Township to rescind millage vote

When the township board left its last meeting, board members thought they'd set the proper annual millage rate. After some beefing by board members, they found out they

The Plymouth Township board is expected to rescind its Sept. 26 vote setting the millage rate which was set

Treasurer Ron Edwards and Trustee Chuck Curmi voted against the resolu-

"It was our intention to set the same rate," Keen McCarthy said. "It was done through a rounding process. We forget that we had rounded down. It's going to be 3.29 mills."

However, the board resolution raised the millage rate from 3.29 mills to 3.31 mills. That breaks down to 0.82 for general operating, 1.66 for police/fire operating and 0.82 for fire operating.

Rosemary Harvey, director of administrative services, who presented the millage information to the board explained what happened in a Sept. 28

"At the Board of Trustees meeting Sept. 26, I asked the board to approve the maximum authorized millage levy for the year 2000," Harvey said. "The requested levy was carried out to four decimal places. However, the boardapproved millage levy for 1999 was rounded down to two decimal places. Changing the levy to four decimal places in the year 2000 would result in a millage increase and this was unin-

Trial tears at both sides of family

BY TONY BRUSCATO STAFF WRITER

As the murder trial of Azizul Islam enters its fourth week, the family of Tracy Islam sits quietly in court hoping eventually for closure.

What has happened, happened ... it's not going to bring her back," said Josephine Mansell, 56, who viewed the first two weeks of trial before heading back to Essex, England. "We would just like to get this over with and move on.'

Emotions rise as children take the stand

BY TONY BRUSCATO

Showing his first signs of emotion, Azizul Islam wiped away tears Tuesday as he listened to testimony in his first-degree murder trial.

While the prosecution made a few points to help solidify its circumstantial case against Islam, clearly the teenagers didn't want to testify against their father.

Leadership program targets Plymouth-Canton students

BY LAURIE HUMPHREY STAFF WRITER

Persistence has paid off for local leaders looking to boost youth leadership opportunities in Plymouth and Canton.

Applications are being accepted for Youth Leadership Plymouth, a program designed to inspire area students to become community leaders. Jeanne Knopf DeRoche, president of the Knopf Company, wrote a successful grant turning this dream into reality.

"This is a long-time dream come true," said Fran Toney, director of the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce, one of the sponsoring agents. "It's been a project we have been working on a long time and one of the reasons we're able to offer it is because of Jeanne."

DeRoche, also Rotary Club of Plymouth A.M. president, has received grant money from the Michigan Department of Community Health through the Southeastern Michigan Community Alliance for the past 15 years. Funds are spent on programs intended to prevent substance abuse.

'So this is an on-going grant which will be used for a new prevention effort in the Plymouth-Canton area," she said, referring to Youth Leadership Plymouth.

Money will cover supplies and the staff time needed to research different

Township alters usual budget adoption process

Breaking from its usual practice of conducting budget study sessions, the Plymouth Township board will discuss and approve the budget in one meeting, set for 7:30 p.m. Oct.

Typically, work sessions were echeduled to answer questions prior to budget approval. At the first meeting following the August primary in which Supervisor Kathleen Keen McCarthy lost to Steve Mann, she announced she was canceling budget sessions.

"This is a status quo budget," Keen McCarthy said of the township's $13 million general fund budget. "It's a pretty straightforward budget. There's nothing here that hasn't been in previous plans. My recommendation is not to implement any new programs. There's nothing new in there. There's no point in having a meeting to have a meeting."

Trustee Chuck Curmi viewed the lack of study sessions as inefficient. "It won't be as effective," Curmi said. "It would have been nice to have another one (meeting). It's a lame duck session. This will make it more

"Yes I do," was the reply.

"Yes," said Joseph. Asizul Islam continually wiped his eyes during the testimony. After Joseph stepped down from the stand, the two embraced, and had to eventually be separated by a sheriff's deputy.

Joseph admitted when he was ticketed earlier this year by a Plymouth police officer for underage drinking, he told the officer during conversation "my father killed my mother." However, during cross examination Joseph said he made the statement because he felt "intimidated by the police officer."

Joseph testified his mother looked "like a prostitute" when she got off the plane from Loudon Dec. 16. Joseph said he wasn't concerned when his mother disappeared Dec. 20, noting "Did your father love your Tracy left without warning last mother?" was the next question. August, and only a few days into her December visit demanded to go back to England on the next available flight. "I assumed she didn't want to stay," said Joseph. "She wanted to go back to England as soon as possible. We thought she was in England because that's where she was in August." Lehto wasn't as hard on Anna, who testified she was told her mother had bills to pay and wanted to go to England in hopes of getting a better job." After testifying, Anna stepped down and hugged her father.

"Yes, I think they do," added Mansell. "Whether the jury thinks that, I don't know. But, to me, he's done this."

Both sisters are disturbed that Tracy has been labeled a prostitute, and at times portrayed as a wife and mother who didn't care about her family.

"She loved her children," said Mansell. "She left them (in Plymouth) because of their age, their education and standard of living. Otherwise, I know she would have taken them with her.

"Because we were 3,000 miles away, she never actually said anything to us that she was having marital problems," Mansell said. "But, she didn't leave him (Azizul) for another man."

Tracy is a breath of fresh air ... a lovely, lovely person," added Ross. "She idolized her kids. And it's so untrue that she was a prostitute. Police have contacted Scotland Yard and police in London and found nothing."

Troubling to both Mansell and Ross is the fact they might not be able to take Tracy's remains with them to be buried in England. Defense attorney Michael Schwartz has been accused by the prosecution of not talking to his client about burial.

"Tracy wasn't a Muslim, she was Catholic," said Ross. "We just don't know what the problem is. We think it's time for her to be put to rest."

Ross and Mansell, who have spent time and money to remain in the U.S. to see the trial, have some concerns about the U.S. judicial system.

"I'm very shocked," said Ross. The jury goes out and the judge goes out (for recess) and there's fooling around in the courtroom. It's a murder trial and it's not being portrayed as a murder trial. And then there are other court cases that are heard inbetween.

"It's very distressing," added Mansell. "The worst thing about it was having to wait a week with the jury selection."

they had the same objective improve the community by providing constructive direction to youth.

This first-year program has three goals: 1. to develop problem-solving, decision-making and communication skills for students, 2. to build an awareness for students of the community in which they live, and 3. to motivate youth to become active participants in their community.

Organizers plan to accomplish their goals through a series of hands-on learning activities scheduled through May. Activities will revolve around topics such as: team building, health and wellness, courts and law enforcement, culture and diversity, and business/vocation and education. Students are expected to attend all nine activities.

DeRoche does not feel students will be scared off by the heavy commitment. Instead, she believes eighth grade is the perfect time to attract students to this program.

These kids love to be involved and work on group projects," she said. They are still curious and want to learn.'

"Both the students and the community benefit from this," she said. "The benefit to the youngster is that they get to know the community better and they get the feeling that the community gets to know them. The benefit to the community is in the volunteer work the youngsters will do.'

Band takes 2nd in rain-shortened contest

BY DIANK HANSON SPECIAL WRITER

The rain poured, the lightning flashed and the thunder rolled as the 200-member Plymouth-Canton Educational Park Marching Band remained confined to their buses for two hours at the Bands of America Regional Championships in Toledo on Sept. 23.

That meant no final competition for the top 10 bands.

In spite of it all, the P-CEP performers came in second of the 31 top bands from five states.

"It was extremely frustrating because we intended to have a good practice this afternoon and fix the things that went wrong during our preliminary performance," said drum major Julie

She said there were corrections to be made with the tempo and timing, "just the way things flow together and adjusting to the environment of the stadium."

Heidi Schuetzler and Mallory Shy, two of the senior color guard co-captains agreed. "It went well for a little bit until we got to rifle (one of the weighted instruments maneuvered by the guard)," said Schuetzler. "It was a little iffy."

"Every toss we did, a few people dropped it."

We got all our kinks worked out this afternoon and when we couldn't do finals, we were kind of bummed," added Shy. "It was disappointing when we couldn't come and show everybody what we had improved on.

With a 9 a.m. scheduled preliminary performance at the University of Toledo's Glass Bowl Stadium, the students had arrived at the P-CEP complex at 5 a.m. that morning for warmups. Between showers and electrical storms the 31 bands from Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania, and Illinois performed their preliminary shows after two- and three-hour delays and the decision was made late in the day to cancel the finals performance and award the top ten spots based on preliminary

"It was unfortunate, especially considering how early we had to perform our preliminary show, noted David McGrath, P-CEP band director. "This early in the season it is difficult to perform a show of this level of demand without practice."

The weather continued to be a factor after Plymouth-Canton's preliminary performance when the band traveled to a nearby high school for practice.

Just as we were beginning drill rehearsal, a front moved in and I walked out and saw the static electricity was causing the students' hair to stand straight up," McGrath recalled with a smile. "We no sooner got inside when about three minutes later the storm hit."

Even so, the band's musical prowess took the audience and judges by storm, earning them the Outstanding Musical Performance award for Class AAA.

The P-CEP marchers also took second place in Class AAA as well as second place of all 31 bands with a score of 79.0. The Centerville High School Band from Centerville, Ohio edged them out of first place on both counts with a score of 81.95.

No doubt a bit of déjà vu for both bands which placed the same at last-year's regionals. The same year the P-CEP Band went on to win the Grand National Championships in Indianapolis that November.

Other Michigan bands placing in the top 10 were Durand, 10th with a score of 71.80 and Class A Regional Champions; Reeths-Puffer from Muskegon, ninth with a score of 72.25; and Jenison, fourth and Class AA Regional Champions with a score of 77.65.

"The Centerville people have an excellent band," said McGrath, but noted that the Centerville show, as well as most of the shows among the top 10 bands, was complete while the Plymouth-Canton band has another 30 drill charts and an entire musical movement to add.

"You can't rush the process," explained McGrath. The longer you rehearse mistakes, the harder it is to refine the end product. I would rather teach in segments and refine as we go. I think, at this point, it has been established that this is our approach."

And it appears to be an approach that works with the band always placing in the top 10 nationally.

"I was incredibly pleased with their performance. They actually performed beyond my expectations musically," McGrath added. "We were a little rough around the edges, but the kids did the best they could considering the circumstances."

In a brief ceremony before regional awards were given out, the P-CEP national champion returned the stately Bands of America Grand National Champion's trophy that had decorated the hometown high school's band room for the past year.

There are no doubts they are hoping to bring it back for anothserved under the Maurice Breen Oct. 10 meeting will end after administration there was one meeting to discuss and approve the budget.

"Study sessions started after Kathleen got elected, because the board was so new," Griffith said. "I thought it would only be a temporary thing."

Up until Keen McCarthy suspended study sessions the board alternated study sessions with regular board meetings.

There's little discussion any more on the budget," Griffith said. "There's not that much of it that you can change.

It's not the role of the board which sets policy to delve into minutia, Griffith said. Private corporations which have much larger budgets than Plymouth Township meet less often.

Treasurer Ron Edwards said budget study sessions are "not crucial."

Study sessions were a way to go through and review the budget. The same can be accomplished at a regular board meeting and comments will be recorded, he said. They aren't at study sessions, he added.

"Everything will be discussed in public," Edwards said. "There will be no doubt it will be amended. Edwards predicts the Board members received copies of the budget two weeks ago. "Board members who have questions can either call department heads or call me," Keen McCarthy said.

Other area municipalities, such as the City of Plymouth, value the need for budget work sessions before approving the

"Typically we have three to five study sessions," acting City Manager Paul Sincock said. "It provides an opportunity for elected officials to interact with the paid staff and have an understanding of the budget. We could have done a whole lot better last year. It provides the administration a chance to pitch their case."

Work sessions allow the city officials to study how an existing program is working. For instance, they may want to evaluate the fall leaf program and how it is working, Sincock said.

Canton Township Supervisor Tom Yack said that one study session is held prior to budget

Edwards criticized board members who take everything said by department heads as "gospel" and who rubber stamp decisions without asking the right questions or enough questions.

On the issue of millage setting, Edwards said he annually questions the philosophy and method of setting the millage rate before the new budget is approved.

"We should pass the budget before we pass the millage,' Edwards said. "How can you set a millage rate for next year without knowing what your expenses are to collect? The board has a history of increasing its fund balance. You might have an opportunity to lower the taxes. I have been a proponent of lowering taxes. It's putting the cart before the horse. We get into this dispute every year. How can you set a millage rate if you haven't approved the budget?

The unintentional millage increase amounts to pennies," Edwards said.

The vote is important because by Sept. 30 the township needed to pass the millage and get it to the county," Edwards said. "It's a state requirement."

The information won't be submitted on time, he said.

Keen McCarthy couldn't say Thursday what information would be submitted to the county now that the error was discovered.

Harvey, who works for Keen McCarthy, said she will contact the county and explain what happened.

With growth in the community at about 12 percent, Edwards wants to reduce the millage and give taxpayers a $2 or $3 break.

Curmi who also voted against the resolution was surprised to learn of the error.

Curmi felt he didn't get good answers from Harvey at the meeting. Following his gut instincts, he voted no. When he learned of the error, he was thankful of his decision. "This is a campaign issue." Curmi said at the meeting. "I got bashed by a bunch of people who said I raised taxes every year for eight years. Really what they meant was because the SEV (state equalized value) went up, even if you kept the millage rate the same, taxes did go up because you collected more rev-

Democrat challenger stays out of forum for 20th House race

A League of Women Voters of Livonia candidates forum on Oct. 9 was supposed to offer voters a chance to learn about candidates in three races. It's now down to just one.

Lenore Garner, voter service chairwoman of the League, reports that several candidates can't or won't make it to the forum. In the 20th state House District, Democrat

David Gray of Northville told her he wasn't going to participate.

After two letters and three visits to his house, Garner said, she caught him at home and asked if he was the candidate in the 20th District race. "He said, Well, reluctantly," Garner said.

That leaves Republican John Stewart as the only candidate in that district, which includes part of western Livonia and Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Northville.

And League rules won't allow a one-candidate debate. "If we don't have at least two people, we don't have a forum," she said.

Stewart, after a close race and recount in the Republican primary, was excited that his opponent wasn't responding and seemed to be taking the race less than seriously. "I'm feeling a little more relieved that five weeks from Monday, I will have a job in Lansing," he said.

Meanwhile, in the 19th District that covers the rest of Livonia and Redford Township, state Rep. Laura Toy, R-Livonia will reportedly be getting foot surgery the day of the forum. Meanwhile, her Democratic opponent, Michael Burke Sullivan, cannot be contacted. Libertarian John Tatar was

In the Wayne County Commission races, incumbent Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, faces no Democratic opponent in the 10th District race - so there's no forum scheduled.

The only debate that will take place is for the Wayne County Commission 9th District, which covers eastern Livonia, Redford Township and Dearborn Heights. Incumbent Republican Kathleen Husk of Redford will square off against Democratic primary winner, Philip Cavanagh of Dearborn Heights.

Garner expected the candidates forum to last about a half hour. It starts at 7 p.m. Monday, Oct. 9, at Livonia City Hall, on Five Mile just east of Dearborn Lithograph of Livonia will produce 14,000 Year 2001 calendars at a cost of $11,974 for Plymouth Township. It will cost more than $2,000 to mail. Information will be contained in the middle of the calendar. Dearborn Lithograph also produces a calendar for the City of Novi.

The Plymouth Observer will provide some photos free, with freelancers doing the rest, said Kevin Brown, administrative aide to the superintendent.

The calendar will not be mailed to businesses because board members thought it would be thrown out.

Trustee Chuck Curmi voted against the purchase because he preferred spending the money for a more interactive Web site that could be changed throughout the year. He also asked how sending out a calendar will affect future newsletter mail-

Trustee Kay Arnold, who suggested a municipal calendar, said it could cut down on questions called in to the township.

She finds value in a calendar because it can be tacked up. "I post things up so I could remember them," Arnold said. Many older residents don't have computers, she said.

A calendar could answer numerous questions. "There are things in here that I wouldn't have to put out anymore," said Treasurer Ron Edwards. "Things like where to call on tax

A calendar is worth a try, according to trustee Ron Grif-

"If it would save tax money and phone calls let's try it," said Griffith, who also wanted a way to assess residents' response to the calendar.

Morton Taylor road work hits another snag

BY LAURIE HUMPHREY

Work on Morton Taylor in Canton Township has hit anoth-

It has been almost a year since work began on the one-mile stretch of road between Ford and Warren. A July 30 completion date was anticipated for the $3.25 million project, but now officials are aiming for the middle of November.

spokesman for the Wayne County roads department, the project was delayed for two reasons.

"First, there was a change in the bridge design," he explained. "We had to make an adjustment and that took a couple of weeks."

Coupled with "a very wet season" in which "we lost a good number of work days," he admits progress has been slow.

Roach said it is "not uncommon" for projects to run behind schedule, especially if they involve bridge work. Despite the delay, the price tag for the work will not increase. Wayne County is sharing the cost of the project with the state, which awarded Canton a grant from the Trans-

Roach expects the paving to last about one week, followed by three weeks of "off road" work.

