The Plymouth Police Department expects to hire three new officers by August, increasing their present staff to 16. The entry-level pay is $22,000.

Two vacancies opened up with the recent retirements of Lt. Michael Gardner and patrol officer Curtis Hill. The third officer represents an expansion of the department.

Cessna crashes on landing at Mettetal

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI STAFF WRITER

All Jerry Ammerman of Plymouth Township heard was a "thud."

"It flipped around after the impact," said Ammerman, a pilot who saw a Cessna 172 crash on the north side of Joy Road as it attempted to land at Mettetal Airport about 10:30 p.m. Wednesday

The plane's 40-year-old Farmington Hills pilot and 60-year-old passenger, a Livonia man, were both conscious when Plymouth Township police arrived on the scene. Both were treated at the scene by Plymouth firefighters and transported by ambulance to St. Joseph Hospital in Ypsilanti.

The pilot, who regularly flies out of Mettetal, was reported in serious condition with severe cuts, while the passenger was in critical condition with apparent head injuries, said Plymouth Fire Chief Larry Groth.

The pilot and passenger were thrown from the plane on impact in a field directly across from the runway and between a house and business on the north side of Joy Road. No other injuries to anyone on the ground were reported, according to police.

according to police.
"We've just begun the investigation. The FAA (Federal Aviation Administration) is coming out," said Lt. Bob Smith, acting chief of the Plymouth Township Police Department.

Police were alerted to the crash by a 9-1-1 call from a nearby business on the north side of Joy Road.

There was no fire when the plane crashed, although fuel was leaking as Plymouth Township and Canton Township police and Plymouth fire officials waited for FAA representatives to arrive from Detroit. Firefighters stood by as a precautionary measure.

Smith said the pilot was landing from the south, had difficulty and came across Joy Road. The plane's wing tipped the ground. The plane was facing south and nose down when police arrived. "There's a pretty good-sized hole there," Groth said, pointing to the immediate east of where the plane came to a stop and where it was suspected the plane initially hit the ground.

Ammerman, who lives not far

Ammerman, who lives not far from the airport, said he was shooting the breeze with other pilots at Mettetal and saw the Cessna pilot trying to land.

"He overshot the runway," he said, adding that it appeared he was turning to make a second approach to the runway.

Though the pilot was landing downwind, it would have been the third plane to land downwind late Wednesday, Ammerman said.

"I couldn't believe what he did," Ammerman continued. "The thing to do was to put power in and do it again. But he steeped to the left without power."

Two members of the Canton-Plymouth Mettetal Airport Advisory Board were at the scene as onlookers and the media gathered along Joy Road, which was closed at Lilley Road and east of the crash site by police. Two helicopters also flew above the area.

"We came out just to observe. This is likely to come up at our meetings. We want to see what has happened so we can answer questions," said Mark Merlanti, board president.

The state-owned airport and its runway has drawn attention among residents in recent years. Some have voiced concern about safety, others about noise.

But board member John Vergonna told reporters at the scene of the crash that the runway is not too short or unsafe.

"It's a safe runway the way it is," Vergonna added.

Life as a priest has been rewarding

The Rev. William Pettit is a lucky man: He always knew he was the right man for the job. "I never not wanted to be a priest," he said.

Pettit is retiring this month after 19 years as pastor of St. Kenneth Catholic Church in Plymouth Township. Ordained in 1954, he's been a priest for 43 years.

His resume of parish assignments reads like a litany of the saints: St. Ambrose in Grosse Pointe Park, St. Timothy in Trenton, St. Joseph in Port Huron, St. Catherine and St. Edward in Detroit, St. Pious in Southgate, St. Norbert in Inkster and, finally, St. Kenneth.

"I never thought I'd be here more than six years. We built a church, and the archbishop said 'You stay and pay off the debt.'"

Every job comes with its rewards and frustrations, and the priesthood is no exception. As he sat in the comfortable living room of the church rectory, Pettit recalled his experiences.

Plymouth Lions Park gets a new lease on life

BY RICHARD PEARL STAFF WRITER

The Plymouth Lions Club has completed the first phase of improvements to Lions Park at Burroughs and Harding streets.

A cement floor and picnic benches have been installed in the pavilion built last year and park benches have been added to the barrier-free children's play structure, also installed last year said Joseph C. Koch, Lions Club president-elect.

The new play items replaced old equipment such as monkey bars and sliding boards that had become worn and were unsafe.

In conjunction with the Lions Park improvements, the club also helped provide new park benches and trash containers at Kellogg Park, enabling the facility to blend more with the Downtown Development Authority's new streetscape. In exchange, the Lions got Kellogg's old benches for Lions Park.

The next phase at Lions Park will be installation of swing sets either this year or next, and possible construction of a hard-surfaced basketball court that could be flooded in winter to provide an iceskating/hockey surface.

School budget focuses on student instruction

BY RENEE M. SKOGLUND

Classrooms will have more money for basic supplies for the upcoming school year.

In the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools' $98 million budget for 1997-98, $824,000 is allocated for instructional materials, which includes atlases, dictionaries, encyclopedias and textbooks. More than one-third of that amount will go for new textbooks for middle and high

"It's the biggest percentage of the budget in 15 to 18 years devoted to instructional materials. We still have a lot of catching up to do. We plan to do this in the next four years," said Superintendent Chuck Little.

In addition to the instructional materials' increase, the budget allocates $141,321 for instructional computer software.

The district also plans to hire 10 additional full-time teachers, which will help minimize overall class size. Specifically, the new hirings will accommodate new student enrollments and "slightly" improve class size in middle and high schools.

Currently, district-wide class size is 27, with 29 students in high school and middle school classes, and 25 students in elementary school classes. "This is the first year the class size in elementary schools was acceptable," said Little.

As usual, the largest portion of the budget goes to employee salaries and benefits. Total salary/wages for all school district employees, including teachers, is $65.9 million. The total fringe benefit package is $21.6 million. Teacher salary raises for the 1997-98 school year were negotiated at 3.2 percent.

"We're definitely leaner than most districts. It's a fact we have less teachers," said Little, adding that Ann Arbor has more teachers but less students

Monies from the state Foundation Grant - the amount the state sends the district under Proposal A - increased only 2.64 percent, or $154 more per student. The district will spend $5,986 per student in the 1997-98 school year; last year, it was Neither the district's projected enrollment growth of 330 students nor the 8.96 percent increase in taxable value of all property and the 8.70 percent increase in taxable value of nonhomestead property translated into a revenue windfall for the schools, Little said.

Regarding the taxable proper-the past "this would have been a bonanza," even under the Headlee cap. However, Proposal A imposed limits. The amount fed back to local school districts by the state now has a direct ratio to the amount of millage increases prior to Proposal A in "People have to get in out of their head that all new development benefits the Plymouth-Canton school district. It goes into state coffers," said Little.

"Under Proposal A, our school district has lost $11 million. Between July 1994 and January 1997, we would have collected ty value increases, Little said in $11 million," said Judy Evola, director of communications for the district. "What hurt Plymouth-Canton was not passing millages before Proposal A."

Little said the district's debt levy of 2.18 mills is "one of the lowest in the county" and that "even if the 18-mill non-homestead tax were double, our portion of the 6 mills would decrease."

Seventy percent of the homes in the district do not have children, according to Little. "The only thing that increases the revenue is the number of kids that come into the district."

Plymouth Township planning commissioners June 18 approved a site plan for an addition on the southeast corner of Plymouth and Haggerty roads.

The consensus to forego the construction of sidewalks, as required by ordinance, forced two commissioners David Nick and Dennis Cebulski from joining the site plan approval.

"I would tend to agree the topography is unique on Haggerty Road," Nick said. "To me it would make sense to see it on Plymouth Road.

But applicants LaRiche and the AME Group, comprised of Harold Stein, Lou and Scott LaRiche and John Goulet of Canton asked to be relieved of installing sidewalks.

On Plymouth Road, trees

make way for a sidewalk, while on Haggerty, the topography is tough and there are underground fiber optics in the way,

He also reminded planning commissioners that under a fairly recent state Supreme Court ruling, townships are responsi-

But Goulet said LaRiche plans to put in another 26 trees south of the dealership to further buffer nearby apartments.

Besides required by ordinance, sidewalks would allow residents to walk down to Hines Park, planners said.

Commissioner Donald Skinner said, "I personally don't see a need to place a sidewalk to the park on Haggerty." But he dis-

Going, going... gone. The gavel hit wood faster than the auctioneer could say "sold!" and the gown once worn by Princess Diana of Wales wasn't sold to the woman wearing the voguish white and black suit, with gold buttons trimming the left side of her lapel. C'est la vie.

Dress No. 46, a state dinner dress of ivory satin by designer Catherine Walker, went on and off the auction block, before Canton resident Christian Wofford could get in on the bidding. The minimum asking price for the dress was a whopping $5,000 - just a bit pricey, Wofford said.

However, there's no price tag on dreaming. Just attending the "sale of the century" was a dream come true, she said. Wofford and best friend Grace Georgian, a former Canton neighbor who moved to Toronto last month, won two tickets to Princess Diana of Wales Gown Auction held Wednesday at Christie's Auction House in New York City. The proceeds from the auction will benefit AIDS and breast cancer research.

"I'd like to get this dress for my daughter to wear when she gets married," Wofford said last week as she perused a preview book of 79 chic gowns that Princess Di donated.

The catalog describes Wofford's favorite gown as follows:

The dress has long sleeves and a 'ning hot tick-bodice overlaid with cream silk ets to major lace embroidered with subtle flowers of pink and simulated pearls, glass beads and pink and white sequins skirt is very full and its folds fall in reverse. It is lined with white silk with a triple layer of tulle and silk petticoats. The dress has never been seen in public as the Princess wore it at state dinners and diplomatic receptions at Buckingham Palace.

Of course, Wofford's daughter, Olivia, would have to find a suitable mate before walking down the aisle in the silk gown her mom picked out, and considering she's only 9, she has a quite a few years to look for an eligible bachelor.

Wofford and Georgian won the tickets by buying the preview book for $60. Proceeds from the catalog sales also go to charity and have raised a reported $1.6 million already. Names of those buying the book went into a lottery. Out of 1,100 names Wofford and Georgian were the lucky

"I always admired Diana's clothes, especially her hats. She's so stylish," said Wofford.

Annual Poetry Crawl kicks off July 3

The Plymouth Poets' fifth annual "Summer Celebration of Poetry" kicks off July 3 with readings by Guthrie Neidhardt and Lisa Barrett, 7:30-10:30 p.m. at the Plymouth Coffee Bean Company, 844 Penniman.

Open microphone readings for unscheduled poets will precede and follow all featured readers, according to Rod Reinhart, Plymouth's Poet-In-Residence who founded the Plymouth Poets six years ago with a grant from the Michigan Council for The Arts and Cultural Affairs.

Jim Thompson and Gary Erwin will give readings July 10; Van Baldwin will read "The Fifth Petal of the Rose" July 17 and Bob Hicok is scheduled on July 24

A tribute to the late beatnik poet Allen Ginsberg, featuring Reinhart and Steve Jones, is scheduled for July 31. In August, Brian Tell and Janet Styles will read on July 7 and Will Juntenen will host a night for younger poets July 14.

Weekly hosts include Baldwin; Donna DeMeyer; ann... 'E' Horvath; Carol Was and Reinhart, Juntenen and Guthrie Neid-

In-Residence and organizer of numerous other area poetry functions. "Their writing is just as much appreciated as those more established."

The Poetry Crawl will be 11 a.m.- 6 p.m. July 12, the first of Art in The Park's two days, and will feature Michigan poets including some known nationally reciting their writings among the sidewalks and in the stores of downtown Plymouth.

A 10:30 a.m. meeting at the Coffee Studio precedes The Crawl and a reception and final reading follows, 6:30-8:30 p.m. at the Plymouth Community Arts Council building. Interested Michigan poets can apply by calling Reinhart at 313-459-7319 or poet ann... 'E' Horvath at 313-728-5734 and request an application.

With participation in Plywe have done is create a new form of poetry and expression, said Reinhart, taking poetry readings "out of the coffeehouses and into the streets, taking it away from the rather quiet, small, private groups" and given it to the broader public. He has gotten request for similar programs from other groups and venues, he said.

Last year's invited poets were listed on a poster circulated statewide. For the veteran poet, said Reinhart, "This will be a great opportunity to sell books, meet other poets and participate as a full equal in a major, statewide event."

