Chorus to D.C.

The Plymouth Community Chorus recently took a trip to Washington D.C. to perform at the National Cathedral and came away with at least one interesting experience. According to communications chairperson Eunice Taylor, a member of the group began humming the National Anthem during an anti-American demonstration across the street from the White House. The rest of the group joined in and according to Taylor, were soon drawing applause from passers by.

We were always moved by the reactions of those passing by, Taylor said. There was lots of applause, thumbs up and more than a few tears. We were truly proud to be Americans and announce it to the world. The group is currently selling 2003 Entertainment Books to help fund musical scholarships and charitable activities. The books cost $30 and are available by calling (734) 459-6829.

Schools eye artificial turf for field

BY TONY BRUSCATO

A synthetic grass surface may be in the works for the varsity football stadium at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park. The school district has received permission from the state Department of Treasury to use $1.3 million from the 1997 bond issue passed by voters to construct Plymouth High School

"Soon we will have three high school football teams, three boys varsity soccer teams, three girls varsity soccer teams and the marching band using the same field," interim superintendent Jim Ryan said. "The question is, can we handle all the games on that field the way it is? We believe an artificial surface will be a good investment for our students." Last year, a football game had to be canceled because of an unsafe playing surface, and a marching band competition had to be moved to South Lyon as a result of a muddy field. The real problem, according to Ken Jacobs, the district's executive director of support services, is two-fold. "The track has areas where it's caved it, and is unusable. We just can't make any more repairs to it," said Jacobs. "It's a problem with the drains. Some of the drains under the football field are collapsing as it goes underneath the track in certain locations." The field needs to be torn up to repair the drains and build a new track. The second problem is there are too many teams using the field. "It wasn't able to hold up with two schools using the field," said Jacobs. "What will happen when we add more

Nancy Petrocelli was so excited after Wednesday's Old Village Restaurant Crawl she's already reserved 20 tickets for next year's event. Petrocelli, who lives in Old Village and works at Coldwell Banker-Schweitzer, thinks the event (she's been to all three) is getting better every year. "I already ordered 20 tickets for next year, because I'm going to have a party," she said. "One of our favorites is Grecian Cafe, those guys do a tremendous job. Shelley's was fantastic, and Station 885 outdid themselves. By most accounts, Petrocelli wasn't the only one happy with the third-annual event. The Plymouth Chamber of Commerce sold about 270 tickets, nearly twice as many as last year. Seven restaurants took part - Grecian Cafe, Shelley's,

Projects delayed for veto over-ride

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER

As a result of Gov. John Engler's veto of $852 million in revenue sharing money, the Plymouth City Commission Monday night delayed several projects when it tabled $106,000 in expenditures for a city hall master plan, a new telephone system, a sprinkler system for Kellogg Park and a security system for the Department of Municipal Services. "We were promised they (the legislature) would not take away our revenue sharing, but they have. Now they're saying they're going to override the governor's veto. But I don't believe it until I see it," said Commissioner Michele Potter, who made the motion to table the spending projects. "I'm not willing to spend any of the taxpayers' dollars on things until we have a clear understanding on where we stand with the budget."

Teens talk about their experiences with drinking

IN THEIR OWN WORDS

As summer interns for the Observer, Greg Migliore, Katy Batdorff and Christine Broda wanted to give a voice to young adults willing to talk about their experiences with alcohol. The young adults profiled in the following stories live right here in our own backyard. Over the course of this two-part series, which appears today and Thursday, take the time to get to know these young adults and to understand what life is like in their own words.

BY CHRISTINE BRODA AND GREG MIGLIORE
STAFF WRITERS

At about 11 p.m. on July 19, four cars rolled into the parking lot of a Sunoco gas station in Canton. This was not a typical Friday night for the dozen teenagers who piled out of the vehicles, talking on cell phones. Usually by this time they would have found a place to hang out, a place where they would be free to party and drink with friends. "Everything went so wrong - it'd be off the hook at my house right now," Casper, 22, said, lamenting the evening's dire partying prospects. Casper's original plan to throw a bash at his house was foiled when his parents didn't leave town as expected. While others repeatedly dialed numbers, trying to reach someone who might know of something going on, Drew, 17, leaned against the hood of his friend's car. Although he had come all the way from his home in Port Huron to hang out with friends, he was apparently unfazed by the lack of party destination. Rather, Drew was looking forward to enjoying the fifth of E.J. Brandy VS O.P. he was about to split with his friend, Matt, 18, of Plymouth. "That's my s---," he said, explaining that E.J. Brandy chased with Pepsi is his favorite drink. Although he is well under the legal drinking age, Drew has developed a preference for liquor since he started drinking at age 12. "I've been hanging out with an older crowd all my life," he said, explaining that many of his initial drinking experiences stemmed from the influence of his brother, who is three years older. "My dad knows (I drink) and my mom probably has her suspicions, but I tell her I don't like it," he said. "My dad doesn't mind and my mom probably wouldn't care - she's an alcoholic."

Drew dropped out of high school after 10th grade and started working 50 hours per week at a restaurant. He says he plans to go back to school for his GED after he turns 18.

'THE CAPTAIN MAKES IT HAPPEN'

Joe, 16, of Canton, shares Drew's taste for liquor. His favorite is Captain Morgan's rum. "The captain makes it happen," he said. In a pinch, however, he said he will drink just about anything and usually gets alcohol from older friends.

Joe dropped out of Wayne Memorial High School after the ninth grade because of "weed and dumb stuff" and is now home-schooled. He said he was athletic in middle school and played on the basketball team.

Joe started drinking after getting caught with marijuana and said he would probably stop drinking for the same reason.

Mark, 18, of Canton graduated in June from

First look

Open house offers glimpse of new high school

BY CHRISTINE BRODA
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth High School opened its doors for the first time on Tuesday to throngs of students and parents eager to see the new building they'll call home for the next four years.

In an effort to make the transition to high school smooth for the first-ever Wildcat class, PHS hosted an open house for incoming freshmen and their parents to tour the new facilities as well as meet members of administration, counselors, teachers and coaches.

"This is what we've been waiting for, to see the kids' faces when they see this building for the first time," said Barb Zdrodowski, secretary to PHS Principal Michael T. Bee. "This is what all the hard work has been for."

According to Zdrodowski, all the long days and nights spent preparing for the open house and the upcoming school year paid off when she felt the energy of the crowd packed into the student union Tuesday night.

"We are just filling this room, it's phenomenal," Zdrodowski said, explaining that she sent out more than 460 invitations for the event. "And what an incredible turnout from the staff - this is fabulous."

WILDCAT SPIRIT

Bee kicked off the evening with a spirited welcome to future Wildcat students and parents. After expressing his excitement about the upcoming year, the new principal introduced members of the faculty and coaching staff, many of whom were clad in the school's colors of black and silver.

According to Bee, the purpose of the night was two-fold.

"We wanted to allow our students and parents to see their high school building first," he said. "We've worked all last year meeting with the middle schoolers and this is the next step in that relationship."

Like Zdrodowski, Bee was enthusiastic about the night as well as the students' response to the forthcoming year.

"I think they've got a most marvelous place to learn," he said. "I could not have better hand-picked a group (of faculty) if I had the whole world to choose from."

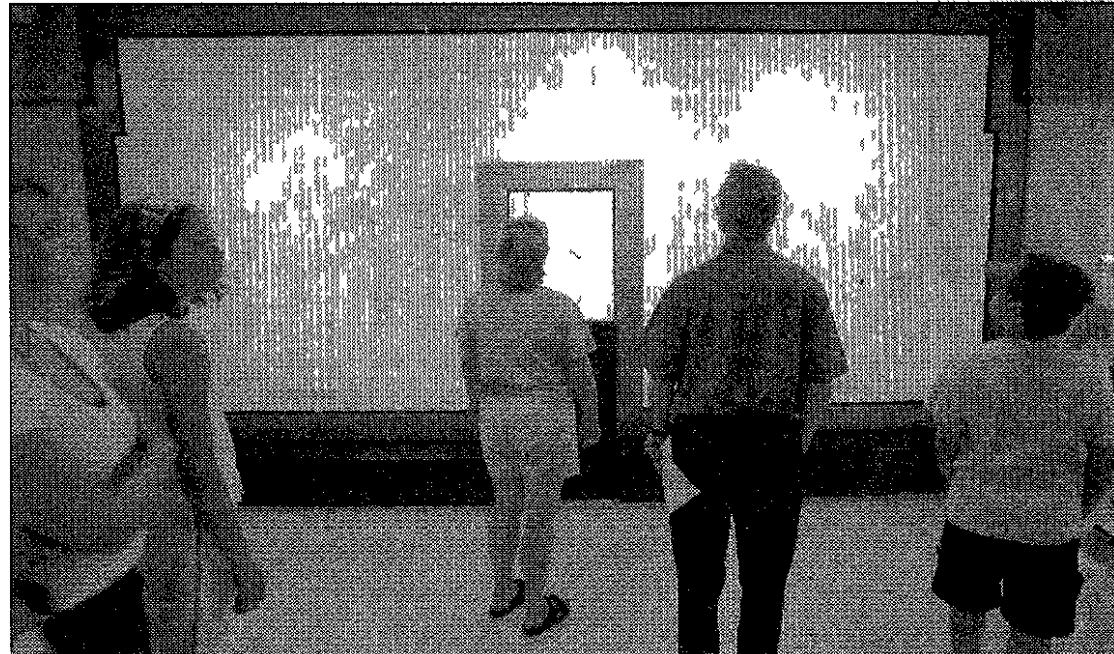

Bee said the message he wanted to send to freshmen was "be involved, be involved, be involved."

"There's something for everyone," he said. "(Students) need to take advantage of that."

English teacher Marybeth Turner agrees opportunities for students at Plymouth are exciting because everything is so new. That's one reason she transferred to Plymouth after teaching at Salem for four years.

"I loved Salem. I was enormously happy there but it's fun to do something new," she said. "The opportunity to be founding faculty in a new building is so rare. I think it'll be a really fun opportunity."

Turner is most excited about the energy of the new students

Parents and students admire the much-talked-about wall mural inside the new high school during an open house and tour of the building.

"Their enthusiasm is contagious," she said. "We had a really great turnout tonight. They were really itching to get into this building."

NEW TRADITIONS

Turner will also serve as advisor to the Plymouth Executive Council, the student government body that presides over individual class councils. According to her, the group of about 20 students has already met to work on plans for homecoming.

"We're starting a lot of traditions, it's really very exciting," she said. "We want to try and make it different."

On the sports side of things, Athletic Director Terry Sawchuk said he was gearing up for a great first year of athletics at the new school.

"The interest (in sports) has been unbelievable," Sawchuk said. "We have great numbers (of athletes) so far."

Sawchuk joined the rest of the coaching staff in recruiting middle school students for PHS athletics throughout last school year. And although all Wildcat teams will field only freshmen the first year, Sawchuk said he expected Plymouth athletes to be competitive on the freshmen and junior varsity level.

"The key for us is that we have high expectations for our kids," he said. "We expect them to work harder because they're behind the eight ball a little bit. But we've summoned a pretty good staff (and) all the coaches are supportive of each other."

Incoming freshman Sean Dillon is one student-athlete looking forward to starting high school as a Wildcat.

"It's exciting to be the first to do everything," the Canton resident said, explaining that he plans to play soccer for Plymouth in the fall and has already been conditioning with the team for a few weeks.

In addition to soccer, Dillon's mom, Elaine, is looking forward to all the opportunities available at the new school. She's particularly excited about the library, computer labs and state-of-the-art technology.

But except for less crowded halls and smaller class sizes, Elaine said she didn't expect the high school experience to be that different for freshmen like her son.

"I don't think there will be a lot of change," she said. "It's up to the individual and what he makes of it."

According to the Michigan Municipal League, the governor's veto means the City of Plymouth would lose $450,000, which is 42 percent of the total revenue sharing money received from the state Plymouth Township stands to lose more than $700,000, or 27 percent

Commissioners unanimously passed a resolution urging the state legislature to override Engler's veto

"The legislature already cut over $200,000 of our budget, said Commissioner Ron Loisel. "That's a huge amount for us to cut without reducing things like fire, police, the kinds of services we want as citizens"

Mayor Pro-Tem Colleen Pobur blames Engler for putting communities in the middle of a political game

"It's really disappointing and disheartening that the governor would make something this important a political football," said Pobur

A lot of communities are in really, really dire shape, and the cuts in revenue sharing is a threat

"He did this to give his lieutenant governor (Dick Posthumous) a leg up in the election process, and I find it vile," added Pobur "I think there's no question in my mind the veto will be overridden"

Commissioners want a veto of the override, no more, and no less

"Additional legislation to address it is not going to address our problem We need a veto override," said Commissioner Stella Greene "Anything we can do to impress on our legislators the importance of following through on this is really crucial"

Plymouth-Canton school board members are going to consider replacing the current football field with astroturf teams?"

That's the same logic that led to South Lyon spending $630,000 to install artificial turf on its football field last summer Superintendent William Pearson, who remembers the muddy field conditions when his daughter was a member of the Plymouth Canton Marching Band said the weather is just too unpredictable and the upkeep too expensive

"You get a limited amount of days you can use the field in the fall and we knew we had football soccer the band and local community groups that wanted to use it" said Pearson "It looks gorgeous, and you don't have to spend a lot of money on maintenance The amount of money to put it in is not insignificant, but it's well worth it"

Ryan said the board may discuss the issue at its Aug 27 meeting "If the board decides to move forward, we need to get bids out by December, so we can install it next summer," said Ryan "If all goes well, we'll have a new artificial surface for soccer and football, and a new track around the surface, by the fall of 2003"

Part of the Plymouth High School construction included building a new football stadium complete with lights press box and concession stand However the district promised North Pointe subdivision residents, who live next to the stadium, the facility would be used only to play junior varsity games to cut down on noise and traffic

School board Trustee Judy Mardigian isn't certain spending more than a million dollars on the artificial turf is the best use of district money

"I'm not an expert on turf science, but maybe we can explore other options for the field," she said "I think the money could be better spent inside the buildings, or purchasing additional buses"

Ryan believes that with the improvements to the track and football field, as well as the newly constructed baseball fields at the high school complex, along with other amenities like restroom facilities and ticket booths, Plymouth Canton could put itself in a position to host playoffs and league meets

'Legal' drinker celebrates with mom, friends

Tim's Mom Barb met him at the first bar Good Time Charley's to buy him his first legal drink

BY CHRISTINE BRODA
STAFF WRITER

At 10:55 p.m. on July 24, Tim stood in the bedroom of his Ann Arbor apartment clutching a beer, a football tucked under the arm of his free hand.

