Preserving slice of history

Growing fife, drum corps carries banner

BY BRAD KADRICH
STAFF WRITER

Katie Mahoney has cousins who live in Canton, and she remembers coming to watch them perform with the Plymouth Fife & Drum Corps.

After watching several performances, Mahoney — now a senior at Wayne Memorial High School — got bit by the fife bug. That was nearly six years ago and Mahoney is now one of the corps' senior members. "I would go to watch their performances, go to parades and see how much fun they were having," said Mahoney, a Romulus resident. "I was, like, 'Hey, I should try this.'"

Jim Predhomme got bitten by the bug even bigger. A corps member from 1978-83, Predhomme figured he'd left it behind when he left high school for the University of Michigan, where he played in the marching band. While there, he heard the corps was looking for a drum instructor, and he couldn't resist returning to a group he felt had given him so much.

"He's been there ever since. 'I love doing it,'" said Predhomme, named the corps' director in 1991. "I like exposing kids to the thrill of performing, teaching them how to be good musicians."

The Plymouth Fife & Drum Corps

was established in 1971 by Mark and Carol Petty with a dual purpose: Preserving the country's musical heritage through the art of fife and drumming while enriching the musical experience of the 50 odd youngsters who are members.

According to the corps Web site, fife and drumming was used during times of war to relay commands to soldiers, directing movements of units, as well as to provide inspiration and marching rhythm. The shrillness of the fifes and pounding of the drums could be heard over the sounds of battle.

The corps' membership is made up of kids between 12 and 18 years old from Plymouth and many surrounding communities. The corps performs live at parades (it's a hit at Plymouth's own Fourth of July parade), patriotic celebrations, concerts, cultural affairs and other civic

Softball chief charged

Harry Hill Jr., longtime president of the Canton Community Junior Baseball/Softball Association, was arraigned in 35th District Court Friday on a charge of embezzlement, a 10-year felony, for allegedly taking funds from the association in excess of $20,000.

A not-guilty plea was entered for Hill, 53, and he was released on a $20,000 personal bond. A preliminary exam is scheduled for March 5.

The three-month long investigation began last November when police received a tip that Hill might allegedly have been taking money from the group, which last year had about 3,700 participants in summer and fall leagues.

Canton Police Detective Sgt. Todd Mutchler said while under Michigan law the charge is for embezzling funds in excess of $20,000, Hill is suspected of taking more than $100,000 from January through November 2003.

After the video arraignment, Hill's attorney, Paul J. Dillon, called the charges a "tragedy."

"I think it's a tragedy that someone who has given so much to this organization would be accused of something like this," Dillon said.

Mr. Hill has put his heart and soul into this organization. Mr. Hill is a highly compensated individual in the sales profession. He has no need to embezzle money."

Mutchler declined to speculate on motive.

Rich Rohn, a vice president of the association, said late Friday the group was preparing a statement but was not prepared to release it at that time. Rohn said the association's main concern is for the kids.

The CCJBSA serves students in the Plymouth-Canton school district, which includes Canton, Plymouth and Plymouth Township.

The organization made headlines about six years ago when a decision was made to change the name from Plymouth Canton Junior Baseball League to Canton Community Junior Baseball and Softball Association as part of the move to the Canton Softball Center.

Several Plymouth residents and parents were upset by deleting Plymouth from the name.

However, Rohn said the name change was merely cosmetic.

"We're still officially the Plymouth Canton Junior Baseball League doing business as Canton Community Junior Baseball and Softball Association."

City trims its road projects for 2004

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth city commissioners decided to proceed with only half of the 2004 road projects proposed by City Manager Paul Snocock.

This summer, Ross Street between McKinley and Main streets will undergo water main and sewer repairs, as well as rebuilding of the roadway.

Commissioners decided not to proceed with similar repairs on Byron Street between Main and Ross.

"We wanted to focus our time, energy and dollars on areas of most need," said Commissioner Michele Potter. "With 21 water main breaks in the past 10 years on Ross Street, we felt that was a need."

"Byron is still in good shape, and not a problem," she said.

The Ross Street project is estimated to cost $1 million, with approximately $600,000 paid from the remaining $4.3 million in street construction bonds leftover from $12 million authorized by voters in 1996.

The remainder will come from the city's water and sewer fund.

The Byron Street project would have cost another $1 million.

Last year, commissioners approved $1.1 million to repair portions of McKinley, Linden, Elm, Evergreen and Woodland Place in Hough Park.

At Monday's meeting, commissioners also approved $600,000 in additional bonds to cover the city's share of the Sheldon Road underpass project, which is $503,000.

According to Mark Christiansen, finance director, the $1.2 million in bonds to cover the Ross Street and underpass projects will cost a homeowner with a house valued at $200,000 approximately $40 a year.

Salem High rocks at national pom contest, goes in style

BY BRAD KADRICH
STAFF WRITER

For the second straight year, the Salem Rockettes did something they'd never done before at the National Dance Team Championships in Orlando, Fla.

Last year, the squad reached the finals of the pom competition for the first time.

This year, they duplicated that feat and added another first: Reaching the finals in the jazz category. And they performed well in both categories, matching last year's 12th-place finish in a 50-team pom field, and coming in 10th of 26 teams in the jazz category.

"The girls are really pumped about that," 10th-year coach Aileen Balatico said. "We've never done that (reach the finals in two events). We were hoping we would, but in the back of your mind, you don't want to give the girls too much reassurance that would happen, so they'd be let down if they didn't."

The performances continued a trend of the Rockettes doing well in Orlando. They finished third in the kick competition in 2000 before reaching the pom finals last year. Two more finals appearances this year have Balatico and the Rockettes thinking about coming more often.

"I think we're just used to going down to nationals now,

A 10th-place finish in the jazz competition helped the Rockettes do something they'd never done at the National Team Dance Championships: Reach the finals in two events.

and we're more comfortable with it," Balatico said. "We're looking into going every year, depending on the talent we have."

The Rockettes qualified for the national competition with a first-place performance — using an original routine — at a summer camp sponsored by Universal Dance Association, which also sponsors the national competition.

Upon their arrival in Orlando, the goal was to reach the finals in each event. The Rockettes chose to enter the jazz competition rather than the kick category based on the kind of team they took to Florida.

"We had a very technical dance team this year," Balatico said. "They're very strong at the basic fundamentals of dance, so we thought we'd give it a try and see what happens."

To get the 22 girls and three coaches to Florida, the team used fund-raisers like a golf outing and their annual kids' clinics and variety show to cover air fare. The girls were then given individual fund-raisers — such as cookie dough or poinsettias — to try to finance expenses.

There also some 50 parents who made the trip, something that was a big benefit to the team, according to its coach.

"We had a lot of parent support down there with us," Balatico said. "I think each girl knowing her parents are there helps them get through this really stressful weekend."

Plymouth bank preparing for its next big move

New Liberty takes family operation to Ann Arbor Road

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER

When Mike Weaver and Bill Graham began seeking a charter for New Liberty Bank, they had a chance for the proverbial Work is an occasional series looking at local businesses

When Mike Weaver and Bill Graham began seeking a charter for New Liberty Bank, they had a chance for the proverbial money and run. "We were approached by a couple of different banks when we were raising our capital," recalls Graham, vice president and chief financial officer of New Liberty. "They liked what we had done in the Plymouth market, and were willing to give us all the capital we would ever need. Except, they would have the principal ownership in it."

"We literally could have sold out before we opened," added Weaver, president and chief executive officer. "They wanted to come in, buy and assume our positions."

Both Graham, with 40 years in banking and finance, and Weaver, a 24-year banking veteran, had worked for the so called big banks, and knew their hearts belonged at a community bank.

Big banks are rate driven, not relationship driven, said Weaver. "So, when the decision came along to sell out before we got started, it really wasn't much of a decision."

With that behind them, New Liberty eventually bought out the assets of Peoples State Bank and made plans for construction of a new building on Ann Arbor Road, just east of Sheldon, to replace the strip mall bank on Main Street.

"We hope to be in our new headquarters sometime in June," said Graham. "When it's all done, it will look like a combination Georgian and Federal styles. It will cost us in excess of $4 million."

The 20,000-square-foot building will have three levels and three drive-up lanes. When it opens, approximately half the second floor will be leased.

"The interior is a very traditional style," said Weaver. "It will have an open visual presence so the customer will know we do more than just handle business at the teller window." "We want people to come into our lobby," added Graham. "We don't want to hit them with charges to talk to a teller. We don't want them isolated in grocery stores dealing with ATMs. It's all about building relationships."

And, it will be more accommodating to families," promises Weaver, who is expecting his ninth child. "We know a lot of customers with kids, and we've often heard the complaints from mothers and fathers taking kids into banks. There will be a children's play area near the waiting area."

It will be three years in March since New Liberty received its charter. We have 180 shareholders almost all who are local, said Weaver. "And, most of our (22) employees are local. We have a lot of faces that are recognizable in town because everyone is involved and known throughout the community."

"When we talk about hiring anybody, we want to make sure they really fit in," he said. "That's really important to us." Weaver points out the financial stability of New Liberty, which has generated about $52 million in assets, $125 million in outstanding gross loans, and another $25 million in commercial loans.

At one time, it appeared New Liberty would lease space in the Mayflower Centre in downtown Plymouth for the bank's headquarters.

"We both like the idea of being downtown," said Graham. "Looking back on it, the lack of parking probably would have generated a lot of issues for us. We probably would have generated a lot of business right downtown, but lost a lot of business because we weren't on a high traffic road like Ann Arbor Road."

Weaver said New Liberty still plans to have a downtown Plymouth feel to it.

"We're going to leave our current offices open for the interim and see how it does after the new building opens," he said. "We hope we can make improvements to it, if the landlord will let us."

Weaver said eventually New Liberty will branch out into other areas, possibly Canton, Northville, Novi and South Lyon.

"We're looking at other property sites right now," he said. "Maybe by the end of the year we'll have a couple of sites locked up."

Bill Graham points out details under construction in the first floor interior of New Liberty Bank's new Ann Arbor Road building.

Gerald Ramsey, 71, of Northville will be arraigned next month on a charge of indecent exposure stemming from a Feb. 12 incident at 35th District Court.

Court Administrator Kerry Erdman said Ramsey was meeting with a female probation officer on a previous charge of indecent exposure when he unzipped his pants and fondled himself.

Ramsey was reportedly taken away and ticketed, and will face arraignment on the charge March 2 in 35th District Court.

events

The corps has also traveled extensively, including a performance at the Statue of Liberty in New York in 2000, less than a year before the terrorist attacks of 9/11

"We get a lot of our best comments when we're not in Plymouth," said Predhomme, who firmly believes the corps has a strong ambassadorial role. "We carry the name of Plymouth all over the fife and drum world, because of our discipline, especially for such a young corps."

Many of the group's 51 members have some musical experience when they walk through the door, but many are brand new to music and simply want to learn and belong, according to Patty Riggio, the corps' publicity director.

"We have people walk through the door who are green to music," she said. "It works out because they rehearse every Monday from October through April, working often one-on-one with instructors."

Katlyn Campbell, a 12-year-old seventh-grader at East Middle School, already had some musical background when she joined the corps last fall. Katlyn, who plays alto sax in East's band, got a scholarship last year to the prestigious Blue Lake Fine Arts camp.

She joined the corps for the fun — and the challenge.

"The instructors expect a lot out of you," said Katlyn, who practices the fife at least 15 minutes every day. "It challenges you, and you get better quickly."