He cautioned, however, that Art in The Park is "a public event, family oriented," so poets will want to present "poems they know are appropriate, something

"No dirty words, nothing too suggestive. Emotions, feelings are okay, but extremely political poems may not be appropriate. And we'll be on patrol.

"We had one poet who's stuff was so incomprehensible," Reinhart recalled. But 99 percent of the poets in our program, their work is easily comprehensible."

More than 40 poets participated in last year's Crawl, which he said is in the tradition of artgallery crawls and pub-crawls. with poets changing stations and circulating among the crowds. Participants this year include the nationally known M.L. Liebler, plus Kim Webb, Sindi St. Germaine and Pete and Charlotte DiGiorgio.

"We're doing it because we to do it," said Reinhart. "And it's a way to make poetry and writing a community service and a community event that everyone can be a part of."

He expressed gratitude to Diane Quinn, chairperson of Art in The Park, and the Plymouth Community Arts Council, "who backed up and made poets feel part of the arts in Plymouth."

Developers selected for county's N'ville property

Edward McNamara has selected developers who will purchase and develop 926 acres of countyowned land in Northville Town-

McNamara announced that ed to be led by Toll Brothers Inc., the nation's leading builder of luxury homes, and Troy-based Biltmore Properties Corp. Other partners are Donald Davis. chairman of Detroit's First Independence National Bank, and Wayne County Executive the Wineman Investment Corp., a real estate developer with offices in Detroit.

McNamara's recommendations will be forwarded to the Wayne County Commission and Economic Development Corp. of Wayne County for approval.

"We have world-class development teams in place that will transform this property into a superior, mixed-use development that will be a tremendous asset for all of Wayne County," McNamara said.

County officials expect revenue from land sales to total $38.1 million with the completed development expected at $1 billion. When completed, the project will contribute $2.85 million in annual property revenue to the township, $4 million to the county and approximately $7 million to Northville schools.

The centerpiece development will be a luxurious golf course community featuring an Arnold Palmer-designed championship pay $18.4 million cash for 303 acres of land that is zoned for single-family residential. In addition, it will invest approximately $9 million to have the Arnold Palmer Group design and build an 18-hole golf course and at least a 12,000-square-foot clubhouse on 206 acres of land.

"We are thrilled with the selection," McNamara said. "The team's experience, quality and reputation are all 'top shelf.' on the single-family residential parcel. In an independent evaluation by Arthur Andersen, the Toll/Biltmore team was rated as the most qualified.

"They received the highest score," McNamara said. "Not only do they have tremendous resources, they have an outstanding track record in completing projects of this magnitude. And that was a very important factor from our standpoint."

Toll/Biltmore will be purchasing 13.5 acres of land zoned for commercial development for approximately $1.8 million.

McNamara announced other development teams to work on senior housing, adult lifestyle and apartments/condominiums.

The Silverman Development Co. of Farmington Hills and Painia Development Corp. of Detroit were selected for 40 acres designated for apartments and condominiums. This team will purchase the land for $4

Warm weather poses risk for pets

Extremely hot weather can pose risks for pets, warns the Michigan Humane Society.

Animals can overheat quickly and owner must take care not to subject their pets to heat exhaustion or stress.

Never leave an animal in a vehicle, even for a short period

"Many people think its safe to leave a pet inside a car while the run an errand, but it can be fatal," said society veterinarian Dr. Robert Fisher.

"On an 85-degree day, for example, the temperature inside a vehicle can reach 102 degrees in 10 minutes and could go as high as 120 degrees within a half an hour. An animal cannot withstand that kind of

Sign of overheating include lethargy and rapid panting. If you suspect your pet is suffering from heat stress, keep him in a cool area and contact your veterinarian immediately.

The society also advises that a pet who must be left outdoors for any length of time must have adequate shade and constant supply of fresh water. During the hottest part of the day, bring your pet inside.

To report an animal left outdoors without proper care, contact the society's Cruelty Hotline at (313) 872-3401.

Thunderstorms can terrify many pets and lightning is dangerous. Bring them inside in bad weather.

The society also offers "Your Pet May Be Dying" alert cards, free at a MHS shelter. The messages, printed on red cardboard in black ink, alert owners who have left a pet in a parked car or outside without adequate provisions.

The society operates shelters in Westland, Rochester Hills and Detroit.

CLARIFICATION

An article in our special Spree 47 guide, which was tucked into Sunday's edition of the Observer, gave the impression they'll practically be giving away food and beer at Friday's Bavarian Fest.

That isn't quite the case. There is a $2 door charge ($1 for children) at Eddie Edgar Arena for the 7-11 p.m. event, which features Mary Herzog and the Bavarian Polka Band. But food and drinks cost extra.

The Lions Park and Kellogg projects are funded jointly by the club and the city, with club members and even some neighborhood residents providing labor, according to project cochairs Koch and John Roose.

The Lions have raised $32,000 in city-matched funds the last two years for the two parks, said Koch, who also is a Plymouth city commissioner. All such projects need city approval and

The club raised its money this year through special assessments and various projects, including its annual White Cane Drive, in which $16,000 was collected, $4,000 coming mostly from business donations. The rest was raised in two days of soliciting on Plymouth's streets, Koch said. Other fund-raisers include the recently completed must be within city budget capabilities, he said. The frustrations are equally as personal. "Your own inadequacies. You're not what you hoped you would be. What you try to inspire people to do, they don't accept. People who have fallen away from the practice, is it me? Your children, they go wandering away. Did you do something wrong? Maybe not. You still wonder."

Pettit also reflected on the changes he's witnessed in the "When I was first church. ordained, there was little lay involvement. People may have been active in that they came to church, but not as actors. The priest just doesn't say 'Jump,' and they say 'How high?' It's a wonderful collaboration. I have always felt strongly about lay leadership.

"I must say the changes were never a problem for me. I looked upon them as a great hope. I was gung-ho out there saying we need to do more, maybe almost

"I have some concern about the neo-conservatism in the church. The annulment process today is being kind of held back, the silencing of our theologians, a kind of an entrenchment that everything has to come from the central office.

"We are not in the business of rules. We're in the business of caring for people."

Pettit will miss his years as pastor at St. Kenneth. Like priests, parishes have their own personalities. "St. Kenneth is noted for its warmth and friendliness," he said. "I don't know if we're flaming liberals; we're middle of the road. But I do think it is a real family spirit Upon retiring or moving on to another parish, every priest hopes to leave behind some positive imprint. Pettit is especially proud of "LOGOS," a program he started for junior high students. Every week the students come together at the church for a dinner, activities and a class. "It's been very successful for our young people."

And, of course, there are his sermons. Although Pettit thinks he may be a bit long-winded, his secretary gives him high grades. "They're an A-plus, on weekdays, maybe even more. During the week, they're so much more personal. He's a wonderful man. He'll really be missed," said Betty Casparis.

Besides some extra rounds of golf, Pettit's retirement plans include moving into the senior priest village on the grounds of Madonna University. "I'm No. 1 on the list," he said. Meanwhile, he'll be bunking up with the Rev. Kevin O'Brian at St. Priscilla in Livonia. The two priests have been friends for 50 years.

However, there may be a problem: Pettit doesn't cook.

"I have a lady who comes in to cook two days a week. He has no one who comes in to cook. It's going to be interesting."

Economic growth part of new era, Solomon says

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK STAFF WRITER

Transportation, parks, Metro Airport and economic development will be examined during the next 18 months by Wayne County commissioners.

Commission Chairman Ricardo Solomon, D-Detroit, outlined his 1997-98 legislative agenda on June 5 for his commission colleagues.

"We can look forward with great expectations to a new era in Wayne County government — a time to be marked by significant economic growth and the enhanced creation of jobs for Wayne County residents," Solomon said.

Solomon outlined the following commission goals for the remainder of 1997 and 1998:

■ Monitor airport expansion, dual stadium project and construction of a new juvenile detention facility; ■ Implement voter-approved changes to commission counsel and auditor general operations, expanding their powers;

■ Sponsor an economic development conference;

■ Monitor voter-approved parks improvement projects;

■ Seek transportation solutions by looking at higher gasoline taxes, improving roads and bridges and merging the two bus systems:

■ Enhance commission financial oversight of all county departments and operations by checking a capital improvement plan;

■ Expand the citizens advisory board and town hall meeting format:

■ Initiate a countywide elected officials summit;

■ Improve commission technology to enhance constituent communications;

Host a tri-county summit with legislative bodies of Macomb, Oakland and Wayne counties, and the Detroit City Council to focus on infrastructure improvements. Solomon highlighted several accomplishments during 1996, including establishing a citizens' advisory board, improving commission operations and strengthening the offices of auditor general and commission counsel.

The commission also started a civic literacy program. More than 3,000 students participated in four conferences on civic literacy and the urban agenda, Solomon said.

"As we approach the 21st century, we passed a capital improvement plan which will ensure the county buildings will be maintained," Solomon said.

The commission and county executive's office also created economic opportunity by approving the $1.6 billion expansion of Detroit's Metro Airport. "It is the largest economic development project in Wayne County's history," Solomon said.

Commissioners, for the most part, were optimistic with Solomon's address.

Vice Chair Kay Beard, D-

Ricardo Solomon

Westland, thought Solomon's address succeeded in outlining what was on the county's agenda.

"It is an exciting time for Wayne County, and the airport with its expansion," Beard said. "There is so much going on in the tri-county area.

"It's time for us to work on a more cooperative basis. It make sense for us to work together, because it is an exciting time for us."

Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, was "pleasantly surprised" with what McCotter called Solomon's "laissez faire" attitude about Wayne County government.

"That's the one thing I thought that stood out," McCotter said.

Solomon had said that they must work together to "reduce the burden on taxpayers." Solomon wants a merger of the two Detroit bus systems to save money and improve efficiency.

McCotter agrees with an expanded role of legislative oversight of Wayne County government, but he disagrees with some of the Democratic mijority's policies.

ty's policies.

"I also agree with the summit with Oakland and Maomb counties, but I wonder what it means," McCotter said. "Will it be a working session?"

Commissioner Bruce Paterson, R-Canton, thought Solmon expressed himself "very ably" but that the chairman's agenda was "not necessarily the agenda of western Wayne County" particularly on the new spors stadi-

"I may not agree with everything coming out of this commission, but it is important that we have an agenda," Patterson said. "I agree with the oversight of the capital improvement plan, but I will not support the resolutions on the transportation package and opposing Gov. Engler's package."

Commissioner Michelle Plawecki, D-Dearborn Heights, who also represents Redford Township and part of Livonia, agreed with Solomon's agenda.

"It was comprehensive and describes what we're looking to do in the future, but I would rather have it at the beginning of the year, rather than in the middle."

"We took 138,000 calls and made 40,000 reservations," Stokes told the House Conservation Committee. "Our first big test was the Memorial Day weekend."

One glitch involved overbooking of campsites in the Holly Recreation Area. "We caught it and contacted the individuals, giving them one free night at another camping unit," he said.

The second occurred at Holland State Park, which has two units – Lake Michigan and the inland Lake Macatawa. Stokes said DNR can't reserve specific spots, so some of the Macatawa fans had to take Lake Michigan sites.

In reply to a question, Stokes said 96 percent of callers need only one call to get through, and the "hold" time is being kept below two minutes. A private contractor handles camping reservations at toll-free 1-800-44-PARKS. You must pay in advance by credit card; there is also a $5 reservation fee.

Welfare down

The welfare caseload dropped 1,430 to 147,833, lowest since February of 1972, said the Family Independence Agency.

Engler also reported success in the "Project Zero" effort to get targeted welfare clients to work. More than 60 percent have earned income, a rate 50 percent higher than non-participating FIA offices and double the rate of Wayne County.

Target areas are Romulus in western Wayne County and the Tireman area of Detroit. Project Zero is a welfare reform experiment by FIA, the state Jobs Commission, transportation and day care providers and shurch organizations.

Patterson bucks MDOT, offers new plan to fix roads

L. Brooks Patterson isn't warring with fellow Republican John Engler over roads

The Oakland County executive says the governor's roads program was put together in a rush. and is a power grab, by the Michigan Department of Transportation.

"This is MDOT's program," Patterson said of the Engler's socalled "Build Michigan II" program to pump $570 million into state, county and local roads. "They crunched the numbers over a weekend. John (Engler) went to school Tuesday and Wednesday and announced it on a Thursday.'

Patterson is offering his own "reasoned response" with two alternatives - "constructive criticism in a sincere effort to advance the debate.'

