Fire promotion

Lt Charles Russo, a member of the Plymouth Community Fire Department since 1987, was promoted to captain, an announcement made during a ceremony at Tuesday's Plymouth Township board meeting. Russo, always a proponent of furthering education, earned an associate's degree in fire science from Henry Ford Community College, and in 2001 completed paramedic courses through Baker College. He was promoted to lieutenant that same year. Russo and his wife, Linda, have a daughter, Trisha, and a son, Christopher, who is following in his father's footsteps as a firefighter in Brownstown Township.

Dul winner

Aubrey Oldford, graduate of Plymouth Salem High School, was awarded a scholarship from the Dul Foundation of Plymouth. Oldford is an honor student and sophomore at Michigan State University. She is also an active member of Motor Meals Studies include both political theory and constitutional democracy and her plans are to graduate in 2007. Oldford would then like to continue her schooling by enrolling in law school. Oldford, the daughter of Michelle Oldford, has worked at Fox Hills Golf & Country Club for the past three summers. Her mother is sales and marketing manager for Clips & Clamps Industries. The Dul Family, owners of Clips & Clamps Industries and Fox Hills Golf & Country Club, established a yearly scholarship fund six years ago for employees and their families.

Greene, Stewart battle over budget

Mayor: 'Legislators don't understand' how communities face financial pinch

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER

After being elected Nov. 2 for a third, two-year term, state Rep. John Stewart, (R-Plymouth Township), said balancing a projected state budget deficit of at least $500 million will be both a priority and a challenge. And while he predicted no further cuts by the Legislature in revenue-sharing money for local communities, Stewart said local municipalities needed to shoulder some of the need for fiscal responsibility.

Stewart didn't make any friends at Plymouth City Hall when he specifically singled out the City of Homes.

Our friends at the city of Plymouth need to do more fiscal planning," said Stewart, one day after being re-elected with 60 percent of the vote. I think they have more to cut.

Mayor Stella Greene met with Stewart

Nov. 6 and again on Thursday to set the record straight.

I want John to acknowledge he's not aware of the depth of the work we've done, said Greene, armed with a 5-inch thick budget folder, including cuts the commission has authorized to balance the cash-starved budget.

That's indicative of all of Lansing, the legislators simply don't understand the depth of what local communities have gone to to address their problems," added Greene. "The revenue-sharing model isn't working for us."

When asked if he knew about the fiscal problems of the city of Plymouth, or any other communities in the 20th

House District, Stewart replied, "I do not know. All we (legislators) know is what we read in the newspaper."

"I don't know the depth (of the cuts), but I know that Plymouth cries the most, Plymouth complains the most," said Stewart.

Stewart's district includes both ends of the spectrum: older cities like Plymouth, Northville and Wayne, which have declining populations and are facing budget deficits, along with communities like Plymouth Township, Canton Township and Northville Township, which continue to grow and have yet to

St. John's brings certified chef to transform its menu

BY BRAD KADRICH
STAFF WRITER

When the folks at St. John's Golf & Conference Center open their new hotel next year, with its 80-seat restaurant, they want to improve the quality and quantity of their cuisine.

Now they think they've landed the man to do the job in new executive chef Michael Trombley.

The 36-year-old Trombley moved into the kitchen Oct. 25, coming over from Barton Hills Country Club in Ann Arbor. A part-time teacher in the prestigious culinary program at Schoolcraft College in Livonia, Trombley also was the chef at the four-star Golden Mushroom in Southfield before it closed.

"What an opportunity," said Trombley, who helped St. John's officials design some of its kitchen space. "You have an 80-seat dining room going in, lots of new growth. I think we have a four-star restaurant going in, and they wanted to put a name with it."

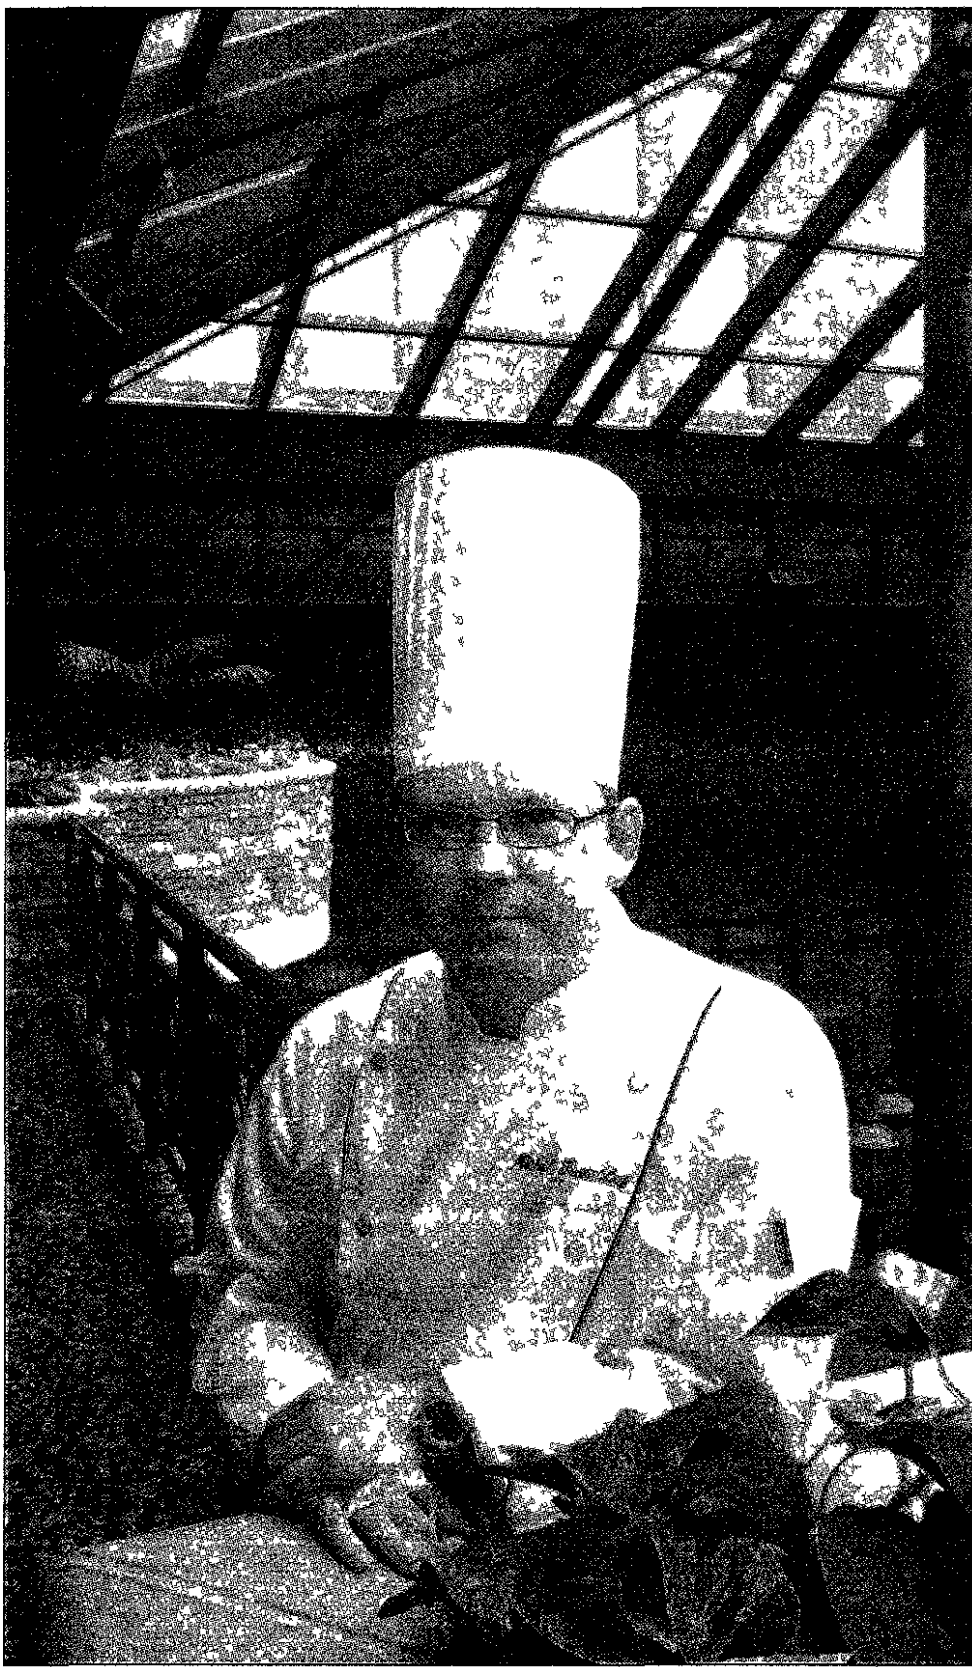

They picked a pretty good one. Trombley, certified an executive chef by the American Culinary Federation, is Michigan Chef's d Cuisine Chef of the Year for 2004. He trained under one of the best, Chef Milos Cihelka, the first certified master chef by MCCA in the country.

He's been to the weeklong executive chef course at the Culinary Institute of America in Napa Valley, Calif., and he's taken several courses and seminars through Lansing Community College.

Mostly, though, he's been doing the job. Trombley got his first kitchen gig at a small diner, Terry's Terrace in Mt. Clemens, a restaurant frequented by his mother and stepfather, who wound up recommending him for the job.

"I took home economics classes in high school, and I used to bake cookies

Oprah reaches into Plymouth to help people

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER

When Justin Cooke of Lincoln Park was told by his sister they were going to Chicago to be part of the Oprah Winfrey television show audience, it was the last thing Cooke really wanted to do with his day off.

"No offense to Oprah, but I didn't want to go," said Cooke, 26. "But, I love Oprah now."

That's because Cooke and his sister Alea Shinn of South Lyon — formerly of Canton Township — picked up brand new Pontiac G6 sports sedans at Bob Jeannotte Pontiac-Buick-GMC Truck in Plymouth Township Wednesday afternoon. They were two of 276 studio audience members who walked away with free cars, given by Oprah to every member of her Sept. 13 studio audience.

"It's a godsend, it's really starting to sink in," said Cooke. "The whole experience has been pretty cool."

The two winners picked the Jeannotte dealership from which to pick up their stealth gray G6's — valued at $27,000 — with a giant red bow on the sunroof.

"I was in shock, I couldn't believe it, remembered Shinn. "We only have one car, a Saturn, and most days I'm stuck home with our son. This will certainly come in handy."

It all started when Shinn and her mother attended the Sept. 1 taping of the Oprah show, and filled out a questionnaire about their greatest wish.

"I put down for my brother to get a new car," said Shinn. "He's gone above and beyond in helping family and friends, and his car is in such bad shape."

Shinn was told he'd be back in Chicago,

Township hikes fee for solid waste pickup

BY BRAD KADRICH
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Township residents, many of whom got an $84 refund from the township's solid waste budget several years ago, weren't so lucky at Tuesday's board of trustees meeting.

Trustees agreed unanimously to raise the fee the township charges residents to have their waste carried off by Republic Waste, the township's waste hauler.

Effective immediately, residents are now paying $36 per quarter for solid waste removal.

The hike is due largely to an increased cost to dump compost materials, according to township treasurer Ron Edwards. "Composting costs have gone up every year, and that's in addition to normal pickup rates," Edwards said.

The hike is necessary to cover costs associated with the solid waste fund. Fees charged by Republic Waste have gone from $9.16 in the first year of the contract to $10.32 in the final year.

The solid waste fund had a surplus of some $800,000 several years ago, when board members decided to hand back some of the money to residents.

That payback reduced the fund to some $247,000, which the township in 1997, which the township has used to absorb rate hikes from the hauler.

However, due to increases and other associated expenses, that fund is down to some $15,000, necessitating the increase to bring it back.

It's not supposed to be a tax,' Edwards said. "It's a fee-based system. The township's contract with Republic Waste expires in July."

Foundation loses longtime member

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER

When Hugh Harsha retired from his product strategy job at Ford Motor Company nearly 15 years ago, he turned his attention from having a paid position to becoming a volunteer.

Two years later, in 1992, Harsha became a board member of the Plymouth-Canton Schools Educational Excellence Foundation. One of the first programs he helped develop, along with Carl Pursell, was a reading program for elementary students.

"We were interested in kids that were falling behind in their reading and math skills, so we started a summer reading program for elementary kids," said Harsha, 77, who resides in Plymouth. "It started at Field Elementary, and now it's for kids district-wide."

"I really felt good when a young student, who went through the program, blossomed and could read, and was so pleased he told his second grade friends they should take that course," said Harsha.

Harsha, who received a Volunteer in Public Schools award from the Board of Education Monday night, is stepping down from the EEF board after 13 years.

"I wouldn't have left if I thought there weren't people who could improve the EEF," said Harsha. "Things are really happening at the EEF."

"Hugh has always been the one that came up with that key idea, that good thought that got us back on track," said George Shey, chairman of the EEF board. "He's always been there with his advice."

"Hugh isn't afraid to ask the tough questions of the board and ask what's best for our kids," said Tom Wysocki, school board trustee. Harsha, a 1945 graduate of Plymouth High School, helped raise nearly a half-million dollars for teachers and their classrooms and nearly $100,000 in scholarships for Plymouth-Canton graduates.

Library patron Fran Brooks of Canton tries out one of the new magnifiers as librarian Alice McCardell explains check-out procedures.

Library, Lions give reading a boost

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Reading just got a little easier for those with low vision.

The Plymouth District Library, in cooperation with the Plymouth Lions Club, has bought 43 magnifying aids that patrons may check out for three weeks at a time. Lighted and unlighted models are available in magnification levels from 1.5 to 7.0 power.

The librarians say they're helping people choose," said Patricia Thomas, library director. This collection was designed to let people try things out.

The Lions Club has been involved in sight conservation for many years, said Chet Solowiej of Plymouth Township, a longtime club member who's also active at the library. 223 S. Main. Lions provide glasses for schoolchildren and other related efforts, he said.

Low Vision Solutions in Livonia was the source for these magnifiers, which are housed in the large print area of the library. Solowiej, who is legally blind, knows how important such Lions efforts are.

"The club has worked with the library closely," he said, citing such efforts as large print books and a screen magnifier for computer use.

The library hosted a speaker Sept. 23 on macular degeneration, Thomas said. "That just tied in as a natural," she said.

Librarian Ellen Stross coordinated the macular degeneration presentation. Colleague Alice McCardell has coordinated the magnifier project.

"Certain ones are better for people with certain problems," said McCardell, outreach librarian. The magnifiers range from pocket size to tabletop size.

It's been very popular so far, McCardell said of the collection, first available Oct. 19. "I see a regular turnover in there."

She added that not only seniors, but also people in their 40s and 50s are using the magnifiers, which are not only for reading but also for needlecrafts and other similar work.

The Lions provided a closed circuit television reader at the library, she said, which allows users to look at a magnified screen. "It's a wonderful device that we'd like more people to know about."

That's the Optelec brand. McCardell praised Low Vision Solutions as being good to work with, and added most magnifiers are in the $50-80 price range.

She and her colleagues appreciate the help of the Lions Club. "It was a wonderful thing," McCardell said of the partnership.

"They are our friends. They help us to help the community."

The Plymouth Lions will soon be busy with another project, their annual Christmas candy cane sale. "It's one of our main fund-raisers," Solowiej said.

ROTC SCHOLAR

Stephanie M. Kivell received a three-year Army Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) scholarship from Central Michigan University. Scholarships are awarded on merit in areas such as academic achievement, extracurricular activities, specific accomplishments, and personal interviews. The scholarship provides tuition and education fees assistance, text book, supplies and equipment allowances, a monthly stipend of at least $300 for up to 10 months of each school year, and pays for attending the ROTC Advanced Camp between the junior and senior years of college. ROTC scholarship graduates inherit a military service obligation in the Army of eight years, which can be served either on active duty and/or in the reserve components. The cadet's scholarship is worth approximately $30,000. By accepting this scholarship, she will pursue a commission in the U.S. Army as a second lieutenant. ROTC will challenge her both mentally and physically as she is molded into a future leader in the Army. She is the daughter of James K. Kivell of Ferguson St., Plymouth, Mich. Kivell is a 2003 graduate of Salem High School.

Ice cream shop becomes 1st retailer to open doors

BY KURT KUBAN
STAFF WRITER

From the first moment they drove through the developing Cherry Hill Village, Cold Stone Creamery owners Charley and Barb Mulder knew they wanted to be part of the cutting-edge community on Canton's west side.

The Plymouth Township couple, who are former long-time Canton residents, became the Village's first retailer to open for business when they held their grand opening on Oct. 30.

"We lived in Canton for a long time and raised our children here. Canton hasn't had a real downtown in the past, but when we looked at this place, we just knew we wanted to be involved. It's a great community," said Charley Mulder.

The shop, located at Ridge and Cherry Hill roads, directly across from the new Village Theater, is actually the couple's second Cold Stone Creamery, a national franchise headquartered in Arizona. They also own a franchise in Saline.

Cold Stone Creamery is known for selling premier ice cream "creations", featuring freshly made ice cream and name-brand toppings, including Snickers, M&Ms and Oreo cookies. Unlike most shops, however, employees actually blend in the toppings like a breadmaker kneads dough.

The shop offers 32 original creations, with names like Cherry Cake Double Take, Mud Pie Mojo and Black Forest Dream, but customers can also order whatever combinations they like. According to Barb Mulder, there are 17,000 possible creations.

They also offer special seasonal creations, such as pumpkin ice cream for the fall, and candy cane ice cream for Christmas.

"We're unique. It's not what people think of when they think of an ice cream shop. We pull it. We mix it in. We make each order special," she said.

