Resident at forefront of technology revolution

BY DAVE GIVENS
SPECIAL WRITER

Day one - Thursday Feb. 21 - Good news, Bad news.

Editor's note Canton resident Dave Givens, a self described technology hound, volunteered to keep a diary of his tech dependency during a business trip last week to the Philadelphia Biblical University and the Washington Bible College Student Missions Conference in Lanham, Md. Givens, 53, is assistant to the U.S. Director for Special Services at SEND International, an interdenominational Christian mission agency.

He notes that he was dubbed "Inspector Gadget," after the popular cartoon character, by fellow travelers on a tour of Europe last spring.

Givens is the husband of Plymouth-Canton school board member Liz Givens, who also works part-time for SEND International.

Here are excerpts from his diary.

■ - The "electronic secretary" on my PDA (personal digital assistant) sprang to life reminding me of a pastor's community prayer meeting I attend Thursday mornings at Geneva Presbyterian Church.

■ - During the sharing time with pastors, I opened my PalmPilot, which has the whole Bible loaded on it and the verse that happens to be in the center of the screen fits appropriately into the discussion. Having an electronic version of the Bible at my fingertips with its automatic search feature is a major convenience for me. Later during the prayer time, these same references become spiritual reminders of what God is doing in our lives.

■ - I write several e-mail messages before taking a mid-day nap to make up for the late night. I use a bi-level air pump for sleep apnea to maximize my oxygen intake for better rest. Another technological wonder that the doctor ordered after a sleep test showed why I was always tired.

■ - The person giving us a ride to the airport is late. He was distracted surfing the Internet and forgot what time it was.

■ - My wife and I get to the airport for a 5:25 flight. Hoping the lines through the e-ticket machines will be faster, I try that line while she takes the traditional line. Hers is moving faster, so we join forces and begin to prepare ourselves for the reality that we missed our flight. With e-ticketing, I can even go online before going to the airport and issue myself a boarding

Connecting: Communities offer more Web choices

BY TEDD SCHNEIDER

The virtual city or township hall is slowly becoming reality as most local communities move to a second generation of on-line presence that offers everything from a peek at property tax bills to handgun permit applications. Gone - almost - are the days when municipal Web sites were nothing more than fluffy PR for elected officials and collections of sometimes outdated, or nearly useless information.

Coming next in southeastern Michigan will be the ability to submit permit applications and other municipal documents over the Internet, although local Web site administrators said legal and security issues still cloud the timeline for that step.

And some national experts, as well as local officials, worry that the economic downturn could hamper the evolution of municipal government Web sites as powerful tools for residents and the business community.

If you haven't visited your community's Internet outpost lately, you might be surprised at what's available with just a few mouse clicks. For example:

■ Livonia residents can calculate - to the penny - how much the proposed road improvement millage on the Aug 6 primary ballot will add to their property tax bill.

■ Plymouth residents can download and print the form requesting their home be placed on the Plymouth Police Department's vacation checklist.

Salvation Army facing potential budget crunch

BY TONY BRUSCATO

The Plymouth Corps of the Salvation Army is facing a budget deficit reaching nearly $120,000.

As a result of the events of Sept. 11, and the economic downturn, the local chapter finds itself in need of a financial infusion to keep from cutting staff and programs.

"We had a shortfall in our Christmas direct mail drive, and we attribute that to the events of 9-11," said Maj. Stephen Hull, who runs the Plymouth Corps on Main Street. "The mail campaign went out in the first week of November, which was in the same time frame as the anthrax scare. We didn't know then, but that was a major impact."

Dan Herriman, finance committee chairman of the local advisory board, said last year's bell ringing campaign brought in $120,000, which was $5,000 more than budgeted.

However, the mail campaign fell drastically short. After raising $270,000 in 2000, the Plymouth Corps raised its goal to $325,000 for 2001. In reality, the pledges came in at just $220,000.

"Admittedly, we may have over-estimated our goals for this year," said Herriman. "We also believe that support for 9-11 groups cut into the ability of people to contribute to our campaign."

Detroit studies options as sale falls through

Officials in the city of Detroit thought they had their projected $60 million budget deficit solved when they sold the former Detroit House of Corrections property for $50 million back in January.

Not so fast. Shortly after the Detroit City Council accepted K/LB Funding LLC's bid, the developer balked asking the city to discuss lowering the figure.

New Mayor Kwame Kilpatrick, never a big fan of the idea in the first place, declined.

"The developer changed their mind about the price," said Kilpatrick spokesman Bob Berg. "They were trying to negotiate the price down. They felt there were some problems and wanted to talk about lowering the price."

Officials at K/LB Funding weren't available for comment.

The parcel includes 417 acres in Plymouth Township and another 400 acres in Northville. According to Berg, Detroit's mayor was "never comfortable" with the idea to begin with, and will now look at other ways to fight off the budget deficit.

"The mayor is going to take a look at it," Berg said. "We're having an independent appraisal done. He indicated that, as far as the immediate budget situation is concerned, we'll find other ways to balance the budget. He wasn't real comfortable with selling off a fixed asset to balance the budget anyway."

The deal was negotiated by the Archer administration, and Berg said Kilpatrick "reluctantly" agreed to it. "Now that the deal has fallen through, though, we're going to take another look at it,"

Berg said.

The result could have an effect on Plymouth Township officials, who had hoped to join with Northville Township to purchase at least a part of the land back from K/LB Funding. Supervisor Steve Mann said the developer appeared to be environmentally friendly, something important to township officials.

"Hopefully, whomever buys the property will feel just as strongly about the environment," Mann said. "We hope to meet with the Kilpatrick administration soon to talk to them about this."

Berg said the meeting should happen soon.

"I know they've called, and we've returned their call," Berg said. "We're going to try to get that set up."

PLYMOUTH PIPELINE

Anyone who has taken a photograph they think captures the "essence of Plymouth Township" can now submit it for use in next year's Plymouth Township calendar.

All entrants whose photos appear will receive credit in the calendar. To participate, submit a 4 x 6 glossy photograph, along with your name, address, telephone number and a brief description of the photo. Photographers should make sure photos aren't too dark, or that people's heads aren't cropped out. Township officials are reserving the right to crop photos.

Deadline for entry is Sept 2. Send photos to Calendar Photos, Supervisor's Office, Charter Township of Plymouth, 42350 Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth, MI 48170. For more information, call Ann DeGhetto, (734) 354-3203.

Pippin on stage

The combined theatre program of Canton and Salem High Schools will stage the musical comedy Pippin March 21-23 in the Gloria Logan Auditorium for the Performing Arts at Salem High School.

The curtain rises at 8 p.m. each night. Tickets are $7 for reserved seating and are available by calling the school at (734) 416-7723. Credit card orders are being accepted by phone through the Plymouth Community Arts Council, (734) 416-4ART.

The Park Players production of Pippin features a cast of 40 students in all grade levels from Canton and Salem High Schools under the direction of Salem drama teacher Geoffrey Kopp. Vocal director is Salem choir teacher Jennifer Neumann, and orchestra direction is by Canton orchestra teacher Catherine DePentu.

Costumes are designed by student Ryan Patrick Welsh, while the student team of Kim Black, Kristi Halewicz, Nicole Melhan and Jerry Reid did the choreography.

Theology on tap

An increasingly popular activity among adult Christians comes to the Box Bar four times this month.

Theology on Tap gives single and married adults an opportunity to meet and share faith and spiritual experiences in a relaxed, social setting. The program, sponsored by Canton's St. John Neumann Catholic Church, will take place at 7 p.m. each Tuesday evening from March 5 to 26.

"People can have a drink and engage in meaningful conversations about faith in a less formal and more comfortable atmosphere," said Tom West, coordinator of St. John Neumann's Youth and Young Adult groups. "We invite anyone who's interested to bring a friend with them."

Each week's discussions involve a theme. "Living Life Simply." Dozens of adults participated in this program involving another topic last fall. The Box Bar is located at 777 W. Ann Arbor Trail in downtown Plymouth.

Participants must be at least 18 years of age. For more information or to reserve a spot, call St. John Neumann at (734) 455-5910 or email West at tommyboy629@hotmail.com.

High tech takes 1 city right down the sewer

BY TEDD SCHNEIDER
STAFF WRITER
tschneider@oe.homecomm.net

A bigger, brighter Internet presence for their home town may be the one use residents notice on a regular basis. But it's far from the only municipal technology application literally hitting local streets this winter.

In Plymouth, for example, on-board computers allow salt truck drivers to regulate the flow and width of their discharge. The technology has helped the city cut costs and is beneficial for the environment, according to City Manager Paul Sincock.

Plymouth residents and businesses can also order "sewer cam." Municipal Services workers snake a mini camera down the storm drain looking for broken pipes and blockages. Customers get an instant color photo printout showing the situation.

"We can catch things before they become a critical problem," Sincock said.

The city picks up half the $180 cost and bills the user for the balance.

Farmington Hills and Livonia have gone from paper to paperless city council agendas and backup materials.

Plymouth residents and businesses can also order "sewer cam." Municipal Services workers snake a mini camera down the storm drain looking for broken pipes and blockages. Customers get an instant color photo printout showing the situation.

Farmington Hills made the switch two years ago, supplying notebook computers to council members, who download their weekly packet the Friday before a meeting.

"We used to have two people at the copy machine the entire day on Fridays," said Kathy Dornan, city clerk. "Now those employees can do other, more productive things."

While paper agendas and backup materials are still available on request, Dornan said the electronic agendas have made access more convenient for a greater number of people. The clerk's office routinely e-mails about 70 agendas each week to residents and others.

"Before, you sometimes had a petitioner or two, or someone else with an interest. But that was about it," Dornan said.

There's no fee to receive the agenda via e-mail or conventional mail.

In Livonia, council members have been receiving electronic packets for six months, said Dan Putman, the city's information systems manager.

Putman said it may take a while longer to assess the time or cost savings because the packets are typically far larger than those in Farmington Hills. A recent Livonia packet contained the equivalent of 1,100 printed pages, he said.

Of course in most local communities, the easiest way for residents to have a high-tech encounter is to run afoul of the law. Area police departments are early adapters when it comes to technology applications.

There's radar guns, in-car video cameras, Automated Fingerprint Identification Systems (AFIS), DNA evidence and, when you finally get your day in court, it could be in a video arraignment.

■ In Farmington, where the city's Web site is aimed at attracting new business as well as providing services for residents, you can take a video tour of downtown.

■ Those unlucky enough to be caught speeding in Redford Township can pay the fine online with a credit card through a link with the 17th District Court Web site. And if you're still angry about the way the township handles traffic enforcement, you can look up township board minutes going back to 1969 to see if anyone has voiced similar concerns.

Upgrades on the way

Nearly every municipal Web site offers e-mail to elected officials and department heads. Most have links to the local library and school districts. On the business side, several devote pages to current bidding opportunities and RFPs.

Even in communities just beginning to upgrade their initial sites, enhancing constituent services through interactivity is the top priority. "The eventual goal is for people not to have to call the city to get information," said Scott Veldhuis, Westland economic development director and staff administrator for the city's site.

"We need to add more information, make our site more user-friendly and more current."

Today, Westland residents can fill out about two dozen forms and permit applications, as well as view zoning maps. The city can also post emergency alerts in a prominent spot at the top of its home page.

Plymouth Township's Web site will be completely redone this month, said Supervisor Steve Mann. "We'll have an updated list of current events, assessing information, emergency notification for road repairs, a list-serve for e-mail and a limited amount of interactivity," Mann said.

In Redford Township, residents and businesses should be able to pay their water bills online by spring, said Betsy McRae, the deputy township clerk who administers the Web site. The project is being handled jointly by the township and a subcontractor, Officialpayments.com.

More interactivity

Canton Township and Livonia, which already offer a basic level of interactivity, are looking to expand their capabilities in the near future as well.

Canton Township's site is "continually evolving," said township Web designer Mari Ellis, one of a handful of full-time municipal employees across the Midwest whose sole responsibility is Web site administration. Ellis said the township was looking at on-line document submission, although there's no timetable for adding it to the site.

The most popular page on Canton's site is the property tax database, which allows users to look up the tax bills and payment records for any parcel in the township. "Real estate agents use it, people use it to see if their tax payments have been applied and, of course, people use it to compare their tax bill with their neighbor's," she said.

Canton is also one of a number of local communities that posts township job openings and applications online.

Livonia has been experimenting with streaming video. The site recently posted some of the shows from the city's cable TV channel, as well as Mayor Jack Kirksey's State of the City Address. Feedback was fairly limited, said Dan Putman, the city's information systems manager. "I think until more people have cable modems and DSL (high-speed Internet connections), you're not going to see a huge amount of interest in that kind of thing," Putman said.

But the idea of adding as much interactivity - in as many different formats - as possible is echoed in a report from Gartner Research, a Stamford, Conn. based research and consulting firm used by local and state governments throughout the U.S. The November 2000 report lists four phases of e-government.

The "Transaction" (third) phase allows users to conduct and complete entire tasks online, such as paying taxes or obtaining dog licenses.

The end goal, or "Transformation Phase," is to "redefine the delivery of government services" by providing a single point of contact for residents and businesses, according to the report. Eventually, that could mean a series of custom-tailored Web sites for individual users or even voting over the Internet.

Roadblocks in Michigan

There are major obstacles to even the third level of e-government, according to local Web site administrators. A bill in the state legislature would allow electronic signatures on legal documents, but it remains in committee.

In Michigan, the only legal signature is still the one that's handwritten on a printed piece of paper," said Tom Alexandris, Plymouth information systems manager.

Web site administrators with other municipal government experience in several communities said they still believe many residents will be reluctant to give out credit card information online or just change the way they've always interacted with their local government. A large number of residents still line up at the treasurer's window to pay property taxes in person, rather than trust the post office, they said.

Meanwhile, declining state shared revenues and other budget cuts could eventually stall municipal Web site development, some officials said, even though most southeastern Michigan communities spend comparatively little keeping their sites up and running.

Others disagreed, saying local government's presence on the Web had become too valuable to discard during an initial wave of belt-tightening.

"I'm not sure I would call it a frill," Westland's Veldhuis said. "You need to be able to make a long-term commitment to it though."

"We may not be able to do some of the larger projects over the next couple of years," said Livonia's Putman. "But I think there's a cost savings to look at when you begin offering things online as well."

Minimal costs

Livonia spent $8,000 to put up its site four years ago, using a start-up company that has since become a leader in the municipal Web site field, Putman said. The cost to maintain and administer it is small enough that it isn't broken out as a separate line item in his department budget, he added.

Redford paid less than $5,000 last April to put its site up through IBS Solutions, a Dearborn-based Web site developer. The township spends $400 monthly to maintain the site and pays $1,100 yearly in hosting fees.

The site is updated weekly and much of the information comes from other township employees, McRae said.

Most Web site administrators and elected officials said they now consider a municipal Web site a basic and necessary service, in the same category as public safety and trash collection.

Said Plymouth Township's Mann, "One of the goals I set out when I ran for supervisor was to make communication with constituents a top priority."

"The Web site is the best way I've seen to accomplish that."

Easter brunch

St. John's Golf & Conference Center will, for the first time, host an Easter brunch open to the public March 31.

The brunch menu will feature everything from traditional breakfast food to smoked seafood to entrees such as chef-carved New York strip loin, along with a dessert selection.

Children will be entertained by the Easter Bunny, and there will be big-band entertainment from noon to 3 p.m.

Brunch will be served from 11 a.m. - 3 p.m. Reservations are required and can be made by calling (734) 414-0600.

Skating lessons

The City of Plymouth is once again accepting registrations for its basic skills ice skating lessons. Classes start the week of March 25 and run seven weeks. Classes will be offered on Monday evenings, Thursday mornings and afternoons, and Saturday mornings. Each class runs 25 minutes with an additional 25 minutes of available practice time.

