Board OKs turf plan

BY TONY BRUSCATO STAFF WRITER

With a packed house of Canton, Salem and Plymouth high school football players, coaches, athletic directors and boosters lending their support, the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education told the administration Tuesday night to proceed with a $1.3 million project to replace the grass field at the varsity football stadium with synthetic turf and construct a new eight-lane track.

Administrators want the synthetic turf because the field turns into mud after a hard rain, sometimes forcing rescheduling and cancellation of events. And the outlook doesn't look bright, considering the future calls for the field to be used by three varsity football teams, three junior varsity football teams and three ninth-grade football teams, nine boys soccer teams in the fall and the same number of girls teams in the spring, plus the Plymouth-Canton Marching Band.

The existing track is expected to be declared unusable for the upcoming season.

"It's tough because you try to chase someone down and you step in the mud up to your ankle, you get soaked to the bone and get cold - it's horrible," said Dan Farkas of Canton, a senior on this year's Canton High School team.

"You can be running and the next thing you know your feet go out from under you and you fall on your butt," added Mike Callegari, a senior from Plymouth Township, who is a member of the Salem Rocks varsity squad. "It's just like a swamp after it rains. It's no fun at all."

All seven board members, without taking a vote, agreed the synthetic turf was a good way to spend remaining money from the 1999 bond issue, which was used to construct Dodson Elementary and Plymouth.

First Step puts hope in funding

BY BRAD KADRICH STAFF WRITER

With money for one program gone and funding for another looking a little shaky, Judy Ellis is hoping someone will come to the rescue of some First Step projects.

The executive director of First Step, the Plymouth Township-based nonprofit agency which runs a shelter and several domestic abuse programs in western Wayne County, said that while the agency is basically on firm financial footing, they may need help funding some of their more critical programs.

Already gone is the Peer Education Program, which recruited teenagers from various schools to provide education on sexual assault prevention to other students.

That program had been funded for several years by money from the state. But with the state facing huge deficits, money wasn't forthcoming this time.

"They liked the program, and funded it for a number of years," Ellis said. "There's less money to go around."

And teetering on the brink of a possible cut is an advocate program involving police departments in the cities of Westland and Inkster and downriver's 33rd District Court. The program places First Step advocates in all three departments, funded by federal money funneled through the Wayne County prosecutor's office into the cities.

The model program gave First Step the ability to reach people they might not have been able to reach before, Ellis said. The $350,000 program is funded by grant money through the U.S. Department of Justice. First Step has not yet heard whether that funding will be continued. Word isn't expected until after Oct. 1.

Westland Police Chief Emery Price said the program has been a major benefit, both to the victims of domestic violence and to the other police officers in the department.

"I think it's an excellent program, based on the fact that the advocate makes every effort to have contact with victims of domestic violence," Price said. "She attempts to encourage them to go through the process, through the

COMEDY BENEFIT

Comedian Norm Stulz brings his one-man show, "Life It's All About Laughter" to the Penn Theatre in Plymouth at 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 5.

Stulz began his professional comedy life at Mark Ridley's Comedy Castle in Detroit in 1981. After touring nationally and internationally and at corporate functions, Stulz is moving on to perform in one-man shows in theaters. "After years of audiences requesting more material than a club setting would allow, and fans asking for specific comedy pieces show after show, year after year, an evening at the theatre was the next logical step," Stulz said.

Proceeds from the concert will go toward cancer research, with the Dick Puritan family ovarian cancer research foundation holding a special place in Stulz's heart.

"We lost my father-in-law to cancer a few years ago, and I have been doing comedy for charity as long as I have been performing," he said. "I have known Dick Puritan for 30 years. When we booked this show, my wife Sharon and I decided to give all proceeds to charity. We knew (Puritan) had one for ovarian cancer and we wanted to give to someone we knew." Tickets for the show are $15 and can be obtained by calling (734) 453-3230 or (734) 453-6530 after 6 p.m.

Fire department turns golf cart into emergency response vehicle

BY BRAD KADRICH
STAFF WRITER

When James Peldo saw the Plymouth Community Fire Department at last year's Fall Festival with a golf cart turned into a rescue rig, he thought it was a good idea.

When he found out the department had had to borrow it, he thought, "We need one of our own." And he set out to make it happen.

At this year's Fall Festival, Peldo and local firefighters realized the goal when they used their own emergency golf cart for the first time. The cart, a regular golf cart transformed into a rescue vehicle, saw its first action during the Sept. 6-8 festival.

"It increases our effectiveness and efficiency on runs maybe a traditional ambulance may not get to," said firefighter David Fox, who oversaw the purchase of the cart. "We used it three times during Fall Festival alone."

And, according to Plymouth firefighters, it couldn't have happened without Peldo, a resident since 1994. Peldo noticed during the 2001 festival that the fire department had borrowed a cart from Metro Airport. When he asked why, he was told they borrowed the cart whenever and from whomever they can.

Peldo decided that wasn't good enough, and set out to get Plymouth its own cart. He organized a raffle that raised some $7,000. When that fell short of the goal, Peldo picked up the tab out of his own pocket.

"I wanted to make sure they had the cart by Fall Festival (2002), unfortunately, the raffle came up a bit short," Peldo said. "I felt it was something right to do."

According to Fox, others involved in the purchase of the $12,000 cart included folks at Weldcraft, Plymouth Auto Body, Sign-A-Rama and Laird's.

The cart is equipped with all the tools for advanced life support, according to Fox. It has, among other things, a defibrillator, a drug box and oxygen. Firefighters used the cart for mostly heat-related emergencies during the recent Fall Festival, and hope to take it to other local events, such as the annual Fourth of July parade, the ice festival and the annual township picnic.

Schools say Central won't be sold, but commissions plan for future

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER

While Plymouth-Canton Schools Interim Superintendent Jim Ryan has repeatedly said there is no truth to rumors that Central Middle School property will be sold, the Plymouth city commission and planning commission took steps to make certain that if it is, single family housing will be the preferred density for the property.

The two city commissions met in a joint session Monday night to discuss future development in the city, and how to deal with non-conforming properties.

"Ninety percent (of the city) is consistent with current land use and would be rendered conforming," said Don Wortman, the city's planning consultant.

However, the subject of Central Middle School, which became a major issue in the last city election despite claims by the school district Central's future is as a school or some related use, continues to be a hot topic.

"I would like to see it continue to be used as a school, but we don't have that authority," said Doug Miller, a member of the planning commission. "We, as a planning commission, have to look forward. We would like a seller or buyer to know what we have envisioned for that property."

Added city commissioner Stella Greene, "I'd rather be proactive than in a position of reacting. Let's establish the posture."

Members of both commissions agreed the Central property should be zoned single-family housing because it's the lowest density. A developer with other plans in mind would have to apply for a Planned Unit Development, giving the city more input into what is constructed on the site.

"We want it to be low density," said Miller. "We don't want to take a chance on high-density development."

City Manager Paul Sincok told both commissions CSX is interested in selling about 10 acres of land which once housed the railroad's roundhouse. The property, off Pearl Street in Old Village which is in both the city and Plymouth Township, is zoned light industrial. However, Sincok said there have been indications developers want to build residential housing on the site.

Commissioners also discussed the rezoning of Deer Street, at Wing, from B-3 to O-1. The current zoning would allow for an auto repair shop, convenience store or gas station. The new zoning would limit development to office space.

And, property along Elizabeth and Roe streets will most likely be rezoned from multi-family to single-family homes.

"We've had a shift to single family homes in the last eight years," said Wortman. "In reality, all were single family homes at one time."

City officials won't make any changes without talking to residents first. Public hearings on any changes will be conducted, possibly in November, they said.

Pair arraigned for stealing DVDs

A 59-year-old man and a 52-year-old woman were arraigned this week on retail fraud charges after police discovered them at Kroger allegedly trying to steal more than $500 worth of DVDs.

James Pruitt, 59, and Shirley Gorecki, 52, both of Trenton, were arraigned via video from their cells.

Pruitt faces one count of felony retail fraud, and was arraigned as an habitual offender. He faces five years in jail and/or a $10,000 fine.

Gorecki faces one count of misdeemeanor retail fraud, and faces a year in jail and/or a $2,000 fine.

According to police reports, the pair was observed putting several copies of individual DVDs into a shopping cart. Gorecki, according to reports, was also carrying a large bag with a zipper top. The store's loss prevention officer notified police who responded.

When police arrived they asked for and received permission to search the woman's bag, which was empty. The pair gave conflicting answers as to how they arrived at the store, first saying they walked, then saying they hitch-hiked.

Police eventually discovered their car in the parking lot, and obtained permission from the pair to search it. Inside, according to the police report, officers found 26 DVDs, most of them multiple copies of single movies.

Both suspects face an Oct. 11 preliminary hearing in 35th District Court.

High School 'I think it's money very well spent for our community. This isn't just a want for this district, this is a need for this district,' said trustee Marcy Staley. 'This community wants the best for our school district. We are very proud of our athletics and all our extracurricular activities.'

Administrators indicate maintenance on the track will cost approximately $40,000 within 7-9 years to recast the track. The synthetic turf football field will need to be groomed twice a year, which will cost about six man hours of work. The carpet will need to be replaced after approximately 10 years at a cost of $400,000. Superintendent Jim Ryan said he would like to see the district generate revenue to help pay for future costs.

I do believe between community use, maybe some semi-pro soccer use, and maybe revenues via some state tournament activities, we have a chance to generate some revenue that would go toward replacement in 8-10 years, said Ryan. Ken Jacobs, executive director of support services, said he'll come up with a schedule of events to put the construction on a fast track. 'We need to be able to go out for bids by Dec 14. Jacobs said it's going to be a very energetic schedule. Jacobs said bids need to be awarded by January in order for construction to begin in April with the field ready for play next August.

The district spent hundreds of thousands of dollars to construct a second football stadium during the construction of Plymouth High School. However, an agreement with residents of the North Pointe subdivision, whose properties abut school property, allows for only junior varsity football games and track meets to be conducted at the field. tjruscato@oe.homecomm.net (734) 459-2700

PCAC, Plymouth Symphony among state grant recipients

BY BRAD KADRICH
STAFF WRITER

Along with donations and memberships, the Plymouth Community Arts Council counts heavily on grants for funding its programs.

Earlier this month, they got a biggie. A request by the PCAC was one of 368 grant awards approved Sept. 13 by the 15-member Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs. The $13,200 grant given the PCAC was among $22.6 million in arts and cultural funding for projects that will collectively serve all of Michigan's 83 counties.

The Plymouth Symphony orchestra also was a big winner when their grant request for $23,700 was approved. The council received 459 applications requesting nearly $44 million for fiscal 2003. All grant applications were evaluated through a process of peer review panels, consisting of arts and cultural professionals from throughout the state, considered and judged each application based on review criteria.

Projects funded by the MCACA must be completed within the fiscal year, which runs Oct. 1, 2002-Sept. 30, 2003. The PCAC will use its grant to fund its Artist in Residence program, which puts professional artists in the PCAC to provide exposure to local residents. The council will sponsor four such artists this year.

Central Middle School, is doing Show Choir for youngsters.

Shakespearean actor Jillian Eaton will do the PCAC's theater workshop presentations and some special projects. She's also bringing in a prison theater group to present 'Prison Creative Arts Project, an experiment in theater and dialogue,' in October.

Chris Darby, a retired teacher from the Plymouth-Canton school district and also an internationally known potter, will do a potter's workshop in late spring, working with pottery and emphasizing people's involvements with pottery arts.

'It's really a little-known and underappreciated form of art, and this will hopefully heighten awareness of and appreciation for the art,' said PCAC executive director Jennifer Tobin.

Watercolor artist Donna Vogleheim will do a workshop in January, and her work will be on display in January. The grant will also help the PCAC celebrate the Culture of Women, a celebration of women in our arts and culture and how women have contributed to our culture and enrichment. said grant coordinator Stella Greene.

'We're really excited we can focus on four different arts venues and give local people the opportunity to be in close proximity to some really talented people,' Greene said. 'Without the grant, we wouldn't be able to do that.'

The grant comes in handy for the Plymouth Symphony, as well. The symphony is getting ready to kick off its 57th season, and the $23,700 it received in grant money will not only help the symphony maintain its full schedule of five concerts, but also lets the group keep its education partnership with local schools and helps bring in "guest artists and composers of national repute," according to Linda Alvarado, president of the board of the Plymouth Symphony League.

'That kind of grant money is very important for us,' Alvarado said. 'With the economy as it is, we depend on grant money to support the various kinds of offerings we can give to the community. It really is a gift to the community. It allows us to maintain the high level of excellence our community has come to expect from us.'

In determining grant awards, the council considers panel recommendations, geographic distribution, diversity, balance among funding program, underserved communities, access and delivery of quality programming and services to citizens and communities.

'The communities receiving these grants gain so much more than their dollar value,' Engler said. 'These grants enhance education, stimulate cultural tourism and strengthen communities by creating a better quality of life.'

Practice-A-Thon benefits arts school

The School for the Performing Arts-Ann Arbor will be holding its fourth annual school-wide Practice-a-Thon during the week of Oct. 5-12. Over 700 music students will participate, and the public is invited to several special events which will take place during the week. The week-long Practice-a-Thon will promote excellent practice skills, highlight SPA-AA's diverse offerings and raise funds for community based music education scholarships. All SPA-AA students and faculty will be refining practice commitment and technique. Pledges for units of time practiced during the week will be solicited to support the school's expanded scholarship fund. Over $10,000 in scholarships have already been awarded this fall for community music education opportunities. This year's goal is to raise $15,000 to make music education a reality for those who may lack access to classes and instruction outside of the public school environment. PATTERSON ity floor leader in the House "It's a natural progression to run at the state Senate level. As it turned out, it's a district where I have a fighting chance. And, if I were to win, I would have the opportunity to serve one or two four-year terms that would extend the time I could spend in the legislative process."

Patterson voted in favor of term limits, which means if he's elected to the Senate he could serve a maximum eight years. Patterson believes the future will bring a change in term limits to lengthen the time a legislator can serve.

"You're asking an awful lot for taking six years (state House maximum years) out of their life to climb a very high hill of understanding, with a waterfall of information," said Patterson. "If you want a cross-section of society, how do you get that cross-section to run and serve if they're going to do it for as short as six years, and having to go through the campaign process every two years. It's tough."

There's already been talk that the new governor will have to make some tough decisions concerning the state budget. Patterson said he's ready to tackle the issue.

"I have been an advocate for, and will insist upon, a zero-based budgeting system," he said. "Take any line item in the budget and I want to look at every dollar going into that, and I want some justification. It's going to take some work ethic to do that."

"There are some pet projects which suggest there is some fat around," he added. "It's appropriate for the taxpayers of this state to expect us to make cuts in areas where there is inappropriate spending."

"I don't favor across-the-board cuts. That's a slovenly way of doing business," said Patterson, who calls himself a fiscal conservative.

As for the state budget, Patterson said, "It's not time to panic. I don't believe there's a structurally deficient budget at this time. But, I do think there were an awful lot of rocks rolled over to find dollars."

"The number one issue is education. How do we get the next generation of folks trained with the basic level of skills so they can go forward and continue to learn for a lifetime?"

Patterson said he expects there will be areas for compromise in the next proposed state budget.

"We do need a business climate that will perpetuate and create new jobs so that we can have those revenues to pursue the legitimate functions of government," he said. "Do we need to continue to spend in an accelerated rate for roads? Yes, that's part of the infrastructure. Do we need to do something with the water infrastructure? That's why I proposed the bond issue."

Patterson is referring to the bill he's introduced that would allow the state to issue $1 billion in bonds that cities and townships could borrow from to help fund improvements in the water infrastructure.

"The whole water infrastructure situation will be huge," Patterson said. "That will be a legacy issue. If the voters in this state approve that, it will be something that will be written on my tombstone suggesting that I helped maintain the Great Lakes."

As for the problems revolving around the Detroit regional water system, and the push by suburban communities and the legislature to give more control to the suburbs, Patterson agrees something needs to be done.

"We're going to have to do something because rates are going up, inefficiencies are manifest, and there isn't a trust that Detroit is able to provide fresh water," he said. "There's not a quick fix for this. Detroit will have to step up and look for partners to help resolve this. I don't like the idea that suburbanites are ready to walk in and take it away."

