Eggenberger wins seat, but Slavens resigns for judgeship

> BY TONY BRUSCATO STAFF WRITER

Plymouth-Canton Schools voters reelected Board of Education Vice President Mark Slavens and voted for challenger Nancy Eggenberger to fill the two, four-year seats in Tuesday's election.

However, the election didn't do much to establish the makeup of the new board. Slavens won't serve at all, Eggenberger could be appointed earlier than her July 1 start date, and one of the candidates who didn't win Tuesday could still find a seat on the Board of Education.

Eggenberger, widely known throughout the district as president of the Plymouth-Canton Community School Council and co-chair of the last three bond proposals, finished first with 4,402 votes.

"I was just thrilled to see that many people voted for me," she said. "I'm

Parking tickets causing problem

Merchants want lighter touch from enforcement officers

> BY TONY BRUSCATO STAFF WRITER

When the first parking enforcement officers began walking downtown Plymouth streets two years ago, the plan was to ticket those who park more than two hours in prime parking spots to increase the turnover rate.

Downtown merchants wanted to get those who park for significant amounts of time – including employees of downtown businesses – to use long-term lots, leaving more shortterm spaces in front of the businesses for customers.

Merchants have learned to "be careful what you ask for" as It appears the parking ordinance officers – referred to by some as Gestapo officers – are doing their jobs too well. Merchants told city commissioners Monday

With voter turnout at a snail's crawl Tuesday, Plymouth-Canton school board Trustee Richard Ham-Kucharski could see the handwriting on the wall. Ham-Kucharski, who challenged teachers to take a one-time 6-percent pay cut to put money into a cashstarved school budget to avoid teacher layoffs and program cuts, knew the wrath of the Plymouth-Canton Education Association could result in him becoming a one-term trustee.

"Their votes would have been diluted if the general populace came out to vote as strong as the union," said Ham-Kucharski, who finished fourth in the race for two seats on the board. "I think it's pretty obvious."

Justine Cotner, a Salem High School math teacher, didn't leave anything to the imagination in her disdain for Ham-Kucharski's efforts to cut teacher's pay. "He had no business coming out and saying that, putting it all on the teachers, like that's the solution to this (budget) problem," said Cotner, who voted at Discovery Middle School. "It's just wrong."

Rich McCoin of Plymouth, who has two high school students in the district, was more blunt.

"He's an idiot," McCoin said of Ham-Kucharski. "You can't start messing

Corriveau calls 'pink pig' a political ploy

BY BRAD KADRICH STAFF WRITER

The various sides in the trash debate in Michigan brought their game of political football to Plymouth this week, and it involved an actual pigskin.

Not exactly a pigskin, but rather a 12-foot tall, 14-foot long, half-ton fiberglass pig on a trailer pulled by volunteers of the Michigan Taxpayers Association. The pig was pulled behind various trash-hauling vehicles, and volunteers also handed out fliers and posters.

MTA volunteers were in Plymouth – along with Northville and Wayne – to protest legislation that would raise Michigan's trash dumping charge from 21 cents a ton to $7.50 a ton. This area was chosen, according to MTA officials, because state Rep. Marc Corriveau, D-Northville, voted for the hike.

"This is one of those fee increases legislators love, because it's hidden in (residents') garbage bills," said MTA director Leon Drolet, himself a former state representative from Macomb County. "People will get angry with their local governments ... and legislators are off the hook." Corriveau predictably denounced the "Pink Pig" caper as a "political smear carried out by a so-called anti-tax group that attacked ... recent votes on a package of bills that will slash the amount of trash that comes into Michigan from Canada and other states."

"I refuse to be bullied by a political stunt from groups that are nothing more than fronts for the trash industry," Corriveau said. "Canada and other states dump millions of tons of trash in Michigan because it is dirt-cheap to do so."

MTA volunteers attached fliers and posters to residents' trash cans in Northville, Plymouth and Wayne with fliers criticizing Corriveau for supporting the anti-trash package in the House. While Corriveau said in a release residents had lodged complaints with local police, no such reports were filed in Plymouth or Plymouth Township.

Drolet said the MTA was simply trying to alert residents about a fee hike he says is actually a hidden tax increase.

Michigan Taxpayers Association director Leon Drolet (back) and volunteers (from left) Mark Andrek, Brandon Adkins, Clark Ruper, Craig Burgers (kneeling), Doug Tietz and Jonathan Chulski followed trash haulers around with this half-ton fiberglass pig to protest the state House vote to increase dumping fees. night they're losing business because customers are complaining about the $15 tickets being handed out to violators of the parking ordinance.

"They're the ones who tell their neighbors, friends and family, and they'll find another place to go," said Sandy Marulis, owner of Michigan Made. "It's a bad reflection for us after all the work we've done to make Plymouth a wonderful, welcoming place."

Faby Milano, owner of Milano Clothing, said he's had customers who were ticketed say they will never shop again in Plymouth.

"They've left merchandise in my store because they got a ticket," Milano said. "I've lost a lot of money. This isn't the reputation we want."

At Salon Awesome, where word of the so-called "Gestapo officers" has spread, owner Rachelle Frydoe said many of her customers want to leave town after their hair and nail appointments.

"They come, they park and then they want to leave," Frydoe said. "We need business because it's very slow out there, and the parking is making a bad image of Plymouth."

Mayor Dan Dwyer said the parking issue will be revisited by the parking committee, which will include input from downtown merchants.

"It was the Chamber of Commerce and the downtown merchants who asked for parking enforcement, not the City of Plymouth government," Dwyer said. "I'm not here to say we can't manage it better, but it wasn't the big, bad city looking for dollars. We're not going to get rich on $15 parking tickets."

That may be of little solace to Jean Ryan of Plymouth, who last week received a parking ticket while shopping downtown Plymouth.

"I had been out of my car for 15-20 minutes ... did my usual thing for downtown I do all the time ... and I had a ticket," Ryan said. "I just think I was sucker-punched."

Plymouth-Canton Schools Superintendent Jim Ryan is retiring June 30.

However, Ryan will continue to run the district through February after agreeing to a contract as a senior advisor that designates him as Superintendent Emeritus, which will save the district $59,000.

Ryan will continue to be compensated at his current salary rate of $161,000, adjusted on a pro-rata basis. However, as a contract employee through a thirdparty vendor, the district won't be responsible for fringe benefits, which is the same arrangement it has with other retiring administrators.

"Dr. Ryan will continue to focus on the district's financial issues and the process for the selection of the new superintendent," board attorney Gary Collins told trustees. "And, until a new superintendent is hired, (Assistant Superintendent)

Mr. Kenneth Jacobs will superintendent Pro Tem ... and assume the legal responsibilities of the office of superintendent, focusing on the district's ongoing operational and administrative needs."

Ryan said, in reality, nothing will change until February.

"The board will focus on selecting a search committee for a new superintendent in September, have community forums in November, a job posting in January, with interviews in March and hopefully a new superintendent by the end of March," Ryan said. "I desperately wanted to be a part of that, and the board has been gracious in letting me stay another eight months."

MOTHER'S DAY SPECIALS!

BY HUGH GALLAGHER STAFF WRITER

The nonpartisan Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees race had a strong partisan flavor this year, but top vote getter Joan Gebhardt credits her standing as a Schoolcraft mother and an educator as being more important factors in the race.

Gebhardt was appointed to the board in December to replace Kevin McNamara, who resigned when he won a seat on the Wayne County Commission. She finished first Tuesday in the five-person race for three board seats.

Veteran board members Mary Breen and Brian Broderick were re-elected. Canton attorney James Fausone finished fourth and former Schoolcraft registrar Ron Randall finished fifth.

Gebhardt, an adjunct education professor at Madonna University and an aide to Democratic state House Speaker Andy Dillon, said she didn't think partisan considerations were a deciding factor in the election. Gebhardt is a Democrat and received strong backing and letters of endorsement from area Democratic elected officials. Fausone is a Republican and received backing and letters of endorsement from area Republican leaders.

"I am a Democrat and work for the Democrat speaker but I was not running as a Democrat but as a parent and as an adjunct professor. I hope that was the deciding factor." "Voters made a statement,"

Gebhardt said. "All five candidates have excellent qualifications, anyone of us would have made a good trustee."

Breen will be returning for a fifth term on the board. Broderick will begin a third term as a trustee.

"It was a good race with all strong candidates," Broderick said.

He said he looks forward to the development of Schoolcraft's new biomedical facility and the potential for building a four-year nursing program.

He said Livonia dwarfed other communities in voter turnout, which might have had an impact on the low vote for Canton resident Fausone.

Woman facing trial for attacking elderly spouse

BY TIFFANY L. PARKS STAFF WRITER

www.hometownlife.com

The first time William H. Baumgartner said "I do" in reference to Kelly Campbell-Baumgartner he was taking her as his wife. The second time came Monday in 35th District Court when he vowed to tell the truth regarding the felonious assault charges against her.

Campbell-Baumgartner, 46, has been charged with domestic violence, assault and battery and felonious assault for allegedly attacking her 86year-old husband during an argument at Max & Erma's on April 22.

If convicted on the felonious assault charge, Campbell-Baumgartner faces up to four years in prison.

At her preliminary hearing on Monday, Judge Michael J. Gerou bound Campbell-Baumgartner over for trial. She is scheduled to be arraigned May 21 in Circuit Court at the Frank Murphy Hall of Justice in Detroit.

Campbell-Baumgartner has been accused of injuring Baumgartner with either a knife or a fork while the two were at the restaurant.

Nicole Clay, Wayne County Prosecutor's Office attorney, touched on Campbell-Baumgartner's violent past, including her plea to an aggravated domestic violence charge that involved her stabbing her mother with a fork.

Baumgartner, who admitted that he didn't want to testify against his wife of five months, said the "ruckus" at the restaurant stemmed from a dispute the couple had earlier that day regarding one of their neighbors.

After getting married, the two moved from the Plymouth house Baumgartner had shared with his late wife of 56 years into a Hendrie Drive home in Canton. They had been having issues with a particular neighbor over their dog.

On April 22, Campbell-Baumgartner began to approach their neighbor and Baumgartner testified he told his wife to "cool it" and then a "scuffle broke out." He said Campbell-Baumgartner accused him of not standing up for her and then hit and pushed him. According to the police report, Baumgartner told officers that his wife hit him numerous times in the face. After the altercation, Baumgartner said his wife told him she wanted nothing to do with him and drove him to his old residence in Plymouth. He testified that Campbell-Baumgartner returned to his Plymouth home twice and, at one point, wiped some blood off of his face. Baumgartner testified that he hadn't realized he was bleeding.

Campbell-Baumgartner then suggested they go to Max & Erma's for dinner. While at the Canton Center Road eatery, Baumgartner asked his wife if she was still angry and another argument ensued.

The couple's pastor, the Rev. William Moore, testified that he attempted to greet the two at the restaurant when Campbell-Baumgartner began yelling obscenities at him.

Dave Foydel, who does magic tricks at the restaurant on Sundays, testified that he observed Campbell-Baumgartner yell at her husband and dump his food into his lap. He alerted the restaurant's manager, Brian Elliott, about the incident. When Elliott tried to escort Campbell-Baumgartner outside, Foydel told police she began to kick at the manager. During several moments of testimony by Moore and Foydel, Campbell-Baumgartner lightly shook her head in disagreement.

While on the stand, Baumgartner shot down statements in the police report that alleged Campbell-Baumgartner held a knife close to the right side of his head. Sometime after Campbell-

Baumgartner exited the restaurant, Moore and Foydel testified they saw blood on the right side of Baumgartner's face.

Defense attorney Charles Anderson argued that the charges should be dismissed because the case against his client is weak and no one could testify that they saw Campbell-Baumgartner injure her husband.

'Why are we bending over backward trying to make a case," he said, noting Baumgartner's desire to have a no-contact restriction between him and his wife lifted.

Anderson referred to his client as "this poor woman" and said the state has no case because there wasn't a crime.

State files $70 million in embezzlement charges against cemeteries' owner

BY ALEX LUNDBERG STAFF WRITER

The state's top prosecutor is pressing charges against an Oklahoma businessman for misusing funds set aside for the maintenance of almost 30 cemeteries he owns around Michigan.

Michigan Attorney General. Mike Cox announced late last month he had filed 39 felony counts against Clayton Ray Smart of Oklahoma in connection with the alleged embezzlement of up to $70 million in cemetery trust funds.

The charges account for $38 million of the $70 million that should be set aside in cemetery trust funds. There may be more charges to come.

The charges include one count of racketeering, 10 counts of embezzlement and 28 counts of failure to trust cemetery proceeds.

According to Cox's office, the money was embezzled to fund the purchase of 28 cemeteries in the state. Smart is currently in custody in Oklahoma fighting extradition to Michigan and Tennessee.

Cemetery trusts are required, by state law, so that there are funds to care for the physical well-being of the land. They are there to provide for maintenance (mowing, seeding, planting) and for the equipment to maintain the property for the future.

Among the local cemeteries involved are Mt. Hope Memorial Gardens, 17849 Middlebelt in Livonia, Cadillac Memorial Gardens West, 34424 Ford in Westland, and United Memorial Gardens, 4800 Curtis in Plymouth.

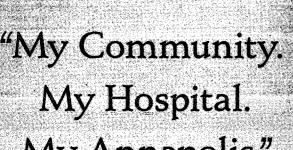

Attorney general's office spokesman Matt Frendewey said the cemeteries were being maintained and operated as normal under the eye of a state-appointed conservator and contracts with them for plots and services already purchased would still be honored.

Todd Turowski, funeral director and vice president of the Neely-Turowski Funeral Home, said the charges won't affect the funeral home business, but will likely cast the entire death care industry in a poor light.

He said funeral homes have always been highly regulated in regards to trusts.

"Funeral homes have always been accountable for pre-need arrangements," he said. "We have to put/100 percent of that money in a trust - there's no money to lose."

In past/years, before funeral homes lobbied to have the law changed, companies running cemeteries didn't have to put any pre-need funds into trusts. cemeteries will end up trusting

Slavens, whose 3,723 votes were second and earned him his third, four-year term, resigned after Tuesday's regular board meeting - before the final results were in - because he's not allowed to hold elected public office as a result of his gubernatorial appointment to the Wayne County 3rd Circuit Court bench.

Third place went to Kurt Heise of Plymouth Township, incumbent Richard Ham-Kucharski, who is completing a four-year term, finished fourth, Larry Martin of Plymouth Township was fifth and Bruce Koldys of Canton Township finished sixth.

The Board of Education has already made plans to replace Slavens by seeking applications for the five-week term through 4 p.m. Friday, May 18.

Since the Board of Education will have to make another appointment after July 1 to fill the seat for one year of the four-year term won by Slavens, it might make sense to appoint newly elected Eggenberger to the short-term position.

"That's certainly a possibility," said Barry Simescu, school board president. "We have to see who applies and goes through the process.

Eggenberger said she'll apply for the early appointment.

"I think I will," Eggenberger said. "It would be great to get a jump start. Heise said he hasn't decided if he will send a letter of interest to the school board for the five-week appointment.

"As far as I'm concerned, I've already made an application." Heise said. "I went through a three-month campaign process, I participated in the League of Women Voters debate and I've achieved the support of 3,000 (actually 2,523) voters in Plymouth-Canton. I don't know if I will jump through any additional hoops at this time."

The Board of Education will go through the same process when Slavens' four-year term begins July 1, with 20 days to fill the first year of the term. Martin said he'd be interested in that position.

"But, it might be worth going through the (current) process as a rehearsal," Martin said. Ham-Kucharski, whose term

Even those who supported Ham-Kucharski at the polls, like Fred Bolden of Canton Township, had to disagree with the candidate on the teacher's pay.

"I supported him because of his stand on issues like autism, he seems to be one of the levelheaded members on the board," Bolden said, "However, I don't see teachers taking pay cuts. That's the only issue I didn't like of his.'

OUR VIEWS

All-Stars give us reason to be proud

Congratulations to the 2007 Observer Newspapers Academic All-Star Team — 16 students from Farmington and western Wayne County who are among the brightest and best soon-to-be graduates of local schools.

The students are intelligent, hard-working, active, optimistic and focused on a future that gives back to society.

For 22 years, the Observer has honored outstanding young scholars and held them up for public recognition so the community can see first hand the tremendous talent and potential that exists here.

We're pleased to continue the tradition of recognizing academic excellence and even more pleased to be joined by our partners — the Townsend Hotel in Birmingham, Huntington Bank and Madonna University — in honoring the brightest and best of the Class of 2007.

The 2007 All-Stars are outstanding scholars and musicians. They volunteer at schools, local hospitals, churches and synagogues. They strive for careers in medicine, science, education and law. They honor and applaud the teachers who have had an impact on their lives.

We have high expectations for all of these students.

Today, in a special section inside this newspaper, we salute the All-Stars and the runners-up. All of these students are smart, motivated and eager to expand their world. They are generous with their time and talent. They act locally, but think globally. They are eager to make their communities, the state, the nation and the world a better place. They are grateful to their teachers and parents who have nurtured them along their path to academic and personal success.

Congratulations to the 2007 Academic All-Star Team of (in order of ranking) Zhe (Julie) Xiang, Canton High School; Joshua Mann, Churchill High School; Sruthi Renati, Farmington High School; Lauren Jones, Harrison High School; Alexander Sapick, North Farmington High School; Breanna Miller, Canton High School; Jakub Poznanski, Plymouth High School; Shobha Narasimhan, Salem High School; Laura Oliver, Thurston High School; D.J. "Dorothy J." Heebner, North Farmington High School; Chelsea LeBlanc, Salem High School; Shulamite Chiu, Harrison High School; Anna Sheppard, Farmington High School; Katherine Lebioda, Plymouth High School; Kimberly Martinez, Stevenson High School; and Zhe Guan, Churchill High School.

The Observer salutes these outstanding young men and women and the more than 25 runners-up as they close the door on a successful high school career and move on to what promises to be an outstanding future.

Nursing is a growing and vital occupation

Need new board

The Plymouth Historical Museum's unnecessary fiasco with the IRS reminds me of when I was a youngster. I think of a conglomeration of fairy tales. Carl Berry's Gang of Eight reminds me a bit of Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, or Mary and her Little Lambs or the Three Little Pigs, except they were pure and innocent and they were all fairly cute. The bad guys always died and the good guys lived happily ever after.

Carl's gang intentionally and maliciously conspired to destroy Beth Stewart - no ifs, ands, nor buts about that! They did not care who or what got in their way, not even the museum. While they profess to want to save the museum, their actions cost the museum not only in terms of legal fees but also in terms of anxiety and bad publicity and many good volun who've subsequently quit volunteering. They intimidated a lot of good people, hard working museum volunteers, into firing Beth by lying, withholding and/or skewing the truth, and creating a fear of IRS retribution. What Beth Stewart worked for 17 vears to create and develop, they attempted to destroy almost overnight. All for what? They wanted Mark Abbo to be elected. They gave no consideration to the overall welfare of the museum. They were intent upon destroying Beth Stewart and did not care if they destroyed the museum in the process. Well, Beth lost and Abbo won the primary. But a much better man won the election. Now the museum still stands but is reeling from the aftershock of Carl's Gang's shenanigans.

as I offered in my July 23 letter: "Now, for all this hullabaloo about bulk mailing permits and the use of the museum for meetings: If everything I read in the O&E is correct, Beth Stewart correctly handled the use of the permit by first obtaining permission from the permit owner to use it for her limited mailing and in paying the commercial rate for the copies and mailings."