General registration will be held from 6:30-8 p.m. Thursday, March 21 at the Plymouth Cultural Center. The cost is $50 for non-residents, $30 for City of Plymouth residents. For more information, please call the City of Plymouth Recreation Office at (734) 455-6620.

Driver's education

Registration for the summer driver's education program takes place beginning at 8 a.m. Saturday, March 23, in the Canton High School Cafeteria. This will be the only registration day. If a student/parent cannot register on this date, someone else may register for that person.

Registration is scheduled for students who will be at least 14 years and 8 months old prior to the first day of class (a birth date before Nov. 15, 1987). Only these students will be eligible for this summer's driver education program. All of the pertinent information (registration times, session dates, attendance policy, etc.) is included on the registration form which must be completed and returned on Saturday, March 23.

Registration forms were distributed to students March 1. Additional registration forms can be picked up in either the Canton or Salem High School general offices or in Salem's Office 1000. This year there is a charge of $250 for this program, payable at registration. This includes a workbook.

CORNS & CALLUSES

Corns and calluses are accumulations of dead skin that grow to protect foot bones from excessive trauma. Friction can stimulate the skin to grow faster than the body can shed it. Callus forms over diffuse areas such as the ball of the foot or the heel. Corns develop over smaller precise locations such as on or between toes. Corns and calluses have no roots and they are not contagious. Elective toe surgery is a routine procedure, performed under local anesthesia that can correct a problem in one visit! It eliminates repetitive visits to the podiatrist!

Area libraries to host celebrity reader

Community Federal Credit Union has announced that it will co-sponsor radio celebrity Jackie Purtan, of Purtan's People on WOMC (104.3 FM), for a weekly story time at area libraries during National Reading Month in March.

Purtan will read stories for children, ages kindergarten - 2nd grade, each Tuesday afternoon in March, beginning at 5:30 p.m. at area libraries.

The first two will be local visits. Purtan will read March 5 at the Canton Library, 1200 S Canton Center, and March 12 at the Plymouth District Library, 223 S Main. Her last two appearances will be in Novi and Northville.

"We have maintained a strong commitment to education and literacy in the communities where our members live and work," credit union president Roger Ballard said. "We are proud to co-sponsor this event with WOMC to benefit children during National Reading Month."

With more than 34,000 members and total assets exceeding $254 million, Community Federal Credit Union is headquartered in Plymouth. Its membership is open to anyone who lives or works in the communities of Plymouth, Canton, Northville and Novi, and in Otsego and Montmorency counties.

■ -Since this diary is to be about my use of technology, I decide it would be best to take my notes using that technology. But, later on the plane, disaster strikes. This is the reality of my technological world.

■ I was talking with a seatmate across the aisle of the plane. I forgot I had my PDA in my lap and at one point it slipped off and fell to the floor. When I opened it later upon our arrival at the Philadelphia airport, the screen was flashing the PalmPilot logo. Later at the car rental place, when asked for my reservation code, I went for the PDA but was unable to retrieve any information.

■ As I went to bed, I tried to get the PDA working again. Finally, I dumped any hopes of recovering the data. Fortunately, I had backed up the PDA on my laptop a day earlier. Eventually, I was able to restore the data.

■ Sometimes, I spend more time making these technological devices work, then having them work for me.

Day two - Friday, Feb. 22 - Success

■ After the frustration last night with the PDA, I was pleasantly surprised by the ease with which the data from my laptop was restored to the PDA. It helped set a good attitude for the day. I sent off an e-mail to confirm our housing for Saturday night in Delaware about 7:45 a.m.

■ Arrived on campus at Philadelphia Biblical University (PBU), set up my display, greeted a few people and headed to a 9 a.m. class to give a short PowerPoint presentation to a class on managing the non-profit company.

■ After awhile, I decided to head outside where the weather was more like spring than February should have been. I saw a picture and out came my digital camera. A few minutes later, my cell phone vibrated on the belt. It was a call about an RAM chip I returned to my computer company for replacement. This started a series of calls until the problem was solved later in the day.

■ After lunch, I dropped in on a staff office to talk about a possible trip together to visit Chinese churches in Russia from Siberia to the Far East. While there, another discussion leads to a question about a Chinese seminary in New Jersey. This time, using his desktop computer we found all the information I was looking for on the Internet.

■ The Alumni office of PBU wanted a printed map of directions to our house for a Michigan chapter meeting in April. Out came the portable printer and laptop.

■ At dinner, the discussion of our tour last May came up. We talked about a side trip we took to Italy and Switzerland. They were interested in seeing pictures of the Italian Alps, the Dolomites. So out with a digital data projector, hooked up to my laptop computer and we had an evening looking at huge images of snow-covered peaks projected on a large white wall.

Day three - Saturday, Feb. 23 - Fear of breakdown, Part II

■ I needed some time to polish my PowerPoint presentation for the messages I would be giving at church on Sunday morning. Before breakfast, I opened my laptop only to find it was locked up and nothing was working. I was beginning to think that keeping the technological diary was a jinx to my effective use of the tools.

Finally, after breakfast, I tried it again. I even prayed over the machine (not to the machine - that would be idolatry!) IT WORKED! There are many times in my years of working with media and technology, that I'm convinced these things are made to test the spirit. This was one of those times.

■ At lunch we met some friends and wanted a group picture. The digital camera handed to the waitress, allowed me to see if we had a good one or not. I could easily download the image to my laptop, attach it to an e-mail and send a copy to our friends.

■ After a beautifully served dinner of lamb chops and trimmings, I kept checking the email for our housing arrangements. No response. I began calling friends nearby, checking with my travel club and finally decided to make a motel reservation for the night. Cell phone and laptop with MS Streets and trips were all part of locating a motel near the church for our speaking engagement on Sunday morning.

■ In our room, I set up my portable printer and laptop. Final details were worked out on the PowerPoint program. To cover a possible repeat of the earlier lockup, I burned a CD back up of the program and a thumbnail print out of all the slides, so as not to be left without "Plan B" should the technology fail tomorrow morning.

Day four - Sunday, Feb. 24 - Everything worked

■ The Red River Valley tune woke us up for the deluxe continental breakfast offered at the motel. It was then on to the church to set up for the messages. I took a picture of the church with my digital camera on the way into the parking lot. That was later resized on my laptop, PaintShop Pro software and inserted into the PowerPoint presentation.

■ The first presentation was at 8:30 a.m. Digital projector, laptop and PowerPoint all worked well. I realized that there were too many slides, so between services, I altered the presentation somewhat and turned off a bunch of slides.

New wheels

Seniors ride: Plymouth and Plymouth Township jointly purchased a new van to transport seniors to doctor appointments, shopping trips and senior activities. The $58,000 vehicle replaces a van that was purchased 10 years ago. The two municipalities have teamed with the Plymouth Community United Way to pay for senior transportation costs.

Herriman said the Plymouth Corps' expansion into Belleville Van Buren Township and Sumpter Township has taken a toll on the $848,000 annual budget. But, he's confident the Salvation Army's Southfield headquarters will give Plymouth the $40,000 collected in the Belleville area's mail campaign to offset costs.

"We have also asked the (Plymouth Community) United Way for a one-time infusion of $20,000 and a $10,000 increase in our annual allocation," said Herriman. The United Way currently gives the local Salvation Army $46,000 annually, according to Herriman.

"(The $60,000) would take care of 50 percent of the shortfall, and the other half would be feasible for us to do by cutting back on such things as overtime, property maintenance and vehicle operating costs," added Herriman.

"The Plymouth Corps has cut operating expenses without adversely impacting services. Cutting programs and services will be considered if we don't fix the problem, but it will be a last resort."

The Plymouth Corps has also held off on hiring replacements for a community center director and a business manager to save on salaries.

Steve Walters, former Plymouth city manager who is currently Belleville city manager and a member of the Plymouth group's finance committee, said there's enough fund balance to absorb much of the shortfall.

"But that doesn't solve the problem, and you certainly can't do it again," he said. "The problem of operating expenditures higher than revenues would still exist."

Hull, as well as the finance committee, believes this is a one-time problem.

"This is one of the most financially stable corps that I've worked with," said Hull. "We'll work through this."

Groth is correct in her belief that the bill's enactment, coupled with the federal financing, would mandate the selection of a single voting system for use throughout the state. I believe Ms. Groth is correct."

Stewart, who voted in favor of the bill when first introduced in the House, said he will vote "no" when the changes in the Senate version come back.

"When the bill comes back to the House, if it goes against Plymouth Township, I will vote 'no,'" Stewart said.

"It was originally represented to me that the bill did not specify a particular machine, but a level of efficiency," he added. "It was my belief the bill would require communities to have a state-of-the-art machine that is efficient and reliable. I don't want to over-react to the Florida voting problems. Plus, I don't like the idea of surrendering all the control to the secretary of state."

Stewart confirmed reports out of Lansing, including from Chris Thomas, director of elections, who told him the Opti-Scan machine is the one being considered.

"Big Brother should not be mandating voting machines," said Stewart.

MUSCLE ACHES
 Critics of American life describe us as a sedentary society. When treating people with muscle aches, doctors see the other side of Americans: their compulsion to stay young and fit. Physicians must deal with the results of too much physical activity done too fast and compressed into too few days.

The marketplace is eager to provide you with an answer to your muscle aching. At your disposal are an endless number of salves, sprays, braces and supports, concoctions to drink or pills to swallow that are guaranteed to relieve your aching muscles.

Doctors offer you heat and massage and advise rest because the other remedies lack proof. No logically developed study has shown that anything that you can buy in the marketplace does any better than heat, massage and rest. Nor is there any reason to believe that any other treatment could work.

Aching muscles come from strain. At the basic level, that injury translates into depletion of cell mitochondrial enzymes or disruption of actin and myosin filaments. No rubs can reach or repair these building blocks of muscle. No loading of carbohydrates or protein will allow repair any faster than what the body's own natural rate permits.

Heat and massage help because they bring in an additional blood supply. Muscle rest is important because that allows the body to divert energy to the work repair.

The American problem, as doctors see it, is our fascination with speed. We want a fast fix when the body calls for a slow return.

FOCUS ON WINE

RAY & ELEANOR HEALD

What's in a wine name?

In attempting to discover some new wines from Italy, you may have learned that they're not familiar names

You fondle a bottle in a wine shop and muse, "should I or 'shouldn't I' take a chance?"

Dilemma solved Look on the back label for the name Marc de Grazia Selections If you find it then consider, do you like wines of elegance rather than clout? If you answer "elegance," buy the wine

In 1980, the now 49-year-old, American-born Marco di Grazia, had earned a bachelor's degree in the classics, from the University of California Berkeley and returned to his home in Florence, Italy His university years in the U.S. taught him that in the late 1970s, there were very few good Italian wines available in the states

He recalled fondly that he made his first wine when he was 16 years old There was only one career course He began to work with, at that time relatively unknown, small wine estates in the Piedmont and Tuscany and to sell the wines in both Europe and the U.S.

At the same time, di Grazia picked the brains of top Burgundy winemakers to learn more about making flavorful wines with finesse and elegance He shared what he learned with the producers with whom he worked

At first, di Grazia did not meet with a lot of success He hung in there In 1989 wine critics heralded the release of the 1985 Barolos from the Piedmont About the same time, fine Italian cuisine began to be recognized globally Americans began their love affair with pasta and other Italian dishes Top Italian restaurants clamored for elegant wines to match menu selections It came together for di Grazia and it has only accelerated

Marco di Grazia conducted a world tour with many of his producers recently One stop was the Kingsley Hotel in Bloomfield Hills where we were able to taste Marc di Grazia Selections All wines are available and our top recommendations can be found in the Wine Picks box If the wine shop you frequent does not have them, ask a salesperson to order them for you from the distributor Elite Brands

Italy's Piedmont

This region is renowned for its robust and complex red wines Listed in order of increasing body and richness, they include gattinara, barbaresco and barolo, made from the nebbiolo grape

Barbera, particularly that grown near the city of Alba is a fun, all-purpose wine, meant to be enjoyed young Its slight tang is particularly intriguing

Although the most recent Piedmont releases of Elio Altare wines will not be available until later this year, they are worthy of notice Altare, the first Barolo producer to work with Marco di Grazia, recently won an out-of-court settlement, rumored at $500,000, in his suit against a cork producer he charged with running his prized wines with poor quality corks

Please see FOCUS, B3

Wine Picks

From Marc di Grazia Selection Italian wines, we highly recommend

Barbera d'Alba: 1998 Cavallotto Bricco Boschis Cuculo $18 and 1998 Paulo Scavino Carati $37 (bigger and more intense)

Barbaresco: 1998 Moccagatta Bric Balin $62

Barolo: 1997 Cavallotto Bricco Boschis $44

Chianti Classico: 1999 Le Cinciole $18 and 1998 Il Palazzino Grosso Sanese $36 (big and powerful, yet finishing with finesse).

Carmignano: 1998 Ambra "Riserva le Vigne Alte" $30

Vino Nobile de Montepulciano: 1998 Der $22 and 1998 Della Seta $20

Brunello di Montepulciano: 1996 Pertimali $53

Super Tuscan: 1999 Ciacci Piccolomini Ateo $31

100 percent sangiovese: 1998 San Guisto Percarlo $50 is a gutsy mouthful

An Italian Kitchen

To Giuseppe and Nora with love

Comfort food: Michael Gentile (left) and Giovanni mix up a bowl of "Pasta al Vento," slightly sweet pasta pasties that make for a quick breakfast or snack.

BY RENÉE SKOGLUND
rskoglund@oe.homecomm.net

If ingredients were words, they would spell "amore" for the Gentile family of Livonia Walk into the Gentiles' bright, sunny kitchen and you feel love bubbling from a pot of Ovo Rutto L'Agua, Italian for "egg soup," or emanating from a pan of Scacciatata, a Sicilian stuffed bread, baking in the oven

While love of good food started with Giuseppe and Nora Piruzza, Francesca Gentile's parents, who immigrated to Canada from Sicily decades ago, it continues through Francesca's two sons, Giovanni, 29, and Michael, 27

"I cook because I have to, but they do it because they love it, my husband, Fabio, and the boys," says Francesca

Last year, Giovanni and Michael decided to create a cookbook of their grandmother's recipes They remembered the summers of their childhood spent with their grandparents in the old Italian neighborhood off Erie Street in Windsor, where their grandparents still live They recalled the delicious soups, stews and sauces their grandmother made from the vegetables Giuseppe brought in from his garden

They wanted to transform her "pinches" and "palmfuls" into recipes that would become a family legacy And they wanted an excuse to spend more time with their aging grandparents

Soon they were spending every Saturday morning in Windsor

"We'd start at 9 a.m. with the prepping and be ready for lunch We brought a camera and someone would describe what my grandma was doing I even wore a chef's jacket She'd show me what to do and I'd do the presentation," says Giovanni

The result was ricetta della casa d'amore, the recipes and traditions of giuseppe & nora piruzza It is a delightfully written and colorful cookbook, full of family pictures and anecdotes, Giuseppe's tips on gardening and wine-making, and, of course, lots of Nora's beloved recipes

Pasta competitions

While this reporter enjoys a glass of wine at the Gentiles' kitchen table, Giovanni adds vegetables to the Ovo Rutto L'Agua simmering on the stove, and Michael pats out the dough for his Scacciatata Both recipes are surprisingly simple, and the aromas are wonderful

"Whatever we have in the fridge we invite into the pan," says Francesca from the sideline

Nora Piruzza's recipes are simply 'delizioso'

Love on the stove top: A pot of Ovo Rutto L'Agua simmers away as Giovanni sautés a pan of pasta pasties. Drop an egg into the soup and you have a complete meal.

