Islam trial moves along

BY TONY BRUSCATO STAFF WRITER

When a death investigation dog was led into the Roe Street home of Azizul Islam last January, "he immediately went downstairs into the basement and within minutes was down and barking."

Sandra Anderson from K-9 Solutions International in Midland, Mich., testified Tuesday in the first degree murder trial of Islam. He's accused of murdering his estranged wife, Tracy, whose arms and legs were found in an A&W Restaurant dumpster in Dearborn, and her torso in a field in northeast Ohio.

Anderson told jurors that her Doberman-German shorthair mix Doberman-German shorthair mix deg. Society in the first-degree human remains, including one time murder trial of the first-degree finding a Native American burial dent Azizut Islam. ground for archeologists.

When he finds a scent, he lays down and barks next to the area, said Anderson. "And, on command, he puts his paw next to the area where the scent is, so as not to disturh it.

Ann Arbor Road work shifts to north-side curbs

BY SUE BUCK STAFF WRITER abuckfloe.bo

Curb work on the north side of Ann Arbor Road from Canton Center Road to General Drive is expected this week as the road reconstruction project inches closer to completion.

The road work affects the city of Plymouth on the north side of the street and Plymouth Township on the south side

"The asphalt is due next Wednesday," said contractor Mike Bileti, owner of Livonia-based Peter A. Basile Sons. The company has a contract for the Michigan Department of Transportation project.

Laying asphalt rather than concrete was an MDOT cost decision, Bileti said. MDOT's philosophy is the cost savings will allow more road work to be completed.

"We're using seven-inch asphalt," Bileti said.

With the majority of excevation complete, grading will follow. Landscaping should start Monday on the south side of the street, Bileti said.

He offered praise for the cooperation displayed by both motorists and businesses along Ann Arbor Road. "Motorists have slowed right down," Bileti said. "I appreciate that because I don't want any of my people getting hurt."

The project, which was delayed when the lowest bidder pulled out earlier this year, is on track for its original Nov. 1 completion date, he said. Bileti is cautiously optimistic the project will be done sooner.

Work to complete new water main tie-ins last Saturday was a success, he said. During the work on the north side of Harvey Street to Main Street workmen discovered a valve was leaking farther down the street. The connections depended on where the valves were located.

Employees brought along estra valves in case they were needed. Water service was shut off from about 5 a.m. to 3 p.m.

"There was really no good time to do this," Bileti . said. "It was holding up the curb work and approach."

Home invasions have cops warning residents

BY SUE BUCK chillion h

A string of four home invasions during a three-day period has Plymouth Township police looking for leads as they warn residents to be on guard and lock their doors.

"Keep on as many outside lights and inside lights as possible, so other residents can see if there is any suspicious activity occurring near your home,' advised Jamie Senkbeil, Plymouth Township community resource officer. "We're asking residents to call us if they notice any unfamiliar cars in their area or if they suspect anything suspicious."

The incidents that have piqued police attention include:

A homeowner returned to her home on Ann Arbor Road near Ridge sometime about 2:30 p.m. Sept. 18 after being gone for about an hour, and found the screen to the main floor bathroom on the floor.

"She found somebody had gone through the master bedroom and another bedroom," Senkbeil said.

PLYMOUTH TWP

Jewelry valued at $2,200 was reported stolen. Officers inspected the scene but were unable to gather any additional information. They found one fingerprint; however, it did not have any identifiable characteristics, police said.

Three other home invasions share similar details, Senkbeil said.

A homeowner on Lighthouse Court was awakened by his dog barking continuously overnight Sept. 17.

"They were sleeping, so they don't know what time the crime occurred, Senkbeil said. "The next morning he found that the inner door leading into his attached garage was damaged. The molding around the door was bowed out. The outer door leading into the garage was left unlocked."

Nothing was taken. "They never entered the residence," Senkbeil said The dog was barking so it most likely

Building heights lowered

The Plymouth City Commission voted unanimously Monday night to lower the building heights ordinance in the Central Business District. The new ordinance restricts developers of downtown projects to a height of 50 feet in the area surrounding Kellog Park. The old ordinance allowed a 75-foot ceiling for downtown construction projects.

City commissioners cited the heed to keep the small-town feel of Plymouth, as well as protecting the city's number one asset, Kellogg Park, as reasons for changing the building heights ordinance.

The new Mayflower Centre, designed and under construction before the change in the ordinance, will be approximately 60-feet high.

Plot prices rise

City commissioners, following the lead of the Cemetery Board of Trustees, have voted to increase the resident price for a plot at Riverside Cemetery. Residents will now pay $750 for a plot, a $250 increase. The Cemetery Board did not recommend an increase in the price PLYMOLTH for non-residents, which remains $1,500. According to a report by Acting City Manager Paul Sincock, "due to our reduced pricing for residents we are experiencing a number of sales to residents then transfers to non-residents ... This has a negative impact on cemetery operations over the long-term as it affects the amount of money going into the Perpetual Care Funds."

City OKs abatement

The Plymouth City Commission has passed a tax abatement for E&E Manufacturing Inc. The abatement request covers equipment acquisitions totaling $1.6 million. The purchase of the equipment will make E&E Manufacturing one of the city's top three taxpayers. The 12-year exemption will give the city an additional $6,000 in revenue, according to the city administration.

Eagle's search was done with the consent of Islam on Jan. 7. However, after the findings by the canine, Plymouth police got a search warrant and arrested Islam.

The trial is progressing slowly, with less than half the prosecution's 40 witnesses appearing during six days of testimony. Much of the trial deals with medical experts identifying the remains and police officers from Ohio explaining their investigation when Tracy Islam's torso was found. A sister and boyfriend from England testified Tracy feared for her life.

For the first time, jurors were shown photos of the body parts found in Dearborn and Ohio as family members from London, England, looked on. They didn't appear too shocked at seeing the remains.

Solicitors draw anger of residents

BY SUE BUCK

When some persistent solici-tors made their rounds in Plymouth Township last week, residents registered their complaints with the Plymouth Township Police Department.

We received several reports asking if they are 'legit' and have permits," said Jamie Senkbeil, Plymouth Township community resource officer.

The Plymouth Township clerk's office also received a written complaint.

If approached by door-to-door salespeople, Senkbeil advises residents to ask for the solicitor's permit.

"If you have a portable phone, call the township clerk who issues the permits and ask if they have a permit while they are still standing on the porch," Senkheil said.

ing, she added.

Some phone calls to the police department are still being docu-mented but residents generally describe the solicitors as "pushy and obnoxious," Senkbeil said.

A Canton Center resident felt she was conned Sept. 13 after agreeing to purchase magazines from a woman who said the money would go toward her schooling at Schoolcraft College. Even if the homeowner didn't want the magazine subscriptions, she was told the subscription could be sent to a charitable organization, the solicitor told police. The resident wrote a check for $60, including a subscription for Parents Magazine, which she requested be sent to Ronald McDonald House in Ann Arbor.

After the seller left, the homeowner found the information given was false. The soliciting organization, which Senkbeil have a problem," she said.

Read all contracts before sign- wouldn't identify, promised to return the resident's check.

"We can't deny them a permit," said Plymouth Township Clerk Marilyn Massengill. She didn't have all the specifics about the current rash of complaints.

Massengill asks that solicitors fill out an application requesting the names of the people who will be soliciting, their driver's licenses, and license plates.

The Supreme Court has ruled that these people have a right to make a living," Massengill said.

Though Massengill admits she would personally like to ban all door-to-door solicitors in the township, Plymouth Township Attorney Tim Cronin told her that wasn't legally possible.

Massengill recommends the use of a "No Solicitors" sign. "If everybody in the township had a 'No Solicitors' sign we wouldn't

Weather damages Starkweather

BY TONY BRUSCATO STAFF WRITER tbruscato@os.b

Recent heavy rains and downpours have wreaked havoc on Starkweather Educational Center in Plymouth.

Just as repair crews were near completion on a $219,000 roofing project, storms surfaced and water leaked into the building, causing damage to at least half of the 13 classrooms.

"At first we thought it was a plugged downspout, but then found out it was water leaking through porous mortar," said Laura Hagan, facilities con-struction manager for Plymouth-Canton Schools. The new asphalt roof with copper gutters and downspouts should be completed late this week.

"I'm actually hoping it will rain," added Hagan. "It's the only way to tell, for certain, the problem has been fixed."

Starkweather Education Center coordinator Carol Saunders reported the damage on Sunday, Sept. 10, when she went into the office.

"Ceiling tiles were falling, and some of the leaks were going from the second to the first floor," said Saunders.

I 'I'm actually hoping it will rain.'

Saunders said Room 201, which houses the medical assisting classes, sustained the most damage as the carpet was soaked, ceiling tiles stained and teaching materials destroyed. That room will be out of commission for about two weeks for renova-

"Along with the tile, carpet and ceilings, we had books, magazines, and an overhead projector dam-aged because of the rain," said Saunders. "We'll replace the carpets and repair the floors once we know we have all the leaking stopped." Saunders said none of the school's classes were anceled because of the problem. However, some have been moved to alternative rooms. Child care was canceled one day until the room was cleaned and sanitized. Hagan said all costs from the damage will be paid by the contractor, Christen Detroit. She esti-mates it to be in the range of $10,000.

Plymouth, Michigan. a town of 2.2 square miles and a population of less than 10,000, will get its 15 minutes of fame on national television.

.In reality, it will probably be more like two-and-a-half minutes as ABC News television will profile Plymouth in a feature about the upcoming presidential election. Correspondent Jim Wooten spent Sunday and Monday looking over and researching the

"I met with him at City Hall, and most of the conversation dealt with the uniqueness of Plymouth," said Mayor Dave McDonald. "I was surprised he went out on the town. He seemed to be impressed with the city.

"He was well aware that we have this little gingerbread of a community which is staunchly Republican in a county that is run by one of the most powerful Democrats in the country," added McDonald.

McDonald said Wooten also knew the Plymouth area, despite being a strong Republican base, is in a Congressional district run by Democrat Lynn Rivers.

"I told him we just can't overcome the Democratic strongholds and the density in Washtenaw County," he said. "But, I did tell him that redistricting after electing a Republican Congress and Republican president will take care of that.

"We talked about voter turnout, and I told him we follow national trends," added McDonald. "I told him a lower turnout would probably benefit Republicans because historically a low voter count brings out faithful voters, and we're proud of the fact the Republican Party will come out in rain, snow or anything else." McDonald said Wooten seemed to know a bit about Plymouth before coming to town. "A lot of people told him he needed to come to Plymouth because it was a town disappearing off the landscape," said McDonald. "He lives in London, but had some relatives that lived in Michigan. He said that if he ever moved back to the states he would consider Plymouth."

As of press time Wednesday, the feature on Plymouth was not scheduled for airing Wednesday on World News Tonight with Peter Jennings, although producers said that could change. Otherwise, it would most likely be aired tonight or Friday at 7 p.m.

Summer adventures have effect in area teacher's classroom

BT JEFF COUNTS

While many teachers ask students to write an essay about how they spent their summer vacations, rarely are teachers asked the same question.

"Somebody should ask them," said Ronald Ferencesi, a math and chemistry teacher at Redford's Bishop Borgess High School.

Ferencei, 49, spent part of his summer at the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Scholarship summer institute for Environmental Science at Princeton. New Jersey and on a National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration ship studying the weather.

Both experiences are having a direct bearing on classroom activities at Borgess.

YCUA will allow WTUA to participate on its finance and planning committees.

A new operations committee will be created with equal representation from YCUA and WTUA.

The primary objective is to evaluate wastewater treatment operations costs. Rates at other similar treatment facilities similar to YCUA will be examined annually.

Gateway brings store to Canton

BY HEATHER NEEDLAM STAFF WRITER

AG(P)

A store that will allow computer buyers to do the equiva-lent of "kick the tires" before they buy is heading to Canton. Gateway Country, a 5,000square-foot showroom-style store, is expected to open the end of this month in the Kroger shopping center at Canton Center and Ford. The store will sell and service Gateway computers and offer on-site software training and technical support.

Most importantly, the store will give customers a chance to try computers out before they buy, according to Greg Lund, manager of consumer initiatives for Gateway.

Gateway market research showed that some customers prefer to see items before they buy them.

About 25-30 percent of the consumer market will only buy in retail," Lund said. "We learned that (computer buyers) want to see what they're getting. Buying something sight unseen over the phone or Web was not something they were interested in.'

Customers will still have to order their Gateway computer products at the store. Systems can be customized for individual customers' tastes and needs and can be delivered to their homes usually within a week.

Before 1996, the only way to get a Gateway computer system was by ordering by phone or over the Internet. Since then, 300 Gateway Country stores have sprung up across the United States. Gateway was founded in 1985 and its headquarters are in San Diego.

"We've been really pleased with the results," Lund said of the Gateway Country stores.

hard thing for me now is remembering how great we were last year and thinking of how far we have to go to get there again."

They are certainly well on their way even though the show is far from complete.

The show doesn't get any easier," said P-CEP band director David McGrath. "We are marching 90 drill charts already and that's as many as we had total at nationals last year. This year the total will be 130 when completed."

And Moran is certain they can pull it off. "We have a great staff again this year," he said. "I think the band is even more committed this year. It seems that everyone is focused a lot more because we have to up the standards a notch from last year.'

It helps that this year's per-

"It is an older band and that ups the learning curve a bit. The show was hard enough last year and they were able to handle the tempos. We are marching at tempos that we usually don't achieve until mid-season."

Another big plus, according to McGrath, is this year's incoming freshmen. "They are a very talented group this year," he said. "It is certainly ... the strongest freshman class since I have been here."

Of his entire band, McGrath said, "I couldn't be more proud of them. They're doing exactly everything I could ask.

There are many such complaints. State Sen. Mike Rogers, R-Howell, hand delivered 155 such complaints from customers about Ameritech which he has received through his new Web page, www. fixmy phononew. com. Regers lesseshed the page in response to completely of alive repair service and delays is getting new lines. The PSC, which has also been reserving a rash of complaints over the past two, months, has taken action to force Ameritoch to improve its service response. Ameritech officials were on hand at Monday's hearing to field the complaints. Gail Torreane, president of Ameritech Michigan, apologized to customers, saying the problem was due to difficulthe problem was due to dimetal-ties the company did not antici-pate: "too few technidians, too nuch work out too such the s due too few technidians, too nuch work out too such the s due too few technidians, too out too few technidians, too ter for early retirement. theless, she said the current rate of slow service "is unacceptable to our customers, unacceptable to the PSC and unactable to us."

Service repair problems, as well as slow start-ups of new lines, came to light in August when the PSC received "nearly 2.000" complaints of slow service. Ameritech General Manager of Customer Provisioning and Maintenance Cindie Buck told the PSC that average repair times in August were 118 hours, but complaints that it has taken more than a month to restore service are common.

No teeth

Rogers said he believes the problem is that the PSC lacks enforcement power.

"A dog with no teeth makes a great pet," he said, "but it does-n't make a very good watchdog."

He announced he will be proposing legislation this fall to significantly stiffen fines for the phone company when repairs go beyond 36 hours.

PSC Commissioner Robert Nelsen echoed the sentiment. Harring that back in the spring American Michigan had sent technicities to Illinoir to help out technicians to lithous to help out with a service crisis there, Nel-sen asked if the reason was that lithole' penalties for alow service ware higher than Michigan's. Back did not respond, saying only that it was a small number of technicians who had been sent and that they were quickly recalled.

Ameritech used the hearing to announce new programs of its own to address the problem. Buck said the company will begin shifting workers this week to meet the service demand. Along with moving 202 Michigan technicians from construction to installation and repair, Ameritech's parent company, SBC, is dispatching technicians from Bouthwestern Boll and Pacific Bell to address Michigan's repair problem. The 124 technicians from out of state should arrive this week.

-dissatisfied Ameritech customer

Steven Bice

Ameritech will also give additional credits to customers whose phones go out. In addition to credits required by the state, Ameritech will give a $14 credit when service is put more than 48 hours or when installation of a new line takes more than seven days, Torreano said. And customers won't have to ask for the credits, she said, they'll be given automatically.

Additionally, the company promised even more hiring and more investment in the state's network.

New goal

Torreano said the date for getting service up to speed would be moved up three months. Initially, Ameritech had told the PSC it could have average service times down to 36 hours by March of next year. With the additional hires, transferred employees and increased investment, she said the company hopes to reach that goal this December.

PSC Chairman John Strand said the trend does seem to be headed in the right direction. Peak numbers of complaints had been 582 per week in mid-August. The complaints the PSC is receiving dropped to 426 the week of Sept. 11.

Ann Glenn, who runs a dog rescue shelter out of her Clarkston home, was one of those who showed up at Monday's hearing. She had been without phones for weeks. When an Ameritech technician showed up, he couldn't do the job alone so her husband had The worst part was that in later lost. When he learned in June that Ameritech had no record of his order, he had to go to the end of the waiting list again.

"The last date I was given was Sept. 6. Here it is Sept. 18 and I still don't have a phone," he said. "Twe had no less than eight deadlines for when the phone would be installed, but the most frustrating part is that I don't get calls back."

VanKoevering explained that he has a cell phone, but when Ameritech workers don't show up, they don't call to inform him or to reschedule.

Billing problems

Not all the complaints were about the recent run of slow ser-trying to get a phone installed in his new Eaton Repidi home since Agril. He complained that his initial order was entered but has had with the phone company since 1997. Initially, it began when his company moved. Ameritach turned off his phones three days in a row. Then the company overbilled him by amounts of $12,000. The shutoffs and billing troubles nearly closed his business.

"You have a company," Satterfield said, "with so much power they can determine who can be in business and who cannot ... That's a dictatorship."

Five more consumer forums will be held this fall. The national locations will be in the Wyandotte City Hall Council Chambers at 6 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 3, and in the Royal Oak Senior/Community Center at 6 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 5. Additional forums will be held in Recar be, Tawas City and Cadillac.

The commission will alag ccept written comments on t issue through Monday, Oct. W Written comments should be addressed to the Michigan Public lic Service Commission, Exec tive Secretary, P.O. Box 30223 Lansing, MI 48909.

Frequent, reliable, safe, convenient. These were the words that participants at a transportation "visioning" session used to describe the kind of mass transit they'd like to see in the metro Detroit area. And more than 80 percent of the participants said they'd be willing to pay for "The Transit Visioning Forum" was sponsored by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments on Aug. 10.

They released the report last week. Two more forums are planned for next year.

The visioning forums were scheduled following the release of SEMCOG's 2025 Regional Transportation Plan for Southeast Michigan, adopted in June.

The transportation plan outlines road, bridge and other transportation projects for the next 25 years. The forums are intended to get public input on mass transit.

The Aug. 10 forum was divided into an afternoon and an evening session. About 200 people attended. The group included representatives from government, business, special interests organizations and individual volunteers

Participants were asked prior to the sessions to state their concerns about transit in the area, what they'd like to see in mass transit and who they think a mass transit system should benefit.

At the session participants were asked to respond to a series of questions with a keypad voting system.

The major reasons given for not using mass transit were that appropriate routes weren't available and buses ran too infrequently.

The report from SEMCOG divides the small group responses into three categories: people, characteristics and system benefits.

In the first category, the participants said mass transit should primarily serve people who are transit dependent, these with low income, the olderly and the disabled.

Then it should serve those who need it to get to work, "choice riders," and visiture to the area. The chief characteristics sought were a syste

Chief benefits of a mass transit system, according to small group participants, were to spur the local economy, give the region a sense of identity and reduce auto congestion.

My husband's heaven would have camouflage gates

f my husband had his way I believe I recently got a glimpse of what heaven would look like. It's called ... Cabela's.

