Dear Readers,

Twenty-three years ago, two publications merged to become The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers The mission was to give readers community news that was unavailable elsewhere, the papers, 12 in all, were published on Mondays and Thursdays.

On Sunday, Feb. 2, we will begin publishing a Sunday edition that will replace the Monday edition of the Plymouth Observer You can expect to find the same quality news and features you are familiar with in the Monday

With our move to Sunday delivery we will be able to provide you with even more of the best community news and information for your reading pleasure

Over the years, many advertisers have said they would favor a Sunday over a Monday newspaper because it gives them a better opportunity to reach a bigger audience

Readers will have more time to spend with the paper.

Readers also will have the opportunity to shop our advertisers on the weekend.

Our coverage of the arts will expand. offering more options for how to spend your

■ We're retooling our employment section to reach a broader audience

Our goal is to have all this on your doorstep by 8 a.m. Sunday morning. If you don't have your paper by that time, please call our customer service department at (313) 591-0500 Sincerely,

Downtown sets sights on new businesses

BY KEVIN BROWN STAFF WRITER

The owner of Tom's Oyster Bar of Royal Oak is getting an incentive to finally open in a storefront he owns on Penniman Avenue downtown.

And a downtown landlord says a departing Main Street gallery could give way to a retail clothing store by May.

The addition of two such businesses downtown would be good for the retail mix and therefore good for the whole downtown, according to downtown business consultants Hyett-Palma and the Downtown Development Authority. To aid restaurant development in downtowns statewide, the state Legislature in December agreed to release 50 additional liquor licenses to taverns in downtown development districts.

Restaurants seeking to locate in such downtowns apply to the state for the license. One interested restauranteur is Tom Brandle, owner of Tom's Oyster Bar restaurants in Royal Oak, Grosse Pointe and Southfield. Brandle bought a storefront on Penniman across from the post office more than a year ago, and some have speculated the delay suggests he's having second thoughts. Brandle was unavailable for comment Tuesday

But Downtown Development Director Steve Guile said when he talked to Brandle in December, he said he planned to eventually open in Ply-

"I said as soon as we received the regulations from Lansing we'd send them on," Guile said.

2,100 UAW members picket Johnson Controls

Ford Motor Co. agreed to refuse to accept auto seats made by Johnson Controls' non-union workers during the UAW strike. Police diffused a potentially violent situation between union and non-union workers.

As many as 2,100 UAW members picketed an automotive seating plant in Plymouth Township on Tuesday as local police, county sheriff's deputies and private security looked on.

At about 2 p.m. Tuesday police escorted a bus load of temporary workers at the plant past shouting picketers. No violence or arrests stemmed from the inci-

The Johnson Controls plant at 46600 Port St. was the scene as picketers joined striking workers in protesting Johnson Controls' efforts to trim labor costs at the plant organized by the UAW last sum-

Picketers said they were also upset with Ford Motor Co. for reneging on a promise to have seating produced by unionized workers.

The 300-employee plant produces seating for the Ford Expedition and F-series pickup truck.

Plymouth Township Police Chief Carl Berry said he sought to defuse the situation by getting union and Johnson Controls representatives together with police to negotiate a peaceful resolution. The parties met in the township public services building near the plant.

Bus delays anger parents

BY M.B. DILLON

Parents of students at Allen Elementary and East Middle School want to know why on three occasions in the last three weeks, children were forced to wait up to an hour for their buses to arrive after school

Canton's Cathy Donaldson, whose children attend Allen and East, said, Twice within five school days, our kids were stranded at Allen." A third delay occurred last week at East Middle School, when a bus was held up for 45 minutes or an hour, she said

"We have 95 buses transporting 8,000 kids," said school community relations director Judy Evola. "We travel a million miles a year. Every once in a while, there are going to be some buses that are late.

The first incident occurred Jan. 7 Kids get out at 3:15. They were still at school at 4:15," said Donaldson.

"There were no buses to pick them up, and parents weren't notified. I called the bus yard, and neighbors called, and no one answered the phones. We don't know why.

Thinking there must have been an accident, Donaldson drove the route to school, and found out students had just boarded the bus.

"The second time it happened was Jan. 14. This time, they were better," Donaldson said. "They started a phone fan out, but by 4:05, I hadn't been called. But they did answer the phone when I called. They said they were waiting for a bus.

A mother who asked not to be named said her kindergartner and a few of his classmates didn't want to ride the bus after the incident. "They were afraid. They thought no

Wreck could prompt crossing review

BY KEVIN BROWN STAFF WRITER

A third car-train collision in the past five years at the Beck Road crossing in Plymouth Township could spark a state review to determine if a crossing gate is required.

Township police were called to the crossing at 8:15 a.m. Monday after a car headed north on Beck north of M-14 struck the engine of a eastbound freight train.

Sustaining chest and head injuries in the crash was Jennifer Roush, 22, of Ann Arbor. The 1994 Ford Aspire compact she was driving was destroyed in the crash.

I believe could have been serious," Berry said.

He said police were notified by the UAW and Johnson Controls at 11 30 pm. Monday that a strike was pending at the plant.

The number of picketers early Tuesday grew steadily, until police estimated there were 2.100 at the site at 6:30 a.m.

Police from other Wayne County departments, 130 of them equipped with riot gear. were called to the scene. In a report to township trustees Tuesday, Berry said that officers appearing before strikers did not don riot gear, to keep the atmosphere of confrontation down.

Berry said at one point the strikers began moving onto the plant site, but strike captains at police urging - kept picketers from doing so.

The Ford announcement that it wouldn't accept seating made by non-union workers diffused the situation to a point where

"We prevented something that strikers allowed busses carrying non-union workers to leave the plant site

Among those bundled up against the chill was Chris Auten, a UAW Local 900 member employed at the Ford Wayne assembly plant.

"Local 900 gave up a lot in their job contract over the issue that Ford would organize the seat workers," he said.

"Ford came out here and built the facility and tooled it, and then Johnson refused to negotiate a contract with our people, Auten said.

Another UAW member and Ford Wayne employee, Robert Lublin, said workers had been working at the Johnson plant in Plymouth Township since it opened six months ago without a contract.

"They fired some people for saving they're for a union, we deserve a little more respect," Lublin said

He said workers at the seating

Among measures taken by Johnson Controls to deal with the labor dispute, the company barricaded driveways at it's corporate headquarters, a mile southwest of the seating plant, at Halyard Drive in the Metro West Technology park.

McNamara request

County Executive Edward McNamara requested commission approval of the appropriations so the 1996-97 budget could be amended. The appropriations reflected revenue and corresponding expenditures from the hotel and car rental taxes approved by county voters in November and what was called "imminent" land sales of hundreds of acres of property in Northville Township expected to bring in at least $23 million to the county.

Approximately 300 acres will be developed as single-family residential, 40 acres for apartments, 26 acres for adultlifestyle community and 13 acres for senior housing.

Beard, who also vice chairs the commission's Committee on Ways and Means, believes the appropriations will not end up coming out of the general fund.

McCotter concerned

But McCotter worries that Northville Township will not be a high priority for Wayne Coun-

He believes money supposedly earmarked for the demolition will be used toward the stadium construction. Building demolitions in Northville may fall lower on the county's priority lists, and thus demolition and building projects may be delayed there, McCotter believes.

McCotter said "the money for demolition does not need to go to the stadium fund to be spent."

"By co-mingling that money with the stadium fund, I believe that less will be spent on demolition and I'm afraid the county will renege on its agreement with Northville township to do all the demolitions."

McCotter also is concerned that there is a cash flow problem with the stadium authority.

Last week commissioners were told by Archie Clark, deputy director of the Department of Jobs and Economic Develop-

Direct From "Givenchy" Couture

The demolition bids for the Northville property were due in early December. McCotter pressed Clark for details on when the demolition bids would be presented to the commission for action.

"There seems to be a little problem and we'll try to resolve it next week," Clark said.

Clark said he expected to have a meeting this week about the bids and report back to the commission. McCotter asked how much money was in the 21st Century Fund and was told "not much."

'Money is there'

Commissioner George Cushingberry, D-Detroit, and chairman of Ways and Means, said the money would come from the general fund for the demolition if it didn't come from the 21st Century Fund.

"I hope you recognize the money is there," Cushingberry

Plawecki disapproved the appropriation of the 21st Century Fund, because she said the fund was originally intended as 'an economic development financing tool." The fund was to "target the revitalization of the county's distressed communities and neighborhoods," according to a press release from March McNamara said at the time it was "designed to revitalize distressed areas while also creating jobs and enhancing the county's tax base." The fund was to be used primarily for loans and the fund also was to leverage other public and private funds.

Plawecki also believes the general fund should be reimbursed if money comes out of it.

"My concern is the (Northville) property will subsidize a privately-owned venture," Plawecki said.

Beard said the county sales of property should reach $23 million and she is confident it will.

"That's prime property. People will be anxious to get at it. Now we have it in parcels that people can work with. Once we get it through the stage of getting it prepared, I think you will see some real activity out there. I think we'll find an awful lot of developers anxious to get in."

Neither McCotter nor Patterson back public money for a new

"There's no indication of what this money will be used for," Patterson said.

Patterson believed there should have been more discussion of this issue.

"The problem we have is now the appropriation is made, but the money is not on hand," Patterson said.

Sale before transfer

Estimates on the Northville sales range from $13 million to $32 million, Patterson said. Patterson believed sales should be made first, then money transferred as it comes in.

"I thought it was far too early to do it," Patterson said.

Tom Naughton, chief financial officer for the county's Department of Management and Budget, said the item was a budget adjustment and the money will not come from the general fund.

Any payments from either fund needs the commission's approval for the appropriation to be made, Naughton said.

"There needs to be an adjustment for the tourist taxes that we are currently collecting, Naughton said. "And the $23 million will be cover costs associated with the sale of the Northville property, such as taxes and demolition. The balance out of the net proceeds could be used to make payments to the stadium authority.

"The issue is in order to set up funding for demolition, we need a source of revenue. It should be paid out of the first proceeds from the Northville property.'

The land and stadium development fund must be set up by the county, according to state law.

"That money can only be used for payment of debt service on bonds," Naughton said.

"We can't bring up the demolition contracts until we have a budget. Once the remediation of the projects (demolition) are completed or at least in the works, it enhances the values of the property.

Naughton does not believe Northville would be shortchanged in funds for the demolition contracts. "The property transferred to the Economic Development Corporation, and the EDC will oversee the contracts," Naughton said. "Northville has two appointees on the EDC who will be involved every step of the Anti-theft team pays out record awards for tips

Never before in the 10-year history of Help Eliminate Auto Thefts (HEAT) has HEAT director William Liddane seen so much money awarded by the auto theft prevention group to the public for their assistance in ending auto theft related crimes.

"This year is one of our best for hotline calls," said Liddane, who has directed HEAT since Since 1985 the HEAT program has operated a toll-free confidential tip line (1-800-242-HEAT) for anyone to call with information about autotheft related crimes. The hotline is operated by the Michigan State Police, with funding from Michigan auto insurance companies.

The program is promoted through a cooperative effort with the Michigan State Police, Detroit Police, television, print and radio coverage, a poster program, a cooperative venture with Ameritech, as well as table top displays in area convenience stores, Secretary of State offices and auto parts dealerships - offering program information.

This year we're proud to announce that the program has generated over 522 hotline callers who telephoned the HEAT hotline resulting in the recovery of over 200 automobiles with a recovery value in excess of $2.4 million," Lid-

More hotline tips generally mean HEAT rewards more money to qualified leads, and sometimes more money than they anticipate. "But that's the kind of problem we like. Since our funding comes through the Michigan auto insurance companies, obviously, we were more than willing to go back to our board and ask them for more reward money to accommodate the increase in hotline tips," Liddane said.

That's money in the people of the state of Michigan's pocket. "Our program is a win-win-win for the state of Michigan," said Liddane. "The people of Michigan benefit by decreased auto Taco Bell in Dearborn Heights. "We need programs like HEAT to help us do our job effectively," said Lt. Hilton Napoleon, of the Detroit Police Department Carjacking Task Force. "I have seen firsthand the kind of effect this program has on crime and we hope it is around for a long time.

We are looking forward to finally turning the corner on auto theft before this century is over and we know programs like HEAT will help make that a reality," Liddane said.

HEAT tip callers are rewarded up to $1,000 if their tip leads to the arrest and prosecution of a suspected car thief. Up to $10,000 is rewarded if the tip results in the arrest and binding over for trial of suspected theft ring members and/or chop shop operators. HEAT also rewards $2,000 for information leading to the issuance or a warrant for a carjacking suspect.

Since 1985 HEAT has received 4,813 tip line calls, and awarded nearly $1.6 million to tipline callers. This has resulted in 1,800 suspects arrested and 2,191 vehicles recovered, at a total recovery value of $23.4 million.

Engler agenda for '97

Area legislators praise road repair strategy

BY TIM RICHARD

Legislators from both parties in Wayne County praised Gov. John Engler's plan to fix roads without raising fuel taxes.

A chuckling Sen. Loren Bennett, R-Canton, denied he had written the paragraph in Engler's seventh state of the state address blistering the Wayne County Department of Public Works for "fighting to keep the auditor general out and their books secret."

Bennett, whose township contends it is being shorted on county road funds and wants to receive its share directly from Lansing, called it "outrageous that in 1997 any government is arrogant enough to say there can't be public inspection of the

"I didn't even know about it (Engler's remark) until there was a briefing last night," Bennett said after Tuesday's address. "I support the concept of revising the road formula," he said, referring to Engler's announcement he would appoint a task force to revise the 40year-old formula that gives the state 39 percent of the fuel and weight tax fund.

"I like the fact the he changed his mind and now does not support a gas tax increase," said Rep. Eileen DeHart, D-Westland. "The money is there. It needs to be better managed and prioritized."

In a Democratic news conference earlier in the day, DeHart, in her second term, was held up as one of four emerging leaders versus them" party but interested in making winners of business, students, parents and senior citizens." She will chair the Retirement Committee and serve on the senior citizens and legislative retirement panels.

Rep. Deborah Whyman, R-Canton, said, "A number of us stood up spontaneously to applaud" Engler's pledge not to raise the fuel tax. "I looked around. They were all Tax Policy (Committee) members." Whyman, in her third term, again will serve on that panel.

Rep. Tom Kelly, D-Wayne, liked the roads message, adding he will reintroduce his failed 1996 plan to block the Secretary of State and other departments from siphoning off $100 million of road funds.

Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, and Bennett all praised the governor's economic good news: jobs and adoptions up; taxes, abortions, infant mortality and welfare down.

Law was among a handful of Republicans cool to Engler's plan for a state takeover of public school districts where 80 percent of students flunk state proficiency tests and dropout rates exceed 25 percent.

Law, adding the constitution gives the state superintendent adequate powers.

Kelly, a retired high school teacher, called the proficiency tests "useless. It was compiled by a private firm who obviously didn't know what they were doing. My advice to students would be 'just take the test and ignore it.' And the charter schools are dismal. Look at the people who are running them."

But Sen. Bennett called taking over schools with an 80 percent failing rate "a first step."

"I've always believed the state should take a role in the administration of school systems when they're not meeting students' needs," said Geake. "Those are reasonable criteria.

"But I question the continued expansion of the Jobs Commission," Geake added.

Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Redford, praised Engler's call for bright red license plate for repeat drunk drivers.

Bankes disagreed with Engler's decision not to let Michigan opt into the federal food stamp program. "Welfare reform is terrific. We have the most compassionate welfare system in the nation because we have all these backup services,' she said, citing centers to sell suits and work uniforms to job applicants trying to get off wel-

Engler was applauded 34 times - about average - for his Jan. 28 state of the state speech to a joint session of the Legislature. Republicans chanted "four more years," encouraging him to seek a third term in 1998. A House Democratic leader said the governor had "run out of gas in his seventh year."

Instead of raising fuel taxes, Engler advocated:

■ $70 million from an unnamed source for local ($40 million) and state ($30 million) prlojects, along with $110 million for bridge repair and $180 million for highway and bridge

■ Stopping "frivolous and outrageous lawsuits" to save $15 million to $25 million a year. A Democratic senator scoffed that the state paid out a total of only $9 million last year.

■ Cutting another 400 employees from the Michigan Department of Transportation, where 600 jobs have been cut already.

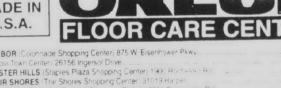

A bipartisan effort by Michigan congressmen to bring back $200 million more of the fuel taxes state drivers send to Washington.

Jared Becker, manager of the state rail safety division, said. "Typically we do not put up grates at a crossing where there's a single track.

"But if there is an accident history and it's determined that a gate would have prevented it we review that," Becker said.

Monthly reports on such accidents that are not fatalities go to the federal-railroad administration, then to the state.

"It would be something we would want to take a look at to see what the circumstances were," Becker said. "That's certainly a warning sign."

Becker said he's provided with a file on grade crossing incidents every six months, adding a report on this incident would likely come before him in two or three months for possible further review

"The downside of crossing gates is the roadway is blocked if there is a malfunction," he added.

marketing company. The group distributes lists and maintains their own home page on the worldwide web, but they do not offer the mapping options for residential searches through People Find.

Database America also allows residents with public phone numbers to suppress their names on the web page, but "if you suppress it from us, that doesn't mean you're suppressing it from others.

Campbell had already discovered that People Find would only pull up the information on certain people. There was no suppress option on the web page he was in however, which required people to go through the phone company.

America, a New Jersey direct in the phone book (you're unlisted), then it doesn't show up," said Campbell. "If there is no address (in the phone book), you just get a big map of the city the person lives in."

> Campbell is upset that the map is available to anyone who knows how to get it.

"This is not really necessary," he said, then added, "I wonder what else is on there.

Computer experts admit there is no way to get your name off every list. Lists exist based on one's age, income, social security number, credit history, and

"All our information is public knowledge," Sidwa insisted, which makes it legal.

Even the residential mapping option is legal, although some like Campbell would argue that it could be dangerous.

Mapping is done through jewel-toning. It works much like "If there is no phone number a global satellite system, zeroing in on locations based on their latitude and longitude coordinates

"Every single house has a lat./long.," said Sidwa. "It's not something that is given to you or you can have removed."

Based on technology and the continuous effort to improve it, Campbell has resigned himself to the fact that he can't eliminate these lists. Yet, he will do as much as one man can.

"I've told my daughter about it," he said. "I told her to either get an unlisted number or take the address out of the phone book.'

He is also passing the word, allowing others to remove their names from phone books, and maybe one more list.

"At least to look someone up in the phone book, I have to know (the municipality) where someone lives. With this, you just need their name," he said, in preference for the older method.

Concerned: That's what Ted Campbell is about the Internet and what it does.

Some changes are pending for the storefront just north of the Little Professor Book Center. That's because Chameleon Gallery has closed, as its owners are moving from Plymouth, said landlord Jim McKeon.

McKeon said he had some initial inquiries from the book store about expanding into that space, but that idea is off. "I have not advertised at all," McKeon said, adding a new tenant wouldn't go into the spot until May or June.

As to what kind of business he'd like to bring in, McKeon said, "I'd like to get something in the way of retail."T

Safety tips offered in case of highway breakdown

Motorists whose vehicles break down on Interstate highways are risking their lives, says a new study from the AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety.

More than 500 people on foot were killed on the Interstate highway system last year, and the AAA Foundation study shows that almost one-third of them were motorists who broke down, ran out of gas, or were involved in a previous collision.