PASTA AL VENTO (QUICK PASTA PATTIES)

- 1/2 pound vermicelli
- 1 1/2 tablespoons salt
- 4 tablespoons oil
- 2 eggs
- 1 pound Ricotta cheese
- 3-4 tablespoons sugar

In a medium-sized pot bring 3-4 cups of water to a boil Break vermicelli in half and add to boiling water with 1 tablespoon oil and 1 1/2 tablespoons salt Cook until tender. In a separate bowl, beat 2 eggs for one minute Drain pasta and add to the eggs Next, add ricotta and sugar, making sure all ingredients are thoroughly mixed. Adjust seasoning to taste. Mixture should be slightly sweet. Shape the mixture into 3-inch round patties

Heat 2-3 tablespoons oil in a medium-sized pan Fry patties on both sides until golden brown. Recipe yields approximately 32 patties

Michael layers half the Scacciatata with sliced potatoes, onion, black olives and Italian sausage then folds over the dough and crimps it shut. There are two things, that make the dough perfect: Warm hands and cake yeast.

"If you don't have warm hands, run them under warm water before kneading your dough," he says. As for the yeast: "My grandmother uses the cake. Those recipes come out a lot airier, and they don't have that yeasty flavor."

Giovanni cracks an egg into the soup, then ladles some into a bowl when the yolk is still a bit soft. It's delicious, redolent with vegetables and made hardy by the egg. In other words, it's a perfect meal.

"This is something you can leave on the stove. If people come in and want an egg, you can just bring the soup back up to a boil and drop in the egg," he says.

The Gentile brothers love to show off their culinary skills. Michael, a professional soccer player for the Minnesota Thunder, especially enjoys cooking for company.

"I love the joy of creating and replicating recipes. I enjoy watching people eating them and realizing how good I am," he says with a touch of bravado.

It's tradition in the Gentile family to hold cooking competitions on Sundays to determine who makes the best pasta, lasagna, pizza or whatever dish is chosen for that day. Giovanni won the recent pasta contest.

"Michael and my dad tied," he says. "But there was a little controversy. There was a later category, pasta utilization, how well you use the pasta. I made bowls out of the pasta. Michael was mad because I had won the pizza competition the month before."

Michael laughs. His time will come. It's all a matter of being together as a family. Giovanni, a part-time musician with his own band, said the family is so "tight," that, for him, there would be no choice between attending a rock concert or a family cooking contest - "I'd do the contest."

Fresh, fresh, fresh

Giuseppe Piruzza, the son of a farmer, was forced to take a job in the auto industry to support his family after he immigrated to Canada. However, his heart was in the soil, and soon the bounty from his small backyard garden became legendary. Nora's canned tomatoes tasted of sunshine, even in the winter.

Like their grandparents, the Gentile brothers, both of whom have worked in restaurants, use only the freshest of ingredients. The tomatoes and even the olives they use are home-canned. They also make their own lemon ice - a delightfully tart palate cleanser - with fresh lemon juice, sugar and lemon rind.

Another food Giovanni and Michael like to serve in between courses is chilled fennel, which they slice and dress with olive oil, vinegar, salt and pepper. It has a natural peppery taste calmed down by the olive oil. I've never tasted fennel before, but I'm a convert.

Surprisingly, Giovanni and Michael are less fussy when it comes to olive oil. Ordinary or virgin olive oil is fine for sautéing, they say. However, their father is more particular.

"My husband uses the extra virgin exclusively," says Francesca. "In Sicily, we made our own. My grandfather had his own presses."

Giovanni and Michael gave their grandparents the cookbook this past Christmas.

"She just cried," says Francesca about her mother's reaction. "Everyday they just rave about it. My dad has home care, and everybody that comes over, he brings out that book."

Giovanni and Michael have put together enough cookbooks for family members. It's been an expensive project, and they're looking for a publisher. But for now, they're pleased they have preserved Giuseppe's and Nora Piruzza's legacy for generations to come.

As they say in the Piruzza and Gentile households, "Buon appetito!"

Cookbook offers comfort food, Sicilian style

SCACCIATA (SICILIAN STUFFED BREAD)

- 3 cups flour sifted
- Pinch of salt
- 3/4 oz cake yeast
- 1 cup warm water
- 1/2 egg beaten
- 1/8 cup vegetable oil (may use olive oil)
- 1 large potato peeled and sliced
- 1 large onion peeled and sliced
- 1/2 cup black olives halved (optional)
- 1/2 cup uncooked Italian sausage (optional)
- Grated Romano cheese
- Salt and pepper
- Vegetable oil (may use olive oil)

Mix yeast until dissolved into 1/2 cup warm water, and then add salt. Sift flour into a large bowl. Make well in center of flour and add oil and egg. Beat egg and oil with fork within the well until combined. Add yeast mixture. Combine ingredients using a fork, then slowly incorporate the flour by using circular motions with the fork, moving outward until dough begins to form. Add 1/4 to 1/2 cup warm water to incorporate the rest of the flour. Place dough on lightly floured board and knead about 4-5 minutes. Cover and let rest about 10 minutes.

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Knead dough a second time, 3-4 minutes, and let rise again for about 10 minutes. Stretch dough to desired width, let sit and stretch again (approximately 14 x 14 inches). Drizzle oil over half the dough and add the Italian sausage (removed from casing and chopped). Cover half the dough with potatoes, leaving about 1/4 inch at the edges. Sprinkle with salt. Add the olives, then the onions and again sprinkle with salt, pepper and Romano cheese. Drizzle with oil. Fold over the other half of dough and crimp edges together, leaving corners open. Flatten with hands and reseat. Drizzle top with oil and sprinkle with salt and Romano cheese.

Bake 20-25 minutes and enjoy. Recipe can be divided into two small dough balls. Recipe compliments of Nora Piruzza.

OVO RUTTO L'AGUA (EGG SOUP)

- 4 1/2 cups chicken stock
- 2 cloves garlic sliced fine
- 1/2 cup Italian flat parsley
- 1 medium sized onion chopped
- 1/3 cup fresh jarred tomatoes chopped
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 4 medium potatoes peeled and diced
- Eggs as many as desired
- Salt to taste

In a large pot bring 4 1/2 cups of chicken stock to a boil. Reduce heat to medium-low and continue to simmer.

In a separate pot, heat olive oil 2-3 minutes. Sauté garlic, parsley and onion on medium heat 5-6 minutes or until onions begin to caramelize. Add the tomatoes and continue to sauté another 5 minutes. Add the chicken broth and bring to a boil. Add the diced potatoes. Cook an additional 8-10 minutes.

The delectable soup is now ready for the main ingredient, eggs! Crack eggs directly into the soup (as many as desired) and cook them approximately 5-6 minutes (cook longer for a more hard-boiled egg). Serve at once with some fresh Italian or French bread. Buon Appetito! Serves 4.

(Use 1 medium potato per person. Use 1 cup chicken stock per person plus 1/2-1 cup extra as stock will reduce slightly when cooking.)

Recipe compliments of Nora Piruzza.

Bring light to gray days with an indoor picnic

BY RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON
SPECIAL WRITER

No invitations needed – just call up some friends who are struggling with the gray days of mid-winter.

An impromptu 'do' is just the thing to transform those gray days into a night of great food and fun.

It is the perfect time to try some new recipes or concentrate on presentation. Pull out some interesting and unusual serving pieces. Use baskets, tins, Auntie Violet's china and platters, or choose an ethnic theme. Why not get really crazy and host an indoor picnic? It can be fanciful, luxurious or simple.

My indoor picnic would be done in an Asian motif – clay teapots for all invited guests, interesting chopsticks laying in waiting on some crafted chopstick rests, porcelain rice bowls, and my dining room table covered in Chinese red paper with bamboo mats. Stacked Marinated Grilled Quail, a little plum wine, and a dramatic centerpiece tower of other Asian goodies – I feel better already!

Here are some ideas

DELI TOWERS

Create unusual centerpieces that are actually your whole meal. Begin with a round or oval platter and cover it with assorted colored kale or mixed greens. Place large scoops of chicken (or turkey) salad, ham salad, and shrimp salad, separating the different salads with leaves of your chosen greenery.

Top that layer with sliced meats (rare roast beef, pastrami, ham, corned beef, and/or turkey, again separating with greens). Top that layer with spears of pickle (half-sours and dills), carrot sticks, celery sticks and slices of crispy pucca-ma – use pickled veggies if desired. Don't forget an assortment of olives. Continue building your tower as high as you choose adding deli favorites. Top with some decorative curly green onion flowers (check out any garnishing book) to look like a bouquet.

SOUTH OF THE BORDER TOWERS

Use the same concept with Mexican favorites – scoops of bean dip (or refried beans), guacamole, salsa, chive and jalapeno flavored sour cream, homemade or prepared tamales, corn chips and taco-flavored rice.

ASIAN TEMPLES

You're getting the idea – use your favorite Asian goodies to create towers – be area specific or go Pacific Rim. Try Vietnamese rice paper rolls, egg rolls, fried or steamed wontons, a dim sum assortment, variety of fried rice, mini egg foo young patties, Yakatori skewered meats, etc.

If you're not a pork lover use any meat you are fond of, chicken or swordfish are also fabulous – adjust cooking time accordingly. Serve with some simple steamy white rice and a side of soy sauce.

MARINATED GRILLED QUAIL

You need only 10 minutes of cooking time for these mini birds. Remove quail from package (defrost if necessary). Once thawed, cut quail in half with kitchen shears, rinse and pat dry. Place quail in a non-reactive container and pour Ponzu sauce (found at many Asian Markets or at Merchant Fine Wine in Dearborn) or citrus infused light soy sauce (add some citrus zest to your favorite soy) and grate some fresh peeled ginger root (I use about a 3 inch piece for 12 quail) and a splash of rice wine (optional).

Cover the container with plastic wrap and let marinate for one half hour at room temperature, place in refrigerator for at least 4 hours.

Grill over a prepared grill (sprayed with Pam) on medium high heat for about 5 or 6 minutes on each side (or longer if you want them more well done).

Serve with a side of homemade or prepared wontons and some steamed Edamame (soy beans).

Quail can be found at Capital poultry in Detroit at the Eastern Market (1466 Fisher Freeway) – call to make sure they have them in stock before heading down there – (313) 567 8200

ASIAN MARINATED PORK TENDERLOIN WITH RED ONIONS AND FRESH PINEAPPLE

- Yield 4 servings
- 1 1/2 pounds pork tenderloin cut into 16 equal pieces that are well trimmed
  - 1 red onion cut into 16 equal pieces
  - 16 pieces of fresh (not overly ripe) pineapple, trimmed
  - 8 (8-inch) bamboo skewers soaked in water for 30 minutes or overnight
  - 1/3 cup light olive oil
  - 1/4 cup dry red table wine
  - 3 tablespoons rice wine vinegar

3 tablespoons Thick and Sweet Soy Sauce (House of Tsang – if you can't find it use regular soy sauce, add molasses, bit of citrus zest and sugar to sweeten and thicken)

- 2 tablespoons garlic, peeled and minced
- 2 tablespoons fresh ginger root peeled and minced
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

Thread two pieces of pork, two pieces of onion, and two pieces of pineapple alternately on each bamboo skewer. Arrange kebabs in a low baking dish.

In a bowl, whisk together all remaining ingredients, and pour marinate over the kabobs. Let marinate, covered with plastic wrap for 4 hours in the refrigerator.

Remove the kebabs from the marinade. Strain the marinade through a fine sieve, and place liquid into small saucepan. Place the kebabs on a prepared grill or grill pan – set at medium high heat, while cooking, heat the marinade to boiling and brush over the kebabs as they are cooking (approximately 12 minutes or until pork is totally cooked through). Serve with cooked steamy white or sticky rice.

Invite friends over for a hearty lentil stew

AP – Food with honest flavor that's robust enough to thaw winter's chill, but still simple and not totalling up a huge fat count. Take another look at some old favorites, and those desirable characteristics can emerge.

Lentil stew with ham and greens is an example, in a version that has just over 8 grams of fat per serving, and can be cooked in one pot in less than 1 hour.

The recipe is among several in Cooking Light magazine's January-February issue, in a feature offering "sustenance for the season." All these dishes require, Ken Haedrich writes, are "good ingredients, a sharp knife, a solid pan." Oh, and, if you're lucky, he adds, "the company of family and good friends."

LENTIL STEW WITH HAM AND GREENS

- 1 1/2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 3 garlic cloves minced
- 5 cups fat free less sodium chicken broth
- 1 cup dried lentils
- 1/2 cup chopped carrot
- 2 bay leaves

- 3 cups chopped Swiss chard, collard greens or spinach
- 1 1/2 cups chopped baking potato
- 1 cup chopped smoked ham
- 14 1/2 ounce can diced tomatoes drained
- 1 teaspoon dried basil
- 1/2 teaspoon dried thyme
- 1/2 teaspoon black pepper
- 3 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley

Heat oil in a Dutch oven over medium high heat. Add onion and garlic, saute 5 minutes. Add broth, lentils, carrot and bay leaves, bring to a boil.

Partially cover, reduce heat, and simmer 20 minutes. Add Swiss chard, potato and ham, bring to a boil. Reduce heat, simmer 15 minutes or until potato is tender. Stir in tomatoes, basil, thyme and pepper, simmer 10 minutes. Discard bay leaves. Sprinkle with parsley.

Makes 5 servings (serving size about 1 1/2 cups)

Italy's Tuscany region

Sangiovese grapes find multiple expressions from Chianti Classico, Tuscany's most famous red wine. And in the region, sangiovese artistry extends to Brunello di Montalcino, VINO Nobile di Montepulciano and Carmignano.

Super Tuscans often carry a fantasy name and are blended with French varieties such as cabernet sauvignon. Wines called Rosso di Montalcino or Rosso di Montepulciano are made from young vines. They are fresh, lighter in style and very drinkable. To get a handle on the "rosso" style, try 2000 Dei Rosso di Montepulciano $12.