Known to outdoor and sport enthusiasts as the world's foremost outfitter of fishing, camping, hunting and outdoor gear — the company recently opened a 225,000-square-flot store in Dundee, just 10 miles south of my home. They are estimating the megastore will attract more than 6 million visitors annually.

More than a year ago we read about the proposed store and it's anticipated August 2000 grand opening. Ever since, my husband has been chomping at the bit for the doors to open. We even drove down there one night a couple of months ago when a billboard near our house erroneously read "NOW OPEN."

Much to his disappointment the store was still in the process of being constructed. I'm not even kidding when I say the next day the sign read "Open August 2000." If I didn't know any better I'd think my husband called the store to complain about the cruel joke someone played ... making him think the store was open when it was actually several weeks from completion.

I do

I married a "jack of all that is outdoors." Our basement looks like Cabela's own "Bargain Cave," with everything from scuba gear and akis to fishing poles and snowmobile paraphernalis. He's not so obsessed that our bridal party wore blase orange, but some of our calendar year is planned around opening day of deer season.

He can now sleep easier knowing the store and all it's merchandise are at his beck and call. When I got home from work Wednesday, Aug. 30, he was waiting in the doorway for me. "Are you ready?"

"Ready?" I asked as if I didn't know what he was talking about.

What I was really thinking was, "You mean ready to eat the dinner you made me when you got home or 19-year-old Alysia Dunn of Plymouth, attending beauty school wasn't just a choice, but rather a family tradition.

early? Ready to buy new furniture for our living room? Or ready for the hot bath you drew for me with lavender scented bath salts?"

When I snapped back to reality, I responded "Ready for what?"

"Are you ready to go to Cabela's grand opening? It's today."

"Sure," I said even though I could think of 1,000 other things I should or could be doing. "Don't you want to change clothes?"

"No, let's just go."

Needless to say I made him change clothes first so I had time to pack a few snacks for our 19-month-old daughter. I should have been thinking survival food as I wasn't sure how long we'd be lost in the maze of fishing lures and gun racks.

Call of the wild

As we made our way to the store, I could see the troops had been called out to handle the crowds. The Monroe County Sheriff's Department and Dundee Police were directing traffic ... a good sign I should have packed a flare gun.

I have to admit the store is impressive, not only because of it's sheer size, but the animal diorama's and the 48-foot mountain erected in the center of the store lends itself to a lot of oohs and ahhs.

I spent most of the two hours people watching while my husband and 1,000 other men shopped in a trancelike state wandering from display to display.

Our daughter was entertained by a man testing out the duck calls and her bag of pretzels more than anything, but give her a few years and I have no doubt her father will have her scoping out whirly gigs (those are fishing lures) and duck decoys.

Our checkbook was relatively unscathed by our first visit ... $21. But I have a feeling we're going to be upgrading all of the gear we already own. I'm going to have to change my attitude real quick if St. Peter turns out to be Ted Nugent standing at heaven's camouflage gates.

Kimberly Mortson is the HomeTown Life Editor for the Observer newspapers in Wayne County. "I've always wanted to do this," she said, sitting amid the fervor of a busy day in the salon at Miss Katie's Plymouth College of Beauty. "My dad owns his own salon in Novi."

She's always viewed cosmetology as the right career for her, and an honorable one. The most rewarding part of the work, said Dunn, is seeing her client's happy faces.

Perhaps it is those happy faces that have kept Miss Katie's Plymouth College of Beauty and its students going strong. The college itself has a 17year history. It's founder, Marilyn Lehmann retired and sold the Plymouth College of Beauty to current owner, Katie Bauman in 1992. A smaller, private beauty school, it welcomes about 50 students at any given time in its cosmetology and nail technician courses.

Working with students

"I like the idea of getting to work with my students one-on-one," said Bauman. Like her students, she never wondered what she wanted to be when she grew up. "I guess it was something I just always wanted to do." Bauman discovered a talent for hairdressing as a teenager at friends' sleepover parties and she never looked back.

Echoing her sentiments, Natalie Clark, a student who lives on the border of Redford and Detroit, also knew she wanted to become a cosmetologist from an early age. "It's always been something fun for me," she said. "When I was little, I would paint my mom's nails. I thought it would be a great way to work my way through college."

In demand

Clark wasn't the only one with such aspirations. In a business that used to draw employees with no intentions of pursuing a degree at a university, it's now a career springboard, even a supplement to higher education.

Much has changed since the days of the bouffant, Anxious: Heather Couch smiles as she cuts the hair of Alex Scott, 4, of Plymouth. Lower left, Student Meredith Day of Livonia perms Selma Hegazi's hair.

most importantly the way the business of beauty is conceived by the public. Bauman believes the career has become quite more lucrative, and wellrespected. Not only are students earning a license and using their talents to pay for college, they are pursuing business degrees and opening their own salons.

"We used to be beauticians," said Bauman. "Now we're hairdressers. That's different. We have salons calling us to get students."

> As often as you change your hair Bauman has witnessed many changes over the past years. "We used to go to the state hourds and have to do a roller est, finger waving and pin curle," she said. "Now they have to de a blow dry and certing iron techniques. Hair cutting is pretty much the same. It hasn't changed and Brooke Ame of Livenia take their continuing education quite seriously. The couple own Santa Fe Salon, in their hometown, Livenia, but travel across the country to events which eachle them to stay current in the industry. "It becomes a lifestyle," said Jim Ame, who went from co-owning a hardware store to co-owning a salon.

Ask the experts

No matter what style, color or look clients ask for, today's cosmetologist has the experience to make it happen. Michigan requires that students complete 1,500 hours of training in the areas of hygiene, shampooing, styling techniques, nail care, hair coloring, cutting and perming. Nail technicians are required to complete 400 hours of training for manicures, hot oil treatments, paraffin wax, acrylic nails and nail art. Students are licensed after passing a state board certification exam. The College of Beauty boasts a 95 percent success rate for students passing the examination and working in the community.

Many students at the college come from Plymouth-Canton Adult Education as well as the area high schools. Seniors at Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton high schools can earn 6 credits toward graduation by completing the cosmetology course.

While it may be rewarding, cosmetology is anything but simple. Just ask Sara Tacia, a Plymouth resident. She actually left the school for a year and then returned to complete her requirement. She couldn't escape her calling. "Everything I did revolved around doing hair.'

Tacia has adopted the school's positive motto: "If your hair doesn't look good, you don't feel good." What you can't learn at beauty school is the basic trait that makes any cosmetologist a pleasure to visit . personality. "You have to be a talker." said Bauman. Making a client feel comfortable is the first step in cosmetology, and the one thing that will bring them back time and again.

Heather Couch of Ypsilanti definitely doesn't mind chatting with clients. A student since June, she considers her time at the college to be "really good experience."

"I love to see the end product," said the 20-year-old. "And to make somebody feel good.' Couch hasn't decided what she ultimately hopes to do once she's certified. She knows that as a cosmetologist, many avenues are now open for her. "There are so many different things I can do," she said with enthusiasm. "I nent voice in American culture. Slavery has been a prominent part of our past, and not just on a racial basis. Because of the prevalence of past, freedom has acquired an authentic voice in American culture. And as the media have become the preachers of the information age, here are just a few of the places you see this concept of freedom taking center stage.

slavery in our

I first saw it in my favorite movie of all time, The Wisard of Oz. Dorothy gets caught up in that tornado, and her house lands on the wicked witch of the east. And after the munchkins come and confirm her death, they herald Dorothy as their great liberator and cry, "Today is a day of independence, for all the munchkins and their descendants!" Freedom!

We've talked before in this column about Sean Connery's classic line in First Knight. As King Arthur, Connery is accused of making laws which enslave the people of Camelot. His response? "There are laws which enslave men and laws which set them free!" Main concept? Freedom.

And there's that famous speech, Dr. King's civil rights address in which the famous line is repeated over and over, "I have a dream." What was that dream? That all men, black and white, would be ... FREE!

But most telling is the story of the liberation of Scotland at the hand of William Wallace in Braveheart. Mel Gibson plays William Wallace, a Scottish leader bent on liberating Scotland from British rule. He's becoming popular, winning one campaign after another with nothing more the tribal leaders are looking reedom has Da promitoward him for leadership of their forming nation. He is joined by these leaders at a "leadership summit," and, in short, refuses to submit to their military plan. He storms out of the room, in an attitude of belligerence. One of the diplomats at this meeting, Robert the Bruce, chases after him. He climbs up in Wallace's face and exhorts him, "Come on, Wallace. Rise up and give these men courage!" I love the response. Wallace exclaims, "Men don't want courage. They want freedom. Give it to them, and they'll follow va!"

Biblical lesson

I only thought of one verse of Scripture when I heard this: "Christ has set us free from the law of sin and death" (Romans 8:2). The Bible makes it clear that we're prisoners to sin. Whether we want to admit it or not, in all of our heightened, enlightened humanity, we are still slaves to sin. There are more self-help and recovery groups than there ever have been, crime is up and scandal abounds. We're slaves to sin. And the only one who can truly grant freedom is Christ Jesus. Every other source of freedom is flawed and temporary. No freedom lasts, except that found in Jeaus.

"Men don't want courage. They want freedom. Give it to them, and they'll follow ya!" It's true. Jesus didn't come to give us courage (though we are encouraged by him). He came to give us freedom, to set us free from our sin. And people have been following him ever since!

Shull is player of week

Christen Shull, a freehman defender for Madonna University's women's soccer team, from Canton (Plymouth Salem HS), has been selected as the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference and NAIA Region VIII player of the week.

Shull helped the Lady Crusaders post a 2-0 record last week in victories over WHAC rivals Concordia College and Tri-State University. Shull scored twice against each opponent and also had one assist for the week.

For the season, Shull has four goals and an assist for nine points, helping Madonna to a 5-1-1 record and a 3-0 WHAC mark.

Other Crusaders honored

·Salvatore Piraine, a junior midfielder on Madonna University's men's soccer team, was named WHAC and Region VIII player of the week. Piraine, a Dearborn Crestwood graduate and the WHAC player of the year last season who missed four games with an injury, scored three times against WHAC foe Concordia College and added another goal in a nonleague loss to Goshen College.

Piraine added two assists as well, giving him a team-best four goals and two assists (10 points) in four games this season.

•Brandy Malewski, a senior middle-hitter for Madonna University's volleyball team and a Redford Thurston graduate, was chosen as WHAC player of the week.

Malewski led the Crusaders to a 4-0 record for the week, collecting 42 kills with a .438 kill percentage in 12 games. She also had five solo blocks and 12 block assists. For the season, Malewski has 196 kills, an average of 4.56 per game (and a kill percentage of .433), and a team-best 68 blocks (1.58 per game).

Canton, N'ville ends in a draw

It was a supreme test, this battle between division rivals Plymouth Canton and Northville, under conditions that made the challenge even more extreme. In the end, neither team could claim control of the outcome.

BY C.J. RIMAE BPORTS EDITOR

In a pivotal clash Wednesday night between two Western Lakes Activities Association Western Division rivals, nothing was decided.

Plymouth Canton and Northville, two of the three teams (the other is Livonia Churchill) with talent enough to win the Division title, played to a 1-1 draw at Northville in conditions you'd rather watch on "The Weather Channel" than actually endure.

Both teams are 1-0-1 in divisional play, and neither has played Churchill yet. Canton is 6-4-1 overall; Northville is 5-1-2.

"It was an important divisional game," said Northville coach Henry Klimes. "With a tie, now everyone's still alive.

"Sure, we knew how important it was. And so did they."

A driving rainstorm blowing in from the north was a major factor in the game's outcome. If one team was more skilled than the other, it was impossible to tell in these conditions.

It was apparent through the second half that Northville was emotionally charged. The Mustangs, with the wind at their back for the final 40 minutes, attacked relentlessly - and physically. Three Northville players were given yellow cards, two for rough play and third for arguing, in the second half Canton had the early lead, gettin first-half goal from Mike Zemanski.

That advantage lasted for 11 min utes of the second half. With 28:17 la a centering pass eluded the Chief defenders, who were battling th uncertain footing. It slipped through ( Jeff Fielhauer, and he powered it past Canton keeper T.J. Tomasso, ending his five-game shutout streak.

The outcome keeps the race interesting, particularly since Churchill and Livonia Franklin played to a 0-0 tie Wednesday in another division match.

Quite a comeback: One reason for Salem's victory was the comeback Bobby Jones staged. After struggling through a doublebagey on the first hole, Jones rebounded to shoot a 39.

next twosome, in particular Bobby Jones, who got off to an awful start by losing his ball on the first hole and posting a double-bogey.

Jones, however, rebounded to shoot an impressive 39. Teammate Brian Gullen was nearly as good, firing a 40 - both scores bettering Canton's twosome of Mike Baracy (45) and Jason Brand (46).

Which left it up to the final twosome of Gordon and Ryan Williams. Gordon's 38 and Williams 43 were equalled by Canton's twosome of Scott Oliver (39) and Andrew Wagner (42), by the final stroke count (top five scores) favored : Salem.

"It was pretty emotional," said Wil- : son. "We actually had a crowd, a gallery.

A high school golf meet isn't usually the kind of sport that draws a lot of fan attention. Unless that meet is between rivals like Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem.

Top shooter: One of Canton's best against Salem was Derek Vermeulen, who shot a 39.

The Rocks and Chiefs clashed at St. John's Golf Course Monday with more than just bragging rights at stake. Both teams were unbeaten in the Western Lakes Activities Association; as Salem coach Rick Wilson said, "In this league, you just about have to win all of your home matches and hope you win the majority of your road matches.

"We couldn't afford to lose a home match.

On Monday, the Rocks didn't. And it was a somewhat unexpected source that kept them from bowing to the tough Canton team.

With junior Jon Gordon posting his best score of the season, Salem just managed to eke past the Chiefs, 203-204. The win pushed the Rocks' record to 4-0 in the WLAA; Canton is 2-1.

Gordon, who was part of the Rocks' third two-some, had broken 40 just once in his previous three matches this season. Against Canton, he shot a medalist-earning 38.

And it couldn't have come at a better time, as far as Salem was concerned.

With a crowd of onlookers watching, Salem's top twosome of Jay Smith and Mike Thackaberry each had a rough match, shopting matching 43s. Those two are co-captains, and they'll tell you it was their teammates who picked them up," said Wilson.

When Canton's top twosome of Derek Vermeulen and Ryan McKendry came in with identical 39s, the Rocks found themselves trailing by eight strokes a lot to make up.

They started their comeback with the Huebler, Shara Huggins, Lindsay Lasher, Mandy Marsonek, Allison Mills, Jessica Palis, Danielle Portelli, Betsy Radtke, Nicole Schilk, Natalie Thomas and Amber Williams. The Lightning is coached by Dan Schilk.

Braves split

Dave Shumaker (Canton) doubled home two runs to tie the score with one out and came home with the game-winner when Will Wojcik Shook (Plymouth/AA Gabriel Richard) singled to left with two out in the bottom of the sixth Saturday to give the Michigan Braves a 7-6 victory over the Michigan Thunder.

The Thunder won the first game of the Total Baseball Fall League doubleheader, 3-2, despite an excellent pitching performance by Kris Mackmiller, who allowed just one earned run and didn't give up a hit after the second. Mackmiller also doubled for one of three hits by the Braves (6-1-1).

Clay Weldon (Plymouth Christian) got the victory in relief, entering in the fourth and striking out two to end a Thunder threat. He pitched two-hit shutout ball over the last two innings of the game, shortened by the time limit.

Wojcik Shook walked three times in the first game and went 2-for-4 with a double and a walk in the second. Catcher Mike Markey (OLSM), one of 20 players chosen to attend a Doyle Baseball national showcase, walked four times in the first game.

Hole-in-one

Terrie Smithers of Canton used an eight-iron on the 72-yard 11th hole of the Snow Snake Mountain Ski and Golf Club in Harrison to get a hole-inone. Smithers got her ace on Sept. 8.

Strong 2nd half boosts Canton to a win

Once again, defense saved Plymouth Canton's basketball team.

The Chiefs hosted Ann Arbor Pioneer in a nonleague game Tuesday, but did so with virtually no first-half offense. Canton could muster only 12 points in the opening two quarters.

Fortunately, their defense was present, limiting Pioneer to just 19 points in the first half for a seven-point halftime lead. And that was something the Chiefs could overcome.

Which they did, thanks to Janine Guastella. The senior guard/forward, who returned a week ago from a knee injury suffered last spring, scored a gamehigh 19 points - 11 in the second half - to carry Canton to a 38-34 victory.

"We struggled early against their sone," said Canton coach Bob Blohm, his team now 4-2. "We just had a hard time getting the ball where we wanted to.

"But even though we struggled offensively, we sure played well defensively."

He had to be joking. Or perhaps Plymouth Canton soccer coach Don Smith was just trying to maintain perspective.

After all, the Chiefs had what in many ways was a bigger game last night at Northville, a Western Lakes Activities Association Western Division rival. A win over state-ranked Northville would take them one step closer to a berth in the WLAA championship match.

Still, beating second-ranked - and previously unbeaten - Livonia Stevenson 2-0 surely should elicit a stronger response than "It was a very nice game."

Whatever Smith's reaction, it was an outcome with huge consequences for the Chiefs, who struggled to find the net in the first three weeks of the season.

That changed in the last 10 days. In consecutive wins over Walled Lake Western, Walled Lake Central and Monroe, Canton totaled 24 goals.

That alone should have alerted the Spartans. If it didn't, Monday's match, played at Canton, certainly did.

"We rose to the occasion," said Smith. "The boys were taking a lot of whacks and were still coming back.

"Our attack is a whole lot better. The kids are hustling, that's (the difference). It's that Canton 10, Monroe 0: Three players had multiple-goal games and six scored to carry Canton past visiting Monroe Saturday.

Shon Washington led the scoring barrage with three goals. John Kacsmarek contributed two goals and three assists, and Nick Rolfe finished with two goals.

Mike Zemanski, Evan Malone and Jeff Bennett each had single goals for the Chiefs. Others to collect assists were Matt Strabbing, Matt Magers, Pat Meyn and Andrew Holmes.

PCA 3, Agape 1: After a scoreless first half, Plymouth Christian Academy scored threestraight goals to pull away from Canton Agape Christian Tuesday at PCA.

The Eagles improved to 5-1-3. The Wolverines slipped to 5-3-1.

Tim Maes scored PCA's first goal, assisted by Steve McLean. Dan Carty made it 2-0, assisted by Brandon Kreis, and John Sink scored the third goal.

"It was good from that aspect," said PCA coach Rick Ericson after his team pushed across three goals. "We put the ball in the net. I hope we can continue that Saturday."

Double trouble.

That's what Plymouth Canton's tennis team gave Livonia Stevenson Monday at Canton. The Chiefs lost three of the four singles matches, but they swept the doubles to earn a 5-3 victory in a Western Lakes Activities Association match.

Stevenson is 2-1 overall and in the conference.

Three of the eight matches went three sets, with three sets going to the tiebreaker. Canton's only victory in singles came at No. 3, with Katie Maloni beating Stevenson's Jen Jensen 6-3, 6-4.

In doubles, the Chiefs' No. 1 team of Susan Franck and Beth Treadwell beat the Spartans' Kim Samsel and Gloria Ghorman 7-6 (7-4), 5-7, 6-0; the No. 2 pairing of Tracy Robey and Jenna Delaney topped Maria Dimopoulas and Stephanie Mucci 4-6, 6-1, 7-5; at No. 3, Jessica Lacey and Lauren Dew stopped Katherine Fretz and Lindsey Novotny 7-6 (7-4), 6-2; and at No. 4, Christa McKay and Jennie Kazmierczak bested Lauren Falzon and Jody Winkler 6-3. 6-1. Stevenson's wins came at No.