Work was slated on Morton Taylor to alleviate north/south congestion in Canton Township, which is experiencing a swelling population. Road widening is also occurring on Haggerty and Canton Center roads, between Ford and Warren.

In the meantime, Canton Township officials are warning local motorists that periodic delays will occur on Hanford Road during the construction. Only one lane will remain open for two-way traffic.

Beard lobbies Congress on social services, hospitals

BY RICHARD PEARL STAFF WRITER

Wayne County Commission Vice Chair Kay Beard, D-Westland, spearheaded a group of Michigan county legislators which went Sept. 13-15 to Washington, D.C., and lobbied the state's congressional delegation on behalf of two key social pro-

The programs targeted by the county officials dealt with funding for a variety of child and adult services and for hospitals which treat the indigent.

Other county officials from across the country lobbied their congressional delegations and also the Clinton Administration on those and other subjects.

Joining Beard from Wayne County in the lobbying effort was fellow Commissioner George Cushingberry Jr., D-Detroit.

The lobbying was Beard's first "in a couple of years," she said. Since such trips are official county business and at taxpayer expense, Beard said she tries to limit them only to those dealing with issues "most critical to Wayne County and to Michigan." That was the case this time, said Beard, who served as spokeswoman for her group, introducing the topics at each meeting.

Her group pushed Congress members such as Rep. Lynn Rivers, D-Ann Arbor, Rep. John

Dingell, D-Dearborn, and U.S. Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., to restore the Social Services Block Grants funding (Title XX) to its originally promised level of $2.38 billion and also to freeze additional cuts to the Medicaid Disproportionate Share Hospitals program before the 106th Congress's scheduled adjournment on Oct. 6.

"Congress has broken its promise" regarding Title XX funding, Beard said.

'Be grateful'

"Congress promised us $2.38 billion in 1996," she said, "but delivered only $1.7 billion and expects us to be grateful for a lesser amount that does not meet the needs of the citizens in our counties."

Beard noted that, in Michigan. the money is used for adoption and foster-care services, counseling services, pregnancy and parenting services and also for child and adult protection services.

"Congress obviously doesn't understand the importance of this issue," Beard said. "Reducing funding in this manner means that counties across the United States have to choose between things like domestic violence programs and Meals on Wheels. This is simply unconscionable."

Beard explained that funding for Medicaid DSH supports the nation's "safety net" hospitals: Those that provide medical services for uninsured and underinsured residents.

However, the Balanced Budget Act of 1997 cut $10.4 billion from Medicaid DSH over five years, she said, with most of it due to affect county budgets as a 30percent cut scheduled for fiscal vear 2001 and a 37-percent cut for FY 2002.

Citing a report stating the country's safety net is falling while the number of uninsured is increasing, Beard and the others sought to prevent funding cuts beyond FY 2000 levels.

They emphasized that, as providers of last resort, many urban county hospitals must, by law, provide health care to uninsured residents, whether or not the people can pay.

"This is a nonpartisan issue."

Beard said. "I understand the budgetary concerns that some member of Congress might have, but we are talking about the health of 44 million people here."

4 bills on tap

Four legislative bills currently on Capitol Hill would freeze Medicaid DSH cuts, Beard noted. The bills "would help to mend the safety net that protects this country's uninsured

"It's my job to tell Congress to do the right thing and pass this legislation," Beard said.

Others with whom Beard's group also met were Reps. Dale Kildee, D-Flint, and Sander Levin, D-Southfield, as well as the legislative assistant to Rep. Debbie Stabenow, D-Lansing.

Cushingberry also was scheduled to meet with U.S. Rep. Carolyn Cheeks Kilpatrick, D-Detroit.

appointments were arranged for Beard's group with Rep. David Bonior, D-Mt. Clemens, or Sen. E. Spencer Abraham, R-Mich.

The lobbying effort was coordinated by the Large Urban County Caucus, a division of the National Association of Counties consisting of the 100 most populous counties in the United States.

With a population of about two million, Wayne County ranks eighth in the country.

Educators across Michigan are working feverishly to create a major new program that residents will get their first glimpee of early next year ... essentially a statewide "support network for parents" as it is described by Craig Ruff of Public Sector Con-

Known as "Ready to Succeed," the program's goal is to provide early education to Michigan's youngest residents, those under the age of 5. Recent research into brain development shows that most of it actually occurs between birth and age 3, long before a child gets anywhere near a classroom.

A lack of stimulation at those young ages, or too much of the wrong kind, can change the physical structure of the brain, according to Joan Lessen-Firestone, early childhood education consultant for the Oakland Intermediate School District. Those structural changes can lead to learning and behavioral problems later in life.

It turns out that what kids need at those young ages is just what good parents are already giving them - talking to their children, reading, cuddling, hugging, time, attention and positive stimulation

80-20 rule

"This is not new. What brain research does is confirm what we knew by instinct," Ruff said. "Now we can actually see how it happens."

It's the old 80-20 rule," Lessen-Firestone said. "Eighty percent of parents are doing fine and don't need help. The other 20 percent are having trouble and they know they need help."

What they lack is training in how to be a good parent, or they may not have even seen a good example of it when they were growing up themselves. They may be unaware of the resources already available to parents. Or they may just be too rushed with a busy schedule.

Michigan lawmakers decided earlier this year to give those parents $45 million worth of help from the state's coffers. The allocation was tacked onto the state Department of Education budget and will be used to fund grants to K-12 school districts and intermediate school districts which will operate the programs Educators from school districts and intermediate school districts from across the state gathered in Lansing Thursday and Friday, Sept. 21-22, to work on their grant proposals. Called the Ready to Succeed Dialogue with Michigan," the statewide summit was actually a working seminar.

Ruff said the goal was that many of the educators in attendance would leave the summit with much of their grant applications already filled in.

The hope is that the state will get inundated with first class, well organized applications for these funds so lawmakers will see just how important this is."

Time is short

But time is short, he said. Since the money was allocated just this past spring, the Department of Education issued its request for proposals only last week. The deadline for submission is early December.

Firestone said the money is to be handed out in February and the programs are supposed to start by next June.

A variety of programs are in the works, including "facilitybased" programs and home visitations with new parents.

Troy resident Priscilla Perkins, president of the Junior League of Birmingham, said her group is already operating a related program at Robert Frost Elementary in the Pontiac School District. That program offers six-week long courses in parenting skills at the school. Already, that program will provide child care while the parents attend the classes. The Ready to Succeed grant money could well fund an expansion of that pro-

Parents may not have the skills, or may be starting out at a young age as parents themselves, but teaching parents the skills and connecting them to available community resources can made a difference.

"What you have to realize is that good parenting is a choice," she said.

Working with schools

Birmingham resident Susan Hamilton Foley, of the state Junior League, said her organization will be working with school districts across Michigan to put the programs together. The Junior League has 296 chapters in the state, 9,000 members, but it is only one example of the civic organizations that will be working with districts to launch these pro-

Another program in the works is home visitation. Lessen-Firestone and Rep. Pan Godchaux, R-Birmingham, say one goal of the program is to have a home visitor meet with every new parent in the state shortly after they bring their babies home from the hospital. The purpose is to make sure all parents know the importance of early brain development and what resources are available to them in the community. Lessen-Firestone said she envisions the visitors will carry with a "Welcome Baby" package to new parents, much like the packages Welcome Wagon hands to new residents.

The Ready to Succeed program is the culmination of several years of work. Back in 1992, the state put $100,000 in seed money to the program and assigned Public Sector Consultants to get the ball rolling.

Traditionally, the state puts no resources into the education of a child until they reach age 5 when that research shows most of the development occurs before age 3.

Size counts

The Detroit Rockers have made a "big" move.

The largest player ever to take to the turf for a National Professional Soccer League team is coming to the Rockers: Shawn Boney, a 6-foot-7, 265-pound forward, who comes to the Rockers from the Toronto Thunder-Hawks for an undisclosed amount of money. Toronto acquired Boney in the expansiondraft.

Boney, 29, is entering his fourth year in the NPSL; he spent the first three with the Cleveland Crunch. Last season he had 50 points and 27 blocks in helping the Crunch capture the NPSL title.

"We are carefully assembling a winning puzzle and Boney will be one of the most important parts of that puzzle," said Rockers' coach Drago. "His sheer size, strength and speed wil lhelp make our front line a very formidable to be reckoned with for all of our NPSL opponents."

Originally from Trinidad, Boney achieved All-America status at NCAA Division II Southern Connecticut St. in 1996. He was also drafted by Major League Soccer's L.A. Galaxy.

League-leaders

Several players for Schoolcraft College's volleyball team are either leading the Michigan Community College Athletic Association's Eastern Conference, or are close to the top.

Nicole Boyd, a Westland native from Livonia Franklin HS, is first in the conference in kills per game (3.43), just ahead of teammate Lauren Ruprecht, from Livonia Churchill (3.00).

Ruprecht leads the league in kill percentage (.296), a category in which Boyd is third (.281), Andrea Kmet (from Churchill) is fourth (.270) and Fran Hamilton is fifth (.259).

Jana Nitschke is first in setting percentage (.402), third in assists to kills per game (7.64), and is tied for second in service aces per game (0.50).

Amanda Yacklin leads the conference in both passing percentage (.952) and aces per game (0.53). Kmet is fourth in passing percentage (.921) and Rebekah Thornton is fifth in serving percentage (.941).

The Lady Ocelots were 8-1 in conference matches and 12-5 overall through Tuesday.

SC women 5th

The Schoolcraft College women's cross country team placed fifth at the Grand Valley State Invitational Sept. 23 at Grand Valley.

The host team finished first with 41 points, followed by Hillsdale College (46), Oakland University (64), Ferris State (76) and SC (144).

Top runners for the Lady Ocelots: Gabrielle Crandell, 28th overall (20:59); Jennifer Furlong, 38th (21:43); Heidi Frank, 46th (22:04); Amanda Davis, 50th (22:36); Christine Smith, 56th (23:16); and Andrea Garibaldi, 61st (23:33).

Hawks win title

The U-11 Michigan Hawks won five-straight games and outscored their opponents 19-1 to win the Metro Stars Global Soccer Tournament championship at Oakland University.

The Hawks beat Huron Valley Lightning, 6-0, Bloomfield Football Club Blazers, 4-1, Rochester Lightning, 1-0, the Troy Lazers, 3-0 and beat Bloomfield Force in the championship, 5-0.

Team members are Kathleen Griffith and Theresa Yankovich (Livonia), Amber Hernandez, Allison Eckler and Emma Peterson (Farmington Hills), Katie Chaklos, Jenna Carosio and Jamie Fratto (Novi), Jalese DiBiasi (Allen Park), Afton Delvecchio (Birmingham), Mimi Howlett (Bloomfield Hills), Kelsey Kassab (Pinckney), Sloane Levin (Hamburg), Christy Naife (Commerce), Sara Ross (Canton), Samantha Shoemaker (White Lake) and Courtney Whalen (Redford). The team is coached by Livonia Franklin graduate Tiffany Graves.

Deb Robert of New Baltimore took low gross honors with a 72 to win the first flight at the Michigan Women's Publinx Golf Association fall stroke play tournament Sept. 23 at Fox Hills in Plymouth.

In the second flight, Jane Kersjes (Plymouth) captured low gross with an 87, edging Lu Stockton (Canton) and D.J. Wallace with 88 and 89, respectively.

Canton comes up short against Western

BY ED WRIGHT

Not long ago, the gap separating Plymouth Canton from the Western Lakes Activities Association's elite teams was about as wide as Walled Lake.

Thursday night at Walled Lake Western, the gap was only three yards. That's all the real estate that separated the Chiefs from the defending Division I state champion Warriors in a key WI.AA showdown.

The Warriors sacked Canton quarterback Oliver Wolcott on a two-point conversion attempt with 1:56 left to preserve a thrilling 34-32 victory over the resilient Chiefs, who had stormed back from a 34-20 fourth-quarter descript

"I was proud of our effort, but we have to eliminate the critical mistakes we made tonight," stressed Canton coach Tim Baechler, whose team fell to 4-2 overall and 2-2 in the league. "We had a missed extra point that forced us to go for two at the end, and we had a fumble on a punt return in the first

"I felt good coming into this game because the kids didn't make a big deal out of it; they just went out and played football. Our offensive line did a great job in the first half and our running backs ran hard. We just have to eliminate the mistakes."

nate the mistakes."

The Warriors improved to 5-1 overall and 4-0 in the WLAA with the win.

Western coach Mike Zdebski said Canton gave his team everything he expected — and more.

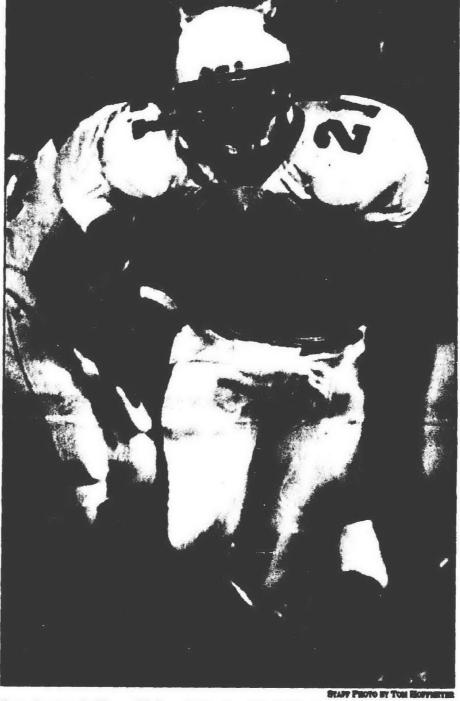

"Canton is a well-oiled machine on offense," Zdebski said, wiping his brow. "They come right at you.

"The thing that is tough about playing Canton is that there's no way you can simulate the way they execute their offense in practice. So it took us almost two quarters to adjust. Our defensive coaches tweaked our defense a little halfway through the second quarter and I think it slowed them down a little bit."

Utilizing a conservative two-tight end, three-back offensive formation, the Chiefs literally steamrolled up and down the field in the first half, scoring on three of their four possessions.

After taking the opening kickoff at its own 34-yard line, Canton orchestrated a methodical seven-play drive (all running plays), which was capped by Dane Kobus' 11-yard TD run. You could have heard a pin drop on the stunned Western side of the field as Chief kicker Brady Burns drilled the extra point to make it 7-0.

Playing like a team that has two state titles in the past four years, the Running well: Dane Kobus (11) shredded Western's defense for 150 rushing yards on 27 attempts Thursday, but it wasn't quite enough for the Chiefs.

Warriors bounced back on their opening drive, which was climaxed by a 35-yard TD run by Steve VanNortwick through the gut of the Chief defense. Western tried a trick play on its two-point conversion attempt, but it was stuffed by Canton, leaving the score at 7.8

The Chiefs increased their lead to 14-

Whalers get rare road win over Petes

By NICK GISMONDI SPECIAL WRITER

The Plymouth Whalers started their swing through eastern Ontario off right by winning for the first time in four years at Peterborough's Memorial Centre, trouncing the Petes 7-4 in an Ontario Hockey League game Thursday.

With numerous players still absent from the lineup, the Plymouth Whalers were again to rely on the play of their rookies. In addition to Jared Newman, Damian Surma and Justin Williams, who are in NHL camps, Libor Ustrnul received a five-game suspension from the OHL for "manhandling an official" at the home opener against the Ottors

Also, Stacey Britstone was out due to a coaches decision and Tomas Kurka and Steve Morris went down with injuries sustained in the first period against the Petes.

"We had a full line of quality guys out tonight and also our top two defenseman, then we lost Morris and Kurka early with some minor injuries," said associate coach and assistant general manager Steve Spott. "Six guys total, so our rookies definitely needed to step up their games." And they did just that, jumping to a 3-0 lead in the first period. Tony Williams, in his first game with Plymouth, scored two first-period goals to lead the assault.

Williams scored the game's first goal, tipping a Cole Jarrett slap shot past Peterborough goalie Joey MacDonald at 5:25 of the first period for a 1-0 lead. Ramsey also picked up an assist.

Canton resident James Wisniewski, who also scored twice (he has three this season) in the game, made it 2-0 on a shot from the point on the power play.

Williams' second goal was set up by Kris

Without doubt, the opening portion of Plymouth Canton's dual-meet season has been a difficult one.

Without doubt, Livonia Franklin the Chiefs' opponent Thursday - discovered how misleading that 0-4 start

Canton's swimmers splashed to 11 first-place finishes in 12 events, swamping the Patriots 140-46. That made the Chiefs 1-4 overall and took them to 1-2 in the Western Lakes Activities Associa-

Brittany and Danielle Drysdale each won two individual events and both were on two winning relays. Brittany's individual wins came in the 200-yard freestyle (2:07.28) and 100 backstroke

(1:06.94); Danielle's came in the 50 free (25.70) and 100 butterfly (1:01.68).

Danielle's win in the butterfly provided the best race of the night. Her victory bettered the state meet qualifying standard of 1:02.29, a time that Franklin's Amy Smith also beat (1:01.78).

