Blizzard '99 packs a hefty punch

Plymouth rebounded well from the 16 inches of snow that fell in southeastern Michigan, despite two water main breaks and delayed flights out of Metro Airport.

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER
tbruscato@oe.homecomm.net

The cleanup from last weekend's blizzard continues, as Plymouth city crews persist in their efforts to move 16 inches of snow from the first blizzard in nearly 25 years.

"The crews will be working the rest of the week to stockpile and move snow to Riverside Cemetery," said Acting City Manager Paul Sincock. "We'll also continue to plow the streets, making them wider as people get their snowed-in cars out." Sincock said the city has contracted with Star Contracting of Plymouth to help clear parking lots and the downtown from the excessive snow.

Sincock praised his crew members, some of whom worked for 26 straight hours.

"Each street was plowed at least once by 8 a.m. Sunday," said Sincock. "We worked hard to make sure there was enough room for police, fire and ambulances to travel the streets."

Sincock asks residents to clear snow away from fire hydrants, especially on the street side, in case firefighters need to respond to a fire.

Sincock did confess that crews failed to plow one city street.

"Ann Street, between Farmer and Junction, was missed for whatever reason," said Sincock. "That's where Commissioner Ron Loiselle lives, so I took a truck out there and plowed it myself."

Water mains break

Municipal Services crews got started even before the snow fell, as a water main break occurred at 5 a.m. Saturday on Ross, just west of Main.

Later in the afternoon, a crew was sent to a second water main break on Ann Arbor Trail near Evergreen. Because a tree had to be removed to facilitate the repair, the crew stayed until 6 a.m. Sunday.

"It's kind of tough in weather like this," said Mike Brindley, taking a break and getting warm in front of a 155,000 Btu heater in the truck as

City manager search narrows to 8 hopefuls

BY TONY BRUSCATO

The Plymouth city commission has narrowed its search for city manager to eight candidates, all of whom will be given one hour interviews on Saturday, Jan. 16.

Two of the eight candidates appear to be top contenders, as they were selected by five of the seven city commissioners on their lists of top five preferences while paring down the 57 applicants.

Commissioners are looking to replace Steve Walters, who was given a settlement package to step down from his $75,924 position. One is Michael Herman, the former city manager of Howell, who was removed from his position on a 4-3 vote of the city council. Herman held the post from 1989 until leaving this year. His final salary was $67,689.

In his letter of application, Herman also noted he was city manager of Hudson, Mich. from 1978 to 1989, leaving that post when political unrest surfaced in that local government.

five of the commissioners' lists was David Rich, the city administrator of Grand Ledge since 1992. He's also the executive director of the Grand Ledge Downtown Development Authority.

Four of the city commissioners had Robert Block, the former city administrator of Southfield, on their final list.

Block had been city administrator in the Oakland County community since 1985 until being voted out by the city council in June. Block had been making $115,000, but said in his letter of application he would consider making less money to remain in the Detroit area.

Dog found up a frozen creek unable to paddle

BY DUNCAN E. WHITE

dwhite@oe.homecomm.net

For Roy and Joyce Banks of Plymouth Township, it was a simple act. Pulling an old dog out of a ditch because it was stranded and hurt ... calling 911 and having the dog taken to a shelter.

Anyone would do that ... right? Beth and Miguel Contreras certainly were grateful that the Banks' decided to, saving their 15-year-old dog, Rocky, in the process.

"At her age, and with this severe cold, I don't think she would have made it much longer," said Beth.

The Banks', who also work as volunteers for the Red Cross, heard the dog barking early Dec. 31 and helped drag her, cold and wet, from the creek that runs behind their home on Hackberry.

"We heard it barking around, maybe, six o'clock that morning," said Joyce. "After a while, it began to get weaker and weaker and I told Roy, 'that dog sounds like it's in trouble.' He usually feeds Mallard ducks back there and so

'A Glimpse of Japan' revisited in featured arts council display

The Plymouth Community Arts Council will present "Japan Revisited: A Glimpse of Japan," Jan. 12 through Feb. 10. The artist's reception held 7-9 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 23, will feature a tea ceremony and Japanese appetizers.

The exhibit and its associated programming are part of the arts council's ongoing Cultural Diversity Series offerings that are designed to expose the community and local schools to the arts and culture of different countries.

Featured artists are Yoriko Hirose Cronin and Emi Kumagai Watts. Cronin is a woodblock artist with a bachelor's degree from the University of Michigan's School of Art and a master's degree from Wayne State University. She has also studied at the Kyoto Seika University in Japan. Her exhibition credits include the Ann Arbor Art Center, Paint Creek Center for the Arts, The Detroit Artists Market, the Birmingham Bloomfield Arts Association, and others. She has received several awards and grants, and her works appear in the collections of the Holland Area Arts Council, the Art Center of Battle Creek, and elsewhere. Cronin will present a slide lecture on Japanese woodblock prints (with question and answer period following) at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 2.

The sumi-c (brush) painting style of Japan has a long history. Emi Kumagai Watts came to the art of Japanese brush painting through an earlier interest. While working as an accountant in Japan, she was also studying the traditional tea ceremony. Through this hobby, she came to understand how important scrolls and calligraphy are to the ancient Japanese tradition. She continued to take classes in sumi-c pottery, flower arrangement, haiku and tanka poetry. In 1985, she moved to the United States and began taking classes in various arts, such as oil painting and watercolor.

Her work stresses nature, and those aspects that define the essence of the seasons and their moods. Watts received numerous awards and exhibited at such juried exhibits as the Grosse Pointe Art Association, the Kalamazoo Art Association, Detroit Association of Painters and Sculptors, and she is a member of the Detroit Society of Women Painters and Sculptors, the Michigan Watercolor Society, and the Pontiac Oakland Society Artists.

She will be performing a traditional tea ceremony with the assistance of her daughter during the opening reception on Jan. 23. Watts will also present a brushstroke demonstration for the public at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 26.

Mari Ishihara, who is married to a local Panasonic employee, is schooled in the ancient tradition of kimono wearing, and will present a demonstration and fashion show to the public at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 6.

The art featured by the two featured artists will be available for sale. Hours of the exhibit are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday and Tuesday; 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Wednesday; 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Thursday and Friday; and 1-3 p.m. Saturday.

City appoints acting manager

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER
tbruscato@oe.homecomm.net

Assistant Plymouth city manager Paul Sincock has been named acting city manager until the position is permanently filled.

The move was made after two city commissioners expressed concerns of city employees about who was in charge, Sincock or Steve Walters, at city hall.

"I sat down with department heads and there's a concern about whose in charge, who the players are, even though Paul has been given administrative responsibilities," said Mayor Don Dismuke. "I would like to enact Steve's severance package to terminate his involvement at city hall."

"I've had conversations with city employees and they've told me nobody is doing anything because they don't know who to go to," added Commissioner

The raise will boost Sincock's $55,568 annual salary on a par to that of Walters, $75,924, until a permanent city manager is hired. The lone dissenting vote was Commissioner Ron Loiselle, who wanted to increase Sincock's salary Feb. 1, after Walters leaves.

Colleen Pobur. "This will make it a clean transition."

At its Saturday, Jan. 2 meeting, the commission voted 6-1 to give Sincock a $1500 a month raise, retroactive to Dec. 21, to take over the day-to-day operations at city hall.

The raise will boost Sincock's $55,568 annual salary on a par to that of Walters, $75,924, until a permanent city manager is hired. The lone dissenting vote was Commissioner Ron Loiselle, who wanted to increase Sincock's salary Feb. 1, after Walters leaves.

While Walters last day is officially Jan. 31, his role will now become that of a consultant, to help Sincock with any questions before he officially leaves. Walters will not keep hours at city hall, and will be called upon at home, if and when he's needed.

On Feb. 5, Walters will receive a final settlement of approximately $54,000.

While the city commission is looking for a new city manager, the Downtown Development Authority is still looking for a director.

The DDA selected Milford's DDA director, Anne Bartlett, to succeed Steve Guile. However, Bartlett, who was making $30,000 a year in a part-time position, had her salary increased to nearly $45,000 and decided to stay in Milford.

Walters said the Plymouth DDA had no clear second choice from the more than 50 candidates, so another search will be started which will include ads in national publications.

The new deadline date for applicants is Jan. 29.

Others to be interviewed include Donald Crawford, a city manager since 1994 from Streator, Ill., who currently makes $58,000 a year. Crawford also lists on his resume a job as a management and financial consultant for CMP Associates, Inc. of Grosse Pointe from 1979-1994. He also has been city manager in Boca Raton, Fla. and DeKalb, Ill.

David Richards has been city manager in Marine City since 1996. He has also held the same position in the Michigan communities of Three Rivers, Hancock and AuGres.

Chris Kukulski is the current village manager in Jonesville, Mich., at an annual salary of $44,000. Before taking that position in March 1996, Kukulski was the economic development director for Marshall, Mich.

D. Wayne O'Neal was the city manager in Clawson from 1985 to June 1998 at an annual salary of $98,000. He also spent two years as city manager in Keego Harbor. O'Neal currently is the interim city manager in Howell.

Richard Haberman has been the city administrator in Barling, Ark. since 1994 at an annual salary of $44,000. In his letter of application, Haberman said he is interested in relocating to Michigan.

City commissioners have listed city manager experience, budget and finance, commission and department head relations, leadership skill, grant writing and public relations as their top criteria for filling the city manager's post.

Commissioner Dave McDonald said that of the 57 people who applied for the job, 13 are current city managers in Michigan, 20 were from out of state, six had assistant city manager experience, six had other municipal experience, and eight had no municipal or government job experience.

The city will pay mileage for all the applicants who attend the interview sessions, and will pay for Haberman's transportation from Arkansas and provide lodging at a bed and breakfast in the city.

All eight will be given one hour interviews on Jan. 16. The public interviews will begin at noon at city hall.

Soccer registration begins

The city of Plymouth Recreation Department will be taking spring youth soccer registration the entire month of January at the recreation office, during business hours, 8 a.m. through 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

The recreation department is in the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer. All registrations require a birth certificate. The fee for children, ages 6-8, is $40 for city residents and $60 for non-residents. For children 9 and older, the fee is $45 for city residents and $75 for non-residents. For more information, call 455-6620.

he went out there with the feed. He took a look down the creek and came trotting back up to the house saying, 'there's a dog laying on the ice down there.'

Beth put Rocky out that morning but the old dog, who usually follows the same routine, had wandered off when she returned.

A few blocks later, Roy found her soaking wet and weakened after her adventure into the creek.

After a few moments, Roy helped the dog back up the embankment and into a police car that was to take her to a shelter. Miguel, out looking for Rocky, found her as he happened to meet the officer just as he was leaving.

"She's fifteen-years-old and her back end can be very weak at times," added Beth. "My guess is, after that ordeal, she was very exhausted."

"She could barely walk when I got her into the car," said Miguel. "They saved our dog. I honestly believe that, if it weren't for (the Banks'), Rocky would be dead."

the snow swirled outside Saturday afternoon. "You have to keep your hands dry and keep moving. You don't like getting wet in weather like this." "You have to do anything to keep warm," added Scott Baker, assistant director of the municipal services department. "Just dig, dig, dig, anything to keep moving and stay warm."

Welcome to Michigan

Former Plymouth resident Fred Jones was visiting his family for the holidays, doing his best to keep the sidewalk clear at his mother's home on Sheridan.

"I was supposed to leave for home in San Diego Friday, but I wanted to extend my stay for a couple of days," said Jones, who wasn't dressed for the weather in a pair of sweat pants and tennis shoes. "It was a brilliant decision, don't you think?"

Scott and Sheryl Devereaux were shoveling the driveway at their North Evergreen Street home Saturday afternoon, with the snow falling as fast as they were clearing it away.

"We don't have much time, we have to leave for a wedding soon," said Sheryl.

"We've got to get to Grosse Pointe," added Scott. "I guess this will give us a good excuse for not making it on time."

Big business

For some, like Shonda Salizar, a blizzard means big bucks as she drives her Ford pickup, equipped with a snowplow, throughout Plymouth and Canton.

"This is what we've been waiting for, our big money time," said Salizar. "We'll probably be up for two straight days."

At the peak of the storm Saturday afternoon, downtown Plymouth looked like a ghost town. In fact, many businesses locked the doors before their scheduled closing times because of the lack of foot traffic.

However, there were a few diehards. "Actually, we've been pretty steady," said a sales clerk inside Little Professor on the Park Bookstore. "I think people are getting reading material before they get snowed in."

Kal Jabara, owner of Wild Wings Wildlife Arts & Gifts, said he'd never close early, even during the blizzard.

Standing in his empty store, Jabara said "You never know who might be traveling a long distance to get here, and then we'd be closed."

Plymouth-Canton Schools were closed Monday and Tuesday because of the ice, snow and cold temperatures. The two days off gave students an extended holiday vacation.

Plymouth Nursery owner Jeff Jones said a steel-supported greenhouse collapsed from the weight of the snow, causing $150,000 in damage.

"We put the heaters on to melt the snow, but it was coming down so fast and the winds were so high it didn't do any good," said Jones. "The peak was 20 feet high and it crumbled just like a pretzel."

"Mother Nature has a way of slapping you across the face with reality."

Blizzard '99: By Monday, the snow turned to fun at McClumpha Park for Molli Megasko, 14, of Canton, above left, who made a snow angel while Brittany Shelpier, 15, of Plymouth keeps an eye out for her mom who was coming to pick them up. Above right, Elizabeth Gable, front, and Beth Wargin, both of Canton, race down the hill at McClumpha. But it wasn't all fun and games for Jane Shannon, who spent most of Sunday morning clearing her driveway.

It may have taken some of them three days to get home, but the Fred Hill Briefcase Drill Team is finally back after taking their act to the Fiesta Bowl Parade in Tempe, Ariz.

Fred Hill's group of 17 may have been enjoying warm weather in the Southwest, but they still had problems getting home because of the snowstorm which was causing havoc at Detroit Metropolitan Airport.

day," said Hill. "Reaction ranged from 'I've got to get back' to 'Where is the golf course?'"

After a short while, reality set in. The drill team hadn't planned for an extended stay.

"A few of the guys decided to go to the mall, and the rest of us were giving them our underwear sizes," joked Hill.

Three of the drill team members decided to venture to the airport Sunday morning to fly standby, and at the last minute were given seats in first class. Hill and two others tried standby later that day, and boarded a flight that arrived in Detroit early Monday morning.

"It looked like we were landing on the moon with all the snow piled along the runway," said Hill. "The terminal reminded us of a tent city with all the people stranded."

Everyone eventually made it home.

"We got to meet (astronaut) John Glenn and (Heisman Trophy winner) Ricky Williams," said Hill. "But the weather made this the most memorable trip the drill team has experienced."

County, Northwest to re-examine snow removal plan

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
STAFF WRITER
kabr@ecomm.net

Northwest Airlines and Wayne County officials will meet today to discuss last weekend's winter storm and the county's snow removal plans. Northwest was expected to be operating on a full schedule Wednesday (yesterday).

Airport Director David Katz said county officials will review the plans. "Let's examine it carefully. We're all accountable."

When asked why airlines at Chicago's O'Hare Airport resumed 100 percent of its operations earlier than Detroit, Andrea Newman, vice president of state and local affairs for Northwest Airlines responded: "People need to remember they got hit a day earlier than us. We'll get back, too."

"This is the storm of the decade for us."

Northwest and county officials spent the early part of this week defending their efforts in the aftermath of a weekend snowstorm that left many planes containing scores of holiday travelers sitting in planes on taxiways for several hours Sunday.

And there was finger-pointing, too.

Northwest officials complained that the snow wasn't cleared by Wayne County in airport taxiways and near concourses, while county officials said the delays were due to Northwest's lack of help at the airport.

Robert Ball, Northwest vice-president for customer service, was critical of snow removal, stating in one published report Northwest was going to take a "good, hard look" at the county's snow removal plan. "I don't know why the county couldn't handle the snow."

Runways apparently were cleared at Metro, but parking areas for planes near concourses and taxiways were not.

"There's always problems with removing snow from the taxiways," said . "We had a couple of planes that were stuck to the ground and problems with jetways freezing and breaking down. It was 30-below. You have freezing temperatures and ice people have to work on."

Katz and Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara believe the county did all it could to clear the airport of snow.

"It steams me to hear the criticism when we have a snow storm like this once every 25 years, it happened on a weekend and a holiday and it came quickly, and we did all the things we should have done," McNamara said.

"You have the (Northwest) president complaining when the first day, half of Northwest's people couldn't get to work. A number of them were baggage handlers."

McNamara believed Northwest could do a better job of alerting their help of the impending snowstorm and delaying or cancelling flights when they have a shortage of employees to accommodate the passengers.

McNamara said airport officials could have dispatched a bus to help unload passengers from planes.

"Many passengers waiting in planes were elderly and had no coats. Northwest felt it was too dangerous with the cold weather and slippery conditions. It probably was not a wise decision."

Newman called the runway delays "unacceptable."

"You try to figure out what you can do better," Newman said. "There's always things you can improve on."

Katz said county crews and contractors were responsible for clearing 500 acres of cement or 2 million square feet. It takes crews 24 hours to remove 4 inches of snow.

"Our guys did a miraculous job," Katz said. Wayne County planned on the snow storm and had 98 percent of the crews reporting for work.

"Contrast that with Northwest, where they had half of their people show up," Katz said.