Meanwhile, Engler told a news conference last week that he is warning the Legislature to "stay in session for as long as it takes to pass this plan and fix our roads." The Legislature usually adjourns for the summer by the Fourth of July.

Senators opposed

Patterson said the governor's road plan was supported by only four of the state Senate's 22 Republican members last week. Engler's plan has three ele-

■ $570 million more revenue. This breaks down into a 4-cents per gallon hike in the fuel tax, higher weight taxes for trucks, and $200 million more federal ■ Shifting control of 23,000 miles of county and municipal roads to the state, more than tripling the Department of 33,000 miles. ■ Auto insurance - requiring drivers to buy less, if they wish, in order to pay for higher fuel

Transportation's jurisdiction to

Chief problem is MDOT's desire to expand its jurisdiction from 9,600 miles of roads to nearly 33,000. Setting aside the money problems, Patterson criticizes the idea because it would also mean MDOT would have to deal with thousands of permits for curb cuts, traffic signals, street signs, sewer digs and so

"This, indeed, would be challenge," said Patterson, in a rare understatement. Actually he thinks it would be impossible for MDOT in Lansing to handle all the requests and complaints with no more staff and no intimate knowledge of local gripes. He said MDOT is playing the "promise 'em anything" game.

Plan A

Patterson's first counter-proposal is to say, go ahead and take control of 23,000 miles of roads - but with three condi-

■ The state would guarantee Oakland would get 90 percent, instead of 48 percent, of the money it sends to Lansing.

Local officials would prioritize the projects because they "are more aware of and closer to the problem."

■ Engler should abandon his plan to give all the "growth" taxes, such as registration fees (up 7 percent a year) and the diesel fuel tax (up 6 percent a year) and throw locals the crumb of the gasoline tax (up just 2 percent a year). He asks equitable treatment in setting up road funds - "fair play, fair play, fair

His second counter-proposal keeps county and municipal roads under local control but rewrites the PA 51 of 1951 road funding formula. The new formula would be based on lane mileage (rather than linear mileage of the roads) and VMT (for vehicle miles traveled).

"Do you know we have roads that carry 40,000 to 70,000 vehicles a day compared to 10,000 in northern Michigan?" Patterson

"We would suggest that MDOT take control of all interstates and freeways, which the public assumes they have anyway, and leave to the locals the balance of surface roads," he Brent Bair, managing director of the Oakland County Road Commission, did much of the research for Patterson's plan. To prevent a political squabble of winners versus losers," Bair said the state could agree to "hold harmless" the northern counties while shifting new money southward.

Revenue plans

Patterson and Bair offer two other money-raising plans as alternatives to Engler's call for a 4-cents per cent hike in fuel

A 5-cents fuel tax increase. They say Engler's assumption he can squeeze another $200 million out of Washington is politically unrealistic, and that little more than $50 million will be forthcoming.

■ Shifting 1 percent per year of the sales tax on gasoline out of the general fund and into roads. Gasoline buyers pay the 6 percent sales tax but that revenue doesn't go to roads, as most drivers assume. The plan wouldn't shift the sale tax all at once but at 1 percent, or $57 million, a year.

"Gas taxes should be for roads, poses," Patterson said. "So over four years, $228 million of sales tax receipts would be redirected from the general fund to the Michigan Transportation Fund where it belongs

"The total in new revenues, after four years, would be $595 million, slightly more than the governor's proposed $570 million contained in Build Michigan II."

The diverted sales tax would cost public schools money. But Patterson notes that three new Detroit gambling casinos would kick $65 million a year into the school fund, more than making up the $57 million loss from the sales tax on fuel.

Patterson clearly prefers Plan B because it would allow more local control.

Speaking up

It should be without a price

ecent events in the life of Canton High School teacher Ken Smith - who has spoken out about student behavior and discipline - would confirm what pessimistic people believe: You can't speak up without

It appears Smith is paying a price for his opinions and his honesty. He says that since he spoke at a board of education meeting and invited an Observer reporter into the high school, he has been disciplined.

School district officials decline comment. It is considered an employee issue.

At the end of the school year, Smith took a leave on doctor's orders. Before that, he said he was reprimanded and ordered to discontinue giving tours at the high school.

In turn, Smith filed a formal complaint, known as an investigation into discrimination, which will be addressed by a panel of school

The bottom line is that this all has a chilling effect on anyone connected with the schools who wishes to speak up. That's unfor-

Improvement does not come out of the clear blue sky. It usually takes someone to notice, then to take a stand and voice their opinion.

We are a society of people who easily see the wrongs and the just-not-rights about our lives. But instead of commending those who dare to speak up, punishment is the response.

What kind of a message does that send to students? What this teaches is that you should keep your mouth shut because it is not worth the price you will pay to speak up.

Consider how many parents and teachers ask youths to tell the truth - even if it means getting in trouble.

True, some people believe conformity is the best and safest way to get through life. It's likely the safest, if your conscience can live

■ Whether Smith is right or wrong in his opinions and perceptions about student behavior and enforcement of rules at the Plymouth-Canton Educational Park is irrelevant. He has merely offered his opinions.

But for the Ken Smiths of the world, improvement is required and that requires taking a chance.

And it's not that Smith is all alone in his feelings. Some teachers and parents support what he is saying and what he has done. But they admit they are too afraid to make their support public.

In fact, Smith recently filed a police report over a threatening letter he received. Vandals also have driven over his lawn. Don't we live in a wonderfully close and open-minded community?

Whether Smith is right or wrong in his opinions and perceptions about student behavior and enforcement of rules at the Plymouth-Canton Educational Park is irrelevant. He has merely offered his opinions.

Instead of reprimands and threats, Smith should be applauded. He has guts and a sincere interest in students and the environment in which students are supposed to be educat-

Surely, these events will play themselves out. But Smith will never be the same. And more than likely others' response to him will

It sure would be nice if his colleagues and parents who agree with him would do the right thing and step forward in support.

Summertime: Enjoy it safely "Summertime ... and the livin' is easy." legitimate dealer. Read the directions and

We don't want to put a damper on Ira Gershwin's classic paean to summer. The livin' is easier this time of year, especially after coming out of another Michigan winter.

But some of those leisure-time activities can turn dangerous if common-sense safety rules aren't followed. The season brings a slew of warnings from public safety officials and hospital emergency room personnel. We don't mean to sound like doomsayers, and we can't list all of the safety rules for every single summer activity, but just to summarize a few:

■ Watersports. Whether you're swimming in a backyard pool or fishing in Lake Michigan, water can be dangerous. Know the rules. Never swim alone and don't leave a child unobserved near the water. If you have a home swimming pool, make sure you have lifesaving equipment nearby and learn how to use it. If you're boating, wear lifejackets and don't overload the boat. Remember that drinking and boating is just as dangerous as drinking and driving. And whether you're a boater or a Jet-Ski rider, observe the rules of courtesy on the water.

Fireworks. With July 4 approaching, lots of people are stocking up on fireworks. They're fun and they're pretty, but use them properly. Only buy legal fireworks from a warning labels. And remember, bottle rockets and Roman candles are not legal in Michigan. Never light fireworks indoors or near dry grass. Keep a bucket of water or fire extinguisher nearby. Let the kids watch, but leave the lighting of the fireworks to a responsible

■ Barbecue grills. Just about everybody uses them, but there are some cautions to keep in mind. If you use a gas grill, check the connection between the propane tank and the fuel line to make sure nothing is blocked. If you're a charcoal user, be careful using lighter fluid. Never add fluid to an already lit fire. And NEVER use gasoline to start a charcoal fire. Don't leave children unattended near a burning grill.

Sun and heat. That's what summer is all about, after all. But too much of either can be dangerous. If you're going to be outdoors for an extended period of time, wear sun block and reapply it every couple of hours, even if you're in the shade. Drink lots of water and fruit juice. Avoid strenuous activities when the temperature is extremely high. Wear light, loose clothing and a wide-brimmed hat.

Such common-sense rules aren't intended to cramp your style, just to make sure that you enjoy all those summertime activities ... when the livin' is easy.

My head is spinning

First the Republicans in Washington give away the store by blowing the spending caps put in by Democrats in 1993. Then they passed a rule that limits any further tax cuts to entitlement spending cuts, thus ruling out either spending or tax cuts.

Then the Republicans in Lansing with no Constitutional authority raise the state minimum wage and placed First Amendment restrictions on the right of speech (bill board ban on tobacco advertising).

Stop the Republican Party. I want and did get off. I canceled my membership in both Lansing and Washington. I am now looking for a new party to replace the Republican and Democratic parties.

Only 61 percent of Michigan's 2year-olds had received a basic series of recommended vaccines.

As a result, many of these vaccinepreventable diseases which were once believed to have been eliminated are now returning to our area.

In 1990 alone, the incidence of vaccine-preventable diseases such as measles, mumps, rubella and pertussis (whooping cough) exceeded the U.S. Surgeon General's projections for the entire decade of the '90s and their incidence continues to increase.

Since January 1993, in Michigan there have been at least 37 cases of measles and 246 cases of pertussis reported in babies less than 1 year old. During this past year, numerous state and local efforts have been under way to improved Michigan's immunization status in children. Our goal in Michigan is to raise these immunization levels to at least 90 percent over the next few years.

However, to accomplish this goal we need the support and assistance of the many caring parents, grandparents and other concerned individuals

While many are quick to blame the parents for these low immunization levels, in reality, many health-care providers are also not taking full advantage of the opportunities to protect our children. The average 2-yearold has been to a health-care provider at least 10 times, yet it only takes four or five visits to fully immunize a two-year-old. Some things that all caring parents, grandparents and concerned individuals in our area can do to improve our immunization levels include:

Review all of your children's immunization records and make sure that they remain up-to-date and complete. Keep a written copy of your children's immunization records in a safe and secure place.

Ask your children's physicians or other health-care provider if he or she is enrolled in the Health Department's Vaccine Provision Program. This program provides free vaccines to private physicians and other health-care providers in our area, which can significantly reduce the cost of immunizations.

■ Participate in and support local community efforts such as sponsoring an immunization fair in your neighborhood. This could include forming community partnerships with local businesses, hospitals, physicians and other health-care providers, schools, PTA, and other important community groups. The health department is fully committed to support and assist in these efforts as much as possible.

These are just a few ideas and suggestions for making a difference in improving the immunization levels in our area. As Margaret Mead once said, "Never doubt that a small group of thoughtful committed citizens can change the world; indeed, it's the only thing that ever has."

Durant defeat's a repeat of 1925 Scopes trial

s he trotted off into the moonlight - it was after 2 a.m. June 20 - Clark Durant resembled no one more than William Jennings Bryan, who 72 years ago made a fool of himself in a Tennessee courtroom denouncing evolution.

Bryan assisted the prosecution in convicting public school science teacher John T. Scopes, though the verdict would be reversed on appeal. But in the court of public opinion, Bryan humiliated the cause of Christian fundamentalism for more than 50

"Bryan lived too long, and descended too deeply into the mud, to be taken seriously hereafter by fully literate men," said a scribe when Bryan died a week later. "If the fellow was sincere, then so was P.T. Barnum. The word is disgraced and degraded by such uses. He was, in fact, a charlatan, a mountebank, a zany without sense of dignity."

After listening to a mob for hours, the State Board of Education rescinded the "mission statement" Durant rammed through two years ago.

Like Bryan, who vowed to amend the U.S. Constitution to cover the Bible, Durant, now a minority member of the State Board of Education, vowed to take his "mission statement" to the voters and impose it on the state constitution.

Durant fought the bad fight, all the

He refused in 1995 to operate in the collegial way in which public school people and governmental bodies operate, but fashioned his mission statement in secret. He discussed it with board members, one by one, by telephone. If anyone had bothered to prosecute, it would have been a pure violation of the Open Meetings Act At his first meeting, Durant brought it up by surprise, amending the agenda during the "board business" portion of the meeting, the place where you approve the minutes of the last meeting and elect officers. That way, he prohibited public comment, a violation of the Open Meeting Act sec.

So stealthy were Durant's tactics that no one but board members could even see a copy of it until after it was

It was a rambling mission and philosophy statement, poorly outlined, pious platitudes that would be graded "not yet novice" on the state proficiency test for writing. No matter. It never had a place in the constitution, Michigan Compiled Laws or the rule books. It was merely an essay.

But it did contain the germ of the "parents' rights" movement, an effort by authoritarians to allow parents (guided by appropriate clergy, of course) to object to anything in the curriculum and overrule elected boards, superintendents, principals and teachers. In this respect, my brethren in the media missed the long-range significance of the mission statement.

