To park, or not to park?

City moves on with plan for new garage

BY TONY BRUSCATO
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

The Plymouth City Commission has asked City Attorney Bob Marzano to talk with owners of five houses along Union Street to see if they would sell their properties to make way for city parking.

The commission's Super Parking Committee is moving forward with plans to consider a new downtown parking garage on the current East Central Lot between the Penn Theatre and the Plymouth District Library. Along with a new 244-space parking deck, the committee also gave thought to buying the five homes for additional parking spaces.

"We have no clue whether these people are even interested in selling their properties," said Mayor Pro Tem Ron Loiselle. "They may tell us they don't want to. That would be an important fact for us to know."

"We're not committing to spending a million dollars or giving the city attorney authorization to come up with a contract," he said. "He'll bring the information back to the city commission, plus we'll have to go back to the DDA (Downtown Development Authority)."

The committee — made up of members from the City Commission, Planning Commission and DDA — voted in favor of East Central lot location after considering several public and private options. Among those was a new deck to replace the current 274-space, two-story parking structure off Harvey Street and purchasing the private lot at Wing and Harvey.

Carla Boyd, who lives on Union Street across from the library, told commissioners that when four houses were torn down during library construction residents were told no consideration would ever be given to a parking structure on the site.

"We were told it would only be first-level parking," Boyd said. "I think a better spot for a parking structure ... would be on Harvey Street where there are no single-family homes abutting it."

FULL DAY
KINDERGARTEN

Full-day kindergarten

Too much or a step up?

"The direction in which education starts a man will determine his future life."

So wrote Plato more than 2,000 years ago, and educators and policy makers still believe it's true.

So what could be more important than kindergarten, which opens the door to a lifetime of education? Little does a 5-year-old know what a milestone kindergarten represents on the long walk toward adulthood.

Lawmakers in Lansing are considering making full-day kindergarten mandatory. But that has raised serious questions about the need and value of such a program.

Today, in the second and final part of this series, the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers will look at what schools already offer and what impact this could have on schools that don't offer it. We'll also look at the potential psychological impact of sending such young children to school all day.

Some schools already offer full-day programs

BY TONY BRUSCATO
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

As the state Legislature considers bills mandating full-day kindergarten, many school districts are already providing all-day education for children in their first year in the public school system.

Some districts, like Southfield Public Schools, have been offering all-day kindergarten since 2004.

"Most of our families have two working parents, and a lot of single moms and grandmothers are raising children ... they need full-day kindergarten," said Ken Siver, deputy superintendent. "If I could have done it sooner, I would have. Everybody, nowadays, is looking for full-day kindergarten."

Others see the reality of finding classroom space and added costs, such as additional teachers and program materials, will make the change a costly one in the face of state foundation grant increases that aren't keeping up with inflation.

"If the Legislature wasn't looking at it, I don't think we would be actively pursuing it," said George Belvitch, director of elementary education for Plymouth-Canton Schools, where the foundation grant is $7,500. "It would be very difficult for us to afford."

Plymouth-Canton has cut nearly $15 million over the past seven budget years, including the need to eliminate some 21 full-time-equivalent positions for the 2008-09 school year. And, that's in a district with increasing enrollments over the same time frame.

"It would put additional strain on our elementary buildings," added Belvitch.

Teacher Heather Kearney at Allen Elementary School, is an eight-year veteran of teaching kindergarten. She works with students Chloe Cox and Chris Pohl, playing number dominos during centers time.

Some question stress of full-day kindergarten, A5.

"And, it would mean additional teachers. We have approximately 27 kindergarten teachers. We'd have to double that. Do the math, that's a sizable amount of money."

According to Belvitch, the math puts about a $2 million price tag for teachers, plus equipment and training. The district would also face $80,000-$100,000 in lost revenue from its Kindergarten Crew program, a fee-based program that extends the day for kindergartners.

Livonia Public Schools administrators are also in the process of exploring all-day kindergarten. And, just like Plymouth-Canton, costs and space are primary concerns.

"I'm not certain if all of our schools could accommodate full-day kindergarten," said Sheila Alles, director of academic services. "We've figured the initial start-up cost would be $2.4 million, with an annual cost of $1.3 million. We would need 22 new teachers."

Observer staff will move to new office

The Plymouth and Canton Observer editorial staff relocates to Livonia Monday.

The move is being done as the newspapers' parent corporation, Gannett Co. Inc., makes economic moves to ensure the continued success of both newspapers.

The move definitely does not mean the newspapers' coverage of the Plymouth and Canton communities will suffer.

"This is all part of the remaking of the Observer & Eccentric for the 21st century," said Peter Neill, vice president and general manager of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. "We will not be deserting our communities — after all, community newspapering is what we do best. Our (Plymouth and Canton)

Commission takes meetings on the road

BY TONY BRUSCATO
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

The annual Plymouth City Commission "Summer Concert Tour" begins Monday in Kellogg Park.

For a number of years city commissioners held a half-dozen meetings in neighborhood parks, taking the city's business to residents. Meetings are generally held under park shelters and begin at 7 p.m.

"We're hoping to take our meetings to the residents we represent and give them an opportunity to be in an informal setting to show we are accessible to them, we care about their perspective and we want to listen to whatever it is they feel is important to them," said Commissioner Stella Greene. "We want them to know that wherever and whenever we can we'll reach out to them."

The rain location for each meeting will be City Hall.

Students pen book for district's lesson plan MOVE

OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

A historical fiction children's book on Plymouth's history, written by three students of Salem High School history teacher Darrin Silvester, will soon become part of the Plymouth-Canton elementary curriculum for all second-graders in the district.

"Footsteps in History" is about 1889 Plymouth, with a focus on the long-forgotten Shearer Cemetery along North Territorial Road - just west of Sheldon Road - which has been restored the past couple of years by Silvester's Salem High School Michigan History classes.

Silvester had the idea, and enlisted the writing skills of former students Kelly Behr and Leslie Hampson - both from Canton and currently University of Michigan students. Illustrations are done by Jillian Hakala - a junior at Canton High School - for the 39-page children's book on early Plymouth.

"It took us three months to develop the plot," said Behr, who along with Hampson and Hakala made a presentation to Workman Elementary second-grade students, one of four schools (the others being Miller, Farrand and Tonda) where the pilot program began this year. "We had all the historical information, but we didn't have a story. And then, it went through months and months of editing."

The authors thought writing a children's book would be very simple, but it took them nearly two years to complete.

"We thought after the first two months we were done, but Mr. Silvester kind of laughed at us and told us 'no way,'" said Hampson. "At first we thought 'a kids' book, 10-15 pages.' The final project was 39 pages, it was more extensive than we imagined."

Salem history teacher Darrin Silvester with authors Kelly Behr and Leslie Hampson and illustrator Jillian Hakala.

Silvester said he's trying to do more project-based learning in his classroom.

"The more we can do some of those things the more these kids will get real life activities and lessons and experiences that will help them in the real world," he said.

The funding to make the book a permanent part of the second grade curriculum comes from the district's federal $1 million Teaching American History Grant (TAGH). Second grade curriculum includes community history, and students - with the help of "Footsteps in History" - will learn about the early years in Plymouth and Canton.

"As a teaching tool, the book is an amazing resource," said Lisa Eischer, elementary TAGH program manager. "These student writers have done so much of the leg work for us about early Plymouth history and the settlers."

Silvester began his interest in the old cemetery after reading an old newspaper story in the Plymouth Mail.

"The book shows the kids how to use a primary source and build on it," Eischer said. "And, it shows them how much of a mystery there still is in history. The past is still fun to dig around and if they put themselves in the role of detective and fill in the blanks that history can come alive."

Any questions regarding "Footsteps in History" can be sent to Darrin Silvester at silvestd@pccs.k12.mi.us.

editorial staffs will remain integral parts of the communities which we serve."

The Observer still has a considerable physical presence in the community, with an advertising office at Five Mile and Sheldon and a circulation center on Concept Drive.

And, while the editorial staffs - editor Brad Kadrich and reporter Tony Bruscatto in Plymouth, editor Kurt Kuban and reporter Tiffany Parks in Canton - will now be based in the company's headquarters at Schoolcraft and Levan, they will continue to be a presence in the community.

Coverage of the people, businesses and events in both Plymouth and Canton will remain the papers' highest priority, not only in the print versions but online at the papers' Web site, www.hometownlife.com

"We pride ourselves on telling the stories people in Plymouth and Canton want to read, and on providing our readers with all the news they need to live the good life in their communities," said Susan Rosiek, executive editor of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. "Readers will have immediate access to news they can use on our Web site, and the newspaper will continue to be a primary source of community information."

Some question stress of full-day kindergarten

BY GREG KOWALSKI
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Paige Leary has a lot of questions about the value of full-day kindergarten.

Mainly, "why?" "Why are we even looking at this," said Leary, a Birmingham mom who sent four kids through traditional kindergarten. "It's not necessary," she said.

She also asks what financial impact this will have on the Birmingham School District, where three of her four children are enrolled. And why does it have to be mandatory?

But the biggest question she poses is what impact this will have on the kids.

Birmingham currently offers traditional half-day kindergarten program with extended day available for a fee. But legislation being proposed in Lansing would make all-day kindergarten mandatory.

Not everyone thinks it is a good idea.

Paige Leary and her kids Kate, 13, Ashleigh, 9, and Caroline 8, know the kindergarten experience well. Not pictured is son, Peter, 12, and dad, Greg.

She questions the wisdom of placing kindergarten-age children in school for a full day. "Kids need to be kids," she said.

She would know. She and husband Greg have four children, Kate, 13; Peter, 12; Ashleigh, 9; and Caroline,

8. And they keep them on the run between swimming, lacrosse and the host of other activities youngsters take part in these days.

And that is the core of her concern. While Leary encourages her children to be active in many areas, there has to be limits.

"I often feel they are over-extended," she said of kids in general. "People feel that 'I've got to do everything for my kids,'" she said. So many parents spend hours each day ferrying their children to soccer or hockey or dance lessons or skating lessons or to any of the many other activities kids get involved in.

Leary has cut back on some of her kids' activities, in keeping with her own belief that "parents need to pull back a little."

And in her view that extends to full-day kindergarten as well.

Several international surveys indicate that children in full-day kindergarten get an academic boost.

"The Long Term effects of Half-Day vs. Full-Day Kindergarten" report done by Dominic Gullo in 2000 showed that 974 second graders scored "significantly higher in math and reading on the Iowa Test of Basic Skills and had fewer absences than half-day children."

But "An Overview of Full-Day Kindergarten" by the Ohio Legislative Office of Education Oversight done in 1998 stated, "in most studies students show somewhat higher academic or social achievements than half-day students, with effects diminishing after second grade."

Is putting 3- and 4-year-olds too much stress for their developing minds?

There are many factors in determining that, said Beth Ann Brooks, M.D., a child and adolescent psychiatrist at Wayne State University. "Nap time is a factor," she said. Kindergartners need one or two hours of nap time and activities have to engage the children. A year of development can mean major changes in young children.

"Three- and 4-year-olds go through a period of hyper-activity," Brooks said. "A 5-year-old is curious."

However, young children do adapt to the kindergarten environment, she said. But she echoed the same caution that Leary did: Kids are being pushed into too many activities.

"The programming of our children is a great concern, beginning with infant swimming lessons," Brooks said. "There is not as much time to be free and creative."

Whose fault is that? "More often than not, it is the parents who push them," Brooks said.

FULL-DAY

"In the last six years we've cut $30 million from the budget, and next year we're cutting in excess of $5 million," she said. "We're not adding programs, we're attempting to maintain programs through further budget reductions."