"We are to ice cream what Starbucks is to coffee."

and brownies with my mom," Trombley said "I've been interested in cooking ever since"

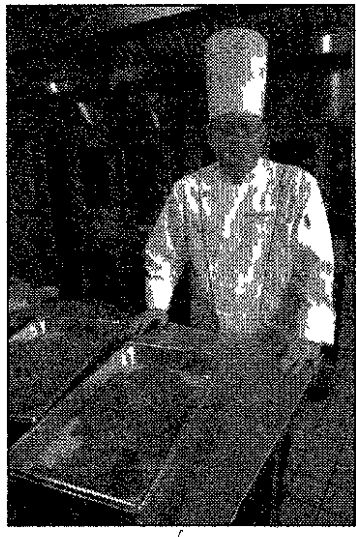

His career has taken him to a variety of spots, ranging from Dusty's Wine Bar in Okemos, where he was the sous chef, to 1-2-3 in Grosse Pointe Farms, to Cousins Heritage Inn in Dexter Along the way, Trombley has gotten involved in just about every aspect of running a kitchen

That's what made him attractive when St. John's came calling

"He's got experience, knowledge and creativity," said Tawnya Johnson, St. John's director of sales and catering "We want to get ourselves apart from the other facilities in the area, and we think the way to do that is with our cuisine"

He's going to have plenty of opportunity to show off that experience St. John's hosts more than 200 weddings a year, and more corporate events than that, not to mention the 100 or so golf outings the center hosts

"That's a ton of food and a lot of people," Johnson said "Chef's got a big job in front of him"

As executive chef, Trombley wears "about 20 hats," he said, including accountant, buyer and psychologist

To bring St. John's to the level its owners want it to be, one of the first challenges will be tackling the menu For now,

Trombley has been observing However, menu changes are coming, perhaps in January

With a 118-room hotel and an 80-seat dining room being added to a package that already includes a conference center and golf course, Trombley, an east-sider who grew up in St. Clair Shores, wants to make sure the people who eat there know they're getting quality

"We're going to develop special event/wedding packages, tightening up the packages already available," Trombley said "If I do an Asian menu, it'll be all Asian If we call it something here, we want you to be able to go out to California and call it the same thing"

It's Trombley's thought process Johnson thinks will help put an already-successful conference center on the map regionally

"With the addition of the hotel and bringing (Trombley) and his experience and knowledge aboard, we're hoping to raise the quality of our cuisine throughout the center," she said

"There won't be anyplace nicer, certainly, that can offer the variety we'll have here with (Trombley)

feel the monetary pinch

While Stewart said the Legislature won't cut more revenue-sharing funds for municipalities, Greene pointed out the shortfall in state sales tax revenue will result in a loss of funding for Plymouth and other communities

"It's the old adage, cut 'til it hurts," said Greene "We're dramatically close to that point If we make those cuts now, there's no coming back

"It isn't something we can cut for today or this year and put back in place years later," she said "Once we cut it, it's gone forever and we dramatically change the texture and tenor of what makes this city so special"

While Stewart left the meeting indicating he had a better understanding of Plymouth's plight, he reiterated more cuts are inevitable

"It's obvious they've cut down to the bone," he said "I still think they can cut a little something"

Stewart said additional staff cuts could be the answer, suggesting the starting point could be high-paid salaries and benefits in the police department and the city manager's position Greene, on the other hand, wants legislators to develop a better understanding of the financial pressures faced by municipal governments

"Politics is driving the decision making, instead of good, informed judgments of what the need is," Greene said. "We need to get past politics in the state, to acknowledge there's a fundamental defect in how we address the quality-of-life standards"

with her brother, for the taping of a show on family members who do great things for each other Cooke almost didn't make it because of a conference call at the Livonia Media Play store, where he's a manager

"My mother called work and got them to switch the day," said Cooke

Oprah gave out 11 cars to audience members, then handed everyone in the audience a box, announcing the person who had one with a key inside would win the 12th car As it turned out, everyone had a special Oprah keychain with a winning key

"I opened it slowly, but I heard someone else scream, so I thought I wasn't going to get it," said Cooke "But, then I saw I had a key, too, and I was jumping up and down They took everyone outside and we saw about 300 cars in the parking lot"

Cooke had been driving a 1995 Plymouth Sundance "This will be my 10th car in 10 years I have really bad luck with cars, something always happens to them"

Bob Jeannotte, who has been in business for 29 years, said the promotion has been a big one for General Motors, which not only gave away the cars but paid the sales tax

"I've never seen an introduction of a car like this," said Jeannotte of the G6, which replaces the Grand Am "GM spent about $7 million on the cars, but they couldn't get this much advertising for that kind of money People refer to it as the Oprah car"

Jeannotte's son, Chris, said the G6 has since become a hot seller

"Before the Oprah show they were big, but after the giveaway they were huge," he said "We were thrilled when we found out that we were giving these two away"

Voted out of office, Kelley gets county post

BY MATT JACHMAN
STAFF WRITER

As he gets ready to leave office after losing his bid for a third term as Redford Township's supervisor, Kevin Kelley has landed another job in government.

Kelley on Tuesday was named Wayne County's director of senior services and veterans' affairs by county Executive Robert Ficano. The appointment is expected to be approved by the county's Board of Commissioners later this month.

"I think there's a strong potential to do some creative and innovative things with these two departments," said Kelley, 46, who added that he looked at a number of job prospects after losing the Democratic primary in the race for supervisor.

"I think this is the opportunity that fit best, and I'm looking forward to making the transition," he said. He hopes to start the job this month.

The position was created about a year ago as part of Ficano's reorganization of county government, but has gone unfilled. A former county sheriff, Ficano took office in 2003.

Kelley, Redford's supervisor for eight years, said he's enjoyed good relationships with senior citizens and with veterans during his tenure. His sees his new job as an extension of his work with those constituencies, which have similar needs, he said.

"I've got some ideas for new programs, but you've got to check on funding sources and what's available in the budget," Kelley said.

The senior services department has a $9 million annual budget and 50 to 60 employees. It deals with programs and organizations that help seniors, including and administering the Meals on Wheels programs in communities across the county.

The veterans affairs department has a $3 million annual budget and six to eight employees. Its chief function is to administer a federal grant program of veterans' death benefits.

Two department directors, one for senior citizens services and another for veterans affairs, will report to Kelley, who will report to Ficano and the county board. Kelley's annual pay will be $120,000 — about $50,000 more than he earned as supervisor.

Kelley is also a former Redford deputy supervisor and a former county commissioner.

In 1992, he opposed Ficano in the race for county sheriff, but was defeated in the primary.

Redford's supervisor-elect, Trustee R. Miles Handy II, takes office on Saturday.

Plymouth DDA chief staying put for now

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth's Downtown Development Authority director, Bob Anderson, will remain in his position for at least a while longer.

Anderson was one of five people interviewed Oct. 30 for the $90,000 city manager's position in Auburn Hills, a community with 187 full-time employees and a $64 million budget.

Tom Tanghe, Auburn Hills assistant city manager, said the city council decided Monday to enter into contract negotiations with Scott Randall, a management consultant and former city manager for Clayton, Mo.

Anderson was interviewed last month as a finalist for the city manager's position in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Anderson was hired to head the Plymouth DDA in August 2002.

He has held city manager positions in Harbor Springs and Traverse City, as well as Aspen, Colo.

Reinke retires from city to become deputy director for county parks

BY DAN WEST
STAFF WRITER

A man who helped lead the growth of Livonia's Parks and Recreation facilities and programs for three decades is moving on.

Ron Reinke, the city's parks and rec superintendent for 25 years, is returning at the month's end to start a new job as deputy director of Wayne County Parks, where he will earn $88,200. He will oversee improvements and maintenance to the county's parks and other open spaces from an office at Nankin Mills.

"I've been seriously thinking about retirement for the past 12 months," said Reinke, a Central Michigan University graduate who started his career with the city in December 1974. "I was approached about this opportunity with the county and it presents some unique challenges for me."

The 55-year-old Livonia resident will leave the city with his mark on the Livonia's 63 parks, three golf courses, two ice arenas and the latest jewel, the Livonia Community Recreation Center.

Aside from the development of the recreation center last year, Reinke said he's particularly proud of his department's work expanding and renovating Eddie Edgar Ice Arena, upgrading Fox Creek Golf Course, installing lights at Bicentennial Park which expanded the city's athletic programs and replacing playground structures at city parks.

"There were so many things we did that were tremendously rewarding," he said.

Mayor Jack Engebretson said he was not surprised about the retirement, but added Reinke will be missed.

He did a great job and I enjoyed working with him in various capacities for 18 years, Engebretson said. "He really understands his role and achieved so much for the city over these last 30 years."

Engebretson said he is looking to promote an internal candidate to replace Reinke when he leaves Nov. 29. If the internal process is not complete by that time, assistant superintendent Karen Kapchonick will run the department in the interim.

While Reinke winds down on his city duties, he admits he will miss the people of whom he interacted for years.

Working hard, playing by rules doesn't always pay the bills

The story was always the same. They were working a full-time job, or two part-time jobs or a full-time and a part-time job and still things weren't coming together. Every paycheck was a decision — "Do I pay the rent or the car payment or the utilities because I sure can't pay them all?"

Hugh Gallagher

And then there's the day care, a stretch with one kid but with two you're lucky to break even.

If the kids get sick, forget it. Oh, maybe the state Family Independence Agency (a politically calculated renaming of the old Department of Social Services) will cover some costs and the county might cover some, unless of course they discover you actually have enough to buy food and utilities, that's a deal breaker on medical care. The employer either doesn't provide medical care, or only provides medical care for full-time employees and you only work 36 hours or the employer charges so much for the health insurance premium that...

The women coming into the Salvation Army last week to sign up for help during Christmas were experts at this kind of juggling. Single mothers on the margins, the working poor. They juggle their time, their bills, their emotions. During the holidays, when everyone is supposed to make merry, the act becomes quite a bit more strained. The kids expect to have a Christmas, everybody has a Christmas. That's one more bill, one more demand on the time.

Of course, the perfect, well-disciplined, morally superior types who gave us FIA and other euphemisms know, know, these people only have themselves to blame. And there are certainly long histories of wrong decisions, willful rebellion, maybe even moments of self-indulgence and a weakness for drugs or alcohol. But there are also abusive spouses, neglectful families, mental illness and heavy doses of bad luck. There is an old saying: "There but for the grace of God." But who says these hard-working people are any less in God's grace?

It's not just single mothers. Whole families also live on the margins. They aren't homeless or without jobs. Sometimes fathers and mothers work and they still can't quite make it. And they often work at the worst jobs, the kind of jobs that tire the body and rob the soul and offer no horizon for something better.

When we think of people in need, we often forget that the need isn't necessarily just in the inner city, where in some areas a culture of poverty has led to an endless despair. And it isn't just in the country, where the poor hole up in rusted mobile homes or shacks in the woods, resentful and suspicious of any interference.

We also have need right here in the suburbs, right next door or down the block.

These people aren't welfare cheats. They work hard and get nowhere. They have children they love and make sacrifices to feed and clothe and provide some of the pleasures that other children have. They live in the suburbs, where they feel safe, where their kids can go to a better school, where opportunity at least has a chance of knocking.

The Salvation Army, and other organizations, helps those who ask. In the city, they help the most desperately poor. They help the homeless, mostly men long separated from society, often by mental illness.

But they also help those in the suburbs, with families, with hopes and with very real needs.

They help get them over the hump. They help pay a bill or get the electricity turned back on. They provide the toys or clothes or special meal for the holidays that would be a budget buster if they weren't there.

The Army is most visible during the holidays, and that's the time when it tries to remind people (donors and recipients) that it is always there. Need doesn't begin Thanksgiving Day and end New Year's. It's always there.

As a Christian organization, the Salvation Army uses the holiday of Jesus' birth to remind people of Jesus' words, "For I was an hungry, and ye gave me meat, I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink. I was a stranger, and ye took me in. Naked, and ye clothed me. I was sick, and ye visited me. I was in prison, and ye came unto me. Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Remember that when you walk by the red kettles and hear the bells ring and help with the whisper of folding cash in the kettle.

Headlee was godfather of the modern Michigan GOP

Richard Headlee was a devout Mormon who was born in Iowa and grew up and went to school in Utah, where he died Tuesday at 74, surrounded by a large and loving family. What makes all that unusual is that he was one of the most important political figures of the modern era in Michigan.

Jack Lessenberry

He was the forerunner. The godfather of the modern Republican Party in the state, and the man who really reshaped the party and made John Engler's election as governor possible, said Bill Ballenger, publisher and editor of the well-regarded newsletter Inside Michigan Politics.

Incredibly, Dick Headlee was a businessman who was never elected to anything. He ran for office only once, was beaten, and never tried again. But his influence was monumental. He led a crusade for tax reform, and his name lives on in the Headlee Amendment, which limits property tax increases and says state spending can never exceed 9.49 percent of Michigan personal income, the percentage it was at in 1979.

The Headlee Amendment was passed overwhelmingly by Michigan voters in 1978. Later, after surviving a heart transplant in 1987, its author also helped lead the successful 1992 drive to enact term limits for all elected state officials.

Ten years later, on the brink of moving home to Utah, he told one newspaper he was leaving with head held high. "I think I have done enough damage to liberals in Michigan."

What he also did was spearhead a revolution within the Michigan Republican Party. Twenty-five years ago, the state GOP was one of the most liberal in the nation. Its leader, Gov. William G. Milliken, was a self-described Rockefeller Republican who worked hard to help cash-strapped Detroit.

Conservatives in the Milliken era were pushed to the sidelines. Headlee changed all that. He had moved to the state in 1964 and had become an adviser to his fellow Mormon, then-Gov. George Romney. His drive for tax reform went against the grain of his own party.

In 1982, three years after the Headlee Amendment became law, Milliken decided to retire. His anointed successor, Lt. Gov. James Brickley, was expected to be the GOP's candidate that fall. But Headlee pulled a stunning upset, beating Brickley 34 percent to 30 percent in the primary.

The margin probably would have been larger if it hadn't been for the presence of two other conservatives in the race, including L. Brooks Patterson, then the Oakland County prosecutor, who finished a close third.

That stunningly and effectively ended the era of moderate Republicanism as a major force in Michigan politics. Headlee, then the president of the Alexander Hamilton Life Insurance Co. in Farmington Hills, was a cheerful and enthusiastic campaigner, a pleasant man who reminded me in two ways of another pioneering conservative, Barry Goldwater.

Both men had a sense of humor about themselves. Headlee displayed political cartoons lampooning him in his office, where he might give you an interview leaning back in his swivel chair with his legs stretched up the wall.

And like the Arizonan, Dick Headlee had a tendency to ram his entire foot down his throat. When one woman legislator criticized him, he quipped that she ought to look more carefully in the mirror while shaving.

That was not a good idea, especially in an era when political correctness was just coming into vogue. Nor was his comment that supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment were really proponents of lesbian marriage. That prompted the usually low-key Milliken, a strong ERA supporter, to say that his party's standard-bearer "puts me in mind of an ass."

In the end, Headlee lost the general election to James Blanchard, then a young congressman credited with shepherding the Chrysler bailout bill through Congress in 1979. The vote was a relatively close 51 percent to 45 percent, and many afterward blamed his verbal missteps for the loss.

But that probably wasn't far. Republicans had then held Michigan's governorship for 20 years, and many voters felt it was time for a change.

The economy was in recession, and Republicans did poorly nationally in that fall's mid-term elections. Blanchard was an energetic and effective campaigner, and some of Headlee's potential support was siphoned off by a third-party candidate, a more zealous tax-cutter named Bob Tisch, a rural drain commissioner who, in political terms, skated near the edge of the fringe.

That was his only and last campaign, but the man running it learned a lot from the experience. Few paid much attention to Headlee's campaign manager during that race, a young state senator named John Engler.

Eight years later, he would beat Blanchard in the biggest upset in Michigan political history, and go on to drastically reshape state government and the Republican Party along the lines Headlee talked about in his campaign.

"You could never have had John Engler as governor without Richard Headlee," said Ballenger, once a moderate Republican state senator himself. And like it or not, that is indisputably true.

Illustrator draws students' attention

'86 Canton graduate encourages kids to be creative

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Michigan Chillers children's book illustrator Darrin Brege drew monsters on an easel, spoke in funny voices, and offered career advice Wednesday at Brooklands Elementary in Rochester Hills.

But while some kids and adults liked the drawing lessons and art career advice, they loved the funny voices. "Do Bart Simpson!" the students begged. "Yeah!"

"I can't do Bart," his voice is too high, pleaded the 1986 graduate of Plymouth Canton High School who now lives in Brighton with his wife, Karen.

But the sound of Bart's dad Homer rolled off his tongue, along with Bugs Bunny and characters from Toy Story and other films.

Brege, who also does celebrity voice impersonations for sports talk radio station WDFN, fielded a flurry of furious requests for funny voices — after his main presentation on how kids can develop their artistic talent.

To start, Brege asked a student to draw a stick figure on a pad of paper displayed on an easel as 50 students looked on, sitting on the floor in the school's media center.

To make a figure come alive, he adds simple shapes to the stick figure arms and legs — squares, circles, tubes and more, to give bodies mass and personality.

If you want to be an artist it's a great time. You can send your artwork all around the planet, he said via the Internet.

Brege stressed an artist can find a range of work by being open to a range of assignments. He has designed everything from characters for Hasbro toy makers to Web site advertisements for the film Shrek.

"You never know what kind of work you're going to get," he said.

He encouraged students to practice what they love, art or whatever else, to become skillful enough to pursue a career.

What about break-dancing? one fourth-grade boy asked.

After a brief pause Brege said, "If it pumps blood in your heart, sure, why not?"

While Brege gets some direction for Michigan Chiller illustrations from series author Jonathan Rand — who is appearing at the Rochester Hills Public Library at 7 p.m. Nov. 17 — the artist said he draws creative ideas from the world around him.

To demonstrate, he showed the cover of one Chiller book about an oversized spider. He chose to depict the spider on the top level of the I-275-Six Mile Road overpass — with his own red minivan caught in the spiderweb below.

One of my most favorite things to use is the eraser, he told the group.

Brege went on to say that after adding ovals, tubes and circles to a stick figure to give it shape and mass, you just get rid of stuff you don't want — you can do it, you're the artist.

In one exercise Brege began turning straight stick figure lines into an oversized monster squid.

What's going to make him look more real? Pimples, veins? he asked.

"Acne!" one boy shouted. "Ripped skin," said another. "We'll put more spit on him," Brege said.

He said projects can take two hours to two weeks. It takes a lot of practice.

he told the students. He encouraged young artists to trace if they want to. If it keeps you drawing, you bet he said.

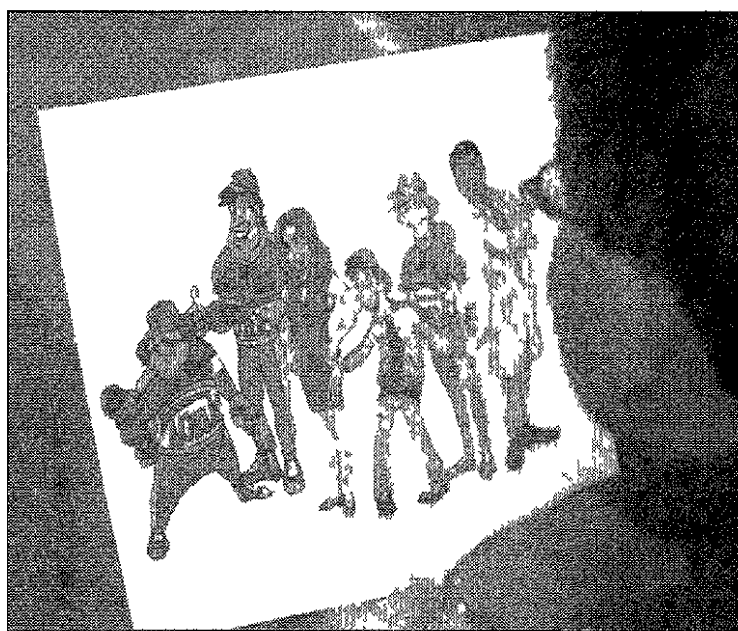

Brege also encouraged young artists to seek out how-to-draw books and to take art classes in school or even summer camps.

I liked when he drew the shapes, fourth grader Jessica Smith said afterward.

I liked the shapes and stuff, her classmate, Hannah Duchardt agreed.

Brooklands Principal Denise Holub, who occasionally had to shush excited kids Wednesday said, "It's useful for them to see a real life illustrator and how he got there and how he pursued his profession."

TREATMENT FOR RHEUMATOID ARTHRITIS

Evidence from several studies indicates that early treatment of rheumatoid arthritis pays great dividends. No longer is it acceptable to go cautiously from one anti-inflammatory drug such as aspirin to another such as Motrin.

The medical community agrees that the early institution of further treatment is the goal of the arthritic. However, from this point on, the consensus is that the problem is that the earlier the patient is treated, the better the outcome. Such drugs include methotrexate, the anti-TNF medications, Enbrel, Remicade and Humira. Arava, Kineret, azathioprine, plaquen, gold salts, Immuran, and prednisone. For the most part, any of these drugs may be used in combination with one or more of the other drugs listed above. In addition, the safety of these medications for women who want to bear children with a few exceptions is open to question. For drugs such as methotrexate, the fetus is at risk if the mother becomes pregnant while on it.