It's that kind of attitude that pleases Predhomme.

"Kids see us performing in the community and they want to be a part of it," Predhomme

Corps eyes fund-raiser to finance uniform purchase

BY BRAD KADRICH
STAFF WRITER

The Plymouth Fife & Drum Corps generally replaces its uniforms bit by bit, piece by piece, a little at a time.

But a recent surge in recruits has the corps scrambling for new uniforms in bulk, and busily raising money to do it.

Using some of the traditional methods — bottle drives, selling candy, a peanut sale with the Kiwanis Club — the corps hopes to raise some $25,000 to purchase new uniforms.

It's been quite a few years since we got new uniforms, said Patty Riggio, the corps public relations director. "Since our membership went up, we just needed quantity this year. It's a massive purchase."

The group, made up of youngsters between 12 and 18 years old, experienced a huge jump in members, from 34 to 51, making it one of the largest corps of its kind, according to director Jim Predhomme.

With a heavy performance schedule between April and October, the corps is looking to replace the old clothing.

The group will likely use a different fund-raising method each month. "We'll be raising money well into May," Riggio said.

Anyone wishing to help the Plymouth Fife & Drum Corps can send a check made out to PFDC to P.O. Box 70 1776 Plymouth MI 48170. For more information call Riggio at (734) 464-3738.

Historical museum preserves disappearing Daisy artifacts

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Historical Museum Director Beth Stewart said it's been hard to watch the old Daisy Air Rifle factory on Union Street disappear.

However, Stewart vowed to "keep the place alive" as volunteers helped salvage a fire-place, flooring, paneling, doors and just about anything else they could get their hands on that will be used to construct a Daisy exhibit at the museum.

"We took whatever we wanted," said John Schmidt of Plymouth, who helped collect the prized pieces of history. "We have more stuff than we'll ever use."

"We got a variety of things, mostly architectural because there weren't many artifacts left," said Stewart, who noted many of the pieces date back to 1900.

The 121-year old building has been torn down in favor of Daisy Square, a condominium, row house and townhouse project being constructed by Joseph Freed & Associates of Wheeling, Ill. However, before tearing down everything but the facade of the old factory building, the developer allowed Stewart time to collect whatever she could.

The main thing I wanted was the floor from the assembly room area, said Stewart. It's awesome because it's got all the BBs embedded in it.

A section of the floor has already been installed in a basement exhibit at the museum.

"When the guys cut the floor into sections, and the circular saw hits the BBs, it's like a projectile," she said. "They go through a lot of saw blades."

A salvaged fireplace and the model of the first BB gun produced at Daisy, which ended production in 1958, will also be on display.

Stewart said some of the BB-riddled floor is left over, and said she will most likely sell pieces of it as a fund-raiser in the near future.

Visitors to the museum can see paneling and crown moldings from Daisy in the Main Street reception area. Dave Van Lente of Canton helped reclaim the pieces and fit them on the entrance walls.

"We had to be real careful because the wood is so dry it splits and breaks," said Van Lente. "It was seven feet high and 10 feet long. We brought it out in one unit."

Van Lente said they were especially careful with the crown molding, because it was hand cut.

"We tried to keep it intact as much as possible," he said, "but it was hard to get down because back then they didn't use coated nails, and they were really stuck in there."

"The other hardest part was when we got the crown molding back to the museum, and trying to figure out how it went back together," he said. "To see workmanship like that, you just don't see it today."

A fireplace and other artifacts from the period help make the reception area a warm place to begin the tour.

"It really helps set the tone for the entire museum," said Stewart.

Democrats underestimate Terri Land at their peril

When you talk to Terri Lynn Land, who just finished her first year as Michigan secretary of state, you get the distinct impression that she doesn't like her job. She absolutely, positively, loves it. "Oh, I'm running again, yeah!" she says with an enthusiastic little laugh. What makes that declaration remarkable is that her next election is not in November, but nearly three years away.

Fact is, she is a no-nonsense type of woman, and doesn't see any point in being coy. Besides, "I really want to finish this project," she adds.

Jack Lessenberry

What she means by that is a complete revamping and updating of Michigan's voting technology. That is happening, thanks largely to nearly $100 million the state is getting from the federal government under HAVA, the Help American Vote Act, passed in the wake of the mess left by the punch-card and butterfly ballot hurricane in Florida.

Republicans are often portrayed as not being eager to spark massive turnouts, especially among reluctant voters who, if they do show up, are likely to vote Democratic. But though Land is a 45-year-old mom from suburban Grand Rapids, she is something of a technology wonk, and bubbles with enthusiasm as she talks about equipment that makes it possible for the blind to vote in secret.

There is a lot more that we have to get started on. I encourage everyone to vote, she said. When people vote we get the best possible decision.

Her department, which oversees vehicle and driver licensing and elections, is the oldest cabinet post in the state — and the only one that touches the life of virtually every Michigander. Mitten staters can go their whole lives without encountering a governor, or, if they behave themselves, an attorney general. But if you ever want to vote or drive a car, you become one of Terri Land's customers. And she is big on customer service.

"When I was Kent County clerk, I sometimes worked the counter, because people expected that," she said, noting accurately that Grand Rapids has evolved into a big city whose residents still expect small-town service. During her first year in office, she visited every one of the state's 173 branch offices. And yes, she worked the counter in a few.

Traditionally, Michigan politicians have regarded secretary of state as either a stepping stone or a retirement home. From 1955 to 1995, the office had only two inhabitants, one of whom was finally ousted when it was clear his faculties were slipping.

Terri Land may be the first to have wanted the job for its own merits. "After I had been (Kent County) clerk for a year, I saw that if I really wanted to make any changes they would have to be statewide." That was in 1995, just after her fellow Republican Candice Miller had won the job, and so she knew she'd have to bide her time.

Fortunately, she wouldn't have to wait decades. Michigan's constitution had been changed to limit any secretary of state to two four-year terms. Land had a tough battle for her party's nomination in 2002, and when she finally won it, her chances looked bleak. Jennifer Granholm, the Democratic nominee for governor, seemed to be headed for a landslide win. Land's opponent, Detroit lawyer Melvin Butch Hollowell, was smart, well connected and charismatic. Yet she had a few things going for her, namely money.

Her father and husband have a prosperous development business, and the family put well over $1 million in her campaign. Land's pleasant blond features gazed at the state from a forest of billboards, and a flurry of TV ads sealed the deal. On Election Day, she won a 57 percent landslide, running far ahead of Granholm, the woman who got all the press attention.

"What was funny in that race was all the people who would come up and tell me they hoped I became governor," she said, breaking out again into her frequent and infectious laugh. Though she is ambitious, she has done something that both suppressed her ego and saved the taxpayers' money. She is the first SOS in memory not to have ordered large expensive signs with her name erected in every branch office.

Not that she isn't ambitious. She has been hooked on politics since her hometown hero, Gerald Ford, suddenly became an accidental president and was locked in a tight race with Jimmy Carter in 1976. Still in high school, Terri traveled across the country as a "scatter blitzer" urging people to vote for Ford.

That November, she cried in her Hope College dorm when her hero lost a squeaker. For him, it was over. For Terri, it was just starting.

Off the record, few Democrats expect to have much chance to beat Land in 2006. The interesting question is what will she run for after that? U.S. Senate in 2008? Governor in 2010? What is clear is that — as she will cheerfully tell you — she will run for something. "I'll only be in my 50s, and that's still pretty young," she says. If Democrats underestimate her, they do so at their peril.

Gene, Dean and 'Fog of War' stir up memories and doubts

We were 'clean for Gene' Eugene McCarthy emerged in late 1967 as the candidate willing to take on a "war president." Students who opposed the escalating war in Vietnam, but hadn't turned to the radical left, saw McCarthy as their political savior.

Hugh Gallagher

While others sat on their hands, the scholarly, poetry-loving senator from Minnesota risked all to tell LBJ he was wrong and the war had to end.

We wore blue buttons. We dressed mainstream and didn't "do drugs." We were "clean for Gene" so that his message wasn't confused with radicalism. We were the mainstream opposition to a president who had lost his way.

The memories of that time come flooding back in the wake of Howard Dean's rise and collapse and the release of Errol Morris' documentary on former Defense Secretary Robert McNamara, The Fog of War.

Dean, too, was the favorite son of liberal college students. He raised his voice first and loudest against the war in Iraq and against George W. Bush's economic policies. While sitting senators voted for the war, Dean said no. Dean used the Internet to tap into young political activists who have not yet been turned away from the system, just as McCarthy had gone to the campuses to recruit an army of young people who still believed in the American political system but not in the direction it was taking.

McCarthy took the greater risk. He was standing in opposition to his own party's president, a president who just four years before had calmed a nation in the wake of a presidential assassination. He was a president widely admired by liberals for his strong push for civil rights and anti-poverty programs. But guns and butter were not what people wanted when they elected Lyndon Johnson in a landslide in 1964.

McCarthy was also taking on his friend, political mentor and fellow Minnesotan Hubert Humphrey. The muted vice president, who had once been the happy warrior of American liberalism, was stoically standing behind his boss, even as personal doubts began to form.

McCarthy's strong second-place finish behind the sitting president in the New Hampshire primary was all LBJ needed to know that his time was up. Even if a majority of Americans still expressed support for the war, the majority of Democrats did not.

McCarthy, like Dean, may have been the voice crying in the wilderness, but he was not to be the leading Democratic candidate. Just as John Kerry has emerged to take the race from Dean as the anti-war candidate, Robert Kennedy jumped in to assume the leadership of anti-war Democrats in 1968. Kennedy and Johnson had been locked in a grudge match with each other dating back to before Kennedy's brother chose Johnson as his running mate.

Of course, Kennedy would become another victim of an assassin's bullet on the night of his victory in the California primary. Humphrey and the old school would take the nomination and lose the election. In retrospect, McCarthy would not have been a good president. His college professor manner wasn't matched with the steel nerve of a Woodrow Wilson. He was happier teaching and writing poetry than he would have been as the beleaguered leader of the free world.

But it often takes a McCarthy or a Dean, whose mannerisms became grating as the campaign wore on, to stand up and tell the emperor he has no clothes, while others are willing to be and fawn even as we roll on into disaster.

To understand just what a disaster it was, see Fog of War. Morris conducted hours of interviews with McNamara, a complex, infuriating man. These interviews are woven through with images of the war in Vietnam. It is clear that McNamara and Johnson both knew they were fighting a lost cause and still, as Pete Seeger once sang, "the big fool said to push on."

McNamara's doubts grew as he was secretary of defense and as he became the face of the war for many protesters. Over time, he came to doubt the rationale for the war and the way in which the war was conducted. Yet, he seems to have no sense of guilt for the more than 50,000 American dead and hundreds of thousands of Vietnamese dead. He "enjoyed" his time as secretary of defense. A peculiar man.

Only time will tell how much these times are like those.

As the philosopher George Santayana said, "Those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it."

Sheriff overhauls booking system

For years, the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, which is Michigan's largest county jailer, has had an antiquated inmate booking system that relied on Polaroid mug shots, handwritten cards and sparse computer data to track the thousands of inmates that pass through its doors each year.

Today, the system is undergoing a major overhaul that will provide for a searchable database of information and photos that will be a tremendous intelligence-sharing tool for local law enforcement agencies, according to Sheriff Warren Evans. The county has agreements with most communities in Wayne County, including Detroit, to participate in the new system.