CHANGING TIMES

Southfield's Siver conceded it'll cost more to add full-day kindergarten — as well as add Spanish language instruction for kindergartners — but said it wasn't about the money or convenience for parents.

"Kids have a lot more stimulus today through television and computers, and we were seeing many more children coming to school with a level of readiness as far as language skills were concerned," Siver said. "But, it did cost us a lot more money because we doubled the staff and put a classroom aid in every kindergarten class."

While Siver said the $11,000-per student foundation grant gave them enough funds, it didn't mean there weren't cuts made to financially support all-day kindergarten and elementary Spanish programs.

Farmington will move from having three Title I schools with all-day kindergarten to providing it for all the district's elementary schools next year. Nancy Ely, director of Early Childhood and co-chair of the committee that studied the issue, said the three schools proved it helped children academically and the district is banking that trend will continue at all the elementaries.

Another factor in offering full-day kindergarten in Farmington — as well as Southfield — is to get those children who are attending other schools that provide full-day kindergarten.

"When we looked at children entering the first grade, we had an average 82 students more than there were from our own kindergarten," said Ely. "We discovered they were going to private and parochial schools in and out of the district, places that were offering full-day kindergarten."

CONCERNS OF CHANGE

When Jacob Callcut, 35, of Farmington Hills became a parent representative on the committee which took a year to research full-day kindergarten, he wasn't expecting to move from his thinking that half-days were good enough.

"Naturally, with school traditionally being half days, you kind of went with it," said Callcut. "I thought we would find potentially conflicting research, but — in reality — what we did find was information with all the benefits."

Callcut, whose 5-year-old son, Nicholas, will attend full-day kindergarten this fall, said there were concerns among parents about the change.

"I heard a lot of parents who were concerned there would be social issues and about a child's capability of handling a full day," Callcut said. "Ironically, by doing a full day it gives the teacher more time to spend one-on-one with students and develop course lessons that they can't do in a half day."

That's one of the reasons Alles would like full-day kindergarten in Livonia, if the district could afford it.

"Our kindergarten curriculum is packed into a half-day, so a full-day would allow teachers an opportunity to spend more time and go more in-depth on curriculum topics," said Alles. "It would also give more time to develop literacy skills, as well as language development, reading, writing and listening skills."

Plymouth-Canton administrators have looked at the studies and discovered all-day kindergarten may have a minimal effect on total learning.

"There have been studies that indicate for the following first grade year, and perhaps second grade, it can help with academic achievement ...

in the short run," said Belvitch. "But, the studies have also shown that by the upper elementary grades, there's no difference between those that had half-day kindergarten and those who had full days."

Belvitch said Plymouth-Canton is studying how to implement all-day kindergarten should the Legislature move forward and impose it for the 2009-10 school year.

Gov. Jennifer Granholm said in her 2008 State of the State address that full-day kindergarten is essential to success in the 21st century.

"This simple step will make a dramatic difference in the lives of our children," she said. "We want all our students to have great opportunities in life."

And today's students will be battling those from around the world for those "great opportunities," with many of those students in other parts of the globe attending classes more days throughout the year. That's one reason Samantha Warren-Green, a parent of two children who attend Smith Elementary in Plymouth, believes all-day kindergarten is a good idea.

FULL DAY HAS ADVANTAGES

Warren-Green remembers starting school in England at age 4. Her son — who started school at age 4 in England — had to be taken out of kindergarten and put back in preschool after moving to the U.S. because he was too young.

"I don't really see the purpose of half-days, they don't seem to have enough time to do the activities," said Warren-Green. "Teachers say often times recess has to be ditched because they don't have time for it. At this age, it would allow them to stretch those academic activities over a longer period of time, and allow the kids to have more time to play and socialize."

"One of the advantages, from a parental point of view, is half-days are very difficult to manage because you're on the go all the time," added Warren-Green, who has three children. "With a child in preschool, one in kindergarten and a fourth-grader I'm in my car pretty much most of the day. It would be nice to drop them all off together and pick them all up together."

Most school districts would easily decide to move to a full-day kindergarten if they thought their state foundation grant would be increased to cover the costs. As it is, most are expecting another unfunded mandate to provide more for less.

"I think if the legislature would like to provide additional funds to implement all-day kindergarten we would be most grateful," said Alles. "And, we would embrace it."

"But, then you have to ask yourself, what do you cut to afford it if this is another unfunded mandate," she said.

Follow the arrows for some amazing fun, author with Westland ties urges

BY HUGH GALLAGHER
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

John Tittensor Jr. thinks he just might have the next sudoku, a twisty, turny maze game that challenges the mind and the pencil.

And it all began with that most popular of children's toys — an empty refrigerator box.

"We had gotten a refrigerator box, I had broken it down in the basement and me and my buddies, with our Matchbox cars, we would make roads and use tissue boxes for the fire department and other buildings," Tittensor said.

When his buddies left, Tittensor, now 45, began putting in more roads, with complicated overpasses and underpasses.

"We weren't sure what went under and what went over, so I decided to draw an arrow on

IT'S AMAZING

What: 'Amazing Minds Mazes,' a collection of 32 challenging mazes.

Author: John Tittensor Jr.

Publisher: iUniverse Inc.

Price: $10.95

Available: Borders, Barnes and Noble, Waldenbooks, Amazonbooks.com

one side and an arrow on the other side where it came out," Tittensor said.

That was the inspiration. "It was later in my life that I picked it back up and realized this could be a lot of fun as a maze puzzle," he said.

Tittensor, who now lives in Melvindale, grew up in Westland. He works as a door installer contractor for Home Depot, but used to work for Chrysler Corp., where he began to doodle his mazes during down times.

"Guys would come by and ask what it was. They would try them out and come back and say 'I did it' and I would say, 'I'd have to make them harder.' It was my mind against theirs," he said. "They said you need to do something with this, it's really cool."

What Tittensor has done is create a book of 32 maze puzzles, Amazing Minds Mazes. The mazes grow progressively more difficult.

"The key to these mazes is simple — go through the maze and each time you come to an arrow, you follow it in the direction it's pointing until you see the tail of the arrow in line," he said.

The first few puzzles use numbers and letters to help give some direction over and under barriers. But for later puzzles, you're on your own. A key rule to remember is that you can't go directly from one arrow to another separated by a line or wall; instead, you have to skip over to the next arrow.

"You have to eliminate so many paths to find the correct path to open up," Tittensor said. "If you don't complete the paths, every time you take a certain way, it's going to be a dead end. When you eliminate the dead ends, the path will open up to finish the puzzle."

Tittensor is already working on his second book, with 48 puzzles. He is also investigating the possibilities of a computer version and a syndicated newspaper feature.

He said a lot of people were confused when they first saw a sudoku game, but now they're everywhere. He's hoping for the same success.

Airport launches small business program

The Wayne County Airport Authority (WCAA) has launched a new Small Business Enterprise (SBE) Program designed to increase opportunities for qualified small businesses in Macomb County, Oakland County, Washtenaw County and Wayne County to participate in Airport Authority contracts.

"The Airport Authority is committed to providing equal contracting opportunity to all businesses for projects at Detroit Metro Airport and Willow Run Airport, and we continue to seek the best-valued, high-quality products and services by encouraging competition among our vendors," said WCAA CEO Lester Robinson. "This new SBE Program provides equalization credits so that smaller, local firms can compete more aggressively and equally for business opportunities at our airports."

Under the SBE Program, the Authority encourages SBEs to submit bids or proposals as either prime contractors or as subcontractors by applying an equalization credit to bids submitted by or with certified small businesses. The amount of the equalization credit depends on the value of the contract being solicited and is based upon the lowest qualified bid received.

For contracts valued at or below $100,000, a 3 percent equalization credit is available. For contracts valued above $100,000, a 2 percent equalization credit is available. A non-SBE firm may receive a 1 percent equalization credit on any size contract if they submit a bid or proposal that includes subcontracting opportunities for SBE firms valued at 30 percent or more of the overall contract value.

"Because the equalization credit is based on a percentage of the lowest qualified bid the Authority receives from a non-SBE firm, the new program is designed such that SBEs have the same incentive to offer their most competitive bids as do larger firms," said Airport Authority Procurement Director Sandra Allen.

Participation in the new SBE Program is completely voluntary and SBE certification is not required to participate in any WCAA contract. However, to obtain the equalization credit, firms must complete a WCAA SBE Certification Application and be approved by the Authority's Purchasing Unit prior to a bid deadline or solicitation submission deadline date.

For more information regarding the WCAA SBE Program, visit the Authority's Web site at <http://www.metroairport.com/business/SBEProgram.asp> or contact the Airport Authority Procurement Division at (734) 247-7900.

Hospital hosts cancer fighting event

An annual event celebrates all those touched by cancer — survivors, current patients, caregivers, health care providers, and family and friends who have lost a loved one to cancer. It is a time to celebrate life, personal successes and hope for the future.

The St. Mary Mercy Hospital annual Cancer Survivors' Celebration will be Sunday, June 1, at the hospital, Five Mile and Levan in Livonia. There will be a reception at 11:30 a.m., the program from noon to 1 p.m.

Guest speaker and singer Elaine Greenberg will be featured in the St. Mary Mercy Hospital South Lobby.

She will be donating proceeds from the sale of her CDs to St. Mary Mercy Hospital.

Greenberg is an eight-year cancer survivor who used music to heal during her own recovery and is now fulfilling her promise to share her gift of music with others.

There will also be tours of the Our Lady of Hope Cancer Center, Hearts of Livonia

Healing Center, Helen Palmer Image Recovery Center, and Radiation Oncology.

This event is free. To RSVP or for more information, call the hospital Community Outreach Department at (734) 655-8950.

Cooperstown doesn't disappoint on local, international fronts

Cooperstown, N.Y., can be a place of surprises even if you've been to the Baseball Hall of Fame five times or so already.

My husband and I traveled May 18 from our Plymouth Township home through Canada into upstate New York. We were eager to get to the Hall of Fame, founded in 1939 and one of our favorite travel destinations.

Cooperstown's not so easy to get to, taking a winding Route 28 south of the New York Thruway's Herkimer exit. Our three days at the Hall of Fame and the Inn at Cooperstown were worth the drive and the alarming gas prices (especially in Canada, our equivalent to $5 a gallon).

The first surprise was seeing Helen Filarski's picture in the Diamond Dreams exhibit on women in baseball. The new exhibit, funded by AT&T, explores women's role in organized baseball.

Filarski, now Helen Filarski Steffes, spoke March 29 at the William P. Faust Public Library of Westland with Mary Moore, a fellow player in the All-American Girls Professional Baseball League of the 1940s and 1950s. The women talked extensively about their memories of playing hard and having fun in the league. Later, they assisted with and appeared in the 1992 movie A League of Their Own, all about the women's baseball league.

I turned a corner and spotted a photo of a younger Filarski tagging out a Josephine Kabick in a 1947 game. It was a great, but pleasant, surprise to see one of the local women I'd met and heard speak represented so well in the Baseball Hall of Fame.

The other pleasant surprise was fellow Rotarian Bob Bilkie Jr. of Northville, whose name appeared on the first floor of the Hall of Fame at a display on fantasy camps. When I got back into town for Plymouth A.M. Rotary's May 27 meeting, I was eager to let Bob know his name on a roster and a photo, with face slightly turned, were not far away from the Hall where the plaques of baseball immortals rest.

Initially, I'd been a bit disappointed. I was scheduled to interview Birmingham Groves High and Michigan State grad Dale Petroskey, who until recently was president of the Baseball Hall of Fame. His abrupt departure was still news when we arrived in Cooperstown, and of course I didn't get to do the interview for this newspaper.