As for mass transit, Patterson said something needs to be done, but the question is still "What?"

"This is a very difficult battle because we are the motor capital, we like to ride in our cars," said Patterson. "But, we know there are people who have to get to jobs and the doctor, and we need a system that is responsive. I'm looking for a comprehensive solution, but I haven't found it yet."

to make a dent in the northern half of the district

"If we can't make inroads up here, we can't win, even if we hold our own downriver," admitted Mans. "I'd like to think we're making some headway. We have a little more name recognition."

Mans said that as he travels the Plymouth and Canton areas, he's "finding the same issues that exist in my own home area, such as education, transportation and the opportunity to live safely."

Mans, who is being terminated after six years in the House, said he won't be seeking a leadership position in Lansing if elected to the Senate.

He's more interested in working directly with the people in his district.

"My strength is in what I bring back to my local communities, and the degree of service I can give to the local people," he said. "I never lost the fact that I am first a (former) local school board member and a (former) local mayor."

Local school boards are concerned about the affects of Proposal A, and local mayors are concerned about the recent loss of revenue sharing money.

"The legislature created Proposal A and it can open it up," said Mans. "The word 'tweak' to some means a tax increase, but I don't think it does. After nearly 10 years, we need to look at it and say 'what's working well with this, and what's not?'"

"How can we tell the local board of education to do some long-term planning, and we want to see better management," said Mans, "but, we're not going to give you more funding or let you know what your budget is going to look like. I just know I would be in favor of opening Proposal A, taking a look at it, smoothing the rough edges."

Mans is also in favor of restoring revenue sharing funds to previous levels for cities and townships.

"The rubber meets the road at the local mayors or supervisor's office, and I would be in favor of attempting to restore revenue sharing, he said. "For each local community, whether it's buying a new fire truck, paving a street, or adding a police officer or two, it's a quality of life issue."

"The mindset in Lansing oftentimes overlooks local government at the expense of statewide issues, and then we have some bailing out to do," he said. "That's your tax dollars, so you should get them back and spend them the way you see fit."

Mans believes more money for education or revenue sharing can be found in the state budget.

"There's still a lot of fat in Lansing that could be cut," said Mans. "When the good times were going on in the 1990s, there was no budget discipline. We had a number of tax cuts that were popular at the time. My one criticism is we didn't move quickly enough to react to the new economic realities."

Mans is ready for changes in the way the Detroit Water and Sewerage Department conducts business, in light of millions of dollars that haven't been paid by Detroit residents, while suburban rates continue to climb.

"When you look at the amounts of debt that is being carried on the books by the Detroit water system, while the suburbs and outlying communities are being increased, I think it's only fair," he said. "I'm not for a wholesale takeover of the Detroit water system. I would like to see them have an opportunity to fix their problems, but there has to be some reform. It's not good management. It's not good government."

While on the subject of water, Mans said the future of the Great Lakes is a high priority.

"It's our greatest asset, and we have to look at the next 50-100 years. We need to protect it," he said. "The right safeguards are in place, but we need a declaration by the governor that our water resources are important, that we aren't going to contemplate drilling in the Great Lakes, or sell the water."

"We'll sell cars, sugar beets, but not our water. We're not going down that road," said Mans.

courts, for counselling, housing. She's here, she's available, and that's her primary function.

"Prior to her being here, everything was left up to the police officers, along with all their other duties," the chief added. "It's a valuable program, as far as I'm concerned."

Losing the program would hurt First Step's overall mission, according to Ellis.

"It would be a fairly devastating blow," she said. "The whole program would be impacted, because it's a partnership with the Wayne County Prosecutor's office. We were able to provide those services because we were in those police departments."

While some of these programs are on slippery financial footing, most of First Step's programs are stable and have been funded, Ellis pointed out. However, First Step, like many nonprofits, was affected greatly

'We're crossing our fingers that Washington will continue those dollars and not divert them to some other programs.'

Judy Ellis

by the terrorist attacks of Sept. 11, 2001.

"At this point, we'll be moving forward with our existing programs," Ellis said. "We're crossing our fingers that Washington will continue those dollars and not divert them to some other programs."

Help came last week when some 300 people attended "Laugh for Life II," a benefit at the Star Fairlane Theater in Dearborn, the proceeds of which were donated to First Step programs. The benefit, which featured the comedy troupe Totally Unrehearsed Theater and a free movie screening, raised some $60,000.

First Step still relies heavily on donations, and would be "more than happy to take them," Ellis said. Such donations would really help another program that lost its funding, First Step's attorney program, one of the few programs around able to provide comprehensive legal services.

For now, First Step is absorbing the cost of the program, but Ellis is hoping donations will come.

"We've funded the program until Oct. 1," Ellis said.

Frankly, we're hoping there's an outpouring of support from the community to help us maintain these programs."

Anyone wishing to help First Step with donations can send a check to First Step, 44567 Pinetree Drive, Plymouth, MI 48170. For information on volunteering (training is available), call (734) 416-1111.

County commissioners have until Oct. 14 to decide whether or not to pursue their court fight against the new airport authority following a decision by the Michigan Court of Appeals Tuesday to reject their suit opposing transfer of the airport to the authority.

"We will take time to make sure it's carefully analyzed," said Vice Chair Kay Bear, D-12th District. "I was very disappointed."

Some commissioners have already decided that it's time to move on.

"Five of us think it should be over," said Commissioner Lyn Bankes, R-10th Districts. "It takes eight votes (out of 15) to pass anything."

In a 3-0 decision the court ruled against the Wayne County Board of Commissioners who had filed suit claiming the authority violated the state constitution and interfered with the board's obligations to bond holders. They also argued that the transfer to the authority was an illegal taking of property.

The seven-member board was created by the state Legislature following an agreement between Gov. John Engler and Wayne County Executive Edward H. McNamara. The authority began conducting business in April. In August the Federal Aviation Administration awarded an operating license to the authority, which is also being challenged by the commission in federal court.

The authority has four members appointed by the county executive, two by the governor and one by the county commission. The commission hasn't appointed its member pending outcome of its legal challenges.

The airport has been the target of several audits and investigations over the last couple of years. The authority was created to answer longstanding complaints about mismanagement, favoritism in hiring and con-its homework.

"It just seems that everyone has the misconception that the commission has a management role at the airport," she said. "We have an oversight role."

She said the commission has tried to improve things at the airport "but McNamara has tried to roadblock us at every turn."

"What's so frustrating is that the same people involved in the mismanagement are still there," Beard said.

Beard said that when the problems at the airport came to light through a county audit, the commission began to make changes in the contracting procedures.

"Now we have seven people who aren't accountable to anyone," Beard said.

Commissioner John Sullivan, D-11th District, whose district includes the airport, said he wasn't surprised by the court's decision but regrets that the authority deprives residents of a voice in the airport.

He also objected to the decision's comments about the commission.

"The commission never ran the airport," he said.

Sullivan said it would be a waste of time to pursue the lawsuit to the state Supreme Court and that he doesn't think the commission will vote to pursue it. He said the commission should wait to see what happens in federal court with their challenge of the FAA license.

Bankes said she thinks the legislation creating the authority is flawed but never asked her fellow Republicans in the legislature to vote against the authority.

"I felt I owed it to the taxpayers to have their interests protected," she said. "I've learned a great deal in the process. The court ruled that the legislation is legal and so I think it should end."

Airports receive security grants

Michigan U.S. Sens. Debbie Stabenow and Carl Levin announced two additional grants totaling $3.7 million for Detroit-area airports.

Friday's announcement follows an announcement earlier this week of $19.5 million for Wayne County's Detroit Metropolitan Airport. The new round of funding will provide Detroit Metro with $2.5 million for security enhancements and $1.19 million for installation of guidance signs at Willow Run.

The Art of tailgating

Football fans are serious about turning tailgate parties into comfortable dining experiences

BY LANA MINI
STAFF WRITER

Todd and Carrie Lenz planned their tailgate parties with great precision, maybe it's because they both studied engineering and love football.

The U of M graduates, together with their friends, made dishes like ham, onion and cheese omelets, blueberry pancakes and vegetable kabobs for Michigan football games played at home. The couple, who live in Plymouth, said they ate well and comfortably because of good planning and communication with tailgate friends.

"For noon games we'd make breakfast and put pancake batter and blueberries in Tupperware so all we needed to do at the party was pour and cook them on the portable grill," Carrie Lenz said.

The same was done with omelets. Cheese and milk scrambled together and placed in Tupperware and then chopped ham, tomatoes, cheese and other fillings were put in individual bowls. Utensils, silverware, napkins, salt and pepper and more were stored in a Rubbermaid container kept in the back of the SUV — they were always ready for tailgate adventure.

New rules in the Ford Field parking lot make tailgating impossible — nearby Eastern Market is the location for fun. When tailgating less is more, many chefs say. Still Lenz said veggie kabobs marinated overnight, placed on skewers and grilled at the party, is fairly easy. Theme ideas were popular too. When Michigan plays Wisconsin during afternoon games they'd pull out the Bratwurst with cheese.

"We had a collapsible table and some director's chairs so we could eat in comfort," Lenz said.

PASTA SALADS

Pasta salads, fruit salads, hot dogs and vegetable burgers were easy to eat. Lenz said her friends made chili and kept it warm in a Crock Pot or re-heated it on the grill. During winter months they'd pre-make hot chocolate and on milder days serve apple cider.

They also brought water to quickly rinse the utensils and containers afterward — and then rushed to the game. No one wants an egg-encrusted spatula sitting in a hot car for hours, Lenz said.

The couple won't attend as many tailgate parties this year as in the past since they don't have season tickets. A little pre-planning made their events fun, easy and smooth, she said.

BRATWURSTS IN BEER

6 Bratwursts
1 large onion
2 teaspoons minced garlic
1 teaspoon brown sugar
3 tablespoons butter
2 plops of mustard
3 bottles of beer
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 Bay Leaves
1 teaspoon caraway seed (optional)
1 teaspoon dried thyme
1 teaspoon Worcestershire Sauce
1/2 teaspoon dried Marjoram
6 bread rolls

Poke a bunch of holes in the Bratwurst and then combine everything except the rolls into a covered pot.

Heat on medium-high until boiling. Boil for 25 minutes stirring occasionally.

Pull the brats out, let them cool down and put in a freezer bag or container then back in the fridge until you're ready to pack the cooler for the tailgate party.

Strain the onions and cool and then pack in aluminum foil.

At the party just heat them on the grill for a few minutes while turning them. Place the onion pack on the grill for 10 minutes and place on a roll and serve.

What's new is news at Alderbrook

One of the first questions we ask at a winery or of a winemaker is, "What's new?" In the case of Alderbrook, located at the confluence of the Dry Creek and Russian River Valleys in California's Sonoma County, the answer is nearly everything.

That includes the owners, packaging, winemaker, vineyard and wine-making techniques. All of which have improved the wine style.

In 2000, to help define and vitalize the wine image, Alderbrook's owners approached the Terlato family, owners of Paterno Wines International, an importing and marketing firm based in Illinois. Recognizing Alderbrook's potential, the Terlatos developed a long-range plan that now includes the Terlatos as majority owners of the winery.

WINEMAKING VISION

The location of Alderbrook's 65 acres of estate vineyards experience a perfect blend of weather conditions for grapegrowing. They are influenced by the hot afternoon heat that is typical of Dry Creek Valley. Yet, they also benefit from the cool night air and fog that creeps up the Russian River Valley from the Pacific Ocean. This temperature differential creates an ideal climate for ripening grapes to their full flavor potential.

Then for a great wine to be bottled, it takes the skill of a talented winemaker to put all the pieces of the winemaking puzzle together. Prior to harvest 2000, 35-year-old T.J. Evans had the opportunity to tote his bag of skills to Alderbrook. These include not only his master's degree in enology, earned at the University of California Davis, but global work experience at Far Niente and Robert Mondavi Winery in the

"Sometimes, people try to do too much," said Kelli Lewton, a guest chef instructor at Schoolcraft College's Continuing Education Program in Livonia and owner of Too Unique in Bloomfield Hills and Aunt Olive's Good Food to Go in Birmingham. "Easy is better for tailgate parties."

Grilled Italian sausage with onions and green peppers is great for those bringing portable grills for pre-game festivities, Lewton suggested. Or bring chili stored in a thermos with plastic spoons and bowls.

If you want a healthier version of tailgate food, try whole grain bread without any white flour and a bag of grapes — or replace meat in chili with different types of beans. Lewton suggests

Chef Devik Smart of The Good Food Co. with locations in Canton, Ann Arbor, Troy and Rochester, suggested black bean burgers.

They can be pre-cooked and eaten cold or heated on the grill and served on a bun. Gary Leeper, a manager at Good Food Co. suggested either turkey hot dogs or soy-based vegetarian hot dogs for a traditional sports snack with a twist.

Use foods that keep well. Keep hot food warm by wrapping it in aluminum foil and a towel. Keep six-pack coolers for cold foods or condiments.

The Lions may be mediocre at best, as everyone knows, but the food doesn't need to follow suit.

SMOKED SAUSAGES w/2 MUSTARDS

2 pounds lean turkey sausage
2 cups dry red wine
1 tablespoon fennel seeds
2 cups beer
1 onion thinly sliced
2 pounds smoked turkey sausage
1/3 cup honey
1/2 cup orange juice

Pierce the lean turkey sausage casings in several places with the tines of a fork. Place in a bowl with the red wine and fennel. Let it sit in the refrigerator for at least 4-6 hours. After marinating, place the wine, fennel and sausage in a sauté pan. Bring to a boil and reduce heat to medium-high and cook until most of the wine is absorbed by the sausages, about 20-30 minutes. Remove from heat and let cool.

Pierce the casings of the smoked turkey sausage in several places with the tines of a fork. Place the sausage in a sauté pan. Add the beer and the thinly sliced onion. Bring to a boil, reduce heat to medium-high and cook until most of the beer is absorbed and the onions are very soft, approximately 20 minutes. Remove from heat and set sausages aside. Discard the onions. Turn broiler on high. Place the smoked sausage on a foil-lined broiler pan. Blend the honey and the orange juice together and brush liberally on the smoked sausages. Broil on one side until crispy, about one minute. Repeat on the other side. Remove from the heat and allow to cool. Refrigerate until ready to serve. To serve, slice each sausage link into 3-4 thick slices. Dip in the mustard of your choice.

MEDITERRANEAN TORTA

8 ounces sheep's milk feta
8 ounces cream cheese room temperature
1/2 stick butter room temperature
2 cloves garlic minced
4 tablespoons pine nuts or almonds toasted
1 1/2 tablespoons green pepper corns or capers drained well
2 tablespoons basil pesto
3 tablespoons roasted red peppers minced
1 1/2 tablespoons kalamata olive pesto

Combine the feta, cream cheese, butter and garlic in a food processor bowl fitted with a steel blade. Process until smooth. Add the green peppercorns and pulse to just mix without completely crushing the pepper berries. Oil a 4 1/2 cup mold and line with plastic wrap, allowing the plastic to hang over the sides of the mold. Place two tablespoons of the pine nuts or almonds on the bottom of the mold. Top with one quarter of the cheese mixture, smoothing it with the back of a wet spoon. Spread the two tablespoons of basil pesto on top of the cheese mixture. Gently place another quarter of the cheese mixture on top of the pesto, smoothing with again with the back of a wet spoon. Add the remaining nuts in a single layer over the cheese mixture. Top this with the roasted peppers. Spread another quarter of the cheese mixture on top of the peppers. Top with the olive pesto.

Black bean burgers, like this one that can be purchased at the Good Food Co., can be eaten hot or cold at tailgate parties.

Finish the torta with a final layer of the cheese mixture.

Refrigerate 3-4 hours. Unmold the torta onto a serving plate. Carefully remove the plastic wrap.