According to the soon-to-be 21-year-old, it was his second beer of the night. So far, his shot count was up to six.

Since he started drinking shortly after 9:30 p.m., the University of Michigan senior had consumed a total of eight alcoholic drinks.

And the night was far from over.

Ten minutes after the bedroom scene, Tim's roommate Trevor wrestled the football away from him on the balcony of their third-story apartment. Tim fought hard to maintain control of the pigskin, but in the end, all he had to show for his efforts was a spilt beer. Trevor raced back into the apartment, arms raised in victory, shouting "Score!"

Tim dutifully made his way to the kitchen, while a third friend poured him another shot. Tim took a deep breath through his nose, closed the faucet and chased it with a long drink of water.

The events unfolding that night were not part of some bizarre hazing ritual, but they were a sort of rite of passage.

As is common practice for many young people on the eve of their 21st birthday, Tim was preparing to celebrate his right to legally drink alcohol by getting well drunk.

Friends of the Canton resident had gathered at the apartment to pre-drink before accompanying Tim to the bar where, at the stroke of midnight, the birthday boy would confidently display his ID.

DRINKING GAMES

Tim explained that the football was part of a game devised by a friend to help him stay focused in the face of rising levels of inebriation — every time Tim lost possession of the ball, he had to take another shot.

The waiter at Charley's brought Tim a pitcher of water and advised Tim to wait ten minutes between shots.

At 11:30 p.m., Tim's drink tally was up to three beers and seven shots. But for as much alcohol as he was taking in, Tim was sure to pace himself with water. He wanted to have fun, but he also wanted to stay in control.

In less than half an hour, Tim would be reaching a significant milestone. Although one's 21st birthday is an event anxiously anticipated by many young adults, Tim said he didn't really feel any different.

"In all seriousness, I'm not really that excited about it (turning 21), he said. "It's not like it's my first drink or my first time at a bar. I'm looking at it as a cheap night."

Five minutes before 12 a.m., Tim and a group of about 12 other friends left the apartment and made the short walk to Good Time Charley's, a popular restaurant and bar in the central campus area of Ann Arbor.

At 12:14 a.m., Tim — a large grin spread across his face — presented his driver's license to the host at Charley's. The host carefully checked the date on the ID and, wishing him a happy birthday, stamped a purple roller-skate onto Tim's hand, validating his legal right to be there.

DRINKING PANTS

Right inside the door of Charley's, Tim's mom, Barb, was waiting with a birthday present for her son. Tim opened the package and unveiled a pair of black pajama pants decorated with brightly colored bottles and cans.

"Drinking pants!" Barb explained with a smile.

Tim chats with his friend's girlfriend about the new drinking pants that his Mom bought him for his birthday.

Mother and son made their way to a long table in the back of the restaurant. Before even taking their seats, Barb flagged down a waiter and ordered her son his first legal drink — a large lime margarita with salt.

At 12:40 a.m., two more rounds of shots were lined up in front of Tim, whose smile was becoming increasingly more broad. This time the birthday boy downed a Prairie Fire (tequila and Tabasco sauce) followed by a Three Wise Men (Jack Daniels, Jim Beam and Jose Cuervo).

Five minutes later, Tim sat down at the head of the table as friends began ordering shots from the menu.

The first to arrive was called a "Stoplight" and it came in three separate shooter glasses — Southern Comfort and cranberry juice for the red light, vodka and orange juice for the yellow light, and melon liqueur and Sprite for the green light.

By 12:40 a.m., two more rounds of shots were lined up in front of Tim, whose smile was becoming increasingly more broad. This time the birthday boy downed a Prairie Fire (tequila and Tabasco sauce) followed by a Three Wise Men (Jack Daniels, Jim Beam and Jose Cuervo).

KNOWING LIMITS

When a shot called "The Dragon" (151 and Tabasco sauce) arrived a few minutes later, Tim, recognizing his limits and anticipating his intolerance for the potent drink, hid the glass behind a stack of menus.

"I can't do shots of anything — I gag," Tim said as he sucked down water through a straw. The waiter had brought him the large pitcher of water and, as a measure of safety, told Tim to wait at least 10 minutes between shots.

The waiter explained that a lot of 21-year-olds come to Charley's to celebrate their birthday, and the restaurant has a policy to keep the new drinkers safe and under control.

"We see a lot of twenty ones," the waiter said. "We're told to keep it responsible at all times, but we want them to have fun."

Glancing over at Tim, he added, "But the last thing I want is for him to throw up at my table because I have to clean it up."

At the other end of the table, Tim's mom, who was socializing with her son's friends while keeping an eye on his actions, said she wasn't overly concerned about the celebration.

"I wasn't worried," she said. "He's a very responsible young man — I think he knows his limits. But I can't believe he can handle his liquor like he does — I would be on the floor."

An hour into his actual birthday on the 20th, the shots appeared to be taking their toll on Tim. After downing a fruity shot that consisted of peach schnapps, cranberry juice and Jagermeister, Tim tried to explain he liked it because it smelled good because the sense of smell comes from the olfactory bulb. "I can't even remember what part of the brain it (sense of smell) comes from and that's my specialty.

To avoid drinking and driving, Tim and his friends walked everywhere they went, even to a party after the bar closed to continue drinking.

At 1:10 a.m., the waiter came by to check on the birthday boy again and told him to take it easy.

"Do me a favor — slow up a little," he said to Tim, explaining that he could stay until last call at 2 a.m. if necessary.

ANOTHER LAST CALL

Ten minutes and two shots later, Tim announced he was ready to go. After a quick bathroom break, Tim and company made their way to another bar down the street.

"We're hitting another last call right now," he said, explaining that this next bar was the fun place.

"I've been here eight, seven, eight or nine times," he recalled. With a Bud Light in his hand at 1:40 a.m., Tim reflected on the events of the night.

"I'm excited that it's my birthday, but I've done this same exact thing before," Tim said. "The thing that was the coolest was that my mom came — I loved that."

Tim explained that, although he got fairly intoxicated, he still managed to stay in control of himself and the evening.

"I stood up to my friends — they were pushing me to do shots," he said. "At the bar, I was selective with my shots. I drank more than usual, but I didn't max out. I wanted to have fun and I did."

Binge drinking has serious consequences

While college students may not think they're doing themselves harm by "binge" drinking, consuming too much alcohol in too little time can have serious physical consequences.

According to the National Institute on Alcoholism and Alcoholism, the U.S. government's recommended "safe" levels for alcohol consumption are one drink per day for women and two drinks per day for men. One bottle of beer, one 5-ounce glass of wine or 1.5 ounces of 80-proof liquor all meet the definition of a "standard drink."

Binge drinking is defined by researchers as five or more drinks in a row for men and four or more for women. A 180-pound man's blood alcohol level will be approximately .04 after two drinks and will rise to .11, well over the legal limit, after five.

For women, the effects of alcohol can be impairing after just two drinks. A 140-pound woman, for instance, would have a blood alcohol level of .09 after only three drinks.

The Web site www.collegedrinkingnews.net relates results of a Harvard School of Public Health College Alcohol Study, which showed two out of five students on college campuses binge drink.

Alcohol is involved in two-thirds of college student suicides and 95 percent of violent crime on campus. Alcohol is involved in 90 percent of campus rapes, according to Columbia University's National Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse. A study on campus rape published in the Journal of American College Health found 73 percent of the assaultants and 55 percent of rape victims used alcohol or other drugs prior to the assault.

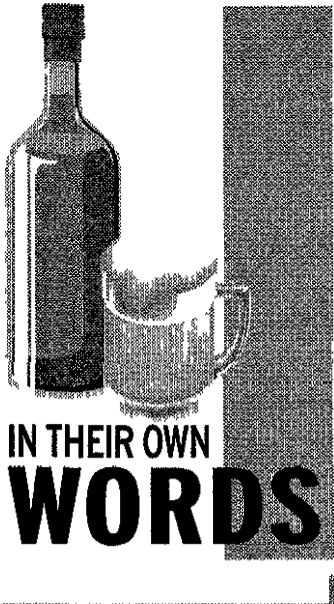

Three out of four non-binge drinkers and abstainers who lived in dormitories or fraternities and sororities reported experiencing at least one second-hand effect from binge drinking. The 1999 Harvard survey found that 36 percent had been insulted or humiliated and 71 percent had sleep or study interrupted. A smaller share of students had experienced an unwanted sexual advance (23 percent), been assaulted (11 percent) or had property damaged (16 percent).

Each year, college students spend about $5.5 billion on alcohol, mostly beer. The annual overall costs of alcohol use by those under 21 is estimated at more than $58 billion dollars, according to the U.S. Department of Justice, Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention. This estimate, based on current health and criminal justice data, assigns costs associated with violent crime, traffic crashes, treatment, and alcohol poisonings, among other variables.

For more information about the affects of binge drinking, go to www.collegedrinkingnews.net or www.brad21.com, a Web site established by the family of Bradley McCue, a Michigan State student who died on his 21st birthday of alcohol poisoning brought on by consuming 24 shots of liquor in less than two hours.

DRINKING HABITS

IN THEIR OWN WORDS

Starkweather Education Center in Plymouth Like Drew, he also started drinking at a young age because he hung out with an older crowd

A drinker since the eighth grade, Mark said he prefers the taste of tequila and beer, especially Budweiser

He relies on friends who are 21 or have fake IDs to buy drinks for him. When all else fails, Mark said he and friends will occasionally steal their liquor

Now that he is of legal age, Casper doesn't have to worry about how to get alcohol. His only concern is where to drink it

The Wayne resident said he will sometimes go to bars on weekends or drink at other friends' houses

Despite the fact he occasionally hangs out with a younger crowd, Casper said he does not like to purchase liquor for minors

An 18-year-old female, who wished not to be named, migrated to where Drew and Matt were standing next to a car. Like the rest of the teenagers, she appeared to be losing her patience with the lack of action. "I need a beer," she announced

The girl, who said she had been drinking since age 13, added that she had also delved into drugs during the two and a half years she was going out with her now ex-boyfriend. She was proud, however, of having made significant changes to her lifestyle since breaking up with the 19-year-old

"Now I got my s straight," she said, explaining that she has a 4.0 grade point average, is on the honor roll and plans to continue attending classes in the fall

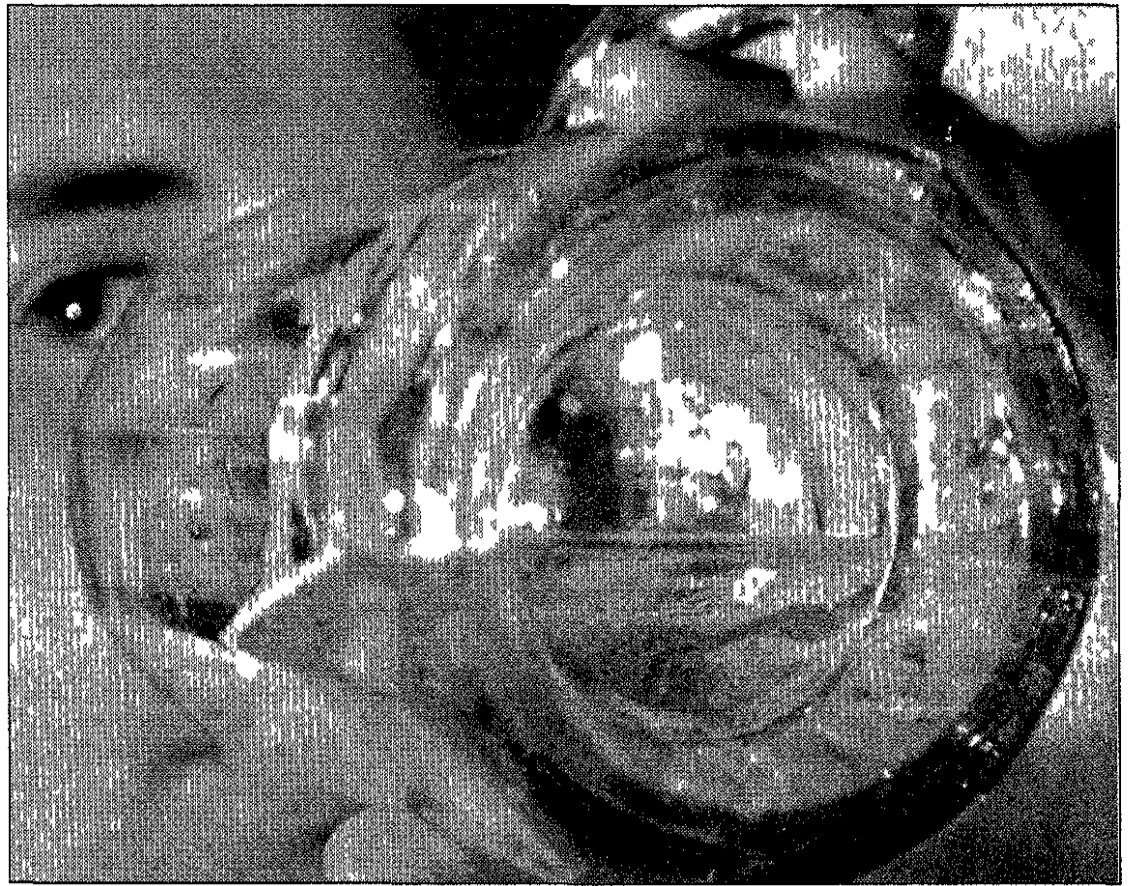

The girl, who says she now has a good job, also said her mom knows she was a drinker

"My mom's OK with what I do, but she doesn't really know what I do," she said

The girl also has a fake ID she says she obtained from a "carnie" at a recent festival. She explained that the man just gave her the ID, which says she is 26 years old, while she was waiting in line for a ride

"It works - I've had it for a month. It looks nothing like me," she said, explaining that she has successfully bought alcohol at gas stations with the ID

According to the girl, the most alcohol she ever consumed at one time was on her 18th birthday in the beginning of July

She helped finish off two fifths of liquor with three people before drinking a 40-ounce and a six-pack of beer by herself. She also downed three beers using a bong, which is an apparatus that allows users to drink an entire beer in one swallow

The girl said she blacked out at 10 p.m. - she had been drinking since 2 p.m.