Durant portrayed the effort to rescind his mission statement as an effort to get God out public education. One is reminded of the Dixiecrat senators who, after the U.S. Supreme Court outlawed racial segregation and state-imposed school prayer, said the justices "kicked God out of the schools and let the Negroes in," or words to that effect.

When it came time to erase his mission statement, Durant changed his mind about public discussion. A new State Board president, Kathleen Straus, allowed the public comment that Durant in 1995 had blocked.

Straus, who is Jewish, was a better Christian ("Do unto others," etc.) than Durant. Following the Open Meetings Act, Straus let Durant's pals filibuster for hours, as was their right. But voters last November had decided the issue when it replaced two of Durant's allies on the board. This time the vote was 5-3 to rescind.

The 1925 obituary writer said of Bryan: "It was hard to believe, watching him at Dayton, that he had traveled, that he had been received in civilized societies, that he had been a high officer of the state. He seemed only a poor clod like those around him, deluded by childish theology ..."

One can only hope that Durant doesn't make fools of his Christian followers the way Bryan did.

Tim Richard reports on the local implications of state and regional

Election reform report has good recommendations

ormally, I'm not a fan of special advisory mmissions, blue-ribbon or not.

Too often, such commissions are announced with great fanfare, saddled with inadequate and/or incompetent staff, dominated by the status quo views of big interest groups and left to languish when the politician who created the groups loses interest.

So it was with some amazement and more delight that I read through the report "Recommendations for Improving the Efficiency and Effectiveness of Michigan's Elections System," issued last week by a commission convened by Secretary of State Candice Miller.

Although the report makes six major recomnendations - including easing restrictions on oting by absentee ballot, simplifying the petiion process for candidates and experimenting with mail-in voting - the most far-reaching was to propose consolidating elections into four fixed dates each year, each on the first Tuesday folowing the first Monday of the month:

A winter election to be held in February; A spring election to be held in May;

A primary election to be held in August;

A general election to be held in November. One of the unusual things about the commission is that it included some people who actually know what they're talking about, including Kathy Dornan, Farmington Hills city clerk, Joan McCotter, Livonia city clerk, and Bernie Apol, the retired (and revered) state elections

Also serving on the commission was Rep. Bob Brackenridge, R-St. Joseph, a former Berrien County clerk, who pushed similar ideas last year when he headed the House Local Government Committee. One community in his district held nine elections in a single year!

To take effect, the package needs to be adopted by the Legislature, which is no sure thing, what with roads, taxes and casinos all on the agenda, not to mention all the old chestnuts about "local control."

If enacted into law, though, there would be lots of good consequences.

No more special millage elections, votes held at oddball times, usually pushed through by an alliance between local school officials and teachers unions to get millages and bond issues sed by a low turnout of "school people." We've all heard of such elections with 3, 4, 5 percent turnouts. They're unrepresentative, and they're expensive.

Former Ingham County clerk, Rep. Lingg Brewer, D-Holt, complains, "I've seen school people as cynical as Chicago ward-heelers. They say, 'We've got a multi-million dollar project. Let's sneak this through with Monday elections."

In Livonia, for example, holding the 1996 June school election cost $32,000; with 4,120 people voting, the cost was $7.77 per vote.

Another important recommendation is to create centralized registered voter lists (called a Qualified Voter File) on a big computer: Although most Republicans and many Democrats favor local control over voter lists, Miller's panel disagreed, arguing that "Michigan is the largest state, both in terms of its population and its geographical size to (maintain local voter files)."

"Involving 273 city clerks, 1,242 township clerks and 261 village clerks, Michigan's voter registration system comprises 1,776 separate registration jurisdictions, making it the most decentralized - and hence the most complex voter registration system in the country," the panel said.

"In effect, Michigan maintains 25 percent of the nation's registration jurisdictions to serve less than 4 percent of the nation's population."

Right on, Commission! I'd urge conscientious voters reading the column to contact their local legislator, urging prompt and favorable consideration for the Miller commission's report.

Graduation is celebration of her 'growth'

n a kind moment, the kindergarten teacher commented that the 5-year-old was a "busy" little girl who really enjoyed playing and socializing more than learning.

"Busy" was a kind way of saying hyper in the '70s. Today, she might have been labeled ADD. But the first-grade teacher wouldn't tolerate the busyness and renamed her "the talker." Years later, this little girl would speak out about how the first-grade teacher told her she'd had enough of her mouth and put her in the storage room next door to do her assignments. The rest of her elementary school experience went from bad to worse as talking and socializing became her trademark

'She doesn't listen ... she daydreams ... she talks while I'm talking. She doesn't turn in her homework." On and on it went. Teacher after teacher had little to say that was positive.

Middle school had no redeeming value except for the resource room teacher who tutored her when she had time. School became more and more difficult and her desire to please her teachers and her parents waned. Parent-teacher conferences were painful for her parents, as they knew that they were going to hear. And she knew what she was going to hear when they came home from them.

Her only self-worth came from her exceptional horseback riding ability. Her riding instructor commented that she seemed to "stick to the horse like glue." Riding ribbons soon adorned her room. Although school wasn't going well, she was at least gaining some attention for her riding talents.

Dropping the bomb

Then the bomb dropped. Mom and dad made a grave error. In their effort to set consequences for the bad grades, they tied the riding to the grades and said "no more riding until the grades come up.

Under most circumstances, it would seem appropriate to take away the good stuff until the grades improve, but in this little girl's life, her ego and self-regard were linked to her riding abilities. Coinciding with their ultimatum was

At the age of 4, Mason was watching "The Ed Sullivan Show" on television when she told her parents she wanted to be an entertainer.

By the time she was a sophomore in high school in Toronto, Ontario, Canada, she was auditioning for and performing at the Rainbow Stage in Winnipeg, Manitoba. She was in four stage productions with actors like Eddie Foye Jr.

By the age of 12, she was studying Trudy Mason and Laura Gumina with Celia Turner at the Willoway Hills and performing in productions of "The Importance of Being Earnest" and "A Midsummer Night's Dream.'

The two veteran actresses/directors hope to pass on the experiences of their youthful years through the Summer Apprentice Program, which begins Monday, June 30, at the Trinity House Theatre in Livonia.

The program is open to children 10 years and older and offers handson training in a fully equipped theater, culminating in a performance experience.

Two workshops will be offered as Gumina will direct the first session. Its focus will be on drama with students learning and rehearsing for a production of Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" on July 18.

"It has the entire plot and characters, but some of the elaboration and development is not there," said Gumina, a Redford resident and longtime Trinity House member. "With Shakespeare, the language seems foreign to the ear, but the story is simple."

Mason will delve into music theater during the second session, with students presenting a revue, featuring four-five different musical theater styles on Aug. 14.

"This is a little bit unique because we won't gather and do musical theater," Mason said. "I'll take them on a historical journey through musical theater from vaudeville until now."

While Gumina will be the instructor and director for her session, Mason will be bringing in professionals to share in the instruction. Included in the group will be Judy Holler, who co-authored the musical stage production of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," which was performed by the Huron Civic Theatre last year. Holler is looking for the musical to be picked up by major producers, Mason said.

"She'll actually be working with us in the capacity of a musical coach," the Dearborn resident said. "In straight theater, the director is it, but in musical theater, you have the director, musical director and choreographer."

REAL ESTATE UPDATE by Chris Knight

THE QUIRKS

Every house has some quirks", and some defects that go a lot further than mere quirks. Placing a lessthan-perfect house on the market is fine if you and your Realtor give the buyers information on any "hidden defects"

Most litigation in real estate transactions involves buyers suing sellers for failure to disclose something. Whether it is a leaky roof, dry rot, plumbing or heating problems or a wet basement. most courts do not apply a "let the buyer beware" rule to real estate transactions. Even if the buyers had a structural inspection and the property was sold "as is", you may not get off the hook. Sellers have an obligation to disclose both obvious and hidden defects. Courts have not been sympathetic to sellers who have lived in a house and are in a position to know what works and what doesn't. This is one area where honesty is the only policy.

weeks' time is "very ambitious," considering the participants will only be at the theater five hours a day, and that's with a 45minute lunch break.

But they're confident. After all, this is the seventh year that theater has done the apprentice program. And they will be tapping the skills of young thespians who have been involved with the program and the theater in the past.

"We have some stock characters," Gumina said. "One is returning this year who was in the program last year. We'll use a young woman whose not yet in college for teaching support and another whose in the CAPA (creative and performing arts) program at Clarenceville.'

won't be there for the whole program," added Mason. "But we do invite people to come and help."

Gumina needs 14 students so everyone can have a role in "Twelfth Night." Mason's class can accommodate 12-22 students, although the optimum is 16, she said.

The drama session costs $225, and budding thespians should call to see if there are still openings. The second session costs $270, payable in three $90 installments, or $245, if paid by July 28. The registration deadline for that session is July 14. For more information, call (313) 538-5973.

"It doesn't show up until the lunch break," added Mason, pointing to her cohort as the person most responsible for encouraging children at Trinity House Theatre. "One of the things for young people is that when they do something like this, they will remember it for a lifetime. Because of the intensity, it will be a clear and hopefully wonderful memory."

Gumina studied speech and theater at Northwestern University and began acting in 1970. She has appeared in productions at the Bonstelle Theater in Detroit, Fourth Street Playhouse in Royal Oak and at Greenfield Village/Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn.

Her directing and teaching credits include Trinity House Theatre, where she has been director of the summer youth drama program since 1990, Attic Theatre in Detroit, Actors Alliance Theatre Co. in Southfield, Roeper School in Bloomfield Hills and the Southfield Public Schools.

"I did some professional stuff as a child and started directing early on in my career," she said.
"I found I could direct and have success, so I see myself now more as a director."

After the summer work in Winnipeg, Mason returned home, but when the Rainbow Stage troupe paid a visit to Royal Alex in Toronto later on, she was asked to rejoin. "I did and never looked back," she said.

In addition to Toronto, she has lived in New York, Providence, R.I., and San Francisco before settling in Dearborn. She discovered Trinity House through a friend in Toronto, saw a few of its productions and liked what she saw.

"I have the best of both worlds," she said. "I have an agent and do industrial films and stage work, when I can. I tell the kids to stick to their guns, if this is what they want to do and get your degree.

A community theater founded in 1981 by members of Trinity Baptist Church, Trinity House Theatre is at 38840 W. Six Mile Road, Livonia.

Formerly a church, it has been remodeled into a 92-seat theater that produces three stage plays a year and several variety showstyle performances, called "Common Room." For more information, call (313) 464-6302.

As her mother put the phone down, she again cried, silently. And the girl grew some more. By the end of that fateful year, she had grown up.

Her dad called her and suggested that he knew of a community college that she could get in to, if she wanted. She pondered the idea for a long time. This was a tough decision for someone who'd had so many negative school experiences. She wondered if she would be able to buckle down or whether she'd even know how to study.

After much thought, she called home and said she was ready to try college. Mother was shocked.

And mother laughed, but not silently. The fourth year was the best, but the hardest. # Mets/Tigers win Invite

In the first-ever Plymouth-Canton Junior Baseball League Invitational for 11 and 12 year-old boys, the Mets/Tigers team used a strong start to gain an 11-7 victory over the Dodgers/Royals in Saturday's championship game at Plymouth Township Park.

A total of eight teams competed in the Invitational, six of them from the Plymouth-Canton area and two from Northville. The field was divided into two four-team divisions, with each team playing the other members of its division to determine a divisional winner.

The Mets/Tigers and the Dodgers/Royals each advanced by virtue of three-straight victories in pool play. The Mets/Tigers beat the Diamondbacks/Rockies 12-8; the Cubs 15-9; and the Northville Padres 13-9.

Dodgers/Royals Athletics/Twins 15-7; the White Sox 10-9; and the Northville Pirates 13-9.

In the championship game, the Mets/Tigers built a 7-1 lead, then held off the Dodgers/Royals comeback to gain the title.

Shark Club perfect site for showdown

It was everything the crowd that her first lead, 9-8. jammed into Canton's Shark Club could have asked for.

The top two-rated players in the Women's Professional Billiard Association emerged from a field of 48 to face off in the final of the $50,000 Imperial International Detroit Classic last Sunday.

And as one might have hoped, it was a showdown worth waiting for.

No. 1-ranked Allison Fisher, the WPBA's defending national champion, found herself in a battle against No. 2-rated Jeanette Lee. The championship round (the first to win 11 games is the champ) was a backand-forth struggle, with Lee opening up a lead of 5-0.