Each drug noted above has characteristics that make it either appropriate or ill-suited for the patient. You need to self-inject Enbrel or Humira, some individuals are horrified at the thought of injecting themselves. Azathioprine may require you to take tablets three times a day, a nuisance in certain jobs and for some people such as annoyance as to encourage them to get to take the medication.

Experience shows the need for early treatment of rheumatoid arthritis. The same experience reveals that instituting such therapy can be difficult.

Evans names retired Detroit officer undersheriff

Wayne County Sheriff Warren C Evans today announced the appointment of Harold Cureton, as his new second-in-command. Cureton, who spent more than 30 years with the Detroit Police Department (DPD) and recently retired as assistant chief, will serve as Evans undersheriff in charge of day-to-day operations. Cureton replaces Evans, former undersheriff, Lawrence Meyer, who recently retired after 28 years with the department.

Evans said that Cureton's appointment is a natural fit. "I've known Harold my entire life. I trust him as a friend and I respect him as a police officer and an administrator," Evans said. "I am thrilled to have someone of his caliber and experience joining our team."

In his new position, Cureton will be responsible for overseeing all police operations of the department, including the county's three jails, as well as all investigative, patrol and apprehension units within the sheriff's office. Among those are:

- Adult and juvenile fugitive apprehension
- Narcotics and prostitution enforcement
- Highland Park patrol
- Secondary road patrol, marine patrol and park patrol
- Internal affairs and other investigative units

Cureton, who began his new job on Thursday, is no stranger to the sheriff's office. While serving as assistant chief with Detroit, he played an important role in the creation and operation of the Fugitive Apprehension Service Team (FAST), a collaborative effort between the sheriff's office and DPD that has rounded up more than 5,500 felony fugitives since it was created in January 2003. He also helped lead the formation of the Missing & Exploited Children's Task Force, another joint program that has recovered hundreds of children over the past year.

Harold has been critical to the success of these and other efforts," Evans said. "Clearly, he understands my priorities and embraces my philosophy of collaboration. Most important, he's a guy who knows how to get things done."

Evans also said that Cureton's contacts within DPD will be a tremendous asset in his efforts to develop new collaborative programs and keep current efforts in the city running effectively. "Of all the police agencies we deal with, our relationship with Detroit is the most important. In addition to our daily narcotics and prostitution enforcement in the city, we hope to develop new cooperative ventures with DPD. Harold's contacts will play an important role in that regard."

Cureton started with the department in 1972 as a police officer and rose steadily through the ranks. As lieutenant he worked with the Major Crimes Division and oversaw the Gang Enforcement Section. In 1999, Cureton was again promoted, this time from Inspector to Commander, where he oversaw DPD's Narcotics Enforcement Division. Most recently, as Deputy Chief and Assistant Chief, Cureton was in charge of the Criminal Investigations and Professional Accountability bureaus.

Cureton, who is married and has one adult son, said he is ready for a new challenge.

"Sheriff Evans has done great work over the past two years and I am honored that he has asked me to serve as part of his team," Cureton said. "The Sheriff has tremendous respect in the law enforcement community and, as a life-long cop, I am energized by the prospect of what we can do to make this county safer."

Students learn about business

High school students can meet local entrepreneurs and learn what it takes to start their own business in a new program being offered to area schools at no cost.

Schoolcraft College's Business Development Center created the Youth Entrepreneur Spirit or YES program to bring together successful entrepreneurs with junior and senior high school students in business and marketing classes.

The program is funded through a grant from the Community Foundation for Southeastern Michigan.

Highlights of the one-day program include interviews with entrepreneurs and a 'biz box' activity where groups of students receive a box filled with various unrelated items. Each group must invent a product, manufacture it and devise packaging and marketing plans for the product.

The first YES program, held in October, hosted students from Northville and Livonia Churchill high schools. Forty students interacted with owners from six small businesses.

The best part of the program was when we got to sit with the business pros and ask them questions," said Churchill marketing student Krystal Araj.

Students or teachers interested in attending an upcoming YES session can get more information by contacting Amy Reid at 734-462-4438.

Sidelines

MU cagers win

Chuck Henry recorded his first collegiate coaching victory Wednesday night when his Madonna men's basketball team upended Marygrove College, 90-79.

The Crusaders improved to 1-1 with the win while Marygrove dropped to 0-2.

"It was a close game throughout most of the game, and we trailed by four with 10 minutes left," Henry said. "But we played well down the stretch. We shot well — a lot better than we did our first game."

MU started three freshmen: Charlie Henry (Agape Christian), D.J. Bridges (Canton) and Jordan Napier (Agape Christian).

Jr. Golf Tour

Scholarship opportunities are available for local students between the ages of 12 and 18 who participate in the third season of the Top 50 Jr. Tour, which is presented by the Professional Golfers' Association Michigan Section. The program is a regional golf tour offering players tournament experience plus the opportunity to earn college scholarships.

Boys and girls are eligible for four membership. Players do not have to be members of their school teams to participate.

The tour consists of 10 qualifying rounds and 10 tournament rounds, and is held on local private and public courses.

"The top 40 qualifiers at each qualifying round play in the tournament round for free," said tour director Dan Thomas. Scholarship awards are offered based on rules of golf exams, topical essays, sportsmanship and community service. Scholarship awards can be increased as a student's grade-point average increases.

Play begins on June 11 and runs through the season-ending championship tournament on Aug. 8. The full schedule is posted on the tour's Web site at www.Top50JrTour.com. Interested parents and players should contact the tour at (248) 321-0000 or visit the tour Web site for a membership application.

The tour is presented by the PGA Michigan Section and the National Golf Scholarship Association (NGSA).

Academy opens

Former Detroit Lion Frank Gallagher and major league pitching coach Jeff Jones recently opened the Bullpen Baseball/Softball Academy in Farmington. The 12,000-square-foot facility is equipped with six batting cages and three pitching tunnels.

Included on the Bullpen's staff are Tigers hitting coach Bruce Fields, current Detroit pitcher Nate Robertson and several local collegiate players.

Youth football team builds amazing win streak

Ed Wright

Take away their identical helmet logos and nicknames, and it's easy to distinguish between the Detroit Lions National Football League team and the Canton Lions WSJFL freshmen football team.

The Detroit Lions make millions of dollars each year and drive BMWs, Escalades and Expeditions.

The Canton Lions get a few dollars each week for allowance and drive Schwinns, Huffys and BMXs

The Detroit Lions have agents who make sure their clients get fair market value.

The Canton Lions have parents who make sure their sons get their homework done.

The smallest Detroit Lion tips the scales at around 180 pounds.

The largest Canton Lion weighs about as much as Joey Harrington's wallet.

Perhaps the biggest difference between the two football teams is this:

The Detroit Lions haven't won a playoff game in over 10 years while the Canton Lions haven't lost a single football game in over two years.

Junior juggernaut

There's a mini-dynasty building at Canton's Heritage Park, where the Lions practice four nights a week — from the hot, humid days of early-

August through the bone-chilling nights of mid-November.

The Lions' freshmen unit consists of 27 players between the ages of 8 and 10 years old. According to league rules, they must weigh between 65 and 125 pounds.

Churchill's McGreevy honored

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

If the saying is true that there is no 'I' in the word team, then Livonia Churchill boys cross country coach John McGreevy found the right formula for success this fall.

"If one guy had a bad meet, somebody else would always come through," said McGreevy, who was named Observerland Coach of the Year. "It was a true team."

The Chargers opened the season by sweeping the first five individual places en route to an impressive Livonia City title. They also won the Monroe-Jefferson Invitational and the Lakes Division crown in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Churchill then captured its first-ever WLAA meet in school history, the school's first league or conference boys title since 1976. The Chargers then added a runner-up finish to Novi in the Division I regional at Schoolcraft College.

Ranked in the top ten all season, Churchill fell a little short of its final goal, settling for 15th in the state meet.

McGreevy, a guidance counselor at Churchill, is no stranger to area coaching circles. He served as both girls and boys track and cross country coach at Redford Bishop Borgess (1979 through 1994). He is a graduate of the University of Detroit (1971) and Livonia Franklin High School (1966).

"I'd have to say at the beginning of the year we had no superstar, but Connor Schultz became that guy," said the 10th-year coach, who guided the Chargers to state meet berths in 2001 and 1999.

And even though the Chargers lose five seniors to graduation, McGreevy does return two first-team All-Observer picks next season, underclassmen Brandon Grysko and Tim Howse.

Senior Katie Cezat has re-written the girls basketball records books over the past four years at Canton. She is the Chiefs' all-time leader in points scored, rebounds and blocked shots.

She's got game

Cezat plays her way into Canton record books

BY ED WRIGHT
STAFF WRITER

Pretend for a moment that you're guarding Canton's Katie Cezat during Wednesday night's Western Lakes Activities Association championship game.

You have long arms, you're quick for your size and your defensive prowess stacks up with anybody else in the league.

Cezat has just received a pass on the baseline about 15 feet from the basket. She hit three straight jumpers so, naturally, you play her tight, putting a hand in the 5-11 sharp-shooter's face.

As Cezat cocks her arms to shoot, you instinctively jump to block the shot, only — surprise! — she doesn't shoot. The next thing you know, as you float back down to earth, Cezat is dribbling down the baseline and banking in a soft lay-up.

You can now relate to the countless number of high school basketball players who have been victimized the past four years by Cezat, arguably the best female basketball player to ever wear a Chief uniform.

The scenario above unfolded during Wednesday night's WLAA title game, which ended with a vintage Cezat stat line: 29 points, 13 rebounds and three blocked shots, not to mention a decisive Canton victory.

Hard to guard

"You have to pick your poison when you play against her," said Northern coach John Sharpe. "She can shoot

School against the unbeaten Westland Meteors, the freshmen Lions have strung together 24 consecutive victories. And the New England Patriots thought their 21-game winning streak was impressive?

The young Lions last setback was a 19-8 loss to the Lincoln Raulsplitters on Oct. 6, 2002, which means they lose about as often as the Detroit Lions change head coaches. The team's formula for success isn't too complicated, according to its coach, Jim Dexter, a Canton resident who is a sergeant with the Westland Police Department.

"We have hard-working kids and we prepare for games as well as any other team out there," Dexter said when asked to explain the Lions' incredible streak.

Preparation is key

Each week, Dexter and his assistant coaches — Calvin Brown, Warren Riche, Chris Tidwell, Roger Peterson and Paul Dexter — thoroughly scout their next opponent.

"We have a coaches meeting every Monday night," he said. "We watch film from our game and our opponents' game, then we talk about what we're going to do the following week. We usually have a pretty good idea of what the other team is going to do in every situation."

Speaking of hard work, every Lion player must endure two weeks of grueling conditioning workouts in August. The opening practices consist of a series of sprints, bear crawls, more sprints, push-ups, more sprints, stomach crunches and, yes, more sprints.

While it can seem like Marine bootcamp for elementary school kids, the demanding exercise regimen is necessary to prepare the players for what lies ahead, Dexter emphasized.

"For a lot of the kids, it's the hardest two weeks of their lives," Dexter said. "But football is a tough sport and you need to be tough to play it. We've only had a couple of kids quit since I've coached here."

Another key element of the Lions' recent winning ways has been the experience the teams' back-up players receive due to the string of lopsided scores. When a team builds an 18-point lead in the WSJFL, it must remove its top eight players from the game. This opens up opportunities for the second-stringers.

"Until last week's playoff game, we had to take our 18-point kids out in the first half of every game this year," Dexter said. "This gives the younger, back-up players a lot of valuable experience. So when it's their turn to start the following year, they've already played a lot more than the kids on the other teams."

Price is money

Preparation and hard work are great, but they won't win games without talent.

That's where Braden Price comes in. The 10-year-old speedster has probably spent as much time in the end zone the past two years as he has in his own backyard.

Price, the Lions' fastest player and one of their hardest hitters on defense, scored a team-record 16 touchdowns in his rookie season last year. So far this year, Price has scored 24 TDs.

In last week's semi-final playoff victory over Ypsilanti, Price scored three times — including TD runs of 88 and 57 yards — and he racked up 298 rushing yards.

"We were good before Braden got here last year," said Canton Lions Unit Director Dan Trublow, who oversees all three Canton Lions football teams. "But he put us over the top. He's the best player in the league. He has a lot of athletic talent and when he turns the corner, nobody can catch him."

Everyone contributes

While Price has been spectacular, he's far from a one-man show. Josh Peterson, Jordan Smith, Nathan Emminger, Robert Riche and Malcolm Hollingsworth have also made major contributions to the team's success.

Every player on the roster is required to play a minimum of five plays every game, including the smallest Lion, Alex Bonifacio, who stands 4-foot-tall and weighs in at 65 pounds.

"We have a lot of players like Alex who don't play more than their five plays, but when they do get it, they contribute," Dexter said. "Alex plays offensive end for us, and even though he's not real big when he's in there, we run to his side, and he does a great job."

If you're not busy this afternoon from noon to 2 p.m., drive over to Garden City High School and check out this extraordinary team.

It's not often you can see a team named the Lions play in the Super Bowl.

FIRST TEAM

Max Working Sr Redford CC Working again demonstrated he is all about maintaining high standards both on the course and in the classroom.

He qualified for the state meet with a fourth place finish at regional (16 34). But he had other highlights. At the Catholic League championship meet he finished second with a time of 16:37 and also finished second at the Sturgis meet (16:27).

Working a third year selection to both the all city and all Catholic teams also continues to excel as a student having been selected to the All State Academic Team for the third time.

Maxwell can best be described as a jigsaw puzzle comprised of three primary pieces: character, aptitude and leadership. Catholic Central head coach Tony Magni said there is nothing pretentious about this young man who is clearly dedicated not only to running but to his studies as well.

Connor Schultz Sr Liv Churchill The All Stater capped his fine senior year by finishing 22nd overall in Division I (16:06.7).

He also finished third at the regional and was runner up in the Western Lakes Activities Association and Wayne County meets.

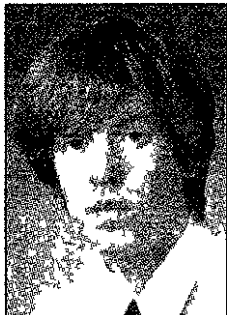

Among his titles this season included Livonia Public Schools his second straight Lakes Division and Monroe Jefferson.

In 2003 he was Churchill's MVP and ninth in the regional while in 2002 he was voted Most Improved.

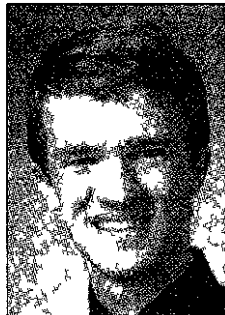

Connor had a heck of a year. Churchill coach John McGreevy said "Not only was he a fine runner but he was a great leader. He forced his teammates to run harder at every practice. His hard work over the summer paid off in November."

Dan Kapadia Jr Salem The junior who turned in a best time of 16:15 had a productive season for the state ranked Rocks Kapadia placed first in the City Championship meet fourth in the Wayne County meet third in the WLAA event sixth at the regional competition and 41st at the state meet.

Scott Fysh Sr Salem A captain Fysh finished finished 45th at this year's state meet to help lead the Rocks to a 14th place showing. He played a key role in helping the Rocks to the city championship.

Brandon Grysko Fr Liv Churchill The freshman turned in some impressive performances during his first season.

He was 132nd at the Division I state meet (17:18.05), 10th at the regional (17:04) and eighth in the WLAA (16:38). He also clocked a fourth place time of 16:45 at the Lakes Division meet at Willow Metropark and added a 17:35 at the West Bloomfield Invitational.

Brandon was called "The Kid" but he ran like a veteran. McGreevy said "I've never had such a young runner have so much success. He has a lot of talent but he owes much of his success to his competitive spirit. He's a keeper."

Jimmy Walsh Jr, Salem Walsh recorded a personal best time of 16:45 and he covered the 5,000 meter state meet course in 16:52.

He finished first in an early season time trial competition 11th at the WLAA meet eighth at the Wayne County meet and 10th at the Division I regional.

Tim Howse Jr Liv Churchill The junior was consistent throughout the season for the Chargers including a 68th place finish at the Division I state meet (16:42.2), 16th at the regional (17:27), ninth at the WLAA meet (16:42) and third in the Lakes Division (16:41). He also added a second at the Monroe Jefferson Invitational (16:29).

Howse also earned third team All Observer honors in track (3,200 meter run) and was City champion at 3,200 meters. He was Churchill's Freshman of the Year in track in 2003.

Timothy is a student of running. McGreevy said "He takes running very seriously. He prepares himself physically, mentally and spiritually for every race."

Like other runners on the team he excels in the classroom. I expect big things from him next year.

Cordarro Harper Sr Westland Glenn The three year varsity letter winner and tri-captain qualified individually for the Division I state meet where he clocked a 17:13 to finish 123rd. He earned a trip to MIS by finishing 14th at the Schoolcraft College regional in 17:19.

He added a 16th at the WLAA meet (17:05) and took ninth in the division meet (17:02).

Harper also medaled at the Wayne County meet (13th), Petoskey Invitational (14th) and Dearborn Invitational (third).

Harper was also two time Wayne Westland Community Schools champion.

After just missing to qualify for the state finals as a junior Cordarro dedicated himself to achieve this goal as a senior. Glenn coach Jess Shough said "He worked very hard all summer and continued throughout the season. He has a very successful season and is very deserving of his awards."

Pat Slavens Soph Plymouth The 10th grader earned a 14th place finish at the Tommy Titan Invitational and finished 15th at the Division I regional event with a 17:22 clocking. His 144th place finish at the state meet put him in the top 30 for sophomores.

Patrick is the hero: working athlete on the Plymouth cross country team said Plymouth coach Lee Shaw. When he trains and races you know that he will give it his all. He was the first Plymouth cross country athlete to qualify for the state meet.

Adam Kosteva Sr Salem A captain Kosteva is a two time state qualifier with a personal best time of 16:55:30.

He crossed the line third in the City Championship race and was instrumental in the Rocks' second place finish at the conference meet and third place showing at the regional competition.

Joe Horka Sr, Liv Churchill The senior finished 131st in the Division I meet in 17:17.55 after placing 12th at the regional in 17:15.

Horka placed 21st in the WLAA meet and added a sixth in both Lakes Division Invitational in 16:46, one of two meets he clocked under 17:00.

Horka took 10th in his first cross country race ever (17:23) and added a fourth at the Livonia City meet to help aid a Churchill sweep.

Joe is one tough runner. McGreevy said "He was the key to our success at the conference meet. Joe was suffering from a head cold yet finished 21st. He was in lousy shape at the end of the race but he did not give up. He ran tough all year."

Anthony Scaparo Soph Plymouth Scaparo turned in a fifth place effort at the City Championship meet and he broke the school record at the WLAA league meet with a time of 16:57. He finished second at the Dearborn Divine Child Invitational and fifth at the WLAA Western Division meet.

Anthony has been a great addition to the cross country team here at Plymouth. Shaw said "For a first year runner he has really burst onto the high school scene. He is the current school record holder with a time of 16:57 which he ran at the WLAA conference meet."

outside, drive to the basket, post up, and pass the ball very well. She's extremely tough to cover.

Cezat's totals of 1,350 points, 984 rebounds and 178 blocked shots are all school records, according to Canton coach Bob Blohm, who has relied on Cezat's consistent brilliance since she made the varsity team as a freshman during the 2001 season.

"Katie is a unique player because she's a strong post player, plus she moves well away from the rim," Blohm asserted. "Katie's versatility and size make her very difficult to guard."