It would have been nice to

meet a fellow Groves graduate, and maybe we would have seen some secrets of the Hall of Fame; only about 10 percent of the collection's shown at a given time. Still, even without the Petroskey interview the trip was worth it.

I stopped in at the Hall of Fame library to ask about St. Louis Browns tryouts held in Toledo in the early 1940s. My dad and a friend had skipped classes at Detroit Mackenzie High School and hitchhiked to Toledo for tryouts. The library in Cooperstown had no record of the open tryouts, although the helpful staffer did refer me to the Baltimore Orioles, the successor to that team.

Not all the Cooperstown surprises were local or even American. We heard a staffer speak on Japanese baseball players. I didn't know that the first player from Japan came in 1964 and played for the San Francisco Giants. There was even a black and white photo of him eating a hot dog at the ball park and smiling. He returned to Japan, I learned, and had a career in broadcasting.

We've never been to the Hall of Fame in the summer, and avoid the induction ceremony when crowds fill the one-traffic light town to capacity. I like to watch that on TV and compare a full Cooperstown to the quieter, almost spiritual place that we know.

My husband was a bit miffed to see a woman reading a book (not a baseball title, from what I could tell) in the room that houses the Hall of Fame plaques of Al Kaline, George Kell, Hank Greenberg, Charlie Gehringer, and St. Louis Cardinals greats like Stan Musial. (St. Louis is my favorite National League team.) Of course, many other teams and eras in the sport are represented, including Effa Manley, an owner in the Negro Leagues and the first woman inducted.

Maybe the reader should have gone across the street to the public library on Main Street, but she wasn't bothering anyone so I didn't really care. Baseball means different things to different people, and the Hall of Fame's just the place to be if you're a fan, casual or otherwise.

Campaigning an embarrassment

Shame on Martha Snow! Plymouth's Memorial Day parade is to honor the service and sacrifice of America's military veterans, but this year it was cheapened by an army of Snow's political supporters, clad in matching regalia and passing out cheesy "Snow for District Judge" balloons and trinkets.

What an affront to the purpose of Memorial Day!

During the very moving ceremony held following the parade, the Rev. Hogan, a retired U.S. Navy chaplain, opened his inspirational speech with a jab at Snow, calling for all politicians to put away their handout materials this morning.

What an embarrassment. Snow lost any chance of getting my vote.

Patterson should resign

Bruce Patterson should join with Kwame Kilpatrick — and resign.

In reference to the photo published by the Free Press showing state Sen. Bruce Patterson conferring with Kwame Kilpatrick, et al., on the floor of the Legislature a couple of years back, I cannot tell you how appalled and disgusted I was to see Patterson (Republican, 7th District) ranting and raving on the floor of the state Legislature.

It wasn't clear to me exactly how his comments related to any piece of legislation or government function, but I sure hope that we (the taxpayers/voters) are not paying him to represent us as a public servant. I think Sen. Tupac Hunter's eloquent advice should be taken to heart by Patterson: "Boo Hoo! Get over yourself!" But then, I guess this is the same larger-than-life Patterson who is notorious for intimidating fellow legislators while acting as though he has the best interest of his constituents at heart. Not exactly the type of collaboration that we deserve from our representatives in government.

However, on the bright side, Patterson is term-limited and if the voters are smart, we'll never see him in public office again.

Half-truths on Web site

Dear Salem Voters

The August primary election is coming fast. There are lots of people running around saying things that are untrue or at best a twisted version of the truth. These anonymous individuals won't stand up and take credit for their statements. They won't sign their names, they put something like "unhappy resident."

I have been doing a little checking. The Web site Salem for Change is owned by the challenger, running for supervisor. For those of you that didn't know ownership of a Web site is public domain. This individual apparently will be basing his campaign for office on untruths and half-truths.

Why would anyone support a person running for office with a Web site so full of half-truths and anonymous articles with so many misleading statements? Because he and his group of candidates do not want you to know the real truth they hide behind a P.O. box. Only they can post information to the Web site. They do not want honest debate or opposing viewpoints.

Citizens beware of this group — they do not have the township's best interests at heart!

Stop the fear mongering

Upon reading Ed Johnson's opinion, "Who do terrorists want as president?" it is obvious that Mr. Johnson is no fan of Barack Obama nor the Democratic Party. Certainly, this is his prerogative.

However, I like most Americans am tired of the fear mongering and demagoguery in our political process. I am one American who believes this tactic will not work this November; I am a registered Republican who is voting for a message of healing, reconciliation and hope.

Mr. Johnson asks the reader to put himself/herself in the shoes of a Muslim jihadist and, from this vantage point, choose from the crop of candidates running for president. He wants us to believe that the Muslim radicals are strongly behind Barack Obama. Well, Mr. Johnson has it wrong.

The radicals consider all non-Muslims apostates, which means they despise all Americans — Democrat and Republican. The radicals thrive on the conflict; thus, they wish for an American president who will maintain the status quo in the Middle East and bring our children to harm's way in their back yard. (Remember, Al Qaeda in Iraq never existed before this administration's war in Iraq.)

Now, if Mr. Johnson wants to argue that the Muslim world favors Barack Obama, then I acquiesce. Barack Obama has spoken of tough diplomacy, in the same vein as Roosevelt, Truman and Reagan — pretty good presidential role models, I would say.

What these presidents understood is that you negotiate with your enemies, not your friends; you keep your friends close and your enemies even closer. So, Mr. Johnson, if you were a moderate Muslim from a country favorable to the United States (e.g. Egypt, Jordan, Saudi Arabia), you would certainly want a level-headed, pragmatic U.S. president who truly understands how to change the face of the Middle East.

Most importantly, if you are an American, you want a president who can truly mitigate the hate and contempt among many Muslims that lead to our country's insecurity; you want an American president who will work to subvert and marginalize the radicals, which will ultimately lead to our country's security.

I would caution him and all Americans not to stereotype Muslims. We need to understand the difference between the radicals and the moderates. We have a large Muslim contingent in our state and they are no different from other law-abiding, hard-working Americans. They are contributors to society and they reside here because they also seek the American dream of security, prosperity and peace.

Thus, Mr. Johnson needs to drop the fear mongering and stereotypical babble, and give the readers a valid reason to vote the alternative come November. Because, frankly, the prospect of a Bush third term doesn't sit well with me.

State may help in locating your safe-deposit box

Dear Rick: My parents passed away a couple of years ago. At the time of their death, I think they had a safe-deposit box that I was never able to locate. I was told that there may be a way for the state to help me locate the safe-deposit box. It's been seven years since my parents' death, but I was curious if there was anything that I could do.

Michigan, through the Department of Treasury, administers the Michigan's Unclaimed Property Act, which states if there is no activity in an account for a period of five years and if they cannot contact the owner of the account, then the financial institution gives the property (cash or contents in a safe-deposit box) to the state treasurer's office.

The state treasurer, through the Department of Treasury, takes jurisdiction and supervises its return to the rightful owner. It is possible the contents of your parents' safe-deposit box have been turned over to the Department of Treasury and you can have this property returned. The state of Michigan has millions of dollars from bank accounts that have been forgotten, family heirlooms left in safe-deposit boxes and uncashed checks. To find out whether any of this property is yours is relatively easy. Go to the Michigan Department of Treasury's Web site, www.michigan.gov/treasury and click on "Unclaimed Property." You will see a link for "Michigan's Money Quest" click to do your own search. If you discover your name, or your parents', then you can submit a claim through the state Treasurer's Department and reclaim the assets. It is important to understand that the state of Michigan does not own the unclaimed property. It acts as a custodian. Every year or two, it pays for all of us to visit the Department of Treasury's Web site and to do a search for unclaimed property. We live in a time period where everything is changing, people move and it is not unusual to lose track of certain assets.

Money Matters

In addition, if you have lived out of state, it's not a bad idea to do an unclaimed property search in that state. Even though every state has different rules, a great majority will allow you to do unclaimed property searches on the Internet.

Over the years, I've received letters from companies who will do unclaimed property searches for you for a fee. In the majority of those cases, all they are doing is going to the particular state's Web site and doing the search. My advice for the great majority of people is to save the money and do the search yourself.

Dear Rick: I have money invested in GMAC Demand Notes. Recent articles in the newspapers make me wonder if this investment is shaky. GMAC has been around a long time and it does pay, or so it seems, a higher rate of interest. Being a senior on a fixed income, I cannot afford to lose any money.

You are correct. GMAC has been around a long time and does have a history of paying their obligations. However, the GMAC of today is not the GMAC of the past. In the past, GMAC was a division of General Motors. Today, GMAC is no longer owned solely by GM. Cerberus Capital Management, the same company that owns Chrysler, owns a substantial portion of GMAC.

In the past, because of the financial strength of General Motors, GMAC Demand Notes were a very safe and secure investment. Unfortunately, that is no longer the case. GMAC has run into difficulty with its mortgage business. The credit crunch that has affected America also has affected GMAC.

The bottom line is GMAC is not a safe, secure investment. The rating services that rank financial instruments place GMAC Demand Notes in a non-investment quality category. In other words, the junk bond category.

In your case, being a senior isn't the major issue, it's that you want a safe and secure investment. Since GMAC is rated a non-investment grade, I recommend an alternative to GMAC Demand Notes.

The world has changed and GMAC is no longer the same company it was before.

TRIPLE PLAY

Jeleniewski is Salem's athlete for all seasons

BY ED WRIGHT
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

If you asked Salem senior Tyler Jeleniewski to name a TV show that airs between 3 and 6 p.m. on any given school day, he'd probably have a tough time giving you an answer — unless you handed him a TV Guide.

There weren't many TV's around where Jeleniewski hung out practically every weekday after school the past four years — on tennis courts, in gyms and on golf courses.

The Plymouth resident is a member of a dying breed — three-sport high school athletes, the number of which are shrinking faster than gas-guzzling SUVs.

The athlete-for-all-seasons played No. 1 doubles for the Rocks' tennis team in the fall, point guard for coach Bob Brodie's basketball team in the winter and he was the No. 1 player/captain for Rick Wilson's golf team this past spring — and he did it all with a relentless passion for each sport that was admired by coaches and teammates alike.

"There probably aren't as many three-sport athletes as there used to be because kids probably get burned out playing all year," Jeleniewski said, when asked about his theory why the number of triple-threat athletes are on the decline. "I know a lot of kids who play two sports, but they need a break from a third."

"I've always been somebody who likes to stay active. The only time I even thought about not playing was last basketball season when I was struggling a little, but I felt too much of a commitment to the team to not play."

The links rule

If Jeleniewski was forced to choose just one sport to compete in, the choice would be a rather easy one.

"Definitely golf," he said. "I love basketball, too, and I enjoy playing tennis, but golf is my best sport. It's the one I've dedicated the most time to."

The dedication is reflected in the small numbers he posts on his scorecards.

Jeleniewski followed up an ultra-successful junior year by earning All-WLAA honors two weeks ago at the conference meet.

His per-round stroke averages — 37.5 for nine holes and 74.0 for 18 — rank among the best in all of Observerland.

"I started Tyler on the varsity as a freshman and he's been a big part of the team ever since," said Wilson. "Every year he's improved his game because of all the hard work he puts into it."

"Tyler's really taken advantage of all the summer tours that are offered — like the PowerBuilt Tour, the Meijer Tour and the American Junior Golf Association tournaments. He's really done everything a coach could want one of his players to do."

