Suspect charged in bank theft

BY PAUL R. PACE
STAFF WRITER

A 40-year-old Detroit woman was arraigned in U.S. District Court in Detroit Thursday for robbing a Plymouth Township bank Wednesday afternoon. The woman was also charged in three other area bank robberies.

According to the criminal complaint, Renee M. Bailey is accused of stealing nearly $20,000 from the four banks.

The report states she confessed to the robberies to Plymouth Township Police after being caught after a bank robbery there Wednesday afternoon.

She is accused of robbing the Standard Federal Bank at 14 Mile in Farmington Hills around 10 a.m. Wednesday, then robbing the Comerica Bank on Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth around 1:30 p.m. the same day.

The complaint states she admitted to also robbing two banks in Livonia, the Standard Federal Bank on Seven Mile on Aug. 2 and the Standard Federal on Middlebelt on July 3.

Bailey faces a 20-year prison sentence if found guilty of the charges, said Hank Glaspie, special agent with the FBI.

Wednesday's robbery in Farmington Hills marked the fourth bank robbery in the city in a month.

She was caught by Plymouth Township Police walking in a strip mall near the bank just after the robbery.

The township's assistant police chief, Lt. Robert Smith, said witnesses played a key role in nabbing the woman.

Without their assistance, she probably wouldn't have been immediately apprehended, Smith said.

Fall Fest set to feature more rides

BY HEATHER NEEDHAM
STAFF WRITER

No major changes are in store for the Plymouth Fall Festival this year, but one of the biggest crowd-pleasing attractions is going to be even bigger.

The annual festival is planned for Friday, Sept. 6 through Sunday, Sept. 8 in downtown Plymouth.

Festival spokesman Mark Baldwin said the younger crowd will probably be the most pleased with the festival change.

"We've got more carnival rides for little kids this year," Baldwin said. "Mostly everything else has remained the same."

One crowd-pleasing event, however, will not be part of this year's festival. The Michigan Chili Championship is moving to Trenton this year, Baldwin said, adding that he did not expect this would discourage festival visitors.

This year, 200,000 people are expected to attend the festival.

CSX, county negotiate underpass cost

BY HEATHER NEEDHAM
STAFF WRITER

A $9.2 million railroad underpass which could eventually provide relief for Sheldon Road drivers who periodically get stopped by trains is chugging closer to becoming reality.

Officials from both sides of the tracks - Wayne County and CSX Transportation - are negotiating an agreement to build the underpass. The crossing is one of nine in Plymouth and Plymouth Township.

The underpass is good news for people like Helen Fuernstun of Westland, who is among 22,500 people driving Sheldon Road every day, according to Wayne County traffic estimates. She works as a receptionist at the Office Max Warehouse on Sheldon. The warehouse is located south of the crossing, but was formerly located north of the crossing.

"It's terrible," she said, referring to an incident two years ago. "I was trying to get to work when we were just north of the railroad tracks when I was stopped for 40 minutes."

Frustrated, she back-tracked and took

Ann Arbor Road to I-275, and followed that north to the M-14 Sheldon Road exit - only to find that the train still tying up traffic.

The trains are a common - and legitimate - culprit for tardiness at work, she said.

"I know (the construction) will be a problem, but I don't know how we can get around doing it," Fuernstun said.

John Roach, spokesman for the Wayne County Department of Public Service,

Students may see lots of new faces

BY HEATHER NEEDHAM
STAFF WRITER

Students visiting the principal's office — for whatever reason — when school starts this August just might notice a lot of new faces.

Nine new principals have been hired so far this summer, including four building principals and five assistant principals. Most are replacing retirees, but one new position was created, as well.

The most recently hired principal was Canton High's new assistant principal, J. Calvin White of Ypsilanti Township. The board approved hiring him at Tuesday's school board meeting. His salary is under negotiation.

"My goal is to help students move forward," said White, who has been an assistant principal with the Lincoln Consolidated school district in Washtenaw County since 1998.

Ray Bihun, executive director for human resources, said White, one of 79 applicants for the job, has impressive experience, including a background in diversity training. He has also served in the U.S. Army as a supply sergeant/fire direction chief.

resume referred specifically to student discipline, one of an assistant principal's duties. He mentioned enforced discipline and attendance policy equally and effectively, and "conducted mediation and resolution in order to guide students to solutions."

Bihun said those were some of the qualities the hiring committee, made up of citizens, administrators and teachers, liked.

"He started as a business teacher so he knows how to take care of business with the kids," Bihun said.

Interim Superintendent Jim Ryan said he has been pleased with the quality of job candidates the district has hired.

"We're getting some new ideas and we are getting some people of color," Ryan said. White, in addition to some of the other new hires, is African American.

The district would like to attract more Asian Americans, Indian Americans and other ethnicities to key posts as well, Ryan added.

All kids will have good role models," he said.

Other administrators hired this summer include:

■ Julie Kaminski, assistant principal, Plymouth High, salary $77,662

■ Deborah Parizek, assistant principal, Plymouth High, salary $80,304

■ Joyce Johnson, principal, Central Middle, salary $92,989

■ Andrew Johnston, assistant principal, Central, salary $69,504

Discovery Shop celebrates 2nd

BY HEATHER NEEDHAM
STAFF WRITER

The Discovery Shop in Plymouth is looking for volunteers to help with its second anniversary sale Aug. 24-31.

Bargain hunters looking for resale housewares, clothing, furniture, books, pictures or lamps will be rewarded with a 20 percent off sale, good off all store items. Refreshments will be served and door prizes will be given away.

The shop is located on 975 W. Ann Arbor Trail and is run entirely by volunteers.

Because the store has increased in popularity among shoppers, the store needs more volunteers, said Bridget O'Shea, area manager. Available shifts include 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and 1:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday. The store is closed Sundays.

Volunteers are needed not only for the sale, but on a long-term basis. All volunteers will receive training, but anyone with sales or cash register experience is especially needed.

The sale is one way of thanking the customers who have helped keep the shop's doors open.

The American Cancer Society is very happy to be in Plymouth, O'Shea said. "We thank the community for supporting us."

Some volunteers view the experience as a way to give back to the community and to the American Cancer Society, which receives proceeds from shop sales.

A lot of people who volunteer for us are touched by cancer, O'Shea said. "It's a very gratifying experience to be a volunteer."

The shop operates by receiving donated items from customers, which can range from outgrown children's clothing to a set of mint-condition china from a deceased person's estate. Donors receive tax deductions in exchange for their generosity.

"We have fabulous pieces," O'Shea said. "All furniture is A-1 quality. We are an upscale resale shop and our prices are good."

Schools attract variety of interest

BY HEATHER NEEDHAM
STAFF WRITER

The most recent group of school administrators hired by the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools includes veterans of both the business and education world.

Ray Bihun, executive director of human resources, said the job candidates seemed particularly drawn to the district.

"We have such a great district here," Bihun said. "We search very hard for the most qualified candidates."

Search committees made up of citizens, administrators and staff members assist in the hiring process, according to Bihun.

Hired were:
■ Martha R. Giles of Plymouth, early childhood coordinator. She was one of 12 applicants and has been principal of Hamtramck Early Childhood Center since 1993.

"My job is to bring (early childhood programs) all under one umbrella," Giles said.

■ Janet Kahan of Ann Arbor, curriculum coordinator. She was one of 13 applicants, and has been a science/environmental education consultant for the Ann Arbor Public Schools since 1989.

■ Martin Scott of Canton, supervisor of custodial operations. He has worked for Ford Motor Co. since 1973 and has worked as supervisor of maintenance and construction since 1998. He was one of 15 applicants.

"I look forward to working with all of you and tweaking the process you have in place," Scott said.

■ Norman Duncel of Flint, transportation coordinator. He has served as transportation director for Flint's Carman Answorth school district since 1999. He was one of 12 applicants.

Salem, Canton hockey programs seek funding

BY BRAD KADRICH
STAFF WRITER

Hockey players for both Canton and Salem high schools recently reached a new two-year agreement to continue as varsity sports in the school district, at a cost of $1,000 per player.

Now comes the process of raising the money.

To help do that, the Plymouth-Canton Hockey Boosters are getting ready for their biggest fund-raiser of the year: the annual golf outing. This year's event takes place Saturday, Aug. 24, at Hickory Creek Golf Club in Canton.

Money raised from the outing will help supplement the hockey programs' $100,000 annual budget. This year's outing is crucial, because the hockey program has had some new expenses this year, and varsity hockey at the new Plymouth High School is only a couple of years away.

"This is an important one," said booster president Chris Wolfe. "We've had to buy new jerseys for both teams. We've got this new team, and we're going to need some start-up money for that."

Though there are still openings for golfers, Wolfe said what the outing really needs is hole sponsors. Hole sponsorships are available for $100.

The golf itself costs $110 per player, which includes green fees and cart, a steak dinner and the silent/live auctions.

Golfers also get a shot at a new car lease for a hole-in-one, along with prizes for best teams, longest drive and closest to the pin.

Proceeds will go a long way toward financing the 3-year-old program, which initially gained the approval from the school board for the 1999-2000 season.

The school board doesn't put any money toward the program, so the boosters are responsible for raising money, not supplied through player fees, which have held steady at $1,000 per season.

That sounds like a lot of money, Wolfe admitted. But kids who are playing any kind of club or junior hockey know it's actually a reasonable amount. Each team dresses 20 players.

Though the school district actually has oversight of the program's expenditures, school officials have been "really good" about letting the boosters administer the program, which gives players an opportunity they might not otherwise have had.

"It gives 40 kids a chance to play a varsity sport," Wolfe said. "They were playing hockey, but they weren't playing for their high school. Now they can."

The new agreement, a two-year pact signed earlier this month, makes room for the addition of varsity hockey at Plymouth High School, when that school's first class reaches its junior year. That means fund-raising is at a critical juncture.

While the hockey program takes the gate receipts from home games and also gets the player fees, there's still a substantial amount to raise.

"We've still got to get about $25,000," Wolfe said.

Anyone interested in becoming a hole sponsor, or in playing in the outing, can call Wolfe at (248) 766-6754, or Mike Young at (734) 454-9048.

said he hopes construction can begin early next year. "We're exchanging drafts of legal agreements (with CSX)," Roach said. "It's been kind of a drawn-out process."

One of the sticking points has been cost. Under federal law, CSX must pay 5 percent of the project costs. So far, CSX has not agreed to do that, according to Roach.

CSX spokesman David Hall confirmed the railroad is still negotiating with the county.

"We've been working with the Wayne County Road Commission since April and we're reviewing the construction agreement," Hall said.

During the construction, CSX will lay temporary tracks north of the present crossing to bypass the project.

The freight train company transports a variety of materials, including coal, chemicals, automotive items and more.

"We move America," Hall said, citing the company's slogan. CSX has tracks in 23 states, the District of Columbia and two Canadian provinces.

CSX views the underpass as a good idea, Hall said.

"We are always in favor of projects that separate vehicle traffic from railroad traffic. By creating those separations, you reduce the possibility of accidents," he said.

Plymouth City Manager Paul Sincock echoed Hall's hopes for the overpass, but for different reasons.

"It certainly will ease the congestion that we have from time to time," Sincock said.

Roach said it was impossible to avoid detours with this project. In similar projects, temporary roads running parallel to the tracks have been built, allowing for uninterrupted traffic.

Final cost details of the Sheldon Road underpass project are being negotiated between Wayne County and CSX.

Based on a previous cost estimate of $8.8 million here is how the costs will be covered by the different governmental entities:

- 80 percent or $5.2 million federal grant money
 - $500,000 CSX Transportation
 - Of the remaining $3.1 million Wayne County would pay an estimated 50 percent and the local municipalities - the city of Plymouth and Plymouth Township - would pay 50 percent.
- Plymouth Township would pay 67 percent of approximately $1.6 million and the city would pay the other 33 percent.
- The most recent cost estimate for the project is $9.2 million.

That wasn't possible in this case, which means drivers will be detoured - either to Five Mile or Ann Arbor Road.

Construction will involve excavating the current roadway from Nantucket north, lowering the road and building a new railroad bridge.

The water main located within the project boundaries will have to be relocated.

Roach said the project is expected to take about two years.

"This project has been a lot more complicated than it seems," he said. (Sheldon Road is) such a narrow fit right there."

"It's a Plymouth tradition - it's just a nice way to spend the weekend," Baldwin said.

Festival has lots of entertainment

In between licking barbecue sauce from fingers, triumphantly keeping lunch intact while spinning on a carnival ride and gazing at souped-up antique cars, Plymouth Fall Festival visitors will also be able to please another of their senses.

This year's main stage entertainment should prove to be music to festival visitors' ears, as a variety of performers take to the stage.

Mark Baldwin, festival spokesman, said they have attempted to bring more big names to the festival, including flutist Alexander Zonjic. He is scheduled to perform 6-9 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 7. Other scheduled performers include "Doc" Gibbs & Cliff, 2:30-4:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 7. The duo has performed previously on "Emer! Live" in New York.

P-C administrator takes Redford challenge

BY STEPHANIE ANGELYN CASOLA
STAFF WRITER

Some say you can never go home again, but Bill Zolkowski defied the notion by returning to Thurston High School.

Zolkowski was selected Monday as the principal of the school where he taught science and physics for six years. The former assistant principal in the Plymouth Canton School District found it easy to return.

The parents here still see education as a big step up for the community, Zolkowski said. That will make it a great place to work. There is great enthusiasm.

Though he's already been spotted at the school, he will officially begin on Monday, Aug. 12.

Zolkowski, a Dexter resident, was ushered into the district by a South Redford Schools Board of Education vote of 6-0 with Trustee Billie Beverly absent.

"I am thrilled," said Zolkowski Monday. "I had a lot of students here. It was fun to see their parents and hear the nice wishes from my former students."

Accompanied by his wife Susan Hawley, he is looking forward to returning to Redford. It was an easy decision to make, he said.

Members of the audience and board commended the administration for involving its school community in the process that led to choosing Zolkowski.

"It really got people - parents, teachers and students - looking hard at asking some tough questions," said Trustee Robert Tripp. "I was one of the people in that process."

The position was posted throughout the United States and 30 candidates applied. The field was later narrowed to three finalists. A group of 22 parents, students, board members and staff members played a key role in the interview and decision-making process.

Trustee Michael McCann said it gave the community a sense of ownership over the decision. "Now, it's their high school," he said.

A University of Michigan graduate, Zolkowski has a varied resume. Most recently, his responsibilities at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park included curriculum design and teacher evaluations - two areas of importance at Thurston High School.

His previous experience ranges from driving a taxicab to running an art gallery, from co-founding an import business of folk art from Latin America and Africa to producing triathlon events.

Before concluding the meeting, Darryl Husk, board president, reminded everyone that "this doesn't end the process. This is just the beginning."

It's a promising beginning for Teri Temby, a Redford resident and member of the community group Families.

Staying for Change. She said raising disciplinary standards at the high school has been a big issue.

"We wanted to improve discipline and put a greater focus on the academics," Temby said.

In June, principal Carolyn Seibers resigned from the position to work at Wayne Regional Services Agency. She had faced pressure from students, parents and staff demanding ways to curb student misbehavior at Thurston.

Now, the atmosphere is changing.

"People are excited," Temby said. "People are willing to get behind him."

