners with blue prints for the 1,040 acres, that still holds true.

People Mover's a downtown gamble

THE JUST-opened Detroit People Mover is more than a cute transportation system similar to the one connecting Fairlane Shopping Center and the nearby Hyatt Regency Hotel in Dearborn.

When Renaissance Center opened about 10 years ago as a crucial step forward for upgrading downtown Detroit a national news magazine described it as a "white suburb located downtown."

Almost the same could be said for Trappers Alley, which opened just over two years ago in Greektown on the eastern edge of downtown.

Will the People Mover get the same description?

It appears that way based on the first few days of traffic on the transportation system, which offered free rides for the first week.

Based on daily newspaper stories and a personal observation, it would appear that most riders were white suburbanites. Many of the news articles on the People Mover that I read mainly quoted suburban residents. Moreover, when I rode the People Mover last weekend, I saw a lot of T-shirts bearing the names of their employers or high schools from the suburbs.

On a Sunday afternoon, most People Mover passengers were there mainly for the ride. They made the full circuit with people departing or getting on only at the Trappers Alley station.

All this proves two basic things about the Detroit-suburban relationship.

ONE IS THAT homeowners north of Eight Mile and west of Telegraph won't venture into downtown Detroit unless there is a reason.

In many cases, the reason is plain fun, whether it's a Detroit Tigers ball game, Fourth of July fireworks, or ethnic festivals.

The other is that most former Detroiters, particularly those over 40, have a secret fondness for their former hometown.

While many don't like the physical improvements along Woodward Avenue or Washington Boulevard, they fondly recall the days when they, attended Wayne State University, were dragged by parents to the downtown Hudson's store to shop for clothes, or visits to the Detroit Institute of Arts.

I got the impression while riding the People Mover last weekend that many of the passengers were quietly remembering other trips downtown taken as youngsters or young adults.

Some cynics vowed never to set foot onto a People Mover because they fear the concrete columns supporting the system will cave in or they will be easy prey for muggers.

Those who did venture forth last weekend commented on the attractive art work in the People Mover stations but quickly questioned that it won't be long before the works are vandalized or covered with graffiti.

ON ANOTHER level, the People Mover represents a gamble which suburban officials with older downtowns — like Birmingham, Farmington and Plymouth — are struggling with.

Like Mayor Coleman Young, suburban planners also must create a "fun" and hassle-free environment for shoppers and visitors.

While they aren't competing with RenCen or Trappers Alley, they are locked in an economic struggle with regional shopping centers and the rapidly growing strip centers which are going up almost monthly in western Wayne County and parts of Oakland County.

On a smaller scale, our suburbs are hoping that the Detroit People Mover is successful, reflecting that some gambles will pay off. It also gives suburban officials more encouragement to seek creative ways to solve their own downtown problems.

U-M Regents risk alienating public

THE LATE Don Hoenshell, whose wit graced the editorial pages of the old Observer in the late '60s, used to tell how they broke in reporters at The Detroit News when he was young.

The News would send a cub reporter to Ann Arbor and tell him to cover a meeting of the University of Michigan Board of Regents. Haw, haw.

The joke was that the regents closed their meetings to the public. They would tell you what they wanted you to know when they darn well felt like it.

THAT WAS prior to the 1963 Michigan Constitution, which provided for open sessions in the Legislature, and the 1976 Open Meetings Act, which provided the same for other creatures of the state.

Tell that to the U-M Regents.

The News has a first-year reporter on the beat, fellow named Robbie Morganfield up from the South. U-M is trying to give him the old treatment. This time, however, some of us are wise to the regents.

U-M, a world class institution, is hunting a successor to President Harold Shapiro

BUT IT LOOKS as if the regents will be in a pot of trouble with constituents, taxpayers, legislators and the garden variety voters if they attempt to go through with some of their plans. Items, as reported by Morganfield:

- Regents will "split into small groups to interview candidates."

Sorry, regents. You can call it a "small group," but the law says committees and subcommittees of governing bodies also are subject to the Open Meetings Act. In truth, there's no reason for a group smaller than a quorum to conduct interviews — except to evade the law.

- Interviews usually have to be done at different places and different times.

A whopper. There's no reason a candidate can't be interviewed on campus. Moreover, the law says all meetings

Tim Richard

"shall be open to the public and shall be held in a place available to the general public."

- "Committees will help evaluate applications and recommend a final list of candidates. No information will be released on the candidates."

Whoops! The law says the contents of an application may be reviewed in closed session only "when the candidate requests that the application remain confidential." Regents can't exercise that power.

A dirty trick suburban governments sometimes use in hiring is to order candidates to request confidentiality. We'll have to be wary of U-M trying the same dirty trick.

- "Only the final selection will be made public."

Tilt! The law says, "... all interviews by a public body for employment or appointment to a public office shall be held in an open meeting pursuant to this act." All "deliberations" also must be in public.

THE MADDENING thing about enforcing the Open Meetings Act is that governing boards hold all the aces.

If elected trustees decide to be sneaky, they can get away with it as long as they don't squeal on one another.

And the law has weak penalties. A first offense conviction for those operating an institution worth hundreds of millions of dollars is a $500 fine and costs. Drunk drivers get zapped as hard as that.

U-M regents risk alienating the public that supports a world class university if they persist in keeping the process of hiring a new president secret.

GM CHAIRMAN, "ROG" SMITH

Accountability can start with one legislative body

A LOT of folks have accountability on their minds these days when it comes to politics.

We deserve that, you know, having those who run this country be accountable to the rest of us. Most times they hate it. Power seems to do that. The easiest example to point to these days, of course, is the Iran-Contra scandal where a few elitist-thinking right wing militants believed it was all right to subvert the system and lie in the process.

It's called the "burning the village to save it" complex.

But this kind of arrogance isn't relegated to the Washington powerbrokers. And we can do something to at least stem the tide if we are willing to bend.

And the place to start is right here in our own Wolverine state. We need to change the structure of the state government. We need only have one legislative body and that body should elect the state's chief executive.

NEWSROOM COLLEAGUE Tim Richard and I have kicked around this idea for a long time, years probably. We've kind of used it as a newsroom point-of-reference when talking of making this a better place to live.

Earlier this year we decided to go public. Each one of us, great aficionados of government, are embarrassed that our government is becoming less responsive to the needs of the country.

You see many public officials have discovered a very clever secret. After running for election they need never be accountable until the next election no matter what happens.

It's true in the White House, and it's just as true in Lansing.

That's why we need government to take on a more parliamentary flavor. If you want to get a good view of how a parliament works just turn your television to Channel 9 — that's Canadian television.

Both their provincial legislatures and national governing body are run on a parliamentary system. And when it comes to making the government accountable it works, believe me, it works.

Every week without fail the government leader and his cabinet must answer questions submitted from the opposition. Now remember, that's must answer, not answer if they feel like it that day.

THE QUESTION and answer period

crackerbarrel debate

can be grueling, as it should be. The government must defend its position.

And if things go too badly, a vote of confidence can be taken.

Now this is the good part.

When everybody gets fed up with non answers or if the government gets caught up in some scandal, the legislative body can vote the government out of office. It only takes a couple of minutes and incompetent, non-responsive leaders are booted out — bingo.

Easy, huh?

Kind of makes you wonder how different Bill Milliken's image would be today if he would have had to have withstood such public scrutiny. And of course, we would find out what the real Jim Blanchard is all about.

Think about it.

A lesson in civics

Those who make laws, obey laws

RICK FESSLER DOESN'T want a lecture, but he should listen to one. Actually, a Dutch aunt should give him a chewing out and banish him to his room with a good civics book.

Fessler is the state senator who was arrested in Bloomfield Township July 25 after a police officer suspected that the lawmaker had too much to drink before he took to the road. Fessler, who says emphatically that he did not have too much to drink, is also charged with resisting arrest.

How much Fessler had to drink and how capable he was of driving a car are matters properly left to the courts. But even if Fessler is 100 percent correct when he says he was undeserving of the police officer's assertion, his behavior leaves a lot to be desired.

FOR STARTERS, Fessler refused to take a Breathalyzer test. That's his right, although exercising same is supposed to result in a six-month loss of driving privileges regardless of the outcome of the drunken driving charge. Fessler will appeal this.

He says he didn't take the test because the police officer had already de-cidied he was guilty. It's hard to figure the logic of this unless Fessler believes the police officer would purposely skew the test results. Logic says that the Breathalyzer would prove Fessler's contention that he was not intoxicated.

In any case, the law — written by a state legislature whose Upper House boasts Fessler among its members — makes it clear that those who wish the privilege of driving are expected to take the Breathalyzer test should a police officer so request. The law does not say that the driver should try to guess the motives of the police officer before complying.

FESSLER HAS made news before by indicating that he will decide which laws he will comply with. An avid foe of radar detectors, he once stated that he would still use the devices even if a law were passed to ban them.

This is a fine example for a legislator, who writes the laws, and an attorney, who is an officer of the court, to set. We should obey all laws unless we disagree with them. Then we will do as we darn well please.

There is a great tradition in this world for civil disobedience. But it's hard to equate speeding and refusing a Breathalyzer with the works of Gandhi and Henry David Thoreau. In fact, a guiding tenet of civil disobedience is to purposely and publicly break an odious law and then suffer the penalties as a form of protest.

If Fessler is so distressed with the laws of this state that he would publicly announce his intention to ignore them, his protest would be much more earnest if he would disassociate himself from the legislative body that passes the laws. In other words, he should either pledge to obey the laws of the state, or he should resign from the Senate.

Would he take such a dramatic step? Don't hold your Breathalyzer.

Comeback of champion overcoming diversity

MY NO. 2 lifetime sports idol will be 75 one week from today, Aug. 13, and I hope he won't take affront at being runner-up to the hero of my boyhood, Babe Ruth. His own name is Ben Hogan.

One of Hogan's greatest moments thrilled thousands of onlookers right in our own backyard, when he won the United States Open golf championship at Oakland Hills Country Club in 1951, so perhaps some of you will join me in sending him best wishes in reaching what racetrackers would call the three-quarter pole.

I'll pass along his address in a few paragraphs.

ONE BIOGRAPHER has called the wee Texan, who never weighed more than 135 pounds, "arguably the finest golfer ever to play the game."

But perhaps strangely, it was not just his impressive list of championships that made Bantam Ben an immortal in the minds of the golfing public.

through bifocals
Fred DeLano

Rather, it was his incredible courage demonstrated in a comeback that saw him post his greatest triumphs after a terrible accident had appeared to end his career forever. Turn back the clock:

ON THE MORNING of Feb. 2, 1949, Hogan's '48 successes had made him the reigning U.S. Open and PGA champion. He and his wife, Valerie, were driving from Phoenix to Fort Worth in a heavy fog when a bus struck their Cadillac, fracturing Ben's left collarbone, left ankle, pelvis and several ribs. Doctors said he might not walk again. They were wrong.

In December, 10 months and eight days after the accident, he rode in a golf cart for a practice round at Colonial Golf Club in Fort Worth. On Jan. 6, opening day of the 1950 Los Angeles Open, he was back on the firing line. After dogging his footsteps every yard of the way for 18 holes, my column for the next days' editions of a California newspaper included such paragraphs as these:

"DRAMA, MASQUERADING as Ben Hogan and using a set of golf clubs for the principal stage prop, paced Riviera Country Club's sunswept 7,020 yards for four hours and 30 minutes yesterday.

"When the final curtain fell to the cheers of some 6,000 spectators who stood, sat and knelt on the hillside that dips to the 18th green, you knew you had witnessed the writing of one of the outstanding chapters in the history of American sport.

"I'm terribly, terribly tired," said this man Hogan as he climbed the last few yards to the club house after his first round of tournament golf in nearly a year. It was not until this very week that anyone dreamed he could possibly return to the tournament trail so soon, in fact, if ever.

"THE 73 that Ben shot must go down as one of the miraculous performances of all time. Before it's over, he may do better or he may do worse, but just for the sake of comparison, please remember that Hogan the Healthy shot 74-72-76-70 in the 1949 renewal of this same tournament over the same acreage.

"He wound up with the cheers of thousands who knew they had seen a champion come back."

His greatest year — 1953 — was yet to come, for it saw him capture the Masters and British Open titles as well as the U.S. Open crown, but to this day golfdom's historians still point to this Oakland Hills victory in '51 as his greatest. Many of you were there.

HIS FIRST-ROUND score was 76. Then he posted a 73 and said, "I'd have to be Houdini to win now." For 36 holes he trailed the leader, Bobby Locke of South Africa, by five strokes. Then came the test of playing the final 36 holes in one day, a Saturday.

In the morning, Hogan shot 71, one over par. The he turned it on with a 67 in the afternoon for the championship.

If you were at the awards ceremony, you heard him say, "I'm glad that I brought this course, this monster, to it knees."

Hogan doesn't play competitively any more, not even on the seniors tour. He hits a few balls every day and keeps a close watch on the sport, but health forbids much more other than duties as chairman of his golf equipment company.

Oh, yea, that address: Ben Hogan Co., 2912 W. Pafford St., Fort Worth, Texas 76110. It will cost you just 22 cents to join in saying, "Happy Birthday, Ben. Golf will never forget you."

Chuhran explains election question

To the editor:

Information in some of your recent articles pertaining to the proposed Canton election have not addressed the entire issue and needs clarification.

This proposed election originated as an advisory question to the people on hiring a superintendent and making the supervisor part time. Then additional questions on making the clerk and treasurer part time were added. The attorney general has consistently declared that holding special elections for advisory issues is illegal when the members of a township board have the power to vote on the issues anyway, and the vote of the people is not binding or does not have to reflect how the township board will vote. The township board still must vote on the issues.

This misleads the voters into believing that they in fact have a vote in the issue when they do not. Just because an issue is controversial the good ole boys can not duck their responsibilities and expend tax dollars wastefully on this type of election.