"He's not only a good player, but he's a great example when it comes to sportsmanship, leadership and giving advice to his younger teammates. He'll definitely be missed around here next year."

Jeleniewski etched his name in the Salem golf record book last year when he carded the lowest nine-hole score in school history — a 32 at St. John's Golf Course.

It's all in the swing

He said playing golf makes him a better tennis player, and vice versa.

"They're two different kinds of swings, but they both require a fluid motion," he said. "And they're both great at developing hand-eye coordination."

What would give the multi-sport star more satisfaction: draining a 20-foot birdie putt or sinking a 20-foot three-pointer during the latter stages of a close hoop game?

"Probably the putt, but it would depend on the situation," he said. "Both of them would feel pretty good."

The highlight of Jeleniewski's tennis career unfolded in late September when he and Jake Burnstein advanced all the way to Tyler Jeleniewski teamed up with Jake Burnstein to give Salem a formidable No. 1 doubles team last fall.

Chiefs wrap up win-filled first season

The foundation has been built for the Canton boys lacrosse team — and it is a sturdy one.

The curtain came down on the Chiefs' inaugural season when they dropped a 10-1 decision to state-ranked Birmingham Seaholm Tuesday night.

Although frustrating, the loss didn't put the damper on an outstanding first campaign that saw Canton rack up a 13-6 record and advance all the way to the quarterfinal round of the state tournament. Canton was the first first-year team to advance to the final eight.

"I was proud of the way the boys played, especially the seniors in their last game," said Canton coach Kevin Riley. "It was a huge accomplishment reaching this level of the playoffs."

The Chiefs' lone goal on Tuesday was scored by sophomore Jake Underwood, who was assisted by senior Scott Wisniewski. The net-finder came when Canton was in its extra-man offense.

Canton advanced to the final eight by ousting South Lyon, 8-7, in overtime on May 23.

Matt Rodgers paced the offense with five goals — including the game-winner — and Jake Underwood chipped in with three.

Senior goalie Justin Scott was his normally stellar self, turning away 13-of-20 shots. He stoned the Lions five times from point-blank range.

Other standouts for the winners were junior midfielder Brett Phillips, Mark Barath, who won 8-of-12 face-offs, Wisniewski, Kyle Dunleavy and Trevor Moore.

Canton senior Scott Wisniewski (2), pictured in a game earlier this season, played a key role in the Chiefs' outstanding inaugural campaign.

Canton's Conrad, PCA's team moving on to state golf meets

BY ED WRIGHT
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

While his peers struggled mightily on the demanding Washtenaw Country Club layout Thursday afternoon, Canton's Zach Conrad flourished during the Division 1 Regional meet.

As a result of his poised, steady play, the sophomore earned a berth in next week's state meet at "The Meadows," which is located near the Grand Valley State University campus.

Conrad will be the lone Plymouth-Canton Educational Park golfer competing next week thanks to his three-over-par 75. A round of 77 or lower was needed to advance to the state meet as an individual.

Both Canton's and Salem's entire teams competed, but neither could crack the top three spots that would have earned them berths in next weekend's competition.

"I knew I didn't need to hit it far off the tee, but I hit it straight," said Conrad, revealing his Regional strategy. "I hit it about 250 or 260 and kept it in the fairway. It feels great (to qualify for the state meet)."

Conrad didn't hesitate when asked what hole was most pivotal in his accomplishment.

"The 13th," he said. "It's a par 5. I birdied it then parred out."

Conrad said he's scheduled to play a practice round at "The Meadows" on Sunday.

"Hopefully, I can play like I did on Thursday at the state meet," he said.

Conrad's teammate, Jeremy Lindbauer, was the Chiefs' next-lowest scorer, carding an 83.

Salem was led by Tyler Jeleniewski's 84. Other Rock scorers were Aaron Thompson (85), Adam Powers (86), Joel Cheesman (86) and Patrick Doty (87).

"We shot a practice round on the course Wednesday, so we were well-prepared," said Salem coach Rick Wilson.

"It's just a very tough course all the way around. Most of the fairways are narrow and lined by big trees, but toughest part is the greens. Like a lot of teams, we had difficulty putting."

Northville, Salem and Ann Arbor Huron all advanced to the team portion of the state meet by placing first through third, respectively.

Canton placed seventh.

PCA makes history

Paced by returning All-State performer Ross Gerulis, Plymouth Christian Academy advanced to next week's state meet by placing first in Thursday's Division 4 Regional at Bald Mountain Golf Course in Clarkston.

The Eagles fired a 312 to edge host Oakland Christian and Manchester, both of which carded 314's, to earn the school's first Regional boys golf title.

Gerulis's even-par 72 was just one shot off the pace of Regional medalist Ben Vanbiesbrouck, Oakland Christian's top player.

Other contributors to PCA's historic effort were Mitchell Geracz (79), Robert Qualls (79), Scott Hampson (82) and Ryan Parker (98). The top four scores counted.

Wildcats push No. 1 Mustangs to the brink

BY ED WRIGHT
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Northville may be the No. 1 girls soccer team in Michigan, but Plymouth deserved a No. 1a ranking during most of Thursday night's Division 1 District semifinal game on the Mustangs' pitch.

The Wildcats played step for step with the Mustangs before dropping a tense 1-0 decision.

The game's lone goal came 6:05 into the second half on sophomore Lauren Lokey's high bender that found the top shelf of the right side of the net seconds after Theresa Yankovich sent a corner kick into the middle of the 18-yard box.

Plymouth coach Jeff Neschich said he couldn't have been more proud of his team's performance, but he added the close loss is no consolation.

"Absolutely none," he said. Plymouth gave Northville a big-time scare with 15:35 to play when Jennifer Babcock — who was a force to be reckoned with throughout the contest — slid a lead pass on the right wing to Julia Forster 15 yards from the Mustangs' goal, but Northville keeper Katherine Janson suffocated the ball with a sliding save just as Forster cocked her right foot.

"That was a great run," Neschich said. "We got a one-on-one situation with their goalie, but she made a great play on it." The Wildcats' best opportunity to break their goose egg on the scoreboard in the first half came at the 28:50 mark when Carley McQuiston's hard shot from 12 yards out sailed high of the crossbar by mere inches.

"I thought the girls adjusted well as the game went along," said Neschich, whose team finished 7-8-4. "We wanted to stop their two best players — No. 5 (Sarah Stern) and No. 22 (Yankovich) — and I thought we did a great job on them."

"Overall, we did a good job of eliminating their opportunities. We were going to let them shoot from 30 yards out, which they did a lot."

Northville coach Ron Meteyer was happy to see his team advance on what he referred to as an off-night.

"Like I told the girls after the game, it was an ugly game and we didn't execute well," said Meteyer, whose team carried an 18-0-2 mark into Saturday's District final against Canton (see www.hometownlife.com Sunday morning for final results). "But I told them that if they can play an ugly game and not execute well and still come out with a win, then chalk it up as a 'W' and move on. We have to play better than that from here on out."

Meteyer was impressed by Plymouth's effort.

"They packed their defense back and took away some of our outside game, which is where we made hay against Churchill (in Tuesday's first-round game)."

Plymouth keeper Marissa Williams kept her team in the game on numerous occasions when she left her feet to pull off a several spectacular saves.

CANTON 9, JOHN GLENN 0: In a Division 1 district game Thursday at Northville, the Chiefs (12-4-4) scored nine first-half goals to mercy Westland John Glenn (1-15-2).

PLY. CHRISTIAN 4, LUTH. WESTLAND 0: Brooke Williams and Annette Somercik tallied two goals apiece Thursday as host Plymouth Christian Academy (14-2-1), ranked No. 2 in the state, advanced in the Division 4 district tournament by blanking Lutheran High Westland (10-8).

It was the third straight win this season for PCA over the Warriors, who trailed 2-0 at halftime.

Lutheran Westland goalkeeper Chelsea Kyles stood out with 12 saves.

"We played well, but they (PCA) were too strong," Lutheran Westland coach Sam Makki said. "Most of their goals were from crossing the ball from the wing. We could not stop their crosses. They had better skill players and I see most of their girls playing year-round soccer. We don't, but this year was a better one for our team and we have improved a lot."

The next chapter

In the fall, Jeleniewski will head off to Grand Valley State University, where he plans on working toward degrees in business economics and entrepreneurship.

"Eventually, I'd like to start my own business," he said. "I'm going to try to walk on to the golf team, but if it doesn't work out, it won't be the end of the world."

Jeleniewski said his high school sports experiences will no doubt make him a better businessman in the real world.

"I've been a captain for two sports (tennis and golf), so that responsibility has taught me a lot about leadership," he said. "And all the competition I've been through will help me once I get out into the business world."

Therapy may help with son

My 10-year-old son is no longer in school because of behavioral problems. He's been out of school for about a month and I don't know what to do with him. He stays up all night and plays video games and then sleeps all day. I know that this isn't right, but I have no idea what to do to help him. Do you have any suggestions?

I'm confused. Why is your son out of school? Was he expelled or did you withdraw him? Is he going to start at a new school or are you going to start a home-schooling program? These questions need to be answered. He can't just stop going to school. He needs to be enrolled in some kind of educational program and, as his parent, it is your job to make sure that this happens.

I am also confused by the fact that your son is awake all night playing video games and then sleeping all day. Why is this being allowed to happen? Establish and enforce a bed time. Limit or discontinue video games until you decide that his behavior has earned them back.

You are the parent. That means that you are the one responsible for helping your child to make the appropriate choices. I know that this can be a very difficult task but there's no way around it. But don't worry. You're not alone. There are many resources available to help you with this responsibility.

First, I strongly recommend that you consider therapy for you and your son. This may help the two of you to develop more appropriate boundaries and address areas of concern. A therapist may also be able to provide you with other sources of support and information in your area.

In addition to therapy, you may find it beneficial to locate a parenting group, try taking some parenting classes and read some books on effective parenting strategies. All of these resources can be found easily within a few minutes of online searching or a short visit to a local library.

Right now, it sounds as if your house is in chaos and this results on anxiety and stress on everyone that lives there. By assuming control of this situation and setting appropriate rules and limits into place, you will find that you will both be happier and experience less difficulty.

My 6-year-old daughter wets her pants several times a day. She never does this at school or when she is with her grandparents, only when she is at home. We've tried spanking her and taking away her toys but nothing seems to work. Do you have any ideas that might help? Her older sister and brother never had this kind of trouble. Do you think that it might have something to do with our recent move into this house? It's just a thought.

It is entirely possible that your recent move may be one of the reasons that your daughter is wetting. Of course, it's also possible that this has nothing at all to do with this problem. Usually, if a child is reacting to a change or some other negative event, there will be more than one behavioral change that is noted. For example, she would be less talkative, more aggressive, in addition to wetting herself.

My first recommendation is to take your daughter to her pediatrician for an evaluation. It is always better to rule out the physical before we explore the psychological. The fact that this does not seem to happen when she is at school or when she is away from home seems to suggest that it is not due to some medical cause, but it's better to be sure.

Once a medical reason is ruled out, you will need to establish a pattern. Keep track of her wetting and look for triggers. Record who she is with, what time it occurs and what she is doing when she wets. This information can help you to determine if there is anything or things that are contributing to this behavior.

If a pattern or trigger is identified, we can use this information to develop an intervention. If no clear pattern or trigger emerges, a general intervention can be devised. For example, you may want to make hourly toileting trips mandatory. In addition, you should reward "dry" days with a special treat, such as a special game or time together prior to bed time.