MARINATED ARTICHOKE AND MUSHROOM SALAD

2 cans of whole artichoke hearts drained
1 dozen medium sized white mushrooms cleaned and halved
1/2 small red onion thinly sliced
1/3 cup of juice from navel oranges
1/8 teaspoon anise extract
1 teaspoon sugar a few grinds of fresh black pepper
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/3 cup good quality extra virgin olive oil

Place the artichokes, mushrooms and red onion in a large bowl. Make the vinaigrette by placing the orange juice, anise extract, sugar, pepper and salt in the bowl of a food processor fitted with a steel blade. With the machine running, slowly drizzle in the olive oil and process until the ingredients are emulsified. Remove from the processor and pour over the vegetables in the bowl. Toss with the fresh basil. Keep refrigerated until one half hour before serving.

BEER CHEESE FONDUE

1 (10 3/4 ounce) can cheddar
Cheese soup undiluted with 5 to 9 ounces of beer

12 ounces (3 cups) grated natural Swiss cheese
1 1/2 teaspoon fresh minced garlic
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1/2 to 3/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper
1 teaspoon Morton Nature's Sea seasoning or seasoned salt
1 loaf unsliced French bread cut into 1 inch cubes

Place soup in sauce pan on medium high heat. Heat 5 minutes. Add beer, cheese, garlic, mustard, cayenne, and seasoning. Reduce heat to medium-low. Stir with wire whisk and continue to heat until cheese is melted and texture is creamy. Pour cheese mixture into a warm fondue pot. Keep fondue warm, but not bubbling hot, during the meal. Use fondue forks or bamboo skewers for spearing bread.

Serve with a basket of French bread cubes and a green salad. A bottle of dry, white wine will complement the flavor of the cheese fondue.

VARIATIONS

Substitute equal amount of cheddar cheese for the Swiss cheese.

Apple slices may also be served for dunking into the fondue sauce.

HOW TO EAT CHEESE FONDUE

Each person should have a dinner fork and bamboo skewers or a fondue fork which has a long metal handle and small tines. Each person should be responsible for preparing his dinner by spearing the bread cubes one at a time. The cubes should then be submerged in the cheese (in the fondue pot) for a few seconds to coat the cubes well and then drained for a few seconds before placing hot cheese-coated bread on plate.

Unstuffed cabbage streamlines an old, robust favorite

BY DANA JACOBI
CORRESPONDENT

Who makes the stuffed cabbage in your family?

This robust dish inhabits the souls of those with roots in Eastern Europe, where cabbage dishes fuel people through harsh winters. But the aroma of this dish is so charismatic, and the taste so nurturing, that it draws people from all ethnic backgrounds.

Stuffed cabbage dishes may be alternately celebrated as traditional and despised as a food of desperation and poverty. But anyone can appreciate the end less squabbles over whose recipe is best, the possibilities as legion as the tons of cabbage grown across Europe, from Austria, Hungary, Poland and Romania, through Russia and on to Uzbekistan.

Just as Italian-Americans argue over whose ragu is best, my grandmother, of Austrian heritage, argued to the end with her Russian friend about using raisins and lemon juice rather than sugar and vinegar for the sweet-and-sour balance essential to good stuffed cabbage. She was a vegetarian for awhile and used brown rice for stuffing. You can't imagine the scornful remarks this version drew from our Hungarian, pork-loving neighbors. But I came to like this light, lean version and occasionally still make it.

However, the long cooking process — blanching and separating the cabbage leaves, making the filling, tucking it into the cabbage, layering the rolls in a big pot, getting the sauce just right, then slow cooking — was not for me. I started experimenting with alternatives. Initially, I hollowed out the whole cabbage and stuffed it, as some cooks traditionally do. That was still too much work. Layering the cabbage and filling like lasagna didn't create the right texture and flavors. Finally, something between braising and stewing produced the right result. Best of all, it takes less than an hour, so I make it whenever the craving hits.

UNSTUFFED CABBAGE

Cooking oil spray
1 carrot, thinly sliced
1 celery rib, thinly sliced
1 large onion, finely chopped
12 oz lean ground turkey
1 cup tomato sauce
1/2 cup unsweetened applesauce
1/2 cup fat free, reduced sodium

chicken broth or water
2 tablespoon wildflower honey
2 tablespoon white vinegar
1 lb green cabbage, quartered, cored and cut in 1/4 inch strips
2 cups cooked brown rice
Salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste

Coat bottom of large Dutch oven or pot with cooking spray. Set over medium-high heat. Sauté carrot, celery, onion and turkey until lightly browned, about 8 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Mix in tomato sauce, applesauce, broth (or water), honey, vinegar and cabbage. Cover, reduce heat and simmer until cabbage is soft, about 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add more liquid if necessary to keep mixture from burning. Stir in rice. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Cover and simmer until rice is heated through, about 5 minutes.

Serve immediately. This dish can be stored, covered in refrigerator up to 3 days. Gently reheat chilled dish before serving.

Napa Valley, Domaine Jean-Louis Chave in the northern Rhone Valley of France and Villa Maria in New Zealand. But it was his tenure at La Crema Winery that put Evans in touch with vineyards and the fine art of making pinot noir. Today, zinfandel has also captured his passion.

Basically, Evans said, I've made two major changes in the way Alderbrook wines are made.

The grapes are gently belt fed to the press instead of being pumped and harvesting grapes is done only when the grapes have reached full flavor maturity. Then, I take a minimalist approach to winemaking.

For pinot noir, we've upgraded with new clonal plantings in the coolest areas of the Sonoma Coast, including the Green Valley appellation.

TASTING ALDERBROOK WINES

The sleek new Alderbrook bottle design gives the first clue that there's much to be discovered inside.

2000 Alderbrook Chardonnay $20 is fresh and bright with balanced oak

Only 28 percent new French barrels were used. The creamy mouthfeel stems from 100 percent malolactic fermentation and a regimen of stirring the lees.

For the 2001 chardonnay, said Evans, I've dialed down the oak further to 25 percent, so it can share the stage better with the fruit.

2000 Alderbrook Sauvignon Blanc $16 sports aromas and flavors of Crenshaw melon, lemongrass and lime.

This wine is a sure fire match with sushi and other Asian foods.

2000 Alderbrook Pinot Noir $27 highlights bright cherry aromas and flavors, a juicy, plump middle and a splendid, smooth, elegant finish.

Blend apples with chicken

AP - When autumn comes around so do apples in a variety of colors, textures and sweetness. Eating them as a snack or as part of a dessert is expected but adding them to a main course can give an entree a zing of flavor.

CHICKEN SAUTÉED WITH APPLES

- 4 boneless skinless chicken breast halves
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1 firm apple such as Brae burn cored halved and cut into 1/2 inch slices
- 1 cup apple juice
- 1 large onion thinly sliced
- 1 garlic clove minced
- 1/2 teaspoon dried thyme leaves
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons Dijon mustard

Place each chicken breast half between 2 sheets of waxed paper and pound with a meat mallet until about 3/4-inch thick.

Heat the oil in a large skillet over medium-high heat and saute the chicken until golden, about 3 minutes per side.

Add apple slices, apple juice, onion, garlic, thyme and salt. Cover and simmer 6 to 8 minutes or until the chicken is fork-tender.

Remove the chicken, apple slices and onion to a serving platter and keep warm.

Bring the sauce to a boil for about 5 minutes or until slightly reduced.

Whisk in the mustard. Pour the sauce over the chicken and serve.

Makes 4 servings

It's harvest time in the family kitchen

Here's a tasty rice pilaf recipe

Whatever the weather, autumn has arrived, prompting cooks to think about heartier fare. Thoughts turn from summer salad bowls to simmering pots.

Farmers markets and supermarkets are full of the autumn harvest — sweet potatoes, squash, cabbage, carrots, parsnips, turnips, turnip greens, beets, apples and pears. This bounty is not only full of flavor, but also the antioxidants, phytochemicals and fiber that help lower your risk for chronic health problems. Scientists believe that diets rich in plant-based foods are the most protective of diseases like cancer.

With the huge variety of beautiful produce this time of year, shoppers face two dangers. Buying too much and not storing it safely. Time damages both taste and nutritional content. To maximize nutrition and minimize perishability, keep salad items in the crisper drawer of your refrigerator. Refrigerate apples and pears if not used within a few days. They'll keep well up to two weeks in the refrigerator. Store root vegetables like potatoes and turnips in a cool, dry place away from sunlight, and buy only what you can use in a week or two, as they toughen with age.

Raisins, apples and rice are part of this fall harvest dish. A sweet potato adds flavor.

Some nutrients can be lost if produce is chopped and left to sit for a day or two, even more so if left to soak in water. Cut up fruits and vegetables close to the time you'll be using them. Cook vegetables until just tender. Overcooking destroys nutrients, as does cooking in a lot of water. Healthful cooking methods that preserve nutrients include microwave or stove-top steaming in a little water, and stir-frying or sautéing in a small amount of oil until vegetables just reach tenderness. Vegetables lose nutrients by boiling or cooking a long time in a lot of water.

CURRIED HARVEST PILAF

- Canola oil cooking spray
- 1 small onion coarsely chopped

- 1 cup uncooked quick cooking brown rice
- 1 tablespoon curry powder
- 1 medium sweet potato scrubbed and coarsely chopped
- 1 cup coarsely chopped kale fresh or frozen, thawed and well drained
- 1 cup water
- 2 cups fat free reduced sodium chicken broth
- 3 small Granny Smith apples coarsely chopped
- 1/4 cup currants or raisins
- Salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste

Spray a large skillet with cooking oil spray. Heat skillet over medium heat. Sauté onion until golden about 5 minutes. Add rice and curry. Sauté for 3 minutes. Stir in sweet potato and kale. Sauté for 2 minutes. Add water and broth.

Bring mixture to a boil, stirring occasionally. Reduce heat to low, cover and simmer until rice and sweet potatoes are just tender and liquid is almost absorbed, about 15 minutes.

Stir in apples and currants. Simmer, stirring frequently, until apples are tender and liquid completely absorbed, about 5 minutes.

Season with salt and pepper, and serve. Makes 4 servings.

Asian cuisine tops my list of sensible, healthy favorites

BY MICHAEL TROMBLEY
CORRESPONDENT

When I think of my favorite ethnic cuisine, I think of Asian food. This is not a trend for me, but a sensible style of food to enjoy. Just the other day, I enjoyed a lettuce chicken wrap as an appetizer and a spicy shrimp and peanut entree loaded with fresh peppers, broccoli, and fresh water chestnuts. Both were bursting with flavor and because they were cooked so quickly, they maintained great nutritional value.

The meal was so plentiful that I ate what I could and brought home the rest for the next day. This was pleasing to me because I knew it was made fresh. It was cooked that day without much oil so it didn't have unnecessary calories.

The meal contained no bleached flour so I was getting a healthy, natural meal that was easy to digest and loaded with flavor.

I have studied the diets of many different cultures. Clearly there are advantages of an Asian diet, which is high in soy products, sesame seeds, fish and fresh vegetables.

I love fresh products and when you go to an Asian market you will find seafood so fresh that you can eat it raw.

When you think of flavors, it is amazing how many flavors you can achieve with Asian style cooking. You can have a spicy dish, seasoned with garlic, cayenne pepper and Thai hot peppers, or something more mild and delicate, flavored with cilantro.

The pungent ginger, and the wonderfully strong flavors of horseradish with dion are also popular in Asian dishes.

Fresh vegetables including carrots, peppers, green beans and especially radishes are also important. The large white Asian radish with its crisp, juicy, white flesh is known in the U.S. by its Japanese name, daikon.

The Sakurajima variety can weigh as much as 60 pounds. Raw daikon can be grated, sliced, or sliced to add its crunch and zip to relishes and salads.

For salads, thin-sliced daikon is especially good with carrots and toasted sesame seeds or sesame oil.

Star-fried daikon slices, strips, or cubes are turnip-sweet.

Daikon in miso soup is mild and delicious. To prepare, simply peel the skin as you would a carrot and cut into whatever style your recipe idea calls for.

Here's a recipe for one of my favorite Asian-influenced shrimp and scallop dishes.

It is chock full of flavor and healthy ingredients. Try the daikon radish as one of the vegetables in the stir fry. Enjoy!

HERB CRUSTED SHRIMP AND SCALLOPS

Serves 2
3 cups cooked rice prepared and kept warm
2 cups of your favorite vegetable mixture cut into bite size pieces
6 or more jumbo shrimp peeled and deveined
6 or more jumbo scallops sesame oil for stir fry
Herb crust
1 cup finely ground bread crumbs
1 tablespoon fresh cilantro
1 tablespoon fresh chives
1 tablespoon fresh basil
1 ounce olive oil
1 tablespoon chopped fresh garlic
salt and pepper to taste
Ginger Soy Sauce
1/2 cup soy sauce
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon fresh garlic
1 tablespoon chopped fresh ginger
2 tablespoons water
1 tablespoon fresh coriander

Coat scallops and shrimp with herb crust and bake at 350 degrees, until done, approximately 10 minutes.

Mix the sauce together in a bowl and reserve. Stir fry the vegetables in a hot pan with a little sesame oil. Cook briefly, just until vegetables are al dente. Plate the meal first with rice, then top rice with vegetables.

Next place the shrimp and scallops, coating with sauce, or serve the sauce on the side and dip seafood in to it.

Three Observer area fishermen were in the Pro Division's top 12 through the semifinal round of the EverStart Series held on the Detroit River in Trenton Wednesday through Friday.

In Friday's semifinals Butch Dobransky of Canton was ninth with five bass weighing 16 pounds 8 ounces. Ed Dietrich of Livonia was 10th also with five catches (14 pounds 15 ounces) with Phillip Conley of Westland 11th with five catches (14 pounds 14 ounces).

In the Co angler Division Peter Merckx of Westland placed sixth in the semifinals with five catches (12 pounds 11 ounces) and Tim McCafferty of Canton was 13th with five catches (9 pounds 13 ounces).

The total purse for the Everstart Northern Division tournament is $210,000 with first place in the Pro Division earning $15,000 plus a Ranger boat worth $38,375. Top prize in the Co angler Division is $6,000.

Each angler was allowed to weigh in five bass per day. Each bass must measure at least 14 inches, only large mouth smallmouth and spot bass are allowed. Bass must be kept alive; a penalty is assessed for each bass brought to the weigh in that is not alive.

The Series final was yesterday.

Canton crushes Spartans

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

People are beginning to take stock again in the Canton football program.

The Chiefs were upgraded to blue chip status Friday after demolishing previously unbeaten Livonia Stevenson, 30-0, on the Spartans' home turf.

Both teams are now 4-1 overall and 3-1 in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Following a 46-21 loss in Week No. 2 to WLAA leader Westland John Glenn, Canton has reeled off three lopsided victories, including a 35-0 blanking of Walled Lake Western and a 56-12 pounding of Wayne Memorial.

"We're not turning the ball over, that's the difference," said Canton coach Tim Baechler, whose team played error-free football while outgaming the Spartans, 384-106, in total yards. "We moved the ball against Glenn, but we made six turnovers."

"When you're fumbling the ball or getting holding calls, you're not going to win many games."

Against Stevenson, Canton put 20 second-half points on the board to put the game away, but it was a late first-half touchdown that broke the Spartans' back.

After Ankit Kachhal booted a 38-yard field goal with 9:23 left in the half to give Canton a 3-0 lead, Stevenson marched the ball down to the Chiefs' 10-yard line. Faced with a fourth-and-1 situation with 2:21 remaining, the Spartans' Brian Alpert tried a quarterback sneak, but he momentarily lost his footing and was stopped short of the first-down marker thanks to the efforts of Canton sophomore linebacker Jake Powers and 315-pound nose guard Derek Johnson.

"We knew they (Stevenson) had a huge tendency to quarterback sneak in those situations," said Baechler, whose Chiefs had 17 first downs to Stevenson's six. "They had been getting 3-4 yards on those kind of plays and we just said, 'There it is.'"

Canton then took the ball 90 yards in only seven plays capped by quarterback Dave Nicoloff's clutch fourth-and-

Early goals propel Whalers

There were a couple of firsts for the Plymouth Whalers Friday night when they hosted the Barrie Colts in an Ontario Hockey League contest.

Like their first power-play goal of the season. For that matter, their first goal of the season.

HOCKEY

But most important, they got their first win of the season, holding off the Colts for a 4-2 triumph at Compuware Arena.

The Whalers are now 1-1 on the season.

