Jury convicts Islam

The prosecution said the evidence showed guilt, and the defense disagreed. On Tuesday, the jury in Azizul Islam's trial agreed with the prosecution.

Proseculars sumitted their case was circumstantial, but in the end it came down to fresh paint and blood found in the basement of Azizul Islam's Roe Street home in Plymouth that led to Islam's conviction Tuesday for the murder of his estranged wife, Tracy.

The same paint was found on the body parts of Tracy, rant trash bin in Dear northwest Ohio. Police also found evidence of the which Islam used on his basement floor to cover up blood.

stains, on plastic bags which covered the human remains. "The best evidence was the paint chips on the bage as the torso and body parts," said Assistant Wayne County Prosecutor Michael Lehto after the verdict. "That put the body in the basement of the house, and unraveled the defense theory of a mystery person committing the murder." Even defense attorney Michael Schwartz admitted the paint was the strongest evidence presented to the jury of six men and six women, who deliberated just over four hours before convicting Islam.

"The strongest evidence the prosecution had was the paint," said Schwartz. "All it does is show the body was in the house. It doesn't show who committed the murder."

Sentencing in front of Wayne County Circuit Judge Patricia Fresard is scheduled for Friday, Oct. 20. The first degree murder conviction # 'The best evidence .

carries a mandatory sentence of life in prison without possibility of parole. As the verdict was read by the jury foreman, Islam, 51, showed no emotion about being convicted of first degree murder and mutilation of a dead body. His son,

Joseph, 17, ran from the courtroom crying and shouting. Islam's daughter, Anna, 15, put her head in her hands and wept in the courtroom. Other Islam family members and supporters had the look of shock on their faces.

Happy with decision: Anita Ross, left, sister of murder victim Tracy Islam, celebrates the guilty verdict with Plymouth Police Commander Wayne Carrol outside the courtroom Tuesday.

Meanwhile, Tracy Islam's sister, Anita Ross, who flew in from London, England to testify and stayed for the entire trial, felt relieved at the verdict.

"Justice has been done," said Ross. "I felt confident all along. It's the only verdict the jury could have come up with. The hard work of the prosecution and the police was brilliant."

Ross, who will be returning to England, is hopeful she can get the remains of Tracy to be buried in Britain.

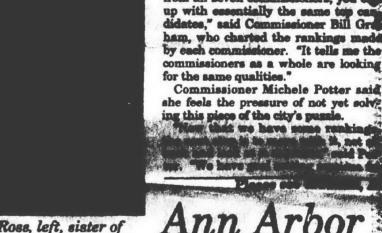

Schwartz left no doubt he will appeal the murder conviction. "I don't see how the jury could come up with a first degree murder conviction without showing intent or premedita-

Plymouth woman faces charges after driving into state police car

BY SUE BUCK STAFF WRITER

A Plymouth woman faces a preliminary exam Oct. 17 in 45-B District Court in Oak Park on charges of drunken driving and driving with a suspended license in connection with a traffic accident Sunday in which she allegedly struck a Michigan State Police car on westbound I-696 at Scotia.

Rolanda Lee Kelley, 26, of Plymouth was arraigned Monday before Magistrate William Mitchell.

Kelley tested two times the legal limit for alcohol, said Sgt. Jerome Ren of the Michigan State Police's Oak Park post. She stood mute and a plea of not guilty was entered for her. .

Kelley didn't post the $5,000 bond, according to a court spokesman. The drunken driving misdemeanor charge carries a 93-day penalty, and the suspended license charge could have a penalty of 93 days to three years, Ren said.

Ren said a woman struck a Michigan State Police car about 3:20 a.m. Sunday on westbound I-696 and Scotia in Huntington

One trooper sat in the car while the other was outside the police car because he was in the process of citing another driver during a traffic stop, Ren said.

The woman struck the police car pushing it into the median and sending the trooper over the hood of the car that was stopped, Ren said.

Both troopers and the Plymouth woman are doing well, Ren said. No one was transported to the hospital.

"The troopers were both shaken up," he said. "It happened so

Observer earns several honors in annual newspaper contest

The Michigan Press Association this week released the winners in its annual Better Newspaper Contest, and the Plymouth Observer came up with several honors.

The Observer earned a first-place award for the design of its editorial pages, with judges citing the paper for pages that are "well done. Topics presented in sufficient details for understanding by casual readers and suggestions to act provid-

The Observer also earned a second-place award for its editorial writing. Editor Brad Kadrich's editorials, including one on the commercialization of Ice Fest, were "well done. The editorial on Ice Fest was well done and criticized local merchants, which has the potential to affect advertising dollars," judges said.

Observer Assistant Managing Editor for Features Keely Wygonik was also lauded for a lifestyle section that contains "good, solid coverage of lifestyle stories and the arts."

In all, the Observer group, which also includes papers in Canton, Westland, Farmington, Garden City, Redford and Livonia, earned 16 awards.

"The Observer Newspapers strive to put out the best community newspapers in the country,' Managing Editor Hugh Gallagher said. "We are proud that the MPA has recognized our efforts. I applaud the hard work and dedication of our editors, reporters and photographers."

Winning awards isn't easy, said Banks Dishmon, vice president and chief operating officer of HomeTown Communications Network.

"It shows the commitment that every journalist, advertising and marketing person, production personnel, publisher and corporate staff make each week to produce the very best newspapers," he added. "These awards are a clear reflection of; our mission statement: 'Our fundamental purposes are to enhance the lives of our readers, nurture the hometowns we serve and contribute to the business success of our customers."

Members of the Missouri Press Association studied more than 4,100 entries submitted by 111 Michigan newspapers when they judged this year's Michigan Press Association Better Newspaper Contest.

Plymouth detective happy with results of 1st murder probe

BY TONY BRUSCATO

Plymouth police Commander Wayne Carroll had a look of satisfaction on his face minutes after the jury convicted Azizul Islam of Plymouth for the murder and dismemberment of his wife Tracy Islam.

Carroll's involvement began last Dec. 26 when he began investigating a missing person report called in from London, England, where relatives had expected Tracy Islam to return after an eight-day trip to visit her children and finalize a divorce with her husband of 17

The missing person report quickly turned into a murder investigation when arms and limbs were found in a metal trash bin in Dearborn, and a torso was found in a field in northwest Ohio.

Within 10 days, Carroll arrested Azizul Islam, who was convicted nearly nine months later.

"The only reason we got into his house is because he thought he covered it up," said Carroll.
"He thought by looking like he was cooperating, he was throwing us off. But, we were tenacious because we knew we had the right person from the beginning. Carroll admitted that a small police department like Plymouth's needed the resources of other departments in order to complete the investigation.

"It was a real group effort. It took the investigators in Dearborn, Ohio, Plymouth and the Wayne County prosecutor's office a lot of time and energy," said Carroll. "He cut her up into 16 pieces, and it took a lot to put this case together."

The prosecution's entire case was based on circumstantial evidence. Carroll noted that while it may be the best evidence, it can be tough convincing a jury.

"Sometimes circumstantial evidence is the best evidence, and in this case there was a lot of it," said Carroll. "But, you always wonder if it's going to come across to the jury, and if the defense is going to throw a bomb on it. The presecutors did a great job of articulating to the jury a case that had many twists and turns to it."

One of the biggest twists in Carroll's mind was the lack of any defense. Islam's attern Michael Schwarts, m

Fourth run in honor of Plymouth woman takes aim at breast cancer awareness

BY EILEN MCCARVILLE STAFF WRITER

Just a few years ago, Trish Donnelly-Runnionwas a normal, active young woman - unaware she had a lump in her breast, which was later diagnosed as breast cancer.

Though the Plymouth resident fought strenuously during three years of treatments, Donnelly-Runnion lost her battle, succumbing to the disease in January 1997. She was just 28 years

Her family wants to keep the memory of their loved one alive, but more important, they want to raise awareness that breast cancer "can happen to anyone at any age," said Donnelly-Runnion's brother, Pat Donnelly of Canton Township.

October is National Breast Cancer Awareness Month. So it's fitting this Sunday marks the fourth annual Trish Donnelly-Runnion Memorial Fund Run at Summit on the Park, 46000 Summit Parkway. This year's run includes a one-mile walk/ run, and 5K and 10K runs. Plaques and ribbons are awarded to winners in each age division: Under 18, every five years to age 60, Pat Donnelly said.

Registration begins at 7:30 a.m., followed with the 10K run at 8:45, the 5K run at 10, and the walk/ run at 10:45. All runners will participate at the same

Facts of the matter

Cufrent statistics on the probability of developing breast cancer:

Birth to age 39: One in 235 females

Age 49-50: One in 25

Age 60-79: One in 15

In averaging these three groups, one of every eight women will develop breast cancer.

Early detection, through breast self exams and regular mammograms, produces a 96 percent, five-year survival rate when the disease is "localized," in a particular spot.

The five-year survival rate decreases to 77 percent when the cancer becomes a "regional disease," traveling to the lymph nodes. Chance of survival drops to 21 percent when it becomes a "distant disease," traveling to other organs such as the lungs, brain A patient is termed "cancer-free" when the disease has been in remission for five years, although it can resurface five to 10 years led the basic, active life of a 25year-old women. It was a shock, no doubt about it," Pat Donnelly said.

That's why the family is so adamant about spreading the word to young people. The myriad of breast cancer awareness programs are geared to older women, who have a higher risk. But women younger than 40 get breast cancer, too.

"We know there's a lot of information out there for women over 40," said Michael Donnelly, Donnelly-Runnion's father and a former Plymouth resident. "But we're hoping to reach young ladies in their 20s and early 30s. We want to spread the message that, if something seems amiss, they need to have it checked out right away.'

The Trish Donnelly-Runnion Memorial Fund has raised $15,000 since its inception. Although many of the first participants were friends of Donnelly-Runnion and her family, the numbers are growing, Pat Donnelly said.

"Last year we had 500 people. We're expecting 600-700 people this year.

Pat Donnelly's wife, Mary Beth, believes the reason for the increase is awareness. "I guess you could say that breast cancer is becoming more of a concern and issue for people. And word (of the Fund Run) has spread."

Cost for the Fund Run is $18 per person. Participants should meet at the start of the running loop, off Heritage Park Drive, west of Canton Center. For more information, call Pat Donnelly at (734) 981-4753.

ht. parkKids visiting The Health Exploration Station really get an eyeful. They get an earful, too, and more.

Part of the fun of the one-yearold facility, run by Saint Joseph Mercy Health System in Ann Arbor, is walking through the body parts. Children push buttons and pull levers to access accompanying interactive programs.

"It's designed like the inside of a gigantic human," said Cheryl McInerney, coordinator of the center. Children walk through a giant rib cage, where they hear their own hearth beat, and meander down a path through the digestive systems, crossing through the stomach and large and small intestines, where they finally exit the body through a giant slide.

The center, located in the Saint Joseph Mercy Canton Health Center, 1600 S. Canton Center Road, celebrated its first anniversary Sept. 28 with tours and refreshments. The 3,500square-foot center was created as a way to "raise awareness" about how to take care of our bodies, McInerney said.

It includes an interactive exhibit gallery and two class-rooms, which accommodate up to 60 students and have teaching modules integrated into the walls. According to information from Saint Joseph, it's the first of its kind in Michigan.

Children also get hands-on experience in other areas like fitness — where they can try a high jump and see how long they can keep their balance — and nutrition. For example, in an exhibit designed to curb nicotine use, a mannequin "lights up and it shows smoking damage to parts of the body." Or, in the infection and sneeze area, it shows "how far" the spray travels from your nose.

Saint Joseph studied similar concepts across the country, including the "body" exhibit in Future World, a portion of Epcot at Walt Disney World in Florida.

"We did focus groups to find out if people wanted it," McInerney said. "The response was overwhelming." Over $1.7 million was raised through corporate and community donations. Though the goal was only $1.5 million, the extra funds made it possible for the station to be open one day a month for the public, McInerney said.

The facility is geared for preschoolers up to high school. Saint Joseph estimates more than 400 groups have visited, representing 34 different school districts, private schools, home schools, preschools and scout troops. Over all, 14,000 students – from Ann Arbor to Detroit to Flint – have marched through the doors since the center's opening.

It's become a favorite destination for field trips. McInerney said they enjoy reading the comments they get from some of the students.

"Our favorite came from this little boy: "Thanks. I learned about the inside of me." It's also rewarding when they hear comments like "I learned not to smoke 'cause my lungs turn black."

The facility may be fun for the younger set, but it's mature enough to hold older students' interest. Even they provide feedback, McInerney said. "Oftentimes we see them come in on a field trip and they say, "This is going to be dumb.' When they leave, they say, 'You know, that was pretty cool."

The station has been so successful, it plans to include programs for adults. Ideas range, from "menopause programs; Boys to Men - raising sons, today; and heart-to-heart conversations with Mom and Dad, McInerney said.

The Health Exploration Station is open to the public 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. the fourth Thursday of every month. For more information or to schedule a trip for your group, call (734) 398-7518.

Luncheon honors seniors who prove 'ability is ageless'

On Nov. 2 Operation ABLE of Michigan will host the 11th annual "Ability is Ageless" award luncheon at the Hyatt Regency Dearborn to honor employees 50 years of age and older who have made an outstanding contribution on the job and who exemplify the concept that ability is ageless.

"At a time when employers are clamoring for good workers, this event is a simple and cost-effective way for a business to recognize deserving mature workers—the people who play a key role in the company's success and serve as a role model," says Karen Kosniewski, president of Operation ABLE, the agency sponsoring the awards.

"Employers who recruit and retain older employees find that they meet or exceed expectations and bring valuable experience and insight to the table," said Kosniewski. "They are often role models for other employees, and the Ability is Ageless Luncheon is an opportunity to recognize truly resilient workers who make a difference to the company through their experience, their work ethic and their commitment to excellence."

All workers who are nominated by their employers receive an Ability is Ageless Distinguished Service certificate and are featured in a slide program at the luncheon. Of that group of nominees, 10 are selected for the special "Most ABLE" award, and one from the top 10 receives the highest recognition, the Neal Shine Ability is Ageless Award.

Nominations are due by Oct. 10. To receive a nomination form or make a luncheon reservation, call Operation ABLE at (248) 443-0370 or e-mail your request to able@ameritech.net. The nomination form and other details about the luncheon are available on the web at www.OperationABLE.org.

WDIV-TV senior anchor Carmen Harlan is the emcee of the Nov. 2 event. Luncheon sponsors and corporate contributors include the Michigan Department of Community Health Office of Services to the Aging, Ameritech, Bank One, The Kroger Co., Kelly Services, Ford Motor Company, Sandy Corporation, and Kmart Corporation. Media sponsors include WDIV-TV and WWJ Newsradio 950.

Operation ABLE of Michigan is a nonprofit employment and training agency that meets the diverse needs of mid-career and older adults seeking employment counseling, computer instruction and job search assistance.

From its offices in Detroit and Southfield the organization offers a full range of computer and career development classes to more than 500 people each year and has a Career Resilience Center with resources for explexing career options and conducting a job search. Schools admonished for anti-voucher advocacy

BY MIKE MALOTT HOMETOWN NEWS SERVICE

The secretary of state has concluded that as many as 12 school districts may have violated campaign finance laws that prohibit units of government from spending taxpayer dollars to influence the outcome of an election.

Kids First! Yes!, the organization that placed Proposal 1 on the November ballot to create vouchers, has filed complaints against 17 districts. One complaint has been dismissed. Four remain under review.

to spokeswoman Elizabeth Boyd. Rather, letters have been issued warning that unless the violations stop, action may be taken in the future.

Huron Valley schools

The secretary of state's office concluded Aug. 23 that Huron Valley may have violated the law in e-mails, newsletters, presentations and press releases.

The district's newsletter, the "Huron Valley Educator" included an article titled "Vouchers Loom: Students at Risk," which stated, "Vouchers are about privatization, not opportunity. Vouchers are at the heart of the rightwing attack on public institutions, an attack that seeks to reduce government responsibility for the good of all while maximizing support for private and corporate gain."

The Huron Valley Board of Education adopted a resolution in opposition to vouchers, which it can do, but it should not have issued a press release about that resolution, the secretary of state's compliance and rules decision conclud-

In the newsletter, pro-voucher arguments are listed as "some kids will benefit" while the anti-voucher stance claims that "many kids will be hurt" and "public schools are good and getting better."

E-mails were received from the Michigan PTA and All Kids First and distributed through the Oakland Schools information system. The message calls for people to send letters to the editor at local newspapers explaining why vouchers are not a good solution, adding that, "It is your job to help make sure that message gets out there."

Judge asked to intervene against Secretary of State

BY MIKE MALOTT HOMETOWN NEWS SERVICE

The heated campaign contest over vouchers has boiled over into a courtroom clash.

Educators filed suit Friday, Sept. 29, arguing that a new campaign finance law, intended to keep the government from spending tak money to influence elections, is stifling their First Amendment free speech rights. At least, it will if Secretary of State Candice Miller is allowed to continue interpreting and enforcing it the way she is now, they

During a show cause hearing Monday, Oct. 2, the Huron Valley School District, its teachers union, the Michigan Education Association and the Utica Education Association asked Ingham County Circuit Judge Michael Harrison to issue a preliminary injunction against Miller, blocking her from enforcing the law for the remainder of the election season. Harrison took the case under advisement, saying he would likely issue an order early next week. In the meantime, the judge did say school districts can publish articles in opposition to the voucher proposal in newsletters, as long as they also contain an article in support of the ballot question to provide balance.

According to secretary of state spokeswoman Elizabeth Boyd, the court also "expressed reservations about the interpretive statement" Miller wrote back in July to explain to school district officials what they can and cannot do, as they talk to constituents about the ballot question, to stay within the bounds of the Campaign Finance Act's new "Section 57."

This is a fight that has been brewing for months. Both sides say they are feeling intimidated and harassed by the other. Kids First! Yes!, the voucher proponent group that placed the constitutional amendment question Proposal 1 on the ballot for this November, contends that it has simply been attempting to monitor the activities of school districts as they inform voters about the ramifications of the proposition.

To obtain the materials those districts are putting out, Kids First has filed a string of Freedom of Information Act requests with districts across the state, spokesman Greg McNeilly said. Some districts have received as many as eight so far, he said.

Kids First has also filed 17 complaints with Miller, alleging districts violated Section 57. In 12 cases, the secretary of state office has agreed that there may be infractions and has issued letters telling district officials to stop the violations.

No fines or sanctions have yet been levied. One aimmaint was dismissed; the remainder are still under review. That many FOIA requests in the short period of time since last October "borders on harasement," said Southfield school district Public Information Director Ken Siver.

Southfield has not been the target of a complaint. Still, Siver said that it is obvious from the number of POIAs filed that the purpose is not to monitor but to intimidate school district officials into saying nothing all about the proposal.

Southfield Superintendent Marlene Davis said the BOIAs and complaints are having a chilling effect on many teachers and school board members, whether a complaint has been filed against them or not. That's a violation of educators' free speech rights, Huron Valley Superintendent Robert O'Brien said.

In fact, he believes teachers and district administrators have an obligation to explain the effect of ballot proposals to their constituents. Local voters often ask them for their explanations and interpretations of education-related questions.

Huron Valley was the subject of one complaint, and the secretary of state warned the district Aug. 23 that it may have violated the law in newsletters, e-mails and press releases it has issued. But it's the school districts that are harassing Kids First! Yes!, according to McNeilly.

Some districts have been reluctant to comply with the FOIA requests. Others have said they would turn dyer the information but have attempted to charge exorbitant amounts for the documents. "They'd say, 'OK, but we will charge you $100 per hour for compiling this information,' "McNeilly said. "When we told them they couldn't do that - the FOI Act says they have to charge us at the rate of the lowest person on staff who can compile the information - they'd say, 'OK, it will take five hours at $20 per hour."

Kids First attorney Tim Knowlton said one district attempted to charge the group $300 for one FOIA request. He said the group may file a lawsuit itself over the prices it is being charged.

The secretary of state herself is coming under fire for the way she is enforcing the new state law. The court case is filed against Miller. Kids First is not a party in the case, although it will seek to join.

Huron Valley, for instance, was cited for materials it has released about the voucher proposal. A district newsletter, the "Huron Valley Educator," contained an

and corporate gain."

David Murley of the secretary of state's Compliance and Rules Division concluded the newsletter went beyond a strictly factual presentation of the pros and cons of the voucher proposal. He explained that school officials can take positions on ballot questions and can campaign on their own time with their own money, but they cannot use public resources to promote their point of view or attempt to influence the election.