I thought about what "Joe" said. I wanted to see if he was right. So I cruised out to a game last week in search of youngsters willing to do the picks. And so you'll find our 14 guests a little later in this story - taking one game each, collectively trying to beat us. To their credit, none of them picked a winner based on the color of the uniforms.

A couple of weeks staff, all of whom stumbled to at least two losses during the weekend. The joined-at-the-hip combination of Farmington sports editor Dan O'Meara and his evil twin, Livonia-Westland sports editor Brad Emons - who have pretty much picked the same teams for the last three weeks - went 10-2 and lead the way at 50-7 (but get no points for originality). Plymouth-Canton sports editor C.J. Risak stumbled once again. much like the Detroit Lions' offense, to earn a 9-3 record and 45-12 overall mark.

Et moi? A 10-2 record and 47-10 overall, leaving me somewhere between greatness and mediocrity.

On with the picks (Mine are in parentheses and italics). Oh, and we'll let you know next week how our 14 guest predictors did.

Friday's Games (All times 7 p.m. unless noted)

Belleville (4-0) at Wayne (0-4): "Belleville, because it looks like they have a big team and I've seen them win before." - Charlie Graves, 12. (Smart kid, this Charlie) PICKS: Belleville --Beaudry, O'Meara, Emons, Risak.

Taylor Truman (1-3) at Gardon City (3-1): "Tayfor Truman; I saw a lot of their youth football They can't be any worse than our teams before because my sister used to live there and they have a lot of good soorts teams and I've seen a lot of them." - Andrew Huska, 12. (I used to date a girl who was from Taylor. I've seen a lot of their sports teams too.) PICIUS: Garden City - Beaudry, O'Meara, Emons, Risak.

Redlerd Union (0-4) at Wyandotte (3-1): "Redford Union, because I have a couple of friends who go to RU. I really don't know Wyandotte, so I can't say." - Amy Riker, 12. (When RU wins, I'll start picking it.) PICKS: Wyandette -Beaudry, O'Meara, Emons, Risak.

Farmington (1-3) at N. Farmington (0-4): "Farmington, because I think they have a big team and have pretty big people too. The only same I saw them, they beat the other team, I don't remember the other team." - Holly Miller, 12. (The other guys laughed last week when I picked Farmington. Then the score came in.) PICKS: Farmington --- Beaudry, O'Meara, Emons. N. Fermington - Risak.

Walled Lake Central (3-1) at John Glonn (3-1): "The moon team, because they're named after an astronaut and I like the stars and the planets."- Paul Campbell, 5. (I like the moon team too, because their coach usually does his best work when the moon comes out.) PICKS: John Gienn - Beaudry, O'Meara, Emons, Risak.

Herthville (3-1) at Harrison (4-0): "Northville: I just picked them. I don't know." - Eric Aaro, 9. (Harrison; Something. I don't know ... ) PICKS: Harrison - Beaudry, O'Meara, Emons, Risak.

Conton (3-1) at Churchill (1-8), 7:30 p.m.: * Churchill, because I saw them play before and they're good. They whupped." - Paul Morgan. 12. (Canton, because they whupped too.) PICKS: an - Beaudry, O'Meara, Emons, Risak.

Presidin (1-3) at Walled Lake Western (4-0), 7:30 p.m.; " Walled Lake, I guess. I don't know. I don't know anybody out there. Who knows anybody out there." - Mary Strzalkowski, 12. (I do - boys' basketbell coach Rex Stanczak, who looked resplendent in his U-M hat, blue turtle neck, blue sweets and blue mood after Michigan lost on Saturday. And if the football team scores like the basketball team, they whupp too.) PICKS: Western - Beaudry, O'Meara, Emons, Risak.

Stevenson (2-2) at Selem (1-3), 7:30 p.m.: "Stevenson, because I know (Mary) knows some people who go to Stevenson. And they were good last year." - Patty Ray, 12. (Shelia Taormina went to Stevenson. She's been pretty good every year. Therefore ... ). PICKS: Stevenson -Beaudry, O'Meara, Emons. Salem - Risak.

Annapolis (2-2) at Thurston (1-3), 7:30 p.m.: Thurston, because (Redford Union) never beat Thurston before. I don't think they've ever best Thurston, I think they're undefeated against them." - Shannon Cockfield, 14. (Oh, I think RU might have beaten them once or twice, but Thurston is playing Annapolis.) PICKS: Thurston - Beaudry, O'Meara, Emons, Risak.

the (4-8) at Latheren Wooth -----1 p.m.: "Lutheran Westland, because I'm pretty sure they have excellent blocking and they're pretty good." - Nick Cockfield, 12. (Dunno, / think Clarenceville's pretty good too.) PICKE: Clarenceville - Beaudry, O'Mears, Emons, Risak.

H.W. Bishop Gallagher (3-1) at Bishop Borge (0-4), 2 p.m.: "(Bishop Borgess), because Red ford is cool. It rocks." - Teri Hendricks, 13. (Redford may rock, but Gallagher rolls...) PICHE: allegher - Beaudry, O'Meara, Emons, Risak.

Catholic Control (4-0) ve. Brother Rise (4-0) at Greves, 4 p.m.: " Catholic Central, because i don't think they have ever lost a game. They are so good. They have the best players." - Rence, Kleabir, 14. (Don't know, Rense. Brother Rice is ... pretty strong too. Really strong, in fact. And the only guy who's been coaching in the Catholic League longer than Tom Mach is Al Fracassa, who studied under Knute Rockne. Best game of the season, by far.) PICKS: Rise - Beaudry, O'Meara; CC - Emons, Risak.

St. Agatha (2-2) vs. Hely Redeamor (1-3) at RU's Kraft Field, 7:80 p.m.: "St. Agatha; because I know people from St. Agatha and I think they're pretty good." - Christine Kern, 12. (I think the Aggies are good too - at least better than Redeemer.) PICKS: St. Agethe -Beaudry, O'Meara, Emons, Risok.

N. Farmington at Berkley, 1 p.m.

Twisters make it 8 wins in a row

The Michigan Twisters kept their record in the Lake Shore Football League perfect with a 31-2 rout of the Glass City Grizzlies Saturday in Toledo.

The win pushed the Twisters' record to 8-0 with two regularseason games remaining.

Donti Hamilton gained 171 yards and scored two touchdowns, one on a 70-yard punt return and another on a 60-yard interception runback. Jake Gibson added 113 yards rushing on nine carries and one TD, and Pat Bowie (from Westland) had stored another TD while gaining 34 yards on nine attempts.

: Reggie Brandon (Canton) was in for just one offensive series due to an ankle injury, but he still gathered in a 38-yard scoring toss from Rob Elswick.

The Twister defense was even more dominating, limiting the Grizzlies to 57 total yards and intercepting six passes. Leading the defensive effort were Damon Frendo (Garden City) with four tackles, one assist, one interception and three pass break-ups; Earl Sutton, with two tackles and a fumble recovery; Aaron Brothers, with two tackles, three

The Chiefs' Doug Davidson Little, Romeo Young, Deshon scored four rushing TDs along, Reggie Joyner got two and Matt Bennett added one. The Chiefs also scored on six two-point conversion attempts.

The Chiefs' defense played solidly throughout, stopping the Patriots three times within their own 20. Next up for the Chiefs at the halfway mark in the season is Livonia Churchill, at 4 p.m. today at Churchill.

Freshmen back on track

The Canton freshmen recovered quickly from their loss to Farmington Harrison, improving their record to 3-1 by defeating Livonia Franklin 36-12 Thursday at Canton. The Patriots scored first following a Chiefs fumble deep in their own end. The Canton frosh managed to knot the score at six with just nine seconds remaining in the first half.

The Chiefs took control in the second half aided by a Patriots fumble and two interceptions by Eric O'Shaunessy.

Steelers sweep Splitters

The Plymouth Steelers varsity

McClendon and Matt Mauldin each scored for the Steelers, with Matt Stott, Jeffery Piper and Colin Richter leading the defense. Richter accounted for a Splitters' safety in the first half.

The Steeler freshmen were winners as well, stopping the Splitters 13-0. Dalton Walser scored both touchdowns for the Steelers.

Others making significant contributions on offense were Thomas Engle, Michael Bashawaty and Nathan Bachert, with strong defense provided by Jeffrey Stott, who got a key interception, Spencer Tobin, Adam Powers, Joseph Massel and Paul Kanaan.

Lion varsity now 2-0

The Canton Lions varsity football team improved its Junior Football League record to 2-0 with a 16-13 victory over the Garden City Chargers Sunday. Jensen Kilgrove scored both Lion touchdowns, the second (and game-winning) with just four minutes left to play. Julian Smith converted both pivotal points-after-touchdown place-

The Canton junior varsity football team upped its record to 4-0 with a resounding 60-6 victory over Livonia Franklin last Thursday. The Chiefs scored 60 points in the first half, with seven rushing touchdowns and an eighth on a Dave Nicoloff-to-Andy Howald 70-yard pass play.

tootdall squad routed the under manned Lincoln Railsplitters (who played with only 13 players) 44-12 Sunday in a Junior Football League game. Tim Storch scored touchdowns on offense and defense, the latter a 50-yard fumble recovery and return.

Other TDs were scored by Jake Powers, Chuck Schumacher. Kevin Bradley and Steven Lehane, and Steelers' placekicker Dylan Tobin was good for three two-point conversions.

The Steelers' junior varsity team also recorded a win, topping the Splitters 28-7. Shawn ments to assure the victory

The Canton Lions junior varsity squad saw their 11-game winning streak end in an exciting 7-6 loss to the Garden City Chargers JV Sunday. The Lions took the early lead when a drive sparked by Konrad Konsitzke's passing was capped by a 12-yard scoring run by Vernon Stewart, making it 6-0.

The Lions JV had a chance to recapture the lead in the fourth quarter, but a long TD run by Mathew Farmer was called back. Defenses by both teams ruled through most of the game.

That the Chiefs did throughout the game. The Pioneers (4-2) opened the second half with a quick 5-1 run to go up 24-13, their biggest lead of the game. That was as good as it got for them, however. Canton closed the quarter with a 13-0 run and took a 26-24 lead into the fourth quarter.

It was a battle after that, and the Chiefs won it, thanks to Guastella's seven fourth-quarter points. Pioneer's last lead was 31-30 late in the final period, but Guastella made the game's pivotal play with 20 seconds left and her team clinging to a onepoint lead.

Guastella rebounded a missed Canton shot, converted the putback and was fouled. She knocked down the free throw to increase the Chiefs' lead to four points.

Next highest scorer in the game for Canton was Anne Morrell with six. Pioneer got 18 points from Chris Kutschinski; next best was Chigo Ozor with six.

Ladywood 52, Marian 35: Livonia Ladywood (5-2, 1-0) opened the Catholic League Central Division schedule Tuesday with a major road victory at Birmingham Marian (4-3, 0-1) as senior forward Michelle Harakas led the way with 22 points.

The Blazers, who led 13-2 after one quarter, also got 11 points and 13 rebounds from junior center Liz Obrecht.

Ladywood was able to overcome early third-quarter foul trouble as starting guards Melissa Harakas and Lauren Hesano each picked up four.

"Marian came out and pressed us all over the court in the second half," Ladywood coach Andrea Gorski said. "We were not totally in sync, but we withstood it. Our freshman point-guard Amber Willoughby came in and did a good job.

"It was a good road battle for us.

Junior guard Kate Solner led the Mustangs with 13 points, nine coming from the free throw line. Marian hit 15 of 25 for the game, attempting 23 in the second half.

Ladywood was 10-of-14.

"We did a good job in our manto-man half-court defense," said Gorski, whose team jumped out to a 13-2 first-quarter lead. "We did a good job coming out on their shooters and stopping their dribble penetration."

Baptist Park 48, Agape 30: Canton Agape Christian was out of this one from the start, falling behind 14-5 after one quarter and 27-15 at the half in a game played Tuesday at Taylor Baptist Park.

The loss left the Wolverines with a 5-3 record. Baptist Park is 3-3.

Amy Henry was the only Agape player to reach double-figures in scoring; she had 11. Heidi Hodges scored 16 to pace Baptist Park; Stephanie Demos contributed 12.

"That and Jon Gordon's score. He hadn't posted a score like that all year. He's been steady, but this was big for us because it came in that last group."

Schoolcraft looking good in conference

This Schoolcraft College volleyball team is beginning to make the description made by their longtime coach, Tom Testers, sound believable.

"This is one of the best volleyball teams I've coached in my 24 years of coaching," Testers said. Quite a statement, considering among those SC teams he's coached is an NJCAA champion.

But on Tuesday, the current Lady Ocelots ran their record in the Michigan Community College Athletic Association's Eastern Conference to 7-0 with a 15-6, 16-14, 15-5 victory over Macomb CC at SC.

SC is 11-4 overall.

Fran Hamilton's 13 kills led SC (a

.440 kill percentage); she also had seven digs and three blocks. Lauren Ruprecht (Livonia Churchill) contributed nine kills (.316 percentage), six digs and two blocks; Nicole Boyd (Westland/Livonia Franklin) had six kills; Andrea Kmet (Westland/Franklin) had four kills, three aces, eight digs and three blocks; and Jana Nitschke had five kills (.400 percentage), three service aces, seven digs and 31 assists to kills.

Last weekend at Alpena CC, the Ocelots defeated the host team twice, 15-0, 15-1, 15-2 and 15-2, 15-3, 15-0.

Boyd led the attackers with 14 kills

(.438 percentage) in the two matches. Ruprecht added 11 kills (.556), 12 digs and two blocks; Kmet had nine kills (.286), five acce, 13 digs and six blocks (including four solos); Hamilton had seven kills (.333) and three acces; Amanda Yaklin had nine acces; and Nitschke totaled six kills (.750), four acces, 15 digs and 39 assists to kills.

Madonna wins 3

Madonna University remained perfect in Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference play by sweeping past host Siena Heights 15-5, 16-14, 15-8 Tuesday.

The Lady Crusaders improved to 12-2 overall, 4-0 in the WHAC. The Saints slipped to 14-5 overall, 1-2 in the confer-

Brandy Malewski (Redford Thurston) topped Madenna with 20 kills (s. 576 kill percentage); she also had eight digs. Kelly Artymovich added 15 kills (.462), 19 digs and two blecks; Erin Cunningham had 10 kills and 19 digs; Marylu Hemme (Plymouth/Livonia Ledywood) had a team-high 25 digs; Amanda Suder (Plymouth Salem) had 14 digs; and Jennie Wind totaled 50 assists to kills and 12 digs.

On Sunday, the Crusaders rolled to a straight-set triumph over host Hilledale College, 15-11, 15-9, 15-8 in a non-conference match.

Top attacker was Malewski with 18 kills (.424); she added 21 digs and five blocks. Artymovich had 16 kills (.265) and 14 digs; Jennifer Frost had 12 kills and two blocks; Cunningham contribut, od nine kills (.333), 21 digs and threts blocks; Hemme had 17 digs; Suder had 15 digs; and Wind finished with 64 assists to kills, 17 digs and three blocks.

Last Saturday at Madonna, it wen Concordia College that fall vistim to this Crusaders' straight-oot sweep, falling 15-5, 15-2, 15-6 to the host team. Again, Malewski paced the attack with 16 kills (.577) to go with three sole blocks and four block assists.

Cunningham was next best with seven kills (.333); she also had two aces and three blocks. Other notables: Hemme, 11 digs; Artymovich, five kills, two aces and 10 digs; Wind, 19 assists to kills and three aces; and Natalie Sayre, 10 assists to kills.

Ocelots unbeaten; Crusaders win 2

It was a match with important regional repercussions, but Schoolcraft College's women's soccer team didn't play that way — at least at the start.

It took a goal to get them going, one scored by their opponent, Cincinnati State, midway through the first half.

After that, the Lady Ocelots dominated and eventually pulled away from the host team for a 5-3 victory Sunday.

The victory kept SC, ranked 12th in the NJCAA in the preseason polls, unbeaten with an 8-0-2 record. Cincinnati State slipped to 3-2.

"They were a stronger team than I had anticipated," said SC coach Bill Tolstedt. "They were very physical. For our first 15 or 20 minutes, we played very lethargic. They were a high-pressure team.

"Once they scored, we got our act together."

The Ocelots took a 2-1 lead into halftime with goals from Michele Baldori (from Plymouth Salem), assisted by Angela Maile, and Maile, assisted by Kristen Hait.

"We took a 2-1 lead and a lot of momentum in the second half," said Tolstedt.

Kristah Mantsuffel (Redford Thursday) gashed SDs land to 3-

1, with an assist from Katie Weber, and Kelly Connell (Plymouth Canton) made it 4-1, assisted by Manteuffel.

Maile got her second goal of the game to close out SC's scoring on an assist from Toni Perry. Amy Dorogi (Canton) was in the net for the winners. The previous weekend, SC posted wins against reserve teams from Central Michigan and Michigan State, beating CMU 3-1 Sept. 9 and MSU 6-1

Sept. 10. In the win over CMU, the Ocelots got goals from Melissa Click (assist from Hait), Maile (assist from Manteuffel) and Manteuffel (unassisted). Against MSU, the SC got two goals from Manteuffel (Perry, Danielle Shaffer assisting) and single scores from Connell (from Maile), Baldori (from Manteuffel), Maile (from Connell) and Shaffer (unassisted).

Kerri LaPorte (Livonia Churchill) was in goal for both wins.

"We're looking good," said Tolstedt. "I was concerned early in the season with our inability to finish. Not anymore. We're focused."

Madonna dominates

The score really doesn't indicate how dominant Madonna University's women's soccer team was Tuesday at Indiana Tech.

The Lady Crusaders ran their record to 6-1-1, 4-0 in the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference, with a 3-1 triumph. Jamie Scott gave Madonna a 1-0 lead at halftime, but Tech knotted it five minutes into the second half on a goal by Jackie Entsminger.

The Crusaders finally pulled away with a pair of goals scored in a 1:06 span, the first by Melissa Jacobs (Livonia Stevenson) and the second by Susannah Bryant, assisted by Kelly Delaney.

Madonna had a 32-7 advantage in shots, forcing Tech keeper Wendy Jacobs to make 12 saves. Jennifer Barker (Livenia Stevenson) made just one save.

On Saturday, the Crusaders completely dominated visiting Tri-State University in a 6-2 victory. Christen Shull (Plymouth Salem) accounted for two goals, getting one in each half.

Jacobs, Delaney, Susan Hill and Becky Guibord also scored for Madonna. Assists went to Delaney (two), Nicole Allevato (two), Briana Sleek, Scott, Anitra Schatow and Bryant.

Jennifer Dumm was in the neg for the shutout.

Continental charm: Two tables, both made in England, a demilune style from Arthur Brett (top) and a classic console from Bristol House, are among the international products that will be featured at Mic gan Design Center's Fall Market. They are available at the Carlton-James and Beacon Hill showrooms at the Troy center. The Akela Grospoint leopard print fabric is available at the Brunschwig & Fils showroom. The annual Fall Market event is for professionals in the interior design trade.

Such detail and craftsmanship! "An elegant demilune table by Arthur Brett at Carlton-James is like something out of Jame Austen. The top has a maple burl veneer and mulberry finish. The tapering legs end in carved fest. Gilt flutes and resette are exquisite accents.