DIVERSIONS

Get close for impact in portraits

Want a way to add a lot of impact to your "people" pictures? It's easy to do and will get your photographs rave reviews from friends and family

Just move in close and simplify Too often, people pictures contain too much background, a distracting background, and the results become just snapshots

In short, you're just not close enough But by moving in close, often real close, you can produce attention-grabbing shots

The best way to do this is by using a telephoto lens Any lens between 85mm and 200mm will work just fine

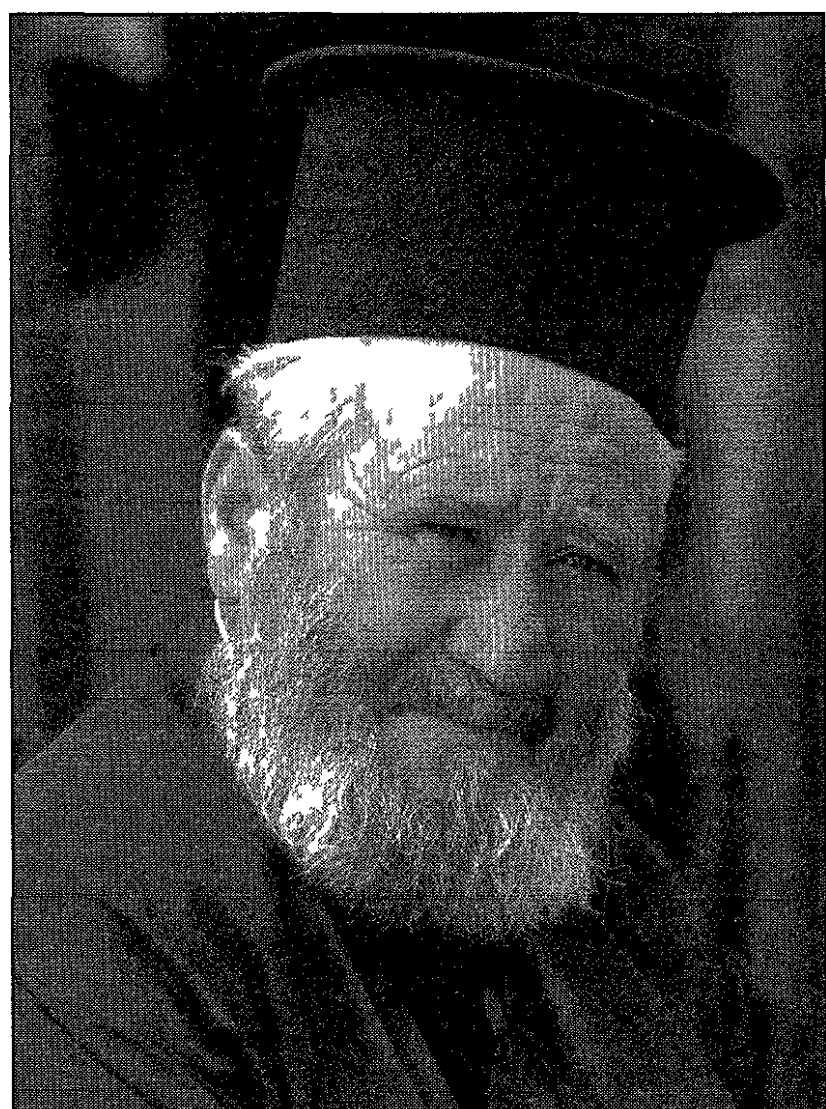

Not only will you fill the frame with a telephoto lens, but telephotos naturally reduce depth-of-field so that backgrounds will most likely result in a pleasing blur

A zoom point and shoot camera will work, too Just be sure to use the full zoom mode

Don't attempt close portraits with a normal or wide angle lens You'll have to get uncomfortably close to your subject and, because of the lens' short focal length, you'll get unflattering distortion in the resulting shots

Wandering through Lathisi, Greece, I chanced upon a Greek Orthodox priest very willing to have his portrait taken

A 135mm lens enabled me to "move in close" and yet keep a comfortable working distance A large aperture effectively blurred the background and careful focusing assured a razor-sharp negative I've always been pleased with this portrait

Close call: Moving in close with a telephoto lens rewarded Monte Nagler with an impact-filled photo of this Greek priest The tight shot shows the wisdom of this man of the cloth

Similar photos can be made of anybody A tight candid shot of a child will capture that fleeting, spontaneous expression

Or an up close photo of a senior citizen will show character and wisdom not attainable if you're too far back with the camera Just remember to move in

Money Machine offers new way to give

The innovative, patent pending Money Machine cash dispenser from Michigan based Unique Novelties offers a new and novel way to give and receive money for graduations and other occasions. The Money Machine is a specially designed, slotted box perfect for inserting and dispensing any amount or combination of currency, coupons and gift certificates, linked together end to end using 3M's Scotch Brand Removable Tape, included with each purchase. More than 5.2 million people will graduate from some form of learning institution between mid-April and mid-June, according to research by Hallmark.

The Class of 2002 will receive 67 million graduation cards, with the typical high school and college graduate receiving between 75 and 17 cards, most with a monetary gift. Until now, the only way to give money has been to place it in an envelope, card or traditional money holder. The Money Machine stands as a clever alternative. The Money Machine is available at Thrifty Florist, select Hallmark stores and better stationery stores and retailers for $4.95. Money-saving three-packs priced at $9.95, which include three Money Machines and three rolls of the tape, are available for purchase on the Web at <http://www.themoneymachine.biz> or by calling toll-free (800) 894-0384. The Money Machine is as much fun to give as it is to receive. "Pull the tab and watch the fun begin," said Dale Wells, Money Machine inventor. "Just watch the recipient's eyes light up when you hand them a Money Machine and they proceed to pull out bill after bill!" The Money Machine comes unassembled. Simply fold the box together at the top and bottom. Then tape the money together, end-to-end. Roll the bills up loosely and place them in the box. Tape the pull tab to the first bill and thread it through the slot on the top. A successful real estate developer by trade, Wells formed Unique Novelties to satisfy the kid in him and help market his Money Machine. "Ten years ago or so when gift bags were introduced as an alternative to gift wrap, who would have thought they would become so widely used and accepted?" he said. "The Money Machine is no different. My goal is to make the Money Machine the standard for giving money for all occasions!"

TRAVEL

You can be whatever you want in Venice, except boring

BY LANA MINI
LMINI@OE.HOMECOMM.NET

The bombardments of corporate-sponsored everything, trite advertising jungles and mainstream America, deadens my senses, but they're re-born whenever I visit Venice, California.

There's a vibe in Venice Beach unlike any other city I've visited throughout the world. I feel alive, and at home, when I walk the interesting streets there.

Venice, of course is on the border of trendy Santa Monica just outside LA. It's funky, racially and culturally diverse, brimming with creativity and not for the pristine. The people who live here are affluent movie-makers and business owners, successful musicians, rich dot-commers and artists. They blend house-by-house with party store clerks, immigrant landscape workers, actor-wannabes, struggling musicians and surfers, aspiring artists and fashion designers, welfare recipients, college students and drug dealers.

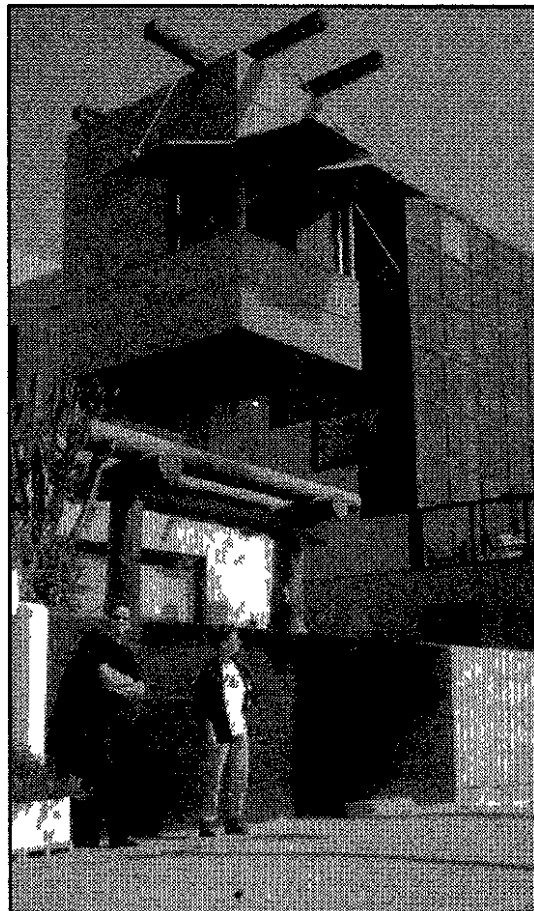

There are gritty and upscale elements of this tiny city — population less than 35,000. It's a city without pretense, where business-casual khaki Dockers, blue shirts and sensible shoes are refreshingly absent. Residents here opt for creativity. Casual doesn't mean without a tie, it means without pants. Shorts or jogging suits are considered true casual clothes. Here you can walk down the street any afternoon wearing a designer business suit, a tutu, wet suit, hot pants, evening dress or a sequined bathing suit.

Here congruity isn't cool.

Either creative people come to Venice or Venice breeds creativity — perhaps both. Actor/director John Cusack has an apartment and business studio in a pink stucco building at Sixth and Rose Avenue. Nearby, Dennis Hopper lives in an unassuming gray house in an area known for gang activity. Matt Groening of The Simpsons resides on the upscale Venice Canals. Oliver Stone lives in a modest house. No home in Venice is very big. Singer/songwriter/DJ/human rights activist Perry Farrell, frontman of Jane's Addiction, built an interestingly small, blue house in a quieter area of the city.

Great atmosphere

It's not cheap to own property in Venice. A 1,000-square foot home averages $350,000 with a backyard not even half the size. Those who can't afford to own will rent small apartments or flats. People come here and stay for the atmosphere and perfect weather. The beach is always just minutes away. LA's museums are just a 40 minute drive, and downtown Santa Monica is a mere 10-15 minutes from any point in the city — depending of course, on the time of

Anything but bland: The small red structure separated from the rest of this home, located on the beach of Venice, makes for a great artists' studio and is an example of the interesting ideas that seem to burst out of this city.

day. Venice's main roads like Lincoln Avenue are horrible at rush hour, but not nearly as bad as LA freeways. Despite the traffic, and high costs of homes, I'm allured by Venice's freeing vibe.

Where else can you find fire jugglers on the beach, Spanish guitar players, painters, psychics and belly dancers? The city's wonderful unofficial mascot is Harry Perry who dresses in all white Eastern-style clothing, tucks his dreadlocks under a turban, travels on in-line skates and simultaneously serenades visitors as he plays an electric guitar.

Where else can you find a street artist whose tool is the sun? He burns images with its rays on small pieces of wood.

Another artist creates new work out of sand on the beach each morning.

Plus, there's probably no other city bold enough to commission a huge outdoor mural of rocker Jim Morrison.

Everything is different

In front of the multi-million dollar Venice homes are interesting landscapes that replace boring grass lawns that require too much watering and upkeep. In the alleys of these posh homes is the sadder side of the city. The homeless. There's a high homeless population in Santa Monica and Venice and many organizations here try to help. The soup kitchens, nestled right in the affluent community, are always packed. Actor Martin Sheen often volunteers at the kitchen on Rose Avenue.

What's amazing about Venice is the dynamic between the rich and poor. When a homeless person makes a home on the side of an expensive house, the police aren't usually called. The homeowner is more likely to use tolerance and understanding than the numbers 9-1-1 on a telephone to deal with a vagrant. Sometimes a blanket or pillow is given. This city has a communal feeling.

Still Venice isn't innocent.

There's gang violence, drugs and prostitution. Crime on the beach at dusk still occurs. Just weeks ago a teenager was shot near Cusack's office. The crime rate varies from one street to the next. Just be cautious like in any city.

In the evenings, most people head indoors for fun restaurants like 5 Dudley which is popular among thirtysomethings. Or locals and tourists visit one of the many corner authentic Mexican restaurants or the laid-back Fire House grill. Or they drive up Santa Monica Blvd for the safe Santa Monica Promenade where tourists can walk outside late at night. It's crowded with fashionable restaurants, lounges, coffeehouses and shops. For more wilder nights, the club atmosphere of legendary Sunset Avenue is, of course, just a short drive away.

Venice doesn't lie. It has its good and ugly side. It's rich side and poor side.

In the daytime, it's a walking community where every house is just minutes from the ocean and trendy boutiques. It's friendly. My friends who live there say Venice is a place for people who want to check-out of mainstream America.

It's a city where nothing is average or drab. Homes are painted pastel colors. Working out is preferred over watching television. Boutiques are wild. Clothing is either super casual or sophisticated with little styles in-between. Pretension and closed-minds aren't welcome, but new ideas are embraced. There's passion for the ocean. Passion for the community, for unique homes, for quality healthy cuisine, good health, art, music, book, movies, conversation, dance and liberalism. There's a burning passion for self-exploration.

You can be whatever you want in Venice. Just don't be a bore.

If you're going to Southern California

Where to stay: Venice Beach Hostel close to the beach at 1515 Pacific Avenue. Private rooms $45 shared rooms $10. call (310) 452-3052. For those not looking to rough it, try the Holiday Inn Santa Monica located on the beach 120 Colorado. $150 per room call 1 (800) HOLIDAY.

Expect the unexpected: Among the alleys of million dollar homes the poshest boutiques and restaurants is Southern California's high home less population — from teenage runaways to senior citizens. It's a problem that residents don't ignore. Compassion is prevalent here. Many soup kitchens and other organizations aimed at helping the homeless are located in both Santa Monica and Venice. Residents of both cities pride themselves on tolerance and volunteerism and they expect visitors to do the same. Gang activity exists in Venice so be cautious during the evenings and use the same common sense that's needed in any big city. Avoid the beach at night.

What to bring: An open mind, relaxed attitude and appreciation for creativity. Also bring sunscreen, sunglasses and lots of single dollar bills. If you're going to photograph the artists and street performers on the Venice Boardwalk, do the right thing — leave a tip.

What to leave behind: A pretentious attitude and business attire.

What to pack: Attire in Venice and Santa Monica is casual and beach wear is common. Keep the corporate logo t-shirts at home and opt for the unique — or go dressy because everything is accepted in Venice.

Weather: It's almost always comfortable. Early mornings are cloudy in the low 50s. Mid 60s and sunny by late morning. Mid 70s or 80s by afternoon. Evenings near the beach get chillier with high 50s to low 60s in the evenings — always carry a casual jacket.

Where to eat: Fig Tree on the beach at Ocean Blvd. in Venice for breakfast, lunch or dinner. After a day of shopping at the Promenade in Santa Monica try Real Food Daily for interesting vegan California cuisine — but expect a wait at this trendy restaurant during dinner. La Cabana on Rose at Lincoln in Venice is open late and serves authentic Mexican fare.

Where to socialize: The Circle Bar in Venice is a casual watering hole where celebs are known to go for a laid back atmosphere located on Main in Santa Monica at the Venice border. A little more posh is Framosa Cafe in Hollywood. Rich in movie history, Framosa has been a celebrity hang out since the 1950s.

Best local Coffeehouse: Gourmet Coffeehouse on Rose Avenue is a refreshing break from the cookie cutter mega coffee chains. An eclectic and creative clientele and atmosphere. Carry out coffee only. Try the tofu muffins. The second GCW this one right off the beach is cafe style.

Where to shop: Interesting independent and designer boutiques like Betsey Johnson dot Main Street and Abott Kinney in Venice/Santa Monica. For a full day of shopping Melrose Avenue about 30 minutes from Santa Monica is a must.

Sightseeing: As far as architecture Venice is more interesting than trendy Santa Monica. In 1905 Abott Kinney built the Venice canals that are a must see. During the day on the weekends the Venice Boardwalk turns into a surreal festival with street performers like fire jugglers, singers and belly dancers.

Artists set up their paintings, wood burnings and poetry for sale. Political vendors from feminists to pro marijuana to animal rights activists offer literature. Poets read their writings aloud. On weekends look for Venice's own beloved Harry Perry in line skating down the boardwalk with his electric guitar and dreadlocks tucked into his turban. Harry will play a song for you and stop for a photo, but remember to tip. During the evening have fun at the amusement park at the Santa Monica Pier. For more cultural events visit the Los Angeles County Museum about 30 minutes from Venice/Santa Monica or the Getty Museum about 50 minutes away.

BOOKS

VideoHound's guide to Cult Flicks is a true hit

BY GREG KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER
gkowskioe@homecomm.net

"The equation is simple Fewer cult films = more death"

Those words of wisdom were expressed by cult movie star Bruce Campbell (who took a real beating in The Evil Dead, among others) in the introduction of the new edition of VideoHound's Cult Flicks & Trash Pics

Those who appreciate the artistry of weird and bad really bad - movies will delight in this bigger, better edition of what has become a staple reference for fans of the strange

Edited by Carol Schwartz and Jim Olinski, who owns Thomas Video in Clawson, the Mecca of weird movies, VideoHound is a glorious and grotesque mix of reviews, snippets of dialogue and personal profiles of some of the strangest people who have ever sat on either side of a movie camera

VideoHound isn't quite as depraved as John McCarty's bloody guides to splatter movies. Some of the films reviewed in VideoHound border on mainstream, such as Tim Burton's wonderful profile Ed Wood and Robert Vaughn's shining moment in Teenage Caveman

But it's really on the other side of the line of sanity that VideoHound sparkles. You won't find Manos, the Hands of Fate in any of Leonard Maltin's video guides

(Incidentally, "manos" is the Spanish word for hands. So the title actually is Hands, the Hands of Fate Details Details). VideoHound praises it for "horrible acting, non-existent direction, dim lighting and laughable special effects"

High praise, indeed, in the world of bad movie making. There are limits, of course. Ants, Joan Collins' miserable outing with oversized insects, is so awful that even VideoHound draws the line "There's a limit to how many itchy-bitsy invaders movies we can watch," the Hound notes

And there many more, such as Rabbit Grannies, The Rats are Coming! The Werewolves Are

Here!, I was a Zombie for the FBI, The Giant Spider Invasion, The Worm Eaters and the incomparable Wrestling Women vs the Aztec Mummy

On every second page are some priceless snippets of dialogue taken from the films "Beware the big green dragon that sits on your doorstep he eats little boys," - words penned by the immortal Ed Wood and spoken by Bela Lugosi in Glen or Glen da?, "for no apparent reason"

Rounding out the 841-page tome are such amenities as listings of alternative titles various films have gone by, who starred in what, who wrote what, who photographed what and movies divided by category, such as "disco" and "dragons"

For a mere $24.95 this is a wealth of utterly useless information about generally abysmal movies

It just doesn't get much better. Greg Kowalski is an editor at the Observer & Eccentric newspapers

All-WLAA hoop

The Western Lakes Activities Association named its all-WLAA basketball team, and both Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton were represented.