I believe my assessment has been validated by the results of the investigations. The IRS findings of "no damage to the nonprofit status of the museum" also vindicates the museum of any wrongdoing or bias toward the campaign of Ms. Stewart.

I think this calls for a hearty round of resignations by the present museum board members (as I called for in my unpublished letter of Dec. 15): "I would call for the resignation of the board members because of th gence in setting policy and carrying out their duties." I also think a formal letter of apology from the museum board to Beth Stewart would be in order. As Dan Parker, a retired IRS criminal investigation agent, stated in his interview with the Detroit News: "The board handled it horribly. I know how the system works and I told them then that they were over-reacting." A few other items that are worthy of consideration when you evaluate the validity of Mr. Berry's tale: The complaint against the museum was filed by Ron Lowe's attorney. Eric Doster. Why would he do that? Isn't Ron Lowe on the museum board? A complaint was also filed with the State Attorney General. I wrote to Mr. Cox asking the status of the complaint. I never received the courtesy of a reply. Aren't Mike Cox and his wife, Laura, a part of the Michigan Republican Party Machine, and didn't Laura Cox openly campaign for Mark Abbo (the defeated candidate for 20th District representative)? Why was the decision and announcement of the firing of Beth Stewart by the museum board delayed until only a few days before the primary election? Wasn't that a picture of Carl Berry celebrating with Mark Abbo that I saw in the O&E after the primary election? Well, fellow voters, you will have to make up your mind. As for me, I give it the "Duck Test:" 1) It sure looks like a duck; 2) it sure sounds like a duck; 3) it walks (was performed) like a duck; 4) And it smells... It sure sounds like the local Republican party.

Recently, I read an article about the budget problems facing Plymouth-Canton schools and was especially grieved to see the 30-year-old, student-run radio station on the chopping block.

Every morning for the past five years since discovering the radio station, I listen. WSDP has put me in touch with valuable community information, and their public service announcements are awesome. My son and I listen to WSDP every morning and every evening on our way to and from school because of the fine music.

Furthermore, I look at WSDP and Plymouth-Canton schools as a parent. WSDP is an exemplar of what a good school program in a good district looks like. As a parent, I have many options. I can select from charter schools, private schools or public schools. It's programs like the student-run WSDP that set Plymouth-Canton schools apart from its competition in my eyes; there's no other program like it. I can give my perspective as a professional, as well, as I work within the field of education for Eastern Michigan University. I spend a lot of time in local middle schools and am starkly aware of budget constraints, curriculum issues and other strains upon Michigan public education today. Our kids are facing a world that looks a lot different from the one we parents saw in high school. This is why it is especially important to do what we can to keep them engaged in their own learning and prepare them for the future. WSDP offers students a chance to learn marketable skills. It serves the community in a variety of ways through public service announcements, contests and information awareness. Don't let this gem of the Plymouth-Canton School District fall victim to our hard times.

This is National Nurses Week, May 6-12. The week is scheduled to coincide with Florence Nightingale's birthday May 12.

Nightingale is considered the founder of modern nursing, famous for her efforts to care for British soldiers during the Crimean War.

Nursing has come a long way since Nightingale first raised public awareness of the profession. It is a demanding, rewarding and growing field.

According to the U.S. Census, nursing will grow by 623,000 jobs between 2002 and 2012, the largest job growth for any occupation.

These figures reflect the severe nursing shortage in the U.S. and particularly in Michigan. The Michigan Center for Nursing highlights several factors for what is expected to be a continuing problem over the next couple decades: a growing and aging population; fewer young people entering the nursing workforce; an aging workforce in a field that demands physical strength; a workforce that doesn't reflect the diversity of the general population; and more professional options for women, who represent 92 percent of registered nurses.

Gov. Jennifer Granholm has proposed the Michigan Nursing Corps. to train 500 additional nursing instructors to graduate more than 3,000 additional nurses in the next three years.

Area nursing schools at Schoolcraft College, Madonna University, Oakland Community College and Oakland University are putting a new emphasis on health care professions, particularly nursing. Schoolcraft College President Conway Jeffress has proposed that the Legislature allow the college to offer a four-year nursing degree.

Currently, nurses are burdened by mandatory overtime and a heavy patient load.

For their sake and for the sake of the public health, we need to encourage a growth in nursing by offering better educational opportunities and better compensation for those men and women who take up the challenge to follow Florence Nightingale.

Our fundamental purposes are to enhance the lives of our readers, nurture the hometowns we serve and contribute to the business success of our customers.

I hope the Plymouth Historical Society elects a new Board of Directors that will not be so easily intimidated by the likes of Carl Berry and his Gang. The museum deserves to live happily ever after.

Letter is laughable

Thank you for publishing Carl Berry's letter in the Thursday, May 3, edition. I have not laughed so hard since the time I saw the results of the District 20 State Representative election last fall.

Wow. Talk about a work of pure fiction.

If the electorate of District 20 believes the tale Mr. Berry spins, then I'm sure he also has some good highground land near New Orleans he will let them have for a reasonable price, sight unseen. His story certainly exemplifies his belief about how stupid and easily duped the voters of this district are.

The outcome of all the investigations is now in with the results exactly

WSDP a great asset

There is no doubt we face tough economic times here in Michigan. Time after time I read about budget deficits and cuts in jobs in all sectors.

Serving jury duty a civic privilege like Barry Manilow and chick flicks. I've become obsessed with Rachael Ray. A normal breakfast for me is two Boston Cremes and a coke from Tim Horton's. I own two -count 'em, two – pink shirts.

www.hometownlife.com

Let's just say I'm used to getting weird looks from people.

So I barely noticed when people gaped at me when I expressed delight at receiving the first jury summons of my 48 years.

To most people, the spectre of jury duty seems to be an unbearable nuisance. But to someone who would have loved to serve on the O.J. Simpson jury, getting the summons was akin to a visit by Ed McMahon with one of those big cardboard checks.

Professional cohorts

weren't the only ones who looked at me funny. My own sons eyed me as though I'd just sprouted horns, until 16-year-old Marcus thought maybe I'd get on the Stephen Grant case. Umm ... wrong county, but how cool would that be?

I admit I was far more excited a couple of weeks ago when the summons came than I was the day before I was set to serve. Suddenly, the idea of spending the day at the Coleman A. Young Municipal Center seemed less appealing. Besides, it was supposed to be sunny and in the mid-60s, and my golf clubs were screaming to be let out of the trunk.

And, of course, getting to the Coleman A. Young Municipal Center meant driving to downtown Detroit, a prospect that generally gives me hives. Too many one-way streets and huge buildings that confuse me. Fortunately, my partner in crime here does traffic on the radio, and his predetermined route got me exactly where I was going well before a rash could develop.

I arrived about 15 minutes before the scheduled 8:30 a.m. show-time, filled out the ques tionnaire then sat back - with some two dozen others - to wait. We took our first break (without really needing one) around 9 a.m. People read newspapers or books, talked quietly or watched the Will Smith movie, Hitch. I spent 15 years in the U.S. Air Force, so all this "hurry up and wait" stuff wasn't anything new to me.

Around 10 a.m., we were moved over to the Lincoln Hall of Juvenile Justice for possible jury selection in a child protection case. As we waited for voir dire to begin, conversations revealed a little more about each of us. It was the first time I'd ever been summoned for jury duty. Others had done it often; Michael Long of Van Buren Township said he'd been called "maybe 15 times," though he'd never actually sat on a jury (that was about to change, though he didn't know it).

Another guy said he'd been an alternate on a murder trial, but had been dismissed when the jury went into deliberations. That jury, he said, convicted the defendant in 15 minutes.

We were led into the courtroom of Judge Frank Szymanski, with whom, I later learned, I had something in common (it was the first jury trial for both of us). The first thing I was struck by was the size of the courtroom. Apparently I've been watching too much Law & Order, because I wasn't prepared for a room that's smaller than my living room.

I was one of the first eight into the box for voir dire, and I was still sitting there when the jury was chosen, so I was one-for-one in jury selection. While many of the people in our group expressed a desire to get the hell out of there, I was happy to be chosen.

By the time the eight of us (six would actually deliberate the case, with two alternates chosen at random at the end of the trial) were seated Thursday afternoon, there was only time for opening statements, which meant a return trip Friday. That was OK with me for a couple of reasons: I was enjoying the experience, and it meant lunch a second day at Bianca's, the greasy-spoon coney island place next door to the courthouse.

But Friday, the case turned grim. We were charged with deciding whether the court should get jurisdiction over the five children adopted by the same mother. There were charges of physical, sexual and emotional abuse, and our charge was to decide whether the court should have jurisdiction over any or all five kids.

We listened to the evidence presented by the attorney general and the defense. We took the judge's orders into consideration, and began our deliberations around 4:15 p.m. Friday. During our breaks throughout the day, I had considered the various emotions I was feeling: trepidation, ebullience, honor.

But after listening to evidence of the rape of a 4-year-old boy and the other abuses that had been heaped upon these five children, the awesome responsibility of what to do about it hit home when the decision was left to us. We ultimately left two of the children as wards of the court and returned the other three to their adoptive mother, feeling the state had not proven she'd been part of the pattern of abuse.

Having been chosen jury foreman, it was my responsibility to stand before the principals in the case and read all five verdicts. Reading them, wondering if we'd done the right thing for those children, having to look into the eyes of that mother — it was about as awesome a responsibility as I've ever undertaken.

When it was over, Judge Szymanski told us it had been a privilege to have us as jurors presiding over his first jury trial. And all I could think was, "No, sir, the privilege was mine."

It's time for the museum to clean house ow is the right time for members of the Plymouth Historical Museum to go onward and forward and reject the political negativity that was generated last year.

The tax-exempt status of the Plymouth Historical Museum was NEVER in jeopardy, according to Dan Packer, an IRS criminal investigator for 25 years. This was blown way out of proportion by

Stewart

Carl Berry and his "Save the Museum" cohorts. The political motive was to drag down the museum and Beth Stewart and to get Mark Abbo elected. But it backfired because the people of our communities saw through it and elected a Democratic State Representative Marc Corriveau for the first time in many decades. The facts are:

On June 15, 2006, Beth Stewart went to the Plymouth Post Office on Beck Road and Barbara Mitchell, a 30-year employee said, "Why don't you use someone else's bulk-mailing permit?"

Beth Stewart received the written authorization of Mr. Sanford Burr, President of the Board of Directors, to use the Museum's bulk-mailing permit.

At all times, Beth Stewart paid the full postage rate and did not benefit one penny from using the Museum's bulk mailing permit number.

Eric Doster, an attorney for the Michigan Republican Party, filed the complaint against the Museum with the IRS.

On Aug. 2, 2006, Armando Lopez telephoned my wife, Beth Stewart, at home at 9:30 p.m. and said, "You are terminated." Beth Stewart has never talked with the board and has never been given the opportunity to tell her side of the story. Dan Packer has publicly said, "The Board handled it horribly. I know how the system works and I told them then that they were overreacting. In the end, the Board is the group that took action that benefited a political candidate."

Where are the members of the "Save the Museum" group, other than Carl Berry, Shannon Price, Tom Hickey, Mark Mandell, and Matt Frendeway, campaign manager for Mark Abbo and now the spokesperson for Attorney General Mike Cox? They have never contributed one penny to the Museum. Let's go onward and forward and build up our community in a more positive manner.

John C. Stewart is a Plymouth attorney and former state representative in the 20th District.

News media needs to win back the public trust

n the public's eyes, just about the only folks struggling with believability issues more than the Bush administration are journalists.

And journalists largely have themselves to thank for that.

Tatum

This past week, newsrooms nationwide observed Ethics in Journalism Week, and they have a sorry state of affairs to consider. Since the mid-1980s, Americans have been increasingly skeptical of the information they receive from the news media, and no major news outlet has escaped the trend, according to The Pew Research Center for the People and the Press. Last year, only 19 percent of people surveyed by the Project for Excellence in Journalism said they believed "all or most" of what they read in their daily newspaper, a drop of 10 points in eight years. Another 40 percent believed only "a good deal" of what they read in the paper.

The loss of public trust should come as no surprise. Journalists have been caught making up stories (Jayson Blair, formerly of The New York Times, and others); rushing stories into the public domain ("Al Gore is our next president. No, make that George Bush. No, make that ..."); accepting payment from the government in exchange for news coverage (three journalists formerly at El Nuevo Herald in Miami, and others); plagiarizing (too many culprits to name here); and juicing their stories with loaded language and sensational imagery (again, we don't have enough space to start naming names).

Business agendas are also getting in the way of good journalism. What else would explain an ABC reporter's "story" about a medical procedure that just happened to play a starring role in the episode of Grey's Anatomy that aired right before the newscast? What happens to local news coverage when hundreds of reporting positions are cut to satisfy investors' expectations, or one corporation owns hundreds of news outlets?

Good journalism is at the heart of our democracy. Like it or not, a free press - warts and all - is what creates an informed citizenry that can hold business, government and the institutions that affect our lives accountable. This nation is great because it has a free. albeit noisy and messy - news media.

The easy thing for a cynical public to do is watch passively as journalism reels from its self-inflicted wounds, or bash the news media until they deliver nothing of substance or value. The media most certainly need to win back the public trust they've lost. That trust starts with a commitment to ethical news production, which is, above all, accurate, fair and independent of special interests. Many news organizations, publicize their ethics policies online. The Society of Professional Journalists' code is widely considered the gold standard of the industry and can be found at spj.org. SPJ members routinely debate journalism ethics online and encourage the general public to join their conversations. Rather than tune out, readers, listeners and viewers should hold news organizations and the companies that own them accountable for their news coverage and the business decisions that undermine responsible journalism. Write letters, send e-mail, make phone calls or blog. We'll all be better for it.

Madonna holds 60th commencement

Madonna University awarded approximately 980 degrees at ceremonies Saturday at Calihan Hall at the University of Detroit Mercy. This year marked the university's 60th commencement.

The university awarded 700 undergraduate degrees and certificates and the remainder were master's degrees.

Honorary degrees were given to 1959 alumna Sister Mary Janice Ziolkowski and retired General Motors Vice President Edward P. Czapor. The Distinguished Alumna award was given to Joan Duggan, class of 1973.

The invocation was given by Bishop John M. Quinn, auxiliary bishop of the Archdiocese of Detroit and Madonna University trustee. On Thursday, a graduation Mass was celebrated for all graduates and their families at the Presentation House at the Felician Sisters' Motherhouse.

When making a loan to a family member, put it in writing

Have you ever been asked to loan money to a family member? I was recently asked if it's a good idea to consider such a loan and what are the legal implications when dealing with family members. I believe whenever family or friends get involved in a business transaction there is the potential for problems that can impact someone financially and cause rifts within a family. However, there is one side of the equation and that is the good feeling you get from helping out a family member or friend. In addition, if a family member is starting a small business it may be very difficult for them to obtain financing at a reasonable interest rate. Sometimes the only chance of success is to go to family and friends.

If you're thinking of getting involved in a transaction with family or friends, my advice is that there has to be a clear understanding whether the money is a gift or a loan. Both parties should know in advance what is expected. I know that these discussions with family members can be uncomfortable, however, keep in mind the transaction involves more than the parties involved. It can also impact the whole family.

If the transaction is a loan, then the terms should be discussed up front. Just like any other loan, the terms include payment schedule, interest rate, collateral, if any, and what happens in case of default. If the lender says "pay me whenever you can" this can cause problems because the terms are open ended. In this case, the lender has to recognize that they may never be repaid.

Even when terms are discussed up front, problems can develop if payments aren't made. Even though you may have the legal right to do something, your actions impact the family and that is something to consider. Everyone has to recognize there is more than a financial risk with these types of transactions.

If the money is a loan, I recommend terms be put in writing. It's a good idea to have an attorney draw up the document so it is a legally binding. Having an attorney involved lets the borrower know they are entering a legal transaction and that there are consequences if they fail to comply with terms of the loan. Even if the money is a gift, it's a good idea to also put that in writing.

What you charge in interest is always an issue. From an IRS point of view, in order for the loan not to be treated as a gift, thus causing gift tax consequences, you have to charge a fair rate of interest. However, the law does recognize that you do not have to charge the same interest rate as a financial institution. The lender does have to report the interest received as taxable income while the borrower may or may not be able to deduct the interest.

Many people believe if they make a loan to a family member and he or she does not repay the loan that they can deduct the loan as a bad debt. According to the IRS, if you take a deduction for a bad debt, you have to prove that you used all reasonable efforts to collect on the debt. This action includes potentially bringing legal action against the borrower.

Lending money to a relative or a friend is a nice gesture, however, it can cause problems. The key to avoiding problems is to make sure everyone involved understands the agreement.

County holds Transportation Education Expo

A20 (*)

To help observe National Transportation Week (May 13-18), the first Wayne County Transportation Education Expo will take a look to the future and a nostalgic ride in the past from 10.a.m. to 7 p.m. Friday, May 18, at Nankin Mills in Westland. Exhibits will range from a plug-in hybrid automobile and electric cars to award-winning custom cars, robots, awardwinning bridge displays and the latest technological advancements in the transportation industry. A classic car cruise along Hines Drive will begin at 4 p.m.

Exhibitors will include: Ford Motor Co., the Engineering Society of Detroit, Michigan State University, the University of Michigan-Dearborn, Washtenaw Community College, Grand Valley State University, Lawrence Technological University and Eastern Michigan University. Other exhibitors are the Golightly Career and Technical Center, Davis Aerospace High School, Southeastern Technical High School and the Breithaupt Career and Technical Center. In one exhibit from the University of Michigan-Dearborn, a robot will navigate through an obstacle course, staying within boundaries while avoiding construction barriers and potholes.

The Redford Rolling Thunder Club will feature more than 30 classic autos, dating as far back as the 1920s. Wayne County Executive Robert Ficano's Vision Fund will award $1,000 scholarships to each participating school and institution.

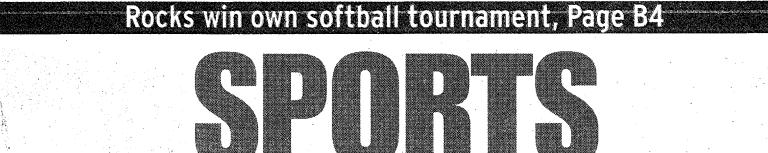

Nankin Mills is on Hines Drive, east of Ann Arbor Trail. Admission is free and refreshments will be available.

Chiefs win one for injured teammate, 3-0

BY ED WRIGHT STAFF WRITER

As paramedics prepared to lift Canton sophomore second baseman Shelby Anthony into a waiting ambulance during the bottom of the fourth inning of the Chiefs' annual under-the-lights showdown against Salem Tuesday night, she delivered a short but inspiring message to her older sister, Canton starting pitcher Sarah Anthony.

"She looked up at me and said, 'Now go out there and beat them," recalled Sarah Anthony.