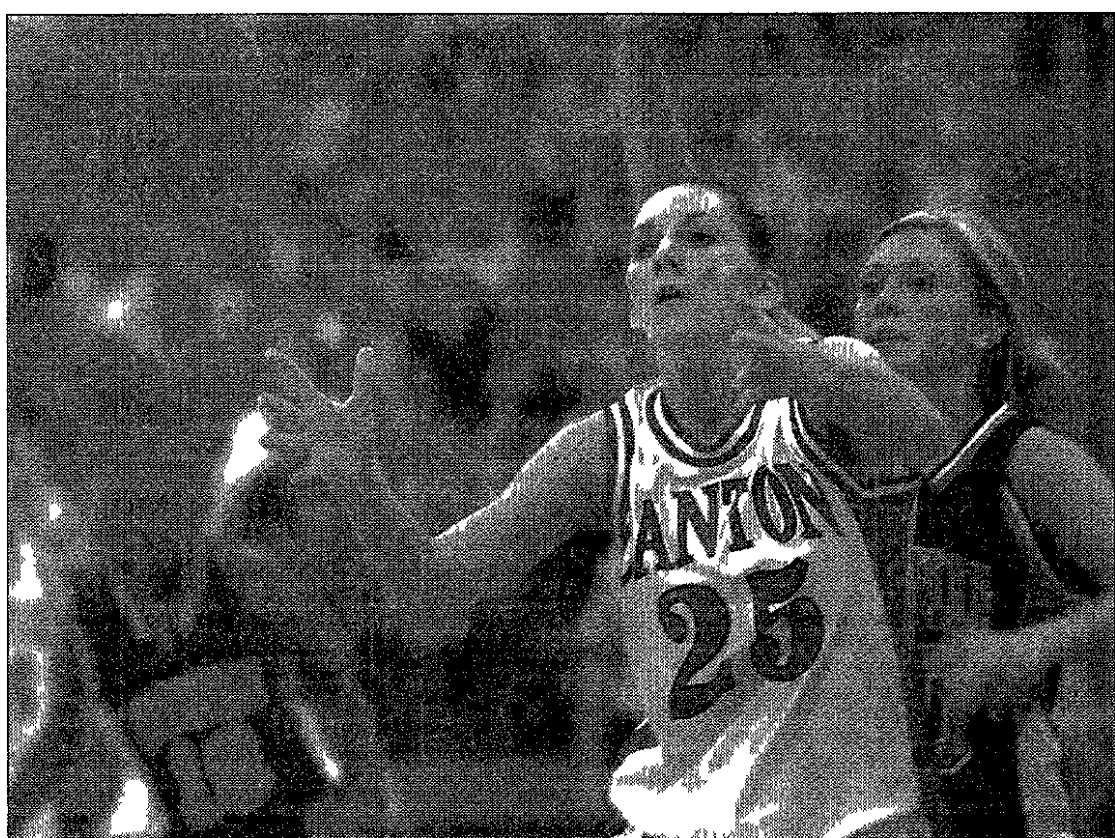

Cezat's lofty statistics are doubly impressive considering most of the teams Canton has played the past two years designed their defenses to stop No. 25.

"The thing about Katie is she doesn't get frustrated when she's double-teamed and not getting the ball enough," Blohm said. "If she's not getting the ball, she'll go get offensive rebounds and score that way. She's not afraid to step up either when the game is close and we need a big shot. She wants the ball."

Cezat's path to the Canton record books was initially paved in the first grade when her parents, Keith and Elizabeth, signed up the energetic 6-year-old for a hoop clinic at the YMCA. Following two years of "Y" clinics, Cezat played a couple years in the Plymouth-Canton Junior Basketball League before moving on to Our Lady of Good Counsel, where she starred in the Catholic Youth Organization leagues.

Two of her teammates at OLCG were current teammates Molly Conlon and Salem standout Alyssa Guern.

"I usually played up a league against older players, so that made me a better player," Cezat said. "I've always liked basketball, even at a young age. It came easy to me."

TOM HAWLEY | STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Canton's Katie Cezat receives a pass during the Chiefs' victory over Northville on Oct. 14. Cezat will lead Canton into the state tournament next week.

Early promotion

Cezat realized how much potential — and talent — she actually had when Blohm reserved a varsity roster spot for her when she was in the ninth grade.

"At first it was kind of strange my freshman year because I was playing with and against some of the girls who had coached me at summer camp," Cezat reflected. "I knew making varsity was special because there weren't too many players who did that. It was a great experience for me."

Cezat started all but three games her freshman season, averaging 5.5 points and 4.8 rebounds per game.

As a sophomore, Cezat's talent started rising to the surface as she scored a team-high 16.2 points per game and grabbed 10.8 rebounds.

The thing I remember the most about that year was how close we came to winning the regional, Cezat said. "West Bloomfield beat us in overtime in the regional final. That was a great team with six really good seniors. I learned a lot that year."

One lesson she'll never forget was one on assertiveness, which was taught to her by teammate Krissy Lake.

Krissy taught me how important it is to be vocal out on the court," Cezat said.

When she wanted the ball, she would shout "Ball!" really loud, so that's what I try to do when I know I can score on someone. My teammates do a good job of getting it to me, too."

Helping hand

Cezat's primary out-of-the-spotlight contribution this year has been serving as a mentor and tutor to freshman post player Marie Martin, who is one of the Chiefs' key reserves this season.

"I want to help Marie as much as I can because I know how difficult it is to play on the varsity as a freshman," Cezat said. "I try to help her with her post moves and with all the plays we run. It's easier for the girls who work their way up to varsity from the freshman and junior varsity teams because they've had more time to learn everything. Marie has done really well."

Cezat's academic achievements are comparable to her stellar athletic feats. The two-year National Honor Society member has crafted a 3.65 grade-point average. She admitted she's still uncertain about which college she will be attending next year.

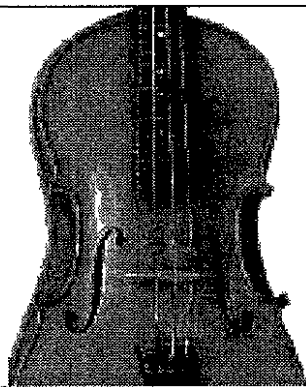

"I want to go to a big school with strong academics," said Cezat, who admitted there is a chance she may not play collegiate basketball despite the fact she's being recruited by several schools. "I definitely want to play in college, but academics are important to me as well."

Cezat said her high school basketball days have flown by way too fast.

"It's definitely going to be sad when I walk off the court for the last time," she said. "But I gave it everything I had all four years, so I have no regrets."

Canton to host deep girls hoop district

BY ED WRIGHT
STAFF WRITER

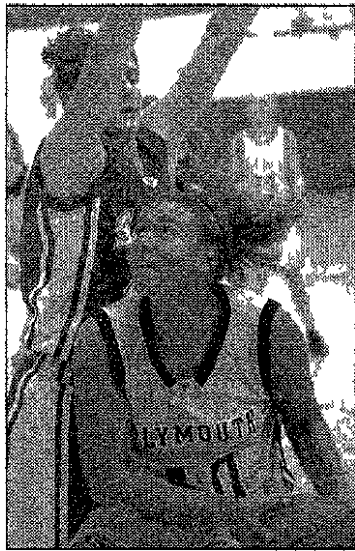

Canton High School will host one of the deepest, most competitive Division 1 girls basketball district tournaments in the state beginning Monday night.

Four of the six teams in the District 25A brackets sport winning records and a fifth, Plymouth, finished 9-11 and a respectable sixth in the 12-team Western Lakes Activities Association.

"It's definitely a strong field, said Canton coach Bob Blohm, whose team is considered by many to be a slight favorite heading into the tourney. "Whenever you have a single-elimination format, anything can happen. The team that stays focused and gets hot at the right time will advance to the regional."

Monday's two first-round match-ups will pit Novi (14-6) against Northville (13-7) at 5:30 p.m. and South Lyon (2-18) against Canton (15-5) at 7 p.m.

The Wildcats are led by Rachel Folino, who packs a strong scoring punch. The junior poured in 22 points in Novi's season-opening victory over Canton in late-August. The lightning-quick Mustangs are paced by All-WLAA Division standouts Simone Toney and Evonna Karchon.

TOM HAWLEY | STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Plymouth's Jeanine Moise attempts to score against Salem's Teresa Coppellie during Wednesday night's Western Lakes Activities Association consolation game won by the Rocks. Both Salem and Plymouth drew first-round byes for next week's Division 1 district basketball tournament at Canton High School.

The Lions struggled this season after losing their two top players to injury.

"We're young and we're short, which is not a good combination, especially when you have to play Canton," said South Lyon coach Jim Brennan. "We don't have any seniors that play regularly and our tallest players are 5-7 and 5-8. We just don't match well with Canton."

Canton knocked the Lions out of last year's district tournament, 36-33. The Chiefs eventually went on to claim the title, downing Salem in the final.

Salem will take on the winner of the Novi-Northville game on Wednesday at 5:30 p.m. The always-dangerous Rocks, who finished 14-6, feature a deep, balanced attack. Senior Ellen Canale was the team's top scorer, netting 12.5 points per game. However, three other Rocks — Alyssa Guerin, Teresa Coppellie and Kathryn Wheatley — averaged around eight points a contest.

"If a team tries to shut down one of our players, we have three others who can pick up the slack," said Salem coach Fred Thomann. "We split with Northville this year and Novi has a good team, so it's not going to be easy no matter who we have to play."

Plymouth will square off against the winner of the Canton-South Lyon game Wednesday night at 7 p.m. The Wildcats and Chiefs have already met twice this season with Canton winning both games.

The district championship game is set for Friday night at 7 p.m.

Belleville cagers bounce Roosevelt

BY ED WRIGHT
STAFF WRITER

Wyandotte Roosevelt found out the hard way Thursday night that double-teaming Belleville's lightning-quick guards is not an effective strategy.

Tiger backcourt mates Tia Lewis and Taylor Manly combined for 21 points to lead Belleville to a 46-36 win at Roosevelt. The victory left the winners with a 9-10 mark heading into next week's Division 1 district tournament at Garden City.

Roosevelt finished 2-18. Lewis finished with 11 while Manly canned 10. "Roosevelt double-teamed Taylor in the first half and Tia had nine points," said Belleville coach Kevin Edwards. "Then in the second half, they doubled Tia and Taylor had nine points. All the girls played hard tonight. It was a total team effort."

Three other Belleville players chipped in with solid offensive efforts. Renee Seng and Jasmine Peterson both netted seven points while Qeytia Martin had six. Cynthia McGoldrick scored just a single point, but she pulled down a team-high 10 rebounds.

"We're trying to get Cynthia to shoot more, but

'Personally, I think we would match-up better against Romulus because we can't match up real well against Garden City's size.'

Kevin Edwards
coach, Belleville basketball team all she wants to do is play defense and rebound," said Edwards.

Chelsea Stover and Monica Fortuna led Roosevelt with eight points each.

Belleville drew a bye for the first round of the district tournament. On Thursday evening, the Tigers will take on the winner of Tuesday night's Garden City-Romulus match-up.

Romulus features a fast-paced, push-the-ball-up-the-court style of play while the Cougars are known for their size up front.

"You'd would think Romulus would win this game, but you never know after last year," Edwards said. "I expected Romulus to win, but Garden City beat them."

"Personally, I think we would match-up better against Romulus because we can't match up real well against Garden City's size. Romulus plays more upbeat like us."

FLAT ROCK 56, AGAPE CHRISTIAN 28: The Wolverines led 15-14 late in the second quarter before the Warriors reeled off a 6-0 run to end the half.

"It was never a game after that," Agape coach Chuck Henry said. "We handled their defensive pressure pretty well in the first half, but we turned the ball over a lot in the second half."

The game was knotted at 8-8 after one quarter. The hosts nabbed a 20-15 halftime lead before surging to a 39-19 advantage after three stanzas.

Brianna Chrenko paced the Wolverines with nine points. Lindsay Gant contributed six.

The Warriors' Carissa Scott led all scorers with 16 points. Agape drained 8-of-13 free throws while Flat Rock sank 7-of-18.

The Wolverines, who finished the regular season with a 9-11 mark, open district tournament play Thursday night against the winner of Tuesday's Huron Valley Lutheran-Detroit Urban Lutheran contest. The district is being hosted by Detroit Urban Lutheran.

Dinner will honor Hall of Fame-bound bowlers

Today's Greater Detroit Bowling Hall of Fame dinner at the Ukrainian Cultural Center in Warren will honor this year's inductees including Jeanne Gebbia of Dearborn, Tony DaDeppo of Troy, Ray Williams and Myrtha Cooper, both of Detroit. Paul Stuart of Ferndale, George Zamea of Grosse Pointe Dorothy Thompson from Shelby Township and the late Dan Ottman from Troy.

Ten Pin Alley

Cherry Hill Lanes is the site of the Friday Men's Classic, in which two more bowlers came through with perfect games, Larry Hunley, Sr., of Garden City, and Fred Davis of Dearborn. I was there to present their 300 award rings on behalf of the ABC/GDBA.

Hockey is still alive in the Detroit area. I recently spoke with Doug Peacock, Director of Community Relations with the Plymouth Whalers Hockey Club. He would like to see the many bowling enthusiasts in this area come out and enjoy watching some exciting hockey played by young men (ages 16-20) who are aspiring to make it to the National Hockey League in the future.

There are several players in the league who have already been drafted by NHL teams such as Whaler player Vaclav Meidl, 18, from the Czech Republic, by the Nashville Predators. The home games are played at Compuware Arena (seating 3,500) located on Beck Road just a quarter mile north of the M-14. The Whalers are one of the elite teams in the Ontario Hockey League (OHL), comprised of 20 teams, of which three are in the U.S. and the other 17 in Ontario.

Most games start at 7:30 p.m. and it is an inexpensive way for you and your whole family to enjoy your non-bowling evening.

Al Harrison is a Livonia resident and a director with the Greater Detroit Bowling Association. He can be reached at (248) 477-1839.

Bob Chamberlain, one of this area's top performers for many years has recently been selected to the American Bowling Congress Hall of Fame. Induction ceremonies will be March 17 at the River Center in Baton Rouge, La., also the site of the 2005 ABC tournament and convention.

Chamberlain, 55, was a member of the great Stroh's Beer team that captured the ABC tournament in 1980 and finished third in 1981.

He has five other ABC tournament top 20 finishes and holds a 205 average for 37 ABC events.

As a Professional Bowlers Association tour member, Chamberlain earned two titles including the 1984 PBA National Championship in Toledo, Ohio.

His success continued into the PBA senior ranks where he has won four titles.

Chamberlain was the PBA senior player of the year in 2003 and has earned three Bowling Magazine Senior All America honors.

When I grew up my favorite TV show was Championship Bowling," Chamberlain said. "Many of the greats who bowled on that show made the ABC Hall of Fame. As I look back at it, being in the hall with those guys is something you could only dream about."

Along with Chamberlain, Todd Savoy of Superior, Wis. and former ABC communications executive Steve James of Fox Point, Wis. are also inductees for 2005.

Build a ramp: No experience is necessary

Last month, Steve Alexandrowski recruited other Rotarians to build a ramp for Marilyn, a senior citizen who lives in Plymouth Township.

Marilyn, who is in her 70s and uses a wheelchair, has to leave her home three times a week for medical treatments. Her caregiver, Elaine, also in her 70s, makes sure she gets to her appointments, but it's been difficult for Elaine to help Marilyn walk down stairs.

A ramp would make getting to these doctor visits a little less dangerous.

Fellow Rotarian Jerry Trumpka brought the idea to Steve's attention. Steve said, "To my knowledge none of us had ever built a ramp before." Steve invited his friend, Eric Banner, to "lead our team of builders." Eric is an engineer at Ford and a very talented builder.

The team designed the ramp and Plymouth Rotary A.M. purchased the materials. On Oct. 23, Eric and Steve — along with Eric Zylinski, Bob Scoggins, Tom Sweeney, Mark Hammer, Prayush Sarawat and Peter Bunting — built a ramp for Marilyn's home.

Seven short hours later the ramp was finished and they were ready, willing and eager to tackle a few more chores.

"We repaired a leaking shower, replaced a staircase with safer stairs, cleaned light fixtures, repaired the back light, repaired the door to shed, and cleaned gutters," Steve said. "The club decided to do the project because the need was very real."

This was just one of the 53 projects Plymouth United Way facilitated on Make a Difference Day, said Jerry Trumpka, Communications and Special Events Coordinator, Plymouth United Way. More than 120 volunteers, young and old, worked around town, helped seniors with yard work and replaced smoke detector batteries and light bulbs.

United Way also partnered with the Plymouth Symphony. The Celebration Youth Orchestra played music for children at the Arts Council and afterwards everyone had the chance to carve pumpkins.

Jerry said, "It was a very successful day. So many people in the community have caught the volunteer spirit. It's quite a blessing to see that many people give up a day out of their schedule to help others."

Earlier this fall, United Way collected school supplies for children. Coming up in November and December, they will partner with the Plymouth Whalers for a Food Drive for Salvation Army and collect Teddy Bears, which will be 'donated to local United Way's children's charities."

In December the Plymouth Rotary A.M. Club will kick off the holiday season by giving a party for children and their families at the Tanger Center and hosting a dinner for Senior Citizens at the Cultural Center.

If you've been looking for a way to make a difference, little or big, but don't know what to do, Steve Alexandrowski or Jerry Trumpka can probably find a project for you. Experience not necessary.

And if you ever wake up early and can't get back to sleep, you are welcome to join other Rotarians every Tuesday morning at 7:00 a.m. at the Cultural Center. There's always coffee, juice and breakfast to help get your day off to a healthy start.

Salvation Army offers help with dignity for those in need

BY HUGH GALLAGHER
STAFF WRITER

Five years ago, Donna was going through a divorce from an abusive husband. She had four children, and rising debts when she sought help from First Step.

As Christmas approached the counselors at First Step suggested that Donna go to the Salvation Army's Plymouth Community Center and meet with Bill Moritz, the social services director.

Lisa Webster grew up in a Salvation Army family. Her parents are commissioned officers in the Chicago area. Now Lisa works in an after-school program, guiding kids and helping them with homework as she works on her teaching degree.

The suggestion proved to be, as she says, "a godsend."

"Bill is the most wonderful man, he's done so much for my family, especially my kids," said Donna, who asked that her last name not be used.

"When you go to FIA (the states Family Independence Agency) or any other agency, they do not treat you with respect. You can't carry on a conversation with them or get them to answer a phone call. When I call Bill, he welcomes me with open arms and I always feel respect and dignity. I never feel I have to swallow my pride to come to speak with him."

Being treated with respect and dignity is a common theme for those who turn to the Salvation Army for help. The Christian-based organization is probably best known for its shelters and its annual Red Kettle Christmas fund-raiser, but the Army offers a wide range of services for youth, struggling families and the elderly.

This past week, centers throughout Metro Detroit were taking requests for the Christmas holidays.

At the Plymouth center on South Main, Moritz said the Army assists 600 families year with a variety of services. During the Christmas season, Moritz said his case load doubles.

"A lot of people can make it through the year, but during the holidays, you need extra money to buy things for the kids," he said. Through a program called THAW, the Army provides utility payments for those who have received shutoff notices with a grant from the Michigan Public Utilities Commission. Consumers Energy helps with a no-strings contribution program called People Care.

The center has a food pantry that provides a nutritional selection of foods for people waiting for their food stamps.

In the summer, the center operates a summer camp for kids.

When people with drug or alcohol problems come to the center, Moritz gets them into a rehabilitation center. When a person has trouble making a rent payment, the Army offers assistance.

LOCAL NEEDS

The Salvation Army image set in most minds is an inner city mission serving the homeless with food and prayers and the brass bands at Christmas time. But more prosperous suburbs also have people in need all year long.