"Motorists don't understand how dangerous it is to get out of their car on an Interstate," says AAA Foundation president David Willis. Ten percent of the nation's pedestrian deaths occur on Interstate highways, which comprise only one percent of the country's total road system.

The AAA Foundation study looked at 400 police accident reports from Texas, Missouri, and North Carolina, along with national data from the Fatal Accident Reporting System. Forty percent of the fatalities were pedestrians who were crossing or standing in the roadway, including undocumented alien crossings.

One third of deaths occurred to "unintended pedestrians" -- motorists who were working on their vehicle, walking on the shoulder, or exchanging information after an existing crash. Three out of four fatalities occurred after dark.

The AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety advises motorists who break down on the Interstate to:

Pull off the roadway to the extreme right of the shoulder.

Put hazard lights on and flares out.

• Wear visible clothing -- a retro-reflective vest is best.

Keep in mind that in some situations it may be safer to stay in the car and wait for

Morris Dog Training School in Livonia, offers this advice on increasing a dog's smarts:

- Educate yourself about canine behavior before you start training, since this will give you a better understanding of what motivates your dog to learn.
- Bond with your dog, so he's relaxed during training.
- Always speak to your dog in soft tones, never yelding or "over-correcting." If you shout out your commands, your dog will probably tune you out. Relax. Dogs are masters at reading our body language, and if you seem nervous and uptight, there's a good chance your dog will be too.
- Lavish praise on your dog when he does the right thing. Use a high-pitched enthusiastic voice when praising your pet.
- Don't make your training sessions too long or too difficult. A dog that becomes bored or discouraged is less likely to learn, so it's best to increase your pet's training schedule gradually.

Training cats

Self-reliant and independent, cats are often more difficult to train than dogs.

In fact, as many cat owners are quick to point out, it's often the feline who trains the human downer and not vice versa.

Still, as veterinarian Bruce Fogle demonstrates in his book "The Cat's Mind," pet felines can be trained.

To be effective, training rewards must be given to a cat as soon as the pet performs the desired act.

And what kind of reward do our feline friends want? "For most cats, only food will work," according to Fogle.

Rewarding pets

Dogs and cats who finish at the head of the pack in the Smartest Pet contest will be in for some tail-wagging prizes.

The first place winner will receive $500 in gift certificates from Pet Supplies "Plus," second place earns $200 worth of Pet Supplies "Plus" gift certificates, and third place earns $100 in Pet Supplies "Plus" gift certificates.

Fourth through tenth place winners will receive a year's supply of Nature's Recipe premium dog food, or one year's supply of 9-Lives Cat Food.

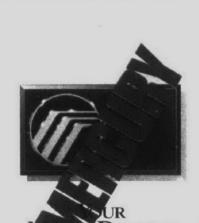

The contest's top three winhers will also appear on the Michigan Humane Society's PETelethon, which runs from noon to 4 p.m. on Sunday, March 2, on UPN TV50.

The first telethon devoted to animals that's ever been held in Michigan, the PETelethon will feature celebrity hosts like Amyre Makupson and David Scott, as well as special guests such as Jim Harper, host of the morning program on WNIC, and the world-famous feline Morris The Cat.

Veterinarians and trainers will also be on the program to offer tips to viewers, and there will be lots of adoptable animals on the air looking for good homes.

Volunteers will be staffing phones during the PETelethon to take donation pledges for the Michigan Humane Society.

All money raised will go toward helping the Michigan Humane Society care for the 50,000 displaced animals it takes into its three Detroit area shelters every year.

Senate bills target education, environment

Sen. Gary Peters, D-Bloom-field Township, will introduce two initiatives this week:

Two bills to assure that $40 million in taxes from Detroit casinos go to school technology grants rather than the general fund. "We don't need another state lottery shell game that promises more than it delivers to our schools," the first term senator said. Grants could be used for computers, modems, printers, distance learning systems, software and training; local districts would have to match the amounts.

■ A resolution asking the Department of Education to make an inventory of computers and software now available in public schools. Peters cited a federal report that ranks Michigan 41st in printers and 44th in com-

Sen. Loren Bennett, R-Canton, introduced two anti-pollution bills that will be referred to his Natural Resources Committee:

■ SB 4 to prohibit transportation and disposal of any solid waste in Michigan that is not generated in this state. "Michigan shouldn't be a dumping ground for other states' refuse,

■ SB 5 to increase penalties for illegal dumping of certain

House bills

Rep. Thomas Kelly, D-Wayne, will re-introduce a bill to reserve $108 million in the Michigan Transportation Fund for road and bridge repairs. Currently, the Secretary of State receives $86 million from the transportation fund, and others receive more than $14 million more.

Kelly won adoption of the measure as an amendment to another bill last year, but the bill died in December's lame-duck ses-

Appointments

Gov. John Engler has appointed two Oakland County residents to the Mental Health Advisory Council. The panel advises the director of community health in developing mental health programs, and terms expire Dec. 31, 1998. Appointees include:

Theodore Jr., Farmington Hills, chief executive of The Children's Center in Detroit.

Carlos Ruiz, Novi, executive director of the Fairlane Community Mental Health Centre and adjunct professor of psychology at Madonna University,

The state Civil Rights Commission has re-scheduled it January meeting to Monday, Feb. 24, in Detroit.

On the agenda were decisions in complaint against Norrell Health Care and a request from the Tuscola County Medical Care Facility.

The meeting is scheduled for sioners room at 1200 Sixth, at the corner of Howard near the Lodge Freeway exit.

MESC dies

Gov. John Engler last month signed an executive order abolishing the four-member Michigan Employment Security Commission and transferred policy power to agency director F. Robert Edwards.

Engler acted after the state Supreme Court refused, 4-3, to hear a challenge of his reorganization of MESC. Member Paul Policicchio, a Democrat from Novi representing labor, was lead appellant in the case.

MESC was created by law in 1936 to administer unemployment benefits and to provide employment counseling. Engler's order transferred the agency

Clear sidewalks, steps for mail carriers

Although neither rain, nor sleet, nor gloom of night stays the couriers of the U.S. Postal Service from their appointed rounds, unshoveled snow and icy sidewalks can. The Postal Service is asking customer's assistance in providing safe passage for letter carriers.

"Our carriers are already battling sub-zero temperatures, arctic wind- chills, and frigid winds. We are urging customers to remove snow and ice from their sidewalks and steps to avoid injury to letter carriers who are attempting to deliver their mail," says J.T. Weeker, Vice President of Area Operations for the Great Lakes Area which serves Michigan.

While we will make every effort to ensure mail is delivered without delay when it snows, we are also concerned with the safety of our employees," says Week-

Weeker adds that all postal employees have traditionally made an extra effort to get to work during snowy and icy conditions, but are instructed to avoid deliveries to homes and businesses which could result in injury if the snow and ice are not properly treated.

"We want all our customers to receive their mail promptly whether it snows or not," says Weeker. "But when it does snow, we hope customers will remember to clean their sidewalks and steps not only for our safety but for the safety of themselves and their families."

t's frightening to hear anyone mention - off the cuff or otherwise - that the Plymouth Recreation Department maybe could or should be abolished

Before such comments are made, let's see what some of the possibilities are for generating revenue, offsetting current costs and providing programs that aren't duplicated by other organizations, such as the YMCA, schools, churches and nearby colleges.

As with anything, providing recreation boils down to money. That's why a plan to conduct a telephone survey of city and township residents in the next month is definitely a step in the right direction.

The survey will ask you some basic questions, including the type of activities desired and if you participate in programs offered by other organizations or businesses.

The survey will ask whether the local governments should have primary responsibility for recreation

You also will be asked whether recreation should be financed with increased taxes or increased user fees, as well as how much you would be willing to pay annually for current

City and township residents who are called - every 33rd person on the voting lists - for the survey are urged to respond - and to respond honestly.

The city and township are waiting to hear from you. With information gleaned from the survey, government officials will be better able to determine the next step for recreation.

Recreation is a integral part of any healthy and desirable community. But clearly, who uses recreation services in Plymouth and who pays for it is becoming a touchy subject.

Groundhog Day. Except for the folks in Punxsutawney, Pa., it's not exactly a major holiday. Indeed, the "Holiday Handbook," a media guide published by the Hall-mark company, makes no mention of it at all.

We think that's too bad. After all, every

While the ice arena pays for itself, general fund money helps finance other facets of the recreation department.

Now talk includes the possibility of some dramatic increases for non-resident use, primarily from Plymouth Township. Adding a fitness center or child care center to generate revenue should not be dismissed either.

The ideal indeed would be a truly joint recreation department between the city and the township - particularly considering residents from both use the services.

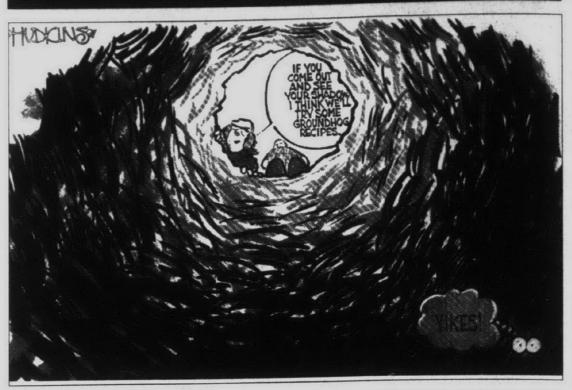

Admittedly, that's a big step, especially when Plymouth Township officials have long balked at the idea. They say they don't have a big call from residents demanding recreational services. And like the city of Plymouth, money is tight and priorities must be made.

If survey results show that township residents as a whole truly are not interested, perhaps the only answer - while maintaining the city recreation department - is to hike nonresident fees dramatically.

That route certainly is not uncommon. At the Summit on the Park community center in Canton, non-residents, including those from Plymouth and Plymouth Township, pay double what residents pay for a membership. Non-residents also pay more for individual programs.

At this point, all possibilities to maintain the recreation department and its programs should be kept open.

LETTERS

We thank you

The ninth-grade Spectra classes at PCEP are presently learning about Chinese literature and culture. To go along with the week's theme, our students came up with the idea of ordering a carry-out Chinese luncheon.

It was as easy as making a few phone calls to the Canton China restaurant on Sheldon Road on Canton. They planned a delicious meal for 50 students and teachers and even sent over a mountain of fortune cookies!

We would like to thank the Lin family, Hank the chef, and everyone at Canton China for their willingness to help. This is yet another example of the many kind acts our local businesses regularly do for the young people in our schools. Thank you!

Thanks to Observer

We appreciate the help the Observer provides by printing stories on WSDP. As an educational station our budget is limited anniversary reunion. It's hard to believe that 1997 will mark 25 years of serving the community through broadcasting and training students. We have heard from many of our former students but others have not been contacted because our mailing lists are outdated

We are asking your readers to use their contacts to help us update the lists. If you know of any current addresses of former WSDP staff members please contact me at (313) 416-7732. Your help is invaluable.

We are tentatively planning for a reunion in the fall of 1997. An organizing committee will begin working in the next few months. As a former graduate of WSDP, I'm eagerly anticipating the chance to catch up with old friends. It has been great hearing from former staff members, especially as they share the important role WSDP played in their lives. Thank you for helping.

Call me a moderate

Oops! Bad timing! When I wrote my intended-to-be humorous letter to the editor last week about the nativity scene displayed in Kellogg Park, I meant to poke fun at how quickly pre-Christmas attempts at civic piety evaporate post-Christmas once the shopping season is over.

Although the Bible states that the wise men did not arrive until 12 days after Christ's birth - Jan. 6 by our calendar - each year city workers move the wise men to the manger on Christmas Day, then remove the whole display long before Jan. 6.

Typical governmental incompetence? My point was that displays of piety don't belong on government property, but rather, should be displayed in houses, in places of worship, and by individuals.

Unfortunately, my letter appeared on the same day as a letter from Bobbie Cleary of Canton. She is upset by the Canton Youth Initiative, which is an effort by local officials and citizens, mostly Republicans, and none of them known for radicalism, to instill respect for moral principles in youth.

Cleary notes that the initiative borrowed their principles of character from the State Board of Education's new Charter Curriculum. She disapproves of such radicalism and labels it anti-family.

I note that State Board of Education president Clark Durant has been roundly criticized by moderates and liberals for his attempts to teach the Bible and other such ideas in public schools. In short, he is a very conservative man. How much more conservative would one have to be to regard anything produced by Durant as radical and anti-family? The mind boggles.

So call me a moderate. Call me a Christian who believes in private displays of piety, rather than the hypocritical public displays Jesus criticized the Pharisees for. Call me a Christian who believes God created the world, but that Darwin and other scientific researchers might just have managed to figure out how He created it.

Just don't confuse me with the fearful fundamentalists who see a threat to the family from efforts like the Canton Youth Initiative where the rest of us see laudable attempts to instill moral values in our youth and in our society.

POINTS OF VIEW

Time and touch are family values family values which can go a long way in solidifying the bonds of a family and healing the wounds which occur as families progress and grow.

As parents frantically search for ways to please their children, "time" and "touch" may be the keys to developing a long-term appreciation for each other.

Over my years of working with families I have frequently encountered students of all ages, elementary school age through early adulthood, who praise their parents for hard work and sacrifice but also lament the lack of time and involvement their parents had with them.

The student can appreciate their parents' commitment to working long hours and making a good living to provide material things for the family. But what these students often long for is more time with significant adults and an occasional hug or touch on the shoulder to assure them.

A couple of examples may clarify what I am saying:

■ A few years ago, a colleague was concerned about her 16-year-old daughter who had become defiant and angry. Mother and daughter had had a good relationship up through the daughter's middle school years but that deteriorated quickly as the mother became president of her school PTA, took on a part-time job, and got involved in volunteer work.

This was at the same time as the daughter, due to normal adolescent development, was becoming more GUEST COLUMNIST independent and identifying with groups outside the family.

The mother recognized problems and attempted to re-establish ties with her daughter. The mother's efforts were met with anger from the daughter, and they frequently ended up arguing

In frustration, the mother decided that she and her 16-year-old daughter would spend time walking together for 30 minutes every day. The daughter was told she didn't have to talk or do anything other than walk.

The first few walks were silent and tense affairs but as the days wore on, daughter and mother slowly began talking as they walked. They were slowly able to build to conversations on topics which they had previously avoided. Their relationship improved and their respect for each other grew. The "time" spent has grown into a solid family relationship.

■ In another instance, a friend explained that he was only able to see his 14-year-old son from a previous marriage on alternate weekends and for extended visits at holidays and during the summer.

He wondered if his son might be uncomfortable with the hug and kiss which father and son exchanged each time they ended their visit.

As he recalled the longing for "touch" from his own father that he had felt as an adolescent, my friend decided to continue touching his son as a sign of love for his son, and to show they were still connected.

Families can benefit and grow from the warmth and closeness which "time" and "touch" can provide.

State bad list tops charter schools on MEAP you must grasp that he is more interested in peddling ideology than in solving practical problems of education.

That is why he is targeting 10 public school districts for a state takeover instead of the so-called "charter schools," which are mostly former private schools getting state money.

Many charter schools are losers. Check the latest round of Michigan Educational Assessment Program tests of math and reading taken by 120,000 fourth- and seventh-graders. Of those, 96 percent were in true public schools, with elected school boards and PTAs, so the state totals are roughly the same as the public school totals.

In fourth-grade math, 60.5 percent of the total got "satisfactory" scores vs. 35.4 percent of charter pupils. "Low" scores were recorded by 18.1 percent of the total and 41.4 percent of the charter pupils. In every category, public schools as a group did better than charter schools as a group.

In Detroit, top takeover target, public school students had 48.7 and 29.1 percent "satisfactory" math scores in fourth and seventh grades. Sierra Leone Educational Outreach – which boasts "heterogeneous" classrooms, African studies, karate and computer technology in its curriculum – scored 8 and 8 in the same categories.

In Lansing, another in the state's top 10 bad list, public school pupils had 39.7 and 31 percent "satisfactory" scores in fourth- and seventh-grade math. Weak, but still better than Sankofa Shule, whose "African-centered liberal arts and science curriculum" resulted in scores of 29.4 percent "satisfactory" in the same categories.

Why even dream of taking over Muskegon schools? Tri-Valley Academy, with its emphasis on Spanish, saw its students score 2 percent "satisfactory" in fourth-grade math and 4 percent in seventh-grade reading – and 88 percent "low."

TIM RICHARD

Oak Park public school pupils saw 62.1 and 78.2 percent satisfactory scores in math in fourth and seventh grades. Academy of Detroit Oak Park reported 5.2 and 5.2 percent satisfactory math scores.

Some other comparisons of suburban schools not on Engler's hit list:

• Redford Union – Public school students did better in math in both grades, but Gaudior Academy edged them in reading in both grades. But Gaudior had 40 to 50 percent of its students score in the "low" groups while RU public school students had 22 to 31 percent in the low group.

• Southfield – Public schools saw 63.1 and 52.7 percent satisfactory scores in math. AGBU Alex & Marie Manoogian School, which stresses Armenian culture and bilingualism, recorded 46.7 and 46.7 percent satisfactory in the top math brackets. Academy of Detroit-Southfield, which lauds the "free enterprise system," had satisfactory math scores of 21.7 and 21.7.

The case for charter schools looks even grimmer when one examines some of the "Native American" schools. Nah Tah Wahsh, which offers "native culture and language" in the Menominee County hamlet of Wilson, had zero satisfactory scores in reading and 11 percent satisfactory in math in both grades.

What about specialized academies? Northlane Math and Science Academy, in Midland County, saw 50 percent of both fourth- and seventh-graders score in the "low" category – in math! In a handful of cases, academies scored higher than local public schools. Thomas-Gist Academy, located in the Inkster School District part of Westland, recorded 68.6 and 51.4 percent satisfactory grades in fourthgrade math and reading, respectively — well ahead of Inkster's 24.5 and 23.1 and even ahead of Wayne-Westland's 52.1 and 43.2.

With a few exceptions, charter academies did badly. Engler won't admit it because he is pandering—"satisfying the expectations of the parents who choose to send their children to them," in the words of state Superintendent Art Ellis' Jan. 10 report on charter schools.

Now you also know why Engler's executive orders last December curbed the State Board of Education's powers over charter schools.

Tim Richard reports on the localimplications of state and regional ; events.

Let market forces determine liquor import brands, prices

n a trip to the California wine country last fall, Kathy and I visited the Carneros Alembic distillery, a place that makes French-style brandy in enormous (18 feet hign) copper pot stills. We tried the product in the tasting room and found it excellent, certainly the equal of cognacs made in France.

Upon returning to Michigan, I looked for Carneros Alembic brandy at my local liquor store. Not there. "Can you order some?" I asked the proprietor.

"Nope," he said, "The state Liquor Control Commission decides what liquor to import into the state."

"Suppose I call them and ask to have some imported?" I asked, hopefully.

"Not a chance. You might like the stuff, but there isn't enough demand for that special brandy to bother the bureaucrats to order it." "So what can I do?" I sighed.

"The next time you go to Chicago, you might find some. Remember, Illinois has an unregulated market for liquor, the prices there are lower, and the selection much greater than in Michigan."

That conversation has been rattling around in my head ever since Gov. John Engler tried to privatize the state-run wholesale liquor distribution system that warehouses booze and trucks the stuff to more than 13,000 retail bars, restaurants and party stores in Michigan.

His idea was to lay off nearly 400 state employees who work in the warehouses and drive the trucks, and let competitive contracts to private firms. Not surprisingly, unions representing the state workers sued to block the move, and the matter is now entangled in the slow coils of the courts.