Park's newest school going high-tech for students

BY CHRISTINE BRODA
STAFF WRITER

Freshmen preparing to start classes this fall at Plymouth High School are in for more than a typical first year students share of new experiences

Everything we do for the first time becomes our tradition, said Barb Zdrodowski secretary to the principal, Michael T Bee. We're starting from scratch

But starting from square one doesn't mean students and faculty will be working with the bare essentials

Actually, it's quite the opposite

The new high school, located at the corner of Beck and Joy roads in Canton, boasts an extensive assortment of new capabilities that complement and expand on current offerings at Canton and Salem

According to Bee, one of the things he is most excited about is the new technology

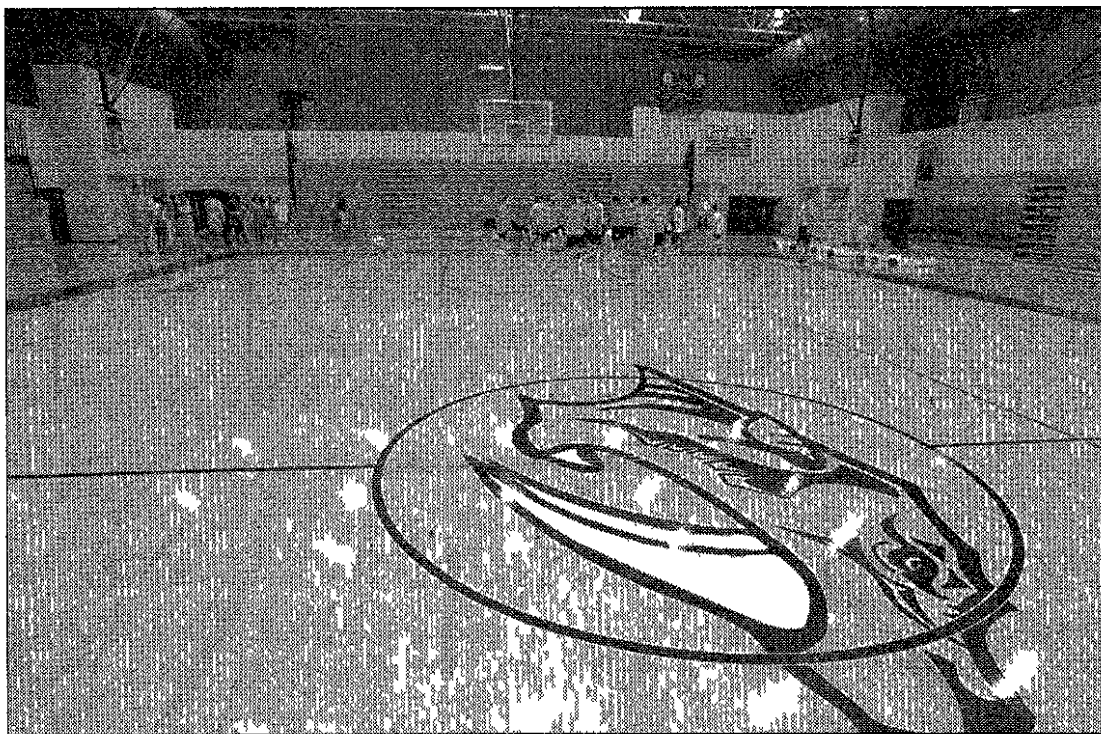

We have unbelievable technology, he said explaining he is still in the process of learning how to work all the new equipment. It's totally overwhelming and I'm just scratching the surface

New facilities at Plymouth include an exclusive long-distance learning lab that will allow students and faculty to communicate with people all over the world

For example, Media Specialist Charlie Jones explained that students studying culture will be able to connect with a classroom in Japan to ask students questions about their traditions, gaining perspective from a first-hand source rather than from a textbook

In fact, students won't find many physical books in Plymouth's library. The media center of the new school will offer primarily e-books and computerized databases for student research

Kids are different these days, Jones said, explaining that many students utilize computer resources for their research. They don't just use books; they go right to computers. But I don't want kids to

BRYAN MITCHELL | OBSERVER

Potential staffers, students and their parents got their first taste of the new Plymouth High School during an open house/tour last week

think they have to get all their information from the Internet

That's why Jones has subscribed to a number of educational databases that offer information in every subject imaginable, from English and science to culture and sports

Another unique aspect of technology at Plymouth is the ability for students to have round-the-clock access to computers. Jones said he is trying to arrange for students to be able to use school computers and databases at home

'It'll be like having a library in their home,' Jones said, explaining that future plans may allow students to check out laptops and other computer equipment in order to work on projects and homework outside of school. Each classroom will be equipped with a television and computer, which will allow teachers to access a video database with capabilities beyond normal VHS and DVD

Plymouth is one of 50 schools in the county experimenting with a program offered by United Streaming, an education company based in Chicago, Jones explained. With the program, teachers will be able to download entire videos, or just certain parts, to be used for classroom instruction

Aside from the technology aspect of the new school, the building's design is more accommodating to interdisciplinary teaching. The building is organized into three pods, each of which has a teacher workroom that allows faculty to meet and collaborate on assignments. There are also six project labs dispersed throughout the school's two stories, which will serve as meeting rooms where large groups can gather to hear speakers and work on projects

The addition of the new high school affects the rest of the Park, as well. The nationally renowned PCEP band will move into new state-of-the-art music facilities located at Plymouth, which include an acoustically sound main practice room as well as many smaller, soundproof rooms designed for individual practice

The student newspaper, yearbook and television station will also be housed in the new building, as well as a significant portion of the Park's special education programs

Athletes can also look forward to a host of new sports facilities at Plymouth. In addition to a new football stadium as well as ball fields and tennis courts, a cross country course is planned for the rolling, tree-filled hills located at the north-west corner of the property

The gymnasium will feature a track on the second floor as well as stadium-style seating on all four sides of the court. A large fitness center with mirrored walls will be available to students, as well as separate practice rooms for wrestling and gymnastics

But despite all the new technology and offerings at Plymouth, Zdrodowski said it's the enthusiasm of the teachers that really sets the new school apart

'Everyone is so excited and we've worked so hard,' she said. 'We've had our hurdles, but we jump over or under each one as they come. It's like buying a new house. There's always kinks, but we make it work.'

Healthy tip

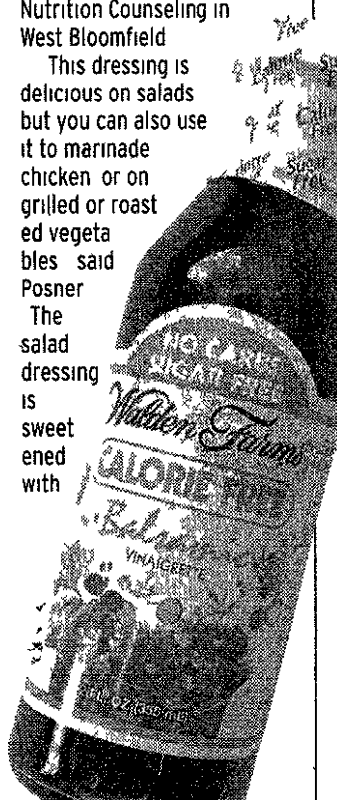

Walden Farms Balsamic Vinaigrette is fat free, sugar free and has zero calories. It's this week's healthy shopping tip from Gail Posner, a registered dietitian at Healthy Ways Nutrition Counseling in West Bloomfield.

This dressing is delicious on salads but you can also use it to marinate chicken or on grilled or roasted vegetables, said Posner. The salad dressing is sweetened with sucralose (a new artificial sweetener).

Safety reports on sucralose look promising. Manufacturers are slowly replacing the sweetener aspartame with sucralose in their products.

For more information about the dressing and other calorie-free products from Walden Farms, visit www.waldenfarms.com. To learn more about Healthy Ways Nutrition Counseling call (248) 855-4558.

Putting some kick in the kids' school lunch

Kids tell us what foods they'll keep or toss

BY LANA MINI
STAFF WRITER

Parents want their kids to eat healthy foods, but kids just want to have fun. Balancing nutrition with the picky palates of children can be a tough task, any parent knows.

Fourteen percent of American kids are overweight, according to the Center for Disease Control, and the U.S. Surgeon General calls childhood obesity an epidemic. Diets must change, starting with lunch.

So what's a parent to feed their child?

"The key to getting kids to eat well is to give them typical things that they want — like the cookies or chips — but healthier ones," said Maryann Wesselman, a parent and manager of Whole Foods Market in Ann Arbor.

Cookies can contain fruit juice as a sweetener, rather than sugar. Chips can be baked rather than fried. With that, children can feel like their food is normal.

School time is here, of course,

Amy Crandall and her kids Evan, 3 months, and Anna, 3 years old, shop together for healthy snacks.

and we found kids busy gazing at the array of new, brightly-colored packaged food at Whole Foods Market.

The big hits already this year

Squeezable foods in tubes. Yogurt that kids ooze into their mouths. Squeezable apple sauce and puddings.

"Kids want food that's fun and parents want foods that are healthy," said Joan Gatalaski, the regional buyer for Whole Foods markets.

"Salads are also very very popular among middle school girls," said Wesselman, the mother of teenage daughters. "They emulate the lunches of high school girls who bring homemade salads to school."

Just don't let lunch items become repetitive, Wesselman said.

Brianna Kohn's mom can satisfy her daughter's wants of prepackaged "lunches" with "The Good Lunch" by Yves natural foods which consists of vegetarian "meat" slices that look and taste like turkey, cookies sweetened with fruit juice rather than sugar and soy-based cheese.

Or she can choose meats that are organic and nitrate-free.

PLEASE SEE LUNCH, B2

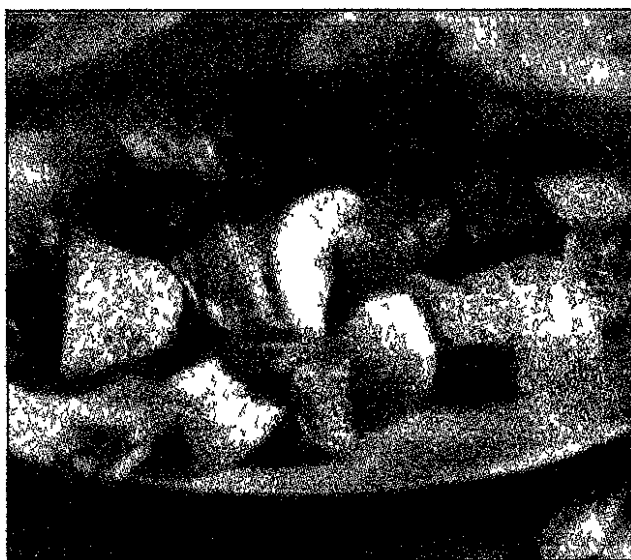

KEEP IT FRESH

The trendiest food is squeezable — yogurt, pudding or applesauce. Kids also like fruit roll-ups and chocolate milk.

Here are some ideas to bag for lunch:

- Add raspberries, raisins or chopped dates to peanut or soy nut butter sandwiches.
- Pack 100 percent fruit juice boxes like grapefruit, grape, orange or apple. For an extra protein boost, add a box of chocolate soy milk.
- Freeze grapes and watermelon for a cold, sweet treat.
- Mac n-cheese can be kept warm in a thermos. Lactose-intolerant kids can try Mac-n-Cheese made from soy or rice cheeses found at natural foods stores.
- Add Mandarin oranges, nuts or organic strawberries to dark green salads for some pizzazz.
- Pack humus as a dip for carrots, cucumber slices and cherry tomatoes.
- Spread cream cheese on cucumbers or carrots, and wrap with a slice of deli meat.

Update classic steak & potatoes for the grill

NATIONAL CATTLEMEN'S BEEF ASSOCIATION

Steak and Potato Kabobs are a contemporary take on classic steak and potatoes. They're delicious, easy and just right for family meals or casual entertaining.

Classics, whether clothes, cars or food, never go out of style. One of the most enduring classic food combinations is steak and potatoes.

Steak and baked or steak and fries are time-honored favorites, but for a new take on the classic, Steak & Potato Kabobs are a contemporary combination that's easy and delicious.

For kabobs, versatile boneless beef top sirloin steak is a great choice. It's lean, readily available in supermarkets, and easy to cut into kabob-size pieces with little or no waste. Teamed with pieces of yellow or zucchini squash, the beef and potato kabobs are a meal-on-a-skewer. To ensure that the potatoes cook through, microwave them just until tender before threading onto the skewer with the steak and squash.

To lend a zesty flavor that is also a classic with steak, toss the steak, potato and squash pieces with a favorite steak sauce to which you've added crushed garlic. It's guaranteed to grill up as a new favorite classic — smoky, crusty, irresistible!

Serve the kabobs with sliced fresh tomatoes and garlic bread — a great menu for the family or guests. Finish the meal with fresh berries and frozen yogurt, another cool classic.

STEAK & POTATO KABOBS

TOTAL PREPARATION AND COOKING TIME:
30 MINUTES

- 1 boneless beef top sirloin steak cut 1 inch thick
- 1 pound (approx. 4 small) all purpose potatoes scrubbed cut into 1/2 inch pieces
- 2 medium yellow squash or zucchini cut lengthwise in half
- Sauce
- 3/4 cup steak sauce
- 2 large cloves garlic crushed

Place potatoes in 11 by 7-inch microwave-safe baking dish. Cover with vented plastic wrap. Microwave at HIGH 6 to 8 minutes until potatoes are just tender, stirring once. Cool slightly.

Meanwhile, cut beef steak and squash into 1 1/4-inch pieces.

In 1-cup glass measure, combine sauce ingredients, microwave at HIGH 1-1/2 minutes, stirring once. Cool slightly.

Toss beef and vegetables with 1/3 cup sauce. Alternately thread beef and vegetables on eight 8-inch or four 12-inch metal skewers. Place skewers on grid over medium, ash-covered coals, grill, uncovered, 10 to 12 minutes for medium doneness, turning occasionally and brushing with remaining sauce.

Makes 4 servings (serving size 2 kabobs).

Don't give her yucky sandwiches though, Brianna said, she'll throw them away. As parents learn to read labels, to distinguish the good ingredients from the not-so-good ones and to truly understand what they are feeding their children they will be better equipped to assemble a meal that provides a child with more of the good nutrition they need said nutritionist Alana Sugar.

WHAT THEY LIKE

Alex, 11, said chicken salad with celery and grapes is a nice snack for school. Natalie Bloom, 7, liked it too, but on some days, she said, she might throw away the grapes. Kids will eat "unusual" foods if presented in a normal fashion. We asked the five girls from age 5 to 15 to sample sweet potato burgers, marinated tofu strips, organic chicken salad and vegetable latkes. All 5 kids — from ages 5 to 14 gobbled it up. Bloom wasn't exactly sure what she was eating, but it sure tasted good, she said. It was so good she said she pack it in her lunch for school. When she learned she was munching on baked seasoned tofu, she shrugged her shoulders. "It's good, Bloom 7 said, Pretty spicy. Her friend Brianna Kohn liked it too. "Yeah, it is pretty good, Kohn said. "But still I like Lunchables better. Or grapes or peaches or peanut butter sandwiches. Nutritionist, Alana Sugar, suggested that parents beware of foods that contain the following: ■ Partially hydrogenated fats, unnecessary colorings or sweeteners. ■ High sugar content. ■ Too large of portions. One small bag of chips may actually be more than one serving size. ■ High sodium content. The key to getting kids to eat well is to give them typical things that they want — like the cookies — but healthier ones, said Wesselman. Kids want to feel normal and fit in with the crowd. They'd be just as happy with "ants on a log" — celery with peanut or soy butter topped with raisins or sunflower seeds. Melame Kohn said many of her teenage friends like rice cakes with peanut butter and banana — or salad. Hanna Kohn said she loves pretzels and carrots with ranch dressing. Brianna Kohn said she'd throw away olives or leftovers from dinner the night before if they were packed into her lunch.

- EZ TOFU SANDWICH
- 4-6 oz extra firm tofu (or baked tofu from White Wave)
 - 1 teaspoon olive oil or tamarai soy sauce
 - 1-3 teaspoons basil or garlic
 - Whole Grain bread
 - Dark green leafy lettuce

 - red pepper slices
 - Whole grain bread or submarine roll

- PESTO PIZZA (SERVES 2)
- 2 Sesame seed or garlic bagels
 - 1/2 cup pine nuts
 - 3 tbs olive oil
 - 1/4 cup parsley chopped
 - 1 tsp chives
 - dash of garlic
 - tomatoes sliced into half rounds
 - fresh mushroom slices

- MANGO WITH STICKY RICE (FUN FOR THE KIDS)
- 3 to 4 ripe mangoes chilled
 - 3 cups cooked sticky rice
 - 1 cup coconut milk
 - 2 to 4 tbs sugar
 - 1/4 tsp salt

Rinse mangoes and chill whole. Peel and slice mangoes just before serving to keep the fresh sweet taste. In a saucepan combine sticky rice and coconut milk and cook on medium heat for 5 minutes or until thick. Stir in sugar and salt. The amount of sugar depends on the sweetness of the mangoes. Reduce heat to low and simmer, covered, for two minutes. Pack in Tupperware. Makes 4 to 6 servings. (Note: mold the rice-coconut-milk mixture in a bowl, then invert and place on a large round serving platter. Remove bowl.)

Toast bagel just to give it a crunchy texture. Blend pine nuts, parsley, chives and oil until it smooths into a sauce texture. Add a dash more oil if needed. Spread Pesto sauce onto bagel, add sliced tomatoes and mushrooms. Refrigerate the evening before so Pesto sauce firms and holds well onto bagel.

Japanese bakers win prize for bread

Well, the secret is out. The team that recently won first prize for bread at Coupe du Monde in Paris was from Japan!

This was not a surprise to bakers "in the know" but it was a revelation for most folks, especially the French team which placed fourth.

In the country of rice, bread has made a big impact - admittedly, the result of French tutoring.

First the grandfather of artisan bread, Raymond Calvel provided foundational advice. And the great French baker Bernard Ganachaud opened a bakery in Tokyo in 1984. He now advises more than two dozen stores in Japan. The Japanese bakers have learned their craft well.

For them, artisan bread is very special, and they treat the process with great respect.

They appreciate the skilled working of natural ingredients toward an idea.

They are great admirers of the Zen of baking - a philosophy that we in the West, might benefit from too.

After all, artisan bread baking is a craft and the best results come from the exercise of patience, attention to detail, and the sheer enjoyment of handling dough.

So, when you bake at home, unwind, don't rush the process, take your time. Baking can be one of life's special pleasures.

Now, it should be noted that the team the Japanese beat in the Coupe du Monde competition (by the smallest of margins) was from the United States.

And it was the U.S. who won the last World Cup in 1999 against 11 other countries. The artisan movement in this country is strong and growing quickly.

By the way, it wasn't so long ago that a poster campaign in Europe claimed "the French make the best breads." Well, that's probably only partially true now.

Some of the best bread can be found in France - made by bakers who are using the tried and true method of long, cold fermentation to achieve wonderfully complex flavors. But now you can find superlative quality breads in Tokyo and across the United States, even in Michigan, in those bakeries that refuse to compromise.

EDITOR'S NOTE

Give Thanks Bakery was featured in the July edition of Modern Baking as the recipient of a 2002 Leadership Merchandising Award. It's a great honor said owner Gerald Matthes, considering our infancy.

Open since May 1999, the Bakery and Cafe in downtown Rochester seats 12 and offers more than 30 varieties of bread including crunchy baguettes, Swiss multi-grain, and fruity kugelhoppf.

"There's something symbiotic about a hand-knitted sweater and a hand-crafted loaf of bread," said Matthes.

It's all part of the fun and the charm that makes Give Thanks unlike any other bakery in this area.

Gerald Matthes is the owner of Give Thanks Bakery and a Bloomfield Hills resident. Look for his column in Taste on the third Sunday of the month.

Could it be: A return of Sanders lunch counters?

BY LANA MINI
STAFF WRITER

Imagine Sanders hot fudge cream puffs once again - maybe even in Rochester!

Imagine sitting at the counter on the old-fashioned metal stool and enjoying Sanders Soup in a Bread Bowl or sodas with Sanders vanilla ice cream.

Foods from days past in a restaurant from days past. Or is it the future?

Sanders, one of Michigan's most beloved sweet stores is reuniting with Morley - Michigan's largest candy producer. And they might even bring back the lunch counters and lunch menu.