The teachers unions joined the case over a secretary of state decision that they cannot use school building mailboxes or the district's internal mail system to communicate with their members about the voucher proposal. Huron Valley Education Association attorney Tom Baird said there is an exception in Section 57 that allows for internal communication between unions and members.

But McNeilly and Knowlton argue that if the mailboxes are used to distribute materials opposed to vouchers, they should also be epened to use by those who support the proposal. Huron Valley Superintendent O'Brien said he believes the secretary of state's interpretation of the law will viplate his free speech rights. He is also questioning whether there is a political motivation in what he sees as an unusually aggressive manner by Miller's office of enforcing the campaign finance law.

In all previous elections, it has been the Attorney General's office that has kept an eye on school districts as they put out information about ballot proposals, Davis said. Secretary of state spokeswoman Boyd countered that the change is the result of a 1996 amendment to campaign finance law.

Prior to '96, the state relied on Attorney General opinions to keep governmental units from expending public resources on election campaigns. The '96 revision clarified the rules in law and assigned enforcement to the secretary of state.

Boyd said Miller has gone to great lengths to keep politics out of the enforcement of campaign finance law. "She was one of the first to come out in opposition to vouchers," Boyd said. "To suggest now that she is now somehow paying homage to the group that supports vouchers is ridiculous."

Wills to speak on vouchers

Pulitzer Prise-winning author and historian Gary Wills will offer his perspective on the controversial schoolvoucher proposal Tuesday, Oct. 17, at the Birmingham Temple in Farmington Hills.

Wills, a professor at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill., will lecture on "Freedom From or For Religion" at 7:30 p.m. There is no charge.

If it passes in the Nov. 7 general election, the voucher referendum will rescind Michigan's ban on using tax money for private and religious schools.

In conjunction with the lecture, Clergy & Citizens United, an association of more than 500 Michigan clergy and civic leaders, will present its Citizen of the Year Award to Gov. John Engler for his stand against vouchers. The presidential debate between Dimecrat Al Gore and Republican George W. Bush will be shown on largeacreen television after Wills' talk.

A discussion of that debate, moderated by Jack Lessenberry, a Metro Times columnist and Wayne State University journalism professor, will follow

Grand Ledge

Kids First! Yes! filed a complaint in September against the Grand Ledge school district for posting an audio-visual presentation, much like the one produced by Oakland Schools, on its district Web site. Although the secretary of state's office has judged the presentation to be in violation, the school district had not removed the presentation from its Web site, the Kids First group complained. The voucher proponents are asking the secretary of state to order the school district to remove the presentation from the Web page.

P-CEP band brings home Governor's Trophy

BY DIANE HANSON SPECIAL WRITER

For 16 of the past 25 years, the traveling Governor's Trophy has been presented at the Michigan Invitational Marching Band Tournament. And the Plymouth-Canton Educational Park Marching Band has brought it home as the highest-scoring band. This year was no exception, and it was accompanied by a bevy of additional trophies from the Get. I competition at Eastern Michigan University's

—Band director

The show is afast-paced musical expression of society's fixation with objects and status, formers the highest everall score, 83.65, of all 20 competing bands in all four flights.

"This is a little bit of an uncharted territory for us, not telling a concrete story," said band director David McGrath.

"But they did a really good job. I think musically we are ahead of where we normally are at this point.

"Visually, we are just a little behind."

But, he added, that's because of the drill changes made last week and just the sheer complexity of the show. He said the staff altered a sizable portion of the drill after seeing it from a high vantage point the previous week at the Bands of America Regionals in Toledo.

"We rewrote about 10 drill marks and added seven to that so the kids learned 17 new drill charts this week," said McGrath. And the learning meant considerable practice.

"The long hours of practice are definitely worth it in the end," said Beth Metz, a drumline member. "I feel we did well. There are always some flaws, and we can always do better, but we really improved a lot this week."

Senior trombonist Matt Bryan agreed. "We worked really hard and put in an 11-hour rehearsal on Saturday, but it paid off," he said. "I think we performed well."

Band boosters get ready for home invite

The Plymouth-Canton band boosters are putting the finishing touches on the Great Lakes Invitational Marching Band Competition scheduled for Oct. 14 at the Plymouth-Canton forthall field

"We will have a lot of great bands," said P-CEP band director. David McGrath. "We will have some of the best bands from as far away as the west side of the state.

"It's going to be very, very stiff competition."

A host of surprises are in store for those who haven't seen a marching band show for some time. The high school bands do a lot more than just keep in step with the music.

Each 10-minute show is a production of pageantry, color and drama along with the fancy footwork and accomplished music.

There are 28 bands registered for the GLI competition and the defending national champion Plymouth-Canton hand will play in exhibition as hosts of the event.

"Next to the state championship contest, this is the largest show in the state," said McGrath.

For more information about ticket prices and times, call Camille at (734) 453-9111.

And while the P-CEP band is stacking up the trophies this season, they are still far from the finished production.

"We don't have any effects in the show yet," said McGrath. "It was too windy to use the mirrors (there are 40 of the seven-byfour-foot reflectors to come), and the scrolling sign board and the cell phone sound effects aren't in

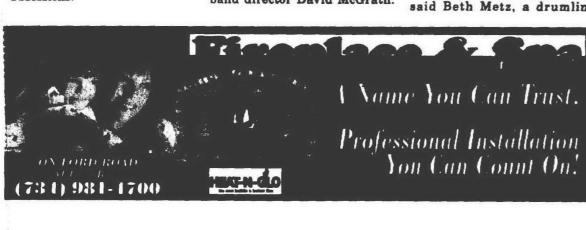

He said those are the things that will make the show more interesting and will allow the audience to follow the story line and better understand what is being portrayed.

The show "is effective just because it has really neat music and drill, but in terms of telling the story – which is what we are usually known for – no one can make sense of it yet," McGrath said.

The audience and judges might still be scratching their heads and wondering, McGrath added, but that should change considerably by the time the band performs as hosts of the Great Lakes Invitational at the Plymouth-Canton football stadium on Oct. 14.

"We may not have all the bells and whistles in vet, but we will be marching all the drills and playing all the music and should have a lot of the effects in by that point," said McGrath.

Berry stresses issues in longshot race

BY RICHARD PEARL STAFF WRITER

When barrel-chested Carl Berry gets to work, he never needs to roll up his sleeves: His shirts are the short-sleeve kind.

In fact, if the popular former police chief isn't wearing one of those, he says, it's because he's cruising the countryside on one of his Harley-Davidson motorcycles.

The shirts and the cycles attest to the down-to-earth, straightforward style of the Plymouth Township resident and outdoorsman whom area Republicans hope will wrest the 13th District U.S. Congressional seat from the equally popular Lynn Rivers, the incumbent Ann Arbor Democrat, in the Nov. 7 general election.

Rivers is seeking a fourth consecutive two-year term.

But Berry, ever the realist, notes the 13th District - which runs from Ann Arbor east to Garden City and Inkster - is "a very Democratic district.'

And, he states at the outset of a recent interview with Observer editors and reporters, "I'll be very frank - my chances of winning are slim."

So why is he running?

Because there are "a lot of issues out there that people need to know about ... that need to be

'If I win, that'd be great, but if I lose, my heart's not going to be broken," says the veteran of 35 years in law enforcement and more than 20 years in Republican Party politics. "But I have every intention of making this a good race."

It won't be a dirty one: "Lynn's got some very good ideas."

But "She is on one side of the coin, and I'm on the other side, and I strongly believe that both sides need" to be heard "so people have a choice about what they want to do," says the founder of the Plymouth Repub-

As Berry sees it, individuals need to take more responsibility in areas such as Social Security investing and gun ownership; the private sector needs to take more responsibility for the high prices of prescription drugs for seniors; and the federal government needs to take responsibility for finding alternatives to crude oil.

There's too much government regulation on, among other things, t environment and voting. And government should stay out of the abortion issue altogether.

with China, school vouchers and charter schools and says the military needs rebuilding. But he also believes local law officers must be trained to fight international terrorism.

There should be background checks on gun buyers, he says, but police need access to more of the information from those checks.

Berry favors citizens investing their Social Security money to build stronger retirement plans investing is an excellent idea because "it puts the responsibility back on people." But people need proper investment schooling first.

Berry favors a flat tax because it "is going to get to those people that need to pay taxes and make everybody pay the same tax."

There'd be no deductions: "If you're going to be fair, be fair."

Not the answer

Releasing U.S. oil reserves won't reduce prices, he says, but government pressure on the oil industry will. So will efforts to find other energy sources.

"We've got to look at other options" such as alcohol and electricity, Berry says. "Oil isn't going to last forever.'

Besides, "We gotta get into mass transportation. There is no real mass transit in metro Detroit today.

When we get to be seniors and we don't have a car anymore, where's our transportation?" Berry says communities are overwhelmed by governmental paperwork on the environment and favors reducing the paperwork but spending more money to solve the problems.

He also blames excess regulation for recent vote-counting woes: "The problems in the elections are huge, and it isn't the clerks that are the problem; it's the process.

Too many laws'

"They're having too many ... laws put on them," he notes, citing the two-recount limit. "They were only allowed to recount votes twice in one community and neither (counter) could come up with the same count."

He suggest changing the voting process: Add a ballot day, or more hours, "or open up the . absentee process.

Online voting may be an answer, if security problems can be solved, Berry says - "but we've got to get more people to vote. ... We're now a government run by the minority" of those who do vote "and that's not

As for abortion? "I'm prochoice - but I'm also pro-life. I don't think the government should have anything to do with the decision of abortion. ... If you've got (any) legislation ... that is wrong.

"I don't like abortions," but "it's a moral issue."

However, repealing Roe vs. Wade could restart abortion mills like the two in Plymouth during the 1960s, Berry says: "I don't ever want to see something like that happen again.'

As for prescription drug prices for elderly people and proposed Medicare changes, Berry believes that "the private side has a hell of a lot more responsibilities than they're showing right now."

He calls for a coalition in Congress to find a balance in the plans being proposed.

He favors trade with China because "if you don't open up the doors ... you can't really impact" China's stand on human rights.

But he thinks the American worker ultimately will benefit from the resulting economic expansion.

2-front capability

The U.S. military needs rebuilding because it can't handle a war on two fronts, says Berry, a Vietnam-era Air Force

However, he opposes deploying the military in this country in case of a terrorist attack.

The answer, says the former police chief of both the city of Plymouth and Plymouth Township, lies in training local police in anti-terrorism tactics.

Besides, keeping more tax money in-state to train law enforcement officers "gives us the ability to use the money where it's needed," says Berry, who in 1983 was called out of retirement as Plymouth chief to create Plymouth Township's department.

As for gun control, "I don't. hunt, but I understand the hunters," says Berry, an outdoorsman who enjoys fishing. Nevertheless, the former top cop. favors both background checks and better education for gun

"If a person is institutionalized for any particular reason, we need to have the ability to take a look at that. Right now, we can't.

"When I was police chief, we... were taking guns away from crazy people a hell of a lot more than were taken away from per ple that had common sense."

He recalled twice taking a rocket launcher, sniper rifles "and 25 other weapons, includ-

Local official lobbies Clinton for flood aid

BY RICHARD PRABL STAFF WRITER

A Wayne County commissioner has personally appealed to President Bill Clinton on behalf of all the victims of last month's widespread flooding.

Commissioner John J. Sullivan, D-Wayne, asked Clinton for federal assistance during the president's late-September visit to the Detroit area.

Sullivan said some of the victims live in the city of Wayne, in the area around Annapolis Hospital, which was affected. At least one other victim is from Canton Township.

Sullivan said the Canton resident, who said his basement was flooded with sewage, was referred to him by the township. Sullivan's office referred the man to the office of Mark R. Sparks, director of the county's emergency management division.

Sullivan met the president at Willow Run Airport.

"I simply wanted to make sure that President Clinton was aware of the situation," Sullivan said.

How soon can the state can expect a response?

We just have to wait for the federal process to work its way through," said Michigan State Police Inspector Phil Schertzing, the assistant commander of the Emergency Management Division. That division and the Michigan Department of Transportation helped communities assess damages.

"It's very difficult to estimate" how long it'll take, he said. "It could be a matter of a few days, or it could be a week or so.

The 100-member association wants to build a facility on a quarter-acre site that would include a hangar, mini museum, workshops for building and restoring planes and areas for hosting educational events.

'We've reached a point where there's just no sense in putting more money into (the old building)," said Al Bosonetto, EAA Chapter 113 president while addressing the Mettetal Airport advisory board last week.

The proposed building will be 5,000 square feet, considerably exceeding the current building's 600-square-foot space.

EAA's board of directors, said Visteon, a potential donor, is excited about the educational potential of the new building.

"We want to get the communiy's youth into here," Moore said. Money from Visteon would have to be earmarked for educational purposes, he added.

The Mettetal Airport advisory board last week approved allowing the EAA to continue discussing its building plans with the state of Michigan, which owns the airport, which is at Lilley and Joy.

The EAA has contemplated a new facility for eight years. The association has preliminary plans, $10,000 in the bank and another $10,000 in pledges.

The estimated cost of building will be $75,000 and would cover just materials. EAA members plan to do most of the construction work on the steel pole-barn style building themselves and contract out the rest.

Mettetal Airport advisory board chairman Mark Merlanti said the EAA performing its own labor shouldn't be a problem.

"You'll need to make sure you have proper insurance for your laborers in case they get hurt during construction," Merlanti EAA Chapter 113 is a member of the international Experimental Aircraft Association, an aviation organization with more than 165,000 members.

Only about one-third of the group's members are actually pilots. The remainder are aviation enthusiasts or tinkerers. Bosonetto said.

Since 1987, the EAA has awarded 20 scholarships to local youths. The chapter also holds an annual Father's Day pancake breakfast and has given more than 500,000 airplane rides to

It wasn't the first time. It happens almost every week.

You see, Becky spends Sunday morning with about 20 other kids her age at Trinity Presbyterian Church. Her parents don't let Becky go off by herself. They take her.

Becky loves every minute of it. Her mom and dad love it too. Not just because of the way Becky is growing, but because of the way the church helps the whole family stay closer together.

Maybe you should think about leaving home next Sunday morning! If you do, bring the whole family.

HANDLING PET EMERGENCIES

It can be extremely stressful if your pet becomes seriously ill or injured, but remaining calm will help the animal. Approach the animal slowly and cautiously, speaking in a calm voice to minimize stress. After assessing the situation, immediately contact your pet's regular veterinarian. Most animal hospitals provide on-call vets or referrals to a nearby emergency pet hospital. Never delay in seeking medical attention, as it could be a matter of title or death for your pet. Stay off the computer, though, and use your phone instead. The American Animal Hospital Association (AAHA) recently reported receiving e-mails about a kitten hit by a car and a severely bleeding bird. Web sites are not equipped to handle such emergencies.

Keep your vet's phone number posted in clear view near the phone along with other emergency numbers. PARKWAY VETERINARY CLINIC provides comprehensive veterinary care, including emergency service, for pets. Bring your car or dog here for a complete health check-up and preventative care, such as inoculations, neutering and appying. Visit either of our two locations at 41395 Wilcox Rd, in Plymouth, tel. 734-453-2577, or 5750 Lilley Rd. In Canton, tel. 734-981-4400, open six days a week.

P.S. To be accredited by the AAHA, a veterinary hospital must offer 24-hour access

Our fundamental purposes are to enhance the lives of our readers, nurture the hometowns we serve and contribute to the business success of our customers.

Proposal 2 has enough flaws to urge 'no' vote

There are three fatal flaws in Proposal 2, "Let Local Votes Count," on the Nov. 7 ballot.

(1) The measure is incomprehensibly vague. (2) Adoption would lead to legal and legislative chaos. (3) It distorts the workings of our democratic system of decision-making.

Here's our reasoning.

Proposal 2 was placed on the ballot by initiative petition. Supported mainly by city government officials and their lobbying organization (the Michigan Municipal League), the measure would require a two-thirds vote of the state Legislature to pass any bill that "intervenes, or increases the scope of the Legislature's intervention, in the municipal concerns, property or government of a city, village, county, township or municipal authority." The constitutional amendment would be retroactive, applying to laws enacted after March 1 of this year.

Mayors and city council members from a number of communities - especially Detroit - began pushing for the amendment after lawmakers passed a whole string of bills that local officials say preempt decisions made locally. For example, the Legislature adopted a statewide construction code and a Right to Farm bill that overrode local zoning controls on agriculture. Most controversial was a bill to override city residency rules that required municipal workers to live in the town where they work.

The first flaw is that nobody can agree on what the constitutional amendment means. Any bill that "intervenes or increases the scope of the Legislature's intervention" in any local government could mean nearly all bills before the Legislature, or none. When representatives of the Michigan Municipal League and the Michigan Chamber of Commerce appeared together before editors of this newspaper, they couldn't even agree whether the measure applied to five specific bills passed within the last year with bipartisan support.

The second flaw arises directly from the first. If nobody can figure out to what legislation the amendment applies, the net result will be "The Lawyers' Full Employment Act of 2000," closely followed by legal and political chaos. A measure as farreaching as this should have been more carefully drafted. Instead, proponents are obliged to rely for explanatory guidance on a dense document entitled "Drafter's Notes." Come now.

The third flaw is that requiring a two-thirds vote of the Legislature to enact a measure distorts the traditional workings of majority rule democra-

True, the Michigan Constitution specifies a number of specific, extraordinary measures that require a twothirds vote for legislative approval. These include overriding gubernatorial vetoes, removal of sitting judges and expelling a member of the Legislature. But to slap a two-thirds requirement on top of a constitutional amendment that is both vague and far-reaching is to unreasonably distort the traditional practices of our democracy.

We can appreciate the distress of local officials who watch lawmakers in Lansing run roughshod over decisions made at their council tables. We understand they believe strongly in such concepts as "local control" and "home rule." So do we.

But the remedy proposed is far worse than the specific abuses it is intended to prevent. We urge a no

Cartoon poor choice

I was absolutely dismayed by the "cartoon" on the Opinion Page in the Sept. 28 edition of The Canton Observ-

This cartoon showed Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Superintendent Kathleen Booher loudly chastising an office employee for sharing information regarding curriculum, class size and testing so she could continue a phone conversation about a "more important matter."

The assumption was that 1) Dr. Booher is not interested in what drives this district to be one of the very best in the state and 2) that Dr. Booher is a boorish, insensitive person who belittles district employees.

Dr. Booher has been able to mend torn fences among employee groups and boost morale in the process. She continues to be an integral part of the district's labor-management team, has a representative of each employee group as part of her cabinet (unheard of), is very cordial to employees as groups or as individuals and is one of the last persons I could imagine answering a co-worker in the manner in which you depicted. To show her as anything other than that is to do her, the school district and the community a disservice.

An editorial on Sept. 21 stated that the fashion in which Booher deals. with the issue could form her legacy to the district. We're confident she can handle it."

As a member of this community, I'm indeed confident she can. Unfortunately, many persons in our community will see only the cartoon and assume "it must be true - it's in the paper."

How unfortunate for all of us.

Life goes on after trial's end

Anita Ross heard what she'd flown thousands of miles to hear, and she couldn't contain herself, jumping into the arms of Plymouth

Police Department Commander Wayne Carroll.

Her brother-in-law, Azizul Islam of Plymouth, had just been convicted by a jury of his peers of first degree murder and mutilation of a corpse in the death of his wife, Tracy Islam, and Ross, who had sat stoically in her back-row seat for more than three weeks, for the first time let the emotion out.

Brad Kadrich

"It's over the moon," she said, her quiet British voice crackling with feeling. "What can I say? It's the right verdict."

It didn't feel so right to the other side of the Islam family, Azizul's relatives and children who followed defense attorney Michael Schwartz out of the courtroom at Frank Murphy Hall of Justice, heads bowed, tears streaming, Kleenex working overtime.

That's life after a trial, though. Lawyers, jurors and judges spend their time - more than three weeks in this case - in intense battle, and suddenly it's over. Family and friends on both sides sit patiently and endure the tedium our legal system breeds, desperately hoping the 12 people in the jury box see things their way.

And then it's over.

Azizul Islam took the verdict the same way he reacted to everything that happened around him, quietly and without emotion. The only time he ever showed any feeling was while his children, 17year-old Joseph and 15-year-old Anna, were on the stand. When it was over, they led him away.