There were some other nice races," said Canton assistant coach Ed Weber. "We just kept touching Franklin out. The girls swam really well tonight."

Canton's other individual event winners were Alex Derian-Toth in the 200 individual medley (2:39.12); Jamie

Bielak in the 100 free (59.49); Celine Nambride in the 500 free (6:04.05); and Erin Rogala in the 100 breaststroke

Brittany Drysdale, Rogala, Danielle Drysdale and Stacy Ritter were first in the 200 medley relay (2:01.85); Danielle Drysdale, Bielak, Lindsey Muliolis and Ritter captured the 200 free relay (1:51.11); and Ritter, Muliolis, Bielak and Brittany Drysdale won the 400 free relay (4:06.28).

Franklin's only victory came from Penny Patteeuw in diving (138.80

Salem sinks Farmington

It was a clean sweep for Plymouth Salem's swim team Thursday at Farmington.

The Rocks won all 12 events in dunking the Falcons 148-38. The win gave Salem a 2-0 dual-meet record, both overall and in the WLAA.

Double winners in individual events were Jenny Crabill in the 200-yard individual medley (2:28.71) and 100 backstroke (1:09.78) and Kari Foust in the 100 freestyle (1:00.8) and 100 breaststroke (1:18.29).

Other individual-event winners were Monica Glowski in the 200 free (2:07.72); Emily Laskie in the 50 free (27.58); Molly Hedges in diving (136.30 points); Amy Mertens in the 100 butterfly (1:04.92); and Trisha Dotson in the 500 free (6:01.07).

Foust, Mertens, Alicia Dotson and Nicole Genrich won the 200 medley. relay (2:03.81); Glowski, Laskie, Alicia Dotson and Mertens were first in the 200 free relay (1:50.56); and Glowski, Mertens, Alicia Dotson and Christy Roy collected a win in the 40 free relay (4:01.27).

While this victory came easily. enough, the upcoming week will be much different. Salem hosts non-league foe Dearborn Tuesday and defending WLAA champ (and state-ranked) Livonia Stevenson Thursday. Both meets begin at 7 p.m.

On Thursday at Walled Lake Central, Salem's girls basketball team survived a three-point second quarter thanks to some tough defense and a pretty good opening quarter.

The result was a 39-23 victory, boosting the Rocks' record to 6-3 overall, 2-1 in the WLAA. Central slipped to 3-6 overall, 2-1 in the WLAA.

We struggled a bit early, but we adjusted and did a really nice job," said Salem coach Fred Thomann. "They packed up a 2-3 zone, so we had to figure out a way to play it, and we did."

Unlike their loss to Plymouth Canton two days earlier, in which Kelly Jaskot carried the scoring load, several players contributed heavily to this victory. Katie Kelly led the Rocks with 13 points; Jaskott and Jenna Van Wagoner each added eight points and five rebounds, and Dawn Allen collected six points and five more boards.

Stacey Brinkman's 11 points paced the Vikings.

Salem led 13.7 after the first quarter and offset its three-point second period by limiting Central to the same total, giving the Rocks a 16-10 halftime lead. They increased that to 26-16 after three quarters, then finished the game the way they started it, outscoring the Vikings 13-7 in the fourth period.

Canton 57, W.L. Western 17: As Plymouth Canton coach Bob Blohm noted, "We haven't scored that many points in entire games this season."

Blohm was talking about the Chiefs' 31-point first quarter, which left visiting Walled Lake Western in a 31-5 hole. Against a team as defensively tough as Canton, that was an insurmountable Canton improved to 6-3 overall, 3-0 in the WLAA. Western fell to 5-4 overall, 0-3 in the conference.

The Chiefs, who led 44-9 at the half and 54-14 after three quarters, got 17 points from Amanda Lentz and 11 more from Angie Neu. Janine Guastella added nine and Ashley Williams scored Guastella scored eight of her points in 4-0 in the Catholic League's Central the first quarter; Neu and Lentz had seven apiece in that period.

The Warriors were hurt by the illness of top scorer Kristen Burgess, who tried to play but was clearly suffering. She was limited to one point. Natalie Testani's five points topped Western.

"I don't ever remember scoring that many in a quarter," said Blohm. "And defensively I see us getting better. We're putting good pressure on the ball without fouling. We're playing better in defensive transition and offensively we're moving the ball better."

Agape 55, Greater Life 18: Amber Cross scored 19 points and had 16 rebounds Thursday night to lead Canton Agape Christian to its win over Pontiac Greater Life Academy in a game played at Wayne Memorial HS.

Agape (6-3) also got 14 points from Amy Henry. The Wolverines led at half-

Greater Life Academy (2-4) got seven points from Allison Dumas.

Ladywood 54, Regina 47: Stateranked Livonia Ladywood improved to third quarter and found itself trailing Division with a victory Friday at Harper Woods Ragina.

Ladywood is now 8-2 overall and 4-0 in the Central. The Blazers have a showdown Tuesday at home with unbeaten Redford Bishop Borgess (6-0,

The Blazers led all the way, never letting the host Saddelites (4-6, 2-2) get clsoer than two points.

Michelle Harakas, a 6-foot-1 senior forward who has committed to Illinois State, led Ladywood with 24 points and nine rebounds. Liz Obrecht, a junior center, contributed 17 points and nine rebounds.

Sarah Thomson scored 21 to lead Regina, while Candice Shule added 11.

Ladywood, which led 31-23 halftime, was outscored 9-4 in the third quarter after the Saddelites came out in a 2-3

PCA 47, Troy 44: Talk about up and down struggles.

Plymouth Christian Academy had a six-point lead at halftime, lost it in the

Clark was the savior down the ... stretch. Trailing by three, she scored two baskets and, after a defensive stop by PCA, made two free throws that pushed the Eagle lead to three. Clark finished with 19 points, 10

Leanne Long paced Southfield Christian with 15 points, converting 7-of-7 at the free throw line.

SC gets a pair of shutout wins — and a national ranking Schoolcraft College's women's soccer team celebrated its new top-10 national ranking by blanking St. Clair College (Windsor) 3-0 Wednesday at SC.

And the player who did the most celebrating was Kelly Connell. The midfielder from Plymouth Canton HS who was co-Offensive MVP last year for the Lady Ocelots pumped in all three goals to spark the victory.

She wasn't the only spark, however. Keeper Amy Dorogi, who played with Connell at Canton, definitely earned the shutout when she stopped a penalty kick.

The win raised SC's record to 11-0-2. In the latest NJCAA poll, the Ocelots were ranked 10th in the country. Last Sunday in East Lansing, SC put together a strong performance in blanking Michigan State's reserve team 2-0. "It was a well-played game," said SC coach Bill Tolstedt. "It was a very competitive contest, much better than our first out-

The Ocelots won that match as well, but by a 6-1 margin, on Sept. 10. In the more recent win, they got goals in each half to gain the victory. Angela Maile scored the first, with assists from Kristah Manteuffel (Redford Thurston) and Danielle Shaffer. Shaffer got the second goal, assisted by Manteuffel and Kristen Hait. This weekend, they'll find out if their ranking is accurate when the College of Lake County (Ill.), Lewis and Clark (St. Louis) and Monroe (N.Y.) come to town for the Ocelot Invitational. Lewis and Clark is the defending NJCAA champion, a title it gained by beating Monroe in the final last season. Lake County is ranked as well.

Madonna men tie

In a match littered with yellow cards, Madonna University let a two-goal lead get away from it in playing Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference rival Siena Heights to a 3-3 draw Thursday in Adrian.

The Saints, whose record went to 5-2-1 overall and to 4-0-1 in the WHAC, got the game's first goal from Ryan Lucia at the 18:30 mark of the first half.

Madonna answered with three goals, two coming in the first half. Salvatore Piraine got the first at the 30-minute mark, tying it at 1-all; Michael Healy

Coming into this cross country season, Plymouth Canton boys coach Bill Boyd thought his team could surprise some people, if his squad could stay

Well, they couldn't. Going into Thursday's dual meet with Farmington Harrison, the Chiefs had four key runners either out of the lineup or far below par with illness or injury - including No. 1 Jon Mikosz and Scott Gillen, one of their top three placers.

"It's been a tough year," said Boyd. "But the kids have responded. We'll be all right when they come back.'

Heck, Canton's not too bad right now. Even with all the absenses - also out of action are Marty Kane (groin pull) and Aaron Lanning (stress fracture) - the Chiefs managed to mangle Harrison by a 19-42 margin in a meet run at Cass

The victory improved Canton's record in Western Lakes Activities Association dual meets to a surprising 5-0.

"We're doing a lot better than expected," said Boyd. "A lot better." The Chiefs grabbed five of the top six places in their win over the Hawks. Brandon McClellan was first overall in 17:32, well ahead of Harrison's Brian Coates, who was second in 17:41.

Chiefs filled the next four spots: Pat Pruitt was third (17:42), Brian Page took fourth (17:58), Ryan Stanko finished fifth (18:05) and Jon Western was sixth (18:09).

All five performances were personal records.

"I knew we were pretty good," said Boyd. "I thought we had a chance (to be in WLAA title race) if we stayed healthy."

The Chiefs haven't stayed healthy, but they are in the race.

Next up is the Ypsilanti Braves Invitational Saturday. On Oct. 12, Canton will need all its top guns when it goes against Livonia Churchill and Northville in a WLAA double-dual meet at Cass Benton. Both are currently unbeaten in league meets.

Harrison girls nip Canton

Plymouth Canton girls filled seven of the top 10 spots in Thursday's dual meet against Farmington Harrison at Cass Benton.

But it didn't matter in the final analysis. Because the top three places belonged to the Hawks.

And once that happens, there's no way an opponent can overcome it in dual-meet competition. So Canton lost by the narrowest of margins, 29-30. The loss left the Chiefs at 1-2 in WLAA dual meets. When a team goes 1-2-3 on you, two of their top runners, sophomore Mary Maloney and junior Rachel Lindman. Maloney suffered an ankle sprain the Lakes Division. and Lindman strained her hamstring muscle.

Harrison's top three were Christine Metry (20:58), Kori DeHuff (21:52) and Lauren Liebowitz (22:07).

Canton had the next seven spots: Terra Kubert, fourth (22:12); Allison Mills, fifth (22:26); Sarah McCormick, sixth (22:31); Pam Reasor, seventh (22:34); Erica Stoney, eighth (22:37); Shiri Leventhal, ninth (22:41); and Tonda Shimbo, 10th (22:54).

Next up for the Chiefs are the Ypsilanti Braves Invitational Saturday.

Salem girls tumble

For the past decade or so, Livonia Stevenson has pretty much ruled girls cross country in the WLAA. So what happened when Plymouth Salem took on the Spartans was, well, predictable.

The Rocks managed just one finisher in the top eight in falling, 17-46, Thursday at Cass Benton. The loss left Salem at 3-2 overall in the WLAA and 2-2 in "This race was a lot closer than the score showed," said Salem coach Dave Gerlach. "We got beat by a better team on this day. Both teams ran well. Stevenson had nine runners under 21:30. There are not many other teams around that can brag about that.

"I am proud of the girls for going out there and battling with the league's best team. We have nothing to be ashamed of with our effort today.

Overall winner in the race was Stevenson's Lisa Montgomery (19:52). Salem's best was Stephanie Hajduk, who placed fourth in 21:04.

The Rocks' other placers were Halle Burton, ninth (21:30); Kelly Solano, 10th (22:03); Erin Jensen, 11th (22:12); Katie Dondzila, 12th (22:14); Liisa Keski-Hynnila, 13th (22:18); and Autumn Hicks, 14th (22:46).

Salem runs next at the Ypsilanti Braves Invitational Saturday.

Salem stops skid with 2 WLAA wins; Canton divides a pair

The streak is stopped.

Plymouth Salem's golf team saw to that last Wednesday, and the Rocks did it with emphasis, posting a score against Farmington that was one stroke shy of the school match record for five golfers.

Salem stopped the Falcons

188-202 at St. John's, led by Mike Thackaberry's medalistearning 36.

The win ended the Rocks' twomatch losing streak and, coupled with Thursday's win over Walled Lake Western, improved their record to 6-2 in the Western Lakes Activities Association. Farmington slipped to 4-4.

All five Salem golfers broke 40 in the victory. Bobby Jones shot 37, Brian Gullen and Jon Gordon each fired 38s, and Brady Pastalaniec - just summoned from the junior varsity responded with a 39. Jay Smith added a non-counting score of 42.

Farmington was paced by Bill

Mortens and Keith Hay, each with a 39. Brad Barenie and Adam Schuyken each shot 41s, and Joe Proven had a 42.

On Thursday, Walled Lake Western visited Salem at St. John's and, although the score was quite the same, the results were: a Salem win, this one by a 200-209 margin.

This time is was Gullen who was red-hot, firing a one-under par 34. Jones wasn't far behind with a 35. Next up for Salem was Thackaberry with a 42, followed by Gordon with a 44 and Smith with a 45.

Western (3-4) was led by Scott Williams' 38. Steve Sobieck's 40 was next, with Ralph Martello and Russ Walk firing 43s and Trevor Montette a 45.

"We played a different nine today than we usually play," said 186, with all five golfers shooting Salem coach Rick Wilson about the difference in his team's scores. "We hadn't played this nine in a while.

"Didn't bother Gullen or Jones, though.'

Salem closes out its WLAA season this week, starting with a Tuesday match against Walled Lake Central at Edgewood.

Canton splits a pair

One day after suffering a lopsided defeat, Plymouth Canton rebounded to hand North Farmington the same kind of treat-

On Wednesday at Tanglewood, Northville put together a superb score in improving its WLAA record to 5-1 - at the Chiefs' expense. The Mustangs totaled 38 or better; Canton had a 205.

"Our players didn't feel bad," said Canton coach Tom Alles. "They weren't discouraged by any means. They were just out of their league yesterday.'

Derek Vermeulen's 38 was best for the Chiefs. Scott Oliver followed with a 39, with Andrew Wagner getting a 41, Mike Baracy a 43 and Ryan McKendry a 44. Chris Slupek was sixth man with a 47.

Northville's Kris Betker was medalist with a 36, followed by Tom Borda and Steve Mills with 37s and Dave Oljace and Dean Conway next with 38s. Bill Montgomery's 43 was the Mustangs sixth score.

The loss certainly didn't keep Canton down. On Thursday at Hilltop, they rolled past struggling North Farmington, 197-

Vermeulen continued his impressive play with a medalistearning one-under par 34. Baracy, Wagner and McKendry were next, each with a 40, with Oliver adding a 43. Jason Brand was sixth with a 45.

The Raiders were paced by Mike Patterson and Bob Turkovich, each with 44. Brian Bober and Vince McKeon had 48s and Tony Rey shot a 50. Randy Yu was sixth with a 51.

Instead of sulking, Canton put together its most impressive drive of the game. Gaines, Kobus and Chad Fuller busted through huge holes created by the offen-, sive line, moving the Chiefs 64 yards to paydirt.

It took Canton nine plays and five minutes to move 31 yards and score on Gaines' 1-yard TD

Trailing 34-32, Baechler called time out to set up the potential game-tying two-point effort.

Canton split three receivers wide right and lined up one running back (Kobus) in the backfield with Wolcott, who took the snap and sprinted right before getting gang-tackled at the 9yard line before he could let go of Paced by VanNortwick's 116 yards rushing and Ziem's 112 passing yards, the Warriors outgained the Chiefs, 295-285, in total yards. Kobus finished with 150 yards rushing on 27 carries while Gaines managed 69 yards in 14 attempts.

Wolcott was nearly flawless at the helm, completing 4-of-6 passes for 37 yards and two TDs. The senior QB also kept the Warriors' defense guessing all night with deceptive ball-handling.

Canton converted 17 first downs to Western's 11.

Apples got their start in ancient Egypt

sters are the wildflowers of autumn, and apples are the fruit of autumn. During this season we enjoy some of the 7,000 varieties of apples found worldwide.

Those varieties started from apples cultivated in Asia Minor more than 2,000 years ago. Malus pumila is the scientific name of the plant that started it all. Egyptians grew apples along the Nile during the 13th century B.C. Through selection of certain plants for different qualities, people back as far as the third century B.C. had developed seven varieties of apple.

During those early days of apple cultivation the fruit was not common. Kings and queens were those who enjoyed this sweet pome. But as time passed they became available to the general public. In fact, it was written that in Europe ladies of the evening would toss apples to their favorite customers at some of the houses of ill

Caesar introduced apples to Britain. By the third and fourth centuries Europe and Britain were well aware of this tasty member of the rose family. In North America native Americans were only familiar with crab apples. These tiny, bitter relatives were not used extensively as a food source. But because they are closely related to the cultivated apple of Asia Minor, they were helpful in establishing the sweet apple in North

It was not until 1623 that the cultivated apple made its way to North America, William Blackstone, an English Episcopalian minister, brought some trees from England. Unfortunately, his trees, and those of Puritans brought in 1630, did not produce fruit. It was determined that native ground bees were not good at pollinating the spring flowers. When honey bees from England were brought to North America, their problems were solved.