"With this new system, a huge intelligence hole in the local law enforcement community is being plugged," Evans said. "This will bring the sheriff's department into the information age and on par with other major agencies throughout the state and nation."

Evans said that the new centralized $152,000 grant-funded system would have multiple benefits, including:

- Establishes foundation for countywide criminal database that will allow each participating agency to submit booking data themselves and retrieve data entered by other agencies. An inmate booked by the Detroit or Livonia police department, for example, will be entering the photos and information into the same database as the Sheriff's Department.

- The ability to conduct digital police lineups. Police agencies can either see a digital line up, or select inmates out of the system for a live lineup based on their physical characteristics.

- More reliable identification of inmates and reduced likelihood of mix ups. With the previous system, inmates could more easily switch ID wristbands and some have attempted to escape. The new bands have photos and bar codes printed on them and are virtually impossible to remove without destroying them.

Over the past several weeks, the department has been implementing its new digital booking system at its Hamtramck jail, which houses sentenced non-violent offenders.

Beginning this week, the downtown jails, which house pretrial felons, began using the new system.

Each year, approximately 40,000 individuals are booked into the county's three jails - enough to sell out Comerica Park. Once all new and current inmates are entered into the system, the department will have access to a growing pool of critical information that will include digital photos of scars, tattoos and other distinguishing marks that police can use for identification in other cases.

"Unfortunately, we know many of the people who pass through our doors will commit other crimes later on," Evans said. "This new system will make available to other agencies vast amounts of data and images they can use to positively identify someone they are holding in connection with a new crime."

If someone who was previously booked into the county jail is ever suspected in another crime, the county can print an instant "Wanted" poster that includes a mug shot, photos of identifying marks and other information, which can be distributed quickly to other agencies, the media and the public.

Although the county's existing computer Inmate Booking System contains general descriptive information about each inmate, it does not include photographs and other descriptive information. Until just recently the only photo records of inmates who have passed through the Wayne County jail were thumbnail-sized Polaroid photos stapled to a small yellow card that was filled out by hand.

Due to space constraints, the ID cards would be boxed up and sent to a storage facility, making it nearly impossible to retrieve an individual card or photo when needed. The new system will provide a permanent digital record of the inmate that will be retrievable at the click of a mouse.

Evans said that he is expected additional grant funding to be approved to pay for a new fingerprint verification system that will further streamline the booking process.

Eventually, we plan to be at a stage where an inmate walking into the jail will place two fingers on a device and all the information available on him or her - identifying data, criminal history and photos - will be accessible immediately, Evans said.

DEQ plans public outreach meeting in Dearborn

CC swamped

Birmingham Brother Rice dominated the swim meet from start to finish and most places in between on Thursday night and came away with a 143-38 win over Catholic Central

"Our kids swam well, but we were low in numbers because the kids missed practice," said CC coach Jeff Baker. "It was a struggle, but we're improving. We had quite a few good swims out of our kids. Ben Spisak swam the 500 freestyle and the 200 for the first time and swam well."

The Warriors took all the firsts and most of the seconds as CC (0-6, 0-3 Catholic) took just three seconds. Chris Banas was second in the 200 freestyle (1:58.62), Tyler Flood was second in diving (177.05) and Dave Morrow was second in the 100 breaststroke (1:18.25).

Plymouth wins school's 1st title

It was only a matter of time before Plymouth High School won some kind of title.

The wrestling team earned its spot into the record books on Wednesday night as the Wildcats stopped Redford Thurston and Dearborn Heights Crestwood to earn a Division II district title.

"The kids are really excited," said Plymouth coach Sam Amine as his team improved to 10-5 overall. "They wrestled their cans off. We didn't have the toughest competition (winning 11 matches by void), but our program is really a junior high school program."

The district title puts the Wildcats into Wednesday's regional at Allen Park against Gibraltar Carlson with the winner facing either Tecumseh or Dearborn Heights Annapolis in the finals.

"If we wrestled the way we wrestled to win the district, a lot of things can happen," said Amine. "A lot of teams could overlook us because we're a new program, but we have nothing to lose and everything to gain."

The wins came easy, as far as the score was concerned. The Wildcats beat Thurston in the semifinal, 66-12, and stopped Crestwood in the final, 71-6.

"My athletic director heard people saying that we won an easy district," said Amine, "and that's great. But remember that in two years when these freshmen and sophomores are juniors and seniors. We've had to teach them the basics all year, nothing fancy. But to win this district, the kids really caught fire."

"All of the things they didn't do during the year, they did in the district. I'm very happy for them."

Gotcha

Salem's Jeremy Walker works on Wayne's Nick Orr to win the heavyweight match during Thursday's district semifinal. While Walker won the match by pinning Orr in 3:24, the Zebras got the last word with a 40-31 win over Salem. See the results on page B3.

WL Western runs past Chiefs, 66-52

The Canton boys basketball team got caught flat-footed Friday night losing to host Walled Lake Western, 66-52.

Western, one of the hottest teams of late in the Western Lakes Activities Association with five-straight wins, improves to 9-7 overall and 4-2 in the Western Division.

Canton slips to 10-7 and 3-3. "They (Western) get you in a track meet and we did not get back on defense, especially early in the game," said Canton coach Charlie Paye, whose team trailed 38-30 at halftime. "We also made 23 turnovers, which is uncharacteristic for us."

"We made a bit of a run in the third quarter where we got them to turn the ball over, but then we turned it over right back. We couldn't capitalize on those."

A great deal of that is due to the

BASKETBALL

Warriors changing their scheme over the last two months.

"I don't want to say we're like Loyola Marymount of 1990," said Western coach Rex Stanczak, referring to the highest-scoring team in NCAA history, "but we're close. We had to change our offensive philosophy because we're so small. We fast break on all makes and misses and went to a zone-trapping defense and I am normally a man-to-man guy."

"We started 0-4, but since Christmas when we made the change, we're 9-3." Sophomore guard Denard Branch tallied 15 of his game-high 18 points in the opening half for the Warriors.

Senior forward Brian Kowaleski and junior guard Anthony Acho both chipped in with 14. Senior forward D.J. Bridges scored 13 to lead the Chiefs. Junior guard Andy Cortellini added 12, while junior Julian Smith had 10. Senior center Brad Wadmann grabbed seven rebounds.

Canton went to the foul line just seven times, making three. Western was 12-of-17 from the stripe.

AUBURN HILLS OAKLAND CHRISTIAN 55, PLYMOUTH CHRISTIAN 53: A 23-10 scoring edge in the final eight minutes Thursday enabled host Oakland Christian to rally for MIAC Blue Division victory against Plymouth Christian.

The win moved the Lancers to 5-3 in league play and 9-7 overall. Plymouth Christian fell to 12-7 overall.

Travis Serra topped the winners with 17 points and six assists. Aaron Cibrowski paced Plymouth Christian with 18 points.

Ocelot men leave WCCC speechless in 90-67 win

What can a coach say?

Schoolcraft College's men's basketball team used Wednesday's game against Wayne County CC as little more than a practice. The Ocelots worked on their defense and their fast break, with all but one player on the roster getting into the game.

And it didn't seem to matter who was on the court, SC outscored the Wildcats by 12 points (48-36) in the first half and by 11 (42-31) in the second, all resulting in a 90-67 rout in an Eastern Conference game played at SC.

The Ocelots will be one of the top two seeds in the Eastern Conference in this week's MCCA Tournament.

So in a game in which the outcome never seemed in doubt, what can be gained?

"A lot," answered SC assistant coach Fred Cofield. "That (Wayne) team plays very aggressively. The score was not indicative of the kind of game it was. We've got to rebound our own boards."

"Defense was the difference. They've got some athletes and we held them to 27 percent shooting."

That, indeed, was the decisive factor in the game. SC connected on 38-of-79 floor shots from the floor (48.1 percent), Wayne was 21-of-76 (27.6 percent), including just 4-of-22 on three-pointers (18.2 percent).

Two areas in which the Wildcats did outplay SC were on the boards -- they had a 55-49 advantage, with a whopping 26-15 margin on the offensive glass -- and at the free-throw line. Wayne was 21-of-37 (56.8 percent) to the Ocelots' 10-of-19 (52.6 percent).

But the numbers can be somewhat deceiving, considering the outcome never seemed in doubt. The Wildcats led twice in the game -- at 2-0 and 5-3. Following Marc Williams' three-pointer with 17:39 left in the first half, SC went on a 9-0 run, five of those points scored by Anton Palmer.

Over the next six minutes, the Ocelots would outscore Wayne 12-5 to take a 24-12 lead, their advantage would never be less than 10 the rest of the game, although the Wildcats did manage to put together a bit of a run to end the half (14-9), trimming a 17-point deficit to 12.

Canton icers blank Warriors

Solid goaltending and forechecking carried Canton to a 3-0 boys hockey victory Friday over host Walled Lake Western at the Lakeland Arena.

The Chiefs, winners of four of their last five, are 7-12-2 overall and 2-3 in the Western Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Tony Hylko, who made 14 saves, posted the shutout.

"We got some decent goaltending and forced a lot of turnovers," said Canton coach Jim Wheaton, whose team unloaded on Western for 36 shots.

Reece McCabe's short-handed, unassisted goal in the opening period proved to be the game-winner.

Garrett Hyman added an unassisted goal in the second period and Brett Baker capped the scoring in the final period with a goal assisted by Nick Leadford and Hyman.

Spartans ice Salem

Livonia Stevenson built a 4-0 lead through two periods Friday en route to a 5-2 victory over host Salem at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

The Spartans improved to 13-5-4 overall and 5-1-1 in the Lakes Division of the Western-Lakes Activities Association.

Salem drops to 11-9-2 and 4-4. Adam Stoner scored a pair of goals and added two assists for the victorious Spartans. Dave Kubert and Jimmy Nawrocki each added a goal and one assist, while Brent Medlen tallied his first career goal.

Sean Sachau also chipped in with two assists.

Salem scored twice in the final period -- Aaron Cheesman from Andy Thackaberry and John Maurer, and Kyle Emmons unassisted.

Ryan Dennett made 19 saves in goal.

Madonna women fall, 76-63

The Madonna University women's basketball team came up short Wednesday night against the Lady Warriors of Indiana Institute of Technology in a 76-63 loss at Fort Wayne.

The Crusaders, 10-18 overall and 6-6 in the Wolverine Hoosier Athletic Conference, got off to a slow start, trailing 33-20 at halftime.

Madonna also committed a total of 31 turnovers.

Madonna was led by Courtney Rehbine and Jackie Pingston, both with 15 points. Marwa Ayoub added 12 for the Crusaders.

Indiana Tech's LeShanoa Conwell led the Lady Warriors with 18 points followed by DeNisha Gray (13), Michelle

BASKETBALL

Quinn (12) and Sharan Shepherd (10).

The victory brings the Lady Warriors record to 15-12 overall, 4-7 in the WHAC.

Crusader men falter

The Madonna University men's basketball team couldn't get it done Wednesday when they hosted the Indiana Institute of Technology, falling to the Warriors, 94-72.

MU falls to 10-18 overall and 4-9 in the WHAC. The Crusaders bench was outscored, 42-20.

Despite a solid effort from Dan Kurtinat, who had a game-high 24 points, the Crusaders made just 40.3 percent of their field goal attempts.

Chris Behrns was the only other MU player to score in double figures with 12. Chad Nadoln had nine points and nine rebounds for MU, which trailed 45-33 at halftime.