The new company is Morley Brands LLC. The three Michigan stores are located at 436 S. Main Street in Rochester, 23770 Hall Road in Clinton Township and 18577 East Nine Mile Road in Eastpointe.

Morley's purchase of Sanders includes the secret recipes like Bumpy Layer Cake. The company plans to expand beyond Michigan. Currently Sanders products are found in grocery and mass merchandise outlets, but the Sanders stores are gone.

Transplants and retirees in the South and West (states) have not lost their taste for Sanders Hot Fudge and Morley's famous Pecan tortes, Ron Davies, the new CEO said. Both have steady Internet sales from locations outside of Michigan.

Morley is headquartered in Detroit with Peninsula Capital Partners controlling over $400 million in investment capital. It is owned by several Morley family members and managed by Peninsula.

Morley's has been on an expansion track and recently purchased Red Apple Resources (a fundraising firm) of California, he said.

The marriage of the two companies gives us more critical mass and lets us capitalize on what makes each company so great.

The three companies have combined sales of more than $54 million. And if customers demand it, the soda fountains might even return.

Chicken burritos are fun, low-fat

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"More fun, less fat" sounds like a winning idea, especially when it's all about putting cuisine on a diet - for YOUR health's sake.

This is the theme of a feature offering revised recipes for favorite dishes, lightening them up and slashing calories and fat, in the July issue of Self magazine. Every region of the United States has its own unique flavor, food writer Patricia Bannan says, but "we're one nation united under - a huge weight problem."

One of the slumped down recipes is Chicken Burritos, associated with Southern California's Mexican-influenced cuisine, a cooking style which has the potential to be fat-loaded (cheese, sour cream), or a healthy mix of carbs (tortillas, beans) and protein (chicken, beans). This version of burritos is stuffed with all-white-meat chicken, less cheese and nonfat sour cream, rolled in a whole-wheat tortilla for extra fiber.

A conventional burrito might have around 30 grams of fat, this recipe brings it down to below 10 grams of fat per burrito.

CHICKEN BURRITOS

- 1 small onion, chopped
- 2 small garlic cloves, minced
- 2 teaspoons vegetable oil
- 12 ounces boneless, skinless chicken breasts, cut into 2-inch strips
- 12 ounce can black beans, rinsed and drained
- 1 1/2 cups hot salsa
- 1/2 teaspoon chili powder
- Six 8-inch whole wheat tortillas
- 3/4 cup Cheddar cheese, shredded
- 6 cups fresh spinach, shredded
- 1/2 cup nonfat sour cream

In a large skillet, saute onion and garlic in oil over medium-high heat until onion is translucent.

Add chicken, cook 4 minutes or until no longer pink. Stir in beans, 1/2 cup salsa and chili powder, cook 2 minutes longer.

Place tortillas between moist paper towels and microwave on high for 10 seconds.

Spoon 1/2 cup filling onto each tortilla, top with 1 tablespoon cheese.

Fold each into a burrito. Serve with a cup of spinach, salsa, remaining cheese and sour cream.

Makes 6 servings.

Nutrition information per serving: 330 cal, 9 g total fat (3.5 g saturated fat).

Learn a flavorful lesson from Cuban cooks

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cuban cooks often add dynamic flavor to meat with a combination of garlic and citrus juice, Norman Kolpas writes in The Quick Grill Artist (Clarkson-Potter), his latest cookbook.

The following Cuban-influenced steak dish is among the varied recipes featured in the book - all of which he promises you can make on the grill in 30 minutes or less, in keeping with the subtitle, Fast and Fabulous Recipes for Cooking With Fire.

The garlic-citrus flavor combination here is further highlighted with a quickly made salsa sparked with onions and cilantro.

Kolpas is a highly esteemed cookbook author, editor and writing teacher, who has worked on Williams-Sonoma publications and on the illustrated Joy of Cooking series. A personal note on his new book's jacket describes him as a Southern Californian with a family to feed who grills year round.

CUBAN STEAKS WITH GARLIC-CITRUS MARINADE AND ORANGE-ONION SALSA

- 4 top round or flank steaks (5 to 6 ounces each)
- 3 or 4 garlic cloves, peeled
- 1/2 cup orange juice
- 1/4 cup lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- For the Orange-Onion Salsa: 2 large sweet oranges, 1/2 red onion, thinly sliced, 2 tablespoons finely chopped fresh cilantro, salt, black pepper.

Preheat the grill. Meanwhile, prepare the steaks. Trim any excess fat or connective tissue from them. One at a time, place each steak piece between two sheets of waxed paper and pound with a meat pounder until they are flattened to a thickness of about 1/2 inch.

Press the garlic cloves through a garlic press and put into a large, shallow dish. Add the orange and lemon juices and the olive oil and stir well. Add the steaks, turning them in the mixture to coat them, and leave them in the dish at room temperature.

To prepare the Orange-Onion Salsa: Segment the oranges. Using a sharp knife, first cut off the peel at the top and bottom of each orange, cutting thickly enough to remove the outer membrane of the orange segments as well. Then stand each orange on a cut end and cut off the peel in strips in the same way. Holding the peeled orange over a bowl to catch the juices, free each segment by cutting between it and the membranes on either side, cut the freed segment crosswise in half and let the halves drop into the bowl. Add the sliced onion and cilantro and toss well, seasoning with salt and pepper to taste.

Carefully oil the grill rack. Remove the steaks from their marinade, pat them dry, and season them with salt and pepper to taste. Place the steaks on the rack and cook, turning once, until done to your liking, 12 to 15 minutes total for medium.

Serve the steaks, passing around the Orange-Onion Salsa for guests to spoon alongside the meat.

Makes 4 servings.

Perfect pair: Peaches with prosciutto

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Prosciutto and melon is a classic summer combination. However, prosciutto, the cured Italian ham, usually cut in transparently thin slices, can also be served with other seasonal fruits - try peaches and plums.

Here are two super-easy appetizer recipes that pair prosciutto di Parma (also known as Parma ham, named for its place of origin), with peaches and with glazed plums. Prosciutto is available in specialty food stores and deli departments of supermarkets.

- peeled and quartered
- 8 thin slices (about 4 ounces) prosciutto di Parma
- Optional garnish: Mint leaves, lime slices.

In a cup, combine oil, lime juice and white pepper. On four plates, arrange peaches and prosciutto di Parma. Drizzle with dressing. Garnish with mint leaves and lime slices, if desired.

Makes 4 appetizer servings.

PROSCIUTTO AND GLAZED PLUMS

- (Preparation 10 minutes, cooking time 5 minutes)
- 4 ripe plums, pitted and halved or quartered
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1/2 cup crumbled Gorgonzola cheese, at room temperature
- 8 thin slices French bread, toasted

- 8 thin slices prosciutto di Parma (about 4 ounces)

Optional garnish: grape clusters and toasted walnut halves.

Preheat broiler. Line broiler pan with foil. Place plum halves on pan, sprinkle with sugar, let stand for 10 minutes. Broil until softened and slightly caramelized, about 5 minutes.

Spread 1 tablespoon Gorgonzola on each toast. On each plate, arrange 2 plum halves, 2 slices prosciutto di Parma and two Gorgonzola-topped toasts.

Garnish with small grape clusters and toasted walnut halves, if desired.

Makes 4 appetizer servings. (Recipe from Prosciutto di Parma)

A history of peanut butter

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) - "Peanuts: The Illustrious History of the Goober Pea" (University of Illinois University Press, $29.95) by Andrew S. Smith tells the back story of one of the wonders of the national food scene.

Quite a definition - bearing in mind that in antebellum America the peanut was shunned by Southern aristocrats and Northern elite, considered ungentle, fit only for the poor and slaves to eat. Thereafter, it soared in public esteem, of course. Fresh roasted peanuts soon found a wider popular fan base, and now peanuts and peanut butter are part of the food mainstream.

The book surveys that long history, drawing from many scholarly sources. Among Smith's offerings is a chapter titled "Historical Recipes

Renaissance Festival brings old world to life

BY BRENDA DOMINICK
STAFF WRITER

Jugglers juggling jumbo-sized pins, European folktale telling, old-world tunes playing, and peasants, the usual lynchman and gypsies hustling onlookers

You hear a strong voice in front of the crowd at the Renaissance Festival, we hope you enjoy the livacious, and throughout the village grounds the peasants shout 'God save the Queen'

Every few steps runs into a very spirited crew of characters who whimsically cast off words to get your attention

'Prey pardon, how do you far on this fine day?' asks one of the Queen's harddressers Lady Joan De Paul Mitchell, alter ego of Tami Burton, a Flint-area resident

Angel, Lady Vixen's girl (aka Birmingham resident Michelle Abrams), says she likes to 'Speak softly and carry a big mallet,' around the village

And one can't replace the heart-thumping sounds of the Djembe and Ashiko drums played by Gving Tree Rhythms. This trio entertains visitors with a combination of Indian tribal, belly-dancing and Egyptian beats

Down the street, a lively group of peasants and nobles, enthusiastically recruit people who are 'Happy and (they) know it' to come get wet or throw a wet sponge at people

Sir Walter Raleigh, known outside the Renaissance world as Rochester Hills commoner Jon Kolek, 29, is also known as the director of the festival's Smoker attraction

For $9.95, Smoker participants get two drinks (equal to seven pounds), two top shelf cigars, a food buffet and an hour's worth of all sorts of entertainment

It's a remarkable bargain he says

LisaMarie Gabriele from Lake Orion, who portrays Tritte of the wench duo Ample & Tritte, does an improvisational comedy show and picks audience members to play the characters

'So, it's always a different show, even if it's the same script,' Gabriele says

It's not all fun and revelry for these dedicated fellows of fares. All of the Renaissance characters have through a rigorous, five-week training. During this training, several sheets of Elizabethan vocabulary were studied and rehearsed

'The language is not that different from our own language today, says Cho resident Joseph Cripps, who plays José Hose Eberé (another harddresser for the Queen)

Monte Nagler captured this sweeping scene of the palace steps in Uxmal Mexico with a wide angle lens and small aperture

Wide angle broadens view

Did you know that you can dramatically widen your photographic horizons by using wide-angle lenses? Wide-angle lenses are truly exciting to use and are my favorite of all I lenses

A wide-angle lens will alter depth-of-field and perspective and give you a picture quite unlike what a normal or telephoto lens will produce. In short, it's a lens that 'sees' more, taking in a wider expanse than other lenses

There are several advantages to the wide-angle lens. First, is the increase in depth-of-field — the zone of sharpness realized in the final picture. A 28 mm lens (moderate wide-angle) at an aperture f/11 will produce a depth-of-field from 5 feet to infinity. In contrast, a normal 50 mm lens, properly focused, will give you a depth-of-field of about 20 feet to infinity. This means that with the wide angle lens more of what you see in the viewfinder will be sharp and in focus

Going even wider, a 17 mm lens (super wide-angle) at f/16 will produce an astounding depth-of-field of 10 inches to infinity. This means that if light conditions enable you to shoot at f/16, you never have to focus the camera as long as you are at least 10 inches away from the subject!

Second, you can get by with much slower shutter speeds with a wide-angle lens, a nice advantage when light is limited. The rule is that a lens can be handheld at the shutter speed closest to its focal length. Therefore, a 28 mm lens can be safely hand-held at 1/30 second and a 17 mm lens can be held at 1/15 second. With slow speed film, low-level light and a desire to maximize depth-of-field, this can be quite an advantage. Try shooting a normal or telephoto lens at these shutter speeds and see your shaky results

Many photographers ask about distortion, the bending of light rays characteristic of wide-angle lenses. Buildings will curve upwards and some subjects may begin to look unreal. It happens, and there may be situations when distortion is undesirable

But the inherent distortion of wide-angle lenses can be turned into one of your biggest advantages. Selective distortion can be a plus. Strength, drama,

Focus On Photography

and excitement can be added to your photographs through proper use of distortion

Creatively used, distortion can emphasize certain parts of a picture and can give a photograph an artistic quality no other lens can produce. Sweeping foregrounds and bold subject framing are easily attainable

And you can deliberately exploit the wide-angle lens tendency to exaggerate the size of close objects at the expense of distant ones. Wide-angle lenses will produce photographs for you that are truly unique

OBSERVER & ECCENTRIC GUIDE TO THE MOVIES

Novel characters drive author's first work

AP - The premise of a young Jewish man traveling to the Ukraine in search of the woman rumored to have saved his grandfather from the Nazis is one that could easily slip into the maudlin or the melodramatic... AP - Here's the formula. The good guys are slim, beautiful and usually rich. The bad guys are fat and ugly, and usually rich. Sex, money and retribution are life's driving forces.

Jonathan's grandfather The third story line is Jonathan's novel-in-progress, which revolves around an imagined history of Trachimbrod... AP - Here's the formula. The good guys are slim, beautiful and usually rich. The bad guys are fat and ugly, and usually rich. Sex, money and retribution are life's driving forces.

Indeed, while "Everything Is Illuminated" begins as a comic novel and Jonathan's passages about the history of Trachimbrod are a bit surrealistic, there are also moments of great emotion and drama. "Here it is almost too forbidding to continue," Alex tells Jonathan before recalling a decisive moment when Alex's grandfather recalls a long-repressed memory from the war.

Some foods still obscure, and that's very good news

BY MIKE MURPHY
CORRESPONDENT

Take a drive down Grand River in Farmington and Orchard Lake Road in Farmington Hills and what you see is a multicultural culinary landscape

Increased dining options are reflective of the diversifying population the area has witnessed in recent years, but they're also reflective of more daring appetites from across the cultural board

"I think the whole area northwest of Detroit has seen an increase," Farmington City Manager, Frank Lauhoff said "People from different cultures are coming in and they're bringing their cultures with them, but for people to go into business for themselves and to succeed they're drawing from a cross section of people"

And while the culinary explosion might not be unique to Farmington and Farmington Hills, the concentration of restaurants and ethnic grocers along the main drags of the two cities is truly impressive

Tucked between the pizza and burger joints are Indian, Chinese, Japanese and Thai restaurants galore Everest Express in Farmington bills itself as the first to serve Nepal cuisine in Michigan

Some restaurant owners say they located in the area because it's a place where people of similar cultures increasingly live and work, and some restaurant owners say they wanted a Farmington address because of the affluence of the community

The Everest Express has been open on Orchard Lake Road for about 10 months and owner Nidhal Gorges said the restaurant has come to rely on the local clientele, which seems eager to try something new

"I've been getting a lot of local people, which I am very happy with," Gorges said "That's what we want our neighbors to come here"

For some customers, the food is traditional, or something reminiscent of home Others are setting off on an epicurean adventure

Mana Guerra of Walled Lake spent about an hour scouring the shelves at China Merchandise, a grocery store on Grand River She said she just likes to find something different and that sometimes something she tastes at an ethnic restaurant will prompt a trip to an ethnic grocer where she can find ingredients she needs to experiment

"I try different stuff at the restaurant Then the idea is to try it at home," Guerra said "I try Chinese, Japanese, you name it I'm Italian So you've got the United Nations right here"

Next door at a small Indian grocer called, Nam Ste Plaza, Ram Gutta of Southfield was flipping through Indian language video cassettes after

'People from different cultures are coming in and they're bringing their cultures with them, but for people to go into business for themselves and to succeed they're drawing from a cross section of people.'

Frank Lauhoff
Farmington City Manager

he had picked up a few groceries

"There's no place like this in Southfield That's why I come to Farmington Hills," Gutta said "You can't get this in Kroger's or Mejer's"

The strip mall where the two shops are located also contains Spicy Desi India, a self-style "fast food joint" serving Asian-Indian food Owner Raja Bhupathiraju opened the restaurant in January He said he chose the location because of the other ethnic shops in the strip mall and because the surrounding area is becoming heavily populated with Asian-Indians

While many of the restaurant and shop owners said they located in Farmington or Farmington Hills because their cultures were becoming more visible in the area, most owners interviewed said they still needed a broader base of customers to succeed

"We get all kinds of people," Ravi Mandava said Mandava is Co-owner of Priya, an Indian restaurant that opened on Grand River two years ago Priya started out in Troy and Mandava said he and his partner chose Farmington because of the Asian-Indian population in Farmington, Novi and West Bloomfield

The reputation of the restaurant has been growing and has been doing well despite all the competition in the area

Mandava attributes the restaurant's success not only to the Asian-Indians in the area, but also to the area's overall diversity

"I think that's the reason we're doing well" Mandava said

But some restaurant owners are becoming concerned with what they see as an overabundance of restaurants in the area

When Desert Sands owner Mike Salamey opened his restaurant on Orchard Lake Road four years ago, his was one of the only restaurants in the area serving Middle Eastern food Populations of Jews, Chaldeans and Armenians in the area

prompted him to choose the location

"All different types of people that like to eat Middle Eastern food," Salamey said Now, he estimates there are 10 Middle Eastern restaurants in a five mile area

More choices, he said, has meant a smaller portion of the customer pie for everyone "Obviously, it hurts," Salamey said "The more choice, the less there is to go around, unless our customer base is growing, and I don't think it is"

Salamey said he was confident that the market would eventually sort out what he called a glut of restaurants but that restaurant owners would suffer in the meantime

"There are a lot of ethnic people here, but it's become too much for the people," said Salamey, who added that the fallout from Sept 11 also hurt a lot of the restaurants But even specialty ethnic restaurants are feeling the pinch of competition

Thilagam Pandia, Co-owner of Udipi Vegetarian restaurant-sandwiched between two Indian restaurants in a strip mall area on Orchard Lake Road-said things have changed in the four years since the restaurant opened

"Before was better," Pandia said "People had less choice Now, they have more choice"

But Ron Wilson, Co-owner of Alegrias, a Spanish tapas-style restaurant in the Holiday Inn on 10 Mile Road said the area is still attractive to restaurant owners

Alegrias opened two years ago and frills like Flamenco dancing on weekends, as well as a type of cuisine that's rare in the metro-Detroit area, have combined to make it a popular dining spot

"Spanish food is just so underrepresented in this area," Wilson said

Wilson said that he and his partner, Jose Montes, figured that Farmington-Farmington Hills area residents fit a certain profile

They were more affluent and more likely to have traveled to places where they could have become familiar with the type of food served at Alegrias

"You would not want to put this in Redford or Downriver You would not succeed," Wilson said "You need someone that has culture to try different things"

Hong Hua Co-owner, Gary Yau, said the restaurant's proximity to I-696 and the relatively high income level of the communities that surround the restaurant's Orchard Lake Road location were reasons that he moved to Farmington Hills 18 months ago Hong Hua, which began with a location in Troy, serves Hong Kong cuisine and is a relatively upscale restaurant

"We're able to attract customers from Ann Arbor and from Lansing and were close to West Bloomfield," Yau said

German river cruise is trip into history and legend

BY GRETCHEN HITCH
CORRESPONDENT

When my husband and I received the brochure from Alumni College Abroad on the legendary Rhine River, we made reservations to revisit Germany. Scenery along the Rhine River Gorge was the high point of all the vistas, villages and castles.