Despite some incredibly stressful circumstances, big sister obliged.

Sarah Anthony tossed a three-hitter in the Chiefs' 3-0 victory over the Rocks in a game that was delayed for close to an hour after Shelby Anthony suffered a displaced right kneecap while swinging at a pitch from Salem starting pitcher Melissa Leach.

"Going back out there when the game re-started was tough, but it was something I had to do," said Sarah Anthony. "I had to do it for her.

"She's two years younger than me, so this is the first time we've gotten to play on the same team, and I've loved it. We've really grown closer.'

Not long after the medical staff administered a pain-killer to Shelby Anthony, something amazing happened - her injured kneecap shifted back into place. As of late Tuesday night, she was resting comfortably at St. Mary Mercy Hospital in Livonia and her knee was stabilized, according to Sarah.

"Everybody was understandably down after the injury," said Canton coach Jim Arnold. "But I relayed to them what Shelby told Sarah, and then I told them how her knee went back into place and that everything was going to be OK. "And, for a change," Arnold added, smiling, "they believed me." Considering Sarah Anthony's competitive spirit, Arnold said he wasn't surprised she wanted to keep playing after her sister's injury.

"After Shelby got hurt, I asked Sarah if she wanted to leave," he said. "She looked at me and said, 'No, I'm staying and I want to keep pitching. I've learned ever since her freshman season that Sarah is a very tough girl - and her younger sister is a lot like she is. They're

Stevenson runs away with first title since 1980

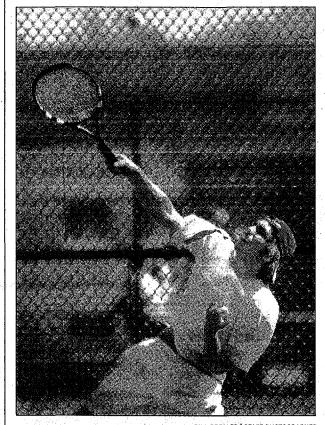

BY DAN O'MEARA STAFF WRITER

After a near-miss, second-place finish a year ago, coach Scott Shaw and his Livonia Stevenson athletes left no doubt who was No. 1 in the Observerland Relays this year.

The Spartans won going away Saturday night, finishing with 89 points and 14 better than city rival Livonia Churchill in the 37th annual meet at Farmington High School.

It was the first Observerland championship since 1980 for Stevenson, which finished a point behind Canton last year.

"Obviously, our kids ran really well," Shaw said. "We scored in 13 out of 16 events, and Stevenson had a better start this year, winning the three-man long jump and high jump relays.

The Spartans still trailed Novi-Detroit Catholic Central, which won both throwing events, by a few points in the early scoring, but they moved into the lead after six events following a victory by Myles White in the 110meter high hurdles.

Although the three P-CEP boys track and field teams didn't fare as well at Saturday's 37th

Observerland Relays as they may have liked (Canton, Plymouth and Salem placed eighth, ninth and 10th, respectively), there were still plenty of outstanding efforts, including: Canton's pole-vaulting trio of Chris McGinnis, Ryan Langdon and

Brian Rakovitis placed second with a combined school record-tying effort of 36 feet, six inches; Salem's Baze Efremov placed third in the 110-meter hurdles, just ahead of Plymouth's Nate Gholston; and Plymouth's Patrick Slavens placed fourth in the 1,600-meter run, just ahead of fifth-place finisher Rob Curtis of Salem.

Underdog Sudbury takes 2-1 series lead against Whalers

What's a sixth-seeded team doing in the Ontario Hockey League Championship Series?

Very well, thank you.

The Sudbury Wolves, who were seeded No. 6 in the OHL's Eastern Conference postseason brackets, earned a 2-1 advantage over the No. 2 seed Plymouth Whalers with a 5-4 overtime victory in Sudbury Tuesday night.

The Wolves' Justin Donati scored the game-winner 3:15 into the extra session off assists from Jonathan D'Aversa and Marc Staal.

Plymouth forced the overtime with 2:36 remaining in regulation when Evan Brophey secured a pass from Steve Ward and stuck it in the back of the net to make it 4-all. James Neal also assisted on the gametying lamp-lighter.

Sudbury scored first 12:22 after the opening faceoff when Nick Foligno scored from Andrew Self, who was named the game's No. 2 star. Twenty-six seconds later, the Whalers tied it on Ryan McGinnis's second playoff goal from A.J. Jenks.

The Wolves led 2-1 after two periods thanks to Patrik Lusnak's goal from D'Aversa and Staal at the 6:15 mark. Plymouth evened things up at 2-all on Jared Boll's power-play goal 6:17 into the third period.

Energized by a crowd of 5,737 at the Sudbury Community Arena, the Wolves surged ahead 4-2 with back-to-back goals from Self (his eighth of the playoffs) and Kevin Baker, his sixth.

Plymouth's Sean O'Connor (from McGinnis and Boll) narrowed the Whalers' deficit to 4-3 with 3:14 to go before Brophey tied it 38 seconds later.

Whalers. Sebastian Dahm earned the win shots.

In Sunday's Game 2 at Plymouth, the Wolves used a balanced attack and steady goaltending to defeat the Whalers, 7-3, before 3,331 fans at the Compuware Sports Arena.

Six different Wolves scored at least two points each, including first star Self (two goals and an assist), second star Devin DiDiomete (two goals), third star Matt Dias (one goal, three helpers), Baker (one and two), Nick Foligno (three assists) and Justin Donati (goal, two assists).

Dahm stopped 42-of-45 shots in goal for Sudbury. Neal (12th), Daniel Ryder (8th) and Dan Collins (7th) scored for Plymouth.

Sudbury broke open a 1-1 game after twenty minutes of play with four goals in the second period on goals by DiDiomete (5:03), Dias (9:50) and two by Self (10:48 and 18:10, respectively) sandwiched around Plymouth goals by Ryder (11:08) and Collins (18:47)

The Wolves then closed out the scoring in the third period with two unanswered goals - DiDiomete (11:35) and Donati (16:46).

FIELD HOCKEY CAMP

The annual Livonia Ladywood Blazer Field Hockey Day Camp will be held Saturday, June 23, at Ladywood High School, which is located on Newburgh between Schoolcraft and Five Mile in Livonia.

The camp, which runs from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. and costs $50 per participant, will introduce future high school players to the sport of field hockey as well as promote enthusiasm for the game. An emphasis will be placed on learning the basic fundamentals of the game and teaching proper techniques of the skill sets used to play, including dribbling, driving, shooting, passing and stopping.

The first half of the day will focus on skills with the second half set for team play and smallsided scrimmages.

All campers will need to bring shin guards, a mouthpiece, a water bottle, a field hockey stick (some will be available to sign out at the camp) and a sack lunch. Rubber cleats are also recommended.

Registration forms can be picked up at Ladywood High School. For more information, call (734) 751-9790.

Rocks win own softball tournament

Salem's softball team proved to be numero uno on Cinco de Mayo.

(CP)

The red-hot Rocks captured the 10th Annual Salem Invitational on Saturday when they outlasted a strong field of eight teams by going 4-0. It was the second straight year that the Rocks won their own tournament.

I'm proud of the entire team, but especially my seniors, who were truly team players on Saturday," said Salem coach Bonnie Southerland. "Even though they had the prom on Friday night, the girls seemed to get stronger as the day went on Saturday. We had great senior. leadership all the way around.

"We've won five in a row now and we seem to be getting stronger. The girls have gotten a taste of how sweet it is to win and what it takes to do it, and they know they have a ton of talent. They are continuing to improve and that's what we like to see."

Salem opened with a 3-0 shutout victory over South Lvon. Melissa Leach was the star, limiting the Lions to two hits and two walks while striking out six. The Rocks pushed across a pair of runs in the first inning with two outs when Abby Pairitz and Kait McKinley walked and eventually scored on wild pitches.

The Rocks added an insurance run when Pairitz singled in Amanda Emmons, who finished 2-for-3. Salem knocked off Flat Rock, 5-3, in Game 2. Kelly MacDonald earned the mound victory after allowing nine hits and walking two while whiffing six. Leach earned a save by working the seventh.

Offensively, the winners were led by Pairitz and Kait McKinley, both of whom went 2-for-3 while combining to knock in all five Salem runs.

The Rocks registered a thrilling 7-6 triumph over Livonia Franklin in the Game 3. Leach earned the victory by giving up six hits and three walks while striking out two.

The Patriots jumped ahead by scoring all six of their runs in the second inning. The Rocks fought back with one in the second on Mary Cox's RBI double; two in the third on a Patriot error and sacrifice fly by Emily Pitcole; on in the fourth when Cox scored on a passed ball; and three in the sixth on singles from McKinley and Pairitz. Behr went 3-for-3 for Salem.

The Rocks ousted Farmington, 7-5, in the title contest. Salem jumped to a 7-0 advantage thanks in large part to Kelly MacDonald's long home run over the left-field fence.

Leach earned the win on the mound with relief help from Pairitz.

MacDonald (home run and single) and Pairitiz (two doubles) paced the offense. The four wins improved Salem's record to 9-10.

Salem's Kelly Behr, pictured above sliding into third during a game earlier this season, played an instrumental role in the Rocks' second straight Salem Invitational title on Saturday.

Wildcats whitewash Mustangs, 7-0

On Monday at Plymouth, the Wildcats avenged a heart-breaking 7-6 loss to the Mustangs two weeks earlier by supporting the stellar pitching of junior Megan Patterson with a solid 12-hit attack and beating the Mustangs, 7-0...

The Wildcats tallied three in the second inning, one in the fourth and three in the fifth. Patterson, who shut down the Mustangs for six innings in the teams' first meeting, scattered eight hits and walked three.

Offensively, the winners were paced by Erin Rodes (2-for-4, two RBI), Melissa Butzow (2for-4), Amanda Burnard (2-for-4, two runs, RBI, double), Stacey Klonowski (2-for-3, two RBI, triple), Madison Dresser (2-for-3, two runs, stolen base) and Jill Brennan (2-for-3, RBI).

The defensive play of the day was made by freshman third baseman Burnard, who, with a runner on third and one out in the fifth, speared a hard hit grounder, tagged the runner on third then threw the batter out with a hard throw to first.

The victory was the sixth in a row for Plymouth, which improved to 10-2 overall, 8-2 in the WLAA and 5-2 in the Western Division. The Wildcats trail first-place Canton by one game.

SALEM 9, W.L. NORTHERN 7: On Monday at Northern, the Rocks mounted a dramatic threerun rally in the top of the seventh to pull off the victory.

Emily Pitcole ignited the rally with a single to lead off the seventh. Amanda Emmons singled, Mary Cox reached on an error and Emily Meade (who was running for Pitcole) and Kelly MacDonald (who had reached on a fielder's choice) scored on mishandled balls. Kelly Beher then added an insurance run when she knocked in Cox.

The victory improved the suddenly surging Rocks to 4-3 in the WLAA's Lakes Division.

"It certainly wasn't one of our best wins this season, but it put us over .500 in the division,' said Salem coach Bonnie Southerland. "We lost to Northern the first time we played them, so this was what we were looking for. There was no way the girls were going to let it happen twice."

The Rocks ripped 12 hits. Leading the offensive onslaught were Abby Pairitz, who ripped a three-run homer in the top of the fourth, Behr (2-for-4, double, two RBI), Cox (two hits) and Christina Parsons, who drilled a pair of hits.

"Abby home run saved the day and got the momentum going our way," said Southerland. "Abby has come through in the clutch lately with some big hits in the last week."

MacDonald earned the mound win in relief of starter Melissa Leach. MacDonald entered the game in the fourth with the score tied 6-all and yielded just one unearned run, three hits and one walk in three innings of work.

The Rocks were perfect on defense over the final three innings.

CANTON 7, W.L. WESTERN 0: On Monday at Canton, the Chiefs rode a three-hitter from junior pitcher Hilary Payne to the decisive victory. The first-place Chiefs improved to 14-3 overall, 8-1 in the WLAA and 5-1 in the Western Division, one game ahead of Plymouth and Northville.

Payne shined at the plate and on the mound as she went 2-for-4 with two RB while striking out 10 while allowing no walks.

both very talented players, but they're also great kids."

Leach was nearly as effective as Anthony following a shaky first inning when she vielded four hits and two Canton runs. The hard-throwing right-hander limited the Chiefs to just three hits and one run over the final/six innings to keep the Rocks in the game.

"I thought Melissa pitched a nice game," said, Salem coach Bonnie Southerland. 'We just needed to hit a little better. Anthony did a nice job. Her change-up was on and she was fooling us with it.

Southerland said Anthony's injury had a deep impact on her players.

"It's always tough when someone gets injured like that in this game because a lot of the players on both teams know each other," she said. "A lot of my girls are friends with the Anthonys, so it was tough. I had girls crying just like Canton did."

In a game played at Massey Field just north of downtown Plymouth, the Chiefs struck first in the bottom of the first when Lauren Delapaz, Stephanie Sadek, Alyssa Johnson and Kimmy Keppen ripped successive two-out singles to make it 2-0. Johnson and Keppen both registered RBI in the frame.

Anthony set down the first 11 Rocks, four via strikeouts. Salem's Abby Pairitz broke up the perfect game with two outs in the fourth when she beat out an infield hit that hit first base and popped high into the air. Pairitz went to second on a wild pitch, but was stranded when Anthony struck out the next batter.

With her sister's injury still fresh in her mind, Anthony struggled a bit when she gave up back-to-back hits to Emily Pitcole and Amanda Emmons to open the fifth. However, the Rocks failed to score following a flyout, fielder's choice and pop out.

'It took Sarah a little while to settle down after the injury, but once she did, she got right back in the groove," said Arnold.

Canton added an insurance run in the sixth when Amy Dunleavy reached on a fielder's choice and scored on a long triple off the bat of Miranda Rysdorf.

Canton center fielder Alyssa Johnson helped derail a possible seventh-inning rally by Salem with a nice running catch on a hard-hit ball by Kait McKinley.

Delapaz paced the Chiefs' seven-hit attack with a single and double. She nearly reached base a third time, but her scorching line drive was speared by McKinley, the Rocks' shortstop, in the third.

Pairitz, Pitcole and Amanda Emmons recorded the hits for the Rocks, who fell to 9-11 after having won their previous six. Canton improved to 15-3.

better shape than we did last year," Shaw said, adding his team scored 20-plus points as compared to just one in 2006. "We felt, if we could come out of the field events with some points, we could contend on the track."

Shaw made all the right moves when he put together his lineup for the running events, too.

Stevenson also won the distance medley, 800-meter and sprint medley relays, and the Spartans were in the top three in three other events.

"You just don't know what's going to happen (on the track), where teams are going to put people," Shaw said. "You just hope you put a lineup together where you can compete. Some load up to win one event. We tried to spread it out, so we could compete in a lot of areas." After winning the 800 and sprint medley relays, Stevenson maintained its lead, which grew to as much as 24 points, for the duration of the meet. "We have a lot of kids back," Shaw said. "We lost some sprinters, but some younger sprinters have picked it up quite well. And we have a couple sophomore long jumpers who are doing real well. "Myles, obviously, had a great day, winning the 110 hurdles and being a part of the 800 and long jump teams. Matt Rzepka was second in the mile and ran two good relay legs. We have some depth, and our distance guys are coming around pretty well.

"Nobody ran poorly. There was no place we had a major disappointment. The pole vaulters (Brad Dow, Jon Gudeman, Osama Al-Hakimi) all PRed tonight. We took fifth place and we haven't been real strong in the pole vault. That was kind of an unexpected place in the field events."

After the Spartans established their lead, the battle was for second place with Churchill holding that position for the second half of the meet to finish 10 points ahead of Northville, 75-65.

The top eight included Farmington, Westland John Glenn, CC, Farmington Harrison and Canton, which had won five of the previous seven meets.

"I thought it was an outstanding Observerland Relays," Churchill coach Rick Austin said. "Stevenson was, obviously, the class of the field. They had a lot more first-place finishes than we did or Northville.

"Winning all those events was a difference maker. Hats off to Stevenson. They're well coached and they had all the right people in all the right places."

The Chargers won the 1,600 relay and were second in the discus, 6,400, 800 and shuttle hurdle relays. They also were third in the long jump, pole vault, 3,200 and sprint medley.

"I'm also very, very proud of our kids, most of whom competed in four events," Austin said. "They were challenged during the week, and they responded to that challenge tonight.

"Our kids get fired up for the Observerland Relays. We're excited to be a part of such a great event, and it showed in our performances tonight."

Brian Robertson, Brandon Grysko, Andrew LaBerge, Jacob McDonald, Billy Gutowski and David St. Amant were standouts on the track for the Chargers, according to Austin, who added St. Amant ran "some pretty difficult races" for us with only one race in between."

In leading Northville to a victory in the pole vault relay, Mike Yassay broke a meet record held by former Livonia Franklin star and U.S. Olympic athlete Paul Terek.

Yassav/vaulted 15 feet, 5 inchs, bettering the record of 15-4 that was set by Terek, a former Big Ten decathlon champion at Michigan State and NCAA runner-up, in 1997.

Northville's Jason Turnbull won the 1,600 run and anchored the winning 6,400 relay team. The Mustangs also won the shuttle hurdles by one-10th of a second over Churchill.

Stephen Byars of Farmington High won the 100-meter dash in 10.99 seconds and also had the best long jump at 21 feet, 3.75 inches.

"He's been/running so well we kinda wanted to highlight him," Farmington coach Chip Bridges said. "We wanted to put him in the 100 and see what he could do against some of the fellas, and he responded very, very well. He did well in the long jump, too, and anchored two relays.

"We definitely felt we could finish in the top five and possibly be in the top three. We did everything to try to get points and have a good night.

"Were a solid team; we can score in a lot of places. As we get into the regional and conference meets, we hope to come together and finish the season with some fireworks."

C's Mike Martin had the best individual efforts in the shot put (56-9.5) and discus (146-6), leading the Shamrocks to a record-setting performance in the shot put. CC set the old record of 150-8.5 in 1986. Stevenson's Mitchell White and Westland John Glenn's Ian Thornton, who was second in the 100 dash, tied for the best high jump at 6-1.

Salem baseball team edges W.L. Northern

On Monday at Salem, the Rocks pulled out a dramatic 6-5, extra-inning victory over the Knights thanks to a pair of late-inning suicide-squeeze bunts.

The victory improved Salem to 6-11 overall and 4-3 in the WLAA's Lakes Division.

Salem mounted three rallies to post the win. The Rocks led 1-0 after one when Heath Parling walked, stole second and scored on a long double by Sam Ott.

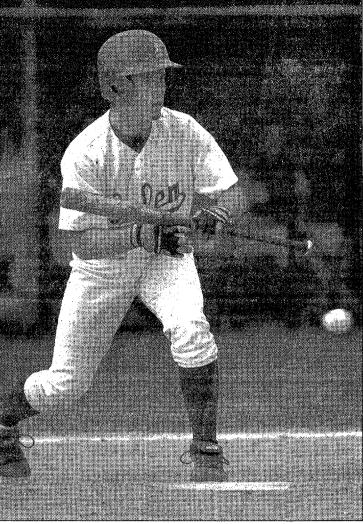

After the Knights pushed three across in the third, Salem cut its deficit to 3-2 in the bottom of the inning when Ott doubled and scored on two wild pitches.