Early settlers were known to make cider from crab apples that grew naturally, but it was palatable only after the addition of lots of sugar. Cultivated apples were much better for this purpose. Cider presses were common in those early colonial days.

But apples also provided food in the form of apple butter and apple slices. Apples were once stored during winter by packing them between layers of moss in earthen pots which were sealed by resin. Later, apples were peeled, sliced and dried by hanging them in the attic.

In order to grow an apple that is the same as the one growing on a tree, it is necessary to graft a part of that tree to a root stock. The graft will maintain its genetic make-up and produce apples as it did on the original tree. During colonial times, native crab apple trees, which were common and available, were used as root stock for grafts of the cultivated apple.

Many areas in the northern part of North America are suitable for growing apples. Southern states do not provide the necessary growing requirements. Apples typically need 100 frost free days. In addition, they need plenty of sunshine in late summer and early autumn, at least 1,200 hours of weather cooler than 45 degrees but no prolonged periods of temperatures below zero.

Washington state is the No. 1 producer of apples. Michigan and New York fluctuate between No. 2 and No.

All the cultivated crops used by people today started from wild plants. This fact alone is reason enough to maintain species diversity by keeping wild areas for the future.

Sportsmanship and fun get it on in roller hockey

BY NICK GISMONDI SPECIAL WRITER

One of the greatest things about sports that is often overlooked, and in many cases forgotten, is the cama-

Nowadays everyone is so wrapped up in winning and taking home a huge trophy that having fun is thrown right out the window.

Fortunately, sportsmanship and fun still exist in roller hockey. This is something I realized whole-heartedly this past summer through my many

One of the most interesting things about hockey is how it has grown and developed. In the past, traveling from Livonia to Wyandotte was a road game. Now such trips are almost considered a home game, since so many teams travel internationally or at least inter-con-

This is more often associated with ice hockey. One constantly reads about teams playing tournaments in Chicago, Toronto or Cleve-

Roller hockey is no different, and on occasion the destinations are more appealing than in ice hockey.

For the past two years I have played roller hockey, and those were some of the best vacations I have been on. Last year a tournament took my team to Atlanta for two weeks to play in the North American Roller Hockey Championships. We didn't win, but we had a blast.

Travel and fun - what a combination. But in spite of last year, the summer of 2000 proved to be the best yet for many

After a long season on the road covering the Plymouth Whalers, I was not keen about more travel. I figured the ideal summer would be to play some local roller hockey tournaments and games, golf (a lot), and just basically relax.

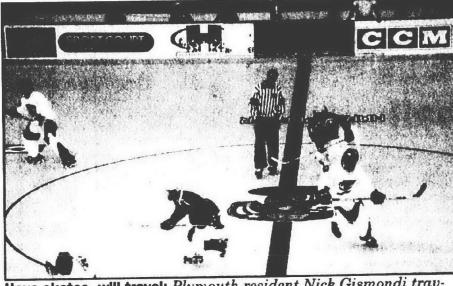

What was I thinking? Each weekend in July brought a new destination, another tournament, more travel and also that three-letter word fun. Suddenly travel was not drudgery. It was enjoyable, and it just got better.

The first of the two major tournaments was in Toronto, where the seventh annual NARCh finals were held. This week-long event proved a blast and our schedule allowed plenty of time for fun and relaxation, with an occasional game now and again.

We did not win. In fact, the competition was the toughest we have ever met. But the games will be a small part of the memories; the laughs and fun will remain far longer than any trophy ever will.

After Toronto and a brief visit to the homestead in Plymouth (to repack the suitcase), I was off to one of the greatest tournament destinations I had ever experienced: Fort Meyers Beach, Fla. Upon arrival at our hotel, which was a mere stone's throw from the Gulf of Mexico, I struggled to remember what brought us there.

"Hey bud, why again was it that we came here to this gorgeous place of beach, sun and fun?" I asked my best friend who also was awestruck.

Have skates, will travel: Plymouth resident Nick Gismondi travels around the midwest to play roller hockey with his team.

"Ahhhhhh," he offered with some hesitation, "hockey, I think. Yep. Roller hockey. That's it, we're playing in a tour-

So for a week and change we played a roller hockey game a day and spent the rest of the time working on our suntans. But again I go back to the idea that the best part of the trip wasn't whether we played well, or even if we won, but that my best friend and I had the time of our lives in Flori-

Sure, it was a busy summer of travel and I guess some work, but the experience was great. The next major event for roller teams will be the Winter National Championships held in (how about this) . . . Las Vegas

My team will be there; unfortunately I won't be. But knowing the character of the guys on this team - National Lampoon's Vegas Vacation comes to mind - I'm certain they will find fun things to do in the down time.

The overall objective of this article wasn't to make you jealous with our escapades, but to perhaps bring to light something that too often is overlooked.

In this crazy, fast-paced, win-win-win world we live in, finishing first is the only thing that matters to some. I was once one of those people.

I still dislike losing, but I have found through my travels that enjoying the game is better than getting bent out of shape by a loss. The game of roller hockey is still relatively pure in that respect, and if we go into it with that mindset, perhaps it will stay that way.

New TV show promises to give bowling center a leading role

HARRISON

Stuckeyville. If you bowl three games, you can get free legal advice from the owner of the bowling center. That is part of the scenario for a new television series, an intriguingly low-key show called Ed. It begins its run on NBC 8-9 p.m. Oct. 8.

It only happens in

Ed Stevens is a big-city lawyer played by Tom Cavanaugh. He gets fired by his firm and returns to his tiny hometown, Stuckeyville. He buys the town bowling alley and to attract customers gives out free legal advice to anyone who pays to bowl three games.

The show is produced by David Letterman's production company, and you will see a few hints of Letterman throughout the series. Greg Harrison appears in the show as Ed's rival for the affection of the romantic interest named Carol. Watch it from the beginning as it will feature the local bowling scene with a good mixture of comedy and romance. We actually have a real-life similarity as Mayflower Lanes in Redford is owned by attorney Henry Mistele. If you bowl three games there the only free advice you get is from your teammates. Entry forms and pledge sheets are now available for the seventh Annual Strike Out Child Abuse Bowl-A-Thon to take place at Cloverlanes in Livonia on Saturday, Nov. 18. Registration is noon to 1 p.m. The 9-pin notap bowling runs from 1 to 3 p.m. followed by the buffet dinner and awards. This is the once-a-year fundraiser by Evergreen Children's Services in Detroit, serving the metropolitan communities to fulfill its commitment "that every child can have a brighter future," according to Holly Parrish, development director of this nonprofit organization. All funds raised go directly to the kids' programs to get them out of abusive situations and into foster homes. They also have family counseling to try to keep families together. You see the extreme cases in the papers and on TV almost every day, and these things are happening to all too many helpless children. As in past years, individuals who raise the most pledge dollars will win phenomenal prizes. Trophies will also be awarded for male and female and high team series. If you would like to join in the fight against child abuse and have fun doing it, call (313) 862-6464 for an entry form and pledge sheet by Nov. 8. They ask that each participant raise at least $50 in pledges. Even a dollar donated here and there will get you there. Come on everyone and support this program and help strike out child abuse.

At this point in time, everyone who is a member of the American Bowling Congress should have received the new American Bowler publication, produced by the ABC and distributed free to nearly two million members. It is their way of providing more service to members by keeping in touch and providing up-to-date information. The awards program is shown on Pages 10-11. with the new awards for the lower average bowlers in addition to the rings and things as in past years.

Everyone should take a good look at page 12, where the Ultimate Bowling League concept is explained. Leagues can draw some ideas from this to incorporate into their own system, enhancing the total enjoyment of league play for many bowlers. This system really works and it keeps the league bowlers in competition right up to the final playoffs at the end on each half season. If it appears too complicated, just adapt the concept of breaking the league into two or three divisions. That keeps it simple and more fun for everyone.

Odds & Ends: In a Progressive Mystery Game, usually one number is drawn. If someone has bowled that score in a specific game, then that bowler wins whatever is in the pot. If nobody wins, it carries over. Last Wednesday in the Senior Men's classic league At Mayflower Lanes, the same number, 257 came up again for the third straight week. Nobody had it, so the pot continues to grow. There have been some big games around the town, those week's honor Westland John Glenn recovered from the shock of giving up a game-opening Farmington touchdown Thursday night to score 42 unanswered points and defeat the Falcons.

Livonia Stevenson piled up a 35-7 lead over winless North Farmington and cruised to a 42-21 victory in another Thursday night game.

The two victories set up a Stevenson showdown at Westland John Glenn at 7 p.m. Friday in a pairing of 3-1 secondplace teams in the Lakes Division of the Western Lakes Actitivies Association Smitherman bolted 57 yards down the left sideline for a 14-0 lead with 1:23 left in the first quarter. It was a two-play drive.

Smitherman scored on a 6yard run on the sixth play of a 54-yard drive to make it 20-7 early in the second quarter.

Host Livonia Stevenson (4-2, 3-1) didn't break away from North Farmington (0-6, 0-4) until the third quarter.

Dan Wilson answered a gametying score by the Raiders with a 70-yard kickoff return for a touchdown. The kick was missed and it looked like it was going to be 13-7 at the half.

But Wilson squeezed into the end zone from the six with 10 seconds left in the half and Frank Longordo ran over the two-point conversion to make it 21-7 at the intermission. Bill Marsack capped a 6-play, 71-yard drive with a 10-yard scoring run in the third quarter to pad Stevenson's lead to 28-7 and Wilson reeled off a 63-yard scoring run left to make it 35-7.

Weise scored on a 43-yard run at 7:23 to cut the margin to 35-14 and North Farmington pounced on a fumble by Stevenson's second-string offense and converted it into another touchdown to make it 35-21. Weise hit Troy Anderson with a 40-yard scoring strike.

"I was disappointed we let down with the (35-7) lead, Coach Tim Gabel of Stevenson said. "We came out in the second half and did what wanted to do, which was add to our two-touchdown lead.

"But when we got the scores, we let up. We couldn't get everybody in, which was very disappointing."

The Spartans responded to getting their lead cut to 35-21 by putting their No. 1 offense back in the game. It marched 41 yards in six plays, finished by a 24yard scoring run by Jacob Proctor. Wilson set it up, of course, with a 53-yard kickoff return.

The Spartans had scored at 5:31 of the opening quarter on an 11-yard keeper by quarterbck Sean Casey. Matt Radley kicked the extra point.

Hawks run over Franklin

BY BRAD EMORS SPORTS WILLIAM

Maybe the only thing to slow down the Farmington Hills Harrison football juggernaut would be a ticket for speeding.

Bringing in traffic cops appears to be the only way you're going to nail the lightning-quick Hawks, who rolled to their sixth straight victory of the year with a 48-0 triumph Thursday night at Livonia Franklin.

The win, clinching Harrison's state record 19th playoff berth since the state tournament started in 1975, sets up a showdown for the Western Division title next week against defending Division I state champion Walled Lake Western.

Kickoff is 1 p.m. Saturday at Harrison (the defending Division III state champion).

Franklin seventh-year coach Rick Lee realized any hopes of an upset against Harrison was a longshot. His Patriots, playing without starting quarterback Joe Ruggiero (injured finger), found themselves in a deep hole after one quarter (28-0) and down an

Lee has seen all of Harrison's 10 state championship teams and believes this current edition is as good, if not better than any Hawks' coach John Herrington has put on the field.

"He's not doing anything different than he did 20 years ago," Lee said of his coaching counterpart, who is 277-58-1 overall. They line up in that Power-I with that Hawk pride and they say, 'Come and stop us.'

By the time the first quarter had ended, Harrison tacked three moré segres on the board — junior quarterback Drew Stanton connected with Shabai twice on TD passes of 36 and 21 yards; and Marcus Woods, who broke several tackles on his way to a 35-yard TD.

The 6-3, 210-pound Stanton was a perfect seven-for-seven passing for 205 yards, while Woods, a shifty sophomore back, added 83 yards on five carries.

Shakespearience comes up smelling like a rose

t a time when many voters are turning to late night comedians as a source of information on the candidates, Gillian Eaton is suggesting an evening with Shakespeare instead. The Plymouth actress/director thinks the wit and wisdom of the Bard is still relevant 500 years after the death of one of the most respected, and possibly least understood, writers of all time.

But Eaton and the acting troupe known as Shakespearience are setting out to change the perception that you have to be a scholar to reap the wisdom. On Friday, Oct. 13, they will bring Shakespeare's philosophies about politics and power in How the World Wags, Part 1 to the Plymouth Community Arts Council.

"We're having fun with this," said Eaton, a native of Wales who moved to Plymouth from London five years ago. "It's an anthology of Shakespeare, some of the best bits of Shakespeare, a wicked and witty evening of words and music chosen for pre-election. It reflects the political climate and the slippery slope of power. King John is just the Watergate of Nixon's day. It's a bit wicked and naughty. It's based on con-

Joining Eaton on stage will be her partner in Shakespearience Terry Heck, and John Seibert and Will Young. Pianist Brian Cleary and percussionist David Penney will provide the music, an element Eaton believes was used in Shakespeare's time "to point up the meaning" of the words.

"It's some of the most wonderful insults in Shakespeare," said Heck, an associate professor in communication and theater arts at Eastern Michigan University. "It's suspicion, betrayal, lust for power.'

Those were all of the elements Heck wanted to spend more time exploring when she took a Shakespearean workshop with Eaton at Planet Ant in Hamtramck nearly two years ago. A professional actress since the early 1980s, Heck belonged to a repertory company in Minneapolis before moving to Michigan where she's acted with the Jewish Ensemble Theatre, Performance Network, and in Meadow Brook Theatre's The Mousetrap, Lost in Yonkers and A Christmas Carol. "Canton Project Arts would like to have a space for monthly exhibits," said Dionne. "We've heard from the community they'd like to see an emphasis on Canton artists. We're also planning to expand our participation in the Liberty Peat in June by drawing on cultural heritage. Julio Iglesias' new CD moves to the younger Latin beat

Julio Iglesias jokes, "I started out as a composer but nobody listened to my music."

It's easy to tell by talking with Iglesias that at age 57 the Spanish heartthrob is comfortable with who he is and with his success. That's especially evident by the release of his newest CD Noche De Cuatro Lunas (American Lady).

After 76 albums, Iglesias is returning to his roots as a composer with the help of four of the hottest, young Latin music artists today. The recording sig-nals a new direction for the singer best known for his smash hit For All the Girls I Loved Before.

Iglesias will sing several selections from the ne CD Thursday, Oct. 5, at the Fox Theatre in Detroit.
Iglesias and producer Estefano co-wrete 10 of the songs, including Gosar La Vida which is sure to set the audience in motion with its flery rhythms. Pane manian-born singer/songwriter Ruben Blades, Lati singing sensation Alejandro Sanz and Robi Res wrote Ricky Martin's Livin' Le Vide Leca, Siras Iglesias has no intention of leaving this earth anytime soon. He drinks very little red wine, eats a healthy diet and works out two hours a day just as he has every day since he was 18. He plans to record his fourth English album after promoting Noche De Cuatro Lunas.

"I try to be very positive with my life," said Iglesias. "I have 30 more years of singing. I'm just starting my career. I love to be on stage. I feel so free. If I have an emotional or physical problem, it's cured the moment I start singing."

Universal enough for Eaton and Heck to have formed Shakespearience 18 months ago. An actress with the Royal Shakespeare Company in the early 1970s, Eaton thinks more audiences and actors would enjoy Shakespeare if they were able to see or work with the plays, which seem to be enjoying a revival. So far, they've done two productions, The Tempest and Comedy of Errors, which was set to rap rhythms, with the hope of reaching a wider audience. Eaton's said the majority of audiences attending Shakespearean productions are not only dwindling but aging.

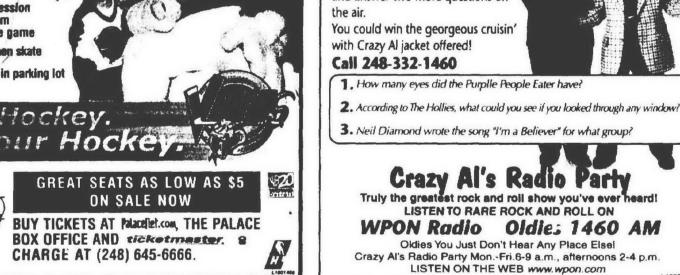

"The response from young people ages 16-22 has been fantastic," said Eaton, whose Shakespearience has also held workshops for actors. "We give them the opportunity to experience Shakespeare by professional equity actors working with the text. There aren't enough opportunities for actors. It's a different culture in Britain. They're doing productions from middle school on up. There is a grounding in We're going back to the beginning of the English language in theater. With Shakespeare, we can learn about ourselves. He's holding up a mirror to us."