Michigan has a Byzantine system to manage the sale and distribution of liquor that goes back to 1933, after Prohibition was repealed and the five-member state Liquor Control Commission (LCC) was created to control the sale of all liquor in the state.

The LCC not only manages the wholesale side of the business – warehousing and distribution – but also controls what brands of liquor are imported into Michigan and the retail prices. It is the LCC that sets the 65 percent markup on the wholesale price the state pays distillers, thereby regulating liquor pricing and earning the state a tidy $80 million profit each year from its monopoly control over the liquor business.

PHILIP POWER

What is mystifying about Engler's move to privatize the system is that he has succeeded in obtaining the worst of both worlds.

Contracting out warehousing and distribution costs nearly 400 people their jobs, makes the unions mad and puts Democrats in the Legislature on the warpath. But attacking only warehousing and distribution does nothing whatsoever to attack the monopoly control exercised by the state over selection and price of liquor.

The governor is usually much smarter than this. I suspect the real reason behind his approach is that he doesn't want to kick away $80 million annually in profits from the state liquor monopoly.

If we have learned anything as we approach the end of the century, it is that monopolies – whether controlled by business or government – are inherently bad. They drive up prices and drive down service; they shackle the workings of the market to provide customers with the products, prices and services they are willing to pay for. And the monopoly profits – whether going to a corporation or state government – are, at the end of the day, simply gouged from the pockets of ordinary consumers.

If Engler wants to do something serious about privatization, he should try to get the state entirely out of running the liquor business in Michigan.

Let the LCC regulate places that are licensed to sell liquor, enforce laws limiting sale to minors and collect liquor taxes. But let the workings of the market determine what kind of booze customers want to buy and at what prices.

Wonder of joy, hope, hearing ast summer, while we were on our family vacation, I was nearly run down by a car. It'd been a close call. I had that funny electrical tingly needly feeling zip through my hands and fingers right when it happened.

That's such a weird thing, that needly zippy feeling, have you ever had that? It only happens to me when something sudden and terrible comes along which puts my family or myself in danger. It isn't a thoughtful sort of reaction, more like a knee jerk or eye blink reflex thing, but not as useful.

Anyway, my nearly getting run over was all my fault. And I felt really foolish and sheepish about it afterwards, after the needly tingly feeling dissipated. And I felt bad for the guy driving the car. What he must've gone through when I walked directly in front of him as he drove his car in that parking lot in broad daylight I can only imagine. He probably said some choice things at me, but I wouldn't know, I couldn't hear him. I couldn't hear anything. I couldn't hear his car approaching. I couldn't hear birds overhead.

Later, I couldn't even hear my children talking or my husband talking as we ate in the Pennsyl-

They are hoping to track down the more than 500 alumni of WSDP 88.1 FM, the 200-watt Plymouth-Canton Educational Park radio station, to inform them about WSDP's 25th anniversary celebration Nov. 1 at Canton's Summit on the Park.

"We're still working out the details, but we'll probably have a dinner and a program where people get up and talk about their years with WSDP," said Keith, an alumnus who has been the station manager for six years. "People are going to get together and chat the night

"We may also tie in some stuff like letting the alumni do shows and let them bring in the music that they played while they were here. That would be fun.'

The committee has searched through old staff lists, yearbooks, an alumni directory, the Internet, and any other resource they could get their hands on to locate ex-radio personnel.

"We have an amazing amount," he said. "We're going through old yearbooks, especially the early years of the station, 1972-1978. We're very shaky on those years. The old station stuff was never really orga-

PLEASE ASK!

Most people are not at their best when they are at the closing. They are feeling nervous and vulnerable as they sign the papers, and may even be fighting off an attack of buyer's remorse.

Even though you may be inclined to just sign the papers, it is a good idea to check the paperwork and ask any questions you have. If you are signing a mortgage or deed of trust, be sure to review the document carefully. Check the spelling of your name, the property address and all of the inserted items for accuracy. Since much of the paperwork is prepared on short notice, occasionally mistakes are made. they've sent back to us. You read them and say, 'Oh, wow, this one's still in the business,' " said Keith, a Michigan State University graduate who worked at a country radio station in Grayling before returning to WSDP.

Changing times

Besides updated equipment, Keith said that the room hasn't changed much since it went on the air on Feb. 14, 1972. However, the staff and the programming has evolved.

"The staffs have slimmed down," he said. "In the late '70s and early '80s there were huge staffs. Now, the average number of kids on staff is 30-40.

When 1982 Plymouth Canton High School graduate Glenn Bar worked for the station, his programming consisted of mostly iazz music.

"We had a mix; there would be jazz, pop, and rock. It wasn't like what it is now with the edge," said Bar, a former program director who is now the 5 p.m. news producer at WXYZ-TV Channel 7

Christopher Townley, a 1992 graduate of Plymouth Canton High School, is the former director of "88 Escape," an alternative music show, and a former promotions director.

"When we started, we had a Top 40 format and then in the evening an alternative format," Townley said. "In those four years, we saw Lollapalooza get its start, blurring the line between alternative and pop formats. We tossed the pop format and added more of a variety of shows during the week like death metal and rap shows.

"I've been listening to it when I'm home and it seems that the alternative format has kind of taken over. The Red Hot Chili Peppers are now acceptable.

Townley lives in New York where he works for Propaganda Films. The former Plymouth resident, who graduated with a degree in film and television from New York University in May, recently freelanced his talent for the art direction of the video "Devil's Haircut" by Beck, a hip-hop/alternative singer.

Besides the musical evolution, Townley saw the station become more professional.

"There was a professionalism there, although it was a little bit fake in that you're still just a high school radio station," he said. "But it did get to the point when I was leaving that people were pushing and getting interviews with pretty big bands. They'd get free passes to St. Andrew's Hall and maybe backstage passes and ended up sitting backstage and talking to whoever. That's cool."

Participating with WSDP, Townley said, was more of an introduction to the real life than playing sports.

"You're probably not going to go on to play with the NBA, but few people from WSDP did go on to work in the business," he

WSDP has maintained its genre-specific programming, Keith said.

"Now we've expanded it even more to fit different niches. We don't play rap during the day but we play it during a show at night. It was a big surprise how popular that show is," he said.

Other programs include "WSDP Gone Country," "Hip-Hop Spot," "Open Up and Say Ska," "The Sanctuary" metal show, "Freak Show" featuring Christian music, "Anonymous Was a Woman" with female singers and "By Popular Demand" which is a mainstream alternative show.

Besides music, the station also airs news, public service announcements and high school sports events, including football, basketball, boys' and girls' soccer and basketball, and girls' soft-beyond the school walls. Keith said regular callers include workers at a Papa Romano's store in Canton, as well as residents of Livonia, Westland and Northville.

The listenership expands well

While Townley is unsure if he'll attend the reunion, WXYZ's Bar is looking forward to going and catching up with old friends. There's a lot of people from WSDP who are still in the business, so it's really been a launching pad for a lot of successful careers," the Plymouth resident

Keith is just as excited about

"These people were my life," he said. "I've lost track of a lot of them. I'm hoping we can catch up and see where people are and reminisce."

Regular checks, safety save eyesight

You can start the new year off right by making eye safety and medical eye examinations part of your family's health routine.

January marks National Eye Care Month and both the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Michigan Ophthalmological Society urge everyone to get a medical eye examination and make eye safety a priority for your family.

"It is extremely important to have your eyes checked on a reg-ular basis," said Dr. George A. Williams, president of the Michigan Ophthalmological Society. 'Many of the most common forms of eye disease, such as glaucoma, cataract and diabetic retinopathy, when caught in the early stages, can be successfully treated. If not caught in time, these diseases can lead to visual loss and blindness."

Today, approximately 900,000 people in the United States are legally blind (have a visual acuity with best correction in better eye less than or equal to 20/200 or a visual field of less than 20 degrees). It is estimated that 100,000 Americans are totally blind.

In the most serious form of age-related macular degeneration, retinal blood vessels leak and break, leading to uncontrolled scarring and new blood vessel formation

During later life, approximately 1.7 million Americans will suffer some form of visual impairment. Of the estimated 33.9 million people in the United States, age 65 or older, around 100,000 will experience a rapid loss of vision due to the more aggressive or "wet" form of age-related macular degeneration, in which new blood vessels grow rapidly in the eye.

With glaucoma, pressure elevates within the eye, damaging the optic nerve responsible for transmitting visual signals to the brain. Approximately 80,000 Americans are blind from openangle glaucoma, the most prevalent form, and an estimated 2 million people have the disease.

Risk factors for glaucoma include age, nearsightedness, African ancestry, family history, history of eye injury, severe anemia or shock. Although vision loss from glaucoma is detectable and treatable at an early stage, most people are not aware that they have the disease until they have experienced significant damage.

A cataract is an opacity that clouds the normal clear lens of the eye. Despite the approximately one million cataract operations performed annually in the United States, cataracts remain one of the leading causes of

A cataract results from a number of physical or chemical insults to the lens or from changes in lens metabolism associated with aging. Surgical lens removal is an effective treatment for cataracts.

Diabetes mellitus damages tiny blood vessels in the eye which leak fluid and/or blood distorted vision. and cause Forty percent of all diabetics, or 4 to 6 million Americans, will develop diabetic retinopathy in their lifetime. Approximately 8,000 Americans go blind from the disease each year.

Management of diabetes, including control of blood sugar levels, is critical for the management of diabetic retinopathy. Laser surgery and vitreous surgery (vitrectomy) can also slow the progression of the dis-

Beyond getting regular medical eye examinations, incorporate some common sense rules to reduce the risks of eye injuries and trauma.

Injuries from toys also are the leading causes of blindness among children. Watch out for http://www.eyenet.org.

toys with a projectile or long, sharp, protruding parts. While air-powered guns, such as BB and pellet guns are responsible for more than 1,000 eye injuries each year, even seemingly harmless toys, such as stuffed animals may have sharp whiskers or other parts that can prove hazardous

Fireworks, especially bottle rockets, are also dangerous, resulting in 6,000 eye injuries

Both organizations also urge people to wear protective eyewear when playing sports, especially basketball and baseball, no matter what your age.

Ninety percent of eye injuries, sustained during recreational activities, could have been prevented with wearing of protective eyewear.

"It is important to teach your children about the importance of playing safely and make sure they are properly supervised by an adult," said Williams. "Your eyesight is precious. Make it part of your New Year health plan."

On a grand night: Michael and Randy Webster of Livonia were among some 500 people who turned out for the Women's Committee For Hospice Care ball, "A Grand Night," held Jan. 18 at the Ritz-Carlton in Dearborn. The event raised more than $200,000 at the black tie event that included a live auction with such things as a man's and woman's designer outfits and trip for two to the Kentucky Derby in Louisville, Ky.

Patrons of historic preservation are invited to an elegant and intimate event at the home of Henry and Clara Ford.

The Benefactor Event will be held, beginning at 6 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 5, at Henry Estate, Fair Lane, on the campus of the University of Michigan-Dearborn.

Mr. and Mrs. Edsel B. Ford II are the honorary chairs with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rourke and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Knoop Jr. are co-chairs

Between 70 and 80 guests usually attend the Benefactor Event. Tickets cost $600 per person which admits guests to both the Benefactor Event and the annual dinner-dance at the Ritz-Carlton on Saturday, April

The evening will start with a cocktail reception in the newly restored garage, where participants will have a chance to view the garage/powerhouse displays, including several historic vehi-

During the cocktail hour, a new donor recognition plaque will be unveiled. The brass sign, which lists all donors to the garage restoration, is being donated by Walter Oltersdorf who was a Henry Ford Trade School student.

Guests will then travel through the underground tunnel, connecting the powerhouse to the residence for dinner.

The gourmet cuisine will be catered by the Ritz Carlton and will include hors d'oeuvres of shrimp on cucumber cup with dill sauce, braised beef bourguignon wrapped in herb crepe with pommery mustard and smoked salmon rosette with caviar pearls, duck and black truffle consomme.

A salad course of bouquet of winter greens with champagne pear vinaigrette, attended by feuilette of manage fois gras, with dried fruit and a ginger mint sorbet also will be served.

A combination entree of grilled fillet of beef with roasted artichoke and beurre rouge sauce accompanied by lobster and morel fricassee en croute has been chosen for Estate guests.

The cheese course will include brie, cognac and chive turnover on lamb lettuce with raspberry vinaigrette. And to finish the gourmet feast will be a dessert trio of lemon cloud, hazelnut meringue and berry tulip with a chocolate sculpted model T.

A one-of-a- kind hand sculpted Crystal Model T. Ford donated by Waterford Crystal, Ltd. will be unveiled during the dinner. The piece will be raffled off to Ford and Ford Lincoln Mercury dealers, with 250 tickets will be sold at $250 each. Any remaining tickets will be opened to the general public.

The Dinner Dance and Benefactor Event have been responsible for generating over $900,000 since 1989. That revenue was used in various projects such as the landscape restoration, maintenance, educational programs, the purchase of interior furnishings and infrastructure projects.

Christ Our Savior conference aims to bridge the 'Gap'

"The generation gap" is a term often used to describe the differences in viewpoint between youths and their parents. It also is a gap that isn't easy to cross, considering that communication between parent and child can be a difficult process, especially when the subject is awkward to bring up.

That is one reason why Christ Our Savior Lutheran Church in Livonia is organizing a conference to help parents and their children keep communication lines open by "Bridging the

The conference, aptly named

"Bridging the Gap," will be 1-6 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 8, at the church, 14175 Farmington Road, Livonia. It is designed to give the parents of junior and senior high school students information on issues facing today's youth.

"Once parents learn what their teens are going through, then they have a line of communication that can open," said Hope Moran, Christ Our Savior's youth director. "You have to open the door to start communicating and this can help."

Moran found out about the Minnesota-based "Bridging the Gap" program from a friend. He described it as "great for kids and for parents," leading Moran to call and see if it would be coming to Michigan any time soon.

"I called to see if it was coming to our area and they asked if we wanted to host it," she said. "This is the first time they've taken outside of Minnesota. At their programs there they usually end up turning people away."

"Bridging the Gap" features three topnotch speakers - Guy Doud, Pam Stenzel and John Crudele - and the local Christian contemporary band Buck.

The 12-member band, which will perform before, at the start and end of the conference, got its start when the members were students at Livonia Stevenson High School and has kept most of the original members since Doud, a teacher of the year, author and nationally known speaker working with Focus on the Family, will share a message of faith and how Christ can moti-vate an individual's life.

Stenzel is the founder and director of Straight Talk, and has spoken in assemblies at area high schools and across the United States about pregnancy and sexually transmitted diseases, including AIDS.

Crudele has a exciting, upbeat message about the issues facing youths today. He is a frequent guest on talk radio and TV shows like "Ricki Lake" and Jenny Jones.

"Pam and John are geared to junior and senior high kids, while Guy speaks to everybody," Moran said. "I know of several couples who don't have children who've signed up to attend and several youth groups have to use the conference as a springboard for discussion.

Christ Our Savior can seat up to 700 people and Moran is hoping for a turnout of at least 560. The success of this conference may mean more, expanded "Bridging the Gap" programs in the future, she said

The conference is multidenominational and open to the public. Tickets are $10 and are available by sending checks, payable to Christ Our Savior Lutheran Church, to "Bridging the Gap," 14175 Farmington Road, Livonia. Tickets can also be picked up at the church weekdays. A limited number of tickets will be available at the door.

For more information, call Hope Moran at (313) 522-6830.

'Lost and Found' video tackles teen depression

Depression. Each year 17 million people suffer from the disease that until recently was not discussed as a valid or viable explanation for changes in mood or behavior, work performance and social relationships.

Depression also affects many children. Almost 10 percent of children and adolescents are suffering from this disease that can tear a family apart. Sadly enough, most of this suffering can be prevented with proper diagnosis and treatment.

"For many teens depression is a very real and devastating illness," said Sister Janet Ryati, director of pastoral care at Children's Hospital of Michigan. "Kids need to know there is help for them - they don't have to suffer alone."

When compared to adults, only a small number of teens experience depression. But alarming statistics are proving that it is not a disease to be ignored, especially in adolescents.

"In the last 30 years we've seen the rate of teen suicide increase by 300 percent," said Ryati. "This is our call to action. Parents, caretakers and professionals have to listen to what these numbers are telling us. Our children need our help."

"Lost and Found: Young People Talk About Depression" is the latest video project produced by Children's Hospital of Michigan. In it, teens talk about their own struggles with depression and what they did, and still do. to overcome an illness to which most thought they were immune. "Lost and Found" addresses issues from both a teen and parent aspect.

The award-winning video introduces eight young men and women who share their personal triumphs as they work through and eventually conquer their

Stephanie, who wrestled with lifelong attempts to satisfy everyone but herself.

·Peter, who used drugs to medicate his feelings of anger and loss after being diagnosed with diabetes.

·Laura and Erika, sisters who reveal their sadness and guilt after their father's suicide.

Donitha, who found herself in and out of foster homes after reporting abuse by her father.

·John, who traced his depression back to living with chronic kidney disease

feared the lost of her brother and the impact on her family.

•Manuel, who lost a friend in an accident and shares how difficult it is for young men to share their feelings with others.

With depression considered a major health problem and sui-cide as one of the leading causes of death among young people, parents need to familiarize themselves with the symptoms persistent sadness, anxiousness or "empty moods," change in appetite and change in academic or social habits.

Parents are encouraged to get children exhibiting their symptoms to use available resources and talk to their family doctor. They also shouldn't "give up too soon. " A child may need to hear more than once that he or she deserves to feel better and can, with proper treatment.

For support groups in the area or for more information on depression, call Children's Hospital of Michigan Pastoral Care Department at (313) 745-5391. the National Institute of Mental Health at (800) 421-4211 or the National Mental Health Association at (800) 969-6642.

vania restaurant. You see, my dars had been completely plugged from an afternoon of swimming. And I mean completely plugged. I'd never experienced such pluggedness.

I tried driving our van after we finished eating; it was my turn to drive. Once I was back out on the highway though, I couldn't hear the semi trucks coming up on me or the cars passing or anything. It was like, z-z-zoom, out of nowhere, there

I got that zippy sharp tingly feeling in my hands. I was in danger. I was putting everyone in danger. It was then I realized how much I rely on my ears when I drive. At the first safe place, I pulled off the road and had my unplugged husband take over the wheel.

For a day and a half I lived in an odd world: quiet, muffled, isolated. I knew I was missing stuff and I was probably getting on everybody's nerves with my unresponsiveness.

So, that was my brief brush with hearing loss - way last summer, and with that in mind I know this - what I saw today in the recovery room at Mott Children's Hospital was a miracle. Baby Steven, after his 11 months on this earth, heard, with his own ears his mother's voice and his father's voice for what we believe to be was the first time. We spoke to him and he responded with first a quizzical look followed by one of the world's biggest baby smiles, reaching across his face and right into our hearts. He had heard us I saw a miracle today. I saw a child who hadn't ever really heard the sounds of human speech before smile, hugely, when someone spoke.

And I saw this child look so intently at everyone seated at the dinner table as we prayed over our meal. He heard prayer

I saw this child who hadn't ever heard the sweet sounds of a piano before turn his head to the music and smile and wave his arms. He heard songs today.