But Fisher showed her title form by turning the tide, eventually tying the match at seven games each. A split in the next two games left it still tied at 8-all before Fisher took Lee could not regain her earlier form, as Fisher prevailed 11-8.

The victory, Fisher's third this year on the 10-event WPBA Classic Billiard Tour (Canton marked the fifth stop), earned her the $6,000 top prize. Lee collected $4,000 for second place.

Robin Dodson placed third to take home $3,000 in winnings, with Vivian Villarreal, the 1996 Detroit Classic champion, finishing fourth to earn $2,200.

The tournament attracted greater numbers than last year's first-time appearance at the Shark Club, according to Shari Stauch, public relations director for the WPBA. "Last year it was a little slow," Stauch said, citing the new location and May date as reasons.

"This year it was jammed. Saturday night we had a full house, and so was Sunday."

With the '97 WPBA Classic Tour having reached midpoint, it s e e m s apparent it will be a two-person race. Fisher the won first two events on the before Lee rallied to end her including the end of the '96 season, Fisher had won seven in a row - by taking the next two stops.

Total focus: Anita Kuczma ignores the competitourtion (background) as she aims at the cue ball.

Adray splits pair with Windsor Selects

Detroit is Hockey Town in the states, but it's got nothing on Windsor.

Consider what happened between games of an Adray Metro Baseball Association double-header played by the Windsor Selects and Livonia Adray Sunday night at Mic-Mac Park in Windsor.

The Selects had just won the first game, 6-5, when a couple of their players put away their bat and glove in exchange for backey equipment

An 8 p.m. ice hockey game awaited, leaving the Selects with nine players and the Adray players shaking their heads.

Over there, hockey is king even when it's 80 degrees and sunny.

"One of their players said 'We're not playing a double-header, I've got to play hockey at 8 O'clock,' " Adray statistician extraordinaire Paul Pintar said. "I didn't realize it knocked them down to nine guys. It's more important over there."

Adray took advantage of the players' absences, winning the nightcap, 14-6.

The winning pitcher in the second game was Matt Sebring, who entered in the third inning in relief of Nick Newman. Sebring shut the Selects down, allowing no runs on two hits, three walks and two strikeouts in 3 2/3 innings.

Newman allowed six runs, none earned, on seven hits and was the victim

He had one strikeout and three walks. Jason Schnob went 3 for-4, including a double, and scored three runs. Aaron Cagnon was 1-3, scored one run and drove in a run. Jason Steucher was 1-4 with an RBI.

Justin Ishbia was 1-3, scored a run and had three RBI. Derrick Wolfe was 2for-4, including a double, scored two runs and drove in three. Remarkably, his most productive at-bat came when all he did was experiment with a swinging bunt.

His at-bat started with the bases loaded with Schnob, Todd Tobin and Kevin Uzarski. Schnob came home on a wild pitch, sending Tobin and Uzarski to third and second, respectively.

The Selects' pitcher then committed a balk, sending Tobin home and Uzarski to third. The at-bat mercifully ended for the Selects when Wolfe hit a swining bunt for a single, sending Uzarski home.

Uzarski finished 2-for-3, with a double, and drove in three runs. His two-run single highlighted a four-run fourth inning. He added an RBI double in the He wasn't nearly as productive as his Adray is now 6-8.

RAMS 9-6, STARS 8-6: Rickey Miller threw 4 1/3 innings of strong relief in the first game of a double-header Sunday, allowing the Michigan Lake Area Rams to salvage a split against the Windsor Stars.

Miller allowed one unearned run on two hits in relief of Johnny Rogers.

Schuyler Doakes had two stolen bases and scored a run while going 1-for-5. Greg Rogers was 1-3 with a run scored and Miller helped his cause, scoring three runs after walking three times and getting one hit in one official at-bat.

Brian Issitt was 3-3, with a stolen base and an RBI. Jason Hoorn was 1-1 with an RBI and a run scored.

Tom Hartley was 2-3, including a home run, with two runs and an RBI.

The Rams scored four runs in the fifth, The Selects won the first game with highlighted by singles from Tom Biljan. Hartley and Todd Miller and walks to Rickey Miller and Issitt. An error on a ball hit by Eric Pierce also aided in the scoring.

Tom Willerer was the losing pitcher in the second game despite allowing only three earned runs in 5 1/3 innings.

Terry Bigham pitched 2/3 of an inning of the seventh. Eric Wilhelm started the and Hoorn one inning, striking out all three batters he faced.

The Rams scored three runs in the seventh and would have had more were it not for exceptional defense and timing by the

A line drive with two runners aboard turned into a double play to get the Stars the Rams' Joe Seestadt.

Doakes was 2-4, scored two runs and had two stolen bases to lead the Rams. Cagnon and Ishbia each went 1-3 with Greg Rogers was hit by a pitch, walked and scored two runs. Issitt was 2-3, stole a base, and had four RBI

Miller scored twice while going 1-3.

Motor City Mold fall to Compuware

It had to end some time.

The Motor City Mold's winning streak in the Incredible Girls Fastpitch Softball League, which spanned more than one season, came to an end on Tuesday against Compuware at Canton High School.

Compuware swept a pair of games from the Mold, 8-1 and 8-6, as the Mold fell to 2-2 for the 1997 season.

SOFTBALL

Erica Hancz, who went 1-for-3, scored the Mold's only run in the first game. Jenny Fisher was the losing pitcher, hurting her cause with seven walks and three hit batters. She showed promise with four strikeouts as Compuware managed nine hits.

In the second game, the Mold hung tough behind the seven-hit pitching of Patty Snook. She also walked four batters and hit one.

Christy Even had a double and single and scored two runs. Shelly Priebe had two RBI and Hancz was 2-3 with a Alana Helkkinen, Sr. pitcher, Farmington: Heikkinen capped a four-year varsity career with an outstanding senior season in which she led the Falcons to division and district championships.

She completed all 27 games she started, posting a 234 record with a 1.18 earned run average. In 176 innings, she had 175 strikeouts and only 15 walks. Heikkinen also was Farmington's leading hitter, batting .447 for the entire season and .500 in the post-season tournaments. She had 42 hits, including seven doubles and three triples, 34 RBI and just eight strikeouts in 94 chances.

Heikkinen, who will play at Albion College next season, was a player who led by example and ability. "She was the drving force for us with her presence on the mound and her hitting," coach Jerry Osborne said. She was an obvious leader on the field. When she did well, the team did

In 141 inning, Hudson struck out 118 and walked just 22. She sported an area best earned run alerage of 1.04.

Her two-year vasity record is 26-8. She also hit .330 (nine for 29) in limited offensive duty

"Gretchen is definitely getting better." Canton coach Jim Arnold said. "She lowered her ERA and increased her strikeouts. Her speed has picked up and and rise ball is more effective. It is probably her best pitch."

Hermann was voted All-Catholic, All-District and was the team's top scholarathlete.

In 24 games, Hermann finished with a plays at the 15-9 record and an impressive 1.26 earned run average. In 172 innings pitched, she struck out 215 and walked only 69.

She lost some games where we didn't score many runs. She never complained. We're definitely going to miss her."

Lori Jendrusik, Jr. pitcher, Livonia Franklin: After taking her lumps as a sophomore on the varsity, Jendrusik guidance of coach Jerry Osborne, came of age during her junior season for the Patriots.

"Basically her hard work has paid off during the off-season," Franklin coach Linda Jimenez. "She was out there three to four days per week.

"Her teammates chose her as captain for next year and that says a lot about her as person. She's real team player. She stays positive when things go wrong. She shows a lot of leadership. The All-WLAA choice was also the Patriots' leading hitter with a .457 average (42 hits in 92 at-bats). She had 11 extra base hits, scored 26 runs and knocked in 23. "We used a designated hitter for her last year," Jimenez said. "We wanted her to concentrate on pitching, but after she hit so well during the summer, we decided to let her bat during the school without a doubt." Defensively. Volpe had a .962 fielding average with only one error all year.

Jenni Talbot, Sr. catcher, Garden City: Talbot's contributions at the plate, both offensively and defensively, will be sorely missed.

A three-year starter, Talbot batted .373 (38-102) with 24 runs scored, 35 RBI, seven doubles, two triples and two home runs as a senior. Talbot may end up playing volleyball at Schoolcraft College.

Kelly Moug, Jr. infielder, Mercy: Moug was a defensive standout at shortstop, a key part of the Mercy offense and an All-Catholic player.

She hit .325 with 23 RBI; her 26 hits included three doubles. She also had the most at-bats (80), tied for the team lead in walks (15), was 7-for-7 stealing bases and scored 13 runs.

guts of the team." "Alana would take the ball and, by her example, say: 'Get on my shoulders; I'm going to carry you." coach Jerry Osborne said. "Kristin would say: 'OK, ladies, here's what we have to do as a team; let's get out there and do it.'

McDonald made five errors, finishing the year with a .941 fielding average. "She's the best overall player I've had, easy to coach, very knowledgeable," Nagy said. "She probably one of the strongest arms in the area. She has extreme base running skills, and is also centage, 27 RBI and eight doubles. Griffus also had three triples and one

As a junior, Sikora hit .447 with 23 RBI and 15 of 19 stolen bases en route to first-team All-Observer honors.

Sikora is considering playing at either Henry Ford CC or Madonna University.

Goalies at scorers' mercy in hockey loop

Goals are aplenty as the eightteam Metro Summer Hockey League reconvened for the 1997 season Tuesday, Monday and Sunday at the Plymouth Cultural Center Ice Arena.

A 5-0 first-period run gave the Huskies a 10-8 victory over the Wolverines as Livonian Kevin Swider, who played Omaha (Neb.) Lancers and recently signed with Ferris State, scored four goals for the winners.

Ian Crockford and Chad Thuer each added a pair of goals for the Jay Storm led the Wolverines with a hat trick.

The Wolverines got a hat trick from Pat Dahki, a Michigan State University club player from Southfield, in a 10-8 victory Monday the Lakers.

Another MSU club player, Ryan Schumacher, added two goals for the winners.

Eric Evans (Ferris State) from Michigan Center led the Lakers with two goals.

Art Baker went all the way in the nets for the Wolves.

A five-goal final period gave the Bulldogs an 11-5 victory over the Spartans in the nightcap.

Jon Cipriani of Novi, who played for the Wayne AA midget team. had six goals for the victorious

Ryan Gauthier of Canton, who played for the Michigan Nationals, scored twice for the Spartans.

Only two penalties were called in the game, both coming in the first period.

Shawn Miller and Bob Harrison split time in the Bulldogs' net.

In the season opener Saturday, the Spartans outgunned the Falcons, 9-6, as Bob Nagy of Wyandotte led the winners with a pair

In perhaps the most lopsided game in MSHL history, the Broncos routed the Bulldogs, 16-4, as Jake Wiegand, Tau Patterson, Ben Blackwood and Dan Trainor each scored twice for the victors.

Ironcially, Eddie McDonald scored the game's first goal for the Bulldogs before the Broncos rattled off eight unanswered goals. The University of Wisconsin's Dustin Kuk (Livonia) broke the drought at 7:02 of the second period for the Broncos.

John Trainor and Casey Osting split time in the Broncos' goal. In the final game of the tripleheader, the Wildcats bested the Huskies, 6-4, as Krikor Armon scored twice for the winners.

Corey Swider (Livonia) tallied a pair of goals for the Huskies.

Larry Jesue of the Wheatley (Ontario) Sharks went all the way in goal for the Wildcats.

Reds' alert: Major league team looks at prospects

BY STEVE KOWALSKI STAFF WRITER

A police escort it wasn't, but Red-ford Township resident Joel Halliday will never forget the assist Livonia's finest gave him Monday morning as he arrived for the Cincinnati Reds tryout camp at Ford Field.

For those who have complained about being late for an appointment because the police pulled them over, consider Halliday's good fortune.

As he pulled into the parking lot at Diamond No. 1, Halliday and passenger Chris Montambo stepped out of the car with gloves in hand and the keys still in the ignition.

Some players may think about leaving the car running while trying out, not expecting to stay long, but that wasn't their intentions

The pair of Redford Union High School students accidentally locked the keys in the car and luckily police were already on hand directing traffic for the Spree, Livonia's annual carni-

Officer Christina Sears was alerted and she got a colleague to unlock their car doors.

The boys didn't even need to call

Montambo probably wanted to an hour later, however, as he stepped into the batter's box against hardthrowing right-hander Wade Travis. who has pitched the last four seasons at Eastern Michigan University.