It's not so much the homeless, but I've met quite a few people with drug and alcohol problems that have needed treatment," Moritz said Monday. Around here there's a big problem with fathers leaving the home, so now there's a single mother who has never worked in her life and she has children to raise and she doesn't know what to do. There is a lot of need.

Moritz understands about being in need and finding help at the Salvation Army.

"I'm an ex-addict and I was at the end of my rope and was going to off myself and ended up in the hospital because of that," he said. "I went to the Salvation Army for rehabilitation and was sent to the Harbor Light rehab center. I was cleaned up, I got saved and that was it. They took time and invested in me, I became a social worker through them. My learning comes from

Quilting helps her keep memories alive

BY JACK GLADDEN
STAFF WRITER

If you like to take a trip down memory lane, forget the scrapbooks and the photo albums.

Canton resident Christine Popoff will take those treasured photos — or just about any other memorabilia — and turn them into memory quilts. Or wall hangings. Or quilted runners or table toppers.

She'll even make a memory tree skirt for your Christmas tree or a mantle scarf to go over the fireplace celebrating different holidays.

Popoff started quilting 18 years ago. "When I learned how to quilt, I forgot how to cook," she said. "It's all done free-form. Any memorabilia can go into a quilt."

She said graduation quilts are the No. 1 request she gets.

"People come in with boxes of T-shirts," she said. "Its 18 years of memories to go into a quilt that the kids can take to college with them. Every one of these quilted treasures tells a story. Popoff, who describes herself as a workaholic, said she took a sewing course in her sophomore year of high school.

"I always took the extra credit," she said. "If I was asked to make one garment, I'd make three. I made most of my clothes in high school."

When she stated quilting, she said, she bought a book on quilting and learned the art of stippling.

"It gives texture to the finished product," she said.

Popoff makes many quilts for family and friends as gifts. But she gets many ideas from her customers, whose biggest complaint, she said, is "Where have you been?"

"Most of my customers bring in an envelope full of pictures. We select the ones to use and they help design it," she said.

When a friend was moving to Canada, Popoff made a quilt for her to remember her neighbors in the states.

"I made it red, white and blue," she said.

For end-of-the-year graduation gifts for teachers she's made pillows with the full class picture on them.

The first quilt she made was a gift for her father. It was a retirement quilt and was done in all black and white.

She does all the work on "one little machine" in her home.

a few steps ahead of the latest health scare that we're convinced is just around the corner. Stress is a fact of daily life, attacking our immune systems raising blood pressure, affecting sleep, work and cardiovascular health. Riley guides the audience through the maze of information overload with practical, anecdotal advice on how to approach good health using humor and common sense.

Riley demonstrates how we can live all of our allotted days on this planet with less stress by making intelligent, informed decisions about our health and well being by taking responsibility, expect to be well in order to live a long and healthy life, and anticipate the best. Remember, the winner of the rat race isn't always the healthiest rat.

Gail Riley

Online photo auction to help Soup Kitchen

The fourth annual Visions of the Sacred Web site auction to raise money for the Capuchin Soup Kitchen continues through midnight Sunday, Nov. 21. World renowned photo journalists have donated their work for this online auction.

To preview the works up for auction, visit www.visionsacred.org. There are two ways to bid - either online or by viewing the photos in person at the Solanus Center at 1780 Mt. Elliott in Detroit and dropping a bid in box at the center which is open 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily. Photo journalists have donated two copies of each work. One copy will be sold to the highest bidder.

The second copy will be part of a gallery event with all prints eventually going to the Capuchin Soup Kitchen and to Jefferson House where the people who live and eat and recover there will be surrounded by artistic images of hope and love.

Photographers were encouraged to contribute prints that capture their vision of what is beautiful and sacred in the world.

All proceeds from the auction go to the Capuchin Soup Kitchen to feed, clothe and provide spiritual nourishment to Detroit's neediest people in addition to helping addicts recover at Jefferson House.

For more information, call (313) 579-2100, ext. 203

Moving a Relative with Memory Loss: A Family Caregiver's Guide

Are you struggling with making the decision to move your loved one with memory loss?

How will you talk to your loved one about the move?

Would you like to make this moving transition as smooth as possible?

Moving a loved one to a residential care community can be one of the most difficult emotional decisions that family members will ever have to make. However, there are many things that family caregivers can do to ease this transition. Beth Spencer is a member of the Alzheimer's Association Speakers Bureau and has worked with older adults and their families for 30 years. She is co-author of Understanding Difficult Behaviors and Moving a Relative with Memory Loss: A Family Caregiver's Guide. During this seminar, Beth Spencer will help families understand some of the issues involved in the moving process and offer practical ideas for making the move as easy as possible.

Star Struck

(Nov 14 Nov 17)
By Dennis Fairchild

ARIES (March 21-April 20)

With so many irons in the fire Ram it's a pity to have to caution you that the financial outlook is anything but rosy right now. On the other hand you'll have everything you could possibly need once you tell certain individuals to grow up and fend for themselves—sooner not later!

TAURUS (April 21-May 21)

The Sun now passing through your opposite sign may be bringing problems of an intensely personal nature to a head. However after countless unproductive discussions over finances you are finally holding an unusual number of trump cards and are in a position to speed things along.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21)

You're unlikely to see to eye with colleagues while the dynamic planet Uranus is crossing an important angle of your solar chart. However stick to the course you've chosen and stay true to your principles because it won't be long before you get a chance to turn the tables.

CANCER (June 22-July 23)

Each stage of life confronts one with new challenges. And if you're typical of your birth sign then you now realize that the kind of personal satisfaction or professional recognition you seek can only be found in a different environment or people. Switch gears, MoonKid!

LEO (July 24-Aug 23)

Having streamlined your affairs and put relationships on a firmer footing long standing arrangements can now be tackled with confidence. A decisive aspect between the Moon and Sun this week will be all it takes to get you thinking and moving in a new direction.

VIRGO (Aug 24-Sept 23)

Adapting to change is seldom easy for a Virgo—there simply has to be order. However planetary activity now through Thanksgiving signifies you will come to realize that changes are gifts announcing your willingness to give others the chance to provide what you seek.

LIBRA (Sept 24-Oct 23)

Good gosh—is it holiday time already? Something at home will demand all your attention this week and if you're wise you'll not try to wiggle out of what is expected of you. Your freedom may be precious to you but you also have obligations to others.

SCORPIO (Oct 24-Nov 21)

Although recent developments have left many Scorps bewildered don't lament what might have been. After the Sun changes signs on the 21st you'll no longer feel quite so neglected. New opportunities are about to arrive and you must be ready to take advantage of them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 23-Dec 21)

To be born under the sign of Archer is to be as straight as an arrow and brutally honest. Therefore in spite of current emotional difficulties you must make a number of decisive moves this week and set the record straight. For a while now you've been moving in the wrong direction. Fess up kiddo!

CAPRICORN (Dec 22-Jan 21)

A series of spectacular planetary aspects now urges you to back your own instincts to the limit and not allow others' mood swings to make you go against your better judgment. If you've decided to move on then it can only be because the time is right for you to broaden your horizons.

AQUARIUS (Jan 22-Feb 19)

Since late summer you've been urged to find the speck of gold in the sand (as tedious as it's been). Now it should be staring you in the face. In fact the Moon in your sign next weekend says that the time has come to concentrate only on what affects your long term happiness.

PISCES (Feb 20-March 20)

You seem to be smarting from last week's put downs and unfortunately this coming days with the Moon and ruling planet aspects signify that a make or break situation in one very special tie is about to take place. However the ball is no longer in your court and you must learn to accept the things you simply cannot change.

Farmington Players introduces 112-year-old play 'Charley's Aunt'

Who is 112 years old and still one, funny chick?

It's Charley's Aunt a farcical play written and produced by Brandon Thomas in 1892 that opens Nov 19 at the Farmington Players Barn in Farmington Hills.

This hilarious, entertaining and romantic comedy is full of mistaken identities, sight gags and physical humor and, of course, a man dressed as a woman.

"With its fast pace, 10-person cast and complicated stage action, the show requires a high level of concentration and split-second timing," said Emily McSweeney, director of Charley's Aunt.

The plot centers around two undergraduates at Oxford University, madly in love with two beauties.

The love-struck students invite the girls to lunch, ostensibly to meet Charley's rich, widowed aunt. All the plans go awry when the aunt telegraphs that she won't arrive in time. Without the aunt as a chaperone, the young men quickly realize the girls won't come to lunch.

The answer presents itself, however, when a fellow student appears wearing women's clothing that he is trying on for a theatrical review. He is immediately seized and forced to masquerade as the doting aunt.

Things get more complicated with the arrival of additional characters that add to the comedic confusion.

This joyous, farcical romp is another in a long line of memorable productions staged by the Farmington Players, now in their 53rd year.

This is their third season in their all-new barn theater, located on 12 Mile Road between Farmington and Orchard Lake roads.

The Farmington Players Present Charley's Aunt by Brandon Thomas will be presented at 8 p.m. Nov 19, 20, 26, 27, Dec 2, 3, 4, 9, 10, 11 and at 2 p.m. on Nov 21, 28, Dec 5. Tickets are $13 regular price, $10 on Thursdays and for seniors on Sunday, Nov 21 only. Group sales rates available. Box Office (248) 553-2955.

The theatre is at 32332 W 12 Mile Rd. Farmington Hills. Visit www.farmingtonplayers.org for more information.

The following Farmington Players present the production: Director, Emily McSweeney, assistant director, Janet Gnis, co-producers, Linda Springall, Tim Timmer, stage managers, Maggie Einhouse, Tim Timmer.

Cast members are John Nowaczyk as Jack Chesney, Tom Griffin as Brassett, Ross Grossman as Charley Wykeham, John Boufford, first 2 weekends as Lord Fancourt Babberley, Chris Oakley, last 2 weekends as Lord Fancourt Orchard Lake roads.

The Farmington Players Present Charley's Aunt by Brandon Thomas will be presented at 8 p.m. Nov 19, 20, 26, 27, Dec 2, 3, 4, 9, 10, 11 and at 2 p.m. on Nov 21, 28, Dec 5. Tickets are $13 regular price, $10 on Thursdays and for sen-

Benefit lights up Angela Hospice program

Nearly 600 people turned out to show their support for the work of Angela Hospice.

Founded in 1985 in Livonia, Angela Hospice has helped thousands of families across Southeast Michigan.

The 17th annual Light Up a Life Benefit, held Oct 24 at Laurel Manor, raised $170,000 for programs that support terminally ill individuals and their families.

"I am so pleased with the success of this event," said Angela Hospice president and CEO, Sister Mary Giovanni.

The generosity of our hosts, George and Dolores Riley, the dedication of our staff and volunteers, and the support of our loyal benefactors all helped to make this possible. Guests at the event enjoyed a full evening, with live and silent auctions, a cocktail reception, dinner, and three musical acts.

Fanchon Stinger of Fox-2 Detroit was the evening's auctioneer.

Stinger helped to bring in over $10,000 on the live auction, where heavy bidding ensued on items such as a Hawaii condo stay and a behind-the-scenes trip to the set of Law & Order Special Victims Unit. A 4-piece family room set from Livonia's Chris Furniture was another hot item.

"The feedback from our guests has been wonderful," said Alice Barringer, Angela Hospice's Development Manager. "We're so happy that so many people came out to support our hospice, and they seemed to have a really enjoyable evening."

Raffle drawings added to the evening's excitement, with the top prize for the "Father/OR" raffle going to Beulah White, a nurse aide in Angela Hospice's home care program.

"Many times people don't realize how important it is to support organizations like Angela Hospice," said Barringer. "But we couldn't run our programs on insurance reimbursement alone, because many of the services we provide are not covered by insurance. It's the support of our community donors and our fabulous volunteers that enable Angela Hospice to provide such personalized, compassionate care."

Chent Colleen Davison works with Bill Moritz

SALVATION

the streets, I was on the streets a long time

That street learning and empathy pay off when dealing with chents who come to the Army for assistance during the holidays and throughout the year

"One year I cried for a week, to tell you the truth," said Colleen Davison of Canton, mother of five children whose life took a downturn when her husband died three years ago. There was no food in the house. I cried for a week and if it was n't for the Salvation Army and Bill. They care about you, you're not a number. You call here and Bill knows your name and how many kids you have, he doesn't have to look it up.

Michelle St. Pierre, director of media relations for the metro Detroit Salvation Army, said FIA and other agencies will often send clients to the Army first.

"We let them cry. They need someone to listen to them and guide them," she said.

Because of grant requirements, some assistance is based on federal poverty guidelines, but St. Pierre said the Army always tries to find a way to help anyone in a crisis situation.

The Plymouth Community Center is a model of what the Salvation Army offers at centers throughout the area. St. Pierre said. In addition to the well-stocked pantry, there is also a gymnasium and meeting rooms. The Salvation Army is also a religion and the chapel is an important part of every Army center, but the Army's services are available to everyone.

"We don't discriminate against anyone who comes," said St. Pierre, a Catholic. "We invite you to come to the services. We're not preaching to people but let them know we're a church organization."

Donna has found a lot of support through the organization. While she works in the summer, her twins, now 13, have enjoyed the summer camp. Moritz has found ways to get bicycles and winter coats for the children. When an older son became involved with drugs, Moritz went to sit and pray with him at the hospital. And when Donna decided to try to put down roots, the Army helped with a down payment on a house that she is leasing with an option to buy.

For Joanne Shettler, 22, of Canton, a recent visit was her first to the center. She has two children, ages 4 and 2, and she needs help to give them a Christmas. A neighbor told her about the Salvation Army's programs.

She said they were very helpful and didn't look down on you because you were asking for the help and they were really nice and willing to help you, Shettler said.

Moritz said many clients first come to the Army because they've been told by friends and neighbors about the Army's programs.

YOUTH PROGRAMS

In addition to summer camp programs at the centers, the Army also sponsors year-round clubs for boys and girls and the Strive basketball program, which requires that players do their homework and get tutoring before they practice.

On Monday, at the Army's Wayne Westland Center on Venoy in Westland, Captain Mundie O'Neil was getting ready to prepare a meal for students enrolled in the Skillman Afterschool Program, partially funded by the Skillman Foundation. Children come to the center after school to play in the gym, eat a hot meal, do their homework and get some tutoring.

Lisa Webster, a sophomore at Oakland Community College, was setting out learning games. She has been working this semester as a tutor.

"They like and enjoy games but they learn at the same time," Webster said. "What we try to do is to love them."

Webster, whose parents are Salvation Army officers, wants to be an elementary teacher and works five days a week with the Afterschool Program.

Lashandra Reynolds of Westland is another soldier in the Salvation Army. She was introduced to the religion as a teenager when her mother sought treatment for addiction. Reynolds helped her mother and joined the Army choir.

In October, she returned to the Army to receive help and to offer help.

She was recently laid off and her electricity was cut off, so she came to the Army for assistance.

The Salvation Army cares for people, they listen to you," she said. "I will always be here to help them as a volunteer."

Salvation Army launches on-line volunteer drive

The Salvation Army is going high tech in its effort to recruit 50,000 bellringers for the annual holiday Red Kettle drive, Nov. 22 to Dec. 24, Sundays excluded.

The Eastern Michigan Division has launched its first on-line volunteer drive.

It's a new program for us, said Russ Russell, executive director of development for the division. "We're trying to get technologically savvy. We've got to recruit people. We have over 300 locations where kettles will be located."

Bell ringing opportunities are posted at www.ringbell.org. "You can go in, log on and go right to sites that are close to your ZIP code," Russell said.

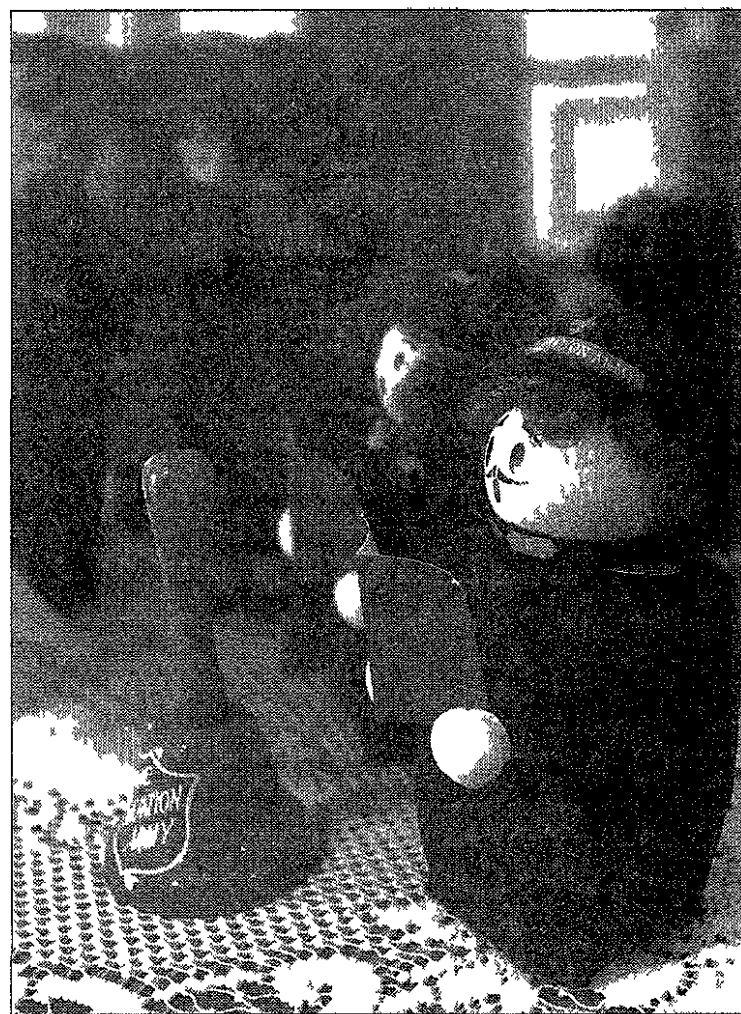

Volunteers can sign up for two or three hour shifts. Last year, 20 percent of the kettles were manned by volunteers, this year Russell said the Army is hoping to recruit up to 50 percent of their bellringers.

Some of our clients are bell ringers and it's a way for them to make money, we do help people to build their work ethic," Russell said. "But our goal is to get as many volunteers as we can to cut our costs and to use the dollars to help the poor in the metro Detroit area."

Russell said the need has increased significantly and that the fund-raising effort has been hampered by the decision of some merchants, notably Target, not to allow bellringers in front of their stores.

Russell said the campaign will need to make up $250,000 lost by not having the Target sites.

The Red Kettle campaign takes in $1.6 million a year in Metro Detroit, part of $4.65 million raised with corporate and individual donations.

Also new this year is the Red Kettle Klub. Donors sign up to receive a miniature Red Kettle to take home and fill with change to "Make Change Happen."

The Red Kettle Klub allows donors to share the philanthropic spirit with family and friends during holiday parties and gatherings inside their homes.

Kettle Klub, call (248) 443-5500 or visit redkettlecampaign.org.

The Salvation Army was founded by William Booth in England in 1865.

The faith-based organization began working in Michigan in 1887 and currently operates 180 facilities in the state. Annually, these facilities provide more than 3.5 million meals and 600,000 nights of shelter for the homeless.

A cure for winter blues

Were getting into the time of year when the weather is less than perfect. The warm, dry days of summer will give way to rain, snow and ice. And in Michigan we can get all three in one day.