Cleaning pet's teeth gives reason to smile

ICHAEL AND

because a a lot of tartar on hes tooth and her gums are red. De you think it's worth the 1007 CIT

Definitely. The majority of dogs and cats we see that are more than three or four years of age have some form of dental disease. Lift your pet's lip and examine the teeth and gums and you might be surprised at what you find. You might be able to identify the cause of his or her bad breath!

What causes dental disease? Plaque is a clear, bacteria-containing film that coats the teeth. People remove plaque from and between their teeth by brushing and flossing. When plaque combines with the minerals in saliva, a hard, brownish-yellow substance called tartar is formed.

Tartar firmly adheres to teeth and can build up adjacent to and beneath the gum line. This can cause the gums to separate or recede from the teeth. Sometimes deep pockets are formed in the gums in which food particles and bacteria collect.

As tartar develops, the gums become inflamed. Inflammation of the gums is called gingivitis. Gingivitis can damage the gums, tissue and bone that surround the teeth and hold them in place. With periodontal disease, the diseased tooth may eventually become loose and fall out.

Bacteria in the plaque and tartar can enter the bloodstream via the gums. The bacteria travels to other organs of the body, such as the heart, liver and kidneys. Sometimes infections can occur in these organs because of the bacteria from dental disease.

Getting your dog or cat's teeth scaled and polished will help prevent dental disease. Animals won't tolerate a thorough teeth cleaning and polishing while awake, so your pet will need to be anesthetized.

Before the dental "prophy," which refers to a prophylactic cleaning and polishing, your veterinarian will examine your pet and perhaps perform a few diagnostic tests to help determine whether your pet is a safe candidate for anesthesia.

Since an increased volume of bacteria will enter the bloodstream during the prophy, your pet will probably be placed on oral antibiotics for the day or two prior to and for several days after the dentistry.

It is difficult to determine exactly which dental procedures will be required until your pet is anesthetized and the veterinarian can examine and probe all the teeth and the surrounding tissue. During the prophy, the veterinarian uses dental instruments to remove large pieces of tartar, excise unhealthy gums or extract teeth. Ultrasonic instruments are used to scale teeth and remove plaque and tartar from the tooth and reach beneath the gum line.

A high-speed polisher is used to smooth the surface of each tooth. Special anti-bacterial or fluoride rinses may be applied after the polishing.

Prevention

What can you do to help prevent dental disease? Examine your pet's mouth frequently and have your veterinarian examine him annually.

Look for tartar or any inflamed, receded or tender gums. Check for discolored, loose, missing, fractured, eroded or painful teeth. Make certain that there isn't any tan or pale yellow fluid coming from the base of the teeth or gums, which might indicate an abscess.

Brush your pet's teeth daily with a toothbrush, sponge or pad. Use flavored toothpaste formulated for dogs and cats. Toothpaste intended for humans may upset your pet's stomach when it is swallowed.

Help your pet become accustomed to teeth brushing at an early age. It may take weeks for you to train your pet to allow you to brush his teeth. Patience and positive reinforcement are required. Your veterinarian or veterinary technician can demonstrate the proper brushing technique and give you helpful training tips.

Dogs will go on a roll for tasty treat

Dogs can savor the tantalizing taste of fresh, hickory-flavor sausage with the new Summer Sausage premium dog treats from CraZy Dog.

Made with the freshest meats, and packaged in rolls just like sausages for people, CraZy Dog Summer Sausage has a delicious bacon taste.

It's healthier for dogs because it's lower in fat and salt content and is specially formulated to meet canine nutritional needs.

Not only does CraZy Dog Summer Sausage taste like it's fresh off the butcher's shelf, it comes encased in shrink-wrapped cellophane just like a sausage roll for humans.

The convenient, 8-ounce rolls are easy to serve - just open the package and slice off pieces in the desired portion. The rolls should be refrigerated after opening to ensure freshness.

with wildlife with these tips Live peacefully

Drive anywhere in metro Detroit and chances are you will encounter some kind of residential or commercial construction.

The simple fact is that as natural habitat is depleted, wild animals are forced to live in smaller areas.

Conflicts between homeowners and urban wildlife are on the rise, and because these animals are often considered nuisances, many people wage war against them by shooting, trapping, or poisoning them. The Michigan Humane Society stresses that "problems" with urban wildlife can be solved humanely and offers the following tips for liv-ing in harmony with wildlife:

Do not feed the animals. Although tempting, feeding wild animals is not a good idea. Human feeding causes artificially high densities of animals, which leads to disease, territori-

Install a chimney cap to prevent wild animals from falling into or nesting in your chimney. Again, be sure all animals are out before you cap the exit.

Consider local wildlife when planing; protect your landscape from foraging deer by surround-ing plants with less tasty shrubs such as barberry and boxwoood. Purchase locking garbage cans or secure lids with straps. Let grasses grow long around Clean below bird feeders. Seed dropped on the ground can attract scavengers such as raccoons and skunks.

geese will be much less likely to nest in areas where they cannot see predators.

If you find an orphaned baby wild animal, please do not attempt to care for it yourself. Most of these animals have not actually been abandoned; adults often leave nests unattended for periods of time. tant event,

Well, fear no more. This week, and in my next column, I'm going to share my list of helpful hints for better photographs and pointers to help you keep out of a jam.

If your meter fails, all isn't lost. Use the rule of "Sunny 16." Set the camera's aperture at f-16 on a sunny day (hence, sunny 16) your and the shutter speed at the number closest to the ASA of ever your film.

For example, with Kodachrome 64, proper exposure is yours with an exposure of f-16 at 1/60 second. On a bright, overcast day, use f-11 at 1/60; with overcast skies, use f-8 at 1/60.

Film didn't pass through the camera? Here's a surefire way to make sure it never happens again

On manual wind cameras, always watch the rewind crank as you advance the film. If it rotates, there is film in the camera and it's passing through properly. If the rewind lever isn't turning, the film isn't advancing. It's as simple as that!

Use a skylight, haze or ultraviolet filter on all your lenses. They will not only warm up colors and cut through haze, but they will also serve as an invaluable protector for each lens.

Tape the label from your film box to the back of your camera (some cameras have slots for this purpose). This will serve as a reminder of what film you're shooting. If you don't take many pictures or haven't used your camera in a while, it's easy to forget what kind of film is in the camera.

common in the winter months.

We're all guilty of buying a new product and not taking the time to read the owner's manual. This is true for cameras, too. So shake this bad habit and read your instruction manual! Not only will you have a more thorough understanding of how your camera works, but you'll find much useful advice to help you take better pictures.

Stay tuned. In my next column I'll give you more helpful hints on taking stronger photographs and keeping out of a jam.

backup in homes. Communities are growing at. such rates that the antiquated sewer systems can't handle all the

The news All of these worthy news articles just might lead to a tragedy sim-ilar to the one in Wakerton, Ont., media are literally and then you will see a panic in flooding us this country. Sometimes it is the with stories about sewage things that are not said which can cause concern and make us all wonder why.

Let us take the recent rash of sewage backup caused by the rains of mid-September. Unless you have been a homeowner who has had this happen to you, it's hard to even imagine.

I remember a few years ago in the city of Westland when several hundred consumers were affected by a severe problem with sewer lines. The mayor and Police Chief Emery Price almost begged me to come to a town hall meeting that night to speak to a group of some pretty irate home-owners. I stood in front of these hundreds and felt like crying because I knew what they were going through. Valuable items were destroyed, basements stunk like a skunk, and health concerns frightened most residents because of the lack of information on insurance issues and money matters. I addressed residents' concerns over appliances, the flood conditions and safety tips.

The topic was gas valves on clothes dryers, which can also be related to gas valves on furnaces and water heaters. Contrary to what consumers are told, these are not sealed units. There is one area on a dryer which will allow moisture to enter and that is the hole where the gas exits the valve.

The inner portion of the valve is sometimes made up of rubber disphragms which seal the gas changers and these disphragms must not come in contact with anything that will corrode them. Sewage backups can corrode the diaphragms - and the homeowner doeen't even know about it.

Back to the Westland story again for a minute. For months following that mishap, consumers called me to report gas coming out of their dryers when they were not using them. I sold a lot of gas valves back then and hopefully saved a life or two.

Here's the scoop - if your dryer ### is ever involved in a flood, don't take any chances by doing nothing. We all know that a wet motor must be allowed to dry completely or it will die the minute you turn it on. Don't take any chances on the gas valve. Replace it.

Do you know how sensitive this subject of sewage has become in this country? I wrote not so long ago about a study done by two universities revealing that diseases can be spread through clothing that is washed in machines containing accumulated fecal matter. Service technicians in Maryland now wear rubber gloves when fixing a washing machine. A baby diaper is no longer a joke anymore. These health questions are being studied like never before

For the many homeowners who have gone through this most recent flooding episode, I want to tell you that I really feel for you. 37 You must get this cleaned up in a perfect manner. If it means To getting someone to do it prefes-sionally, then that is what you should do. If you have to change the gas valve in your dryer, call the service parts company called Servall in your area and find out what it cost to buy one. It's not hard to change it yourself and they'll explain how. Stay tuned.

yourself thumbing through handyman magazines and hanging out in tool departments more often. It's kind of like being a kid in a toy store.

Many tools you'll want to have around so they are ready when needed. Some will be purchased "as needed," and others will be purchased as a "got to have it" item.

Tongue-and-groove pliers (Channel-loks), and locking pliers (Vise-grips) probably should be added to your tool kit early. They give much more flexibility and gripping power than slipjoint pliers. Vise-grips can also

In a previdouble as a clamp in many ous column C8868. about build-

A compact hand saw, such as the Stanley Short-cut toolbox saw, and a hacksaw are two of the tools that I would call essential. (I was tempted to include these in the basic kit.) A woodcutting hand saw - with 9 to 12 teeth per inch - would do well for most simple household projects. Hacksaws, which are used for cutting metal, have replaceable blades. They should have a sturdy frame and a comfortable handle Combination wrenches (openend wrench on one side and a box on the other) have fixed sizes, but are much easier to use than an adjustable wrench. They can get into tighter spaces than adjustables.

For starters, buy a set with 1/4-inch through 3/4-inch wrench sizes. When buying a ratchet/ socket wrench set, start with a 3/8-inch drive set with socket sizes 3/8-inch through 3/4-inch. I suggest a 6-point set over a 12point set. The 6-point sockets are se likely to slip off hex-nuts.

Quality is a must with wrenches and sockets. My father, who was a mechanic for many years, called cheap wrenches "knuckle busters."

A cordless drill-driver is one tool you will wonder how you did without. These come in so many types, sizes, voltages and prices that selection can be confusing. As a rule, the more volts the better. A 12- or 14-volt should do well for the household mechanic. In any case, don't consider less than 9.6 volts and, unless you are working commercially, no more than 18 volts. Look for packages that include two batteries to minimize down time. Some good brand names are Ryobi, Makita, Dewalt and Porter-Cable.

Clamps also are important items. They free one of your hands by holding the project to a work surface. They can also hold two or more pieces of material while glue dries or while drilling aligned holes. Their uses are endless. I like the Quickgrip mini bar-clamp by Vise-grip. Also it's good to have a couple of C-clamps and a spring clamp or two.

When making electrical repairs, a neon tester is a near necessity. These inexpensive devices light when the probes are touched to live electric wires. They can also help detect electric leaks, breaks in continuity and can check polarity.

Pry bars are next. I've found that a flat pry bar such as the Stanley Wonderbar is the handiest to have. For heavier prying, a wrecking bar (better know as a crow bar) is necessary.

When painting and weatherizing, a caulk gun will be useful. You needn't buy a large caulk gun. In fact for most household work, a large tube won't be used up and will be wasted. The small, 10.5-ounce tube size gun will do fine.

A chalk-line is a reel of string in a box filled with powdered chalk. The string is pulled off the reel, held taut on two points and snapped, leaving a long straight line, which is helpful when making long cuts in plywood or snapping a plumb line when hanging wallpaper.

At the same time you are picking up a chalk-line, consider a combination-square. This square can be adjusted for marking thickness, or depths. It has a 45degree edge for marking miters, and many have a built-in level.

Later, as necessary, you may want to add a framing square and a speed square.

Other hand tools that are handy to have around the house are: a pipe wrench, blowtorch, Shop-Vac, tin snips, various files, a work light, and so on and so on. Oh don't forget a plunger.

For power tools, a good place to start is a saber saw or a portable circular saw, later adding a power miter box, and, if desired, a reciprocating saw and a router.

All these are merely suggestions. Your needs, your budget, and your desires will be the guide to follow when making these purchases. As you find the joy of do-it-yourself, you'll be looking for reasons to add to your tool collection.

The famous Stanley Tool Co. says, as part of their logo "Make Something Great." I like to say "he who dies with the most toys wins."

Repair Web site conducts contest for do-it-yourselfers

(PRNewswire) - RepairClinic .com, the online source of home appliance parts and repair advice based in Canton Township, sees the Internet as a powerful medium to educate consumers and has launched a new contest to help demonstrate, because there are some fun stories and resourceful people out there that deserve recognition," said Hall.

Winners will be prominently featured on the site for one week and will then be archived for one year. DIYers can nominate themselves or someone else who has successfully repaired home appliances by visiting http://www.repairclinic.com . Anthony Cupillari, Sr., a recent Do-It-Yourselfer of the Week winner, and his wife of 25 years, Cindy, live in rural Pennsylvania and when their dishwasher needed a new fan blade, he called the nearest parts distributor. After learning that the part was not in stock, Cupillari decided to research other options. He quickly learned that he'd save time and money by ordering the part online at RepairClinic.com. "I saved at least $50 in labor and about $20 on the part. Plus, I didn't need

Catherine Peterson, a single new homeowner, was in the middle of a major kitchen renovation when her washing machine stopped draining. She called her dad, the "Mr. Fixit" of the family, for help. After several attempts he could not find the problem and recommended that she purchase a new machine. Not wanting to spend a lot of money on a new machine because her kitchen still needed renovations, Catherine turned to the Internet to learn more about DIY home appliance repair. At RepairClinic.com she found advice in the washing machine troubleshooting section that led her to discover her problem. A sock was lodged between the outer and inner tubs, clogging the drain. For Chair Affair: Cristina Radocea designed this work, "Inside Music Series – The Princess," for a benefit at Michigan Design Center in Troy.

Designers show flair for Chair Affair ware

BY MARY KLENCC PLAFF WRITER MILLING COLLICASCONDLNET

When participants are asked to "take a seat" for Chair, Affair, they don't take it easy.

These prominent local interior designers, architects, artists and notable personalities take "gen-tly used" chairs and work on turning them into fun, fantastic and sometimes functional furnishings to be auctioned at Chair Affair. This is a fund-raiser for the Furniture Resource Center of Oakland County, which redistributes used, usable furniture to the needy.

You have a few days left to see the results for the sixth annual event in an unusual display at Somerset Collection South, southeast corner of Big Beaver and Coolidge in Troy.

The chairs are exhibited there now through Sunday, Sept. 24.

DESIGN CALENDAR

The Southfield Pavilion Antiques Exposition will take place Friday-Sunday, Sept. 22-24, at the Southfield Civic Center, 26000 Evergreen at Civic Center Drive (10-1/2 Mile). Hours are 2-9 p.m. Friday, noon to 8 p.m. Saturday, noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $5 with any ads or listings of the event, $6 regular, free for ages 12 and under. One paid admission is good for all three days of the show. Parking is free. Celebrating its 20th year, the exposition will feature a diverse selection of fine American, European and Oriental antiques and fine art. the morning,

I was really impressed with this large garden that is planted with more than 500 labeled hostas and also contains ferns and other shade perennials, all beautifully displayed on the hillside. The leaf color, texture, shape and sizes of the hostas are amazing.

Wide paths separate each large area of plantings so that the hostas can be viewed up close. A cascading stream runs through the garden from the top of the hill to a small pond at the hottom. A large lake is situated along the bank.

Members who worked on the hillside that day for the first Michigan Hesta Socitime, and new members who joined them, received an H. "Krossa Regal" plant. This is a great way to recruit workers.

> Then a lively auction took place, with much enthusiasm. The plants came from members' gardens and growers.

I was amazed to see that the friendly bidding resulted in one hosts, "Heavenly Tiars," being sold for the astounding price of $110! Now this is serious stuff! Two plants were sold for $105 each, and another for $85.

All in attendance could get into the bidding wars, as some sold for as little as just more than $3, with many sold for $5.

The Metro Detroit Hosta Society will have its first meeting of the season 7 p.m. Monday, Sept. 25, at Telly's Greenhouse in Troy. Call Jan Everson at (248) 642-1619 if you're interested. George Papadalis, owner, will give a slide presentation.

I urge you to make plans to visit these lovely gardens, which were begun in 1936 and are now a 775-acre botanical garden and arboretum owned by Michigan State University.

In addition to the hosts gar-den, the Demonstration Garden contains all manner of plants artfully arranged to give visitors ideas for their own gardens. All-American Selections annuals are also displayed here.

Visitors can drive through the grounds (I saw several hisychists) grounds (I saw several bicyclists) and enjoy the oak and hickory forest, the Dwarf and Rare Conifers with more than 500 specimens, one of the finest in the country, and a Woodland Drive with oak and hickory trees.

A visit to the Arboretum will round off the day. There you will see many different native and exotic trees; large specimen trees and lowland trees that tolerate damp soils, flowering and deciduous trees, shrubs and lilacs.

That's not all! The Conservatory complex can be enjoyed yearround. Here you will find much beauty and interest that represents plants from many parts of Krimmel said it's also important to fertilize to give plants a boost during this peak growing season. "There is no best fertilizer," she said explaining the differences between organic and synthetic fertilizers and water soluble, granular and slow release varieties. "It's a matter of personal preference and convenience. Water soluble affects the plants immediately, granular breaks down over a period of time so you need to use less, and slow release will last until

LTJ Bukem elevates drum 'n' bass to State Theatre stage

BY STEPHANIE ANGELYN CASOLA STAFT WRITER scasola@oe.homecomm.net

Accidents happen.

And sometimes, they lead to careers. For drum 'n' bass pioneer LTJ Bukem, DJing was more of an accident and less of a choice. Having started his own record collection at an early age, friends always knew where to turn when there was a party. "They would say, 'Danny, you've got records, you play the music," he recalled, speaking from a hotel in Canada.

"I was always on the other side of the decks."

With the release of Progression Session 5, on his own Good Looking label, Bukem - Danny Williamson to friends - stands again in that place, bringing about a mix album that is at one time atmospherically flowing and jarring. Joining him on the mic are MC Conrad and DRS. Included this time around are soundscapes that bleed one into another, seamlessly by the likes of Pariah, Intersperse and Makato, along

"Progression Sessions is something I've done for a few years now," said Bukem, who tries to take his music to a different place with each record he makes. This installment in the series was meant to mimic what he does at a live show. He doesn't try to describe his music any longer, and instead listens to the fans who approach him after performances. "Some will say it's a lot smoother, some will say it's a lot hard-er. You'll have 45 different conversations. Music is very personal."

What does it all mean to Bukem?

"I love to tell a story with the music," he said. "I'm always looking for the perfect set."

Though he threatens to give it all up once he truly achieves "the perfect set," it's hard to believe. Music had coursed through his veins from early on.

'Romantic Comedy' offers evening of laughter

The Players Guild of Deerborn pripents Bernard Slade's "Romantic Comedy" 8 p.m. Fri-day Baturday, Sept. 23-23 and 29-30, and 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 24, at its theater, 21730 Medison, south of the intersection of Monree and Outer Drive in Dearborn. ### September Warnes

The Players Guild of Dearborn ogens its 73rd season with Bernard Slade's enjoyable and light-hearted play, Romantic Comedy. With insightful directing, a strong cast and careful attention to detail, the show is a he an interesting season.