"Stalking: Surviving the Hidden

Insight Publishing Company, $14.95

BY KURT ANTHONY KRUG SPECIAL WRITER

In her new book, security specialist Paula LaRue explains that stalking is a crime that affects many people, but is widely unrecognized as a growing problem in the United States.

"It was challenging to try to put in perspective what a horrible crime stalking is, what the poor victims went through, and put it so that people really are aware that these victims have gone through (traumatic experiences) and survived," said LaRue, a Brighton resident and author of "Stalking: Surviving the Hidden Terror."

LaRue has more than 20 years experience in security and safety consulting for law enforcement agencies, companies, and organizations, lecturing on such topics as stalking, domestic violence, and identity theft. A leading expert in stalking research in Michigan, she received her bachelor's degree in criminal justice from Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti, and her master's degree in security administration from the University of Detroit Mercy.

She also teaches criminal justice and security administration at Henry Ford Community College in Dearborn. LaRue said she received the impetus to write her book at HFCC.

"Every semester students would me tell me how they've been stalked and it was brought to my attention so much that I started to look into it. I didn't know what stalking was (and when I did), I discovered it was a horrible crime, and how it affects victims 24 hours a day, seven days a week," LaRue said. "I started researching it, did a documentary on it, then wrote the book. It wasn't through direct personal experience I learned about stalking, it was through teaching."

LaRue produced a documentary on stalking in conjunction with Comcast Cable in Garden City a year-and-a-half ago. She

II Each year, there are 1 million women and 400.000 men who are Stalked in the United States. According to Paula LaRue, many victims do not report that they are or have been interviewed victims, police officers, psychologists, even Gov. John Engler. Many of the victims in this documentary were also interviewed for her book.

According to LaRue, stalking is defined as behavior that causes someone to feel threatened or in fear of his or her safety. Stalkers repeatedly call their victims, show up uninvited to their place of work and/or residence. They also send unwanted gifts and love letters, including threatening messages through email. Usually the threats do not occur at the beginning of a stalking case, but later on.

There is no definitive profile of a stalker. A stalker can be either a man or a woman, young or old, rich or poor. It doesn't matter what their race, creed, color, religion, or sexual preference is. LaRue said most stalkers have certain characteristics that include being intelligent, charming, manipulative, possessive, controlling, and prone to jealous tendencies. There are more male stalkers than female stalkers.

"Stalkers believe their victim is madly in love with them," LaRue said. "Some stalkers are unable to develop a normal relationship so they build a fantasy relationship with the victim, who has no idea what's going on.'

LaRue said stalkers also have a fear of rejection or abandonment. Revenge and rejection are prominent in stalking. This is true in domestic violent incidents when a person leaves an abusive relationship and his or her significant other starts stalking him or her. Stalkers feel they are doing nothing wrong. They feel they own their victims and can do what they please with them

In her book, LaRue categorizes the various forms of stalking. Stalkers can range from a casual acquaintance, a stranger, a coworker, and a former significant other. She said the majority of stalking cases stem from domestic violence.

Celebrity stalking is also covered. People who stalk celebrities suffer from erotomania, a delusional disorder that causes a person to stalk someone of a higher social status. David Letterman, Jodie Foster, and Madonna all have had encounters with stalkers.

Each year, there are 1 million women and 400,000 men who are stalked in the United States. According to LaRue, many victims do not report that they are or have been stalked.

For an incident to be considered stalking in Michigan, there have to be two or more separate, non-continuous acts where a person has actually been threatened.

"We don't have an accurate number (of how many men and women are stalked in Michigan) because the stalking law is relatively new and police departments are just now categorizing stalking as stalking," LaRue said. "It is usually (categorized) under domestic violence or trespassing. There wasn't an accurate accounting of stalking so we're just now keeping track of . it. The numbers are just now coming in, but we do know it's 1 in 12 women and 1 in 45 men."

People can protect themselves from a stalker by being direct with him or her from the start. LaRue said. They need to tell their stalker immediately that they want nothing to do with him or her. They should also terminate any form of communication with the stalker entirely.

No matter what horrible experiences they went through, even though their whole lives were disrupted, victims have gone on successfully with their lives," LaRue said. "It wasn't always easy, but they did it. And that was one of the points of the book - to show that people can go on successfully."

Cranbrook Writers Guild to hold workshop

If it isn't enough for most writers to simply find the time to write, there's the unenviable game of getting published.

And the game - as most writers realize - is increasingly competitive.

Exhausting? You wouldn't be a writer if you stopped when you heard either "No," or "Rewrite!"

Beyond mastering writing techniques, most writers are confronted with researching the market, and learning the tricks of the trade. The writing life, after all, is a push/pull of passion and practicality.

Clothes that work with style

CARI WALDMAN

When you work, either inside or outside the home, managing your life in style often is your last priority. I know it sounds like a cliché, but feeling good is looking good. With the busy lives we are all leading - between motherhood and career rushing sometimes equates to looking

So instead of treading through your week in a basic navy suit and heels, take a few moments to evaluate what your closet needs for personal style to make its way back to the forefront of your life.

Every season, you probably only need a few key essentials to step-up your everyday working wardrobe.

With this season's plaid skirts, sleek leather boots and chunky turtlenecks, the are many options at our fingertips that won't jeopardize a professional look.

"Following on the heels of a very colorful summer, neutrals like black, brown and gray are a little too drab,' says Kate Rice, style spokesperson for Mervyn's California. "Women need color year-round, and red is the color choice for fall." Look for it in sweaters, turtlenecks, skirts, handbags and even boots to compliment and add character to your work

New Knits

Sweaters of many shapes return this season and add a little sass to the work wardrobe.

While, yes, the suit is back, don't underestimate the sweater cardigan as a great alternative to the blazer. Sleeveless, chunky turtleneck sweaters in cotton are ideal for spicing up mid-week suits. Hudson's 111 State Maxi Turtleneck, $58, Liz Claiborne's Lizsport cotton sleeveless sweater, $49, and Old Navy's Collection version, $22, are all good picks.

The button-front or zippered sweater jacket also returns as a contemporary piece for looking good and staying warm.

Walking the hallways in style

Boots are made for walking, and this season they're also made for the

So ditch the typical pumps, and make room for new heights. Boot styles range from at-the-ankle to atthe-knee and everywhere in between. Nine West and Via Spiga, lines available at area department stores, both offer sleek, wearable looks.

Opt for at least one pair of black leather boots to update your favorite above-the-knee skirt. Consider a patterned or crocodile boot, too.

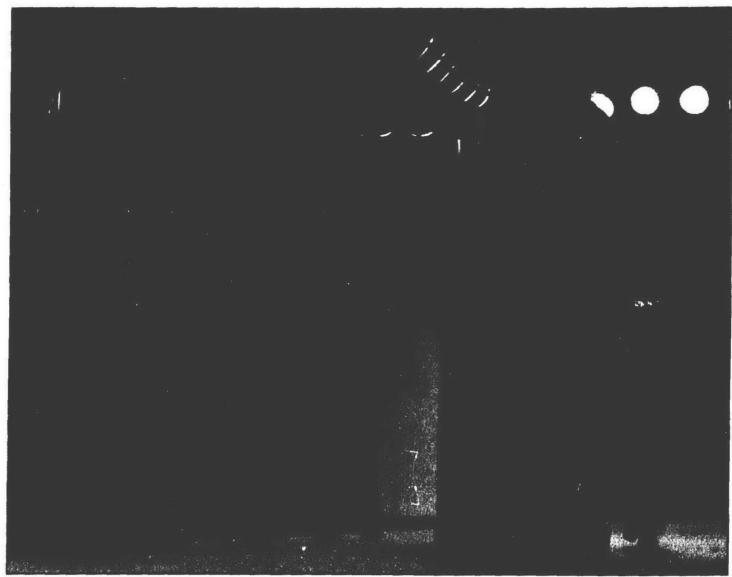

Carry a matching handbag and invest in a few inexpensive, chunky gold bracelets and large hoop earrings to complete your work attire.

Cari Waldman of West Bloomfield is a free-lance writer and stylist. Please send your style and shopping questions to Cari at OERealDeal@aol.com.

Working style: For versatility, mix a tartan skirt and a tall boot with last year's basic turtleneck. Hillard & Hanson's plaid skirt, $28 at Mervyn's California.

Style standouts

For fall: The 11th annual Birmingham Fall Spectacular fashion show, held Wednesday under outdoor tents in downtown Birmingham, emphasized a variety of trends including glamourous evening wear from Nicole Miller (left). Leather also had a strong presence in the show, which gave the fall fashion season a nostalgic feeling. Leather skirts in black, brown and grape (below) came from Banana Republic.

Birmingham Fall Spectacular puts a modern twist on fashion from former decades

There's a kitschy wit informing style at the

That was obvious at the Birmingham Fall Spectacular where the loudest fashion trends of the 70's and other decades gone by were in full play both on and off the runway.

Held Wednesday to benefit pediatric cancer survivors through William Beaumont Hospital, the 11th annual event showcases downtown Birmingham businesses and culminates in a fashion show of local merchandise. Having fun with images from the past seems a fitting departure from last year's sleek 'new millennium sensibility. At the least, it's a way to be nostalgic - but witty and modern - about fashion from that other century.

From the 80's, came leather, snakeskin and animal prints both in the crowd and on the runway. Throw in a shawl collar sweater in fur from Ceresnie & Offen and fur collars and wraps from Imelda's Closet, and the decadent mood of the 80s emerges in no time. Banana Republic's threequarter-length, leather skirts in dark brown, grape and black were paired with sweaters. And, though the leather was distressed and the sweaters pale in tone, Michelle Pfeiffer in Married to the Mob came to mind.

There was a sunglasses thing happening, too. Heavy duty, dark-tinted, face-hiding shades. The kind that Charlie's Angels used to wear, or so we imagine. Metallic chain belts worn low on the waist, flowing ruffles on dresses and blouses, and tight pants in velvet and paisley had that 70's feeling, too.

Covering more than a single decade was a collection of sassy plaid suits in unexpected colors from Tender. A plaid mini and jacket with to-theknee boots recalled the 60s, while more tailored jackets with three-quarter-length skirts gave plaid Jackie O. sophistication.

Handbags, too, moved through the decades. There were shiny vinyl-like totes in kaleidoscope colors and more subdued and neutral versions inspired by 50's-style bowling bags.

In the Upper Peninsula color reports are mixed for various areas. Near Cedar River, St. Ignace, Newberry, and Manistique trees are still fairly green with reports of 10 to 35 percent color change. Peak is expected in two weeks for these areas. Around Ontonagon, Calumet, Sault Ste. Marie, and Tahquamenon Falls leaf peepers can expect beautiful shades of red, yellow, and orange on Birch, Oak, and Maples. Hues range betieven 36 and 60 percent, with peak just one week away. The most brilliant color show is taking place at Van Riper State Park in Ishpeming, where trees are at peak. Maples and Aspen are exerting vibrant hues of yellow, red, orange, and gold. Another excellent location for brilliant viewing is Copper Harbor, where trees are expected to reach peak this weekend.

Foliage is just beginning to show color in Traverse City, which heralds a longer fall color season for the Grand Traverse Dinner Train. Color tours of the Boardman River Valley are being conducted twice daily through Oct. 31. The dinner train will offer tours daily from Traverse City, departing at 12:30pm and 6:30 p.m. on weekdays and at noon and 6 p.m. on weekends.

The excursions roam the Boardman River Valley and Pere Marquette Forest, for a 60-mile tour, while tuxedoed staff present a five course gourmet meal, prepared from fresh ingredients aboard by Executive Chef, Steven Michalski and his talented crew onboard. One of the many distinct features of the Grand Traverse Dinner Train which sets it apart from rail dining establishments in the country, is the menu of four Northern Michigan Harvest entrees presented to passengers once boarded. The cost for the Color Tour is an all-inclusive ticket price of $75.00, covering the rail fare,

Explore 'Food, Wine and Spas' in France, Italy

BY KEELY WYGONIE STATT WRITER

oyce Smetanka Campbell has always been a traveler with a wanderlust for discovering new places.

She's also a teacher who enjoys sharing her discoveries with students and adults. Campbell is the Language Department chairwoman, and teaches French at Mercy High School in Farmington Hills.

This summer she is offering a 16-day trip to France and Italy July 23 to Aug. 7. The theme is "Food, Wine and Spas."

"American Council for International Studies and I have designed an itinerary that is energetic and ambitious, yet comfortably paced and tailored for adults," she said. "We will have several opportunities to learn, experience, taste and compare authentic French and Italian regional cuisine, wines, local specialties and delicacies and French champagne.

"We so much enjoyed the different foods and wines from our last trip that many participants suggested a more in-depth culinary and wine tour for future planning and VOILA!"

and wine tastings," she said. "It is absolutely invigorating because the group really bonds together during our 'social' lessons before we leave to travel. The goal of these mini-lessons is to give the travelers a sense of confidence, while at the same time reducing 'cultural shock' while traveling abroad. Preparation is half the trip. Trips of a lifetime are an investment of time and money."

This past spring she took a group of Mercy High School stu-other piaces for consideration in future trip itineraries.

A teacher for 23 years, Campbell first visited France in high school and decided then that she wanted to become a French teacher. She has also taught at the university level and in various adult evening education courses, when at the request of her adult students, she began offering trips for adults in 1985.

Many parents of her students at Mercy High School have also been involved on her adult trips.

"I have only one guarantee for those who decide to participate on my trips abroad - enjoyment, fun and amazement at how much you will be able to see and learn in just a few days."

"When you travel with Joyce Smetanka Campbell you don't go on a trip, you embark on an adventure," said Sylvia Rubach

"My 1999 trip to France was the culmination of a lifelong dream," said Kathy Pominville of Livonia. "I was very fortunate to be a member of Joyce Campbell's group. Her well-planned itinerary and connections allowed us to see so many things - much of which would not be available to most tourists."

Larry and Charlotte Davenport of Farmington Hills enjoyed the educational component of their trip with Campbell.

"As an educator who has previously visited each of the places on the itinerary, she adds much greater depth of knowledge of the people and culture which one would not receive with a standard tour," said Charlotte Davenport. "Joyce prepares magnificent, in-depth tours with excellent local guides who are very knowledgeable."

Over the span of many trips, long-term friendships have developed.

Staying connected

"We often meet as a group regularly for dinners in French restaurants and take advantage of the various French plays and cultural events that happen in our area," said Campbell. "It is so great to stay connected with one another.'

This summer Campbell also attended the 73rd annual convention of the American Association of Teachers of French in Paris, France. The convention was held alongside the 10th Congress of the Federation Internationale des Professeurs de Français.

These two meetings brought together for the first time more than 700 American teachers of French and 2,500 teachers of French from more than 120 other countries," she said. "The convention was so energizing and revitalized my passion for teaching the French language and culture. The French Prime Minister, Monsieur Jospin, who addressed the French teachers, actually thanked us for being ambassadors for the francophone world.

"I was so incredibly proud of being a part of this profession. I felt like standing up and raising the flag myself. It was awe

Inside and outside the classroom, Campbell enjoys sharing her experiences with others.

"I am an educator first and foremost," she said. "It's my career mission to help people understand the importance and value of knowing another language and culture in order to function in this vast and changing world."

Guigal makes great Rhone wines

Syrah is the only red grape variety used in the eight appellations of France's northern Rhone Valley. Cote-Rotie (translated roasted slope) is the most northern of the eight appellations. Thin soils, rocky terraces and steep slopes requiring hand labor without the possibility of mechanization are the challenges to growing syrah in Cote-Rotie.

Northern slopes of Cote-Rotie. known as Cote-Brune, have principally clay soils with iron oxides over granite. Cote-Blonde, south along the Rhone River, has chalky, limestone soils over granite. The influence of soil is detectable in the wines.

Legend tells of a rich lord, who had two very pretty daughters, one dark and the other fair. Each one received for dowry the ownership of a slope planted to vines. Since then the slopes have the names "dark slope" (Cote-Brune) and "fair slope" (Cote-

Cote Rotie means ong hang time (the grapes remain on the vine for an extended period) to achieve physiological ripeness Winemakers determine harvest by the taste of the fruit.

When searchof in a wine shop for a Cote Rotie, look for the producer E. Guigal. The late founder Etienne Guigal produced the domaine's first Cote-Rotie in 1942. He was succeeded by his son Marcel. Now, his grandson Philippe describes the style as a wine produced for long-term aging: "Black fruits and peppery spice are hallmarks of cooler-climate syrah. Our goal is to get fruit as ripe as possible by keeping yields at a minimum."

Great with duck

Barrel aging occurs in a mix of new. second year and third year French oak, adding the right spicing without overdoing the oak. Cote Rotie is great with duck or any game birds.

In Cote-Blonde vineyards, 3-5 percent viognier is co-planted and becomes the blending percentage in the finished wine. For the single vineyard and proprietary wines, La Mouline, is 11 percent viognier; La Tourque, 7 percent; and La Landonne is 100 percent varietal syrah.

"Viognier adds an aromatic lift to the wine of some sites, which syrah alone does not offer," Guigal said.