The Warriors, 23-5 overall and 9-2 in the WHAC, spread it around with five players reaching double digits led by Kendrick Cornelius with 17.

Detonio Hawkins and JuJuan Cooley both added 16 points and seven assists each. Luke McKenna finished with 15 points, game high 12 rebounds and four blocks. Chris Goings contributed 14 points.

match play with single eliminations down to eight players added to the eight seeded bowlers on Friday, March 19.

On Saturday, March 20, the event shifts to Eastern Michigan University's Convocation Center for the Super 16 (best 3-out-of-5 elimination) cutting down to the final elimination round to the four finalists.

At 12:30 p.m. Sunday, March 21, in Ypsilanti, ESPN will televise live the finals with a record-tying $120,000 will go to the champion.

This is the final event of the PBAs Fall/Winter season.

I hope to see a lot of bowling enthusiasts come on in for the pro-am qualifying rounds and match-play at Taylor," said Erin Dobbins, general manager of Taylor Lanes. "And we are really excited about having the final qualifying and TV finals in Ypsi."

The Convocation Center is located at Hewitt Street and Huron River Drive.

Dobbins will also be handing out discounted entry fees and forms from 6-8 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 25, at Super Bowl Lanes in Canton.

You can also obtain admission tickets from her for any event including the finals.

Because of the large television audience, this becomes a powerful showcase for the rest of the country.

Check out your local grocer for a selection for a great price on the pack age of Banquet frozen meals, offer valid through Aug. 31.

This is not an advertisement for the product, although I did purchase a turkey dinner for one, and it was pretty good.

The offer is a printed coupon right on front of the carton, and carries the Strike Ten logo, the promotional and marketing arm of the American Bowling Congress.

Lena likes to bake brownies for her friends, the school bus drivers.

Her brownies always turn out so hard that they would bounce off the floor. But now because the bus drivers' bowling team is in first place, she bakes them a brownie in the size and shape of a bowling ball, fingerholes and all.

If you follow the comic strips in the dailies, you already know that Ed Crankshaft grabs it and says, "Amazing! It looks like a real bowling ball!" then holds it and says, "hey this feels pretty good."

Teammate Rocky asks him "Are you actually going to bowl with the brownies that Lena baked into a bowling ball?"

Crankshaft replies "Why not? What could it hurt?"

The game begins and he is on his sixth strike in a row as he winds up with a 300 game.

The lane man comes over to congratulate him and asks "Is that finish baked on there?"

"Actually," Crankshaft replies, "the whole thing is baked."

So now he is thinking "With that new ball of mine, I can rule the world" except that as he returns to the table where his buddies are sitting where they have sliced up the brownie ball and eating it up in celebration of his 300 game.

Now that we have already put Dagwood Bumstead in the Greater Detroit Bowling Hall of Fame, how about another candidate from the comics whose favorite pastimes are bowling and knocking over curbside mailboxes with his school bus?

Al Harrison is a resident of Livonia and a director of the Greater Detroit Bowling Association. He can be phoned at (248) 477-1839 or e-mail: tenpin@sbcbglobal.net

Shamrock wrestlers take district title

It's been a season of struggle for Catholic Central's wrestling team

But while they've taken a different path to get there, the Shamrocks find themselves in the same place they were last year - headed to the regionals

The Shamrocks, now 11-11 overall, have a good chance to go as far as they did last year, drawing 8-13 Oak Park in Wednesday's regional semifinal at Royal Oak Kimball

Things would be a little tougher in the finals. CC would face either Roseville - a team that beat it in last year's regional final and took a 42-24 win earlier this season - or longtime nemesis Dearborn Fordson, a team that the Shamrocks beat in last year's regional semi and is 28-4 this year

CC opened with a 42-22 semifinal win over Livonia Franklin, while Redford Union had a 51-20 win over Southfield

In the finals, the Shamrocks started quick and held off the Panthers in the end for a 39-32 win

The Shamrocks, now 11-11 overall, have a good chance to go as far as they did last year.

The match started at 160 pounds and we spotted them a 23-0 lead,' said RU coach Russ Swinson 'They are so tough in the upper weights and our strength is in the lower weights'

The Panthers battled back, however, and had cut the lead to 33-32 heading into the final match at 152. But CC's Brad Bartram ended RU's chances by pinning Scott Marley in 1:45 for the win

'All we needed was one more break,' said Swinson 'We knew it would come down to the last couple of matches and they just got the better of it today'

RU, which finished at 15-6, stopped Southfield on the strength of six voids, accounting for 36 points

'We lost four of the eight matches we wrestled,' said Swinson 'I think the kids were looking to the finals and came out kind of flat because they knew they had that match won'

The Shamrocks meanwhile

started off against the Patriots with four pins in the first six matches to take an early lead they never gave up

Wayne wins district

Wayne Memorial brought its 'A' game to the mats Thursday night, scoring a dramatic 36-33 victory over rival Westland John Glenn, while claiming its first Division I team dual championship since 1997

Wayne, 13-9 overall, avenges a 41-26 setback to the Rockets back on Feb. 10 and sends the Zebras into the regional semifinals 5:30 p.m. Wednesday against host Temperance Bedford

Glenn the Observerland Invitational and Western Lakes

Activities Association champion, bows out at 29-5 overall

The Rockets built an early 17-6 lead, but Wayne rallied and clinched the victory when 145-pounder Chris McGlone earned five points with a technical fall victory over Greg Wacker, 19-4

Wayne advanced to the final with a 40-31 win over WLAA foe Salem The Rockets, meanwhile, rolled past Canton in the other semifinal, 62-12

'We had two really tough dual meets,' Wayne interim coach Morgan Mullins said 'Glenn beat us earlier this year. This was huge for us especially all we've been through. The kids really pulled together and I'm proud of them'

The key moment came at 112 pounds when Jason Crothers scored a 14-1 major decision over Glenn's Rowdy Glasgow, the WLAA runner-up

'Rowdy pinned Jason in the dual meet and placed above him at the league (WLAA),' Mullins said 'That was the swing match we needed. It was the turning point'

It had been a tumultuous month for the Wayne program, which witnessed the firing of its coach Tony Venturini last month along with having its top wrestler suspended for a week because of a disciplinary matter

It was just great wrestling here at home Mullins said 'We're here now. We were pumped up'

Whalers win 3rd straight

The Plymouth Whalers extended their winning streak on the strength of their special teams to three games Friday with a 5-2 victory over the visiting Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds.

The Whalers opened up the scoring at the halfway mark of the first period with a power-play tally by winger Vaclav Meidl on an assist by Jonas Fiedler. It would remain 1-0 Whalers until Matt Puntureri's short-handed goal at the 1:53 mark of the second period tied the game at one apiece.

Just over one minute later, Fiedler scored on assists from Ryan Ramsay and John Vigilante to put Plymouth ahead 2-1. Ramsay struck again on a well-executed power-play goal fed by linemates Vigilante and Fiedler at 9:40 in the second. The Whalers would increase the lead to 4-1 on a goal by Brett Mahon, assisted by Ramsay and Vigilante, at 19:13 in the second. Puntureri would score his second of the game at 6:05 of the third to cut the Whalers' lead by one. Ramsay would collect his second power-play goal at 9:03 of the third to give the Whalers the insurance they needed to skate to a 5-2 victory improving their record to 26-21-9-3 in the Ontario Hockey League. The Greyhounds' record drops to 26-30-3-1.

OCELOTS

If they had hoped to build on that in the second half, SC quickly dashed those plans by outscoring them 18-3 in the first 7:15 of the half.

Four Ocelots reached double-figures in scoring, led by Palmer with 17 points along with 10 rebounds and three blocked shots. Derrick Ponder finished with 16 points, five rebounds, three assists and two steals. Ricky Morgan had 16 points and five assists, and Ryan Baumgartner had 14 points, five assists and six steals. Marcus Johnson added five points, nine boards, four assists and two blocks. For the Wildcats, Curtis Tillmon totaled 17 points, Williams had 13 points and nine rebounds, and Ricky Henderson had 10 points, 11 boards and three blocked shots.

Just who the Ocelots would meet in the state tournament was uncertain, depending on the outcome of Saturday's games.

for Stevenson, while Salem counterpart Joe Moore stopped 21.

The game turned sour in the latter stages of the final period when punches were thrown. Three players were given game misconducts and will miss the next scheduled game.

On Wednesday, Stevenson travels to Canton to face the Chiefs at the Arctic Edge, while Salem goes to the Arctic Coliseum to play Saline.

Canton trims Carlson

In a non-league game Wednesday at the Arctic Edge, the host Chiefs edged Gibraltar

Carlson, 4-3, on Mike Stewart's hat trick.

Canton led 2-0 after one period on Stewart's two goals.

The Chiefs scored again in the second on Matt Oliver's goal assisted Pat Davison and Kyle Tollison. Carlson countered with a goal from Brandon Atkinson.

In the third period, Carlsons Ryan Pitts scored to cut the deficit to 3-2, but Stewart notched his hat trick on assists from Oliver and Reece McCabe. The Marauders' Atkinson picked up his second goal to pull his team to within one.

Chris Garrett was in goal for Canton.

"I'm trying to get all my goalies game time so we can be ready for the playoffs," Canton coach Jim Wheaton said.

Wayne CCC takes 1st by stopping SC

Someone has to rise to the occasion. When the game's on the line, someone has to step up and make the play. Schoolcraft College's women's basketball team, playing its biggest game of its regular season Wednesday at home against Wayne County CC, needed just that.

The Ocelots had to have someone step forward and make a play if they were going to earn the top spot in the Eastern Conference and the No. 1 seed in the state tournament that accompanies it. Which also means a first-round bye.

But it didn't happen. Too many mistakes, too few free throws — and, ultimately, not enough points as the Wildcats prevailed 72-67.

Wayne, which played one final conference game Saturday against Mott CC, improved to 20-4 overall and 13-2 in the conference with the victory. Henry Ford CC, SC's scheduled opponent on Saturday, was forced to forfeit the game, giving the Ocelots a 19-7 final overall regular-season record and a 13-3 conference mark.

Although the two teams could tie for the title (depending on Wayne's game against Mott), the Wildcats earn the tiebreaker by virtue of their two wins over SC.

Unfortunately our guards didn't play so good, a disappointed SC coach Karen Lafata said. "This just kicks us in the butt."

The Ocelots had their chances, but just couldn't convert. A basket by the Ocelots Crystal Pittman with 14:38 left in the second half knotted the game at 48-48.

But the next 4:20 was decisive, consecutive 3-pointers by Wayne's Britni Cooper, Deanna Jennings and Sierra Harlan were the key components in a 14-2 Wildcat run that boosted their lead to 62-50.

SC never caught up. The Ocelots did have their chances, to be sure. In the final 10:10 of the game, they were a pitiful 9-of-19 at the free-throw line. For the game, they finished 11-of-26 at the stripe (42.3 percent), which ruined their decent shooting performance from the field: 28-of-63 (44.4 percent).

Wayne had seven 3-pointers in the game, SC was 0-for-7. And while the 'Cats were just 25-of-71 from the field (35.2 percent), they did make 15-of-26 free throws (57.6 percent).