When she does wet, in spite of your best efforts, do not get upset and yell at her. I know that it is frustrating but this response will not help. Instead, make it her responsibility to clean up the mess. This means that she should take off her wet clothing, rinse it out, put it into the washing machine and take a bath (without toys or playing while in the tub) to wash herself. The purpose is to make wetting herself more than just a quick change.

Benny Goodman tribute reincarnates clarinetist

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
STAFF WRITER

Midge Ellis swears Dave Bennett is Benny Goodman reincarnated, even though the legendary clarinetist died two years after Bennett was born in 1984. There's no doubt the King of Swing would have liked Bennett's style — the wire-rimmed glasses and double-breasted suits — and the fact he seems to be following in the legendary jazz musician's footsteps. Both started playing on the road in their mid-teens.

On Father's Day, June 15, Bennett and his trio bring the Goodman sound to a brunch at Schoolcraft College. The annual event raises funds for the Michigan Jazz Festival to be held July 20, at the college in Livonia.

"I heard Dave for several years," said Ellis, a Livonia resident who saw Goodman play in New York and later booked his band at the Meadow Brook Music Festival. "He stands like him. His mannerisms are so much like Benny's, but he plays a better clarinet."

Bennett wore his hair in the same 1940s style, even when he was younger. Then his vision needed correction.

"I don't do it to copy Benny," said Bennett, 24. "It just sort of fell into place."

Bennett's love for Goodman's music evolved as well when he began playing clarinet at age 10 after his grandparents gave him a horn. By 14, he was traveling around the U.S. as a member of the New Reformation Dixieland Band and at 17 was chosen to perform as a guest soloist with The Count Basie Orchestra. Bennett's most recent gig, May 1-4, was with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. This was his second appearance with the DSO. In June, he plays the Elkhart Jazz Festival in Indiana.

Over the years, Bennett's performed with Doc Cheatham at the Sweet Basil jazz club in New York, and with Goodman band alumni vibraphonist Peter Appleyard and guitarist Bucky Pizzarelli. His own quartet recently played at Peabody's in Birmingham.

"My grandfather got me a tape of Benny Goodman and that was it. I already liked music of the big band era in the movies," said Bennett of Waterford. "I just knew I liked what I heard. It wasn't until later on I started to realize I was into something different than everyone else was into."

"His music just really grabs me," he added. "It makes me feel good. It's exciting. When most people think of Benny Goodman, they think of the big band hits. If you dig into the small band stuff, it shows what he could do on the clarinet."

On Sunday, June 15, Bennett will be joined by Tad Weed on piano and Doug Cobb on drums for tunes ranging from Memories of You to Running Wild. Bennett originally performed his Tribute to Benny Goodman in November 2003 at Windsor's Capitol Theatre. The concert resulted in his first CD. Remembering Benny will be available at the brunch.

Bennett is currently in the process of writing his own music, which he says is influenced by Peter Gabriel and Phil Collins, but if a music career doesn't work out he'll have a guaranteed income as a CPA. Bennett just graduated from Oakland University with a bachelor's degree in accounting.

"I hope to make a living doing what I'm doing, but hope to eventually break away from doing the tributes," Bennett said. "I want to break out for myself."

Art festival appeals to the entire family

This is only the second year Mike Kuhn is showing his pottery, but he's already hooked largely because of the kids. Last year the Livonia man couldn't believe how even the youngest were drawn to the clay when he and fellow potter Bob Sheridan set up a wheel to demonstrate at Art From The Heart, the festival presented by the Livonia Arts Commission.

Kuhn says adults typically shy away from trying their hand, but children can't wait to get muddy. Kuhn always asks the parents' permission before allowing kids to take a turn at the wheel used to shape bowls, vases, plates or anything round.

On Saturday-Sunday, June 14-15, Kuhn will once again demonstrate the craft at Art From The Heart in the Livonia Civic Center Complex.

"We had a lot of children coming up and would let them sit down and have an opportunity to try it," said Kuhn who recently exhibited at Art Feast in Plymouth.

A commercial photographer for 20 years, Kuhn began creating functional stoneware 3-years ago after his wife paid for a pottery class at Schoolcraft College for his birthday. He's been studying ever since with John Albert Murphy who has exhibited across the country as well as internationally.

"I've always been impressed with pottery," said Kuhn. "I set up a studio in my home, Barefoot Pottery, to do more traditional. It has a purpose. You can cook or serve something in it - colanders, berry bowls, place settings. I like to blend different glazes together, use two to three glazes on a piece to get the color effect I'm looking for, mostly earthy colors, matte finish, toasted almond, beige, neutral color, off whites. I've taken a trip to Arizona and feel I have a strong influence from the Southwest pottery I saw."

Kuhn is just one of 75 exhibitors showing jewelry, metal, pottery, photography, wood items like clocks, hand painted coins, crocheted items, oil painting, metal sculpture, and tie dyed clothing.

Chris Swish, the city liaison to arts commission, is especially excited about this year's offerings.

"We have one artist cutting dried tree trunks into sculptural objects, someone else doing metal butterflies, copper yard art like dragonflies and lady bugs," said Swish. "We have everything from the greyhound rescue, Greyheart, to homemade doggie treats, applique and embroidered shirts, decorative painting on glass, outdoor pool signs, floral designs, baskets, wreaths, metal and wire containers, homemade soy candles, Michigan Rabbit Rescue, hand painted antique windows, wine bottles and yard faucets, and hand made note paper."

Erika Dahlstrom-Hanna is bringing a wealth of jewelry. The Livonia artist teaches the craft at John Glenn High School in Westland.

"I have a love for wire, variations in chain mail, variations in chains, pendants," said Hanna who earned her bachelor and master degrees from Eastern Michigan University.

I play with the wire to come up with the designs. I just got married and made sets for my bridesmaids. My bracelets I incorporate O-rings (from plumbing) so you don't have to have a clasp so they can slip it off their wrist."

In addition to bracelets, Hanna is bringing her contemporary style earrings, pendants, rings, necklaces, lapel pins, and key chains to Art From The Heart.

was fine and we adopted her," Matvchuk said. "We took her for walks in the morning and evening and she would spot other dogs and become uncontrollable. He would take her at five in the morning before work. One day he said, 'I can't do this anymore she's pulling so hard my shoulders are killing me. I had rotator cuff surgery and can't take her.'"

The Matvchuks took Inga to their veterinarian, who gave them the Dog Wizard's brochure. Roytapel made a house call the next day. The couple doesn't have a fence, which compounds the problem since anytime Inga goes out it has to be on a leash.

"He discussed how we have to handle her," Matvchuk said. "He took her out of the cage and showed us how to walk with her. By the time he left, we could walk her up and down the sidewalk. It was a miracle. She saved her life and our life."

"Everybody complains about dogs being bad. He taught us how to be the alpha. Our first lesson, walking on a leash, you have to make sure she's never in front of you. You have to be firm and then reward with a good girl."

"It's being able to read the dog and anticipate her needs," George Matvchuk added. "If she starts barking, you nip it in the bud by giving commands. If we get a little lapse, we have to be stronger."

Roytapel believes there are three mistakes owners make. He says, 99 percent of dog bites don't happen overnight. The owners' lack of rules leads to aggression in the dogs as they vie for first place.

He condemns the positive reinforcement training method with food, calling it nothing but a trend.

He believes in using treats as reward, not as a bribe. Pinch and shock collars may be needed to control strong-willed dogs like Inga.

"One is living with pets in democracy. Two is allowing them to pull you on the leash. You walk your dog or he walks you," said Roytapel of Troy. "Three is allowing them to bark. They think they are police officers on guard. A combination of these three is a recipe for disaster. There's no such thing as a bad breed, but there are bad traits. We need to go back. We went too far. We turn everything into fun. There's no room for discipline. We need to establish rules, boundaries. When a dog is properly socialized and trained, there's plenty of room for play."

The Dog Wizard follows three rules mother dogs use to control their puppies. Roytapel learned obedience training from a deaf and mute mentor back in Russia, where he eventually trained dogs for the KGB. Body language and vocalization are key to getting the dog to submit to your will. "She never gives commands she can't follow through, always reinforces what she says, and never repeats what she says," Roytapel said. "All aggression comes from trying to be leader of pack."

"My way is the canine way, the way dogs talk to one another, Doglish, like doggy mama. A low tone is associated with demand. Dogs learn by consequences. Lean over with your shoulder means sit, long lean means down. I sometimes growl. I do behavioral training using doggy mama way. To show dominance, she holds her mouth around their mouth to calm down."

Roytapel uses his hand to clamp Inga's mouth shut. Later he uses his thumb and first finger to mimic the mother dog's canine teeth on the neck to put the dog in its place.

"It's not a set of commands," Roytapel said. "We are building relationship with pets through human authority. You have to establish a proper relationship to establish authority. Owners always eat before she eats, doesn't sleep with them in bed, doesn't go through the door before they do. My clients want to have total freedom to have control wherever they go."

Roytapel brought along his two German shepherds to teach Inga to get along with other dogs. The first time he put the three of them together, he muzzled Inga for safety reasons. Subsequent socialization lessons occurred at a dog park and Pet Ritz, a boarding and training facility in Roseville.

"He teaches you to be kind and not get upset if she doesn't follow through because you aren't professing the right command," Matvchuk said. "The malamute is the closest animal to the wolf and always going to have a predatory behavior. It is an animal, but you are in charge. We're always hearing about what this animal did. We need to take responsibility."

WHY JOINTS HURT
The first source of joint pain is inflammation, as inflammation generates chemicals that irritate the joint capsule and set in motion a pain response.
An additional effect of inflammation is to cause the joint lining cells to secrete fluid. The amount of fluid the joint generates, if sufficient, will distend the joint capsule. That distension again activates nerve fibers that signal pain.
Physicians only partially know how and why inflammation begins in a joint. In the case of rheumatoid arthritis and lupus arthritis, the initiating events remain unknown. In gout the source of joint pain comes from crystals which form in the joint and act as would a splinter under your skin. In the case of gout, the "splinters" can reach huge numbers that compensate for their microscopic size.
Another cause for joint pain occurs in osteoarthritis. In this condition cartilage on the ends of the bone wear away allowing bone to rub against bone. Pain fibers in and around bone are abundant. When bone constantly wears on adjacent bone, the nerve endings in both bones are subject to stimulation that results in pain.
The purpose of joint pain is to give a warning: that joint needs attention and rest. You ignore such a message at your own risk; consider persistent joint pain with the same degree of urgency you would give a warning light on your car dashboard. Get help soon.

Oakland Township woman produces Detroit Festival of the Arts

BY SHARON DARGAY
OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

When Maureen Riley studied stage management at the University of Wisconsin, she plied her skills in small college theaters.

Thirty-some years later, the Oakland Township woman still works with live performance, but her stage has grown by 20 square city blocks.

Riley is special events director for the University Cultural Center Association, the Detroit-based organization that produces Noel Night — the Cultural Center-wide open house in December — and the Detroit Festival of the Arts, scheduled for Friday-Sunday, June 6-8. She's busy dealing with final details of the 22nd Annual Detroit Festival of the Arts.

"It's a large site. There's a lot of detail work and variety. We're down to the nitty gritty now. If you talked to me in February, I'm dealing with sponsors and soliciting sponsors," said Riley, who holds one of four key positions on the festival's organizing team. "I have the whole (visual) art fair portion of the festival."

When the festival opens Friday, Riley will cruise the artist market, talk with participants and "make sure everything is going well."

"I'm also the media spokesperson, so when Friday hits, the bulk of my time is spent with that. In a perfect world, the details have all been organized and the hard work is done by then. But getting set up on time and open on time is always a challenge. This is an outdoor event."