Plymouth scored twice in the first 1:24 of the game and never trailed, although Barrie refused to let the Whalers pull away. Chad LaRose got the first of his two goals on the power play 46 seconds into the game, the team's first goal and power-play goal of the season, with assists from Karl Stewart and Ryan Ramsay.

Just 40 seconds later, David Liffiton's drive from the point got past Colts' goalie Paulo Colaiacovo, giving the Whalers a 2-0 lead and sending Colaiacovo to the bench in favor of backup goalie Michael Ouzas. Ramsay and Stewart once again assisted.

A power-play score by Luc Chasson late in the first period allowed Barrie to narrow the gap to 2-1, but the Whalers extended

Salem boys, Canton girls best at 'City'

For Salem's boys cross country team, it's starting to come together. And none too soon.

Last Thursday at the Western Lakes Activities Association's City Jamboree, held at Cass Benton, the Rocks — one of the pre-season favorites to win the league title — showed what they're capable of, outdueling four other WLAA rivals to win their 'city' meet.

Included in their race were Canton, Northville, Plymouth, Westland John Glenn and Wayne Memorial.

No official scoring was kept, some league coaches scored it as four dual meets, others as an invitational. According to Salem coach Geoff Baker, if scored as an invitational, the Rocks would have had 27 points, with Northville second (37), Canton third (88), Glenn fourth (168) and Wayne fifth (194). If scored as dual meets, Salem would have gone 4-0.

"This is a little better," said Baker, comparing these results with the first league jamboree and other invitationals. "This is the first time we've run together as a team. We did some strategizing with Northville's front runner."

Justin Hajduk, as anticipated, finished first overall in 16:42. Welcomed back into the lineup was Chris Vraniak, who returned from a leg injury last weekend (he ran at the Catholic Central Invitational while Hajduk ran at the Jackson Invite), running with Hajduk for the first time this season, he placed second overall in 16:55.

The Rocks' other scorers were Adam Warner, sixth (17:12), Randy Bearden, seventh (17:16), and Jim Leddy, 11th (17:36).

The news for Canton's cross country team, the WLAA's defending champ, was not as good. Aaron Lanning, their top returning runner from last season, suffered a severe laceration on his leg in a car accident and will be out for the season.

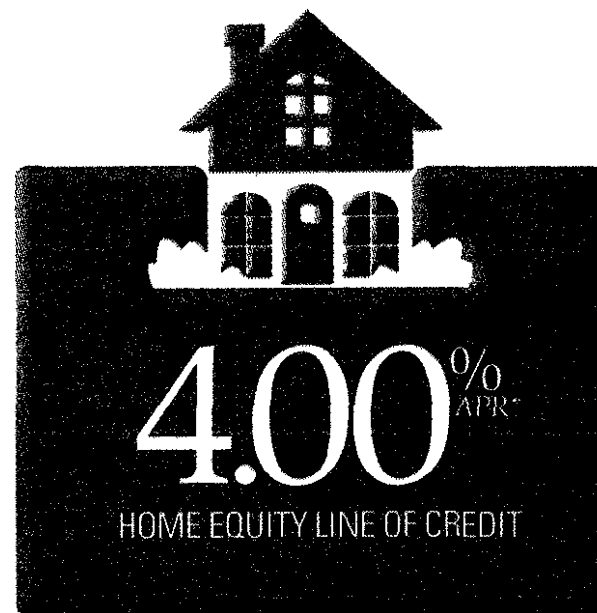

Leading the Chiefs at the City Jamboree was Jon Western, who was fourth overall in 17:05. Next best for Canton was Steve Cheek, 10th (17:25), Raj Shah, 23rd (18:52), Tim Summers, 25th (19:02), and John Madonna, 26th (19:08).

Northville had four runners in the top nine, led by Clark Paciorek in third place (16:56), but none that could match the

Canton holds on for win over Central

BY C J RISAK
STAFF WRITER

It was a last-shot-wins kind of game when Canton traveled to Walled Lake Central Thursday for a Western Lakes Activities Association basketball game.

Only Central couldn't get that last shot off. A three-pointer by Jessica Johnson with 27 seconds left proved to be the game-winner for the Chiefs, who edged the Vikings 43-42. The win improved Canton's record to 6-2 overall, 2-0 in the WLAA Central 13-4 overall, 1-1 in the conference.

"That was big," said Canton coach Bob Blohm of Johnson's shot. "But when we were going down the stretch, we got a lot of big plays. "I was really happy with them. The team defense was solid, they handled the ball better. They competed hard for 32 minutes."

Canton led 12-8 after one quarter, but Central stormed back behind the long-range shooting of Britt Coram — who had two three-pointers in the second quarter — to take a 22-21 halftime lead. The Vikings still led by a basket after three quarters, 32-30.

They were still ahead by that same margin when Johnson knocked down her triple, giving Canton a 43-41 advantage. On Central's next possession, Michelle White was fouled, but she made just 1-of-2 free throws.

The Vikings quickly fouled Canton's Briana Wolcott, and Wolcott missed the front end of her 1-and-1 attempt.

After a scramble for the ball, the Vikings came up with it, but found themselves on the wrong end of the court with just 3.5 seconds left.

They got the ball inbound, but could not get off a shot.

Katie Cezat paced Canton's scoring with 12 points, she also had 13 rebounds. Johnson added 10 points and Kristen Lake, who scored a key, game-tying basket on a putback with 1.40 left, totaled five points and seven boards.

Katie Rademacher led all scorers with 23 points, converting seven of eight free throws. Coram was limited to one field goal in the second half by Canton defenders Christina Redd and Johnson, she finished with 12 points.

"We got some great shots, we rebounded the ball really well, and we had some big plays from a lot of people," said Blohm.

Salem 35 W.L. Western 30 The Rocks scored the final six points of the game Thursday to edge WLAA rival Walled Lake Western at Salem.

The non-division win boosted Salem's record to 5-3 overall, 3-0 in the conference. Western is 5-4 overall, 2-1 in the WLAA.

Ellen Canale's triple started the Rocks late game rally, putting them ahead 32-30. Canale finished with a game-high 11 points. Stephanie Philips added nine points and Kathy Hammerschmidt had seven.

The Warriors got eight points from Megan Marighan and seven from Tracey Winkler.

Free throws played a role in the outcome. Salem was 14 of 24 at the line while Western was 2 of 7.

Agape 58 Hamtramck 29 Canton Agape Christian improved its record to 9-1 with a convincing win at Hamtramck Thursday.

Amy Henry blistered the Cosmos for 23 points with five assists and five steals. Lisa Ther added 11 points and eight rebounds, and A.J. Creps totaled eight points and 12 boards. Jessica Gasior topped Hamtramck (2-3 for the season) with nine points.

The Wolverines led 19-3 after one quarter and 32-8 by halftime. They stretched their lead to 44-16 heading into the final period.

Roeper 52, PCA 32 Plymouth Christian Academy hung in there for a half against visiting Bloomfield Hills Roeper. But the Roughriders outscored PCA 34-17 in the second half to win going away Friday.

They were not great, but we helped them out a bit," said Eagles coach Annie Malcolm. We had a lot of turnovers in the second half.

We shot the ball well — 14 of 32 (43.8 percent) but 32 shots are not going to win many games for you. We can't give up the ball that much. Shannon Murray had a solid game for the Eagles, scoring 10 points on 5 of 6 shooting and grabbing nine rebounds. Melanie Brady added 10 points (5 of 7 shooting).

Sarah Pernick topped Roeper with 13 points. Kristin Morris chipped in with 11.

Ladywood 50 Divine Child 38 In a Catholic League Central Division game Friday, host Livonia Ladywood (5-3, 1-1) broke away from a 23-all halftime deadlock with a 16-4 third quarter surge to beat Dearborn Divine Child (6-2, 0-1).

Ruth Sventickas, a senior forward, set out the second quarter and half of the third quarter after picking up three fouls. She came back to score six of her team-high 14 points in the third period to spark the surge. She also grabbed seven rebounds.

Megan Szczypka and Bethany Jury each added eight points for the victorious Blazers. Amy Jacovetti chipped in with seven.

Stephanie Childs and Aubrey Brewis scored 12 and 11, respectively, for the Falcons. cjriskak@oehomecomm.net | (734) 953-2108

CLARIFICATION

The second goal scored by Northville's soccer team in its match against Canton Sept. 18 was scored by Alfonso Acevado. The goal came in the first six minutes of the second half and allowed the Mustangs to overtake Canton, which had led 1-0 at halftime. Acevado's goal proved to be the game-winner for Northville. The Mustangs held off the Chiefs' attempts to tie the score and emerged with a 2-1 victory.

Agape stuns PCA; Canton, Salem roll

BY C J RISAK
STAFF WRITER

It wasn't supposed to work out this way.

Remember back just a few weeks, when Canton Agape Christian first took the field against Plymouth Christian Academy. It was Agape's first soccer match of the season, PCA had been playing a bit, so the Eagles were more prepared. And it showed when PCA blasted the Wolverines 9-0.

On Friday the two teams met again, this time at PCA. The Eagles, using their first match as reference, started the game with their back-ups, according to Agape coach Rick Guttersohn, and it backfired.

The Wolverines scored 15 minutes in and made that single goal stand up for a 1-0 victory. Agape improved to 4-6-1 overall with the win.

"This was a big victory for our program," said Guttersohn. "They came out totally underestimating us and we took advantage of it."

The games only goal was scored by Jack Anlietner on a header following a shot by

Charlie Henry. Henry's drive bounced off the crossbar to Anlietner for the finish.

That was the game's only goal, but there were other opportunities for both sides. With 20 minutes left to play, a foul called inside the penalty area gave Henry a penalty kick. He proved his consistency, driving this shot off the post.

PCA, which inserted its starting lineup into the game after the first five minutes, lost team captain James Reyes to a leg injury late in the first half.

That brought Tim Oswalt, who had been sidelined with a foot injury, in for the second half and with five minutes to play, Oswalt crossed the ball in front of the Agape net. The ball was knocked in past keeper Jordan Napier, but the play was disallowed by an infraction against PCA. Napier, playing his first season of soccer ever, recorded his second shutout of the year.

Canton 4 John Glenn 0 Pat Zemansk scored two goals to lead Canton past Westland John Glenn Wednesday in a Western Lakes Activities Assoc. at-on crossover match at John Glenn. The win improved Canton's record to 6-4-1.

Dutch Morrell and Alex Popescu also scored goals for the Chiefs. Brad Westlund had two assists and Ross Maltby and Dave Mintz each had one.

Kris Holowicki had four saves in goal for the shutout.

Salem 6 Wayne 0 Kevin Savitskie had a goal and two assists with Brian Popeney and Matt Wielechowski each contributing a goal and an assist as the Rocks blanked Wayne Memorial in a WLAA Lakes Division match Wednesday at Salem.

The Rocks improved to 9-4 overall with the win, 3-0 in the division. Wayne is 4-5 overall, 0-2 in the division.

Mike Masters opened the scoring for Salem with an assist from Steve Shull. Popeney made it 2-0. Savitskie assisting and Matt Adsit got a third goal for the Rocks before halftime, assisted by Chris Conlisk.

Brandon Ross (from Popeney), Savitskie (from Wielechowski) and Wielechowski (from Savitskie) collected second-half goals for the Rocks.

CCO U-D Jesuit 0 Redford Catholic Central slugged it out at University of Detroit Jesuit Friday and earned a scoreless draw.

CC moves to 3-6-2 overall and 1-2-1 in the Catholic League.

We were in it because of our defense. CC head coach Jim Nora said. The defense only gave up one odd man rush.

Each goal keeper pitched a shutout. The Shamrocks' Todd Tindall made five saves and Woodson made eight for the Cubs. Tim Derrig played a big part in the defensive battle. He won all of the balls out of the air. Nora said.

Nora gave a lot of credit to Dan Curran and Eric Swech for their defensive efforts. They took U of D's forwards out of the game. You didn't notice them, that's how good they played.

On Tuesday CC got an up close look at one of the state's top teams in a 5-0 loss at Troy. The Coits ranked fourth in the state in Division 1, dominated the Shamrocks on the field and the decisiveness showed up on the scoreboard. Troy scored twice in the first half and despite an improved effort from CC in the second, still tallied three goals to finish off the win. cjriskak@oehomecomm.net | (734) 953-2108

11 pass to a wide open Devin Thomas, the TD going 18 yards, with only 40 seconds left

Meanwhile, Stevenson coach Tim Gabel was second-guessing himself for going with the sneak

"It was a bad call on my part," he said "We didn't execute it We went from 10-0 down instead of being up 7-3

"High school football is a game of momentum. It seemed their offense took over the game from that point on, from their own 10 We let one or two plays go against us that really affected us"

Ironically, the TD pass was Nicoloff's only completion in three attempts

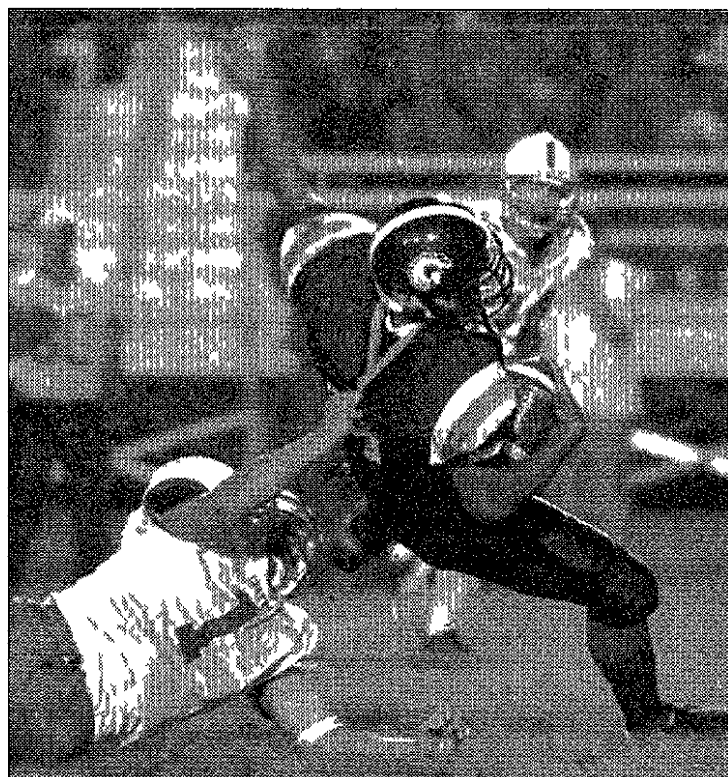

A 31-yard keeper by Nicoloff followed by a 43-yard run by Reggie Joyner (15 carries for 119 yards) helped set up the score

"We don't let our quarterback throw a lot, but Dave (Nicoloff) is starting to calm down and get his confidence," Baechler said "He's playing better and starting to make plays"

Stevenson's defense seemed deflated in the second half as Canton began to wear down the Spartans, led by the blocking of guards Jeff Sartor and Mark Kersten, with their precision Wing-T attack

"Our guards are athletic, I don't like them too big," Baechler said "We want quick athletes who are strong"

Canton took the opening drive of the second half and marched 66 yards in 10 plays, capped by Corey Rutledge's 5-

Ahead 24-0 entering the final period, Canton scored again with exactly 10 minutes left on Joyner's 27-yard TD

"We melted down in the second half after getting stopped in the red zone," Gabel said

We still think we're a pretty good team but obviously Canton is very good

We got down so fast, it changed what we wanted to do We had to go for bigger plays instead of running our normal stuff in the second half"

The Spartans played for the second straight game without senior tailback Matt McCowan, who had racked up 560 yards in Stevenson's first three victories He did not dress because of an ankle sprain

But Gabel refused to make excuses

I thought we'd battle better in the second half, he said

They played four quarters and we didn't That's why they're a good team

Twisters stay on top of division

The Michigan Twisters captured their third consecutive North Division Championship Saturday at Willow Run's Devin Stadium with a 53-6 pasting of inter-state rival the Southwest Michigan Rage.

The Twisters defense controlled the game, limiting the Rage to 82 yards of total offense. Southwest Michigan was never able to mount a rushing attack, carrying 22 times for negative yardage. The Twisters recovered five fumbles, one for a safety and another for a touchdown, by linebacker Kam Watson (Romulus).