I saw this child look at his brothers and sister when they spoke to him today and they knew Steven could hear them. He heard them saying the words they've been saying to him all along, Steven heard "I love you"

A few months ago we began to suspect that Steven couldn't hear very well. This surprised no one since hearing loss is a rather common problem for those with Down's Syndrome. But what no one really knew until today was the degree of Steven's hearing loss. Today, during surgery, it was discovered that his hearing problem had been twofold.

First, he has had since birth, as we suspected, chronic fluid in the ear. And for Steven, this fluid in the ear resulted in a "flat line tympanogram," a test result indicating no activity in the ear

In addition to that, the doctors discovered just today, during surgery, neurological damage in the hearing nerve in the brain stem. But the damage is not huge, it's significant, but not huge. So the way it was explained to us in the recovery room, Steven's hearing isn't now nor ever will be "good," even with the tubes now in place to drain the fluid, but Steven CAN hear us talking now, he can hear the phone jangle, he can hear things that measure at least 40 decibels.

And that's now, today. And there's a possibility of hearing aids for him on down the line, we were told

Today, baby Steven was granted a medical miracle. He can hear. He had surgery and now songs and prayers and piano music and laughter and the birthday song we'll be singing to him on his first birthday next month are his. Faith, hope, joy and love make noises ... Steven knows this now.

THE GREAT FALL

Three guys and a balloon survive an emergency landing near the Great Wall of China

BY MEGAN SWOYER SPECIAL WRITER

Put everything away...get on the radio...we're going down!

Hot air balloon pilot Scott Lorenz issued those commands as he and his two crew members swayed and tilted dangerously close to a mountainside near the Great Wall in China last Octo-

Unexpected winds were so perilous that Lorenz's only option was to let the air out of his balloon and fall 200 feet to the ground...hard. Real hard.

Upon touchdown, the three were thrown from the basket, glasses flying off their faces, their bodies hurling and rolling amid boulders and brush.

They survived. "God had his hand on us the whole time," says one of the survivors today. We're lucky we didn't get killed," he adds. Lorenz looks back on the mysterious incident and says that except for watching his two children being born, the emergency landing was the most profound experience in his life. Lorenz, president of Westwind Consulting, a public relations and marketing firm based in Plymouth and Birmingham, had never expected to pilot an emergency landing during his most highly anticipated trip. After all, the 40-year-old balloonist had been piloting for 14 years. And he's never really had anything dangerous happen to him.

A special case

Most excursions are uneventful, he says. "We've even had some yawner trips."

Tedious or precarious, ballooning is almost always exhilarating and that's the main reason Lorenz became a balloonist. That was also the attraction for two of Lorenz's friends, who agreed to crew for the journey over the Great Wall of China.

When Scott asked me to go with him I said, sure, because I knew it would be fun and unusual and I had the wherewithal to do it, " says 36-year-old crew member Anmar Sarafa of Bloomfield Hills.

Sarafa is president of Zaske, Sarafa & Associates, a money management firm in Birmingham. So he and another friend, Mike Franchi, a Plymouth resident and co-owner of Mama LaRosa Foods in Taylor, joined Lorenz in early October for a 10day vacation to China.

Over the course of the trip, the adventurous trio went up several times in Lorenz's rainbow-colored balloon and flew over Chinese cornfields, mountains, small farming communities and curious village children.

Special visitors

During one ride, they landed II village immediate magnet to dozens of children who were not only intrigued by the colorful balloon, but also wanted to fill their hands with the candy treats that the men brought along in honor of their own Halloween tradi-

The 20-balloon gathering, sponsored by the Chinese Bal-loon Sports Federation, featured balloonists and media from all over the world. There was even a Michigan State University green and white Spartan balloon.

The Lorenz crew was invited to represent the United States. The federation provided an interpreter, a chaser (one who

Scott Lorenz:

Scott Lorenz, 40, Plymouth resident, owner of Westwind Consulting

He is the son of the late Ralph Lorenz, long-time Plymouth resident and former owner of the Mayflower Hotel in downtown Plymouth. Scott operated the hotel from 1978 to 1989 and then joined Domino's Inc. He started the Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular which recently celebrated its 15th year.

His clients include the new Oakland Athletic Club in Birmingham, the Christmas Lights Display at Dominos Farms in Ann Arbor, a cosmetic surgeon in Troy, TV's Mr. Wizard, The Branch Mall, one of the first electronic malls on the Internet; and Zaske, Sarafa & Associates, a money management firm in Birmingham.

■ The bridge between ballooning and business: "In ballooning I work with what I have. You can't change the weather, the wind, you read the forecast and learn to predict. In business, if you're skilled, you deal with the conditions. A recession, an economic boom, lawsuits...whatever comes up. And you have to be able to read the signs ahead and deal with what you have."

The beginnings: Lorenz launched the Mayflower Hotel Hot Air Balloon Festival in Plymouth in 1981. "After the first year, I said, I gotta get into this."

Why he loves it: "It's perfect for me. Ballooning takes me all over the world. From the air, you can see things you'd never see from the ground. I really enjoy meeting the people whom we can literally drop

A family affair: Lorenz's son Joey, 10; daughter Katie, 12; and wife Yvonne, also love to balloon. "I didn't take them over Niagara Falls with me. When they fly with me, the weather conditions have to be perfect."

■ Weirdest moment: "We (Sarafa and Franchi) did the Macarena in public in Shanghai. This is after we nearly killed ourselves. It was my son Joey's idea. And now we're finalists on "America's Funniest Home Videos.

■ Splashlest view: His Niagara Falls flight.

■ The social factor: "Balloonists are my soul mates.

■ Most nerve-wracking flight: "China's emergency landing. I got a gray hair from that. Honest.

Cost of a balloon: Anywhere from $20,000 to $25,000.

Cost of a balloon ride: A balloon holds about 30 gallons and the fuel is about $1 per gallon. Lorenz takes friends and clients for rides often. Normally, he charges about $175 per person.

Prep time: It takes about 15 minutes to prepare a balloon for flight.

On becoming a pilot: Lorenz received his license from Gordon Boring of the Wicker Basket Balloon Center in Wixom. It took him about a year to get it. Balloonists have to learn everything from meteorology to FAA rules and regufollows the balloon from the ground in a truck), lodging, maps, food and more. All had come to admire from a birds-eye view the 4,164-mile-long Great Wall.

On the day of the Great Wall flight, all was calm ... or so it seemed. Gorgeous blue skies beckoned the 20 eager balloonists. Kidding each other as they prepared for flight, one crew member joshed: "What are the chances of crashing and burning, Scott?"

"Not too much," Lorenz said with a smile. "Mountains? No problem. Power lines? No problem," he quipped.

"It really looked good. There was a high pressure system over us at the time," Lorenz recalls.

Think fast

But after several minutes in flight and about 4,500 feet above sea level, dangerous wind shears developed in the mountainous areas. As their American flagdraped basket drifted toward a mountainside, the former Boy Scout had to start thinking fast.

There was no question about it...we were going down," Lorenz

Gusts from the mountainside plus wind shears from the top of the mountain created the conditions that quickly caused the balloon to distort, seeming to rise and fall simultaneously.

"I decided to vent, rip out. We ripped out the top, which stops any forward momentum," he explains. "It's an emergency procedure and makes you drop straight down...fast, very fast."

Lorenz also shut off the pilot light so that once they landed there would be no ground fires. Looking at the mountainous configurations ahead of him, Lorenz realized there was no way he could get over the upcoming

"Even if I heated, heated, heated, heated...(to help accelerate and lift the balloon) there was no way," he said.

"In ballooning, we're trained for this kind of situation. A similar situation would be if you' come up upon power lines and you're eye level with them, you don't fly over them. You rip out. It's better than hitting the power lines in flight. If you do hit, you can have fires and explosions. You're dead. But you can usually survive a 100- to 200-foot hard hit on the ground," he explains.

No time for fear

But the three never lost their cool, even while descending swiftly to a rocky landing.

"There was no time for the fear factor," says Sarafa. "Mike and I were just basically doing what Scott told us to do. It was happening so fast. You have time for a prayer and that's it," he says.

"Scott was really cool, calm, working this thing.

"Mike and I were ignorant and that prevented us from being scared. If we had been afraid, we would have been hurt really

Like a sling shot, the three flew out of the basket as it collided with the ground. Eyeglasses, shoes and equipment tumbled to thick-brush areas.

"The scene was surreal. I saw the rope caught on Mike's foot and then the balloon was dragging him down the side of the mountain," says Sarafa. "He then yelled down to see if he was OK.

"I've been better," said Franchi.

Lorenz says he looked up and saw the balloon go right over his head before it drifted down through a ravine.

"It went over the side of a mountain and was gone!" he explains.

It was remarkable that their video camera, tape recorder and camera fell right at their feet, while other items scattered so far from the point of impact that they were never found.

Search ends

Searchers from a helicopter could not find the balloon. It took six people three days to locate the balloon. The recovery was completed six days later. To retrieve it, they had to cut down 112 trees and employ 50 men to build a road. (Lorenz hasn't yet been able to truly assess the balloon's damage. And he's not sure what he'll need to replace or order to repair it, if in fact it is salvageable.)

Although their jeans were ripped, the wind was knocked out of them, Franchi's forehead suffered a minor gash and all three were sore, there were no apparent major injuries.

How one of us didn't get thrown into one of the many rocks or boulders is beyond me, says Sarafa.

"They couldn't get a signal from the radio so they walked to the top of the mountain, which is home to panda bears, snakes and mountain lions. The brush was so thick that at a distance of five feet between them, they couldn't see each other.

"We'd go one step, move the branches ... and one step, move the branches," says Lorenz.

Four hours later, their interpreter, Han, and the crew from a Japanese balloon team, finally located the men. Says a thankful pilot today from his office: "It wasn't your average vacation. We were deliriously happy to get the heck off that mountain."

To register for the contest, onliners must complete a survey concerning the Web site in the MichCon Means More section of Online Pipeline before March 31, 1997. One winner will be drawn from all entries on April 7, 1997.

Garland Resort is a 3,500-acre lodge near Lewiston, Mich. The resort encompasses world-class dining in the largest log lodge east of the Mississippi, 72 holes of golf, and a northern woods atmosphere.

"We hope that through our Online Pipeline we can create a link with our customers that will allow us to better understand their expectations of an energy company and provide them with answers to their energy questions," said Steve Ewing, chief executive officer of MichCon. "Ideally, the 'ThinkLinks Contest' will encourage people to visit our site for the first time, while the information and services we provide via the site will keep them coming back."

New Educator Award

Continental Cablevision is adding two special categories in its annual Educator Award competition to include recognition of teachers who excel in the use of cable and related technologies, and who encourage student involvement in the community.

These new categories will be in addition to the company's traditional recognition for teachers who creatively and innovatively use cable television programming to enhance their students' learning experience.

The 1997 Educator Award competition is open to educators from the more than 5,000 schools nationwide that Conti-nental serves through its Cable in the Classroom program.

The Educator Award competition is open to all principals, teachers, administrators, and media specialists in Continental service areas. In this area, Continental serves Southfield, West Bloomfield, Plymouth, Canton, Westland and Dearborn Heights.

Entry forms are available at local Continental offices or by accessing the Continentals Web http://www.continental.com. The deadline for applications is Feb.

We hope these new awards will prompt entries from educators who are in the forefront of using new technologies or stressing the importance of student and school involvement in the community," said Bill Black, Continental's regional director of public affairs. "It's important to recognize those teachers who go the extra mile in making society relevant to the classroom whether it be through the use of new technology, or involvement in a community project."

Up to 16 educators, two of which will be the special category winners, will experience a three-day, all-expense paid trip to Washington, D.C., in April.

Word of Faith

The Word of Faith International Christian Center based in Redford Township in mid-October opened the Word of Faith International Web Site at http://www.wordoffaith-icc.org.

The Web site has Christian content and is designed to disseminate information to people all over the world, says Pastor Keith A. Butler, founder of the center.

The center has a local congregation size of more than 11,000 members in the greater Detroit area. With churches in Philadelphia, College Park, Ga., Jackson, Miss., Jacksonville, Grand Rapids and Phoenix, the information-oriented Web site also is used as a communication channel between the church and its communities.

The site gives information about service times, services offered, sermon notes, prayer requests, feedback to the staff, Christian schools, and ordering of books and tapes.

All about cherries

The Cherry Marketing Insti-Mich., has a new Web site at http://www.cherrymkt.org. Visitors will find recipes, menu ideas, and nutrition information. The site also offers information for supermarket retailers and their wholesalers, and materials for the media and food services.

Plymouth supplier earns industry's top quality designation

(Nasdag: SMPS) of Plymouth, recently announced that it met its target to attain QS-9000 registration at all of its facilities by year end 1996.

QS-9000 is the common supplier quality standards established by Chrysler, Ford and General Motors covering manufacturing and business process-

"All suppliers will be required to hold QS-9000 status by the end of 1997, but Simpson employees put forth the effort to reach this goal ahead of most other firms," said Roy E. Parrott, president and chief executive officer.

"We believe that meeting these standards will enhance Simpson's new business opportunities, as well as support current operations. While QS-9000 was developed by the auto manufacturers, heavy duty OEMs have also adopted the criteria, Simpson Industries, Inc., so our diesel engine business may also benefit.

> "Simpson also gained $55 million in new business awards during 1996, with a strong finish in the fourth quarter," Parrott said. "This is ahead of 1995's total and keeps us on track for our growth target. Revenues from most of this business will begin in 1998 and 1999, although some will start during 1997."

Simpson Industries supplies powertrain and chassis products to original equipment manufac-turers in the global automotive and diesel engine markets. The company's products are focused in four groups: noise, vibration and harshness; wheel-end and suspension, modular engine assemblies and high precision machined parts.

Simpson's 11 manufacturing units are located throughout the Midwest, as well as North Carolina, Ontario and Mexico.

It's Sunday.

This means no alarm clock clanging in your ear.

No grabbing a quick cup of coffee before fighting the freeway.

Sunday seems slower-paced for all of us, even if we don't have to dash out the door to work. It's a day to spend time doing what you want to do, not what you have to do.

Like discovering what's happening right where you live. And beginning Sunday February 2, you can do just that because we've moved our Monday papers to Sunday.

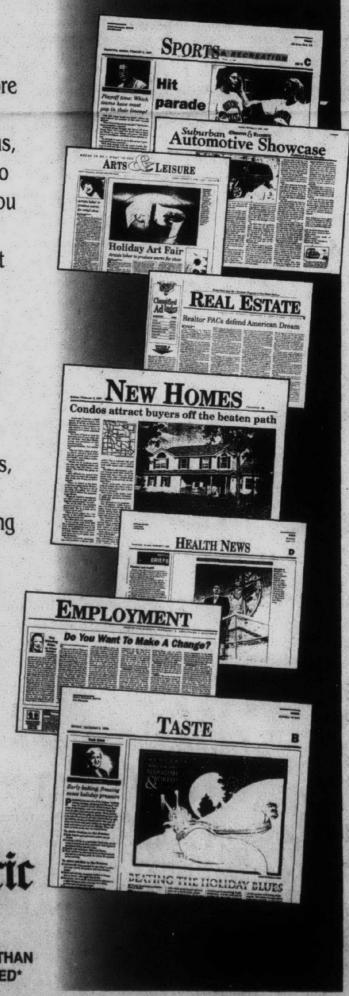

Your hometown newspaper will now be on your doorstep bright and early Sunday mornings.

It'll be filled with some familiar features. a few new ones and some that you've been used to seeing on Thursday. It'll be like sitting down and spending what they like to call "quality time" with the whole town. You'll be able to make a career change, find a new place to live, plan your leisure hours, check the sales, a whole lot more, without feeling pressed for time.

And here's another plus: on Monday morning, you'll be the one that starts the conversation with, "Did you read about..."

· With last Friday's victory against Lake Superior State, which had been tied for first in the league before the Falcons' 8-5 win, Bowling Green State had collected five wins in a row four of them against Central Collegiate Hockey Association foes

And Bob Petrie, the senior goalie from Canton, was in goal for all of them.

Petrie has been instrumental in the Falcons' turnaround. They were 8-11-2 overall (4-9-2 in the CCHA) going into their game against Ferris

Two weeks later, on Jan. 18, Petrie made 17 saves in a 5-3 non-league win over Colgate; prior to that, in consecutive starts against Western Michigan Jan. 14, Notre Dame Jan. 11 and Ferris on Jan. 4 (all three are CCHA rivals) Petrie surrendered just two goals in each game. He totaled 90 saves in the four wins. BGSU's overall record is now 13-11-2 and the Falcons'

CCHA mark is 8-9-2. For the season (before last Friday's game), Petrie is 8-5-1 with an 86.9 save percentage and a 3.55 goals-against average. BGSU is in fifth place in the CCHA.

•Wayne State's women's basketball team continues to struggle despite the efforts of local standouts. In a 60-41 Tartar win at Northwood University last Thursday, freshman center Sarah Warnke (from Plymouth Canton) collected the second double-double of her career, scoring 10 points and grabbing 11 rebounds.

Teammate Britta Anderson, a sophomore (also from Canton HS), continues to play well following a serious knee injury she suffered last season. Anderson ranks fifth in the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference in free-throw shooting, converting 23-of-27 (85.2 percent).

WSU's win over Northwood was followed by a 75-60 loss to Lake Superior State. The Tartars are 3-8 in the GLIAC, 8-11 overall.

Tickets cost $8 for adults (discounted $1 Friday for those age 50 and older), $3 for kids 6-12 and free for children 5 and under. Hours are 1-9 p.m. Friday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Salem challenges Observerland

The number of teams participating in Saturday's Sixth Annual Observerland Wrestling. Tournament is down from past years.

But the amount of teams challenging for first

But the amount of teams challenging for first place could be greater than usual.

At least three teams, and possibly a fourth, could make a bid for the championship.

Defending-champion Redford Catholic Central is strong again, but so are Livonia Stevenson and Plymouth Salem.

Wayne Memorial appears to have an outside shot, while Farmington always brings a representative squad.

After being gracious hosts the first five years, Garden City High School has given way to Salem. The wrestling begins at 9:30 a.m. with the finals scheduled for late afternoon.

Only 12 teams instead of the usual 16 have entered. The number is down because of the uncertainty surrounding the tournament, specifically the site, up until last month.

With the tournament up in the air late last fall, Livonia Franklin, Redford Thurston, Redford Union and Livonia Clarenceville already lined up appearances elsewhere.

Stevenson and CC are two-time Observerland champions, while Farmington claimed the first Salem defeated CC in a dual meet and tied Stevenson in a Western Lakes Activities Association Lakes Division match. Stevenson took sixth place at the 31st annual CC Invitational, three spots ahead of the host Shamrocks.

Stevenson carries a 9-3-1 overall record heading into today's Lakes Division showdown against Walled Lake Central and is led by seniors Katsuhiko Sueda and Nick Petryk, state qualifiers as juniors.

Sueda, a 103-pounder, is 25-4 with a first place finish at the Salem Invitational and secondary and such places. onds at CC and Garden City. Petryk, 26-3 at 145 and 152, has championships at the Trenton; CC, Garden City and Salem under his belt.

Chiefs roll past Rocks

BY C.J. RISAK SPORTS EDITOR

Never doubt the will of a champion.

That's the title Plymouth Canton's basketball team still holds - defending Western Lakes Activities Association champ. And Tuesday, the Chiefs showed they don't plan to surrender it without a battle Plymouth Salem made the short, icy walk between schools to Canton Tuesday, bringing with it a confidence assumed by league leaders. Which the Rocks had been until losing to Walled Lake Central last Friday.