Katz also challenged a claim that crews didn't start clearing snow until 5:30 p.m. Monday. Katz said he inspected every gate at 4 p.m. Sunday. "Northwest had 37 gates in our opinion that were usable. At that same time, Northwest was only pushing six or eight planes an hour."

"We had 12 inches of snow. They busted their humps with a Herculean effort every minute of the day. It pains me to see that kind of criticism." Two years ago Wayne County won a national award from an airline association for snow and ice removal. "That same plan now is no good?" Katz asked.

Crews also alternate which concourses will be cleaned, depending on the day of the week. That plan is agreed to by the airlines. But a private contractor did not clear the Northwest concourse areas until Monday.

Crews also must be "environmentally friendly" while clearing snow. With the airlines using glycol to de-ice planes, snow must be pushed into the middle of the airfield, then scooped onto a truck and disposed, not just pushed aside.

It was clear that passengers were frustrated over the delays.

With many flights canceled or delayed, thousands of passengers spent Saturday and Sunday night at the airport, hoping for flights out of town. With Detroit acting as Northwest's hub, travelers on that airline were particularly impacted.

"If you shut down a hub, you automatically switch to alternative routes. When Metro was hit with flooding last year, passengers were re-routed to Memphis and Minneapolis," Newman said.

"But this time, all three hubs experienced weather problems. The ability to do that (re-routing) was lost."

High court rules Unions win in court employee case

BY TIM RICHARD
trichard@oe.homecomm.net

The Legislature unconstitutionally stepped on the judiciary's toes when it shuffled members of two unions from Wayne Circuit Court control to county government control, the state Supreme Court ruled.

The power of each branch of government within its separate sphere necessarily includes managerial administrative authority to carry out its operations," Chief Justice Conrad Mallett Jr. wrote in a 6-1 decision.

Winners were 27 members of the Judicial Attorneys Association, who work for the Wayne Friend of the Court and as research attorneys, and 180 members of the Government Administrators Association, who are psychologists, social workers and administrators for 64 Wayne Circuit judges.

Losers were Gov. John Engler and retiring Attorney General Frank Kelley. They were blocked from implementing part of the Legislature's 1996 Public Act 374 combining Wayne Circuit and Detroit Recorder's courts. Sec. 593 of that act made county government rather than the court the employer. The Supreme Court declared that section unconstitutional but left the rest of PA 374 intact.

Court visitors and users would have seen little difference - at first - if the change had taken place. "But over the long term, operation of the courts would have been adversely affected," said Mark Heinen, the Detroit attorney for one of the unions.

Mallett agreed, noting that "employment issues concerning all the state's 241 trial courts were in an increasingly unstable condition."

The section making county government the employer would have given it "authority to establish policies and procedure relating to compensation, fringe benefits, pensions, holidays and leave."

That section would have left the chief judge with authority over "work schedules, discipline, grievances, personnel records, probation, hiring and termination practices."

The high court's ruling affirmed a Court of Appeals panel which called the act "a usurpation" of court authority that is "a dangerous incursion into the judicial realm" by the Legislature.

Mallett, in what was one of his last opinions before resigning, cited a 1975 Livingston County case in which the Supreme Court "relied on the inherent powers of the judiciary in holding that the circuit court was the employer of court personnel for purposes of salary negotiations."

And Mallett quoted founding father Alexander Hamilton in Federalist No. 51 when he argued that security for the balance of powers "consists in giving to those who administer each department (branch) the necessary constitutional means and personal motives to resist encroachments of the others."

But Mallett warned judges against becoming too headstrong. He noted that many county officials had complained to legislators that judges had "thwarted the counties" and "frustrated relations with the funding units' own employees, to the detriment of the public."

Mallett counseled a course of "cooperation, communication and accommodation between trial courts and their funding units."

Mallett's opinion was signed by Justices Michael Cavanagh, Patricia Boyle, James Brickley, Elizabeth Weaver and Marilyn Kelly. Dissenting was Justice Clifford Taylor, who said he wasn't convinced the 1996 act violated the separation of powers doctrine. Rather, the act created a "co-employment relationship" between local units and the courts.

Taylor, who frequently derides "judge-made law," said "legislative enactments enjoy a presumption of constitutionality." He cited U.S. Chief Justice John Marshall, who said in 1803 that "legislators, having taken the same oath as we take, surely are as committed to fidelity to the constitution as we (judges) are."

Taylor said the act carefully delineated the duties of the chief judge and the county: "(T)he employer (county) retains authority with respect to listed fiscally related subject matters, and the chief judge retains authority over all other personnel matters."

But Mallett and the majority found the grant of power to the county so broad that there is "no set of circumstances" under which the act "does not violate the separation of powers doctrine."

County road crews battle winter storm

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
STAFF WRITER
kabranczyk@oe.homecomm.net

Saturday's winter storm that dumped up to a foot of snow will be known as the storm that county road crews just could not clear.

Even on Monday, several roads, particularly portions of Inkster and Middlebelt roads, remained covered with snow and difficult for motorists to drive.

John Roach, public information manager for the Wayne County Department of Public Services, said the county's roads division sent 131 trucks to plow and salt county primary roads, state highways and freeways and township residential streets.

Wayne County road crews normally assigned to main primary - or "mile" - roads were dispatched to freeways and state highways to clear those first, Roach said. "We had to pull them off of the primary roads," he said.

Roach said the biggest problem facing road crews was the sheer amount of snow that fell over about a 24-hour period on Saturday and early Sunday. Winds blew between 20 and 30 mph.

"Moving that much snow, it is hard to find a place to put it," Roach said. "Moving it from the center lane is one thing, but that is a whole lot different when it is blowing on the road."

"We had reports from some of our drivers that they would plow a road, then when they came back, the whole road would be covered again."

Road salt also loses its effectiveness once the temperature dips below 20 degrees, Roach said. The weekend temperatures ranged between sub-zero and 20-degree temperatures.

On Monday, county road crews were working to continue to clear surface streets.

"It will take a lot more work," Roach said. "Some are still in rough shape."

Wayne County is responsible for clearing 1,950 miles - 450 miles of state highways, 725 of county primary roads and 700 miles of residential streets in townships.

Wayne County houses 14 DPS yards and eight salt domes.

794 SOUTH MAIN, PLYMOUTH, MICHIGAN 48170

THURSDAY, JANUARY 7, 1999

Interest earned

Taxpayers deserve some credit

If memory serves us right, beginning early last year Plymouth Township officials cried poverty. Money wasn't available to help rescue the city's recreation department, a service shared with township residents. Money also wasn't available for additional police or fire personnel. No money was available, period. Or, so we thought.

Officials took the issues to the ballot box. In August, voters were asked to pay additional taxes for recreation, police and fire and to convert WTUA fees from a fee to a tax. The answer was a resounding 'no.'

Afterwards, the city of Plymouth axed its recreation budget and hiked township rates, claiming it could no longer supplement programs if the township wasn't willing to pay its share.

And here we are only four months later with two new parks, one new police officer and a proposal to add three more firefighters to the township payroll. (One park was donated to the township by the Peter Miller family at Ann Arbor Road and I-275 with a commitment by officials to spend $300,000 over three years to develop it as a playground. The other three-acre park at Ann Arbor Road, Ann Arbor Trail and Beck was purchased for $280,000. A police officer was added with use of a two-year federal grant. The township will absorb the costs after that period.)

And if that's not enough to raise taxpayers' brows, fees for trash pick up and water are expected to decrease this year. Why? Too much money is laying around, according to Treasurer Ron Edwards.

- The trash fund has an extra $900,000.
 - The water fund has an extra $13 million.
 - The general fund has an extra $4 million.
- Did someone in township hall find an old coat with $18 million in the pocket? Where was all this money prior to August ballot?

We acknowledge that the money in the trash and water funds can't be used for anything other than trash or water and sewer. We also must point out that the $13 million in the water and sewer fund is earmarked for the Western Townships Utility Authority to pay back the $20 million in bonds borrowed to build and operate the super sewer system, which began in 1993. Plans at that time were to pay off the WTUA debt over 20 years.

However, here we are six years later with 65 percent of the project costs stockpiled in the township coffers. Subtract what you will for ongoing maintenance and it still adds up to a heck of a lot of money.

The township earned $1.25 million in interest last year alone. Kudos to township officials for making wise financial decisions. But how much did residents' savings accounts earn in interest last year?

And more importantly, why are today's residents paying the cost of a sewer system that will benefit future residents?

A new project to expand the Ypsilanti water and sewer plant is being discussed at a cost of about $9 million. The expansion will allow Plymouth, Northville and Canton townships to break away from the Detroit Water and Sewer system and lease out its current sewer system heading east to neighboring communities, such as Westland and Wayne. (Currently, half of the sewer goes to Detroit and the other half to the Ypsilanti plant after being separated at the WTUA facility at Joy and Lilley.)

The expansion will greatly benefit future residents of Plymouth. Hopefully, plans are made to tax those residents and not the present taxpayers.

Schoolcraft needs your help

Business people often dislike writing letters. But if they want the benefits, they should rise above tradition and send a letter to Doug Rothwell on behalf of Schoolcraft Community College's bid.

Schoolcraft is seeking $6 million in state money to build an Information Technology Center on its Livonia campus.

The money would come from the state Jobs Commission as part of Gov. John Engler's recently-passed program to boost technical education through scholarships and training centers.

The Engler administration got $50 million from the Legislature for its job training initiative.

First, $20 million will go for 10,000 community college scholarships.

Second, $30 million will go for "at least five new technical training centers, providing the necessary infrastructure and equipment needed to support technical training programs," according to the governor's budget message.

One of the five centers, by law, will go to Focus:HOPE in Detroit. The other four will go to the most impressive bidders.

These are for what the governor calls "gold collar jobs" - those requiring high skills but not a four-year bachelor's degree. These aren't hamburger-flipping jobs.

The University of Michigan economic forecast for the next two years showed that the best way to keep out of the unemployment line is to earn at least an associate's degree from a community college.

Political pressure and newspaper editorials won't impress Rothwell a lot. He is more likely to be impressed by letters from business people.

Schoolcraft has some pretty tough competition for the grants from neighboring Oakland County Community College, Henry Ford Community College and Macomb County Community College.

Macomb Community College is doing a big business blitz of letter writing to the Jobs Commission.

Schoolcraft is asking for $6 million to build a 32,000-square-foot technology center on to the Waterman Campus Center.

The center is designed to be a hub where business, students, faculty and the community can access and apply information technology.

The Michigan Jobs Commission visited Schoolcraft in October. During the visit, Schoolcraft officials received some positive feedback from Michigan Jobs Commission officials, who dubbed the plan a "strong proposal." Since then however the jobs commission has visited other sites and the competition is formidable. A decision is expected by mid-January so letters need to go out soon.

The address of the man who makes the decision is:

Doug Rothwell, CEO
Michigan Jobs Commission
201 N. Washington, 4th floor
Lansing, MI 48913

Tell him you're motivated by economic self-interest. He'll understand that.

Blizzard '99

Long haul: It seemed to be a never-ending job this week for city Municipal Services crews and Star Contracting of Plymouth, hired to help clear the snow from city streets. Both crews dug in for the long haul clearing streets and downtown parking lots from excessive snow. In some cases, crews worked 26 hours straight to unbury the city of Plymouth, said Acting City Manager Paul Sincock.

LETTERS

There's more to the story

I was very interested to read the article regarding the Township's financial position in the Sunday, Jan. 3, edition of the Observer. I certainly understand that decisions must be made regarding what information will be included in an article based on the available printing space in each edition. However, I believe that significant information was left out of this article, leaving an erroneous impression with the readers.

Yes, the township is in sound financial condition at this time. And, yes, investment of existing funds have contributed to this sound condition. However, your reporter may not be aware of the fact that most of the money that the township has invested is pledged to the repayment of sewer bonds that were issued for the township's portion of its sewer system.

In fact, the current water and sewer rates are set to pay for the actual usage and treatment costs, plus ongoing maintenance of our water and sewer systems, plus part of the debt payment that must be made each year on the sewer bonds. The rest of the debt payment comes directly from the pledged money that is currently invested in the water and sewer fund.

That fund was built up by charging fees to those causing increased demands on our system: the builders and developers. It was built using sound financial planning, recognizing that the growth would end long before the debt was paid off; and in the interest of fairness to the residents who would be paying that debt long after the builders and developers had moved on.

In the face of Wayne County's announced intention to increase rates by as much as 5 percent, knowing that the township has pledged its full faith and credit to repay the bond payments, knowing that the current rates do not currently fund the bond payments in full, and knowing that the water and sewer fund surplus was designed to protect residents from excessive future tax increases to pay for the bonds; the township board would be neglecting its fiduciary responsibility to its citizens by any action that would reduce water and sewer rates to deplete this pledged fund.

Such action would, at the very least, violate sound financial management; and seems short-sighted.

Given the complexity of the issue, it is certainly understandable that information could inadvertently be left out of an article of this nature. However, knowing that your newspaper is committed to presenting complete and accurate information, I hope that this information is helpful to you and to the citizens of Plymouth Township.

A vow of civility

The year 1998 marks an all time low for American politics at the federal, state and local levels. Blind partisanship, vitriolic personal attacks and blatant power plays have replaced civility, cooperation, a focus on important issues and a commitment to public service.

It is any wonder so many Americans are disgusted by politics? The Jerry Springer Show blends into the evening newscast and it is difficult to tell where one ends and the other begins.

Why not, as step one challenge our elected officials to take a vow of civility?

Heaven forbid that we should ask them to exercise their own judgment. This would require stepping outside of the comfort zone provided by the IOU system of party politics.

If we want better government, step two requires us to hold the violators responsible at the ballot box. It would be nice to find a few more good shepherds. We have plenty of sheep.

POINTS OF VIEW

Misleading information tarnishes image, community

I would like to take the opportunity to respond to all the "facts" and opinions which have been printed in the Observer regarding the township's purchase of the 3 1/2-acre parcel adjacent to the already owned township property at the point where Ann Arbor Trail meets Ann Arbor Road going west. With all the innuendoes and misstatement of facts reported, I believe the citizens deserve to hear the entire story. I thank the Observer for acknowledging my honest reputation (in a Dec. 17 editorial), but I take exception to statement that I made an error in judgment regarding my voting and your comment about our (township) government resorting to greedy corporation tactics.

until one is accepted. So, there was time, but not much. I called a builder who I have represented in marketing his new construction homes. I asked him to look at the property and see what he thought of its possibilities for development but also informed him that the township might be interested in it because of its location and because our board had made a commitment to preserve open green space whenever possible. He liked the property and thought it would make a very nice parcel for up to three home sites. (There is no sewer there and septic fields have to be included for each site).

The sellers chose Dec. 7, 1998. I asked if it could be delayed until Dec. 8 in order for the township to vote on the decision to purchase and transfer funds at a public meeting. Your paper suggests that the process cast an aura of deception because there were two separate meetings posted, one by the clerk's office and another by the supervisor's office. Understand, please, the clerk is responsible for the board meeting agendas, the supervisor for the study session agendas. You questioned why there had to be a middle man. In this case, there were two reasons. As just explained, "time is of the essence" in real estate and the government process can't always act as quickly as individuals can. Secondly, the sellers had been very difficult to work with when the township had asked them to clean up the property which had been abandoned for years. If there were another full price offer, who do you think the sellers might want to sell to? We don't know for sure what would have happened, but why take the chance if there is a simpler way. I don't see how this constitutes "greedy corporation tactics." The sellers got their asking price and the township paid it, all resulting in a very smooth transfer for everyone concerned. How did we "scam our own property owners"? In this case the price was not the question, obtaining available open green space was. You have also questioned the appropriateness of my voting on this issue at that meeting. Board members must vote unless there is a conflict because of benefit or financial gain. Where was my benefit or financial gain? My voting was discussed at the special meeting and I was not asked to abstain. This was not at all like the deal a former supervisor was involved in when he voted to rezone property in which shortly thereafter he became a partner with all the financial benefits. It is not at all like a former trustee voting on a contract that his company was to receive, claiming he had no knowledge of it even though at the time he was president. So I forgive you all for being suspicious, I am, too. That is why I ran for office, to help clean up the act. And this board has done that! We can only hope that you will continue to report the facts without assuming what may or may not be the case. While some still believe headlines and presumed facts can sell papers, misleading headlines and opinions based on unsubstantiated facts can only hurt the community you serve. K.C. Mueller is a Plymouth Township trustee and a sales agent at Remerica Hometown.

While the builder was in the process of the Environmental Phase I review to determine the condition of the property, the township was becoming more and more interested in it as a potential site for future recreation. At the point where the builder had to submit site plans for the township's approval, a decision had to be made. The township ordered its own appraisal of the property to determine if the value was there. Satisfied that it was, an agreement was prepared to assign the purchase from the builder. So the builder waived his condition of site plan approval through the township with the understanding that there be a simultaneous closing. I then informed the sellers' agent that the purchaser was ready to close after appropriate title work was provided by the sellers.