Trailing 4-2, Salem scored single runs in the fifth and sixth on a single and sacrifice fly by Drew Grabowski, respectively. After Northern regained a 5-4 lead in the seventh, Salem knotted the game at 5all when Steve Pydyn doubles and later scored on a perfect squeeze bunt by Justin Horger.

Ott led off the eighth with his third hit -- a single -- before stealing second. He went to third on a wild pitch and scored on a Mike Myers' squeeze bunt.

Salem starting pitcher Joe Posler worked the first seven innings. Dave Hales worked a perfect eighth inning to earn his second victory.

Ignition captain Marojevic retires

The Detroit Ignition has announced that Novi Marojevic, the club's first team captain, is retiring from the Major Indoor Soccer League after eight successful seasons. Marojevic, 34, will focus on opportunities outside of soccer.

"I want to thank the fans for their tremendous support and the entire Detroit Ignition organization for everything throughout the season," said Marojevic. "This was a very difficult decision for me but I look forward to returning to my wife, Jadranka, and my son, Marko. I will miss the game, but I am excited about the opportunities and challenges I will face down the road."

"On behalf of the entire Detroit Ignition organization, I want to thank Novi for being an impact on the field, a leader in our locker room and a positive role model in our community," Ignition President Greg Bibb stated. "Novi will be missed and we wish him well

Former Observer sports editor passes away

BY DAN O'MEARA STAFF WRITER

(CP)

George Maskin, a former Observer sports editor and longtime sports official, is remembered as a man who wore many hats during a career that spanned eight decades.

Maskin, a resident of Novi who died at the age of 90 earlier this month, wrote for the Plymouth Mail & Observer in the 1960s and early '70s, covering the local high -school sports scene.

In overlapping years, he also was the Director of Public Relations for the Detroit Pistons from 1960-1974.

One of Maskin's three children, Julie Rollins of Farmington, related a story involving her father and former Pistons great Bob Lanier. Rollins, a fourth grade school teacher, learned Lanier was working with the NBA in its Read to Achieve program.

She asked her father if he would call Lanier or ask him to visit her classroom when he saw Lanier again.

"Bob agreed to visit," Rollins said. "We had a few minutes to talk the morning of his visit, and I thanked him for coming for me. He told me that he didn't do it for me. He did it for my dad!

"When Bob was a rookie, my dad had treated him like a man, not just a basketball-player. He treated him with respect and kindness. So, when my dad asked him for a favor 35 years later, Bob was honored to do it.

"Bob Lanier called my dad to tell him how much he meant to him, just days before my dad passed away

Rollins also recalled how she and her brothers would often take calls from area coaches and record scores and statistics for their busy father.

They also went with him to Pistons games at Cobo Arena and worked at the scorers table while their dad did the announcing.

"My dad was so enthusiastic, trying to get the very small crowds of about 2,000-3,000 people shouting BINGO, when Dave Bing would score," Rollins said.

"It was wonderful watching my dad in his element. He knew just about everyone in sports from the Detroit area."

Previously, he wrote sports for Stars and Stripes, the U.S. Army newspaper, during World War II. Afterward, he worked for the Detroit Times, Detroit News and Detroit Free Press.

He was the first journalist in Michigan to establish high school and college football and basketball ratings, a concept and practice that continues to this today.

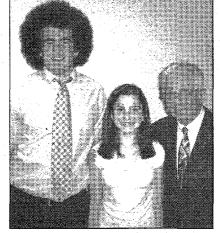

Maskin, who also covered professional sports for the Detroit dailies, joined the Baseball Writers of America Association in 1948 and was the oldest living member in the Detroit chapter.

Maskin was known to many high school coaches, athletes and fans as a longtime sports official. He also worked some college games.

He officiated football, volleyball, basketball, softball and baseball from the 1930s until the early part of this decade.

Maskin worked his last football game at Groves High School when he was 84 and was inadvertently "tackled" by two players. He continued doing softball and volleyball until 2003.

He was inducted into the Michigan High School Sports Hall of Fame, the Catholic League Sports Hall of Fame and the Michigan Jewish Sports Hall of Fame

The George Maskin Memorial Fund, which will be used to provide college scholarships for student-athletes, has been established at the Michigan Jewish Sports Foundation, 2000 Oakley Park Drive., Suite 104, Walled Lake, MI 48390.

Maskin is survived by his wife of 60 years, Elaine, two other children - Richard (Dorothy) Maskin of Royal Oak and Douglas (Marie) Maskin of Bloomfield Hills, seven grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

E WORKING RETIRED AND A TWO-WAY STREE

The working retired are making inroads in the workplace. even though they're still an emerging demographic.

Michael Jalbert, president of Management Recruiters International 🖓 Inc., in Philadelphia, a franchise with 🛹 1,100 offices in $\overline{40}$ countries, reports that because of the increasing labor shortage, MRI is promoting the working retired. "The average age of an eaerospace engineer globally is 57 years," he states. "That person's replacement hasn't graduated from school yet."

Phil Ardire, president and CEO of Western DataCom Co. Inc., a more than $5 million high-tech electronic and software company in Westlake, Ohio, and Fayetteville, N.C., has 15 employees. His company is perhaps best known for its Persistent Threat Detection System housed in a balloon over Baghdad. At the moment, Ardire employs two kinds of working retired -contractors and full-time employees. He says, "It's hard to hire for a month at a time. We look for military and mechanical backgrounds."

Huhndorff of HRH Design Associates in Bay Village, Ohio, is freelancing for three companies and tries to restrict his hours to 20 per week. "But I do what needs to be done to satisfy the customer to get it out," he states. He's 68.

"I do what I want to do when I want to do it," he remarks. "That's my work ethic. I tell my customers that upfront. If they don't like it, it's okay. I'm doing this for my mind more than anything else. The financial is okay, but I love to create things. I've always been in the creative mode. I spent 32 and one-half years with Eveready Battery in machinery and product design,"during which time he obtained 49 patents.

Jalbert maintains that the workplace is friendly to this worker demographic, because "people just have more work than they can handle. Also, their talent level, ability and maturity of approach are usually a welcome combination for a much more productive work environment." He cites "many hundreds" of his franchisees as working retired.

Ardire states that his workplace "respects our elders for their experience, knowledge and knowhow. We have to give them the opportunity to use it. Lots of engineering is done virtually."

A good reception requires decency on the retiree's side, too, as Huhndorff illustrates. "When you go into someone else's place," he says, "you have to respect 100 percent that that's their place. I always ask their opinions

Phil Ardire (I), CEO, contracts with and employs the working retired to meet productivity schedules at Western DataCom Co. Inc., headquartered in Westlake, Ohio. first, such as 'How do you think it ought to be done?' and 'What would you think if we tried this?' It's not a know-it-all attitude.'

What happens when the working retired start to slow down? Jalbert stresses the importance of professionalism and openness about what is or isn't being done. It should be a quiet conversation about the behavior and performance, delivered with kindness, great dignity and respect. I'll ask for a commitment to discuss it if I see more."

Ardire is matter-of-fact, stating that it's up to the individual to decide whether to stop working. However, if performance slides, he says, "We won't give them new contracts.'

Huhndorff, the freelancing working retired, concurs. "If they don't like the ideas I'm producing for them, they just do not call back," he explains. "It is Darwin's theory -- survival of the fittest. I don't have a problem with that, because that's the way life is. You have to make way for the new people who come along. If you're still creating innovative ideas, your customer will always call back if they have a need, and new customers will call by wordof-mouth. I have never advertised. I'm just asking for a chance at this."

Volkswagen Eos is What a Convertible Should Be!

Advertising Feature

CAReport

Automotive

Because tooling around town in a convertible is a definite rite of the passage to summer, I was more than ready to oblige the manufacturer when I got to begin driving a 2007 Volkswagen Eos last week. And while arguably my wife had a better time trying out the female-friendly, brilliant-white convertible, there was plenty of entertainment - and fine driving - for me as well.

Sure, the Eos I drove, a 2.0-liter turbocharged model, demonstrated plenty of pickup and zip on the highway. The interior clad in beige leather was pleasantly inviting. The back seats actually have enough leg room for two adults, and the trunk even when making room for the roof top - can accommodate a number of small pieces of luggage. All of that makes this car more practical than you might have hoped for while having to meet the various engineering and capacity requirements of a foldaway hardtop.

But more about all of that later. Because everyone knows that, when it comes to a convertible, it's the well, convertibleness of the vehicle that defines whether it's enjoyable to drive and be in and, ultimately, whether it sells. And on that crucial score, Volkswagen has fielded a big winner in Eos. Of the convertible hardtops I've driven over the last several years, Eos's roof is the easiest to come off and, by far, the most remarkable to behold as it does.

Remarkably, VW was able to engineer the roof, first, to give you the option to use it as a wide sunroof, which may be unheard of in any comparable vehicle.

And then if you get to the point where the weather and your passengers are agreeing that the Classifieds on the web: whole top can go down, you're in for a remarkable show. All you need to do is hold onto a lever in the central console for about 25 seconds, and the car converts from coupe to convertible.

First, sensors integrated into the rear bumper ensure that there is at least 16 inches of clearance behind the car, and then the plastic deck lid tilts up and moves to the rear. All four windows roll down, the multipiece hardtop automatically unlatches from the windshield header, the rear window section glides over the roof, and the whole, 154-pound apparatus goes into the trunk like an automotive sandwich with layers of metal and glass elegantly lying on top of one another. A single electric motor and eight hydraulic rams accomplish all of that.

Moreover, Eos is about as safe as a convertible can be. For one thing, it's a-pillar is integrated stiffly right into the floorboards for extra sturdiness in case of a rollover. And while Eos doesn't have a permanently visible rollbar behind the front seats unlike its corporate cousin and my other favorite convertible, the Audi TT Roadster - the car does have a popup rollbar that deploys in just one-quarter of a second at any significant sign of trouble.

Other measures that VW took to ensure the pleasure of a top-down ride include a pop-up wind blocker that is integrated into the windshield header, and a detachable windscreen that you can quickly and easily deploy behind the front seats. There's also very little noticeable wobble or wiggle in the car's handling that could be attributed to its convertibility despite the fact that this can often afflict convertibles.

Getting back to the other things to love about Eos. Its design isn't flashy but mildly curvaceous and, I think, clearly aimed at women drivers and buyers who just might miss the old VW Cabriolet convertible that the company discontinued many years ago.

Eos amenities include everything you might want to make the closed-top driving experience enjoyable as well, including power seats, heated washer nozzles and easy-entry rear seats. And even with the top down, there's enough luggage room in the ample trunk to make taking a weekend trip in Eos more than just a theoretical exercise.

The 200-horsepower, turbocharged two-liter engine in the version I drove provided plenty of pop for most lay people who want to drive a convertible. It also laps up 31mpg on the highway and 23 in the city, and the version I drove sells for under $32,000. For now, anyway, I could only imagine how explosive Eos would be in the pricier version that is powered by a 3.2-liter, narrow-angle VR6 engine and puts out 250 horsepower.

I'd like to try that next.

We asked you for your memories to honor your mothers, and many of you responded.

Linda Montagano of Plymouth remembered a beef stroganoff recipe her mother prepared. The recipe, from the mother of a Detroit hockey team member, was found in a newspaper. Montagano still enjoys the recipe today.

Jeanine Bourcier of Canton wrote about growing up the youngest of nine children, watching, then helping her mom with a meal, eventually learning enough to make her own meal for that big troop and later going into the culinary field for 20 years.

Julia Hofley of Bloomfield Hills honored her mother at Easter, by placing her photo at the table, with all the children and grandchildren present for a pork loin.

Joyce Hovermale of Canton shared her memories of growing up on a cattle ranch in Minnesota and making recipes with her mother and siblings, using produce from the family's four gardens.

We probably don't thank Mom or Dad enough. We probably never can, but it's nice to pay tribute to them when we can, even when what's left is memories.

These readers were kind enough to share these recipes. Maybe you'd like to even fix one of these (or one of your own) for your ents this Sunday. Maybe you don't want to fuss in a kitchen at all, and want to take Mom out for brunch. She'd like that. So here's to you, moms everywhere. Enjoy your day. (We haven't forgotten about Dad, either. You can send us your tribute to him with recipes and memories, and he'll get his equal time for Father's Day. If Dad likes to grill or had his favorite dishes and recipes you'd like to share, please let us know. Send to kabramcz@hometownlife.com, or mail to Ken Abramczyk, food editor, Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham MI 48009.)

I almost did. After all, it looked more or less identi-cal to the usual monthly-invoice e-mail I get from eBay - the one that isn't a phishing scam.

Phishing, as regular readers of this column know, is when criminals try to trick you into divulging personal information, usually by sending a fake e-mail like this one and luring you to a fake Web

According to security-software maker Exploit Prevention Labs, this happened recently with the Better Business Bureau's site (www.bbb.org).

Anyone performing a Google search for "betterbusinessbureau" would see a sponsored link to what appeared to be the site's legitimate address.

However, a phishing outfit was the sponsor, the buyer of that ad space and link. Clicking it would route you to a server in Russia, where your keystrokes would be logged in hopes of obtaining personal information.

Thankfully, Google has since yanked the offending ad (and, in fact, all ads that appear after BBB searches), but it highlights just how easily users can get tricked.

Most of the time, it starts with e-mail - like the eBay phony I received.

Naturally suspicious, I started by moving my mouse cursor over the "click here" text to reveal the actual link it contained. This information appears in the lower-left corner of my e-mail program (Outlook Express), as it does in most browsers. Always "mouse over" before you click.

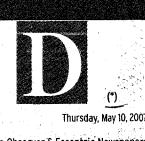

At first glance the link looked legit, if perhaps a bit long. I didn't see any of the telltale signs of a "phishy" address, such as numbers (http://216.228.225.203) where letters should have been (http://www.ebay.com).

What's more, the e-mail lacked the usual fear-mongering tactics, such as informing me that a buyer was awaiting payment (What? I didn't buy anything!) or someone had breached my account. These "urgent action required" messages are designed to scare you into forking over personal information without thinking - and all too often, they work.

But then I noticed that both the saluta recently talked to a lady who had the dryer vent line cleaned by a professional. The cost to do the iob was $170. She told me the service technician informed her that it was the most plugged-up dryer vent line he had ever seen and she was very fortunate that the dryer hadn't caught fire.

I know that many of America's homeowners hardly ever show any concern for their washers and dryers. You have them installed, they do the job and until they break down, everything is OK.

How about we do a little maintenance on them and increase the efficiency, save energy costs and add years of extra life to the products?

Joe Gagnon

Let's start with the clothes dryer. Most of them come apart with the simple use of a screwdriver. Some have a panel on the rear or front bottom that may just snap off. Others have a top that lifts up and a front panel that is removed by taking off a few screws. Whichever, all clothes dryers aren't hard to take apart. If you have questions on how to do it, call your local service technician and give him or her the model number, and I'll bet they will be more than happy to tell you over the phone.

Once inside the product you may see a lot of lint build-up in many areas. Use a flashlight and pay particular attention to each end of the motor.

When the motor is covered with lint it cannot breathe, and temperatures of a motor can get as high as 800 degrees. That's enough to cook eggs in 30 seconds and ignite any lint in the area.

Use your vacuum cleaner with a crevice tool and remove all lint that is visible. Make sure you don't strike any components with the crevice tool. Gas igniters are very, very fragile.

You will see round thermostats that have two or three wires coming to them and may have lint packed around them. These thermostats are responsible for controlling the heat inside the dryer drum and may also operate the cycle timer. They can't do the job correctly if they aren't free of lint.

As I've mentioned many times, clean the lint screen after every load and wash it with a little brush every week.

Next is the washer, which can be pretty tough to take apart, but you don't need to. All you really need to do for a washer is give it a vinegar bath.

Fill it with the hottest water possible. Some homeowners will turn up the thermostat on the water heater for a few hours before doing this simple chore. Some people will add a few pots of boiling water. Add 2 gallons of white vinegar, set the washer timer for agitate and let it run for only 10 minutes. Shut it off, let it sit for 24 hours, and then return and set the timer to run the rest of the cycle. You may question why you should give a washer a bath. I can assure you that any service technician can show you what accumulates in between the tubs. It's not a pretty sight, but it can be removed with a vinegar bath. Stay tuned.

Joe Gagnon can be heard on Talk Radio WAAM 1600 at 8 a.m. Saturdays. He is a board member of Spectrum Human Services and the Society of Consumer Affairs Professionals (SOCAP). His phone number is (734) 971-1600, Ext. 28. E-mail your question to mklemic@hometownlife.com and it will be forwarded.

Spring clean your washer, dryer Declutter, depersonalize a home you want to sell

Michelle of Novi writes: "My husband is being transferred out of state and now we are in a position to sell our home. I understand the real estate market isn't > very good right now. Are there any interior design tips or home staging techniques we can do to move our home quickly? We are thinking of trying to sell by Solutions owner first, to save some money." Guastella Michigan is experiencing a difficult time right now in the real estate market.

Design

Terri

With so many homes out there for sale, it is definitely a buyer's market; however, there are several things you can do to try to get your house sold as quickly as possible. Beginning with a qualified real estate agent, pricing your home correctly for this market, considering interior design advice, and implementing home staging techniques, you could be well on your way to a sale.

You mentioned trying to sell by owner. This isn't a market for the faint of heart. A qualified real estate agent works for you with only your best interest in mind. An aggressive agent will place your listing on numerous Internet sites, and will have photos and even a virtual tour of your home available for prospective buyers to view before scheduling an appointment. This generates interest in your property and provides maximum exposure.

Elizabeth Bensch, real estate agent for Century 21 Today in Livonia, said, "Setting the correct price is more important than ever, especially in this market. Selling a home may be difficult right now, but it's still possible. "Marketing is key, though. The savvy seller will stage his home, fix up little imperfections, and then get as much exposure as possible. This can be from Internet sites, local ads or open houses (or all of the above).

"If the price is right, the home looks its best, and the prospective buyers are reached, the home will sell."

Now that you are listed with a good agent, assess your home as objectively as possible. The techniques I use to home stage a property for resale are very different from techniques used for interior design clients who plan on staying in their homes for a while. Remember that with so many houses on the market, the buyers have many more houses from which to choose. Why will they remember yours? Home staging is the answer.

At the beginning of the home staging process, your initial objectives are to depersonalize, declutter and clean each room.

Once these steps are completed, you can move on to the actual staging and furniture placement.

DEPERSONALIZE

You may have spent years adding your personality to your home. Now is the time to take your personality out of it.

Remove all personal objects such as personal hygiene items in the bathroom, bills on the counter, all family photos, framed degrees, trophies, etc.

Neutralize your home by removing wallpaper. It is very rare that when selling your home you will find a buyer who likes your wallpaper as much as you do. Remove it and paint in neutral tones, but NOT white. White can be sterile and cold. Add warmth with neutral beige tones, soft greens or other non-offensive colors.

Your home needs to resemble a generic display. Don't take this personally; you have a commodity you intend to market and you are hoping to get the highest possible price. This has nothing to do with your personal taste.