Starting at Mainz, our cruiser first passed Ehrenfels castle or the 'Mouse Tower' built by the Archbishops of Mainz to collect tolls from passing merchants in the Rhine Gorge near Bingen. Our excellent guide recounted the legend of the Mouse Tower in the middle of the Rhine River. During a famine in the year 969, the starving peasants implored the Archbishop of Mainz to sell the grain in his granaries, but he refused, waiting for higher prices. When they marched on his castle, he ordered the granaries opened. The peasants rushed in and he closed the barn door and set it afire. A gaggle of mice ran out of the barn, following the Archbishop, who rushed to the Mouse Tower castle. The mice pursued him. All that was left of that bishop was a skeleton.

The next River Rhine specter is Castle Reichenstein, which also has its legend, but with a happier ending. In the Middle Ages, a beautiful girl, Gerda, who lived in the castle, fell in love with a prince who lived with his uncle in nearby Castle Reichenstein. The prince's uncle tried to arrange a marriage for the prince with Gerda's father, but then the uncle fell in love with Gerda and he decided to marry the young woman himself. During the ride to the wedding chapel, Gerda's horse bolted, the uncle unfortunately fell to his death when his horse reared up, and the young couple was married as first planned.

Next, the awaited Loreley, a quartzite rock, 435 feet high, narrows the river valley creating a treacherous bend. According to legend, seven blond virgins singing on the rock lured sailors to their doom. At this narrowest part of the river, coming up is Rheinfels Castle, the largest on the Rhine, built in 1245 by the Count of Katzenellenbogen.

According to legend, Castle Rheinstein was home to a prince who married the beautiful Gerda after an involved courtship.

The cruise on the legendary River Rhine sponsored by Alumni Campus Abroad in June was described as "Unrivaled scenic beauty that crowns the banks." The Rhine originates in Switzerland and winds its way through six countries, but the passage through the gorge between Mainz and Koblenz with its formidable castles is spectacular. Our starting point was Breisach, and on the first day's outing, three busses took the passengers to 12th century Freiburg with its cathedral on Munsterplatz surrounded by a daily outdoor farmers market.

Luncheon at the half-timbered Black Forest Inn climaxed with Black Forest Cake, and the tour bus took us on to Strasbourg, France. With Euros as the currency now, crossing the border was seamless in every way.

Located in France's Alsace region, Strasbourg's been back and forth as part of France and Germany 14 times. A lecture on the emerging European Community at the Council of Europe emphasized the educational focus. The wines of Alsace were tasted on the Route du Vin in its medieval village of Obernai in the Vosges foothills. At Ebersmuenster, the group listened to an organ concert in an exquisite abbey.

The next morning, while the ship departed Strasbourg for Grefferen, Germany, we set out on an excursion to Baden-Baden, the luxurious casino and resort with its Roman Caracalla Baths. After the ship was docked in Speyer, the busses drove to the unmatched university town of Heidelberg on the Neckar River, with its dramatic medieval castle ruins overlooking the roman bridge, one of the few spared in World War II bombings.

Exploring Heidelberg's student bars, the Seppl and the Red Ox Inn, where the Student Prince is said to have been written, followed. Soon it was on to Speyer with its Romanesque Cathedral. By now, the domes or cathedrals began to meld together in a Romanesque Gothic collage of spires. In Worms the group studied Martin Luther and the Reformation and yet another magnificent cathedral where Luther tacked his reformation thesis on the door in 1517.

An excursion to Mainz and the Gutenberg Museum showed the vast importance of movable type invented there by Johannes Gutenberg.

On to Berlin, its museums and its construction cranes. The German capital changed after the fall of the wall in 1989 to a reunited Berlin, and a constant wave of rebuilding has resulted in countless cranes on many building sites and a constant roar of equipment.

As tourists in Berlin, after Unter den Linden, it's the museums that have to be seen and the five are on the Spree River's Museum Island in the former East Berlin.

In March, an article in the New York Times said, "The museums carried the scars of German history. In the 1930's, The Nazi's stripped them of what was called degenerate modern art. (After World War II) West Berlin's response was to convert palaces in the Charlottenburg district into museums and build the Neue Nationalgalerie near the Berlin Wall." After a visit, a tour of the Alte (old) Nationalgalerie is essential.

The German aim, the Times said, is to eventually link all the Berlin Museums with their 4,000 years of art by 2008. The Pergamon Museum, with its 40 meter high marble Greek altar and 113 meter frieze of Greek statues - discovered in 1864 by Carl Humann in Pergamon - excavated with Turkish government permission and somehow brought to Berlin.

Probably the most famous of antiquities opened in 1930 at Berlins Pergamon Museum, 'a monument to Greek art, with its goddess Athena Hellenistic sculpture, one of many on display.

An unexpected treat was the timeless bust of Nefertiti (1340 B.C.) at the Agyptisches (Egyptian) Museum. But disappointing in June, the famous Bradenburger Gate - called the quintsensational symbol of Berlin - was enveloped in plastic for repairs.

Inspired by the Athenian entrance to Acropolis and finished in 1795, it was the memorable scene at the fall of the Berlin Wall in 1989. It is scheduled to reopen in September 2002.

Reichstag new Dome was designed by Lord Norman Foster. Berlin's rebuilt Reichstag boasts a spectacular glass dome replacing the bombed out original.

Families sought

The Plymouth Whalers hockey team is searching for host families for its players for the 2002-03 season.

Each year players on the team live with host families in the Plymouth area while they play and go to school. The families will be responsible for providing a home to the players for the season which runs from September until June.

The Whalers are also seeking interns to perform various game night duties including video work and stat taking. Most internships are unpaid and anyone interested must provide their own transportation.

Anyone interested in being a host family or an intern for the Whalers should contact Alex Roberts at (734) 453 8400.

Martin dinner

Madonna University will hold its inaugural Julie Martin Scholarship Award dinner, 7 p.m. Thursday Sept. 5 at the University Center Dining room on campus.

The dinner is in honor of 1999-MU alumnus Julie Martin, a former NAIA All-America volleyball player who died of cancer in 1998. The event is one of the primary fundraising vehicles for the Julie Martin Endowed Scholarship for Academic and Athletic Excellence. Its goal is to provide financial assistance for MU student athletes both now and in the future.

We are excited about keeping Julie's memory alive, said MU athletic director Bryan Rizzo. We anticipate that this event is the start of a legacy that will last for years to come.

The cost of the dinner is $25 per person with all proceeds to benefit the scholarship fund. It will also kick off the fourth annual Julie Martin Women's Volleyball Tournament Friday-Saturday Sept. 6-7 hosted by Madonna. For ticket information call Rizzo at (734) 432 5604 or Dr. Richard Sax, Dean of College of Arts and Humanities at (734) 432 5542.

Netburners 1st

Netburners II coached by Dietrich Lever and Chip Weyer recently captured their age bracket with a 5-1 record in the Gus Macker 3 on 3 basketball tournament held in West Bloomfield.

It was the team's second Macker title this year.

The Netburners II opened the tourney with four straight victories before losing to the Franklin Jammers 11-7 due to a time limit. They bounced back in the double elimination championship game to beat the Jammers 15-3 as Brian Weyer (Livonia) was four for four from the two point line. Other members of the Netburners II include Steve Harding (Livonia), Jordan Konkoly and Dietrich Lever II both of Redford.

CC grad signs

Catholic Central graduate Mike Brusseau, a hockey player with the team, has signed with the Lubbock (Tex.) Cotton Kings of the Central Hockey League. Brusseau who also played at Michigan State and Lake Superior State Universities is a native of Detroit.

Annapolis drops football; RU looks for 8th foe

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
STAFF WRITER

The two Redford public high school football programs saw their schedules unexpectedly reduced by one for the 2002 season. However, that reduction may only be temporary.

Dearborn Heights Annapolis announced Thursday it would not field a varsity football team for the 2002 season. According to The Detroit News, only 11 players showed up for the first day of practice Monday, one senior and one junior among them.

Annapolis is a Class B high school with 628 enrolled students, as of August 2001. Since the program's first season in 1970, it has a cumulative record of 86-217-2, an average of less than three wins per season.

Annapolis was to have played both Redford Thurston and Redford Union this season, on Sept. 20 and 14 respectively. This leaves RU in a tight spot, since it had just eight regular-season games scheduled to start with. The reduction in games came about because of the Mega Conference's restructuring as a result of Wayne Memorial's exit from the league.

RU coach Miles Tomasaitis said he and Athletic Director Brett Steele are currently working to find an eighth opponent for the team. He said he wants to avoid playing just seven games if at all possible.

"We've got a lot of feelers out and our Athletic Director is working hard to find another opponent," Tomasaitis said. "It puts everyone in a rough spot. I've never heard of anything like this in our league before."

Annapolis, a traditionally weak program, went 1-8 last year in the Mega Gold Division. The Gold Division no longer exists, and the Mega is now made up of three conferences with nine teams in each, compared to four divisions of seven schools through last year. The Panthers originally had a "bye week" on

MU men rise to top of WHAC

Don't blame Madonna University men's soccer coach Pete Alexander for keeping his fingers crossed as the Crusaders enter the 2002 season.

In the opener of the 2001 season, three-time All-America Sam Pirame went down for the year with a torn quadriceps muscle.

The Crusaders went on to finish third in the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference with a 5-2 record, then rebounded to win the WHAC playoffs.

The year also ended on a sour note when All-WHAC defender Dan Kurtmatis broke his leg in a 5-0 NALIA Region 8 semifinal loss to Bethel (Ind.). It also cost Kurtmatis the entire 2001-02 basketball season.

With a healthy Kurtmatis, a junior, and Pirame back in the lineup, coupled with a strong recruiting class, MU

Wilson leads Rocks

What Rick Wilson needs is a team with his experience.

Wilson, beginning his 20th season as Salem's golf coach (and he can't believe he's been giving life lessons that long), will have a team with just a mid-level amount of varsity golfing experience returning.

GOLF PREVIEW

"We'll be young," Wilson said. "We have two juniors who have the most experience - Andy Thackaberry and Aaron Cheesman. Both were in the lineup most of last year."

"Then we have two or three seniors who were in or out of the lineup."

Returning are seniors Charlie Suder, who saw limited varsity action last year as did Joe Pomorski. The other returning senior is Dave Stevens.

"Those are our five key guys," Wilson said. "We have a couple of younger kids who are going to make the team but I'm not real sure who they're going to be right now. It's too early to tell. We'll wait and see how things develop with them."

Other returning players who will challenge for varsity scores include juniors Dave Pawlakovitz and Andy Majorana plus sophomore Mike Cassidy.

Chiefs enter golf season WLAA favorites

BY RICHARD L. SHOOK
SPECIAL WRITER

Coach Tom Alles doesn't mind putting the tag of being a conference favorite on his Canton golf team.

The Chiefs have some strong returning players to offset the loss of six seniors who helped Canton win its regional and the Links at Pinewood to qualify for the state championship meet last year.

Gone are the leaders from that team, Michael Baracy, Jason Brand and Andrew Wagner.

But returning are co-captains Ryan McKendry and Scott Oliver, both seniors.

"Both have been on the team for four years," Alles said. "Both have overall strong golf games. They don't really have a weakness. And both played competitive golf all summer long."

"They are the type of boys who certainly will lead by example out on the golf course for the younger guys."

McKendry was named All-Area and All-Conference last season and was also honorable mention All-State.

Also back from a team that went 5-6 in the Western Lakes Activities Association and was eighth in the league tournament are seniors Steve Paul, Ryan VanLoozen and Greg Kubert.

Alles also expects varsity action from some sophomores Bryan Wioncek, Dustin Trosper and Dominick Gallow.

Juniors likely to see varsity action are John Palmer and newcomer Mike Yates, who jumped over from soccer to make the golf team in his first try.

"Our first goal is to do our best," Alles said. "We want to give our best effort to win the league championship. I think that's a realistic goal for these boys."

"Then we certainly want to try to qualify for the state finals again. They've bumped us into a new regional again, we're back at the Brighton regional."

The Livonia schools and Salem will also be playing in the Brighton Regional.

Canton will compete in the Western Division of the WLAA, slightly revamped with the loss of the three Farmington schools and the addition of three new schools, two of whom won't be competing for league titles for another season.

"I don't know how the loss of the Farmington schools is going to affect us," Alles said. "We seemed to have had pretty good success against them."

"There is one thing, with the change in the conference we ended up with only three home matches (at Hilltop) this year. We have six away."

Lester to lead CC; Cougars ready to defend Mega White

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
STAFF WRITER

The Garden City boys golf team will get a unique opportunity this season, defending its Mega White Conference championship from last season.

The Cougars captured the league title last fall, mainly on the strength of a deep and experienced senior class. Those six players are now gone, but coach Ron Pummill believes his returning players can duplicate last season's success.

"We don't have a lot of varsity playing experience among our returning players," Pummill said. "They've been coached in the idea of competitive golf but haven't had a lot of match play rounds, so they'll have to work through that our first few matches."

The team will get quite a test right off the bat, when it travels to Wyandotte for its season opener Wednesday, Aug. 28.

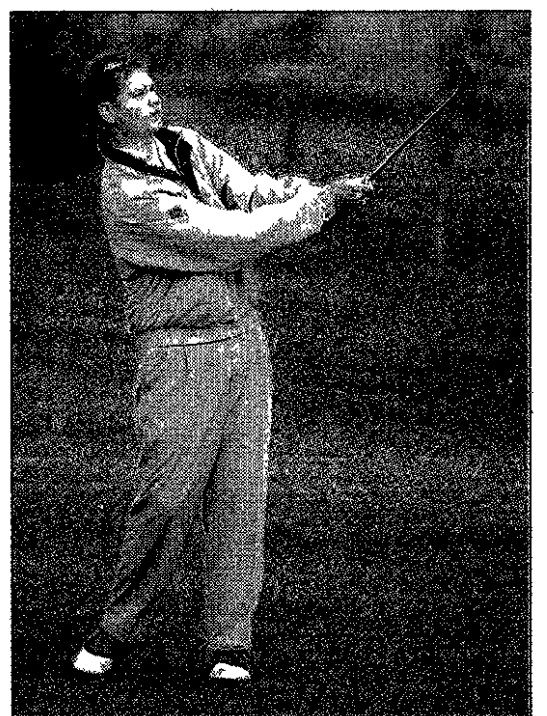

Pummill said Woodhaven will be among the top contenders for Garden City's crown.

Helping the Cougars to defend that title will be a foursome of seniors who are all capable of being the team's top scorer in any given match. All-League golfer Andrew Katajamaki returns for his third season with the Cougars. Pummill said he brings a lot of summer tournament experience to the team, which will be valuable early in the season.

"Andrew is a good, competitive golfer," Pummill said. "He understands he doesn't have to be pretty to get a low score."

The rest of the team's senior class is made up of Carlos Alfaro, Dan King and Andrew Penn. Junior Andrew Dodson could also emerge as one of the top golfers on the team, according to Pummill.

Schoolcraft spikers eye strong year

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

Tom Teeters didn't mince words. His Lady Ocelots have to do a better job at the net.

I have high expectations for all my teams," said the Schoolcraft College women's volleyball coach, who has 13 conference, nine regional and one NJCAA championship (1988) to his credit. "Our goal is to play St. Clair well, but we also need to average more blocks per game. We need about four or five per game to be successful."

Schoolcraft is coming off a 40-12 season, which included an Eastern Conference co-title (15-1) with nemesis St. Clair. The Lady Ocelots also won last year at St. Clair, the 2000 NJCAA Division II champion, and took invitational titles at Flint Mott and in St. Petersburg, Fla.

All-Region, All-State and All-Eastern Conference picks Andrea Kmet, now at Northern Michigan, and Fran Hamilton, both graduated. Another All-Conference selection, Kellie Kern, did not return, opting to play in state pro beach volleyball events.

But don't feel sorry for Teeters, who is trying to get back to the nationals for the first time since 1995. Last year the Lady Ocelots came close in Division II regional, finishing runner-up in Division D.

So what are the chances this year?

"We have more size, so I think we have more hitting and blocking this year," he said. "If we read well, we could be formidable. It just depends on the system we use. Any one game we can go 10 players deep."

The team's top blocker, 6-foot-2 Kerstin Marshall (Livonia Franklin), returns along with the most improved player and team's best leaper, 5-11 Carly Szajnecki (Dearborn).

The Ocelots' top defensive player from a year ago, Meghan

Mitchell (Dearborn Divine Child), is back along with the Comeback Player of the Year Noelle Swartz (Westland John Glenn).

The 6-foot Swartz could give Schoolcraft a huge lift as a left-side hitter, while the 5-7 Mitchell has elated her game from a year ago.