Prosecutors Mike Lehto and Kelly Glesson congratulated each other, shook hands with detectives who pieced the case together. It was also the first homicide for Carroll, the veteran Plymouth cop who was the lead investigator on the case. He took umbrage with some of the things written in this case, particularly incensed at what he perceived as criticism of Lehto for grilling the Islam children on the witness stand.

When it was over, he made sure to pay his respects to the team. "I couldn't have done it without these guys," Carroll said, pointing to Lehto, who was talking to television reporters at the time. "It was totally a group effort. The Ohio (cops) did their jobs, Plymouth and Dearborn did their jobs. I couldn't articulate it like (Gleason) and (Lehto) could. It took a team effort.'

A downcast Schwartz still can't believe his client was found guilty. In a case that was entirely circumstantial, he felt the prosecution failed to prove any of the elements with which Judge Patricia Fresard charged the jury.

"(The jury) could conclude (Tracy Islam) died in the house," Schwartz said. "There is absolutely no evidence (Azizul Islam) did anything to cause her death. There is literally insufficient evidence of the elements."

There were some surprising developments during the three-week ordeal. Some observers felt Schwartz's contention that Tracy Islam may have met her fate on an Internet date gave the jury no credible alternative to her husband as the killer. Some thought the prosecution too often let Schwartz get under their col-

And Carroll, who put together the first murder case of his career, was stunned Schwartz put on no case to defend it.

"If anything surprised me, it was the tactic of not putting a defense on," said Carroll. "If I didn't do it, I'd be shouting from the rooftops.

Now the principals make their next moves. Carroll returns to the relative quiet of Plymouth policing, while Lehto and Gleason move on to their next case. The high-powered Schwartz awaits his

And the family picks up the pieces. Anita Ross hopes to get Tracy's body released so she can take it back to England. And the children?

"You have to feel for the kids," Anita Ross said Tuesday. "They have no mommy, and now no daddy."

Yet somehow, life goes on.

Sewer ban is only solution

The article "Grading may be best solution for sewerage overflow problem" (Sept. 24) really made me laugh. Making the homeowners in the old neighborhoods the scapegoat for the recent flooding disaster is like blaming geese for pollution of our lakes. Ten thousand basement flooding victims want answers, someone to blame and someone to focus their anger on, so MDEQ tosses them the house footing drains as the solution to their problem.

While footing drainage likely contributes to the problem, is grading really the best solution? I think not. Instead of pointing downstream to the old neighborhoods with questionable house footing drains, we should be looking upstream to where fertile fields are being dug up to lay sewer pipes non-stop. Looking at that hectic activity, it becomes very clear that our best solution would be a sewer ban. Stop laying all those leaking concrete pipe sections at record-breaking speed. Stop laying sewers through precious wetlands and floodplains. Stop laying more pipe until the waste treatment plant is upgraded enough to handle the load effectively. Stop adding more volume to an inadequate system. Stop adding sewerage to a system that only gives us two unacceptable choices; overflow into basements and pollute the river indirectly, or overflow directly to the river. Stop making a complicated, inadequate system more complicated. Stop guessing on capacity and making decisions without better information. A sewer ban would focus people to fix the existing, failing system, and get it to work properly before adding any

During the sewer ban, those house footing drainage problems can be worked on, either by grading, or by connecting to the storm system. That would be like bailing water out of the Titanic, but at least the big hole in the side would be patched. Thinking like that would at least give us some chance to fix our SSO problems. Until we have that sewer ban, do not put anything in the basement and stock up on bleach.

In defense of teachers

I am writing in response to the letter written by Sandra Dear of Canton openly criticizing teachers and calling for additional testing of our educators.

Is Ms. Dear not aware that for the past several years in Michigan all new teachers are required to be tested in their "academic subject area" in order to receive certification?

In addition, to renew their teaching certificate they must first complete 18 college credit hours in education, and then an additional six credit hours every few years to continue to keep their certification - all at the teacher's own expense.

Every school district also has requirements for a number of teacher inservices each year to keep them upto-date in their skills and with current educational trends and practices. To impose additional requirements and testing, on top of incredible stress, pressure, and expectations, could very well mean that more and more good teachers decide to leave the profession, and that quality candidates opt to choose alternate careers. What other profession pays so little, and yet requires so much of its employees?

We wouldn't even think of doing this to doctors, lawyers, or other professionals. No wonder "burn out" is such a common malady in the halls of acad-

Instead of heaping words of criticism on already overworked and underpaid professionals, let's stand behind our teachers and thank them for the sacrifices (personally, professionally, and financially) they make everyday to care for and educate our children. To suggest that additional testing be required is utterly ludicrous and use-

I truly appreciate our teachers, and I support our Plymouth-Canton educators wholeheartedly. In my opinion, they are among the best and hardest working people around.

Coverage disappoints

I was very disappointed with the tone of Tony Bruscato's article (Canton Observer, Sept. 10) regarding the "siphoning" of district cash by Canton Charter Academy. This certainly should not be regarded as front-pe news, as it was a well-known and documented fact that the state aid for each Plymouth-Canton district student attending the school would follow the student to the Academy.

The fact that less than 50 percent of the students at the Academy are from our district is surprising, and illustrates that the demand for educational alternatives extends far beyond our district boundaries. It was very difficult deciding whether to enroll our kindergartner in the Canton Charter Academy or the Plymouth-Canton district. The district appears to be in very capable hands with Superintendent (Kathleen) Booher, and my wife and I were very impressed with our findings when researching the district. Furthermore, our decision to send our child to Canton Charter Academy should not imply that we thought anything was "wrong" with the district.

However, limited class size and direct curriculum reinforcement of moral values at the Academy were two key factors that influenced our deci-

Legislators make sense on early childhood learning

For years, I've harbored the wistful hope that our legislative masters in Lansing will actually rear back and produce something constructive and imaginative without being forced to the wall by focused public outrage or crass political necessity. Surely, this persistent feeling represents the triumph of fantasy over reality.

But a meeting a couple weeks ago in Lansing has persuaded me that maybe, just maybe, the legislature — working together with a cross-section of leaders around the state — is in the process of starting something important.

Called the
"Ready To Succeed Summit Dialogue," the meeting focused on the practical implications of recent scientific findings that the brains of children are especially ready and needy for stimulus at a very young age.

Since most educational practice – starting halfday kindergarten at age 5, for example – assumes children are not ready to learn until they are several years old, these findings highlight a profound disconnect between what we know and what we do.

Experienced mothers and grandmothers have known for years that babies thrive when they're held and talked to and stimulated from birth on. And observant fathers and grandfathers have recognized that children learn things like languages best when they are very young.

Recognizing this and realizing that public policy in Michigan essentially ignored these findings, a group of legislators formed a "Children's Caucus" a couple years ago. The bipartisan group includes State Reps. Pan Godchaux, R-Birmingham, Hubert Price, D-Pontiac, and Lynne Martinez, D-Lansing.

They helped find some seed money to finance some early meetings with Joan Lessen-Firestone, Ph.D., who is the early childhood education consultant for the Oakland Intermediate School District. Firestone presented research findings that lack of stimulation in the first years of life can forever after hinder a child's development. These meetings helped solidify a Ready To Succeed Leadership group.

The Ready To Succeed Dialogue meeting involved hundreds of representatives from communities across Michigan, together with experts from other states – Illinois, Colorado, North Carolina – that have started to recognize things have to be different. The meeting also discussed how the Ready To Succeed program can encourage new parents to talk to their babies, interact, read and play simple games with them.

Here's where the legislature comes in, reinforcing my wistful hope. The Children's Caucus pushed to get $45 million put into this year's K-12 school aid appropriation bill to pay for grants for home visitors to help new parents understand just how very early parenting can help their babies for the rest of their lives. Matching grants will be necessary from the community, whether from schools, community organizations or local businesses.

But the fact is that the legislature has put $45 million on the line. That will help a lot.

Some school districts – Waterford and Birmingham, for example – already have similar "Success By Six" programs in place. But most communities in Michigan are only just waking up to the fact that we have a long way to go in helping new parents to do the best job possible.

Certainly, nobody wants a bunch of school snoops pushing their way into homes around the state, self-importantly instructing parents how they are to deal with their children.

But equally certainly, very few people are fully aware of the implications for parenting of recent scientific findings about the ways our children's brains develop.

Firestone predicts school districts will soon be operating way beyond their traditional K-12 programs and begin paying attention to early child-hood development and even prenatal care.

This could be a big step forward. Thanks to the Children's Caucus, the legislature has come through to help out.

It wasn't all just election year politicking. At the heart of the debate was a truly legitimate issue.

Sometimes, they are easy to overlook during campaign season.

State senators last week debated a bill, sponsored by Sen. Mike Rogers, R-Howell, to increase fines for phone companies whose service times for repairs and new installations run more than 36 hours on average. The fine for such slow service would be increased to $1 million under the bill, to be levied at the discretion of the state Public Service Commission.

Rogers' proposal also called for larger credits for customers whose phones go out. Outages of up to 72 hours would require a credit to the monthly bill prorated for the time of the outage. Over 72 hours, the credit would be for three times the prorated amount.

Needless to say, the bill was intended to crack down on Ameritech, Michigan's largest local phone service provider. Ameritech has been experiencing a run of service problems over the summer. Some 2,000 complaints were filed against the company in August, and average repair times for phone outages were reported by the phone company itself to be in the neighborhood of five days. But many customers were being told it would take as much as 38 days to get their phones back in operation.

Ameritech blamed the problem on rainy weather, a loss of line technicians due to higher-thanexpected retirements and a heavy service load caused by demands for new lines.

Others, including some on the PSC and Rogers, suspect the reason was that the penalties for slow service in Michigan were pretty minor. Thus the push to increase them.

As the bill came to the Senate floor, Sen. Dianne Byrum, D-Onadaga, offered an amendment. She proposed that the $1 million fine go back, in part, to the customers who had the outage. They'd get 50 percent, under an amendment she offered, and the other 50 percent would go to a new fund for low-income senior citizens to assist them in paying for telecommunications services.

That's when the politicking began. Senators voted in party-line balloting to postpone Byrum's amendment. She later withdrew it, but Democrats accused Republicans of killing the amendment simply because they didn't want to give her credit for a good idea. Byrum and Rogers face off against each other in the contest of the 8th Congressional district this November.

Why should PSC

fines go to the

Eventually, senators did agree to another amendment, offered by Sen. Beverly Hammerstrom, R-Temperance, that would distribute the fine money back to Ameritech phone customers.

That settled, the bill blazed through, 35-0. But the issue was a real one. When the PSC levied a $1.5 million fine against Ameritech in September, many noticed that the state was the primary beneficiary.

The phone company got rapped for the way it handled one customer's account. It was a case of identity fraud, and a bogus account was opened in the customer's name in 1996, according to the PSC. Even though the fraud had been reported to Ameritech, the company put the overdue bill on the customer's credit report. She claimed she lost out on a loan and job as a result of the information on her credit report.

When the PSC fined Ameritech, it ordered $2,825 restitution for the customer. The $1.5 million went into the state's general fund.

Somehow, it just didn't seem fair that the state got the lion's share of the money from this customer's four-year battle with Ameritech's credit department. But that is how fines levied by the PSC have been disbursed in the past.

There is a case to be made that indeed the debate deteriorated into political wrangling. In the end, the bill was made the better for it.

Presidential candidates won't talk about Supreme Court

Tons of media jackals snap at the heels of presidential nominees George W. Bush and Albert Gore Jr., trying in vain for interviews and press conferences. So far, however, the Republican and Democratic standard bearers have managed to "stay on message." Translation: They'll talk only about what they want to talk about and the heck with your concerns.

Besides appointing his cabinet, the president also fills vacancies on the U.S. Supreme Court, the third branch of the federal government. The high court decides cases affecting the practice of religion, the environment, rights of the accused, discrimination, and a ton of other vital issues affecting Americans. Bush and Gore can't be made to reveal their potential court choices, but they should have the courtesy of telling us what they're looking for in Supreme Court justices.

Inemployment pay system improved

Michigan's unemployment insurance program has made a significant change in how it gathers the information to determine what a jobless worker will receive in unemployment benefits. And the change affects not only the unemployed but employers as well.

Starting this week, Michigan has begun using a "wage record" system for establishing an unemployed worker's monetary eligibility for jobless benefits.

"The change to wage record is a dramatic improvement to our unemployment insurance program," said Kathy Wilbur, director of Michigan's Department of Consumer & Industry Services. "It will mean much better service to jobless workers, less paperwork for employers and savings to taxpayers throughout Michigan."

With wage record, the state's Unemployment Agency will now rely on existing quarterly wage information from employers to determine the amount and duration of unemployment benefits that jobless workers will receive. Under the prior system — wage request — the agency had to request weekly wage information from employers each time an unemployed worker filed a new claim for benefits.

. "The wage request system was cumbersome and slow because of the need to contact employers for wage information whenever one of their employees would file a benefit claim," said Unemployment Agency Director Jack Wheatley. "For employers and the Unemployment Agency, requesting weekly wage data meant countless hours of processing time as well as mailing costs. And for the unemployed workers, the old system meant waiting for up to two weeks after filing a claim before learning how much they might receive in benefits."

With the new wage record system; the agency will use quarter wage information that it aready has on hand to determine a benefit amount when a cham is filed.

Wilbur observed that the savings in paper alone will be gremendous.

If you could stack the Unemment Agency forms that will longer be used because of the record, they would reach a light nearly as high as the troit Marriott Hotel in the maissance Center," Wilbur

Economic forecast scheduled

Two University of Michigan economic forecasters will present their predictions for Wayne County in 2001 at the county's second annual Economic Forecast Luncheon, scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 11.

George Fulton, Ph.D., a senior research analyst at U-M's Institute of Labor and Industrial Relations, and Donald Grimes, senior research associate, will be the keynoters at the 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. luncheon at the Tiger Club of Comerica Park in downtown Detroit.

Fulton has done economic forecasting and regional economic development for more than two decades, working many years with Michigan's Departments of Commerce (now Consumer and Industry Services) and Treasury and with the Michigan Economic Development Corp. Grimes has more than two decades' experience in forecasting labor market activities.

The annual luncheon is sponsored by Wayne County in conjunction with Wayne State University, Detroit Edison, Blue Cross/Blue Shield, MGM Grand Casino and Ford Motor Co.

Tickets are $25 per person. Call (313) 224-0745. claims how much they may receive in unemployment benefits, rather than wait up to 14

Wage record can help identify and resolve problems with wage information before the first payment is made, and thereby reduce errors and fraud in the Unemployment Insurance system, saving millions of dollars for the state's Unemployment Insurance trust fund.

State and local governments will save $5 million annually in taxpayer dollars because of reduced administrative costs.

The conversion to wage record affects all new unemployment claims filed after Oct. 1, but the change will not alter the total amount of jobless benefits paid to the unemployed or taxes collected from employers. Individual employers and workers, however, may see some differences in their taxes or benefits.

The Unemployment Agency is implementing the wage record system 15 months ahead of schedule.

The Unemployment Agency is part of the Michigan Department of Consumer & Industry Services, the state's primary licensing and regulatory department.

Wayne Community College seeks 1.5-mill tax increase

By RICHARD PRABL STAFF WRITER TPERFIGOR homocommuni

Residents of Redford Township and Westland will vote Nov. 7 on a proposed 1.5-mill property tax increase for people living in the Wayne County Community College district.

If passed, the "Education First!" initiative – a late addition to the November general election ballot – would establish, for the first time in the college's 30-year history, a permanent fund for capital improvements and program development, said Chancellor Curtis L. Ivery.

He said while WCCC "has been able to respond to the educational needs of the community, the physical state of its five campuses remains an obstacle to progress."

In the past, the college sold construction bonds for its projects.

The cost of the property tax to the owner of a house assessed at $100,000 would be $37.30 per year.

The estimated $20 million per year raised by the proposed tax increase would be used first to replace the aging Northwest campus facility in Detroit — which houses WCCC's dental hygiene program — um to the Downriver campus, Ivery said.

Computer technology centers – open both to WC3 students and the public – would be created on each campus and a preventive maintenance and repair fund would be established for all the campuses.

To date, the college repairs facilities and equipment only when they break down, Ivery said.

Besides the Northwest campus on Greenfield and the Downriver on Northline, WC3 has its Western campus on Haggerty: Belleville; its Eastern campus on Conner near Detroit City Airport and its Downtown campus off the John Lodge Freeway in Detroit.

Ivery said the proposed tax increase is needed to maintain WCCC's "crucial role of servicing the community and keeping students within reach of high quality educa-

He added that faculty and staff "have committed themselves to strengthening and expanding the curriculum to meet the needs of today's employers.

"If this college did not exist, we would have to invent it," he said.

Martha J. Grier, assistant to the chancellor for special programs and public information, said the present Northwest facility began life in the 1920s as girls high school, then became a Catholic church.

It was expanded in the 1970s as a campus site, she said. But today it is too small and outdated and "We are in dire need of a new facility."

Grier said Northwest's auditorium would serve all but the Downriver campus. The new facility would be a combination performing arts, conferences and business services center for all Downriver residents.

The computer centers would make computers available to the public at no charge seven days a week, Ivery said.

"This is essential to a college committed to helping the Wayne County community This past June, the college received its first 10-year accreditation from the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools, he said.

During Ivery's five-year tenure, WCCC's enrollment has increased annually. About 20,000 students are enrolled now.

WCCC has added more than 20 programs, with credential offerings including pharmacy technician, manufacturing and surgical technology, respiratory therapist, medical billing, heavy equipment maintenance and Web site design.

WCCC's Education First Foundation has provided student scholarships since 1996. The foundation finished the last fiscal year with $200,000 in assets.

Getting 'Real' in Detroit

Detroit by daylight doesn't always look like a bustling hig city. But when MTV comes to town scouting for the Real World and Road Rules of future generations, the city's streets are suddenly lined with young, willing applicants. So on Sept. 29, the metro area's finest poured into Foxtown just to get 10 minutes in the spotlight with six other hopefuls and a casting director - all aspiring to be the next of "seven strangers picked to live in a house and have their lives taped."

Ten years ago, those words became the preamble to ground-breaking cable television. I recall sitting in my Rochester Hills home, awaiting the premier of the original, New York City Real World cast. Julie, Becky, Norm, Andre, Kevin, Eric and Heather were welcomed into my living room, as they were in many of yours. As the show that revived the very idea of reality television, The Real World, celebrates its 10th anniversary with a return to the Big Apple, and may take some local folks along for the ride.

Get out of town

Canton natives Codee Taylor and Heather Thompson, both 18, attended the open call auditions together. Fighting the long line, chilly temperatures and lack of sleep, they made it inside Hockeytown Cafe soon after the doors opened at 10:30 a.m. "It sounded like a good opportunity," said Taylor, perched atop the Second City's Deck, waiting her turn. "It can't hurt anything.

The Eastern Michigan University students are roommates as well. For Thompson, the auditions symbolized a chance to move on. "I just wanted to get away, try new things," she said.

of my own audition group echoed her sentiments. Christina Deleon, 22, of Dearborn Heights, also sees television as her way out. "I have to get out of Detroit. I just feel like I need to explore.

That Kerouac-esque instinct to hit the road must strike hard during the required age bracket for applicants. 18-24. Bess Bertolis, a 22-year-old Ann Arbor resident, attended the porting an unforgettable sparkly T-shirt that read "Motor City Baby." She said: "I'm graduating next year from school. I don't want to go to the real, real world. I want to

I might've been the only one of that group of seven personalities that could give or take the transition to New York City. Of course I relish the idea of living rent-free in some posh NYC apartment, but I'm not exactly counting on MTV for a free ride.

Get real

Reality television offers regular people a shot at stardom. The bottom line is, viewers like to see themselves in the characters they watch on television. That sentiment brought casting directors like the one I auditioned with, Marlon Sanders, from sunny Los Angeles to the heart of Detroit. "The Midwest is good at producing real, whole people," he said. "Detroit is the Motor City. It has blue collar people. A lot more people identify with a more blue collar (class). Detroit is a great city, filled with warm and real people."

Heather Thompson claims she's addicted to reality TV shows. "I can't stop watching them. A lot of times they bring up issues that everyone can relate to. I watch it strictly for its entertainment value.

Che Peterson, a 23-year old student at Michigan State University in East Lansing considers The Real World to be the "original" reality television show. "The only one I watch is The Real World. I like Survivor, but this is the trendsetter.