The Chiefs, meantime, had been struggling, losing two of their first five WLAA games.

But this night belonged to the champs. Canton scored the first eight points of the second quarter, and Salem never got within a basket of the lead after that in losing 62-47.

"We were terrible," said Salem coach Bob Brodie, his team falling to 9-3 overall, 4-2 in the WLAA. "But a lot of that had to do with Canton. They played really well - they outplayed us in every phase of the game. "They just whupped us."

The Rocks never did find their rhythym. After a back-and-forth first quarter, the Chiefs took the lead — as it turned out, for good — with 39 seconds left when Joe Cortellini drained his second three-pointer of the quarter (he had three threes in the first half).

It was 14-13 entering the second period. It took Salem nearly 5 1/2 minutes to score in that period, a stretch during which the Rocks were 0-for-6 from the floor.

By that time, Canton was up 22-13. Salem did manage to narrow the gap to five a couple of times, but Rob Johnson's three-point play with 24 seconds left in the half gave the Chiefs a 27-19 advantage at the break.

In the first two minutes of the second half, the Rocks twice got to within four points of Canton, thanks to two baskets by Jeff McKian. But they never got closer

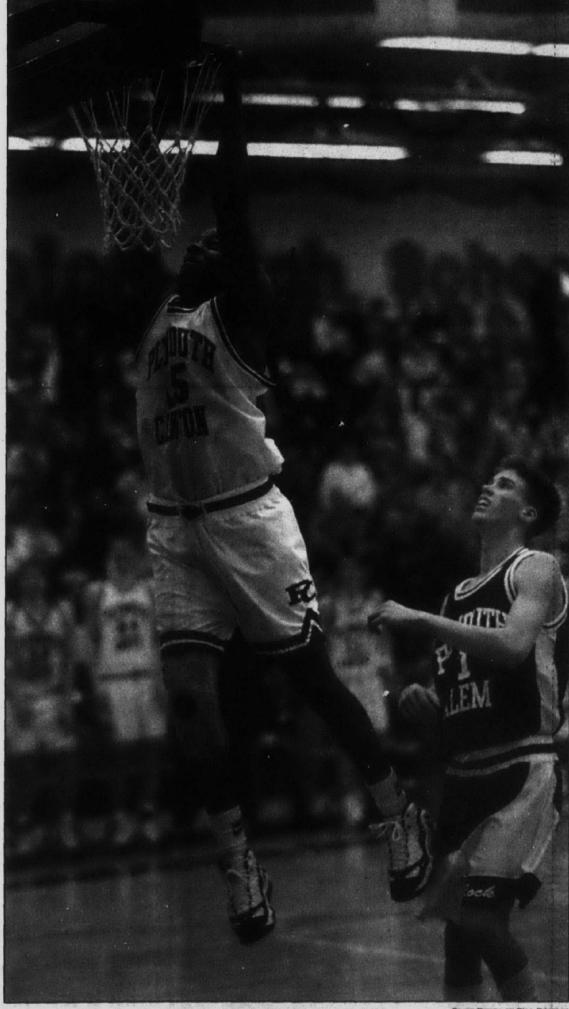

Canton's Nick Hurley scored eight points in the quarter, and the Chiefs boosted their lead to 41-31. The fourth quarter was similar, with Salemmake a short, belated run that was too short (drawing the Rocks to within seven) - and too

Hurley's 21 points, including 7-of-7 on free throws, with four assists and two steals topped Canton. Johnson contributed 18 points, seven rebounds and four assists, and Cortellini had 11

For Salem, McKian and Andres Lopez each netted 14 points - Lopez getting 12 of his in the final quarter after a scoreless first half. They also had six rebounds apiece, with Lopez getting two steals. Andy Power had eight points and four

"I thought we were pretty solid defensively tonight," said Canton coach Dan Young, his team now 8-4 overall and, like Salem, 4-2 in the WLAA.

See BASKETBALL, C2

Exclamation point: Rob Johnson puts the final, significant touch on Canton's resounding win over Salem Tuesday, and there's not much the Rocks' Jeff McKian (right) can do to stop it.

Salem moves a step closer to another WLAA title

The Plymouth Salem volleyball team's chances of winning its fourth consecutive Western Lakes Activities Association regular season title is looking very promising.

The major leap in optimism came Monday when the Rocks passed their biggest challenge of the league season so far, beating host Livonia Stevenson, 15-13, 12-15, 15-5, 15-13.

Salem, now 24-4 overall and 5-0 in the conference, also kept its regular season WLAA unbeaten streak intact at 39 straight matches.

The loss drops the Spartans to 18-3-3 overall and 4-1 in the Western

The Rocks let an 11-3 lead in the first game slip away before getting their rhythm back in the second game, according to Salem assistant coach Allie Suffety. "The big difference in the last two games was our intensity," Suffety said. "The inexperience on this team is reason for the wavering intensity. Sometimes, we may lose our focus."

Leading the Salem attack was Amanda Abraham, who recorded 18 kills and six solo blocks. Angie Sillmon and Jenny Trott added 12 and 10 kills, respectively. Trott also had five aces The front line was dominating," Suffety said. "They are a big part of

The Rocks also received strong games from their setters as Kari

Flynn collected 21 assist in 56 attempts and sophomore Laine Sterling had 26 assists in 63 attempts.

Top Stevenson performances were turned in by Kelly Kristy (17 kills), Gina Palmeri (11 kills), Whitney Crosby (eight kills/14 digs), Lindsay Pfeifer (seven kills/14 digs), Beth Pinneo (11 digs) and Stacey Nastase (17 of 19 serving) Senior setter Nicole Tobin had 39 assist-to-kills.

Rocks splash past Dearborn

With a big week ahead, the Plymouth Salem swim team made quick work of Dearborn on Tuesday, 65-29.

The visiting Rocks won all but two events in the non-league meet which featured only two entries per team in each event.

"We did what we had to do," Salem coach Chuck Olson said. "We won and got to come home and get some rest for the remainder of the week

The rest will come in handy for the Rocks, who face Farmington today and then compete in a double-dual meet Saturday against Livonia Stevenson and Ann Arbor Pioneer. the second-ranked team in the state.

Against Dearborn, the usual impressive list of swimmers stood out. Tim Buchanan perhaps had the best meet, recording a personal best time of 55.93 in winning the 100yard butterfly.

Buchanan also swam on the winning 200 medley relay team with Brent Mellis. Andrew Locke and Kyle Petroskey (1:47.44) and he helped Nick Corden, Mark Dettling and Petroskey win the 400 freestyle relay Locke, Petroskey, Dettling and Kevin Dorogi made it a Salem sweep in the relays by winning the 200 freestyle relay (1:35.29).

Individual winners for Salem included: Dettling in the 200 freestyle (1:52.50), Petroskey in the 200 individual medley (2:12.10), Locke in the 50 freestyle (23.73), Corden in the 100 freestyle (51.71) and Luke Woodcock in the 100 backstroke (1:01.41).

Canton evens mark

Plymouth Canton's depth was too much for Livonia Stevenson Tuesday, as the Chiefs collected a 106-80 victory at Canton.

The win evened Canton's dual-meet record

"It was a good meet," said Chiefs' coach Kyle Lott. "(Stevenson) swam real well and we swam well. I knew they'd be tough in spots - they've got a few good swimmers and they came in and swam real well. (The difference) was our depth.

Indeed it was. Canton managed just four first-place finishes out of 12 events, but the Chiefs collected 11 of the 12 seconds Winners for Canton were Dave Schacht in the 200-yard freestyle (1:54.19), Rob Brooks in diving (231 points), Matt Heiss in the 100 breaststroke (1:06.83) and the 200 free relay team of Jason Musson, Schacht, Alex Rottgers and Curtis Hornick (1:37.36).

Individual seconds for the Chiefs went to Hornick in the 200 free (1:57.42); Rottgers in the 200 individual medley (2:06.34); Don LeClair in the 50 free (23.77); Matt Desmaris in diving; Schacht in the 100 free (53.38);

Hornick in the 500 free (5:14.07); Aaron Reeder in the 100 backstroke (1:01.42); and Scott Mincher in the 100 breast (1:10.52).

In the 200 medley relay, Canton's Justin Allen, Heiss, Pat Krause and LeClair were second (1:47.18); in the 200 free relay, it was Adam Allen, John Cook, Krause and B.J. Page who were runners-up (1:39.39); and in the 400 free relay, Schacht, Musson, Rottgers and LeClair took second (3:34.49).

Canton hosts Northville in a key WLAA Western Division dual meet at 7 p.m.

Last Saturday, the Chiefs competed in the six-team Monroe Invitational and finished third. Milan, a power in Class B, was first, followed by Erie Mason and Canton, with host Monroe fourth, Monroe Jefferson fifth and Adrian sixth.

'We looked a little bit tired, a little beat." said Lott. "This meet really didn't show us a lot. But after the good, long week of training we had, I wasn't disappointed. I was sort of expecting it.'

One Canton swimmer who hardly looked tired was Rottgers. He won two events, finishing first in the 200-yard individual medley (2:08.17) and in the 500 freestyle (5:07.61).

Next best finishes for Canton came from LeClair in the 50 free, a third (23.73); and from LeClair, Hornick, Musson and Rottgers in the 400 free relay, another third (3:35.28).

Whaler streak reaches 5

Good defense and a rejuvenated offense sounds like the ingredients for a winning streak. Which is just what the Detroit Whalers have used them for. The Whalers extended their unbeaten streak to five games last week by beating Windsor 6-2 Thursday; tying Erie 5-5 Friday; and defeating Erie 4-2 Saturday.

For his part in the streak, Harold Druken - playing his first year in the Ontario Hockey League — was named OHL player of the week. Druken had four goals and five assists in the three games.

He is the second Whaler to earn the honor. Goalie Robert Esche collected the same honor the previous week.

Druken had one of the goals (and an assist) in Saturday's 4-2 win over the Otters; Andrew Taylor had the other three, including two in the third period that broke a 2-2 tie.

Esche made 22 saves in collecting the win.

On Friday, Detroit trailed 5-2 early in the final period before rallying to salvage a tie. Erie's Steve Nimigon and Chris Haskett each scored their second goals of the game early in the third period to give the Otters that advantage.

But the Whalers fought back. getting two third-period goals from Bryan McKinney and a goal and an assist from Druken to earn the tie. Druken finished the game with a goal and three assists; Sergei Fedotov and Taylor also got goals, Taylor adding an assist, and Jan Vodrazka had two assists.

Esche played into the third period before going to the bench, having made 17 saves. Nathan West replaced him.

In the win over Windsor, Detroit started a bit slow but was rolling along rapidly by the final period. Druken led the 6-2 onslaught with two goals and an assist; Taylor had a goal and an assist; Mark Cadotte had a goal; and both Fedotov and McKinney scored goals. Randy Fitzgerald contributed two assists.

The Whalers take their streak on the road this weekend, traveling to meet the Belleville Bulls Friday and the Oshawa Generals Saturday.

Said Stevenson coach Kelly Graham: "Mental breakdowns got us. They'd be playing consistently and then make a dumb mistake, and Salem took advanand 60 assists to kills.

Salem's next big test will be Feb. 10 when they face Plymouth Canton.

Chiefs place 3rd

Plymouth Canton breezed through its pool at last Saturday's University of Michigan-Dearborn Invitational, winning all three two-game matches without losing a set.

But as tournaments tend to do. the competition got progressively more difficult. Canton got through the first two rounds of the playoffs to reach the tourney semifinals, but that's as far as the Chiefs could get: They were eliminated by Birmingham Seaholm, 15-13, 15-10.

Canton's 5-1 match mark for the day boosted its record to 22-

Jessica Orleman and Nikki

Kovachevich were named to the all-tournament team. Orleman totaled 52 kills, 48 digs, 11 service aces and nine blocks: Kovachevich had 37 digs, 17 aces

Other Canton standouts were Donna Logsdon, 21 kills and 26 digs; Stephanie Chefan, 44 kills; Courtney Wells, 47 assists to kills; Jenny Sikora, 32 digs and 12 aces; Brandi Bernard, 25 digs; and Amy Plagens, 17 kills and 10 aces

In pool play, the Chiefs topped Napolean 15-7, 15-6; Detroit Renaissance 15-1, 15-4; and Wyandotte Roosevelt 17-15, 17-15. That put Canton up against Ypsilanti in the playoff's opening round, and the Chiefs prevailed 15-1, 15-5.

Next up was a strong Troy Athens team, which had just eliminated state-ranked Port Huron Northern in a previous round. The Chiefs stopped Athens, 16-14, 11-15, 15-10 to advance to the semis opposite Seaholm

Madonna can't keep pace

For a half, Madonna University's women's basketball team was able to make a game of it. After that, things got ugly.

The Lady Crusaders were nearly even with Grand Valley State at halftime Tuesday in Grand Rapids, trailing 37-34. Then their shooting deteriorated (they made 10-of-40 second-half shots, or 25 percent) and so did everything else in an 86-68 mauling.

The loss left Madonna with an 8-12 record. The Lakers are 7-11.

For Madonna, Katie Cushman had 19 points and two steals. Dawn Pelc added 11 points, six steals and four assists, and Mary Murray finished with 10 points and eight rebounds.

The Lakers were led by Mary Randall with 28 points and 10 rebounds. Amy Rehmann added 13 points and Melissa Stahl scored 10.

At Henry Ford CC Saturday, the Ocelots fell behind early they trailed 46-29 a the half and never regained much ground in losing their fifth-straight in Eastern Conference play.

Five players reached double figures in scoring for SC, but there were only eight players available. Tymon Marshall's 18 points was best. Dwaun Warmack had 16 points, Rudy Hatfield scored 15, and Bruce Goode and Naron Burks added 10 apiece.

Henry Ford got 25 points from Jerome Turner and 24 from Cy Baker.

SC was never able to get closer than 14 in the second half, falling to 2-5 in the Eastern Conference and 5-14 overall.

The Roughriders led 20-18 after one quarter and 35-18 at the half. Robert Jones' 25 points was best for Roeper; Josh McConn had 12 and Kevin Watkins scored 10.

The Eagles were led by Mark Hovermale with 12 points and nine rebounds. Next best was Nick Brandon with seven points.

Churchill shocks Stevenson; Northville jolts Glenn

Hard work and patience paid off for Livonia Churchill. Finally.

First-year coach Rick Austin's Churchill team recorded its first boys basketball victory of the season Tuesday night, tripping Livonia Stevenson, 48-47.

Sean Woloszyn scored 19 points and had five rebounds and Matt Van Buren hauled down 14 rebounds to help the Chargers end their season-long 10-game losing streak.

Churchill is now 1-10 overall, 1-5 in the Western Lakes Activities Association. Rival Stevenson is now 5-5 overall, 3-3 in the league.

Matt Buzewski scored eight points, Kevin Renaud six and Justin Mattison backed Van Buren on the boards with eight rebounds and never let him get a good, square look at the basket.

The Spartans didn't get a player in double figures. Tyrone Davidson led the way with nine points, Mike Voutsinas scored eight and Mike Potempa contributed seven.

Churchill sank 12-of-20 free throws while Stevenson hurt itself by missing 13-of-18, including a pair with two seconds left.

W.L. Central 73, Franklin 67 (OT): Junior guard Todd Negoshain's 32 points did the big damage for Central, offsetting a career best 35-point game by the Patriots' 6-foot-8 Matt Bauman.

It was Bauman's triple with two seconds to play in regulation that tied the score at 54 and forced the extra period.

But the Patriots surrendered some easy hoops in the overtime, were forced to foul and saw the Vikings make 10-of-15 free throws to stay safely in com-

Franklin saw five players foul out and as a result watched Central bang home 28-of-44 foul shots. The Patriots made 21-of-Bauman's 35 points included three triples and he also got 11 rebounds. Nick Mongeau scored 11, including three triples, and contributed six rebounds, six assists and three steals.

Franklin is now 4-6 overall, 2-4 in the WLAA while Walled Lake Central improved to 8-3 overall, 5-1 in the WLAA.

Northville 66, John Glenn 56: Northville overcame a 32-30 halftime deficit to win going Dave Terakedis scored 21 points, 10 of them on free throws, and picked up the slack after Jeff Arenz cooled off. Arenz scored 16 og his game-best 23 points in the first half.

Turnovers and mistakes plagued the visiting Rockets and conributed to their losing for the first time in six WLAA outings. John Glenn is 6-5 overall. Northville is 7-5 overall, 3-3 in the league.

Freshman Eric Jones scored 17 points, David Jarrett 15 and Brad Wilde 10 for John Glenn. The Rockets made 12-of-17 free throws while the Mustangs were sinking 15-of-20.

Northville outscored John Glenn 16-10 in the third quarter and 20-14 in the fourth to erase the halftime deficit.

U-D Jesuit 78, Redford CC 70:

U-D outscored CC 8-0 in the second overtime, scoring all eight of its points at the free throw line

The Shamrocks trailed 30-21 at halftime, but rallied behind the hot shooting of senior guard Marc McDonald to tie the score at the end of regulation at 61. McDonald scored 25 of his teamhigh 27 points after halftime, including all four of his threepoint shots.

Senior forward Jason Alexander had 14 of his game-high 35 points in the fourth quarter for U-D. Senior guard Cliff Austin added 14 points.

U-D scored on a layup with about two seconds left at the end of regulation to force the first overtime. The Shamrocks led by five in the first overtime but a three-point play and a turnover helped the Cubs earn a 70-70 tie and a second overtime. Junior forward Chris Young scored 10 of his 16 points in the first quarter for CC. Teammates Matt Martinez (two three-pointers) and Nick Moore added 10 and eight points, respectively. U-D made two free throws after a blocking foul was called on CC early in the second OT, and the Shamrocks never recov-

The Shamrocks are 7-4 overall, 5-2 in the Catholic League Cens tral Division with three division games remaining. U-D, which has lost several close games, improved to 2-5 in the Central.

MEDICAL

Ailments and geography

Men and women with the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) have a higher incidence of tuberculosis if they live in the eastern United States or test positive for mumps, say researchers at Henry Ford Hospital.

According to scientists quoted in the "Annals of Internal Medicine," patients in the eastern United States are at an increased risk for tuberculosis (TB) especially if they had low levels of CD4 cells, which indicate the general health of an individual's immune system.

"This study gives us some key indicators that could help physicians develop strategies to prevent tuberculosis infection or halt disease outbreak once infection has occurred," said one of the study's principal investigators, Dr. Paul Kvale, M.D., a senior staff physician in pulmonary and critical care medicine at Henry Ford Hospital

"Since HIV-infected patients are at a 50-to-200 times greater risk of contracting tuberculosis, the findings can help attack a very real threat in the fight against AIDS," Kvale said.

Researchers in the multi-center study examined 1,130 HIV-positive patients in six major cities throughout the country from 1988-94. Of the 31 study participants diagnosed with TB, nearly 25 percent died from the disease.

"Because TB is an infectious disease that can rapidly progress and lead to death, any finding regarding risk or prevention is significant," said

TB is an opportunistic, air-borne disease that is highly contagious. Its symptoms usually include fever, night sweats, difficulty in breathing and a deep, hacking cough. It also can originate in organs rather than the lungs.

Successful transplant

Dec. 19, 1996, was an important day for staff at the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor as a 5-year-old boy became the first in the state to receive a bone marrow transplant for sickle cell anemia. He left the hospital Jan. 18 free of the sickle cell disease with a whole new, fully functioning blood system.