The big player in all of this for Wayne was, ironically, the smallest on the court — Harlan, the Wildcats' point guard who is listed at a mere 5-foot-1 (she looks smaller). Both teams had an abundance of turnovers (26 each), and Harlan did have eight, but she also scored a game-high 19 points, hitting 7-of-15 floor shots (2-of-3 from the three-point line), dished out seven assists, had seven rebounds and made two steals.

"Their point guard (was the difference)," said Lafata. "She beat us the last time."

In the two teams' first meeting, Harlan hit the game-winning shot in the final seconds

On Wednesday she did something similar. With time running out in the first half and Wayne up by a point, her shot was deflected right back to her. Her follow-up went in at the buzzer, capping a 6-0 Wildcat run in the final minute of the half to give them a 40-37 lead.

Although the Ocelots kept it close through most of the second half, they never did recapture the lead. One reason was the loss of one of their top scorers and rebounder, India Monteiro, to foul trouble in the first four minutes of the game. She did not return until the second half, finishing with just four points (1-of-5 floor shooting), nine rebounds and six turnovers.

SC was paced by Tiffani Pattilo, Tara Charles (from Redford Bishop Borgess) and Sara Tyree, with 12 points, Charles also had three steals. Takara Tuff added nine.

The Wildcats also got 15 points and three steals from Cooper, 13 points from Sabra Wimberly and 11 points, eight boards and four steals from Deanna Jennings.

The difference, according to Wayne coach Jeffrey Carter, was attitude. "We were more aggressive," he said. "We kept the pressure on and didn't back it off any."

The conference title was the first in Wayne CCC history, Carter said, and it's the team's first-ever 20-win season. But they're not done yet.

"Our goal, Carter said, "is to get to Kansas City and win the national championship."

Lofty ambitions, to be certain.

Schoolcraft's Tara Charles looks for daylight in Wednesday's loss to Wayne County CC.

From Barney to Shania

My oldest daughter has always loved music. When she was a baby her beautiful blue eyes would watch me in wide-eyed wonder whenever I sang to her. I would sing whatever I could think of because I knew she enjoyed it so much — lullabies Blackbird by the Beatles, Christmas carols no matter what time of year it was, My Favorite Things and the song that I christened as my "very special" song for her I'll There Was You.

As a toddler she was mesmerized by that big purple dinosaur and would sing and dance to every Barney song ever recorded. We would sing together whenever we had to drive somewhere — she in her car seat kicking her legs behind me, me hoping nobody was watching or hearing me sing whenever we stopped for a traffic light.

"I love you, you love me. We're a happy family." Now just a short seven years later, our melodious second grader has graduated from Kindermusik to Kids Bop. Not only does she hum and sing all day long and occasionally whistle too, but she's convinced she is Shania Twain.

Let's go girls, the little Shania sings in tandem with the little Shania on the stereo to living room stage. Her self choreographed dance routine is high energy entertainment featuring splits on the hardwood floor and more jumps on and off the furniture.

That don't impress me much. Other times she switches from pop/country and goes into a rock star mode donning sunglasses or cheap plastic head phones and singing in a nasally voice that only she thinks is cool.

What a girl wants, what a girl needs. I sigh as I watch our little American Idol sing her heart out and propel herself into the air again. She sings with such pure joy and lack of self-consciousness. I think her love for music is great of course, and I'm trying to fuel that passion with piano lessons.

But when you're a 7-year-old Shania wannabe, clearly it's more fun to sing to an imaginary audience than to practice scales on the piano.

"Man! I feel like a woman. It's just that I miss the days of hearing her sing simple and sweet little tunes like Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star or The Bear Went Over the Mountain. But her musical tastes are expanding as she grows up, and all I can do is make sure she's listening to G or PG lyrics — tell her to turn the music down, make her practice the piano and watch her with pride from the wings.

But every once in a while, I still sing my song for her, grateful that she still wants me to.

There were bells on a hill. But I never heard them ringing. No, I never heard them at all. 'Til there was you.

Program helps kids find own fine arts skills

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER

Four-year-olds in the Plymouth-Canton Schools' Early Childhood Program are getting a chance to find out if they could become the next Michaelangelo or Vincent van Gogh.

As part of a program in conjunction with the Plymouth Community Arts Council, students get a chance to learn about famous artists from the past, and have fun at play stations to show off their fine art skills.

"We try to have a mini art museum and have them understand what artists do," said Nancy McNamara, who has been conducting the program for four years, "whether it's sculpture, music and dancing, painting, etching."

In one of the preschool classrooms at Hulsing Elementary, Elaine Julhan reads a book to preschoolers, telling about different kinds of artists, and points out what each is doing.

"Here is an artist that blows glass. It gets very hot," she said. "This artist is making jewelry."

After learning about the different forms of art, the 4-year-olds get a chance to work at various stations, whether it be painting, working with Play dough, creating with blocks or working as a docent at an art museum set up in the corner.

"You can't touch because you might break something," as docent Peter Eyad reminds his fellow preschoolers about museum etiquette. "You can only look with your eyes."

Across the room, Jay Wadley paints his impression of a Claude Monet garden.

"I like painting because you can put in on the wall at home," he said.

"Art is an expression of yourself, and we want the children to have a sense of expression of themselves," said McNamara. "What you feel like inside and imagine in your head you can put in a medium in some form."

We want them to express the process of art, whether it's building a structure with blocks or making a picture that represents something to them," she said.

The art program for preschoolers is a chance for kids to learn that art isn't just painting with a brush on an easel.

"Kids do art every day, and this helps them see the connection with the artists," said Tina Dennison, a teacher in the PLUS Preschool program. "Art can be anything, and we're opening their minds and letting them know they can do it, too."

That may be lying on your back under a table to paint the Sistine Chapel, just like Michaelangelo, or throwing paint at a wall to make a portrait like Jackson Pollock.

"They look at it, study it and make a picture," said McNamara. "We're interested in them experiencing the process, not so much what the end product is."

"I'm not going to tell any of these children that what they did is not exactly what they saw," she said. "The language of art goes beyond the boundaries of language."

Four-year-old Deontz Whatley of Canton works on making a replica of a 'Vincent's' painting about flowers.

Four-year-old Hailey Pawsey of Canton (front) draws on her back under a desk at Hulsing Elementary, while 4-year-old Grant Trotman of Canton goes about his own work.

Leslie Greeneisen, the art education coordinator at the Plymouth Community Arts Council, said the program "is art appreciation, art history and an enrichment program, all in one."

And, while the three-year program is geared to the elementary schools in the Plymouth-Canton district, Greeneisen said preschoolers can get a lot out of it, too.

"At that age, with a little bit of information they get and retain, they can tell about an artist and painting because they've experienced it," she said.

"It's all about exposure and experience," added Greeneisen. "If they're not given the opportunity to experience the arts, they won't know what they're missing. But, they're missing a lot because art adds so much to life."

Greeneisen adds, "Kids really do get an appreciation to the arts, and have opinions about it. That's what makes it really fun."

The Early Child Department will be opening preschool classrooms at Fiegel, Hoben and Hulsing elementary schools, as well as Canton High School, 6:30-8:30 p.m. Thursday, March 11.

Families will be able to visit the classrooms, meet the teachers and talk with parents about the preschool programs.

Church organist rings up 40 years of musical service

BY DIANE GALE ANDREASSI
CORRESPONDENT

In her 40 years as church organist and minister of music, Patricia Knorp figures she has played some 25,000 Masses, 450 funerals and 200 weddings.

While the numbers are impressive, friends say her biggest accomplishments are the way she touches peoples' lives with her music.

Knorp began the Valentones, a choir and bell ringer group performing locally and around the world with parishioners from St. Edith, St. Genevieve and St. Michael's in Livonia, St. Kenneth in Plymouth Township, St. Damian in Westland, St. Valentine and Our Lady of Loretto in Redford, St. Hugh in Dearborn, and Sacred Heart in Dearborn. Some of the members jokingly call themselves the Ding-a-lings.

Ed Burger, a Valentone member, admires Knorp's professionalism.

Patricia Knorp, music director at St. Damian Catholic Church in Westland, rehearses with the choir. The choir includes members from St. Kenneth's in Plymouth Township.

"She deals with a lot of people and she's the most even-tempered person I've ever seen," he said.

After saying Mass Monday morning at St. Valentine Catholic Church in Redford, the Rev. James Hayes, 91, flipped back the pages of four decades when he recalled how Knorp, whose maiden name was English, was in 10th grade when she began playing the organ at St. Michael's in Pontiac, where he served as pastor.

Knorp performed at two morning Masses before school and was often called out of class for funerals.

"I have nothing but praise for Pat," Hayes said. "She's always been a good friend and is ready to help wherever she can. The only thing I have against her is that she never did teach me to sing."

Carol Olesky, a Valentone, describes Knorp as extraordinarily generous and musically talented.

The Valentones play at nursing homes, hospitals and special events throughout the year.

"We all love her — that's why we follow her around," said Stephanie Toth, a Valentone.

Knorp currently performs at St. Valentine Church during morning Mass and is music director at St. Damian's, playing weekend Masses, weddings, funerals and overseeing the church's adult and children choirs, as well as St. Damian's handbell choir.

She managed juggling her church work while teaching 18 piano students from her home.

"I'm in church an awful lot and I feel more at home at church than I do any place," she said. "It makes you feel closer to God and helps you put this life in proper perspective. You meet an awful lot of nice people."

Knorp attributes much of her long career to the piano lessons she began in first grade. After high school, she attended Mercy College in Detroit, where she met her husband, John, her biggest promoter and transporter of the massive handbell equipment. They have four children and eight grandchildren.

"I certainly know how happy music makes people," Knorp says. "The Lord has truly blessed me."

Magic Moments winners enjoy day on the town

Jeanne Louks felt like she was in a movie on Valentine's Day. As winner of the Observer Newspapers Magic Moments contest, she and husband, Jeff, enjoyed a Detroit Red Wings game followed by dinner at George and Harry's in Dearborn where the Treblesome quartet from the Wayne Chapter of the Barbershop Harmony Society serenaded them with a singing valentine. Before hand, Jeanne used a $200 gift card from Murray's Jewelry in Redford to purchase a Red Wings necklace and heart-shaped bracelet.

"It was the first time in 16 or 17 years we spent the entire day together without any interruptions," said Jeanne Louks. "I said to my husband, this only happens in movies. It's something I won't forget. We didn't get home until 3 a.m. I gave Jeff $100 in a card that I won at Bingo the night before. Afterwards we went to the casino and won $400."

The quartet had a good time as well.

"It was fun," said Gary Simon who arranged for Treblesome to donate their services. The group delivered 48 singing valentines Friday-Saturday, Feb. 13-14 in locations such as Livonia City Hall.

Even though Valentine's Day is over until next year, they're not about to quit singing anytime soon. As members of the Wayne Chapter of the Barbershop Harmony Society, they will present two performances of "Harmony Dreams" 3 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Saturday, March 6, at Sacred Heart Byzantine Catholic Church Activities Building, 29125 Six Mile, east of Middlebelt, Livonia.

Tickets are $12 for adults, $10 students and seniors. There will be an afterglow following the evening performance. Tickets are $5. To order, call (734) 453-0574 or send e-mail to rschuessle@aol.com.

The chapter's Renaissance Chorus will perform along with special guest quartet, the young and exciting Party of Four.

Star Struck

(Feb. 22-Feb. 25)
By Dennis Fairchild

ARIES (March 21-April 20)
Take one day at a time and refuse to be hurried or sidetracked by people who are incapable of sharing your vision. Others may think you are setting unrealistic targets, but experience has taught you that the dividing line between dreams and reality is determined by self belief.