She likens it to assembling and running a small outdoor city. Crews begin building the event on Wednesday, setting up booths, erecting stages and running electrical service to various locations.

"We've been fortunate. There hasn't been any horrid weather," said Riley, who is organizing her ninth Detroit Festival of the Arts.

FAMILY-ORIENTED

"One of the things that has struck me about this event is that it's a chance for families to see arts presentations together. For instance, we've got a DSO ensemble performance. Most people can't afford to take their kids to the symphony. The museums are all open, too. The Detroit Historical Museum and the DIA are open for free. The science center is open at reduced admission. What a great time to come down and visit.

"I know that living in suburban areas, we tend to forget that a healthy region needs a healthy city. Just like other cities, Detroit is filled with arts and culture treasures."

PITCHING IN

She said participants can experience the festival as visitors or volunteers. Hundreds of volunteer positions and shifts are available over the three-day festival. They include working with artists, selling merchandise and beverages, staffing festival office and information areas, checking coats, and setting up and tearing down the event. There's even a floater position for volunteers who can't decide on a specific task.

"Never think twice about volunteering. You never know where it will lead you," Riley said.

A volunteer position at a summer music festival in Milwaukee, Wis., gave the former stage manager experience producing large-scale events. Riley, who grew up in a small town on the Wisconsin-Minnesota border, "had always loved theater" but never realized she could make a living in it professionally until she headed to college.

The Detroit Festival of the Arts will be open 4 a.m.-11 p.m., Friday, June 6; noon-11 p.m., Saturday, June 7; and noon-9 p.m., Sunday, June 8. Admission to outdoor activities is free. It will include a fine arts fair; children's area with art, puppetry, crafts, music exploration, storytelling and music performance; street theatre offering giant surrealistic insects that roam the festival, an aerial circus, street painting and sand sculpting; and weekend-long performances on five stages. The festival area is bordered by Anthony Wayne, Brush, Ferry and Warren in Detroit's cultural center.

GUMMING UP THE WORKS

The mouth is teeming with bacteria, some good, some bad. The harmful bacteria are contained in the sticky film called "plaque" that builds up on teeth daily and can irritate gums. Gingivitis, or inflammation of the gums, is the beginning phase of what could become a more serious case of periodontitis (gum inflammation). Left unchecked, the supporting structures of the teeth can degenerate to the point where teeth become loose or lost.

According to the American Academy of Periodontology, periodontal disease, also known as gum disease, is a "chronic bacterial infection that affects the gums and bone supporting the teeth." Periodontal disease will affect up to 90% of adults at some point in their lives.

Periodontal disease and its resultant damage can be controlled if we deal with bacterial plaque activity on a daily basis. A toothbrush alone, however, no matter how often used, cannot do the whole job. It takes the conscientious effort of brushing, flossing, smart eating, and professional visits to promote total oral health. If it's been too long since you treated your teeth and gums to professional care, now would be a good time to call 734-453-9413 for an appointment. We're located at 496 W. Ann Arbor Trail, Ste. 201, Plymouth.

P.S. Nearly 30% of the U.S. population may be genetically susceptible to gum disease.

Safe lawns

Go green without the health risks

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
STAFF WRITER

Melissa Cooper Sargent has no intention of killing the dandelions in her yard. She may not have the lushest lawn on the block but she knows her 5-year-old daughter is not being exposed to weed killers and pesticides. On June 5, Sargent talks about the dangers of chemicals such as malathion, 2,4-D and chlorpyrifos at a Safe Lawn Workshop presented by the Sierra Club Rochester ECOs group at Whole Foods Rochester.

"She loves the dandelions. They make her so happy so they don't bother me," said Sargent, who grew up in Southfield and now lives in Royal Oak. "We have to change our expectations. We can't expect our lawns to look like golf courses and not have negative health effects. Pesticides have been linked to ADHD in children, bladder cancer and malignant lymphoma in pet dogs, breast cancer in women, some of them are nervous system toxins."

Sargent's degree in natural resources and the environment helped her understand chemicals and their connection to diseases such as cancer. Since graduating from the University of Michigan she has worked at LocalMotion, a nonprofit dedicated to spreading awareness about the link. One of her duties as program director is to read scientific research papers and translate the findings. Many of the studies can be found in the online newsletter at www.local-motion.org.

Elizabeth Dance founded the organization in 1999 after the native Grosse Pointe resident noticed a higher incidence of breast cancer in the highly industrialized area.

"Just because it's on the store shelf doesn't mean it's safe," said Sargent. "These products are not necessarily tested for long-term health affects. Some products have been pulled off the shelves. Chlorpyrifos was in Dursban and Lorsban (pesticides) and were used (as indoor pest control) and people thought they were safe until January 2002. The EPA found they were too hazardous (for residential use), but still can be used on crops, golf courses, cattle for flea and ticks, non-residential buildings, mosquito control.

"The herbicide 2,4-D is one of two chemicals used in Agent Orange. A study found dogs who lived in households where it was used had an increased risk for cancer. Around the same time another study at Purdue University looked at herbicides in

SAFE LAWN WORKSHOP

What: Learn about alternatives to dangerous pesticides and weed killers in a workshop presented by Sierra Club Rochester ECOs
When: 7 p.m. Thursday, June 5
Where: Whole Foods Rochester, 1404 Walton Blvd.
Cost: Free. For information or to register, call (248) 652-2100 or e-mail rochesterecos@gmail.com.

general and found Scottish terriers were more likely to develop bladder cancer. Children and dogs are closer to the ground. They like to roll around in the grass. A child might put a blade of grass in their mouth. Children breathe more air pound per pound than we do increasing their exposure and they don't have as mature an immune system."

Chemical-free alternatives do exist.

"There are simple things people can do to build a healthier soil," said Sargent. "A chemically treated lawn is like a lawn on drugs and becomes dependent on chemical fertilizer which is salt-based. It kills the beneficial organisms in your soil. The earth worms leave. It's a quick nutrient fix, but kills beneficial organisms and bacteria that help your plants. Phosphorous is a component in fertilizer that washes down into our waterways. It helps the plants to grow, but we get excess weeds and algae blooms in our lakes and rivers."

Sargent suggests using an organic fertilizer made from materials such as soybean and corn gluten meals after testing the soil through Michigan State University (www.css.msu.edu/soiltesting.csm) or LocalMotion (www.local-motion.org). Local Motion also sells the Organic Lawn Care Manual by Paul Tukey, a guide to natural growing methods. One of the first steps to a safer lawn is cutting the grass with a mulching lawn mower. The clippings provide a nitrogen boost and food for worms.

"We also encourage people to mow high, 3 to 3 1/2 inches. It helps grass to be stronger, the root system, and shades out weed seeds so they don't germinate," said Sargent. "Spread grass seed on bare patches in your lawn to prevent weeds, rough up the ground and then seed and put compost over it. You can dress your entire lawn with compost, about 1/2 inch thick. It's a good nutrient boost."

"All of those things help build a healthy soil and lawn. Life will come back to your yard, beneficial insects. Birds will come back and eat a lot of insects. We also can encourage birds in the yard with water and native plants."

Sargent will pass on tips like these at the workshop. She'll tell how to read weeds. Clover is a symptom of nitrogen deficient soil. Certain plants like dandelions and thistle thrive in compacted soil so the solution could be as simple as aerating. Do you have dead patches of lawn? Grubs like to eat the roots. Instead of imidacloprid try the bacteria called milky spores and beneficial nematodes to prey on grubs.

Italia Millan never uses pesticides or waters her Auburn Hills lawn. As president of the Sierra Club Rochester ECOs group, she is not only promoting the Safe Lawns Workshop at Whole Foods, but heading up a campaign to protect Michigan waterways and the Great Lakes.

"We want to raise awareness about how important our water is, how many of the actions we take can affect it and us, our animals and the environment in general," said Millan. "We want to invite people to attend so they can find a safer way of taking care of their lawn, be aware that everything they put on their lawns goes directly to our rivers and streams and that will affect us in the end because it's our drinking water."

Exercise can help relieve arthritis

Walt from Rochester Hills e-mails for tips on reducing arthritis pain that do not require medication.

Walt, it is a simple fact of life. Chances are you will develop some form of arthritis if you live long enough!

Osteoarthritis is caused by wear and tear on the joints and runs in many families. It is particularly common if you have had a previous injury or have a weight problem. Faced with the painful condition, most people avoid exercise and unnecessary activity. That is a mistake though, because exercise strengthens muscles and that takes the pressure off joints!

Peter's Principles

Peter Nielsen

People with arthritis should do exercises that help with flexibility and posture. Start off gradually with nonweight-bearing exercises like water aerobics and work your way up to walking. Also, be sure to check with your doctor or personal fitness trainer for the program that is right for you.

Jill from Eastpointe suffers from fibromyalgia and wants tips for leading a fuller life.

Jill, almost four million Americans suffer from fibromyalgia or FM. FM patients have unexplained whole body muscle and joint pain.

The symptoms can include chronic fatigue, muscle pain, impaired sleep patterns and morning stiffness.

Treatments for FM include pain relief and helping the patients sleep, but exercise can also help people with the condition.

They should begin with low impact aerobics and stretching activities like yoga or tai chi.

After four weeks of aerobics it should be OK to begin a weight program. Doctors think it is likely FM is a metabolic problem and exercise is ideal for boosting the metabolism.

If you have a health or fitness question you would like answered in the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, e-mail Peter through his Web site www.peternielsen.com. # SHORT-TERM ASSIGNMENTS -- TIPS AND TRAPS

WORKWISE
by Mildred L. Culp

Short-term assignments requiring you to relocate, then return to your original location, seem to be increasing, according to a survey by Worldwide ERC and Cartus (Worldwide/Cartus). The 208 HR respondents, all domestic, span 15 industries throughout the United States. An enormous 80 percent of them use short-term assignments. Well over half of that group -- 57 percent -- project an uptick. More than one-third -- 38 percent -- expect their frequency to remain constant.

How does this trend impact you? It might vary, depending upon your work situation. Carly Kaufman, associate at the 120-employee Pariveda Solutions L.P., relocated from the Dallas headquarters to Houston after putting all of her possessions in storage. Her five-month assignment falls in the category of project work, with a defined beginning and end, which Worldwide/Cartus says is the most frequent reason for a short-term assignment. Kaufman points out that she took the IT consulting assignment for personal reasons.

"Typically, we'd travel Monday through Friday or Sunday through Thursday," she says, "but my lease in Dallas was running out. This was a choice I made. I'm single and young. For me it's a benefit, because I can live in a new city, check it out, hang out with friends I normally wouldn't see. The only negatives are that I miss some of my friends in Dallas and my stuff is in storage." By no means is this a one-time opportunity for her.

"I very well could go to other cities," she comments. "My company wouldn't force me to do it, but if I were interested, they'd send me to satellites in Detroit, Denver, Seattle, Chicago and Los Angeles." She likes the fact that her company's growth mode will increase her options. However, rooming with friends won't be an option, because she has none in those cities.

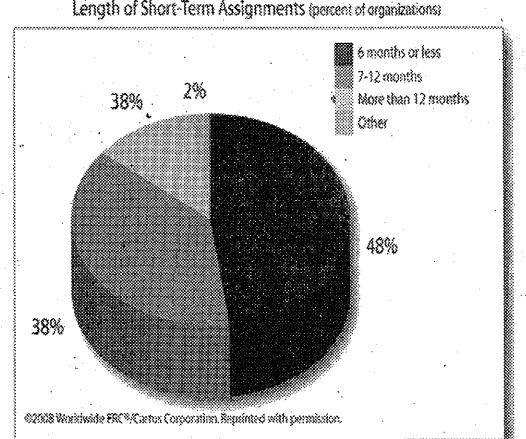

Tom Johansmeyer, now an in-house writer for a reinsurance company in New York City, also did IT consulting, but it was for a company of 10 he co-founded. He flew weekly between the Boston area and Omaha for five months in 2002, the company's start-up year. "I was helping a company set up a new system and change their business practices to take advantage of the new system," he recalls. The original five-month assignment expanded to a year, at which point he took steps to reduce the strain from traveling.