Like most sickle cell sufferers, the U-M transplant recipient, Luke DeBoer, is African American. His identity had remained confidential until just recently at the request of his adoptive parents, Mark and Janet DeBoer of Zeeland. He suffered from a severe form of the disease; a marrow transplant was his only hope of survival.

The success of the boy's transplant, in which marrow was donated from a tissue-matching sibling, depended on whether his new marrow would produce normal blood cells - a process that began several weeks after transplantation. His chance of cure was good; according to national statistics, the risk of tissue rejection is less than 20 percent for those who remove from a compatible brother and sister.

While the majority of such transplants have been performed in Europe, the U-M joins about 15 centers nationwide that now offer the procedure, which boasts a cure rate of nearly 90 percent. Only about 60 patients worldwide have undergone the treatment, including some two dozen in the United States

"The transplant worked; the disease will never come back," said John E. Levine, the patient's physician. "In essence, it was like replacing the engine of a car - we've given him a whole new blood system.

Before receiving the transplant, the boy's own marrow was destroyed during an eight-day course of chemotherapy. After giving his body a day to rest to allow the drugs to clear his system, he received a 5-ounce intravenous infusion of donor marrow. The procedure took about 30 min-

DOES IT WORK?

NONI JUICE has people talking

BY LAURIE HUMPHREY STAFF WRITER

he word about Tahitian Noni juice is spreading through the health food market and the world of alternative medicine like wildfire. Yet traditional doctors are still in the dark when it comes to the Noni plant extract.

"I can't find anyone who knows enough about Noni juice," said Bridget Gosine, community relations manager for Botsford General Hospital in Farmington Hills, when asked if she could find a doctor willing to be interviewed. Furthermore, of those physicians who have heard about Noni, none could answer questions about its effect on the body.

Bill Pike of Canton Township hopes Noni will soon be a household name.

Pike and his wife, Dee, are distributors of Noni juice, offered exclusively through Morinda Inc. in Utah. They December so that they could purchase the drink for themselves at $35 a quart versus

"I've been taking it since last November," said Pike. "(And) I have had some of the most miraculous things take place."

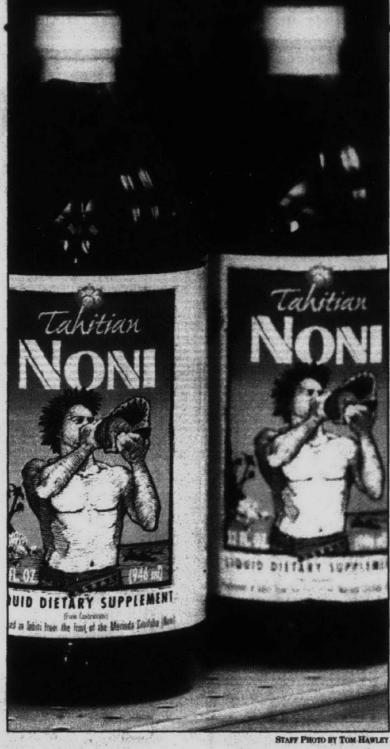

A friend introduced Pike to Noni juice, hoping that it might relieve some side effects of Pike's daily medication. Pike swears the juice was successful.

"I feel 25 years younger," said the automotive engineer. Pike said he no longer experiences short-term memory loss or mental confusion due to medication prescribed for a chemical imbalance in his body

"But I'm not going to start tampering with my medication" just because of the juice, he emphasized. "And we're not going to stop going to doctors."

Pike's wife, who has arthritis, is also drinking Noni. Yet, her successes are not as great, he

"She has just had less pain." Yet, he hopes that her symptoms will decrease as she continues to drink Noni. "It's possible she hasn't taken it long enough."

Depending on their dosage, one quart will last between two and four weeks. According to Pike, most people drink about 2 ounces each day.

More support

Clara Adams also supports Tahitian Noni juice.

"I've been drinking it for two months," said the owner of Zerbo's Health Food store at 34164 Plymouth Road, between Farmington and Wayne roads in Livonia. "I like the way I feel after drinking it."

Adams, believing the juice is good for combating foreign matter in the body, calls the drink a cleanser.

"A lot of times, the immune system is damaged" from parasites, viruses, bacteria, fungus or toxic effects of metals. "People don't realize it because they can still function," she said.

She believes Noni rids the body of these problems by strengthening the body's immune system to fight off the foreign matter.

Pike said Noni juice is "kind of a potluck. If you take it, it'll work on something.

"The juice really doesn't do anything," admitted Pike, "except aid the body's immune system to handle whatever it needs to handle." As a result, Noni juice is not considered a drug by the Federal Drug and Administration (FDA) guidelines. The juice is. however, FDA-approved as a food, and it has been said to help people suffering from: stomach ulcers, asthma, tuberculosis, the flu, coughs and sore throat, toothaches, abrasions, diabetes, high blood pressure, tumors, broken bones and menstrual cramps, just to name a Adams also believes it helps reduce the effects of aging.

"I don't know of anything else out there that's close to this, said Pike. "Nothing man-made is added," just a little blackberry juice and grape juice to sweeten the naturally tart tasting fruit.

Not everyone is boasting Noni's positive qualities howev-

An employee at Sinnett Holistic Center in Livonia explained how a local Noni distributor brought in a bottle for the center's owner, Kathy Sinnett, to use or pass on. The trial sample was passed on to a customer.

"She said she didn't see any difference," said the employee about the customer, "but it could have been that she hadn't taken it long enough."

chiropractor, not only uses Noni, he also recommends it for his patients.

"It's helping people with so many conditions," said Mar-coux, citing headaches, blood pressure, arthritis and more.

In two months, Marcoux has gone through 500 bottles of Noni juice. Although, he admits he has used several hundred himself.

He was drawn to Noni as a last alternative to severe carpal tunnel pain.

"My whole life was coming before me," said the doctor, whose livelihood depends on the ability to apply pressure to his patients joints in quick, continuous motions. "I was really afraid what I was going to do" if I could no longer work.

When a friend from church approached him about the Noni, "I was in pain, and I figured I'd try anything."

"You're talking about a night and day difference," he said in terms of how he felt after drink-

"I took it on 10 a.m. Tuesday morning, within a day, I could tell a difference. Within three days, the pain was totally gone." He sells the drink, from his 15825 Middlebelt practice, to patients for about $47.

Noni facts

The drink is harvested and processed in Tahiti, then bottled in California (in glass so that there are no elements of plastic which get in the drink.) It can only be purchased through a distributor, by calling a toll-free number, or at select health food stores. Even then, health food stores which carry it keep it in the back so customers must approach store employees.

To purchase Noni, call Pike at (313) 454-7668, call 1-800-445-2969, visit Marcoux Chiropractic or visit Zerbo's, where Noni retails for $42. To hear more about the positive effects of Noni or to become a distributor, call 1-888-733-0335 toll-free and hear testimonials gathered by

Striving to be thin

Eating disorders afflict many younger women

Jennifer is a successful career woman. Her appearance is meticulous, although she doesn't think so. Her life is the envy of many, but she has a secret. Jennifer is bulimic and uses laxatives and purging to "stay in shape." She is not alone.

Feb. 3-9 is National Eating Disorders Awareness Week. Eating disorders are more prevalent than is generally believed and many suffer in silence and with a high degree of shame. These disorders are most common in developed countries where thin body ideals are valued.

The consequences of eating disorders can be severe, with one in 10 cases leading to death from starvation, cardiac arrest or suicide. Fortunately, increasing awareness of these dangers, sparked by extensive media coverage, has led many people to seek help. Although some patients with eating disorders have substantial medical problems as a result of their eating behavior and require hospitalization, most patients can be treated on an outpatient basis.

Scientists have studied the causes of these disorders and seem to suggest that a variety of factors can contribute to them. In some cases, low self-esteem, the tendency toward perfection or the inability to handle stress and anxiety may be involved. Both biochemistry and genetic factors may also be associated with these disorders. Overall, it's a matter of perception: how a person sees herself.

"Food is not the problem, therefore dieting is not the solution," said Lenore Baumann, licensed professional counselor and head of the Center for Eating Disorders Treatment at Gar-

Beyond the binging and purging behavior, there is embarrassment, guilt and remorse over eating habits. And, contrary to popular belief, current research shows that eating disorders are not necessarily caused by inappropriate parenting.

"If I had one goal for this week," said Baumann, "it would be to help people to understand that it's perception that's the problem. The sooner the patient and family realize this, the easier recovery will be. There's no place in treatment for guilt and remorse; only for a change in thinking, perception and behav-

Baumann is a well-known speaker on this topic. She has extensive experience in the treatment of eating disorders. She claims that a combination of individual and group counseling that is "solution-focused" is the key to recovery. "The group experience helps dispel the shame and provide mutual support for these clients," she said.

Overeaters Anonymous uses a similar strategy. The approach of OA is parallel to the more familiar steps of Alcoholics Anonymous.

Some people find the support of self-help groups like OA a valuable adjunct to formal counseling. Joanne, a member of OA, says that "OA provides a way people can share their similar problems, recognizing that they are not alone. It can help eliminate feelings of isolation, so common with this disorder."

east announced two executive appointments. Dr. Ross Kazer, M.D., has joined the health insurer as associate medical director of utilization management, and Jodie L. Root comes aboard as director of network management.

Kazer joins Dr. Michael Stevens, M.D., senior medical director, and Dr. Gregory Gilmet, M.D., associate medical director of quality management, to provide physician leadership to BCNSEM. Kazer comes to BCNSEM from the Allina Health System in Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn., where he was associate medical director of a teaching clinic with responsibilities in clinical care, quality assurance and utilization management. He also did consulting in utilization management for the managed care industry.

Kazer is board-certified in internal medicine, preventive medicine and public health. His background includes both general internal medicine and emergency medicine with substantial experience in managed care. He lives in West Bloomfield.

TAXING SITUATIONS

As tax time approaches, it may be interesting to see how it was that the federal government became entitled to collect our hard-earned money. The income tax originated at the time of the Civil War when Abraham Lincoln came to Congress looking for a way to finance the war effort. The first tax act was thus enacted in 1862, and lasted until 1872. The second income ax law was struck down by the Supreme Court, and the Sixteenth Amendment of the constitution provided today's basic law. The rate stood at just one percent for all prations and individuals in 1913. Even few paid any tax at all because the dard exemption was $3,000 for single iduals and $4,000 for married couples, hardly anyone earned that much. Only put of every 271 Americans paid any ne tax that first year.

"Important event": The Charlie Haden Quartet West along with the Joe Henderson Trio and the Kansas City All-Stars perform as part of The Verve JazzFest 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 30, at the Michigan Theater in Ann Arbor.

he Verve JazzFest featuring perfor-Henderson Trio, Charlie Haden Quartet West and The Kansas City All-Star Band could be called the Lollapalooza of the jazz world. "That's exactly the vibe we're going for - that energetic, youthful and relevant vibe.

The musicians are crazy, going screaming and jumping up and down," said Steven Bernstein, trumpeter and musical director for The Kansas City All-Star Band. The band was heard on the Verve soundtrack from the Robert Altman film "Kansas City." The Verve JazzFest, a benefit for the Michigan Theater and The Ann Arbor Blues and Jazz Festival, comes to the Michigan Theater, 603 Liberty, Ann Arbor, at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 30, call (810) 645-6666. The net proceeds after all expenses will be split between the theater and the festival, according to Dave Clark of Prism Productions, which is producing the event.

"We're hoping that the lineup is making it one of the most important jazz shows of the year. I'm hoping that it is going to do at least 1,000 people. That should mean a couple thousand dollars per organization," Clark said.

Bernstein agreed with the importance of The Verve JazzFest. Working with The Kansas City All-Star band is a "once in a life-time situation." Besides Bernstein, his band includes guitarist Mark Whitfield, trumpeter Nicholas Payton, bassist Christian McBride, vocalist Kevin Mahogany, clarinetist Don Byron, tenor Craig Handy, pianist Alan Broadbent, trombonist Curtis Fowlkes, alto players David Newman and Jesse Davis, trumpeter James Zollar, and drummer Alvin Queen.

The Kansas City All-Stars has become a two-year obsession for Bernstein. Besides his work on the tour, Bernstein was the arranger for the movie which, he said, "seemed impossible at the

"The original concept was for people to play the music without charts but that didn't work. There would be situations where I'd be up until 5 in the morning writing charts. I'd sleep for a few hours, rehearse with the band and then when they were recording I slept. It changed my life. For the past two years, I've been living this Kansas City stuff."

"I became so obsessed with the music that I just couldn't stop listening to it. I went to flea markets scouring old records. When you're a musician, you're obsessed with music anyway. But this specific period and the 10 years that surrounds it is just my obsession."

Since the movie, Bernstein has played a handful of shows with the band. When band members are replaced due to prior commitments, Bernstein has to rewrite

Women do Shakespeare

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO STAFF WRITER

The way Yolanda Fleischer looks at it, "the greatest words in literature are spoken for the most part by men."

She and a group of Detroit-area women wanted to be able to speak these words so they created the Detroit Women's Shakespeare Project.

"All of the women wanted to perform Shakespeare. That's a given," said Fleischer, the director and a West Bloomfield resident. "The greatest words in literature are spoken for the most part by men - not to say that Shakespeare didn't write some wonderful women's roles. But we are looking at plays like any of the histories and most of the tragedies, and the roles are men's roles. We wanted a chance in our lifetime to speak these roles."

Co-founder Mary Locker, an area casting agent, added that this isn't an anti-man project.

"We have feminine — not feminist — sensibilities. The idea of all women doing Shakespeare isn't a kind of manifesto. We'd like to own these great words and to be able to find the truth in them and the emotions in them."

The Fifth" by William Shakespeare, weekends Friday, Jan: 31 to Sunday, Feb. 9, at The Commons Theatre at Roeper School's Birmingham campus on Adams two blocks north of Maple. Show times are 8 p.m. Fridays, Jan. 31, and Feb. 7, and Saturday, Feb. 8; 3 p.m. and 8 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 1; and 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 9. The suggested donation is $10. For more information, call (313) 885-1842.

The company's first offering is "The Life of Henry V," which will be performed weekends Friday, Jan. 31-Sunday, Feb. 9, at the Commons Theatre at Roeper School on Adams north of Maple in Birmingham. Kate McGill, a local resident who spends her summers as the artistic director of Oklahoma Shakespeare in the Park, stars in some of the parts.

Fleischer stressed that the company - one of three women's Shakespeare groups in the United States – is not a group of women trying to act like men. She used a clip of the Los Angeles Women's Shakespeare Project on CNN Journal Graphics web page as research.

Bernstein has played with a variety of artists ranging from punk rock to R&B including They Might Be Giants, The Temptations, Digable Planets, and Jim Thirlwell (Foetus) whom he met through his friends Shudder to Think.

"I spent a lot of time working in that world. One of the things that hit me was how much of that the jazz world doesn't tap into. This is the kind of project that can really cross over. This music has so much relevance to everyday lives."

To me, the music has to serve the audience. If the audience doesn't get it, it's not their fault. Something in the music isn't moving them.

Members of The Kansas City All-Stars were in diapers when tenor saxophonist Joe Henderson, and bassist and composer Charlie Haden started

Henderson has been rewarded with three Grammy Awards and two No. 1 albums on Billboard magazine's Jazz Charts for "Lush Life" and "So Near, So Far." He will be touring with bassist George Mraz and drummer Al Foster. The tenor's most recent recording on Verve is the "Joe Henderson Big Band," released in October. His first big band recording was 30 years in the making.

Haden's dedication to his career has translated into increasingly popular recordings and a growing list of awards, including two Grammy nominations for his 1995 duet album with pianist Hank Jones, "Steal Away." Haden's quartet, which has been nominated for three Grammys, recently marked its 10th anniversary with the release of "Now is the Hour."

Haden's upcoming releases include a duet recording with Pat Metheny, "Beyond the Missouri Sky: (Short Stories) By Charlie Haden and Pat Metheny" due out Feb. 25, and a second album with Ginger Baker that features guitarists Bill Frisell and Jerry Hahn, and banjo picker Bela Fleck

Although he's collected a tremendous amount of popularity, Haden is hoping that the Verve JazzFest will open up jazz to new crowds.

"It's good just for that reason to be able to do a tour of large cities whether it's in a nice theater or a university auditorium for people to hear the music that wouldn't normally be exposed to it," said Haden, who appears on Beck's latest album "Odelay."

"If you play at a jazz club, not that many people can come. I don't like to play in jazz clubs anymore. I believe in elevating jazz to the elegance that it should have like classical music has. Pavarotti wouldn't sing in a jazz club. I think jazz deserves a lot better. I'm glad this tour's happening."

"We wanted to make sure that we were not women imitating men doing men's roles. We're who are performing roles. We're trying to cut out that middle step.

women at the Los Angeles combe manly - not to say that some of our women are. But the company runs the gamut of physical types and types of people. That's what we're focusing

By watching rehearsals, she said, there's certainly no lack of emotion. "The Life of Henry The Fifth" translates just as well with women in all the roles.

"There are very tender moments that have brought tears to my eyes and lumps to my throat in this play that have never happened before. These actors have found the moments that touch each other. It's not that it's different, I think our particular sensibilities focus on some of the stuff," Fleischer said.

Locker recalls an eight-line exchange that she has as the governor with McGill's Henry.

"She gives this phenomenal speech where she talks about what will happen if I don't cede to them now; if I don't open the gates now. What she's threatening is not nice at all. It's really powerful and she makes me angry. She scares the absolute bejesus out of me and she makes me sad because I have to let go of my whole town. It's just a human thing."

Detroit Women's The Shakespeare Project - founded by Fleischer, McGill, Cynthia Blaise, Pat Ansuini, Melinda Pacha, Margaret Thomas, and Locker - was a year in the making. In the beginning, it was Fleischer's belief that the group would perform scenes from Shakespeare's plays.

"I thought we were going to be doing scenes so I go to the meeting at Margaret's house and I walk in with all my scenes chosen. They said 'We don't think we should do scenes. We should do a whole play.' I thought it was a little tight on time, but they didn't think that was going to be much of a problem."

The members canvassed the theater community and Locker said the response was "phenomenal.' "We had 75 women that ca out of the woodwork, all of them quite knowledgeable about Shakespeare one way or another and everyone (was) good. There were varying degrees, of course, because there's varying degrees of skill in anything. But nobody embarrassed themselves. We didn't have one of those auditions where there were people who really loved to do it but just don't understand the concept," Locker said.

To start the project, the group was given a workshop waiver by Actor's Equity, the union that represents the performers. That means that all the actors are working for no pay, Locker explained.

We cannot charge, but we can suggest a donation but we can not charge for the production. Our next step must be to find someone who will fund us - corporations that want to underwrite productions, women's groups that would like to put in some sponsorship money because the next production to do must be fully funded, and we must pay according to equity contract. That will take many many, many tens of thousands of dollars."

Some of the women who are participating are stepping outside of their boundaries to try out other aspects of theater. Maureen McDevitt, whom Locker calls "one of the best actresses in the city," is responsible for the costumes.

"She has an imaginative eye. She can look at things that you and I will toss out and say, 'Oh, that'll make a wonderful foo-foo for the king of France.' She went into this store Rave, it's a teenybopper store, and she bought these little leather skirts. She couldn't explain what she was going to do. But she answered the door in her little outfit and she looked exactly like an Elizabethan page. ... She said it's kind of making a statement about what we're about, too. We're looking at Shakespeare with a different eye than what usually looks at Shakespeare

"What we decided was that the can do anything. Look at us."

women would guide the direction that the production would take. 'Henry the Fifth' has no sword fights, no blood and guts. I remember 'Henry the Fifth' in high school and all I remember are all sorts of people running on stage in sword battles. Those aren't in the play. Those are put

The Detroit Women's Shakespeare Project opted to focus on Henry and his growth during the story.