"I don't know how I'm still alive," she said, explaining that she never plans to drink that much at one time again

"I'm lucky if I could take a fifth," Drew said as he listened to the girl explain the events of her birthday. "You won't run across too many guys that can do that."

GETTING 'SMASHED'

When asked about the frequency of his drinking habits, Drew said it depends on what's going on and how he feels. He said he usually drinks about three nights per week, although some weeks he won't drink at all

"It all varies," he said. "Sometimes I drink after work to relax. I don't drink to get drunk all the time. I can control it - I'm not an alcoholic. Sometimes I do drink for the buzz, like if I'm depressed. Once a week I'll get totally annihilated - just smashed."

Matt said he hung out with older kids, which is one reason why he started using substances. Unlike Joe, he is unrepentant for smoking marijuana

"I've always hung out with bad kids," he said. "I liked weed. I'll probably smoke it till the day I die."

Matt said he was supposed to graduate this year, but dropped out of school for two years. He said he was on the honor roll in middle school

According to him, alcohol was often present in his home

"My dad had alcohol in the house at all times," he said

At about midnight, nearly an hour after they arrived at the gas station, someone spotted a police car pulling into a nearby parking lot

"That 'po-po' rollin' in here," Drew informed his friends. "Cover up that fifth."

The teenagers scattered to their cars and, shouting directions to the next destination, drove off into the night

Jail millage renewal approved

BY GREG MIGLIORE
STAFF WRITER

Wayne County residents Tuesday approved the renewal of the jail millage, Proposal J.

With 94.4 percent of precincts reporting Wednesday afternoon, it passed with 54.6 percent (161,684-134,641).

In the suburbs, the proposal got through by more than 10,000 votes.

It passed in Detroit by more than 15,000.

The proposal renews the 0.9432 millage for 10 years. It will cover jail construction and operation, penalty options such as work release, as well as the county's juvenile detention facility.

The 10 years will maintain programs and retire debts.

"It's extremely important," said Jenel Heard, assistant county executive and director of community justice. "I'm just glad the county doesn't have to consider shutting down 800 plus (jail) beds."

Garden City Police Chief David Harvey said he thinks the millage is double dipping.

"My problem with the jail millage is I didn't think it was supposed to be a recurring expense to the taxpayers," he said.

Harvey also said without the millage, his daily expenses would increase, but he would rather decide what services he wants than be told by the county what he needs.

"It's a dilemma," he said. "If we lose the millage, my day-to-day expenses would go up."

"I think what's more needed is a re-examination of county services."

The original millage was passed in 1988 and then renewed in 1998 for four years. Since it was passed, the county has added 1,070 beds to the jail system, and built a new juvenile facility, which opened in 1999 and added 188 beds.

"We have to fund the jails to make sure we have someplace to keep the prisoners incarcerated," said Anthony Klukowski, who voted for the proposal. "I don't want them on the street."

One tenth of the millage goes to the juvenile facility and local programs.

"The renewal of the millage is critical for the operation of the jail and our new juvenile facility," Heard said.

The owner of a $100,000 house will pay about $49 a year. The renewal is expected to raise more than 37 million in property tax revenue in 2002.

The original millage was passed to help ease the county's lack of jail space, which was leading to the release of more than 3,000 people per year.

Crime has dropped 28 percent through out the county from 1991-2000.

"How we treat criminal activity in our society is tremendously important to my own well-being and the well-being of the people who are not in jail," said Sharon Helzer of Livonia.

The chamber added a new attraction this year — a horse-drawn carriage to transport crawlers from eatery to eatery.

It was a big hit. "The carriage ride was a tremendous addition," Petrocelli said. "Every time it went by, it was full. It was a fabulous evening."

Tremendous enough that chamber executive director Fran Toney is hoping to make even more tickets available next year.

She's already contacted restaurant owners to see how many more people, if any, they can accommodate.

"We don't want people having to stand in long lines, but there was such tremendous demand this year that I'm hoping we can do more next year," Toney said. "We had beautiful weather, wonderful food, the carriage rides and wonderful people. How could you not love it?"

Toney would like to do a similar event in downtown Plymouth, with so many new restaurants, like Compan's and Sean O'Callaghan's, complementing established places such as the Box Bar.

"We have all the restaurants now," Toney said. "It would be a natural."

Butter-up

If you love smooth creamy butter then check out www.buttersbest.com. Sponsored by the American Dairy Association the Web site is a one stop shop for butter information.

It's easy and fun to navigate and you'll find lots of recipes to butter up family and friends along with cooking and baking tips and answers to commonly asked questions like how to make clarified butter.

To make one pound of clarified butter you will need about 1 1/4 pounds of unsalted butter. Melt butter over moderate heat. Stir butter but don't let it boil. This allows the milk solids to separate from the liquid butter. Upon heating butter will separate into three distinct layers: foamy milk solids on top, clarified butter in the middle and milk solids on the bottom.

As the butter continues to warm, skim froth from the surface and discard. When froth is eliminated, carefully pour off clear melted clarified butter into another container, leaving the milk solids at the bottom of the saucepan. Discard milk solids. Clarified butter can be used immediately or kept in an airtight container in the refrigerator for up to three or four weeks. Re-melt to use.

Back to School

It's time to start thinking about school lunches and you'll find lots of healthy suggestions at Whole Foods Market including kid size boxes of raisins, animal cookies and peanut butter. Here are some more tips from the folks at Whole Foods.

Substitute chocolate soy milk for regular milk. Replace fruit punch boxes with 100 percent organic grape, apple or orange juice. Make vegetables incredibly edible. Put carrots in a cinnamon raisin pita pocket or top celery with peanut butter and a sprinkle of raisins. Whole Foods has locations in Ann Arbor, West Bloomfield and Troy. Nostalgic snacks help you celebrate the Dream Cruise

BY LANA MINI
STAFF WRITER

Bob Wilson cringes a little inside when people request a glass of water with lemon.

"It was never like that in the old days. Water was water."

His inner frown doesn't last long. Wilson knows how to laugh and roll with change. Business is brisk at Don's Traverse City Diner, 48730 Grand River in Novi, one of the few classic diners that remain in metro Detroit. Wilson's happy that people still enjoy them.

Besides, most customers prefer chocolate milkshakes over lemon water anyway — especially if they drive classic cars.

The Motor City area, of course, loves the automobile and the Woodward Avenue Dream Cruise is its biggest honor. Milkshakes and hot dogs are classic cars fare, and next weekend businesses like Don's of Traverse City, A&W, and other drive-in restaurants will be filled with car lovers wanting 1950s style meals.

There might be a lemon in the water nowadays, but other than that, little has changed on the menu at places like Don's.

"People still want milkshakes made with hand-dipped chocolate, vanilla and strawberry ice cream," Wilson said. "We give that to them — we don't use machines. And they like the old-fashioned atmosphere — girls dressed in pink using the old silver money changers."

The first place that allowed Americans to eat in their cars was The Pig Stand in 1921. A&Ws followed years later and Bob's Big Boy in Southern California really popularized drive-ins when the curbside drive-in was used in movies such as American Graffiti. The eateries created a place for teens to meet friends, look for dates and grab a 10 cent root beer. They were places for families to stop for a quick meal while discovering the joys of a vacation road trip across the country.

Don's is a classic diner and its sister location in Traverse City is a drive-in. A&W in Clawson has curbside service as do many Downriver A&W locations like Southgate and Taylor.

The servers at those locations aren't on roller skates but they are at Eddie's Drive-in on Jefferson Avenue in Mount Clemens. At Eddie's, roller-skating servers approach parked cars and serve foot-long Coney's and malts while listening to 1950s music.

Dutton-Goldfield pushes the quality envelope

Only last year, Dan Goldfield, one half of the partnership that makes up Dutton-Goldfield Winery, said, "In a period of only 10 years, a small contingent of growers and winemakers has made Sonoma Coast pinot noir the rival of any wine made anywhere. The exciting thing is we haven't come close to making our best wine."

OK, modesty will get you everywhere. The truth is that Dutton-Goldfield wines have caught the attention of pinot noir and chardonnay lovers in the know. We've been hot on these wines since we tasted the first releases in summer 2000. No sense telling our Observer-Eccentric readers about them because that would only have been dangling carrots — until now. The wines are here and this is the scoop.

COLD-CLIMATE GRAPEGROWING

Winemaker Dan Goldfield and his grapegrower partner Steve Dutton have promoted vineyards in California's coldest regions since the early 1990s. They cut their teeth on the coldest areas of the Russian River Valley appellation and make dynamite chardonnay and pinot noir from there.

They've pushed the envelope by developing vineyards in areas of western Sonoma County, such as Sonoma Coast, considered cattle grazing land only a few years ago. Even Marin County to the south, near the Point Reyes Peninsula, has vineyards that Dutton-Goldfield considers premium.

"In the Sonoma Coast appellation and other cold-coast regions of California," Dutton said, "site selection is crucial. The cold winds and heavy fogs are unforgiving. There, if your vineyard isn't just the right combination of elevation, exposure, variety and clone, you can easily end up with unripe grapes on your hands in late October. This isn't the kind of problem most California grapegrowers are used to facing. But when it all comes together, you've got grapes

A simple summer sauce from Italy

Pesto, once an exotic Italian sauce, is now so common and popular that it can be found ready-made on supermarket shelves. But it's much better home-made, and easy to make, especially in the summer when tomatoes are at their best.

Pesto originated in Genoa, where it is made with basil, olive oil, garlic, pine nuts, butter and grated cheese. Sicilians make a red-and-green pesto with cherry tomatoes and herbs. Whatever goes in it, pesto is good over pasta, on sliced tomatoes, or heaped on toasted bread. Traditionally made with a mortar and pestle, it can be prepared far more easily and quickly in a food processor or blender.

Pesto is easy to make, especially in the summer when tomatoes are at their best.

Pesto includes culinary herbs which contain natural antioxidant substances that help prevent and repair cell damage linked to cancer or heart disease. According to research by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, oregano and mint are extremely high in antioxidant power, as are dill, thyme and rosemary.

According to another study, herbs contain many cancer-fighting phytochemicals that stimulate the immune system, block carcinogenic damage to the DNA in our cells and inhibit a variety of hormones and enzymes associated with cancer development.

Cooking with herbs is also good for weight control. Herbs add flavor and richness to prepared dishes, easily replacing fat and salt. This Sicilian recipe contains no cheese and is best made with salted capers, available in specialty food stores. It shouldn't be hard to find sweet cherry tomatoes in July, but if you can't, farm-grown tomatoes, so plentiful at road stands and farmers' markets, are usually quite sweet at the height of summer.

ally drizzle in olive oil (Herbs and vegetables can also be hand-chopped, then placed in blender to puree with oil.)

Transfer pesto to a bowl. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Let sit 30 minutes to allow flavors to meld. Toss with hot, cooked spaghetti or other pasta, or spread on bruschetta (toasted slices of Italian bread).

Store leftover pesto in the refrigerator, tightly covered. Use within 24 hours. *Salt-cured capers are preferable to those preserved in vinegar, but rinse in tepid water to remove salt crystals.

Roast the corn and put the butter away

It's peak corn season right now, and time for simple ways to enjoy the natural sweetness of fresh corn-on-the-cob

Most folks equate corn-on-the-cob with plenty of melted butter. But you will be pleasantly astonished to discover, like the AICR staff who taste-tested this version, how wonderful corn can taste without butter. Really. No butter. Just plenty of juicy flavor.

As soon as corn is picked, its natural sugar begins to convert to starch - making the corn taste less sweet. So ideally, buy corn as soon after it's picked as you can, and cook it as quickly as possible. But even corn that has been trucked in or refrigerated is delicious grilled or roasted, which heightens the sweetness and adds a nice smoky taste.

When selecting corn, pick ears with bright green, tight-fitting husks and golden brown silk. The kernels should be milky, plump and in tightly-spaced rows that reach all the way to the tip of the ear.

Corn is believed to contain cancer-fighting properties. Recent studies suggest that higher consumption of lutein (part of the carotenoid family that includes beta-carotene) helps fight cancer. One study reported that women with the highest blood levels of lutein faced about half the incidence of breast cancer as those with the lowest. Other research shows that people with the highest dietary intake of lutein had a substantially lower incidence of colon cancer than those with the lowest intake.

Although yellow corn contains less lutein than dark green, leafy vegetables, it's still an excellent source of this cancer-protective phytochemical. Lutein may also reduce the risk of heart attack and stroke.

Corn roasted in the following way is so good you may want to roast a few extra ears and cut the kernels off the cob for salads, salsas, or soups.

ROASTED CORN WITH CUMIN AND LIME

- 1 Tbsp fresh lime juice
- 1 tsp ground cumin
- 1/2 tsp salt
- 1/4 tsp freshly ground black pepper
- 2 tsp extra virgin olive oil
- 6 ears fresh corn in the husk
- 2 limes cut lengthwise into wedges

Heat the grill or preheat the oven to 500 degrees.