Now we can't just hibernate until springtime. And that means we have to be prepared to go out in whatever Mother Nature throws at us. And even though I'm fortunate enough to spend a few months in Florida, I'm still here for part of the fall and winter. So here's a few tips that I follow and I hope you will, too.

■ Dress for the weather. A coat, gloves, scarf, hat and boots will protect you from the wet and the cold.

■ Drive even more carefully, if it's raining or snowing the best thing to do is slow down, give yourself more room between you and the car in front of you. And always wear a seat belt, no matter what time of year.

■ Stay active. Walk around the mall or jog in place at home.

■ Eat healthy foods and drink enough water. In winter, we tend to drink less water than in summer, but it's just as important to stay hydrated in the winter.

Before you know it, spring will be back, and you'll still be in shape.

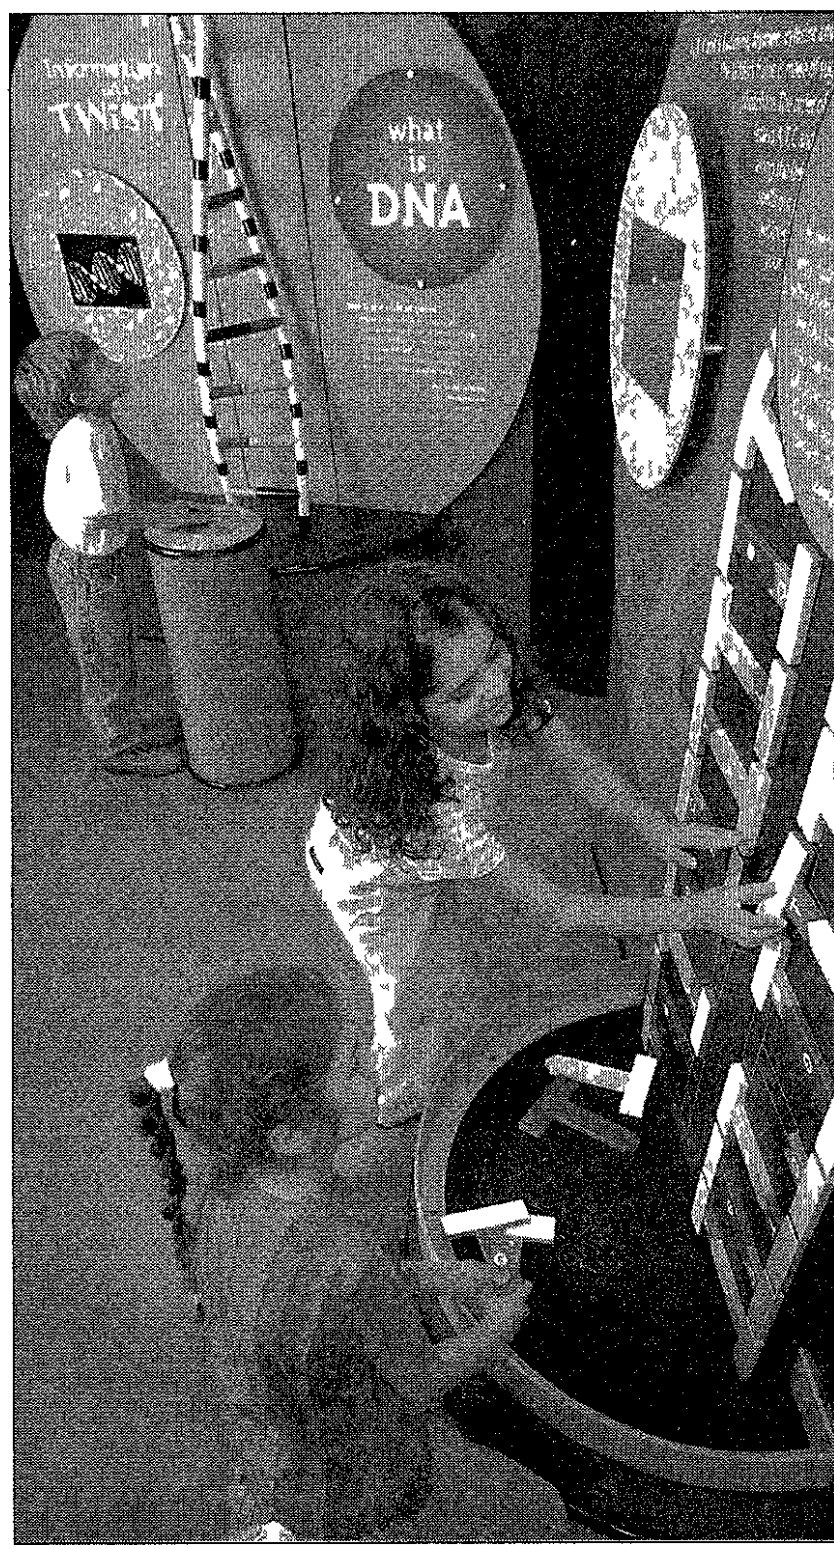

And remember, take care of your health before it's longgg gone!

Children learn about DNA and how it makes them who they are in the current exhibit at the Detroit Science Center. A timeline tells about American biologist James Watson and British physicist Francis Crick developing the concept of what DNA looked like with the double helix in the 1950s. In 1962 they won the Nobel Prize for their work on DNA.

Genome

The secret of how life works

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
STAFF WRITER

Did you know your entire set of genes is called a genome? Can you use the word genome in a sentence? A national survey by Pfizer revealed only one percent of respondents felt comfortable answering those questions, yet it's important now more than ever to understand implications stemming from the Human Genome Project, the research effort to identify the more than 30,000 genes in human DNA. With that in mind, scientists at Pfizer have produced an exhibit to lead children and adults through the medical breakthroughs that will change health care forever.

Even scientists like Vern Wheat are discovering facts as they walk through Genome: The Secret of How Life Works at the Detroit Science Center. A retired microbiologist who lives in Birmingham, Wheat has plenty of time to study the 5,000-square-foot exhibit aimed at teaching everyone from fifth grade up about the latest revolution in human genetics. As a docent for the Center's Pi Society, Wheat volunteers twice a month to guide visitors through the maze of information on topics ranging from DNA, the molecule that encodes genetic information, to designing future therapies including new cancer drugs.

"What's fascinating is people don't realize they have this as a part of who you are," Wheat said. The exhibit explains DNA, chromosomes and genes and how they relate. It goes through the history and the practical implications. A lot of people know about DNA, but not why that occurs. Ninety-nine point nine percent of human DNA is all alike. It's the one-tenth of one percent that makes us different. Another exhibit shows how life is created — half of chromosomes come from mom, half from your dad so you end up with 32 pairs. When cells replicate, they duplicate each other. They show how a cookie factory is like a cell. If we need more hair, the DNA tells the body to do that. DNA is the recipe for the cells to do their work.

Hands-on activities allow children of all ages to learn about how genes make us who we are. Organized into four sections, the exhibit was made possible by Pfizer Inc. and produced by Clear Channel Exhibitions in collaboration with the National Human Genome Research Institute, a division of the National Institutes of Health, and Whitehead Institute/MIT Center for Genome Research. It begins with a graphic of a human egg cell and proceeds to compare an individual's genome to a big recipe book that spells out the ingredients for thousands of proteins that make and maintain the body. Along the way, it reveals amazing facts, such as humans sharing 98.4 percent of their genes with chimpanzees.

"It's a difficult subject to teach," Wheat said. "The exhibit brings it to life and makes it understandable for everyone. I'm amazed children are asking to better understand the technology. The information is complex. They talk about stem cells and broach the issue of manipulating the genes."

Wheat learned that genes as well as the environment play a role in causing skin cancer. He knew years spent in the sun as a lifeguard could lead to cancer, but never realized heredity adds to the risk.

One area put together by University of Michigan opened my eyes," Wheat said. "Everytime I come down, I learn something different."

Educating the public about scientific discoveries is one of the missions at Pfizer, according to Thomas Turi, director of genomic sciences at the Connecticut facility. Inspired by the successful completion of the Human Genome Project in 2003, Pfizer set out to create an exhibit to illustrate how the discovery impacts daily life.

"It's going to revolutionize health care and they need to understand what the science is and how it can change the future so they will be able to make decisions about health care and science policy," said Turi, one of the exhibit's technical advisers. There will be a tremendous amount of benefits. Scientists all over the world are trying to unlock secrets. Every day we're seeing more studies coming out to identify genetic bases of certain diseases."

Unravel the secret of how life works at the 'Genome' exhibit continuing through Dec. 23 at the Detroit Science Center

Science is advancing so rapidly that Stephen Hunt thinks it's not impossible that by the year 2050 today's health care will be viewed "as very barbaric." He remembers the early days of the genomic revolution in the late 1970s.

"I've been in science the last 20 to 25 years and can remember that's where the whole idea of cloning DNA started," said Hunt, executive director of pharmacology at Pfizer Global Research and Development in Ann Arbor, where 3,500 scientists are working to better understand disease. Two years ago, the completion of the sequencing of the human genome was our moon shot. For the first time now we have all of the letters in the genome we can study. We don't know what those words are or how they translate into the blueprint of life just yet.

Hunt spent more than a year making sure children as well as adults understand the implications of genomic research. As a consultant, he especially tried to think of ways to involve children. Hunt originally was inspired to become a scientist by his parents and a ninth-grade teacher in Maryland.

"I would hope people would come away with an excitement about the potential," Hunt said. Ten years ago, I wouldn't have believed we'd come as far as we have. It's an incredible time to be in science. I would hope people seeing the exhibit would walk out with the excitement we all see for the future of health care.

"Genome: The Secret of How Life Works" continues to Dec. 23, at the Detroit Science Center, 5020 John R. For more information, call (313) 577-8400 or visit the Web site at www.detroitsciencecenter.org. For a virtual tour, visit www.genome.pfizer.com.

For a private viewing of the exhibit, attend a benefit to raise funds for hands-on life exhibits and expanded programming at the center 6 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 17. Tickets are $125. For reservations, call (313) 577-8400, ext. 437.

U-M Medical School leader in the field of human genetics

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
STAFF WRITER

When Dr. Thomas Gelehrter became a medical doctor 35 years ago he said "no one could clone a gene. Today, that's pretty commonplace."

With the successful completion of the Human Genome Project, it's possible that one day scientists may be able to use genetic research to conquer disease prenatally. And to think many of the advances began at the University of Michigan Medical School in 1956 when James Van Gunda Neel, an M.D., established the first academic human genetics department in the U.S.

"There we could deduce something about sickle cell anemia, but being able to get at the gene itself and carry out studies, to detect the disease prenatally is excitement at a different level, a gee wiz kind of thing," said Thomas Gelehrter, professor of human genetics and department chairman at U-M Medical School since 1987. "Today we can ask so many questions that couldn't be attacked in the past. We talk about how exciting it is today, it was then too because of tremendous advancements in techniques and therefore the questions we ask."

Gelehrter has no problem listing the many accomplishments of his colleagues at U-M Medical School over the years. Before Francis Collins was overseeing the Human Genome Project for the National Institutes of Health and U.S. Department of Energy, he as a faculty member, was cloning genes for cystic fibrosis, neurofibromatosis, and Huntington's disease.

Gelehrter says the discovery of a gene may not lead immediately to a cure, but diagnostic testing

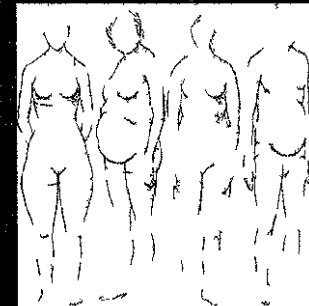

If you think about the medical implication for cystic fibrosis, knowing the gene allowed one to determine what the altered protein is. It enabled us to have genetic testing, carrier testing for couples and prenatal testing. That was not possible before the gene was cloned. Now it's standard recommended practice that couples are offered cystic fibrosis testing.

A physician in the genetics clinic, Gelehrter today is able to test patients and family members for diseases that he was never able to during the majority of his career.

"We hope we will learn more about the factors that make us susceptible or resistant to certain conditions, whether it's the disease agent or how we respond to treatment," said Gelehrter.

People come to the clinic to find out about their disease such as Marfan syndrome that Abraham Lincoln was thought to have, or they're at risk of a disease such as Huntington's. We can offer counseling and testing for hemochromatosis, an iron overload disease, diagnose other family members so you monitor them closely for iron overload. The treatment is literally donating blood until you can reduce iron stores. It's an example of a genetic disease treatment that isn't genetic but brought about by genetic research. A family member can come in for testing. People have much more knowledge now.

Maple Park - lots of choices in intimate setting

Jacobson Brothers of Birmingham and The JAR Group of Bloomfield Hills announce the grand opening of Maple Park Condominiums in Canton Township, an intimate community of 42 first-floor master suite and ranch condominiums with luxury features.

The Heritage unit at Maple Park was just awarded the Blue Ribbon (first place) award for condominiums in its price range ($200,000 to $325,000) in the Building Industry Association's Fall Parade of Homes. The award is given for "outstanding merit" in four categories - best value for the price, best use of space, innovative design, and aesthetic appeal.

Maple Park offers several floor plans with one- and two-level options and two- and three-bedroom units, ranging in price from $204,000 to $249,000. Surrounded by residential neighborhoods and close to the center of Canton, Maple Park offers home buyers charm, character and location.

In the summer of 2003, Jacobson Brothers principals Howard Jacobson and David Jacobson and JAR Group President Stephen Swartz broke ground on Maple Park's six-acre property on the south side of Palmer Road at Morton Taylor Road. Seventeen units already have been built or are under construction. The community should be finished by the end of 2005.

"Maple Park offers a one-of-a-kind condominium experience - a very small and intimate community with luxury amenities that also is affordable," Swartz said. When we saw the site we thought it would make a wonderful place to live. The city was very helpful in assisting us plan a development where new buyers and existing residents would be happy. Since it was originally planned for a gas station and adjacent commercial space, our neighbors were thrilled to learn that the property would become Maple Park instead.

Home buyers will appreciate Maple Park's residential surroundings, highly regarded Plymouth-Canton school system and central location to Canton's several parks, Summit on the Park Recreational Center, library and municipal center. Maple Park offers easy access to expressways at both Michigan Avenue and Ford Road.

LUXURY FEATURES

A host of luxury features are standard at Maple Park. Examples include luxury master bathrooms with ceramic flooring, separate tub and shower and toilet room, high efficiency furnace and 50-gallon water heater, plus the homeowners' choice of hardwood or tile foyer and powder room flooring. Plus, the dramatic studio living and dining room ceilings and nine-foot ceilings in all other ground floor rooms provide an unusually spacious feel to the homes.

We see a wide variety of families being attracted to Maple Park, Swartz said, "couples moving from a larger house, families attracted by the school system and location and even younger couples, first-time buyers. This community truly has uncommon features inside and out, especially for the price tag, which provide tremendous value to the homeowners."

FLOOR PLANS

Maple Park offers three floor plans to suit home buyers' differing needs and desires.

■ The Heritage is a roomy 1,796-square-foot home with luxury appointments that provides a first-floor master suite along with a large second-floor loft area, bedroom and full bath for children, grandchildren or visitors. It also boasts many other "upgrade" features and amenities.

■ The Regency provides a cozy, true single-story ranch home of 1,419 square feet, with no stairs to climb and many luxury amenities. Like the Heritage, these two-bedroom/two-bathroom homes provide a private entrance, attached two-car garage and a large full basement.

■ The Sterling provides convenient and expansive stacked ranch living with luxurious features and choices of either a first-floor or upper-floor level. The two-bedroom/two-bathroom ranch-style homes each have a private, ground level entrance and attached two-car garage, a luxurious master suite (with cathedral ceiling on the ground floor) and generous walk-in closets, plus much more.

The Maple Park sales office is at 1825 Maple Park Drive West on Palmer between Lilley and Sheldon roads in Canton Township. It's open noon to 5 p.m. daily. For more information, call (734) 397-2265 or visit www.jacobsonbrothers.com.

Boardwalk like traditional farmhouse, only better

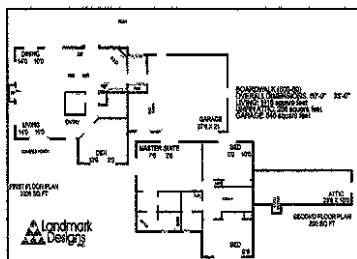

The Boardwalk has the appearance of a large classic styled farmhouse. It, however, has many more amenities than the traditional farmhouse had. There is a covered porch, many square-paned windows with a Palladian window on the second floor above the bay windows below, and a chimney accented in wood.

Walking into the Boardwalk, one has a large open room on the left that is the living room and the dining room. The fireplace is centered in the left wall between two large windows. French doors open in the rear onto a nice deck, ideal for family gatherings when the barbecue is the center of attention.

The elongated kitchen runs across the right rear of the home with a gracious amount of counter space. An eating bar island is in the center. Passing through a pocket door, one finds the utility and pantry cabinet. Beyond is the two-car garage with an attic overhead.

Between the kitchen and the front door is a half bath. Stairs to the second floor are also in this area.

The bedrooms occupy the second floor, as does the attic, only accessible from the pull-down stairs in the garage. Bedroom two and three, separated by the stairs, each have plenty of windows to let the sunlight in and a wall closet ample for storing clothes. A full bath, including a tub and single sink, is across from bedroom three, while a linen closet is outside the door to bedroom two.

The master suite is very large. Two windows provide sunlight to brighten the room. "His and Her" sinks are on the left while a walk-in closet is on the right. Both the closet and the master bath have pocket doors instead of regular doors. Once inside, a hard decision has to be made: Do you use the oversized tub or the oversized shower? What a difficult decision to make.

The Boardwalk has 1,026 square feet on the main floor and 892 square feet on the second floor. The unfinished attic adds 236 square feet more of space if needed.

Improve the value of your kitchen

(NAPSI) - If you're cooking up ways to add value to your home, you may want to head to the kitchen. Real estate experts say kitchen renovations generally add more value to a home than do projects in any other room.

In fact, kitchens are so valued that one survey found investing just $2,000 in renovations recoups up to 102 percent of the initial investment when a home is sold.

Designers say one of the best (and least expensive) ways to spruce up a kitchen is to replace the accessories on old stoves and ovens. Given that most of the 112 million ranges in the U.S. will last about 20 years-and their accessories won't-it may be a smart idea to follow their advice.

A company called Range Kleen provides range accessories at discount prices. The accessories include knobs, drip pans, gas range grates, reflector plates, trim rings and burner covers.

The company also makes replacement parts (replacement elements, for example), kitchen gadgets, cleaning kits and bakeware. The products generally sell for three to five times less than what oven manufacturers charge.

Homeowners can visit the company's Web site (rangekleen.com) and order new accessories, or visit retailers such as Wal-Mart, Bed & Bath or Linens & Things to find the company's products.

For more information, visit www.rangekleen.com.