"Noelle played beach (volleyball) all summer and has really improved her defense," Teeters said. "And Meghan not only improved defensively, but also in the passing department and serve receive."

Others returning players include top setter Ioana Vescan (Romania), defensive specialist Desiree Betts (Livonia Ladywood) and middle hitter Katie Drews (Livonia Stevenson), the latter whom stands 6 feet tall.

With such versatility, Teeters may tinker around with either a 6-2 or 5-1 attack.

Vescan is the most experienced setter, but should she should get ample support from the 5-3 Betts and 5-1 recruit Kimm Sheridan (Riverview Gabriel Richard).

Other newcomers include Sheila Gillies, a talented 6-foot middle and outside hitter from Livonia Churchill, 5-9 left-side hitter Stephanie Koslowski from Walled Lake Central, 5-9 left-side hitter Holly Soldenski from Warren Woods Tower, 5-5 defensive specialist Emily Sorensen from Rochester High, and 6-1 right- and middle-hitter Katrina Napier of Belleville.

"Gillies is one of our more versatile front row players," Teeters said. "It depends how we use her and Noelle for matchup purposes."

Often practicing twice per day, the Lady Ocelots will finally see a live opponent when they travel Saturday, Aug. 17 to face Owens Tech in Toledo for their first preseason scrimmage.

They will officially open their season Friday-Saturday, Aug. 30-31, in the six-team St. Clair Tournament.

"I believe we have the size and the work ethic," said Teeters who is 637-232 in 20 seasons at Schoolcraft. "I think we have a combination of athleticism and experience, and the ability."

"He played a lot of golf this summer and should be among our top one or two players."

Junior David Sheppard and sophomores Ryan Berger and Danny Foley round out the varsity players this season.

"We kept six freshmen on the team, the most we've ever kept," Pummill added. "Twenty of the 25 kids that tried out were either freshmen or seniors, and the kids we kept as freshmen are a pretty good group of golfers."

In other Mega Conference movement, Allen Park, who finished second to the Cougars in the White Division last year, has moved up to the Red Division. Dearborn Edsel Ford moved up to the White from the Blue Division while Lincoln Park drops down to the White from the Red.

"I don't think there's any real front-runner for the league," Pummill said. "Lincoln Park is kind of an unknown because they were in the Red, but Woodhaven, Belleville and Redford Union should all be pretty competitive."

CATHOLIC CENTRAL

This could be the year. After a tough finish to a solid season in 2001, the Catholic Central boys golf team is loaded with terrific veterans and one newcomer who could make a big splash in his first season of high school competition.

Coach Bill Hayes didn't shy away from setting high expectations for his team.

"We should be very good," Hayes said. "We didn't play well at regionals last year, but we've got quite a few kids back this year and we're looking forward to a very successful season."

Warren DeLaSalle is the defending Catholic League champs, while CC compiled a 9-4 dual match record last season.

Leading the returning players is senior captain Tristan Lester, who enters the 2002 season after a summer that saw him play top courses around the country and the world, including fabled St. Andrews in Scotland.

Hayes predicted Lester would finish the season as one of the top golfers in the state, and will use his experience and skill to help the Shamrocks to the top of the Catholic League.

"He really hits the ball long and is excellent off the tee," Hayes said. "He's represented the U.S. and Michigan at various competitions and didn't lose a match."

"It may be a tough transition for him, because all summer he's just been playing as an individual, and now he's part of a team. But we've got quite a few players who aren't that far from him."

One player Hayes talked quite a bit about was freshman Adam Hogue, who's made quite an impression on his coaches and teammates in his short time with the program.

"He's unbelievable," Hayes said with an admiring chuckle. "He's not influenced by anything around him, no matter what course he's playing, he does things the same way and always hits it to the middle of the fairway. He's the only freshman I've had play at the varsity level. He's just amazing."

Standing 5-foot-2 inches, Hogue still tackles any course with equal skill, Hayes said.

"His game is together, and he won't get rattled."

But there's more to the Shamrocks than their bookend (by age) players Seniors Andy Soley, Jared Henderson and Jack Kelly give the team consistent play and good leadership. Juniors Chris Eliason, Mike King and Jimmy Burns make up the rest of the starting team, with Soley and Burns among the top early scorers for CC.

Hayes said he will keep upwards of 16 players on varsity this season, among players who will participate in match play or in tournaments. He said this team has excellent depth.

"Out of the 16 we've got, 12 will consistently shoot below 80," he said.

Salem tied for the Lakes Division title last season was 7-4 in the Western Lakes Activities Association and in the middle of the pack for the league meet. The Rocks were also in the middle of the pack in the regionals.

Key losses off last year's team include All-Area and All-Conference pick Bobby Jones plus Jon Gordon and Ryan Williams.

"We'll find out pretty quick what we've got and how good we are," Wilson said. "Monday we're in East Lansing for their Invitational. It's 36 holes on Forest Akers, both East and West."

"It's a big field and very, very competitive. You go up there and find out where you stack up in the whole state."

After that Salem plays Friday in the Grosse Ile Invitational and Aug. 26 it participates in the Brighton Invitational. Then the conference season gets launched.

The new Plymouth school will be joining the Western Division while Walled Lake Northern and Wayne will compete in the Lakes Division. Only Wayne will be competing at the varsity level this season.

"I'd say Canton and Northville are the two teams to beat, based on last year and who they have back," Wilson said.

And maybe Salem - if the Rocks can draw on all of Wilson's experience.

Sept. 27 because they couldn't find an equitable opponent who had a non-league opening that week to play against. Week 5 is usually a week where most teams play another league foe.

"The only teams we could find who had an opening were teams we really wouldn't normally play like Ann Arbor Pioneer or Detroit DePorres," Tomasatis said. "It didn't really bother me at first that we had eight games, but now we're trying to set up some kind of crossover with someone."

Tomasatis said Melvindale was a strong possibility to be the team that fills Annapolis' week in the schedule, because that team also had a scheduled bye week on Sept. 27. The Panthers are already scheduled to play Melvindale on Oct. 11, which would mean the teams would play twice in three weeks.

Thurston had nine scheduled games, and RU is set to play Robchard the week Thurston would now have off, so a second inter-city football battle is unlikely, Tomasatis said. RU and Thurston will square off in Week 9, Oct. 25 at RU.

The story of bowler 'Pete' can happen to anyone, anytime

This is Pete's story. It's a true story. It brings to mind a tale that must be told, not just for bowlers, but for everyone.

Ten Pin Alley

Al Harrison

Pete (not his real name) was an excellent bowler and team player. He could be counted on by his teammates to come through in the clutch when they needed a crucial mark to win the game. He bowled in several leagues and was the secretary-treasurer of one of them. Now there are many different versions of what took place, mostly untrue. What is true is the fact that he left the league funds short by almost $20,000 when he turned in the prize money just before the banquet. Many thought that he was surely a big-time gambler who could not get out from under when he dug himself a hole. Others figured he may have squandered it on wine, women and song, also not true. The lesson to be learned here is in regard to the American Bowling Congress's policy of league bonding for all sanctioned leagues at no extra cost. Pete had taken care of the league money, bringing it home every week for years. It was his duty as treasurer to safeguard the money. If the need for a few dollars came along, he would borrow it from the fund, knowing that he would replace it on the next payday, which he always did until one year it just got out of hand. He borrowed without putting it back, and before he knew it, Pete had dug himself a pretty deep hole. There was no way out and he left the league high and dry. Fortunately for the bowlers, the bonding company paid off the league, not without some hassle because where was the president when he was supposed to make his monthly check-up? At the trial, Pete pleaded guilty and the judge gave him one year in prison with a suspended sentence since he did have a good job and promised to make full restitution to the bonding people within five years. With the help of a part time job, and working 80 hours a week, the money was fully paid back in four years. Meanwhile, he lost his friends, his wife and his dog for various reasons. As for Pete, he is now back bowling after being suspended for several years. He wanted his story to be told because it could happen to anyone. If in reading this sad tale, one person could be saved from getting in too deep like Pete. And an unsanctioned league would see the hidden extra values in joining ABC or Women's International Bowling Congress, this story is well worth being told. Thanks, Pete. ■ This year it's like a game of musical pro shop chairs, as some very established shops are moving from one place to another. Many bowlers from all over the area have been to the one at Taylor Lanes, home of the PBA Greater Detroit Open on the pro tour. Lou Ivancik has just taken over in this location, moving from Indian Lanes. Scott Williams, the long time operator at Taylor, has moved to Indian. It sounds like they just traded places. Lou, who is also a Greater Detroit Bowling Association director and a very competitive bowler himself, had recently suffered a stroke and is now recovering nicely. He has plenty of help, with standout PWBA bowler Lisa Bishop on hand to do the fitting, drilling and everything else. Kevin Tuttle has moved out of Milford Lanes and will be taking over the new pro shop operation at Langan's All Star Lanes in Walled Lake. Meanwhile, Thunderbolts pro shop has a new owner taking over right now, and that is Jerry Tomczak. The pro shop operator is surely high up in the pecking order of importance to bowlers. Even if you don't need a new ball, it's a good idea to contact the pro shop people in your bowling center, get to know them and if you need advice, just ask. ■ The local bowling community lost one of its venerable leaders as Irving Davis of West Bloomfield passed away last week. Irv was a director of the Greater Detroit Bowling Association since 1958 and was also a life member and past president of the organization. When he spoke, people listened. He had bowled in many leagues over the years and even subbed the past few years on my own Sunday Goodtimers League at Country Lanes in Farmington Hills. He was also a member of the Jewish War Veterans, along with other groups. One of the things he loved was to attend any meetings where there would be lots of discussion. He was always right in the middle of it. Irv served the bowling community well, he will be long remembered by the GDBA officials and those who he came in contact with wherever he went. He was able to bowl in 40 ABC national tournaments and made sure he got in his 21 games last year to be eligible to compete in the 2003 ABC in Knoxville, Tenn. His loving wife of 60 years, Friedel, was with him at his side whenever he had to go anywhere. A great many of the Jewish war vets and 12 GDBA directors were all in uniform at the funeral services, giving him one final salute in procession. Al Harrison is a resident of Garden City and director with the Greater Detroit Bowling Association. He can be reached at (734) 422 1609.

should be one of the favorites this fall in the WHAC along with Cornerstone and Aquinas. Piraine, a senior midfielder, has 50 career goals. And his presence alone should make the Crusaders that much better. So far it looks good, Alexander said. He played some this summer, nothing highly competitive. "When you lose a three-time All-America you have to re-think what you're going to do, but I thought we adjusted well (to his absence) as the season went along." With goalkeeper Matt Strabbing, who started 14 of 22 games last season, transferring to University of Detroit Mercy, Alexander expects the job to go to either juniors Doug Koontz (Plymouth Canton) or Joe Suchara (Livonia Stevenson). Koontz started eight games in 2001 with a goals-against average of 2.47, a save percentage of .719 and a 2-3 record.

Suchara, who did not play last year, is nursing a pre-season injury. "I'm not a big fan of rotating goalkeepers," Alexander said. "But it should be a good battle between those two." The defense will be anchored in the middle by senior Gary Bell, a native of Derry, North Ireland. He'll be joined by juniors Matt Rozek (Troy), Casey Cook (Redford Catholic Central), along with sophomore Matt Koontz (Stevenson). The midfield will be the Crusaders' strong suit with the return Piraine and second-team All-WHAC selection Zach Wilkes, a sophomore from Dearborn. Also slated to play in the midfield is junior Justin Fishaw (Canton) and sophomore Chris Derrig (Redford CC). Alexander bolstered his lineup at the midfield even more with two standouts from Stevenson's Western Lakes championship team, Jamie Miller and T.J. Djokic. They will be joined fellow freshmen Evan Baker and Shane Smith, both from Plymouth Salem, and Joe Boumaroun (Redford CC).

"Our freshman class looks very good," the MU coach said. "And because of that, I think we're better this year." The team's leading scorer from a year ago, Patrick Griffin (Redford CC), scored a team high 12 goals and had nine assists, but he is ineligible after earning All-WHAC, All-Region and NAIA honorable mention All-America honors. Meanwhile, senior forward Matt Chuzewski (Livonia Churchill), who did not play last year, won't be ready for the start of the year because of knee surgery. That leaves the forward line a bit thin, but senior Nick Dzczecowski (Plymouth Salem) returns after scoring seven goals and adding six assists. Also in the mix is junior Justin Fishaw (Canton). "Guys got comfortable in positions last year," said Alexander, who is 100-53-2 in eight seasons at MU. "I got some ideas for early in the pre-season, but our job this year is to get back to the basics and play strong, solid soccer." And staying healthy for the entire 2002 season wouldn't hurt either.

■ A sight to behold

Visit the Science of Sight Experience at the Twelve Oaks Mall Nov. 1-3 and experience an interactive multi-media and educational event that demonstrates how to protect, maintain and maximize eye health and vision through early detection and prevention.

For the kids there are colorful displays, optical illusions and other hands-on activities. Teens can test their reaction time and reflexes with interactive eye/hand and eye/foot coordination challenges. Adults will learn how regular exams can detect serious conditions such as diabetes or even high cholesterol. Seniors will learn about health and vision issues associated with aging.

A number of noted personalities Britney Spears, former Vice President Dan Quayle, Brooke Shields, Walter Cronkite, Jeff Gordon and others - have given a pair of their sunglasses to The Science of Sight Experience in hopes that visitors learn the critical importance of protecting their eyes from the damaging rays of the sun.

■ Senior care

Northville based Comfort Keepers offers non-medical in-home services to seniors in Livonia, Farmington, Farmington Hills and Northville. Services include light housekeeping, meal preparation, grocery shopping, laundry, running errands and transporting to appointments. Caregivers who are bonded and insured are available by the hour, the day or by the week.

We live in a very mobile society, says owner Marie Policelli. Years ago children usually lived near their parents. Someone was usually available to provide assistance to their elderly parents. Today many family members live several miles away. Comfort Keepers can step in to help provide the additional assistance needed.

For more information call (248) 349-2111 or visit www.comfortkeepers.com

The American Cancer Society recently named 10 metro Detroiters as Relay Community Ambassadors to act as grassroots volunteers and spokespersons for the society's advocacy efforts. The ambassadors will join others from around the country in representing the interests of those touched by cancer before Congress during a national event in Washington, D.C. this fall. The event, known as the American Cancer Society's Relay for Life Celebration on the Hill, will take place Sept. 18-19.

The ambassadors include Diane Duxter of Canton, Todd LaJoy of Canton, Paula Jo Steele of Westland, Beth Pummill of Westland, Dolores C. Kuczajda of Rochester Hills, Kathleen Leighton of Rochester, Joanne McMurray of Troy, Gina Petrak of Bloomfield Hills, Janet L. Purty of Rochester Hills, and Sue Sobock of West Bloomfield. Relay for Life was held in 19 metro Detroit communities in 2002, raising over $1.4 million for the society's ongoing programs of cancer research, education, advocacy and service.

WEST NILE VIRUS

Mosquito-born disease threatens summer safety

BY RENÉE SKOGLUND
STAFF WRITER

Mosquitos have always been pesky insects, but now they carry a threat beyond an itchy welt. West Nile Virus, a disease transmitted to humans and animals by mosquitoes that have fed off of infected birds.

The Centers for Disease Control reports that 34 states, primarily on the East Coast, have recognized West Nile Virus in mosquitoes or birds. However, the line of offense has moved westward the last two years and now runs from Winnipeg to Houston. In southeastern Michigan, 65 dead birds tested positive for the virus last summer. This summer, the numbers have increased considerably, with Wayne, Oakland, Macomb and Washtenaw counties among the locations reporting infected birds.

As of last week, the CDC reported 135 cases of West Nile Virus in humans in the United States. Louisiana has been hit the hardest with 83 reported cases and seven deaths.

Michigan residents need to be concerned but not alarmed, said Sandra Collins, a spokeswoman for the Wayne County Department of Health.

"We want them to maintain their regular summer activities but with caution," she said. "Even though Louisiana is in a state of emergency, in Michigan we've had no human cases. But we are still urging our residents to minimize their risk of coming in contact with mosquitoes because West Nile Virus has been identified in southeastern Michigan and Wayne County."

Dr. Amy Seger, a Beaumont Hospital family physician who practices in Clarkston, said her patients have not expressed concern over the virus. "Even if you are exposed, less than 1 percent will get seriously ill. You have to put it into perspective."

Dr. Amy Seger, a Beaumont Hospital family physician who practices in Clarkston, said her patients have not expressed concern over the virus. "Even if you are exposed, less than 1 percent will get seriously ill. You have to put it into perspective."