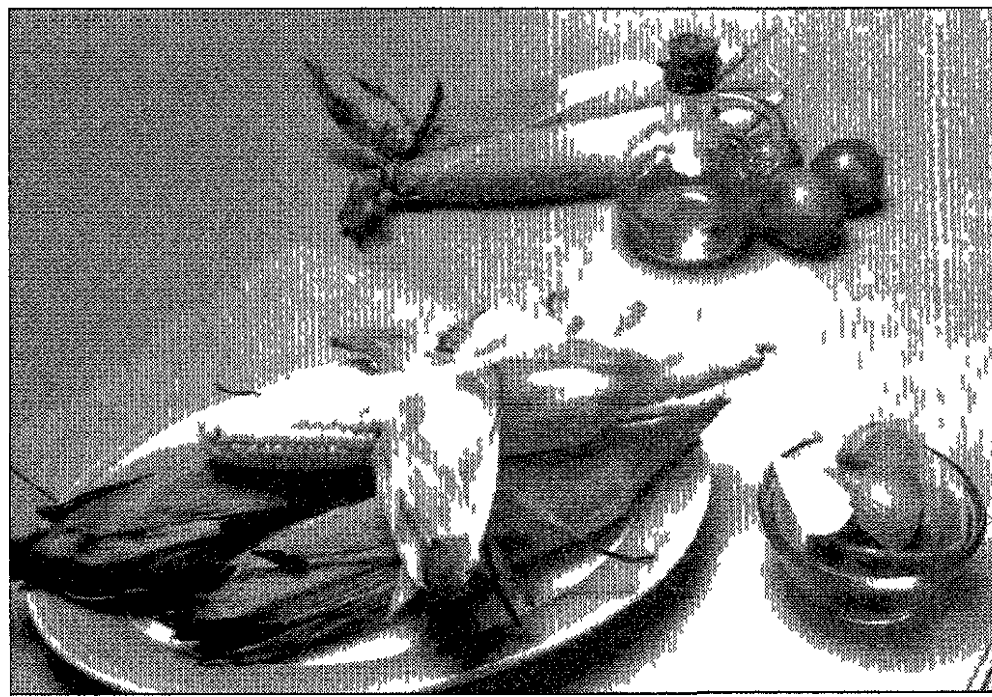

In a small bowl whisk together lime juice, cumin, salt, pepper and oil. Prepare corn one ear at a time. Pull off and discard the 2 or 3 tough outer leaves. Carefully pull back remaining leaves, one at a time, exposing as much of the ear as possible. (It is better to uncover only half the ear than to tear the husks.) Pull off all the silk.

Brush kernels with oil mixture, using just enough to coat corn lightly. Smooth folded leaves back into place, one by one, until ear is completely covered.

Arrange corn on the grill or place in oven. Roast 15 minutes. If using a grill, turn ears 2 or 3 times. (This is not necessary if oven-roasting.) Serve corn immediately, accompanied by additional salt, if desired, and lime wedges, which are squeezed over the corn as it is eaten.

Makes 6 servings. Per serving 91 calories, 3 g total fat (less than 1 g saturated fat), 17 g carbohydrate, 2 g protein, 2 g dietary fiber, 207 mg sodium.

no winemaker in the world would turn down'

Winemaker Dan Goldfield is not an industry newcomer. After graduating with an M.S. in Enology from the University of California, Davis, he worked at Robert Mondavi Winery, at the renowned Napa sparkling wine producer Schramsberg, at La Crema, long-known for pinot noir excellence. He developed Hartford Court, a winery in the Jackson Family Farms estates, also focused on cold-climate pinot noir and chardonnay grown in western Sonoma County.

What about the price? Because the yield per vine for pinot noir is small and the best require aging in premium French oak, the price of delicious pinots is high. But if you compare an ultra-premium quality producer like Dutton-Goldfield with a small-estate red Burgundy from France, California is the better buy.

There's chardonnay and then there's a rich and broad Dutton-Goldfield Dutton Ranch Chardonnay with a core of bright acidity achieved only when grapes are grown in a cold climate. So, no, this is not your average chardonnay at an average price.

■ 1999 Dutton-Goldfield Dutton Ranch Pinot Noir, Russian River Valley $40 delights with aromas of dried rose petals, fragrant dried leaves and exotic spices. High-toned dark cherry and other red berry fruit flavors carry through to the elegant and silky finish.

■ 2000 Dutton-Goldfield Maurice Galante Vineyard Pinot Noir, Marin County $50 is a dramatic wine statement with blackberry and dark Bing cherry aromas. Concentrated dark fruits mark flavors that last long in the lush finish.

Have fun experimenting with tofu

BY J.M. HIRSCH
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

Bad tofu recipes abound. Frankly, I blame it on the fact that soy is good for you. Seems the health benefits have persuaded everyone, and not just vegetarians anymore, to put tofu in everything from chocolate-chip cookies to ravioli.

Some ideas work. There are some exceptional soy-filled ravioli on the market. Many do not. Hunks of tofu may look like white chocolate chips, but taste tells a different story.

Frustrated to find one cookbook after another claiming to be the complete encyclopedia of how to turn tofu into anything from salad dressing to spare tires, I decided to cast a wide net over the tofu world and see what it caught.

The plan was simple: Call tofu manufacturers around the country and ask them for surprising, exciting, even unusual and, most important, tasty recipes that use tofu. From them I'd choose the most appealing. Not as easy a task as it seemed. For many tofu makers, English isn't a first (or second or third) language.

Also, tofu-making machinery apparently tends to be big and loud, because at some companies it was impossible to scream above the churning noises.

At those with whom communication was possible, some were bemused, others offended. 'Those recipes are proprietary,' one tofu-marketing woman told me.

Most were more giving. Soon my mailbox overflowed with nifty, if not always tasty, ideas for using bean curd.

Some, including creamy peanut-butter pie, sounded decadent. Others were outright disgusting, among them Russian noodle pudding - not even the cat would touch it.

In the end, three merited passing on.

Start with spicy Mumbai potatoes, an Indian take on the twice-baked favorite. This recipe, offered by Morinaga Nutritional Foods, maker of the very versatile Mori-Nu silken tofu line, puts tofu in its place: the background. It adds body to the dish, but doesn't detract from the flavors.

Then move on to Eden Foods vegetable saute. The plain name disguises creative ingredients including dried lotus root and dried tofu, which is dense and chewy, with a taste and texture remarkably different from regular tofu.

Finish your tofu experiments with the deviled tofu recipe offered by Small Planet Tofu.

This dish is easy to whip up, but packs plenty of flavor. Use it as a sandwich filling, or pate for crackers and vegetable sticks.

SPICY MUMBAI POTATOES

(Preparation 1 hour 15 minutes)

- 4 large Idaho or russet potatoes
- 2 teaspoons canola or olive oil
- 1 cup finely minced leeks
- 1 tablespoon finely grated ginger
- 1 clove garlic minced
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 1 teaspoon ground coriander
- 1/8 teaspoon turmeric
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cumin
- 1 cup fresh or frozen peas
- 3/4 cup firm silken tofu pureed
- 2 tablespoons chopped fresh cilantro
- Canola oil cooking spray

Preheat oven to 425° F. Wash and scrub each potato well. Dry and prick each with a fork a few times. Bake until tender, about 40 to 60 minutes depending on size of potato.

While potatoes bake, combine oil, leeks, ginger, garlic and salt in a large skillet and saute over a medium-high flame for 6 to 8 minutes, or until leeks are soft.

Add pepper, coriander, turmeric and cumin, and cook another 2 minutes. Add peas and cook until tender, about 5 minutes.

When the potatoes are done, remove from oven and allow to cool. Reduce oven to 350° F.

Cut the potatoes in half lengthwise and scoop out the innards, leaving the skins intact with about 1/4 inch of potato. Set the skins aside.

Transfer the scooped potato to a large bowl. Use a potato masher to combine the potatoes and tofu puree, then stir the leek mixture into the potatoes.

the business owned by his soon-to-be-in-laws, Bruce and Debbie Meek. "And burgers and fries are just as popular now as they were 25 years ago."

TIME STANDS STILL

Like life at Don's, little has changed at Larry Streetman's job since 1966 and that's just the way he likes it. T-Birds with white convertible tops still pull into his business at the A&W in Clawson. Customers still order root beer soda in glass mugs. The faces are the same too, except now those lovebird-customers from the 1950s and 1960s bring their children and grandchildren to show them what the good ol' days were like.

"It's something different for parents to show their kids," Streetman.

Streetman started working at A&W as a counter boy in 1966 when he was in the 10th grade. Today he and his wife Nancy are proud owners of A&W restaurants in Berkley and Clawson. Their children Rusty and Ron work there, too.

The biggest change Streetman has seen at A&W is requests for chicken sandwiches. Customers still ask about the difference between a root beer float and root beer cooler. Coolers are soda blended with ice cream to drink through a straw, floats are literally that - soda with floating ice cream meant to be eaten with a spoon.

What's also changed is that those customers who once dragged down Woodward Avenue now drive a little slower, showing respect for their now-classic cars.

Other than that, they still want burgers and Coney dogs loaded with everything. Low-cal food isn't requested much here. People want French fries instead, Streetman said. Enjoy car food at home.

Milk shakes and fries are cruisin' delights

CHOCOLATE MILK SHAKE THE EASY WAY

Put three tablespoons chocolate sauce in tall glass. Fill glass with cold milk or soymilk. Shake thoroughly and top with frozen whipped cream if desired.

Source: www.recipesource.com

COCOA MILK SHAKE

- 3 tablespoons cocoa
- 1/2 teaspoon sugar
- 1 pinch salt
- 1/4 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup milk
- 3 scoops vanilla ice cream

Mix cocoa and sugar with a little milk. Add remaining ingredients. Beat well. Add ice cream.

REAL ROOT BEER

- 7 cups distilled or purified water
- 1 1/2 cups white sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon of active dry yeast
- 1 teaspoon of root beer concentrate

(Look for the concentrate in the spice and extract section of your grocery store.)

Measure the water into a glass bowl and heat it in a microwave on the high setting for three minutes. You can also heat the water in a non-aluminum pan on a stove burner until the water is lukewarm. Do not overheat it though, or you will deactivate the yeast. Add the sugar, dry yeast, and root beer concentrate to the water and stir slowly until the sugar and yeast dissolve.

Bottling Your Soda

Set a small plastic funnel into the mouth of a 2-liter plastic bottle. Use a small cup or ladle to pour the soda mixture through the funnel. Fill the bottle, leaving about 2-3 inches of air at the top. Remove the funnel and screw the bottle cap tightly. (If air leaks out, the root beer will not carbonate properly.)

Adding the Fizz

Lay the filled bottle on its side in a warm place and leave it undisturbed for four days. During this time the root beer will carbonate-the sugar and the yeast react to form tiny carbon dioxide bubbles that give the soda its fizz. On the fifth day, put the root beer in the refrigerator to chill. It will be ready to drink the following day.

Taste Testing

The best way to serve your homemade root beer is in a frosted glass mug. As you unscrew the bottle cap, listen for the soft woosh sound as the pressurized air at the top of the bottle escapes. When you pour the root beer, you should see bubbles on the sides of the glass and foam forming at the top. You'll notice a slight yeasty flavor to your homemade brew, as well as a hint of anise and wintergreen. If the flavor is too strong, just add a small amount of cold water.

Or make a root beer float by putting one scoop of vanilla ice cream or sorbet in a tall frosted glass. Pour in enough root beer to cover. Top with a second scoop of ice cream, whipped cream, and a cherry, and serve with a spoon and straw.

BAKED FRIES

- 1 large baking potato
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1/2 teaspoon paprika
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/2 teaspoon chili powder
- 1/2 teaspoon onion powder

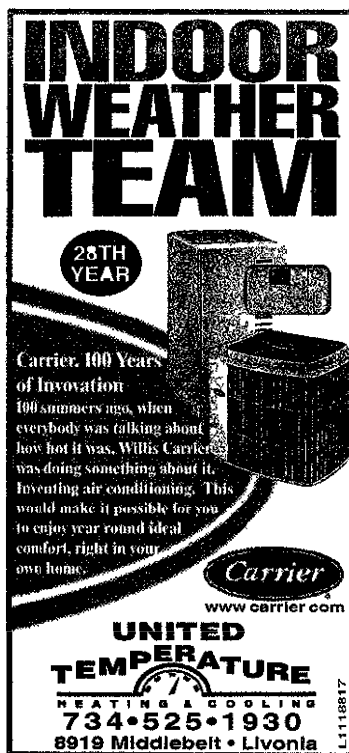

Preheat oven to 450° F. Cut potato into wedges. Mix olive oil, paprika, garlic powder, chili powder and onion powder together. Coat potatoes with oil/spice mixture and place on a baking sheet. Bake for 45 minutes in preheated oven.

Michigan State Fair brings old favorites and new events

BY SHARON DARGAY
STAFF WRITER

Sure, you'll find a few new wrinkles — new pedestrian entrance, a visit by Thomas the Tank engine — at this year's Michigan State Fair, which begins Tuesday, Aug. 20.

But the significant changes are in the wings for the 2003 fair.

"Next year, what will happen is the Michigan State Fair will go to a three-weekend state fair," said General Manager John C. Hertel, speaking before members of the press and sponsors at a fair preview on Thursday. "We'll start four days earlier. Instead of two weekends, we'll have three. And one weekend will coincide with the Dream Cruise. I'm certain we'll do some special auto displays."

The fair will run full days, from 10 a.m. - midnight, Friday through Sunday, next year, but open at 4 p.m. on weekdays.

"During the week next year, we will go to an after school start," Hertel said.

He said daytime weekday attendance lags during the fair's second week, when many school districts start fall classes. He estimated total fair attendance at 450,000-500,000 last year.

"Even during that first week when kids are not in school, it takes a while for people to get into the mode of understanding that the Michigan State Fair is on," he added.

The fair will offer bargain admission to midway rides during the fair's early four-day start next year.

And this year? Hertel calls the fair "the best entertainment value in the state — maybe in the Midwest."

"You can bring a picnic lunch. You don't have to spend a lot of money on food. It's the fifth year in a row we've had the same (admission) price," he said.

"It is America's safest and cleanest state fair." New this year are:

- A stage show starring Thomas the Tank Engine aimed at children under 6
- An antique tractor exhibit
- The Department of

A complete schedule and a second story on State Fair musical events is on the next page B6.