After 36 to 48 months, depending on the vintage, wines are bottled unfined and unfiltered. They are aged eight months in the bottle prior to release. In an average maturity vintage, optimum drinking is after 10 to 15 years.

Looking at vintage years, 1999 is considered one of the best years ever because of very hot weather and extremely ripe fruit and high alcohol; however you'll have to wait a while for their release.

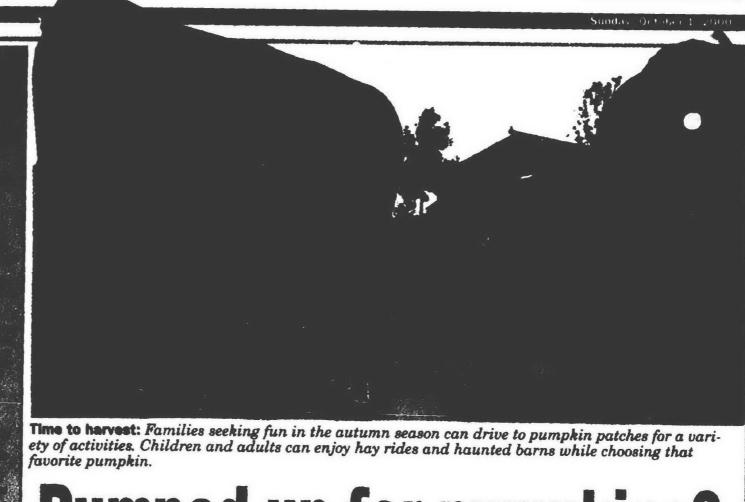

Guigal's Cote Roties are always full and rich independent of the vintage. The proprietary wines are rare and Pumped up for pumpkins?

THEY'RE FEWER, BUT STILL AVAILABLE

rick or treat — pumpkins can be both. Halloween and jack-o'lanterns go together like Thanksgiving and pumpkin pie.

It's fun to pick a pumpkin from a patch and imagine what it will look like carved into a foolish or fiendish face. After you pick the perfect Halloween pumpkin, store it in a cool, dry place, out of the rain and off the ground.

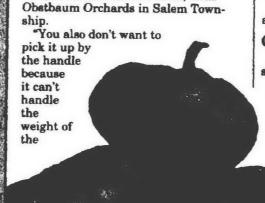

Wait about one week before Halloween to carve your pumpkin, or it will look absolutely gruesome, and not in a scary Halloween way.

But the pumpkin counts are down this year, as the summer rains were, with all due respect to Dr. Seuss, The Grinch that Nearly Stole Halloween.

"We've had better years," said Mary Hauk, owner of Mary's Farm Market in Canton. "Some of our pumpkins we planted, a lot of them didn't 'bush' out. A lot of the blossoms died out due to the rain, and pollination didn't happen. It washed a lot of nutrients out of the ground."

But Mary's Farm Market will have pumpkins, ranging in price from $2 to $12, Hauk said.

People should color, it's the color of a mature pumpkin, said Lynda Neuroth of Canton. who, with her husband Hans, owns Obstbaum Orchards in Salem Town-a week before Halloween.

Timbers said the pumpkin harvest there has not suffered greatly due to the lack of rain. "We have a ton of pumpkins, and, in fact, we started selling them earlier this year, Timbers said.

What customers pick in pumpkins generally varies, Timbers said. "People are like pizza - everybody likes something a little different," Timbers said. "Sometimes the little kids will like something that's odd-shaped or a pumpkin that's bigger than they are, but the adults want something that's close to perfect. "For them, it's kind of like picking out a Christmas tree."

Cookin'

If you want pumpkins for pie, you should purchase the smaller "pie" pumpkins, Neuroth said. They're sweeter than jack-o'-lanterns.

Nutritious

The pumpkin is an excellent, nutritious and versatile food source which can be used in salads, soups, many vegetarian dishes and desserts," said Fritz Sonnenschmidt, Cutco Culinary Advisory Board member and national chairman of the American Academy of Chefs.

Pumpkin is rich in vitamin A, which > can help you see better at night, and improve weak eyesight. Vitamin A also helps us build resistance to respiratory infections, a good thing as we enter the cold and flu season, and promotes growth, strong bones, healthy skin, hair, teeth and gums.

Don't throw away the seeds. They contain a high amount of phosphorus and can be roasted and salted to make a delicious and nutritious snack.

There's more than three times the U.S. recommended daily amount of vitamin A in a half cup of canned pumpkin.

Discovered in Central America, the pumpkin got its name from the Greek word for large melon, "pepon," which was turned into "pompon" by the French, then into "pumpion" by the British.

Were we told we had to eat certain foods? No, Mr. D always said figuratively with his hands, (and I use this line on my clients) "You can eat what you want, but how much." In other words, "responsible eating."

Food abuse

If there was any type of "food abuse" by a team member, Coach D threatened to kick that individual off the team, just like if he caught anyone smoking cigarettes.

That was over 20 years ago. Today, how can coaches instill healthy nutrition practices in this generation of athletes?

"Coaches can be positive role models when they themselves eat healthful diets and practice what they preach," according to Nancy Clark, Registered Dietitian, sports nutritionist and author of "Nancy Clark's Sports Nutri-tion Guidebook" (Human Kinetics, 1997). "Coaches can also encourage their athletes to bring a snack for before and/or during practice."

Clark writes that if the athletes have after-school practice, they should take in 200-300 calories within the hour before practice, assuming they can tolerate pre-exercise food.

"If the coach encourages this type of snack, it'll happen-and the athletes will have greater energy, stamina and enjoyment of their sport," Clark writes. "But if the coach doesn't enforce it, the kids will be less likely to fuel themselves properly."

This snack could be a bagel with cream cheese, yegurt and fruit, pret-sels or crackers and a juice box, leftover pissa or even one of Nancy's homemade egerts drinks (see recipe inside). Granela and energy bars con qualify providing that they are not total sugar in content.

Maximise

How the athlete can maximize nutrition in general without going on a fad

Clark says the best sports diet starts at breakfast. Clark recommends athletes "eat a substantial breakfast - and maybe that's just a hearty peanut butter and jelly sandwich on whole grain bread between classes."

This morning feel is very important to supply energy for after school sports," Clark writes. "Breakfast, foilowed by an adequate lunch, provides fael needed for top athletic performance and contributes to greater endurance during after-school sports.

Crisp is top banana in recipe contest

Top Banana French Apple Crisp, a unique twist on a classic apple crisp, was judged the first prize winner in the Cookies and Other Desserts category of the Seventh Annual Kretschmer Wheat Germ Healthy Eating Made Easy & Delicious Recipe Contest.

Gloria Pleasants of Williamsburg, Va., created this cinnamon-laced crisp recipe for people like herself - she enjoys cooking but has little time after she leaves her full-time job as a pharmacist. Her prize-winning recipe solves the dilemma. This crisp is assembled, baked and ready-to-eat in 30 minutes or less using convenient canned spiced apples and other ingredients that many of us have on hand, including fresh bananas, pecans, raisins and wheat germ.

Pleasants likes the extra crunch and nutritional punch wheat germ adds to the crisp topping. An excellent source of folic acid and vitamin E, either honey crunch or original toasted wheat germ can be used to prepare the recipe. Both are available in the cereal aisle of the supermarket.

When she was testing her entry, Pleasants' two grown daughters were visiting. She was forced to make it several more times after that first trial - not because the recipe didn't work but because her daughters demanded it!

daughter's focaccia bread wins

For the second year in a row, Dorothea "Ginger" Broome and daughter Kristin competed as a team at the Michigan State Fair.

They earned a second-place ribbon for their Stuffed Foccacia Bread in the Fleischmann's Yeast Best Ever "Special Occasion" Bread Contest.

Kristin, 12, is an eighth grader at East Middle School. Last year they won first place in the Land O' Lakes Margarine Sweet Treat Team competition.

The requirements for the competition stated that the child had to take an active role in the making of the bread.

"So, Kristin got up at 5:30 a.m. to make the bread before she went to school that day," said her mother.

About the time she was leaving for school, the bread was ready for final preparation and baking, so her mother did that.

After the bread was baked it was off to the fair grounds for judging. "It wasn't until after I got home that Kristin found out we placed."

As a result of their placement, the Broomes were invited and appeared on a Fox 2 television newscast to present their winning bread.

In addition to the bread competition, both mother and daughter earned additional ribbons for other contests.

Kristin was the first-place winner of the Cookie Bouquet Display Contest, sponsored by the Bakers Nook in Saline.

She had to choose a theme and then bake several cookies on sucker sticks and display them in a decorated flower pot. Her theme was "School Days." "This was really a special win as all the other entries were from adults," said Ginger Broome.

Ginger won two first-place ribbons in the "Mississippi Barbecue Sauce" Recipe Contests in the Appetizer/Side Dish competition and the Main Dish competi-

Winning both those competitions was exciting for Ginger. "I got stuck in awful traffic jams on the way to the fair and almost turned around and came home as I knew I would be late to enter them," she said. "I decided to keep going anyway. When I arrived, I found out that the contest deliver time had been postponed for one hour."

The appetizer entry was for Sweet Potato Barbecue Skins and the Main Dish entry was Barbecue Chicken Fajita Pizza.

A Gourageous
Decision

yan Dewald, an athletic 9-year-old, just wants to have a steak dinner with his parents. But he can't. At least, not yet.

Ryan, who lives with his parents in Tawas, Mich., was born with half his jawbone missing, a condition known as hemifacial microsomia. It affects one in 3,000 children to some degree, making it the second most common birth defect after cleft lip and palate. It has hindered Ryan's ability to chew, breathe and speak.

"Hemifacial

microsomia is a big word, but essentially what it means is that part of his jaw did not develop normally in the womb," said Dr. Steven Buchman, a plastic surgeon at the University of Michigan Health System. "The jaw is the growth center for our face, so the entire part that entire part that didn't develop initially won't grow at all. Meanwhile, the normal side develops correctly, and it shifts the opposite side because there is nothing there to push against it."

Through U-M's

multidisciplinary Craniofacial Anomalies Program, Buchman h

gram, Buchman has led the effort to grow Ryan an entire left jawbone and a joint to connect the home to his skull. By a process called distraction osteogenesis – literally, growing bone by distracting, or pulling apart, the bone ends during the healing process – Buchman has assisted Ryan's body in growing bone where none has grown before.

So far, the efforts have been successful. Ryan's jawbone has grown by at least 2 1/2 inches.

"The last time we went to the University of Michigan and had X-rays taken we saw a whole bone the whole length of his jaw," said Teresa Dewald, Ryan's mother.

The procedure

For children born with an undersized mandible, or jawbone, distraction osteogenesis has been used for several years. Children as young as 2 years old have undergone the procedure, but only if they had adequate bone. In patients like Ryan, who have almost no bone and no existing joint bone, a bone graft – taken from a rib – has been the standard procedure. However, Ryan's bone graft, performed two years ago, failed.

Distraction osteogenesis offered hope. Last April 21, Ryan underwent surgery to have the distractor implanted.

Buchman made a cut at the very end of Ryan's tiny existing malformed bone and installed the distracter beneath his cheek. The distractor, an adjustable rod, is connected by sets of pins, one set implanted in the bone on either side of the cut. The rod has a gear mechanism that connects through the cheek to a device outside the skin. Buchman or Ryan's parents use a key to turn the gear half a millimeter at a time.

Each turn creates a little more room for the bone to grow between the cut ends – to form callous, the sticky substance from which the body makes a

"The body thinks it's going to heal a fracture, and by stretching the sides away from each other we sort of throw a little monkey wrench in the works. The body says, 'Well, I thought we were healing a fracture that was that big. OK, we'll now fix one that's that big," said Buchman.

Hospital, demonstrates the construction of the human shall

Ready to play: Ryan Dewald is getting ready to play his beloved hockey once again. The distractor, visible on his cheek, that helped his body grow a new left jawbone most likely will be removed in November.

The decision

Children like Ryan must be partners in the reconstruction process. They know when they are ready for surgery, said Buchman. Their consent comes "when they realize you are not going to do the surgery to them but for them."

Ryan has been a patient in the Craniofacial Anomalies Program for seven years. He and Buchman are buddies. "They talk hockey together," said Teresa. It was Buchman who first attempted to reconstruct Ryan's jaw by grafting a rib bone. After that failed, Ryan made the decision to have distraction surgery.

His only complaint is that he hasn't been able to play hockey or ride his bike. The new bone is still fragile. Yet, he's happy.

"Most of the time I can't even feel it, so it's pretty good," said Ryan.

When the procedure is finished in early fall, Ryan will have a new main horizontal body of his left mandible, an ascending ramus (the verticle part of the mandible), and a condylar joint that articulates with the skull to make up the jaw joint. Buchman is optimistic that the procedure will produce solid bone after the healing period ends.

Ryan's face already has a new structure. His appearance has changed, he can chew better since his teeth are perfectly aligned for the first time. That steak dinner is becoming a reality.

Self-esteem

Buchman is studying the long-term effects of distraction osteogenesis on the psychosocial and communication status of children who have had the procedure done for facial deformities, compared with those who have not. Social and psychological factors are often cited as part of the reason to make such dramatic and costly efforts to fix facial birth defects.

He takes exception with insurance companies who define "medical necessities" when it comes to paying for reconstructive surgery. If it involves an aesthetic problem, the insurance companies may say it's all cosmetic, he said.

"I think it is medically necessary to have a face that looks like a face," he said. "Only after you're a parent of a child with a congenital deformity do you realize that it's a very important thing to look normal."

Fortunately, Ryan's self-esteem has always been high, said his mother, but he's been embarrassed "hundreds of times" by people's insensitive stares.

Teresa and Chris Dewald know the public's insensitivity could increase as Ryan approaches his teen years, when physical appearance is more important.

"We wanted to get it (distraction osteogenesis) over with to have halfway normal teen years, if that's possible," said Teresa.

Ryan has become something of a celebrity, not only in his hometown but soon internationally. Two reporters from a television station based in Washington, D.C. recently spent a day with Ryan, talking and playing soccer. The film will be broadcast in Germany, Switzerland and Australia.

The Dewald's are glad they decided to publicly share Ryan's story. "We're doing it so other parents can see Ryan and know that it (hemifacial microsomia) is not a major setback."

As for Ryan, his experience has given him a new ambition for later in life: "When I grow up I want to be a doctor, because I want to help people. I've seen a lot of good things they can do."

U-M Cleft Lip/Palate & Craniofacial Anomalies Program

The Craniofacial Anomalies Program at the University of Michigan Health System began as the Cleft Palate Center more than 70 years ago. Experience shows that surgical correction alone is not sufficient to ensure the physical and emotional well-being of children born with cleft lips, cleft palates and other craniofacial problems. Nor is it possible for a single physician, dentist or therapist to evaluate and treat all the special medical, dental, educational, psychological and communication needs.

The University of Michigan's approach was developed in 1955. The team now includes 47 members in 22 medical and dental specialties who are experienced in the care of children with complex craniofacial anomalies and cleft lip and palats. These specialties include plastic and reconstructive surgery, neurosurgery, oral and maxillofacial surgery, orthodontics, otolaryngol-egy, pediatrics, and others.

The program serves patients of any age with eleft lip, cleft palate, jaw or craniofacial deformity. In addition to the Craniofacial Anomalies Program, adult maxillofacial surgery takes care of patients with craniofacial trauma and post-traumantic facial deformities.

Henry Ford Hospital selected to be screening center for lung cancer study suggests that spiral CT scans suspicious spots.

Henry Ford Hospital is among six health institutions nationally selected to participate in a oneyear study sponsored by the National Cancer Institute to examine the effectiveness of using spiral computed topography (CT) scans for detecting lung

Currently, no screening technology has proven effective in reducing the number of lung cancer deaths. Lunch cancer is the leading cause of cancer-related death in the United States, and about 157,000 people will die of the disease this year. Smoking causes about 85 percent of lung cancers.

Recruiting began in September, and Henry Ford will continue to recruit 500 current and former smokers throughout October and randomly assign them to receive either a free spiral CT scan or chest X-ray. Researchers will determine and compare the lung cancer detection rate for each method and track what kind of medical follow-up care was needed.

"If the spiral CT scans prove effective, the potential for saving lives is enormous," said Christine Cole Johnson, co-investigator of the study and director of Cancer Epidemiology, Prevention and Control for the Josephine Ford Cancer Center. Evidence from early studies detect small lung cancers, often at the edges of the lungs. The CT scans also showed scarring from smoking and other non-cancerous changes inside the lungs that can appear like tumors, thus leading to varying interpretations of the scans. The spiral CT uses X-rays to scan the entire chest in about 15 seconds. The CT machine, which is shaped like a donut with a large hole, rotates around the patient as a computer creates 3-D images of the lungs. Each CT scan and chest X-ray will be reviewed and follow-up care will be recommended for participants who have positive results for available outside of clinical trials, but they cost between $300-$1,000 and are generally not covered by insurance. Some hospitals are already advertising the scans for early lung cancer detection, despite the lack of evidence to support it.