The secondary also played a big part in the victory for the Twisters. The Rage was only able to complete six passes on the day. Aaron Brothers (Canton) picked off a pass and returned it 41 yards for a score. The Michigan offense pounded away at the Rage scoring three touchdowns on the ground. Runningback Jason Gibson (Milan) scored twice and leading rusher, Jaquan Wright (Ypsilanti) scored from ten yards out. Wright ended the day with 70 yards on seven carries.

The Twisters have a chance to finish the season undefeated when they close out the season against the Southern Michigan Storm. The game is Saturday at Morenci.

FALLING SHORT

Plymouth HS came close in its freshmen football game against Walled Lake Western, but the Wildcats fell short, losing 8-0 Thursday.

The loss left Plymouth at 2-2-1 overall.

"Our defense, I thought, played outstanding," said Plymouth coach Jay Blaylock.

Leading the defense was Matt Farmer with an interception and a caused fumble. Anthony Green also played well.

The offense was paced by Jeff Harrison's running and a gutty performance by quarterback Brett Jones.

SC sweeps Mott

Schoolcraft College kept its unblemished volleyball record in the Michigan Community College Athletic Association's Eastern Conference intact Wednesday with a 30-17, 30-11, 30-13 victory over Flint Mott CC at Schoolcraft.

The Lady Ocelots improved to 22-9 overall, 8-0 in the conference.

Katie Drews (from Livonia Stevenson) and Holly Soldenski led the attack with eight kills apiece, Soldenski hitting at a 4.29 average and Drews at 4.00. Noelle Swartz

VOLLEYBALL

Carly Szajnecki and Meghan Mitchell each had eight digs to pace the SC defense, and Ioana Vescan finished with 21 set assists, two aces and seven digs.

The Ocelots have lost just one game in their eight best-of-five matches in the conference. They host conference rival Delta CC at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

SEITZ BULLIES

Taunting and teasing others often a sign of problems at home, in school

BY RENÉE SKOGLUND
STAFF WRITER

Remember that school bully, the boy or girl who made your life miserable for months, sometimes years? Sure you do. Everyone remembers at least one classmate who taunted and teased the kids with braces or glasses, even pushing around the kids who were smarter or smaller — just to get some laughs.

You might even recall teachers and parents telling you to just ignore the bully. Kids will be kids, they said. But schoolyard bullying is not a rite of passage, something to be endured until it becomes a distant memory. Being the victim of a bully can have long-lasting psychological scars, says Kim Zarzour, author of Facing the Schoolyard Bully: How to Raise an Assertive Child in an Aggressive World.

Victims may suffer from anxiety, low self-esteem and depression. In the extreme, some victims may attempt suicide.

A bully is not to be ignored. Child and adolescent mental health specialists at the University of Michigan Health System say both parents and child-care providers need to be aware of what creates a bully's behavior and the toll it can take on his or her victim.

"When you really take a close look at bullying, it's happening with kids who feel the need to be aggressive after being treated in an aggressive manner themselves," said Dr. Paul Quinlan, director of Child & Adolescent Psychiatry Inpatient Services at the U-M Health System. They're the kids who may be suffering from abuse or from just not having their needs met at school or at home.

David Carpenter, a child and adolescent psychiatric therapist with the Henry Ford Health System's Behavioral Health Clinic, believes when teasing turns to bullying, the roots of such behavior lie in the home.

"When you cross over the line into bullying, that child (usually) comes from a home where he has been criticized or where his parents are not interested in him. There's probably mental or physical abuse. Bullies feel rejected. They feel powerless," he said.

With few exceptions, bullies are made not born, said Carpenter.

It seems to start in the home. In other words, children are not born with aggressive bullying behavior. Generally, a child will be fostered, nurtured and trained in the home in terms of behavior. Years one through five are very critical.

WHO'S THE BULLY?

Ninety-five percent of the time, bullies are hyperactive males who are "disruptive, disrespectful, lack empathy and want everything now," said Carpenter.

"Parents give them everything they want to get them out of their hair," he added.

In a survey of 15,686 students in grades 6-10 conducted by the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, almost 30 percent said they were involved in bullying, whether they bullied, were targeted by bullies, or both. Gender, age and race played significant roles. Boys rather than girls were most often the bullies and the bullied, bullying occurred most frequently among 6th- to 8th-graders, and black teens reported being bullied less frequently.

Donna Rhodes, executive director of curriculum and instruction for the Redford Union School District, said bullying usually starts in the later elementary years and frequently takes the form of teasing that gets out of control and then moves on to intimidation.

"Bullies are typically children who are very insecure," she said. "We look at it from the point of the child being needy. Schools in her district offer these children classroom support, counseling and an opportunity to become involved in school activities, such as sports."

"We give them avenues where they can feel good about themselves so that they don't have to bully."

Boys bully differently than girls, she said. Boys are right up front with their activities. They are down and dirty and much more trackable. Girls' bullying is much more subtle.

Carpenter agrees.

"Girls are more passive-aggressive in their approach to bullying, and probably more destructive. They will attack a person's reputation, character and integrity," he said.

He recalled a young girl he once knew who constructed a Web site about a boy and made up a whole lot of things that were not true. For older kids, especially in junior high school, this is devastating.

Girls who bully come from the same type of home as aggressive boys, said Carpenter. There's a lack of nurturing from the mother and a lack of respect from the father, and such a legacy carries on into adulthood.

"These are the women in the workplace who gossip and destroy reputations," he said.

DEALING WITH A BULLY

If the bullying becomes a chronic behavior, Quinlan warns that the child is at a higher risk to engage in anti-social behavior, such as stealing or attempting to physically hurt others, as an adult.

New trial compares 2 prostate cancer treatments

ANN ARBOR, MI — This year, more than 180,000 American men will be diagnosed with prostate cancer. Another 35,000 will die because of it.

Now, for the first time, a national trial will compare two major forms of prostate cancer treatment to determine which is the most effective cure.

The SPIRIT trial, to take place at multiple prostate cancer centers across North America, will compare seed implant therapy to the surgical removal of the prostate, or prostatectomy, says Dr. Martin Sanda, a urologist and associate director of the University of Michigan Health System's Prostate Cancer Program.

The trial was developed through collaboration between urological surgeons and radiation oncologists at the University of Washington, Princess Margaret and Sunnybrook Hospitals in Toronto, Duke University and University of Michigan. It hopes to enroll 2,000 patients across the United States and Canada.

"We know both options are effective ways to treat prostate cancer," says Sanda. "What we don't know is how they will compare two, five or 10 years

'The outcome of this procedure is directly related to the quality of the implant. Good implants are very, very effective at curing the cancer.'

after treatment in terms of their effects on survival and quality of life."

The prostate gland is found only in men. It's about the size of a walnut and is located below the bladder in front of the rectum. The urethra, the tube that carries urine, runs through it.

Cancer occurs when cells in the gland begin to grow out of control. Most of the time, prostate cancer grows very slowly. Occasionally, though, it can grow quickly and spread to other parts of the body like the lymph nodes or other organs.

Because it grows at different rates, how an individual patient's prostate cancer behaves is critical to determining whether he is eligible to participate in the study.

Those who are eligible to participate in the study will be randomly assigned to receive one of the two treatments.

Seed implant therapy involves inserting tiny radioactive seeds into the prostate. The first step, says Dr. Patrick McLaughlin, a radiation oncologist at the UMHS, is to take a picture of the prostate gland. "Since prostates range in size, we use the image to determine how many seeds should be implanted and where they should be placed."

Several seeds are implanted during an operating room procedure. Checks are done to make sure the seeds are in the right place. This procedure allows the patient to go home the same day, but several additional follow-up scans are necessary to confirm the seeds are indeed where they are supposed to be.

"The outcome of this procedure is directly related to the quality of the implant," says McLaughlin. "Good implants are very, very effective at curing the cancer."

FACTS ABOUT PROSTATE CANCER

■ One in eight men will develop prostate cancer making it the most common form of cancer among American men.

■ Roughly 60 percent of prostate cancer cases diagnosed are in men over the age of 60.

■ African Americans and those with a family history of prostate cancer are also at increased risk.

■ Men should begin to consider prostate cancer screening at about age 50. Those who are of African-American origin or with a family history of prostate cancer should begin in their mid-40s.

■ There are usually no symptoms of prostate cancer when it is in its early stages. Symptoms of advanced disease include blood in the urine, unexplained weight loss and pelvic or bone pain.

Annual Breast Health Expo promotes humor for healing

Saint Joseph Mercy Health System, Ann Arbor, will present its annual Breast Health Expo 5:30-8 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 1, at the Ellen Thompson Womens Health Center at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, 5301 East Huron River Drive, Ypsilanti. Special guest speaker Lillie Shockney will share her personal experience with breast cancer and discuss the value of humor as a powerful weapon when confronted with cancer. Shockney is the author of Breast Cancer Survivors' Club - a Nurse's Experience and director of Education and Outreach at Johns Hopkins Breast Center. She is a nationally recognized expert in the field of clinical quality improvement and utilization management and is a public speaker and published author on both topics. However, since having breast cancer and two mastectomies, her most popular request for presentations is for her discussion on the psychological impact this disease has on women, and her insight into the value of humor as a powerful weapon when confronted with cancer. She believes humor can become supplemental therapy when combined with a patient's medical and surgically prescribed treatment plan. Shockney is the recipient of numerous awards including the Outstanding Women of America Award, Global Business Leadership Award, and Circle of Life Award from Shape Magazine and the National Race for the Cure. She was nominated for the Avon Breast Cancer Leadership Award and one of 30 women chosen to be featured in Maryland's American Cancer Society's Portraits of Hope. She has appeared on numerous television and radio programs. The SJMHS Breast Health Expo will include health exhibits, door prizes and light refreshments. Admission is free but reservations are required. Please call the SJM HealthLine at (734) 712-5400 or toll-free at (800) 231-2211.

When your child is bullied

Kelly, an elementary school student, knows all-too-well what it's like to be bullied. "I have been bullied by someone in my neighborhood and he's taken my lunch money and hit me a lot of times. He hates me and he won't leave my stuff alone." Because of such situations, parents always need to be on the look-out for signs of bullying, especially since children often feel embarrassed about the situation and may be reluctant to tell their parents about the bully. Some signs that a child may be the victim of a bully include: Making excuses for not wanting to go to school; Difficulty sleeping or eating; Increased anxiety about school or certain situations at school like riding the bus, using the restroom or going on recess; Missing personal items or the need for extra school supplies or money. Excessive trips to the school nurse, especially during unstructured time like lunch or recess. Unexplained bruises or torn clothing. To help a child deal with a bully, Dr. Paul Qunlan, director of Child & Adolescent Psychiatry Inpatient Services at the University of Michigan Health System, says parents need to encourage their child to speak directly to the bully, but never to be physically defensive. Parents need to provide extra support to boost their child's self-confidence, help them build social skills to avoid conflict and make friends, and encourage them to seek the help of an adult or friends when a bully is around. KidHealth lists the following types of bullying on their Web site:

- Physical bullying - Perhaps the most obvious form of intimidation, physical bullying can consist of kicking, hitting, biting, pinching, hair pulling, or threatening such physical abuse.
- Verbal bullying - It often accompanies the physical behavior, and can include name calling, spreading rumors, and persistent teasing.
- Emotional intimidation - Closely connected to physical and verbal bullying, emotional intimidation may take the form of deliberately excluding a child from a group activity such as a class party.
- Racist bullying - This takes many forms, making racial slurs, spray painting graffiti, mocking the victims' cultural traditions, and making offensive gestures.
- Sexual bullying - This is characterized by unwanted physical contact or abusive comments.

BULLIES

Bullying is something that needs to be dealt with in a very thorough manner," he said. "School systems and other programs that deal with children need to work to recognize and identify this problem behavior and offer assistance to the families. Rhodes said dealing with bullying is now part of the Redford Umon School District's code of conduct. The district also has several programs in place to ward off bullying beginning in elementary school. However, if a teacher or school official fails to intervene, Carpenter says parents should consider taking their child out of school and appealing to the school board. Or, a parent may take a more personal approach. He or she may ask to meet with the bully in the principal's office and tell him or her to stop the aggressive behavior. "It's reverse intimidation, but not harmful," said Carpenter. Carpenter does not advocate that child who is bullied retaliate physically against his or her tormentor since bullies are often bigger and stronger than their victims. He does encourage the child to respond verbally, to be assertive. That requires support which comes from involved parents who acknowledge the problem. "Kids need to know someone is on their team," he said. "Rather than bringing their child to me once a week, a parent needs to be the therapist in the home." Qunlan suggests parents take a close look at where the bullying behavior is occurring

- whether it is just happening in school or in unique settings. If the behavior is persistent during play activities in school and at home, parents should consider getting a mental health referral from their pediatrician. "The good news is there's good results with intervention," he said. "The situation will be controlled and parents can really begin to help their child

SURGERY OF THE HAND IN RHEUMATOID ARTHRITIS

You may have seen how the hand looks in someone with advanced rheumatoid arthritis. The fingers are misshapen, the digits are off at an angle to the wrist. Often the fingers are in a flexed and distorted position. The wrist itself loses the capability of movement so that the hand and wrist are in a frozen position. You would think that people with such deformities or their doctor would not permit such distortions to go without treatment. Neither the physician nor the patient are ignorant of what has happened or indifferent to the effect of the arthritis. However, a bystander may not be aware of several features of rheumatoid arthritis of the hand that determines if a hand surgeon will intervene. One is that there are large differences between how a hand looks and how it performs. Individuals with gnarled fingers may be capable of playing the organ using a keypad and may sew or knit for relaxation. Looking at a hand does not tell you how well it works. Another consideration is bone stock. The digits and bones of the wrist are small bones. Operations that involve placing artificial parts are procedures that the hand surgeon can do only once. When bone stock is used, there is too little left to put in another replacement later. Of an artificial part fails, no substitute will be forthcoming. It may be better to keep going with the joint you have, then to risk further loss of function if a replacement fails. For the above reasons, hand surgery is never a first choice, always a last resort.

In contrast to seed implant therapy, prostatectomy involves the removal of the prostate gland during a two- to three-hour procedure. After the prostate is removed, the bladder and the urethra are reattached. "For most patients, this is the only treatment they'll ever need, and it's unlikely their cancer will ever reoccur," says Sanda. Some of the common side effects of either prostatectomy or seed implants include erectile dysfunction and temporary urinary problems. The SPIRIT trial won't just use cancer survival rates to determine the most effective cure. Researchers also will use confidential patient surveys to evaluate patients' quality of life and the presence of side effects after seed implant therapy and surgical removal of the cancer. "We've come to a juncture where providing quality care goes beyond just curing the cancer," says Sanda. "Now, we want to do more. We want to cure the cancer and know the patient has a high quality of life and an outcome with which he can be happy." Michigan mystery, western novelist publishes 50th book

BY KURT ANTHONY KRUG
CORRESPONDENT

The release of Black Powder, White Smoke marks the 50th novel written by best-selling author Loren D. Estleman.

"I enjoy the process of creativity, of making stuff up, and get paid doing it. It's more fun to draw from fantasy and write from your imagination," says Estleman, 50, who works out of his 120-acre home in Whitmore Lake, a city where he has been a life-long resident. He lives with his wife, fellow writer Deborah Morgan, whom he met at a Western Writers of America Convention in Wyoming more than a decade ago.

"I'm one of those lucky people who gets paid to do what he loves to do."

The author says he's been writing since he could hold a pencil, something he claims to have been born with.

"Must've been a painful birth," he quips. Estleman - who does all of his work on a manual typewriter because he hates computers with a passion - has been a professional author for nearly 27 years, switching back and forth from the mystery genre to the western genre.

Black Powder, White Smoke is his 18th western novel.

It is the story of Honey Boutrille, a freed slave turned gunfighter in New Orleans, who runs a brothel. Honey is forced to kill a white customer after he savagely manhandles one of his girls, forcing him to go on the run. In San Francisco, white gunfighter Emerson Emerson aka a Twice Emerson, a Union Army deserter turned Confederate guerrilla, goes on the lam after killing a Chinese man.