TRANSMISSION AND SYMPTOMS

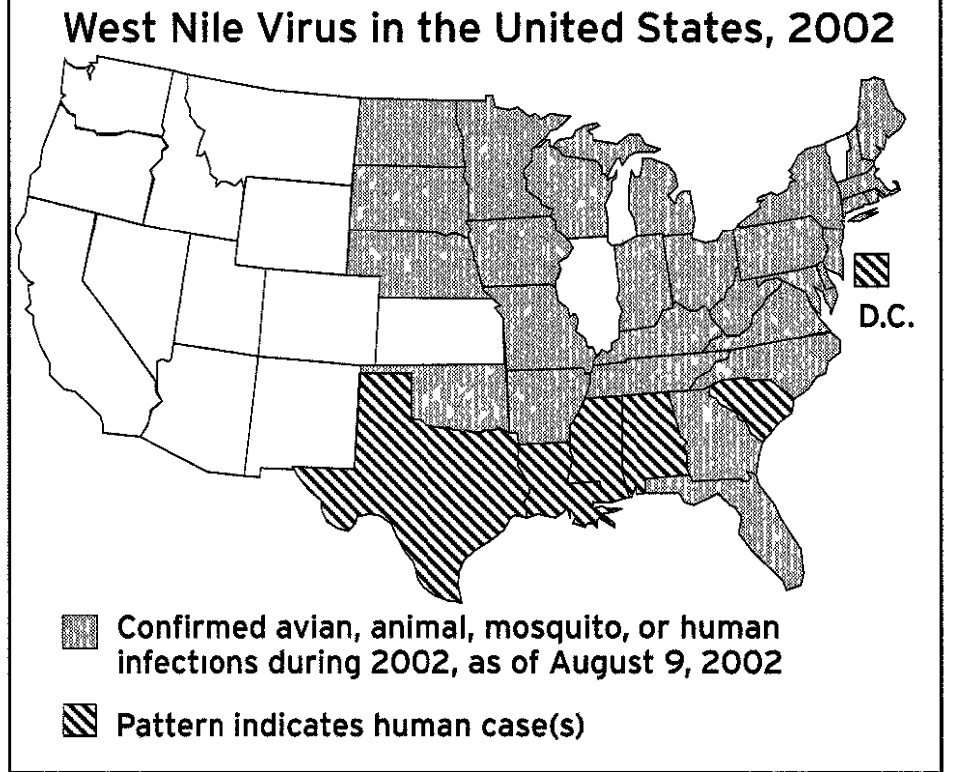

According to the Michigan Department of Agriculture, mosquitoes become infected with West Nile Virus by feeding on infected birds. The positive-tested mosquitoes have been of the Culex pipiens species, which almost exclusively bite only birds. To date, testing on mosquito species that bit both horses and humans as well as birds has been negative.

After 10 to 14 days, a mosquito's salivary glands become infected, enabling it to transmit the virus to humans and other animals during biting. Crows are most susceptible and usually die within two to three weeks of infection; therefore, dead crows are an accurate indicator of West Nile Virus within an area.

Health officials say it is rare for humans to contact the virus, even in areas where the virus has been reported. In a recent telebriefing with media members throughout the country, Dr. Julie Gerberding, director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, said:

"It's very important to appreciate that of the people who are actually known to become infected with the virus as we detect it through antibody testing, only about one in five of those infected people will have any clinical sign of the illness at all, or any fever, or any awareness that they've been exposed, and only one in 150 infected people will develop the more serious complications."

While most people infected with West Nile Virus have no symptoms, some may become ill three to 15 days after being bitten by an infected mosquito. According to the Michigan Department of Agriculture, about one in four infected persons will develop a mild illness with symptoms that include fever, headache, body aches, and sometimes a skin rash and swollen lymph glands.

A more severe infection - West Nile encephalitis - is marked by headache, high fever, stiff neck, stupor, disorientation, coma, tremors, convulsions, muscle weakness and paralysis.

West Nile Virus primarily targets those over 50 and those with a compromised immune system, said Seger. It is important to note, she added, that symptoms of the virus develop quite rapidly after the incubation period and that symptoms of a more severe case are "the same things you see with meningitis."

TREATMENT AND PREVENTION

Although there are efforts to develop a vaccine for West Nile Virus, at present there is no cure, said Seger. "It's more about supportive care."

Such care, if needed, includes hospitalization, intravenous fluids, airway management, respiratory support, and prevention of secondary infections.

Avoiding the virus requires vigilance. You are most at risk from April to October, when mosquitoes are most active. To reduce your risk, the Michigan Department of Community Health (in their publication What is West Nile Virus?) recommends the following:

- Make sure that doors and windows have tight fitting, well maintained screens.

- Drain all standing water in the yard. Empty flower pots, pet bowls, clogged rain gutters, swimming pool covers, discarded tires, children's toys, etc.

- Remind or help neighbors to eliminate breeding sites on their property.

- If outside between dusk and dawn (active mosquito period), wear protective clothing, such as long pants, long-sleeved shirts and socks. Regarding the use of the insect repellent DEET, Seger recommends:

- Read the label for the concentration levels. Products can contain 4 to 100 percent of DEET. "An effective repellent will contain 35 percent DEET. Anything in a higher concentration will not provide any additional coverage," she said.

- Make sure repellent is EPA approved.

- Do not spray repellent near food. Avoid breathing in sprays.

- Apply DEET sparingly. Insect repellents are not suntan lotions. Avoid applying DEET to eye and mouth areas, and do not put it on children's hands. Children tend to rub their eyes or put their hands into their mouths.

- Do not apply DEET to areas of irritation or abrasion. This will result in more absorption.

- Do not use on children under 2 years old.

- Thoroughly bathe or wash off insect repellent after coming indoors for the night.

Seger also warned against using vitamin B or any ultrasonic device to ward off mosquito bites. "These are not effective," she said. Rather, reducing the risk of West Nile Virus is a matter of "repellents and common sense."

Disposing of dead crows

The Wayne County Department of Health is no longer collecting dead crows. It is not necessary to confirm the presence of West Nile Virus in an area, said spokeswoman Sandra Collins. "Residents can call us to report a dead crow, but we will no longer send an environmentalist out to collect it."

To dispose of a dead crow, Collins recommends:

- Using disposable gloves to pick up the bird.
- Double-bagging the bird in plastic.
- Placing it in a trash receptacle.
- Disinfecting any tools, such as a shovel, used to pick up the bird with a bleach-water solution (1 capful of bleach to 1 gallon of water).
- Keeping children away from dead crows.

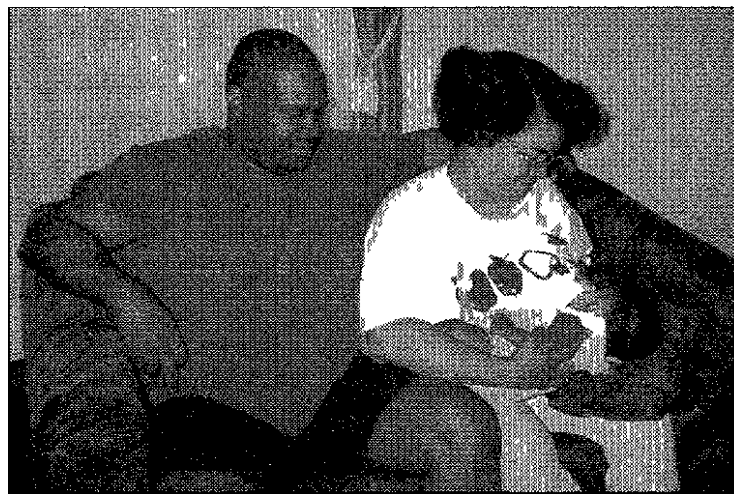

Breast-feeding Awareness Month puts focus on dad

The arrival of a new baby is an exciting time for parents, but sometimes fathers experience feelings of jealousy and alienation because of the nursing mother's close relationship with her baby.

"Some men object to breast-feeding because of the intimacy issue, and some feel embarrassed when their wives or girlfriends expose their breasts during times of nursing," says Nathaniel McNeal, the proud father of a 5-month-old breast-fed son. "Men have little knowledge about the importance of breast-feeding, but when you educate dads of the health benefits and the financial savings, they support breast-feeding because they want the best for their children."

During August, World Breast-Feeding Awareness Month, the Wayne County Department of Public Health is working to help fathers understand that breast-feeding is vital to the mother and child's well-being.

"It is important that fathers

Nathaniel McNeal looks on while his wife, Gerrylynn McNeal breastfeeds their five month-old son, Nathaniel, Jr.

realize that breast-feeding is one of the most valuable gifts a mother can give her baby," says Deborah Wendt, Nutrition Program director for Wayne County Department of Public Health. "The benefits of breast-feeding primarily include convenience, improved bonding, economic advantages and improved health."

ADVANTAGES

Studies have shown that breast milk is perfectly suited to nourish infants. Human milk provides the optimal mix of nutrients and antibodies necessary for baby to thrive. Breast-fed babies are protected from illnesses such as ear infections, diarrhea, rashes and allergies.

Moreover, breast-fed infants have fewer rates of hospitalizations, and less chance of developing heart disease, juvenile diabetes and Sudden Infant Death Syndrome. Also, cognitive development scores are improved in breast-fed children.

"There are health benefits for moms who breast-feed as well," says Diane Moore, Wayne County Women-Infants-Children (WIC) Program and Breast-Feeding Coordinator for Wayne County Department of Public Health. "Mothers who breast-feed are at decreased risk for developing breast and ovarian cancers, and osteoporosis."

The county's WIC program recommends that babies be breast-fed to at least 6 to 12 months. However, some women may experience discomfort during the first few weeks of breast-feeding. A woman's nipples may become sore or cracked. She may experience engorgement when breasts become full of milk.

TIPS FOR DADS

The best way for dads to avoid feelings of jealousy or being left out is to become an active participant in the baby's life. A new father can:

- Bring the baby to the mother when it's time to nurse.
- Sing, rock, cuddle and burp the baby.
- Change diapers and give baby a bath.
- Get your partner something to drink while she is nursing.
- Take over childcare between nursings so the mother can get some rest.
- Share in household chores.
- Support mother's decision when relatives and friends disapprove or are uninformed about breast-feeding.

Asthma plan helps parents, kids breathe free

As you load up the kids backpacks with school supplies and prepare to send them back to school, make sure they are equipped with special medical instructions for their teachers and after school caregivers — especially if they have asthma.

Before the summer months fade into fall school days, Dr. Michael Cabana, a pediatrician in the Asthma Care Education program funded by the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, at the University of Michigan Health System, encourages all parents who have children with asthma to create a special plan in the event the child has an asthma attack while they are at school or in the care of others.

Asthma is a very serious disease. Even kids with very mild asthma can have severe flare-ups, he says. That's why it is so important for every family to have an Asthma Action Plan to ensure their child's medical needs are met, especially when they are away.

Most of the 5 million children in the United States with chronic asthma lead normal healthy lives. However, an asthma attack, which causes the muscles around the air tubes to tighten and restrict airflow in and out of the lungs, can happen at any time.

That's the main reason why Sarah Coates created an Asthma Action Plan for her son, Tavian, who has had asthma since he was an infant. The plan, she says, is not only helpful for others, but also serves as a reference guide for her when Tavian has an attack.

ACTION PLAN

The Asthma Action Plan definitely puts my mind at ease, Coates says. I know what to expect and what steps to take when an attack happens. It

Facts about asthma

■ Asthma is one of the most common childhood diseases affecting about 5 million children in the United States.

■ Work with your child's health care provider to establish an individual Asthma Action Plan to leave with your child's caregivers, teachers, the babysitter, family and friends.

■ Asthma Action Plans can help parents and their children better manage asthma on a daily basis.

■ As your child grows, be sure to update his Asthma Action Plan to accommodate new medications or change contact information.

keeps me from calling the hospital at three o'clock in the morning trying to find a triage nurse.

The first step in creating an Asthma Action Plan is to consult with your child's health care provider. Cabana, who frequently works with parents to create a plan, says it should outline symptoms of an upcoming attack, specific medications a child should be administered, and detail when and how the child should take those medications. It should also list who to call or what to do if the medications are not working.

Asthma Action Plans are also useful on a day-to-day basis to help children manage their asthma and even prevent attacks.

The Asthma Action Plan is like a road map," says Cabana. It provides directions for not only what to do when asthma flares up, but also what you and your child can do regularly to manage medications and avoid some common asthma triggers.

Asthma triggers vary from child to child, which is why they should be listed in the Asthma Action Plan. Some of the more common asthma triggers include dust, mites, mold, perfume, exercise, strong chemical smells and tobacco smoke. In addition, viral infections and influenza often bring on asthma attacks.

Although it's difficult to prevent a viral infection, Cabana recommends that children with asthma get flu shots each year and are up-to-date on other immunizations.

Also, each year the Asthma Action Plan should be updated before the start of school to accommodate the child's new daily schedule and modify any medication or emergency contact information.

And when revising or creating an Asthma Action Plan, Cabana encourages parents to include their child. It's important, he says, for the plan to list instructions that the child can easily follow, too, on a daily basis or in the event of an asthma attack.

"Whenever possible, kids should be involved in their own asthma management," Cabana says. At the very least, they need to be able to recognize asthma symptoms when they occur.

Botsford physician named chairman of MHHA

Dr. Paul E. LaCasse, vice president and chief medical officer of Botsford General Hospital, was installed as chairman of the Board of Directors of the Michigan Health and Hospital Association during the association's annual meeting at Mackinac Island. He is the first osteopathic physician elected to the position and is only the second chairman who is not a hospital CEO.

LaCasse is a strong advocate of a patients and communities first philosophy for Michigan hospitals.

The reason for being of Michigan's charitable, non-profit hospitals is only to serve our patients and communities, he said. Putting patients and communities first has been, and should be, our measure of success.

In his inaugural remarks to the association, LaCasse addressed some of the challenges facing Michigan hospitals. These include patient safety, quality care, emergency preparedness, health status and funding.

How we respond to these issues and the hundreds of other issues we deal with daily becomes clear when viewed through the best interests of our patients and communities, he said.

LaCasse is a graduate of the University of Michigan and the Michigan State University College of Osteopathic Medicine. He also earned a master's degree in Public Health

Health Services Management and Policy from the University of Michigan School of Public Health.

A member of Botsford General Hospital professional staff since 1979, LaCasse served first as an Emergency Department physician. In a 1990, he was named medical director for Botsford General Hospital. He also was affiliated with Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan first as medical consultant and later as associat-medical director for Provider Services.

LaCasse was named a fellow in the American College of Osteopathic Emergency Physicians. His professional affiliations include memberships in local, state, and osteopathic associations and physician executive associations. He is past president of the Oakland County Osteopathic Association.

HOW DO STEROID INJECTIONS WORK?

The effect of steroid injected into a joint is like water to fire. Steroid injections are useful in that they dampen down inflammation. These injections do not heal, instead they remove calcific debris and accumulated chemicals that perpetuate irritation and disrupt the body's mechanism for repair. Steroids make it possible for the body to undertake the process of healing.

The vehicle in which steroids for injection are carried means that injectable cortisone will not act in the body in the same as cortisone taken by mouth. The injectable form is meant only for joints and tendons and does not go through the whole body as happens when you take steroids by mouth.

Steroids into the knee or shoulder may make you feel better all over. The reason is because you walk not just with your legs, but with your whole body. Pain in the hip, knee, ankle or shoulder interrupts that rhythm and places a strain on the back, neck, thighs and torso. When the steroid injection succeeds, it removes the impediment to proper walking. With the natural motion of you get a good motion on your body. You note that change as feeling good about it.

How often you can repeat a steroid injection depends on how much the injection helps and for how long. Numbers ranging from 2-3 a year, separated by months between injections are not based on good medical evidence. The proper number for you resides between need and good sense.

Ophthalmologists offer advice for taking care of your eyes

Ophthalmologists offer advice for taking care of your eyes
ANN ARBOR, MI — Opal Redman, 73, didn't need a crystal ball to know that eye problems could threaten her vision.

Since my mother became legally blind in her seventies, I just assumed I would also have problems," she said. "From an early age I started watching for warning signs that my eyes were going bad. I always had regular eye exams."

Since then, Opal has had cataract surgery on both her eyes, been diagnosed with glaucoma, and doctors found shingles in her right eye. But even after all that, Opal is seeing clearly, something she credits to good eye care.

Unfortunately, Opal is an exception. More Americans than ever are facing the threat of blindness from age-related disease, according to a recent report by the National Eye Institute. More than 1 million Americans age 40 and over are currently blind and an additional 2.4 million are visually impaired.

However, according to Opal's doctor, Dr. Susan Thoms, an ophthalmologist at the University of Michigan Health System's Kellogg Eye Center in Livonia, blindness can be reduced with early detection and treatment.

"Seeing into our future is all part of good eye health," said Thoms. "The key is to recognize changes in your eyesight and to get regular eye exams. Our eyes actually start to age at birth, but most people begin to notice changes in their eyes and in their vision during their forties."

While eye diseases like cataracts, glaucoma, and age-related macular degeneration become more common as people get older, there are things people can do to help maintain clear eyesight.

CATARACT

Cataract is the leading cause of blindness in the world, affecting more than 20 million Americans age 65 and older. A cataract is a clouding of the eye's natural lens. When the lens becomes cloudy, the light is blocked and scattered, and therefore the image we see is blurred. Cataract is a natural part of aging, said Thoms.

"The most common thing we see associated with aging that affects vision is a cataract. Basically, everybody will have the start of one by age 70."

When the cataract significantly impairs vision, patients can undergo surgery, removing the cloudy natural lens and replacing it with a lens implant. Although a very small number of patients can have serious complications with surgery, it is highly successful in restoring vision in about 97 percent of patients.

GLAUCOMA

Glaucoma is a chronic disease that affects more than 2 million Americans, but what's even more alarming is the fact that another 2 million people don't know they have it. Glaucoma is a deterioration of the optic nerve, often related to an increase in the fluid pressure inside the eye. Damage to the optic nerve leads to loss of the field of vision and eventually tunnel vision.

Glaucoma is a very sneaky disease because in most instances, it has no symptoms, said Thoms. The key to preventing vision loss from glaucoma is early detection on a routine eye exam. A family history of glaucoma places one at higher risk of developing it.

Glaucoma is most commonly treated with eye drops designed to lower the fluid pressure in the eye. A Laser treatment can also be helpful in lowering the pressure. If neither of these treatments is effective, surgery to relieve the fluid pressure is an option.

MACULAR DEGENERATION

"The eye condition that I think is most feared by seniors is macular degeneration, and unfortunately it is extremely common in this population," said Thoms. "We don't know why some people develop it and some don't, but we think there is some genetic predisposition to it."

Age-related macular degeneration is the leading cause of permanent vision loss in our senior population. It's a condition that affects the part of the retina responsible for sharp central vision. If it progresses enough it can destroy central vision completely.

There are two forms of macular degeneration — dry and wet. Dry macular degeneration is the more common type and usually less severe than wet. At this time, there is no cure but a recent study demonstrated some slowing of progression in some patients who took large doses of antioxidants and zinc. These high dosages must not be taken without approval of the patient's physician. Wet macular degeneration is much more devastating. A small number of these patients benefit from laser treatment although it is not a cure.