DECLUTTER

We spend our lives accumulating things. This becomes a problem when it comes time to sell. We have become so used to seeing our possessions around us, that we don't really see them anymore.

It is imperative to remove the clutter. Clear off your kitchen counters. A coffeepot is fine, maybe a microwave (only if you have a lot of counter space), and nothing else. You need to show prospective buyers that you have miles of counter space.

Closets should be half empty. Organize drawers. Be brutal with getting rid of things collecting dust in the basement and garage.

If you don't have anywhere to store extra furniture or boxed up items, it is worth getting a storage unit to show your house in its best light.

CLEAN

Prospective buyers don't want to be in a dirty house, and they certainly don't want to buy it. Your home needs to be spotless.

If you don't have the time, hire a cleaning service. Dust the blinds and ceiling fans, clean the windows and carpets, scrub the bathrooms, etc.

After you have completed this initial process of preparing your home, you will need to address other items such as updating fixtures, replacing countertops, optimal furniture placement, setting vignettes, and art placement.

If this seems overwhelming, it may be time to bring in a professional who can work with your real estate agent in best preparing your home for showings. Terri Guastella, an interior designer and a Canton resident, specializes in space planning, design and color consultation. Contact Terri Guastella at www.exclusiveinteriordesian.com.

Next, upgrade Internet Explorer to version 7 if you haven't already. As we've seen, it's pretty good at rooting out fraudulent sites. Firefox and Google Toolbar are reported to be as well, though I can't explain why they didn't catch the fake eBay.

(I've since installed the free McAfee SiteAdvisor for Firefox extension, which adds safety ratings to sites and search results.)

Finally, install security software that includes anti-phishing features. You can't go wrong with any of the Norton products, such as Norton 360, Norton Confidential and Norton Internet Security 2007.

Even more important, make

Saké leaps in quality MEATBALLS

ith the proliferation of sushi, sashimi and other Japanese-inspired cuisine, why not wash it down with the authentic Japanese beverage saké?

Saké (with 15 to 16 percent alcohol) is a fermented beverage, as is wine. Unlike wine, produced from grapes, saké is made from rice grown especially for saké. Rice, unlike crushed grapes, has no juice and therefore water is very important in its production.

Ataro Kobayashi, president of Niigata Saké Selections, says that the most important ingredients for making excellent saké are rice, water, weather and people. Niigata is the northern-most Japanese prefecture (state). "This is where the highest quality rice is grown for saké," Kobayashi said.

"There are 97 saké producers in Niigata and I am importing 11 into the U.S. because saké is experiencing a 15 to 20 percent annual sales growth in the U.S.'

INGREDIENTS

In addition to growing the very best rice for saké, Niigata receives a hefty snowfall each winter, which melts to produce very soft water resulting in sakés with a soft, lush texture. Minerals in water can produce off flavors, especially if the water contains high concentrations of iron.

Niigata weather is very hot and rainy in the summer, which favors rice growing.

Lastly, the dedication of the people to produce a quality product is equally important. Passion for making the best product from the best materials is high on Kobaysashi's list of most important ingredients.

RICE

Starch in rice is located in the center of large kernels and is surrounded by materials that can give off-flavors. To remove these outer substances, the rice is polished until only the starch remains leaving as little as 50 percent of the grain.

Before fermentation, starch must be converted to sugar. In whisky making, for instance, barley is malted to convert starch to sugar. In saké making a mold, known as koji-kin, converts starch to sugar and then yeast is added for fermentation of the sugar to alcohol.

Saké quality is related to the grain percent remaining after polishing and is stated on the label. The highest quality is "Dai-gingo" which leaves less than 50 percent, "Ginjo and Tokubetsu" leave 60 percent, "Junmai" leaves 70 percent and regular saké, labeled "Futsushu," may leave more than 70 percent of the grain. Any saké labeled "Junmai" has no added alcohol. "Honjozo" means alcohol has been added.

"When I was 4 or 5 years old, I can remember sitting at the kitchen table watching her cook. As I got a little older she would let me help her and would sometimes let me cook the entire dinner. My fondest memories were when she made cakes because she would let me lick the beaters.'

Bourcier said she baked her first dessert - peanut butter cookies - in third grade, and her first dinner - chili - two years later. She enjoyed cooking so much she chose to work in the food industry.

Bourcier started out working for Little Caesar's Pizza while in high school, stayed with the company and worked in the Marketing Department, and later served as a pastry chef's assistant at The Whitney in Detroit.

Now a mother of three, she has 20 years of experience in the restaurant business, and her mother to thank for the inspiration.

'These days, my mother doesn't cook like she once did, but she has passed along the love of food and some great recipes.

my birthday.'

The meatballs are made with a blend of chuck, veal and pork, seasoned with the usual suspects - parsley, garlic and pepper.

But Sabatini also incorporates a can of mushroom soup in her recipe - that seems to make all the difference.

Gerry Sabatini, Jeanine's brother and a Plymouth resident, recalled that his mother's meatball sandwiches were a hot commodity during his grade school years.

"Whenever my classmates learned that my lunch included Fahrenheit. a meatball sandwich, I was offered as trade a variety of peanut butter or baloney sandwiches.

"Out of sympathy for my classmates, I always traded with someone. I would never deprive a friend from savoring one of Marie's delicious meatball sandwiches. Besides, there were plenty more at home."

Bourcier said she'll sometimes substitute cream of chicken soup and a handful of parmesan cheese in the recipe, giving it her own spin.

Either way, she makes the meatballs a few times a year and they are a staple during the holidays.

"Now I've started a tradition making the meatballs with my nieces and daughter at Christmas so it can be passed down to another generation," she said.

"She was just trying things all the time, and she was real helpful to me," Hovermale said.

Joyce, who did canning for her 4-H Club, assisted Mrs. Nelson in making a dozen loaves of bread every two weeks.

Her mother helped Joyce with a science fair project in junior high school about fruit pectin.

"She gave me guidance on different recipes to try," said Hovermale, who made 20 different kinds of jams and jellies as a result.

Today, Hovermale is an adventurous cook too, she said. She sold Pampered Chef items for four years so she could find the utensils needed for her recipes.

Her family is "kind of picky" disliking anything with broccoli or cauliflower, for instance, she said.

"I try to have at least one thing on the menu that everybody likes," Hovermale said.

Hovermale's parents still live in Minnesota.

"I call my mom often and from time to time ask about one recipe or another," she wrote. "It is usually an odd one that wouldn't appear in any modern cookbook.

"Now I try to involve my own son and daughter in the kitchen, and when they complain, trust that one day they too will have fond memories.

Hovermale shared Mrs. Nelson's recipe for rhubarb cake, since rhubarb is now in season. "It was such a staple ... It's so easy," she said.

'Tug ...

Śqueeze ... Admit it moms-to-be, you all remember the moment you realized you would not be fitting into your Rock & Republic jeans for a good long while. Even though you tried to buy one size larger and looked for the pair that said 'stretch' on the label, it was time to surrender to the belly and put on your sweat pants, right?

Well, Stephanie Mullen and Christa Davis say you don't have to hang up those cute jeans afterall. The Mercy High alumni opened Belli Couture in Northville this past November in hopes of reaching pregnant woman who love high fashion.

Women who wear designer brands are not willing to give them up for nine months of pregnancy and designers have responded to that need," Davis said.

Here's a sneak peak at the top trends for spring in the ever-expanding (pun intended) world of maternity fashion.

The Denim Story

The right fit is everything when it comes to finding jeans that will help a woman remain stylish and comfortable during her pregnancy. Depending on the woman's stage in pregnancy, she can choose from a no panel jean, a front panel style or a full panel. Davis recommends the following:

No Panel: Habitual's popular "Rock's on" wash ($185) have no panel and are cut low in the front to provide room for the belly. This style is great for the first trimester and after the baby is born when you still need a little extra belly room.

Front Panel: "Bump watch deerlake" is the clever name given to Chip & Pepper's front panel only jean ($198). This style has a stretchy fabric panel in the front only, allowing for bump growth and can be worn through the second and third trimesters.

Full Panel: The cropped Kelly pant from Citizens of Humanity ($167) is a great choice for spring and also comes in a full-length sion. The full panel provides the most support with the fabric panel wrapping completely around the top - ideal for the final stage of pregnancy.

Casual is cute with this patterned tunic tank top over jeans from Belli Couture in Northville.

use every day, one fun dress-up bag and one suitable for travel.

Everyday workhorse: The bag you carry every day should be neutral enough to match everything in your wardrobe and durable enough to withstand getting dirty. The Emily bag by Storksak ($168) has a simple design with lots of pockets and a shoulder strap long enough to be worn messenger style. It comes in chocolate or black (Angelina Jolie carries it in black) making it great for use every day.

Fashion Bag: The Reese bag by Mia Bossi ($379-$430) comes in a variety of colors, but the metallics are really hot for spring. The best feature on this bag is the messengerlength strap that can be shortened to make a shoulder bag for an easy transition from diaper to hand Travel Bag: A roomy carry-on bag is a must if you plan to travel with a child anytime soon. The Maria bag ($340) by Mia Bossi is a great bag for traveling. The roomy interior has a zip-out lining for when extra room is needed and comes with a private zippered pocket for personal belongings.

PINK Mommy Boot Camp contest

Attention new mommies! If you've been thinking about entering to win a spot on PINK Mommy Boot Camp, there's one more reason.

Macy's has offered a $1,000 shopping spree as part of the grand prize!

If you've had a baby in the last two years and are ready to lose that baby bump, we want to hear from you. Five new moms will be chosen to win a spot on PINK Mommy Boot Camp, valued at $850 per person! Winners will join 'PINK Mommy' Columnist Wendie DeLano and PINK Editor Wensdy Von Buskirk in a hometown version of Celebrity Fit Club.

During the six-week challenge, local fitness expert Jennifer Gray will get the group started on a "no excuses" routine that will have us on our way to looking like our old entation Saturday, June 9 at Franklin Racquet Club in Southfield. Entrants must be willing to have their goals and progress featured in PINK. You also must own or be willing to purchase kickboxing workout gloves (about $30), and an optional heart rate moniter (about $50), at a store of your choice.

Boot Camp requires attendance at specific fitness classes in West Bloomfield, Rochester, Royal Oak, Southfield or South Lyon at least twice a week, plus up to three additional workouts on your own.

Visit Jennifer Gray's Web site, ww.bodybyienn.com for more

The Dress

Every pregnant woman should have a few dresses in her closet this spring. Not only do they provide supreme comfort for a mom-tobe, but nothing makes you feel more girlie than putting on a pretty dress. Two key pieces, according to Davis, include one suitable for work and one for play. The shirt dress is great for work but look for a flattering hal-

The Perfect Diaper Bag

It's hard to find one bag that will handle all your needs, and that is especially true with diaper bags. It's a good idea to have three that cover different occasions - one that you can

Bonus: Choose one with bright colors or a bold print and you won't miss this one in the carry-on bin!

Belli Couture is located at 133 West Main Street, suite 200, Northville. Visit their website at www.bellicouture.net or call (248) 344-2840 for more information about spring merchandise.

Along with exercise, Boot Camp contest winners will work with a registered dietician and chef to learn meals that are healthy and easy to make.

The Boot Camp member who meets or exceeds her goal by the greatest amount will win a PINK Mommy Makeover, including a $1,000 gift card to Macy's and the guidance of a select Macy's By Appointment personal shopper!

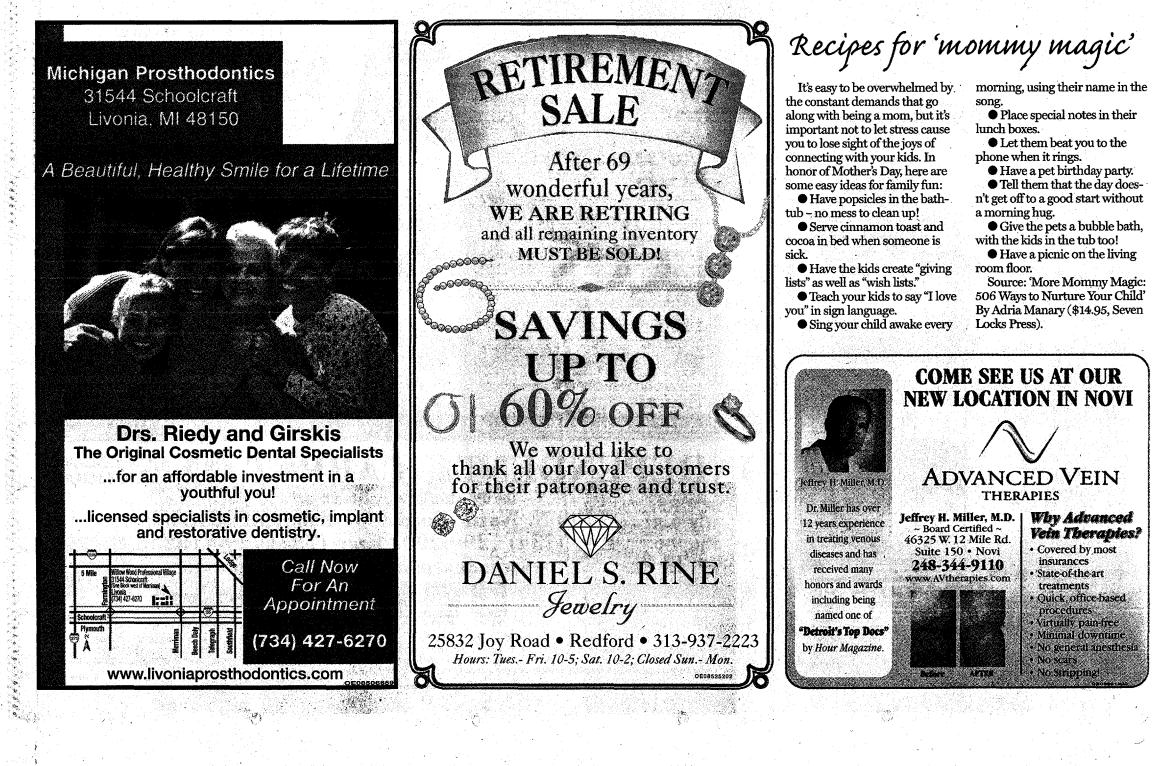

Readers chosen to participate will be required to make a commitment to the six-week fitness routine and menu plan, which

'Whatever She Wants' Richard Roundtree stars in romantic comedy

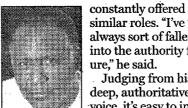

BY STEPHANIE ANGELYN CASOLA STAFF WRITER

The name is enough to pique any woman's interest - Whatever She Wants. When you add an all-star cast including Vivica A. Fox, Boris Kodjoe and Richard Roundtree, an audience could form instantly for the romantic-comedy stage play opening today in Detroit. As a special guest star, the show marks Roundtree's second experience in a production written by Je'Ĉaryous Johnson. His first was Men Cry in the Dark in 2003. Roundtree burst onto the scene as private detective John Shaft in Gordon Parks' smash hit Shaft in 1971. Roundtree said he recalled being "so green" during that experience. "That was my first film," he said. "I was so happy to be in a film. I had no idea what to expect. Then it just blew up."

He stuck with the franchise, starring in Shaft's Big Score, Shaft in Africa and a television series. But the character proved restrictive as he continued through his career. Roundtree was similar roles. "I've always sort of fallen into the authority figure," he said. Judging from his deep, authoritative voice, it's easy to imagine why, though

Roundtree

Roundtree laughs easily at that mere suggestion.

He began acting lessons after graduating from Southern Illinois University. The football player-turnedmodel found that he craved the spotlight. "I guess it was that need to hear that hand clapping," he said.

Roundtree became a member of the esteemed Negro Ensemble Co. in New York City, eventually earning the coveted role of Jack Johnson in a production of The Great White Hope. "I always loved live performing," he said.

'Sweet Charity' has plenty of heart

> BY STEPHANIE ANGELYN CASOLA STAFF WRITER

Effervescent and enchanting -- those two words may be the best way to describe Molly Ringwald's memorable performance in the current tour of Sweet Charity. The musical is now showing at Detroit's Fisher Theatre.

The star of stage and screen portrays the ever-optimistic dance hall hostess Charity Hope Valentine, just a girl in New York City who's looking for love. And she attacks the part with zeal.

From her roaring '20s flapperinspired accent to that sense of heart-on-your-sleeve purity, Ringwald makes it easy to cheer on Charity, no matter how many times she's been abandoned or disappointed by the men in her life. Sweet Charity is a Tony-nominated musical drawn from the 1957 Federico Fellini film Nights of Cambiria. In its many incarnations, the story has been adapted by Neil Simon and reworked for the stage and screen by the legendary Bob Fosse.

Director Walter Bobbie brought it back to Broadway in 2005, but it still has all those Fosse trademarks — big dance numbers like Big Spender and I'm a Brass Band (complete with red bowler hats) to send chills down your spine; a top hat and cane routine set to If My Friends Could See Me Now; and heartfelt messages like Baby, Dream Your Dream.

Surely these songs have seeped into the very fabric of pop culture. They remain relevant and unforgettable when paired with the quick-witted comedy of Sweet Charity. It's the sort of show that keeps you humming for days on end.

The production relies on everything from props to near-acrobatics to earn laughter. In one scene, Charity walks into the apartment owned by international film star Vittorio Vidal to find the longest couch imaginable. In another, she's trapped in an elevator with a curious fellow named Oscar, portrayed by Guy Adkins. Even his breathing evokes laughter. He's a bit claustrophophic, to say the least.

The elevator scene, which comes at the end of Act I, marks a shining moment for Ringwald and Adkins as they sing the touching duet I'm the Bravest Individual.

The production earns plenty of "oohs and ahhs" thanks to elaborate sets includSWEET CHARITY

Kevin Costner struggles as a serial killer addicted to the thrill of killing in Mr. Brooks.

COSTNER ON...

Shrek 3, Pirates 3, Spider-Man 3 - this summer's expected blockbusters are aimed at families, but Mr. Brooks, starring Kevin Costner is about a serial killer.

"This is a movie for adults. It's a completely different genre than many of the summer films. It's a very American movie. It's a topic that we do think about, because it does exist."

On the state of films today:

"Films have a chance to take you on a journey, that's the reason why we go back to the theaters over and over. If we, as filmmakers, get away from that and try to preach, people will stop going."

On former Birmingham resident Mike Binder - writer/director whose films include The Upside of Anger starring Costner and Reign Over Me starring Adam Sandler:

"He's one of the most talented writers in the industry today." On portraying a serial killer and also thinking about the Virginia Tech incident: "I think one has to be incredibly clever to have empathy for a killer. We can't see the Virginia Tech killer as anything but a monster.

"It's too soon ... I mean, could there be areas of empathy with everyone ... that's the guestion.'

'Mr. Brooks' Costner finally plays the bad guy in thriller

BY LÁNA MIN STAFF WRITER

Kevin Costner planned to spend time last week at the Townsend Hotel in Birmingham to promote his upcoming film Mr. Brooks that BOUBE opens on Friday, June 1.

But his wife, Christine, didn't want him to leave. She was due with their first child at any moment.