For Stephanie McGary, just a few people in back of Peterson in the line, that sentiment rang bitterly true. She was one of the unlucky group cut off from auditions. According to McGary 600 was the limit for the one-day open call. "Most of the people they let in have been look-a-likes," she said, comparing the group to those who've made it on the show in the past. "I'm so just Stephanie. That's all I'm putting out there."

Stephanie, I couldn't agree more. Stephanie A. Casola is a features writer for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. If anyone (at MTV) needs to reach her, call (734) 958-2180.

Benefits spotlight patient care

St. Mary Mercy focuses on breast cancer detection ganizers of the eighth annual Hollywood Nights gala couldn't have picked a more appropriate month to host the event than October. which is also during Breast Cancer Awareness Month.

Money raised at the Thursday, Oct. 19, extravaganza will go toward the purchase of a stereotactic biopsy table, used in the detection of early stage breast cancer, at St. Mary Mercy Hospital's Marian Women's Center.

Committed to caring for its community and for providing quality health care to women - the state-of-the-art diagnostic tool will help minimize the need for painful biopsy surgery due to the thin, hollow needle from which the sample is taken.

"It is a rare person who hasn't had cancer touch the life of someone held dear. The purchase of the stereotactic breast biopsy table permits even earlier detection of breast cancer," said Sherri Fletcher, director of Fund Development and Volunteers, St. Mary Mercy Hospital and chairwoman of Hollywood Nights VIII.

Some 700-800 guests are expected to attend the event at Laurel Manor Banquet and Conference Center in Livonia. Festivities will include a preparty before the doors open at 7 p.m. followed by dinner, comedy by Joey Van, and an in-concert appearance by The Vogues.

"This is guaranteed to be a fun-filled evening with top-notch entertainment," said Julie Sproul, director of community relations. "The hospital has always been very well supported by the community at-large as well as the political, business and educational community in Livonia. We certainly want to show our gratitude by providing an exciting evening of surprises, music, fabulous food, entertainment and celebrity guests.

Honorary Hollywood Nights chairperson Maureen Miller-Brosnan echoed Sproul's sentiments — "My husband, Sean, and I are looking forward to an evening of elegance and entertainment at Hollywood Nights VIII. From year to year, it is an evening to remember, and this year will be no exception. In the past eight years, since the first Hollywood Nights, the community has benefited greatly from the contributions made to the event."

Beneficial

The stereotactic biopsy table will enable doctors to further screen the results of a patient who had abnormal mammogram results. A stereotactic breast biopsy is a common and safe procedure that is used to evaluate suspicious findings from a traditional mammogram. Fletcher and Sproul said one of the most beneficial aspects of the biopsy is that it greatly lessens

Approximately 20 auction committee members, under the direction of co-chairs Barbara Glinski, Kriss Rautio and Dr. Patricia Pierce, have gathered more than 100 items to offer up for bid ranging from restaurant gift certificates and theme baskets to autographed sports memorabilia and trips such as a one-week condominium stay at Hanelei Bay Resort in Kauai, Hawaii (round trip airfare included)

"Not only has the auction committee been hard at work but we've asked the staff to support us as well," said Woodruff. Western-style shirts find home on the range

When my son Christian refused to wear the two brightly colored shirts I bought him as a surprise from my trip to Cheyenne, Wyo., I decided to hold a "Wild West Shirt Contest" for Observer readers. Last Monday, the lucky winners rode into town and laid claim to their prizes.

"This is a first-class shirt," said Marie Tertel of Plymouth, our winner. "I like it. I'll grow into it," quipped Brandon Hill, 15, of Plymouth, our second-place winner as he buttoned up.

The breast is still compressed between two plates, much like a mammogram, but the table is designed for a patient to lie face down with special openings for the breasts to be placed in. After an X-ray has been taken to determine the area the tissue sample will be taken from, the patient receives a local anesthetic and a small opening is made in the skin through which a thin, hollow needle is guided into the breast tissue where tiny samples are taken. The patient only needs a small dressing to cover

Sponsorship

Individual and corporate sponsorships are obtainable through friend, donor, patron or benefactor gifts on four levels.

■ Benefactor, minimum gift of $10,000 entitles benefactor to a table of 10 in the VIP section, full page advertisement and special recognition of sponsorship during the evening.

Patron, minimum gift of $5,000 entitles patron to four VIP tickets, full page advertisement and special recognition in the Hollywood Nights program book and recognition of sponsorship during the evening.

Donor, minimum gift of $2,500 entitles "donos" to two VIP tickets, full page advertisement and special recognition in the Hollywood Nights program book and recognition of sponsorship during the evening.

Friend, gift of $500 to $2,499 entitles friend to special recognition in the Hollywood Nights program book.

The hospital has always been very well supported by the community as well as the political, business and educational community in Livonia. We certainly want to show our gratitude by providing an exciting evening or surprises, music, fabulous food, entertainment and celebrity appearances," said Fletcher.

"The very thought of it all gets me excited and in the mood to dream of life in a different time in our country's history. A time when bravery was rewarded. Where the poor had a chance to make a living. It was a time when one could ride a sure-footed horse for hours across unpolluted streams, near wild animals that had never seen a man, under clear blue skies.

"These shirts reminded you of this wonder way of living, this romantic dream of a cowboy riding off into the sunset with a girl to ranch where they could live simply and happily.

"Now, I am a product of our society and I don't know if I would be brave enough to wear clothing like that to school tomorrow. However, the time will

"My family owns Tennessee walking horses, and this year I joined a local 4-H club and started showing my horse, Tim. Next year, I will show him under Western tack. It is required for me to wear Western clothing. I have a few shirts, but these would be perfect.

"Not only would you be saving a part of our American heritage by preserving the cowboy image, but you would be supporting a local youth. You can't get much better than that."

We decided to award a thirdplace prize (a couple of steak cookbooks and a bottle of "Texas Best" steak sauce) to Nancy Heath of Livonia for her entry on her motorcycle-ridin', horselovin' Uncle Bill. Despite personal tragedies, including the death of his son, he has always been there for his niece. She writes:

"When my dad (his brother) had brain surgery and open heart surgery within three months of each other, he and my Aunt Suzanne were there for us. In June my mom passed away. Again he was there for me and my family ... Then in July my daughter got injured in a fire at her apartment. Again they were there for us.

"I've told them thank-you time and time again and gave my aunt flowers, but it's not the same for a man. So when I saw this (the contest), I thought he might realize how special he is to us if he should win."

Congratulations, winners, and happy trails to you!

Common Courtesy

Showing respect for others and using common courtesy and good sense should always be a rule in our daily lives. Nevertheless, it seems that hardly a day goes by when we do not encounter someone showing lack of consideration or respect for another person. We'd like to believe that there is love and goodness in everyone; however, sometimes the pressures and stress of life seem to overshadow a person's good judgment. At times we may fail to be polite and respectful, but being aware of our shortcomings and making an honest attempt to overcome them is all our Lord asks of us. The Lord has excuse me told us what is good. What he requires of us is this: to do what is just, to show constant love, and to live in humble fellowship with our God" (Micah 6:8). Being considerate, polite, helpful, and courteous to others not only is pleasing to God, it makes each of us a better person and our world a better place So whatever you wish that men would do to you, do so to them; for this is the law and the prophets.

Halt violence - march in parade

At 10 a.m. Oct. 14, the YWCA of Western Wayne County will-provide an opportunity for individuals and groups to take positive steps in halting violence by participating in the United Against Violence Parade of Michigan Avenue. The event is part of the week-long observance by the YWCA of the Week Without Violence.

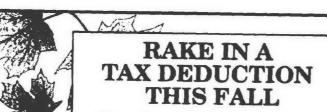

The parade, which is expected to draw some 500 participants will begin at the southwest corner of Michigan Avenue and Gulley Road and will proceed on Michigan Avenue to the YWCA building, located between Beech Daly and John Daly roads.

Attorney Jennifer M. Granholm, an honorary co-chair of this year's event said, "Violence has become an unwelcome part of this country's culture — the Week Without Violence is a chance for us to think about how we can work to change it."

Following the parade, particle pants are invited for a rally, free food and refreshments on the YWCA grounds.

To participate in the United Against Violence Parade, confact Teresa at the YWCA, (313) 561-4110 ext. 10.

Please donate your motorized vehicle directly to the Society of ST. VINCENT DEPAUL. We help thousands of people through job placement, food depots and children's camps. We are one of the only charitable organizations that seeks automobiles to support their own programs. This allows more proceeds to go to the needy.

Unity Church of Livonia offers labyrinth for peace of mind hile the scrolling paths of a labyrinth date back more than 4,000 years, Unity of Livonia is the proud owner of the newest one near-

'We've thought about it for a long time," said the Rev. Gene Sorensen of Unity of Livonia Church. The idea for the labyrinth was first mentioned by David Williamson, a friend and minister who recently died. Williamson encountered the peaceful meditation of a labyrinth while vacationing in California. "Quite a few churches have these." said Sorensen. "It's very non-denominational, it crosses all boundaries."

The Unity of Livonia Labyrinth is to be used as a walkway for meditation and prayer. The church dedicated the labyrinth just over two weeks ago. The church joins this centuries-old tradition, which is intended to foster prayer for the mind, body and heart. The congregation chose a seven-circuit single-path labyrinth; its winding walkway is wide enough to accommodate wheelchairs.

The labyrinth accompanies the church's meditative garden but has proven to be easier to maintain. There are benches and flowers all around,' said Sorensen. "It's blue with white stripes, very attractive."

For the winter months, when the labyrinth will likely be sheathed in snow, Sorensen mentioned the church might buy a cloth version for indoors. Sorensen has used the labyrinth himself and finds it is a nice addition to the "First you walk into the circle, you think about releasing the past, do some forgiveness," he said. "You walk slowly. When you get to the center, there are actually vix circles."

The resette design is a symbol of wholeness, health and love, which makes up the center of the labyrinth figure. It represents the human soul, with six circles symbolizing (from left to right) the mineral kingdom, plants, animals, human, angelic and the divine.

Sorensen believes the center of the circle allows walkers to meditate on the divine self and the past self, or as he put it "the way it's been for you and the way God made you."

"You're only 20 feet, I guess (from the beginning), but I somehow felt I was not

Jesus made it better for all through sacrifice

It didn't get rave reviews at the box office. mainly because it looked like just another Costner post-apocalyptic survival movie, but I love The Postman. It's a film that didn't resemble anything I'd ever seen before.

Perhaps the newness of plot development (yes, in spite of its slight resemblance to the genre Costner is famous for making) was part of the fascination. The subtle theme running throughout the movie is that Costner's character is the "savior" of the post-apocalyptic world. Little of the world we know exists, and Costner's character (as I recall, never identified in the movie as anything other than "The Postman" and "Shakespeare," for his love of verse) brings the citizens of America back into harmonious hope that the United States will be reformed and that they will be released from the tyranny of the evil General Bethlehem.

There's one scene in this film, toward the end, that illustrates what I've been E 'You've heard the reference to it a thousand times, and perhaps never grasped its meaning. "For God so loved the world that he gave his only Son, that whoever believes in him might not perish, but have eternal life" (John 3:16). It's a sick world, and somebody DID die to make it better. Jesus ...'

trying to say all along in this series of articles. The Postman has recruited this army of teenage letter carriers, and in an effort to destroy The Postman, his nemesis, General Bethlehem, has executed most of his tabellari. The Postman then sets his face toward his enemy, and plans to meet him face to face and end their rivalry.

The Postman is dearly loved by his teenage army and is encouraged not to meet Bethlehem. His teenage leader, Ford Lincoln Mercury, wrestles the Postman to the ground and begs him not to go, all the while exclaiming, "You'll die if you go down there!" The Postman replies, "Ford, don't you get it? These people are dying because of me!" And Ford's response is classic: "They're not dying because of you. They're dying because it's a sick world, and if we're ever gonna make it better, then somebody might have to die?"

True? You bet. You've heard the reference to it a thousand times, and perhaps never grasped its meaning. "For God so loved the world that he gave his only Son, that whoever believes in him might not perish, but have eternal life" (John 3:16).

It's a sick world, and somebody DID die to make it better. Jesus, God in the flesh, came to earth "to give his life as a ransom for many" (Matthew 20:28). And Paul expresses the same sentiment as Mr. Ford Lincoln Mercury, when he says, "God showed us how much he loves us: while we were sinners, Christ died for us." It's a sick world, and Jesus died (and rose again!) to make it better.

Player of the week

Brett Stinar, a Plymouth Salem HS graduate now at Kalamazoo College, was named player of the week for the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association's men's soccer.

Stinar, a freshman, scored three goals as the Hornets went 2-0-1 for the week. He is currently tied for the league lead in goals with four.

Ambassadors sweep

The Compuware Ambassadors hosted the previously unbeaten Springfield Jr. Blues last Friday and ended that streak, handing them a 3-1 loss. Chad Davis stopped 35 of 36 Blues' shots in getting the win.

On Saturday, the Ambassadors attempted to make it two-straight and did, when Jeremy Bronson scored his second goal of the game with 19:04 left to break a 2-2 tie. The Ambassadors later added an emptynet goal.

Compuware is now 5-3 for the season and in third place in the North American Hockey League's East Division. The Soo Kewadin Casino Indians lead the division with an 8-0

Spartans shock Salem

Should have known better. If Plymouth Salem's soccer team went to Livonia Stevenson

Monday expecting something less than a championship-type struggle, it was a mistake.

Sure, one could examine their record - shutout by Plymouth Canton and Troy Athens, held scoreless by Livonia Churchill and say the Spartans were down (at least by their own lofty standards). But they should never be underestimated.

What happened Monday proved that. Salem started slow, Stevenson started fast, and before a lot of fans had settled in their seats the Spartans had a 2-0 lead. That's too much cushion to give a team of this caliber; the Rocks rallied valiantly, but in vain, forced to absorb a 3-1 defeat.

The win just about clinches the Western Lakes Activities Association Lakes Division title for Stevenson. The Spartans are 8-2-1 overall, 3-0 in the Lakes, with division matches against Walled Lake Central and Westland John Glenn remaining. Salem falls to 12-3-1 overall, 3-1 in the Lakes.

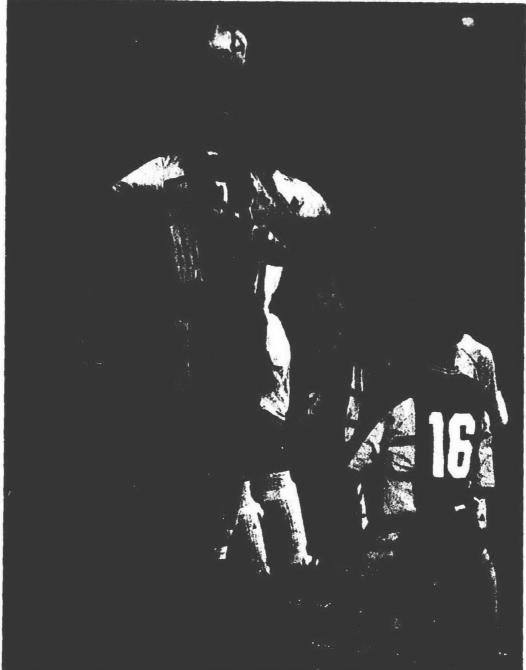

Stevenson would have to lose both its final divisional matches (and Salem would have to win its, against North Farmington) for the Rocks to pass them.

"First of all, they played terrific," said Salem coach Ed McCarthy of Stevenson. "There's a reason we haven't won here, on this field, in 10 years.

"Stevenson has always been terrific. You know they were coming off a big loss to Troy Athens and they took it out on

And the Spartans didn't waste any time doing it. Five minutes in, Brian Braun finished a play that gave Stevenson a 1-0 lead. Less than 10 minutes later, some superb individual efforts doubled the Spartans' advantage. Mike Thomas battled through a pair of Salem defenders, taking the ball to the left corner. He managed to turn

"We lack a true goal-scorer," McCarthy noted, "like the onesi we've had in the past. Our leading goal-scorer has six goals. Before at this stage of the season' our leading scorer would have at least 15.

"At least."

Still, Salem kept up the pressure and, with 5:39 left in the half, it paid off. Dan Longpre sliced through the Stevenson defense on the left wing and sent a pass to Brian Popeney outside the right post. He knocked it past a lunging Brian Campbell, the Spartan keeper, into the left corner to narrow the deficit to 2-1.

"We knew, especially after they had just scored that late goal in the first half, that we were in for a battle," said Richters. "I'm just: glad the kids were up to it."

They were at that. The second half was fast-paced, to be sure, with Salem putting the ball within striking distance of the Stevenson net several times. But with the Spartans concentrating on defense, the Rocks couldn't get the equalizer.

Salem's pressure did open some counterattack possibilities for Stevenson, one that ended with Miller banging a shot off the post behind Salem keeper Tavio Palazzolo. One of the Rocks better chances came from Popeney, who fired a shot from near the end line that Campbell juggled before snaring.

With 3:05 left, a Sean Loewe throw-in did reach Jeff Haar in front of the Spartan's net. Hadr slid and got his foot on the ball, but his shot trickled wide of th

Sometimes a team plays to the level of the competition.

Compliment or insult? For Madonna University's women's soccer team, the latter would seem accurate considering it was unbeaten in the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference when Cornerstone University came to visit Tuesday at Ladywood HS.

The Golden Eagles were, after all, closer to the bottom of the WHAC standings than the top. With the match on Madonna's home field, and with Cornerstone without two of its top players (one injured, one sitting out a game due to a red card) on a team already short on depth, this should be

Borgess' rally surprises Ladywood, 47-45

BY BRAD EMONS SPORTS WRITER

The debate between Bush and Gore took a back seat to Tuesday night's Catholic League Central Division state-ranked girls basketball tussle between host Livonia Ladywood and Redford Bishop Borgess.

After 32 minutes of jousting, Borgess out-pointed the Blazers, 47-45, thanks to 12-foot corkscrew jump shot by junior guard Ashley Gibson with just 13 seconds

Borgess is now 7-0 on the year and 4-0 in the Central Division, while Ladywood 8-3 and 4-1.

Monique Johnson, who became Borgess's head coach this summer when Dave Mann resigned under fire, came out in the second half with a 2-3 zone defense to help slow down the Blazers, who had led 29-22 at intermission.

Ladywood went nearly four minutes without scoring in the third quarter while Borgess forged ahead with a 12-0 run.

"Our game is man-to-man (defense), we don't use zone much," Johnson said. "We seemed to be a step slow in the first half so we went to the zone to use our guards' quickness up top. When we move our feet, we play better.'

Ladywood's offense revolved around 6foot senior forward Michelle Harakas, who led all scorers with 25 points to go along with 15 rebounds.

After Borgess took a 34-29 lead with 4:52 left in the third on a rebound basket by Joei Clyburn, the Blazers came back to

Clyburn, who led Borgess with 12 points, then answered inside with 1:26 left to tie it

The teams traded misses followed by a costly Ladywood turnover, setting the stage for Gibson, who drove down the lane and nailed a twisting jumper for just her second field goal of the night.

Ladywood came down and misfired again with the possession going to Borgess. Junior guard Tara Charles was fouled with only 0.6 seconds left and missed the front end of a one-and-one.

The Blazers grabbed the rebound, but had to go the length of the floor. They didn't have enough time to get off a last-ditch

"For us, each game is a big game," Johnson said. "With only eight players maybe some teams have overlooked us, but I don't think that's the case any more. We may only have eight players, but we have a talented eight.

Ladywood's demise was poor shooting -17 for 61 from the floor (27 percent).

"Our goal was to hold them to under 55 points and I thought we did a good enough job defensively," Ladywood coach Andrea Gorski said. "It seemed we missed all our shots for five minutes (in the third quarter). When we got in that scoring slump we needed someone to step up."

Ladywood's Melissa Harakas, who usually guards the opposing team's top scorer, held Borgess's high scoring Amber Taylor to six points, but struggled herself on the offensive end with five points on two of 15

Junior center Liz Obrecht grabbed 13 rebounds, but was two of 12 from the floor and finished with five points.

"Michelle was still scoring inside, but our game got a little tentative," Gorski said of the third quarter. "Our guards have got to learn to play with more confidence in order to knock down those shots."

Raechelle Hampton, a 6-2 junior center, added 11 points for the Spartans, who shot 18 of 48 from the floor (37.5 percent).

Borgess was able to spread the court and work its offensive sets with more authority in the second half.

"We started out doing it in the first half, but then we got away from it and watched each other," Johnson said. "We have to move, go to the basket, and take advantage what the defense gives us.