Brief confession, peer pressure telling a tale for our times

My mother used to wear underpants on her head whenever she made her special bread or sausage for the holidays. OK, I revealed our family's deepest, darkest secret. Let the new year begin. Guess what? I used to wear underpants on my head, too. I don't know why I decided to confess. Maybe like Bob Livingston, the recently resigned speaker-elect of the House of Representatives, I felt it was just a matter of time before my past caught up with me. Before I go any further, let me say the practice of wearing a pair of CLEAN white Carter's underpants (usually mine) on our heads during bread-baking and sausage-making had nothing to do with culinary perversion. My mother simply did not trust a leaky hair net to keep her brown follicles or my blonde follicles from contaminating her sweet-tasting bread or marjoram-spiced kielbasa. And like any good little Polish-French girl who loved to help out in the kitchen, I obeyed my mother. The "underpants" scenario unfolded something like this: Eight-year-old me: "Mom, can I help mix the dough (or sausage)?" Mom: "Sure, honey, go put a pair of pants on your head." Ten-year-old me: "Mom, why do we have to wear MY pants? Can't we wear a pair of Louie's?" (my brother, who never helped out in kitchen, as if he was expected to!). Mom: "Yours fit. His don't. Go put a pair of pants on your head." Twelve-year-old me: "Mom, I feel stupid. I'm not ..."

remain with me until death. "Oh my God, you have underpants on your head!" she howled. "How funny. You do know you have underpants on your head, don't you?" More howling. "Why are you wearing ...?" I slammed the door and stomped back into the kitchen, underpants clenched in my hand. "That's it, mom. Laura saw me with ... with ... with THESE on my head!" I thrust the pants at my mother in an indictment. "I'm never wearing these dumb things again." If I remember correctly, my mother calmly kept on grinding out the sausage. "Tell Laura her mother puts a clove of garlic under each wing of her turkey before she roasts it." Laura's family was Italian, and this was my mother's cruelest barb. The line in the sand (flour?) had been drawn: I could either wear pants on my head and continue to help my mother make bread and sausage or I could cave in to peer pressure. I caved in. My mother went solo in the kitchen for a few years and eventually replaced the underpants with surgical caps (compliments of my father's gall bladder surgery). Once, when my 24-year-old daughter, Sarah, was 5, her grandmother crowned her with a pair of Carter's during a joint cooking-baking session. Sarah quickly rebelled. Decades later, I have taken over the duty of making sweetbread and kielbasa for all the holidays. I don't wear pants on my head. But you know, my bread and sausage don't taste quite like my mom's. Do you think it was the underpants?

Want to be impressed? Attend the auto show

Regular visitors to the North American International Auto Show will find few surprises if they've come to expect an ambitious, flashy, eye-catching array of cars, trucks, SUVs and "concept" cars that defy categorization.

Like the producers of the old James Bond movies, the officials of the Detroit Automobile Dealers Association try to outdo themselves with every offering.

A bigger idea

The Ford Motor Co. contributed a lot toward that goal this year by commissioning the construction of the biggest-ever exhibit for the nameplates under its aegis: Ford, Mazda, Lincoln, Mercury, Jaguar and Aston Martin.

Livonia-based Exhibit Works is finishing the Ford (et al.) exhibit this week. Exhibit Works owner Dominic Silvio, a Northville resident, watched his employees swarm over the exhibit Monday as they struggled to recover from the setback of a weekend power outage at Cobo Center. Silvio reported that he and David Dekker, vice president of design, plus many other Exhibit Works employees had been up all night working.

Auto show visitors should be careful coming down the steps in the Lincoln exhibit as this reporter almost fell as the hard-to-see steps took him by surprise. Handicapped visitors will have some difficulty around the Ford exhibit and others as well. Many of the automakers' exhibits feature steps, and wheelchair-bound visitors may have difficulty getting as close to everything as others can.

Ready, set, go

The manufacturers seem to be in competition to have the flashiest display, and some succeed better than others. But, of course, it's a subjective business. For the most part, the exhibits seek to convey an ultra-modern, futuristic feeling.

Subaru appears to be the only exception. The Japanese automaker has created a bucolic setting complete with real trees and tape recorded birds and frogs. Lisa ("It's not a stage name") Ferarri of Birmingham is one of Subaru's tour guides at the show. She likes the outdoor atmosphere of the exhibit. "I feel like I'm in my environment," she said. "I'm a mountain type of girl."

Some of the manufacturers have created extracurricular attractions to keep visitors interested. The Dodge section downstairs features an array of race cars, including one of Richard Petty's old cars, and a figure-eight slot car track.

Volkswagen has a similar, albeit smaller, track and will run three miniature radio-controlled Beetles around it.

Other manufacturers, like Subaru and Volvo, have cafes where visitors can rest a spell and have a cup of coffee. Many have opted to include video presentations in their displays. Cadillac has created a huge, segmented, eccentrically-shaped screen with a sound system to rival a modern movie theater.

Attire will vary

However, manufacturers haven't gotten away from the use of attractive women to greet visitors and explain their products. Their attire tends to match the message each manufacturer seeks to convey. In an appeal to younger buyers, Toyota has dressed models and actresses from Birmingham-based Productions Plus in mini-skirts, go-go boots and tight-fitting tops. Subaru's spokeswomen look like they're up for a hike in the woods, while the young women representing Ford and Kharmani are tastefully attired in business suits or a reasonable facsimile thereof.

Local women

The majority of these women have been hired specifically to work the auto show. Livonia resident Lisa Shkreli said she was hired by Ford for two weeks of work as a "narrator/model," as her name tag identifies her. Shkreli's father, Larry, is the owner of Larry's Kitchen of Redford on Eight Mile between Inkster and Beech Daly. Shkreli works there as a waitress when she's not touting the new Fords.

Other local women working the show are Amy Meeker of Beverly Hills and Aaron Frazier of Taylor, both wearing the Toyota mini-skirt.

Kathi Colli of Rochester Hills will pitch products at the Kharmani exhibit, where she wears a gray business suit.

Your next new car might be on the floor right now

More than 60 vehicle introductions are planned for this year's North American International Auto Show, including the 2000 Jaguar S-Type, the 2000 Mercedes-Benz S-Class and the 2000 Audi TT at the high end of the spectrum.

At the opposite end, small cars with a more global flavor are being unveiled, including the 2000 Dodge and Plymouth Neon, Ford Focus, Toyota Echo and three new Volkswagens, the Golf, Jetta and Cabrio.

All-American entries include Chevrolet's reborn Impala and Buick's redesigned LeSabre.

As has been the case the past few years, a number of sport utility vehicles will be unveiled for the first time in Detroit, including entries from BMW and Nissan.

Here's a rundown on just a few:

Buick LeSabre

Buick seeks to improve on the popular six-passenger LeSabre sedan for 2000. The best-selling, full-size car for seven straight years, the LeSabre has been restyled inside and out to maintain its classic flavor. The body structure, earlier praised when it was used for the Buick Riviera and Park Avenue, is supposed to provide more responsive handling and a more comfortable ride. The LeSabre continues to be powered by GM's venerable 3.8-liter V6 and contains a long list of safety and convenience features.

BMW X5

BMW hopes to set new standards with a four-wheel drive passenger car it calls a "sport-activity" vehicle. The X5 will be built at BMW's plant in Spartanburg, S.C., which also builds the Z3 roadster.

Chevy Impala

Although Chevy is reviving the Impala name and hopes the car's appeal matches that of its predecessors, this is one new car with an old name that doesn't look much like its older self. Once you get past the round tail lights and chrome center bar in the grille, there's not much here to bring the old Impala to mind. Under the hood is a 3.4-liter V6 with 180 ponies. An optional 3.8-liter mill developing 200 horses is available.

Audi TT

Oh mama! The Audi TT is powered by a 180-horsepower, 1.8-liter, turbocharged, five-valve engine coupled with a five-speed manual transmission. A Quattro coupe will go on sale in late summer.

The two-seat Audi TT coupe, first shown as a concept car in 1995, is powered by a 180-horsepower, 1.8-liter, turbocharged, five-valve engine coupled with a five-speed manual transmission. A Quattro coupe will go on sale in late summer.

Ford Focus

The focus is currently available in Europe in three-door, four-door, five-door and station wagon versions with a wide range of multivalve engines. Focus comes with a fully-independent rear suspension system and sports a stiff, lightweight body to improve fuel economy. Its relatively long wheelbase and high roofline provide a spacious interior.

Jaguar S-type

Jaguar's new S-type luxury sports coupe will go on sale this spring as a 2000 model.

S-type buyers may choose between two available powertrains: the new 3-liter AJ-V6 (240 horsepower) and the 4-liter AJ-V8 (281 horsepower). Both engines have aluminum cylinder blocks and heads and are paired with a new five-speed automatic transmission.

A double-wishbone suspension supports the rear-wheel drive car. Forged aluminum control arms keep weight low, and a speed-sensitive, variable-

Smooth move: Exhibit Works employee Craig Cheedie laminates the wooden column enclosures for the Mazda section of the Ford exhibit. The exhibit is the biggest ever built for the North American International Auto Show and required the efforts of more than 250 finish carpenters.

Livonia company creates mammoth Ford exhibit

Livonia-based Exhibit Works has created a new 101,000-square-foot display for Ford, Lincoln, Mercury, Mazda, Jaguar and Aston Martin products that debuts this weekend at the North American International Auto Show. The exhibit contains 200 tons of structural steel, eight semi-truck loads of plywood, 3,000 square feet of brushed and stainless steel, 2,800 square feet of rusted metal (for the flooring in the truck section), tiered maple seating for 350 people, 2,000 square feet of mountain green river and gray honed slate, 6,000 square feet of European beech, 6,000 square feet of tinted green glass and 1,170 square feet of glass flooring.

The two-story exhibit features a bridge the size of a football field, a 90-foot diameter theater, an Internet area and two elevators.

It's not only the biggest car exhibit Exhibit Works has ever built but the biggest exhibit ever to be built for the Detroit auto show.

The exhibit is meant to have a lifespan of at least four years, said Dave Dekker, vice president of design. "This exhibit will do four cities a year for at least four years."

Exhibit Works employed more than 200 finish carpenters on the project. "Our carpenters are the cream of the crop," Dekker said. "By all means give them the credit." Part of the exhibit was built at the Cobo Convention Center where the auto show will be held. And part of it was built in the company's headquarters on Merriam Road south of I-96.

Building exhibits is a tricky business because a company only builds one example of each product. "It really is prototype work," Dekker said. "You hardly ever build the same exhibit twice."

Therefore, the need to get it right the first time (or at least the second time) is tremendously important if a company like Exhibit Works expects to stay in business.

The Ford exhibit was built on computer screens at first, but problems in the construction process inevitably crop up and must be dealt with.

"As of today," Dekker said in the middle of December, "we've got a boatload of stone out in the middle of the Atlantic that's late."

Even the crates that the display will be shipped in are specially designed. "The crates are as much an art and science as the exhibits are," Dekker said. Unlike most crates, Exhibit Works crates are meant to be packed and unpacked many times. They're each designed to hold a particular piece of the display and often cost $300-$400 each.

When Exhibit Works has to get an auto show display ready for the North American International Auto Show, unionized carpenters get plenty of overtime, and engineers work 12 hours a day, seven days a week for three months.

"In this business there isn't much of a Christmas holiday," Dekker said. "You just plain work the hours that are necessary over the Christmas holidays to get it done."

Neither Ford or Exhibit Works would say what the exhibit costs, but Dekker said it's only a small part of the automaker's advertising budget. Yet the Ford account is about 30 percent of Exhibit Works' business.

Auto show visitors will likely see the same exhibit at the 2000 Detroit auto show, but not necessarily after that, Dekker said.

"Sometimes (a display) gets to be inappropriate, or obsolete because the marketing changes."

In that case, the automaker hires Exhibit Works to build yet another one.

Show has long history

Celebrating its 11th year as an international event, the North American International Auto Show is owned and operated by the Detroit Auto Dealers Association.

The first DADA-sponsored show, called the Detroit Auto Show, was held at Beller's Beer Garden (located near the Belle Isle Bridge) in 1907. At that first show, there were 17 exhibitors displaying 33 vehicles.

As the years passed, the show became increasingly popular as the demand and interest for automobiles grew.

In 1965, the show moved to its present location at Cobo Center, which offers one of the largest single-floor showrooms in the world.

In 1989 the show was renamed the North American International Auto Show.

The 1999 NAIAS is the 83rd show in Detroit, making it the longest running auto show in the country.

ratio rack-and-pinion steering system delivers nimble cornering and excellent response.

Among the options available is a voice-activated control system, enabling operation of the primary climate control functions, the audio system and the telephone by voice commands.

The S-type is built at Castle Bromwich near Birmingham, England.

Mercedes-Benz S-Class

Rolled out for the first time at the Paris Auto Show, the S-Class makes its U.S. debut at the North American International Auto Show.

The new S-Class, which has shed about 600 pounds by using aluminum and lightweight steel, will arrive at U.S. dealers in the spring as a 2000 model.

The lineup will consist of two V8-powered sedans; the S430 and S500. Both are loaded with bells and whistles, including distance-monitoring cruise control and keyless operation. A console with a fiber-optic data connection incorporates navigation, radio, TV, compact disc player and telephone functions on a color screen.

Nissan Xterra

Designed to appeal to young people who can't afford upscale SUVs, the Xterra will be built at Nissan's Smyrna, Tenn., plant.

Saab 9-5 Wagon

After launching two new models last year, the 9-3 and 9-5, Saab introduces a station wagon version of the 9-5 in the U.S. this spring. Saab seeks to offer station wagon owners the same performance-oriented driving characteristics and high levels of safety and comfort as the 9-5 provides but with more room and versatility. The new wagon is powered by either a 3-liter V6, or a 2.3-liter, four-cylinder light pressure turbocharged mill.

Volkswagen Cabrio

The Cabrio, which traces its roots back to the classic Beetle Cabriolet, has new styling for 1999. The car comes in two versions; a value-packaged GL priced under $20,000 and a better equipped GLS. Both come with a new 2-liter, four-cylinder engine rated at 115 horsepower.

Volkswagen Golf

The fourth-generation Golf has been redesigned inside and out. Exterior and interior dimensions have grown slightly, and the overall structure has been made more rigid. The car is powered by a new 2-liter, four-cylinder engine rated at 115 horsepower, or an optional 1.9-liter, turbo direct injection diesel.

Volkswagen Jetta

The fourth-generation Jetta was expected to go on sale by the end of 1998. Available in three versions - GL, GLS and GLX - the Jetta comes standard with a new 2-liter, four-cylinder engine rated at 115 horsepower. GLX buyers can get an optional 174-horse VR6 engine. Later this year, Volkswagen will offer the Jetta with a turbo-diesel engine that gets up to 49 miles per gallon.

Honda VV

Honda is calling the half-gas, half-electric, 70-mpg VV a prototype, but plans to put it on sale in the U.S. later this year. The car uses a 1-liter, three-cylinder, gas-powered engine in combination with an electric motor and five-speed manual transmission to achieve the phenomenal fuel economy. Weight-saving measures have kept the car's weight under a ton. Although the VV is small, it will incorporate automatic climate control, anti-lock brakes, electric power steering, dual air bags, radio-cassette stereo system, digital instrument panel and a security system.

Honda S2000 roadster

This lightweight two-seater is powered by a 2-liter, four-cylinder, 240-horsepower mill and incorporates technological advances developed by Honda engineers in 40 years of racing around the world. Features include double-wishbone front and rear suspension, a six-speed manual transmission, contoured leather seats, cruise control, air conditioning, a power soft top, anti-lock brakes and a roll bar. The car will be built in Japan and is expected to be on sale here in the fall.

Ford Focus

The trend in small-car design nowadays is to incorporate more luxury features, and the Focus is Ford's contribution. The automaker hopes the Escort's replacement will appeal to single people under 35, young couples and empty nesters.

Already available in Europe, where it won the car of the year award for that continent, the Focus goes on sale here in the fall. Three body styles are available: three-door hatchback, four-door sedan and station wagon.

Focus has a fully-independent rear suspension system and a high roofline to provide more headroom. Powerplant choices are a standard 2-liter four-banger and the more-powerful "Zetec" version of the same engine. Manual and automatic transmissions are available.

Dodge Neon

The new Neon incorporates many standard features not traditionally found on small cars, including a radio-cassette stereo with six speakers ("dome tweeters" even), Big Gulp size cup holders, split rear folding seats, intermittent wipers with mist feature and a rear-window defroster.

Optional equipment includes four-wheel disc, anti-lock brakes, keyless entry, security system, tilt steering, cruise control, power windows and air conditioning. "We're out of the base car business," said Neon planning executive Walt Battle in a press release. "We've made many traditional options standard because the compact customer demands more."

The Neon is built at Daimler-Chrysler's Belvidere, Ill., plant and will go on sale early this year.

Toyota Echo

"Echo is the first in a line of vehicles being developed by Toyota to target the specific, unique demands of young new-car buyers," said Toyota Vice President Don Esmond as the new car was rolled out Monday.

Toyota even coined a word to describe these young buyers whose business it covets: "Net-Gen," as in Internet Generation. Toyota promises that Echo will be "one of the highest mileage vehicles ever offered in America by Toyota" (45 mpg estimated) and "one of the most economical Toyotas ever built in the areas of periodic maintenance and parts replacement costs."

Many of the car's parts are designed to be recyclable once their useful life ends. Power comes from a new 1.5-liter four-banger with a plastic composite intake manifold. Other features include a choice of audio systems, center-mounted instrument cluster, and "the interior roominess of a compact sedan within the exterior dimensions of a typical subcompact."

Bug, Cherokee win awards

The Volkswagen Beetle and Jeep Grand Cherokee were named winners of the North American Car and Truck of the Year awards, respectively, by the organizing committee Monday at the North American International Auto Show.