In the middle of all this is failed novelist Ernest Torbert who wants to raise the legends of the two gunfighters to a status rivaling Buffalo Bill Cody's, and arranges a face-off between the Honey and Twice.

"There's very different views of the same book, giving readers an alternate view of the west," Estleman says. "When writing historical fiction, the time and place doesn't exist any longer and you have to research it. It's difficult to pin down the way people spoke, you don't want to use contemporary language for obvious reasons. It's subtle things like that that are harder to pin down."

FAVORITE CHARACTERS

Six of Estleman's western novels feature one of his popular characters, Page Murdock, a deputy U.S. Marshall whom the author describes as a cowboy taming the wild frontier for Harlan A. Blackthorne, a federal judge, who lives by the law while Murdock lives by the gun. The two have what Estleman calls a love/hate relationship.

"Page Murdock is a lawless lawman. He's a killer, but not an evil killer. He makes up his own rules - his own law - as he goes along," Estleman explains.

Estleman, who recently completed a two-year term as the president of the Western Writers of America, is an authority on the American West and criminal history. During his long career, he has received 15 national writing awards, and has been nominated for the Pulitzer Prize, the National Book Award, the Mystery Writers of America Edgar Allan Poe Award, and England's Silver Dagger Award.

This past April, Estleman served as the spring commencement speaker and received an honorary doctorate from Eastern Michigan University (EMU) something he calls "one of the greatest thrills of my life." He earned his bachelor's degree in journalism and English literature at EMU in 1974.

"I only went into journalism to learn my trade and sharpen my skills. I was a good writer but not a particularly good reporter. There are journalists who become novelists. There are novelists who become journalists to pay the bills. I was in the latter category," says Estleman, who has worked the police beat at The Detroit News, the Ann Arbor News, the Ypsilanti Press, and the Dexter Leader.

"I am as good a writer I think I am because of the editing. There are times when I say, 'How dare they edit me!' and then say, 'Damn it, they're right.' I believe talent is something you are born with and skill is something you acquire over time."

MYSTERY NOVELS

The versatile author is just at home writing mysteries as he is Westerns. Drawing upon his time on the police beat and his rich knowledge of Detroit, he created his most famous character, Amos Walker, a cynical and hard-boiled private investigator cut from the same cloth as Raymond Chandler's Philip Marlowe. He describes Walker as a quintessential American hero who lives by his own code.

Estleman's latest mystery novel, featuring Walker in his 15th adventure, Sinister Heights, was released earlier this year. The plot centers around the Detroit automotive industry where a prominent auto executive's young widow hires Walker to find her late husband's illegitimate children.

Also released this year was Something Borrowed, Something Black, his first novel featuring professional hitman Peter Macklin since 1986. The author describes Macklin as an experiment.

"The reason I created Macklin is that I am fascinated with the kind of a killer-for-hire. Most fiction makes killers psychopaths. Macklin is not. He is a character who makes his career out of killing people, yet he has a wife and family but doesn't talk about what he does, he has no confidants. Macklin is an amoral character and it's a challenge not to make him sympathetic but make him interesting enough so people can care about him," Estleman says.

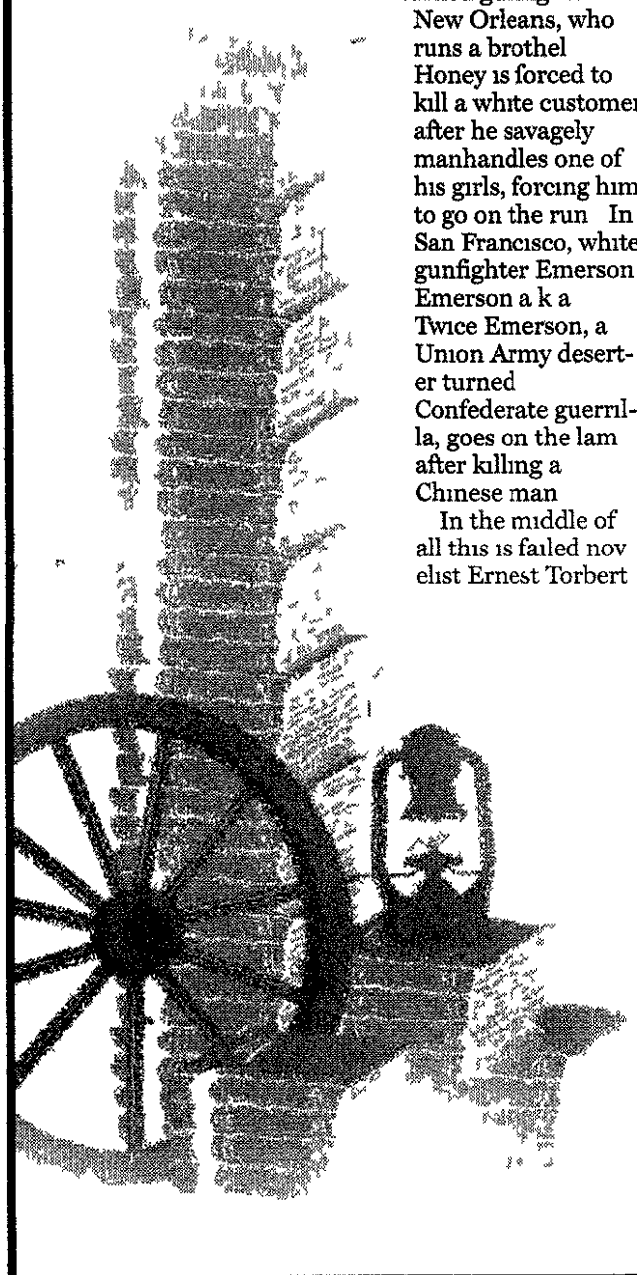

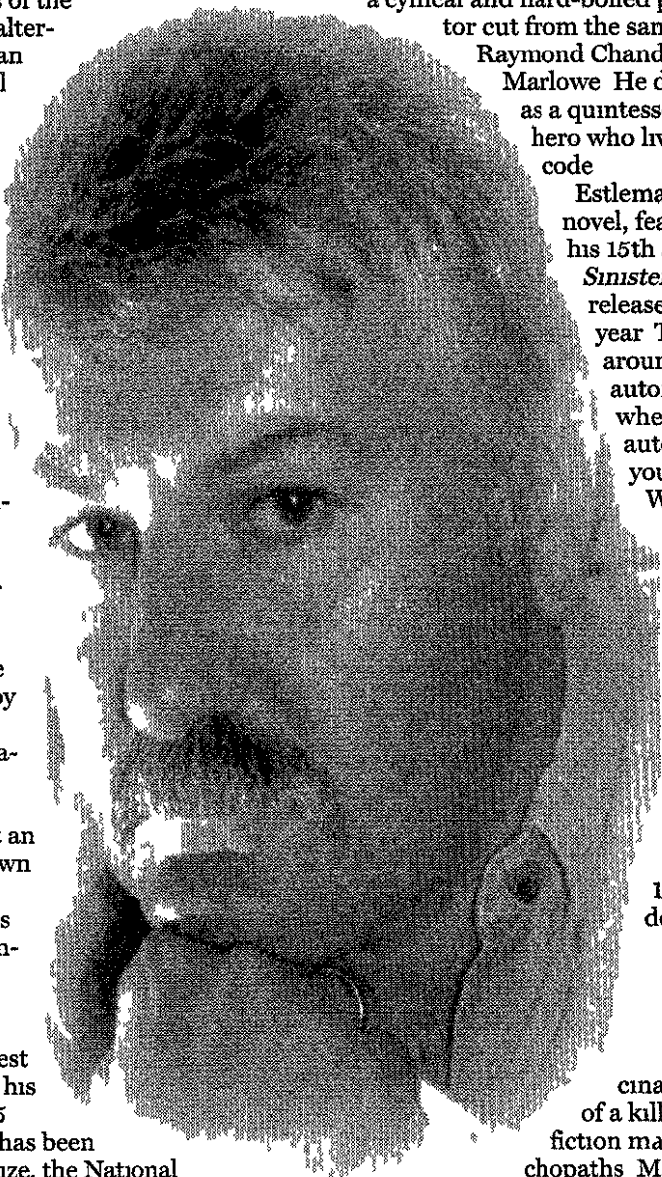

Amos Walker is my foundation and backbone. He allows me to experiment with other characters, such as Peter Macklin. I can always get back to him because I've got a ready and waiting audience," he continues.

Estleman's books have been translated into 23 languages and have received rave reviews from critics and fellow authors alike. He has received acclaim from Elmore Leonard, a New York Times Best-Selling author who lives in Bloomfield Hills.

And he has received plenty of fan mail from his readers, including the late Mel Tormé, a popular jazz singer from the 1940s and 1950s.

"Receiving a letter from my readers thanking me for my books means the world to me," he says. "I've connected with them. It gets me through those rough spots when writing a novel and I'm questioning why I do what I do. That's the best thing about writing."

Be aware of surroundings, detail when shooting photos

There are many places where good pictures can be found, but it is easy to overlook them. Often, they are camouflaged by their surroundings or they need to be looked at from a different angle or in a different light. But if you begin to think in terms of "making photographs," not taking snapshots and begin to look through what I refer to as "square eyeballs," you'll be able to find many terrific photo opportunities.

Simple and apparently uninteresting things can often be the basis of a great shot. It could be a wall, a door, the texture of peeling paint or a rusted piece of farm equipment.

To find good photographs, constant awareness is required. You must learn to really "see" and be able to zero-in and isolate subjects from their surroundings.

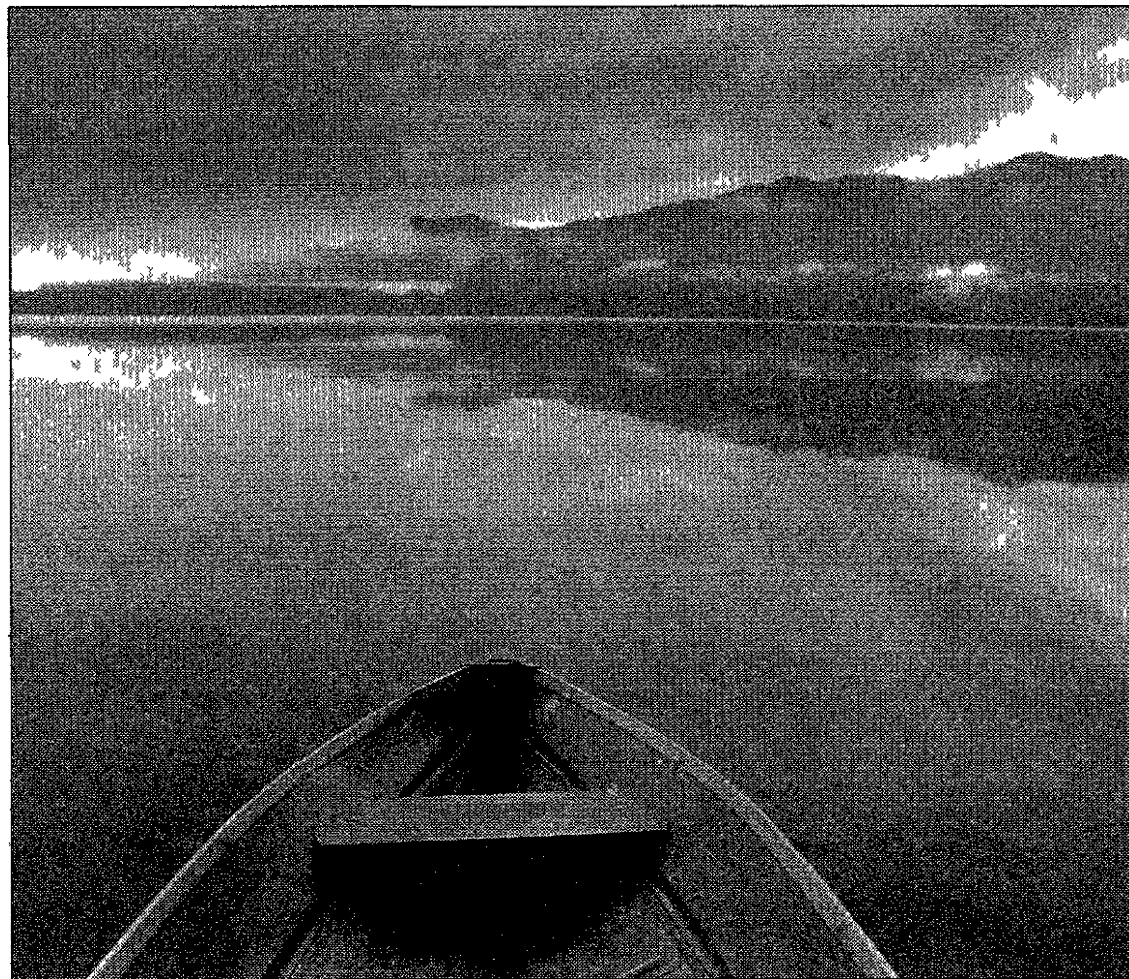

Sometimes a picture is waiting to be taken but may not be apparent from normal eye level. It may need a high or low viewpoint or require a different field of view given by a wide angle or telephoto lens to fit the composition in the frame.

So take time to evaluate the surroundings, look at them selectively. With practice, even the most ordinary places and objects can be made to yield impact-filled images that most people simply overlook.

One of the most picturesque stops on a recent photography workshop to Washington State was Lake Quinault in Olympic National Park. Because it had rained the previous evening, the morning had that terrific "soft, smooth" light that I like so much with fog against the distant mountains. The scene had the makings of strong picture but something was missing. I noticed a boat pulled up on the beach and with the help of a couple of my students, we positioned it heading out into the water. All that was needed was my camera and wide angle lens to capture the photograph shown here.

Monte Nagler "found" this delightful scene on a recent photography workshop to Washington. It was taken at Lake Quinault in Olympic National Park.

Ann Arbor writer tells stories of estrangement

BENDING HEAVEN

by Jessica Francis Kane (Counterpoint $23.00)

BY VICKI DIAZ
CORRESPONDENT

Don't expect any of these eleven, quiet short stories to uplift you in any particular or conventional sense. Don't expect to warm to the characters, who often seem edgy as razors, distant, nearly robotic. Don't expect to be whisked away to colorful places, or to experience grand and glorious adventure.

What you can expect in this new collection written by Ann Arbor native Jessica Francis Kane are minutely observed, eloquently expressed scenes of contemporary life, along with characters who, though often drawn in subtle shades of gray, will persist in haunting you after you've closed the pages of this book.

Estrangement is the theme in every story — estrangement from one's family, from one's spouse, from one's surroundings, from one's work, even from one's self.

And most of the stories center around women, as they struggle to gain a kind of foothold, or fight against a feeling of helplessness.

Evidence of Old Repairs, set in London and Ann Arbor, tells the story of Sarah, a sensitive woman who can't really go back to square one after she discovers the past affair of her husband, Paul.

Her mother was an alcoholic and her grandmother was an alcoholic, and Sarah tends to drown her own sorrow in drinking.

The story is saturated with liquid images — rain, mist, fountains, lakes, tears, drinks, drizzle — that subtly enhance Kane's painterly words. Its opening scene of a London park is a "landscape (that) looked as though it had been drawn overnight in wet ink." A salad the drunken Sarah creates turns into "a soggy confetti." A wet Ann Arbor Spring morphs the daffodil garden "to mud, which splattered up onto the white wall of the garage, and onto the long green daffodil leaves, and finally onto the flowers."

In How to Become a Publicist, we meet a nameless young woman from a Midwestern town, endeavoring to gain a foothold in the New York literary world. As her loving father repaints her old room back home (and her mother suffers a highly serious case of empty nest syndrome), she tries mightily to land a position as an editorial assistant in the Big Apple, ending up, instead, as a neophyte publicist.

Surrounded by what feels like a kind of energetic borderline-insanity or nonsense in this world of pitch and sell where everything must have a "label," she begins to feel severed from reality. Gradually, that banal, blue-and-white room back home takes on a kind of perverse attraction, turning into a symbol of failure at the same time that it offers a haven.