Remantic Comedy is the story of two playwrights who are "the victims of unsynchronized passion." Though instantly attracted to each other, their personal lives never allow them to be romantically available at the same time.

Phoebe, a schoolteacher and budding writer, meets Jason, a seasoned playwright, on his wedding day. After an introduction filled with hilarious mishaps, they are none-the-less drawn to each other and become partners.

Phoebe becomes so much a part of Jason's life that, despite his being married, he subtly pre-

City resident Tony Lawry's insight into the characters is sensitive and insightful. He had the characters, especially his leads, use body language that portrayed their true feelings while their glib lines covered their real intent. We knew Jason wanted to propose to Phoebe when he knelt in front of her, but his cowardice had him blurting out instead that they "had trouble with their second act" - a double entendre if ever there was one.

After Phoebe discovers Jason's dalliance with a svelte actress, she starts doing a series of stomach crunches, while verbally denying her distress over Jason's infidelity.

Lawry allows only two noticeable lapses to occur: Phoebe's silly and out-of-character whiskey swilling straight from the bottle while snooping through Jason's office and waiting to meet him, and some awkward blocking for Jason that hid him from the far left side of the house during the opening scene.

Jason Carmichael

Lance A. Abke of Plymouth plays Jason Carmichael with a balanced mixture of ego and insecurity. He's the ugly duckling kid who reinvented himself as he became a successful playwright. Although Abke doesn't appear to age during the 14 years of the tory, he handles his character's changes well, especially his intense and frustrated feelings for Phoebe. His solo anguished outbursts of embarrassment and frustration were as funny and touching as his philandering was infuriating.

Deborah Pletser of Dearborn plays Phoebe Craddock with warmth, charm and believability. She captures Phoebe's nervousness and insecurity with a fast, witty patter of conversation that emphasizes her nervousness while capturing the essence of her character's clever, self-deprecating wit. During her best scenes with Abke they "verbally copulate" as Phoebe's loyal Leo put it: They finish each other's thoughts and sentences, anticipate each other's responses, and intuitively know each other's needs.

Philip Booth of Dearborn is the show's delightful surprise as Leo Janowits, Phoebe's determined love interest. Booth's deadpan humor is both unexpected and hysterical. His droll one-liners are delivered with such dry intensity that the audience was collapsing with helpless laughter during several of his scenes. Booth took a small role and turned it into one of the highlights of the show.

Nancy Schuster of Livonia is elightfully flamboyant as Blanche, Jason's agent. A former Follies girl who never gave up sequins and feathers despite her enough to initiate the young DJ into the London scene. "I would go out three times a night, four times a week," he said. "That was just madness. I had to be a part of that."

When exactly does classical music training translate into the high-speed life of DJing electronic dance music? Bukem doesn't really know. "I think it's just from being into drums," he ventured a guess. "Hearing a lot of hip hop, soul and house, I was always into this kind of beat."

Somewhere along the line, house music was ruptured with a breakbeat, a beat that began to filter throughout the music and as Bukem puts it "drum 'n' bass just sort of happened."

"The early 1990s were good because there were so many different forms," said Bukem of the genre, also called jungle. "It's good at the moment, we just need to find better ways of marketing it." While it's infiltrated the world of dance, and film directors have caught on to include it in soundtracks, something more needs to be done, he helieves

Visiting Detroit is sure to help that cause. But Bukem won't comment on what the State Theatre show will be like. "That's something you leave for other people to judge," he said, some-what bashfully. "Hopefully, it will be a wonderful experience."

'Fantasia' returns to IMAX screen

(PRNewswire) Henry Ford Museum's IMAX theater will celebrate its first year anniversary on Sunday, Nov. 19, with the return of Disney's Fantasia / 2000 The IMAX Experience.

The film will be shown through Dec. 31, 2000. Tickets are $10 for adults and $8.50 for seniors 62 and over and children 12 and under. They are on sale now at Henry Ford Museum by calling 313-271-1570.

Fantasia/2000 The IMAX Experience was first released in January 2000. Henry Ford Museum was one of only 75 theaters across the world and the only theater in Michigan to show the film.

At the end of the exclusive four-month run, Henry Ford Museum's IMAX theater ranked among the top four IMAX theaters in box office sales worldwide behind Los Angeles, San Francisco and New York City. Fantasia/2000 is the first feature-length-animated film to be formatted and shown in IMAX theaters.

"Fantasia/2000 was a big contributor to the success of the first year," said Dave Brown, Director of IMAX theater and Visitor Services. "We received so many requests to see the film again, it only made sense to bring the feature back for a return command performance."

The film continues to build upon Walt Disney's dream of combining classical music with animation to create a stirring experience for moviegoers across the world. It contains seven new animated segments and one original, The Sorcerer's Apprentice. A new generation of Disney animators and filmmakers bring to life the classical compositions by Beethoven, Shostakovich, Respighi and Stravinsky. To add to the fun, each segment is introduced on-screen by celebritg hosts including Bette Midler; Steve Martin, James Earl Jones; Penn & Teller and Quincy Jones.

Henry Ford Museum's IMAX theater originally opened November 1999 and has since shown The Magic of Flight, T-Rex: Back to the Cretaceous in 3D, Wolves, and Cirque Du Soleil(Journey of Man in 3D.

CyberWorld 3D is scheduled to open Oct. 6. Fantasia/2000 The IMAX Experience will join Cybers world and Cirque Du Soleil Jour ney of Man in a daily schedule Nov. 19-Dec. 31, 2000.

For more information, call (313) 271-1570.

Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village and the IMAX theater are at 20900 Oakwood Boulevard and Village Road in Dearborn just west of the Southfield Freeway (M-39), south of Michigan Avenue (U.S. 12) and three miles north of 1-94. For more information or combination tickets, call (318) 271-1620 or visit us at www.hfmgv.org . Group rates are available.

former Rochester

Adams High School cheerleader transform from her beginnings as a rising "Lucky Star," into a trend-setting "Material Girl" and her latest incarnation in "Music" toying with sound and image as a new diva of pop-electronica.

If one Detroit-based band has taken note, it's gotta be deathgirl.com. With a stunning, spacey cover of Madonna's Lucky Star. and radio-ready originals like Pieces, which beld a 13-day winning streak on 89X's The People's Choice Awards this summer, the band finally seems poised for much-deserved recognition.

After all, it's been a long journey.

In 1993, the band set out under the moniker Caelum Bliss with engaging singer Melissa Emily, guitarist Tony Hamera and drummer William King. After seven years and multiple line-up changes, the band shifted back to its core. Far from its Goth-punk origins and down to a tight four-piece unit, which now includes bassist Marvin Shaouni, deathgirl.com emerged in 1999, taking pop sensibilities into a darker realm of electrorock.

"It was suggested that if we wanted to go into a pop direction, it would be (advantageous) to go with something more basic," said Hamera. "Deathgirl

If there's one E 'It's been a 7-year evolution toward pop." has

was the name of one of our songs."

King added: "It's been a 7-year evolution toward pop."

The pop genre, though, seems hardly able to contain songs like Diabolical Love Scheme and Blue, among a group of tracks recorded at Ferndale's Tempermill Studio with Dave Feeny and Dennis White. Evident among such songs is deathgirl's penchant for contagious hooks and melodies, atmospheric loops and lyrics often inspired by s betrayed but fearless ex-girlfriend.

When I met with Hamera and King at Ferndale's Woodward Avenue Brewery Sept. 13, I found out just how they got to this point. Hamera was spurred into playing guitar in the early 1980s when he first heard ACDC's Back in Black. He soon traded in his time wielding a tennis racket like a rock star for his first guitar, a Sears catalogue model.

For King, early memories of watching the Michigan State University marching band pound their way across the field led him to the drums, his instrument of choice. "It was so powerful," said King, a drummer since 1985. And he credits rock icon Joan Jett for his introduction to music. Listening to his parent's 45 of I Love Rock & Roll seemed to have struck a chord early on.

Onstage this all translates into a furiously-paced flashy rock show, blending heavy riffs with candy-coated vocals amid a barrage of electronic-induced ambiance that can't be compared to what the rest of the Detroit rock scene is offering. "We're just one part of the diversity of the scene," said Hamera.

Local music fans made a point to fit deathgirl.com onto the airwaves, though. Listeners called in for nearly two weeks straight to vote for Pieces on 89X's bandto-band competition The People's Choice. The song recently appeared on a compilation produced by Stewart Francke titled Detroit Now.

"It ended up the DJ on 89X fell in love with the song right off the bat and decided to play it," said Hamera. "It just kept winning and on the 13th day when it lost, we were like, 'that's cool."

While the band doesn't plan to release a CD locally, its music can be purchased on the Web at - what else but - www. deathgirl .com

"The plan is to get signed and then our album will be out," said Hamera. "Other than that, buy it at our shows or download it."

After seven years playing together, Hamera and King show no signs of stopping. "The reward of having someone pay us to play music is, for me, drive enough," said Hamera.

Westsiders can see the band when they open for Esion, 9:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 28, at the Blind Pig, Ann Arbor. $4. (734) 996-8555.

Northville's Essence concentrates French flavors

BY ELEANOR HEALD

Metro Detroit's "west side" dining scene has craved a Frenchstyle restaurant for some time. Essence, open since late July in Northville, while not formally French, is French-inspired and true to its name, offering selections with concentrated flavors.

Pates and French terrines of the day among the appetizers have a Southfield's Golden Mushroom ring. With good rea-son. Essence Executive Chef and Director of Operations Michael Trombley trained under the Mushroom's legendary Certified Master Chef Milos Cihelka and Executive Chef Steve Allen (now chef/partner at Steve & Rocky's in Novi).

Imitation may be the best form of flattery, but Essence is not a cookie-cutter, not of the Golden Mushroom or any upscale restaurant in the area.

It's just the right touch of French

Elementor is stating its mo-ation on top service, but a svij-opened restaurant can hip a beat in this category during the first few months for opening, especially when ery busy

Steamed Fresh Green-Tipped Mussels in a white wine and herb butter broth could carry the French name Moules. But this is also a New American menu, so Trombley's not "pushing it" with unfamiliar French culinary jar-

He'd rather ease you into it with "Pillows" of House-Smoked Salmon, thinly sliced and stuffed with Boursin cheese, then garnished with frisee, red onion, and capers drizzled with citronette.

Here's a menu where choosing appetizers and then a Duck Confit salad make a meal. On such an occasion, the streetside lounge off the bar, with its hightop tables and chairs, classy white table cloths and polished stemware, create an ideal environment.

The lounge area is the perfect spot to order a glass of wine and the Imported Cheese Melange garnished with fresh fruit. It's the right ambiance for the lighter-side pasta offerings such as Chicken Fettuccini Boursin or Herb-Crusted Shrimp and Sea Scallops with Lemon Pepper Linguine.

For serious dining, request a table in the more formal 72-seat dining room. There are eight two-person booths for an intimate occasion and larger tables for four or more. On colder nights sure to come, a fireplace will lend a romantic glow.

Essence has one of a growing number of Certified Sommeliers. Brian Cislo, the restaurant's Maitre d', received his certification (the first of three steps toward becoming a Master Sommelier) a year ago. Southfield's Il Posto diners will recognize him. He was the only American-born waiter there.

"I enjoy guiding diners through a complete dining experience," he said.

"But I'm happiest when they'll take suggestions away from the stereotypical and try something new.

This is possible with Cislo's out-of-the-mainstream wine list. He and Trombley have organized well-thought-out offerings to complement the menu and delight the inexperienced palate while keeping a connoisseur amused.

"Essence occupies what was formerly the Northville Athletic Club," Trombley said. "An area builder (who wishes to remain anonymous) owns a few casual eateries, but this is his first high-end venture."

Upscale, French-accented, great wine list, and bent on offering top-rated service, Essence is sure to be a hit in Northville with its perfect mix of trendy yet traditional downtown appeal.

I bought some windows for our home from an outof-state company on their Web site. The windows have now turned out to be defective. Can we sue that manufacturer in a Michi-ERB COMPL. although it doesn't have any offices or stores here?

It appears that people are purchasing property more fre-quently on the Internet. Based upon a recent Michigan Court of Appeals decision, a company that avails itself of the Internet doesn't necessarily subject itself to the jurisdiction of the state where the consumer product is delivered.

That court of appeals decision indicated that just because the company in that particular case had previously sold components to Michigan entities and had a Web site that created potential for out-of-state sales didn't establish the "continuous and systematic business activity" necessary to establish jurisdiction under Michigan's long arm statute for general jurisdiction.

It would appear, therefore, that if you don't have any recourse through various consumer protection agencies, that you would have to initiate an action in a state in which the manufacturer of the window does business presumably its principal place of busi-

Call this the second season for Realtors, between Labor Day and Thanksgiving, a productive but not-quiteprime-time listing and selling period for homes here.

And it can be a whole new kind of client now than what Realtors saw carher, when lamines with younger children put their homes on the market in the hope of moving during summer vacation.

and the house gets on the partnet." Even an astronomic phenomenon less and less daylight at this time of year as the earth circles the sun could play a role, Gransow speculated. "People aren't outside as much. The come in and see maybe the house is a little cramped or, from a downsising perspective, a little big," she said. They start thinking, Why not (move) nowr

"I always use a take-one flier box out-side the home and make sure it's filled for drive-bys. I send fliers out to real estate offices. I personally like to do broker open houses, maybe serve lunch," she said.

"One thing I use a lot is virtual tours on listings," Baker said. "That way, you pick up buyers from everywhere. They can sit at a computer and look at a house right at home in their own time and leisure." It costs about $100 per listing, but it's money well spent, she said.

No proof needed for mortgage

When I first beard the term "no-domme "I thought of several other caymorons: metal woode fun run, plastic glass-es, paid volunteers, and legally drunk. Then, I flashed back to the heap of papers I signed for my first mortgage and recalled nursing writer's cramn for days afterward. "No-document" do not mean that you, the borrower, have nothing to sign at closing. No, no, no. It simply means that the lender does not require that you prove your financial solvency in order to get a mortgage - no tax returns, no 1099s, no W2s, and no pay stubs.

"No-document" lenders require exceptional credit scores and normally at least a 5-percent down payment. These lenders acknowledge that it is unlikely that you will default on a mortgage if you have a proven record of handling your smaller bills reliably.

The costs associated with "no-document" mortgages are similar to those of conventional mortgages with two notable exceptions. First, lenders may add an origination fee to cover their administrative costs. Second, you will usually pay a higher interest rate usually two percentage points higher than for a standard mortgage.

"No-document" mortgages have become popular with self-employed business owners, seasonal workers, sub-contractors, commissioned salesmen, and buyers with less than two years in their career fields. This is especially relevant to managers caught in corporate America's "down-sizing."

in corporate America's "down-sizing." Recently, a Realtor paged me on a Sunday night and said he wanted to place a bid on a $250,000 house with 20-percent down. Two problems: The buyer was collowage or a considerable and propering and the buyer did not have access to most of his personal files because they were in storage

"Can you get him a loan?" the Realtor asked me anxiously. I checked the buyer's credit scores, verified a few things with the buyer, then said, "Yup." Like many others, this buyer now sees "no-document" as "no-hassle."

"It's people relocating by business who don't have much say when they move or don't move," said Julie Thomas, a Realtor with Morgan, Moreno & Milzow in Clarkston.

"It's people enjoying the summer and enjoying their house before moving within the area," she added. "It's people who want to move within the area and get settled before the holidays.

"Often, its first-time buyers, too," Thomas said.

Children can still be part of the equation, especially where transferees are concerned, said Maud Gransow, a Realtor with Max Broock in Birmingham.

"Companies now try to transfer people with children during the school year," she said. "They feel children get involved right away in school, the parents get involved, and it makes the transition easier for them."

There are a few other reasons why folks would be buying or selling now.

"People have new construction ready soon and put their houses on the market," said Josie Baker, affiliated with Real Estate One in Plymouth. "It could happen that someone gets a divorce

According to figures provided by Realcomp II, a muliti-listing service, sales September through November the last three years generally were down substantially from the spring/ summer months, but up significantly from the cold weather months December through February.

Listing, houses available for sale. mirrored that pattern.

There's pluses and minuses to selling now.

"With fewer homes on the market, you have a better chance of a buyer coming along with less competition," Thomas said.

The competition factor can be huge, Baker said.

"I (previously) had a listing that set all summer and finally sold in October. It was really strange. The house was so nice. It was priced right. It was just that a lot of houses were available at that time and a buyer came by at the right time,

Fall color change can be a great backdrop for showing a house, especially if it's well landscaped.

The major drawback, however, remains fewer prospective buyers.

You have to aggressively market the home," Thomas said.

"I do a lot of open houses, " Baker added. "Some (buyers) don't want to work with agents, they don't want to feel obligated.

And Baker said she's had success placing a wrapper around candy with a picture of the house for sale at open houses. The goal? "Eat the candy, but pass the wrapper around."

Janet Sykes, a Realtor with Century 21 Elegant Homes in Southfield, also believe in more open houses when things get slow.

"That's pretty much what I do - keep them open every Sunday," she said. With fewer buyers out there, if they don't see it one Sunday, they'll see it the next."

Sykes said she's actually had prospects drive by an open house before eventually stopping and buying. This is no time to try and go it alone, the professionals say.

"Sellers, I feel, shouldn't try to sell themselves," said Phyllis R. Soper, a Realtor with ERA Country Ridge in Livonia. "They will spend more time, energy and meney, teo, trying to save money. We work around the clock."

Deadline approaching for county tree, plant sale

' The Wayne County Conservation District is selling plants and trees again this year. The agency must receive your request form and money by Monday, Oct. 2.

アメイトイト

Everything can be picked up 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday, Oct. 13, at the agency office. If you can't pick tp these items on Oct. 13, you have to make arrangement before then.

Instructions for planting will be given out on pick-up day.

Care must be taken when selecting fall planting sites and soils for the best winter survival. Avoid planting in low areas that may collect water and freeze, damaging seedlings. Limit planting in heavier clay soils because they have a greater tendency to freeze and thaw, causing seedlings to be heaved from the ground. The liberal use of mulch will help moderate temperatures and reduce heaving.

To order trees and plants, fill out the accompanying forms and attach full payment. Then send the form and payment to the Wayne County Conservation District, 5454 Venoy Road, Wayne MI 48184. For more information, call the agency office at (734) 326-7787.

First-time home buyers deserve a few extra tips

(NUE) - You're tired of renting. In the long run, it's cheaper to buy a house anyway. So why not?

Because buying a home can become a tedious, tiring process. At some point, it surely becomes a situation of buyer beware.

But if you're thoroughly educated about the real estate market, buying can be a breeze. Here are some tips to get you started. Enlist the services of a competent the fam of the state of the state real estate agent. Pick one that you feel comfortable with, recommended to you by people you trust, to guide you through this complex process. The agent can provide details about home prices, schools, tax rates, utilities, amenities, civic issues and more.

Realtors also arrange each visit and conduct the on-site tour. There's no fee for this as agents work on commission.

Consider how much you can afford. Your monthly housing costs - including mortgage principal and interest, property taxes, and mortgage insurance should total no more than 25 to 28 percent of your monthly gross (before tax) income

Your monthly housing costs plus other long-term debts - like payments on car loans, alimony or child support, payments on credit cards, or any other installment loans with more than 10 months left to repay - shouldn't exceed 33 to 36 percent of your gross income.

Don't overextend your income, no matter what. You'll have closing costs and other moving expenses.

E Know the area. Make sure you know the property status, neighborhood status and the seller's motivation. The more you know, the better armed you will be to negotiate.