The Beetle finished with 292 points over two other finalists, Honda Odyssey and Chrysler 300M. The Cherokee got 300 points, beating out Chevrolet Silverado and GMC Sierra.

The awards are made by an independent jury of 48 journalists who cover the auto industry.

Concept cars steal the show, as usual

The 1999 North American International Auto Show promises to be another blockbuster year for concept car and truck introductions.

In the last 10 years, more than 200 concept cars and trucks have made their worldwide or North American debut here.

This year Detroit's automakers are all introducing concept vehicles — some as many as six.

This year's offering of more than two dozen concept vehicles range from high-performance, luxury sports cars to environmentally-friendly vehicles that produce high fuel economy and low emissions.

A definite theme of this year's concept vehicle offering is "category busters," vehicles that defy pigeonholing into any of the traditional categories, but rather straddle two or more segments.

The following is not a complete list of the concept cars on display at the auto show, but a representative sample.

Ford Thunderbird

This car, slated for production as a 2001 model, drew more attention from journalists at the auto show Monday than any other Ford product. Unlike the last Thunderbird, this one follows the recent nostalgia trend in that it looks a lot more like the Thunderbird of the 1950s, right down to the porthole windows in back. Like the original, the concept T-bird is a two-seat, rear-drive, V8-powered coupe with a removable hard top. "The unbridled optimism and the confident attitude of the 1950s comes through in an absolutely modern design," said Ford Vice President J. Mays in a press release. Oddly enough, Ford press releases say nothing of the car's engine other than it's a V8.

Cadillac Evoq

This luxury V8-powered roadster is the first true Cadillac concept car in more than 10 years. The rear-wheel drive, two-seater comes with a three-piece, retractable hardtop. The Evoq (pronounced evoke) "is envisioned as a flagship model that defines the soul of Cadillac," as the press release has it. "The name is derived from the fact that the car is intended to evoke the power, emotion and innovation that has long been a Cadillac signature through time."

Mitsubishi Mad Max

The Mad Max is intended to be a category buster, combining the attributes of the Japanese company's 3000GT VR-4 grand touring sports car and Dakar Rally-winning Montero luxury sport utility vehicle. Built at Mitsubishi's design center in Cypress, Calif., the four-door, four-wheel drive vehicle has flexible seating, a twin-turbo, 300-horse V6 mill and a console-mounted computer that incorporates the audio system and climate control.

Nissan Z

Nissan plays on nostalgia with the unveiling of a concept version of its famous Z sports car.

As Nissan focuses on a sporty image and performance across its product line, the Z car, which resembles the original 240Z and is being considered for production, would serve as the flagship for the charge.

Jaguar XK180

Car star: The Ford Thunderbird concept car, scheduled for production as a 2001 model, seems to attract more attention than any other Ford offering this year.

the Jag roadsters of the '50s and '60s, the XK180 was created to showcase the skills and talents of Jag stylists, craftsmen and engineers and is not intended for production. The car is based on a shortened version of the supercharged XKR convertible, introduced in 1988. The AJ-V8 mill is modified to produce 450 ponies. The brakes, wheels and suspension are upgraded to match engine performance. The speedometer goes up to 200 mph.

Buick Cielo

The Cielo is a four-door convertible with a segmented, retractable hardtop, roof rails and many voice-activated systems. Controls and gauges are hidden from view until needed. Rear doors are hinged at the back and open from front to back. (What they used to call "suicide doors.")

Pontiac Aztec

The Aztec is a crossover concept that combines the attributes of a midsize sedan, a van and an SUV to accommodate the lifestyle of young people. The yellow Aztec at the auto show is displayed with a matching yellow personal watercraft on a trailer behind.

Chevrolet Nomad

The Nomad is another crossover vehicle, combining the performance and handling of a sports sedan with the access and flexibility of a sports utility vehicle. Its looks are futuristic yet reminiscent of the old Nomad, a Chevy station wagon from the 1950s based on that era's Corvette. The new Nomad is equipped with a small-block V8, independent rear suspension, shift-by-wire transmission, retractable roof and an extended load floor.

Chrysler Citadel

The Citadel is similar to the Chevy Nomad in that it's intended to combine the driveability of a sports sedan with the cargo room of a minivan. Unlike the Nomad, however, the Citadel draws power from two sources. A 3.5-liter V6 gas engine propels the rear wheels. An electric motor drives the front wheels.

The car has dual power sliding rear doors (like a van) and a retracting cargo door that slides under the floor.

Jeep Commander

This concept SUV closely resembles the familiar Jeep Cherokee but features electric power to complement the usual four-wheel drive. It carries an on-board chemical factory that theoretically could produce hydrogen from methanol for the fuel cells, which generate electricity for the vehicle's power. The technology is unlikely to see production until 2010, according to DaimlerChrysler officials.

Oldsmobile Recon

The Recon is a compact SUV that looks like nothing you've ever seen, unless it's the Ford P2000, which is quite similar (in appearance at least). The Recon features a two-panel, power sunroof that extends over front and rear-seat passengers, interactive cluster control, Internet access and a reconfigurable interior.

Ford P2000

This one resembles the Olds Recon on the outside, with remarkably similar styling, and

TEAMWORK MEANS QUALITY

When we all work together, we do a much better job. It's called teamwork. And it's the best way to get things done. The best way to build a quality product.

That's why the men and women of the UAW International Union and General Motors Corporation are working together to build quality cars and trucks. And it shows. In all GM vehicles.

Come visit the men and women of UAW-GM at the auto show. See how we're building quality into all GM cars and trucks.

the Jeep Commander on the inside, where it also features an experimental methanol-to-hydrogen-to-electricity powerplant.

Chrysler PT Cruiser

This concept car is different from the others in that it's intended to go into production in time to be introduced as a 2001 model in early 2000. The front-drive Cruiser will be built in Mexico and feature a new 2.4-liter engine with a choice of automatic or manual transmission. To look at the PT Cruiser you'd probably say it's a cross between a 1950s hardtop hot rod and one of today's SUVs. DaimlerChrysler calls it "a segment breaker too cool to categorize."

Dodge Charger

The Charger, expected to go into production for the 2004 model year, looks a lot like the old Charger, right down to the gas cap on top of the right-rear fender. It's powered by a 4.7-liter supercharged V8 but has extremely low emissions because it runs on compressed natural gas. Though the original Charger was a two-door coupe, this one is a four-door sedan, albeit with performance bucket seats front and rear.

Dodge Power Wagon

This futuristic-looking pick-up truck is meant to recall the workhorse Dodge truck introduced in 1946. It's equipped with a 7.2-liter six-cylinder, turbocharged diesel. Standing taller than the original Power Wagon, the concept's 35-inch tires place its overall height at 77 inches, three inches taller than today's Dodge Ram.

Pick-ups have come a long way in luxurious accommodations in the last several years; so much so that a press release refers to the original Power Wagon's interior as "crude." The new version features "Cognac leather" as the primary interior color and "blonde European ash" wood lining the bed.

Toyota XYR sports coupe

This lightweight (2,500 pounds), high-performance (180 horsepower), front-wheel-drive vehicle is powered by a new aluminum alloy 1.8-liter, twin-cam engine, co-developed with Yamaha, featuring continuously-variable valve timing and continuously-adjustable valve lift, depending on rpm. The vehicle follows Toyota's renewed emphasis on appeal to younger auto buyers. Toyota Vice President Don Esmond stressed the automaker's goal to "re-establish our connection with the young new car buyer" at the company's press conference Monday.

Bugatti EB 118

In creating the EB 118, Italdesign, headed by Giorgetto Giugiaro, harkened back to the classic Bugatti touring cars. Therefore, like many concept vehicles this year, the EB 118 looks like something old and something new at the same time. The biggest topic of conversation surrounding the EB 118 will probably be the 6.3-liter, 18-cylinder, 550-horse engine, the first of its kind in automotive history. Three banks of six cylinders are coupled into a W shape. Four-wheel drive assures good traction when you put the hammer down.

Pickups gaining amenities

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER
rechtinaw@oe.homecomm.net

The trend in pickup trucks continues to move away from pure utility and toward luxury as buyers clearly prefer the latter as much as, if not more than, the former.

Just check out the new full-size truck offerings from Dodge, Ford, Nissan and Toyota. All feature short beds and large cabs seating four or more people. Indeed, Ford President Jim O'Connor told reporters Monday that 70 percent of full-size truck buyers are looking for "super-cabs" with front and back seats.

Ford

With that in mind, Ford is bringing out two similar vehicles: The 2001 F150 truck with a large cab and 5.5-foot bed and the 2001 Explorer Sport Track, which is nearly identical to the F150. Both are expected to be in the showrooms in early 2000. Asked what the difference is between the two vehicles, an industry analyst who requested anonymity, pointed to the Explorer and said, "Big Bucks," pointed to the F150 and said,

"Huge Bucks."

Not to be outdone, Dodge and Toyota introduced supercab pickups this year, too.

Dodge

The Dodge Dakota Quad Cab is the same length as its predecessor, the Dakota Club Cab truck, but features full-size rear doors, roll-down windows and a roomy back seat. The cargo box was shortened to reflect Dodge research indicating that 98 percent of truck buyers choose the short-bed option anyway.

Dodge calls the new Dakota a "compact pickup," but there's nothing compact about the 3.9-liter V6 and 4.7-liter V8 engine options.

Expect to see the new Dakota in dealerships late this year.

Toyota

Toyota will beat Ford and Dodge to the punch by shipping its full-size truck, the Tundra, to dealers in May. The new "Access Cab" features large double doors and "one of the most expansive entry areas in the segment," or so says the press release. And it's the only four-door pickup to feature an exterior handle on each door. Amenities include cup holders, a hidden storage compartment, dual contoured captain's chairs, cassette or CD storage space and an eight-way power seat adjustment for the driver.

Tundra locomotion comes from a 4.7-liter V8, or a 3.4-liter V6. It will be built exclusively at a new factory in Princeton, Ind.

Nissan

Nissan's Frontier Crew Cab truck is billed as "the first compact truck with four full-size forward-hinged doors offered for sale in the United States." Like the Tundra, this Nissan specimen goes on sale in May.

Nissan press releases tout the Crew Cab's passenger-carrying ability - two in front, three in back - and freely admit that the bed is 18 inches shorter than the standard Frontier truck. The double-wall bed features inner bed rope hooks, single-handle rear gate operation and a removable tail gate but is 9 percent smaller in volume than competing extended-cab trucks.

The standard engine is a 3.3-liter V6. No optional engine is listed in the company's press kit.

HOOKED ON HISTORY

VIRGINIA BAILEY PARKER

Good manners ... GW style

Natalie and Phil still laugh about their standard lesson in table manners when they were small children. We used to correct them by saying, "Would you eat like that at a state dinner at the White House?"

Of course, rules of civility have changed since 1801 when John Adams took up residence as the first president to live in the White House. Good behavior was a complicated and formal matter. It was so important that Adams' predecessor, George Washington, had taken the time in his early life to record his version of decent manners.

A lot had to do with how to position yourself and others, according to social rank, whether sitting at the dining table or walking in public — their aristocratic mindset was well-ingrained. Those aside, here are a few other intriguing rules — paraphrased — that you would need to know to get along in Washington's day.

- Don't spit in the fire.
- Don't warm your feet at the fire, especially if there's meat there.
- Don't clean your teeth with the tablecloth napkin.
- Don't make loud noises when breathing.
- Don't gnaw your nails.
- Don't talk while you're yawning.
- Don't blow your nose at the table unless you have to.
- Don't eat off the blade of your knife.
- Don't comment on someone's blemishes.
- Don't dip into the salt dish with a greasy knife.
- Be discreet about picking lice off yourself or others. Thank them for doing you the favor.
- Don't get close enough to people that you spray in their face while talking. (I think that means, "Give them their personal space.")

Tough rules for today

Several of Washington's standards might prove difficult for us to adjust to.

- Don't joke with people who are sick; it will only make them feel worse. (They hadn't yet discovered that laughter is the best medicine.)
- Don't hum or sing to yourself in public. (My husband, Don, would be in trouble.)
- Don't wear dirty or torn clothes. Don't roll your eyes. Don't go out of the bedroom half-dressed. (Teenagers would never survive.)
- Don't fuss with your appearance after leaving the house. (That etiquette was still in place in the 1950s; reapplying lipstick at the table in a restaurant was a definite no-no.)
- Don't laugh at your own jokes. (I'd be in trouble.)
- Don't mock anything serious or make biting jokes. (Letterman and Leno would be in trouble.)
- Don't believe disparaging stories about others. (The tabloids and their faithful following would be in trouble.)
- Don't read in front of others without asking their leave to do so. (This was the 18th- and 19th-century version of channel surfing. Males dominated that arena, too, it seems.)

Rules Washington's mom must have written

There are bits of universal, maternal wisdom that apply to all generations. The following advice must have come from Washington's mother:

- Don't stuff your mouth with food or talk with your mouth full.
- Don't put on airs or act superior with people who don't have the same advantages as you.
- Don't hand out free medical advice when you're not an expert.
- Don't pretend to be an expert on a subject when talking with someone who is an expert. The corollary is: Don't embarrass people by engaging them in conversations about which you know they are knowledgeable.
- Keep good company since bad company will reflect on your own reputation.
- Be gentle in your corrections of o

Young Life attracts youths

As a teenager growing up in Bloomfield Hills, Julie O'Brien couldn't relate to the Scriptures and lessons she heard in church.

"Basically, I didn't see the applicability of anything in the church, nothing spiritually toward me, my life or people my age," O'Brien explained.

The youth group at Kensington Community Church in Troy offered insight into religion.

"They took the time to spend time with me so I could look at my life and see how the message of Jesus Christ can be relevant to me," said O'Brien, a 1994 graduate of Lahser High School in Bloomfield Hills.

Now, at age 23, O'Brien is taking her feelings as a teenager and using them to help renew teenagers' faith in God. She is starting a Young Life branch in the Plymouth and Canton areas.

Young Life is a nationwide, nondenominational Christian organization committed to reaching the adolescent youth of the community with the message of Jesus Christ.

She is hoping to formally begin a group with students at Plymouth Salem and Canton high schools in the spring. Soon, O'Brien explained, groups should pop up in Birmingham, Bloomfield Hills, Walled Lake and Farmington and Farmington Hills.

For now, kids who are interested in Young Life in those cities meet with others in neighboring groups in, for example, Novi and Northville.

"The primary goal of Young Life is to connect with kids in a way that's relevant to them and introduce them and walk with them as they learn about Christ and learn about God," said O'Brien, the assistant coach of Plymouth Canton High School's cross country team. "The thing that makes it unique is it ends up being a school thing. It's targeted toward public schools.

"The way it becomes a school thing is kids are able to experience it with all sorts of their friends who go to church, who don't go to church, kids that are in their biology class, everyone."

O'Brien, the director of Young Life in Plymouth and Canton, has met interested students through networking, other Young Life leaders, spending time at high schools and going to the schools' sporting events.

She encourages kids to visit the club, a weekly meeting held at members' homes. The kids get together and talk, play games, and share in a short message at the end of the meeting.

"It has a big 'everyone's invited' party time kind of atmosphere."

Signing up: Christa Knoll and Lauren Bowdell add their names to the list for future meetings following a meeting of the Novi-Northville Young Life chapter.

Reaches out to teenagers

Young Life is a nationwide, nondenominational Christian organization committed to reaching the adolescent youth of the community with the message of Jesus Christ.

The organization will be reaching out into Plymouth, Canton, Farmington, Farmington Hills, Walled Lake, Birmingham and Bloomfield Hills.

Young Life's activities include weekly club meetings and visits to Young Life Camp.

Julie O'Brien works out of Young Life's Farmington Hills office. For more information about the group, write to the group at P.O. Box 269, Plymouth 48170-0269, or visit the office at 37630 Interchange Drive, Farmington Hills. She can also be reached by calling (248) 477-5001.

'Community' helps First Step deliver services

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER
smason@oe.homecomm.net

When the members of St. Aidan's Church in Livonia provided food baskets and toys at Thanksgiving and Christmas for a 10th straight year, First Step was thankful.

When members of Phi Theta Kappa at Schoolcraft College delivered 33 food baskets packed to the brim with everything a family could need for their holiday dinner and more, First Step was thankful.

When a 10-year-old Girl Scout made 30 Christmas stockings and cataloged by age and gender the contents, collected by fellow Girl Scouts, again First Step was thankful.

For more than 20 years, the Western Wayne County Project on Domestic and Sexual Violence has been relying on "the community" and grants to support its many programs.

"We have a lot of ongoing support from the community — large workplace agencies like Ford, churches and individuals too numerous to mention," said Judith Barr, associate director of the First Step Shelter, which provides a safe place for 43 women and children forced to leave their homes because of domestic violence. "The community is very generous. There's a lot of tears around here this time of the year. It's an amazing time to work at an agency like First Step."

Donations are especially important at the shelter. A former nursing home, the facility has its fair share of maintenance and repairs, so it was a blessing when members of Suburban West Business and Professional Women's Club came in and remodeled its 40-by-14-foot dining room.

For the third consecutive year, members and family members and friends went to the shelter for the one-day workathon. In the previous years, club members made over two bedrooms at the shelter.

"We went to see them and asked what room needed the most help and they said this room; everybody uses it," said Karen Wilmering, who organized the project. "People think it's a wonderful thing we're doing and everyone in the group likes it because they feel they're doing something other than giving money."