It was quite a transition for Montambo, who spent the last season playing on RU's junior varsity.

"I've never faced nothing like that before," Montambo mumbled after striking out. "I'm going to get some water. I'm dehydrated from whiffing."

Where is everyone?

Only 34 players aged 16 to 22 showed up for the Reds' yearly visit. Most found out through newspaper advertisements or their coaches.

The turnout pales in comparison to years ago when more than 100 would show up at the Reds' camps run by former area scout Joe Carbo, father of Livonia Franklin graduate and Boston Red Sox player Bernie Carbo.

RU was the high school with the largest contingent of players as recent graduates Mike Noonan and Chad Duchesneau joined Halliday

"We used to have to turn people away at some camps - that's how much it's fallen off," remembers Reds' scout Don Byrd. "I've been told our camp is one of the loosest there is. If more kids knew that, they'd come out. A lot get uptight and think we're only going to see their flaws."

Byrd knows the field well, coming back every year since the early '80s. None of the players came close to hit-ting one out Monday.

Rumor has it. Bernie (Carbo) hit the furthest ball here at this field, over that road (Farmington)," Byrd

The dream never dies for some, which explains why Brian Robert, a 1995 Westland John Glenn graduate, was there despite failing to make the team as a walk-on at EMU.

"I played varsity at Glenn, but it didn't mean much when I got to Eastern," Robert said.

The Reds' personnel, led by scouting supervisor Robert Koontz, reminded the players to stay calm. that a bad day isn't going to make or break their chances. Anyone who spent time talking to Don Hill, a Reds scout for 25 years, could reach a comfort zone right away.

When a visitor asked Hill to repeat his first name, he answered "Over Whoever breaks seven seconds is worth a second look. Anyone who takes longer than eight seconds better be a pitcher.

As the players got in line to run, Hill shouted to a colleague who was standing near the runners' path: "Remember the guy who got cracked

Hill was referring to a scout years ago who accidentally was run over by an overambitious runner.

"That was when we had a lot of players, we had to run four to six at a time," remembers Hill. "A guy was running with his eyes closed, ran over one of our guys and he was hurting

Long shots (and throws)

After the running, came the throwng and fielding.

Infielders fielded ground balls deep at third base, which was a challenge for Duchesneau, a second baseman at RU who wasn't used to the long be teammates, not adversaries. Tim Reeves, who just finished his junior year at Glenn, hit the ball sharply, but right to the shortstop.

"Good shot, kid," said Jack Broderick, a recent Orchard Lake St. Marv graduate who plays with Reeves on an Ann Arbor Connie Mack team. "He's my teammate, I've got to root for him.

"(Henry Ford coach) Stu Rose says I've got to be a student athlete," Hoffmeyer said.

Hoffmeyer's career highlight was beating Dearborn Divine Child lefthander Ryan Anderson in last year's Class B district. Anderson was the Seattle Mariners' first-round draft pick, the 19th pick overall, but Hoffmeyer kept that fact to himself.

"The scouts asked us before we started if anyone faced the Big Unit (Anderson)', but I kept it to myself," Hoffmeyer said. "I should have told them, but I don't want to brag, I just want to play the game."

Chuck Coleman, a 21-year old from Belleville who formerly pitched for Walter's Appliance of the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League, shows he's still got it. Hill's jugs gun had Coleman averaging 83 miles per hour with a high of 85.

Not bad for a guy who plays slow pitch softball twice a week and works days loading cars at Auto Rail Services downriver.

"I'm curious to find out how hard I still throw," Coleman said. "I was mid to upper 80s. The worst they can do is turn me around and send me home."

Players are assigned numbers for identification, but scouts learn the names of the better players in a hurry.

Travis, the pitcher from EMU. received his grades, then retreated to the car with his father, Jim.

They were off to the home of Gordie Rutherford, where Wade would get some ice to treat his arm (and, knowing Rutherford, probably eat some health food). Rutherford is the father of Mark Rutherford, a recent Philadelphia Phillies' draft pick and former teammate of Travis' at EMU.

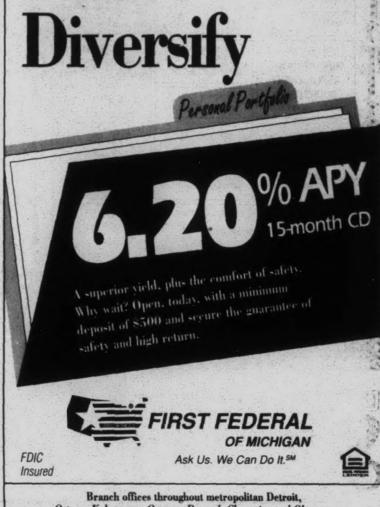

After there, it was off to Cincinnati where Travis will try out for the Devil Rays, a future Major League expansion team from Tampa, Fla.

The elder Travis was asked who is paying for the gas.

"I am," he said as his son got in I passenger's seat.

A wise investment, he hopes.

he organizations listed on this page and their employees are being recognized for their outstanding achievements in the 1996 United Way Campaign. These organizations represent those with 10 or more employees.

Thanks to their commitment and dedication, United Way donations reached out to fulfill our community's greatest needs... providing healthy, enriching opportunities for youth; providing a safe place for families who are victims of domestic violence; low-cost medicine for older adults, and training and counseling for unemployed workers.

Because of your help, United Way Community Services and more than 130 funded agencies work every day to give those in need one more reason to smile.

"In 1995, I wasdiagnosed with cancer.

I FELT ALIENATED. I felt I would no longer look at myself the same way. And one thing I noticed when I WENT TO ST. JOE'S in ANN ARBOR, was that they were well aware of those emotions.

I TRUSTED IN THEM that they were honest nd forthright, and cared about me as not just their patient, but as a person. What was so comforting, and still is, is knowing that they're there. It's knowing that they're there.

This mother of two young children who lives just two

I've been very faithful to my Valorie and I don't plan on changing my ways

The story begins earlier in the day.

He explained the long sheets of paper which showed the normal blood counts and the readings on my cat Pee Wee, and he knew what I was going to say even before lead it.

"I was hoping you would see it that way, Joe." He asked me if I wanted to see Pew Wee before the cat was put to I said no way and got out of there

Doc Morrison saved that kitten (Kenmore) and I brought it home as a companion for Pew Wee. He would jump on Pee Wee's back and ride all over the house without ever a complaint from the big guy, who weighed in at 36

Q: We own a home that was built in the early seventies and is in in the early seventies and is in great shape in a great neighborhood. We thought we might trade up, but have decided to stay put and update this home. Our biggest problem is a very dark kitchen. What do you suggest we do to update this outdated space?

A: For starters, while every kitchen remodeling job is at least slightly.

remodeling job is at least slightly unique from every other, your specific needs are not uncommon. This might be one of the most frequently posed problems in kitchen remodeling today.

The first recommendation would be to talk with friends and family to see if you could identify a design firm that works in your area specializing in kitchen design. Spend the time required to find a contractor that is licensed and insured, and with whom you feel comfortable. Be sure to check out professional affiliations.

Since many kitchen arrangements are possible and must take in details like room configuration, size, decor and budget, let's use a specific kitchen that required the same improvements

The family talked to fellow members of their church and were introduced to a reputable remodeling contracting firm that had done several jobs for people in the congregation. He in turn brought in a designer that he had worked with on numerous occasions who represented products that would fit the needs of the family.

The design suggested completely removing the dark cabinets and dark wood paneling and moldings. The maple flooring was to be sanded and refinished in a very light finish. Off-white, painted cabinets were selected and a design allowing the maximum amount of natural light to come into the room was developed. Then an addi-tional window was added to shed light on the rorner.

Boundless beauty: Roger and Barbara Beaune have spent 19 years transforming their property into a bounty of designerly plantings. Staff photos by Jim Jagdfeld.

Garden delights at every turn

Giant poplar trees and little else were growing on the property when Roger and Barbara Beaune built their ranch style home just down the street from Greenmead Historical Village in 1979.

A portion of the 1-1/2 acres remains untouched and serves as home to a variety of birds, rabbits and occasionally, a deer.

The Beaunes' property is one of seven private gardens along with Greenmead's on a walk 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, June 28. Proceeds will go toward restoration of the Alexander Blue House at Greenmead

If you're looking for new ideas to add to your outdoor gardens and landscaping, the seventh annual garden walk sponsored and hosted by Friends for Development of Greenmead should offer plenty of inspiration.

"It's hard for me to pick just one," said Janet Bennett, Friends president and walk chairperson. "All of the gardens are all very different, so I think we'll have something to appeal to everybody.

"There's everything from the house with the North woods to another with literally hundreds of hostas from celery color to green into blues." Many of the gardeners like the Beaunes will be on hand to greet visitors and answers questions. "The walk will give people ideas whether they have a small space or a large yard," Bennett said, "and the enthusiasm of the gardeners is infectious." Tickets for the garden walk are $7 in advance, or $8 on the day of the walk.

They are available in advance at all Livonia libraries, the Civic Center Library Gift Shop, and the Community Resources department on the fifth floor of Livonia City Hall. On the day of the walk, tickets will only be sold at Greenmead and the Livonia Civic Center Library.

> For more information, call Community Resources at (313) 421-2000, Ext. 351.

Terrain transformation

When the Beaunes first moved to northwest Livonia 19 years ago, there was nothing but trees, a few homes and a horse who lived next

Roger, a mason operating his own business with sons Roger Jr. and Tony, has transformed the terrain into a labyrinth of walkways and flower boxes filled with rhododendrons, azalea and German irises.

Brick walls greet and guide visitors to the back yard. Along the way, a three-tiered fish pond with waterfall soothes with the sounds of rushing water. Roger originally built a single fish pond

"It took a while, so we did a little bit at a time," Roger Beaune said. "Trying to maintain everything is a job in itself."

"All we do is work in the vard." Barbara added, "but we love it. We're very family oriented and have a lot of barbecues. This is our weekend getaway. It's just like going up north."

A heart-shaped flower bed of red and white begonias lies under a maple tree. Pachysandra covers the ground beneath towering white and jack pines planted from seedlings. Beyond the deck, raised brick flower beds guide visitors toward a rustic gazebo.

Cut-up telephone poles form one edge of a flower bed and lead visitors toward an untouched nature area. Yet another keystone and paver walkway leads visitors through the wooded site where Roger "sees a deer every now and then."

"It feels like country to us," Barbara said. "There were only a few homes when we moved in. We raked out all of the rocks and seeded all the lawn."

The Beaunes' garden was on the walk in 1992.

"We decided to be on the walk again because we enjoy sharing our flowers and gardens and we know the walk is to raise money for Greenmead which is right down the street," Roger said.

In the last few years, Friends for Development of Greenmead has contributed $25,000 in proceeds from the walk for the restoration of the Blue House.

A new fund-raiser for this year's walk is a miniplant sale to take place at the ticket table at Hill House. Greenmead program supervisor Marian Renaud is still accepting donations of potted and identified plants at (810) 477-7375.

"People won't want to leave the grounds before seeing the Hill House gardens including the rock garden with pond, herb and wildflower gardens, and a lovely rolling lawn with a lot of color,"

Peaceful waters: Roger Beaune built the three-tiered fish pond with a waterfall that provides a rush of soothing sounds.

Play it safe for summer: Order home inspection

Statistics indicate that more people are injured at home than in car wrecks and work-related accidents combined. Summer is especially dangerous, as more people are involved in physical activities and household projects.

About 3 million children and adults will be injured at home this year, and about 22,500 more will die as a result of household accidents, the National Safety Council said. Many of these accidents are avoidable with routine safety pre-

"Many of the homes we inspect are unsafe in one way or another," said Bob Bowling of Plymouth-based AmeriSpec, the largest home inspection company in North America.

"One of the greatest benefits of a professional home inspection is that it identifies ways the homeowner can correct potential unsafe situations. It also arms the owner with information that can prevent costly repairs down the road."

As part of its Summertime Safety program, AmeriSpec will give a free first aid kit to every home buyer who chooses the company for home inspection between now and Saturday, June 28. Take a family vote on whether you will feature a sepia-tone (brownish tint) snapshot of your grandfather's 1918 family portrait, a photo collage of Mom and Dad as children, or a handcolored closeup of your 5-year-old daughter playing dress-up in Mom's clothing.

When Atkinson returned home, he began looking at pictures and mementos. Photographs of bonsai sparked his interest. His first plant was a gift, a Juniper from a magazine advertisement.