"What I think a careful reading of this play shows is that he accepted the responsibility of being a leader but it took some very difficult trials and tribulations, and tests of fire for him to go through to be the man that he was to be. It looks at 'How does a person who becomes our leader become a humane leader? What do we look at as qualities in leaders? What do they go through as they find out who they are and the kind of person they become," Fleischer said.

Locker hopes that The Detroit Women's Shakespeare Project doesn't begin and end with "The Life of Henry The Fifth."

"My total dream is that we are able to be a year-round professional Shakespeare company that is able to manufacture several productions a year and that we can keep on growing and tackling other material. We will get some material that for all women doing it might be more problematic normally - like the romances - but as we grow, we can focus on how we embody all these different characters."

"What I'd love to see happen, one of the thing that we all cherish, is that we take the concept of what we've done and scenes from what we've done inta school situation, particularly at that point where girls are coming out of that 'I'm smart' (phase) into that 'I'm sure' (phase). You know that sort of 11-year-old, 12-year-old time when it all starts to get just a little bit iffy. Hopefully they can see us and understand that directions artists go in this community. It gives an entirely new meaning to what it means to be a watercolor painter and proves the medium still has a great deal of life."

From Ellen Moucoulis' largescale white rabbit with mysterious, evil-like undertones to Bostick's playful painting of fish, the exhibit showcases everything from a transparent watercolor of a water lily pond by Madonna University art professor Marjorie Chellstorp, to an acrylic wash of a classic Pierce Arrow automobile by Tom Hale of Farmington Hills.

"Ellen Sharp and I were taken with Ellen Moucoulis' rabbit. It's pretty startling. We placed it at the entrance because we want people to realize they aren't going to see a regular watercolor show," said Wilkinson.

MWCS chairman Stanley Rosenthal agrees with Wilkinson, the exhibition is not a typical watercolor show in that it reveals the broad spectrum being done in water media. As a Wayne State University art professor for nearly 30 years, Rosenthal is sometimes critical of watercolor shows because many are overly concerned with technique and less concerned with image and modernistic issues.

"The show really represents a cross-section of watercolor from very traditional to highly contemporary and showcases the fact, the MWCS is truly a statewide organization with a traveling show that will visit five different venues this year from the Dennos Museum Center in Traverse City to the Museum of Art & History in Port Huron," said Rosenthal.

During the last 50 years Bostick has tracked the changes in the watercolor medium and the MWCS. He was one of three living MWCS founders, along with Emil Weddige of Ann Arbor and Thad Brykalski of New Mexico, honored at the opening reception Jan. 20. Administrator of the DIA from 1946 to 1976, Bostick originally approached former DIA curator of 20th-century art Jan van der Marck about exhibiting the 50th anniversary show at the DIA. The first MWCS exhibit was held in the DIA's Alger House branch in 1947.

"This is quite an accomplishment to exhibit the MWCS at the DIA and to have a museum director and two curators not a watercolorist jury the show," said 84-year-old William Bostick of Bingham Farms.

In addition to the DIA exhibition, a retrospective of MWCS founders and their legacy is being held through Feb. 15 at the Scarab Club. Curated by MWCS board members Donald and Linda Mendelson of Southfield, the 50-piece exhibit features paintings from 1939 to 1996. Eight of the ten founders including Bostick, Weddige, Brykalski, Donald Gooch, and Mary Jane Bigler are in the show along with charter members such as John Tabb of Birmingham, Louise Nobili, Donald Thrall, Eldon Roths, and the late Walter Sullivan and Franklin Page.

"Being it's the 50th year we wanted to give some insight into the founders and the history of MWCS. It's a retrospective view of watercolors by the founders, selected charter members and artists who have carried on the legacy through the MWCS and as lifetime career educators of watercolor painting. The paintings were lent by the artists and their families, collectors, and the Wayne State University permanent collection," said Linda Mendelson.

Besides Hale, Chellstorp, Rosenthal and Bostick, other local artists included in the DIA exhibition are Barbara Schulman Dorchen, Nancy Schulman Raitt and Danguole Jurgutis of Farmington Hills; Elaine Cusmano, Karen Carter Van Gamper and Joyce Anne Manke, Troy; Darcy Scott, Bloomfield Township; Christine M. Unwin, West Bloomfield; Rita Mach Skoczen; Nancy Hopper, Birmingham; Betty Sturley, Beverly Hills, and Ann Loveland, Orchard Lake.

Birmingham Musicale sets February program

The Birmingham Musicale's annual presentation of "Music by American Composers," dedicated to the Parade of American Music of the National Federation of Music Clubs, will take place Thursday, Feb. 13, at The Community House, 380 S. Bates in Birmingham.

STREET SCENE

Nineteen Wheels gives Michigan first listen

Wheels is building its potential success with its debut album "Six Ways From Sunday" (Aware Records) one day at a time.

Although the album has national distribution, the band chose to release it initially only in Michigan

Tuesday, Jan. 28. "It sounds like we're setting our sights low by just putting it out in Michigan. But I've had records that have sat in stores in faraway places. It doesn't do anything for the ego to get national distribution if you can't sell them. If you can't sell them, it doesn't mean anything. If you can't promote it to radio to get the sales or tour, it doesn't mean anything," said lead singer/guitarist Chris Johnston, a 1984 graduate of Birmingham Seaholm High School.

It sounds as if the band is off to a good start. They work with PGA, the same Nashville-based booking agency as R.E.M., and MTV has licensed the album "Six Ways From Sunday" to use during episodes of "The Real World – Boston." Two songs from the album, "Make It To The Warm" and "Eyesore," appear in the independent film "35 Miles From Normal" which was recently screened at the Sundance Film Festival.

"Six Ways From Sunday" is a departure from its first release, "The Tempermill Recordings" EP, put out by the Ann Arborbased Skillet Records. "The Tempermill Recordings" carries a roots rock almost country flavor while "Six Ways From Sunday" is straight-ahead Midwestern rock 'n' roll.

"I think that being quiet before was almost like a reaction to other music. Things are always going up and down, and I think we're on an up cycle. If we stay on it, it's fine with me," said Johnston, formerly of the Hanni-

Johnston admits that it's also partially due to an endorsement deal he got with J.F. Naylor, a local amplifier company, after all the band's equipment was stolen in Boston in late September.

"Now that I've got a big amp, I can turn up. All that was kind of an excuse to actually be louder in some ways although your stage volume shouldn't go up or down depending on the size of your amplifier. But just having a bigger amplifier makes you feel like more of a rocker or something," Johnston said with a sly

For the recording of "Six Ways From Sunday," the band teamed up with producer Tim Patalan, who has also worked with Sponge, Hoarse, and Jeff Buck-ley, at his studio The Loft in

"I can't say enough good things about him," Johnston said about working with Patalan. "As a person, he's a fun guy to be around. He's the kind of person that you never see frown. To be a producer, you have to have all the patience in the world. He's got all the patience in the world and then some. He's encouraging too. He's worked enough that he knows what it takes to get a good performance out of some-body. He's willing to do that. A lot of his suggestions were right Patalan's goal was to make an album that was diverse. On Patalan's urging, Johnston's vocals are chameleon-like sounding as if there's more than one primary vocalist.

One of the things he said he didn't want to do is make a record, in his words, that was saming, where each song sounded the same. Originally 'Come On Jenny' was more of a rock song, and 'Last Card Down' was more of a rock song."

"We had this category that was 'safe rock.' 'Come On Jenny, 'Country Girl' and 'Last Card Down' all fit in this 'safe rock' category. We said, 'Well, let's just have one song that's 'safe rock.' 'Country Girl' stayed in that category. 'Come On Jenny' we gave more of a Motown feel, mostly in the beat. 'Last Card Down' we just injected an extra long dinner break right before we came back and recorded that. We really changed the feel of it from an up-tempo rock song to 'turn down the lights and try to really rethink Live, however, Nineteen Wheels does the faster version of "Last Card Down."

"Sometimes just a threechords-and-a-cloud-of-dust rock song, which we write a lot of, go by so quickly and you kind of say, 'Hmm, that was interesting.' But the actual song behind it deserves more than that. 'Last Card Down' is a good example of that. It's a lot more interesting to me this way."

Johnston said he and his bandmates - bassist/vocalist Tim Marzorati, guitarist/vocalist Scott Owens, and drummer Greg Williams - are happy with the way the album turned out.

"The songs are probably not necessarily any longer than they should be. It's a really trimmed up record. I'm really happy with the song order. It's a complete sounding record to me. I sure hope it's not the best record we ever make. I think we can still make better records. It goes by quickly."

Nineteen Wheels celebrates the release of its new album with a party and performance, with special guests Wally Pleasant and the Scott Fab Band, 9 p.m. Sat-urday, Feb. 1, at the 7th House, 7 N. Saginaw, Pontiac. Cover charge is $6 for the 18 and older show. For more information, call (810) 335-8100.

CARVER WINS GOLD

Jim Bur, Jr. is excited about winning the Gold Medal in the Professional Individual category at the Plymouth International Ice Sculpture competitions Jan. 15-20. Bur, who grew up in Livonia and graduated from Churchill High School, carved "Old Man Coral Faerie" to win the gold. The magical sculpture was of a swimming mythical faerie. It was suspended vertically and held in place by the old man's flowing beard.

The capper for me was winning the Carver's Choice award because other carvers chose it," said Jim Bur, Jr.

Last year Bur and his team mate Ted Wakar of Canton won the 37th annual World Ice Sculptors Competition in Asahikawa, Japan. Bur will compete in the Great Lakes Professional Ice Carvers Classic in Frankenmuth this weekend. He hopes to win the First Prize trip to the national competition in Fairbanks, Alaska just as he and Wakar did in 1995. Winning in Alaska will ensure Team Frozen Images an invitation to participate in the 1998 Winter Olympic Games in Nagano, Japan. Although a demonstration not a competition, ice carving is well on its way to becoming a sport in the Olympic Games. It will receive final qualification as a sport at the 2002 Winter Olympic Games. Bur and Wakar intend to be

A different builder will handle the final phase of Western Golf Estates, a platted residential subdivision off Inkster Road between Five Mile Road and the Jeffries Freeway in William Genna of Timely Construction in Farmington Hills has purchased 11 scattered lots remaining on the site. Camborne Construction of Livonia built 88 houses on the property.

"I was pretty excited for the opportunity," Genna said.
"There aren't many opportunities to build a block of lots in an established subdivision. We feel pretty fortunate.

"Livonia is a real strong market," he said. "We like the idea of being in the heart of a very popular market."

Richard Hurley and Pamela Montgomery-Hurley, Realtors with Coldwell Banker Preferred and sales reps for Genna, tout the advantages of Western Golf Estates.

"First, it's Livonia and Livonia Public Schools," Richard said. "As my wife says, you can get anywhere from here. The expressway is right around the corner.

"The school system, city services and the right location give you all the pluses for a home buyer looking for the right neighborhood," Pamela said. "Plus, you want the apprecia-

Show takes legwork out of home improvement

The fifth annual Spring Home and Garden Show is ready to make homeowners breathe a little easier once again as the professionals gather the best home and garden products and services together.

Sponsored by the non-profit Building Industry Association of Southeastern Michigan (BIA), the show will be open Thursday, Jan. 30, to Sunday, Feb. 2, at the Novi Expo Center.

Design features that were considered luxury items in the 1980s will be standard in new homes by the turn of the century. The show will display the latest assortment of products and services for the home and garden.

"Many of the design elements that are gaining in popularity will be displayed at the show such as storage systems for walk-in closets and kitchen pantries, kitchens with center islands, luxurious fixtures for bathrooms and windows and sunrooms for natural lighting," said Scott Jacobson, president of BIA and of the S.R. Jacobson Development Corporation in Bingham Farms.

"On the high end of the market, more homes will include restaurant-type kitchen appliances, fully dedicated media rooms with built-in large screen television and security/lighting/energy management systems.'

Features Special features of the show include "Garlic Guru" Tom Reed presenting "Cooking and Better Living With Garlic" and other ideas for using the "stinking rose." Reed, who has appeared on Home & Garden TV Network. will cook garlic dishes, share anecdotes and play "bulb ball."

Glass etching can be done at home

FOR AP SPECIAL FEATURES

If you've ever stopped to admire an etched glass door, window or mirror, you know that the effect is both unique and stunning. The combination of clear polished glass with a delicately contrasting frosted geometric or pictorial design enhances just

Whether you choose to etch an entry door, sidelight panel, bathroom window or mirror, you have the ability to transform ordinary architectural and design features with distinctly personal detailing. When choosing glass to etch, keep in mind that the best material is one-quarter-inch thick plate glass or laminated safety glass. Standard one-eighth-inch thick window glass can be used but the results will not be as good.

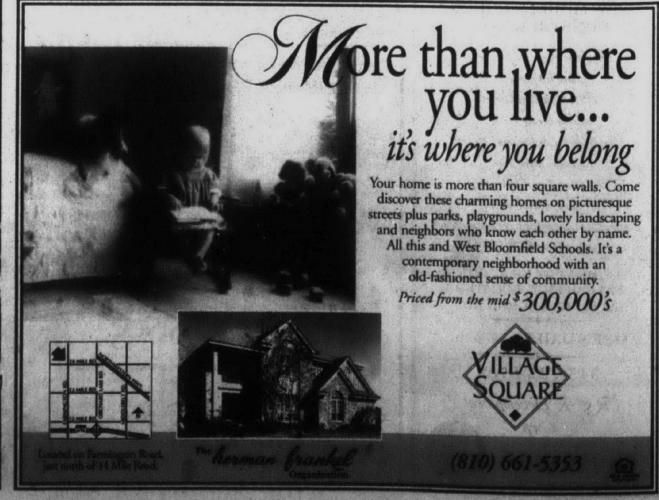

And, the thinner glass is much more apt to break when placed under the mechanical stresses of diamond-burr engraving and sandblasting. If you wish to work with one-

The only type of glass that should not be etched is tempered glass. Tempered glass has been heat-treated in a way that creates great tension within the material. When the surface is etched, the internal stresses may cause the glass to shatter. Generally, tempered glass is labeled as such in a corner of

If you are planning to etch a door or window with double-glazed panes, you should check with the window manufacturer to see if you will void any warranty by etching. In this case, it might be better to etch another panel and mount it over the insulated pane.

There are many sources of designs for your glass project. Check your local library or bookstore for books that feature stainedglass patterns and traditional designs. Ignore the myths, FHA loans are a good deal

You may have noticed my discussions in this column about VA loans over the past several months. I've tried to share information of how VA loans work so that more buyers might consider them as a mortgage option. Now I'd like to cover another important type of financing which is FHA loans. I hope you'll see the potential these loans can offer.

FHA stands for Federal Housing Administration, which is a division of the Housing and Urban Development Department of the Federal Government. FHA was created more than 60 years ago to stimulate affordable housing financing for qualified bor-

The Michigan State (Detroit) office of HUD is located in the McNamara Building in downtown Detroit. Both are agencies of the U.S. government and cover the eastern half of the lower peninsula of Michigan. The telephone number for Single Family Production is (313)226-7230.

What is an FHA loan?

An FHA loan is one of the many methods by which a buyer can obtain financing to purchase a home. You may be most familiar with conventional loans which involve obtaining a mortgage through a lender with a down payment in excess of 5 percent. FHA loans are very similar with easier and lower cost, but there are slightly different requirements.

In the case of the FHA loans, the Federal government insures the loan being made by a lender.

FHA allows a lower down payment than conventional methods, plus many other advantages a conventional mortgage does not allow, such as loans that are fully assumable and pre-payable at any time without penalty at ferent from selling it by other very low cost and short processing time by more than 200 FHAapproved lenders.

Some people have heard FHA financing is very complicated and costly to use. That is not true. There have been a number of changes over the years which fully streamlined the process.

The procedures and costs of FHA financing are now very similar, yet more flexible than conventional methods. Unfortunately, in the past, many people have had unfavorable perceptions about FHA financing which no

FHA does not set interest rates or points. They can require up to 60 percent less down payment overall for a buyer to qualify for an FHA mortgage. Up to 6 percent of the mortgage can be paid by the seller, or a blood relative can pay the total costs as a gift. Even the mortgagee can pay all the closing costs, including the tax and insurance by charging a "premium" interest rate.

Selling a house FHA is no dif-methods. The time period for getting approval is now virtually the same as for obtaining a conventional mortgage. All FHA lenders now have what is called "direct endorsement." This means a lender has been authorized to take application, approve and close a loan for the buyer without the prior approval of FHA. This has significantly reduced the time it takes to receive approval for an FHA loan. FHA loans are closed in as little as 28 days. Most transactions are closed in five weeks or

Some sellers wonder if they'll have to make more repairs on their house with an FHA loan than required with a conventional mortgage. As with all mortgage loans, repairs may be required to insure the health, safety and structural soundness of the house, now a new state law requirement since 1994.

If there are repairs, the costs are negotiated between the sellers and the buyers and should be clarified when you sign a pur-to note that neither the lender nor the FHA guarantees the value or condition of the proper-ty. Lenders have certain rights in modifying appraisals, repairs

Please note that an appraisal is used to estimate the value of the property for mortgage insurance purposes. It is performed for the benefit of HUD/FHA.

Since the buyer is paying for the appraisal, he/she is entitled to a copy of it. Although the appraiser is there to estimate value, he/she will also note any visible defects which may affect the health or safety of the occupants, or continued marketability of the property.

FHA makes no warranties as to the value of condition of the property. It is up to the homebuyer to decide if they wish to hire a home inspection firm, architect, contractor or engineer to determine the condition of the house. FHA will allow the borrower to include up to $200 as a closing cost item for the home

FHA also has a loan program under which most inside and outside repairs or additions can be put into the first mortgage, and the seller can be immediately paid before repair or rebuilding begins. This program is open to investors as an 85 percent loan-to-value ratio after repair. It's called the 203(k) Program.

Next week, I'll continue with more information about FHA

Beware of conflict of interest relationships

I received a call the other day from a reader and the questions and issues which we discussed were interesting and may be of use to those of you out there who are reading these articles and contemplating using an architect or builder. Basically the scenario goes like this: He and his wife go to look at a piece of land just prior to the first of the year in a low-lying area of a low-lying community. The seller of the parcel is a "developer/builder" and the stipulation for the sale is that the buyer must use this "developer/builder" to build the house and is putting pressure on the buyer to use "his" architect.

I told him that there is something a bit stinky about the relationship and obligations which such a relationship would have. Hopefully, one falls in love first with a piece of land then finds out who the builder must be. So the client pays for architectural services and then what natural force is at work to keep the "developer/builder" competitive with fair market prices? Nothing and this is not the way it was meant to be.

In the case that this person were to hire the architect recommended to him by the "developer/builder" the problem would only escalate and become a further conflict of interest. In order to answer why this is the case I need to briefly explain the situation I am currently faced with a client of mine in Pleasant Ridge.

In this project we have had a tough time with the general contractor which was selected. I as a representative of the owner have had to force/demand performance out of the contractor. It is my belief that we paid for top quality workmanship and must get such from the contractor and that it is my professional obligation to do so. I have been retained to administer the construction contract and have high expectations for the project.