Colorful scheme

Drawing on her talents as interior designer/owner of About Interiors in Livonia, Wilmering came up with the color scheme for the room, based on a light blue, yellow, mint green and white checkered wallpaper border.

The four walls were painted in each of the different colors, and a cabinet near the kitchen was painted white with its inlaid panels on the doors and sides done in yellow, blue and green.

Wilmering relied on the talents of "John at Anderson Paint" to custom mix the paint to the match the border, and found bed sheets that were banded in yellow and green and transformed into window curtains, tiebacks and valances by member Mah-noush St. Clair.

"Mah-noush made three-quarters of the curtains while she was there," Wilmering said. "She brought her equipment with her and did a wonderful job. They fitted like a glove."

To maintain privacy and with durability in mind, McDonald Wholesale in Detroit, working on a tight schedule, custom made the six roller window shades and delivered them the night before the scheduled makeover.

The installation of the shades and window treatments was handled by veteran volunteer Cliff Lamberg who "has every tool known to man and the know-how to do what you ask," Wilmering said. "Nothing he puts back isn't better than before. The shades were put up for life and the window treatments were put in to stay because we knew the children would play with them."

In all, the club members kicked in $600 for the dining room project and spent close to 12 hours working at the shelter.

Manning the paint rollers, wallpaper steamers and spray cans were Lamberg, his wife, Marie, daughter Chelsea and son Connor, St. Clair, her husband Bob and daughter Roya, Wilmering, her husband Richard and daughter Courtney, Judy and Dan Lofgren, Denise Allen, Sherri Rogin, Sandy Arrowsmith, Kelly Procailo and Vicki Elster.

Welcome sight

Such work at the shelter doesn't go unnoticed by the women and children who stay there or First Step itself. The residents were excited the group was coming by and First Step Executive Director Judy Ellis, in a letter to the club, pointed out that Suburban West's "contribution increases our ability to reach out to those in need and meet the growing demands for services."

"Community support helps us move one step closer to ending domestic violence and sexual assault in our community," she said.

But the agency's needs don't end there. There's a need for things like painting and building repairs, lawn maintenance, rubbish and snow removal, even nonperishable food.

At one time, a company provided rubbish removal, but stopped when it moved out of Wayne County; First Step no longer receives funding for food purchases.

"We want the community how much we appreciate what they do for us and gently remind them that it's an ongoing need all year long," Barr said.

Volunteerism - "people power" - also helps First Step meet the growing demand for services. More than 300 active volunteers do everything from clerical work and providing transportation to counseling clients and working on the 24-hour response team for sexual assault victims.

"The whole area of people power is huge for First Step," said Barr. "It's impossible to put a dollar amount on the donations and volunteerism, but the clients, especially the shelter clients, are overwhelmed by the giving and the feelings behind it."

With ending domestic violence one of its projects, helping redecorate the shelter is a natural for Suburban West. And yes, the members will be back again this year to do more.

"Our members are very dedicated to this," said Wilmering. "Domestic violence is one of the things this group is working to overturn."

she said. "It ends up being a come-one, come all kind of thing. It ends up being really fun."

'Nice, positive thing'

Joan Noricks, president of the nonprofit organization Canton Community Foundation, said area parents agree and she's pleased that Young Life has come into the township.

"What I'm understanding is that the Novi/Northville group that started two years ago, they've got 80 to 100 kids who are very active," Noricks said. "It's not just a denomination kind of thing. It's very focused in helping young people develop their Christian morals and things like that."

"It's just a nice positive thing. I have not heard anything negative. Some churches may feel threatened with their own respective youth groups. They may be afraid of it, but that's not their (Young Life's) intent at all. They're trying to reach out to kids who are not involved ... those who would not go to a church youth group."

Bill and Kathy McGlone of Canton got involved as committee members for Young Life after hearing about the Novi and Northville group. They - along with Dave and Robyn Loewe of Plymouth, Todd and Deb Laird of Canton, and Jim and Madelyn Cosens of Plymouth and volunteer leader Vaughn Lamer of Plymouth - work to raise funds for the Plymouth and Canton group.

"In the midst of turmoil, kids need unconditional love and they can find that in this organization because of the caring adults in Young Life and how they reach out to kids," Kathy McGlone explained. "They establish relationships with them. As they build those relationships they communicate how Jesus can make a difference in their lives."

Young Life is nothing new to the United States. It was started 60 years ago by Jim Rayburn, who is quoted in Young Life literature as saying "Christ is the strongest, grandest, most attractive personality ever to grace the earth. It is a crime to bore anyone with the gospel."

O'Brien said there are several active Young Life branches in the western part of Michigan and in Washtenaw County. She should know. O'Brien got her start as a University of Michigan student volunteering with the Pioneer High School Young Life group in Ann Arbor. She earned a degree in psychology and economics from U-M in 1998.

In June 1998, she was hired to gather a team of volunteer leaders and to facilitate the direct ministry with the kids at Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem High Schools.

Getting started

To get the ball rolling, a group of teenagers from the area attended Young Life's summer camp, Castaway Club, in northern Minnesota, in the summers of 1997 and 1998.

"There's been like nine or 10 boys from Plymouth that have gone to camp," Kathy McGlone explained. "They said it's fun to tell about all they learned when they were at camp. They had just a blast. On the other hand, they really learned what a difference Christ can make in their teen lives."

O'Brien's goal is to begin weekly club meetings by the end of the 1998-99 school year. She sees several benefits to joining Young Life.

"First of all, it's not like a club where you have mandatory participation," she said. "It's not like a club where you pay dues. It's very informal. The benefits are kids have a ton of fun. That's any kind of kids - the athletic ones, the super academic ones, the artsy ones, the popular ones. They all have a great, great time."

"Also, kids get to learn about what I think is a vastly important part of life. They get to do that in a nonthreatening way and in a way that's relative and applicable to their life. They get to do that with their friends. That's a huge plus."

And it's a two-way street and a plus for the leaders, like O'Brien. "They (the kids) get to develop a mentor relationship with someone who's older than them and not out-of-touch older than them; that's really neat to see," she said. "Those leaders walk with those kids for four years of their high school life and beyond."

The group meets 7-9 p.m. Tuesdays, January through April, in Room 225 of the McDowell Center on the college's Livonia campus, Haggerty north of Six Mile.

Workshop helps kids in dealing with grief

An eight-week workshop for children dealing with the loss of a loved one and for the adults who care for them is being offered by Angela Hospice's "My Nest Is Best" pediatric program.

"Growing Through Grief" will be offered 6-7:30 p.m. Thursdays, Jan. 21 through March 11, at Angela Hospice, 14100 Newburgh, Livonia.

The workshop will provide children ages 5-18 with creative and supportive activities to help them explore their thoughts and feelings about their losses. It also will help them learn about grief.

It will give parents the opportunity to discuss the challenges of helping a child through the grieving process, often while dealing with their own grief.

According to Leslie Feret, a pediatric social worker for "My Nest Is Best," some workshop participants at first are hesitant about attending, but can hardly wait to return after being part of the group discussion.

"Peer support allows children to realize, to their relief, that their fears and feelings are normal and that other children are sharing their same experiences," Feret said.

The classes will be guided by a specialized pediatric team, including a psychologist, social worker and nurse.

The workshop is open to the public. Confidential fees will contributions will be accepted. For more information or to register, call Angela Hospice at (734) 464-7810.

Ambassadors lift USA

Eight members of the North American Hockey League-leading Compuware Ambassadors and their coach, Mike Vellucci, were the backbone of the USA Junior Selects team that captured the five-team USA Freedom Challenge tournament, held Dec. 27-31 in Lake Placid, N.Y.

The Junior Selects posted a 3-0-1 record in claiming the gold medal in the inaugural tournament, competing against other all-star teams from the Czech Republic, Finland, Sweden and the U.S.

The Junior Selects opened the tournament with a 5-2 triumph over the Swedish squad, thanks to two goals by Mark Mink of the Ambassadors. They followed that with an 8-4 victory over Finland, with goalie Craig Kowalski of the Ambassadors making 33 saves and teammate Pat Brush scoring a goal.

The Czech Republic and the Junior Selects played to a 3-3 tie in the next game, with Brush again getting a goal and Compuware's Troy Milam getting two points. In the gold-medal match, the Junior Selects scored the game's first four goals and coasted to a 4-2 triumph over the U.S. National Under-18 team.

It was the second gold medal captured by this team in six weeks; last November, they won the USA Hockey King of the Hill Tournament.

"This group of guys played very well together and deserved to be champions," said Vellucci, who also had John Shounevia, Jack Redwood, Pete Broccoli and Andy Burnes from the Ambassadors on the Junior Selects squad.

Whalers bid to host Memorial Cup

The premier event in junior hockey — the Memorial Cup — could be coming to Compuware Arena in May. Plymouth Whalers officials will present their Cup bid to hockey officials later this month.

BY BRAD EMONS
SPORTS WRITER
bemons@oe.homecomm.net

The Plymouth Whalers are among four Ontario Hockey League teams putting in a bid for the North America's most prized junior tournament — the Memorial Cup, held annually in May.

Whalers general manager and coach Pete DeBoer confirmed that Compuware Arena, which seats 4,300 in Plymouth Township, will make a presentation for the tournament on Jan. 20.

Other OHL division-leading teams in the hunt include Ottawa, Barrie and Guelph.

Bids will also be considered by teams in the Western Hockey League and Quebec Junior Majors.

If the Whalers were awarded a bid, they would automatically gain the right to play in the four-team tournament along with the OHL, WHL and Quebec playoff winners.

Last year's Memorial Cup was played in Spokane, Wash.

"The last time we had a chance to bid on it we passed, but now with our new facility and with our community support, we feel we can make a strong bid," DeBoer said.

"Our location, being in a major metropolitan area with Windsor and Detroit airports close by, we feel we have all the elements in place," said DeBoer, who will help make the presentation on behalf of the Whalers. "We'll be going before an arm's-length committee, totally independent of any league."

A factor working against Plymouth is that the Memorial Cup was just hosted by a U.S. city and it may return to Canada, which would make Ottawa the frontrunner.

Whalers struggle on trip

BY BRAD EMONS
SPORTS WRITER
bemons@oe.homecomm.net

One of the Ontario Hockey League's hottest teams was snowed under during its latest road swing.

Playing four games in five days, the Plymouth Whalers returned home Sunday night from Oshawa a bit weary, bruised and battered, going 0-3-1.

The West Division leaders (27-8-3), playing without five regulars — all competing at the World Junior Championships in Winnipeg, Manitoba — lost 2-1 to the host Generals in the final game of the trip.

The Whalers finished 3-4-1 during the eight-game stretch without defenseman Paul Mara (U.S.) and Nikos Tselios (U.S.), along with forwards David Legwand (U.S.), Harold Druken (Canada) and Tomek Valtonen (Finland).

All five are expected to return by Friday, including Druken, who played in Tuesday's World Junior Championship final against Russia.

"The whole way was bad travel — bad roads, bad trip," Whalers coach Pete DeBoer said. "But I feel the team played a little above expectations given the fact that we were missing five impact players — all at once — and we played close to .500 hockey."

In the Oshawa loss, rookie goaltender Derek Dolson stopped 21 shots, while Whaler counterpart Robert Holsinger turned away 32.

Andrew Peters scored the game-winner for Oshawa (19-14-3) with 8:43 to go in the final period.

Each team tallied a goal in the opening period.

Oshawa's Kevin Colley notched his 21st of the year, while Plymouth's Rick Smith tallied a power-play goal, his 14th of the season.

On Saturday, Central Division-leading Barrie and the Whalers played to a 2-2 draw before 4,092.

Whalers backup goaltender Rob Zepp turned away 34 of 36 shots, while Barrie netminder Ben Vanderklok made 22 stops.

Troy Smith scored a short-handed goal for Plymouth in the second and Mark McMahon tallied the equalizer from Adam Colagiaco and Shaun Fisher at 6:16 of the third period.

On Friday, East Division opponent Belleville skated to a 6-3 win over the Whalers.

It was 1-1 after one period as Derek Campbell scored for the Bulls and Eric Goody (from Smith and Randy Fitzgerald) countered for the Whalers.

Although outshot 36-31 on the night, Belleville scored five of the next six goals — Kevin Baker (his 23rd), Michael Jacobsen, Randy Rowe, Justin Papineau (his 27th) and Kelly Paddon.

Fisher scored his fifth for the Whalers in the second period from Colagiaco and Fitzgerald. Smith scored in the second period from Colagiaco and Goody.

Holsinger stopped 19 of 25 shots, while the Bulls' Cory Campbell turned back 30 of 33.

Belleville defenseman Jason Lawmaster (Westland John Glenn) was penalized three times.

The four-game swing began Wednesday, before 2,402 in Owen Sound with the host Platers winning 4-2, despite being outshot, 35-24. Owen Sound goaltender Curtis Sanford made 33 saves.

After a scoreless first period, Owen Sound outscored Plymouth 3-1 in the second on goals by Wes Goldie (his 15th), Chad Woolard (his 20th) and Joel Ward (his 15th). Platers leading scorer Dan Snyder also beat Holsinger in the third period.

Rick Smith scored for the Whalers from Colagiaco and Fitzgerald in the second. Left winger Jamie Lalonde added a goal in the third from Smith and Kevin Holdridge.

"I thought all of our rookies stepped it up, starting with Zepp on up," DeBoer said. "We have an older, experienced team, and a lot of them (rookies) haven't had an opportunity to play as much, but once they got thrown into the fire, they more than held their own."

The Whalers return to action Friday, night at Midwest Division-leading Guelph, before coming home for a weekend home stand Saturday with Belleville (7:30 p.m. start) and Sunday against Sault Ste. Marie (6:30 p.m. start).

"We have another tough stretch, three games in three nights," DeBoer said. "We gave them Monday off and we were back at it today (Tuesday). Everybody is pretty much returning to health."

Madonna follows Cushman's lead

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR
cjrisk@oe.homecomm.net

When Katie Cushman arrived at Madonna University, she was almost immediately christened as the offensive savior for the women's basketball team.

That was more than three years ago. Cushman lived up to that early designation by leading the Lady Crusaders in scoring.

But that was then, when she was a freshman. Cushman is no longer Madonna's designated scorer. Indeed, after leading the Crusaders in scoring her first two seasons on campus, she has tapered off, now, as a senior, she's just one of five players with an average scoring rate in double figures, behind team leader Chris Dietrich.

Has her status diminished? Not a chance.

Madonna coach Marylou Jansen summed it up quite succinctly: "Katie's doing everything better. She's a much better player now than she was two years ago."

Cushman's numbers provide proof. She's ranked in the top 10 in the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference in three categories, but while her scoring average (13.3 points) is just 10th she leads the league in assists (6.1) and ranks second in steals (2.3).

That last figure best verifies where the 5-foot-5 senior point guard has improved most. "Katie's been an impact player every year she's been here," said Jansen, who is in her third season as coach of the Crusaders. "But when she first got here, Katie just didn't concentrate on defense. She'd score 26 points, and the two girls she'd be covering would score 36."

"She's gone from being our worst defensive guard two years ago to our best defensive guard this year."

It hasn't exactly been a sudden defensive turnaround. Cushman's performance against players she was assigned to check was markedly better last season. This season, she's taken that a step further by upgrading her help defense — one reason her steal average is so high.

"I think my defense is what I've had to work on most," Cushman said. "I realized you have to play at both ends of the court. I've really worked hard at that, and I think I've come a long way."

Last week, Cushman was named WHAC player of the week for the second time this season after being selected as the Taylor University Tournament's most valuable player, scoring 24 points in the championship game, a 79-74 Madonna victory. Cushman totaled 39 points and seven assists in the two tournament games.

"She's gone from setting up Katie's offense to setting up everyone else," said Jansen. "She's worked very, very hard. Katie doesn't do anything half way."

Cushman's motivation is easy to pinpoint. "The fact that it's my senior year has come into play," she explained. "I

Borgess cools off Shamrocks to open league

BY RICHARD L. SHOOK

It's tough to be hot when you're rusty and cold.

Redford Bishop Borgess chilled — literally — Redford Catholic Central, 71-67, Tuesday night in their Detroit Catholic League season opener.

Both teams had limited practice time since their last games Dec. 30. Borgess had a half-hour of floor work plus some film time in an unheated gym — it's own — on Monday while Catholic Central worked out Saturday and Monday.

So that made for a certain amount of rust Tuesday. What made it worse was that the Borgess gym (there was no school Tuesday) was only at a temperature of about 60 degrees by game time.

The visiting Shamrocks hit a frosty 29.7 percent on 22-of-74 shooting. The host Spartans also made 22 field goals, but only took 45 shots to do so.

Playoff coach sacked

BY BRAD EMONS
SPORTS WRITER
bemons@oc.homecomm.net

Chuck Donaldson, the only coach to guide Livonia Clarenceville to a state football playoff berth in school history, has been fired.

First-year Clarenceville athletic director and assistant principal Chuck Sorentino made the decision during holiday break.

The 31-year-old Donaldson, who was 26-20 during his five-year tenure, said the move came as a "total shock."

"I really had no idea," Donaldson said. "The only reason I received is that they were looking at the long-term range of the football program He (Sorentino) said without a JV or freshman team, he could see it collapsing in two or three years because of the numbers."