On the all-conference squad, Salem's David Hoskins, a 6-foot-4 junior forward, and Canton's Andrew Meagrow, a 6-6 senior forward, were selected. Both players led their teams in scoring. Also named to the all-conference squad were Dave Zeitlin, a senior from Walled Lake Western, Mike Leach, a senior from North Farmington, Darnell Wilson, a junior from Westland John Glenn, and London Ivezaj, a senior from Livonia Stevenson.

Selected to the all-Western Division team was Canton's Billy Gazza, a 6-0 senior guard. With him were Adam Konst, a junior from Northville, Thomas Knapp, a senior from Northville, Bryan Verdun and Chris Eagle, both seniors from Western, Matt Elsey and Joe McElroy, both seniors from Farmington Harrison, and Shaun Foster, a senior from Livonia Churchill.

Named to the all-Lakes Division squad was 6-4 Salem forward Pat Abraham, a senior, together with Marcus McComb, a junior from North, Brandon Cassise, a sophomore from Walled Lake Central, Matt Bartnick, a senior from Stevenson, Darnell Smith, a junior from John Glenn, and Ryan Kosinski, a senior from Farmington.

The climax sometimes comes early. It did at the Class A district volleyball tournament Friday at South Lyon. Two teams that have taken turns beating each other up this season — Plymouth Salem and Livonia Churchill — did run into each other, but not in the final.

In the semifinal and in a three-set match that deserved a "classic" label, the Rocks prevailed, 15-13, 15-17, 15-5.

It was an emotional win, considering how the Chargers stunned Salem in the Western Lakes Activities Association championship match the previous Saturday, 15-0, 15-7. Almost too emotional. The Rocks still had a match to play to win the district, against the host Lions.

After a quick start (a 15-2 opening-game win), the inevitable letdown came in the second game, with South Lyon taking an 8-1 lead before Salem recovered and eked out a 15-13 win.

The district title gave the Rocks a 44-5-2 record and a berth in the regional hosted by Livonia Ladywood Saturday. They'll go up against the winner of the Ypsilanti district in the regional semifinal at 10 a.m.

Churchill, which defeated Northville 15-3, 15-1 in its district opener Friday, concluded its season at 35-12. South Lyon, which bounced Plymouth Canton in the other district semifinal 15-7, 15-7, finished with a 21-20-5 record.

Without doubt, the key match in the tournament was Churchill-vs.-Salem. It was the third time this season the two teams had clashed, Salem winning the first easily and Churchill returning the favor in the WLAA final Adjustments after each meeting, by both coaches, were constant.

"We went to a two-setter system, a 4-2, which I guess is kind of old-fashioned," said Salem coach Tom Teeters. "That could have been one of the keys (in the victory). But our serve receive was so much better."

Games are usually decided by runs. In the first game Salem's longest run was five points, going from a 3-3 dead lock to an 8-3 cushion. Churchill never regained the lead.

In Game No. 2, it was the Chargers who got out of the gate fast, building a 7-1 advantage. The outcome seemed certain when Heather Munn and Sarah Phillips combined to block a Salem kill attempt, giving Churchill a 14-8 lead.

What happened next was the turning point in the match.

Needing just one more point, the Chargers couldn't close it out. With MaryLou Liebau serving, the Rocks scored five-straight points, Katie Good responsible for three of them with kills.

It was 14-13 when Churchill regained the serve, but another Good kill prevented a victory. Maggie Tudor followed by serving a pair of points for Salem and now it was the Rocks who were ahead, 15-14, and on the brink of clinching the match.

It took two more services for the Chargers to regain some control and get a 17-15 win on a Salem hit out of bounds. The games were even, the momentum was not.

"You'd think we'd have the momentum after winning that game," said Churchill coach Mike Hughes. "But sometimes those things happen, and you just don't know why."

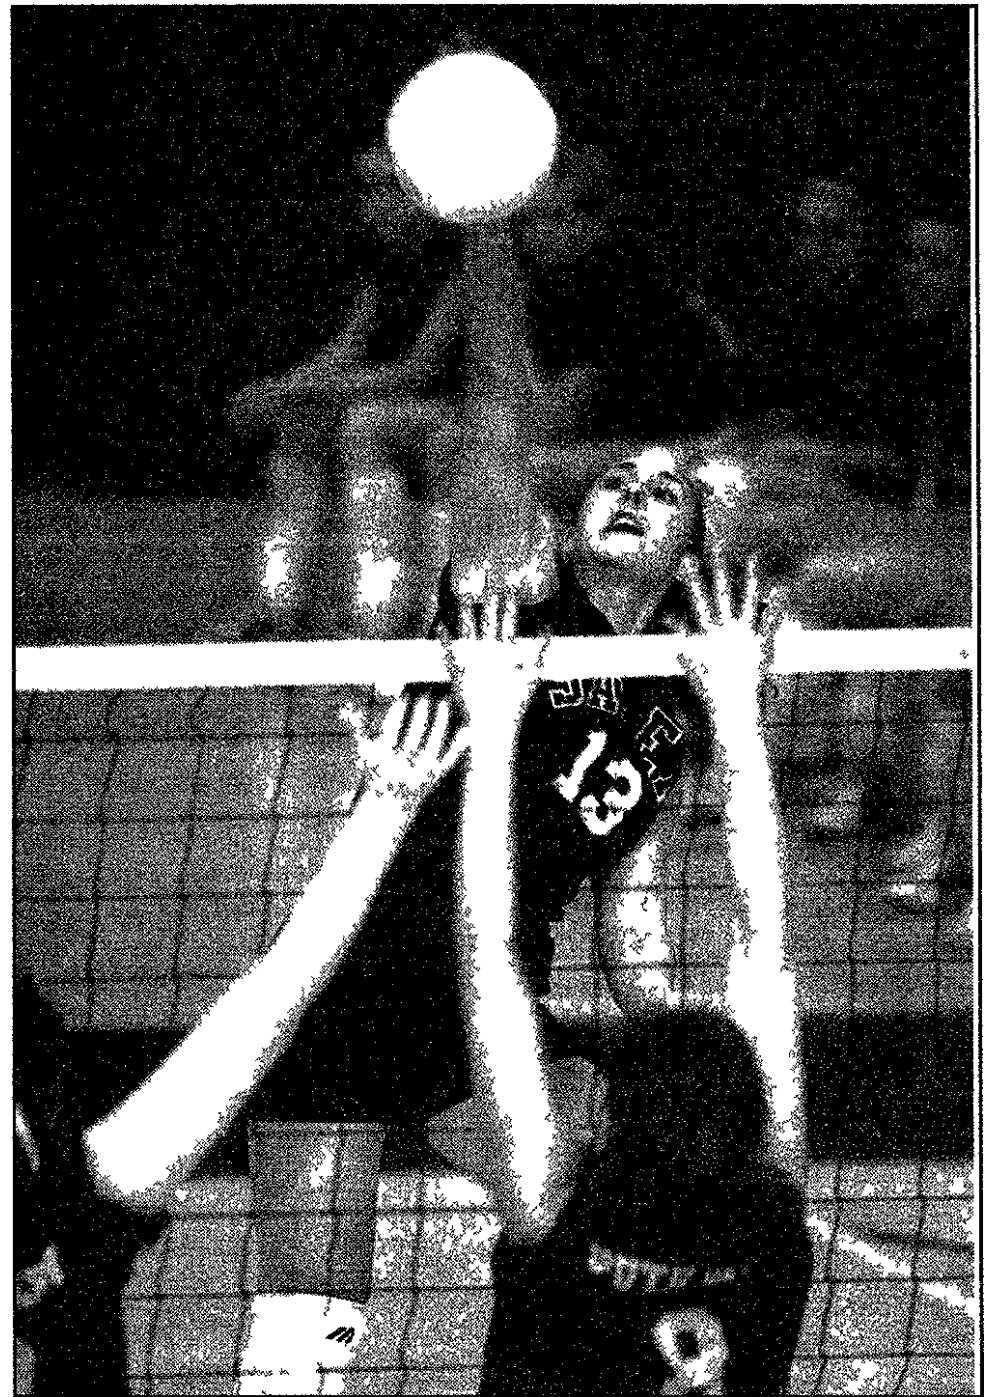

Substituting constantly, Hughes tried to stem the Salem tide, but couldn't. It was the Rocks who benefitted from the closing rounds of Game 2, scoring the first 10 points of Game 3.

"We just couldn't pass the ball well in that last game," said Hughes. "And (Salem) did a really good job hitting the line against us. We didn't expect that. Usually they like to go cross-court (with their hits)."

"That 13 (Good) hits everything all over the place."

In fact, it was apparent Teeters had streamlined his players' roles. Good and Liebau did all the hitting, Liebau finishing with one of her best matches of the season: 22 kills and a 42.9 kill percentage, as well as a team-best 14 digs and two blocks. Good was nearly as effective, collecting 19 kills and eight digs.

The rest of the team had five kills. Kelly Jaskot, who shared the setting duties with Jordan Falcusan, had 17 set assists, 13 digs and four service aces, while Falcusan had 23 set assists and seven digs while excelling in a new role as well — on serve receive.

What a smash! Katie Good was a pivotal force in Salem's district title run, totaling 31 kills in the two matches.

Churchill got 11 kills from Sheila Gilhes, 10 from Phillips and six from Beth Bushey.

the second game, and that really helped us out," said Teeters. As for Liebau, he could only agree. "That was

Trenton eliminates Salem

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR
cjrisk@oe.homecomm.net

Whatever confidence was nurtured by a 21-win season seemed to dissipate when Plymouth Salem's hockey team was faced by a squad steeped in a tradition that included seven state championships.

Three first-period goals by second-ranked Trenton had the Rocks reeling in Thursday's Division I state regional semifinal, played at Trenton's Kennedy Arena. Their style of play, usually aggressive and quick, turned tentative. By the time they adapted, it was too late — the Trojans had skated off with a 4-1 victory.

Salem, its program in just its third season of existence, finishes with a 21-2-3 record. Trenton (19-7) played Ann Arbor Huron Saturday for the regional title, the winner meets the Farmington Unified-Redford Catholic Central winner in a state quarterfinal Tuesday in Trenton.

"We just couldn't get anything going," said Salem coach Fred Feiler. "Even our power play was bad. We got outmuscled. Our defense was slow getting to the puck in our zone. We didn't play very well in our own zone at all."

"Yeah, I was hoping for a better result." The strategy entering the game was to try and take advantage of Trenton's sluggishness in clearing the puck from its own zone.

"We wanted to press them in their own zone," explained Feiler. "I thought we could play dump-and-chase. But instead we kept trying to pass the puck and carry it in."

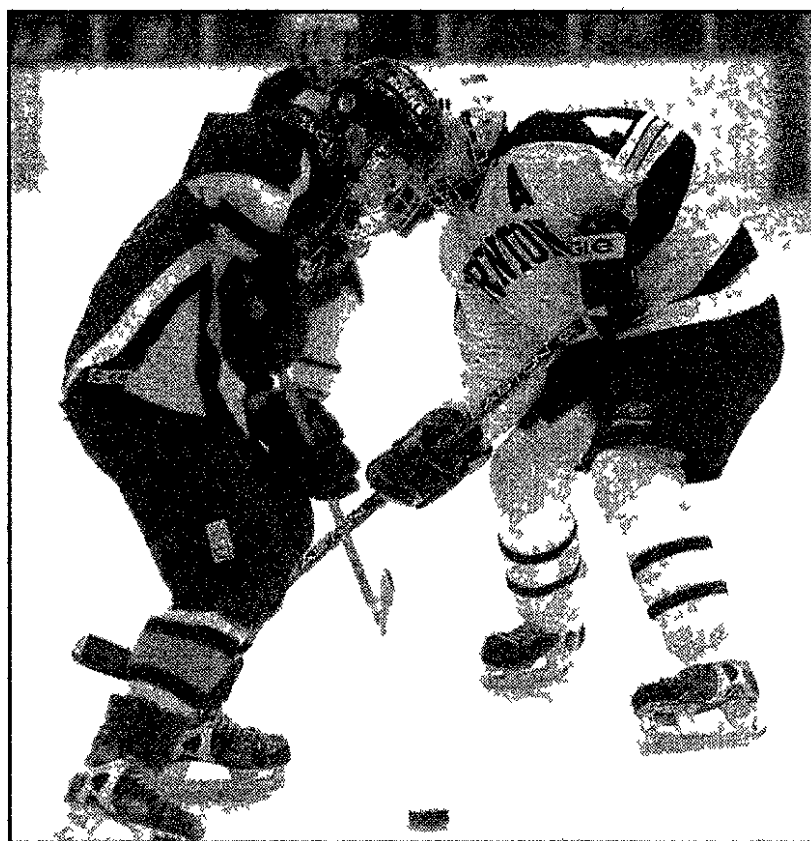

"They took the neutral zone away."

Which, in abbreviated form, is where Trenton won the game — between the blue lines in the first period-and-a-half. That and the Trojan defense in front of its own net was more than Salem could overcome.

The outcome came quickly. Trenton had been experiencing problems scoring goals. "We've struggled to score goals this year," said Trojan coach Mike Turner. "In the games we've lost, we gave up goals early and had trouble coming back."

"We began the year as a young team (only four seniors). We graduated 11 players and lost 12 from last year's team."

When Trenton got on the board first — Derek Cranford scored it, just 1:55 into the game — momentum started to swing against Salem. Cranford and linemates Chris Gutenschwager and Brandon Etlinger (all three are juniors) were the Rocks' undoing. Both assisted on Cranford's first goal.

Squaring off: Salem's Mark Nagel (left) tangles with Trenton's Brad LaTarte in a battle for puck control. Nagel set up the Rocks' only goal.

He got his second 8:21 later, in much the same fashion out of a scramble in front of the Rocks' net. Indeed, goalie Scott Stukel was one of Salem's brightest stars throughout the game, turning away three Trenton break-aways.

Williams propels Ocelots into final

Mike Williams had 29 points and grabbed 16 rebounds Friday as the Schoolcraft College men's basketball earned its fourth consecutive trip to the Michigan Community College Athletic Association finals with a 98-86 win over Glen Oaks.

Schoolcraft (28-0) met Lansing CC (25-3) for the coveted title Saturday night in Muskegon. The Ocelots and Lansing play again Wednesday in the Region 12 semifinals at Cincinnati State. Both games will appear in Thursday's Observer.

The defending state champion Ocelots also got 23 points from guard Javon Clark, who was 4 of 7 from three-point range. Point-guard Rulon Harris added 11 points and seven assists, while Yaku Moton-Spruill (Westland John Glenn) had 10 points and eight rebounds.

Tyrell Hightower led Glen Oaks (23-5) and all scorers with 30 points.