So, the Oscar-winning actor spent his days last week at home, speaking with the media about his unpredictable role in Brooks.

Life is good right now for Costner. On Sunday, his wife gave birth to a baby boy. And movie critics are praising Costner for his latest role, a serial killer who struggles not to kill, as some of his most interesting work in years.

But ... all-American nice guy Kevin of Dreams." Mr. Brooks is very different from the other big summer movies opening soon such as Shrek 3 and Spider-Man 3. This one is geared purely toward adults. Written by writing team Bruce A. Evans and Raynold Gideon (Stand By Me) and directed by Evans, Mr. Brooks stars Costner, Demi Moore, William Hurt and Dane Cook.

It's a psychological thriller about a man (Costner) who is addicted to murder and controlled by his alter ego, played by Hurt.

"I was taken with the script immediately," Costner said. "I try to read things from an audience perspective and very few scripts pass that test. I wasn't trying to look for a

Sakana Sushi

Creative fare fills menu at lounge in Ferndale

BY STEPHANIE ANGELYN CASOLA STAFF WRITER

Looking for a swanky lounge that serves fresh, inventive sushi until late into the night? Look no further than Sakana Sushi Lounge in Ferndale. Owners and Boston natives Kon and Greg Kim opened the smoke-free stylish hot spot in 2006 and have been serving up inspired dishes ever since.

Manager Dustin Leslie said the relaxing, laid-back atmosphere sets the restaurant apart in the Metro area. Sakana which translates to fish in Japanese appeals to customers who "aren't in a hurry, appreciate the art (of sushi), and care about their health," he said.

The most popular hand rolls on the menu include Daddy's Girl, made with shrimp tempura, avocado, cucumber and a spicy sauce; and Cool Breeze, a roll with tuna, avocado, cucumber and thinly sliced kiwi.

The unexpected addition of fruit is a Sakana signature. Leslie said he'd never seen a sushi menu that included fruit.

before joining the staff, about six months ago. "And I've eaten sushi for a long, long time," he added.

Fruit gives hand rolls a burst of sweetness. Some customers have ordered these popular choices as dessert: Frosty, made with cucumber, avocado, cream cheese, eel, mango and coconut flakes; and Berry Good, a tuna, avocado and cucumber roll topped with strawberries.

The menu is vegetarian friendly, offering at least 10 maki rolls, as well as a wide variety of appetizers and salads. The Miso soup is not vegetarian, as it includes fish flakes.

To accommodate carb-conscious customers, the menu features an array of riceless sashimi, wrapped in daikon or cucumber skin. "It's the first time we tried it," Kim said. "It's been very successful."

When it comes to drinks, Leslie said, "we're known for our high-end sake and high-end wine list." Starting this month, the drink menu will include special summer options, like red or white sakana-gria drinks. Saketinis are also a popular option.

For those seeking entertainment, Sakana hosts DJs every Tuesday and Thursday, as well as the first and third Friday of each month, and the first and final Saturday of each month. Diners come for the designer maki rolls and extensive sake menu, then stay for the jazz and house music. Thursday nights tend to bring in a good crowd, Leslie said, and the DJs have proved to be a boost for business.

The open, airy locale seats 85 indoors and will add outdoor seating this month.

Craig Finn might've been right at home as a member of the Beat Generation. The distinctive voice behind The Hold Steady admits the band's new record, Boys and Girls in America, was inspired by Jack Kerouac: "In On the Road he says, 'Boys and girls in America have such a sad time together.' The record is kind of about love and guys and girls and relationships. Most of the songs go back to that. But that's an umbrella - you can do a lot of things with that."

While the record clearly follows that familiar theme, it also evokes a sense of immediacy. The Hold Steady recorded it live to best capture the experience.

LCD Soundsystem throws Detroit dance party

BY STEPHANIE ANGELYN CASOLA STAFF WRITER

As it turns out, rock fans can dance. And they proved it Monday night by packing into Detroit's Majestic Theatre for the city's second-coming of LCD Soundsystem.

The dance-punk brainchild of musician and producer James Murphy, LCD Soundsystem is touring in support of the new release Sound of Silver. He took the stage for a relentless, stomp-inducing performance along with Nancy Whang on keyboards, Pat Mahoney on drums, and Hot Chip's Al Doyle on guitar. Detroit's own Philip Skarich joined the band on bass back in February.

The set opened strong with Us V. Them and the eternal favorite Daft Punk is Playing at My House. Murphy punctuated his vocals with dance moves expected from someone raised on punk rock. From his seemingly signature slow-jog to slicing the air with his hand, he was in constant motion.

Time to Get Away was performed in a haze of blue lights. Yeah stretched on into dance oblivion. And Watch the Tapes evoked a pure Pavlovian response from the audience, as they shouted in response. The band barely paused between songs as the party continued to build. At one point Doyle, Murphy and Mahoney were pounding on drums simultaneously in fine primitive form. Murphy introduce his bandmates, and called attention to Skarich multiple times. Otherwise, he only paused to announce that his tour manager

"tried to give me a non-alcoholic beverage."

Visually, it was a show centered on and about the music. Aside from an impressive amount of pedals and effects fixed front and center along with Whang's keyboards and some frenetic lighting, LCD Soundsystem didn't waste time with elaborate sets or effects. The band didn't need to.

The audience responded with sweaty, head-bobbing glee from the current single North American Scum right through to the end of the night, which included an ode to Murphy's hometown in New York I Love You But You're Bringing Me Down.

(Or, if you prefer to skip brunch and opt for dinner instead, The Rugby Grille, also at the Townsend on Sunday, is offering a four-course meal with choices like Maryland Crab, King Salmon and French Crème Brulee.)

At the festival, the first major art event of the spring season, more than 80,000 people are expected to attend. Artists will show an array of media such as woodworking, ceramics, wearables, photography, painting and more.

Healthy foods will be offered there, too, with choices like

Metal Mania

Shows feature Black Sabbath, Otep, Velvet Revolver

BY LANA MINI STAFF WRITER

Rockers have solid options for concerts this weekend, so pick 'our poison.

If you want hard, wild energy — the new, fresh sound in heavy netal — plus a young audience creating chaos in the pit, hit Harpo's in Detroit on Friday, May 11.

There, Static X - a band that's rising fast in the metal world - performs with Otep.

If you want to hear the collaboration between some of the most influential metal musicians of the 1990s, try the Royal Oak Music Theatre on Saturday, May 12, for the Velvet Revolver show (featuring members of Stone Temple Pilots and Guns 'N Roses).

Or if you want to pay respect to the band hat (arguably) pioneered black metal, Cobo Hall on Saturday, May 12, is the destination. Headlining there is Black Sabbath, eaturing Ronnie James Dio. Also performing that night are two bands whose reputation in the metal world is enormous: Megadeth and Machine Head.

No rock band "breaks up," Black Sabbath included, as the curent tour marks the first one for Sabbath in 15 years, appropriately named Heaven and Hell.

Last year, the quartet including Dio, Tony Iommi, Geezer Butler and Vinny Appice hooked up to record three songs for Rhino Records for an era-spanning CD titled Black Sabbath: The Dio Years that was released last month. The first single, The Devil Cried, was well-received by fans, so the foursome did what what rockers do: they reunited.

Tour tickets are selling well nationwide. Sabbath performs songs recorded during Dio's tenure from the albums Heaven And Hell (1980), Mob Rules (1981) and Dehumanizer (1992), plus new songs.

Multi-platinum recording artist Megadeth will perform new material from its new CD United Abominations, released this week on Roadrunner Records.

Opening the night is Machine Head, a still relative new face in rock despite its diehard cult following. Machine Head is vocalist and guitarist Robb Flynn, bass and

Harpo's show is for the heavy rockers

BY LANA MINI STAFF WRITER

Headlining a show at Harpo's on Saturday, May 12, is rhythmic trancecore band Static X, a band that's a blend of thrash, futuristic disco and industrial sounds.

Performing with them is nu metal band Otep with a female vocalist who isn't afraid to show a blend of confrontation and vulnerability on stage.

Expect a young, energetic audience for both bands, who are creating the new sounds of metal.

Static X's lead singer is Wayne Static, formerly of Shelby Township, who worked as an asparagus picker before becoming the frontman of one of industrial music's hardest bands today.

The band's music can be heard on the Saw III film soundtrack. They are influenced by heavy-hitters Ministry and Pantera and aren't afraid to show aggression through their lyrics.

Vocalist Static is known as a hardcore vegan who opposes all types of animal captivity, and doesn't hesitate to discuss

Velvet Revolver plays at small venues, for now

BY LANA MINI STAFF WRITER

Freedom is the theme for Velvet Revolver's upcoming CD Libertad set for release July 3. Fans can get a taste of the music before then, as the band performs Saturday, May 12, at the Roval Oak Music Theatre, an intimate location for a band comprised of big names in rock n' roll: Scott Weiland (lead vocals) formerly of Stone Temple Pilots, Slash (guitars) of Guns N Roses, Dave Kushner (guitars) of Wasted Youth, Duff McKagan (bass) and Matt Sorum (drums) also of Guns N' Roses.

Libertad, which is Spanish for "freedom," is Revolver's follow-up to its 2004 CD Contraband that sold more than 3 million units worldwide and earned a Grammy for the song Slither. "The songs (on Libertad) took on a life of their own in pursuit of groove," Weiland said. "When it was nearly done, we realized the idea of freedom kept coming up. Serendipity hit when Duff came to a session wearing a Tshirt emblazoned with 'Libertad' and Slash found a coin struck with 'Libertad'. It all added up to naming (the CD)."

The new music, he said, has soul.

Velvet Revolver, with former members of Guns N' Roses and Stone Temple Pilots, chose a small venue to perform at – The Royal Oak Music Theatre.

"The feel, the energy ... is about the eternal struggle for freedom — personal and social freedoms. What we're trying to say on a musical and lyrical level is clearer this time. The songs may have started out being very personal but they took on a more universal truth as they were nurtured by the fiveheaded beast that is Velvet Revolver." The band is currently on a 12city tour and then will head to Europe to play at a string of summer festivals. After that, they'll perform at larger venues nationwide.

that's already released six CDs, including its latest The Blackening (Roadrunner Records).

The California-based band strives to create structurally complex and technical material that includes three-part guitar and bass harmonies, dueling solos and thrash intricacy that mingles with soaring three-part part vocal harmonies. (Some compare the band to Alice in Chains.)

This is a band that made its mark with guerrilla marketing reminiscent of early punk days — members put out fliers, one-by-one, car-by-car, school-by-school, until its name began to spread and the band became known for its heavy guitar tones.

Machine Head has toured with Slayer and on Ozzfest.

what's on his mind through his music. The band's lineup, which has changed over the years, consists of Static, former Seether drummer Nick Oshiro, bassist Tony Campos and Koichi Fukuda, lead guitar, programming and keyboard.

Static X is touring to promote its fifth and newest CD Cannibal (Warner Bros. Reprise Records).

Otep will share the Harpo's stage to promote its third CD The Ascension.

"We said, 'Genre limits and music fads be damned, let's write music that is important to us and that motivates us," said Otep Shamaya, the band's namesake and lead singer. "I wanted to write songs we believe in and let nothing stop us from building the album we want to make."

Otep is both inciteful and insightful. "Bands have another level of intensity and risk-taking when writing their first record," Otep said. "I wanted to recapture the sound of that hunger and infuse it with as much raw passion and purpose as possible."

The Ascension was produced by Grammy winner Dave Fortman (Evanesence, Mudvayne).

Like many metal bands today, Otep has made its mark with the help of the Internet and hardcore fans. Last year, they allowed online fans to determine their tour route, choose venues and create a set list via cell phone voting. Otep's music is about rising above negativity.

"It's easier for people to curse the darkness than to light a candle," she said. "I prefer to do the opposite. The Ascension is a message to rise above whatever limitations, obstacles or social identities are placed upon us" > ottom Feeder is a refreshingly rotten throwback to the days when you could make a horror movie without torturing someone.

Otep brings its melodic sound to Harpo's with Static X.

Indeed, the only folks tortured in Bottom Feeder are the viewers. But so what. At least this is still idiotic fun.

In the story, a hideously insatiable appetite for flesh because unfortunately the eater turns into what he has eaten, sort of.

The characters in the film liken it to a giant rat, but I think it looks more like Porky Pig.

Anyway, the gazillionaire decides that before taking the formula (not knowing, of course, of its peculiar side effects) he will test it on the scientist who created it. So he has his henchmen and particularly nasty henchwoman beat the tar out of the scientist then give him a dose of his own medicine to see if it restores his fractured features.

It does, and then some, as he turns into the aforementioned monster. This all takes place in an abandoned hospital (there seems to be a lot of those in the world of horror films) next to a university, which sets the stage for Act Two. A group of cleanup people converge on the hospital to do whatever it is that they are supposed to do and promptly collide with the scientist-turned-monster.

Tom Sizemore stars as the leader of the cleanup group, which shows just how far the much-troubled-for-real Sizemore's career has deteriorated.

The rest of the cast is inconsequential and annoying, particularly the dreadful Rastafarian.

Heads roll. Literally. The evil gazillionaire and his bodyguard both lose their heads, which are ripped from their rotten bodies.

Sizemore and company do get the best of the beast, but that is not the end of the story. What follows is actually more ridiculous thân the preceding part as they somehow manage to survive an atomic bomb-size blast with barely a singed eyebrow. But Sizemore learns he is in line for a more hideous fate.

Bottom Feeder doesn't take itself too seriously, and if you don't you will get a mild kick out of the man-in-a-rubber suit flick.

Greg Kowalski much prefers monster movies over horror movies. He can be reached at (248) 901-2570 or by e-mail at gkowalski@hometownlife.com.

'Away From Her' shows agony of Alzheimer's

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

In theaters now:

Away From Her

It's an intriguing paradox: In quiet, understated ways, this film marks the debut of a powerfully talented new director. Sarah Polley, the 28-year-old Canadian actress best known for roles in Go and The Sweet Hereafter, steps behind the camera for her first feature with the confidence and precision of a seasoned veteran.

Polley also wrote the script, based on an Alice Munro short story, about a woman's slow descent into the hazy abyss of Alzheimer's disease, and the surprising way her husband of 44 years responds.

Julie Christie stars as Fiona, and after all this time still possesses a beauty that's startling in its clarity. Gordon Pinsent plays her husband, Grant, with subtle sweetness, and their scenes together are increasingly fieartbreaking. It's not all agony, though.

Thankfully, there are some moments of dark humor, courtesy of Olympia Dukakis as the no-nonsense wife of a patient at the nursing home where Fiona is being treated – a man with whom Fiona becomes inordinately fixated. PG-13 for some strong language. 100 min. Three and a half stars out of four. – Christy Lemire. AP Movie Critic

Lucky You

Eric Bana has a decent poker face, and he uses it to excess in this romantic drama in which he blandly rambles through the world of competitive card-playing while trying to convince object of desire Drew Barrymore he's more than just a compulsive gambler. The film from director Curtis Hanson crack les with life here and there from the occasional pleasant interchange between Bana and Barrymore and a few energetic moments from Robert Duvall. But it's a curiously ordinary and uninvolving tale from the filmmaker behind such insightful character pieces as Wonder Boys and L.A. Confidential. Bana's a Vegas poker master incessantly undone by rash emotion, who's angling to compete in the World Series of Poker, whose players include his estranged dad (Duvall), a two-time champ quick to point out his progeny's shortcomings. Barrymore's an angelic innocent new to Vegas whose unlikely opposites attract romance with Bana never rings true. PG-13 for some language and sexual humor. 123 min. Two stars out of four conscience so I could find empathy. I prepared heavily for it, but rather than spending much of my time researching serial killers, I let the script serve as guidance."

Costner called the film "American" because of the mere fact that serial killers exist in American society. The question of how a "nice" neighbor, business associate and family member can also kill has long been an issue and it's what inspired the writers to plunge into a topic they've never dealt with.

Mr. Brooks, Evans said, is so compelling and terrifying because he is both family man and evil.

'The thing about Mr. Brooks is that he could very well be someone you know," Evans said. "We all have our dark side, but Mr. Brooks acts on his to an extreme. He's the guy you think wouldn't harm a fly, who truly loves his family and has a wonderful life by all standard measures, but also he has a very grave compulsion he cannot fix."

The writers came up with the idea after deciding they wanted to tackle a dark issue. "We both thought addiction was an interesting area, which led us to the question of what would be the worst addiction possible - and to the idea of a man who is literally addicted to killing people, who can't stop the cycle, even though he would like to stop putting his family in jeopardy," Gideon said.

Costner received the script while he was working with former Birmingham resident Mike Binder on the film The Upside of Anger. "I received the script, then I lost it, then I was given another copy, then I didn't have time to read it, and when I did ... I wanted in immediately.

"Hopefully it's some of my best work, I think it is."

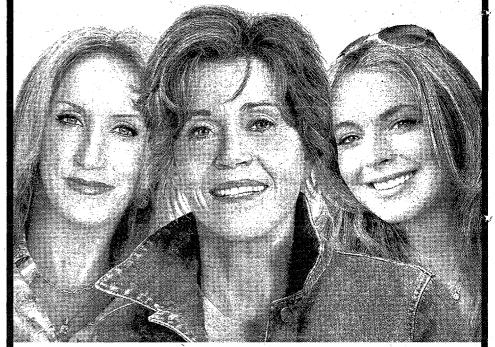

Read the review about Mr. Brooks in the May 31 issue of Filter.

Can this family man (played by Kevin Costner) actually be a serial killer? That's the theme of "Mr. Brooks" released nationwide on Friday, June 1.

WONDERFUL! THE SURPRISE OF THE SUMMER.

A heartfelt, moving and touching film." Shawn Edwards, FOX-TV

22nd ANNUAL Academic All-Stars

Supplement to The Observer Newspapers, Thursday, May 10, 2007

Townsend Hotel, Madonna, Huntington partner with O&E to honor 2007 All-Stars

The 2007 Observer Newspapers Academic All-Stars represent the brightest and best of local public, private and parochial schools in Farmington, Farmington Hills and western Wayne County.

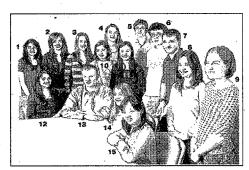

The young men and women featured here are future physicians, engineers, scientists, teachers and political leaders.

They shine in many ways – in test scores and grades and in extracurricular and community activities. They deserve recognition for their commitment and hard work and encouragement for their goals and aspirations.

All of these students are examples of intelligence, involvement, optimism and industry. They have contributed to their communities and beyond and will undoubtedly make a difference as they head off to college and embark on their chosen careers.

This marks the 22nd year that the $O \Im E$ has sponsored the Academic All-Star Team.

"We're pleased to continue the tradition of recognizing academic excellence and even more pleased to be joined by our partners – The Townsend Hotel in Birmingham, Huntington Bank and Madonna University – in honoring the brightest and best of the Class of 2007," said Susan Rosiek, executive editor of the

The Observer Academic All-Stars on the cover are (1-15): 1. Shobha Narasimhan, 2. Lauren Jones, 3. Chelsea LeBlanc, 4. Dorothy J. Heebner, 5. Jakub Poznanski, 6. Zhe Guan, 7. Joshua Mann, 8. Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. Students and their parents will be honored May 11 at a special event hosted by The Townsend Hotel.