He perfected his craft by learning from books, then in 1972 attended his first convention in Kansas City.

Bonsai is a relaxing hobby for anybody of any age, in fact it's best to get into it at a young age," said Evanoff, who won the Midwest American Bonsai Alliance Award for Excellence last year with an Alberta Spruce Grove.

Bonsaiists are honest, artistic and fascinating, he also said. Each person styles in his or her own fashion.

Many of Evanoff's books, plants and tools have been gifts from his children and grandchildren. He joined the club when Randall was president and has taken classes from both men. Priah at the Bonsai House in Livonia is also very helpful, Evanoff said

They all agree that these plants need very coarse and fast-draining soil mix.

Randall uses this formula: 1/3 each of coarse sand, turface (a high-fired clay product) and ground fir bark (used for orchid seedlings). He fertilizes with a combined water-soluble mix at full strength in the winter and when plants are indoors, and organic products such as bone meal, cottonseed and dried blood when they're out.

He prefers the bone meal or cottonseed, forms it into a patty that disintegrates over time, and lays them on the soil and waters as usual.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO

he self-described "Sybil of rock 'n' roll," John Hiatt wanted to lighten up a bit on his latest and 14th album, "Little Head" (Capitol) and keep the songs a little less serious than his 1995 Capitol Records debut, "Walk On" (Capitol).

He makes his intentions clear right from the start with the title track, a funky warning about what can happen when a man thinks with the wrong part of his body. "It's mostly women who seem to appreciate that song. Frankly most of them have suspected it's the truth anyway. Some of the fellas seem to be in denial," Hiatt said with a laugh via telephone from his Kentucky hotel suite.

The song, he said, "just kind of showed up one day. I actually stole the line. We had a tour manager four or five years ago who used to warn us, 'You're in trouble when the little head starts doing the thinkin'.

The song "Woman Sawed in Half" is inspired by Maureen McGovern's "Torn Between Two Lovers." In "Feelin' Again" he talks about "all those nights just killed a billion brain cells." With "Sure Pinocchio" he comes up with the clever rhyme You put me in a box, like God and his uncle/Smellin' like old gym socks, lookin' like Artie Garfunkel.'

Musically, the album "Little Head" is less somber than "Walk On."

"There's no mandolin," Hiatt said. "We kind of let the songs tell us what to do. That's what they were saying, 'Lighten up.' They never appeared to need a mandolin. They seemed better suited to the four-piece rock band.' For the album he collected the Nashville Queens - Hiatt, guitar and piano; David Immergluck, guitar, pedal steel, dobro, and electric sitar; Davey Faragher, bass; Gary Ferguson, drum; Peter Holsapple, organ and piano; and Efrain Toro, percussion.

"They can really do the do. We flushed it out a little bit with percussion. ... The record was cut live which is a real key to the fun factor in the record. All the cuts are first take. It's got that sort of excitement, The Michigan TasteFest

I think, of the initial blush of inspiration.

Fans can feel the "fun factor" themselves when John Hiatt closes out the five-day Michigan TasteFest in Detroit's New Center Area on Sunday, July 6.

Themed "Savor the flavors - feast on the fun," the ninth annual TasteFest features 65 free performances and 36 Michigan restaurants selling "tastes" of their specialties including Cajun, Thai, Polish, Italian, Greek, Indian, British, Mexican, Middle Eastern, Japanese, soul food, seafood, and desserts Wednesday, July 2-Sunday, July 6.

"This is a civic celebration of the best kind, a showcase of community harmony, business resources and enthusiasm," said Patricia Haller, executive director of the Michigan

"We've described it as a worldclass smorgasbord, but TasteFest is more than food and free entertainment, it's a coming together, a blending of business and community, a family-oriented activity-filled five days organized by those of us who dearly love and are proud of the progress of metropolitan Detroit."

The community feel is one of the reasons why Hiatt likes to play events like this, The Taste of Milwaukee's and Chicago, Summerfest.

"They're just a lot of fun. The people are there. The city is involved and it just seems like more of a community kind of atmosphere not just a show.

Plus, he added with a laugh, "we like to eat."

Thirty six Michigan restaurants are participating this year including Fishbone's Rhythm Kitchen Cafe of Southfield which will provide bourbon street whiskey ribs, crawfish etouffee, and bourbon street pudding; and the Orchid Cafe of Troy which will serve crispy shrimp toast, spring rolls, chicken fried rice, and garlic beef noodle.

Smoke' En Gators of Rochester Hills will serve up gator bites with pineapple salsa, sweet and sour gator with southern green beans and rice, red beans and rice, authentic fried green tomatoes with ranch dressing; while Steve's Back Room of West Bloomfield brings tabbouleh, hummus, vegetarian Middle East combo, and vegetarian stuff grape

Proceeds generated by the festival fund the New Center Foundation, Inc.'s, annual work program as well as a number of charitable programs serving the community, including an winning sumn er vouth pro gram at the local Fairbanks Elementary School. In the last two years, the New Center Foundation has donated $22,000 in TasteFest proceeds to Fairbanks School for computer hardware and software, blacktop for a parking lot play space, and individual subscription to Weekly Reader for each child.

Hiatt's appearance at the TasteFest is one of a handful that he's doing to warm up for his summer European and fall U.S. tours.

"We're just kind of doing a few gigs through the summer to call ourselves professionals. We're kind of getting started slowly," Hiatt said.

He's spent the last year driving his kids "all over God's creation. I almost feel like a taxi cab.'

A car racer since 1995, he's been burning rubber with his 5/8-sized classic race car at the Nashville Speedway at the Nashville Fairgrounds. This season he's planning on racing more than any other year. His best finish has been fourth

His car's number, incidentally, is 61, for the highway intersecting Highway 49, the fabled "crossroads" where Robert Johnson is said to have sold his soul to the devil. His racing motto is "Hell Hounds on My Trail," after the Johnson blues clas-

"I grew up in Indianapolis, where my heroes were Dylan, Hendrix, Muddy Waters, Howlin' Wolf, and racers like A.J. Foyt, Mario Andretti, and Tony Bettenhausen," Hiatt said. "They were every bit the gods."

"The three of us all like this kind of music. We saw all these bands around town, and the occasional national act that would come through. There was no place (record label) for these people's music to come out. No one was paying any attention to it. There was no one place to look to for fans of this stuff. ■ The label has been featured in a variety of publications including a cover story in Billboard magazine. Birmingham native Rob Miller said Bloodshot has been well received because it provides a refreshing alternative to the stale rock scene.

tion to the staleness of alternative and the antiseptioness of techno or electronica. People like songs. I think people missed songs in the last five years."

Bloodshot's Miller described insurgent country as "Country inspired by punk aesthetics." He said that it plays well to an underground rock crowd as well as "enlightened" country fans.

Country these days, he said, is 'so slick and so sheen and it's nice pristine hats and pressed shirts. It doesn't seem like anything of substance has filtered out of that record-making machine in awhile. Country fans are disgusted. Between the two we're drawing from a wide range of people who are mostly fed up."

Bands like the Jayhawks, Son Volt and Wilco are the more commercial end of insurgent country with Jason and the Scorchers, BR-549, Dale Watson, Wayne Hancock and Detroit's The Volebeats coming up from the underground.

"A lot of our music presents that same sort of honesty of emotion and thematic concerns that are of everyday people's lives, rather than listening to the (whining) and moaning of an arena rocker telling how rough it is to be (a celebrity)," Miller explained.

Major record labels have picked up on the honesty and potential popularity as well. Whiskeytown put out a four-song on Bloodshot before heading to Geffen. An insurgent country act from Texas, The Old 97's, put out an album "Wreck Your Life" on Bloodshot along with two singles. It also made an appearance on "Hell-Bent." This summer the band, who is signed to Elektra Entertainment, is playing the second stage at Lollapalooza.

STREET SCENE

Being on Bloodshot was "awesome," according to the Old 97's Miller whose band recently released "Too Far To Care." But Elektra's wide-ranging distribution appealed to the band.

"It was like being with a family, which is what made it so hard to leave in the end. It was kind of imperative due to distribution and the band not breaking up. If I could have lived more cheaply I would have loved to be on Bloodshot for the rest of my life."

'Daniel' charms with likable characters

BY SUE SUCHYTA SPECIAL WRITER

Timothy Campos' second oneman show, "Daniel Sends His Love," is a must-see for local the-

Produced Eggboy Productions, the show continues through June 29 at Trinity House, 38840 Six Mile, Livonia, east of Haggerty and west of I-

Show times are 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and Sunday at 7 p.m. Tickets are $8; for reservations or information call 313-584-"Daniel Sends His Love" is a semi-autobiographical story about a young teen and his struggle to cope with his beloved REVIEW grandmother's death. Tim Campos portrays Daniel at the time of his grandmother's death, as a youngster in flashback sequences, and as the relatives who make up the colorful fabric of his family.

A bare stage, spartan props, and simple, yet effective costume changes mark the transitions from character to character. It is Campos' ability to slip in and out of characters rapidly with incredible believability, though, that makes this play so likable, so believable.

His transition from exuberant little boy to dignified priest is flawless and amazing. Whether trasts to Daniel. he is playing a man or a woman, and whether the character is young or old, Campos' characterizations are sympathetic and

Daniel himself is a likable kid on the cusp of his teenage years. He had a deep and abiding love for his grandmother, who made him feel good about himself. In flashback scenes, Daniel recalls childhood conversations and card games with her, revealing the intimacy of their close relationship

The fabric of Daniel's life is revealed through his colorful relatives. The long-suffering asthmatic aunt is a scream, as likable as she is annoying. Cousins, both nerdy and rebellious, are funning but dysfunctional con-

We meet Daniel's uncles and parents, all of whom help Daniel cope in simple but significant

Uncle Horace's jazz tapes, Uncle John's go-cart memories, and he father's sage advice all help lift his spirits. His mother's gentle urging helps him face the ultimate reality of his grandmother's death - at his own pace, giving him a chance to say goodbye. Production manager Kelly Boczek and lights and sound manager Joel Mitchell make it a technically well-executed show.

With Campos' talent, both as an actor and as a writer, Detroit theater-goers have a rising star they can look forward to seeing for some time to come.

Clooney as the Crusader? Sure. Chris

O'Donnell as boy wonder Robin? Why not? Far more important than the men behind the hard rubber suits are the villians bold enough to battle them for control of Gotham City. And with Arnold Schwarzenegger and Uma Thurman cast as the latest challengers, "Batman and Robin" has enough fire and ice to keep fans of the franchise more than entertained.

Arnold's Mr. Freeze was once a doctor whose inability to cure his wife of a rare disease sent him into a vat of freezing liquid and over the edge. Now he needs diamonds to power his frost gun that turns human targets into ice sculptures.

Thurman's Poison Ivy came back to life after her boss, a psycho-scientist, buried the nerdy researcher with snakes, plants, and chemicals. If Freeze turns the world to ice, her evil Mother Nature can thaw it out and start over again as queen of all flora. Both seem to be having the requisite good time.

Arnold, painted a steely blue gray and outfitted like The Orkin Man, doesn't speak as much as pun, and it hardly matters that his attempt at rapid-fire delivery buries groaners like "have an ice day" and "today hell freezes over."

Director Joel Schumacher knows what we want from a big-budget actioner. He opens with a rollicking battle with Freeze and the Dynamic Duo high above Gotham and sets up a labor dispute between an oppressed Robin and his control-freak mentor.

He continues to create some memorable locales amid Gotham's urban decay, includ-ing Mr. Freeze's lair behind the Frosty-headed facade of a Sno-Cone factory. Ivy sets up shop in a Turkish bath, sprinkling a Ivy creates more disharmony between our heroes when she shows up at a charity auction dressed in a gorilla suit. In a nod to Marlene Dietrich's classic entrance in 1932's "Blonde Venus," she removes the head and knocks each man in the room off his feet.

Batman, though not immune to Ivy's charms, knows trouble when he sees it, while impetuous Robin thinks it must be love. The two spar again.

Batfanatics will grouse that we've seen most of this before andin a way they're right. Ivy is, after all, a hybrid of Michele Pfeiffer's back-from-the-dead Catwoman and Jim Carrey's horn-rimmed researcher-turned-Riddler. I could have the dayglo biker den from "Batman Forever" or the cartoon sound effects seemingly few seeds in the cracks of a done without Robin's return to sampled from the '60s TV

Batgirl (Alicia Silverstone) and another potential love interest for Robin. The match couldn't be duller, with Chris O'Donnell failing again at smirky angst and Silverstone irritating in her nineties' "girls can do it better" attitude. Silverstone, introduced as niece of butler Alfred (Michael Gough), is supposedly back from university in Mother England, but she's realstraight off Wilshire Boulevard. Just be thankful that she didn't attempt an English accent. Of course this could all change. The movie's final image - silhouettes of the three heroes running toward the camera and into dew adventures - is especially apt. You never know who will be cast in the next installment.