Lady Ocelots in final

Kera Hill scored 20 points and dished out seven assists Friday as the Schoolcraft College women's basketball team won its MCCAA semifinal matchup against Glen Oaks, 75-58, at Kalamazoo Valley.

Rachel Eley and Devon Francois each added 11 points for the Eastern Conference champion Lady Ocelots, who led by only five, 47-42, with eight minutes to go before putting it away with an 11-0 run.

Kelly Grenan (Redford Thurston) and Keysa Hamilton each contributed 10 points. Francois and Eley combined for 17 rebounds. Francois also had seven assists.

Schoolcraft (23-4) met Western Conference champion Kalamazoo Valley (27-1) in Saturday's state final.

CC edges Spartans

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
SPORTS WRITER
bmonastiere@oe.homecomm.net

Redford Catholic Central's incredible run of consecutive postseason hockey victories came closer to ending Thursday night than ever before.

However, it was nothing a little overtime couldn't settle.

CC's junior forward Brandon Naurato tapped in a rebound with 20.8 seconds left in the second overtime to send the Shamrocks forward in the Division I playoffs with an incredible 6-5 win over Livonia Stevenson at the Redford Ice Arena.

CC played in the regional finals Saturday night sporting a 17-5-3 record, while Stevenson's season ends with a 15-8-4.

"That was one of the best state tournament hockey games I've ever seen," said Spartans interim coach Jeff Hatley. "I'm very proud of our guys and the coaching staff. We came in halfway through the season, and to get to this level under tough circumstances, shows how well we really did."

Although the Shamrocks controlled most of the territorial play throughout the game, the Spartans did a terrific job at executing its game plan and cashing in on its opportunities.

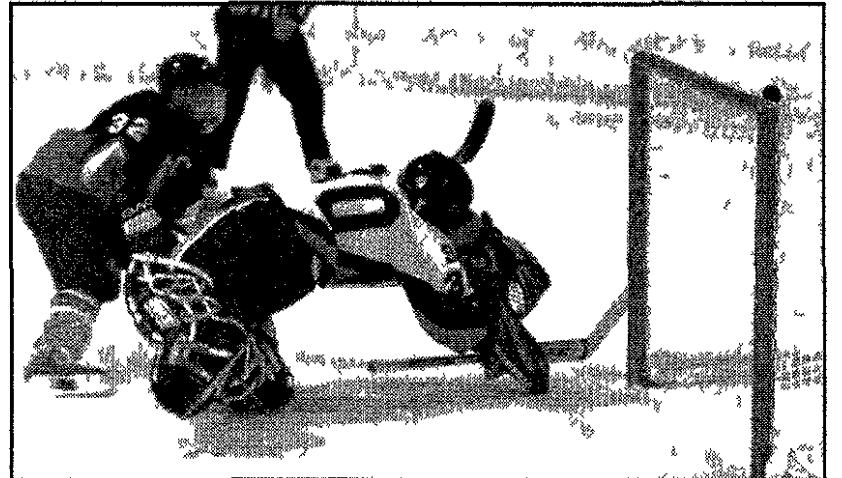

A goal by Stevenson's Adam Miller gave his team a stunning 4-1 lead with 2:01 left in the second period. The Spartans tallied three unanswered goals in the period despite being outshot 12-7.

CC came out in the third period looking like the three-time defending state champs, swarming Stevenson at every angle, burying four goals in a 2:16 span early in the third to take its first lead, 5-4.

Junior Patrick Coldren and senior Ryan O'Dea started the rally with goals just 16 seconds apart.

"After they got their fourth goal, we had a sense of calmness about us," said CC co-coach Todd Johnson. "We were so far behind, our feeling of frustration turned into a feeling of desperation. We have a system instilled in our kids, and we just hoped they went back to those good habits and didn't forget them."

"But I feel bad for Livonia Stevenson. They played such a terrific game, they stuck to their game plan, and their goaltender was just outstanding."

Although he was on the losing end of the stick, indeed, Stevenson junior goaltender Robert Thomas played a terrific game.

He stopped 45 CC shots, including a number of sprawling saves in the third period and overtimes. He made 21 consecutive saves after CC made it a 5-4 game, keeping his team in position to win.

"He really held us in there," Hatley said of his goaltender.

Stevenson's Tommy Zagata started the scoring 6:11 into the game with a quick one-timer off a perfect feed from Christopher Stevens to give the Spartans a surprising 1-0 lead.

CC responded with a blast off the stick of sophomore David Kubert to knot the game 1-1.

Senior forward Jonny O'Neill gave the Spartans their second lead of the game by scooping up a loose puck and flipping it past starting goaltender John Garza.

With momentum going against them, the Shamrocks inserted regular starting goaltender Jim Blanchard, who according to his coach, could barely stand due to the flu.

Stevenson junior forward Jared Gaudet cut across the ice to pick up a long pass and scored to put the Spartans up 3-1 less than five minutes into the second period.

Although CC controlled the flow of the game from there, it would take awhile for it to show up on the scoreboard.

"We tried to use their aggressiveness against them," Hatley said. "We would fly a winger out and try to create some odd-man rushes, and we cashed in on a few of them."

CC sophomore Jeff Prough tied the game 4-4 with a gorgeous one-on-one move, giving the Shamrocks their third goal in less than a minute, at the 4:56 mark of the third period.

Prough helped to set up the go-ahead goal when his shot was rebounded home by senior John Perkovich, sending the overflowing CC crowd into a frenzy, and seeing its team with its first lead of the game.

Thomas and Blanchard made huge saves at the end of regulation and in both overtime games.

Thomas made two split-legged saves and stopped three point-blank chances by the Shamrocks in the second overtime, while Blanchard stoned Stevenson's Brian Shekell on a breakaway chance midway through the second overtime.

"Jim is our best player, and I felt like I would be doing our program a disservice by not having him in there," Johnson said, explaining the goaltender switch early in the game. "He really gutted out Monday's win, and tonight, he asked for a chance to go in there and help us win."

Saturday's Redford Arena regional champ travels Wednesday to face host Trenton regional champion Division I quarterfinal matchup. Face-off is at 7:30 p.m.

Agape, PCA cap seasons with victories

Canton Agape Christian concluded its regular season with a 55-50 triumph over Taylor Light and Life Thursday in Taylor. The comeback win allowed Agape to finish at 16-4 overall. Light and Life is 10-10. Victory did not come easily. The Wolverines trailed 21-12 after one quarter, 32-26 at the half and 46-39 entering the last period. It took a 16-4 closing quarter for Agape to come away with the win.

BASKETBALL
"We tightened the screws defensively," Wolverine coach Chuck Henry said, noting only one basket in the fourth quarter by the Crusaders. A three-pointer by the coach's son, Charlie, with two minutes left gave Agape the lead for good. Charlie Henry finished with 22 points, Paul Chrenko added nine points and six rebounds. Joe Sobocinsky's 15 points paced Light and Life. The win also assured the Eagles would have a winning record. They improved to 11-9, the Gryphons are 9-9. Greenhills opened the game by scoring the first six points and led 11-9 after one quarter. PCA recovered quickly, however, pounding the Gryphons with a 16-3 second-quarter run to take a 25-14 halftime lead. Xander Younce led the surge with six points, he finished with a game-high 15 points. Clay Welton netted 10 and Aaron Ciborowski scored eight. Bruce Svecchota topped Greenhills with 15 points. PCA 61, Immaculate Conception 43: A strong second quarter was the key as Plymouth Christian Academy stopped Warren Immaculate Conception Thursday at PCA. The Eagles outpointed the Bengals 20-7 in the second to take a 27-16 halftime lead.

Young Crusaders are facing a rough road

BY C.J. RISAK
crisak@oe homecomm.net

All right. A lot of things went wrong for Madonna University's softball team last season. After a 7-5 start on their Florida trip, the Lady Crusaders went on a 12-game losing streak — which meant a 1-7 start to the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference campaign.

But that was then, right? This is now. A new season. A new beginning.

One discussion with Madonna coach Al White might make last season seem inviting. The Crusaders never did regroup in 2001, finishing 19-35 overall, 9-19 in the WHAC.

Amends to make certain such a thing would not repeat were in motion. White and his assistant coaches, Curt White, Terry Abraham and Rodney Schellenberger, "worked our butts off recruiting," said White. "There wasn't a day we weren't out there."

The result was a recruiting class that, by White's estimate, was "the best freshmen class

we've had so far." Eight newcomers were scheduled to join the Crusader team this season.

White planned to develop these freshmen, as any coach would. And one, maybe two, would emerge to make an impact on the 2002 season.

Well, things have changed. Gone are five players White thought would be starters this season, for a variety of reasons, joining graduated standouts Kristy McDonald and Angela Litwin, the Crusaders' top two hitters from last season.

Pam Konwinski transferred to Eastern Michigan University to take classes in special education, which Madonna didn't offer, Meghan Quinn suffered a fractured shoulder, Stacie Wilson was going to enlist in the Marines until the Sept. 11 tragedy (she did not return to the team), Devon Fletcher wants to play, but her major in nursing requires her to spend time working at the hospital, leaving no room for softball.

Perhaps the biggest loss was that of incoming freshman Jessica Brubaker, an all-state pitcher from Waterford Kettering. "With (Jenny) Tenyer and (Missy) VanDoorn, it would have made Brubaker such a commodity, with her change-up."

Alas, an elbow operation and academic problems took Brubaker out of school and magnified Madonna's pitching problems. True, Tenyer and VanDoorn are both returnees from last season, but neither was truly exemplary. Tenyer was 8-15 with a 2.42 earned run average, VanDoorn posted a 10-14 record with a 3.10 ERA.

Part of the problem, to be sure, was the play behind them. The Crusaders committed 135 errors in 54 games, an average of 2.5 per game. As a team, they produced just three runs a game while allowing nearly five, batting .260 to their opponents' .289.

With the heavy losses, White is faced with this stark reality: a starting lineup that features just two returnees, either Tenyer or VanDoorn at pitcher and sophomore catcher Ann Fowler (a .242 batting average, 12 runs batted in, nine errors in 52 games).

That's right. Madonna will start seven new players. And most of them will be freshmen.

Indeed, of the 14 players on the roster, there's one senior and one junior — the pitchers, VanDoorn (a senior) and Tenyer.

Those are a lot of troubles for any team before the season's first pitch. But there's more.

If any team needed a pre-season slate of games, Madonna did. And yet, the Crusaders' 10-game fall schedule was trimmed to three by the Sept. 11 tragedy and poor weather.

All of this has put White and his coaches into a bind and forced them to alter their focus for the season. "We're trying to give them as much information possible, to try and get them ready as quickly as possible," White said. "It's the (lack of) experience — that's the kicker. There's nothing you can do about it. You just keep plugging along."

So as to the starting lineup. At first base, freshman Krystle Shina (from Farmington Mercy). At second, freshman Tara Turner. At third, freshman Kathy Day (Livonia Ladywood). The shortstop is expected to be Emily Cunningham, a sophomore who did not play last season.

Now for the outfield. Mary Warchuck, a freshman, will be in left. Another freshman, Autumn Batyik, will start in center. In right will be sophomore Allison Luczak (Livonia), a transfer from Indiana Tech.

Returnee Jamie Bobrowski will provide aid in both the outfield and on the mound. The rest — well, who can tell?

Last season never went as expected, particularly after a somewhat promising start against tough competition in the opening Florida trip.

"We didn't score runs," said White. "It's hard to win 1-0, 2-1 all the time unless you have that dominating pitcher."

He had hoped Brubaker could develop into that type of pitcher, but that wasn't meant to be. So now, it's just a matter of re-setting goals and salvaging whatever is possible.

"It's going to be an interesting season," said White. "Our hope is to finish in the top half of the league so we can make the playoffs."

That won't be easy, considering the competition. True, defending WHAC champion Aquinas lost quite a bit, but Cornerstone returns one of the conference's best players in pitcher Tara Brown. Concordia and Siena Heights could be quite strong as well.

Attitude is at least in Madonna's favor. "This team gets along so well," said White. "They don't let anything bother them. We've told them to take that onto the field and just have fun."

"But if you lose 12 in a row, that's not fun."

At any rate, White and his staff has the proper perspective. "It can only go up," he said. "That's what we've been saying."

a chance on them," Feiler said of the first two Trojan goals.

Just 2:13 after Trenton had increased its lead to 2-0, they got another, this time Gutenschwager scoring it with assists from Cranford and Etlinger, gaining possession in front of Stukel unopposed and simply flicking the puck over his shoulder.

A three-goal deficit was what Feiler had feared going into the game. "We knew if we gave up three goals, we'd be in trouble, with their defense," he said. "That's the best forechecking team we've seen all year."

Trenton outshot Salem 12-5 in the first period. It didn't get any better in the second.

The Trojans continued to exert their dominance in the second period, cushioning their lead to 4-0 just 38 in when Stukel couldn't grab a loose puck in his crease. Trenton's Jason Dalling pounced on it, backtracked a single stride, pivoted and fired it into the net. Dan Olgren and Brandon Thomson assisted.

From that point on, the game's complexion changed — in large part due to penalties by Trenton. "I don't think we've taken five penalties in a game this season," said Turner.

The Trojans did in the second and third periods, while the Rocks were not assessed any. While Salem never took advantage of its power plays, the penalties did take the momentum from Trenton.

Salem's only goal came shortly after the conclusion of a Trojan penalty, with 12:09 left in the third period. The Rocks' biggest offensive threats combined to score it, Mark Nagel gaining possession of the puck at his own blue line and eluding two defenders to lead a 3-on-1 break into the Trenton zone. Nagel — who led a similar foray in the first period, but saw Trojan goalie Ben Trosien break up his pass — this time put the puck on Kevin Wilson's stick just outside the crease, and Wilson put it in.

If any comeback hopes flourished with the Salem goal, they were dashed. Cranford took two more penalties before the game was concluded, but the Rocks could not mount an attack.

Despite the loss, Feiler was more than pleased with the season compiled by Salem. "Absolutely," he insisted. "That's what I told them. They can walk away from this with their heads high."

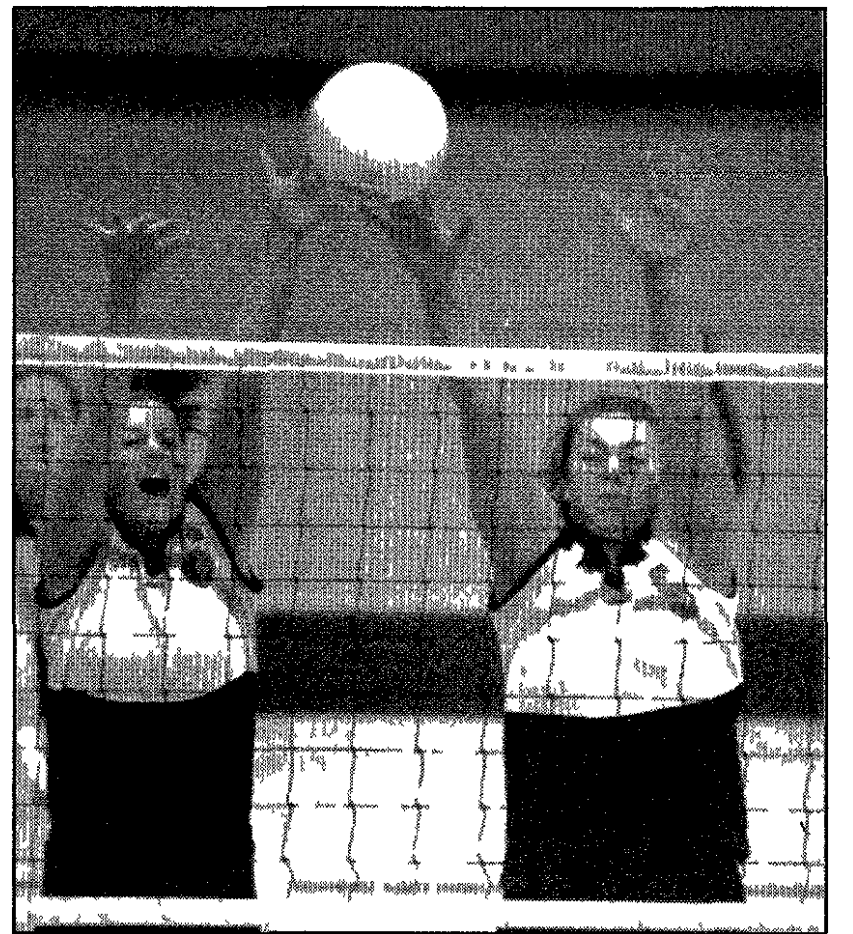

It must be noted two significant players for the Rocks, John Schultz and Mike Crowley, were out of the lineup due to "disciplinary reasons," according to Feiler. Neither played in the 5-1 win over Howell in the regional opener, either

SPORTS ROUNDUP

Rec offerings

The city of Plymouth will offer a class in Basic Skills Ice Skating, with the seven-week class starting March 25. Classes will be Monday evenings, Thursday mornings and afternoons, and Saturday mornings. Each class is 25 minutes long, with an additional 25 minutes of practice time. For more information, call the recreation office at (734) 455-6620.