To be eligible for the study, participates must be between the ages of 55-74 and have a history of long-term smoking. Former smokers must have quit within the last 10 years. People with a history of lung cancer are ineligible.

Using multiple pharmacies can be a dangerous practice

The abundance of pharmacies in neighborhoods and on the Internet has made it easier for consumers to shop around for the best prices on their medications. But what price do they place on their health and safety?

Mr. Smith is prescribed digoxin by a cardiologist to treat his irregular heartbeat. He purchases the drug at Pharmacy A. He later gets an upper respiratory infection and visits a local medical center. He forgets to tell the medical center physician he is taking digoxin, and the physician prescribes erythromycin to treat the infection.

Mr. Smith goes to Pharmacy B for his erythromycin because their price is better. However, when digoxin and erythromycin are taken together and not monitored, it can lead to toxic levels of digoxin in the bloodstream.

MIKE WENDLAND

It gets worse. The Vault. com 2000 Survey of Internet Usage at Work found that 25 percent spend more than an hour online at sites unrelated to their work, 22 percent spend 30 minutes to an hour, and 25 percent spend 10 to 30 minutes.

Not quite 10 percent said they never surf to sites that have nothing to do with their jobs. Bottom line: Employers are getting fed up - 49.8 percent now conclude that the Internet at work is compromising employee productivity.

Crack down

Athletes have been prevented from sending hometown messages to their local newspapers. Almost 1.800 Web sites have been threatened with legal action for trying to tell the world what's happening at the Australian games. And journalists from online sites have been totally barred from even attending the games. All this and more is the result of an unprecedented effort to totally control all coverage of the games by the International Olympic Committee.

What's at stake, of course, is money. Big money. The IOC sells exclusive" rights to outfits like NBC, which paid something like $705 million. And the IOC and NBC are worried that the Internet will siphon off viewers.

All they've done is alienate their audience. Because of the big time difference, many of the events aren't aired in the U.S. until, literally, a day after they occurred. Old news is no news, as they taught us in journalism

So NBC's decision not to use its NBCOlympics. com Web site to cover some events live has to go down as one of the network's most boneheaded moves. With coverage delayed and so tightly controlled, the games just aren't compelling. And the IOC and NBC have missed a huge opportunity to use new media to build new audiences.

Room to grow

The Internet may have changed the way the world communicates and does business. but it still has a long way to go before it reaches full stride.

According to a new study by the Pew Research Center, half of the adults in America do not have Internet access and 57 percent of non-Internet users have no interest in using the Web. The biggest 'Net-have-not demographic group is the elderly.

In the over-65 age group, 87 percent do not have access to the Internet, while 59 percent of those between the ages of 50 and 64 do not go online.

Evidence of the digital divide shows up in the study, too. Almost 57 percent of people living in rural areas do not have access to the Internet, while 42 percent do not use computers.

Other breakdowns reveal that 54 percent of women and 49 percent of men do not have Internet access, while 50 percent of whites, 36 percent of blacks and 44 percent of Hispanics do.

Support grows

The movement to make it illegal to use handheld wireless phones while driving is picking up support in surprising places. In a major break with the industry, Verizon, the largest U.S. wireless provider, says it now will support laws that make it illegal to chat on a handheld while behind the wheel.

municipalities have already enacted such laws, but a growing number of other locations. including Chicago, are considering them. The reason is safety.

The National Highway Safety Administration says handheld cellular use contributed to the traffic deaths of 57 people in 1997, the most recent year for which such figures are available. Other studies say using a handheld while driving is equal to the danger posed by driving drunk. Verizon, with 25 million subscribers, told officials in Chicago it would support phasing in a statewide law over three years that would prohibit anything but "hands free" mobile phone use in

DSL woes keep growing

The disenchantment over DSL is growing. Not so much about how it works; it's the process of getting it to work, or installed, that is disappointing the public.

Dozens of DSL Baby Bells and ISPs are hyping the high-speed Internet service. And the public is convinced DSL is 10 times faster than dial-up. The problem is, the DSL companies can't deliver on installation. Over and over in e-mails and at public

A half dozen mostly small appearances and seminars I've been conducting around the country in recent weeks, the No. 1 complaint I'm hearing is about DSL companies dragging their waits are two to three months. There's a great Web site called DSL Reports (www. dalreports. com) that keeps track of complaints against the Baby Bell DSL installers. And very often the complaints aren't ending with installation. Customer service over DSL is another sore

One suggestion I've heard from several disgruntled wouldbe DSL users: A class action suit over false advertising. There appears to be a lot of complainants.

Condos designed for people who like city life

Bernard Glieberman may have hit a home run with his most recent residential development, Woodward Place in Brush Park in downtown Detroit.

His tried-and-true walk-up attached condominiums off the Fisher Freeway (I-75) Service Drive and Woodward Avenue adjacent to Comerica Park have been snapped up by buyers.

In fact, 36 units in the first phase were reserved before the models even opened, said Tinishia Pugh, sales asso-

"Look at that view," Pugh said, nodding toward the new playground of the Detroit Tigers from her office. "The services, the urban setting, the convenience of the opera house ... restaurants ... the stadium down here. This is their main attraction."

Upwards of 700 units eventually will be built, typically eight to 12 in a build-

It's Generation X-ers who have now decided they've had enough of suburban living and now want to be where the action is," said Glieberman, president of Crosswinds Communities.

"What's going to draw people down there are the ballparks, GM, Compuware," he said. "You can walk across the street to the Fox Theatre. On Saturday morning, you can literally walk to Eastern Market."

Two floor plans are available. The St. Aubin, 1,309 square feet with two bedrooms and a bath and a half, carries a base price of $199,990. The Woodward, 1,753 square feet with two bedrooms and two full baths, has a base price of $259,990. Both units have a private front entrance and a private rear garage entrance. The St. Aubin features a den, half bath and laundry/ mechanical room at garage level.

The main living area showcases a living room, kitchen/ dining area with sink oriented toward the living room, two bedrooms and a full bath with combination tub/ shower.

The Woodward, the upper unit, features a living room with sloped ceiling, kitchen, dining room, bedroom and full bath on one level, a larger master suite with volume ceiling, two-sink vanity and walk-in closet upstairs.

A two-car garage and fireplace are standard in the Woodward, a single-car garage in the St. Aubin.

Both include a balcony, air conditioning and range, refrigerator, microwave oven and dishwasher in the kitchen as standard features.

End units carry a $20,000 price premium, units along Woodward Avenue,

"One competitor (here) doesn't offer a standard garage and refrigerator and charges more for square feet and the location isn't as great as this," Pugh

Visitors will be impressed with the size of the condos, Glieberman said.

"It (the Woodward) has a two-car garage in an urban setting. Not that many have that," he said. "That plan is a plan we used in urban settings before, but we expanded it, made it big-

Both plans have proven highly successful in Royal Oak, Wyandotte, Dearborn and Ann Arbor.

But there's more to recommend Woodward Place.

Because it's within Detroit's economic empowerment zone, buyers will pay full property taxes the first year, but only 50 percent during the next 11

"That's a great selling point," Pugh said. "Ive a that comes with the property. Even if it's sold in the sixth year, you still have abatement in years two through 12."

The current tax rate is $56 per $1,000 of state taxable value, (half of sales price for new construction), Pugh said. That means owners of a $200,000 unit would pay about $5,600 the first year, substantially less annually over the next decade.

The monthly association/ maintenance fee, which includes all exterior maintenance, insurance and water, is $95 for the St. Aubin, $135 for the Woodward.

Kevin Wobbe bought a St. Aubin.

"It's a downtown environment. It's within walking distance of all the restaurants, bars. I don't have to drive everywhere to go out and have a good time," he said.

"In a few years, downtown is going to be pretty nice," Wobbe added. "I will have a front-row seat. It's a good investment.

While the view is great and you're in the eye of downtown's entertainment district, you have to walk up and down a lot of steps, especially in the Wood-

It's 30 steps up from garage level and 24 from the front door to the main liv-ing area in the Wandward and Landbar suite.

In the St. Aubin, it's 14 steps from the garage, 12 to the front door from the walk, to the living room, kitchen and bedrooms.

WOODWARD PLACE On the east side of Woodward and Glieberman, however, doesn't believe that folks who enjoy a stacked, curbfront downtown environment will mind. Sales of a similar model have gone well at other locations, he said.

The sales office/models at Woodward Place at Brush Park, (313) 962-1100, are open 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday through Wednesday, closed Thursdays and Fridays.

entering and leaving the garage, watch until the door is fully closed. Safety features on your garage door will automatically reverse and raise the door if any resistance is encountered, and thieves know this.

Burglars have also been known to take advantage of doors that close slowly or are left open by the homeowner.

■ Garage doors have locks, too. Don't rely on the weight of your garage door or the garage door opener alone to secure your door, especially if you're going to be away for an extended period of time.

Most garage doors have several locking options to choose from, many can be retrofitted to your existing door. Major manufacturers offer a number of locking options such as lock bars, snap latches, vacation switches for garage door openers and slide bolts. Be sure that locks aren't engaged when a garage door opener is being used.

Don't forget the windows. Garage door windows are a great way to add beauty and light to your home, but you don't want to sacrifice security for style. Choose a sturdy window, securely installed.

The best window choices allow light to pass through while protecting your privacy from "prying

■ Guard your garage door opener frequency. Basic garage door openers come from the factory with pre-set codes. Any remote control device set to the same frequency can open the door. Check your instruction manual or call the manufacturer for instructions on how to change

Many new garage door openers feature anti-burglary devices that protect your code from interception or even change the code every time you use the door. That way, burglars are kept out automatically.

Energy efficiency. The features that work to keep out burglars also keep out the elements and lower your energy bills. An insulated steel door with a weather-sealed bottom can have an R-value of 9 or higher.

Selecting the right window

BY JAMES AND MORRIS CAREY FOR AP NEWSPEATURES

James recently expanded his home office.

A big decision he had to make was to choose the right windows for the job. The wall that was being "pushed out" contained a window and a sliding door.

James wasn't sure whether he should nix the window and replace the smaller sliding door with a larger one, or go with just windows or reuse what he

He anguished over the choice. He wanted it to be just right.

Whichever he chose, he knew he had to select something that was going to be consistent with the shapes and sizes of the windows and doors along that same exterior wall.

Also, he didn't want to modify the type of window frame - the new had to match the existing exactly.

Since his house is relatively new, and because the windows were modern and energy-compliant, he had no thoughts of changing the overall window theme.

In addition to their aesthetics, windows are highly functional. They are a key element in promoting natural ventilation, and modern ones can conserve energy.

While you enjoy the view outdoors, weather is kept outside away from you where it belongs. Can you imagine a home without windows? Shopping for windows involves several important decisions.

Some rules of thumb: You don't want your remodel to look like one.

If you aren't going to change all of the windows, consider matching the frame of the new window type as closely as possible to the frames on the ones you already have.

Nothing looks as bad as architectural potpourri.

Regardless of the frame type, consider upgrading to insulated glass. One, two or three sheets of glass? They all look the same at a glance but the better the insulative value, the more com-

R-value measures energy efficiency of the glass. The higher the R-value, the more efficient the glass. U-value measures the efficiency of the glass and the frame together. The lower the U-value the better.

Do some research. Each type of window has advantages and disadvantages.

Wood-frame windows are more energy-efficient and reduce condensation, but they are maintenance-intense and expensive. Metal-frame windows are low maintenance and inexpensive but transmit heat and cold, and condensation can be a really big problem. Wood windows that have plastic or metal exterior covers are a good bet - less maintenance on the exterior side (where wood is most often in need of maintenance) and top energy efficiency.

Unfortunately, metal or plastic over wood is the most expensive kind of window.

Vinyl windows are low maintenance and better suited to resist condensation than are metal ones. However, plastics have a tendency to become brittle. As far as we are concerned. the jury is still out on vinyl frames

Most folks are "light conscious." The brighter it is, the more natural light available in it, the more a home is appreci-

If you are upgrading, don't downsize. If anything, you might want to upsize. This will add value to your home.

Be sure to purchase from a major manufacturer. With today's insulated windows you can expect guarantees that extend from 10 years to life. Even the best of insulated windows fail, so a warranty is

If you intend to use wood interior windows, look for wood that will complement other wood on the interior of your home - cabinets, wainscot, chair rail, door trim, etc.

essential.

Be sure the window you choose is easy to operate. Sliding windows are among the easiest to operate.

However, a large window with a heavy wood frame that you have to reach over a counter to get to can be hard to open. With just about any type of window, large moving panels can be tough to open as well.

Keep operating sections manageable in size. Casement windows are easy to operate, but require interior screens - a design element you might not wish to have in your home.

If you do decide on casement, make sure the operating assembly is smooth and easy to use.

Don't forget low E glass. It is more energy-efficient and will save dollars on your heating and cooling bills.

Paint cleaner environment

(NAPS) - While beautifying your home with paint, take care to keep the environment beautiful by properly using, storing and reusing your paint. Here are some helpful tips:

1. Buy only the paint you need so there's less chance of having any left over.

2. Store paint so it lasts for years by covering the opening with plastic wrap, making sure the lid fits securely so paint doesn't leak, then store the can upside down. The paint creates a seal and stays fresh till you need it.

3. Use up all your paint on touch-up jobs and smaller projects.

Recycle the empty paint can. 5. Donate paint to community groups, theater groups, schools, churches and others who need or want it. Participate in or organize a paint swap in your community.

Try these simple solutions when stymied in homestead

By Jospen Trung Today's Hossowner Magazine

Eventually you'll come across an impossible-to-loosen hex nut. It might be encrusted with rust or sounded off so badly that no wrench or locking pliers will help. Before reaching for the hacksaw to cut through the bolt, try this last-ditch remedy.

Squirt a little penetrating oil (such as Liquid Wrench) onto the nreads of the bolt near the nut; fllow it to soak in for about five hinutes.

Then, hold a cold chisel nearly Berpendicular on the nut and tap it several times with a hammer to cut a deep groove. Now tilt the chisel to about 20 or 25 degrees and strike it several more times. The idea isn't to cut through the nut but to break its bond so you can then spin it off by hand or with pliers.

Just be sure that you're driving the nut in a counterclockwise direction.

Caulking deep cracks

You wouldn't think there could possibly be a wrong way to caulk a crack if you just fill it up. But there is.

You're fine using a high-quality caulk on a crack that's about 1/8inch wide by 1/2-inch deep. But caulk alone should never be used to fill larger gaps.

Wide, deep crevices must first be lined with a foam backer rod. Use a putty knife or wood shim to force the flexible backer rod down into the crack. Be sure that it's about one-quarter inch below the surface. Then fill the crack with caulk.

The backer rod will help support the bead and prevent the caulk from sinking down into the crack. This technique is especially useful when caulking around windows, doors and brick walls.

Foam backer rod is sold in various diameters and lengths at hardware stores and home centers.

Loosening tough knots

To loosen a tough, tight knot in a rope, cable or twine, reach for your

That's right, an ordinary nailset with its rigid shaft and narrow. tapering tip - is perfect for persuading stubborn knots apart.

Start by forcing the tip into the heart of the knot. Wiggle it around a little, then force it in a little deeper. Continue in this manner until the entire tapered tip has passed through the knot.

Now use your fingers or the tip of the nailset to hook one of the rope strands and pull straight back. At this point there's usually enough slack so that you can easily untie the rope.

If you don't have a nailset handy, substitute needlenose pliers (in a closed position), an awl or even a Phillips-head screwdriver.

Misting mortar joints

Repairing a brick or concreteblock wall usually includes repointing the mortar joints removing the worn or crumbling mortar and refilling the joints with new mortar.

It's a rather straightforward repair, but one critical step is often skipped. Before packing the new mortar into the cleaned-out joints, mist the area with a plant sprayer.

The water will prevent the brick or block from sucking all the moisture out of the wet mortar. That will retard the curing process, strengthen the bond and help stop premature cracking.

Quick tip

When applying two or more coats of varnish to wood, allow the finish to dry completely between coats (check the label for drying times), then lightly sand the surface with extra-fine (220- to 320grit) sandpaper.

Before you apply the next coat, be sure to use a tack cloth to wipe up the sanding dust.

Cut without pain

(NAPS) - Yes, you can trim costs without everyone in the family getting snippy about it.

Here are some home and utility related tips from CertainTeed Home Institute that will help you get your expenses under control:

Raise your thermostat by at least one degree in the warmer weather and lower it by one degree in the colder weather. This can save you one to two percent on heating and cooling bills.

■ Close off unused rooms to conserve cooling or heating.

Turn down the temperature on your water heater. Don't overuse hot water. Turn off the lights and television when you leave a room. If you can, use a toaster oven or microwave rather than your regular oven because they use less energy.

Water your lawn at night. During the day water evaporates faster. M Never run a dishwasher unless it is full, and use the air dry cycle.

Examine the insulation levels in your attic. Chances are if your home was built before 1980 it is not insulated up to today's energy standards.

Romantic decor on tight budget

(NAPS) - Recreating the charm of the homes of years gone by is now possible on almost any budget.