When the state and county election offices both informed me that the proposed election was illegal, I in turn informed the township board of this and stated that I will not spend the taxpayers dollars (minimum of $30,000) preparing for an illegal election unless the township attorney provided to me a legal opinion indicating the election was legal and misappropriation of funds could not be litigated by the public. I still have not received this opinion.

A legitimate proposal changing the merit ordinance was adopted for this special election which is basically changing ands and thes and must be addressed periodically. To schedule a special election for this purpose is irresponsible when it could be placed on the election for 1988 and save the taxpayers the $30,000. It does not improve, change, or increase the current quality of services or type of government which now is provided to the residents.

These dollars could be better spent on additional sidewalks, road paving or cleaning basements after a flood, or toward an additional pump. If any of the "good ole boys" were to expend these dollars out of their own personal income would they still schedule an election to save political embarrassment?

The third proposal, to raise the millage to construct a recreation complex has not yet been adopted by the township board for this special election. With voter turnout at special elections being notoriously low this important issue should not be sacrificed for the sake of trying to legitimize an election which has the sole purpose of removing political heat from the township board.

The plan by the good ole boys is obvious. Add a legitimate issue to the ballot then at the last minute add the advisory questions mentioned above. I will not allow this to happen.

To add further confusion and hindrance, all the election equipment has been removed from the custody of the office of the clerk and a key accessibility has been denied. The integrity of the election cannot be provided by the clerk if the equipment is in the hands of those who may wish to tamper with it.

The board has passed a resolution which is in violation of state election law MCL 42.7, making the hiring of additional election assistants next to impossible.

They have instructed me to proceed with scheduling arrangements with the county without providing all the proposals that will or could appear on the ballot. This has made it difficult for me and impossible for the county and state election officials to proceed.

Why are they doing this you ask? Several reasons, if the election process goes wrong it will further arguments on part time administrators, and to cloud the real issue of creating a superintendent's job for one of the good ole boys who is currently out of work.

The "good ole boys" refuse to understand that a special election will mobilize many people, not only within the township, but at the county and state levels as well, which is more tax dollars expended.

Is this responsible leadership? Is the childish actions of walking out of meetings responsible leadership? Could anyone depend on these board members for leadership required in a serious community crisis?

Since the original purpose of the election is illegal and improper, new issues were to be added to the election which create a whole new ball game.

It is my intention to call for a public hearing so that the people can express

Reader advises using forethought

To the Editor:

I am not an architect or an engineer but it seems to me that common sense tells you that if you design a building that is 100 feet long for a 96 foot lot, you are going to hang over four feet. That must be the case in Westchester Square Annex.

Where were the city engineers when they issued the permits and reviewed the plans? Looking out the windows day dreaming?

When the footings were poured and West discovered the error, why wasn't a red flag put on the project, air hammers called in to remove them and put them where they should be? You don't build a $400,000 building on a mistake in footings. The city was sleeping at the switch and they know it.

Charging for resurfacing the parking lot because the contractors used city property to store equipment and supplies is a lot of baloney. I along with other building owners would like to charge the city for parking when they dream up Ice Festivals etc.

Dean H. Lenheiser

Sweet sounds found at park

By Julie Brown
staff writer

THE FIRST time she heard the dulcimer played, Mary Ann Stokes was on a home tour in Marshall, Mich.

During the tour in Marshall, a couple of people were playing the dulcimer. Stokes liked the sound of the instrument and thought she'd like to learn to play.

She eventually met a man at Greenfield Village and ended up buying one of his dulcimers. For the most part, she has taught herself to play the instrument.

"It's not too hard to play," said Stokes, a Plymouth resident. "I've played piano since I was 10."

When playing the instrument, it's possible to play one note at a time or to embellish the music with chords, she said.

Stokes performed Wednesday, July 29, as part of the Plymouth Community Arts Council's "Music in the Park" program. Her noontime performance in Kellogg Park drew an appreciative crowd.

EACH SELECTION was followed by a hearty round of applause; some of the listeners stayed around after the performance to ask Stokes questions.

Her Kellogg Park performance was a varied one, with music that was "mostly traditional Irish, some classical and early American."

If it's fresh produce you're after, you don't have far to travel.

The farmers' markets in Plymouth and Canton offer area residents a variety of taste-tempting treats.

The Canton farmers' market is held from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturdays and from 3 to 7 p.m. Wednesdays at New Towne Plaza, Ford and Sheldon roads in Canton.

In Plymouth, the farmers' market is sponsored by the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce. The farmers' market is held from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturdays in The Gathering, across from Kellogg Park in downtown Plymouth.

Saturday, July 25, was the first day for Canton's farmers' market. It's scheduled to run through Oct.

at the first day of Canton's farmers' market was substantial, said Walker, who lives on Denton Road in Canton.

THIS TIME of year, corn, cucumbers and tomatoes are among the many items for sale. Later in the season, apples, cider and pumpkins will appear on the scene. "Very few peaches," Walker said of the Canton farmers' market produce. Plenty of good cantaloupes are available at this year's farmers' market in Canton.

Walker, who retired from the Ford Motor Co., has been participating in the Canton farmers' market since it started. He enjoys doing so.

"You meet a lot of different people here," the Canton resident said. "You learn a lot."

In Plymouth, the farmers' market began on May 16 this year.

"That's always Flower Day, with the spring flowers," said Mary O'Connell, executive director of the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce.

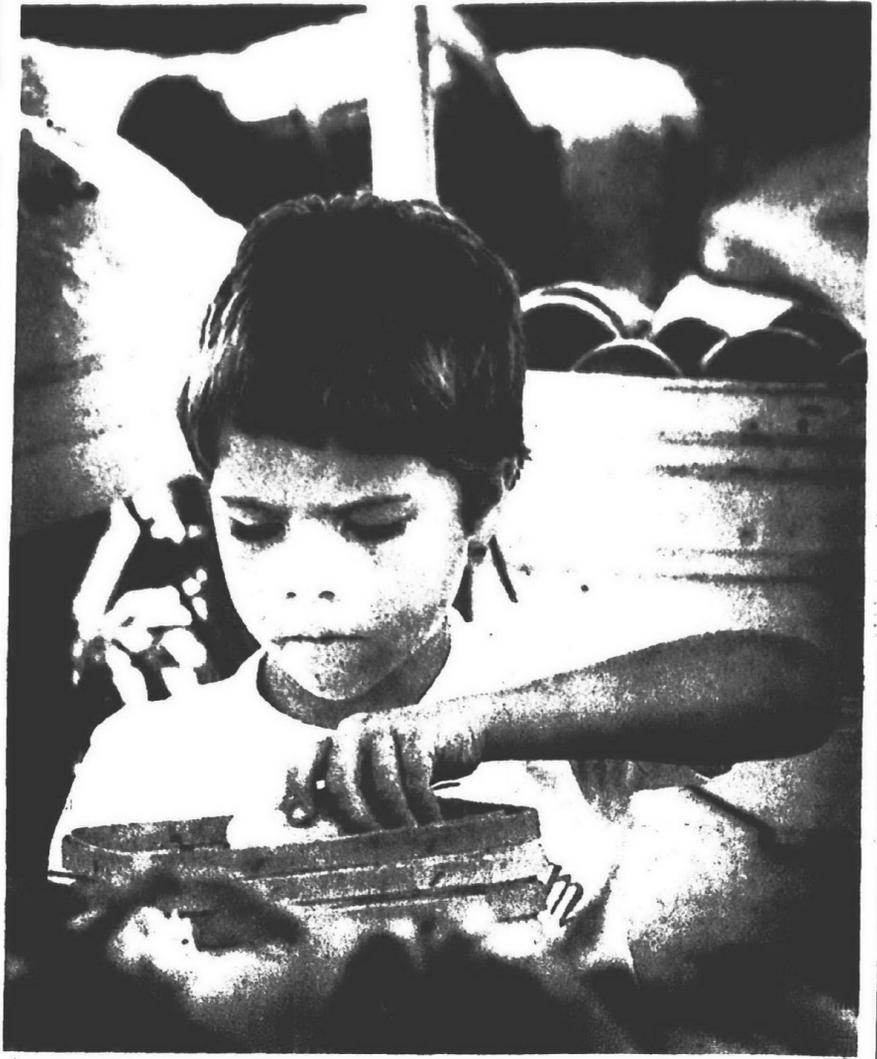

CURRENT HOURS for the farmers' market in Plymouth are 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturdays. On Sept. 19, the starting time will move up to 9 a.m.

"It just gets so cold in the morning" later in the season, O'Connell said.

For some special occasions, the farmers' market in Plymouth stays open until 2 p.m. on Saturdays. The market will be closed on Sept. 12 for the Fall Festival; its final scheduled date is Oct. 24.

Joe Bida is market master for the farmers' market at The Gathering in Plymouth. He's there on Saturdays, helping to keep things running smoothly.

The farmers' market in Plymouth has some 26 stalls this year, with cheeses, eggs, vegetables, fruit and baked goods among the items for sale.

Matthew Walker helps his grandfather, James Walker of Canton, package some vegetables at the Canton farmers' market. Matthew, 7, is a visitor from Ohio.

Dancing to the sounds of the music is part of the fun for these Plymouth children. They are Mary McIntyre (left), 4, Sarah Bochet, 3, and Jimmy Curtiss, 6.

Mary Ann Stokes plays the dulcimer for the "Music in the Park" crowd.

The park is alive with the sound of music

Among the best-known songs she played were "Camptown Races" and "Take Me Out to the Ballgame."

The latter song was played in part due to the impressive performances of the Detroit Tigers in recent weeks.

"Since we're doing so well, I thought I had to play that," Stokes said with a smile. "I like to put a few in there that people recognize."

During her performance in Plymouth, Stokes played the hammer dulcimer, so named because it's played with hammers. She also played a lap dulcimer, also known as a mountain dulcimer or Appalachian dulcimer.

"That's an American instrument."

The hammer dulcimer has roots reaching back to ancient times, she said. The instrument's found in African and Scandinavian countries and elsewhere throughout the world.

"They're all called different names." The instrument's sound is similar to that of a zither, she said.

STOKES HAS played the dulcimer for about seven years now. She isn't a full-time musician; she works as a registered nurse at Mercywood Health Building in Ann Arbor, a mental health facility.

Her work at Mercywood is with adolescents; the work is stressful and she's found that music helps her relax.

"I like the outlet of music. It's nice."

This semester, Stokes will take an introductory course in music therapy at Eastern Michigan University. She's played for the adolescents where she works and used to play for the people at Northville's Hawthorn Center when she worked there.

She's also performed for groups of senior citizens.

Although Stokes enjoys playing the dulcimer, she still gets a bit nervous about performing. This was her second "Music in the Park" performance; she also participated in last year's summer series.

"I was glad they asked me again."

Plymouth's Catherine, 1½, and Amanda Skodawa, 4, enjoy the "Music in the Park" performance.

Ann Warne of Plymouth talks with her father, Harold Hayward, who is visiting from England. They were among those enjoying the dulcimer performance at Kellogg Park.

Men, if you're about to turn 18, it's time to register with Selective Service at any U.S. Post Office.

It's quick. It's easy. And it's the law.

Assisted Living at its Finest...

- Could you or your loved one benefit from support and encouragement with dressing and bathing?
- It is important to you that medications be carefully supervised 24 hours each day?
- Are you or your loved one eligible for the nursing home alternative?
- Do you know someone who needs assistance but still enjoys an active stimulating environment?

Surrounded by woods and in harmony with nature, our home is very private, yet in the middle of Livonia, only minutes from shopping, doctors and cultural activities.

Our home is not very large, therefore occupancy is limited and priority will be given to eligible applicants who respond early.

A non-smoking environment is enjoyed throughout the facility.

TV ministry's power declining, polls show

AP — Television evangelists have suffered a "virtual demise" as a major force in American politics because of sexual scandals and relentless pleas for money, according to pollster Lou Harris.

"For 10 years, our surveys showed that 20 percent of the electorate was made up of white followers of evangelical preachers. Now, just since the first of this year, that number has shrunk to 14 percent in this latest survey, a drop of 30 percent who have defected from the fold," Harris said.

Harris's remarks came last week as he presented the results of a wide-ranging poll at a meeting of the Democratic Governors Association on Mackinac Island.

THE SEXUAL scandal that cost Jim Bakker his PTL empire and Oral Roberts' contention that God would "call him home" if his followers didn't contribute millions of dollars to his ministry led to the decline of the television evangelists, Harris said, adding "people were shocked by all this."

Harris said the followers of the evangelists provided Jimmy Carter his victory margin in 1976, and "Ronald Reagan stole that vote right out from under Carter's nose in 1980. Then Reagan won it again by 32 points in 1984. This vote alone made up one third of Reagan's victory margin in that election."

"Now, eight in 10 of all voters think most of the white TV evangelicals are not money honest, and over half of the remaining members of their flock are contemplating falling away."

"Not only is their base eroding rapidly, but the issues on which this New Right religious movement has been built are turning against them," Harris added.

He pointed to the fact that 88 percent of those surveyed in the latest poll supported sex education for all public school students as a way to avoid teen pregnancies and the spread of AIDS.

"A 60 percent to 37 percent majority also favors giving out free birth control devices to avoid pregnancies and AIDS," he said, adding that 62 percent oppose a constitutional amendment to ban abortion.

HARRIS SAID the survey results were based on a nationwide poll of 1,261 voters and was conducted between July 17 and July 22. It had an error factor of plus or minus 2.5 percent.

A Media General-Associated Press poll backs up the idea that Americans have little faith in television evangelists, and points out that many believe the scandal involving Bakker and his PTL ministry won't be quickly forgotten.

Fifty-three percent of the 1,348 adult Americans in the nationwide telephone poll said they didn't believe money collected by television evangelists generally went to good causes. Only 27 percent believed the money was used for good purposes, and 20 percent were unsure.

Seven in 10 respondents said the scandal involving Bakker would hurt all television evangelists. Six in 10 said it would have long-term effects, while 36 percent thought it would be quickly forgotten.