Natural Resources and Huron-Clinton Metroparks team up to bring additional wildlife displays to the Outdoor Zone, a two-acre nature area at the fair. Visitors can use binoculars to spot and identify ducks, try on a fish mask, negotiate a straw bale maze, play disc golf, handle live reptiles, catch and release fish, shoot a pellet gun and try archery.

DaimlerChrysler will sponsor the Outdoor Zone this year. General Motors lends its support to the contest pavilion.

Before 1998, we probably weren't doing even a dozen contests during the fair," said Pat Boyer, Sterling Heights, a former fair volunteer who now supervises the fair's 500 volunteers and grounds activities, including contests.

"Now we do three contests a day and four on weekends. Most contests are open to all ages and everyone wins at least an honorable mention. The fair keeps track of winners from year to year — and awards plaques — in some favorite competitions, including the husband and wife calling contest. In others, the top three contestants receive medals.

Boyer, the mother of four children, used her experience as a Girl Scout and Brownie Scout leader to create contests like "bee ball" and "whining."

"We'll have a stuffed (toy) bee and the kids will toss it around like a hot potato," Boyer explained. "The whining contest came right out of the husband and wife calling contest."

FOR THE KIDS

It's aimed at children, but anyone with an ear-grating whine can give it their best effort.

"Eating contests are very popular. We have corn eating and pie eating, pudding slurp, applesauce slurp."

If you plan to enter a contest at the fair, arrive about a half hour before it starts and have fun, Boyer suggested.

Contests run at 1:30, 3:30 and 5:30 p.m. every day. An additional contest is scheduled at 11:30 a.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Contest highlights:

- Tuesday, Aug. 20 — Somersault race, balloon run, ping pong toss
- Wednesday, Aug. 21 — Bee ball, busy bee, spaghetti eating
- Thursday, Aug. 22 — Baseball toss, asparagus shuttle, balloon blowing
- Friday, Aug. 23 — Disc golf, cherry spit, cherry pie eating
- Saturday, Aug. 24 — Grape race, grape smash, hog calling, milk mustache, whining
- Sunday, Aug. 25 — Basketball toss, cheese please, bubble gum blowing, big

Cruise the Great Lakes for summer sun, fall color

BY CHRISTINE BRODA
STAFF WRITER

Vacationers from all across the nation set their sights on new waters during the summer cruise season. Michigan's Great Lakes have become the destination of choice for many travelers looking for a cruise experience to satisfy their desire for interesting yet local ports-of-call.

"Nationwide people are being attracted to the Great Lakes," said Chris Conlin, president of Ann Arbor-based Conlin Travel, which sells chartered cruises through the lakes via the Great Lakes Cruise Company, a division of Conlin Travel. "It's an area we (Michigan residents) take for granted, but others view as an up and coming destination."

According to Conlin, the idea for the Great Lakes Cruise Company originated in 1997 when he and his father Tom Conlin - founder of Conlin Travel - read an article about a German ship sailing the lakes with only German passengers.

"It can be said that the Germans truly re-discovered the Great Lakes as far as cruises go," Conlin said.

The father-son team of Conlin Travel, which has been creating unique experiences for the sophisticated traveler all over the world since 1958, decided to extend the company's repertoire to include offerings on the Great Lakes based on the growing popularity of this inland cruise destination.

"It's an opportunity for many people to see a part of the world that's right in their backyard," Conlin said. "It's very convenient."

Now entering its fourth season, the Great Lakes Cruise Company - which bills itself as the only travel company in the world to specialize in Great Lakes cruises - offers three distinctive cruise ships sailing a variety of exciting itineraries. All three ships are foreign-owned and provide a unique cultural experience in addition to the natural lure of the Great Lakes.

"What people find fascinating is that it's a foreign ship, with a foreign crew, sailing in mostly American waters," Conlin said, referring to the experience of cruising on one of the vessels his company charts.

THE SHIPS

The MV Columbus, the largest of the three ships chartered by the Great Lakes Cruise Company, makes its way to the Great Lakes during the summer season after having spent the rest of the year sailing abroad. Built in 1997 and modeled after Germany's finest luxury ships, the vessel was designed specifically to accommodate the locks of the Great Lakes.

Well on its way to claiming four-star status, the MV Columbus accommodates 420 passengers and offers a variety of eloquent facilities including a large restaurant, a lounge for dancing and special events, and a Palm Garden with a bar. Flying under the flag of the Bahamas, this ship boasts an international crew with a distinctive German flavor.

The LeLevant is a top-of-the-line, five-star vessel that travels to all five Great Lakes

Built in France in 1998 and flying the French flag, this French luxury yacht was constructed for year-round travel in the Western Hemisphere, but was designed specifically for navigating inland seas. The LeLevant is equipped to take passengers to secluded coves, remote coastlines and hidden tributaries larger cruise ships are forced to bypass.

Accommodating a maximum of 95 guests, the LeLevant is serviced by a primarily French crew and offers fine French cuisine. Passengers enjoy spacious private cabins, which are all suites, as well as a variety of public areas including the Grand Salon, a verandah restaurant, a wood-paneled library, a gymnasium, and an outdoor pool and bar.

The Georgian Clipper is the first and only Canadian-registered cruise ship in over 30 years to ply the waters of Georgian Bay - often referred to as the "sixth Great Lake" - and the world-famous North Channel. Sailing just off the coast, this vessel is almost always in sight of land, offering passengers the unique opportunity to view both Canadian and American vistas.

Small enough to venture where larger ships cannot, the Georgian Clipper accommodates 18 passengers and offers relaxing voyages, first-class facilities with outdoor and indoor lounging and fine French-Canadian cuisine.

According to Conlin, cruises on the Great Lakes offer numerous benefits distinctly different from those of ocean-going cruises. He explained that many people looking for an itinerary experience often find the ship to be the destination on ocean-going cruises, while he says the area is the destination for Great Lakes cruises.

Conlin also noted that a cruise is a unique way to see the Great Lakes and surrounding shorelines as never before. "Many people have experienced the lakes from the shore, but it's a completely different experience from the water," Conlin said, noting that many cruises keep passengers within sight of land at all times.

On-board features offered by the Great Lakes Cruise Company include carefully selected enrichment lecturers and expert tour guides dedicated to helping passengers truly understand and appreciate the vast beauty and history of the Great Lakes.

Shore excursions are also a popular attraction of Great Lakes cruises, and Conlin's company offers a veritable list of intriguing destinations.

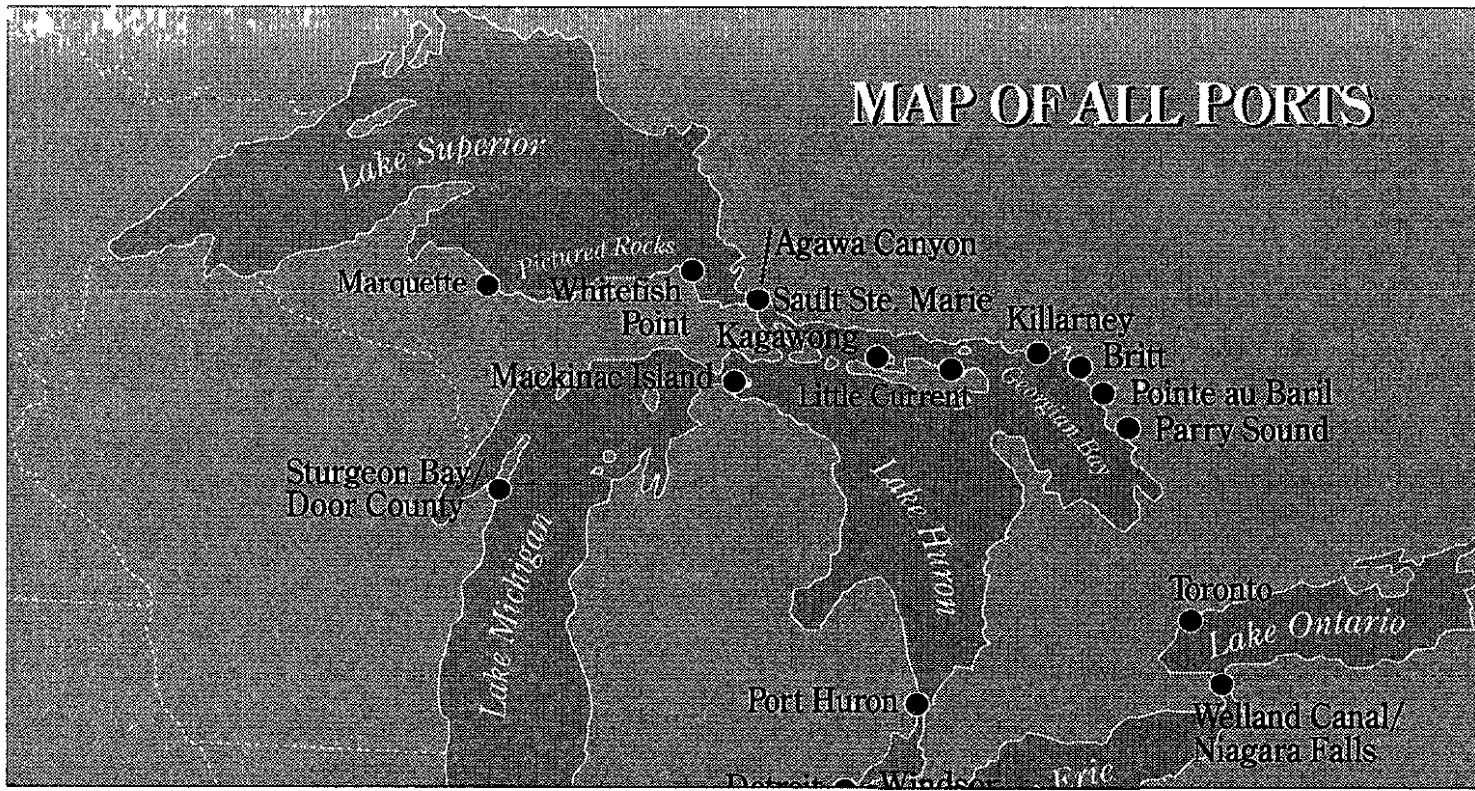

According to Conlin, a favorite excursion is the trip to Manitoulin Island where passengers witness an Indian powwow performed by members of the First Nation Ojibway tribe.

At the Sault Ste. Marie port-of-call, cruisers get the unique experience of rising some 23 feet to the level of Lake Superior as they pass through the Soo Locks. Also at this destination, passengers have the opportunity to venture deep into the forests of the Canadian Shield, passing through awesome granite rock formations while they ride on the Algoma Railroad.

Hikes, historical tours and special trips to well-known tourist attractions such as Niagara Falls and Mackinac Island help round out the Great Lakes Cruise Company's extensive list of shore excursions.

These destinations, combined with the natural beauty and allure of the Great Lakes, are what makes cruising on the famous inland seas an inviting option not only for those people who have never seen the Great Lakes, but also for those who have grown up or lived around them, says Conlin. cbroda@oe.homecomm.net | (734) 459-2700

Pitching lifts Rams to pair of wins

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
STAFF WRITER

If the first two games are any indication, the Michigan Lake Area Rams could be in for a fun World Series stay in Ohio this weekend.

The Rams routed their first two opponents Wednesday and Thursday at the National Amateur Baseball Federation World Series in Springfield, Ohio.

The Rams easily cruised past the Crystal Lake (Ill.) Cardinals 7-0 Wednesday, and the Carroll County (Md.) Rangers 6-1 Thursday. As coach Rick Berryman predicted, pitching has been the biggest reason why the Rams have done well, with the staff pitching 18 innings while allowing only one run on nine hits.

In the first game against Crystal Lake, pitcher Steve Knebbe (Oakland University) was brilliant, tossing a three-hit shutout while the Rams picked up single runs in the first, fourth and fifth innings before piling on four more in the ninth to wrap up the victory. Knebbe faced just four batters over the minimum (31) and fanned six while walking two and allowing three lone singles, none in the same inning.

Offensively, Garden City's Rob Hudson (Jacksonville University) led the way by going 3-for-5 with a run scored and a stolen base. Ryan Freiburger didn't get a hit, but scored three runs and walked three times. Ty Herrriott drove in three runs, while Plymouth Salem's Chris Trott

Schoolcraft spikers eye strong year

Tom Teeters didn't mince words. His Lady Ocelots have to do a better job at the net.

"I have high expectations for all my teams," said the Schoolcraft College women's volleyball coach, who has 13 conference, nine regional and one NJCAA championship (1988) to his credit. "Our goal is to play St. Clair well, but we also need to average more blocks per game. We need about four or five per game to be successful."

Schoolcraft is coming off a 40-12 season, which included an Eastern Conference co-title (15-1) with nemesis St. Clair. The Lady Ocelots also won last year at St. Clair, the 2000 NJCAA Division II champion, and took invitational titles at Flint Mott and in St. Petersburg, Fla.

All-Region, All-State and All-Eastern Conference picks Andrea Kmet, now at Northern Michigan and Fran Hamilton, both graduated.