"It took some time for them to get used to my coaching style. But we have good kids who want to have fun and who just want to play and win as much as I do.'

Round two of this debate continues Friday, Oct. 20 at Borgess, the final Central Division game for both teams and it could well decide the crown.

Redford Catholic Central (5-1) should return to big dance with a win over Warren De La Salle this Saturday night at Redford Union's Kraft Field.

Two other WLAA games have playoff implications Friday night - Livonia Stevenson (4-2) at Westland John Glenn (4-2), while Northville (4-2) is at Plymouth Canton (4-2).

Garden City (4-2) can take a huge leap toward the playoffs with a win Friday at home over Dearborn Edsel Ford Redford St. Agatha (4-2) is also stalking a third straight playoff berth.

As for the prediction race, the lucky Irishman, Dan O'Meara, continues to impress. He stands poised on the gold PICKS: Wyandette - Emons. Risak, Beaudry. The playoff picture will get a little less medal podium after going 15-0 last week, raising his season total to 76-10.

Yours truly slipped to 13-2 and now trails the smilin' Irishman by three games. I'm at 73-13 overall. But I won't settle for a silver medal.

Livonia Clarenceville Paul (Bo) Beaudry, the newcomer, (6-0) and Farmington went 12-3 and now stands 70-16 for the Hills Harrison (6-0) are year. That's good enough earn a bronze already in, to no one's medal (if the season ended today, which is does not).

Then there's C.J. Risak - living proof that you can't teach an old dog new tricks. Maybe we should give him point spreads, but I don't think the MHSAA would approve.

He's out of the medals so far after going 11-4. Risak now trails the Smilin' Irishman by 12 games at 64-22 overall. Here is a preview of this week's

> FRIDAY'S GAMES (all 7 p.m. unless noted)

Bishop Borgess (1-5, 1-1) at Riv. Gabriel Richard (2-4, 2-1): Borgess couldn't pull off the upset last week against undefeated Waterford Our Lady of the Lakes, falling 37-14. Meanwhile, Riverview Gabriel Richard staved alive in the Tri-Sectional race with a 40-17 win over Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher, the only team Borgess has beaten this year. PICKS: Richard - Emons. Risak, Beaudry, O'Meara.

Wyandotte (5-1) at Wayne (1-5): The Zebras got the monkey off their backs last week with a last-second 16-13 victory over Lincoln Park. snapping a 19-game losing streak. Wyandotte, one of the top teams in the Mega Conference's White Division, just held off Garden City, 28-21. as quarterback Jeff Powell passed for 245 yards.

O'Meara

Educi Ford (3-3, 3-1) at Gardon City (4-2, 3-2): The Cougars can move a step closer to the playoffs with a win. They were knocking on the door last week when time ran out against Wyandotte in a 28-21 loss. Mike Sparks ran for 122 yards and three TDs in the defeat. Edsel is coming off a 34-14 win over Woodhaven as Luke Wojewuczki scored three TDs. PICKS: Garden City - Emons. Beaudry, O'Meara; Edeel Ford - Risak.

Red. Thurston (1-5, 1-4) at Taylor Kennedy (0-6, 0-4): The Eagles were clipped last week by Melvindale, 27-0, while Kennedy remained winless with a 28-6 loss to previously winless Southgate. This is a Mega Blue Division matchup. PICKS: Kennedy — Emons, Risak, Beaudry, Redford Union (0-6, 0-4) at Woodhaven (2-4, 1-3): The Panthers continue to fall on hard times after falling to Mega White-leader Allen Park, 40-O. Woodhaven is coming off a 34-14 loss to Edsel Ford. PICKS: Woodhaven - Emons, Risak, Beaudry, O'Meara.

Liv. Stevenson (4-2, 3-1) at Westland Glenn (42, 3-1): Last year, Stevenson ambushed the Rockets. Both teams made the playoffs. This year's meeting will determine second place in the WLAA's Lakes Division. The winner moves one game closer to the playoffs, the loser must win its final two. This game features two gamebreakers - Dan Wilson of Stevenson and Dan Smitherman of Glenn. PICKS: Glenn - Emons. Risak, Beaudry, O'Meara.

Liv. Clarenceville (6-0, 5-0) at G.P. Liggett (4-2, 3-1), 4:15 p.m.: Clarenceville, a 63-19 winner last week over Lutheran East, would like to repeat as Metro Conference champions. Liggett was a 42-0 loser last week to Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook. The Knights must contend with the running game of Tim Shaw. Steve Meadows and Scott Wion. PICKS: Claresceville - Emons. Risak, O'Meara, Beaudry

Liv. Franklin (1-5, 0-4) at Liv. Churchill (1-5, 0-4), 7:30 e.m.: Both teams are in the same boat. banged up quarterbacks and hoping to avoid the basement of the WLAA's Western Division. Last week, Franklin was demolished by the St. Louis Rams (aka Farmington Hills Harrison, 48-0) while Churchill was trimmed by Northville (42-0). PICKS: Franklin - Emons, Risak, O'Meara; Churchill - Beaudry

Northville (4-2, 2-2) at Ply. Canton (4-2, 2-2), 7:30 p.m.: Both teams have plenty of offense. but can anybody play defense? Brandon Langston is a threat to gain big yardage any time he steps on the field. In a 42-0 win over Churchill, the Northville back had 212 yards in 15 carries. Jerry Gaines is Canton's breakaway threat. The Chiefs nearly pulled one off last week, falling to Walled Lake Western by only two, 34-32. PICKS: Conton - Emons, Risak, O'Meara; Northville - Beaudry.

Farmington (2-4, 1-3) at W.L. Central (8-1, 4-0), 7:30 p.m.: Central, led by quarterback Blayne Baggett, has already sewed up the Lakes Division title in the WLAA. The Vikings, under new coach Chuck Apap, appear to be playoff bound after whipping Plymouth Salem last week, 36-0. Farmington, meanwhile, is smarting from a 42.7 shellacking from Westland John Glenn, PICKS: Central — Emons, Risak, Beaudry, O'Meara.

SATURDAY'S GAMES

(all 1 p.m. unless noted)

Ply. Salem (1-5, 0-4) at N. Farmington (0-6, 0-4): Pride is on the line between these two Lakes Division rivals. Salem can't afford another poor start like the one last week against Lakes Division leader Walled Lake Central (trailing 36-0 at intermission). North will try and play better defense. The Raiders have scored some points. but can't give up 42 like they did last week against Stevenson, PICKS: Salem - Emons

W.L. Western (5-1, 4-0) at F.H. Hawleen (6-0, 4-0): Two state champions will battle it out. Harrison's offense is well-oiled, led by signal callers Agim Shabaj and Drew Stanton, along with lightning-quick running back Marcus Woods. The Warriors are led by Rvan Ziem, Tim King, Steve Bell, Tony Henry and Brian Tominna. Get there early. PICKS: Harrison - Emons, Risak, O'Meara; Western - Beaudry.

Luth. Westland (1-5, 1-4) at Harper Woods (4-2, 4-1): Harper Woods is coming off a 54-0 demolishing of Hamtramck as J.R. King and Antonio Taul each scored a pair of touchdowns. The Pioneers want to keep their Metro Conference title hopes alive and get a little closer to a playoff berth. Lutheran Westland is coming off a 37-0 loss to Macomb Lutheran North. PICKS: Harper Weeds - Emons, Risak, Beaudry, O'Meara.

Red. St. Ageths (4-2, 4-1) at Det. Urban (1-6, 1-4), at RU's Kraft Floid: The Aggies were impressive last week, rolling up 586 total /ards in a 45-12 victory over Wyandotte Mt. Carmel. The Aggies are gunning for their third straight playoff berth. Meanwhile. Urban Lutheran won its. first game in 23 tries against Hamtramck St. Florian, 26-0, as Mike Kimbrough rushed for 140 yards and two TDs. PICKS: Agatha - Emons. Risak, Beaudry, O'Meara.

Redford CC (5-1, 2-1) vs. Warren De La Salle (24, 0-3), 7 p.m. at Kraft Fletd: The Shamrocks, 24-7 winners over U-D Jesuit in the Boys Bowl on Sunday, have plenty of incentive. They're going for a playoff berth with a possible rematch against unbeaten and top-ranked Birmingham Brother Rice (in the Catholic League playoffs). De La Salle couldn't handle Orchard Lake St. Mary's last week, falling 30-7. The Pilots will be heavy underdogs. PICKS: CC - Emons, Risak, Beaudry, O'Meara.

Twisters take an unbeaten record to playoffs

The Michigan Twisters will take a perfect record into the Lake Shore Football League post-season.

The North Division champion Twisters will host the South Division champions at 7 p.m. Saturday at Willow Run.

Michigan drilled the Oakland County Coyotes, 34-6, Saturday to finish the regular season 10-0 and become the first team to go through year undefeated in the five-year-old league's history.

Quarterback Rob Elswick went 48 yards on an option play to get the Twisters off to a 6-0 start.

The Coyotes tied the score on a 63-yard pass play but that turned out to be it for the Oakland County team.

Reggie Brandon went 6-yards with a reverse to score, Walt Steffe caught a short touchdown pass, his first score, and defensive back Donti Hamilton tackled a Coyote running back in the end zone for a safety.

Elswick ran for 134 yards on eight carries including a touchdown, Jason Gibson was 8-for-55 with a TD and Damon Frendo 3for-40 with a touchdown. Pat Bowie (Westland) accounted for 56 yards on three carries.

After Oakland County scored, it never crossed the Michigan 35 again. It was held to 2-for-15 passing for 63 yards and only 24for-29 rushing.

Aaron Brothers had two solo tackles, three assists and three sacks to lead the defense. George Shanlikian (Livonia) had four solo tackles, three assists and a sack in his first start at outside linebacker.

Bob Pensari (Canton) played over a sore Achilles Tendon and logged three solo tackles with four assists.

James Chapman (Canton) had a sack while Ron Andrews and picked off a pass.

Matt Graca (Garden City) each "Our team's success this season is a credit to our area's high school and college coaching staffs in producing top level well-disciplined young men," Michigan GM Glenn Brothers said.

Chiefs JV wins

The Plymouth Canton junior varsity football team remained undefeated with a 41-13 victory over the Walled Lake Western Warriors Wednesday, improving their record to 6-0.

The Chiefs got two touchdowns from Reggie Joyner and Doug Davidson and another from Dave Nicoloff. Nicoloff also had a twopoint conversion pass to Shawn Zullo and Ankit Kachhal had five point-after-touchdown kicks.

Canton frosh rally

Canton's freshmen team improved to 4-1-1 by edging Walled Lake Western, 26-22 Wednesday. The Chiefs' Travis McKinney, but the Warriors answered by returning an interception for a touchdown and an 8-6 lead.

Steve Howie scored again for Canton and Matt Paye got the two-point conversion, but Walled Lake took a 22 - 14 lead into halftime. The Chiefs' defense stiffened in the second half holding the Warriors scoreless.

Brian Vella scored two TDs in the second half to lead Canton to

Salem JV wins

Jason Lewis scored two touchdowns, one on a game-breaking, 80-yard run in the fourth quarter, to carry Plymouth Salem's junior varsity football team to a 21-14 victory over Walled Lake Central last Wednesday.

The win improved Salem's record to 3-2-1 overall. Chris Drabicki scored the Rocks' first touchdown; Tony Stott had a two-point conversion. Matt Cole and David Hull paced the defense, and Eddie Zelmanski was good on both sides of the Lions' varsity 4-0

The Canton Lions varsity improved to 4-0 with a 7-6 victory over the Redford Rangers Sunday. The Lions only touchdown was scored by Julian Smith; Eric Northrup opted to run for the conversion point after a bad snap, a move that proved important when the Rangers scored with two minutes left but missed the conversion.

The Canton Lions junior varsity suffered a 28-6 loss to the Rangers Sunday. Chris Hasse, Vernon Stuart and Matt Farmer helped set up the Lions only touchdown.

The freshmen Lions improved to 3-0-1 with a 20-8 victory over the Rangers Sunday, thanks to three touchdowns scored by Chris Fischer. The Lions trailed 8-6 at the half, but the blocking provided by Justin Scott, Luke Konsitzke, Jeremy Epley and Robbie Walker changed that. Ryan Mackin paced the defense, blocking a punt.

Steelers JV, frosh win

The Plymouth-Canton junior varsity team blanked the Ann Arbor Wildcats 27-0 Sunday, with Matt Czajkowski returning an interception for the first touchdown and Kyle Gendron. Deshon McClendon and Joe Millgard — the last on a pass from Brandon Fender - also scoring TDs. Devin Murphy added a sack for a safety, McClendon had an interception, and Ben Craig recovered a fumble to pace the defense

The Steelers' freshmen posted a 30-0 victory over the Wildcats. Alexander Avramoski, Paul Kanaan, Scott Wisniewski and Spencer Tobin each scored TDs for the Steelers. On the defensive side, the Steelers' Tyler Rusir, Justin Horger and Joseph Massel were standouts and Jeffrey Stott had an interception.

The Steelers' varsity had to settle for a forfeit win, since their Ann Arbor opponents could not field a team

Dearborn won eight of 12 events Tuesday to edge Plymouth Salem 96-90 in a nonleague girls swim meet at Salem. The loss dropped the Rocks to

2-1 this season. "It's not so much that we swam bad," said Salem coach Chuck Olson, "just not good enough. Kari Foust, Amy Mertens, Alicia Dotson and Emily Laskie combined to win the 200-yard medley relay for Salem (1:57.26).

Foust added a win in the 200

Mertens won the 100 breaststroke (1:11.09).

Dotson, Laskie, Christy Roy and Monica Glowski teammed to win the 200 freestyle relay for Salem (1:48.42).

It won't get easier for the Rocks. They host state-ranked Livonia Stevenson, winner of the last nine Western Lakes Activities Association championships, at 7 p.m. tonight.

Dearborn edges Salem | Split squads, mixed results

Plymouth Salem split its boys cross country team for weekend meets but couldn't get a split out of the results.

Salem sent one squad to the Grosse Ile Invitational, where it finished fifth with 115 points at Elizabeth Park. The other team went to the Dearborn Divine Child Invitational and finished third by five points with a total of 66 at Ford Field.

"We knew we had our deeper team at Divine Child," coach Geoff Baker of the Rocks said. "But I thought with our frontrunners we might be able to sneak in at Grosse Ile.

"But everybody ran well. We're looking to get the team back together Saturday and hopefully see some good results."

Brighton won the Grosse Ile meet with 51 points, Saline was second at 54, Saline's 'B' team was next at 58, Canton was fourth with 108 and Salem took fifth with 115 points.

Donnie Warner was Salem's best finisher and took third overall with a time of 16:43. Justin Hajduk was ninth overall at 17:06 and Jim Leddy 20th at 17:37.

Adam Warner clocked 18:46 to wind up 41st, Jason Poniatowski was 42nd at 18:50 while Ben Brockschmidt took 45th with a 19:20. Dave Hannon was 46th with a time of Chris Vraniak was the Rocks' best finisher at Divine Child, clocking 17:28 for an eighthplace standing. Greg Kubitski was 11th at 17:40, Kurt Sarsfield 13th in 17:47 and Rob Showalter 14th with a time of 17:48.

In 20th place, clocking 18:14, was Mike Horgan while in 25th stood Abe Thurgell with an 18:41. Salem's seventh runner dropped out due to allergies.

Host Divine Child won its meet with 61 points and Belleville finished second with 63.

Last Thursday, Salem edged Livonia Stevenson, 25-30, to improve to 5-1 overall and 3-0 in the Lakes Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association. Donnie Warner took first overall with a time of 16:28; Hajduk ran a 16:58 to place third overall and Kubitski timed 17:18 to place fifth. Vraniak was sixth with a time of 17:32 and Leddy 10th at 17:58.

Baker's team is at the Portage Invitational on Saturday.

Salem girls 'split'

Plymouth Salem split its squad to compete at two invitationals last weekend, and both did pretty well.

At the Divine Child Invitational at Ford Field in Dearborn, the Rocks placed third with 90 points, behind the host Falcons and Belleville.

Salem's other team went to the Grosse Ile Invitational at Elizabeth Park in Trenton, where it finished fourth with 78 points. First went to Saline's B team (43 points), followed by Brighton (61) and Saline A (61).

Top finisher for the Rocks at the Divine Child Invite was Kelly Solano, ninth overall in 21:53. Kim Wood was 17th (22:17), Anna Moniodis was 19th (22:26), Jenny Kassem was 22nd (22:44), Autumn Hicks was 23rd (22:53), Heather Whittington was 25th (23:14) and Jackie Gauthier was 34th (24:02).

At Grosse Ile, Stephanie Hajduk placed ninth overall in 21:07. Other Salem finishes: Halle Burton, 12th (21:25); Katie Dondzila, 16th (21:49); Liisa Keski-Hynnila, 20th (21:59); Erin Jensen, 21st (22:06); Andrea Griffiths, 24th (22:11); and Jill Grey, 28th

"I thought both teams competed hard today with a few surprises," said Salem coach Dave Gerlach. "We have been very consistent with our times, but need to start getting at least five runners under 21 minutes if we are going to have any shot at a conference title or state final team berth."

The Rocks will run at the Ypsilanti Braves Invitational Saturday.

Salem underclassmen win

Plymouth Salem's freshmen and sophomores outran 13 other underclassmen teams to win the John Glenn freshmen/sophomore meet Tuesday at Westland's Central City

Salem scored 55 points to beat runner-up Dearborn, which had 70. Northville's 'A' team was third (86), followed by Ann Arbor Huron (113), Redford Catholic Central (123), Belleville (156) and Plymouth Canton (193).

Justin Hajduk's 16:49 was good enough to place him second overall. Other Salem finishers: Chris Vraniak, fifth (17:21); Jim Leddy, sixth (17:30); Adam Warner, 19th (18:15); Mike Horgan, 23rd (18:17); Dave Hannon, 30th (18:40); and Adam Mlynek, 42nd (19:45).

In a battle of underclassmen girls, Plymouth Salem's were close (75 points) but not quite able to match those from Livonia Churchill (43 points) and Ann Arbor Huron (51 points) Tuesday at Central City Park.

Stephanie Hajduk finished fifth overall (20:45), Erin Jensen was 12th (21:02), Halle Burton took 15th (21:09), Katie Dondzila was 21st (22:00), Liisa Keski-Hunnila finished 24th (22:09), Andrea Griffiths was 26th (22:26) and Meghan Galvin was 30th seconds ticking away, Nik Djokic beat Palazzolo for Stevenson's third goal.

"This was definitely our best game this year," said Richters. And it came at Salem's expense.

Canton 7, Harrison 0: Plymouth Canton climbed one more rung on the WLAA's Western Division ladder, blasting Farmington Harrison Monday at Canton.

The Chiefs improved to 10-4-2 overall, 2-0-1 in the division.

Their last two matches of the divisional season will be against two other contenders: Monday at home against Livonia Franklin, and Wednesday at Livonia Churchill.

Andrew Holmes led the attack for the Chiefs, scoring two goals and assisting on two others. Evan Malone also had two goals.

Matt Strabbing, Zak Juntila and Mike Zemanski scored one goal apiece; Nick Houdek, Matt Magers and Jeff Bennett also

CC rips U-D Jesuit Salem still in title hunt

Redford Catholic Central moved one game closer to the state playoffs with a 24-7 win over University of Detroit-Jesuit in the annual Boys Bowl on Sunday at Pontiac's Wisner Stadi-

Although they started slow on the scoreboard, the Shamrocks (5-1, 2-1 Central Division) dominated the game by gaining 298 yards in total offense and holding the Cubs to 46.

CC's defense got on the scoreboard first as Craig Nabozny picked off a pass and went in 36 yards for the score with 5:30 left in the second quarter.

Ryan Rogowski set up CC's next touchdown with an interception in the third quarter and quarterback Tom Jakacki scored two plays later from 7 yards out. Matt Markiewicz made it 21-0 on CC's next drive as he scored from the 1 to cap a seven-play, 45-yard drive.

The Cubs' Tracey Clark got his team on the board early in the fourth quarter with a 53-yard interception return for a touchdown. CC's Mike Sgroi closed out the scoring with a 37-yard field goal in the fourth.

In all, CC gained 246 yards on the ground, while holding UD-J to zero yards on 21 attempts with a long gain of nine. Jakacki led the way with 57 yards on 18 attempts, while Mike Banaszak had 56 yards on 12 carries and Rogowski had 54 yards on seven tries. Jakacki was also 6-for-13 passing for 52 yards, while the Cubs had 46 yards in the air. Mark Willoughby had two catches for 29 yards and added six tackles and an interception on defense. Matt LoPiccolo had nine tackles for CC, while Craig McMichael recovered a fumble in the fourth quarter.