Each student will receive a U.S. Savings Bond, courtesy of Huntington Bank, along with other gifts, and a copy of this special section outlining their high school achievements.

Read on as we present the 2007 Observer Academic All-Star Team in order of ranking.

The 2007 Observer & Eccentric Academic All-Star section was written by Special Editor/Features Mary Klemic. Klemic has been largely responsible for coordinating photos and writing and editing the section for the last seven years. She has met with the all-stars, read their applications and written stories outlining their success in high school.

A graduate of Wayne State University, Klemic holds degrees in mass communications and English. She has worked at the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers for 24 years as a city and county government reporter, school reporter, copy editor and features writer. Her primary assignment is the Thursday O&E HometownL1FE.com section which focuses on homestyle, food, wine and technology.

Klemic lives in Birmingham.

"It is always amazing to read about the Academic All-Stars," she said. "The students and their families and teachers should be proud of their accomplishments."

Principals select Academic All-Stars

Naming the Observer and the Eccentric Academic All-Star teams is a big job, and it leaves a big impression on the selection committee.

The committee, consisting of school administrators from throughout Oakland and Wayne counties, verifies the information on the applications.

"They are a very impressive group of young people," said Dan Willenborg, principal of Livonia Franklin High School, who coordinated this year's panel.

"They are the leaders, thinkers and doers of tomorrow; not only brilliant kids but very active in their (areas). Congratulations to their parents, to their schools and to their teachers.

"The state of Michigan should be very proud," added Willenborg.

Joining Willenborg on this year's committee were Terry Piper, principal of Seaholm High School in Birmingham; Jan Meagher, principal of Clarkston High School; Charlie Hollerith, principal of Lahser High School in Bloomfield Hills; Joan Sedik, principal of John Glenn High School in Westland; and Jim Myers, principal of Harrison High School in Farmington Hills.

The committee examines grade point average (academic subjects only) and the ACT or SAT scores. Only those applications accompanied by transcripts, verification of ACT or SAT scores and the signatures of the school principal are considered.

Selection is based solely on academic credentials.

'They are a very impressive group of young people. They are the leaders, thinkers and doers of tomorrow; not only brilliant kids but very active in their (areas). Congratulations to their parents, to their schools and to their teachers.'

principal, Livonia Franklin High School

Panel members commented on how well-rounded the All-Stars are.

"These students have taken advantage of the opportunities that their schools offer to the fullest degree," Hollerith said. "It's nice to go back and really connect with these kinds of kids," Sedik said. "So many of them come from the public school system," said Meagher, who is retiring this year after more than 25 years in public education.

"They're bright, talented kids," Piper said.

"The Observer & Eccentric is pleased to have the support of area principals to honor these young scholars," said Susan Rosiek, executive editor of the $O \mathfrak{SE}$.

"We appreciate the time they spend on this project. We also appreciate the time and effort that all principals and counselors take to nominate these outstanding students."

Academic All-Stars earn honors

Zhe (Julie) Xiang Canton High School

Julie Xiang of Canton plans to attend the University of Michigan-Ann Arbor, to study biomedical or chemical engineering.

"After studying engineering, I want to go to medical school and become a doctor," she said. "After practicing medicine in the U.S., I'd like to practice in poorer countries and improve their medical care."

Xiang was a National Merit Finalist and a Presidential Scholar Candidate, and won two Science Olympiad State Medals and 10 Science Olympiad Regional Medals.

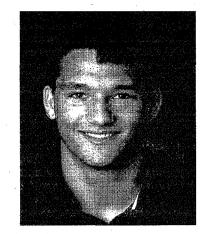

. She was Science Olympiad captain, Key Club vice president and on the National Honor Society executive board.

Xiang did volunteer work for Special Olympics, Kids Against Hunger, Medilodge Nursing Home, tutoring and Relay for Life. She has played piano for 10 years.

Susan Welker (Shakespeare and writing center) is the teacher who had the greatest influence on Xiang.

"She got me interested in the arts and literature and inspired me to dream big and have an impact on the world," Xiang said.

Xiang is the daughter of Joseph Xiang and Ami Li, and the sister of Rachel, 11.

Joshua Mann Churchill High School

Joshua Mann of Livonia plans to attend the University of Michigan-Ann Arbor to study biomedical engineering. He wants to pursue a master's degree in nano-engineering.

"I hope to develop cholesterol-ingesting nanoparticles and a delivery system to add tail codons to mRNA as a nano-engineer," Mann said.

Mann was awarded excellence in Math Science Computers computer math, algebra II, chemistry, analysis, physics, AP biology, AP calculus and AP computer science.

He was an AP Scholar with Distinction, a Renselaer Medal winner, a National Merit Finalist, a Michigan Math League School winner and on the Honor Roll seven semesters. Mann was awarded Michigan Math Prize Competition Honorable Mention.

Mann was a vacation bible school instructor at Ward Church, Computer Club co-founder, and in cross country, track and field and tennis.

Mary Buda (algebra II, AP calculus, discreet math and AP statistics) is the teacher who had the greatest influence on Mann.

"She is a phenomenal teacher who has guided me since freshman year," he said.

"(Freshman year) she established her intelligence against a group of smart kids and challenged us to perform beyond the minimum required to get an A. Junior year she pushed us to our limits in preparation for the difficult AP calculus BC exam, which everyone passed and a large portion received 5s. Finally, senior year she has treated us like adults and conducted her class like a professor in order to prepare us for college."

Mann is the son of Karen Ogden-Mann and David Mann, and the brother of Matthew Mann, 13.

Sruthi Renati Farmington High School

Sruthi Renati of Farmington plans to attend the University of Michigan-Ann Arbor or Michigan State University, to study pre-medical.

"I want to be a physician — possibly a primary care physician," she said.

Renati was a National Merit Finalist, Student of the Month (science department) and in the Top 200 in the Michigan Math Prize Competition. She won an Academic Letter Award.

Renati was vice president of the Model United Nations Club, vice president of the debate team, in the National Honor Society, teacher at Balavihar-Hindu religion class and volunteer at Botsford General Hospital.

Jeffrey Dwyer (AP biology) is the teacher who had the greatest influence on Renati.

"He helped me fall in love with the subject and increase my passion to become a physician," she said.

Renati is the daughter of Ramesh and Bharathi Renati, and the sister of Swetha, 19.

Lauren Jones Harrison High School

Lauren Jones of Farmington Hills plans to attend the University of Michigan, Columbia, Princeton or Northwestern, to study pediatric medicine, perhaps with a minor in art or architecture. Her possible profession is pediatric cardiovascular surgeon or another field of pediatric study.

"I hope to be able to balance career and family life by entering a career in which I am challenged both intellectually and artistically, while balancing it with a focus on future children and family," Jones said.

"In whatever I end up doing, I hope to have a positive impact on the world; whether it is through medicine, politics or the arts."

Jones was on the honor roll (all semesters, all four years), the student chosen from her grade level to attend the Superintendent's Award of Excellence Breakfast, eligible for Academic All-American, a Wendy's High School Heisman Nominee, and in TEAMS (Tests in Engineering, Aptitude, Mathematics and Science). She won an Academic Letter (all semesters, all four years).

Jones was varsity swimming captain, varsity soccer captain, on the Unified Ski Team, in two spring musicals, president and treasurer of the Class of 2007 Board, and homecoming queen.

She won two Scholastics Silver Keys and one certificate for ceramics, and third place in ceramics in the Annual Festival of the Arts at the Costick Center.

Among her volunteer work, Jones was a blood drive worker and main organizer/coordinator through the Student Council; donated and delivered gifts directly to families of children of prisoners for the Angel Tree Ministry, went on a Missions trip to Detroit and worked in the church nursery through church; participated in an MS Walk, tutored, and put together and delivered Easter baskets for children at the Sarah Fisher Home through the National Honor Society and Interact Club.

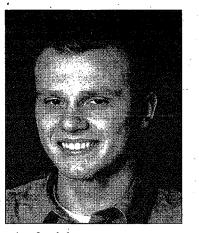

Michael Teachman (math) and Bobbi Blazo (third grade) are the teachers who had the greatest influence on Jones.

"Mr. Teachman's unconventional methods and demanding course work required that I put my all into his class, and as a result I began to fully understand each concept ... I am very thankful to Mr. Teachman for the skills to truly understand, study and learn a concept," she said.

"Mrs. Blazo influenced me at a young age by being continually creative in the classroom and challenging all of us, even though we were young, to reach for the stars."

Jones is the daughter of Ken and Jane Jones, and the sister of Zachary, 18, and Olivia, 14.

Alexander Sapick North Farmington High School

Alexander Sapick of Farmington Hills plans to attend Northwestern University or the University of Michigan to major in biology or pre-medicine in order to pursue a career in professional medicine.

"I would like to graduate from a prestigious medical school and go on to become a surgeon at a large hospital," he said. Sapick was a National Merit Scholarship Sapick was a National Merit Scholarship Finalist, and an AP Scholar with Honors. He won three Spanish department awards, two math department awards and an AP U.S. history award.

Sapick was men's varsity swim team captain, and in men's track and field. He won the Best Male Marcher Award while in the marching band, and played trumpet in the concert band. He was in the Math League, Sophomore Board vice president and Boys State delegate.

Through the National Honor Society and independently, Sapick tutored students in a wide variety of subjects, including foreign language, science, social studies and mathematics.

Through the Humanitarian Club, he participated in multiple fund-raising activities to benefit muscular dystrophy research.

Sapick volunteered at an assisted living home, and participated in several community cleanup projects. He has given volunteer swim lessons to an autistic man through the YMCA, along with weekly computer lessons.

Peggy Najarian (AP biology and anatomy) is the teacher who had the greatest influence on Sapick.

"She kindled my interest in the field of biology, and inspires me with her dedication and her diligent pursuit of bettering herself as an instructor," he said.

Sapick is the son of Paul and Nina Sapick, and the brother of Jessica, 20, and Michael, 16.

Breanna Miller Canton High School

Breanna Miller of Canton plans to attend the University of Michigan-Ann Arbor. She is undecided about her major.

Miller was in Who's Who Among American High School Students and a National Merit Scholarship Commended Student.

She was Canton Congress secretary, National Honor Society secretary, cross country captain and South Redford Christian Church youth program volunteer. Miller was in vocal music and track and field.

Sue Welker (humanities) is the teacher who had the greatest influence on Miller. "She encourages me to think about subjects and situations I have never considered before," she said.

Miller is the daughter of Constantine Dziubek and Tom Miller, the stepdaughter of Neal Jackson and Christine O'Dell, and the sister of Lauren, 26, Stephanie, 24, Katie, 16, Tim, 16, Amanda, 13, and Jonathan, 11.

Jakub Poznanski Plymouth High School

Jakub Poznanski of Canton plans to attend Carnegie Mellon University, to study at the School of Computer Science there.

"My plan right now is to obtain a degree in computer science, which may put me into a profession as a software developer or engineer," he said.

Poznanski won the Microsoft Most Valuable Professional Award for helping people with their Microsoft products through online discussion boards and Web sites.

He was on the FIRST Robotics Team and was vice president.

Poznanski maintained a 4.0 grade-point average throughout high school, was named Student of the Month for helping his AP probability and statistics teacher, and received a Certificate of Special Congressional Recognition.

He and a friend won first place in a high school level programming competition of the University of Michigan, and Poznanski won third place in Texas Instruments Programming Contest.

As part of a three-student team who created a new electronic control system for their robotics team, he won the Delphi Driving Tomorrow's Technology Award at a regional competition.

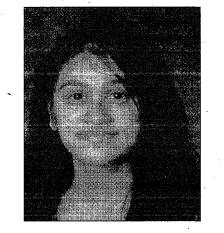

Through the National Honor Society, Poznanski assisted with a variety of activities, such as recreation at a local retirement home, events put on by elementary schools in the district and setting up gymnastics competitions at his school.

Through the robotics team, Poznanski walked in the Relay for Life to raise money for cancer treatment. The team took its robots to local festivals to help get children interested in engineering and science, and raised money for various charities throughout the year.

Ron Carlson (computer programming) is the teacher who had the greatest influence on Poznanski.

"He inspired me to work on various programming projects on my own, and also let me explore other uses for my skills," he said. Poznanski is the son of Kris Poznanski and Dorota Poznanska-Frederick, and the brother of Joanna Frederick, 1.

Shobha Narasimhan Salem High School

Shobha Narasimhan of Canton plans to attend the University of Michigan College of Literature, Science and the Arts or Northwestern University, to study human biology and biochemistry. "I plan on going from undergraduate school to medical school and want to become a doctor," she said. "I plan on doing undergraduate research on brain fatty acids and want to do medical research in the future."

Narasimhan was a 20-time medalist in regional competitions at the Wayne County Science Olympiad.

She was Science Olympiad captain and an official member of regional and state teams. Narasimhan won awards in the West Bloomfield High School Science Olympiad Invitational and in the state tournament at Michigan State University.

Narasimhan was secretary of the National Honor Society. Through the NHS, she performed community service for such organizations and events as Operation Good Cheer, Cherry Hill Village Theater, Christmas in the Village, Salvation Army (bell ringing), Relay for Life and Special-Olympics.

In volunteer work, she assisted physical therapists and orthopedic specialists at the University of Michigan Hospital MedSport facility, tutored a student in political and economic systems and English, and, with the students in her Sunday School youth group, collected and put together kits of food for people at group homes and shelters and delivered them for Feeding Ann Arbor for the holiday season.

Narasimhan was on the varsity tennis team and the USTA tennis team, taught math and English at the Kumon Math and Reading Center, taught sixth- and seventh-graders about Hindu religion and culture at Indian Sunday School, and set up and took down equipment for the Canton Gymnastics Tournament.

She attended the Ford Advanced Engineering Conference and the National Youth Leadership Forum on Medicine.

Narasimhan sings karanatik music, a type of Indian vocal music, and was a seven-time consecutive winner of one of the top three places in the National Gita Music Competition in Chicago.

Joan Pence (AP biology) is the teacher who had the greatest influence on Narasimhan.

"She, in her amazingly taught classes, made me understand both what great learning is and how what we learn in biology applies to all kinds of everyday situations," she said. "She is the reason for my choice of biology as my major."

Narasimhan is the daughter of Geetha and Lakshmi Narasimhan, and the sister of Rekha, 12.

ACADEMIC ALL-STARS

Laura Oliver Thurston High School

Laura Oliver of Redford plans to attend New York University, Brown University, Carnegie Mellon or the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

"I wish to pursue technical theater, particularly costume design," she said.

Oliver won a MEAP scholarship and was in the top 5 percent of her class.

She was in the Link Crew, Drama Club and National Honor Society.

The teachers who had the greatest influence on Oliver are "Kelly Mandeville (English) for her commitment to high standards and Jeanette James (math) for her generosity and kindness," she said. Oliver is the daughter of Cindy and Tom Oliver, and the sister of Joseph, 15, and Harry, 11.

D.J. Heebner North Farmington High School

D.J. Heebner of Farmington Hills plans to attend the University of Michigan or Michigan State University, to study political science and international relations. She wants to have a diplomatic profession.

Her career goal is "to have a positive impact," she said.

Heebner received departmental awards in chemistry, American history, honors English 10, advanced placement biology, advanced placement comparative government and Spanish 3. She won second and fourth place at Michigan State Model United Nations conferences, and first place at the Canadian-American Windsor Model United Nations conference.

Heebner was Model United Nations president, Class Board historian, National Honor Society member, Humanitarian Club member and Summer in the City/Rebuilding Detroit Effort participant.

She was in regional honors choir, and received the highest rating in both the regional and state level solo and ensemble for solo performances.

Heebner was in the St. Fabian Church Youth Group leadership team and youth band, and participated in two REACH work camps to help rebuild houses in Appalachia. She had roles in three plays and one musical, and chorus parts in three musicals.

Elias Khalil (Model United Nations advisor and social studies), Kathleen Stasys (English), Mary VanZandt (fifth grade) and Abby Jo Rehling (librarian) are the teachers who had the greatest influence on Heebner.

"I chose those teachers because they are the ones who inspired me to pursue my goals," she said. "It's great when you have teachers who truly believe in you and encourage you."

Heebner is the daughter of John Heebner and Lynne Thompson-Heebner, and the sister of Hannah, 15, and Brook, 13.

Salem High School

Chelsea LeBlanc of Plymouth plans to attend the University of Michigan-Ann Arbor, to study natural sciences, linguistics or computer sciences. Her probable profession is a research scientist, linguistics professor or Web/program designer.

LeBlanc's career goal is "finding a career that I'm truly passionate about where I have the opportunity to make a difference in my field of study," she said. LeBlanc won the All-American Scholar Award and the United States Achievement Academy National Merit Science Award, and was a National Merit Scholarship Finalist. She was in varsity soccer, the National Honor Society, Student Council and Plymouth Lighting/Michigan Santos Club soccer, and did photography and Web design. Susan Welker (humanities and writing center) is the teacher who had the greatest influence on LeBlanc.

"She is the most dynamic and engaging teacher I've ever had," she said. "She shows up to class every day, broadening our horizons with energy and knowledge."

LeBlanc is the daughter of Sandy McClure and Mark LeBlanc.

Shulamite Chiu Harrison High School

Shulamite Chiu of Farmington Hills plans to attend the University of Michigan-Ann Arbor, Yale University, Harvard College, Massachusetts Institute of Technology or Wellesley College, to study applied mathematics and actuary.

"I plan to find a career path best suited for my various skills in which I can dedicate myself wholeheartedly and happily," she said.

Chiu was on the National Honor Roll, a 50th Annual Michigan Mathematics Prize Competition Finalist, a National Merit Scholarship Commended Student, a MEAP scholarship recipient and a Toyota Community Scholar Semifinalist.

She was a member of the National Society of High School Scholars, Who's Who in High School Students and National Honor Society of Secondary Schools.

Chiu won a Certificate of Excellence for the National Competition Finalist Team, a Certificate of Commendation for a senior essay from the Detroit Free Press and a Superintendent Award of Excellence from Farmington Public Schools.

She was named Student of the Week by Detroit Public Television and the Detroit News, and Student of the Month by Oakland County.

Chiu was a member of the school chapter of the National Honor Society, Science Olympiad, TEAMS (Tests in Engineering, Aptitude, Mathematics and Science) and Book Club.

She was a staff member of The Looking Glass school literary magazine.

Chiu was a founding member and co-president of the Japanese Club, a Jiminy Tutoring Project tutor, a Church in Troy Youth Group leader and in church childcare service. As a peer mediator, she won the Leadership Award from the Farmington Optimist Club and Certificates of Appreciation.

Chiu was principal flautist in the school's concert and symphony bands, school musical pit band flautist and fourth chair flautist in the Metropolitan Youth Symphony Orchestra.

She received ratings of I for piano and flute in district and state solo/ensemble competitions, and was a church piano accompanist at the Church in Troy and an accompanist at Oakland Community College.