Of those who thought all evangelists would be hurt, three in 10 said the Bakker scandal raised questions about television preachers' believability, and an additional quarter said it raised questions about how they're spending donations. One-quarter also said the public would confuse Bakker with other evangelists.

Bakker resigned as head of the 500,000 member PTL in March after saying he had been blackmailed over a

'Now, eight in 10 of all voters think most of the white TV evangelicals are not money honest.'

—Lou Harris pollster

sexual liaison with Jessica Hahn, a church secretary from West Babylon, N.Y. Hahn has said she was forced into sex with Bakker and another evangelist. She reached a $265,000 settlement with PTL, but received only part of the money before Bakker resigned and payments were cut off.

PTL, WHICH stands for People That Love or Praise The Lord, is about $66 million in debt, according to documents filed in U.S. Bankruptcy Court. The documents also show that Bakker paid enormous salaries to himself, his wife and others.

Bakker's attempts to regain control of his evangelistic empire have been rebuffed by the Rev. Jerry Falwell, who took over when Bakker resigned in March. Some PTL supporters have complained that Falwell has changed the nature of the television ministry from charismatic to fundamentalist, and he has also angered Bakker loyalists by accusing the PTL founder of homosexuality and greed.

In the Media General-AP poll, three in 10 Americans said they watch religious programming regularly or occasionally, but only 14 percent of respondents said they had made charitable donations to a television ministry.

Billy Graham's ministry was the most popular, receiving money from 17 percent of those poll respondents who made donations. Twelve percent said they sent money to Oral Roberts, and 11 percent made donations to Pat Robertson. Five percent said they made donations to Bakker or PTL, and 5 percent said they donated to Falwell's ministry.

Among those who made donations, 43 percent said the Bakker scandal would cause them to donate less money than they had in the past, while 48 percent would make no changes. Three percent said they would donate more money, and 6 percent were unsure.

Those who donate money were less likely than those who didn't to say the scandal would affect all evangelists, and they were more likely to think the scandal would be quickly forgotten.

RESPONDENTS in the Media General-Associated Press poll included a random, scientific sampling of 1,348 adults across the country June 1-10. As with all sample surveys, the results of Media General-AP telephone polls can vary from the opinions of all Americans because of chance variation in the sample.

For a poll based on about 1,300 interviews, the results are subject to an error margin of 3 percentage points either way because of chance variations in the sample. That is, if one could have questioned all Americans with telephones, there is only 1 chance in 20 that the findings would vary from the results of polls such as this one by more than 3 percentage points.

Of course, the results could differ from other polls for several reasons. Differences in exact wording of questions, in the timing of interviews and in the interview methods could also cause variations.

Demand is low for pope tickets

AP — The demand for free tickets for a Mass celebrated by Pope John Paul II at the Pontiac Silverdome in September isn't as great as anticipated, possibly because of security rules. Roman Catholic officials say.

"We've had a lousy response," said Sister Judy Lieder of Our Lady Queen of All Saints in Fraser.

"I know a lot of people have been scared off by the restrictions placed on them if they go to the Mass, which I can understand," she said. "But I think it would be a disgrace if we didn't fill the Silverdome."

The U.S. Secret Service has said food, purses and packages will not be allowed into the Silverdome, and cars will be barred from stadium entrances. People are expected to begin arriving at the stadium at 10 a.m., seven hours before the Mass.

THE ARCHDIOCESE of Detroit has made 90,000 tickets available for the Sept. 19 Mass. The Mass is the last event on the pope's 10-day U.S. tour, and Vice President George Bush is expected to attend.

Sister Rose Matthew, who is in charge of distributing tickets to Roman Catholic parishes statewide, also said security restrictions may have put a damper on demand.

"Many of the restrictions come from the U.S. Secret Service, and we're in the process of trying to counter some of those," she said.

"Naturally, particularly for older people, it's difficult to move around in large crowds," she added. "We're saying now that there will be a large crowd, but it'll be an orderly one. And while they're waiting, they'll get to see live TV coverage of the other papal events on large TV screens."

On the morning and afternoon before the Mass, the pontiff is to deliver a speech in Polish and English on a street corner in Hamtramck and a major address on social issues on Detroit's downtown Hart Plaza.

MEANWHILE, a theology professor says most most Americans would rather ignore the social and economic teachings of Pope John Paul II anyway.

"They pick and choose and hear only what they want to hear," said Stephen Schafer, a theologian at Notre Dame Seminary.

Schafer notes that the pope has been critical of both the American and the Soviet economic systems. The pope has said that the only difference between the two is that the Soviet system has control of the profit motive.

Flying high Troy ad firm promotes People Mover image

special writer

Detroit's 2.9-mile People Mover transit system has emerged triumphantly for public use despite fear of crime, the system's enormous construction costs and the death of man last spring who slipped 80 feet to the concrete to avoid being struck by an automated car on the test track.

Responsible for the People Mover's image is Kolon, Bittker & Desmond, a Troy-based advertising agency handling the one-year, $500,000 transit system account.

The firm pooled resources with Detroit-based Coley & Associates to land the account. Together they have opened an office in the Renaissance Center's Tower 400.

With more than 30 active accounts — including Arbor Drug Stores, Crowley's, Vic Tanny health spas, Kowlaski Sausage, and the Ford Land Development Corp. — Kolon, Bittker didn't seek the People Mover account because it was low on business.

Doug McIntosh, who's responsible for the radio and television advertisements for the People Mover, said he hopes the account could be a lead-in for more municipal clients.

McINTOSH, DIRECTOR of creative services, claims he has not found it difficult to overcome a People Mover image problem.

"When we took this account in March, we didn't think there was a negative image," he said. "There has been no obstacle to overcome, no problems to solve."

Not even the death of 21-year-old Samuel Lee Swilt has posed a problem for the agency.

"That was his own undoing," McIntosh said. "That man had no business being there."

"It was nothing more than carelessness on his part," according to Gary McMullen, Kolon, Bittker's manager of marketing and business development. "The man was breaking the law, and his death was an accident. People understand that. And they also understand he was trespassing."

NOR DOES THE agency believe crime will be a problem, thanks to the People Mover security program.

"I'm sure passengers of the People Mover will be safe. Each of the 13

Jury to decide if lease 'enriched' Stoddard

By Tim Richard
staff writer

A federal court jury is deliberating whether former banker Stanford C. Stoddard "misapplied" $175,000 of Michigan National Corp. money in a Jackson deal during his stewardship as board chairman.

Stoddard, 56, of Birmingham heard himself likened to television villain J.R. Ewing of "Dallas" in the 1981 sale-leaseback transaction.

"Stanford Stoddard did the negotiating. He represented both the bank and himself. It was an impossible conflict of interest. The motive was to enrich himself," said assistant U.S. attorney James Mitchell in his Tuesday morning summary to the jury.

DEFENSE ATTORNEY Neil Fink called the government case "riddled with mistakes" and added his own colorful touch:

"Last night as I prepared my remarks, the irony struck me: Our (Detroit) children are dying in the streets, and I'm sitting her figuring out whether a second floor is worth 50 cents or 75 cents (rent per square foot). That's not the gist of a criminal case. A criminal case reaches out and grabs you."

Neil Fink, Stoddard's attorney, called the sale-leaseback deal proper because it helped the bank improve its cash reserves.

If convicted, Stoddard could be sentenced by U.S. District Judge Anna Diggs Taylor to five years in prison and fined $10,000.

In addition, the maverick banker, known for his "hands-on" management style during his 1972-84 tenure as bank chief, awaits the result of a U.S. Comptroller of the Currency administrative hearing in which the government seeks to bar him from banking for life.

Core of both charges: Stoddard regularly failed to draw lines between bank business and his personal affairs.

ON THIS MUCH Mitchell for the United States and Fink for Stoddard agreed: Stoddard and former MNC associate Curt Terova bought a downtown Jackson property for $41,000 and leased in to MNC for $27,000 a year for 10 years. The site at 105 E. Michigan was a visible presence for Michigan National Bank-Midwest.

Mitchell called the deal improper because:

- Rent was $7 a square foot for the first floor (just two-thirds of which the bank needed) and $1 on the upper two floors (unnecessary). Going rates for comparable properties were $2.50 to $3 for first floors and 25 cents to free for upper floors.

- In an improper secret deal, Southfield attorney Raymond Zweig, who worked 20 years for MNC, bought the building for $41,000 and sold it a year later to Amberly Prop-

Students recruit business leaders for fall conference

By Casey Hans
staff writer

A group of University of Michigan students is learning to deal with Michigan business in a very real way.

But their long-term goals reach beyond our borders into the world of international business.

Students in AIESEC — a French acronym translated into the International Association of Students in Economics and Business — will host the group's regional conference this October at the Sheraton Oaks in Novi.

They are busy knocking on doors asking business leaders to volunteer as conference speakers, to donate items or money for the conference, to become involved in the group's intern program.

Up to 500 are expected to attend the conference from many Midwestern states and from four to five other countries.

Although the AIESEC chapter is treated as a university student organization, the group receives no financing from the school.

Students are learning about business in Michigan through their solicitations, but the thrust of their October weekend meeting and the philosophy of the group is an international one. Member students' six-week to 18-month internships are normally done overseas, according to organizers.

U-M SENIOR and Farmington Hills resident David Weiner is coordinating the Oct. 30 student conference, with the help of other AIESEC members like Redford Township resident Lise Poy, who has done much of the fund-raising during the past year.

The students are working with a $40,000 budget, 40 percent of which erties, a partnership of Stoddard and Terova, for the same price. Comparing the $27,000 rent to the purchase price, Mitchell told jurors.

"Obviously a 65-percent return for 10 years is too high. The bank pays the public 12 percent (on deposits). Why should Stanford Stoddard get 65 percent, more than five times as much? By taking 65 percent for himself, he misapplied the bank's money."

Using the income method of calculating value, Mitchell said an owner could have made a fair profit on a rent of just $2.35 a square foot.

Stoddard unnecessarily moved bank records into the unneeded upper floors "to make it look as if it were needed."

FINK ARGUED that government witnesses' estimates of downtown Jackson property values were "full of air."

He called the sale-leaseback deal proper because it helped the bank improve its cash reserves. Fink contended the Midwest directors approved it with eyes open.

"There's no secret 'cause there's nothing wrong," Fink said. Calling his client by his nickname, Fink said, "That board of directors are not Bud's employees. They're independent merchants and residents of Jackson. They don't do anything CBS — 'cause Bud said."

Fink noted that friends gave Stoddard a 50th birthday T-shirt that said "Michigan National Bank —

Sole Proprietor." But the attorney argued it would be impossible for one chairman, despite his personal management style, to exercise the kind of rigid control over details that the government attributed to Stoddard.

At first the government indicted Zweig and Terova, Fink said, later granting them immunity in return for their testimony against Stoddard.

But Fink labelled them "partners in perjury." They rode Bud Stoddard's shittails for years for all they could get.

"Their friend is fighting for his liberty and, what is more important to him, his lifelong reputation. 'Bud Stoddard can't be a scapegoat.'" must be raised through business solicitations, they said. They now have more than half the needed money, much of it from Michigan-based businesses.

So much has to be donated because most students are on a shoe-string budget. "Because we're a student group, we have to keep our delegate fee very low," Weiner added.

Poy took her fund-raising role of vice president of corporate relations for AIESEC seriously. After doing background research on each company to get contact names and other information, Poy "actually talked to these people. We tailored the proposals to each company."

"It's like another job, on top of school. It's actually a full-time job," she added.

IT TOOK two years of proposals to the group's national headquarters to bring the regional conference to the Detroit area. This is one of four AIESEC regions in the United States.

"It (the conference) allows members to get together," Poy added. "It's also a training ground for new members."

Up to 500 are expected to attend the conference from many Midwestern states and from four to five other countries, Weiner said. The conference is expected to give AIESEC members information, not only about specific businesses, but about the world of business and what they can expect upon graduating.

For the conference, "we sent letters around the world," Weiner said. "It's something that's never been done — giving it a sort of international flavor."

This international thrust is not new to the group which was started in 1948 in Europe.

"The most important tangible thing about AIESEC... is an international awareness and friendships," Weiner added. "I think that's the bottom line."

"You just learn more about the world," Poy added.

As part of the conference, the students will host an AIESEC/Southeast Michigan Business Leadership Reception at 4:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 30.

stop stations will have attendants and other security people to monitor problems," McIntosh said.

"Using the People Mover safely is the first priority," McIntosh said. "We hope the system proves to be the safest around, enhanced by the fact that it's the most advanced rail system in the country."

McIntosh, who devised 30-second "Detroit in Motion" animated television commercials for the 50-cents-a-ride transportation system, also has packaged 10 celebrity radio commercials to promote the project.

Participants in the radio spots are J.P. McCarthy of WJR-AM, Dick Purtan of WCZY-FM, singer Aretha Franklin, Tiger play-by-play announcer Ernie Harwell and rookie Detroit Tiger pitchers Mike Henneman and Jeff Robinson.

"We expect these spots will accentuate the positive," said Becky McLennan, supervisor of public relations for the agency.

Kolon, Bittker, a 75-employee firm with 22,000 square feet of office space on the 10th floor of Troy's Ameritech Building, had $23 million in billings last year. McIntosh believes the company will continue to grow, partly because of exposure gained through the People Mover project.

"People appreciate it when you do a good job," he said.

Know when to get out of your mutual funds

Part V

Just about every financial and business magazine advises you on which mutual fund to buy. Few, however, tell you when to sell.

Even fewer advise you on how to unload an equity fund that gets overheated. Here are some pointers on deciding when to sell.

The load issue

If you have paid a full load or a low load, you should take that factor into account in selling your fund. It takes some time before you make up your load charges, and it is unwise to quickly sell a fund before you have a chance to recover your load charges.

If you buy a back-load fund (one that has sliding load charges on your way out), you should try to minimize or completely eliminate these charges.