Plymouth Salem's golf team is slowly working its way toward the Western Lakes Activities Association championship meet.

Salem got a 35 Tuesday from Brian Gullen to defeat Walled Lake Central, 195-201, at Edgewood Country Club.

The Rocks came out of the match 7-2 while the Vikings left it 6-3.

"It's a tight race," Coach Rick Wilson said. There's a lot of good teams in the league." Wilson's squad played one of them Wednesday, Livonia Stevenson. Bobby Jones of Salem and Jon Gordon each carded 39s, Mike Thackaberry shot a 40 while Ryan Williams and Jay Smith each turned in 42s (only one counted toward the

For Central, Tony Rishell led his team with 38, Dominic Vitale was at 39, Sean McMahon hit 40 while Mike Mittra, Steve Percha and Matt King scored 42 each.

Salem hosts North Farmington on Friday with the WLAA Tournament coming up Tuesday at Salem Hills.

Well, no one shot worse than 42 for Plymouth Canton Monday when the Chiefs met Westland John Glenn at Fellows Creek in Canton. That was pretty good news.

Unfortunately, none of the Chiefs bettered 40. And that proved decisive in the Rockets' 202-205 victory.

Glenn's Jeremy Fendelet and Randy Villemure tied for medalist honors, each shooting a 39. Rich Sudak was next best for the Rockets with a 40, followed by Brandon Tykey with a 41 and Jason Lang with a 43.

The Chiefs were led by Andrew Wagner and Scott Oliver with 40s. Ryan McKendry had a 41, and Derek Vermeulen and Charlie Pell shot 42; Mike Baracy had a (non-scor-

The loss left Canton with a 5-4 WLAA record. Glenn is 4-5. Canton completed its dual-meet season yesterday with a doubledual against Farmington Harrison and Farmington; on Tuesday, the Chiefs host the WLAA Tournament at Salem Hills.

CC stops Rice

Catholic Central stayed perfect on Tuesday as the Shamrocks stopped Birmingham Brother Rice, 156-170 at Cattails in South Lyon, to hold off its closest challenge to the Catholic League Central Division crown.

"All in all, we're playing well," said CC coach Bill Hayes said as his team moved to 14-0 overall and 9-0 in the Central, two games ahead of Rice at 7-2.

"It was a little special today, as we had five seniors playing their last match on their home course. Nick Szilagy has really come through in the last couple of weeks. He plays that course exceptionally well."

Szilagy led everyone with 37, while T.J. Lester had a 38. Jon Luna had a 40 and Brian Peczynski and Matt Davey both shot 41. Adam Sokol and Brian McAllister both had 41 to lead Rice.

Shamrocks finish on top a couple of strong outings as the Shamrocks stormed through the Haslett Invitational on Saturday to finish first, then rolled past Brother Rice on Monday.

CC won the invitational with 34 points, easily outdistancing runner-up Holt with 115. Stockbridge was third of 17 teams with 119, while Farmington was fourth with 133.

Daly set the tone in Haslett, winning in 15:50, while John Dan Krawiec was seventh in 16:23. John DiGiovanni was ninth in 16:47 and Tim Hender-

Daly also won the meet against Rice - as CC outpaced the Warriors, 17-44 - in 16:54. John Krawiec was second in 17:09, Dan Krawiec was third in 17:10, Henderson was fifth in 17:43 and Kyle Jekot was sixth in 17:53.

Redford Catholic Central had Krawiec was fourth in 16:19 and son was 13th in 17:06.

Eagles sweep Crusaders

Quite a nemesis.

For the past two seasons, Cornerstone University and Madonna University have battled evenly for the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference volleyball title. On Tuesday at Cornerstone, the Golden Eagles got the upper hand over the Lady Crusaders by sweeping them 15-4, 15-7, 15-10.

The loss dropped Madonna to 19-4 overall, 5-1 in the WHAC. Cornerstone is 19-4 overall, 6-0 in the conference.

Kelly Artymovich paced the Crusader offense with 13 kills (.308 kill percentage); she also had 10 digs. Brandy Målewski (from Redford Thurston) contributed 12 kills (.360), 12 digs and three blocks, Erin Cunningham got six kills and 16 digs, and Jennie Wind had 33 assists to kills, 13 digs and three

The Lady Crusaders, ranked 14th nationally in the NAIA, defeated Alma College 15-12, 15-8, 15-5 Saturday in the Madonna Tournament, then trounced the University of Windsor 15-1, 15-3, 15-4

Artymovich and Cunningham each had five kills in the win over Alma. Natalie Sayre had four. Sayre put up 21 set assists while Artymovich served three aces.

Amanda Suder (Plymouth Salem) led the defense with 10 digs but Cunningham was right behind with nine.

Malewski blocked three shots and Hayley Myers two. Cunningham had 10 kills against Windsor. Donna Birkenhier and Malewski contributed six apiece and Myers had five.

Wind had 31 assists to kills for the Lady Crusaders. Sayre and Marylu Hemme (Plymouth/Livonia Ladywood) served two aces each.

Malewski's 14 digs were high for the defense with Wind getting 11 and Suder 10. Birkenhier had two blocked kill attempts.

SC gets a win

Nicole Boyd (Westland/Livonia Franklin) and Fran Hamilton combined for 25 kills to lead Schoolcraft College to a 15-11, 8-15, 15-8, 15-6 triumph over Macomb CC in an Eastern Conference match Tuesday at Macomb.

Hamilton added 19 digs, five service aces and two blocks, while Boyd contributed three blocks. Andrea Kmet (Westland/Franklin) chipped in with eight kills, 12 digs and three blocks, and Jana Nitschke finished with four aces and 39 assists to kills. Amanda Yaklin and Rebekah Thornton (Livonia Ladywood) each chipped in with 13

The win raised SC's record to15-5 overall, 11-1 in the conference.

The second half was more the way Larson expected the game to develop. Madonna pressured relentlessly and, with 39:54 left in the match, Megan Thiry knocked a ball that somehow got through the Cornerstone defense following a Kelly Delaney cornerkick into the net, tying it at

That's the way it stayed for the next 18 minutes, but Madonna's pressure was mounting and the Eagles were weakening. With 21:35 left, Delaney took matters into her own hands, dribbling through the defense into the middle of the field. Her shot from 16 yards out was deflected and rolled past Cornerstone keeper Laura Hamlyn, making it 2-1.

That started a flurry for the Crusaders, who scored twice more in an eight-minute span. Christen Shull (Plymouth Salem) got the first after Madonna's Susannah Bryant and Delaney collided with Hamlyn as all three went for a loose ball. Shull got to it and deposited it in the net with 14:49 to go.

Delaney got her second goal of the match 95 seconds later on a clear breakaway, started by Shull.

"For what we had, I thought we did well," said first-year Cornerstone coach Randy Strawser. "We don't have a lot of depth, we don't have a lot of options. We've played well for a half against the best teams all season. But we get tired in the second half and lose a step.

In this game, Cornerstone's loss was Madonna's gain.

Crusaders stop Aquinas

Nicole Allevato scored twice Saturday to lead Madonna to a 4-1 victory over Aquinas in a WHAC match.

Delaney opened the scoring for the Lady Crusaders at 27:04 with a great dribble and shoot goal assisted by Susannah Bryant. It was her seventh goal of the year. Amy Panse tied it for the Saints (7-4, 5-2) 24 seconds later with an unassisted goal out of a scramble in front of goalkeeper Jennifer Dumm.

for a 2-1 Whaler lead with 9:30 left in the second.

The 67s pulled Kotyk with a minute to go in the third period and then tied the game with 20 seconds left in regulation, Miguel Delisle netting the goal out of a scramble in front of Whalers' goalie

"We still had a lot of key injuries and a suspensions so we had to rely on the rookies to play in situations they normally would not play in," said Whalers' head coach Pete DeBoer. "They played well all weekend and were a big part of each game.

"That was the first time since I have been involved with the organization that we swept the eastern (Ontario) road trip. It's a credit to how hard the boys are working and also to the depth of the hockey club.

On Friday, three second-period goals and some strong goaltending by rookie Paul Drew propelled the Plymouth Whalers to a 3-0 victory over the Kingston Frontenacs in Kingston.

Stacy Bristone got what proved to be the game-winner just 13 seconds into the second period, with an assist from Nate Kiser. Defenseman James Wisniewski, from Canton, got his third goal in two games on the power play at the 5:05 mark, with assists from Vernarsky and Thompson.

Weiss added an insurance goal in the final minutes of the second period, assisted by Andre Robichaud. Drew, in his first-ever OHL start, made 25 saves to earn the shutout. "I got a lot of help tonight," Drew said. "It was a total team effort for us and everyone stepped up and played their parts again. We played a solid game the whole way through whole way through."

Supply can't keep up with demand as annual chili festival closes out

BY TONY BRUSCATO

For the fifth year in a row, the Great Lakes Regional Chili

Cookoff, Salsa Competition and Motorcycle Show ran out of chili. ... "We just can't seem to get anough," said organizer Annette Horn. "This year we went through at least 500 gallons of

Part of Horn's problem is the fact the cookoff seems to be growing in popularity, with an estimated 20,000 people attending last Sunday's event.

Horn said this year's competition raised nearly $10,000 for the Plymouth Salvation Army and the Make-A-Wish Foundation of Michigan. In the five years of the Chili Cookoff, Horn has raised $46,000 for charity.

"It really makes it worthwhile when we can give away so much money," said Horn.

"The chilis were great!" said Michele Potter, Plymouth city commissioner, who was a judge for the event. "They were certainly much hotter this time around.

"The entire experience was great. A lot of fun people, great crowd and perfect weather," she added.

"My mouth really started to tingle ... it was really hot," said Commissioner Bill Graham, another chili judge. "The whole event was fun."

Creative use of accessories solves decorating problems

TAPF PROTOS BY BULL BRIDGE

Matlow practices what she preaches when it comes to decorating her condo. She makes the most of various spaces and pieces, and is true to her personality.

"The biggest compliment (about a decorated room) is that it looks like me. I really think that's important," she said. "I like old, I like new, anything from flea market to expensive."

Suggestions

The decorating consultant shared a few tips:

If you have a collection, spread the pieces throughout your rooms instead of keeping them together in one place.

Don't be afraid to use special items that are functional.

"I like to have people use things that have sentimental value," Matlow said.

Keep an eye out for multifunctional ottomans that can be used for storage, nesting tables, and tables with two or more levels. An advantage of nesting tables is that they offer more space when needed and yet don't take up extra room in the meantime.

•• Use furnishings and other objects in different ways.

In her home, Matlow displays items on the seats of extra chairs ("You not only are creating an eclectic look, you have plenty of extra seating.")

She has placed a statue or plant on a small, simple stool, changing the stool into a pedestal. Another stool became an end table after she draped it with a poster, painting or book.

MA plate rack can hold scape and small towels in the bathroom, a help if you have little counter space there. A coat rack in the bedroom is a good place to hang clothes at night.

Exhibit special plates in a dish rack.

Put an old dresser in a closet for extra storage space.

Stand a decorative screen in front of a fireplace. Arrange framed photos on bookshelves.

Ill "If you feel your home is too cluttered, try editing one room at a time." Determine which pieces can be sold or put into storage. "You will notice the difference right away." Another solution is to rotate the items you have out, changing them seasonally.

Matlow, who has also done theater-set design, always had an interest in "arranging things and constitute things" she said.

interest in "arranging things and creative things," she said.

A little thing got her started in her business. Matlow had a new home and was surprised when most of the comments from visitors were about a miniature shopping cart that was among her knickknacks.

"It made me think the details, the little things ... matter," she said. "I think people tend to struggle more with accessories. I think that people sometimes step with furniture."

Matlow charges $25 an hour. She has bartered with clients, trading services.

This scree garden sets several feet off the ground and demonstrates that these plants can overwinter very successfully in our zone. In the winter they are protected by burlap, hay or a piece of glass.

Gingko biloba, Quercus (English Oak), Carpinus (Ironwood) and other unusual trees and shrubs are displayed, as are many water-loving plants that grow happily around and in the several ponds.

In addition, an outstanding variety of dwarf conifers and grasses as well as other neat plants is displayed in the gardens so that visitors can learn how they fare in a particular setting and which plants grow well together (like the same condi-

Now that you have brought your houseplants back indoors, it's a good idea to check the pH of the soil, especially those that are acid-loving - such as Boston fern, Chinese hibiscus, dwarf citrus and azalea. Ficus benjamina is also a candidate for acid soil as it likes the pH to be 5.0 to 6.0. The pH in acid soil runs 4.0 to 7.0, while alkaline is 7.0 to 9.0.

If you find the soil in which the above-mentioned plants are growing is testing the higher numbers, a simple and old-fash-ioned method can correct the situation. Mix 1 teaspoon cider vinegar with 1 quart water.

Test the soil periodically to keep the pH at a proper level. You can find a soil tester at a garden supply store. An electronic rapid-test soil tester by Luster Leaf Products Inc. is easy to use.

If the soil becomes too acidic, flush out the excess by watering heavily with regular water several times within a short period.

Hydrangeas

Here's some clarification about pruning hydrangeas: First, you need to know which species of hydrangeas you have.

In a recent column I didn't include pruning information about Macrophylla-Bigleaf, mopheads and lacecaps, the plants that generally bloom pink or blue or shades in between. Prune these in the spring after buds show color, then prune to two buds above the ground. Those stems with no buds need to be removed also. Hydrangeas need no routine pruning unless they outgrow their boundaries.

Two other reasons your plant may not bloom: If it dies down to the ground in the winter, be sure to mulch it well after the ground freezes to protect the new growth. Also, it's important that this shrub have at least six hours of sun.

filing the wider blade of polarized plugs and breaking off the ground prong on grounding plugs wasn't a safe idea. Using adapters can be inconvenient, especially when trying to locate appliances as close as possible to the wall. My answer was a definite maybe.

house built

They knew

Although physically it is possible to replace ungrounded outlets with three-prong outlets in a box where no ground is available, inspectors will not allow this change. It leaves a false sense of security by giving the impression that the plug is grounded when it

Anytime you need electrical work done, it is probably best to leave it to a professional electrician. Electricity should be treated with respect and its potential dangers not taken lightly. Ask friends and neighbors about any contractors they know and get several quotes.

But if you want to work on your own electrical outlets, here's a quick summary.

First, you should determine if the wall box has ground available. To do this, make sure the outlet works by using a neon tester. First insert one probe of a neon tester into one slot of the plug. Touch the other probe on the cover plate screw, making screw. If the neon bulb glows, the box is grounded. If it doesn't, try the other slot and screw. If the bulb still doesn't glow, it's not grounded.

Turn off the power!

If the box is grounded, the twoprong outlet can be replaced by simply removing and replacing it with a three prong-grounding

Now, remember, you MUST turn off the power.

When making electrical connections, bend a small hook in the building wire. Keep the open side facing clockwise, so the wire is drawn into the screw terminal when tightened. To keep the outlet polarized, be certain the white insulated wire is attached to the silver screw and the black is on the brass screw.

The grounding is provided to the outlet when it is screwed into the box. A better grounding bond can by provided by using a 6-inch jumper wire from the green screw of the outlet to a screw in the box if possible.

If the box is not grounded, one option would be to run a wire from it to a grounding source such as the service panel (breaker/fuse box) or a cold water pipe, but that's a lot of work and probably best left to an electrician.

Another option is to replace the two-prong plugs with ground fault circuit interrupters (GFCI) or more often called GFIs (ground fault interrupters).

According to the National Electric Code, a GFI is a legal substitute for a grounded outlet in an existing installation where no ground is available in the outlet box. Some local codes may vary, so check with your local building department.

Some instruction sheets for GFI outlets state there must be a ground connection. The Web site for Leviton's, a leading producer of electrical products, at www. leviton. com/ concurs, but the company's instructions don't mention it.

This method does not create a safety ground. If an appliance with a three-prong plug develops a short from the hot (black) wire and the grounded case, the GFI will not trip until someone touches the case and a true ground, such as a faucet. That person's safety depends on the proper functioning of the GFI.

These are more complex and prone to failure than a fuse or circuit breaker. Because of this, they should be tested often.

The electric code also requires that these outlets be labeled "GFCI Protected" and "No Equipment Ground."

Brass, silver screws

When connecting a GFI, the black/ brass, white/ silver relationship must be followed. On the GFI, there are two pairs of screw terminals. One set marked "line," the other marked "load." The building wires must be placed on the "line" set. Otherwise the GFI is just an expensive standard outlet. If there are more than one pair of building wires in the box, the "hot" set must be attached to the "line" terminals.

To determine which is the hot set, separate all the wires keeping them together in their pairs. Make sure no wire is touching another. (Be sure others know what you are doing.)

Turn the power to the box back on. Using a neon tester, find the live set. Turn the power off and connect the live set to the "line" terminals and the others to the load. This will also give the GFI protection to all the other plugs on the circuit past it.

The circuitry in the GFCI outlet senses the electric current in both the black and the white wires. It should be the same. If an imbalance of more than 0.005 amps occurs, the outlet is "tripped," shutting off the electrical flow. This imbalance usually occurs when the electricity flows from the appliance, through a person, to the ground. Those 0.005 amps can produce a very, very mild shock and are slightly below that which can disrupt a normal heartbeat.

three years I've hosted a radio show called Animal Talk, watching it grow from one small station being nationally syndicated, my confidence has grown, knowing the number of people who

listen to and enjoy my voice.

Then Mort Crim came on the show, and I realized that compared to him I sound like a lisping chipmunk on helium.

Crim, a Detroit media icon, now does a nationally syndicated radio spot called Second Thoughts.

He came on our show as a guest to talk about his book, How to Be as Terrific as Your Dog Thinks You Are. (By the way, he's as nice and as intelligent as you would have thought.)

"I think we can learn incredibly good lessons from our dogs," Crim said.

He writes about how the way dogs view us and the way they conduct their lives should give us insights into our own lives.

"The things I learned from my dogs were so very basic — the enthusiasm, the optimism, the loyalty, the ability to play..." Crim said.

"I could rattle the chain, and our big Doberman would come lunging into the kitchen, anxious to go out, forgetting that the last 10 times he put the leash on he'd gone to the vet. (Note: Hey! That's not always a bad thing!) Because he was the eternal optimist. This was going to be the mother of all car rides! Forget the last 10!

"I think if we could retain that quality as human beings, that no matter what experiences we've had in the past, we're going to approach life with that belief it's going to be better this time. Every day is a new page."

Il Training dogs is important, but there's also a lot we can learn from them.

Greater bond

While working in Detroit, Crim lost his wife of 34 years and his daughter left for college within a few months, leaving him alone in his house with his dogs.

He realized they were developing a different, fuller friendship: A greater bond was forming. The dogs were the ones who enthusiastically greeted him every night after he finished the late newscast.

"The dogs accepted me unconditionally," Crim said. "And that was the first thing that I began to think about as I looked at their qualities and characteristics.

"What if I could be as great as these guys seem to think I am? Well, it's real simple: I just have to adopt their characteristics and their qualities.

"A dog knows how to live in an airtight box. They don't allow any of the regrets of yesterday to seep into that environment. They don't allow any anxieties about tomorrow.

"If my dogs knew and thought about the fact that they were going to have to go to the veterinarian the next day and get a shot, they wouldn't sleep all night. They don't (worry). They let the next day take care of itself."

(Note: I know I usually can't sleep when I know I have to go to the vet clinic the next day!)

Crim believes that while dogs are unaware of their own mortality, they can achieve what is the ultimate gift that any person can have: To know their purpose and to live it.

"Even the dog who stays home and does nothing more than put a smile on the face of a child has fulfilled its purpose in life," Crim said. "My point is, that if we...ask that big question... Why am I here?" And we find our purpose in life, then, like a dog, when we come to the end it may be sad, but it doesn't have to be tragic if we have lived life the way we were meant to live it."

In his book, Crim quotes Viktor Frankl: "The last of the human freedoms — to choose one's attitude in any given set of circumstances."

Dogs don't have this freedom, Crim says.

"They respond by instinct," he said. "They don't make conscious decisions about what kind of day they're going to have, they just have a good day.