TAURUS (April 21-May 21)
Movement and change are two words that spring to mind when looking at your solar chart, both in the physical sense and on a spiritual level. And if you're forced to choose between them now, don't be afraid to follow the path that leads you deeper into yourself.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21)
Refuse to be sidetracked by someone whose intentions are far from clear. A difficult astro aspect may bring out the rebel in you now, but you would be wise to keep your goals clearly in view. Stick to what you know and who you know and you'll stay out of trouble.

CANCER (June 22-July 23)
You seem to be experiencing a lot of arguments and hassle over a financial or business matter at the moment and cannot understand why others are hedging their bets. However, what comes to light this week will at least force others to come clean. MoonChild.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)
It is sometimes better to say too little than too much, and this is one of those times. The Sun in Aquarius may be making you more adventurous than usual, but it would be a mistake to let others know the extent of your ambitions and secret plans. Shhhh!

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)
You cannot be expected to shoulder the blame for other people's failures or failings. Nor should you allow anyone to take advantage of your generosity or goodwill. There's nothing more important at the moment than your belief in yourself. kiddo! Be strong, be you!

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23)
As upset as you may feel about the actions of a loved one, there are compelling reasons to ignore the slight and circumstance. With peaceable Venus now opposite your birth sign, it's important to resolve things without embarrassment. Play with care and you'll keep your shirt.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
The time has come to demand straight answers to some vital financial questions. You've watched from the sidelines as the situation did its thing (translation: deteriorated) and now it's up to you to take control. Just make sure you've left yourself an escape route.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
Personally and professionally, no one can hold a candle to you this week. In fact, even the most difficult situations can be turned to your advantage. Do, however, remember that partnerships are fragile and require as much care and attention as other precious things.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 21)
Current planetary activity is the kind that can best be described as potent and productive. Therefore, use your critical faculties to the full—concentrate on what needs to be streamlined. Remember that success is getting what you want; happiness is liking what you get.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 22-Feb. 19)
Count your blessings rather than dwell on trials and tribulations. True, there are problems of a partnership nature for you to contend with at this time. However, all will be well if you remember these words of Mother Theresa: If you judge people, you have no time to love them.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
No matter how angry others become, on no account be pressured into parting with what is rightfully yours or enter into new agreements simply to avoid any further arguments. The Sun now in your sign highlights opportunities to prove your capabilities and worth.

Weight loss team banks on hitting goal

Less than one week to go before the weight loss team at Standard Federal Bank calls it quits, and the tension is rising. On Jan. 19, 10 co-workers embarked on a challenge from Mr. Pita to weigh in at work every Friday morning after dieting all week.

Monday through Friday, Mr. Pita delivers a platter of its UltraLite and Lettuce DeLite sandwiches to their Livonia workplace at lunchtime.

Eating low-fat UltraLites and the newest low-carb sandwich, Lettuce DeLites, is just one strategy the Standard Federal Bank team is using to win the second annual Mr. Pita Weigh In at Work Contest, according to teller supervisor Pat Muldowney.

Cutting portions and exercising are equally as important if they're to beat six other teams including the Detroit Zoo in Royal Oak, Leonard Elementary in Troy, EDS in Auburn Hills, and First Commercial Realty & Development in Southfield.

To help them reach their goal, participants received a free one-month membership to Bally Total Fitness.

Several members of the team were trying to lose weight anyway, so Muldowney thinks it won't be hard.

A couple team members want to lose 30 pounds but for this month if everybody could lose 10 pounds each she would be happy. In the first three weeks, they've lost a total of 59 pounds.

"I'm trying to get everybody motivated, trying to stop them from putting food in their mouth," said Muldowney of Livonia.

At mid afternoon when everyone's hungry, I encourage them to drink a diet pop or water. We've been bringing in different fruits in the morning. If they're hungry we're trying to encourage them to have fruit. I'm encouraging them to try to eat light and take the extra sandwiches home to eat at dinner.

The downside is Muldowney doesn't know what her teammates are eating for breakfast and dinner.

"My problem is I don't eat breakfast," said Muldowney. "Now I'm eating a piece of fruit to get my metabolism going. I try to eat the lettuce wraps for lunch because they're low carb, and a salad for dinner."

Exercise routine is a very important part of our strategy. One co-worker works out on a ski machine a half hour a day. I walk four miles every other day with my dog. My dog enjoys it as well. When it's nasty I use the treadmill and she gets mad at me. I keep telling myself it's only four weeks. You can do this."

Mr. Pita founder Frank Lombardo is adding an extra incentive to motivate teams. For each pound lost, Mr. Pita will donate $10 to the winning team's favorite charity. Last year, contestants from Adaptive Technologies in Troy lost 169 pounds, $1,690 went to Gilda's Club plus Mr. Pita also donated $300 to the Salvation Army.

"We chose the American Heart Association because a lot of us have relatives with heart problems," said Muldowney. "My brother-in-law had a heart attack at 40 and died. Another lady has a husband with heart problems so it's close to our heart."

There have been obstacles in pursuit of winning the prize. The team from John Christian Company in Warren keeps trying to sabotage their efforts. One week, they sent chocolate chip cookies, another week Twinkies wrapped in Mr. Pita paper.

The Standard Federal team took the Twinkies home for their kids to eat and froze the rest to celebrate afterwards.

There wasn't much to celebrate on Friday, Feb. 13, when the team weighed in for the last time. They came in sixth place, losing a total of 66 pounds.

Leonard Elementary in Troy took first place, losing a total of 132 pounds. They earned $1,320 for the Boys and Girls Club of Troy.

All together, the weight loss teams shed 601 pounds.

"For at least one-third of us, our weight loss strategy won't change. We'll still work toward our goal," said Muldowney.

"We would love to do the contest again next year. It was a good motivator. It gets morale going when we're trying to encourage each other. It's brought us closer together. We were constantly checking up on each other, asking what are you eating?"

Her work has been seen in Plymouth, Northville and University of Michigan-Dearborn shows. Moore brings depth and new dimensions to all her projects.

Rowen is an area artist who uses mixed mediums to reveal the whimsy and imaginative thoughts of her colorful and "out of the box" personality. A native of Jackson, she brings talent along with a lifelong desire to stimulate the viewers' thoughts beyond the norm.

Both artists have donated the art work "What Now My Love" for a silent auction that's open to the public. Proceeds of the bid go to St. Mary Mercy Hospital Foundation for cancer services.

A bid for the picture can be placed anytime by signing the Bid Sheet located in the Foundation Office. At the end of each week, the Bid Sheet will be updated and posted in the exhibit hallway. The winning bidder will be notified when the exhibit ends Sunday, February 29.

For more information or to purchase artwork by Moore or Rowen, call the St. Mary Mercy Hospital Foundation Office at (734) 655-2980. For additional information about St. Mary Mercy Hospital, visit the Web site at www.stmarymercy.org.

Ten Thousand Villages seeks community support

A presentation about "Ten Thousand Villages" (Huron Valley) will take place following the morning worship and a potluck lunch at noon Sunday, Feb. 22, at Trinity Church of the Brethren, 27350 West Chicago, Redford. The local community will have an opportunity to learn about the work that this non-profit organization is doing for people in underdeveloped nations and their efforts to open a store in Ann Arbor. All stores are run by volunteers.

The purpose of this organization is to help artisans in the third and fourth worlds receive a "fair wage" for their products. Founded 50 years ago in Akron, Pa., the organization serves artisans in more than 30 countries in Central and South America, Asia, and Africa. In addition to helping artisans find markets for their products (home goods, pottery, linens, baskets, jewelry), the fair wages paid to artisans enable them to live in decent homes and send their children to school.

Once artisans become a part of "Ten Thousand Villages" they are never dropped. When a product is no longer marketable, the organization will continue to work with an artisan to develop a different product.

Goods are marketed in our country at Ten Thousand Villages stores.

Healthy kids

Over the past 20 years, the number of overweight children has doubled and the number of obese adolescents has tripled, creating a future in which the long-term consequences of childhood obesity threaten our youth.

Seventy percent of overweight adolescents risk becoming overweight or obese adults making it essential to face the childhood obesity epidemic and help children prior to their teen years. A key element in addressing the obesity crisis is increasing children's levels of physical activity. Nearly half of American youths aged 12-21 do not regularly engage in vigorous physical activity.

One program that is having an impact is the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services Centers for Disease Control and Prevention VERB Campaign for children ages 9 to 13. Kids pick a verb that interests them and get out and do it.

Police officers take action against health risks

Chief Pete Kunst jokes that members of the Livonia Police Department still like their doughnuts, but eating healthy has become a priority.

When he first joined the force 29 years ago, officers used to sit in cruisers all day eating doughnuts, drinking coffee and smoking. Today, officers eat salads and work out several times a week in the weight training and cardio rooms as part of a voluntary fitness program he instituted a year ago.

Physical fitness is extremely important, says Kunst, because stress is the silent enemy. Several studies have shown police are at an increased risk for high blood pressure and cardiovascular disease due to stress. Kunst is serious about keeping his officers in optimum shape to combat this health risk. He's instituted several changes in the department and makes sure officers are aware of the latest findings on nutrition and exercise.

TO YOUR HEALTH

During a recent health fair, officers were able to have their blood pressure taken by Donna Domogala of St. Joseph Business Health Systems in Livonia. Exercise physiologist Monica Pagels from the Botsford Center for Health Improvement showed them how to stretch to attain ultimate flexibility and prevent injuries.

"It's a high stress job even more difficult than 20 years ago," said Kunst. "They're the only employee that wears a microphone on their shirt and a video camera in their car. They're scrutinized. The laws are more complex. The knowledge and expertise is so much more because of the nature of our society and culture.

"Officers have to be able to go over fences. They're sitting in that car driving around six or seven hours then all of a sudden the blood pressure is cranked up and they're in a foot race or vehicle chase."

The demands of the job have forced departments to look for ways to help officers stay in shape and handle stress. The fitness program awards officers time off when they meet certain standards. A doctor from St. Mary Mercy Hospital assesses officers before they begin training. Several months later they achieve Gold, Silver or Bronze levels by performing push-ups and sit-ups in addition to running a timed mile and a half.

A LEADER

Sgt. Paul Wood is leading his officers by example. A supervisor on the afternoon shift, the 47-year old sergeant recently achieved Gold after losing 70 pounds.

The city's made it easy for us with a workout room and cardio room. All police officers are given free membership to the rec center. I go six days a week," said Wood, who's been with the department 29 years. It's having a positive attitude. Thinking positive is key to any kind of fitness program."

Kunst is pleased that nearly 50 percent of the 170 sworn police officers initially participated in the fitness program as well as the Civil Service Department's Colorful Choices. For three weeks officers were encouraged to eat five colorful choices of fruits a day from a variety donated by local businesses.

"When I came up there was drinking and poor diet due to rotating shifts and suicide was a concern," said Kunst. "We no longer rotate shifts. That's probably the single most health improvement and we're more tuned into high blood pressure and cholesterol."

Mary Carley of the Health Alliance Plan found a higher incidence of blood pressure in police officers age 35-40 than in the general population when she screened them at last year's health fair. Carley said that could be attributed to the fact officers were coming off of their shift.

This year at the health fair she was offering body fat analysis. HAP provides blood pressure screenings, luncheon programs on stress management, nutrition and a number of topics to subscribers. Nonsubscribers as well can take advantage of the healthy living section on their Web site www.hap.org.