Keep in tune with your own requirements before entering a negotia-

Submit the offer in writing through your real estate agent: You can use con-tingencies, like items you want included or upon approval of your mortgage. It's OK to be flexible - there's always some give and take - but don't break Remain objective. Even if it's your "dream house," don't let your emotions get in the way.

James Sands is doubly blessed professionally. Sands will receive the community service award for 2000 from the Birmingham, Bloomfield, Rochester, South Oakland Association of Realtors. The annual award recognizes significant contributions to community service made by an association member.

In addition, Sands was named Realtor of the Year by the Detroit Area Commercial Board of Realtors. He is the current president of DACBOR and has served as treasurer for that organization in the past. DAC-BOR encompasses seventeen counties in Southeastern Michigan and is the state's only Commercial Realtor association. Sands will be presented with his award in September at the Michigan Association of Realtor

The movements are not smoke in mirrors. They are real.

Under the guidance of "Zazi," students learn Capoeira, a Brazilian dance martial art, that's said to be second in popularity only to soccer in Brazil.

"They do it in a dance," said Ryan Fiorenzi, the owner and head instructor. "One of the reasons was to hide it from the slave owners. There's a lot of movements, cartwheels, and gymnastictype movements. It was designed to be used against the type movements. It was designed to be used against the long rifles,' slave masters with long rifles. A lot of the movements are evasive.

Fluid and graceful movement is a way of "blocking the bullet," Fiorenzi said. Because the African slaves were shackled they didn't have a lot of punches but a lot of kicks."

Students at East West aren't shackled, but they still keep the same approach in their training, Fiorenzi said. The class is taught by Steve Stoops of Belleville, who earned the nickname "Zazi," meaning "lightning."

"It was given to me by the masters (master instructors)," Stoops explained. "The basic movement is the jinga," Fiorenzi said. "It's a swaying motion with big leg sweeps. They're doing evasive movements."

Fiorenzi recently moved his school to 521 Ann Arbor Road. The move means more space and the visibility afforded Ann Arbor Road businesses. The busi-Fiorenzi touts his martial arts school as the only one in the Plymouth area. Canton Township is saturated with martial arts schools and people often confused his school with others, he said.

"There's a mental, emotional side to the art," Fiorenzi said about martial art. "You have to control fear and anger and practice self-control."

He looks for similar attributes in his instructors. "We look for good attitude and good role models," Fiorenzi said.

He was drawn to martial arts because of the self-control, presence and "mysterious kinds of powers" he saw the masters of the art possess. "That's why I still train to reach into the deeper aspects of the art," Fiorenzi said. "It's not just to work out."

He also trained in California with the five Machado brothers from Brazil. Noted martial artist Roger Machado, who has a background in yoga, will visit the school Sept. 23-24. He has held both the Rio de Janeiro jiujitsu state championship lightweight division and the lightweight Brazilian national title, according to Fiorenzi.

McNamara ignoring vehicle policy, auditor says

BY RICHARD PEABL STAFT WRITER

Enforce it, amend it or repeal it.

That's Wayne County Auditor General Brendan J. Dunleavy's advice to the county commission after his office reviewed compliance with the commission's 1993 vehicle ordinance and found it generally has been ignored by the county's executive and judicial branches.

He said information from the two branches on vehicles, policy/procedure and expenditures was almost impossible to get and that at least one prohibited practice - the paying of flat-rate mileage reimbursements to nonunion employees - has continued unabated, increasing in scope and dollar amount.

His recommendations to the commission got approval from at least one executive branch administrator.

Barb Godre, county director of personnel and human resources, said the commission "can get the information from at least three other means" - its oversight committees, the budgeting process and its purchasing ordinance. "This (ordinance) asked for the same information (but) in different format," she said.

"I think we have a very accountable vehicle policy" as ply an opinion and not law or instituted by Wayne County Executive Edward H. McNamara in 1993, she said. "We believe the executive branch is accountable," but added the administration would be open to discussing commission suggestions.

Now is Canning Time!

Withholding comment

County Commission Vice Chair Kay Beard, D-Westland, who is also chairwoman of the audit committee, declined to comment on the review until after the committee studies it next Wednesday.

Dunleavy stated that McNamara's executive order establishing policy for vehicle assignment and usage is "not as comprehensive" as the county ordinance, but "does cover many of the areas addressed."

However, he noted, neither the ordinance nor the executive order "is being followed or producing a standard vehicle management system."

The executive branch's corporation counsel in '93 labeled the vehicle ordinance "void and unenforceable," claiming the commission had strayed into administrative territory.

However, Dunleavy noted. both the county commission's own counsel and the state attorney general's office have indicated that such an opinion "is sim-binding ... and therefore tannot 'void' a county law."

And while non-compliance with parts of the ordinance may be partly due to vague requirements, "we also believe that not complying with selected provisions of a county law sets a dangerous precedent."

Dunleavy recommended either eliminating the ordinance or seeking a court decision on it.

Nearly 50 percent

Dunleavy's current review showed that payment of flat-rate mileage reimbursements to nonunion county employees has increased from 84 employees to 125 in the seven years since the ordinance took effect.

According to payroll records for March 10, some 111 executive-branch employees and 14 judicial employees got flat-rate mileage reimbursements, the review said. Only the legislative branch - the 15 county commissioners and their management appointees - got no such pay-

The maximum payment amount has increased 43 percent since '98, the report said, with nearly $600,000 paid in 1999. Payments increased from a range of $87-$350 per month in 1993 to $175-$500 now.

"Additionally, we found a very low level of compliance with vehicle purchasing and leasing requirements," Dunleavy reported. This "results in diminished oversight and could possibly result in liability for the county.

Neither the executive branch nor the sheriff's department could "provide our office with a complete listing" of their automobiles, trucks, vans, mini-vans, sport utility vehicles and fourwheel drive vehicles, Dunleavy reported.

Furthermore, neither the probate nor the 3rd circuit courts would give Dunleavy's office information on vehicle management policies, procedures or expenses.

No authorization

Chief Probate Judge Milton L. Mack Jr. wrote Dunleavy on July 24 that the county charter does not authorize auditing of state courts such as probate.

Sources said the commission has been troubled not only by who is getting the vehicles, but the equipment installed.

In one situation, Jeep Cherokees were purchased with such options as leather seats and four-wheel drive, although they were not being driven by people deemed to be needing the options.

The county clerk and the commission have only one county vehicle apiece. The flat-rate mileage reimbursement was defended by Godre, the percent nel director, who said it beg under the Bill Lucas Administra tion, which proceeded McName

Besides, she noted, since the ordinance took effect, the ent tive branch "has added three new departments" - environment, airports and community justice - "with a number of divisions" in each.

However, she said, "If there are better controls the commission thinks we could put in place, or better means of accounting for inventory, I den't see any problem with sitting down and discussing it.

"Is everything perfect? Proba-bly not," she said. "What's wrong with sitting down and looking at it? We may not be in agrees (with the commission), but we have the right to disagree."

With pair of holes to fill, city must move quickly

Here we go again.

The resignation of Acting Police Chief Steve Hundersmarck leaves the city of Plymouth without a police chief for the third time in less than a year. And with Dave Rich having left his city manager's post in June, that leaves the city looking for two key leaders at the same time. Still.

When they started looking for a city manager, commissioners seemed to have a good plan: advertise nationally, get the best candidates, pare down the list and come up with the cream-of-the-crop finalists. When the dust settled, more than 50 people had applied for the job, some from as far away as Kentucky and Texas.

Each commissioner was asked to review the applications and rank them top to bottom.

When the search first started, the goal of the commission was to have a new manager in place in October. But the way it's going, we'll be lucky to be through any kind of ranking process by then.

Now the commission has the added problem of searching for yet another police chief. First it was Bob Scoggins, who decided to retire effective in January of this year.

The city thought it had landed the perfect replacement when it tabbed former Michigan State Police Commander Dick Miller to replace Scoggins.

They were right - for six months. Then Miller, citing personal and family reasons, left abruptly. The commission, with some objection from the police union, named Hundersmarck the interim chief.

That appointment brought on a grievance by the union, which resulted in the promotions of Lt. Wayne Carroll and Sgt. Ed Ochal to commander and lieutenant, respectively.

Now Hundersmarck, citing personal and family reasons, has left as abruptly as Miller before him.

Carroll will probably oversee the department for the time being, and that's a fine temporary solution.

But the commission needs to address

Now the city must treat its two openings like its young children, and give them the full attention they deserve.

these two appointments in a more timely fashion. Rich has been gone for four months, and although Paul Sincock does an admirable job on an interim basis, he isn't interested in filling it permanently.

The commission is faced with a couple of tough decisions. Hundersmarck's departure leaves the police department devoid of candidates, what with Carroll not interested in leaving the union.

The city needs some stability in that office. The commission should concentrate on finding a candidate who: a) already knows where his career is taking him and, b) is willing to commit to a long-term presence.

Hundersmarck is leaving to concentrate on his education and on being a father to his two young children. We admire that and congratulate him.

Now the city must treat its two openings like its young children, and give them the full attention they deserve.

choice and the voucher system. I don't want my money to go to religious or private schools, they say. Well, think of the countless years people with convictions have paid taxes subsidizing children at public schools,

Doesn't their conscience bother them

Public schools are a necessity for many, but not as a burden to those who choose otherwise.

Rising demands means higher taxes and rising costs at religious and private schools.

Arguments that good schools raise home values. Well, that includes all schools, not just public

But when you add higher taxes and higher tuition costs at religious and private schools, who gets the best deal?

The only failing in the proposed voucher system, I see is it should go to all children regardless of the school they choose.

This means no exceptions whatever. Of course it will require a strict method of state accreditation, teacher qualifications, pupil performance, and in public education founded on academic excellence and sound moral guidance. In the wake of where our society is going, this community should embrace a school that will instill those values in their leaders of tomorrow.

I am a graduate of Plymouth Canton High School and never planned to place my children anywhere else until National Heritage Academies came our way. Our decision was not necessarily based on unhappiness in the Plymouth-Canton public school our child attended but in the opportunity to give our children an education with additional benefits. It was with much research and careful consideration that we made this decision.

We believe that all of the families who have made this choice have done the same. As parents, we are interested and concerned about our children's education and should be applauded rather than scorned in your paper.

a little? It should.

There are important differences between public and private schools, and those dissimilarities give them each their particular strengths. Any attempt to blur those distinctions, as Proposal 1 on the Nov. 7 statewide Michigan ballot would do, threatens to harm both.

We believe the proposed constitutional amendment to create "opportunity scholarships," or vouchers - placed on the ballot by initiative petition by the Kids First! Yes! organization - will actually do damage to both systems.

Private and parochial schools have long had to carry on without the assistance of government funding. The tradition in the U.S. has been a complete separation of church and state, and that has included private religious schools. Under the Michigan Constitution at present, even indirect aid to religious schools is barred - a provision that of course would change if the proposal is accepted.

While they get no money, they also get no regulation. Private schools have been allowed to operate pretty much as they please, with little oversight from the government. Don't underestimate the importance of this point; there are many who believe the last people who should have control of their children's education is the government. Private schools, as a result, have become a bastion for the independent-minded, intellectuals, the religious and the free-thinkers among us. It ought not come as a surprise that some private schools have already stated that they will not accept vouchers.

Public schools on the other hand are voter-run, taxpayer-funded, democratic institutions. They are operated by elected boards who are subject to a long list of public accountability statutes, like the Open Meetings Act and the Freedom of Information Act. The state sets a core curriculum for public school students. It requires teacher certification and achievement testing of students. Funding is subject to public auditing.

Simply put, taxpayers deserve that degree of in-depth accountability whenever they are asked to fund the operation of an institution. And they certainly won't get it from private schools under Proposal 1.

Don't underestimate what public schools have done for us. The U.S. pioneered the concept of free public education. It has meant that every child has an opportunity to go to school, to get an education. It has created one of the most educated, most literate societies in the world.

Overall, public education is doing a pretty darned good job.

This is not to say some parts of the system are not broken. Yes, there are districts that can only be described as "failing."

As proposed, the Kids First! Yes! ballot initiative would automatically create voucher programs in seven school districts in Michigan. They are selected on the basis that those districts failed to achieve a graduation rate of two-thirds during the 1998-99 school year. It would allow voters in other school districts to create voucher programs through elections. With the vouchers, students could leave those districts and take their money with them - $3,150 per pupil - to be applied toward tuition at the school of their choice. It could be a public, private or even religious school, as long as it accepts the vouchers. The language of the amendment also would mandate teacher competency testing for all schools that accept vouchers and strike language from the Constitution that prohibits tuition tax credits.

Clearly those "failing" public schools will be even further behind when students start taking money out of the budget to go elsewhere, since the district would lose the entire amount of their per-pupil funding - about double the value of the voucher. The kids left behind will have to put up with even more cutbacks, smaller programs and even further diminished resources.

Furthermore, the experiments that have been conducted elsewhere in the country, like Milwaukee, just don't show the kinds of results we'd want to see before considering such a radical change to the state Constitution. For all that vouchers are supposed to do, test scores just haven't increased where they have been used elsewhere.

As a result, we urge a no vote on Proposal 1, the constitutional amendment to create vouchers, when voters head to, the polls this November.

Nov. 7.

My children and I recently went to the Plymouth Fall Festival, where we generally always have a very nice "family" day. However, this particular Saturday I was quite disturbed.

As we were leaving the festival, my children (ages 4 and 6) wanted to watch a few of the kids' karaoke. I thought it was great that so many kids weren't terrified and really gave some cute performances until these two teenage boys got up, ages 13 and 17, and started performing a "rap" number.

As I listened to these young boys mouth the lyrics I was pretty disgusted and I found myself getting angrier and angrier as I sat there listening to this foul music that was being played very loudly so everyone in the town could hear. As I scanned the audience there were people of all ages, from babies to grandparents listening to these young boys act out this song. Then the boys started grabbing their crotches and I really became inflamed.

I went over to my children, who were sitting in the front row, and told them how inappropriate this behavior was for these boys as well as the song. I didn't know who I was angrier with, the boys for picking out the song or the clown who was in charge of the music.

It is one thing to have this type of music playing on the radio, at least you have a choice of not listening to it; however, it is quite another to have it blaring from speakers so the whole town can hear it. I must say I'm pretty amazed that a community such as Plymouth would allow such a disgraceful thing to happen.

Didn't anyone think to scan the music list before they allowed children to pick freely from it? We have to teach our children respect and responsibility at so many different levels, do we now have to "preview" public festivals before bringing our children to them as well?

Article was negative

On Sunday, Sept. 3, a front pagearticle was run in your paper regarding the opening of Canton Charter Academy. There were many positive and exciting things written in that article. On Sunday, Sept. 10, a frontpage article was again run in your paper stating that the "Charter school siphons cash from district." As parents who have a child enrolled in Canton Charter Academy, we were disturbed by the negative view now placed on the Academy.

Yes, Plymouth-Canton Community Schools are now out $683,000 because over 100 families decided to take a stand and make a better choice for public education for their children. And yes, Plymouth-Canton Community Schools should view it as a wake-up call. But the parents who have made this decision should in no way be chastised for it. Our taxes are still being paid to cover millages and school expenses

There was never any concern from the public schools when a new Catholic school opened and took students. Would anyone care if we moved out of our home and a middle-aged childless couple moved in? What if we had chosen to place our daughter at the Christian School in our community? Would anyone have chastised us for that decision?

They would assume that they will make up the difference in another new housing development in our ever growing community.

Your article also included information from parents regarding why they made the choice of Canton Charter Academy, including uniforms, strict discipline, a longer school day, a Christian environment and proximity to day care. National Heritage Academies is not a Christian School, nor do they lead anyone to believe that they are. They simply offer a choice for parents downtown. The city planner gave an excellent presentation at Tuesday's meeting detailing the work that went into their report.

I feel at ease that there is an understanding of the desire to enhance what we already possess and others strive to find.

In the past 90 years commerce and character have dynamically changed in Plymouth. Just look at the types of businesses and buildings that have come and gone on Main Street alone. Now, however, the cornucopia of business and sense of place is all filled up; I believe that we are at a monumental crossroads. In the past we just expanded into open spaces, but now we have to pick and choose which value stays.

The debate over height typifies the dilemma we face in realizing we are a mature community and must grapple with the choice between commerce and character.

OTHER OPINIONS

Arrogant entertainment industry seeks to define culture for youth

Like most parents, I've regularly ground my teeth at the astonishingly noisy, profane, sexsessed, women-hating and violent content that infests most pop culture today. And like most parents, I've wondered what prolonged exposure to this swill is doing to my son, Nathan.

I've shared the "I told you so" feelings of most parents at last week's Federal Trade Commission report that concluded the entertainment industry regularly, pervasively and arrogantly markets violent and obscene products to children by promoting Rrated movies during programs aimed at young people and selling toys derived from violent films. And I've even felt some admiration as politicians of both parties lost no opportunity in jumping all over the Hollywood hypocrites who simultaneously claim their own industry's rating standards are effective in keeping inappropriate content away from children and then brazenly violate their own rules.

What is striking about the FTC report is that it follows on the heels of a statement from four national health associations that definitively links the violence in movies, television, video games and music to acts of violence among children.

Issued by the American Medical Association, the American Academy of Pediatrics, the American Psychological Association and the American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry, the statement concluded, "the effects are measurable and long-standing ... Moreover, prolonged viewing of media violence can lead to emotional desensitization toward violence in real life."

In other words, there is a demonstrated, scientific link between the slack-jawed kid on the couch watching junk on TV to the horrors of the massacre at Columbine High School. I'm not talking about decent, artistic and sensitive movies with "redeeming social value," in the words of the Supreme Court. I'm talking about the junk, especially the stuff marketed to kids.

There will be much debate, of course, about what is best to do. Defenders of the First Amendment (of which I count myself as one) will argue that letting the government set content standards is pretty scary. Clearly, the entertainment industry's claims that self-regulation works is a sad joke. Faced with confused and conflicting rating systems, tight schedules and often-rebellious kids, parents have a tough time exercising their responsibility.

What is most troubling to me about the situation, though, is the realisation of what forces are now in practice defining and propagating our entire culture.

Time was, the content of a culture was a complex fabric constructed out of the panoply of history, literature, art, religious and ethical teachings - the entire range of time-tested factors that bring value, context and definition to a culture. Most certainly, the content of an entire culture was not the commercial property of enormous corporations intent on maximizing profit.

But that's exactly what we have today. The entertainment industry is the first in history whose business model is to create icons to comprise the culture of our youth, to propagate that culture through entirely new technologies such as CDs, television and the Internet, and through advertising to stimulate a demand for the cultural products so created and propagated. The entertainment industry is enormously profitable, pervasive and self-absorbed. It is an entire industry whose central commercial purpose is to define for its own profit the cultural environment in which we and our children live.

What gives some TV mogul the right to define the culture in which my son grows up? What legitimizes some rap music producer dominating the musical tastes of an entire generation? By what right does some video game designer create a product that promotes violent behavior in the USAT?

And for the entertainment industry to argue self-righteously that all it's doing is "giving the market what the market wants" when it uses every modern tool of marketing to stimulate the demand it allegedly is meeting is the ultimate hypocrisy.

No wonder so many people are so very angry.

Talk about your deja vu. The mood struck me funny as I sat in Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Patricia Freeard's courtroom at the Frank Murphy Hall of Justice Monday, taking me back 14 years to my mother's funeral. On that occasion, we sat around the parlor, laughing and joking amid flowing tears about my mother's traits and habits and the memory of her, as clear today as it was then.