"They don't allow problems. If you do something that upsets them, two minutes later they're up in your lap... I think we can learn from that. If dogs can do that instinctively, we can train ourselves to do it, with a conscious decision that I'm going to have a good day. If we reinforce that...thought, it doesn't mean difficult things aren't going to happen - they will, but (we can make) that conscious decision that whatever life hands us we are going to deal with it in a positive manner, as our dogs do.

"They do it because they are programmed that way. We do it as a matter of choice."

Yeah, but I bet it helps when you have a really cool voice!

Take Home Message: Training dogs is important, but there's also a lot we can learn from them. Check your local bookstore for Second Thoughts: How to Be as Terrific as Your Dog Thinks You Are by Mort Crim. It just might make your life a little better.

ADOPT-A-PET

Martin: Martin is a 12month-old Shephard mix and a real beauty. Martin is eager to please and is an ideal candidate for obedience classes. He has a good behavior foundation, but just needs some skill development. He tends to focus on squirrels when out on a walk. Martin is a confident and independent dog best suited to a home with older kids and no other dogs. There's nothing wrong with being the center of attention, after all. Come see Martin at the Michigan Humane Society Westland Shelter, 37255 Marquette. Call (734) 721-7300 between 10 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Saturday.

As the leaves turn colors, your pet's needs change

As the leaves turn colors, the temperature cools and you start thinking about last year's fall coats, your daily routine will soon begin to change. And as summer turns to fall, it's important to remember that your pet's needs will change, too.

According to Dr. Dan Carey, veterinarian and director of technical communications for The Iams Company, pet owners should follow certain steps to ensure their pets are "warmly" prepared for the upcoming fall months.

Don't let the furry coat fool you — pets, too, need to stay indoors more during cooler weather to keep warm. If this is not possible, outdoor pets should be provided with a shelter that is elevated off the ground to prevent moisture accumulation. Remember that tiles and other surfaces may become extremely cold, so place blankets and pads on floors in these areas

Grooming your pet regularly will help to keep his coat in top condition so it can keep him properly insulated. Short- or coarse-haired dogs may especially feel the chill, so consider a sweater or coat. Long-haired dogs should have their paw-hair clipped to ease the cleaning of their feet in snowy conditions.

It takes more energy to keep a pet's body temperature regulated in cooler weather, so additional calories may be necessary.

Premium quality foods, such as Eukanuba and Iams Dog and Cat Foods, will help maintain a balanced energy level.

Thoroughly towel-dry your pet after bathing or coming in from the rain, and make sure to dry and clean her paws. This helps avoid tiny cuts and cracked pads. A little petroleum jelly may also help soften the pads and prevent dry skin.

Fall is an ideal time for your pet to visit the veterinarian for an annual check-up. Talk to your vet about any conditions that would compromise your pet's ability to deal with cold weather. Like people, pets may become more susceptible to illness when exposed to extreme weather, so be extra cautious about any abnormal symptoms your pet may have. Make sure to consult your vet if the symptoms persist and before giving your pet any over-the-counter medications.

For more than 50 years, The Iams Co. has enhanced the health and well-being of dogs and cats by providing high-quatity foods. For more information on proper pet care and nutrition, call the Iams Pet Professionals toll free at (800) 863-4267, Monday through Saturday, 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Eastern Standard Time.

Guild sets 'jewel' of a quilt show for weekend

STAFF WRITER

The CAMEO Quilt Guild has a "jewel" of an event in store

The guild is involved in a glittering array of activities all year, including projects for charities. And next weekend it will present its first show, at which a "jewel box" pattern quilt will be raffled.

Called "A CAMEO Appearance: Quilted Jewels, Fabric Treasures," the show will have something for everyone - for experienced quilters, novice quilters and people who just love quilts.

It will feature exhibits of quilts made by members, along with antique and vintage quilts (including one that is 100 years old). A merchants mall will offer booths and demonstrations.

"It's nice to see the new with the old," said Pam Pipas of Troy, guild president and co-chair of the quilt show committee.

The show will take place 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 14, and noon to 4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 15, at the International Academy, 1020 E. Square Lake Road, between Squirrel and Opdyke in Bloomfield Admission is $3. For information, call Edi at (248) 375-9525.

"We were two years planning it," Pipas said. A CAMEO Appearance will also display the Hoffman Challenge, which is known as the "premier traveling exhibit" in the quilting world.

This year's Hoffman Challenge is made up of 45 to 50 wall hanging size quilts that incorporate a design from the Hoffman California Fabric Line. The design, from the Les Jardins collection, suggests an English country garden at the turn of the century.

The friendly ambiance of the show is in keeping with the fellowship of the guild, which was started in 1994. CAMEO stands for Come And Meet Each Members meet 7 p.m. the third Thursday of the month, September through June, at the UAW International Hall at 1640 Stephenson Highway in

columns, I've touched on the importance of composition, which can be defined as the placement of the elements you view through the camera in a pleasing and harmonious

Today, I'd like to concentrate on a very important aspect of good composition, one that will enhance and add stopping power to your photographs: lead-in lines.

A lead-in line can be a river, pathway, road, fence or any other ment in your composition that will lead and direct the viewer's ntion to the central subject.

Next time you're about to photograph that weathered old barn, stop and take a moment to search for a composition that will include a lead-in line. Perhaps it's the dilapidated fence or the furrows in a recently plowed field that lead the way to the barn. By using either, can you imagine how much more exciting your finished picture will be?

How about that lonely tree in the valley you're about to shoot? Can you position yourself so that the meandering river leads the way into the picture?

Using lead-in lines causes you to slow down, think more and plan out the final image in your mind's eye. You're going through the process of making photographs, not taking snapshots, and your pictures will definitely show the difference.

Subject placement often works well by using the "rule of thirds." This means positioning the subject toward one of the corners of the viewfinder rather than in the center. After you've done this, look for a lead-in coming from the opposite corner.

Of course, you'll have to pay close attention to depth-of-field. Most likely, you'll need a small aperture so that everything in your finished print is sharp and

Look for abstract lead-in lines, too. Man-made patterns such as the steel structure in a building under construction or nature's patterns such as the ripples in a dramatic sand dune can all serve as effective lead-ing.

The important thing is to begin to "see" lead-in lines. They'll help you to look at the world in new, exciting wave.

Your photographs will have added strength and impact that you'll be proud to share with oth-

Lead on: A wide-angle lens, a dramatic camera angle and a striking building combined to produce a photograph containing many abstract lead-in lines.

Farmington gardeners rake in awards he Farmington Garden Club recently judged its 15th annual Good Neighbor Garden Contest. Winners received gift certificates from English Gardens or Somerset for their achievements.

Kitty Gitulli won for best all-around garden. Judges said "Wow" to describe Gitulli's garden design, color and impact and her whimsical Gitulli's water garden is "beautifully done," judges said, and her right-hand man in the garden is her 14-year-old son, Dante.

The second-place finisher did not wish to be identified. His garden can be entered through a picturesque gateway beside a six-foot red begonia topiary leading to well-manicured gardens with vegetables and roses.

Third-place was awarded to Dan Penning. Judges said the yard is "child-friendly" with a corner for a secret camp in a boulder area along with unusual bird houses, a water garden, vegetable garden and colorful plantings.

Harvest and dry herbs from the garden

Harvest time for an herb is best determined by the growing condition of the herb, rather than by a specific date or month.

Most herbs are ready to be harvested just as the flower buds first appear. The leaves contain the maximum amount of volatile oils at this stage of growth, giving the greatest flavor and fragrance to the finished product.

To extend the use of herbs into the winter months, plan to harvest and dry various herbs.

Herbs should be harvested at the proper time of the day; early in the morning, just before the sun is hot. Their fragrance makes this early task quite enjoyable.

Annual herbs can be cut back quite severely during harvest.

Using a sharp knife or pruning shears, cut just above a leaf or a pair of leaves, leaving 4 to 6 inches of the stem for later growth. However, if an annual herb is grown for its seed, it should not be cut back and used for the leaves.

In these cases, allow the plants to mature fully and then harvest them. Collect the seed heads when they are turning brown by cutting them from the plants and drying them on a tray made of very fine wire mesh.

Watch your pruning

Leafy perennial herbs should not be cut back as heavily as annuals. Only about one-third of the top growth should be removed at a time, and in some cases only the leafy tips should be removed.

Careful pruning ensures that new growth will be produced and a compact habit of growth main-

Most perennial herbs will be ready to harvest just prior to or during the early part of July, with a second harvest possible in September in the cases of herbs such as tarragon and oregano. A sharp knife or pair of pruning shears are necessary tools when harvesting herbs

The herbs should be fresh and clean before drying and storing, regardless of the method used to cure them.

To clean, wash stems in cold running water and drain on paper toweling. The easiest way to dry herbs is to allow the leaves or entire stems to air dry at room temperature.

When drying whole branches or stems: first wash and dry, then gather 5 to 8 stems together and tie them into a bundle. Place the bundle into a brown paper bag with stems extending out the open end and hang in a dark warm place (70° to 80° F). Depending on temperature and moisture, drying time will take 2 to 4 weeks.

Dry 'em up

Tray drying is usually used for short-stemmed herbs or for individual leaves; an old window screen or smaller drying tray fashioned from 2-by-2 lumber and screening usually works as a drying tray.

The trays should be kept in a warm, dark place until the herbs

Silica sand drying is the same process as is commonly used to dry flowers. Silica sand draws the moisture out of the plant tissugs and leaves them original shapes.

Any container will do, as long as it is big enough to allow all of the plant materials to be covered with sand.

The leaves should be clean and dry. Place a shallow layer of silica sand in the bottom of the container, then arrange herbs on top so they don't overlap; then cover with more silica sand and place container in a warm room. It will take two to four weeks until the herbs are thoroughly dried and can be removed from the sand for storage in glass jara.

'50s Kitsch comes of age as Paint-by-Numbers

BY SHARON DARGAY STAFF WRITER

It's the late 1400s and inventor-artist Leonardo da Vinci is teaching his students about color.

He hands each protégé a pattern with numbered sections that specify which hue goes where. They brush color in the numbered areas and create a background or underpainting for one of da Vinci's lesser works.

Fast forward a half dozen centuries to the Palmer Paint Company in Detroit, where 20-something inventor-artist Dan Robbins ponders da Vinci as he roughs out a new product idea: Palmer Paint would make numbered pictures and hobbyists would brush in color, just like da Vinci's students.

Paint-by-numbers would let even the most uninspired hobbyist become a Rembrandt.

This way the novice would create their own painting," Robbins later wrote. "Thank you Leonardo.

Robbins' idea clicked with paint company owner, Max Klein. Under the Craft Master label, his firm sold millions of sets by the mid-1950s, when the fad peaked.

And Robbins, who will lecture at the Detroit Historical Museum this month, unknowingly fathered a pop culture icon.

tweet many . (c) Digman the Mark 181 to

> "After 50 years they've become collectible items," said Robbins, interviewed by telephone from his home in Oak Brook, Illinois. "Some have sold for five bucks, some for a couple of hundred. One painting in particular, which I modestly claimed to have done, a collector paid $2,000, for it.

> "A lot has to do with time. What happens is that all of a sudden, things like Barbie dolls and hoopla hoops become 50 years old and they're a part of American culture. Suddenly these things become desirable, collectible. Kitsch."

Cynthia Young, social history curator, understands their importance in the collective memory of the Baby Boom generation. She proposed a paint-by-number exhibit for the historical museum after discovering their Detroit origin, knowing the subject would "resonate with a lot of peo-

The museum collected paintings, paint-by-number sets and a '50s-era promotional film about Craft Master, arranging the items behind glass last spring.

The exhibit runs through

February 2001. "It's fun and I think people connect with it," Young said. "It was one of the most popular hobbies around in the mid-fifties and sixties. Everyone was doing paintby-number."

The museum gift store stocks Robbins book, What Ever Happened to Paint- by-Numbers? And its educational staff has offered several related children's workshops since the exhibit started. Robbins' slide presentation and talk on Oct. 15 is aimed at adults, teens and upper elementary students.

Robbins takes a light-hearted approach to the topic. He'll also play a part in the Smithsonian Institute's spring 2001 exhibit of paint-by-number, but isn't sure he likes the title.

"It's Accounting for Taste. I think the word 'no' should be in there," he said, laughing.

Paint-by-number critics would agree. And in the early 1950s there were plenty of critics. They saw the hobby as a paint and brush version of coloring books

"Art teachers and people in the art business looked down their noges at paint-by-number. They said it wasn't creative and arty. But I never pretended paint-by-number was .art," Robbins explained. "My best response is that paint-by-number is not art itself, but the experience of art.

"If it weren't for paint-by-number, a lot of people wouldn't have had the experience of dipping a brush into paint and putting it on canvage

Paint-by-number was a "hand-holding" experience that bolstered the novice's confidence with oil paint and canvass. Some hobbyists painted their own compositions after practicing with a paint-by-number kit. And although contemporary critics may see paint-by-number as a metaphor for the stay-in-line lifestyle of the 1950s, Robbins finds it sparks only happy memories among its fans.

"During the 1950s some people were very uptight and not inclined to take risks. I read an article that compared paint by number to the tightly restricted era, but what I get back from people is that it was a happy

Robbins said the sale of art supplies increased as paint-bynumber's popularity grew.

"Some people said, this (painting) isn't so tough. I bet I can do it myself.' It was a glorified hobby and pastime. We romanced it and marketed it."

Robbins drew the first 50 or 60 subjects for Craft Master's paintings, before the company hired artists, including Adam Grant, whose paintings hang in "half a dozen museums" nationwide.

Robbins said the skilled artists and range of paint colors set Craft master apart from competi-

"Max Klein provided us with over 300 colors on the master palette." he noted. Other companies dabbled with 30 or 40.

Although paint-by-number sets became more complicated over the years, most substituted acrylic for oil paint.

Craft Master also aimed for subjects with wide appeal - landscapes, pets, flowers, people even nudes.

"We were discreet with the nudes," Robbins noted. "I think cessful was that we paid atten-tion to what people told us."

Robbins kept about five or six paintings of his own, although friends have loaned him dozena for his lectures and exhibit

After all those years of banging out sketches together for Sid Caesar, you'd think that the subsequent individual works of Mel Brooks and Neil Simon would have had more in common. In fact, only Simon's lesser-known plays such as Fools, Farmington Players presents God's Favorite and Rumore ventured into the kind of lowbrow parody and farce that Brooks turned into classic film comedies like Blasing Saddles and Young Frankenstein.

name. The vendor milks her cow while it's on its back ("You get more cream that way").

Another example? Butcher to postman: "Do I have any mail?" Postman to butcher: "No, I'm the postman; I have all the mail." And so on.

The teacher has only one day to help remove the curse or become one of them. Good luck; he'll need it.

The Farmington cast is uniformly up to the task of playing dumb. Toby Booker as Leon has about as many lines as Simon has ever given a character, and he offers them up with an engaging spirit. The Zubritsky three weave their witlessness

Sometimes stupidity has its advantages. The butcher whistles "Whistle While You Work," apparently too dumb to know that the song won't be written for another 50 years. But forgive us; we're thinking too much

Birmingham Theatre showcases Woody Allen's classics

BY SHARON DARGAY

You can kick back in the LA-Z-Boy and watch Woody Allen's Napoleonic spoof, Love & Death, on videotape.

Or you can see the comic master work his subtle humor in the 1975 film on the big screen this month during the Birmingham Theatre's Woody Allen film festi-

Todd Cochran, theater manager, says the choice is clear.

"It's a totally different experience when you see it on the big screen rather than on TV."

Cochran will run a different Woody Allen film from the 1970s every Tuesday through Oct. 24. Films begin at 7 p.m. and cost $7.75 for adults, $5.25 for senior citizens and children.

"We've done a midnight classic series that ran all summer. That's where we got the indication that this could be hugely successful," Cochran explained.

We picked one classic a week and showed everything from Blazing Saddles to the Shawshank Redemption. It gave us an opportunity to show these great movies in the theater."

Although the theater's largest auditorium sold out for many of the midnight shows, patrons suggested that Cochran run classics in the early evening, too.

"I think I chose Woody Allen because I wanted a broad appeal.

The films haven't been seen in the Detroit area in over 20 years," he added.

Cochran chose his four favorite Woody Allen films for the festival: Love & Death, (1975), Sleeper, (1973), Annie Hall (1977) and Manhattan, (1979).

"He made those in succession. Incredible that any one could be on that kind of winning streak."

Cochran will run film festivals periodically through the year. He's planning a foreign film festival for January, 2001.

"I always felt there was audience in the Detroit-area for great films. It's exciting to know there's a real appetite for great film,"

Cochran said. "We'll still do the midnight classic series independent of the film festivals," he added. "We'll start another midnight series on Thanksgiving weekend and run it until the end of December.

"The reason we did a midnight series initially was that there's a more eclectic crowd at midnight. I thought we could take more chances. We even got Pulp Fiction in. We got one of the three prints existing in the world."

Cochran wanted to show American Graffiti last month during Dream Cruise weekend but discovered its prints no longer exist. "Hopefully the Library of Congress and Martin Scorsese will be able to restore some of these films. Pulp Fiction is not that old of a film, to think that it's almost out of existence is bizarre."

Cochran says technology for projecting digitized films onto movie theater screens exists, but is "five years away" from producing quality images.

"It's sent via satellite to the theater and projected there," he said. "But the quality isn't good enough yet. You get better quality from directly projecting a film."

Hilberry season opens Friday

The Hilberry Theatre opens its 2000-2001 season Friday, Oct. 6 with Steve Martin's award-winning comedy, Picasso at the Lapin Agile. The play, winner of the 1995 Outer Critics Circle Award for Best Off-Broadway Play and Best Playwright, continues in rotating repertoire through Saturday, Dec. 9. Performances are scheduled 8 p.m. Thursday-Saturday, and 2 p.m.

Wednesday and Saturday.

Tickets $11-$18 with discounts available for subscription tickets, groups and students. Call (313)

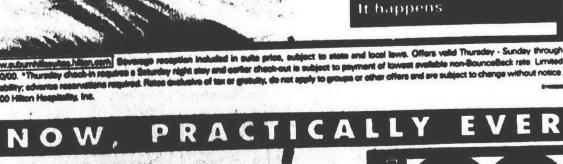

The comedy takes place in 1904 at the Lapin Agile, a Parisian cabaret that Pablo Picasso helped to make famous with his 1905 oil painting "At the Lapin Agile."

Steve Martin's play revolves ry.

around a fictional meeting between a swaggering Picasso, age 23, and a scatterbrained Albert Einstein, age 25. The two men, each on their respective threshold of fame, attempt to gain each other's respect while they simultaneously compete for the attentions of a woman and debate art, science and reason at the dawn of the twentieth centu-

'Woman on Top' sizzles with comedic flavor

BY ALICE RHEIN STAFF WRITER

Take the sexy, sassy, saucy Jennifer Lopez and mix in the classic grace, beauty and charm of Audrey Hepburn, and you'd have the basic ingredients for Penelope Cruz, who stars as the lovely Isabella Oliveira in Woman on Top, which opens Sept. 22 at the Main Art Theatre.

Now, take the movie Like Water for Chocolate, the magical comic tale that unveils the sensual mysteries of food and cooking, and blend in a "Gee Your Hair Smells Terrific!" commercial, and you've got the recipe for Woman on Top.

Billed as a spicy, sexy comedy about the magic of food, love and when they go out, she must lead music, Woman on Top is an enchanting romp through the lives of Isabella and her husband, Toninho, and their friend, Monica Jones.

Isabella is madly in love with Toninho, who owns the restaurant where she is the chef. He charms the patrons nightly with his velvet voice and suave Brazilian moves. She cooks like a

They live charmed lives in their mystical portside village of Bahia, on the northeastern coast of Brazil - but there is one slight problem.

Isabella is afflicted with motion sickness, and her only way to control it is by controlling her motions. She must drive when they dance, and she must be on top when they make love.

That's a little more than Toninho's ego can take.

And when Isabella finds him with another woman, she catches the next flight to San Francisco where her friend, Monica (Harold Perrineau Jr.), a transvestite with a penchant for Carmine Miranda hats and wrap-around frocks, lives.

In most movies, that would occupy a good portion of the plot, but riding on the wave of a bossanova beat, that all takes place in the first 10 minutes.

Isabella still yearns for her magnetic mate (Murilo Benicio, who is one of Brazil's hottest film and television stars), but longs to her Botticellian locks.

A few candles, a little voodoo, a midnight offering to the water god, and poof! Isabella is free at

She sheds the white Keds, the carpet bag and trench coat, and wow - instant allure.