One place for helpful ideas is The Paris Apartment (Regan Books, $25), by Claudia Strasser, founder of The Paris Apartment design firm. It captures the elegance and sophistication of past centuries combined with current economic realities Divided into three easy sections, The Paris Apartment provides stepby-step instructions on redecorating your home on a tight budget.

It's easy to reupholster the seats of small stools, benches, ottomans, and straight-back chairs. Just turn the piece upside-down, locate the screws or nails that secure the seat; unscrew or pry them out and remove the seat; cover the seat with your new fabric and fasten the cloth with staples or upholstery tacks; add trim or fringe to the edges with a hot-glue gun, and replace the seat.

In the "Philosophies" section, Strasser clearly explains the fabrics, colors, and lighting necessary to achieve the look minus the price of well-worn luxury. With this groundwork in place, she details the steps of refurbishing apartments in

"Transformations" - explaining the simple yet stunning change in real people's homes

From the bedroom of model Kristy Hume to the gothic apartment of a young Manhattan couple, Strasser showcases looks that span centuries and styles. Interspersed throughout the chapters are "how-to" tips on furniture refinishing, lighting, and restoration to dramatically transform a home. Finally, in "Sources," Strasser explores the world of flea markets and supply stores, providing savvy shopping tips and a convenient style chart.

Thomas Ervin Let's Talk About Real Estate

"Working Against Yourself"

As unlikely as this may seem, many sellers actually make decisions that work against their own best interests. No one does this on purpose, but it happens quite often, nevertheless. The most obvious example is when a homeowner lists their property with a Realtor and then prevents the Realtor from selling the house. Here are some specific examples:

Overpricing the Property

This is, of course the most common error that sellers make. The seller is afraid of missing extra dollars when putting the house on the market. Despite the market facts presented by the Realtor at time of listing, the owner chooses a price of his or her own that is unrelated to recent sale prices and the asking of competing homes currently for sale. This decision is usually made with the all-toofamiliar words, "We can always drop the price later."

Inadequate Preparation

Even though homeowners are willing to spend money on the house for their own enjoyment, most are not interested in putting more money into the house to help it sell. Again, this is understandable, but regrettable. A few dollars spent on decorating or much-needed repairs can enhance the sale price and dramatically shorten the time on the market.

Inflexibility

The real estate market, like most other things is always in a state of change. Sometimes the changes are to the seller's advantage and sometimes the opposite is true. Interest rates, as an example, may be low when you list your home, but creep up and drive buyers away. You may start out in a seller's market and end up in a buyer's market. Rigidity can cause you to miss these cycles.

ADVICE: Work with your Realtor. The two of you can get the job done to your satisfaction if you approach it correctly.

heir mission is simple- "to serve our customers, employees, shareholders, and society by providing a broad range of staffing services and products." This mission statement from Kelly Services Inc. best describes the need for a celebration for all those employment placement agencies that provide temporary help to businesses around the world.

The week of Sept. 23 was designated "National Temporary Help Week." NTHW is designed to promote positive awareness of the temporary help industry. Many employment agencies around the United States took time out to thank their employees, employment staff and clients for a "job well done!" Kelly Services Inc. actually has been enjoying this successful venture of placing temporary employees with businesses for more than 50 years.

Back in October of 1946 William Russell Kelly, founder of "Russell Kelly Office Service," which later became Kelly Services Inc., knew Detroit area businesses were in dire need for office and clerical help. He staffed his company with housewives and students, people who had flexible schedules. By December of 1946, the Russell Kelly Office Services had 12 customers and $848 in sales.

The mission of Kelly Services Inc. has not changed since the beginning, according to Steve Armstrong, vice pres ident and regional manager for Kelly Services Inc. He foresees the growth of temporary job placement only expanding in the next five years.

"We are seeing more stay-at-home moms entering the temporary job market than anyone else right now, and that is a large majority of the workforce," Armstrong said.

"Another area high in demand for temporary jobs is placing good administrative assistants. They have to have great speaking and presentation skills because they are oftentimes the first face you see when you walk into the

Kelly Services Inc. continues to expand its services. Currently, the company owns and operates more than 1,800 offices in the United States, Puerto Rico, Canada, the United Kingdom. Ireland, France, Denmark, Norway, the Netherlands, Switzerland, Sweden, New Zealand, Australia, Mexico, Luxembourg, Spain, Italy, Russia, Belgium, Germany, Singapore, India, Indonesia, Malaysia, Philippines and Thailand.

Q. Many companies request that applicants fax or e-mail resume without offering the option of mailing them. Are they assuming that every applicant has a fax machine handy or a PC at home? Do they expect employed applicants to do their job hunting on company time? Kinko's fax is $1 a page. You could go broke looking for a job. These companies do not give their names, addresses, or any other clues.

Gail D.

A.When I first went into business for myself, faxing was just starting to become mainstream. I didn't have a lot of dough and couldn't afford a machine. But it was embarrassing

to tell candidates and companies that our firm was, well, less than "cutting edge." So I used a line given to me by my old boss, Snidely Bourbo: "Our machine is down right

I resisted getting a fax as long as possible. Finally, the market insisted that I ante up. Our first thermal paper machine, a piece of junk, cost eight times what I paid for a slick little plain paper job last year.

About seven years ago I began writing this column with a number two pencil and a yellow legal pad. No kidding. I'd spend a couple jillion hours scratching, erasing, cutting and pasting (literally), and rewriting. Then my wife would use an old computer made by Gutenberg to type it up. I'd edit it with a pencil again, have it re-typed, then send it to the O&E using my brand new thermal paper fax.

Great Connections are made here with these Southfield called 'KellyConnect' which is an interactive call center where the employee, at no charge, can training for a job," Armstrong said. "You could all Kelly Connect a virtual call center so-to-speak. The program also provides recruiting, assessment, retention and management of employees for inbound and outbound calls worldwide."

Kelly Services, a Fortune 500 company, provides employees with a wide range of skills to a broad pectrum of industries including: accounting and inance; call centers; education; engineering; health tare; information technology; legal; manufacturing and distribution; marketing; office; scientific; vendor n-site; staff leasing; outsourcing; general contractng; and full-time placement.

"It's simple to become a temporary worker here," Armstrong said. "All you have to do is go to any one of our 12 branch offices in Michigan and get an application. You will go through an evaluation process as well as an interview process. When you are all done, ou will walk away from one of our branches with a job that day. It's that easy."

Armstrong, who has been with Kelly Services Inc. for 18 years, said he has seen a dramatic shift in women and men entering the temporary workforce.

"It's really quite mixed with women and men, especially with those individuals who have gone through an early retirement and have decided to re-enter the job market," he said.

The benefits of being a temporary employee including flexibility with hours, having a variety of jobs to choose from and being able to upgrade your skill level with free training from Kelly Services Inc.

"The best aspect about this business is when you make that successful match between the applicant and the customer," Armstrong said. "It's a great feeling for everyone involved."

Sharon Kokorelis, consultant for Staffing Resources in Farmington Hills and Troy, sees the computer industry as well as general clerical work continuing to be the main business areas needing temporary help. Since 1967 Staffing Resources has taken a team approach to extend the reach of their human resources function. Their three divisions -Professional Personnel Consultants, Permanent Staff Co., and Temporary Resources - refer candidates to clients in all industries, from temporary office help to permanent professional positions.

"We have served clients on local, national, and international levels," Kokorelis said. "We do see more women than men entering the temporary job market. We also have many seniors returning to the workforce after retiring."

Staffing Resources has a support system of 390 affiliated offices throughout North America, Europe and Asia. Barbara Cumming, owner of Express Personnel Services in Farmington Hills and Wayne, has much to celebrate in regards to NTHW. Having owned Express Personnel Services since 1995, Cumming has seen the trends change in job placement over that last five years. She believes there is a great future for expansion in the temporary job placement

"We're celebrating National Temporary Help Week by putting a little note of "thanks" in everyone's pay check this week," she said. "We've recently placed 200 people. Right now the most popular jobs for temporary help are on the industrial side - machine operators, and clerical-data entry."

What does NTHW really mean to someone like Cumming who has made such an effort to maintain the professionalism and work ethic among her

"It's a reminder that we do make a difference in people's lives, and we need to appreciate the essentials of business," she said.

There are several helpful temporary job web sites. Here are just a few of those sites where you can list your resume or obtain training and support for a job online:www.ncinter.net/~infinity/, www.Thomas-Staffing.com; and www.ntes.com.

A friend pointed out that I was making about 16 cents an hour and that I was an idiot. That's still true, of course, but I was inspired to learn some basic word precessing and even got my own Gutenberg for the office.

Three years ago candidates and clients started asking for my e-mail address. I didn't know email from female. Anyway, the Gutenberg didn't have something called a modem. Then a large client offered to give me a major piece of business and wanted to email over ome information. "You are on line, aren't you?" he asked. I told him my machine was down and rushed out to get a new box.

Gail, you're absolutely right. Employers should not assume everyone is hooked up or has access to a fax machine. Even computer literate people may not be on line at home. Most people are not inclined to fax resumes from their current places of work. Certainly, the more response options employers give to candidates, the greater number of applications they will generate.

But I can also understand an employer's assumption that everyone else is living in cyber space or that "serious" job seekers will make the necessary arrangements.

Just looking: Stephen G. Hirsch of Ft. Erie Ontario, looks over Walter P. Chrysler Museum, located in Auburn Hills.

BY EILEN MCCARVILLE STAFF WRITER

ant to feast your eyes on some beautiful machinery? The 1941 Chrysler Royal Club Coupe, owned by former President Harry S. Truman, and other great pieces of automotive artistry can be seen at the Walter P. Chrysler Museum, next door to the DaimlerChrysler Technology Center in Auburn Hills.

Truman — a lifelong Chrysler loyalist — bought the handsome eggshell-colored auto and a four-door sedan for his wife for a total of $2,703. With his trade-in, he paid $1,203 cash.

Tidbits like that make the museum, located at Squirrel and Featherstone roads, interesting for visitors, who've been trekking into the new facility since its birth a year ago.

DaimlerChrysler will celebrate the museum's first anniversary Oct. 5 with refreshments and a booksigning by Vincent Curcio, who penned The Life and Times of an Automotive Genius, a biography of company founder Walter P. Chrysler.

Guests enter the two-story atrium and are greeted by three spectacular autos slowly rotating, at staggered heights, on a 75-foot-high stainless-steel pylon. They include a classic 1941 Chrysler Thunderbolt, a 1963 Chrysler experimental turbine car and the original Dodge Viper concept vehicle.

The museum houses approximately 75 of the more than 130 vehicles in the Chrysler Historical Collection, all in running condition. It also includes a 125-seat theater, automotive-theme gift and souvenir shop, historical archive and research area and more. The museum is devoted to Chrysler products only, before the DaimlerChrysler merger of two years ago.

But the real stars are the cars.

The vehicle collection includes these favorites from their corresponding eras: 1900-1929, a 1902 Rambler and a 1929 DeSoto; 1930s, a 1931 Imperial and a 1934 Dodge pick-up; 1940s, a 1943 Jeep MB and a 1948 Chrysler Town & Country convertible; 1950s, a 1950 Jeepster and a 1957 Dodge "sweptside" pick-up. There are also classic cars from the 1960s ('60 Valiant), 1970s ('75 Chrysler Cordoba), 1980s ('87 Lamborghini Portofino concept car) and 1990s up to the 1998 Viper LeMans and Stratus Touring class winners.

According to the company, Walter Chrysler was "an accomplished, self-taught mechanic and machinist" who had a passion for machinery and mechanical perfection. He is said to be a man "so intrigued with automotive technology that he bought, disassembled and reassembled an automobile before he learned to drive."

His legacy is "an impressive lists of automotive industry firsts, relentless improvement and refinements, many of which are highlighted in the Walter P. Chrysler Museum."

ne of the firsts included key-operated ignition systems (1949), a button automatic transmission (1966) and a "Highway Hi-Fi" respect player option (1956), although it was "prone to skipping while delving."

Interactive displays, thought out the museum, are a clever way to provide glimpses of the Chrysler legacy. For example, a unit for "Gedgeta, Gimmicks and Bright, Shiny Chrome" comes with a 1950sera dashboard. You just push the "drive" button and "go" to the informative video.

Another nice feature, fun for kids and families, are the snatches of ated history that accompany the auto displays. For example, blewups of icons like The Brady Bunch and Michael Jackson accompahy 1970s and 1980s models.

The bottom floor or basement, "Boss Chrysler's Garage," includes simulations of a dealership showroom and a race car track, complete with Astroturf. This is the part of the museum where you'll find the Truman auto, which greets you as you exit the elevator.

Even that fits the auto mold. Chrysler has spared no section of its museum, creating one of the two elevators to resemble a large loading dock. Guests ride up in down in an overly large structure that doubles as a "real" loading dock when it's not carrying passengers, said DaimlerChrysler public relations manager Curtrise Garner. She provided a brief tour of the 55,000-square-foot museum Wednesday.

Garner said there has always been a desire for such a museum.

"Some years ago we decided we would do it. This was in the works prior to the merger," she said. "This is the place where we've really preserved Chrysler's history."

Some additional highlights:

M A unique section of the museum pays homage to two rare prod-ucts from World War II. On display are a Chrysler aircraft engine and a Chrysler tank engine, found and restored by the museum's Acquisition &n Restoration Team. Both were commissioned to support the United States' war effort. The tank engine was found in Argentina.

Each vehicle comes with some historical comparisons, written on the display units. For example, in 1948 a new Town and Country convertible sold for $3,420, when the average annual income was $3,187, a loaf of bread cost 14 cents and a half gallon of milk, 42 cents.

Jumping to 1993, a Jeep Grand Cherokee went for $23,000, when the average income was $36,959, the loaf of bread cost 76 cents and the half-gallon of milk cost $1.43.

On the second floor, a 125-seat theater features three film choices: The Early Years, the Life and Times of Walter P. Chrysler; Speed and Power, Chrysler's Cars Burn Up Road and Track; and Inside the Tech Center, Tour the Daimler-Chrysler Technology Center."

One of Garner's favorite exhibits is a family, excited about their new car, standing in their front yard. It features a house front and stone caricatures of dad, mem, the kids and dog. Dad is waving the title of the just-purchased red, black and white 1986 Dodge — complote with tail fins. It really shows a slice of life, frozen in time.

"It's like he's saying, 'Oh, I got us a new car," said Garner. "Only, today she (mesn) wouldn't be Mrs. Cleaver. She'd probably be at work, too ... You know, the house, the 2.5 kids and a dog."

Chrysler Museum manager Barry Dressel said, so far, the response to the new museum has been "very successful." Until recently, most of the advertising has been geared to auto enthusiasts, but now families and school and bus tour groups are trickling in. "They're the cream of our numbers," Dressel said.

Garner said most people don't stop to think about how important transportation is, and how much they rely on vehicles to get them around. The museum makes them aware of that.

"They touch every aspect of our lives." Whether it's "a car, train, plane or cab, it still has an engine in it," she said.

The museum, which is wheelchair accessible, is open Tuesday through Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Sunday from noon to 6 p.m. Admission is $6 for adults, $3 for seniors and juniors. Annual memberships are available for $45. For more information, visit the web site at www.chryslerheritage.com, or call toll-free (888) 456-1924. Tours may be arranged by calling Alice Cerniglia at (248) 944-0449. The museum is also looking for volunteers.

DEALER GIVES AWAY 4x4's IF IT DOESN'T SNOW!

Plymouth, Michigan - This is "no flaky" offer! Lou LaRiche announced today that it is proud to offer a great winter give-a-way if it doesn't snow!

Buy or lease from stock any new 2000 Silverado, Blazer, Suburban or Tahoe from them before October 31, 2000 and if it doesn't snow between November 7, 2000 and December 15, 2000 they will give you your money back and you keep the 4x4. This is an amazing offer, considering how the weather has been the last few years. "These are top of the line trucks, fully equipped and we have a great selection", the sales manager Tony Wasil explained.

We asked some of the sales staff what they thought of this promotion; "I've never seen such an offer before. I'm sure we will sell every vehicle we have", said Larry Ohsowski. "This is absolutely a great chance for our customers", says Harry Smith. Tom Adkins couldn't believe it, "I've heard of this before on snowblowers but never on a truck."

This offer does not include tax, license, finance or lease costs related to purchase or lease. Delivery must be completed by October 31, 2000. No snow is defined as no accumulation - no measurable amount of snowfall, which means less than .1 inch (1/10 of an inch) of snowfall between 12:01 AM November 7, 2000 to 11:59 PM December 15, 2000. Snow fall will be determined by Weather Service Certified Report at Detroit Wayne County Airport -DTW. Offer excludes GM Employee & Supplier purchases.

Final decision is the responsibility of the Travelers Insurance Company. Dealer has paid a fee to Travelers Insurance and Dealer assumes no responsibility.

Lou LaRiche Chevrolet is located at 40875 Plymouth Road at the corner of Haggerty Road. Call 734-453-4600 for more information