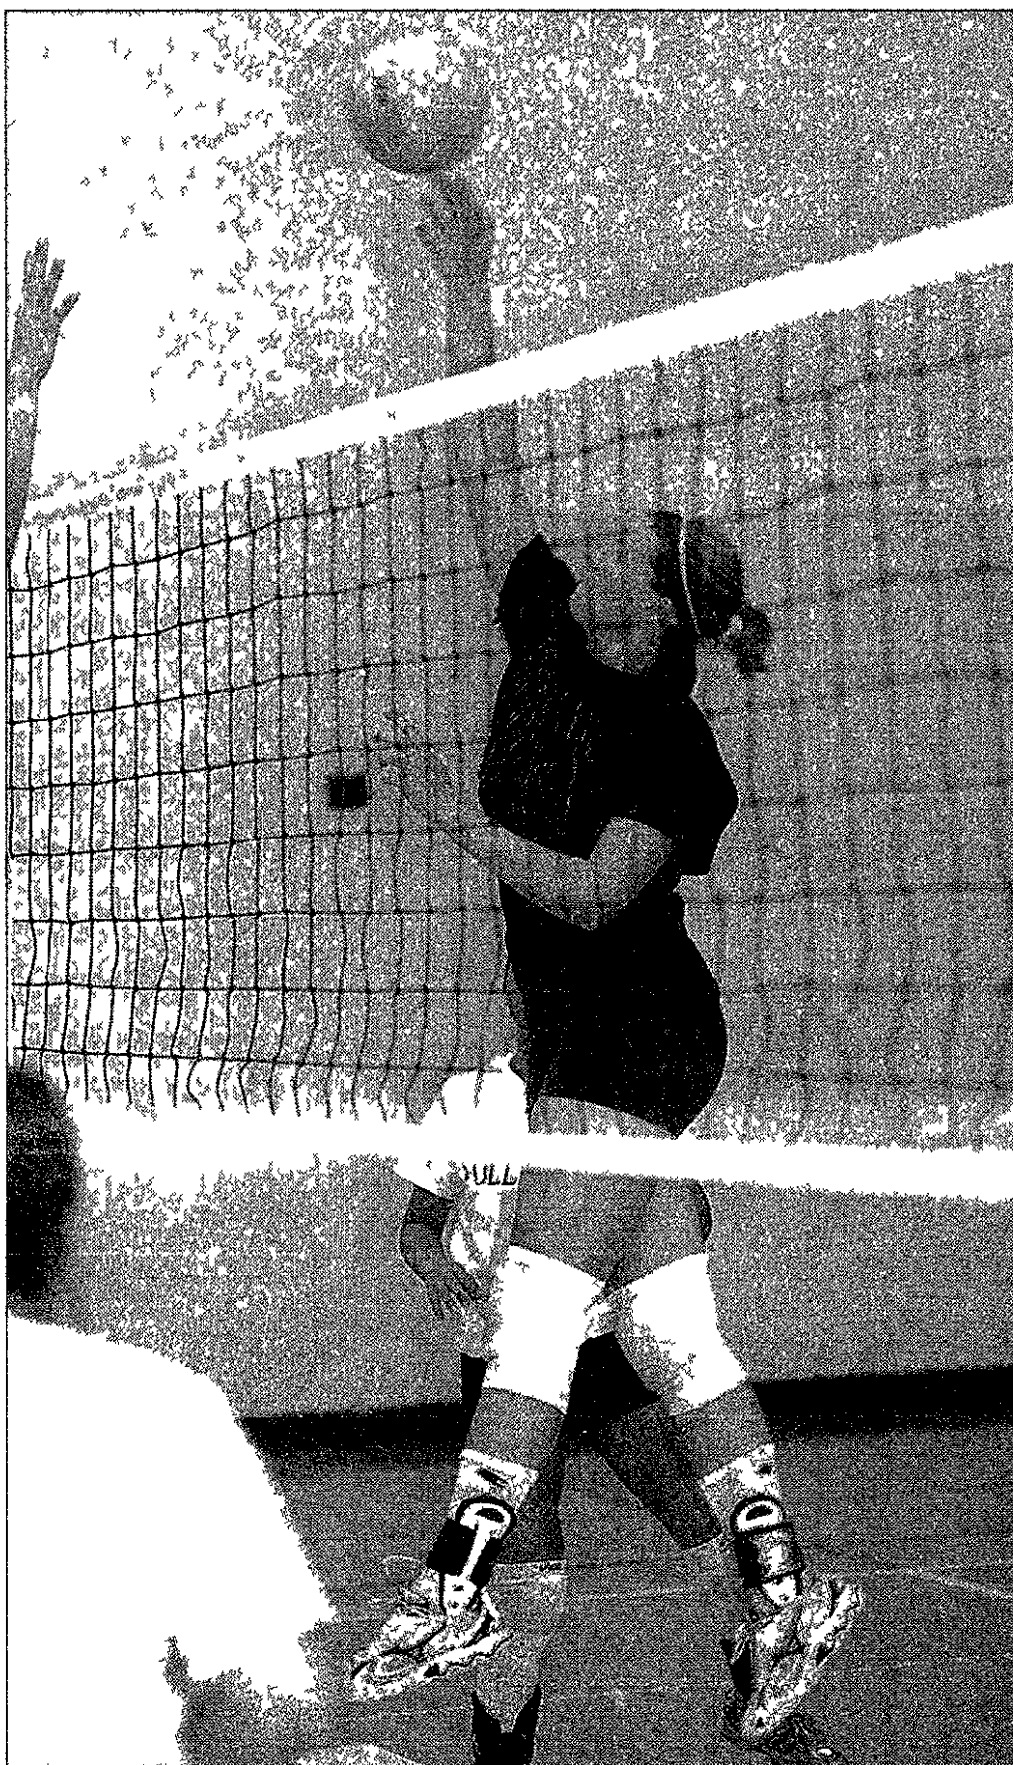

Another All-Conference selection, Kellie Kern, did not return, opting to play in state pro beach volleyball events.

But don't feel sorry for Teeters, who is trying to get back to the nationals for the first time since 1995. Last year the Lady Ocelots came close in Division II regional, finishing runner-up in Division D.

So what are the chances this year? "We have more size, so I think we have more hitting and blocking this year," he said. "If we read well, we could be formidable. It just depends on the system we use. Any one game we can go 10 players deep."

The team's top blocker, 6-foot-2 Kerstin Marshall (Livonia Franklin), returns along with the most improved player and team's best leaper, 5-11 Carly Szajnecki (Dearborn).

MU women's soccer strong with returnees

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

All the pieces appear to be in place this season for the Madonna University women's soccer team with one exception.

On Friday, second-year Mark Zathay greeted his veteran team for practice, wishing his new assistant coach, goalkeeper Jenny Barker, had another season left of eligibility.

"We're still lucky to keep her expertise around," said Zathay, referring to the four-year standout from Livonia Stevenson. "Goalkeeping is a key position. It's a big if, but if the rest of the team stays healthy."

"I don't want to underestimate our conference (Wolverine-Hoosier) because there's always a lot of turnover of players in the NAIA, but I feel comfortable about the strength of the team coming back."

Livonia Stevenson High swimmer Andrea Hurn, a member of the Clarenceville Swim Club, placed in six events while earning a pair of sectional and zone cuts at the 2002 U.S. Swimming Michigan Long Course State Championships held Aug. 1-4 at Oakland University.

As a team, Clarenceville finished 19th overall with 283 points.

Hurn, competing in the Girls Open Division, captured a third in the 100-meter freestyle with a sectional cut time of 1:01.55.

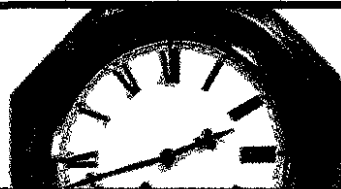

She also added a fifth in the 200 freestyle (2:13.4) and 200 breaststroke (2:51.58), a sectional cut. Hurn took sixth in the 100 breaststroke (1:19.49), a zone cut, and 200 backstroke (2:32.57). She also added a seventh in the 200 individual medley with a zone qualifying time of 2:33.07.

 ment for his efforts both on and off the court for the 2001-02 season. He set career bests in 16 statistical categories as the Wolverines finished 11-18 overall and 5-11 in Big Ten play in Amaker's first year.

Young, who started 57 games in his U-M career, averaged 11.4 points and nearly six rebounds per game as senior. He scored a team-high 25 points in a December loss against Duke. He also led Michigan in blocked shots (40) while appearing in all 29 games, averaging a career-best 31.6 minutes.

Young also won Michigan's Iron Man Award and joined fellow tri-captains Leon Jones and Rotolu Adebisi as winners of the Thad Garner Leadership Award.

'Chris is still young enough to be able to keep chasing the dream,' Tom Young said. 'He had a lot of fun working out with the Pistons and the people there told him just to continue to play.'

 Last year, Madonna shared the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference regular season crown with Siena Heights, but won the WHAC playoffs and eventually reached the NIAA Region 8 championship final, only to lose to Indiana Wesleyan in a shootout following a scoreless draw.

The loss prevented Madonna from its ultimate goal, playing in the NIAA Championships held at Lindenwood (Mo.) University. (The Lady Crusaders qualified for the nationals in 2000 after going 19-3-2.)

Lost to graduation are Barker and two other key contributors, defender Paula Shureb (Livonia Stevenson) and midfielder Jame Scott (Livonia Churchill).

Expected to vie for the goal-keeping position is Kristin Datte (Jackson County Western), who opted not to go to Western Michigan University, and Sarah Hartsell (Churchill), who played football (yes, football) last year for the Chargers. But the Lady Crusaders may have enough firepower on the field to offset their inexperience in goal.

'We have 15 to 16 starters,' Zathay said. 'But it boils down to the players knowing their roles and what to expect in their new roles. Our goal is to get there (the nationals) and it can happen if this team comes together, stays healthy and trains hard.'

To prepare for a late season run, Zathay has loaded up his schedule before WHAC action begins.

'We play five of the top 25 teams early, he said. 'Early on we'll experiment with different systems and formations.'

Two first-team All-Region players return for MU in left-defender Christen Shull, a junior from Plymouth Salem, and center-halfback Kelly Delaney, a senior from Madison Heights Bishop Foley.

Second-team All-Region choice Emily Jackson, a junior midfielder from Farmington Hills Harrison, also returns. She was the team's co-leading scorer last year.

'Delaney is our top all-around player, she led our team in scoring in 2000 (13 goals and 19 assists),' Zathay said. 'She sees the game and is a good leader. Shull is our most fit. She ran a 12.31 in the two-mile. At left-halfback she's a big threat. And Jackson is an artist, she creates our attack in the midfield and has loads of skill.'

Another player to watch this season is defender Michelle Vettrano, a senior defender from Stevenson.

'She's real solid, very tough,' Zathay said. 'She's aggressive and gives us a fast attack who can release out of the back.'

The teams other top two scorers also return in sophomore forward Sarah Pack (Westland John Glenn), who had 10 goals and four assists, and junior center-midfielder Becky Guibord (Dearborn), who racked up eight goals and two assists. Other returnees include senior midfielder Emily Neuendam (Plymouth Canton), senior forward Megan Thury (Pontiac Notre Dame Prep), junior midfielder Susannah Bryant (Southfield Christian), senior outside-midfielder Nicole Allevato (Dearborn) and sophomore forward Danielle Strickland (Harrison).

Also returning off the 2000 squad after delivering twin daughters is center-midfielder Tanya Bruce.

'She's making a comeback and we're glad to have her,' Zathay said. 'Tanya has a great approach to the game and a great demeanor. She'll help at center-mid with Jackson.'

Zathay also brought in five other field players in addition to keepers Datte and Hartsell. Among the new recruits are midfielder Lacey Catarino, a transfer off the Henry Ford Community College volleyball team, defender Kara Wisniewski, Livonia Franklin, Laura Hicks, Bishop Foley, Angie Antonnicola and Diane Foley, both from Riverview Gabriel Richard.

'Catarino had a rotator cuff injury which prevented her from playing volleyball for Henry Ford,' Zathay said. 'It's something we have to be concerned about, too, but she should have an immediate impact.'

'Hicks is a utility player with a good soccer IQ. Both Antonnicola and Foley will most likely be red-shirted.'

MU opens its season Friday, Aug. 30 in Fort Wayne, Ind. against College of St. Francis. The following day the Lady Crusaders take on host Indiana Wesleyan in a rematch of last year's Region 8 final. The home opener is Tuesday, Sept. 17 against Rochester College. Home games will be played at Greenmead Field, located at Eight Mile and Newburgh roads, in Livonia.

 (Albion College) delivered a run-scoring triple.

Charlie Anderson added two hits and two RBI.

Complementing Knibbe's fine pitching performance was the defense of Central Michigan University catcher Brian Campbell (Livonia Stevenson), who picked off two of the five runners to reach base. Thursday's game was closer only on the final scoreboard, as the Rams used more of the same to win its second straight game, this one played at Wright State University.

Wayne State's Gary Zielke (Livonia Stevenson) was the winning pitcher, going 7.2 innings with six strikeouts, five hits and one run in an outstanding effort. Madonna University's Mike Hayes (Redford Union) came in and pitched well in relief for the Rams. The Rams made hay in the middle innings against the Maryland squad, scoring once in the third, three times in the fourth and twice in the fifth innings. Hudson and Trott were once again offensive catalysts, combining for six hits and 4 RBI. Trott stole a pair of bases and Hudson scored twice. Campbell went 2-for-3 with an RBI and two runs scored. Herrnott added a run-scoring double and Anderson went 2 for 5 with a run scored.

LCBL champion Bulls wind up 2-2 in AAABA at Johnstown

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
STAFF WRITER

The Michigan Bulls split their four games at the recent All-American Amateur Baseball Association World Series in Johnstown, Pennsylvania.

The Bulls opened with two victories 7-1 and 5-4, and dropped the final two, 11-1 and 8-5. The Bulls finish their 2002 campaign with a 30-9 record.

In the opening game, the Bulls, the first-place team in the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League, capitalized on their chances in defeating the team from Buffalo, N.Y. Jarrod Resendez went 2-for-4 with 2 RBIs to spark the Bulls' offense.

Will Tollison (Oakland University) also went 2-for-4, drove in a run and scored a run. Kyle Boehm (Oakland University) was the winning pitcher, going five innings with six strikeouts, issuing no walks and allowing four hits and one run in an effective performance.

The Bulls used late runs in the second game to edge Chicago Metro 5-4 at the Roxbury Park in Johnstown.

In a game that saw the teams combine for seven errors, the Bulls rallied from a 4-3 deficit to pull out the 5-4 win. They scored once in the eighth and the ninth innings to advance.

Dan Baker (Hillsdale) singled home the winning run that scored Bret Gove (Clarkston, Albion) to make the difference in the game. Mark Abro (Troy Athens) drove in two runs and went 1-for-4 at the plate. Gove went 2-for-3 with an RBI in the win.