For example, if ABC back-load fund has backloads of 4 percent, 3 percent, 2 percent, 1 percent, and 0 percent, then you should try to hold the fund at least for four years so you won't have to pay the load charges.

Change of investment objective finances and you

Sid Mittra

Should your investment objectives change significantly, you should contemplate substituting a new fund for the old one. For instance, if you are planning to retire soon, it may be wise to sell an aggressive stock mutual fund and invest in a different fund that specializes only in conservative investments.

Similarly, depending upon your most current investment objectives, you may wish to move between stock and bond funds, high- and low-risk funds, and domestic and international funds.

The size issue

One of the important criteria for selecting a fund is its size. If, as a result of outstanding performance, a fund attracts massive amounts of money and begins to have difficulty placing it in attractive investments, then it might be prudent to look for a smaller fund with equally attractive growth potential.

The tax ramifications

If your mutual fund is not performing well, or if in your judgment you should be 100 percent liquid, then it's time to sell your shares in your fund.

In selling off your fund shares, you may wish to take advantage of the new tax law. In 1987, your long-term capital gains generated by investments held more than six months will be taxed at the maximum rate of 28 percent, as compared to the next year's rate of 33 percent.

However, if short-term capital gains are involved, then in 1987 these gains will be taxed at the maximum rate of 38.5 percent as compared to the next year's rate of 33 percent.

Sid Mittra is a professor of management at Oakland University and president of Coordinated Financial Planning.

When you get a 'poor deal, others should be warned

When was the last time you believed the claims of a specific advertiser, only to find out later that you were a victim of deception or unfair business practices? How does one deal with such a situation?

This week's column addresses what we, as consumers, can do when confronted with a less-than-satisfactory business situation.

A friend called me recently to complain about the horrible food and service she and her guests received at a north suburban seafood restaurant that had been featured in the dining out sections of several area publications.

WHEN SHE and her husband alerted the waitress that the fish had been overcooked, the waitress said she would talk to the chef — but did not return for several minutes. When focus: small business

the waitress finally did return, she said there was nothing that could be done to remedy the situation.

My friend then asked to see the manager and was informed that the owner was on the premises. She did not come to the table but was sought out after the meal was over.

In addition to being extremely rude, the owner said there was nothing that could be done. What remained from the experience was a $90 tab that our friends were left to pay. HOW WOULD you handle this experience? To begin, our friends are telling everyone they know to never patronize this particular establishment for as long as their doors remain open for business.

Secondly, they are writing letters to every food editor in town who previously featured this restaurant in their publication. Next, a letter will be sent to the restaurant owner informing her of their actions.

Pets of the week

Ike and Tina, a pair of 8-week-old domestic long-haired kittens and Mookie, a 1 1/2-year-old German shepherd/berman mix, need homes. Ike (Control No. 188099) and Tina (Control No. 188100) are housebroken and good with other animals and children.

Mookie (Control No. 188061) is full-grown 90 pounds and has been spayed. To adopt these pets or others or to check for lost pets call the Westland Kindness Center of the Michigan Humane Society, 721-7300. The center is at 37255 Marquette, Westland.

Sheriff to host horse rides, picnic

Wayne County's mounted sheriff's division is sponsoring a horse ride and picnic Sunday, Aug. 23 in Edward Hines Park.

The picnic begins 1:30 p.m. at the Northville Recreation Area. Hot dogs, soft drinks, potato chips and entertainment will be provided.

Horse rides begin at 10 a.m. at the Hines Drive/Newburgh Road intersection, Livonia.

Admission is $10 per-person or $15 per family. Proceeds will be donated to the Children's Hospital of Detroit's Ronald McDonald House and to buy new saddles for the division. The eight-officer division patrols Hines Park and Detroit Metropolitan-Wayne County Airport. The four-year-old division is the only full time county unit of its kind in Michigan, a division spokesman said.

Area talent can't prevent East setback

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

For Scott Selzer, the game was "something I'll always remember." For Joe Jouppi, it provided a chance to "sharpen my skills."

For Mark Murray — well, perhaps it was best forgotten.

Those three were among the 80 1987 graduates selected to play in the seventh annual Michigan High School All-Star Football Game Saturday at Michigan State University. And although their East team was edged 9-7 — a victim of three fumbles, two missed field goals and a pack of penalties — all three had their moments in the limelight.

Selzer, the North Farmington running back who gained 1,311 yards rushing and scored 19 touchdowns as a senior, rumbled for 44 yards on 11 carries. He also caught a pass for nine yards.

The 5-foot-10, 190-pound Michigan State freshman was handed the ball on the game's first two plays. He gained 11 yards and a first down. He helped keep the East's opening drive alive with his nine-yard reception, putting the ball at the West 42. But the drive fizzled, ending with a miss on a 36-yard field goal attempt.

THAT WAS THE first of several disappointments for the East, which outgained the West 201 yards to 91.

Trailing 9-7 in the fourth quarter with Murray, the former Farmington Harrison standout, at quarterback, the East drove from its own 40 to a first down at the West 12.

The key play in the drive was Murray's 22-yard completion to Russ Ludke on a third-down-and-seven from the West 45. It was a sparkling effort on behalf of the 6-foot, 170-pound Wayne State-bound quarterback. With two West pass rushers descending upon him, Murray somehow ducked and escaped, scrambling to his left before passing back to Ludke.

football

"I really don't know what happened (on the play)," Murray admitted afterward. "I'm going to have to go home and watch it on videotape."

After Sean Guerin gained six yards on two plays, it was Selzer's turn. The tailback got the ball on third-and-four at the West 17 and slashed for three yards. East coach Dennis Tuomi opted to go for the first down, and Selzer came through, leaping over right tackle for the first down at the 12.

BUT ON THE next play, Selzer was dropped for a two-yard loss. Two Murray passes were incomplete and on fourth down, Ron Ureel missed his second field goal attempt, this one from 31 yards with 3:58 left to play. The East offense never got the ball back.

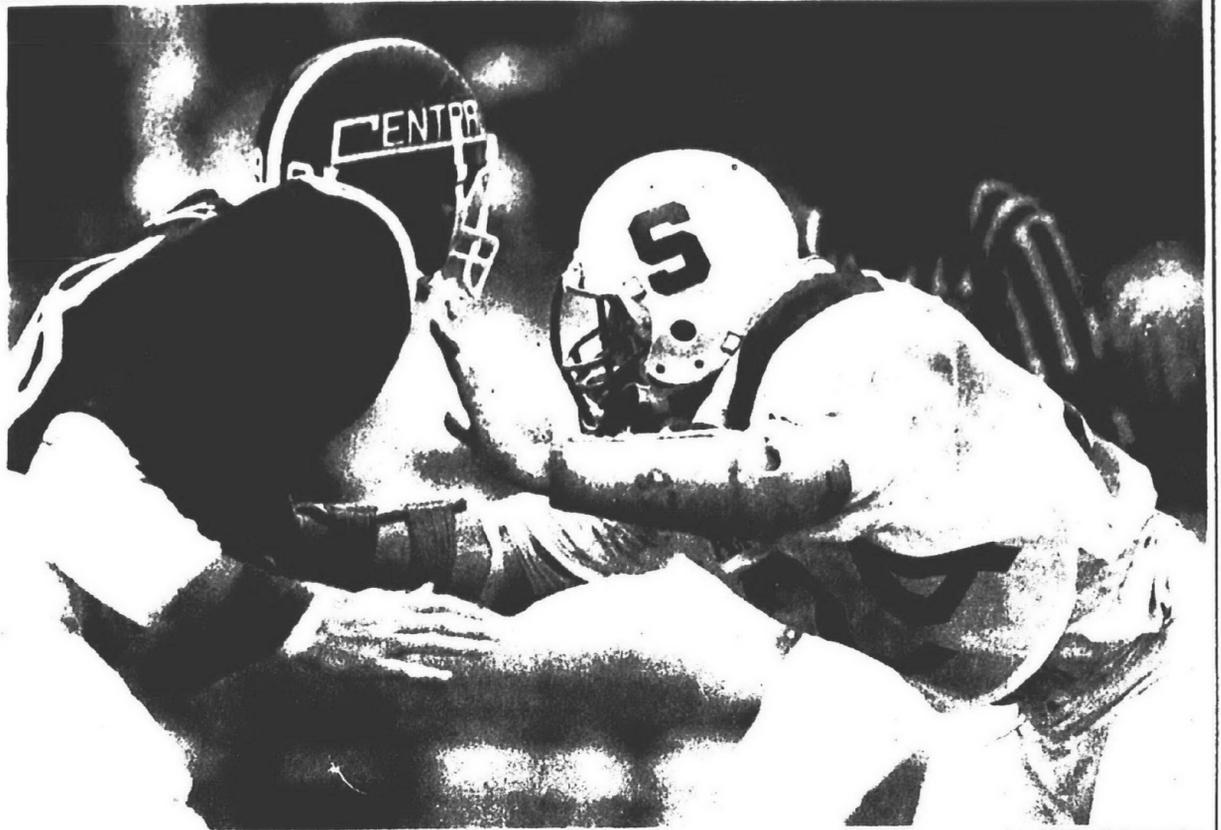

Despite his game-high rushing performance, Selzer wasn't overly pleased. "I could have done a little better," he said. "That's the first time I've played on (artificial) turf."

There was one bright note. The stress fracture Selzer suffered in his left leg appeared to be completely healed. The injury had forced him to miss his senior season of track.

For Murray, the 22-yard completion was his only real contribution. He was one-for-seven passing and gained three yards on three rushes. One of his runs was an option pitch to Brian Stephens in the second quarter that resulted in a fumble when Murray was jolted as he tossed the ball.

"Yeah, it was (disappointing)," said Murray. "You come into the game and think you have everything down, then this (happens)."

Joe Jouppi of Plymouth Salem, playing defensive end for the tight end Jeff Wittig in the annual high school All-Star football East, puts a hand-check on Grand Rapids-Forest Hills Central game in East Lansing.

Offensive results 'unforgettable'

IF ONLY I could keep John Herrington's words fresh in my memory, something significant to remind me why I attend the Michigan High School All-Star Football Game every summer.

"It's for the benefit of the kids," the Farmington Harrison coach — and the Michigan High School Football Coaches Association (MHSFCA) public relations director — reminded me.

I know, I know, I know. "Ask any one of them," Herrington continued anyway, "and they'll say it's one of the greatest experiences they've ever had."

I know, I know, I know. "Especially the kids from the smaller schools. They get to play against guys from bigger schools they've heard about all year."

I know, I know, I know. "And it's for the coaches, too. It's an honor to be selected to coach."

C.J. Risak

We'd have the game even if there were no fans. It's not to make money for the coaches' association."

ENOUGH ALREADY. The players love it, the coaches love it and a certain segment of football fans love it.

It's easy enough to remember. So why does

Herrington have to keep pounding these facts home to me? I've heard them for myself, from players and coaches who for 10 days each summer make the trip to East Lansing for the game. Every year ask them why and every year they answer what an honor it is, that they'll never forget it.

Unforgettable. This game is always unforgettable.

Mark Murray sure won't forget Saturday's game. His one-of-seven passing is worth remembering. So was his chance to display his newfound option running skill (at Harrison, Murray was a drop-back passer), which he showcased in the second quarter with a hard pitchout that bounced off Brian Stephens' (from Detroit Country Day) shoulder pad.

Elks falter in district play

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

A tournament that began with such optimism and early success ended in disappointment for the Canton Elks Sunday.

The Redford Adray-Connie Mack champions won their first three games in the district tournament at Mount Clemens last weekend, but consecutive losses in its next two outings ruined the team's title hopes.

The Elks were in the driver's seat after making it three straight with a come-from-behind, 10-3 victory over Mount Clemens Baseball Club early Saturday.

But the Canton bats went cold in the next game when the Elks had to take the field again an hour later to play the Sterling Heights Raiders. Canton had just three hits and suffered its first loss, 3-1.

WITH THREE teams having one loss each, the Elks won a coin toss with the Raiders and were awarded a bye in Sunday's first round, which pitted Mount Clemens against Sterling Heights.

"We just stopped hitting, and (Sterling Heights pitcher Jeff Bohm) wasn't any better than the three Mount Clemens used. That means a lot in double headers. The boys just came out flat."

—Dave Racer, Elks baseball coach

The host team eliminated the Raiders, 6-3. It followed that up with a 9-5 win over Canton in the final as Mount Clemens pitcher Jeff Bohm, working on one day's rest, five-hit the Elks on the hottest day of the summer thus far.

"It was such a big game Saturday morning that it mentally drained the kids, playing a game like that," Canton coach Dave Racer said.

The Elks spotted Mount Clemens a

5-0 lead in the top of the first inning and battled back with a seven-run fourth.

"TO COME back and win it in the seventh, I think the kids were mentally drained."

The Elks never mustered the needed offense in Saturday's second game against Sterling Heights, but Shane Smith kept them in the ballgame with outstanding pitching, possibly his best performance of the season.

Smith faced the minimum nine batters and allowed one hit through three innings. The Raiders then tied the game on three straight singles in the fourth before Smith retired the side again in the fifth.

He gave up a lead-off walk to Greg Revere in the sixth and a one-out, two-run homer to Bill Franzen, who ended up getting the game-winning hit as the Raiders made their 3-1 lead stand up.

SMITH COMPLETED the sixth inning without further trouble, striking out five and walking one while tossing a five-hitter.

"Shane pitched a helluva game; we should have won it," Racer said. He said he had considered pulling Smith just prior to Franzen's homer. "It was just the one pitch."

"We could see he was about done. We knew he was on the brink. I guess we let him go a batter too long."

Salem's Tackett joins U-D

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Recruiting works best when everyone gets what they want.

That's what happened with three all-Observer softball selections who recently signed athletic scholarships with the colleges of their choice.

The trio — Garden City standouts Shelly Malone and Karen Sandman and Plymouth Salem star Denise Tackett — will be welcome additions to their college's softball programs. And while all three fill needs in their new team's lineups, they also fill their own needs by attending a Division I school that offers an academic curriculum that interests them.