The men of San Francisco think so, too, and follow her into the culinary school where she teaches, and also into one of the movie's silliest scenes.

This is the first English-speaking movie for Cruz, who foreign film devotees will recognize from All About My Mother and Belle Epoque, both of which won Best Foreign Film awards - the former a Golden Globe, the latter an Academy Award.

With the charm and poise she exudes, this will likely be looked back on as Cruz's breakout film. She is, after all, starring opposite some of Hollywood's most popular leading men - Matt Damon, Johnny Depp and Nicolas Cage in three upcoming movies.

But as they say, back to our

But by now, Isabella has her own television show, Passion Food Live, thanks to her neighbor, Cliff (Mark Feuerstein), a producer who was told by his boss (John De Lancie, or Q to Trekkies) to "find a 7:30 show that won't get clobbered by Zena."

Demure yet sizzling, Isabella finds fame in her native spices and beloved peppers. And eventually, Toninho, guitar band in tow, finds Isabella.

From there, it's love versus voodoo as Toninho tries to find the secret ingredient to make Isabella his once again, and Isabella looks to the gods for her passion.

University, where students are competing for the esteemed Hitchcock Award, which is given to a student who creates the best film and it often guarantees the winner a film career in Holly-

As luck would have it, Amy finds herself meeting up with the school security guard, Reese. She inspires Amy with her story of an urban legend at Pendleton University, Reese's former place of employment. So Amy goes to work on her psychological thriller about urban legends. She writes the script, casts her actors and puts together her crew, which consists of her friends. But the competition is fierce and Amy endures several threats.

Jennifer Morrison (Stir of Echoes) adds Urban Legends: The Final Cut to a long list of credits, making her a force to reckon with in young Hollywood. She may not scream like Jennifer Love Hewitt, but she has the drive to find the killer, much like that of Neve Campbell's character in Scream. Matt Davis is making a name for himself in Hollywood. Look for him in the upcoming film Pearl Harbor.

Joseph Lawrence of television's Blossom is a Hollywood veteran at quite a young age. As a child actor, Lawrence has grown up on screen.

Loretta Devine (Urban Legends) returns in this thriller providing comedic relief as the campus security guard.

While Urban Legends: The Final Cut is a typical thriller sequel cut along the same lines as Scream and I Know What You Did Last Summer, it lacks any noticeable ties to the original Urban Legends.

Factory 81 on its way home, gearing up for CD release

BY STEPHANE ANGELYN CASOLA STATE WHITE ACASOLOGOS, homecomm.net

Detroit-based funk-metal quartet Factory 81 doesn't waste any time. Together since 1997, vecalist Nate Wallace of Reseville, guitarist Bill Schultz of Sterling Heights, bassist Kavin Lewis of Sterling Heights and drummer Andy Cyrulnik of Rochester Hills have taken their aggressive rock antics from the local stage onto a nationwide tour. With a re-release of the band's Mojo/Universal debut Mankind set for Oct. 3 and a cover of Cypress Hill's classic Insane In The Brain appearing on the Take A Bite Outta Rhyme: A Rock Tribute to Rap compilation, life is moving on fast forward for Factory now. I caught up with Bill Schultz through the magic of cell phones on Sept. 22 to get up to speed. Here's what he had to say from New York:

Observer & Eccentric: Hey Bill, how's it going? How do you like being on the road?

Bill Schultz: "It's going really well. It's our first tour. Actually it's a great experience." O&E: How did Factory 81

B.S.: "Me and Kevin have known each other for a long time, eight years. He had joined a band that I was in previously. We put an ad out for a singer and Nathan answered the ad. We had a couple different drummer changes. Then Kevin's girlfriend at the time knew Andy. This is the lineup we've kind of stuck with.

O&E: Where did the name come from?

B.S.: "Our singer bought a shirt a while ago at a thrift store. It was a work shirt with the name 'Dick' on it. He thought it was suited for him. It was a Chrysler work shirt with Tactory Number 81' on it. Everyone with it."

thought we could kind of use that. It fits with the whole

O&E: Tell me how the band got hooked up with Moje

B.S.: "We'd done a couple demo tapes and signed with an indie label in the Detroit area, Medea, a year and a half ago. (We recorded) the same album we're re-releasing now. When the album came out, we started doing really well. Bruce Lorfel (of Eternal Artists Management) contacted us ... He got into it and started shopping us around to labels. We ended up doing showcases. Mojo Records was the first label to come out to see us. Although several major labels had shown interest, Mojo had the same idea we had. Eric Jarvi (A&R, Mojo Records) is just a super cool guy. He's got great ideas. The cool thing about Mojo is it's a small label. They've got no one like us. The have the Cherry Poppin' Daddies. But there's a huge push from (parent company) Universal. We've got the best of both worlds."

O&E: Tell me about the song Peace Officer. Why did you choose to remix it and how did you hook up with Rhys Fulber (Fear Factory) to do so?

B.S.: "We actually didn't pick Peace Officer. (The label) fell in love with that song. Rhys was one of the names (of producers, that the band hoped to work with). We talked to Eric, within 24 hours (he agreed.)

O&E: How did you get involved in the Take A Bite Outta Rhyme compilation? Why did you choose a Cypress Hill song?

B.S.: "Andy is a big Cypress Hill fan. We chose to do that song. We only had a couple of days (to record). That was the first time we ever got pushed into doing something. I'm happy Homecoming for the Factory: Factory 81 has been touring extensively in support of the band's Mojo / Universal Records release mankind. The next stop is Detroit.

O&E: What can we expect to see when you perform back home at St. Andrews Hall. Do you have anything special planned?

B.S.: "It's kind of exciting for us to be coming back home. We'll play a full set from the album jaw. and then new songs, too. I'm hoping people are getting excited. We're just finishing up this tour.

Check out Factory 81 with Glassjaw, Drowning Man and Sicks, 7 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 7, St. Andrews Hall, Detroit. $8. (313) There are only two more shows. Then we're going out with Glassittle Bangkok Cuisine in Plymouth, opened just a few adage that valuable things come in small packages. With seating for just 36 patrons, dining is cony.

And delicious.

"I love Thai food," said Lew Hersey of Plymouth Township. who had made a return visit with his wife, Nancy. "And the cuisine here certainly meets my palate's taste. I'm partial to Pad Thai. It's very good here. I would definitely recommend this place to somebody who knows and likes Thai food."

Owner Martin Yang is pleased with such praise but not surprised. Weeks before the restaurant opened, while it was being remodeled, Plymouth residents would stroll by and ask about opening day. Yang and other family members who work at the restaurant decided to make a good impression.

First impression

"The people here are very friendly," said Yang. "On the first day we opened we had a free lunch. About 200 people came. They tried it and loved and, and they come back."

There are lots of reasons to make a return visit to Little Bangkok for a taste of Thai, including the spring rolls. "They're the best in town, said manager Tom Vangyi. "They're more like homemade - with fresh cabbage, carrots and clear noodle. It's the crispiness of the skin and freshness of the vegeta-

Thai cuisine is very different from Chinese, said Vangyi, who began cooking as a young boy in Thailand to help feed his three brothers and four sisters. There are three predominant tastes in Thai food, he said - sour, sweet and hot. Curry is very much a part of that taste experience, as is ecconut milk, which adds richness and flavor.

Texture also is important, especially "crunchiness" - as in cashews, chopped peanuts and vegetables purchased and prepared fresh every day.

Customer favorites include Pad Ped (red curry, coconut milk, onion, bell pepper, mushroom and eggplant) and Gang Gai (similar, but minus the onion and eggplant). Vangyi tempers his dishes to suit Americans' tamer taste buds, and all dishes can be ordered mild, medium or

Pad Thai, house favorite

Both Yang and Vangyi are partial to Pad Thai, the house favorite, which they describe as the Thai equivalent of a McDonald's cheeseburger. It's really so much more - stir-fried noodles, bean sprouts, egg, green onion and chopped peanuts. Add some chicken, pork, tofu, shrimp or scallops, and the dish is, as one diner trying it for the first time said, "really delicious."

Perhaps the most unusual dish on the menu is Yum Apple, made with sliced green apples. shrimp, chicken, cashew nuts, red onions, toasted coconut and a

"You won't find it in Thailand, but Tom and my Uncle Michael wanted to try something new. It's gone over fairly well. It's simple to make, and it tastes very crunchy."

All dishes can be prepared with little or no oil. Spare a little fat in the entree and you can splurge on dessert. Little Bangkok serves a ball of coconut ice cream that has been rolled in crushed corn flakes, frozen, then quickly deep fried just before serving.

Take-out business has been good, and Friday nights often produce more diners than available tables. But it's worth the wait. Guaranteed, you won't go home hungry.

agreement with an adjacent neighbor to give them a license to use a portion of our land to erect a tower on our property for their benefit. We retain the right to terminate the interest upon four months notice.

We have referred to the agreement as a license. Do you think this is a good idea?

While a license generally is revocable, you should be concerned about a recent case in which the court held that a license that is granted and not modified or terminated for a number of years may change into an easement and/ or an irrevocable license.

In a recent case, the court of appeals held that although the owner of the land had the right to terminate a license, it had owned the land for 25 years before it attempted to terminate the license. The court determined that "equitable principles" precluded the land owner from revoking what it referred to as "an easement' at a later date.

The court basically held that because of the long delay in time, as well as the land owner's long acquiescence to the person holding the licensed presence on the property, it resulted in the license ripening into a non-revocable equitable easement.

The sum and substance of that case is to be careful about granting revocable license that you don't revoke for a period of years.

Cut 'em back: Large bushes and trees that obscure the front of a house could provide cover for criminal activity.

Home owners can take simple steps to cut chance of crimes around house

BY DOUG FUNKE

If homes today are viewed as our castles, we need to take a more extensive approach to safeguarding the property than did kings of old, who were protected by moats and knights.

Make the effort, law enforcement

"People still live like we're back in Mayberry - they leave everything in plain sight and the garage door open," said Sgt. Robert Gaynett, director of the Police Anti-Crime Unit in Water-

"The other guy is going to be the victim, it's never going to be me," said Jamie Senkbeil, community resource officer in Plymouth Township. "That's what we believe.'

Locks, lights and neighbors provide the best lines of defense.

But just putting things away - cars, keeping shrubbery trimmed so that people can't attempt misdeeds in seclusion could make a big difference.

It helps, also, to have concerned/ nosy neighbors who will call 911 immediately when they hear or see something suspicious, police say. And be good neighbor, yourself.

"In an ideal situation, there's always more we can do," said detective Sgt. Tim McGillivary, who handles crime prevention matters for Livonia police.

Light it up

"Put two identical homes side by side, identical in every way," said Alan Gosenca, an officer in Troy's crime prevention bureau. "Make one well lit, the other totally dark. Put a burglar in between. Ten out of 10 times he's going to the dark house."

It's amazing how bright some neighborhoods look Halloween night - with all the porch lights on but dark the rest of the year.

Detroit Edison estimates that consumers pay $2.37 to power a 75-watt incandescent porch light for 350 hours, 11-1/2 hours per night for a month.

Timers on indoor lights are especially helpful as sunlight dwindles during the late fall and winter months, Gosen-

The more ways you can simulate that people are home when they actually aren't, the better the protection. Multisensory safeguards, though rarely used, are especially effective.

"Leave a radio or TV on," Senkbeil said. "That's one thing we don't see a

The best crime prevention methods are simple methods, McGillivary said. "Get into good habits like locking doors. Deadbolts should be at least a one-inch throw into frames. A significant number of break-ins are because the doorwall was unsecured.

"If you go on vacation, be sure people pick up newspapers and mail. Don't let that pile up," McGillivary said.

Dogs can be a great deterrent, he

Protecting cars

Best to keep vehicles off the street. "Our statistics show that if the car is parked in the garage or driveway, you're less likely to be a victim. Senkbeil said. "Put it in the garage and shut the door. Or at least pull it up as close to the house as you can. If the vehicle has to stay outside overnight, I'd leave the driveway light Vehicles parked on the street are more likely to be randomly vandalized just because they're there. And while not a crime, the same logic holds for the potentiality of another vehicle colliding with yours, especially on icy roads during winter.

Kill switches can be installed on vehicles for about $50, said Kim Linton, a public safety technician with the Southfield police.

Gosenca said he's mystified as to why people leave valuables in plain sight in their vehicles. Expensive things, too.

"They (intruders) used to be able to get spare change from the glove box, a sugar package from the diner," Gosenca said. "Nowadays, they get cell phones and big, heavy laptops. People leave golf clubs in there.

Cut it back

It's important to keep shrubbery trimmed near the house for a couple of

"Someone can be hiding behind bushor and they can pop out and surprise you, or hide behind the bushes while they try to get in a window or door," Senkbeil said.

Also, homeowners can better see what's happening around the property outside with an unobstructed view.

"Bad guys tend to be drawn to houses that are unkempt," McGillivary said. "They figure people aren't going to notice them as much."

Always be aware of your surround ings, even in familiar places, Linton

"When you pull up, make sure everything is in order before you get out at home, at work, when shopping," she said. "One of the most important tips I like to stress is walk with a purpose. Know where you're going. If you let up, that's when you're subject to risk."

Because police can't be everywhere all the time, neighbors should look out for each other, crime prevention experts say. One time, a neighbor saw a police car next door and an officer taking a report," Gaynett said. "He went over and asked what was going on. He was told about a burglary and he said he saw someone with some electronic equipment in the driveway. He didn't know what they were doing.

"I'm not saying confront people. Call the police department," Gaynett said. "Give us a call," McGillivary echoed.

"The vast majority of our in-progress felony arrests are made with the support of residents."

Inventory your possessions, too. "If you do have valuables, not only have a video or still pictures but write down serial numbers," Gaynett said. "That's the only way we can track

Get to the point(s) on mortgages

With as many questions as I get on "points," I thought I would point out a few things. In the mortgage world, one point equals 1 percent of a borrower's loan amount. For example, one point on a loan of $90,000 would cost $900. There are basically just two types of points - origination points and discount points.

Lenders usually charge origination points for mortgages to compensate for added paperwork and effort associated with certain loans. To this end, it is common to see lenders add origination; points onto FHA and VA loans, and other time-intensive mortgage types.

Discount points differ from origination points in that they allow borrowers to reduce their mortgage interest rate. One discount point reduces a borrower's interest rate by about onequarter percentage. Thus, if a borrower is going to pay zero points for an 8- : percent interest rate, he should expect; a 7.75-percent rate after paying one discount point.

One discount point on a $150,000 mortgage costs $1,500 and saves the borrower about $25 per month at today's rates. Not accounting for inflation, it will take that borrower 60 months to just make back the cost of his discount point.

There are two situations in which they are a smart investment. The first is when the seller is going to pay for points. The second is when the borrowers are certain they will not be selling their home or refinancing their mortgage for at least five years. Retired seniors buying homes may benefit from discount points.

Mortgage points are fully taxdeductible in the year paid if they are assessed for the purchase of your primary residence, are identified as "points" on your settlement statement. are calculated as a percentage of your loan amount and are not extraordinary for similar loans in your area. This IRS standard allows the formerly nondeductible FHA and VA loan origination fees to be claimed as deductible points.

Consult a mortgage professional and your tax adviser to determine whether paying points makes sense for you.

Energy supplies

State says we have enough for winter

The Michigan Public Service Commission released the "Michigan Energy Appraisal: Winter 2000/2001." The appraisal reviews the projected prices and availability of energy in Michigan over the winter months.

Overall, energy supplies are expected to be sufficient this winter. However, any disruption to the petroleum distribution system would likely generate further sharp price jumps in heating oil and propane prices. Homes heated with fuel oil and propane will see significant price increases compared to last year as a result of higher crude oil costs and supply and inventory

Michigan is in better shape than other states due to the agreements the MPSC reached with the state's biggest natural gas suppliers to hold prices steady. This means that for the majority of Michigan households using natural gas, prices will not go up this winter. However, gas prices for customers of some gas utilities where rates are not frozen have increased sub-

The National Weather Service projects winter temperatures for Michigan to be near normal the first months of winter, and then run slightly warmer than normal after the first of the year. Normal winter temperatures will seem cold given the warm temperatures the last three winters, which averaged 7-percent warmer than normal. Even if prices remain the same, colder temperatures will increase use and heating bills.

Natural Gas Michigan natural gas sales for the year 2000 are expected to increase to 903 billion cubic feet (Bcf), up 4.6 percent from sales in 1999. Natural gas prices on the spot market have risen to above $5, up from around $3 just one year ago. Prices are not expected to moderate anytime soon. Gas costs were frozen for customers of MichCon, Consumers Energy, and SEMCO Energy when the Gas Choice program was implemented, and recent price increases will not affect customers of these companies this winter. Consumers Energy's frozen factor will expire on April 1, 2001, likely resulting in higher costs for Consumers' gas for the balance of 2001. All other regulated gas utilities (serving less than 10 percent of Michigan gas customers) have had rate increases approved to cover the higher gas costs. Customers of these utilities can expect to see an increase in their total bills ranging from 26 to 43 percent this winter.

Distillate Fuel Oil Michigan distillate fuel oil deliveries for 2000 are expected to drop 0.6 percent from 1999. Inventories of distillate fuel oil appear to be adequate in the Midwest but are still very low on the East Coast. Refiners are now maximizing distillate oil production to replenish inventories. Residential heating oil prices rose significantly in Michigan last winter. The average price on Oct. 4, 1999, was 95.8 cents. Prices peaked at $1.213 in mid-March 2000 before declining to $1.197 by the end of March. Preliminary estimates show Michigan heating oil prices are about $1.32 per gallon, as of Sept. 20, excluding the 4-percent sales tax. The Department of Energy projects national fuel oil prices will remain around $1.30 until the end of the year and then drop to about $1.20 early next year. Michigan prices can be expected to follow this national trend.

Petroleum Continuing petroleum market volatility has pushed crude oil prices to a 10-year high. OPEC increased production quotas at its Sept. 10 meeting to moderate prices. Since then, oil prices on futures markets have exceeded $37 a barrel before falling back to near $31 a barrel. The President's decision to release 30 million barrels from the Strategic Petroleum Reserve will bring additional supplies into the market, but analysts are divided on what effect this will have. Non-OPEC producers are also expected to increase production. As additional production comes into world markets over the next several months, prices are expected to decline. The Energy Information Administration (EIA) projects the average price of imported oil will decline this year, and by the end of next year will be down by nearly $6 per barrel. This would bring prices within the OPEC target of stabilizing prices in the $22 to $28 per barrel range. If prices do not fall to targeted levels by late October, OPEC has said that it could further increase production by 500,000 barrels per Electricity Michigan electricity sales are expected to grow just 0.7 percent in 2000, compared to the 3.1-percent growth seen in 1999. Much cooler-than-normal weather this summer contributed to lower peak demands and lower electricity sales.

Motor Gasoline Self-serve regular gasoline sold in the Detroit area on Sept. 25, for $1.58 per gallon, according to AAA Michigan. This is 30.5 cents higher than in the same week one year ago, when the average price was $1.275. EIA shows the national average gasoline price to peak in the second and third quarters of 2000 at $1.57 and $1.54, respectively, and then decline very slowly and stabilize next year at an average price of $1.40 per gallon based on the expected decline in crude oil costs and reduced demand levels. Michigan gasoline demand is expected to increase just 18 million gallons this year, an increase of 0.4 percent.

The Michigan Energy Appraisal is prepared every six months. Copies of the report can be obtained by contacting the Michigan Public Service Commission (MPSC), Executive Secretary Division, P.O. Box 30221, Lansing, MI 48909, or by calling (517) 241-6175, or fax (517) 241-6101. The Energy Appraisal is also available on the World Wide Web at cis. state. mi. us/ mpsc/ reports/ energy

Online condo newsletter

Community Associations Institute launches online newsletter

The Community Associations Institute (CAI) has launched a free e-mail newsletter, "Community Associations Institute Online News." This monthly newsletter provides news and information of interest to homeowners who live in a community, condo or co-op run by an association, and those who themselves participate in running their community associations.

According to Carol Marty, CAI's senior director of marketing, "CAI Online News provides information and tools that can help communities be more effective. For example, our inaugural issue highlights tips on how to transform long, confrontational and ineffective meetings into short, painless and productive ones. Each issue of CAI Online News will focus on topics of interest to those who participate in or run community associations. Each issue will direct users to the best online articles on community associations. A regular feature will be the popular "Ask the Expert" Question and Answer, presenting critical questions that come up in community life or management, and expert answers. To see a copy of the newsletter.