Despite the Trojans going 7-3 and qualifying for the first time ever for the state playoffs, Sorentino, with the apparent blessings of Clarenceville principal Dave Simowski, decided the program needed to go in a different direction.

Simowski was unavailable for comment Tuesday night.

"Although it's unpleasant, I feel it's the right decision and the right thing to do," Sorentino said. "Evaluating coaches at the end of each sports season falls under my job. Did I consult others? Yes. Hiring and dismissing coaches is my job."

Sorentino believed the program was in danger of becoming extinct within three years if Donaldson continued.

Clarenceville, a member of the Metro Conference with an enrollment of 468 students, carried only 26 varsity players with no junior varsity or freshman squad.

"We really don't have a program," Sorentino said. "We had a successful (varsity) season, but I'm worried about the big picture."

"There was really no off-season training. We don't really have the all the basics of a long-term program. We need somebody with some fresh or creative ideas of building a program because you can't survive with 25 kids. You have to bridge the gap with the middle school program and build bridges with the varsity. We need to take steps. I know it hurts Chuck and it hurts me as well."

Donaldson, who teaches at Clarenceville, contends he made attempts to establish a total program.

"Every year I had meetings at the middle school, two or three times during second semester to draw up interest," Donaldson said. "I called kids during the summer. But when it comes to football time and they don't show up, I don't know what else I could have done."

"You can't force a kid to play football. The kids who want play will play. I actually had JV coaches hired, but 11 doesn't justify a JV team. But I was hoping making the playoffs would breed some interest."

Donaldson's final game at Clarenceville was a 48-28 playoff loss to Capac. The Trojans earned a berth in Class CC-Region IV by leapfrogging four teams on the final weekend.

They were the talk of the state tournament and Observerland.

Donaldson's story of coaching from a wheelchair also came to light in both Detroit daily newspapers.

Hired in the spring of 1993, Donaldson was left a quadriplegic just two months later in a car accident. Michigan State Police reports revealed Donaldson, who collided with a Canton police officer during the early morning hours, registered a high blood-alcohol content.

After spending five months in the hospital, Donaldson, though unable to walk along with limited use of his arms, began his first season in 1994.

This past season culminated in him being named Class CC-Region IV Coach of the Year.

"I could see if I was cheating, stealing or abusing kids, or even losing, I would have resigned," said Donaldson, a former Livonia Stevenson High quarterback and Central Michigan University graduate. "We haven't won any state titles, but we've had pretty good success and we've been competitive. And people who know me know that I can't stand losing."

Does Donaldson believe that being handicapped played a factor in his dismissal?

"I'm kind of thinking that now the more people mention it," he said. "I'm saying to myself, 'God, maybe it's me being in a chair.' It's been known to happen."

Sorentino said Donaldson's removal was "nothing personal."

"I've tried to treat Chuck with the utmost respect," the athletic director said. "He's a tremendous individual and a courageous person. If everybody is as courageous as him, the world would be a better place, but we felt it was time as far as making a change."

Sorentino, who came to Clarenceville after serving as a counselor for nine years at Dearborn Divine Child, also reopened the varsity boys basketball job, replacing five-year coach Rick Larson in favor of DC assistant Bill Dyer.

The Clarenceville A.D. said he has no particular candidate in mind.

"What we're looking for is somebody with varsity experience," Sorentino said. "We'll post it tomorrow (Wednesday) and see what happens."

Meanwhile, Donaldson is not sure about his future in coaching.

"I can't see coming back. I have some bitter feelings right now and I'm really livid," he said. "It doesn't seem like due process."

Shamrock coach collects 700th dual-meet win

Redford Catholic Central's wrestling team has a 3-2 record in dual meets, giving coach Mike Rodriguez 701 career wins.

Rodriguez, 66, is 701-207 in 42 years, 31 at CC. His teams have won seven state championships, the last in 1988.

It's been as long since the Shamrocks have won their own wrestling invitational, which celebrates its 34th year this Saturday.

Wrestling starts at 10:30 a.m. Fourteen teams are coming, including state powers Clarkston and Temperance Bedford.

Bedford is the favorite after finishing second at last week's Goodrich Tournament behind champion Rochester Adams.

The Shamrocks were sixth there despite having one champion, heavyweight Casey Rogowski, and a runner-up: Brocc Naysmith at 215 pounds.

Mitch Hancock was third place at 160 pounds and Chris O'Hara third at 103.

"If God smiles on us, we might (challenge for first place)," Rodriguez said. "We're better than last year but still got a long ways to go."

Rodriguez has been in coaching so long, he's now coaching his grandchildren: Brocc Naysmith and freshman Brandon Naysmith, a 160-pounder.

His son, Dave Rodriguez, is one of his assistant coaches.

Former CC wrestlers frequently stop by the room to see their former coach. Jeff Pascol, a 1998 graduate, stopped by at Tuesday's practice.

He was easy to recognize because of his long hair at a school that has an ear code. He wouldn't dare wear earrings around Rodriguez, though.

"No earrings, just long hair," said Pascol, a 160-pounder last year, who looks like he could compete two weight classes up, especially after the holidays.

Rodriguez prepped at Ann Arbor Pioneer and was an All-America wrestler at the University of Michigan.

He was an alternate for the 1960 U.S. Olympic Team but was denied entry to the Games, held in Rome, Italy as a last-minute substitute. Rodriguez said the Russians, dominant in the sport at the time, had a large say in refusing him. "I had my Visa, was packed and ready to go," Rodriguez said. "At that time, they had all the say."

This is the second time the teams met in a week. The Spartans beat the Shamrocks, 75-74, in the second-round of the Motor City Roundball Classic on Tuesday, Dec. 29 at U-D Jesuit.

"They were in the same boat as we were," Coach Rick Coratti of Catholic Central said. "They played well. They hit a lot of free throws."

Indeed, Bishop Borgess went to the line 45 times and sank 30 while Catholic Central was 18-for-23 in free throws. Curtis Allen of the Spartans protected the margin by making 7-of-12 free throws in the fourth quarter.

"We did a good job down the stretch," Coach Roosevelt Barnes of Bishop Borgess said. "We ran our delay and Curtis Allen and Kendrick Jones both went to the basket and made a couple of key baskets."

Allen's three-point play with 58 seconds left gave the Spartans a 67-62 lead. Jones made his with 1:52 to play to make it 62-58.

Bishop Borgess went into its delay clinging to a 55-54 lead with 5:05 to play and more than a minute off the clock before Catholic Central started fouling Allen.

Allen wound up with 20 points, center Marcuz Young had 18, Jones scored 15 in his first start and Justin McClain scored 10.

Nick Moore led Catholic Central with 20 points but it was a quiet 20 as he had a nippy night shooting. So did Dan Jess, whose six points came off two of the many threes he shot.

Matt Lorida scored 15 for the Shamrocks, Rob Sparks had 13 and Anthony Tomey 10.

Bishop Borgess started strong, holding a 20-14 lead after one period, but Catholic Central dominated the second period and led, 36-32, at the half.

"We had a chance to pull away in the third quarter," Coratti said, "but we turned the ball over too many times. That's what killed us."

The Shamrocks were up, 45-37, after Moore hit a triple with 4:43 left in the third quarter. But they committed five turnovers and made just one basket the remainder of the quarter as the Spartans hauled themselves into a 48-48 tie.

Missing their first eight shots of the final quarter put the Shamrocks in a 54-48 hole. They came back to forge a 58-58 deadlock with 2:32 left but Kahlil

Mims knocked down a shot from inside the free throw line and the Spartans never trailed from there.

Sparks fouled out with two minutes to play "and that hurt us," Coratti said. Borgess scored on every possession after that.

"Allen is showing good leadership," Barnes said. "He's a smart young man. Academically, too. I think he'll make somebody a good point guard in college."

Barnes mixed his defenses effectively, switching between full-court pressure to double-teams to half-court man-to-man.

His Spartans also did a good job of keeping the Shamrocks from exploiting their zones. Catholic Central got some effectiveness out of disguising its zone by having its guards play man-to-man or having the man on top chase the ball-handler.

Catholic Central held a 44-41 rebounding edge but was dominant in the second half, although it had problems making even the chippies.

"You've got to score," Coratti said after his team sank to 4-3 overall following its Catholic League opener. Barnes' team is 3-3, with two wins over Catholic Central (the first a one-pointer in a holiday tournament).

Absent Druken relinquishes scoring leadership

The leading scorer in the Ontario Hockey League is no longer the Plymouth Whalers' Harold Druken, but at least it's still a Whaler.
Druken has missed eight

WHALER NOTES

games while playing for Team Canada at the World Junior Hockey Tournament in Winnipeg, Manitoba. When he left his 64 points, on 38 goals and 26 assists, were best in the league.

Now, while Druken's 38 goals is still tops in the OHL, his point total is fourth. The new league-leader is Whaler teammate Adam Colagiaco, with 71 points on 22 goals and a league-high 49 assists.

The Whalers have six players with at least 11 goals. Last season's leading point-producer — David Legwand, who was the second overall selection in last June's NHL entry draft — has missed 13 games this season while at the Nashville Predators pre-season camp and playing for Team USA at the World Junior Tournament. Legwand is third on the Whalers with 39 points, on 18 goals and 21 assists.

Also ranked among the OHL leaders is goalie Robert Holsinger, who is fifth in goals-against average (2.42). Holsinger has a 14-6 record with one shutout and a .911 save percentage.

The worst is over for the Whalers. Now all they need do is rediscover that unbeatable status they so often displayed during the first 30 games of the season.

After going 24-4-2, Plymouth slumped during the holidays, going 3-4-1 — mainly due to an overjammed schedule (six games in eight days, five of them on the road) with five of the team's best players participating in the World Junior Hockey Tournament.

Those five players (Druken, Legwand, Nikos Tselios, Paul Mara and Tomek Valtonen) have returned and will be in the lineup this weekend. And they'll be needed, because the Whalers must play three games in three days, starting with a road match Friday at Guelph, the OHL's Midwest Division leader.

But after the game at Guelph, Plymouth has just nine regular-season road games remaining, with 19 games at home.

Bennett boosts Chargers

BY BRAD EMONS
SPORTS WRITER
bemons@oe.homecomm.net

John Bennett's favorite player is Grant Hill.

And for one quarter, Livonia Churchill's 6-foot-4 junior forward put on a performance like the former Duke star and Detroit Piston, scoring 19 points Tuesday night to lift the host Chargers to a 62-57 boys basketball win over Garden City.

The win improved Churchill's record to 3-2 overall, while GC slips to 2-3.

Bennett, who went inside and outside en route to a game-high 27 points, helped stem a Garden City 26-10 third-quarter run.

He connected on three shots beyond the three-point arc in the fourth.

"We were just breaking the press and the team was giving me good passes and I was making cuts to the open spots," said Bennett, who played half of last season on the varsity. "When you get into a flow it just suits me better."

And why is Hill his favorite?

"He's a team player who likes to score and get others involved," Bennett said.

Junior guard Randall Boboige, who added 18 points for the Chargers, made three of four free throws during the final 31.6 seconds to seal the victory.

And Eric Lightle's block of a Garden City shot in the final minute proved to be a piv-total defensive play.

But it was the play of Bennett, who was eight of nine from the floor over the final eight minutes of action, that had Churchill coach Rick Austin excited. (Bennett's previous high was 25 against Dearborn.)

"John hit some threes," but actually most of his points came from the inside paint area," Austin said. "John struggled in the first half from the wing, but then we moved him to the low post. That turned out to be a key move because when he gets the ball in there, he knows only one thing — score."

"And he does so many things for us inside. He gives us some size and he's learning to rebound. And he knows how to get open."

Churchill led 26-14 at halftime as Garden City made just six of 25 shots from the floor (24 percent).

"We were not ready to play," Garden City coach Greg Williamson said. "You can't turn it on and off. You have to do it consistently. That's the mark of a good team."

But the third quarter was a different story. The Cougars came out red-hot, hitting 10 of 13 shots from the floor to take a 40-36 advantage.

Junior guard Brian Harnos scored 10 of his team-high 17 points during GC's 26-10 run.

won't get any of these games back, so I give it my all every night."

Putting points on the scoreboard aren't a necessity any longer, thanks to the Crusaders' improved depth. "The team we have now, it's hard for (opponents) to focus on just one of us," said Cushman. "We have so much depth, they can't double-team one player. Which helps me, because I have so many other options."

All of which adds up to more fun and more wins. Madonna takes an 11-4 record into Thursday's WHAC season-opener at home against Aquinas College (game time is 7 p.m.).

"This is the most fun team I've been on," said Cushman. "The personnel bring more to the table than any other (Madonna) team. When we're hot, we're really hot. The momentum picks up and we feed off that."

Cushman and her Crusader teammates would both like to prolong that feeding frenzy, with the ultimate aim to take them to a WHAC title and into the NAIA Tournament. Madonna qualified for the NAIA Regionals in Cushman's sophomore season.

"I definitely want to win the league," the team co-captain said. "That would get us back to nationals, and that's an experience that's hard to explain to people."

Cushman's doing all she can to paint a clear picture to her teammates. Said Jansen: "That's been a big thing with her, her leadership. This year she's been a total joy. She's such a positive force."

"She's low maintenance and high fun. I always respected her as a player, but now I respect her as much as a person. I wouldn't change anything she's done this year."

A player with that kind of inspirational leadership qualities can carry a team a long way. But for Cushman and her teammates, it's nice to know she won't have to do it alone.

HOOP NOTES: Poor weather conditions forced the postponement of both Madonna basketball games. Originally scheduled for last night (Jan. 6), the Crusaders men's and women's teams will now open their Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference seasons tonight.

Madonna's men's team will play at Aquinas College at 7:30 p.m. tonight, while the Madonna women host Aquinas at 7 p.m. tonight.

Snowstorm forces a cancellation of hoop games

School closings due to frigid temperatures and snow played havoc Tuesday with scheduled area high school basketball games.

One postponement, however, did not result in either.

Failure to relose a main door to Livonia Franklin's gymnasium caused the school officials to cancel the Patriots' non-league game with Milford.

Among other games postponed and yet to be rescheduled: Plymouth Canton at Ann Arbor Huron; Westland Huron Valley Lutheran at Flint Valley; Harper Woods Lutheran East at Livonia Clarenceville; Redford Union at Livonia Stevenson.

Westland John Glenn's non-leaguer with visiting Ypsilanti will not be made up according to Glenn athletic director Gerald Szukaitis.

The Riverview at Wayne

SCHEDULE CHANGE

Memorial game was replayed Wednesday. Results of that game will appear in Sunday's Observer.

The Grosse Pointe University-Liggett at Lutheran Westland Metro Conference game has been rescheduled for 3:45 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 16.

In men's college basketball, the Flint Mott at Schoolcraft College game will be replayed sometime in February. Madonna University's game with host Aquinas is scheduled for 7:30 tonight.

In women's college basketball, Mott at Schoolcraft will be rescheduled for February. Madonna, meanwhile, opens its Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference schedule at 7 tonight against Aquinas.

Both the Madonna men's and women's games were originally scheduled for Wednesday, Jan. 6.

ICE CARVERS

GO FOR THE GOLD

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN

The Plymouth International Ice Sculpture Spectacular, by its very nature, will never grow old. New ideas by award-winning and emerging carvers insure the art of creating sculptures from ice remains an exciting spectator sport for the 750,000 visitors who come annually to watch everything from sea creatures to abstract sculptures take form.

The oldest and largest ice carving event in North America, the Spectacular pits more than 100 U.S. and Japanese carvers against each other in Plymouth's Kellogg Park and the Central Parking Structure Jan. 15-17. Sanctioned by the American Culinary Federation, the competitions award $10,000 in prize money and scholarships. In addition to amateur and professional carvers, students from Oakland Community College in Farmington Hills; Schoolcraft College, Livonia; Henry Ford, Macomb and Monroe Community Colleges, and local high schools will compete.

"The show is really all new every year," said Mike Watts, Spectacular coordinator. "The medium being what it is, it's a fleeting material which is around, depending on the weather, for a brief time."

Using a power saw to cut a large circle from a slab of ice, Canton carver Ted Wakar warms up for the competitions by creating dozens of sculptures to be placed in front of businesses during the Plymouth International Ice Spectacular Wednesday-Monday, Jan. 13-18. Wakar will compete in the 20-hour professional team category with J.R. Lorentz of Garden City. The two won first place at the Miesel Sysco Food Show in September in Novi. An award-winning carver, Wakar and partner Jim Bur, Jr., a graduate of Livonia's Churchill High School, won the world championship in Japan in 1996 and competed at the Winter Olympics in Nagano, Japan in January. With weather in the single digits, Lorentz, Wakar and Bur, Jr. work to fill the refrigerated truck parked behind Wakar's Frozen Images Studio in Plymouth's Old Village with the street sculptures. Bur, Jr., a manager at Bozell Worldwide in Southfield, competes in the professional individual category.

"Winning is only a part of it," said Wakar, a product manager at Ford Motor Co. and former executive chef at World Headquarters in Dearborn. "For many of us, it's an escape from our day to day lives. It's a way to express an inner part of ourselves. It's baring your soul and opening yourself up for criticism."

Spectators never seem to tire of watching competitors chisel and chainsaw their way through the 300 pound blocks of ice. In the early years, most of the carvers who competed were chefs. A percentage of the competitors still work in the culinary field but more and more professional ice carvers and those who just like to compete are taking part in the

POPULAR MUSIC

Al Hill takes his time for 'Willie Mae'

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER
cfuoco@oe.homecomm.net

Blues singer/boogie woogie pianist Al Hill has been told for years that he should put his music to CD.