SOUNDS LIKE a perfect arrangement. In fact, the only party not satisfied with it is Eastern Michigan University, which tried too late to sign Sandman.

"They called Monday," she said. "But I signed the Saturday before with U of D."

That's the University of Detroit. The Lady Titans lost two outfielders to graduation and were in desperate need of a back-up at catcher (starter Debbie Frasier played in all but one of U-D's 53 games), and they got help in both areas by signing Sandman and Tackett.

Sandman was Garden City's first-ever all-state softball selection. She was superb in her role as the Cougars' lead-off hitter, batting .385, scoring 39 runs and stealing 15 bases. She was also an excellent defensive player, committing just two errors in center field. Sandman finished with 18 runs batted in.

"I heard that two outfield positions were open, and I'd like to get one of them," said Sandman, who is considering studying sports medicine.

ANOTHER POSSIBLE sports medicine major is Tackett. A powerful hitter at Salem, Tackett led the Rocks in batting average (.524), doubles (four), triples (seven), home runs (eight) and RBI (46).

In addition to her batting prowess, Tackett has been a versatile performer. She was Salem's designated hitter as a sophomore, a catcher as a junior and played first base last spring.

"(Coach Nick Stann) said I'd probably be playing first base and catcher and in the outfield," said Tackett. "But mostly, I'd be at first base."

Tackett chose U-D because of its new sports medicine program. "I liked the education they had to offer me," she said.

Canton runner breaks ribbon in women's race

By Tom Henderson
staff writer

Kelly Champagne proved you can go home again after all Saturday night in the fourth annual Redford Roadrunner's five-mile road race in Livonia.

A record field of more than 1,100, up nearly 700 from a year ago, participated in either the five-mile or one-mile runs. The humidity was in the 90s and the temperature in the 80s, hardly ideal conditions.

But Champagne sparkled, returning to the city where she first made a name for herself. Now 22, she set a state Class B record for two miles (11:00 flat) back in 1983 when she ran for Livonia Ladywood.

Since then, the Canton native has run on scholarship two years at the University of New Mexico and another year at the University of Texas, where she transferred so she could train under Terry Crawford, the women's Olympic track coach for 1988.

Between seasons at Texas and home for the summer, Champagne showed a talented women's field that her conditioning program is coming along just fine, thank you, as she finished in 29:15, 53rd overall in a field of 850 and 44 seconds ahead of the women's runner-up, Andrea Bowman of Livonia, a former an NCAA qualifier from Eastern Michigan University.

TOPPING THE MEN'S field was Keith Hanson of Roseville. He finished in what looked like a dead heat with his teammate at Michigan State, former All-Area runner Dave Homann of Garden City, but the electronic computer eye said Hanson won by a hair or two. He was timed in a course record of 24:42.7, with Homann registering 24:43.1.

Wallace Poupore of Hamtramck, a muscular 190-pounder, topped a field of 300 in the mile with a 5:12.

Champagne led the whole way, but running

was leery of a woman behind her, Ella Willis of Detroit Willis, 29, may be the best-known racer in Michigan of either sex, a competitor who frequently races every Saturday and Sunday and who has won races from a mile to a marathon. But this year she has been running hurt, is overweight and off her form. Willis finished third Saturday, despite pulling up at three miles to walk awfully.

"I went through the first mile in 5:36, which is kind of slow," said Champagne. "It's not as humid down south. I've run against Ella before and I figured she was right behind me. I slowed up after the first mile to see if anyone would come up on me and no one did. So then I took off."

"THE HUMIDITY made it a struggle. I felt strong but not smooth."

Homann and Hanson looked both strong and smooth.

They ran in a pack with Loren Bandt of Livonia and Tobin Jones of Westland for two miles, then slowly (if 4.45 a mile can be described as slow) asserted themselves.

"About three miles, he (Homann) pulled away and he had six seconds on me by four," said Hanson, who then reeled Homann back in, catching him just after the turn off Farmington onto Lyndon, with about a third of a mile to go. "When I caught up, we didn't want to fight it in. If it would have been somebody else, I would have."

Hanson, 22, and Homann, 20, both run cross country and track at MSU.

"It was hot out there but it was a lot better than I thought it would be," said Homann.

THE COURSE is flat and fast, which is conducive to a large wheelchair field. Thirteen wheelers entered the five-miler, and while the leaders were cheered mightily at the finish, as they are at most races, the loudest and most emotional cheers were for the wheeler who finished last. She was, in fact, by far the last person in the field on wheels or legs.

Sherril Bullard, 13, of Taylor was entered in her first race. Her parents had ordered a special racing chair for her but it hadn't arrived yet, but Bullard was determined to race anyway. So, off she went in her regular chair.

She was born with cerebral palsy, and while she is handicapped physically, no one will ever question her fortitude. For more than two hours she struggled, one push of the wheel after another. While hundreds of runners had showered, changed, ate hot dogs and were on their third or fourth beer, she was out there in the heat, wheeling away, one bicyclist from the Redford Roadrunners tagging along to keep her company and beg water from neighbors.

THE CYCLIST, John Goddard, finally left her to come and tell the crowd at Veteran's Park that Sherril was nearly done. The crowd surged to the finish, a police car set off its

Runner seeks advice on training program

Dear Myrna: I take three to four aerobics classes weekly and consider myself to be in fairly good condition physically. I would like to train for a marathon (I once competed in a half-marathon) and wonder if the cardiovascular benefits from aerobic dance would cross over to distance running. Is it possible to set up a training program for a marathon that would combine a regimen of distance running and aerobics so I wouldn't have to endure the physical strains of running every day? Is so, please describe such a program. Also, how many months of such a program would be considered suitable training for a marathon?

— M.E.H.
Windsor, Ont.

Let me first assume various factors before I answer this question. Assuming when you say in "good condition," you are cardiovascularly sound. Assuming when you say you've completed half a marathon, we mean 13.1 miles. Assuming you've experienced this half marathon, it has not been over a year ago. Assuming you are running around 20 miles a week, this is in addition to aerobic dance.

I am familiar with marathons through an experience two years ago. My staff of instructors and I warmed up the runners at the Detroit International Marathon and greeted them at the wall — 20-mile point — as they came in with six miles left to go.

Being that I'm not a runner myself, this question took a little research. I called my friend, David Howell, owner of Total Runner store in Southfield, for advice. David gave me a detailed study and wonderful insight to what marathon running is all about.

Howell said: "You need muscular leg endurance. You can't substitute aerobics dance for running and expect your legs to develop proper muscular strength you need for a marathon."

Howell believes aerobic dance is great but that biking is a better substitute in varying your marathon training. By biking, you use your quadriceps muscles (front thigh muscles). While running your hamstring muscles (muscles in back of legs) are working. This helps to balance your legs resulting in stronger leg endurance.

We both agree that you must vary your training in order to reduce the shock of running. The aerobic activity you are getting in your, classes must be an addition to the training because of the cardio, benefit and endurance derived.

If you are running around 20 miles weekly, taking three to four aerobics classes, you are on your way to the marathon.

Howell's formula for marathon training is as follows:

Assuming a base of 20 miles per week, six months should be plenty of time to safely prepare for a marathon. It could be done in less time, but the incidence of injury increases as the training period decreases.

The elements necessary to put together a successful marathon training program include:

- A gradual increase in mileage, never more than 10 percent per week;
- Hard and easy days, never running hard or long on consecutive days but having an easy day (or day off) after a long run;
- A long run once a week, longer than all the other runs of the week. The long run is gradually increased until you can do at least one 20-mile run and two 18-milers in the last eight weeks.

Weekly mileage can be increased just one mile per week for 13 weeks and two miles per week the second 13 weeks. This will get the total weekly mileage in the 50-55 mile range the last six weeks of training.

The last week leading to the marathon should be a rest week, just running short easy runs early in the week, and possibly the last day or two off completely. Days off can be used for rest or cross-training (like bicycling or aerobics).

Good luck. Enjoy the training time and be careful with the hot weather we have been having lately.

District baseball fortunes turn on Elks

Canton's only run came on Todd Marion's lead-off homer, which gave the Elks a 1-0 lead to start the second inning.

baseball

MARION, WHO was expected to join the Taylor American Legion team for the AABC Connie Mack regional that began Wednesday in Marshall, had two of the Elks' three hits. Steve Johnson's two-out single in the fifth was the only other hit as Jeff Messing pitched a complete-game victory. He walked three and struck out two.

"We just stopped hitting, and (Messing) wasn't any better than the three (pitchers) Mount Clemens used," Racer said. "That happens a lot in doubleheaders. The boys just come out flat; you can't motivate them."

"That's not like our team," he said. "(Tim) Dowd, (Chris) Sisler, (Mike) Culver, (Steve) Waite — they did a good job of shutting those guys down."

In Sunday's championship game, Bohm, who was a redshirted freshman at Central Michigan last spring, pitched seven innings after working the same number Friday.

BOHM, A 6-foot-3, 200-pounder, held up under the extreme heat. His pitches were clocked at 85 mph. But Canton's five runs was the most he has given up this summer.

The game was interrupted by two rain delays, and Racer tried "to use the rain to our advantage," he said. "(Bohm) was the only pitcher they had left. I was trying to stall some more and give him a chance to stiffen up, but it didn't work that way."

"Plus, we wanted to get the game postponed to Monday. Then (Adam) Kocik would really have been ready to go."

Kocik, who had pitched the opening-game win over Allen Park American Legion on Thursday, was the fourth Elks pitcher to take the mound. He shut down Mount Clemens over the final two innings. He faced the minimum six batters, allowed no hits, walked one and struck out two.

STARTING PITCHER Derek Darkowski lasted two innings and was charged with four runs. Mike Sulak and Chris Kennedy worked an inning apiece in relief.

Offensively for the Elks, Mike Culver, who has battled injury and a hitting slump, slugged a solo homer in his final game. Dowd's two-run double in the first inning gave Canton the lead before Mount Clemens tied it in the bottom half.

Marion and Dave Crespi had one RBI apiece, and Sisler doubled and scored two runs.

Mike Payne went 3-for-3 and had five RBI for the winners. His hits included a bases-loaded double and a two-run homer.

IN ADDITION, Darrin Legue went 3-for-4, and Mount Clemens benefited from Canton's four errors, including one with the bases-loaded, which contributed to seven runs.

In the 10-9 win over Mount Clemens Saturday, Marion scored the winning run in the bottom of the seventh.

After hitting safely, he was moving on Sisler's bunt. The pitcher threw the ball down the right field line for an error, and Marion scored on the play when the right fielder failed to provide backup.

Cotter repeats Pee Wee win

Northville right-hander Tom Cotter, who pitched mostly in relief all season, pitched a brilliant two-hitter to hand Caesars its first loss of the playoffs.

"Cotter just pitched a great game," Moraitis said. "He threw that split-fingered fastball which made it tough on us. We must have hit 13 or 14 fly balls."

"We were down a little bit, but I knew they were out of pitching. I told them to come back (Monday) in a good frame of mind."

in the championship game, Cotter came from behind in the fifth inning to beat Wayne Ford. Cotter drove in the tying run with a triple in the fifth, and then Caesars' defense slugged to score Johnson with the winning run.

Cotter's record for 1987 stands at 20-6 with the Pee Wee team, 45-4. Other team members are Tom Lutz, Vince Turti, Mike Gotsch, Matt Smithson, Steve Christensen, Matt Horn, Eric Harrois, Kelly Williams, John Farrar, Dan Wroblecki and John Leht.

Canton's seven-run fourth inning, which gave the Elks a 9-7 lead, was highlighted by Marion's three-run double. He was 2-for-4 and Vince Fox 2-for-3, and Waite and Sisler scored two runs each.

Marion also went the distance to become the winning pitcher. He allowed nine runs on four hits, walked three and struck out four.

successful season, posting a 27-2 record.

"I'm really proud of the boys," Racer said. "They played with a lot of confidence right from the start. And, I think they had a lot of fun this season."

Despite the disappointing finish to the tournament, the Elks still had a

Canton stopped in Mantle final

Canton advanced to the final of its own Little Caesars-Mickey Mantle regional baseball tournament only to be done in by miscues in the field.

The host team for the National Amateur Baseball Federation event made 10 errors as South Farmington defeated Canton 11-3 Monday to take the championship.

Jeff Kugelmann held the opposition to five hits for six innings, but South broke the game open with a four-run fourth and added five more in the last two innings. Kugelmann walked four and struck out two.

Matt Kleinhenn was 2-for-3, had an RBI and scored a run, and Brad Wright and Kurt Stinson knocked in Canton's other runs with a groundout and sacrifice fly, respectively.

POSTING A 3-2 tournament record, Canton opened with a 3-2 win over Detroit Police Athletic League Thursday.

Kugelmann was the winning pitcher this time, going the distance and scattering five hits. He had five strikeouts and walked three.

He also carried a hot bat as he went 2-for-3 and collected three RBI. Kleinhenn had a two-run single, and Derek Humphries scored two runs.

Canton then dropped into the losers' bracket after emerging on the short end of a 1-0 score Saturday with South Farmington.

THE HOST team was limited to two hits — singles by Mike Gray and Geoff Allen — and frustrated by 10 strikeouts.

Allen was saddled with the defeat despite tossing a three-hitter in a complete-game performance. He faced just 24 batters, struck out two and walked one.

Canton's defense also was superb in the low-scoring contest, especially the play of center fielder Wright, who made diving catches for three of his five putouts.

Canton fared well in the losers' bracket Sunday, defeating Detroit Police Athletic League 3-2 and North Farmington-West Bloomfield 7-3.

CANTON SCORED all of its runs in the fourth inning against P.A.L. Pete Bidolli knocked in two with a single, and Ed Hanna won the game with an RBI sacrifice fly. Dennis Hanson was 2-for-4.

Matt Metikosh went six innings for the win, giving up only three safeties. He fanned nine but walked eight. Dan Boyle worked the seventh for the save.