Refuge takes us to a corporate retreat called Potomac

Run, just outside Washington (Potomac Run is "surrounded by a golf course, a man-made lake and the remains of the forest subdued into geometrical shapes, a triangle, a parallelogram.") Here, we follow along as a middle-aged Shelley Dixon, an associate with a prestigious law firm, wrestles with the "loss" of her son (who has gone to live with his father), the failure of her marriage, and her growing alienation from herself and her surroundings.

The Arnold Proof, the sole story that does not feature a female character as its leading player shows us the heart and mind of an aging and brilliant mathematics professor who is perhaps losing his wife and his ability to think and reason.

Exposure is another story of loss and aging. In it, a noted writer, whose husband has left her for a beautiful woman, deeply fears a "photo shoot" to promote her new book.

First Sale is a sensitively told tale — one of the strongest in this collection — of a woman and her young son, as they prepare for a yard sale, in which they will sell off items of their old life (this marriage, too, has failed), and try to begin anew.

Tavis Smiley brings new voice to Detroit public radio

Beginning Monday, Sept. 30, The Tavis Smiley Show from National Public Radio (NPR) will air weekdays from 9-10 a.m. on WDET 101.9 FM, following Morning Edition with Bob Edwards.

The Tavis Smiley Show, a weekday, one-hour magazine, offers intelligent talk, news and ideas.

Smiley's trademark passion and energy fuel his NPR show, which features substantive and provocative discussions, commentary, exclusive interviews (Bill Clinton and Bill Gates have been recent guests) and reports on everything from politics to popular culture.

Tavis Smiley's show is unlike any other on the radio," said WDET Program Director Judy Adams. Tavis is making history on the radio. He offers a perspective, scope and credibility not often found in the media today. His guests and topics aren't always the usual suspects. There's another conversation going on in America, and The Tavis Smiley Show is where to hear it.

"We're proud to offer The Tavis Smiley Show to our listeners," said Adams. The addition of this program helps us to better serve the entire metropolitan Detroit community and provides the audience with a perspective that they can't hear anywhere else."

The Tavis Smiley Show, launched in January 2002, is now heard on nearly 40 stations, reaching both mainstream and African-American audiences. In his first seven months on the air, Smiley interviewed newsmakers and personalities from Bill Cosby to Bill Clinton to Senator John McCain and Halle Berry. His show includes regular guests, including professor Cornel West, who in recent months announced his departure from Harvard for Princeton on Smiley's program, Omar Wasow, technology guru and executive director of blackplanet.com, Michael Eric Dyson, author and University of Pennsylvania professor, and Johnnetta Cole, president of Bennett College.

I'm thrilled to join the morning airwaves on WDET in Detroit, a city that is intricately connected to music, industry and black life in America. I think Detroit listeners will find the many issues and perspectives on my radio show thought-provoking and relevant to their daily lives," said Smiley.

"We cover everything—politics, money, relationships, race, class, culture and more."

If it's being discussed—or better yet, if it's not—we'll be talking about it, and we'll be breaking news.

Accomplished author and broadcaster Tavis Smiley has gained national attention as a smart, lively interviewer. Time magazine selected Smiley as one of America's 50 most promising young leaders while Newsweek profiled him as one of the 20 people changing how Americans get their news, and dubbed him one of the nation's captains of the airwaves. The New York Post screamed "Look out Larry King—here comes Tavis Smiley!"

As the former host of BET Tonight with Tavis Smiley on Black Entertainment Television, Smiley became known as Black America's favorite talk show host, honored with the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) Image Award for Best News, Talk or Information Series for three consecutive years. He is also the recipient of the Mickey Leland Humanitarian Award from the National Association of Minorities in Communications.

Smiley is the author of five books. His new book, Keeping the Faith: Stories of Love, Courage, Healing and Hope from Black America will be in bookstores this month.

Smiley offers political commentary on the Tom Joyner Morning Show and is a contributing editor for USA Weekend magazine. He is also a correspondent for CNN and an ABC-TV special correspondent for Good Morning America and Primetime Thursday.

The Tavis Smiley Show is the result of an ongoing collaboration between NPR and a consortium of African American public radio stations, including WCLK-FM in Atlanta, GA, WNCU-FM in Durham, NC, WJSU in Jackson, MS, and WEAA in Baltimore, MD.

The show's Web presence at npr.org/programs/tavis allows users anywhere in the world to find information on show topics and guests, listen to the latest broadcast, hear archived versions of previous shows and find stations that broadcast the program. Listeners can also access information on The Tavis Smiley Show through the program schedule at wdetfm.org.

Grab your camera and see Michigan's spectacular fall color

Take a drive along the state's coastline, hike a tranquil forest or pedal a mountain bike amid towering hardwoods to see spectacular fall color around the state next month.

Leaves are showing their gold, red and yellow hues now through mid-October in the northern half of the mitten. Look for peak color changes in mid- to lower Michigan now through Halloween.

AAA Michigan has mapped out several routes. Here are suggested drives in the lower peninsula.

MACKINAW

The drive from Mackinaw City south along the west coast of Northern Michigan is a scenic tour of quaint villages and towns. The journey starts on Central Avenue, driving west out of Mackinaw City to Wilderness Park Drive. Turn left and go approximately seven miles southwest to Cecil Bay Road, turn left again and follow to Gill Road. At Gill Road you will turn right, although if you turn left, you will stumble upon "Just a Plain Farm", a scenic 100-acre farm that produces a variety of vegetables and offers hayrides, picnics, parties and u-pick.

Back on Gill Road, head west to Island View Road that follows along the Lake Michigan shoreline to Cross Village. Stop at Legs Inn in Cross Village for a unique dining experience. This is the best place in Northern Michigan for Polish food. Eat in the outdoor garden on a bluff overlooking Lake Michigan or in the one-of-a-kind dining room. Follow M-119 south through "The Tunnel of Trees," a 20-mile

FALL COLOR FACTS

■ Michigan's 18.6 million acres of forest contain nearly 150 species of trees. Hardwoods such as aspen, maple, birch, sumac and oak display some of the most beautiful colors, especially when combined with an evergreen forest.

■ Weather conditions in early September determine the season's color. Sunny days and cool nights create the most brilliant show. Short days cause leaves to stop producing chlorophyll and lose their green color.

■ Look for peak color in the northern lower peninsula now through mid-October, in mid-Michigan from early to mid-October and in southern Michigan from mid- to late October.

drive of winding road through the trees with unforgettable bluff views of Lake Michigan. M-119 follows the coastline through Good Hart and into Harbor Springs. The city of Harbor Springs offers two public beaches. The Zorn Park Beach is a block from downtown on Bay Street and Zoll Street Beach is a favorite for kayakers, wind surfers and sailors. Heading out of town toward Petoskey, traveling on M-119, enjoy the dunes and Petoskey Stone hunting (its Michigan's official stone) at Petoskey State Park. In Petoskey you will find boats, playgrounds, a Historical Society in the old railroad depot, waterfalls, picnic tables, fishing, beautiful views and quiet restful multi-hued shade trees. Return to Mackinaw City on U.S. 31 north.

SLEEPING BEAR DUNES

Sleeping Bear Dunes National Lakeshore and its Pierce Stocking Drive combine a relaxing drive with a strenuous but rewarding climb to maximize the fall color experience in northwest Michigan. From Traverse City, take State Route 72 west to State Route 109, turning north to the National Lakeshore.

After weaving through the woods and dunes along the seven-mile-long Pierce Stocking Drive, stretch your legs and climb the Sleeping Bear Dune. Climb on Route 109 (north) and earn a spectacular view of Lake Michigan and Big and Little Glen Lakes atop the crest of this massive sand dune.

CADILLAC

Cadillac may be renowned for its snowmobiling, but its fall colors are just as brilliant.

The White Pines Trail, the longest rail-trail State Park corridor in Michigan, stretches 92 miles from Comstock Park to Cadillac. The trail is surfaced with gravel and asphalt in some areas, and picnic, camping, lodging and eating facilities are available at intervals along the route. Take an afternoon bike ride to enjoy the colors, or make your trip a little longer and do some camping along the way.

GRAYLING

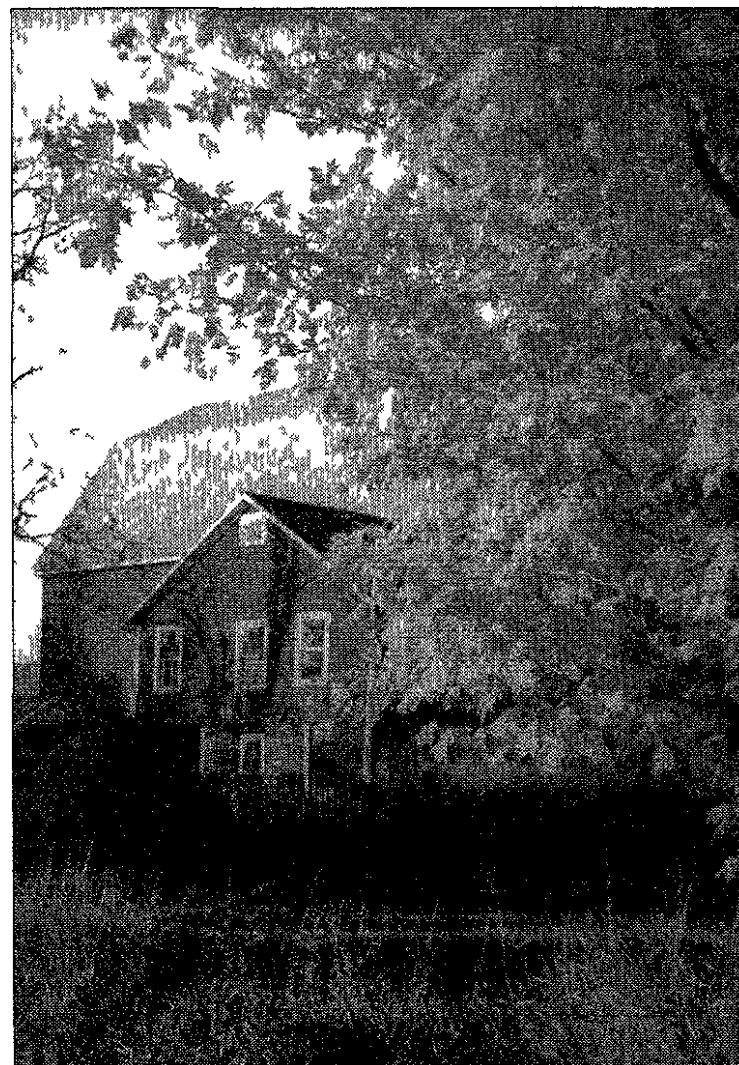

The contrasting evergreen and hardwood forests of Northeast Michigan are spectacular in autumn, and this year's fall foliage promises to be a brilliant show. Nature enthusiasts will enjoy a leisurely drive down back roads, cycling through Hartwick Pines State Park or taking in the riverside colors while canoeing down the world famous AuSable and Manistee Rivers. Local canoe liveries are open, and the weather is still warm enough for a pleasant afternoon on the water.

Another beautiful viewing site is at Lake Margrethe, west of Grayling. Take M-72 west, to McIntyre's Landing Road and follow the state campground signs. There is a picnic area, boat launch and rustic state campground.

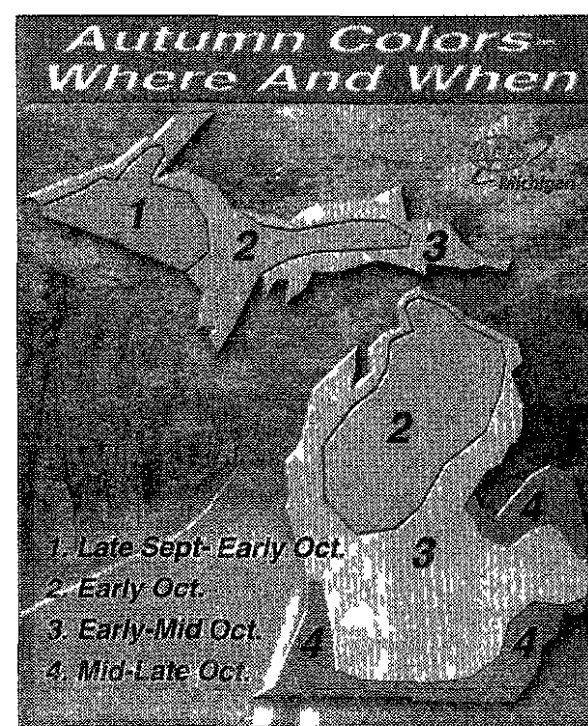

Take M-93 to Hartwick Pines State Park. After touring the park, continue north until M-93 ends at County Road 612. Follow CR-612 west into Frederic.

Fall colors trim the banks of the Au Sable River on the sunrise side of Michigan. Along the southern bank, the River Road National Forest Scenic Byway offers dramatic overlooks along the 22-mile route.

Watch eagles soar over the wooded river valley between Tawas City and Oscoda, following U.S. 23 north along the Lake Huron shore, and take River Road west to Largo Springs where crystal clear natural spring water bubbles to the surface.

Old barns and brilliant foliage make excellent photo subjects against a blue sky.

AAA Michigan map shows when and where to see fall color changes.

Larger homes in Highland contain many amenities

Eight different floor plans – five colonials and three Cape Cods with first floor master – await buyers at Hickory Pond, a planned community in Highland Township.

This little piece of country with good road access to job and entertainment venues is off Hickory Ridge Road between M-59 and Lone Tree Road.

Thirty-one houses, each on an average 1/2-acre lot, will be arranged in a horseshoe configuration with wetlands in the middle.

"When people drive through, they like the layout of the land," said builder Miles Volpe, president of Benchmark Development. "Buyers can get so much more home and value in this area."

"I believe my fit and finish stand out," he added. "I keep high quality in homes. They (visitors) are impressed with the windows I use, amenities I offer. Everyone points out the paint work, trim work."

"The whole package, I think, is much more than they see out there (from competitors)," Volpe said. "I have more hands-on. I schedule everything. People deal directly with me."

Hickory Pond's access to U.S. 23, I-96 and the village of Milford are big draws, too, Volpe said.

"Then there's Kensington Park, golf courses, horse boarding," he added. Base prices range from $314,900 for a colonial of 2,600 square feet with four bedrooms and 2 1/2 baths or a Cape Cod of 2,270 square feet with three bedrooms and 2 1/2 baths to $389,900 for a colonial of 3,340 square feet with four beds and three baths.

All eight plans include as standard features three-car garage, basement, fireplace, first-floor laundry and separate tub and shower in the master.

Wood flooring is in the foyer, hallway and half-baths; ceramic in all full baths; vinyl in the kitchen and laundry and carpeting throughout.

Each home includes a humidifier, 50-gallon water heater, foam seal energy package and

This two-story of 3,300 square feet features four bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths, a two-way fireplace, two access points upstairs and a three-car garage.

two recessed lights.

The kitchen comes with range and dishwasher. Secondary bedrooms have ceiling lights.

Brick and vinyl siding are primary exterior materials. Dimensional shingles are standard.

The sales model, the largest plan at 3,340 square feet, features a living room, formal dining room, great room with volume ceiling and many windows, office or an optional fifth bedroom, kitchen/nook with island and full bath on the main floor.

A two-way fireplace standard in this plan, is between the family room and kitchen/nook. The staircase upstairs has entry points off the foyer and family room. A bridge overlooks the great room and foyer.

Three bedrooms and a full bath are at one end of the hall on the second level. The master with cathedral ceiling, walk-in closet, two-sink vanity with make-up sitting area and compartmentalized toilet is at the other.

Base price is $389,900. The model, as is, runs about $430,000, not including landscaping.

Hickory Pond is serviced by individual water wells and septic systems. It's within the Huron Valley public school boundaries.

The property tax rate is $32.57 per $1,000 of state taxable value, half of sales price for new construction. That means the owners of a $345,000 home there would pay about $5,600 the first year.

The annual maintenance fee is projected at $200. Carol and Bill Rowe purchased a Cape Cod.

"We came out from Farmington," Carol said. "We really like Miles. He's such a good guy, honest. Craftsmanship is beautiful. He let us be very much involved."

The sales office/model at Hickory Pond (248) 887-0980 is open noon to 5 p.m. daily, closed Wednesdays and

Chalet for sale: secure as it can be

(AP) - On the surface, the house built by Bruce Francisco looks like a modest mountain chalet, with a wrap-around porch and a big sunny room to take in the view.