TAKING CARE

"We're hoping to reduce their risks of heart disease and obesity because we know it's linked to other conditions such as diabetes," said Carley. "We want to make police officers more aware of taking care of themselves."

Sgt. Wes McKee first learned his cholesterol was high during a previous health fair, now he sees his doctor regularly for screening. He was at the recent fair to have his blood pressure taken and pick-up information. Several of the officers like Thomas Funke praised the department for offering the fair. He "was happy with his blood pressure reading" because it usually rises after being on the desk all day.

"I have an annual physical every year because I'm over 40 but other officers may not," said Officer Funke, union president. "It's a chance for our officers to get tested."

Sgt. David Studt has his blood pressure checked once a month at church.

"Twenty-five years ago, there was no such thing as a health fair," said Studt. "Today, 80 to 90 percent of officers are in some type of physical exercise program. We don't go for the doughnuts and coffee anymore. We're a lot more health-minded. I began eating oatmeal for breakfast, limit fried food to once a week and work out four times a week."

Studt says stress on the job has increased since the terrorist attacks of Sept. 11, 2001. Realizing the pressure officers are under, human resources director Mary Rutan brought in Dr. Robert Levine from the Henry Ford Health System for a six-week series late last year.

"It was nontraditional approaches to quit smoking, lose weight and control stress," said Rutan. "We're pleased with preliminary results and will be tracking them for six months. It's a very cutting edge approach for officers who may have the inability to sleep and eat food on the run."

Levine was a police officer long before he became director of Henry Ford Health System's Complementary and Integrative Medicine Research and the William T. Gossett Neurology Laboratories, so he knew the health risks involved. The Farmington Hills resident kept that in mind while coordinating the wellness program with Dr. Ramon Nunez, a doctor of acupuncture and oriental medicine at the Waterford Center for Integrated Medicine.

"We knew that they have unique jobs that expose them to environmental stressors. We did group acupuncture, nutritional and lifestyle counseling, and hypnosis for all of their problems including stress," said Levine, a research scientist trained in acupuncture and hypnotherapy. "We created awareness of where the stress is in their life so they can shift from a reaction that's creating harmful effects on their body to create a relaxed peaceful existence while maintaining optimal alertness."

Ear infections affect millions, impact quality of life

Ear infections and middle ear fluid are notorious for making the lives of many children and their parents miserable. Acute otitis media, the class ear infection often causes fever, earache, vomiting, diarrhea, and irritability in older children. Infants may have fever and pull at the ear involved. People with middle ear fluid may or may not complain of muffled hearing, popping ears or ear pressure. Children with middle ear fluid may not be attentive in school, may speak loudly or have slow or abnormal speech development. These conditions result in millions of doctor visits, antibiotic courses, and surgical placement of pressure equalization tubes.

Acute otitis media affects tens of millions of people each year costing up to $4 billion a year. Middle ear fluid afflicts 10 million children each year in the United States. These conditions result in one of the most common surgeries in our country — tympanostomy tube placement.

Why do children get these conditions? Effective functioning of the middle ear requires the eustachian tube that originates in the back of the nose and throat and ends in the middle ear to work correctly. Each time we swallow, air is allowed to enter the middle ear equalizing the pressure in the middle ear with atmospheric pressure. An effective immune system helps to rid the middle ear of any bacteria that inadvertently gets into the area. Anything that interferes with the eustachian tube or immune system can increase the risk for ear infections and middle ear fluid.

The eustachian tube of the young child is wide, short and is horizontal allowing nasal and oral material easier access to the middle ear. As we grow the tube narrows, elongates and angles upward decreasing chances of nasal and oral contents from getting into the middle ear.

Enlarged adenoids can interfere with the origination of the tube causing it to malfunction. Allergies are a very common cause of nasal inflammation in children and contribute to both the risk of ear infection and middle ear fluid.

If a child has frequent ear infections or middle ear fluid an evaluation by a board certified pediatric allergy and immunology physician can determine if allergies or an immune system problem are involved. These conditions are treatable and doing so can prevent recurrence of infection. If allergy medications are not sufficient then allergen injection treatments might be indicated. If allergies or an immune system problem are not involved, an ENT specialist may need to place pressure equalization tubes to help the child.

These conditions can be serious and lead to long-term consequences. Children who have fluid persisting in the middle ear for more than three months despite medications and children with more than a handful of ear infections per year warrant a visit to a specialist.

Steven Stryk, M.D., is board certified in adult and pediatric asthma, allergy and immunology. Stryk and partner Dr. David Seaman regularly treat patients with ear infections at their Canton Asthma & Allergy offices in Canton, Farmington and Brighton.

PSORIATIC ARTHRITIS IN WINTER

If you have arthritis you know that the winter is a time you endure. Early February is the worst. There is little light, the cold is deepest and the cycles of snow lead to icy porches and streets.

In addition, your fingers get tired working the buttons into their buttonholes, correctly and ache from constantly pulling boots on and off. If your hands are crooked or splayed, you cannot take full advantage of gloves or mittens. Grasping a steering wheel or railing previously an annoyance is now an obstacle and a source of concern.

If you have psoriatic arthritis, all the problems noted above are magnified. The reason is that the lack of light makes the arthritis worse. The ultraviolet rays present during spring and summer help heal psoriasis and calm the inflammation of psoriatic arthritis. As the winter progresses, the ultraviolet rays diminish being at the lowest concentration in early February.

The problem intensifies more in psoriatic arthritis because the feet are often involved. The foot and ankle arthritis worsens because of the combination of heavier shoes, exposure to cold, and the tension on foot muscles trying to navigate icy walks.

It is impossible to know beforehand which people will suffer in the winter and so increase their medication in anticipation of the flare. Adding medication during the flares is not successful at the onset if effect is delayed at a time when you need relief now. What doctors do is use joint injection to bridge the gap between present pain and the relief that spring will bring.

Family enjoys new home in Woodland Pond

BY NORMAN PRADY
 CORRESPONDENT

The day might come when Colin Haefner will awake and wonder about the low-wing Piper two-seater that seems to be flying near his crib.

For now, 4-month-old Colin is content to snuggle in his jammies in his new room in his family's new home.

A stairway in a home under construction in Woodland Pond on North Territorial in Plymouth Township.

Meanwhile, Colin's dad and mom, Robert and Amelia - she's called Amy - are thinking about the deck they want to build off of the kitchen. It will be, Amy said, where they can relax after a day's work and reflect on the beauty of the trees and the protected wetlands surrounding them.

Robert and Amy both are air traffic controllers, which explains Colin's airplane. Amy said she called on her crafting skills to paint the mural on the far wall of her baby's room.

The Haefners have only been in their new home for a couple of weeks. They're pioneering settlers in Woodland Pond, leading the way to life in this planned 31-home development in Plymouth Township.

So far, the Haefners' house and two others have been completed. Four more are under construction and two more will be started in March, according to D.J. Maltese, one of the builders.

Sensing that they were outgrowing their three-bedroom, 1,600-foot house, Robert and Amy began a search for a roomier place to raise Colin and any other little Haefners who might come along, she said.

A buyer's sales agent took them to Woodland Pond. "She told me," Amy said, "you have to see this house."

The agent was Kim Belz of Coldwell Banker Schweitzer-Bake, Plymouth. "I told Amy there isn't much opportunity to build in Plymouth Township. Not much vacant land left."

Amy said she knew there was "limited new construction" in the town where she

and Robert wanted to stay.

"We were really impressed with the builder. In his houses, a lot of things are considered standard that other builders consider upgrades. We were very interested in getting into a new development that we think will draw other young families with kids."

Amy might be thinking about playmates in Colin's new world who will want to come in to see the airplane in his room.

ments and some have "daylight basements" with a four-foot window at one end. Prices range from $439,500 to $497,500.

The development is single family homes on condominium sites, meaning that a portion of each lot is common land belonging to a homeowners association. Homeowners will pay dues, currently set at $450 per year, which will cover lawn maintenance and snow removal on common areas.

Exterior features include brick with cast stone surrounds, dimensional shingles, Hardy-Plank siding, wood or fiberglass windows and aluminum gutters and downspouts.

Interior features include nine-foot basement and first floor two-story great room and foyer, Brazilian cherry flooring in kitchen, hall and foyer with remaining areas carpeted,

Let your contractor finance those home improvements

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Home improvement contractors have strapped some new equipment onto their tool belts project financing

Contractors have entered the project-loan arena in a big way, according to an industry expert who says the trend adds convenience for homeowners and attracts contractors with good reputations and equally good business skills

"This is another arrow in a contractor's quiver because it boosts their credibility when consumers know a bank supports the contractor's business," said Tom Hewitt, president of Kenwood Associates "This part of the loan industry is booming"

The project is paid for out of contractors' pockets, Kenwood, an affiliate partner of The Home Service Store, steps in with the loan once a project is approved and completed This is called "buying the contract" Consumers pay Kenwood, not the contractor

APPEAL

While consumers may not automatically view contractors as finance sources, there are plenty of positives to do just that The appeal is part financial, part construction process management

For one, consumers won't dip into their wallets to pay for labor or materials Those costs are already paid This frees homeowners from writing checks for even small items Hewitt cautions, however, that consumers must still keep tabs on project expenses

Consumers tempted to pay for materials by credit card can avoid sky-high interest rates

Don't forget about possible tax benefits for contractor-arranged secured loans

Finally, loan terms must be competitive with rates charged by other lenders The trump card for contractor-provided loans is a loan amount more closely tied to actual project costs and sheer customer convenience

Hewitt says that at Kenwood, the average home improvement loan is nearly $8,500 Consumers must be energy-conscious, typical loans fund energy-related projects such as sun rooms, roofing, siding and windows Kitchens, bathrooms and family rooms are also high on the list

Contractors don't need to be loan experts "We help the contractor with training, make sure they understand how the financing works and who qualifies for loans," Hewitt said "We handle all the paperwork The lender's role is pretty transparent to the consumer"

But the process is added validation for consumers looking to find experienced, financially viable contractors Contractors must pass financial and background checks, including licensing and insurance They sign their own contract with the lender Contractors have a real incentive to perform If homeowners are unhappy with the project during follow-up calls by Hewitt's staff, the loan amount can be withheld until the work meets consumer expectations

This increases a good contractor's market share, because consumers want total project convenience from a contractor they can trust Consumers trust someone who can deliver a good project," Hewitt said

The Home Service Store manages home maintenance, repair and improvement tasks in more than 130 markets nationwide For more information, call (866) HSS-6060 or visit www.TrustHSS.com

Finding right house like chemistry

BY SIBBY CHRISTENSEN
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

It's a little like falling in love You know instinctively that a certain kind of house is meant for you

But like love, you may not quite be able to explain it - especially to the architect who will help you make it a reality Whether you're prepared to build a new house or alter the one you already live in, you can't find the words

Now comes Sarah Susanka, offering a translation and key to the architect's toolbox, as she terms it in her newest book, Home by Design (The Taunton Press $35 hardcover March 15)

Along the way she defines what it is about a house - its chemistry - that makes it a home

Filled with illustrations of homes that are bright, spacious, and unified, her book suggests many projects from simple to complex that can make your existing house more user-friendly or inform you of your choices if you're building a house from the ground up All aim to make a house more inviting and functional for the people who live there