The teachers who had the greatest influence on Chiu are "Michael Teachman (honors analysis), for teaching me how to learn, and Laura Sparrow (AP English 12), for encouraging me in every aspect," she said. Chiu is the daughter of Christopher Y. and Cathy Y. Chiu.

Anna Sheppard Farmington High School

Anna Sheppard of Farmington Hills plans to attend the University of Michigan, to study aerospace engineering, math, physics and chemistry.

"I want to be an aerospace engineer," she said. "It'd be really spectacular to work for NASA or the European Space Agency."

Sheppard received an Academic Letter all four years. She received the Girl Scout Gold Award, was on the swim team and was on the Venture Crew in Scouting. She was on set construction, set paint and costume crews (costume crew head) for eight shows.

MADONNA UNIVERSITY Livonia, Michigan 48150 www.madonna.edu

36600 Schoolcraft Road

Goalkeeper Kristofer Lyons, a junior at Madonna University, prevents the other team from scoring.

Web Site Keeps Crusaders Fans Cheering

Madonna University athletics is at the top of its technology game. On Madonna's interactive Web site, Crusaders fans can hear home and away games broadcast live, get up-to-the-minute e-scores and team news, and watch video clips.

When Matt Fancett, assistant athletics director, noticed larger universities using the online technology his interest was piqued. "We always strive to be at the highest level with our media, well above NAIA standards," he said. "We've had feedback from family and friends about how cool this is. It's been an outstanding success."

The online interactive services are gaining popularity. They debuted in late November, and, as each sport starts its season, more people are signing up. Stephanie Parslow, a Madonna University student, plans to register for e-scores after seeing how much her friends love the service. "It's fun to know how our teams are doing," said another student Caryn Inman:

While many games have been broadcast, Fancett has overcome a few start-up challenges. Limited phone lines at other universities forced Fancett and others to use their cell phones to transmit away games. A new phone system at Madonna will make broadcasting home games more efficient.

Some sports are likely to receive more media coverage than others, although the athletics department will try to cover as many games as it can. "One way or the other, each sport will be represented," Fancett said, while acknowledging that covering sports such as golf and cross country present their own challenges due to the large distances players must cover.

Fans can view videos and listen to live and archived games by visiting http://ww3.madonna. edu/crusaders/. To receive scores by cell phone or email, register at http://escores.stretchinternet. com/login.php?sch=madonna.

Master's Degrees Spell Success for Students at Madonna

This year marks the 25th anniversary of graduate studies at Madonna University and the addition of two new master's programs in e-commerce and teaching autism spectrum disorders. In 1982, the growing demand for graduate degrees inspired the creation of Madonna's first master's programs, in business administration and in nursing administration. A quarter of a century later, the flourishing Office of Graduate Studies has been renamed the Graduate School which now offers 25 programs in business, healthcare, education, religious studies and psychology.

"The dedication and expertise of our faculty and staff have made our programs exceptional, attracting students from all over the world," said Edie Raleigh, dean of the Graduate School. "We are fortunate to have them on our team. Our alumni and students are bright and talented and reflect the best of what our graduate programs represent."

Former nursing grad student Phyllis Jenkins-Reynolds represents the University's high standards everyday at work. Her colleagues witnessed the time, effort, and patience Jenkins-Reynolds put into the care of others and, in 1995, nominated her for a prestigious Nightingale Award.

Now chief nursing officer and vice president of Bon Secours Cottage Health Services Patient Care Department, Jenkins-Reynolds looks back fondly at the time she spent at Madonna University. "I applaud the administrators and faculty who had the foresight to design an advanced degree program that supports working individuals' desires to advance their education," she said. "The evening classes were a great help!"

Employers recognize that Madonna University students are talented and intelligent. According to Raleigh, almost 100 percent of Madonna's grad students are employed within one year of graduating.

"Less than a year after earning my Master of Arts in Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages, I got a full-time teaching position at the University of Detroit Mercy," said 2003 graduate Marian Gonsoir. "Now, I work with students from around the world and I love what I'm doing!"

Livonia resident Denise Henderson-Bills, a Madonna University graduate student majoring in education, gains experience lecturing the class.

A Madonna University Education Includes Community Service

Linda and her three children live in a home in Appalachia. The floor has holes, the windows need repairing, and no insulation means there is not enough heat in the winter. This is what life was like before Madonna University students gave up their spring break to help Linda and other impoverished families repair their homes.

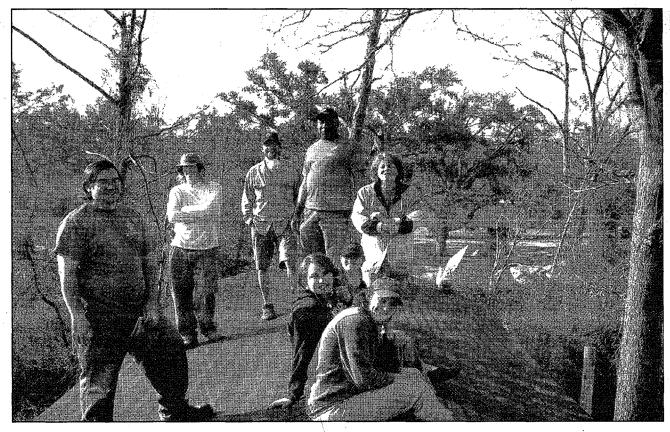

The students were joined by Madonna University faculty, staff, and community members in their efforts to improve lives in Kentucky, Mississippi, Louisiana, and South Carolina. Madonna University's Campus Ministry and the Service Learning Center organized the trips to give volunteers the chance to experience personal and spiritual growth while helping others.

Student volunteer Mary Therese La Palm knew she was going to see the daily struggles of life in Appalachia when she volunteered. Many families are destitute and cannot afford basic needs like indoor plumbing. Windows are repaired with cardboard and homes are often heated using unsafe methods. La Palm experienced firsthand the hardships endured by the families when she stayed in a small, chilly cabin heated only by a kerosene stove.

Despite having participated in previous alternative spring break projects, she still was not prepared for what she saw. "I was surprised," she admitted when describing her first encounter with Appalachian living conditions. "The cabins weren't what I expected at all. They were basically wood and the ply-board beds were built into the wall." However, she noted that the scenery was beautiful and the people were friendly.

Hundreds of miles away, in Biloxi, Miss., another group from Madonna University cleaned up the catastrophe left in the wake of Hurricane Katrina. When the 30-foot surge hit, over 8,000 people evacuated the city. Many have not returned due to the housing shortage. Volunteers tore out the roof of a mobile home that had been flipped on its side during the storm. Some group members then journeyed to St. Bernard's Parish in Louisiana where they installed doors, new walls, and wiring. Others worked at an elementary school helping children with reading and special activities.

Immediately following Hurricane Katrina, members of the Madonna University community sponsored the Henry family, who had been displaced by the storm. Volunteers collected money, food, and household appliances to replace what they had lost. The Henrys, Louis, 69, Mary, 70, Denise, 46, Troy, 30, and Justin, 11 months, temporarily lived in Michigan.

Denise recently returned to Louisiana and the volunteers aided her in reconstructing her home. She surprised the group with a shellfish dinner made in traditional New Orleans style. Her neighbors joined in the festivities by providing music and the entire party had fun dancing and getting to know one another.

Meanwhile, over on the east coast, the Felician Sisters in Kingstree, South Carolina welcomed volunteers. The delicious homemade southern fare they prepared fueled volunteers as they helped the sisters with an after-school tutoring program and home repairs. Crystal Howard, who is working towards her pastoral ministry degree, found her time in South Carolina to be an eye-opening experience.

"Students need a sense of the world around them... so much focus in college is on the individual and everything for them, grades, socialization, what their future holds," said Howard. "We need to be made aware of others and what the real world is like."

Howard hopes to help organize the alternative spring break next year. She encourages family and friends to participate in this amazing opportunity.

"This is the trip that people should be apprehensive about, but go into headfirst anyways," said Howard. "You never know what God can do through an experience like this, and it is wonderful to see the story unfold!"

RUNNERS-UP

Katherine Lebioda Plymouth High School

Katherine Lebioda of Canton Township plans to attend the University of Michigan-Dearborn or the University of Michigan-Ann Arbor, to study anthropology, biology or Asian studies.

"I am thinking about becoming a genetic researcher or a cultural anthropologist, specializing in Asian cultures," she said.

Lebioda was in Who's Who Among American High School Students, an AP Scholar and a Michigan Mathematics Prize Competition Finalist. She received an Academic Letter, and attended the National Student Leadership Conference.

Lebioda was secretary and president of the Asian Pacific American Club. Through the club, she participated in Relay for Life, bell ringing for the Salvation Army, and Mam Non Lunar New Year.

As a Girl Scout, Lebioda attended Maybury Day Camp, crafted items for Mott Children's Hospital, served at a University of Michigan Natural History Museum station, helped younger Scouts, served at a Girl Scout Music Booster booth, did gift wrapping for the Humane Society, and participated in a square dance for younger girls, a flag ceremony, a Tonda encampment and ice cream social, and a mystery weekend for younger Scouts.

Through the National Honor Society, Lebioda was a Plymouth Orchestra usher, knit a hat for a chemo patient, and took part in a Tonda Santa breakfast, Christmas in the Village and Special Olympics.

She was on the golf team and was a Student Congress representative.

Richard Mui (political and economic systems and AP United States history) is the teacher who had the greatest influence on Lebioda.

"While I never had the opportunity to have him as a teacher, as the previous advisor of the Asian Pacific American Club, we frequently had discussions about a variety of issues, ranging from whether an Asian American culture exists to how we know what is real," she said.

"He taught me about how to lead and how to use what I know about my culture to help shape my identity and find my place in the world."

Lebioda is the daughter of Daniel and Lesley Lebioda, and the sister of Kimberly, 16, Steven, 14, and Chris, 12.

Kimberly L. Martinez Stevenson High School

Kimberly L. Martinez of Livonia plans to attend the University of Michigan-Ann Arbor, to study kinesiology and movement science.

"I want to become a physical therapist specializing in orthopedics and hopefully work for MedSport or a private clinic," she said.

Martinez received the Summa Cum Laude award three times, the Western-Lakes Athletic Association Scholar Athlete award six times and an Academic Letter. She was inducted as a member of the National Honor Society.

Martinez was Class Council secretary and treasurer.

She was in the Spirit Club, the Community Service Club and varsity pompon; participated in the Early Literacy Volunteer Program and Stevenson's tutoring program; and volunteered for various events, such as the Jingle Bell Run for Arthritis, the Walk for Sudden Infant Death Syndrome and the collection of money for a local hospice.

Kathy Ladd (accelerated English 11) is the teacher who had the greatest influence on Martinez.

"She was the only teacher who really oushed me to write well," she said. "Her class forced me to work hard and really analyze the books I was reading in order to write quality essays on them. She also was the best grammar teacher I've ever had.

"If it wasn't for her, my ACT score wouldn't have been so high. It's because of her that I did so well on the English and reading portion. She is an amazing person and I owe her much gratitude."

Martinez is the daughter of Gary and Vicki Martinez, and the sister of Melissa, 13.

Zhe Guan Churchill High School

Zhe Guan of Westland plans to attend Harvard College, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology or the University of Michigan, to study undergraduate biomedical engineering

He then plans to attend medical school or pursue a research career in a biomedical subfield.

"I would like to become a medical researcher to find cures to diseases such as AIDS, cardiovascular disease and the avian flu," Guan said.

Guan received Summa Cum Laude, won the Michigan Math Prize Competition Bronze Award and won fourth prize in the Science and Engineering Fair of Metro Detroit. He was a National Merit Scholarship Finalist and an AP Scholar with Honors.

Guan was Quiz Bowl and Science Olympiad captain, and principal tuba in the wind ensemble. He played piano in the jazz band, sousaphone in the marching band, and tuba and flute in various chamber ensembles Guan was in Michigan Math League and other math prize competitions.

Easy ways to customize your home's exterior

(NewsUSA) — In a country that abounds with suburban developments of similar-looking homes, adding a personal touch to your property might be high on your list of priorities.

In the past, the options for customizing the exterior features of a house may have been few and far between. But today, everything from siding to roofing is available in a wide range of styles, colors and designs.

If you're looking to customize your castle with ease, concentrate your efforts on a few of the following areas:

Trim. Exterior trim can give your home a graceful, almost Victorian appearance. One option is Restoration Millwork from CertainTeed, which comes in 15 shapes and has a polyvinyl chloride (PVC) composition that looks and feels like wood, but performs even better. ■ Siding. If you want to give your home a fast and major makeover, consider replacing its siding. Available in a vast array of colors and textures, siding can make your home stand out and increase its value. Vinyl and fiber cement are two materials that are easy to maintain and will last over time.

Decking. Outdoor living is a hot trend this year and adding a deck is one of the most dramatic ways to customize your home. Since many decks are made with easy-to-clean materials such as weather-resistant composite decking, they're easy to maintain as well.

Railing. To match a new deck or patio, consider adding a railing such as the Panorama Composite Railing. This product is a new industry favorite. Its core is made of a durable composite material that is capped with colonialwhite or desert-tan PVC for a lasting, freshly painted look.

Composite and steel balusters allow you to further customize the look of the railing and decking.

■ Roofing. A set of new shingles can add a touch of personality to your home or improve its curb appeal if you're planning on selling it. Since the roof covers the most area of a home's exterior, it makes a big difference in first impressions.

Fencing. The wood look is often a favorite for fencing. And, with the Bufftech Chesterfield privacy fence, a product that features CertaGrain authentic wood texture, homeowners can achieve the wood look with all the long-lasting, fade-resistant benefits of a vinyl fence.

Trim pieces can add a touch of style and personality to your home.

Text your way to your next home

(NewsUSA) — It took a while, but Americans have tapped into the text messaging craze full force. According to the Cellular Telecommunications and Internet Association, a trade association for the wireless communication industry, U.S. cell phone users sent more than 64.8 billion text messages in the first six months of 2006, up 98.8 percent from the first six months of the previous vear.

These days, there's a lot more to do with that tiny keypad than text messaging your friends and family. If you're house hunting, for example, and spot a home you like, you may even be able to receive the listing information on your phone with a simple text message.

If the home is listed through ERA Real Estate, all you have to do is send a text message with the property ID number, displayed on the for-sale sign, to "TXT ERA" or 898372. House hunters can also choose to be notified by text message when homes that meet their requirements become available.

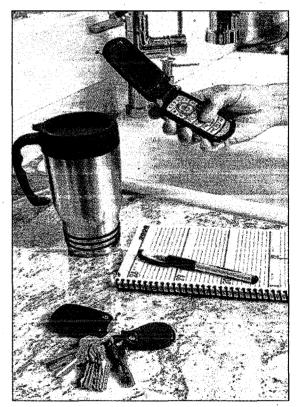

"We're always looking for ways to better service our customers, including communicating in ways that best fit their ever-changing lifestyle," said Bill Cogan, ERA vice president of interactive marketing. Noting that ERA was "founded on technology," Cogan says his company was the first national real estate brand to tap into the mobile frontier with ERA.com Mobile, a service that allows customers to view ERA's listings and use its other Web tools from their cell phone's Internet browser.

Text messaging seemed like a logical next step for the tech-savvy company. In fact, it may be ahead of the curve.

According to the research firm In-Stat, wireless text messaging is expected to increase six-fold between now and 2009.

So far, ERA has found that its text messaging service is most popular with first-time homebuyers. That may come as no surprise to some industry experts, considering a study by comScore Networks that reports 46 percent of people between the ages of 25 and 34 consider text messaging to be of "high importance" when choosing a cell phone. Soon enough, it may be of high importance when choosing a home as well.

Some prospective homebuyers are now using text messaging to get listing information for homes they are interested in.

Florida law differs a bit on-as is property

Q. I am in the process of selling my home in Florida and I understand that there are some peculiar provisions in the sales agreements that are different from what is typically found in Michigan, particularly with respect to "as-is" sales. Do you have any comment? A. Based upon my discussions with a prominent Florida Realtor and my review of Florida documents, it appears that even though used homes are sold on an as is basis, there is usually up to a 12 percent fee imposed on the seller's obligation to make repairs to the unit unless that is waived. These repairs would also include termite and wood damage and unless that clause is removed from the agreement, the seller would have an obliga-

Save Thousands When Moving to a Larger Home by Avoiding These 6 Costly Mistakes

FARMINGTON HILLS - A new report has just been released which identifies the 6 most common and costly mistakes that home buyers make when moving to a larger home.

Unlike the experience of buying a first home, when you're looking to move-up, and already own a home, there are certain factors that can complicate the situation. It's very important for you to understand these issues before you list your home for sale.

Not only is there the issue of financing to consider, but you also have to sell your present home at exactly the right time in order to avoid either the financial burden of owning two homes or, just as bad, the dilemma of having no place to live during the gap between closings. In answer to this issue, industry insiders have prepared a free special report entitled "6 Inside Strategies to Avoid Trade-Up Mistakes".

These six strategies will help you make informed choices before you put your home onthe market in anticipation of moving to a larger home. To hear a brief recorded message about how to order your free copy of this report, call 1-800-449-3218 and enter ID#2011. You can call anytime, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Call NOW to find out what you need to know to make your move up to a larger home worryfree and without complications. make those repairs and/or defray the cost of same. That also gives the buyer, of course, still the opportunity to inspect the premises. This is somewhat unusual as it relates to Michigan where you do not normally find that type of clause.

Q. Our condo association is built in the form a townhouse community and we have just passed a rule concerning smoking in the townhouse unit. Do you think it is reasonable to enforce it?

A. While there are diverse views on this, a Colorado judge has recently upheld a homeowner's association order barring a couple from smoking in their townhouse. The case was initiated as a result of the condo association amending its bylaws to prohibit smoking. The co-owners argued that it was unreasonable for the association to ban smoking in their home, on their patio, or anywhere on the condominium grounds. The condo association responded to complaints from other co-owners who said that cigarette smoking was seeping into their units creating a smoke smell that was quite strong at times. They argued that, as with loud music, the rights of the community trump the rights of an individual resident. A district judge in Colorado ruled that the association can ban the smoking in the co-owners' home unit because "smoke and/or smoke smell" is not contained to one area and the smell "constitutes a nuisance." This may be the first of many cases involving this issue.

CREW seeks entries for real estate Impact Awards

The Detroit chapter of Commercial Real Estate Women (CREW Detroit) now has 2007 entry packages available online for its sixth annual commercial real estate award program, the CREW Detroit Impact Awards.

The awards recognize two recently completed southeast Michigan commercial properties that significantly improve their surrounding communities.

The 2007 competition is open to new construction and redevelopment projects completed between Jan. 1, 2006, and June 30, 2007. The projects must also have involved at least one firm with a CREW Detroit member, said Sheila Monohon of Giffels-Webster Engineers in Rochester Hills, award committee chair. A list of companies with a CREW Detroit member is available at crewdetroit.org/memlist.htm.

be downloaded now at crewdetroit.org/awards.html. Printed forms are available from Norma Beuter at (248) 646-0629 or beuter@comcast.net. Completed forms should be submitted along with a $100 entry fee by June 1. Entrants will then receive an entry package outlining the submission requirements. Those completed entry packages are due on or before June 29.