Against N.F.W.B. Wright hit a two-run double and Kugelmann a two-run triple. Humphries and Hanson also had RBI, and Ron Groh scored two runs. The winners had only four hits, but took advantage of eight walks.

The victory went to Humphries, who departed with a 5-2 lead after five innings. He was touched for seven hits, but issued only two walks and struck out three. Boyle made another late-inning relief appearance.

The victory sent Canton into the tournament final, but the opportunity to advance to this weekend's NABF national tourney in Northville went to South Farmington.

Caesars earns tourney trip

By Brad Emons staff writer

They had to throw everybody but the kitchen sink. Out of pitching, Tom Holzer Ford of Northville made it to the championship of the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League playoffs, but a trip to Johnstown, Pa. will have to wait another year as Little Caesars of Dearborn Heights earned a berth in the prestigious All-American Amateur Baseball Association Tournament with a convincing 16-5 victory over Holzer Monday night at Livonia's Ford Field.

Holzer extended Caesars to the final game of the double-elimination tournament, but had little firepower on the mound as four novice pitchers, including catcher Kevin Ritter, gave it a their futile best shot.

Caesars, which took a commanding 8-4 lead after four innings before pulling away, mounted a 17-hit attack with Bob Czaplak, Paul Oster and Brian Roney getting three each. Steve Looney, the University of Cincinnati footballer, added two hits and four RBI.

SHAWN UZARSKI, who pitched eight innings before giving way to Mark Bayliss in the ninth, gave up only three hits. He struck out five and walked three.

Caesars will take a 19-8 LCBL record into the 16-team AAABA Tournament, which begins Monday in Johnstown.

"What I like about this team is my speed and hitting," said Caesars manager John Moraitis. "Our top five batters can run with anybody."

Caesars, the regular season champion the last two years, stumbled in last year's playoffs against Livonia Adray.

And it appeared after Sunday's 4-1 loss to Holzer, that they had been backed into a corner again.

Northville right-hander Tom Cotter, who pitched mostly in relief all season, pitched a brilliant two-hitter to hand Caesars its first loss of the playoffs.

"Cotter just pitched a great game," Moraitis said. "He threw that split-fingered fastball which made it tough on us. We must have hit 13 or 14 fly balls."

"We were down a little bit, but I knew they were out of pitching. I told them to come back (Monday) in a good frame of mind."

NORTHVILLE COACH Bob Peterson said Cotter, the former North Farmington High product, learned the split-fingered pitch in May from former Tiger hurler Dave Tobik.

"He was only making his fourth start and he only really has a hard fastball and the split-finger pitch," Peterson said. "The biggest surprise to me was that he made 40 percent of his pitches in the first four innings."

Cotter, who struck out seven and walked six, balked home Caesars' only run in the third. But the right-hander got stronger as the game went along.

"We made some clutch defensive plays and we really hit when we had to," Peterson said.

Caesars lefty Paul Coburn, who also went the distance, gave up an RBI single to Ritter in the first, a run-scoring sacrifice fly and run-scoring groundout to Steve Merriman in the third, and an RBI single to Paul Newitt in the sixth.

Observerland reaps medal harvest at Games

By Bill Parker
staff writer

Observerland athletes returned home with 18 medals from the Great Lakes State Games last weekend in Marquette.

The State Games, patterned after the Olympics, offered competition in 25 sports and was open to Michigan residents of all ages. Overall there were 3,529 participants — 2,327 male and 1,202 female. The youngest participant was seven and the oldest was 77. Better than 1,500 medals were awarded.

Garden City's Marcia McKenzie, competing in track and field in the girls 17-18 division, paced the local contingent with gold medal performances in both the 100-meter (13.85) and 200-meter dashes (28.18).

"It was a really fun experience," said McKenzie. "I felt pretty positive (about winning) going up there. I worked pretty hard."

Matti Kilpelainen turned in a performance in the pole vault that would make many high school vaulters envious. The 41-year-old Canton resident cleared 12-feet-6 to pick up the gold medal in the male 40-49 division.

OTHER OBSERVERLAND medalists in the track and field events include Livonia's Greg Boller, silver in the 3,200-meter run (10:31.46) in the boys 15-16 division; Farmington Hills' Alexander Johnston, silver in the 100-meter dash (13.07) in the male 40-49 division; and Farmington Hills' Jennet Johnston, silver in the 100-meter dash (16.80) in the female 30-39 division.

"We've been having a lot of fun," said Boller, whose brother Geoff also competed in the State Games and finished fifth in the 800-meter run in the boys 15-16 division. "This is the first year (for the Games) and I'm sure it will be a lot bigger next year. They seem to have it organized real well, but they could be a little longer. Everything is grouped pretty close together."

Four Observerland athletes returned home with medals in the figure skating competition.

Wayne's Jacquelyn Mitchell picked up a gold medal in the juvenile girls competition while Garden City's Kari-Ann Keyanchuk earned a silver. Garden City's John Wright won a bronze medal in the novice boys division and Kelly Bergman of Livonia won a bronze medal in the intermediate division.

JOHN McCLAY, of Redford, won the small bore rifle, three position competition with a score of 1170-58x. Livonia's Elizabeth Juziuk picked up a bronze medal in the same competition with a score of 1152-46x.

Westland featured gold medal winners in both the wrestling and boxing competitions.

Rob Matigian won a gold medal in wrestling in the 132-pound junior division. Taurrek Kikes won a gold medal in boxing in the 132-pound senior open division.

Plymouth's Vincent St. Louis won a gold medal in judo in the boys 7-9 lightweight division and Tim Glubaskas of the Livonia Judo Club won a bronze medal in judo in the boys 15-17 lightweight division.

Plymouth bicyclist hit with string of bad luck

By Bill Parker
staff writer

Jim Shupe seems to have a knack for running into tough luck.

The 20-year-old Plymouth resident placed second two years ago at the regional roller speed skating championships in Indianapolis, Ind.

With two years of experience behind him, Shupe had his eyes set on bigger and better things in 1986.

But midway through the year, he broke his ankle. At the time of the injury, Shupe was far enough in the point standings that he still captured the state title. But his season was over and so was his roller speed skating career.

"My ankle was too messed up to skate on a competitive basis anymore," Shupe said. "We used cycling to train for roller speed skating. Since I had done a lot of it I decided to give cycling a try."

SHUPE WAS up in Marquette last weekend at the inaugural Great Lakes State Games competition. He had prepared all spring and summer for this, his first competitive cycling event.

Shupe was one of the last riders to complete the time trials. He finished with a competitive time. The next event was the one-mile, one-lap sprint. The event Shupe was waiting for.

"This is my stuff. I'm a sprinter. I love to sprint. I sprinted in track, on skates and now on a bike."

At the sound of the gun, Shupe jumped in front of the pack. Twenty-yards into the race he was in second place, ready to pull away.

Then, disaster struck. The chain slipped off his bike.

Shupe dismounted and desperately tried to put the chain back on. Meanwhile, the pack was pulling away. By the time the chain was back on and Shupe was ready to ride, there were no other cyclists in sight. For Shupe it was the longest mile-ride of his life.

"THAT WAS so depressing," Shupe said upon finishing the sprint in solitude. "I jumped out front and had it. The beginning and the end (of the race) are the most important parts of the race. At least I showed that I'm not spineless. I still finished the ride."

Despite the unfortunate circumstances, Shupe is determined to make a name for himself in the cycling circle.

"I know I'm as good as these guys," said Shupe, who was competing in the 18-and-over citizen class that is open to all beginners. "Next year I'll kill these guys."

Tackett to play at U-D

She isn't certain if she'll be able to contribute on the field immediately, however. "I think I can. It seems like it. I haven't been able to talk to (others on) the team yet, but I think I'll be able to contribute."

LIKE TACKETT, Malone was almost certain of attending Michigan State. "I wanted to go to a school with a veterinary program," she said. The only other school she considered was Hope College.

Fortunately, the Spartans were just as interested in Malone. And why not? As a senior, she had a 17-1 pitching mark with a 1.11 earned run average. In 126 innings, she allowed just 69 hits and 41 walks while striking out 91.

While Malone sparkled on the mound (she finished with a career mark of 54-5 at GC), her hitting slumped to .297, her lowest average as a Cougar. She drove in 14 runs and scored 18.

Where Malone will play at MSU is up to her. "They said I could pitch if I wanted to or play somewhere else," she said. "On the slow pitch team I play on in the summer, I play shortstop."

softball

Wherever she plays, Malone figures to be a Spartan asset.

North Farmington running back Scott Selzer, playing on artificial turf for the first time, performed well in a losing effort by the East All-Stars.

Area football stars on losing side, 9-7

"We didn't have any big break-downs (on offense). But penalties and turnovers killed us. Both defenses played well."

JOUPPI WAS one of those defensive stalwarts. The 6-2, 205-pound defensive end from Plymouth Salem got in a lot of playing time as the East stuffed the West runners and did not allow a pass completion in two attempts, sacking the quarterback twice.

"I played about three quarters, mostly on the short side (of the field)," said Joupji, who will start practicing with Hillsdale College next week. "This has got to help me ready for the season. The coaches were really good. They helped me a lot with the little things, helped sharpen me up after being off since last year."

The same couldn't be said for the East offense, but as Selzer said, "You've got to be fortunate just to be here. Not everybody gets to play in this game."

"I'm used to playing against these guys. It was a lot of fun playing with them."

All-Star offenses made contest dull

Mike Hammon tree sure won't forget Saturday's game. The Westland John Glenn product dropped a fourth-quarter punt. The West recovered and ran out the clock to preserve its victory.

SCOTT SELZER sure won't forget Saturday's game. Selzer had gained 46 yards rushing before his last carry. He was dumped for a two-yard loss (his only loss of the game) at the West 14-yard line.

After that, two Murray passes fell incomplete and kicker Ron Ureel missed his second field goal attempt of the day from 31 yards. The East never got possession of the ball again.

Now, the players weren't the only ones enjoying an unforgettable day. Remember, it was the East coaching staff (which included Glenn's Chuck Gordon and Mike Henry) that tried to make a runner out of Murray.

The West staff was much more inventive, daring and dashing. The West attempted two passes — actually it was four, but Redford Bishop Borgess linebacker Alex Marshall twice squashed West quarterbacks before they could get rid of the ball on the other two — and completed none.

The West offense powered its way to 91 yards. That was its total offensive output.

BUT PERHAPS the most unforgettable segment of this game was the dramatic game-winning drive. Three seconds left in the half, the West — leading 6-0 — with the ball at the East 36. A post-pattern pass is snatched by the West's Todd Lyght for a touchdown — oops.

C.J. Risak

penalty for illegal procedure. West. Try it again. Last play of the half, and this time Lyght heads for the corner of the end zone. The pass is overthrown — oops, pass interference on the East's Darnell Rush. First down West at the East 26.

One more time. The West sets up for a 42-yard field goal attempt, but Tom Cutler misses — then gets flattened. Roughing the kicker. East. First down West at the East 13.

The longest three seconds in football history (that's unofficial) end when Cutler drills a 30-yard field goal through the uprights to make it 9-0 at the half.

The second half was just as dramatic, thanks to Russ Ludke's 11-yard TD reception for the East on a pass completed two yards out of bounds. Guess it was an unforgettable day for the officials, too.

But that's the kind of sparkle one can expect in all-star football. Unless you're Sean Guerin — who gained 22 yards in the first half but wasn't even on the final official statistical summary — it was a day of unforgettable stardom.

I hope I don't have to keep reminding myself of that.

Hockey league begins playoffs

Thanks to Todd Beyer, the Wolverines enter postseason play as the only unbeaten team in the Midwest Summer Hockey League.

Not that any of his teammates couldn't have done what he did, but it was Beyer who pushed the winning goal into the Bulldogs' net Sunday in the regular season finale for both squads.

Beyer broke a 3-3 first period deadlock when he scored the first goal of the second period, and the Wolverines never looked back, holding the Bulldogs scoreless in the final 30 minutes and taking a 7-3 win.

As a result, the Wolverines' champions of the Bakes Conference take a 9-0-2 record into this week's playoff action at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

THE BATTLE for first place in the Eagle Conference ended in a tie between the Wildcats and Spartans, both with 7-3-1 records. But the Wildcats received the top seed in the playoffs based on a better goals-for-against total.

The Wildcats scored 57 goals but allowed only 31, the Spartans had a more potent offense (76 goals) but a weaker defense with 56 goals allowed.

The Bulldogs jumped in front of the Wolverines 2-0 on goals by Craig Johnson and Mike Finn and then needed Mike Nodiers' late-period score to force the 3-3 tie.

Scott Haller tallied two goals for the Wolverines, and John Potts notched a goal and two assists.

IN OTHER Sunday action, the Broncos outscored the Huskies 11-7 and the Falcons prevented the Spartans from taking the Eagle Conference title outright with a 6-5 victory.

The Spartans held a 5-4 lead after two periods, but they were blanked in the finale as the Falcons rallied to win. Brian Kryger's goal knotted the score, and Scott Swankowski won it with 3:22 to play.

Kryger scored two goals, and Alan Carnes had a goal and two assists. The Spartans were led by Kevin O'Connor with two goals.

With his team short-handed, Huskies coach Dan Belisle dressed for the game and had a three-goal, two-assist night, but it wasn't enough to overcome the Broncos.

ANDREW ROY and Link Bissert accomplished the hat trick for the winners, and Jeff Christensen picked up three assists to go with one goal.

On Monday the Lakers and Wildcats battled to a 3-3 tie as the latter was also denied an outright title.

Making the defeat more frustrating was the fact the Wildcats were up 3-1 after two periods. But the Lakers rallied with goals by Vic Demas, the second with 3 1/2 minutes left in the game.

With :45 seconds remaining, the Lakers pulled their goalie in hopes of attaining a winning record, but Wildcat goalie Todd Lyons remained steadfast. Lakers netminder Allen Lariviere also turned in an outstanding game to hold the Wildcats scoreless over the final 15 minutes.