"I just kept saying, 'soon,'" Hill said with a laugh.

Then when he and the Love Butlers' debut CD "Willie Mae" was released late last year, he realized what a good idea it was.

"When you make a record, when it takes that long to make, you lose perspective. There were times when I loved the record, times when I thought this was no good, and times when you put it out and you just don't know anymore," Hill explained.

"The response that I've gotten has gone way past what I would have hoped for. Maybe I should hope higher."

More than 500 people showed up to his CD release party at the Cavern Club in Ann Arbor and he sold 120 CDs that night.

"The people have been just so cool with it. I think it's sincere. It's not just your friends saying, 'Nice job.'"

Public radio stations including WDET-FM and WEMU-FM have added songs from "Willie Mae" to its playlist. The same for a blues and jazz station in Los Angeles.

It's been a long road for Hill, a lifelong Ann Arbor resident. He attended Pioneer High School before transferring to the first alternative school in Ann Arbor, the Free School, which has since been known as Earth Works and Community High School.

As a sophomore in high school in the early 1970s, Hill and his brothers, who played guitar and bass, collaborated with a drummer friend to perform at roadhouses and honky tonks in and around Ann Arbor.

"I haven't really done my own thing until this band," Hill said of the Love Butlers. "I've been in a ton of different bands. The one that had the most notoriety is Jeanne and the Dreams."

In the mid-80s, Hill treated Jeanne and the Dreams as a side project to his Al Hill and the Headlights. But before that project got off the ground, Jeanne and the Dreams took off.

"I ended up doing that band for a number of years. It was only when that folded that I decided to get started doing my own thing and doing some writing. This band is the closest I've ever come to realizing my own musical vision," he explained.

Starting his own band, Hill explained, was also due to technological advances.

"I've always played blues and boogie piano and it wasn't until sometime in the last 10 years that the technology was there to have a decent 88-key piano that I could feel comfortable playing music on. Maybe that's why I played guitar so much."

In the meantime, Hill's voice was frequently heard on WCSX-FM, the classic rock radio station.

"I used to sing a lot of demos for WCSX. If you ever heard 'Isiah and the Bad Boys' when the Pistons were winning, I sang some of that. I did 'Red Wings Be Good' when the Red Wings thought they were doing something. I did 'Ballpark Blues' about Tiger Stadium," he said.

"I did other studio work and some other jingles and played on some other people's albums around here. But to do your own record is a whole 'nother ball game. I also produced it ('Willie Mae') which was a hat that I had not worn."

Hill and the Love Butlers recorded "Willie Mae" with engineer Geoff Michael at Big Sky Recording and Solid Sound studios for 1-1/2 years with a revolving group of musicians. One musician left the band because his wife had twins, another, he suspects, got tired of waiting.

"It took a long time. It took over a year and a half. Part of that was because I financed it myself with loans from various people. When I had the money, I worked on it. When I didn't have money, I just sat there," he said with a chuckle.

"It started out as a band project but before too long it was my own project. I had had a handful of songs that I went in to record. Since it took a year and a half, there was also some writing going on. It really evolved from when I started to when it came out."

There were times, Hill admitted, when he was stumped lyrically. When that happened, he knew he could rely on his wife Whit, a former choreographer. "She's pretty quick with them. She's a very prolific writer. I'm the tortoise and she's the hare. When it comes to putting together pop songs that can take a year or so. Sometimes a song will come out when I'm driving down the road. I'll sing a complete verse and have a song by the end of the day."

"To be honest, this album wouldn't have happened the way that it happened without her input."

Hill is anticipating a return to the studio sometime this year. But for now he wants to work "Willie Mae" "for awhile."

"I have a friend who plays with Lee Rocker, who used to be in the Stray Cats. He does side gigs too and he's working on getting me into B.B. King's club."

"I was just hoping to make a splash with this one. Now I feel like avenues are opening. Who knows what could happen with it."

Al Hill and The Love Butlers, and special guest the Blue Rays, perform at 10 p.m. Friday, Jan. 8, at Amer's First Street Grill, 102 S. First St., Ann Arbor. Tickets are $5 for the 21 and older show. For more information, call (734) 213-6000. Other upcoming shows include: 9 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 9, at Fox and Hounds, 1560 Woodward Ave., Bloomfield Hills. (248) 644-4800; 9 p.m. Thursdays Jan. 21 and 28, at the Arbor Brewing Company, 114 E. Washington St., Ann Arbor. The 21 and older show is free. (734) 213-1393 or <http://www.arborbrewing.com>; and 9 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 30, at Boulders, 1020 W. Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth. (734) 459-4190.

"Willie Mae" is available at all Harmony House stores, Desirable Discs in Ferndale, Switched On in Novi, Flipside Records in Clawson, the Beat Hotel in Berkley, Off the Record in Royal Oak, Repeat the Beat stores in Dearborn and Royal Oak, Dearborn Music in Dearborn, and independent record stores in Ann Arbor.

Spectacular.

This year's judges are Dean Carlson of Florida; certified executive chef Roland Czekielos, Vermont, and Dan Hugelier and Joe Decker, chef instructors at Schoolcraft College.

"As an art form, ice carving is in its youth," said Wakar. "I try to utilize the knowledge other artists use while creating something that's challenging to us. If we can perform it properly, we hope the judges will find it as interesting as we do."

Lorentz carves ice for a living. J.R.'s Ice Sculptures provides ice punch bowls, sculptures and carving blocks for weddings, bridal showers, banquets, parties, and corporate promotions in the tri-county area. A 1995 graduate of the ice carving program directed by Richard Teeple at Henry Ford Community College, Lorentz shows dozens of photographs taken of a bronze sculpture on which he and Wakar will pattern their carving. As with most of the competitors, they want to keep the design a secret.

"It's real daring because most of the weight of the sculpture is off center," said Lorentz.

Dueling planes

Dan Huntsbarger will be practicing his carving techniques in front of the Moveable Feast in Ann Arbor. Huntsbarger owns the restaurant so no one can complain about the whirring power saw as he carves two World War I bi-planes from 20 blocks of ice. Formerly executive chef and general manager of the Gandy Dancer, Huntsbarger first learned the art of ice carving while a student at the Culinary Institute of America in Hyde Park, New York. He's competed in Plymouth for more than 10 years and this year enters the professional team competition with partner John Hosford. He'll practice cold and warm weather designs in front of the restaurant housed in an 1870s Victorian home on weekends until the Plymouth competition.

"Ice carving was done originally for buffet use," said Huntsbarger. "Then they started to compete and that's when the level of ice carving skills increased. Now, there are competitions all over the country and lots of talented carvers. I do it because it's quite relaxing, and for the fun of carving. If you enjoy art at all, it's an interesting medium to work with."

While the competitions last only three days, the Spectacular offers six days to view ice sculptures, including a Fantasyland displaying dozens of wild and crazy bugs. A celebrity charity carving event, 24-hour light show, a middle school art design contest sponsored by the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, a working timepiece created from ice by Virtual Engineering and Frozen Images Studio of Plymouth, and electric trains from Have Trains, Will Travel of Farmington Hills add to the excitement of the free winter festival. There's free parking in the Central Parking Structure and Central Middle School's lot but be prepared to walk a few blocks.

Family fun

Watts proudly displays the letters and drawings he received from a class of third graders from Westview Elementary in Warren after they attended the Spectacular in January.

"Seeing the families come out and the kids get excited, is the most rewarding part of the festival for me," said Watts, who is currently in negotiations with the 2002 Winter Olympics Committee in Salt Lake City to bring ice carving to the event. "It's the most interesting and unique family festival in the U.S. in winter. I don't know of any major family activity today that's free. We have to start three to four weeks in advance with the street carvings. The carvers usually surprise me with the subjects they choose to carve. We really want people to be surprised."

Michigan residents aren't the only ones interested in the festival. Last year, the Spectacular's internet site received over 50,000 hits from the United Kingdom, Australia, Japan, Germany, Canada, France, South Korea, Israel, Denmark, and the rest of the U.S.

"The internet's a boon for us because we can give people directions and a schedule of the competitions and events," said Watts. "We had a couple of freak warmings, and were trying to keep it alive. We've been fortunate to have cold weather the last eight years, and support from the community and sponsors but ice has gotten more expensive, labor has gotten more expensive. We're going to have to raise more money. We're a non-profit foundation so we're going to be scouring the countryside for new sponsors, and we hope to increase the donations we receive from the public in the boxes in Kellogg Park and The Gathering so we can keep the festival free."

Exhibit on Detroiters at work

The Detroit Historical Museum is presenting the first 200 years of the city's history in a whole new way with "Frontiers to Factories: Detroiters at work 1701-1901."

"No one else tells this story of Detroit's history," said Maud Margaret Lyon, director of the Detroit Historical Museum. "This new exhibit is a dramatic improvement of what has been shown previously."

The Detroit Historical Museum, on the corner of Woodward and Kirby in Detroit's Cultural Center, is open 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday-Friday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday-Sunday. Admission is $3 adults, $1.50 for seniors and children ages 12-18, and free for children under 12.

"Frontiers to Factories: Detroiters at Work" includes the following sections:

■ Introduction - A new interactive map of the Great Lakes region illustrates major exploration routes into the area with emphasis on the route used by Antoine de la Mothe Cadillac when he founded Detroit in 1701.

■ The First People - Story of the Native American people in the Detroit area before Cadillac, and how they lived. It includes artifacts from the museum's collections.

■ Furs, Forts and Fire - Covers the period from 1701 to 1825 and addresses Cadillac's arrival, the growth of the village of Detroit, the first of 1805 and the Woodward plan to reshape the city, the Moran Trading Post, and french farming techniques. An interactive video presentation "Early Detroiters," features a cross section of settlers from the era.

■ City of Commerce, 1825-1865 - This section illustrates the growth that took place from 1825 to 1865, as improved transportation via steamship and train brought more people from a variety of cultures to Detroit. A touch-screen interactive called "From Many Places" explains why and when people from many ethnic backgrounds settled in the city. The first industries in the city and the people responsible for them are also profiled.

■ City of Industry - Displays the stories of prominent industrialists and their companies. It also features a new interactive video "Working in Detroit." The viewer selects a character and sees a short story on that individual's role in late 19th century Detroit. Roles of men and women of various ethnic backgrounds are presented.

■ Heavy Industry - Using photos, graphics, large photographic backdrops and artifacts, this section shows the national impact and prominence of Detroit's major industries in the 1890s, including the manufacturing of railroad cars, ships, and stoves. A video theater in this area shows an overview of the entire exhibit.

■ Making Goods for Detroiters - Sanders, Kresge's, Stroh's, Hudson's and Parke-Davis, are all Detroit institutions that came into prominence in post-Civil War Detroit. This display explains how these and other famous Detroit products and businesses were born.

■ The City Where Life is Worth Living - This was the slogan for Detroit in the 1890s. This section features an interactive street map of the era in which viewers push buttons to light a picture of a Detroit landmark and see a corresponding light at its location on the map.

■ Ready to be the Motor City - As the 20th century dawned, Detroit stood poised to become the Automotive Capital of the World. This display looks at the connection between Detroit's 1890s industries and automobile manufacturing, as well as the innovators who helped move the city into the "car culture" - Henry Leland, Henry Ford, and Ransome Olds.

■ In Business for a Century - This section of the exhibit is devoted to Detroit businesses that have been in continuous operation for 100 years or more.

Livonia Philharmonic continues 40-year tradition

The Livonia Philharmonic of Michigan is open to students through age 18. It is requested that members take private lessons, demonstrate competency and who a deep personal interest in musicianship. Rehearsals continue 9 a.m. to noon Saturdays, January through May at Churchill High School, 8900 Newburgh Road, Livonia. Auditions will be held Saturday, Jan. 16. Call (734) 591-7649 or (248) 476-6341 to schedule an audition appointment.

BY THERESA CAVANAUGH
SPECIAL WRITER

On most Saturdays from September to May, 120 families from 22 communities, travel to Livonia to participate in the weekly rehearsal with the Livonia Youth Philharmonic of Michigan. By 8:55 a.m., the family car curls along the drive in front of Churchill High School on the corner of Newburgh and Joy Road. Car doors open and passengers ranging in age from four through 19 step out. Juggling a music case in one hand and sheet music in the other, they hurry up to glass doors and maneuver their way inside. The Livonia Youth Philharmonic of Michigan is based on a youth orchestra program that was founded in Livonia 40 years ago. The non-profit organization is designed to further the music education and talent of its members. Participants audition for placement into one of three orchestras or the Flute Choir.

Unpacking their instruments, students in the Concert Strings Orchestra, leave their cases scattered about the floor. By 9 a.m. the students find their seat in the traditional arch of an orchestra and they face their conductor, Timario Wilkins.

The Concert String Orchestra is rehearsing the "Canon in G" composed by Pachelbel. There is a big of boggle in the second violin section and Wilkins counts out, "2 and 3 and 4 and," he paces them, then, "stronger seconds" he encourages. Responding, the second violins catch up and return a bigger sound.

"Great job to third violins on the C sharp, but you guys," Wilkins points to the first violin section with his baton, "you're rushing at 36, take it a little slower."

Instruments and bows are poised; the cue is given, play resumes. The students play a few measures and Wilkins stops them. Addressing the first violins, Wilkins reminds them, "you are playing as one person, stay together."

The Livonia Youth Philharmonic of Michigan strives to teach students to listen and watch each other. To react to each other and communicate to each other across the orchestra. While it is important to read music, to learn what the symbols are, the students are encouraged to get their heads out of the score. It is important to instill in the students the need to play beyond the notes and find the real music in the piece.

In room G-16, Derek Weller, conductor of the Philharmonic Orchestra, makes a dramatic lunge to his left. The movement prompts the first violins into action. Student eyes dart back and forth, from conductor to music. Quickly, they scan the notes, transposing spots on a page into sounds that harmonize and become a melody.

Weller has some definite ideas about how students learn music. "It's a lot like learning to speak," he said. "When you were very little no one sat you down and said, 'this is a verb or that is a noun; you just grew up hearing the words. Eventually, your words become sentences and you are communicating. The real study of language comes years after you begin using it. Music is like language, in that a person can play or sing musically years before understanding that those black dots on a page are symbols for a sound."

The orchestra plays the opening strains of Verdi's "Aida" with a vigor that belies the early morning hour. The sound is big. One would suspect an adult orchestra is playing. Instead, the Philharmonic includes students whose ages range from 10 through 18 years.

Weller is quick to underscore the importance of music education for very young students. "Not every child who studies music will become a professional musician," he said. "But every child who studies music will grow to understand something about it and support it as an adult."

Weller is the principal bass and performs with the Michigan Opera Theater. He also teaches the double bass at Eastern Michigan University, is a sub in the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, and gives private instruction to students studying the bass, but he keeps Saturday morning open for the Livonia Youth Philharmonic of Michigan.

Strings: Conductor Julia Kurtyka works with students in the Advanced Strings Orchestra, including Trae McMaken, Maureen Case and Tara Stanley.

Julia Kurtyka is Executive Director of the Plymouth Symphony and conducts the Livonia Youth Philharmonic of Michigan's youngest participants in the Advanced Strings Orchestra. Some of these children began music lessons at the age of two, and some are preteens just discovering music, and are beginning string students.

"It is important to provide a solid foundation for young children studying music right from the start," she said. Kurtyka advises parents to provide the best teachers they can in an attempt to avoid their children learning improper techniques and bad posture.

"As most parents of small children know, it is difficult to break a bad habit," she said. "If children learn the wrong fingering techniques it can be very frustrating for both the child and the teacher to reestablish the correct form." Linda Ignagni the organization's string specialist agrees, "as important as quality instruction is, another key factor in music education is the instrument." With small children the size of the instrument is everything, not necessarily the grade of the instrument. It should fit the child and not be too large or too small for the student."

Ignagni visits each string orchestra every Saturday. She spends her time adjusting and tuning the younger student's instruments.

Often working at the direction of the conductors, Ignagni will coach students individually or in small groups. "It can be very intimidating for students to come into a group like the Livonia Youth Philharmonic of Michigan and be give a large, imposing piece of music to read,"

Wilkins points out. "At the first run through the piece is awful and the students insist they can't play it. What is wonderful about music is how it is studied. We break it down into smaller pieces and study it measure by measure. Not only does difficult music become manageable, but the students get an immediate boost of confidence. They end the rehearsal feeling better about themselves because they know even though the piece is hard they can work it out."

The Livonia Youth Philharmonic of Michigan is an independent youth music organization designed to complement existing school programs by developing ensemble performance skills.

Theresa Cavanaugh is immediate past president of the board of the Livonia Youth Philharmonic of Michigan.

Festive flutes: Conductor Dennis Carter rehearses with Flute Choir members Danielle Morton, Adrienne Walker and Kaylie Newill.

Disney's 'Mighty Joe Young' is family friendly

BY MELISSA R. KING
SPECIAL WRITER

Imagine life in an idyllic setting, lush green forests, crystal waterfalls flowing into lakes bluer than the sky peeking between the leaves, bananas growing freely and always within arms reach. While we're in fantasyland, let's give you a best friend who protects you from harm and plays endless games of hide and seek with you, all while keeping the outside world from coming in and spoiling your fun.

A regular ape paradise, don't you think? What happens when there's trouble in paradise, trouble bigger than even you, a two-thousand pound gorilla?