Dominic Carmosino was the winning pitcher for the Bulls, pitching 6 1/3 tough innings, striking out seven batters. Doug Brooks and Ross Winiemko were solid in relief.

The third game, played at Point Stadium in front of a crowd that would make the Florida Marlins envious (5,500 fans), the Bulls ran into a buzz-saw known as the Johnstown Grays, dropping an 11-1 decision.

Johnstown jumped all over pitcher Heath Craven for seven runs in the third inning, and the game wasn't in doubt from there.

Sean Gallagher went 3-for-3 for the Bulls, the only player to collect more than one hit. Derek Feldkamp (Blissfield) pitched 3 1/3 strong innings, allowing a run and three hits to a strong Grays team. Feldkamp and Winiemko joined the Bulls after playing in the LCBL for DCI.

In the final game, the Bulls played well, after the third inning. Unfortunately for them, New Orleans scored two, three and three runs in the first three innings to emerge with an 8-5 win.

Winiemko came into the game in the third inning, and after getting rocked his first inning, settled down to toss six scoreless frames, striking out seven batters.

Jim Geldhof (Troy, Central Michigan), another pickup player from DCI, went 3-for-4 with two runs scored. Tollison added two hits, and Abro drove in a run.

Cunningham runs away with GAM trophy

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
STAFF WRITER

Leave it up to Darren McCarty to spread a little Stanley Cup magic.

The Detroit Red Wing forward golfed with Russ Cunningham of Dewitt on Aug. 2 at the Oakhurst Golf & Country Club in Clarkston. Cunningham wanted to play a practice round to prepare him for the Golf Association of Michigan championship at Oakhurst, and McCarty obliged.

Playing with a member of the Stanley Cup champions paid dividends for Cunningham, because he walked off with a cup of his own on Wednesday — the trophy of the GAM championship.

Cunningham shot an 8-under-par 280 over four rounds of the three-day tournament. Cunningham shot consistently in three of the four rounds with scores of 68-77-68-67. Cunningham's total was six strokes ahead of three second-place finishers: Colby Beckstrom of Muskegon won a playoff for second place with Andrew Ruthkoski, also of Muskegon, and Rob Tighe of Traverse City.

Cunningham met McCarty for the first time that Friday as part of a foursome with Oakhurst members Ken Hudson and Dr. Rob Roehrig.

"It was really a lot of fun and it gave me a lot of confidence," Cunningham said.

Roehrig, a member of Oakhurst Golf & Country Club in Clarkston and a dentist in Rochester Hills, caddied for Cunningham.

Roehrig was impressed with Cunningham's game. "I just confirmed all the things he wanted to do," Roehrig said of his caddying duties. "He can read this place (Oakhurst) better than I can. He played absolutely perfectly, except for maybe one shot."

Cunningham climbed back into the hunt after Johnny Strawser of Flushing fell from first place on Monday into fourth place on Tuesday after he shot an 82 in the third round. Beckstrom had a 1-stroke lead going into Wednesday's action over Ruthkoski and Cunningham. Cunningham managed to catch and then build a 3-stroke lead going into the 15th hole.

Cunningham hit a drive that ended about 40 feet from the hole. He putted it from six feet out for birdie. "I hit that drive and it really helped me out," Cunningham said.

Cunningham said he made mental mistakes on the first day of the tournament when he shot 77 in the second round.

Local pros take shot at Buick glory

BY MARTY BUDNER
AND JIM TOTH
STAFF WRITERS

So what if they don't hit it as far as Tiger Woods?

So what if they don't have the following of Tiger Woods?

So what if they don't have the bank account of Tiger Woods?

So what? Bob Ackerman, Tom Gillis, Kevin Muir and Jeff Roth all can match the love and passion, drive and determination on the golf course as that of the great one himself.

The Eccentric-area foursome found themselves in the midst of the Tiger-mania that highlighted a week-long of excitement at the 2002 Buick Open held at Warwick Hills Golf & Country Club in Grand Blanc.

Though not as successful as Woods on the leaderboard, Ackerman, Gillis, Muir and Roth each hope the recent experience serves as a springboard for their future dreams.

TOM GILLIS

The return to friendly turf may be just the remedy Tom Gillis is looking for.

The Lake Orion native made what he called a "real risky decision" recently when he elected to forego a sense of security playing on the European Tour and opt for the trials and tribulations of competing on the PGA Tour.

"It was a big decision," informed Gillis, who appeared comfortable over the first two days on the 7,127-yard, par-72 track at Warwick Hills by shooting rounds of 71 and 69.

"I made a really risky decision by leaving Europe because I had status over there. It made me a lot better player, but I wasn't totally happy," continued Gillis, who began his European play in 1997 and estimated that he had teed up the little white dimpled golf ball in some 25 countries each year. "I had been teetering a couple years because it's been a tough place to play. The travel and not having any real interaction with family and friends were tough. I just finally woke up one day and said 'I'm not having any fun and I'm not enjoying this.'"

Gillis' return has already produced some shining moments as solid play in the first two rounds of June's U.S. Open Golf Championships on the treacherous Black Course at Bethpage State Park allowed the 33-year-old to make the cut.

"I made the cut at Bethpage, played all four days, and got some demons off my back knowing I'd done it," Gillis said. "It was a good experience. I'd love to play in another."

At the Buick, steady play from tee to green on Thursday led to a 1-under 71 and more of the same Friday resulted in a 69 and two-day total of 140. In two previous appearances ('93, '95) in the Buick, Gillis missed the cut each time.

"The game is pretty good right now," said Gillis, who was looking forward to weekend play. "I'm trying to get my health back (Gillis said he's still recovering from a bout with mononucleosis) and a good solid week here will do great things for my confidence."

JEFF ROTH

Jeff Roth planned on a long golfing weekend. It didn't happen.

The Knollwood Country Club head professional teed off in his seventh Buick Open golf tournament Thursday afternoon. After missing the cut his first three times out, he's managed to stick around for two more rounds in each of his next three appearances.

This year was a different story.

Roth, 44, finished with a 1-over total 145 (72-73) on the par 72, 1,127-yard Warwick Hills Golf & Country Club course. Unfortunately for Roth, only scores in the red (2-under, 140) made the final cut. That left Roth a rather disappointed golfer, according to his pre-tournament goals.

"I expect to play well. I've kind of gotten past that point of just being happy to be here," said Roth two hours before his 1:30 p.m. tee off time on Thursday.

"Realistically, I would expect to make the cut," he said. "I think a good tournament for me would be a top-25 and an awesome tournament would be a top-10."

Roth tied for 56th place in 1998 with a 285 to win $3,960. In 1999 and 2000, he finished with identical scores of 280 and placed 33rd each time to earn a combined total of $25,267.

Roth knew he'd have to finish with low numbers to make any type of impact this year.

"To get to that top 10 you'd have to shoot maybe 15 or 16 under par, and that's a pretty good number," said Roth, a 1979 University of Arizona graduate.

"The key for me to have any kind of success is to drive the ball in the fairway and have a good week putting," he said. "If you drive the ball in the fairway you're going to have a lot of birdie opportunities. If you don't drive the ball well, you're going to be looking for the birdies and the pars."

Roth, a former pro at the Birmingham Country Club and for 12 years at nearby Flint Country Club, qualified for the Buick Open by winning the Michigan PGA last year at Shanty Creek. It's a championship he eagerly anticipates.

"You always enjoy playing against the best players in the world," he said. "For one week anyways, I can play with anybody. There's too much talent out here to think that week-in and week-out I could beat these guys. If I was playing fulltime my game would elevate itself."

BOB ACKERMAN

For a man doing a lot of teaching, Bob Ackerman was busy doing a lot of learning the first two days of the Buick Open.

Learning to cope with the many distractions associated with the PGA TOUR.

"Coming into this tournament, it's a different environment than what I'm used to and I was aware of that," said the West Bloomfield resident, who earned a berth in the 156-player field by carding a spectacular 66 at The Fortress in Frankenmuth during a Michigan PGA Section Qualifier. "You just have to adjust."

"You have to try and get in a concentrated frame of mind and pay attention to just playing golf instead of getting caught up in the thrill and excitement of being around all these great players and nice people that bend over backwards to make it good for you."

Ackerman's adjustment, unfortunately, didn't include the scores he was looking for as too many bogeys and not enough birdies resulted in an opening-round 76 on Thursday. That was followed up by a 78 on Friday.

Despite the disappointment in not qualifying for weekend play, Ackerman was still thrilled to be playing "with the best players in the world."

"It's seeing if you can get your game in shape to compete with them," he said. "I enjoy the challenge to see if I can get ready for that."

Ackerman involves quite a bit of preparation in his day-to-day activities as he spends the better part of each one instructing students on how to improve their games.

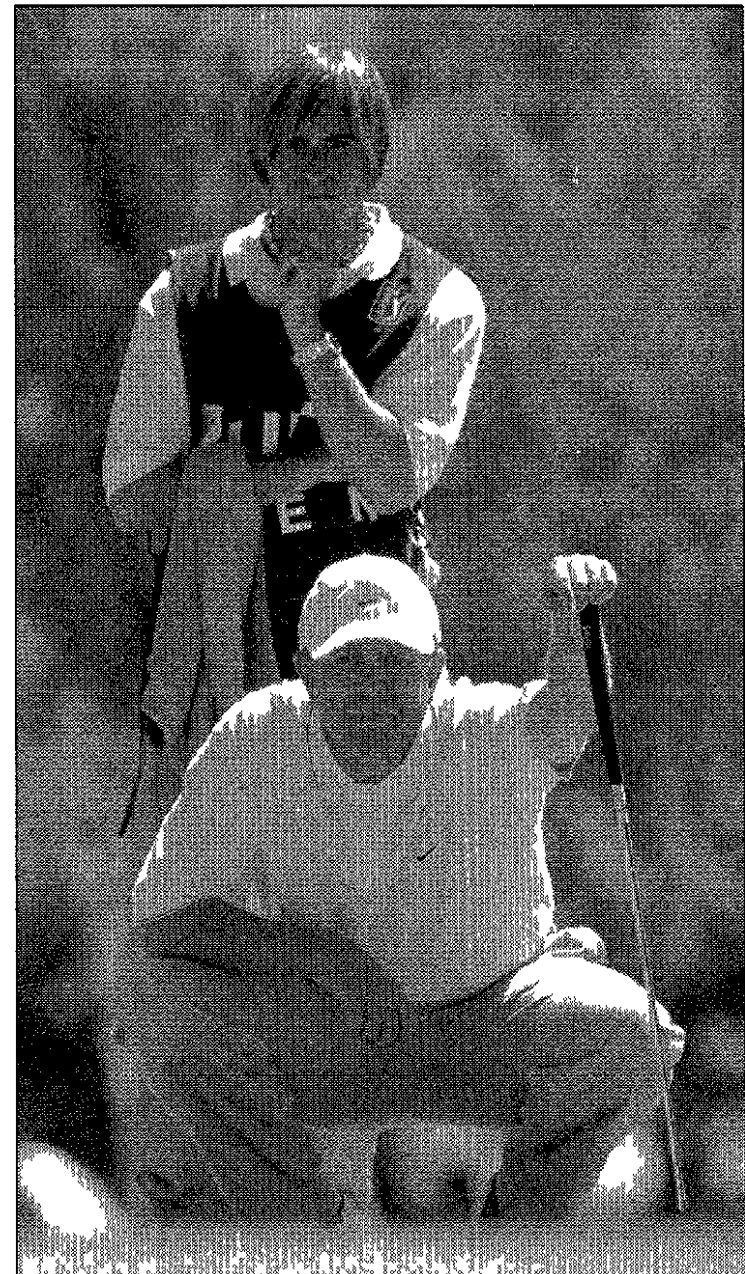

Ackerman pulls double duty by teaching in an indoor facility in Commerce Township and also outdoors at the Links at Pinewood.

KEVIN MUIR

The birdies were flying at Warwick Hills Golf & Country Club in the first two rounds of the Buick Open in Grand Blanc. Unfortunately for Kevin Muir, he found more bogeys than birdies.

The Director of Golf at The Wyndgate in Rochester Hills had a rough two rounds Thursday and Friday. Muir finished with a 9-over par 153 (76-77) and missed the cut of 142. His two-day total included four birdies, nine bogeys and two double bogeys.

It was a score that would never hold up in a tournament where the winner is normally somewhere around 15 under

TOM HOFFMEYER/OBSERVER & ECCENTRIC

Jeff Roth, in his second year as Knollwood Country Club's head professional, has a pair of helping eyes in studying this putt on hole No. 6 Friday at the Buick Open in Grand Blanc. The Plymouth Salem graduate and former state prep champion, who had made the cut in his three previous Open appearances, missed out this time with rounds of 72 and 73.

par. "I just didn't get the birdies and that's what you need on that course," said Muir, a Birmingham resident who attended Eastern Michigan University and Dearborn Divine Child High School.

"Normally I'm a very good driver and I struggled with that," he said. "If that's happening it affects other parts of your game. And, coming from my level as a club pro, there were a lot of tough pin placements. I just didn't have it."

It marked Muir's second Buick Open tournament. He previously played in 1992 when he also missed the cut.

He was greeted warmly by family, friends and club members when his name was announced as he teed off for the first time 1:40 p.m. Thursday.

"Obviously, playing this tournament is a learning experience," he said. "I felt I could have done better. But it was very nerve-wracking. Why? I don't know."

"Knowing the field was as strong as it was is probably one reason. Last time they probably had half the amount of people out there," he said.

Healing art

Journey of the Soul, a collection of artwork by artist and cancer survivor Cindy Cillick Geist, will be on display in the Nancy A. Fox Art Gallery at the Assarian Cancer Center, 47601 Grand River Ave., Novi, through Aug. 31. The gallery is open 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday-Friday.

One piece titled "Healing Hands" boasts radiant African fabrics and numerous traced silhouettes of her nurse oncologist's hands. Geist's intimately detailed artwork will embrace viewers and invite them to interpret the messages and symbolism present throughout the exhibit.