Karl and Sophie Poulos have been making guests feel comfortable in their big, rustic, "out-in-the-country" restaurant in Plymouth Township for 15 years. Not only are they darn good hosts, they're excellent cooks.

If you really want to know what's delicious, ask a waitress.

"It's the beef tips on noodles, one of my favorite meals," said Phyllis Krumey of Plymouth. Krumey's worked at Karl's for four years. "When Karl makes it. it's gone in a day and a half or even the first couple of hours."
It seems Karl also is known for his barbecued ribs, and Sophie doesn't mind bragging: "People say if you want ribs, go to Karl's In 15 years, we never had an order of ribs come back or food eft on the plate."

Karl and Sophie, who come from Greece, say the secret of their restaurant's longevity is 'hard work, round the clock."

"I've been doing this for 42 years, and I know nothing about t. I am still learning," said Karl, who's owned four previous restaurants in Detroit, Dearborn and Birmingham.

There's been a restaurant on the site since 1948, but it's Karl and Sophie who've added the extra warmth. "When we started, this was the middle of nowhere. People on the freeway who broke down would come in here. My kids would drive them into Plymouth for gas," said Sophie.

Well, the hospitality paid off. Those people came back and they brought friends. Today, Karl's Country Kitchen, with its fieldstone fireplace and brick grill, is a real family restaurant. It's also a favorite gathering spot for golfers.

Back to the food: Karl cuts his own New York strips, and he also makes a great bean soup. I tried it. It's thick, nicely seasoned and definitely homemade. And his bread stuffing, sometimes served with pork chops, is not too far off from grandma's.

Like the restaurant's decor, the menu is comfortable: big sandwiches and burgers, fish and chips, spaghetti, chops, lots of steak, lobster, baby beef liver and Karl's famous BBQ ribs. There's also a smattering of Greek dishes and appetizers.

After you've finished dinner and wiped the last speck of rice pudding from your lips, ask Karl and Sophie how they met. As

Karl says, "It's the loveliest story

Karl was 38 when he sold his Detroit restaurant and went back to Greece for a 10-month visit. He took his car with him, a 1968 black Pontiac Le Mans with a "red hot" interior.

Days before he was to come home, he was introduced to Sophie, a 26-year-old school teacher. "That's all it took, one look, that's it," said Karl. Two days later he proposed. Karl returned to the U.S. without a definite answer. Sophie was left to convince her parents and herself. "My parents didn't want me to leave," she said.

Karl persisted through letters. Finally, Sophie said yes. "I always said if I found a good person, I could go to the mountain," said Sophie.

Karl left for Greece the next day. They were married and arrived back in the United States on Thanksgiving Day. They now have two sons, Peter, 27, and Louis, 26, who grew up helping out in the restaurant.

Like Karl said, a lovely story. But even if you don't like stories, come for the food and comfortable atmosphere. As Phyllis the waitress says, "If we get them in the door, we always get them

Court says seller didn't misrepresent

ROBERT I

Q. I am a real estate broker and am wondering how far I can go in regard to "puffing" without incurring potential liability for a false representation. Do you have any general guidelines on that issue?

A. The best guideline I can give you is based upon a recent case from the Michigan Court of Appeals, although it is an unpublin that case, the defendant lished decision. In that case, the defendant seller made a representation to the plaintiff/buyer about the general condition of the house, stating that the house was in "good" or "excellent" condition.

or "excellent" condition.

The court in that case dismissed the claim against the seller based upon a false representation because of the discovery of termites. The court indicated that those comments "were nothing more than the usual 'puffing' about one's residence and not a false representation about termites."

The case pointed out that fraudulent misrepresentation requires proof of both knowledge and an intention that the misrepresentation be acted upon by the plaintiff Moreover, In the case at issue, the prior owners knew of the infestation, but that fact did not automatically create a disputed fact regarding whether they had such knowledge.

Whether there is puffing in a given case will usually be a question of fact, although in this instance, the court made a ruling based on a motion for summary disposition.

Looking it over: Inspectors like Mike Goewey delve into nooks and crannies in search of major problems or hazards. They also check out roofs and chimneys.

Inspectors: no surprises

BY DOUG FUNKE STAFF WRITER

Mike Goewey, owner of Property Facts Inspection Service in Livonia, once came across a dead horse in the bottom of a covered swimming pool. The homeowner, Goewey said, disavowed any knowledge of the animal.

Andre Dubel, owner of Bloomfield House Inspectors, also recalled an unusual incident while going through a house.

"I had this young Labrador dog ... following me everywhere," Dubel said.

"I'm going into the fireplace, lying on my back, full of ashes. There's a crank where you open the damper. I back out a little bit, turn the crank and out falls a young raccoon. The dog immediately grabbed and killed it. It made a mess," Dubel said.

Would-be buyers are very clear about what they're after when hiring an inspection service. And it isn't a mess.

"They don't want any surprises," said Harold Weine, owner of Alert Home inspections in Southfield.

"Anything built by man can be fixed by man. But if it's made by man, it's not perfect. We're looking for major items, major deficiencies," Weine said.

Dan Wood, owner of American Inspection in Clarkston, sees his role as an unemotional provider of information.

"All owners think their houses are perfect, and all buyers think they should be and they're not," Wood said.

"I think the thrust of the inspection industry now ... is to give people accurate, detailed reports. Normally, it's a learning experience, to learn of problems, potential problems. They're looking for major surprise items, a costly item or a safety hazard," Wood said.

Most inspectors look for the same things. The differences lie in degree of experience.

Dubel outlined a typical inspection.

"We use our hands, feet and eyes," Goewey said. "We try to provide the client with as much information not only about building materials, but mechanical functions important to the home."

The typical inspection takes two to three hours and costs $200-$300 depending on size and age of the house. Clients generally receive a written report and are strongly encouraged to personally attend the inspection.

"We want to point out high points and low points so they keep everything in proper perspective," said Weine.

"Plus, we explain maintenance, too."
"Our job is to educate as well as inform," said Bob Bowling, an inspector with Amerispec Home Inspection Service in Plymouth. "We try to point out not only defects but why things are the way they are."

This is a weekly column all about shopping for a mortgage – that is, getting the best financing for your needs when it comes to buying a home. And there are all kinds of "needs" for mortgages.

HELEN FURCEAN / STAFF ARTIST

This week, let's look at owning your own home with a low down payment.

There is much personal satisfaction in living in a home that you own. A home is still a valued investment which can many financial advantages, including tax benefits.

The amount of interest you pay on a home loan and the real estate taxes you pay on your home are among the few major federal tax deductions. Owning a home is the primary way most people build wealth.

Still, for many Americans. owning a home remains just out of reach, For more and more families, saving the money for a down payment is the biggest obstacle to ownership.

Traditionally, lenders have required that home buyers be able to make a down payment of at least 20 percent of the purchase price in order to get a mortgage.

However, mortgage lenders will grant home loans to qualifying home buyers with a down payment of as little as 5 percent of the purchase price (if the mortgage is insured).

In fact home loans with down payments of less than 20 percent are increasingly popular, and are known simply as "low down payment mortgages."

Make it possible

Simply put, mortgage insurance protects the mortgage lender against financial loss if the homeowner stops making mortgage payments. Lenders usually require insurance on low downpayment loans for their own protection in the event the homeowner fails to make his or her payments.

In that case, the home would go into foreclosure; the homeowner loses the house and all the money put into it. The mortgage insurer will then have to pay the lender's claim on the defaulted loan.

Although the cost of mortgage insurance is paid by the home buyer or borrower, the mortgage insurer directly with the lender. Mortgage insurance is available to commercial banks, savings and loans associations, and mortgage bankers, all of who offer mortgage loans to home buyers.

Secondary market

Three primary investors in home loans are Federal National Mortgage association (Fannie Mae), Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation (Freddie Mac) and Governmental National Mortgage Association (Ginnie Mae)

By buying and selling residential mortgages, Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac help keep money available for homes across the country. So their participation in the loan process is essential to the health of the mortgage industry in America.

U.S. housing starts decline for the 3rd straight month

By JOHN D. MCCLAIN ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

WASHINGTON (AP) - Housing starts fell in May for a third straight month, the first time that has happened in more than two years. Only the West posted a gain.

In reporting the 4.8 percent decline last month, the Commerce Department said today that construction of new homes and apartments totaled 1.40 million at a seasonally adjusted annual rate, down from 1.47 million in April.

Starts have not fallen for three consecutive months since January-March 1995. For the year so far, builders laid 3.3 percent fewer foundations than they did during the first five months of 1996.

Many analysts had expected little change in May, contending that builders remained optimistic in an environment of economic growth and falling interest rates.

The National Association of Home Builders said Monday that its latest membership surindicated builders remained in a positive mood in which had slipped in both April and May, rose 2 points to 57, which the association said indicated good housing market con-

The Home Builders attributed the improvement to favorable weather and lower borrowing costs. The Federal Home Loan Mertgage Corp. says 30-month, fixed-rate mortgages averaged 7.93 percent in May, down from 8.32 percent as recently as last June.

Applications for building permits, often a barometer of future activity, inched up 0.1 percent in May after falling 1 percent a month earlier.

Single-family starts, about 80 percent of new construction, were down 2.5 percent, the third straight decline.

Construction of apartments and condominiums fell 12.2 percent after advancing 4.5 percent in April.

Regionally, starts in the West rose 5.2 percent to a 365,000 annual rate. But they were flat in the Midwest at a 293,000 rate and fell 11.3 percent in the South, to 615,000 and 8.1 percent in the Northeast, to

Retaining customers

The National Association of Realtors states that between 20 and 25 percent of home owners will buy another property within four years after their initial purchase. Additional, up to 5 percent will buy another property within 18 months after their initial purchase, and another 7-10 percent will buy another property within 36 months after their initial pur-

Steps when dealing with footings crete is easy enough, as long as Don't be tempted to get by with shallowyou position it exactly where

By Popular Mechanics FOR AP SPECIAL FEATURES

Whether you're constructing a deck, adding a porch or building a gazebo, the job begins with footings that penetrate your climate's frost line. In many cases, a simple post-hole footing is ideal.

This type of footing is quick, easy and relatively inexpensive. If you plan on an enclosed addition, of course, you'll want a continuous footing that surrounds a crawlspace beneath the floor.

However, anything short of a major structural addition will rest on simple posts and spot footings.

Before digging, check your local building code. Generally however, spot footings will need to be 8 inches in diameter and at least 36 inches deep.

Don't be tempted to get by with shallower holes. If you don't dig below the frost line, you run the risk of seasonal shifting and structural damage.

Pouring a post-hole footing requires very little in the way of tools and materials. At the start, you'll need a post-hole digger - either a scissors or an auger type. You'll also need a tape measure, level, shovel, galvanized post brackets and concrete.

Use a mortar box or wheelbarrow to mix the concrete. If you plan to pour a series of footings in a row, stretch a string between two stakes placed beyond the first and last posthole locations. With this in place, the holes can be aligned and each bracket can be positioned accurately.

er holes. If you don't dig below the frost line, you run the risk of seasonal shifting and structural damage.

If you plan to pour only a few footings, it's easier to buy bags of pre-mixed concrete - you simply add the water. Each 60pound bag will make 1 cubic foot of concrete. An 8-inchdiameter by 36-inch-deep footing will take about two bags.

After laying out and marking the footing locations, rough out each hole with the post-hole digger. There's nothing complicated about digging a hole, but make sure it doesn't taper.

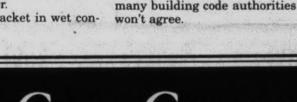

Make the bottom of the hole the same diameter as the top and keep the sides consistent. When you've reached the required depth, trim the bottom of the hole flat and clean out all loose soil.

With the holes ready, mix the pre-mixed concrete one or two bags at a time. As a drier mix is always stronger than a wet mix, add only enough water to make the concrete workable. Then, shovel it into each hole until it reaches the grade level. Finally, float the tops of each footing so that the concrete is level and smooth.

Keep in mind that this isn't a finished surface and you needn't spend a lot of time smoothing with a trowel or small piece of lumber.