Then look at what lies below. A heavy steel door opens to stairs descending into a cool, silent habitat built within the cylindrical remains of a Cold War relic.

Francisco and his cousin, Gregory Gibbons, converted a former Atlas F missile silo site into a luxury home. Then they tried to sell it on the Internet auction site eBay.

"This represents a unique period of American history," Francisco said.

The silo, which lies in the Adirondack Mountains of upstate New York 25 miles south of the Canadian border, was built when the nation's fears were focused not on terrorism but on the possibility of nuclear war with the Soviet Union.

Atlas F missile silos were constructed around the country in the late 1950s and early 60s, only to be decommissioned when the missile technology became obsolete.

Most were abandoned. Steel salvagers gutted many. At some sites, town highway departments have stashed equipment or stockpiled sand on top of sealed silo doors.

Only a handful of people, like Francisco, have turned them into homes.

"We took the end result of $18 million in government wasted spending (1958 dollars) and turned it into a rare and unique private airport mountain getaway," Francisco and Gibbons state on their Web site (<http://www.silohome.com>).

Francisco said the silo is designed to withstand a nuclear impact, making the home about as secure as one can get.

Each Atlas F site housed an 85-foot-tall intercontinental ballistic missile in a 185-foot-deep, 50-foot-wide, underground cylinder of super-hardened concrete.

Next to that cylinder was a second that housed the launch control center, which is where Francisco and Gibbons put in three bedrooms, baths and a kitchen.

Visitors descend two flights of stairs in a concrete shaft and go through two bank vault-like steel doors. A door opens into a wide cylindrical room with gleaming hardwood floors and a 10-foot-high ceiling.

"The space is silent as a tomb. Nobody would have any trouble sleeping down here," Francisco said.

Converting the aging bunker was no easy task.

The silo and control center were filled with some three million gallons of water and sludge, which had to be pumped out. The 2,000-pound blast doors in the access tunnels were rusted in place.

The laundry area leads to the missile silo. Illuminated by stadium lights, the rusty nine-story framework that once cradled a doomsday missile looks like a science fiction movie set.

Francisco's Web site includes the question: "Does Russia still have this site as a target?"

The answer - "no." The silo home has been on the market for two years.

Bidding in the eBay auction, which ended Wednesday, Sept. 25, started at $2.1 million.

Ed Peden, who runs 20th Century Castles from his silo home in Dover, Kansas, markets similar missile sites as potential homes or industrial facilities. He said he has sold 27.

His Web site, <http://www.missilebases.com>, lists 10 Atlas F sites for sale.

Here are even more ways to save energy around the home

In my last column, I mentioned some of the things a conscientious homeowner can do to save energy and money around the house.

Those included installing a programmable thermostat, changing furnace/air conditioning filters often.

Here are a few more suggestions.

■ Install compact fluorescent lamps in lights that you use more than two hours per day. The energy savings will more than pay for the extra cost of the fluorescent lamps over their lifetime.

An added benefit is that fluorescent lamps last 10 times longer than ordinary light bulbs, so replacement costs are also reduced.

We often install timers on outdoor lights so they automatically go off when our customers don't need them.

■ Look for sources of air leakage from your home.

Air leakage comprises up to 30 percent of a home's overall heating and cooling load. Inexpensive fixes such as installing weather stripping around doors, windows and attic access areas can provide significant energy savings.

■ Check insulation levels and possibly add additional insulation in attics and crawl spaces. Local utilities can help you determine the recommended insulation levels.

Also, check your home's duct work. For homes with forced air heating/cooling systems, seal duct joints with mastic or high-quality UL listed, foil backed tape and insulate ducts in attics and crawl spaces.

■ Consider replacing single-pane windows.

Installing double-pane windows that have high-performance glass such as low-emissivity (low-e) glass filled with gas may help downsize your home's heating and cooling equipment.

Energy-efficient windows help reduce heat loss in winter and heat gain in summer.

■ When buying major appliances, choose energy-efficient models.

I have seen great strides made by manufacturers over the past 15 years improving the performance of refrigerators, dishwashers and clothes washers and dryers.

Read the appliance's EnergyGuide label, as it will provide an estimate of the unit's annual operating costs.

■ Use less hot water. The less hot water you use, the less your water heater has to work. There are a number of ways to accomplish this.

Turn down the water heater's thermostat setting to 115-120°F. Place the water setting on your clothes washer to warm or cold and set your dishwasher on the energy- or water-saver mode.

Buying an energy efficient water heater and installing low-flow faucets and showerheads can also save energy.

■ Even the landscaping in your yard can help to conserve energy.

Deciduous trees planted on the west and south sides of a home help keep the house shaded during the day's peak heating times.

As I tell my customers, however, the easiest way to save energy is to make conservation a habit.

Turn off lights that aren't being used. Take shorter showers. Run clothes and dishwashers with full loads only. All of these small steps can have a big impact on utility bills throughout the year.

Stephen J. Taglione is the immediate past president of the Building Industry Association of Southeastern Michigan. He is also a master builder with nearly 15 years experience in the industry and president of Westminster Abbey Homes LLC in Bingham Farms.

The Building Industry Association sponsors the show, featuring homes from 2,600 to 3,179 square feet and priced $245,900 to $430,000.

Voters also were asked if they plan to buy a new home within the next year and 25 percent indicated yes. The reason for visiting HOMEARAMA was to shop ideas.

FOR AP WEEKLY FEATURES

Though some of us might prefer a faraway vacation destination, many of us would say we're best able to relax at home. And the best-loved room in our homes?

Survey says - our bedrooms. This explains the trend among new home builders to select home plans with master suites that offer a few pampering extras.

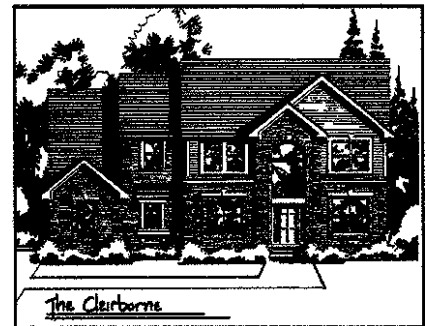

It could be something as elaborate as a spectacular private bath with a whirlpool tub and an oversized shower, or even a feature as simple as a comfortable sitting area. Often subtly distinguished from the suites sleeping area by a coffered ceiling or a showcase window arrangement, the sitting room is the place you will likely find yourself preparing to face the day with your first cup of coffee and the morning paper.

Or, perhaps, this will be your favorite nighttime reading spot. Or both. As a bonus, architects and home designers often equip a sitting room with a fireplace, built-in bookshelves or access to a romantic terrace, making a good thing even better.

Laundry, furnace, sink situated in the garage

The Rutledge (405-18), two stories with 2,096 square feet, has the look of a farmhouse with a full-covered porch in the front.

It has large windows, some with decorative shutters. The facade mixes brick and wood. Once inside, the living room is to the left, a den or guest room to the right.

This living room is designed to be a formal room, separated from the family room by walls. It's meant for entertaining.

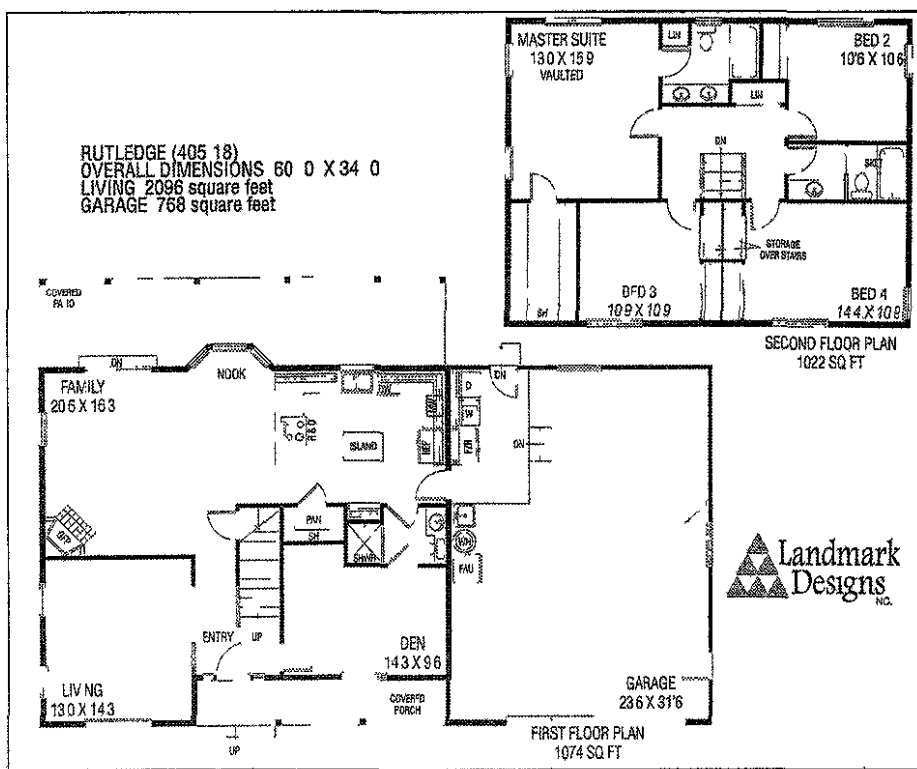

The den/guest room has a full bath with two access doors - one from the den, itself, the other from near the kitchen and garage.

The kitchen is open with an island in the middle. A walk-in pantry is convenient to both the kitchen and garage.

The washer and dryer, water heater, furnace and a sink are in the garage.

The family room has sliding doors opening to a covered patio. A corner fireplace keeps this room warm and cozy in winter. A bay windowed nook is ideal for that morning coffee and newspaper.

All four bedrooms and two baths are upstairs. The master is vaulted with windows on two sides. An elongated closet provides lots of room for clothes. The master has a dual-sink vanity and combination tub/shower.

Oh, how sweet is master suite

FOR AP WEEKLY FEATURES

Though some of us might prefer a faraway vacation destination, many of us would say we're best able to relax at home. And the best-loved room in our homes?

Survey says - our bedrooms. This explains the trend among new home builders to select home plans with master suites that offer a few pampering extras.

It could be something as elaborate as a spectacular private bath with a whirlpool tub and an oversized shower, or even a feature as simple as a comfortable sitting area.

Often subtly distinguished from the suite's sleeping area by a coffered ceiling or a showcase window arrangement, the sitting room is the place you will likely find yourself preparing to face the day with your first cup of coffee and the morning paper.

Or, perhaps, this will be your favorite nighttime reading spot or both.

As a bonus, architects and home designers often equip a sitting room with a fireplace, built-in bookshelves or access to a romantic terrace, making a good thing even better.

Thomas Ervin
Let's Talk About Real Estate

"THE IMPACT OF CONDITION"

How important is condition, anyway? It would seem that the location and asking price of the house are primary and condition secondary. After all, most buyers come in and redecorate to their own tastes. Even if the home is not as clean as possible, most buyers will overlook the cleanliness issue and focus on the features that the house has to offer.

All of the above statements seem to be reasonable enough, but they do miss the point. The fact is that the condition of the house plays a major role in deciding when the house sells and its eventual sales price. Here are the reasons:

IMPACT ON REALTORS
The cleanliness issue greatly affects how Realtors feel about a particular property. If it is clean and well maintained, they will enthusiastically show it to as many potential buyers as possible and they will recommend the property to other agents. If, however, the condition has a negative influence on real estate agents, they will avoid showing it to buyers and will caution other agents to be aware of its condition. The reason agents don't want to show properties in poor condition is their concern about losing the respect and loyalty of their buyers. Buyers want to see homes that are in "move-in" condition and they don't want their time wasted with anything less.

IMPACT ON BUYERS
Everyone chooses their own life-style. Sellers have every right to live in their home in any manner they want. This is one of the rights of home ownership. When the house goes on the market to compete with other homes, however, the rules change. Cleanliness is important from a marketing point-of-view because buyers are more comfortable in clean surroundings and more apt to linger longer. If two properties are equal in every way except cleanliness, buyers will choose the cleaner house every time.

2002 Ford F-150 SuperCrew: Loaded to the limit with quality

2002 FORD F-150 SUPERCREW TRUCK | Vehicle class: Pick up Truck, Power 5.4-liter Triton V-8 engine, Mileage 14 city/17 highway, Where built: Kansas City, MO, Price as tested $34,545

I'm getting to the point that I would rather be in a truck than a passenger car. You have a better vantage point knowing exactly what's ahead of you in traffic. An you sure can carry around a lot of stuff.

But one thing you generally need on a pickup truck is running boards--and that was the most-missed option on the 2002 Ford F-150 SuperCrew truck. Maybe because I'm just not used to not having running boards on a truck.

But that was the only annoyance I could find on this gorgeous truck. Both inside and out, all you'll find are conveniences, comforts and good looks.

Ford has a bunch of different ways to present the F-150: Regular Cab or SuperCab or SuperCrew, Styleside or Flareside.

There are also a ton of trim series on the F-150--XL, XLT and Lariat. The SuperCrew is only available as an XLT or Lariat version, however. Then you've got choices on whether you want a short-or long-wheel base model, or a 6.5-or-8-foot box. SuperCrew has a 5.5-foot box, no options.

Not enough choices yet? Do you want 4x2 drive systems on that truck? Then you've got color choices and a host of equipment packages and options to choose from. Cool new colors this year are True Blue and Dark Shadow Grey.

The F-150 series can be outfitted with a 4.2-liter V-6, a 4.6-liter single overhead cam Triton V-8 or a 5.4-liter single-overhead-cam Triton V-8. They net 202, 231 and 260 horsepower respectively.

Now, with all the options out of the way, let's talk about the SuperCrew Flareside I drove. It was a 4x4 139-inch wheelbase Flareside outfitted with the 5.4-liter Triton V-8 with an electronic 4-speed automatic transmission with overdrive.

The sticker told me it would get 14 mpg in the city and 17 mpg on the highway. When I filled it up and got out the old pencil and paper, I found it got 18 mpg for highway driving. And depending on your driving habits and what's on the truck, you potentially can get up to 20mpg on the highway.

The SuperCrew driven had a standard equipment list as long as a hardened criminal's rap sheet and an optional equipment list that numbered under 10 and included goodies like the 5.4-liter engine, overhead console, skid plates, cargo cage, pucker up box extender, cloth captain's chairs, heated front seats, power driver's seat and an in-vehicle entertainment center that had my children screaming with delight.

Mom and dad screamed with delight as well with the wonderful quiet trips where children were seated behind us as silent as church mice. The earphones had to be plugged into the system, however. But the system had a very high-resolution screen. The clarity of the video was really great.

The video cassette player is located in the center storage console and comes with a remote that was extremely "cute" and little. My girls complained it was too little for their fingers. They would like to see it larger and have buttons to press, rather than having tiny little bumps. They also had a hard time remembering to point it at the center console instead of the screen.

And even though the VCP was in the console, I still had enough room to slip my purse (which isn't small) inside. Even though you wouldn't think so, there's plenty of room in there.

On the interior of the cab, everything is logically placed and easy to operate and understand. The overdrive button is on the transmission stalk and for some reason, I kept hitting it. Never figured out how I was doing it. It was even more troubling because it never happens on my Expedition that's outfitted with the exact same button on the same stalk. Quite puzzling.

You want to see some of the standard equipment on the SuperCrew? How about polished aluminum 16-inch wheels, power everything, anti-lock brakes, electronic shift-on-the-fly, 25-gallon fuel tank, 60/40 split rear bench seat, electronic speed control, tilt steering wheel, AM/FM/CD with premium sound, overhead console with compass and outdoor temperature, rear seat reading lamps and rear child seat tethers.

On the outside, you'll enjoy four full-size doors for easy entry and exit, rear privacy glass, front tow hooks, fog lamp, locking and removable tail gate, trailer tow wiring and box tie hooks.

Safety issues are addressed with dual front air bags, anti-theft system and roadside assistance. All for just under $35,000. A bit pricey? Nah, it's just loaded to the limit. And didn't have running boards.

It's a beautiful truck, both inside and out. You better get yourself one before they're all gone. Write Anne Fracassa at avanti1054@aol.com