Registration for Summer T-ball will be April 1-19 at the Plymouth Cultural Center (525 Farmer) during office hours (8 a.m.-4:30 p.m.). The league, for five and six year-olds, is non-competitive and designed to promote recreation and sportsmanship. The season runs from June 22-Aug. 10 (no games July 6). Practice is once a week, after work hours, as designated by the coach. For information, call (734) 455-6620.

definitely one of her best matches.

In the final against South Lyon, Liebau and Good again paved the way, Liebau collecting 13 kills (400 percentage) and Good 12. Jaskot had five aces and 14 set assists, Falcusan finished with 12 assists, and Nicole Genrich and Sue Woodard had three and two aces, respectively.

Churchill's win over Northville was more lopsided. Gillies was dominant offensively with eight kills, while Phillips led defensively with seven blocks.

As for Canton's match against South Lyon, coach Steve Anderson summarized briefly: "It was a blowout. It was the worst match we played all year, and it couldn't have come at a worse time."

Salem, on the other hand, rose to the occasion, and it couldn't have come at a better time.

MEDICAL BRIEFS

Arbor Hospice &amp; Home Care

Often, children exhibit no outward signs of grief after a loved one has died, yet, internally, they experience many thoughts, questions and fears too difficult to put into words

Northern Xpress Ways is a grief support group provided by Pathfinders of Arbor Hospice & Home Care for elementary- and middle school-age children who have experienced the death of a loved one. The children learn to express their thoughts and emotions through art, poetry, journaling, collage, music, sculpting or memory books. Groups are led by master's level therapists.

Northern Xpress Ways meets 4:30-6 p.m. Mondays at the First United Methodist Church, 777 Eight Mile Road, Northville. The cost is $30 per session for one child and $15 per session for each additional child within one family. To register, call (734) 662-3742, ext. 175 or (800) 783-5764.

Let it snow!

The good news about shoveling snow is that it doesn't have to be a "pain" in the neck or back.

"Shoveling snow can be good exercise if done properly and with safety in mind," says Tom Birk, associate professor of Physical Therapy at Wayne State University's Eugene Applebaum College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences. "The key is to start slow and use some safety sense."

Here's a pile of snow shoveling tips:

■ If you're inactive or have a history of health problems talk to your doctor before taking on the task.

■ Warm up your muscles before shoveling by walking for a few minutes or marching in place. Warm muscles work more efficiently and are less likely to be injured.

■ Pick the right shovel for you. A smaller blade requires you to lift less snow, putting less strain on your body.

■ Stand with your feet about hip width for balance and keep the shovel close to your body. Bend from the knees, not the back, and avoid twisting movements.

■ Most importantly, listen to your body. Stop if you feel pain!

Seal those teeth

One of the tools in the war against tooth decay is the dental sealant, a plastic material the dentist applies to the chewing surfaces of the back teeth — the premolars and molars. The sealant forms a barrier that protects teeth from plaque, a sticky film of bacteria that constantly forms on the teeth.

Thorough brushing and flossing help remove food particles and plaque from smooth surfaces of the teeth, however, pits and fissures are places that are extremely difficult to clean. Most cavities form in pit and fissure areas, and permanent molars are extremely susceptible to this form of decay.

Applying dental sealants takes only a few minutes for each tooth. Sealants usually last several years before a reapplication is needed. As long as the sealant remains intact, the tooth surface is protected from decay.

A NEW AMERICAN EPIDEMIC

BY CAROL MARSHALL
SPECIAL WRITER

Diet support groups are still active, and the gyms are still packed two months after serious resolution makers vowed to leave the American ranks of the fat and happy. Too often, however, while adults are watching their diets and huffing on the treadmill, their children have become among the alarming number of obese youngsters.

"It's become an epidemic," said Farmington Hills pediatrician Robert Roman. "I have seen more and more children in my office who are overweight or obese. It's one of the hardest problems we have. The kids have become so accustomed to bad habits and it's setting them up for some real problems."

Obesity and overweight are clinical conditions determined by comparing a child's height and weight to average heights and weights for children their age, and by determining the child's Body Mass Index, or BMI, said Roman. A BMI of more than 25 indicates overweight, while a BMI of more than 30 signals obesity.

Fatty foods, high-calorie drinks and a sedentary lifestyle have been named culprits in the sharp rise in adult obesity in the United States. Children, once characterized by boundless energy as well as having a taste for sweets, are now increasingly addressing the same issues as their parents.

Cause and effects

Children are growing heavier at younger ages. The problem can begin as early as age 5, shortly after an age when most children lose their "baby fat," said Roman. But he has seen a strong trend toward overweight in children aged 7 to 10.

"I know the statistics, but I would say that between 40 and 50 percent of kids today have a weight problem or an obesity problem," said Sarah Irving, Beaumont Weight Control Center dietitian. The trend is so alarming Beaumont Weight Control Center is currently developing special programs for young people.

"I hope to one day see us have a program for kids as young as five years old," said Irving.

The problem is that serious, she emphasized. "We're seeing a big increase in children who are developing Type II diabetes, which we used to call adult onset diabetes, but now we have to change that terminology."

Other physical and emotional problems abound. Ridicule from peers, self-esteem issues, future cardiovascular illnesses and stress on the body also are associated with pediatric obesity. Irving said she has treated a growing number of children with high cholesterol and elevated triglycerides.

"If children are carrying all that extra weight while their bodies are developing, can you imagine how it's affecting their growth as their bones and muscles are still growing?" said Roman. So far we don't know exactly how it will affect them in the future, but it can't be good for them.

Societal changes play a part in the problem, according to Roman. Sprawling subdivisions built far from activity centers and schools require parents to load their children into cars and vans and drive them to activities, while children of past generations walked or rode bicycles. Smaller family sizes mean less interaction and play with other children within neighborhoods, and more time that children spend alone. Parents' hectic work schedules often mean fewer nutritious foods, and more fast foods have become regular fare at the family dinner table.

"We've become accustomed to driving our children everywhere, and allowing them to eat high fat foods, and most importantly allowing them to watch hours of television and spend too much time at the computer or video games," said Roman. "The problem usually stems from the family's habits, so we can't just treat the child. We have to treat the problem as a family problem."

Not your mother's weight problem

Although the causes for pediatric obesity are similar to adult obesity, treating the overweight child is very different from treating an adult. "You never want to make it a dieting issue," Irving said. "The big thing we ask is where we can get the child involved in some physical activity."

Focus on diet is only part of addressing a child's weight issue, Irving said. "We can't really cut calories for kids, because they're growing and we don't want to stunt any of their growth. We can look for healthier options if they're eating a lot of snack foods, sugared juices and drinks, and fast food, but we can't count calories with them."

The real goal is to establish long-term lifestyle changes, centered around healthy eating and active play. Aerobic activities are essential, as is walking, swimming, riding bicycles, and skiing are excellent activities for families, he added.

"Parents are in control, especially when their children are young. Sometimes it comes down to taking your children out to play, and showing them it's fun. If you can do that when they're little, if you're lucky those good habits will stick with them," Irving said.

Family involvement is essential in treatment, Irving said. Children often are not concerned with their weight problems, and parents need to direct them without pushing them too hard, and possibly creating other food and weight issues.

We need to take it very slow with children. We set one goal at a time and focus on that one thing — maybe just one change in snack foods, or setting an activity goal. It can often take a child a whole month or more just to master one goal," she said.

TAKING ACTION

The following tips offer guidance to parents whose child has a weight problem:

Work with your pediatrician. Your child's doctor can determine if the child has a weight problem and can help determine how severe or mild the problem is by using height/weight growth charts and determining the child's Body Mass Index (BMI), said Farmington Hills pediatrician Robert Roman. Your pediatrician can help you develop a strategy for helping your child slim down.

Get moving. Children aren't likely to be fond of exercise if their parents are lounging happily on the sofa, according to Beaumont Weight Control Clinic dietitian Sarah Irving. Very often a family that plays together weighs together, so get out and play. It's good for the whole family.

Shop wisely. Ultimately, it's up to the parents to determine what their children eat. "If you run your house like a restaurant, your kid is going to order whatever he wants," said Roman. Stock your cupboards with healthy alternatives to junk foods. Watch your child's juice intake, and switch to low-fat milk after your child celebrates his second birthday.

Banish soft drinks if possible. If you can't eliminate them, at least limit your child's consumption of them.

Relax. Don't put too much pressure on an overweight child, said Roman. You could make the problem worse, create self-esteem issues, or particularly in girls, set them up for other eating disorders. Instead, focus on establishing a fun, active lifestyle. "The weight will take care of itself if you do that," Roman said.

Clinical studies test two treatments for people with advanced Parkinson's disease

For the estimated 1 million Americans living with Parkinson's disease — and for the significant number with advanced stages of the disease — activities of daily life are often complicated by the uncertainty of when or if their medication will take effect. Two clinical research trials are now accepting participants at study sites across the United States and Canada to determine the safety and effectiveness of two investigational drugs for advanced Parkinson's disease.

The PRESTO study will determine if rasagiline mesylate may improve Parkinson's disease symptoms when added to levodopa, the current standard Parkinson's disease treatment. The RAPID Study will see if etilevodopa/carbidopa also may provide relief of symptoms more quickly than levodopa. Both the PRESTO and RAPID studies are now enrolling individuals with advanced Parkinson's disease who are currently taking levodopa and experiencing less-than-optimal control of symptoms.

Researchers are seeking 250 and 100 people, respectively, to participate in the PRESTO and RAPID studies. Both trials will last approximately six months and will involve between 40 and 60 universities and medical centers throughout North America.

"Currently, many advanced Parkinson's disease patients, in spite of taking levodopa, experience difficulty as their disease progresses. The PRESTO Study will assess the effect of adding rasagiline to levodopa on Parkinson's symptoms," said Dr. Matthew B. Stern, professor of neurology at the University of Pennsylvania and a member of the Parkinson Study Group. "The RAPID Study will evaluate etilevodopa/carbidopa's ability to provide symptom relief sooner than existing levodopa therapies due to its unique formulation."

Botsford physician provides advanced treatment of bladder control problem

Millions of people suffer from frustrating and embarrassing bladder control problems. They may have tried treatments such as diet changes, exercises, medications and biofeedback to no avail.

For patients whose symptoms did not respond well to these more conservative treatments, Botsford General Hospital board-certified urologist Dr. Lisa J. Finkelstein offers potential relief.

The treatment is Medtronic's

InterStim Therapy for Urinary Control. Dr. Finkelstein is the only specialist in the Farmington-Farmington Hills area offering InterStim Therapy.

Before a decision can be made about recommending an InterStim implantation, Dr. Finkelstein performs a test to see what effect electrical stimulation has on the patient's nerve that controls the bladder and surrounding muscles that manage urinary function. If symptoms improve or disappear during the test period, long-term use of InterStim Therapy may be appropriate for the patient.

The InterStim device sends mild electrical pulses to a nerve located in the lower back, which may eliminate or reduce certain bladder control symptoms. Similar to a smaller version of a pacemaker, the device has helped people with urge incontinence, urgency-frequency and retention problems.

People of any age can suffer from bladder control problems.

InterStim Therapy is a significant advancement for some of them. Patients who have not found relief through conservative therapies, including the newer medications, may regain bladder function and improve the quality of their lives," comments Dr. Finkelstein.

Her practice, Suburban Urology Network, is located on the Botsford General Hospital campus. Patients interested in learning more about InterStim Therapy may contact Dr. Finkelstein at (248) 471-0580.

Hospital offers teens babysitting skills

For many teenagers, baby-sitting is a great way to earn money for Friday nights at the movies or to save for that first car. Baby sitting also carries with it a lot of responsibility.

To help budding baby-sitters meet those challenges, Crittenton Hospital Medical Center offers the Safe Baby sitters program from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on March 2. The 4-hour class covers the basic skills of baby-sitting infants to preteen children. Students learn to help a choking child, diaper a baby, and basic first aid. Through role-play, they also learn to call 911 in an emergency, how to handle strangers, and how to handle a fire.

"This is an important class for anyone who loves children and wants to be a baby-sitter," said Karen Pfeffer, Crittenton's maternal child coordinator. "It gives them the skills they need and confidence in dealing with children."

Potential baby-sitters must be at least 11 years old to participate. A certificate will be given to each student at the completion of the class. Each four-hour session is $25. We recommend taking a CPR class as well.

Classes fill up fast, so please call the Community Health & Education Department today at (248) 652-5269 to register.

Parkinson's

production and storage of dopamine. Dopamine is the vital chemical responsible for transmitting signals to nerve cells that direct muscle activity. Parkinson's disease is generally diagnosed after two of the following symptoms are documented during a period of time: Tremors while resting, slowness of movement, rigidity of the limbs and trunk, and impaired balance.

"There are many unmet needs in the Parkinson's community," Dr. Stern said. "The success of both the PRESTO and RAPID studies could play an important role in providing additional treatment options for people suffering from the disease."

People with a confirmed diagnosis of advanced Parkinson's disease who are interested in participating in either the PRESTO or RAPID studies in the Detroit area can obtain more information by calling toll free (888) 887-3774.

The PRESTO is a double-blind, randomized, placebo-controlled Phase III trial that will examine the effectiveness, tolerability and safety of rasagiline mesylate in levodopa-treated Parkinson's disease patients. Rasagiline blocks the action of the enzyme that breaks down dopamine in the brain. The RAPID Study is a double-blind, randomized, controlled Phase III trial that will compare etilevodopa/carbidopa tablets to standard levodopa/carbidopa therapy in patients with advanced Parkinson's disease who experience motor fluctuations. Etilevodopa/carbidopa tablets rapidly dissolve in the stomach, allowing levodopa to enter the bloodstream more quickly.

Requirements

Both studies require potential participants to currently be in levodopa therapy. Participants must have frequent periods of movement difficulty or must no longer have a consistent response to their Parkinson's medication. They will be asked to keep a home diary detailing the duration of their Parkinson's symptoms. Each trial will require six to eight visits to a study site.

The Parkinson Study Group (PSG) is conducting the PRESTO and RAPID studies, sponsored by Teva Neuroscience, Inc. The PSG is a non-profit, cooperative group of Parkinson's disease experts from medical centers in the United States and Canada who are dedicated to improving treatment for persons affected by Parkinson's disease.

Teens learn about the financial facts of life from parents

ERIC ZIMMERMAN

Youth and Money Survey, 94 percent of participating students worked full- or part-time jobs the previous summer

That's the good news. Unfortunately, the same survey also reports that only about half the teens interviewed think it's very important to save any of their hard-earned money.