HEALTHY EYES

"I think the single most important thing for maintaining the health of the eye is to have regular eye examinations," said Thoms. "Once you reach 40, you should have your eyes examined every two years, provided there is no family history of eye disease or any abnormalities noted on examination which would warrant more frequent testing."

Thoms also recommends protecting our eyes by wearing UV sunglasses, eating a healthy diet that includes lots of green vegetables, and maintaining good health habits such as not smoking and controlling diabetes.

It's really important to watch your eyes because you don't get replacements," said Opal. "If you are losing your vision, that's a major problem and you can't wait until it's gone and then try to do something about it. You have to watch as you go."

Facts about aging eyes

- Americans aged 40 and over are currently blind and 2.3 million are visually impaired
 - Age-related macular degeneration is the most common cause of blindness and vision impairment in Americans aged 60 and older
 - More than 1.6 million Americans over age 60 have macular degeneration
 - Cataract is the leading cause of blindness in the world
 - Cataract affects 20.5 million Americans age 65 or older

Americans don't know obesity increases cancer risk

Researchers express alarm at recent survey findings

Speaking at a press conference at the AICR/WCRF International Research Conference on Food, Nutrition and Cancer this July, Professor W. P. T. James, chairman of the International Obesity Task Force, said, "We are used to thinking about the obesity epidemic on one hand and the cancer epidemic on the other. We need to think of them as linked."

A new survey commissioned by the AICR, however, indicates that although Americans are deeply concerned about both obesity and cancer, remarkably few are aware of the link between the two.

Asked to name major risk factors for developing cancer, only 6 percent of 1,025 Americans surveyed mentioned overweight and obesity. They were more likely to mention exposure to certain chemicals (22 percent), high-fat diets (18 percent), exposure to the sun (18 percent), family history (11 percent) and alcohol (7 percent).

Later in the survey Americans were read a list of chronic diseases and specifically asked which ones are significantly affected by overweight and obesity. The great majority were able to identify heart disease (89 percent) and diabetes (86 percent) as conditions made more likely by being overweight or obese. Only 25 percent, however, were aware that overweight and obesity increase cancer risk.

Citing a report issued by the International Agency for Research on Cancer, an agency of the World Health Organization, James estimated that being overweight and inactive accounts for one-quarter to one-third of worldwide cases of breast cancer, colon cancer, endometrial cancer, kidney cancer and esophageal cancer.

That's somewhere between 102,000 and 135,000 cases in the United States alone, James said.

This link is important, he noted. "People need to be aware of it if they are to take steps to reduce their risk of getting cancer."

Conversely, the rapid increase in the number of people who are obese in the U.S. and worldwide could have a dire long-term effect on cancer rates. Unless people take the necessary steps, James said, we are headed for a steep escalation in cancer cases.

James reported that 1 billion people are overweight (Body Mass Index over 25) and of that group 300 million are obese (Body Mass Index over 30) worldwide. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, 61 percent of American adults are now classified as overweight or obese and 27 percent are considered obese.

Conducted between June 27 and June 30, 2002, the Harris survey entailed polling 1,025 adults aged 18 and over using an unrestricted Random Digit Dialing technique that significantly reduces bias and ensures that respondents with both listed and unlisted telephone numbers are reached. The margin of error for the total sample is 3.1 percent.

The American Institute for Cancer Research (AICR) is the nation's third largest cancer charity, focusing exclusively on the link between diet and cancer. Visit them at www.aicr.org.

Whispering Winds, an apartment-to-condominium conversion, is only 14 years old

Price, amenities recommend condo conversion

An apartment-to-condominium conversion in Rochester Hills gives buyers the opportunity to own for just under $89,000.

Purchasers at Whispering Winds off Dequandre just north of South Boulevard and M-59 also will become co-owners of a clubhouse with community room, kitchen, fitness center, business center and outdoor swimming pool.

Whispering Winds is the former Village Park of Rochester Hills, built in 1988.

All 214 residences, ground-floor and second-level units, will be sold as is.

Base prices

- $89,900 for a one-bedroom, one-bathroom lower of about 700 square feet
- $99,900 for a one-bed, one-bath upper of about 860 square feet
- $104,900 for a two-bedroom, one-bathroom lower of 850 square feet
- $114,900 for a two-bed, one-bath upper of 1,000 square feet
- $119,900 for a two-bedroom two-bathroom lower of 900 square feet
- $129,900 for a two-bed, two-bath upper of 1,150 square feet

"I think the big selling point is value for Rochester Hills," said Michael DeForrest, sales representative. "Our marketing approach in luxurious living at an affordable price."

"We're able to sell condos with amenities, features, at a price you can't get elsewhere in this market," said Anthony Bashore, president of Wilshire Development Group.

"Each unit has a private entrance and this is a gated community 24-hour security, which is very important in this day and age," DeForrest said.

"We've had young single professionals, first time buyers, who want to be in the area and have some built-in equity," he added. "We have mom and dad who sold their house and have a place up North or down South and want a place in the area."

"Single moms buy for the Rochester schools. They love the Rochester schools."

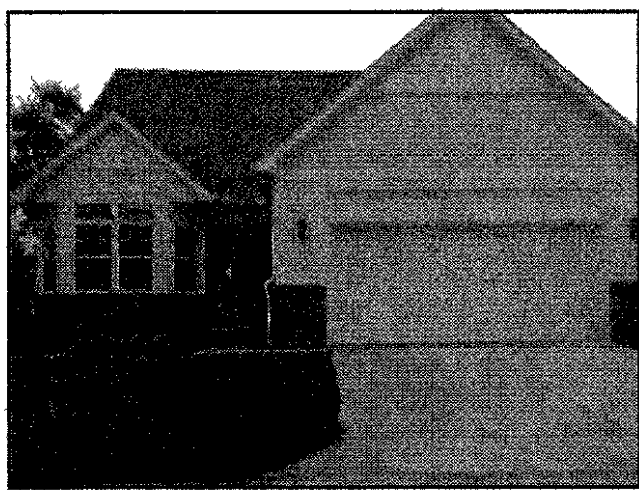

"We're also in close proximity to M-59, Auburn Hills technology park and it's nice being close to (Troy) Beaumont Hospital," DeForrest said.

I think location is critical," Bashore added. Rochester

Homearama returns to entice buyers with designs

Call them auto shows for home builders and purchasers

Homearama, a showcase of new houses incorporating the latest features in construction, style and living conveniences at a single location, resumes at two sites after a hiatus of eight years

Homearama Macomb runs Thursday, Sept 19 to Sunday, Oct 6 at Cornerstone Village Subdivision in Macomb Township on Card Road just south of 22 Mile Road. Thirteen homes constructed by six different builders will be open for tour there

Homearama Orion runs Thursday, Oct 17 to Sunday, Nov 3 in the Turnberry Subdivision at Indianwood Golf & Country Club, Orion Township. Six homes will be featured at that site on Indianwood Road between Joslyn and Baldwin

Builders in the Orion show include Alan Bishop & Associates, Birmingham, DePrez Custom Homes, Washington Township, Lederman Custom Home Crafters, Sterling Heights, MacLeish Building, Troy; Steuer &

Canvasser/Lincorp, Farmington Hills and West Bloomfield, and The Benecke Group, Bloomfield Hills

Macomb show builders include American Heartland, Express Builders and Legacy Building, all in Clinton Township, Craftmaster Homes and D'Agostini Limited, Shelby Township, and Lombardo Companies, Washington Township

"Every few years you have to showcase the industry," said Dan MacLeish, president of the Building Industry Association of Southeastern Michigan. "We want to show people what can be done. Car companies have an auto show every year. There's so many new things in the market," MacLeish added. "Did you ever hear of an office closet? Building under a garage? A home is the best investment people can put money into, he said. "Whether or not you're in the market for a new home, Homearama is a rewarding event to attend and gather an assortment of novel home improvement and decorating ideas"

Thousands of people thronged to previous

Homearamas, which discontinued in great part because builders got busy when the economy boomed. Recessionary times had sparked the concept, MacLeish said

Show-goers are welcome to photograph inside and out including wall, window and floor coverings, light fixtures, kitchen and bath treatments, decks and landscaping. And if visitors want to make arrangement to buy, all the better, as far as builder participants are concerned. The homes in the Macomb show range from 2,600 to 3,180 square feet and priced $245,900 to $430,000. Comparable numbers at Orion are 4,250 to 7,950 square feet and $600,000 to $1.2 million. Show hours are 2-9 p.m. Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturdays and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sundays. Admission is $7, free for children 12 years and under. Free parking will be provided, refreshments available for purchase. Discount admission couple will be available at Standard Federal Bank offices

Let's Talk About Real Estate

"DOWNGRADING IN ORDER TO UPGRADE"

First time homebuyers often face a common dilemma. The home they can afford is probably not as nice as the quality of housing that they have had in the past. Perhaps their parents' home had a number of nice features or a prime location that would cost a large sum of money in today's market to duplicate. If a potential buyer is living in a new apartment with a modern kitchen, air conditioning, and large master bedroom with full bath, a small modest older home may not seem like a desirable alternative.

Reality dictates, however, that you may have to take a step backward in order to become a homeowner. We live in a world of instant gratification. People want to own their dream home now. Is this practical or even possible? Most people probably took twenty five years and a series of upgrading from one house to another before finally purchasing the home desired by many first time buyers.

Home ownership works like a step ladder. You must climb from one rung to the next. Buy whatever you can afford. Fix up this home. Take good care of it. Sell it when market demand is high. Use the profit from this sale to buy a better home the second time around.

Another alternative is to buy a home that does not have all the features you want, but it does have a great location. Buy the house now and make additions or improvements to the home when your budget allows.

It is difficult to save money. Homeownership is one of the most effective means of accumulating money. It is really a form of forced savings. You have to make the monthly mortgage payment in order to keep the house. These payments, over a period of time, help you reduce the principal amount and allow you to hold the house long enough to give inflation a chance to increase the resale value well above your original purchase price.

ADVICE: Although it may appear to be a temporary step backwards, consider buying a lesser home than you really want in order to get on the first rung of the homeownership ladder. It has the possibility of paying big dividends in the future.

Michigan Humane Society ADOPT-A-PET

This Week's Featured Pet

Lacey is a beautiful one-year-old Domestic Shorthair white and brown tiger striped female who previous owners developed allergies and were forced to bring her to the shelter. This vocal kitty loves to let you know exactly what she thinks about everything. She is very affectionate and loves attention. In addition she loves pets and will reward you with her head butts. S nce she has lived with other cats and small children before a new home with either would suit her well.

To make this kitty your special pet, visit the Michigan Humane Society Westland Shelter (734) 721-7300

2002 Saturn Vue has optional virtues

Advertising Feature

CAReport

By Anne Fracassa
Avanti News Features

ANNE
FRACASSA

It seems like every carmaker is rushing into the compact sport utility market and Saturn has joined the frenzy with its introduction of the Vue

Did you know that carmakers sold more than 730,000 compact SUVs last year? And that the projections are to sell almost 1 million by 2005?

The difference is that there are creature comforts and features in the Vue that you won't find in other offerings in the compact SUV market

Power and performance is more than impressive in this 3.0-liter dual overhead cam 24-valve V6 engine this is not the standard engine, but I feel strongly that it's a better option. It gives you all the pep and acceleration you'll need for any kind of driving that you'll do

The 5-speed automatic transmission, also optional, is not located on the floor or on the inside of the steering wheel. It's strategically placed in the middle of the instrument panel. Seems a little strange at first, but you'll get used to it

Standard is a 4-cylinder engine with a manual transmission. Don't be cheap - opt for the automatic and the V6

The Vue had a nice ride, but on Michigan's roads, it's quite difficult to assess. Thank its 4-wheel independent suspension that allows that nice ride and responsive handling

Also on board is an advanced electronic power steering system that gives you optimum control at reduced speeds and in highway driving

The Vue driven this week had the optional all-wheel drive system. This is another option worth paying for because you'll get even better control through improved traction in bad weather. If the system detects the front wheel slipping, the system will automatically transfer some of the drive torque to the rear wheels and keep everything under control. I love security features like that

Other security features that you'll find on the Vue

Great little sport utility: 2002 Saturn Vue Vehicle class Compact sport utility vehicle Power 3.0-liter V6 engine Mileage 19 city / 25 highway Where built Spring Hill, Tenn Price as tested: $23,665 and not on a few other offerings are the optional head-curtain air bags that protect you in a side-impact collision. There are also three sets of child seat anchors in the rear seats and 3-point safety belts for all passenger positions

Again an option, the Vue offers OnStar, GM's cool on-board communications system that allows you to find a restaurant, a gas station, navigation features and provides automatic response in the case of an accident

I didn't care very much for the interior design in the Vue. The instrumentation was plain. It didn't really appeal to me. The rear seats fold flat and the front passenger seat also folds flat, allowing you to carry longer cargo, like long planks of wood

People who purchase the Vue can customize their vehicle in a host of ways through their Saturn dealer. Aftermarket products like body side graphics, interior trim kits and stuff like bike racks or luggage racks are available and can be installed after the sale or before delivery of your Vue

I have to tell you that the starting price of the Vue is a hair under $17,000, but when you add this and that, the price climbs steeply and quickly. Even the floor mats are an option. How ridiculous

The Saturn Vue I drove was the AWD V6 with an automatic transmission outfitted with an AM/FM 6-

disc CD and cassette stereo and floor mats that cost $23,655

Let me tell you what was on the standard equipment list for that price: driver seat height adjuster, cargo organizer and 4 tie-down hooks, air conditioning, power locks with remote keyless entry, cruise control, map lights, center console three 12-volt outlets, 16-inch all-season tires, power front disc brakes, electric power steering, roof rails, polymer bodyside panels allow wheels and a stainless steel exhaust

On the safety issues, you'll find all the neat stuff you can find, like dual front air bags, those pesky daytime running lights, fog lamps, child safety door locks, immobilizer theft deterrent system, 2-way adjustable front head restraints and rear window washer and wiper system

You'll find that the Vue will give you some nice returns on the gas consumption side. You'll get 19 mpg in the city and 25 mpg on the highway. Seems like gasoline is never going to be under $1.50 anymore. Sad that we're surprised to ever see a gas station sign at $1.30 a gallon

The Vue is a great little sport ute that would be perfect for a single guy or gal with an active lifestyle who could utilize a vehicle like this. Go take a look for yourself and let me know what you think by writing avanti1054@aol.com

Ask American Profile

Q We recently visited Dollywood, and there was so much information about Dolly Parton's career and her family, but virtually nothing about her husband. Does she have children? I do not recall ever seeing even a picture of her with her spouse.

—Jill B., Indiana

Country superstar Dolly Rebecca Parton met her future husband in 1964 on her first afternoon in Nashville, Tenn. Parton describes her husband, Carl Dean, as moral, unselfish, and witty. She also says he's a homebody, which is why you don't often see him out with her at awards shows and such. He maintains a distinct separation between the different worlds in which he and his wife of 36 years move and rarely appears with her at public functions. Parton, an East Tennessee native, got her first big break when she started appearing on Porter Wagoner's syndicated television show Eight Country Music Association awards, seven Grammy Awards, several number one singles, and dozens of other awards tell the story of Parton's extraordinary career, which has evolved to include starring roles in movies and television shows as well. She is touring to promote her new album on Sugar Hill Records titled Halos and Horns, which was released last month. She and Dean have no children.

Touring for the first time in nearly a decade

Q My favorite actress when I was in my teens was Deanna Durbin. She got married and moved to France. I haven't heard anything concerning her in all these years. Is she still in France? Did she have a family?

—Rita S., Arizona

The Canadian-born actress and singer was a huge star in her teen years, but she never much liked the spotlight. When she married her third husband, French film director Charles Henri David, she said that she wanted to live the life of a nobody. They moved to France, and she mostly got her wish. She stopped doing movies and refused to give interviews. In the last few years, with the advent of the Internet, fans found Durbin. Though flattered by the interest, she found herself spending a great deal of time answering the letters and requests from fans. When her husband died in 1999, Durbin sent word to a fan club in England, called the Deanna Durbin Society, that she had re-retired. Now 80 years old, she is happily a nobody again, still living in France. She has a daughter and one stepson.

Q What can you tell me about James Morrison of Space: Above and Beyond. I've seen him guest-starring on a few shows.

—Debra H., Pennsylvania

Born in Bountiful, Utah, and raised in Alaska, the 48-year-old actor began his career as a clown and wire walker, going on to learn his craft as an actor with the Alaska Repertory Theater from 1977 to 1979. He moved to Los Angeles in 1982 and has worked regularly on stage, film and television. In addition to Space: Above and Beyond, he's guest-starred on Nash Bridges, The X-Files, Frasier, and Six Feet Under, among other television shows. His first movie role was as the Man at Construction Site with Stop Sign in the Michael Douglas film, Falling Down. Morrison is also a writer, director and filmmaker, most recently collaborating with his wife, Riad Galayani, on Nude Descending. He is also a dedicated yoga practitioner and has become a certified teacher. He lives in Los Angeles with his wife and their 3-year-old son, Seamus. ✨

Hard to believe the entire system is the size of a briefcase.

You'll hear the difference the very first time you turn on the Acoustic Wave® music system. Patented Bose technology gives your favorite CDs and radio programs a clarity and richness that will astound you — no matter what the volume. And with our credit card sized remote, you can control this award-winning sound from the palm of your hand. With all this, it's no wonder many people use it as their primary stereo.

Even smaller systems for even smaller spaces.