So begins "Mighty Joe Young," Disney's latest family friendly film, but instead of a mouse, there's Joe Young, a gentle giant of an ape. We first meet Joe at six months old, playing a game of peek-a-boo with Jill Young, daughter of the noted Dr. Ruth Young, who is in Africa studying the animals on the Pangani mountains. Joe seems to be unusually large for an infant, he's already as big as gorillas much older than he.

Sadly, before Dr. Young can find out why, tragedy strikes, leaving Jill and Joe both orphaned, their mothers killed by poachers. Twelve years later, we meet Joe again, but now he's the legendary Monster of the Mountain, the creature whose tale is told around campfires. Meeting him is certain death, so the story goes, no one who has ever gone on the mountain looking for him has ever been heard from again.

Zoologist Gregg O'Hara (Bill Paxton) knows all about the legend but still wants to explore the mountain to research the wildlife there and see if there's anything new up there to be discovered. Imagine his surprise when he meets a 15-foot-tall Tanzanian gorilla. After a wild chase through the mountain, in which Joe displayed amazing intelligence and creativity, O'Hara finally gets Joe cornered, but the tables quickly turn, as is usual when dealing with an animal three or four times your size. Gregg regains consciousness in a hospital, remembering a really big gorilla and a beautiful savior who told the gorilla to put him down.

Who is his savior? You guessed it, Jill Young (Charlize Theron), all grown up and keeping her promise to her mother to keep Joe safe. Jill and Joe have a close relationship, she is quite fierce in her protection of him, he plays games (hide and seek is his favorite) and keeps her from being lonely. She learns from Gregg that it's going to be a lot harder keeping Joe safe, the group accompanying him up the mountain also saw Joe. Now everybody wants a piece of Joe, literally; he is quite valuable on the endangered species black market.

Gregg convinces Jill that Joe would be safer in California on his wildlife preserve, so they pack up and move to the West Coast. America proves to be a jungle of a completely different type, smoggy, caged and cramped. Neither Jill or Joe like the cages much, but they adjust, and while they do, they attract a lot of attention, including the attention of the poacher who murdered both Joe and Jill's mothers, Strasser (Rade Serbedzija).

Strasser and his team concoct a dastardly scheme to turn Joe from a perfect gentleman gorilla to a villain who couldn't be trusted. After a jail break, Joe goes on the run again, this time with a heavily armed police force in pursuit. Does Joe prove himself

Friends: To most people, Joe (left) is a myth and a legend. To his only friend, Jill (Charlize Theron), he is like a brother, father, protector and companion. And to zoologist Gregg O'Hara (Bill Paxton, right), he is the most amazing creature on the planet in "Mighty Joe Young."

the sweet guy we all know he is? Or does a tragic incident involving a screaming woman and a tall building bring his downfall? "Mighty Joe Young" is a touching movie that successfully brings a deep message in a light-hearted fashion, which is no easy feat. Who protects the endangered animals who don't have a best friend like Jill? The movie states that in the time it takes you to get in your car and drive to a destination not far from home, three entire species will disappear from the Earth.

Robin Williams as Patch Adams is a sure cure for what ails you

BY BOB THOMAS
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

Like the late Norman Cousins, Hunter (Patch) Adams was convinced of the healing power of laughter. Cousins wrote a popular book describing how he overcame a crippling illness by watching movies of the Marx Brothers and other comedians.

Adams wrote his own book telling of his adventures in trying to bring mirth to seriously ill patients while he was a medical student at the Medical College of Virginia. His use of bulbous red noses and bizarre costumes brought the censure of the school's head doctor, who accused him of "excessive happiness."

"Patch Adams" is one of the growing number of films bearing what has become a cliché: "Based on a true story." However true it is, the movie provides an ideal vehicle for Robin Williams, who returns to form after his last outing, the dismal "What Dreams May Come."

The film opens in a mental hospital where Adams is a patient. He doesn't seem deranged, but he is tossed into what resembles a prison cell occupied by a wild-eyed man who fears he is being attacked by animals. Desperate, Adams gets his roommate to laugh away his besiegers.

That experience inspires Adams to become a doctor so he can practice his healing methods professionally. At 46, Robin Williams does seem a bit long in the tooth to portray a premed student, but let's face it, he can pull off almost anything.

Rebelling at the by-the-book teachings of his instructors, Adams tries out his comic shtick on severely ill patients. These are the most appealing scenes in the film, especially his efforts to reach a ward full of ailing children and a dying misanthrope (Peter Coyote). His stunts draw the wrath of the hard-nosed dean (Bob Gunton).

"If you want to be a clown, join the circus," Adams is warned.

Despite threat of expulsion, Adams continues his campaign. He is joined by his roommate Truman (Daniel London). More difficult to enlist is fellow student Carin (Monica Potter), an aloof beauty who has been abused by men. Adams uses his intense persuasiveness to win her over, romantically as well.

Along with his studies, Adams establishes a mountaintop refuge where he applies his theories to despondent patients. The avenging dean seeks to terminate Adams' experiments and his education by legal means.

Basing the script on Adams' own book, "Gesundheit: Good Health Is a Laughing Matter," Steve Oedeker has fashioned a surefire character for Robin Williams' Olympian talents. Tom Shadyac's direction lets the humanity as well as the comedy shine through.

One Scrooge-like comment: Too bad the filmmakers had to resort to a Capraesque finale for an extra dose of feel-goodness.

Nonetheless, Williams continues to astonish with his protean brilliance. Good work also is contributed by newcomers Potter and London, as well as a cast that includes Philip Seymour Hoffman, Harold Gould, Harve Presnell and Richard Kiley.

'Tony n' Tina's Wedding' memorable experience

By Jon Katz
SPECIAL WRITER

Watching "Tony n' Tina's Wedding," you wonder whether the marriage will last through the Chicken Dance. The Nunzio and Vitale families have been feuding for generations; Tina's old boyfriend is drunk and out for revenge; one bridesmaid is very pregnant, another is a terrible singer; and old Uncle Luigi's theme song might well be "Get Me to the John on Time." And don't even get us started on Tony's dad's girlfriend.

"Tony n' Tina's Wedding," the live, interactive, 90 percent-improvised production is now in an open-ended run at Baci Abbracci Italian Chophouse in downtown Pontiac. The show has been playing in New York for 11 years, in Chicago for eight and Minneapolis for five. The audience members are the guests and participants. And if the couple does survive the ceremony, almost anything goes until they leave for their honeymoon at the Soaring Eagle Casino some three hours later.

But that's in the script, what little there is of it. Off-stage, there is a love fest going on—forgive us—unbridled proportions. It's an uneasy love between the actors and the unknown.

"I hadn't done improvisations since I studied in New York decades ago," said Henrietta Hermelin, a mainstay of local stages who plays Grandma Nunzio, the senior member on the groom's side. "There is a certain security to the structure of the scripts I'm used to performing. On the other hand, if you're working with a director who blocks every word, it gets to feel like a tight-fitting piece of clothing."

Actor's dream

"You don't improv Shakespeare," said classically-trained Kyril Evanoff, aka Tony. Evanoff is a 1990 graduate of Troy High School who took time off from his acting studies in New York to see his family, heard about the auditions and won the lead. "It's an actor's dream to do this type of theater," he said. "I love the combination of having set lines and improvising in-between the lines."

"It's basically organized madness," allowed Joe Corcoran, the show's original producer, in from New York for opening night.

And as time goes by, that madness may become cult-like, akin to the fervor over "The Rocky Horror Picture Show." Over twenty years after its release, audiences still show up to midnight screenings with umbrellas and bags of rice, knowing exactly when to use them.

With "Tony n' Tina," however, the audience can initiate or change the continuity, in addition to being a part of an existing, albeit purposely-thin plot line.

Evanoff already knows. "They come up to you and say 'Hey Tony, where's that $5,000 the Don wants?' And you just go with it. People even bring gifts. You never know where the action's going to come from."

"Father Mark" is William O'Brien Jr.'s first acting role. He's getting his baptism by fire. "I've got people coming up to me with their confessions. So I listen and I give them penance, like washing the church van."

And yes, even little old Grandma Nunzio has to be on her cane-aided toes. "One person said she was my granddaughter," recalled Hermelin. "I said 'Is a no possible; I only have two grandsons.' And then we went on and created a whole new family."

Expecting the unexpected

To prepare the actors to expect the unexpected, director/co-creator Kevin Alexander required each performer to compose a background for his or her character. "There is a history that we are given, but we fill in a lot ourselves," said Hermelin. "I have pictures in my purse of my character's family, her dog...I even have coupons." Guests can expect Grandma and other family members to come shmoozing during and after the Italian dinner; it's part of the show's uniqueness...and its success.

"The audience can relate to these characters, because they're like your neighbors and family," said producer Corcoran. "You look at the grandmother and say 'My grandmother's just like that.' This show could have been a Jewish wedding, Polish, African-American, Irish, anything. That's the real essence of why people are so attracted to this show, and why they enjoy it as much as they do."

Indeed, the show's universality as well as the localization of the characters (it's made clear that Tony and his ushers are Bishop Gallagher grads) are two components that endear "Tony n' Tina" to its guests.

"It crosses all lines and barriers," said the show's local producer David Nederlander with pride. "The Detroit production is the first one to have an African American lady in it, and the first one to also offer Kosher nights—which sold out just like that."

Will "Tony n' Tina" settle in for a long run here as it has elsewhere? With group sales already being booked into next June, the producers are high on its prospects, and on the area in general.

"Pontiac is the perfect spot for what we would like to see as another theater destination for Metro Detroit," said Nederlander. "We're very interested in the development of northern Oakland County. There's tremendous growth."

If "Tony n' Tina's Wedding" is a memorable experience for its guests, it's positively indelible for its actors.

"Tony is everything I would love to be," declares Evanoff. "He's bigger than life. I'm much more shy than he is. But every now and then I'll catch myself doing his walk; I'll just start struttin', like 'Stayin' Alive' is playing."

Happy couple: Kyril Evanoff and Jennifer Beth Kahn star in "Tony n' Tina's Wedding."

Break out of the ordinary and discover exciting arts

BACKSTAGE PASS

ANN DELISI

What's the one New Year's resolution that is easy to keep, non-fattening and chases those cabin fever blues away? How about making this a year of discovery? Visit the theaters, performance halls, galleries and clubs that offer some new experiences. Believe me, the hottest tickets aren't always the best attractions.

Many of us are much more adventurous in sampling theater, music, art exhibits and other cultural activities when we're on a long weekend getaway to New York, Chicago, or Toronto than we are when we're closer to home. Let us help you rectify this glitch before the century ends by introducing you to the best on the arts scene each week in this column and Backstage Pass editions on Detroit Public Television.

Remember last fall when an anticipated traffic nightmare of a simultaneous Lions game at the Silverdome and Barenaked Ladies concert at the Palace caused fans to set out for those vepues at around daybreak?

Well, the early departure paid off for concert goers who caught all of the opening band's set. Cowboy Mouth generated so much excitement, we've had many new fans ask when their in-studio performance taped that day was going to be featured on Backstage Pass. The answer is this Sunday, and it's an unforgettable performance with drummer/frontman Fred LeBlanc, lead guitarist John Thomas Griffith and the rest of the New Orleans-based pop/rock group. Watch LeBlanc fulfill a prophecy from a French Quarter fortune teller, who told him as a teenage hell-raiser that his reason for being was to remind others of the joy of living. While he reminds us, do your friends a favor and remind them to tune in.

Speaking of the French Quarter, get an earful of that distinctive Mardi Gras sound with the Detroit-based band Bon Temps Roule, another example of how you don't have to travel far to enjoy a new musical or cultural experience. You can catch the band at a local club or sample its new CD entitled "Swaggy Dog."

When I suggested that this be your year of discovery, maybe I was inspired by the words and experiences of acclaimed choreographer Bill T. Jones, whose work has often been described as a fusion of dance and theatre. In a Backstage Pass interview airing this week, Jones describes how the ending of his dance company's new performance, "We Set Out Early...Visibility Was Poor," was left unchoreographed until it got in the studio.

"I saw one young apprentice over to the side doing hip hop. I asked him what it was and he started showing me these steps. Many of the dancers came around and said, 'yeah, I know this step'... and I realized this was a whole language of a generation of people," says Jones.

His discovery provided a powerful ending to the performance, under the theme of "one man's community is another man's rat race."

Blended into the gumbo of the new year's first new edition of Backstage Pass is a visit to a Harmonie Park studio which restores damaged and deteriorating works of art, such as a recent project at the Detroit Athletic Club. Later this month, the hilarious off-Broadway smash "Tony n' Tina's Wedding" gets a new cast member for a night. This friendly and loving spoof of an Italian-American wedding has invited hundreds of audience members to participate during its run in Pontiac. Now it's my turn, and you're the critic. I hope it's not just one of our producer's diabolical ways to get me to do the chicken dance.

Let us know if you've had a new cultural experience that we should know about by visiting the Backstage Pass web site at www.wtvs.org.

Tune us in on Detroit Public Television Channel 56 Sundays at 7:30 p.m., with rebroadcasts Thursdays at 5:30 p.m. and Fridays at midnight. Let's make it an exciting year.

'Grease on Ice' tour will stop in Detroit

Fans will jam to familiar favorites in ways they never expected with two-time Olympic medalist Nancy Kerrigan, who delivers a cutting-edge portrayal of Sandy, and a slick cast of beloved characters: Danny, Rizzo, Kenickie and the rest of the gang.

Brought to fans by Feld Entertainment and The Troika Organization, the 1998 North American Tour of Grease on Ice heads to Detroit's Joe Louis Arena for two performances only 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 16 and 2 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 17.

DINING

P.F. Chang's China Bistro balances Yin and Yang

BY ELEANOR & RAY HEALD
SPECIAL WRITERS

Dining at Somerset Collection South in Troy uncovers Yin and Yang at P.F. Chang's China Bistro that opened late November. Formerly occupied by Sebastian's, P.F. Chang's has a dramatic new menu and decor, both inside and out.

On the exterior, bonsai trees and two eight-foot Ming horses greet diners. Entering from within the mall, the feel is like an art gallery.

P.F. Chang's specializes in dishes from five major regions of China (Canton, Szechwan, Shanghai, Hunan and Mongolia). Before getting into the moderately-sized menu, there's plenty of eye candy to admire for 215 diners at booths, tables and the semi-circular, contemporary bar inside the front entrance.

High energy is the hallmark of P.F. Chang's with its open kitchen and exhibilarge back-lit disks and custom hand-blown lighting fixtures.

Back-lit terra cotta soldiers, replicas from the Ming Dynasty dating back to the 11th century B.C. flank the walls. Two hand-painted 12th century B.C. narrative murals depict life in that period. Contemporary music says new-age.

P.F. Chang's merges authentic Far-Eastern Chinese cuisine deliberately chosen," noted Operating Partner Dean Wood. "We believe P.F. Chang's concept is unusual and complements the unique stores in the mall."

Wood, now a Rochester Hills resident, was raised in Troy and before joining Chang's was Food & Beverage Director for the Palace of Auburn Hills.

P. F. Chang's China Bistro is the brainchild of Paul Fleming (P.F. in the name) who consulted with Philip Chiang of Beverly Hills, California, to develop the authentic Chinese menu served first in 1993 at its original location, Scottsdale, Arizona. There are now 22 locations nationwide.

Wood is front-of-the-house complement to Executive Chef Ted Teeter, a 1982 graduate of the culinary department at Oakland Community College. He was restaurant chef at Bo's Brewery & Bistro in Pontiac, before leaving to train at P.F. Chang's in Las Vegas for his current position.

Teeter is responsible for chefs working four double wok stations and a host of other kitchen staff who cut, chop and plate fresh, uncooked ingredients for each wok station. There are no steam tables. Each dish is cooked to order - even the fried rice. That's really unusual.

Your dining experience begins with a server, who not only takes your order, but is skilled in table-side service. Servers learn your preferences with a few brief questions, then begin by introducing you to P.F. Chang's and Trio Sauce, a medley of rice wine vinegar, chili oil, soy sauce, garlic and scallions. To this bowl at the table, the server adds chili paste, hot Chinese mustard and perhaps a little plum sauce 'o suit your taste.

To experience more table-side service, order the signature Chang's Chicken in Soothing Lettuce Wrap appetizer or the Dan Dan Noodles as a main dish.

Among other appetizers are Northern Style Short Ribs, no sticky sauce, and more like dry rub which can be accented with house-made five-spice powder.

Shrimp dumplings are steamed tender and served with ginger chili soy sauce.

Lemon Pepper Shrimp and Beef a la Szechwan are winners. For the latter, beef is twice cooked with celery and carrots, resulting in a crispy texture and true to the menu billing "unlike anything you're used to."

There's no kid's menu at Chang's, but lots of things kids like to eat such as noodles and five chicken choices.

In addition to a full-service bar, Chang's has an ambitious wine list organized by the latest concept, a progressive wine list that makes wine more friendly and easy to choose. Wines are listed from light and easy-to-drink to bolder, more robust styles. Most wines are served by the glass and there are a number of very good choices at $25 and under per bottle.

When you've chosen to eat Chinese in the past, you probably chose a small owner-operated eatery. Selecting a chain operation has not entered your mind. That's the Yin and Yang. P.F. Chang's China Bistro is out to change your mind with both its atmosphere and food, literally under the spotlight at each table.