"I moved in my car with my then-fiancee, who's now my wife, and Sam the fish," he explains. "We moved with just each other and my professional contacts. I still had my apartment in Boston. At the end of assignment, we drove back."

PERSONAL DEVELOPMENTS
Strain doesn't end with the relocation, however. Kaufman made a deal with a friend so she could stay at her apartment on the company's nickel. She considers a corporate apartment ideal. That, in fact, was exactly what Johansmeyer had -- two bedrooms, each with a bathroom, at opposite ends, bringing "extraordinary privacy." Good thing... because they shared the 1200-square foot apartment with one of his colleagues.

Johansmeyer found it extremely expensive -- about $2,000 a pop -- to keep up with major events among families and friends. He did see his brother receive Eagle Scout, and attended a friend's wedding. "Dinner for a birthday," he remembers, "turned into a phone call."

Meanwhile, his billable hours sagged. But the couple enjoyed "fabulous restaurants" and look back fondly at the size and location of their apartment. He'd relocate immediately, rather than travel, if a similar situation arose in the future. He'd also take more breaks to discourage burnout, at the risk of reducing his billable hours. Ironically, Johansmeyer's hard work paid off by infusing capital into the start-up, but two years later, when the company changed direction, he moved on. He reports that it's doing well now under the leadership of the man who shared his Omaha apartment.

The good news for Kaufman is that because of the money saved by using her friend's spare bedroom, she can fly out of town on weekends. She started off by visiting her parents in San Antonio.

Wow, New Homes With Unbelievable Features Starting In The $140's

Danny Veri couldn't believe it when he crunched the numbers and saw a family with a household income of about $40,000 could move into a home in Brookfield Estates.

"This is just an incredible value," said Veri, a partner in Livonia Builders who teamed up with Tim Breault of Breault Homes to build the "neighborhood within a neighborhood" bounded by John Hix and Cherry Hill in Westland.

Brookfield Estates consists of 63 homes with 3 available floor plans starting in the $140,000's.

"We set out to build affordable housing with exceptional standard features and people are responding. In just over 16 months we have sold over 100 homes in our communities with these features."

The Baymont, a colonial, measures 1250 square feet and boasts 3 bedrooms, 1.5 baths, a great room, and a second floor laundry for only $149,900. You can add a master bath for only $5000 more.

The Regency is a 3 bedroom, 2 bath ranch with a formal dining room, a great room, a first floor laundry, and starts at just $159,900.

The Brookstone is a 4 bedroom, 2.5 bath open floor plan that is just under 1700 sq. ft. at $169,900. Each home has an attached 2 car garage and a full basement. The average lot size in Brookfield Estates is 60x120. Larger and wooded lots are available.

Veri said buyers can choose from many different elevations for the colonials.

Buyers will be even more amazed at the homes' affordability when they see the upgrades Livonia Builders and Breault Homes include as standard features.

Guests are welcomed into the foyer by oak floors which are also used in the kitchen and nook. Granite countertops, Merillat cabinets, a designer faucet, and undermount double bowl stainless steel sink comprise just some of the kitchen's amenities.

The cabinetry and faucets are carried into the ceramic-tiled bathrooms with the powder rooms featuring a pedestal sink and oak floors.

12 x 12 Ceramic tile is also used in the laundry rooms and carpeting covers the great room, dining room, and bedrooms where ceiling lights illuminate the nighttime chambers.

Each room is surrounded by upgraded 4 inch thick baseboard moldings and 3-inch door casing moldings finish out the two-panel interior smooth finish doors.

The homes include a high efficiency Comfortmaker furnace, 13 SEER Comfortmaker air conditioning unit, a high-efficiency 40-gallon hot water tank, R44 ceiling insulation and a fireplace with gas logs.

Veri said the exterior is "100 percent maintenance free".

The ranch is completely brick as is the first floor of the two colonials. The second floor of the colonials is finished in vinyl siding. Overhangs on all three models are either aluminum or vinyl trim.

Pella vinyl windows with Low E glass, as well as glass block on the basement windows finish each home.

Other accoutrements include a limestone address block, sodded yards, sidewalks, and city water and sewer.

Coach lights outside the garage and Owens-Corning 30-year dimensional shingles lend to the aesthetics as well.

"As you can see Livonia Builders & Breault Homes use namebrand, high quality features. Our floors are real oak, finished on site (not pre-finished flooring). Our windows are Pella, not a no-name brand that may be out of business before the warranty ends," said Veri.

An advantage to using Livonia Builders & Breault Homes are the financial stability of the companies. They are cash-strong and combined have been in business over 50 years. The buyers also get to deal directly with the owners of the companies through the whole building process, not superintendents or salespeople. "Our sales and construction process makes our buyers very comfortable. They know they are dealing directly with the owners of the building company."

Brookfield Estates is on the Canton border and very close to Ford Road shopping. It is in the Wayne/Westland school district and is nestled in Brookfield Village, an existing subdivision where home values range in the mid to upper $200,000's, Veri said.

Ford Road is a mere mile away and in close proximity is I-275 and local home improvement stores.

"It's a very welcoming neighborhood," he said. It is tucked away and embraced by deep woods and wetland area."

Veri said he can't get over the affordability of the homes.

"We worked on slim margins to keep working," he said "The main theme to this whole project was creating affordable housing with luxury features. With an hourly wage of $19 per hour for household income, you can buy a house with all these features."

Veri worked with his in-house mortgage lender, Mortgage Concepts, and came up with a 5% down, 30-year fixed rate mortgage plan which includes taxes and insurance for about $1200 a month.

"We even have a program that has no out-of-pocket closing costs," he said. "It's just a phenomenal deal for a first time home buyer or someone looking for more square footage."

Livonia Builders & Breault's model homes are open Saturdays & Sundays from 1-5pm, and Mondays, Tuesdays, and Fridays from 1-5pm.

Call Livonia Builders - Danny Veri for brochure info at (313) 586-2559 or (734) 397-9140, or email him at dannyveri@sbcglobal.net.

RE/MAX kudos

RE/MAX Classic announced that it has been named to RISMedia's 20th annual Power Broker Report & Survey. RE/MAX Classic ranked 192 in Closed Transaction sides and ranked 308 in Closed Sales Volume in the Power Broker Report, which identifies and ranks America's largest residential real estate brokerage companies by transaction sides and sales volume.

The results of this year's survey reflect the market downturn felt from coast to coast. Longer listing times, more cautious buyers and the mortgage meltdown resulted in fewer total transactions. RE/MAX Classic showed strength in increased transaction count, overall. Average Individual Agent Transactions were 26 per agent and Average Agent Volume was $3.2 million.

"Appearing in RISMedia's 2008 Power Broker Report is more important than ever," said RISMedia President and CEO John Featherston. "By ranking the industry's leading brokerages by sales dollar volume and transaction, we have been able to identify the leaders in real estate year after year. It's a great way to show consumers that the real estate industry is still open for business."

"Being among the top 700 brokers in the country is a sure way to gain the trust of speculative clients, differentiate your firm from the competition, and catch the eye of ambitious new recruits."

For years, the nation's top real estate brokers have sought to be included in the report — a reference tool used by the real estate industry. RISMedia's Power Broker Report is read by more than 300,000 real estate professionals, thousands of leading corporate relocation decision makers and is accessible online to consumers.

The Power Broker Report &

BRIEFS

Survey is compiled annually by RISMedia and is based on data collected by an annual survey of leading residential real estate brokerage firms. RE/MAX Classic has participated in the RISMedia Power Broker Survey for the past seven years and consistently ranked within the Top 700 Brokers nationwide. Carol Boji, broker/owner of RE/MAX Classic, finds that "participation of the survey each year is very important and validates the success and hard work of our agents and puts RE/MAX Classic above the crowd. The RISMedia Power Broker Report and the Crain's Top 25 Broker Report are two of the benchmarks that we use to assure we are on top of our game."

Affiliation

Hall & Hunter Realtors has been selected as an exclusive affiliate of Christie's Great Estates, a wholly owned subsidiary of Christie's International plc, the world's oldest fine art auction house. Through Hall & Hunter Realtors, buyers and sellers of high-end properties in Birmingham, Bloomfield, Beverly Hills, Franklin, Farmington, Troy, and other northern suburbs of Detroit, will have access to the combined marketing efforts of Christie's and Christie's Great Estates.

Christie's Great Estates is the largest international luxury network of real estate brokers specializing in the marketing and sale of high-end properties. This network of real estate firms includes more than 850 offices and approximately 35,000 sales associates in 40 countries.

"As a performance-driven real estate company, we are very proud to have been chosen to be the exclusive affiliate of Christie's Great Estates in Oakland County," said Dennis Wolf, CEO and owner of Hall & Hunter Realtors. "This relationship will further enhance our dominance in the luxury

I am pleased to welcome Hall & Hunter Realtors to Christie's Great Estates."

To satisfy this demand, Christie's Great Estates, founded by Kay Coughlin in 1987, was acquired by Christie's in 1995. Today, the Christie's Great Estates global network spans 40 countries with 850 offices and approximately 35,000 brokers.

The network achieved total combined sales in excess of $125 billion.

Once awarded affiliate status, brokers may then display the coveted Christie's brand and use the proprietary marketing services of Christie's Great Estates, which have successfully marketed high-value real estate around the globe for more than 20 years. Exceptionally skilled local real estate brokerages, a client-focused approach, and strategic global marketing are the hallmarks of Christie's Great Estates.

Blitz Build

Habitat for Humanity of Oakland County announced that its BlitzBuild 2008 will take place June 13-28 on Ferry Street in Pontiac. Building side-by-side with over 750 volunteers during the intensive two-week build, four new partner families will be able to stand proudly as their first ever homes are dedicated on June 28 at 4 p.m.

"We are delighted to bring back this opportunity to rapidly build four homes in two weeks," said Sally LePla, Habitat executive director. Noting that this will bring the total Habitat home number in Oakland County to 90, LePla added: "We have already built nine homes in this neighborhood and are seeking to create the energy that will bring about total transformation for the neighborhood and the lives of those who are living there."

The Blitz Build started in 2005 with the Jimmy Carter Work Project. The need for volunteers and sponsors is always in high demand. If you or your organization is interested in volunteering or becoming a sponsor, contact Brad Irwin at (248) 338-1843, Ext. 22.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Marketplace Rules

The Online Marketplace features great merchandise and services from local, trusted businesses who are customers of our newspaper. Using auction-style bidding, you can place bids on items available from these local vendors and, if you are the highest bidder, pay for and receive a certificate to pick up the item directly from the vendor.