Hometown Hero

To Save a Prairie

For more than 20 years, wildlife photographer Jim Brandenburg has traveled the globe, preserving on film those special moments in nature that touch the heart and capture the imagination

Now, as one of the world's premier natural history photographers, Brandenburg, 56, is working to preserve a piece of that natural world—contributing money from sales of his photographic work to save one of the last vestiges of native tallgrass prairie in America

Just north of Luverne, Minn., on a high ridge near Brandenburg's great grandfather's homestead the Brandenburg Prairie Foundation has set aside 360 acres of prairie that have never been tilled. In the coming years the land—along with additional acreage as it is purchased—will be restored to its original grandeur

The foundation receives its funding from the Brandenburg Gallery on Luverne's busy Main Street where Brandenburg's photographs and books are sold. All profits are plowed back into the foundation, which was formed in 1999 to promote, preserve, and restore native prairie in southwest Minnesota

It wouldn't have been possible without him, says Dave Smith, Brandenburg's longtime friend, foundation treasurer, and executive director of the Luverne Chamber of Commerce. His fame, reputation, and devotion to prairie restoration give the project credibility when we talk with people about what we hope to do

Nature has fascinated Jim Brandenburg since childhood.

Tallgrass prairie once covered more than 400,000 square miles in North America—an area larger than Texas and New Mexico combined—with hundreds of wildflower and grass varieties growing up to 8 feet tall. Less than 1 percent of the prairie remains, although efforts such as Brandenburg's are under way in many states to re-establish the ecosystem in smaller pieces to give us a glimpse of what once was

The first parcel of native prairie in Luverne was acquired last year in conjunction with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. It will undergo a 15-year restoration, including the eventual addition of buffalo on the land

A second project is to restore 11 acres owned by the Luverne Public Schools. Starting next year and continuing each year thereafter, first-graders will be assigned a 20-by-20-foot garden on part of the land until each grade has a plot. Students will select, plant, and care for a native grass or flower throughout their 12 years of school. As seniors, they will harvest and replant the seeds on the 11-acre outdoor prairie classroom

Both projects excite Brandenburg, who lives in Ely, Minn., as much as when he lived among—and made his famous photographic essay on—wolves. One poignant photo is of a curious gray wolf peering with one eye from behind a tree

Brandenburg recalls that as a youngster he was a dreamer. I wasn't a very good student, either, he admits. He has since learned that he had, and still has, attention deficit disorder (ADD). It is, he says, my gift. He tells young people in lectures and commencement speeches that ADD allows him to view his surroundings in different, creative ways

In his youth, Brandenburg hunted and trapped until one day when he was about 14, he bought a $3 plastic camera on sale at the local drugstore. It changed my life.

His first wildlife picture was taken with that little Argus camera. He coaxed a red fox into range by hiding behind a rock and imitating the sound of a mouse. That grainy black and white is still one of his favorites and is featured in one of his books

After college, Brandenburg became a photographer for the Worthington (Minn.) Daily Globe. In 1978, he became a contract photographer for the National Geographic Society and has 18 society magazine photo essays under his belt

On his wall of honors and awards is the World Achievement Award from the United Nations Environmental Programme, presented in 1991 in recognition of Brandenburg's use of nature photography to raise public awareness of the environment

As his busy photo and writing career winds down, Brandenburg is finding life's circle is closing. Though my work has taken me all over the world, I still feel the pull of home—the urge to explore what is left of the American prairie and to play a role in its restoration. ☆

Whimsical and useful

Wagner got hooked on pedal power at 4 when he rode his sister's bicycle. He loved the feeling of freedom that a bike gave him. When he made his first bicycle—a crude tandem—at age 13, he used diagrams published in Popular Mechanics. Since then, he's refined his technique.

His trademark—the Whymcycle—is a bike with a platform, the width of a skateboard, between its two wheels. The rider powers it by making a bouncing motion on the platform, which turns an offset rear hub and propels the bike forward. The Whymcycle is Wagner's version of the Ingo-Bike, also called the Exer cycle, manufactured by the Ingersoll-Rand Corp. from 1934-37.

The Ingo-Bike had a small wheel in front, a larger wheel in back, and a platform in between. Wagner saw the bike in the Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn, Mich., and resolved to make one.

Wagner occasionally gives away the Whymcycles to his friends, and he also sells them for less than $200 through a juggling catalog (jugglers like the unusual bikes to spice up their acts).

He's not interested in capitalizing on his love of tinkering. "I'm not a businessman. People tell me I should advertise my bikes on a website and sell more of them, but I'm not interested," he says. "I build bikes for the love of them."

Wagner spends at least five hours—sometimes much more—each week, tinkering and creating something useful from parts that others ordinarily would throw away. When an employee at the nearby recycling center saw three old bikes being thrown away, he saved them for Wagner.

Rather than going through the crusher, they were used to build a hand bike for a 3-year-old with bone disease, so he can go gallivanting around town just like everyone else, Wagner says.

Indeed, Wagner's inventiveness has helped about a dozen others living with a disability—such as Michele Mantay, 45, who suffers from a disease that weakens her muscles. For Mantay, Wagner created a quadricycle in which two or three people can sit on the bike's platform.

Mantay likes the bike because the larger wheels make it easy to pedal. "I can get exercise with another person and use the bike even though I'm not very strong," she says.

Wagner, who worked closely with Mantay to build the bike to her needs, made pedals from an exercise bike with loops to hold her feet and placed a plastic box on the back to hold groceries. The designer bike easily can be steered with a tiller by any of the riders.

Such custom bikes for special needs may retail for as much as $1,000, but Wagner sells them to people he happens to meet or who seek him out for a fraction of that cost. Or, he simply gives them away.

"I am not in this for the money," he says. "I like building unique custom bikes because it enables me to use the parts to provide a solution. I'm a problem-solving sort of person."

Occasionally, his special-needs inventions don't involve wheels. When he met Paul Knott, a paraplegic and former firefighter, they struck up a conversation, and Knott mentioned that he was trying to build a backrest for his new van—one that would keep him upright, because his upper body muscles aren't strong.

He came over to my house one day with a big grin and said he had made the backrest for me—all out of bike parts already stored in his garage, Knott says. The backrest is now installed permanently in Knott's van. My one complaint is that he just never mentions money, Knott says. "I pay him whatever I can, when I can."

'For the fun of it'

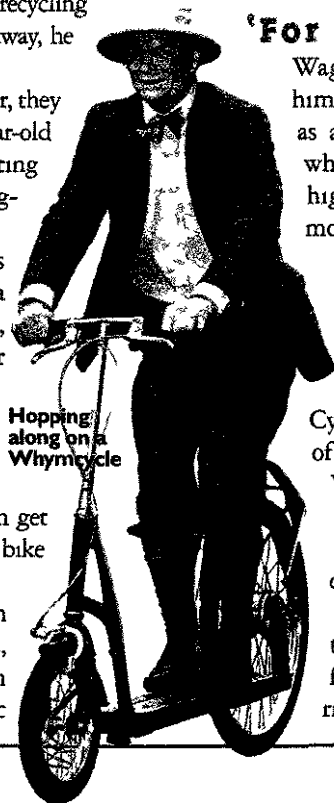

Wagner's love for bicycles certainly puts him in the right place. Davis is known as a bicycle town; its logo is a high-wheeler or penny-farthing bike, with a high front and low back wheel, a model popular in the early 1900s.

Davis began building a network of bike paths throughout the town in the 1960s to encourage efficient and non-polluting transit. At the town's annual bike parade, the Cyclebration, people ride on all kinds of bikes to celebrate pedal power. Wagner is a familiar sight at the Cyclebration and always arrives with half a dozen bikes for the crowd to try.

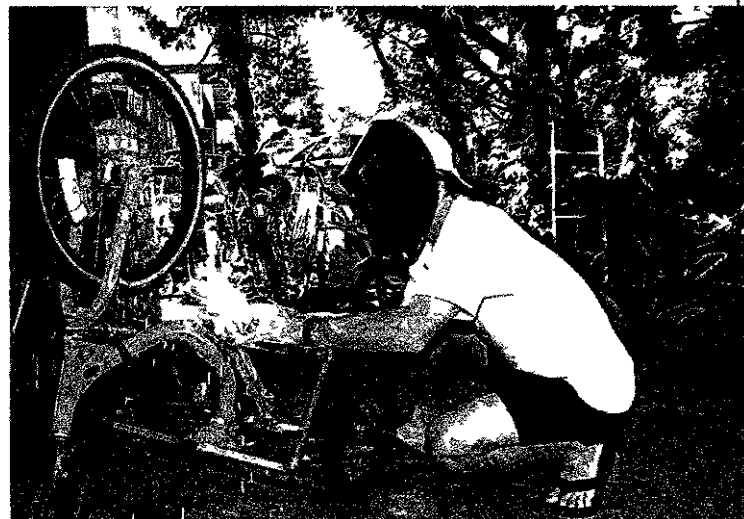

Bikes are a low-cost, fun way of transportation, he says. "And they last forever. My motto is that people should ride as many bikes as they can."

A sprocket can go anywhere

Hopping along on a Whymcycle

Wagner works on a hand-powered bike for the disabled

Armand Prieditis, 41, who owns a software company in Davis, bought one of Wagner's Whymcycles several years ago. "You get a wider field of view than on a traditional bike, since you're standing up," he says. Prieditis finds riding the Whymcycle gets his quadriceps in shape for skiing and running; his children, ages 10 and 6, love the bike because it's so novel.

"Bikes are a low-cost, fun way of transportation. And they last forever."

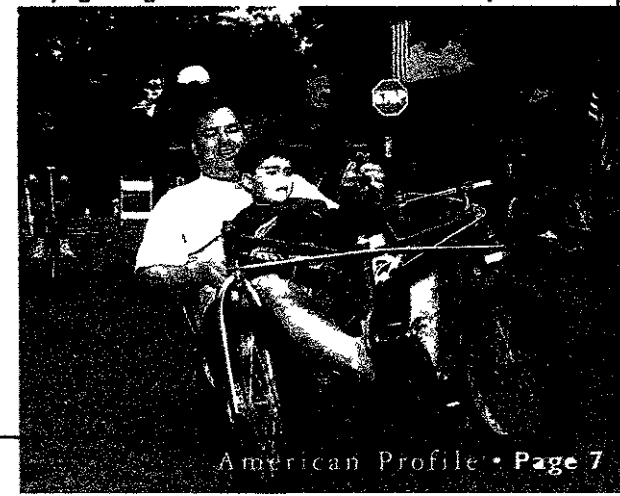

Novel is what fuels Wagner's passion. On a recent day in his garage, he showed off a bike that once was a Yamaha motorcycle. Pedals are placed where the motor once revved.

As his son Colin, 12, and his friends rode Whymcycles and high-wheelers, Wagner tried out an upside-down bike—a bike literally turned upside down, with pedals where the seat used to be, and a new seat placed on top of a spoke several feet in the air. With a running jump, he was up on the bike and wheeling down the pavement eagerly.

"I make bikes for the fun of it," he says. "Riding them and building them keeps me happy." ✨

Hometown News
VFR Records

Comparisons to the Everly Brothers are inevitable particularly with the extraordinary vocal blending that showcases this duo's tight harmonies. They're not brothers, but Scott Whitehead and Ron Kingery share similar backgrounds, musical style, and songwriting.

The debut album's first release, Minivan, with the lyrics "Goodbye 20s bello minivan, is a humorous coming of age thing," Kingery says, about trading in the sports car (and carefree youth) for room for car seats. Wheels, the title cut, is a touching circle of life piece about rolling through life—first in a stroller, finally in a wheelchair. Nine more songs that Kingery and Whitehead call homemade music round out the album.

We have this criteria we use for songs—and we call it the Grandma Test," Kingery explains. "We came to an agreement that we wouldn't ever sing or write a song that would embarrass our grandparents."

Grandma—or anyone—would like Wheels just fine.

Oceans

Space
By Carole Stott
Kingfisher

Oceans and Space, part of Kingfisher's Curious Kids Guides series, answers questions from the oceans to space. To such questions as, "What is a red giant?" or "What's it like at the bottom of the sea?" Space and Oceans provide bright illustrations and interesting explanations.

For example, the ocean's salt originates from rocks on land. Rain washes salt into rivers, which carry it to the sea. And stars don't really twinkle. Their light is bent and wobbled by air surrounding the earth, making them appear to twinkle.

And a red giant is a dying star that swells up to 100 times larger than its original size, and emits a red glow, resulting from a surface temperature lower than the center.

Oceans and Space show children—and their adults—that the natural world is extraordinarily fascinating.

We Stuck Together Like Glue
Touch Studios

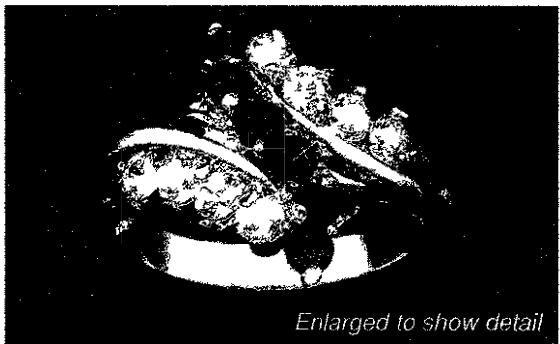

We Stuck Together Like Glue, an animated video, is about two best friends—Gil the Guitar and Eddy Electric—who learn the importance of friendship after theirs is threatened. Eddy's return from a concert tour sparks a misunderstanding, causing Gil to think that Eddy is now too famous to be his friend.

Gil's jealousy causes him to do some pretty ridiculous things. In the end, he realizes his foolish behavior, learns how to overcome his pride, and recovers his valuable friendship with Eddy, says Carla White, series creator. He also learns the importance of being himself.

We Stuck Together Like Glue, a 30-minute video for ages 3-10, features eight sing-along songs by pop singer Crystal Lewis and other artists and is the first title in The MusicLand Band video series for children.

Faith AND Cow Mountain Pond

Cow Mountain Pond, a 10-acre body of water, was full of native trout, and parents had been taking kids there to fish for generations. The town even kept a community rowboat tied up on shore for anyone to enjoy—this being a place where folks can be trusted. Townspeople also had camped, hiked, hunted, snowshoed, and picked berries on the hills and meadows around the pond for as long as anyone could remember.

A town hall, a post office, and this church make up the town's center

Faced with the possibility of losing their favorite fishing hole, Granby's 86 residents rallied to save it.

So when Champion International Paper Corp announced in the mid-1990s it was selling the pond and 1,600 acres of surrounding forest for $500,000, the 86 residents of Granby, Vt., knew they had a problem. The town has only a one-room school, the nearest paved roads are 15 miles away, electricity hadn't reached local homes until 1965, and Granby's annual budget was barely $100,000.

Any chance of buying the pond and forest to keep it from development seemed impossibly remote—but Granby thought it over. After all, the town had raised the money to bring in electric power when the electric company thought Granby was too far off the beaten track. Accustomed to getting things done—and willing to act on faith—the town went into action.

At a town meeting it was decided to explore the matter. Some folks were concerned the land would be developed by outside interests and Granby's way of life would suffer, says Bruce Berryman, a member of the town's acquisition committee. Others were concerned access might be lost if strangers bought it. This was land worth saving because it was part of their lives—and of special interest was Cow Mountain Pond, Vermont's last undeveloped native trout pond.

After months of research, a committee of citizens made a proposal that the town approved, Berryman says. The package included a grant of $300,000 from the federal Forest Legacy program and $150,000 from the state, with The Nature Conservancy donating expertise and legal assistance. That left the town's contribution at $50,000, an amount equal to half of the annual town budget. The effort got underway.

Granby went to work in time-tested fashion, holding potluck suppers, cakewalks, and quilt sales. But in the limited time available to the town, only $1,500 could be raised. So when residents said they were willing to raise taxes to repay borrowed money, Granby sought a bank loan. At the 11th hour, additional funding by the state's House Appropriations Committee averted a tax increase, so, all was right with the world—or so it seemed.

At the closing, the seller's attorneys checked the figures one last time—and found the town was $500 short. No deal, they said.

We were speechless, recalls Berryman. They'd been to enough potluck dinners to last a lifetime, and now the sale had gone south. The meeting was put on hold while town representatives put their heads together.

A call was made to a new resident of Granby, who, in turn, called his father whose relatives once lived in town, Berryman says. The father would donate $500 if a trail would be named for the Carpenter family. Finally, the attorneys were satisfied and the Granby Municipal Forest was established.

There were other bonuses. Little Cow Mountain Pond, a pristine three-acre area harboring endangered plant species, is now protected. Also, a 200-acre parcel, home to 200-year-old trees, was declared old growth and permanently preserved.

The town got together with state and federal folks for—what else—a celebratory potluck. Following dinner, the group hiked to Cow Mountain Pond.

One notable stipulation for Granby's forest: no new trails could be made. Trails were restricted to old logging roads, moose paths, and hiking tracks already in existence. As it turns out, this isn't a burden—there were, and still are, plenty of moose, and residents can walk the Carpenter Trail.

And the community rowboat still is there for all to use. ✧

A WORLD WAR II DOCUMENTARY CLASSIC

AIR POWER

Narrated By Walter Cronkite

Air Power was CBS's answer to NBC's highly successful Victory at Sea—the famous NBC series that charted the course of the great conflict on the oceans. The 26-week series Air Power chronicled the impact that the fighting machines of the air had on the outcome of World War II—from Hitler's attempts to conquer Britain by sending the Luftwaffe over the English Channel to bomb London to the infamous day when Japan's Air Force attacked Pearl Harbor, the invasion of Normandy and the deadly dogfights in the Pacific.

As far as we know, this sought-after documentary was unavailable on video until 1999. The producers of Air Power spared no expense or effort in creating this landmark saga. They went through over 300 million feet of film, including rare German footage and captured Japanese reels. The carefully written script is a masterpiece of historical narration—movingly read by newscaster Walter Cronkite. The resulting series premiered in 1953 and was a resounding success.

Now you can get the entire series on one boxed extra-length tape that runs 6 hours for only $19.95. So call now to make sure you don't miss out on this special collector's opportunity.