The book shows light-giving windows, ceilings that drop their height to add intimacy and definition to a dining or sleeping area or that soar openly to the framing timbers, privacy-saving niches, and subtle design themes

Susanka already has demonstrated her skill in connecting people with livable houses, rising to prominence with her bestselling book, The Not So Big House In that book, seen by many as a challenge to the McMansion trend, the author-architect argued that quality details are smarter and more congenial choices than more square footage

"Since writing The Not So Big House, I've received thousands of e-mails and letters from people who've said they knew what they wanted but simply didn't know how to ask for it," Susanka says Home by Design will give these spatially sensitive types a much larger vocabulary by which to describe their desires

That vocabulary involves an awareness of three broad categories Space, Light, and Order

They're really references to our hard wiring as human beings she says

IDEAS YOU CAN USE

There are many ways to use these principles At one end of the spectrum, it will give readers simple ideas that they can implement themselves, without a lot of remodeling, and without the need of a design professional or a builder At the other end of the spectrum, it will give readers the vocabulary to describe to their builder and/or architect what special features they are looking for

Architects, for their part, sometimes have difficulty in communicating their ideas to clients, says Susanka "There are many instances in the architectural design process where an architect wants to do something that the client doesn't understand the value of, so it gets left out when it would have made the design significantly better had it been included" It's her hope that the book will help her colleagues adopt a more straightforward language to explain their ideas to clients

Of the principles she cites, the most important may be light All living things, including people, are inherently attracted to light, and using it can make any space more inviting and vital

"When a building engages us by attracting our attention, as it does when a light source is strategically located to move us from one place to the next, we feel more alive, and we tend to like the place"

Thoughtful window placement obviously maximizes light, but Susanka points out that other things may come into play, such as aligning a doorway opposite or using reflective surfaces to advance In very sunny climates window placement might serve to diffuse the light

SPACE MATTERS

Space - as she argued in The Not So Big House - is more than a matter of square footage

In the new book, she shows how spatial feeling can be affected by such strategies as removing walls and defining discrete areas by lowering or framing ceilings And order is shown by the design sense that perhaps picks up unifying details that make the house seem whole, instead of a series of rooms that have been blocked together

One of Susanka's aims is to remind both architects and clients that "for architecture to really perform its function, people must be able to enjoy it, find comfort in it, and be inspired by it"

Right tools make painting easier

(MS) - A fresh coat of paint can quickly change the look of any room in your home While painting some surfaces can be easy, challenges can and do arise while painting others But don't worry - any project can be easy if you have the right tools Follow the advice of the primer experts at Zinsser when painting the following hard-to-paint surfaces

■ Painting a light color over dark colored surfaces - apply a coat of a quality primer-sealer before you paint to hide previous colors and prevent them from showing through your new paint job Primer-sealers, like Bulls Eye 1-2-3, are formulated to completely block even the darkest colors, including deep reds and dark browns, so they won't bleed through or change the color of your new paint job

■ Painting over glossy surfaces - Don't expect paint to do a primer's job Ordinary paint won't stick to slick surfaces, like glossy paint, clear finishes, metal, Formica, cabinets, paneling or tile By applying a quality primer to the surface first, your paint will stick to the surface and your paint job will last longer and won't crack, peel or blister over time

Tip from the pros Want to eliminate sanding from surface prep? Use a primer like Zinsser's B-I-N, or Bulls Eye 1-2-3 They're formulated to stick to all surfaces without sanding

■ Painting porous surfaces like builder's flat paint and new drywall - porous surfaces absorb paint unevenly and often create an inconsistent color and sheen that requires multiple coats of paint A good primer will seal the surface so paint spreads more evenly and easily for a better-looking finish with less paint Tip from the pros For best results, tint your primer toward the color of your paint Research shows that one coat of tinted primer and one coat of paint will give you a better paint job than two coats of paint

Protect yourself from title problems

In a survey of recent homebuyers, 57 percent said that if there were a problem with the title to their house, their Realtor or their seller's agent would have told them. Actually, while a Realtor can help you find a home and guide you through the closing process, only a title professional will be able to tell you if there is a problem with your title

When you purchase a house or property, a title professional searches the public records looking for outstanding liens or other problems that could affect the title They often fix problems without ever telling the buyer, seller or real estate agent The American Land Title Association recommends that you purchase an Owner's Policy of Title Insurance For a one-time fee at closing, an Owner's Policy will protect you against any title problems that were not found during the search

Rely on your Realtor for help buying your home Rely on your title professional to ensure your title is clear and to give you peace of mind For more information on title insurance, visit the Consumer Information section of www.alta.org

It's kind of unusual, but take a look at underground homes

BY DEBRA GASKILL
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Products of the energy crunch in the 1970s, underground homes are worth another look from a new generation.

Because the earth surrounding a building takes on and gives off heat at a slow pace, they can be much cheaper to heat and cool, experts say. Heat taken in during the summer is released in the fall and winter.

Underground homes became a trend as a result of the Arab oil embargo of the early 1970s. Approximately 5,000 to 10,000 earth-bermed or underground houses were built in the United States during that time.

CONSTRUCTION

These homes were constructed in two ways. A truly underground home used earth for all sides, with only the entrance above ground. Earth-bermed homes used earth for several sides and/or the roof, with one side, usually the southern exposure, built using conventional materials.

Cave-like darkness and moisture are the biggest concern people have about earth-bermed houses, said Columbus, Ohio, architect Richard Ohanion, president of Home Sweet Earth Homes. He has been designing earth-bermed and underground homes for more than 25 years.

Ohanion's homes have insulation and waterproof barriers installed between the earth and the concrete, which along with weatherstripping and drainage prevents dampness. Solar atriums can be used to bring the sunshine as well as the heat into the home.

Ohanion was the architect for the home Ruth and Ron Schroeder built during the late 1970s, out of an interest in an alternative energy-conscious lifestyle. Their 2,000-square-foot, three-bedroom home, which sits on five acres outside Fairborn, is earth-bermed on several sides.

When it was originally built, a visitor entering through the front door found himself on a balcony overlooking a room with a 24-foot ceiling - what the Schroeders call the 'solar atrium.'

The atrium, which is a passive solar collector, rises out of the ground, the top half of the south wall made of 192 square feet of glass greenhouse panels. The windows let in sunlight but keep heat from radiating back out, trapping the sun's warmth. Warm air collects in the upper part of the atrium, and a ceiling fan helps circulate it through the house.

Several years later, the Schroeders renovated the atrium to change the balcony into a small room which is filled with musical equipment.

They originally heated their home with a wood stove but have since converted to a furnace. Concrete panels and dirt on the roof would have made their home more efficient, Ruth Schroeder said, but she enjoys the view she has of the back of their land.

People like our property. They think (the house) will be like a cave, but it's not. It's nice and airy," she said.

Ohanion started building earth-bermed homes in 1977 when he and his partner, David P. Hamilton Jr. of Springfield, Ohio, formed Shelterra Homes, which was dissolved during the Carter administration due to high interest rates. He is now president of Home Sweet Earth Home. He's found the renewed interest in his style of homes hasn't transferred to more business.

Cave-like darkness and moisture are the biggest concern people have about earth-bermed houses, said Columbus, Ohio, architect Richard Ohanion, president of Home Sweet Earth Homes.

"Sometimes I think, since I put up my Web site, I've become Encyclopedia Earthtanica," Ohanion said. He gets a lot of requests for plans and questions, but that's about all. His architectural drawings for an earth-bermed home range from $1,250 to $2,500, with construction costs averaging about $100 a square foot.

COSTS AND BENEFITS

Costs for an underground home can be 10 to 15 percent higher than a traditional aboveground home, Ohanion said. The biggest part of construction costs - between 60 and 65 percent - are in the construction of the shell.

There are more benefits to earth-bermed houses than saving energy, Ohanion said. "It's about out-and-out survival," he claims. "You can survive a night or two in an underground home without heat." During Ohio's spring and summer tornado season, the superstructure of an earth-bermed home will remain intact.

He thinks it will take the construction of an entire underground neighborhood of '10 or 20 on a street' for people to see how unique these structures are.

Edna McGreevy, 85, of Enon, Ohio, and her late husband, John Gillam, built their earth-bermed home in 1977 when Gillam wanted to have a low-maintenance home. McGreevy's two-bedroom home has a two-car garage and a small machine shop and is nearly completely underground, except for the southern exposure, which faces the road and the other conventional homes in this small southwestern Ohio town.

Originally heated with a small stove, McGreevy later added an electric furnace, then when gas lines were extended through her neighborhood, converted to gas heating.

Years ago people called us the cave people," she said. Now they think it's neat. In the 27 years she's lived there, she's watched nearly all her neighbors replace their roofs.

I just mow mine," she laughs.

Thomas Ervin Let's Talk About Real Estate

"BEDROOMS AND BATHROOMS"

Two of the biggest determinants of a home's value are its bedrooms and bathrooms. The first two questions asked by one Realtor about another agent's listing is, "how many bedrooms and baths does it have?"

These are also the same features that buyers use when deciding which homes they want to see. A buyer for a four bedroom home will seldom consider a three bedroom house. It is also true that someone needing three bedrooms usually won't consider four.

The master bedroom is a key factor in most home buying decisions. Its location, size, bathroom access and closet space are carefully considered. The master bedroom has become so important that it can make or break the sale. Certain price ranges demand particular master bedroom features. The attached full bathroom with bathing and/or shower facilities is a must with many buyers. In the higher priced homes, it is not unusual to see a bathtub and separate shower. The bathtub may have a built in hot tub. Skylights are popular in many modern bathrooms.

The location of baths also makes a difference. A bath located in the basement usually does not increase a home's value. That same bath located on the main floor could dramatically increase the demand for a certain house.

Many expensive homes are expected to have a powder room adjoining the entrance foyer. Likewise, a half bath just off the entrance to the garage is customary. Two bedrooms that are connected by a bathroom can enhance the desirability of both rooms.

ADVICE: Because of the investment potential of buying a home, it is best to work with a Realtor. Realtors know about many of the little things that affect value.

Heavenly home ideal for country or wooded setting

A beautiful, sprawling ranch home, the Country Heaven has all the amenities you desire. There is a wrap-around porch on two sides, wood posts with railings, three gables with octagonal vents, and numerous windows. This home would be ideal in a wooded setting or as a farmhouse.

Entry into this spacious 2,246 square foot home brings one into the formal living room. It has a partial wall separating it from the family room and bayed windows in the front that bathe the room in light. An overhead fan circulates air.

The family room has a large window in the rear with French doors opening onto a covered deck. This room also has a ceiling fan. On the left wall is a large entertainment center, ideal for a large screen TV.

KITCHEN

The nook is incorporated in the kitchen in a large bayed room. The dual sink, raised dishwasher, and microwave oven run down the outside wall while a walk-in pantry and refrigerator complete the layout. The cooktop is in the island in the center.

Across the hall is a computer room. There's a large open bathroom, ideal for wheelchair access, with a single sink, linen closet and tub adjacent to the computer room.

Bedrooms 2 and 3 are in the right rear of Country Heaven. There are two linen closets, and a utility room at the end of the hall. Each bedroom has large windows and a ceiling fan.

A door in the hall opens into the large two-car garage with a shop in the rear. It has workbenches as well as a sink, cabinets and storage. Pull down stairs provide access to the attic.

The master bedroom is on the far left side of the home. It is a spacious room with French doors that open onto the covered porch. It has two walk-in "his and her" closets closed off by pocket doors. Inside the