General Rules

- By participating in Bid and Buy, you acknowledge that you have read, understand and accept these rules. The Detroit News and Detroit Free Press (hereinafter referred to as "the newspaper") reserves the right to update and change these rules from time to time.
- The newspaper provides the auction-style online marketplace as a venue for sellers to advertise and promote items for you to bid on. The newspaper is not involved in any transaction entered into through the online marketplace except to the extent that the newspaper may collect the total purchase price for items other than real estate or automobiles, as outlined herein. The newspaper is not involved in the buying, selling, exchanging or dealing of items in the online marketplace, nor is the newspaper soliciting orders on behalf of the sellers. The newspaper charges no fee to vendors for listing items in the online marketplace, nor to buyers who purchase items from vendors who participate in the online marketplace.
- The goods and services offered through the online marketplace are provided by the participating businesses on an "as is" basis. The newspaper makes no representations or warranties and there are no conditions of any kind, express or implied, statutory or otherwise, with respect to the goods and services offered through the online marketplace, including without limitation:
  - implied warranties of merchantability, fitness for a particular purpose, title and non-infringement;
  - any implied warranty arising from course of dealing or usage of trade;
  - any obligation, liability, right, claim or remedy in tort, whether or not arising from the negligence of CityXpress or the newspaper.
- All items in the online marketplace are brand new, unless otherwise indicated, and come with applicable warranties, as determined by the seller. The newspaper is not the vendor of the items and assumes no responsibility for the items in any respect. The respective sellers of each item are solely responsible for descriptions in the online marketplace and the condition, estimates, authenticity, title, representations as to price, and all other matters relating to the offer and sale of the items.
- All items in the online marketplace may be viewed at the respective seller's place of business as indicated in the auction catalog. Bidders are urged to view items on which they intend to bid prior to bidding.
- The online marketplace is open to any person who has reached the age of majority in their home province or state. Employees of CityXpress and the newspaper are not eligible to participate. Employees of participating businesses may bid, but not on items that are provided by their respective businesses.
- You are prohibited from using any method, mechanism, device or software to affect the proper functioning of the online marketplace and website. The newspaper may, at its sole discretion and without notice, terminate the right of any participant in the online marketplace or user of the website to participate in the online marketplace or use the website.
- All content on this website is the property of the newspaper or the sellers. The newspaper grants a limited license to each user of the website to make personal use only of the website itself. Any other use, including reproduction, modification, distribution, transmission, or display of the content on the website is strictly prohibited.
- The online marketplace is governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the state or province and country in which the newspaper resides. You agree to comply with all applicable laws, statutes and regulations regarding participation in the online marketplace and use of the website.

Bidding Rules

- The auction-style online marketplace commences on 01 Jun 2008 at 09:00AM and ends on 10 Jun 2008 at 08:00PM. Starting and ending time is determined by the website clock. Bids will be accepted during this time period only. The newspaper reserves the right, at its sole discretion and without notice, to extend, terminate or modify the online marketplace in the event of unforeseen technical difficulties that alter the proper functioning of the online marketplace.
- Bids may be placed online 24 hours per day at the online marketplace website, between the online marketplace start date and time and the online marketplace end date and time, or during limited hours by phoning to the Auction Bid Line, if the newspaper offers this service.
- The Bidder Trust Committee will set a Starting Bid for each item. The Starting Bid is the minimum amount required to participate in the bidding for that item.
- Each item has a Reserve Value. The Reserve Values are usually 50% of the ordinary selling price of the item, except in the case of items such as automobiles or real estate, where the Reserve Value may be higher.
- Each item has a Reserve Status, which indicates one of two values:
  - Reserve not met. The amount of the highest Maximum Secret Bid is less than the Reserve Value and the item will not sell.
  - Reserve met. The amount of the highest Maximum Secret Bid is at least as much as the Reserve Value and the item will be sold to the highest bidder.
- The online marketplace operates under a proxy bidding system. Under proxy bidding, you tell the Bidder Trust Committee the maximum amount you are willing to bid for an item. This is your Maximum Secret Bid and is known only by you and the Bidder Trust Committee. You should be sure of your Maximum Secret Bid prior to submission. The Maximum Secret Bid that you submit may not necessarily be the price you pay if you are the successful bidder - you may pay less, but never more. However, choose your maximum carefully, as you will be legally bound to pay up to that price (plus any applicable taxes) if it is the final highest bid.
- If your Maximum Secret Bid is the first bid on an item, it must be at least as much as the Starting Bid for the item. If previous bids have been placed on all available quantities of the item, then your Maximum Secret Bid must exceed the current leading bid on that item by at least the minimum increment for that item (where the increment is $1 for items whose value is less than $100, $10 for items whose value is $100 or more, but less than $10,000, and $100 for items whose value is $10,000 or more). For example, if the current leading bid is $250 on a $1000 item with an available quantity of one, then your Maximum Secret Bid must be at least $260.
- Based on your Maximum Secret Bid, the Bidder Trust Committee will place bids on your behalf at the lowest amount possible to make you the high bidder for the item. For example, if yours is the first bid on an item, the Bidder Trust Committee will place a bid on your behalf equal to the Starting Bid for that item, or if your Maximum Secret Bid is greater than the Reserve Price of the item, the Bidder Trust Committee will place a bid equal to the Reserve Price (and declare Reserve Met).
- If another bidder places a Maximum Secret Bid on an item for which you have placed a bid, and your Maximum Secret Bid on that item is higher than the other bidder's Maximum Secret Bid, the Bidder Trust Committee will automatically place a bid on your behalf that is $10 more than the current leading bid, to ensure you remain the leading bidder. For automobiles, real estate or any item with a value of $10,000 or more, that increment will be $100. For items with a value of less than $100, the increment will be $1. The Bidder Trust Committee will continue bidding in this fashion until one of three things happens:
  - No other bids are higher than yours,
  - Your Maximum Secret Bid is reached, or

You are declared the highest bidder at the end of the online marketplace.

Payment Rules

- It is your responsibility to monitor the outcome and status of your bids on the online marketplace website and, in the event that you are outbid by another bidder with a higher Maximum Secret Bid, determine whether to continue bidding on an item. If you are outbid by another bidder with a higher Maximum Secret Bid, you must submit a new Maximum Secret Bid in order to continue your bidding on that item. If you submit a new Maximum Secret Bid, that bid supersedes all your previous bids on that item. The amount of the new bid must be at least $10 more than the current leading bid on the item (or $100 for items over $10,000 in value and $1 for items under $100 in value), and the quantity must be the same as or greater than the highest quantity in any of your previous Maximum Secret Bids on that item.
- If your Maximum Secret Bid is exactly the same as another bidder's previously-placed Maximum Secret Bid on the same item, the bidder whose bid was placed first shall be declared the leading bidder.
- If an item is available with a quantity greater than one, you may place a bid on more than one of that item (your Bid Quantity). For example, for an item that is available with a quantity of three, you may bid on one, two or all three of that item. The quantity allocated to you by your bid may be as much as your Bid Quantity or may be less (but never more), depending on whether there are previous bids by other bidders at the same amount, or subsequent bids at higher amounts, and the Bid Quantity of each. The quantity allocated to you may also change over the course of the online marketplace as subsequent bids are received, if those bids are higher than yours.
- In the event of a dispute between bidders or between bidders and the Bidder Trust Committee, or in the event of doubt or dispute as to the validity of any bid, the Bidder Trust Committee will have the discretion to determine the successful bidder. All decisions by the Bidder Trust Committee are final and binding.
- The newspaper is not responsible for any bids that are lost, misdirected, incomplete or illegible, or for failed, partial or garbled computer transmissions, or for technical failures of any kind including, but not limited to, malfunctioning of any network, hardware or software, which may limit a bidder's ability to participate in the online marketplace. Proof of sending will not be proof of receipt by the newspaper. The newspaper is not responsible for any online, long distance telephone, or other charges you may incur in connection with participating in the online marketplace.
- During and after the marketplace event, you may receive emails confirming bids you place, notifying you that you have been outbid by another bidder, or notifying you that you are a winner. These emails are for informational purposes only. Their transmission or omission do not constitute any change in the status of your bid or those of other bidders. Only the record of bids in the online marketplace system, as represented on the online marketplace website, constitutes the true bid record, as used by the Bidder Trust Committee to determine the winning bidder at the close of the online marketplace.
- At the close of the online marketplace, the Bidder Trust Committee will determine the winning bidder (the buyer) for each item and will contact that bidder by email and/or phone within five days to notify him/her of his/her winning status and request payment. As the buyer, you may not retract your bid and are obligated to make full payment of the total purchase price within three days of notification being initiated by the Bidder Trust Committee. If a buyer cannot be contacted, or if payment is not received in full, within three days of contact first being initiated, the Bidder Trust Committee reserves the right to disqualify that buyer and deem the next highest bidder on the item to be the buyer. As the new buyer, you may not retract your bid and are obligated to make full payment of the total purchase price within two days of notification being initiated by the Bidder Trust Committee. If a buyer cannot be contacted, or if payment is not received in full, within two days of contact first being initiated, the Bidder Trust Committee reserves the right to continue the process of disqualification and notification of subsequent bidders, or to remove the item from sale.

Refund Rules

- The total purchase price of an item for each winning bidder is defined as the leading bid for the item at the close of the online marketplace, for each winning bidder, multiplied by the quantity allocated to the bidder. In the event that a bidder is disqualified and the item offered to the next highest bidder, the total purchase price shall be the next highest bidder's Maximum Secret Bid, multiplied by the quantity allocated to the bidder, plus any applicable transaction taxes required by law to be collected and remitted.
- For most items, the buyer shall pay the total purchase price to the newspaper, who is collecting it on behalf of the seller (the participating business which sponsored the item in the online marketplace). In some instances, such as for automotive and real estate items, the buyer shall pay the total purchase price directly to the seller. Specific payment instructions for each item won are provided in winning bidder email notices.
- It is the seller's and the buyer's responsibility to obtain any applicable or necessary licenses, registrations, or any other form of approval for the items sold and to pay any fees associated therewith.
- Once full payment of the total purchase price has been made on the item, the buyer will receive an Item Certificate to be presented to the seller to release the item to the buyer. Unless specified in the item description, the certificate expires 6 months from the date of issue. All delivery or pick-up arrangements must be made with the respective seller. Delivery may incur additional charges above and beyond the total purchase price, to be negotiated separately between the buyer and seller. All sales are final.
- If the buyer fails to comply with these rules, including the obligation to make full payment of the total purchase price within the time limits and terms set out herein, in addition to other remedies available to the newspaper and the seller, you not only will remain obligated for your leading bid amount, you also will be responsible for an additional 20% of the leading bid amount, and you will be obligated to pay all attorney's fees and costs incurred to enforce payment of these amounts. The newspaper or the seller may also cancel the sale and re-offer the item or sell it privately and hold the buyer liable for any costs or losses associated therewith.
- It is the seller's and the buyer's responsibility to ensure that all taxes that apply to the items or transactions are collected, reported and remitted to the appropriate tax authority. During collection of the winning bid payment, or upon receipt of the Winning Bidder Certificate, the vendor of the item will separately bill or invoice the sales/use tax due on the sale, upon shipment of the item, for delivery to those states the vendor is registered to collect such tax; and for those states the vendor is not registered to collect such sales/use tax (and as a result does not separately bill or invoice the buyer for such tax), it is the buyer's responsibility to remit the amount of sales/use tax due directly to the appropriate taxing jurisdiction.
- As stated in these rules, all sales are final. However, in the event that an item you won and paid for was not fairly represented on the marketplace website, a refund will be considered. To be eligible for a refund, you must not redeem your certificate for the item, and must submit your request within forty-eight (48) hours of completing payment and receiving your certificate. Please see the Contact Us page for contact information to which you must submit your request. We'll notify you via e-mail of the status of your refund once we've received, reviewed and processed your request. You can expect a refund in the same form of payment as originally used to make payment, within 7 to 14 business days of our receiving and approving your request. If you have already redeemed your certificate for the item, you should contact the vendor directly regarding a refund.