Her style stays eclectic

By Louise Okrutsky
staff writer

CLEO LAINE'S based a career on going against type. Pegged as a jazz singer, she's made her mark playing an opium dealer on Broadway in "The Mystery of Edwin Drood." In an industry in which longevity is a feat within itself, Laine's managed both a career and marriage that have lasted 30 years.

According to Laine, her unwillingness to follow a predictable course helped her career's longevity. "It keeps me from getting bored," she said, amusement evident in her gravelly voice.

She promises to demonstrate that variety when she and her husband/musical partner John Dankworth come to Meadow Brook Music Festival Wednesday, Aug. 12. "It'll be my usual mixed bag," she said.

SHORTLY AFTER the evening's engagement, one of the last for the couple this year in the United States, Laine returns to Great Britain. In October, she's set to begin recording an album of Stephen Sondheim songs for RCA.

Although others have recorded his works, Laine remains undaunted about bringing something new to Sondheim's songs. "It's not hard I sing it differently than others."

Choosing songs for her next record isn't easy. "You have to find 10-12 songs — find more than that so you can reject one if you need to. You have to find material that works. It's not easy today to find material. You can always go back to the past of course. Quite often I do that. It'd be marvelous to find 12 songs of today. But I find it hard.

"They're writing for younger people. The lyrics are not the kind of words I enjoy singing. The sentiments are not the kind of sentiments I enjoy singing," she said.

"The tunes are substandard, in my opinion. You can always find one in a year, but not enough for an album."

SO FAR in her career, she's displayed a well honed ability to gather material that she obviously enjoys singing. Last year she won the Grammy Award for best jazz vocal performance, female for her "Cleo at Carnegie: The 10th Anniversary Concert." It marks the first time a British singer has won the award for a jazz performance.

That year, 1986, also saw her nominated for a Tony Award for her performance as Princess Puffer, the hag who oversees an opium den in the highly touted Broadway musical, "The Mystery of Edwin Drood." Based on an unfinished story by Charles Dickens, the play allowed audiences to vote for the character they believed was the murderer. According to all reports, Laine enjoyed being marked as a Victorian murderer.

Once again, in taking the role of Princess Puffer, she played against her own image. She admits that her success, particularly in this country, as a singer often makes it difficult for her to be viewed also as an actress.

"I would have preferred a little more glamorous part, but I'd take anything that's good," she said. "I'm not as well known as an actress. I'm thought of as a singer. I don't get offered that many roles."

Cleo Laine returns to Meadow Brook Music Festival Wednesday evening. The British jazz singer will be accompanied by her husband, jazz saxophonist John Dankworth.

Established wineries recapture glory years

It has happened twice recently — once in Napa and once in Sonoma. Two once highly prestigious wineries had fallen onto hard times and then turned themselves around to become two of the leading producers in California. These are Beringer and Buena Vista, both significant among today's quality giants.

It probably didn't actually happen just this way recently, but it could have. Three Napa producers, all having fallen dramatically behind the times, looked to Beringer and Buena Vista and decided that they, too, could resurrect themselves from their 1970s and early 1980s doldrums and attempt a comeback. To date, it appears that one has already succeeded and the other two are giving it an awfully good try.

Ingenook, it is reasonably safe to say, has returned. Long the glory of the Valley, it fell into corporate miseria in the '70s as the wine boom began. Insufficient capital, lack of leadership and a sense of its place in the market prevailed. It focused on producing a wide array of varietal wines that never captured public favor. (Remember Red Pinot, White Pinot, Grey Riesling, Sylvaner, Dry Semillon?) Secondary labels were tried to increase volume, all of which helped tarnish the once proud Ingenook image.

BEGINNING IN the early '80s Ingenook began to concentrate on what it does best: produce great cabernets. Today there are several 1981-83 Reserve Cask, Limited Reserve and other sub-designated cabernets in the market. There is also a Napa appellation '82 of merit. There will soon be a 1983 Merlot Reserve and a 1984 Chardonnay Reserve, both high quality wines, both commanding strong prices.

Richard Watson

But it is with the 1983 "Reunion," a blend of three historically significant vineyards, that Ingenook is making its strongest statement in decades. Complex with layers of earth and violets, the wine is a stunner!

The Charles Krug comeback is in its early stages if I read the signs correctly. Venerable, staid, aloof from its patrons and the times, Krug has been one of the least alert of the Napa producers for years. Little evident innovation in product lines or marketing has been their mainstay.

Now, however, they are showing signs of sensitivity to the marketplace, even sending young Peter Mondavi out into the nation to meet distributors and the public. The irony of the situation is that Krug has all along been a producer of high-quality, fairly priced wines. They've stayed in business by trading on the knowledge of the loyal few who appreciate them and are willing to look hard to find their wines on the shelves.

I RECENTLY had occasion to taste several of their current releases all were above average and some were remarkably fine. Their 1986 sauvignon blanc is one of the finest of its style I have tasted, the 1985 chenin blanc is lush and full as is the 1986 Johannisberg riesling. But it is with cabernets that their real excellence shows itself. Their Vintage Select ("Red Stripes") on a bottle of cabernet is a hallmark. I recently tasted their 1973, 1974 (FI), 1978 and 1979. All splendid and holding their age well, some of these are still available on local wine shelves.

One hopes Krug will become more aggressive in promoting its wines so it can capture some new friends.

My only knock against them is their too prominent use of the family name, Mondavi. On their secondary label, Ck/Mondavi. They have every right to use that name, of course. It is obvious what they are doing. But why not push the name Krug and make it again reflect their proud tradition? The wine quality is there.

Finally, Christian Brothers seems to be dramatically changing course. Under the new leadership of Richard Maher, Brother David Brenner and winemaker Tom Eddy they have embarked on a new course: fewer varietals made, new equipment, better grapes and vintage dating wines. They have released a remarkable 1984 chardonnay and their forthcoming 1984 cabernet shows great promise. A revolution in winery equipment and a contemporary attitude have made the turn-around possible, it is now up to marketing to convince the public to try the wines the first time. Higher prices and, most important, high quality will do it.

The Christian Brothers story is a remarkable one. I will soon devote a full column to it.

Comeback for post-beam construction

By Sherry Kahan
special writer

A WOOD three-bedroom home combining building principles of the 17th century with the latest in modern technology recently rose from the ground in northeast Ann Arbor.

On one hand its builders, Riverbend Timber Framing Inc., used the post and beam construction method favored by early American colonists faced with a scarcity of nails and an abundance of forests. Posts and beams cling together with wooden joinery. No nails or bolts here.

On the other hand, the basement walls are made of wood, ordinarily an unusual substance for basement walls. Only a small percentage of Riverbend basements are of wood. But this was to be a family room, and it was thought the wood would make it a warmer place.

THE PLYWOOD OF these walls has been chemically treated with modern methods of preservation. Chromated copper arsenate was used under regulatory restrictions set up by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency in 1984. The treated wood meets the standards of nationwide building code that requires that foundation materials do not give off fumes or leach into the soil. According to Riverbend, the preservatives are permanently bonded into the cellular structure of the wood. The wood is also coated with a thin layer of cement.

To help the basement wood keep the water from the basement, another time honored concept was put to work: Keep the water away from the building.

Accordingly, pea gravel was dumped all around the house from the base of the basement to about half way up the walls.

"The water runs through the pea gravel into a trench that surrounds the house," explained Louie Marr, construction coordinator. "It leads to a sump pump, which discharges it."

Cedar board covers the outside of the house. Between them and the inside of the dwelling are very modern panels providing such a tight insulation system that an air exchanger had to be installed to make sure fresh air came into the building.

AS A RESULT, this 3,000 square-foot, three-level home can be heated for an estimated $300-$350 a year, according to the builders whose headquarters is in Blissfield, about 35 miles southeast of Ann Arbor.

This home at 3625 Foxhunt Drive won an American Wood Council's Design for Better Living Award for its creative design, imaginative use of wood systems and products, and excellence in craftsmanship. In addition to the usual rooms of the house, it features an under-the-house garage, balcony, deck, patio, fireplace, skylights, long wood windows, two and a half baths and a cathedral ceiling.

One of its other charms is the post and beam construction. Everyone loves wooden beams. Everywhere in this house the eye fastens on thick natural oak posts meeting thick beams of the same light color. (The beams have not been stained, but must be oiled occasionally.) For this happy encounter a chunk of wood is carved from the post to allow a piece of oak or tenon jutting from the beam to fit snugly into it. This is why nails are unnecessary.

To add further strength, two hardwood pegs are inserted through previously drilled holes in both post and beam. Then making a triangle of the joining, a brace is included to help the structure wall resist shifting. At the end of each brace there is a tenon, one to slip into the post, the other into the beam.

WHEN ALL THIS work is done the posts and beams carry the weight of the entire building. While studs are used on the wood walls of the basement, with fiberglass added for insulation, no studs are used above ground.

In their place between the posts are insulating panels made of interior and exterior sheathing material laminated to a rigid Workshops on timber framing will be held Sunday-Saturday, Aug. 16-22, in Dryden and Sunday-Saturday, Sept. 13-19, in Saugatuck. For more information or to arrange a viewing of the Ann Arbor house, call 517-486-4566.

foam core. In this way, a company brochure states, "we can enclose, insulate and install drywall in one lap around the house (walls and roof) in a fraction of the time, and with a better insulating blanket than that offered by any other method."

These panels are custom manufactured for each job. Riverbend typically uses R-25 wall panels and R-35 roof panels in Michigan.

This home is now on sale for $385,000. The high cost is partly due to high property and housing costs in Ann Arbor, particularly the area in which the building is located.

LOUIE MARR SAYS it is possible to construct a timber frame house for about $100,000 not including property fees and site improvements such as a well or septic tank. In fact, a structure for a little over $100,000 is now going up in Chelsea.

If the structure is a simple salt box or Cape Cod style house, and avoids such extra expense items such as a balcony, deck, patio, fireplace, cathedral ceiling etc., costs could be cut greatly.

In the past few years considerable interest has been turned toward post and beam construction especially by those who want something "a bit different in a dwelling."

To meet this interest Riverbend began as a company which built timber frames only. The customer would complete it himself, or contract for the work. To date it has completed or is under contract to construct 11 timber and insulation panel packages in Wayne County and seven Oakland. It has erected 200 timber panel packages nationwide including barns and town houses.

This year the company started

A centuries-old building method and state-of-the-art wood technology were combined in the national award-winning house that made its debut in Ann Arbor recently. The constructing entire homes. But it has not forgotten people out there with carpentry skills who want to build all or part of a house themselves. So it now offers classes in a variety of topics bearing on home building with timber frames.

2,800-square-foot house was designed and built by Riverbend Timber Framing Inc. of Blissfield, Mich.

Workshops on timber framing will be held Aug. 16-22 in Dryden, and from Sept. 13-19 in Saugatuck. The fee is $300 for an individual or $350 for a couple. The role of the owner-contractor will be explored in a session from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 12 at Riverbend headquarters in Blissfield. The cost is $100 for an individual and $115 for a couple.

A home planning seminar to give an introduction to timber framing and other Riverbend services will be held from 1-4 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 22, Sept. 26, Oct. 24 and Nov. 21 at Riverbend. The fee is $15. A timber frame design workshop will take place in Blissfield Nov. 9-13 at a cost of $200.

Reservations and deposits are required. For more details on these classes or to arrange a viewing of the Ann Arbor home call Riverbend at 517-486-4566.

'Interiors' debuts with Bernie Moray

BERNIE MORAY, owner and president of Gorman's furniture stores, is a Detroit native who graduated from Northern High School, Wayne State University and Harvard Business School.

He began his home furnishings career at Robinson's furniture store in Detroit and 18 years later, in 1965, bought Gorman's furniture store on Livernois. Two years later, Moray opened the very contemporary Gorman's Gallery in its present location on Telegraph Road in Southfield.

"This store" says Moray of his Southfield location, "caters to a very esoteric client who wants unusual things in good design. But, that's only about 20 percent of the market, the other 80 percent prefer traditional. We would have customers who wanted mahogany walk in here, take one look and say 'Oh, my God.' We wanted to capture that market, too, so we opened three Drexel Heritage stores in Troy, Fairlane and Grand Rapids."

The home market economy is booming, says Moray, who credits E.D.S. (General Motors Electronic Data Systems) for the remarkable surge. "They employ about 14,000 young, white collar executives who are educated, have good taste, make decent money and want to spend it."

How to find your way through the maze

Home interiors are becoming more functional for the way we live now. Styles are more eclectic than ever before, as art deco sits comfortably next to country French, and a host of decorating techniques that reflect individual tastes. A new column, Interiors, debuts today and will attempt to capture the latest trends. Guest columnist is Bernie Moray, president and owner of Gorman's.

So much in the American home has changed in the last 15 years: the two-career couples, the number of single heads of households, the shrinking size of our families, and the way we relax and entertain.

Yet, one thing remains the same: the American dream is still in the home. It is now a home of great rooms, fitness rooms, media rooms, jacuzzis and decks, but it still represents a reflection of our life and aspirations.

I guess I would say that in my 40 years in the furniture business, this is the most exciting time. There has never been a wider selection of furnishings, colors, textures and accessories. And now that we've moved from the throw-away plastic society to one in search of better quality and greater value for the dollar, even if that means buying less, the possibilities are limitless.

In this first article, I'd like to talk about quality and value: how to find your way through the maze of home furnishings possibilities to select the right choice for you.

WHERE DO YOU START?

Because the home is becoming more and more of a retreat today, it's important that the design fit our lifestyle, wear and people factor. I have always believed that you begin with a plan. Because of the variety of room sizes and the tremendously broad selection... even a person with the greatest taste, with endless time to shop a number of stores... has difficulty putting a room together. Why? Because size, scale, proportion and color families are all factors which influence that perfect harmony.

Most good furniture stores have a full design staff equipped with professional expertise to plan a room or a house. Using qualified professional designers not only will be an enjoyable experience but will save you wasted dollars and much of your valuable time and effort.