She laid in her casket in the front of the room perhaps 25 feet away, as we reminisced about her laundering peculiarities and her habit of ironing anything that would sit still long enough. I'm sure she was there, and had she been able she would have willed us to stop. But she'd have been kidding, as she always did when we joked about her.

The laughter was a defense mechanism, surely, a way to keep from crying, a means of remembering her the way we wanted, not as she was that day, gone forever.

It occurred to me at the time that a funeral was a pretty somber occasion, surely inappropriate for such mirth: I no longer believe that, but at the time I was much younger, more confused about the ways we show respect for people.

The same feelings came over me as I watched the trial of Asisul Islam, the Plymouth man accused of killing his wife then dismembering and discarding her body in Dearborn and in an Ohio field. Somber proceedings; right?

Yet there was defense attorney Michael Schwartz, renowned partner of Geoffrey Fieger joking about pulling off a surprise at the close of the trial that will shock the world.

There were Schwartz and prosecuting attorney Kelly Gleason kibitzing about how the trial was going so far.

The defendant walks in and smiles at supporters in the courtroom, seemingly as carefree as a man could be after more than eight months in jail. One of the defense assistants tells a bad joke to a couple of reporters waiting, somewhat impatiently, for things to get started.

That's not to say any of these people takes this case lightly; in fact, just the opposite. Once the judge's gavel bangs and the jury is seated, every thing is cast in its proper light. Gleason and Mike Lehto earnestly press the prosecution's case. Schwartz bangs away at witnesses trying to poke dence grind exceedingly slowly.

One of the hardest parts came for them Monday, when Gleason introduced pictures of the torso and limbs taken by the police as part of the autopsy proceedings. The photos are a necessary evil, needed to demonstrate the type of instru-ment used to do the cutting, needed to show the state of mind of the murderer, necessary to connect body to killer.

Anita Ross stared as Gleason displayed the photos on the big-screen television set up for jurors, unable to tear away despite the gruesome, ness of it all, and equally unable to hide the pain. She blanched but never flinched, then drew in and released as deep a breath as she could manage as the screen faded to black.

For Ross, and Tracy Islam's two children yet to testify, the images may never fade. They say time heals all wounds. That may be true.

But sitting in that courtroom Monday, it was tough to believe.

Michigan voters will decide on two statewide ballot initiatives Nov. 7.

One proposal would amend the state constitution to allow for tuition vouchers to private schools. The other would limit the power of the state Legislature to override local ordinances. Setting aside the pros and cons of these two issues, their presence on the ballot is part of a growing trend toward government by initiative. In his recent book Democracy Derailed: Initiative Campaigns ton Post columnist David Broder cogently argues that what seems like the flowering of pure democracy is actually the triumph of special interests with big money over the best interests of the public. The initiative process first became popular in the period just before World War I. It was hailed by progressives and good-government reformers as a way for the people's voice to be heard against the powerful bosses of the big city machines and the corporations. It was a tool for progressive, liberal proposals that seemed forever stalled in the predominantly conservative state legislatures.

After World War I, the initiative lost its appeal as an agent of social change, only to return in the late 1970s. Ironically, it was an anti-tax initiative in California that launched a new era of government by ballot.

ment by ballot. For years the right wing had paraded the idea that the United States is "a republic, not a democ-racy." Yet in recent years ballot propesals have been launched primarily for conservative causes as a way of avoiding representative government. the late 1970s was a conservative response to rising taxes, with what some believe has been devas tating consequences for the state. It also launched similar proposals all across the nation, including the Headles Amendment in Michigan. It also launched the initiative as a method for powerful special interests to step around established gov-

Professional operatives are hired to gather petitions, create advertising campaigns and organize vote drives. Sometimes they actually believe in the campaign; often they are just hired guns who could work either side of an issue.

Money is the key factor in the success of an initiative campaign. The more money you spend, the more names you can collect on a petition and the more advertising you can televise. Broder discovered that it was a rare situation when an average person or group could actually get a proposal on a ballot. It was usually a wealthy businessman or group of wealthy businessmen who were responsible for launching initiatives, though sometimes working in the shadows of "average" people.

The media, especially television, turn serious issues into mindless sound bites and misleading and sometimes fraudulent advertising.

A campaign for a controversial proposal will immediately launch a counter catapaign. Even if your proposal fails, you might succeed in draining the resources of your opponents. Broder examines how big unions are mobilized to fight conservative initiatives with their own big-money campaigns.

The result is a big-money showdown. On one side are the forces of Answay's billionaire president Dick DeVes and the religious right, along with the Catholic Church. On the other side are the two big teachers unions and evel liberties groups (and in the shadows meet public especi collicials and heard incustors). City of Plymouth Assistant Municipal Services Director Scott A. Baker has completed the three year training program with the Michigan Public Services Institute.

The training program is held in cooperation with the Central Michigan University College of Extended Learning as well as the Michigan Chapter of the American Public Works Association and the American Water Works Association.

According to City of Plymouth Mayor David A. McDonald, the "completion of the program shows a commitment by both the employee and the city to the on going professionalization of our staff." McDonald went on to say that the "City's participation in the Michigan Public Service Institute also shows a commitment by the City to provide for the highest level of service to our residents."

Baker has been employed with the City since February 1996. He started as a foreman for the Municipal Service Department.

• A reliable contractor will usually provide more than one furnace choice. Know the costs, quality and savings of the furnace or air conditioner you're buying. • An estimator for a reliable company should ask about heating and cooling problems experienced with your old equipment, then offer understandable solunlan available

 Most reliable contractors offer extended service agreements which include maintenance inspections.

· A well-trained, up-to-date contractor won't try to discourage you from purchasing high-efficiency equipment. If he does, get a second opinion.

• A good contractor is professional. Their people are prompt, they meet appointments, they are courteous, neat and well groomed. This neatness should be reflected in their vehicles and offices and installations.

• They should have an office/shop facility and not be ashamed to have you visit it.

· Many less qualified companies don't provide employees proper training. Rather than keep current with the latest technology, some discourage selling new designs.

Demand quality! What about price? For us to tell you what a high-efficiency furnace or air conditioner installation should cost would be misleading. Pricing is determined by several factors including: the added costs of correcting venting or duct work problems, difficulty in installing the furnace in the selected location, code, licensing or inspection requirements, local labor costs, the quality of the job, etc.

Better companies usually charge more, but offer greater value. While one price may look better on paper, the most important consideration is your satisfaction with the end result. Did you get what you paid for?

Reliable companies, those meeting the requirements above, are interested in keeping you as their

• A good company will usually have a financing long-term customer. They want to maintain their fine reputation, so the price offered will usually be reasonable. If you have any questions, ask another company for a quote, then choose the best value.

Facts

What is carbon monoxide (CO)?

Carbon monoxide (CO) is odorless, colorless, deadly gas that is a product of incomplete combustion. When CO is introduced into a human's bloodstream through the lungs, it is accepted in place of oxygen at a rate of 300:1 and literally suffocates its victims. Because you can't smell, taste or see it, CO can kill you before you know it's there.

Who is at risk?

Everyone is at risk. CO poisoning can happen to anyone, anywhere, anytime. Pregnant women, infants, senior citizens and people with respiratory or coronary problems are considered to be at greatest risk.

What to do if you suspect CO poisoning:

Get fresh air immediately! Acting quickly will save lives. Open windows and doors. Turn off the fuel (gas, oil, propane, etc.) to any appliances, such as furnace, water heater, range, etc. Call 911 if anyone is seriously ill. Call an ACCA professional contractor to check for the source of the carbon monoxide.

What's a proper test for CO?

A properly trained ACCA contractor's technician uses a sophisticated gas analyzer instrument designed to register carbon monoxide at very low concentrations.

Is your home safe?

• The chimney is cleaned each fall, especially is a fireplace or woodburning stove is used. • All heating appliances are properly maintained and checked for broken heat exchangers and proper combustion.

• The chimney is checked each fall for bird's nests or other blockages. · Water heaters which are connected to the chimney are checked for proper combustion and proper venting. · Stoves, ovens and ranges are checked for proper flames (blue in color - not yellow which represents poor combustion)

INDOOR WINTER COMFORT GUIDE - FALL 2000 Carbon Monoxide Poisoning Questions & Answers about the "Silent Killer"

exhaust draft hoods or vents Do I need an annual heat# ing tune-up, if I have a CO detector?

Yes, one does not replace the other. A tune-up helps to prevent CO problems in the first place.

A CO detector will sound the alarm if the level of CO reaches 100 parts per million (ppm) but the acceptable limit for health effects of CO is only around 10 ppm. You could have a serious problem before the CO detector lets you know.

A heating tune-up assures that your furnace or boiler is operating safely and efficiently. Your furnace may be producing CO, but vented properly, and you would be unaware of the danger. If that furnace develops a crack in the heat exchanger, that CO cold leak into your home. Your safety controls may also be malfunctioning without your knowledge.

An annual heating tune-up by a qualified ACCA contractor's technician finds minor problems before they become major repairs.

How can you protect your family?

· Schedule an annual tune-up and CO analysis on your heating system by a professional ACCA contractor. They will have the proper instruments for detecting CO.

• Install a carbon monoxide detector on each level of your home.

· Do not use ovens and gas ranges for heating purposes.

• Make sure your furnace has an adequate supply of combustion (outside) air.

• Do not operate gasoline engines (car or lawnmower) in confined areas such as your garage or basement.

INDOOR WINTER COMFORT GUIDE - FALL 2000 Safeguards Mechanical permits serve to protect your family's safety

Whenever a furnace is installed a permit is required for the homeowner's safety and well-being.

This process is necessary for two reasons: to assure that the contractor is qualified to install the equipment you have selected, and once the equipment is installed, that it has been inspected and is in compliance with the current Mechanical Code rules and regulations for proper installation of mechanical equipment

Mechanical inspectors ensure that contractors are properly licensed in this jurisdiction and that they obtain the permits for regulated work that requires permits.

"Local mechanical contractors must be licensed by the state of Michigan and registered with the city'

In order for that contractor to operate legally, he must carry his annual contractor's license with him. Homeowners will want to see a copy of the license or ask for the license number before deciding on the contractor who will install their air conditioner or furnace

"A permit must be obtained prior to commencing any mechanical work. If his license doesn't cover what he's trying to install, he won't be issued a permit."

Once installation is complete or prior to any work being concealed. the contractor is responsible to call for inspection on the equipment.

The permit process is one that has been instituted for one purpose - to ensure the health, safety and welfare of the public. It's a matter of peace of mind

Zoning makes each room comfortable

Enjoy comfort in each of your rooms with zoning.

At last you have an option. With zoning you can effectively move hot and cool air to the rooms you want when you want it.

Zoning uses your existing duct system so you do not have to install a separate system. By installing a mechanical damper into the ductwork that goes into individual rooms or levels, you can control the airflow.

Each damper is controlled by a separate thermostat so you can maintain exact comfort and temperature level into the desired areas of the

In addition to the added comfort zoning gives you, it also saves you money and conserves energy. Because you can set the thermostat in each zone, the areas you are not using can be maintained at a more economical setting. For example, in the evening when you go to sleep, you could have the upper level set at a comfortable 72 degrees and the lower level can be set at a more economical temperature of 65 degrees. This will save energy and save you money. In the daytime, just reverse the settings.

In many cases, homeowners experience dramatic changes in comfort from one part of their house to another

With zoning you can control when and where the air is moving in your home to provide your family the level of comfort you desire.

You should be able to be comfortable in your own home; zoning gives you personal climate control throughout your home.

INDOOR WINTER COMFORT GUIDE - FALL 2000 Questions about the ACCA, NWHCDA

What is the ACCA?

The Air Conditioning Contractors of America (ACCA) is a non-profit trade association of service to the independent heating, ventilation, air conditioning and refrigeration (HVACR) contractors.

Since its onset in the 1960s, ACCA objectives have been to promote and protect the interest and welfare of the HVACR industry, its members and the public which it serves.

In doing so, its members maintain the highest ethical standards of selling, advertising, pricing, installation and service, guided by the principles of honesty and integrity. While competing in our free enterprise system, the members of ACCA share certain goals and aspirations designed to improve the quality of service provided to the American people.

ACCA and its members work with the Department of Energy (DOE), Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and state and local agencies on formulating energy programs and policies.

ACCA and its members stay in touch with the local utility companies on issues that affect the consumer.

ACCA and its members work with local and state agencies concerned with licensing and inspections to maintain consumer safety and satisfaction.

ACCA and its members participate in a program designed to rapidly locate defective products introduced to the marketplace so corrective action may be taken without delay to avoid cost and inconvenience to the consumer.

ACCA furnishes to its members a technical and management library unequaled in the HVACR industry.

ACCA and its members work with local and state educational organizations in an effort to ensure a steady influx of trained people in order to provide consumers with the quality service they deserve.

ACCA members are dedicated to: • Instilling the highest respect for their profession within their community.

• Complying with all local codes and regulations.

• Upholding the highest ethical

e constandards in selling, installing, and servicing heating and cooling equip-

• Yielding an excellent policy of consumer relations and upholding the policies and warranties of the manufacturer.

• Carrying the proper liability and workmen's compensation insurnace to avoid risk to the consumer.

• Supporting energy conservation efforts through federal, state, and local agencies.

• Contributing to consumer education through agencies such as local consumer affairs offices.

• Maintaining the proper state and local licenses for the consumer's protection.

What is NWHCDA?

Frequently Asked Questions About A/C Covers

Why should I cover my air conditioner?

1. To avoid costly repairs caused by falling debris such as sticks and leaves that can cause blockage in the fans and coils.

2. To aid in preventing the fan blades from freezing up.

 To help protect the cabinet from rust and extend the life and appearance of the air conditioning unit.
 Detroit Edison recommends "Rinse the dirt off and cover your unit for the winter."

I have heard before that you shouldn't cover your air conditioner because it needs to breathe. Is that true?

A/C Covers are manufactured with that very concept in mind.

Designed 4 to 6 inches shorter in length from the base of each unit allowing for ample circulation.

What would my cover be made from and how often would I have to replace it?

The A/C Covers should last the lifetime of your unit.

It is manufactured from a heavyduty grade of exterior black vinyl and can withstand weather conditions from the frigid cold in Northern Canada to the salty coast of the United States waterways.

Armed with UV protectant, these covers can be used in high sun conditions as well for sand and windstorms.

INDOOR WINTER COMFORT GUIDE - FALL 2000 Six Symptoms Show Your House Is Thirsty

If your house could talk, it might be crying for water. During the winter heating season, dry indoor air can suck enough moisture from floors and furniture, paneling and pianos to do permanent damage.

If your home is showing any of the following signs, it's a good bet your house needs added humidity.

• Splits or cracks in woodwork or walls.

• Wooden doors that show gaps, or that no longer fit tightly.

- · Gaps between the boards in hardwood floors.
- Widening joints in cabinets or wooden paneling.
- · Loose or wobbly chair legs and arms.
- · Pianos that don't stay in tune.

What causes all this damage? Wood shrinkage. The wood structure of a typical new 2,100 squarefoot home contains an astounding 635 gallons of water. As long as the indoor humidity level stays around 35 percent, the moisture content of the wood remains pretty much constant.

However, during the heating season the relative humidity of a home's indoor air may plummet to 13 percent or less. That's drier than Death Valley.

That super-dry air steals moisture wherever it can find it - from walls, floors, furniture. And, as wood loses moisture, some species may shrink more than seven percent, according to the U.S. Forest Products Laboratory.

Dry Indoor Air Is One of Winter's Avoidable Discomforts

Don't blame the cold for all of the discomforts you feel when winter weather hits. Dry air is the real cause of many winter's minor irritations.

People blame cold weather for everything from rough, itchy skin and frizzy hair to mild nosebleeds. But the real culprit in many cases is super-dry indoor air that steals the moisture from everything it touches

The good news is that there are things you can do to prevent or minimize some of these uncomfortable conditions

· Use moisturizing ointments immediately after bathing to lock moisture in, paying special attention to problem areas on hands, face, knees, elbows and feet

• Avoid long, hot showers. They may warm you after a cold day, but they also dry your skin.

• Install a whole house humidifier to keep indoor relative humidity in the comfort zone. Most experts, including the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, recommend maintaining relative humidity in your home between 35 and 45 percent in the winter.

Relative humidity is the percentage of moisture in the air compared to its maximum capability to hold moisture under the same conditions. 70 degree air can hold more than 12 times as much moisture

This is another way dryness can mean higher energy costs. When the wood around your doors and windows dries out, it shrinks and losss its ability to properly seal your home. That means constant heat loss. . . and higher energy bills.

Code of Ethics

Members of the Air Conditioning Contractors of America agree to abide by and conform to the following code of professional conduct:

Instill the highest respect for heating, ventilating, air conditioning and refrigeration (HVACR) contracting profession within their communities.

• Maintain strict compliance with all laws, regulations and ordinances pertaining to the HVACR industry and business operations prescribed by federal, state, county and municipal governments.

· Design, install, service and repair heating, ventiliation, air conditioning and refrigeration systems in accordance with accepted industry standards.

• Develop and maintain an understanding of proper equipment selection to assure customers of safe, dependable and comfortable performance.

· Ensure that quality, honesty, integrity and good faith are hallmarks of contractors' business practices, including individual contractor sales, advertising, installations and service of HVACR systems.

• Maintain a clean, safe, respectable and well-identified place

Heat Like the Sun With Infrared Heating

HOW INFRARED HEATING WORKS...

Like the sun, it's infrared rays heat the earth, people and objects directly. The energy emitted is safely absorbed by cool surfaces that warm up, which in turn release heat into the atmosphere by convection to raise ambient temperature.

BENEFITS THAT YOU'LL ALWAYS APPRECIATE

- Fuel efficient
- Reduced heating electricity cost
- Quick heat recovery
- Comfortable gentle heat
- Many design options

How Fresh is the Air in Your Home?

If you're looking for the unhealthiest air in America, you don't have to go to a major industrial area. The chances are America's most polluted air can be found right in your home. In fact, EPA studies prove that concentrations of toxic pollutants can be up to ten times greater inside homes than outside, even in our smoggiest cities.

THE CAUSE.

So where was this problem 20 years ago? Why is it in the news all of a sudden? In an effort to save energy costs, we have tightened up our homes. New homes have energy efficient windows and exterior doors. Builders are using far more insulation with vapor barriers, and 6" walls, along with better caulking to seal up not just new homes, but also older ones that are being remodeled. And while all this has made our homes more efficient, saving both energy and money, it has also made it nearly impossible for our homes to "breathe" - to expel stale, poiluted indoor air and exchange it for cleaner, fresher outdoor air.

THE CONCERNS.

Over the last few years, we've been able to learn more about indoor air pollution and its effects on people through advanced testing techniques. Formaldehyde, radon, household chemicals, odors, cigarette smoke, and other contaminants are.

Aesthetically pleasing

INDOOR WINTER COMFORT GUIDE - FALL 2000 Cool jobs available in climate control

The heating, ventilation, air conditioning and refrigeration (NVACR) industry manages indoor environments

It is an industry that our society depends on year-around. The HVACR industry is a $150 billion a year business and employs many people. More and more skilled people are needed to fill the increasing demand. The industry works on issues that affect our environment such as indoor air quality and protecting the earth's ozone layer through refrigerant recovery.

Everyone depends on the HVACR industry:

· People depend on air conditioning and heating to keep comfortable.

• Electronic and computer manufacturers need cool, clean, and very dry air for their products.

• Hospitals, day care centers and community centers depend on HVACR equipment to maintain comfortable temperatures and good air quality.

· Research labs, medical manufacturers and food preparation companies need HVACR equipment to ensure that their products are pure and safe.

· Farmers, livestock shippers, and fruit growers rely on refrigerated trucks, warehouses, and display cases to keep their products fresh.