An 8-year-old boy from Pune, India, who was scheduled to have a foot partially amputated, is now running, jumping and enjoying a normal life back in his native country thanks to the efforts of several local physicians. Area doctors recently donated their time and medical services to help this young boy suffering from a serious bone infection.

Dr. Mohammed Arsiwala, of Michigan Urgent & Primary Care Physicians in Livonia, learned about the case of Huzefa Kapuswala during a visit back home to India. The boy has spina bifida, a congenital defect in which the spinal cord is not fully closed. Children with spina bifida often develop clubfeet, as was the case with Huzefa.

The boy had surgery within his first day or two of life to close the hole in his spinal cord, but his clubfeet were not corrected. His case became complicated when he developed a severe bone infection in one of his feet.

After meeting and examining Huzefa in India in August 2001, Arsiwala learned the following December that doctors in India were prepared to perform a partial amputation of Huzefa's foot to prevent the spread of infection. Arsiwala then contacted Dr. Jeffrey Szczepanski, a doctor of podiatric medicine who works two floors above him at the Providence Professional Building at Seven Mile and Newburgh. Szczepanski and his partner, Dr. Neal Mozen, of Foot Healthcare Associates of Southfield and Livonia, agreed to take on the boy's case free of charge.

Dr. Jeffrey Szczepanski, above, a Livonia doctor of podiatric medicine, assures Huzefa Kapuswala that all went well during surgery to correct his foot. Huzefa, who was born with clubfeet, traveled with his mother from India so Szczepanski could save his foot from possible amputation. Left, Huzefa's foot following surgery.

AMPUTATION STOPPED

Arsiwala was able to contact Huzefa's mother and have her stop the amputation the day before the surgery was scheduled. The boy's family then made plans to come to the United States to meet Szczepanski.

Huzefa and his mother stayed with his aunt Alefia Hakim of Canton and his uncle Akil Kapuswala of Westland during his medical treatment. Hakim said that her nephew was able to attend Batchin Elementary School in Westland after the six weeks he was on IV antibiotics before the surgery. "He made many friends while he was here," she said.

Kapuswala's uncle, Akil, said, "The school was just amazing. They went out of their way to help him. They had to help him get to the bathroom and they had a special wheelchair lift on the schoolbus. These little things were very much appreciated."

Akil said that his nephew wanted to go through with the surgery.

He came here with a brave attitude. The doctors became his buddies, and he wasn't intimidated by the surgery at all. He was in a lot of pain afterwards, however, and it took some time for him to be able to put weight on his right foot again," Akil said.

CLUBFOOT COMMON

Szczepanski said, "Clubfoot happens quite often in children in America, but we treat it quite aggressively from the time they're born. We try to straighten the foot out as early as possible, so you don't develop this type of problem."

He noted that treatment of clubfoot in children with spina bifida is much more difficult.

Getting Huzefa and his mother to the United States took time. After a letter-writing campaign helped to acquire the necessary visa, they arrived on Feb.

Value, schools, nearby golf course draw condo buyers

Affordability of the attached condominium component at Golfside Village of Westland is important to builder Steuer & Canvasser.

Prices start at $159,900 for a ranch of 1,100 square feet with two bedrooms and two baths.

Base price for the most expensive of the five plans, an 1,800-square-foot two-story with three bedrooms and 2½ baths, is $189,900.

Sixty-three condos, clustered five to a building for the most part, are going up at the southwest corner of Henry Ruff and Palmer next to the county-owned Inkster Valley Golf Course.

"You can't buy a new home or condo in this area at this price," said David Steuer, partner. "Not with Wayne-Westland schools, having a master suite on the first floor and a golf course next door. There's a lot of value in this."

Visitors to the model, a two-story with an upstairs bedroom, loft and full bath, are impressed with many features, said Jeanne Harker, sales rep.

"It's a wonderful product," she said. "It's a very open floor plan. It feels like you're walking into your own house, not an old-style condo. They love the full basement, two-car garage. Upstairs units have a loft area. They love that."

"They love the county golf course adjacent," Harker said.

The long driveways from the street to individual garages present a residential feel and will especially come in handy for parking during gatherings, Steuer said.

Then there's the location, a short hop from the airport, stores and restaurants plus freeway access for more distant destinations.

"Westland has a good rep-

Long driveway aprons outside complement interior designs of attached condominiums at Golfside utation," Steuer said. "They have a tremendous parks and recreation program."

But then it comes back to the homes, themselves.

"We do a great job with sound-proofing, he said. "We use Merillat cabinets and think that's important."

When you look around, you see a flair in these homes, Steuer said. "I think a lot of people want to stay in the area but want a new home with big windows, high ceilings."

"There's a lot of value in this overall. The whole idea is to get the base price at the lowest possible point so more people can participate," he said.

All the attached condos at Golfside Village will include at base price land scaping two-car garage, basement first floor laundry, range and dishwasher and carpeting.

The model, the Barclay, is a two-story of 1,600 square feet.

The main level features a kitchen with pass-through wall and sink oriented to the dining area, plus a great room with sloped ceiling. The master with cathedral ceiling includes a walk-in closet and combination tub/shower.

A loft with a bridge overlooking the great room is upstairs, as is a bedroom and full bath.

Base price is $179,900. Other spec homes are available. The Ashbury, a ranch, has unusual volume ceiling treatments. The Dorchester also a ranch, situates the two bedrooms on opposite sides of the unit.

Brick vinyl siding and dimensional shingles are primary exterior materials on all the buildings.

The attached condos at Golfside Village of Westland will be serviced by city water and sewers. Water is included in the monthly association fee initially set at $105. Pets are allowed.

The property tax rate is now $36.01 per $1,000 of state taxable value, half of sales price for new construction. That means the owners of $165,000 home there would pay about $3,000 the first year.

Thirty single family, detached condos are planned for the western portion of the community.

The Steuer & Canvasser sales office/model at Golfside Village of Westland (734) 641-0500 is open noon to 5 p.m. daily closed Thursday. The Web site is www.winnerhomes.com.

Summit reaches consensus on use of housewrap

To wrap or not to wrap, that is the question.

There's been a meeting of the minds, so to speak - a summit of a grand scale - to settle the issue of housewrap.

Now, the housewrap dilemma isn't a problem of monumental scale, granted. It may not even be on the radar screen for most people.

But for years, we at Detroit Edison recommended against using housewrap, or the insulating material installed under the vinyl or aluminum siding of your home.

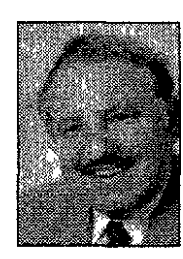

There was a simple reason for our disdain: For housewrap to be effective, it has to be installed properly and we found that it wasn't in 95 percent of the jobs.

The main culprits were improper taping and the nails used to affix the siding to the house. The nails penetrated the housewrap, which made it ineffective as an air barrier. But it is an effective water barrier to keep a house's frame from rotting.

Of course, while we recommended against it, others said it was a must for energy-efficient home construction.

There was only one way to settle the matter - to bring the different points of view together and discuss it.

And after just two hours, Detroit Edison, Dow Chemical, Hansen Marketing Services, Michigan Energy Services and Home Building Workshop, reached a conclusion.

Larry Kaufman

If you install blown cellulose or foam insulation as an insulator, you don't need housewrap. But if you use Fiberglass insulation, you do.

Housewrap must be sealed with housewrap tape or caulk to form an airtight seal. While it does resist water, it isn't a vapor barrier.

The most common insulation, Fiberglass, doesn't stop air leakage. In older homes, dirty Fiberglass is a telltale sign of air movement as it simply collects dirt like a filter.

Certain types of insulation, such as dense-packed cellulose and certain foams, can be effective at reducing airflow as well as heat flow.

For more information or to make up your own mind on housewraps, please visit the DOE web site at www.eren.doe.gov.

Now resolved, the issue of whether to wrap or not to wrap shows that discussion can lead to understanding and changes for the good.

Larry Kaufman of DTE Energy's Residential and Small Business Marketing group has conducted more than 50 energy savings workshops for the utility and is an expert advisor on home energy efficiency.

Buying a dream house may mean building it

(NAPSA) - Building your dream house may be easier with the help of someone who feels at home with the complex process.

In many cases, that person is a real estate agent. Since purchasing a new home is not something people do very often, it can be a very intimidating experience, filled with uncertainty and anxiety. That's why home buyers may benefit from the experience and expertise of a trained real estate professional.

Real estate agents can also bring up other factors that home buyers may not previously have considered, such as the suitability of a particular project or community to the home buyer's lifestyle. Do you really want a community with a pool or would you prefer a walking trail? Is it important to have a nearby golf course? Would you like an easy-to-care-for yard?

Also, similar-looking new houses often come complete with restrictions imposed by the developer on house color, landscaping, renovations and anything else a homeowner could possibly do to make their house deviate from the preferred look.

2002 Subaru Outback AWD: It's a great, American-made car

ANNE FRACASSA

Last redesigned just two years ago the 200 Subaru Outback H6 3.0 sedan is still one of the strongest offerings in this segment. I've recommended the Outback to several colleagues and friends and family and at least eight people who took the plunge and bought one still thank me today.

One particular friend who was T-boned on the driver's side about six months ago in her 2-year-old Outback actually walked away from the accident without a scratch or being sore. She was impressed the side doors held so well in an impact like that.

The Outback I drove this week was assembled in Indiana and loaded to the max. It had everything but the kitchen sink and stove in it. The price reflected it at nearly $30,000. But there are quite a few models to choose from including the Outback Wagon, Outback Limited Wagon, Outback Limited Sedan, Outback H6 3.0 L.L. Bean edition and the Outback H6 3.0 V.D.V. Wagon and the sedan edition I drove.

Lots of choices to choose from all with different levels of equipment and bottom line prices.

New equipment this year includes an air filtration system, dual illuminated visor vanity mirrors, ignition switch illumination ring (really great in the pitch dark), off-delay dome light, internal child safety trunk release with self-illuminating handle, variable intermittent windshield wipers and woodgrain patterned interior door switch trim that's actually elegant looking rather than tacky.

This year, Subaru has introduced yet another 6-cylinder engine. A new 212-horsepower boxer powers the sedan I drove and shares its all-wheel drive and stability technology with the wagon model. There's an off switch for the Vehicle Dynamics Control system which turns it off when trying to remove the car from deep snow or mud.

Standard power available on three H4 models is a 2.5-liter horizontally opposed single overhead cam 4-cylinder engine that promises 165 horsepower. It's been a long time since I've driven the 4-cylinder Subaru technology, but I can tell you that the 6-cylinder engine is certainly a head-turner. As in your head turning and you thinking "Wow, did I go past that faster than I thought it could!"

The power is absolutely a blessing when merging on freeways and when passing a slow vehicle in traffic. And the cool thing about the new H6 engine is that it doesn't take up any more under the hood space than the H4 engine. Remarkable.

Some of the stuff you'd expect to see on true luxury models but you'll find on the Outback offerings include full-time all-wheel independent suspension, 4-wheel disc brake, anti-lock brakes, air conditioning, 12-volt cargo area power outlet, 60/40 split rear seat AM/FM cassette stereo with weatherband (I love that feature!), fixed intermittent wiper, keyless entry system, power windows, tilt steering wheel and foldaway power sideview mirrors and 24-hour roadside assistance for three years or 36 months.

Value and Comfort: 2002 Subaru Outback AWD Vehicle Class Compact sports sedan Power H6-3.0 liter engine Mileage 20 city/26 highway Where built Lafayette, Ind Price as tested $28,520

You want creature comforts, you've got creature comforts. We're talking about available dual-mode heated seats, heated outside mirrors and a windshield wiper de-icer on the Outback Limited and standard on the wagon model.

Here we go—the safety issues. Remember my friend with the accident?

Subaru's own ring-shaped reinforcement frame body structure allows Outback to provide its owners with much better than average protection in frontal, offset, side and rear collisions. There are two safety beams and shoulder line reinforcement bars in the front doors and one beam in each rear door to aid in side-impact collisions.

But it doesn't stop there. Standard safety features include 3-point seatbelts for all five seating positions, 4-channel 4-sensor ABS and dual front airbags.

The interior of the Outback has changed as well. There's a new climate control panel that is streamlined and much more pleasing to look at. Everything is actually reachable without leaving your seat. Nothing is difficult to find, reach or operate. The larger than normal instrumentation leaves nothing to the imagination because it's all up there up front and in your face that's the way it should be.

When driving you don't need to be hunting for stuff on instrumentation. It should be larger than life so you don't take your eyes off the road for more than a second because a second is all it takes for an accident to happen.

Seat comfort is really a plus. There are a lot of positions to place the front seats in and I found comfort in an instant. The seats are comfortable and produce no fatigue on long drives. Actually a joy to behold.

Finally, the mileage on the Outback models are much better than I expected, frankly. The 5-speed manuals produce the best mileage numbers understandably. Try 21 mpg in the city and 27 on the highway.

But surprise, surprise. With the automatic transmission, you enjoy 20 mpg in the city and 26 on the highway. It's negligible. Chose the automatic if you wish. Chose the 5-speed for optimum control. The mileage is the same, in my eyes. One mile doesn't make for a decision, here, does it?

I always ask my back seat passengers (my kids) for a quick opinion on some of the vehicles I drive. Sometimes even my husband, but he doesn't know as much as they do. My daughters were highly irritated by one minor (at least I consider it minor) quirk in the Outback. Their opinion is that the trunk should have a handle release on the exterior. You need a key to open it or you have to release it from the inside. The key fob doesn't offer a button to open the trunk, either.

Picking your kids up at the ice rink after a coaching session is a bit annoying when you have to open the trunk for them or open the driver's door to release the hatch, because they're so used to opening it themselves. Oh well. My attitude about the value and comfort of the Outback hasn't changed at all this year from the previous year. I recommend it. It's a strong offering and worth a serious look from anyone looking for a safe sedan for their family to an all-around safe vehicle that's really strong in the snow. Go drive one and see if you'll agree. E-mail me with your thoughts. I welcome them.