Let's Talk About
Real Estate

"OPTION FOR THE MATURE BUYER"

As people live longer, the demand for real estate will reflect the buying power of an aging population As in many other aspects of society, buying power is shifting from the thirty to forty year old group to those who are fifty and up Advertising agencies are focusing their messages on the age group most able and inclined to buy certain products

People over fifty usually have completed the most financially demanding time of their lives and often are ready to purchase higher priced products and services This is particularly worth noting in residential real estate Many homeowners have built up a large equity in their homes by the time they reach fifty and are often looking for a change in lifestyle

If you are the type of person described above, here are some home buying alternatives for you

CONDOMINIUM LIVING

The condominium option provides the dual benefits of the freedom of apartment living and the financial advantages of ownership It is one of the most popular forms of home ownership for the over fifty age group

CLUSTER HOMES

Perhaps you enjoy owning your own home but are getting a little tired of the maintenance and upkeep required A cluster home may be your best option This concept gives you the benefits of condominium living and the enjoyment of a single family dwelling These free-standing homes are located in close proximity All exterior maintenance costs including roofs, outside walls, and landscaping are paid for collectively by all property owners

RESIDENTIAL COMMUNITIES

If you are shopping for a certain lifestyle, many residential communities appeal to varying interests Some target golfers, boaters, skiers, or other recreational pursuits Others are located in geographical areas that feature various types of weather

ADVISE. Ask your Realtor® about the choices that best suit your interests

Active adult communities: A new trend in housing

BY RICHARD L. KOMER
CORRESPONDENT

Active adult communities have long been an accepted part of the housing scene in southern states such as Florida, South Carolina, Georgia, Nevada and Arizona. In southeastern Michigan, development of new active adult communities has only recently begun. In August, Pulte Homes, Inc., announced that the company plans to invest $1.5 billion to build four new active adult housing communities in Metro Detroit suburbs.

Active adult communities are geared toward one of the fastest growing segments of the U.S. population - buyers who are 55 years old and older. This age group is financially established, healthy and ready to enjoy all that life has to offer. These buyers don't want to mow the lawn, paint the house or do other household chores. They'd much rather play than work in their spare time.

They are looking for something distinctive and don't want to lose their identity in some huge condominium or mega-sized community. A gatehouse, community building, pool, tennis courts, and walking trails are all amenities they seek. They also desire planned activities and opportunities to socialize.

Today's active adult communities are smaller developments that feel like the neighborhoods of years ago. Architects frequently cluster homes rather than putting them up in a single row, resulting in more open space, increased security and a more appealing community.

Today's active adults prefer homes that position the garage off the street, making the front of the home the focal point. Homes in active adult communities also frequently incorporate dramatic foyers offering long, open views and design features that allow residents to comfortably age-in-place.

HEALTHY LIFESTYLES

Since most active adults are more health conscious, builders have responded by offering top-notch fitness rooms and programs that allow seniors to lead active lifestyles. Instead of a workout bench and basic exercise equipment, you'll find clubhouses designed with spas, massage rooms and yoga studios.

To allow homeowners to get in touch with nature, active adult homes will also have amenities such as sunrooms, screen porches, and large windows, which bring in light and invoke a sense of tranquility and serenity. Often, builders will include flex space in these homes, which allow the homeowner to convert an area into an extra bedroom, den, office or exercise studio.

Active adult homes have clean lines that appeal to the homebuyers need to reduce clutter and simplify their lives. Most new active adult homes will have kitchens with upgraded appliances, granite countertops, and islands and cabinets that resemble furniture. Baths will feature showers with multiple spray heads, whirlpool tubs, heated floor tiles and other deluxe amenities. Kitchens will be the heart of the home and deluxe master baths will be the sanctuary. Universal design features (such as seats in shower stalls, extra-wide door entrances, lever handles, etc.) are usually incorporated into the design of active adult homes because they save money when installed during the building process and give residents the features they need to remain in their homes as they age.

Richard L. Komer received the Builder of the Year award from the Building Industry Association of Southeastern Michigan in 1998.

Three Takes On The Looming Labor Deficit

WORKWISE
by Mildred L. Culp

It's no secret that as the Baby Boom eases into retirement, much work they leave behind simply won't be done. How will this emerging trend affect the interim staffing industry? Some firms think that assignments at the executive level will be filled because of a huge cohort of highly-skilled baby boomers willing to meet the challenge, largely for personal satisfaction.

Vince Papi, managing director for the Americas Practice (North and South America) of Boyden Interim Management, is based in Pittsburgh. The company places executives who are at least 50 years of age. Papi's expanding division currently includes 400 interim executives. The practice, with nine offices worldwide, opened in Holland in 1990 and is headquartered in the United Kingdom. Papi maintains that the impending labor shortage is international, as evidenced by the company's 3,000 interim executives abroad.

"People at all levels will be retiring," Papi predicts. "There will be a pool because of people living a lot longer. Younger baby boomers in their 40s have been downsized, outsized and rightsized and are more entrepreneurial." Boyden's European division is seeing increasing popularity with the interim lifestyle. Papi thinks that competitors will be marketing this service more aggressively. "Organizations will be doing more to keep people on an interim basis," he says. Boyden communicates with its talent pool by telephone or e-mail at least four times per year. The company is also developing a newsletter.

Pam McKemie, senior vice president of LocumTenens, headquartered in Atlanta, says that her 10-year-old firm, which places physicians specializing in anesthesia, radiology and psychiatry, is preparing to meet the shortage she views as national. McKemie mentions that the trend of women to outnumber men in medical school will create an added stressor on the workforce. "When women come out in 10 to 12 years, they will increase shortages," she observes, "because they typically work less than men do during childbearing years. This is the reality." Are staffing firms in other industries preparing for this development?

LocumTenens is already drawing upon the 15 percent of clinical physicians who work on a contract or temporary basis. The firm's contracts extend from a week to a year in a $2.5 billion industry. "We're a boutique agency," she explains, "concentrating on high-demand, low-supply specialties. We're moving into surgery next year." She notes that the rapidity with which imaging technology diagnoses clinical problems quickly -- and the increased patient load caused by aging baby boomers -- account for "a critical shortage in certain areas." McKemie mentions that her industry has been placing interim physicians for about 20 years. "Everyone is going into med schools and recruiting more physicians into a locumtenens lifestyle," offering an opportunity to practice pure medicine, flexibility and a relief from medical malpractice insurance and other administrative headaches.

NON-EXECUTIVES

Will there be a shortage of non-executive temporary workers? Many people will need to work -- and will talk to a roomful of baby boomers and you'll find that many just can't wait to leave the workforce.

Papi says that his company turns to other staffing firms to fill these critical slots. Conrad Taylor, president of the National Association of Personnel Services, an organization with almost 1,000 members worldwide, maintains that the shortage won't be of numbers, but of skills, both temporary and permanent. This shortage may well impact workers who've been unemployed for as long as two and one-half years. Taylor sees some important challenges facing the staffing industry.

- identifying how to provide the needed skills and the money required to support the need,
- developing stronger ties with educational institutions to strengthen skills of students of all ages;
- training clients to provide environments conducive to worker retention, and
- obtaining a better grasp of client cultures.

Unfortunately, many staffing firms are silent on the subject of how they're going to meet the demands of the emerging workplace. Either they haven't begun to think about it or they know something we all can foresee -- that staffing firms and companies will have to find workers who aren't top tier, manage (not micromanage) them well and fill in the gaps through ongoing training.

Now, if we can just get those managers and trainers up to speed... (Dr. Mildred L. Culp comments upon the workplace in national media. Copyright 2004 Passage Media.)

Caravan Scores with Hockey Fans

Advertising Feature

Anne Fracassa

2005 Dodge Caravan SXT. Vehicle class: Minivan. Power: 3.8 liter V-6 engine. Mileage: 18 mpg city/25 mpg highway. Where built: Windsor, Ontario, Canada. Price as tested: $30,925

Avanti NewsFeatures

Hey Detroiters! I don't know about you, but I'm going through major major hockey withdrawal right now. I'll give you a little taste of it later in this column, but suffice it to say I got a bit of a fix with the great new Wings DVD that went on sale last week. More on that later. Just when you thought a minivan couldn't get better, enter the 2005 Dodge Caravan SXT.

You all know that I just hate minivans for the most part. They're basically mom-mobiles. Although I am a mom, I just could never be part of the minivan crowd. Gave me my sport ute any day. I'm happier behind a big truck.

And it fits my family's needs just fine, thank you very much. Without the minivan look.

But now comes a contender in the market. Something that I have to encourage everyone who still wants to drive a mom mobile and needs a lot of versatility - much like what you get with a sport utility vehicle.

This Caravan SXT still looks a lot like a minivan, but you've got a little bit of leeway here. There are sportier curves and lines, a lot less of a boxy look and versatility that just isn't there with the others in the minivan crowd.

A first in the marketplace, this Dodge has something called a Stow N Go feature. What that means is that you can fold down the second and third row seats right into the floor. No tugging to get it down either.

The wonderful thing about it, and a few sport utes are equipped with it, is the fact that you don't have to yank those seats out of the vehicle and take up precious room in your already cramped garage to store them. Just a simple pull here and there and they disappear. Gone. Vanished. Bye-bye. And you don't even have to use both hands, so if you broke one, you can still do it by your lonesome.

The cool thing about it is how fast it can be done. I didn't time myself (didn't want to feel me if I failed), but Dodge says you can go from seven seats to two in just 30 seconds. Yeah, it's about that fast.

With the seats gone, you'll realize another 12 cubic feet of cargo area to haul all your worldly belongings in the second and third row storage bins.

Now here's something to think about when you have absolutely nothing better to do. Dodge says there can be up to 256 seating configurations with this minivan. Talk about versatile, huh?

And by the way, I'm all alone in my assumption that minivans have been a fad. Uh, Chrysler and Dodge have sold more than 10 million in 20 years and right now one in 15 new vehicles purchased is a minivan.

The interior of the Caravan SXT is wisely laid out and specifically tuned toward the driver. When you want to touch a button, watch a gauge or adjust the heating and cooling, it's more than easy to accomplish without taking your eyes off the road. Seating surfaces are just superb and comfy.

The interior has a bit more edge to it, rather than soft feminine lines we're used to. Looks a little aggressive in the front and the styling is very fresh and inviting. This may be the best minivan Chrysler and Dodge has had to offer since the very first ones came off the line two decades ago. (Wow, has it really been that long???)

And with the DVD option in the rear seating positions, you'll really make your kids happy. I know I did.

You see, our family is really big on hockey. So bad were the withdrawal symptoms earlier last week that we picked ourselves up and drove to the Fraser ice arena to watch the Motor City Mechanics play the Port Huron Beacons. I learned that UHL hockey is great hockey by the way.

They're just not the Red Wings. Nobody is! But the following day I got my Red Wings fix. And got more than I even bargained for. Not only did I get the chance to see the highlights of the highlight film of the 4-disc DVD on the history of the Wings (only one disc is from the olden days, most of it is of present day hockey, the cups we won and present day players), but I also got to do an interview with the one and only Mickey Redmond, a telecaster today and 50-goal scorer from yesterday.

He was at Hockeytown Cafe Monday night to promote the DVD set and I got to spend almost two hours with him on the phone Monday afternoon. Some of the stuff on the DVDs includes older history from the 1950s, five of the greatest Red Wing games of all time and the three runs for the Stanley Cup.

There's almost 20 hours of entertainment on these new "Celebration of Champions" DVDs. I have seen three hours of it so far and every inch of film is not only first-rate but also absolutely perfectly executed. From the 1996 fight between "Clod" Claude Lemieux and our Darren McCarty to the tasteful explanation of Vladdy's terrible accident on Woodward after the cup was ours in 1997, the DVDs are the best work I've seen on any Wings chronology yet.

I asked Mickey if he was going through hockey withdrawal like I was and he said he was.

"Absolutely," he said. "But there isn't anything I can do to alleviate or replace hockey right now, and I'm handling it better this time around. In 1994-95 I lived and died hockey every day they were out and it didn't do any good then. I'm looking at it as the glass half full. I think they'll settle and get back to hockey by January."

Mickey told me that although he played for the Montreal Canadiens and won two cups with the Habs, he's always thought of himself as a Red Wing and will continue to do so.

I'm a Red Wing absolutely because I spend the better part of my career here - I played for the team 6-7 years," he said. "But as great as it was to play in two places with two storied franchises as Montreal and Detroit, I call here my home. I've lived here 31 years now."

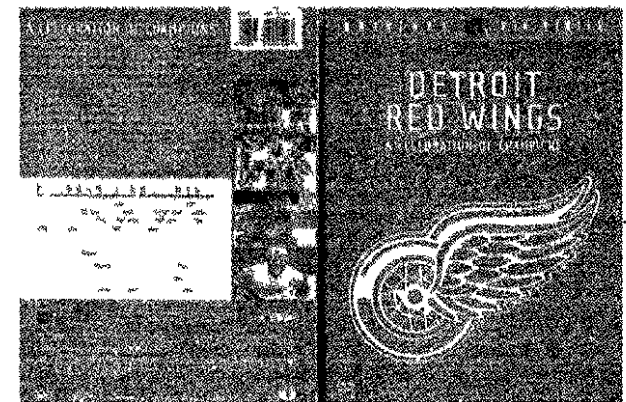

I truly love the emotion and passion the game brings out in people, especially the fans in Detroit, and in my business, this is as good as it gets. I've got the best job in the world."

Mickey said he spent most of last weekend reviewing the DVD set, watching more than 15 hours of footage.

"The interesting thing about looking at the video is how it refreshes the memories and it's amazing to watch (and live it over again)," he said. "To see the emotion of the people, of the fans burying their face in their hands at some moments, it's just unbelievable to go back to it."

The DVD set distributed by Warner Home Video is available right now at Borders, Barnes and Noble and Hockeytown Authentics. The cost for "Detroit Red Wings: A Celebration of Champions" is $49.98. It is part of the new "Original Six Series" of DVDs coming out, authorized by NHL Productions. For a real Red Wing fan, it's a small price to pay for 20 hours of hockey at a time when we need it most.

And as for the Dodge Caravan, I think you should really take a hard look at this one if you're in the market for a minivan. It's a great offering in a tight market. Value for the dollar is there, too, including being somewhat of a gas miser. Head on out and take a look.

And if you need your hockey fix, make sure and get a Caravan with one of those built-in TVs so you can watch this new Wings DVD.

Write Anne Fracassa at avanti1054@aol.com.

Detroit Red Wings: A Celebration of Champions. Highlights from the new DVD available right now at Borders, Barnes and Noble and Hockeytown Authentics include:

1996, Detroit vs. St. Louis. Captain Steve Yzerman scores winning goal in game seven.

1997, Detroit vs. Colorado. Wings comeback against Colorado (March 26). This was the Red Wings' defining regular season game in their championship season.

1997, Detroit vs. Philadelphia. Stanley Cup winning game, game four vs. Philadelphia.

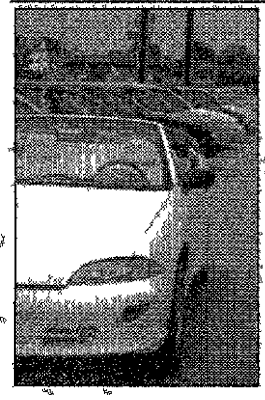

2002, Detroit vs. Colorado. Destruction of Patrick Roy and the Avalanche in Game seven of the Western Conference Finals.

2002, Detroit vs. Carolina. Game three overtime epic.

Q: I love art and my poor walls are so drab, but I don't have thousands to spend on fine art. Can you help?

KELLY'S KCLICKS

The art of online shopping

A: Can I help? Does chocolate provide cures to all the world's problems? Possibly! These days, there's no need to be a big spender to get fantastic walls. Lots of design firms and artists are now capitalizing on just your problem, dish-ing up affordable art and fun design alternatives and proving that art needn't be hanging in a posh New York gallery or stuffy museum to be fabu-lous.

For instance, rrsk.com, a think tank of artists, designers and consumers (yup, that means you) is working hard to solve the bare-wall problem. With their expertise and your desires, suggestions and, some-times even your photos, you'll create an ultra-hip painting you can really call your own and that is truly one-of-a-kind. From 18 x 24" pieces that pay homage to the power of typography and color ($225) to large 30 x 48 monochromatic paintings featuring images like scooters and chairs ($375) to altered portraits that can immortalize you or a loved one in style ($250-$400), your walls will be oozing so much coolness they'll need a blanket.

Also filling the need for exceptional, affordable art is Mixed Greens. Representing and selling art by 30 contemporary artists, you can scoop up some originals at mixedgreens.com and also find out when they're holding their next events and exhibitions around the country. Prices range from around $100-$8,000. Leah Tinari's name and work will probably seem familiar to you if you watched the first season of The Apprentice. You can swipe some of her work here. I'm a fan of Dannielle Tegeher's architecturally influenced portfolio — the vivid colors will delight any walls.

Next, head west to LA-based auntbeep.com, where you can scour the site for great finds like Leora Lutz's itty bitty acrylic city silhouettes ($75), Paul Antico's eye-popping prints ($50-$125) and Doug Murphy's humorous and celeb-inspired works ($65).

Finally, commitment-phobes will relish in Blik Graphic's removable wall decals

(like stickers for grown-ups). From mod dots and juicy apples to silhouettes of heads, birds and robots, you can create ultra-mod spaces with the peel of a decal, and change them as easily as you put them on ($25-$56). Visit

Who won PINK's Oakland Mall Shopping Spree?

I have always purchased the Observer & Eccentric Newspaper for various reasons. One of the main reasons lately is to seek employment.

Recently in your PINK magazine you ran a contest to win a $500 shopping spree for Oakland Mall. I sent an entry form for me and my niece on separate occasions.

It was said that the winners would be posted in the Sept. 26, 2004 issue. Well, I did not see the winners posted.

I simply would like to know at least who the winners were! I was very disappointed in not finding the answer in the Sept. 26 issue. If I missed it, I apologize, but I looked up and down, side to side.

Pamela Umerlik,
Westland

Dear Pamela,

So sorry! You are right. We did not publish the winners on Sept. 26. Like true PINK girls, we were fashionably late, and published them Oct. 10. Here's a recap: Michele Lindsay of Rochester Hills was the lucky winner of the $500 gift certificate. Four runners-up each won $100 gift certificates. They were Nicole Kasperian from Livonia, Gwen Thomas from West Bloomfield, Ellen Cogsdill from Farmington Hills and Juanita Greer Coleman from Southfield.

Stay tuned for more contests in PINK. We promise to be better about the deadlines!

Who could forget the blonde?

Ahh, the blonde. It's all about the perfect shade. Today's blonde is as much about the lowlights as the highlights. A glowy halo of colour is what is now — not chunky streaks. Here, Amy flirts with the delicate issue through swingy face-framing texture, taking both the highs and lows to the max. The best part is that her color is done so expertly that you would never know its secret intricacies. Spritzing on Pureology's In Charge spray ensures colour protection and droop-defying texture control without helmet-head or flaky residue. Keep us guessing on your easy, youthful look by choosing fresh make-up tones like rose and peach. Your skin, smile and other features will take on an effortless and childlike glow that we all will crave.

Does a body good

Want a shampoo and conditioner that gives your hair maximum thickening power that keeps its shine and body throughout the day without ever feeling coated, coarse or snarled? You must have been watching too many James Bond movies while flipping through too many fashion mags, to even dream it, my dear

Until now, our only hope in achieving this was to hire a full-time hairstylist to primp and plump us all day, since volumizing products simply put hair into a near uncombable mess that looked parched and dull with a product-heavy feel that eventually left us falling flat

We are saved! Sebastian has brought us Body Double Thick-In Shampoo and Conditioner. Not only do these products give you glamazon hair that will fight off hat-head like Barbarella, but they smell 100 percent amazing. The irresistible blend of sweet citrus juices, fresh ginger and Mediterranean herbs makes for an exotic tropical holiday every time you shower

Sebastian has created new technology called BondStyling that allows Body Double to become one with your locks, leaving the product to infuse honest-to-goodness thickness into your hair while still leaving it feeling sexy and touchable! This amazing formula truly transforms locks into that Gisele glossy mag photo — you know the one where she is bouncing down the street with the most incredibly naturally full and gleaming mane on the planet?