· Printers use high-speed, multicolor printing equipment that requires strict humidity control to ensure product quality. To get started in the field, you should enroll in the following courses in high school or trade schools:

Applications

- CAD-Computer-Aided Design
- Air Conditioning
- Math algebra and geometry • Sheet metal
- Electricity/electronics
- Mechanical drawing
- Blueprint reading

After graduation from high school. you can get additional training at a local community trade school or at a university. Look for two-year associate programs or colleges and universities with high rates of job placement. Often they can find jobs for 100 percent of their HVACR graduates with four-year degrees with average starting salaries from $30,000 to $50,000, depending on the applicant's experience and job location. Universities like Ferris State report there are 25 jobs available for each HVACR graduate.

Another direction can be to participate in an apprenticeship program. Apprentices gain hands-on skills by working in the field, earn money, and learn at the same time. Northwest Heating and Cooling Dealers Association endorses an NVACR apprenticeship program in the Detroit metro area. For more information call (248) 544-1965.

Once in the HVACR industry, jobs available include:

 Sales and marketing specialists who sell and market heating and air conditioning systems to small and large businesses and to homeowners. Technical know-how is a plus.

· CAD designers who design heating and air conditioning systems for today's "smart" office buildings and homes

 Service technicians who install new units, service broken ones, and maintain existing units

· Manufacturers who research, design, test and manufacture heating and cooling systems that deliver the maximum comfort for the lowest cost.

· Project engineers who supervise multiple crews and work at different job sites. The engineer must schedule the right people, have the correct supplies on site and communicate each day's objectives to the site staff.

· Quality control engineers who ensure that HVACR products work to specification. As products come off the line, these engineers test, locate, and correct any production defects before the appliance reaches the consumer

This is a profession and new jobs are predicted to increase through this century. Average first year salaries (as reported by the U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics) are:

• HVACR professionals, $29,500*

- Lawer (public sector), $29,200
- Travel agent, $21,300
- Secretary, $19,100
- Cosmetologist, $14,800

out delay to avoid cost and inconvenience to the consumer.

NWHCDA and its members work with local and state educational organizations in an effort to insure a steady influx of trained people in order to provide the consumer with the quality service they deserve.

NWHCDA sponsors a four-year federally-approved apprenticeship program to train new technicians for the HVACR industry.

NWHCDA supports, through legislation and regulation, an effort to prohibit cross subsidization by the utilities.

INDOOR WINTER COMFORT GUIDE - FALL 2000 Michigan ACCA ProKare Service Agreements Outperform Utilities

Chapter of the Air Conditioning Contractors of America (MI-ACCA) have a unique service agreement plan that protects homeowners from unexpected service expenses on their home heating and cooling systems, hot water heaters, and even accessories such as humidifiers and air cleaners. The ProKare service agreement program includes covered repairs that are excluded on the typical service plans offered by utility companies such as Consumers Energy, Michigan Consolidated Gas Company, and Detroit Edison. Typical utility plans exclude steam boilers, circulator pumps, heat exchangers, zone valves, humidifiers, electronic air cleaners, motorized vent dampers, motorized zone dampers as well as numerous other items. One utility's plan had so many conflicting inclusions and exclusions that an Ingham County judge found the utility had violated the Michigan Consumer Protection Act because their plan included "calculated ambiguities" and the judge ordered Consumers Energy to cease their deceptive practice and change their agreements. The judge also ordered Consumers Energy to settle all complaints from homeowners regarding any ambiguous language contained in their plan in the favor of the homeowner. It was professional HVAC contractors who brought the charges against Consumers Energy and their home heating service plan.

that most utility plans exclude any coverage whatsoever for some of the most important components of heating and cooling units. In an air conditioning system, the most significant components of the refrigeration cycle are the compressor, condenser as 10 degree air. Outside air at 10 degrees and 70 percent relative humidity drops to 7 percent relative humidity when heated to normal room temperature without other internal sources of moisture, such as cooking, laundry, showers, etc.

ity recommended for the average heatcoil, expansion device and evaporator coil. For furnace and boilers, the heat exchanger or boiler sections are the single most expensive components which can fail, yet typical utility plans exclude these items outright. (See the accompanying chart of comparisons between ACCA participating contractor ProKare agreements, and those of typical utilities.)

With a ProKare service agreement available from a participating ofessional ACCA heating contractor, these items are covered up to the maximum coverage of $400 per occurrence and $750 annual cost per unit. Items covered under the ProKare service agreement include all unit components as originally shipped by the product manufacturer. This means that heat exchangers, compressors and other major system components within the unit cabinetry or installed as a integral part of the unit such as the circulator pump for a hot water boiler, are covered under the ProKare service agreement. Water heaters and system accessories such as humidifiers and electronic air cleaners are also eligible for coverage by a ProKare service agreement.

One of the most valuable features of ProKare service agreements is the ability to apply the maximum annual allowance of $750 per furnace or boiler, or per air conditioner, or even a $300 maximum allowance per water heater toward the purchase of replacement equipment. For example, if your boiler cracks or furnace heat exchanger cracks, and there is not an in-warranty or outof-warranty replacement available, typical utility plans would not cover any expense toward these major repairs. However, with the ProKare service agreement, you would receive $750 toward the purchase of a replacement unit through your ed home, and it's this 'desert dryness' that makes you feel uncomfortable and takes moisture from your home, furnishings - even you and your family. The recommended indoor relative humidity is 35% and up to 45% in warmer climates or where special construction prevails - and not all humidifiers have the capacity to reach these levels.

Doctors often times have mentioned dry air as one of the causes for nose, throat, and other physical aggravations

Heated air dries out and shrinks wood framing around doors and window frames. Gaps occur, permitting cold outside air infiltration. Heat loss

HINTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

How To Choose the Right Heating System

Choosing the right furnace can be as will use to heat your home. The minichallenging as buying a new car. When shopping for a new heating system. there are certain things you should be aware of that will help you save money and ensure worry-free operation.

When shopping for a new car, reliability is a key factor, because it determines how well and how long it will run. A furnace is really no different. Purchasing a quality furnace can save you headaches and money down the road.

In addition, many manufacturers back their products with 20-year or more limited warranties on heat exchanges, with optional extended warranties available for part and labor.

Here are some things to look for when buying a furnace:

Efficiency

A furnace's efficiency rating, or AFUE (Annual Fuel Utilization Efficiency) tells you how efficiently the furnace uses fuel (gas or oil). In general, the higher the efficiency, the less fuel it mum rating is 78 percent and some furnaces are rated as high as 96 percent.

Usually a higher-efficiency furnace is a bit more expensive than other units. However, if you live in a cold climate, you may recover your investment in a high-efficiency furnace back in lower utility bills. Of course, after the payback, you continue to save on your energy bills for the life of a system.

Variable-Speed Furnaces

Some furnaces can make you more comfortable. For example, variablespeed furnaces can run on low speed up to 90 percent of the time, and operate very quietly.

Variable-speed furnaces run on low speed most of the time, switching to high speed during the coldest times of the year. This can mean dramatic energy savings and a quieter heating system.

Your local heating and air conditioning dealer is the most reliable source for information on furnaces

Residential IAQ Standards Now Open for Public Review

ATLANTA, GA - The American Society of Heating, Refrigerating.and Air-Conditioning Engineers (ASHRAE) announced that the proposed residential indoor air quality (IAQ) standard is now open for public review.

Proposed Standard 62.2P. "Ventilation for Acceptable Indoor Air Quality in Low-Rise Residential Buildings," recommends' whole-house mechanical ventilistion systems for all residential buildings of three or fewer stories.

Also up for review are four addenda to the ASHRAE 62-1999 IAQ standard, "Ventilation for Acceptable Indoor Air Quality," which sets minimum ventilation rates and other requirements for commercial and institutional buildings:

 Addendum o provides design guidance for controlling odor in indoor spaces where smoking occurs;

• Addendum 62t clarifies requirements related to condensate management, including drain pan design, carryover from cooling coils, and access for inspection and cleaning:

· Addendum 62u relates to the control of ventilation systems, specifically system controls to ensure adequate ventilation whenever buildings are occupied and under any load conditions; and · Addendum 62y classifies air with respect to contaminant and odor intensity and limits the recirculation of lower-quality air into spaces that contain air of higher quality.

The public review, which began August 11, will end on October 10.

Drafts of proposed stand irds are available only during their public review periods. To obtain electronic draft version of standard 62.2P during the comment period, log on to ASHRAE Online at www.ashrae.org/STANDARDS/pubrevdrt.htm.

How To Know You Are Getting A Good Duct Cleaning...

So how do you know if you are going to get a good job? How do you know what to look for? Here are some ideas:

1. Be sensible about the price you are quoted. If you are given three bids of: $600, $500, and $125, you need to be alert. It's highly unlikely you will get the same job at $125 that you will get at $600 or $500.

2. Listen to the contractor giving you the price. Does he sound like he knows what he's doing? How long has he been in business? Does he seem straightforward or evasive?

3. On larger jobs you should have a written estimate. It should tell you the details of the work. Compare estimates. See if each company is providing the same service. Don't be baffled or fooled by technical words. Ask what they mean so you can understand the service being offered.

4. Ask for references. This is an old tried and true method. Not a complete guarantee you'll get a good company, but almost. Even a young company should have satisfied customers to refer you to. If a duct cleaning business has a broad list of well known clients, you probably have a winner. 5. If the company a National Air Duct Cleaners Association (NADCA) member? That helps. That means they have a desire to keep up with the industry and take a professional attitude about their work.

6. When you get the work done, take notice of what they do. You don't have to crawl in the attic with them, but keep an eye out. Use common sense. If a worker spends three minutes on the roof with the air conditioning unit and declares it "clean". .. I don't think so. On the other hand, you can usually tell when people are working hard to do a decent job. Workmen moving about diligently, popping off registers or crawling ducts and getting things done - that's a good sign.

7. Equipment used. Small inexpensive equipment denotes inexperience and lack of long term commitment.

Using these guidelines, a duct cleaning consumer has a decent chance at finding a quality company at a fair price and avoiding the grim discovery of finding he paid for nothing.

ATTORNEY GENERAL ADDRESSES CONSUMERS ENERGY ISSUE

Michigan's Attorney General Jennifer Granholm has issued a "Consumer Alert" entitled "Don't Get Burned By Home Heating Repairs!" In her alert she mentions: "Don't rely exclusively on one source of information about contractors. For instance. Consumers Energy advises its customers that it maintains a list of "prequalified" heating contractors. While these contractors may provide good services, they may be more expensive. Consumers Energy receives 10 percent of the total cost of the job back from the contractor. This commission may increase the cost of the work."

INDOOR WINTER COMFORT GUIDE - FALL 2000 Filters for Cleaner, Healthier Indoor Air

Central system air filters and air cleaners are installed "upstream" of your forced-air heating and air conditioning equipment. They are categorized into several groups:

Basic furnace dust-stop filters, which come with most heating and cooling units,

Media air filters, which use a rather porous media typically formed into pleats,

Self-charging media filters, which use the static-electricity-generating properties of plastic fibers such as polystyrene,

Charged media filters, which use an external direct dc voltage source, and Electronic air cleaners, which use the elegant principle of twostage electrostatic precipitation.

Portable room air cleaners are used as a supplement to central air cleaning or when central air cleaning isn't possible.

Throw-Away Fiber Glass Filters

Virtually all manufacturers of heating and cooling equipment include with their units a throwaway fiber glass filter, whose media is usually fiber glass or open-cell foam. For about 90% of the equipment sold, this is the only filter that ever gets installed.

That's really too bad, considering that throw-away fiber glass filters operate at an efficiency of only about 2% to 3% (initial dust spot) or 70% (bulk dirt), which does next to nothing for cleaning the air. Practically speaking, these filters only protect the blower compartment from large dust particles, or "bulk dust," that can clog the equipment before the warranty runs out.

Media Air Filters

These filters are made from media (paper or fiber "fabric") stretched across a plastic or metal frame. Usually the media is arranged in pleats-a zigzag pattern that increases surface area devoted to collecting particles.

Although they appear solid to the naked eye, media filters are actually quite porous when viewed under a magnifying glass. The fibers crisscross to form an overlapping pattern, with plenty of tiny spaces for air (and small particles) to pass right through.

Media filters cleanthe air in three ways: by straining, by impaction (interception), and by diffusion.

Larger particles are strained out of the air, similar to the way "particles" of cooked pasta are strained when poured into a colander. The pasta (particles) are too large to fit through the holes in the colander; the water (air) passes through easi-

Smaller particles are able to pass through the same microscopic holes that allow air through. During their quick journey through the filter fibers, however, these small particles are jostled by random collisions with air molecules, which causes diffusion. This diffusion causes many particles that would otherwise pass through the filter to collide with and stick to the fibers in the process of impaction.

Self-Charging Media Filters

Self-charging media filters rely on straining, impaction, and static electricity to clean the air. The media consists of plastic fibers that are excellent electrical insulators, such as polystyrene and polypropylene.

One of the properties of polystyrene is its ability to create static electricity as air moves quickly through the filter. You've seen how those styrofoam "packing peanuts" cling to anything in their path. Moving air leaves random charges, and the effect is similar to the electrostatic charge that builds up on your body as you shuffle across the carpet in winter, then discharges when you touch a doorknob.

In theory, this electrostatic field polarizes dirty air particles, causing more of them to stick to the medium. In practice, self-charging media filters are only marginally better than performers than throw-away fiber glass filters of the same density. The strength of the electrostatic field is insufficient to polarize most particles, and the polystyrene media is too thin for effective straining and impaction. Moist air also reduces the static charge.

Charged Media Filters

Charged media filters also rely on straining, impaction, and static electricity to collect particles. Unlike their self-charging cousins, however, charged media filters use an external, direct current (dc) voltage source to generate the electrostatic field. Charged media filters are made of fiberglass or cellulose fibers, which can pick up an electrostatic field when a high dc voltage is applied.

Pollen 4200X magnification size range 8-100 microns

Like plant spores, pollen is everywhere at certain times of the year. Its presence inside a home causes allergy sufferers numerous miseries, such as watery eyes, irritated sinuses, and sore, runny noses,

Electronic Air Cleaners

Electronic air cleaners operate from a principle everyone learns early in life-that opposites attract. In scientific jargon, electronic air cleaners are "two-stage electrostatic precipitators." In the first stage, dust particles enter the charging section of the electronic air cleaner and pass between high-voltage ionizing wires. Charge to 8000 volts, these ionizing wires rip electrons from any particle in the vicinity. Particles leave this section carrying an intense positive or negative charge.

In the second stage, these charged particles enter the collection section and encounter a series of collector plates. Positively and negatively charged collector plates shove the particles toward oppositely-charged collector plates, while those same plates exert a nearly irresistible tug on the particles. The dirty air particles strike the charged plates, where they stick like glue due to electrostatic attraction until they are washed away.

Only the very smallest particles can get through, pulled along by a fast-moving airstream before they have a chance to be collected. At maximum airflow rates, electronic air cleaners are approximately 70% efficient, and can be up to 95% efficient at lower airflow rates.

Not all electronic air cleaners are equally efficient, however. Differences in power supply design, ionization voltage, and collector plate spacing all affect efficiency.

HEPA Filters

High Efficiency Particulate Air, or HEPA, filters use deeply-folded media to trap particles. With effi-

Greedy devourers of skin flakes, dust mites live out their entire reproductive lives in your carpets and mattresses. leaving behind a trail of droppings, carcasses, and more dust mites. Not surprisingly, breathing these particles into your nose and lungs can cause an allergic reaction ciency ratings of close to 100%, true HEPA filters are the top performers in the air cleaner circle and are used in settings where perfectly clean air is the highest priority.

It takes a powerful fan or blower to move air through a HEPA filter, which rules out their use in typical central system, forced-air applications. But they are perfectly suited for portable air cleaning in conjunction with a powerful fan.

Applications where central system HEPA filters are found include hospital burn-patient rooms and clean-room manufacturing areas. Some manufacturers offer "HEPAlike" or "HEPA-type" filters. These filters are actually extended-surface media filters and have efficiency ratings of only 10% to 35%.

Portable Room Air Cleaners

In many instances, central air cleaning isn't possible or practical. People in condomniums, apartments, and individual offices can use a portable room air cleaner such as a High Efficiency HEPA Filter Portable Room Air Cleaner or Portable Room Electronic Air Cleaner to remove indoor air pollutants.

When properly sized for the room area, these portable air cleaners are just as efficient at removing indoor air pollutants as central air cleaning.

Many allergy sufferers have found that supplementing their central air cleaning with a portable room air cleaner in the bedroomgives them even cleaner air to breathe as they sleep and helps their symptoms significantly.

The variable speed blower motor is a "smart" motor, which means it varies its speed depending upon your home's heating requirements. And it does this so quietly you may not even know it's running.

The variable speed motor operates quietly, particularly during first stage of low heat operation. During continuous fan operation, the blower operates at a selected percent of cooling airflow, so sound is minimized. In a conventional single-stage fur-lect dust and allergens.

nace, air is pulled through the filter at a consistently high rate of speed. This lessens the filter's ability to col-

If you have a central air conditioner, you'll really feel the difference with an extra added bonus that comes with the variable speed furnace. This will give you greater comfort during cooling because of an enhancement feature built right into the system

The enhanced comfort you'll feel is the result of better humidity control. During cooling, air moves over the coil more slowly at start up. This allows the coil to rapidly cool down, resulting in increased moisture removal

Because a variable speed furnace operates at slower speeds, your indoor air quality will greatly improve. A slower fan speed means more unwanted particles cling to the filter, allowing cleaner air to flow into your home.

The variable speed motor/module combination is programmed to be a constant airflow blower motor. The drive module controls the motor speed and torque to ensure a constant volume of airflow. If the resistance to airflow in the duct system increases (i.e. due to dirty filters, closed registers, etc.) the drive module will be able to detect this because the RPM of the motor will tend to increase and the power consumption (amp draw) will decrease. This is a normal characteristic of an indoor "squirrel cage" blower. When the drive module picks up the higher RPM, the resident program will increase the speed and torque to move more air. When the desired airflow is again achieved, the motor RPM settles to the proper speed. Therefore, the motor/drive varies its speed to achieve a constant volume of air. This feature helps ensure adequate airflow over a wide range of restrictions within its power rating. This helps ensure compressor reliability, proper system capacity and airflow distribution throughout the duct system.

Variable Speed air handlers and furnaces also provide a unique combination when used with dual compressor systems, dual circuit indoor coils and zoning applications. In these systems, the airflow delivery can be programmed to deliver 50% airflow during the first stage operation and 100% for second stage. A ramping feature can be selected to vary the airflow during the cycle to provide improved moisture removal during cooling operation. Variable speed blower operation also improved control of humidity in winter.

When used in a zoning system, the motor drive may be required to deliver very low airflow as the zone control system is only calling for part load operation. In this type of application the system controller sends a speed command to the drive which can vary the airflow to achieve optimum system performance, increased comfort, application flexibility and quiet operation.

allows a temperature swing of 3 to 5 degrees before turning on or off. With a variable speed gas furnace, those days The Observer & Eccentric/THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 2000

In the winter, your house gets thirsty too.

Cold weather outside can make the weather inside your home uncomfortably dry. As the moisture in the air evaporates, your skin can feel the dryness too. You may feel colder, even though the temperature's the same. So you turn up the thermostat. And that means higher energy bills. Carrier has designed a full line of humidifiers to carefully control the moisture in the air so that your home is at the perfect humidity level all year long. Take control of winter and call your Carrier Indoor Weather Experts today.