What if your initial needs are only for one piece? A master plan for the room is still vital for direction, color families and proportion. The beauty of the master plan is that you can add pieces as your needs and budget allows.

interiors

HOW DO YOU WORK WITH A DESIGNER?

Most good quality furniture stores provide designer assistance in the store at no charge to the consumer when you bring your floor plan or room measurements to the store. It is customary for a designer to invoke a charge for their services in the event they have to visit a home. When that is done, a retainer is applied to future purchases. Professional designers are accredited through ASID - the American Society of Interior Designers - which requires college course work, experience, and a rigorous exam for certification.

Temptations: Who can resist a friendly face?

Everyone needs a friendly face to come home to. And considering today's fractured family, the loving happy faces we see when we open the door, turn off the alarm and kick off our shoes are more apt to be crafted in carved wood, pottery or soft sculpture than in human form.

And this little piggy stays home and loves it. Her head is pink porcelain with big, rosy cheeks. She wears a red-and-white polka dot dress over a soft sculptured body and promises a perpetual happy countenance. $55. Jeff Fontana Designs, Royal Oak.

Artist thrives in peace and quiet

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

IT'S NOT unusual to find Birmingham artist Pat Mayhew painting furiously in preparation for a show. That's almost a given.

However, it was unusual to find her at her easel on the deck of her new vacation home at L'Arbre Croche, a community near Harbor Springs. She was getting ready for a one-woman show at Birchwood Country Club of Harbor Springs, which opened about a week ago.

The light on that particular day was crystalline, the sky was a rich blue and the greens of the cedars and evergreens around the third floor deck almost iridescent. "It's always bluer sky and clearer air up here," she said, "and it has a good effect on the color."

She was working on a painting of an old house, inspired by the turn of the century summer homes in the nearby community. Wequetonsing, which began as a Presbyterian camp much as Bay View, a few miles away, began as a Methodist camp.

"I'm trying to develop the feeling of the elegance of the area rather than a particular house. The whole thing started in West Virginia where my grandparents had a farm. I used to visit there as a child and what you did there in the evening was to sit on the porch and watch people stroll into town."

SO THROUGH HER PAINTINGS of the Wequetonsing houses with their wide porches and Victorian architecture she captures the memory of an easy, gentle lifestyle as the mind's eye would do it.

She begins by drawing, paints over that with acrylic and puts a tissue collage on top. To strengthen her impressions, she adds other elements from the past, brings garden flowers at the edge into clear focus and through the collage lets the house become a slightly misty image.

"These are all pieces of things from the past — that's the fun of it, too. I'm pulling back yesterday and putting the flowers in the foreground."

In contrast to these, she is doing abstracts using oil and impasto heavily applied to create tension, movement and excitement.

These, she said, "Developed out of the works with paper," which she has shown at area galleries for several years. She uses a technique that dates back to the Renaissance to build the paint up to a three dimensional level.

She had examples of both types of work in her Harbor Springs show. Her paintings will also be in the Birmingham Women Painters show, which opens Sept. 8 at Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association. Her work is also available at Ilona and Gallery, Hunters Square, Farmington Hills.

— artist Pat Mayhew

Her art, she said, is influenced by the time she spends in Harbor Springs as well as a lot of the places she and her husband, Fritz travel.

The Mayhews with daughters, Amy and Jennifer, have been vacationing at L'Arbre Croche for the last 20 years.

Not long ago, they bought a four-story home that had, as she put it, "been neglected."

FRITZ MAYHEW, too, is a well known artist. He has had several one-man shows of his large, realistic watercolors at Rubiner Gallery of West Bloomfield. Now, with a promotion and more job responsibilities than ever before (he's now chief director of North American design for Ford Motor Company), he has temporarily given up painting, but not creating. He's been doing a lot of plans for work on the house.

He designed the new fireplace in the living room, planned the remodeling of the attached garage into a bedroom for Amy and Jennifer and worked on the plans for a major addition, which will be started this fall. This latter will include a studio on the top level, above the tree tops with lots of windows.

"Being in the woods reminds us of Pennsylvania where we are both from," she said.

"Last summer was our first summer away from the city. The kids are in seventh heaven. It's so wholesome for everybody's kids to get out of town. And sports have become an important part of our lives. I'm playing golf and tennis and sometimes I just sit on the beach. I don't push so hard any more."

Both daughters have summer jobs in Harbor Springs. Mayhew drives up on weekends and in the winter they come up to cross country ski on the L'Arbre Croche trails and in Petoskey State Park, adjacent to their land.

Later, when she was seated in the living room where several of her paintings and one of his are displayed, she said, "This house is almost like a tree house. It's such a treasure — it's so rejuvenating."

There was a bouquet of brilliantly colored dahlias, which she had just bought at the grocery in a ceramic pot on the shelf space above the new fireplace. The carpeting and the leather sofa and chairs are off-white. There is a calm, clean, washed atmosphere to the home, which reflects the creative spirits of the people who live here.

It is rejuvenating — even to those who just happen by for a quick visit.

Pat and Fritz Mayhew bought this Harbor Springs house about a year ago. They already have done substantial remodeling and have plans for more, including a glass rooftop art studio. Their first project was to convert the ground-level garage at the side of the entrance into a bedroom for their daughters.

Pat Mayhew works on a painting on the third level deck in the tree tops in the family vacation home at L'Arbre Croche.

It is wise to ask a new designer for their credentials, or perhaps look at samples of their previous work (portfolio). The resistance factor is that many people are fearful that their own taste will be imposed upon by the designer. That is a myth. The reality is that the designer's job is to guide the client, interpret their taste with proper balance so that the room achieves its maximum potential.

A persistent misconception is that the designer wants to redo an entire room from scratch. Again, the designer's job is to work creatively within the parameters established by the client's needs — whether that be the addition of one piece or the integration of what you own with that one new piece.

If there are heirlooms or important comfortable pieces you like — tell the designer. Some of the most gorgeous rooms are a blend of existing furnishings and new pieces.

HOW CAN I MAKE SURE THAT THE FURNITURE IS OF QUALITY WHICH WILL LAST?

In most cases, the price differential for good quality and its copy is a modest difference. Quality in upholstery implies the construction of the piece including the frame, the springs, the inner materials and the fabric. Quality in wood furniture implies the construction, design elements and the finishing. Buyers who are able to invest a few more dollars will benefit tremendously in the long run by virtue of the durability and appearance of the pieces through the years.

WHAT IF I'M NOT SURE HOW LONG I'LL BE STAYING IN THIS HOME?

Many people are staying in temporary residences. By selecting major pieces in neutral fabrics and functional furniture such as modular seating, they then provide themselves with flexibility for whatever future room sizes will be.

HOW DO I BEGIN TO DETERMINE THE COLORS THAT WILL WORK BEST?

If you are in a dilemma where to begin, here again a designer can help by exposing you to the various families of color with which you can work. It has been proven that certain colors suit certain personalities and once exposed to a range of shades, most clients can select with confidence.

Pencils lighten artistic load

DON'T YOU hate it when someone leaves their car plugs on your kitchen floor, a snorkel on the trunk of your car or a bright orange flipper at the bottom of your pool?

Here's a typical conversation at our house in the summer: "Hey, Sandy, whose towels are in the hallway?" I ask impatiently. "I think those are JR's, Aaron's and Lindsay's," she replies. "Why don't you put them with Shannon and Ryan's towels in the bathroom," she adds.

"Well, whose nose plugs and goggles are in the sink?" I ask, even more impatiently. "Who knows," is Sandy's quick reply. "Why don't you take them and the life preserver someone left in our bathtub and put them all with the unclaimed swim-suit pile out on the deck? By the way, John and Phyllis, if you're reading this, you swimsuits and towels are neatly piled on the family room floor by the patio door."

So it's been a hot summer and we are blessed (I think) to have a swimming pool. But you wouldn't believe the swimwear and sundry items that get left at our house. People bring every water-related toy, game and inflatable that they own, unload all of it, use half of it and take some of it home. Oh well. I told my wife since our store is the Art Store & More, maybe the "More" could include used swimwear.

ARTISTS TEND TO have some of the same failings. When they travel they usually take every art-related thing they own. And most of the time it all cooks in the trunk at about 200 degrees for about 14 days — or the length of the trip or vacation.

Full color location work does not always require a U-haul full of art supplies either. To name a few, I would first think of taking pastels, gouache, colored pencils and watercolor pencils.

Pastels are easy to carry and require little more accessories than a few pastel pencils, vine charcoal for layouts, and, of course, pastel paper.

Canson makes a beautiful range of colors for their pastel papers. Also available are velor papers that can produce air-brushed realism and softness. Then finally there is snuffing paper which is a big sheet of ultra-fine sand paper. This understandably offers a good tooth for pastels and it does a pretty decent job on your fingernails, too.

Gouache — an opaque watercolor that usually comes in tubes — is a wonderful painting medium for location. But tubes and overloaded car trunks don't mix. For travel, you can't beat "pans" or "cakes" of transparent watercolor or gouache. Transparent watercolors work best on white watercolor blocks. Gouache, because of its opaqueness, works best on colors, even dark colors. Again, Canson "Metientes" make a full range of colors, all excellent for gouache.

artifacts

I LOVE COLORED pencils for location detailed studies. Since they are opaque, use color pencils on colored paper. You can even use pastels for smooth graduations in backgrounds. Colored pencils and watercolor pencils are especially good on location. You can use a lighter color as a blender in a color pencil drawing.

With watercolor pencils, you may use a brush dampened in water for blending colors. Obviously, it is nice to have watercolors or oils with you on location, but most often people combine their vacation or weekend outing with location art work. Usually, if it comes to lugging a ton of art materials, most people opt to leave it all home.

A better idea would be to travel light — bring along enough so that it doesn't matter whether you use the materials or not, just so you have something along if the situation arises.

That goes for swimming guests too.

WE ALL WORK to earn income — a large part of which goes to pay for our homes and the things we put in them and people can't move from one home to another without buying something, says Moray.

"They have to buy because things don't fit and the first time they bring a new piece of furniture into the home, everything else looks drab and we've got 'em."

Gorman's enjoys a national reputation for bringing unusual things to the marketplace and they also supply a full staff of ASID designers to assure their customers of a happy environment. "The home is the focal point of a person's social life. It is his comfort zone and his entertainment center," said Moray. "Home is the retreat today."

Moray's personal philosophy embraces volunteer community efforts and he actively champions many fund-raising events for medical research and the arts. Professionally, he serves on the board of the National Home Furnishings Association.

Moray and his wife, Muriel, who is also active in the business where she buys and coordinates for the Southfield store gift shop, Inner Circle, have three children and live in Franklin Village.

condo queries

Robert M. Meisner

Q. I am an investor and understand that there may be still a favorable tax treatment for "condo hotels." Can you elaborate?

A. While it appears that the jury is still out, the Congressional Joint Committee on Taxation released its so-called "blue book" discussing what the "Tax Reform Act" really means. The committee's report cited condominium hotels as qualifying for the pass of loss exemption, provided they meet a series of "material participation tests."

Among them are requirements that condo unit owners regularly participate in such integral functions of the hotel as establishing room rental rates, hiring practices, review and approval operating budgets and frequent meetings at the hotel. There may, therefore, be an opening for investors to have qualified condo hotels being treated as an "active" business in regard to losses under the tax code. Check with your tax adviser.

Q. We are purchasing some real estate for purposes of investment and are wondering whether to incorporate or to operate as a partnership. Can you provide any advice?

A. Whether or not it is economically feasible for you to incorporate or operate as a partnership will depend upon, in part, the tax considerations of your particular situation. With the Tax Reform Act, it may be less advantageous to incorporate as opposed to operating as a partnership, depending upon the circumstances.

One the other hand, incorporation provides limited liability to the stockholders in regard to their investment in the corporation, assuming that the corporation is not unreasonably thinly capitalized. Therefore, unlike a general partnership where the individual partners are liable for all the obligations of the partnerships, you can insulate your liability by forming a corporation.

You should consult a tax accountant and your attorney in regard to the particulars of your situation for their advice. Also ask about Subchapter S corporation.

REAL ESTATE OFFERS EXTREMELY HIGH INCOME POTENTIAL.

Unlimited incomes are a reality right now in sales of single family, residential homes.

YOU ARE YOUR OWN BOSS.

Your work schedule and work load are all your own. Take afternoons off to meet the children after school. There is no 9-5 schedule.

YOU ARE A VITAL PART OF THE LARGEST INDUSTRY IN THE UNITED STATES.

70% of most families net worth is tied into the property they own. You have the unique opportunity to help buyers and sellers with the most important and most expensive item they ever buy.

REAL ESTATE IS AN EASY ENTRY PROFESSION.

Usually only one course and one state exam are needed to enter the industry. Some careers take years of formal schooling. You have a chance to easily enter this profession and start quickly.

WE OFFER GREAT TRAINING.

Whether it's the pre-license course, intensive marketing course, or advanced courses, Real Estate One offers the best training in the state of Michigan.

AND EXCELLENT OPPORTUNITIES FOR ADVANCEMENT.

Most of our managers and divisional presidents were recruited from the ranks of our sales associates.

IT'S THE BEST INDUSTRY IN THE UNITED STATES.

You will be part of a profession that everyone cares about, everyone talks about, and everyone is interested in knowing about. Every American adult either owns property or probably wants to. Most people cannot and will not do it without your help. The contracts, the negotiations, the details, the large amounts of money involved, all make it a fun and exciting profession in which people need and want your services.

Call the office nearest you for a confidential interview.

WRITE IT AND REAP!

Writing a classified ad that gets results—whether it be for real estate, employment, the personals, transportation, or merchandise—is easy if you follow the guidelines below.

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

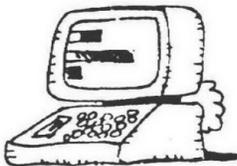

2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time if you advertise the price of the item or service you offer. The people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard. Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall tires) and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!

5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it. Therefore it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.