I assure you that after using the Body Double line, its silk proteins, vitamins and weightless 007-technology will leave your hair addicted to the 'bond'

Sebastian's Body Double Thick In Shampoo and Conditioner is available at all Beauty First locations for $14.95 each

Venus & Serena

Sisters bring passion for fashion to Detroit

By Samantha Critchell Associated Press

AUBURN HILLS — As the Williams sisters lace up their tennis shoes and hit the Palace this week, tennis fans will gather court-side as much to see their outfits as their game.

In addition to winning 26 Grand Slam titles and three Olympic Gold Medals between them, Venus and Serena Williams are bona fide fashion icons and they don't shy away from that style-conscious image.

"Once you're known for some thing, it's important to do. So for us, keeping up with our look is important," says Serena.

"We also like to look good for ourselves. No one wants to walk out on the court and say, 'I sure feel badly about the way I look,'" adds Venus, who acknowledges that everything from the wristbands and visor she wears during a match revolves around her outfit.

Venus and Serena will be in town Thursday with the McDonald's Williams Sisters Tour, a series of tennis exhibitions designed to raise money for various national and local charities. Serena said Metro Detroit was a natural stop on the tour.

"I was born in Saginaw and I still have a lot of family there. It will be a crazy crowd because you know they are all going to be there — some rooting for me and some rooting for Venus," she said. "When we first talked about doing this tour, Detroit was one of the first cities that popped into my head. There is no professional tournament in Detroit, and no one has seen us play in person. We hope at the end of the day us going there will help Detroit get a tournament. We hope to also influence kids to pick up racquets and want to play tennis."

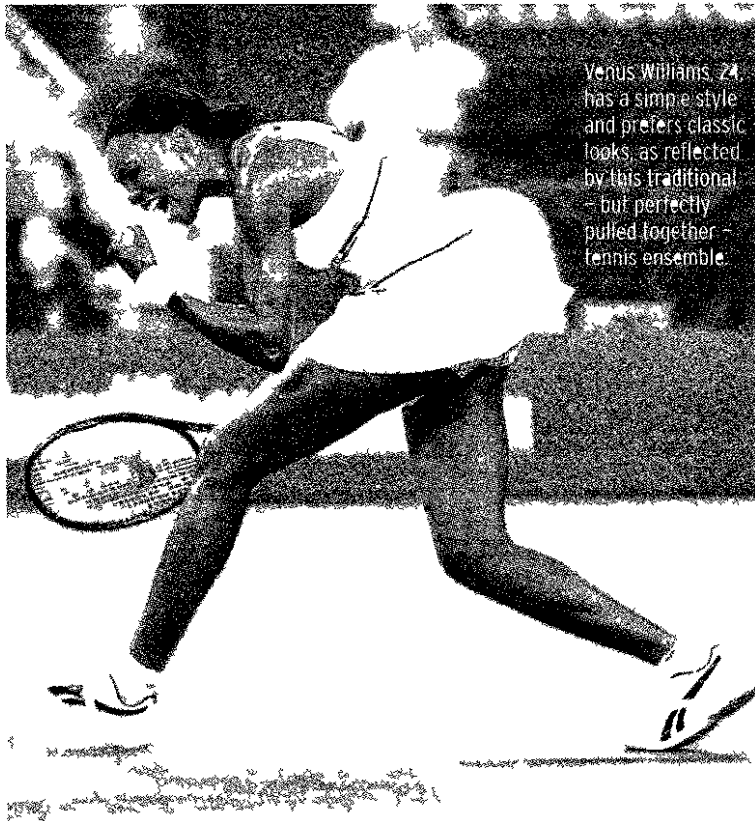

The Williams sisters' involvement with McDonald's began when Venus designed a logo-covered newsboy cap that was worn by workers at the restaurants during the Olympic Games in Athens.

The budding fashionistas — and their bold, sexy outfits — have double-handedly reinvigorated the world's interest in tennis, but their attire also has made them a target of criticism with sports fans who say the duo spend too much time on their fashion careers instead of practicing on the court.

The sisters say there is room for both of their passions in their lives.

When it comes to her design aspirations, Venus, a student at the Art Institute of Fort Lauderdale (Fla.) says she's still in the beginning stages but she's hopeful she'll again land at the top. "I would love to have a collection at Fashion Week."

Meanwhile, Serena, 22, already has her own fashion label, Aneres (It's Serena spelled backward). Venus' favorite item of the collection is a short leather jacket. It's Venus Williams, 24, has a simple style and prefers classic looks, as reflected by this traditional — but perfectly pulled together — tennis ensemble.

Serena Williams, 22, is more high-maintenance and high fashion. She often raises eyebrows on the court, such as when she wore this studded number custom designed by Nike.

a fun and vintage-y piece, she says.

And, of Serena's on-court wardrobe, Venus most admires the black and magenta mesh tie-dye dress her sister wore with a black sports bra and running shorts.

"Yeah, that was really cute," Serena says. She then bounces back the compliment: "Venus has better clothes so I steal her stuff."

"And I have nothing to wear!" says Venus.

Serena cites trendsetters Roberto Cavalli and Giorgio Armani along with Donna Karan as designers who inspire her, while Venus says she prefers classic American looks from Calvin Klein and Ralph Lauren.

"I've always liked to dress up," Serena says.

Venus adds, "When we were young, Serena always had to be the princess. I get ready very quickly — a half an hour. But Serena, two hours later, she's still rushing around."

The two then crack up laughing.

In all pseudo-seriousness, both say they won't sacrifice their fashion and beauty routines because of time or place. Looking good, they say, makes them feel confident.

"I think I've seen a lot of players look at me with a sideways eye when I go into the locker room with accessories and a huge makeup bag," says Venus.

"And I walk around the locker room in my Kate Spade shower sandals!" Serena says. "And, I've got the huge brush that you wash with — and my exfoliating brush."

"Do any of the other players ask for fashion or beauty tips?"

"Unfortunately, no!" says Serena.

With the timing of comics, they allow for a brief pause to let the deadpan comment sink in and then burst into laughter again.

When the sisters come to Detroit, they'll be the ones in the brightest colors, boldest designs and showing off the biggest cutouts.

"I think it's important to come out better than the previous time. It keeps people excited," Serena says.

In addition to inspiring style and second takes, the Williams sisters hope their tennis tour motivates children to follow their dreams.

"We hope to be positive role models and somehow help kids to a great life. We didn't grow up in the best area, but we had our Mom and our Dad. We want to show the kids that they can have fun, be positive and that anything is possible," Serena said.

Divine Dark Chocolate Covered Pumpkin Mousse

- |   |                                 |
|---|---------------------------------|
| 1 packet unflavored gelatin (2 1/2 tsp - they come in sheets) | 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg             |
| 1/4 cup dark rum  | 1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla extract |
| 1 pound can unsweetened pumpkin puree                         | 2 cups heavy cream              |
| 1 cup sugar   | Pinch of ground clove           |
| 2 egg yolks   | 1 teaspoon cinnamon             |
|   | 1/4 teaspoon allspice           |
|   | 1/2 teaspoon salt               |

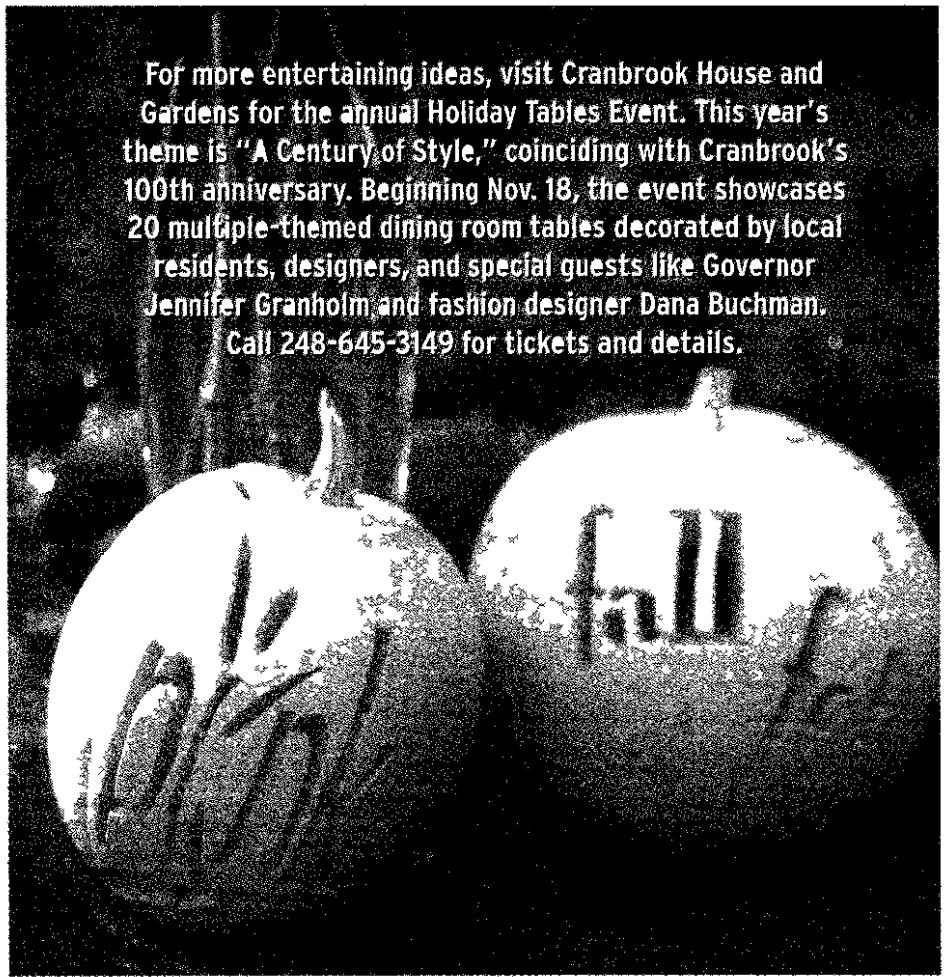

Sprinkle gelatin over rum in small heat proof cup. Let soften while you combine pumpkin puree, sugar, egg yolks, nutmeg, allspice, cinnamon, cloves, vanilla and salt in large bowl. Set cup of gelatin in pan of gently simmering water, stirring until dissolved. While gelatin is still hot, whisk into pumpkin mixture. Whip cream to soft peaks then carefully fold into pumpkin mixture. Chill mousse overnight.

Place mousse mixture into two circle molds and place in freezer overnight to set. Torch ends of molds to slide mousse out on plate when ready to pour dark chocolate mixture over top.

Dark Chocolate

Combine 6 ounces of dark chocolate with 4 tablespoons of unsalted butter in double boiler until melted. Place mousse onto rack and spoon dark chocolate mixture on top. The chocolate will dry hard and shiny. Trim with whip cream!

New stores open at Twelve Oaks

NOVI — Just in time for the holidays, Twelve Oaks has announced five new stores are open for biz in the mall

• AVEDA Located on the Upper Level near Center Court, AVEDA specializes in hair care, skin care and make up that feature botanical ingredients. The store offers massages to customers, promoting a relaxing shopping environment

• Bakers Open on the Upper Level, near JCPenney, Bakers is the leading specialty retailer of fashion forward footwear for hip, style-driven young women. Stop in to check out styles ranging from comfy faux fur boots to the pointiest stilettos for a glamorous evening out on the town

• Chelsea Teddy Bear Company Only for the holidays, the Lower Level next to Sears offers teddy bears you can personalize. Done in store, you can add names, short messages, sports teams, school names and logos to the outfits of the cuddly bears you pick

• Cool Waves Cool Waves is a specialty boutique that carries a maximum of six to 12 pieces in a select style. Because of the limited numbers of each piece, the merchandise is unique and constantly changing. The store features men's and women's clothing, sunglasses, handbags, jewelry, shoes, belts, wallets and watches. This store offers a relaxed boutique experience on the Lower Level near JCPenney

• d.e.m.o. Now open on the Lower Level, near Lord & Taylor, d.e.m.o. features men and women's fashion with an urban feel. Featured brands include enyce, Roca Wear, ecko, Sean John and G Unit. The store also sells footwear, handbags and accessories

Extended holiday hours begin the day after Thanksgiving at Twelve Oaks Mall

Saddle shoes are cat's meow

NEW YORK — In fashion, everything old is new again. Young trendsetters are wearing grandma's brooches and crocheted capes, and now, Dr. Scholl's has resurrected the saddle shoe.

Dr. Scholl's white and baby blue saddle shoes $49 @ shoes.com

'Bringing back shoes from an era ago is important to us,' says Diane Straub, senior designer for Original Dr. Scholl's for Brown Shoe Co.

The time seemed right for the saddle shoe, she adds, because they fit right in with the current fashion of pleated skirts, shrunken cardigan sweaters and scarves.

Yet, Straub expects the saddle shoe to remain on the line for years to come. 'We see it as a staple, mostly because it's comfortable like a sneaker,' she says.

Other retro shoes that will be getting a Dr. Scholl's makeover include the ankle-tied desert boot in suede and nubuck shoes with red outsoles.

Aries: (March 21-April 19)

The breezy weather has brought in more than just the new season, change is also in the air this week. Prepare for the adventure ahead with a fresh face to match your fresh outlook. Slather on a deep cleaning facial mask to look your best wherever the road may take you.

Taurus: (April 20-May 21)

Meeting new people helps broaden your horizons and expands your social circle. Why not make a lasting impression and update your hair with a brand new cut or color? Take your gorgeous locks for a test drive on Friday at a lounge or restaurant you've been dying to check out.

Gemini: (May 22-June 21)

Make sure you remain hands on with your latest project to ensure everything stays on track. With all the hefty work you'll be doing, be sure you take care of your important assets with a pampering manicure. Whoever said you can't be productive and polished at the same time?

Cancer: (June 22-July 22)

Your heart is open and always willing to help those in need. Good deeds leave you feeling uplifted, yet tend to rob you of your energy. The good news, Cancer, is someone is ready to return the favor and tend to you for once. Indulge in a massage and relax, you deserve it!

Leo: (July 23-Aug 22)

The scents of the holidays are all around. Roasting turkey, spiced pies, and soon cinnamon and spruce tones will fill the air. With the holiday stress looming around the corner, connect with your sign's scent, lavender. Take advantage of the soothing therapy of this sweet aroma.

Virgo: (Aug 23-Sept 22)

January 1st is months away, but who said resolutions had to wait until the new year before surfacing? Resolve your need for change this week and create a list. Make a vow to take better care of yourself. If a spa visit isn't financially possible, make the best of a good do-it-yourself manual. Skim over Secrets of the Spas by

Spa Treatments Suited for the Stars

Catherine Bardey for ideas that will have your glowing by end of this year.

Libra: (Sept 23-Oct 23)

Out with the old, in with the new! You've cleaned out your closet, balanced your checkbook, and vacuumed your car. You're on a roll this week when it comes to cleaning. Why stop there? Your skin could benefit from a gentle scrub that will wash away the last of the summer grime and leave you soft as a cashmere sweater.

Scorpio: (Oct 24-Nov 21)

With the holidays literally popping up everywhere you go (or shop for that matter) it might be time to start saving your pennies. Scorpio's generous hand is much appreciated, although can often leave you're wallet rather empty. Luckily, meditating is beneficial and FREE! So light some candles, and find your zen place. Om.

Sagittarius: (Nov 22-Dec 21)

Games are better left on the field. We all feel the need to test the waters from time to time, but try not to toy with future proposals. Business or otherwise, this week it is best for Sag to keep a game face and play by the rules. By keeping makeup simple and fresh, you'll be ready for anything.

Capricorn: (Dec 22-Jan 19)

The days of summer have come and gone, but you still feel as luminous and sunny as ever. Let your skin reflect your mood by partaking in a self-tanning treatment. Let a natural, gorgeous glow take you back to the days on the beach, without the risks.

Aquarius: (Jan 20-Feb 18)

Rather than avoid what troubles you, try tackling problems head on this week. By midweek you'll feel much lighter and ready to enjoy the weekend. Book a girl's day at the spa with a friend and embrace how fabulous it is to be a woman over mud wraps and pedicures!

Pisces: (Feb 19-March 20)

You've longed to take the next step — spiritual, emotional, or physical — for sometime now. Today is as good as any to make that move. Make sure you take the time to learn and grow from this new enlightenment. Yoga may help center all three of those needs by way of a weekly class or instructional video.

Ask the Beverly Hills Plastic Surgeon

Q Dear Dr. Youn: No matter what I do, I have areas of fat on my thighs which never go away. Any suggestions? — My Mom's Thighs

Q Dear My Mom's Thighs: It is not uncommon for people to have areas of fat which do not go away, even with exercise and dieting. Love handles often plague men, whereas thighs often remain in women. The best technique to remove these persistent areas is liposuction. I perform liposuction using either the standard technique or with VASER liposelection. The keys to performing liposuction are to hide the scars (which should be very small) and to avoid rippling or dents in the skin. It is important to go to a plastic surgeon who is skilled in this procedure, as a novice can create dents which may be virtually incorrectable. I do not recommend having this performed while you are awake, as many non-plastic surgeons do.

For additional information, visit Dr. Youn's website at www.beverlyhillsbeauty.com or call (248) 650-1900.

Ask the Dentist

Q Dr. Levi, my husband snores a lot, sometimes very loudly. I recently read that he may be suffering from sleep apnea. What's a wife to do?

Q Sleep related breathing disorders like snoring and sleep apnea have been treated with cosmetic dentistry. Snoring that goes undiagnosed may lead to an increase tendency for the airway to collapse, leading to the condition called sleep apnea. This can cause some severe problems that can affect the heart besides ruining the chance for a good night's sleep. Sleep apnea has been known to cause death.

The three most effective methods of treatment of this condition are:

- Surgical removal of the uvula and possibly a portion
- Use of a continuous positive airway pressure (CPAP) device. This is an apparatus with a nose mask and compressor to pump air into the nose all night.
- Use of an anti-snoring device.

The first thing your husband should do is get examined and diagnosed by an oral surgeon, an ear, nose and throat specialist or a sleep clinic. Don't delay! You will both sleep much better after professional treatment of this problem.

When you call our office, we'll be happy to describe other advances in dental care that are unique in the profession.

Laser Eye Institute

Q What is Near Vision CK (Conductive Keratoplasty)?

Q Even if you have enjoyed good distance vision all of your life, or if you have achieved good vision through Lasik or other refractive procedures, all of us will experience fading near vision beginning around the age of 40. Near Vision CK uses radio frequency energy to reshape the cornea and bring near vision back into focus. CK is performed in the office in less than 3 minutes and involves no cutting or removal of tissue. After using numbing eye drops to eliminate any possibility of discomfort, the doctor uses a tiny probe to deliver radio waves in a circular pattern around the cornea. The collagen in the treated areas shrinks, causing a tightening effect (like a belt), and steepening the cornea bringing near vision into focus. The Laser Eye Institute has the latest technology to perform this procedure, freeing our patients from frustration of reading glasses.

Miner's Den

Q My white gold ring irritates my finger — why?

Q This is a common problem that can usually be traced to one of two sources, allergies or moisture. Some people are allergic to the nickel alloy in white gold. Normally we can solve this problem by coating the inside of the ring with a metal called rhodium (a member of the platinum family). The moisture problem is a by-product of water being trapped in the open spaces between your finger and the diamonds above. This is nearly always solved by resizing the ring in order to allow the trapped water to escape. In both cases the solution is quick and painless.

Q What are "bio-identical" hormones, and why their sudden popularity?

Bio-identical hormones are chemically and functionally the same female hormones that your body makes. They are specially prepared by compounding pharmacists and when properly prescribed have significantly less side effects than "synthetic" hormones. They can be administered in a variety of ways, such as skin lotions, suppositories or drops. Bio-identical hormones are produced from soy and yams.