If your high school or college-aged student shares this "live for today" attitude, here are a few ways to help turn your free spirit into a financially savvy adult.

Instill fiscal responsibility
Teens must learn that along with the privileges of adulthood come financial responsibilities. By the time they are ready for college, young adults should be able to balance their own checkbook, pay bills in a timely manner and plan for their personal living expenses.

While saving money at this stage in life is often challenging, the groundwork for responsible spending and saving habits should be laid during high school. By requiring high schoolers with part-time jobs to plan and follow a budget, you can help make sure they are able to manage their money when it's time to leave the nest.

Even if you plan to pick up the tab for college expenses, it may be wise to involve your kids in the funding process so they know how money is being saved and how it will be spent for their education.

Teach by first hand experiences
Hands-on learning with money typically generates excitement with kids. One way to teach investment basics is to purchase individual stocks or mutual funds together, to involving your teens in the selection process.

They are likely to have strong opinions about the companies they perceive as the "best" choices based on what kind of soft drinks they prefer and what clothing labels they like to wear. This isn't necessarily bad, as many financial advisors recommend investing in something you know.

However, you should always research a stock before investing. You can begin the process by presenting a few shares of stock as a gift, or you can guide your kids in making their first purchase. Then you can agree on how the investment program will be funded going forward.

For example, you might determine that a child will use 20 percent of each paycheck to buy more shares, while you match the investment. Together you can track price changes in the financial section of the newspaper or on the Internet and monitor gains and losses.

Warn against excessive debt and credit card abuse
Unfortunately, many kids don't learn of the dangers of credit card abuse until they've experienced it firsthand. In fact, the same survey cited above states that 28 percent of students with a credit card carry revolving debt.

The main way to create awareness of credit-related issues is to maintain an active dialogue on the subject with your kids. Warn about the dangers of excessive debt and describe the benefits of keeping a good credit rating.

Obtaining a copy of your own credit report and sharing the results with your teen can be a way to drive the point home that your credit rating good or bad stays with you for years.

Assume a new role
The transition to adulthood means changing roles for parents as well as kids. Until this point in your children's lives, you've provided financial support and made the rules. Now you may find that instead of being the "boss" you're becoming an "advisor." In that role, you can offer suggestions and provide guidance, but the bottom line is that your kids soon will be making many of their financial decisions independently.

This transition is often more difficult for parents than it is for children particularly if you see departures from your own way of doing things.

As you move through this important education process with the young adults in your home, don't be afraid to seek help. The nonprofit National Center for Financial Education (www.ncfe.org) provides books for teenagers and other teaching tools for parents, while the American Savings Education Council (www.asec.org) offers information to educate Americans about saving money.

A knowledgeable financial advisor also can be a valuable resource to help get your own financial house in order. Once you've attended to that important detail, you'll be ready to provide a more effective training ground for your teens and become the role model they need to succeed on their own.

The APR is based on the highest Prime Rate as published in the "Money Rates" section of The Wall Street Journal on the last publishing day of the calendar month immediately preceding the billing cycle. On January 31, 2002, Prime was 4.75% and the Annual Percentage Rate (APR) on Standard Federal's Home Equity Line of Credit products varied between 4.00% and 7.75% depending on your approved commitment amount and product. Prime is a variable rate as it changes, the APR on your account will change. The maximum APR is 21%. A balloon payment will result at the end of the ten year draw period. Standard Federal's Home Equity Lines of Credit are limited to owner occupied 1-4 unit primary family residences and are subject to no less than a second lien position on your property. You must carry insurance on the property that secures this loan. Flood insurance required if necessary. There is a $50 annual fee after the first year if you are not a Credit Exclusions member. Closing costs paid by Standard Federal Bank are limited to appraisal title insurance flood certification and recording fees. ## Condos provide luxury living at lake setting

Toll Brothers likes to promote its Island Lake of Novi development, all 901 acres including a 170-acre lake, as luxury in your own back yard

The Arbors phase, 126 attached condominiums, goes one step further with a no-worry, everything is taken-care-of exterior maintenance policy

The community is only about a mile south of the I-96/Wixom interchange, but you'd never know it with the rolling, wooded terrain and lake

"We'll have a beach area at the north end of lake," said David Straub, assistant project manager at The Arbors "We'll have a gazebo and parking spaces for residents

"We'll also have a clubhouse with fitness at the south end of the lake, a beach, an Olympic-sized swimming pool and two tennis courts," he added

Those projects are expected to start this spring with a summer of 2003 completion date anticipated

"We're marketing this as a resort community within the city limits of Novi," Straub said "We're taking advantage of the natural environment here Miles of walking trails"

"The biggest marketing point is lifestyle," added Desiree Davis, marketing coordinator for Toll Brothers "It's very much like a vacation or resort style of living More or less, you have everything you want within your own community"

"People here in The Arbors are looking for maintenance free lives," Straub said "Whether dual working couples or empty-nesters, to free up their time"

"We like to think that we have a little something for everybody," said Reggie Carveth, project manager at The Arbors

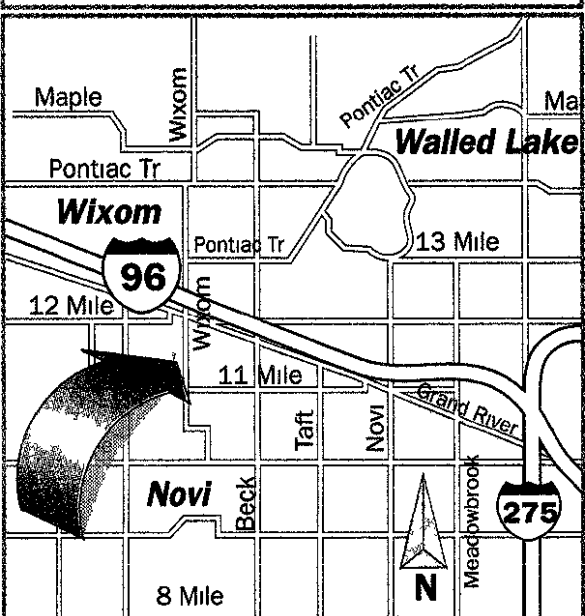

"Not only do we have open floor plans, but the area is open There's anywhere from 60 to 100 feet between buildings," he said "You're surrounded by trees"

Luxury living: Condominiums at Island Lake of Novi start at about $285,000 for nearly 2,000 square feet

The Toll Brothers building team also has tried to foster a meet-and-great spirit among residents by establishing an interactive Web site and organizing special events like picnics and a road rally

What isn't in the community, itself, is easily accessible, too

"We're minutes away from the expressway, within 10 minutes of the popular Twelve Oaks shopping district," Straub said

Four floor plans, all two-story style, are available at The Arbors They range in price from $284,975 for 1,987 square feet with three bedrooms and 2 1/2 baths to $314,975 for 2,222 square feet with three bedrooms and 2-1/2 baths

All include at base price two-car garage, deck, basement, fireplace, air conditioning, separate tub and shower in the master, and range and dishwasher in the kitchen

Wood flooring is in the foyer, kitchen/nook and half baths, ceramic in the main baths, vinyl in the laundry and carpeting throughout the rest of the home

A pedestal sink is standard in the

Garage at The Sagamore has interesting orientation

The Sagamore (G24 736) has a classical farmhouse facade with an ornate porch, bay windows and shutters around the windows

This home, 2,044 square feet, has fantastic eye appeal and would work well on a lot in the city or in a lush, rural setting

The two-car garage, housing a large shop area, is disguised so that it appears as part of the living area. The doors face the side and a beautiful window with a flower box faces the front

The open dining room is on the right side of the entry foyer, the stairs to the second floor and the optional unfinished basement on the left

The dining room has a 9-foot ceiling and is framed by bay windows. A built-in china cabinet and a wet bar flow to the kitchen behind a set of swinging doors

The pantry is on the left across from an island containing the sink and dishwasher, as well as an eating bar. The balance of the cabinets is down the opposite wall

The breakfast nook is also in an arrangement of bay windows, overlooking the deck and back yard. A door goes into the utility room, which also has a door into the garage

Beyond the nook to the left is a large great room with a fireplace, surrounded by large windows that bathe the room in light from the sun terrace

The master suite is on the main floor, while the other two bedrooms and a computer room are upstairs

The master suite has a window seat facing the front, 9-foot ceilings and two large walk-in-closets. The master bath contains a shower, spa tub, dual sinks and a linen closet

Bedrooms 2 and 3 share a common bathroom with a tub and two sinks. Pocket doors close off the bathroom from each bedroom

The loft/hall is partially open to the computer room, making this area ideal for both the students of the family and for little ones to have a play area

For a study plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations and an artist rendering, send $24.95 to Landmark

Designs, 33127 Saginaw Road E., Cottage Grove, OR 97424. Please specify plan name (Sagamore) and the number (G24 736)

Higher density leads to more affordable housing

A recent report from the Center for Housing Policy, Housing America's Working Families, indicates that more than three million working families in the U.S. spend more than half their income on housing

This discrepancy between employment and housing is felt most by public employees and people who work in the service and retail industries

Demographic trends over the next two decades will continue to increase demand for housing

The U.S. population will grow by some 37 million over the next 15 years. That means we need to build 1.3 to 1.5 million homes each year to keep up with the demand for new housing

Because little can be done to control

demand pressures, the growth debate should focus on the supply side of the market

That means developing a master growth and zoning plan that will provide for a good mix of housing in various price ranges and the timely construction of infrastructure improvements — roads and schools — that will accommodate the county or city's anticipated growth in an orderly manner

Advocates of no-growth policies offer unrealistic solutions to the housing crisis experienced by low- and moderate-income families. Instead, we should emphasize smart growth — smarter choices about where and how we grow our communities

In many areas, teachers, police officers, firefighters and other public employees are commuting many miles to work each day because they can't find affordable housing to rent or buy close to their jobs

Zoning pushes people to outlying areas in search of homes that are affordable to middle-income families

If large sections of land are zoned for low density housing (such as one home per acre of land), not only is the number of homes limited, but prices for the remaining land are increased, as well

Where a 100-acre parcel could be zoned to hold only 100 homes, the same parcel of land could include 40 homes on one-acre lots plus 180 homes on 1/3-acre lots. If part of the space is zoned for multi-family housing, the effective use of the land extends even more

Americans also need to consider the relationship between job growth and housing demand. It's a simple equation: More jobs equal more demand for housing

Job growth is important and policy makers have a responsibility to make sure that equal priority is given to housing at all income levels

Affordable housing offers families a chance to own something that will increase in value and provide tax advantages while also meeting our basic needs for security and shelter

This nation will continue to grow. It's essential we acknowledge that growth is going to occur and plan accordingly. With a forward-thinking attitude that focuses on smart growth, we can make a positive contribution that will yield tremendous benefits for future generations

New home construction begins the new year in style

WASHINGTON (AP) — Construction of new homes and apartments rose 6.3 percent in January to the highest level in almost two years

The increase offers fresh evidence that the housing market is thriving while much of the economy slumps

The Commerce Department reported last month that builders broke ground in January on a bigger-than-expected 1.68 million units, at a seasonally adjusted annual rate

That was the highest level since February 2000 and followed a 2.3 percent decline in December

Low interest rates are a key reason that the housing and construction markets have remained stable even as the national economy has been suffering through a recession that began in March

While the stock market has been volatile during the slump, housing values have seen solid appreciation — another factor motivating new-home buyers, builders say

In January, construction of new single-family homes rose 3.5 percent to a rate of 1.35 million. That followed a 4.4 percent advance in December

Apartments, condos and other multi-family housing starts in January increased by 8.3 percent from the previous month. In December, construction of multi-family housing had fallen by a sharp 20.4 percent

By region, new housing construction in January rose 14.4 percent to a rate of 800,000 units in the South and by 8.7 percent in the Northeast to a rate of 162,000

But in the West, housing construction fell by 3.6 percent to a rate of 377,000, in the Midwest, it dipped by 0.3 percent to a rate of 339,000

To prop up the economy, the Federal Reserve slashed interest rates 11 times last year, pushing the prime rate — a benchmark for consumer and business loans — down to its lowest level since November 1965

In January, the Fed opted to leave interest rates unchanged and cited signs of an economic recovery as the basis for its decision

Some economists are hopeful that the

Fed's aggressive credit easing will pave the way for a solid economic recovery in the second half of this year

Even if that happens, many economists expect that mortgage rates, now hovering below 7 percent, will stay in the 7-percent range in the months ahead, helping to support the housing market this year

Consumer confidence, jolted by the Sept. 11 terror attacks, has improved recently, a sign that consumers, the lifeblood of the economy, won't retrench in the coming months

Consumer spending accounts for two-thirds of all economic activity in the United States

half base, fancier crown molding and wainscoting in dining rooms

Two of the plans place the laundry on the first floor, two in a closet on the upper level near the bedrooms

Cement siding and cultured stone are primary exterior materials

Buyers can order all kinds of options including unique concrete steps to grade from basements ($9,500), greenhouse option, extra space and a skylight in the kitchen/nook ($5,300), and a bonus room on a third level ($15,900)

"We have hundreds of options to choose from," Straub said. "We want people to live their dream"

All four of the plans have been constructed as models

The Lindenhurst, an exterior unit of 1,953 square feet, features a living room, dining room, family room and kitchen/nook on the main level

Three bedrooms normally are up, but the model showcases a grandmaster suite that substitutes a sitting area for the third bedroom

Base price of the Lindenhurst is $309,975. The model has about $80,000 in upgrades

The Eastport is an open plan of 2,222 square feet that also contains a living room, dining room, family room and kitchen/nook down, three bedrooms — all with volume ceilings — down and two baths up

Base price is $294,975, with $20,000-$30,000 of upgrades in the model. The Pentwater, 1,987 square feet, also is fairly open with a dining room, family room and kitchen/nook on the main living/entertaining floor, three bedrooms up

Base price is $284,975, with the model showing $40,000-$50,000 in upgrades

The Eastport Elite is the same basic plan as the Eastport, except it's an end unit. Base price is $314,975

"They're all great floor plans for entertaining," said Lisa Markwardt, sales manager at The Arbors

Most units are clustered four to a building. The Arbors is serviced by city water, sewers and sidewalks. It's within the Novi school boundaries

The property tax rate is about $38 per $1,000 of state taxable value, half of sales price for new construction. That means the owners of a $300,000 home there would pay about $5,700 the first year. The monthly association fee is currently $166 and that includes water

Pets are allowed

The sales office/models at The Arbors at Island Lake of Novi, (248) 596-0100, are open 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily

Thomas Ervin Let's Talk About Real Estate

"THE REALTOR'S PARTNER"

When you list your home with a Realtor, he or she becomes your agent and acts of your behalf. It is the Realtor's duty to provide marketing expertise so that you have the best chance of selling your property for the highest possible price. Don't, however, make the mistake of thinking that the sale of the house is entirely in the hands of the Realtor. Some things are out of the Realtor's control and actually are the responsibility of you, the seller. For this reason, you should look upon your relationship with your Realtor as a partnership. Here are the things you can do to help your Realtor accomplish a successful sale on your behalf.

Price It Right

Only you can set the actual asking price. The Realtor can advise you based on recent market data, but the final decision is up to you. Don't handcuff your agent with an unrealistic asking price. Remember, the price should be high enough to give you the highest possible profit but also reasonable enough to be attractive to potential buyers.

Fix Up and Clean Up

Only you can control the appearance of your property. A clean and attractive house sells faster and at a higher price than one that is not. Be prepared to spend a few dollars before putting your house on the market. This money could be the best investment you'll ever make. If your house is not in good condition, the buyer will make you pay to repair it anyway. He or she will accomplish this by making you a below-market offer.

Co-operate During Showings

Don't try to interfere during showings. Although the Realtor does not know your house as well as you do, he or she does know the needs of the buyer and how to best handle the buyer.