In essence, due to poor performance on behalf of the general contractor and my demands (which are slowly being met) I am ho friend of the contractor but instead have proven myself to be a valuable ally of the homeowner. Remember, my only contract is with the homeowners, not with the general contractor.

In this scenario, the architect has been given a strong lead from the builder - maybe there is no kickback maybe there isbut in any case the builder is a repeat customer while the client is certainly not.

How can that architect go up against the builder and demand better quality or faster service? He can not and I think it would be foolish to enter into a relationship with any architect who low-lying was suggested in this scenario. Now that is not to say that builders can not suggest the names of multiple architects for review by the client - but that is different than what is going on in this situation.

As a matter of fact I have received calls from prospective clients who were given my name by general contractors - but in the end I determined that these contractors were not appropriate for the project and the recommending contractor never even saw the project because it went to another general contractor. But in the case being discussed above, the general contractor has the job all wrapped up.

The next series of issues which surround this project involves the time of year in which the client looked at the land - early winter and in a

area with potential drainage problems, this is not the right time to be shopping for land.

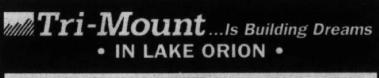

The worst case scenario includes a wet basement, mold and fungus problems, odors, mosquitoes and a low future value for the completed project. These are very possible occurrences and there is no way, I repeat no way, that the architect who has been recommended by the "developer/builder" could lead the home buyer away from the lot to a better site.

I suggested two possible solutions to the problem. First is to cancel the contract with the "developer/builder" and go look for a "good" lot and use the services of a "good" architect. Second is to force the builder to agree to a fair market value for his construction either through competitive bidding or by acting as a construction manager whereby all costs and expenses are on the table and the homeowner will not be subject to

Along with this proposal, if I were him, I would hire a good architect to fully represent the needs and concerns of myself and my family and stay as far as possible away from the recommended architect of the "developer/builder."

Safety feature

Helpful kits: House of Blinds and More, based in Southfield, is launching a major consumer awareness program to educate the public about the growing number of accidents involving young children and interior drapery hardware or window covering products designed with flexible looped cords and chains. As part of the campaign, House of Blinds is offering free retrofit kits to all consumers who want to convert mini blinds and wood blinds, regardless of where the window blinds were bought. The kits come complete with all necessary materials and easy-to-follow directions. They include child-safe, breakaway tassels (one of which is shown here) that simply break apart if something gets lodged between the cords. This eliminates the free hanging loop that could strangle a child. House of Blinds has also redesigned its wood and mini blinds to reduce the risks of accidents and meet newer industry safety standards. African American cuisine is special

RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

February is Black History Month - a month to recognize the achievements of African Americans. The first names that comes to many is of course: Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Medgar Evers, Malcolm X; and Detroit's Rosa

Parks. African Americans have not only changed or influenced civil rights, great inventions, music, writing, acting, or medicine, but also have had and continue to have, an impact on American

Dating back to the late 1700s, President George Washington had under his employ a black slave cook by the name of Hanribal. It is told that the President was so enamored by Hannibal's cooking that Hannibal spent a great deal of time on the road, traveling between the capital and Washington's home. Also during Washington's term, Cyrus Bustill (the son of an English attorney and an African slave) who was trained as a baker, was reportedly given a silver piece by the President in recognition of his supplying American troops with baked goods at the Burlington Docks during the Revolutionary War.

Thomas Jefferson had a black chef named James Hemmings. Jefferson was so fond of Hemmings' culinary abilities, that he was taken along to France while during Jefferson's stint as a diplomat - it is also noted, that Hemmings was the first African American chef given the opportunity to study classical French cuisine, and be trained overseas.

Even with the so-called acclaim Hannibal, Cyrus Bustill and James Hemmings' achieved, it was more than rare at that time, for black culinary artists to gain recognition. These culinary artisans brought to the table a melding of the flourish of American bounty and the simplicity and innovation of their own homeland.

In 1834, Henry Blair invented the corn planter. Blair's invention increased crop yields and ultimately revolutionized the corn industry and the increased the use of grits during the 19th century.

George Washington Carver (1864-1943), known as a legendary scientist, researcher and teacher, was instrumental in the development of derivative products of peanuts, sweet potatoes, and pecans.

As the migration of African Americans continued from the South to the North, they brought with them their skill of appropriately "marrying" ingredients from each region, with their own unique culinary style - almost all American regional cuisine was influenced. Today, there is a renewed interest in ethnicity, fusion of different regions or cultures, and culinary artistry in the use of native foods of Africa and traditional foods of the American South.

Numerous cookbooks devoted to African American cuisine, "soul food" and Southern cooking are on the market. Some good ones to check out:

Made in shade: Tinted windows find home

You don't have to be on the road to enjoy the benefits of tinted windows.

Window tinting, first popular with vehicles, now is done in homes and businesses.

"It's sunglasses for your house," said Ruth Sagar of Livonia, quoting a sales representative from an area window tinting firm.

Jerry and Ruth Sagar hired Eclipse Window Tinting Inc. of Redford for their new house last June. Eclipse will be one of the exhibitors at the fifth annual Spring Home and Garden Show at the Novi Expo Center, I-96 and Novi Road, Thursday, Jan. 30, to Sunday, Feb. 2. The show is sponsored by the Building Industry Association of Southeastern Michigan.

People had thought of window tinting only in "limo black," said Mike Bieth, owner of Eclipse, 9206 Telegraph.

"That turned a lot of people off," he said. Tinting is done by applying an adhesive film to the window. The film comes in a wide range of colors (including virtually clear) and even designs. Bieth placed a mini-blind pattern on a bathroom window at his house. Strokes of pastel hues, a frosty sheen, flowers, blue mirror and copper are just a few of the colors and patterns. Shades can be chosen to complement the exterior of the building.

"It's a metallic film ... so it will never change color." said Larry Millen of Eclipse.

This window treatment has advantages besides decorative. The film holds the glass intact if it is broken.

"It keeps the glass from flying all over the place." Bieth said.

This safety property led the U.S. Government to approve the window film for military bases overseas, he said. It can also help deter smash and grab robberies from business-

Window tinting allows residents to keep privacy without closing curtains to block their riew. It can reduce heat glare by 77 percent. It cuts down the sun's ultraviolet rays (which are a major cause of fading) by 98 percent, and keeps out more than 50 percent of heat gain, which lessens air conditioning costs.

Glen Carruth of Green Oak Township is pleased with the window tinting Eclipse put in his residence, as it eliminated glare.

"(Before the window tinting) I couldn't even watch TV," he said.

Payback in energy savings is expected within three to five years, industry studies and Department of Energy models indicate.

The highest quality window films are available only through a professional installer, Eclipse representatives said. These films have a special scratch-resistant coating and may have a lifetime warranty.

The Sagars bought a new construction, twostory colonial house with windows facing east and west. Among the window styles and sizes on the house are a double door, a half-moon and a window measuring six feet. Heat radiated in through bay windows. The Sagars didn't want to close curtains during the day, and it would take five to 10 years for trees to grow.

"We had full sun all day," Ruth Sagar said. The Sagars brought home sheets of plastic from Eclipse to try different looks over different days. They chose a light gray tinting for

"We're really excited ... We love it," Ruth Sagar said. "This winter it's been great."

People outside can't see through the tinting during the day. The family draws curtains at night, as people can see in when lights are turned on.

"It's very easy to care for," Sagar said.

"Ammonia is the only thing that can damage the film," Millen said.

Eclipse has done window tinting for a number of businesses, including a photography studio, restaurants and stores, as well as residences. No job is too small - Bieth told of tinting the back of a fish tank.

"If it's glass we can do it," he said.

Hours for the Spring Home and Garden Show are 2-10 p.m. Thursday-Friday, 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $6 for adults, $4 for seniors, $3 for children ages 6-12, free for children under 6. Family tickets for two adults and accompanying children are available at Farmer Jack for $9. "Slinky was as popular 50 years ago as it is today," Littman said.

What is the secret to the longevity of these classics? Quality.

"Over the years, there hasn't been any noticeable change in consumers' desire to have good, quality toys," Littman said. "What has changed is that consumers are wealthier. They are having children later in life. Many of these parents are looking for quality heirloom toys. These factors have led to the proliferation of specialty toy stores."

A: One of the most critical steps in any remodeling project is the contract. This is the one item that holds the job together and ensures that all parties involved agree to the same vision and scope for the project. You should be aware of all the details in your remodeling contract before you sign. Here are some key areas you should look for:

■ Be sure the contract includes the contractor's name, address, telephone and builder's license number

■ Details of what the contractor will and will not do should be outlined such as protection of personal property surrounding the job site and daily cleanup upon completion of the job. (Since cleanup is an additional labor cost for the contractor, it may slightly raise the cost of the job, but it is often well worth the price).

■ All materials should be specified.

JASON

The contractor should include a detailed list of all materials for the project in the contract, including size, color, model, brand name and product.

- The contract should include the approximate start date and substantial completion dates.
- You should study all required plans carefully before you approve them. Your contract should require your signature on all plans before work
- Federal law requires a contractor to give homeowners written notice of their

BY DOUG FUNKE

It's difficult to get a listing or sell a house if prospective clients don't know who you are. That's why selfpromotion is so important in this business

Lee and Noel Bittinger, broker-owners of RE/MAX Classic Realty in Canton and a husband-and-wife team, are masters at getting their names out in the community.

They've had banners pulled by airplanes over stadiums and rented balloons for tethered rides at appreciation picnics for clients.

They advertise on the big screen at the Penn Theatre in Plymouth, send out monthly newsletters and have a page on the Internet.

But their latest gambit may be the best of all.

The couple purchased a fire-engine red Hummer, a 3-1/4 ton, seven-foot wide, military-like vehicle with a 6.5litre, eight-cylinder, turbo diesel

With their names and company logos emblazoned on the vehicle, it's definitely an attention-getter on the road and in subdivisions.

"We're into marketing in a big way," Lee said. "One of our bylines is we will do whatever it takes to get a home sold, go to any length. We've been saying that for a couple of years. There's nothing we'll stop at. Our byline is that we're unstoppable.

We sat down one day about a year ago and thought that the Hummer has it all," Lee continued. "It will go through 2-1/2 feet of water all day long. When people see this, they will remember these guys are unstop-

The vehicle, which cost $79,000, has been in service about six weeks.

"It does have inconveniences," Noel conceded. "It takes a while to warm up, gas mileage isn't that hot and it's not passenger friendly. All that said, it's still worth having because of the attention it gets."

"A guy called us from Fox Run and asked, 'Are you the guys with the Hummer?'" Lee said. "We're having an appointment with him next week.

"Another person called up and said, If I buy a house, can I have a ride in the Hummer?' I said, 'Certainly.' I'll drive him wherever he wants to go."
"It's fun to see the reaction," Noel said. "A lot of times when people are looking, you can see them pointing. They're constantly surprised.'

"We pretty much drive it around everywhere," Lee said. "It's like a rolling billboard."

The Bittingers are very successful at what they do. Last year, Lee said, the couple sold 138 houses with an aggregate value of $26 million.

Self-promotion carries a price, but successful Realtors will pay, Lee said. "I think there are over 4,000 of us. You have to stand out.

"Most agents spend less than 10 percent of their income on marketing. We spend 40, 50 percent. I notice agents will try things for a short time and give up. We always figure on doing something for a year.

"It's expensive to do it," Lee said. "We have resources because we started doing it. It snowballs. We were not afraid to take the chance to make sure clients get the best exposure pos-

Linda Rea, a Realtor with Real Estate One in Troy, is another highvolume producer who's always practiced self-promotion.

"You've just got to do it as a top agent," she said. "I think you have to become a household word and bond with the local community. People feel comfortable with you when they see you around everywhere."

Rea always includes a picture of herself on cable TV listings and listings in real estate sales magazines and pre-show advertising spots at the Maple and Hampton theaters.

She recently sent out about 500 computer mouse pads decorated with her photo, logos and phone number.

"There are a lot of self-promotions you can do on each level. As you progress, you can do more upscale promotions," Rea said. "On a low budget, you can do fliers, magnets with calendars, police emergency numbers. I like personalized balloons.

"Each time you make another dollar, take 10 cents and put it back into the business," she advises. "It is a business, after all.

"Why don't others do it? That's an interesting question," Rea said. "I think they either don't understand it or don't want to loosen the money up. If you don't have inventory in yourself, you don't have anything to sell."

Rea said her sales volume exceeded $28 million last year.

Self promotion is a matter of style a certain panache - as well as dollars and cents, Rea added.

"It can be effort," she said. "It's good summary sheets, with a picture of yourself, always the same picture, community information, a nice platform to set them on.

"I think self-promotion works," Rea said. "Why Pepsi? They do the same thing. It's image."

Privacy fence causes dispute over property line

Q: Last year I had my lot surveyed and staked so as to sell or build on it but had to wait for the road to be built. This summer, while I was gone, the property owner next to my lot pulled out my stakes and put up a pri-vacy fence. He did not take out a permit from the city. I complained to the building department, but I was told that I had to prove that he had removed the stakes and they wanted to know what I disliked about a privacy fence. If I had my property surveyed again and could prove that the fence was on my property, can I be sure to recover my costs to the surveyor and to agree with your neighbor before doing so? A: You have asked a number of interesting questions. Presuming that you are not in violation of any deed restrictions and/or city ordinances, you may place a privacy fence on your property, presuming that it does not infringe of your neighbor's property. If in fact your neighbor has, in effect, put a privacy fence on your property, you may have to seek action to have the fence removed. You may have to establish by way of a survey that your neighbor has put his privacy fence on your property and request that he remove it. Otherwise, if the property is held long enough, he may be deemed to be in adverse possession of it. In any event, you should consult an attorney, but you may not be able to recoup your attorney fees and costs from your neighbor.

Q: Can you tell me what the Inland Lakes and Streams Act basically provides for? Does it apply to artificial lakes? A: The Inland Lakes and Streams Act of 1972 prolawyer's fees. Also, what is the law regarding a privacy fence. Is there a law saying that you can put it on the property line and do you have vides that a riparian owner is a person with riparian rights. Riparian rights are rights associated with ownership of the bank or shore of any inland lake or stream." The Act also provides that an inland lake also includes artificial and natural bodies of water greater than five acres. In determining whether or not a riparian owner's reasonsable use of the lake has been interfered with, a three factor test is used to determine reasonable use: (1) size; (2) type of use; and (3) benefit to the proposed used balanced against injury to the other riparian owners.

Stock cabinetry, which is factory-produced in standard sizes and readily available from the manufacturer through home centers, can be used to create beautiful furniture for rooms other than the kitchen. Not only built-in designs like home office desks and utility storage cabinets, but free-standing furniture like hutches, bedroom end tables and bookcases.

The growing trend of using stock cabinetry to create furniture pieces is partly due to the popularity of open floor plans in new homes, according to Connie Edwards, CKD, Marketing Design Manager, American Wood-mark Corp., Winchester, VA, a leading manufacturer of stock cabinets. Since kitchens now frequently open to family rooms and dining areas (thus the new "great room" concept), many builders are offering matching cabinetry for these spaces to give homes a natural flow. Remodelers - and do-it-yourselfers - are following Another reason is price. Using stock cabinetry to make furniture is often less expensive than purchasing furniture already made, according to Edwards. In addition, since many stock cabinet manufacturers offer a variety of standard sizes and an abundance of finishes, accessories and options, homeowners are realizing that it's an easy and inexpensive way to acquire furniture that has a "custom" look without having to pay a custom price.

"Don't forget about the element of fun," said Edwards. "For those with a penchant for handiwork, they'll find building many types of furniture pieces from stock cabinet parts can be relatively simple and enjoyable. And since wall and base cabinets are preassembled at the factory, all they need to do is construct a base out of lumber, install the cabinets in the desired configuration and add trim with molding and decorative hardware."

Building a barrister bookcase is one such project, according to Edwards. Barrister bookcases are composed of individual cabinets stacked on top of one another. Originally, barrister bookcases were designed to allow "barristers" (British term for a type of lawyer) to add a shelf at a time as their book collections grew. How-To

Edwards offers these 10, easyto-follow steps for building a barrister bookcase with stock cabinet components. (Completed dimensions: 66" high x 36 1/8' wide x 12" deep.)

Step 1: Using dimensional lumber, construct a base that is 36 1/8" wide x 12" deep by 4 3/4" high. (Edwards recommends paneling of the cabinet interior for a finished look and to cover up drill holes created for adjustable shelves.)

Step 2: Install the four wall cabinets horizontally - stacked one on top of the other - beginning with the solid door cabinet on the bottom of the stack. The hinges of the two lower cabinets should be on the bottom to allow the doors to open downward. while the hinges of the two upper cabinets should be on the top to allow these doors to open upward. Step 3: Install lid supports on the two bottom doors and positive locking supports on the two upper doors.

Step 4: Trim and attach two finished shelving panels vertically on either side of the stack, flush with the back of the cabinet. Side pieces will extend 3/4" past the front frame of the cabi-

Step 5: Trim and install straight valence (for toe base), flush with edge of sides.

Step 6: Install inside corner trim on top of valence.

Step 7: Trim and install batten molding over each horizontal joint between cabinets.

Step 8: Install crown molding build-up on top of unit (as the detail drawing shows), staining raw, mitred corners. Countersink nails and putty holes. If a flat top is desired, you can install additional matching paneling. Step 9: Install decorative hardware. Adjust doors for alignment. Step 10: As a final precautionary step, screw bookcase to wall.

A final note: Depending on your home's decor, you may wish to select an appliqué valence instead of a straight valence for the toe base, or other moldings such as rope or dentil for the space between cabinets. Additionally, molding that contrasts with the cabinetry, such as white molding with natural maple cab nets, can add a unique touch.

American Woodmark cabinets are available at The Home Depot and Lowe's locations nationwide. For more information on American Woodmark stock cabinetry, contact American Woodmark, P.O. Box 1980, 3102 Shawnee Drive, Winchester, VA 22601, or call 800 292 2935.

This barrister bookcase, composed of glass-paneled, kitchen wall cabinets stacked on top of one another, is an example of "other room" furniture that can be created using basic stock cabinetry components. Stock cabinets, such as those manufactured by American Woodmark, are available in a wide selection of species, finishes and moldings, enabling do-it-yourselfers to create a "customized" piece of furniture to match their home's decor easily and inexpensively.

CABINET COMPONENTS NEEDED (using standard-overlay cabinet style):

NANCY AUSTIN

by....

I am a Senior Citizen. My father who is 90 says he is not. He says he has entered the "Age of Wisdom". In his wisdom, he has decided to remain in his home. He cooks, cleans, gardens, drives, visits and has me for dinner once a week. He is also updating his house for when the day comes that his wise decision is to sell. I have been his gentle guide, because, not only am I his daughter, but I am a Realtor.

In honor of my father's wisdom, I have decided to help Seniors by making available a Free Report which answers your questions: How to Decide When

To Sell. Enter the age of wisdom now,

Test drive your new business.

Ve're so sure of our business system, we'll let you try out your 7-Eleven' store franchise for six months before making a final commitment. No kidding.

As our 3,000 current franchisees have discovered, there's no other franchise with as many benefits as a 7-Eleven convenience store. At $53,000, the 1995 average initial cash requirement was surprisingly reasonable. Especially when you consider the proven business system and ongoing support offered by 7-Eleven.

After repositioning the company to meet the challenges of the '90s, 7-Eleven continues to be the best convenience retailer in the world. When you discover all the benefits offer, you'll find nothing else compares with 7-Eleven.
